LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CANALS AND IRRIGATION IN INDIA.
(REPORT ON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 26 August, 1884.

F. A. Franklin, Esq., to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 30 July, 1884.

I have the honor to furnish you with a report on the Ganges, Jumna, and Sone system of canals and irrigation in India.

In accordance with your instructions, conveyed to me by telegram on the 8th February last, to examine into the system of water conservancy of Bengal and Upper India, I took the earliest opportunity, on the completion of my work in connection with the Calcutta Exhibition, to proceed first to Arrah, the central district of the Sone circle of canals. At that place arrangements had been made by Colonel J. M. Heywood, R.E., Superintending Engineer, to proceed with me to Dehree, the head works of the system. The whole of the works were minutely described, and the practical working of shutters, sluices, and regulators illustrated by G. Shawe, Esq., C.E., Executive Engineer of the district. Upon completion of the inspection of the highly interesting system of the district, the next work visited was the terminal point of the Ganges Canal at Cawnpore. From thence I proceeded to Agra, and examined the escape of the Delhi Canal at that place. I afterwards went on to Delhi to make myself acquainted with the head works on the river Jumna, at Okla, 10 miles below that city.

On completing my inquiries at Delhi I went on to Roorkee, and thence to Hurdwar, the head works of the Ganges Canal, 20 miles above the town of Roorkee. Being provided at this place with an elephant, and accompanied by the resident engineer, I was enabled to inspect the mode of training the Ganges towards the off-take of the canal. When returning to Calcutta I branched off by the Oudh and Rohilcund Railway to Rajghat, and visited the head works of the Lower Ganges system.

THE UPPER GANGES CANAL.

This project was first conceived by Colonel Colvin, R.E., in 1836, but nothing of a practical nature was done until the great famine of 1837-38 forced the question on the serious attention of the Government. Colonel Cartley having succeeded Colonel Colvin, who was very sanguine of the success of the scheme, strongly urged his successor to continue the examination. In 1848 the work was commenced with great vigour.

The head works of this great canal are situated at the sacred town of Hurdwar, within sight of the snow-capped peaks of the Himalayas. The source of the great river is at Gungotri. A little above Hurdwar the Ganges throws off a branch about 250 feet broad, which is used as the supply channel for the canal. The quantity of water taken off is regulated by sluices, and the remainder is allowed to rejoin the main river lower down. The bed of this branch has been deepened to an uniform slope of $8\frac{1}{2}$ feet per mile, and the erosion of the banks is prevented by spurs or bunds placed transversely with the axis of the stream. The general bed of the Ganges above this point is but ill defined, and the current liable to constant change. Therefore, in order to obtain a regular supply, the head of one of the main channels is closed by a temporary dam, composed of timber cribs filled with boulders, and built up to flood level, which can be removed when threatened by more than ordinary flood. The other channels are closed by temporary bunds of moderate height, so that the supply channel to the canal is under complete control. Just above the entrance to the canal a permanent bar has been constructed as an escape (communicating with the main river), and to regulate the cold weather level.

The entrance to the canal is at Myapoor, and then commences a complete series of works of a most extensive character. They consist of a masonry dam some 600 feet in length (in course of reconstruction at the time of my visit) across the Pyree branch. This dam is provided with sluices, and across the entrance to the canal is a masonry bridge of ten arches, each 20 feet wide, fitted with shutters or gates for regulating the admission of the water as may be required for navigation or cultivation.

Between the Myapoor headworks and the high land on which Roorkee is situated, the canal traverses a line which bisects several mountain streams. On this portion of country the most formidable obstacles to the project were met with. The tract of country referred to is triangular in shape, the northern side being formed by the Sewalik hills, the eastern by the river Ganges, and the western by the high land which constitutes the boundary of the valley of the Ganges. Along the direction of a rapid slope the line of canal is carried, and the drainage of three mountain streams which cross the canal at right angles is provided for by works which will be hereafter described.

The canal is 140 feet wide at the bottom, has a slope of $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 1, and the water is 10 feet deep. It is constructed with a fall of 15 inches in every mile, but this is much less than the natural fall of the country; the excess of slope is therefore provided for by artificial works. To this end masonry falls are formed between Hindwar and Roorkee. To regulate the slope of the channel from Hurdwar to Roorkee there are four such falls of 9 feet each. The navigable canals which form loops round these falls are furnished with locks, compensating the fall in the main canal. The total fall of 36 feet delivers the water at Mahewar, $27\frac{1}{2}$ feet above the level of the Solani River valley, within a mile of Roorkee. The first mountain-stream or rao is the Puttree, conveyed over the canal by superpassage, which merely acts as a watercourse during floods, and at other times may be used for the purpose of cross-communication. The work is of a very massive character, with strong parapet walls. The catchment area of this torrent is about 80 square miles, having a width of 5 miles, and an average length of 16 miles, commencing at the Sewalik range of hills and terminating at the superpassage. The superpassage consists of eight arches, of 25 feet span each, which discharge the canal supply. The fall of 9 feet takes place above each arch, and the ninth arch provides for navigation, the lock-gate being attached to the bridge. The water-way over the superpassage is 300 feet in the clear, the parapets being 14 feet high. The Ranipore superpassage is in most respects similar to the above, except that its water-way is only 200 feet wide in the clear.

The next work of magnitude is at Dhunowree, at the intersection of the Rutmoo Rao or River, which it meets and crosses on the level of the canal-bed. The works designed for the passage of this river across the canal consist of a masonry apron on the right and a regulating escape dam on the left bank, provided with forty-seven sluice-gates 10 feet wide, with cills flush with canal, and connected by revetment walls, with a traffic-bridge on the up-stream side of the canal, and a regulating bridge on the down side. In addition to the sluices just referred to, there are on each flank five other sluices, with cills raised 6 feet, and on the extreme flanks are platforms or weirs at the permanent or maximum level of the canal, so that in extreme floods an escape across the canal is provided for a width of 800 feet. The whole of the escape sluices can be opened very quickly by a very simple contrivance, the chains holding the gates being released by a slight tap with a hammer.

The regulating bridge is composed of ten arched spans of 20 feet each in the clear, with necessary apparatus for raising and lowering. By these means an immoderate storm discharge is completely under control. On the occurrence of a flood the dam sluices are opened and the regulating gates of the canal bridge closed, so that the excess water is conveyed away harmlessly to the natural bed of the river, the middle sluice gates allowing the escape of silts to the level of canal bed. On the termination of a flood the canal regulator is again opened, and the dam sluices are closed, thus allowing the canal supply to run at its ordinary level. This is a most important work, and upon its accurate supervision depends the safety of the works lower down.

The next work is the deservedly famous Solani aqueduct. This great work is situated at the 19th mile from the head, at the point where the canal leaves the high land of the Ganges. The Rutmoo and Solani rivers are separated by a high ridge of land about 2 miles in breadth, through which the canal passes in a deep excavation. This runs out at the Solani Valley, which is 11,680 feet wide, or nearly $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles. The canal is now carried above the surface of the valley by an aqueduct 15,700 feet long. The masonry aqueduct itself, which crosses the river bed, is 920 feet long, and consists of fifteen arches each of 50 feet span (giving a clear water-way of 750 feet), with 9-foot piers. The width of foundations in piers is 252 feet, and the extreme width of water-way on top is 172 feet, by a maximum depth of 10 feet. It is divided in the centre by a wall throughout its length, and grooved to receive planks, in order that one half of the aqueduct may be closed if necessary. The canal level at this point is 24 feet above the Solani river-bed, and the whole work is of stupendous dimensions. The banks of the canal on the up-stream side of the aqueduct are revetted by masonry steps for a distance of 10,713 feet, and for 2,723 feet on the down stream, or Roorkee side, that is a total of 13,436 feet. The embankment supporting this channel has a base of 350 feet, and a top width of 290 feet, which provides for a road on either side. At the time of my visit the velocity of water was $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles per hour, and the depth on gauge 8 feet, or 2 feet below the maximum. The total height of the aqueduct above the river is 38 feet. The deficiency of elevation robs it of much of its grandeur when viewed from below, but above when its extreme width and length of masonry channel are viewed, the effect is most striking.

The foregoing is a brief sketch of the works on the first section, from the training works to Roorkee. It would be impossible to give anything like an estimate of the amount of labour expended on them.

The canal, after passing the high land of Roorkee, flows east of Mozuffingur and west of Meerut, following the high land to near Bolundshuhur, where a short branch occurs, and continues to a short distance below Allyghur, where it terminates or, rather, diverges into the Cawnpore and Etawah branches.

The former flows on the high land between the rivers Esun and Rind, and discharges into the Ganges at Cawnpore, a distance of 170 miles, and navigable throughout. The latter continues through the high land, and after a course of 170 miles flows into the Jumna, near Humeerpore.

Throughout the length of the main canal and branches the longitudinal section is laid out in a series of steps, the length of tread and height of rise being determined by the profile of the country. These weirs or overfalls were originally designed in the form of ogee, but it is now agreed that the vertical shape is the best. There are fourteen of these falls in a distance of 165 miles from the head, aggregating 110 feet. The falls consist of bridges, as already described, with varying numbers of arches, according to the waterway required. At 68 miles the canal is diminished in width to 150 feet, and at 149 miles to 100 feet to compensate for the quantity of water taken off for irrigating purposes.

The navigation in the canal is of minor importance, but in order to maintain its small channels 20 feet wide are constructed three-quarters of a mile above each fall, and re-entering the canal at about the same distance below.

On these channels locks are provided at the point corresponding with the weir or fall in the main channel. At most of these locks corn or sugar mills have been erected, worked by water-power.

In consequence of local irrigation, and frequently to an irregular abstraction of water from the main channel, the equilibrium between the supply and the capacity of the channel is liable to be disturbed. At its source the climate is moist, but on entering the plain country the climate is entirely changed, and demands are made on the supply which varies with regard to climate and soil, and is greatly influenced by local rainfalls. These conditions are met by providing escape outlets at intervals along the line of the canal, so that when overcharged the surplus water may be passed off into side channels. These escapes on the Ganges Canal are situated about 40 miles apart. They consist of a number of sluices about 6 feet in width, are built in the side road, and are arched over so that a free passage is open to both traffic and water.

At the end of the main canal, where it divides into the Cawnpore and Etawah branches, are two regulating bridges, one over each branch, connected by a masonry wall. These bridges have each five openings of 20 feet, fitted with gates and apparatus to admit of proper subdivision of supply; and in cases of necessity one or other of the branches can be laid dry.

On both banks along the whole line plantations of useful shade trees have been formed. The distances are marked by substantial mile-posts, and at nearly every bridge are provided bathing ghats for the natives.

The Cawnpore terminal line passes the station near the Cantonment. At this point it has wide and handsome esplanades, with trees, ghats, and bridges, which are quite an ornament to the locality.

The junction with the Ganges is effected by a series of locks for the passage of boats to or from the Ganges or Canal.

The total length of main and branch navigable canals in this system is 890 miles, and 3,700 miles of distributing lines, along which are established 17 dams or escapes, 202 bridges for the purpose of traffic or regulation of supply, with waterways varying from 200 feet to 20 feet, 297 inlets for local drainage, 16 falls, and 31 locks and side navigable channels, and 282 outlet heads for irrigation.

The preceding details will suffice to give an impression of the extent and dimensions of the Ganges Canal. Up to the end of 1877-78 the expenditure on the canal had been three millions and fifty-five thousand pounds (£3,055,000). The area irrigable is 1,205,000 acres. THE

THE LOWER GANGES CANAL.

This is comparatively new work designed to compensate for the admitted fault of placing the head of the upper system so high up the river as Hurdwar. The work was recommended by Sir Arthur Cotton in 1863, and after some alteration in the design first proposed, the work was commenced by the construction of the masonry weir across the Ganges, at Nurora, in 1871. This weir is situated about 3 miles below the crossing of the Oudh and Rohilcund Railway at Rajjhat, 30 miles from Allyghur, on the East Indian Railway. From this point the main canal traverses the Allyghur, Etah, and Mynpoorie districts, crossing the Cawnpore branch of the Upper Ganges canal 76 miles from the terminus, thence running westward of the town of Cawnpore to the district of Futtehpore. The length of canal channel is 531 miles, of escapes 56 miles, of navigable channels 428 miles, distributaries for irrigation 1,834 miles.

The works at Nurora consist of a masonry weir across the Ganges, having sluice openings only on the flank where the canal takes off. At the time of my visit I was unable to obtain the assistance of the resident engineer; the measurements given with the following description are therefore only approximate.

The weir sluices are divided in bays of 14 feet and 8 feet waterways; the shutters are of iron, with very improved apparatus for lifting. The weir is connected with the canal take-off by a wing wall 130 feet in length, and the bank on the lower side is protected in a similar manner for the same distance. At the end of weir openings a ramped wing wall, 7 feet wide, extends down stream 130 feet as a protection to slope of dam. The main dam or weir is constructed on a loose sand bed, and the long down-stream slope is packed with large pieces of kunkur in the absence of stone. The crest of the weir is 10 feet above the river-bed, but this height can be further increased by the use of iron shutters hinged to crest of weir. On the up-stream side of the weir the low nature of the country necessitates the maintenance of a bund for a distance of 5 miles, to prevent the spread of flood-water.

The water is taken off to the canal by thirty sluice gates, the width of inlet being 300 feet. The shutters or doors are fitted to the full depth of the river at entrance, and any silt that may collect at the entrance is removed by the scour from the sluices in the weir already described above. At a distance of 750 feet above the weir is the lock-entrance, with gates of the ordinary kind, the river bank for the whole length from weir to lock-entrance being protected by a masonry revetment, which also extends beyond and protects the upper wing of the lock.

The design and construction of this work embrace every improvement that long experience and modern science could suggest, and may be looked upon as a reliable type to follow in any works of a similar character projected in this Colony.

It is to be regretted that time and an unfavourable season did not permit of a thorough examination of this system, as the head works offer sufficient promise that all the details throughout would prove of a highly interesting and instructive character.

THE AGRA CANAL.

This canal was completed in March, 1874, and the distribution of water commenced in the following cold weather. It commands an area of 375,800 acres. The head works of the canal are situated at Okla, 10 miles below Delhi, on the River Jumna. The weir is 2,400 feet in length, and the crest is 7 feet above summer level of the river. The maximum height of flood at the weir is 11 feet, with a velocity of $5\frac{1}{4}$ miles per hour. The rear slope is composed of large size, hand-packed rubble, laid to an incline of 20 to 1. The through walls of the weir are laid directly on the river-bed, without block or well foundation. This was the first attempt at construction of this nature on a bed of the finest sand, and the work appears to stand well. At the end of the weir, where the canal takes off, there are sixteen sluice openings of 6 feet 6 inches each, flanked at the land side with a revetment extending down stream for protection of the bank, and up stream 60 feet, where commence the under sluice openings for canal supply. The width of canal is 100 feet, and the water entrance is arched over to form a traffic road. The masonry wall continues for 150 feet, and is then curved to entrance of lock communicating with canal. The whole of the work is executed in rubble, with brick strings and copings, and is of a very substantial character. The sluice-shutters are dropped in a cast-iron channel plate, and are lifted by a traveller provided with winch and gear, running on a line of rails attached to the piers. The depth of water at entrance is 8 feet, and the canal entrance is formed in excavation 20 feet in depth.

The main weir on the up-stream side is well protected with rubble stone, and, excepting at the entrance to sluice openings, is silted to level of dam crest. Shutters are now being fixed to the weir which will raise the level of the water impounded 3 feet 6 inches.

An embankment along the river margin for about 8 miles protects the low lands from inundation, and the chance of turning the flank wall.

From

From Okla the canal follows the high land, nearly parallel with the Jumna, at a distance of from 3 to 12 miles from the bank of the river, and finally discharges into the Utongou River, 20 miles below Agra. Branches connect the canal with Muttra and Agra. Both of these are navigable, and when a full supply of water is obtainable boats can pass into the Jumna again at Agra. At the time of my visit the outlet was temporarily closed.

The discharge of the Jumna at Delhi in the dry seasons of the year is about 700 cubic feet per second, although the Upper System draws off the entire discharge of the Jumna, as it passes out of the Sewaliks.

The length of the main canal for navigation and irrigation is 140 miles, and the short junction to Agra and Muttra and length of distributaries 288 miles. The entire work cost £932,907, and the returns realized 10 per cent. on outlay.

New extension works are now in progress to make a navigable junction with the Western Jumna System at Delhi; and at its junction with the main canal is near the head the excavations are heavy for some distance.

The foregoing is a brief sketch of the canals in the north-west provinces and Oudh, which I was enabled to examine during my visit; and for the assistance rendered in my inquiries by the officers in charge of the several works I am indebted to the courtesy of Lieut.-Col. J. G. Forbes, R.E., Engineer-in-Chief of the district.

The following is an extract from a report on the highly prosperous condition of the irrigation works of the North-west Provinces, dated 22nd February in the present year:—"The gross assessments for 1882-3 amounted to £645,000, and the working expenses to £215,000. The net revenue is therefore set down at £430,000, which is equal to 6.36 per cent. on the capital invested. The length of main canals is now 1,384 miles, of the distributaries 5,596 miles, and of the drainage cuts 1,403 miles. The total irrigated area is no less than 1,974,175 acres, or 3,035 square miles."

THE SONE CIRCLE SYSTEM—BENGAL.

The country benefited by this system of canals lies southward of the river Ganges, near the junction of that river with the Sone. It comprises portions of the district of Shahabad, with Gija and Patna on the east. The first idea was to irrigate the Shahabad district from storage reservoirs in the hills; but subsequently the supply of water in the Sone River was found sufficient to irrigate an area of 800,000 acres. It was therefore finally determined to construct the works now existing, of which the following is a description, at a cost of £3,775,000, and to command an area, when complete, of 2,611,000 acres.

The estimate provided for irrigating 1,305,000 acres of rice land, and the allowance of water for this crop was fixed at 1 cubic foot per second for 133 acres; hence the eastern main canal was designed to carry 4,511 cubic feet per second, but, as will be shown further on, the expectation was not realized.

The excellent works on this system were commenced in 1869. The weir across the Sone, which is the headwork of this system, is situated at Dehree, about 27 miles below where the river leaves the Kymore range of hills. It is the longest weir in one length which has ever been built. It is $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles in length, and 8 feet high to surface of crest. The sill level is 326.00, and highest flood level 342.00. The flood therefore rises 8 feet over the crest of the weir, and discharges about 1,026,000 cubic feet per second. Its average minimum supply in the cold season is 3,000 feet per second, but at times in exceptionally dry seasons it has been known to fall below this quantity. The catchment area of the Sone is 23,000 square miles. The river runs for 225 miles through the hilly parts of Central India, until it reaches the plains of Rhotas. From that place it has a course of about 100 miles through an almost deltaic country, which is the area commanded by the Sone canals. For some 40 miles below the weir the floods do not overflow the banks, but below that point large areas are inundated. Up to the point where flooding occurs the canals on each side follow the line of river closely, and then follow the high ridge of the country down to the Ganges.

The following are the lengths of the navigable canals:—

Main Western	21 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles.
Arrah branch	65 "
Buxar branch	45 "
Main Eastern	7 "
Patna branch	79 "

217 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles.

The length of branch canals is 107 miles.

In addition to the above there are 1,130 miles of distributaries connected with the mains. The full summer supply carried by the canals is ascertained to be 5,171 cubic feet per second, and the minimum at end of dry season 3,500 cubic feet; but it has been known to fall to 500 cubic feet in a very dry year, about May and June. The total irrigable area is 1,100,000 acres, and the total area commanded by the canals is estimated to be 2,934 square miles, making the area irrigable about 70 per cent. of that commanded.

The headworks are situated 58 miles from Arrah, and the journey is performed by steamer. On this branch there are thirteen locks, two of which are double. Some two hours are occupied in passing the locks, which have an average rise of 12 feet each. The total fall from the bed of the Sone at Dehree to low water in the Ganges is $180\frac{1}{2}$ feet, of which 161 feet are overcome by means of the locks, the difference being accounted for by the slope of the canal. The steamer used was a side wheel, with breadth over sponsons of 19 feet, for the clearance of locks, which are 20 feet wide in the clear. The passenger and goods traffic is considerable, and is said to pay.

At intervals of 2 miles pontoon bridges, or stags, are moored to either bank for the convenience of ryots who may wish to cross over themselves, or convey produce from bank to bank. And in addition there are frequent over-bridges for general traffic.

At the side of each lock, in a loop branch of the main canal, is a masonry weir, with a fall corresponding with that in the locks. The openings for discharge are regulated by boards fitted into slots worked in the masonry. At a short distance from, and on the upper side of, the locks are sluice openings for supplying the side channels, which in this system run on either side of, and parallel to, the main canal, and from which the distributaries are supplied, instead of from the main channel. The connection with the distributaries are made by village channels formed by the natives in any direction required, under the supervision of the local officers.

The Anicut, or main weir, is 12,351 feet long between the abutments. It is constructed of rubble masonry, having foundations of rectangular wells sunk in the river bed, supporting longitudinal walls 5 feet and 4 feet respectively placed 35 feet apart, the intervening space being filled with large ordinary packed rubble. The front or up stream slope is formed at 3 to 1, and the rear or down stream slope at 1 in 12, formed also of large size, hand packed rubble. The packing on the crest is closely cemented.

There are three sets of under sluices in the weir, one at each flank and in the centre, each with twenty-two vents or openings of $20\frac{1}{2}$ feet each. The piers between the openings are 4 feet thick, and 32 feet in length. These sluice piers are set in ashlar masonry to a height of 10 feet over river-bed. The shutters or gates used for closing the sluices are extremely novel in construction, being in a great measure self-acting. The shutters are arranged in two lines each at the end of the piers, fixed by hinges to sill of opening. The back of the up-stream shutter is supported by six tension rods, $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches in diameter in wrought-iron tubes, the rods being packed with leather to act as pistons. When the shutters are up the packing fits close to the inner surface of the tube. If it is desired to lift the shutters during a rise in the river they are raised by means of appliances 8 inches, when the pressure of the water does the rest, the shock of the sudden pressure being modified and injury prevented by the tube and piston arrangement. The front shutters being up, the back ones are easily raised. The space between them is then filled with water through a valve in the front shutter. When the water is in equilibrio the front shutter is again lowered to its bed, and one only is left to retain the water. The remaining shutter is attached to the floor by strong iron rods hinged to gate and floor, and fixed below the centre of oscillation, so that when the water rises beyond the height required to serve the canal the shutters fall and the river discharges itself throughout the whole length from bank to bank.

It was proved in my presence that by this admirable arrangement these shutters can be safely and expeditiously lifted against a 10-foot head of water without shock to the structure. It is an interesting and instructive sight to watch a stream of water 20 feet broad and 9 feet deep flowing with a velocity of about 18 feet per second through the sluices suddenly obstructed by a single gate. When the shutter reaches the vertical the water leaps in a wave 2 feet above the top and flows over for a few seconds, and then sinks to the mean level of the upper pool.

The set of gates in the centre being over a mile from the shore, it was on one occasion found impossible to reach it in time to disengage the chains, and to drop the shutters on the approach of a sudden flood. A great deal of damage was done in consequence to that portion of the work. Since then automatic means have been devised to meet the difficulty in future.

As in the case of all other headworks described, the revetment walls are continued some distance up and down river and at right angles with the weir, the take-off for the canals being on each bank near the up-stream side of the weir. The western and eastern head sluices discharge 4,342 cubic feet per second.

second. They consist of twenty-four vents of 6 feet each, fitted with gates in two panels, one or both in each opening being removed at will. Above them again on each side of the river is situated the navigable lock entrance.

The dimension of the western main is, at the head, 180 feet in breadth of base, with slope 2 to 1, giving a surface waterway of 220 feet with a maximum depth of 9 feet, the fall being 6 inches per mile. Five miles from the head the canal branches to Arrah and Buxar. On the latter branch, at its junction, a regulator was being built at the time of my visit to compensate for increased slope and consequent excessive discharge. From this point the width of each canal is reduced to 124 feet, the Buxar branch taking off 2,895 cubic feet of water, and the Arrah 1,447 cubic feet per second. At the 12-mile the Chousa branch occurs, 1,226 cubic feet being taken off, leaving 1,669 cubic feet to be carried on. From this point the canal narrows to 100 feet, and the fall to $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches per mile. At the 19th and 21st mile respectively the Khurgur and Chowbay branches take off, depriving the main canal of 620 cubic feet of water, leaving 1,049 cubic feet to be carried on to the end of the canal at the 22nd mile.

The Arrah branch has already been described, as seen on the trip up from Arrah; and the same description will apply to the branch on the eastern side of the river, the details in all cases being similar. All drainage streams are crossed by masonry aqueducts; the distributaries are supplied by side sluices arched over to carry roads; the banks are closely planted with trees, and light iron bridges with timber floors span the canals at frequent intervals. At some of the locks sugar and flour mills are worked by water-power applied by turbine, and are productive works. The same power, placed at the disposal of the enterprising settlers in this Colony, would be availed of to its fullest capacity. In India the Government provide the whole of the working appliances.

In concluding this brief description I must express great indebtedness to H. C. Levinge, Esq., C.E., late chief engineer of the works, for much valuable information, and to Lieut.-Col. J. M. Heywood, R.E., the present chief engineer, who provided means of transit, and placed at my disposal the valuable plans of his department, and accompanied me for several days on a tour of inspection over the works. It is through the instrumentality of this gentleman that the Government of New South Wales has been furnished with complete sets of drawings and books of reference of the whole of the irrigation works of Bengal.

The distance travelled by rail, canal, and road, for the purpose of inspecting the foregoing works, was 2,740 miles, and the character of the climate of the country passed through was as various as the systems adopted by the natives in economising and distributing water for irrigation. It may, therefore, be interesting to describe the various methods of raising water in vogue among the natives of India.

Well Irrigation.—The two methods which are to be frequently met with between Calcutta and the north-west provinces are the pecotah, in Bengal, and the mô't in the north-west provinces.

The pecotah is a lever fixed to an upright forked post, with a bucket attached to the short end by a rope, and a counterpoise at the other end. It is worked by two men, and it is stated that in six hours they can raise and distribute 1,500 cubic feet of water from a depth of 20 feet. When the depth is not more than 16 feet one man works the pecotah with the following results:—With a bucket containing 3 gallons and discharging 3 per minute, or 540 gallons per hour, or, deducting spillage, 4,000 gallons per day, which is sufficient to water two-thirds of an acre.

The mô't consists of a leathern bag, having a leather pipe-like extension at the bottom. When the bag is filled it is raised by means of a rope, running over a pulley, worked by two bullocks walking down an inclined plane, either excavated or made over the surface to the level of the raised masonry of the well. At the side of the well is a trough into which the water is discharged. Three men and two bullocks work this appliance from morning till evening, with a mid-day rest of an hour. The bag contains 4.5 cubic feet, and can be raised thirty times in the hour, which gives a result of 6,720 gallons per day of eight hours.

Both of the above systems, notwithstanding the cheapness of labour, are considered very expensive compared with surface irrigation, and they are therefore of only very restricted application.

The wells generally are not very deep, reaching from 18 to 20 feet, but the supply in most parts is very scanty, and a very small depth of water remains while the mô't is in use. The ordinary field well is simply a round hole, lined for a few feet of its height from the bottom with a plaited brush-wood casing.

The country in India through which the great systems of canals are carried resembles very much in appearance our western and north-western country. The main channels in every case are formed on the ridges to be found on each side of the main rivers. These ridges which exist in varying widths, right and

and left of the river channels, have been formed by the gradual deposit of alluvial matter when the rivers have been in a state of flood, and they occur at points where the velocity of the stream is checked. The effect is to leave on each bank a stratum of silt, in the sectional form of a long wedge, with the thick end towards the river. The width of this slope on the plains of India varies from 300 yards to a distance of many miles. Beyond these deposits, which occur also on all tributaries of such rivers, the country is low, and although not perceptible to the eye, yet instrumental examination shows in which direction the drainage tends to flow. The irrigation of India is therefore based on a very simple principle.

At all the sites selected as the head works of the several systems which I visited the river appears to have ceased to overflow the banks at time of floods. By raising the level of the water at these points by means of a fixed weir, and excavating a channel through the wedge deposit, the lower country is reached, and as the line of canal is carried in a straight direction, while the course of the river is tortuous, the fall is more rapid; for every mile of its course it then gains considerably on the surface level of the river. As an example, if the fall of the Darling or Murrumbidgee is 1 foot per mile, with a tortuous course of one half more than a direct line, there will be a gain of 6 inches fall in each mile in an artificial channel. So that if the excavation of the canal were 5 feet below the top of the river bank at the head it would gain that amount on the river in 10 miles. If the cut were made in ground on the same level as the margin of the river bank, the water it carried would then come to the surface, and be available for distribution.

But as the wedge-shaped alluvial deposit carries a fall at right angles to the axis of the stream as well as in its course, the required level would be obtained at a shorter distance, and as the fall in the cut need only be 6 inches in the mile the water would come to the surface in 5 miles. The foregoing is practically the system adopted in India. The excavations are made so as to be little more than sufficient to provide material for the embankments, which are made to retain the water at as high a level as possible consistent with their stability. And then occur the lock and weir as described in the Ganges and Sone systems.

In many parts of India large tanks or reservoirs are established in the upper watershed to collect and distribute by means of sluice regulators, the water which would otherwise inundate the lower land. These tanks are provided with escapes or waste weirs which convey the surplus supply to the natural bed of the drainage. The plan adopted is to select a natural hollow in good holding ground on the moderate slopes of the catchment area, by closing up all depressions on its sides where water can make its exit, and excavating in the solid, throwing the material into a dam or bund at the lower end. The supply for these tanks sometimes depends entirely on local rain, or on streams swollen by rain on the higher ground above; or, as is more generally the case, the tanks are filled by cuts connecting several of these streams, or by channels winding round more remote hills.

When practicable, the head of supply is cut off when the tank is filled, and the surplus water discharged into the natural channels; otherwise one or other of the following methods is adopted. When the banks at the site of the dam are high, as in the bed of a mountain stream, and of a great width, the dam is constructed entirely of solid masonry throughout, so that the waste water may pass over the whole length of the dam. If so large an escape is not desired and the embankment be of earthwork, then a portion of the dam is built in masonry, with the top 2 or 3 feet lower than the earthwork; but where the position is favourable, several waste weirs excavated in the solid ground are much more reliable. In Mysore there are upwards of 20,000 tanks, the dams of which are of lengths from $\frac{1}{4}$ of a mile to $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles. They are principally formed of earthwork, 12 feet broad at top, 60 feet on bottom, and 18 feet high. They are faced with a rough stone revetment, having a batter of 2 to 1, the facing averaging 3 feet to 4 feet 6 inches in thickness, packed on loose rubble backing.

The largest tank in India is the great Chembrambaukum, 9 square miles in area; it is situated 14 miles from Madras; its capacity is 102.91 millions of cubic yards, and the water spread is 5,729 acres, or 8.95 square miles. The Government is now considering the question of forming large storing tanks at the head of the watersheds under the mountains. In the Bombay Presidency five examples of tanks are found. The Ekruk tank is one of the largest of its class; it comprises a reservoir or tank formed by an earthen dam, and three canals for irrigation. The dam is 7,000 feet in length, and 76 feet in maximum height; it is thrown across the Adhila River, a tributary of the Lind. The drainage area above the tank is 160 square miles. The tank is 60 feet deep when full, and contains 3,350,000,000 cubic feet. The area of the water surface is 4,640 acres, or $7\frac{1}{4}$ square miles.

The Bhatode tank is situated on the Mekhri River, which rises 10 miles north-east of Ahmednagar. The masonry dam is 2,400 feet long, and 50 feet in maximum height, with a waste weir, 450 feet long, $7\frac{1}{2}$ feet below the top of dam. A canal for irrigation is $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles long, and is capable of discharging 140 cubic feet per second at the head, and commanding altogether 14,000 acres of land. The drainage area of the tank is 50 square miles, its capacity 149,000,000 cubic feet, and its area, when full, 310 acres. It is estimated to fill with a rainfall of 5.40 inches.

The

The Naini tank is situated on a small tributary of the Yula River. The work comprises a storage reservoir, capable of containing 190,000,000 cubic feet, and having an area, when full, of 380 acres. It is formed by an earthen dam 2,870 feet long, and 57 feet in greatest height. The catchment area of the river above the dam is 54 square miles. The canal leading from the tank has a discharge capacity at the head of 33 cubic feet per second.

There are in the Presidency seven smaller works of the same description, some of them undertaken entirely by the Government, and others being old native works restored.

In the Western Punjaub, where rain is very scarce, and the ground near the hills at so high a level that it is impossible to irrigate it either from canals or wells, the natives obstruct the dry bed of the stream with dams formed of earth and brushwood at every favourable point, thus raising the level of the water, and directing it into secondary channels, natural or artificial, whose mouths are just above the dam. Each of these in its turn is bunded as may be required to throw the water in the smaller irrigating channels for distribution over the land. So skilful is this arrangement that although these floods last but a few hours the water is distributed in the above manner by hundreds of weirs and minor channels over a large extent of cultivation, with very few disputes.

The great defect in this system is that, if only a small quantity of water comes down, the dams lower down the stream go without, and if a large quantity comes down the violence of the torrent is too great, whereby the temporary dams are carried away in succession too rapidly, and a large quantity of water is wasted. If masonry dams were established in these places the water would be stored up for future use in the bed of the river. For example, in a creek 15 feet deep with a fall of 20 feet per mile, if dams were constructed every $\frac{3}{4}$ of a mile the surplus water passing over the tops in succession a series of still-water canals would be formed, whence the water could be drawn by smaller channels. By a proper application of this method there is little doubt that a great extent of country in this Colony now lying barren could be brought under irrigation.

I regret that my duties in connection with the Calcutta Exhibition did not admit of my visiting the irrigation works of India before the season was too far advanced for extended inspection, and that from the same cause I was unable to go over the Madras and Bombay systems. But in the interest of future operations in the conservation of water in this Colony it would be of great service if a detailed report on works applicable here could be obtained from those provinces.

TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

POSTMASTER-GENERAL,

ON THE DEPARTMENTS UNDER HIS MINISTERIAL CONTROL,

BEING THAT FOR THE YEAR

1882.

Printed in accordance with Resolutions of both Houses of Parliament.

SYDNEY: THOMAS RICHARDS, GOVERNMENT PRINTER.

THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR,

TRANSMITTING THE ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1882, ON THE POST OFFICE, MONEY ORDER, GOVERNMENT SAVINGS' BANK, AND ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENTS.

MY LORD,

I have the honor to transmit to your Excellency the Twenty-eighth Annual Report on the Departments under my ministerial control.

I find in the Annual Report for the year 1881 that the Revenue and Expenditure of the Departments under the ministerial control of the Postmaster-General was, for the first time, reviewed in a combined form. The late Honorable S. C. Brown, in alluding to this new feature of his Report, explained that, owing to a considerable amount of expenditure having been paid from votes of Parliament under the control of other Ministers than the Postmaster-General (such as the cost of stores and printing, of fitting and furnishing offices, advertising, repairs, city rates, taxes, rent of premises, interest on cost of constructing post and telegraph buildings, also of telegraphs, &c.), he was unable to make his information as complete as he wished to make it.

In adopting the comprehensive method initiated by Mr. Brown, I have procured much of the information that was previously omitted. While, however, the particulars of the combined Revenue and Expenditure will be found more complete in this Report, I regret I have been unable to obtain a sufficiently reliable estimate of the interest on the cost of construction and repair of buildings used as post and telegraph offices throughout the Colony; and as this is an important item in the cost of the Service, its absence of course impairs the calculation of expenditure to this extent.

COMBINED REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Revenue.
Post Office	£229,910 15 1
Electric Telegraph Department	120,265 13 4

Expenditure.

Money Order and Government Savings Bank Department—
Salaries and Contingencies	12,273 7 5
Interest added to Depositors' Accounts	39,063 18 4
Total						£482,058 8 7

The above are the particulars of expenditure confined to the amount actually paid from the votes of Parliament directly at my disposal, except in the case of the Government Savings Bank item of "Interest added to Depositors' Accounts," which is specially provided for out of the interest accruing from investment of funds on the same account.

The following are the items of expenditure paid from votes under the control of other Ministers:—

Stores and stationery	6,019	12	11
Repairs and additions to Buildings	5,974	9	3
Furniture (including carriage)	1,727	17	4
Printing, bookbinding, Gazette advertisements, Gazettes, &c.	7,337	15	3
Printing postage stamps	1,462	10	6
Municipal rates	734	19	7
Postage	754	7	2
Advertising in newspapers	1,210	19	1
Total						£25,222	11	1

The interest on the cost of construction of Electric Telegraph lines is estimated at £21,456 which will make the total expenditure of the Departments under my control (exclusive of the interest on the cost of buildings used as post and telegraph offices, as explained above), £528,736 19s. 8d.

A wooden letter-box was placed in the Sydney Arcade.

On the 31st December the number of iron letter-receivers erected in the Colony (both large and small) was 298 ; the number of other kinds of receiving-boxes, 18 ; and the number of newspaper-receivers, 12.

Towards the end of the year an improvement was introduced in connection with the street letter-receivers which enables the hour of the next collection at each receiver to be readily ascertained. Moveable discs indicating the respective hours of clearance are now kept inside each letter-box, and the proper one indicating the next collection is in each case fixed in its position by the mail-boys when going their rounds. This plan affords a guide as to when letters should be posted so as to secure their reaching the Head office in time for a particular mail or city delivery, and it places the officers of the Department in a position to ascertain whether the mail-boys correctly clear all the receivers. The system was originated in London, but the method adopted in this colony was devised by an officer of the General Post Office, Sydney, and is already highly appreciated.

At Bathurst, Deniliquin, Leichhardt, Macdonald Town, Mudgee, Newtown, Orange, Parramatta, Petersham, Redfern, Richmond Road, St. Leonard's, and Waratah, the letter-receivers are cleared by special messengers, who are respectively paid an annual sum for the performance of this work. At other places this duty is fulfilled by persons regularly attached to the staff of the Department.

The number of licenses for the sale of postage stamps issued in 1882 to persons other than postmasters or receiving-office-keepers was 130. In the Appendix is given a return of the number of persons holding these licenses throughout the Colony.

The following amended regulations in regard to locked private letter-boxes were introduced in June:—

1. Locked private letter-boxes are provided at the General Post Office, Sydney, for merchants and others (of three sizes, as required), on payment of one, two, or three guineas per annum, payment to date from 1st January. [NOTE.—To meet the convenience of the public, payment for the use of private letter-boxes may date from the 1st April, 1st July, or 1st October, of any year; but in this case, the fee for the next year, from the 1st January, must be paid in addition to the payment for the broken period of the current year.] In country offices where private boxes are provided the charge is one guinea per annum.
2. A key will be supplied with each box (when let) without extra charge, but 2s. 6d. will be required for each additional key supplied.
3. When a key is lost, information should at once be given to the Superintendent of the Mail Branch or Postmaster, and a new lock will be fitted in the box, and fresh key supplied, for which a charge of 7s. 6d. will be made.

Evidence of the extent to which these boxes are used is afforded by the fact that in the Head Office alone 687 have been let.

There were 15 additional letter-carriers appointed during the year 1882. Of these, one was employed as an additional carrier at Albury, one at Corowa, one at Dubbo, one at Wilcannia, and the remaining eleven in the city. There were, at the end of the year, 135 letter-carriers, distributed throughout the Colony as follows:—

On the 1st August an extra delivery of correspondence was afforded throughout the city. This necessitated a re-arrangement of the hours appointed for the letter-carriers to leave the General Post Office, the hours fixed being 8.45 a.m., and 12.15, 2.30, and 4.30 p.m. By the appointment of ten additional letter-carriers, which the extra work involved, the Department was enabled to effect some improvement in the morning delivery of letters.

Under special arrangements, a free delivery of correspondence is also afforded in the following localities, viz. :—

On the 22nd August the Honorable S. C. Brown, M.L.C., retired from the position of Postmaster-General. He was succeeded by the Honorable Alexander Campbell, M.L.C.

The following officials retired from the Department during the year, viz. :—

Mr. B. C. Bradshaw, a clerk, who joined the Service in 1853, Stamper and sorter W. Doolan, after twenty-nine years' service, Letter-carriers J. Holahan (Bathurst), T. Rushforth (Goulburn), and M. Hartigan (Sydney), who had served twenty-nine, twenty-five, and twenty-four years, respectively, and Messenger F. Purkis, whose connection with the Department dated from July, 1864. Mr. Bradshaw receives a pension out of the provision made for superannuation pensions in the Constitution Act, and a gratuity equal to one month's pay for each year's service was voted by Parliament for each of the other officials mentioned, with the exception of Messenger Purkis.

Judging from the reports which have been made to me, the general conduct of the officers during the past year appears to have been highly satisfactory. It is a matter for regret that misconduct on the the part of twelve officials necessitated their removal from the Service. Two of these (clerks in the head office) were imprisoned for stealing letters containing money. A country postmaster received a sentence of two years for forgery, while another postmaster absconded with public money. A letter-carrier was discharged for detaining letters handed to him for delivery. The remainder were dismissed for intemperance, absence without leave, or insubordinate conduct.

