1887-8.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MILITARY FORCES OF THE COLONY.

(ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1887.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

REPORT of the Major-General Commanding on the Military Forces of New South Wales for the year 1887 :—

Permanent Artillery.

THE strength of the corps on the 1st January last was 371 of all ranks out of an establishment of 376. The enlistments during the year amounted to 72, as against 65 in the previous twelve months. The number of men lost to the service were as follows :—By desertion, 28 ; deaths, 9 ; discharge, 55 ; total, 92,—as against 188 in 1886. The discharges are subdivided under the following heads :—On termination of limited engagement, 24 ; by purchase, 4 ; medically unfit for further service, 5 ; free, 1 ; incorrigible and worthless, 8 ; with ignominy, 1 ; services no longer required, 5 ; not likely to become efficient, 5 ; convicted of felony by civil power, 1 ; by authority of Governor and Commander-in-Chief, 1.

The distribution of the corps is as follows :—

	Officers.	Other Ranks.
Victoria Barracks	9	221
Dawes' Battery	12
Middle and George's Heads	1	39
Bradley's Head	1
South Head	1	36
Steel Point	1
Bare Island	1	20
Newcastle	1	28

The courts-martial numbered 30, and committals by summary award of the commanding officer 27, as compared with 60 and 50 respectively of the previous year ;—thus showing a decided improvement, which may be partly attributed to the weeding out of men of indifferent antecedents and character, who were hurriedly and somewhat indiscriminately enlisted during the war scare of 1885.

The fact of greater attention being now paid to the comfort and amusement of the men in barracks, and the establishment of a gymnasium, in addition to the library and recreation-room, no doubt exercises a beneficial effect on the general conduct of the corps. A better system of lighting the barrack-rooms, especially at the Heads, is much required, and would conduce materially to additional comfort.

Courses of instruction have been carried on during the past twelve months under Colonel Bingham, R.A., consisting in all of 5 officers, 18 non-commissioned officers, and 53 men, who, with those who have previously passed through the hands of the Imperial Instructors in 1886, give a total of 9 officers, 39 non-commissioned officers, and 152 men, thus forming a respectable nucleus of efficient gunners. It may here be mentioned that, in addition to affording instruction in Artillery subjects, the Imperial Instructors have given assistance in a variety of ways—such as serving on Boards on warlike materiel of every description, superintendence of drill, and firing, Boards of Examination, &c., and in point of fact they have been generally useful. To Colonel Bingham especially my thanks are due for his cordial support and co-operation. Major Bunbury has evinced great zeal and interest in his work, and has voluntarily prepared for publication "Notes on Elementary Gunnery," also "Notes on Armour, and the Artillery Defence of a Fortress," which will be of use to the Artillery forces. Captain Milward has also done good work in connection with the Cavalry Brigade and Field Batteries.

The clothing of the corps, although appearing in a presentable condition at my inspection, has nevertheless been the source of considerable dissatisfaction, owing to the lateness of the annual supply ; besides which the contractor's failure in this respect necessitates the issue of a large sum of money by way of compensation for the delay.

The small arms and accoutrements were in good order, but in many instances the belts were not kept up to the standard to be expected of the regular soldier. A notable exception, however, was in the case of the Newcastle and Botany detachments, which passed inspection generally, in a manner highly creditable to the officers in command of those stations.

The drill as a rule was only fair, excepting that of the Armstrong detachments, which was good. Irregularities were noticed in the kits of No. 3 Battery. The books and records were generally well kept and posted, but that complete and uniform method which marks the Imperial Service in this respect is still wanting.

The various barracks and offices were found in a clean and creditable condition, as far as they could be so maintained by the corps. The drainage scheme for the Victoria Barracks is near completion, and when finished their sanitary condition will be much improved. The irregular and independent action of the contractor for the emptying of closets, ash-pits, &c., keeps those receptacles in a condition dangerous to health, and the source of much annoyance, notwithstanding frequent reports on the subject have been preferred.

All the outlying forts, ordnance, and magazines were maintained in good order, as also were the stores, as far as could be judged by what must necessarily be but a cursory inspection on my part. It has however been discovered that the ammunition in the Southern District had, in certain instances, much deteriorated, and a Board was detailed to inspect and report upon the condition of the ammunition throughout the command.

The Permanent Artillery, in addition to their ordinary employment, have done a large amount of work in mounting, dismounting, and transporting ordnance, removal of ammunition, cleaning and painting guns, &c.

Staff-Surgeon Major Williams delivered a six weeks' course of lectures on ambulance, stretcher, and bearer drill, to the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the corps. Besides giving attention in class, they evinced considerable skill in carrying out the practical part of the work. At the end of the course, a field-day was held, and the formation of a collecting and dressing station, with the removal of the wounded, proceeded with, and gave satisfactory results.

Surgeon Major Williams, in medical charge of the Permanent Artillery, reports, that during the past year 103 recruits presented themselves for examination. Of this number, 98 were passed, and 5 rejected. Of the former number, 25 were for re-engagement, and 29 Ex-Imperial soldiers. The average chest measurement of the men passed was, $37\frac{3}{4}$ inches; height, 5 feet $8\frac{3}{4}$ inches; weight, 10 stone $10\frac{1}{2}$ lb.; and the physique generally quite up to that of previous years.

There were 280 admissions to the Garrison Hospital in 1887, many of the cases being of a slight nature, and only detained until fit for duty; 16 cases detained under 24 hours; 63 under 72 hours; 81 under 168 hours. The diseases may be summarized under heads of:—

Respiratory organs	24
Nervous disorders	11
Disease of eye and skin	13
General	93
Genito-Urinary organs	49
Alimentary canal	28
Injuries... ..	58
Malingering	4

There were five deaths in hospital during the year, in addition to which three gunners were unfortunately drowned by the upsetting of a boat at Botany, on the 24th September, and one gunner committed suicide at Middle Head, on the 11th November.

At my annual inspection (and at other times) I have found the hospital clean, and in good order, and in all respects, as far as I am able to judge, conducted in a manner creditable to all concerned.

The prisoners in the military provost were usefully employed, and thus saved a certain amount of expenditure, which would otherwise have fallen upon the public, and the Provost Serjeant-Major continues to perform his duties to my satisfaction, and on the lines laid down by the Imperial regulations for the conduct of such establishments.

Volunteers (partially paid).

The returns show on the 1st of January last, a strength of 2,680, out of an establishment of 2,831, or 151 short, which may be accounted for by the fact, that all corps are of necessity subject to slight fluctuation by men leaving, and the difficulty inseparable from forming recruit squads of workable numbers. Three or four corps show a decided inability to maintain their establishment, and it may shortly become a question as to their retention in this branch of the service.

The clothing, arms, and accoutrements, I found generally in good order, except in the case of accoutrements of Nos. 1, 7, and 8 Batteries Volunteer Artillery, and the Molong Corps Volunteer Infantry—a condition distinctly to be traced to the persistent neglect of commanding officers to inflict fines. This points to the conclusion that these officers are either incapable of appreciating and acting up to their responsibilities, or that they wilfully neglect their duty,—either through fear of their men, or to enjoy a cheap popularity at the expense of the Service. I cannot hold the Regimental Staff free from blame in this respect, as it is clearly their duty to make officers do their work or resign.

As regards the Volunteer Artillery, I found the drill, as a rule, very fair, and in cases good. Although more occasion has been taken to drill at the Heads, and on the guns they would have to use in action, the want of a School of Instruction, on a small scale is much felt, and until one is erected in a central position, this branch of the Service cannot possibly be as efficient as it should be. Neither officers, non-commissioned officers, nor men, enjoy the leisure necessary to enable them to attend the school at Middle Head.

The drill of the Torpedo Corps, as far as it goes, is very fair; but as has been frequently pointed out officers and others serve under disabilities which preclude them obtaining a thoroughly practical knowledge of their work, and we can but hope that the question may at some time or other be taken up in a spirit which will place greater advantages in their way.

The drill and work carried on by the Engineer Corps is good and sound, for in addition to the modelling shed, which offers special facilities for instruction, the corps requirements are of a nature to be easily supplied.

Classes of instruction have been held by Major Penrose, R.E., in addition to his general superintendence of the work of the Torpedo and Engineer Corps. This officer has also been employed on details connected with fortifications, preparation of plans, specification, &c., and has otherwise been of great assistance, sparing neither pains nor trouble to render his services as useful as possible.

The Infantry drill was generally good with two or three exceptions.

The general conduct and discipline of this branch of the force is satisfactory, and the number of efficient is 73 per cent. as compared with 74 of previous year. Considering the exacting standard required for efficiency and the depressed state of the labour market, this percentage may be taken as very satisfactory.

ANNUAL CONTINUOUS TRAINING.

This consisted of six and nine days respectively, and was held at Easter, at the National Park and Middle Head. The former was attended by 1 troop of Reserve Cavalry (Lancers), 1 Field Battery of Permanent Artillery, 1 Field Battery of Volunteer Artillery, 1 Company of Engineers, and 4 Regiments of Infantry, numbering 2,121. In addition to this number a Battalion of 500 Reserves also stayed in camp from Friday till Monday, both days inclusive. Middle Head was attended by 591 Artillery and Torpedo Corps, in addition to 229 of the Permanent Artillery.

At the National Park, two Brigades were formed, and were exercised in work common to service in the Field—such as Guard and Outpost duties, Cavalry and Field Artillery exercises, and stable duties. Company, Battalion, Brigade, and Divisional drills, both in close and extended order. The attack and defence of positions. The construction of rifle-pits, shelter-trenches, gun-pits, &c., visual signalling by flags, heliograph, and by lamps. At the Middle Head Camp, the Artillery was exercised in the usual artillery work.

In regard to the Torpedo Corps, I regret to observe that, although a regular programme of work had been previously prepared, which, amongst other things, embraced the laying out and maintaining efficient a Mine-field, which, in anticipation, had been duly proclaimed and buoyed off, the necessary steamer was not forthcoming, and consequently next to no real work could be attempted, and the corps was deprived of the one annual opportunity of doing some real practical submarine mining.

In the words of Major Penrose, R.E., "It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the Government, that experiments with small charges in Berry's Bay are almost useless towards training men to submarine mining work. What is wanted is good practical work with real mines, real cables, and in rough tidal waters. This can only be attained during the time of continuous training." It is needless to add that a steamer of the miner class, as recommended by me in January, 1883, and subsequently, is absolutely essential if this corps is to be made efficient. If such a steamer was available, she could also be used as the Artillery Guard Boat in place of that at present hired, at a cost of some £700 or £800 per annum. I consider it here unnecessary to refer to other disabilities under which this branch of the service has permanently laboured, inasmuch as they are alluded to in General Schaw's report; but sufficient has been said to give some idea of the obstacles Lieutenant-Colonel Cracknell and his officers have met with in attempting to carry out their important duties.

The bearing of the men in both Camps left nothing to be desired. An excellent spirit, as usual, prevailed the force, and a loyal support was given by all ranks to the military authorities in their endeavour to make the annual training as valuable as possible. One point is deserving of special commendation, viz., that notwithstanding on the day upon which the six days training ended, and when the whole force was free to leave the Camp without prejudice to their efficiency, and when the Camp was flooded out, fires extinguished, with little prospect of the weather clearing, out of a force of 2,121 at National Park, but 91 returned to their homes. If anything were needed to prove the staunchness of the men, and their esprit de corps, this should be sufficient. This continuous training is assuredly of the highest importance, and the additional drills performed throughout the year, keep up the military spirit, and some knowledge of the valuable work done at Easter.

VOLUNTEER RESERVES.

The strength of the Reserves amounts to 2,345, as compared with 2,711 of previous year; but this includes several corps doing no drill, but merely awaiting the decision of the Government as to the continuation of their services under less exacting conditions.

The clothing, arms, and accoutrements were, as a rule, in fair order.

The drill of the Cavalry was, with one exception, very fairly performed, and the Tabulam troop is especially to be commended.

Nos. 11 and 12 Battalions of Artillery acquitted themselves creditably, the former markedly so in gun drill and knowledge of duties.

The Infantry drill I found, at my inspection, to be in many cases indifferent, some very fair, and in a few instances good. The Infantry Corps, which appear to me to be in the most satisfactory condition, are Scottish Rifles, Dubbo, Young, Glen Innes, Mittagong, Inverell, Hunter's Hill, Ashfield, Marrickville, Newtown, Uralla, Armidale, Grafton, Tenterfield, Cooma, Queanbeyan, and Bega.

The difficulties mentioned in my last report as to the sergeant instructors is being gradually got over, and the fact of Commanding Officers reporting irregularities and want of attention on the part of the same is bearing fruit. I should be failing in my duty were I not to specially mention the good work done by the Reserves who joined the Camp at the National Park for instruction, from Good Friday until the following Monday inclusive. Under the adverse circumstances of wretched weather, all duties were performed with cheerful alacrity, deserving of every commendation.

The number of efficient is still very low, being but 1,246, or 53 per cent. At the same time it is to be borne in mind that the disorganized condition of some corps heavily handicaps the force in the above respect.

A large number of corps, by reason of disabilities quoted in my last report, have, from time to time, shown a desire to be embodied as Reserve Rifle Companies, and it is to be hoped that the Government, by conceding thereto, will retain the services of men likely to form a valuable and economical addition to the military strength of the Colony. In my opinion the gain to the country, by banding these men together, has something more than a military significance, and no further time should be lost in taking advantage of the patriotic spirit so generally exhibited throughout the country.

MUSKETRY.

MUSKETRY.

The numbers under the partially paid system passed through the course of musketry, exclusive of Artillery, is as follows:—

Engineers...	36
Torpedo Corps	38

INFANTRY.

1st Regiment	403
2nd Regiment	375
3rd Regiment	382
4th Regiment	354
Total	1,588

The classification is as follows:—

Marksmen	496
1st class shots	892
2nd class shots	468

with percentages of 31·22, 55·15, 28·88, and 15·97 respectively, showing a vast improvement in the shooting of the force, as may be judged when it is mentioned that the figure of merit in 1885 was 26·79; in 1886, 39·56; and in 1887, 63·93. This satisfactory improvement may be traced to the attention and exertions of Captain Cuthell, the Officer Instructor of Musketry, Mr. Warrant Officer Furnish, and the Musketry Staff.

The best shooting Company is Richmond, with figure of merit of 93·49. Sergeant Fisher, of the Orange Company, 3rd Regiment, deserves especial mention as having made 154 points out of a possible 160.

During the biennial course required of Reserve Corps, it appears that for the years 1886–87 901 men went through the complete course; and here I may remark, in fairness to the Reserves, that it is manifest the Musketry figures quoted by General Schaw in his report had reference solely to the former year. Much difficulty has all along been met with in reference to providing suitable ranges, and consequently the instruction has been limited in extent. It would be obviously unfair to quote a general figure of merit, but it may not be out of place to note the Queanbeyan Corps as topping the list with 60·80.

CHANGES IN WORKS AND ARMAMENT.

Beyond completing the armament of armoured casemate battery at George's Head with three 10" 18-ton guns, transferred from other works, but little has been done.

The Gun Sites Committee, alluded to in my last report, have reported upon the steps necessary to utilize the new armament, and the re-arrangement of the Artillery defence generally, which from time to time has been communicated to the Government.

AMMUNITION AND STORES.

A large portion of the order sent to England in 1885 for guns, carriages, appliances, ammunition, machine guns, torpedoes, and rifles, has been received, but, in consequence of the want of storage, materiel has, in some instances, been placed under sheds, awaiting the completion of the necessary works.

With the exception of dropping gear, the order for Swartzkoff torpedoes has been completed; but here again, for want of proper storage, these delicate and expensive weapons are kept at Dawes' Battery, Berry's Bay, and Fort Denison, and the fighting heads in the powder hulks.

In a great measure it has been impossible (as with the guns, &c.) to have the cases opened, the different parts cleaned, examined, put together, and mistakes rectified, so that, from deterioration, &c., I should not be surprised if the original cost is considerably increased, before all the gear can be said to be in proper working order.

One set of air-compressing machinery for Swartzkoff torpedoes has been set up, and found to work well, and two torpedoes were connected up, adjusted, and used with success during the last Easter encampment by Lieutenant Bosanquet, R.N., who, I may here remark, has for nearly two years had the offensive torpedo materiel and boats in charge. These latter have been taken out monthly, and had the machinery kept in order by labour furnished from the "Wolverene" through the courtesy of Mr. Walker, the chief engineer. Lieutenant Bosanquet has also formed voluntary classes from the Naval Artillery Volunteers, and instructed two crews in the use of the torpedo. Other classes now under a course of instruction will furnish men enough from this corps to work eight torpedo boats.

In consequence of the disconnected and generally irresponsible system of defence which unfortunately obtains, this officer, although not responsible to any military or naval officer, has on occasions found it necessary to apply to me for assistance, &c., and I therefore feel that I may properly refer to his services.

The insufficiency of torpedo stores quoted in last year's report, still exists.

Artillery, and small arm ammunition is maintained according to scale.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The most noteworthy incident during the past year, and one which should exert a potent influence on the local defence question, has been the action of the Government in calling in the assistance of Major-General Schaw, C.B., R.E., who is a specialist of the first order in respect to fortifications, armament, and torpedoes.

Major-General Schaw has given advice which, I think, but few would venture to call in question, and I am persuaded that if his views are in the main carried out, the Colony will possess a thoroughly reliant system of defence. The tendency to panic and abnormal expenditure usually attendant on war scares will also be reduced to a minimum.

I consider it my duty to refer to that portion of the General's report which touches upon the organization of the Volunteer Infantry Forces under the partially paid system, because an erroneous impression seems to have been formed therefrom.

It

It will be gathered that the General condemns the existing organization of the Volunteer Infantry, because the number of the rank and file per regiment is too small, and consequently extravagant and bad for discipline and efficiency.

The question then arises,—how did this state of affairs come about? Simply because the Government of the day required a reduction in the annual expenditure of the Military Forces, which could only be effected by a reduction of the personnel. This principle was advisedly applied for the most part to the rank and file, in order that the cadres of regiments might be maintained as far as possible, such being the best known method of evolving a war strength from that maintained during peace. It must be patent to all, that it is far easier and quicker to build up an efficient military body by the absorption of men, who, like the rank and file require but little training, than of those of the higher ranks, for in the one case it takes months and in the other years to make the efficient soldier. In point of fact this is the way the General himself proposes to raise battalions to a war strength, viz., by the incorporation of undrilled men into the ranks.

I think it may therefore be assumed that General Schaw did not intend to reflect upon the military administration, but rather to allude to the occasion which necessitated the reduction of regiments to skeleton proportions.

I now beg to draw attention to the wholesale manner in which the camp equipage has been habitually used for purposes other than military, and notably in the loan of tents to the unemployed. Some hundreds of these have, from time to time, been thus destroyed, and the Department saddled with the cost of renewal. It may possibly be necessary, in the interests of the public, to occasionally draw on the military stores; but I respectfully hold that the articles so drawn should be by purchase, and the Military Department thus enabled to replace stores, &c., with as little delay as possible.

Some short time prior to the reduction of the establishment of the Volunteer Force under the partial payment system, all details connected with the formation of a Volunteer Ambulance Corps were drawn out by Surgeon Major Williams and, had not the depletion of regiments intervened, the matter would have been brought, in due course, under the consideration of the Government. This will yet be done, should General Schaw's recommendations be accepted as to increase of strength.

The formation of the Centennial Park has deprived the Head Quarter Forces of their rifle range, and unless another is speedily substituted, the annual course of musketry for these must be abandoned. From a military point of view, this is a serious drawback to efficiency, and one which in other respects will have a very disheartening effect. The new ground selected some time ago at Randwick, and recommended for resumption, appears to be well suited for the advanced requirements of the Service.

In conclusion, I trust that Legislative action may shortly be taken to bring the partially-paid Volunteer Force under a Militia Act, for to all intents and purposes, it is a militia serving under conditions admirably suited to local exigencies. This organization, besides being generally in touch with that of the sister Colonies, is also calculated to facilitate the adoption of measures for the federal defence of Australia, when such may be deemed desirable.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

IMPERIAL MILITARY OFFICER.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING PROPOSED ENGAGEMENT OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 May, 1888.

The Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies to His Excellency the Governor.

Sir,

Downing-street, 31 January, 1888.

I have the honor to acquaint you that Her Majesty's Government have had under their consideration the proceedings of the Colonial Conference, in relation to the suggestion that provision should be made for the periodical inspection of the Colonial Military Forces by an Imperial officer of high standing. The discussion on this subject, reported at page 292 of the Proceedings of the Colonial Conference, has no doubt been under the consideration of your Government, and I have been in communication with the Secretary of State for War with reference to his letter printed at page 362 of the Proceedings. Mr. Stanhope has informed me that so soon as the necessary arrangements have been made with the Colonial Governments, His Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief will be prepared to nominate a competent officer to carry out the wish of the Colonial Governments.

From the tenor of the discussion at the Conference I gathered that what the Australasian Colonies would desire is the employment of an officer of high standing and reputation to advise, in the first instance, as to the organization of the various local forces on a uniform system, so as to enable those forces to co-operate effectively in time of need; and, further, that periodical inspections of the Colonial forces should be held in subsequent years by the same or by some other capable officer.

In order to assist the Colonies in jointly considering the subject, I have ascertained from the War Office that the pay and allowances of a Lieutenant-General on the Staff, which is the rank of an officer competent to hold the proposed periodical inspections recommended by His Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief, would be at the rate of £2,573 5s. per annum, besides travelling expenses.

The officer would require the services of an aide-de-camp, which would involve an additional charge of about £400 a year for pay and allowances, exclusive of travelling expenses.

I shall be obliged by your Government considering the whole question in conjunction with the other Colonial Governments, in order that it may be ascertained at an early date whether all the Colonies will take part in providing for the proposed inspection, and that the proportions in which the cost will be borne by the Colonies concerned may be defined.

I have, &c.,

H. T. HOLLAND.

Col. Sec.—C., 6/4/88.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 29 December, 1887.

When you were in Melbourne in last September we discussed, among other subjects, the importance to these Colonies of obtaining the services of a distinguished Imperial officer to inspect and report on our Colonial Military Forces generally, but more particularly to advise as to the best scheme for the organization of all the Australian Military Forces, for the purpose of an united defence in case of invasion. The name of Lord Wolsley was mentioned as the Military Officer whose advice and suggestions would have force and would command respect.

The proposal that an Imperial General Officer should occasionally inspect the Australian Forces has received the approval of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for War, and the concurrence of His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commander-in-Chief, as intimated in Sir Henry Holland's circular of 16th June last.

I therefore think it would be well if the Colonies would at this juncture unite in pressing upon the Imperial Government the importance of at once granting the services of the distinguished officer referred to.

It is true that the correspondence indicates that a General Officer would be "nominated" by His Royal Highness; but inasmuch as what is desired on this occasion is not merely an inspection of Troops, such as any General Officer might make, but the highest military advice as to united action of the Colonies in case of an invasion, I trust there will be no impropriety in our asking specifically for the services of Lord Wolseley.

With this object I would suggest that each Governor may be asked to communicate with the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and urge compliance with this proposal.

I forward a memorandum on the subject from the Minister of Defence, Sir James Lorimer.

I have, &c.,
D. GILLIES,
Premier.

[Enclosure.]

Memo. for the Hon. the Premier.

Defence Department, Melbourne, 28 December, 1887.

THE question of having a periodical inspection of our Colonial Military Forces by an Imperial General Officer of distinction was considered by the Colonial Conference, and there was a general expression of opinion that such an inspection would be highly desirable, and that a report by such an officer on the organization of our Forces and on the efficiency or otherwise of our means of defence against a hostile attack would be of great value to the Colonies.

Believing that there is absolute unanimity of opinion on this question on the part of the Australian Governments, and being aware that the Home Government and the authorities of the Imperial War Office highly approve of the idea, and that the Secretary of State for War will be anxious to comply with our wishes, I recommend that a joint application be at once made by the Australian Governments for such an inspection as I have indicated.

You will remember that when the Premier of New South Wales, Sir Henry Parkes, was in Melbourne last September, I suggested that Lord Wolseley should be the first Officer to be applied for, and that Sir Henry thoroughly approved of the suggestion.

I am sure all the Australian Governments would recognize the importance and the value of an inspection by that distinguished officer, and I know from personal intercourse with Lord Wolseley while in London that he would gladly visit Australia on such a mission if he had permission and was appointed to do so.

It must be obvious that the proposed inspection must be by an officer of the highest distinction, who could speak with such authority as to leave no doubt in the public mind as to the value and the weight to be attached to whatever advice he might deem it desirable to give.

Accordingly I strongly recommend that an urgent appeal be made to the British Government to appoint Lord Wolseley to inspect and report on the Military Forces of the Australian Colonies and to afford us such advice and assistance as our several circumstances may require, and which Lord Wolseley is so pre-eminently fitted to give.

JAMES LORIMER,
Minister of Defence.

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 27 January, 1888.

In acknowledgment of your letter of December 29, proposing that application be made to the British Government for the services of a distinguished Imperial officer to inspect the system of defence in these Colonies, I desire to say that the subject has been under consideration by this Government, and will be further and more fully considered.

Circumstances which, if not imposing difficulties, at least present grounds for careful examination and some delay, will render me unable to give a definite reply for a short time.

Assuming that this Government should ultimately concur in your proposal, it has been suggested by competent men here that Sir Frederick Roberts, who is an artillery officer, might probably be the best authority for our purposes.

I have, &c.,
HENRY PARKES.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 10 February, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th January, in reply to mine of the 29th December, stating that the question of inviting an Imperial Military Officer to inspect the Colonial Military Forces is under the consideration of your Government, and suggesting the name of Lieutenant-General Sir Frederick Roberts, R.A., as a suitable person to carry out the proposal in the event of its adoption.

I have, &c.,
D. GILLIES,
Premier.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 9 March, 1888.

With reference to previous correspondence relative to the proposed inspection of the Colonial Military Forces by an Imperial Military Officer, I beg to inquire whether you are yet in a position to give the views of your Government in the matter.

If so, I shall esteem it a favour if you will be so good as to inform me as to the decision at which you have arrived on the subject at your early convenience.

I have, &c.,
D. GILLIES,
Premier.

The

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, 30 March, 1888.

In reference to the subject of your letter of the 9th instant, and of previous correspondence, namely, the advisableness of securing the services of a military officer of high rank and reputation for the inspection of the Defence works of these Colonies, either continuously or at stated periods, this Government, while admitting the value and importance of your proposal, does not at present see its way to join in an engagement of so serious a character, in which it would have so little definite guidance in choice, and at the same time so much difficulty in estimating the precise consequences. It is only after much consideration that we have arrived at this conclusion.

In the necessary preparation and organization for our defence we must act for ourselves, and rely upon our own resources as in other scarcely less important provinces of self-government.

I have, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 29 March, 1888.*

With reference to the circular despatch of the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated the 31st January (a copy of which you have doubtless received), relative to the proposed inspection of the Colonial Military Forces by an Imperial Military Officer, I have the honor to again invite your attention to my letter of the 29th December, No. 4,884, on the same subject, regarding which you stated that you would be unable to give a definite reply for a short time.

I shall be glad if you will favour me, as early as convenient, with an expression of the views of your Government on the subject, as a joint response to the circular from the Colonial Office is desirable.

I may state that the Governments of Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, and Western Australia, as well as that of Victoria, are favourable to the proposal.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

*NOTE.—This letter was only received here on the 3rd April, and therefore has crossed the reply sent on the 30th March.—C.W., 3/4/88.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 9 April, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, and to express regret that my letter of the 29th idem was not received by you before yours was despatched, as there were some considerations mentioned in it which might justify a reconsideration of the conclusion arrived at in the letter now under acknowledgment. The first was the consideration of the despatch of the 31st January last, from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, which had just been received. The second was the intimation of the concurrence of so many of the Colonies in the proposal.

It is to be remembered that the question was originated at the late Colonial Conference in London, and that the important feature of the proposal contained in my letter of the 29th December last, was that a high military authority should "advise as to the best scheme for the organization of all the Australian Military forces for the purpose of an united defence in the case of an invasion."

This suggestion is within the scope of the proposal contained in the second paragraph of the despatch of 31st January referred to, and is described as "the organization of the various local forces on a uniform system, so as to enable those forces to co-operative effectively in time of need."

There appears from your letter to be some misapprehension about the proposal being one "for the inspection of the defence works of these Colonies." So far as I know the inspection of the defence works forms no part of the proposal; had it done so, I should agree with you that a proposal to reconsider the whole of our defence works was "of so serious a character," and involved "so much difficulty in estimating the precise consequences," as to justify the Government in declining to approve it.

In that light it is probable that I am to understand the last paragraph of your letter, in which you say "we must act for ourselves, and rely upon our own resources." No doubt that is true; but I feel sure that it is not intended to convey a determination to assume a position of isolation even on the occasion, it may be, of a great national emergency; or that any Colony would refuse to join the others in organizing a system to enable those local military forces, which have been provided and are now maintained by the Colonies at great cost, to co-operate effectively in time of need. Such a course would be quite opposed to that recently adopted in the matter of Naval Defence, when we all acted on the principle of helping one another.

I hope, therefore, that, seeing there is no proposal that an officer should inspect the "Defence works," your Government will, on reconsideration, approve the proposal contained in the despatch of the Secretary of State, that an officer should report on the best means to secure "the organization of the various local forces on a uniform system, so as to enable those forces to co-operate effectively in time of need."

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

CAPTAIN A. H. P. SAVAGE, PERMANENT ARTILLERY.

(PAPERS, &c., RESPECTING APPOINTMENT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 14 March, 1888.

RETURN to an Address adopted by the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, on 6th March, 1888, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers and correspondence in connection with the appointment of A. H. P. Savage to the rank of Captain and Adjutant of the “Permanent Artillery.”

(Mr. Wall.)

The General Officer Commanding the Military Forces to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Head Quarters, 26 July, 1887.

I have the honor to recommend that an additional Subaltern Officer be appointed to the Permanent Artillery on account of the recent increases to the strength of the corps, works, and artillery armament.

Incident to the above, I have also to recommend that the Adjutancy of the corps should, as in the Imperial service, be filled by an officer supplementary to the establishment of officers per battery. To this end I beg to suggest that Lieutenant Arthur Henry Patrick Savage be promoted to the rank of Captain.

This officer has served as a Subaltern for nearly nine years, and for some time has acted as Adjutant, to the satisfaction of his commanding officer. He is also senior qualified Lieutenant on the general list of the Military Forces.

I have, &c.,

JOHN S. RICHARDSON, M.-G.

1887-8.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

OFFICERS OF THE ROYAL NAVY UNDER COLONIAL GOVERNMENTS.

(DESPATCH RELATIVE TO THE EMPLOYMENT OF.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies to The Officer Administering the Government of New South Wales.

Sir,

Downing-street, 25 January, 1888.

With reference to previous correspondence relative to the employment of officers of the Royal Navy under Colonial Governments, and to the Rules as to the remuneration of these officers, issued by the Treasury, under the 6th section of the Superannuation Act, 1887, of which a copy is enclosed in my Circular Despatch of the 24th instant, I have the honor to transmit a copy of a letter from the Admiralty on the subject, dated the 2nd instant, and I shall be obliged if you will take such steps as may be necessary to give effect to their Lordships' wishes.

I have, &c.,
H. T. HOLLAND.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

Admiralty, 2 January, 1888.

With reference to previous correspondence relative to the employment of officers of the Royal Navy under Colonial Governments, and to the new Rules as to the remuneration of these officers, issued by the Treasury in September last, under clause 6 of the Superannuation Acts Amendment Bill of this Session, I am commanded by my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty to inform you that officers now holding such employment, and desirous of coming under the new Rules in accordance with Rule 16, will be informed, upon application to the Admiralty, through the Colonial authorities in the usual course, of the manner in which they will be allowed to count their Colonial Service under Rule 10, viz, whether as sea service, or sea service in a ship-of-war at sea, or sea service in command of a ship-of-war at sea.

2. I am to request that you will move the Secretary of State for the Colonies to cause the Colonial Governments employing Naval Officers to be informed accordingly, observing that full particulars as to the nature of the service of each officer applying should be furnished, to enable my Lords to attach a proper value, in a naval point of view, to his Colonial Service, when assessing it as above.

3. I am to observe that it is intended that the period of absence of a Naval Officer lent to the Colonies for Naval or Military employment shall not exceed three years from the date of his taking up his appointment, unless otherwise specially decided by my Lords.

4. Officers on the Active List of the Navy thus employed will be borne on the books of Her Majesty's Flagship on the station on which they may be employed, if appointed or coming under the new Rules, and consequently they will be subject to the Naval Discipline Act.

I am, &c.,
EVAN MACGREGOR.

The Under Secretary of State, Colonial Office.

1887-8.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MILITARY BRIGADE OFFICE.

(RETURN RESPECTING ACCOUNTS OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 10 July, 1888.[Laid upon the Table of this House, in answer to Question No. 5, of Tuesday, 10 July, 1888.]

TUESDAY, 10 JULY, 1888.

5. MR. WALL to ask THE COLONIAL SECRETARY,—

- (1.) What bonus (if any) was granted by the Government to the Audit Inspectors who examined the Brigade Office accounts?
- (2.) Was any special commendation or censure bestowed by the late Colonial Secretary upon either of them?
- (3.) If so, what was the nature of such, and for what cause?
- (4.) Do any or all of the members of the General Staff receive allowances for cost of travelling from Dawes' Battery to their places of residence; if so, what are the allowances?
- (5.) If so, what was the total amount paid to or on behalf of the members of the General Staff for cab and carriage hire during 1887?
- (6.) Are any of the officers of the General Staff, or have they been, provided with annual railway season tickets at the public expense?
- (7.) If so, how many, and what is the cost of each such ticket?
- (8.) Will he state what number of railway passes or orders were issued by members of the General Staff during the months of February, March, April, June, and October, 1887?
- (9.) Will he give the dates when and the persons to whom any passes were issued, and also the stations to which such passes or orders were made available?
- (10.) Will he state what amounts have been paid to members of the General Staff and Paymaster's Staff as travelling or personal allowances during April, 1887, giving names of the persons to whom payment was made, and dates of service?

Answers:—

- (1.) £75 to Mr. Inspector Row and £30 to an assistant, as recommended by the Auditor-General.
- (2 and 3.) I am not aware.
- (4.) The Assistant Adjutant-General receives ferry fares when on duty under 34 Vic. No. 19.
- (5.) No cab or carriage hire was charged for this purpose.
- (6.) Yes.
- (7.) Seven, about £35.

ANSWERS—(8 and 9).

Sydney: Charles Potter, Government Printer.—1887.

1887-8.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

VOLUNTEER FORCE REGULATION ACT OF 1867.

(REVISED REGULATIONS UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 5, sec. 50.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 5th December, 1887.

His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to make the following revised Regulations under the "Volunteer Force Regulation Act of 1867," to take effect from the 1st January next.

HENRY PARKES.

105. No Officer or Volunteer under the system of partial payment shall, except in the case of Medical Officers, Quartermasters, and Quartermaster Sergeants, be entitled to classify as an efficient on the 1st January of any year, unless during the previous year he has attended as under:—

ARTILLERY.

- (a) Continuous training and exercise for nine days at Easter, or other convenient time, and at such place as the Governor may appoint.
- (b) Two detached days out of three ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.
- (c) Eleven out of sixteen half-days ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places, in any part of the district to which his Regiment or Corps belongs, as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.
- (d) Shot practice to be included in any of the above, as the Officer Commanding Artillery Forces may direct.

ENGINEERS.

- (a) Continuous training and exercise for nine days at Easter, or other convenient time, and at such place as the Governor may appoint.
- (b) Two detached days out of three ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.
- (c) Eight out of twelve half-days ordered for training, exercise and instruction, at such times and places, in any part of the district to which his Corps belongs, as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.
- (d) Seven out of ten night drills ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places, in any part of the district to which his Corps belongs, as the Officer Commanding the Corps may appoint.

TORPEDO CORPS.

- (a) Continuous training and exercise for nine days at Easter, or other convenient time, and at such place as the Governor may appoint.
- (b) Two detached days out of three ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.
- (c) Fifteen out of twenty-two half days ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places, in any part of the district to which his Corps belongs, as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.

INFANTRY.

- (a) Continuous training and exercise for nine days at Easter, or other convenient time, and at such place as the Governor may appoint.
- (b) Two detached days out of three ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.

- (c) Nine out of thirteen half-days ordered for training, exercise, and instruction, at such times and places, in any part of the district to which his Regiment or Corps belongs, as the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force may appoint.

- (d) Course of Musketry.

CORPS AND REGIMENTS GENERALLY.

- (b) If absent with leave from annual inspection of Officer Commanding Volunteer Force or his representative, or through sickness duly certified, one attendance will be required in addition to those enumerated in (b) or (c).

REGIMENTS.

- (c) If absent without leave from annual inspection of Commanding Officer or his representative, or through sickness duly certified, one attendance will be required in addition to those enumerated in (b) and (c).

107. For the purpose of efficiency, the duration of parades shall be at least six hours for full day, two hours for half-day, and one hour at night; but should Corps or Regiments having assembled be dismissed through inclement weather or other cause before the hour specified be passed, such parade may be returned under the authority of the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force.

108. The Field Officers of a Corps or Regiment are not to be absent from Inspection by the Officer Commanding Volunteer Force without first having obtained his leave.

110. Other Officers and Volunteers who desire to be absent from Inspection for any special reason must apply to the Commanding Officers of Corps, stating reasons for their applications. If such reasons are not satisfactory, leave will be refused. In case of sickness a medical certificate must be transmitted within one week.

126. Pay and allowances shall be granted to the several ranks at such rates as may be sanctioned by the Government; but payment shall, under no circumstances other than those noted in paragraphs 23 and 106, be made, except for performance of actual duty, and on the following system,—for example, in the case of gunners, sappers, and privates:—

- (a) 10s. for each full day's attendance during the continuous and detached periods of training, and in the latter case to cover cost of provisions.
- (b) 5s. for each half-day's attendance.
- (c) 2s. for each night attendance.
- (d) 15s. for course of musketry with classification as marksman, 10s. as 1st-class shots, and 5s. as 2nd-class shots.
- (e) Balance unappropriated as above and equalling one-sixth of annual rate of pay as bonus for efficiency, and in the case of Torpedo Corps for extra proficiency.

(THIRD SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

VOLUNTEER FORCE REGULATION ACT OF 1867.

(RULES, 5TH REGIMENT SCOTTISH RIFLES.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 5, sec. 50.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 16th August, 1887.

His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to approve, in accordance with section 30 of the "Volunteer Force Regulation Act of 1867," of the accompanying Rules for the 5th Regiment Scottish Rifles, Volunteer Reserve.

HENRY PARKES.

5TH REGIMENT SCOTTISH RIFLES.

RULES adopted at a meeting of the Corps, held 28th February, 1887.

1. The Corps is serving as a Reserve Corps, under the "Volunteer Regulation Act of 1867," and each enrolled member by the act of joining becomes and is subject to the provisions of that Act and of any other Act by which it has been or shall be amended, and to all Regulations which have been or shall be issued under the authority of His Excellency the Governor, and to the Rules and Standing Orders of the Corps.

2. The Corps shall consist of two classes:—

- (1.) Enrolled members, who shall be divided into efficient and non-efficient.
- (2.) Honorary members, who shall not be enrolled for service.

3. Each candidate for enrolment in the Corps shall be proposed by two members. His full name, address, and profession or occupation, together with the names of his proposers, must be posted up at the Orderly Room of the Corps for not less than seven days, and shall be subject to the approval of a committee of officers, with whom the acceptance rests, subject to the Commanding Officer's approval.

4. Each enrolled member shall pay an entrance fee of five shillings and a quarterly fee of two shillings and sixpence, payable in advance, on or before the first day of January, April, July, and October in each year, commencing with the first quarter after enrolment.

5. Each member on joining must undertake to make himself efficient for three years should he remain so long in the Corps. In the event of his not making himself efficient, or quitting the Corps prior to the expiration of three years, he renders himself liable to pay to the funds of the Corps such sum as the Corps loses by reason of his default.

6. Any officer or other member who was returned in the list of non-efficient in the annual return of the Corps shall, on or before the 28th day of February next following, pay to the funds of the Corps a sum equal to the amount of Government capitation allowance which he failed to earn. The Commanding Officer shall have power to remit such payment in special cases.

7. Each member must be provided with uniforms and accoutrements of the authorized pattern, the undress uniform to be supplied by himself.

8. Each Member shall be responsible for the due preservation of all articles issued to him which are the property of the Government or of the Corps, or of individual companies, fair wear and tear only excepted.

9. The funds of the Corps shall consist of all moneys paid or contributed to the Corps, or for the purposes of the Corps, and of all moneys payable to the Commanding Officer or Corps by virtue of these rules, and of all moneys to which the Corps shall in any way become entitled; and "Property of the Corps" shall consist of the "Funds of the Corps," and of all articles, things, &c., purchased out of the funds of the Corps, or presented to the Corps.

10. The funds of the Company shall consist of all moneys paid or contributed to the Company, or for the purposes of the Company, and of all moneys to which the Company shall in any way become entitled; and property of the Company shall consist of the funds of the Company, and of all articles, things &c., purchased out of the funds of the Company, or presented to the company.

11. The Commanding Officer of the Corps, or during his absence the senior officer present, subject however to approval of the Commanding Officer, shall have power to inflict fines not exceeding five shillings for each offence, in all or any of the following cases:—

For (1) Appearing on parade not in the order of the day, or with clothing or accoutrements dirty, incomplete, or improperly put on.

- (2.) Having rifle, sword, or bayonet in a dirty or damaged condition, in addition to cost of cleaning or repairing.
- (3.) Not returning rifle, sword, bayonet, or accoutrements to Head Quarters when ordered.
- (4.) Loading contrary to orders, or shooting out of turn.
- (5.) Discharging rifle accidentally.
- (6.) Pointing rifle, loaded or unloaded, at any person without orders.
- (7.) Drawing sword or bayonet in public without orders.
- (8.) Leaving the ranks without permission.
- (9.) Talking or unseemly conduct in the ranks.
- (10.) Neglect of duty.
- (11.) Inattention and other minor irregularities.
- (12.) Minor cases of insubordination or disobedience of orders.
- (13.) Neglecting to notify to Officer Commanding Company change of address within fourteen days of such change.
- (14.) Wearing a badge without being entitled thereto.

And to inflict a fine not exceeding the sum of twenty shillings for drunkenness on parade or duty, or in camp or elsewhere in uniform, for the first offence. A repetition of the offence within twelve months to be punished by discharge.

12. All fines imposed on members of the Corps shall be entered in a book kept under the direction of the Commanding Officer for that purpose.

13. All fines shall be paid on or before the first day of the month succeeding that on which they have been incurred, and shall be collected by the Colour-sergeant, and paid by him to the Commanding Officer.

14. That a list of all members who, fourteen days after written notice, are in arrears with payments of quarterly subscriptions or of fines, or any other moneys due by virtue of these Rules, shall be posted up at the Orderly Room; and if the amount due by any member be not paid within thirty days of the date on which such amount became due, such member shall be subjected to a fine of ten shillings for each separate amount for which he has made default.

15. The property of the Corps is, by the "Volunteer Regulation Act of 1867," vested in the Commanding Officer, but there shall be a Finance Committee to aid him in the management of the finance of the Corps. This committee shall consist of the Commanding Officer (ex officio) and three officers, to be elected annually by the officers. The committee shall retire annually, and two only of the three elected members of the old Committee shall be eligible for re-election.

16. The Commanding Officer shall cause an abstract of the accounts to be annually, prepared for the information of the members of the Corps.

17. A General Meeting of the members shall be held annually, in the month of February, of which seven days' notice shall be given. Special meetings may be convened by the Commanding Officer at his discretion, seven days' notice of such Special Meeting to be given by circular or advertisement specifying shortly the nature of the business to be transacted thereat.

18. A Regimental Committee shall be appointed each year at the Annual General Meeting to assist in the civil as distinct from the financial affairs of the Corps, such Committee to consist of the Officers and three enrolled efficient members from each Company, one of whom will be a Non-commissioned Officer.

19. These Rules may be rescinded, amended, or added to at the Annual General Meeting or at a Special Meeting called for the purpose. Notice of any proposed alterations to be given in writing not less than fourteen days before the date of holding such Special or Annual General Meeting; but no alterations of these Rules shall have force or effect until approved by His Excellency the Governor.

20. Each member is expected to provide himself with copies "Field Exercises," "Rifle Exercises," "Volunteer Acts of 1867 and 1878," "Regulations," and the Rules and Standing Orders of the Corps.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MANUFACTORY FOR AMMUNITION.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING PROPOSED ESTABLISHMENT OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 May, 1888.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Treasurer, New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 20 April, 1886.

I beg to forward herewith for your consideration a copy of a communication (with its enclosures) from my colleague the Honorable the Minister of Defence, relative to the question of subsidizing a Company for the manufacture of gunpowder and ammunition in Victoria.

I shall be glad to learn at your convenience the views of your Government on the subject.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

(No. 365.)

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

Defence Department, Melbourne, 8 April, 1886.

I have the honor, by direction, to forward for your consideration two letters, $\frac{8}{11}$ and $\frac{8}{11}$, dated 19 February, from the Agent-General, replying to questions addressed to him by the late Minister of Defence, with reference to the likelihood of a private Company establishing a gunpowder factory, also an ammunition factory, in Victoria.

It will be seen by the copy of a letter in $\frac{8}{11}$, from the Chilworth Gunpowder Company, that this Company is carefully considering the question, and promises a further report; but they feel that for so costly a matter the requirements of Victoria only would not warrant the outlay of a considerable amount of capital.

Taking into consideration the length of time that actually elapses in procuring gunpowder from England, namely, eight to ten months (which period is much extended when England is engaged in one of her numerous little wars, and would be indefinitely increased if she were engaged in war with a maritime power—indeed, it is doubtful if any ammunitions of war could then be obtained from England at any cost)—it is obvious that this is a matter of very great importance, not only to Victoria, but to Australia as a whole; and that as a very considerable time must elapse before the manufacture of gunpowder could actually commence, steps to bring about this desirable result should be taken at an early date.

The Minister would therefore urge that you communicate with the Premiers of the other Colonies with a view to ascertain their opinion upon this subject.

If the Australian Colonies, or a majority of them, could be induced to unite in this matter, a Company might be encouraged to set up a manufactory by a subsidy for a fixed term of years, or a reasonable dividend guaranteed upon the original outlay. An alternative suggestion, as proposed by the Chilworth Company, would be the imposition of productive duties upon every kind of gunpowder by all the Colonies.

Much expense will now be saved by a recent invention by which the acids necessary in the manufacture of gunpowder, &c., can be changed into solid salts, and in that state can safely be transported on board ship without danger to the ship, and therefore at the ordinary freights.

The Honorable the Minister of Defence has lately received from England a sample of nitric and sulphuric acids in form of solid salts.

The letter $\frac{8}{11}$ is with reference to the manufacture of small-arm cartridges, fuzes, friction tubes, and such-like.

The arguments used to show the importance of a gunpowder factory apply equally to these articles; and to New South Wales, at least, the necessity of such a factory being established will be nothing novel, as the Royal Commission on Defences, held in Sydney in 1881, reported "that steps should be taken to purchase a plant for the purpose of making up small-arm ammunition."

For all supplies we are now dependent upon England, and in time of serious war not only should we be unable to procure small-arm ammunition from the War Department—the producing power of which could not meet their own consumption—but in all probability, as in the Crimean War, in the Indian Mutiny, and in the threatened war with Russia last year, all the private manufactories were engaged for the Imperial Government, and supplies could only be obtained from private firms, if at all, at largely increased prices. If you should entertain this proposal, and communicate with the other Premiers, you may wish to ascertain, with a view of affording full information to the Agent-General, the annual expenditure of small-arm ammunition. In this Colony it is from two to three million of ball cartridges, and about 300,000 of blank.

With reference to the gunpowder factory, the late Minister of Defence applied to the War Department for an estimate of the cost of the buildings and plant required to make a factory, and it has been given as follows for the manufacture of blank powder only, viz. :—

Plant of machinery.....	£23,000
Buildings.....	38,000
Total.....	£61,000

It appears to the Minister of Defence that, if possible, it would be far more advantageous for a factory to be started by a private Company, having at their command experienced managers and foremen, than to incur the outlay of constructing one with the necessary machinery, and obtaining—probably at very high rates—the necessary managers, foremen, and skilled artisans required.

I have, &c.,

M. F. DOWNES,

Major-General.

Sir,

The Honorable the Premier.

(86-651.)

Sir,

Victoria Office, 8, Victoria Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 19 February, 1886.

With reference to your Despatch, No. 176, of the 12th November last, directing me to make inquiries as to the terms, &c., upon which a Company would undertake to establish a factory in the Australian Colonies for the manufacture of powder, gun-cotton, dynamite, &c., I have the honor to inform you that having communicated with the Chilworth Powder Company on the subject, I have received in reply the letter of which a copy is subjoined, from which you will observe that they have promised to give the matter their careful consideration.

Upon receipt of their promised further reply I will communicate its terms to you.

The Honorable the Minister of Defence, Melbourne.

I have, &c.,

ROBERT MURRAY SMITH.

Sir,

6, Great Winchester-street, E.C., 20 January, 1886.

We beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 14th instant, No. 206-86.

The question of the terms on which we would be prepared to establish a powder factory in the Colony of Victoria requires very careful consideration. We shall go fully into the matter, and hope to reply to your inquiry in about a week.

We must, however, say that the establishment of a gunpowder factory for the production of military powder, especially of brown prismatic or cocoa powder, is an exceedingly costly affair, and we are afraid that the comparatively small requirements of the Colony of Victoria would scarcely be sufficient to warrant the outlay of a considerable amount of capital.

If, however, all, or at least the majority of the Australian Colonies could be induced to unite in this matter, and if an increased protective duty could be put on every kind of powder imported from Europe to Victoria, we should, no doubt, be enabled to establish a factory in your Colony.

We have, &c.,

For the Chilworth Gunpowder Company, Limited,

E. KRAFTMEIER.

The Agent-General for Victoria.

(86-656.)

Sir,

Victoria Office, 8, Victoria Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 19 February, 1886.

With reference to your despatch, No. 180, of the 18th November last, relating to the establishment of an ammunition factory in the Australian Colonies, in which you direct me to ascertain whether the same Company which would make the powder, &c., could also undertake to manufacture solid drawn cartridges, fuzes, &c., I have the honor to enclose for your information copy of a memorandum by Major-General Steward, giving the result of inquiries on the subject, made by him at my request.

ROBERT MURRAY SMITH.

The Honorable the Minister of Defence, Melbourne.

[Copy.]

THE Chilworth Powder Company cannot undertake the manufacture of solid drawn cartridges, or any kind of small-arm cartridges.

A powder factory has often cartridge-filling rooms in connection with it, in which cartridges for large guns are made up.

The manufacture of satisfactory solid drawn cases is attended with so much trouble, requires so much skill and so much plant, that it could not be undertaken as an adjunct to a powder factory without a separate and special management. One of these solid case small-arm cartridge Companies now in England might be tempted to establish a factory in the Colony for military cartridges, if it could secure thereby the sporting-cartridge trade of the Colony.

The supply of military cartridges is relatively so small that a factory could not be maintained even in this country if its output were limited to military orders.

E. HARDING STEWARD, 1/2/86.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Treasurer,
New South Wales.

(86-2,161.)

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 21 June, 1886.

Viewing the great importance of these colonies being rendered independent of any external source of supply of gunpowder, I beg to inquire whether your Government has yet arrived at any decision on the proposal to establish a local factory, as communicated by my letter of the 20th April, 1886, No. 1,388.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

(87-3,478.)

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 27 September, 1887.

With reference to my letter of the 20th April, 1886, relative to the question of subsidizing a Company for the manufacture of gunpowder and ammunition in Victoria, I have now the honor to forward herewith, for the information of your Government, a copy of a communication from the Agent-General for Victoria, enclosing a letter from Mr. B. T. Moore, of the Bexley Manufactory, Kent, England, containing important proposals relative to the establishment of a small-arms ammunition factory.

I also enclose herewith a copy of a communication on the same subject from Mr. John Whitney, of London, and I may mention that the Honorable the Minister of Defence considers these proposals preferable to those of Mr. Moore.

I have, &c.,

DUNCAN GILLIES,

Premier.

[Enclosures.]

(87-1,015.)

Sir,

Victoria Office, 8, Victoria Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 11 March, 1887.

Enclosed please find a letter from Mr. B. T. Moore on the subject of establishing in Victoria a small-arms ammunition factory. This is the communication I referred to in my last letter on the subject, and is, I think, in all respects satisfactory.

I have not yet had an opportunity of inspecting Mr. Moore's manufactory at Bexley, but I intend to do so on an early day. Mr. Moore informed me that, on receipt of an official communication that his terms had been accepted by the Government of Victoria, he would at once proceed to the Colony with the view of commencing operations.

With respect to the 6th and 7th conditions, I understand that the price would not exceed that ordinarily paid.

The

The 10th condition is the only substantial addition to the terms proposed by the Government, viz., a site of about 30 acres. This in some country town, say Geelong, which would be most suitable, would not be a serious item, and the advantage of such a factory is so manifest that I do not anticipate you will delay accepting Mr. Moore's offer. If this should be the case, the word "factory" in your first cablegram will be looked upon as justifying Mr. Moore's sailing for Melbourne with a view to completing operations.

