1. Every person about to erect a closet or form a cesspit shall, before he shall commence any such work, give to the Council Clerk seven days' notice in writing of his intention, and of the proposed position of such closet or cesspit; and in default thereof, or in case of his commencing such work without such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

2. No closet shall be erected or cesspit formed except in such position as shall be approved of by the Council, or by the Inspector of Nuisances, or other officer appointed by the Council.

3. No cesspit shall be built under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance than 20 feet therefrom, if the area will permit (nor less than 12 feet in any case), nor in such position that the same cannot be emptied without the contents thereof being carried through any dwelling-house.

4. No cesspit shall be less than 3 feet 6 inches in diameter in the clear, by 4 feet deep, and every such pit shall be laid with single brick; the closet or superstructure to be placed two-thirds over the pit so as to leave one-third of an opening for cleaning out, such opening to be covered with a slab or stone. Any person who desires to cement the pit and make it water-tight shall be at liberty to do so.

5. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened on the inside, and shall have ventilating holes $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide.

6. When two or more closets adjoin each other there shall be a brick or stone dividing wall of not less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches in thickness between every two closets, and each wall shall extend from the bottom of the cesspit through the roof of the closet, so as to effect a complete separation.

Provided further that stock put in the yards and not submitted to auction shall pay the sum of half fees.

11. Any person who shall neglect to comply with these By-laws, or be guilty of any breach thereof, shall in cases where no special penalty is provided be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds and not less than five shillings.

THE following By-laws made by the Council of the Borough of East St. Leonards, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," and the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

PRELIMINARY REPEAL OF EXISTING BY-LAWS.

THAT all existing By-laws of the Council of the Borough of East St. Leonards, published in the Government Gazette, from time to time, prior to the adoption of the following, be and are hereby repealed.

PART I.

Proceedings of the Council and Committees, Duties of Officers, Servants, &c.

Ordinary meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the transaction of business, every alternate Tuesday, at the hour of 7.30 p.m., unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case, the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.

2. If at any meeting of the Council, the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of such meeting, for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down, and shall be recorded in the minute book.

Business of ordinary meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council, other than special meetings:—

- (1.) The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor, or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
- (2.) Petitions (if any) to be read and dealt with in terms of Clause 13.
- (3.) Correspondence to be read, and orders made thereon, if expedient.
- (4.) Reports from Committees, and minutes from the Mayor (if any), to be presented, and orders made thereon.

- (5.) Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction, or within the official cognizance of the Council, to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council, or any of the Committees, or Officers to be made.
- (6.) Motions of which notice has been given, to be dealt with.
- (7.) Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper, provided that the Council may, by resolution, without notice, entertain any particular motion, or deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this By-law, and may in like manner direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at special meetings.

4. At special meetings of the Council, the business—after the minutes shall have been read and verified, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting—shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or the Aldermen, at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Business paper for ordinary meetings.

5. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a special meeting, shall be made up by the Council Clerk not less than two nor more than three days, before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy, or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every requisition or order as to business, proposed to be transacted at such meeting, which he shall have received, or shall have been required or directed so to enter, in due course of law, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made (subject to the provisions of section 3 of this Part of these By-laws), in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Business paper for special meetings.

6. The business paper for each special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Aldermen calling such meeting.

Summons to members.

7. The summons to members of the Council for every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper, and shall be forwarded to the known address of each Alderman (in due time), according to law.

How business paper to be disposed of.

8. The business paper for each meeting of the Council, shall at such meeting, be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper, of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with, and such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of motions, requisitions and directions from the Mayor, as to business to be submitted; how these are to be dealt with.

9. All notices of motion, and all requisitions from Aldermen, and directions from the Mayor, as to the entry of any particular matter of business, for the consideration of the Council, at its then next, or any future meeting, shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received; and each notice, requisition, and direction, shall be preserved by such Clerk, until after the matter, to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the minute book of the manner in which such matter has been disposed of, shall be duly verified, provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction, to the Council Clerk, shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time, before the making up of the business paper.

Notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

10. After the business paper shall have been made up, as aforesaid, all notices of motion, requisitions, and directions, as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended, without leave having been first obtained from the majority of members in Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Petitions.Petitions to be respectfully worded.

11. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition, to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

12. All petitions shall be received, only as the petitions of the parties signing the same, who must be ratepayers of the Borough of East St. Leonards, and must set forth their addresses.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

13. No motion shall, unless as hereafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received, and referred to one of the permanent Committees, hereinafter mentioned; or, that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day, for some future meeting; provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion, in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented, before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor, as to correspondence.

14. The Mayor shall have the same duty, in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 11 of this Part of these By-laws, is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 13 to apply to inward correspondence.

15. Section 13 of this part of these By-laws shall be considered as fully applicable to letters addressed to the Council or any of its officers as to petitions.

Reports from Committees.Reports.

16. Every report from a Committee shall be in writing and signed by the Chairman of such Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the same.

Mayor's minutes.

17. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance, by a minute, in writing signed by him.

How reports and minutes are to be dealt with. Duties of Chairman, &c. in certain cases.

18. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report, from a committee, or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day, for some future meeting; provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice, in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And, whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation, which cannot legally be carried out without due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable, that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council, at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman, or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk, such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction, as aforesaid, as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

Questions and Statements.Limitation as to questions and statements.

19. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 3 of this part of these By-laws.

Notice to be given.

20. Sufficient notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto to allow for the consideration of such reply, and if necessary for a reference to other persons or to documents.

Answer not compulsory.

21. It shall not be compulsory upon the Mayor or upon any Alderman so questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

Question to be put without argument.

22. Every such question must be stated in simple language as an interrogatory, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

23. Every statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on question or statement; right of objection and of subsequent motion reserved.

24. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided however that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Motions and Amendments.

25. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed, shall be struck from the business paper, and shall be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of mover.

26. No motion, of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

27. No motion in Council shall be discussed until it be seconded.

Amendment may be moved.

28. When a motion shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed until it be seconded.

Motions and amendments to be in writing.

29. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced to writing by the mover or Council Clerk.

Only one amendment shall be submitted at a time.

30. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment shall have been disposed of.

Further amendment may be moved upon the amended motion.

31. If an amendment be carried, the question as amended thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

How subsequent amendments may be moved.

32. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any question, amended as aforesaid, shall be negatived, then a further amendment may be moved to the question, to which first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on: Provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournment.

33. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council, and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper as may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

Requisitions from Aldermen—how to be dealt with.

34. Every requisition by an Alderman, that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council, shall be regarded and treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman, that such business be taken into consideration by the Council; and he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or to make any other motion which he may think fit in reference thereto which shall be consistent with the notice of such business and with good order, and, if such Alderman be absent and has not given written authority to another Alderman under clause 26 of these By-laws; the requisition or motion shall be considered to have lapsed, or the mover, if present, and so desiring, may by permission of the Council, withdraw the same.

Orders of the Day.

Of which they shall consist.

35. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters, other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

36. Section 20 of this Part of these By-laws, shall be considered applicable to orders of the day, and the Alderman who has the charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move the same: Provided that as to any order of the day entered as aforesaid, by direction of the Mayor, the Mayor may arrange with any Alderman to move the same, and may in such case call upon the Alderman with whom he has so arranged.

Order of Debate.

Mode of addressing the Council.

37. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way, or for any other purpose, address observations to the Council, shall while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor, or other Chairman presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or Officer to be questioned, and may be replied in like manner; but, in every such case, the question so put, and the answer thereto, shall be subject to every legal objection, on the ground of disorder, or irrelevancy; and all members of the Council shall, on all occasions, when in Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted, if in order.

49. No Alderman shall be interrupted while speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

39. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations, which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than the mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion, and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak oftener than once upon any question, other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he may obtain permission from the Mayor or Chairman to explain, without adding any further observations that may be necessary for the purposes of such explanation.

Mover and secondor.

40. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment, shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment, without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

41. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, or impute improper motives to any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

42. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman, upon whose motion, such debate shall have been so adjourned, shall be entitled to pre-audience, on the resumption of the debate.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

43. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor or Chairman shall decide, which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

An Alderman may require question to be stated, or matter to be read for his information, under certain restrictions.

44. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion, to be read or stated, for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council, bearing upon such question or matter, which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be made so as to interrupt or obstruct business.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, but may address the Council thereon.

45. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, nor put any question, but such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of order.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

46. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final, except in so far as the same may be questioned, as in the manner hereinafter provided.

Acts of disorder.

47. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any of these By-laws, or shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment, embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise, or attempt to raise, any question, or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the Council has no legal right to entertain or to discuss, or who shall use any language which according to the common usage of gentlemen would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be out of order.

Mayor or Chairman may call member to order.

48. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order, whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any member may raise question of order.

49. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation, moved, used, or made by any other member, which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

50. A member called to order, if requested by the Mayor or Chairman, shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided upon, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retractation, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission, such member may explain, retract, or apologise for the matter or remark, alleged to have been out of order; and if such explanation, retractation, or apology, be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologise as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And, when any such explanation, retractation, or apology shall have been made or offered, by permission of th

Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council, as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology, be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with; provided, that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be re-opened. And, provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon any such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Decision of points of order.

51. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice, which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting on the same.

Motions out of order to be rejected.

52. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid, that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council, is out of order, the same shall be rejected.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

53. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument, or who shall make observations, which shall have been decided, as aforesaid, to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 47 of this Part of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction, for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and on a second conviction for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction, and for every further conviction, for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

54. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman, on any such question of order or of practice, may by motion, on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice, which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retro-active operation: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council, which, in his opinion, is contrary to law.

The Mode of Voting.

How questions are to be put.

55. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council, all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions, penalty for refusing to vote.

56. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division. In such case, the question shall be put, first in the affirmative, and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by a show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present, shall be recorded. Any Alderman, who shall be present when a division is called for and shall not vote in such division, not being disqualified by a personal interest from so voting, shall be liable, for every such offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting. Protests to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

57. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council. Notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution or notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.

Rules applicable to business in committees.

58. The Rules framed in these By-Laws for the regulation of business in the Council shall also apply to business in Committee, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Disorderly conduct in Committee.—Refusal to vote.

59. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 47 of this part of these By-laws, it shall be competent for any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried, such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute-book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote or any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 56 of this part of these By-laws, the fact shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such fact shall be duly recorded in the minute-book; provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question on which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

60. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provisions of section 46 of this part of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report of the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried, such decision shall be so embodied in such report.

How progress may be reported.

61. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of the Committee of the whole Council, move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress as the case may be) and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on some other day, or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sitting and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee, and want of quorum.

62. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council viva voce by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case, the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: provided, that in making any such report as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceedings.

How reports are to be dealt with.

63. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute-book; but, except as hereinafter mentioned no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council, until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption, or for the granting of such leave, and every such motion for the adoption of a report, or for the granting of leave as aforesaid, and the order of debate on such motion, shall be subject to the same rules as other motions in Council, and the order of debate on such other motions: provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 59 of this part of these By-laws, of disorderly conduct in Committee, or of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committee.

64. Besides any such special committees as may from time to time be found necessary, there shall be three standing committees, viz., a By-law Committee, a Finance Committee, and a Works Committee, each consisting of not less than three members. These committees shall be re-appointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of the Mayor.

Mode of re-appointing Standing Committees.

65. The re-appointment of the three standing committees mentioned shall be made by ballot. In such case a list or lists of the members shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such committees, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such committee.

By-law Committee.

66. This Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Borough. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws, and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Borough; and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Finance Committee.

67. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. - (2.) Before any such license shall be granted by the said Council, the person applying for the same shall satisfy the said Council that he is a competent plumber.
- (3.) Notice of intention to connect service-pipes or water-meters to the mains or to any other service-pipe in each case to be lodged with the Town Clerk, and for the correct information in such notice the plumber will be strictly responsible. The premises will then be inspected, and when the agreement is signed and rate paid, the plumber will receive a printed authority to proceed with the work. The ground is not to be opened or pipe connected until he has such authority. Printed forms of the notice to be obtained from the Town Clerk.
- (4.) In all cases where it is intended to connect a service-pipe to the service-pipe of any other premises, a written permission from the owner or occupier of such premises must be sent to the Town Clerk before the authority to connect will be granted.
- (5.) In every case of repairs to service-pipe, or where it may be wished to transfer service-pipes from one main to another, or to connect with other service-pipes, or where any change or alteration to them may be required in any way, notice of such repair or alteration, &c., must be given in writing to the Town Clerk at least twenty-four hours before any such work shall be commenced, except in cases of great waste of water, when immediate stops must be taken to stop the leak, and notice given to the Town Clerk of the same forthwith.
- (6.) All service-pipes must be laid 18 inches below the surface of roadway and gutters and meters, where required, fixed in accordance with the direction of the Town Clerk or other authorized officer of the Municipal Council; and on each service-pipe connected with the mains must be fixed two stop-cocks, one at the junction of the main, and the other on the footpath, 1 ft. 6 in. from the building lines, enclosed in an iron box with proper lid. All service-pipes, taps, stop-cocks, ball-cocks, valve, &c., shall be equal in quality to samples kept in the Town Clerk's office or be approved of by the Town Clerk or other authorized officer of the Municipal Council.
- (7.) All service-pipes connected with the water mains are to have a length of at least two feet of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch lead pipe, weighing 9lb. per lineal yard, or where a 1-inch service is authorized, the lead pipe to weigh 12lb per lineal yard, between the stop-cock in the main and the galvanized iron service-pipe; and where the service-pipes are entirely of lead, the weights for respective sizes are to be as follows, viz.:— $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch, 4lb.; $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch, 9lb.; 1 inch, 12lb.; all joints throughout the service are to be of the kind known as wiped joints. The lead pipe above referred to is to be joined to the stop-cock at the main, and to the galvanized iron service-pipe by means of a barrel union, similar to that on view in the Town Clerk's office, or other approved fittings.
- (8.) No service-pipe will be allowed to communicate with any cistern, tank, or vessel intended or used for the reception of rain-water.
- (9.) All water meters to be enclosed in a strong wooden box; all keys of both meters and boxes to be lodged at the Town Clerks' office, immediately after the meters are fixed. The Municipal Council reserves the right of affixing their own locks to the meters and boxes; twenty-four hours' notice to be given of the day on which it is intended to connect meters, in order that the proper officer may attend and see them fixed correctly. On no account are plumbers or other persons to take off, alter, or otherwise interfere with meters or pipes connecting; the same, unless by permission of the Town Clerk, and in the presence of an authorized officer of the Corporation.

- (10.) The officers connected with the water service are strictly enjoined to report every case of infringement of these Regulations, and the plumber offending against any of them will have to show cause why his license should not be suspended or cancelled, as may be thought proper in the circumstances of the case, besides being held responsible for any damages occasioned by his so transgressing any of the Regulations.
- (11.) All licensed plumbers to attend at the Town Clerk's office, on or before the 10th January, in each year to have their names and licenses registered, and the latter endorsed. Only such plumbers as comply with this Regulation will be deemed "Licensed Plumbers," and allowed to work as such.
- (12.) In each ward certain days in each week will be set apart upon which connections with the mains may be made. Upon those days the Council's officers will be in attendance in those districts, in order to attend plumbers, and plumbers must, in all cases, give two days' notice at the Town Clerk's office of their intention to make connections, and indicate on the wall or kerb, by a temporary mark (W), where they propose to cross the footpath.
- (13.) The Council's workmen are to open the trench, bore the mains, and insert the stop-cock within the city boundaries, the stop-cock being of the kind, a sample of which is on view at the Town Clerk's office, the same being left at the Town Clerk's office along with the notice to connect.
- (14.) By the time these operations are completed, the plumber, who has been employed to lay on the service, must have taken all his measurements, prepared all the pipes to the exact length, complete with the lead connections of approved length and weight per yard, properly jointed to cap linings, barrel union, &c., ready for attachment to the stop-cock, so as to avert any delay in the refilling of the trench.
- (15.) In the event of the articles above-named not being ready for fixing at the period named, the trench may be filled in again by the Council's workmen, and the reopening and filling of the same shall be paid for by the plumber, in addition to whatever other payments which may accrue under these Regulations.
- (16.) All expenses of labour in drilling, inserting stop-cock, opening and filling trenches, shall be borne by the plumber, the account for the same to be delivered without delay, and paid by him to the Town Clerk immediately on receipt of the account. Failing due attention to the latter directions, the Council may forfeit the license of the said plumber.
- (17.) All service-pipes within the city boundaries are to be $\frac{1}{2}$ inch galvanized iron pipes, or, if of lead, may be $\frac{3}{4}$ inch from the end of the lead connection to the building line, but the stop-cocks are to be $\frac{3}{4}$ inch.

And if such Alderman be absent, or if, being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open to any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made it shall be dealt with in the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business or with good order. And if no motion shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck out of the business paper.

21. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

24. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

26. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 26 to apply to letters.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject of motion.

28. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor or by any officer of the Council, though copies may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion, consistent with good order, may be entertained with reference to any such letters, whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council, which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

30. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction, or official cognizance, by a minute in writing; every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with—Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

31. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute or if an order for the consideration of such report a minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, it may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course; and whenever any such report or minute embodied any recommendation, which cannot legally be carried out without such due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which it is presented, it shall be duty of the Chairman or member of such Committee signing such report, or of the Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid as will enable the Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper and to give due notice.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

52. A member called to order shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided on, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission such member may explain, retract, or apologise for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologise as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction or apology shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with: Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be re-opened: and provided further that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon any such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Motions out of order to be rejected.—Members to explain, retract, or apologise, &c.

54. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

55. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument, or of observations which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 49 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as a majority of the

Alderman then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction, for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds; and on a second conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound, nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction and for every further conviction for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds, nor more than twenty pounds.

56. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice, may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down, shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mode of voting.

How questions are to be put.

57. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon, and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.—Penalty for refusing to vote.

58. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division, in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative, and then in the negative, and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting.—Protest to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

59. Every member of the Council, the Mayor included, may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest, must however be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book, but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may by resolution or notice be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committee of the whole Council.

Business in Committee.

60. The Business Committees of the whole Council shall be conducted in accordance with the rules hereinbefore provided for meetings of the Council, as nearly as the same shall apply, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Disorderly conduct in Committee.—Refusal to vote.

61. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 49 of this Part of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried, such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute-book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 53 of this By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the minute-book: Provided that, in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

62. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provisions of section 43 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried such decision shall be embodied in such report whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

63. Any Alderman may, at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress or no progress, as the case may be, and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or some other day, or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sitting, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

64. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council, videlicet, by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members, during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided that, in making any such report as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceedings.

How reports are to be dealt with.

65. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute-book; but, except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council, until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption, or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report, or for the granting of leave as aforesaid, and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council, and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 61 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of disorderly conduct in Committee; or under section 58 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof, and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

66. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Such call compulsory in certain cases.

67. There shall, without any special order to that effect, be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 56 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

68. PART XIV.

Under "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875" (a).

By-laws of the Borough (or Municipal District) of Waratah, made under and for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act."

1. Every person who shall be about to erect a closet, or form, excavate, or make a cesspit, shall, before he shall commence to erect such closet or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, deliver to the Council Clerk of the Borough (or, &c.) of Waratah a notice in writing of the intention of such person to erect such closet, or form, excavate or make such cesspit, and of the place or position in which it is intended that such closet shall be erected, or such cesspit formed, excavated, or made; and if any person shall commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit within the said Borough without having given such notice in writing as aforesaid, and before the expiration of seven days after the delivery of such notice (except by the written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances for the said Borough (or, &c.) or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Borough (or, &c.) in that behalf), he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound. (b)

2. No person shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit, except in such place or position as shall be approved by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid; and any person who shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cess-pit without having obtained the approval of the said Inspector or other officer, or in any place or position other than the place or position approved of by the said Inspector or other officer as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings. But any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer may appeal against the same to the Council.

3. Every cesspit to be constructed within the Borough (or, &c.) shall be built of nine-inch brickwork, set in cement, floor as well as walls, and the top of such cesspit shall be at least six inches higher than the highest part of the surface of the ground immediately adjoining such cesspit, and no cesspit shall be formed, excavated, or made under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance than twenty feet therefrom, area permitting. If any person shall so form, excavate, or make any cesspit which shall not be in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, or shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit under any dwelling-house or at a less distance than twenty feet, area permitting, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than two pounds.

4. For houses containing not more than four rooms and out-offices, the cesspit shall not be less than three feet by four feet and five feet deep, inside measurement; for houses containing more than four rooms and out-offices, the cesspit shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches by 4 feet, and 5 feet deep, inside measurement.

6. Where two or more closets adjoin each other there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between every two closets, and such wall shall extend from the bottom of the cesspit up to the roof of the closet, so as to effect a complete separation; and if any person shall erect any two or more closets adjoining each other, and not in accordance with this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

7. A separate closet shall be provided for each tenement, and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than two pounds.

9. If any alterations shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in their behalf, for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to the health, or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall not make the necessary alterations after receiving fourteen days' notice from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to remove the said nuisance, and any expense incurred thereby may be sued for and recovered in a summary way before any two or more Justices of the Peace.

10. Owners of existing closets and soilpits may be required to alter or improve them in such manner as may be necessary in order to bring them into conformity with these regulations on notice being given by the Inspector of Nuisances to that effect; persons failing to make such alterations or improvements within one month after the receipt of such notice shall

NEW SOUTH WALES.

METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.

(FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 7.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary,—

Sir,

Fire Brigades Board, Sydney, 3 February, 1888.

In complying with the 7th section of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884, the Board herewith begs to submit its fourth annual report for the year ending 31st December, 1887. Incorporated with it is also the annual report and statistical returns of the Superintendent.

With regard to the constitution of the Board it may here be mentioned, that in consequence of the Volunteer Fire Companies having no representative on the Board, an extraordinary election was sanctioned by the Government, on the opinion of the Attorney-General; regulations were made at a meeting held for that purpose, on the 16th November, and being published in the Government Gazette, the election took place on the 14th December, at which Mr. E. J. Love, of Parramatta, was elected for the period ending the 16th March, 1888, when the elections for the Insurance Companies' and Municipal Councils' representatives will also be held. The whole of the regulations referred to above are annexed herewith.

Appended will be found the names of the Insurance Companies, and the Municipal Councils which contributed during the year, 1887, in accordance with the 15th section of the Act.

The list of Insurance Companies show the total amount held at risk by each on the 31st December, 1886, and the amounts contributed by each in 1887.

In the list of Municipal Councils the ratable value of property is shown, and also the amount contributed to the Board on each assessment. The list of Councils is the same as last year. In the list of Insurance Companies four additional names appear, viz.:—The Glasgow and London General (of London), New South Wales Assurance Corporation, and the South Australian.

At the end of the past year the undermentioned offices notified the discontinuance of fire business in the Colony:—The Colonial Insurance Company of New Zealand; Manchester (Messrs. A. M'Arthur and Co., agents); and the South Australian. Owing to an arrangement made with the Insurance Companies, respecting risks effected with insurance offices, who have no recognised agent or office in the Colony, Messrs. S. Hoffnung & Co., of Pitt-street, contributed a pro rata amount on the sum of £29,000 insured with offices over which the Board has no jurisdiction. Messrs. Hordern Brothers, of Pitt-street, also by arrangement, paid a pro rata amount on the sum of £10,000 insured with Lloyds, of London, being the sum insured above that which could be effected in Sydney. Comparing the year 1885 with the year 1886 in regard to the gross amount held at risk by the Insurance Companies, it will be noticed that the total sum is steadily increasing, as the undermentioned figures will show:—

To increase	£2,956,025

In connection with this matter, it is worth notice that the assessment of the Insurance Companies for the City of London shows a diminution of eight millions out of seven hundred and fifty millions. Whether this is the result of more correct analysis of figures, or a positive diminution in amounts insured, is unknown. It may to a great extent be owing to the wholesale condemnation of certain classes of buildings and stocks by Insurance Offices after the experience they have had for some years past. It may be interesting to note that only fifty-seven offices are required to insure the above vast amount. It is of course impossible for the Board to know whether the figures represent real increase of values, or only that property formerly uninsured is now insured. It is hardly likely that there was a fresh production of three millions worth of insurable property during the last twelve months. The Board has not investigated into the correctness of the figures furnished.

With regard to the Municipal Councils, the comparison of the returns for the year 1885 and 1886 show that there has also been a steady increase in the aggregate amount of ratable property in the City of Sydney and the Municipalities which are enumerated in Schedule A, and Parramatta.

In 1886 the assessed amount was	£3,945,291
In 1885	3,673,154
Total increase	£272,137

The extension of the Fire Protection in the City and Suburbs has been very advantageously and judiciously proceeded with. In two Municipalities Volunteer Fire Stations have been opened, viz., Leichhardt and Darlington, and which have also been placed in telephone communication with the head quarters station.

[1,458 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £78 13s. 10d.]

The erection of the new Central Fire Station was virtually completed at the end of the year, but, as the fitting-up of the electrical apparatus throughout the building and other important matters of detail requiring careful consideration, it is thought that the station cannot be opened in a complete form until early in the month of February. This building has been erected by Mr. John Baldwin, under the supervision of the Colonial Architect's Department, and also of Mr. Bear, owing to whose untiring energy and skill, the Board can safely look upon this station as a model of completeness. There is no doubt as to its being one of the finest and most modern of its kind,

The scheme of fire alarms referred to in the previous year's report has been elaborated. Mr. Bear, in his report to the Board, refers to this matter, and also states the various points where the new kind of fire alarm has been erected. One of these was lately the means of an early call being given to the Brigade, and in consequence, a warehouse was saved from destruction (only a slight damage being the result). The other fire alarms which had been erected and referred to in the Board's last report are still in working order, and having been in frequent use during the year, gave fair results. There is no doubt that the public will take some time to understand the use and purpose of these instruments, nevertheless the time will come when people will look upon them as a necessity.

The Board has again to allude to its recommendation contained in the last report of the necessity of conferring greater powers on the Board, in regard to matters which belong clearly to a Fire Department.

The present Act is very unsatisfactory, and several instances have occurred during the past year where various provisions and sections have been found impracticable and unworkable. Such a state of affairs should not be permitted to exist. For the purpose of rectifying matters, the Board framed a Bill in 1885, to amend the Act of 1884. This was submitted to a former Government, but up to the present no action has been taken. The Amending Bill has again, however, had the attention of the Board, with the result that a new and revised Bill has been drafted (a copy of which is herewith appended), in it is embodied several amendments on the previous amending Bill, which, if passed, will add very considerably to the importance and protection of the city and suburbs from fire, insomuch as it contains the gist of the Board's experience.

The Board, at the request of the Government, has expressed its opinion that the Metropolitan Fire Brigades Act should be strictly confined to the metropolitan area, and that the clauses referring to its extension as far as it will apply should be struck out. It is impossible to arrange satisfactorily for its extension to any country district. Should it be deemed of importance to have country fire establishments, a different system must be introduced, with special legislation.

There is another matter which, at the request of the then Colonial Secretary, Mr. G. R. Dibbs, the Board formulated an amending Bill for restricting the sale and storage of dangerous oils and substances, but owing to a new kind of kerosene tester having been introduced and passed by the Board of Trade in London (one of which is being imported in order that the necessary schedule might be framed), the matter is still in abeyance.

It is thought that this schedule will be prepared early during the current year.

As to the water supply in the past year a few instances have occurred whereby various defects have been discovered, although at all times when reported to the authorities they have been remedied. There is still, however, the fact of insufficiency of pressure in the water mains, and of their smallness in many localities, which should be carefully looked after by the authorities in charge of the water supply hereafter.

Throughout most of the suburbs there is little or no water during the daytime, and experience shows that many large and disastrous fires have happened during the day. It was thought that the new Nepean scheme would have abundantly supplied the want, long-felt, but so far the anticipations have not been realized. As very large and lofty buildings are being continually erected without any authority to direct their proper protection from fire, and as no attention is paid to the sufficiency of the water supply in their immediate vicinity, the opinion of many professional minds is that under existing circumstances there is nothing to prevent a great calamity. Numerous complaints and grievances have been ventilated in the press, with no satisfactory result. The real want in this direction is a new and complete system of more pumping power to the higher levels. It is to be hoped that during the ensuing year something will be done to place the water system on a much sounder basis, so that the vast amount of new and extensive buildings and property—now to a large extent under-insured, and for the insuring of which very heavy premiums are paid—may have that proportion of protection which the ratepayers naturally expect.

The past year has shown a marked improvement of the Volunteer Fire Companies in the city and suburbs. In many instances the various companies have rendered a great amount of assistance. By acting in the capacity of auxiliary firemen to the permanent Brigade these companies should eventually turn themselves into a very useful body. The first year of their existence under the new régime was one of intense interest and excitement, but the second year was one of trial. Having surmounted their difficulties—particularly in matters of finance—they have done steady work during the past year. The Board has the pleasure to record that almost every Volunteer Company has a credit balance in their respective banks. The very fact of their several funds being lodged in a bank, and of their accounts being annually audited by an officer appointed by the Board, guarantees, to a certain extent, that the subsidies granted by the Board are legitimately used. Their discipline and general efficiency is also considered by the Superintendent to be satisfactory.

The Volunteer Fire Stations at Newtown and Balmain require considerable alterations, and the negotiations now pending—if completed in a satisfactory manner—should have the effect of having these suburbs more amply protected. The Board has represented the importance of the subject to the Government with a view of obtaining a lease of a site, and as soon as the necessary arrangements have been made, the alterations will follow.

In conclusion, the Board wish to draw especial attention to its recommendations, submitted in this and former reports, with a view of something definite being done to place matters on a better footing.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES BOWN,

Chairman Fire Brigades Board.

Mr. Superintendent Bear's Report.

To the Fire Brigades Board,— Gentlemen,

Metropolitan Fire Brigade, Sydney, 8 January, 1888.

I do myself the honor to submit to your Board herewith my Fourth Annual Report of the working and general efficiency of your Brigade, and the Volunteer Fire Companies, together with the details of fires attended in the city and suburbs of Sydney for the year ending 31st December, 1887.

The total number of alarms received for fires or supposed fires were 230; of these 14 were false alarms; 9 proved to be only chimney alarms; and 207 were actual fires. Of the actual fires, 174 were slight or trifling; 18 were serious; and 15 resulted in total destruction.

Of the 207 actual fires, 148 were insured; 21 not insured; and in 38 instances insurances on the buildings or contents could not be ascertained.

In addition to the ordinary fires there have been 51 chimney fires requiring the attendance of firemen with hand-pump only; making an aggregate total of 281 calls for fires, false alarms, and chimneys on fire.

The fires of 1887 compared with those of 1886 show an increase of only two. In chimney fires attended with engines a decrease of 4; chimney fires attended by firemen with hand-pump, an increase of 24; and in false alarms, a decrease of 18.

In fires which were slight, there has been an increase of 24; in serious, a decrease of 3; and in fires which resulted in total destruction, a decrease of 19. It may be here recorded, as in former reports, that in the latter class of fires, the majority were comparatively small as regards the extent of damage done, such as shed buildings, and weatherboard cottages, &c.

I have drawn out and attached detailed statement of the various fires attended by the Brigade, the Volunteer Companies, and those unattended by Brigades, but which have been reported to the Brigade from various sources.

In each of the latter cases, however, a member of your Brigade was sent to obtain the necessary particulars.

The various summaries appended show the particular dates, time of calls, time of outbreak, trades, localities, insurances, hourly and daily, weekly and monthly, &c.

There is also appended a summary of the "Origin of Fires" for the past ten years, viz., from 1878 to 1887, both years inclusive, together with a comparison of all calls received during the same period.

Referring to the summary of localities it will be noticed that in the City of Sydney alone there were 154 calls—105 of which were actual fires, 9 false alarms, 5 chimney fires reported as houses on fire, and 35 chimneys attended by firemen with hand-pump only.

Of the actual fires in the city there were in Denison Ward, 21; Macquarie, 18; Bourke, 16; Cook, 15; Phillip, 12; Fitzroy, 10; Gipps, 7; and Brisbane, 6. In the suburbs there were 127 calls—of which 102 were actual fires, 5 were false alarms, 4 were chimneys reported as houses on fire, and 16 were chimneys attended with hand-pump only. The suburbs affected in regard to actual fires only, were as follows, viz.:—Newtown, 12; Paddington, 10; Glebe, 9; Balmain and Petersham, 7 each; Redfern and Alexandria, 6 each; Marrickville, 5; Burwood, Waterloo, Woollahra, and Macdonaldtown, 4 each; Camperdown, Darlington, Ashfield, and Manly, 3 each; St. Leonards East, Waverley, and Botany, 2 each; Five Dock, Victoria, Leichhardt, Parramatta, St. Leonards, and Arncliffe, 1 each.

Of the 60 chimney fires, 20 of them happened in dwellings belonging to poor persons, therefore proceedings were not taken against them in accordance with the 66th section of the "City of Sydney Improvement Act," 8 persons were fined in the aggregate amount of £9 and costs, 7 persons have not been summoned, and the remainder, 16, being outside of the city boundary, were not amenable to the said Act.

In summarizing the trades the following will be observed, that private dwellings have been mostly affected by fires, the number being 62 for all classes of damage; but taking the actual trades into consideration, the most notable stand in the following order, viz.: Grocers, 12; drapers and milliners and licensed victuallers, 9 each; tailors, 6; general dealers, stables, and tobacconists, 5 each; boarding-houses, fruiterers and greengrocers, 4 each; the respective numbers of each other trade affected is less than the last-mentioned figures, and are to be found in the "Summary of Trades."

I regret to inform your Board that during the past year the following casualties occurred, by which the under-mentioned persons were injured or their lives seriously endangered by fire, although I am pleased to say that, comparing the previous year, 1886, with that of 1887, the average has very much decreased.

And I may again state that your Board's Secretary, Mr. Wm. Ager, attends fires in general.

The undermentioned Volunteer Fire Companies hold plant on loan from your Board, viz. :—

Three Volunteer Fire Stations are also vested in the hands of your Board.

The following comprise the whole of the Volunteer Fire Companies within your Board's jurisdiction :—

During the year the late No. 4 Volunteer Fire Company removed and re-organized under the name of "Darlington."
 The late No. 5 Volunteer Fire Company amalgamated with the Paddington Brewery Volunteer Fire Company, but not being able to agree, disbanded. No. 2 Company, Woollahra, also disbanded during the year.

The North City and Leichhardt are two newly formed Companies. The latter Company has been found plant by your Board, but not yet subsidized, owing to inefficiency.

During last year the Manly Volunteer Fire Company has been supplied by your Board with a new 5-inch manual engine and plant, to suit the requirements of that district.

The approximate value of your Board's stations (exclusive of the new Central Fire Station in Castlereagh-street) and plant is £22,364, the whole of which is in first-class condition.

The undermentioned are the whole of the members in the Metropolitan Fire Brigade on the 31st of December, 1887 :—

During the past year two members, viz. :—Frederick Kirchen and Alfred Jackson resigned their appointments, and Richard I. Barratt was discharged by your Board for misconduct.

Again I feel it my bounden duty to point out to your Board the absolute necessity of having fresh sections added to the "City of Sydney Improvement Act," which could in some way restrict the erection of buildings having such enormous cubical capacity, some of which range up to a height of 115 feet, with no hoop-iron bond to hold the walls together in case of fire. Some of these buildings have only narrow lanes or very narrow streets intervening, and in particular instances bridges have been placed across a narrow lane, thereby making a positive connection in case of fire.

I have to draw your Board's immediate attention to another very dangerous practice of erecting buildings, the propriety of which should be dealt with as soon as possible. It is the construction of corner buildings supported on cast-iron columns alone, and in some cases having lean-to walls. If a fire was to take place in a building of this kind, at the corner of a street, the probable chances are that not only the building itself would be destroyed but others in its immediate vicinity, by the whole structure bodily falling down through the cast-iron columns giving way, either by the heat or by sudden contraction when the water touches them.

I may also mention that in many cases where these large buildings exist, and others about to be erected, very small watermains run through the streets not at all adequate to the requirements should an emergency arise.

If buildings are still erected to such a proportionate degree as in the years 1885, 1886, and 1887, very dangerous consequences must result, as it is impossible for any fire department to deal effectually with such buildings especially when in close proximity to others, more so when it is known that much cast and wrought iron and stone is used together with soft woods instead of hard. The latter I have always advocated as being much more suitable for both wear and tear and for actual fire-resisting in the warehouse class of buildings.

Rapid communication and promptness in turning out the Brigade and the different Volunteer Fire Companies has no doubt been the cause of greatly minimising the spread of fire to a very great extent in such a large city with municipalities surrounding it. I have, however, to point out the positive necessity of having a much better water pressure for this city and suburbs than exists at present, and also to have fullway screw-down hydrants adopted instead of the ball hydrant which is now in use.

To show to your Board to what extent the drawing off is on the Paddington watermain, and its inability to be at all equal to the requirements of this city, I have caused the pressure to be taken in all parts of the city, where this main reticulates, at different times of the day during the past year, and at many places during the forenoon, where the pressure should have been 58 to 70 lb. on the square inch in accordance with the relative height of the reservoir, I have only got pressure averaging from 10 lb. and upwards, showing clearly that the Paddington watermain is no way large enough.

A large number of the Crown-street watermains reticulating through the back streets are also much too small for the growing requirements of the city and suburbs in case of fire; and I may be allowed to point out that in consequence of the high price of land in the main thoroughfares huge and lofty warehouses are rapidly being built up in localities where there is not the least chance of saving them if a fire did break out.

I may here add that a large water main has been reticulated round this city during the past year, which will be a benefit if others are laid in a proportionate degree from it.

Considering the advantages we have in the reservoirs being only a short distance from the heart of the city, viz., Waverley, Woollahra, Paddington, and Crown-street; their respective heights being 360 feet, 280 feet, 215 feet, and 140 feet above high-water level and the cheapness of pumping-up enormous quantities of water to higher levels with modern machinery, it is not surprising to find visitors to this city ridiculing our arrangements for putting out fires with steam fire-engines, when these natural advantages exist for a supply by gravitation for extinguishing fires to all parts of the city, and also its suburbs having contiguity to the same.

I need hardly point out that if this state of things continues with the present and future growth of the city and its suburbs, the cost of your fire department will have to be hereafter augmented to a very large extent, by the mere excitement of the people, when suffering from large fires, which must be the result of building up in such a careless system large warehouses, &c., whereas if a proper water system was at once brought into operation by putting the city and its suburbs into certain districts in accordance with its different levels as is done in America and other older countries, having a good head of water and good flow to each, with a reserve in case of need of giving the next best head of water, the water system would be complete for years to come, and it would be the means of most of our warehousemen being able to protect more effectually the upper floors of their own warehouses by having their own fire appliances, and would probably be the means of saving hereafter a vast amount of property from loss by fires, and less cost for the support of a fire department, and which might prove also to be a great benefit to the ratepayers in general, in the way of lowering the premiums on fire insurance policies, should the fire insurance companies, as is most probable, decline altogether or charge high rates for the warehouses which are being projected in various parts of the city.

At present there are fire insurance companies which will not touch some of the existing warehouses. What will happen when buildings of 15 stories are designed?

The No. 2 and 3 Brigades Stations, together with most of the Volunteer Fire Stations (Burwood, Manly, Parramatta and North City Volunteer Fire Companies excepted), the various police stations, through the Central Police Station, Her Majesty's Theatre, and the turncock's quarters at the Town Hall are in direct telephonic communication with the Central Fire Station. The various wharves, warehouses, and other business houses, besides many public buildings are in a like manner connected with the Central Fire Station, though indirectly through the Telephone Exchange at the G.P.O., which is open to receive and transmit to the Central Fire Station, calls for fires at any hour of the day or night.

During the year the late telephone wire, previously running to the York-street Volunteer Fire Station, was disconnected and extended to the corner of York and King Streets, where a fire alarm telephone was erected. This has already been the means of saving a warehouse in that locality. Telephonic Telephonic communication has been established between the two stations of the St. Leonards Volunteer Fire Company, one of which has also been similarly connected to the St. Leonards Police Station, thereby allowing our Central Fire Station to be in communication with the four municipalities on the North Shore, via the Central Police Station.

The spare wire from the Central Fire Station, which was left when the Redfern Volunteer Fire Company's line was cut and run into the No. 2 Station, George-street West, has been extended to the Railway Telegraph Department at the Railway Terminus, thereby being the means of giving us the opportunity of early telephonic communication of all fires along railway lines.

The station of the Darlington Volunteer Fire Company has been placed in direct telephonic communication with the No. 2 Station, George-street West, and shortly I shall have the latter station placed in a like communication with the Council Chambers at Camperdown, in order to facilitate speedy calls of fires being given in these districts.

The Municipal Council Chambers at Marrickville has been connected by telephone with the No. 3 Station, Marrickville; and the wire has been extended to the corner of the Marrickville and Illawarra Roads, Marrickville; and also to the corner of the Parramatta Road, and Norton-street, Leichhardt; at each of which points a fire-alarm telephone has been erected.

The Leichhardt Volunteer Fire Station, and also your Chairman's residence (which stands about the centre of Petersham), have been similarly connected by telephone.

Taking all the above mentioned extensions into consideration, irrespective of telephones direct, I still have fifteen spare shutters on the exchange boards at each respective station, viz. :—

	Total No. on Board.	In use.	Spare.
No. 1 Station	30	21	9
„ 2 „	10	5	5
„ 3 „	6	5	1
Total for further extensions.....			15

I have very much pleasure in stating that our new Head Quarters Fire Station is fast drawing to completion, and I have every reason to believe that we shall be able to quit the old one for the new during the early part of the present year. I may state that I consider this station will be found a great acquisition to the city and suburbs, not only for its thorough completeness in every degree for the expedition of engines and men turning out to fires, but also for the bringing of our several volunteer comrades socially together for the purpose of drill, &c., and engendering a good feeling all round with the brigade.

Your Board's business also being carried on under the same roof, will assist materially to lower the cost of working the whole in the future.

Through your Board I desire to thank the whole of the officers and members of the various Volunteer Fire Companies for their valuable co-operation and assistance during the past year.

And I have again much pleasure in recording that the whole of the Volunteer Fire Companies throughout, have worked when at fires in complete harmony both with the Metropolitan Fire Brigade and also amongst themselves in general.

I have also much pleasure in again offering your Board my sincere acknowledgment for the great support it has given me on all occasions. And I also wish to express my obligations to the officers and members of the Police Force, the City Turncocks, and the citizens in general.

In conclusion, I have to state that the condition of the Brigade with regard to discipline and general efficiency is very satisfactory.

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM D. BEAR,

Superintendent, M.F.B., & Kerosene Inspector.

(REPORT OF THE DENILIQVIN FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 7.

The Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board, Deniliquin, 30 April, 1888.
The Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board has the honor to report, under section 7 of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884, on the following matters, which have come under its jurisdiction during the year 1887-88, to the 31st March ultimo:—

1. That during the time specified six fires occurred, particulars of which are attached in the schedule marked A.

2. That the financial operations of the Board are as disclosed in the schedule (balance-sheet) marked B.

3. That much difficulty has been experienced with the Insurance Companies who are contributories under the Act, but who decline to pay the assessments fixed by this Board, as they allege that the Fire Brigades Act is inoperative in country districts, and assert that they will resist payment until the point has been decided by the Supreme Court.

4. That as a matter of fact only two Companies paid the assessment last year, amounting to £5 14s., as shown in the balance-sheet.

5. That an action was commenced against the local Municipal Council, in January last, for refusing to pay the assessment for the year 1887, and that a verdict was given by the Police Magistrate at Deniliquin in favour of the Board. An appeal was then lodged by the Municipal Council against the decision, but was subsequently abandoned, and the amount of the verdict paid without costs.

6. That another action has been commenced against an Insurance Company (the Commercial Union) for refusing to pay the assessment, and that it has been mutually arranged between the solicitors representing the Board, and the Company named, to have the question definitely settled by the Full Court without fighting a preliminary case in the Police Court. This trial will come before the Full Court during the month of May, and this Board has decided upon this course in deference to the opinion given by the Attorney-General, and furnished by you last year.

7. That the estimates have been passed for this year, and the assessment made, and a demand sent for the payment, but up to the present date none of the contributories have responded in the affirmative.