The Postal Inspectors travelled over and inspected 14,606 miles of mail route, and visited the undermentioned Post Offices :—

The contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company will expire in November next.

The following resolutions in regard thereto were agreed to by the Legislative Assembly on the 26th April, 1883 —

(1) That, subject to the Imperial Government agreeing to continue to convey the Mails to San Francisco as heretofore, the contract between the Colonies of New South Wales and New Zealand with the Pacific Mail Company be extended for a period not exceeding two years from the expiry of the present contract in November next, at an annual subsidy not exceeding £50,000, of which the portion falling upon this Colony shall not exceed £18,750, and subject to the following conditions, viz —

That it shall be optional for this Colony to withdraw from such extended contract at the end of twelve months, on giving three months' previous notice, in the event of the Pacific Mail Company

Company not having obtained from the United States Government, or from other sources, a contribution equal to one-third of the total annual subsidy for such extended contract, and in diminution of the contribution payable by the contracting Colonies respectively.

That the service shall be performed with the acceleration upon the present contract time of at least twenty-four hours on each voyage to and from Sydney and San Francisco during the first year, and during the second year at least forty-eight hours, subject to the same terms, conditions, premiums, and penalties as heretofore; with this exception—that the Company be relieved from keeping a fourth steamer, but that such shall not absolve them from the penalties for any failure.

(2) That the foregoing Resolutions be transmitted by Address to His Excellency the Governor. Similar resolutions were adopted by the Legislative Council on the 30th April, 1883.

A convention was entered into for establishing and regulating the exchange of correspondence between New South Wales and the Netherland East Indian Colonies. This Convention came into operation on the 15th March, and, as copies thereof have already been laid before Parliament, there is no occasion to further allude to it in this Report.

In May arrangements were made under which wholly unpaid letters, as well as those bearing less than a single rate of postage, are transmitted between New South Wales and the other Australasian Colonies—the postage (or the amount deficient) and a fine equal to a single rate being charged on delivery, and retained by the Colony of destination.

The practice of sending Post Cards bearing an extra penny adhesive stamp to Victoria and South Australia was, in June, extended to the other Australasian Colonies and Fiji.

LETTERS, NEWSPAPERS, PACKETS, AND POST CARDS, POSTED THROUGHOUT THE COLONY.

The following is an estimated return of the number of Letters, Newspapers, Packets, and Post Cards posted in the Colony during the year 1882, as compared with the number posted in the preceding year:—

* The decrease in the number of newspapers posted for the Australian Colonies and New Zealand is caused by the withdrawal of the following publications—"Words of Grace," "Christian Weekly," and "Tea News."

The increase during 1882 in the number of letters posted is at the rate of about 10 per cent.; in the number of newspapers, about 10 per cent.; in the number of packets, about 52 per cent.; and in the number of post cards, about 25 per cent.

The average number of letters posted in 1882, in proportion to the population of the Colony, is estimated at thirty-three to each person.

* Comprising the cost of fuel and light, rent, furniture, forage, carts, horses, uniforms, stamps and seals, receivers, travelling expenses, over-time—sorting English mails, extra clerical aid, servants' wages for cleaning General Post Office, and incidental expenses.

In 1881 the Collections amounted to £229,446 7s. 11d., and the Expenditure to £273,451 5s. 11d., showing for the year 1882 an increase in the Collections of £24,464 7s. 2d., and in the Expenditure of £14,735 3s. 5d.

The items under the head of Expenditure are confined to the amounts actually paid from the votes of Parliament directly at my disposal.

Before quitting the subject of revenue and expenditure, it may not be out of place to draw attention to the fact that the Department is being constantly urged to reduce the postage rates. So far as intercolonial postage is concerned, I believe a letter is now conveyed for 2d. a greater distance in Australasia than it is carried for the same charge in any other parts of the world. For instance, a letter can go from Western Australia round to Queensland, a distance of over 3,300 miles, for the small sum of 2d., or from South Australia to New Zealand, a distance of about 1,800 miles for the same sum.

The smallness of the intercolonial rate has, I am aware, been urged as a reason why the postage within our own territory should be made less than 2d.; but the answer to that is that the tendency of the present age is to promote uniformity of rates without regard to actual distances, and hence the apparent anomaly, that whilst 2d. is required to carry a letter from Sydney to Liverpool, 20 miles, the same amount only is levied for its conveyance to Wilcannia in our Colony, a distance of 700 miles, or to different parts of New Zealand, 1,100 to 1,300 miles distant. These anomalies cannot be obviated where any attempt at uniformity of postage is desired. Applications are frequently made for reduction of the postage between certain places adjacent to each other, the precedent for which was created in 1872, when the postage between Sydney and places within a radius of 10 miles was reduced to 1d. This concession has been extended to some few other parts of the country, but the radius has remained the same, but the more recent applications have been to increase the radius to 15 miles or more, while other persons have suggested a reduction of the entire country rate to 1d.

Whilst advocating cheap postage, I cannot overlook the fact that the Post Office Department alone is now being worked at a loss of over * £73,000 a year; and although I am aware that the Postal Service of young countries is not usually expected to be self-supporting, I am still of opinion that in a country like this, where population is as yet sparse and scattered, and where extensive mail lines have to be maintained maintained over large tracts of comparatively uninhabited country, the question of further increasing the large loss at present sustained should be a matter for very careful consideration. It has been urged that the reduction of the country rate to 1d. would, after a short time, result in no actual loss, but rather the contrary. This, however, is a mistake; such a result could not be hoped for in this country until such time as the population has largely increased. In order to produce the same amount of revenue, the number of country letters posted would have to be doubled, while it is a fact that the number of letters posted between Sydney and the suburbs at the reduced rate of a 1d. has not yet been doubled, although over ten years have elapsed since the reduction took place. Supposing, however, for argument's sake, that the number of letters were doubled, it will have to be recollected that a double number of letters would involve an enormous increase of staff, especially of the letter-carriers.

One reason why the Post Office is at present worked at so great a loss is, no doubt, the fact that we convey newspapers free of postage, irrespective of their weight. We not only lose the revenue which is derivable in other countries from this source, but we have to pay an enormously increased price for our mail conveyance. Again, we have at present to pay a high subsidy for the conveyance of our English mails.

I merely draw attention to the foregoing facts as being well worthy of consideration before consenting to what I believe would be a popular measure—the introduction of a penny postage throughout the Colony—and thus greatly augmenting the amount of loss already sustained in connection with the Post Office Department.

The following comparative Return will show to what extent the revenue of the Postal Department has been affected by the reduction of the Postage on Intercolonial Letters at various times :—

On the 1st May, the charge for transmission of telegraphic messages between East and West Maitland was reduced from 1s. to 6d. for ten words, the charge for each additional word remaining as before, viz., 1d., and in July this reduced charge was extended to telegrams passing between Morpeth and Hinton, and between either of these places and East or West Maitland. Subsequently a similar reduction was made in regard to messages passing between the Head Office (Sydney) and Hunter's Hill, and between Grafton and South Grafton.

From the 1st June the charges for cablegrams between the Colonies of New South Wales and New Zealand were reduced to seven shillings (7s.) for the first ten words, and nincence (9d.) for each additional word.

I have only to add, in conclusion, my congratulations on the continued prosperity of the Colony, as evidenced by the improved condition of its Postal, Money Order, Government Savings' Bank and Electric Telegraph Departments.

General Post Office,
Sydney, 26th May, 1883.

I have, &c.,

F. A. WRIGHT,
Postmaster-General.

The above are the particulars of expenditure confined to the amount actually paid from the votes of Parliament directly at my disposal, except in the case of the Government Savings Bank item of "Interest added to Depositors' Accounts," which is specially provided for out of the interest accruing from investment of funds on the same account.

The following are the items of expenditure paid from votes under the control of other Ministers:—

Stores and stationery	£	6,019	12 11	£	9,715	2 10

The interest on the cost of construction of Electric Telegraph lines is estimated at £22,572, and the interest on the cost of buildings owned by the Government, and used as Post and Telegraph Offices in various parts of the Colony, is estimated at £12,000, which will make the total expenditure of the Departments under my control £613,893 11s. 4d.

For some few years past my predecessors have endeavoured to procure information as to a large amount of expenditure directly affecting the Postal and Telegraphic Departments which was paid from votes of Parliament under the control of other Ministers than the Postmaster-General. Both the late Mr. S. C. Brown and Mr. F. A. Wright collected a considerable quantity of the information desired, desired, but they pointed out that they had been unable to obtain all that was needed to make the calculation of the total expenditure complete. By the aid of carefully-prepared estimates of such items as the interest on the cost of Government buildings used as Post and Telegraph Offices, I have been able to furnish in this Report as complete a return of the whole expenditure as it is possible to give.

In the month of May a Postal Conference of Ministerial representatives from the Colonies of New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, and Victoria, was held in Sydney, at which several resolutions on important matters connected with the Postal and Telegraphic Departments were arrived at; and in November following advantage was taken of the meeting of delegates at the Inter-colonial Convention to refer to the question of telegraphic communication with the mother country.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION.

The question as to the expediency of the Australasian Colonies joining what is known as the Universal Postal Union was considered at the Conference held in May, and the following Resolutions were arrived at, viz.:—

That this Conference, having had under its consideration the various despatches from the Imperial Government and other memoranda and statistics respecting the Universal Postal Union, is of opinion,—

1. That the Australasian Colonies should apply for admission to the said Postal Union.
2. That the stipulations suggested by the Postmaster-General of England, in the despatch dated 6 November, 1882, as precedent to such entry, be insisted upon.
3. That each of the Australasian Colonies, parties to this agreement, be accorded a separate voice in the affairs of the Union.
4. That each Colony continue the management and responsibility of its existing subsidized line, but that any other Colony using such line shall pay to the subsidizing Colony the full amount of the postage upon all postal matter despatched from such Colony; the subsidizing Colony paying all transit rates on homeward mails, and receiving the proportion of Union transit rates due on outward mails, and any contribution from England in respect of the postal matter carried by each line.
5. That if on annual investigation it be shown that, by adopting Postal Union rates, any such subsidizing Colony incurs a greater loss than it at present incurs (subject, in the case of New South Wales and New Zealand, to modification consequent upon the reduced Pacific Mail contract now being entered into), an adjustment shall be made of such excess loss whereby it shall be borne by the subsidizing Colony and the other Colonies using such line, in proportion to the postal matter carried.
6. In the event of New South Wales concluding a contract with the Orient Company it shall be at the risk of that Colony only; but any other Colony transmitting postal matter thereby shall pay the said Company a rate not less than 10s. per pound on letters and 6d. per pound on newspapers and packets transmitted homeward thereby.
7. That no future postal subsidy shall be subject to this agreement except by the unanimous approval of the Colonies assenting hereto.

Amongst the printed papers (page 28), already laid before Parliament, relating to the proceedings at this Conference, will be found an exhaustive report, prepared by Mr. Lambton, the Secretary of the Post Office, giving the history of this matter from the year 1874, when it was first brought under the notice of the Colonies by the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and pointing out the difficulties that had hitherto stood in the way of Australasia following the example of other parts of the world, which had already been included in this Union. Mr. Lambton's report also gives particulars of the postal advantages it is believed will be gained by the Australasian Colonies joining the Union. It is therefore not needful to recapitulate these particulars now; and it only remains for me to say what steps have subsequently been taken to give effect to the Resolutions arrived at by the Conference. This can best be done by giving the following copies of correspondence that has taken place, viz.:—

His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales to the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

My Lord,

I have the honor to enclose to your Lordship copy of a minute, addressed by the Secretary to the General Post Office of this Colony to the Principal Under Secretary, forwarding for the information of the Secretary of State copy of the proceedings of the Postal Conference, lately held in Sydney, respecting the proposal to join the Universal Postal Union.

Government House, Sydney, 5 June, 1883.

[Enclosure.]

Sir, General Post Office, Sydney, 28 May, 1883.

With reference to the circular despatches of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated respectively the 20th December, 1880, and 13th December, 1882, relating to the proposal for the various Australasian Colonies to join the Universal Postal Union, I am directed to state that a Conference, attended by delegates from New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, and Tasmania, was recently held in Sydney, mainly for the purpose of considering the question of the Colonies entering the Union.

A copy of the proceedings of the Conference is enclosed, and the Postmaster-General is of opinion that the document might be forwarded through His Excellency the Governor to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, special attention being drawn to the resolutions passed by the Conference in regard to the important question of the Australasian Colonies entering the Postal Union.

It might, Mr. Wright thinks, be as well to draw attention not only to the seven resolutions of the Conference on the subject, but to the subsequent telegrams sent to New Zealand and Western Australia, and the resolution in connection therewith; also to the reply received from those Colonies.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON.

The Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies to His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales.

My Lord, Downing-street, 10 July, 1883.

I have the honor to transmit to you the accompanying extract from a letter from the General Post Office, relative to the proposed entry of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Tasmania, and Western Australia, into the International Postal Union, and I have to request that I may be informed of the date at which admission into the Union is desired by the Colony under your Government; and also of the rates of postage which it is proposed to levy therein, and of the equivalents in local currency for the sums of 5 centimes, 10 centimes, and 25 centimes, respectively.

I have, &c.,
DERBY.

Extract from a letter from the General Post Office to The Colonial Office, dated 22 May, 1883, No. 92,587.

"I AM directed by the Postmaster-General to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, enclosing a copy of a telegram which the Earl of Derby has received from the Governor of New South Wales, from which it appears that the Australasian Colonies, with the exception of Queensland and New Zealand, agree to apply for admission to the Postal Union under the conditions mentioned as desirable in the letter of the 6th of November last from this Department, each Colony having a voice in the affairs of the Union.

Mr. Fawcett observes that the date upon which the Colonies in question desire admission to the Union is not stated, and without information on this point he is unable to take the usual steps in the matter.

The fact that the application is conditional will necessitate an inquiry of the various postal administrations of the Union, whether the conditions are admitted; and it will be necessary to allow for an interval of four months from the time at which the application is submitted with such an inquiry.

It seems desirable, therefore, that, as the 1st of October next would probably be too early, the 1st of January, 1884, should be suggested to the Colonies concerned as the date from which they should apply for admission.

In addition to the date of desired entry it will be necessary to know the rates of postage proposed to be levied in each Colony on Union correspondence, and the equivalents in the currency of each for the typical sums of 5 centimes, 10 centimes, and 25 centimes.

I am to add, for the information of Lord Derby, that, on learning the necessary particulars, the Postmaster-General will immediately proceed in the matter with great pleasure, only regretting that Queensland and New Zealand are not included in the application."

His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales to The Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

My Lord, Government House, Sydney, 15 September, 1883.

In conformity with the instructions of your Lordship's despatch of 10th July, 1883, I have made the inquiries requested therein, and have now the honor to enclose copy of a letter addressed by the Secretary to the Post Office to the Principal Under Secretary giving the desired information.

2. Your Lordship will see from this communication that the Postmaster-General (with a view to prevent further delay) is willing to leave the date of entry of this Colony into the Postal Union to be fixed by the Postmaster-General in London on the express understanding that such entry is to be subject to the Resolutions agreed to at the Postal Conference, held here in May last, an official report of which for easy reference I have the honor to enclose herewith.

3. From conversation I have had with the Colonial Secretary and Premier, I have gathered that he is opposed to entering the Postal Union without a vote. He considers that as it is the wish of H. M. Government that a voting power should be granted to the Colonies, and that should this not be granted, and that England should be outvoted, it would be better for the Colony to be out of the Union.

I have, &c.,
AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

[Enclosure.]

Sir, General Post Office, Sydney, 8 September, 1883.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of a Despatch, dated the 10th July last, from the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, covering an extract from a letter from the General Post Office, London, enquiring the date at which admission to the Postal Union is desired by this Colony, and suggesting as a suitable time the 1st January, 1884, also desiring information as to the rates proposed to be levied here on Union Correspondence, and the equivalent in local currency for the typical sums of 5, 10, and 25 centimes, respectively.

The Postmaster-General thinks that it would be better (in order to obviate the possible delay of further reference in the event of the Colonies proposing different dates) to leave the date of entry of this Colony into the Postal Union to be fixed by the Postmaster-General, London, he providing for reasonable notice being given to this Colony, and on the express understanding that such entry is to be subject to the Resolutions agreed to at the Postal Conference held in Sydney in May last.

With regard to the rates of postage to be charged in this Colony, it is proposed, after joining the Postal Union, to levy the rates provided for in the Paris Convention of the 1st June, 1878, these rates being for extra-Colonial correspondence as follow:—

Letters	5d. per half ounce.
Post cards	1½d. each.
Or when sent to or through England	2d. "
Newspapers	1d. "
Packets (including patterns and printed papers)	1d. per 2 ounces.
Or when sent to or through the United Kingdom via Brindisi	1½d. per 2 ounces.

With regard to local and intercolonial rates, as the present rate for letters is lower than Union rate, and as newspapers are transmitted free, the Postmaster-General believes that under the Paris Convention no alteration is necessary; but in the case of packets on which the present charge is one penny per 2 ounces for inland, and one penny per ounce for intercolonial transmission, it would seem that under the Union the intercolonial packet rates would have to be altered from one penny per ounce to one penny per 2 ounces, unless under the provisions of the Convention the local and intercolonial rates and regulations (as not concerning the Union generally) could be left to the Australasian Colonies themselves to arrange.

The

The following are the current rates on other local and intercolonial mail matter :—

Town letters	1d. per half ounce.
Inland letters	2d. "
Intercolonial letters	2d. "
Newspapers (under local laws)	Free.

It is proposed that the extra charge for registration should be a uniform rate of fourpence.

The equivalent in local currency for the sums mentioned in the concluding portion of the Despatch are as follows :—

5 centimes	½d.
10 centimes	1d.
25 centimes	2½d.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON.

The Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies to His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales.

My Lord,

With reference to my despatch of 10th July last, relative to the proposed entry upon certain conditions of the Colony under your Government into the International Postal Union, I have the honor to transmit to you a copy of a further letter from the General Post Office, stating the steps which have been taken for obtaining the admission of certain of the Australian Colonies into the Union.

Downing-street, 15 August, 1883.

I have, &c.,
DERBY.

[Enclosure.]

The General Post Office, London, to The Colonial Office.

Sir,

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 19th ultimo, I am directed by the Postmaster-General to return, as requested, the original printed documents which you were good enough to send for his perusal, relative to the Postal Conference recently held at Sydney on the subject of the Australian Colonies joining the Postal Union.

In consequence of the decision come to by the Colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania to enter the Postal Union, provided certain conditions are accorded to them, the Postmaster-General has obtained the authority of the Treasury for making the necessary application diplomatically to the Swiss Government, and he has caused a communication on the subject to be addressed to the Foreign Office.

I am, &c.,
S. A. BLACKWOOD.

The Colonial Office, London, to His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales.

My Lord,

With reference to your despatch, No. 173, of the 15th September, I am directed by the Secretary of State to transmit to you, to be laid before your Ministers, a document specified in the annexed schedule.

Downing-street, 13 November, 1883.

I have, &c.,
ROBERT G. W. HERBERT.

Date.	Description of Document.
6 November, 1883.....	Copy of a letter from the General Post Office with reference to the date of the Colony joining the Postal Union, and as to the rates of postage chargeable on packets passing intermediately between the Australian Colonies.

[Enclosure.]

The General Post Office, London, to The Colonial Office.

Sir,

I am directed by the Postmaster-General to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 5th of this month, enclosing copy of the Governor of New South Wales on the subject of the proposed entry of that Colony into the Postal Union.

The Postmaster-General observes that, provided he gives reasonable notice to the Colony, the Colonial Government leaves it to him to arrange the date of the entry of New South Wales into the Union, on the express understanding that such entry is to be made subject to the terms prescribed by the resolution agreed to at a Postal Conference held at Sydney last May.

Mr. Fawcett desires me to state, for the information of the Earl of Derby, that he readily consents to carry out the wishes of the New South Wales Government, but that, as he still awaits the reply of the Swiss Government to the application made to it on behalf of the Australian Colonies desirous of joining the Postal Union, the entry of New South Wales into the Union cannot possibly take place on the 1st January next, as originally proposed, although as early a date as possible shall be fixed after the receipt of the answer of the Swiss Government.

I am to add that the Postmaster-General has no objection to offer to the rates of postage proposed to be adopted by the Government of New South Wales on the entry of the Colony into the Postal Union; while, as regards the rates of postage chargeable on packets passing intermediately between the Australian Colonies themselves, Mr. Fawcett is of opinion that the maintenance of the status quo after the entry of the Colonies into the Union would not constitute an infringement of the Union Treaty, inasmuch as the question is not one which affects the parties to the Treaty generally.

I am, &c.,
S. A. BLACKWOOD.

Since the above correspondence a suggestion has been received from the Colony of South Australia in reference to the stipulation as to the voting power of the Australasian Colonies. The following copy of the communication of the Chief Secretary of South Australia will explain the nature of this suggestion :—

The Chief Secretary, South Australia, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Sir,

With reference to the subject of the entry of the Australasian Colonies into the Universal Postal Union, I have the honor to state that, from recent communications received from Berlin, it appears that the stipulation made at the Postal Conference in Sydney, that each Colony should have a separate vote, is not likely to be agreed to.

In order to facilitate the entry of the Colonies into the Postal Union, it will probably be desirable to modify this stipulation, and this Government therefore suggest that a proposal should be submitted to the effect that the Australian Colonies and New Zealand should have four votes, as follows, viz. :—

South Australia and Western Australia	1
Victoria and Tasmania	1
New South Wales and Queensland	1
New Zealand...	1

I shall esteem it a favour if you will kindly place me in possession of the views of your Government upon the subject at your earliest convenience.

I have, &c.,
J. C. BRAY.

The

The view I took of this proposal is contained in the following letter :—

The Secretary to the Post Office, New South Wales, to The Principal Under Secretary.

General Post Office, Sydney, 15 February, 1884.

With reference to the circular letter, dated 26th ultimo, from the Chief Secretary, Adelaide, forwarded by you on the 2nd instant, suggesting, as it appears likely that the stipulation for each Colony to have a separate vote at the Postal Union will not be agreed to, "that the Australian Colonies and New Zealand should have four votes," in order to facilitate the entry of the Colonies into the Postal Union, I am directed to state that, in the opinion of the Postmaster-General, this Colony cannot agree to the mode of representation suggested by South Australia. Whether the Colonies have one or more representatives (if they cannot have one each, which Mr. Trickett thinks they should), it is clear to his mind that any representation must be on the basis of such representative or representatives being elected by the joint action of the Colonies, so as to ensure unanimity of action.

The Postmaster-General does not agree to a relaxation of the resolution come to by the late Postal Conference, viz. :— "That each Colony should have a representative"; and the matter had therefore, he thinks, better be allowed to stand over until the next Postal Convention, when the question of the entry of the Colonies into the Postal Union will no doubt be fully discussed, and will be determined, by competent authority.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON.

I have only to add that up to the present time no information beyond what is contained in the preceding correspondence has been received from the Home Government in regard to the date upon which the various Australian Colonies who have consented to join the Universal Postal Union can do so.

UNIFORM PACKET AND PARCEL RATES.

The following resolution on the above subject was agreed to at the Postal Conference held in May :—

"That in the opinion of this Conference it is desirable that uniform packet and parcel postal rates and regulations should be adopted by all the Australasian Colonies, and that Messrs. Todd, C.M.G., Lambton, Jackson, and Packer, be requested to submit draft regulations."

Draft regulations were duly prepared in pursuance of this resolution and forwarded for the concurrence of the Colonies which were unrepresented at the Conference. Some modifications have been proposed therein which are now under consideration. The tendency of the present age is to assimilate as much as possible in all countries the regulations that govern commercial and other operations, and it is very desirable in the matter of the packet and parcel posts that there should be uniformity in the practice of all the Australasian Colonies. The matter may occupy some little time in discussion, but the end aimed at is worthy of the expenditure of the labour involved in accomplishing it.

POSTAL NOTES.

Another matter which was brought under the consideration of the Conference was the question of the introduction of Postal Notes, and the following is the resolution arrived at :—

"That, in the opinion of this Conference, it is desirable that a system of Postal Notes, not exceeding 10s. in value, should be introduced and have currency throughout the Australasian Colonies; and that the South Australian Government be requested to prepare a Draft Bill on the subject."

The Draft Bill referred to has, however, not yet been received from the South Australian Government.

CABLE SUBSIDY.

Some difference of opinion having arisen amongst the Colonies as to whether the aboriginal inhabitants should be included in the calculation made on the population basis as affecting the apportionment of the subsidy, the matter was settled at the Conference by the following resolution :—

"That the agreement of May, 1878, in regard to the apportionment between the Australasian Colonies of the subsidy to the Port Darwin Cable, on the basis of population, shall be taken to include in such calculation the aboriginal inhabitants of the respective Colonies."

CABLE INTERRUPTION.

The attention of the Conference was directed to the frequent interruption of the cable between Port Darwin and Banjoewangie, and the following resolution was passed on the subject :—

"That it is desirable the attention of the Cable Company should be called to their failure to carry out the contract, and to the recent interruptions in the cable, which, were the two cables maintained in working order, in terms of the agreement, would not occur, and that they be required to intimate at what time that portion of the agreement relating to the maintaining of two cables will be carried into effect."

The Eastern Extension Telegraph Company, London, were accordingly communicated with, and the following reply has come to hand :—

The Chairman, Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, to The Agent-General for New South Wales, London.

The Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited),

Sir,

66, Old Broad-street, E.C., 1 August, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ultimo, enclosing copy of resolution passed at the late Postal Conference at Sydney, in reference to the maintenance of the cables between Australia and Java.

I now beg to enclose copy of a telegram forwarded to the Colonies on the 19th June.

The

The Company's maintenance ship "Agnes" was on the site of the break endeavouring to put the cables in thorough order from the 26th February to the 2nd May, when, owing to the force of the monsoon rendering it impossible to continue the work, we were obliged to withdraw the vessel without completing the repairs.

Meanwhile we have ordered 400 miles of special cable to replace the portion of the old line on the Sahul Bank, where we have sustained the greatest injury from the action of the teredo, and it will be laid with the least possible delay.

You will therefore see that the Company has spared no expense in order to carry out in its entirety the spirit and letter of the contract with the Colonies, force majeure alone being the cause of the present state of things, but I am glad to say that notwithstanding the difficulties we have had to encounter there has been no delay nor serious interruption to the communication between Australia and the mother country.

I have, &c.,
JOHN PENDER,
Chairman.

[Enclosure.]

Extension Company to Taylor, Singapore.

19 June, 1883.

INFORM Todd for all Colonies that we have done everything in our power to put both cables in perfect order, but weather has been against us.

As soon as it moderates ship will be again despatched and not return until the cables are in order.

Are now going to great expense in making new brass-ribbed cable to be laid between Darwin and Sahul Bank, where the teredo has been so troublesome, so that during forced inaction we are making use of interval to provide such a cable as we hope will make interruptions less frequent in the future.

Interruption of the communication having since occurred, complaint was again made to the Company, and further correspondence on the subject, as follows, has taken place:—

The Secretary to the Post Office, New South Wales, to S. Knevett, Esq., Agent at Adelaide for the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, Limited.

Sir,

General Post Office, Sydney, 2 Nov., 1883.

It having been brought under notice by the Superintendent of Telegraphs that the cable communication between Port Darwin and Banjoewangie was interrupted on the 22nd October, and subsequently, I am directed by the Postmaster-General to invite your attention to the fact that all telegrams were detained during the interruption in question, and to request that you will, at your earliest convenience, favour him with a full explanation in regard to both cables being useless at the same time.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON.

The Secretary to the Post Office, New South Wales, to S. Knevett, Esq., Agent at Adelaide for the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, Limited.

Sir,

General Post Office, Sydney, 23 November, 1883.

Adverting to my letter dated the 2nd instant, regarding cable interruptions between Port Darwin and Banjoewangie, and asking you to favour the Postmaster-General with an explanation of both cables being useless at the same time, I am directed to again refer to the matter. From a paragraph in the Herald of the 16th instant it appears that "the repairing steamer "Agnes" left Banjoewangie on the 13th instant to work on the old Darwin cable." On the 19th June last your Company telegraphed to the Colonies that so soon as the weather moderated the repairing ship would again be despatched to repair the old cable, and would not return until the cables were in order; but it is hardly feasible that the weather can have been bad from the 19th June until the 13th November.

The Postmaster-General would be glad if you would favour him with an explanation on the subject, and also intimate when it is likely that the old cable will be in working order.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON.

S. Knevett, Esq., Agent at Adelaide for the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, Limited, to The Secretary to the Post Office, New South Wales.

Sir,

Adelaide, 24 March, 1884.

Referring to your letters, N.B. 83/12,634, of November 2, 1883, and B. 83/12,634, of November 23, 1883, and my telegram to you of November 29, 1883,—

I have the honor to forward you the reply of my Directors herewith, being letter from the Secretary, London, dated February 8, 1884, with enclosures.

Copies have been also handed to the South Australian Government.

Port Darwin reports on the 14th instant: "Laying renewal 420 miles; old cable completed. Both cables to Banjoewangie now in perfect condition."

I have, &c.,
SAMUEL KNEVETT,
Agent to the Company.

The Secretary to the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, Limited, to The Secretary to the Post Office, New South Wales.

Sir,

66, Old Broad-street, London, E.C., 8 February, 1884.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of November 2 and November 23, addressed to Mr. Knevett (the Company's agent at Adelaide) in reference to the interruption of cable communication between Java and Australia last year.

In reply I am directed to inform you that the difficulties encountered by the Company's officials in repairing the original cable can hardly be imagined. The repairing ship "Agnes" left Singapore on the 22nd February, and from the time of her arrival on the scene of the break until the 2nd of May made every possible effort to repair the cable. Owing, however, to the close proximity of the new line, which, in several places over a short distance, overlapped, and to the boisterous weather and strong currents that prevailed during the whole time, it was found impossible to complete the repairs.

On the 2nd of August, when the weather was believed to be more favourable, the ship again left Singapore, and from the time of her arrival on the ground until the 19th November, when she was successful in putting both cables in order, she remained on the spot, losing no opportunity of effecting repairs.

As the difficulties are fully described by the Company's electrician in his report just to hand, I send you an extract for your information, together with two tracings showing the position of the cables before and after the repairs. The lines have now been separated as much as possible, and it is not anticipated that we shall experience any further trouble at this spot in the future.

The brass-ribbed cable (400 knots), for renewing the Port Darwin end of the original line, where the teredo has been found so troublesome, is now being conveyed by the s.s. "Seine" to Port Darwin, and will be laid before the receipt of this letter.

The Company have spared no effort or expense to carry out their engagements, but the difficulties they have had to contend against have been quite beyond their control.

I have, &c.,
F. HESSE,
Secretary.

Extract

Extract of a letter from Electrician on board s.s. "Agnes," re "Darwin Repairs," dated 27th December, 1883.

I am indeed glad to be at last able to send you the report of the completion of the repairs to the old Darwin cable, off the Lombok Straits, the difficulties in effecting which were even greater than were anticipated from our previous experiences in attempting the repairs at this spot, and would be hardly credited by one who was not actually engaged on the work. In the diary and charts relating to these repairs, which I enclose, I have endeavoured to explain our work so as to enable you to trace it through clearly from beginning to end, and I think you will see from these that repairs have seldom, if ever, been accomplished under equally difficult circumstances. It was most unfortunate that the working section should have been again interrupted on the 22nd October, in our endeavours to recover the Darwin end of the old cable, but owing to the extreme proximity of one cable to the other the occurrence was almost unavoidable. Although this interruption and consequent loss to the Company was much to be regretted, still it offered the opportunity of joining the new cable through direct the entire distance from Banjoewangie to Darwin (not as it was previously, through on the old from 70 knots from Banjoewangie to Banjoewangie), and also of carrying the new line further north, laying it well clear of the old. By so doing it allowed us afterwards to work at the old cable without fear of further interruption to the new.

The two cables are now laid well clear of each other, and in the event of future repairs to them at this spot there will not be that extreme difficulty in effecting them which we have lately experienced through the cables frequently crossing each other in depths of water up to 600 and 700 fathoms.

The nature of the bottom over which the cables were laid in the vicinity of the Lombok Straits was extremely unfavourable for grappling over, owing to its shelving rapidly from north to south, which does not permit of a fair dredge, but caused the grapnel to jump over the ground instead of covering it entirely; also the frequency of clay-banks, into which the grapnel would take a firm hold, necessitating much delay heaving up grapnel to clear them. Heavy short-prong centipedes were found to be the only grapnels to withstand the strain from these clay-banks, the clay at times being so stiff as to bend and break the prongs off these. The greatest difficulty of all to be contended with in cable-repairing off the Lombok Straits during the south-east monsoon is the current which runs through the Lombok Straits to the southward, with but slight intermission, driving the ship over the ground too rapidly to allow the grapnel to remain on the bottom, and making the lifting of a cable to the surface with safety in that depth of water an extremely risky and difficult operation.

This southerly current was the chief cause of our non-success in recovering the Darwin end of the old cable during the few occasions when the weather was calm enough for grappling, between the 11th August and 19th October. After the latter date the weather remained favourable, and less current was experienced till the completion of the repairs.

The repairs to the Darwin end of the old cable were effected without any difficulty, one total break of 374 knots from Darwin being repaired on 2nd December, which restored communication on the old cable after ten months' interruption.

The next fault was removed on the 4th December, at 65 knots from Darwin. The cable at this position was found to be teeming with insect life, more so than I have seen on any of our cables, not even excepting the old Singapore-Batavia section.

A piece of brass-ribboned cable was picked up at 71 knots from Darwin, which fully exemplifies the great protection that brass ribbon affords from attacks on the core by teredos, for, on opening out the end of the cable for a splice, the jute and tarred cotton tape over the brass ribbon was found to be entirely eaten away by insects, which, on coming to the brass tape, were prevented from doing any further damage. I am now sending home (in a case with faults) some specimens of this brass-ribboned cable for your inspection.

The last fault removed on 7th December at 148 knots from Darwin is, I think, an exceptional one on our cables, it being caused by the bite from some large fish, the tooth of which has penetrated to the conductor, is broken off, and remains embedded in the core. Such faults have frequently occurred in the cables on the north-east coast of Brazil, where fishes' teeth were found embedded in the core in a similar manner.

When the brass-ribboned cable you mention (yours of July 20, 1883) as being manufactured to insert in the Darwin end of the old Darwin cable from Darwin to the edge of the Sahul Bank is laid, there will be little doubt but that the old cable will prove as effective in all respects as the new one.

REDUCTION OF CHARGES ON PRESS TELEGRAMS BY CABLE.

In pursuance of the resolution arrived at in the Conference, viz., That South Australia having intimated her willingness to reduce the charge on Press Telegrams for transmission by Cable by 25 per cent., this Conference is of opinion that the Indian and Indo-European Telegraph Departments, the Eastern Telegraph Company, and the Indo-European Telegraph Company should be requested to make a similar reduction,—the Agent-General for the Colony at London was moved to make the desired communication to the Telegraph Companies concerned, and the following replies have been received, viz. :—
The Indo-European Telegraph Company, London, to The Agent-General for New South Wales, London.

The Indo-European Telegraph Co. (Limited), 18, Old Broad-street, E.C.,

Sir,

25 September, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 20th ultimo, drawing this Company's attention to a despatch from the Colonial Secretary, Sydney, referring to a resolution come to by the recent Postal Conference urging a reduction of tariff between India and this country for Press telegrams exchanged with Australia.

In reference to these communications it is necessary to point out that under the International Telegraph Convention no reduction in the telegraph charges for Press messages over the Indo-European Line between this country and India can be come to without the concurrence of all the Governments, interested parties to the Convention, whose territory the Indo-European line passes through or touches.

In the year 1875 this Company proposed, in the case of a leading London newspaper, a reduction in the prices charged between this country and India for Press telegrams to one-fourth of the rate fixed for ordinary telegrams. The Governments interested concurred; and conditions were made that the telegrams should be sent at certain hours of the night, and on Sundays, and in plain language; that they should be published exclusively in the newspaper contracting, and that a minimum number of words should be guaranteed to be sent, producing a revenue of not less than £3,000 per annum. Certain other stipulations, protective of public interests, were inserted, which it is not necessary to mention here.

The objects sought were that the arrangements introduced should not be detrimental to the interests of the Telegraph Service, and that the development of the news supply for the public benefit should be encouraged.

This arrangement was made applicable to any newspaper prepared to avail itself of the large reduction of tariff established upon the conditions stipulated.

The request forwarded on behalf of the Australian Press is for a reduction for Australian Press telegrams of 25 per cent. upon the present tariff between this country and India for ordinary messages.

This Company, however, is of opinion that such a limited reduction would not have for its effect a corresponding increase of news forwarded, which can only be brought about by large reductions under conditions securing at least present revenues, and encouraging emulation between the newspapers for the public benefit.

The messages, as at present forwarded by the agents of the Australian Press, whilst entailing the maximum occupation of the wires, are so condensed as to be almost enigmatical to all but those to whom they are addressed; then again, the one condensed message sent appears to be, editorially, greatly amplified, and published in Australia in numerous papers.

The price of the one transmission only being paid, the cost of this one transmission by the telegraph line cannot fall very heavily upon the whole Australian Press publishing these telegrams. The Australian Press has, of course, a perfect right, as far as this Company is concerned, to make co-operative arrangements in Australia by agencies or otherwise—to make whatever use it pleases of a telegram for which, between this country and India, the ordinary tariff has been paid; but the system above described scarcely establishes a claim for reductions of the telegraph charges, which would probably result merely in a saving to the newspapers without any corresponding advantage to the administrations and the public.

The key to the character of any future engagement for reduced Press tariffs may probably be found in the arrangement already subsisting, namely, that the amount of matter telegraphed by the newspapers shall be so increased as to compensate for the reduction made in the telegraph charges, and that such matter shall be sent in plain language, which it would not require a skilful editor, well versed in the public affairs and events of the world, to interpret, and make comprehensible to the reader.

Upon these conditions a reduction of tariff in larger proportion than that demanded, of 25 per cent., might perhaps be obtained, because there would be security for mutual benefit, or at least that the revenues of the European and other Telegraph Administrations should not be diminished to the exclusive advantage of the Press of Australia.

To secure any practical result an acceptable proposal would have to be submitted to the Administrations; but unless such a proposal were based upon existing arrangements, the prospect of a general measure or agreement being arrived at within any reasonable time by correspondence would not be very encouraging, and the better course may be to bring this question forward for consideration and discussion at the next Telegraph Conference, to be held at Berlin in 1885.

I have, &c.,

W. ANDREWS,
Managing Director.

The Chairman, Eastern Telegraph Company and the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, to The Agent-General for New South Wales, London.

Sir,

The Eastern Telegraph Co. (Limited), and the Eastern Extension Australasia and China

Telegraph Co. (Limited), 66, Old Broad-street, E.C., 10 September, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 20th instant, addressed to these Companies, enclosing copy of a despatch from the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, Sydney, together with a resolution adopted at the recent Postal Conference, relating to a reduction of tariff for Press telegrams.

In reply, I have to inform you that the question does not rest with the Eastern or Eastern Extension Company, but with all the Governments interested in the three routes to India.

Some years ago we proposed to allow newspapers to telegraph from India at quarter rates; but one of the Governments concerned refused to accept less than half rates, while this last-mentioned reduction did not meet with the approval of the Companies.

Eventually it was agreed that all newspapers should be offered the same arrangement as a leading London newspaper, namely, quarter rates for messages sent on Sundays and at night, when all the regular traffic had been despatched, such messages to be written in English and in plain language.

Each newspaper receiving such messages to guarantee a minimum payment of £3,000 per annum, and to undertake not to supply the same news to any other journal.

When the Eastern Extension Company agreed, in consideration of a subsidy from the Colonies, to carry Press telegrams at quarter rates, an effort was made to induce the Governments interested to accept the same tariff over the lines on this side of India, such messages, however, being written in plain language and without abbreviation.

When the representatives of the Australian Press in this country were asked if they would submit to the restrictions imposed by the Governments in return for quarter rates, we received no reply, and their arrangements appeared to be such as to negative the acceptance of such conditions.

It is well known that the Australian Press combine for the purpose of getting news, which is supplied to several newspapers, and when published it is padded out to such an extent that the original telegram is scarcely recognizable.

As to the proposition of the Sydney Conference that the present charges for Press messages over the lines on this side of India should be reduced by 25 per cent., this is a new idea, but it is one which the Companies do not view with any favour, as the reduction is not sufficient to encourage the Press to send more matter to recoup the loss which the reduction would necessarily entail.

To show the difficulties with which the Companies have to contend I may mention that the Government of India has up to this time refused to recognize the reduced rates for Government and Press messages already accorded by the Eastern Extension Company.