My last letter above referred to was addressed to the Minister of Defence, but in his absence from Melbourne I think it better, as the question is somewhat urgent, to address you directly. I will, however, immediately on Mr. Lorimer's arrival here, communicate a copy of this letter to him.

I have, &c.,

GRAHAM BERRY.

Dear Sir,

Longwood, Bexley, Kent, 9 March, 1887.

Since my interview with you on the 1st instant, I have considered the question of establishing a factory for small arms ammunition in the Colony of Victoria, and now beg to say that I am prepared to undertake such an enterprise upon certain clear and well-defined conditions. The first four of these conditions have been laid down by yourself, and are as follows:—

1. The Government will grant a subsidy of two thousand five hundred pounds sterling (£2,500) to the first factory for small arms ammunition established in this Colony.
2. The Government will take the whole of its requirements of rifle cartridges, ball and blank, from such factory, provided the quality is equal to that obtained in England, and the price reasonable as compared with original cost in England, plus freight, &c.
3. The present annual consumption, and which is sure to increase as the Rifle Clubs are more developed, is—

3,000,000 M.-H. rifle ball cartridges.

300,000 ,, blank ,,

200,000 ,, carbine ,,

4. The Government will be perfectly willing to give me the option of adding a gunpowder plant, should I wish to do so.

Besides the foregoing conditions, I think some others will be essential. These I will now state.

5. The Government will purchase yearly not less than 3,500,000 of cartridges mentioned in article 3.
6. The Government will purchase from me, in addition to rifle cartridges, all ammunition which may be required for heavy guns, quick-firing and machine guns, and all parts of ammunition, such as shot, shell, fuzes for shells, gunpowder, &c.
7. The Government will purchase from me the ammunition which they may require before the factory in contemplation can be erected and worked, such ammunition to be made by me in my existing English factory.
8. The Government will admit free of duty all materials which I may require to import for the purposes of the intended factory.
9. The Government shall give me liberty to sell ammunition within the Colony, and to export the same free of any duty.
10. The Government will grant a suitable site of land, of not less than 30 acres, in a convenient locality on a line of railway and near to a labour market, and having, if possible, the convenience and advantage of water power.
11. The concession to be granted by the Government shall be for a period of twenty years.
12. The subsidy of £2,500, mentioned in Article 1, shall be paid to me as soon as the factory is established and in working order.

With regard to Articles 6 and 7, I beg to say that I have made large quantities of ammunition for heavy guns, for 6-inch, 8-inch, and 10-inch guns, many of which are now in the Australian Colonies, as well as smaller cartridges, and that I shall be prepared to make these in Victoria, if I establish a factory there. I am also making shells and fuzes for shells, and other parts of ammunition.

It would be some help to me to supply these articles to the Governments, and, I think I may add, advantageous to themselves as regards cost, &c.

I think it well to say that I fully contemplate the establishment of a factory for the manufacture of gunpowder also, but I should not think it prudent on my part to undertake this until the ammunition factory is well established. I have for many years past taken an active part in the manufacture of gunpowder, and in the improvement of machinery for its production, and I know well how to lay out a factory, and all that is required for it.

I have, &c.,

To the Hon. Sir Graham Berry, K.C.M.G., &c., &c.

Dear Sir,

Junior United Service Club, London, S.W., 21 July, 1887.

Referring to the interview I had with you respecting the establishment of a Small Arms Ammunition Factory in the Colony of Victoria, I beg respectfully to make the following proposition, and shall be glad if you will lay the same before your Government.

As stated to you at our last meeting, I have been for some time engaged upon the manufacture of cartridges in Auckland for the Government of New Zealand, and came to England a short time since to purchase additional machinery, to increase production, and to prepare for the probable change in small arms; and, whilst here, have made arrangements with Messrs. Greenwood and Batley, who make all the Woolwich cartridge machinery, and some one or two other gentlemen, who have joined me in forming a small private company for the production of small arms ammunition, and possibly, later on, of war stores generally.

Seeing that the Australian Colonies are desirous also of establishing a factory for supply of S.A. ammunition, our Company would be prepared to start a factory in the Colony of Victoria if we could receive the support of the Government.

What we should ask would be, first, a subsidy from Government, which, considering the costliness of the machinery required, and its installation, should not be less than £5,000. A site in a favourable position for all colonies, and, from military point of view, with favourable terms for the introduction into the Colony of plant and necessary material, and contracts for, say, ten years.

If such a proposition is likely to be favourably considered by your Government, I shall be glad, upon my approaching return to New Zealand, to go over to Melbourne and treat with you personally on the subject. I am taking out all new plant of the latest inventions, and expect to have it working before next year.

I am, &c.,

JOHN WHITNEY.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 22 March, 1888.

March, 1888.

I have the honor to forward herewith, for your consideration, a copy of a memorandum by the Honorable the Minister of Defence, relative to the proposed establishment of a Federal Factory for the manufacture of rifle-ball cartridges, and I shall be glad if your Government will accord its support to the proposed undertaking.

Memorandum for The Honorable The Premier.

Defence Department, Melbourne, 15 March, 1888.

DURING September last, at an interview with Sir Henry Parkes, he very favourably entertained the idea of establishing a Federal Factory for the manufacture of rifle-ball cartridges. I shall therefore be glad if you will communicate to him an offer (copies enclosed) made, without any solicitation on the part of this Government, by Captain Whitney to establish such a factory in Victoria. Captain Whitney will, I believe, shortly visit Melbourne with a view to looking for a favourable site.

As it is very probable that he will come to terms with this Government, will you be good enough also to ask Sir Henry, in accordance with Captain Whitney's request, whether he will give his Government's support to the Company, and procure the rifle cartridges from them in the terms indicated.

JAMES LORIMER,

Minister of Defence.

Sir,

Northern Club, Auckland, 12 February, 1888.

I enclose offer from our Company, and hope it will meet your approbation.

If there is any alteration I can make to meet your views in detail of arrangement, I shall be glad to do so.

I leave to day for Wellington, but shall return before the end of the week.

Yours, &c.,

J. WHITNEY.

Hon. Sir James Lorimer, Defence Minister, Melbourne.

Sir,

Northern Club, Auckland, 12 February, 1888.

I have the honor to submit to you the following terms for the consideration of your Government:—

"Our Company," which consists of Messrs. Whitney & Sons; Messrs. Greenwood & Batley, of Leeds; J. Hall, Esq., of Mount Morgan; J. D'Arcey, Esq.; Captain DeLusada, R.N.; J. Clarke, Esq.; and T. W. Cartwright, Notts, will undertake contract to supply all your small-arm cartridges for a period of twenty-five years, or longer if required, at a rate of 3,000,000 or upwards per annum, and could also make practice ammunition for small artillery if required.

Messrs. Greenwood & Batley can also undertake to manufacture torpedos for coast defence either in our works in Melbourne or at Home.

All machinery will be on the same pattern as that in Royal Arsenal Woolwich, and by the same makers, viz., Messrs. Greenwood & Batley.

The Company will undertake to deliver cartridges within twelve months of grant of site for works on following conditions:—

Conditions of Contract.

1. Grant of site on Saltwater Creek, with railway siding, if possible.
2. Powder to be provided by Victorian Government, as mentioned in our interview, and paid for by Company, in any way required by Government, and issued from magazine as required.
3. Bonus of £5,000, in consideration of cost of transport of such heavy and costly machinery and erection where labour is so expensive; and a moderate sum, instead of free importation, for our plant and materials (say £2,000).

Price of cartridges to be at current prices in America or England, as may be agreed, plus the carriage, insurance, &c. This is the nearest we can go to it, as the price of materials varies so much from time to time.

The Victorian Government to endeavour to induce New South Wales to join in taking their cartridges from firm for twenty-five years.

It is, of course, understood that in all ways the Company shall study the interest of Victorian Government as if they were a Government arsenal.

A telegram will bring me to Melbourne by first steamer from Auckland.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WHITNEY,

(For Colonial Ammunition Company).

Hon. Sir James Lorimer, Defence Minister, Melbourne.

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 3 April, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the due receipt of your letter of the 22nd ultimo, enclosing a memorandum from the Minister of Defence on the proposal to establish a "Federal Factory for the manufacture of Rifle-ball Cartridges," and expressing a desire that this Colony should accord its support to the proposed undertaking. I have carefully read Sir James Lorrimer's memorandum, with its enclosures. I regret to say that I do not see how this Government can accord its support on Federal grounds to a factory of this character already decided to be established on Saltwater Creek, which would be more correctly described as subsidising a Victorian factory than as assisting to establish a Federal one.

In the conversations which I had the honor to hold with you and other Members of your Government some months ago in Melbourne, this proposal, among other matters, was mentioned, and it was then suggested that the site of any such factory should be in the locality which might be mutually agreed upon as most convenient and acceptable to all the colonies joining in the undertaking.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 9 April, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant with reference to the proposed establishment of a Federal Factory, for the manufacture of Rifle-ball Cartridges.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

(84-1,463.)

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 13 April, 1888.

With reference to your communication of the 3rd instant, expressing the inability of your Government to accord its support to the proposition of Mr. Whitney, for the establishment of an Ammunition Factory on the banks of the Saltwater Creek, near Melbourne, I desire to point out to you that Mr. Whitney's proposals, as submitted for your consideration by my letter of the 22nd ultimo, were entirely spontaneous. They were not in any way suggested to him on behalf of this Government.

I may explain that it was not contemplated by my letter that any portion of the bonus, &c., should be paid by your Government—only that you should so far co-operate in the undertaking as to procure your supply of cartridges from Mr. Whitney's factory.

I shall be very glad if you can see your way to re-consider the proposals submitted, altogether apart from the question of the site specially named by Mr. Whitney.

If your Government can agree with Mr. Whitney in fixing upon an eligible site for the manufactory in Sydney, and, on consideration, it should be thought, under all the circumstances, the most suitable one, and you are disposed to accede to the conditions as to grant of site, bonus, &c., attached by Mr. Whitney to his offer to this Government—Victoria will be just as willing to co-operate in the undertaking by procuring their supply of cartridges from the factory as you are asked to do if the works be established in Melbourne.

I hope to be favoured with an early expression of your views upon the question under this aspect.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

The Metropolitan and Coast District Surveyor to The Principal Under Secretary.

Department of Lands, Sydney.

Minute Paper.—Site for establishment of Cartridge Factory for the Australian Colonies generally, as proposed by Capt. Whitney. No. 1138. 3 May, 1888.

In accordance with verbal instructions, I have had the above matter under consideration with Capt. Whitney, and now have the honor to report, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, that the applicant desires the following conditions in connection with such a site :—

Verbal Instructions.

1. An area of about 5 acres of Crown Land.
2. A large concentrated population, so that junior factory hands may always be available.
3. Water-carriage; and therefore water-frontage.
4. The proximity of a rifle range, for testing cartridges, &c., &c.

These are the leading points of applicant's requirements, and after carefully considering the matter with Capt. Whitney, and submitting the official plans for his inspection with my own explanations, I am of opinion that there is no site of Crown Land meeting the requirements.

JOHN W. DEERING, C.E.,

Metropolitan and Coast District Surveyor.

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 May, 1888.

In replying to your letter of April 13th on the subject of Mr. Whitney's proposal to establish an Ammunition Factory in Melbourne, I desire to explain that the public business pressing upon this Government for some weeks past and at present is very severe; and for this reason your communication has not received immediate attention.

2. I have seen Mr. Whitney several times and have placed at his disposal an officer of the Survey Department to assist him in selecting a site; but Mr. Whitney puts forth one condition which I am bound to say I do not fully appreciate, namely, the necessity of the close proximity of a dense population to supply "junior hands" for his manufactory.

3. When I had the opportunity of conversing with you and Sir James Lorimer, in Melbourne, on the policy of manufacturing within Australia the material of war, so far as this might be found to be practicable, the whole conversation was conducted on the assumption that any manufactory of the kind should be federal in its character and operation. I fail to see how this desirable and reasonable condition could be secured by the institution being located either in Melbourne or Sydney. If, on the other hand, the locality could be chosen at the conterminous point of the three colonies of South Australia, Victoria, and New South Wales, or, if this is not practicable, at some eligible place, Albury or Echuca for example, on the river Murray, I should be prepared to ask Parliament to approve of our paying our equal proportion of the necessary expense to establish a Federal Factory, in accordance with the view I have entertained from the first discussion of the subject.

4. If the factory is, however, to be established by the Government of Victoria, on the condition of other colonies obtaining their supplies from that source, it cannot possibly be of the character originally foreshadowed, and the result will probably be the establishment, at an early date, of a second and competing factory in Sydney.

5. In the event of Mr. Whitney carrying out his project under the auspices of the Victorian Government, there will be no objection on our part to purchasing from him or his principals, on condition that the quality and price are equally favourable with those of other sources of supply.

I have, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 17 May, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th instant, in reply to mine of the 13th ultimo, with reference to Mr. Whitney's proposal for the establishment of an ammunition factory.

I have, &c.,

(For the Premier,)

WM. SEWELL,

Acting Secretary.

NOTE.—The asterisks represent details in connection with armament, disposition of guns, arrangement of mine fields, and disposition of Field Force in time of war, which it would be impolitic to make public.

(THIRD SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

DEFENCES OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

(REPORT OF MAJOR-GENERAL SCHAW.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

Sydney, 19 August, 1887.

Sir,

Since my arrival in Sydney, on the 28th July, in accordance with your request, I have been engaged in investigating the means of defence possessed by the Colony of New South Wales, and in considering what further measures are necessary for security against any probable attacks to which it may be liable. I will assume that the correspondence now in progress between Great Britain and the Australian Colonies on the subject of an Australian fleet to combine with the Imperial war-ships in the general defence of these waters will shortly be brought to a successful issue, and that consequently a powerful squadron will always be in existence prepared to meet any hostile fleet, or to cope with an enemy's cruisers. Looking, however, to the growing power of Russia and France in the Pacific Ocean, to the great extent of the seaboard, and the trade to be protected, and to the necessity of providing safe harbours for the defence vessels, with supplies of coal and other munitions, it is evidently imperative that local defences should also exist. It is to be observed also that these local defences must be of such a nature, and so well organised, that they shall be thoroughly reliable and capable of being brought into action at very short notice. Wars break out suddenly, and the foreign nations with which we may have to deal are thoroughly prepared for war, and might endeavour to strike sudden and heavy blows, and consequently any system of defence which counted on ample time being afforded for improvised defences and gradual training of troops would be certain to fail in the time of need.

The first line of defence of the Australian Colonies will always be the fleet, which it is assumed will be a strong fleet, capable of coping with any probable combination of foreign war-ships.

There are, however, two contingencies which cannot be ignored. The defence fleet may be overpowered or it may be eluded. If it be overpowered the victorious enemy would be able to undertake a large expedition for the purpose of landing an army on Australian soil; but not immediately, for he would doubtless have suffered heavily in the naval engagement, and would require time for refitting and making preparations for invasion, his base, we may suppose, being New Caledonia or the New Hebrides.

Time would therefore be gained for preparation.

If the enemy eluded the defence fleet either with his whole fleet or with a part of it, or with one or two swift cruisers, he might suddenly make a naval attack on Sydney, or some other town or port, either by entering the harbour if unopposed, or by bombarding from outside, and so exact a large sum of money and destroy stores and munitions. In such a case a small number of men—perhaps 2,000 or 3,000—might be landed, but a large invasion would not be practicable, as an enemy could not bring a large fleet of transports, and rapidity of execution would be essential to the success of his scheme lest the defence fleet should arrive on the scene.

From the above considerations it would appear that New South Wales must be prepared to resist at short notice a naval attack delivered by one or two cruisers, or even by a fleet including some powerful ironclads, and capable of landing some 2,000 or 3,000 men; but that such an attack could not be of long duration. And further, that under very adverse circumstances the Colony might possibly have to resist a serious attempt at invasion, but that this could not be undertaken without considerable time being given for preparation.

The main object for an enemy would, of course, be Sydney, the capital of the Colony, where its wealth is concentrated, and which is the refitting station for the defence fleet. Sydney must therefore be made absolutely safe against all probable attacks by sea or by land. The only two other points requiring defence at present are Newcastle and Wollongong, the coal supplies at which places are of immense importance, both to the Colony and to its defence fleet. They would also be very valuable to an enemy.

* * * * *

Submarine mine defences are in most cases an essential part of the defence of harbours, and submarine mining stores in considerable quantity are in possession of the Government, but they are not complete in detail, and no proper means for keeping them safely in readiness for immediate use, nor for laying, maintaining, defending, and firing them at present exist. Reliance is placed on extemporizing these necessary things in time of war, but it is hardly necessary to emphasize the fact that time is an all important factor in defence, and unless the mines can be quickly laid, and the men and officers who are to use them are thoroughly trained, and familiar with their duties by constant practice, they will be as useless for defence as guns would be under similar conditions.

The details of the submarine mining material on hand, and demanded, are given in Appendix B. Of the stores demanded the provision of steamers for laying the mines is of the highest importance—without them no real instruction can be carried on.

The quantity of small arms and ammunition issued or in store is shown in Appendix A. It is premature to purchase magazine rifles until the Imperial authorities have decided on a suitable pattern, but it would be well to obtain a certain number as soon as the question of pattern is settled, and to eliminate the various obsolete or unusual patterns of arms and ammunition now on hand, which would give rise to mistakes and embarrassment in war. A central arsenal for the manufacture of ammunition for the Australian Colonies would be of considerable advantage.

As regards personnel, the Estimates for 1887 show that, exclusive of officers, staff, and regimental and N.C. officers specially employed, the rank and file, including corporals and bombardiers of the Permanent Artillery Force, provided for, numbers, 318; and of the Volunteer Artillery, 418; making a total of 736. Provision is also made for paid volunteers in the following numbers:—Engineers (Pioneers), 88; Submarine Miners, 132; Infantry, 1,632; and there is a capitation grant for efficient Volunteers to the extent of 450 Cavalry, 200 Artillery, and 1,850 Rifles.

In addition to the above land forces items appear in the Estimates for Volunteer Naval Artillery, but no number of men is specified, and for a force of 328 of all ranks, entitled the "Naval Brigade."

The following extract from a local paper purports to give the strength of the corps of Volunteer Naval Artillery:—"Commander, 3 lieutenants, 4 sub-lieutenants, warrant officer instructor, 2 chief petty officers, armourer, 4 1st class petty petty officers, 4 2nd class petty officers, 8 leading seamen, 99 men and 22 recruits, 2 surgeons, 2 1st class petty officers, 2 2nd class petty officers, 20 stretcher-bearers, paymaster, assistant paymaster, bugle major, 2 bandmasters, 4 petty officers, 42 bandmen, 2 buglers, 1st class petty officer (tailor). Total, 229."

Thus it would appear that (on paper) the land forces of the Colony, exclusive of Staff and Officers and Senior N.C. Officers, amount to 5,088 men of all arms, and the naval forces to 557, including the Volunteer Naval Artillery. Such a force, if efficient, ought to be ample for all defence purposes. But I observe in the "Report of the Major-General Commanding on the Military Forces of New South Wales for 1886," that while the Permanent Artillery and the Volunteer Force under partial-payment system were fully up to their strength, and with some exceptions, their proficiency in the execution of their duties was good, the Volunteer Reserves only numbered 2,711 (5,000 were provided for in the Estimates of 1886, but only 2,589 in the Estimates of the present year), and the Major-General states that not only are the numbers decreasing year by year, but that the standard of efficiency is very low. Of the above 2,711, only 58 per cent., or 1,572, could be passed as "efficients" in drill, and only 364 had gone through a course of musketry instruction. These 364 then are all that would be of any use as infantry on the field of battle.

The actual land forces of the Colony therefore number at present about 2,952.

Artillery, Permanent	318
,, Volunteers	418
Engineers, Pioneers	88
,, Submarine miners	132
Infantry	1,632
Reserves	364

Of the naval forces, Commodore Wilson in his evidence given before the Royal Commission of 1887 states in reply to the question, "With the Naval Brigade as it is now constituted we have nothing more than a land force?" "They may be very good men but they are only used as a land force. . ." And Captain Acland, R.N., reporting in 1885, gives it as his opinion that the Naval Brigade and the Naval Artillery Volunteers should either "be abolished or the 'Wolverene' should be used as a training ship, and the Naval Brigade and the Naval Volunteers should be made to learn naval duties." Since the dates of those reports no change has been made in the constitution of those bodies. Two torpedo boats and forty Schwartzkopf torpedoes have been obtained, but no proper place for storing and maintaining them and no trained men or organization for using them have been brought into existence.

It is clear that the duties of the naval forces of the Colony must be distinctly defined, that they must be placed under one responsible head, and properly organized and trained to perform those duties. The materials for a very valuable naval auxiliary defence are apparently in existence, but without proper organization they will not be able to do much good.

The general principle on which the defence forces of the Colony of New South Wales are at present organized is, that the defence of the liberties, lives, and property of the Colonists should depend mainly on the voluntary services of such of the inhabitants as by reason of their mental and bodily energy and strength, and their patriotism, feel themselves fitted for the work and called upon to undertake it; but that those so taking upon themselves this onerous duty on behalf of their fellow countrymen should be paid such a reasonable sum as shall free them from pecuniary loss, while they have at the same time such honorable distinction in the way of uniform and rank as is right and fitting. These volunteers, while serving, place themselves under the military control of the General Commanding and of the officers serving under him, in accordance with the absolute necessities of effective military service, and if called out for war service would be paid as the Permanent Force. In addition to these paid volunteers, there are other bodies of unpaid volunteers who undertake military duties from similar motives, but who, it is to be presumed, have more pecuniary means at their disposal, and are therefore independent of Government aid. Unfortunately these Volunteer Reserves do not appear to be popular, and their numbers and efficiency decrease annually. It has been frequently recommended recommended that the system of paid volunteers should be slightly modified, and that they should be enrolled as volunteer militia. I am informed that this change would be generally acceptable to the men. It certainly would give greater stability to the force and, as I believe, the volunteer militia system has succeeded in Victoria it is worthy of consideration whether it might not also be introduced with advantage into New South Wales. This would be a step in the direction of that military federation which is so much to be desired.

To give efficiency to the volunteer forces who are unable to devote more than a very limited time to training and practice of military service, it is essential that there should be a small proportion of permanent trained troops to take charge of stores, to act as instructors, and to form a thoroughly efficient nucleus on which the volunteer troops can rely for preparation, direction, and example. The more scientific and special the nature of the duty to be performed, the more essential it becomes that this nucleus of permanent and thoroughly trained troops should be maintained. This has been recognized as regards the Artillery, but hitherto the submarine miners, who need even more special training and practice than the Artillery, have had no such permanent nucleus, and the same is true of the naval defence forces.

To give the needful security to the Colony against any probable attack, the following are the principal requirements:—

1. A strong defence of Sydney by Artillery, submarine mines, and floating defences, such as will make it impossible for an enemy to enter the harbour, or to bombard Sydney from any position outside between the North Head and Marubra Bay, and which will also provide against the possible contingency of hostile vessels having entered the port in peace suddenly declaring war.
2. Such coast defences and land forces as will guard against the landing of troops and their march on Sydney; the coast defences being specially needed at Botany Bay, the only favourable base for an enemy attempting such an attack.
3. The protection of the coaling harbours at Newcastle and Wollongong.

I will deal first with the material defences which appear to me necessary in each case; then with the personnel required to use them; and finally with the organization which appears most suitable for the circumstances of the Colony.

At Sydney I consider that 28 guns disposed as shown in the annexed table, will be sufficient, when combined with an efficient subsidiary defence by submarine mines, electric lights, torpedo boats, and guard boats.

I am disposed to recommend that in addition to the new guns proposed for the sites at Bondi and Coogee to avert bombardment two submarine torpedo-boats should be obtained, the first cost of which would be about £24,000; the annual cost in personnel would not be considerable, as they would need only two officers and twelve men.

It is now generally admitted that to attack ships at sea by ordinary torpedo-boats in daylight is a very hazardous enterprise, unless supported by other means, or unless the number of torpedo-boats employed be large. The range and accuracy of the new quick-firing guns is so great that one or two torpedo-boats would almost certainly be sunk or disabled by fire from the ship they intended to attack before they reached the distance of about 400 yards, at which a Whitehead torpedo is fairly certain to hit. A submarine boat, however, can approach a ship unobserved and attack it unawares; it is therefore a most formidable antagonist for any ship however strongly armoured or whatever its armament, and although possibly war-ships provided with deep torpedo-nets might make themselves tolerably safe against any torpedo attack, the risk would be so great in the open sea where nets interfere with free manœuvring, that were it known that submarine torpedo-boats formed a part of the defence of Sydney, it is very improbable that an attempt to bombard would be made, while inside the harbour they would be most formidable.

The

The experience that has already been obtained with submarine boats is sufficient to prove their efficiency, but probably they will be improved. I would, therefore, recommend that in the first instance, one only be ordered from Mr. Nordenfelt, and that it be thoroughly tested here before a second be ordered.

* * * * *

For guarding the mines against boat attack at night, four guard-boats are needed, which should be hired steamers of about 40 tons burthen, fast, and armed with two machine guns, and protected by bullet-proof parapets.

For attacking an enemy hovering outside at night, or who might have in any way passed the defences, four torpedo-boats are needed. Two of these are in possession; two would be fast launches, fitted with dropping gear. If submarine torpedo-boats be obtained, they would take the place of the hired launches, and would, of course, be very much more effective.

* * * * *

Botany Bay is only of importance as affording a safe and convenient base of operations for an enemy to land troops, guns, and stores, destined to attack Sydney. Botany Bay

As before noted, if there were no land forces to resist him, an enemy might, with a comparatively small force, landed from ships which had eluded our fleet, overawe Sydney and exact a large sum of money, besides doing much injury to stores and property. But the existence of a sufficient land force would make any small operation of this kind impossible.

Against a larger operation the defence of Botany Bay becomes very important, and although an attack of this nature is not greatly to be feared, yet this link in our armour must not be wanting.

* * * * *

A hostile fleet, finding the defences of Port Jackson and Botany Bay too strong for them, might be induced to enter Broken Bay with the view of landing troops there. There is ample and safe anchorage for a large number of ships in this harbour, but the distance from Sydney is about 24 miles (or 12 miles from the head of the Pittwater Creek to Manly). This creek, however, is not navigable for large vessels, having a bar at the entrance, and the country between Broken Bay and the Hawkesbury River and Sydney is rocky, precipitous, and covered with scrub and forest, and quite impracticable for the march of troops, except on the two roads leading from the head of Pittwater to Manly Beach, and to the Spit Ferry over the Middle Harbour, or by the railway from the site of the bridge now under construction at Dangar Island to Sydney. Broken Bay
bury River.

These lines of approach are so difficult and so easily defended that with the most ordinary precautions any small body of troops attempting to reach Sydney by these routes could be stopped and defeated with ease. A large expedition would, in course of time, be able perhaps to force its way to Sydney; but the undertaking would be most arduous and prolonged, and its ultimate success would be most doubtful. Particularly, as we have before seen, that no great expedition of vessels carrying a large army could attack New South Wales without abundant notice having been given, and preparations could therefore be made to guard against the danger.

Although any small expedition might be easily checked in its attempt to march on Sydney, yet with the view of avoiding the possible panic which might be caused by the news that an enemy had landed in this harbour, and also to preserve the railway and bridge from injury, it is desirable to have some defensive force on the spot. To construct defences which would prevent an enemy's war-ships from entering Broken Bay or landing troops there would be very expensive both in guns, mines, fortifications, and garrisons, for the waters are wide and deep.

Such

Such strong defences are, however, at present unnecessary, and all that I could now recommend would be to construct a battery on Long Island over the tunnel leading to the bridge to the west of Dangar Island, and to station in war time two gun-boats and two torpedo-boats in these waters.

The battery might be armed with two or three 80-pounders, as may be found best when the site is surveyed.

The navigation here is so difficult that no large ships can manœuvre freely, and these guns, with the gun-boats and torpedo-boats, should prevent any minor attack or a landing at the Railway Station or at Peat's Ferry above it.

If a landing were effected at the head of Pittwater an enemy might pursue two routes, one along the beach to Brighton, a point which infantry might also reach in fine weather by a landing on the ocean beach there, but which only leads to the Spit Ferry, where he would be stopped, or he might follow the road which leads into the Hornsby-North Willoughby Road, about 4 miles east of the former place. This road is very difficult and offers numerous points of advantage where such an advance might easily be stopped by a very small force.

In view, however, of the disadvantages before alluded to, connected with a landing being permitted, it might be advisable in war time to extemporise a battery for two position guns and two machine guns at Rockhead, by Coasters retreat in Pittwater, to assist the gunboats in preventing any landing-party from passing up Pittwater—a battery in this retired position would not have to contend with the heavier guns carried by ships.

These precautions, aided by a good system of outposts, with a strong reserve near Hornsby, should secure Sydney from any land attack on the north side.

Although I have suggested two batteries to assist in the defence of these waters, I do not consider them as of first importance.

The difficulties of an advance from Broken Bay on Sydney are so great that no small force would attempt it; and, as before stated, time must certainly be afforded for preparation in case a larger expedition were meditated. Under such circumstances the roads from Pittwater and from Peat's Ferry, as well as the railway, could be fortified so strongly that the task imposed on an enemy to force his way by these lines would be excessively onerous.

The complete defence of this harbour against a strong attack could not be effected by a smaller armament than about the following :—

- 4 9-in. howitzers
- 3 8-in. B.L. guns
- 4 6-in. do
- 2 6-pr. Q.F.
- 4 rifle-calibre guns.

These with submarine mines and works would cost about £100,000 and would require a garrison of about 150 artillerymen and 500 infantry and engineers, with naval accessories to man guard-boats.

Such an expenditure is clearly not needed at present.

Possibly, it may be found after closer examination of the localities than I have yet been able to make that the defences of Pittwater may be more conveniently placed on the rising ground at the head of the inlet, whence the landing places and roads can be commanded, and that the 80-pounders may be better situated on Dangar Island, but the principle would be the same, viz., that at Pittwater the defence should be retired, so that the heavy guns of ships may not be brought into play to assist the attack, and that vessels endeavouring to ascend the Hawkesbury River should be under the fire of the 80-pounders when navigating the difficult and narrow channel round Dangar Island, and that the landing places there should be under the fire of these guns.

To secure Newcastle it has been proposed to remodel and rearm the fort there, to construct a battery at Stockton, and to lay submarine mines at the entrance of the harbour, with the necessary electric light, and other requisites for their effective use. After a careful inspection of the harbour and its vicinity, and taking the opinion of local experts, I have come to the conclusion that the submarine mines may be omitted from the defence of this port, substituting for them two launches fitted fitted with dropping gear for Schwartzkopf torpedoes, and that the battery at Stockton may also be omitted, if the guns be disposed in a slightly different manner from that previously proposed. The object of the battery at Stockton was to fire on a piece of water which is hidden from the guns in the fort by the headland known as "The Nobbys," and where, therefore, a ship might anchor and bombard Newcastle with impunity.

This water can be seen within effective range from Shepherd's Hill, above Newcastle, whence also the water to the southward and the whole offing is well commanded. The site is in the Park, and its occupation could therefore interfere with no local interest.

A saving of £9,000 would result from this change, and the defence would be very much stronger, owing to the dispersion of the 8-in. guns and the elevated position in which one of them would be placed, rendering it almost impossible to silence it.

I am induced to recommend the omission of the submarine mines in this case, because, if a ship succeeded in running the gauntlet of the guns and entering, the port is so limited in extent and so completely commanded by the guns that she could not remain there under fire, and must run the gauntlet past the guns again if she were not sunk, as is most probable.

At night it would be most difficult for a shipmaster without local experience to enter or leave the port, especially if the lights were extinguished, as they would be in war time; orders being also issued that no ships were allowed to enter at night. If the night were clear enough for an enemy to venture in it would also be clear enough for the guns to fire on him.

The torpedo launches would be useful to assist the guns at night in keeping the offing clear of hostile cruisers, and as the Schwartzkopf torpedoes are purchased they could well be applied here for defence. They could also attack any vessel which might possibly have got into the harbour on a dark night, guided by some person with accurate local knowledge.

At Wollongong the harbour is very limited in extent and it is only suitable for vessels of slight draught. No large seagoing vessel could enter it. The peculiar conditions under which the coal is obtained and shipped at the other places in the vicinity are fully described in the annexed memorandum by Major Penrose, R.E. (Appendix A.) Wollongong.

Wollongong is the only point in this district which calls for defence at present. A cruiser might obtain coal under threat of bombardment, or he might cut out colliers lying there if not prevented. These dangers might be averted or at least rendered very remote by mounting one 8-in. B.L. gun on the rising ground east of the town, with two machine guns, and supporting it by two torpedo launches kept at the station in war time for offensive action against hostile vessels at night or in hazy weather.

The cost of this defence would be about £9,000, equivalent to the saving to be effected at Newcastle by the adoption of the revised scheme of defence which I have recommended there. The existence of natural advantages for the formation of a commodious harbour at Five Islands makes it doubtful whether Wollongong will continue to be the principal shipping port for the coal of this district, and it is not therefore considered advisable to incur further expense in defences there at present.

The number of troops required for the defence of New South Wales has been variously estimated. Sir William Jervois, in his original scheme of defence, proposed a force of 2,175 men, viz. :— Defence Forces.

Artillery	675
Engineers	160
								...
Total	2,175

The

The Military Defences Inquiry Commission, who reported to the Royal Commission of 1881, proposed :—

Artillery	1,090
Engineers	185
Infantry	2,165
								3,440
Total	3,440

And the Royal Commission of 1881 increased this estimate to :—

Artillery	1,300	{ 440 Permanent { 560 Do Reserves { 300 Volunteers
Engineers and Infantry	2,700
Mounted Police	300
Mounted Infantry...	100
Total	4,300

Artillery.

As regards the Artillery, with the reduced number of guns now proposed, the number of gunners need not, in my opinion, be so high as that recommended by the Royal Commission of 1881. The artillery organisation, as it now exists, is fairly efficient, both in numbers and in the quality of the men, and with increased facilities for training, to which I will advert later on, but little change will be needed as regards the men.

The attempt to obtain a reserve of the Permanent Artillery has apparently failed.

The number of gunners, including bombardiers and corporals, provided for in the Estimates and now existing are : 318 Permanent and 408 Volunteers, giving a total of 726, or including all ranks, 378 Permanent and 514 Volunteers; total, 892. The number of guns which I propose as the total armament for coast batteries, and which is detailed in Appendix D, is forty-three; there will also be some twelve quick-firing and machine guns to be served. The field and position guns number twenty. For the efficient service of these guns, making allowance for casualties, it will be necessary to have at least 800 Artillerymen, of whom the half should be permanent. I therefore consider that the number of Permanent Artillery recommended by the Royal Commission, viz., 440, should be fully maintained, but the Volunteer force may be kept at its present number—that is, the number of gunners in the Permanent Artillery should stand at 410, which, with the 15 corporals and 15 bombardiers, would give 440 men, and the effective gunners in the Volunteer Artillery should not be reduced below their present number of 376, which, with the 32 corporals, gives 400 men to work the guns.*

The artillery force would be required to serve the coast defence guns and also the field and position guns. The latter duty is essentially different from the former.

Field guns must be capable of being moved with some rapidity from place to place or they lose their value, and I would strongly advise that the 9-pounder field battery be permanently horsed to the number of thirty horses, and that this field battery be an integral part of the Permanent Artillery organisation. The waggons need not be permanently horsed, as the guns carry on their limbers sufficient ammunition to keep them in action until the waggons could be brought up by hired horses.

Harness and horses for the 16-pounder and 40-pounder guns may be hired when needed. Harness rapidly deteriorates unless carefully tended, and the system of hiring teams with their harness for such batteries has answered well in England. They are not expected or required to move quickly, and permanently organised teams and manœuvring drill are therefore unnecessary.

A land range for the field and position artillery is essential for training, and I believe that a suitable range can be obtained in the neighbourhood of Botany Bay, where the batteries might be encamped periodically for practice.

As

* A prolonged attack on all the batteries could never take place; it is therefore not considered necessary to provide for reliefs of gunners.

As regards ammunition for all the guns, it is important that the stores should always be sufficient and fresh. The expenditure of practice ammunition annually will aid in producing this result if it be taken from those supplies which have been longest in the Colony, and fresh demands be regularly made so as to ensure the full number of rounds being always on hand. It is very desirable that as far as possible every garrison gun should be fired in practice at least once a year, and this more especially applies to the new pattern B.L. guns.

The appointment of one of the officers of the Imperial Artillery to act as fire-master is also very necessary to secure efficiency in ammunition.

It is most important that all the Artillerymen should be constantly employed on their proper duties. I have accordingly suggested a means by which they may be relieved from the duty of guards on Government House, which they are now required to perform, and I would further recommend that none of them should be employed as officers' servants or batmen, but that allowance be given for civil servants in lieu of them. This is the system in force in the Royal Engineers, and it answers well, and would be economical, as a trained gunner costs more than a private servant, and he ceases to be a trained gunner if not constantly practised at his special duties.

Finally it would be most advantageous were the Artillery Barracks and head quarters, with the school of gunnery established at Middle Head, close to the defences, and, where there is an admirable site and every facility for training the men. The Victoria Barracks are most inconveniently situated for the artillery, and I understand that the site is now so valuable that the sale of the portion of it not then required would not only recoup the Government for the expense incurred in building new barracks, but produce a large surplus.

The Volunteer Engineers, perhaps more correctly, Pioneers, are a valuable Engineers. body of men, who would be of great service in the construction of field entrenchments and obstacles, and in the numerous services connected with water supply, roads, and other works of the same character required in encampments. I do not suggest any alteration in the present establishment which will probably suffice.

The Volunteer Submarine Miners are called upon to perform duties of an exceedingly difficult character. Their work is even more special than that of the Artillery, and it is absolutely essential for the efficiency of the submarine mine defence, upon which the safety of Sydney in a great measure depends, that the same principle which has been accepted as obligatory in the case of the Artillery should be applied to this body also.

The existing organisation of the submarine mines is purely volunteer. The commanding officer of the corps is the talented and energetic head of the Telegraph Department of the Colony, and it is impossible to say too much in his praise for the excellent work he has done in addition to his own very onerous Departmental duties, in collecting the valuable submarine mining stores now in the Colony, and in getting together a body of men to make use of them. He has worked under very great disadvantages, and so far from finding any fault with what has been done I am astonished at the results he has been able to obtain under conditions so unfavourable. It is evidently wrong, however, that the burden and responsibility for so special and important a military duty should any longer be imposed upon a very hardworked Government servant. The submarine mine defences will give full employment to two officers for some considerable time to come, as numerous experiments must be carried out before the best methods of lighting the mine fields and artillery ranges, and of laying and firing the mines can be determined, and the volunteers trained for their duties, and no time should be lost in carrying out these most necessary works.

Many things are essential for the proper care and storage of the material and for the rapid and systematic laying of the mines, notably a proper store establishment at Kubungharra (Green Point), to take the place of the most inconvenient and unsafe building at Berry's Bay, and proper steamers fitted for laying the mines. The details of the requirements are given in Appendix C.

The number of volunteer submarine miners provided for in the Estimates is 161. The Major-General commanding in his report for 1886, draws attention to the serious disadvantages under which this corps labours, and advocates the formation of a permanent nucleus of permanently enrolled men. I was present at his inspection, and thoroughly endorse his opinions.

There must be a permanent body of submarine miners thoroughly trained and constantly practised. To them would be entrusted the responsibility for the mine defence, the care and maintenance of the stores, and the instruction of the Volunteer Submarine Miners, who could assist them in their work. The composition of the Engineer Submarine Mining Corps should be as follows:—

Permanent Establishment—

1 Major.*
 1 Captain or Lieutenant.
 1 Quarter-master (Warrant Officer).
 1 Sergeant Instructor.
 4 Corporals, assistant instructors, and storekeepers.
 4 2nd Corporals (engine-drivers).
 12 Sappers, of whom 4 would be assistant engine-drivers, 8 electricians, — carpenters, and boatmen.

All should be thoroughly trained in submarine mining duties, and it would be desirable that some at least of the N.C. officers should be obtained from the Royal Engineers.

Volunteers—

2 sections, each consisting of—
 1 Captain.
 1 Lieutenant.
 2 2nd Lieutenants.
 51 N.C. officers and men.

Total ... 2 Captains.
 2 Lieutenants.
 4 2nd Lieutenants.
 102 N.C. officers and men.

Total, 134 officers, N.C. officers, and men.

In the selection of both officers and men special regard should be paid to their civil occupations or trades in order that both officers and men by their previous training may be fitted for their special work. For this reason a higher rate of pay should be given than in the case of other Volunteer Corps; rates should be graduated according to the certificates of proficiency obtained by each individual.

The cost of this Corps would consequently be somewhat greater than that of the present Corps; but there can be no doubt that in efficiency it would be incomparably superior to the organisation which now exists. For not only would there be a permanent body of well trained men completely acquainted with, and constantly practised in, their duties; but the instruction of the volunteers would also be more thoroughly carried out, as the necessary arrangements for a practical drill would be made beforehand by the permanent men, and when the volunteers arrived at the practice-ground they would commence at once, and be occupied during the whole period of instruction in bonâ fide work. I cannot too strongly urge the vital necessity for this change in organisation as one of the most important steps that can be taken for the security of Sydney.

Infantry
Forces.

The existing organisation of the Volunteer Infantry force is expensive, and not satisfactory. 1,504 privates are divided into four little battalions of 376 men, each with a full number of officers, non-commissioned officers and band, for an eight-company organisation. This is clearly extravagant, and bad for discipline and efficiency.

The

* His pay would not be an addition to the Estimates, as it is already provided under the head of Military Instructors. It would be advisable that he should have local rank as Lieut.-Colonel, and that he should be charged as Commanding Engineer with designing and inspecting defence works executed by the Works Department.

The eight-company system may probably be adhered to with advantage in a volunteer battalion, as the less perfect the training of the men the larger will be the number of officers needed, but each battalion should be of full strength. The Royal Commission of 1881 recommended that the Infantry force should be maintained at 2,080 men. A smaller force would not be sufficient for the requirements of the Colony, and it should be capable of expansion to 4,000 rapidly. But the reserve volunteer system has so completely failed to produce the numbers hoped for that the expenditure under this head, amounting to £15,874, as provided in the Estimates for this year, may well be saved, and the attempt to raise a purely Volunteer force on the capitation principle abandoned. The loss in useful defenders will, as noted above, be only about 364 men. It would be cheaper and very much more efficient in every way to keep up the four battalions to a strength of 600 each in peace. The immediately available Infantry force would then be 2,400, and the cost would be about £3,000 less than the cost of the 1,868 men now efficient. Provision must, however, be made for expanding the four battalions to a strength of 800 or even 1,000 men each in war-time. This may be best accomplished I think by encouraging the young men of the Colony to practice rifle shooting, and so to fit themselves for the defence of their country should the necessity arise, by acquiring the most difficult and most essential part of the practical knowledge required by an infantry soldier. The formation of rifle clubs might be assisted by the issue of rifles and ammunition for annual practice, the members having the privilege of buying extra ammunition at a low rate, and prizes being given for proficiency in shooting at periodical rifle meetings. This was recommended by the Royal Commission of 1881, and the recommendation is renewed by the Major-General Commanding in his last annual report.

Such trained riflemen could be drafted into the Infantry battalions in war time, thus rapidly raising their strength by good shots, who could soon be taught the necessary rudiments of drill. Even if the rifle clubs should not prove more successful than the reserve volunteer system, they will at least cost less, and in any case there can be little doubt that numbers of men who have been partially or wholly trained would rejoin the colours in case of war. The existence of the true military spirit in the Colony was well proved by the Soudan Contingent.

The Royal Commission of 1881 advocated the establishment of purely volunteer cavalry or mounted infantry corps. Such a corps would be extremely useful, provided that the members are trained as dragoons or mounted infantry; that is, the men should be armed with a rifle, in addition to sword or revolver—not a lance—and they should be trained rifle shots. The experience of the American civil war, and our own unfortunate experience in Natal, have proved beyond question the immense value of such men—good horsemen and good shots—in a rough country such as that in the vicinity of Sydney, where they would be required to act, and where the action of cavalry in formed bodies would be impossible. Mounted Infantry.

I would go further, and recommend that a small body of such “dragoons” should be enrolled as a permanent force, to be employed in ordinary times in escort and guard duties at Government house, and to form the nucleus of the larger body in war.

They might number some 30 men, with 20 horses, 2 officers, 1 serjeant, and 2 corporals, paid on the same scale as the Permanent Artillery, whom they would free from the guard duties irrelevant to their proper work, which they are now called on to perform.

The commanding officer would take the duties of the cavalry adjutant, now borne on the strength of the Reserve Volunteer Permanent Staff.

The success which has attended the formation of a corps of nearly 1,000 mounted infantry in Victoria encourages the hope that a similar corps may be raised without difficulty in this country. It would be of the greatest value in watching the coast line and the roads from Broken Bay, and for rapid movements in case of an enemy having effected a landing at any point.

It

It is understood that about 300 Mounted Police would be available to augment the mounted forces in war time.

Naval Forces.

Assuming, as before mentioned, that a sea-going Australian Squadron is about to be established, the naval requirements now under consideration refer only to harbour defences. For this purpose the following vessels will be needed :—

Two Gun-boats.—Hired steamers of about 200 tons, with 10 knots speed. Armed with 1 5-in. gun and 2 machine guns.

Crew—2 officers and 22 men ; 1 petty officer.

Four Guard-boats for Submarine Mines.—Hired steamers ; about 40 or 50 tons ; 8 to 10 knots speed. Armed with 2 machine guns.

Crew—1 officer and 14 men ; 1 petty officer.

Twelve Torpedo-boats.—Two are in possession. Ten hired launches, with the highest speed obtainable ; fitted with dropping gear, and each having 2 torpedoes.

Crew—1 officer and 5 men ; 1 petty officer.

The two gun-boats would be employed at the Hawkesbury, and for scouting purposes generally.

The guard-boats would protect the mine-field at Sydney.

Two torpedo-boats would be stationed at Sydney with 2 hired launches. 2 launches would be at Botany Bay, 2 at Broken Bay, 2 at Newcastle, and 2 at Wollongong. This would give 24 of the 40 torpedoes afloat, with 16 in reserve.

Our total naval requirements would thus be 22 officers, 18 petty officers, and 148 men ; or say, to allow for casualties, 25 officers, 25 petty officers, and 160 men.

In Commodore Wilson's evidence given before the Royal Commission, which dealt with different conditions from those now likely to exist, he provides for 35 officers and 408 men, and an instructing staff of 3 officers and 10 men.

The instructing staff might be reduced, under the altered conditions, to two officers and ten men, and they would be available in war for manning the flotilla ; and the total cost, on the lines laid down by Commodore Wilson, would thus be :—

Royal Naval Instructing Staff.

Officers (about)	£1,800
Seamen	1,020
	—————£2,820

Colonial Naval Reserve.

1 Captain	£100
3 Commanders at £80	240
8 Lieutenants at £50	400
8 Sub-Lieutenants at £40	320
25 Warrant and other officers at £40	1,000
160 Seamen at £20	3,200
	————— £8,080

NOTE.—The period of training required by Commodore Wilson is three months afloat, and the pay is consequently higher than for other branches of the defence force. I am not prepared to give an opinion as to the possibility of obtaining the men on these terms, or as to the need for such a long period of training afloat.

The cost of the maintenance of the "Wolverene" as a training hulk, and of the torpedo-boats, and the hire of launches and steamers, are not included in the above. Probably it would be best to purchase one or two launches for practice and for use in instruction, and to hire two steamers—one to act as a gun-boat, the other as a guard-boat—from time to time, as necessary. The "Wolverene" should be moored in Watson's Bay as the head-quarters and store and training-ship for the Naval Defence Forces. The torpedoes and their appliances, with the armaments and ammunition for the defence vessels, should be kept on board her.

The maintenance of the "Wolverene" is provided for in the Estimates, at a cost of £600 per annum.

It

It is clear, from the report of Commodore Wilson, that the existing Naval Brigade and Volunteer Naval Artillery are of but little value under their present organization; but, doubtless, if reorganized as recommended by him, with the modifications suggested above (subject to revision by the naval officer who may be appointed as Naval Commandant), they would furnish most valuable material for the formation of an effective naval force to co-operate in the defence of the New South Wales Harbours.

It is most essential that this naval force should be under the orders of the General Officer Commanding in New South Wales, and that in the general system of action to be pursued in carrying out the defence the Naval Commander should conform to the orders issued by the General, otherwise defence vessels would do more harm than good by obstructing the fire of the guns and the effective use of the mines. This was most clearly brought out in the recent combined operations at Milford Haven; and by both naval and military officers who were present, and who reported officially on the subject, the principle has been accepted that in harbour defence by a combined force, military and naval, there must be one head, and that he must be the military officer commanding the defences of the particular harbour. Such an officer would be appointed by the General Officer Commanding at each of the harbours to be defended, and from him all orders for the conduct of the defence would emanate.

Under present conditions I understand that the Naval Brigade take no part in the general training conducted at Easter, when combined operations should be always carried out. The officers and men of the Naval Brigade and the Naval Artillery Volunteers deserve all honor for their patriotic exertions. They need, however, to be organized into one body of efficient naval gunners, torpedo men and sailors, under one head, to give them practical value in the defence of Sydney.

The point which is perhaps of chief importance in the organization of an Officers. army is the provision of well instructed officers, of full vigour of mind and body, and imbued with a good professional spirit. In a large army this is sufficiently difficult; but in a small volunteer force such as that required by New South Wales, the problem presents very special difficulties, because it is not only hard to find men who are prepared to acquire the necessary knowledge and who for the comparatively small salaries given will devote sufficient time and energy to the subject, but it is also difficult to arrange that there shall be a sufficient flow of promotion, and this more especially in the permanent part of the force, to avoid stagnation.

The natural course of events must lead to men growing old in subordinate positions and losing energy and interest in their work. In these days also of rapid progress in all war equipments and corresponding changes in tactics, it is absolutely essential to efficiency that there shall be from time to time an infusion of fresh blood and fresh practical knowledge from Europe, amongst the officers of a local force on this side of the world.

Two solutions appear to be possible; the first, and one which at present is the most easily carried out, is that Imperial officers, changed every five years, or even at shorter intervals, should be employed in the higher ranks of the Permanent Corps and Staff. Such a change could only in fairness be introduced gradually, and this would in every way be best, as the relief of officers would be successive, not simultaneous. These Imperial officers would be the instructors of the Volunteer officers, who should also be required to pass examinations on the lines laid down in the Regulations, but altered in detail to bring them more nearly to the standard required in the Imperial Service.

The other solution involves a federation of the forces of the whole of the Australian Colonies, and the establishment of a military school similar to that in Canada, at which all officers should be required to graduate. Promotion in this larger body of officers could be arranged more easily than in the small bodies forming the defence forces of the several Colonies.

A system of retirement at fixed ages from the Volunteer Corps would ensure promotion amongst the officers of those Corps, without inflicting any hardship, as the salaries are comparatively small. Retirement from the Permanent Corps, however, must carry a pension, as the officers of those Corps cannot engage in any other business while serving. It

It is evident that the employment of Imperial officers in the higher ranks would, if a permanent institution, have a very bad effect on the esprit de corps of the junior officers, as they would have nothing to look forward to. It is therefore most desirable that the federation of the Australian Colonies, for land defence as well as for naval defence, should be accomplished, and that an Australian military school for officers of all arms should be established, as in Canada, and that when properly trained Colonial officers are available they should be appointed in due course to the higher ranks. In the meantime I would suggest the formation of a Military branch of the Sydney University, with a Military Professor, to teach artillery, fortification tactics, and military administration and law. The existing faculties would give the necessary instructions in mathematics and physics.

A stringent system of examination of all candidates for commissions before appointment, as well as successive examinations for promotion, should be insisted on for all officers, whether for the Permanent or Volunteer Forces, the standards and subjects being varied according as the commissions were to be given in the artillery, engineers, or infantry or cavalry. The existing Regulations provide in some measure for such examinations, but the lists of subjects need revision, and a military school where candidates can study is much wanted. A military library and a room for military lectures, and for playing the war game, and as a general meeting place for the officers, an acknowledged want, might possibly be provided at the University.

Ordnance stores.

Defence
Secretary.

To complete the reorganization of the Defence Forces it is most essential that the Ordnance Store Department, which at present is under the Treasury, should be transferred to the Colonial Secretary's Office. The present arrangement must inevitably cause much needless correspondence and delay, and the general officer commanding has no knowledge of and no control over the military stores, which are essential for the efficiency of the troops, while the ordnance storekeeper has no information as to military stores which may have been ordered, and accordingly he cannot make due provision for their storage. The Ordnance Store Establishment also needs considerable revision to make it efficient.

Above all, it is important that some one official—probably a permanent under secretary would be most convenient—should be charged with the whole correspondence connected with the finance of the defences. He would prepare the annual budget, and check the expenditure of the funds, and would be the channel through whom the general officer commanding would communicate with the Government. At present there is no such official, and it is evidently impossible that the Colonial Secretary and Premier can deal with all the correspondence on defence matters, overwhelmed as he must be with important political duties.