8. That the local Fire Brigade is efficiently manned, and is doing good service, more especially so when an outbreak of fire is within the reticulation limits of the Municipality. Particular attention, in illustration of this, is directed to the fire on 2nd October, 1887. It originated in a dense block of buildings in proximity to the Town Hall and to a large ironmongery and builders' warehouse. The fire was confined, through the exertions of the Brigade, to the little out-building in which it originated; but had a Fire Brigade and plenty of water not been available, the loss would have been at least £5,000—by far the larger portion of which was covered by insurance—and would have had to be paid by the very Companies who are resisting the payment of the assessments to this Board.

We have, &c.,
MURDOCH MACKENZIE, Chairman.
J. W. H. WYSE, Secretary.

5. No person shall be enrolled should his occupation, in the opinion of the Board, unfit him for the duties of a fireman. No person who has been convicted of any felony or misdemeanour shall be allowed to remain or be enrolled in and company.

6. Any member of a company guilty of intoxication, disobedience of orders, insubordination, abusive or obscene language, smoking in uniform or at fires or on duty, wanton destruction of property, interference with fire plugs and other appliances, or other unseemly conduct, or shall be guilty of any other breach of these rules or the company's regulations, shall be at once suspended from duty, and shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5, or dismissal.

All proposed alterations and additions must be submitted to the Board for approval or otherwise. 11. The number of effective working members shall not be less than fifteen nor more than twenty. If at any time the number shall fall below the minimum, the registration of the company may be suspended and the subsidy cease.

12. Appointments to the usual offices in the company shall be made by the company in meeting assembled, subject, however, to confirmation by the Board, and the officers shall have such titles as the Board may permit.

13. On all occasions of fire, in the absence of the Superintendent, the members of the brigades shall abide by the instructions given by the senior officer of the company present, and members of the brigade shall not take orders from owners of property, bystanders, or other persons not in authority.

14. 15. No member shall be permitted to lend his uniform to any person not a member of the company, and members when on duty must wear a badge, mark of distinction, or number, in order that they may be recognized. All such badges, marks, or numbers must be approved by the Fire Brigades Board.

16. Members of company shall not be permitted to take any intoxicating liquor while on duty, without the permission of the officer in command, at a fire or practice.

17. The bells or other signalling apparatus shall only be used for giving or receiving alarms, and for sending messages on service.

18. The Superintendent shall, once in every month, report on the efficiency of the company, such report to be in writing made under his hand.

19. Any member of a company not attending paid practices shall, unless he furnish satisfactory excuse for his absence, be fined in such sums as the company's rules may permit, such fines to be for the use and benefit of the company inflicting them.

20. The Secretary of the Board shall be the person appointed to lay all informations necessary under all regulations made by the Board in the terms of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884.

Members of the Tamworth Fire Brigades Board.

AND the said Board, so constituted as aforesaid, have agreed upon Rules and Regulations under which the Tamworth Fire Brigades Board will register and subsidize Volunteer Fire Companies :—

2. No person shall be admitted as an effective member under the age of 18 years, unless under special circumstances as to physique or qualifications.
3. No person shall be enrolled over the age of 40 years, unless he has been previously engaged as an active fireman, in which case the limit may be extended to 45 years.
4. No person over the age of 50 years shall remain on the effective working staff of any Company, unless by special resolution of the Company, reported to and approved by the Board.
5. No person under 5 feet 3 inches in height or less than 32 inches round the chest shall be enrolled, unless under special circumstances.
6. No person shall be elected or appointed as an officer unless he is practically acquainted with the duties of a fireman.

8. In order to prevent claims on the funds of the Board or of the Company, all members shall assure their lives, and shall also assure against accidents, or shall belong to a benefit society, in which they shall at no time allow themselves to become unfinancial.
9. Any Company, in order to be registered and subsidized, must send an application to that effect to the Board, together with a list of its members, giving their names in full, with age, occupation, residence, height, measurement round the chest, state of health, and physical defects if any. On the Board being satisfied with such roll, the Company will be deemed to be established, and will be registered and subsidized accordingly.

A similar return shall be furnished in January in every year, but the signatures of those who have already signed need not be again attached, unless required by the Board.

12. Appointments to the usual offices in the Company shall be made by the members of the Company in meeting assembled, subject to the approval of the Board. Any member feeling aggrieved at any action shall have power to appeal to the Board.

13. The Secretary of the Company shall, by the 14th of January in every year, furnish the Board with the receipts and disbursements of such Company for the preceding year ended 31st of December, verified by the Secretary and Treasurer of the Company.

14. Each Company shall have its own printed rules of internal and general working, which must, in all cases, be subject to the approval of the Fire Brigades Board. All proposed alterations and additions must be submitted to the Board for approval or otherwise. All fines and punishments fixed for such rules shall be strictly enforced, under penalty of deducting from the subsidy voted such sums as it may appear that the Company has failed to recover.

15. The Fire Brigades Board may at any time appoint an officer to audit the books of any Company, subject to a notice of three clear days.

16. Members of Companies shall at no time attend Fire Brigade demonstrations outside a radius of five miles from the Tamworth Post Office without leaving a sufficient number of effective members within the Municipality. No apparatus shall be taken to a demonstration without the permission of the Board.

17. On all occasions of fire, in the absence of the Captain, members of Companies shall abide by instructions given by the senior officer present. Members of Companies shall not take orders from owners of property, bystanders, or other persons not in authority.

18. No member shall be permitted to lend his uniform to any person not a member of the Company. Members when on duty must wear a badge, mark of distinction, or number, in order that they may be recognized. All such badges or numbers must be approved by the Fire Brigades Board.

19. The bells, or other signalling apparatus, shall only be used for giving and receiving alarms, and for sending messages on service.

20. The members of Companies shall meet at least twice in every month for practice, &c. The Companies may appoint their own days for practice.

21. The Captain shall, once in every three months, report on the efficiency of the Company, such report to be in writing under his hand; and if the Board considers such report satisfactory, they shall subsidize the Company in such amounts as may be deemed advisable, having regard to the numbers and state of efficiency of the Company, and to the amount of money at the disposal of the Board.

22. All subsidies shall be payable quarterly, and shall in the discretion of the Board be subject to stoppage, reduction, or absolute forfeiture, in the event of the Company becoming in the opinion of the Board inefficient.

23. The subsidy will be paid into the Bank to the credit of the Treasurer of the Company, and is to be devoted to the purchase of materials, uniforms, payment for practices, and for attendance at fires.

24. Any member of a Company not attending paid practice shall, unless he furnish a satisfactory excuse for his absence, be fined in such sum as the Company's rules may determine.

25. Members of Companies shall not be allowed to take any intoxicating liquors while on duty without the permission of the officer in command at a fire or practice.

26. Any member of a Company guilty of intoxication, disobedience of orders, insubordination, abusive or obscene language while in uniform, at fires or on duty, wanton destruction of property, interference with fire-plugs, and other appliances, or other unseemly conduct, or shall be guilty of any other breach of these Rules, or the Company's Regulations, shall be at once suspended from duty, and shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

27. The Fire Brigades Board may deduct from any subsidy, by way of fine, any sum not exceeding five pounds for each offence under these regulations, or recover the same in lieu thereof in terms of the Fire Brigades Act. The Captain of Company, or the Secretary of the Fire Brigades Board, shall be the officer or person to lay informations under these regulations.

FIRE BRIGADES ACT, 1884.

(TAMWORTH FIRE BRIGADES BOARD--ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 21.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th July, 1888.

THE following Regulations, made by the Fire Brigades Board for the Borough of Tamworth, under the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

TAMWORTH FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.

ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS.

REGULATIONS for establishing and maintaining an efficient Fire Company in the Borough of Tamworth.

1. The Board shall, as they deem necessary, purchase or lease any land, houses, or other buildings for the purpose of providing engine-houses, brigade offices, or alarm stations, and may purchase or hire any engine, machinery, or other appliances, for the purpose of extinguishing fires or saving life or property, and may place such appliances at the disposal of any Volunteer Fire Company that may be from time established and registered under the Board; and the Board may by resolution permit any part of these appliances to be used for any purpose, providing the expenses and charges are paid by the party or parties using the same, and that the said party shall have entered into a guarantee with the Board against all loss or damage to such appliances.

2. The Board shall appoint a Captain, foreman, and engine-keeper, who shall be paid such salaries as the Board may determine; the Board may also enrol such number of firemen as it may from time to time deem necessary. The Captain shall be the officer in charge of all Fire Companies under the Board, and shall have control of such Companies when on duty or parade. During his absence the officer next in seniority available shall fulfil all such duties and have charge of such Companies. The Captain shall instruct the Company in their practices, drills, and parades, and direct them when on active duty at fires.

3. The Captain shall have possession of, and be responsible for, all engines, machinery, or other appliances for the purpose of extinguishing fires, saving life or property, belonging to the Board.

4. The Captain shall keep a roll of all members, with a record of their attendance at drills, practices, parades, and fires; he shall report all breaches of rules or disobedience of orders, and pending inquiry shall suspend any member, and report such suspension to the Board, who shall inquire into the cause of complaint, and if sustained such member shall at once be dismissed from the Company and his name removed from the roll, or he shall pay such fine as the Board may impose, and failing so to pay, may be sued for same before any two Justices of the Peace. In no case shall a fine be imposed exceeding £5, in addition to any damage done to any plant, uniform, or other property of the Board.

5. None but physically strong men, free from defect in sight and limb, without organic disease, shall be registered on the staff of the Company, and in all cases a medical certificate will be required.

6. No person under the age of 18 years shall be enrolled unless under special circumstances as to physique or qualifications.

7. No person over the age of 40 years shall be enrolled unless he has been previously engaged as an active fireman, in which case the limit may be extended to 45 years.

8. No person over the age of 50 years shall remain in the Company, unless by special recommendation of the Captain, reported to and approved by the Board.

9. No person under 5 feet 3 inches in height or less than 32 inches round the chest shall be enrolled.

10. In order to prevent claims on the funds of the Board, all members shall assure against accidents, or shall belong to a benefit society, in which they shall at no time allow themselves to become unfinancial.

11. After the formation of the Company no person shall be appointed as an officer unless he is practically acquainted with the duties of a fireman.

12. No person who has been convicted of any felony shall be enrolled in the Company.

13. The Board shall pay all firemen enrolled, on the certificate of the Captain, the sum of two shillings and sixpence for each attendance at drill, practice, or parade, and ten shillings when on duty at fires, if not detained more than four hours, after that time at the rate of two shillings per hour.

14. Any member of the Company will be liable to dismissal for intoxication, insubordination, disobedience, neglect, or omission of duty, incompetency, disrespect to any person in authority, or to the Board, or any member or officer thereof, for insolent or immoral behaviour, or any crime, misdemeanour, or other conduct punishable by law, in addition to such penalty as may be fixed by the Fire Brigades Board.

15. No member of the Company shall, upon any occasion or under any pretence whatever, accept any money, gift, or address from any person for services rendered at a fire, without permission from the Fire Brigades Board.

16. At fires no member will be allowed to enter any hotel for refreshments without the permission of the Captain or such officer who may be in charge. All refreshments, if possible, will be supplied in the vicinity of the fire, and not in an hotel. At no time at fires will any member be permitted to supply or use his authority towards supplying any persons, civilians or otherwise, with refreshments of any description without the orders of the Captain or such officer as may be in charge. Anyone violating this rule will be immediately suspended.

17. Any member heard to speak slanderously, disparagingly, contemptuously, or insubordinately of any officer, or in any manner uttering words calculated to cause a breach of the rules or disorder in the Company, shall be suspended.

18. Any member guilty of any tampering with the books, or wilful damage to, or destruction of, the buildings, goods, effects, chattels, clothing, apparatus, or plant belonging to the Fire Brigades Board, or in its charge, will be liable to immediate suspension.

19. The Captain shall receive all fines imposed, and pay the same to the Secretary, giving all necessary particulars required by the Board.

20. The Board may supply each fireman with such uniform as they may decide, and such uniform shall remain in the custody of the fireman as long as he continues to be enrolled, and shall be delivered up to the Captain upon his ceasing to be a member of the Company.

21. The members of the Company shall meet at least twice in every month for practice, &c., upon such days and at such time as the Captain may appoint.

22. The Captain shall, once in every three months, report to the Board on the efficiency of the Company, such report to be in writing under his hand.

No. 1.

The Acting Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. District Court Judge Docker.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 30 January, 1888.

Referring to voucher submitted by you for £7 for actual expenses incurred by you in travelling from Granville to Darlinghurst while presiding as District Court Judge and Chairman of Quarter Sessions from 8th to 22nd December last, I am directed to inform you that as it has not been the practice of the Department heretofore to authorize the payment of claims of this nature the Minister of Justice regrets that he cannot approve of your voucher being passed for payment in this instance.

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,

Acting Under Secretary.

No. 2.

Mr. District Court Judge Docker to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Bathurst, 1 February, 1888.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, informing me that the Minister of Justice declines to pass my voucher for actual expenses incurred in attending the Darlinghurst Sessions in December last.

I have to express my surprise that you should have been directed to make such an erroneous statement as that which asserts that it has not been the practice of the Department heretofore to sanction claims of this nature.

Your predecessor in office informed me that it always was the practice of the Department to sanction such claims, before I undertook to perform the work out of which they arise; the directions on the back of the voucher forms sanction them; and as a matter of fact, which you can verify by investigation, my claim on each previous occasion has been allowed and my voucher paid.

I have further to express my surprise that the Minister should not only expect me to perform gratuitous work for the Government beyond the duties imposed upon me by my appointment, but should even expect me to do it at my own expense; and I beg to inform you that I cannot afford to do so.

The voucher for £7 represents money actually paid by me out of pocket for daily transit to and from Darlinghurst and for necessary meals at the Court.

As a matter of fact it does not represent the whole of the expense incurred by me, which was about £7 10s., but I took off the odd shillings.

As the amount is under £10 I do not intend to sue for it, but unless it is paid I shall not in future perform any duties but those imposed upon me as District Court Judge of the Western District; and if the Minister adheres to his determination not to pass my voucher, you will be good enough to make other arrangements for the Darlinghurst Sessions, beginning on the 24th of September next.

I have, &c.,

ERNEST B. DOCKER,

D.C.J., Western District.

No. 3.

The Acting Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. District Court Judge Docker.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 6 February, 1888.

In reply to your letter of the 1st instant, with regard to the decision of the Minister of Justice in declining to pass the voucher submitted by you for £7, expenses incurred by you when presiding at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions in December last, I have the honor, by the direction of the Minister of Justice, to inform you that he regrets he can see no reason to alter the decision already conveyed to you, and to ask you to be good enough to say if it is still your intention not to preside at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions in September next, as arranged.

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,

Acting Under Secretary.

No. 4.

Mr. District Court Judge Docker to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Granville, 10 February, 1888.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 6th instant (88/1,195), in which you inform me that the Minister of Justice can see no reason to alter his decision with regard to my travelling expenses incurred in attending the Darlinghurst Sessions.

I can certainly offer no stronger reasons for such alteration than those enumerated in my letter of the 1st instant, in reply to yours of the 30th ultimo (87/13,271), in which you allege as the reason of the Minister's decision that "it has not been the practice of the Department heretofore to authorize the payment of claims of this nature." In my reply I pointed out that this statement was erroneous in point of fact, and further, that it was in violation of an arrangement entered into by your predecessor in office.

As the Minister, notwithstanding, can see no reason to alter his determination, I can come to no other conclusion than that the reason alleged is not the real ground of his decision. Of course, unless the real reason is stated, I cannot categorically answer it, as I believe I could quite as conclusively as I have the ostensible one. That there may be no misunderstanding as to this matter in future, I desire to state that when, in 1884 or 1885, I was first requested to temporarily preside at Darlinghurst Court, which was done in courteous terms in a letter from the then Minister for Justice, stating that such voluntary service would relieve the Government of a difficulty, pending the carrying out of other arrangements contemplated, I had an interview with Mr. Plunkett, then Under Secretary, in which I pointed out that as I did not reside in Sydney I should be put to some expense in attending the Court. He informed me that as a matter of course my actual expenses would be paid. I accordingly acceded to the request of the Minister. Of course, as the arrangement was a verbal one, there would be no record of it in your office; but that Mr. Plunkett had authority to make it, and that it was a continuing one, is amply proved by the fact recorded that ever since my vouchers for such expenses have been paid without question.

If the Minister wished to discontinue that arrangement, it would have been only fair to give me notice before calling upon me to undertake further engagements.

I desire also to repeat that the Metropolitan Judges are paid their expenses for the converse journey to Parramatta when they are performing work which is not gratuitous, but part of their duty as such Judges, and therefore paid for. And I believe it to be a fact that the Stipendiary Magistrates are allowed their expenses when they visit their suburban Courts, such as Balmain and Newtown.

I cannot conceive how there can be a doubt as to the legality or fairness of my claim; and if the Minister thinks fit to refer the question in issue to the Honorable the Attorney-General, I shall be quite content to abide by his decision.

In

In reply to your question whether it is still my intention not to preside at the Darlinghurst Sessions in September next, I have to state that as the Minister has repudiated the implied condition on which I consented to perform such service, and that after the service has been actually performed by me, and expenses incurred, I consider myself both legally and morally absolved from any further continuance of the service. However, I have no wish to cause any inconvenience by upsetting arrangements already made, or to be thought desirous of repudiating any engagement I have made, and accordingly I will, as arranged, preside at the Darlinghurst Sessions in September next, on the clear understanding that I am reimbursed my necessary expenses incurred in attending that Court.

I have, &c.,
ERNEST B. DOCKER, D.C.J.

No. 5.

The Acting Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. District Court Judge Docker.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 27 February, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, and am directed by the Minister of Justice to state in reply that Sydney is regarded as the head-quarters of Judges and Crown Prosecutors, from which their travelling expenses are computed, and consequently the illustration given by you of a Judge travelling from Sydney to Parramatta to attend a Court within his district does not appear to be applicable. Were the principle insisted upon by you recognized, a Judge who had to visit Goulburn, for instance, might take up his residence at Bourke, and be entitled to charge travelling expenses from that place.

When, in the first instance, the Minister decided not to allow you travelling expenses to and from Granville, and also your charges for meals at Darlinghurst Court, he was not aware that you had previously received a like allowance.

You have imputed to the Minister that the reason which was alleged for his refusal to sanction the expenditure was not the real ground of his decision. This imputation, the Minister directs me to say, is both incorrect and unjustifiable.

As, however, it now appears that the payment of the expenses claimed by you was a condition precedent to your agreeing to sit at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions, as arranged with the late Under Secretary, the Minister has approved of the payment of the account in question, but I am directed to inform you that similar demands will not again be entertained by him.

Should you in future decline to preside at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions when requested to do so (the performance of the ordinary work of your circuit not being necessarily interfered with), the Governor-in-Council may be asked to alter the limits of your district, and such an alteration will probably have the effect of including in your district additional towns in which it will be necessary for you to hold Courts. It is needless to say that such action would be taken with regret were it to cause you any inconvenience. Its aim would be, of course, merely to relieve some other country Judge who would be willing to preside at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions when necessity required.

I have, &c.,
ARCH. C. FRASER,
Acting Under Secretary.

No. 6.

Mr. District Court Judge Docker to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Forbes, 5 March, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th ultimo, informing me that the Minister has approved of the payment of my voucher for actual expenses incurred while presiding at the Darlinghurst Sessions in December last.

My previous letters upon this matter were written under a strong feeling of indignation at the imputation which seemed necessarily involved in the Minister's refusal to sanction this payment that I was attempting to obtain from the Government money to which I was not entitled, an imputation which appears to me almost the gravest that could be brought against the honor of a Judge. As it appears from your letter that such imputation was not intended, but that the Minister's decision was founded on imperfect and erroneous information, I beg to withdraw and apologize for any expressions in my letters which the Minister considers to cast unjustifiable imputations upon him. At the same time I must call your attention to the fact that your letter of the 27th ultimo contains the first intimation that has been conveyed to me that Sydney is regarded as the head-quarters of the District Court Judges. I was not hitherto aware of the existence of any Ministerial minute or other authority establishing any such rule—certainly there is nothing in the District Courts Acts to that effect; but I know many years ago an ineffectual attempt was made to compel each Judge to reside within the limits of his district.

I quite agree that the illustration you give is absurd, and that a Judge should reside within reasonable distance of the locality of his duty, or else reach it at his own expense. I have resided at Granville some eight years, and the result has been, if anything, to save the Department some expense so far as railway charges are concerned, because Parramatta, instead of Sydney, is my starting-point. If I were Judge of the Metropolitan District, I should consider myself bound to attend the Metropolitan Courts at my own expense, but I am not, and this is the distinction which appears to be overlooked while sitting at Darlinghurst. I am performing entirely gratuitous work—work which would at the most moderate computation cost the Government £100 if paid for; it is only equitable therefore that the necessary expenses so incurred should be paid, just as if it were a Court of my own district to which I had to travel the same distance from my residence. I only recur to this aspect of the subject because I do not clearly gather from your letter whether my actual and necessary expenses in presiding at that Court in September next are to be paid.

I agreed to hold it under the apprehension that the arrangement which the Minister now puts an end to was still subsisting, and I consider that I shall be entitled to receive them. With regard to the £7 for the December Court, as my right to that sum was questioned, however erroneously, I shall not personally personally appropriate it, but as soon as I receive it it will be handed over to the society for the relief of discharged prisoners. With regard to the latter part of your letter, I beg to say that I must decline to assent to the doctrine that because the Metropolitan Judges are overworked the country Judges should be called upon to submit to a like process; nor can I recognize it to be the duty of the country Judges to do the work that the Metropolitan Judges cannot. I have always objected on principle, for reasons which it is unnecessary to detail, to the expedient which was avowedly temporary being converted into a permanent arrangement; and not because I object to do the amount of work which may be fairly expected from a District Court Judge.

Owing to a variety of circumstances, one of which may fairly be claimed to be the way in which the law has been administered, the amount of crime has been greatly decreased in the Western District during the last few years. From this cause and the extension of the railways, I am enabled to get through the Circuit in less time than it formerly took, though there are now more Courts, and consequently a considerable sum has been saved to the Government in the way of travelling expenses. I have always recognized and acknowledged that while these circumstances continue I am able to take more work than was originally allotted to me. I have shown this last year by taking over from the North-western District the Cobar Courts (which entail an additional road-journey of some 350 miles, and a fortnight longer on Circuit) to enable the Judge of that district to take one of the Darlinghurst Courts. The Metropolitan Judges have long been aware that rather than take the Darlinghurst Court I am willing that the three Courts of the Metropolitan District adjacent to mine, viz., Parramatta, Windsor, and Penrith, should be transferred to the Western District, though this would add more than a month to my work. This proposal has not been carried out because the Metropolitan Judges decline relief in this form. I now say, that as I understand the Judge of the South-western District is not averse to sitting at Darlinghurst, if he wishes it, I am willing to take over his Courts which lie adjacent to mine, viz., Young and Grenfell, thereby adding three weeks annually to my Circuits.

I may say therefore that I shall cheerfully perform my duties at any places which the Governor-in-Council may think should be legitimately annexed to the Western District; and I beg to assure the Minister that my own inconvenience will be the last consideration with me. I must, however, remind him that increase of Civil business on account of returning prosperity, and increase of crime through the release of criminals from confinement, may prevent me from doing as much additional work as is possible under present conditions. Even during the past year I was sometimes compelled to sit late at night to get through the Courts in the time allotted. But this practice is not advisable or convenient to the general public, and I may consequently be obliged to extend the intervals between the successive Courts.

I have, &c.,

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 20 March, 1888.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 5th instant, further respecting the payment of expenses actually incurred by you while presiding at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions, and arrangements of Courts in your district, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that the matters of substance contained in your letter appear to have been dealt with in the course of previous correspondence.

I am also to state that, as might be gathered from my letter of the 27th ultimo, the Minister of Justice cannot see his way to consent to the payment of similar expenses in respect of your attendance at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions in September next, and would be obliged by your stating whether, under these circumstances, you still adhere to your intention of refusing to preside at that Court.

The Minister further desires me to add, that he notes with satisfaction and begs to thank you for the expression of readiness on your part to perform judicial work so as to meet the public convenience.

Sir,

Blackheath, 24 March, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th instant (88-2,882). As I consider that I have sufficiently vindicated my position in the matter referred to, and as I have no desire to upset any arrangements already made, I shall attend at the Darlinghurst Sessions in September next, at my own expense, except as to railway travelling, for which I shall draw the usual orders on your Department, as that entails no expense to the Government.

I have also to inform you that I have received a summons to attend a meeting of the Judges on the 7th April, called in accordance with the request of the Minister in January last, to consider the distribution of the work of the Judges.

As I am residing here (Blackheath) for the next month, in consequence of ill-health in my family, and have no business of my own to take me to Sydney, I desire to know whether I shall be permitted to draw an order for a return ticket from here to Sydney, to enable me to attend the meeting as being on official duty.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 27 March, 1888.

Referring to your letter of the 24th instant, further respecting your attendance at Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions in September next, and asking whether you will be permitted to draw an order for a return ticket from Blackheath to Sydney, to enable you to attend a meeting of Judges in April next, to consider the redistribution of work, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that he regrets that he is unable to comply with your request or sanction the expenditure referred to.

I have, &c.,

THOS. E. MACNEVIN,

For Acting Under Secretary.

No. 10.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. District Court Judge Docker.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 28 April, 1888.

Referring to your letter of 24th ultimo, in which you state that you will attend Darlinghurst Quarter Sessions at your own expense, except as to railway travelling, for which you will draw the usual orders on this Department, and inquiring whether you will be permitted to draw an order for a return ticket from Blackheath to Sydney to enable you to attend a meeting of the District Court Judges in Sydney, being on official duty, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that the reply sent to your communication from this office dated the 27th ultimo by inadvertence referred only to your request for permission to draw a railway order from Blackheath to Sydney, instead of to both the journeys mentioned by you.

To avoid any misconception on the subject, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that he regrets that, under the circumstances fully explained in previous correspondence, he cannot sanction the use by you of a railway order in connection with your attendance at the Court of Quarter Sessions at Darlinghurst.

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,

Under Secretary.

(THIRD SESSION.)

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES:

MR. ADDISON, STIPENDIARY MAGISTRATE.

(PETITION FROM CHARLES PRINCE, CHAIRMAN OF MEETING OF LICENSED DRIVERS.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 25 November, 1887.

To the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly for the Colony of New South Wales.

The Humble Petition of the undersigned licensed drivers,—

SHOWETH :—

That the undersigned and others being dissatisfied with the conduct of Mr. Addison, Stipendiary Magistrate, held a public meeting on Friday, the 23rd day of September, 1887, at which were present nearly all the licensed drivers of Sydney, and it was resolved to Petition the Honorable Members of the House of Parliament of this Colony, for all minutes and correspondence relative to Mr. Addison's conduct since he held the position of Stipendiary Magistrate.

That on a number of licensed drivers being summoned on the 2nd day of September last, for a breach of the Transit Commissioners by-law, they defended them, Mr. Addison made use of these words—"go and follow the leader, plead not guilty, and I will fine you double;" thereby implying no matter what defence they might have that he would fine them all double, or in other words prejudicing the case before any evidence given.

That your Petitioners caused the matter to be placed before the Minister for Justice, and received a reply thereto dated the 13th day of September last, number 9474, stating that Mr. Addison denies the charges made against him of having dealt unjustly in the cases mentioned, and that the Minister for Justice was satisfied with the explanation furnished by Mr. Addison.

That your Petitioners desire that a Select Committee be appointed to enquire into the conduct of Mr. Addison, relative to remarks made by him in his capacity of Stipendiary Magistrate, when adjudicating in the Police Courts with licensed drivers.

That this is not the first time remarks of a similar nature were used.

Your Petitioners therefore pray as follows :—

That a Select Committee be appointed to inquire into the conduct of Mr. Addison, relative to remarks made by him while acting in his capacity of Stipendiary Magistrate, when adjudicating in the Police Courts with licensed drivers.

And your Petitioners will ever pray, &c.

CHARLES PRINCE,

(POLICE MAGISTRATE FOR PARRAMATTA.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 2 May, 1888.

RETURN to an Order of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 18th March, 1885, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

(Mr. Melville.)

Mr. S. Robinson to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

By permission, I have the honor to apply for the appointment of Police Magistrate for Parramatta. The emoluments accruing from the various offices which I hold in Young are much greater than I could expect from the Parramatta appointment. My sole object in asking for the charge is, that I have several children to educate, and there is no school in Young besides the public institution. I am now nearly thirteen years in the Public Service, out of which time I have been over nine years Police Magistrate in Young.

Trusting that you will bring my application favorably under the notice of the Honorable the Minister for Justice,

Young, 4 November, 1884.

I have, &c.,

S. ROBINSON.

(APPOINTMENT OF A POLICE MAGISTRATE FOR PARRAMATTA.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 May, 1888.

RETURN to an Address of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 3rd May, 1888, That His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers, applications, &c., in connection with the appointment of a Police Magistrate for Parramatta.”

(Mr. Frank Farnell.)

H. Byrnes, Esq., J.P., to The Hon. W. B. Dalley.

My dear Dalley,

Parramatta, 5 November, 1884.

I understand that provision will be made on the Estimates for the appointment of a Police Magistrate to do the Bench work here, as well also at Liverpool and Ryde, and as I intend to make an application to the Minister for Justice for the position, I write to ask if you will oblige me by using your influence with your colleague to secure the appointment for me. I have been a Magistrate for nineteen years, and was appointed by the late Sir Charles Cowper in July, 1865, and since that time I have disposed of the greater part of the Police Office business here, with good reason for believing, as far as one may expect, with satisfaction to, at least, the greater part of the respectable people in the community. My decisions have only been questioned three times, and prohibitions were granted in two cases. At the present time I am the Licensing Magistrate for the district, and was nominated to the Government for the office at a meeting of forty magistrates, some of whom were from the Ryde Bench, thus showing that as far as the Justices are concerned, they considered me qualified in every way to occupy the chief position on the Bench. I am quite satisfied no opposition would be raised here to my application by any person except by Mr. Taylor, and if his were from honest and upright motives, I could expect it, but I know it would arise entirely from vindictiveness and hatred to me, as well as towards the members of my family, and in this light it should be viewed, for as a Magistrate I can defy him and the whole world to point to a single act of mine and say that it was done corruptly, or even bore the colour of partiality. I should like very much to have the appointment, for it would be a high compliment to be selected for it, besides being an endorsement of approval of the manner in which I have discharged my duties as an unpaid Magistrate, at the same time showing that the Government feel I am in every way competent to discharge the more important duties of a Police Magistrate. It would also be a gratification to my father, who has for so many years worked hard for the good of the town and district, and at different times for long periods represented both in Parliament. It might be said that it would be an exceptional case to appoint one who has been so long residing in the town, but it would not be so, for, if my memory serves me rightly, a Mr. Smith was a school-teacher in one of the Northern towns, where he afterwards became Clerk of Petty Sessions, and ultimately the Police Magistrate. There is also the case of Mr. John Lane, the Police Magistrate of Orange, where he resided for many years previous to his appointment; and then again the late Mr. North, at Carcoar, where he for years kept a store. While in my case, although having been here so long, and engaged in business, I have scarcely been brought into contact with the people in that way, as all our manufactures have been disposed of in Sydney; and I may mention that although my family connections have very little to do with politics, it is not a proof that Mr. Taylor represents the community, for the only occasion on which my brother contested the electorate with him he defeated him, so that any opposition of his to my appointment could only be endorsed by a certain number of the people at most, while I have reason to believe it would not even even be by all who politically support him, but by the less respectable part. While on this subject I may refer to a fact worthy of consideration, that when Sir H. Parkes made such a determined effort to have Mr. Stuart rejected for Kiama he sent a friend to my father to try and induce him to go down and vote against Mr. Stuart and to use his influence among miners at Wollongong, with whom he has to do, to record their votes in the same way, and my father positively refused to do either, or to allow any one connected with the mine to use his name for the purpose by inducing any miner to vote against the Premier. I have written you rather lengthily on this subject, and referred to matters which under other circumstances would have been unnecessary, but which I thought in this case would not be out of place, as some of the points might be raised for consideration, and it is as well to deal with them in my letter to you, to whom I feel I am writing as a friend, and I hope you will not feel that I have wearied you on the subject.

And now I would ask you to do me the great favour of endeavouring to secure the appointment for me, for I am strongly of opinion, if you do, I shall be sure of it, as I believe your influence in the Government is very great. I need scarcely say you will never have cause to regret the exercise of your influence, for I am competent in every way to perform the duties in the position I seek, and would do so with honor to myself and satisfaction to the Government. I may further add that if the person who may be appointed will, as I understand have to do the Bench work at Liverpool and Ryde, both places being in the Central Cumberland Electorate, would cause Lackey and M'Culloch to feel an interest in the matter, and I know they will both favour me.

Yours, &c.,

H. BYRNES.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

ALLEGED ARSON AT RYDE.

(CORRESPONDENCE, &c., RESPECTING CHARGE AGAINST REV. H. H. BRITTEN.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 7 March, 1888.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 10th November, 1887, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all documents, papers, and depositions, in the case of alleged arson, preferred against the Rev. H. H. Britten, of Ryde; also copies of any letters which may have passed between the Minister of Justice and the Colonial Secretary on the matter, and in respect to the conduct of Mr. Manning, Coroner at Ryde.”

(Mr. J. S. Farnell.)

Frank Farnell, Esq., M.P., to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Legislative Assembly, Sydney, 28 March, 1887.

I have the honor to direct your attention to the conduct of Mr. J. E. Manning, a Magistrate of the Colony, and residing at Ryde, in connection with the malicious prosecution which has taken place against the Rev. H. H. Britten (the incumbent of St. Anne's Church). The evidence in the case points most clearly to the fact that the proceedings would never have been instituted had it not been that Mr. Manning bore malice to the rev. gentleman, which he openly shewed on many occasions; and in my own presence Mr. Manning's actions, in trying to poison the minds of people against Mr. Britten, and his evidence in the case, proves conclusively that he is most unreliable, and if we are to believe the witnesses his word is worth but very little. I might point out here that the very same gentleman was at one time committed for perjury. It is the opinion of the people of Ryde that the purity of justice would be maintained if Mr. Manning were dismissed from the magistracy. I might state that many complaints have been made previous to this in reference to the partiality shewn while on the Bench, and I also can point out to you a most disgraceful piece of business in which Mr. Manning was the chief actor in connection with a will. I look upon Mr. Manning as being thoroughly incompetent and incapable as a magistrate, and his conduct in the late prosecution against Mr. Britten calls for the heaviest censure; the people of Ryde and district have, in public meeting assembled, condemned him, as well as strangers, who have only read the evidence in the case.

I have, &c.,

FRANK FARNELL.

Mr. Manning may be asked for any explanation which he may desire to offer.—H.P., 7/11/87.

The Principal Under Secretary to J. E. Manning, Esq., J.P.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 April, 1887.

I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to enclose for your perusal, and for any explanation that you may desire to offer, the accompanying copy of a letter that has been received from Mr. Frank Farnell, M.P., preferring charges of misconduct against you.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER,

Principal Under Secretary.

J. E. Manning, Esq., J.P., to The Principal Under Secretary.

Ryde, 19 April, 1887.

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th, enclosing a copy of a letter received by you from Mr. F. Farnell, M.L.A., and asking for any explanation I may have to offer in reply to certain charges therein contained.

I have been a magistrate of the Colony for just twenty-six years, my commission dating, I fancy, before Mr. F. Farnell was born, and I have never during that time had a decision appealed against, nor have I ever heard of any complaints as to my conduct as a magistrate.

For the past eight years I have virtually been the Police Magistrate at Ryde, and living in the village, as I do, and being nearly always at home, I not only have to attend all the regular Courts, but all the special cases perpetually arising from Peat's Ferry and other parts of this large district. In addition, I have to do nearly all the chamber work in the signing of informations, &c.

I do not complain at having had to sacrifice my time very largely in the performance of my duty as a magistrate; but it must be quite clear that, in doing my duty honestly as a magistrate, I must necessarily offend a good many who are brought before me.

Mr. F. Farnell states that there has been a malicious prosecution of Mr. Britten, and that such proceedings would not have been instituted "had it not been for Mr. Manning's malice to the rev. gentleman."

The facts of the case are very simple: As coroner I held an inquest on the fire at Mr. Britten's parsonage, and the jury returned a verdict of "arson against some person to them unknown." I was told by a member of the jury at the time that it had been proposed to add a rider to the effect that the fires could only have been caused by some one resident in the parsonage, but that it was thought the coroner would not receive such a verdict. The depositions taken at the inquest I sent in to the Department of Justice in the usual way. Some days subsequently a juryman (Best) asked me how it was that Constable Harper was not called at the inquest, stating that it was quite clear "his evidence had been suppressed to get somebody out of it," and that if it had been him (Best), instead of some one else, he would have been run in long ago. Best then told me that Constable Harper could give material evidence gained by him (Harper), when left in charge of the premises after the fires were extinguished. I at once saw Constable Harper and took down his statement in writing. Shortly afterwards he reappeared at my house with F. Woodcock, who, he said, would confirm him in some of his statements. I then took down what Woodcock had to say and forwarded both statements to the Minister for Justice. I have learnt that Mr. Attorney-General Want, upon this evidence being laid before him on the 17th of December, directed an information to be laid, and that Mr. Attorney-General Foster, on the 31st January, complained of the delay, "which may be calculated to frustrate the ends of justice, &c.," and confirmed Mr. Want's direction. Copies of these minutes and Mr. Garvan's are appended, marked A, B, C, D, respectively. Had there not been some ground for the prosecution I humbly submit that two Attorney-Generals could not have agreed in directing it. But Mr. F. Farnell states that the matter never would have been instituted but for my malicious feeling against Mr. Britten. This I wholly deny. It is true that I, in company with a large portion of the parish, objected (for reasons which we considered sufficient, and which, if necessary, I am prepared to state) to Mr. Britten as incumbent of the parish, and we approached the Primate with our complaints.

While these matters were pending the parsonage fires occurred, as detailed in the depositions, and I, knowing that anything I did would probably be misconstrued, and feeling the painful position in which I was officially placed as coroner, left the management of the case in the hands of the police till the inquest was opened, with the result, that I was kept unaware of the evidence that Constable Harper could give, until my attention was called to it as aforesaid, subsequent to the inquest. With reference to the inquest itself and my conduct thereat, I enclose a statement signed by the jury, and marked E, and I give the following extract from the evidence of Mr. John Bennett of Brush Farm:—"By Mr. Pring: Mr. Britten had told him in a private conversation that Mr. Manning behaved very well and most impartially at the inquest." Mr. F. Farnell makes reference to a meeting held here which passed a resolution unfavourable to me. This meeting was got up during my absence at Bathurst, and on my return my friends advised me to treat the matter with contempt. This meeting, I am informed, turned out a very rowdy one, the parties for and against me being fairly evenly divided, and at the end cheers were given, both inside the hall and outside, for me. I may mention that the chairman had been recently fined before another J.P. and myself for assault—consequently he was not very friendly to me. Showing the opinion of the public, I append copy of address marked F. With reference to the statement of my having been committed for perjury, the cowardice of the charge may be judged from the following facts, which were explained by me in my cross-examination at the inquiry, and could have been easily verified or disproved by inquiry. This is on a par with Mr. F. Farnell's threats to avail himself of the privileges of the House to malign me by saying what he would not dare to say outside, my cause of offence being, as he has stated, that I opposed his return at a previous election. About seventeen years ago I had a case in the District Court, in which I got a verdict, the Judge believing me and my witnesses in preference to the other side. My opponent laid an information for perjury against me, and so shut my mouth. The magistrates, as I was told, thought that they had no discretionary power in such cases, and I was accordingly committed; but Sir James Martin, the then Attorney-General, on reading the depositions, refused to prosecute, and caused me to be so informed at once. Such a matter could not occur in these days, as vindictive defeated suitors cannot now lay informations for perjury without first obtaining permission of the Judge who heard the case. As the Judge trying my case believed the evidence on my side and gave me a verdict, it is quite clear that he would not have allowed a prosecution for perjury against me. I would also call attention to the fact that I was at that time a J.P., and have remained so ever since. I notice that Mr. F. Farnell looks upon me "as being thoroughly incompetent and incapable as a magistrate, &c." I scarcely think that I can submit myself to his judgment on such a matter, and I do not rely upon my own, but I refer you to the certificate signed by my brother magistrates and the attorneys practising before me (marked G and H respectively), and now enclosed, both as to my capability and integrity of action. Mr. F. Farnell makes reference to a will. I was asked, in reference to this matter, in Court, and the whole circumstances were explained, and I am ready, at any moment, to satisfy anyone when a distinct charge is made, or even if the Colonial Secretary desires it. I think I have now dealt with all the subjects referred to by Mr. F. Farnell. In addition addition I may state that when the Licensing Act came into force, and the Ryde District formed part of the Parramatta Licensing District, I was unanimously elected a member of the Parramatta Licensing Bench by the magistrates of the two districts, and I am still a member of that Licensing Bench. When the districts were divided I was unanimously elected chairman of the Ryde Licensing Bench, which appointment I still hold. Subsequently, when a coroner was required for this district, I was unanimously recommended for the position by my brother magistrates. I should like to state, in addition, that although it would appear, from an answer given in the Legislative Assembly, that some complaint as to my action as coroner had been before the Minister for Justice, and that he had dealt with it, I have never been called upon for any remarks or explanation before receiving your letter. I conclude, therefore, that his decision must have been in my favour. I further enclose a letter received (marked I) from Mr. Pring, the Crown Prosecutor who conducted the cases. This gentleman is, of course, fully acquainted with the history of the arson case from first to last, and was a perfect stranger to me previous to the inquiry.

Apologizing for the length of my remarks,

I remain, &c.,

JOHN E. MANNING.

Sydney, 17 December, 1886.

Opinion of the Attorney-General.

Subject: Re fire at St. Anne's Parsonage, Ryde.

I THINK the circumstances of this case, deposed to by Constable Harper and Frederick Woodcock, justify an information being laid against Mr. Britten without any further investigation. I must confess my astonishment at the evidence of this constable being withheld at the trial, and desire to be informed whether any explanation can be given on this point. Were the parties conducting the prosecution made aware of the fact that this evidence could be given?

J. WANT,
A.-G.

Department of Justice, Sydney.

Minute Paper—Subject: Re fire at St. Anne's Parsonage.

I HAVE read the opinion of the Attorney-General in this matter, and am of opinion that a public prosecution should be instituted against Mr. Britten, and in the absence of the Attorney-General I refer the papers to the Crown Solicitor to take immediate steps in the case.

JAMES GARVAN.

Will the Inspector-General of Police direct an officer of police to lay an information charging the person within-named with arson, and cause the necessary witnesses to be subpoenaed, when I will, as suggested in the Coroner's letter to the Minister for Justice, cause a brief to be delivered to Mr. Roberts to attend and conduct the prosecution.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Crown Solicitor, 22/12/86.

(C.)

Minute Paper—Subject: Re fire at Ryde Parsonage, occupied by Rev. Mr. Britten.

HAVING carefully perused the additional statements and other information obtained at my instance in this case, and having regard to the opinion of my honorable colleague, the Attorney-General, of date 17th December last, in which I concur, I do not feel justified in further delaying such action on the part of the police, as the evidence may seem to warrant, in the interests of justice. The papers should therefore be returned to the Crown Solicitor for this purpose.

17th January, 1887.

JAMES GARVAN.

Copy of Attorney-General Foster's Minute re prosecution in Ryde arson case.

I CAN see no reason for differing from the opinion of Mr. Attorney-General Want that this case should be proceeded in by information against Mr. Britten. I think the delay which has taken place may be calculated to frustrate the ends of justice, and I trust that no further delay will take place.

My dear Mr. Manning,

Wentworth Court, 7 April, 1887.

I have received your letter of 2nd instant, in which you ask me to state my opinion of your conduct in reference to the recent arson case at Ryde. It seems to me that you have been very unjustly abused in the matter. I think that when fresh evidence came to light after the inquest it was your duty as coroner and magistrate to bring that evidence under the cognizance of the Government, and if in doing so you overstepped the bounds of prudence, as I think you in a measure did, it is not, I think, fair or just that you should be called to account for such a slight error of judgment on your part.

During the whole of the long inquiry before the Magistrates, I can remember no suggestion being made that you acted the inquest otherwise than most impartially; but some people appear to be shocked that a magistrate should in any way assist in the detection of crime, and to think that his duties are limited to adorning the Bench. I for one do not give my assent to such a proposition, for I think it would be well if magistrates generally paid more attention to the commission which appoint them.

I am, &c.,

ROBERT D. PRING.

J. E. Manning, Esq., Ryde.

(J.)

EXTRACTS from a speech of Mr. F. Farnell's at Ryde recently, as taken down by Mr. Cunningham, shorthand writer to the Supreme Court.