The Eastern Company and the Indo-European Department are obliged to credit the Indian Government with the full tariff charges on these messages, claiming the difference in London from the Eastern Extension Company.

I am afraid that this question of reduced rates for Press messages must stand over until the next International Convention, at which the Australian Colonies will doubtless be represented.

I have, &c.,

JOHN PENDER,
Chairman.

* INTERCOLONIAL TELEGRAPH RATES.

The Conference having considered the subject of reduction of Intercolonial Telegraph Rates, the Colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania agreed to the following charges, viz. :—

A message of ten words transmitted over the land lines of two Colonies	...	1	0
For each additional word	0	2
A message of ten words transmitted by the land lines of three Colonies	...	1	6
For each additional word	0	3

To be divided in equal shares between the Colonies performing the service.

Submarine cable charges additional in all cases where the cable is used.

I regret that it has not been possible as yet to give effect to this reduction, owing to its being necessary to construct an additional wire between Melbourne and Sydney, so that the largely increased business, it is anticipated will be induced by the cheaper rates may be satisfactorily performed. It is expected that this additional wire will in the course of two or three months be completed, delay having arisen in connection with the import of the wire from England.

In accordance with the following resolution, agreed to at the May Conference, viz., "That, as regards telegrams passing between the Australasian Colonies and New Zealand, fifteen letters shall be allowed as the maximum length of each word, instead of ten letters as proposed by the Cable Company," the Department has already adopted the fifteen-letter-word maximum, although the Cable Company have raised some objection to the change in the method of counting.

NEW POSTAL ACT.

It was apparent to me soon after I took office that great need existed for amending the laws that govern the various departments under my control. I found that several of my predecessors had expressed the the opinion that fresh legislation was necessary in order to enable desirable reforms to be effected, but owing to their time being so fully occupied with the transaction of the ordinary daily business of the establishment, the work of the revision of the present Acts could not be proceeded with. It happened to me, however, that I was prevented attending the office for a few weeks in consequence of an ailment requiring rest at home, and I took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to deal with this important matter. "A Bill to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the Post Office, Electric Telegraph Department, Money Order Office, Government Savings Bank, and for other purposes," is now ready to be dealt with by Parliament so soon as the state of the public business will permit. I may here briefly state some of the advantages of this measure: provision is made for a clearer definition of the term "newspaper." This has been found most desirable to meet the attempts that are too frequently made by mere advertisers who announce the goods they have for sale in printed sheets made up in form of a newspaper, with a few scraps of news inserted therein so that they may circulate the matter throughout the Colony without any charge for postage. In the new Bill a newspaper is defined as a publication printed for sale, and subjected to clearer conditions than have hitherto appertained to this class of mail matter. Provision is made for the introduction of a parcel post system whenever it shall be deemed expedient so to do. The new Act will provide for all communications on Government business going through the post without charge, and so prevent the waste of time now involved in placing stamps on these letters and keeping accounts thereof. Provision is made that duty stamps can be used for the purposes of the Post Office in the same manner that postage stamps are now available for the purpose of duty stamps. Telegraphic messages will, under the new Act, be sent for transmission by post without extra charge for postage. An important change involving a large saving of time and expenditure is the proposed discontinuance of the practice now adopted of advertising unclaimed letters. These letters cannot be delivered, mainly because the addresses have not been correctly furnished in the first instance by the senders, and under the present system, through this want of care, the Government is put to the expense of advertising, with very little result as regards the ultimate delivery of the letters. To illustrate the case practically, it may be said that the sender of an incorrectly addressed letter pays twopence in the shape of postage, and the cost of clerical labour and advertising may be stated as, at least, one shilling, so that the Government loses tenpence on every letter of this kind. Under the present system a very long time elapses before the sender of an unclaimed letter becomes aware of the fact. To remedy this, it is proposed within a reasonable time to return it to the writer, whenever he expresses on the cover of the letter his desire to have the letter so returned. This change will, I am sure, be largely appreciated by the public. It has been deemed expedient to amend the law by providing for a penalty in regard to masters of vessels conveying mails leaving the port before the expiration of the twenty-four hours' notice they are now required to give. Hitherto there has been no penalty for this conduct, and the department has consequently been powerless in the matter. In the present Act there is no provision made for the postal card system. This has been remedied. Provision is made for the introduction of a system by which small sums of money can be transmitted through the post by means of what are termed postal notes. For the Electric Telegraph Department the new Act provides for the systems of telephones and pneumatic tubes, for which there has hitherto been no legislation. The new Act, besides providing for what I have mentioned above, amends the existing Acts in several minor particulars, so as to enable the departments to be better worked, and to be allowed to develop in conformity with the progress and requirements of this age. All the present Acts are repealed, and one Consolidated Act is substituted, with the various departments arranged under separate parts, thereby facilitating the working of the Act and reference thereto; and in all respects the Act is made as elastic as possible, and many details which are now governed by enactment are henceforth to be the subject of regulations, so that necessary changes can be made from time to time without the needless delay and trouble of passing amending Acts.

CHARGES ON CABLEGRAMS BETWEEN EUROPE AND AUSTRALASIA.

In September, 1883, I devoted some attention to the question of the present high rate of charges made to the public generally for telegrams between Europe and Australasia.

From the papers on the subject I gathered that several Intercolonial Conferences and lengthy interviews and correspondence, chiefly between the Colonies of New South Wales and Victoria and the representative of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited), and having mainly for their object the duplication of the telegraph cable between Australasia and Europe, took place in the years 1877 and 1878, and resulted in a memorandum of agreement, dated the 4th December, 1878, between the Governments of New South Wales and Victoria (on behalf of the Australasian Colonies and New Zealand) and the aforesaid Company, and upon that memorandum of agreement were based the articles of the existing agreement.

The Governments of Queensland and Tasmania refused to become parties to the memorandum of agreement of the 4th December, 1878, while the Governments of the Colonies of South Australia, Western

Western Australia, and New Zealand acquiesced, but the Parliament of New Zealand afterwards negatived the resolution proposed by their Government to become party to it.

By articles of agreement, dated the 6th May, 1879, and made between Her Majesty the Queen (by authority of the Governments of New South Wales and Victoria) of the one part, and the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited), of the other part, providing for the duplication of the before-mentioned cable, and the term of which agreement is twenty years, it is provided by clause 4 that—"The Company will at all times, from and after the date of these presents, transmit by the cable or cables belonging to it, and take all proper and necessary steps for procuring the transmission by the cable or cables or telegraph line or lines belonging to other telegraph Companies or to Governments, of all telegraphic messages between England and the Colonies of New South Wales or Victoria, or any other Australasian Colony or Colonies, as to which it shall at any time hereafter be notified to the Company by the Agent-General that by virtue of any agreement or arrangement with the Governments of the Colonies of New South Wales and Victoria, it or they is or are entitled to take advantage of the rates fixed hereby, and will not until the subsidy hereinafter mentioned shall finally cease to be payable charge for its own proportion of the charges for such telegraphic messages beyond the rates following, that is to say:—For any Government message, 2s. 10d. per word; for any press message, 1s. 5d. per word; and for any other message, 5s. 8d. per word. And in case the Company shall at any time hereafter reduce its existing tariff of charges below the rate of 5s. 8d. per word, it will not during such reduction charge more than one-half of such reduced rate for any Government message, nor more than one-quarter thereof for any press message. And the Company further agrees that any excess over the above stipulated rates charged at the date of these presents by any telegraph administration on behalf of the Company shall be allowed to the sender of any Government or press message, by way of discount. Any moneys which may be charged for Government or press messages, as hereinafter respectively defined, in excess of the rates hereby agreed upon, may be deducted out of the subsidy hereinafter agreed to be paid."

At the Intercolonial Conference held in Sydney, in May, 1883, the resolution elsewhere alluded to in this report was passed, with a view of obtaining a reduction of the charges for press cablegrams.

The present rates (including the before-quoted charges for cablegrams) for telegrams between this Colony and Europe are:—For any Government message, 8s. per word; for any press message, 6s. 7d. per word; and for any other message, 10s. 10d. per word. And somewhat similar rates prevail in Victoria, South Australia, and Western Australia.

Notwithstanding these heavy rates of charges, the amount of telegraphic communication between the Australasian Colonies and New Zealand and Europe has been, and is, very large, it being stated that no less than 39,157 messages, representing a sum of £225,567 15s. 1d., were transmitted in the year 1882.

There is no doubt that, if the rates at present charged were considerably reduced, the business would increase to a very large extent, the importance and necessity of telegraph communication at the present day, especially to the mercantile community, being paramount; and it has been found by experience that the reduction of rates for cablegrams between Victoria and Tasmania resulted in a very large increase of business, and consequent gain to the cable Company.

Under the agreement of the 6th May, 1879, the Eastern Telegraph Company is guaranteed a subsidy of £32,400 per annum for the next sixteen years, and is entitled for the same period to adhere to the high rate of charges quoted in clause 14 of the agreement, so that it is not probable it will make any reduction, unless it can be guaranteed, at any rate, as much revenue from messages at reduced rates as is likely to be received under the present high scale of charges. As I thought that the Company might be disposed to reduce the before-mentioned charges, provided that those Colonies that are parties to the agreement of the 6th May, 1879, guarantee the Company against any possible loss that may accrue to it by reason of any reduction in the charges, I addressed the Postmasters-General of the Colonies concerned on the subject, pointing out to them that, owing to the many parties interested, and the terms of the agreement, some considerable delay must elapse before any change can be effected, the necessity for early action being taken, and that as a preliminary step in the direction of a much needed reform, I considered it desirable to communicate with them, with the view of ascertaining if the respective Governments were likely to agree to their Colony bringing the following as joint proposals under the notice of the Company:—First. For a reduction by 50 per cent. of its present charges, upon the understanding that it should receive a guarantee against any possible loss of cable revenue occasioned by such reduction. Second.—That, in the event of its agreeing to do so, would the Company accept from the Government of the Colonies, parties to the agreement of the 6th May, 1879, a guarantee against any such possible loss in the cable revenue? Third.—For what amount such guarantee would be?

In response to my letter, the Postmaster-General of Victoria has stated that he is entirely in accord with my opinion, and that the Government of that Colony is prepared to concur in any suitable action which may be taken to obtain a reduction of the cable charges. With respect to the Colonies that should be asked to co-operate in the matter, the Honorable Graham Berry suggested that the proposal should not be confined to such colonies as are responsible for payment of the annual subsidy for the construction and maintenance of the duplicate cable between Port Darwin and Penang, but that all the Australasian Colonies should be invited to join in the movement. I accordingly communicated with these Colonies. Regarding the amount of loss, if any, to be made good in the event of the desired reduction being conceded, it would necessarily be (Mr. Berry says) the difference between the present receipts and any less sum received after the change of tariff upon messages to and from the Colony.

The following communications that have reached me from the Minister of Education, South Australia, and from the Superintendent of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company will be found to contain much interesting information on the subject:—

The Minister of Education, South Australia, to The Postmaster-General, New South Wales.

Sir, Office of the Minister of Education, Adelaide, S.A., November 15, 1883.

I have the honor to reply to your letters of the 18th September and 23rd October, respecting the high rate of charges for telegraphic communication between Europe and the Australian Colonies, and expressing your opinion that steps should be taken with a view, if possible, of having the present charges reduced.

I concur with you that it is very desirable the cable rates should be reduced; but, unless all the Colonies will join in the proposed guarantee, and also pay their share of the subsidy of the £32,400 for the duplicate cable, nothing, I fear, can be done, because it would be unfair that the four Colonies now contributing to the subsidy should undertake additional burthens to secure facilities in which all are interested. Indeed, I cannot but think that the Imperial Government might also be very properly looked to for a share of the guarantee, as the mother country will derive equal benefits in the reduction of the rates.

The four Colonies now pay towards the cable subsidy, as under—

New South Wales	12,617	1	4
Victoria	14,478	13	10
South Australia	4,805	9	0
West Australia	498	15	10
Total	32,400	0	0

South Australia, in addition to the subsidy paid by her as above, maintains unaided the Overland Telegraph Line at a net loss, including interest on capital outlay, of about £23,000 per annum, or upwards of £27,000, including the subsidy.

The traffic last year was—

International Messages	25,424	12	4
Total	29,857	5	7

The working expenses were £30,915 16s. 10d. This shows a loss, exclusive of interest on capital outlay, of £1,058 11s. 3d.

The through rate from Port Darwin to the United Kingdom is 9s. 5d. per word, apportioned as follows:—

Eastern Extension Telegraph Co. (Port Darwin to Madras)	5	8
Java	0	2½
India	0	7½
Eastern and other Companies (India to United Kingdom)	2	11
Total	9	5

On messages to Java the Eastern Extension Company collect 3s. per word, and to India, 4s. 5d.

Unless the other Administrations will reduce their respective rates the whole of any reduction made would have to be borne by the Eastern Extension Company. The rates paid by the latter for the transmission of Australian traffic between India and England, viz., 2s. 11d. per word, is already 1s. 8d. less than is charged on Indian messages, the tariff on which, west of Chittagong, is 4s. 7d. per word.

To reduce the rate to and from Port Darwin from 9s. 5d. to (say) 4s. 9d. per word, taking last year's business as a basis, and allowing 25 per cent. increase, would involve a loss to the Eastern Extension Company of about £87,000 per annum, which would have to be made good by the contributing Colonies, thus—

If South Australia reduced her rate (say) to 9d. per word, making the through charge 5s. 6d., her loss, taking the same figures, would be over £8,000 a year, or, in other words, the annual deficit, including interest on capital outlay, would be increased to about £30,000, to which must be added the contribution to duplicate cable subsidy—£4,805 9s. It appears to me, therefore, that South Australia cannot afford to pay anything towards the guarantee. On the contrary, if we reduce our rates, we might reasonably expect to be placed upon the same footing as the Eastern Extension Company—the other Colonies making good any deficiency in our revenue caused by the reduced tariff.

The Superintendent in Sydney of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company to The Postmaster-General, Sydney.

Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited), Sydney, December 14, 1883.

Sir,

I have the honor to inform you that, after the interview I had with you and the Honorable Graham Berry on the 10th instant upon the question of a reduction in the present charges for telegrams to Europe, I telegraphed to the Chairman of this Company your views upon the same, viz., that, if a reduction is to be made at all, it should be an universal one, i.e., each Administration should make a proportionate reduction in their present rates.

In reply to my telegram, I am directed to inform you that the present Indian routes already carry the Australian telegrams over their lines at a rate of 25 per cent. less than their own Indian messages, and I am also requested to point out to you that, where there are so many Administrations concerned, any attempt to bring about a further reduction of charges before the meeting of the next International Telegraph Conference, to be held in 1885, would be hopeless; therefore any reduction in the present charges that may be required must, necessarily, come off the Eastern Extension Company's tariff, which the Colonies can control upon an adequate guarantee being given, and the Company allowed any benefit that may arise from an increase of traffic over and above the amount guaranteed, as I have already had the honor of explaining to you.

If South Australia could be induced to reduce her trans-continental tariff she might reasonably ask the Indian Administrations for a lower Australian transit rate before the next International Telegraph Conference is held.

I have, &c.,

W. WARREN.

I have only to add that no definite indication of the intention to co-operate on the part of the other Australasian Colonies has yet been received.

CABLE COMMUNICATION BETWEEN AUSTRALIA AND EUROPE, VIA AMERICA.

At the recent Intercolonial Convention held in Sydney, in November last, I submitted a proposal for the construction of a telegraphic cable between Australia and America (the importance and necessity of which, as a means of complete duplication of the telegraphic system to England and Europe, I am deeply impressed with), but, owing to the pressure of other business at that Conference, time did not permit of the subject being fully discussed.

The Honorable Alexander Campbell, M.L.C., retired from the position of Postmaster-General on the 5th January, consequent on the resignation of the Ministry of which he was a member, and was succeeded by the Honorable F. A. Wright, M.L.A. On Mr. Wright's acceptance of the portfolio of Secretary for Public Works on the 28th May, I succeeded him as Postmaster-General.

Mrs. Eliza B. Daly, who for thirty years held the office of postmistress at West Maitland, retired on the 8th May, on a pension paid out of the amount provided for superannuation pensions in the Constitution Act.

Two deaths occurred during 1883 amongst the staff attached to the head office, viz., Owen Sheridan and Robert Caldwell, both of whom served the Department efficiently and faithfully for many years.

The conduct of the officers of the Department during the past year has been on the whole favourably reported of; but I regret to have to record that it was found necessary to remove seventeen officials from the Service. Two of these (assistants in the country) were imprisoned for stealing money; a postmaster was convicted of fraudulent insolvency; another postmaster absconded, leaving a deficiency in his accounts; and a third was discharged for irregularities in connection with his Savings' Bank duties. The remainder were dismissed in consequence of intemperance, absence without leave, or unsatisfactory performance of their duties.

The Penny Postage system, which hitherto applied to places within a radius of 10 miles of Sydney, was, on the 1st October, 1883, extended to Parramatta, as well as to places within the same radius of distance from Sydney as Parramatta. Letters posted at any place within this extended area for any other place within the same area are subject to the town rate of postage, namely, one penny per half ounce.

The following are the places in the vicinity of the metropolis now having the advantages of the 1d. post, viz. :—Abattoirs, Annandale, Arncliffe, Ashfield, Auburn, Balmain, Bankstown, Bayview, Beaconsfield, Belmore, Bexley, Biloela, Botany, Botany Road, Bourke-street Redfern, Buena Vista, Burwood, Camperdown, Canterbury, Carlingford, Chatswood, Como, Concord, Croydon, Darlington, Drutt Town, Edgecliff, Enfield, Ermington, Field of Mars, Five Dock, Gladesville, Glebe, Gordon, Granville, Greenwich, Guildford, Homebush, Hornsby, Hunter's Hill, Hurstville, Iron Cove Bridge, Kingsgrove, Kogarah, La Perouse, Leichhardt, Lower Botany, Macdonald Town, Manly, May's Hill, Marrickville, Mount Carmel, Naremburn, Newtown, North Willoughby, Paddington, Parramatta, Pennant Hills, Petersham, Randwick, Redfern, Redmyre, Riverview, Rockdale, Rookwood, Ryde, St. Leonard's, St. Mark's, St. Peter's, Smithfield, Stanmore, Summer Hill, Sydney, and its City Branch Offices, Sylvania, Tempe, Upper Bankstown, Waterloo, Watson's Bay, Waverley, West Balmain, Woniara, and Woollahra.

In order to meet the convenience of the public it was decided in October to permit official postmasters to allow any person who might so desire to make use of what accommodation they might be able to afford (it being understood that the public should not have access to the office itself) for the object of writing letters—the Postmasters being allowed the option of supplying paper and envelopes for the purpose at a reasonable charge.

With a view of diminishing the risk of accident to passengers by contract mail coaches, I have found it necessary to intimate that in future the Postmaster-General will not approve of any harness which does not provide breeching for the wheel horse or horses, so as to ensure extra protection in the event of the brake giving way or becoming unmanageable.

In every Postal Department in the world a large amount of time is devoted to the investigation of complaints as to missing letters, &c., and New South Wales forms no exception to the rule; while it is believed that the per-centage rate of irregular transmission of correspondence in regard to the whole number of letters posted is no greater in this Colony than in any other country. It is quite a common occurrence for individuals to write to the press, and sometimes for pressmen themselves, to assail the administration of the Department without giving the officials a chance of placing their version of the matter in juxtaposition with the complaints made, and sometimes without any sufficient cause. This is obviously unfair, and creates a want of public confidence in the management of the Post Office which is not only undesirable but acts discouragingly on those officials who earnestly endeavour to conduct the postal business so that it may yield the best possible results to the public. I need hardly point out that the proper course to adopt in cases of suspected irregularity is for the complainant to represent the matter in the first instance to the Head of the Department, and not to the Press; and I am satisfied that in every case of complaint made the fullest inquiry is instituted, and when irregularity is discovered suitable punishment punishment is inflicted, and other measures are adopted if required to prevent a recurrence of the irregularity. As an illustration of the manner in which the Department is assailed, I may mention a case that came under my notice in which the following article appeared in one of our city newspapers, viz. :—

POSTAL PECULATION.—The code of morals in the Postal Department in regard to newspapers seems to be about even with the code of morals observed by the general public in respect to umbrellas. If they happen to be wanted they are appropriated. And the worst of it is, that no satisfaction is ever to be obtained. When a complaint is lodged, a week or two elapses, and then the stereotyped reply is furnished that the strictest inquiries have been made, but that nothing has been discovered. Writing from * * * our travelling correspondent says :—“I have had many complaints with reference to the irregular delivery of papers in this district. In some instances persons do not receive half their papers, and I have had one complaint of receiving only one copy during two months.”

It is not the value of the paper we complain of, but the injury, annoyance, and disappointment it occasions. Any postal official, from the presiding genius down to the smallest boy, who feels that the temptation is strong upon him, has only to apply to us and we will furnish him with a free copy ; but let us have some assurance that papers which are bought and paid for will not be intercepted by some aspiring but not over-scrupulous postman. We have no wish to reflect upon the officers as a body. They are, in the main, an intelligent, honest, and courteous class ; but there are, unquestionably, black sheep amongst them, and in the interest of the Department they ought to be caught and shorn. Of course, the whole of the complaints are not due to irregularities in the Post Office. Some arise in the newspaper offices themselves, and sometimes the subscribers complain without cause ; but, allowing for all these, there is a wide margin for which the authorities are responsible. We have no hesitation in saying that if the country were polled to-morrow there would be far more who do not get their newspapers regularly than there are who do. And we may go a step further, and express the opinion that if there were any honest effort made to detect these constant irregularities the Superintendent would not be uniformly obliged to reply “that nothing could be discovered.”

I think it will be admitted that this article is very strong in its terms, and calculated to do much mischief as regards the public sentiment in reference to the Postal Department. I now give “the other side of the case,” submitted by the official whose duty it is to report upon complaints of this nature :—

It is a very simple matter for proprietors of newspapers, when their subscribers complain of the non-delivery of papers, to reply to them by a paragraph charging postal officials with stealing the missing papers. This sort of reply may satisfy credulous subscribers, who are not aware, as postal officials are, that most of the irregularities in the delivery of papers are due to the publishers themselves.

In 1882 the proprietors of this newspaper were rather loud in their complaints of the non-delivery of their paper. A careful watch was kept, and immediately several cases were found in which papers were received here with two wrappers and addresses, and consequently for every paper so posted a subscriber was short ; and when the matter was complained of the Post Office was, of course, blamed. At this time as many as six papers with two addresses were discovered in one week, and in each instance the proprietors were informed.

If so many mistakes are made in the wrapping of papers, what guarantee is there that in many instances the papers are not wrapped or addressed at all ? It frequently appears from inquiries made into complaints that the papers are either incorrectly or not fully addressed. It is clear that the addresses are not carefully checked with the list of subscribers, or the errors in wrapping which have been brought under notice would have been detected. On the other hand, is it impossible for a number of these papers which have been properly addressed to be stolen on the way from the publishing office to the Post Office ? On Friday nights papers are sent to the Post Office in cart-loads, each cart in charge of one man, and numbers of papers could easily be abstracted, before they reach the Post Office, without detection.

Many of the losses of the papers are also due to their being misdirected, or thrown out on the roadside a mile or so from any house, at the request of the addressees, or by being left at places on the road such as wine-shops, and in many other ways.

I hope in a week or so to be able to show with proof some of the causes outside the Post Office which prevent papers being properly delivered in some cases.

The paragraph under notice concludes by stating “and we may go a step further and express the opinion that if there were any honest effort made to detect these constant irregularities, the Superintendent would not be uniformly obliged to reply that nothing could be discovered.” In regard to this, I may say that exhaustive inquiries are made in each instance by reference to every Post Office through which the papers would pass, and by careful search and inquiry in this office ; and in many cases a check is kept on the posting and the receipt of papers which are reported as being irregular in their delivery. I fail to see what more can be done except it is thought that each newspaper posted can be watched to its destination.

And a few days afterwards I was furnished with a further report as follows :—

“These newspaper proprietors having so recently made a direct charge of theft against the Department, and having in the same article stated that no satisfaction could be obtained when complaint was made, it would, to those unacquainted with the reckless manner in which charges are laid against the Department, be a matter of great surprise that on Saturday last three (3) copies of this newspaper (herewith) were found, one having two addresses on one wrapper, and two with two wrappers with separate addresses. Had these errors not been detected one of the subscribers in each case would have gone without his paper, and the Post Office would have been blamed. There is little doubt that similar errors occur every week, and there may have been numbers made on Friday and Saturday last, but of course the limited time allowed for sorting does not permit of anything like a minute examination being made.

It is very clear that no proper check is kept by this publishing office on the newspapers as made up and addressed.

In the case of another journal, a subscriber complained to the Department of the continual irregular receipt of his newspaper, and the Department, after making the usual investigation, suggested to the complainant as the only way out of the difficulty that the papers might have been posted too late by the publishers. This suggestion was based upon our experience of the fact that the weekly newspapers, supposed to be posted before certain hours on Friday, are repeatedly posted too late. The publishers took exception to our statement, and asked to have the matter re-investigated, which was done, with the result that on the very next Friday no less than sixty papers for the same part of the country were sent to the office too late—being mixed up with newspapers for another part of the country, the mails for which did not close till later on.

I will now give a few out of the numerous cases of complaint that have been investigated recently by the Department as showing that it is not always the case that blame is attachable to the postal officials.

In February, 1883, a representation was made to the Department that the messenger of a certain resident in Sydney had accidentally posted an unstamped letter containing a sum of money which was intended to have been personally handed by him to a certain business firm in this city. Search was made for this letter but it could not be found in the Post Office. The case was placed in the hands of the Departmental Detective when it was discovered that the messenger's statement was untrue, and that he had dropped the letter in the street where it was found by some stranger and delivered to its owner.

It was alleged by a person who resided in the Colony that a registered letter had been posted for her which had never reached its destination. The result of this case was the admission on the part of the alleged sender in England that no such registered letter was ever posted.

In March, 1883, it was alleged that a valuable registered packet was posted in England, addressed to Petersham, which had not reached its owner, and the Post Office Department was of course considered to be at fault. On inquiry, however, in England, it was ascertained that the packet had not been sent by post at all but by private hands.

In February, 1883, a case was reported of a missing money letter which was alleged to have been posted at a country Post Office in the Colony; the matter was placed in the hands of the Police, and it transpired that a man in the employ of the sender of the letter had been arrested, who had stolen the letter before it was posted.

A letter, containing a £10 note, was posted in Queensland, insufficiently addressed, to a person in Sydney. It was thought the letter had been delivered to a person of the same name, and for some time it was considered to be lost. A few months afterwards, however, a gentleman called at the General Post Office and stated that he had received the missing letter from a person of the same name in America, who had received the letter from his agent in Sydney, who had obtained it there and re-addressed it to America. The letter, with the £10 note, was of course subsequently delivered to the rightful owner, who became aware of the need for placing full directions on his correspondence—a lesson that might be profitably learned by a large number of persons.

A letter, containing a £1 note, addressed to a lady in Sydney, was said to be missing. Some while afterwards it was discovered that this letter was duly delivered at its address to a servant girl, who placed it in some ornamental article, where it was found some days afterwards.

A letter, containing a £1 note, was said to be missing, addressed to a person residing at Duncan-street, off Bathurst-street, Sydney. In this case it was found that the letter was addressed Duncan-street, near Bathurst. It will be observed in this, as in some other cases, that no care was manifested by the sender as regards registering his money letter or in addressing it.

I shall only add one other case, viz. :—That of three letters said to have been posted in an iron letter-receiver in Sydney, containing, respectively, £21, £13, and £6. Representations were made of the non-receipt of these letters, and full inquiry was made without discovering any trace of them in the Post Office, and the omission to register the letters was pointed out to the sender. Some time afterwards a note was received from the sender intimating that "the missing letters have been received; instead of being posted as stated by the boy, they had got away under a glass case, so further inquiry will be needless."

I may take advantage of this opportunity to allude to a matter that has more or less agitated the public mind for some time, and that is the question of affording an early delivery (say about 8 o'clock) of letters in the city and suburbs. I find that it is through no want of energy or foresight on the part of the Postal officials that this boon has not been conferred, for endeavours have frequently been made to induce the Railway authorities to bring the Southern and Western mail trains into Sydney sufficiently early in the morning to enable the letters to be sorted and sent out for delivery by 8 o'clock; but as yet it has not been found expedient by the Railway authorities to do this; and the Postal Department has preferred, believing it to be in the public interest, to keep the first delivery by carrier fixed at such hour as will secure the receipt by the Sydney public of the Western and Southern correspondence at the same time as the Northern, the City, and Suburban correspondence is delivered. Notwithstanding that this obvious advantage has been frequently pointed out by the Department, representations are still made by the public through the press and in other ways that an 8 o'clock a.m. delivery is desired; and comparison is made with other Colonies and countries where an early delivery of this kind is afforded, the fact being apparently quite lost sight of that in these countries the mails are received at various hours throughout each day, and that there is no such concentration in the arrival of mails as happens to be the case at Sydney; coupled with the fact that most of the country mails do not arrive in Sydney until after 7 a.m. I am, however, desirous of meeting the public wish in this matter as far possible, and with this view am now considering the desirableness of arranging for a portion of the country mails to arrive in Sydney about 11 o'clock, and be delivered by the second delivery at noon, the first delivery taking place at 8 a.m. From what I have gleaned of the subject I must admit there is good argument on both sides of the question, and under all the circumstances perhaps the better plan will be to make the experiment suggested above, and so ascertain whether the change will meet with the public appreciation it is alleged it will.

The following resolutions were adopted by Parliament in April, 1883, in regard to the renewal of the contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company:—

(1.) That, subject to the Imperial Government agreeing to continue to convey the Mails to San Francisco as heretofore, the contract between the Colonies of New South Wales and New Zealand with the Pacific Mail Company be extended for a period not exceeding two years from the expiry of the present contract in November next, at an annual subsidy not exceeding £50,000, of which the portion falling upon this Colony shall not exceed £18,750, and subject to the following conditions, viz.:—

That it shall be optional for this Colony to withdraw from such extended contract at the end of twelve months, on giving three months' previous notice, in the event of the Pacific Mail Company not having obtained from the United States Government, or from other sources, a contribution equal to one-third of the total annual subsidy for such extended contract, and in diminution of the contribution payable by the contracting Colonies respectively.

That the service shall be performed with the acceleration upon the present contract time of at least twenty-four hours on each voyage to and from Sydney and San Francisco during the first year, and during the second year at least forty-eight hours, subject to the same terms, conditions, premiums, and penalties as heretofore; with this exception—that the Company be relieved from keeping a fourth steamer, but that such shall not absolve them from the penalties for any failure.

(2.) That the foregoing Resolutions be transmitted by Address to His Excellency the Governor.

The

The first mail under the new contract left London on the 8th November, and the first one from Sydney was despatched on the 6th December.

In accordance with arrangements entered into with the Imperial Postal Authorities, the rates of postage chargeable on letters and packets for Costa Rica, via Brindisi, were reduced from the 1st January.

An arrangement was introduced in January under which unpaid or insufficiently prepaid letters posted in New South Wales, and addressed to foreign countries or colonies for which correspondence is usually sent by way of Great Britain, are included in the mails for London, the postage (6d. per ½ ounce letter) being collected on delivery and credited to this Colony.

Arrangements were entered into with the United States postal authorities in February, under which letters prepaid to the extent of a single rate of postage are exchanged with Canada, via the United States—such letters being chargeable with the deficient postage on delivery.

An agreement for regulating the postal relations between (1) France and her Colonies, and (2) Australia, New Zealand, and Tasmania, by means of English and French packets, came into operation on the 1st February, and enabled the department to reduce the rates of postage on correspondence for France and other places.

Amended rates of postage on newspapers and printed matter for France came into operation in August.

In August a contract was concluded with the Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited), for the conveyance of mails, fortnightly, between this Colony and the mother country, to alternate with that of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company. The particulars of this contract will be found in the subjoined correspondence :—

The Manager in Australia of the Orient Steam Navigation Company to The Postmaster-General,
New South Wales.

Sir,

- 13th. The steamers shall start from and terminate their voyage at a port of New South Wales, either Sydney or Newcastle.
- 14th. Should the Orient Company fail to despatch a steamer to convey the mails in accordance with this contract, they shall pay the Postmaster-General the sum of two hundred and fifty pounds, and the further sum of fifty pounds for every successive twenty-four hours which shall elapse between the time at which the mail shall be appointed to leave the port and the time at which the vessel conveying the same shall leave the port : Provided always that the Postmaster-General shall have power to remit or reduce any of the sums thus payable, if he shall be satisfied that such default was attributable to causes over which the Company had no control ; and provided also, that in no case shall the fines and (or) penalties exceed the estimated earnings of the steamer under this agreement for that particular voyage ; or in event of non-payment of fines and penalties within a reasonable time, or the contract not being bonâ fide performed, it shall be lawful for the Postmaster-General to put an end to the contract, in manner provided by clause 25 of the contract with the Pacific Mail Company, dated 29th November, 1878.

- 15th. Any disputes, questions, differences, or controversies, under this agreement, re the said service, shall be referred to arbitration, in the same manner as provided for in the aforesaid Pacific Mail Company's contract, by clauses 32 to 43.
- 16th. The service shall commence with the Company's steamer to leave Melbourne on 21st September next; and onwards, with the steamer leaving Plymouth on the 30th November—(that is, the mails leaving London on the 7th December)—the contract remaining in force till the 30th November, 1886.
- 17th. The contract to be subject to reconsideration and alteration in the event of this Colony joining the Postal Union.
- 18th. The English Government having agreed to convey the mails to and from Suez on same terms as Victorian mails from Colombo, the Orient Company will receive and deliver the mails at Suez, unless otherwise authorized by the English Mail Agent at or for Suez.
- 19th. It is understood that mail matter, not superscribed for any special route, will be forwarded by the official conveyance which, in the opinion of the Postmaster-General, will afford quickest delivery at destination.

A contract on the above terms to be prepared and signed, if required, by either the New South Wales Government or the Orient Company.

The above to be subject to the approval of the New South Wales Parliament.

I have, &c.,
G. SKELTON YUILL,
Manager in Australia,
The Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited).

The Secretary to the Post Office, New South Wales, to The Manager in Australia of the Orient Steam Navigation Company.

Sir, General Post Office, Sydney, 30 August, 1883.
I am directed by the Postmaster-General to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 23rd instant, intimating the terms of the postal contract which the Orient Steam Navigation Company are prepared to enter into with the Government of this Colony, and to state that the Government agrees to these terms.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON,
Secretary.

The following resolutions ratifying the contract were agreed to by the Legislative Assembly on the 25th October, and by the Legislative Council on the 8th November:—

(1.) That this House approves of the contract made by the Government with the Orient Steam Navigation Company (Limited), providing for a Mail Service once a fortnight to and from Sydney and England, payment to be made at the following rates on the mail matter conveyed, viz. :—

For letters, twelve shillings per lb.
,, packets, one shilling ,,
,, newspapers, sixpence ,,

And on the conditions specified in the letter of the Manager in Australia of the Company aforesaid, dated 23rd August, 1883, and laid upon the Table of this House on the 9th October, 1883.

(2.) That the foregoing Resolution be communicated by Address to His Excellency the Governor.

The contract entered into with the Orient Steam Navigation Company has not only given the public the benefit of another recognised Mail Service with England, but—combined with the Peninsular and Oriental Company's Service—a regular weekly mail to and from England has been secured; and it is satisfactory to state that arrangements have been made whereby the former 8d. rate of postage by the Peninsular and Oriental Company has been reduced, so that the public now enjoy the benefit of a uniform rate of 6d. per $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. by both the Peninsular and Oriental and Orient Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

Another important feature in the contract made with the Orient Steam Navigation Company is that the Government pays no fixed subsidy for mail matter conveyed, a fair payment per pound being made to the Company, thus showing that the system of paying large subsidies for the conveyance of ocean-going mails will be a thing of the past.

Particulars of the weight of the mails conveyed by the steamers under the new contract are given in the annexed return, likewise the dates of arrival and departure of the steamers, and the number of letters, packets, and newspapers transmitted thereby.

In the year 1883 the average cost per mile of the Inland Mail Conveyance was about 5d. against $4\frac{1}{2}$ d., the price per mile paid in the year 1882. The increase is owing in a large extent to the extra charge made by the Commissioner for Railways for the conveyance of mails by Railway—the price paid from the 1st January, 1883, being £25 per mile on lines where mail-vans are used, and £12 per mile on lines where the mails travel in the railway vans, whereas the price formerly paid was £12 10s. per mile on all lines. The particulars as to the Mail Contracts for the Conveyance of Inland Mails will be found in the Appendix.

On the 1st July, 1883, the Money Order system was brought into operation between this Colony and Canada. San Francisco is the office of exchange between the two countries, and advices both to and from Canada are subject in every respect to the terms of the convention between the New South Wales and the United States Departments, the former Department consenting to accept from Canada Money Orders expressed in dollars and cents, the relative advices exhibiting the amount in sterling money to be paid.

During the year the following new offices were established, namely:—

Barmedman	Ivanhoe	South Woodburn
Boat Harbour	Jerrewa	Surry Hills
Bowraville	Lowesdale	Ten-mile Reef
Canadian Lead	Maryvale	Tibooburra
Deepwater	Mogil Mogil	Upper Tarago
Frederickton	Mount M'Donald	Wallendbeen
Goodooga	Mulwala	Waterloo

Harden	Nyngan

The following offices were discontinued, namely:—

Avisford	Cookardinia	Red Range
Ben Lomond	Jerrawa	St. Mark's

The number of Money Order offices in the Colony on 31st December, 1883, was 416, being 16 in excess of the previous year.

The number of Orders issued during the year was 275,592, amounting to £963,698 8s. 8d., against 247,716, amounting to £883,523 14s. 5d., for 1882, the difference showing an increase for the year of 27,876 in the number and £80,174 14s. 3d. in the amount.

The number of Orders paid was 239,595, amounting to £829,770 0s. 5d., against 218,354, amounting to £772,026 6s. 1d., for 1882, being an increase of 21,741 in number and £57,743 14s. 4d. in the amount.

The

The amount of Revenue received as commission on Money Orders was £11,370 14s., being £1,343 5s. in excess of the amount received in 1882.

Appendix A.

In the Appendix will be found a return showing the total number and amount of Money Orders issued and paid at each office for the year.

III.—GOVERNMENT SAVINGS' BANK DEPARTMENT.

It is highly satisfactory to find that this branch of the Government service has not lost ground during the year, the number of depositors having been increased by 6,868 and the balance at their credit by £25,065 0s 5d., as will be seen on reference to the following returns. This increase, in the face of the general depression that has been felt in all monetary institutions, shews, in a marked manner, the high estimation in which the Post Office Savings' Bank is held by the general public.

The following new offices have been opened, namely.—

Bowral	Kiandra	South Woodburn
Carroll	Maryvale	Surry Hills
Forster	Pambula	Urana
Hamilton	St. Albans	Waterloo
Harden	South Grafton	Wentworth

The number of deposits was 147,627, and the amount £922,803 14s. 5d., being an increase of 25,759 in the number and £31,604 1s. 10d. in the amount on the business of the year 1882.

The withdrawals for the year were 59,475, for £938,073 8s. 6d., being 11,032 in number, and £194,762 14s. 1d. in amount, greater than the previous year. This has been caused not only by the larger amount of interest offered for fixed deposits by the Banks, but by the higher rate of interest given by the Savings' Bank of New South Wales

The deposits, together with the interest added to depositors' accounts, increased the balance at the credit of depositors from £1,158,454 3s. 4d. in 1882, to £1,183,519 3s. 9d. on 31st December, 1883.

The amount of interest at 4 per cent. added to depositors' accounts was £40,334 14s. 6d.

The

The average amount of each deposit was £6 11s. 11½d., and of each withdrawal, £15 15s. 5¼d. The average amount at the credit of each depositor's account at the close of the year was £25 17s. 8½d.

The following return will show the annual progress of the Government Savings Bank system, from 1st September, 1871, to 31st December, 1883 :—

To meet the convenience of the public it was arranged during the year that telegraphic messages posted at any Post Office (which is not also a telegraph station) or posting receptacle in the Colony can be forwarded by first mail to the nearest telegraph office, and transmitted thence by wire to destination, provided unobliterated postage stamps are affixed to the form on which the message is written (in the place provided for the purpose), sufficient in value to defray the cost of the message, and that the message be enclosed in an envelope prepaid with the requisite amount of postage, and directed to the Station-master at the nearest Telegraph Station.

All telegrams for post must be written in a clear and legible manner on the form specially provided, and in accordance with the printed instructions on such form.

Telegrams addressed to Post Towns to which there is no telegraphic communication, are transmitted by wire to the nearest Telegraph Station, and forwarded thence to destination by first post without additional charge.

In order to afford as much advantage as possible at the Suburban Telegraph Stations, instructions were issued that they should remain open to the public up to 8 p.m., from the 1st April, 1883; but it was subsequently deemed expedient to modify this direction, as regards the offices at Darlington, Glebe, King-street, Miller's Point, Park-street, and Tattersall's, which, from the 1st June, 1883, were closed at 6 p.m. instead of 8 p.m.