To summarise my recommendations they are briefly as follows:—

1. Reorganization of the Submarine Mining Engineers, and the construction of a proper submarine mining establishment at Kubungharra, with suitable steamers and all appliances for rapidly laying mines.
2. Re-arming Sydney, Newcastle, and Botany Bay, and arming Wollongong, as per detailed statements.
3. Completion of the defence works, particularly the emplacements for the guns, installation of electric lights, and roads of communication.
4. Reorganization of the naval forces, and formation of torpedo boat-slips, Kubungharra, the "Wolverene" being fitted as store and training ship.
5. Partial reorganization of the Artillery and Infantry Volunteers, and formation of Mounted Rifle Corps.
6. Changes in the system of appointment and education of officers.
7. Building Artillery Barracks at Middle Head, and sale of part of Victoria Barracks, the upper portion being retained for the Head-quarters Staff, and Permanent Mounted Infantry.
8. Transfer of the Ordnance Store Department from the Treasury to the Colonial Office, and construction of proper Ordnance Stores.
9. Appointment of a Secretary for Defence.
10. Frequent practice by individual corps, and also in combined operations, of the tactics for the defence of the several ports, under the officers specially appointed to command the defence of each port.

The

The cost of these proposals, as shown in the Appendices, would be for material defences about £145,000, which might be spread over two or three years; and an annual charge for personnel of about £155,000.

In concluding my Report I must acknowledge the ready and courteous assistance I have received from the Major General Commanding, and from all officers serving under him with whom I have been brought in contact. The subjects on which you have asked my opinion involve not only questions of artillery, fortification, and submarine mining, with which I am familiar, but also questions of organisation, intimately connected with them, but which are far more difficult of solution, especially by one who has had but a short acquaintance with the peculiar conditions of Colonial life.

On the former subjects my recommendations may be considered to have some weight; but on the latter they are made with considerable diffidence. That the existing organisation is defective is beyond a doubt. That which I have suggested would, I believe, be considerably more effective and economical in every way*. Certainly it would be more efficient in the case of the submarine mines, and I cannot too strongly urge that this part of the defence system be at once put on a proper footing, with every means and appliance for the rapid defence of Sydney by submarine mines. This is vital to the safety of the city.

H. SCHAW,
Major-General.

* I am glad to be assured, by the perusal of copies of letters addressed by the Major-General Commanding to the Colonial Secretary on 25 February, 1884, and 28 July, 1885, and which have just been furnished to me by General Richardson, that in the main his views on the reorganisation needed coincide with those which I have formed, and which have been expressed in this Report.—H.S.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

COAST AND HARBOUR DEFENCE.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING MAJOR PARROTT'S REPORT ON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 20 October, 1887.

Major T. S. Parrott to The Honorable Sir Henry Parkes, K.C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, Sydney.

Sir,

Sydney, 9 August, 1887.

I beg to forward you herewith a report on coast and harbour defence which I have prepared since my return to Australia.

I have endeavoured to master the subject in all its details, and to present it to you in such a shape as will enable you to form an independent judgment of the several matters comprised in the subject of coast and harbour defence, notwithstanding the widely divergent opinions that are held by some of the leading authorities in Europe.

It is this independent judgment exercised by the United States Congress during the last twenty years that has saved that country an expenditure that might otherwise have been reckoned by scores of millions sterling.

I have only touched the leading features of the several branches of the subject, and shall be glad to furnish you with a full and detailed report of any one of these branches if you should desire it.

I have, &c.,

T. S. PARROTT.

Major T. S. Parrott to The Honorable Sir Henry Parkes, K.C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, Sydney.

Sir,

Sydney, 13 October, 1887.

In the report of the Parliamentary debates of yesterday you are made to say with reference to my report on "Coast and Harbour Defence" that it was sent to you in your private capacity as Colonial Secretary.

I regret you should have fallen into this error, as the idea of regarding the report anything but official I never entertained for a moment.

The report is addressed to—"The Honorable the Colonial Secretary of New South Wales," and not to Sir Henry Parkes.

My object in making it an official document was to enable your Government and the Parliament to form an independent judgment on matters that have hitherto been determined solely by experts.

I have, &c.,

T. S. PARROTT.

The Principal Under Secretary to Major T. S. Parrott.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 October, 1887.

I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th instant, in which you explain that you intended your report on "Coast and Harbour Defence," as forwarded by your covering letter to Sir Henry Parkes on the 9th August, to be an "official document."

1. I am to explain that if your report had been sent to the Colonial Secretary simply as such it would, in the usual course of public business, have been opened by me, as the permanent head of the Department, and would have been duly recorded before being submitted to the Colonial Secretary.

2. The Colonial Secretary desires me to add that you must have a strange conception of an "official document" to consider it a proper course of conduct to place in the hands of other persons a copy of the report which you wish to be so regarded.

3. I am now directed to return the report to your hands, and to remind you, as a soldier holding Her Majesty's Commission, that if you desire to officially communicate with the Government you should do so through the General Commanding the Forces.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER,

Principal Under Secretary.

Major T. S. Parrott to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 18 October, 1887.

I beg to acknowledge receipt of the "Report on Coast and Harbour Defence," returned to me by the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, and must say that the idea that the sending of the report to him should cause any misapprehension is quite foreign to my mind, and inexplicable to me.

My authentication having been received direct from the Minister then occupying the position of Colonial Secretary, I deemed it my duty to forward the report resulting therefrom direct to the Honorable the present Colonial Secretary, and as a matter of courtesy to his predecessor, from whom I received my credentials.

I regret that the report in question should not be thought worthy of consideration,

And am, &c.,

T. S. PARROTT.

LANDS FOR PUBLIC PURPOSES ACQUISITION ACT.

(RESUMPTION OF LAND FOR ROAD TO CONNECT FORTIFICATIONS WITH BEN BUCKLER AND FORTS NEAR BONDI.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 44 Vic. No. 16, sec. 6.

NOTIFICATION OF RESUMPTION OF LAND UNDER 44 VICTORIA No. 16.

NEW SOUTH WALES, } By His Excellency The Right Honourable to wit. } CHARLES ROBERT, BARON CARRINGTON, a Member of Her Majesty's Most (L.S.) Honourable Privy Council, Knight
CARRINGTON, } Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Governor. } Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South
Wales and its Dependencies.

WHEREAS I, the Governor aforesaid, with the advice of the Executive Council of the said Colony, have duly sanctioned the carrying out of certain works for and in connection with the construction of a Military Road to connect the fortifications at the South Head with Ben Buckler and forts near Botany in the said Colony, for and towards the completion of which said works public funds are available under the provisions of the Acts to apply sums out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of New South Wales towards services of 1885 and 1886, and for services to be hereinafter provided for by loan; and whereas the lands hereinafter described are required for the construction of the said works: Now, I, the Governor of the said Colony, with the advice of the Executive Council of the said Colony, in pursuance of the powers in this behalf given to or vested in me by the "Lands for Public Purposes Acquisition Act," do by this notification, published in the Gazette and in a newspaper, that is to say, in the "Sydney Morning Herald," circulated in the Police District wherein the said lands are situated, declare that the lands hereinafter described have been resumed for the public purposes hereinafter mentioned that is to say, for and in connection with the construction of the above Military Road, to the intent that, upon the publication of this notification in the Gazette, the legal estate in the said lands shall forthwith be vested in the Minister for Public Works and his successors, on behalf of Her Majesty, for the purpose of the said last-mentioned Act, for an estate of inheritance in fee simple in possession freed and discharged from all trusts, obligations, estate, interests, contracts, charges, rates, rights-of-way, or other easements whatsoever; and to the intent, further, that the legal estate therein, together with all powers incident thereto or conferred by the said Act, shall be vested in the said Minister as a trustee, with the powers stated in the said last-mentioned Act. And I declare that the following are the descriptions of the lands hereinbefore referred to, that is to say:—

All those portions of land comprised in the following allotments of the private subdivision of R. Hurd's 30 acre grant at Bondi, in the parish of Alexandria, county of Cumberland, in the Colony of New South Wales, known as the township of Queenscliff, Ben Buckler, to wit:—

Allotments 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, section 4,
Allotment 1 of section 8,

Allotments 1, 2, 3, 50, 51, 52, section 7,

Allotment 8 of section 6,

Allotments 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66,
67, 68, section 2,

Allotments 9, 10, and 11, section 1,—

reputed to be the property of A. Patterson, W. J. Clark, H. Clark, M. Hegarty, H. Dorhauer, T. R. Scott, and E. Saber,—shown in red on tracing of subdivision plan herewith.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my Hand, and caused the Great Seal of the Colony to be hereto affixed, at Government House, Sydney, this ninth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, and in the fifty-first year of Her Majesty's Reign.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN SUTHERLAND.

CIVIL SERVICE ACT, 1884.

(REPORT OF BOARD FOR 1887.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 48 Vic. No. 24, sec. 62.

REPORT

OF THE

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD OF NEW SOUTH WALES,

For the Year 1887.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable CHARLES ROBERT, BARON CARRINGTON, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies :

YOUR LORDSHIP,—

We have the honor to submit to your EXCELLENCY in COUNCIL our Annual Report, in terms of the 62nd section of the "Civil Service Act, 1884."

2. CHARLES A. GOODCHAP, Esq., retired from the Board in the order of rotation on the 31st December, 1886, and CRITCHETT WALKER, Esq., Principal Under Secretary, was appointed to the vacancy thus occasioned.

3. At a meeting of the Board on the 10th January, the Hon. G. EAGAR was re-elected Chairman in pursuance of the provisions of the 13th section.

4. The "Civil Service Act Amendment Act, 1886," came into force on the 1st January, 1887, and by it so much of the "Civil Service Act, 1884," as prescribed a classification of all officers within divisions, and so much of the said Act as entitled such officers to increases, based on such classification, were repealed. No statutory increases, therefore, accrued to the salaries of officers during the past year,

[1,508 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £12 5s. 11d.]

5. The Amending Act has not materially diminished the business of the Board, such business having necessitated the holding of forty-one meetings during the year.

6. The returns furnished by heads of Departments, as required by section 25, show that the following changes have occurred throughout the Service during the year:—

Abolition of offices for purposes of retrenchment and reorganization	106
Deaths	59
Resignations	70
Retirements on superannuation allowance	116
Dismissals	38
Appointments of probationers	11
Appointments under section 7	159
" " 8	242
" " 28	13
Creation of new offices under section 29, in which the appointments were made by the Governor-in-Council without reference to the Board	9
Appointment of temporary officers by Ministerial authority under section 31	99

7. The returns of Teachers in the Department of Public Instruction, show 49 retirements and 3 abolitions of office (which are included in the above), and also 786 resignations, 61 dismissals, and 33 deaths.

8. The Board have dealt with 401 appointments, promotions, and transfers reported to them under the provisions of section 27, and have to report that their recommendations have in almost every case been accepted by the Minister in whose Department the vacancies occurred. In a case in which the Minister promoted an officer contrary to the recommendation of the Board, the reasons for the course adopted were furnished to the Board and were considered by them to be satisfactory.

9. In our first Report we called attention to the fact that the Act imposed upon the Board the duty of reporting as to the nature and extent of the duties performed in each Department of the Public Service by the persons employed therein, and of stating whether, in the opinion of the Board, more persons, and if so, how many more, are employed in any Department than the exigencies of the Service reasonably require, and the Board stated that it was entirely out of their power, as then constituted, to carry out this work. A Royal Commission, with the same object in view, was appointed on the 16th December, 1887, to make the necessary inquiries into the administration of each Branch of the Service, with special reference to increased efficiency and economy.

SUPERANNUATION ACCOUNT.

10. The Statement of the Civil Service Superannuation Account, which the Board now submit in accordance with the 62nd section of the Act, will, it is thought, give satisfaction to all interested in its successful working, the balance at Cr. on 31st December, 1887, being £235,436 11s. 8d., an increase as compared with the balance on 31st December, 1886, of £82,909 13s. 10d.

11. The balance on 31st December, 1886, was £152,526 17s. 10d.; this was augmented during the year by the payment of £20,000 from Consolidated Revenue Fund, being the third annual subsidy, and £3,500, the annual amount provided for pensions under Schedule B of the Constitution Act. The deductions of 4 per cent. from salaries realized £64,453 11s.; interest, £8,187 6s. 6d.; fines, £66 6s.; refund on account of gratuity on re-entering service, £6. The sum of £16,414 6s. 7d. (which was specially voted to provide for the "Abatement from Pensions" and "Gratuities to Officers whose services were dispensed with in the Lands and Public Instruction Departments"), MAKING THE TOTAL RECEIPTS, £265,154 7s. 11d.

12. The disbursements during the year have been :—Pensions under Schedule B, £3,020 4s. 4d.; pensions under Civil Service Act, £9,145 11s. 5d.; gratuities to officers, £13,336 10s. 5d.; gratuities to widows in necessitous circumstances, £4,159 9s.; refund of deductions made in error from non-contributors, £55 6s. 7d.; fine remitted, 14s. 6d.; BEING A TOTAL EXPENDITURE, £29,717 16s. 3d.; thus leaving a balance to Credit of Superannuation Account on 31st December, 1887, of £235,436 11s. 8d.

13. The number of officers who have retired on pensions since the Act came into operation on the 1st January, 1885, to 31st December, 1887, is 159, and the amount to which they are entitled is £18,342 10s. 7d. per annum.

14. The gratuities granted during the same period amounted to £24,966 15s. 8d., the recipients numbering 166.

15. Of these, 41 pensions and 55 gratuities have been granted to persons whose services have been dispensed with for purposes of retrenchment or reorganization, chiefly in the Lands and Education Departments.

16. Gratuities to the amount of £7,919 13s. 1d. have been paid to sixty-seven widows.

17. Retirements under 60 years of age, consequent on ill-health, were 80 in number; the payments amount to £5,663 2s. 3d. for gratuities, and £5,373 17s. 8d. per annum for pensions.

18. Four pensioners have died within the above period, reducing the amount to be paid by £514 10s. per annum.

19. It is believed that want of confidence in the stability of the Fund deterred many from retiring during the first year; and that the reason it has not been more generally availed of since that time is in consequence of the heavy deductions from pensions of 4 per cent. charged on total salaries and emoluments from date of the officer's first appointment; thus rendering the pensions too small to be a reasonable provision for officers of long service. Reference was made in our first Report to this provision of the Act as "inequitable in its operation," and further experience has shown that its effect is so much at variance with justice that it is impossible to deal fairly with the claims of old officers while the 55th section of the Act is in force.

20. The following is an instance of the working of the section referred to:—A.B. retired at 80 years of age with thirty and a half years' service, the average salary of the last three years being £104, and the gross pension to which he would have been entitled, £52 17s. 4d. 4 per cent. on his total back salary created a debit against him of £158 18s. 8d., and as the actuarial value of his life was less than four years the annual abatement from his gross pension amounted to £41 15s. 4d., so that his nett pension was £11 2s. per annum.

21. With similar service, at 60 years of age, the pension would be £35 14s. 2d.; at 70, £27 8s. 4d.; at 80 (as above), £11 2s.; and in the event of any officer being over 90 years of age, on the same basis he would not be entitled to receive anything from the Fund. In view of this and many other anomalies which occur through charging the retiring officers with 4 per cent. on their total salaries and emoluments prior to the passing of the Act the Board, after three years' experience of its operation, recommend the entire elimination of this provision.

22. The Board are of opinion that section 57 requires amendment so as to limit within a prescribed period the option granted to any person permanently employed on wages to apply to be admitted as a contributor to the Superannuation Account. It is found that the young and robust wage-earners, to whom this option is allowed, do not take advantage of this section, and that the majority of those who avail themselves of its provisions are old and infirm men, who, immediately after becoming contributors, apply to be allowed to retire, thus unduly lessening the fund created by the officers, whose contributions are compulsory, without corresponding contributions from the wage-earning portion of the Service.

23. Preparation is being made for the triennial investigation into the state and sufficiency of the Superannuation Account, and the Board recommend that an actuarial opinion should be obtained as to whether provision could be made for the refund to officers resigning from the Service, without pension or gratuity, of a surrender value of their contributions to the Superannuation Account. It is believed that a provision of this nature could be introduced, which would meet the objections of those to whom the advantages of superannuation allowances appear to be remote.

24. The Board in their previous Reports have recommended that the claims of all widows should be placed on a more equitable basis, without reference to "necessitous circumstances" as required in section 51, and again draw attention to this matter in the hope that it will receive speedy rectification.

25. The Appendices hereto, numbered from I to V, will afford further information as to the working of the Act.

Given under our hands at Sydney this twenty-second day of May, 1888.

(THIRD SESSION.)

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CIVIL SERVICE ACT.

(RETIREMENTS UNDER, &c.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 2 November, 1887.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 27th September, 1887, That there be laid upon the Table of this House, a Return showing,—

- “(1.) The total number of retirements under the Civil Service Act of 1884, and under the provisions of clauses 43, 44, 45, 46, and 47 of Part 5 of the said Act.
“(2.) The amounts paid as gratuities to Officers whose services have been dispensed with under clauses 48, 49, and 50.
“(3.) The total amount which is chargeable to the Superannuation Account, giving each Officer’s allowance or gratuity.
“(4.) The number of Officers whose services have been dispensed with before reaching the age of 60 years, the saving to the State through such action, showing the amounts chargeable to the Superannuation Account and Consolidated Revenue respectively, together with any other information that will tend to make the Return complete.”

(Mr. Frank Farnell.)

- (1.) The total number of retirements under the Civil Service Act of 1884, and under the provisions of clauses 43, 44, 45, 46, and 47 of Part 5 of the said Act:—

For particulars see Schedules I and II.

- (4.) The number of officers whose services have been dispensed with before reaching the age of 60 years, the saving to the State through such action, showing the amounts chargeable to the Superannuation Account and Consolidated Revenue respectively, together with any other information that will tend to make the Return complete.

The services of 74 officers have been dispensed with before reaching 60 years of age.

The saving to the State in salaries from the date of the forced retirement to reaching 60 years of age amounts to £395,914.

The amount chargeable to the Superannuation Account is £4,282 1s. per annum for pensions, and £8,091 19s. 5d. for gratuities. (See Schedules III and IV.)

To provide for compensation to these officers for loss of office, special votes from the Consolidated Revenue were made of £13,400 (Estimates 1887, pp. 68 and 105), part of which was voted to relieve the officers entitled to pensions from the abatement to which their pensions were liable under the Act, but from these votes the Superannuation Account derived no benefit.

It will be seen from Schedules III and IV that the sum of £47,742 1s. will be paid away to these officers before the time at which they would be entitled to retire. The account will also lose the sum of £15,218 7s. 2d., as 4 per cent. deduction from their salaries, besides a considerable amount for interest which would have accrued during the period.

In addition to the officers comprised in this return, the claims of others have yet to be considered.

A large number of temporary officials have also been dispensed with, but as they did not contribute to the Superannuation Account they had no claim under the Civil Service Act.

Civil Service Board, Sydney, 21 October, 1887.

NOTE.—608 men were employed from 1st January to 30th September, 1887, and 804 either deceased, left, or had their services dispensed with during the same period. A large number of those appointed were taken on from those who appear in the list as having had their services dispensed with. On 30th September, 1887, there were 196 men employed less on the Railway Branch than on 1st January, 1887, notwithstanding that 97½ additional miles of Railway and 14 miles of Tramway had been opened for traffic.

The total number of miles opened 31st December, 1886 = 1,889½ miles—average men per mile, 5.

(THIRD SESSION.)

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY,
NEW SOUTH WALES,

CIVIL SERVICE.

(APPOINTMENT OF MR. JOSEPH BARLING, AS CHIEF CLERK, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 November, 1887.

Mr. C. B. Airey to The Commissioner and Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Roads under Trustees,

Sydney, 25 August, 1887.

Understanding that the position of Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch of this Department is likely to become vacant, I have the honor to apply for the office, and in support of my application would respectfully point out that for nearly five years I held the position of Record Clerk in that Branch, a portion of the time acting as Corresponding Clerk, being next in seniority to Mr. William Forde, the present Chief Clerk, and only left the office to take the position I now hold. I may perhaps be allowed to point out that in the event of the proposed Local Government Act becoming law my present office must inevitably be abolished. I trust my conduct whilst in your Department may have been such as to induce you to forward this letter to the Minister with your favourable recommendation on my behalf.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. B. AIREY,

Clerk in Charge, Roads under Trustees.

Mr. Airey has been five and a half years in this Department in charge of the Trustee Roads. When he joined all the business was in great arrears and confusion; he soon restored order, and got up arrears, and not alone kept up the duties of his own Branch, but took over other work, enabling us to dispense with other officers. Mr. Airey has also had much to do with interviewing the public on the duties of his office. Such work, as well as the clerical work, has been conducted in a most satisfactory manner.—W.C.B., 27/8/87. The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Submitted, 2 September, 1887.—J.R.

Mr. P. H. Flynn to The Commissioner and Engineer-in-Chief.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Office of Commissioner and Engineer for Roads,

Sydney, 26 August, 1887.

As I understand that Mr. Forde, the Chief Clerk in the Public Works Office, intends retiring from that position, I have to apply for appointment to same when it becomes vacant. My long service in the Department (thirty years), five of which I have filled my present position of Chief Clerk, will, I trust, be considered sufficient proof of my qualifications for the appointment; and I trust that the manner in which I have discharged my duties and my length of service will be favourably considered when the appointment in question is being made.

I have, &c.,

P. H. FLYNN.

Mr. Flynn has been for twenty-three years in this Department as Accountant and Chief Clerk. During all that time he has been an able assiduous officer, working early and late, and keeping the complex machinery of the Department going smoothly, both in the field and office, and working harder than any man I know in his capacity either in or out of the Service. If from reasons of official convenience Mr. Flynn cannot get Mr. Forde's place, for which I think he is the senior applicant, he ought to receive that advancement in pay so long withheld, his present pay being less than that of any Chief Clerk in the Department.—W.C.B., 27/8/87. Under Secretary for Public Works.

Submitted, 2 September, 1887.—J.R.

Mr. W. H. Quodling to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Railway Branch,

Engineer-in-Chief's Office, Sydney, 1 September, 1887.

I have the honor to apply for the appointment of Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch of the Public Works Department, which has become vacant by the resignation of Mr. Forde.

In support of my claim for the position, I may state that I have for nearly thirty years had charge of the clerical branch of the Engineering Department under Mr. Whitton, the Engineer-in-Chief, and I can with confidence refer you to that gentleman for a certificate as to the manner in which I have discharged the onerous and responsible duties which devolved upon me during my long period of service.

I have, &c.,

W. H. QUODLING.

I recommend Mr. Quodling's application to the favourable consideration of the Minister. I shall greatly regret to lose Mr. Quodling's services in this Department, but as he has been with me for upwards of thirty years, and I have never been able to procure for him that advancement in the Public Service to which he has long been entitled, it will afford me much pleasure to hear that his present application has been successful. I know of no one in the Civil Service of this or any other Colony who has shown more zeal, energy, ability, or more self-sacrificing loyalty, than Mr. Quodling has exhibited for me and the Department under my control, and I know of no one who will discharge the duties of the office he now seeks more ably or faithfully.—JOHN WHITTON.

Respectfully resubmitted for reconsideration.—W.H.Q., 6/9/87.

Mr. J. M'Shane to The Colonial Architect.

Sir, Colonial Architect's Office, Sydney, 2 September, 1887.

I do myself the honor to request permission to apply for the chief clerkship in the Ministerial Office of the Public Works Department, which I hear is about to become vacant. I enclose my application, and trust to your kindness in supporting same.

I have, &c.,
JAMES M'SHANE,
Chief Clerk.

[Enclosure.]

Department of Public Works, Colonial Architect's Office,
Sydney, 2 September, 1887.

Sir, I do myself the honor to apply for the chief clerkship in your office, which I hear is about to become vacant. My service in the Government dates from June, 1859, which places me amongst the seniors on the clerical staff of the Public Works Department, and I have held my present position of Chief Clerk in the Colonial Architect's office for about ten years. Trusting you will, in forwarding this application to the Minister, recommend it for his favourable consideration.

I have, &c.,
JAMES M'SHANE.

Mr. M'Shane has long and faithfully performed the duties of Chief Clerk to the Colonial Architect's Department, and although I shall regret his removal, I gladly recommend him for the advancement to the office he seeks.—J.B., 2 September, 1887.

Submitted, 5/9/87.

Mr. J. Barling to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir, Department of Public Works, Harbours and Rivers Branch,
Sydney, 3 September, 1887.

With the sanction of the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers, whose letter on the subject is enclosed, I do myself the honor respectfully to apply for the position of Chief Clerk of the Public Works Department, rendered vacant by the retirement of Mr. W. Forde.

Perhaps I may be relieved from entering into any statement as to my qualifications for the office, as I have had the advantage of being personally known to you as an officer of this Department for over twenty-seven years, and, I hope, not unfavourably; and I trust I may also venture to say the same with regard to the Hon. the Minister for Works.

It may not, however, be out of place to draw attention to the Minister's minute, which accompanied the Executive minute, conferring upon me my present appointment, a copy of which is enclosed,

I have, &c.,
J. BARLING.

[Enclosures.]

Department of Public Works, Harbours and Rivers Branch,
Sydney, 3 September, 1887.

Sir, Understanding that Mr. Forde is about to resign his present position, and that Mr. Barling, the Chief Clerk and Accountant of this Branch, is an applicant for the office, it is right that I should give expression to my opinion as to his fitness.

I now beg to state that, in my opinion, he is eminently qualified to fill it, or any other office in the non-professional permanent branch of the service; and having had over twenty-six years of daily intercourse with him, I am enabled to state that his talents are of the highest order, while his integrity, zeal, and attention to his duties are not to be surpassed.

I shall, of course, feel deeply the loss of Mr. Barling's assistance, if he should be transferred to the other place, but I cannot allow my own convenience to stand in the way of his advancement in the Service, which the contemplated change will probably lead to.

I have, &c.,
E. O. MORIARTY.

The Hon. the Minister for Works.

Ministerial Minute.

I THINK it due to Mr. Barling to place on record the high appreciation I entertain of his character as an officer of the Department, and the readiness with which he fell into my wishes in accepting the new appointment offered to him, which presented no great inducement, as, though the duties are more onerous and responsible, the salary is no greater than he was formerly receiving.

I have, accordingly, to express a hope that whatever change may take place in the Ministerial head of the Department, Mr. Barling's conduct in this instance may not be overlooked when the proper opportunity occurs, and that his voluntary acceptance of office in the Harbours and Rivers Branch, in the manner stated, will be no bar to his promotion in case of a vacancy in any other Branch of the Department.

22 August, 1871.

JAMES BYRNES.

Minute by The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 5 September, 1887.

Filling up vacancy, Chief Clerk, Ministerial Branch.

A VACANCY having occurred in the office of Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch of this Department, by the retirement of Mr. Forde, in consequence of continued bad health, after a long period of faithful service, it has become necessary to fill up the vacancy.

With this end in view, I have received, and have the honor to submit, applications for the office from Mr. Flynn, Chief Clerk in the Roads Branch; Mr. Airey, Clerk in charge of the Roads under Trustees, in the same Branch; Mr. M'Shane, Chief Clerk in the Colonial Architect's Office; and Mr. Barling, Chief Clerk in the Harbours and Rivers Branch; with favourable testimonials on the applications from the heads of the respective branches.

While

While duly appreciating the justness of these testimonials, I have no hesitation in stating that, from my knowledge of the character and acquirements of the different applicants, I consider Mr. Barling, on the whole, as best qualified for the office, and I have much pleasure in recommending that he be appointed Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch of this Department, at the salary at present attached to the office.

JOHN RAE.

Forward to Civil Service Board.—J.S., 5/9/87.

With reference to Mr. Quodling's application for the office of Chief Clerk, vacant by the retirement of Mr. Forde, I feel it necessary to state that before forwarding to the Board my recommendation of the 3rd instant, I conferred with Mr. Quodling, as the officer of the longest service in the Department, and he having positively declined to apply for the position, as he preferred to remain in the office of Engineer-in-Chief for Railways, I recommended Mr. Barling, as the next in seniority of those whom I considered fit for the office. Subsequently, however, Mr. Quodling changed his mind, and sent in his application for the situation, but withdrew it on my reminding him of his refusal to apply for it, and my recommendation was forwarded to the Board. Mr. Quodling has now resubmitted his application, and though I agree with Mr. Whitton in the high estimate he has formed of Mr. Quodling's qualification, I feel justified, under the circumstances, in adhering to my recommendation in favour of Mr. Barling.—JOHN RAE, 8th September, 1887. The Secretary to the Civil Service Board.

The Civil Service Board request that this paper may be forwarded to Mr. Quodling for any observations that he may have to make.—E.W.P. The Under Secretary for Public Works, B.C., 12/9/87. Mr. Quodling accordingly.—J.R., B.C., 13/9/87. Report forwarded herewith.—W.H.Q., 15/9/87. John Rae, Esq.

Memorandum.

I MUCH regret that Mr. Rae has misunderstood my action with reference to the vacancy caused by Mr. Forde's resignation of the office of Chief Clerk in the Works Department.

A few months ago Mr. Rae informed me that Mr. Forde would have to retire from the Service, and asked me if I would apply for the appointment, very kindly stating that he would be pleased if I did so, as he considered that I was well qualified for the office.

I replied that before making any application I would like to consult Mr. Whitton, who was at the time unable to attend the office through ill-health; but I did not intend in any way to convey to Mr. Rae's mind the impression that I had no intention of applying for the appointment when it became vacant.

It was not until the afternoon of the 31st August that I was informed by Mr. Forde, to my great surprise, that he had applied to retire from the Service, and that it was his last day in the office.

As I felt a delicacy about applying for Mr. Forde's appointment until it had become vacant, I had refrained from taking any action in the matter until he had actually vacated his position, and on the day following the receipt of the above information, viz., 1st September, I made a written application for the vacant appointment, with Mr. Whitton's concurrence and recommendation.

Mr. Rae subsequently asked me to withdraw the application, as he stated that having been under the impression that I did not intend to apply for the appointment he had promised to recommend Mr. Barling for it, that the matter was virtually settled, and if my application were withdrawn it would relieve him from an embarrassing position.

I accordingly withdrew my application, but, by the advice of my friends, I resubmitted it, as they were of opinion that I had the strongest claim for the appointment, and that my name ought to be submitted for the consideration of the Government and the Civil Service Board.

In conclusion, I may be permitted to repeat the expression of my regret that any misunderstanding has occurred in this matter, which I can only attribute to the fact that I did not at the time show any eagerness about obtaining the appointment, and this was for two reasons—first, my disinclination to apply for the office before it was vacant; and secondly, that after thirty years' service with the Engineer-in-Chief I was naturally reluctant to sever the connection without his full and cordial concurrence.

Memo. by The Secretary, Civil Service Board.

Matter of Appointment of Chief Clerk in the Department of Public Works.

THE Civil Service Board having had before them the several applications (as particularised on the other side) for the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. W. Forde from the position of Chief Clerk in the Public Works Department, and having considered the respective lengths of service, degree of competency, and attainments of the applicants, beg to report the name of Mr. W. H. Quodling as that of the person, in their opinion, the best qualified for the vacancy.

Minute

Minute by The Secretary for Public Works.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 24 October, 1887.

• Filling up of position of Chief Clerk in the Works Department.

I HAVE before me the recommendations of the Under Secretary for Works and the Civil Service Board touching the filling up of the position of the chief clerkship of the Works Department, rendered vacant by retirement of Mr. William Forde. The former recommends Mr. Barling, Chief Clerk and Accountant of the Harbours and Rivers Department, the latter Mr. Quodling, Chief Clerk in the Constructing Branch of the Railway Department.

I have now to consider which is the better qualified officer of the two to fill the vacant office, and I have no hesitation in selecting Mr. Barling. Mr. Quodling's experience has been wholly in connection with railways, while Mr. Barling has been in public works generally, especially those relating to water supply, which forms so large a part of Mr. Rae's department, as distinct from railways.

Both officers, in their respective offices, have rendered valuable service, and both are public servants of very long standing. It is not now a question of promotion for either, as I intend, in view of the urgent necessity for retrenchment, whenever an opportunity presents itself, to reduce the salary from £600 to £550, the rate it stood at before the Civil Service increments were added, and at this rate both Mr. Barling and Mr. Quodling are now paid.

I notice my predecessor recommended Mr. Barling for a higher position,* and in this I am disposed to concur when the opportunity occurs for carrying it into effect. I shall also be pleased to recommend Mr. Quodling for promotion in his Department when the right time comes, which may be soon.

JOHN SUTHERLAND.

Prepare minute for Executive.—J.R., 31/10/87.

Mr. Barling's appointment as Chief Clerk, Ministerial Branch.

WRITE to the Civil Service Board acknowledging the receipt of their minute recommending Mr. Quodling for the appointment, and inform them that Mr. Sutherland has given full consideration to their recommendation and that of the Under Secretary for Works, but under all the circumstances of the case, as disclosed in the papers submitted, he considers Mr. Barling best suited for the office, and has accordingly recommended him to the Executive at reduced salary of £550.—J.R.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to The Secretary to the Civil Service Board.

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 3 November, 1887.

I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to acknowledge the receipt of the minute of the Civil Service Board recommending the appointment of Mr. W. H. Quodling to the office of Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch of this Department, now vacant, consequent upon the retirement of Mr. Forde, and to inform you that Mr. Sutherland, after careful consideration of the minute in question of the recommendation of the Under Secretary for Public Works, and of the papers submitted to him bearing upon the case, is of opinion that under all the circumstances Mr. Joseph Barling is best suited for the office, and has recommended his appointment to the Executive at a reduced salary of £550 per annum.

By direction of the Minister, I forward herewith a copy of a minute made by him in which his reasons for making the appointment are set forth.

I have, &c.,

JOHN RAE.

Minute for the Executive Council.

Subject:—Appointment of Mr. Joseph Barling as Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch, Department of Public Works.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 31 October, 1887.

A VACANCY having occurred in the office of Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch by the retirement of Mr. Forde, I have the honor to submit for the approval of His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council the appointment of Mr. Joseph Barling, at present Chief Clerk in the Harbours and Rivers Branch of this Department, to the position of Chief Clerk in the Ministerial Branch, at the reduced salary of £550 per annum, the same rate as now received by him.

The appointment to take effect from the 1st proximo.

JOHN SUTHERLAND.

The Executive Council advise that the appointment herein recommended be approved.—A. C. BUDGE, Clerk of the Council. Min., 87-61, 1/11/87. Confirmed, 8/11/87. Approved.—CARRINGTON, 1/11/87. Inform Treasury and Mr. Barling,—J.R., 11/11/87. Treasury.—Mr. J. Barling, 11/11/87.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

FEES RECEIVED BY CIVIL SERVANTS.

(FOR YEARS 1883-4-5-6.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 8 February, 1888.

FURTHER RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 10th May, 1887, That there be laid upon the Table of this House, a Return showing,—

- “ (1.) The total amount received as fees of office, or in any other way, by the Clerks of Petty Sessions at the Central Police Court, the Water Police Court, and all other Courts throughout the Colony, from all sources, specifying the amounts received during each of the years 1883, 1884, 1885, and 1886, showing what the fees were received for, and if the fees or any of them were received for work done during office hours.
- “ (2.) The like as regards the fees received by every other person employed in the Civil Service of the Colony during each of the above years.
- “ (3.) The like as regards the fees received by the Crown Solicitor during each of the above years, particularly specifying under different headings what the fees, from all sources paid to him, were paid for.
- “ (4.) The like as regards the fees received by the different Attorneys-General from all sources during the years 1879, 1880, 1881, 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885, and 1886, giving the names of the different Attorneys-General who received such fees, specifying under different headings what the fees were received for.”

(Mr. McElhone.)

The Secretary to the General Post Office to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

General Post Office, Sydney, 10 June, 1887.

With reference to your letter dated the 11th ultimo, covering copy of an order of the Legislative Assembly for certain information desired by Mr. McElhone regarding fees paid to Civil Servants, I am directed to inform you, as regards the Post Office Department, that the only fees paid to employees are those which are retained by postmasters for making up private bags, in accordance with regulations, of which a copy is attached, but no account has been kept of such payments, and it would be impossible to obtain complete or reliable information from the postmasters themselves, owing to the many changes which have affected so large a number of post-offices during the years specified by Mr. McElhone, namely, 1883, 1884, 1885, and 1886.

The Superintendent of the Money Order Office reports that no fees have been received by any of the officers of his department during the years mentioned.

The information as regards the Telegraph Department will be forwarded as soon as it comes to hand.

I have, &c.,

S. H. LAMBTON.

REGULATIONS FOR PRIVATE MAIL BAGS.

PRIVATE BAGS—ANNUAL CHARGE.

POSTMASTERS are permitted to make arrangements with settlers upon mail routes requiring the accommodation of a private bag upon payment (in advance) of a sum not exceeding £2 2s. per annum to the postmaster who has to make up the bag, subject to the following regulations, viz. :—

Letter bag to be furnished by person requiring the same.

1. The bag must be of leather, and provided at the cost of the person requiring it.

To be sealed before despatche .

2. The postmaster will close and seal or lock the bag securely before despatching it ; and it must be returned in like manner, securely locked or sealed with some seal the impression of which is known by the postmaster.

Owners of bags responsible for postage and registered letter receipts.

3. The bag may contain letters for all persons who give written authorities to the postmaster to enclose them ; but it must be distinctly understood that the person paying for the private bag is responsible for the postage of all unpaid letters, and for the receipts for all those which may be registered. In case of non-payment of postage, or detention of registered letter receipts, the postmaster shall decline to forward any more letters of either of these classes.

Contractors bound to carry bags on road, but not to be delayed.

A contractor is bound to convey and deliver, free of charge, all bags given to him by the postmasters, or under their instructions ; but is not required to deviate in the slightest from the usual mail route, and is on no account to be delayed. Should the return bag not be ready at the appointed time and place, the contractor must not wait for it.

NOTE.—Letters forwarded in private bags for delivery at the township where such private bags are opened, should bear postage at the rate of 2d. per $\frac{1}{2}$ ounce and not 1d. per $\frac{1}{2}$ ounce, as seems to be the impression amongst some private bag owners. Telegrams forwarded in this way to any postmaster for transmission to destination should also bear postage.

The Secretary to the General Post Office to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

General Post Office, Sydney, 16 December, 1887.

With reference to your communication of the 11th May last, covering a copy of an Order made by the Legislative Assembly on the 10th idem, for certain information respecting fees received by Civil Servants during the years 1883, 1884, 1885, and 1886, and to my letter of the 10th June, furnishing the desired particulars, so far as the Postal and Money Order Departments are concerned, I am now directed to forward herewith a copy of a statement furnished by the Auditor-General, showing the amount of patent fees received by the Superintendent of Telegraphs during the years mentioned, and to inform you that it would appear, from the reports furnished, that there is no record in the books of the Telegraph Department of any other fees being paid to any person in the Service for the period referred to.

I have, &c.,

S. H. LAMBTON.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE TREASURY.

(APPLICATIONS FOR POSITION OF ASSISTANT EXAMINER OF ACCOUNTS IN.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 19 June, 1888.

[Laid upon the Table in accordance with the promise made by the Colonial Treasurer to Mr. Nobbs—Question No. 11, Votes No. 95, of 29 May, 1888.]

No. 1.

Mr. T. Gainford to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Account Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 5 December, 1887.
Being informed of the intended retirement of Mr. Canter, Examiner of Accounts, I do myself the honor to apply for the position of Assistant Examiner, and in support of my application I would respectfully refer to my twelve (12) years' service in the Account Branch.

I have, &c.,
THOMAS GAINFORD.

No. 2.

Mr. W. Husband to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Revenue Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 6 December, 1887.
In view of the probable retirement of Mr. Canter from the service, I beg to respectfully apply for the position of Assistant Examiner should the same be rendered vacant. After ten (10) years faithful service in the Revenue Branch I feel qualified to satisfactorily discharge the duties of the office in case the appointment falls to me.

I have, &c.,
WILLIAM HUSBAND.

No. 3.

Mr. C. McKern to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Revenue Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 6 December, 1887.
I beg most respectfully to apply for the position of Assistant Examiner, which, I believe, will be vacant consequent upon the resignation of the Examiner (Mr. Canter). In support of this application I may state that I have been in the service twelve and a half (12½) years, ten of which have been spent in the Treasury. My duties during that time, I have reason to believe, have always been performed in a satisfactory manner, and I have no doubt whatever that I could with equal satisfaction perform the duties appertaining to the office of Assistant Examiner.

Trusting that this application may meet with your favourable consideration,

I have, &c.,
CHARLES M'KERN.

No. 4.

Mr. W. A. Lesley to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Account Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 7 December, 1887.
I have the honor to apply for the position of Assistant Examiner, shortly to become vacant. I may state for your information that I have been in the Treasury Department for ten years, and that during the protracted illness of the late Mr. Charles Napier, late Assistant Examiner, I was nominated by Mr. Pearson, the Accountant, to temporarily perform his duties. Trusting my application will receive favourable consideration,
I have, &c.,

WILLIAM A. LESLEY.

No. 5.

Mr. F. C. Levinge to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Revenue Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 7 December, 1887.
Should the office of Assistant Examiner of Accounts become vacant by reason of the promotion of Mr. Corkhill, I beg most respectfully to apply for that position. Having for twenty-three years been an officer of this Department, therefore the senior of all likely applicants for the promotion, and having several times performed the duties of the office, I trust I have a fair claim to the position.

I have, &c.,
F. C. LEVINGE.

No. 6.

Mr. A. P. Pearson to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Examining Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 13 December, 1887.
I understand that by certain departmental changes the office of Assistant Examiner of Accounts will shortly become vacant, and I have the honor to request that you will be so good as to bring under the notice of the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer this my application for appointment to the above-named office. Since my appointment to the Treasury in 1878 I have been almost continuously employed in the Examining Branch, and during the past five years have on several occasions filled the position I am now seeking to obtain. I am at present acting, and have discharged the duties of Assistant Examiner of Accounts from the 11th August last.

I have, &c.,
A. P. PEARSON.

Minute by Mr. Corkhill, Acting Examiner.

I CANNOT too strongly recommend this application. Mr. Pearson having served since 1878 in the Examining Branch (with the exception of a period of about twelve or eighteen months when he was transferred to the Account Branch), has acquired a most useful knowledge of the general work of the Branch. He has been specially trained in the work, both by Mr. Canter and myself, and has proved himself to be a most painstaking and reliable officer, so much so that on two or three occasions during the time he was employed in the Account Branch he was "borrowed" from that Branch to take up the duties of the Assistant Examiner, consequent upon Mr. Canter's absence through illness, and my acting as Examiner. He is at present, and has been since August last, performing the duties, and has on this and all previous occasions rendered me most valuable assistance.

Examining Branch, 22/12/87.

S. R. CORKHILL,
Acting Examiner.

No. 7.

Mr. H. B. Brewer to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Pay Branch, Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 17 December, 1887.
I have the honor to make application for the position of Assistant Examiner in the Treasury, which I understand will shortly become vacant. I desire to point out that I am prepared to waive this application in the event of any officer who may be my senior in the Department being considered by you adapted to the position.

I have, &c.,
HARRY B. BREWER.

No. 8.

Recommendation of The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

TREASURY MINUTE.

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 24 April, 1888.

Promotions in the Examining Branch of the Treasury.

CONSEQUENT upon the retirement of Mr. R. A. Canter from the office of Examiner of Accounts in this Department, I beg to make the following recommendations, namely:—

Mr. Sydney R. Corkhill, at present Assistant Examiner, who has been seventeen years in the Public Service (during the last six years of which period he has held the office of Assistant Examiner), to be promoted to the office of Examiner, at the salary of his predecessor, namely, £550 per annum.

Mr. Arthur Pearson, who has been ten years in the Public Service (during which term he has been eight years in the Examining Office, and has acquired considerable experience in the business of that Branch, and who is at present receiving £240 per annum), to be promoted to the office of Assistant Examiner, vice Corkhill, promoted, at the reduced salary of £300 per annum.

Mr.

Mr. Joseph Graham, next in succession to Mr. Pearson, four years service, and at present receiving £200 per annum, to succeed Mr. Pearson, at the reduced salary of £225 per annum.

A vacancy is left after these promotions of £200 per annum, which Mr. Corkhill reports might be filled by a junior clerk at £100 a year.

The saving by these changes would be £155 per annum.

The above promotions to date from 1st January, 1888.

I would observe that the following officers in the Account and Revenue Branches of the Treasury have applied for the office of Assistant Examiner, namely:—

Mr. Husband, service of ten years ;

Mr. Brewer, service of ten years ;

Mr. Lesley, service of ten years ;

Mr. Gainford, service of twelve years ;

Mr. M'Kern, service of twelve and a half years ;

Mr. Levinge, service of twenty-three years ;

but as none of these gentlemen have had any experience of the duties of the Examining Branch, which are of a highly technical nature, and require a special training to ensure their efficient performance, I could have no confidence in those gentlemen, and am unable to recommend them.

G.E.

The Hon. the Colonial Treasurer,
&c., &c.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both manual and automated processes. The goal is to ensure that the information is both reliable and up-to-date.

The final part of the document provides a summary of the findings and offers recommendations for future work. It suggests that regular audits and updates to the data collection process are essential for maintaining the integrity of the information.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MR. OLIVER, LATE INSPECTOR OF FISHERIES.

(REMOVAL OF—CORRESPONDENCE.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 10 May, 1888.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 28th February, 1888, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers connected with the removal from office of Mr. Oliver, late Inspector of Fisheries, including a letter addressed to the Colonial Secretary by the Fisheries Commission, relating to Mr. Alexander Oliver, a Commissioner for Fisheries, having withheld papers in Inspector Oliver’s case.”

(Mr. Dawson.)

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY, FRIDAY, 22 SEPTEMBER, 1882.

Question—

MR. MARTIN to ask THE COLONIAL SECRETARY,—Has he any objection to lay upon the Table of the House, copies of correspondence, including a report from the Police, about the conduct of Mr. Oliver, Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, relative to the removal of that officer and the appointment of his successor?

Answer—

The police reports in connection with the above were forwarded to the Secretary, Fisheries Commission, in January and February last.

EDMUND FOSBERY,

Inspector-General of Police.

The Secretary, Fisheries Commission.—C.W., P.U.S., B.C., 20/9/82.

I know nothing of any report from the police about Mr. Oliver, though I recollect having seen a minute of the Commissioner’s for the abolition of the office of Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, and the appointment, in lieu, of an Acting Assistant Inspector; but I think the minute was passed during the time I was absent on leave. Let Mr. Quinan, who was acting for me, see this paper; possibly he may be able to throw some light on the matter. All the Fisheries records have been consumed in the Garden Palace Fire.—L.G.T., 27/9/82.

I have a distinct recollection of certain correspondence from the Senior Officer of Police or Police Magistrate at Eden, calling attention to the conduct of Assistant Inspector Oliver, and forwarding a copy of the local paper giving an account of a police court conviction against him. This correspondence was forwarded under minute from the Inspector-General of Police, and was, at the request of Mr. Commissioner Oliver, handed to him for perusal, who promised to personally lay it before the Board. It certainly was not returned to the Fisheries Office during my tenure.—JAMES QUINAN, Inspector of Fisheries, 29/9/82.

A. Oliver, Esq., to The Principal Under Secretary.

My dear Walker,

Crown Law Office, 29 September, 1882.

Mr. Quinan, some time at the commencement of the present year, brought me the enclosed documents. Seeing that they emanated from the police I forwarded them to a friend at Eden, in the Public Service, to inquire as to the truth of the statements contained in them. He was away on leave, and did not write in reply for some considerable time. Long before the receipt of his report the office of Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, Twofold Bay, had been abolished, and of course the Assistant Inspector’s (Mr. Thos. Oliver) services discontinued, because the district was not considered by the Commissioners to require require an officer at £150 a year. It was at the same time recommended that the duties of Inspector at Twofold Bay should be performed by the Customs' Officer stationed there, Mr. Russell, at a salary of £20 a year.

Mr. Oliver has been paid no salary since February I am told, the date of his suspension.

Under these circumstances when the documents were returned to me I saw no necessity to bring them before the Commissioners, or take further action in the matter.

Yours, &c.,
ALEX. OLIVER.

JOHN BOYLAND v. TYRONE WHITE—LANDLORD and TENANT.

Eden Police Station, 23 January, 1882.

SENIOR-CONSTABLE WOODS reports, that on the 18th instant a warrant of possession in the above case was handed to me by the C.P.S., and at 6 p.m., on the 14th instant, I went to White's, Boyland's Place, and found that White and family had left, taking effects with them; but in a wooden outhouse, a short distance from dwelling-house occupied by White, Thomas Oliver, Assistant Inspector of Fisheries, was in possession, and I spoke to him in the presence of Constable Frost, and told him that I held a warrant to eject all persons from Boyland's. I again spoke to him a few days after, in the presence of R. B. Hays, C.P.S. We advised him to leave Boyland's premises quietly, without any further trouble to police or himself. Oliver then said, "I am going to Merimbula to get a place to live in, and I will clear out in a few days." Believing then that Mr. Oliver was sincere in his promise I did nothing more till Saturday, 21st instant, at 11 a.m. (Boyland having arrived previous evening from Bega to take over possession). At the hour named, accompanied by Constable Frost and John Boyland, we went to Oliver's, and saw him after getting out of bed in a state of drunkenness. I told him respectfully that we came to put Boyland in possession of his premises, and requested him to dress and leave quietly. We endeavoured for 20 minutes to get him to dress; he became very abusive to us. I again told him that I held a warrant signed by the Police Magistrate, G. P. Keon, dated 13th instant, and that I would enforce it, and eject all persons from Boyland's, but said, "If you will leave quietly by 4 o'clock, I will give you till then." * * * * *

Offence—Assaulting a constable.

Offender's name—Thomas Oliver.

Full particulars—Arrested by Senior-Constable Davis, Panbula Police, charged with assaulting him whilst in the execution of his duty; has been fined £5; to be paid on or before the 10th instant; in default of payment, distress; on failure of distress, one month's imprisonment in Bega Gaol. This offender was also charged with making use of threatening and abusive language to Senior-Constable Davis. Fined £1 and costs 8s; paid; also further charged with drawing a large sheath knife from under his coat, in Panbula Court-house "whilst on his trial for the above assault," with the intention of assaulting Senior-Constable Davis with said knife. Ordered to find sureties to keep the peace for six months—self in £40, and two sureties, £20 each; in default three months' imprisonment in Bega Gaol.

LEGISLATIVE

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY, 3 OCTOBER, 1882.

- (5.) Mr. Oliver, Assistant Inspector of Fisheries :—Mr. Cameron, for Mr. MARTIN, asked the COLONIAL SECRETARY,—Has he any objection to lay upon the Table of the House copies of correspondence, including a report from the Police, about the conduct of Mr. Oliver, Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, relative to the removal of that officer and the appointment of his successor?

SIR HENRY PARKES answered,—These papers have not been reported to me from the Fisheries Commission. There will be no objection to lay them on the Table, but I cannot see any use in having them printed.

The President of the Fisheries Commission to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Fisheries Office, Sydney, 6 October, 1882.

I have the honor to inform you that in compliance with the request made in your minute of the 30th ultimo (forwarding documents addressed to this office by the Inspector-General of Police) for a report on all the circumstances connected with the case therein referred to, I laid the papers before a meeting of the Commissioners yesterday.

After a full inquiry by the Commissioners the following facts were elicited :—

On the 26th January of this year Mr. Lindsay Thompson, the Secretary to the Commissioners, left Sydney on leave of absence for one month, Inspector Quinan consenting to act for him in his absence.

At this time nothing seems to have been heard or known of any alleged misconduct on the part of Mr. Assistant Inspector Oliver of Eden, nor had any suggestion been made for the abolition of his office.

Some days after Mr. Quinan's temporary occupation of the office of secretary he received a letter from the Inspector-General of Police, enclosing a complaint from the Senior-Sergeant of Police at Eden of misconduct on the part of Assistant Inspector Oliver ; that letter Mr. Quinan admits having handed over to Mr. Oliver, one of the Commissioners, by his direction, and that he never mentioned its receipt to the other Commissioners. Mr. Quinan also states that he received on or about the 15th of February other papers from the Inspector-General of Police on the same subject, and that these also he handed over to Mr. Oliver. On this last occasion Mr. Quinan seems to have been conscious of some irregularity in this mode of disposing of papers intended for the Commissioners, for his statement is, that he said to Mr. Oliver, "I suppose, Mr. Oliver, I am not acting wrong in leaving these with you, for of course you know I am merely acting for Mr. Thompson," to which Mr. Oliver replied, "You are quite right in leaving them with me as a Commissioner ; I will bear you out in the matter."

About a fortnight after the first batch of papers alluded to were given to Mr. Oliver that gentleman proposed at a meeting of the Commissioners that the office of Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden should be abolished, on the ground of its being unnecessary, and he undertook to facilitate the transaction by procuring the resignation of his brother, who held the office, but in his proposition he did not make the slightest allusion to the fact that he had there in his possession a complaint addressed to the Commissioners affecting his brother. There is no evidence to show whether at that time the second set of papers had been delivered to Mr. Oliver or not.