"WHETHER my action will be acceptable to the majority of the people of Ryde, I care not."

"In the first place he (Mr. Manning) overstepped his duty as coroner, in fact I do not think he ever knew his duty, and in his capacity as magistrate he is thoroughly incapable of adjudicating on the Bench. I am glad to inform you that this state of affairs will not exist very long, because I have taken such steps that there will be a due investigation of his conduct, and that he will be called upon to resign his position as coroner."

"I have written to the Minister for Justice that the depositions may be produced for his approval, and I have given him my opinion on the proceedings. I intend to give them more before I have done. When I am in the House, and under the protection of privilege, I will be able to divulge what I have in my heart, but which I cannot say now."

"I was going to ask the Colonial Secretary a question as to his position as a magistrate, but I thought it would be best to speak to him quietly. Sir H. Parkes said his attention had been drawn in a certain way, and he had watched 'that man's' conduct in connection with the case and he would not forget it."

"I am sure the outcome of it will be that Mr. Manning will be asked to resign his commission of the peace, and if not he will be dismissed."

"Mr. Manning was allowed to go outside and poison the minds of the witnesses. (A voice, 'But he did not do so.') Anyhow he tried to do so. He tried to poison the minds of the witnesses." "I have a few notes, but they are for another occasion—they go back twenty years, and show some treachery."

Mr. F. C. Jarrett to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

229, Sussex-street, Sydney, 28 March, 1887.

I have the honor, on behalf of the committee appointed at the public meeting at Ryde, to forward for your perusal the resolution passed at that meeting and published in the Sydney Morning Herald on 17th instant, and to ask your special attention to the papers also enclosed, including Statutory declarations by the Rev. H. H. Britten and Mrs. Britten, which evidence, of course, could not be procured at the Police Court inquiry, or at the trial, but which are now available to confirm the testimony of other witnesses who directly contradicted Mr. Manning at the Police Court. I would also point out the fact, that upon other important points Mr. Manning was directly contradicted by two or more witnesses, notably as to his conversations with me in the train on 8th December, at which Mr. John Bennett, J.P., of Brush Farm House, and Mr. Charles Davis, solicitor, of Temple Court, were both present; and also that Mr. Pring, at the Police Court at Ryde, said the prosecution would not rely upon Mr. Manning's evidence, and at the trial it was altogether discarded. Mr. J. S. Farnell, the presiding magistrate at Ryde, also referred in severe terms to Mr. Manning's evidently unfriendly feeling towards the Rev. H. H. Britten, and that his evidence was unworthy of belief.

We are constrained to urge upon your notice the most serious aspect which the case assumes, and to ask whether it does not warrant you in going much further than to call for Mr. Manning's resignation as coroner and magistrate, for if witnesses, especially those holding such important positions in the community, can with impunity give false testimony, "the peace and safety of the inhabitants" are indeed seriously imperilled.

In the event of your deeming it expedient to hold an inquiry into the circumstances I shall be happy to furnish you with further information, which will prove to you that since these public expressions of opinion a petition in favour of Mr. Manning has been sent round for signature among the inhabitants of Ryde and district, and that even the navvies at Peat's Ferry have been induced to sign it by corrupt practices, practices, to say the least of them, so undignified as to disgrace the high office which they purport to support.

I also enclose denial of Mr. Manning's assertion, signed by seven of the jurymen who were present at the public meeting, and all twelve of whom were prepared to deny upon their oath the assertions made in Mr. Manning's letter to you and in his correspondence with the Cumberland Mercury, also enclosed, and acknowledged by him in his evidence at the Ryde Police Court.

I am also satisfied that the residents of the district of Ryde, the greater number of whom are in comparatively humble circumstances, are afraid to openly express their avowed disapprobation of Mr. Manning's conduct, and not a few acknowledge having signed his petition under fear of his disfavour in the event of their refusing.

That you will promptly act so as to terminate such an abominable state of affairs I am quite sure, and have the honor to subscribe myself,

Yours, &c.,

F. C. JARRETT.

[Enclosures.]

REPORT of the proceeding of a meeting of the residents of Ryde, held on the 16th March, extracted from Sydney Morning Herald, of 17th March, 1887.

MEETING OF THE RESIDENTS OF RYDE.

A PUBLIC meeting was held at St. Anne's Hall, Ryde, last evening, for the purpose of "taking into consideration the conduct of Mr. John E. Manning, while acting as coroner and magistrate, and deciding what course to pursue with reference to the same for the best interests of the district and the peace and safety of the inhabitants." The chair was occupied by the Mayor (Mr. W. Jackson), and there was a large attendance of the residents of the district. Upon the proceedings being opened, Alderman Lovell asked the chairman for the names of those who had signed the requisition by which the meeting had been convened. The chairman named a few of these gentlemen, and then called upon Mr. F. C. Jarrett to address the assemblage. Mr. Jarrett intimated that it was necessary that some steps should be taken in the direction pointed out in the requisition in order that the fair fame of Ryde should not be tarnished. After criticising Mr. Manning's actions in connection with the recent investigations relating to the cause of the fire at St. Anne's Parsonage, he moved:—"That this meeting views with the utmost alarm the conduct of Mr. John E. Manning in the recent discharge of the duties of coroner and magistrate, as in his evidence at the police court he said that he was in possession of evidence procured in conversations with the Rev. H. H. Britten and his wife before the inquest was held, but he nevertheless presided at the inquest and gave no notice to the proper authorities that it would be better to appoint another coroner and let him be called to give evidence; that in his capacity as coroner and magistrate he published statements in the Cumberland Mercury newspaper calculated to excite the public mind against the incumbent, such statements being falsified as to the opinion held by the jurymen that the incumbent was the incendiary; that the same paragraph reflected offensively upon the Government for not having taken further steps in the case; that in his correspondence with the Minister for Justice he asserted "that it was known to him that the jury at the inquest were nearly returning a verdict against the incumbent, Mr. Britten," which was also absolutely false; that, after being prevented from adjudicating on the case at the police court by being subpoenaed as a Crown witness, he asked the Clerk of Petty Sessions to write to Mr. D'Ardier requesting him to sit upon the case; and that Mr. Pope (the clerk) having declined to do this, Mr. Manning asked him himself; that Mr. D'Ardier thereupon wrote, stating that he would sit; that, in every material point, Mr. Manning in cross examination, had to admit the unreliability of his evidence in chief, or was directly contradicted by most respectable witnesses; and that it is a notorious fact, well known to this meeting, that Mr. Manning has, for several years, entertained feelings of the most hostile character to the Rev. H. H. Britten; that by Mr. Manning's own admissions in cross examination, he was once committed to take his trial for perjury, which, viewed in the light of his recent actions, and the unreliability of his statements, letters, and evidence calls for the most careful consideration of the Government as to whether he should not be at once removed from the Commission of the Peace and his office as coroner." The motion was seconded by Mr. W. J. Whitfield, and supported by Mr. A. Adams. On being put to the meeting it was carried with but nine dissentients."

EXTRACT from Cumberland Mercury, 11 December, 1886, acknowledged by Mr. Manning, at Police Court enquiry, to be written by him.

 PARSONAGE FIRE.—This is still the subject of much excitement in the village, and very unpleasant remarks are made at the Government not causing further steps to be taken. The jury found that the premises were wilfully set on fire in seven different places, and, singular to say, there was evidence at that very time in the hands of the police of two further fires. Had this evidence been produced, certain members of the jury openly say that they should have named the culprit, and found a distinct verdict of arson. It is currently reported that the Insurance Company do not intend to pay the claim made on them.

I, HENRY HAM BRITTEN, of Ryde, near Sydney, Clerk in Holy Orders, do solemnly and sincerely declare that the conversations alleged by Mr. Manning in his evidence at the Police Court inquiry at Ryde to have taken place between himself and me at the time of the fire at the Parsonage, Ryde—and again, subsequently on the night of the fire—and again, on the Saturday morning after the fire, are untrue, in all points tending to impute the origin or the knowledge of the origin of the fire to me. No such conversations took place as he alleges in his said evidence,—a few words only passed between us. Mrs. Britten made no such statements as the said Mr. Manning alleges on the night of the fire, and again on the following Saturday. Mr. Manning did not enter the Parsonage on that Saturday. And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the ninth year of Her present Majesty, intituled “An Act for the more effectual abolition of oaths and affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the Government of New South Wales, and to substitute declarations in lieu thereof, and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial oaths and affidavits.”

Made and signed before me at Sydney, this 28th day of March, 1887,—

WILLIAM RUSSELL, Junior, Notary Public, Sydney.

I, MARY BRITTEN, of Ryde, do solemnly and sincerely declare that the following statements of Mr. Manning, given in his evidence at the Ryde Police Court, are absolutely untrue :—(1) That “Mrs. Britten said that when Mr. Britten called her, she would not get up for some time, because Mr. Britten was always calling at night, saying the place was on fire. She said she did not know what had been the matter with Mr. Britten lately, his head had been so bad.” (2) That “Mrs. Britten said, ‘I did nothing of the sort—meaning, upsetting the kerosene. You are much more likely to have done it when you were spurring the oil about with a garden syringe.’” Mr. Britten did not accompany me when leaving the parsonage on the morning of the fire with Mr. Manning, and when Mr. Manning asserts that statement, No. 1 was made. Mr. Manning did not enter the parsonage on the day on which he asserts that statement No. 2 was made. And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and in virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled “An Act for the more effectual abolition of oaths and affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the Government of New South Wales, and to substitute declarations in lieu thereof, and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial oaths and affidavits.”

Made and signed before me, at Ryde, this 15th day of March, 1887,—

MARY BRITTEN.

WE the undersigned Jurymen at the inquest on the recent fire at the Church of England Parsonage, being aware from the published correspondence between Mr. Manning and the Minister for Justice, that Mr. Manning states as follows :—

“It is however known to me that the jury at the inquest were nearly returning a verdict against the incumbent, Mr. Britten,” and that he acknowledged in evidence that he had written for the Cumberland Mercury, the following paragraph :—“Had this evidence been produced certain members of the jury openly say that they should have named the culprit and found a distinct verdict of arson,” give by this means an unqualified denial to the assertions.

Frank Farnell, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Legislative Assembly, Sydney, 28 March, 1887.

I have the honor to direct your attention to the conduct of Mr. Manning, coroner for the Ryde district, in connection with the proceedings instituted against the Rev. H. H. Britten, when charged with arson, and of which crime he was acquitted without the jury asking for any evidence for the defence, clearly showing that there was no foundation on which to accuse that gentleman. Mr. Manning's conduct, from the time when the fire was discovered, is clear to any person, and shows very clearly that his actions were those of a man who bore malice and spite to the rev. gentleman. More than this, he busied himself in trying to poison the minds of disinterested persons, and on many occasions said that “he believed Mr. Britten set fire to the parsonage,” and also boasted, I am informed, of having secured Mr. D'Ardier's services on the Bench, so as to gain Mr. Britten's committal. In the evidence in the case you will see that he has been contradicted by three or four witnesses, any one of whose words I would take before that of Mr. Manning. I know, to my own personal knowledge, that Mr. Manning had a grudge against Mr. Britten; and when he said he would leave no stone unturned in order to gain his committal, it ought to be sufficient to show he was intending to be vindictive and malignant. Mr. Manning has openly boasted since the acquittal that, although he did not get Mr. Britten sent to gaol, he has the satisfaction of knowing it cost him a few hundred pounds to get out of the trouble. I maintain that Mr. Manning is totally unfit to act any further as Coroner, and is thoroughly incompetent to act as such, or in any other capacity. It is the opinion of the people of Ryde that he should be instantly dismissed; I hope, therefore, that you will be good enough to take this man's conduct into account, and decide on the course that will be approved of by the people, and prevent any more malicious prosecutions being based on the malignity and spitefulness shown to any man by Mr. Manning.

I have, &c.,

FRANK FARNELL.

Let me have the depositions to peruse in the charge of arson preferred against Mr. Britten.—W.C., 30/3/87.

F. C. Jarrett, Esq., to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

229, Sussex-street, 30 March, 1887.

I have the honor to request that, in considering my letter to you of 28th instant, with reference to Mr. Manning's conduct, you will give also due weight to the suggestions contained in the two letters enclosed, which I have this day received from Mr. W. Russell, solicitor.

I have, however, no doubt that you would, in any case, give the matter the most thorough investigation.

I have, &c.,

F. C. JARRETT.

[Enclosure.]

— Jarrett, Esq.,—

Dear Sir,

359, George-street, 30 March, 1887.

I enclose a letter from Mr. Roberts in reference to Mr. Manning's evidence.

We have not a full copy of Mr. Manning's evidence further than is contained in the Daily Telegraph. It would cost a good deal to get the full copy of what was taken down by the Clerk of Petty Sessions.

It is very satisfactory that sympathy is being fully expressed towards Mr. and Mrs. Britten, after their severe ordeal.

Yours faithfully,

W. RUSSELL.

[Sub-Enclosure.]

[Sub-Enclosure.]

My dear Russell,

165, York-street, 25 March, 1887.

I presume the Rev. Mr. Britten sent in the letter to the Minister for Justice, in reference to Mr. Manning's conduct in asking D'Ardier to sit in the arson case, and the circumstances under which the latter presided, &c. I observe Manning's action in the matter has been noticed in the Assembly, and that it is likely to occupy the attention of the Minister for Justice, who, perhaps, had better be asked by Mr. Britten to peruse the whole of the depositions taken at Ryde Police Court, with all correspondence attached, without which he could not possibly be in possession of all the facts in relation to Manning's conduct. I merely make these suggestions for your consideration.

W. Russell, Esq.

Yours, &c.,
WM. ROBERTS.

Minute of The Minister of Justice.

Subject :—Ryde arson case, and conduct of Coroner (Mr. J. E. Manning) in connection therewith.

I HAVE perused the whole of the depositions in this case. It appears that a fire broke out in the Church of England Parsonage on the 10th November last, and about 200 persons were present at the conflagration. Among those present was Mr. J. E. Manning, coroner for the district, and a Justice of the Peace. Several conversations took place between Mr. Manning and Mr. Britten on the night of the fire, and Mr. Manning took care to impress Mr. Britten that he believed he (Mr. Britten) had set fire to the parsonage.

Notwithstanding that he held this prejudiced opinion, I find that Mr. J. E. Manning presided at the inquest which was held on the fire.

The verdict of the jury was an open one. Subsequently Mr. Manning opened up correspondence with the Department of Justice, in which he stated that the jury "had discovered most important evidence that ought to have been forthcoming on the occasion (the inquest), and they now say that had this missing evidence been forthcoming they certainly would have returned a verdict against Mr. Britten."

Mr. Manning in his evidence at the Police Court trial admitted writing to the Minister of Justice in this strain and said, "I can't recollect anyone who told me this; I don't know that the jury said so, but I was told so."

Mr. Manning submitted no corroborative evidence at the Police Court trial of this statement. Mr. Manning having set the Department of Justice in motion, Detective Cocking was appointed by the Inspector-General of Police to investigate and make the fullest inquiries regarding the fire. This Detective Cocking did, and it is stated in evidence by Cocking that Mr. Manning expressed his conviction that Mr. Britten set the place on fire. It appears Mr. Manning actively assisted Detective Cocking in the prosecution of Mr. Britten on the charge preferred against him.

Mr. Manning swore that "Mrs. Britten said she would not get out of bed on the night of the fire because Mr. Britten was always calling at night saying the place was on fire."

This sworn evidence of Mr. Manning's was most distinctly disproved at the hearing of the case in the Police Court.

In further evidence of the active measures adopted by Mr. Manning to secure the arrest of Mr. Britten on a charge of arson, he sent (and admitted having sent it) the following paragraph to the Cumberland Mercury:—"PARSONAGE FIRE.—This is still the subject of much excitement in the village, and very unpleasant remarks are made at the Government not causing further steps to be taken. The jury found that the premises were wilfully set on fire in seven different places and, singular to say, there was evidence at that very time in the hands of the police of two further fires. Had this evidence been produced, certain members of the jury openly say that they should have named the culprit, and found a distinct verdict of arson." Mr. Manning admitted in evidence the culprit referred to was Mr. Britten, and also admitted that he did not know the jury had made the statement he had caused to be printed, which, in the face of it, is a distinctly published lie. It is not necessary that I should further quote from the evidence taken in this case. Sufficient is given in this minute to show that Mr. Manning was over-anxious to obtain the conviction of Mr. Britten on the charge of setting fire to the parsonage at Ryde, which action resulted in the committal of Mr. Britten by Mr. D'Ardier, J.P. (Mr. Farnell dissenting), and subsequently being found "not guilty" at the last Criminal Sessions held at Darlington. The evidence discloses Mr. Manning's utter unfitness to occupy any longer the position of coroner, from which office he should be immediately removed, but as he also holds the Commission of the Peace I think before any action is taken by me this minute should be sent to the Colonial Secretary for his perusal and advice.

WILLIAM CLARKE, 4/4/87.

The Principal Under Secretary, B.C., 5 April, '87.—A.C.F.

Minute of The Minister of Justice.

Subject :—Mr. J. E. Manning, J.P.—His conduct as a Coroner and J.P.

In my minute which I submitted to you in regard to Mr. Manning I did not in any way question the ability or impartiality of Mr. Manning as a magistrate or that his conduct whilst conducting the inquiry into the cause of the fire at Ryde as coroner was characterized by partiality, but that he prejudged the case by stating on the night of the fire that he believed Mr. Britten was the incendiary, and subsequently wrote an anonymous paragraph, fixing, by implication, the guilt on Mr. Britten.

Mr. Manning does not, in his letter to you of the 19th inst., explain this away; in fact he does not even refer to it. It is in evidence that there existed great soreness of feeling over Church matters between Mr. Manning and Mr. Britten, and that this feeling prevailed to such a large extent with Mr. Manning that he was only too ready to give credence to any statement that was made to the detriment of Mr. Britten. For example, Mr. Manning in calling on Constable Harper to get evidence from him to put Mr. Britten on his trial was an improper proceeding. If Constable Harper had information of the kind it was his duty to wait on the executive head of his department, and probably nothing would have been heard of this evidence if it had not been for Mr. Manning's desire to secure Mr. Britten's conviction.

Re papers: The letter of the juryman at the Coroner's inquest only proves that Mr. Manning conducted the inquiry impartially.

The

The opinions of Mr. Want, Mr. Foster, and Mr. Garvan concur that a prima facie case was made out against Mr. Britten, and that he should be put on his trial.

I am pleased to notice that Mr. Manning has the confidence of such a large number of the residents and magistrates in the district in which he lives, but I desire to point out that these letters to Mr. Manning are most pointedly silent in the case of Mr. Britten's, which is now under your consideration. These letters do not in any way refer to Mr. Britten's action in that case, and are consequently only of value as a testimony to the general efficiency of Mr. Manning as a magistrate.

The conclusions I came to on Mr. Manning's conduct as a coroner were based, as you know, on that gentleman's sworn evidence in the arson case, and as I referred the whole matter to you I did not think it necessary that I should call on Mr. Manning for an explanation.

It may be that Mr. Manning's long and continuous services as a magistrate should stand him in good stead for his imprudence in connection with the arson case, and I am not therefore disposed to do other than carry out any recommendation you may make to me in regard to Mr. Manning.

W.C., 29/4/87.

Papers returned.—W.C. For the Colonial Secretary in reference to papers submitted for perusal of Minister of Justice.

J. E. Manning, Esq., J.P., to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Ryde, 2 May, 1887.

Mr. Proctor has forwarded me a copy of a letter addressed by him to Mr. Abbott, in reference to the mistake made by that gentleman in the House on last Friday evening, when he (Mr. Abbott) speaking of Mr. Proctor, stated that "great pressure had been put upon him to sign the petition by Mr. Manning and his son." Mr. Proctor denies that he ever said this, and informs me that he has sent you a copy of his letter to Mr. Abbott.

Will you kindly allow me to correct a misapprehension on Mr. Proctor's part in the letter spoken of. He was never asked twice to sign the document referred to; but I find on inquiry that he was asked by some one at Hunter's Hill to sign the other document for residents in the district, but this was without my knowledge. May I further refer to another point. You spoke of my having acted as Coroner after having made use of certain expressions to Mr. Britten, and I am informed that the Minister for Justice, who has never in any way communicated with me, has the same idea; that he has also stated that I wrote a paragraph to a paper and subsequently presided at the inquest. This is not the case. The paragraph referred to was written a month after the inquest, and the remarks to which you of course refer were made to Mr. Britten the day after the inquest; but even had it been otherwise, the jury and Mr. Britten say that I was most impartial. There is no one who knows the particulars of this case like Mr. Pring, as he saw every circumstance as it arose, and as he is a barrister and was the Crown Prosecutor, I humbly submit that his opinion, unbiassed as it must be, should be conclusive in the matter.

I remain, &c.,

JOHN E. MANNING.

Seen.—H.P., 3/5/87.

Mr. F. C. Jarrett to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Ermington, 3 May, 1887.

By a report of the proceedings of the Legislative Assembly of Friday, April 29th, in the Sydney daily newspapers, published on April 30th, you are made to say with reference to the case of Mr. John Edge Manning, coroner and magistrate at Ryde, that you begrudged the labour necessary, which was out of all proportion to the importance of the matter; but so soon as Mr. Abbott gave the House the information about Mr. Manning's importunities of Mr. Proctor for his signature to the petition, you remarked that you "were exceedingly sorry to hear it," as though that was an important feature of the case, quite new to you.

May I respectfully refer you to my letter of complaint about Mr. Manning's conduct, addressed to the Minister for Justice, in which you will see that I offer to produce evidence of the improper manner in which such signatures have been sought and obtained.

One gentleman holding a Government appointment has informed me that he is prepared to give evidence to the effect that when his signature was solicited he was promised that if he would sign the petition, irresistible influence should be used in official circles in obtaining him an increase of salary of £30 per annum. Ninety of the signatures of the petition are those of navvies at the Hawkesbury River, 24 miles from Ryde, and most of the signatures were obtained over supplies of beer on the "free house" system. I also respectfully point out to you that Mr. C. E. Jeanneret, J.P., a Member of the Legislative Assembly, whom you stated had signed the petition, wired to the chairman of the public meeting at Ryde his cordial sympathy with the Rev. H. H. Britten, and a promise of a subscription to his defence fund. It is, of course, impossible to account for this apparent effort on Mr. Jeanneret's part "to serve both God and Mammon;" but it is certainly important that, should you determine to hold a very necessary inquiry, you should ascertain the facts of Mr. Jeanneret's recent nomination as Licensing Magistrate, for when the Messrs. Terry, Linsley, J. S. Farnell, and other Justices of the Peace in Ryde met in answer to circular invitation for the purpose of nominating Licensing Magistrates they found their duties all done for them—Messrs. Jeanneret and Rodd having been gazetted the day before on Mr. J. E. Manning's representations. Mr. Manning was then severely censured for this affront to the other magistrates by Mr. J. R. Linsley.

I leave it to your great experience to say whether this system of "mutual assistance" between Messrs. Jeanneret and Manning is one worthy of magistrates of the Colony, even if one of them is hard pressed to get respectable signatures to his petition.

I would, however, point out to you that while the jury at the inquest were, as was the Rev. Mr. Britten himself, perfectly satisfied with Mr. Manning's proceedings at the inquest, they one and all disapproved of his subsequent conduct, and that which seems to me the gravest part of all Mr. Manning's behaviour—namely, the strongly contradicted evidence he gave at the police-court inquiry, cannot surely be deemed by you to be a matter not worth most indefatigable labour to make him account, or else suffer for.

I have refrained from giving any portion of the evidence I hold of Mr. Manning's conduct to any Member of the House, for I rely upon justice being done by the Government in this matter without any influence being brought to bear, as I also feel sure you will refuse to allow the boasted influence of Mr. Manning's friends to shield him from the consequences of his most unworthy conduct, both as magistrate and coroner.

I have had an experience of nearly thirty years as a reporter and newspaper publisher, and have never witnessed a case in which there was a more flagrant display of animus than in this Ryde arson case. Mr. Pring may think Mr. Manning "much abused," but may I ask why his evidence for the prosecution was rejected at the Criminal Court if it was not quite apparent to the Minister for Justice that it was prompted by unworthy motives towards the accused, and, as Mr. J. S. Farnell said at the Police Court, unworthy of credence?

During the hearing of the case, and after all the witnesses were ordered out of court, Mr. Manning sat in the porch at the magistrates' entrance, where every word said in the court was audible, and constantly interviewed the witnesses, asking some of them whether they could not give evidence on points from time to time elicited. This conduct was remarked upon by the solicitors for the defence, and spoken of by the magistrates as most indecorous.

The people of the district rely upon your fearless action in this matter, as well as upon your calm consideration of the whole facts, and I again respectfully urge upon your notice its most important bearings.

I have, &c.,

THE examination of William Douglas Loughlin, of Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales, William Henry Mackenzie, of Sydney, Thomas Fisher, of Sydney, John William Norris, of Ryde, David Drysdale Henderson, of Parramatta, and William Thos. Trevitt, and George M. Pope, Constable James Harper, Walter Hibble, Frederick Woodcock, James Cocking, John E. Manning, Sergeant James Beatty, Jessie Burton, William Wallace, and Frederick B. Pope, of Ryde, in the said Colony, taken on Wednesday, this ninth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, at Ryde, in the Colony aforesaid, before the undersigned, one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the said Colony, in the presence and hearing of Henry Ham Britten, who is charged this day before me, for that he, the said Henry Ham Britten, on the tenth day of November, 1886, at Ryde, in the said Colony, maliciously did set fire to a dwelling-house situate at Ryde, aforesaid (in the possession of him, the said Henry Ham Britten), with intent to defraud.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

THIS deponent, William Douglas Loughlin, on oath, states:—I am clerk in the Phoenix Fire Office, Sydney; it is a London Company; Mr. M'Kenzie is the agent for this Colony; I know defendant; I was in employ of Mr. M'Kenzie when he represented the London and Lancashire Company; I produce a proposal for insurance in the London and Lancashire by defendant; the policy issued in this proposal I now produce; the same was issued in August, 1884; I produce a proposal from defendant for insurance in the Phoenix Fire Office; some of the words are in my handwriting, viz., answers to particulars L. and P., and one room wood L. and P., ceilings, the date and address, the rest is in the handwriting of Mr. S. R. Trail; the same is signed by defendant; some time after receipt was issued, Mr. Britten stated that the partitions and ceiling were lath and plaster, and wished me to insert the letters L. and P.; Mr. Britten looked over the Phoenix proposal before he signed it; I produce the policy issued on the proposal; the same is from 29th August, 1886, for a period of twelve months; I remember the fire taking place; Mr. Britten did not see me after the fire about his policy.

By Mr. Roberts: I was previously in the Lancashire Company; Mr. Britten's insurance in the Phoenix Company was the result of a letter from Mr. M'Kenzie, asking to transfer to Phoenix Company; a circular, similar to the one produced, was sent to all policy holders, approved of, and the rate reduced; defendant had been insured for more than two years in Lancashire Company; I notice endorsement on the back of proposal to insure in the Phoenix Company; we do not call it an endorsement, we call it particulars, it is part and parcel of the proposal, and we do it to arrive at a suitable rate for the risk offered; the proposal is headed, Questions to be answered by the agent or surveyor relative to the proposal; the duties of agent or surveyor are to give particulars so as to arrive at a rate that insured may have his property correctly stated; no agent or surveyor was sent in this case; Mr. Trail filled up the particulars in this proposal; the words one hundred yards are in the writing of Mr. Trail, with regard to proposal for Phoenix Company, the insurance having been previously insured; no one was sent to inspect the property; the inducement to insure in the Phoenix was the action taken by Mr. M'Kenzie; if we can repair the damage or replace property less than the estimate at which insured we do so; there is a clause to that effect in the policy which I now read (clause 11); I believe defendant made the declaration required by clause 10 of particulars in policy; I have heard it stated in the office that defendant has commenced an action against this Company for the amount of damage done; with regard to Sydney and suburban property, we generally take the statements of the proposers; I cannot say whether the property insured by defendant was of the value of £700; so far as I know the company did not take the trouble to find out the value of the property or the distances between the places; they generally look at the position or respectability of the proposer in most cases; if the goods or property were replaced, the insurer would not benefit; Mr. Traill is a member of the firm.

By Mr. Pring: When clergymen insure we do not send any surveyor; in this case defendant's word was taken.

WILL. D. LOUGHLIN.

Sworn before me, this 9th day of February, 1887,—

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

William

William Henry M'Kenzie, on oath, states:—I am agent for the Phoenix Fire Office, Sydney; I was formerly agent for the London and Lancashire Office; the circular produced is one sent from my office to defendant; I believe the reply produced is the one I received in my office from defendant; I produce a Press copy of my reply to defendant dated 12th August, 1886; the insurance was after effected in the Phoenix Office; I did not see defendant either before or after the fire; I did not send anyone to inspect the furniture before insuring in the Phoenix Office; it is not usual to send any one to inspect in the case of clergymen insuring, except by special request, or unless it is for a large amount; we have refused to pay the amount of insurance in defendant's case; I produce the claim sent in by Mr. Britten after the fire.

By Mr. Roberts: The letters alluded to were written during the currency of policy in London and Lancashire Company; the proposal to insure in Phoenix Office is dated 26th August, 1886; the risk did not commence till 29th August; policy issued on 17th September, 1886; it is a company I represent; the power of attorney for Phoenix Company is registered in the Colony; the way to sue is to sue the Phoenix Company as a company, not by the names of the directors; the company has never been sued by any one, and has never sued anyone; the inquiry made by the defendant in his letter of the 11th August was a very natural one to make under the circumstances; I believe a writ has been issued by the solicitors of defendant (and company has appeared) against the Phoenix Company for the sum of £300; I do not know that there was property in a building not covered by insurance; we have agents and surveyors, whose duties are defined on the printed proposal; in this case there was no agent; it was a direct insurance, Mr. Britten having been insured in the London and Lancashire Company, no inspection was made when he insured in the Phoenix Company; I am aware that the policy gives the option to company to reinstate the property or pay the money; the insurer would not gain anything if his property was replaced, he would get new for old; I do not think I ever saw Mr. Britten before to-day; Mr. Fisher was authorized, on our behalf, to inspect defendant's place after the fire occurred; according to the report all the property insured was not destroyed; the particulars given in Exhibit F are chiefly in Mr. Fisher's writing; the amount of damage is £254 16s., and £43 in some other handwriting; the letter produced marked G is from Cope's office, the solicitor for Phoenix Company; I do not know whether the furniture in defendant's house was new or old; I believe an inquest was held in this Court House on the fire; the writ against the Phoenix Company was not issued until some time this year; I cannot remember whether any inquiry was made by Mr. Britten as to paying in the Colony when he insured in the London and Lancashire Company; I am often asked whether the company will pay in the Colony when persons come to insure.

W. H. MACKENZIE.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

Thomas Fisher, on oath, states:—I am an insurance adjuster for several companies in Sydney, and amongst other for the Phoenix Company; I came up on the 11th November last, and arrived after mid-day at the parsonage; I came to inspect for the Phoenix Office; I inspected the parsonage and grounds; the stable and buggy shed were destroyed, excepting the walls of the stable; one buggy was totally destroyed, the other partially so; some of the furniture of the house was destroyed; the plan produced of parsonage is substantially correct; I see on the same a spare bedroom, marked No. 7; in this room there was a bed and bedding, two or three articles of clothing, and odds and ends destroyed by fire in the drawer of a book case; I examined the remains of the bedding not destroyed; the same was wet with kerosene; I smelt it on my hands after examining the beds; I have no doubt there was kerosene on the bed; Mr. Britten and Sergeant Beatty were present with me; I said there was kerosene on the bed; Mr. Britten said no, it was water, that he could not detect kerosene; we discussed the point for some time, and the sergeant also said there was kerosene; this occurred after the inquest was over, and not the first day I went there; on this same second visit Mr. Britten went over the house with me, and I made a calculation as to the amount of damage done to his effects; on the first occasion I examined the grounds at the end of the bow window; I did not see any balls of canvas or any other kind on the ground; I am quite certain if there had been any I should have seen them; after I went into the house I had some conversation with Mr. Britten; we were remarking about the number of fires; Mr. Britten suggested that the fires had been caused by some one throwing in fire balls; there were the remains of two fires in the pantry—one on a shelf near the window, and one on a dresser on opposite side of room; I did not see any traces of fire balls, but there were the débris of some materials that had been burnt; Mr. Britten went with me into the hall; the floor was wet with kerosene; there was a distance of 6 feet near the stairs covered with kerosene about 2 feet wide; it was wet; it had run under the floor cloth; there was kerosene kept in the cupboard under the stairs; I did not examine the oil drum; in the passage there had been a shelf where there had been a lamp; the shelf was broken down and an old lamp lying on the floor; there was kerosene on the floor, and a fire had been there and charred the wood, but had not gone through the partition; Mr. Britten said the fire might have got from the passage to the bed-room; on examination I found that the fire had been on a bed, and not near the partition or even charred the boards; I examined the drawing-room, I found a piano, harmonium, a pier glass, fender, carpet, and other articles; these were destroyed; the inquest on the fire was held on Friday, the 12th November, 1886; after the inquest I went with Sergeant Beatty to the parsonage, and Beatty produced a canvas ball saturated with kerosene, and Mr. Britten said he found it there, about 6 or 8 feet from where the furniture was stacked when I first visited the place; the ball was said to be found on the lawn at the end of drawing-room, about 20 feet from bow window; the stables are about 40 feet from the house; all the items in the claim now produced are in my handwriting, except the last five on the list.

By Mr. Roberts: I did not give evidence at inquest, but I attended it; I believe a reward has been offered by the Government since the inquest; I do not know the amount; I do not know whether the company joined in the reward; I assisted in conducting the inquiry on fire in the interests of the company; I was not at the inquest for to give evidence; I was watching the case in the interests of the company; I calculate the amount of damage done to be £254 16s.; the additions made by defendant being £43 2s., making a total of £297 18s.; I looked at things not burnt excepting those upstairs; there were furnished rooms on ground floor; I estimate the value of the whole of the furniture and books to be worth between £500 and £600; I saw no jewellery; I am alluding to the general effects when I speak of £500 or £600 as the value; I include the buggies in this amount; I excluded the buggies in the amount of claim, as they were in a building not covered by the policy; the fire took place on a Thursday;

I did not make any inspection for valuation until following Monday; I did not know that any kerosene was on the bed when the inquest took place; I examined the witnesses at the inquiry on the fire; the sergeant was examined; neither he nor I spoke then about any kerosene being on the bed; the readiest way of setting fire where there is kerosene is to put a light where the kerosene is; there was no appearance of fire where the kerosene was near the stairs; the defendant stated that the kerosene near the stairs was from the drippings from the oil-drum; defendant seemed excited the first time I visited the parsonage; the oil-drum was one with a tap in it; the lamp in the passage was broken and overturned where the fire lighted the boards.

Police: The buggies were in a wooden building joined to the stable; two sides of the buggy-house were of wood.

THOS. FISHER.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

John William Norris, on oath, states:—I am a storekeeper at Ryde; I know defendant; in September last I sent a 4-gallon tin of kerosene to him; the order came from Mr. Britten's house; it was on the 4th September; I do not know who gave the order; it was paid for by Mr. Britten's cheque in account for other goods; it was ordered in the usual way with other goods.

By Mr. Roberts: I saw the back bed-room on the morning after the fire; things were packed as repairs were going on; the goods were all packed close together; I did not detect any smell of kerosene; I went about 10 a.m.; I did not handle the bed clothes.

JOHN WILLIAM NORRIS.

Sworn before me, this 9th day of February, 1887,—

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

David Drysdale Henderson, on oath states:—I am a storekeeper at Parramatta; I know defendant; I remember 6th September last year; I supplied him with some kerosene—a 4-gallon tin—on that day; my traveller went round for the order; the order was not signed by Mr. Britten; the traveller's name is James Walsh; he is still in my employ; I sent the kerosene by my carter; I was paid by cheque in the usual way; I supplied other goods with the kerosene; Mr. Britten has dealt with me for several years; the kerosene was supplied on 6th September or the day afterwards with usual grocery order; the traveller does all my business at Ryde for me; the cheque was paid at end of quarter; a 4-gallon tin, I should think, would last two months; there was an order for another tin, 29th November; if fires are lit with kerosene, the tin would not last two months; no kerosene has been ordered since 29th November last; I have known Mr. Britten for nine or ten years; he is a married man, and of irreproachable character, and highly esteemed; I know that there has been very strong feelings against him at Ryde; I have heard assertions made against defendant; many held him in high opinion, but assertions have been made contrary to that.

By Mr. Roberts: I have heard that there is an ill-feeling existing against defendant; I have heard Mr. J. E. Manning's name mentioned as having an ill-feeling to defendant; I have heard that he has a bitter feeling towards defendant; I still believe myself that defendant is of irreproachable character.

D. D. HENDERSON.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

William Thos. Trevitt, on oath, states:—I am a carpenter and reside at Ryde; I remember when the fire occurred at the parsonage; I was at work there the day before the fire occurred; I was at work in the drawing-room; I was repairing this floor; I left the room at 6 p.m.; when I left, there was no furniture whatever in the room; I left the bow windows fastened; I went out the back way; went to French window and tried to fasten them from the outside, when I found I could not do it; Mrs. Burton, who was in the room, fastened them inside; I then went away; the contract for repairs for parsonage was let to my father; he had to supply paper and everything; when I left, both bow windows and French windows were fastened.

By Mr. Roberts: The windows were fastened on the Tuesday night; they were fastened on the Wednesday night; they were fastened then; the catches showed that the windows had been opened after I left either before or during the fire; there was no conversation while I was at work between defendant and myself, as to friends coming from Melbourne; the paper for the drawing-room and dining-room was brought to the parsonage the day before the fire; I saw that two laths were gone from the ceiling after the fire; I have known defendant's place for nine years; I saw the stains under the stairs; I have noticed them for four or five years; the kerosene was kept there for many years; there is a French light to the drawing-room; I think this light was closed during the fire; the Venetian shutters had not been forced open; they could not have been forced without leaving marks on them; the French window was not fastened that I am aware of; the kerosene stains extend three steps, but I did not see any stains on the floor of the hall; the stains I speak of were on the stairs and the cupboard; the stairs were saturated with oil from the string course, and have been so for four or five years; the stains are the same now as they were some time ago.

W. T. TREVITT.

There was an oil cloth, but I could not see whether there was any oil stains beneath it.

W. T. TREVITT.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

George M. Pope, on oath, states:—I reside at Ryde; I am organist at St. Anne's, Ryde; I remember the fire at the parsonage on the 10th November last; there is a valuable service of Communion plate belonging to St. Anne's; the same was kept at the parsonage; after being used at church Mr. Britten took it back to the parsonage; the service was at the church on the 7th November; there was was a Communion Service that day, the plate being used on the occasion; I noticed in the evening that the plate had not been removed, it was in the vestry; there was no Communion Service in the evening; I did not see the plate again until the following Friday or Saturday; Harkins informed me it was at the church, and brought it to me; I took charge of it from him, but whether I took it from him at the church or at my gate, I am not certain; I do not recollect the plate ever having been left previously in the church; the plate was presented to St. Anne's by Miss Forster about three or four years since.

By Mr. Roberts: I have referred to Sunday, the 7th November, in my evidence, Archdeacon Greenway was present that morning; he assisted the incumbent in the services, both morning and evening; the Archdeacon left the church with defendant both morning and evening; he may have gone to the parsonage with defendant for all I know; I cannot say whether the defendant might not have left the Communion Service in the church on other occasions; I was at the parsonage about 1.30 on the morning of the fire; I noticed defendant's hand was burnt with, as he stated to me, removing some piece of furniture; I have been in defendant's house on other occasions; I know the room No. 7; I looked in after the fire, but the goods were all so closely packed, I could not see whether the drawer of book-case was shut or not; I find the drawer the fire was in is difficult to open as you cannot open it unless you open both together; the Churchwardens of St. Anne's are Edward Terry, Richard Terry, and George Lovell; both the Messrs. Terry are at present on a visit to Tasmania; I know that there is a great amount of ill-feeling against defendant, and have expressed their opinions for his removal from the district; on the night of the fire I did not detect any smell of kerosene; there is a party in favour of the incumbent, and a party against him.

GEORGE M. POPE.

The congregation of St. Anne's is fairly good, and the offertory nearly as liberal as heretofore.

GEORGE M. POPE.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

Case adjourned until the 15th day of February instant, at 10.30 a.m.

*George M. Pope, on oath, states:—*I was acquainted with the previous incumbents, Mr. Turner and Mr. Southby; I know the place referred to under the stairs where the kerosene was kept; I saw the appearance after the fire of kerosene stains on the floor and staircase; it had the same appearance as it had ten or fifteen years ago; the oil had dripped from time to time.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

*John William Norris, on oath, states:—*I have supplied kerosene during last year to defendant; I have referred to my books; I supplied one 4-gallon tin of oil on 20th May last; one on the 12th June; that is less than a month; one on 10th July; one 9th August; and one tin on the 4th September, to defendant's premises; the entries are all in my books; it was before September; Mrs. Britten complained about the oil; in September I sent the same kind of oil again; I cannot say how long a 4-gallon tin would last a house like Mr. Britten's; the clergyman officiating during Mr. Britten's absence in England had oil from me of the same kind; I cannot tell how often he ordered a 4-gallon tin.

JOHN WILLIAM NORRIS.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

*Jessie Burton, on oath, states:—*I am a married woman; I have one child 5 years old; I was in the employ of Rev. Mr. Britten in November last year; I remember the night of the fire; I went to bed that night at 10 o'clock; my bed-room is upstairs; I and my child were the only persons upstairs that night; I locked the pantry up before I went to bed; I fastened the windows also, as usual; it is a sash window; the sashes overlay a little; the top sash is a fixture; the window was fastened with a stick between the top of window and bottom sash; no one could put their hand in to remove the stick without breaking the glass; the stick is easily shaken down if you shake the window; after locking the pantry I took the key and went to put it in the passage, but I found the door bolted and then I went to the other door in the hall by the stairs; I put the key on foot of the stairs and locked the back door, as usual; I then went upstairs to my bed-room; this was about five minutes after 10; I went to bed about 11 or a little after, and went to sleep soon; the next thing I heard was Mr. Britten calling; he told me to put on a few things and come down as quick as I could that the house was on fire; I took my child and went downstairs; I took the child to the back out by the door at foot of the stairs; the door was open; I then went and brought two of my boxes down; when I went for my boxes there was a little smoke upstairs; it appeared to come from the room opposite mine; the room was a lumber room with a man-hole opening out on the ceiling of drawing-room; I went back to top of stairs to get more clothes, but found the smoke so thick I could not do it; I came downstairs and went in the pantry; I found the key where I left it the previous night, on foot of stairs; I opened the pantry; I did not observe the window; I saw two fires in the pantry, one on a small shelf on right hand side of door, and the other on a dresser opposite the door, about 10 feet from the window; I went to the pantry to get a sewing machine, and I brought it out; there was no fire in pantry when I locked it up; I did not hear anybody walking about either inside or outside the place either before or after I went to bed; I remember Trevitt being at work on the Wednesday afternoon when he went away; I fastened the Venetian shutters, but did not fasten the French window; I did not notice if the bow windows were fastened; there was no furniture whatever in the drawing-room at that time; I did not go into the drawing-room again that evening; I did not assist to remove any furniture into the drawing-room; the only other people in the house that night were Mr. and Mrs. Britten and their son, aged 12 years; a dog was kept on the premises; the dog was not chained chained up that night to my knowledge; he was usually loose both day and night; the dog was very sick a week or ten days before the fire; the dog was not right again till some time after the fire; on the Wednesday the dog was walking about and lying about; at the time of the fire the dog seemed to have lost the use of his legs, but was able to walk about; I have seen Mr. Britten syringing the outhouse with kerosene, to kill insects; he was doing so on the Saturday before the fire; when I came down the stairs I saw Mr. Britten; he was walking towards the front door.