From the 1st March, 1883, arrangements were made for sending telegraphic messages marked "Delayed," and handed in at any local station during business hours at half the ordinary rates within the Colony, such messages being transmitted to destination after the close of the day's business.

In September telegraphic Messages were transmitted from this Colony to Tasmania at the reduced rate of three shillings (3s.) for ten words, and threepence (3d.) for each additional word; and in November the rate chargeable on telegrams transmitted between Mulwala and Tocumwal (Border Towns), and any part of the Colony of Victoria, was reduced to one shilling for ten words.

In 1880 the telephone system was introduced into the Colony and has proved a valuable agency in the speedy transaction of business. The number of persons that have taken advantage of this system is 405. The following are the regulations which during the year 1883 were framed for the guidance of the telephone system:—

- (1.) Applications for connection with the telephone system, through the Central Exchange or otherwise, should be forwarded to the Superintendent of Electric Telegraphs, General Post Office, Sydney, when estimates of the cost of connection will be duly furnished.
- (2.) The work will be carried out by the Government at the expense of the applicant, who will also have to bear the cost of the instrument or instruments, which must, in all cases, be of the manufacture recommended by the Department.
- (3.) Each subscriber will be required to pay, in advance, a maintenance fee at the rate of £5 per mile, or fraction thereof, per annum.
- (4.) With a view to facilitate business and for the better conduct of the system, telephone messages containing unbecoming expressions must be refrained from, and language of an obscene nature or of a character calculated to provoke a breach of the peace is strictly forbidden. Any violation of this Regulation will render the offenders liable to have their Telephone Instruments disconnected from the Telephone Exchange, and their lines dismantled.

Arrangements have been made for keeping the Central Telephone Exchange open all night for the convenience of subscribers and communication is maintained throughout the day and night, between the Central Exchange and the Central Fire Brigade Telephone Exchange, at the Town Hall, the latter being also in communication with the various Fire Brigade Stations in the city and its suburbs.

In conclusion, I am pleased to notice the general progress of the Colony which is manifested in the growth of the Departments which have been under review in this Report, and to add my congratulations upon the advance which has been made.

I have, &c.,

W. J. TRICKETT,

Postmaster-General.

General Post Office,
Sydney, 16th April, 1884.

- 17th. The contract to be subject to reconsideration and alteration in the event of this Colony joining the Postal Union.
- 18th. The English Government having agreed to convey the mails to and from Suez on same terms as Victorian mails from Colombo, the Orient Company will receive and deliver the mails at Suez, unless otherwise authorized by the English Mail Agent at or for Suez.
- 19th. It is understood that mail matter, not superscribed for any special route, will be forwarded by the official conveyance which, in the opinion of the Postmaster-General, will afford quickest delivery at destination.

A contract on the above terms to be prepared and signed, if required, by either the New South Wales Government or the Orient Company.

The above to be subject to the approval of the New South Wales Parliament.

POST OFFICE CARVINGS.

(REPORT OF COLONIAL ARCHITECT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 7 August, 1884.

RETURN to an Order of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 15th July, 1884, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“A copy of the Report of the Colonial Architect, in reference to the Post Office Carvings.”

(Mr. Teece.)

The Colonial Architect to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Colonial Architect's Office, Sydney, 13 May, 1884.

In acknowledging receipt of your communication of 15th February last, enclosing report of the Board appointed for the purpose, upon carvings of the eastern front of the new General Post Office, in Pitt-street, Sydney, I do myself the honor to submit the following remarks in connection with the same.

2. As requested, I attended a meeting of the Board on 10th January last, when I was informed that evidence would not be taken by a shorthand-writer, as usual in such cases, but that a digest of the proceedings would be published with the report. I offered to furnish a description of the carvings, to accompany the evidence, but as the evidence was not submitted to me for revision, as customary in a case of this kind, I had not the opportunity. I therefore now forward it, together with some memoranda (3) on the question of realistic sculpture and post office carvings generally. While at the meeting I gave a verbal description of the carvings, and answered such questions as were asked in a conversational manner, from which I gathered that the Board was in favour of ideal in opposition to realistic or natural art. When asked if I had any witnesses, I replied “No,” not seeing the necessity for them, even if such could be obtained. I was then asked if I had any suggestion to make, to which I replied, “Yes; that these carvings should remain as they were until the building was completed and the scaffolding removed, when photographs could be taken from proper positions of the whole and in detail, and copies sent to Europe for the opinion of competent authorities.”

3. The photographs referred to in the report were taken, by direction of the Board, from a stage erected for the purpose, nearly on a level with the carvings, and close to them, within the scaffolding. This was manifestly unfair to the work, the sculptor, and myself, as the carvings were not intended to be seen from such a position, but from the street level, and at varying distances. This, however, was perhaps of little importance, as the Board had indicated adverse opinions previous to the views being placed before them.

4. These carvings, as shown by the papers, are intended to express the uses or purposes to which the building is applied, and to represent some of the leading classes using it. The subjects represented are as follows:—

1. Telegraphy—Literature and the Press.
2. Law, Physics, &c.—Commerce and Mining.
3. Agriculture—Science and Art.
4. Banking—Post Office.

A tender for their execution was obtained from the contractors for the building, Messrs. M'Creddie Brothers, which was recommended to and approved of by Mr. Secretary Lackey, in April, 1882. Signor Sani was employed by the contractors to prepare models and carve the works in stone, under my direction and to my satisfaction, in the usual manner.

[765 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £3 16s. 0d.]

5. As it was not possible to represent all the subjects selected by ideal, allegorical, sham classic figures, lying in unnatural attitudes, on the backs of the arches, in the usual manner of the old masters, I adopted the realistic style or natural manner, treating them as if seen through openings of the spandrels, the various figures being represented as at their usual employments, with the necessary accompaniments; and the result, in my opinion, is admirable, both as to decoration and illustrative of the customs and costumes of the present day. The superiority of the bold and dashing stroke of the chisel in work, which is to be seen at a distance, shows the artist's power of producing a masterly effect of life and reality with a few touches, and is evidence of fine handling. I may here mention that the questions of realism and idealism in art have given rise to a great deal of speculation, which is likely to remain unsettled while the world lasts. Both of these styles are adopted in the Post Office carvings, and they have been used side by side from the time of the Parthenon. Realistic art is at the present time largely in vogue throughout Europe, and specially encouraged at South Kensington; moreover, it is easily understood by the people generally, which is particularly the case with the Post Office carvings in question.

6. As to the regret expressed by the Board in its report, respecting the plan and manner in which the idea has been carried out, I think it sufficient to say that the Board admitted to me there was great difference of opinion by the public as to the fitness of these carvings, and their retention or removal, but no mention is made of this fact in the report. It was evident to me from what was said by the Board, on the subject it was appointed to consider, that it was not in favour of the realistic, but of the ideal section, upon which the School of Sculpture is and always will be divided, and that it was guided by precedent. Therefore, a Board appointed to decide whether or not these carvings should be retained—a question between the real and ideal in sculpture—whose opinions are all in favour of the ideal, is unfair, not only to the sculptor and myself, as before stated, but to the public also, and its decision cannot be considered to carry weight; my appearance before the Board, under the circumstances stated, would therefore seem to have been a mere matter of form.

7. The Board considers that these carvings are unsuited to the character and design of the building, that is to say, they are unfitted, and not in keeping with the architecture. The style of the architecture is Italian Renaissance, examples of which exhibit details and decorations from Gothic on the one hand, to extreme Classic on the other; and of it is said that it not only admits of but insists on progress, and knows no guide but common sense; it owns no master but true taste, and more than this, it demands thought, and courts originality—therefore realistic decorative carvings are not only fitting, but demanded, to show true progress.

8. The objection that these carvings are in high relief, stiff, &c., and the assertion that all pure and good examples are invariably in low relief, &c., &c., show how unacquainted the Board is with these matters, and how little qualified it is to deal with the subject under consideration, for the contrary is the fact. Spandrel sculpture is invariably in the highest relief; reference need only be made to examples of the old masters in Saint Peter's, Saint Maria Maggiore, and other churches and buildings in Rome; Santa Maria della Salute and other churches, as well as numerous palaces, and especially the Ducal Library, in Venice, with many other examples, in Italian and other cities. I have already said that these figures are realistic and natural in their pose, which could not be if distorted into positions, as suggested by the Board, to suit the contour of the arch.

9. As to the assertion that the figures are untrue, unnatural, &c., &c., this proves that natural objects, reproduced by art, are unsatisfactory to the Ideal School, which considers that its functions is to improve upon nature, hence the unfairness of accepting the decision of a Board of idealists, in settlement of this question. Of all criticism, that of Art is most difficult; and no doubt this was felt when it was proposed to begin the Art Gallery with copies of the old masters, but this was wisely over-ruled, or we should not have the specimens of realism now there. But the Board, as I before stated, admitted that there was great difference of opinion as to these carvings. As a matter of fact, the people understand them, while the ideal would to a certain extent be obscure; moreover the rules of classic ideal art are not applicable to realistic works.

10. With reference to the opinion expressed by the Board upon Signor Sani's ability, and its approval of the ideal heads on the keystones, this opinion also shows the inaptitude of the Board for the task it undertook; finish and beauty of form being considered by it the chief object rather than thought and truth, so admirably displayed by the artist in the adjoining spandrels.

11. In respect to the decision, "we unanimously recommend that they be cut out"—no other outcome of the Board could be expected, considering its onesidedness, and, as shown by the report, its unacquaintance with decorative carvings and inability to understand the subject upon which it voluntarily undertook to report.

12. With regard to the request of the Minister that I should submit a plan of what I propose to substitute for the carvings,—I would state that, by very careful and somewhat costly operations required to prevent damage to the surrounding architecture, it would be possible to remove them; but as to furnishing designs for other works to take their place, I am unable to recommend or submit any that would be better than those now provided; if these are therefore to be removed, I would suggest that the spaces be filled in with plain ashlar. I would, however, at the same time point out that, whatever precautions may be taken, this cannot be done without some injury to the building, as the filling in will never be equal to the original work.

13. In justice to the sculptor and myself especially, there being no reason whatever for haste, as the contract will not be finished for probably another year, I consider that no further steps should be taken in the matter until this portion of the building is completed and the scaffolding removed; then photographs taken of the whole of the building, showing the value of the carvings as decorative works, and their general effect in the architectural composition, and in detail for their artistic and representative character. Copies of such views to be submitted for the opinion of the best authorities on modern decorative carving in England, Paris, Milan, and Rome; for I maintain that it is doubtful whether competent and independent opinions on works of this kind can be obtained in the Colonies. This I think I have in all fairness a just right to expect, considering the position I hold, and the works I have carried out in the Colony,—also that my opinion in the matter in dispute is, I may confidently say, of more value and weight than that of the gentlemen forming the Board.

In conclusion, I must state that it is to be regretted I was not allowed to reply to this report before it was submitted to the Cabinet.

I have, &c.,
 JAMES BARNET,
 Colonial Architect.

MEMO. DESCRIPTIVE OF ALTO-BELIEVOS, GENERAL POST OFFICE, PITT-STREET.

No. 1. Telegraphy—Literature and the Press.

Telegraphy is represented by an operator at work, with his right hand on the instrument, while reading a telegram. On the lower part of the spandrel is a little boy trying to prepare a battery. At a counter a young woman with a pleasant look, writing a message, and, in the distance, a mounted messenger, conveying telegrams.

Literature and the Press.—The former is represented by a writer or author, in deep thought, seated at a table, writing. The latter by a young printer at a printing machine, who for a moment has stopped work, to notice with amazement a little boy who is reading aloud. In the back ground compositors are seen, employed at their several occupations.

No. 2. Professions—Commerce and Mining.

Professions are represented by a Judge upon the Bench, reading over his notes; and by a Professor demonstrating some experiment he is engaged upon, while he is noting the time with an hour-glass in his hand, a retort, still, and furnace being near him; a little boy is also seen in the lower part of the spandrel, admiring and examining a butterfly he has caught. In the back ground is a student in deep study.

Commerce and Mining.—Commerce is shown by a business man making entries in a note-book; near him are bales of merchandise; a small boy offering fruit for sale; and shipping in the background. Mining is represented by an experienced digger, pointing with satisfaction to the gold in a lump of quartz, which his son is looking at with pleasure and astonishment.

No. 3. Agriculture and Pastoral Pursuits—Science and Art.

Agriculture and Pastoral Pursuits.—Agriculture is represented by a ploughman with his plough. The day being nearly over, as shown by the setting sun, he has relaxed work for a few minutes, while with much eagerness he reads a letter. In the lower part of the spandrel is a little girl with flowers. Pastoral pursuits are illustrated by a shearer at work, and by the introduction of cattle and sheep.

Science and Art.—Science is represented by an astronomer, who having taken an observation, marks a position on the globe, at the same time pointing to Sydney, shown on a chart, and, in the lower part of the spandrel, by a little boy with a telephone to his ear, listening with astonishment to the sounds produced by this recent application of science. Art is illustrated by a young architect, making a drawing of a building, seen in the distance, intended for the reception of fine arts. A statue is also shown.

No. 4. Banking—Post Office business.

Banking is illustrated by a Bank clerk paying money over a counter to a young woman who is presenting a draft. In the lower corner of the spandrel is a little boy with money in a bag, and crying because he has lost some of it while bringing it to the Bank.

Post Office business.—This is represented by a letter-carrier, heavily laden, as on a mail day, giving to a young woman a letter, which she gladly receives. Below is a little girl reading a letter.

J.B.

REALISTIC, GENRE, OR NATURALISTIC SCULPTURE.

My idea is to revive the natural style of sculpture practised (before the introduction of the pseudo-classical taste of the 15th century by the Medici) by such sculptors as Lucca della Robbia, Ghiberti, Danatello, and others. It is the sentiment of Art that first attracts and fixes the attention of intelligent people, long before the form in which it is presented becomes the object of critical examination,—a fact constantly proved by the fascinating power of some of the productions of this School.

This idea of revival is not new, for it is found expressed about fifty years ago in England, in Pugin's and Britton's "Public Buildings of London," vol. i, p. 25, second edition. When speaking of the sculpture in Saint Paul's Cathedral it is said,—

In the monuments already erected there is so much sacrifice of propriety that a word or two on the subject may be excused. Not to notice naked admirals and post captains, with little bits of drapery falling from their shoulders to mask their nudity, no fewer than twenty-one of the monuments display women with wings growing on their shoulders. These personages are facetiously enough denominated Victories; or if these be wanting, the hero commemorated is assisted by some god or other. Hercules and Neptune seem to be held in most repute, and their godships, if they are ever inclined to pay a visit to our sculptors' studi, are not likely to meet the same reception that Mercury in the fable encountered. * * * *

The costume of the age in monumental sculpture is of the utmost importance: first, because neither the act of the person, if the subject be historical, nor the identity of the person himself, if it be merely monumental, can be recorded without an observance of it; and secondly, because the preservation of it to the future historian and antiquarian is of the highest value.

The late John Henry Chamberlain, the personal friend of Ruskin, and Sir Frederick Leighton, who was regarded as an almost infallible authority on Art, in his last lecture on Art, on 22nd October last, the day on which he died, said,—

To the musician, the beauty of this world was shown through music; to the artist, it was shown on his canvas; to the architect it ought to be shown on the stone with which he had to deal, and the bricks which he might mould into the forms in which he willed them to appear; and the sculptor, instead of his art being dead, ought to be able to take up our common and ordinary life, and show us not only its variety, but also its grandeur, nobility, and poetry.

Extract from lecture given by Professor Gosse, at the Birmingham and Midland Institute, on "The Public and Private Uses of Sculpture":—

It had sometimes struck him, too, that the memory of actions rather than of faces ought to be perpetuated; nor did he see why monuments should be reserved for eminent persons, for his belief was that sculpture in England had been bound up too largely in two conventional classes—the portrait statue and the classic subject. The Greek sculptor merely noted what he he saw every day of his life. It seemed to him that it would be a very interesting and graceful thing if Birmingham's reliance on the hardware manufacture for much of her prosperity could be indicated to future generations by sculpture. He would like to see, somewhere in the centre of the town, a bronze statue, executed by the very best artist, of a welder with a gun-barrel in his hands; or of a caster in the brass foundry, ready to pour the metal into the mould: a true Warwickshire man, in his shirt-sleeves and apron.

Sirs, Colonial Architect's Office, Sydney, 22 February, 1882.
 In reference to your contract for extension of the General Post Office to Pitt-street, I have to request you will inform me what the difference of price would be if, instead of the ornamental panels in the spandrels of the four arches in the Pitt-street front, provided by your contract, you substituted basso-relievo representations of the following subjects, viz. :—

Telegraphy,	Literature and the Press,
Professions, Law,	Mining and Commerce,
Physics, &c.,	Science and Art,
Agriculture and Pastoral,	Post Office,
Banking.

Each of the eight spandrels to have at least two figures, or portion of two figures, life-size, with the necessary accessories to illustrate the subjects. The work to be executed in the best artistic manner by approved artists. Models, half-size in terra-cotta or plaster of Paris, to be submitted for approval, and to become the property of the Government.

Report.

Sir,

Sydney, February 6, 1884.

We the Board appointed by the Secretary for Works to report upon the carvings on the eastern front of the General Post Office, beg to report as follows:—

We have held several meetings and carefully considered the question submitted to us.

We have not thought it desirable or necessary to obtain the assistance of any oral evidence other than that of the Colonial Architect, who, being responsible for the carvings, was invited, not only to submit his own opinion but to suggest any evidence regarding them which he might consider necessary.

At our request we were furnished with large scale photographs, showing each spandrel, and admitting of a critical examination of the several figures; but we have not thought it advisable to burden our report with the opinions in detail deduced therefrom.

We find that the carvings are the result of a design on the part of the Colonial Architect to pourtray, in realistic fashion, some of the arts, sciences, and customs of this age and country; and that he is satisfied with the manner in which the idea has been carried out.

Whilst

Whilst we entirely commend the intention of Mr. Barnet in desiring to obtain a durable record of the subjects intended to be illustrated, we cannot but regret the place and manner in which he has sought to perpetuate them.

We consider, in the first place, that they are unsuited in character and design to a building distinguished throughout by much chasteness and excellent execution in other subjects selected for its ornamentation.

These carvings are in high relief, and they consist almost without exception of stiff upright figures. In all pure and good examples, whenever the spandrels of arches are decorated, the subjects are almost invariably in low relief, certainly not more than half relief, and the grouping is generally suggested by the contour of the arch.

Viewed only as fit subjects for the decoration of the Post Office, it is not perhaps a part of our duty to express any opinion as to the success of these carvings as realistic productions; but we cannot refrain from expressing the opinion that they fail to be a true record of the subjects they represent, and that they approach far more to the unnatural and burlesque than they do to the real.

It is only due to a clever sculptor (such as the carving of the key-stones of these arches prove Signor Sani to be) that we should state we consider he could hardly be expected to satisfactorily realize the difficult subjects submitted to him for execution.

We find that no risk to the stability of the structure will attend the removal of the carvings from their present position.

We unanimously recommend that they be cut out, and that blocks of stone be inserted which can be decorated or not as may be thought desirable.

We have, &c.,

HENRY C. DANGAR.

THE Colonial Architect will notice that the Board appointed to report upon the carvings on the Pitt-street front of the General Post Office has recommended their being cut out and blocks of stone inserted in their place. Mr. Barnet will, therefore, take the necessary steps to carry this out, and will first submit a plan or drawing of what he proposes to substitute for the carvings.

No. 23.

The Colonial Architect to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Colonial Architect's Office, Sydney, 13 May, 1884.

Report and other papers herewith.

In acknowledging receipt of your communication of 15th February last, enclosing report of the Board appointed for the purpose, upon carvings of the eastern front of the new General Post Office, in Pitt-street, Sydney, I do myself the honor to submit the following remarks in connection with the same.

2. As requested, I attended a meeting of the Board on 10th January last, when I was informed that evidence would not be taken by a shorthand-writer, as usual in such cases, but that a digest of the proceedings would be published with the report. I offered to furnish a description of the carvings, to accompany the evidence, but as the evidence was not submitted to me for revision, as customary in a case of this kind, I had not the opportunity. I therefore now forward it, together with some memoranda on the question of realistic sculpture and post office carvings generally. While at the meeting I gave a verbal description of the carvings, and answered such questions as were asked in a conversational manner, from which I gathered that the Board was in favour of ideal in opposition to realistic or natural art. When asked if I had any witnesses, I replied "No," not seeing the necessity for them, even if such could be obtained. I was then asked if I had any suggestion to make, to which I replied, "Yes; that these carvings should remain as they were until the building was completed and the scaffolding removed, when photographs could be taken from proper positions of the whole and in detail, and copies sent to Europe for the opinion of competent authorities."

3. The photographs referred to in the report were taken, by direction of the Board, from a stage erected for the purpose, nearly on a level with the carvings, and close to them, within the scaffolding. This was manifestly unfair to the work, the sculptor, and myself, as the carvings were not intended to be seen from such a position, but from the street level, and at varying distances. This, however, was perhaps of little importance, as the Board had indicated adverse opinions previous to the views being placed before them.

4. These carvings, as shown by the papers, are intended to express the uses or purposes to which the building is applied, and to represent some of the leading classes using it. The subjects represented are as follows:—

Telegraphy,
Law, Physics, &c., Agriculture,
Banking,

Literature and the Press,
Commerce and Mining,
Science and Art,
Post Office.

A tender for their execution was obtained from the contractors for the building; Messrs. M'Credie Brothers, which was recommended to and approved of by Mr. Secretary Lackey, in April, 1882. Signor Sani was employed by the contractors to prepare models and carve the works in stone, under my direction and to my satisfaction, in the usual manner.

5. As it was not possible to represent all the subjects selected by ideal, allegorical, sham classic figures, lying in unnatural attitudes, on the backs of the arches, in the usual manner of the old masters,

I adopted the realistic style or natural manner, treating them as if seen through openings of the spandrels, the various figures being represented as at their usual employments, with the necessary accompaniments; and the result, in my opinion, is admirable, both as to decoration and illustrative of the customs and costumes of the present day. The superiority of the bold and dashing stroke of the chisel in work, which is to be seen at a distance, shows the artist's power of producing a masterly effect of life and reality with a few touches, and is evidence of fine handling. I may here mention that the questions of realism and idealism in art have given rise to a great deal of speculation, which is likely to remain unsettled while the world lasts. Both of these styles are adopted in the Post Office carvings, and they have been used side by side from the time of the Parthenon. Realistic art is at the present time largely in vogue throughout Europe, and specially encouraged at South Kensington; moreover, it is easily understood by the people generally, which is particularly the case with the Post Office carvings in question.

6. As to the regret expressed by the Board in its report, respecting the plan and manner in which the idea has been carried out, I think it sufficient to say that the Board admitted to me there was great difference of opinion by the public as to the fitness of these carvings, and their retention or removal, but no mention is made of this fact in the report. It was evident to me from what was said by the Board, on the subject it was appointed to consider, that it was not in favour of the realistic, but of the ideal section, upon which the School of Sculpture is and always will be divided, and that it was guided by precedent. Therefore a Board appointed to decide whether or not these carvings should be retained—a question between the real and ideal in sculpture—whose opinions are all in favour of the ideal, is unfair, not only to the sculptor and myself, as before stated, but to the public also, and its decision cannot be considered to carry weight; my appearance before the Board, under the circumstances stated, would therefore seem to have been a mere matter of form.

7. The Board considers that these carvings are unsuited to the character and design of the building, that is to say, they are unfitted, and not in keeping with the architecture. The style of the architecture is Italian Renaissance, examples of which exhibit details and decorations from Gothic on the one hand, to extreme Classic on the other; and of it is said that it not only admits of but insists on progress, and knows no guide but common sense; it owns no master but true taste, and more than this, it demands thought, and courts originality—therefore realistic decorative carvings are not only fitting, but demanded, to show true progress.

8. The objection that these carvings are in high relief, stiff, &c., and the assertion that all pure and good examples are invariably in low relief, &c., &c., show how unacquainted the Board is with these matters, and how little qualified it is to deal with the subject under consideration, for the contrary is the fact. Spandrel sculpture is invariably in the highest relief; reference need only be made to examples of the old masters in Saint Peter's, Saint Maria Maggiore, and other churches and buildings in Rome; Santa Maria della Salute and other churches, as well as numerous palaces, and especially the Ducal Library, in Venice, with many other examples, in Italian and other cities. I have already said that these figures are realistic and natural in their pose, which could not be if distorted into positions, as suggested by the Board, to suit the contour of the arch.

9. As to the assertion that the figures are not true, unnatural, &c., &c., this proves that natural objects, reproduced by art, are unsatisfactory to the Ideal School, which considers that its function is to improve upon nature, hence the unfairness of accepting the decision of a Board of idealists, in settlement of this question. Of all criticism that of Art is most difficult; and no doubt this was felt when it was proposed to begin the Art Gallery with copies of the old masters, but this was wisely over-ruled, or we should not have the specimens of realism now there. But the Board, as I before stated, admitted that there was great difference of opinion as to these carvings. As a matter of fact, the people understand them, while the ideal would to a certain extent be obscure; moreover the rules of classic ideal art are not applicable to realistic works.

10. With reference to the opinion expressed by the Board upon Signor Sani's ability, and its approval of the ideal heads on the keystones, this opinion also shows the inaptitude of the Board for the task it undertook; finish and beauty of form being considered by it the chief object rather than thought and truth, so admirably displayed by the artist in the adjoining spandrels.

11. In respect to the decision, "we unanimously recommend that they be cut out"—no other outcome of the Board could be expected, considering its onesidedness, and, as shown by the report, its unacquaintance with decorative carvings and inability to understand the subject upon which it voluntarily undertook to report.

12. With regard to the request of the Minister that I should submit a plan of what I propose to substitute for the carvings,—I would state that, by very careful and somewhat costly operations required to prevent damage to the surrounding architecture, it would be possible to remove them; but as to furnishing designs for other works to take their place, I am unable to recommend or submit any that would be better than those now provided; if these are therefore to be removed, I would suggest that the spaces be filled in with plain ashlar. I would, however, at the same time point out that, whatever precautions may be taken, this cannot be done without some injury to the building, as the filling in will never be equal to the original work.

13. In justice to the sculptor and myself especially, there being no reason whatever for haste, as the contract will not be finished for probably another year, I consider that no further steps should be taken in the matter until this portion of the building is completed and the scaffolding removed; then photographs taken of the whole of the building, showing the value of the carvings as decorative works, and their general effect in the architectural composition, and in detail for their artistic and representative character. Copies of such views to be submitted for the opinion of the best authorities on modern decorative carving in England, Paris, Milan, and Rome; for I maintain that it is doubtful whether competent and independent opinions on works of this kind can be obtained in the Colonies. This I think I have in all fairness a just right to expect, considering the position I hold, and the works I have carried out in the Colony,—also that my opinion on the matter in dispute is, I may confidently say, of more value and weight than that of the gentlemen forming the Board.

In conclusion, I must state that it is to be regretted I was not allowed to reply to this report before it was submitted to the Cabinet.

I have, &c.,
 JAMES BARNET,
 Colonial Architect.

Agriculture and Pastoral Pursuits.—Agriculture is represented by a ploughman with his plough. The day being nearly over, as shown by the setting sun, he has relaxed work for a few minutes, while with much eagerness he reads a letter. In the lower part of the spandrel is a little girl with flowers. Pastoral pursuits are illustrated by a shearer at work, and by the introduction of cattle and sheep.

Science and Art.—Science is represented by an astronomer, who having taken an observation, marks a position on the globe, at the same time pointing to Sydney, shown on a chart, and, in the lower part of the spandrel, by a little boy with a telephone to his ear, listening with astonishment to the sounds produced by this recent application of science. Art is illustrated by a young architect, making a drawing of a building, seen in the distance, intended for the reception of fine arts. A statue is also shown.

No. 4.—Banking, Post Office business.

Banking is illustrated by a Bank clerk paying money over a counter to a young woman who is presenting a draft. In the lower corner of the spandrel is a little boy with money in a bag, and crying because he has lost some of it while bringing it to the Bank.

Post Office business.—This is represented by a letter-carrier, heavily laden, as on a mail day, giving to a young woman a letter, which she gladly receives. Below is a little girl reading a letter.

REALISTIC, GENRE, OR NATURALISTIC SCULPTURE.

My idea is to revive the natural style of sculpture practised (before the introduction of the pseudo-classical taste of the 15th century by the Medici) by such sculptors as Lucca della Robbia, Ghiberti, Danatello, and others. It is the sentiment of Art that first attracts and fixes the attention of intelligent people, long before the form in which it is presented becomes the object of critical examination,—a fact constantly proved by the fascinating power of some of the productions of this School.

This idea of revival is not new, for it is found expressed about fifty years ago in England, in Pugin's and Britton's "Public Buildings of London," vol. i, p. 25, second edition. When speaking of the sculpture in Saint Paul's Cathedral it is said,—

In the monuments already erected there is so much sacrifice of propriety that a word or two on the subject may be excused. Not to notice naked admirals and post captains, with little bits of drapery falling from their shoulders to mask their nudity, no fewer than twenty-one of the monuments display women with wings growing on their shoulders. These personages are facetiously enough denominated Victories; or if these be wanting, the hero commemorated is assisted by some god or other. Hercules and Neptune seem to be held in most repute, and their godships, if they are ever inclined to pay a visit to our sculptors' studi, are not likely to meet the same reception that Mercury in the fable encountered. * * * *

The costume of the age in monumental sculpture is of the utmost importance: first, because neither the act of the person, if the subject be historical, nor the identity of the person himself, if it be merely monumental, can be recorded without an observance of it; and secondly, because the preservation of it to the future historian and antiquarian is of the highest value.

The late John Henry Chamberlain, the personal friend of Ruskin, and Sir Frederick Leighton, who was regarded as an almost infallible authority on Art, in his last lecture on Art, on 22nd October last, the day on which he died, said,—

To the musician, the beauty of this world was shown through music; to the artist, it was shown on his canvas; to the architect it ought to be shown on the stone with which he had to deal, and the bricks which he might mould into the forms in which he willed them to appear; and the sculptor, instead of his art being dead, ought to be able to take up our common and ordinary life, and show us not only its variety, but also its grandeur, nobility, and poetry.

Extract from lecture given by Professor Gosse, at the Birmingham and Midland Institute, on "The Public and Private Uses of Sculpture":—

It had sometimes struck him, too, that the memory of actions rather than of faces ought to be perpetuated; nor did he see why monuments should be reserved for eminent persons, for his belief was that sculpture in England had been bound up too largely in two conventional classes—the portrait statue and the classic subject. The Greek sculptor merely noted what he saw every day of his life. It seemed to him that it would be a very interesting and graceful thing if Birmingham's reliance on the hardware manufacture for much of her prosperity could be indicated to future generations by sculpture. He would like to see, somewhere in the centre of the town, a bronze statue, executed by the very best artist, of a welder with a gun-barrel in his hands; or of a caster in the brass foundry, ready to pour the metal into the mould: a true Warwickshire man, in his shirt-sleeves and apron.

Post Office Carvings.

HAVING read and carefully considered the report of the Board appointed to examine, consider, and report upon the carvings on the eastern front of the new General Post Office, and the Colonial Architect's letter of the 13th May last, commenting thereon, I am of opinion that the immediate removal of these carvings (outré and grotesque though they undoubtedly appear to me to be) will be impolitic, and will unnecessarily offend a meritorious public officer, who has placed the Colony under no small obligation, by designing and erecting such exceptionally beautiful façades to all our recent public buildings, as not only harmonize with the naturally beautiful site of our capital city, but command the admiration of all visitors to our shores.

It is not at all surprising that the decoration of such a building as the General Post Office with designs, in which the figures, in addition to being intensely realistic are executed in more than high relief, should shock the sensibilities of gentlemen accustomed to the contemplation of chaste and classical models of a very different character, especially as it is clear that the objectionable figures, however honestly designed, appear to them little better than burlesques on what they were intended to represent.

I do not understand that the objections of the Board apply so much to the fact that the figures are realistic, as that they are little better than a parody on the dress and customs of the present day, carried out in unquestionably bad taste.

It is neither necessary nor advisable for me to consider the question whether the gentlemen constituting the Board or Mr. Barnet are right; but it is apparent to me, as it must be to every one, that when the building is finished and the scaffolding removed, the designs will have a different appearance from that which they now present, and I shall therefore be glad if the recommendations contained in Mr. Barnet's letter can be adopted.

I am the more strengthened in my belief that it will be right to concede this much to Mr. Barnet, because many persons, including gentlemen of unquestionable good taste, have expressed to me their hope that no hasty action will be taken in carrying out the recommendations of the Board, and not a few of these persons agree entirely with Mr. Barnet as to the appropriateness of these decorations, and earnestly deprecate their removal.

No harm can result from delay, because it will be quite as easy a year or two hence as at present to carry out the recommendations of the Board, and the adoption of Mr. Barnet's suggestions will remove all cause for offence or irritation on his part; while on the other hand, if the designs should ultimately be approved, the Colony will be spared the expense of destroying work which has cost more than a nominal amount, and of substituting something else which will entail an additional expenditure, and may even then give further cause of offence.

F. W. MEADER.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 22 October, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That your Petitioner held the position of Postman in the town of Dubbo for the term of two years and two months, during which time I well and faithfully performed the duties of that position. On the 13th July last I was arrested on the charge of stealing a letter, the property of the Postmaster-General; on the 17th of the same month I was committed; on the 26th of July I was dismissed from the Service of the Postal Department; on the 11th August I received notice from the Attorney-General that no bill would be filed against me. Feeling the injustice of the proceedings, your Petitioner sent to the Postmaster-General on the 13th August, a petition, signed by nearly 100 residents and business people of Dubbo, requesting to be reinstated. To this petition a reply was received, stating it would not be to the benefit of the residents of Dubbo to reinstate your Petitioner. I respectfully pray your Honorable House to take into your favourable consideration my case.

I submit that there is not any evidence to warrant the conclusion that I in any way interfered or tampered with a letter or letters, and the action of the Attorney-General in refusing to file a bill sustains me in this contention. By this unjust action I have been thrown out of employment, a black stain placed upon my character, and my wife and family left without the means of livelihood.

The residents of Dubbo, on October 7th, in public meeting assembled, presided over by the Mayor, expressed it as their opinion, from the information which has been afforded to the public, respecting my discharge from the Postal Department, owing to a suspicion attaching to me by reason of the late committal on a charge of intercepting a letter, that means should be taken by the inhabitants of Dubbo to have the case represented in the House of Assembly, with a view to my reinstatement.

This will show your Honorable House that I am not the depraved lost character the Department have made out. And I respectfully submit that a full inquiry will clearly establish my entire innocence.

I therefore respectfully and humbly pray your Honorable House to take my case into your most favourable consideration, with the view of granting me such relief as the circumstances of my case warrant.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

F. WILLIAM MEADER.

In such case the despatching office will have to pay, in addition to the sea transit rates specified in Article I above, the cost of the further conveyance, which shall be determined by the intermediary office as far as possible in accordance with the rules of the Universal Postal Union.

The Postal Union rules shall also be applicable to the settlement of the cost of the French land transit of the mails sent from England to Australia, New Zealand, and Tasmania, and vice versâ, by means of French Packets.

As to mails from or for the same British Colonies carried by the service known as the Indian Mail Service, their conveyance through France will continue to be governed by the special conditions now in force.

ARTICLE

ARTICLE III.

There may be exchanged between France and the French Colonies of the one part, and the British Colonies of Australia, New Zealand, and Tasmania, of the other part :

Ordinary letters prepaid to destination or unpaid, according to the wish of the senders ;

Commercial papers, trade patterns without value, and printed papers of all kinds, prepaid to destination. Such articles shall not be forwarded unless prepaid at least in part.

The postage payable on the correspondence in question shall be levied in accordance with the Table A. annexed to the present Agreement.

On correspondence prepaid in accordance with this tariff, no postage can be levied from the addressees.

Unpaid letters shall be charged on delivery with double the postage at the prepaid rate.

Insufficiently prepaid correspondence of all kinds shall be charged with double the deficient postage.

ARTICLE IV.

No special condition as to the shape or method of closing is prescribed for registered articles.

Registered articles must be clearly marked by the despatching office with a special stamp or mark.

The corresponding Administrations shall notify to each other the registration fee which they adopt, and shall furnish specimens of the impression of the special stamp applicable in their service to registered articles.

ARTICLE V.

Prepayment of postage on all descriptions of correspondence can only be effected by means of postage stamps valid in the country of origin.

Each Administration shall bear the whole cost of the intermediary conveyance of the correspondence which it shall hand over to another Administration, and shall keep entirely the postage which it collects on despatch, for prepaid correspondence, and on arrival, for unpaid and insufficiently prepaid correspondence.

ARTICLE VI.

The present agreement shall come into force on the 1st of May 1883, and shall abrogate from that date all earlier stipulations which are contrary to it, especially the additional articles signed at London on the 3rd and at Paris on the 6th of January 1862.

It shall remain binding until one of the parties interested shall have announced to the other, six months in advance, its intention to terminate it.

Nevertheless, the adhesion of one of the Colonial Governments of Australia, New Zealand, or Tasmania to the Convention of the Universal Postal Union shall entail, as a matter of course, the abrogation of the regulations of the said Agreement as regards the mails to or from that Colony, from the time of its entry into the Union.

Done in duplicate, and signed at Paris, the 26th of April 1883, and at London the 30th of April 1883.

The Postmaster-General of the United Kingdom.

HENRY FAWCETT. (L.S.)

ARTICLE III.

Il pourra être échangé entre la France et les Colonies françaises, d'une part, et les Colonies britanniques d'Australie, de la Nouvelle Zélande et de la Tasmanie, d'autre part :

Des lettres ordinaires affranchies jusqu'à destination ou non affranchies au gré des expéditeurs ;

Des papiers de commerce ou d'affaires, des échantillons de marchandises sans valeur, et des imprimés de toute nature affranchis jusqu'à destination. Il ne sera pas donné cours aux objets de l'espèce qui ne seraient pas affranchis au moins partiellement.

Les taxes applicables aux correspondances dont il s'agit seront perçues conformément au tableau A. annexé au présent Arrangement.

Les correspondances affranchies d'après ce tarif ne pourront être grevées d'aucune taxe à la charge des destinataires.

Les lettres non affranchies seront taxées à destination au double du prix d'affranchissement.

Les correspondances de toute nature, insuffisamment affranchies seront taxées au double de l'insuffisance d'affranchissement.

ARTICLE IV.

Les correspondances de toute nature pourront être expédiées sous recommandation moyennant payement par l'expéditeur, en plus de la taxe d'affranchissement applicable à une correspondance ordinaire de même nature et du même poids, d'un droit fixe de recommandation que chaque Administration aura la faculté de déterminer à son gré.

Aucune condition spéciale de fermeture ou de forme n'est prescrite pour les objets recommandés.

Les objets recommandés devront être frappés d'une manière apparente, par l'office expéditeur, d'un timbre ou signe spécial.

Les Administrations correspondantes se notifieront réciproquement le droit de recommandation qu'elles auront adopté et l'empreinte du timbre spécial qui sera appliqué dans leur service sur les objets recommandés.

ARTICLE V.

L'affranchissement des correspondances de toute nature ne pourra être opéré qu'au moyen de timbres-poste valables dans le Pays d'origine.

Chaque Administration supportera tous les frais de transport intermédiaire des correspondances qu'elle livrera à l'autre Administration et gardera en entier les taxes perçues dans son service, au départ, sur les correspondances affranchies et, à l'arrivée, sur les correspondances non affranchies ou insuffisamment affranchies.

ARTICLE VI.

Le présent arrangement entrera en vigueur le 1^{er} Mai 1883 et abrogera, à partir de cette date, toutes les stipulations antérieures qui lui sont contraires et notamment les articles additionnels signés à Londres le 3 et à Paris le 6 Janvier 1862.

Il demeurera obligatoire jusqu'à ce que l'une des parties intéressées ait annoncé à l'autre, mais six mois à l'avance, son intention d'en faire cesser les effets.

Toutefois, l'adhésion d'une des Colonies d'Australie, de la Nouvelle Zélande ou de la Tasmanie à la Convention de l'Union Postale universelle entraînerait de plein droit l'abrogation des dispositions du dit Arrangement, en ce qui concerne les envois à destination ou provenant de cette Colonie, à partir de son entrée dans l'Union.

Fait en double original, et signé à Paris le 26 Avril 1883, et à Londres le 30 Avril 1883.

Le Ministre des Postes et des Télégraphes de France.

(MESSAGE No. 89.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 3 September, 1884.

AUGUSTUS LOFTUS,
Governor.

Message No. 89.