The whole matter has now been brought to light by a question of which Mr. Martin, M.P., gave notice in the Assembly for Friday, the 29th ultimo ; that necessitated the production of these documents, and Mr. Walker, the Under Secretary, seems to have first sent to the Inspector-General of Police for the papers, whose reply was that they had all been forwarded to the Secretary of the Fisheries Commissioners in January and February last. Application was then made to Mr. Lindsay Thompson, who was thus made aware for the first time that any such documents had an existence ; he in turn made inquiry of Mr. Inspector Quinan whose statement and explanation accompany this report.

The Commissioners, as Commissioners, knew nothing of this business until yesterday, and my acquaintance with it goes no farther back than 3 p.m. on Friday last, the 29th of September.

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM MACLEAY,

President of the Commission.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

Office of Inspector Home Fisheries, Sydney, 2 October, 1882.

I have the honor to ask to be allowed to make the following statement re report of Inspector-General of Police, handed to Mr. Commissioner Oliver.

The next day after your having handed over to me the duties as Acting Secretary there were certain papers that had to be handed to Mr. Commissioner Oliver for his perusal ; these I was in the act of taking over at 9 a.m., when the messenger handed to me at the outer door of the Garden Palace the letter from the Inspector-General of Police. I carried this letter in my hand and opened it in Mr. Oliver's office, and then showed it to him. Mr. Oliver then said it referred to his brother, and asked me to leave it with him as he wished to make inquiry as to the truth of the charges. I obeyed his direction, and when I returned to the office directed the clerk to mark the correspondence off to Mr. Oliver for perusal. A few days afterwards some more correspondence on the same subject reached me from the Inspector-General of Police. These I took to Mr. Oliver for the purpose of having them attached to the previous papers, and asked Mr. Oliver for them. Mr. Oliver said the papers were sent to Eden for report, and asked me to leave the papers I had with me and he would attach them and bring them himself before the Board. I then remarked, "I suppose, Mr. Oliver, I am not acting wrong in leaving them with you, for of course you know I am merely acting for Mr. Thompson." To which he replied, "Oh, you are quite right in leaving them with me as Commissioner. I will bear you out in the matter." I had the paper marked off to Mr. Oliver, and considered I was but carrying out my instructions.

I had no possible object in suppressing these papers, as the Commissioner and his brother are both perfect strangers to me ; the latter I never saw, nor did I know he was the brother of the Commissioner until he told me so.

The above are the facts of the case, which I am prepared to declare to on oath if required to do so.

I have, &c.,

JAMES QUINAN,

Inspector of Fisheries.

The Secretary, Fisheries Commission.

Inform President of Commission that I desire to have Mr. Quinan's explanation why he did not, when he found that the papers were not returned from February to September, report that circumstance to the Commission.—H.P., 9/10/82.

Send copy of this letter to Mr. Oliver for any explanation he may desire to make.—H.P., 9/10/82.

A. Oliver, Esq., to The Commissioners of Fisheries.

Gentlemen,

Shelcote, St. Leonards, 5 October, 1882.

I beg to inform you that I yesterday forwarded to the Colonial Secretary my resignation of the office of a Commissioner of Fisheries, an office, the duties of which I once hoped, and was encouraged by my colleagues to believe, were neither inefficiently nor unworthily filled by me.

But the unexpected action recently taken by your President, Mr. Macleay, in the matter of certain police reports having reference to my brother, Mr. Thomas Oliver, formerly Assistant Inspector for the Twofold Bay Fisheries District, convinces me that he at least must have adjudged me capable of conspiring with an officer of the Department to suppress official documents intended for the Commissioners.

Now, if it were my own conduct only which is involved, I should not have felt it to be my duty to resign my commission, though I might have declined to recognize my colleagues as the proper authority to take cognizance of that conduct. But the character and conduct of the Inspector of the Home Division, Mr. Quinan, are involved. And, as I accept the entire responsibility of whatever Mr. Quinan has done, or has omitted to do, it appears to me that your deliberations will be relieved by my absence from your meetings, and still more by that complete official severance which I deeply regret to have to announce to you.

And, I am free to confess, though there may be a suspicion of weakness in doing so, that I am constitutionally so prone to resent an indignity, especially when it proceeds from a quondam friend with whom I have been long associated as a fellow-labourer in the endeavour to further the development of our Fisheries, that I feel sure your inquest of office will be better conducted in my absence than in my presence.

I am also free to confess that this is not the first occasion when your President's peculiar idiosyncracies have roused in me a keen feeling of resentment. Hitherto I have got the better of my impulse to resign, but on the present occasion that impulse has got the better of me; and as my loss will not be felt so severely as the loss of your President, I elect to resign.

But none the less is my resignation intended to be a protest against the course of action which Mr. Macleay has chosen to pursue—a course which, in my judgment, discloses such marked personal discourtesy to a colleague, coupled with such indecent haste to prejudge, not only that colleague, but also an innocent officer of your Department, that, to a man with a spark of independence or self-respect in him, no other form of protest was permitted than that which I have felt obliged to adopt.

I now proceed to furnish that explanation which Mr. Macleay could have easily procured for himself had he been so minded.

My brother, Thomas Oliver, was appointed Assistant Inspector for the District of Twofold Bay among the first batch of resident inspectors, and I think it will be admitted by Mr. Macleay and my former colleagues that he did not owe his appointment to any abuse of influence on my part. Those gentlemen will remember that I refused to attend any meeting of the Board at which appointments of inspectors were to be made, although I felt certain that my brother's qualifications for the office of Assistant Inspector at Twofold Bay were far before those of any competitor, both by reason of his long residence in the district and his very large experience in the subject matter of his duties. He was eventually appointed, proved himself to be a most zealous officer, and up to this day, so far as I know, there has been no charge whatever made against him to the Commission on the score of dereliction of duty or other official misconduct.

But I found from his reports and other sources of information that the revenue derived from the Twofold Bay District was so insignificant, and that the probability of any increased trade in oysters with Sydney or Victoria was so remote, that I made up my mind, before he had been appointed six months, to recommend my colleagues to abolish Twofold Bay as an Assistant Inspector's district, and to devolve whatever small and infrequent duties of inspection might still be required at Twofold Bay upon the Customs' Officer stationed at Eden. In other words, I undertook the not very agreeable duty of depriving my brother of his appointment, for there was no other place to which he could be transferred, in order to effect a saving of £130 a year, that sum being the difference between the salary of an Assistant Inspector and the honorarium of £20 a year paid to Customs' or Pilot officers.

At my instance Mr. Oliver became the victim of this particular economy, for his office was discontinued in February last, and since then he has received no salary whatever.

The exact date of my notice on our business paper to abolish the Twofold Bay District I am unable, after this lapse of time, to recall, but I am confident the notice was given before your Secretary left Sydney on sick leave, and he left on the 26th January. During his absence Mr. Quinan, the Chief Inspector of the Home Division, was appointed Acting Secretary. Within a few days, at most, after Mr. Thompson's departure, Mr. Quinan, of his own accord, came to my office, and asked me to look at some document just received by him. I was busy at the time, but I saw from a hasty perusal that it was a report by a policeman stationed at Bega or Eden (I forget the exact place), which had been forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police, and was by him minuted on to the Commissioners.

I will not undertake to describe the exact contents of the document, for it is months since I read it, and on the single occasion of my reading it I did so hurriedly and without attaching much importance to it; but I am certain that its general purport was to detail a brawl stated to have taken place between a constable serving some process of eviction and my brother, the object of the eviction. Seeing that the report in no way concerned or compromised my brother in his official capacity, or in connection with the performance of his duty as an officer of Fisheries, I informed Mr. Quinan that, for my own personal satisfaction, I would at once forward it for inquiry and report to a trustworthy friend at Eden who was acquainted with my brother, and was in a position to make himself informed of the truth. I despatched the paper accordingly by the next mail to Eden. Subsequently Mr. Quinan either brought or sent me a second police report, emanating from the same source as the first. In this report my brother was charged with some extravagance of behaviour in a Police Court. The charge was, if I remember rightly, that he threatened to assault some constable with whom he happened to be on bad terms. I at once forwarded the second report to the same friend for inquiry and report.

My friend happened to be away from home on the arrival of my letters, and it was not until several weeks had elapsed that I heard from him and received the documents back.

In the meantime my proposal to discontinue the office of Assistant Inspector at Twofold Bay had been brought forward before the Board and carried without dissent. This happened early in February last, but I cannot remember the precise date. The Police papers bore date of the same month.

With

With the documents I received a letter from my friend, expressing his regret at not being able to furnish me with a report as soon as I had asked, but stating generally that, in his opinion, there was much exaggeration in the statements of the Police, but substantial truth in the second report. Upon receipt of the documents from Eden I regarded them as obsolete and immaterial, seeing that the person affected by them was no longer in the service of the Commissioners. Accordingly I put them aside, and thought no more about them, until Mr. Quinan came to my office a few days ago in a state of great mental perturbation, caused, as he said, by Mr. Macleay's threat of instant dismissal, and asked me to give him the papers for the Principal Under Secretary. At the moment I could not lay hands on them, but after some search I succeeded in finding them, and forwarded them to Mr. Walker.

Of course I need hardly say that if those papers had shown on the face of them any dereliction of duty or official misconduct charged against my brother as Inspector of Fisheries, I should not, in the first instance, have thought it proper to receive them from Mr. Quinan. As no such charge was disclosed by them, but merely some policeman's one-sided statement of what happened at an eviction brawl and at a Police office case—in both of which I admit that my brother's conduct was the reverse of reputable—it did not occur to me that any particular object could be served by submitting those reports for the official consideration of the Commissioners, when (to repeat what I have already said) the person affected by them was no longer in their service or in receipt of their pay.

It may be said or thought by one or more of my late colleagues that the facts here narrated disclose no sufficient ground for resignation, and that I might have made this statement at the meeting to-day of the Commissioners.

But with every respect for their opinion, I must be permitted to be the custodian of my own honor, and to know how best to vindicate it. The subject, however, unfortunately, has more than a mere individual interest; something of principle in regard to the relation of colleagues to one another is also involved. There is hardly room for party or clique in a body so small as the Commissioners of Fisheries, but plenty of room for courtesy, loyalty, and that tenderness for the feelings of others which are supposed to distinguish gentlemen in their relations with one another.

A zealous and efficient officer of your Department has been threatened with the punishment of summary dismissal for a small act of courtesy toward a Commissioner for which that person will hardly forget to be mindful. It was an act which could work no harm to any human being, was no breach of duty. If it were an offence, that offence is at least unknown to the code of any departmental law with which I am acquainted. It could be a cause of offence only to a man who was hankering after a grievance, or some official pretext to discredit a colleague.

Between a colleague who could inflict a gratuitously bitter indignity on me and myself, there could, of course, be no continuance of that cordiality which once existed. Nothing was left me but to resign, and to protect Mr. Quinan, so far as lay in my power, by addressing to you this explanation of the whole case. Whether that explanation has satisfied you that an official impropriety has been committed or not, I of course cannot say. Of one thing, I trust, there will be no doubt, and that is, that the offence, if any, is not Mr. Quinan's, but my own.

I remain, &c.,

ALEXANDER OLIVER.

The Principal Under Secretary to The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission.

The Principal Under Secretary to The President of the Fisheries Commission.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 11 October, 1882.

In acknowledging the receipt of your report of the 6th instant, respecting the case of Mr. Oliver, late Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, I am directed to inform you that the Colonial Secretary desires to have Mr. Inspector Quinan's explanation why he did not, when he found that the papers relating to the case, which he had handed to Mr. Commissioner Oliver, were not returned from February to September, report that circumstance to the Fisheries Commissioners.

I have, &c.,

Mr. Inspector Quinan for explanation.—L.G.T., 13/10/82.

I was not acting as Secretary after February last. I had no reason to doubt that the intimation made by Mr. Commissioner Oliver, when giving me directions concerning these papers, would be duly carried out, viz., "that he would, as soon as he had made the necessary inquiries, personally return them to the office." The papers were officially marked off in the register, "To Mr. Commissioner Oliver, for perusal."—JAMES QUINAN, Inspector of Fisheries, 14/10/82.

The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission to A. Oliver, Esq.

Sir,

Fisheries Office, Sydney, 11 October, 1882.

I have the honor to inform you that, at the last meeting of the Commissioners of Fisheries, it was considered desirable that Mr. Thos. Oliver should vacate his position as Assistant Inspector of Fisheries, and I was desired, in the first instance, to request that you would be so good as to obtain and furnish me with his resignation which, it is understood, you promised in February last, should be sent to the Commissioners.

The Principal Under Secretary to A. Oliver, Esq.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 11 October, 1882.

In transmitting to you the accompanying copy of a report from the President of the Fisheries Commission respecting the case of Mr. Oliver, late Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to request that you will be good enough to furnish any explanation you may desire to make on the subject.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER,
Principal Under Secretary.

A. Oliver, Esq., to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Crown Law Office, 13 October, 1882.

I am just now in receipt of your letter of the 11th instant, transmitting a report from the President of the Fisheries Commission respecting the case of Mr. Oliver, late Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, and requesting me to furnish any explanation which I may desire to make on the subject.

In reply, I beg to state that I have very little to add to my former explanation, of which a copy was forwarded to the Colonial Secretary, marked "confidential," which document has been returned to me by the Colonial Secretary.

The report of the President, however, is incorrect in the following particulars:—I gave notice of my intention to move for the abolition of the Twofold Bay Fisheries Inspectorship before I received from Mr. Quinan the first police report, and before Mr. Lindsay Thompson left Sydney (26th January).

I had determined on this course some time before the police reports came to my knowledge, and for the precise reason already stated by me in a letter to the Commissioners, viz., because I considered the office unnecessary.

I wrote a few days ago to Mr. Lindsay Thompson for information as to the date of notice of motion given by me, but it appears all records and minutes in his possession had been destroyed by the fire at the Garden Palace.

I may add that I was not aware until I read the police report that my brother had been misconducting himself in any way. I knew that shortly before the end of the year he had received a serious injury from a fall from his horse which confined him to his bed, and prevented him from being able to furnish his monthly reports.

But this constituted all that I knew of any failure on his part in the performance of his official duties.

There is another inaccuracy in this report. I never said to Mr. Quinan, on the occasion of his giving me the second police report, or on any other occasion, "I will bear you out in the matter." All I said to him was in effect that I would take upon myself any responsibility in connection with the papers. Mr. Quinan must remember that when I accepted the paper, I told him expressly that I did so simply for the purpose of forwarding them to Eden to a friend of mine to inquire into. He must also remember saying to me himself that the reports did not appear to affect Mr. Thos. Oliver as an Inspector, i.e., officially. As I have already stated, had these Police papers affected my brother's conduct officially, I should not have thought it my duty to receive them from Mr. Quinan. As they did not so affect his character, I took them from Mr. Quinan for the purpose of making inquiries as to their truth.

I should not, I may add, have considered it incumbent on me to take any steps for the abolition of my brother's office, or for his dismissal, or for any other course, upon the statements contained in the reports of the Police officials. Nor do I see that I should have been expected to communicate the contents of these reports to my colleagues after I had sent them down to Eden, and before their return to me several weeks afterwards, inasmuch as they disclosed no official misconduct. When I received them back from Eden, Mr. Oliver, so far as I was aware, had ceased to be an officer of the Fisheries Commission.

I believe that I am to blame for not returning these documents to the Secretary of the Commission on my receipt of them from Eden. But as I have already said, I regarded them as of little or no further importance, laid them aside in a drawer, and thought no more about them until Mr. Quinan came to ask me for them.

The last inaccuracy in the President's report to which I desire to advert is contained in the statement that I undertook to procure my brother's resignation, and that in my proposition for the abolition of his office "I did not make the slightest allusion to the facts that I had then in my possession a complaint addressed to the Commissioner affecting my brother."

As a matter of fact I did not then have the "complaint" referred to in my possession. I had sent immediately on their receipt from Mr. Quinan, both the police reports to Eden, and did not get them back for several weeks after the Commissioners abolished the Eden inspectorship.

It is altogether a mistaken recital of the fact to state that at the meeting which decided on the abolition in question, I undertook to procure Mr. Thos. Oliver's resignation. What I undertook to do was to write and inform him that his office had been abolished, and that in effect his services were thereby discontinued. And this I did.

Why should I offer "to procure his resignation?" The recollection of the President, or of those with whom he has conferred on the matter, is here at fault—seriously at fault. It was long after the abolition of the office, and long after Mr. Thompson had notified my brother of its abolition, that when some question arose as to the confirmation or non-confirmation by the Colonial Secretary of the Board's "recommendation," a reference was made to "resignation." And then I mentioned privately to Mr. Thompson that as I had gone so far as to procure the abolition of the office, I should do my best to prevent any attempt of my brother to assert any right to receive his salary as an Inspector, and as if he were still an officer of the Commission.

Since February I understand that no salary has been paid to him, and that he has made no demand to be paid any salary, which I take to be a recognition by him of the fact that he is no longer in the service of the Fisheries Commission.

In conclusion I desire to add but one remark: If my course of action in connection with Mr. Thos. Oliver's office as an Assistant Inspector had been of a kind calculated to retain him in office, or to shield him from the consequences of official misconduct, I could have well understood the general tenure

tenure of the President's report, and could have better appreciated the imputations it seems intended to convey. But whatever I have done has been done for the purpose of abolishing his office, and severing his connection with the administration of the Fisheries Act. Therefore it amazes—I might rather say—it exasperates me to think that my course of action has been made the subject of imputations which are utterly unjustifiable and unfounded.

I have, &c.,

ALEXR. OLIVER.

As Mr. Oliver incorporates with this statement the letter to the Commissioners (a copy of which he sent to me marked "confidential") an official copy of that letter must be obtained from the Commission and appended hereto.—H.P., 13/10/82. Original letter herewith.—C.W., 17/10/82.

A. Oliver, Esq., to The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission.

Sir,

Crown Law Office, 13 October, 1882.

In reply to your letter of the 11th instant, received by me this morning, asking me to obtain and furnish you with the resignation of Mr. Thomas Oliver, which you add "it was understood" that I promised in February last should be sent to the Commissioners, I beg to state, for the information of the Commissioners, that it is quite a mistake to suppose that I promised to obtain Mr. Thoꝝ. Oliver's resignation in February or at any other time. All I said was, I believe, said privately to Mr. Thompson, and it was to the effect that after the action taken in abolishing the Eden District, I would do all in my power to see that the intention of the Commissioners should be carried out. But whether said privately or to the Board all I undertook to do was to prevent Mr. Oliver from asserting his right to act as an Inspector, or to draw the salary of an Inspector.

Since February, Mr. Thompson informed me about a fortnight ago, no salary has been paid to him or demanded by him, which I take to be a recognition on his part of the discontinuance of his duties.

If I were to ask him to resign now he would no doubt decline to do so, and probably make some claim to back salary.

I have done all in my power to get rid of the Eden inspectorship, even at the cost to my brother of his office. If the recommendations of the Commissioners have not been confirmed, or if for any other reason these recommendations have failed to be as effective as I meant they should be, the fault is not mine. As the matter now stands it is not in my power to compel my brother to send in his resignation. For my own part I do not recognize him as an existing officer of the Fisheries Department. If he is, and the Board are desirous of giving effect to their former recommendations on this subject, I should think the proper course would be to ascertain whether or not Mr. Oliver is in their service, and if he is, to recommend either the confirmation of their former action, or his removal from office.

I may add, in conclusion, that since my brother has become acquainted with the fact that I took the initiative towards the abolition of his office he has resented my action in a very marked way, and in his present state of mind is about the most unlikely person I know to accede to any request from me.

I have, &c.,

ALEX. OLIVER.

Minute of The Colonial Secretary.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 17 October, 1882.

I SEND under cover copy of a report by the late President of the Fisheries Commission (Mr. W. Macleay) on the conduct of Mr. Alexander Oliver, late a Member of the Commission, in intercepting a number of police documents, addressed to the Commission as a body, and keeping them from the knowledge of the Commission for a period of over six months. This report has been submitted to Mr. Oliver for his explanation, and I forward herewith his statement in reply, together with his letter to the Commissioners to which he refers.

As Mr. Oliver has resigned his office as Fisheries Commissioner, I send these and the other papers in the case to the Attorney-General, because he remains an officer of the Government under that Minister.

I regret to say that Mr. Oliver apparently does not see the impropriety of the course he has taken:—

1. In dealing individually as a member of the Fisheries Commission with a matter which ought to have been dealt with, and was intended to be dealt with, by the Commission in their corporate capacity, and withholding all knowledge of it from his co-Commissioners.
2. In endeavouring to defend this irregular course (to give it the mildest term) by drawing a distinction between misconduct of a public servant within official limits and outside official limits.

It must be obvious that if the views which Mr. Oliver appears to hold were allowed to prevail, the whole Public Service would speedily be disorganised. Though Mr. Oliver is no longer a member of the Fisheries Commission he is still as Parliamentary Draftsman, answerable for his acts while a member of that body. Of course every public officer is accountable for acts in any capacity whatever, which are inconsistent with correct conduct in his office.

The Attorney-General.

HENRY PARKES, 18/10/82.

The Secretary to the Attorney-General to A. Oliver, Esq.

Sir,

Attorney-General's Department, 27 October, 1882.

Referring to the correspondence which has taken place between the Colonial Secretary's Department, the Fisheries Commission, and yourself, respecting your action in the matter of certain police reports addressed to the above Commission, I am instructed by the Attorney-General to forward to you the enclosed copy of a minute which has been addressed to him on the subject by the Colonial Secretary, as also a copy of his own minute in reference thereto.

I have, &c.,

W. W. STEPHEN,

Secretary.

Minute

Minute of The Attorney-General.

I ENTIRELY concur in the opinion of the Colonial Secretary as to the impropriety of the course taken by the Parliamentary Draftsman, Mr. Oliver,—first, in dealing individually as a member of the Fisheries Commission with a matter which ought to have been dealt with, and was intended to be dealt with, by the Commissioners in their corporate capacity, and in withholding all knowledge of it from his co-Commissioners; and secondly, in endeavouring to defend this course by drawing a distinction between the misconduct of a public servant within official limits, and the misconduct of such servant outside official limits. In my judgment a public officer is accountable for misconduct, whether official or not, if such misconduct be of sufficiently grave a character to call for an explanation. To hold otherwise would be to allow the most serious improprieties to be committed by public servants with impunity, and would in the end inevitably lead to the demoralization of the Service itself.

It is with regret that I feel compelled to say that Mr. Oliver's explanation of his conduct in connection with the documents referred to in the Colonial Secretary's minute is far from satisfactory.

Mr. Oliver has, in my opinion, taken an altogether erroneous view of the duty and responsibility of a public officer, and his explanation is more especially unsatisfactory in that he fails to see, or at any rate to acknowledge, the irregularity of the course which he has pursued in this case.

R.W., A.G., 25/10/82.

The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Fisheries Office, Sydney, 14 November, 1882.

I have the honor, by direction of the Commissioners of Fisheries, to apprise you, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, that, so far as they are aware, Mr. Thomas Oliver, who was appointed as Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at Eden, has not since February last performed any of the duties pertaining to his position, nor has he drawn any salary.

2. It is understood that the late Commissioners of Fisheries recommended the abolition of the office, and that in consequence Mr. Oliver ceased to continue his duties and to draw his pay; but as Mr. Oliver has never formally resigned his appointment, nor recognized the action of the Commissioners, they think that the Colonial Secretary should be made acquainted with the facts, in order that he may determine whether it will be necessary to recommend his removal from the Service, before his position can be again filled.

I have, &c.,

LINDSAY THOMPSON,
Secretary.

Mr. T. Oliver to The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission.

Sir,

Merimbula, 16 November, 1883.

I was rather surprised last mail by my brother informing me that you had not received my resignation of the Sub-Inspectorship of Fisheries, which I sent up, directed to you, some time back. I now again beg you to lay before the Commission my resignation. Since having heard of my having resigned the appointment I can hear of several supplying the steamers and others both with fish and oysters. It is a complete farce the way the Act is carried out down in this district, and it never will be carried out properly until the Inspector is found in the means of visiting the different harbours, and portions of the coast where the fish are caught and sent away from. As well might a sheep inspector sit in his office all day, until directed by the Government to inspect certain portions of his district placed under his supervision.

Hoping this will reach you in safety this time, and prove all that is needed,

I remain, &c.,

THOS. OLIVER.

The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Fisheries Office, Sydney, 21 November, 1882.

Adverting to my letter, dated 14th instant, reporting that Mr. Thomas Oliver, of Eden, had ceased to perform his duties as Assistant Inspector of Fisheries, I have the honor to inform you that Mr. Oliver has since tendered his resignation, which will be laid before the Commissioners at their next meeting for consideration, and the result communicated to you in due course.

I have, &c.,

LINDSAY THOMPSON,
Secretary.

The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Fisheries Office, Sydney, 24 November, 1882.

Adverting to my letter dated 21st instant and previous correspondence, respecting the proposed removal of Mr. Thomas Oliver from his position as Assistant Inspector of Fisheries, I have the honor, by direction of the Commissioners of Fisheries, to say that they desire to withdraw their recommendation for his removal, and to suggest that his resignation, of the receipt of which you were apprised by my letter above referred to, may be accepted.

I have, &c.,

LINDSAY THOMPSON,

May perhaps be accepted.—C.W., 27/11/82. Resignation may be accepted.—II,P.

The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission to Mr. T. Oliver.

Sir, Fisheries Office, Sydney, 27 November, 1882.
 I have the honor, by direction of the Commissioners of Fisheries, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated 16th instant, announcing your resignation of the position as Assistant Inspector of Fisheries, and referring to a previous letter tendering it, which, I have to inform you, was not received.
 2. In apprising you that your resignation will be forwarded for the acceptance of the Government, I am to convey the thanks of the Commissioners for the information you have been good enough to tender, respecting the Fisheries in the Eden district.

I have, &c.,

The Principal Under Secretary to The Secretary of the Fisheries Commission.

Sir, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 December, 1882.
 Referring to your letter of the 24th ultimo, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to state, for the information of the Commissioners of Fisheries for New South Wales, that the resignation of Mr. Thomas Oliver, of the situation of Assistant Inspector of Fisheries, has been accepted.

No. 1.

The Chief Inspector Public Revenue Collectors' Accounts to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Inspecting Branch, Treasury, New South Wales,
Sydney, 30 December, 1887.

REPORT of Mr. Inspector Pinhey, No. 328, of 17th December, 1887, on the Public Revenue Accounts of Brewarrina, submitted for the information of the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer.

Remarks by the Chief Inspector.

THIS report shows that the accounts of the various Collectors of Public Revenue at Brewarrina were all in a satisfactory state, except those of the Sub-Collector of Customs. This officer, it seems, has failed to collect certain duties, to the amount of £69 6s., and entered the goods in his Warehouse Register as having been bonded, although in reality they never passed through the bond.

It is evident from the report, that for some time past Mr. Swift has given way to habits of intemperance, which have unfitted him for the right discharge of his duties. It is necessary, I consider, for the protection of the Revenue, that steps should be taken to relieve Mr. Swift of his responsibility, and appoint a more reliable person. If placed under supervision, in Sydney or elsewhere, Mr. Swift might still be able to render good service to the State.

I would suggest that the Appendix to Mr. Pinhey's report, and Mr. Swift's letter, be forwarded to the Collector of Customs, for such action as he may deem necessary for the due protection of the Revenue at this place.

The enclosed draft is for—V 59, 1½ cask rum; W 59, 10 cases Geneva; X 59, 1½ cask brandy, that were missing when Mr. Pinhey inspected my bond. I may state that the consignees took from the steamer in error, thinking they were duty paid, when the error was discovered. I applied to them for payment, for which the enclosed draft is for payment. Trusting this will be sufficient explanation of my oversight, I have, &c.,

[Enclosure (No. 2) to No. 1.]

REPORT on the Public Revenue Accounts of Brewarrina, which were inspected between the 12th and 16th December, 1887.

Mr. John Swift, Sub-Collector of Customs:—

1. Have his collections been duly forwarded to the Treasury? Yes.
2. Have all the books been written up to date? The notations in the warehouse register were somewhat in arrear.
3. Have they been carefully kept? No; in some instances carelessly.
4. What period has your present inspection embraced? March, 1885—December, 1887.
5. What is the general result of your inspection? The general result of this inspection has not proved satisfactory.

(See Appendix to Report.)

CHARLES PINHEY,

Inspector of Public Revenue Collectors' Accounts.

Brewarrina, 17 December, 1887.

APPENDIX to Report No. 328, Brewarrina Accounts.

December 17, 1887.

The accounts of this Officer were not in a satisfactory state. At the date of my visit—on the 16th instant—the notations in the warehouse register were considerably in arrear, and in some instances the entries made proved to be wrong or imperfect. His supervision of the bond is lax.

It is evident that he relies almost wholly upon the merchants—on whose premises the bond is placed—to afford him information as to the goods taken from the bond, and upon which duty may be payable.

The undermentioned goods were entered in his warehouse register as having been bonded on the 27th August last, shown in his return (of 30th of September) to the Auditor-General as being still in bond, and at the time of my inspection were open in the register; yet the packages had been taken from the steamer's side direct to the merchant's store without payment of duty, and without even passing through the bond, viz. :—

	Duty.
V 59. One qr. cask rum = 28 galls.	=	£26 5 0
W 59. Ten cases Geneva = 40 galls.	=	23 7 8
X 59. One qr. cask brandy = 28 galls.	=	19 13 4
		£69 6 0

There is no question of Mr. Swift's integrity in this transaction.

Messrs. M'Mahon & Co., on going through their books, admitted the receipt of the goods and the non-payment of the duty.

It is possible that Mr. Swift may continue to perform the duties of his position by a strict adherence to his instructions by closely supervising the bond operations, and by acting independently of the merchants using the bond.

At the present time his mental powers are somewhat clouded, and his capacity for work enfeebled, but this might perhaps be remedied by more carefully regulating his mode of life.

CHARLES PINHEY.

The Inspector of Customs to The Collector of Customs.

Sir,

Brewarrina, 12 January, 1888.

I have not yet got to the bottom of the Brewarrina accounts, and consequently cannot give you a formal report, but I am perfectly certain that Mr. Swift must be removed as soon as possible.

Whether from drink or disease (or perhaps both), he seems more than half silly, and for that reason alone he is quite unfit to be left here any longer.

I have, &c.,

Inspector of Customs.

I STRONGLY recommend Swift's immediate removal and appointment of successor. Cannot adjust bond accounts whilst he is here; brain seriously affected; letter will reach you Monday.

Inspector of Customs.

Let Mr. Swift be suspended from duty.—J.F.B., 14/1/88.

No. 4.

The Inspector of Customs to The Collector of Customs.

Sir,

Brewarrina, 14 January, 1888.

I beg to forward herewith a certificate from Dr. Hawkins, M.D., Medical Officer for the district and local hospital, as to the state of Mr. J. Swift's health.

My own opinion, based upon an attentive observation of his conduct, &c., since my arrival here, is that unless he is removed without delay he will become permanently insane, as his actions even now are certainly not those of a person in the full possession of his senses.

The

The Police Magistrate, Mr. Thomson, tells me that Mr. Swift has shown a strong suicidal tendency, and I have to be particularly careful not to do or say anything likely to irritate him, and consequently cannot thoroughly investigate his accounts while he is in charge of the Customs here.

Whatever may be afterwards decided as to his future employment, or superannuation, there is no doubt whatever but that he must be removed from Brewarrina as speedily as possible and a successor appointed.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES E. GORDON,
Inspector of Customs.

[Enclosure to No. 4.]

Brewarrina, January 14, 1888.

I HEREBY certify that John Swift has been for the last year under my treatment.

He has been in this town for eleven years, out of which time he could not get any fresh vegetables for the first three years, and during the late drought the price of vegetables was prohibitory. I consider that permanent injury has been done to his health, and that he is unfit to continue in his present office.

No. 5.

The Collector of Customs to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Reporting suspension of John Swift, Brewarrina.

Sir,

Custom House, Sydney, 23 January, 1888.

Referring to the enclosed report from the Inspector of Customs, I beg to recommend that the services of Mr. John Swift, Sub-Collector of Customs at Brewarrina, be dispensed with.

Mr. Swift is mentally and physically unable to discharge the duties of his office. The state of his health and the nature of his habits render it necessary to remove Mr. Swift.

Acting upon instructions from the Honorable the Treasurer, I have suspended Mr. Swift from duty, and instructed him to return to Sydney.

I have, &c.,

JAMES POWELL,
Collector of Customs.

The suspension of Mr. Swift is approved, who can now be asked to furnish any explanation he may have to offer.—J.F.B., 1/2/88. The Collector of Customs.—G.E., B.C., 2/2/88.

[Enclosure to No. 5.]

Sir,

Custom House, Sydney, 23 January, 1888.

In obedience to your order, I, on the 4th, started for Brewarrina. On arrival there I found all the books and accounts in the very utmost confusion, and Mr. Swift certainly not in the full possession of his senses.

He had made no attempt whatever to prepare his Audit Office return for the December quarter, though these documents are required to be posted not later than the 10th.

On the 7th January I discovered that about £99 of duty (representing collections 1st to 7th January) had not been collected, though the goods had been delivered from bond on the 3rd and 4th.

Various goods, represented by about £1,600 of duty, were, it since appeared, delivered for exportation to Queensland, under bond, by Mr. Swift on or about the 3rd January, of which no records appeared in the Warehouse Register, nor had bonds, advice notes, or entries been completed for the same.

Sundry goods (in addition to those discovered by Mr. Pinhey), the duty on which amounted to over £22, had apparently been delivered ex warehouse for H.C. without payment of duty or passing of entries.

Mr. Swift, being hopelessly incapable, I took entire charge on the 16th, made out all the Audit Office returns, and balanced the Warehouse Register with the actual stock in bond, and handed over the same to Mr. Fussell on the 18th January.

The Manager (Mr. Parsons) for Willis & Co., the bonded store proprietors, will to-day pay to Mr. Fussell the duties due on all missing goods, and in the absence of any Customs record I have, with sundry necessary alterations, taken Mr. Parsons' list of goods said to have been forwarded under bond to Queensland on the 3rd January, any goods mentioned therein not acknowledged by the Queensland officer in the usual way, to have the duties due paid by Willis & Co., as provided in the bond.

Through the effect of drink and disease I am reluctantly compelled to give it as my opinion that Mr. Swift's services are utterly useless to the Department.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES E. GORDON,
Inspector of Customs.

Sir,

Custom House, Sydney, 3 February, 1888.

Referring to your suspension from duty as Sub-Collector of Customs at Brewarrina, I am directed by the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer to call upon you for any explanation you may have to offer of the irregularities reported by the Travelling Inspector, viz. :—

That he found all your books and accounts in the very utmost confusion.

That you had made no attempt up to the 23rd January to prepare returns for the Audit Office, which should have been posted not later than the 10th January.

That goods had been delivered from Warehouse on the 3rd or 4th January, representing a duty value of about £99, without such duty being collected.

That various goods, representing a duty value of about £1,600, were delivered for exportation to Queensland on or about 3rd January, of which no record appeared in your Warehouse Register, nor had bonds, advice notes, or entries been completed for same.

That sundry goods, representing a duty value of upwards of £22, had apparently been delivered from Warehouse for home consumption without payment of duty or entries being passed.

The Treasury Inspector of Public Accounts also reports :—That goods, representing a duty value of £69 6s., were entered in the Warehouse Register as having been bonded on the 27th August, and shown in your return to the Auditor-General of 30th September as being still in Bond, yet the packages had been taken from the steamer's side direct to the merchant's store without payment of duty.

I have, &c.,

JAMES POWELL,
Collector of Customs.

The Collector of Customs to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Custom House, Sydney, 7 February, 1888.
Herewith I beg to return the papers in connection with the suspension of Mr. Swift from duty as Sub-Collector of Customs at Brewarrina, with an explanation from that officer.

The report from Mr. Pinhey, Inspector of Revenue Collectors' Accounts, shows clearly that the bond at Brewarrina has been only nominally under the control of the Sub-Collector, and that the proprietors of the bond have been left to do as they please, fortunately without loss to the revenue.

The report from Mr. Inspector Gordon (Customs) confirms the report from Mr. Pinhey, and shows that the business of the port has been neglected for some time past.

The bond referred to by Mr. Swift is a blank form signed by certain persons. The document is utterly valueless as a security for the due exportation of dutiable goods.

I have, &c.,
JAMES POWELL,
Collector of Customs.

Prepare a minute for the Executive, recommending that Mr. Swift be removed from the Public Service.—J.F.B., 16/2/88.

[Enclosure to No. 7.]

Sir, 77, Cumberland-street, Sydney, 4 February, 1888.

In reference to your letter of yesterday, asking for any explanation I may have to offer to the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer, of the irregularities reported by the Travelling Inspector, I have the honor to reply,—

1st. That he found my books and accounts in the utmost confusion :

My accounts were not in confusion ; they were correct, both money received and balance in Bank. The only confusion in my books was, that a quantity of goods were exported to Queensland ; the teams that were bringing them across the border had to return on account of the heavy rain ; in the meantime I had them written off in the warehouse register as exported to Queensland and completed ; when the teams returned and the goods were transhipped on other teams with stronger bullocks, I exported them on other warrants, for which bond had been signed for double the amount of duty.

2nd. That I made no attempt up to the 23rd January to prepare returns for the Audit Office, which should have been posted not later than 10 January :

I forwarded my returns for December to the Custom House first, and also attested accounts and transcript of cash-book to the Audit Office early, and had Warehouse Register leaves in book form ready to copy, but had no time. I was for three months previous laid up under the doctor's care, and could only attend for about an hour each day when goods were required from bond ; only for illness my returns would be down in proper time.

3rd. That goods were delivered from warehouse on the 3rd or 4th January, representing a duty value of about £99, without such duty being collected :

The above goods were consigned to many stations in the back country, and only a portion of them were completed. When all orders for goods are taken out of bond and counted, then entries are passed and duty paid on the whole lot, but if taken out of bond that day, after banking hours, I would get a cheque for full amount next morning.

4th. That various goods, representing a duty value of about £1,600, on or about the 3rd January, for which no record appeared in your warehouse register, nor had bonds, advice notes, or entries been completed for same :

These are the same lot of goods that were short shipped and afterwards forwarded to Queensland by other teams. Entries, advice notes, &c., were not complete, and could not be posted up in warehouse register, but a fresh or new bond for double the amount of duty was signed and sealed ; the goods were exported the second time under the original Brewarrina Bond Mark.

5th. That sundry goods representing a duty value of upwards of £22 had apparently been delivered from warehouse for home consumption without payment of duty or entries being passed :

The goods may have been taken out after banking hours, and as I had no safe I always wait until next morning to pass entries ; every week I take stock of goods in bond and compare with the warehouse register, and if any goods were short, duty was paid at once. The manager of the Bond at Brewarrina told Mr. Gordon if there was any goods short to inform him, that he would dispute nothing but give a cheque for full amount. There is nothing now owing to the Treasury for duty at Brewarrina.

6th. The Treasury Inspector of Public Accounts also reports that goods representing a duty value of £69 6s. were entered in the warehouse register as having been bonded on the 27th August, and showing in your return to Auditor-General of 30th September as being still in bond, yet the packages had been taken from the steamer's side direct to the merchant's store without payment of duty :

When the above goods arrived ex steamer from Bourke, I had no despatch-notes, or papers of any kind, not for weeks after they arrived in Brewarrina. When I received despatch notes I went to the merchants (McMahon Brothers & Callaghan), and asked them if they received such goods. They informed me they had received them weeks ago. I told them they must pay the duty for them. They say they would, and as that was their first consignment of goods to them under bond they would be more particular in future. Then I entered them in the warehouse register as in bond. The next morning I was again under medical treatment for some days, and forgot to call for cheque when I came to the office ; but when I would be making my quarterly accounts I would be sure to find it out, as the goods were entered in the warehouse register.

The Treasury Inspector, after going over stock in bond and warehouse register found these three items not in bond. I explained how it occurred. We then went to the merchants' store and asked for the duty, and as it was after the Bank had been closed, I called next morning and got a cheque for the amount and forwarded to the Treasury on a separate Consolidated Revenue Fund form, for which I received a Treasury receipt.

Trusting the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer, when considering my suspension, will please take all extenuating circumstances of the difficulty of keeping a bonded warehouse in an inland town like Brewarrina where goods many times arrive before the despatch notes, when we have so much exportation to Queensland, and many times goods are returned owing to bad roads, flooded creeks, teams breaking down, &c., which helps to cause confusion in the bond, which unfortunately was the case at the time when Mr. Travelling-Inspector Gordon arrived at Brewarrina.

I further pray the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer will consider my past services of eleven years at Brewarrina, which have been gone through without any reprimand from my superior officers.

To the Collector of Customs.

Minute Paper for the Executive Council.

Subject:—Services of Mr. John Swift, Sub-Collector of Customs at Brewarrina, dispensed with.

(No. 14.)

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 20 February, 1888.

THE Colonial Treasurer begs to submit to His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, the accompanying papers in the case of Mr. John Swift, Sub-Collector of Customs at Brewarrina. Upon the report of the Collector of Customs that Mr. Swift was "mentally and physically unable to discharge the duties of his office," and that "the state of his health and the nature of his habits render it necessary to remove him," Mr. Swift was suspended from duty, and instructed to return to Sydney, and was duly called upon for an explanation. Such explanation having been received, and not being considered satisfactory, the Treasurer recommends that Mr. Swift's services be dispensed with from this date.

J. F. BURNS.

His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council.

Under the reports herewith submitted the Executive Council advise that the services of Mr. John Swift, Sub-Collector of Customs, Brewarrina, be dispensed with.—ALEX. C. BUDGE, Clerk of the Council.

Approved.—CARRINGTON, 21/2/88. Min. 897, 21/2/88. Confirmed, 28/2/88.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MR. JOHN ROCHE ARDILL.

(PETITION OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 5 October, 1887.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of John Roche Ardill,—

MOST OBEDIENTLY SHOWETH,—

That your Petitioner is a Licensed Surveyor of the Colony of New South Wales, and in such capacity made several surveys in accordance with instructions issued to licensed surveyors by the Surveyor-General and in compliance with the 16th section of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861.

That your Petitioner's surveys were subsequently, on examination, proved to be correct; nevertheless the Surveyor-General refused to accept your Petitioner's plans of survey, or to pay for the surveys, by which your Petitioner has lost heavily, both in money and in reputation.

That your Petitioner also made a survey of three pastoral holdings, namely, Monument Flats, Kolcoberto North, and Booramble South, in the pastoral district of the Lachlan, and leases of the said holdings or runs were submitted to public auction at the instance of the Government by Messrs. Richardson & Wrench, auctioneers in Sydney, in which sale, and by the said auctioneers, your Petitioner's plans of survey were used, and that the said runs brought one hundred and seven pounds sterling as rent and a premium of six hundred pounds sterling—the former sum being per annum—and the Government refused to pay, and still refuses to pay, your Petitioner for his labour and plans of survey, at which your Petitioner is very much aggrieved and has suffered very heavily both in mind and pecuniarily, and now supplicates your honorable House to take the premises into your early consideration, and grant relief.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MR. J. M. BEATTY.

(PETITION OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 23 May, 1888.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Humble Petition of James Macartney Beatty, of St. Leonards,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

In 1861, your Petitioner was appointed Telegraph Station-master at Deniliquin, at £300 per annum. In February, 1863, your Petitioner was unpacking sulphuric acid for his battery when a carboy of the acid burst over him, destroying the whole of the skin, from his chest downwards. Your Petitioner was confined to his bed for nearly twelve months, suffering the most acute agony; at the end of that time he was enabled to leave his room, his constitution ruined, and all the savings of years swept away. As soon as your Petitioner was able to move, he came to Sydney in order to obtain change of air, and also for the purpose of claiming compensation for his heavy medical and other expenses. Mr. Arnold was at the time Minister for Works, your Petitioner's application came before him, after waiting for a fortnight your Petitioner was informed that there was no precedent for his request, and that therefore nothing could be done for him. Mr. Augustus Morris (then Member for Balranald) kindly brought his case before Parliament, but unsuccessfully. At the same time Mr. Morris and several other gentlemen waited upon the Ministry of the day, and a distinct promise of compensation was made; yet nothing was ever given, although it was proved that the accident was caused by bad packing of the acid. Your Petitioner suffered very severely from time to time ever since with rheumatic pains in the part most affected by the acid, and the prediction of the doctors, who then attended him, has been fulfilled, that his nerves had received such a shock that sooner or later he should be troubled with nervousness. Your Petitioner has for a long time been unable to write with his right hand. Your Petitioner was permitted on payment of £50, as a bonus to the station-master at Kiama, to exchange with him. After being there some time he received a letter informing him that he must resume his duties at Deniliquin or give up the appointment, but that if he liked he could remain at Kiama at a salary of £150. Your Petitioner was forced to accept this offer owing to his health. After a time he was asked if he would accept the office at Burrowa, at a salary of £200, with quarters, which he agreed to do. When your Petitioner arrived, accompanied by his wife he found there were no quarters, and was obliged to live at an hotel. This lasted for some time. We then received orders from the Postmaster-General (Mr. Egan) to live on the premises where the Post and Telegraph business was carried on. The room used as an office measured 16 x 16 feet; a portion of this, 6 feet in width, was cut off for the use of the public. Although your Petitioner wrote to the Department stating that it was impossible to live there, he was obliged eventually to remove into this place, and, in a space of 16 feet by 10, his wife and himself were compelled to do the business of three offices—Post, Telegraph, and Money Order—as well as to cook, wash, sleep, and have meals. As the result of these hardships your Petitioner's wife was attacked by diphtheria and typhoid fever. Through these complaints and miseries, your Petitioner attended to his official duties, mails arriving and leaving in the middle of the night. At the end of six weeks of utter misery, your Petitioner was attacked by diphtheria. When he had partly recovered, he had to send his wife to the coast to save her life. Your Petitioner's own health was completely broken; moreover, owing to the large amount of work, he neglected himself, had no regular meals, and, too ill to care about eating at all, was reduced to a dreadful state of weakness. One afternoon a friend of his, Mr. Dease, now dead, came into your Petitioner's private room and found him lying on the floor, suffering torture from cholera. He left, brought brandy and laudanum, and gave your Petitioner a heavy dose, which put him to sleep and saved his life. In the middle of the night he was awakened, or partly so, by the mailman coming for the Sydney mail. The end of it was that your Petitioner made a mess of the mail and was dismissed in consequence. Your Petitioner was thus deprived of his employment through no fault of his own, but as a consequence of the cruelty which compelled him to live in that wretched place. So fully convinced did the then Postmaster-General (your Petitioner thinks it was Mr. Docker) appear to be of the justice of his claim for rent, that he was allowed one quarter's rent (£10), but this was afterwards disallowed. A short time after this your Petitioner was appointed to a situation in the head head office, Sydney, which he held for a good while—till June, 1878. Owing to a mistake committed by the Messenger's Branch, but which was attributed to him, your Petitioner was suspended. Mr. Lambton went over the case and fully acquitted him of blame in the matter. Mr. Burns, then Postmaster-General, asked if your Petitioner wished to be reinstated, but he declined, on the ground that he thought the personal feeling against him of a certain officer, whom your Petitioner will not mention, would make his tenure of office too precarious. The next day your Petitioner met Mr. Whitton, Engineer-in-Chief of Railways, who gave him employment on the temporary staff of his branch for eighteen months, until different arrangements having been made in the Department, his services were no longer required. Your Petitioner was then transferred to the permanent staff in the Railway Traffic Branch, in which he was employed for eighteen months at Murrumburrah, ostensibly as telegraph operator, but really as night station-master. Your Petitioner's duties were to attend to the telegraph and to receive and despatch all trains, to make up books, and to issue tickets from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. This work was killing, and your Petitioner was obliged to send in his resignation with a medical certificate. Your Petitioner was then employed in the Lands Department, where he remained nine years until the reduction of the staff twelve months ago.

Your Petitioner's services may therefore be summed up thus:—Telegraphs, permanent staff, thirteen years; Railways, temporary staff, one and a half years; Railways, permanent staff, one and a half years; Lands, temporary staff, nine years. An allowance has been made your Petitioner in respect of the nine years' service in the Lands Department, but none in respect of sixteen years of service in Telegraph and Railway Departments. Your Petitioner is nearly 60 years of age, and broken health, and although, still competent to perform the duty from which he has been dismissed, is unable to obtain employment sufficient to enable him to live, and support his wife and family. All your Petitioner's troubles—finally likely to end in utter ruin—have followed upon and are indirectly, yet in a sense necessarily the consequence of the terrible and almost fatal accident, occurring to him when employed in the Government service and the result of the negligence of others responsible to the Government for which accident—contrary as your Petitioner humbly submits—to all natural justice, and to what he has always understood to be the practice of all employers, he has never been compensated.

Your Petitioner now respectfully submits these facts for your consideration.

Your Petitioner, therefore, humbly prays that your Honorable House will take the foregoing matters into your consideration and do what your Honorable House thinks right under the circumstances.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

JAMES M. BEATTY.

CLAIMS OF CAPTAIN ROSSI.

REPORT.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly, appointed on the 29th September, 1887, “with power to send for persons and papers to inquire into and report upon the claims of Captain F. R. L. Rossi,” and to whom was referred, on the 25th November, 1887, “a Return to Address, intituled ‘Captain Rossi, late Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn,’ laid upon the Table, and ordered to be printed, 28th February, 1884,”—have agreed to the following Report:—

Your Committee having examined the witnesses named in the List* See List, page 5. (whose evidence will be found appended hereto), and carefully considered the Return to Address referred to them, find:—

That Captain Rossi has been reduced from £300 per annum to £75, which office he held for nine years; and that promises of restoration of salary and position have been repeatedly made by various Governments.

Your Committee seriously recommend the Government to favourably consider his case, and make such restitution as his case deserves.

1. Chairman.] Are you a captain in the Volunteer Force? Yes.
2. Did you present a petition to Parliament on the 16th April, 1884? Yes.
3. Is this a copy of your petition? Yes, it is as follows:—

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.
The Petition of Francis Robert Lewis Rossi, Captain, Volunteer Force, of Rossville, Goulburn,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioner, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy, was appointed to an office in the Civil Service, as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, at a salary of £300 per annum; that salary was, before the expiration of one year, reduced to £75 per annum. That your Petitioner's continuation in office was the result altogether of the invitation from the head of his department, Sir James Martin, and of the assurance of his expectation that your Petitioner's salary would be restored and a sum given "to make good to him the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed," and your Petitioner was asked by Sir James Martin if he would "continue to hold office in this expectation."

Your Petitioner remained in office till the end of one thousand eight hundred and eighty, at such reduced rate (receiving throughout that time repetitions of expectations and hopes held out), when he was deprived altogether of the office of which he had throughout the course of so many years faithfully performed the duties.

That the office your Petitioner held involved the duties of Chief Registrar over about sixteen Southern District Courts, whose correspondence, returns, &c., were required to be passed through your Petitioner's hands before reaching the Department of Justice or the Judge.

That several years after the reduction of salary your Petitioner was called upon by the Government to make good, and did make good, a deficiency of several pounds in the accounts of one of the subordinate Registrars who had died.

That your Petitioner continued for ten years in the faithful discharge of the duties required of him, without receiving from the Government any compensation for the loss of his salary or any offer of any kind until ten years and a half had elapsed.

That your Petitioner applied, following upon this loss of office, for another appointment; and for the first time, in March of the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, an offer of the clerkship of Petty Sessions at Tumut was made to him, which he accepted wholly, but which Sir Joseph George Long Innes, then Minister of Justice, learning more of your Petitioner's position, suggested he might withdraw from the acceptance of, Sir Joseph George Long Innes saying that such withdrawal should not be allowed to militate against your Petitioner's claim, as stated in the minute of that Minister on the twentieth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

That at the time of the reduction of your Petitioner's salary, the salaries of the Registrars of Albury, Bathurst, and Armidale were similarly reduced, but each of such received compensation without delay by appointment to other offices.

That

Captain
F. R. L. Rossi.
12 Oct., 1887.

Captain
F. R. L. Rossi.
12 Oct., 1887.

That upon the Police Magistracy of Goulburn becoming vacant, about a year ago, your Petitioner applied for the position, but was unsuccessful in obtaining it, but received an offer from the present Government of the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Grenfell. That your Petitioner wrote in reply that he would have considered it his duty to accept, but that the circumstances surrounding the offer were similar to those affecting the offer of Tumut, from which, as explained, your Petitioner had been relieved.

That your Petitioner, by reason of the circumstances detailed, has suffered a loss of £225 per annum since one thousand eight hundred and seventy, for which he has never received any adequate offer of compensation, though your Petitioner had been then invited by the then Minister of Justice to state in figures the amount of your Petitioner's claim for compensation.

That your Petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honorable House will cause inquiry to be made on the premises, and that such redress may be afforded to your Petitioner as to your Honorable House may seem fit.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

No. 1 Coffee Palace, Sydney,
15 April, 1884.

4. You pray Parliament in this petition to grant you redress for the grievances set forth. Were you Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn? Yes, at a salary of £300 per annum.

5. Was that salary reduced to £75? Yes.

6. Did you retain the office at £75 a year in consequence of some expectations having been held out to you? Yes, there was a condition precedent to my taking the office again laid down by Sir James Martin, who wrote and requested me to remain, on the understanding that the arrears would be made good and the salary restored to £300 a year.