By Mr. Roberts: It was the water-closet that Mr. Britten syringed with kerosene; it was used under the seat; the sand flies were very troublesome, and the kerosene was used to destroy them; on the Sunday week before the fire the dog got sick and got worse towards the time of the fire; I spoke to Mrs. Britten about the dog being sick; I could not account for his being sick; the kerosene was used in the closet at back of the pantry; when Mr. Britten woke me it was about half-past 12; he had a white shirt on, dark trousers, and boots; he was very much excited when I came down; Mrs. Britten was carrying out a drawer, and was only partly dressed; she was much excited; the pantry window was loose, and if shaken the stick which fastened it would fall down; I was in the habit of putting the key of pantry in passage near pantry, and I have found the door in passage locked on previous occasions; there was no difference in the kerosene stains on stairs to what there was when I first went to live with Mrs. Britten; I cannot say whether I awoke at the first call Mr. Britten gave or not; I sleep sound; I have no idea how the building was set on fire; I did not see the defendant or any member of his family set fire to any portion of the premises; while the house was on fire, Mrs. Britten carried out the oil-drum, as she said the fire might catch it; on the morning after the fire I saw that the oil drum had been taken inside and stood on some small mattresses that had been taken from the room that had been on fire the previous night; I did not detect any smell of kerosene in the bed-room before the fire; the kerosene under stairs stood on a box; it had a tap to it; there was only the usual stains of kerosene on the stairs when I got up on the night of the fire; I do not know whether the wall between the stairs and the bedroom is a brick wall or not; it was plastered; on the morning after the fire I saw the pantry window; it was then open; the stick was keeping it up; I know the spare bed-room where the fire was; I know the drawer in the book-case; there had been a fire in this drawer; there was a difficulty in opening the drawer burnt, and on this account it was left open; the kerosene used in the house was about one tin, four gallons, or more in a month; Mrs. Britten always ordered the oil and goods from the stores; Mrs. Britten said one tin was not very good, and she would have to order another; Mrs. Britten left on a Monday for Parramatta; amongst other things a tin of kerosene came from Parramatta; I sometimes gave the orders; I received the goods when they were brought by Henderson's man; defendant never gave an order or received the goods; all the furniture had been removed from the drawing-room to allow of repairs being made; it was removed to the dining-room; the carpenter had nearly finished the drawing-room when he left on the Wednesday evening; the carpenter told me he was coming in to the dining-room the next morning to make repairs; it is oil cloth in the dining-room; it was necessary to remove the things from the dining-room into the drawing-room before the repairs could be done; I think I told Mr. or Mrs. Britten that the carpenter was coming in the morning to the dining-room; I know that all the kerosene was used in ordinary way for domestic purposes; I gave evidence at inquest on the fire; the day after the fire I saw a roll of paper; Mr. Britten said the day before that they were going to Sydney to choose the paper; I have seen the Communion service; it was kept in a cupboard in Mrs. Britten's room; I know what furniture there was in the house; it was in good order; all the rooms were well furnished; I look at exhibit No. 1; it contains a list of the things in the house at the time of the fire; the goods therein named were then in the house; the valuation is not made by me; when I came downstairs the front and back doors of the hall were both open; if any one got in the drawing-room they could go all over the house; I did not see defendant go up the stairs at all between my first coming downstairs or at any other time that night; defendant and his wife lived happily together whilst I lived with them; there are five sons and one daughter; I have never seen anything strange in the demeanour of the defendant or his wife; I went up to my room again with Constable Phillips after the fire was put out; I have looked in the loft over drawing-room; there is an opening where a man could enter; just inside is a lot of cocoanut fibre and other inflammable materials; the fibre, if a match had been placed to it, would have immediately set fire to the roof; I know the defendant was examined at the inquest on the fire; I do not think Mrs. Britten or any member of the family were examined.

By Mr. Pring: There were sandflies about the back yard; I do not think there were any in the house; shaking the window where the stick was would make a noise, but it would not wake me up; the window in the pantry opens for about a foot when opened to fullest extent; it might be more than a foot; there was a large mangle right in front of the window on the night of the fire directly between the window and where the fire was; I have seen Mr. Fisher; I remember the day after the inquest, when he was there at the parsonage; it was on Thursday morning; I saw the oil-drum on the bedding; this bedding was taken outside; it was not put back in bed-room; sometimes two lamps were burning and sometimes four up to 10 at night; for the bed-rooms, candles were used, also in kitchen; it was either the end of September or beginning of October when Mrs. Britten went to Parramatta; when the oil came from Henderson's the carter put it in the harness room at end of stable; it was taken away before the fire and put in the drum; I cannot say positively whether this tin was removed from the harness room; I have been in the stable; one of the sons has never been at parsonage since I have been there; two sons and the daughter are away at school; one son is in business in Sydney, and comes home occasionally; all the furniture is old, no new furniture has been brought to the house since I have been there.

By Mr. Roberts: Mr. Terry tried to shake the stick from pantry, and it fell easily without making much noise; sometimes when putting it up of an evening it has fallen down, and I have had to put it up again; the old bedding was taken out on the grass, some in front and some at end; some of the other bedding was taken to Sydney; I think it was since Mr. Fisher was there; I believe it was made up and brought back; I have known defendant and wife to be up at 11 at night when I have gone to bed; there was new furniture brought into the spare bed-room before the fire—a chair, wash-stand, and dressing table; to the best of my belief and recollection the tin of oil in harness-room was placed in oil-drum for use; I could not say that Mrs. Britten did not go to Parramatta the first week in September; I do not recollect what part of the month she went in.

By Mr. Pring: I do not remember seeing the tin of kerosene after it was placed in the harness-room; I told the man to put it there.

By

By the Bench: The pantry window has three panes wide and two high; I saw fire in pantry; I saw a fire in the bed-room when I came down stairs; I also saw a fire at the stable; I saw they were putting out a fire in the drawing-room; the next person I saw after seeing Mr. Britten at the time of fire was Mr. Young; it was not Mr. Hibble; I did not see him till after the fire was put out.

JESSIE BURTON.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

William Wallace, on oath, states:—I am a baker living at Ryde; I live about little more than 100 yards from parsonage; I remember the fire there last November; I was just starting to work; I saw flames coming out of the buggy-house; it was about 12:30; I went to the shed; the doors were shut, fastened with a chain outside put over a bar inside; I am not sure whether it was locked or fastened with a piece of wood; I broke open the doors; I then saw a buggy at back all on fire; the fire was all inside and round the buggy; I pulled it out when it was blazing; nothing else but the buggy was in the shed; I then heard the house was on fire; I left the buggy and went to the house; I saw a fire in spare bed-room and in the drawing-room; I went to drawing-room by verandah to put out fire; I know the Venetian shutters; they were closed; I broke them open; they were French windows; they were shut and fastened; I broke these open; then I saw a fire burning at the piano and harmonium; it was burning very fiercely; I think there must have been something to have made it flare up so; some inflammable substance; the heat was so great that when I broke open the windows all the glass fell to pieces; I went out by the French windows again because the heat and smoke were so great; I then went and carried water to put out the fire; I went to the bow-windows with it; the glass of windows were all smashed, but the windows were fastened; I am certain of that, for I tried them all; I saw some man break the windows with a stick; I do not know who; I helped to put the fire out, and then I went away; the flames spread all over the ceiling; such a body of flame could not have been produced by the furniture only.

By Mr. Roberts: I swear the body of flame was not produced by the furniture only, but I will not swear what contributed to the flames; I did not damage the shutters by breaking their open; if Trevitt has said that the bow-windows were open during the fire it must be a mistake; if the catchers were thrown back during the fire it would show the windows were open; when I went the room was on fire; I tried to push up the windows; I could not put my finger under them; I tried outside; there is only about half an inch of wood; I tried about two minutes; I gave evidence at inquest; I had no conversation with defendant; I am in the employ of Mr. Locke nearly opposite parsonage; I recollect Mrs. Locke asking me on night of fire just afterwards to see who a man was lying down in parsonage paddock and what he wanted; he was about 100 yards from the fire; I saw a man when I approached walking away; I went to the fence; the man went to the fence, and got over into the road; no one has spoken to me since the inquest about the fire; I do not know how long the man was in the parsonage grounds.

By Mr. Pring: There were a great many people at the fire that night; the man may have been helping at the fire for all I know; I have seen bills offering a reward for information about the fire; I know £125 is offered; I do not expect to get any of it.

Frederick Bensa Pope, on oath, states:—I am a clerk in Bank of New South Wales, Sydney; I live at Ryde; I live 150 yards from parsonage; I remember the fire there last November; I was asleep at the time; I was awoke by the cry of fire; I got up and went to the parsonage; I went into the hall; I saw a fire in the spare bedroom; I helped to put it out; I afterwards saw a fire in the drawing-room; I found a kerosene tin about 5 or 6 yards from the bow-window on the lawn; I was going to use the tin for carrying water; I picked it up and found about two or three quarts of kerosene oil in it; I thought it was water, but some falling on my hands I found it was kerosene; it was a kind of bucket; it had no handle; the top of the tin was cut off; I put it down and ran for a bucket; I have not seen the tin since; the part of the bow-window nearest kitchen and centre window were shut, but I did not see the third part of window nearest the front; I am certain these two windows were shut, because I threw water through the broken glass in window nearest the kitchen; and when I came back with more water some one was breaking the centre window; I did not take notice whether kerosene had been thrown on the goods in drawing-room; I did not detect the smell of kerosene; I would not swear that kerosene had been used in connection with fire in drawing-room; I don't know how or when the tin I found was placed on lawn; it was from 18 to 20 feet from the drawing-room; I did not see anyone place it there; the tin was on the grass on the lawn.

By Mr. Pring: The piano and harmonium were flaring up; I detected a smell in the drawing-room and all about the place, but I will not swear it was kerosene; it may have been the bedding; it was a peculiar smell; it looked as if there was something to make it burn; some inflammable thing; the piano appeared to be all on fire; the flames went up to ceiling.

By Mr. Roberts: I don't think the peculiar smell was from horsehair; it might have been blankets; I can speak with no certainty on the matter, or what produced the large flames.

Walter Hibble, on oath, states: I am a clerk at W. S. Friend & Co's.; I reside at Ryde, and did so in November last year; I remember the night of the fire at the parsonage; I got home to Ryde by 'bus by lower road about 12:25; the lower road is about 400 or 500 yards from parsonage; I got out of the 'bus with Mr. Adams; I and Adams walked towards the parsonage; I saw smoke when within 300 yards of parsonage coming through the trees in front of parsonage; I smelt the fire; I went towards the parsonage; I went in the slip-rail at back of parsonage, before reaching the parsonage I saw fire coming from from under the eaves of the stable in the front; I went on to the stable by myself to the front; the stable was fully alight; there was a strong fire inside; it was a shingled roof; I did not notice if the door was open or not; I saw no fire in buggy-shed; I called out to Mr. Adams to look out no horses were in stable whilst I awoke the inmates of the house; I then went to the front verandah of house—through gate shown on plan; when I got to verandah I saw Mrs. Britten in the passage, and Mr. Britten, and the lad behind him; the lad was Mr. Britten's son; Mr. Britten had on trousers and cricketing shoes, and no coat or waistcoat; I do not know whether Mrs. Britten was sufficiently dressed; I said to Mr. Britten, "Do you know your stable is on fire?" he said, "Yes, and so is my house too;" I do not think they were carrying anything out; I saw some few tin boxes on verandah, but nothing out on the grass; I said to Mr. Britten, "Are there inmates in the house?" I attempted to go upstairs; Mr. Britten said, "We are all safe thank you;" I asked had he given the alarm, one of the three said, "No not yet;" during this conversation I was in the hall; I saw smoke coming out of spare bed-room; a large quantity; it was so thick it drove me back; I said I had better run away, and get assistance at once; I know where the study is; there was a light in it, but I saw no one in it; I ran off to give the alarm, before I did so, I saw Mr. Britten walk along the verandah to the study with a tin japanned box; I cannot say whether he went in the study; as I went away from front room I saw the reflection of a fire on side fence, and went to the bow-window of drawing-room; I looked in; I saw a flame coming apparently between two articles of furniture placed back to back; the window I looked in was not open; I ran off to give the alarm; the garden gate was shut and fastened; it was caught tightly; I had to tug at it to open it; I went back to parsonage, and five or ten minutes afterwards Mrs. Britten said, "And there is a fire in front of house too;" Mr. Locke was there with me; the bow-windows were broken open about five minutes after I returned; I found the French door open and went to them to throw water on the fire; I threw water on the fire; the heat was so great that we went to the bow-windows; one of the bow-windows was open, apparently pushed up; the others were broken open; no one was in the room then; when I first saw Mr. Britten that night he appeared to be perfectly collected; he was not in the state I should be in if I was in the same position; I should not say he was excited; I casually looked in Mr. Britten's bed-room; I saw no smoke there; it was a clear moonlight night—full moon; I cannot say whether Mr. Britten sent anyone to give an alarm; I went away when the fire was got under; Mr. Britten did not help to put out the fire; he was carrying things out.

By Mr. Roberts: I cannot say whether Mr. Britten was cool or not; I do not know his general demeanour; a man may be excited without showing it; defendant was carrying out drawers from chests of drawers; I was there till the fire was got under; about half an hour elapsed before the fire was put out; I do not know how the Venetian shutters were opened; Mrs. Britten was very much excited; there is nothing within my knowledge to show the origin of the fire; I think it was the centre of the bow-windows that was open; I smelt no kerosene at all that night on any portion of the premises.

By Mr. Pring: I know Wallace, the baker; he was not at the bow-window when I first went to it.

Jessie Burton:—I have spoken of a passage which does not now exist; there was a small lamp burning in it when I went to put the key of the pantry there the night of the fire, and when I went to bed; this passage was between spare bed-room.

Case adjourned to the 16th instant, at 10'30 a.m.

James Beatty, on oath, states:—I am sergeant of Police, stationed at Ryde; I remember the fire at parsonage in November last; I was writing when I heard of the fire, and went to the parsonage by the back, about 12'20 on the 11th November; I saw the stable on fire; I did not then notice the buggy-shed; I saw the fire was in the back part of stable; I went round to front of stable; I saved what I could out of stable; afterwards seeing people carrying water, I went to the house, and first went to drawing-room; I saw in the middle of floor a piano, harmonium, and the frame of a large pier-glass, standing together; they were together almost destroyed by fire; I saw a side-board outside on the verandah; I examined it, it was very much damaged by fire, especially inside; I should say fire originated in inside of side-board; there was no fire when I went in drawing-room, it was extinguished; the ceiling was intact, but very much blackened; the bow-windows were broken, and were up when I went in; the French window was broken by heat of fire; I examined floor where piano and harmonium were standing, it was charred; there was no communication between this fire and the other fires in the house; I went to the lobby after leaving drawing-room; the lobby was separated from spare bed-room by a wood partition, now removed; I saw marks of fire on the partition, on lobby side, which went up the boards about 2 feet; there was no mark of fire on the floor; there was no connection between this fire and the one in drawing-room; this fire had also been put out; when in the lobby Mr. Britten came in; he said that the fire in lobby might have been caused by the lamp being upset; there had been a shelf, but had been knocked down; there was a small lamp lying on floor upset; I next went into spare bed-room, Mr. Britten was with me; there was no door or means of communication between spare bed-room and lobby; there was only one door in spare bed-room which opened into hall; I know Mr. Britten's bed-room; the door is almost opposite door of spare bed-room; I saw a bed in spare bed-room, opposite the door, the head of bed was towards the wooden partition, and foot towards door and against the wall furthest away from window; there had been a heavy fire on the bed; straw, palliasses, blankets, and other articles were lying outside the door; the fire had been put out; there had not been fire in any other part of this room, except on the bed; I went forward to book-case, found it very hot on side nearest to bed; I said to Mr. Britten, "It is fortunate your library or books are not destroyed;" he said, "Yes, there has been water all over them;" the books were a little damp; the case stood on a chiffonier, with two drawers and cupboards cupboards underneath ; I took out the left-hand drawer near the bed ; I found it was all right ; the chiffonier was at that time uninjured ; I shut the drawer up tight, then I left the spare room ; the next place I visited was the pantry ; on a shelf to the right of the door I found some ashes, the remains of a fire on a dish ; I produce the said ashes so found ; the paper was burnt off shelf, and shelf slightly discoloured ; on a dresser, having shelves opposite the door at back of pantry, I found more ashes, the remains of a fire and bagging materials, produced ; the paper covering was also burnt, as far back as the crockery would allow ; the shelf immediately over this shelf was charred ; these fires were out ; there was no connection between these fires and the two I have previously given evidence about ; I observed the window of the pantry, it was down, and fastened by a piece of wood between the top of window and bottom sash, to the left as you look at the window from the inside ; I saw a small aperture in one of the squares of glass about 2 inches wide, large enough to admit of a man's hand being put in, but not his arm past the wrist ; I saw a mangle immediately in front of window, close up to it ; I made no further inspection then ; I remained on the premises with Constable Harper until 4 a.m. ; defendant accompanied me in almost every case up to 4 a.m. ; once or twice defendant left me, and went, I think, into the study ; about 3 a.m., on going in spare bed-room with defendant and Constable Harper, there was a quantity of smoke in the room, and seeing where it came from, I went to an arm-chair, it stood close to the bed ; I saw a cushion on the chair ; I lifted it, and found it was on fire beneath where resting on bottom of chair ; I passed it to Constable Harper, and he took it outside ; defendant was present, and took hold of it ; when Mr. Britten left me once or twice, but for a short time, he had a candle ; I am sure that the statement signed by me was read over by me after Detective Cocking read it to me.

By Mr. Roberts : Having read half a dozen lines in the said statement, I now say that Mr. Britten was going all over the house, sometimes with a candle in his hand, before I left, by himself ; I left Constable Harper in charge at 4 a.m. ; then there were only Constable Harper and defendant on the premises ; I heard Mr. Manning ask Mrs. Britten and the boy to go to his place ; I believe Mrs. Britten went to Mr. Manning's ; the servant went to a friend's place close by ; after I found the cushion on fire I went again to spare bed-room ; before I left everything was all right then ; there was no appearance of fire or smoke there or on the premises when I left at 4 o'clock ; I returned at 10 a.m. to parsonage in company with Mr. Fisher and Constable Harper ; we inspected the premises ; we went into the attic over the drawing-room, and found the remains of a small fire, about 14 or 15 feet from the man-hole ; we found some charred shingles, dry leaves, twigs, and small pieces of wood, now produced ; the remains of fire were on the lath and plaster ; I left the remains of fire until the Coroner's Jury had viewed it ; I then took charge of it on the 12th November last ; between this fire and the others I have spoken of there was no communication ; I noticed a hole in ceiling of drawing-room ; this hole was not there when I left at 4 o'clock ; the laths in this hole were broken off ; I gathered the laths from the floor below, and I now produce ; I did not see any broken laths in the attic ; the hole in ceiling was 2 or 3 feet from remains of fire ; I went to parsonage on 16th November with Detective Clough ; I heard him say to Mr. Britten, when we were over the ceiling of drawing-room, "What were you doing with the candle up here, Mr. Britten ?" Mr. Britten replied, "Mrs. Britten could not think of sleeping unless I went all over the house again ;" Mrs. Britten had left before 4 o'clock ; on the 11th November I examined the stairs, where the kerosene is kept ; Mr. Fisher was with me ; I found oil-cloth on the floor of the hall ; and on removing the same I found a strong smell of kerosene oil ; the floor was stained about 18 inches by 5 or 6 feet in length ; I did not notice any kerosene on top of oil-cloth ; there was water on it ; I do not think the oil which stained the boards soaked from the drain ; I saw the stains on the stairs ; the stains on the boards were distinct from those on the stairs ; I noticed yesterday that the stains on the stairs were not nearly as high up as on the night of the fire ; the stains were clearer and fresher than they were yesterday ; on the 13th November, I got a message from Mr. Britten, by one of his sons, in consequence of which I went to the parsonage ; I saw defendant standing on the lawn, opposite the bow-windows of drawing-room ; there was a side-board standing about 12 feet from the window, and about 6 feet from the side-board ; further away from window defendant pointed out two fire-balls lying on the grass, and said, "Look at this, sergeant ;" I said "They were not there when the Jury and Coroner and police viewed the premises yesterday morning, nor on the night of the fire ;" I said to defendant, "I am positive about that ;" defendant said, "What do you mean to infer by that, sergeant ?" I said, "It is not for me to say now, Mr. Britten ;" I said I would go and get the Coroner (Mr. Manning) to see them ; I went to Mr. Manning's, and he accompanied me back ; I left the balls on the ground in the same place when I went away for Mr. Manning ; I now produce the balls ; I made an examination of the balls both before and after I went for Mr. Manning ; the balls were saturated with kerosene oil ; the ground and grass was also saturated with oil ; I drove a chisel in ground for 3 or 4 inches, and found that the soil smelt of kerosene to that depth ; my impression is the kerosene was poured on the balls as they laid on that spot, and must have been used plentifully ; on the Saturday morning, the grass where the balls were lying was a darker colour than the rest of it ; about ten or twelve days afterwards I saw the grass was dead ; I was on the lawn several times the night of the fire, and on the morning after the fire, with Mr. Fisher ; I accompanied the Coroner's Jury of twelve to the parsonage ; the Jury went on the lawn and examined the side-board, which was then on the lawn in the same position as it was on the following Saturday ; I did not see any balls on the lawn on that occasion ; if the balls had been there on any of the occasions I have spoken of it would be impossible for me not to have seen them, they were so plain lying on the grass.

By Mr. Roberts : I have given my impression as to some fires ; the impressions I have given are against the defendant ; I am not aware that any of my impressions are in his favour, in respect to matter charged against him ; I referred to Coroner's Jury in my evidence ; I gave evidence shortly ; I was not prevented at the Coroner's inquest from giving my evidence fully ; I gave it then as fully as I thought it was necessary as a sergeant of Police Force ; I suggested one or two matters to Coroner, but he said, never mind that ; the defendant gave evidence at the inquest on oath ; all the witnesses at inquiry were on oath ; the verdict of the Jury was, or I believe it was : We find that the St. Anne's Parsonage and stable connected therewith, were wilfully set on fire, we further find that the said premises were set on fire by some person or persons to the Jury unknown ; "Wallace gave evidence at Coroner's Jury, and some who have been examined at present proceedings also gave evidence, viz., Burton, Trevitt, and Hibble, also Wallace ; the Jury viewed premises with me ; they viewed all parts of premises ; I was in Court when defendant gave evidence before Coroner ; to best of my recollection one of the Jury asked defendant whether he went over the drawing-room on the morning of the fire ; I do not recollect defendant saying, I went to see whether the fire had penetrated through the ceiling; he said his foot slipped off the joists and went through the ceiling, causing him to fall and drop the candle; I do not recollect defendant saying that he then went downstairs; I have been up over the ceiling; it so happened that I put my foot through quite accidentally; I missed the ceiling joists; it was day time; it was dark in day time there, and it was dark when the candle is out; I have not mentioned these things before; I left you to find them out, and Mr. Pring did not examine me about them; my foot going through the ceiling is not in my statement to Detective Cocking, although I mentioned it to Mr. Cocking; I have a pretty fair recollection of all matters; I have perhaps, sworn in the witness box to-day that I told Cocking, referring to this matter, that my foot went off the joists through the ceiling; I do not recollect whether I said that Cocking omitted to take my statement about the ceiling; Cocking was present when my foot went through; although Cocking and I knew my foot went through the ceiling, it was not mentioned in my statement, but I told Cocking of it; I will not swear that any statement was made that we would not put that down; my impression is that this statement would be favourable to defendant; I do not recollect stating that defendant, after the candle went out, came downstairs and lit another; nor that defendant said he saw smoke at back through the shingles; or that he went upstairs afterwards to see if there was a fire or not; I recollect defendant saying that he took a jug of water to put a small fire out, but cannot say that he did not say there was a little rubbish smouldering, caused evidently by his accident, and took a jug of water to put it out; I did not put out any fire myself up over the ceiling; the débris I now produce was from the fire over the ceiling; I have been through the man-hole in attic frequently; I went up immediately after fire, and looked through the man-hole; there was cocoanut fibre and inflammable material there; there was enough of fibre to fill a bed; on this morning of fire it was not burnt in any way; it would have been the easiest way to fire the place by lighting the fibre; the fibre was about 4 or 5 feet from man-hole on the left side as you enter; the roof was close to it in parts; the fibre was in bulk, it was not scattered about; the building is, I believe, fifty years old; none of the ceiling joists were scorched or smoked; the fire must have been a small one; nothing was burnt except the remains I have produced; the fire must have been of very short duration; the rafters are a long way off the joists; the defendant gave other evidence at inquest beyond what has been referred to, partly in explanation of matters connected with fire; the fire was from 2 to 3 feet from hole in ceiling on one side of the man-hole; I noticed the stains on stairs the night of fire; I only noticed it slightly then; I did not notice the thickness of wall between cupboard and spare bed-room; I had never been through the house before the night of fire; I do not know what stains of kerosene were on stairs before the fire; the kerosene under oil-cloth appeared to have been done recently; there was no oil on floor-cloth; I could not positively swear but what the stains may not be the result of leakage for several months and years; what I call fire-balls is canvas saturated with kerosene; they were pointed out to me on the 12th November; when I went with Mr. Fisher it was to examine what portions of house and furniture were burnt; I did not search for any rags with kerosene on them at this time; I don't know who placed them there or how they came there; the defendant's house is surrounded by trees and shrubs, particularly the drawing-room; I did not notice that the fire in spare bed-room had penetrated through the ceiling; I won't say the smoke did not escape; I did not observe any hole in it; it was very black; the man-hole is about over the spare bed-room; I noticed marks of kerosene on the ends of steps upstairs; defendant did not say he had any previous knowledge of the fire-balls when he sent for me; the attention of Jury on their visit was directed to the house and furniture; they were on the very spot of ground where the fire-balls were found; the spare room was pretty full of furniture, but you could move about easily near the bed; it was 3 a.m. when I found the arm-chair on fire; I cannot say whether the cushion in it had been turned over or not; my impression is it was stuffed with straw, but it might be feathers; Mr. Manning first directed my attention to the pantry; defendant was present; I won't swear defendant was not the first who pointed out the fire in the pantry; this was about an hour after the fire; I cannot fix the time; I think it was before Mr. Manning took Mrs. Britten away; there had been a fire in the pantry, but there was none when my attention was drawn to it; my opinion is that this fire burnt itself out; no one put it out; the fire was about 5 feet from window in pantry; a man could not reach to it from window; the mangle was a portable one; I did not observe whether it was on castors; the window, when open, was about 15 inches, and 2 feet wide; a man could get through without difficulty; it would be impossible for a man to move the mangle from outside of window; the mangle was almost all across the window; between the mangle and the shelf there is a space of 4 feet, and 6 to 8 or 10 inches between end of mangle and end of window-frame; if the mangle was on castors it might be moved by a man from outside; if so, a man could then enter from outside; the window was tried in my presence, and the stick did not fall out; I won't swear that Mr. E. Terry placed the stick and that it fell down; Mr. Manning was Coroner; at the first part of inquest I had the conduct of it, and I collected the evidence; Mr. Fisher afterwards conducted the latter portion in my presence; I gave Mr. Fisher a list of the names; I knew Constable Harper could give evidence; he said what he could give; some of it; he mentioned it; he did not say he knew any more than he told me; he was not called, but I kept him until the inquest was over, also four other witnesses not called; I did not hear on the night of the fire that a man was in the paddock in parsonage before and after the fire; I heard that some men were about that night in women's apparel, but don't think I heard it from defendant; I did not hear that the two men run and escaped when pursued; I sent two of the police and several others that same night to ascertain; I am one of defendant's parishoners; there has been ill-feeling towards him for the last six months in some quarters, and some have expressed a wish for his removal; this subject was discussed at a meeting at which the Bishop presided; this meeting was about a fortnight after the fire; the Bishop took an interest in the matter; I left before meeting was concluded; I don't know that a vote of sympathy was passed; Messrs. Edward and Richard Terry were present at the meeting; since the meeting a reward has been offered—the Government £25 and the Insurance Company £100; the inquest was held 12th November, and summons in this case 2nd February instant; I saw Wallace when I served him with a subpœna; I did not take him to detective Cocking; I know Cocking has been round taking evidence from witnesses; I saw Cocking speaking to Constable Harper; Wallace lives at Locke's, the baker; I think Cocking asked me where Wallace lived; I don't know Wallace's hand-writing; Cocking has been up several times; Wallace's residence is only about 300 yards from the Court; I first noticed the water on the books about 2 o'clock on morning of the fire; people could move about easily in spare bed-room near bed, but not in any other part; the other portion of room was packed; you would have a difficulty in moving about.

By

By Mr. Pring : You could easily get to the bookcase ; the leaves, shingles, and twigs, were heaped together as if done intentionally ; at the inquest I was ready to give full evidence as to what happened to that date, but the Coroner stopped me two or three times ; once when I was about to state what property I had saved, and I am not clear about any other occasion ; the Jury viewed the premises before the inquest, about between 3 and 5 o'clock ; I think it was about 5 when the evidence was commenced ; the inquest lasted till 12:15 that night ; it was about four or five weeks after the fire I went in company with Detectives Cocking and Clough ; Mr. Britten and Mr. Richard Terry went to the attic ; I went to point out the position, and one of the other four had a candle ; I was the last to enter ; I was behind the others, the candle was consequently of no use to me ; I was in the dark, and it is to this that I attribute my foot going through the ceiling ; I could not see where I was going ; my foot slipped off the joists and went through the ceiling ; I am 13 stone in weight ; the mangle was close to the window, same position as I found it yesterday morning ; I don't know why Mr. Fisher did not call Harper or the other four witnesses ; I was asked by the Coroner whether there were any more witnesses ; I said yes, several more witnesses outside the Court ; then the Coroner asked the Jury if they required any more evidence ; the foreman, Mr. Samuel Small, said he thought the evidence already given was sufficient ; he said that after consulting the Jury ; the Coroner then summed up and the Jury shortly afterwards gave the verdict as stated previously by me ; the ill-feeling towards the defendant is by a few of his parishioners ; the ill-feeling is their desire to get defendant out of the parish, and owing to their dissatisfaction with him as a minister ; Mr. Britten complained to me on the night of the fire that he had lost his watch and £20 in cash ; he afterwards told me he recovered his watch ; I have heard nothing about the money since.

By Mr. Roberts : None of defendant's family were examined at the inquest ; defendant alone gave evidence in matters relating to the fire, and in explanation ; I have heard that the following persons have expressed a desire for defendant's removal from the district :—Mrs. Darvall, Mr. French, Mr. John E. Manning.

By the Bench : The ashes of fire in pantry are less than one ounce each ; these are the whole of the ashes I collected.

JAMES BEATTY.

HALEY D'ARDIER, J.P.

Case further adjourned to the 17th instant.

James Edward Harper, on oath, states :—I am a constable in Police Force stationed at Ryde ; I remember the fire at parsonage on the night of 10th and morning of 11th November ; I reached there about a quarter to 1 a.m. ; I first went to the stable, from the stable I went to the house ; I went through the rooms, I went first in spare bed-room ; I found fire on bed and in drawing-room, pantry, and lobby ; there was no connection between any of the fires ; I saw that the window of pantry was secure, there was a stick between top and bottom sash ; when I got there all the fires had been put out, between 3 and half-past 3 ; I went in spare bed-room with the sergeant and Mr. Britten ; the upper side of cushion was on fire ; there was a woman's cloud rolled round the cushion ; Sergeant Beatty shortly after left me in charge ; there were then only myself and Mr. Britten at the parsonage ; Mr. Britten remained with me for a short time ; he then said he was going to bed ; he said, " You can have a sleep too " ; I was sitting on a case between stable and parsonage ; he said, " I will give you something to sleep on, and you can go to sleep here " ; he brought me (I think) it was a calico tent ; I told him I was left in charge and could not go to sleep, and I did not go to sleep ; Mr. Britten went into the house, he did not go to bed ; I know that, because I saw him walking through the different rooms with a lighted candle ; he went first in his own bed-room and after that through the other rooms ; I watched Mr. Britten from the front hall door going through the different rooms ; I entered the house myself by the front hall door, and proceeded to the spare bed-room where the fire had been previously extinguished ; before I got to the door, which was half-open, I saw smoke coming through the door from the spare bed-room ; I went into the room ; I saw flames issuing from the drawer of the bookcase ; I believe there was only one drawer ; the drawer was open about 4 inches ; there was no fire in the room at that time except in that drawer ; I rushed out by the front door to get some water ; I met Mr. Britten not far from the front hall door coming towards me ; I said there was a fire in the bed-room ; I think I said in the book case ; we went back together to the room ; he said, " dear me, it must have arisen from the heat of the previous fire " ; I and Mr. Britten were both at door of bed-room when he said that ; I rushed out and brought in two buckets of water ; I left them at door of bed-room ; Mr. Britten was in the hall ; he saw me put those buckets down ; I then ran out and got two more buckets of water ; when I returned with the other two buckets, Mr. Britten was, I believe, still in the hall, and the first two buckets were full of water where I had left them ; I threw the four buckets of water on the fire ; Mr. Britten did not assist me in any way ; he was present when I threw the water on the fire ; I have previously stated I saw Mr. Britten going about with a lighted candle ; I saw him go twice, I believe certainly once, in the spare bed-room before I discovered the fire ; he went into the spare bed-room about five minutes before I discovered the fire ; the wood-work of drawer was charred by the fire ; it was about 4:30 when I discovered the fire ; I lifted up the window to let the smoke out, and took some things out of the drawer ; after that I examined the rest of the house and found it was all right ; I then went outside ; it was then breaking day ; at that time no one but Mr. Britten and myself were on the premises ; I remember a man named Fred. Woodcock coming about a quarter or half-past 5 ; James Gascoyne was with him, they joined me ; I showed Woodcock round outside the premises ; Gascoyne went, I believe, towards the stable ; I saw nothing more of him at that time ; I saw him a quarter of an hour after when I went up stairs ; I and Woodcock were looking through the bow-window ; it was about twenty minutes or a quarter to 6 ; we heard a noise over the ceiling of drawing-room, like some one knocking with something hard against the ceiling ; I heard three or four distinct knocks following each other quickly ; then we saw a man's foot come through the ceiling, almost a foot of his leg came through ; the foot was drawn up and came or was forced through again, alongside of the first hole there was only one hole made ; the foot was drawn up again as before ; I believe the foot came through the third time, but am not sure ; we then saw a man's hand put down through the hole that had just been made, and pulled the laths off from underneath the joists ; I believe believe the laths were pulled up ; I thought I heard matches strike ; I saw the reflection of the light ; it was after the hand came down I saw the reflection of the light ; I and Woodcock went through the front hall door, and went up stairs ; after I got up stairs I saw Gascoigne ; I went into the attic, and half-way through the man-hole ; I there saw Mr. Britten about 3 or 4 yards from the man-hole coming towards the man-hole on the joists, in a stooping position ; Mr. Britten spoke first, he said, " Get me a jug of water, I believe there is a fire over here ; " I got some from the servants' room on the opposite side ; I handed it to him through the man-hole ; he took it towards where the hole in the ceiling was, and sprinkled the water on the fire with his hand ; I saw the fire, there was a small flame ; after sprinkling the water Mr. Britten was coming towards the man-hole, and I asked him if he was sure he had put the fire out ; he replied, " I believe I have ; " he then came out by the man-hole ; he had no candlestick in his hand at any time when I saw him above the ceiling ; I have not seen the fire-balls now produced before ; I did not see these or any like them on the lawn on the morning of the fire ; I was on the lawn that morning frequently ; if the balls had been lying on the lawn I don't think I could have missed seeing them ; the grass is short ; that morning when I was at the parsonage, and before the people had dispersed, I heard from Sergeant Beatty that there was a report that two men had been seen on the road dressed in women's clothes, and I was sent to see if there were any persons of that kind, but could not find any ; there were a great many other people searching for them.

By Mr. Roberts: I told defendant that I was not going to sleep ; I was left in charge, and I did not go to sleep ; Mr. Britten left me sitting on the case ; I walked round the premises some time afterwards ; the front hall door was not locked whilst I was there ; I believe the back door was open ; I was not present at any fire in the house except that in the drawer and above ceiling ; I was present at the burning of the stable ; I have stated that I think there was only one drawer ; I will not say there were not two drawers ; the drawer alluded to was opened and closed by Sergeant Beatty, about quarter past 3 ; I don't know who afterwards opened it ; I swear the fire in the drawer did not arise from the heat of previous fire ; there were not two buckets of water in the hall previous to my entering the hall ; I examined the fire in the drawer ; I took out a blanket ; I don't know whether it is inflammable ; it was an ordinary sized blanket ; I believe there was a book in the drawer ; I took it out ; it was greatly charred ; there were several other things but I cannot describe them ; I had been to a dinner that night ; I had no drink ; if Mr. Britten states there was no blanket there, and that I did not take it out, I won't say he made a mistake ; a good bit of the blanket was burnt ; the corner of it was burnt ; I unfolded the blanket ; I don't produce the blanket ; there were holes burnt in it ; I did not think it was my duty to retain possession of it or the books either ; the drawer was about 5 inches deep and 2 feet 10 inches wide ; Gascoigne and Woodcock did not see the blanket ; one pint of water would not have put out the fire ; it took four buckets to put out the fire ; I do not produce any ashes or debris from the drawer ; I was in spare bed-room before this fire ; about 4 o'clock ; I don't know what time the fire had been previously extinguished ; I cannot say that there was any article of an inflammable nature in the drawer ; I did not ascertain that there were two drawers ; if any one states that two buckets of water were left in hall in case of fire, it is not correct ; I saw a flame in the drawer about 2 feet high ; I dare say there was about an ounce of charred remains ; I don't produce any ; I cannot say the flames were under the blanket ; I took notice of bookcase ; I believe the books were scorched ; I did not examine the books ; I won't swear the books were scorched ; I did not draw Sergeant Beatty's attention to the blanket or bookcase ; I had an opportunity of taking the blanket and things from drawer but did not do so ; I examined the place to see it was all right ; I did not examine the drawer when I went out ; I don't know whether it was open or not there could not have been a fire in the drawer smouldering for any length ; I had been up near the drawer ; I looked at the bookcase ; I believe the glass doors were closed ; I did not try to open the drawer ; I don't know that you must open the two drawers ; I won't swear there were glass doors, I am not swearing a lie when I say the books were burnt ; although I cannot say there was a glass door ; I did not give evidence before the Coroner since the inquest ; a reward has been offered by the Government and by Insurance Company ; I was not in Court during the inquest ; I was in the precincts of Court ; I was in Court at close of inquest ; I mentioned to the sergeant what had occurred at parsonage that morning ; I did not go into defendant's bed-room that morning at all, things had been taken out and taken back after the fire ; I don't know whether defendant had an opportunity of going to bed under these circumstances ; the fire on ceiling was a very small fire, it was easily extinguished by the defendant ; I did not examine the fire on the ceiling until Friday ; I did not see the ceiling joists charred in any way by fire, nor any traces of fire between the joists ; the laths on top of ceiling had traces of a small fire ; defendant was the only person who pointed out this to me ; I got water when asked by defendant, and he put the fire out ; defendant had not a chamber in his hand going in direction of fire when I got upstairs myself ; Woodcock and Gascoigne met near the stable and parsonage for about two minutes ; I won't swear that defendant was not there with us, and in our company for a quarter of an hour ; I had no conversation with defendant about his foot going through ceiling, was that he would have a better opportunity of explaining it in giving his evidence at the inquiry ; I did not tell him what I observed ; no one spoke to him of it to my knowledge ; I produce laths found on the floor of drawing-room, there is no trace of fire on them nor on laths just where foot came through ceiling, but immediately alongside there is trace of the small fire alluded to by me ; the parsonage is an old building, shingled roof ; I saw a little quantity of cocoa fibre on the morning in question on the right, and might have some on left, near the man-hole ; if the fibre had been placed near the rafters and fired it would have soon set the place on fire ; any person going up in the attic would not necessarily see the fire on ceiling, because it was on right hand side and 15 feet from it ; I did not ask defendant anything about fire on ceiling, it may have been the result of an accident ; I did not go to examine if it was put out ; I have not seen the fire-balls (produced) until this morning ; they might have been in the shrubs, but they were not on lawn ; I did not search for anything of the kind ; I have heard Sergeant Beatty say that he had put his foot through the ceiling ; I never spoke to defendant about his foot going through the ceiling ; I mentioned all this to Sergeant Beatty on the morning of the fire ; I have been seen by detective Cocking about a month ago ; I have had no conversation with Wallace about this matter ; I have not seen him with Cocking ; I have had conversation with Mr. Manning since the inquest at his house a few days after the inquiry ; I was there for half an hour ; he asked me what occurred at parsonage on morning of fire ; I had a second conversation for about a quarter of an hour with Mr. Manning ; he asked me what I knew ; he did not ask questions, nor did he tell me it was under consideration of the Government about opening the inquiry ; I don't recollect whether I made a statutory declaration to

Mr.

Mr. Manning ; I recollect now, I signed a declaration which he prepared ; whether I made a declaration I cannot say ; Mr. Manning wrote the matter out at my dictation ; Mr. Manning said the case might be reopened ; I can't recollect whether Mr. Manning asked me, or whether I volunteered to make the declaration ; I know there is a printed document offering a reward ; whether there was a written one I am not aware ; I have not heard that a man was seen in parsonage paddock night of fire ; Sergeant Beatty told me about the two men in woman's clothes ; how any of the fires originated I cannot say ; I did not see defendant on night of fire with any torches or anything in his hand ; I did not see Mrs. Britten about whilst I was there ; the whole place was in disorder in consequence of the fire ; I have heard it spoken of that there is an ill-feeling towards defendant ; I heard this before the fire ; to any thing when he went in ; I did not notice any hole in the ceiling of spare bed-room ; I did not hear any match struck when defendant went in spare room, neither did I hear any drawer opened or shut ; I only saw the light of the candle ; no one saw defendant enter spare bed-room but myself ; if defendant says he never entered the bed-room after Beatty left, it is not correct.

By Bench : I was left in charge to look after the place and watch Mr. Britten ; Woodcock and Gascoigne have no right to be on the premises, they came to look at the fire ; I asked Woodcock to come in with me when I went upstairs.

Sworn before me, this 17th day of February, 1887,—

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

Frederick Woodcock, on oath, states :—I am a fruit-grower at Ryde ; I remember the morning of the fire at parsonage, in November last ; I and Thomas Gascoigne went to parsonage between five and six in the morning, we heard of the fire and went to see it ; we saw Constable Harper and defendant between stable and back gate, they were looking at a buggy ; I, and Constable Harper, Gascoigne, and defendant went towards house ; defendant left before we got to house, the rest of us went on to the front of the house ; I was at the bow-window with Constable Harper ; I can't say Gascoigne was there with us ; we were looking through bow-window ; we heard some knocking on the ceiling of drawing-room, two or three knocks ; they were not very quick ; after the knocks, a foot came through, the foot was pulled up and came down through again in the same spot ; the foot knocked down some plaster the first time, but can't say that it did the second time ; the second time the foot came through, the hole was made a little larger ; the laths were broken, twisted down from the ceiling, they were partly broken, but not disconnected from the ceiling ; after the foot was drawn up on the second occasion, a hand came down the hole and pulled up the laths ; I and Constable Harper went round the front way ; we went in the hall and upstairs ; we went to the man-hole in attic ; I did not look through the man-hole ; Constable Harper did ; Mr. Britten, as we were coming through the hall, said, "Harper, I think there is a spark up here, fetch some water ;" we ran upstairs, and Harper looked in the man-hole, and just as he did Mr. Britten came out and said, "Get us some water ;" defendant had a chamber in his hand as he came out of the man-hole ; both defendant and Harper then went into a room and got water ; Mr. Britten got water in a basin ; Constable Harper did not get any water that I saw ; I did not see Harper with a jug of water, but Mr. Britten had a jug of water ; I cannot remember that I said Constable Harper got a jug of water ; my memory last December was about the same as it is now ; I do not think the statement made to Detective Cocking, if I saw it, would refresh my memory ; no one has spoken to me about this case since I made the statement to Detective Cocking ; I know Sergeant Beatty ; I told Constable Phillips that I could not be here at half-past 10 to-day ; he did not say he would take a warrant out for me ; neither did Sergeant Beatty tell me that he would take a warrant out ; I am subpoenaed in this case ; a man I now identify before the Court asked me into Mr. Jordan's hotel to tell him what I knew about the case, the same as Detective Cocking did ; I think I told him pretty nearly the same as I told Cocking ; the gentleman did not ask me any questions, but put down what I told him ; this was about a month ago ; Jordan has never spoken to me about the case, nor any one else ; the gentleman I identify did not tell me his name ; it was about a month ago I made a statement to him ; I made a statutory declaration before Mr. Manning soon after the fire ; the signature I see is mine ; I do not think if I looked at the declaration it would refresh my memory ; I cannot read the writing exhibited to me ; I didn't know the gentleman I identify to be Mr. Britten's brother.