In accordance with the provisions contained in the 54th section of the Constitution Act, the Governor recommends for the consideration of the Legislative Assembly the expediency of making provision to meet the requisite expenses in connection with a Bill to authorize the resumption of certain portions of land situate between George and Pitt Streets, in the City of Sydney, for improving the approaches to the General Post Office, for the disposal of the residue of such land after such improvement, and for other purposes in connection therewith.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

GENERAL POST OFFICE (APPROACHES IMPROVEMENT) BILL.

(PETITION AGAINST—THOMAS HOLT, BY HIS ATTORNEY, F. S. E. HOLT.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 27 August, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of Thomas Holt, lately of Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales (but now resident in England), Esq.,—

SHOWETH AS FOLLOWS :—

1. A Bill “to authorize the resumption of certain portions of land, situate between George and Pitt Streets, in the City of Sydney, for improving the approaches to the General Post Office and for other purposes in connection therewith,” has been introduced into, and is now under the consideration of, your Honorable House.

2. The preamble to the Bill recites that “the present approaches to the General Post Office are insufficient and inconvenient, and for remedy thereof it is expedient to authorize the resumption of certain portions of land lying between George and Pitt Streets northward of the said Post Office, as well as for the purpose of forming between the said streets and Post Office a street, or place, to be known as Post Office Place. And it is also expedient to provide for the erection of buildings of a superior and special class on such portion of the lands so to be resumed as may not be required for the formation of the said street, and to make such further provision in connection with the said purpose as is hereinafter contained.” The second section of the Bill resumes the lands described in schedules A, B, C, D, and the fifth section provides (so far as it is material to state the same) as follows :—

“The lands resumed under the authority of this Act shall be used and applied for the purposes following, that is to say :—

- (1.) A public thoroughfare in enlargement of the present one shall be formed between George and Pitt Streets, and of such width as may be determined by the Governor. Such thoroughfare shall be known as ‘Post Office Place.’ * * * *
- (2.) The residue of the said lands remaining after the formation of ‘Post Office Place’ shall be sold or leased by public auction, at such times, for such prices, and subject to such terms, conditions, covenants, and provisions, for buildings (temporary or perpetual), and for the occupation thereof, as the Governor may determine.” * * * *

Schedules C and D of the Bill comprise very valuable property, being the freehold of your Petitioner, and having together a total frontage to Pitt-street of 117 feet 6 inches, or thereabouts.

3. The principle which should govern the acquisition by the Government of the land of private owners for public purposes was thoroughly discussed when the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act (44 Vic. No. 16) was before Parliament, and was finally settled by and embodied in that measure. The principle in question was that the Government should resume no more private land than they had reasonable ground for believing would be actually and physically requisite for the public work for the purposes of which it was resumed.

4. The Bill now before your Honorable House departs widely from the principle of the said Act, by proposing to enable the Government to resume, not merely the land physically requisite for the formation of Post Office Place, but also a considerable area of your Petitioner’s land not so requisite, but by trafficking in which it is hoped that the Government will be enabled to defray in whole or in part the cost of their improvement scheme.

5. Your Petitioner has not raised, and does not seek to raise, any opposition to the resumption of so much of his property as may be actually and physically required for legitimate public purposes.

6. Your Petitioner submits, however, that the principle involved in the Bill is vicious, as legalizing an unnecessary, and therefore a wanton, invasion of the rights of private proerty. Your Petitioner further submits that the principle involved is dangerous; for if the Bill become law, and be followed as a precedent on the occasions of future Resumption Acts, the Government will be in a position to make themselves the largest holders of city property, and to traffic therein for all time.

Your Petitioner, therefore, most humbly prays that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands, and that your Petitioner may be heard by counsel against such of the clauses and provisions of the Bill as affect his rights, interests, or property by the application of the principle hereinbefore lastly referred to, and in support of the insertion in the Bill in case the same shall pass into law of such other clauses and provisions as may be requisite for the protection of your Petitioner, or that your Honorable House will be pleased to grant your Petitioner such further or other relief in the premises as to your Honorable House shall seem meet.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

THOMAS HOLT,

By his Attorney, F. S. ELLIS HOLT.

(PETITION AGAINST—CLARISSA AND HENRY A. PERKINS.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 September, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of Clarissa Perkins and Henry Australia Perkins, as Executors and Legatees under the Will of the late Thomas Perkins, deceased, of Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales,—

SHOWETH AS FOLLOWS :—

1. A Bill “to authorize the resumption of certain portions of land situate between George and Pitt Streets in the City of Sydney for improving the approaches to the General Post Office and for other purposes in connection therewith,” has been introduced into, and is now under the consideration of, your Honorable House.

2. The preamble to the Bill recites that “the present approaches to the General Post Office are insufficient and inconvenient and for remedy thereof it is expedient to authorize the resumption of certain portions of land lying between George and Pitt Streets northward of the said Post Office as well as for the purpose of forming between the said streets and Post Office a street or place to be known as Post Office Place And it is also expedient to provide for the erection of buildings of a superior and special class on such portion of the lands so to be resumed as may not be required for the formation of the said street and to make such further provision in connection with the said purposes as is hereinafter contained.” The second section of the Bill resumes the lands described in Schedules A, B, C, D, and the fifth section (so far as it is material to state the same) as follows :—

“The lands resumed under the authority of this Act shall be used and applied for the purposes following that is to say :—

“(1.) A public thoroughfare in enlargement of the present one shall be formed between George and Pitt Streets and of such width as may be determined by the Governor Such thoroughfare shall be known as ‘Post Office Place.’ * * * *

“(2.) The residue of the said lands remaining after the formation of ‘Post Office Place’ shall be sold or leased by public auction at such times for such prices and subject to such terms conditions covenants and provisions for buildings (temporary or perpetual) and for the occupation thereof as the Governor may determine.” * * * *

Schedule B of the Bill comprises very valuable property, being the freehold of your Petitioners, and having together a total frontage to George-street of 66 feet, or thereabouts. Your Petitioners also possess a right of way through the property of Thomas Holt mentioned in Schedules C and D.

3. The principle which should govern the acquisition by the Government of the land of private owners for public purposes was thoroughly discussed when the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act (44 Vic. No. 16) was before Parliament, and was finally settled by and embodied in that measure. The principle in question was that the Government should resume no more private land than they had reasonable ground for believing would be actually and physically requisite for the public work for the purposes of which it was resumed.

4. The Bill now before your Honorable House departs widely from the principle of the said Act, by proposing to enable the Government to resume not merely the land physically requisite for the formation of Post Office Place, but also a considerable portion of your Petitioners’ land not so requisite, but by trafficking in which it is hoped that the Government will be enabled to defray in whole or in part the cost of their improvement scheme.

5. Your Petitioners do not raise, or seek to raise, any opposition to the resumption of so much of your Petitioners’ property as may be actually requisite for legitimate public purposes.

6. Your Petitioners respectfully submit that the principle of taking from them their property and disposing of it to others is vicious, as legalizing an unnecessary and therefore a wanton invasion of the rights of private property. Your Petitioners further submit that the principle involved is dangerous.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

 NEW SOUTH WALES.

GENERAL POST OFFICE (APPROACHES IMPROVEMENT) BILL.
 (PETITION AGAINST—W. H. PALING.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 October, 1884.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of William Henry Paling, lately of Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales (but now beyond the seas), merchant,—

SHOWETH AS FOLLOWS:—

1. Your Petitioner having heard that a Bill is before your Honorable House to authorize the resumption of certain lands lying between George and Pitt Streets, northward of the Post Office, for the purpose of improving the approaches thereto, and that his freehold property, having a frontage of 50 feet to George-street, is included in the land intended to be so resumed, begs respectfully to submit the following reasons against the resumption of his property:—

- a.* Your Petitioner's property is not required for the formation of the new street, it being 128 feet distant from the Post Office; so that, after allowing the great width of 100 feet for the street, a strip of land 28 feet wide would still remain between his property and the said street, thus preventing him from deriving any benefit from the new frontage.
- b.* Your Petitioner requires his premises in which to conduct the business of his company (and to whom a portion of the property is leased for seven years), as no other site so centrally situated and so well adapted to the business of the company is available, and consequently a great loss and hardship to the company would result if the property be resumed by the Government.
- c.* Your Petitioner respectfully submits that the acquisition by the Government of more land than is required for legitimate public purposes with the object of re-selling is dangerous, and contrary to the principles of "The Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act" (44 Vic.
 No. 16).

2. Your Petitioner also submits that when his property was sold to the Government, on November 2nd, 1883, it was for the purpose of facilitating his financial transactions; but as he had to make other arrangements on account of the delay of the Government in completing, your Petitioner cancelled the sale on September 4th, as he was entitled to do, and now desires to be left in the enjoyment of his investment, particularly for the reasons mentioned in clause b; and, in conclusion, your Petitioner humbly prays that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands.

RESUMPTION OF LAND IN GEORGE AND PITT STREETS.

No. 1.

Minute of Commissioner.

Tramway to the Parramatta-street Bridge from the northern part of the city, and connecting the eastern with the western system.

REFERRING to the representations that have been made as to the probable obstruction to business if the tramway described in the Schedule to the Tramway Act as "a line to commence in York-street at Charlotte-place then passing along York-street through Druitt-street along George-street across the Railway Bridge and along Parramatta-street and terminating at the Glebe" be carried out so far as regards the first portion of the route as far as the Parramatta-street Bridge, I have the honor to state that surveys have been made to see if this route could not with advantage be deviated.

Consideration has at the same time been given to the question of the desirability of connecting the eastern with the western system of tramways, and especially to the necessity of extending beyond the present terminus in Elizabeth-street the existing tramway lines so as to relieve that street of the inconvenience of its being devoted to shunting operations.

I have the honor to submit a plan showing the route of tramway to meet the case as above set forth.

The line which now terminates at Hunter-street, in Elizabeth-street, will be taken either across Hunter-street to Phillip-street, through private property, or making use, for the purpose of curving into Hunter-street from Elizabeth-street, of the corner allotment upon which the Sir Maurice O'Connell Inn is erected, will be taken by Hunter-street into Phillip-street as far as Bridge-street, where it will cross Government land at the rear of the Treasury into Macquarie-street, thence by that street to the Circular Quay, and by the Circular Quay to Lower George-street, thence to Dawes Point, and from Dawes Point in a line with Fort-street and Argyle-place to Kent-street; thence by Kent-street to Liverpool-street, at which street a short cut through a private allotment will be made into Sussex-street, and along that thoroughfare into Hay-street; thence through an intervening piece of land into Ultimo-street and on to Quay-street, and by that street, which will be opened up for the purpose, to the Railway Bridge (Parramatta-street); and thence, as provided in the route mentioned in the Schedule to the Act, to the Glebe.

The line should be made a double one throughout, to admit of the proper conduct of the traffic.

CHAS. A. G.,

No. 2.

Executive Minute.

Department of Public Works, 4 August, 1881.

THE Secretary for Public Works submits, for the approval of His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, a scheme to deviate from the proposed extension of the tramway, and that in lieu of the line via York and George Streets, to construct one by Kent and other streets to the Parramatta-street Bridge.

It is also proposed that the eastern system of tramway lines which terminate at Hunter-street shall be extended along Phillip-street to Circular Quay, and thence by the quay to Fort-street, to connect with the western tramway system as shown on the plan herewith.

JOHN LACKEY.

The Executive Council advise that authority be granted to deviate from the proposed tramway scheme in the manner herein recommended and as shown on plan herewith submitted.

A. C. BUDGE,
Clerk of the Council.

Approved.—A.L., 9/8/81.

Minute of Commissioner.

The first question for settlement will be the route from Elizabeth into Phillip-street. I am nearly certain that the better course will be to resume the land upon which the Sir Maurice O'Connell Hotel is erected, perhaps also a portion of Gibson's yard, which would make a good tramway station; besides, Mr. Cowdery will please prepare plans of the lands required to be taken throughout the route, in order that the required notices may be served by the land-valuer and the compensation to be paid fixed.—CHAS. A. G., 18/8/81.

Land required for extension of tramway to Circular Quay.

I FORWARD herewith the undermentioned tracings in connection with the extension of tramway to Circular Quay, &c. :—No. 1, showing land required to be taken; No. 2, showing proposed deviation of street and subdivision of land.

GEORGE COWDERY.

Seen.

The Town Clerk to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Town Clerk's Office, Sydney, 12 May, 1882.

With reference to your letter of the 2nd instant, submitting for the approval of the City Council a proposal for the taking of the land now forming the approach from the Circular Quay to George-street for tramway purposes, and substituting therefor a street 1 chain in width, through Messrs. Bird & Mitchell's stores into George-street, I have the honor, by direction of the Right Worshipful the Mayor, to state that proposal has received the sanction of the Finance Committee, and will be submitted for ratification by the Council on Tuesday, the 16th inst.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. H. WOOLCOTT,

Town Clerk.

Seen.—CHAS. A. G., 16/5/82. The original estimate of claims was £154,485 16s. 8d. The claims that have been received amount to £99,720; two large claims have yet to come in, but the land-valuer believes that there will be a saving in the estimate. The resale of the land not required will realize £173,350 on the lowest computation, but probably £200,000 will be obtained. The plans show present and future arrangement of street. We shall enter Macquarie-street just below the Treasury buildings. If the stone wall and iron railing which separate the street from the Governor's Domain could be curved back about 50 ft., sufficient to clear the trees, the tramway could be run inside the line of trees, and in this way remove all fear of interference with the wool traffic at the stores.—CHAS. A. G., 8/6/82.

The Minister will further consider this matter. In the meantime he directs that the tram terminus be made in the piece of ground adjoining the Treasury, and the Engineer may put in as many sidings as are required to meet the exigencies of the traffic.—CHAS. A. G., 8/6/82.

Mr. Cowdery informed, 8/6/82.—C.A.G.

No. 5.

Messrs. Flood & Co. to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Circular Quay, Cosmopolitan Wharf, Blackwall Stores, Sydney, 16 May, 1882.

We have the honor to call your attention to the great inconvenience that will arise to all connected with shipping matters should the present proposed scheme of tramway route be carried out, viz., along Macquarie-street North, and thence along the Circular Quay.

In the first place, it will block all means of egress to the various stevedores' stores in Macquarie-street, and also prove an obstruction in the way of getting wool out for shipment, as we doubt if men will work trucking out wool when the tramway is running along the quay. We would point out to you that, as near as we can estimate, about one hundred and forty thousand (140,000) bales passed over the quay up to the present time this season, which wool was simply brought to the stores adjacent by the fact that the stevedores' stores are situated contiguous to the Circular Quay. Both the wharfage derived from the export of wool and the tonnage dues paid by the vessels loading and discharging prove a large source of revenue to the Government; and as the proposed tramway scheme is not in any way to assist in the bringing of wool down or the taking away of the cargoes, but simply a passenger route, we fear if it is carried out it will be impossible for us to carry on our business, which must cause a block in the export of our chief staple, and also prove a serious loss to the revenue.

Trusting this matter will have the serious consideration of your colleagues before the proposed line is carried out,—

We have, &c.,

FLOOD & CO.

Minute of Colonial Treasurer.

The Secretary for Public Works.—J.W., 18/5/82.

I think the fears of the writers have exaggerated the probable obstruction which the tramway will offer to the conduct of business. I anticipate little or no obstruction. Will Mr. Cowdery let me see plan.—CHAS. A. G., 25/5/82. Mr. Hyndman, for plan.—G.C., per G.L., 1/6/82. The plan has been laid before the Commissioner.—R.A.H., 9/6/82. Engineer for Existing Lines. I have shown the plan to the Commissioner.—G.C., per G.L., 12/6/82. Commissioner. Seen.—CHAS. A. G., 14/6/82.

Messrs. Flood & Co. to The Commissioner for Railways.

Dear Sir,

Blackwall Stores, Sydney, 18 May, 1882.

We beg to call your attention to our favour of 10th instant, and would like to see you in our neighbourhood if you can spare the time, when we think we would be able to convince you of the great inconvenience that will arise to your Department in bringing the tram-line down Macquarie-street and along the Circular Quay. We will be deterred from getting wool in on the Macquarie-street side and out on the Circular Quay side. Will you kindly give this matter your consideration.

We are, &c.,

FLOOD & CO.

The Commissioner for Railways to Messrs. Flood & Co.

Gentlemen,

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 1 June, 1882.

With reference to your letter of the 18th ultimo, addressed to the Honorable the Minister for Public Works, drawing attention to the great inconvenience which you allege is likely to arise through the construction of the tramway line in Macquarie-street North, more particularly in respect to the wool traffic in in that street, I have the honor, by direction of Mr. Secretary Lackey, to inform you that the route by way of Macquarie-street is the only practicable one, but arrangements will be made for the line to be constructed as near to the footpath on the Domain side as possible.

I have, &c.,
D. VERNON,
(Pro Commissioner for Railways).

No. 6.

The Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Referring to my letter of 11th instant,* asking if you will be good enough to inform the Chamber what route is to be taken in extending the tramway from Elizabeth-street to Circular Quay, I have, at the request of the Committee, again to ask for the information, as it has been stated that great inconvenience will arise to shippers of wool if the line is carried through Macquarie-street North. *Every search has been made but this letter cannot now be found.

The subject having been brought before the Chamber, the Committee are desirous of obtaining the information asked for before taking further action in the matter.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. H. HAYES,
Secretary.

Mr. Cowdery, B.C., 26/5/82.—G.B. Previous papers on this subject were returned to Commissioner, 26/5/82.—G.C., per G.L., 1/6/82. Commr. Inform Mr. Hayes that I have been unable to reply to his letter, as the route to be adopted is still under consideration.—CHAS. A. G., 12/6/82.

The Commissioner for Railways to The Secretary, Chamber of Commerce.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 13 June, 1882.
With reference to your letter of the 23rd ultimo, requesting that you may be furnished with the information asked for in your letter of the 11th May, respecting the route which is intended to be taken in extending the tramway from Elizabeth-street to the Circular Quay, I have the honor to inform you that I have been unable to reply to your letter, as the route to be adopted is still under consideration.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. A. GOODCHAP,
Commissioner for Railways.

No. 7.

The Town Clerk to The Commissioner for Railways.

Town Clerk's Office, Sydney, 15 June, 1882.
I have the honor, by direction of the Right Worshipful the Mayor, to inquire whether it is still intended to carry the line of tramway from the Circular Quay into George-street in the manner shown on the tracing submitted by your letter of the 2nd ultimo, as it has been represented to the City Council that the proposed route had been abandoned.

I have, &c.,
CHAS. H. WOOLCOTT,
Town Clerk.

Acknowledge receipt, and say, when the final decision is arrived at it will be communicated to them.—CHAS. A. G., 21/6/82.

The Commissioner for Railways to The Town Clerk.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 23 June, 1882.
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th instant, relative to the extension of the tramway line from the Circular Quay into George-street, and have to inform you that when a final decision has been arrived at it will be duly communicated to the Council.

I have, &c.,
CH. A. GOODCHAP,
Commissioner for Railways.

No. 8.

His Excellency the Governor to The Hon. Sir John Robertson, K.C.M.G.

Dear Sir John,

Government House, Sydney, 15 June, 1882.
I have been indirectly informed that some difficulties present themselves to carrying the tramway to Circular Quay, owing in great part to the narrowness of the street below the Treasury, and that it would greatly facilitate the operation if the railing now separating the grounds of Government House could be moved back some 30 or 40 feet, crossing the street below the Treasury and re-entering the street at the corner of certain stores. Being desirous of contributing in any way to carrying out any plan which concerns the wishes and convenience of the public, I take the initiative in stating that, should the strip of Government House grounds, not exceeding 30 or 40 feet in breadth, be required, I shall be ready to assent to it on certain conditions, which can be agreed upon when the decision is taken.

Believe me yours truly,
AUGUSTUS LOFTUS.

Land-valuer, forwarding statement of amounts claimed by owner.

Circular Quay Tramway.

FROM verbal instructions received from the Commissioner for Railways, the land-valuers submitted, on the 2nd May, 1882, a statement of the probable cost of certain lands and buildings near the Circular Quay proposed to be resumed for tramway purposes. The approximate cost of properties taken was estimated at £154,485 16s. 8d., and the amount to be recouped by the sale of surplus land at £173,350.

This statement was submitted to the Honorable the Minister for Works, who, on the 5th of May last, requested that notices should be served at once upon the various owners. Accordingly, on the 6/5/82 notices were duly served, with the following results:—

No. 10.

Engineer for Existing Lines, submitting an amended proposal for getting round the Circular Quay.

Two tracings herewith, one showing land required to be resumed, and the other showing disposition of land with proposed diversion of Queen-street. It is necessary to take this property to join East and West Sydney with a tramway, as it is found impossible to get up Queen-street. The object of running the tramway round the city is that it turns the trains round without shunting; no terminus is required; half the trains are sent each way, so that passengers may go in either direction to any part of the city where the train runs, which will very much increase the usefulness of the lines. The Governor's offer to give a promenade inside his Domain is not of very much use, as the trees will prevent the lines being taken further over than the kerb, and then the trees will require to be lopped closer than they are now. There is another way of getting round the Circular Quay, viz., by turning short round from the present terminus through the vacant piece of ground south of Richardson & Wrench's wool store, on to the quay, north of Bridge's wool store, from which place it can be elevated round the Circular Quay, across the foot of Queen-street, through between the Government Stores, across Argyle-street, through some private property to the Mariners Church, where it would join George-street at the level of the roadway.

Précis of Case by Commissioner.

Re Tramway Extension to connect eastern with western system, and land taken at Circular Quay.

IN the Tramway Act assented to on the 28th April, 1880, provision was made for a line along York-street (commencing at Charlotte-place) to Druitt-street, from Druitt-street to George-street, then along George-street and Parramatta-street, and terminating at the Glebe.

The residents of the Glebe were very anxious for the completion of their line, and by meetings and deputations urged its early construction. Surveys were made, and in April, 1881, the Minister decided that tenders were to be at once invited for the work. The business people of York-street, however, objected to the route, alleging that the running of the tram through York-street would materially interfere with their business. Consideration was then given to the question of seeing whether this route could not with advantage be deviated. In a minute in reference to the matter, the Commissioner, on the 23rd July, 1881, wrote—“In considering this subject, attention had been given at the same time to the question of the desirability of connecting the eastern with the western system of tramways, and especially to the necessity of extending beyond their present terminus in Elizabeth-street the existing tramway lines, so as to relieve that street of the inconvenience of its being devoted to shunting operations. The Commissioner then submitted a plan, as follows:—The line which now terminates at Hunter-street in Elizabeth-street will be taken either across Hunter-street to Phillip-street through private property, or making use, for the purpose of curving into Hunter-street from Elizabeth-street, of the corner allotment upon which the Sir Maurice O’Connell Inn is erected, will be taken by Hunter-street into Phillip street as far as Bridge-street, where it will cross Government land at the rear of the Treasury into Macquarie-street, thence by that street to the Circular Quay, and by the Circular Quay to Lower George-street, thence to Dawes Point, and from Dawes Point in a line with Fort-street and Argyle-place to Kent-street, thence by Kent-street to Liverpool-street, at which street a short cut through a private allotment will be made into Sussex-street, and along that thoroughfare into Hay-street, thence through an intervening piece of land into Ultimo-street and on to Quay-street, and by that street, which will be opened up for the purpose, to the Railway Bridge (Parramatta-street), and thence, as provided in the route mentioned in the Schedule to the Act, to the Glebe. The line should be made a double one throughout, for the proper conduct of the traffic.”

This proposal was submitted to the Governor and Executive Council on the 4th August, and approved of.

Plans were then got out showing the land required to admit of the line being taken from the Circular Quay into George-street. This was proposed to be effected by taking sufficient land to form a new street and to close Queen-street, the balance of land not required to be re-sold with frontages to the new street. The cost of land, &c., to be taken, was estimated by the valuers at £154,486, and the amount to be obtained by re-sale of frontages at £173,350, showing a gain upon the transaction of £18,864, besides giving a better street than the existing outlet from Circular Quay, and affording a better approach to the quay from George-street.

Before any action was taken to obtain possession of the land, the City Corporation were asked to approve of the scheme as far as the streets of the city were concerned. It was asked that the proposal might be treated as confidential, as it was undesirable to give publicity to it till the land was taken.

The Town Clerk having intimated by personal interview that the scheme would be approved by the Council, and that His Worship the Mayor advised the notices to be served, the Secretary for Public Works, by minute dated 5/5/82, decided that notices were to be served on owners at once. Notices were thereupon served. Claims have been received from the owners, amounting to £147,812 10s., as follows:—

Objections

Objections were then raised by the owners and others interested in the wool stores at the Circular Quay, that the construction of the tramway along Macquarie-street at the back of the wool stores would greatly interfere with the conduct of the wool traffic. Several proposals have been made to meet this difficulty. His Excellency the Governor proposed to give portion of his domain for a promenade, so as to admit of the tram-line running clear of the wool stores. At this date the Minister stated that he would further consider the matter, and authorized the tram terminus in the meantime to be made in the piece of ground adjoining the Treasury. The claimants upon whom notice was served have written in from time to time complaining of delay in completing the taking, and landlords have not collected rents from tenants, nor has the Department done so, for fear of complicating matters further. Repeated applications are being made for some decision, and actions for recovery of compensation are threatened. Since the notices were served, the Crown Law Officers, in advising upon the taking of land in another place, namely, at the corner of Hunter and Phillip Streets, have stated that the proceedings for taking land for tramway purposes have not been complete, inasmuch as the Tramway Act, in their opinion, requires the same steps to be pursued in regard to acquiring land as is provided for in the Railway Act. In that case the plans and books of reference should have been first submitted to and approved by the Houses of Parliament. It was expressly determined that the necessity for going to Parliament for the sanction of tramway lines in the city and suburbs of Sydney should be waived, and that the authority of the Governor and Executive Council should be sufficient. This, no doubt, the Act expresses; but it would seem that by words used in the last clause of the Act the enactment in this respect is rendered nugatory by the provision that all acts connected with the taking of land for tramways shall be in conformity with the provisions for taking land for railway purposes. It may be that, if it be decided to withdraw from the taking in the case in question, the plea can be advanced that there has been no legal taking. If, however, the owners of the land can show they have sustained loss by the action of the Government in taking (though not in proper form) their land and premises, it would be reasonable on their part to look for compensation, nor could the Government equitably, I think, withhold it. It would seem that if the Government determine to proceed with the taking, the owners of the land will not be in a position to object, as they have sent in their claims. At all events, whether they have an abstract right to object or not, it is clear they will not object. It may be stated that, beyond the new point referred to in advice of Crown Law Officers, there has been no irregularity in the proceedings in this matter. The approval of the Governor and Executive Council to the route proposed was duly obtained, and before notices of the taking of the land were served (the serving of which was specially sanctioned by the Minister) the concurrence of the Corporation in the proposal was sought and obtained.—CHAS. A. G., 2/11/82.

Minute of Secretary for Public Works.

Circular Tram system.

WILL the Attorney-General advise as to the responsibilities of the Government in the matter of land resumption near Circular Quay for tram purposes (papers herewith). After carefully perusing the papers, it seems to me the Government are morally bound to complete the resumption; and in any case, whether the proposed tram system be carried out or not, it would appear that the resumption could be completed without risk, as by forming new street and re-selling land this could be carried out, not only without loss but at an actual profit, according to the land-valuator's estimates. Moreover, should any deviation be decided upon so as to connect the eastern tram system with any proposed western route this land must be required. As the matter has been held in abeyance since April or May last, much to the inconvenience of the landowners and occupiers, I should be glad if my honorable colleague would give this matter his earliest consideration.

Tramway extension to Circular Quay.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney 31 January, 1883.

I do myself the honor to return herewith the memo. of the Honorable the Minister for Public Works with the other papers relating to the resumption of land near the Circular Quay for tramway purposes, and to state that I have submitted them to Mr. Attorney-General Dalley, a copy of whose advising thereon will be found upon the other side.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

Opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General.

I AM at a loss to know what has been the cause of delay in this matter. It is not a question of alteration of the proposed tram system, and should not have been delayed by any such consideration. It is one of law, and in my view the Government is bound by its contract. It is not to be supposed that the Government can exercise its powers to resume land for railway purposes—and having taken the preliminary steps to do this—then withdraw because it has changed its plans. With its policy the owner of the land resumed has nothing to do. If he consents, there is an end of the matter; if he refuses, the Government is bound by its contract, and must go on and complete it. If it continues to refuse, an application to the Supreme Court might be made for a mandamus to compel it to complete, the result of which, I think, would be adverse to the Government; but no such a course should be rendered necessary. It would be in the last degree objectionable that the large powers given by such Acts as the Railway Act and Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act should be exercised capriciously or injuriously.

Sir, 118, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 27 July, 1882.

We have the honor, on behalf of our client, Mr. J. W. Cliff, to apply to you for information as to what is being done herein. The first resumption took place in March last, and about the 18th of that month the claim for compensation was forwarded to your Department, and within a few days Mr. Cliff left the Colony, anticipating that the matter would be settled without delay. On the 24th April last an abstract showing the title to the whole of the land resumed by the Government was delivered; since this time we have heard nothing of the matter. Our client having left here under the impression that the matter would be speedily settled, is greatly prejudiced by the delay. We have therefore to request that you will let us know as soon as possible when we may expect a settlement of the matter.

Sir, 118, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 10 August, 1882.

We have the honor, as the attorneys for Mr. J. W. Cliff, to call your attention to the position of this matter, which is as follows:—

In March last the first notice of resumption was served on Mr. Cliff, shortly before his leaving for England, and at a time when he had arranged for an advance to enable him to clear off an existing claim on the property. The service of the notice prevented the mortgage being completed, and Mr. Cliff left the Colony, Colony, in the expectation that the matter would be settled by the Government without delay ; but contrary to his expectations, nearly five months have elapsed and the Government have not informed him what amount of compensation they are prepared to give. The result is that Mr. Cliff is threatened with an action for the amount due on the property, which claim, but for the action of the Government, would have been settled before he left the Colony, and unless some definite action be taken by the Government at once, a writ will be issued which will do our client, and also the firm of which he is a member, viz., Messrs. W. Gardiner & Co., great injury, for which we contend the Government will be liable.

Our object in communicating with you on the subject is to request that the question of compensation to be given by Government to our client be settled at once, to prevent further complications arising.

Sir,

69, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 25 January, 1883.

We have the honor to point out to you that the notices resuming the land in this matter bear date the 20th March and 5th May, 1882, respectively, since which time we have written to the Commissioner for Railways, on the 27th July, 10th August, and 22nd November last, and have had several interviews with him, but up to the present time have been unable to obtain any information in respect of the matter.

It is hardly necessary for us to state that the delay on the part of the Government in completing the matter after having resumed the land has been a matter of serious loss to our client, as he has been prevented from dealing with the land or collecting the rents, and at the same time deprived of the purchase money, which he should have had long since. We have, under the circumstances, to request that the matter may be completed with as little delay as possible.

Mr. W. H. Hicks to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Athenæum Club, Sydney, 28 October, 1882.

I have the honor to place the following communication before you:—On the 5th day of May last the trustees of the Holmes' estate, of whom I am one, received a notice of "Land taken for the Circular Quay Tramway" by the Government. Since that time we have received no further information on the subject from you. I would beg respectfully to point out to you that, as no rent is being received by us from the tenant of the English and Scottish Bank, or of the hay and corn store adjoining, the members of the family interested in the Holmes' estate, and especially the younger, are very greatly inconvenienced; the trustees also having been put to personal trouble and expense. Upwards of three years back I refused a bona fide offer of (£20,000) twenty thousand pounds for the site now resumed by Government, which I refused to entertain, in the interests of the family, in view of the very great increase in value of property in the immediate locality in the course of a short time.

Taking into consideration the great loss and inconvenience caused to the family, the trustees would be greatly obliged at receiving as early a reply from you as to the settlement of the matter as suits your convenience.

I have, &c.,

W. H. HICKS.

The Trustees to The Minister for Public Works.

Sir,

Athenæum Club, 7 March, 1883.

We, the trustees of the Holmes' estate, have the honor to place before you for your favourable consideration the following facts in connection with the resumption of land, by the late Government, for tramway purposes. In May last we received notice of resumption from the Commissioner of Railways, on behalf of the Government, since which time we have not been in receipt of rents in consequence of the notice served upon us. Some four or five years ago Mr. Hicks—one of the three trustees, and having a fourth interest in the estate—received a bona fide offer of £20,000 from Mr. C. K. Moore on behalf of two English capitalists. His letter is herewith appended. Mr. Hicks refused this offer, believing that in the course of a few years the property in question would so increase in value, judging from the great increase in value of surrounding and adjacent properties, as to be of great value and advantage to the children of the four families at the decease of their parents. The property has been in the family upwards of forty-two (42) years. Independent gentlemen who knew the property when first purchased by Mr. Holmes are of opinion that it is worth upwards of £350 per foot, while land situated some 100 or 150 yards from the Holmes' estate, and having only one frontage—the Holmes' block having three frontages—is estimated to be worth fully £300 per foot. Under these circumstances, and considering the great inconvenience and loss caused to the families through the non-collection and division of rents since May last, we respectfully submit, on behalf of the estate and the children, that the sum offered to us as compensation, £13,385, is quite inadequate to the proper value, and ought not to be accepted by us. We therefore respectfully urge and hope that, upon a re-consideration of the matter, you will decide to meet us fairly in the matter and award a sum not less than £16,000 or £18,000.

In representing this case for your consideration, we are of course only doing so, and very respectfully, in the interests of those to whom we are bound in a very sacred trust.

We have, &c.,

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 5 March, 1883.

In answer to your letter of to-day, I beg to state that I made you an offer of (£20,000) twenty thousand pounds sterling for the property situated in George-street and entrance to Circular Quay, occupied by Bank and hay and corn store, on behalf of two English capitalists, Mr. Barclay and General Orr, who were seeking investments in New South Wales some five years since. You declined the same, believing the property worth more.

Mr. W. H. Hicks to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Athenæum Club, 13 March, 1883.

I have the honor to enclose you herewith our acceptances, as trustees in the Holmes' estate, of your offer of £14,000, outside the rents to date, for the Bank and hay and corn store in Lower George-street, resumed by the late Government, for tramway purposes. At the same time the trustees consider they have been somewhat hardly treated by the Government, inasmuch as the property is proved to be beyond doubt worth at least five or six thousand pounds more. We are unwilling, however, to be involved in legal proceedings, as we are only trustees, and therefore are placed in a very awkward position. Of course we assume that the Government will be responsible for all expenses in the resumption and conveyance of the land in question.

I have, &c.,

W. H. HICKS.

P.S.—Kindly inform me at your earliest convenience if we are to collect rents to date forthwith, and whether it is necessary to have your written authority for that purpose.—W.H.H.

Dear Sirs,

Athenæum Club, Monday.

I have had an interview with the Minister with Garrett. His final offer is £14,000, outside the rents which we receive up to date. If you agree to accept, please sign your names to that effect on this paper, and I will return it to him. The answer has to be given to-day. Garrett advises the acceptance by us.

Dear Sir,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 13 March, 1883.

Your letter accepting my offer is to hand; but before proceeding any further I should be glad to know if, in the event of the Government seeing their way clear to withdraw altogether from the resumption, you and the other trustees would approve of that course, or whether you would prefer to let the matter be carried out on the terms agreed upon. Of course, should the Government withdraw, you would receive all back rent, and matters would be restored to their original position as before notice of resumption was sent, as I understand the tenants have not been disturbed in any way. An early answer will oblige.

Yours truly,

HENRY COPELAND.

Mr. W. H. Hicks to The Minister for Public Works.

Dear Sir,

Athenæum Club, 13 March, 1883.

In answer to your letter of this date, acknowledging the acceptance, by the trustees in the Holmes' estate, of your offer of £14,000 outside the rents to date, I have the honor to inform you that we fully understand that our acceptance of that offer was and is a final settlement of the question.

This matter has been delayed so long, and has proved of such inconvenience to the families, that we are glad to have the matter finally settled. We shall be glad, therefore, if you will inform us whether we are to collect rents from the date of resumption to the 14th, as agreed upon by you, and whether it will be necessary to receive your authority for the collection of such rents.

Faithfully yours,

W. H. HICKS.

The Minister for Public Works to Mr. W. H. Hicks.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 14 March, 1883.

The object of my writing you yesterday was to remove the stigma on the Government conveyed in a paragraph of your letter of the same date, in which you say—"The trustees consider they have been somewhat hardly treated by the Government, inasmuch as the property is proved beyond doubt to be worth at least five or six thousand pounds more. We are unwilling to be involved in legal proceedings, as we are only trustees, and therefore are placed in a very awkward position." As, however, by your latest communication, the trustees evidently prefer to be thus "hardly treated by the Government," rather than have the estate restored to them, I shall give instructions to have the matter completed as quickly as possible, and will inform you as to receiving the rents as soon as I can communicate with the Crown Solicitor.

I should take it as a favour if you would return me my last letter, to be copied, when it can be returned to you again.

I have, &c.,

HENRY COPELAND.

Mr. W. H. Hicks to The Minister for Public Works.

Dear Sir,

Athenæum Club, 14 March, 1883.

I perfectly understood the purport of your letter of the 13th, and answered accordingly. The trustees, while still of opinion that they have been "hardly dealt with by the Government," prefer, as you say, to be thus hardly dealt with, rather than have the estate restored to them, now that they have accepted the Government offer, or of having to fight the Government by either arbitration or in the Law Courts. I have painfully in my memory the decision of Judge Manning in a case in which Mr. Robberds and I were cast in costs for defending an action in which we were simply trustees, having no interest in the estate nor any option as to defending the action. I for one, therefore, will not put myself in the false position of going going back from our acceptance of the Government offer of £14,000 for the land in question resumed by Government for tramway purposes. But do not for a moment suppose that I am of opinion that we have at all the best of the bargain; on the contrary, had the property been my own, I should certainly have trusted even to the uncertainty of the law in the matter. No stigma has been cast upon the Government in any shape or form, and I trust you will disabuse your mind of anything of the kind. The family, and especially some junior members of it, have been and are greatly inconvenienced by the non-collection of rents for the last ten months. You will, I am sure, give early instructions, so that the matter may be brought to a conclusion.

I have, &c.,

W. H. HICKS.

Mr. W. H. Hicks to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Athenæum Club, 2 April, 1883.

Representing the trustees in the Holmes' estate, I have the honor respectfully to place before your notice the following circumstances in connection with the resumption of the Bank and hay and corn store in lower George-street by you, in May last, for tramway purposes.

In accordance with your request we forwarded to you our valuation of the property in question, and I think estimated it at £26,000 or £27,000 more or less. Last month you were good enough to give Mr. Korff and me an interview on the subject, and also introduced us to the then Minister for Works, Mr. H. Copeland. His offer to us then was £13,385, with back rents to date of transfer of property. To this we objected, and shortly after Mr. Garrett and I waited on the Minister, who, after telling us that the Government were dealing very liberally with us in the matter, and that he himself had visited and valued the property, and after making sundry calculations in our presence, made as a final offer the sum of £14,000, with rents, costs, &c. I beg to refer you to my letter of acceptance and my remarks thereon. In that letter I, on behalf of the trustees, while accepting the £14,000—a kind of Hobson's choice—protested against the harsh manner in which we had been dealt with by Government, stating also that as trustees we had no option in the matter, and that we accepted the sum offered sooner than take the responsibility of law upon our shoulders. In a subsequent letter to the Minister I added to the above reiterated statement that were the property mine I should have taken legal steps in the matter, rather than have accepted the Government offer of £14,000.

I forwarded a letter from Mr. C. K. Moore stating that he, as agent for Messrs. Barclay and General Orr, two capitalists, had offered me some five (5) years back £20,000, which I refused. I also represented the great and increasing value of land in the immediate neighbourhood, selling from £300 to £450 per foot. (The ground opposite to the Bank is a case in point, having but one frontage, and yet fetching £450 per foot, as I am informed.)

I have a direct offer from Mr. Kidman of £19,000 for the block; and Mr. Walker, the contractor and builder, in evidence last week in an Equity suit, valued the property at £26,000 or £27,000, stating that he would be willing to purchase at upwards of £20,000 as a speculation.

We were led to believe (Messrs. Korff, Garrett, and I) from Mr. Copeland's statement and manner that—

1. If we did not accept the Government offer the land might be thrown back on our hands, as the Government had not decided whether or not they would ratify the resumption by the late Government.
2. That our only other course would be arbitration or law.
3. That the Government, through him, were offering us a sum in excess of the Government valuations.

My reply to the Minister, bearing date 13th March, confirms this statement. I was accused by Mr. Copeland too, in a friendly conversation on the matter at the Town Hall, with having been "cross" at the time I wrote my acceptance of the Government offer of £14,000, and complaining of the harsh treatment of the Government.

I beg therefore most respectfully to submit, now that I have read the remarks of Mr. Copeland in the House, that I give a positive disclaimer, as my letters will also prove, to his statement that I as one of the owners was "satisfied." He said, "The sums put down by Government valuers were altogether too high. He gave instructions for a second valuation to be made, and the second was lower than the first, but not sufficiently low in his judgment. He examined the land himself, and in a private manner negotiated with the owners * * * The effect of his searching into the matter (of the land resumed at Circular Quay) was that he dealt with the owners of the land, and the country was saved the sum of £16,180, and two out of the three owners of the land were his personal friends. The effects of this over-laborious looking over the matter were that the country was saved this amount of money, and the owners were satisfied."