7. At what date was the salary reduced? In 1871.

8. What were the expectations held out to you? The then Attorney-General, Sir James Martin, caused the following letter to be written to me:—

No. 8.

The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices, to Mr. F. R. L. Rossi.

Sir,

Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 27 June, 1871.

With reference to recent reduction by Parliament of your salary, as Registrar of the District Court at Goulburn, I am directed by the Honorable the Attorney-General to state that he altogether disapproves of the reduction, and intends to place your salary on the next Estimates at the rate proposed on the Estimates just passed. The Attorney-General also intends to place on the Supplementary Estimates of this year a sum to make good to you the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed, and Sir James Martin expects both proposals to be carried, in consequence of the full and satisfactory information that will be placed before the House.

I am to request that you will have the goodness to say whether you will continue to hold your office as Registrar in this expectation.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

9. Was it solely on account of that inducement that you continued to hold the office? Solely on that account.

10. For how many years after the year 1871 did you continue to hold the office? Until the year 1880.

11. Was any subsequent inducement held out to you? On about fifteen occasions expectations and promises were held out to me by Ministries.

12. Mr. H. Taylor.] By whom? From the Minister for Justice and the head of my department.

13. Have you them in writing? They are published in the papers laid before Parliament.

14. Chairman.] Is there included in the correspondence any subsequent similar promises? Yes, they are repeated and contained in the correspondence which has been laid before Parliament.

15. Can you mention to the Committee the names of any Ministers subsequent to Sir James Martin who made you similar promises? In 1875 I received a letter stating that no decision had yet been arrived at, and in the same month I was informed that my application for salary would be brought forward on the next Estimates. I cannot remember the names of the Ministers who were in office on those different occasions.

16. Mr. H. Taylor.] Is that a promise. Would it not depend on Parliament whether that was carried out? Of course. The Ministers did not profess to promise it for themselves.

17. Have you any promise from any Minister other than the late Sir James Martin? I have no definite promise, but expectations were held out to me that the subject would be considered. No definite promise was made in the same form, because the Ministers acknowledged that they had not the power to do so themselves.

18. Dr. Ross.] The promise was made by Sir James Martin, the then Attorney-General, in 1871. Was there any official correspondence relating to this very matter since then? Yes; it is expressed in the correspondence laid before Parliament. [At this stage the Chairman, Mr. Hurley, entered the room and took the Chair.]

19. Was it in consequence of the letter from Mr. Plunkett, Under Secretary, dated 27 June, 1871, that you continued to hold office at £75 a year at Goulburn? Yes.

20. Mr. H. Taylor.] Did you perform any other duties? No; and I got no other pay.

21. Did you perform any other duties for the same salary? No. There were only four other registrars like myself. There were many other registrars throughout the Colony, but the offices were amalgamated with other offices. We were chief registrars.

22. Chairman.] Can you state what salaries the other chief registrars were in receipt of? They all received the same as I did, namely, £300 a year. They were stationed at Albury, Bathurst, Armidale, Goulburn, and Maitland.

23. Were these registrars all subjected to the same reduction, and were some of them appointed to other lucrative appointments under the Crown? Yes; but no offer was made to me until the year 1880, except the one that I was to remain at Goulburn.

24. Mr. Teece.] Can you give the date of the other appointments? The negotiations were opened in 1871, and in 1872 the appointments were made.

25. Chairman.] In consequence of the promise from the Law Department did you remain in Goulburn a considerable time? Yes, the whole of the time.

26. How did you exist? By borrowing money to live.

27. Were you possessed of some property there? Yes.

28. Did you dispose of that property? I had to mortgage it very heavily in consequence of the Government not carrying out their promise.

29. Did you eventually receive a communication from the Department that you should receive an appointment in some other part of the country? No; in 1880 Sir George Innes suggested that I should put in figures the amount of compensation that I claimed. That was the first time compensation was suggested. Sir George Innes was then Minister. I complied with his suggestion. It is set forth in the Parliamentary papers, at page 22, number 67.

Captain
F. R. L. Rossi.
12 Oct., 1887.

30. You submitted a statement according to the instructions and advice of Sir George Innes, who was then Minister? Yes.

31. What amount did you set forth that you were then entitled to? £2,596.

32. What reply did the Minister make to that? The reply he made was rather surprising—it was to the effect that he did not see there was a claim for compensation.

33. During the ten years after your salary was reduced was the work you performed equal to the work for which others were paid £300 a year? Yes, it was the same kind of work.

34. Mr. Walker.] That is, you performed the same work after the reduction was made as you performed when in receipt of £300 a year? The particular character of the work was this: The correspondence of the other registrars passed through my hands to the head office; but after some years they changed that. That part of the work was struck off, but the responsibility continued with me. To show that, I may mention that one man who died, and whom I never saw, left his accounts incorrect, and the Government made me pay the deficiency.

35. Mr. Ball.] Did they make you pay for something that never went through your hands? Yes, they made me pay the deficiency out of my salary.

36. Mr. Walker.] Although you did not perform the same duties, you were still held responsible for them? Yes, after my salary was reduced.

37. Did you have any leave of absence? Never, except when I found and paid for my substitute. On one occasion—that was when I had to attend to some military duties, and when I was ordered to come down to Sydney—I was then made to pay for the substitute who did my work at Goulburn; I had to pay him during the three months I was away.

38. Chairman.] At various times have you asked the Government was there a vacancy suitable for you in any place in the country? The first offer was made to me in 1880, after I made application for compensation.

39. Dr. Ross.] What offer was made? To make me clerk of the Bench at Tumut.

40. At what salary? Between £300 and £400 a year. I accepted the offer.

41. How long did you remain there? I did not enter upon the office, because Sir George Innes told me, he then being Minister, that the Government would not ask me to go there under the circumstances I explained to him. I said I would go, even at the cost of life, because I was looking for something better than that appointment.

42. But was not that salary equivalent to the salary which you were formerly receiving? Yes, but Sir George Innes, who was Minister, advised me not to go. He said he would leave a minute which would state that it would not be to my prejudice if I did not go.

43. Mr. Walker.] Was that minute left on record? Yes.

44. Mr. Teece.] How many years after your salary was reduced were these offers made to you? Ten years.

45. During that time the other registrars were in receipt of their full salary? Yes, and that was the first offer I ever had made to me.

46. Dr. Ross.] During those ten years did you ever make application for a better appointment? Yes. It was known to the Government. I made application for the appointment of Police Magistrate at Goulburn.

47. Did you often ask for that? Yes.

48. What answer did you get? It is hard to say in substance what response was made. The whole thing was this, when I applied another stepped in before me.

49. Chairman.] Were you always promised restoration of your salary by the various Ministers? Yes, I was promised by expectations held out to me, and that repeatedly, and was always led to expect it.

50. You were led to believe by Sir James Martin that your salary would be made up to you? Yes.

51. Dr. Ross.] Can you recollect when Sir James Martin went out of office in 1871? I think before Parliament met he was out of office. Before he could meet Parliament to explain the matter he was out of office.

52. Did he continue in Parliament after that? No, I think he became Chief Justice; I know he had ceased to be a member of the Government. That was the reason of his failure to carry out what he promised.

53. Chairman.] In remaining in Goulburn did you anticipate that you would eventually receive the position of Police Magistrate? Most certainly.

54. Did you expect when Sir Charles Cowper was Premier that you would receive that appointment? Yes.

55. What reason had you to believe that you would get that appointment? Archbishop Polding went on my behalf to Sir Charles Cowper, and he said he would give it to me if he could, but that he was going to give an appointment to his son; he made his son Water Police Magistrate at Sydney; Mr. Allman was then anxious to go to Sydney, and I asked to get his place at Goulburn.

56. Therefore if it had not been for the action of the then Premier the previous promises made to you would have been carried out with respect to your appointment? Yes.

57. Immediately after that did you make another application? I applied for nothing up to the end of 1880 out of Goulburn.

58. Dr. Ross.] Was that when you ceased to hold office? Yes.

59. What have you been doing since? I have been starving.

60. Mr. Walker.] How long after the reduction was made was it before the registrars who were sharing a like salary with you got offices? In 1871 we were all reduced, and they were restored in 1872, that was the year following.

61. Mr. Teece.] Can you furnish the Committee with the amount of the salaries attached to the offices which were conferred on the other registrars in 1872? The Blue Book for that year would show it; I know they wrote to me, and said they were well satisfied with their positions.

62. Up to the time you petitioned the House, and up to the present, do you consider that you have a claim on the Government with regard to the salary that should be due to you in that appointment? Unquestionably.

- Captain
F. R. L. Rossi.
12 Oct., 1887.
63. Upon what grounds? First of all I should have gone away there and then if it had not been for this expectation which was held out to me. Then I continued on during ten years on account of the expectations held out to me by succeeding Ministers. In 1880 I was requested to state in figures the amount of the compensation I claimed. Then it was put before the Cabinet, and I received a letter saying that the Government acknowledged my claim for £300 a year.
64. Mr. Walker.] Have you suffered at all from any mental or physical incapacity which would prevent you from attending to the duties of your office up to the present time? No, I was never more vigorous in my mind and body than I am now.
65. From the time your salary was reduced up to the present time have you been fully capable to perform the duties which you were previously performing? Yes, perfectly.
66. Chairman.] Did you repeatedly meet Mr. Butler, the late Attorney-General? Yes.
67. Did he hold out any special hopes to you? Yes; he led me to understand at that time that the Government must give me an appointment at Goulburn when there was a vacancy. At that time he had in his mind, and I had in my mind, the police magistracy, when there should be a vacancy.
68. Dr. Ross.] Did any vacancy occur? Yes, that was when Mr. Allman came in.
69. Mr. Walker.] Since the time Sir James Martin was Attorney-General did any Minister ever discourage you in any way, or try to throw you off what you desired to claim as your rights? No.
70. Did each successive Minister hold out hopes to you? Some said they could do nothing in the case. Mr. Suttor said that something would have been done for Captain Rossi long ago, but that he would take nothing out of Goulburn. I said that was a strange theory, because I had never been asked to take anything.
71. Chairman.] There is a promise of several appointments outside the city of Goulburn. We want to clear up the point why you should refuse to accept a position outside the city of Goulburn? The first offer made to me was in the year 1880 by Sir George Innes. He asked me, "Will you accept unconditionally?" I replied I would. But before I went I paid my respects to him, and when he heard what the circumstances were he said to me, "The Government will not ask you to go." I replied, "If it costs me my life I shall go, because I am looking for something better." Sir George Innes then said, "If you will not go I shall leave a minute to the effect that it shall not be to your prejudice." I said, "In that case it will relieve me greatly, and I shall not go."
72. Mr. Walker.] Were you offered any other appointments outside Goulburn? That was the only offer made to me. The next offer was made to me by Mr. Cohen, who was then Minister for Justice, and who offered me a clerkship at Grenfell. That was in 1883. I explained to Mr. Cohen that the circumstances were such that they were exactly those which applied in the case of Tumut. The department say that they have lost my letter in reply, but that was the substance of my reply. Mr. Cohen had been advised by Sir Alfred Stephen that it would be sentence of death if I were offered anything outside Goulburn. Subsequent to getting that letter Mr. Cohen made me the offer at Grenfell.
73. I understand that you declined to accept it? I said that I would be glad to accept it, but that the circumstances were exactly the same as those which applied to Tumut.
74. Then you really did not decline altogether? No; I said I should be glad to go, but that the circumstances surrounding the offer were precisely the same as in the case of the offer at Tumut.
75. Chairman.] At this particular time did you state to Mr. Cohen that you had a strong claim in anticipation of being appointed police magistrate at Goulburn? Yes; that is in a separate letter.
76. At this time did the people of Goulburn make a stir with regard to your position? Yes; there was a very largely signed petition of the inhabitants asking that I should be made police magistrate there.
77. Dr. Ross.] What reply was received to that petition? I do not know.
78. Chairman.] At the time when this petition went in did it receive support from many persons outside the people living in Goulburn? Yes; it received the support of the Chief Justice, the Lieutenant-Governor, three other Judges, thirty-seven Members of Parliament, the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, and the President of the Legislative Council. I suppose there was never such a strong recommendation on record as the petition and letters presented in my favour.
79. Dr. Ross.] What date was that? It was in 1883. It was after that that I received the offer of the office of C.P.S. at Grenfell.
80. Mr. Walker.] Were the two offers close together? After the police magistracy was filled up at Goulburn the offer at Grenfell was made.
81. In the face of this petition, and such a strong recommendation by such prominent men, if any offer had been tendered to you outside of the police magistracy at Goulburn would you have felt justified in accepting it? Certainly not.
82. Did you consider the pledges given to you by various Ministers sufficient to justify you in the course you had taken? Most thoroughly so.
83. Dr. Ross.] What is the amount of the salary of the police magistrate at Goulburn? £500 a year,—it may be £525. I had applied before that to be made stipendiary magistrate in Sydney.
84. Chairman.] Do you consider that it was through any fault or negligence of your own in making application to the Government for appointment that you have been overlooked? No; on the contrary, my friends say that I importuned too much. I did not let any Government rest, in that sense of the word. I did so respectfully, but I importuned. I never lost an hour during the whole of those years.
85. What amount do you think you are entitled to? The actual loss to me is about £6,000.
86. How do you make that up? The account submitted to the Government was not drawn up by me—it was drawn up by a lawyer, and he made up the account to be in 1880, £2,596; interest at 5 per cent. on that amount would be £928 15s.
87. Have you borrowed money on the strength of receiving some compensation or salary upon which you have paid a higher rate of interest than 5 per cent.? I have had to pay 8, 9, and up to 10 per cent. Then I speak of the loss of salary from 1881 to the present time, because the Government sent me a letter acknowledging that I was entitled to £300 a year; so that from 1881 up to the end of December of this year, with interest at 5 per cent., the amount of my claim is £6,044 5s. That is with interest at 5 per cent., and not compound interest.
88. Mr. Walker.] Without desiring to go into your private affairs, as a matter of fact, have you had to borrow money at higher rates than 5 per cent. in order to maintain yourself at Goulburn on the strength of promises made to you? Certainly. I never had any misgiving about having my claim acknowledged.

89. Have you parted with any property at all? Vast quantities of it, to maintain life. I am in this position, that I should not have a shilling left in the world—I should be just able to pay; but I should not have a shilling left in the world if I were to fail in this. Even this amount that I claim would not pay my debts, but it would save my home. Less than that amount would not save my home. I conscientiously say that I acted with the utmost integrity and fidelity in anything that I had to do; and I have never ceased to press my claim, with the sense of certainty that I should obtain this in the end when it was understood. The difficulty I have had was to get the facts published. The Government have published them at last, and I am now prepared to answer any questions.

Captain
F. R. L. Rossi.
12 Oct., 1887.

90. Is this the first inquiry of this nature which has yet been made into your claim? Yes. I have been waiting for this for many years; I have suffered for seventeen years.

91. Was the reason why you would not go out of Goulburn that you did not want to go from there? I did not ask them to let me off. I said I would go at any cost, wishing to be faithful to my duty. Having the spirit of a soldier, I did not want to shirk duty. I explained all the circumstances to Sir George Innes.

92. Do you cast on him the responsibility of remaining in Goulburn and refusing an appointment outside? Had it not been for what he said I certainly should have gone. Nothing would have prevented me but his kind undertaking that it would not be to my prejudice, so I thought that was equivalent to having gone.

93. Did you receive a reply to the second letter, in which you stated that your reasons for not accepting the appointment were identical with those you gave to Sir George Innes? I received no reply to that letter.

94. So you were left to imagine that the minute of Sir George Innes in that respect was equally good? No. The outcome of the second case was this:—The Minister was asked in Parliament if he intended to do anything for Captain Rossi, and his reply was that he did not intend to do anything, because I refused two appointments. I have said over and over again what the explanation is. Subsequently I asked Mr. Cohen if he had anything to give me. Mr. Cohen said he had nothing worth offering. I wish to call the attention of the Committee to this significant fact, that after Mr. Cohen had said this in Parliament, at the close of the session he sent to me officially to speak to me about my claim. Then I told him a very great deal, which quite changed the colour of everything. I thought it very significant that he should say nothing would be done for me, and that then he should send for me. He said to me, "Put it all in writing, and it shall stand in record." Before I could do so, however, he went out of office. That is the way I have suffered. I believe that no Minister, living or dead, wished to hurt me; but before any of them could assist me there was a change in the Government.

95. Mr. Cohen in Parliament stated that you refused two appointments;—do you distinctly deny that you refused them? Yes, most certainly.

96. Dr. Ross.] Did you never put in any claim upon the Government until 1880, after having suffered a reduction in your salary in 1871? I made the specific claim in 1880 at the invitation of Sir George Innes.

97. Did you allow the claim to remain in abeyance from 1871 until 1880? I did, so far as the form of compensation is concerned.

98. Was that claim in 1880 the first you made from 1871? I continued making application year by year on every opportunity.

99. Do you not consider it an extraordinary way of doing business to allow it to remain in abeyance from 1871 until 1880? I did not put in a specific claim for compensation, but I always claimed to have the restoration of my salary.

100. Did you put in any claim for restoration? Yes.

101. Is it in writing in the documents? Yes.

102. When was the first claim put in? On every opportunity. They were successive and continuous from 1871.

103. Mr. Walker.] On learning that the other registrars had received appointments after your reduction did you call attention to the fact, and make your claim upon the Government at that time? I do not know whether I did it in that specific way, but I never ceased to ask for the fulfilment of the promise held out to me by Sir James Martin and by the expectations from successive Ministers. I did that unweariedly until 1880, when it was suggested that I should put in my claim for compensation in figures.

104. It was then suggested by a Minister of the Crown that you should put your claim in in figures? Yes.

105. Will you refer to a letter written on the 30th June, 1871, No. 11, addressed to the Crown Law Offices? Yes. It is as follows:—

No. 11.

Mr. F. R. L. Rossi to The Under Secretary, Crown Law Offices.

Sir,

Goulburn, 30 June, 1871.

I have the honor to acknowledge the communication with which I have been favoured from the Honorable the Attorney-General that he altogether disapproves of the reduction of my salary as Registrar of the District Court, Goulburn, and intends to place my salary on the next Estimates at the rate proposed on the Estimates just passed, and further, that the Honorable the Attorney-General intends to place on the Supplementary Estimates of this year a sum to make good to me the difference between the £75 voted and the amount originally proposed. Lastly, requesting me to say whether I will continue to hold office as Registrar in this expectation. For the just and kind purport of that letter I hope I may be allowed to offer my grateful thanks, and with reference to the last paragraph and query I desire to say that I shall be willing and happy to do so, having utmost confidence in the kind intentions of Sir James Martin.

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI.

106. You there say that you are happy and willing to continue in office? Yes, on that understanding.

107. Mr. Ball.] Have you any idea as to what the other registrars have been receiving up to the present time from 1880, at Goulburn? The registrars were all merged into other offices. There are an immense number of them now, because every clerk of petty sessions is a registrar.

108. Mr. Rylie.] Were you the only registrar from 1871 up to 1880? We were special registrars.

109. Mr. Teece.] Are you a magistrate of the territory? Yes; since 1845.

110. Have you repeatedly discharged magisterial duties? Persistently and continuously. Just before the time when I expected to fill the office of the police magistrate, I was there every day for about one year and nine months.

111.

- Captain F. R. L. Rossi. 111. Have you ever discharged the duties there in the absence of the police magistrate? Yes; I was always there with Mr. Voss. I was the senior.
112. Dr. Ross.] Has the Government lately made you an offer of any other office? No.
- 12 Oct., 1887. 113. Have you made any application lately? Yes; I asked to be made chairman of the Land Board; also to be made clerk when Mr. Armstrong died, at £400 a year, in Sydney. I also asked to be made Secretary to the Civil Service Board, but I received no response in any of these cases, except in the case of Mr. Armstrong, when it was said that they must give the appointment to the next officer in the Department.

THURSDAY, 27 OCTOBER, 1887.

Present:—

MR. BALL, | DR. ROSS,
MR. TEECE, | MR. WALKER.

J. HURLEY, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Captain F. R. L. Rossi recalled and further examined:—

- Captain F. R. L. Rossi. 114. Chairman.] I understand that you are desirous of giving us some additional information, which you were not in possession of, or could not remember, at the time of your last examination? If there is anything the Committee would like to ask me about I am prepared to answer anything.
- 27 Oct., 1887. 115. Have you not some documents which you would like to produce? Yes, I have a letter which, in the printed return, is said to have been lost in the Department of Justice. This is the letter in which I replied to the offer of the Grenfell position.
116. Is the letter which you have a copy, or the original? A copy.
117. How do you certify to its being a copy? Because it is my own; I have sworn it to be so, and I am on oath to declare it to be so; all the correspondence has been copied by myself.
118. Will you read the letter? Yes; first of all I will read a letter which I sent to the Department of Justice, as follows:—

Sir, No. 1 Coffee Palace, 18 March, 1884.
In the papers ordered to be printed 28th February last, in the case of "Captain Rossi," the memo. on page No. 43, at foot of letter, says that a certain letter of mine, 11th June, 1883, had been received, but "cannot be found."
I have the honor to send you a copy of that letter, wherein it will be perceived that I had been unable to accept, as the conditions surrounding the offer were precisely the same as had existed in the offer of the Clerk of Petty Sessionship at Tamut, which I would repeat I accepted unconditionally. It was at the suggestion, as I have shown, of the then Minister for Justice, I withdrew from acceptance, under a promise made to me.

Finally, I would mention that the present the Honorable the Minister for Justice was, by a letter from Sir Alfred Stephen, put in possession of the knowledge which unfortunately would appear to have escaped the Minister prior to that offer to me of Grenfell clerkship, "that any appointment out of Goulburn would to me be as a sentence of death."

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

The Under Secretary, Department of Justice, Sydney.

The enclosure is the letter referred to, and it is as follows:—

Sir, No. 1 Coffee Palace, 11 June, 1883.
I have to acknowledge with thanks your letter or memo. of the 9th instant, which reached me to-day, offering me the position of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Grenfell.
I should have felt it a duty to comply with the wishes of the Government in such respect, but reference to my communication of the 16th April last, as well as to the minutes of Sir George Innes, written on the occasion when he had suggested my withdrawal from the acceptance of the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Tamut, will, without doubt, satisfy you that I am precluded from accepting.

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

The Honorable the Minister for Justice, &c., Sydney.

119. From that letter of the 11th June, 1883, it would be inferred that the Government were desirous of recognizing that you had some claim by offering you that position? Unquestionably. In confirmation of what I said the other day, I produce another letter, which I sent to the Minister for Lands, making application for the position of chairman of one of the Land Boards. This letter is dated 24th November, 1884. I produce the letter to show how earnestly I desired to get work.

120. That was after the Grenfell offer was made to you? Yes.

121. The Government having offered you a position at £400 per annum, including the land business at Grenfell, supposing they had offered you a similar position, would you have taken it? Yes; at Goulburn, for instance.

122. I observe that you do not travel out of Goulburn? I want to show by this letter that I do. When I had an interview with Mr. Cohen, I said, "Why did you not make me Clerk of the Bench at Goulburn?" He said, "I did not believe you would accept it." I said, "How, then, did you offer me a similar position 100 miles away from home if you did not think I would accept a similar position at Goulburn?" I produce the letter which I sent to the Minister for Lands, in confirmation of what I said the other day.

123. It was after the refusal of the Grenfell position that you wrote that letter? Yes, on the 24th November, 1884. The letter is as follows:—

Sir, No. 1 Coffee Palace, 24 November, 1884.
I have the honor to address you, making a request and application that one of the appointments as Chairman of the Land Boards may be conferred upon me. If I may be permitted to say so much, I would naturally desire such a position as near as possible to my home at Goulburn.

I have, &c.,
F. R. L. ROSSI,
Captain.

The Honorable the Minister for Lands, &c., Sydney.

That shows the direction I was prepared to go.

124. Did you get a reply? No. As the published account narrates, I also applied for a clerkship in Sydney. I also applied to be made Secretary to the Civil Service Board.

125. It is quite evident from the correspondence that you are desirous of holding the Minister to the promise of an appointment at Goulburn? Yes.

126. You have always refused any appointment outside of Goulburn? I have never had one offered to me.
127. What about the Tumut offer? I mean except under the circumstances which I have explained.
128. Suppose in reference to your letter to the Minister for Lands you had been offered a position as chairman of the Land Board at Grenfell, Forbes, or any other place, would you have accepted it? Certainly I would.
129. How can you reconcile that statement with the refusal to accept the Grenfell position at £400 a year? What I was aiming at all the time was to get a good appointment, and then to effect a transfer with some other officer. If I had received an appointment, by this time I could have resigned, and gone away on a very handsome pension.
130. Mr. Walker.] At the time when you first anticipated being appointed Police Magistrate at Goulburn, was the salary of that office any more than the salary which was offered to you at Grenfell? Yes, I think it was £525 a year.
131. You do not think that you in any way acted wrongly in refusing to accept the offer of a position at £400 a year at Grenfell? Most certainly not, under the circumstances surrounding the offer at the time.
132. Chairman.] Will you reiterate the circumstances? They are all indicated in the printed papers. When Sir George Innes said that I need not go, I said that I must go, because I wanted to do something better, and he said, "I promise you that it shall not be to your prejudice if you do not go." Had I gone at that time, I should have had to leave my wife and my mother-in-law at Goulburn. My mother-in-law was an imbecile, and we had to see her daily and attend to her wants, and, as I said, referring to my wife and my mother-in-law, in the event of my going away, they would be just like two ships at sea without rudders. I told Sir George Innes that it was great consideration on his part to feel for me to that extent. He said, "Under those circumstances the Government would not ask you to go"; but still, to show my willingness and readiness to discharge the duty, I said, "Even if it costs me my life, I will go. I will even make the sacrifice of family consideration," which you will see was rather a serious one.
133. Another consideration was that what little property you had was in Goulburn? Yes, and had I gone away there would not have been a soul to look after it but my wife.
134. Dr. Ross.] Did the Department of Justice at any time ever give you any promise that in the event of any vacancy arising in any other Department they would get you that appointment? The Department of Justice could not make an offer of that kind.
135. Did you not think when you wrote to the Minister for Lands in 1884, asking to be appointed to the position of chairman of a Land Board, that you would compromise yourself with the Justice Department? No. I did not get any answer from the Lands Department, nor did I get any answer to my application for the position of Secretary of the Civil Service Board.
136. Did you ever have the promise of any vacant position from the Justice Department other than the promise which you have mentioned? Yes; Mr. Leary, who is dead, said to me once, "I cannot get your salary raised, but if there is ever anything in my bestowal let Captain Rossi ask for it, and he would be prepared to give the application the fullest consideration."
137. Mr. Walker.] Did you ever make any other applications outside the Department of Justice? I never made any application outside that Department until 1884, when I found that I could get nothing there.
138. Up to that time you were dependent on inducements which were held out to you? Yes. To show how disposed I was to do anything after that time I may say that I offered to go to Egypt. I looked upon it in this light. You will perhaps remember that at that time there was an offer that if any officer died his widow would get the same allowance as would be given to a widow of an officer of similar rank in the Imperial Service. I thought that there would be this remnant left if I died, and I begged to be allowed to go.
139. Dr. Ross.] Why was it that in making your application to the Lands Department you did not state that you had been for many years expecting an appointment in the Department of Justice? I am in no way reticent. I would have mentioned it if I had thought it necessary.
140. Do you not think that a statement of the facts would have assisted you in getting an appointment in the Department of Lands? I think quite the other way, considering the circumstances of my position. They would say, here is a man who has been trying to get a position in the Department of Justice. They know him pretty well, and if they cannot give him something it is not likely that we shall give him something to do.
141. Mr. Walker.] Do you not think that possibly it would have been wiser if you had written to the Justice Department, asking for some evidence that you had been waiting for a position? I can answer that very distinctly. I had ceased to have anything to do with the Department of Justice. They were nothing more to me than the Emperor of China is, as far as control is concerned. Had I been connected with the Department of course I should have felt it my duty to have written such a letter.
142. Chairman.] Suppose you had been offered a position in the Lands Department, would you have been content to accept that appointment without making any claims against the Department of Justice for the long time that you had been in expectancy? I am not prepared to say that. The late Mr. Daintree knew how urgently I desired to get the Police Magistracy at Goulburn. His nephew, Mr. John Woore, applied for the position, and Mr. Daintree said to me, "You have a preferential claim;" and he said, "Mark me, if you are made Police Magistrate at Goulburn the Government ought to give you every farthing of your claim."
143. Did he not write a letter stating that you had a substantial claim? Yes, and he gratuitously said that I would be entitled to arrears of all claims up to that time. From the first I never abandoned the full expectation of getting the money.
144. The present Chief Justice expressed himself that you had a substantial claim? Yes, and the late Chief Justice. You will also see how Bishop Lanigan, of Goulburn, urges that my claims should be considered. From the first I have never abandoned the expectation of getting my claim paid in full. I have waited seventeen years now.
145. Mr. Teece.] Do you not think that the offer of a position at Grenfell was regarded by the Department as an equivalent for your claims? No; not in satisfaction of those claims.
146. Who was Minister for Justice when you were offered the position at Tumut? Sir George Innes.
147. Who was Minister for Justice when you were offered the position at Grenfell? Mr. Cohen.
148. When you wished to withdraw your applications for those positions, did both those Ministers lead you to believe or state to you that the withdrawal in any way prejudiced your claim? Sir George Innes left

Captain
F. R. L. Rossi.
27 Oct., 1887.

- Captain F. R. L. Rossi. left it on record that it did not. I did not receive any reply to my communication declining the Grenfell position.
- 27 Oct., 1887. 149. Dr. Ross.] The unfortunate position in which you are placed is this: that the money was put on the Estimates, but Parliament would not vote it? I am not combating Parliament.
150. As far as the late Chief Justice is concerned he faithfully fulfilled his promise by putting the vote on the Estimates? He ceased to be Minister for Justice; but Mr. Butler, who succeeded him, put it on.
151. How many times did the item appear on the Estimates? First of all it was put on by Sir James Martin, and when it was struck off he said that he was shocked. Then it was put on by Mr. Butler. The third time it was put on it was never discussed.
152. Why did Parliament disallow the vote? In the first instance, as far as I know, it was through a very grievous misapprehension of my duties, as to what they were. It was said in Parliament, "Oh, this gentleman has nothing to do. He rides up to his office, and rides away again." The truth is this: It is a fearful thing which I have to suffer from a partial truth operating as a whole truth. I used to ride up and leave my horse at my father-in-law's place, the Dean of Goulburn. One day I was passing the Court-house, when I saw the bailiff. I said to him, "Are there any letters for me?" and he said, "No, Sir." Some eaves-dropper heard this, and saw me ride off, and thought that I had nothing to do, and told a Member of Parliament. The fact was I did then as I always did. After I had put my horse up I went to the office to do my work. Goulburn was first on the list, and ex uno disce omnes—I was knocked on the head. I cannot say whether this was on the first or the second occasion. Sir James Martin was disgusted. He said he could give good reasons why the office should be continued.
153. Can you give us an idea when the discussion took place? It would be about 1871.
154. Mr. Walker.] The reason in your estimation why Parliament would not vote the money was because you had been misrepresented, and no fitting reply had been made on your behalf? Yes.
155. Dr. Ross.] But Sir James Martin knew the circumstances? He was not in the House when it came on the second time. If he had been I believe he would have carried it through.
156. Mr. Walker.] Was he in the House at the time Mr. Butler was in office? I do not think he was.
157. Was Sir James Martin in the House when the matter was discussed at any other time? I think he was the first time. I cannot speak confidently. You will see in the documents that he talks about the information with which he would be able to supply Parliament.
158. Dr. Ross.] Did the Attorney-General, or the Minister of Justice, subsequent to Parliament disallowing the vote, ever make any further promises? Mr. Butler made a promise afterwards.
159. In defiance of what Parliament had done? No, it was not in defiance of Parliament. He said, "Parliament will not allow the vote, and I cannot give it to you; but the Government must give you the first vacancy of an appointment in Goulburn; I must make it up to you." He said that Parliament objected to restore the salary, and that, therefore, he would have to get me something else. The first vacancy in Goulburn was mentioned, we having at that time the Police Magistracy in our minds.
160. Mr. Walker.] The issues before Parliament were mixed. It was not so much a question of your claim as of the abolition of the office? The contention in Parliament was against the office.
161. After Parliament had decided, you were still promised that you should have the first thing offering in Goulburn? Yes; and besides that several successive Ministers after that said, "When the next Estimates are being prepared we will have your case brought forward." It was kept on for ten years in this way, and at the end of the ten years it was taken away altogether. The successive Ministries kept up my expectations. In a précis which I have written of the documents you will find the same tune is played throughout. For instance, here is an item: "1875. Your application was duly under consideration, but no decision has yet been arrived at upon the subject." There were successive promises of that character going on year after year, and they kept the coal alive by blowing on me with these expectations.

Present:—

MR. BALL, | MR. RYRIE,
MR. WALKER.

J. HURLEY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John O'Connor, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

- J. O'Connor, Esq. 162. Chairman.] You were some time ago employed in the Department of Justice? Yes; for eight or nine years.
- 18 Nov., 1887. 163. You are still in the Government service? Yes.
164. In what branch? In an office connected with the Department of Justice—in the Patents Office.
165. You are in possession of some particulars in connection with the claim of Captain Rossi? I hardly think so. In fact I am afraid I am in a somewhat false position before this Committee. However I will state what I know about the case: About four years ago a return was ordered by Parliament in connection with Captain Rossi's case. That return passed through my hands, and in preparing it I became thoroughly conversant with everything connected with his claim. It is so long ago that I have forgotten the details, but I know that while the case was going through my hands I frequently saw Captain Rossi at the office, and I remember that I told him on several occasions that, in reading the correspondence, I thought he had been very harshly dealt with by the Government. I suppose that Captain Rossi thought that I might make this statement before the Committee. I do not know whether I am right or wrong in so doing, but those are the facts so far as I am concerned.
166. We should like to hear from you what impression the reading of the correspondence made upon your mind at the time? As I have said, after reading the correspondence I became convinced in my own mind that Captain Rossi had a claim against the Government on account of the promises frequently made by Sir James Martin and other Ministers, to see that justice should be done to him.
167. Mr. Walker.] Has anything since occurred to alter that impression? Nothing at all. I remember that about two years ago, when Mr. Slattery was Minister for Justice, I had a conversation with him about the matter, and, from what he said, I am satisfied that he shared my opinion that Captain Rossi had not been fairly treated. In fact he said that if the Government of which he was a member lived long enough enough he should take care that the case was fully stated to the Cabinet. Mr. MacNevin, the chief clerk, and Mr. Plunkett, the Under Secretary, had also conversations with me about the matter while the return was being prepared, and I think that both of those gentlemen thought that Captain Rossi had a claim against the Government.

J. O'Connor,
Esq.

18 Nov., 1887.

168. Then, from your personal contact with officers of the Department, and from your personal knowledge of the correspondence, you formed the conclusion that Captain Rossi had a claim against the Government?

Yes. While the return was being prepared Captain Rossi was at the office frequently, and was rather inclined to elicit persons' opinion on the subject. I expressed my opinion to him without any reservation.

169. Did you form the opinion that he had a claim against the Government from reading the correspondence before you had conversed with others who shared that opinion? I prepared the return with Mr. Stafford, of the Department, and both Mr. Stafford and myself came to the conclusion that Captain Rossi had not been treated at all justly.

170. And your opinion was only confirmed, and not formed, when you had conversation with others? I had formed my opinion on the question before I spoke to Mr. Plunkett or Mr. MacNevin on the subject.

171. Your judgment in the matter was not influenced by the judgment of any of your superior officers? No.

172. Chairman.] Are you any special friend of Captain Rossi? I never met Captain Rossi in my life until the return to which I have referred was being prepared, although previously I had heard of him.

173. You have no interest in him more than a desire to see justice done? Not the slightest.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

IMMIGRATION.

(REPORT FROM AGENT FOR 1887.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 28 February, 1888.

I have the honor to submit, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, my Report on Immigration for the year ending 31st December, 1887.

Only two steamers were chartered by the Agent-General, arriving in January and March.

Of the total of 1,362 immigrants who arrived, including 185 wives with their children coming to join their husbands, there were 1,063 nominated by their relatives or friends in the Colony. During the voyage 9 infants died and 3 were born.

Of the 481 single women who arrived, only 114 were willing to hire as domestic servants, and these readily obtained engagements at an average rate of wages of 9s. 8d. per week.

The appendices herewith annexed give full detailed information relative to Immigration during the past year:—

- A.—General Statistical Information.
- B.—Nationality of Immigrants.
- C.—Religious Persuasions.
- D.—Educational Attainments.
- E.—Trades and Callings.
- F.—Distribution into Country Districts.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE F. WISE,

Agent for Immigration.

IMMIGRATION.

(REPORT FROM IMMIGRATION AGENT—STEAMSHIP 'OROYA.')

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 21 September, 1887.

FURTHER RETURN to an Address adopted by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales on the 6th July, 1877, That, in the opinion of this House, there should be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“(1.) Copies of all Reports, since 1875 to date, from the Agent-General, the Health Officer, and Agent for Immigration, to the Government, relative to the Despatch of Emigrants from England or elsewhere, and after their inspection on arrival in the Colony by each ship.

“(2.) That similar Reports should henceforward be laid upon the Table of the House as soon as practicable after the arrival and inspection of the Immigrants by each ship.

“(3.) That the above Resolutions be communicated by Address to His Excellency the Governor.”

(Mr. Macintosh.)

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 27 August, 1887.

I have the honor to report, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, that the s.s. “Oroya” arrived on the 19th instant, having on board a small portion of the balance of nominated immigrants, consisting of one single man, one single woman, three married women coming to join their husbands, and ten young children—ten statute adults.

The cost of passage, as per special agreement made by the Agent-General, was at the rate of £15 per statute adult, towards which a total of £16 had been paid by three depositors on account of their nominees.

On examination the immigrants expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and were forwarded to various destinations to their friends, who had been previously advised of their anticipated arrival.

I have, &c.,

IMMIGRATION.

(REPORT FROM IMMIGRATION AGENT—STEAMSHIP "LIGURIA.")

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 November, 1887.

FURTHER RETURN to an Address adopted by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales on the 6th July, 1877, That, in the opinion of this House, there should be laid upon the Table of this House,—

- “(1.) Copies of all Reports, since 1875 to date, from the Agent-General, the Health Officer, and Agent for Immigration, to the Government, relative to the Despatch of Emigrants from England or elsewhere, and after their inspection on arrival in the Colony by each ship.
- “(2.) That similar Reports should henceforward be laid upon the Table of the House as soon as practicable after the arrival and inspection of the Immigrants by each ship.
- “(3.) That the above Resolutions be communicated by Address to His Excellency the Governor.”

(Mr. Macintosh.)

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 18 October, 1887.

I have the honor to report, for the information of the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, that the s.s. "Liguria" arrived on the 6th instant, having on board one married woman, come to join her husband. She was accompanied by two children. These individuals are a portion of the balance of nominated immigrants.

The cost of passage, as per special agreement made by the Agent-General, was at the rate of £15 per statute adult, towards which a total of £3 has been paid by the depositor on account of the nominees, who expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and who were forwarded to their destinations in the country to their relative, who had been previously advised of their anticipated arrival.

I have to report that the embarkation list transmitted by the Agent-General contained the names of a Mrs. Naughten and her family of eight, for whom the Agent-General paid one half the cost of their passage-money to the Orient Steam Navigation Company (Lim.) in London; but, on inquiry, I ascertained that these people had been permitted to land at Melbourne; I am therefore unable to certify as to their arrival in this Colony in terms of the agreement, neither can I recommend that the balance of their passage-money should be paid.

I have the honor to suggest that this important matter should be brought specially under the notice of the Agent-General.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE F. WISE,
Agent for Immigration.

(Mr. Macintosh.)

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 19 December, 1887.

I have the honor to report, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, that the s.s. "Orient" arrived on the 10th instant, having on board six married women come to join their husbands, together with twenty-five children of ages ranging from a few months up to sixteen years, in all thirty-one souls, equal to twenty-one statute adults.

The cost of passage as per special agreement made by the Agent-General was at the rate of £15 per statute adult, towards which a total sum of £53 has been paid by the depositors on account of the nominees, who expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and who were forwarded to their destinations in the country to their relatives, who had been previously advised of their anticipated arrival.

No case of sickness occurred amongst them during the voyage.

I have, &c.,

OF THE

CONFERENCE ON CHINESE QUESTION.

At the Executive Council Chamber, Sydney,

12 JUNE, 1888.

The following gentlemen, representing the undermentioned Colonies, were present:—

New South Wales :	The Hon. SIR HENRY PARKES, G.C.M.G., M.P. The Hon. JOHN FITZGERALD BURNS, M.P.
Victoria :	The Hon. DUNCAN GILLIES, M.P. The Hon. ALFRED DEAKIN, M.P.
South Australia :	The Hon. THOMAS PLAYFORD, M.P. The Hon. CHARLES CAMERON KINGSTON, Q.C., M.P.
Queensland :	The Hon. JOHN MURTAGH MACROSSAN, M.P.
Western Australia :	The Hon. SIR MALCOLM FRASER, K.C.M.G., M.L.C.
Tasmania :	The Hon. PHILLIP OAKLEY FYSH, M.L.C.

On the motion of the Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD, seconded by the Honorable DUNCAN GILLIES the Honorable Sir Henry Parkes, G.C.M.G., was appointed President.

On the motion of the Honorable DUNCAN GILLIES, seconded by the Honorable P. O. FYSH, Mr. Alex. C. Budge was appointed Secretary.

The Commissions of the Representatives were laid upon the Table.

The Conference then proceeded to consider the question of admitting representatives of the Press, when after deliberation it was not considered expedient to do so.

The following Petitions were laid before the Conference and read:—

1. From Quong Tart.
2. From Chinese merchants.
3. From E. Kretsohing.

The Conference unanimously resolved that the President and the Honorable J. F. Burns be a Committee to direct what papers should be printed.

The Honorable CHARLES C. KINGSTON explained the absence of the Honorable Richard Oliver, who is appointed to represent New Zealand.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD then laid before the Conference a telegram from the Secretary of State to His Excellency Sir W. C. F. Robinson, the Governor of South Australia, which was read.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD gave notice of the following resolutions:—

- “ 1. That in the opinion of this Conference the further restriction of Chinese immigration is essential to the welfare of the people of Australasia.
- “ 2. That this Conference is further of opinion that the necessary restriction can best be secured through the diplomatic action of the mother country, and by uniform Australasian legislation.
- “ 3. That this Conference resolves to consider a joint representation to the Imperial Government for the purpose of obtaining the desired action.
- “ 4. That this Conference resolves to consider a draft Bill as the basis of the legislation referred to.
- “ 5. That a Committee, to consist of _____ be appointed to prepare the form of representation, and draft Bill.
- “ 6. That the Committee to prepare the Draft Bill be instructed as follows:—
 - “ (1.) That this Bill shall apply to all Chinese.
 - “ (2.) That the restriction should be by way of poll-tax and by limitation of the number of Chinese which any vessel may bring into an Australasian port.
 - “ (3.) That the poll-tax be £30 per head, and the limitation one Chinese to every 200 tons.
 - “ (4.) That the influx of Chinese from one Colony to another without payment of poll-tax be made a misdemeanour.
 - “ (5.) That no Chinese now in Australasia be rendered liable to any payment or penalty other than is provided by existing regulations.”

It was then resolved, unanimously, that voting should be by Colonies.
The Conference adjourned at 4.20 until to-morrow at 9.30 a.m.

Confirmed, 13th June, 1888.

Western Australia :	The Hon. SIR MALCOLM FRASER, K.C.M.G., M.L.C.
Tasmania :	The Hon. PHILLIP OAKLEY FYSH, M.L.C.

The Conference having assembled at 9.30 a.m., the Minutes of yesterday's proceedings were read and confirmed.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD then brought before the Conference the Resolutions of which he had given notice, as follows :—

- “ 1. That in the opinion of this Conference the further restriction of Chinese immigration is essential to the welfare of the people of Australasia.
- “ 2. That this Conference is further of opinion that the necessary restriction can best be secured through the diplomatic action of the mother country, and by uniform Australasian legislation.
- “ 3. That this Conference resolves to consider a joint representation to the Imperial Government for the purpose of obtaining the desired diplomatic action.
- “ 4. That this Conference resolves to consider a draft Bill as the basis of the legislation referred to.

 - “ (3.) That the poll-tax be £30 per head, and the limitation one Chinese to every 200 tons.
 - “ (4.) That the influx of Chinese from one Colony to another without payment of poll-tax be made a misdemeanour.
 - “ (5.) That no Chinese now in Australasia be rendered liable to any payment or penalty other than is provided by existing regulations.”

And moved the 1st resolution, which was carried on the following division :—

Ayes.	No.
New South Wales.	Tasmania.
Victoria.
South Australia.
Queensland.

Western Australia did not vote.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD then moved the second resolution, as amended, viz. :—

“ That this Conference is of opinion that the necessary restriction can best be secured through the diplomatic action of the Imperial Government and by uniform Australasian legislation,” which was carried unanimously.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD also moved the third resolution, which was carried unanimously.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD then moved the following resolution in lieu of No. 6 :—

“ That this Conference is of opinion that the desired Australasian legislation should contain the following provisions :—

- “ (1.) That it shall apply to all Chinese, with specified exceptions.” (Carried.)

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD then moved the following resolution (No. 2) :—

“ That the restriction should be by way of poll-tax and by limitation of the number of Chinese which any vessel may bring into an Australasian Port.”

Upon which the Honorable DUNCAN GILLIES moved an amendment as follows :—

“ That all the words after the word ‘ be,’ in the first line be omitted, with a view to the insertion of the following words :—‘ By limitation of the number of Chinese which any vessel may bring into any Australasian Port, to one Chinese to every 500 tons of the ship's burthen.’”

The

The PRESIDENT then put the following motion :—

“That the words proposed to be omitted stand part of the question,”—when it was negatived on the following division :—

Ayes.	Noes.
South Australia.	New South Wales. •
Queensland.	Victoria.
	Tasmania.

Western Australia did not vote.

The amendment was then put and carried upon the following division :—

Ayes.	No.
New South Wales.	Tasmania.
Victoria.
South Australia.
Queensland.

Western Australia did not vote.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD withdrew No. 3 of the Resolutions.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD proposed No. 4 as follows :—

“That the influx of Chinese from one Colony to another, without consent of the Colony which they enter, be made a misdemeanour”—which was carried.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD asked leave to postpone No. 5, which was granted.

A Committee was then appointed, consisting of the Honorable Alfred Deakin, the Honorable Charles Cameron Kingston, and the Honorable John Murtagh Macrossan, to frame and bring up the form of Representation and Draft Bill referred to.

The Conference then adjourned until to-morrow at 9:30 a.m.

Western Australia :	The Hon. SIR MALCOLM FRASER, K.C.M.G., M.L.C.
Tasmania :	The Hon. PHILLIP OAKLEY FYSH, M.L.C.

The Conference having assembled at 9:30 a.m., the Minutes of the Proceedings of the 13th instant were read and confirmed.

The Committee appointed to frame the form of Representation to the Imperial Government and the Draft Bill, laid the same on the Table, when they were read, and the Conference went into Committee on the Bill.

After considering the Bill clause by clause, and making certain amendments, it was adopted.

Tasmania voted against the Bill.

Western Australia did not vote.

The Conference next proceeded to the consideration of the proposed Representation to be made to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, as drawn up by the Committee, when it was agreed to, with amendments.

A telegram from Sir Thomas McIlwraith, Premier of Queensland, to the Honorable J. M. Macrossan, on the subject of Lord Knutsford's [circular] telegram to the Governors of the Australasian Colonies, was then read, as follows :—

“Brisbane, 14 June, 1888.

“Cabinet have considered confidential telegram from Lord Knutsford, and unanimously disapprove of his suggestion to place all foreign labourers on the same footing, with power to relax the regulations in certain cases.”

The Honorable ALFRED DEAKIN proposed, and the Honorable JOHN M. MACROSSAN seconded, the following resolution :—

“That the Governments of the Colonies represented at the Conference, with the exception of the Governments of New South Wales and Western Australia, undertake to introduce to their respective Parliaments measures which shall, while providing for the particular local circumstances of each Colony, approach as closely as possible to the draft Bill which has been adopted by the Conference, and shall contain nothing inconsistent therewith,” which was carried upon the following division :—

Ayes.	No.
Victoria.	Tasmania.
South Australia.

Western Australia.

The

The Representatives of New South Wales at the Conference desired to place the following memorandum on record :—

“We the undersigned Representatives of New South Wales at the Conference of the Australasian Colonies on the Chinese question, being unable to join in the last preceding Resolution, in consequence of legislation now before Parliament, do hereby concur in and agree to the policy embodied therein ; and so soon as two or more of the other Colonies have passed into law the Typical or Uniform Bill agreed upon by this Conference, we further agree to take the necessary steps to bring the law of New South Wales into strict harmony with those of the other Colonies, reserving to New South Wales, however, the right of any variations or additions not inconsistent with the main principles of Agreement.

HENRY PARKES.
J. F. BURNS.”

The Honorable Sir MALCOLM FRASER also desired to place on record the following memorandum :—

“Sir Malcolm Fraser could engage that the Bill should be laid before the Legislative Council of Western Australia, but could not state what action the Government of that Colony would take in regard to it.”

The Honorable PHILLIP O. FYSH also desired to place on record the following Memorandum :—

“June 14, 1888. Tasmania dissents from the decision of the Conference ‘That further restriction of Chinese immigration is essential to the welfare of the people of Australasia,’ because the vigorous legislative action of the Colonies has already proved successful in limiting the number of Chinese immigrants—a fact which is established by statistics and admitted in the Ministerial memorandum of Victoria upon this subject, dispatched in March last ; also, from the engagement by the Governments to secure, if practicable, the early passage of a measure similar to the Draft Bill through their respective Parliaments without waiting the result of the representations made by cable to the home authorities as being inconsistent with the request made by the Government of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, and Tasmania, for home Government intervention in the matter which this Bill proposes to dispose of, and because all that need be desired may be accomplished by treaty, while drastic legislation, if preceding diplomatic efforts, may prove embarrassing and engender international bitterness ; and because convinced that upon occasions when the insular interests of the Colonies can be secured in connection only with those which are Imperial it behoves these Colonies to remember that their preservation is maintained by British forces and that Colonial Acts must be justified by the Home Government. Tasmania dissents from the main purposes of the Draft Bill, because no exception is made which would enable Chinese residents to improve their social condition by the introduction of their wives. It ignores the rights of such naturalized British subjects as may be at present absent from the Colonies who have children in the Colonies born of British wives and have accumulated property under the sanction of Colonial laws. It makes no exception in favour of Chinese born under English rule in Hongkong and elsewhere. It disregards the climatic characteristics of the northern territories of Queensland, South Australia, and Western Australia, which are a barrier to successful occupation, except in pursuit of avocations peculiarly tropical and unsuitable to European labour.

P. O. FYSH.”

The Honorable PHILLIP OAKLEY FYSH proposed, and the Honorable JOHN M. MACROSSAN seconded, the following resolution, which was unanimously agreed to :—

“That the record of the proceedings of the Conference be communicated by the President to the Representative deputed by New Zealand to attend this Conference, on his arrival, and that in the event of the concurrence of the Governor or that of the representative of New Zealand being obtained, the President be requested to communicate the fact to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, through his Excellency the Governor.”

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD, with the consent of the Conference, withdrew the Resolution No. 5 of which notice had been given by him yesterday.

The Honorable DUNCAN GILLIES then proposed, and the Honorable PHILLIP OAKLEY FYSH seconded, the following Resolution :—

“That the President of the Conference be instructed to request His Excellency the Governor to transmit the joint Representation adopted by the Conference to the Secretary of State for the Colonies,” which was unanimously agreed to.

The Honorable Sir MALCOLM FRASER proposed, and the Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD seconded, the following Resolution :—

“That the substance of the joint Representation be transmitted to the Governors of the Australasian Colonies,” which was unanimously agreed to.

The Honorable THOMAS PLAYFORD proposed and the Honorable DUNCAN GILLIES seconded the following resolution :—

“That the thanks of the Conference be given to Sir Henry Parkes, G.C.M.G., for the great services he has rendered in the important position he has occupied as President of the Conference,”— which was unanimously carried.

The Honorable ALFRED DEAKIN then proposed and the Honorable CHARLES C. KINGSTON seconded the following resolution, which was unanimously carried :—

“That the thanks of the Conference be given to Mr. Alex. C. Budge for the efficient services rendered by him as Secretary.”

The Conference then adjourned.

CHINESE CONFERENCE.

[Circular.]

Telegram from Secretary of State to Sir W. C. F. Robinson, Governor of South Australia, to be forwarded to the Governors of the other Colonies.