By Mr. Roberts : The gentleman and I met at Jordan's Hotel ; he said to me, "I want you to make a truthful statement of what you know about the fire ;" I told him in effect what I had sworn to to-day ; I am certain Harper brought no water ; defendant put the fire out ; I did not see any fire upstairs on ceiling when the foot came through ; I did not hear any matches struck ; I did not hear Mr. Britten say he had thrown water on the fire and wanted more ; if Mr. Britten had not mentioned it I should not have known there was any fire there ; I and Harper, Gascoigne, and defendant were at the stable together ; it was within three or four minutes after Mr. Britten left that we went upstairs ; he would not have had much time to light a fire or put it out in that time.

By the Bench : The foot that came through had a boot on ; I do not think the hand was put through to help or extricate the foot.

By Mr. Pring : The foot was pulled up before the hand came through.

By Mr. Pring : Mr. Manning is Justice of the Peace and Coroner ; I know that Mr. Manning was not aware until after the inquest of the nature of the evidence I was prepared to give at the inquest ; there was no communication between the fire in the ceiling and the other fires ; anyone going to the man-hole in attic could not help seeing fire on the ceiling ; the last occasion on which I had been in spare bed-room, was ten minutes or a quarter of an hour before I discovered the fire in the drawer ; I do not know why I was not called to give evidence at inquest ; I expected to be called.

By Mr. Roberts : The door of front hall was open the whole time I was there, defendant knew I could enter at any time, and I could have done so when Mrs. Britten went in spare bed-room ; I could have gone if I thought proper ; I will not say that defendant set fire.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

Case again adjourned to 23rd instant.

James

James Cocking, on oath, states:—I am an officer of the Detective Police Force; in December last I took down a statement in writing from Mr. Britten; I had several interviews with him, commencing on 28th December last; I look at a statement marked K; it is signed by Mr. Britten, and is in my handwriting, it was taken down by me at Mr. Britten's dictation on various days commencing on 28th December last; the whole was read over to Mr. Britten before he signed it, and Mr. Britten read it himself and took a copy of it; the statement was given by Mr. Britten voluntarily, and I took it down at his special request.

By Mr. Roberts: I put questions to defendant; I told him who I was; Mr. Britten had an opportunity of reading the statement, but whether he did so or not I cannot say; I examined other witnesses who have been called as witnesses for this prosecution before I examined the defendant; I examined Mr. Manning afterwards; I was eight days at Ryde collecting evidence; I had been at Ryde two days before; I commenced to take Mr. Britten's statement; it occupied three or four days; it extended this time because I wanted to get a truthful statement from Mr. Britten of occurrences on that night, meaning the night of the fire; it was taken in parts; when I had taken the different parts, I kept them in my possession; Mr. Britten used to obtain a copy of each day's statement when taken down; I saw Mr. Manning the same day that I finished taking Mr. Britten's statement; I saw him for the purpose of taking his statement; I read to Mr. Manning what statement Mr. Britten had made; I saw Mr. Manning at his residence; I wish to mention that Mr. Manning had written out the substance of the evidence he could give before I gave him Mr. Britten's statement; he had written it out previously; I took a copy of it before I went to defendant; I had seen Mr. Manning on my first visit to defendant; I saw Mr. Manning; I went to his residence on the same morning I went to the defendant; Mr. Manning did not then show me any statement; Detective Clough was with us; we only remained five minutes; I have no recollection of Mr. Manning having expressed his opinion that Mr. Britten set fire to the place; he did afterwards say, that being guided by the evidence, he was of opinion he had come to the conclusion that he had set fire to the place; Mr. Manning, I understood, was speaking of his knowledge from what he knew as Coroner; Mr. Manning did not tell me the verdict on the inquest; I had the particulars myself; Mr. Manning did not express his conviction that Mr. Britten set the place on fire without reference to the evidence; when Mr. Manning expressed his conviction that Mr. Britten set the place on fire; I think it was the third interview; I have been assisting in the prosecution in this case; I know Mr. Manning has been in the adjoining room from time to time during the hearing of this case; he has sent for me and I have gone to him; he has sent for me on five or six occasions when witnesses have been giving their evidence; he communicated with me respecting evidence the witnesses could give; he brought under my notice several things on the inquest, and requested me not to forget them; they were of use to me, and to that extent they were useful to me for the prosecution; Mr. Manning was in the magistrate's room during the time most of the evidence for prosecution was given; he might have heard the evidence if he endeavoured to do so, and he could have heard you putting questions; I did not take a statement from Mr. Manning exactly in the same way as I did from defendant; after Mr. Manning had read over defendant's statement he gave me a long written statement; he had not had Mr. Britten's statement more than two minutes when he gave me his statement, having brought his own statement downstairs; I asked for the statement one or two days before I got it; I had not told Mr. Manning anything that Mr. Britten had said before I got Mr. Manning's statement that is nothing to Mr. Britten; I told Mr. Manning I had been to Mr. Britten's, and was going again; when I first came I went to Mr. Manning's and then direct to Mr. Britten's; had an interview with him on my first visit; I had five or six visits to Mr. Britten's in connection with his statement; I only went to Mr. Manning's on the first occasion of my visit; I read Mr. Manning's statement; I questioned him on his written statement, but not in connection with matters relating to Mr. Britten; I may have done so indirectly; Mr. Manning did not express ill-feeling towards Mr. Britten or an unfriendly manner; Mr. Manning had said there had been unpleasant feeling between the parishioners, including himself, and defendant, and expressed himself desirous of getting rid of Mr. Britten from the parish, as he said for his own sake; I was sent up here to make inquiries; it was not part of my directions that Mr. Britten should be present when I was examining the witnesses; Mr. Britten was not present when I examined Mr. Manning; I did not put questions to defendant to criminate him, but to elucidate the truth; it was not to criminate him if I could; I never interviewed Wallace or took a statement from him; I am not aware that the Minister for Justice had given instruction that Mr. Britten should be allowed to cross-examine any witness; I do not know that attempts were made to reopen the inquest; I did not interview Mrs. Britten; on my third interview Mr. Manning told me he was at the fire on the Saturday after; he said he had been sent for by Mr. Britten to examine some fire-balls; he said nothing about being in the passage with Mrs. Britten; when Mr. Manning handed me his statement I questioned him; the questions were so numerous I cannot recollect them all; I did take notes when I got Mr. Manning's statement; it was on my fourth visit; the notes I made I tore up; this matter was embodied in his statement; at Mr. Britten's request I examined his son Frank; his son said he was the first to give the alarm; I examined others in Mr. Britten's presence—M. A. Adams; I do not know whether he is a witness or not; Mr. Jordan was also examined in Mr. Britten's presence; Trevitt was present and examined before Mr. Britten; Mr. Young was present with Mr. Britten when examined; these were called by Mr. Britten's request, but their evidence is immaterial in the case; I mentioned this to Inspector Camphin; I have stated that Mr. Manning related a conversation between Mrs. Britten, but I never examined her, neither in relation to the fire nor to a conversation with Mr. Manning; I did not think it was part of my duty to examine Mrs. Britten; she was present when I examined Mr. Britten; part of Mr. Britten's statement was read to Mrs. Britten.

By Mr. Pring: I read the statement aloud, sentence by sentence, as it was taken down; my instructions were to examine all persons who could give any material evidence tending to throw any light on the origin of the fire at the parsonage, and as Mr. Britten had requested to be examined respecting any facts he could give I was to interview him, and if he repeated his desire to make a statement, I was to take a statement from him; I was authorized to put any questions on any matter about which a doubt existed respecting which Mr. Britten might give some information; I was also instructed to examine persons on the request of Mr. Britten, although I might not consider their statement material; and instructed to warn Mr. Britten that any statement he made might be used in evidence against him in the event of authorities instituting criminal proceedings; I told Mr. Britten of these instructions before I took a statement from him; Mr. Britten expressed a desire to be examined; before I examined him I warned warned him as instructed ; I examined all witnesses he asked me to examine ; when I first came to Ryde I went to Mr. Manning, as being the Coroner, who had held an inquest on the fire, and therefore likely to give me information ; after that, on different days, I examined various witnesses, Mr. Britten amongst the number ; I finally went to Mr. Manning ; and as soon as I saw him he gave me his statement ; he had the statement in his hand when I saw him ; I look at a copy of Mr. Manning's statement made by myself.

By Mr. Roberts : I got my instructions from Inspector Camphin ; I saw Mr. Manning at the Inspector's office long after I had finished the inquiry ; I will not swear that Mr. Manning did make inquiries about the present prosecution.

By the Bench : Instructions are generally given in writing ; there are general regulations given ; in this particular case special instructions were given, because previously Mr. Attorney-General Want had ordered that Mr. Britten should be prosecuted ; if no special instructions had been given, I should have conducted the case in the ordinary way ; I should then have collected evidence tending to connect the person charged with the offence, but in this case I examined other witnesses at Mr. Britten's request, whose evidence, in his opinion, would tend to remove suspicion from him.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

*John Edye Manning, on oath, states :—*I am a Justice of the Peace and Coroner for district of Ryde ; I remember the fire at parsonage in November last ; I was coming from the Railway Station when I saw a fire which was found to be the stable at parsonage ; I went to the stable by back road to it ; there was then a very strong fire at stable ; after some time I saw people running with water in direction of house, and I made inquiries and found there was a fire in the house, and I then went to the house ; I went to front door ; I met Mr. Britten there, and had some conversation ; I said it was a fortunate thing that I had insisted on having all the Church property and parsonage insured when I was a churchwarden ; he said it was fortunate ; I asked him if he had his furniture insured ; he replied, "No, do not think so ;" I said it was a very strange thing to have a fire at the Church of England parsonage when the clergyman was residing in it ; I made the remark, it was on fire in three different places ; I said, "What is the meaning of it ;" he said, "I do not know ;" Mr. Britten said he was in his bed or bed-room when he thought he smelt fire, that he got up and went into the passage ; when he became convinced that there was a fire that he went back in bed-room and called Mrs. Britten, but that she would not get up for some time ; he said he went out again in passage and opened door of spare bed-room, and found a fire burning on the bed in that room ; then he said he called the servant who was sleeping upstairs ; I asked did he give any alarm ; he said, "No," he did not ; I said, "What did you do ?" he said, "I moved out some of my things ;" I said, "What things ?" he said, "Some of my drawers," and while so doing Mrs. Britten told him the stable was on fire, that she had seen it from back verandah ; he then said he went out and saw such was the case ; I said, "Did you give any alarm then ?" he said, "No, I did not ;" I again asked him what he had been doing ; he said, as before, "I was taking out my drawers ;" he remarked, that when taking things from the drawers he had seen a light shining through the drawing-room windows—that he had crossed over to windows and looked in and found the place in a mass of flames beyond recovery ; I said, "What did you do then, Mr. Britten ?" he replied, "I went on removing my things ;" I said, "What things ?" he again said, "My drawers ;" I said, "Good heavens ! Mr. Britten, did not, having three fires in different parts of your premises at the same time, strike you as being anything peculiar ?" he made no reply ; he appeared to me to be stupid—partially paralyzed, from the look of him ; I said, "Why did you not call out for assistance, people are living all round you, you could have got it at once ?" he said, "I do not know ;" I then asked who had first given the alarm ; he said, "Mr. Hibble ;" I asked, how it was possible for anyone to get in his house to light fires in different parts ; he said he did not know how anyone could ; I asked him if the house was shut up that night ; he said, "Yes" that he was the last to go to bed, and that he had shut up the house himself ; I then asked where Mrs. Britten was ; he said, "Over under the trees in front of house ;" I said, "Mrs. Britten must not remain here, come and persuade her to go to my house," and we went over ; Mrs. Britten said that when Mr. Britten called her she would not get up for some time, because Mr. Britten was always calling at night, saying the place was on fire ; she said she did not know what had been the matter with Mr. Britten lately, his head had been so bad ; at first Mrs. Britten did not wish to leave the premises, but after some persuasion she went and remained at my house until the following morning after breakfast ; I myself took Mrs. Britten to my house ; before I took Mrs. Britten home I had seen the fire in drawing-room ; I saw it from the French window ; it was at first a most intense fire, with a great quantity of smoke ; the flame was all along the ceiling ; there was an harmonium, piano, sofa, and side-board ; the side-board had been pulled away, but the piano and harmonium were, I think, together ; the furniture could not have produced such a body of flame as I saw ; it was utterly impossible ; from the quantity of smoke and flame there must have been some combustible placed there ; Mr. Britten was doing nothing to put out fire that I saw ; after I had taken Mrs. Britten to my house I returned to the parsonage ; I then saw Mr. Britten ; I told him there would have to be an inquest on the fire ; he asked if it would be necessary ; I said most certainly, it was surrounded by so many suspicious circumstances ; I said it was clearly the work of an incendiary ; I said the person who did this made a mistake in choosing a "late night," as there were late trains, buses, and steamers, that he ought to have waited for another hour and then every one would have been in bed ; I left the parsonage at 3 a.m., and went home ; I went to parsonage following morning after breakfast ; I met Mr. Britten at the drawing-room ; I asked him how the hole came in the drawing-room ceiling, it was not there when I left at 3 a.m. ; he said he had gone overhead to see if there was any fire, that he slipped, and his leg had gone through the ceiling ; I said, "What on earth would make you suppose there was a fire up there, the fire was all out in the room underneath when I left ?" he said, "Oh, but there was a fire there (meaning over the ceiling), because when I came down, Constable Harper said he believed there was a fire up there ;" Mr. Britten said he said "No, there cannot be, because I have just been up there ;" and Constable Harper said "There is, there is smoke coming through the shingles," and Mr. Britten said he looked and saw smoke coming through the shingles ; we went up and looked, and there was a fire burning on a heap of rubbish over the drawing-room ceiling ; it must be just on the spot where I dropped my candle ;" I then said

said to Mr. Britten, "What do you mean, do you mean that you set fire to it?" Mr. Britten replied, "I think I must have;" on this same morning I said to Mr. Britten, "Is your furniture insured?" Mr. Britten replied "It is fully insured, it is insured for £500, and my buggies are insured too;" I said, "You told me last night you did not think you were insured;" he said, "But I am insured," emphasizing the am; the inquest took place on the Friday evening; I heard nothing about the evidence Harper could give about hole in the ceiling until some days after the inquest; on the Saturday after the inquest Sergeant Beatty came to me and we went to parsonage; we went to lawn in front of bow-window; Mr. Britten was there; I understood he had sent for me; he called my attention to two canvas balls lying on the grass; he said, "I was moving some furniture and my foot kicked against something, and I found it was these balls"; the said balls were neatly folded up and saturated with kerosene; they were lying in almost a puddle of kerosene; it had been poured on them; I noticed the grass was covered with kerosene too; I said to Mr. Britten, "Those evidently have just been put there; they were not there yesterday when the Jury were here; I said, "I suppose these are some of Mr. Terry's fire-balls? this comes of his remarks yesterday"; Mr. E Terry, when the Jury were examining the premises the day before, had made remarks in presence of Jury about fire-balls; I went with the Jury to view the premises on day of inquest; I and the Jury were on the lawn for some time examining the furniture there; if those balls had been there then, I do not think we could possibly have missed seeing them; I am certain kerosene must have been poured on them on the Saturday morning, because there were fresh globules of kerosene on the grass, and I said so to Mr. Britten; on the Saturday morning some furniture was still on the lawn; the sergeant called my attention to side-board; it appeared to have been burnt out from inside, as if some combustible matter had been placed inside and lighted; I subsequently said to Mr. Britten, "Where do you keep your kerosene oil?" he took me and showed me a place under the stairs; I saw there were stains on the stairs, but that did not strike me so much as the great quantity on the floor of hall; it was shining, and appeared quite fresh or recent; I remarked to Mr. Britten, "It is no wonder the Jury spoke about the kerosene on floor;" he said, "Yes, there is a great deal; I cannot account for it, unless Mrs. Britten upset some the night of the fire; Mrs. Britten removed the can for safety"; just at this moment I heard a voice behind me; it was Mrs. Britten, who had come out of an adjoining room behind me, and whom I had not seen; she said, "I did nothing of the sort," meaning upsetting the kerosene oil; "You are much more likely to have done it when you were spurting the oil about with the garden syringe;" I looked round to Mr. Britten, who appeared dumbfounded; I said, "What is this about the syringe, Mr. Britten?" he did not reply at first, but afterwards said, "I was syringing my plants;" I then said that I fancied it was the opinion of the Jury that there were only two people that could have set fire to the parsonage, and that if the Jury had known at the time (which they did not know) that the servant had her child upstairs with her, they would have named him (Mr. Britten) as the only person that could have set fire to the parsonage; no reply was made to this; I then went outside the house; Mr. Britten told me that a person named French told him that every one believed he had set fire to parsonage; he then asked me if I believed he had; I said, "Most certainly Mr. Britten, no one in his senses could believe anything else, knowing all the facts as I do"; I said, "The only thing I have ever been doubtful about, is as to whether you are responsible for your actions, if you are, I believe that you tried to burn the parsonage to get the £500 insurance you have on your furniture, in order to enable you to leave the parish, which you have made too hot to hold you;" I said to Mr. Britten, "Your furniture is not, in my opinion, worth anything like the value it is insured for."

FEBRUARY 23, 1887.

Mr. Britten made a remark about enemies, and said he was afraid it was one of his enemies; he said this after remark about French; I said I was not aware he had any enemies; I had never heard of any, certainly no one who would do such a thing as that; no one would put their head in a noose to benefit you, and I considered it was a distinct benefit to you to have your furniture destroyed; it was after that I remarked about the value of the furniture; I then stated that I knew there were a great many people objected to him as their clergyman, and that he knew with what good reason; I repeated that I did not know any one who would do such a thing as that; I read the evidence of the Bishop in the paper the other day, and the reason that the charges made were not followed up was we considered them to be too small compared to the charge arising out of the fire; before the fire, some considerable time, I and some others were appointed at a public meeting of pewholders as a deputation to wait on the Bishop with reference to an exchange of clergymen for this parish; we waited on the Bishop, but we did not lay any charges; the Bishop apparently had heard something, and asked us some questions which led to certain things being spoken of; the Bishop wrote to me and asked me if I would take the matter in hand, as I had been spokesman at meeting; we were awaiting replies from the Bishop in reference to certain matters on which we wanted advice, when the fire intervened, and we did nothing more in reference to these matters; then the meeting alluded to by the Bishop took place; considering the grave charge hanging over the head of defendant, we refrained from making reference to other matters; I attended the meeting simply out of respect for the Bishop; I had told the Bishop previously that I thought it was inexpedient to go into these matters whilst this charge was hanging over Mr. Britten's head; I took no part in the meeting, because having been mixed up in the matter as Coroner, I thought it better not to do so, and I afterwards explained my reasons to the Bishop for not doing so; I took the depositions at the inquest myself; I look at the document marked I; the signature at bottom is that of defendant; the writing of the deposition is in my handwriting; this is the defendant's deposition at inquest; the plan attached is the plan used at the inquest and referred to in the deposition: I now remember that on Saturday after the inquest I asked Mr. Britten how he accounted for the fact that he had seen the drawing-room in such a blaze that was beyond recovery, when subsequently Mr. Hibble had looked and seen them, was only a small flame between the furniture; Mr. Britten then made reference to a canvas cover over the furniture which might have caused the blaze; I then remarked that he must have seen the fire a long time before Mr. Hibble arrived, and it must have had time to nearly go out; he said yes, it was some considerable time before Mr. Hibble arrived that he had seen it; on the night of the fire Mr. Britten told me that when Mrs. Britten saw the fire it had apparently commenced at closet at back of stable; I saw Constable Harper at parsonage on morning of the fire; he was perfectly sober, and I know him to be a most respectable, steady sober man.

By

By Mr. Roberts : Before the inquest I was quite certain the fire was the work of an incendiary, and I suspected Mr. Britten in consequence of the conversation I had with him and from what I saw ; I know men are often suspected who are innocent ; I have very likely been suspected of crimes, and, although suspected, I am innocent ; I knew a Mr. Robert King, with whom I had an action relating to a vessel named the "Esk," in the year 1866 ; the action was in District Court, Sydney ; he either sued me or I sued him ; I think he retained something belonging to the ship in that action ; I gave evidence ; King afterwards charged me with wilful and corrupt perjury at Central Police Court in giving evidence with reference to that case ; the case was investigated, and I was committed for trial, and the Attorney-General (Sir Jas. Martin) declined to file a Bill ; I simply know the "Esk," became my property, but whether King bought it from Insurance Company and sold it to me, I cannot recollect ; King did not bring an action for the purchase money, as far as I recollect, but there was a dispute about something which he detained ; coming later on, I was never charged with scuttling the "Lord Ashley ;" I brought an action against the company for £8,000, which I recovered, with costs ; I was not examined as to whether I personally scuttled the vessel, but an engineer was ; there were suspicious circumstances with the vessel, and there are always in cases where Insurance Companies are interested ; I was on board the vessel "Lord Ashley" when she left Newcastle for Melbourne ; she appeared to be then in good order ; she appeared to be making water rapidly when it was reported to me she had been about three hours away from Newcastle ; I could not go down the hatches ; I have been to China ; I took three steam-vessels there for sale ; they were also sold ; I did not sue any Insurance Company ; there was a will made by a man named Reichardt ; I drew the will ; he was an old servant of ours ; I went to him at his request, and he devised all the property to my wife, and I refused to take the property, and I told him I would distribute the greater portion of the property between his family, and they had three-fourths ; there was no interest to accrue to anyone till after his wife's death ; this I insisted upon ; I heard that afterwards that there was another will made by Reichardt, subsequently to the one I drew ; this second will was informal ; it was drawn by Adams ; probate was applied for under the second will ; a caveat was entered against it ; I don't recollect speaking to Adams, and saying that the will he drew was not valid ; if I spoke to him, it is very likely I said that probate was applied for during the life of Mrs. Reichardt, and a compromise took place, according to the original intention ; the nephew, with whom testator had quarrelled, received one-fourth, and a step-daughter one-half, and my family one-fourth ; I can't say what the nephew was to take under the second will ; I have stated I saw the Bishop's statement in the paper ; I did not confine my evidence to-day to deputation who waited on the Bishop after the fire, but both before and after ; I was one of a deputation appointed at a public meeting who, in the first instance asked for an exchange of minister ; I was appointed officially as one of the nominators of the parish ; we asked the churchwardens to accompany us, and they did so excepting Mr. Edward Terry ; the Bishop did not ask us to formulate charges on that occasion against Mr. Britten, but he spoke of certain matters he had heard of in reference to Mr. Britten, and said he would like to know more of it, as he might not like to nominate Mr. Britten to any other parish, or words to that effect ; some matters were spoken of affecting the conduct and character of Mr. Britten ; the Bishop stated in his evidence that he called on the persons making complaint to substantiate their charges or complaint ; this was not at the meeting but in a letter sent to me by Bishop ; I have not the letter by me, but can produce it ; I cannot say when it was ; before the Bishop wrote to me I wrote to him on behalf of the deputation requesting him when he obtained legal advice on the matter, left open at our interview, he would at the same time obtain advice on the matter then submitted to him ; we did not at any time before the fire formulate any charge or make any complaint against Mr. Britten, because we were awaiting a reply from the Bishop on the points submitted to him ; the Bishop says he made inquiry into the charges, and I suppose he did so when he says the charges were of a pretty trivial character, relative to money transactions ; I cannot say whether that was the case or not ; the matter of misappropriation of 25s. had not been referred to at that meeting ; it had previously ; we did not want to cry stinking fish, or we should not been able to get rid of Mr. Britten ; the Bishop's statement that the invitation was not accepted, and the same was sent to Mr. Manning is correct ; this invitation was contained in letter previously referred to ; if the Bishop has sworn that no charge has been made against Mr. Britten, it is correct ; I know that I have not brought any charge against Mr. Britten to the Bishop, and so far as I know, no charge has been substantiated against him ; I know of nothing that has occurred between any other parties and the Bishop in reference to Mr. Britten ; the 25s. was spoken of at the Easter meeting previous to the deputation ; this and other matters were mentioned by me ; it was meant as a charge of dishonesty, but was not brought by me, as I knew nothing about it ; I will not say that this 25s. was not one of the petty things alluded to by the Bishop ; I believe the 25s. was one of the things inquired into by the Bishop ; my duty as a nominator would be to recommend a clergymen for the parish if a vacancy should arise ; the pewholders appoint nominators, who hold office for three years ; the present nominators are Mr. John Docker, Mr. Robert Terry, and myself ; Mr. Docker and myself do not act in concert against Mr. Britten ; Mr. Docker was Mr. Britten's warden last year ; I was churchwarden to Mr. Britten some six or seven years ago, possibly in 1881 ; I was not reappointed by Mr. Britten ; it might be 1883 ; no feeling of hostility were made by me on this non re-election ; I write to the Cumberland Mercury sometimes ; I wrote the article I have just read ; it is headed "Ryde, from a Correspondent ;" I do not think they have any fixed correspondent ; I have no doubt the whole of the articles under the heading of "Ryde" are written by me ; my object in writing the paragraph was not to inflame the public mind against Mr. Britten, but it was sent with other news ; no one is mentioned in that paragraph ; I certainly meant the parsonage occupied by Mr. Britten, and I certainly meant to allude to him, but did not mention his name, and every body knew without the paragraph that Mr. Britten was suspected ; the paragraph was not done to injure Mr. Britten or to benefit him ; he was not considered in the matter at all ; the paragraph was not inserted to bring the matter more prominently before the public ; I was Coroner ; I do not consider I degraded the office in writing the paragraph I did ; I consider I was functus officio when my office closed ; I wrote the paragraph as a public matter ; I know the Mercury is printed in Parramatta ; as Coroner, I say that evidence was not given as to all the fires ; no evidence was given as to fire in roof ; evidence was given as to all the fires ; there were seven fires ; the Jury found the place was fired in seven different places ; referring to the portion of paragraph 1, "Had this evidence been produced certain members of the Jury openly say that they should have named the culprit and found a verdict of arson ;" I heard that some of the Jury had said this ; it is not my own imagination when I make this statement ; I took memorandum that that took place in November about the fire; subsequent matters I took no memo. of; I have not heard the Jury say what I have written in my paragraph, but I have heard that they did say so at various times from different persons; I cannot name any person who mentioned it, and I say that the paragraph is not my malicious invention; I don't think the latter part of paragraph about insurance concerned the general public; when I say it is currently reported that the insurance company do not intend to pay the sum insured for; I did not write anything against defendant; I don't know that I considered whether the subject of paragraph was a public grievance or not; I am not actuated by any ill-feeling towards defendant; I look at a letter from me to defendant, dated 26th August last, referring to a meeting which appointed a deputation to wait on the Bishop; the letter was written to Mr. Britten by me to tell him we were going to wait on the Bishop, as we found Mr. Terry, who was to have informed him and had not done so; I don't call it an insulting letter; on contrary, it was meant to be a friendly letter; the letter is not a personal appeal from me; I look at letter dated 22nd January, 1887, signed by John Docker and John E. Manning; I have not fully defined my position as nominator; the letter is signed by us as nominators of the parish; we considered it became within our province to write this letter on account of the state of the parish; my duty as nominator is to nominate in case of a vacancy in the parish by death or removal; I wrote the letter; I went to Mr. Docker's house; we had agreed to it, and I was to draw it up; there was another nominator, Mr. R. Terry, who is one of the churchwardens, to whom we were writing; there are three churchwardens; one of the churchwardens is Mr. R. Terry; he was not asked to sign it, because we were writing to him as churchwarden.

By Bench, on 24th February: I have never received any remuneration from the Cumberland Mercury as correspondent, but I have been asked to supply them with all matters of local interest, as they had no paid correspondent at that time; I have supplied them with news both before and since the fire.

By Mr. Roberts, on 24th February: I produce a letter of defendant, dated 27th August, in reply to mine of 23rd August; I also produce my letter to the Primate, dated 23rd August last, enclosing a copy of proceedings of meeting, held 7th August, and a copy of my letter to Mr. Britten, of 23rd August, and asking for an interview with his Lordship for the deputation appointed by that public meeting, with reference to the incumbent; I do not know whether he took any objection to the mode in which the meeting was called by the churchwardens, and at which the resolutions were passed; at the interview with Bishop, when he received the deputation the Bishop stated that, with reference to the reduction of stipend, he was not sure but that some legal difficulty would not intervene in consequence of the meeting not having been called by the incumbent; two of the churchwardens, Messrs. Lovell and R. R. Terry, who were present, stated they requested the incumbent to call the meeting, but he declined to do so; some of the party then pointed out that it was not likely that Mr. Britten would call a meeting to reduce his own salary, and also, in reference to his removal from the parish, the Bishop said we should have appealed to him, and he would have caused a meeting to have been held; he further said that was a technical point on which he would obtain advice, but, in the meantime, he would receive us—the deputation appointed by the parishioners of St. Anne's; the Bishop said that the meeting had been, in his opinion, not legally convened, for the reasons before stated; he did not say that the resolution which the meeting had passed could not affect the position or stipend of incumbent; he did not tell me it was not a vestry meeting; it was implied all through the conversation that the meeting was technically illegal, because the incumbent refused to call it; the letter to the Bishop was signed by me with my usual signature; I cannot say I signed as nominator; I signed on behalf of the deputation; I say that it was part of my duty as nominator to send a letter of that kind, having, in my capacity as nominator, been appointed at the public meeting as one of the deputation; I have made reference to my duties as nominator; I have no duties that I am aware of as nominator until the minister dies or leaves the parish; I do not know whether the Bishop upon either of these events happening would call on me or the nominators to act; I am not aware what is the form of procedure; the nominators could not appoint a minister without the authority of the Bishop; being nominators, Mr. Docker and myself were appointed on the deputation; I took no part in the meeting in passing the resolution; I did not say anything about the reduction of stipend at the meeting; it is very likely that I had spoken previously to the meeting about the reduction of stipend and his removal from the parish; I assume that Mr. Terry, as chairman, did not vote; I did not hear him express opinions against the resolution; chairmen do not usually vote on such occasions; before the meeting was convened I do not recollect writing to Mr. Britten, informing him the meeting was to be held; why should I write to him; no one to my knowledge notified the meeting to Mr. Britten, but the Primate was told by the churchwardens in my presence that Mr. Britten, refused to call the meeting when asked to do so; I did not give any written notice to the churchwardens; I sent the Cumberland Mercury a copy of the letter, dated 22nd January, 1887, to let them know what was going on; I look at the printed paragraph; I did not ask the Mercury to publish the letter; if the editor says I did, it is a mistake; I sent the letter as a correspondent for that paper, not with the view of its insertion in that paper; I thought it was part of my duty to make reference to what the Coroner's Jury would have done in a certain event; when I made allusion in my letter to "Churchwardens" in these words, "in which case he would have been committed on the capital charge of setting fire to premises in which human beings were at the time resident;" this reference implies he would be liable to suffer death; before I got Mr. Docker's signature to the letter I had prepared a rough copy; I do not know whether I tore it up or where it is; the letter was not written in a vindictive or hostile feeling; it was written as a matter of business; I do not know that such a letter would be injurious to Mr. Britten when written to his churchwardens; it was not injurious, because Mr. Britten continued to do the duties of the Church, which we protested against; I do not think that letter is characterized from beginning to end by a vindictive spirit and feeling; the matter in letter referred to is one involving death penalty; I read the paragraph produced in the Cumberland Mercury for the first time now; they send me the paper; I do not subscribe to it; I heard there had been such a paragraph; I will not say I did not write a letter to Mercury asking them to insert the letter of 22nd January, but I am convinced I did not; they never wrote to me on the matter; I do not look on the letter as libellous; when I sent a copy of letter to Mercury it was information for the Mercury, nothing more; the meeting I have been referring to was a special meeting; the Easter meeting was held some months before, I believe in the month of April last; I attended the Easter meeting; the conduct of defendant was called into question particularly by me; Mr. Britten requested any charges against him might be brought forward, and there had been several charges openly spoken of in the parish, of which personally I knew nothing; Mr. Britten was the chairman; no one else getting up, and Mr. Britten having previously privately spoken to me, when these matters were discussed; I got up and mentioned the reports that were current in the parish, with a view to the matter being cleared up; I stated I knew nothing of these matters personally; Mr. Britten subsequently thanked me for doing so; I recollect saying at the meeting if any person had any reason to thank him it was Mr. Britten; the documents I look to are not accurately taken as the minutes of the meeting; the minutes are in handwriting of defendant; where I have made pencil marks they are incorrect; I recognize the minutes as proceedings of the meeting; there was a meeting called by Mr. Britten of the parishoners; it was a meeting of non-voting power; I mean by that it was not a vestry meeting; I don't think the meeting was called by defendant to answer report that was circulated against Mr. Britten; I can't say what object Mr. Britten had in anything; I attended as a parishioner; I am not aware that I made myself conspicuous in opposition to Mr. Britten at that meeting; Mr. Lovell was there I believe; he is a churchwarden; Mr. Jarrett was there; Mr. Britten entered into some explanations as to his conduct; I am not aware that I used insulting language or that I was insulting in my demeanour towards him; I don't recollect telling him that I knew his little dodge in the meeting, but I know the impression was it was a dodge; I don't recollect Mr. Jarrett saying at the meeting to me that if I had a spark of gentlemanly feeling in me, or respect for my office of Magistrate, I should withdraw these allusions; I am certain Mr. Jarrett did not use those words, but he said something to that effect; not in that language; I did withdraw the expressions I had used; Mr. Jarrett said he was sure that I would on reflection withdraw the expressions I had used, and I did so; when I used the language I was annoyed; our impression was that Mr. Britten called the meeting for one object and used it for another; the meeting was called for matters of interest to the parish; the notice calling the meeting stated so; I may have spoken of money matters, and it was not in respect of that that I was called to order; I think I expressed myself with warmth and feeling; my feelings were aroused because I was annoyed by Mr. Britten's shuffling; some resolution of confidence was passed in regard to Mr. Britten; I am not aware that I caused great excitement at that meeting; there was great excitement, but it was not attributable to me, although I showed a feeling of temporary annoyance; I was not actuated by animosity; I was at a meeting of the Church Society at which Bishop presided, convened by a dodge; it was held since the fire; I took no part in this meeting, because as I considered the matter of fire sub judice; I don't recollect whether the meeting at which Bishop presided was prior to 11th December, which date my paragraph appears in Mercury; I cannot say that the day of the meeting at which Bishop presided was not held on the 29th November; what I mean by saying that the matter was sub judice was the origin of the fire; I can't tell you how and where; if the matter was sub judice on 29th November it was so on the 11th December; the reason I can give for not speaking and afterwards writing to Mercury is that at the meeting we were asked to bring forward charges of matters that occurred previous to fire; the Bishop said that; I do recollect the Bishop saying something about the fire, but I don't recollect what he said; professedly the meeting was for the Church Society, and there was a second matter for consideration; I think about the disturbed state of affairs in the parish; I can't say what the meeting was convened for by the Bishop; I know, as a matter of fact, it was not convened by the Bishop; I did not understand that the discussion at that meeting was to set the matter of fire at rest; I don't know that the Bishop had written to the churchwardens to call this meeting; on the contrary, I know he did not; the meeting was convened by H. H. Britten, incumbent, and R. R. Terry, as the representatives to the Church Society; Mr. R. R. Terry said he knew nothing of the meeting; he said they were not to have a meeting, and that it had been called by Mr. Britten without his authority; I showed him the printed circular, and he said he knew nothing of it, while Mr. Terry was speaking to me, Mr. Pope handed Mr. Terry a letter, and he said, "This is from Mr. Britten; perhaps this will explain it;" Mr. Terry opened the letter, and read it to me; the Bishop stated a discussion took place on fire, that a resolution had been passed of sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. Britten, on the misfortune which had fallen on them by the fire; I have seen Mr. Jarrett since the fire; at the meeting he expressed an opinion as to the origin of the fire; I met Mr. Jarrett in the train after the fire, and had a conversation with him as to what he said at the meeting about origin of fire; if Jarrett says I met and spoke to him on two occasions about the fire, I won't say he is mistaken, but I only recollect one occasion; I told Mr. Jarrett that his views about origin of fire were utterly impossible; I never told Jarrett that the Jury were unanimous in their opinion that Britten had set the place on fire; I could not have told him this, because I did not know it, and I say I did not swear in my examination-in-chief, in relation to a conversation with Mr. Britten about the fire, that it was the opinion of the Jury that there were only two people who could have set fire to parsonage; on a subsequent day when I corrected the evidence I had given, the same was read over to me; I did not correct it, but I objected that a term taken down was not correct, and I had the words "I fancied" put in place; I do recollect you saying you intended to call the Jury to contradict me, but I can't say on what particular occasion; I did not state to Mr. Jarrett that it was through my influence that a modified verdict was returned by Jury, nor anything to that effect; I now produce the circular convening the meeting, at which the Bishop presided; this is the circular referred to in part of my previous examination, referring to conversation with Mr. Jarrett after the fire and in the train; I did not say on any occasion to Mr. Jarrett that I had not been able to get Sergeant Beatty to do his duty properly, and that in answer to my application, the Department was sending up a special detective; I could not have done so, as I have never known the sergeant to neglect his duty, nor did I know the Government were going to send a detective; after the inquest I was in the detectives' office, after Cocking came on this job; I saw Cocking; I was there on two occasions; I was there before to see Cocking, but did not see him the first time I went; I saw Cocking the second time I went there; I did not go to see Cocking as Coroner, I went to tell him to bring a basket for fruit; I heard that Cocking had been put on to get evidence; I knew he was making inquiry; if Cocking says he came to my place two or three times, it is correct; very probably, when he came for the grapes, he had conversation with me about the fire; at all occasions of his visits, and at other times; we discussed the matter of the fire, but I did not give my opinion to him that Mr. Britten set the place on fire; my opinion is that Mr. Britten set the place on fire, although I have never said so to anyone; when people asked me about Mr. Britten setting the place on fire, I said the evidence was all against him; I was alluding to the evidence at inquest, and what I knew independently of that; I thought on the night of the fire that it was very suspicious against

Mr.

Mr. Britten ; from questions I put and answers he gave, I thought on the whole he set fire to the place ; I formed my opinion that night, and other circumstances have confirmed it ; since after forming that opinion ; I sat as Coroner in the case ; I charged the Jury ; notwithstanding my conviction, the Jury returned an open verdict ; I did not express my conviction to the Jury, on the contrary, I mentioned everything I could in favour of Mr. Britten, especially with regard to his insurance ; I pointed out to the Jury that any person with limited means and in their proper senses ought in duty to their families to keep their property insured, and that the fact of there being an insurance on the furniture and effects should not in any way militate against Mr. Britten ; defendant was examined at inquest ; he gave some explanation about the fire ; I do not recollect telling the Jury that the explanations given by Mr. Britten were satisfactory more particularly in regard to fire in ceiling ; I must have made comments on Mr. Britten's evidence as I spoke about the furniture ; I did not say to anyone before the inquest on the fire that I was afraid I should have to commit Mr. Britten ; I recollect saying after the inquest that I was glad the whole thing was over, as it would have been a painful thing to me if I had had to commit Mr. Britten ; I have not identified myself with this prosecution in any way whatever with a view to a committal on this charge, but I have had correspondence with the Government on the subject ; I have made suggestions to Cocking with regard to evidence which could be given by witnesses then in the box, and if Cocking has so sworn that I so aided and assisted in the prosecution it is correct ; I have seen several witnesses who have been examined in this prosecution it is very possible I have had conversation with them about the fire ; it has been a matter of common talk since it occurred ; I know Mrs. Parrott, a widow living in the school cottage, a highly respectable person, I never told her that I would leave no stone unturned to secure the conviction of Mr. Britten or anything to that effect, but she has asked me about the case, and what I thought about it ; I told her a portion of what I thought about it ; I told her I thought circumstances were very much against Mr. Britten she may have asked me if I believed Mr. Britten did it, and I may have said I did believe he did it ; this was since the inquest, before I saw Cocking ; I did not tell her that if Mr. Britten had left the parish nothing would have been thought of about a prosecution ; I don't think I spoke to her about a prosecution at all ; what I did say was this, "That if Mr. Britten had left when the parishioners wanted him we should not have had all this trouble ;" Mr. Britten had said he would go, and it was a pity he did not for his own sake ; I spoke very likely to other people in a similar manner ; I never said on any occasion to Mr. Jarrett holding up my hand that Mr. Britten had now made his case worse than ever, for his admission to the detectives were all that were required to bring the matter home to him ; what I said was this, "That Mr. Britten's friends must have been mad to have asked for a private inquiry, because he either had been or would be examined by a detective, who, from my knowledge of Mr. Britten, would extract evidence that would be very detrimental to him, because Mr. Britten could not tell the same story alike twice on the same day ;" Mr. Jarrett did not at any time in our conversation, when I was making accusations, say that my conduct was disgraceful ; some of the persons, the majority in the district, did not say anything in prejudice of Mr. Britten ; I do not know of any enemies Mr. Britten has, even at present moment ; I have not done any acts to prejudice defendant that I am aware of ; I have showed Cocking and Clough some papers ; of course it was when they were making inquiries ; I showed them all the documents at my house ; if this is assisting the detective I have done so ; I have not seen Wallace since the inquest, nor should I know him if I saw him ; none of the meetings of the detectives were by appointment ; Detective Cocking told me he was sent up by the Department ; I wrote to the Minister for Justice (letter now produced dated 2nd December, 1887) that part of letter where I say "subsequent to the inquest some portion of the Jury had discovered most important evidence that ought to have been forthcoming on that occasion ;" this was mentioned to me by Mr. Best ; he was the first who spoke to me on the subject ; it was a few days after the inquest ; I have seen Best nearly every day for some years ; I knew nothing about Harper's statement till Best told me ; I did not know about it from Beatty, either at or immediately after the inquest ; I inquired at inquest if any more evidence was forthcoming ; Sergeant Beatty was in Court and said there was other evidence, but it was only what occurred at fire, and Mr. Fisher said no more evidence was required ; no request was made by the Jury for an adjournment ; I have stated in my letter that the Jury at inquest were nearly returning a verdict against the incumbent, Mr. Britten ; I cannot recollect anyone who told me ; it is not a falsehood written by me to inflame the mind of Minister for Justice against Mr. Britten ; referring to the latter part of same paragraph, and they say "now that had this missing evidence been forthcoming, they certainly would have done so ;" I do not know that the Jury said so, but I was told so ; referring now to the whole paragraph, I do not know that that was written to convey an impression to Minister of Justice that the matters therein referred to were within my personal knowledge ; I wrote from what I believed to be reliable evidence that I had received ; the letter in question was not written to Minister of Justice to put the law in motion against defendant ; it was written to enclose Constable Harper and Woodcock's evidence to be submitted to the Attorney-General, as such evidence ought to have been produced at the inquest ; I look at letter to Department of Justice, dated 20th December last ; I think I took the first letter myself to Mr. M'Nevin, Chief Clerk ; I simply stated what the letter was about ; I did not tell Mr. M'Nevin that I was satisfied as to the guilt of Mr. Britten ; Harper was available at inquest ; he was in charge of Jury ; Harper did not volunteer his information ; it was Best who mentioned it ; Beatty did not ; although I wrote these two letters I did not consider I was putting the law in motion against Mr. Britten, there being important evidence available which was not brought forward at Coroner's Court, and, when informed of that evidence I considered it my duty to submit it to the Crown ; if Beatty had known of Harper's evidence at the inquest it was his duty to have called Harper before the Court when I said "Was there any more evidence?" the sergeant said he had other evidence, but it was only as to what occurred at the fire ; I think I recollect, as Mr. Britten left, that a question was put to him by one of the Jury, I think about the hole in ceiling ; Mr. Britten made some answer not taken in writing ; I do not recollect anyone saying the answer was satisfactory ; on the night of fire I went to Stanmore ; I returned by the 11.30 train ; I do not recollect seeing Mrs. Parrott that evening ; when I got to the fire I was not strolling and walking about, or saying first to one and then another, "It looks very black ; it looks very suspicious ;" I was too much staggered to do so ; I was overcome and shocked ; I spoke to Mr. Britten about my having the church and parsonage insured ; it was at early part of my visit I said so ; defendant has no interest in the parsonage, only in the furniture ; he would not derive any pecuniary advantage from the destruction of the building by fire ; Mr. Britten pretended to be on friendly terms with me, notwithstanding the letter I had written, which I consider a friendly friendly one ; I did not see Mrs. Britten remove any of her furniture ; there was furniture out before I got there ; it was under the trees ; I could not say what ; I first went to the stables ; I remained only two or three minutes ; I left but returned after I had been to the house ; I remained at stables the first and second time about ten minutes ; I did not see Mr. Britten removing furniture, but he might have done so while I was moving about between the fires ; I know Mr. Thompson ; I cannot say he was not there ; many persons were there ; Mr. Britten said he was in bed when he smelt fire and got up ; this conversation took place just before front door ; I am certain Thompson was not present at this conversation ; he might have passed by ; I have stated Mr. Britten said he was convinced there was a fire and that Mrs. Britten would not get up for some time ; this conversation took place on carriage-way in front of the house ; the conversations that night with Mr. Britten took place principally on carriage-way in front of house ; I know no one was with us in the conversation, but whether persons passed by and heard I cannot say ; I do not know of any person being present at any of the conversations between myself, Mr. Britten, and Mrs. Britten ; I do not know of any person who can corroborate my version of the conversations between us on that night ; the first conversation with Mrs. Britten on night of fire took place under the Bungoli pine-tree ; I asked her to come to my house ; Mrs. Britten was there, and other persons ; there were some females there ; I don't know whether Jessie Burton was one of them ; I know a woman named Miss Barwell ; I did not recognize who they were ; I don't know whether Mrs. Britten was sitting under the tree in front of the hall door or not with her son and Jessie Burton ; they might have been near Mrs. Britten all the time I was there under the tree ; I really do not know whether they could have heard the conversation ; they must have heard some ; I spoke to Mrs. Britten, and then went away ; I said to Mrs. Britten, " Will you go to my house ;" I don't know that Mrs. Britten used the words " No, thank you ; I'm all right here ;" I went away subsequently, and returned ; when I returned I asked her again to go to my house, and she consented ultimately ; I don't know how long she had been under the tree ; on both occasions when I came to Mrs. Britten I won't say she was sitting on a chair ; I believe two females were there, and all that occurred under the tree could be heard by them ; I asked Mrs. Britten if she would go to my house, and if so, Mrs. Manning should prepare a bed ; I said that was no place for her ; Mrs. Britten did not go with me the first time I spoke to Mr. Britten ; he went on the second occasion ; I was speaking to him between carriage-way and front door, about 20 feet from where Mrs. Britten was sitting ; I asked Mr. Britten to persuade Mrs. Britten to go to my house ; he went over with me to Mrs. Britten ; I will not say the same two women were not there ; we both spoke to Mrs. Britten ; whether he or I spoke first I cannot say ; I asked Mrs. Britten to come to my house ; " This is no place for you, and you can do no good " Mr. Britten said, " I think you had better go ;" I have related all the conversation on the two occasions about going to the house ; Mrs. Britten got up reluctantly and went away ; I don't recollect at this moment any further conversation at the first interview or at the second ; I had no other conversation until we walked away ; I have sworn that " when we went over, Mrs. Britten said that when Mr. Britten called her she would not get up for some time, because Mr. Britten was always calling out at night, saying the place was on fire " ; I did not mean to infer that the conversation took place under the tree.