I emphatically deny that we as trustees or I as part owner were "satisfied."

I beg respectfully to state that the accepted offer made to us by Mr. Copeland, "a final offer" as he termed it, was received by us under misconception and against our expressed wishes; that we did so fearing, as trustees, to incur any legal liability in prosecuting our demand against the Government. Nor did we see our way clear to accepting the alternative of Mr. Copeland (which we believed he could not legally offer us) of having the land forced back on our hands. We certainly thought that the very lowest sum that would be offered to us by the Government would be £18,000, outside back rents, costs, &c., considering we had so fully proved the value of the land to be upwards of £20,000.

On behalf of the trustees therefore, I beg respectfully to be allowed to withdraw our acceptance of the sum of £14,000, as it was given, believing from the statements of the Minister that his offer of £14,000 was in excess of the sum of the Government valuations.

I have, &c.,

The Commissioner for Railways to Mr. W. H. Hicks.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 23 April, 1883.

With reference to your letter of the 2nd instant, on the subject of the resumption for public purposes of the land in George-street belonging to the Holmes' estate, and in which you ask, on behalf of the trustees of the estate, to be allowed to withdraw their acceptance of the offer of £14,000 made by the late Secretary for Public Works in full satisfaction of the claim, I have the honor, by direction of Mr. Secretary Stuart, to inform you that the arrangement entered into by you with the late Secretary for Public Works cannot now be departed from; and on your forwarding the abstract of title the necessary steps will be taken to have the transfer completed and the compensation money paid over to the trustees without delay.

I may add that the trustees will be allowed the rents of the premises until 1st June next.

Mr. W. H. Hicks to The Commissioner for Railways.

Dear Sir,

Athenæum Club.

I have received a letter from Messrs. Jones & Jones, of which I send you a copy, protesting against the acceptance of the £14,000 by the trustees. I also send petition to Minister of Works, sent to me to forward on. What is to be done in the matter?

Very faithfully yours,

Re Holmes' settlement.

Dear Sirs,

77, Pitt-street, Sydney, 19 June, 1883.

We hereby, on behalf of Mr. Langdon, Messrs. J. & A. Korff, and Mrs. Herring, three of the children of Mrs. F. H. Reuss, junr., beg to intimate to you that they decline to accept the sum offered by the Government as compensation for the Queen's Wharf property which has been lately resumed by them. And in so far as our clients are concerned or interested in the property resumed, they caution you not to accept the sum so offered, nor to be parties to anything whereby their rights or interests can be in any way prejudiced.

Yours truly,

JONES & JONES.

The Commissioner for Railways to Mr. W. H. Hicks.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 7 July, 1883.

With reference to your letter of the 22nd ultimo, enclosing copy of a communication received from Messrs. Jones & Jones protesting against the acceptance by the trustees in the estate of the late Mrs. Mary Holmes of £14,000 as compensation on amount of property resumed for tramway purposes, I have the honor to inform you that, on submitting the matter for the consideration of the Honorable the Secretary for Public Works, he declines to re-open the question.

Protest.

To the Minister for Works.

Sir,

Sydney, 22 June, 1883.

We the undersigned, adult members interested in the estate of the late Mrs. Mary Holmes, beg respectfully, on our own behalf, as well as on behalf of those members of the family not yet of age, to protest against the acceptance by the trustees of the sum of (£14,000) fourteen thousand pounds proposed to be given by the Government for land resumed by them for tramway purposes situated in Lower George-street, Sydney, and now in the occupation of the English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered Bank and Mr. Harris, hay and corn merchant, as being very far short of the sum demanded by the trustees, and of its actual market value, the sum of (£20,000) twenty thousand pounds having been refused for the same land some five or six years back, and valuations recently taken being far higher than the sum awarded.

According to the statement of the late Minister for Works, Mr. Copeland, in the House, this sum of (£14,000) fourteen thousand pounds was considerably less than the valuations made by direction of Mr. Lackey when Minister for Works in the first instance, and afterwards by order of Mr. Copeland. We therefore beg most respectfully to notify to the Honorable the Minister for Works that we dissent from and repudiate the action of the trustees of the Holmes' estate, Messrs. Korff, Reuss, and Hicks, for the following reasons, viz. :—

1. That the sum of (£14,000) fourteen thousand pounds is neither a fair nor equitable compensation for the land resumed by the Government.
2. That the offer of (£14,000) fourteen thousand pounds was accepted by the trustees, as they inform us, through the representations of the late Minister for Works, Mr. Copeland, through which they were led to believe that the sum offered by him (£14,000) was in excess of the Government valuations, this being afterwards proved to be contrary to fact by the statement of Mr. Copeland, who claimed credit to himself for having saved the country some thousands of pounds by the objection taken by him to the valuations taken by order of Mr. Lackey and himself, and the adoption of his own valuation.

We trust under these circumstances that the Honorable the Minister for Works will reconsider the matter, with a view to offering a fair and reasonable sum as compensation for the land resumed by the Government.

See Mr. Stuart's minute of 20/4/83. Of course the protest here sent is an amicable one as regards the trustees, and is made only to give force to the objection raised by the trustees. If the trustees had power to make a settlement, there seems to be an end of the matter. Mr. Secretary Copeland made an offer to them, which they duly accepted.—CHAS. A. G., 26/6/83.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 16 July, 1883.

With reference to the portion of the Holmes' estate resumed in May, 1882, for tramway purposes, I have the honor to inform you that the settlement of this matter is delayed pending the receipt of the abstract of title; and I have to request that you will be good enough to move the trustees to forward at their earliest convenience the document referred to, in order that the conveyance may be prepared.

Extension Tramway to Circular Quay—Précis.

Land resumed for tramway purposes, Lower George-street, in the estate of Mrs. Holmes.

IN order to connect the eastern with the western system of tramways, it became necessary, as a part of the scheme, to resume certain properties in George and Pitt Streets, and among these were the land and premises belonging to the estate of the late Mary Holmes, rented by the English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered Bank, at the corner of George and Queen Streets, and a hay and corn store occupied by Messrs. Bashan Brothers. The resumption of these properties was approved by the Governor and Executive Council, and before any action was taken to obtain possession of the land the assent of the City Corporation was obtained.

The first step taken in this case was to serve notice of resumption upon the trustees, which was done on the 6th May, 1882, and on the 30th of the same month a claim for the sum of £26,000 was sent in.

The Government valuers, on the 5th September, 1882, valued the property at £17,847 10s.

On the 28th October, 1882, a letter signed by W. H. Hicks, on behalf of the trustees, was received, stating that no information had been received since receiving the notice of resumption, and bringing under attention the fact that those interested were greatly inconvenienced through not being able to collect the rents, and pointing out that three years previously the sum of £20,000 was refused for the property.

A communication, dated 7th March, 1883, was next received from the trustees, again drawing attention to the fact that five years ago £20,000 was offered for the property and refused, and that they did not consider the amount offered by the Government, viz., £13,385, the true value of the property, and that the amount offered should not be less than £16,000 or £18,000.

On the 10th March, 1883, a memorandum was addressed to the Secretary for Public Works (Mr. Copeland) by Mr. Thomas Garrett, asking for an interview for himself and Mr. Hicks. On the following Monday (12) a letter was addressed by Mr. Hicks to his co-trustees, informing them that he and Mr. Garrett had waited upon the Minister (Mr. Copeland), and he (Mr. Copeland) had offered them £14,000, together with all rents due to date, and asking them, if they were agreeable to accept the said offer, to endorse the letter and return to him, as an answer had to be given the same day. The trustees endorsed letter and returned it to Minister, thereby accepting the offer of £14,000.

On the 13th March the Minister wrote acknowledging receipt of acceptance of offer, and asking, in the event of the land not being required, whether the trustees would have any objection to the Government withdrawing from the contract or whether they would prefer the matter being carried out upon the terms agreed upon. The letter also pointed out that, if the former course were pursued, they would receive all back rent, and matters would be restored to their original state. In reply to this letter an answer was received from Mr. Hicks the same day, stating that the offer of £14,000 was accepted by the trustees. At the same time they considered they had been hardly dealt with, but rather than be involved in legal proceedings the offer would be accepted. Another letter was received the same day saying that the trustees, in accepting the offer of £14,000, were under the impression that the matter was and is a final settlement of the question, and pointed out the inconvenience that was caused through their not being able to collect the rents, and asking for a speedy settlement.

On the following day (the 14th March) the Secretary for Works sent a letter to Mr. Hicks, stating that instructions would be given for the matter to be completed as quickly as possible; and with reference to the collection of rents, he would be advised as soon as a reply could be received from the Crown Solicitor. A reply to this was received the same day (14th) stating that the purport of Mr. Copeland's letter was thoroughly understood, and again repeating that they were under the impression they were hardly dealt with, and urging a speedy settlement.

On the 2nd April a letter was addressed to the Commissioner for Railways by Mr. W. H. Hicks, re-opening the whole question, and, on behalf of the trustees, asking to be allowed to withdraw their offer of acceptance of the £14,000, as it had been given under misconception, as they were led to believe from the interview with Mr. Copeland—

1st—That if they had not accepted the Government offer the land might be thrown back on their hands, as the Government had not decided whether they would ratify the resumption by the late Government.

2nd—That their only other course would be arbitration or law, which they, as trustees, wished to avoid.

3rd—That they were led to believe the Minister in offering £14,000 was awarding a sum in excess of the Government valuation.

In reply to this a letter was sent to Mr. Hicks on the 23rd, at the direction of the Acting Secretary for Works (Mr. Stuart), stating that the arrangements entered into with the late Secretary for Public Works (Mr. Copeland) could not be departed from, and asking that abstract of title be furnished, so that the matter could be completed; also informing him that the rents could be collected by the trustees until the 1st June.

On the 22nd June Mr. Hicks wrote enclosing copy of a letter from Messrs. Jones & Jones and a petition from those interested declining to accept the offer of £14,000, and asking for a reconsideration of the matter with the view of reasonable compensation being allowed. A reply was sent to Mr. Hicks on the 7th instant to the effect that the Secretary for Public Works declined to re-open the question, and on the 16th instant another letter was sent to Mr. Hicks pointing out that the settlement of the matter was being delayed through the trustees not forwarding abstract of title, and asking him to forward it at once so that the conveyance could be prepared.

A letter was then received, dated 16th instant, from Mr. Hicks, intimating on behalf of the trustees that Mr. G. A. Murray had been appointed arbitrator on their behalf, and upon this action of the trustees the Commissioner has asked the Crown Solicitor to advise.

G.B.,
(Pro Commissioner),
19/7/83.

The Crown Solicitor to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 30 July, 1883.

I have the honor to return herewith the papers relating to the proposed arbitration respecting the lands taken from the trustees of the estate of Mrs. Holmes, deceased, and to forward a copy of the opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General. The Attorney-General, as you will see, advised that steps should be taken to enforce the agreement, which fixes the payment of £14,000 as the purchase money and compensation for the land taken, and that an injunction should be applied for to restrain the trustees from proceeding to arbitration.

As the time for your appointing an arbitrator will expire to-day, there was no time to make reference to you in the matter, but I at once instructed counsel to prepare a statement of claim, which I filed on the Equity side of the Supreme Court, and gave notice of an application to be made this morning for an injunction.

Upon the application being made this morning the defendants applied that the matter should remain over until next Friday week, 10th proximo, they undertaking not to proceed further in the meantime with the arbitration.

It may be as well to report this matter to the Minister, as I have reason to believe that he will be called upon with reference to a settlement.

I have, &c.,
JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

P.S.—As the originals of some letters relating to this matter have had to be filed in the Supreme Court, I forward copies for your information.—J.W.

The Minister has seen these papers. It seems to me that the injunction should be persevered with on the 10th, to which date it has been postponed.—CHAS. A. G., 6/8/83.

Minute of Secretary for Public Works.

Approved.—F.A.W., 6/8/83. Crown Solicitor.—CHAS. A. G., 7/8/83, B.C.

Opinion of the Attorney-General.

IF, as would appear from the history of this negotiation, there is in existence a contract between the representatives of the trustees and the Commissioner, immediate steps should be taken to restrain the submission to arbitration, to which of course the Government can be no party, and the first step should be to file a bill to have the question settled by the decision of the Court.

If the matter is correctly stated there is no question of disputed compensation, and consequently nothing to submit to arbitration. The agreement was for a specific sum, which the Commissioner is prepared to pay.

The proposed reference to arbitration appears to have been a mere after-thought, which probably occurred to the representatives of the trustees when they discovered that they might have made a more advantageous bargain. The Government can be no parties to the appointment of an arbitration under section 27 of 22 Victoria No. 19, for that would be to admit that the contract was incomplete. And on the other hand, to fail to appoint an arbitrator when the trustees have appointed one, will give their arbitrator the power to hear and determine the matter alone.

The proper course for the Commissioner to pursue is to file a bill for the specific performance of the contract entered into by the trustees, and this should be done forthwith.

Minute of Secretary for Public Works.

I want papers in connection with Holmes' estate, resumed some time since for tramway purposes.—F.A.W., 26/7/83.

Let me have them at once.—J.R., 27/7/83.

These papers are with the Crown Law Officers. The Attorney-General has instructed the Crown Solicitor to take an action in Equity, to stop arbitration proceedings of the trustees, they having asked to withdraw letter of acceptance of £14,000. They contend that, as trustees acting in the interest of others, they have no right to take the course proposed. Does the Minister wish the papers to be returned?—J.R.

Inform Mr. Garrett, M.P.—F.A.W., 28/7/83.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to T. Garrett, Esq., M.P.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 28 July, 1883.

Referring to your personal interview on the subject of the claim of the Holmes' estate trustees, in respect of land resumed at the Circular Quay for the proposed extension of the tramway, I am directed to inform you it appears that the matter is out of the hands of this Department, it being dealt with by the Crown Law Officers, who have been instructed to take whatever steps may be necessary to bring the matter to an early close upon the settlement already agreed on between the trustees and the Government.

I have, &c.,

JOHN RAE.

Case submitted.

The Commissioner for Railways v. Korff and others.

In this matter an offer of settlement has been made by the defendants, but before taking same into consideration the Minister for Works thinks it necessary that he should be advised as to the exact position of the Government in the matter.

The agreement as to the amount of compensation to be paid was made by the trustees with the late Minister for Works, without its being mentioned that the power of the trustees to sell was subject to the approval of such of the persons beneficially interested as at the time of such agreement for sale should be of age. This consent was therefore, so far as is known, not obtained, and subsequent to the agreement being entered into by the trustees the persons so interested protested against the sale.

That their consent was necessary was only made known to the Government upon the affidavits on the part of the defence being filed. The trustees have not delivered an abstract of title, and the Commissioner for Railways and the Minister for Works, in dealing with the trustees, did so on the assumption that they had power to sell and to fix the price of the land. As it now appears that they had not power to sell under the trusts of the settlement, it is supposed the Commissioner will have to fall back upon the power given to trustees under the Railway Act.

The Minister for Works thinks that the sum agreed to be paid (£14,000) is a sufficient price for the land, and is desirous that the agreement entered into with the trustees, that that sum shall be the amount to be paid, shall be enforced, if it can be. It is doubted, however, whether the Court will enforce a sale made by the trustees in contravention of the provision of the deed under which the power is given.

Under the 18th section of the Railway Act it would seem that the trustees have power to sell land required for railway purposes. The following section (19), however, declares that the purchase money or compensation to be paid for lands purchased or taken from any party not having power to sell, except under the provision of the Act, shall not be less than shall be determined by Justices or arbitrators.

If therefore the trustees cannot sell under the power of sale in the settlement excepting with the consent of the persons beneficially interested, and they can sell under the section of the Railway Act referred to, it would be necessary, apparently, to have the compensation or purchase money fixed by arbitrators.

As it is generally known that the amount at which the land was valued by valuers on the part of the Government exceeds the sum of £14,000, agreed to be taken, it may be desirable, if the Government cannot avoid going to arbitration, to endeavour to come to terms with the trustees and the persons interested.

The Minister for Works therefore wishes to be advised—

1. Whether the contract entered into by the trustees, and which the present proceedings have been instituted to enforce, can, under the circumstances as now known, be enforced?
2. If that agreement cannot be enforced, will it be necessary, if an agreement is not come to with the trustees and the persons interested, that the amount of compensation or purchase money shall be fixed by arbitration under the provisions of the Railway Act?

And generally upon the case submitted.

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

Opinion.

In this case the Government were desirous of resuming for tramway purposes certain land in George-street, which was vested in Messrs. Hicks, Korff, and Reuss, as trustees of the late Mrs. Holmes. Notice of resumption was given to the trustees, and a claim was sent in by them for £26,000 as the value of the land.

The land was then valued by two valuers on behalf of Government, who assessed the amount to be paid at £17,000. Subsequently Mr. Hicks, one of the trustees, had an interview with Mr. Copeland, the then Minister for Public Works, and agreed to accept £14,000. At that time Mr. Hicks was not aware that the Government valuation was over £14,000, and it may be not unfairly considered that £14,000 was a sufficient price for the land, inasmuch as the trustees preferred that the Government should take it at that price rather than give up the resumption of it as they were willing to do. Some of the cestui que trust protested against the bargain, and the trustees forwarded no abstract of title and took no step to carry it out, and in fact, in July, 1883, they gave notice to the Commissioner for Railways that they had appointed an arbitrator on their part to assess the compensation. The Commissioner then filed a statement of claim in equity to enforce specific performance of the contract for sale and purchase at £14,000. From the documents filed by the defendants in that suit, it became known to the Government for the first time that the trustees of Mrs. Holmes' estate had no power to sell except with the consent of the adult cestui que trust, and this consent has not been obtained. It is a well settled principle that a Court of Equity will not force any person specifically to perform any agreement which would necessitate a breach of trust or compel such person person to do what he is not lawfully competent to do. The agreement, therefore, though binding on the trustees personally, is not one that they can be compelled to perform specifically; the only remedy against them would be an action for damages for breach of it.

2. Although there is no agreement binding the cestui que trust to sell for £14,000, inasmuch as the trustees had no power by themselves to enter into such an agreement, yet by section 18 of the Railway Act, 22 Vict. No. 19, certain classes of persons, who would otherwise be incapable of making a contract for sale binding on all parties, are enabled to do so. Trustees are among the classes enumerated, and therefore there is under the Railway Act a binding contract for sale, but the statutory power to make a contract for sale does not include power to fix the price; this must be ascertained by arbitration in the ordinary way, section 19 of Railway Act.

We think it would be desirable to endeavour to come to terms with the trustees. Unless the parties agree, the price must be ascertained by arbitration; and although it is probable that £17,000 is an excessive valuation, we think as that is the amount named by the Government valuers no arbitrators or jury are likely to award a less sum.

Minute of Secretary for Public Works.

After reading the opinions of Messrs. Gordon and Simpson, and conferring with Crown Solicitor, I think the claimants had better be offered the amount of the valuation, viz., £17,847 10s.; but as the Government have been led into the present position by the action of the trustees in entering into a contract that they now allege they are unable to carry out I think they should pay all costs to date. This offer to be made without prejudice.—F.A.W., 3/9/83.

Will Crown Solicitor be good enough to arrange this.—CHAS. A. G., 3/9/83.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 6 September, 1883.

I have the honor to inform you that on the 3rd instant I wrote to Messrs. Gannon & McLaughlin, offering without prejudice to settle the action The Commissioner for Railways v. Korff, by your paying the amount at which the land had been valued by Messrs. Byrnes and Thompson, the trustees paying all costs to date. In reply, I have received the letter forwarded herewith.

Will you please inform me what answer I am to send thereto.

Korff v. Commissioner for Railways.

Dear Sir,

Temple Court, Sydney, 5 September, 1883.

In reply to yours of 3rd instant, our clients will accept the sum named by you, with interest at £6 per centum from May last, the date the Government commenced collecting the rents, and will pay their own costs, but not the Commissioner's.

The contract the plaintiff is attempting to enforce was procured from the trustees by means of what they consider misrepresentation, and their counsel see no reason for advising that they should do more than pay their own costs. Of course this correspondence is, as you say, without prejudice.

Yours faithfully,
GANNON & McLAUGHLIN,

Memo. from Mr. Thomas Garrett to Hon. F. A. Wright. M.P., Works.

Dear Mr. Wright,

7, Gresham-street, Sydney, 13 September, 1883.

Hicks writes me that nothing had on the 12th been done in the matter of the settlement of the Holmes' estate resumption, referred to John Williams. Hicks says the trustees are willing to accept the offer of the Government with 6 per cent. added from date of resumption, and don't care about costs; the Government drawing the rents. There should be no difficulty now. Great hardship is being endured by the parties interested in the trust being kept out of their income.

Yours truly,
THOMAS GARRETT.

Will you therefore forward to me the authority required to enable the trustees to receive the rents until completion.

Claim of Messrs. Basham Bros.

No. 19.

Messrs. Basham Bros. to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Circular Quay, Sydney, 26 May, 1882.

Herewith we forward claim for compensation for taking the land shown per sketch sent to us, and which land is now held under lease from Mrs. Holmes, having two and three-quarter years unexpired. In doing so, we beg to submit the following statement for your consideration:—The premises in question have for many years been occupied as a hay, corn, and produce mart. W. Harris, who formerly occupied the premises, has retired from active business with a competency. We were for a long time in the employ of Mr. Harris, and on his retirement we arranged with him to continue the business on our own behalf. Our business is to supply the shipping, Lane Cove, Mossman's Bay, Watson's Bay, Manly Beach, and other marine suburbs, with colonial produce. The proximity of our place of business to the Circular Quay is of a great advantage to us; and although we have, since receipt of your notice, made diligent search for other premises, we are unable to secure another eligible site in the neighbourhood. Owing to the danger from fire, on account of the inflammable nature of our stock, landlords refuse to accept us as tenants. We therefore apprehend that taking our place of business from us will destroy our business, and deprive us of the earnings resulting therefrom. Our takings have for some time past averaged £1,200 per month, and at the present our takings are £1,400 a month. The profits arising therefrom after deducting all charges is from £150 to £180 a month, or say £2,000 per annum. We are willing to submit for your inspection, or any person you may appoint for that purpose, our trade books, in verification of our statement. The premises we now occupy we pay a rental of £2 per week for. We could not now obtain the same premises at the same moderate rental; in all probability we will have to pay four or five times as much for the same accommodation. The trade fittings are our property, and although not worth much—perhaps not more than £100—will be useless for any other place. We, however, base our claim for compensation on the fact that we have a business place that suits us, at a very low rent. We cannot get another place in the immediate vicinity. Having to leave the neighbourhood, our business will be lost. The expense consequent upon such removal will be very great. In our present premises, in the two and three-quarter years the lease has to run, we could reasonably expect to make £5,000. In conclusion, we beg to state that taking our place of business from us is of very serious consequence to us, and we trust will be duly considered in fixing the amount of compensation to be awarded. We believe we have fairly stated our case, and that our claim for £4,000 compensation is just and reasonable.

Nearly six months ago we received notice from the Government to send in our claim for compensation for our right and interest in the premises now occupied by us, situate in George-street North, No.

Mr. A. W. Cormack to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

363, George-street, Sydney, 23 October, 1882.

On the 5th May last you notified that the Government had resumed my business premises in Volunteer-lane, Circular Quay, for tramway purposes. Since that date I have heard nothing from the Government as to the amount of compensation proposed to be given in settlement of my claim. The resumption of my property in itself is a serious loss to me, and the delay in settlement is most prejudicial to my interests. I have no desire to burden you at this stage with reasons that amply justify the claim I sent in to the Government in terms of your notification of 5th May. It will be sufficient now to say every week it is becoming more and more difficult to obtain as central and as suitable a site for my business as that I now occupy. At present I enjoy quiet possession, and am altogether free from any liability to a Supreme Court action, such as was instituted against me for establishing a coeprage in Hamilton-lane, near Bridge-street and Pitt-street, and for creating smoke and noise, in other words carrying on a business which was regarded as a nuisance by the prosecutors in the said action. This annoying action caused me considerable loss, and I would much prefer the Government had not resumed my property in Volunteer-lane.

The busy season in my business is now on, and I am prevented making necessary arrangements which are in contemplation. The delay therefore on the part of the Government is hampering me considerably.

I cannot regard myself as free to undertake additional responsibilities until I know the amount of compensation the Government propose to allow me. I would therefore most respectfully submit that the delay is more than vexatious, and at the same time earnestly urge this small matter upon your earliest consideration, with a view to a speedy settlement of my claim.

You are aware that the hope of a speedy settlement had great sway over me at the time of signing the contract, and, as I then explained, each day's delay means a loss of money which I have to pay as interest to the Bank. Dear Sir,

Pitt-street North, Sydney, 21 March, 1883.

We have the honor to inform you that we have been instructed to remind you that, on the 18th August, 1882, in compliance with notices received from your office, dated 5th August, 1882, with reference to the resumption of land for the extension of the Government Tramways to the Circular Quay, the Company sent you an abstract of title to the land in question and a statement of the amount claimed by them for compensation, viz., £36,087 10s., since which date the Company have never heard from you. We are now desired to ask you to give the matter your earliest attention, because the land resumed by you is leased, and one of the leases will shortly expire, and for this and other reasons it is desirable that the change of ownership should be intimated to the tenants. The Company have been informed that you are settling with other persons whose lands were resumed at the same time, and they are at a loss to know why their case is not also being settled.

Sir,

The Scottish Australian Investment Company (Limited), Sydney, 30 June, 1883.

The purchase money of the Circular Quay property recently belonging to this Company, and now resumed by the Government, having been paid, there remains only the settlement of the interest on the purchase money (£30,000), which the Company is entitled to from the date when the tenants were instructed to pay their rents to the Government, namely, the 1st instant.

Understanding that some difficulty exists as to what vote this money should be paid out of, and being desirous that the matter should be brought to a termination as soon as possible, I beg to intimate that in lieu of such interest, and in settlement of the claim therefor, this Company will collect the rents accrued during the month of June.

Should this proposition meet with your approval, please notify the same to me at your earliest convenience and inform the tenants accordingly.

Mr. H. S. Bird's Claim.

No. 22.

Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, & Jaques to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

77, New Pitt-street, Sydney, 29 June, 1882.

We send you herewith the claim of our client, Mr. H. S. Bird, of the Circular Quay, merchant, amounting to £2,358, for compensation by reason of the resumption of his land by the Government for tramway purposes. We may mention that Mr. Bird has been in business in the same premises that he now occupies for the last twenty-four years, and during that time has got a connection round about him which will be completely scattered by his removal from the place, and for which no sum of money can compensate him. He also had, prior to the resumption, the promise of a renewal of his lease, in fact he never held more than a five years' lease, but it was always understood that it was to be renewed at its expiration for a similar term, and so on from time to time, virtually amounting to a twenty years' lease.

With a view however to a speedy and amicable settlement, we have induced our client to fix the amount of compensation for disturbance and loss of profit, &c., at the small sum of £1,000; and we may mention further that, by reason of the resumption by the Government of the land in Pitt-street, Mr. Bird has been compelled to incur an expenditure of over £16,000 in order to put himself in something like the same position, as far as regards accommodation, of suitable premises which actually cost him £672 per annum more than he was paying for rent of his premises in Pitt-street. We therefore trust that you will see that the claim made by Mr. Bird is an extremely moderate one, and hope that a speedy settlement will be made with our client, and without the necessity of arbitration.

We are, &c.,

STEPHEN, LAURENCE, & JAQUES.

Land-valuer, B.C., 1/7/82.—J.B. The subject to which this paper refers is only one of a number of other claims of similar import, in connection with the extension of the tramway from Redfern Railway Station round the Circular Quay, which are in my hands waiting adjustment. I desire therefore to bring the whole matter specially under the notice of the Commissioner, in order to ascertain whether I am to proceed with the valuations or not.—J.B., 6/7/82.

Re H. S. Bird's resumption.

Sir, 81, New Pitt-street, Sydney, 20 December, 1882.

On 13th May last certain lands and premises in the occupation of H. S. Bird, at the Circular Quay, known as the Bon Accord Stores, were taken by you for tramway purposes.

On 27th June last Mr. Bird duly sent in notice of his claim for compensation.

Subsequent to the date of the taking of the land Mr. Bird, in order to ensure the proper carrying on of his business, felt himself compelled to seek for and obtain fresh premises, and he did so and bought property in Macquarie-place, and entered into arrangements for building thereon, &c. He would have been of course in a far better position had he remained undisturbed in his old established premises, but having actually incurred the outlay for the new premises he has no alternative but to take such premises.

We now beg to remind you that no action has been taken by your Department, so far as we have been notified, in the matter of dealing with Mr. Bird's claim, and that a very considerable time has elapsed since the date of the making thereof.

May we request the favour of a communication from your Department to inform us whether it is the intention of the Government to contest the claim or otherwise.

In the event of there being no reply hereto for the space of one week from date hereof we shall take it for granted that you dispute our client's claim, and we shall thereupon take the usual steps for the appointment of arbitrators.

We have, &c.,

Re H. S. Bird's claim.

Sir, 81, New Pitt-street, Sydney, 28 March, 1883.

Having obtained no reply to our previous correspondence with reference to Mr. Bird's claim for the taking of his leasehold premises, the Bon Accord Stores, at Circular Quay, we now, on Mr. Bird's behalf, beg to call upon you, under the provisions of the 27th section of the Railway Act, to concur in the appointment of a single arbitrator, to whom the adjustment of our client's claim may be referred. We should be glad to have an understanding on this matter arrived at before Saturday next; failing which we will proceed with the next step required under the Act.

Re H. S. Bird's claim.

Dear Sir, 81, New Pitt-street, Sydney, 11 April, 1883.

Following our letter of 28th ultimo, requesting your concurrence in the appointment of a single arbitrator, to whom the adjustment of the above claim might be referred, and your reply thereto, dated 29th ultimo, declining to agree thereto, we now have the honor, by direction of our client, to inform you that he appoints Mr. Alfred Lewington, of Messrs. Mitchell & Co., Pitt-street, as an arbitrator on his behalf, as per enclosed notice, for the adjustment of his claim in respect of the resumption of his premises.

You

You are therefore requested to appoint an arbitrator on your behalf in the matter within fourteen days after this notice reaches you, failing which our client will proceed, according to law, to the appointment of such before-mentioned arbitrator, to act on behalf of both parties.

We have, &c.,

The Crown Solicitor to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 17 April, 1883.

I have the honor to return herewith Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, & Jaques' letter to you, of date 11th April instant, and to state that I have shown same to Mr. Attorney-General, who advises thereon as follows:—

"I should like to see a copy of my opinion referred to herein; meanwhile an arbitrator should be appointed. I can suggest no other course which can now be pursued."

The opinion referred to is one said to have been given by Mr. Attorney-General, to the effect that the notice of taking having been served by the Railway Department in the usual form, in respect of the lands at Circular Quay, the Government are bound to complete such taking, although the necessary proceedings to vest the land in the Commissioner for Railways under the Railway Act have not been taken. Mr. Dalley states that this opinion was given by him upon papers submitted by your Department to him at the Colonial Secretary's Office during the time Mr. Copeland was Minister for Works.

I have, &c.,

The Secretary for Railways to The Crown Solicitor.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 27 November, 1883.
I shall be glad if you will be good enough to return to this office at your earliest convenience the papers relative to Mr. H. S. Bird's claim for land resumed for tramway purposes at Circular Quay. The papers referred to were sent to you on the 10th July last.
I have, &c.,
D. VERNON (per G.B.),
Secretary for Railways.

The Crown Solicitor to The Commissioner for Railways.

Sir, Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 28 November, 1883.
In reply to your letter of yesterday's date, I have the honor to return herewith the papers relating to the arbitration between H. S. Bird and yourself.
I have, &c.,
JOHN WILLIAMS,
Crown Solicitor.

Précis of Mr. H. S. Bird's land claim.

MR. H. S. BIRD is the lessee of stores in Pitt-street North (owners' the Scottish Australian Investment Company), and holds them under a five years' lease, from 1st January, 1879, to 31st December, 1883, at £300 per annum.

In connection with the proposed extension of the tramway system round the Circular Quay it was decided to resume the stores, and notice was served on Mr. Bird on the 13th May, 1882.

On the 29th June, 1882, Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, & Jaques submitted a claim for £2,358 on behalf of Mr. Bird. The Land-valuers reported, on the 7th September, 1882, that they estimated the value of claim at £793 6s. 8d., viz. :—

Value of lease for residue of term	£266	13	4
Forced surrender at 10 per cent.	26	13	4
Disturbance of trade by forced removal	500	0	0
									£793 6 8

The amount was approved for Schedule.

On the 20th December, 1882, Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, & Jaques wrote urging completion of matter. Mr. Bird had been compelled to seek, they stated, fresh premises, and had entered into arrangements to build. They asked that Mr. Bird's claim might be dealt with. They again wrote, on the 28th March, 1883, calling upon the Commissioner to concur in the appointment of a single arbitrator, under terms of the Act. The Commissioner declined to concur in the appointment.

Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, & Jaques then wrote, on 11th April, stating that Mr. Lewington had been appointed on behalf of Mr. Bird, and asked that the Commissioner would appoint a gentleman to act on his behalf.

The matter was referred to the Crown Solicitor, who wrote that the Attorney-General advised, pending his mature consideration of the case, that an arbitrator should be appointed, and Mr. Mills was then asked to act on behalf of the Commissioner.

In reply to the Commissioner, the Land-valuer stated that notice had been served on lessee as well as holder in fee. The Commissioner then wrote to Mr. Bird, on 3rd May, 1883, that there was no intention of disturbing him during his tenancy.

The Commissioner wrote further :—"I do not think that this will invalidate all claim to compensation, but it should greatly reduce it. H. S. Bird is still in possession. No offer has been made to him, but he has proceeded to arbitration. Will Crown Solicitor take a note of this for the purpose of the arbitration."

Mr. Bird was informed, on 10th July, 1883, that the Scottish Australian Investment Company were authorized to receive the rent for June.

The arbitrators met, but were unable to agree, and they appointed Mr. Thompson as umpire. Mr. Thompson awarded £772 10s.

H. M'L., 29/11/83. Original claim £2,358; Land-valuer's estimate, £793 6s. 8d.; award, £772 10s.

Crown Solicitor, as to action to be taken. We have not disturbed Bird; he is, I understand, still in possession. Ascertain.—C.A.G., 29/11/83. I saw Mr. Woolcott, who states that Mr. Bird vacated the premises on 31st August last.—J.S.S., 30/11/83. Land-valuer to say whether the award is reasonable.—C.A.G., 30/11/83. Taking all the circumstances of the resumption into consideration in this case, together with the uncertainty of Mr. Bird's tenure, the prospect of disturbance in business, and expenses that he was put to in making early arrangements for removal, I consider the award is not unreasonable.—JAMES BYRNES, 4/12/83. Commissioner. Under the circumstances, nothing can be gained by contesting the award; I therefore recommend that we abide by it.—C.A.G., 5/12/83.

Mr. G. Buckham's claim.

Sir,

Oriental Hotel, Pitt-street, Sydney, 17 May, 1882.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your notice, dated the 13th instant, notifying that you had, under the Tramway Act, taken my hotel, and intimating your willingness to treat with me for compensation.

In forwarding you the amount of my claim I beg to submit to your consideration the following facts, viz.—That in September, 1878, when property was much cheaper than it is now, and before the new Licensing Act, which gives a monopoly to existing hotels, had become law, I paid £1,800 for the goodwill of my hotel, and have since then been offered £2,500, which offer I declined to entertain. In consequence of the local option clause in the Licensing Act my license cannot be removed, and will consequently be lost to me.

Although, as you will perceive from the copy of lease sent herewith, that my lease expires in July, 1883, I received, when it was given me, a promise of a new lease, which promise has always been recognized by my good landlords.

My

My business, which is very remunerative (the takings of the hotel, as my bankers can show, from March, 1881, to March, 1882, being £5,907), will be entirely taken, as I cannot get a new license, and will be compelled to sell my furniture and property at a sacrifice.

I trust, under these circumstances, you will consider the claim which I now make, namely £4,000, as reasonable, it being the very lowest sum I can, in justice to myself, ask.

I have, &c.,

GUSTAVE BUCKHAM.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

RESUMPTION OF LAND BETWEEN GEORGE AND PITT STREETS.
(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 24 September, 1884.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 2nd September, 1884, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“(1.) Copies of all letters received by or issued from the Colonial Secretary’s Department in reference to the purchase or resumption of the lands specified in the Schedules to the Approaches to the General Post Office Improvement Bill, and also of all other documents and official minutes bearing upon the same subject, excepting those which have been already published by order of this House.

“(2.) Also a copy of any plan or plans prepared to indicate the nature of the improvements contemplated by the Government in connection with the Post Office Place.”

(Mr. Burns.)

Mr. J. Thompson to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Vickery’s Chambers, Pitt-street, Sydney, 25 September, 1883.

I have been desired by Messrs. Thompson & Giles, of George-street, Sydney, to inform you that they are in treaty with the members of the late Mr. T. Perkins’ family, the owners of the property near the Post Office, for a lengthened and renewed lease of the premises now in their occupation, with a view to building extensive premises for their business.

As there have been at different times propositions for the resumption by the Government of a portion if not the whole of the premises in question for the purpose of a thoroughfare from George-street to Pitt-street, before making final definite arrangements, Messrs. Thompson & Giles wish to ascertain whether there is any intention on the part of the Government to take any action in the matter of resumption of this land, as they must by your reply be guided as to both the nature of the lease about to be arranged for, and as to the nature of the buildings they are about erecting. I may add that this is a matter in which my clients, for several reasons, are obliged to act promptly if at all. Should they find that the Government are shortly about to take action in the matter and to resume the whole of the premises, they would at once be in a position to determine negotiations, as in such a case they would at once decline the lease and take no further steps respecting the building of new premises; on the other hand, should they find that action is likely to be delayed or that the Government have determined to do nothing in the matter, they will then be in a position to act accordingly. They wish to ascertain definitely whether they can accept the proposal for lease made to them and commence building operations on an extensive scale to suit the requirements of their business, and to avoid making any arrangements or erecting any premises which my hereafter be found to be useless or to incumber any action that may be taken by the Government. Awaiting the favour of an early reply,—

I have, &c.,

JOSEPH THOMPSON.

Minute by the Colonial Secretary.

New Street by Post Office frontage from George to Pitt-street.

On further examination I am of opinion that the Government ought to purchase or resume not only Thompson and Giles', but Paling's (formerly Prince, Ogg, & Co.), up to the archway; together these are 115 feet. I suppose the value is not less than £900 per foot, or £105,000

Probable business interruption	40,000
Similar frontage to Pitt-street, say 117 feet at £600	70,200
Business interruption	10,000
Intermediate separate stores	30,000
Making and grading new street, 100 feet wide	10,000

£265,200

Per contra, we would have for sale to George-street, 78 feet corner lot, with 45 feet to the new street, which would then be the finest site in the whole city, and would bring from 11 to £1,200 per foot, say at £1,000 £78,000
To Pitt-street, 80 feet, say £700 per foot 56,000

leaving for £134,000

265 feet to the new street, costing £500 per foot, and I have no doubt it would realise that fully.

Thus we could make a magnificent 100 feet wide street, probably without cost, while by resuming Giles' and corresponding Pitt-street frontage we could not make a 66 feet road without some cost.

The purchasers should be bound to build to a plan.

Sir, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 20 October, 1883.

In reply to your letter of the 25th ultimo, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that it is the intention of the Government immediately to purchase or resume the land on the north side of the General Post Office, from George to Pitt Streets.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER.

Minute by the Colonial Secretary.

Resumption or purchase of land for Post Office Street.

I FIND on further examination, since my minute of 20th ult., that the buildings at the back of Prince, Ogg, & Co.'s Pitt-street frontage are much more extensive than I had thought, and being attached to and worked with other buildings on the northerly adjoining land, compensation for severance would be very large.

I have therefore reconsidered the plans with the view of resuming or purchasing, on the Pitt-street frontage, only Mr. Holt's land, but continuing the plan of purchasing Mr. Paling's on the George-street frontage.

This involves a change of plan in width of the new street which, to give a reasonable shop depth on the northern side of Holt's land, could not be more than 80 feet.

* Plan E.

I would like another copy* of the plan in the Legislative Assembly paper of 1876-7, showing a line 80 feet from Post Office and then showing the depths which would remain for sale on the Holt portion, and also on the Perkins cum Paling portion.

† Plan F.

From sale plan† herewith it will be seen that a 22 feet lane is available to the north of Paling's, leading to a lane parallel to George-street, a foot lane opposite centre of Post Office or over tank stream might probably be left about 8 feet wide, giving access to those back lanes. This might be indicated by dotted lines for further consideration.

The Crown Solicitor to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 8 November, 1883.