REFERRING to your telegram of 22nd May, inform Conference Her Majesty's Government anxious to meet views of Australian Colonies with regard to limiting Chinese immigration, but measures adopted by New South Wales create obstacles to present negotiations with China. It is, therefore, important to ascertain whether, in substitution for legislation of a similar kind, other arrangements more in accordance with feeling and views of Chinese Government, and at the same time fully effective for the purpose of restricting Chinese immigration, may not be adopted. Having regard to political and commercial interests of Empire, and particularly to commercial interests of Australian Colonies, no avoidable obstacles should be placed in the way of trade which are likely to afford valuable market for products of Australian Colonies. Chinese Government specially objects to legislation for placing Chinese emigrants on different footing to subjects of any other power; and it seems desirable to consider whether laws and regulations equally restricting immigration into Colonies of all foreign labourers, with powers of relaxing regulations in special cases reserved to Governments, may not meet requirements of case. If thus placed on equal footing with other nations, Chinese Government, if it were still thought necessary to come to an international arrangement, might be willing to accept conditions more or less of a similar kind to conditions laid down in Treaty concluded with United States of America, and limitation of numbers which would be permitted to embark for any of Australian Colonies. In any case it should be clearly understood that, while Her Majesty's Government will be prepared to consider any representations from Conference, they are not at present able to give any assurance that negotiations with Chinese Government can be opened, as it depends on nature of proposals to be made to that Government; but I confidently believe that Conference will endeavour to conciliate susceptibilities of Chinese Government as far as possible.

KNUTSFORD.

The President of the Conference to His Excellency Lord
Carrington.

My dear Lord Carrington,

14 June, 1888.

As President of the Conference on the Chinese Question, I am instructed to request your Excellency to transmit to the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies the enclosed telegrams as unanimously agreed upon by the Conference.

I enclose also a Draft Bill agreed upon to be introduced in the respective Parliaments to carry out the decisions of the Conference.

Yours very sincerely,
HENRY PARKES.

Cablegram to Secretary of State.

At the Australasian Conference, held in Sydney on the 12th, 13th, and 14th inst., at which the Colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania, and Western Australia were represented, the question of Chinese Immigration, and your cablegram to the Governor of South Australia in connection therewith, were fully considered.

The Members of the Conference are sensible of the wish of Her Majesty's Government to meet the views of the Colonies, and have specially deliberated upon the possibility of securing legislation which, while effective, should be of a character so far as possible in accordance with the feeling and views of the Chinese Government. They have not overlooked the political and commercial interests of the Empire, nor the commercial interests of the Colonies.

In

In 1886 the total exports to China from New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania were valued at £16,000, out of a total export trade amounting to £38,700,000. Our imports from China in the same year were valued at £846,000. While the custom of the Colonies, therefore, is very valuable to China, that country offers no present outlet of importance for Australasian trade. There has never been any attempt on the part of any of the Colonies to close their markets to the exports of the Chinese Empire, although most, if not all of them, are now produced in great quantities in the British Empire of India.

The suggestion that any restrictions which are to be imposed should be of a general nature, so as to give power to exclude European or American immigrants, has been very carefully deliberated upon, but no scheme for giving effect to it has been found practicable.

As the length of time to be occupied in negotiations between the Imperial Government and the Government of China is uncertain, and as the Colonies in the meantime have reason to dread a large influx from China, the several Governments feel impelled to legislate immediately to protect their citizens against an invasion which is dreaded because of its results, not only upon the labor market but upon the social and moral condition of the people.

At the same time the Conference is most anxious that Her Majesty's Government should enter into communication with the Government of China, with a view to obtaining as soon as possible a treaty under which all Chinese, except officials, travellers, merchants, students, and similar classes, should be entirely excluded from the Australasian Colonies. By way of assisting to bring about such an understanding, the Conference has recommended the abolition of the poll-tax now levied upon Chinese immigrants. While believing that the local legislation now proposed will accomplish its object, the Colonies would prefer that the exclusion of the Chinese should be brought about by international agreement of a friendly nature as in the case of the United States.

The Conference further desires that Her Majesty's Government should induce the Governments of the Crown Colonies of Hongkong, Straits Settlements, and Labuan, to at once prohibit the emigration of all Chinese to the Australasian Colonies unless they should belong to the classes above mentioned. The Chinese who may claim to be considered British subjects in those Colonies are very numerous, and the certainty that their migration hither was prevented would give great and general satisfaction.

The resolutions arrived at by the Conference, and which have been embodied in a draft Bill, are as follows:—

- “1. That in the opinion of this Conference the further restriction of Chinese immigration is essential to the welfare of the people of Australasia.
- “2. That this Conference is of opinion that the necessary restriction can best be secured through the diplomatic action of the Imperial Government, and by uniform Australasian legislation.
- “3. That this Conference resolves to consider a joint representation to the Imperial Government for the purpose of obtaining the desired diplomatic action.
- “4. That this Conference is of opinion that the desired Australasian legislation should contain the following provisions:—
 - “1. That it shall apply to all Chinese, with specified exceptions.
 - “2. That the restriction should be by limitation of the number of Chinese which any vessel may bring into any Australasian port to one passenger to every 500 tons of the ship's burthen.
 - “3. That the passage of Chinese from one Colony to another without consent of the Colony which they enter be made a misdemeanour.”

The first and fourth resolutions were endorsed by all the Colonies except Tasmania, who dissented and Western Australia who did not vote, while the second and third were carried unanimously. As a whole, therefore, they faithfully represent the opinion of the Parliaments and peoples of Australia.

In conclusion, the Conference would call attention to the fact that the treatment of Chinese in the Australasian Colonies has been invariably humane and considerate, and that in spite of the intensity of popular feeling, during the recent sudden influx, good order has been everywhere maintained. In so serious a crisis the Colonial Governments have felt called upon to take strong and decisive action to protect their peoples, but in so doing they have been studious of Imperial interests, of International obligations, and of their reputation as law-abiding communities. They now confidently rely upon the support and assistance of Her Majesty's Government in their endeavour to prevent their country from being overrun by an alien race who are incapable of assimilation in the body politic, strangers to our civilization, out of sympathy with our aspirations, and unfitted for our free institutions, to which their presence in any number would be a source of constant danger.

HENRY PARKES,
President.

A BILL

For the Restriction of Chinese Immigration.

WHEREAS at a meeting of representatives of Australasian Preamble.
Governments, held at Sydney in the month of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, it was amongst other things resolved that it was desirable that uniform Australasian legislation should be adopted for the restriction of Chinese immigration: And whereas the provisions of this Act were approved by such representatives as the basis of such uniform legislation: And whereas it is desirable to legislate on such basis accordingly: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of New South Wales in Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1. In the construction of this Act the following words shall Interpretation. have the following meanings:—

“Chinese” shall include every person of Chinese race not exempted from the provisions of this Act.

“Vessel” shall include every ship, boat, or vessel.

“Master” shall include every person, other than a pilot, for the time being in command or charge of any vessel.

2.

Chinese Immigration Restriction.

Exemptions.

2. This Act shall not apply—

- (I) To any person duly accredited to any Australasian Colony by any Government, as its representative, or on any special mission.
- (II) To the crew of any vessel not being discharged therefrom in the Colony, and not landing in the Colony, except in the discharge of duties in connection with such vessel.
- (III) To any persons, or any class of persons, who shall for the time being be exempted from the provisions hereof.

Power to declare exemptions.

3. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council from time to time, by proclamation to be published in the Government Gazette, to declare that the provisions of this Act shall not apply to any person or any class of persons to be mentioned in such proclamation, either generally or for any time to be fixed by such proclamation, and any such proclamation may be revoked by the Governor in Council by proclamation to be published in the Government Gazette.

Master, on arrival, to report Chinese on board.

4. The master of every vessel, upon arrival at any port or place in this Colony from parts beyond the Colony, and having any Chinese on board, shall forthwith, and before making any entry at the Customs, deliver to the Collector or other principal officer of Customs at such port or place a statement specifying to the best of his knowledge and means of information, the number of Chinese on board such vessel, and the places of shipment and destination, and the name, calling, or occupation of each such Chinese. And for any default in the observance of this section such master shall on conviction be liable to a penalty of one hundred pounds.

No vessel to bring more than one Chinese passenger for every 500 tons burthen.

5. No vessel shall enter any port or place in the Colony having on board a greater number of Chinese than in the proportion of one Chinese to every five hundred tons of the tonnage of such vessel, such tonnage to be ascertained if the vessel shall be British by her certificate of registry, and if otherwise, or if such certificate shall not be produced, then according to the rules of measurement provided by the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1854." And if any vessel shall enter any port or place in the Colony, having on board any Chinese in excess of such number, the owner, master, or charterer of such vessel shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty of five hundred pounds for each Chinese in excess of such number.

Penalty on entry by land without permit.

6. Any Chinese who shall enter this Colony by land without first obtaining a permit in writing from some person to be appointed by the Governor in Council, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable on conviction to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six calendar months, and in addition or substitution for any such imprisonment shall be liable, pursuant to any warrant or order of the Magistrate or Justices by whom he shall be convicted, to be removed or deported to the Colony from whence he shall have come.

Appropriation of penalties and payments under Act.

7. All penalties and all moneys ordered to be paid or being the proceeds of any sale made under the authority of this Act shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue.

Evidence of person being a Chinese.

8. For the purposes of all proceedings under this Act, the Stipendiary or Police Magistrate or the Justices may decide, upon his or their own view and judgment, whether any person produced before them is a Chinese within the meaning of this Act.

Provision against evading Act by transshipping Chinese into other vessels.

9. Any vessel on board which Chinese shall be transhipped from another vessel and be brought to any port or place in this Colony shall be deemed to be a vessel bringing Chinese into the said Colony from parts beyond the said Colony, and shall be subject to the provisions of this Act.

Chinese Immigration Restriction.

10. The Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, may make regulations for carrying out the provisions of this Act. A copy of such regulations shall, within fourteen days, be laid before both Houses of Parliament, if Parliament be then in Session, and if not then in Session, within fourteen days after the commencement of the next Session; and if disapproval of such regulations is not expressed by resolution within fourteen days thereafter, they shall have the force of law. Power to make regulations.

11. All penalties and sums of money recoverable under this Act shall be recovered in a summary way at the suit of some officer of Customs authorized by the Colonial Treasurer, or of other officers appointed for such purpose, by like authority before any Stipendiary or Police Magistrate or two or more Justices of the Peace, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts regulating proceedings on summary conviction. And it shall be lawful for the Colonial Treasurer, by writing under his hand, to authorize any officer to detain any vessel, the master whereof shall, in the opinion of the said Treasurer, have committed an offence, or be a defaulter under this Act. Such detention may be either at the port or place where such vessel is found, or at any port or place to which the said Treasurer may order such vessel to be brought. For the purposes of such detention the officer so authorized shall be entitled to obtain in the customary manner such writ of assistance or other aid and assistance in and about the detention of or other lawful dealing with such vessel as are by law provided under the Act or Acts regulating Customs with reference to seizure of vessels or goods. But such detention shall be for safe custody only, and shall cease and be discontinued if a bond with two sufficient sureties be given by such master for the payment of the amount of such penalty and other sums as may be adjudged to be paid under the provisions of this Act: Provided that if default be made in payment of any such penalty incurred by such master in terms of any conviction adjudging the payment thereof it shall be lawful for such officer to seize such vessel and for him and any other officer or person duly authorized or empowered in that behalf to take all such proceedings for the purpose of procuring the condemnation and sale of such vessel as are provided by law in case of condemnation or forfeiture of a vessel for a breach of the Customs Laws of the said Colony: Provided that the proceeds of sale of any such vessel shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue, and after payment of the amount of such penalty and of all costs incurred in and about such sale and the proceedings leading thereto, the balance shall be placed by the Colonial Treasurer to a trust account and be held in trust for the owners of or other persons lawfully entitled to the vessel so condemned and sold. Penalties how recovered.

12. No poll-tax shall hereafter be taken or demanded from in respect of any Chinese. OR Abolition of poll-tax.

13. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the "Chinese Immigration Restriction Act, 1888." Short title.

No. 1.

To the Honorable the Representatives of the Australasian Colonies, meeting in Conference upon the Chinese Question in Sydney, June, 1888,—

The humble Memorial of the undersigned Chinese Merchants resident in Sydney, on behalf of themselves and other Chinese resident in Australasia and New Zealand,

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH,—

1. That by Article Five of the Treaty of Peking, made on the twenty-fifth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, between Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China, it was, amongst other things, provided that the Chinese, in choosing to take service in the British Colonies or other parts beyond the seas, were to be at perfect liberty to enter into engagements with British subjects for that purpose, and to ship themselves and their families in British vessels at the open ports of China.

2. Your Memorialists would respectfully refer to the rights given to British subjects to reside in and own property in China, and to travel therein.

3. Upon the faith of the above treaty, and upon legislation passed in the various Australasian Colonies, Chinese have come to the Australasian Colonies; some have married European women there; many are still residents there, while others have left temporarily, and have in such cases obtained certificates authorizing them to return within a certain time.

4. The Chinese merchants and traders resident in the Australasian Colonies from time to time require in the ordinary course of their business to visit the other Australasian Colonies, and your Memorialists would respectfully point to the great hardship that would be inflicted on them if provision be not made for them visiting such Colonies.

5. Your Memorialists would also respectfully point out that in the proposal to impose a poll-tax so high as the sum of one hundred pounds per head upon any Chinese coming to any one of the Australasian Colonies, that such amount is unduly severe and unnecessarily high on the one hand, while on the other the very magnitude of the tax would hold out inducement to breaches of the law.

6. Your Memorialists would also respectfully point out the hardship Chinese would be liable to if provision be not made for the performance of existing engagements with the Chinese in reference to their right to return to the Colonies, if so returning within the time specified in their exemption tickets.

7. Your Memorialists would also point out the hardship and injury to the Chinese who may have become naturalized British subjects, and who now own property in any of the Australasian Colonies, if they be not allowed, after due examination, to return to their homes.

8. Your Memorialists would respectfully refer to the fact of the general reduction during the last few years of the numbers of the Chinese resident in Australia (with the exception of Port Darwin under special circumstances).

9. Your Memorialists would respectfully refer to the proposal to exclude Chinese from mining, it being well known that the Chinese only follow the Europeans, and make a living where Europeans cannot, and the mining by the Chinese means the saving to the country of a large amount of wealth that would otherwise be lost.

Your Memorialists therefore humbly pray that your Honorable Conference will take this memorial under favourable consideration.

And your Memorialists will ever pray, &c.

Mr. Quong Tart to The Honorable the Chairman of the Intercolonial Conference.

Honorable Sir,

Sydney Arcade, 12 June, 1888.

I have the honor to respectfully offer my services, as a Chinese resident and naturalized British subject, in any capacity that may be considered by your honorable Assembly to be of use in arriving at the general opinion of the Chinese residents in Australasia, respecting your intended legislation in the different Colonies concerning the Chinese.

My services have been availed of by the Government of New South Wales on several occasions recently, and my knowledge of Colonial life in its various phases, on the diggings and as a business man generally, enables me (subject to your approval), to explain matters which possibly may require explanation at your distinguished Conference.

Kindly and respectfully apologising for approaching your august body,

I have, &c.,
 QUONG TART.

No. 3.

To the Honorable Sir Henry Parkes, K.C.M.G., &c., &c., Premier and Colonial Secretary, &c., &c.,
Chairman of the Intercolonial Conference, now being held at Sydney, June, 1888.

Sir,

In presenting our humble Memorial to your most august body, and prefacing the same by reference to Article V of the Convention of Peace, signed between Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China, on the 24th October, 1860, we consider that the Articles of Convention for purposes indicated are virtually Articles of Treaty as understood by the representatives of the people now and then concerned.

That the general opinion is good and has been ratified is clearly proven by the number of Chinese emigrants and passengers from time to time leaving the open ports of China (their good conduct guaranteed) for English Colonial possessions without any previous or present violation of existing treaties.

We would humbly and respectfully submit to your Honorable Conference the fact that in the Australasian Colonies there are numbers of Chinese inhabitants from the different Provinces of China, who have left the open ports referred to in the Treaty of Tien-Tsin, and merely mentioned as matters of detail in the Convention of Peking in our Memorial.

The Chinese residents of Australasia would deeply deplore any legislation altering the present friendly relations of the subjects of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China in any portions of the British Empire and the Empire of China.

Our commercial intercourse, and the desire of further amity to preserve the peace and harmony of both nations, for mutual welfare, is the earnest wish and good prayer of

Your most humble and obedient servants,

Chinese Question.

To the Representatives of the Australian Governments in Conference assembled.

Honorable Sirs,

The Chinese residents of Victoria, through this Committee, beg respectfully to approach your honorable Conference in the hope that under the deep sense of responsibility attaching to your present deliberations you may see clearly that there are two sides to this important question. Locally, we have had scant courtesy shown to us as subjects of a great and friendly power, and this is probably the experience of our brethren at many other Australian ports, but of this we do not speak at present.

We consider the "Cry" of a great influx of Chinese as one of those poor hollow things that time and reflection will cause the generous British mind to feel heartily ashamed of, but at the same time the cruel injustice inflicted under it may be far reaching. "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth."

Our own land has no equal on earth for fertility and resources, which by and bye will cause her to weigh heavy in the scale of nations, and therefore we assure you, honorable Sirs, that the question whether a few stragglers should emigrate from such a stupendous empire like China, is one of perfect indifference to her Government or her people. But the evil treatment of the few that are here or who have been recently turned away from these shores is a different matter altogether. We hope it may not be, but fear it may, that a deep wound has been inflicted that will rankle and bear evil fruit in the near future. Our late Ambassador in London spoke wise words when he said before a British audience, "we look to you and the representatives of your Colonial possessions now in London, to see that these returning Chinese bring nothing home with them but what will promote peace and good will between the two countries—no memories of suffering, injustice, or exceptional treatment." And we commend these words to the thoughtful consideration of the Conference.

In a vivid epoch in the history of your own great country, it was not so much the severance of the political tie which bound the American Colonies to the Mother Country, as the cruel heritage of strife that was left to rankle, causing sore grief to the wise men of both lands. But for this heritage it is possible that to-day they might have been so united by common feeling as to stand out to view as the arbitrators of the world. Notwithstanding the impassioned protests of a few splendid men the strife was entered on with a light heart by the ruling statesmen of the day, and though as yet we have had no Colonial Statesmen to protest against the injustice we have been subjected to, yet in this connection we are glad to admit that in our intercourse with the best class of Colonists we have found amongst them a feeling of repugnance at, and an utter detestation of, the treatment which our countrymen have received at the hands of the various Colonial Governments. We draw the moral from the American incident just referred to, that it is much easier to plant a thorn in the national feeling than to withdraw it, or heal the wound.

We affirm that the Chinese are a peaceable, industrious, and a law-abiding people, and that they are not insensible of, nor ungrateful for, the protection of wise laws justly administered. What they do complain of is —

1. That the laws have been strained and tortured to oppress them.
2. That the laws have even been broken to inflict harsh treatment and injustice.
3. That by the hasty and violent conduct of various Colonial Governments which should have held the scales of justice evenly balanced, the more ignorant portion of the population have been incited and encouraged to outrage the feelings and show contempt and hatred to our countrymen.

We

We think all this is bad and foolish for these reasons.

That a time may come, nay probably, will come sooner than is supposed, when the presence and power of China as a great nation will be felt in these seas, and it lies with you to say, as wise men or otherwise, if this is to be for good or for evil.

That injustice, inhumanity, and violence afford a poor foundation to build up the life of a young nation, and however popular in the meantime it may be with the unthinking multitude, yet we are most sure such weapons mean disaster in the future to the users.

The stringency of the laws at present regulating immigration from China effectually preclude many being added to the population even if it were much desired. We, however, do not hesitate to confidently affirm that were the ports open and free, the Chinese population of Australia would always remain an insignificant portion of the whole.

Finally, it is our belief that the matter your honorable Conference has in hand is weighty—no mere family quarrel, but one that touches most intimately international rights and obligations—dealing as it does with the stranger within your gates. It cannot be decided by a wave of the hand, nor by heated public orations.

The Supreme Court of one Colony has declared "it is not aware that such a course of conduct as has been pursued in reference to the Chinese has ever been adopted at any period of our history." Imperial Statesmen have counselled you that friendship with China was well worth purchasing at the cost of a little sacrifice. We trust, therefore, that for the sake of the two great countries whose interests are involved that the dictates of humanity and justice may rule your deliberations, and that you will be guided to remember that it is righteousness alone which exalteth a nation, but that sin is the reproach of any people.

We have the honor to remain your most obedient servants,

For and on behalf of the Committee of Chinese residents, Melbourne,

Chairman.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE CHINESE.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING CONFERENCE.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 May, 1888.

Telegram from The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Melbourne, 3 November, 1887.

Do you propose to legislate on Chinese question this Session; if so, can we come to an understanding on the subject as to proposals?

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 4 November, 1887.

In reference to the question of the settlement of Chinese in Australasia in its whole bearing upon the national development and permanent welfare of these communities, I have the honor to state for your information that in the opinion of this Government it would be a great advantage if all the Colonies could agree upon a measure of restriction, or perhaps, more correctly speaking, of practical prohibition, which should be framed on the same terms, and impose the same conditions. Although in the vast extent of Australian territory questions of climate and of the suitability of the soil for special industries must necessarily raise difficulties in the application of labour to productive capabilities much greater in some parts than in others, still the main subject cannot, I apprehend, be safely put aside by any Australian Government. And it seems to me that it can hardly be considered with satisfactory results, except in view of the better qualities rather than the worst characteristics of the Chinese,—their self-denial, plodding industry, persistency of purpose, and powers of imitation; and these striking individual qualities again in the light of the enormous numbers of the Chinese nation, their 400,000,000 to our less than 4,000,000 of souls.

2. I shall be glad to learn from you what the Government of Victoria may consider called for as an adequate basis of any new measure, with an earnest desire on the part of this Colony to co-operate with the other Colonies in the most effectual remedial legislation.

I have, &c.,
HENRY PARKES.

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Colonial Secretary, Queensland.
(Circular also to South Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand.)

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8 November, 1887.

I have the honor to invite your consideration to the expediency of new legislation in relation to the Chinese; and I enclose copies of correspondence which has already taken place between this Government and the Government of Victoria on the subject.

2. I do not myself join with those who are ever railing against the degraded character of the Chinese. It is on very different grounds that I consider their settlement in large numbers in the Australasian Colonies open to grave objection. For the soundest of political and social reasons it is inadvisable and fraught with serious evils to allow sharply-defined class distinctions to grow up in these Colonies, where the common elements of success—industry, good conduct, and perseverance—should leave the race of emulation open to all alike. I hold it to be a question of policy of the first magnitude to cement society together in Australia by the same principles of faith and jurisprudence, the same influences of language and learning, and the same national habits of daily life.

3. I shall be glad if you will inform me of the views of your Government on the general question, and of the provisions which you consider should be embodied in any new measure of restriction.

I have, &c.,
HENRY PARKES.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 19 November, 1887.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, relative to the question of the settlement of Chinese in Australasia, and to state that I quite agree with you in the obvious desirability of uniform action on this most important subject.

It appears, from the state of business in the several Colonial Parliaments that it is scarcely possible to deal with the matter during the Sessions now current. Indeed, in order to concerted action, it seems necessary that the Governments concerned should confer and exchange views as to the best course to adopt.

I hope soon to communicate with you on the subject, and, meanwhile, shall be very glad to learn your views.

Perhaps I may venture to direct your attention (in case it should not have been brought under your notice) to the valuable and most comprehensive report on the subject, by the Canadian Royal Commission, published in 1885.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,
Premier.

The Honorable P. O. Fysh, M.L.C., Tasmania, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Hobart, 25 November, 1887.

I have the honor to reply to your letter of the 8th instant, inviting my consideration to the expediency of new legislation in relation to the Chinese.

The question is one which has not hitherto so seriously affected Tasmania as some of the other Colonies, but the increasing number of Chinese immigrants to this Colony is beginning to attract attention, and has led, during this Session of Parliament, to the passing of a measure which imposes a poll-tax of £10 per head on each male Chinese arriving in the Colony.

With this measure it is anticipated that the Colony will be content for the present, that is in so far as its own immediate interests are concerned, but, in the broader view of our relations with the Australian Colonies, it might be considered desirable to act in concert with them, and so make the question one of general Colonial concern.

It appears to me to be a question that might well be referred to the Federal Council,—in which I hope the day is not far distant when New South Wales will be represented.

With you I do not join in the outcry against the Chinese, on the ground of their degraded character, for whatever their habits and vices may be, they are possibly the more offensive only because they are less cloaked than the evil habits and vices of our own people. Generally, they must be regarded as a law-abiding, industrious class, whose presence would not only be tolerated but courted, were it not that they are regarded by our labouring classes as undesirable competitors in the struggle for existence.

This latter view is that which will almost certainly be the actuating impulse towards legislation in regard to the Chinese. However selfish it may appear to cry "Our country for our own people," the cry is in accordance with the instincts of nations, and indeed is in accord with the sacred instincts of the family when "kith and kin" are sheltered to the exclusion of strangers. Nations and Colonies must be governed, and certainly where democracy exists will be governed so as to promote the prosperity of their own people, and an undue influx of foreigners who bring no capital but their labour will ever be regarded as prejudicial to the interests of those who have to compete with them in the labour market.

Absolute prohibition of Chinese immigration would perhaps be too extreme a measure for any of the Australian Colonies to adopt, but probably sufficient limitation would be placed upon it by levying a high poll-tax on each new arrival, an annual residence tax on each resident, and by the enforcement of stringent enactments regulating their social habits, sanitary arrangements, &c. In such a way the residence of a limited number of Chinese might contribute both to their advantage and our own.

In conclusion I may repeat my convictions that the question is one for the federal action of the Colonies, and that, unless it is undertaken in such a way, or at any rate in a federal spirit, it is unlikely that this Colony will be prepared to move further at present than has been authorized by the Legislature during the present Session.

I have, &c.,

CAN you give me any reply more definite than by your letter of the 19th to my letter of the 4th instant, respecting new legislation for protecting these Colonies from the influx of Chinese? I was anxious that we should act in concert on this question, but in view of information we have received of the probable arrival of a shipload of Chinese I feel that I cannot delay proceeding in the matter.

It occurs to the South Australian Ministry that in the present aspect of the Chinese question unity of action amongst all the Colonies of Australasia is most likely to satisfactorily effect our common purpose of restricting Chinese immigration. We think also that this unity can best be secured by a Conference of representatives of the different Governments when the matter might be fully discussed and a joint course agreed upon. We suggest therefore that such a Conference should be held with all possible despatch, and we shall be happy to make arrangements for the representation of this Government at such time and place as may be most convenient to all. We are addressing a similar communication to the other Australian Governments, and we are anxious to receive your early reply to our suggestion.

IF Conference on Chinese difficulty is held we think it should be limited to Colonies under Responsible Government, as such alone can act for themselves, and that each Government should be represented by two Members of Executive Council. We shall be very glad to act with other Colonies, but are prepared to act alone. Regret that, owing to pressure of Parliamentary business, Ministers cannot leave Sydney at present time.

WE have no definite information in respect to Conference on Chinese. It seems to me that the four Colonies of Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and New South Wales are the only Colonies where the question presses. This Government, in reply to telegram from Secretary of State, has to-day informed the Home Government that at all hazards we will prevent the landing of Chinese.

RE Chinese Conference we do not favour the exclusion of Western Australia, but rather consider that it would be of great importance, if possible, to secure her co-operation. We still await her reply. We have heard favourably from Victoria, New Zealand, and Queensland as to holding a Conference, and we are communicating with them suggesting that the Conference should meet in Sydney on the 19th June, and that each Colony should be represented by two members of the Executive. We have also intimated that we shall, if necessary, ask our Parliament to consent to a short adjournment. We shall be glad to hear that this will meet your views.

Re Chinese Conference, we suggested 19th June as the date of assembly, chiefly to meet what we judged would be the convenience of the New Zealand Government; if, however, New Zealand cannot be prevailed upon to adhere to her original decision, to be represented at the Conference, this would probably facilitate a much earlier meeting, say before the end of the present month. We feel most strongly that a Conference is essential to securing uniformity of Australasian action, both as regards domestic legislation and representations to the Home Government; and no doubt success will greatly depend upon this. Awaiting your early reply.

I HARDLY understand your term "original arrangement," in reference to the projected Conference. I was not aware that any arrangement had been arrived at. The position of this Government may be simply stated. Many months ago (on the 4th of November last) we invited the other Colonies to join in a common course of action on the Chinese question, but with no satisfactory result. When you proposed a Conference we at once gave our consent; though when, at a later date, you intimated that it should meet in the third week in June we expressed a fear that it would be of little use at so remote a date. We have now offered to concur in any arrangement for the Conference which you and Victoria may agree upon. Though we consider a joint representation to the Imperial Government the important thing, we never desired to impose any "limitation." In view of all that has been done, this Government will either join in the projected Conference or stand aside from it, just as you please.

Re Chinese Conference, we feel sure that a reference to the communications which have passed between us during the last ten days will remove all possibility of difficulty in understanding our reference to the original arrangement. We particularly invite your attention to our telegram of the 9th instant, and your reply of the same date concurring in the suggested Conference, and expressing your willingness to act with the other Australian Governments on the Chinese difficulty. A comparison of this reply with your telegram of the 17th instant, specifying the object of the Conference as the making of united representations to the Imperial Government, exhibits the force of our objections to the limitation of the original arrangement which is necessarily inferred on the terms of the latter telegram, considered in connection with your action in pushing on decisive legislation on a subject properly coming within the scope of the Conference. We would respectfully remind you that the 19th June was simply suggested as the date for holding the Conference, and was liable to alteration if desired; and it appears as if you had decided on the introduction of your Chinese Bill after the arrangement for the Conference, and before receipt of our suggestion as to date. We assure you most cordially that nothing would give greater pleasure not only to ourselves but also we believe to all Australia than that New South Wales should join in the proposed Conference; and we sincerely trust that she will be able to see her way to do this on the same footing as the rest of the Colonies. We transmit herewith copy of telegram just received from New Zealand, which you will note recognises the desirability of each Colony postponing decisive legislation pending the consideration of the whole question by the Conference, and paves the way for an early meeting:—"T. Playford, Wellington, 19th May,—Chinese we are anxious Conference should meet as early as possible, either Melbourne or Sydney, as we desire to legislate before the rising of present Session of Parliament.—H. A. ATKINSON."

As we have repeatedly said, this Government is prepared to join in conference on Chinese difficulty, but we cannot consent to discuss the matter with persons not responsible as members of the Executive Council. This is said because I notice that New Zealand has proposed such representatives. Looking to the circumstances of the past, the different degrees in which the question affects different colonies, and to the fact that several of the Australian Parliaments are not in session, we do not feel justified in delaying legislation here.

HIS Excellency the Governor has just received the following telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—"London, twenty-second of May,—Referring to your telegram of the 10th of May, there can be no doubt that Her Majesty's Government would obtain assistance from the Australian Colonies making a joint representation dealing with Chinese immigration question. If Conference meets Her Majesty's Government will be happy to telegraph, for consideration, the points for discussion which are important.—(Signed) KNUTSFORD." We are disposed to consider that an indication from the Imperial authorities of any points on which they specially desire an expression of the views of the Conference might be of considerable utility.

Re Chinese Conference, we have just heard from New Zealand desiring an early meeting, and expressing their willingness to send representatives at once. They, however, find it impossible to be represented by Ministers during session. We do not therefore propose to require that all members of Conference should be members of Executive. We shall be glad to hear if some time during the week after next would be agreeable to you for the meeting of Conference. We presume that in view of the early date now suggested, and of the other reasons to which we have invited your attention, you will not object to postpone the legislation now before your Parliament affecting the questions to be considered by Conference. LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY:
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CONFERENCE ON CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

(COPIES OF TELEGRAMS AND COPY OF DRAFT BILL AGREED UPON FOR UNIFORM LEGISLATION BY THE AUSTRALIAN PARLIAMENTS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 14 June, 1888.

[Circular.]

Telegram from Secretary of State to Sir W. C. F. Robinson, Governor of South Australia, to be forwarded to the Governors of the other Colonies.

REFERRING to your telegram of 22nd May, inform Conference Her Majesty's Government anxious to meet views of Australian Colonies with regard to limiting Chinese immigration, but measures adopted by New South Wales create obstacles to present negotiations with China. It is, therefore, important to ascertain whether, in substitution for legislation of a similar kind, other arrangements more in accordance with feeling and views of Chinese Government, and at the same time fully effective for the purpose of restricting Chinese immigration, may not be adopted. Having regard to political and commercial interests of Empire, and particularly to commercial interests of Australian Colonies, no avoidable obstacles should be placed in the way of trade which are likely to afford valuable market for products of Australian Colonies. Chinese Government specially objects to legislation for placing Chinese emigrants on different footing to subjects of any other power; and it seems desirable to consider whether laws and regulations equally restricting immigration into Colonies of all foreign labourers, with powers of relaxing regulations in special cases reserved to Governments, may not meet requirements of case. If thus placed on equal footing with other nations, Chinese Government, if it were still thought necessary, to come to an international arrangement, might be willing to accept conditions more or less of a similar kind to conditions laid down in Treaty concluded with United States of America, and limitation of numbers which would be permitted to embark for any of Australian Colonies. In any case it should be clearly understood that, while Her Majesty's Government will be prepared to consider any representations from Conference, they are not at present able to give any assurance that negotiations with Chinese Government can be opened, as it depends on nature of proposals to be made to that Government; but I confidently believe that Conference will endeavour to conciliate susceptibilities of Chinese Government as far as possible.

KNUTSFORD.

Cablegram to Secretary of State.

AT the Australasian Conference, held in Sydney on the 12th, 13th, and 14th inst., at which the Colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania, and Western Australia were represented, the question of Chinese Immigration, and your cablegram to the Governor of South Australia in connection therewith, were fully considered.

The Members of the Conference are sensible of the wish of Her Majesty's Government to meet the views of the Colonies, and have specially deliberated upon the possibility of securing legislation which, while effective, should be of a character so far as possible in accordance with the feeling and views of the Chinese Government. They have not overlooked the political and commercial interests of the Empire, nor the commercial interests of the Colonies.

In 1886 the total exports to China from New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania were valued at £16,000, out of a total export trade amounting to £38,700,000. Our imports from China in the same year were valued at £846,000. While the custom of the Colonies, therefore, is very valuable to China, that country offers no present outlet of importance for Australasian trade. There has never been any attempt on the part of any of the Colonies to close their markets to the exports of the Chinese Empire, although most, if not all of them, are now produced in great quantities in the British Empire of India.

The

The suggestion that any restrictions which are to be imposed should be of a general nature, so as to give power to exclude European or American immigrants, has been very carefully deliberated upon, but no scheme for giving effect to it has been found practicable.

As the length of time to be occupied in negotiations between the Imperial Government and the Government of China is uncertain, and as the Colonies in the meantime have reason to dread a large influx from China, the several Governments feel impelled to legislate immediately to protect their citizens against an invasion which is dreaded because of its results, not only upon the labor market but upon the social and moral condition of the people.

At the same time the Conference is most anxious that Her Majesty's Government should enter into communication with the Government of China, with a view to obtaining as soon as possible a treaty under which all Chinese, except officials, travellers, merchants, students, and similar classes, should be entirely excluded from the Australasian Colonies. By way of assisting to bring about such an understanding, the Conference has recommended the abolition of the poll-tax now levied upon Chinese immigrants. While believing that the local legislation now proposed will accomplish its object, the Colonies would prefer that the exclusion of the Chinese should be brought about by international agreement of a friendly nature as in the case of the United States.

The Conference further desires that Her Majesty's Government should induce the Governments of the Crown Colonies of Hongkong, Straits Settlements, and Labuan, to at once prohibit the emigration of all Chinese to the Australasian Colonies unless they should belong to the classes above mentioned. The Chinese who may claim to be considered British subjects in those Colonies are very numerous, and the certainty that their migration hither was prevented would give great and general satisfaction.

The resolutions arrived at by the Conference, and which have been embodied in a draft Bill, are as follows:—

- "1. That in the opinion of this Conference the further restriction of Chinese immigration is essential to the welfare of the people of Australasia.
- "2. That this Conference is of opinion that the necessary restriction can best be secured through the diplomatic action of the Imperial Government, and by uniform Australasian legislation.
- "3. That this Conference resolves to consider a joint representation to the Imperial Government for the purpose of obtaining the desired diplomatic action.
- "4. That this Conference is of opinion that the desired Australasian legislation should contain the following provisions:—
 - "1. That it shall apply to all Chinese, with specified exceptions.
 - "2. That the restriction should be by limitation of the number of Chinese which any vessel may bring into any Australasian port to one passenger to every 500 tons of the ship's burthen.
 - "3. That the passage of Chinese from one Colony to another without consent of the Colony which they enter be made a misdemeanour."

The first and fourth resolutions were endorsed by all the Colonies except Tasmania, who dissented and Western Australia who did not vote, while the second and third were carried unanimously. As a whole, therefore, they faithfully represent the opinion of the Parliaments and peoples of Australia.

In conclusion, the Conference would call attention to the fact that the treatment of Chinese in the Australasian Colonies has been invariably humane and considerate, and that in spite of the intensity of popular feeling, during the recent sudden influx, good order has been everywhere maintained. In so serious a crisis the Colonial Governments have felt called upon to take strong and decisive action to protect their peoples, but in so doing they have been studious of Imperial interests, of International obligations, and of their reputation as law-abiding communities. They now confidently rely upon the support and assistance of Her Majesty's Government in their endeavour to prevent their country from being overrun by an alien race who are incapable of assimilation in the body politic, strangers to our civilization, out of sympathy with our aspirations, and unfitted for our free institutions, to which their presence in any number would be a source of constant danger.

HENRY PARKES,
President.

51^o VICTORIÆ, 1888.

A BILL

For the Restriction of Chinese Immigration.

WHEREAS at a meeting of representatives of Australasian Preamble. Governments, held at Sydney in the month of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, it was amongst other things resolved that it was desirable that uniform Australasian legislation should be adopted for the restriction of Chinese immigration: And whereas the provisions of this Act were approved by such representatives as the basis of such uniform legislation: And whereas it is desirable to legislate on such basis accordingly: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly of New South Wales in Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1. In the construction of this Act the following words shall Interpretation. have the following meanings:—

“Chinese” shall include every person of Chinese race not exempted from the provisions of this Act.

“Vessel” shall include every ship, boat, or vessel.

“Master” shall include every person, other than a pilot, for the time being in command or charge of any vessel.

2.

*Chinese Immigration Restriction.Exemptions.

2. This Act shall not apply—

- (i) To any person duly accredited to any Australasian Colony by any Government, as its representative, or on any special mission.
- (ii) To the crew of any vessel not being discharged therefrom in the Colony, and not landing in the Colony, except in the discharge of duties in connection with such vessel.
- (iii) To any persons, or any class of persons, who shall for the time being be exempted from the provisions hereof.

Power to declare exemptions.

3. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council from time to time, by proclamation to be published in the Government Gazette, to declare that the provisions of this Act shall not apply to any person or any class of persons to be mentioned in such proclamation, either generally or for any time to be fixed by such proclamation, and any such proclamation may be revoked by the Governor in Council by proclamation to be published in the Government Gazette.

Master, on arrival, to report Chinese on board.

4. The master of every vessel, upon arrival at any port or place in this Colony from parts beyond the Colony, and having any Chinese on board, shall forthwith, and before making any entry at the Customs, deliver to the Collector or other principal officer of Customs at such port or place a statement specifying to the best of his knowledge and means of information, the number of Chinese on board such vessel, and the places of shipment and destination, and the name, calling, or occupation of each such Chinese. And for any default in the observance of this section such master shall on conviction be liable to a penalty of one hundred pounds.

No vessel to bring more than one Chinese passenger for every 500 tons burthen.

5. No vessel shall enter any port or place in the Colony having on board a greater number of Chinese than in the proportion of one Chinese to every five hundred tons of the tonnage of such vessel, such tonnage to be ascertained if the vessel shall be British by her certificate of registry, and if otherwise, or if such certificate shall not be produced, then according to the rules of measurement provided by the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1854." And if any vessel shall enter any port or place in the Colony, having on board any Chinese in excess of such number, the owner, master, or charterer of such vessel shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty of five hundred pounds for each Chinese in excess of such number.

Penalty on entry by land without permit.

6. Any Chinese who shall enter this Colony by land without first obtaining a permit in writing from some person to be appointed by the Governor in Council, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable on conviction to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six calendar months, and in addition or substitution for any such imprisonment shall be liable, pursuant to any warrant or order of the Magistrate or Justices by whom he shall be convicted, to be removed or deported to the Colony from whence he shall have come.

Appropriation of penalties and payments under Act.

7. All penalties and all moneys ordered to be paid or being the proceeds of any sale made under the authority of this Act shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue.

Evidence of person being a Chinese.

8. For the purposes of all proceedings under this Act, the Stipendiary or Police Magistrate or the Justices may decide, upon his or their own view and judgment, whether any person produced before them is a Chinese within the meaning of this Act.

Provision against evading Act by transhipping Chinese into other vessels.

9. Any vessel on board which Chinese shall be transhipped from another vessel and be brought to any port or place in this Colony shall be deemed to be a vessel bringing Chinese into the said Colony from parts beyond the said Colony, and shall be subject to the provisions of this Act.

Chinese Immigration Restriction.

10. The Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, may make regulations for carrying out the provisions of this Act. A copy of such regulations shall, within fourteen days, be laid before both Houses of Parliament, if Parliament be then in Session, and if not then in Session, within fourteen days after the commencement of the next Session; and if disapproval of such regulations is not expressed by resolution within fourteen days thereafter, they shall have the force of law. Power to make regulations.

11. All penalties and sums of money recoverable under this Act shall be recovered in a summary way at the suit of some officer of Customs authorized by the Colonial Treasurer, or of other officers appointed for such purpose, by like authority before any Stipendiary or Police Magistrate or two or more Justices of the Peace, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts regulating proceedings on summary conviction. And it shall be lawful for the Colonial Treasurer, by writing under his hand, to authorize any officer to detain any vessel, the master whereof shall, in the opinion of the said Treasurer, have committed an offence, or be a defaulter under this Act. Such detention may be either at the port or place where such vessel is found, or at any port or place to which the said Treasurer may order such vessel to be brought. For the purposes of such detention the officer so authorized shall be entitled to obtain in the customary manner such writ of assistance or other aid and assistance in and about the detention of or other lawful dealing with such vessel as are by law provided under the Act or Acts regulating Customs with reference to seizure of vessels or goods. But such detention shall be for safe custody only, and shall cease and be discontinued if a bond with two sufficient sureties be given by such master for the payment of the amount of such penalty and other sums as may be adjudged to be paid under the provisions of this Act: Provided that if default be made in payment of any such penalty incurred by such master in terms of any conviction adjudging the payment thereof it shall be lawful for such officer to seize such vessel and for him and any other officer or person duly authorized or empowered in that behalf to take all such proceedings for the purpose of procuring the condemnation and sale of such vessel as are provided by law in case of condemnation or forfeiture of a vessel for a breach of the Customs Laws of the said Colony: Provided that the proceeds of sale of any such vessel shall be paid into the Consolidated Revenue, and after payment of the amount of such penalty and of all costs incurred in and about such sale and the proceedings leading thereto, the balance shall be placed by the Colonial Treasurer to a trust account and be held in trust for the owners of or other persons lawfully entitled to the vessel so condemned and sold. Penalties how recovered.

12. No poll-tax shall hereafter be taken or demanded from in respect of any Chinese. Abolition of poll-tax.

13. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the "Chinese Immigration Restriction Act, 1888." Short title.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

INFLUX OF CHINESE.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 November, 1887.

Telegram from The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Melbourne, 3 November, 1887.

Do you propose to legislate on Chinese question this Session; if so, can we come to an understanding on the subject as to proposals?

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 4 November, 1887.

In reference to the question of the settlement of Chinese in Australasia in its whole bearing upon the national development and permanent welfare of these communities, I have the honor to state for your information that in the opinion of this Government it would be a great advantage if all the Colonies could agree upon a measure of restriction, or perhaps, more correctly speaking, of practical prohibition, which should be framed on the same terms, and impose the same conditions. Although in the vast extent of Australian territory questions of climate and of the suitability of the soil for special industries must necessarily raise difficulties in the application of labour to productive capabilities much greater in some parts than in others, still the main subject cannot, I apprehend, be safely put aside by any Australian Government. And it seems to me that it can hardly be considered with satisfactory results, except in view of the better qualities rather than the worst characteristics of the Chinese,—their self-denial, plodding industry, persistency of purpose, and powers of imitation; and these striking individual qualities again in the light of the enormous numbers of the Chinese nation, their 400,000,000 to our less than 4,000,000 of souls.

2. I shall be glad to learn from you what the Government of Victoria may consider called for as an adequate basis of any new measure, with an earnest desire on the part of this Colony to co-operate with the other Colonies in the most effectual remedial legislation.

I have, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8 November, 1887.

I have the honor to invite your consideration to the expediency of new legislation in relation to the Chinese; and I enclose copies of correspondence which has already taken place between this Government and the Government of Victoria on the subject.

2. I do not myself join with those who are ever railing against the degraded character of the Chinese. It is on very different grounds that I consider their settlement in large numbers in the Australasian Colonies open to grave objection. For the soundest of political and social reasons it is inadvisable and fraught with serious evils to allow sharply-defined class distinctions to grow up in these colonies, where the common elements of success—industry, good conduct, and perseverance—should leave the race of emulation open to all alike. I hold it to be a question of policy of the first magnitude to cement society together in Australia by the same principles of faith and jurisprudence, the same influences of language and learning, and the same national habits of daily life.

3. I shall be glad if you will inform me of the views of your Government on the general question, and of the provisions which you consider should be embodied in any new measure of restriction.

I have, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 19 November, 1887.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, relative to the question of the settlement of Chinese in Australasia, and to state that I quite agree with you in the obvious desirability of uniform action on this most important subject.

It appears, from the state of business in the several Colonial Parliaments that it is scarcely possible to deal with the matter during the Sessions now current. Indeed, in order to concerted action, it seems necessary that the Governments concerned should confer and exchange views as to the best course to adopt.

I hope soon to communicate with you on the subject, and, meanwhile, shall be very glad to learn your views.

Perhaps I may venture to direct your attention (in case it should not have been brought under your notice) to the valuable and most comprehensive report on the subject, by the Canadian Royal Commission, published in 1885.

I have, &c.,
D. GILLIES,
Premier.

The Honorable P. O. Fysh, M.L.C., Tasmania, to The Colonial Secretary,
New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Hobart, 25 November, 1887.

I have the honor to reply to your letter of the 8th instant, inviting my consideration to the expediency of new legislation in relation to the Chinese.

The question is one which has not hitherto so seriously affected Tasmania as some of the other Colonies, but the increasing number of Chinese immigrants to this Colony is beginning to attract attention, and has led, during this Session of Parliament, to the passing of a measure which imposes a poll-tax of £10 per head on each male Chinese arriving in the Colony.

With this measure it is anticipated that the Colony will be content for the present, that is in so far as its own immediate interests are concerned, but, in the broader view of our relations with the Australian Colonies, it might be considered desirable to act in concert with them, and so make the question one of general Colonial concern.

It appears to me to be a question that might well be referred to the Federal Council,—in which I hope the day is not far distant when New South Wales will be represented.

With you, I do not join in the outcry against the Chinese on the ground of their degraded character, for whatever their habits and vices may be, they are possibly the more offensive only because they are less cloaked than the evil habits and vices of our own people. Generally, they must be regarded as a law-abiding, industrious, class, whose presence would not only be tolerated but courted, were it not that they are regarded by our labouring classes as undesirable competitors in the struggle for existence.

This latter view is that which will almost certainly be the actuating impulse towards legislation in regard to the Chinese. However selfish it may appear to cry "Our country for our own people," the cry is in accordance with the instincts of nations, and indeed is in accord with the sacred instincts of the family when "kith and kin" are sheltered to the exclusion of strangers. Nations and Colonies must be governed, and certainly where democracy exists will be governed so as to promote the prosperity of their own people, and an undue influx of foreigners who bring no capital but their labour will ever be regarded as prejudicial to the interests of those who have to compete with them in the labour market.

Absolute prohibition of Chinese immigration would perhaps be too extreme a measure for any of the Australian Colonies to adopt, but probably sufficient limitation would be placed upon it by levying a high poll-tax on each new arrival, an annual residence tax on each resident, and by the enforcement of stringent enactments regulating their social habits, sanitary arrangements, &c. In such a way the residence of a limited number of Chinese might contribute both to their advantage and our own.

In conclusion I may repeat my convictions that the question is one for the federal action of the Colonies, and that, unless it is undertaken in such a way, or at any rate in a federal spirit, it is unlikely that this Colony will be prepared to move further at present than has been authorized by the Legislature during the present Session.

I have, &c.,
P. O. FYSH.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

INFLUX OF CHINESE.
(FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 10 April, 1888.

The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria, to The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales.

Sir,

Premier's Office, Melbourne, 22 March, 1888.

Referring to previous correspondence respecting the immigration of Chinese to Australia, I beg to draw your attention to an aspect of the question which, it appears to me, requires to be borne in mind when considering the nature of the measures to be taken.

With regard to limiting—even to prohibition—the influx of Chinese, I assume that the Australian Governments are in accord; but the question arises whether local legislation by the several Colonies is after all the most satisfactory, or even the most efficient means to be employed.

I desire to submit to your consideration that it is quite possible that the influence of Her Majesty's Government with that of the Emperor of China might effect more, and perhaps in a more convenient manner, than drastic measures adopted here.

It can hardly be supposed that in a nation like China, which numbers its population by hundreds of millions, its Government can really regard with very much concern the question whether or not a few thousands depart for Australia. On the contrary, the interest of that Government would probably be to retain rather than to lose its population.

And if this be so, it must be easily within the power of the Queen's Government—in its multifarious dealings with the Government of China—to find a means and an occasion of stipulating—possibly in exchange for some small concession (such as has been recently sought in Burmah)—that the Emperor should prohibit emigration to Australian ports.

Thus might be accomplished, inoffensively, through the means of diplomacy, all that we desire, while legislative measures of sufficient stringency to effect our purpose might engender an international bitterness which, sooner or later, might find means to express itself. From a merely utilitarian point of view this is to be deprecated.

There are two important points which should not be lost sight of in dealing with this aspect of the matter, namely—the comparative proximity of the Chinese Empire to Australia, and its power to pour down upon our land vast hordes of its people.

If then our object can be equally well accomplished by means of friendly representations through Her Majesty's Government, it would seem in every point of view desirable to take that course. The consideration of this view is the more important from the fact of representations having been made on this subject (in the form of a despatch) by the Chinese Minister, in London, to Lord Salisbury, so lately as December last, copy of which has just been received here.

Indeed, the line of action which I suggest is that which appears, in the last resort, to have been adopted by the United States of America, as a telegram which lately appeared in the newspapers states that:—

“A Treaty has been signed by the Chinese Minister at Washington, Chang Yen Hcon, and Mr. Bayard, the Secretary of State for the United States, by which Chinese labourers are forbidden from entering America.”

If you concur in the view I have put forward, I shall be glad to know in what way you think we should proceed. I would suggest a memorandum through the Governor to the Secretary of State.

I have, &c.,

D. GILLIES,

Premier.

Telegram from The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sydney, 30 March, 1888.

REPLY to your Despatch of 22nd, on subject of Chinese, will be sent to-morrow.

The Colonial Secretary, New South Wales, to The Honorable Duncan Gillies, M.P., Victoria.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 30 March, 1888.

In reply to your letter of the 22nd instant, on the subject of Chinese immigration, I desire to say that the receipt of the despatch from the Secretary of State, covering copy of the note of the Chinese Minister in London, addressed to Lord Salisbury, and at the same time the knowledge received through the public press of the reported Treaty made between the Government of the United States and the Government of China, suggested to me the precise course which you now submit for my consideration.

There can be no doubt whatever that we have a just ground for appealing to the Imperial Government to take up the great contention of these Australian Colonies against the continued influx of Chinese labourers. If we are part of the Empire, as self-governed Colonies excluded from all participation in the making of Treaties, we have an indisputable right to expect the Imperial Government to consult and protect our separate and peculiar interests in this matter (which does not reach Her Majesty's subjects in Great Britain) by the exercise of the powers of Treaty on our behalf. As you point out, all the inconvenient and possibly exasperating consequences of legislation by different Australian Parliaments would be avoided by the Empire in its highest capacity dealing with the subject.

Entertaining this view of the question at this stage of its development, with which I am very glad to learn that your Government are in accord, I incline to the opinion that it would be best for each Australian Government to act separately in communicating its views to Her Majesty's Imperial Advisers, though it would, of course, be advisable that their action should be as nearly simultaneous as practicable.

I have, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

Telegram sent by His Excellency the Governor to The Secretary of State.