MARCH 2, 1887.

Referring to statement made by defendant to Cocking, he denies the conversation as stated by me between me and Mr. Britten and Mrs. Britten and myself, and I see defendant's statement is to this effect " I did not say that my wife would not get up when I awoke her on the night of the fire, and that she said I was often waking her up and telling her that the house was on fire ; this is a contradiction to what I have sworn ;" Detective Cocking handed me Mr. Britten's statement at the time I gave him mine ; I merely looked through the statement and handed it back again ; I am sure I must have had a conversation with Cocking previous to that, in which I said what occurred on night of the fire, and when I must have related the conversation between me and Mrs. Britten ; judging of defendant's denial of my statement, Cocking must have told him what I had said ; I never told defendant what Mrs. Britten had said ; I cannot name any person who can corroborate the conversation between Mrs. Britten and myself at that particular time ; I say that Miss Barwell, Jessie Burton, and Ted. Benson, a shopkeeper at Ryde, were not present at all the conversations between Mrs. Britten and myself and defendant ; all the conversations that took place between Mrs. Britten, myself, and the defendant did not take place under the tree in front of parsonage ; the defendant did not leave us, but accompanied us partly to the gate ; Mr. Britten walked about a 100 yards with us ; I have not made inquiries as to whether any witness can corroborate me in this respect ; I know Miss Barwell and Benson to be truthful persons ; Mrs. Burton I know nothing about ; the conversation that took place under the tree with Mrs. Britten was that she ought not to remain under the tree ; I urged her to go to my house ; I do not recollect speaking to her about anything else under the tree ; when I gave evidence in former part of my examination-in-chief, and referred to Mrs. Britten under a tree in front of house, I did not intend the Bench to infer that all the conversation took place under the tree ; I did refer to a conversation other than that under the tree ; I referred to the conversation between Mrs. Britten, Mr. Britten, and myself, when we were going towards my house ; I have given evidence of a conversation between myself, defendant, and Mrs. Britten in a place, not under the tree, but the place is not named ; whatever conversation took place at another place than under the tree I have no one to corroborate my evidence ; when I spoke to defendant about the late steamers and 'buses that night of the fire, he had a knowledge of them the same as I had ; I did not particularly examine the house on night of fire ; the stables were lighted up and the drawing-room with the fire ; I do not think I went into the drawing room ; I said on the following morning, there is a hole in the ceiling which was not there the night previously ; I swear distinctly, I looked into the drawing-room and saw there was no hole in the ceiling ; I had not been told there was a hole in the ceiling ; I heard Beatty fell through the ceiling some time afterwards accidentally, and Mr. Britten may have done the same ; when Mr. Britten said " I think I must have set fire to the place," he referred to the fire on the ceiling over the drawing-room, and that was in answer to a question of mine ; I do not know if any one can corroborate this statement ; no one can confirm my statement that Mr. Britten said " I do not think my furniture is insured ;" as to the fire-balls I saw on the Saturday morning, which was the first and only time I saw them ; Beatty took them up ; I remarked they had not been there the day before ; I said, " This comes of the remarks of Mr. Terry yesterday about fire-balls ;" I cannot say I saw kerosene dropping from from them, but they were saturated, and I do not think they had been there half an hour; I have never experimented with kerosene on grass; I am quite sure the globules were not water but oil, as it was only on the patch where the balls were that the globules were on the grass, and the grass was there a much darker colour; I did not see any kerosene lying about in any vessel; there was no necessity for my attendance at the fire on the night it occurred; I cannot say that Mr. Britten did not assist in removing the furniture and give directions for its removal; I did not see any necessity for Mr. Britten removing any, as many people were about; I did not assist to do anything on the night of the fire; I remained over a half-hour, and longer than that the second time after taking Mrs. Britten away; on the Saturday morning after fire I and the sergeant looked about to see if we could find any canvas to match with the fire-balls; it is very possible that I took up materials to see if they would match with the fire-balls; I won't say I did not lead the way; Beatty went one way and I another; I picked up some materials and I swear that Beatty did too; it was no part of my duty as Coroner, as it was the day after the inquest; I was not by these means trying to make evidence to criminate the defendant; our search for the canvas had nothing to do with defendant; defendant was about the premises; I did not tell him I was going to search; we looked in a yard at the back, and in a wash-house, and near the stable; I had a conversation on this Saturday with Mr. Britten in the hall; in the back portion of hall, between back door and spare bed-room door; I think it was late in the forenoon; it was in the forenoon some time or other; so far as I can recollect I was only on the premises once that day; I don't recollect seeing Mrs. Britten that morning; I am quite sure I was in the hall that morning, and it was then I had the conversation with Mr. Britten about the oil; there was no water in the hall on Saturday morning; there was a great quantity of kerosene on the floor; I am not aware that anyone but myself saw the kerosene on the floor; on the morning of the inquest I don't recollect being in the hall; I think it was the same morning that I went to look for canvas that I was in the hall; on the Saturday I asked the defendant where he kept the kerosene (I am sure this was after the inquest); he took me in the house and showed me; it was kept under the staircase; I did not notice the wall as to its thickness; I saw kerosene stains on the staircase; there were no traces of fire at all on stairs; it would be a favourable place to set the place on fire; I only saw large stains of kerosene oil; I could not possibly say that the kerosene was drippings or leakage; Mr. Britten said Mrs. Britten might have done it when removing the drum for safety on night of fire; Mrs. Britten appeared on the scene subsequently, just as Mr. Britten made that remark; the defendant's wife on that occasion did not use these words, "You (addressing her husband) might have spilt some oil when you were getting it out to use with a syringe on Saturday last;" but she used the words I gave in my examination-in-chief Mrs. Britten said, "You," meaning her husband, "are much more likely to have done it when you were spurting it about with a garden syringe;" I did not speak to Mrs. Britten about this; I looked round at Mr. Britten and said, "What is that about syringe;" he said, "I was syringing my plants;" I have no copy of written statements given to Detective Cocking of my evidence; it is very likely that I have repeated my evidence to-day in the same words I gave in my evidence-in-chief; the reason I can speak positively about things in my written statement is because I have spoken of it so repeatedly, and I duly considered it before committing it to paper; as to other matters and occurrences of which you ask me, I cannot speak so positively; when Mrs. Britten made the observation about spurting the oil I did not know what it referred to, whether the water-closet or any other place; I don't know whether Sergeant Beatty was present when I stated to defendant that I fancied it was the opinion of Jury that there were only two people who could have set fire to parsonage; the whole matter as to the Jury finding or naming some person as to setting the place on fire is only my opinion as to what the Jury would have done under certain circumstances; in that part of my evidence where I told defendant I was doubtful whether he was responsible for his actions, and that if he were, he tried to burn the parsonage to get the £500 insurance on his furniture, in order to enable him to leave the parish which he had made too hot to hold him; this is a matter of opinion on my part only; I did not intend to charge defendant with having set fire to the place; I have stated that, on account of the great heat of fire a drawing-room, some combustibles had been placed there; I cannot say that kerosene had been applied, but there was a great quantity of smoke which is a sign of kerosene; the burning of kerosene emits a fatty smell, but the fire that night was too dense to detect the smell of kerosene; Mr. Samuel Small was foreman of inquest; he has never told me of opinion of Jury as stated by me; I am not aware that he has stated that there was no evidence before the Jury to justify them in naming any persons as offenders; when I stated I fancied it was the opinion of Jury as previously mentioned; I can't say who told me anything about it; I will not say it was any of the Jury, but I arrived at that conclusion because I had it from some one whose name I cannot mention; there was so many speaking to me about the inquest; I did not hear that any of the Jury said at or before the inquest that no person could be named as having set fire to the place; none of the Jury said either at or after the inquest that it was one of two people who had set fire to parsonage when I have stated it was the opinion of the Jury with regard to the fire; it was not my own opinion or conviction, two of the jurors told me after the inquest; (I am not aware defendant was present); Fisher and Beatty had the conduct of the inquest, no one asked me to adjourn the inquest; in our letter of 22nd January last to the churchwardens the same is merely an expression of ours as to Mr. Britten's, as to him being the person who set fire to parsonage; the letter was not written in vindictive spirit, and would not have been written if Mr. Britten had ceased to do duty in the parish; no charge was laid then against him by the Crown; I caused the church property to be insured in 1881 in the name of the Church authorities; I said I did not think the furniture was worth £500, and I am not aware Mr. Fisher has stated that it is worth between £500 and £600; if by our charges as nominators we could have had Mr. Britten removed, we as nominators would have had the power to recommend a minister to the Bishop, but in writing letter referred to to the churchwardens we simply asked them out of consideration to us, and the clergyman himself to get a locus tenens to the work, while Mr. Britten was under a cloud; our letter to churchwardens does not contain any charges against defendant, neither do any letters to the Bishop contain any; the letter to Bishop wished for removal of Mr. Britten from the parish; if the incumbent left the parish he would not have the privilege of nominating his successor without reference to nominators; I know a reward has been offered for the persons who set fire to parsonage; I wrote out a public notification of the reward copied from the Telegraph paper; I asked the sergeant if he had any placards, he said he had none; I never asked the grocers in village if they had supplied the defendant with kerosene oil; I produce copy of letter to Primate, dated 8th September last, written by myself.

By

By Mr. Pring, in cross-examination: I have been asked several times whether my actions were not characterized by malice and vindictive feeling towards defendant; it is quite untrue that my actions were so characterized or influenced by any spite or malice against defendant; defendant returned from England last year a short time before Easter; I was one of the first who called on him after his return, he himself has stated I was the first; one of the last things defendant did before he left for England was to christen my youngest child; after his return from England, and immediately before the Easter meeting, he pressed me to become his churchwarden for the then coming year, which I declined, having had a previous unpleasantness when acting in that capacity; he at the same time expressed his great regret at past occurrences; that he knew he was entirely to blame, and had always been sorry for what had occurred in August last year; defendant buried my eldest son; I should not have allowed him to do that if I had anything against him.

Sworn before me, this 2nd day of March, 1887,—

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

JOHN E. MANNING.

MARCH 3, 1887.

*Constable J. Harper, on oath, states:—*I remember on night of fire seeing Mr. and Mrs. Britten and Mr. Manning talking together in front of the house; I afterwards saw them walk towards the gate; Mr. Britten did not I think go as far as the gate; he afterwards returned and spoke to me; I first went in the pantry about 3 a.m.; I noticed one or two small flower pots resting on the sill inside, I think there was a board underneath; in one pot was a plant about 6 inches high.

By Mr. Roberts: I have had conversation with Mr. Manning since yesterday, in no way relating to evidence now given; I had the conversation outside the Court; it was not (I think) after the adjournment of the Court, it was after Mr. Manning had concluded his evidence yesterday; I believe I was in Court during the whole of Mr. Manning's cross-examination; Mr. Manning spoke first to me, not on the matter I have referred to to-day; he asked me did I see him on morning of the fire; I said I did, and that is all the conversation I had with him; I knew before coming into the witness box to-day what evidence I was to give; I did not tell Mr. Manning what evidence I was to give; I never mentioned about the flower pots to anyone except Mr. Pring, and that was four or five days ago; I saw Mrs. Britten under the tree; I cannot say whether she was sitting or not; I saw her standing there about half an hour, I believe; I am sure there was one or two women, viz., Miss Barwell, and Mrs. Burton; I will not say there were not other persons there; I heard conversation between Mr. Manning and Mrs. Britten under the tree; some of the conversation was as Mr. Manning has deposed to; I was standing in front of the hall door for ten minutes or a quarter of an hour; the fire was then extinguished; I was looking at them all the time; I was left to protect the room; I won't say that Mrs. Britten was not seated; the people I referred to before were present when the conversation took place; I was 10 yards away; people nearer would have a better opportunity of hearing than I should; since I have given evidence I have heard nearly all evidence since given; I have not read reports of the Telegraph; I have not committed to writing what I heard that night; all the conversation I heard between Mrs. Britten and Mr. Manning was under the tree; I heard Mr. Manning and Mr. Britten advising Mrs. Britten to go to his residence; no allusion was made under the tree by Mrs. Britten about her husband; Mr. Manning advised Mrs. Britten for some time to go with him, and after some time she consented; I had been to a dinner that night, but I had no liquors of any kind.

By the Bench: The fires were extinguished when I got there, except the stables; there was a great flame and I threw the four buckets of water into it; the drawer was open for a few inches.

By Mr. Pring: The bottom of drawer was burnt.

*Sarah Harriett Parrott, on oath, states:—*I know Mr. Manning; I have known him for many years, he has always behaved courteously to me; I know Mr. Britten and the parsonage at Ryde; I attend St. Anne's Church, I have sittings there; I recollect the inquest on fire about 11th November last; on the 9th January Mr. Manning had some conversation with me; I had returned from church that morning; I live near Mr. Manning, at St. Anne's School; Mr. Manning brought me over a basket of peaches; it was about 1 p.m.; I had not taken my bonnet off; Mr. Manning asked who had taken the service that morning, I said, "Mr. Middleton assisted by Mr. Britten;" he then said, "Mr. Britten had no right to take the service;" I said, "For why?" he said, "Because he is under a cloud;" I made answer I did not see that at all; Mr. Manning said he was convinced that Mr. Britten had burnt the parsonage; I said I felt assured otherwise; he said I was the only person, or one in the district who thought so; I said I knew a great many or number of the same opinion as myself; one of the children was coming in the passage, and Mr. Manning said that during the conversation he ought not to be there, and the boy, about 12 years of age, went away; Mr. Manning walked further away from door in varandah; the child is one of two wards I have living with me; Mr. Manning made a remark that I would think very differently by and by when I heard all the evidence; then he made a statement about Constable Harper, that he had seen Mr. Britten light one of the fires; I said, "Then why did he not arrest him?" Mr. Manning said, "He ought to have done so;" I don't know why; there was more conversation, and he talked so rapidly that I don't recollect them; the next remark was that he, Mr. Manning, did not do his duty on the inquest as Coroner, but, however, I will not leave a stone unturned to convict him; I said, "Oh, don't say that Mr. Manning, think of his wife and family;" Mr. Manning said, "I have great sympathy for his wife;" I have stated all I can recollect regarding the fire; Mr. Manning said if Mr. Britten had left the parish after the inquest, nothing of this would have come; I have known Mr. Manning about nine years; I have known Mr. Britten twelve years; I never knew him to suffer from aberration of mind; Mr. Manning did not say if Mr. Britten had left the parish when parishoners wanted him to we should not have had all this trouble; he did say that Mr. Britten said several times he would go, and it was a pity he didn't for his own sake; I was first spoken to about giving evidence when I was subpoenaed; I do not remember who served the subpoena; it was served the week before last; I attended here last week; before the subpoena was served no one asked me what evidence I could give; I had made remarks before I got the subpoena; I made them on different occasions, because I heard Mr. Manning was speaking to every one round that he was not Mr. Britten's enemy, and he told me himself that he was not an enemy; I did not believe this statement, because it did not tally with what he told me.

Walter Hibble, on oath, states:—I have been examined as a witness for prosecution; I recollect the night of fire; I saw Constable Harper there; I saw Mrs. Britten in the front of house under a tree; I saw her continuously for an hour; I saw her son with her, Mrs. Burton, and about a quarter of an hour later I saw Mrs. Benson and another lady sitting with her; Harper was talking most of the time to Mr. Swan, and Mrs. Britten was seated for fully three-quarters of an hour; I saw Mr. Manning there after fires in house were extinguished; he was talking to Mrs. Britten; I was near at the time Mr. Manning was standing by; previously I had a conversation with Mr. Manning; in carrying water to front Mr. Manning came up to where Mrs. Britten was sitting; Mr. Manning then had conversation with her there; he said, "This is no place for you to be here, Mrs. Britten, you had better go to my house;" Mrs. Britten said, "No, thank you, I'm all right here;" Mr. Britten was not there then; I did not hear Mr. Manning have any other conversation with Mrs. Britten that night; Mrs. Britten spoke to me under the tree; Mr. Britten directed Mr. Locke and myself to put out the fire in spare bed-room, and told us of fire in drawing-room; Mrs. Britten told me she had decided to go to Mr. Manning's, as there might be some good in the man after all, and she decided to go; I did not see her go; I returned from Jordan's in a short time and met Mr. Britten in his bed-room; Harper could have seen Mrs. Britten sitting under the tree from the door; the night was clear as day; Mr. Britten was not present when she stated to me she decided to go to Mr. Manning's; Mr. Britten was in the house at this time; I believe Mrs. Britten must have gone while I went to Jordan's, for she was gone when I came back; I left water near the door of spare bed-room; I think Mr. Britten or someone else—I think Mr. Norris, or Mr. Locke; these two were carrying water to leave in case of the fire breaking out again; originally I had a dipper, then I got a bucket, and I left the bucket three parts full in the hall; I was examined at inquest; I saw Harper outside the Court; I heard of statements he could give about the fire on the morning of the inquest; they were openly spoken of both at and after the inquest, also Woodcock's evidence; I did not see anything in Mr. Britten's conduct or appearance to lead me to suppose he was suffering from mental or physical ill-health; Mr. Britten did not assist in putting out fire, but he assisted in directing the workers; there were nearly 200 people there; when we were extinguishing the fire in spare bed-room, Mr. Britten took us round to drawing-room and directed the extinguishing of fire there; I saw Mr. Manning there; he rendered no assistance to put out the fire, nor assisting in any way; I heard conversation between Mr. Britten and Mr. Manning; about five minutes after he arrived he said to Mr. Britten, "How do you account for this; this is a nice state of affairs;" Mr. Britten made some casual remark and passed on; Mr. Manning said, "The congregation may thank me for having this place insured, Britten;" I did not hear any conversation between Mrs. Britten and Mr. Manning to the effect that when Mr. Britten called her she would not get up for some time, because Mr. Britten was always calling at night, saying the place was on fire, or that she said she did not know what had been the matter with Mr. Britten lately, his head had been so bad; if the conversation took place I should have heard it; I heard no such conversation that night; Mr. Manning was only talking twice to Mrs. Britten; before going to his place she said she would ask her husband first, as she was not going with her own will; the conversation between me and Mr. Manning took place between stable and house; I was in all parts of the place, more especially in front of house; I did not see Mr. Manning and Mr. Britten holding any conversation in front of the house at any time that night.

By Mr. Pring: I gave evidence on second day of this case being heard, the 15th February; I have seen Mr. Britten's brother since that time; I met him coming up on the 'bus; I made an appointment voluntarily to meet him on account of a report I saw in the Daily Telegraph; he came to my house; he was there nearly an hour; he made no suggestion to me, but I made suggestions to him; my object was to get a confirmation of Mr. Manning's evidence as I had read it in Daily Telegraph, because that portion of it in Daily Telegraph in reference to the conversation under the tree was untrue.

By Mr. Roberts: The conversation I have referred to as taking place under the tree is false, utterly untrue.

WALTER HIBBLE.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

Jessie Burton, on oath, states:—I have already given evidence for prosecution; on the night of fire I was with Mrs. Britten under tree in front of house; she was sitting on a box, or some things which were carried out, I was sitting at side of Mrs. Britten; her boy Frank was there; Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Benson, and nurse Barwell were also standing there; I saw Mr. Jackson there; he came up; I thought I was seated there three quarters of an hour; the other persons named were also there that time; Mr. Manning came over to Mrs. Britten, he said, "You should not be sitting here;" she said, "I am all right, thank you;" he pressed her to go to his place to stay; he stayed a few minutes pressing her to go away, then he left and went towards front of house; I did not see him again for some time; he returned, Mr. Jackson was just behind him; they came to where Mrs. Britten was seated; Mr. Manning asked Mrs. Britten again to go, and said he would bring his buggy; Mr. Jackson also advised Mrs. Britten to go with Mr. Manning; Mr. Britten came up then, and Mr. Jackson said "We are just advising Mrs. Britten to go to Mr. Manning's;" Mr. Britten then said, "You had better go down with Mr. Manning;" Mr. Britten went towards the front door, and did not return to where Mrs. Britten was while I was there; I did not see Mrs. Britten go; I went to back of house looking after my things; when I went there I saw Mr. Britten there with some men; while Mrs. Britten was in front; I left the back yard while Mr. Britten was there; from the time I left Mrs. Britten in front until my return from from back yard was not more than 5 minutes ; when I returned to front I found Mrs. Britten had gone ; I did not see either Mrs. Britten or Mr. Manning ; I did not, when under the tree, hear Mrs. Britten say that when Mr. Britten called her she would not get up for some time, because Mr. Britten was always calling at night, saying the place was on fire ; nor did she say that she did not know what had been the matter with Mr. Britten lately, his head had been so bad ; Mr. Britten could not have gone away with Mrs. Britten and Mr. Manning, as Mr. Britten was in the back yard when they left ; I saw Mr. Manning on the morning after the inquest in the back yard ; I came out of the back door of house, and I saw him in back yard ; I did not see him in the passage ; I went into the kitchen ; I did not see him enter the hall ; Mr. Manning was looking about the house ; He went to the wash-house and put up his hands to his face and looked through the window ; he was alone at the time ; Sergeant Beatty afterwards came up ; they appeared to have some conversation together ; I then went in wash-house to do some work ; Sergeant Beatty came there ; he came to the wash-house, and put some questions to me ; Mr. Manning put no questions to me ; the morning of the day of the fire, about 9 o'clock, I saw Mr. Manning bring Mrs. Britten home ; I saw Mr. Manning, Mr. Britten, and Mrs. Britten in the passage near the spare room ; there was only one occasion when they were all present in the passage ; they all walked from front to back ; they looked in spare room first ; I was going towards back door ; they were looking in spare room ; I was laying Mr. Britten's breakfast at the time ; I intended going into the kitchen, but when I got near the door they were standing there, and I could not pass out, so I went in a little room opposite the stairs ; the door was open, I heard a conversation ; I was 6 or 7 feet away : Mr. Britten spoke, but I could not hear what he said, but Mrs. Britten said " If there is any oil spilt there it must have been done when you were getting oil for the syringe ; " the three then passed out the back door ; Mrs. Britten did not say " You are much more likely to have done that when you were spurting the oil about with a syringe ; " on the night of the fire there was soap-suds in the chamber, but they were gone in the morning, also some I left in a jug ; there was room between the mangle and end of window for a man to have got in the pantry ; on the morning when Mr. Manning came over with Mr. Britten there was a lot of water in the passage, but I did not see any kerosene ; there was no fire where the kerosene is kept ; during the progress of this case, Mr. Manning has had a conversation with me ; it was in the magistrates' room ; he asked me how long I had been with Mr. Britten, and whether I was in his service before he returned from England ; he also asked me if I had seen anything in his manner that he was not right in his head.

By Mr. Pring : I left Mr. Britten's service about 21 December last ; I went to the Manning River, to Tinonee ; I had relations—my mother and sister live there ; I was there for three weeks ; I went from there to Muswellbrook ; I stayed there about ten days ; I came back from there to Mr. Britten ; I did not get any letter or message from Mr. Britten or Mrs. Britten ; I went away for a holiday, in December ; I took my child with me ; I know Mr. Hibble ; I was speaking to him in the Court-house at time of inquest ; I was nearly crying when I spoke to him ; I was very nervous ; I said I wished the case was over ; the oil-cloth was not taken up until several days after the fire ; I swear the oil-cloth was on the floor on Thursday morning when Mr. Manning was there ; Mr. and Mrs. Britten and Mr. Britten's brother have all spoken to me about the case since I gave my evidence the other day, especially about Mr. Manning.

By Mr. Roberts : I left my things behind me when I went away for a holiday ; they remained until my return ; during my absence I got an extension of my holiday.

John William Norris, on oath, states : I have given evidence in this case for Crown ; I was one of the jury at inquest on fire ; I was at the fire on 10 November ; I remained till all was out ; I know the spare bed-room side of staircase ; when I left there were two buckets full of water left near the door of spare bed-room ; I left at 2 a.m. ; I know the verdict returned by Jury at inquest.

By Mr. Roberts : Did jury at inquest on the fire express the opinion that there were only two people who could have set fire to the parsonage, or did they give any opinion at all ?

Mr. Pring objects to the question.

The Bench decided the question can be put.

No such opinion as above was expressed by the Jury at the inquest at time of giving their verdict, or in my hearing.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

William Thomas Trevitt on oath states :—I have already been examined in this case ; I am a carpenter ; I know the pantry window ; when the same is open it is about 2 feet 10 inches by 18 inches ; when open any ordinary sized person could get through ; anyone could, outside, without the slightest difficulty reach to the shelves ; the mangle had castors, and could be easily moved by a person outside ; I know the place where kerosene is kept ; the wall separating it from spare room is about 1 foot thick ; I saw the bookcase after the fire, on Thursday morning, about 7.30 ; the case contained books ; I did not notice any books burnt, but did not examine case sufficiently to see if there were stains of smoke ; there was a drawer in the case which had to be pulled out at both ends ; there had been a fire in the drawer ; if there had been flames coming from the drawer of course it would have left traces of fire ; I examined it two or three weeks ago but saw no traces of fire ; I know the buggy-house and water-closet ; they were close together ; the water-closet is brick and the buggy-house weatherboards ; I did not examine to see if there was any space between water-closet and buggy-house ; I went up on the roof where fire took place over drawing-room ; I have been there since, making repairs ; I found loose shingles, dead leaves, and twigs when I knocked the plaster down ; they had been there for many years ; they had not the appearance of having been put there lately ; they were scattered all over the place ; the night I left work in the drawing-drawing-room I left a lot of chips scattered all over the place ; I did not see them afterwards ; I never looked for them ; there was a hole burnt through the ceiling of spare bed-room, just over the bed ; I did the repairs to this room ; the burning was a recent one ; the board produced is one taken from the ceiling of spare bedroom ; I did not trace any kerosene about the fire ; I have examined the passage lately, and the stains are now as they were several years ago ; I took the board down shortly after the fire ; I know it is the board I took down.

Thomas Gascoigne, on oath, states :—I am a boat-builder ; I live at Beaconsfield, Ryde ; I have lived at Ryde for twenty-seven years ; I went to the parsonage on the morning of Thursday, the day of the fire ; I went with Woodcock ; I saw Mr. Britten and Constable Harper ; they were looking at a buggy that had been destroyed by fire ; we left and went to the stable ; Mr. Britten was a few yards ahead of us ; we stood for a while, and then went to the bow-window ; I heard a noise upstairs, as if some one was walking on the joists overhead ; I saw some mortar fall from the ceiling ; I looked and saw a boot drawn up ; we immediately left, and went into the hall ; we were looking in spare bed-room ; I heard Mr. Britten sing out, "Harper, I think there is a spark here ;" we all ran upstairs ; I was the last up ; I have seen Mr. Britten come out of the trap-door with a chamber in his hand ; he said, "Harper, get some more water, there is some in a jug in the other room ;" Harper got it, and Mr. Britten used the water ; he said, "I think it is all right now ;" Harper stooped down and said, "I think it is."

By Mr. Pring : I did not hear any knocking over ceiling before foot came through ; I saw the foot come through twice, as if a man had stumbled ; it came through on both occasions at same spot ; I did not notice any hand put down through the hole ; Harper was a few yards ahead of me in the hall when I heard the voice calling for water ; Harper went first upstairs, Woodcock next, and I was last.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

James Gordon, on oath, states :—I am a carpenter and undertaker ; I reside at Ryde ; I was a jurymen at inquest on the fire ; Mr. Manning wrote the verdict the Jury gave ; some days after Mr. Manning had some conversation at my place, he said he thought the verdict would have been that the place was wilfully set on fire by some persons in the house ; I would not have consented to such a verdict ; forty-six years ago I did the work of the drawing-room ; I was at the fire ; I live nearly opposite ; I and my son ran over at once ; I saw Mr. Britten helping all he could ; I did not see anything strange in his appearance that night, he took it more quietly than some of us did ; I am a valuator of furniture ; I see an inventory now produced ; I know the things were there after the fire, the prices were not put by me ; the books were rather a difficult matter for me to judge about ; I consider the value of the goods to be £1,086 5s. 6d., this is for the whole of the goods mentioned in the list, for some of the furniture I could get more by auction for them ; I have marked down for it, it would cost the price set opposite of each to replace them new ; I would give £600 or £700 for the furniture, and would make a profit of £100 out of it, although the times are bad.

By Mr. Pring : I don't know whose writing it is ; the document was handed to me by Mr. Britten, and Britten's brother ; I have got as high as £50 for piano, that was valued at £110 by the owner ; I have not sold a piano for last four or five years ; I don't know how old the piano at parsonage was ; I was told the piano was worth £60, and I took it for granted, it was correct ; I also took it for granted that £40 was the value and was correct at £40 ; the suite of furniture would realize the amount of £35 by auction ; I saw £35 set against it in exhibit No. 1, and I took it for granted that it was a correct valuation ; I am serious when I said the whole was worth £700, and I would give that for it to-morrow ; I saw the jewellery and pictures ; they are worth the amount I have placed against them.

JAMES GORDON.

Isabella Barwell, on oath, states :—I am a nurse, residing at Ryde ; I have been here for five years ; I was at parsonage at night of fire ; I saw Mrs. Britten sitting under the Bunyah-tree ; we were under the tree for about an hour ; I saw Mrs. Britten leave with Mr. Manning, they went away together ; Mr. Britten was not there ; Mr. Manning asked Mrs. Britten to go to his house ; this is all the conversation I heard between Mr. Manning and Mrs. Britten ; Mrs. Britten refused, she said she would rather not ; Mr. Manning returned in a short time with Mr. Britten ; he simply asked Mrs. Britten again, she accepted the offer, and Mr. Britten went away ; I did not hear Mrs. Britten say she would not get up when Mr. Britten called her ; she never said that when Mr. Britten called her she would not get up for some time, because Mr. Britten was always calling at night, saying the place was on fire, neither did she say that she did not know what had been the matter with Mr. Britten lately, his head had been so bad.

Sydney A. Benson, on oath, states :—I am a storekeeper, Church-street, Ryde ; I have been in business for four years ; I was born in the district ; I am a married man ; I was at parsonage on night of fire ; I remained there till the fire was put out ; I left at 2:30 ; I know the spare bed-room ; I put a bucket of water near door of spare bed-room, and Mr. Clifton put another bucket of water, and left the bucket there ; I saw the fire in the lobby was put out ; nearly all the people had gone away then ; the buckets of water were there when we left ; I observed the ceiling in spare bed-room had been burnt through ; through ; some time after, the fire was burning, and the hood and curtains at head of bed caught fire and ascended to ceiling ; the spare bed-room was stacked full of furniture ; having regard to all the furniture, no one could have got to the bookcase very easily, and not without getting over the bed ; there was a chest of drawers between the door and bookcase ; Mr. Britten had his coat off, and was working a great deal more than many there ; they were only looking on ; I was at a Masonic supper that night of the fire, it took place at Steam Boat Inn, Ryde ; Constable Harper was there ; he had some ale and some gingerbeer ; it was bottled ale he had ; I don't know whether he had more than one glass of ale ; I have known Mr. Britten for ten years since he has been in this parish ; I have never known him to suffer from aberration of mind or monomania in any way ; I saw Mr. Manning on night of the fire ; I saw him by the well and the back of the house, and under the tree opposite front door ; I saw Mr. and Mrs. Britten there ; I saw Mr. Britten leave there ; Mr. Britten and I were bringing things from the house to save from the fire ; I saw Mrs. Britten go away ; after some time she went away with Mr. Manning, and Mrs. Britten went towards the house, and made an observation at the time.

By Mr. Pring : I had some ale, about two glasses bottled ale ; there were twenty-two or twenty-three at banquet ; one long table ; I was acting as steward ; I had to keep an account of the bottles they had emptied ; I was sitting about the middle of the table ; Harper sat a little lower down at opposite side ; I believe Mr. Norris, storekeeper, was sitting on my right hand ; I think Mr. Renwick was sitting on my left ; Norris drank some ale and porter, bottled ale and porter ; Mr. Renwick I think drank lemonade ; I was first asked what Harper drank when Detective Cocking was making an investigation at parsonage about five weeks after fire : I think it was Mr. Britten who asked about the drink ; I said to Cocking that I thought I had supplied Mr. Britten with a tin of kerosene shortly before the fire, but the boy who I thought supplied it was away for holidays ; before the boy returned neither Mr. Britten or any one from the parsonage had any conversation that I can remember ; Mr. Britten sent for me when Detective Cocking was there ; Mr. Cocking asked me about the kerosene to look over my books, or directly the man came back to let Sergeant Beatty know if Mr. Britten had had any kerosene of late ; I told Detective Cocking of some kerosene going over to Mr. Britten, whether it was to him or St. Anne's church I did not know ; I won't swear I did not say a distinct recollection while Cocking was there ; I looked over the books ; I could find no record of any since July ; I said I would ask the boy when he came back ; the bed was at side of wall dividing the dining-room from the spare bed-room ; Mr. Britten and Mrs. Britten and Mr. Manning did not go to the gate together ; I know they did not, because Mr. Britten said to me, " You don't mind Mrs. Britten going to Mr. Manning's place ;" he said, " It was very kind of you to ask her to your place, but if you will take the boy Frankey over I will be much obliged ;" I had asked Mrs. Britten to my place before Mr. Britten had told me of Mr. Manning's invitation.

*Phillip Robert Young, on oath, states :—*I live in Church-street, Ryde, opposite the parsonage ; I recollect the night of the fire ; Mr. Britten's son, a young lad, came and called out there was a fire at parsonage, and to come as quick as I possibly could ; I went over immediately ; I saw a fire there ; I saw Mr. Britten, he was taking the goods out of the house and asked me to assist in helping him ; Mrs. Britten and the servant were there ; I was the first there I think ; I saw no one else there ; I have known Mr. Britten for many years ; I have not noticed any aberration of mind or monomania on his part.

By Mr. Pring : The gate was shut when I went in, I opened it by lifting the latch ; I did not see any strangers there when I first got there ; I afterwards saw Mr. Hibble ; Mr. Hibble did not knock at my door to wake me up.

PHILLIP ROBERT YOUNG.

Sworn before me, this 3rd day of March, 1887,—

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

*Alfred Barry, on oath, states :—*I am Bishop of Sydney ; I have known Mr. Britten for about three years ; during that time he has been incumbent of St. Anne's, one year of which he has been on a visit to England ; I have been invited, or it has been suggested, that it would be for advantage of parish if Mr. Britten ceased to be incumbent, and I have been invited to take such steps as might be in my power for that purpose ; Mr. John E. Manning was one of the persons who suggested this matter ; I called on those wishing for defendant's removal to bring forward any charge they had against him ; on inquiry I found that there were certain charges of what appeared to me of a petty character in relation to various money transactions, and I pressed those whom I knew to have mentioned such charges to bring them before me in a formal shape substantially proving them by evidence ; this invitation was not accepted ; I sent the invitation to Mr. Manning ; no charge of any kind was substantiated against the Rev. H. Britten ; an inquest was held on the fire at this place ; on hearing of the inquest that it had not set the question of the fire at rest, I made an offer to churchwardens that I would preside at a meeting at which any charges against Mr. Britten in relation to the fire and other points might be brought forward ; the meeting was held ; Mr. Manning was present, but took no part in proceedings ; a discussion took place, when Mr. Terry moved a resolution, which was carried by a very large majority, " That a vote of sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Britten under the great misfortune which had befallen them through the fire ;" I believe no hands were held up against, that I can remember ; I have never noticed any aberration of mind or monomania with defendant ; I believe him to be a person of good character and position in the ministry, and so far as I know of irreproachable character and incapable of committing such an act ; Mr. Britten had previously to the fire wished for an exchange and I approved of ; Mr. Manning showed determined hostility to the defendant.

By Mr. Pring : My acquaintance with Mr. Britten is for two years, Mr. Britten being in England one year out of the three ; I was about twice or three times in this parish and then saw Mr. Britten ; my visits extended over a few hours each time ; I not unfrequently saw Mr. Britten in Sydney ; complaints in a tangible form reached me about six months ago, to the best of my belief ; one complaint was Mr. Britten had received a cheque from Mrs. Blaxland to give to Rev. Mr. O'Connor, and that he had not not done so, in fact misappropriated it; I presume it did, but that charge was never ventured upon; the word misappropriation was not used in this charge; when I said I believed defendant to be incapable of committing such an offence, I judged from his being a minister of the Church and from what I knew of his character; I speak of Mr. Britten from general repute and from pastoral observation.

By Mr. Roberts: The cheque referred to was £1 5s.; I made enquiry; Mr. Britten was absolved from all blame; the cheque had been paid into the Church Society and duly accounted for; there was no foundation for complaint.

9 MARCH.

Federick Chas. Jarrett, on oath, states:—I am a printer; I reside at Erming-street in this district; I am not a parishioner of Mr Britten; I was at a meeting at St. Anne's Hall subsequent to the Easter meeting; several charges against Mr. Britten were made; Mr. Manning was present; I took part in meeting after about an hour had elapsed; I considered the conduct of Mr. Manning so particularly offensive towards Mr. Britten that it required rebuke; he said Mr. Britten had resorted to dodgery and chicanery in calling the meeting; the meeting took place shortly after Easter; I said if Mr. Manning had a spark of gentlemanly feeling or respect for his office of magistrate he would withdraw the expressions he had made use of, and I would then move a resolution; he did so reluctantly, and—

Question:—Was a resolution of confidence put and carried at that meeting in favour of Mr. Britten? Yes; it was so put and carried.

On the night of the fire I passed through Ryde; the parsonage is in view of my residence; a little after midnight I saw a light being carried about the trees at the parsonage, it appeared to be a blazing light about two feet in height. I saw it move from place to place, and where the fire rested for a minute, it then apparently disappeared, after about five minutes I noticed an outline of fire, apparently a doorway or window breaking out; and becoming convinced it was fire, in or about a house, I secured a telescope and examined it carefully; the fire was then burning at southern end and back room of parsonage; I could see a faint light coming from the stables, but no flame; I had seen the fire carried to the stables, but when it got there it altogether disappeared, leaving only a faint light; I then saw people about, apparently extinguishing the fire; I afterwards saw, what I supposed to be the buggies, carried out burning; after the inquest on the fire and after attending the meeting at which the Bishop presided I had a conversation with Mr. Manning, the same was in connection with the fire and meeting; Mr. Manning said that the account I had given at the meeting about the fire must be impossible; he spoke of his assurance or conviction that Mr. Britten must have set fire to the house, and said if the Terrys had any regard for Mr. Britten they would get him out of the district as quickly as possible; I met him on a subsequent occasion in the train from Ryde to Sydney, about 8th December last, Mr. Manning pulled out a sheet of paper from his pocket which contained statements by Constable Harper and F. Woodcock, he gave them to me to read, and said, "I suppose that will change your opinion about the fire;" I said my opinion was not changed in the least; he told me he was taking the papers to the law offices; I said to Mr. Manning that I was satisfied the inquest was not properly conducted, evidence that could have been procured not being forthcoming; he then said he had not been able to get the sergeant to do his duty in the matter, but that he was applying for a special detective; Mr. Manning also said that the Jury were unanimously of opinion that Mr. Britten set the house on fire; he mentioned the names of Mrs. Britten, Frank Britten, and the servant, as being the only other persons in the house, and that they would not do it; Mr. John Bennett was in the train at this last conversation.

By Mr. Pring: I came that night from Sydney; I drove home all the way; I left Sydney about 11, to a minute or two, Sussex-street, I have a place of business there; the distance is, I think, fully 12 miles from my business premises to my residence; my residence is close to Mr. J. Bennett's "Brush Farm House;" I had a one-horse buggy; it is a good horse; I went along the road by Mr. Manning's residence; I was at Ryde long before the 'bus; I did not see Mr. Hibble that night; my house, in a direct line, is about 2½ miles from parsonage, more by the road; I saw the back room on fire through the window; the whole of window appeared to be illuminated; I could see the outline of the window by the light of fire inside; I first saw the blazing light in the south end of parsonage; it was carried round the back room or verandah and then to the stables; it was not carried about any more after that; I don't know who carried it about; my own observation showed me there had been a considerable fire at the parsonage; I did not hear anything of the inquest until after it was held; from what I saw that night, I was convinced it was the work of an incendiary; I gave no information to Coroner or police about it; I took no steps to ascertain when or where the inquest would take place; after Detective Cocking had finished the inquiry, I heard from Mr. Manning that Cocking had been here making inquiries; most certainly I never gave any information to Detective Cocking or the police, but I made a statement at the meeting over which the Bishop presided, when I said I was satisfied the inquest was not properly conducted; I meant that there was no adjournment to enable the police to make inquiries; I was not aware the Jury had stopped the evidence and said they required no more evidence.

By Mr. Roberts: When I made the statement at meeting it was a long time before I heard that Detective Cocking had been up; all that I observed with my eyes and telescope was that the fires were carried outside, none came from the inside; Detective Cocking never came to me to ask me to make any statement in writing or otherwise; the lights I saw were all carried about outside and appeared to be placed in the house; none were brought out from the inside.

By Mr. Pring: I said at the meeting over which Bishop presided, that I supposed I saw Mr. Hibble in the village that night of the fire, but I find it could not have been him, for he came by the 'bus, and I was out long before the 'bus.

John Bennett on oath states:—I am a freeholder in this district; I reside at Brush Farm House; Mr. Jarrett lives near; I heard of the fire at parsonage in November last; I know Mr. J. E. Manning; I was present with Messrs. Jarrett and Manning in the train and heard a conversation between them; I took no part in it, as it was not addressed to me; I noticed Mr. Manning give to Mr. Jarrett a paper; foolscap paper folded up; Mr. Jarrett opened it; after reading a portion, as I thought (I don't know whether he had read the whole or not), Mr. Manning said, "I think you will find that conclusive enough;" after Mr. Jarrett got through with the reading a conversation took place; I heard Mr. Manning say something about the Jury being unanimous, but he did not mention Mr. Britten's name; I thought Mr. Manning kept away from me during the conversation, because it was a matter between him and Mr. Jarrett; when we got to Rhodes platform Mr. Davis got into the same carriage and Mr. Jarrett handed him the same foolscap paper; after Mr. Davis read it a conversation took place between Mr. Manning, Mr. Davis, and Mr. Jarrett, and from that conversation that it was additional or supplementary evidence relating to the fire at the parsonage; Mr. Manning and Mr. Jarrett were in conversation from Ryde to Strathfield; occupied about 10 minutes or quarter of an hour.