I have the honor to return herewith the papers relating to the proposed resumption of land for Post Office street; and with reference to the instructions in your memo. of date 7th November inst., requesting me to prepare notice, to state that if, as I suppose is the case, it is intended that I shall prepare notice of resumption under the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act, it is necessary that I should be furnished with a written description of the land intended to be resumed; the tracing forwarded is not sufficient for this purpose.

I should also be informed for what purpose the land is resumed, and whether money has been voted by Parliament or is available for the erection of the building to be placed on the land.

If, as would seem to be the case from the Honorable the Colonial Secretary's minute, the land is required for the purpose of widening a street or forming a street, I think the land cannot be resumed under the Act referred to, as not being any one of the purposes mentioned in the 7th section of that Act.

I

I think it will probably be found that a right of resumption is reserved to the Crown in the original grants. To ascertain this it should be found of what grants the land required is a portion, and copies of the grants obtained from the Department of Lands.

If the land so required forms a portion of several grants the description should be of the portion taken from each grant, and not one general description embracing the whole.

I have, &c.,
JOHN WILLIAMS,
Crown Solicitor.

The Surveyor of Parks will be good enough to obtain the desired information.—B.C., 14/11/83., C.W.

Memos. by Surveyor of Public Parks.

IN the course of a conversation this morning, Mr. Williams stated that he did not consider that the proposed resumption of Perkins' and Holt's properties would come under the head of either an "approach to" or "subsidiary work in connection with" the Post Office; and that in that case it will be necessary to fall back on the right to resume contained in the original grant, which he thinks is a general one in Holt's case, but in that of Perkins is confined to one purpose, viz. the widening of George-street.

I hope to procure copies of these old grants to-morrow.

W.M.C., 15/11/83.

I HAVE since procured copies of the two old grants referred to, viz., that to Hugh MacDonald, of the land now the property of the Perkins family, which reserves the right to the Governor to "appropriate such part thereof as may be deemed necessary for the making and improving the streets," and that to Saul Lyons, of the land now the property of Thomas Holt, which reserves the right to resume a part or all of it which may be required at any time for any public purpose, twelve calendar months' notice being first given, and the value ascertained by arbitration.

I forward herewith the copies referred to.

Post Office Extension to North.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 20/11/83.

In reply to B.C., I have obtained from the Trigonometrical Branch of the Surveyor-General's Department an exact plan of the two blocks of land held by the Perkins family and the Honorable Thos. Holt respectively.

2. I have also made copies of the duplicates of the original grants, which are kept in the Registrar-General's Department, which copies are at present with the papers in this case.

3. As might be expected, the measurements of the grounds as held differ from those given in the original grants, as shown in the following Table:—

	Grant.	As held.	Difference.
PERKINS' LOT, George-street—	lks.	lks.	lks.
W. to George-street	95·45	100·19	+ 4·74
N.	269·7	260·19	- 9·51
E. by stream running to Tanks	106·18
S.	241·66	238·91	- 2·75
HOLT'S LOT, Pitt-street—
E. to Pitt-street	84·25	84·32	+ 0·07
N.	267	267·77	+ 0·77
W.	81·5	79·58	- 1·92
S.	279·25	278·5	- 0·75

4. The most important discrepancy here is that of the frontage to George-street, 4·74 lks., or a little over 3 feet. How this has arisen I am not yet aware, but Mr. Jaques, who acts for the Perkins estate, has undertaken to ascertain and let me know in a few days; meanwhile I enclose descriptions of the two pieces as held at the present time, and tracing of the trig. plan.*

Proposed resumption of land for extension of General Post Office.

THE accompanying letter from Stephen, Laurence, and Jaques is in reference to the amount of frontage to George-street claimed by Thompson & Giles, which is 3' 1½" in excess of the amount specified in the conveyance to them. If their claim proves to be well founded, the description I have furnished will stand good.

As the papers have gone on to the Crown Solicitor, perhaps it would be as well to forward this to him also.

[Enclosure.]

Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, & Jaques, to The Surveyor of Public Parks.

Dear Sir,

The original grant to the property occupied by Thompson & Giles is in favour of Hugh Macdonald and shews a frontage to George-street of 63 feet. The present proprietors, by themselves and their predecessors in title, have been in undisturbed occupation of 66 feet 1½ inch for more than forty years. They can furnish evidence as to this.

Yours truly,
STEPHEN, LAURENCE, & JAQUES.

Messrs. Hardie & Gorman to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sale Rooms, 133, Pitt-street, Sydney, 10 December, 1883.

Adverting to the verbal communications which our Mr. Gorman has already had with you in reference to the corner property next to the General Post Office, in Pitt-street, belonging to the Honorable Thomas Holt, M.L.C., who is now in Europe, we have the honor to enclose plan, and to state that we are in a position to definitely treat for the sale of the same to the Government for public purposes only.

The property referred to (coloured red on plan) has a frontage of 55 feet 7 inches to Pitt-street by depth of 184 feet 3½ inches along proposed street (as per the certificate of title under Torrens' Act), 176 feet 2½ inches on the northern side, and a width of 53 feet 9 inches at the rear, and comprises the block lying between Thompson & Giles' and Pitt-street.

The property is at the present time under lease to Mr. W. P. Woolcott, at £710 yearly, the lease expiring in 1897, or having about thirteen years to run, and the freehold must be sold subject to this lease.

The price for the entire block is £80,000, at which sum we are instructed to leave it under offer to the Government for ten days from 10th December, subject to a contract being entered into to be confirmed by cablegram by our client.

It is right for us to point out—

- (1.) That Mr. Holt is a seller to the Government only, and for public purposes.
- (2.) That in any action which the Government may take now or in the future in dealing with the properties known as "Thompson & Giles'" and "Paling's," which have been secured, the property which we now offer must be largely benefited.

We desire respectfully to point out that the private thoroughfare at present used on the north side of the General Post Office is not of sufficient width to be legally dedicated as a public thoroughfare, and further, that if the Government were to resume only sufficient of Mr. Holt's property to make the thoroughfare referred to one chain wide, then the whole benefit would follow to our client of having a large frontage to a wider street.

On the other hand, the Government by purchasing the whole block could easily carry out the present scheme of making Post Office Street (say) 80 feet wide, and retain the valuable selling frontage to Pitt-street and Post Office Street, and which doubtless would be advantageously used in the public interest.

We have, &c.,
HARDIE & GORMAN.

Submitted, 13/12/83. Mr. Mills may be invited to value this property; the price named seems to me to be double its value, especially when it is borne in mind that there is a right-of-way, I believe, longitudinally through the land.—A.S., 14/12/83.

The Principal Under Secretary to Mr. J. Y. Mills.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 17 December, 1883.

An offer having been made for the sale to the Government, for the sum of £80,000, of the corner property next to the General Post Office, in Pitt-street, Sydney, marked red on the accompanying plan, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to request that you will be so good as to furnish a valuation To be returned. of the property in question.

Sir,

I have the honor to report that, according to your instructions, I have inspected the property situated next the General Post Office, in Pitt-street, marked red upon the plan furnished for my guidance, returned herewith, which property has been offered to the Government for the sum of £80,000.

I estimate the property as indicated to be worth, at present market value, the sum of £41,688 (forty-one thousand six hundred and eighty-eight pounds sterling).

Messrs.

Messrs. M'Culloch & Pope to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

121, Pitt-street, 28 December, 1883.

We have the honor to direct your attention to the unjustifiable delay which has taken place in the matter of the purchase by the Government of Mr. W. H. Paling's property in George-street. It is now nearly two months since the offer of the property (obtained through Mr. F. T. Humphery without disclosing for whom it was sought) was accepted by yourself, and up to the present time no progress has been made, although repeated applications have been made to the Crown Solicitor.

The offer was made by Mr. Paling at the price named, solely on account of the transaction facilitating his financial operations, and the unnecessary and unjustifiable delay complained of materially diminishes its benefit to him.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Paling has instructed us to give you notice that from this date he will claim 8 per cent. interest upon the purchase money, against which of course he will allow such rent as he may receive from the property.

We have, &c.,

M'CULLOCH & POPE.

Submitted, 4/1/84. Mr. M'Culloch may be written to that a large sale like this cannot be forced; the Crown Solicitor must be satisfied. The price given is so ample a one as to cover some delay, but interest at 8 per cent. being no part of the contract I decline to admit it.—A.S., 4/1/84.

The Crown Solicitor to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 2 January, 1884.

I have the honor to return herewith the papers relating to the proposed resumption of land for Post Office Street, and to state that I have submitted same to Mr. Attorney-General Dalley, a copy of whose advising thereon is attached hereto.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS.

Submitted, 4/1/84. As there seems to be a difficulty about the resumption of these lands, and the recent decision of the Privy Council may throw some doubt as to the power of resuming under the deeds of grant beyond that which is absolutely necessary for the street, the better way will be to bring in a short Bill to deal with them and with Paling's, giving power to sell, &c.—A.S., 4/1/84.

Opinion of the Attorney-General.

Subject: Resumption of land, Pitt and George Streets.

The Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 29 December, 1883.

I AM asked to advise whether the land required in George and Pitt Streets, for the purpose of carrying out the proposed improvements of the thoroughfare from one to the other of these streets on the northern front of the Post Office, should be resumed under the provisions of the "Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act, 44 Vic. No. 16," or under the reservations in the grants to Hugh M'Donald and Saul Lyons, from whom the present owners of the two properties derive the title. By sub-section 3 of section 7, buildings for public offices are enumerated among the public works for which under certain circumstances private property may be resumed; and by the last part of sub-section 15 it is provided that, for the purposes of this section, any such public works shall be taken to include any extension of an approach to a subsidiary work with any such former work. I am aware that the object of this proposed resumption is to provide a spacious thoroughfare between these two streets, and to dispose of whatever land is not required for this purpose to buyers, who will be required to erect buildings in conformity with plans to be submitted to and approved of by the Government. I think it will be hard to justify the proposed resumption as either an approach to or a subsidiary work in connection with the Post Office. Already approaches to the Post Office actually exist on three sides; and although it might and doubtless would tend to the public convenience that the approach on the northern side should be more suitable to the purposes of and the architectural proportions of the building, and would certainly render it a more imposing structure, it is at least doubtful whether such a work would or could be regarded as a necessary approach or a necessary subsidiary work in connection with the Post Office. I have used the word "necessary" because I think public necessity for the resumption must be shown to exist—as an Act which gives such enormous powers of interference with the rights of private persons should be interpreted strictly.

I think the powers under the grants may be more safely exercised. That contained in the grant to Hugh M'Donald reserves the right to the Governor "to appropriate such part thereof as may be deemed necessary for the making and improving the streets," and that to Saul Lyons reserves "the right to resume any portion, all of which may be required at any time for any public purposes." The inconvenience accompanying the exercise of this power under the grant would be, first, that of delay—twelve calendar months' notice being required to be given to the proprietor; and second, that the claim would have to be determined by arbitration, and not as provided for by sections 12, 13, 14, and 15 of the Resumption Act.

W. B. D.,
A.G.

The Principal Under Secretary to Messrs. M'Culloch & Pope.

Gentlemen,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8 January, 1884.

In reply to your letter of the 28th ultimo, respecting the delay that has taken place in the matter of the purchase by the Government of Mr. W. H. Paling's property in George-street, I am directed to inform you that a large sale like that referred to cannot be forced, as the Crown Solicitor must be satisfied, and the price given is so ample as to cover some delay; but that interest at 8 per centum being no part of the contract, the Colonial Secretary declines to admit it.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER.

Messrs.

Messrs. M'Culloch & Pope to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

121, Pitt-street, 10 January, 1884.

We have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, and in reply we have to say that it is monstrous to characterize the pressure we have brought to bear to get some progress made in this matter as "forcing" the sale. We complain that, although the contract was made in October last, the Crown Solicitor has not up to this time received any instructions to investigate the title, and that consequently no progress has been made.

We direct your attention to the fact that the offer of the property was given upon the assumption that the purchasers (who were not disclosed) were substantive men, and that there would be no unreasonable delay in the settlement of the matter. The only inducement for the sale was a speedy settlement, so as to facilitate our client's financial operations, and he does not, nor do we, regard the price agreed to be paid as anything more than a fair equivalent if promptly paid for the valuable property sold.

We think that your legal advisers will tell you that our client is entitled to demand 8 per cent. interest on the purchase money after a reasonable time has elapsed for settlement, and we shall certainly advise our client to insist upon its payment if the matter should be completed; but he informs us that he is now making arrangements which will render the sale inadvisable, in which case he will give you notice of cancellation of the contract.

We have, &c.,

M'CULLOCH & POPE.

Submitted, 11/1/84. The Crown Solicitor will please carry this sale to completion.—A.S.,

Messrs. Want, Johnson, & Scarvell to The Minister for Works.

Sir,

60, Pitt-street, Sydney, 23 January, 1884.

The attention of the Directors of the Colonial Mutual Life Assurance Society (Limited) has been directed to a paragraph that lately appeared in one of the daily newspapers of this city, to the effect that the Government were proposing to resume the premises situate in Pitt-street, adjoining the land in front of the General Post Office, at present held on lease by this Society.

This announcement has considerably prejudiced the Society in letting portion of their premises, of which notice has already been given to quit, and it is anticipated that other portions will shortly become vacant in consequence of the uncertainty of the tenure which the Society is able to grant, as no tenants would care to take them for an indefinite period except at a considerably reduced rental.

We are therefore instructed by the Directors of the Society to respectfully submit that they should have an assurance from the Government as to their intentions, that is to say, whether the Government have decided to resume the property, and if so, at what date, or that the Government have no intention of making such resumption.

The Society has for some time had in contemplation the erection of substantial buildings on the vacant land and the remodelling of the premises at present occupied by them, so as to enhance the value of their present leasehold, but have been debarred from so doing in consequence of the uncertainty of the Government in their intention to resume or otherwise.

We have, &c.,

WANT, JOHNSON, & SCARVELL.

Will my hon. colleague the Colonial Secretary deal with this matter.—F.A.W., 24/1/84. Principal Under Secretary, B.C., 28/1/84.—J.R. The Secretary to the Attorney-General, with reference to previous papers, B.C., 1/2/84.—C.W.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 23 January, 1884.

I have the honor to return the papers herein, and to request that I may be supplied, at your earliest convenience, with a surveyor's description and plan of the land purchased.

The plan should show the original boundary lines of the Crown grant,—the distance of the land from the present southern building-line of Hunter-street,—the position thereon of all buildings or walls, or of ways or passages adjoining.

If the land has been purchased under any special conditions, I should be instructed as to what those conditions are without delay.

I HAVE marked on the accompanying plan* the distance of the land from the southern building-line of Hunter-street, and I have shown upon it the position of adjacent buildings, walls, and ways.

The position of the original boundary-lines of the Crown grant can probably be arrived at from the deeds in the possession of the Crown Solicitor, and the sale plan of the Chisholm Estate, which is also in his hands.

Re Resumption of Land for Post Office Street.

Parliamentary Draftsman's Chambers, Crown Law Department, 13 February, 1884.

ARE the following assumptions correct?

1. The Bill will be to resume and vest in Her Majesty two (2) portions of land contained in two Crown grants, as per descriptions, for the purpose of forming a street (Post Office Street) 80 feet wide, and for disposing of the residue of resumed land not required, by public auction or private contract, subject to a covenant to build on such land in accordance with a prescribed plan; and that the purchase money for the land to be resumed is to be ascertained, as under the Lands for Public Purposes Resumption Act—i.e., by a Jury.

It will be desirable that some officer should be instructed to see me and explain exactly what is required in connection with the plans, &c., returned herewith.

The Parliamentary Draftsman.—W.W.S., 20/2/84. I have seen Mr. Cooper, and find that it seems uncertain how much in Holt's grant is to be taken. It would seem to be the better course to resume the whole of the land required in one block, and then dedicate a back lane, so getting rid of the Tank-stream right-of-way. Would that course be acceptable to the Colonial Secretary?—The Principal Under Secretary, B.C., 25/2/84. A.O.

* Plan E.

I BEG to forward herewith, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, a plan* showing the position of the various pieces of land involved in the question, and of a street 80 feet in width adjoining the G.P.O., and the depth of the land which will front on it.

2. It will be observed by this, that if only the three pieces marked A B and C be purchased or resumed, about half of the frontage to the proposed new street will not possess a sufficient depth to make it available for the erection of first-class buildings. To make it of a depth sufficient for this purpose the property marked D will have to be acquired.

3. This belongs to the Hon. Thos. Holt, and is leased to Messrs. Prince, Ogg, & Co. for a term of years from 1/7/84. It is unfortunately covered with a large brick building of four stories, lately erected by P. O. & Co. for a dry goods warehouse, and other older buildings, the total cost of which has been, Mr. Jamieson informs me, £22,000. There is a warehouse of three stories on the north side, marked E on plan, also erected by P. O. & Co. on Mr. Holt's land, at a cost of £6,500, and connected internally with the other buildings. This would be useless to the firm, and some compensation would therefore be claimed on account of it.

4. The ground in question has a frontage of about 62 feet to Pitt-street, which is worth at the figure quoted by me in my report of 11/10/83 (No. 83-59), viz., £700 per foot, £43,000 for the freehold.

5. Compensation for disturbance and loss in removal would probably bring up the total amount to be paid to £80,000.

6. On the other hand, the land which would be left in the hands of the Government, after providing for an 80-foot road next the Post Office, would be considerably enhanced in value by the acquisition of this additional ground, as will appear from the following rough calculation :—

1. If Prince, Ogg, & Co.'s property is taken, the land fronting Post Office-place and Pitt-street will bring in,—

Post Office-place, 103 × 79 feet, @ £700 per foot	£72,100
Pitt-street corner, 20 × 80 feet, @ £1,000 per foot	20,000
„ remainder, 53 × 80 feet, @ £700 per foot.....	37,100
„ archway, 20 × 80 feet, @ £200 per foot	4,000

£133,200

2. If it is not taken, the proceeds will be,—

Post Office-place, 103 × 27 feet, @ £400 per foot	£41,200
Pitt-street corner, 20 × 80 feet, @ £1,000 per foot	20,000
„ remainder, 12 × 80 feet, @ £700 per foot.....	8,400

69,600

Cost of Prince, Ogg, & Co.'s land, say

63,600

80,000

Estimated loss

£16,400

So that there appears little doubt that the large amount of compensation to be paid would render the transaction unremunerative, in spite of the greatly increased prices which would be obtained for the frontages to Post Office Place, provided that the price of these frontages would be £700 per foot. I believe that for such a depth the price realized would be higher; and if it should reach £860 per foot, the deficiency given above would disappear.

W. M. COOPER.

Messrs. Hardie & Gorman to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sale Rooms, 133, Pitt-street, 27 May, 1884.

We have the honor, by consent of the Hon. Thomas Holt, who is now resident out of the Colony, to offer for sale to the Government his two valuable and large city properties as shown on the plan which we submit herewith, both coloured pink.

Lot 1 is the property known as Denison's Chambers, commodious and well built, let to Mr. Woolcott, and at present occupied by Colonial Mutual Life and Fire Companies and others, erected on a block of land having 55 feet 7 in. frontage to Pitt-street, 53 feet 9 in. along the tank stream, by depth of 176 feet 2 in. on the north side, and 184 feet 3 in. on the south side adjoining the Post Office passage and backing on to Mr. Perkins' property tenanted by Messrs. Thompson & Giles.

This property is let to Mr. W. P. Woolcott for a period of twenty-one years from 1st January, 1876, at £710 yearly, increasing to £1,100 yearly, should the Government open the street along the front of the General Post Office.

The residue of the lease is thirteen years from the 1st January last.

Lot 2 is the property known as "Mort's Buildings" adjoining Bell's Chambers, consisting of commodious warehouse and offices erected on block of land having 61 feet 8 in. frontage to Pitt-street, widening considerably along the tank stream, by the full depth of 194 feet 8 in. on the north side, and 176 feet 2 inches on the south side adjoining Lot 1, and immediately backing on to the property occupied by Messrs. Paling & Co. (Limited), which was lately purchased by the Government for the sum of £65,000.

This property is held under lease by Sir William Anderson Ogg, Kt., for the conduct of the business of Messrs. Prince Ogg, & Co. for a period of twenty-one years from 1st October, 1875, at a rental of £1,100 for the first eleven years, and £1,350 for the remainder of the term.

The unexpired portion of the lease is twelve years from the 1st October next.

The price for lots 1 and 2 is one hundred and fifty thousand pounds (£150,000) cash, or we have no doubt our client would be willing to accept Government 4 per cent debentures in full payment.

In submitting these properties it must, in the first place be distinctly understood that Mr. Holt will not sell either the one or both of these properties to any private individual or corporation, and that the property is offered to the Government solely in the interest of the public. As an earnest of this, the properties are offered subject to the approval of Parliament (should the Government think it wise or necessary to first obtain it), and upon the distinct understanding that the approval or otherwise of Parliament must be obtained on or before 1st July next.

It should be remembered that the leases were created eight or nine years ago respectively, before the higher prices for city properties were so unmistakably established; and that should he not sell to the Government, Mr. Holt will eventually receive all the substantial improvements erected at a cost of many thousands of pounds by his tenants since the date of the leases.

We venture the opinion that for the purposes of beautifying the city and facilitating the convenience of the public in the general use of the magnificent Post Office buildings, it would be a good and a wise thing for the Government to purchase these properties at the present time.

The lateral space of the choicest business positions in the heart of the city is becoming yearly more limited and valuable, consequently any future attempt to purchase must be necessarily at a much higher figure.

Minute by the Colonial Secretary.

Post Office Street and buildings adjoining it.

I wish Mr. Mills to give me his opinion upon this matter, and the values of the various buildings. It seems that Mr. Holt owns two blocks in Pitt-street, to the north of the proposed new street. His ideas of the value however, as set forth in Messrs. Hardie & Gorman's letter of 27th inst. seem to me quite preposterous. Moreover, in No. 1 the Government has power under the grant to resume at any time, and therefore the right of the lessee seems to me to be extinguished the moment the resumption is made. I am not aware whether No. 2 has any similar clause in its grant, but it ought to be examined into, as it would make a material difference in the valuation of Sir William Ogg's rights as a lessee.

The existence of such right in one or both of these blocks would also I think materially affect the value to Mr. Holt, for it is evident that he has based his value not on present rentals which he receives, but upon some imaginary rental which he thinks possible in the future, but which can never be realized if the Government exercises the power which I believe it has under the deed of grant.

As Holt's, Thompson and Giles', and Paling's purchases or resumptions, must be dealt with in a special Bill, it now becomes necessary to consider what the extension of the purchase on resumption ought to be. On this I think Mr. Mills may be able to give me some valuable advice. I think the street ought, if possible, to be 80 feet at least in width, so as to set off the façade of the Post Office.

Will Mr. Mills kindly furnish the desired information.—J. Y. MILLS, Esq. B. C., 3rd June, 1884.—C.W., P.U.S. Papers to be returned.

Mr. W. H. Paling to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

356, George-street, Sydney, 16 June, 1884.

I have the honor to draw your attention to the non-settlement for the property sold by me to the New South Wales Government. My solicitors have long since done their part, and it remains for the Crown Solicitor to send to them the conveyance (of the equity of redemption), a draft of which said gentleman promised to send them before 27th of March last.

As already intimated to you, the sale was made for financial reasons; and it is accordingly very inconvenient, and I conceive unjust, that I should be kept all this time without the purchase money. I therefore respectfully request that you will cause immediate steps to be taken to complete the purchase, and thereby prevent the further serious inconvenience that I am suffering from this protracted settlement.

Requesting your favourable reply,—

Sydney, 20 June, 1884.

Adverting to our letter of May 27th, in which we offered certain properties to the Government, subject to existing leases, on account of the Honorable Thos. Holt, we desire to correct a mistake in reference to lot 2.

We were in error in stating that the property occupied by Messrs. Prince, Ogg, & Co. was leased to Sir W. A. Ogg. We find that our client, Mr. Holt, leased the same to the late Mr. Henry Prince, and has not received notice of any transfer by him or by his executors.

Sir,

Land Sale Rooms, 130 Pitt-street, Sydney, 23 June, 1884.

In accordance with your instructions of 3rd June, I have examined the property owned by Mr. T. Holt in Pitt-street, joining the General Post Office, Sydney, and at the rear of the property purchased by the Government from Mr. W. H. Paling.

The portion marked No. 1 on the plan furnished to me with the papers has had some new buildings and alteration made since my former valuation in December, 1883; these would be covered by an addition of £500, making the present value for the Government (£42,188) forty-two thousand one hundred and eighty-eight pounds sterling. This is the property under lease to Mr. Woolcott.

The

The portion marked No. 2 on the plan is under lease to Messrs. Prince, Ogg, & Co., on which have been erected recently some extensive warehouse premises of double compressed brick.

I estimate the present value of this property to be (£61,375) sixty-one thousand three hundred and seventy-five pounds sterling.

Re Post Office resumption, George and Pitt Streets.

Mr. Walker,

I have had a conversation with Mr. Cooper, Surveyor of Parks, with reference to these resumptions, &c. He will suggest, I have no doubt, the necessary steps for procuring surveyor's descriptions of the various blocks which will have to be dealt with in the Bill.

I should however be glad to have the Colonial Secretary's further instructions on the points mentioned over leaf, which I have, for the purpose of economizing time, placed in the form of proposals.

1. I propose to deal with these four blocks, as blocks A, B, C, D (A being Paling's block, which I understand to have been purchased by agreement). It will not therefore require to be resumed. Surveyor's description of these four blocks will, I presume, be arranged for by Mr. Cooper; three, I think, are already complete.

2. I propose to resume blocks B, C, and D by a process similar to that provided by the Public Purposes Lands Resumption Act, vesting those three portions, together with block A, in the Minister for Public Works, for the purposes of the Act, viz. :—

- (a) Widening and forming to 80 (?) feet the lane now known as Post Office Place, and
- (β) Of selling, subject to specified terms and conditions, at public auction the balance of the four blocks.
- (γ) Power being taken to form any lane or lanes for access to buildings.
- (δ) All buildings fronting the new street to be erected according to plan, to be approved by the Governor in Council.

3. I propose to embody the whole of the resumption and litigation portion of the Resumption Act mentioned in 2.

The Bill will extinguish all existing rights of way to which any of the blocks may be subject.

I have been in some doubt whether the intended resumption might not be carried out by enacting that the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act should be applied to the resumption of the three blocks, B, C, and D, with the same effect as if those blocks had been specifically mentioned in it; but on second thoughts I think it safe to re-enact the necessary clauses in this Bill.

Will Mr. Stuart kindly say whether the power of resuming given by the grants to Hugh M'Donald, 20/51,819, and to Lyons, 13/3/1,839, are to be ignored and the land resumed by special act. See Attorney-General's opinion with papers of 29th December last. It seems to me that the powers to appropriate given by the grant to M'Donald would, at all events, only extend to the widening, &c., of the street, and could not be acted upon for the purpose of taking land for that purpose, and for the purpose also of selling.

A.O., 27/6/84.

The Surveyor of Public Parks to The Colonial Secretary.

Extension of Post Office to North.

I HAVE been across to Neutral Bay to see Mr. Oliver on this matter, and after discussing the various points involved, Mr. Oliver would like further instructions in regard to the following:—

1. Will the Government act upon the power reserved to it in M'Donald's and Lyons' original grants? In the former case the power is unlimited in extent, but compensation must be paid; in the latter, the power is limited to the making and improving the streets, and no compensation is mentioned, vide copies of grants with the papers.

2. If not, will the Government resume the whole of the ground proposed to be acquired, including Paling's, with a view to obviate any difficulty which might arise either in proving the title or in ascertaining the exact boundaries?

3. In the event of Government deciding to resume, will it be well to embody in the proposed Bill the clauses of 44 Vic. No. 16 which prescribe the manner in which resumption is to be carried out, and the amount of compensation to be arrived at?

4. In whom is the estate to be vested?

5. Is the proposed new street to be handed over, like other streets, to the Municipal Council of Sydney, or retained in the hands of Government, or disposed of in any other way?

6. Would it not be well to include in the Bill a general power of closing and laying out lanes through any part of the ground; and, if so, in whom are they to be vested?

W. M. COOPER.
27/6/84.

P.S.—I may add that I have already furnished descriptions of blocks* A, B, and C, and I now * Plan E. propose to take steps to ascertain the boundaries of block D, so as to furnish a description of it also at an early date.

Minute

Minute by Colonial Secretary.

Subject : Purchase or resumption of buildings in vicinity of General Post Office.

In reply to Hardie & Gorman's letters of 27th May and 20th June, it may be stated that the Government, having fully considered the matter, examined the site, and obtained the valuation of independent persons, considers the price asked for the two allotments far beyond their value, even allowing all the benefit derived from the situation. On examining the grants, the Colonial Secretary finds that there is a power of resumption reserved to the Government for any purpose of public improvement; and although he quite admits that in the event of such resumption a recognition must be given to the value, yet he considers that the fact of this reservation existing in the grant must have due weight in the consideration either of the owners' or lessees' occupancy value.

If Messrs. Hardie & Gorman or Mr. Holt are prepared to reconsider their offer, it is far from his desire to put them to the annoyance of their properties being taken possession of, either under the resumption clause in the grant, or under powers of resumption in the Public Lands Acquisition Act, or any special Act which may be introduced to deal with these or adjoining lands. There is no doubt that the formation of a wide street alongside the Post Office would be an immense improvement to the city, but even such improvements may be purchased at too dear a rate; and this the Colonial Secretary considers would be the case at the price at which the land is offered by Messrs. Hardie & Gorman.

The Colonial Secretary is in some degree of doubt whether the high price at which these lands are offered includes compensation which may be claimed by the lessees; but even if it does he still considers the price far in excess of the value for the purposes required.

A. S.,

2nd July, 1884.

The Principal Under Secretary to Messrs. Hardie and Gorman.

Gentlemen,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 5 July, 1884.

In reply to your letters, dated respectively the 27th May last and the 20th ultimo, offering for sale to the Government certain property, owned by the Honorable Thomas Holt, adjacent to the General Post Office, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that the Government having fully considered the matter, examined the site, and obtained the valuation of independent persons, considers the price asked far beyond their value, even allowing all the benefit derived from the situation.

2. On examining the grants, the Colonial Secretary finds that there is a power of resumption reserved to the Government for any purpose of public improvement; and although he quite admits that in the event of such resumption a recognition must be given to the value, yet it is considered that the fact of this reservation existing in the grant must have due weight in the consideration either of the owner's or lessee's occupancy value. If, however, you or Mr. Holt are prepared to reconsider the offer, it is far from the Colonial Secretary's desire to put Mr. Holt to the annoyance of the properties being taken possession of either under the resumption clause in the grant, or under the powers of resumption in the "Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act," or any special Act that may be introduced to deal with these or adjoining lands.

3. I am to add that the Colonial Secretary is in some doubt whether the high price at which the lands in question are offered includes compensation which may be claimed by the lessees, but even if it does Mr. Stuart considers the price far in excess of the value for the purposes required.

I have &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER.

Messrs. Hardie & Gorman to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

133, Pitt-street, Sydney, 3 August, 1884.

We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 5th ultimo, being in reply to ours of May 27th and June 20th last, in reference to property adjacent to the General Post Office owned by Mr. Thomas Holt, and which we were commissioned to offer to the Government, subject to the existing leases, for the sum of £150,000.

In reference to the second paragraph of your letter, we have no doubt that Mr. Holt will fully appreciate the kind consideration shown by the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, when he says he has no desire to put him to the annoyance of the properties being taken possession of (1) either under the resumption clause in the grant, or (2) "under the powers of resumption in the Land for Public Purposes Acquisition Act," or (3) "under any special Act that may be passed to deal with these or adjoining lands."

You admit that, in the event of resumption under the power reserved in the grant, "a recognition must be given of the value," for now, after the lapse of so many years, and after Sydney has been covered with valuable properties which have changed hands again and again, it would be unjust to revive reservations which have practically lapsed, which were not intended for purposes such as that now contemplated, and which, in fact, have been determined by the incorporation of the city, and by municipal action in the alignment of the streets of the metropolis.

We think you will also perceive that the power of the Government in respect to resumption under the reservations in the original grant is not greater than nor really different from the power given by the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act, which authorizes the Government to resume land for public purposes only, and not for the purpose of taking a part for public use and selling the remainder at a profit.

When the Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act was in Committee in the Legislative Council, Mr. Holt, who was then a Member of the House, warmly supported the 7th clause, and said (as recorded in "Hansard"), "It was very desirable that the Government should have power to purchase land for public purposes without delay, otherwise they might often be unable to get the land they wanted, or be compelled to pay a higher price than they need have done." But, during the same discussion, Mr. Holt asked for an assurance that, under the general powers contained in the clause, the Government "would not attempt to acquire land of which they would keep a portion for public purposes and sell the remainder to pay for the whole."

Mr.

Mr. Samuel, who at that time represented the Government in the Upper House, stated in reply, that that "part of the clause which generalized the power to acquire land" did not authorize the Government to take land for such a purpose as that mentioned by the Hon. Member, but that the land must be taken for a public purpose and for public works. (See "Hansard," p. 1996, 15th April, 1880.)

Since that time there has been a deliverance on the subject by a Judge of the High Court of Justice in London—we refer to the case "Gard v. the Commissioners of Sewers for the City of London," reported in the Times, 27th July, 1883. In that case the Commissioners had taken more land than they required to widen a street, with a view of thereby making a profit.

Mr. Justice Kay declared the adjudication of the Commissioners ultra vires and wrong, and restrained them from proceeding further in the matter. His Lordship also said, "The Act of Parliament meant that the Commissioners were not to take more of the houses than they bonâ fide adjudged to be necessary for the physical purpose of widening the street.

This leads us to your third suggestion, namely, that our client's land might be resumed under a special Act which might be passed by the Legislature of this Colony.

We think it might be fairly assumed that the Legislature, in a matter of this kind, would not go beyond the legal and equitable view taken by Mr. Justice Kay in the case we have cited—that it would not do so great an injustice as to deprive any citizen of his property in order to use a portion only for public purposes and reap the profit to be obtained from the remainder. Therefore we need not dwell upon a course of action which is improbable, nor need we refer to the injustice which might be possible under such a law if it were not disallowed by the Crown. We are therefore thrown back on the equities of the case.

As we have already informed you, the land which the Government desires to possess is not in the market.

Our client would not sell to any private individual, but only to the Government, for the purpose of facilitating a much-desired public improvement; and to show that he does not desire to sell, we may mention that he had instructed his attorneys to negotiate for the purchase of Mr. Perkins' land, with the view to the carrying out of an extensive plan for beautifying that part of the city; they were, in fact, moving towards that object when the Government bought Mr. Paling's land, and intercepted them by resuming the land of Mr. Perkins.

This question of widening the street in front of the Post Office has been under consideration for many years; all along Mr. Holt has been willing to meet the Government fairly, and Parliamentary papers which have been published show that as recently as 23rd May, 1878, he wrote: "I do not think that a private person can have any reasonable cause of complaint when any portion of his land is resumed for a public purpose and is paid for it at its appraised value."

The same papers, however, also show that he would resist to the uttermost any attempt to resume any portion of his land not for public use, but to make a profit thereon.