31 March, 1888.

IN reference to Chinese immigration and the inquiry made by the Marquis of Salisbury, your Excellency's advisers beg briefly to explain that the law of this Colony for some years past has imposed the restrictions of a poll-tax of £10 on each immigrant, and a limitation of one immigrant to every 100 tons of the ship's burden; but owing to recent occurrences severer measures are now demanded throughout all the Colonies. This state of things has given rise to new reflections in dealing with a difficulty which threatens to become a calamity. As these Colonies form an important part of the Empire, it is submitted that our cause of contention is of sufficient national concern to be taken up by the Empire; if we have no voice in the making of Treaties, it seems only just that our interests should be considered and protected by those who exercise that power. We learn by public report that the Government of the United States has entered into a Treaty with the Government of China by which Chinese immigration into America is no longer permitted. We fail to see why Australia may not be similarly protected. We desire, on behalf of this Colony, through your Excellency, to impress upon Her Majesty's Imperial Advisers the more prominent phases of the Chinese question as it specially and almost exclusively affects the Australian section of the British people. (1.) The Australian ports are within easy sail of the ports of China. (2.) The climate as well as certain branches of trade and industry in Australia, such as the cultivation of the soil for domestic purposes, and tin and gold mining, are peculiarly attractive to the Chinese. (3.) The working classes of the British people in all the affinities of race are directly opposed to their Chinese competitors. (4.) There can be no sympathy, and in the future it is to be apprehended that there will be no peace between the two races. (5.) The enormous number of the Chinese population intensifies every consideration of this class of immigration in comparison with the emigration of any other nation. (6.) The most prevailing determination in all the Australian communities is to preserve the British type in the population. (7.) There can be no interchange of ideas of religion or citizenship, nor can there be intermarriage or social communion between the British and Chinese. It is respectfully submitted that the examination of these principal phases of the question can only lead to one conclusion, namely, that the Chinese must be restricted from emigrating to any part of Australasia. It will be seen that, while the question scarcely touches the people of the United Kingdom, it vitally concerns these great Colonies, whose importance in their political and commercial relations entitles them to be protected by the diplomatic influence and the powers of Treaty which belong to the Empire. With renewed expressions of our loyal attachment to Her Majesty, we urge that immediate steps be taken to open such negotiations with the Emperor of China as will result in permanent security to the Australian Colonies from the disturbance of Chinese immigration in any form. The matter is too grave and urgent to admit of long delay. However desirable it may be to avoid the irritation and conflict of interests which may arise from local legislation of a drastic character, if protection cannot be afforded as now sought, the Australian Parliaments must act from the force of public opinion in devising measures to defend the Colonies from consequences which they cannot relax in their efforts to avert.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 3 April, 1888.

In reference to the Chinese difficulty, and the circular letter of the 22nd ult. on the subject from the Government of Victoria, I have the honor to enclose for your information a copy of my reply to Mr. Gillies, and also copy of the cable message of this Government, transmitted to the Secretary of State on the 31st., urging that the contention of these Colonies against the continued influx of Chinese may be taken up as a national question by the Imperial Government.

I hope your Government will concur in the views of Victoria and this Colony, and make a similar representation to Her Majesty's Imperial Government.

I have, &c.,

HENRY PARKES.

Re Chinamen in New Caledonia.

DETECTIVE ROCHAIX reports that he has been informed by a Mr. Dumins, who was for twenty-seven months assistant to Drs. Trequies, Offret, Caillot, and Hancur, who were within the last three years medical officers for the Nickel Company at New Caledonia, that about 200 Chinamen, now employed by the above Company, will terminate their engagements of three years with the Company on the 31st of December, 1887, and will probably come to Sydney. These Chinamen were engaged by Mr. Higinson, then Director of that Company, who brought them from Singapore about three years ago. It is to these Chinese that the introduction of the fever "dégue" in New Caledonia is attributed.

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 16 May, 1888.

My dear Sir,

Reform Club, Sydney, 16 May, 1888.

Will you oblige me by obtaining the following information, to enable you to answer a question without notice, which I will put you to-day when the House meets, and before proceeding with the Chinese Bill. I should like to know,—

1. The number of Chinese which have arrived in this port in the steamers "Guthrie," "Menmuir," "Afghan," and "Tsinan," specifying the number in each ship.
2. The number holding bonâ fide permits.
3. The number holding permits for which they cannot be identified.
4. The number holding bonâ fide letters of naturalisation as British subjects.
5. Those who possess letters of naturalisation improperly.
6. The number in the case of each ship, excluding crews, letters of naturalization and permits in excess, if any, of the tonnage allowance. Also I should be glad to have a perfect copy, duly stamped of the form of permit issued from the port.

I need not say that I require this information, not for reasons other than to enable the House fully to comprehend the Chinese question which, I admit, is a complicated one.

Yours, &c.,

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

INFLUX OF CHINESE RESTRICTION ACT.

(REMISSION OF PORTION OF FINE IMPOSED UPON MASTER OF SHIP "CHELYDRA," AND REFUND TO AGENTS OF POLL-TAX ON TEN CHINESE.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 21 June, 1888.

No. 1.

Minute Paper for the Executive Council.Subject:—Influx of Chinese Restriction Act.—Remission of a portion of the fine imposed upon the master of the ship "Chelydra," and refund to the agents of the Poll-tax on ten Chinese.

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 23 June, 1887.

THE Colonial Treasurer submits, for the consideration of His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, the remission of a sum of £900 of the penalty of £1,000 imposed upon the master of the ship "Chelydra," under section 3 of the "Influx of Chinese Restriction Act," for illegally landing ten Chinese in excess of the number allowed by the tonnage clause.

In view of the fact that satisfactory evidence has been produced that the said ten Chinese were subsequently shipped beyond the limits of the Colony, and that the infringement of the law arose through inadvertence and ignorance on the part of a clerk of the agents of the ship, and that on being made acquainted with the position of matters, they did all they could to assist the Collector of Customs in vindicating the law, he recommends that £900 (nine hundred pounds) of the fine be remitted, and that the poll-tax of £10 each received from the agents be refunded.

J. F. BURNS.

The Executive Council advise, under the circumstances herein set forth, that authority be granted for the remission of £900 of the fine imposed upon the master of the ship referred to, for a breach of the Act specified. 2. The Council also advise that the Poll-tax received from the agents be refunded.—ALEX. C. BUDGE, Clerk of the Council.

Approved.—CARRINGTON, 28/6/87. Min. 87-39, 28/6/87. Confirmed, 5/7/87.

No. 2.

Memo. from The Collector of Customs to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Custom House, Sydney, 18 June, 1887.

THE master of the "Chelydra" was fined under section 3 of the "Influx of Chinese Restriction Act," for illegally landing ten Chinese in excess of the number allowed by the tonnage clause.

The captain produced an order from his agents (Messrs. Burns, Philp, & Co.) directing him to land the Chinese.

Messrs. Burns, Philp, & Co., by their managing clerk, accept the responsibility of their Act.

Mr. Waley, the clerk in question, believed that the law would allow of the Chinese landing in Sydney on payment of the poll-tax.

I felt it necessary to prosecute, and I have in my possession Messrs. Burns, Philp, & Co.'s cheque for the penalty inflicted, viz., £1,000.

I have also a deposit of £100, being the poll-tax payable for the ten Chinese illegally landed.

I quite believe that the action of Mr. Waley, on behalf of his employers, was the result of a misunderstanding. It is, however, in my opinion, necessary to administer the "Influx of Chinese Restriction Act" rigidly.

This is the first occasion since the passing of the Act (6th December, 1881) that I have found it requisite to sue for penalties.

I beg to recommend for the favourable consideration of the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer—the Chinese having left the Colony—that the petition signed by Mr. Waley, praying for relief, be entertained.

I venture to suggest that, under all the circumstances, the poll-tax paid on the Chinese be remitted, and that the penalty of one thousand pounds be reduced by nine hundred pounds.

JAMES POWELL,
Collector of Customs.

No. 3.

Mr. F. Waley to The Colonial Treasurer.

10, Bridge-street.

Sir,

I have the honor to report having paid, on behalf of Burns, Philp, & Co. (Limited), to Mr. James Powell, Collector of Customs, the sum of £1,000 sterling, being the amount of a fine imposed upon Captain Peace, of the steamship "Chelydra" (for which vessel we are acting as agents), for having landed ten more Chinese passengers than by law he was allowed to do; and I venture to lay before you the whole of the facts in the hope that with your advice and consent the Executive Council may see fit to remit this penalty, or to deal with the offence in a lenient way, the penalty inflicted being the full amount prescribed by law.

I may say that I have charge of the over-sea and foreign shipping of Burns, Philp & Co. (Limited), and among other lines have control of the Gibbs' line of steamers, trading between China and Australia, of which line the steamer "Chelydra" was a part.

She is a vessel of 1,574 tons net register, and arrived at Sydney on 25th May with a large number of exempt and naturalised Chinese for all ports, including 12 for Adelaide. She transhipped her Melbourne cargo and passengers here, as well as passengers for Launceston, New Zealand, &c., and loaded coals for Shanghai. When the time came to tranship the Adelaide passengers it was found that although the men were not free of poll-tax there, they were not prepared to pay it, nor could they find friends there to do so for them with the exception of two men who paid us £20, and went to Adelaide per "Koonowarra." The fact of poll-tax not having been provided for arose through an error in China, where it was believed that as there was no poll-tax in the Northern Territory of South Australia, Adelaide came under the same law.

On finding the men could not pay the tax, we declined to tranship them, and threatened to send them back to China unless the tax were forthcoming, which it was intended to do, and the men were kept on board.

On the afternoon of Monday, 6th instant, Mr. See On, of the firm of On Chong & Co., a highly respectable firm of Chinese merchants, offered to pay £6 a head towards the poll-tax, if we would bear the other £4 per head, and added that the men would be willing to stay in Sydney, which would save us the expense of sending them on to Adelaide.

Our loss per man would thus be only £2 10s. per head, as the steerage fare to Adelaide, which we should have saved, was £1 10s. per head; and as it would have cost £4 each to feed them on the way back to China, we agreed to Mr. See On's proposal. The same afternoon I saw See On, who sent us his cheque for the £60, and I came back to the office, and signed a note instructing the captain of the steamer to allow the ten Adelaide passengers to come ashore. I sent a clerk down to the tug office, and sent off a steam-tug with instructions to bring the men ashore and land them on the A.S.N. Co.'s wharf.

As the steamer was to have left the next day (yesterday), and would have done so but for this trouble, we got the men ashore at once, our note to the captain reading thus:—

Dear Sir,—We have arranged to allow the ten passengers for Adelaide to land here on payment of £6 per head, which will be paid to us by Messrs. On Chong & Co. You may therefore allow them to go ashore in the launch with the bearer. The remaining two Adelaide passengers go on to Adelaide, the full amount of their poll-tax having been paid to us.

Yours, &c.,
BURNS, PHILP, & CO. (Limited.)

In pursuance with these instructions, Captain Peace placed the ten men and their baggage in the launch, and they were duly landed on the A.S.N. Co.'s wharf.

It was not till the next day that I was aware that any breach of the law had been committed. I was aware that we should have to pay £10 a head poll-tax, as already explained, but was quite in ignorance as to the serious breach of the Act which had been committed through my instructions to the captain.

As soon as I did find out what trouble we were in, I saw Mr. James Powell, Collector of Customs, and after explaining the foregoing circumstances to him, I asked his advice. Mr. Powell said that the law distinctly compelled him to prosecute, and I then stated that I would personally, and on behalf of my firm and the captain, give him every possible assistance, and assured him, as I now have the honor to assure you, that I acted in perfect good faith, openly and honorably, without any intention to break the law, but in unfortunate ignorance of it; and although I am aware this is no excuse, still, I hope it may plead as an extenuating circumstance.

The prosecution came off; the captain, by our instructions, pleaded guilty, and we were neither defended nor represented by counsel, as we were only wishful to rely on the clemency of the Executive, not having any defence to make.

I now have the honor to solicit through you that clemency which I hope you will be good enough to use your great influence with the Executive to see extended to me.

I am a young man, not very long in the Colony, and not thoroughly up in the law relating to the immigration of Chinese.

My mistake has caused my firm a very serious pecuniary loss, for which I am entirely to blame.

My firm is well known as a house incapable of any attempt at deceit or fraud, and I venture to assert that my dealings as representing them have been in every case of a similar description.

When I found out a breach of the law had been committed I did all in my power to help the Collector of Customs to a just decision, and to a speedy and satisfactory verdict and settlement, and neither concealed nor extenuated anything.

On all of which grounds I again venture to express the hope that the law having been vindicated you may be able to see your way to advise the Executive to remit the fine.

I have, &c.,

FREDK. WALEY.

I may add that the ten men landed can be found at any moment, being in the store of On Chong & Co. They have this day (9th June) been identified to the satisfaction of the Custom House officials and Mr. James Powell, and they will be reshipped to Adelaide on Tuesday next by Messrs. Howard Smith & Sons steamer. As this will bring the number added to the Chinese population to that allowed by law for the steamer, I venture to hope that this will be looked upon by you as another strong reason for not enforcing the fine imposed for landing these ten men.

No. 4.
Mr. F. Waley to The Collector of Customs.
Chinese ex "Chelydra."

Sir,

Sydney, 17 June, 1887.

I have the honor to enclose,—

1. Declaration of identity of ten Chinese for Adelaide, landed ex "Chelydra," and boarding at the house of On Chong & Co., sworn to by Ah Too, interpreter, before Mr. See On and myself; and
2. Mr. See On's declaration that the men are the same men who came to his house ex "Chelydra."
3. Declaration by Inspector M'Monnies as to identity of the men; and, lastly,
4. The same Inspector's certificate that these ten men were duly forwarded to Adelaide by the steamship "Gambier" on the 14th instant.

I therefore, on behalf of Messrs. Burns, Philp, & Co., beg to apply for a refund of poll-tax deposited by us, as the men have been transhipped in regular course, and poll-tax will be paid in Adelaide, and has already been paid by us to the owners of the on-carrying steamer (Messrs. Howard Smith & Sons).

The ten men having been exported, and the law strictly complied with, I venture to hope that you will use your influence to help us to obtain remission of the fine imposed on us, as no more men have now been landed than the law permits. And we can assure you that no breach of any of the regulations shall occur in future.

We shall in any case be the losers of £100, as we have had to pay the Adelaide poll-tax, and have returned to On Chong & Co. the £60 paid by them towards this sum, as the men have been reshipped.

I have, &c.,

FREDK. WALEY.

The ten Chinese staying at On Chong & Co.'s store, to the best of my belief, are the ones landed from the s.s. "Chelydra" on night of the 6th inst., for two reasons:—

1st. I examined them separately, and found that they agreed with the description given on their passage tickets. I also asked them a few questions about the ship and voyage, which they all answered to my satisfaction.

2nd. To me they had every appearance of new arrivals by their colour, dress, and not being able to speak a little English.

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies to His Excellency the Governor.

New South Wales, No. 50.

My Lord,

Downing-street, 10 May, 1888.

I have the honor to transmit to you, for communication to your Government, the accompanying extract, which has been reprinted from the New York Tribune of the 28th March last, purporting to give the text of the recent treaty concluded between the Government of China and that of the United States on the subject of Chinese immigration, together with explanatory letters from the President of the United States and Mr. Bayard.

In view of the occasional references to this treaty in official and in Press telegrams from Australia, I think it right to lose no time in forwarding to you (in the absence of the authentic text) the newspaper account of its provisions, to which, of course, no official character will be attached.

A New Treaty with China.

Full text of Mr. Bayard's recent Diplomatic effort.

Restriction which does not restrict—Property qualification clause and damages to be paid—Mr. Bayard's explanatory letter.

[By telegraph to the Tribune.]

Washington, 27 March.

THE new Chinese treaty recently concluded in this city by Secretary Bayard and Chang Yen Hoon, the Chinese Minister, together with the letter of the President transmitting the treaty, and an explanatory letter of Secretary Bayard to the Senate, is herewith given in full. The injunction of secrecy has not yet been removed from the treaty by the Senate, but that may be done at some future time. The Senate never hurries undignifiedly in such matters. The full text of the treaty is as follows:—

Whereas, on the 17th day of November, A.D. 1880, a treaty was concluded between the United States and China for the purpose of regulating, limiting, or suspending the coming of Chinese labourers to, and their residence in, the United States.

And whereas the Government of China, in view of the antagonism and much deprecated and serious disorders to which the presence of Chinese labourers has given rise in certain parts of the United States, desires to prohibit the emigration of such labourers from China to the United States.

And whereas the Government of the United States and the Government of China desire to cooperate in prohibiting such emigration, and to strengthen in other ways the bonds of friendship between the two countries.

Now, therefore, the President of the United States has appointed Thomas F. Bayard, Secretary of State of the United States as his plenipotentiary, and His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China has appointed Chang Yen Hoon, Minister of the third rank of the Imperial Court, Civil President of the Board of Imperial Cavalry, and Envoy extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, as his plenipotentiary, and the said plenipotentiaries having exhibited their respective full powers, found to be in due and good form, have agreed upon the following articles:—

Article I. The high contracting parties agree that for a period of 20 years, beginning with date of the exchange of the ratifications of this Convention, the coming, except under the conditions hereinafter specified, of Chinese labourers to the United States shall be absolutely prohibited.

Wherein right of Return is granted.

Article II. The preceding Article shall not apply to the return to the United States of any Chinese labourer who has a lawful wife, child, or parents in the United States, or property therein to the value of 1,000 dols., or debts of like amount due him and pending settlement. Nevertheless, every such Chinese labourer shall, before leaving the United States deposit, as a condition of his return, with the Collector of Customs of the district from which he departs, a full description in writing of his family, or property, or debts as aforesaid, and shall be furnished by said Collector with such certificate of his right to return under this treaty as the laws of the United States may now or hereafter prescribe, and not inconsistent with the provisions of this treaty; and should the written description aforesaid prove to be false, the right of return thereunder, or of continued residence after return, shall in each case be forfeited.

And such right of return to the United States shall be exercised within one year from the date of leaving the United States, but such right of return to the United States may be extended for an additional period, not to exceed one year. In cases where, by reason of sickness or other cause of disability beyond his control, such Chinese labourer shall be rendered unable sooner to return, which facts shall be fully reported to the Chinese Consul at the port of departure, and by him certified to the satisfaction of the Collector of the port at which such Chinese subject shall land in the United States.

Exemption of certain Chinese subjects.

Article III. The provisions of this Convention shall not affect the right at present enjoyed of Chinese subjects, being officials, teachers, students, merchants, or travellers, for curiosity or pleasure, but not labourers, of coming to the United States and residing therein. To entitle such Chinese subjects as are above described to admission into the United States, they may produce a certificate from their Government, or the Government where they last resided, vided by the diplomatic or consular representative of the United States in the country or port whence they depart.

It is also agreed that Chinese labourers shall continue to enjoy the privilege of transit across the territory of the United States in the course of their journey to or from other countries, subject to such regulations by the Government of the United States as may be necessary to prevent said privilege of transit from being abused.

Article IV. In pursuance of Article III of the immigration treaty between the United States and China, signed at Pekin on the 17th day of November, 1880, it is hereby understood and agreed that Chinese labourers, or Chinese of any other class, either permanently or temporarily residing in the United States, shall have for the protection of their person and property all rights that are given by the laws of the United States to citizens of the most favoured nation, excepting the right to become naturalized citizens—and the Government of the United States reaffirms its obligation, as stated in the said Article III, to exert all its power to secure protection to the persons and property of all Chinese subjects in the United States.

Indemnity for injuries to Chinamen.

Article V. Whereas, Chinese subjects, being in remote and unsettled regions of the United States, have been the victims of injuries in their persons and property at the hands of wicked and lawless men, which unexpected events the Chinese Government regrets, and for which it has claimed an indemnity, the legal obligation of which the Government of the United States denies; and whereas the Government of the United States humanely considering these injuries, and bearing in mind the [? friendship subsisting between] the Government of the United States and China, which the high contracting parties wish to cement, is desirous of alleviating the exceptional and deplorable sufferings and losses to which the aforesaid Chinese have been subjected; therefore, the United States, without reference to the question of liability (which, as a legal obligation, it denies), agrees to pay, on or before the 1st day of March, 1889, the sum of two hundred and seventy-six thousand six hundred and nineteen dollars and seventy-five cents (276,619 dollars 75 cents) to the Chinese Minister at this Capitol, who shall accept the same, on behalf of his Government, as full indemnity for all losses and injuries sustained by Chinese subjects as aforesaid, and shall distribute the said money among the said sufferers and their relatives.

Article VI. This Convention shall remain in force for a period of twenty years, beginning with the date of the exchange of the ratifications; and if, six months before the expiration of the said period of twenty years, neither Government shall formally have given notice of its termination to the other, it shall remain in full force for another like period of twenty years.

A short letter from the President.

The following letter of the President accompanies the treaty.

To the Senate,

I have the honor to transmit herewith, and recommend for your constitutional approval, a convention signed and concluded in this city, on the 12th instant, under my direction, between the United States and China for the exclusion hereafter of Chinese labourers from coming into this country. This treaty is accompanied by a letter from the Secretary of State in recital of its provisions and explanatory of the reasons for its negotiation, and with it are transmitted sundry documents giving the history of events connected with the presence and treatment of Chinese subjects in the United States.

In view of the public interest which has for a long time been manifested in relation to the question of Chinese immigration, it would seem advisable that the full text of the treaty should be made public, and I respectfully recommend that an order to that effect be made by your honorable body.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Executive Mansion, Washington, 16th March, 1888.

Secretary

Secretary Bayard's explanation.

The following is Secretary Bayard's explanation of the features of the treaty :—

To the President :—

I have now the honor to transmit herewith, with a view of its being communicated to the Senate for its advice and consent, a convention providing for the absolute prohibition of the coming of Chinese labourers into the United States, which was concluded in this city on the 12th instant by me, under your instructions and authority, and by the Chinese Minister at this Capitol under the Imperial authority of China.

Shortly after the advent of your Administration it was considered advisable, in view of the manifest popular discontent in the States bordering upon the Pacific growing out of the presence there of Chinese labourers and their obvious lack of assimilation with the sympathies, habits, and interests of our own citizens, and the demonstrated inefficiency of the statutes intended to restrict their coming among us, that an effort should be made to procure the desired relief by obtaining the consent and co-operative action of China by means of an amended treaty, and thus avoid the necessity of a resort to special legislation, which without the co-operative assistance of the Chinese Government would be less effectual, and might also be open to exception as being in conflict with or in derogation of the stipulations of existing conventions, and possibly as impairing our good understanding with a friendly Power.

The temporary absence from the United States in 1885, and the subsequent illness of the then Chinese Minister, unavoidably delayed negotiations, but upon the arrival of his successor, the present Minister, Chang Yon Hoon, propositions were speedily submitted to him for a convention absolutely prohibiting the immigration of Chinese labourers, and, after some further delay arising from a visit made by him to Europe last summer, the treaty herewith transmitted has been concluded.

The purpose and object of the Treaty.

By this arrangement we have secured the co-operation of China in the main purpose and object of the treaty, which is plainly stated in the first article of the convention to be the absolute prohibition of Chinese labourers from coming into the United States for twenty years, and its renewal thereafter for a similar period unless notice shall have been given as provided in Article VI.

This precludes the return of any Chinese labourers who are not now in this country, and forbids the coming into the United States of Chinese labourers from any quarter whatsoever. From this inhibition are accepted any Chinese labourer who has a lawful wife, child, or parent in the United States, or property therein of the value of one thousand dollars ($1,000), or debts of like amount due him and pending settlement. Considerations of humanity and justice require these exceptions to be made, for no law should overlook the ties of family, and the wages of labour are entitled to just protection. Judging also by the statistics of the class in question and from general experience, such excepted cases will be practically few in number, infrequent and easily capable of such regulations as will prevent abuse.

The regulation and control of the issue of such certificates of return will be wholly in the hands of United States officials, and power to prescribe other laws at discretion may be exercised by the United States. Such right to return is for a limited period, and the certificates are invalidated by the perpetration of fraud in connection with their procurement or use, and the United States are free to adopt such measures as may become advisable to check or punish any abuse.

Fraudulent entries under the old system.

In the course of late litigation in the United States Courts in California, arising out of the contested claims of certain Chinese labourers to return to the United States under the certificates now provided by law, it has been pertinently suggested by the learned judges before whom the cases were tried that the detailed information contained in the certificates themselves, as now issued to the Chinese, furnishes the means of fraudulent entry of Chinese labourers to whom such certificates have been fraudulently transferred, and who are not entitled to come to the United States; and it has been pointed out that if all the facts requisite for complete identification of the departing Chinamen were retained in the United States official custody, and a paper containing only a simple number and properly marked, signed and countersigned by the officers, were furnished, the means of detecting and preventing fraud in the transfer of the certificate would be given, and the present abuses made almost impossible of recurrence.

Existing treaty privileges of travel and sojourn in the United States to Chinese officials, teachers, students, merchants, and travellers for curiosity and pleasure remain undisturbed as well as the transit right of labourers, strictly to be exercised under United States regulations.

Justifying the Indemnity Clause.

The stipulations of the third article of the treaty of 1880 provided for the extension of the full protection of the person and property of Chinese subjects of all classes that is given by laws of the United States to the most favoured nation, and by the terms of that article, the United States also agreed "to exert all its power to secure such protection" to the persons and property of Chinese subjects in the United States. It cannot justly be alleged that any discrimination has been made against the Chinese by the laws of the United States, nor that they have been denied or obstructed in their access to the avenues of public remedial justice, which are open to all persons alike without distinction of race or nationality. But the fact remains that, for reasons heretofore stated in the message of the President to Congress in relation to the Rock Springs indemnity, there has been a failure of justice in the repression and punishment of crime and lawless violence of which Chinese were the victims, owing to the mingled causes of race prejudice, labour rivalries, their peculiar habits, and segregation from other nationalities.

The ill-treatment to which Chinese labourers have been subjected by our jurisdiction, where they are practically beyond the reach of the protecting arm of the law, has been a subject of just complaint by their Government, as well as mortification and sorrow to our own, and Congress heretofore, in the case of the Rock Springs massacre in Wyoming Territory, in view of all the circumstances, has made voluntary appropriations for the relief of the sufferers and their families.

The

The distribution of Governmental powers under our system forbids the assumption of local police control by the Federal authority except in the cases provided for by the Constitution wherein State and local Governments make application to the Executive for the assistance of the military arm of the Government. The stipulations of our treaty with China do not demand the enactment or enforcement of laws discriminating in favour of the Chinese subjects in the United States, nor does it entitle them to greater or other protection than is accorded to citizens of the most favoured nation. Tried by this test, the Chinese, in all cases of injuries to their persons or property, are equal before the laws of this country to the citizens of any other "most favoured nation," and certainly to our citizens.

Sentimental features of the Convention.

BUT the fact remains that they have suffered grievously in person and property, and whilst the liability of the United States is wholly inadmissible as is recited in Article V of the treaty now submitted, yet it is competent for this Government, in humane consideration of those occurrences so discreditable to the community in which they have taken place, and outside of the punitive powers of the National Government, to make voluntary and generous provisions for those who have been made the innocent victims of lawless violence within our borders, and to that end, following the dictates of humanity, and, it may be added, the example of the Chinese Government in sundry cases where American citizens, who were the subjects of mob violence in China, have been indemnified by that Government, the present treaty provides for the payment of a sum of money to be received as full indemnity for all such losses and injuries sustained by Chinese subjects in the United States, to be received and distributed by the Chinese Minister at this Capitol. This payment will, in a measure, remove the reproach to our civilization caused by the crimes referred to, as well as redress the grievance so seriously complained of by the Chinese representative, and unquestionably will also reflect most beneficially upon the welfare of American residents in China.

I submit herewith a list of the claims from time to time presented to this department through the Chinese Minister, in which the names of the claimants, the amount of the losses, and estimation and details of the injuries inflicted are set forth.

Respectfully submitted,
T. F. BAYARD.

(DESPATCH RESPECTING.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies to The Right Honorable Lord Carrington,
G.C.M.G.

My Lord,

Downing-street, 23 January, 1888.

I have the honor to transmit to you, for communication to your Government, a copy of a letter from the Foreign Office, enclosing copy of a note from the Chinese Minister at this Court, calling attention to the position of Chinese subjects in Her Majesty's Colonies. F.O., Dec. 21, 1887

I should be glad if your Government would furnish me with a report on the subject of any exceptional legislation affecting Chinese subjects which is in force in the Colony under your Government, showing the objects for which such legislation was adopted, and the measure of success which has attended it.

I have, &c.,

H. T. HOLLAND.

Received 10 March, 1888.

Col. Sec.—C., 16/3/88.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

Foreign Office, 21 December, 1887.

I am directed by the Marquis of Salisbury to transmit to you a copy of a note from the Chinese Minister at this Court, calling attention to the position of Chinese subjects in Her Majesty's Colonies, and requesting that an enquiry may be instituted into the Laws enacted against his countrymen by some of the Colonial Legislatures of Australia and the Dominion of Canada. Lew-ta-jen, Dec. 12, 1887.

I am to request that, in laying this letter before Secretary Sir H. Holland, you will move him to cause Lord Salisbury to be informed what reply should be returned to the Chinese Minister.

I am, &c.,

P. W. CURRIE.

The Under Secretary of State,

Colonial Office.

[Sub-Enclosure.]

My Lord,

Chinese Legation, 12 December, 1887.

The Chinese Commissioners who recently visited the Australian Colonies for the purpose of enquiring into the condition of Chinese subjects residing in these parts of H.B.M. Dominions, report that, in each of the Colonies they visited, a poll-tax of £10 is imposed on Chinese subjects, from which the subjects of other Powers are exempt. I am also informed that at the present moment a Bill, which passed the House of Assembly of Tasmania in September last, is under the consideration of the Legislative Council of that Colony, having for its object the imposition of a similar tax on all Chinese subjects who may hereafter visit the island for the purpose of trade.

In my despatch of 13th July, 1886, I had occasion to draw the attention of your Lordship's predecessor to the invidious position in which Chinese subjects were placed by the operation of a peculiarly offensive Act which had been passed by the Government of British Columbia. Having in that despatch very fully discussed the question of the injustice of making Chinese subjects, who, on the faith of Treaties and international usage had entered the Colony, the objects of discriminative legislation, I need not here revert to the matter, more especially as the Chinese Government is convinced that where Colonial Legislatures have enacted regulations inimical to Chinese, and which were incompatible with Her Majesty's International engagements, the omission of the Crown to exercise its right of veto is not to be taken as showing that the Central Government approved them.

In the Crown Colonies it has not been found necessary to treat Chinese subjects differently from the subjects of other Powers, and it is difficult to understand why it should be otherwise in those Colonies on whom a certain amount of self-government has been conferred. It has never been alleged that Chinese immigrants were unruly. For, not only in Hong-Kong and the Straits Settlements, but also in Australia, the Colonial Governors have repeatedly borne testimony to the orderly conduct of the Chinese population, and to their value in developing the Colonial resources. There does not, therefore, appear to be any sufficient reason for their being deprived of the immunities accorded to them by the Treaties and the Law of Nations, or to their being treated differently from the subjects of other Powers residing in the same parts of H.B.M.'s dominions.

The Imperial Government sees with regret the continued existence of the exceptional and exceptionable laws which some of the Colonial Legislatures of Australia and the Dominion have at different times enacted against Chinese subjects, and hopes that, with a view to the elimination of any part of them which may be found to be at variance with Treaty obligations and international usage, Her Majesty's Government will be pleased to institute an enquiry into their nature, and how far they are compatible with the increasing growth of the friendly relations which now happily exist between the two countries.

I have, &c.,

LEW.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE CHINESE.

PETITION FROM CERTAIN CHINESE RESIDENTS REFERRING TO THE PROVISIONS OF THE TREATY OF PEKIN.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 14 June, 1888.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Humble Petition of the undersigned Chinese Merchants resident in Sydney, on behalf of themselves and other Chinese resident in Australasia and New Zealand,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

1. That by article five of the Treaty of Pekin, made on the twenty-fifth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, between Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, and His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China; it was amongst other things provided that the Chinese in choosing to take service in the British Colonies or other parts beyond the seas were to be at perfect liberty to enter into engagements with British subjects for that purpose, and to ship themselves and their families in British vessels at the open ports of China.

2. Your Petitioners respectfully refer to the rights given by various treaties to British subjects to reside in and own property in China and to travel therein.

3. Upon the faith of the above treaty and upon legislation passed in the various Australasian Colonies, Chinese have come to the Australasian Colonies. Some have married European women there, many are still residents there, while others have left temporarily and have in such cases obtained certificates authorising them to return within a certain time.

4. The Chinese merchants and traders resident in the other Australasian Colonies from time to time require in the ordinary course of their business to visit New South Wales, and your Petitioners respectfully point to the great hardship that would be inflicted upon them, if provision be not made for them visiting accordingly without paying poll-tax on each visit.

5. Your Petitioners respectfully refer to the fact of the general large reduction, during the last few years of the numbers of Chinese resident in Australia (with the exception of Port Darwin under special circumstances), as indicating that the present system and rate of poll-tax are sufficient to prevent any undue influx of Chinese.

6. Your Petitioners respectfully point out that in the proposal to impose a poll-tax so high as the sum of one hundred pounds per head upon any Chinese coming to any one of the Australasian Colonies, such amount is unduly severe and unnecessarily high on the one hand while on the other the very magnitude of the tax would hold out inducements to breaches of the law.

7. Your Petitioners would also respectfully point out the hardship to which Chinese would be liable if provision be not made for the performance of existing engagements with the Chinese in reference to their right to return to the colonies, if so returning within the time specified in their exemption tickets.

8. Your Petitioners also point out the hardship and injury to the Chinese who may have become naturalized British subjects and who now own property in any of the Australasian Colonies if they be not allowed after due examination to return to their homes.

9. Your Petitioners respectfully refer to the proposal to exclude Chinese from mining, it being well known that the Chinese only follow the Europeans, and make a living where Europeans cannot, so that the mining by the Chinese means the saving to the country of a large amount of wealth that would otherwise be lost.

10. Your Petitioners would respectfully suggest that provision might be made for Chinese leaving the Colony and returning thereto, and that by the applicants leaving photographs with their applications for exemption tickets with other particulars, any difficulty as to identification would be overcome.

Your Petitioners, therefore, humbly pray that your Honorable House will take this Petition under favourable consideration.

And your Petitioners will ever pray, &c.

(PETITION FROM CERTAIN CHINESE RESIDENTS OF NEW SOUTH WALES IN REFERENCE TO IMMIGRATION LAWS.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 16 May, 1888.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned, Chinese residents in New South Wales,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH :—

That your Petitioners have heard that it is proposed to introduce further legislation dealing with the subject of the immigration of Chinese into New South Wales.

That your Petitioners are aware that a number of Chinese heretofore resident in New South Wales, relying upon the provisions of the present law in force upon this subject, have availed themselves of the Exemption Certificates provided for by the said law for the purpose of visiting China. Some of these have returned, others are on their way back, and others may be still in China.

That your Petitioners are aware that other Chinese, under the provisions of the said law now in force, have also come to this Colony, or are on their way here.

And your Petitioners humbly pray that legislation upon this subject will not ignore the rights conferred by existing law upon those Chinese who have either left the Colony relying upon its provisions, and who are either holders of Exemption Certificates, or have come or are coming to this Colony under the provisions of the said law.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

CHINESE RESTRICTION AND REGULATION BILL.

(MESSAGE No. 50.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 16 May, 1888.

CARRINGTON,

Governor.

Message No. 50.

In accordance with the provisions contained in the 54th section of the Constitution Act, the Governor recommends for the consideration of the Legislative Assembly the expediency of making provision to meet the requisite expenses in connection with a Bill to repeal the "Influx of Chinese Restriction Act of 1881;" to provide for the protection of the Colony from the disturbances and national dangers of Chinese immigration; to provide specially for the regulation of Chinese at present resident within the Colony; and to indemnify the Government for all acts done by Executive or Ministerial authority in relation to Chinese immigrants, or vessels carrying such immigrants, since the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

VACCINATION.

(REPORT FOR 1887.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Medical Adviser to the Government to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 25 May, 1888.

I have the honor to forward you herewith the Annual Returns of Vaccinations performed during the year 1887 by the Government Vaccinators in New South Wales.

The returns show that 3,045 public vaccinations were performed, as against 1,753 in the year 1886, and 7,055 in 1884.

I append a return showing the number of births during each of the past twenty-seven years, and the number of vaccinations performed at the public cost during corresponding periods. From this return it will be seen that, whereas the number of births for the period amounted to 639,201, only 238,474 were vaccinated by the public vaccinators. From this it is evident that a very large proportion of the population is unprotected from the attacks of small-pox, a circumstance which I cannot regard without feelings of great alarm when I consider the frequency with which that loathsome disease has been brought to this port during the year, and the rapid communication which now exists between Australia and other parts of the world.

I have, &c.

TYPHOID FEVER IN SYDNEY AND SUBURBS.
(FROM 1876 TO 1888.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 26 June, 1888.

The Secretary to the Board of Health to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street, Sydney, 14 June, 1888.
I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to forward you the enclosed paper on the prevalence and mortality of Typhoid Fever in the City of Sydney and Suburbs during last thirteen years, which has been prepared from the records in this Office for the information of the Colonial Secretary.

As this paper is of much public interest the Board would suggest that it be placed upon the tables of both Houses of Parliament.

I have, &c.,
EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

[Enclosure.]

TYPHOID Fever in the City of Sydney and its Suburbs from 1876 to 1888.

THE accompanying tables, which have been carefully prepared for the information of the Colonial Secretary, disclose certain interesting facts with reference to the prevalence and mortality of typhoid fever in the city of Sydney and suburbs during the last thirteen years.

In table I a statement is given of the number of deaths in each month of the ten years ending 31st December, 1885, together with the ratio calculated per 100,000 of the population, as estimated on the 30th June in each year. From this it will be seen that during the decennial period there was a very large increase in the mortality from this disease, namely, from 46·07 per 100,000 in 1876 to 102·17 in 1885.

Table II gives a similar statement for 1886 and 1887, and for the first five months of 1888, the ratio in the latter being calculated as per 100,000 of the population estimated on 1st January.

From this latter table it will appear that the mortality from typhoid fever has of late undergone considerable and progressive diminution—thus: In 1886 the rate per 100,000 was 90·90; in 1887 it was 58·11; and the ratio for the five months of 1888 is greatly below that for the corresponding period in the two previous years, being only 30·97 as against 38·16 in 1887 and 62·17 in 1886.

The inference from these figures, that typhoid fever has been diminishing in prevalence during the period embraced by table II, is confirmed by the results of table III, which contains a return of the number of cases of typhoid fever admitted to the Metropolitan Hospitals of Sydney, and of the number of deaths which have occurred in these institutions during 1886, 1887, and the first five months of 1888. From this it appears, in 1886, there were 809 cases admitted, with 124 deaths; in 1887 there were 598 cases, with 84 deaths. In the first five months of 1888, which is the heaviest portion of the year for this disease, the number of admissions were 423, with 54 deaths; the corresponding period in 1886 shows 537 admissions, with 85 deaths; and in 1887, 436 admissions, with 64 deaths.

The period under consideration (since 1886) is of course too short to enable us to form an absolute conclusion as to whether the prevalence of the disease is likely to become permanently less; but it is evident that at all events for the present an improvement has taken place, and from the diminution in the death-rate it would appear that the severity of the disease has also somewhat lessened.

The Board would draw the attention of the Colonial Secretary to the very great amount of work which has been done by the Coast Hospital in connection with typhoid fever in this city. Of a total of 1,830, as shown in table III, no fewer than 843 have been treated at Little Bay, and it will be seen that the death rate compares favourably with that of any of the other institutions.

The Board would, lastly, urge upon the Colonial Secretary the very great importance of this matter. Typhoid fever is essentially a preventable disease, and makes its ravages chiefly among the younger and more vigorous members of the community. By well-concerted sanitary measures the prevalence of the disease can be very greatly reduced, and much sickness and death may be spared to the community. But for this purpose the Board is of opinion that a Public Health Act is required.

By order,

EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary to the Board of Health.

Sydney, 13 June, 1888.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

TREATMENT OF TYPHOID FEVER AT THE COAST HOSPITAL.

(REPORT ON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 17 July, 1888.

Extract from the Minutes of the Board of Health of a meeting held on the 13th of June, 1888.

Rate of Mortality of cases of Typhoid Fever under treatment at the Coast Hospital during the first five months of the year 1888.

"THE Board having observed from a report adopted this day the very favourable rate of mortality of cases of typhoid fever under treatment in the Coast Hospital during the first five months of the year 1888, requested the Medical Adviser to the Government to be good enough to obtain from the Medical Superintendent of the Coast Hospital a report disclosing the causes which have, in Dr. Peirce's opinion, led to this very satisfactory result."

Sir,

Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street,

Sydney, 14 June, 1888.

I have the honor, by direction of the Medical Adviser to the Government, to inform you that he has with very much pleasure observed from a table which has been recently prepared in this office, that the rate of mortality from typhoid fever at the Coast Hospital, during the first five months of this year, is much lower than in the years 1886 and 1887, and that it compares very favourably with the mortality rates in the metropolitan hospitals.

The Medical Adviser to the Government would feel much obliged if you will kindly furnish him with a succinct report disclosing the causes which, in your opinion, have led to this very satisfactory result.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

The Medical Superintendent, Coast Hospital, Little Bay.

Sir,

Coast Hospital, 19 June, 1888.

In compliance with your request that I should furnish a report accounting for reduction in mortality from typhoid fever at the Coast Hospital, I have the honor to submit the attached notes.

While thanking you for advice and assistance in difficult cases, and feeling indebted to Dr. Thompson for recommending an examination into the relative therapeutic virtues of antipyrin and antifebrin, I have pleasure in acknowledging the very willing assistance always given by Dr. R. W. Young in the management of the patients.

The constant kindly attention of the nurses, under the able and cheerful direction of the Matron (Mrs. Mackay), was also an absolutely essential factor under Providence in producing beneficial results.

I have, &c.,

W. PEIRCE,

Medical Superintendent.

The Medical Adviser to the Government.

REPORT on treatment of cases of Enteric fever at the Coast Hospital in 1888.

It is usual to commence the treatment of Enteric fever at the Coast Hospital by the Administration of 3 to 5 grains of calomel in cases received within about the first 10 days of the disease. This appears to exert a favourable influence on the fever; not, however, I think, as frequently supposed, by generating mercuric perchloride internally and thus indirectly acting on the seat of the disease. If this were really the mode of action of the calomel, I should certainly expect that poisonous symptoms would in some cases arise; but fortunately this does not occur.

After

After the action of the calomel, provided that the kidneys work satisfactorily, acetanilide is given in 5 grain doses, and continued in the same doses whenever the temperature exceeds a certain point (101° to 103°) according to the case; up to 6 or 8 times in 24 hours, if necessary. After each dose the temperature generally falls perceptibly in about 40 minutes and attains its minimum in from 2 to 4 hours. The evident action of this drug, besides lowering the temperature, consists in diminishing the frequency of the pulse from about 6 to 20 beats per minute, with corresponding slowing of respiration, and at the same time increasing arterial tension, and inducing profuse skin elimination, thus very much diminishing the tendency to delirium and frequently quite preventing typhoid stupor. It also induces a remarkable feeling of ease and repose which appears partly to depend on the production of a certain amount of peripheral anæsthesia. When the effect of acetanilide is passing off, the temperature frequently rises with great rapidity—like the sudden releasing of a gradually-compressed spring. Immediately on perceiving the elevation of temperature, the practice has been to administer another dose before the stupor and delirium generally incidental to a high temperature have had time to become manifest. This treatment, which neither shakes nor alarms the patient, has striking advantage over cold bathing in very many cases. It is found essential to take temperatures at least every two or three hours, day and night, in order to carry out this plan of treating fever properly; and I observe that the free and prolonged administration of turpentine, and of chlorine mixture, is more than ordinarily beneficial when aided by the regular use of acetanilide.

The appetite is observed to improve and the liability to inflammatory complications to diminish in most cases in which acetanilide has been given continuously for several weeks, and it certainly has the power of remarkably economizing the patients' vital energy. It produces, as far as my observation goes, no permanent mischief, and it is not necessarily contra-indicated in cases of cardiac complications, whether they arise during the course of the fever or not. I gave the drug freely, with evident advantage, to a patient with typhoid fever, complicated with mitral regurgitation after acute rheumatism, and also with benefit in another case which had old mitral obstruction and hypertrophy of left ventricle. Besides giving rise to no unpleasant symptoms, the effect of acetanilide is to render the course of enteric fever milder than it otherwise would be, but it probably may not lessen the duration of the disease. In all cases in which acetanilide is freely given there is a liability to the occurrence of occasional cyanosis of extremities and face, with irregular pulse; and I have sometimes noticed chills accompanying the rise of temperature when the action of the drug was ceasing. These symptoms are transitory, and can be adequately combated by the temporary suspension of the medicine and the occasional use of hypodermic camphor.

The use of alcohol in small doses, seldom exceeding 2 ounces of brandy in 24 hours, and generally only in cases of failing heart (especially when associated with asthenic delirium), has been lately the practice at the Coast Hospital. I feel convinced that the partial cerebro-spinal insensibility produced by persistent large doses of alcohol in typhoid fever is very injurious during a long illness, although it may induce a temporary soothing and beneficial effect. Long-continued stimulation means wasted nerve energy, necessarily accompanied by a corresponding diminution in the patient's ultimate probability of recovery. In treatment of enteric fever we are compelled to diminish the fuel employed to sustain life; we should therefore proportionally diminish, if possible, the fire that consumes it, and this can only be done by economizing nerve-power, lessening muscular exertion, and reducing heat. Even when only occasionally used in the course of typhoid fever, it is evident that alcoholic stimulation means temporary exhilaration, due to increased cerebral circulation, and inevitably succeeded by proportional nervous depression, unless followed up by persistent alcoholic dosage. By its palpably injurious effects on respiration and on the functions of the liver and brain; the prolonged use of alcohol in enteric fever is answerable for many insidious deaths—the very natural culmination of a chain of neurotic symptoms intensifying towards the end, and insensibly gliding into coma.

Complications of pneumonia and pulmonary congestion have been treated by liniments and the internal administration of turpentine and creosote. Carbonate of ammonia was generally avoided in consequence of its irritative action on the bowels and its liability to induce diarrhœa. Chest complications were generally regarded as of secondary importance in comparison with the enteric lesion.

Delirium was treated with urethan, chloral, digitalis, veratrum viride, belladonna, ice to head, &c.

The treatment employed in intestinal hæmorrhage generally consisted in perfect rest, hypodermic ergotine, ice poultices to right side of abdomen and iced-water enemata, with also the occasional administration of tannic acid, laudanum, and turpentine. Tannic acid and laudanum were, however, always used with great caution, as they certainly have a tendency to give rise to tympanites.

Ice poultices were applied, and turpentine was generally given in the treatment of tympanites.

Diarrhœa was treated with opium and starch enemata, acetate of lead, subnitrate of bismuth, pectucuanha, &c.

Peritonitis was successfully treated with full doses of opium and absolute deprivation of food.

Hypodermic camphor and warm alcoholic drinks were given with advantage in cases of cardiac failure.

Symptoms of thirst throughout the disease were relieved by mild phosphoric acid drinks, and by applications of glycerine, &c., to the tongue and throat.

During convalescence, arsenic, quinine, phosphorus and iron, were given with advantage.

It has been the custom to give only milk and beef-tea until between seven and fourteen days after normal temperature has been established, and then to give only sago or arrowroot for several days in addition to the former diet.

Very much injury has been caused by the visits of ignorant sympathizing friends, not only by directly smuggling in biscuits, &c., but by injudicious conversation, exciting, fretting, and wearying patients, thus raising their temperatures and wasting their energies. This cause appreciably influences mortality statistics.

All thermometers are separately tested before being sent into the wards, and incorrect instruments are discarded. Observations of nurses are frequently checked by comparison with a standard clinical thermometer at the bedsides of patients.

I append a case which illustrates the general treatment.

W. PEIRCE,
Medical Superintendent.

CASE

CASE illustrative of action of Acetanilide.

Bessie Christison, aged 25, married. Two years in Australia. Admitted to Coast Hospital, 26 April, 1888. Over three weeks ill. Temperature on day of admission reached 105°. Febrile stupor existed, with dry, parched tongue, weak and compressible pulse, bronchial râles, disturbed sleep, and distressing thirst. Prognosis very unfavourable. Highest temperature attained during illness, 106°. Lowest temperature attained during illness, 98·4°. Turpentine was given all through this case, with occasional doses of belladonna and digitalis; also urethan for sleeplessness. No alcohol was given until the forty-seventh day, and since that date only 6 ounces of port wine daily. As convalescence approached, phosphorus and arsenic were freely given.

The Board of Health, Sydney, 23 June, 1888.—H.N.M., Medical Adviser to the Government.

Read at a meeting of the Board of Health held on 27 June, 1888:—

Resolved,—“That the Board of Health desire to record their appreciation of Dr. William Peirce's very able report on the subject of typhoid fever, and the reasons which have led to the small mortality in the Coast Hospital, of which institution he is the Medical Superintendent, during the first five months of the year 1888.”

OUTBREAK OF FEVER AT GLENDUART, MORUYA.
(PAPERS RELATING TO.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 10 July, 1888.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 14th June, 1888, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers and documents relating to the outbreak of typhoid or scarlatina at Glenduart, Moruya, in July, 1883.”

(Mr. Lakeman.)

Telegram from The Police Magistrate, Moruya, to The Principal Under Secretary.

Moruya, 7 July, 1883.
THE police have reported to-night ten cases of scarlatina near Moruya. Am I authorized to employ special constables and quarantine those the doctor may report as affected? If so, please wire instructions without delay.

H. M. KEIGHTLEY,
Police Magistrate.

The Medical Adviser to the Government.—C.W., B.C., 9/7/83. Would the Inspector-General be kind enough to cause a report to be obtained from the local police officer concerning this outbreak?—C.K.M., B.C., 11/7/83. The Inspector-General of Police. Report enclosed for the information of the Medical Adviser to the Government.—ED. FOSBERY, B.C., 13/7/83. Urgent and important.

Telegram from Mr. Police-Superintendent Zouch to The Inspector-General of Police.

Goulburn, 13 July, 1883.
TELEGRAM from Moruya reports Mrs. Wray, who was a passenger by ship “Allanshau,” quarantined on arrival on account of having scarlatina on board. Mrs. Wray afterwards came to Moruya with her boxes and bedding and dirty clothes; these were washed there. Dr. King reports eight cases—one death, three convalescent, and four sick, all in the immediate neighbourhood of Mullinderra, 1 mile from Moruya.

H. ZOUCHE,
Superintendent.

Dr. Mackellar to The Principal Under Secretary.

Medical Adviser's Office.
MRS. WRAY, the person mentioned in this report, did not suffer from scarlet fever, nor did her husband, who died at the Quarantine Station. Her woollen clothing and that of her husband, worn at the Quarantine Station, was destroyed by fire, as was also the bedding used by them; the whole of the rest of her clothing was boiled and otherwise disinfected. Mrs. Wray has since made a claim upon the Government for compensation for the destruction of her property, and the *papers relating to her claim are attached hereto. There can be no necessity for having recourse to the local quarantine, suggested by Mr. Keightley. * Vide Enclosure.

Sir,

Elizabeth Villas, William-street, Balmain, 25 May, 1883.

The following is a list of the clothing, &c., which has been kept from me on my leaving Quarantine, which I am told will be destroyed, and for which I claim compensation to the amount of £2 5s. :—1 pair trousers, 1 vest, 2 coats, 1 hat, 1 woman's dress, 3 blankets, 1 bed.

An early reply will oblige

Yours truly,
JULIA WRAY.

Blankets and bed are the property of the Government.—G.F.W.

Referred to the Health Officer to advise what amount should be paid to Mrs. Wray as compensation for clothing alleged to have been destroyed at the Quarantine Station.—G.F.W., 29/5/83. The Superintendent of Quarantine for report as to the value of the articles destroyed.—C.K.M., B.C., 30/5/83.

Mr. Superintendent Hawkin to Dr. Mackellar.

Sir,

Quarantine Station, 2 June, 1883.

I have to report for your information, with reference to the attached letter to G. F. Wise, Esq., that Mrs. Wray, before leaving the station, agreed to allow the whole of the articles mentioned to be destroyed, should this course be necessary, for the remuneration of £1.

The value of the clothing is, however, as valued by myself and the hospital attendant, not more than 30s.

I have, &c.,
D. HAWKINS,
Superintendent.

The Agent for Immigration.—C.K.M., 6/6/83.

Mr. J. Howard to The Agent for Immigration.

Dear Sir,

Moruya, 7 June.

Mrs. Wray has instructed me to ask you if you are going to give her anything for things burned on the Quarantine island. Please forward the money to Mrs. Wray, care of J. Howard, Moruya.

Yours, &c.,
J. HOWARD,
(pro Mrs. WRAY.)

See letter-book 14/6/83, also letter-book June 30, 1883. Further police reports enclosed. They might be sent to the Medical Adviser to the Government, B.C., 31 July, 1883.—EDMUND FOSBERY, I.G.P. The Principal Under Secretary. Forwarded to the Medical Adviser to the Government, B.C., 7/8/83.—C.W.

Police Station, Moruya, 13 July, 1883.

CONSTABLE H. L. Williams (No. 1,619 F.) reports, for the information of Captain Zouch, with reference to scarlatina at Mullinderra, near Moruya :—From inquiries made by the constable it appears that a Mrs. Wray arrived here from Sydney about six weeks ago, and took up her abode with one John Howard, of Mullinderra; she was a passenger by the immigrant ship "Allanshau," which was quarantined on her arrival, having scarlatina on board. Mrs. Wray brought her boxes, which contained dirty clothes and bedding, which were washed at Howard's. The scarlatina appeared about three weeks ago in Howard's family.