By Mr. Pring: Mr. Britten told me that Mr. Manning behaved very well at the inquest.

William Thompson, on oath, states:—I am a gardener residing at Ryde; I recollect the fire at parsonage, Ryde; I was at the fire; when I got there I saw the fire in the drawing-room; I saw Mr. Britten carrying a box out to under the tree; I went round to the stable; I helped to carry some things out; I often went in the spare bed-room; I did not see Sergeant Beatty the first time; but in three or four minutes I went in again; I saw Sergeant Beatty standing on a piece of furniture; he was feeling the bookcase and said to Jordan "Throw some water on it;" Jordan said "No; do you want to destroy all the man's books?" neither Beatty nor anyone pulled a drawer out of the bookcase; I then went out and thought Jordan and Beatty came out with me; I then went by front of house to the drawing-room; Mrs. Britten was sitting opposite front with several others during the fire; I saw Mrs. Britten several times moving about and several times carrying furniture out away from the fire and putting it under the tree; I saw Mr. Manning at the stable most of the time of the fire; he did not work nor make any effort to put out the fire; I did not go near the tree at all; I was on the premises on the Saturday morning; I was there when Mr. Manning and Beatty were there and some fire-balls were spoken of; I saw Beatty take up one of the fire-balls and show it to Mr. Manning; he looked at one and smelt it; he did not say anything that I heard; Beatty said to me it had been raining and must have washed the kerosene into the ground, he asked if I had a knife; I lent mine to Beatty, and he used it to try if there was kerosene in the ground; I could not see any on the ground or globules on the grass, there was nothing of the sort; while Beatty was trying with a knife Mr. Manning went in the direction of stables, and Beatty went after him they returned after three or four minutes at the back of fern-house; I was in the house; I was syringing some pot plants; Beatty came there in the house, he was looking for canvas or bagging, he found a piece of bagging; he took it out to Mr. Manning at back of fern-house, Manning and Beatty had some conversation; I was engaged to sleep on the premises on the night of Saturday, and the three following nights I did sleep there; Mr. Britten and family were then away from the premises; Mr. Britten and a gentleman came and slept at the house on the Monday night; I slept there on the Tuesday night, no one else was sleeping there to my knowledge when I went to bed; I believed I was the only person in the house on the Wednesday morning about ten minutes past 3; I heard a noise which awoke me; I got up and went in front verandah, I looked about but could not see any one; I went to bed again; I did not go to sleep; I heard as if there were footsteps in the hall in about ten minutes after I laid down, and I heard one of the inner doors shut; I called out twice "Who is there?" I got no answer; I believe a man was in the house on this morning; I saw Mr. and Mrs. Britten about 10 coming towards Ryde, they were on Gladesville Road; I saw no books burnt or injured by the fire; I did not observe whether the case were discolored or injured by fire, if flames had issued from the drawer there would be traces on the case, but I saw none; I did not observe whether any books were damaged by water; Mr. Britten was present when Beatty and Manning were speaking about fire-balls, but I did not hear Mr. Britten say anything; when the sergeant took up the fire-ball it appeared to be dry; the ground did not appear to be saturated with kerosene; I did not see Mr. Britten and Manning together after that.

By Mr. Pring: I slept in a wooden-room at north end of house, next the study; the room marked boys' bed-room; the scraping I heard was in the cross passage near my bed-room, when I got up the second time I went to the front and back of house and all round the place; I examined the front door, it was shut, all the outer doors were fastened; I neither saw or heard anybody, it was a clear night and no wind.

By Mr. Roberts: There are attic windows, any one could get through these windows; the noise I heard was not mice or rats.

By Mr. Pring: There was no one near me, but there were eight or ten people some little distance away; the person nearest to me was Mr. Patching; I don't know any of the others; I cannot say whether Mr. Patching and the other people could have heard him; the man came round between the end of stable and the parsonage; I did tell about this when I got home; I saw nobody after I left; I told no one at the fire what I had heard; I can't say that the man was serious or not; I did not run after the man, as I did not consider it my business; and I did not tell anybody because I did not want to be brought here as a witness; I did hear about the inquest after it was concluded; I stopped about half-an-hour after I heard the man call out.

HALEY C. D'ARDIER, J.P.

J. E. Manning, Esq., J.P., to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Ryde, 13 January, 1888.

My attention has been called to the Hansard reports of the Proceedings in the Legislative Assembly on the evening of the 22nd December, when, it appears, Mr. Frank Farnell made a cowardly and scandalous attack upon me, and therein made a number of monstrous charges against me, which are not only wholly untrue, but without the slightest foundation that could afford him the shelter of saying he had been mistaken. This abuse of the privilege of the House has been deliberately availed of, as appears by a threat made by him at a public meeting at Ryde on the 25th day of March last, when, according to the notes of a shorthand reporter, he said—speaking of me—“When I am in the House, and under the protection of privilege, I will be able to divulge what I have in my heart, but which I cannot say now.” The attack lately made is so full of charges that it is difficult to deal with them in an ordinary letter; but I select the three main and most serious charges, and show their falsity without any evidence of my own.

1. Mr. F. Farnell said: “Mr. Manning had been guilty of most immoral conduct; he had seduced a girl in a churchyard at Ryde—in fact, I believe he committed a rape upon her—and on that account the Rev. Mr. Britten refused to accept him as clergyman’s churchwarden.” As to this, I annex a letter from Mr. Britten, written to a relative of mine, with reference to this very matter, in which he speaks of the charge as monstrous, denies that there was any ground for such a statement, and says that at a much later date than that referred to he would have been willing that I should be the people’s churchwarden, if I would give up opposition to him.
2. Mr. F. Farnell said: “The other day we found this gentleman (Mr. Manning) trying to persecute the Sergeant of Police; he proceeded against this officer on a charge of intemperate violence in the execution of his duty. The accusation was fully gone into, and the Bench decided that Mr. Manning’s evidence was totally untrue.” As to this, I annex a copy of the report made by the Ryde Bench of J’s.P., signed by Mr. F. Farnell himself, together with a copy of the letter of the Inspector-General of Police, on which the report was made. I also refer you to Mr. Jeanneret, M.L.A., who was present, and who will tell you, as stated in the report, that the Magistrates declined to express any opinion in the case.
3. Mr. F. Farnell said of me, as a presiding officer at an election for Members of Parliament: “A man who attempted to open a ballot-box to count the votes after it had been sealed is surely a most improper person to act as presiding officer at an election.” With reference to this, I annex copies of letters from Mr. Pope and Mr. Sims, who were the poll clerks on the occasions when I was presiding officer, from which you will see that these charges are also entirely without foundation. The original letters from these gentlemen I have forwarded to the Returning Officer for the electorate, Mr. A. Gee, in order that he may make such inquiries as he may deem fit. With reference to Mr. F. Farnell’s remarks on my conduct in connection with the arson case, I positively deny that I said a word that was untrue, and I especially call your attention to the letter of the Crown Prosecutor, Mr. Pring, previously forwarded to you. This gentleman knew every circumstance in the case as it arose, and was till then an utter stranger to me. Then, as to the reason why I was not called as a witness, I can only refer you to Mr. Foster, Q.C., who was at that time your Attorney-General. In regard to my conduct as Coroner, I have done nothing to be ashamed of, or inconsistent with my duty, as I understand it, and I say nothing more on these charges; but they sink into insignificance compared with the three serious charges with which I have dealt, and which I have shown to be wholly untrue.

Under the circumstances, Sir, you will understand that my family and friends are more pained by your apparently accepting such charges as true, and not dealing with them for their sake, than they could possibly be by your dealing with the case on its merits, though they, of course, as I myself do, appreciate your kindly feeling. Pray believe, Sir, that I have done nothing in the twenty-six years during which I have held a Commission of the Peace, or while I have been Coroner for the district, in either capacity, of which I feel ashamed, or which I desire concealed, though I have very likely made mistakes.

You will understand, Sir, that I could not leave such monstrous charges, so publicly made, without an answer, and I have thought it right to adopt the present course, leaving it to you to do what you think proper.

I have, &c.,

JOHN E. MANNING.

[Enclosures.]

My dear Sir,

Ryde, 5 January, 1888.

In reply to your letter, I hasten to say, in regard to what you justly term a “monstrous charge,” that it is entirely without foundation. On no occasion have I heard the faintest hint of such an occurrence as that which you mentioned.

In reference to my declining to renominate your brother as my warden several years ago, I need only say that it would have been a departure from what I have often found to be a useful rule had I done so. At the same time, I have never affirmed that such was my only reason for acting as I did. On my return from England I had no intention to, and certainly did not, ask your brother to act again in the capacity of clergyman’s churchwarden, but told him during a conversation that it had been suggested to me that he might be proposed by some person at the vestry meeting, then close at hand, and that, personally, I should be satisfied, provided he terminated his unreasonable opposition to me, and worked peaceably with others for the good of the church.

I think I did tell your father, whom I revere as much as I do any man living, that I did not reciprocate your brother’s ill-feeling towards me, and that I was not aware of having given him any just cause for it.

Thanking you for your letter, believe me to be,—

Yours faithfully,

HENRY H. BRITTEN.

Gentlemen,

Police Department, Inspector-General’s Office, Sydney, 13 December, 1887.

A member of your Bench (Mr. Manning) recently called upon me to complain of the conduct of Sergeant Beatty, in charge of the police at Ryde, charging him with being intemperate in his habits, and generally with being violent and overbearing in the discharge of his duties. Further, he charged him with committing a brutal assault, or succession of assaults, on a man named Kelly, which Mr. Manning stated he witnessed, though he did not interfere.

This

This latter case I at once directed should be brought before the Bench, but I regret to find that the complainant Kelly failed to appear, and accordingly the case was dismissed. My object in now communicating with you is to ask for an expression of your opinion as to Sergeant Beatty's conduct generally, and his fitness for the position he occupies.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter in reference to a statement made in the House that you had "attempted to open the ballot-box to count the votes after it had been sealed up." In reply, I beg to state that on the occasions on which I have acted as your poll clerk, namely, the last two elections for this district, nothing whatever has occurred to lead to such a statement, nor am I aware of any irregularity of any sort whatever having occurred.

Charges against Mr. John E. Manning, J.P.

I HAVE read the papers in the case of the charges made against Mr. Manning, of improper conduct, as Coroner and a Magistrate, arising out of the circumstances attending the fire at the Church of England Parsonage a little more than a year ago. It is impossible to keep the case, as presented by the original papers, separate from the statement made by Mr. Frank Farnell, in the Legislative Assembly, on the 22nd December last, which amplified and added to the charges against Mr. Manning.

It appears to be clearly shown that Mr. Manning, considering that he was an old and experienced Justice of the Peace, and at the same time held the office of Coroner, acted with great indiscretion and want of judgment at the time of the fire, and on subsequent occasions in reference to it. His language and behaviour towards Mr. Britten were unbecoming his character as a Magistrate, and would have been without justification in any person whatever. Mr. Manning should be called upon to resign the office of Coroner, and a letter should be addressed to him conveying to him my opinion, as herein expressed, of his conduct as a Justice of the Peace.

I have carefully considered the evidence which Mr. Manning himself has submitted to me to disprove the three serious charges which he specifically states as made against him by Mr. Farnell on the 22nd December, and I can only arrive at the conclusion that these charges are without any foundation in fact. Of this Mr. Manning should also be informed by separate letter.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 16 February, 1888.

The Colonial Secretary having read and carefully considered the papers in the case of the charges made against you of improper conduct as Coroner and a Magistrate, arising out of the circumstances attending the fire at the Church of England Parsonage, Ryde, a little more than a year ago, I am now directed to inform you of the conclusions at which he has arrived in the matter. It appears to the Colonial Secretary to be clearly shown that, considering you were an old and experienced Justice of the Peace, and at the same time held the office of Coroner, you acted with great indiscretion and want of judgment at the time of the fire, and on subsequent occasions in reference to it, and that your language and behaviour towards the Reverend Mr. Britten were unbecoming your character as a Magistrate, and would have been without justification in any person whatever.

Sir Henry Parkes has conveyed his opinion to the Minister of Justice that you should be called upon to resign the office of Coroner at Ryde, which office, in his judgment, should be abolished as unnecessary.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

ALLEGED ARSON AT RYDE.

(FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE, &c., RESPECTING CHARGE AGAINST REV. H. H. BRITTEN.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 26 April, 1888.

RETURN to an Address of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 21st March, 1888, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

(Mr. Frank Farnell.)

The Coroner, Ryde, to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Coroner's Office, Ryde, 2 December, 1886.

I had the honor to transmit to you recently the depositions taken by me at an inquest held on the 12th of last month as to a fire at the parsonage, Ryde. The jury in that case returned a verdict of arson against some person or persons unknown. Subsequent to this inquest some members of the jury have discovered most important evidence that ought to have been forthcoming on that occasion, and this omission of evidence is the more singular because one of the parties who could so have given evidence is a member of the Police Force, and actually the officer who was left in charge of the premises after the fire had been put out.

As some of the jurymen spoke to me on this subject, and as I became aware that unpleasant remarks were being made as to the suppression of this evidence, I deemed it right to speak to the constable referred to (J. Harper) on the subject, and his evidence was of so extraordinary a nature that I took it down, as also that of F. Woodcock, and I now enclose it, with a view to its being brought under the notice of the Attorney-General, together with the depositions taken at the inquest.

It is known to me that the jury at the inquest were nearly returning a verdict against the incumbent, Mr. Britten, and they say now that had this missing evidence been forthcoming they certainly would have done so.

I may state that the members of the Police Force here are quite above suspicion, and that some unfortunate mistake seems to have been made, mainly, I fancy, attributable to the representative of the Insurance Co. virtually taking charge of the case. It is the more remarkable because this constable (Harper) was left on the premises especially to watch Mr. Britten, with what reason his statement discloses.

I believe the evidence of a suspicious nature is forthcoming, and I would suggest, that if the Attorney-General deems it desirable to take any steps in the matter, that no time should be lost, as matters are in a very unsatisfactory state at present, and there is an openly expressed opinion that there has been a miscarriage of justice.

I have, &c.,

JOHN E. MANNING,
Coroner for Ryde.

[Enclosure.]

* NOTE.—There is no record of any letter having been received from Mr. Manning in the Department of Justice during the month of January, 1887, but a communication was addressed by that gentleman to the Honorable the Attorney-General on the 25th of that month, which was referred to the Minister of Justice on the 27th idem, and it is presumed is the letter called for in above address.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

Ryde, 25 January, 1887.

I would urgently call your attention to the papers in reference to an inquest held by me on the 12th November, as to the cause of a fire at the Church of England parsonage here, and the subsequent direction of Mr. Attorney-General Want, on the 17th December, that a prosecution should take place against Mr. Britten "without any further investigation."

There is a very general consensus of opinion here as to who alone could possibly have set fire to the parsonage, and several members of the Coroner's Jury have openly expressed themselves as to what they term the "suppression" of Constable Harper's evidence at the inquest; and they further state that had that evidence, which is now the common talk of the village, been forthcoming, they, the jury, would have returned a verdict against Mr. Britten.

I believe the view taken by some of Mr. Britten's friends is that he is not responsible for his actions; but as he has continued up to the present to perform the ordinary duties of his position as a clergyman, to the intense disgust of a large portion of his parishioners, many of whom are thereby driven from their church, this theory as to irresponsibility is scarcely upheld.

That Mr. Britten has long since expected this prosecution is clear, as Mr. Roberts' services have been retained by him. I believe a suggestion has been made that Mr. Britten should be allowed to bring an action against the Insurance Company prior to criminal proceedings being commenced against him; but I am informed that not only have no such proceedings been initiated, but that Mr. Britten has stated that he did not intend to take steps to recover the insurance on his furniture, "as it was not worth while." So strong is the conviction here as to who the incendiary is, that I believe a private information will be laid should Mr. Want's directions as to a prosecution not be carried out.

I have been a Magistrate for some twenty-five years, I believe, and have virtually been the Police Magistrate of this district for the past eight years; and I have never before met with a case that caused me so much pain, and in which such attempts have been made to interfere with the administration of justice.

On the one hand I am virtually held responsible for a gross miscarriage of justice in the Coroner's Court, because most important evidence, of which I knew nothing, was not produced; and on the other hand, Mr. Britten's personal friends try to make out that I am influenced against him, because, in my official position as Coroner, I reported to the Department of Justice the information in my possession, and because I have refused to assist them in their endeavours to get Mr. Garvan to stay all criminal proceedings.

I remain, &c.,

JOHN E. MANNING,
Coroner.

The Honorable the Attorney-General.

THE examination of Constable M'Donald, of Bathurst, in the Colony of New South Wales, George Farquhar, of Bathurst, and Charles Toole, of Bathurst, in the said Colony, taken on oath this 3rd day of May, in the year of our Lord 1887, at Bathurst, in the Colony aforesaid, before the undersigned, two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the said Colony, in the presence and hearing of Edward Jenner Pruen, who is charged this day before us, for that he, the said Edward Jenner Pruen, on the 13th day of April, at Bathurst, in the said Colony, did embezzle certain moneys, the property of Her Majesty the Queen.

Edward Jenner Pruen, embezzlement.

Constable M'Donald, on oath, states:—I am stationed at Bathurst; on Sunday afternoon last, from information received, I proceeded to “Gray's Hotel,” Rockley; I there found the accused in a bedroom over the hotel; I charged him with embezzling £50; I had no warrant; in answer to a question from a constable he said his name was Gordon, and came from Wangaratta; I said, “Your name is Pruen, and you come from Bathurst”; he said, “How do you know?” I said, “I know from your description;” he said, “All right; where have I to go?” I took him to the lock-up and searched him; found £7 13s. 6d. on him—£5 in gold, rest in silver and copper; he had a loaded revolver, which I produce; he had two pipes and a knife in his possession, gold pin, silver pin, swag containing clothing, old clothing, a new blanket, and boots; he claimed the swag, and said he sent it to Rockley by coach on Saturday; he said he was going to the Goulburn side; also watch and chain; offered no resistance.

cash-book £50 7s. 8d.; is signed by him as having received it; the total amount is £115 17s. 11d.; this he received on Saturday, the 30th; should have passed to the credit of the Government at the Joint Stock Bank; I put in the remittance note-book, which shows that £67 17s. 11d. was paid in, leaving a deficiency of £48, which defendant had received in his capacity of clerk in the Government service; when the amount is banked a bank receipt is handed to me; I received none from defendant, and did not see him again; the bank warrant was not produced for some time afterwards.

The Defendant's Attorney: The alteration in the book was made since; the amount made up shows in the one book only; his cash was correct up to Friday; he went to the Bank late on Saturday, 11.50 a.m.; I hurried him off thinking he would be late; I believe he made up the deposit receipt in the Bank; he carried the money I believe in his pocket.

Statement of the accused.

New South Wales, to wit.

E. J. PRUEN stands charged before the undersigned, two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the Colony aforesaid, this 3rd day of May, in the year of our Lord 1887, for that he, the said E. J. Pruen, on the 30th day of April, at Bathurst, in the said Colony, did embezzle certain moneys, the property of Her Majesty the Queen, and the examinations of all the witnesses on the part of the prosecution having been completed, and the depositions taken against the accused having been caused to be read to him by me, the said Justice, by or before whom such examination has been so completed; and I, the said Justice, having also stated to the accused and given him clearly to understand that he has nothing to hope from any promise of favour, and nothing to fear from any threat which may have been holden out to him to induce him to make any admission or confession of his guilt, but that whatever he shall say may be given in evidence against him upon his trial, notwithstanding such promise or threat; and the said charge being read to the said E. J. Pruen, and the witnesses for the prosecution, Constable M'Donald, George Farquhar, Charles Toole, being severally examined in his presence, the said E. J. Pruen is now addressed by me as follows:—"Having heard the evidence, do you wish to say anything in answer to the charge? You are not obliged to say anything unless you desire to do so; but whatever you say will be taken down in writing, and may be given in evidence against you upon your trial?" whereupon the said E. J. Pruen saith as follows:—"I am not guilty; I reserve my defence."

Commissioner's 87-10,392,—Forward copies to Attorney-General.—CH.A.G., $\frac{1}{8}$ /6/87. The Attorney-General, 17/6/87, and copies sent.

Minute by Mr. Traffic-Auditor Sale.

To Traffic Auditor,—Having made a careful and thorough inspection of the books and accounts at Bathurst, I find a deficiency in coaching accounts of £50 1s. 9d. The goods accounts are satisfactory. In reference to the deficiency in coaching accounts, I find that on Saturday last, 30th April, E. J. Pruen, assistant goods clerk, who had been acting coaching clerk for about a week, was sent to the Bank with the revenue for the day, amounting to £115 17s. 11d. The amount actually placed in the Bank was £67 17s. 11d. only. With the difference between these two amounts, viz., £48, Pruen absconded, and did not return to the station. Finding from the copy of the Bank deposit slip found in Pruen's bedroom that the short remittance above shown had been made, the station-master at once placed the matter in the hands of the police, who arrested Pruen at Rockley on Sunday, brought him before the magistrates on Tuesday, when he was committed to take his trial for the offence at the next Quarter Sessions. An examination of the accounts revealed a further deficiency of £2 1s. 9d., for which Pruen must be held responsible, thus making the total deficiency £50 1s. 9d., as before mentioned. There seems, however, no reason to anticipate that this amount can in any way be further increased. As a matter of detail it may be mentioned that from the cross-examination of the defendant's counsel it would appear that the defence is likely to be that Pruen was rushed to the Bank at the last moment, not having time to make up the amount for the deposit slip until actually in the Bank, and that between the station and the Bank he lost the money. This theory, however, is met by the fact he left a memo. on the station (retained), showing in his own handwriting a detailed division of the full amount. A policy of guarantee to the Government for £100 was, I find, issued to Pruen in December, 1886, by the Victoria Life and General Insurance Co., consequently the Department is fully secured. J. SALE, 5/5/87.

Very little further has been discovered.

W. V. READ (pro W.W.), 3/5/87.

It seems that Pruen was sent to the Bank with a larger amount than he stole. He paid some in and ran away with the balance. He was caught so soon afterwards that some of the money ought to have been recovered. How does this stand?—CH. A.G., 6/5/87. Traffic Manager, B.C.

PRUEN, who was arrested on Sunday, was brought before the magistrates this morning, charged with embezzling £48, and committed to sessions.

Telegrams from The Station-master, Bathurst, to The Traffic Manager, Sydney.

MR. PRUEN, who has been performing duties as coaching clerk temporarily, on account of Mr. Thomas being on holidays, left for the Bank this morning, at 11.45, with £115 17s. 11d. Nothing has since been seen of him, but his keys and a Bank receipt for £67 17s. 11d. have been found in his bedroom at his father's residence, showing that a short remittance of £48 has been made, but I am unable at present to say whether everything else is correct or not, so I will advise you later on. I have placed the matter in the hands of the police. Please advise me in the matter. Urgent.

I HAVE since seen Mr. Pruen's father, who is in a great state of mind over his son's action in leaving with over £50 of Commissioner's money. Mr. Pruen, sen., will pay what cash is short to save his son and the family being disgraced. Will I accept?

On reaching Sydney on Saturday evening I was met by a messenger from the Traffic Manager, asking me to call upon him immediately. I did so, and telegrams, of which copies are annexed, were at once placed in my hands. I immediately wired to Bathurst to get everything written up so as to expedite a balance, and am leaving by morning passenger train to make a full investigation into the matter, and will advise you of result as soon as it can be ascertained.—J. His keys and a Bank receipt for £67 17s. 11d. have been found in his bed-room at his father's residence. The station-master has seen Mr. Pruen, senior, who wishes to pay what cash is short to avoid the disgrace.

I have just received a letter from the station-master to the effect that £50 is the amount taken by Pruen from the cash he should have placed in the Bank. In addition to this he has taken 2nd class single blank paper, ticket No. 3,084, the butt being left blank. The police are in search of him.

Dear Sir,

28 May.

I understand that further representations concerning the case of young Pruen have been made to you. His father and mother are deservedly held in great respect, and if you can give instructions that no further proceedings are to be taken it will relieve them from great anxiety, and give satisfaction to a large number of people who sympathise with Mr. and Mrs. Pruen in their trouble.

The money taken having been promptly refunded may also lead to your taking a lenient view of the lad's offence.

I am, &c.,

W. R. Cortis, Esq., M.P., to The Attorney-General.

My dear Wise,

Bathurst, 6 June.

I want to know if you can do anything in the case of a lad here, named Pruen, who was committed for trial here for embezzlement from the Railway Department. He acted as if his intellect is weak, that is to say, he took money in one lump, did not spend it, but walked off along the road to Rockley. His father paid the money to the credit of the Railway Department, and is of course most anxious to get the lad away—he has a good chance just now of sending him to sea.

They are most worthy people his father and mother, and hold a good position, and it will ruin the lad to send him to gaol. I want you to talk over the case with Clarke and decide whether it is necessary to go on with the prosecution. I am sure that if you decide that it is not so necessary everybody here will be pleased, as Mr. Pruen, the lad's father, is deservedly liked and respected. The theft was apparently not premeditated, and the money repaid; and the lad's character was good previously.

Yours, &c.,

W. R. CORTIS.

I should like to know whether the Department agrees with his statement of the facts, and what the character of the boy was previously?—B.R.W., 7/6/87. Urgent. The Commissioner for Railways, B.C., 9/6/87.—W. W. STEPHEN.

The Secretary for Railways to The Attorney-General.

Sir,

Department of Railways, 17 June, 1887.

I have the honor, by direction of the Commissioner for Railways, to forward herein copies of testimonials as to the character of Edward J. Pruen, a Railway employé, who is charged with embezzling funds of the Government. It would seem from these that Pruen bore an excellent character up to the time he committed the offence for which he is now awaiting trial. I also return herein the depositions forwarded by you under B.C.

Reports.

Bathurst Station, 10 June, 1887.

EDWARD J. PRUEN has been connected with the staff since I came to Bathurst. I had always a good opinion of him, both for his good behaviour and his honesty, up to the time of his absconding. I had not the slightest suspicion of his doing a wrong act, but since he left I have been told his company was not what his parents desired, and it is from this cause that he has been led astray.

He always reported to me any discrepancy in his cash when in the booking office. I would have trusted him with anything, and I am sorry indeed that I have been deceived in this young man.

GEO. FARQUHAR.

I HAVE known E. J. Pruen since he was a boy, and always found him to be a steady well-conducted lad. I first knew him as a chorister boy at All Saints' Cathedral, Bathurst. The late Rev. Thomas (Canon) Smith had a high opinion of him, so had Mr. W. Kelk, by whom he was employed shortly after I first met him.

Pruen left Mr. Kelk's employ to enter this Department, and so far as I know there has not been anything against him up to the date of the present offence.

M. A. HORNIDGE,

Minute by Mr. Traffic-Manager Read to The Commissioner for Railways.

I ENCLOSE certificates of character from Inspector Hornidge, Traffic Inspector of the Western District, and Mr. Farquhar, S.M., Bathurst, under whom Pruen has served since he has been in the service, from which it will be seen that he bore an excellent character up to the time he committed the offence for which he is now awaiting trial.

I think in view of the circumstances surrounding this case that if it is one in which a prosecution could be withdrawn it would be desirable to do so.

UPON these papers I think that, if the Railway Department concur, it will be best that if the boy plead guilty the Crown should not pray judgment. This would allow the lad to use the chance of reform now offered to him. The final decision in this matter must however rest with the Railway Department, who are the prosecutors.

B.R.W., 22/6/87.

Will the Commissioner for Railways be good enough to state whether the Railway Department is inclined to concur with the course proposed by the Attorney-General to be adopted. If so, the necessary instructions will be given to the Crown Prosecutor.—W.W.S., B.C., 22nd June, 1887.

Sir,
I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, of 18th instant, giving notice of the amount of deficiency in the accounts of Edward J. Pruen, late assistant goods clerk at Bathurst, and now enclose the usual form of declaration for your signature.

DECLARATION.

I, CHARLES AUGUSTUS GOODCHAP, Commissioner for Railways at Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales, do hereby solemnly and sincerely declare as follows:—That Edward Jenner Pruen defaulted to the amount of £50 ls. 9d; that the loss of this amount has been wholly due to the want of integrity, honesty, and fidelity on the part of the said Edward Jenner Pruen, and that all sums of money due from the Government to the said Edward Jenner Pruen, as salary or otherwise, have been made available towards reducing the amount claimed from the Victoria Life and General Insurance Company under policy No. 14,322 for £100, leaving a balance of £50 ls. 9d. lost to the Government, for which a claim is made. The said default occurred between the date of issue of the same Company's policy and the expiry of the same, and is properly claimable thereunder: And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of her present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the more effectual aboition of oaths and affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the Government of New South Wales, and to substitute declarations in lieu thereof, and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial oaths and affidavits."

Subscribed and declared at this day of 188 , before me.

Minute by The Commissioner for Railways on Declaration.

I do not think I could sign the within declaration, as I am under the impression the money due has been paid by the friends of Pruen. Make inquiry.—CH.A.G. With other papers attached.—A.R. Traffic auditor, B.C., 18/6/87. Will you please say if the amount has been paid.—B.J. S.M., Bathurst. I have not received authority to reserve this amount, nor have I received instructions from Traffic Auditor to take credit for the same. Not paid that I am aware of.—G. FARQUHAR, 27/6/87. Traffic Manager.

HERBERT LOUIS POWER ELLES, Esquire, being the officer duly appointed to prosecute for Her Majesty in this behalf, by virtue of the Act in such case made, being present in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Bathurst on the 26th day of July, in the year 1887, charges that Edward Jenner Pruen on the 30th day of April, in the year 1887, at Bathurst, in the colony aforesaid, being then employed in the Public Service, to wit, as clerk, certain money, the property of Her Majesty, then being entrusted to him, by virtue and colour of his said employment did embezzle certain money, to wit, £48, the property of Her Majesty, being parcel of the money so entrusted to him, and did then fraudulently appropriate and dispose of the same.

Cor. Ernest Brougham Docker, Esquire, Chairman; date of plea, 27th July, 1887; plea, guilty. Charles Joseph Pruen, of Bathurst, father of the accused, bound in £100 upon condition that he appear to receive sentence when and where called upon.—W. R. BEAVER, Acting Clerk of the Peace.

Office of the Clerk of the Peace, Sydney, 21 September, 1887.

Re "Pruen"—embezzlement.

BETWEEN the dates of the committal and the trial, the Railway Department practically condoned the offence by accepting from the father of the accused a sum of money equal to the amount embezzled, and seemed anxious that the lad should not be further proceeded against. No other course could therefore be reasonably adopted at the Quarter Sessions than the one taken.

Accused had previously borne a very high character for honesty and carefulness, and the manner in which the offence was committed, the fact that he only stole a portion of the money entrusted to him, the theatrical way in which he took to the road with a loaded revolver, together with the rest of his conduct and demeanour, all appears to support the idea that the crime, in a certain sense, was the result, as Dr. Cortis suggested, of a weak or disordered mind.

Pruen pleaded guilty, and his father was bound in £100, upon condition that he (the accused) should appear for judgment when called upon. He was also told by the Judge that unless he were careful as to his doings in the future he would probably be called up for sentence upon this charge.

The father of the lad undertook to send him from Bathurst, to either a remote part of the Colony, or to some other part of the world.

Present:—The Police Magistrate; L. Bernstein, Esq., J.P.

JAMES COADY and Edward Tracey and John Hennessy appear in custody charged with having, at Lismore, on Wednesday, 21st March, 1888, in the Colony of New South Wales, assaulted one Anna Maxwell, with intent to commit a rape.

And this deponent, on oath, states: My name is George Wells: I am Senior-Sergeant of Police at Lismore; I arrested the three prisoners now before the Court this morning, and charged them with assaulting Anna Maxwell, yesterday, 21st instant, with intent to commit a rape; I now ask to reserve my further evidence and ask for a remand for eight days for the production of further evidence.

Present:—J. Bray, Esq., P.M.; E. Pratt, Esq., M.D., J.P.; L. Bernstein, Esq., J.P.

JAMES COADY, Edward Tracey, and John Hennessy, on remand, charged with assault with intent to commit a rape upon one Anna Maxwell.

And this deponent, on oath, states: My name is A. F. Parker; I am a legally qualified medical practitioner at Lismore; I visited the lock-up on the morning of 23rd instant and saw Anna Maxwell there and examined her and found she had a miscarriage; she had been about six weeks in the family way; on examination I found she had several bruises on the body, two slight on left arm, a slight one on right arm, and a very slight one on right hip; those were the bruises I saw; she afterwards complained that she had hurt her side; she was then removed to the hospital, and has been there since till to-day.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dickey:—The bruises were so slight that anything might have caused them; she had the miscarriage in the lock-up; it could be caused by being roughly handled.

AND this deponent, on oath, states: My name is Anna Maxwell; I am the wife of George Maxwell; I recollect the 21st of this month; I was at Jackson's Hotel at between 12 and 1 o'clock; I was there about an hour, and left and went to White's, and then went to Jackson's again and had some lunch and left about between 2 and 3 o'clock and went to a field on the road to Mr. Stock's house and sat down behind a large tree and fell asleep; some one then caught me by both arms; I thought it was a policeman and looked up, and when I found it was not I struggled to get away; the man said, "It is all right, sit down;" I said, "What do you want?" he said, "Sit down"—the man in the centre is the man (Hennessy); then another man came round the tree and said, "Sit down, we are not going to hurt you"—the man to the right is the one (Tracey); I said, "I won't sit down," and they both pushed me down; they held my arms one on one side and one on the other; I tried with all my force to get away again, but could not; after a time I got on to my feet, and they knocked me down again; I am not positive which one did it—but Hennessy gave me most abuse when I was on my back—one of them lifted my clothes and I kept struggling, and the other man pushed this one away and used the same violence himself, it was Tracey who did this; he had my clothes partly up; I felt their hands under my clothes and up between my legs and on my person; they both had their trousers unbuttoned, and I saw their person exposed; after the second one attacked me I got on to my feet again and tried to run away; they caught hold of my cloak (produced) and they tore it; I undid the neck of the cloak and left it in their hands, and ran away, and one of them caught me again—it was Hennessy; he caught me by the arm; Tracey had the cloak, and called out "If you come back and get your cloak we will let you go;" Hennessy brought me back to Tracey, and they both caught hold of me and forced me down; I was very weak after struggling so long; they sat by my side and kept me down, but did not molest me further then; I cried out, but no one seemed to hear; a horseman passed at a distance, with a white jacket on; they kept me there a long, long time; they said "Keep quiet, and we will not harm you;" I was half stupid with the treatment and drink I had had; they both rose to their feet and left, as if going to the town, and I intended to run when I got the chance, but Hennessy came back and he tried to abuse me again in the same manner as previously described, and when I screamed he put his hand over my mouth; someone passed at this time, on horseback, and I said something to Hennessy; I could not scream as he had his hand on my mouth; he did not succeed in committing any offence except what is stated; I said "I feel as if I'll die, I am fainting;" he then said "Sit up, and when my mate comes back I'll give you a drink;" he kept then in this position and kept molesting me by putting his hand under my clothes; Tracey then came back and sat down, and did not molest me further; he said something to his companion; I said "Let me go home;" Tracey said "Wait till it gets a bit dark;" Hennessy said "You may as well keep quiet;" he swore at me, and said he would choke me if I screamed out; one of them said "Here is someone coming, get up and get out of the way;" I got up and got across the paddock as well as I could, and tried to steady myself at the fence, being too weak to walk on; they then came up again, and said, "You must not stay here, there is someone coming; one said, "We are in for it over this;" I could not walk, and they dragged me along towards the town; one had hold of one arm, and the other hold of the other; one let go and ran forward saying "Hold on there, I'll see who it is;" but the other one dragged me along to an opening like a back lane, and left me; one said to his mate "You run one way, and I'll run the other;" the police then came up—the Sergeant and Constable Brown, and the two men, Hennessy and Tracey, were brought back by the police, and told to assist me to the police office, and I was taken to the lock-up; I was very ill in the lock-up; I thought the men were being taken to the lock-up also; I called for assistance in the night, but did not make any one hear; I was charged with drunkenness before the Court next morning, and was attended by the doctor at the lock-up the next morning; I did not make any complaint about the prisoners till the morning of 22nd, when the prisoners before the Court were brought to me in Police Magistrate's room; I then identified two of them; I don't recollect what they they said; I made a statement to the effect that they had assaulted me; I was then taken back to the lock-up, and that night was very ill, and saw the doctor next morning, and was then removed to the hospital; I had a miscarriage, which must have been caused by the ill-treatment I received from prisoners; I had the miscarriage in the lock-up before I was removed to the hospital; I do not recollect the prisoner Coady being there; when he was brought into the Police Magistrate's room he said, "I never saw that woman before," meaning me.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dickey: I had not been home on that Wednesday, 21st; I had been arrested on 20th, for drunkenness, and was before the Court on 21st, and left about 11 o'clock, and went to Dr. Goggins', and stayed about an hour; I then went to Jackson's Hotel, calling at White's on the way; I was at Paulson's first; called there on my way to Dr. Goggins', and got half glass-brandy in yard; I got a small bottle of beer at Jackson's, drank it at White's, and stayed for about an hour, and then went back to Jackson's and had lunch, and had a small bottle of beer; besides this I can't say if I had more, but I think I had another beer; I am not aware that I asked any of the men there for a drink; I was excited; some man was singing a song, and I asked for the song to be sung again; some man asked me why I was crying; I said, "I could not stand the song;" after the song I went to the back to the closet, and closed the door; some man came up and tried to force the door in, and was just inside when some one caught hold of him and swung him out; Jackson did this; the man did not beg my pardon when he opened the door; I did not say, "You may come in;" after this Jackson said something to me, and I left the house; my luncheon at Jackson's consisted of bread and cheese; I was in the kitchen at Jackson's; I think Hennessy was there; I asked Mrs. Jackson for more beer; she refused; Hennessy said, "Let her have some;" I do not remember if I got it; after this I left, and got no more beer; some man touched me on the arm, and said, "Come back and get your beer;" I refused, as the police had cautioned me; I left Jackson's by the back door; I did not go home because my husband was there; I left Jackson's alone, and went straight to the tree previously mentioned—alone all the way; I can't say how long I slept before the men came up; I sat against the tree with my cloak on; I put it on there; I was not quite sober; had I been so I should have come back through the town; when I was awoke Hennessy's was the first face I saw; I can't say how long I was there; it was getting dark when I left; I was much exhausted; the two men acted together as stated; they tried to violate me; when the police came up I was not drunk, but was thoroughly exhausted, and two men helped me to the police office; I don't think I fell; if I did it was through exhaustion; the two prisoners were drunk; I complained to the police on Thursday morning; I did not complain before as I thought the men were locked up for the offence, and was surprised on Thursday morning to find they were not; I only noticed two persons pass on horseback; I did not speak to prisoners in a friendly way at all after they assaulted me; I had no drink from them, and asked for none; one man who passed was in speaking distance, and spoke to one prisoner; I was assisted to the lock-up, and not hurt; my miscarriage could not have been occasioned by any hurt going to the lock-up; I do not think I sat down, but will not swear it; I did not see the men let off that evening by the police; I was ill, but there was no one to complain to; I was in the cell; the men brought me to the lock-up and I was locked up; I saw the men going out of the gate, but did not know where they were going; I thought they were under arrest for abusing me; I was too ill to complain or think of anything.

AND this deponent, on oath, states: My name is Henry Alfred Baird; I am a teamster at Lismore; I remember Wednesday, 21st instant; I was driving a team of three horses on the Gundurimba Road; I saw a woman and three men on a road the other side of the Public School, between 3 and 4 o'clock; the three prisoners are the men, and Mrs. Maxwell is the woman, and she wore a red dress; I am not sure that it was a road, it was a flat the other side of Simmou's paddock; I then turned on to the Gundurimba Road, and saw Tracey; he got up from one side of the tree and went round to the other side and was undoing his trousers, and the woman got up to run or go off, and Tracey went after her, got her under the arms, and half carried and half dragged her to another tree; the other two men were under another tree a distance off; Tracey after came away from her buttoning up his trousers, and went to the other men; he had knocked her down and got on top; she was wrestling about on the ground; Coady then went to the woman at the tree and laid down by the woman; I saw him roll over; I did not see him on the woman; he left, and I saw him buttoning up his trousers, and the third man, Hennessy, then went to the woman; I turned my back then and kept going on, and can't say what he did; when I looked again the three men then left, and went towards the town; in about half-an-hour one of them returned to the woman, and another in another direction; Tracey was one; I sang out to him; he was about 30 yards off; I said, "I say old man, you ought to give that bloody spell over there;" he looked, and said nothing, but went on towards the woman, and sat down beside her with the other man; just before this Mr. Larkins passed, also William M'Lennon; Larkins and his brother were quite close to the tree; M'Lennon was about 125 yards off them; this was when the men came back the second time; I pointed the men out to the police next morning; I did not see her with a cloak on, but I saw them throw something towards her when leaving her the first time.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dickey: I was not nearer than 150 yards; there was a strong wind blowing away from me, and I could not hear any screams; I could not swear she was detained against her will; when I first saw them it appeared to be a man knocking a swag about, but when I got closer I saw it was a woman; Tracey did not look drunk; I could not say for the others; I have seen Coady often before, and can swear to him; I was once about 130 yards off Coady; I swear there were three men with the woman; Mrs. Maxwell, when running, appeared drunk; I thought they were abusing the woman, but did not interfere; I was working at a log for a time while I saw this; I spoke to police next morning about this, and assisted them; there were five or six men with them when I pointed them out to the police; when I saw them first Tracey and the woman were together on the flat named, and the other two men were 30 or 40 yards off; I was on the road, and had to turn a corner just then; I saw Tracey put her down on the ground then, and she got up; I was about 200 yards off; Tracey then went round the tree and undid his trousers; she got up and made off; Tracey caught her and took her to another tree.

AND this deponent, on oath, states: My name is Joshua Saul; I am a bullock driver; I recollect 21st of this month; on that day I saw Coady and Tracey with Mrs. Maxwell, about half-past 2 o'clock p.m., near Musgrave's, in Conway-street, going along the Gundurimba Road; Mrs. Maxwell was about 20 or 30 yards ahead, and they appeared to be following her; I met them as I was coming into town; on going back in about an hour I saw them again about 150 yards off the Gundurimba Road; the woman tried to run away, and one of them, I can't say which, caught hold of her and pulled her down; she was dressed in red, and no hat; after this she got away and came to where I was on the road with J. Marsden; she spoke to Marsden, and he pointed for her to follow me; she did so for 60 or 70 yards; Tracey followed her and threw her down; another man, I can't swear to, came up to them and they both stayed for some time; when Tracey threw her down she appeared to resist; I think it was Hennessy who came up; I did not see his face, but recognize his clothes; Mr. Abbott then came along and they let her go; they were both holding her on the ground; Abbott had a light-coloured shirt on; he was walking; she followed Abbott for about 100 yards; Tracey followed her again and caught her and threw her down; the other man, I think Hennessy, again went up to him and the woman; after this I saw the police and told them something, but not what I have stated now; I merely pointed out where they were.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dickey: At one time I was 100 or 150 yards off them, never closer; I have told all I saw; I did not see her dress lifted; she appeared tipsy; when they were sitting down together the man appeared friendly; she was resisting; I did not hear her scream; when Marsden told her to follow me she was 20 or 30 yards off; I thought she was being abused, but did not interfere, as I did not want her to go up near the houses—my own place and Edwards'; I was working with Baird loading up.