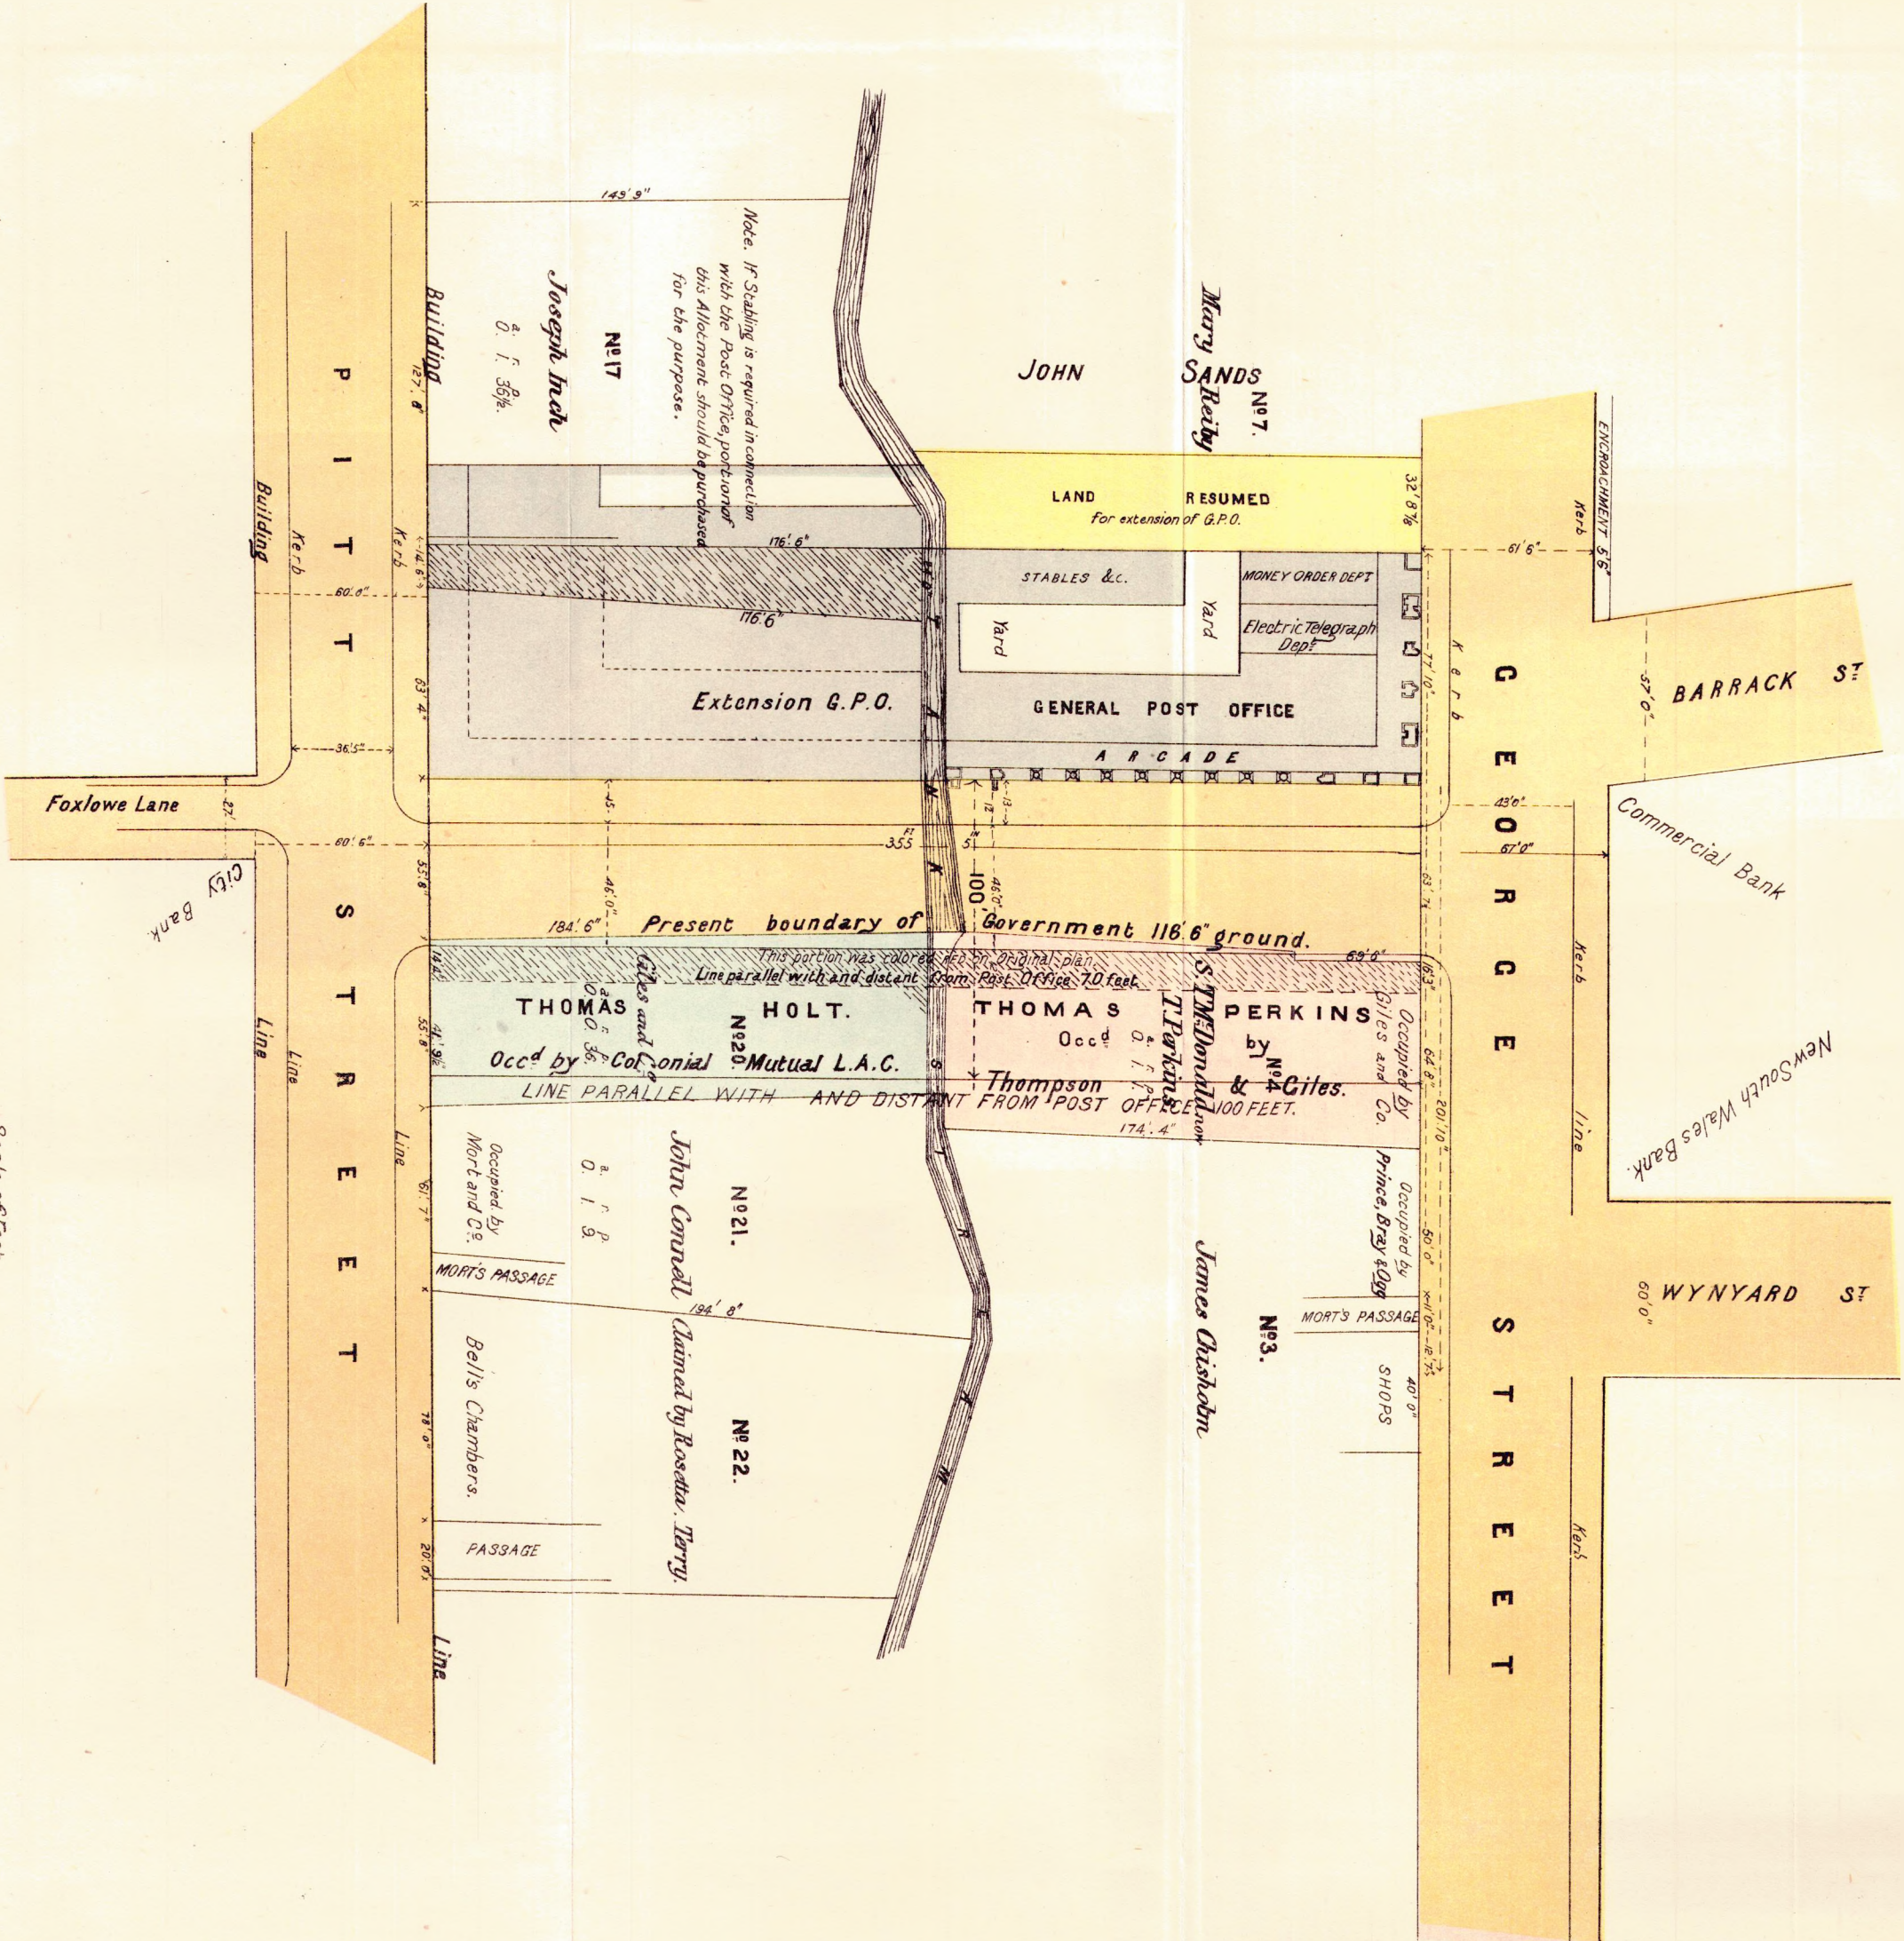

In conclusion, we beg to say the time during which we were instructed to make the offer has expired, and we have no authority to proceed further; but if the Government desire to make an offer to Mr. Holt in keeping with the price named, £150,000, we shall have much pleasure in submitting it, but it must be distinctly understood that any offer now made must be subject to Mr. Holt's approval.

We have, &c.,

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 8 May, 1884.

RETURN in answer to a Question asked the Postmaster-General, on Thursday, 8th May, 1884, by Mr. Merriman,—

- (1.) Who is the Contractor for cartage of Telegraph material within the City of Sydney, and what are the rates of cartage?
- (2.) Were tenders for cartage of Telegraph material called for on 1st February last, to be sent in not later than 5th March last?
- (3.) What are the names of the different Tenderers, and the different rates of cartage for the City?

Answer.

- (1.) The cartage of Telegraph material within the City of Sydney is at present being performed by the City Carrying Company, at the rate of 2s. 5d. per load, or 2s. 5d. per horse per hour.
- (2.) Yes.
- (3.) Wright, Heaton, & Co.—3s. per ton, or 2s. 6d. per horse per hour [1 cwt., 1s.; 1 to 5 cwt., 1s. 6d.; 5 to 10 cwt., 2s.; 10 to 15 cwt., 2s. 6d.; 15 to 20 cwt., 3s.]
James M'Mahon & Co.—2s. 3d. per ton, or 2s. per horse per hour [1 to 28 lbs., 3d.; 28 to 56 lbs., 6d.; 56 to 112 lbs., 8d.; 1 to 5 cwt., 1s. 3d.; 5 to 10 cwt., 1s. 6d.; 10 to 15 cwt., 2s. 2d.; 15 to 20 cwt., 2s. 6d.]
W. E. Walbran.—2s. 3d. per ton, or per horse.
The City Carrying Company.—2s. 5d. per ton, or horse per hour.

NOTE.—None of these Tenders was accepted; forage being high, it was thought better to continue present arrangements, which can be terminated at any time, and again call for tenders when forage is cheaper, rather than enter into a lengthened contract.

COURT-HOUSE AND TELEGRAPH OFFICE, TUMBERUMBA.

No. 1.

G. Day, Esq., M.P., to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Albury, 24 July, 1878.

I have the honor to enclose copies of resolutions which were passed at a public meeting held at Tumberumba, on Monday last, with reference to the state of the roads and streets, &c., in that locality, and I trust that you will take the necessary steps to have a sufficient sum of money placed on the Estimates for the purpose * * * * *

The Court-house too wants immediate repairs in order to prevent it from falling down. I would therefore feel thankful if you would kindly see that the works alluded to are attended to as soon as possible. The favour of a reply will much oblige.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE DAY.

Colonial Architect.—J.R., B.C., 29/7/78.

[Enclosures.]

P. D. Ramsay, Esq., to G. Day, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Tumberumba, 19 July, 1878.

Enclosed you will find a copy of certain resolutions passed at a public meeting held here on Monday last. I have been requested by the meeting to forward them to you, in order that you may be able to bring under the notice of the Government the wants of this long neglected portion of the Albury district.

With regard to the first resolution—a Court-house and Telegraph Office—I may state that the buildings in use for those purposes at present are a disgrace to the township. The Court-house is in fact in such a tumble-down state that it is unsafe to be in it * * * * *

I remain, &c.,

P. D. RAMSAY.

Public meeting, held at Tumberumba, on Monday, the 22nd instant.

Proposed by Mr. W. Travis, seconded by Mr. Berdeau:—"That this meeting considers that a new Post and Telegraph Office are urgently required for this township, and that our member, Mr. Day, be requested to use his best endeavours to have a sum of money placed on the Estimates for the purpose."—Carried unanimously. * * * * *

No. 2.

The Residents of Tumberumba to G. Day, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Tumberumba, 27 May, 1879.

I am requested by the inhabitants of Tumberumba to ask you to call the attention of the authorities to the dangerous state of the Court-house here. It is just a matter of a few days with the whole affair tumbling down, when if any person happens to be in it at the time it will either cause their death or maim them for life. At present the Clerk of Petty Sessions is compelled to use one of the lock-up cells for an office. This is a state of things that should not be, and I am sure if you make proper representations to the Government that it will not be so. Some of the Justices decline to sit on the Bench, owing to the unsafe state of the building. The Bench have addressed a letter to the Minister of Justice on the subject, and I trust you will back them up in having a grievance we have been labouring under for some time remedied.

I am, &c.,

P. D. RAMSAY,

On behalf of the residents of Tumberumba.

Will the Minister kindly let me know if the Government intend to repair the Court-house at Tumberumba. I may say that something must be done before long with the building or it will fall down; in fact, I think a new Court-house should be built without delay, as Tumberumba is becoming an important place.—G. DAY, 9/6/79. The Secretary for Public Works, in reference to previous papers.—F.B.S., 10 June, '79. The Under Secretary for Public Works.—W.E.P., B.C., 11 June, 1879. Colonial Architect.—G.H., B.C., 11 June, 1879.

No. 3.

The Bench of Magistrates, Tumberumba, to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Tumberumba, 28 May, 1879.

We have the honor to bring under your notice the dilapidated state of the Tumberumba Court-house. The fireplace has partly fallen in, and now that the wet weather has set in, it is only a matter of a day or so with the chimney to fall, and cause a vast amount of injury to the rest of the building, as also to endanger the lives of any person who might happen to be inside at the time. In fact, so unsafe has it become, that the Clerk of Petty Sessions has been compelled to remove all the books and records into one of the lock-up cells, where he has his office at present.

We hope that you will give this matter your immediate attention, as it is not safe for any person to remain in the building for a moment; in fact some of the Justices decline to sit on the Bench, alleging as a reason that by doing so they run the risk of either losing their lives or being seriously injured. We have brought the matter under the notice of Mr. Adams, the Public Works officer here, and he coincides with us in saying that the building is very unsafe, and that any person going into it does so at the risk of his life.

We have, &c.,

W. TRAVIS, J.P.,

Immediate.—

Immediate.—The Secretary for Public Works, in reference to previous papers.—F.B.S., 31st May, 1879. The Under Secretary for Public Works.—W.E.P., B.C., 3rd June, 1879. Colonial Architect.—G.H., B.C., 6th June, 1879. Minute of Minister for Works:—Repairs to Court-house, Tumberumba—Mr. Day. Will the Colonial Architect expedite, as the Minister wishes to send an early reply to Mr. Day.—G.H., B.C., 16/6/79. An officer leaves Albury to inspect Court-house, Tumberumba, and obtain tenders for repairs, to-morrow afternoon.—J.B., 16th June, '79. Inform Mr. Day.—G.H., 18/6/79. G. Day, M.P., 20/6/79. Colonial Architect.—G.H., B.C., 20/6/79.

Gentlemen, Department of Justice and Public Instruction, Sydney, 3 June, 1879.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice and Public Instruction to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th ultimo, drawing attention to the dilapidated state of the Court-house, Tumberumba, and to inform you that same has been forwarded to the Works Department, with a view to the matter receiving immediate attention.

Sir, Department of Justice, Sydney, 12 June, 1879.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice and Public Instruction to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. P. D. Ramsay's letter, forwarded by you to this Department, calling attention to the dangerous state of the Court-house at Tumberumba, and to state that same has been brought under the notice of the Works Department, with reference to previous papers on the subject.

The Acting Under Secretary for Public Works to G. Day, Esq., M.P.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Sydney, 20 June, 1879.

Referring to your personal representations respecting repairs required at the Court-house, Tumberumba, I am directed to inform you that it appears from a report which has been received from the Colonial Architect, that an officer of his Department was instructed to proceed from Albury, on the 17th instant, for the purpose of inspecting the Court-house in question, and to obtain local tenders for the necessary works.

I have, &c.,

GERALD HALLIGAN,
Acting Under Secretary.

No. 7.

G. Day, Esq., M.P., to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir, Sydney, 13 November, 1879.

I have the honor to enclose a letter from the Bench of Magistrates at Tumberumba, calling attention to the dilapidated condition of Court-house at that township, and I would feel thankful if you would place (say) £1,000 on this year's estimates for the purpose of building a Court-house and small Telegraph Office at that place. I may say that something will have to be done at once, as the old wooden buildings cannot possibly last much longer.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE DAY.

[Enclosure.]

Messrs. N. N. Gitchell & W. Travis, J.P.s, to G. Day, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Tumberumba, 4 November, 1879.

Now that Parliament has met, we would remind you of a few of our local wants.

In the first place, there is a new Court-house and Police Barracks urgently required here. Those in use at present are built of wood and are in a disgraceful state, in fact we are justified in saying that they are not fit to live in. Concerning the Court-house, we can only reiterate what Mr. Ramsay mentioned about it in his letter to you last May. That the dilapidated old building is a disgrace to the township, and that any person who goes into it does so at the risk of his life, for it is liable to tumble down at any moment. The next matter we would bring under your notice is the want of a Post and Telegraph Office. The one in use at present is altogether too small and is also very badly situated, owing to the distance it is from all the principal business places of the town. This could be remedied by having a new one built on the reserve for public buildings in a central part of the township.

In conclusion, we trust that you will not fail to bring our claims before the Minister, and cause him to remedy what has long been felt as a grievance by the residents here.

We remain, &c.,

N. N. GITCHELL, J.P.

W. TRAVIS, J.P.

P.S.—With regard to our statements concerning the Court-house, we would refer you to Mr. Thorne, the Government Inspector, who inspected both it and the police buildings here last winter.

Memo. from the Under Secretary for Works to the Colonial Architect:—Tumberumba Court-house and Telegraph Office. The sum of £1,000 was voted for these buildings, 1880, and papers were forwarded to the Post Office respecting the Telegraph Office. The Colonial Architect has been requested to submit plans for approval of a Court-house.—J.R., 17/12/80. Inform Member for district.—J.R., 17/12/80. Colonial Architect to prepare plan, &c.—J.R., B.C., 17/12/80.

No. 8.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to W. J. Lyne, Esq., M.P.

Sir, Department of Public Works, 17 December, 1880.
Referring to your personal inquiries of this day, together with Mr. Day, M.P., and Mr. Levien, M.P., on the subject of erection of a Court-house and Telegraph Station at Tumberumba, I am directed to inform you that the sum of £1,000 was voted on the Additional Estimates for this year for the work in question, and the papers were forwarded to the Post Office Department respecting the portion relating to the Telegraph Station.

I am to add, that the Colonial Architect has been requested to prepare plans, &c., for a Court-house, and submit them for approval.

I have, &c.,

Sir, General Post Office, Sydney, 8 February, 1881.
Referring to your letter of the 13th November, 1879, addressed to the Honorable the Minister for Works, enclosing an application from the Bench of Magistrates at Tumberumba, for the erection of a new Court-house and Post and Telegraph Office at that place, I am directed to inform you that the Postmaster-General, having had the matter of the Post and Telegraph Office under consideration, has determined, as it appears to be principally the insufficient accommodation provided at the present office and its unsuitable position that caused the Bench to apply for the erection of a new building, to invite tenders for a house containing five or six rooms, centrally situated, suitable for an office.

Mrs. H. M. Langford to The Secretary to the Post Office.

Sir, Tumberumba, 21 February, 1881.
I, the undersigned, do hereby tender and agree to let to the Postmaster-General, for a Post and Telegraph Office, my house, situated in the heart of the town of Tumberumba, containing five rooms, verandah, place with desk for writing telegrams, &c., kitchen, stable, buggy-house, and other out-buildings appertaining thereto, with a well of water, for the sum of £5 per annum.

No. 12.

W. H. B. Piddington, Esq., to W. J. Lyne, Esq., M.P.

My dear Sir, Commercial Banking Coy. of Sydney,
Tumberumba, 28 February, 1881.
By the request of certain inhabitants of this town, in public meeting assembled, I herein forward their petition for the erection of suitable buildings for the transaction of the post and telegraph business here, together with the request that the Government should proceed with the erection of the new Court-house as soon as possible, and they have deputed me to ask you to kindly present this petition to the Minister to whom it is addressed, and further the matter as much as you can.

I may state that tenders have been called for the rent of a building for the two first-named purposes, and a petition has been signed stating that the present building (belonging to Mrs. Langford) is the most suitable in the town, which is undoubtedly correct, but still, for a town second in importance in the electorate which you represent, such as this, the Government should provide suitable and commodious buildings for the transaction of the public business.

Further, Tumberumba having contributed a fair amount of revenue, should participate in the expenditure of this Government, and I think you will not fail to see that our requests in these matters are entirely just.

I am, &c.,
W. H. B. PIDDINGTON.

Petition from Residents of Tumberumba to the Honorable the Postmaster-General, presented by W. J. Lyne, Esq., M.P.

Sir,

Tumberumba, 21 February, 1881.

We, the undersigned residents of Tumberumba, desire most respectfully to draw your attention to the urgent and most pressing need for the erection and completion of public buildings for the transaction of post and telegraph business in this town; the house at present used (though the most suitable in this town) is wholly unadapted for such purposes.

Your Petitioners also desire that the Government should proceed with the erection of the new Court-house (for which a sum of money has already been voted by Parliament) as soon as possible, the building now being a disgrace to the town.

Respectfully submitting this Petition, and trusting that the prayer thereof may be granted,—

The Secretary to the Post Office to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

General Post Office, Sydney, 23 March, 1881.

With reference to the sum of £1,000 voted in the Additional Estimates for 1880 for the erection of a Court-house at Tumberumba, I am directed to inform you that the residents of that place have applied for a new Post and Telegraph Office to be erected there, but it is thought the Government would not be justified in incurring the expense of a new building at present. Perhaps therefore you will be so good as to state whether it would be practicable to provide a room in the Court-house for the use of this Department.

In the event of such accommodation being arranged, the Postmaster-General would also be glad to know whether any person would be likely to reside in the Court-house, as it is undesirable that the postal property should be unprotected at night.

Adverting to my communication, dated the 23rd March last, inquiring whether it would be practicable to provide a room for the use of this Department in the new Court-house at Tumberumba, for which money has been voted, and also asking whether, in the event of such accommodation being provided, any responsible person would be likely to reside on the Court-house premises, I am directed to request that you will be so good as to favour me with an answer thereto as early as convenient.

 Referring to your letter of the 17th instant, further respecting a room being set apart as Post and Telegraph Office, for the use of your Department, in the new Court-house at Tumberumba, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that inquiry is being made of the Colonial Architect on the subject of your letter, and as soon as a reply has been received a further communication will be made to you in due course.

Sir, Department of Justice, Sydney, 10 August, 1881.
 Referring to your letter of the 23rd March last, respecting the erection of a Court-house at Tumberumba, and asking if it would be practicable to provide a room therein for the use of your Department as Post and Telegraph Office, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to state that, as it appears quite practicable, he approves of a room being added to the proposed Court-house at Tumberumba, to serve as a temporary Post Office, and to be so arranged as to answer for an office in connection with the Court-house when no longer required for a Post Office. I am to add, that no person connected with the Court-house is required to reside on the premises.

The Secretary to the Post Office to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir, General Post Office, 23 September, 1881.
 With reference to the minute of the Colonial Architect, dated 19th instant, on the papers (2) herewith returned, with plan, I am directed to inform you that, although it is understood Mr. Day, M.P., expressed a desire that the Post Office at Tumberumba should remain where it now is until such time as a new building is erected, the Postmaster-General thinks that as the plan of the new Court-house, prepared by the Colonial Architect, allows of a room being made available for post and telegraph purposes, it would be unwise to make any alteration now. He has decided, therefore, that the plan should be adopted, so that the extra room may be used as a Post and Telegraph Office, if required; and if it is not, some other use could no doubt be made of it. Mr. Lyne, M.P., who is interested in this matter, has been apprised of the decision.

No. 19.

The Secretary to the Post Office to The Postmistress, Tumberumba.

MEMO.—With reference to your communication of the 21st February last, offering to let certain premises to this Department for a Post and Telegraph Office at Tumberumba, I have to inform you that the question of a room being provided in the new Court-house for an office, which has been under consideration, will not be decided at present, but it is intended to consider the matter further when the Court-house building is completed.

S. H. LAMBTON.

No. 20.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to The Secretary to the Post Office.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Sydney, 30 December, 1881.
 I am directed to inform you that the tender of Mr. John Harris has this day been accepted, for the erection of *Post and Telegraph Office at Tumberumba, for the sum of £1,700, to be completed in twelve months.

I have, &c.,
 JOHN RAE,
 Under Secretary.

* This tender should have been described as for the erection of Court-house and Post and Telegraph Office; it was not however carried out, the contractor being unable to procure workmen. Fresh tenders were accordingly invited for the work.

No. 21.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to The Colonial Architect.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Sydney, 17 September, 1881.

I am directed to request that you will have the goodness to expedite the necessary action by your Department on the papers relating to the Court-house and Post and Telegraph Office, Tumberumba, which were forwarded to you from this office on the 18th December last (80-6,745).

I have, &c.,
JOHN RAE.

Mr. Lyne will call for an answer on Monday.

No. 22.

The Colonial Architect to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

I FORWARD herewith a plan for a Court-house; it does not provide specially for a Post and Telegraph Office also, but one of the offices could be used for this business until found necessary to erect a separate building for a Post and Telegraph Office. The cost of carrying out the work according to this plan is estimated at £1,600, and if approved a further sum of £600 will be required. Previous papers herewith. 19 September, 1881. J.B.

No. 23.

The Secretary to the Post Office to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir, General Post Office, Sydney, 23 September, 1881.

With reference to the minute of the Colonial Architect, dated 19th instant, on the papers herewith returned, with plan, I am directed to inform you that although it is understood Mr. Day, M.P., expressed a desire that the Post Office at Tumberumba should remain where it now is until such time as a new building is erected, the Postmaster-General thinks that as the plan of the new Court-house, prepared by the Colonial Architect, allows of a room being made available for post and telegraph purposes, it would be unwise to make any alteration now. He has decided, therefore, that the plan should be adopted, so that the extra room may be used as a Post and Telegraph Office, if required, and if it is not, some other use could no doubt be made of it. Mr. Lyne, M.P., who is interested in this matter, has been apprised of the decision.

I have, &c.,
S. H. LAMBTON.

Colonial Architect.—J.R., B.C., 24/9/81. The plan does not appear to have been submitted to the Justice Department, neither do the papers show that it has been approved.—J.B., 28 Sept., 1881. Colonial Architect.—J.R., B.C., 6/10/81. I forward herewith a form of notice inviting tenders for the work.—J.B., 19 Oct., 1881. Notice sent to Gazette. Tenders to be opened on the 15th Nov. next. Mr. J. Harris to The Colonial Architect.

Sir,

Cooma, 19 January, 1883.

I received your letter in reference to Court-house at Tumberumba. I regret to say I find it impossible to carry on the job. I have been over from here twice, and both times failed to get men in the district of Tumberumba. Three months ago I started from Cooma with men, and got snowed in on the Snowy Mountains, and had to come back. There is so much work on in Cooma, the men won't leave now. I know it must be annoying to you, for, believe me, I feel it more on that account, and therefore it is impossible for me to go on with the job.

I remain, &c.,

JOHN HARRIS,
Contractor, Cooma.

Forwarded to the Under Secretary for Works. The tender of Mr. Harris for erection of Court-house, Tumberumba—£1,700—was accepted at the commencement of last year. There has always been difficulty in getting work done in this locality; and as Mr. Harris states he is unable to carry out the contract, the only course open is to call for fresh tenders. I may state, however, that portion of the vote—£1,000—taken in 1881 will now lapse and have to be revoted, £600 voted last year being still available. Form of notice also forwarded herewith.—J.B., 21 Feb., /83.

(No. 1)—

There are about 100 miles of streets and lanes in the city, 80 of which are ballasted and metalled. The cost cannot be given as a whole, the work having been done over a considerable number of years, and the widths of the streets and lanes varying so much; in addition to which a large proportion has been done by day labour. A fair average price at current rates, per superficial yard, is 7s.

(No. 2)—

The whole area of public ways in the city that are paved at the present time with either wood blocks or blue-stone cubes is about 80,000 square yards, which has been laid at a total cost of about £90,000 stg.

CITY OF SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT BOARD.

(FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 23 October, 1883.

City of Sydney Improvement Board,
 Offices, 35, Castlereagh-street,
 Sydney, 31 August, 1883.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary,—

Sir,

The members of the City of Sydney Improvement Board have the honor to present their fourth Annual Report.

With regard to their position as to the administration of the powers vested in them, there is little to add by way of explanation to former Reports, to which your attention is respectfully invited, no alteration in the present law having yet been effected; but it is hoped that a Bill will be introduced by the Government during the ensuing Session of Parliament which will have the effect of placing the Board upon a more satisfactory footing, the desirableness of such a measure being, it is believed, generally admitted.

The members of the Board propose suggesting such amendments upon the existing Act as, in their opinion, will be absolutely required to enable them to more efficiently discharge those duties which they were evidently intended by the Legislature to perform. With this view, and with a desire not to go beyond their province, a Draft Bill, embodying the powers requisite for that purpose, is now being prepared by the Board, and will shortly be submitted for your consideration.

The urgent necessity for some proper machinery to give greater effect to the important and useful powers possessed by the Board, and to enlarge its sphere of action by removing the defects which occasion the present limitation thereto, cannot fail to be apparent.

Since the date of last Report, nine meetings have been held (the average duration of each meeting being one hour and twenty minutes), five Reports from the City Building Surveyor have been dealt with, two appeals heard, and seventeen different premises have been inspected.

On only three of these occasions have the fees payable to the Board, under the twelfth section of the City of Sydney Improvement Act, been obtained. At some of the meetings the proceedings are lengthy, large quantities of evidence being tendered and taken. When the time occupied thus, as well as in the preparation of Draft Bills (several of which have been compiled at different times) and in various other matters of detail is taken into consideration, it will be observed that the services of members, the majority of whom are professional men whose time is valuable, are only very nominally remunerated, and that the continuance of those services for so long, under existing circumstances, is a proof that they have every wish and intention to facilitate the beneficial working of the Act.

Owing to the decease of the late Mr. L. E. Threlkeld, which occurred in London during that gentleman's absence from the Colony on leave, a vacancy upon the Board was created, which has since been filled by the appointment of Mr. George Evans. The remaining members desire to express their satisfaction at the addition to their number of a gentleman belonging to the legal profession, capable of assisting to decide numerous difficult points of law which frequently arise (chiefly, at present, in consequence of the faulty construction of the Act) during the hearing of matters brought before them.

Mr. Benjamin Backhouse was re-elected Chairman of the Board for the year just concluded.

We have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servants,

BENJAMIN BACKHOUSE,

CHAIRMAN.

CITY OF SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT BOARD.
(FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 1 November, 1884.

City of Sydney Improvement Board,
Offices 35, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 31 August, 1884.

To the Honorable The Colonial Secretary,—

Sir,

We have the honor to submit, for your information, this our report for the year now ended.

The Board have held twenty-four meetings. Thirty-two references received from the City Building Surveyor, reporting forty dangerous buildings, walls, and other erections in contravention of the City of Sydney Improvement Act, have been considered and dealt with; four appeals under the 8th section of the same Act have been heard and determined, forty-three premises being inspected by members.

The larger number of reports received from the City Building Surveyor, which exceed the total number submitted during the former three years, may, it is considered, be taken as indicating a desire on the part of the City Council (which is viewed with satisfaction) to remove one of the obstacles alluded to in several previous reports, to the more beneficial working of the Act, viz., the failure to work in harmony with the Board.

The constructive defects of the Act itself so frequently pointed out still remain, however, as a hindrance to the exercise of a more efficient and wider sphere of usefulness, and the Board can only reiterate the desire that some amendment will shortly be made in the law in this respect; the desirableness of so doing being palpably apparent, and the necessity for which has been so strongly urged from time to time.

Several Bills with this object in view have, as you are aware, been drawn, but for various reasons have not become law. A Conference on this important subject is now proceeding between the Board and the City Council (who have deputed Mr. T. H. Sapsford, the City Architect and City Building Surveyor, to represent them), the result of which, it is hoped, will be the joint adoption of a measure, embodying such proposed amendments upon the present Act as may be considered imperatively necessary, which will then be submitted for your consideration, with a view, if approved of, to its early introduction into the Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Benjamin Backhouse, who was re-elected Chairman for the past year, was absent on leave from the Colony for nearly six months upon a visit to Europe, where he has acquired information which will, no doubt, be valuable to the Board. During that period Mr. William Bailey acted as Chairman. Mr. Backhouse has since returned, and has resumed his seat on the Board.

We have, &c.,

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 11 March, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPAL WAYS IMPROVEMENT BILL.

(PETITION AGAINST—LEICHHARDT RATEPAYERS ASSOCIATION.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 1 October, 1884.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of the Parliament of New South Wales.

The humble Petition of the Leichhardt Ratepayers Association,—

SHOWETH :—

1. That the "Leichhardt Ratepayers Association" is a regularly constituted body of ratepayers of Leichhardt, near Sydney, which assembles in the Council Chambers regularly twice a month.

2. That the Municipal Ways Improvement Bill was discussed at several meetings of the said Association, and it was of opinion that special legislation on the subject was not needed, and that the cost of kerbing and guttering should be charged to rates alone, and also that a large and influential public meeting of ratepayers of Leichhardt held in the Council Chambers on 2nd September endorsed the said opinion.

3. That at the last meeting of the Leichhardt Ratepayers Association it was resolved that a Petition signed by the President be forwarded to the Legislative Assembly, embodying the terms of the resolution passed at the last meeting (as contained in the second allegation hereof), and praying that the third reading of the Municipal Ways Improvement Bill do not pass.

Your Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that your Honorable Assembly do take this Petition into your favourable consideration, and that your Honorable House will not pass the third reading of the Municipal Ways Improvement Bill.

And your Petitioners will ever pray, &c.

Signed on behalf of the Petitioners,

DONALD CAMPBELL,

President of the Leichhardt Ratepayers Association.

19. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any question amended as aforesaid, shall be negatived, then a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on: Provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

21. Every requisition by an Alderman, that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council, shall be regarded and treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman that such business be taken into consideration by the Council. And he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or to make any other motion which he may think fit in reference thereto, which shall be consistent with the notice of such business, and with good order. And if such Alderman be absent, or, if being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open to any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made it shall be dealt with in precisely the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business or with good order. And if no motion shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck from the business paper.

Orders of the Day.

Of what orders of the day shall consist.

22. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

23. Section 20 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered applicable to orders of the day. And the Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to, the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move: Provided that as to any order of the day entered as aforesaid, by direction of the Mayor, such Mayor may arrange with any Alderman to move, and may in such case call upon the Alderman with whom he has so arranged.

Petitions.

Petitions to be respectfully worded.

24. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

25. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

26. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned; or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.

Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

27. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Sec. 26 to apply to letters.

28. Section 26 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered as fully applicable to letters addressed to the Council as to petitions.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject of motion.

29. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor, or by any officer of the Council, and copies of which may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion, consistent with good order, may be entertained with reference to any such letters, whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council, which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

Reports from Committees and Minutes from the Mayor.

Form of Report.

30. All reports from Committees shall be written on foolscap paper, with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper; and shall be signed by the Chairman of such Committee, or, in his absence, by some other member of the same.

Mayor's minute.

31. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance, by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with. Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

32. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without any due notice, and it is, nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman, or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid, as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

Limitations as to questions and statements.

33. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws.

34. Sufficient notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and, if necessary, for a reference to other persons or to documents.

Answer not compulsory.

35. It shall not be compulsory upon any person questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

36. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

37. Every such statement must be made without argument.

38. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question, or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Order of Debate.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

39. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way, or for any other purpose, address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor, or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions, when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted, if in order.

40. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Limitations as to number of speeches, &c.

41. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than the mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion, and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak oftener than once upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain, without adding any further observations than may be necessary for the purposes of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

42. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

43. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, nor impute improper motives to, any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

44. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

45. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Alderman may require questions to be stated, &c., under certain restrictions.

46. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated, for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or materially to interrupt the discussion. Also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, &c.; but may address Council thereon.

47. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, nor put any question, as provided for by section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws, except as is further provided for by the section 39 of the same. But such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of Order.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

43. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final, except in so far as the same may be questioned, as in the manner hereinafter provided.

Acts of disorder.

49. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any section of this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise or attempt to raise any question, or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the said Council has no legal right to entertain or to discuss, or who shall use any other language which according to the common usage of gentlemen would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be out of order.

Mayor, &c., may call Member to order.

50. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order, whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any Member may raise question of order.

51. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

52. A member called to order shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided upon, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission such member may explain, retract, or apologize for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologize as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council, at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction, or apology shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with: Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be re-opened. And provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon any such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Decision of points of order.

53. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule or practice which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Motions out of order to be rejected. Members to explain, retract, or apologize, &c.

54. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

55. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument, or of observations, which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 48 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds; and on a second conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound, nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction and for every further conviction for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds, nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

56. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice, may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retroactive operation: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which, in his opinion, is contrary to law.

Mode of Voting.

How questions are to be put.

57. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.—Penalty for refusing to vote.

58. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting.—Protest to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances be expunged.

59. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute-book, but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, in may (by resolution on notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.

Rules applicable to business in Committee.

60. The following sections of this "Part" of these By-laws shall (except as is herein excepted) be taken to apply to the conduct of business in Committee of the whole Council, namely—sections 15 (except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded), 16, 17, 18, 19, 39, 40, 43, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 57, and 58.

Disorderly conduct in Committee.—Refusal to vote.

61. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 54 of this "Part" of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute-book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 57 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the minute-book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

62. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provision of section 47 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

63. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on any further day; or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sittings, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

64. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council, viva voce by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided, that in making of any such report as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceedings.

How reports are to be dealt with.

65. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute book; but except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council, until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption, or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid, and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council, and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 60 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 57 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates, to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

66. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Such call compulsory in certain cases.

67. There shall, without any special order to that effect be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 55 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

68. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered, or is required to be made by the last preceding section, shall be moved or considered, such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse, in writing, shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk, as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse. Further call when question adjourned.

69. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause, he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds. Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence, shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

70. There shall be four Standing Committees, namely, a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of the Mayor.

Constitution of Standing Committees.

71. Each of the three Committees first named in the last preceding section shall consist of three members, of whom one shall be taken from among the Aldermen of each ward. The Committee for General Purposes shall consist of the Chairmen of the three said first named Committees.

Mode of re-appointing Standing Committees.

72. The re-appointment of the three said first-named Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case a list or lists of the members for each ward shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such first-named Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such Committee.

By-law Committee.

73. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Borough. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws, and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Borough; and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or Statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Finance Committee.

75. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Borough; and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Committee for General Purposes.

76. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned Standing Committees, and shall from time to time inquire into and report upon any such subject matter or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

77. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution, after due notice; and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Chairman of Committee

78. Every Committee, of which the Mayor shall not be a member, shall elect a permanent Chairman of such Committee, within seven days after their appointment.

Term of service in Committee.

79. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee of Works, and the Finance Committee, shall be for the whole municipal year. The Chairman of these three Committees as appointed to or removed from the Chairmanship of the same, shall be thereby and without any further order regarded as having been appointed to or removed from the Committee for General Purposes. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to Committees in sections 109 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1867; and that so much of this By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees, shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provisions.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses.—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council

83. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

1. By order of the Committee for Works, or of the Mayor and one member of such Committee, for repairs or emergent works, to the extent of five pounds.
2. By order of the Mayor for necessary current expenses, to the extent of two pounds.
3. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor, of any four Aldermen, for any emergent purpose, to the extent of five pounds.

Provided, that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized. Also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council; and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

84. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council, shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's Order.—Certificates to be attached to report.

85. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, from the Mayor, or from the officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. 2. That a plan and specification shall be prepared by the Town Surveyor, or other person appointed by the said Council for that purpose, showing the footpaths or pathways, or so much thereof as shall need to be paved, and the area or extent of paving required to be made or done by the owner, tenant, or occupier of each house, allotment, or parcel of land, fronting, adjoining, or abutting upon such footpath or pathway, and a notice in the form or to the effect of that set out in schedule of these By-laws, shall be served upon such owner, tenant, or occupier, by leaving the same with him or with some person above the age of fourteen years, upon the premises, or at the residence of such owner, or in case there shall be no person residing on the premises, and the owner thereof shall be unknown, or shall live without the Borough, by posting or affixing the same on some convenient or conspicuous place on the said house, allotment, or land, together with a minor plan and specification, showing the area or extent of the paving required to be made or done in each instance, and the materials of, and the manner in which such pavement shall be made, and after the expiration of the time specified in such notice, such owner, tenant, or occupier, shall proceed forthwith to pave such footpath or pathway to the area or extent, and with the materials, and in the manner set out and specified in such minor plan and specification, and shall complete the said paving within the time also set out in the said notice.

7. Motions shall be moved in their order according to priority of notice by the Alderman who gave notice thereof, or in the absence of that Alderman, by an Alderman authorised by him in writing to do so. Notices not thus proceeded with shall be struck out of the business paper.

8. Every petition or memorial shall be presented by an Alderman who shall be responsible for its being respectfully worded. 12. Any Alderman rising to propose a motion or amendment must state the nature of the same before addressing the Council in support thereof.

13. Motions and amendments shall not be discussed, unless seconded, the mover however may speak in explanation for not over five minutes. Any Alderman may give notice of a speaker being out of order.

14. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced into writing.

17. Alderman in speaking shall designate each other by their respective titles as, Mayor or Alderman, as the case may be.

18. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment, without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

19. The Mayor's or deciding Alderman's decision on disputed points of order or explanation, or apology, shall be final and shall be stated without comment or argument. Any Alderman may however move that the sense of the Council be taken on the question of order discussion; questions of order may be disposed of before any other business shall be entertained.

20. The Mayor, Chairman, or Aldermen shall rise when addressing the Council.

21. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking unless for the purpose of calling him to order as hereinbefore provided. And any Alderman using, whilst in Council, any offensive or insulting language, the same to be written down, and on being asked to do so, withdrawn; and if any Alderman refuse to withdraw such language and apologise, he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty shillings or more than five pounds.

22. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing on such question or matter which are readily accessible. Provided however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any Alderman when speaking or materially to interrupt the discussion; also, that if such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide, it shall not be complied with.

23. Twenty-four hours notice in writing must be given to the Council Clerk previous to any question being put to the Mayor or any Alderman.

24. If an amendment be carried the question as amended thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

25. If any amendment either upon an original question or upon any question amended as aforesaid shall be negatived, then a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first mentioned amendment was moved, and so on, provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at the same time.

26. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon. And he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary, to enable him to form and declare his opinion as the opinion of the majority.

27. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled from law by so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings or more than five pounds.

28. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council, and if upon the question being put on any such motion the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

29. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council. Notice of the intention so to protest must however be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book, but if in the opinion of the Council it be inconsistent with the truth or disrespectfully worded it may (by resolution or notice) be ordered to be expunged, in such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest with a reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

30. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the ruling of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion or notice respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice that may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retro-active operation; provided however that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which in his opinion is contrary to law.

Calls of the Council.

31. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

32. There shall without any special order to that effect be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 29 of this part of these by-laws and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

33. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered or is required to be made by the last preceding section shall be moved or considered, such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence.