AND this deponent, on oath, states: My name is John Thomas Smith; I am a labourer, at Wilson's Ridges, and remember 21st of March; I was leaving Cotter's mill about 2:30 or 3 p.m.; I saw the three men and the lady going towards Cowley's; the shortest of the three men was walking with her; Coady was one of the men, and the other two prisoners are like the other two men; the woman had a red dress on; I cannot swear that the woman before the Court was the one; they were on the road leading to Gundurimba; I was about 15 yards behind; the woman and Tracey went round the fence; he caught her by the shoulders and tried to put her down, and wrestled with her about 15 minutes before he could get her down, and then put her on the ground, and then he unbuttoned his trousers; while she was on the ground she struggled, and he kept her in that position five or ten minutes; he then went over to the other two men; she got up, and sat up; I think Coady then went up to her; she fell back on the grass, and he fell on the grass too alongside of her; I did not see him touch her; he staid five or six minutes with her; she did not seem to struggle with Coady; he then went to the other two men, and the third man went up to her, and he did not see her get up any more; the third man caught her by the shoulders, and appeared to hold her down; that was the man with black whiskers (Hennessy); she was struggling, and struggled ten or fifteen minutes; I did not see him leave her; I was then over the hill, and saw no more; I look at a map, and the spot marked with a red cross (X) is the spot where the woman was on the ground, and assaulted by the persons.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dickey: I did not know the prisoners before; I was not nearer than 60 yards; I was driving a team of bullocks; I did not hear the woman scream; I think the woman was the worse for liquor; I did not shout when she struggled nor interfere; I would have done so but I had young bullocks, and could not leave them; I saw Cowley at his house; he could see all this; it occurred about 3 o'clock p.m.; Abbott was also about; I could not hear them talking; they approached her one after the other; when Tracey left her she could have escaped, if able; I identify Hennessy by his clothes, the same he has now; she may have got away before the third man went to her, but I think she was too much under the influence of liquor.

By Bench: I took a memo. of this as my memory is bad, and I thought I might be called upon to give evidence; I had no watch; I judge the time by the time I left the mill; I was close to Cowley, five or six yards; I thought the woman was being abused, but made no complaint.

By Police: I complained to my father and mother when I went home, and then wrote down the particulars.

AND this deponent, on oath, states: My name is George Wells; I am a Senior-Sergeant of Police, and remember Wednesday, 21st March; about 4:45 p.m. on that day, from something I heard, I proceeded with Constable Brown to section 19 on the plan (produced); after searching for some time, the prisoners, Hennessy and Tracey, and the woman, Mrs. Maxwell, were pointed out to me by witness Saul; they were going along Dawson-street; the men appeared to be helping the woman along, one on each side; I approached them running, and they turned off to a vacant lot near the Chronicle Office; the men then looked about and started to run round the corner; just as they let her go she tried to walk, but fell on her knees, and then laid down; I then got the horse from Doolan the line repairer, who rode up, and followed the two men; I caught them, and called on them to assist the woman they had left to the lock-up; they were then in Keen-street, going towards Tattersall's Hotel; they appeared sober; they came back and assisted her to the lock-up; she appeared perfectly stupid, said nothing, but could walk along when assisted; the woman was Mrs. Maxwell; at the time I knew nothing of this offence, and allowed the men to go; Mrs. Maxwell was locked up for drunkenness; next morning, from something she said, I made inquiries and subsequently arrested the prisoners; before arresting them I brought them before the woman in the Police Magistrate's room; she then identified Hennessy and Tracey as the two men who had assaulted her on 21st; she said she had no recollection of Coady; Coady was then told to leave the room, and did so; I then charged Hennessy and Tracey with having assaulted Mrs. Maxwell with intent to commit a rape on 21st March; Tracey said in reply, "I saw Mrs. Maxwell yesterday about noon at Jackson's Hotel; she asked me to take her out and get her a drink; I then walked out to the back of Jackson's premises, but got her no drink; she said 'I would like to lay down, I feel sick;' she was the worse for liquor; we walked down to a paddock near the Recreation Ground; she laid down under a tree; I then went away to the town; I came back to try and get her back to Jackson's Hotel again; I tried to get her along but could not; this was about two hours after I first left her there; I found I could not get her along, then left her; this was about the time the police came up, and brought us back to help the woman to the lock-up."

Hennessy said, "I came into the town yesterday morning; I was working for Michael Consadine; yesterday evening I was near the cricket ground and took a walk through one of the paddocks, and saw a woman standing against the fence; she was very drunk; she asked was I going to shout; I said no, I am going about my business; I never saw the woman before then; I walked away and Tracey came after me; he was with the woman at the time; he asked me for a match; the police came up about that time; I was not in the woman's company more than three or four minutes;" from information received that morning I caused Coady to be brought back to the room; I said, "Look at Mrs. Maxwell," and gave him the usual caution; he said, "I never saw the woman till to-day;" I then charged him with assaulting Mrs. Maxwell with intent to commit a rape, and caused him and the others to be locked up; Tracey said Coady was present; I said to Tracey, pointing to Coady, "Was he not with you?" Tracey said, "Yes, he was out."

Cross-examined by Mr. Dickey: I saw Mrs. Maxwell the night before she was locked up for drunkenness; she was reprimanded by the Bench on 21st for the offence; I do not think she was up for drunkenness before.

Dr. Bernstein to N. J. Simmons, Esq.

Dear Simmons,—

Lismore, New South Wales, 19 May, 1888.

I am enclosing you a petition, signed by the leading magistrates and jurymen. I did not consider it necessary to have it signed by too many, as I know the peculiar circumstances, well known to you, will enable you to explain to the Minister the reason for the favour. You are perfectly well aware that none of us could, would, or wish to, condone such offences; but the peculiar features of the affair demand it.

I have the deliberate statement of nearly all the jurymen who knew the parties that they never supposed the punishment would exceed six or nine months' imprisonment, which in their opinion would meet the end of Justice.

Believe me, &c.,
LOUIS BERNSTEIN.

[Enclosure.]

To the Hon. the Minister of Justice.

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That, at the Court of Quarter Sessions, held in Lismore, before His Honor Judge Murray, on the 11th day of May instant, three men—James Coady, Edward Tracey, and John Hennessy—were charged with an attempt to commit a rape upon one Anna Maxwell. A second count charged them with indecent assault.

That the said James Coady was acquitted, and the prisoners Tracey and Hennessy convicted of indecent assault, the Judge sentencing them each to three years hard labour and twenty-five lashes, the flogging to be inflicted one month after the passing of the sentence.

That your petitioners now pray that you will be pleased to remit the latter portion of the sentence recorded, on the grounds,—

1. That the evidence for the defence did not sufficiently disclose the antecedents of the said Anna Maxwell or certain other circumstances of an extenuating character.
2. That the majority of the jurymen were of opinion that very little, if any, violence was used towards the woman.
3. That the Jury found the prisoners guilty chiefly because of the outrage upon public decency, as disclosed in the evidence.
4. That the convicted prisoners were not known, hitherto, as men of bad character.
5. That the severity of the sentence is likely to prevent Juries from finding prisoners guilty of similar offences in future (there being a special antipathy to flogging prisoners), thus defeating the ends of Justice.
6. That nearly all the Jury regard the sentence as a heavy one, apart from the flogging.
7. That the evidence of the woman Anna Maxwell showed her to have been in a condition which precluded her from having any clear or distinct knowledge of what occurred, as is proved by the fact that she stated she had no recollection of the man James Coady (who was acquitted), while several witnesses swore to his having been in her company and that of the convicted men, all through the affair.

Your Petitioners therefore pray that you will be pleased to take the foregoing premises into your favorable consideration, and grant the request therein contained.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

No. 3.

Report of Mr. District Court Judge Murray.

THREE men—Coady, Tracey, and Hennessy—were charged in the First Court with assaulting, with intent to ravish, in the second with indecently assaulting, one Anna Maxwell. The circumstances of the case were peculiar, and in some respects peculiarly atrocious.

The prosecutrix is a young married woman, fairly well educated, and, as far as I could gather, of good moral character, except for her occasional habit of drinking to excess. This had led to quarrels between her and her husband; but she had been living with him shortly before the offence was committed. She was at the time enceinte. The result of what occurred was a miscarriage. The night before she had been been in the lock-up for drunkenness; she was discharged in the forenoon, and was then in a weak and nervous state from want of food and from agitation. She went to a public-house in Lismore, and there, or partly there, and partly at other houses, became intoxicated—in her weak state, no doubt, being easily affected by drink. Then, hardly conscious of what she was doing, she walked out along the Guundurimba Road for the purpose of getting into some quiet place and sleeping—not being able to get into her own house. She carried on her arm a fur cloak—seeming just to have sufficient knowledge of what she was about to take this as a covering. Of what followed she and certain witnesses who saw part of the occurrence gave a different account. I believe she was either actually unconscious of the first and worse part of this disgusting affair, or that her partial consciousness of it was afterwards merged and driven beyond power of recollection by the events of which she became more fully aware; or else (a more probable theory) that she was ashamed to admit the full horror and disgrace of what she actually did dimly remember, and that only in that one respect of untruly concealing her shame she did not tell the whole truth. Her account was that she fell asleep, not being aware that she was not alone, near a tree in a paddock not far from the road; that she was roughly awakened; then she went on to narrate how she was assaulted by Tracey and Hennessy, who attempted to ravish her, used most filthy threats—one which she would not mention, but wrote down, it is inconceivable that any woman could invent, except perhaps the lowest prostitute—and, after detaining her for a long time, at last only let her escape when they were aware that they were observed.

Practically, the account she gave of what was then going on was consistent with the evidence of nearly all the other witnesses. These witnesses, however, principally young men, whose ideas of decency and of their duty to women certainly seemed to be disgracefully loose, but who could hardly be supposed to be narrating facts which actually bore a less atrocious aspect than their account put upon them, but rather probably looked worse than they chose to admit—gave an account of what appeared to be a rape committed by the three men Coady, Tracey, and Hennessy, upon a woman so drunk as to be incapable of resistance—to be barely, if at all, conscious of what was going on. This is how it seems this crime began: Undoubtedly the three men followed Mrs. Maxwell out, or one accompanied her and the others followed; there can only be one suggestion even as to what their object was; undoubtedly she was both drunk and weak; undoubtedly they had found out the state she was in; undoubtedly, I am afraid, what was really a triple rape was committed; Coady then left; he hung about afterwards; but Tracey and Hennessy seem to have attempted to repeat the offence after Mrs. Maxwell had woken from her drunken sleep; whether or not she knew what had actually occurred, she chose to narrate only that part of her terrible experience; this accounts for Coady's acquittal, though I believe he—a man of certainly bad character—was the worst of the three; they were probably all stimulated by drink; Hennessy and Tracey had fairly good characters. On the question of what the jury thought, and why they acquitted Coady, I think I am now justified in disclosing, and in fact bound to attach hereto, a remarkable letter which I received a day or two after the case was tried. It will be found attached. As to the necessity for imposing such a sentence as will be an effective warning to the young men of Lismore the conduct of the witnesses, who, by their own admission, acted as utter blackguards and cowards in not interfering when they saw what to them must have appeared to be at least possibly a rape on a woman incapable of resistance, by itself raises a presumption that strong measures are necessary. Probably the police magistrate could give some valuable information on this head. The Legislature, at any rate, has cast on Judges a duty which I consider I should have disregarded if I had omitted to take advantage of the very effective mode of punishment provided for bad cases of indecent assault. It would be hard to imagine a much worse case than this—a case in which a much more serious charge might have been—ought to have been supported.

C. E. R. MURRAY,
Chairman.

Port Macquarie, 27 May, 1888.

[Enclosure.]

Lismore, 10 May, 1888.

To His Honor Mr. Justice Murray,—

I TRUST I am not doing wrong in thus addressing you, but as the above case is now settled I believe there can be no harm in telling you the reason the Jury did not find Coady guilty. It was this: Eleven were unanimous in finding all three guilty; but one, Peter Dawson, was for acquitting them all. He said he would rather eat his boots than Coady should be found guilty. His reason, so he said, was that Mrs. Maxwell had sworn that Coady was not there at all, and that he was determined to wait and allow your Honor to dismiss the Jury as they could not agree. The eleven came to the conclusion that it would be better to let one escape than all three, so Dawson agreed to find the two guilty if we left Coady out. The eleven were of opinion that Coady was the worst of the three and bore the worst character.

Trusting your Honor will not be offended at what I have done,

I remain, &c.,

Re Mrs. Maxwell.—In conjunction with Senior-Sergeant Wells we have so far examined eleven witnesses. I interviewed Mr. Simpson, J.P., Mayor, Messrs. Bernstein, Larkin, Barrie, J.S.P., who were the leaders in the petition, for direct information, or to be directed to persons who could afford me reliable information, and the result so far is that not a single witness has said a word against the moral character of Mrs. Maxwell, beyond being at times addicted to intemperance, at which time she has been known to be absent from home one or two nights. It is not even hinted that her absence was the result of any immorality beyond intemperance. I am strongly of opinion that rumours have been circulated against her by persons only who think that any woman who takes a glass of liquor must be of easy virtue or worse. We have examined the maid who accompanied her from Scotland, her statements are quite in accordance with the rest.

The Mayor, Mr. Simpson, who interested himself in the petition, writes a most important letter. He brought husband and wife together last week, and his previous inquiries led him to believe in her virtue, but addicted to drink. We will pursue inquiries to-morrow, but as yet have not heard of any witness likely to come forward—the public know of the inquiries we are making.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 5 June, 1888.

Referring to a petition in favour of the prisoners named in the margin for a mitigation of the corporal portion of the sentence passed upon them on the 9th ultimo, at the Lismore Quarter Sessions, by his Honor Judge Murray, for indecent assault upon one Anna Maxwell, I am directed to inform you that the flogging has been postponed by direction of the Minister of Justice, and that the Police Magistrate, Lismore, in view of a suggestion made by Judge Murray, has been requested by wire to cause careful inquiries to be made as to the antecedents of Mrs. Anna Maxwell the prosecutrix, and to report as soon as possible as to her character, &c., and that in the event of Mr. Bray being absent from head quarters, the officer in charge of the police was also informed to the same effect by this Department.

In view of these circumstances, I am to invite you to have the goodness to instruct your local officers to render every assistance to the Police Magistrate in obtaining the desired information for the Minister with the least possible delay.

In returning the attached papers, noted in the margin, received from you on the 5th instant, in which you request that inquiry might be made of Mr. T. J. Brown, No. 6, Valley-street, Balmain, as to what he knows respecting the character of Mrs. Anna Maxwell, of Lismore, upon whom an indecent assault was committed by the two men Edward Tracey and John Hennessy, and in whose favour a petition has been presented for mitigation of the corporal portion of their sentence, I beg to forward herewith copy of a police report on the subject.

Balmain Police Station, 6 June, 1888.

SENIOR-SERGEANT BOYD respectfully reports, for the information of the Superintendent-in-Charge, that he has seen John Brown, ex-constable, Valley-street, Balmain, who states he knows nothing whatever of the woman Anna Maxwell for the past twelve months, he being in Balmain all that time; but for the twelve months previous to that he knew her at Lismore. She was then an habitual drunkard; but beyond that, he knows nothing whatever of her general character. Mr. Brown thinks that this inquiry must have been intended for his brother Alexander, who was subpoenaed from Lismore to the Supreme Court about three weeks ago in the case Re Lloyd v. M'Cann, and who was staying with him in Valley-street during the time, but who left again for Lismore on Saturday last per steamer "Electra." Alexander Brown formerly kept an hotel in North Lismore, and, it is thought, knows a good deal about this woman's character. He is now mail contractor, residing in Lismore.

Re Mrs. Maxwell.—Report posted; fourteen witnesses examined, and all exonerate her of immorality.

No. 11.

The Police Magistrate, Lismore, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Lismore, 8 June, 1888.

In acknowledging receipt of your telegram directing inquiry respecting the antecedents of Mrs. Anna Maxwell, I have the honor to report, for your information, that Senior-Sergeant Wells and I took the evidence of fourteen witnesses, which I now place before you. I waited upon the Mayor (Mr. Simpson), Dr. Bernstein, J. Barrie, and G. Larkin, J.S.P., all of whom took a great interest in petitioning for the prisoners named in the margin, and got the names of all parties supposed to know any of the previous history of Mrs. Maxwell, and the whole of the evidence goes to exonerate Mrs. Maxwell of immoral conduct; and those who know her will state her only failing is occasional fits of intemperance. The evidence of Jackson and wife, of Exchange Hotel, is important, as I believe the petition was started on account of a rumour that Mrs. Maxwell was in the closet with one of the men, and was removed by Jackson. This, Jackson says, he is prepared to swear, is untrue. Mr. Simpson's letter is also deserving of special notice, he having brought Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell together again, and satisfied himself from inquiry before he undertook the duty, that rumours about her having a tendency to immorality were utterly without foundation. In conclusion, I would merely add that, having exhausted all available evidence, I feel certain that there is not the slightest foundation to suppose Mrs. Maxwell to be an immoral character; and further, that these reports have been circulated by persons who either have no faith in the virtue of women, or who believe if a woman takes a glass of liquor she must necessarily be a bad character.

Tracey and Hennessy.

I have, &c.,

JAMES BRAY, P.M.

P.S.—I omitted to state that I also found, on inquiry, that Mrs. Maxwell is not in the habit of frequenting public-houses. Some of the evidence points to this.—J.B.

[Enclosures.]

William Martin: I remember the 21st March last; about 4 o'clock in the afternoon I was out on the flat, looking for horses; I saw Baird and Saul then; they beckoned to me to go to them; I went, and they told me there was one of our horses sick; I said I did not think so; I asked them how long they had been there, and they said two hours; they asked to come and see where the horse was sick, and pointed to a tree; I went and looked, but could not make out what it was; I said I would go and see, and I rode down to where it was, and I saw a woman, with a red dress on, lying down, and her clothes were up; Hennessy was on the top of her; she was not struggling or resisting him in any way, or I would have got off the horse and assisted her; neither spoke; he looked round towards me partially; her clothes were up, and she was bare and exposed, and I saw her bare legs; I turned and went away, and after this I returned to Baird and Saul; I said to them "You had me," and they said they had been there two hours; I afterwards left Baird and Saul; I saw the man and woman in a sitting posture, and they seemed to me to be friendly; no struggling, only sitting there; only one man was there when I was there, viz., Hennessy.

Mrs. Fanny Cordell: I am the wife of Robert Cordell; he is a sawyer at Mr. Cotter's mill; I recollect the Wednesday in March, when a woman, who was dressed in a sort of red or bright dress, was standing on the Gundurimba Road; a man was about 10 yards behind her; I was washing that day, and I saw nothing more; they were three streets from my door; I knew neither the man nor the woman.

Mrs. John Pascoe: I am the wife of John Pascoe, of Lismore, plumber; I remember that I was on the footpath, opposite my own door, in Keen-street, when I saw a woman with a red dress on. She passed me in the street; there was a man with her; she was on his arm, and they went straight along the street; they appeared to be friendly; I did not know Mrs. Maxwell nor the man; I did not see the faces of either.

George Larkins, Esq., J.P.: I reside at Lismore; I recollect Wednesday, the 21st March last; I rode across the flat, towards the recreation ground, Lismore; I saw two men and a woman sitting under a tree; I did not recognize either as they did not look round; the men were sitting on the roots of the tree and the woman was about 1½ yards away; I was within 30 or 40 yards away from them; the woman could have seen me passing, and, if she had liked, she could have called out to me; I saw no assault or abuse of any kind; my brother was along with me; she had an opportunity of calling to us for assistance had she required it; it was between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon when I saw the parties.

Joseph

Joseph Greenhalgh: I reside on the Benhill Road, near Lismore; I know Mrs. Maxwell; she lived across the street opposite me; the Chinamen have two huts, one in my paddock and one in another paddock near; Mrs. Maxwell is greatly given to drink; on Monday night before she was locked up by the police for being drunk; there was a little house of mine in the paddock; on Sunday I noticed it vacant and found the door open; I watched on Monday night; I hid myself near the house and watched, and about 9 o'clock that night Mrs. Maxwell came to the house; she went to the door that had been open and found it fastened; she then went round to the front, and put her hand in through a broken pane and opened the window; she then went in, and I heard someone come along behind her, and I found it was Brown and Hassett, the policemen; they knocked at the door and asked was anyone in; she answered, "Yes;" they said, "Open the door," and she said, "Go round to the back," and one of them went round to the back, and she opened the door; they went in then, and then I came forward; Hassett said, "Is this house yours, and did you——;" she always broke out on the spree when Mr. Maxwell went away, and he goes away often on his business.

William Cowley: I am a farmer, and reside near Lismore, in Ballina-street, and junction of the Gundurimba Road; I recollect the 21st of March, about 3 o'clock or so; I remind seeing a man and a woman who had a red dress on; they were in Conway-street, coming towards the Gundurimba Road; I was about 7 chains away from them; they appeared to be walking arm and arm together; there were two other men walking a little behind the man and woman; I did not recognize either from the distance; I saw the woman fall several times as, I thought, from the effects of liquor; the man assisted her to rise, and then they went over to the recreation ground, and I paid no further attention; when nearly dark, I saw the woman and the three men, I think, go towards the town when the police came up.

M. Ruhane, states: I am a dairy-man here and know Mrs. Maxwell; I have served her with milk since she came on the River till some few months ago; I have never had any reason to suspect her of immorality; I have never seen anything to warrant the smallest suspicion; she was always most respectable and clean looking.

David Jackson states: I keep the Exchange Hotel here; Mrs. Maxwell was here on the day she was assaulted; I do not think she was intoxicated; she may have had some drinks, but I could not tell it on her; she was never here before; she came about 12 o'clock noon and asked for a small ale as she was ill and just left the doctor, and required ale before she took her physic; she then had some ale and cheese; she was in and out several times to a Mrs. White's close at hand; she left here about 2 p.m.; I did not see her near any man or near Tracey and Hennessy.

Sarah D. Jackson states: I am the wife of David Jackson, and saw Mrs. Maxwell here the day she was assaulted; she drank one small bottle of ale and took one away; when she left I did not see her near the three men who were charged; I saw nothing whatever in her conduct while here to induce me to think she was a bad character; she was quite proper while here.

I did not see her near the closet or the men either—or the men near her.—D. J.

Constable Hassett reports re Mrs. Anna Maxwell that he has been stationed at Lismore for about six months and has known Anna Maxwell during most of that time. The constable has never heard anything against her moral character. The constable in company with Constable Brown arrested Mrs. Maxwell in Keen-street Lismore about 8 p.m., 20 March last, on a charge of drunkenness, being found lying drunk on the foot-path. The constable was informed by a respectable citizen that some night previous she had slept in an empty house adjoining his premises apparently under the influence of drink.

Annie Bashford states : I am in the employ of Mrs. Borton of Lismore ; I have known Mrs. George Maxwell for over four years ; I came from Glasgow with her three years ago ; before leaving Scotland with Mrs. Maxwell I was living with her about twelve months, during which time she was in the habit of taking drink sometimes to excess ; she always remained at home when drinking ; I left Scotland with her for New South Wales, and was in the saloon with her ; she was under the influence of liquor very often coming out in the ship ; after we landed in Sydney I accompanied her and family to Lismore ; Mr. Maxwell met us in Sydney and also came with us ; I left Mrs. Maxwell about a month after we arrived at Lismore ; during my knowledge and intimacy with Mrs. Maxwell I have never seen anything in her conduct in the slightest that was improper except in taking drink ; I have no reason to believe she was immoral ; whilst I was living with Mrs. Maxwell she has often asked me to go for drink, and after I left she has sent the children, but I do not think she went to a public-house to drink ; Mrs. Maxwell was always a clean, good housekeeper, and a kind mother when not under the influence of drink.

ANNIE BASHFORD.

Witness,—GEO. WELLS, Senior-Sergeant.

Dear Sir,—

With reference to the inquiries which you are making as to Mrs. Maxwell's antecedents, I may be permitted to say that recently, while acting in the capacity of a friend of Mr. Maxwell, and endeavouring to mediate between him and his wife, I made many inquiries as to her conduct, which I would not have under other circumstances felt justified in doing, nor would I have cared for it. The result has convinced me that Mrs. Maxwell's one fault was intemperance ; not one of the many charges or insinuations of immoral conduct has been substantiated, and the more one inquired the more intangible and baseless they appeared to become. In reference to the matter more especially under investigation—the recent attempt at outrage upon Mrs. Maxwell, I have not yet found anyone who could prove anything like collusion or acquiescence upon her part, and I myself think such a thing wholly improbable. I may also add that her husband has also expressed a similar conviction.

In assisting to get up the petition in favour of remitting the flogging portion of the sentence upon the prisoners Tracey and Hennessy, I was more influenced by the expressed opinions of several jurymen that they would have acquitted them had they supposed that flogging would have been part of the sentence, than by any belief in Mrs. Maxwell's complicity, as I feared the severity of the sentence might defeat the ends of Justice in future cases of a like nature, and while for the above reason I hope the flogging will not be inflicted, I do not think Mrs. Maxwell contributed in any way to the brutal offence committed excepting by her helpless state of intoxication at the time.

Minute by The Under Secretary of Justice.

Subject :—Case of Tracey and Hennessy, convicted before His Honor Judge Murray, at Lismore Quarter Sessions, on 9th ultimo, of an indecent assault on Anna Maxwell, and sentenced to imprisonment, with hard labour, in Grafton Gaol for three years, and to receive twenty-five lashes on 6th instant.

ON 25th ultimo a petition was presented to the Minister of Justice, signed by the Bishop of Grafton, the Mayor of Lismore, several jurymen who sat in the case, and others, residents of Lismore, praying that the whipping portion of the sentence in the above case should be remitted. Verbal representations were also made to the Minister to the same effect from one of the members of the district and others.

In view of the doubt raised as to the previous character of the prosecutrix, and the fact brought under notice that she was more or less intoxicated at the time the assault took place, and that her evidence therefore might not be entitled to weight, the Minister for Justice felt it to be his duty to direct the postponement of the whipping until 22nd instant, to enable full inquiry to be made into the antecedents of the woman, &c.

The question is now raised as to whether the postponement of the sentence of whipping beyond the time fixed by the judge has not rendered it illegal to carry out that portion of the sentence. Upon this question it would be desirable that the opinion of the Attorney-General should be asked without delay, as, if he thinks that the sentence of whipping cannot be now legally carried out, it will be unnecessary to consider on the merits of the case any recommendation should be made to his Excellency the Governor for remission.

I might here suggest that, in the event of the Attorney-General being of opinion that the sentence of whipping cannot now be carried out, he might also be asked whether it would not be advisable to include some provision, if practicable, in the proposed Bill to Amend the Criminal Law Amendment Act, now before Parliament, rendering it legal to postpone the punishment of whipping pending inquiries.

OPINION.

I AM of opinion that the punishment of whipping cannot legally be inflicted now. Sec. 401 of the "Criminal Law Amendment Act" enacts that the time of whipping shall be specified in the sentence, and this was done—viz., 6th June; on that day only could the whipping legally take place.

Sec. 9 of Letters Patent dated 29th April, 1879, provides that the Governor may respite the execution of a sentence, but I do not think that power has any application to a case like the present. Moreover the Governor did not respite the execution.

The Bill now before Parliament relates to appeals from summary convictions, and the insertion of the provision suggested would exceed the leave to introduce the Bill.—G.B.S., 19/6/88.

No. 15.

Minute by The Minister of Justice.

As in terms of the Attorney-General's opinion the sentence of flogging cannot now be legally carried out, it is unnecessary for me to express any opinion upon the sufficiency of the reasons urged in the petition and in the other representations made to me in favour of the remission of such punishment.

The petition was received at this office on 25th May, and forwarded in usual course, on same day, to Judge Murray, for report. The Judge's report was received by me on 1st instant, five days prior to the day fixed for the flogging.

I felt it to be my duty to satisfy myself as to the antecedents of the prosecutrix and other important matters brought under my notice in the petition, &c., and also to obtain and peruse the Judge's notes taken at the trial; and from the limited time afforded me for these purposes I had no other alternative than to direct the postponement of the punishment of flogging.

To prevent any recurrence of a sentence of flogging lapsing through a similar necessity arising of inquiring into the case of a prisoner, the provision suggested to the Attorney-General in minute of 18th instant, 88-7,336, should be inserted in the Bill for the amendment of the Criminal Law Amendment Act now being prepared by me; and pending such amendment of the law, the Judges should be asked, when fixing the date for carrying out the punishment of flogging, to give ample time for inquiry, in the event of a petition for remission or mitigation being presented.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CASE OF THE QUEEN v. BOWLER.
(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 3 May, 1888.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 24 April, 1888, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all letters and telegrams received by the Department of the Attorney-General having reference to the change of venue from Forbes to Bathurst in the case of the Queen v. Bowler; also, all replies by letter or telegram having reference to the same.”

(Mr. Stokes.)

R. Jones, Esq., to The Clerk of the Peace.

Sir,

Sydney, 18 February, 1888.

In re Regina v. Bowler, you will doubtless by this time have been officially notified by the Forbes Bench of Magistrates of the committal of S. G. Bowler to take his trial at the Quarter Sessions to be holden in Forbes on the 6th March next, on the serious charges of obtaining money under false pretences and selling sheep, the wool of which was under lien to ourselves, without first obtaining our consent.

This Company, being the prosecutor in the case, we respectfully beg that the Attorney-General be asked to change the venue of the trial to the Bathurst Circuit Court, our reasons for making such application being as follows, viz. :—

That we feel positive a fair trial would not be got in Forbes, Bowler being an old resident of that district and much sympathy being expressed for him. He having so many friends there, we have no doubt influence would be brought to bear, and possibly one or more of these might be on the jury in his favour. After the committal it was common talk in the town that he would not be convicted if tried at Forbes. Affidavits in confirmation of the foregoing statements can, we believe, be procured from the Sergeant of Police at Forbes and others there who have informed us of the strong feeling in his favour, and believing that the ends of justice would be defeated if the trial took place in Forbes, we hope that the Attorney-General will accede to our request.

There are but few witnesses in the case, the prosecution not having more than four or five; the writer being the principal one, and as there were not more than three or four called for the defence, only a small extra expense would be incurred by the change.

We may mention that our Company has been put to much trouble and expended a considerable amount in bringing the case to its present stage.

I have, &c.,

27 February, 1888.

IN reply to your telegram of the 25th instant, we cannot possibly say whether the interests of justice will be interfered with if venue of case Regina v. Bowler is changed to Bathurst Circuit Court, but in our opinion the interests of justice will be fully maintained if case is dealt with at Forbes Quarter Sessions, to which Court we committed defendant.

WM. BROOKE, J.P.,

Chairman.

EDMOND A. T. PERY,

J.P., and Deputy Clerk of the Peace.

Apart altogether from the question as to whether the ends of justice will be attained or defeated by reason of a trial at Forbes, and the popularity of the prisoner there, or alleged feeling of sympathy with him, I consider that the cases from their nature and importance, and in consequence of points of law which may arise, should be tried at the Supreme Court, and I order them to be removed to the next Circuit Court at Bathurst, necessary steps to be taken, Crown witnesses to be subpoenaed, &c., and the depositions and papers to be returned to me. Recognizances should have been for appearance at Forbes Quarter Sessions or such other time or place, &c., &c. Bail should be given for the appearance of the prisoner at Bathurst Circuit Court.—G.B.S., 27/2/88.

P.S.—Action is now being taken to carry out the decision already given by the Attorney-General for changing the venue to Bathurst Circuit Court.—W.W.S., 28/2/88. Seen. Place with other papers.—G.B.S., 29/2/88.

- (2.) In the absence of any express direction, costs of an opposed motion shall follow the event, and shall be taxed as between party and party.

Orders to be sealed, signed, and filed.

29. Every order for payment of money and costs, or either of them, shall be sealed, and be signed by the Registrar, and shall be forthwith filed with the proceedings.

Solicitor's costs in case of petition by debtor.

30. The solicitor in the matter of a bankruptcy petition presented by the debtor against himself shall, in his bill of costs, give credit for such sum or security (if any) as he may have received from the debtor, as a deposit on account of the costs and expenses to be incurred in and about the filing and prosecution of such petition; and the amount of any such deposit shall be noted by the taxing officer upon the allocatur, and if the amount received from the debtor as aforesaid exceed the amount of the taxed costs, the solicitor shall pay the balance to the Official Assignee or trustee.

Costs paid otherwise than out of estate.

31. When a bill of costs is taxed under any special order of the Judge, and it appears by such order that the costs are to be paid otherwise than out of the estate of the bankrupt, the taxing officer shall specially note upon the allocatur by whom, or the manner in which, such costs are to be paid.

Sheriff's costs.

32. In any case in which, pursuant to section 54 (1) of the Act, the sheriff is required to deliver property to an Official Assignee or trustee, he shall, without delay, bring in his bill of costs for taxation, which shall be taxed by the Registrar; and unless such bill of costs is brought in for taxation within one month from the date when the sheriff makes such delivery, the Official Assignee or trustee may decline to pay the same.

Taxation of costs.

33. The Official Assignee or trustee, if required by the Registrar or other taxing officer, shall either personally or by his attorney attend before the Registrar or other taxing officer on the taxation of all costs relating to the estates committed to his charge.

Taxation of Sheriff's costs after deduction.

34. If the Official Assignee or trustee shall, in writing, require any costs which a sheriff has deducted under section 54 (2) of the Act to be taxed, the sheriff shall, within seven days from the date of the request, bring in such costs for taxation, which shall be taxed by the Registrar; and any amount disallowed on such taxation shall forthwith be paid over by the sheriff to the Official Assignee or trustee as the case may require.

Notice of appointment.

35. Every person whose bill or charges is or are to be taxed shall in all cases give not less than three clear days notice of the appointment to tax the same to the Official Assignee and to the trustee (if any).

Copy of bill.

36. Every person whose bill or charges is or are to be taxed shall, on application either of the Official Assignee or the trustee, furnish a copy of his bill or charges so to be taxed, on payment at the rate of 4d. per folio, which payment may be charged to the estate. The Official Assignee or trustee shall call the attention of the Registrar to any items which, in his opinion, ought to be disallowed or reduced.

Applications for costs.

37. Where any party to, or person affected by any proceeding desires to make an application for an order that he be allowed his costs, or any part of them, incident to such proceeding, and such application is not made at the time of the proceeding—

- (1.) Such party or person shall serve notice of his intended application on the Official Assignee, and if a trustee has been appointed on the trustee.
- (2.) The Official Assignee and trustee may appear on such application and object thereto.
- (3.) No costs of or incident to such application shall be allowed to the applicant, unless the Judge is satisfied that the application could not have been made at the time of the proceeding.

Priority of costs and charges payable out of estate.

38. The assets in every matter remaining, after payment of the actual expenses incurred in realising any of the assets of a bankrupt, shall, subject to any order of the Judge, be liable to the following payments, which shall be made in the following order of priority, namely:—

- (1.) The actual expenses incurred by the Official Assignee in protecting the property or assets of the bankrupt, or any part thereof, and any expenses or outlay incurred by him or by his authority in carrying on the business of the bankrupt.
- (2.) The fees payable under the 3rd schedule, and percentage under section 137.
- (3.) The remuneration of the Official Assignees or trustees.
- (4.) The taxed costs of the petitioner.

Costs of unnecessary petition.

39. In any case in which, after a bankruptcy petition has been presented by a creditor against a debtor, and before the hearing of such petition, the debtor files a petition, and a sequestration order is made on the petition of the debtor, unless in the opinion of the Judge the estate has benefited thereby, or there are special circumstances which make it just that such costs should be allowed, no costs shall be allowed to the debtor or his solicitor out of the estate.

Apportionment of costs in case of partnership.

40. In the case of a bankruptcy petition against a partnership the costs payable out of the estates incurred up to and inclusive of the sequestration order shall be apportioned between the joint and separate estates in such proportions as the Official Assignee or trustee may in his discretion determine.

- (1.) Where the joint estate of any co-debtors is insufficient to defray any costs or charges properly incurred prior to the appointment of the trustee, the Official Assignee may pay or direct the trustee to pay such costs or charges out of the separate estates of such co-debtors, or one or more of them, in such proportions as in his discretion the Official Assignee may think fit. The Official Assignee may also, as in his discretion he may think fit, pay or direct the trustee to pay any costs or charges properly incurred, prior to the appointment of the trustee, for any separate estate out of the joint estate or out of any other separate estate, and any part of the costs or charges of the joint estate incurred prior to the appointment of the trustee which affects any separate estate out of that separate estate.
- (2.) Where the joint estate of any co-debtors is insufficient to defray any costs or charges properly incurred after the appointment of the trustee, the trustee, with such consent as is hereinafter mentioned, may pay such costs or charges out of the separate estates of such co-debtors, or one or more of them. The trustee, with the said consent, may also pay any costs or charges properly incurred for any separate estate, after his appointment, out of the joint estate, and any part of the costs or charges of the joint estate incurred after his appointment which affects any separate estate out of that separate estate. No payment under this Rule shall be made out of a separate estate or joint estate by a trustee without the consent of the committee of inspection of the estate out of which the payment is intended to be made, or, if such committee withhold or refuse their consent, without an order of the Judge.

APPEALS.

Mode of Appeal.

41. When any person, affected by any order or decision of the Judge, desires to appeal therefrom, he shall, within fourteen days after the making or pronouncing thereof, file in the office of the Registrar a memorandum of such appeal, signed by the party appealing or his solicitor; which memorandum, after specifying the order or decision in substance, shall state shortly the particular matter complained of therein, and the grounds of such complaint.

Further Provisions as to Time.

42. Provided that nothing in the last preceding rule, as to the time of appealing, shall apply to appeals from the granting, suspension, or refusal of a bankrupt's certificate. And provided that, in other cases, leave to file such memorandum of appeal may be granted by the Court, or a Judge, either during or after the expiration of the fourteen days limited, on such terms as may be thought proper.

Deposit to meet Costs.

43. At the time of filing such memorandum, or within such further time as the Judge may allow, the Appellant shall deposit £20 with the Registrar, or such other amount (not less than £10, nor more than £40) as the Judge may direct, to satisfy so far as it will extend any costs which may be awarded against such Appellant. And, if it shall appear to the Judge that there are respondents in separate interests, he may order a separate deposit in respect of each or any of such interests.

Discretion if bankrupt or debtor appeal.

44. Provided that in the case of an appeal by the bankrupt or debtor, the Judge may dispense with any such deposit if he thinks fit so to do.

Proceedings when Stayed.

45. No proceedings consequent on any order or decision appealed from shall be stayed, notwithstanding any such memorandum and deposit, unless the Judge shall, on such terms as may by him be thought just, direct proceedings to be stayed. Provided that where on such direction is given, and the matter appealed from involves the payment of money, or the delivery of any chattel or document the party to receive such money or chattel or document shall give sufficient security for the return thereof, in case a return shall be awarded.

Additional Evidence.

46. (1.) No evidence shall be used on the hearing of an appeal, other than such as was used before the Judge; unless the Court shall on such hearing (or on the application of one of the parties before the day of hearing), on such terms as it may think just, direct or allow other evidence to be used, or additional evidence to be taken and used, or any person examined before the Judge to appear and be examined before the Court, as the case may appear to the Court to require.

Disputes as to Evidence.

(2.) Whenever any question shall arise as to what evidence was used before the Judge, it shall be determined exclusively by his Certificate. And, where the parties to an appeal shall think fit so to do, the facts may be stated, with the question or questions for decision, in the form of a Special Case, to be approved of by the Judge.

Part II.—Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.

DECLARATION OF INABILITY TO PAY DEBTS.

Form of declaration.

The filing by the debtor upon whom a bankruptcy notice has been served of an affidavit to the effect that he has a counter claim, set off, or cross demand which equals or exceeds the amount of the judgment debt, and which he could not have set up in the action in which the judgment was obtained, shall operate as an application to set aside the bankruptcy notice, and thereupon the Registrar shall fix a day for hearing the application, and not less than three days before the day so fixed shall give notice thereof both to the debtor or creditor, or to their respective solicitors. If the application cannot be heard until after the expiration of the time specified in the notice as the day on which the act of bankruptcy will be complete, the Registrar shall extend the time, and no act of bankruptcy shall be deemed to have been committed under the notice, until the application has been heard and determined.

Setting aside notice.

51. When the Judge makes an order setting aside the bankruptcy notice, he may at the same time declare that no act of bankruptcy has been committed by the debtor under such notice.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION.

Form of petition.

52. A debtor's petition shall be in Form No. 6, and a creditor's petition in the Form No. 7, in the Appendix, with such variations as circumstances may require. After the presentation of a creditor's petition, and before signing and sealing the notice thereon, the statements contained in the petition shall be perused by the Registrar.

Where a petition is presented by a debtor he shall, besides inserting therein his name and description, and his address at the date when the petition is presented, further describe himself as lately residing or carrying on business at the address or several addresses, as the case may be, at which he has incurred debts and liabilities which at the date of the petition remain unpaid or unsatisfied.

(2.) Where a petition is presented against a debtor who resides or carries on business at an address other than the address at which the debtor was residing or carrying on business at the time of contracting the debt or liability in respect of which the petition is presented, the petitioning creditor, in addition to stating in the petition the description of the debtor, as of his then present address and description, shall in the petition describe the debtor as lately residing or carrying on business at the address at which he was residing or carrying on business when the debt or liability was incurred.

Deposit by petitioning creditor.

Upon the presentation of a creditor's petition, the petitioner shall deposit with the Registrar the sum of six pounds, and such further sum as the Registrar may direct to cover the Court fees and other necessary expenses of and incidental to the sequestration. The Registrar shall in all cases account to the creditor for the moneys so deposited.

Upon the presentation of a petition, the debtor shall deposit with the Registrar the sum of five pounds if the estate exceeds two hundred pounds, and three pounds if the estate is less than two hundred pounds, to cover the Court fees and other necessary expenses of and incidental to the sequestration, provided that the Registrar may if he thinks fit vary or remit the amount of the deposits. Joint petitioners.

57. When a petition is presented by two or more creditors jointly, it shall not be necessary that each creditor shall depose to the truth of all the statements which are within his own knowledge; but it shall be sufficient that each statement in the petition is deposed to by some one within whose knowledge it is.

Personal service.

58. A creditor's petition shall be personally served by delivering to the debtor a copy of the filed petition, with a sealed notice thereon, signed by the Registrar or other officer of the Court, of the time and place for the hearing of the petition. Service of the petition shall in all cases be proved by affidavit, with a copy of the petition attached.

Substituted service.

59. If personal service cannot be effected, or if the debtor petitioned against is not in the Colony of New South Wales, the Judge may extend the time for hearing the petition, or if the Judge is satisfied by affidavit or other evidence on oath that the debtor is keeping out of the way to avoid such service, or service of any other legal process, or that for any other cause prompt personal service cannot be effected, he may order substituted service to be made by delivery of the petition to some adult inmate at his usual or last known residence or place of business, or by registered letter, or in such other manner as the Judge may direct, and that such petition shall then be deemed to have been duly served on the debtor.

Several respondents.

60. Where there are more respondents than one to a petition, the rules as to service shall be observed with respect to each respondent; but where all the respondents have not been served, the petition may be heard separately or collectively as to the respondent or such of the respondents as has or have been served, and separately or collectively as to the respondents not then served, according as service upon them is effected.

Where a debtor intends to show cause against a petition he shall file a notice with the Registrar, specifying the statements in the petition which he intends to deny or dispute, and transmit by post to the petitioning creditor and his solicitor, if known, a copy of the notice three days before the day on which the petition is to be heard.

Non-appearance of debtor.

62. If the debtor does not appear at the hearing, the Judge may make a sequestration order on such proof of the statements in the petition as he shall think sufficient.

Non-appearance of creditor.

63. If any creditor neglects to appear on his petition no subsequent petition against the same debtor or debtors, or any of them, either alone or jointly with any other person, shall be presented by the same creditor in respect of the same act of bankruptcy without the leave of the Judge to whom the previous petition was presented.

Proceedings after trial of disputed question.

64. (1.) Where proceedings on a petition have been stayed for the trial of the question of the validity of the petitioning creditor's debt, and such question has been decided in favour of the validity of the debt, the petitioning creditor may apply to the Registrar to fix a day on which further proceedings on the petition may be had, and the Registrar on production of the judgment of the Court in which the question was tried, or an office copy thereof, shall give notice to the petitioner, by post, of the time and place fixed for the hearing of the petition, and a like notice to the debtor at the address given in his notice to dispute, or to their respective solicitors.

(2.) Where such question has been decided against the validity of the debt, the dismissal of the petition without costs may be ordered on an application made ex parte.

Extension of time.

65. No order shall be made for an extension of time for the hearing of a petition beyond fourteen days from the days fixed for the hearing of the petition, unless the Judge is satisfied that such extension of time will not be prejudicial to the general body of creditors. * New trial refused. † His Honor Judge Forbes gave a verdict in this case on the 8th July, 1887, but afterwards not being satisfied that Mr. Edwards, plaintiff's attorney, had been instructed to take proceedings, or that the pro. note in question had been handed to him, he (His Honor) ordered a new trial, so that he could in the meantime communicate with the plaintiff, who was in Victoria. It was alleged by Mr. Edwards that the pro. note had been stolen from his office by the defendant. The document was not produced in Court. A verdict was finally given for plaintiff on the 24th November, 1887.