Dr. King, the medical attendant, informs the constable that there have been eight cases of scarlatina, out of which there has been one death, three convalescent, and four sick at present, and there have been no fresh cases since last week. The affected houses are in the same paddock, and about 1 mile from Moruya township, and is divided by the river. Captain Zouch, Superintendent of Police, Goulburn.

H. L. WILLIAMS,
Constable.

I do not see that anything further can be added to Constable Williams' report of the 13th instant, of which this is a copy. There is no sickness at Howard's place at the present time, but at Mrs. Donovan's house, which is in the same paddock, there are four children down with the fever. Two of them are recovering; the other two are seriously ill; one has gone blind, and the other has dropsy. No further cases have occurred since the 7th instant.—WALTER C. CASEY, Sub-Inspector, Moruya, 28/7/83.

For the Inspector-General's information.—Papers attached re scarlatina at Moruya, 30/7/83.—H. ZOUCH.

QUARANTINE STATION AT NORTH HEAD.

(CORRESPONDENCE IN REFERENCE TO THE REMOVAL OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 9 February, 1888.

RETURN to an Order of the Legislative Assembly, dated 21st December, 1887,
That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers, letters, minutes, &c., in reference to the removal of “the Quarantine Station at North Head.”

(Mr. Lyne.)

Minute by The Colonial Treasurer.

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 14 February, 1887.

Subject :—The proposed removal of the Quarantine Station from Manly.

THE attention of the Board of Health has probably been drawn to the agitation which has been carried on of late at Manly for the removal of the Quarantine Station from that locality, and, as the subject is one of great importance, I should like to have the opinion of the Board on whether, in its judgment, the station should be removed, and if so to what quarter.

J.F.B., 14/2/87.

The Health Officer.—G.E., B.C., 14/2/87.

The Secretary, Board of Health, to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Board of Health Office, 127, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 18 February, 1887.

I have the honor to inform you that at a meeting of the Board of Health held this day the enclosed minute of the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer upon the proposed removal of the Quarantine Station from Manly was taken into consideration, when a memorandum by the President on the subject (also enclosed), which had been previously circulated among the members of the Board, was adopted by the following resolution :—

“The Board having considered the memorandum of the President on the question of the proposed removal of the Quarantine Station from Manly, adopt the same, and direct that it be forwarded to the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer as the opinion of the Board.”

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

Put with the papers in reference to this business.—J.F.B., 10/10/87.

[Enclosure.]

Memorandum for the Board of Health by the President with reference to the Hon. the Colonial Treasurer's Minute, dated 14/2/87.

I AM unable to recommend the removal of the Quarantine Station from North Head as proposed by the deputation from the inhabitants of Manly. It appears from the records of this office that during the last fifty-four years about fifty separate outbreaks of small-pox, for the most part introduced by vessels from abroad, have been dealt with successfully at the present Quarantine Station. In not one of these cases has there been the slightest suspicion that the disease has been communicated from the station to the inhabitants of the Colony. It is therefore difficult to see any valid reason for disturbing the existing arrangements, which have worked so well in the interests both of the general public and of the persons affected by contagious disease.

[805 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material) £1 15s. 5d.]

I would point out that the proposed removal of the Quarantine Station to a site at a greater distance from the water of Port Jackson would be attended by an enormous expense. During the outbreak of 1881 it was deemed advisable to establish a Sanatorium and Hospital for the treatment of infectious disease at Little Bay. For this purpose buildings were erected to accommodate about 200 persons. They were constructed of the cheapest materials, namely, wood and galvanized iron, but the cost amounted to no less than £32,601 16s. 9d. Considering the large size of the ocean steamers which travel to this port, and the very great number of steerage passengers, which they often carry, it would be necessary to make provision at any new Quarantine Station for housing at least 600 persons. Estimated at the same rate as Little Bay Hospital, the cost of the new buildings required would scarcely fall short of £100,000. There would, in addition, be a considerable outlay for wharves and roads, and for the provision and storage of a suitable water supply. Moreover, in order that the proposed new station might subservise those purposes with respect to outbreaks in the city, for which the North Head station has been repeatedly found so useful, it would be necessary to provide suitable means of communication from Sydney, most likely by the purchase of a steamer for quarantine purposes, large enough to proceed outside the Heads in all weather.

Considering all these matters, and judging by my past experience, I am inclined to believe that the first cost of establishing a new station, independent of the value of the ground selected as a site, would not be less than £150,000. I would further point out that the greater distance from head-quarters at which it is proposed to establish a new station would add very greatly to the difficulty and expense of management. At present all supplies required for the use of the sick and the other persons quarantined can be sent down within an hour of the necessity being made known, and it is therefore unnecessary to maintain at the Quarantine Station any permanent supply of perishable stores. But if the station were removed to one of the harbours further up the coast it would be impossible to conduct it properly without keeping constantly on hand a large supply of all the articles of food and medicine, together with medical comforts, which might be required on any emergency. Moreover, from the configuration of the present Quarantine Station it has been found heretofore perfectly practicable to maintain the strictest quarantine by the aid of a very small body of police. If the station were removed to any of the alternative sites which have been proposed, the guard required for the maintenance of quarantine would be much larger both by land and by sea. At the same time I believe that at no other situation would it be possible to pay the same attention to the comfort and the reasonable requirements of the persons quarantined that we have been able to do with respect to the station at North Head.

In order to meet as far as possible any theoretical objections that may be raised to the present site of the Quarantine Station, and to prevent the recurrence of disastrous cases like that of the "Preussen," I would submit the following recommendations:—

- 1st. That immediate action should be taken by the Government, with the co-operation of the other Australian Colonies, with a view to the establishment of Federal Quarantine Stations at Albany, and Port Darwin or Thursday Island, in accordance with the principles laid down by the Australasian Sanitary Conference of Sydney of 1884.
- 2nd. That the "Faraway" should no longer be used for the reception of small-pox patients, but that all such cases occurring at the Quarantine Station should be treated in a new hospital to be erected at a more distant part of the grounds. For this purpose several eligible sites have been selected by the chief medical inspector, the nearest of which would be more than a mile from any house in Manly, a distance which should, I think, satisfy the most timid of the inhabitants. As every case of infectious disease which shows itself in any ship in the quarantine waters is at once removed to the hospital appointed for its treatment it is difficult to see how any infection could possibly be spread among the public.
- 3rd. I would repeat my recommendation of 15 and 31 December, 1885, renewed by the Board of Health on 4 January, 1887, to the effect that boundary buoys should be laid down to mark the limits of the quarantine waters so that the public should not break quarantine by inadvertence; and that moorings of sufficient strength should be laid down for the securing of a vessel in quarantine so that she should not at any time swing outside the quarantine boundary.

President.

COCKATOO ISLAND.

FITZROY DOCK.

SUMMARY of Sanitary recommendations and notes of the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers thereon.

Dr. Coppinger's recommendations.	Engineer-in-Chief's remarks.
To have the interior of the dock cleaned by scrubbing, scraping, and washing down with a solution of sulphate of iron or common whitewash. Jetty for discharging rubbish into the sea to be carried into deep water. One person to be responsible for sanitary matters. Reconstruction of the Bilola sewer before the institution is again occupied. Notice to be posted up over horse trough of unfit nature of water for human consumption. Closing the existing filling sluice and constructing an opening in the caisson to serve as a filling culvert. Holes and crevices in sides of dock to be filled up and pointed with cement. Outlet from officers' latrine to be carried out below low water.	This has been done, a solution of sulphate of iron being used. It is proposed to deliver rubbish into a punt to be taken out to sea. Mr. Young, the resident engineer at the new dock, has been placed in full charge of these matters. Mr. Barnet (Colonial Architect) states that this matter will receive attention under a contract which has been let for alterations to the building. Carried out. Consequent upon the removal of the latrines, nothing but pure water can now enter the dock. On the north side a grip intercepts any surface water from the high ground; on the south side the ground falls from the coping towards the shore. This has been done.
Board of Health's recommendations.	Engineer-in-Chief's remarks.
An experienced dock superintendent to be placed in charge of the whole of the dock premises. Boat harbour to be reclaimed. Filling sluice to be constructed so as to take in pure water only. System of sewers to be laid down. Scavenging service to be organised. All faecal matter, house refuse, sweepings, &c., to be destroyed by fire. Present water-tanks to be emptied, made water-tight, and effectually protected from inflow of surface water. If this cannot be done, arrangements should be made for condensing water, to be stored in overground tanks.	A dock superintendent is already in charge of the dock premises; but all sanitary arrangements, as before explained, have been placed under the control of Mr. Young, the resident engineer at the new dock. As the latrines have been removed from this place I hardly think this expense necessary; it would involve the deposition of some 30,000 cubic yards of material to fill it up. See previous remarks on this subject. Will be attended to. Has been attended to. The arrangement approved is that all sewage, refuse, &c., shall be sent away in a special punt. The question is under consideration of connecting Cockatoo Island with the Sydney water system, which will completely remove all difficulties on the score of water supply.

The Health Officer and President of Board of Health to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Board of Health, 127 Macquarie-street,
Sydney, 22 January, 1886.

Sir,

In looking over reports from the various hospitals, I discover that on the 28th November last no fewer than five cases of typhoid fever were sent on shore from H.M.S. "Myrmidon," and that a few days later two more cases were sent.

I would respectfully urge the Honorable Colonial Treasurer to request the Senior Naval Officer to inform this Department whether any cause can be assigned for such an alarming outbreak of disease occurring in a ship lying in Port Jackson; and I would further recommend that the naval authorities should be informed that in case of any future outbreak of communicable disease occurring on board any of H.M. Ships lying in Port Jackson, this Department will be ready to afford them any assistance that may be in our power.

The Chief Medical Inspector.

Minute by Dr. Thompson.

Health Department, 10 February, 1886.

IN preparing my report upon the sanitary condition of Cockatoo, I think it necessary to have a return for (say) three years past of the sickness which has occurred in Biloela Orphanage. Perhaps, as Dr. Evans, senior, the Medical Officer, is now sick, Dr. Evans, junior, who has acted for him, might be instructed to send the case-book over for inspection, with any remarks which he may feel able to make, either from his own observation, or from his father's information. J.A.T.

The President of the Board of Health., B.C.

Mr. Sager will kindly ask Dr. Evans for the information and return required.—H.N.M., 11/2/86. Done.—E.S., 11/2/86.

Dr. Evans to The Secretary of the Board of Health.

Sir,

Balmain, 18 February, 1886.

I must apologise for not having answered yours of the 11th instant sooner, but I only received it two days ago, having been laid up from the effects of a fall received in mounting a fresh horse.

I append the information and remarks you desire.

Visiting Surgeon Industrial School, Biloela.

[Enclosure.]

BILOELA INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.—Average of inmates for 1883, 1884, 1885, per annum, 110; staff, 12 (not any deaths). The personnel of inmates changes, owing to some going away and others coming in. All illness has been brought in from outside (none developed in the institution) by girls arriving with venereal taint, skin disease, heart disease, ophthalmia, and granular lids, which would soon spread if not promptly stamped out and isolated, and by using plenty of disinfectants, also lime-juice, vegetables, and suitable diet. My thanks are due to the Superintendent and officers for their cordial and active co-operation in keeping down sickness and enforcing cleanliness.

Four of the worst chronic cases of granular lids, that required daily attention, were sent to Hospital in Sydney. Two came back as incurable, and are a source of danger to the rest; two still remain in Hospital in Sydney.

The main drain on the north side got choked owing to the rubble thrown in for purposes of reclamation from the harbour. Workmen are clearing it and laying down pipes to carry the sewage to deep water.

I inquired about the typhoid fever, and find from the medical attendant (Dr. Davison) that they were continued fever and not typhoid. They occurred on the flat, near the water. The general condition of the Island is, I believe, healthy. We have had a clean bill of health all 1886, except the two incurable cases returned of ophthalmia, who should be removed.

Total cases of sickness for past three years, 96, of which 41 were ophthalmia, caught from new arrivals, but were soon cured. The rest were cases of gastric and a mild form of continued fever, and other incidental ailments. There were only twelve serious cases necessitating protracted detention in the hospital, which were rheumatic fever, heart disease, and venereal disease.

Fleet

Fleet Surgeon Coppinger to Captain Lake, R.N.

Sir,

H.M.S. "Nelson," Sydney, 19 March, 1886.

In compliance with your order of this date, regarding the sanitary condition of the Fitzroy Dock at Cockatoo Island, I have the honor to inform you that I have this day visited the dock, in company with Staff Commander Quinn, and have to report as follows, premising that owing to the limited means at my disposal the investigation made has not been by any means of an exhaustive nature:—

At the time of our visit to Cockatoo Island the dock happened, unfortunately, to be full of water, so that we were unable to see anything as to the state of the interior. On the other hand the circumstance that the tide was low enabled us to obtain a view of the foreshore on that part of the Island immediately adjoining the dock.

The inlet culvert of the dock is so situated that its outer end is within about 40 yards of the latrine used by the seamen of ships in dock; and as both open upon the comparatively still water of a small cove (as shown in rough diagram) the process of filling the dock must almost inevitably involve the admission of fœcal matter with the inrush of water through the open culvert. It therefore follows that the subsequent pumping out of the dock would probably result in the deposition of a certain amount of filth on floor and steps of dock. The captain of the dock informs us that it was his practice to wash out frequently by admitting a small stream of water through the regular inlet culvert and then pumping out through the drain well at caisson end of dock. This measure, while providing for the cleanliness of floor of dock, would still leave untouched the objectionable sediment which may have collected on the steps, representing a considerable area.

When we inspected the men's latrine the outlet apertures in the rear wall of the low stone building were several yards removed from the actual water line, while the included portion of foreshore was strewn with excrement and filth of various sorts. Obviously, apart from the special local considerations which affect this case, it would be better to have the latrine so fitted that the excrement should drop directly into the sea water and that it should be erected in a position where, from the conformation of the shore line, the wash of ebb and flow would scatter and destroy the matter deposited.

We noticed a considerable patch of ground on the port or seaward side of the dock which was strewn in an apparently reckless manner with various sorts of debris, organic and otherwise, appearing, indeed, to serve the purposes of a dustbin or cesspit.

The Island is without any regular supply of fresh water, there being no connection with the general pipe-water service of Sydney. Water is occasionally brought over in tanks, but I understand that the inhabitants of the Island are mainly dependent upon rain-water stored up in small reservoirs. In this connection I should mention that in the immediate neighbourhood of the dock are a series of iron fresh-water tanks connected by pipes, the tank on the highest level being supplied by the water which trickles through a seam in the wall of sandstone rock rising precipitously on that side of the dock next the inhabited portion of the Island. One of these tanks appears to be used for supplying a horse-trough.

I would say, in conclusion, that as the result of a cursory examination I consider the sanitary arrangements at the Fitzroy Dock to be open to objection in at least three particulars, viz. :—(1) the relative positions of latrine and inlet culvert; (2) the position and construction of the latrine itself; (3) and the want of proper dustbin accommodation.

I have, &c.,

R. W. COPPINGER, M.D.,

Fleet Surgeon.

Rear-Admiral Tryon to His Excellency Lord Carrington.

My Lord,

H.M.S. "Nelson," Sydney, 24 March, 1886.

An outbreak of fever, which included two cases of pronounced typhoid fever, having occurred on board H.M.S. "Diamond" shortly after she left the dock, Cockatoo Island, I am endeavouring to trace the cause with the view to the adoption of precautionary measures.

2. As the ship's company were in free communication with the whole of Sydney it possibly will be very difficult to establish clearly the promoting cause, but the enclosed letter from the Fleet Surgeon of my Flag-ship I am confident cannot fail to actively interest your Excellency's Government in a matter of great importance to Sydney.

I have, &c.,

G. TRYON,

Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

The Colonial Secretary.—CARRINGTON, 26/3/86. The Health Officer.—G.E., 8/5/87. Will Dr. Thompson kindly furnish me with a report on this matter.—H.N.M., 12/5/86. The Chief Medical Inspector.

Dr. Thompson to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

I SAW Mr. Evans with reference to the enclosed yesterday, and I found that owing to his confining the expression "typhoid" to the typhoid state it is impossible to learn his exact meaning from his report as worded. I therefore think that he should be directed to report certain matters of fact, and I did at the time request him to do so; but, upon consideration, I believe that further misunderstanding will be prevented if he is asked to report according to the following schedule. He may be desired first to except from his further report the forty-one cases which he has already stated to be cases of ophthalmia. He should then give the names of the remaining fifty-five, the name of the disease, the age of the patient, the date of attack, the date of discharge from medical treatment; and to this the proper official should add the date of the admission to the asylum of each patient named. I believe it will be well that the necessity which you discovered (January 22) for inquiring minutely into the state of the Island should be explained, and that the inquiry into the health of the Orphanage is merely a part of the general investigation, and has no special reference to Mr. Evans' duties. I must point out, however, that in every such public institution the facts I now require should be shown by books, from which anyone authorised could extract them; and that, as I understand Mr. Evans, no such record is kept.

Sir,

H.M.S. "Rapid," at Sydney, 28 February, 1887.

In consequence of the medical officers attending an inquiry held on board this ship on 24th instant as to the origin of an outbreak of typhoid fever on board H.M.S. "Swinger" (in accordance with your orders of 23rd instant, communicated to me by telegraph), attributing it to the insanitary condition of the dock at Cockatoo Island and its surroundings, I have the honor to send the following recommendations, after a personal inspection of the dock on 25th instant:—

1. That the men's water-closets should be shifted, as at present they are placed in a small indentation in the Island (unaffected by the tide) at the head of the dock and close to the flooding sluice, so that on every occasion of having to open the sluice all the refuse which congregates in this small bay (or rather cesspool) is emptied into the dock.
2. That regulations should be made for all refuse, &c., to be placed in an allotted place, and removed by a dirt-boat at least once a week; also, that coal should not be stored in the vicinity of the dock.
3. That a man should be appointed in charge, and responsible that whatever sanitary arrangements were elected should be strictly enforced.

I have forwarded a copy of my recommendations to Dr. MacLaurin, of the Health Department, and Mr. Darley, of the Harbours and Rivers Department, and I have also interviewed them personally on the subject.

I have, &c.,

ARCHER J. W. MUSGRAVE,
Captain and Senior Officer.

The Chief Inspector to meet Captain Musgrave at 10.30 a.m. on the 4th at the Island.—H.N.M., 1/3/87, B.C.

Captain Musgrave to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

Dear Dr. MacLaurin,

H.M.S. "Rapid," Sydney, 2 March, 1887.

Half-past 10 on Friday morning will suit me admirably; hoping that we shall not contract any typhoid fever during our short stay in the dock, which chance, however, I shall try and confine as much as possible by sending everybody I can spare on leave under Mr. Shearston's charge, who really deserves the thanks and assistance of the whole of the Navy.

I have, &c.,

A. J. W. MUSGRAVE.

Captain Musgrave to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

Dear Dr. MacLaurin,

H.M.S. "Rapid," 7 March, 1887.

I send herewith a copy of suggestions that I have forwarded to the Commander-in-Chief relative to the sanitary arrangements at Cockatoo Dock; also as I am going into dock in the "Rapid" on Saturday next intend visiting the Island on Friday. Would you care about coming with me? If yes, what time will suit you best, and where most convenient to pick you up? The forenoon is the best time for me.

I have, &c.,

A. J. W. MUSGRAVE.

Dr. Thompson to The President of the Board of Health.

Sir,

Health Department, New South Wales, 8 March, 1887.

In accordance with your further instructions of the 1st instant, I proceeded to Cockatoo Island on the morning of the 4th, where I met Captain Musgrave, of H.M.S. "Rapid;" he drew my attention to certain matters which he had noticed.

2. About this date last year you directed me to investigate the state of the Island with reference to the admission shortly before of seven members of the crew of H.M.S. "Myrmidon" to one of the metropolitan hospitals for typhoid fever, which you had observed in looking over the monthly returns of the admissions. For want of official information, for which you immediately applied, with regard to the circumstances surrounding this outbreak, which you had some reason to surmise might be connected with the presence of the vessel in dock, the inquiry was, after a time, pretermitted. I now have the honor to present a report which is based upon the information then gathered, checked and corrected by my present observations.

3. I attach a tracing of the Island, furnished by the Engineer for Harbours and Rivers, which will render descriptions and references intelligible.

4. I give grounds for making the following recommendations:—That a dock-master of experience should be appointed to command of the Island; that the surface of the Island should be thoroughly cleansed and scavenged; that all scrap-iron and waste timber should be removed, and other materials properly and neatly stacked; that the boat harbour should be reclaimed, and the intake of the filling sluice carried out to deep water; that all present residents on the Island, not absolutely obliged by the necessities of work in connection with the dock and fitting-shop to live there, should be removed; that the various reservoirs which store fresh water should be emptied, cleansed, examined, repaired, protected from the admission of surface water, and carefully covered over; that the discharge of excreta upon the foreshore or into the adjacent water should be peremptorily forbidden; that where closets are necessary, pails should be substituted for the present arrangements; that a scavenging service should be organized; and that all refuse should be collected on a barge conveniently moored, which should be towed outside the Heads for emptying.

5. I show, further, that the most probable cause of the outbreak of fever among the men of H.M.S. "Diamond" is found in their having been allowed to drink from a wayside pool of foul water. Ordinary care would have prevented this. I venture, nevertheless, to point out the danger to Captain Musgrave.

I have, &c.,

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON, M.D.,
Brux., Dip. Publ. Health, Camb.,
Chief Medical Inspector.

The

The Chief Medical Inspector to The President of the Board of Health.

REPORT as to the cause of an outbreak of fever among the crew of H.M.S. "Diamond" during and shortly after docking at Cockatoo Island.

THE facts regarding the occurrence of fever among the crews of such of H.M.'s ships as have been in dock at Cockatoo Island are, as far as you have been able to ascertain them, as follows:—The "Myrmidon," either while in dock or shortly afterwards, sent five cases of typhoid to St. Vincent's Hospital, on Nov. 28, 1885, and two more cases a few days later. The crew of the "Undine" were affected with diarrhœa while in dock at the beginning of 1886, and eventually two cases of typhoid fever occurred among them. The "Diamond's" crew, in dock about the same time, yielded twenty-six cases of fever (of which two are distinguished as being pronounced cases of typhoid), of which the first arose eighteen days after entering the dock—the last, sixteen days after leaving it. I understand that at least one other of H.M.'s ships has suffered in a similar way, but official particulars have been furnished in the case of the "Diamond" alone. At the date mentioned I many times conversed with Staff-surgeon Cross, of H.M.S. "Diamond," both while the ship was in dock and after the outbreak, and I then agreed in the conclusion to which he had come, that the fever was due to some condition or other affecting either the dock or the Island in general.

2. The population of the Island is as follows:—The permanent residents, who are more or less directly connected with the fitting shops and the dock, are about 50 in number; they live in a few cottages which are placed at the easterly end of the Island, either at the shore or on the heights. At the westerly end on the heights is the Biloela Reformatory, which has a population of about 120. At the shore at this end is also a house occupied by the foreman (Mr. Stock) of the contractors for the new dock; the total permanent population being thus about 180, more or less. The people on the Island during work hours only, or day population, are variable in number. About 170 are regularly employed at the fitting shop; from 80 to 100 are generally at work at the new dock; and to these must be added the crews of ships under repair from time to time. The average floating population can scarcely be taken, I suppose, at less than 300.

3. No provision whatever is made for scavenging the Island, which is everywhere covered with all sorts of filth. The parts adjacent to the dock and fitting-shops are encumbered and littered with all sorts of old materials and waste; there are here, about more than, I am told, 200 yards of cinders—harmless in themselves, but absorbing and retaining moisture, and in this climate a source of serious danger for that reason—and many tons of old iron, apparently the accumulation of years, which should have gone to the foundry long ago. There is also a great deal of rotting timber, and the whole of this stuff is more or less mingled with house refuse. House refuse, of course, is to be found here and there in every part of the Island. The contents of pail closets are buried by residents on their land, a thin sprinkling of soil upon the rock, through which it is washed by the rain. Filthy channels of inadequate construction make a pretence of carrying off slop water from some dwellings. Drinking water is obtained by residents mostly from their roofs in iron overground tanks. The supply to Biloela is from certain very large tanks excavated in the rock in Mr. Cowper's grounds; when these are full they overflow into a small and a large open reservoir on the south side of the heights, just over the western end of the Fitzroy Dock, which are not protected from surface drainage. From the larger this water flows through a sand filter into an adjacent underground tank in the rock; thence it is pumped daily to overground tanks for use. When the first-named tanks are not full enough to overflow, the water can be pumped direct to the Reformatory. The waste water from the laundry is led by a short drain which ends on the surface, to a point outside the northern fence, not far from the flagstaff, where it makes stinking pools. Nightsoil is carried in the pails to a trap in a length of 12-inch glazed piping which runs from a point near the superintendent's residence down the steep bank to the edge of high water and there discharges; the soil is put in at the top, and is supposed to be flushed down by hand-carried water. I saw this drain in course of laying, and I know that it is an inefficient piece of work. I am now told by the contractor's foreman that offensive smells issue from it in its course, and that he has watched it but has never been able to detect any sewage to speak of issuing from its mouth. The contractor's men were, and as I am informed by the resident engineer (Mr. Young), still are, without latrine accommodation; at my former visit there was abundant evidence of this around the blocks of stone and heaps of other material adjacent to the new dock. Round houses for crews of ships in dock are placed as described by Fleet Surgeon Coppinger in his report attached; that is within the horns of a little boat-harbour or cove whose waters are entirely removed from the influence of currents. They consist of seats over a part of the shore which is only covered for an hour or two at high water. The filling sluice for the dock is at the head of this cove. It is the duty of the dock-keeper (Mr. Hayes) to run water through the dock every morning when it is occupied; and it is inevitable therefore that it is "washed" with a solution of nightsoil. A new block of water-closets has been recently erected for the use of officers by Mr. Young; they are of the best known pattern. They discharge to the east of the cove, and outside it doubtless, into deep water. Such currents as sweep the Island coast are sluggish and variable. The latrines for the workmen employed at the fitting shops overhang the water on the easterly side of the Island.

4. It has been suggested that in the relative positions of the dock sluice and the men's round-houses may be found an adequate explanation of the illness suffered by certain crews. No doubt, under the present circumstances, if a man suffering from typhoid were to use the round-house, there is every probability of specifically infectious excreta finding their way into the dock in small quantity, and remaining after the flushing water had run off, perhaps in a thin coat especially liable to diffusion through the air by evaporation, or after drying, as dust. But I think it is generally admitted that to communicate typhoid by inhalation the specifically infected vapour or effluvium must be concentrated; and it is not concentrated under these circumstances. On the other hand it is most usual to find drinking water the source of this disease; and I have been at great pains to learn (a) whether crews have had access to other water than that borne in the ships to which they belonged, and (b) if so, whether there is any probability that that water is specifically contaminated.

5. With reference to the first point, I was told by the late engineer of the new dock (Mr. J. B. Mackenzie, C.E.), that he had himself seen the "Diamond's" men drinking from a niche cut in the cliff, just about opposite the western end of the Fitzroy Dock. This niche, by means of tributary channels cut in the face of the cliff, receives water which trickles over the surface at the top, and in all probability from leaks in certain reservoirs immediately above it.

6. Is this water likely to be specifically contaminated? In so far as it is surface water, it is clear that it is most likely to be impure, and very likely to be specifically infected. In so far (if at all—but this is a point I cannot make sure of unless the reservoir should be first emptied), as it flows from the open reservoir it is the same as is used by the residents in the Reformatory; and at all events they have not suffered much from typhoid. In estimating the value of this piece of evidence however (into which I inquire further below) it is to be remembered that the officers of this Institution have lived there many years, and that the inmates are little likely to be susceptible for two reasons. In the first place they are natives of the country, or at all events long resident in it, in large proportion; in accordance with well-known observations therefore they are infinitely less susceptible than are such travellers as the crews of ships; and, secondly, since one attack of typhoid protects largely against further attacks, and since the inmates are drawn from the most destitute part of the population of a place in which typhoid is rife, so that many of them have suffered from it in infancy, they may fairly be regarded as to a great extent protected. I am clearly of opinion that water which does not take ill effect upon many members of a community composed as above described, may yet be markedly poisonous to casual visitors.

7. But has the Reformatory been free from fever? My attention was drawn to this question before I actually made inquiry of the Visiting Surgeon, by the following circumstances:—The new drain from the Reformatory already referred to occupies a similar position to that of the old drain for which it is a substitute. With the spoil from the new dock it was determined to reclaim part of the fore-shore at the north-western end of the Island, and in doing this the end of the old drain got covered and obstructed. Immediately very bad smells began to be perceived from it. Before the reclamation had got far to the east of the drain mouth, five men out of seven or eight employed in driving trucks to the tip, or in tipping, fell ill with typhoid. The prevalent north-east winds moreover blew the effluvium to the cottage occupied by the contractor's foreman, at the west end, and there six cases of typhoid occurred almost simultaneously among the seven inhabitants—one adult and four children of those attacked being persons who had recently come from New Zealand. By the time these persons were convalescent the rubble was cleared away from the old drain and the accumulated filth dug out and spread on the adjacent land; it is said that no disinfectant was used. The smell was abominable; and two of Mr. Stock's family had their recovery interrupted by a relapse of their disease, which may or may not have been due to this cause. In accordance with universally accepted opinions, typhoid can arise in two ways, namely, from newly turning over virgin soil or excavating in certain warm climates, and by specific infection. These patients were exposed to the former cause, which has been observed in operation at some parts of the east coast; but this was not the cause of fever in this instance, because among the large numbers of men employed at this work during several years past, only very few have been known to suffer from typhoid from time to time; and, as they all leave the Island after work every day, to go to their homes in various neighbourhoods in which typhoid is known to be endemic, it seems most likely that these chance cases arose by infection taken elsewhere. The point is, however, in the total number of such cases being extremely few, and the sudden and simultaneous attack of a very large proportion of the total number exposed to the effluvium, is corroborative evidence that the cause was in the latter rather than in the excavation.

8. But fecal matter does not produce typhoid unless it be derived from a person suffering from typhoid. I have no doubt, therefore, without further evidence, that inhabitants of Biloela have more or less recently suffered from that disease. Direct inquiry of the Visiting Surgeon elicited the reply that during the years 1883, 1884, and 1885, no illness had arisen within the institution, all that had been met with having been brought in; but, on obtaining the attached list of cases of illness and of dates of admission to the institution, it appeared that during 1883, at all events, six cases of "fever" occurred, which arose during residence. The Visiting Surgeon further reports with reference to these years that there were cases of "gastric," a mild form of continued fever. Considering that, there being no closet-drains opening within the walls of the institution, the inmates of Biloela are, by their elevated position, removed from the influence of concentrated effluvia from specifically infected excreta, I think that it is, upon the whole, more reasonable to suspect the water-supply of causing these occasional attacks of gastric or mild continued fever than to refer them to any other source. I have been informed, I may add, that typhoid was common among the convicts when this Island was a part of a penal establishment.

9. The water which it is known the "Diamond's" men were in the habit of drinking during their stay in dock, then, is either surface-water, which has percolated through a filthy soil, or is in part derived from tanks which are not protected from similarly contaminated surface-water, and which there is some reason to suspect of poisonous properties; and this water, if but weakly poisonous, would be infinitely more likely to cause disease in casual visitors than among the acclimated and protected population habitually using it. These considerations led me to recommend Captain Musgrave to station a sentry to guard the water niche referred to, and also to prevent his men either from drinking any water other than that he might provide, or even from frequenting the northern side of the dock.

10. Although I think it extremely probable that the simple precaution named above will suffice to protect the crews from typhoid, yet I have no doubt that the Island, in its present state, should be pronounced unhealthy for unacclimated persons at least. In suggesting a remedy for its present dangerous condition it will be convenient to speak separately of the dock and of the Island in general.

11. As for the whole dock premises it appears to me that they should be put under the supervision of an officer of superior standing, whose experience has taught him how docks should be kept, and whose position would enable him to get his necessary orders carried out, and who would make sure that they were regularly enforced. As for the dock itself, the main fault about it is the position of the intake at the head of a little boat-harbour whose waters are polluted by round-houses within its horns. I have been informed that this harbour is of no practical use; if that is the case it is then an unmitigated nuisance. It should be reclaimed, and the intake of the filling-slucice carried out a considerable distance from the shore so formed.

12. As for the Island as a whole, if it is absolutely necessary that large numbers of people should permanently reside there it is equally necessary that it should be drained and properly scavenged. I venture to express the opinion that it is inadvisable to allow more persons to reside upon it than are absolutely necessary for working the dock—the more so that since large numbers of unacclimated strangers are obliged to repair there from time to time with their ships it is necessary it should be kept exceptionally clean. At present while the whole surface is covered and saturated with filth, the total excreta of 120 persons is discharged, not into deep water but at the edge of high water at the north-west end of the shore; the day excreta of about 100 persons are scattered about the south-west corner; the total excreta of a variable number of men (being crews of vessels in dock) is discharged on the foreshore at the south-east corner; and the day excreta of about 170 men are discharged about the foreshore of the east end of the Island. Setting aside the question which arises whether such an amount of sewage should be discharged into the harbour, it is plain that it is impossible to cleanse the Island while the arrangements described continue in force.

13. The only remedy appears to me to lie in an organised scavenging service. I offer the following suggestions:—Let all discharge of excreta into the harbour from the Island be forbidden; for the present arrangements let pan-closets be substituted, and emptied daily. Let a flat-bottomed barge have permanent moorings at a convenient point and let it be provided with some shelter from the sun. To this take all garbage and cinders; here also collect all excreta from the pan-closets. Let each pan receive before being replaced after emptying a small charge of a solution of sulphate of iron; and when they are emptied on the floor of the barge let the contents be watered immediately and as deposited with dilute sulphuric acid, after which they should be mingled by spading with a sufficient proportion of cinders (ash and breeze together) from the engine furnaces. There would be no effluvium, and the frequency with which the barge should be towed outside the heads for emptying may be left to be fixed after experiment. If this plan were faithfully carried out there would be no smell, and the excreta would also be disinfected to a certain extent. Appliances and a staff would be necessary; there would doubtless be a considerable capital expenditure, but the working expenses would be small.

NOTE.—The fifth water is unfit for human consumption, although in the opinion of the Government Analyst it might by aeration and filtration be rendered potable. But regarding the pollution of the soil over and through which it flows, I consider that filtration as ordinarily carried out could not be trusted to remove the specific poison it is, I believe, shown by experiment, to contain. The water must be regarded as drainage or mild sewage, and the niche which renders it accessible to man should be destroyed.—J.A.T.

Rear-Admiral Tryon to His Excellency Lord Carrington.

My Lord,

H.M.S. "Nelson," Sydney, 22 March, 1887.

On the 22nd August, 1886, I had the honor to address your Excellency on the subject of the insanitary condition of the dock at Cockatoo Island, and I deeply regret to be compelled to trouble your Excellency again on the same subject.

2. The health of the crew of H.M.S. "Swinger" has been uniformly good since she has been on the station till now, with the solitary exception of an outbreak of diarrhœa, which occurred in April, 1886, when the ship was lying at Cockatoo Dock.

3. The vessel has recently been docked, and the health of the ship's company has suffered to a most serious extent, owing clearly to the insanitary state of the dock. No fewer than twelve men were sent to hospital seriously ill, of whom three men have died in the prime of life, and a good many others, including officers, have suffered, in addition to the above, to a less extent.

4. Without question this sad condition is distinctly connected with preventible causes such as exist at Cockatoo Dock (these causes are patent to any visitor), viz., with the persistent disregard of ordinary sanitary precautions.

5. I desired a preliminary inquiry, for my information, to be held. I enclose a copy of the report and of the recommendations made by Captain Musgrave; they are in the main but a repetition of what has been previously recommended by highly qualified medical and other authorities, and it includes the steps that were found necessary at another port where the sanitary condition was unfavourable. These recommendations are entirely endorsed by the Fleet Surgeon of my flagship.

6. I feel confident your Excellency will concur in the great importance of the question involved. If a good sanitary condition is not maintained on Cockatoo Island the use of the old, as well as of the new, dock will be avoided in favour of docks elsewhere that do not subject the crews of vessels to such risks as are now patently incurred by those using the dock referred to.

7. The proposal may be easily effected at a very small cost, and a visit to the Island will convince anyone of the necessity of taking immediate steps to improve the existing state of affairs.

I have, &c.,

G. TRYON,

Rear-Admiral.

Will the Colonial Secretary be so good as to take this matter into consideration as soon as he possibly can.—CARRINGTON, 26/3/87. The Secretary for Works.—H.P., 26/4/87.

Dr.

Dr. Evans to The Medical Adviser to the Government.

Dear Sir,

"Cromwell," Darling-street East, Balmain, 23 March, 1886.

I will wait at home from 2 p.m., Wednesday, 24th, until 3.30, to see you. I got about too soon after the fall I had and got a relapse. I am right now, but weak, still able to attend to my duties.

I will be happy to give you any information I possess about the Island.

Yours, &c.,

OWEN SPENCER EVANS.

Rear-Admiral Tryon to His Excellency Lord Carrington.

My Lord,

H.M.S. "Nelson," Sydney, 25 March, 1886.

Your Excellency's letter of the 24th instant crossed one from myself on the subject of the outbreak of fever on board H.M.S. "Diamond." I am happy to say that I have very favourable reports of the patients. It is unquestionable that the fever originated in Sydney.

2. Your Excellency may be assured that I will not fail to communicate any point of general interest.

3. In the case of the "Diamond" there were two cases of pronounced typhoid, and twenty-four of simple continued fever.

I have, &c.,

G. TRYON,

Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

The Colonial Treasurer.—CARRINGTON, 27/3/86. The Medical Adviser to the Government.—C.W., B.C., 27 April, 1886.

The Secretary of the Board of Health to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Board of Health Office,

127, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 22 April, 1887.

I have the honor to inform you that the enclosed report upon the present insanitary condition of Cockatoo Island, by the Chief Medical Inspector of this Board (Dr. Ashburton Thompson), was taken into consideration at the Board's meeting on the 20th instant, when the following resolution was passed:—

That this report be forwarded to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary for transmission to the Honorable the Secretary for Public Works, with a recommendation that Dr. Ashburton Thompson's suggestions should be promptly carried into effect.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

The Secretary for Public Works.—H.P., 26/4/87.

Rear-Admiral Tryon to His Excellency Lord Carrington.

My Lord,

H.M.S. "Nelson," Sydney, 24 April, 1886.

In continuation of previous correspondence on the subject of the outbreak of fever on board H.M. ship "Diamond," detailed information has been obtained that there is some evidence of the fever having originated at Cockatoo Dock. The points referred to are briefly as follows:—

1. The ship was in dock from the 23rd of January to 16th of February, 1886.

2. There had been no fever cases on board during previous nine months.

3. The first case occurred eighteen days after entering dock.

4. Two of the men attacked had not been on leave while the ship was in Sydney Harbour.

5. The last case—one of typhoid—occurred sixteen days after leaving Cockatoo Island, and therefore within the incubation period.

I have, &c.,

G. TRYON,

Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

Colonial Secretary.—CARRINGTON, 25/4/86. The Medical Adviser.—C.W., B.C., 4/5/86.

Rear-Admiral Fairfax to His Excellency Lord Carrington.

My Lord,

"Nelson," at Sydney, 30 April, 1887.

Having in view the serious nature of the sickness from which the crew of H.M.S. "Swinger" suffered when recently placed in the Fitzroy Dock at Cockatoo Island, when three men lost their lives, and a number of others suffered very seriously from fever, it is a matter of very great importance that the crew of the "Tyne," about to be placed in the same dock, should, if practicable, be removed from the risk of contracting any similar sickness.

I should therefore esteem it as a favour if your Excellency's Government would be so kind as to allow the crew of H.M.S. "Tyne" to live on board the "Wolverene" for the time, and place the "Wolverene" at my disposal for the purpose, if she can be spared.

I have, &c.,

H. FAIRFAX,

Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

The Hon. the Colonial Secretary.—CARRINGTON, 1/5/87. Submitted.—C.W., 2/5/87.

Minute by The Colonial Secretary.

ARE there any particulars of the cause of the illness of the men of the "Swinger"; and, again, can the men of the "Tyne" be removed to the "Wolverene" without serious disturbance to existing arrangements?
H.P., 9/5/87.

Kindly return papers. The Under Secretary for Public Works, B.C., 11/5/87.—C.W. Harbours and Rivers, B.C., 12/5/87.—J.R.

Minute by The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers.

PAPERS herewith. I may mention that so far as my branch is concerned, the state of things complained of is already to a great extent remedied, and a party of men are now engaged in removing the ashes and generally clearing up the dock, but this has been principally due to the action of the Board, which had been previously appointed at my instance, to deal with the management of the dock generally. As soon as the new dock is completed, the whole question of management will have to be revised. In the present transition state of affairs, it is impossible to make things as complete and satisfactory as one could wish.
The Under Secretary for Public Works. E.O.M., 16/5/87.

Submitted.—J.R., 16/5/87. Return to Chief Secretary.—J.S., 19/5/87.

Will the Under Secretary of Public Instruction kindly favour me with an answer to the latter portion of the Colonial Secretary's minute?—C.W., 10/5/87.

Minute by The Under Secretary for Public Instruction.

I do not see any objection to the temporary occupation of the "Wolverene" by the crew of the "Tyne" while the latter vessel is in dock at Cockatoo. There are no "Vernon" boys on board the "Wolverene," which is in charge of Mr. Walker, assisted by two or three men.
The Principal Under Secretary, B.C. G.M., 10/5/87.

Minute by The Principal Under Secretary.

THERE does not appear to be any objection to the removal of the crew of the "Tyne" to the "Wolverene." The report of the medical officer regarding the insanitary condition of Cockatoo Island is herewith submitted, but the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers, who returned the papers on Saturday, states in his memo. that many of the evils complained of have been remedied.

The papers might now be sent on to the naval authorities.

C.W., 23/5/87.

His Excellency.—H.P., 25/5/87. His Excellency the Admiral.—CARRINGTON, 25/5/87.

Minute by The Under Secretary for Public Instruction.

THE within papers relating to the question of the use of the "Wolverene" by the men of the "Tyne" were sent to me this morning by the Principal Under Secretary, in order that the approval of the Minister of Public Instruction to my memo. of the 10th instant might be obtained.

The Minister will doubtless recollect that I showed him what I had written in reply to Mr. Walker's memo., and that he then verbally approved of it.

G.M., 25/5/87.

Mr. Miller's memo. of 10th instant approved.—J.J., 25/5/87.

Rear-Admiral Fairfax to His Excellency Lord Carrington.

My Lord,

H.M.S. "Nelson," at Sydney, 10 July, 1887.

In returning to your Excellency the papers on the insanitary condition of Fitzroy Dock and Cockatoo Island, I beg to enclose some further remarks made, after investigation, by the fleet surgeon of my flagship, as well as a letter from Captain Clayton, expressing his concurrence in them, and making suggestions which, as the "Diamond" has recently been in dock for eight days, are the result of personal observation and experience.

Much has been done since representation was made by my predecessor on 22 March, 1887, of the fatal results on board "Swinger" of fever contracted while in dock, but it will be seen that recommendations made then have not yet been fully carried out, and that further improvement is necessary.

I hope your Excellency will urge the completion of the work well commenced. Stronger reasons than those already given by my predecessor cannot be adduced.

I have, &c.,

H. FAIRFAX,
Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

H.M.S. "Nelson," Sydney, 6 June, 1887.

In compliance with your order of 31 May, 1887, I have to report that having investigated the sanitary condition of Cockatoo Island and dock, I have to submit the following observations:—

1. Bearing in mind the fact that the cool season is now fully established, and that decided improvements have been effected in the sanitary condition of the dock and its immediate surroundings (although the recommendations embodied in Admiral Tryon's communication of the 22nd March, 1887, have not as yet been fully carried out), I am of opinion that there at present present exists no necessity for the hulking of the crew of H.M.S. "Tyne," or any vessels similarly circumstanced, on board the "Wolverene," from the further information which I have acquired during this last examination of the dock and its surroundings. I would venture to suggest that, in addition to the recommendations made in the Commander-in-Chief's letter above referred to, it would be well that an early opportunity be taken to have the interior of the dock thoroughly cleansed under reliable supervision by scrubbing and scraping, and that it be then washed with a solution of sulphate of iron or common whitewash. I would also suggest that before any of our vessels be docked during the summer months it would be well to have the dock re-examined with a view to ascertaining whether all the desired improvements have been carried out in their entirety.

I will now proceed to give in some detail the considerations upon which these opinions are based :—

2. I find that since my last visit in March, 1886, a considerable change for the better has taken place :
 - (a.) Great quantities of rubbish of various sorts with which the ground in the vicinity of the dock was then strewn have recently been removed, leaving a comparatively clean surface.
 - (b.) The latrine for the use of the men belonging to ships in dock, which used to occupy an objectionable position in the boat harbour, and its dangerous proximity to the inlet culvert of the dock, has been demolished, and a new one has been erected on the main south coast line of the island, altogether outside the boat harbour ; while, moreover, this new one is so constructed that the staging on which it rests projects some yards from the beach, thus ensuring a discharge of its contents into deep water at a place where the current of the river makes a clean sweep along the coast. Mr. Young, the engineer superintending the construction of the new dock, whom I interviewed in connection with these matters, informs me that although at present the latrine discharges directly into the sea, he is engaged in designing an iron receptacle which will be fitted below the latrine shoot, and will be used to store the contents until they can be transferred to a punt, which will be made to attend periodically for this purpose.
 - (c.) With regard to the arrangements for the disposal of general refuse, such as ashes, kitchen stuff, &c., a wooden jetty a few yards long has been constructed near the new latrine above mentioned, and it is intended that all such refuse be cast into deep water from the extremity of this jetty. It is to be observed that this jetty is not sufficiently long to fulfil the purpose for which it is intended, for happening to visit the place about the time of low water, I saw that the extremity overhung the shingle of the foreshoot instead of deep water, and there was then, in fact, a collection of objectionable matter lying on the bare stones, and exposed to the direct rays of the sun. This method of disposing of ships' refuse has recently been employed in the case of the "Tyne." I understand that before long a dirt boat will attend at the jetty as well as at the latrine.
 - (d.) There does not appear as yet to be any one person entirely responsible for all sanitary matters on the Island, but Mr. Hayes tells me that he holds himself responsible for all such matters in the vicinity of the dock. As an instance of this, I may mention that on visiting the north side of the Island I ascertained that the main sewer of the Biloela establishment on the hilltop, which ought here to discharge into the sea, is still in the defective condition referred to by Dr. Thompson, the Sanitary Inspector, in his report of 8th March, 1887, and on inquiring if any steps were being taken to remedy this defect, I was told that this sewer, as part of the Biloela establishment, came under the Education Department, and that therefore the Harbours and Rivers Department, which was responsible for the docks alone, could take no action in the matter. As, however, the Biloela establishment is at present vacant, it is not a matter of very great moment, but before the building is again inhabited this affair should be seen to.

3. H.M.S. "Tyne" was in dock from 4 May to 3 June, and has hitherto enjoyed a complete immunity from fever of any kind. It is to be borne in mind, however, that the fevers which have been recorded on board H.M. ships during the last few years, consequent on docking at Cockatoo Island, have occurred during the hot and dry summer months, so that even should that vessel remain free from such illness for three weeks (the maximum incubation period for typhoid) subsequent to her removal from the dock, no guarantee will be thereby afforded that the source of infection has ceased to exist.

4. I observe that in the Report of the Sanitary Inspector dated 8th March, 1887, the opinion is expressed that the fever which occurred among the crew of H.M.S. "Diamond," in March, 1886, was most probably due to the consumption of surface water, taken from a "wayside pool" in the vicinity of the dock, and this statement appears to be based upon the fact that the late engineer of the new dock (a Mr. Mackenzie, who is now up the country) informed him that he had himself seen the men of the "Diamond" drinking water from this pool. I think it right to mention that the possibility of typhoid having been contracted in this way, viz., by the direct ingestion of sewage contaminated water, was fully considered by the medical officers of H.M. ships whose men suffered from this fever during the last two years, and that it was only after finding the evidence on this point so strong as to completely negative all possibility of the fever having been thus contracted that their attention was directed towards ascertaining how it could have been contracted by the more unusual method, viz., by exhalations from decomposing organic matter. On this subject the medical officers of H.M. ships "Myrmidon" and "Diamond," whose men suffered more or less severely from the influence of docking at Cockatoo Island, state that they had in vain sought for any evidence of their men having consumed any of this sewage water, and that in case of the men who were attacked with fever they were convinced that no such water had been used. The men of the "Myrmidon" and "Diamond," used only water from their ships' tanks, while the men of the "Swinger" used water from a tank at the south-west corner of the carpenter's shed—a tank which is supplied only by rain water from the roof of that shed and has no connection whatever with the surface water trickling from the cliff below the Biloela establishment which Dr. Thompson evidently refers to in his report. I may add that the practice just mentioned on the part of the "Swinger's" crew is not, in my opinion, one to be commended. In my report of 19 March, 1886, I called attention to the water supply from the cliff, and its presumably contaminated source, with a view to showing its unfitness for human consumption, a fact which is so patent to any observer that I can hardly conceive the circumstances occurring under which any man-of-war's man could be tempted to use it. Mr. Hayes, the dock master, informs me that he has never seen any man-of-war's man take water from the niche or horse-trough on the north side of the head of the dock which Dr. Thompson refers to, and he further states that it is unusual for any water to be found in this place during the dry summer months, when the ships whose crews suffered from the fever have been docked. As, however, the question has been raised, I have requested Mr. Hayes to have a notice posted up over the trough to the effect that the water is unfit for drinking purposes.

5. I have already mentioned that the latrine near the inlet culvert of the dock has been demolished. This measure prevents any further pollution of the boats' cove, and is to my mind a most important step towards improving the sanitary condition of the dock ; but it is right to point out that the accumulation of filth which has been going on in this stagnant pool for years will not, in the ordinary course of things, speedily be dissipated, and it is greatly to be regretted that the authorities cannot see their way to provide for the filling of the dock from some other source. The Engineer (Mr. Young) informs me that the boat's cove must remain, but says that his Department are willing to entertain some scheme for dredging the pool. Better far would it be to close up this culvert altogether, and construct a filling sluice in the body of the iron caisson at the entrance to the dock.

6. Among the papers submitted to me on this subject reference is made to a report by a Harbours and Rivers Department Board, which, however, I have not had the advantage of seeing.

I have, &c.,

R. W. COPPINGER, M.D.,
Fleet Surgeon.

Captain Atwell Lake, H.M.S. "Nelson."

Forwarded for the information of the Commander-in-Chief.—ATWELL LAKE, Captain, 6 June, 1887.

Captain Clayton to Rear-Admiral Fairfax.

Sir,

"Diamond," at Sydney, 2 July, 1887.

In accordance with paragraph 3 of your memo. of 15 June, 1887, I beg to add the following for further improvements in Fitzroy Dock :—

1. The stone-work of the sides and bottom is worn into holes, holding dirt and slimy matter which cannot be removed by washing down. I would suggest that these holes be filled in flush with cement, and that the joints of the masonry be repointed.

2. To prevent the surface water running over or draining into the dock concrete is much required to form the roadway alongside the dock, with suitable channels for the surface water to run off.

3. The outlet from the officer's latrine should be carried below low-water-mark. I fully concur in all the report made by Dr. Coppinger. There is a great improvement generally in the sanitary state of the dock premises since I was last here, but the present staff of labourers (three in number) is not sufficient to keep the dock and adjacent premises clean.

I have, &c.,
FRANCIS S. CLAYTON,
Captain.

This may perhaps be referred to the Medical Adviser.—C.W., 18/7/87. Approved.—H.P., 18/7/87. The Medical Adviser to the Government.—C.W., B.C., 19 July, 1887. Papers considered at meetings of the Board of Health held on the 27th July and 3rd August, 1887. Resolution passed.—E.S.

The Secretary of the Board of Health to The Principal Under Secretary.

Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street,

Sir,

Sydney, 4 August, 1887.

I have the honor to inform you that the enclosed papers relating to the insanitary condition of Cockatoo Island were taken into consideration at a meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday, when it was resolved that the following should be a recommendation to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary:—

That in order to render the Fitzroy Dock innocuous to the crews of vessels lying in it, it is necessary that one responsible officer should be placed in control, and made answerable for general cleanliness of the dock and its surroundings; that the boat harbour which has not been shown to be necessary should be reclaimed; that the round-house within its horns should be removed; and that the filling sluice should be so constructed as to take in pure water only.

That it is necessary both in order to render the Island healthy, and as being supplementary to the foregoing, that the officer referred to should be made responsible for the general scavenging and cleanliness of the Island; that a properly constructed system of sewers should be laid down to carry slop water only, and having an outfall into deep water and the steadiest current within reach; that a scavenging service should be organized and all faecal matter, house refuse, sweepings, &c., should be destroyed by fire, and that the present water-tanks should be emptied and examined to see whether they are, or can be made, water-tight, and effectually protected from inflow of surface water; and if not, that arrangements for condensing water in sufficient quantity should be made; and that such condensed water should be stored in overground tanks only.

I have, &c.,
EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

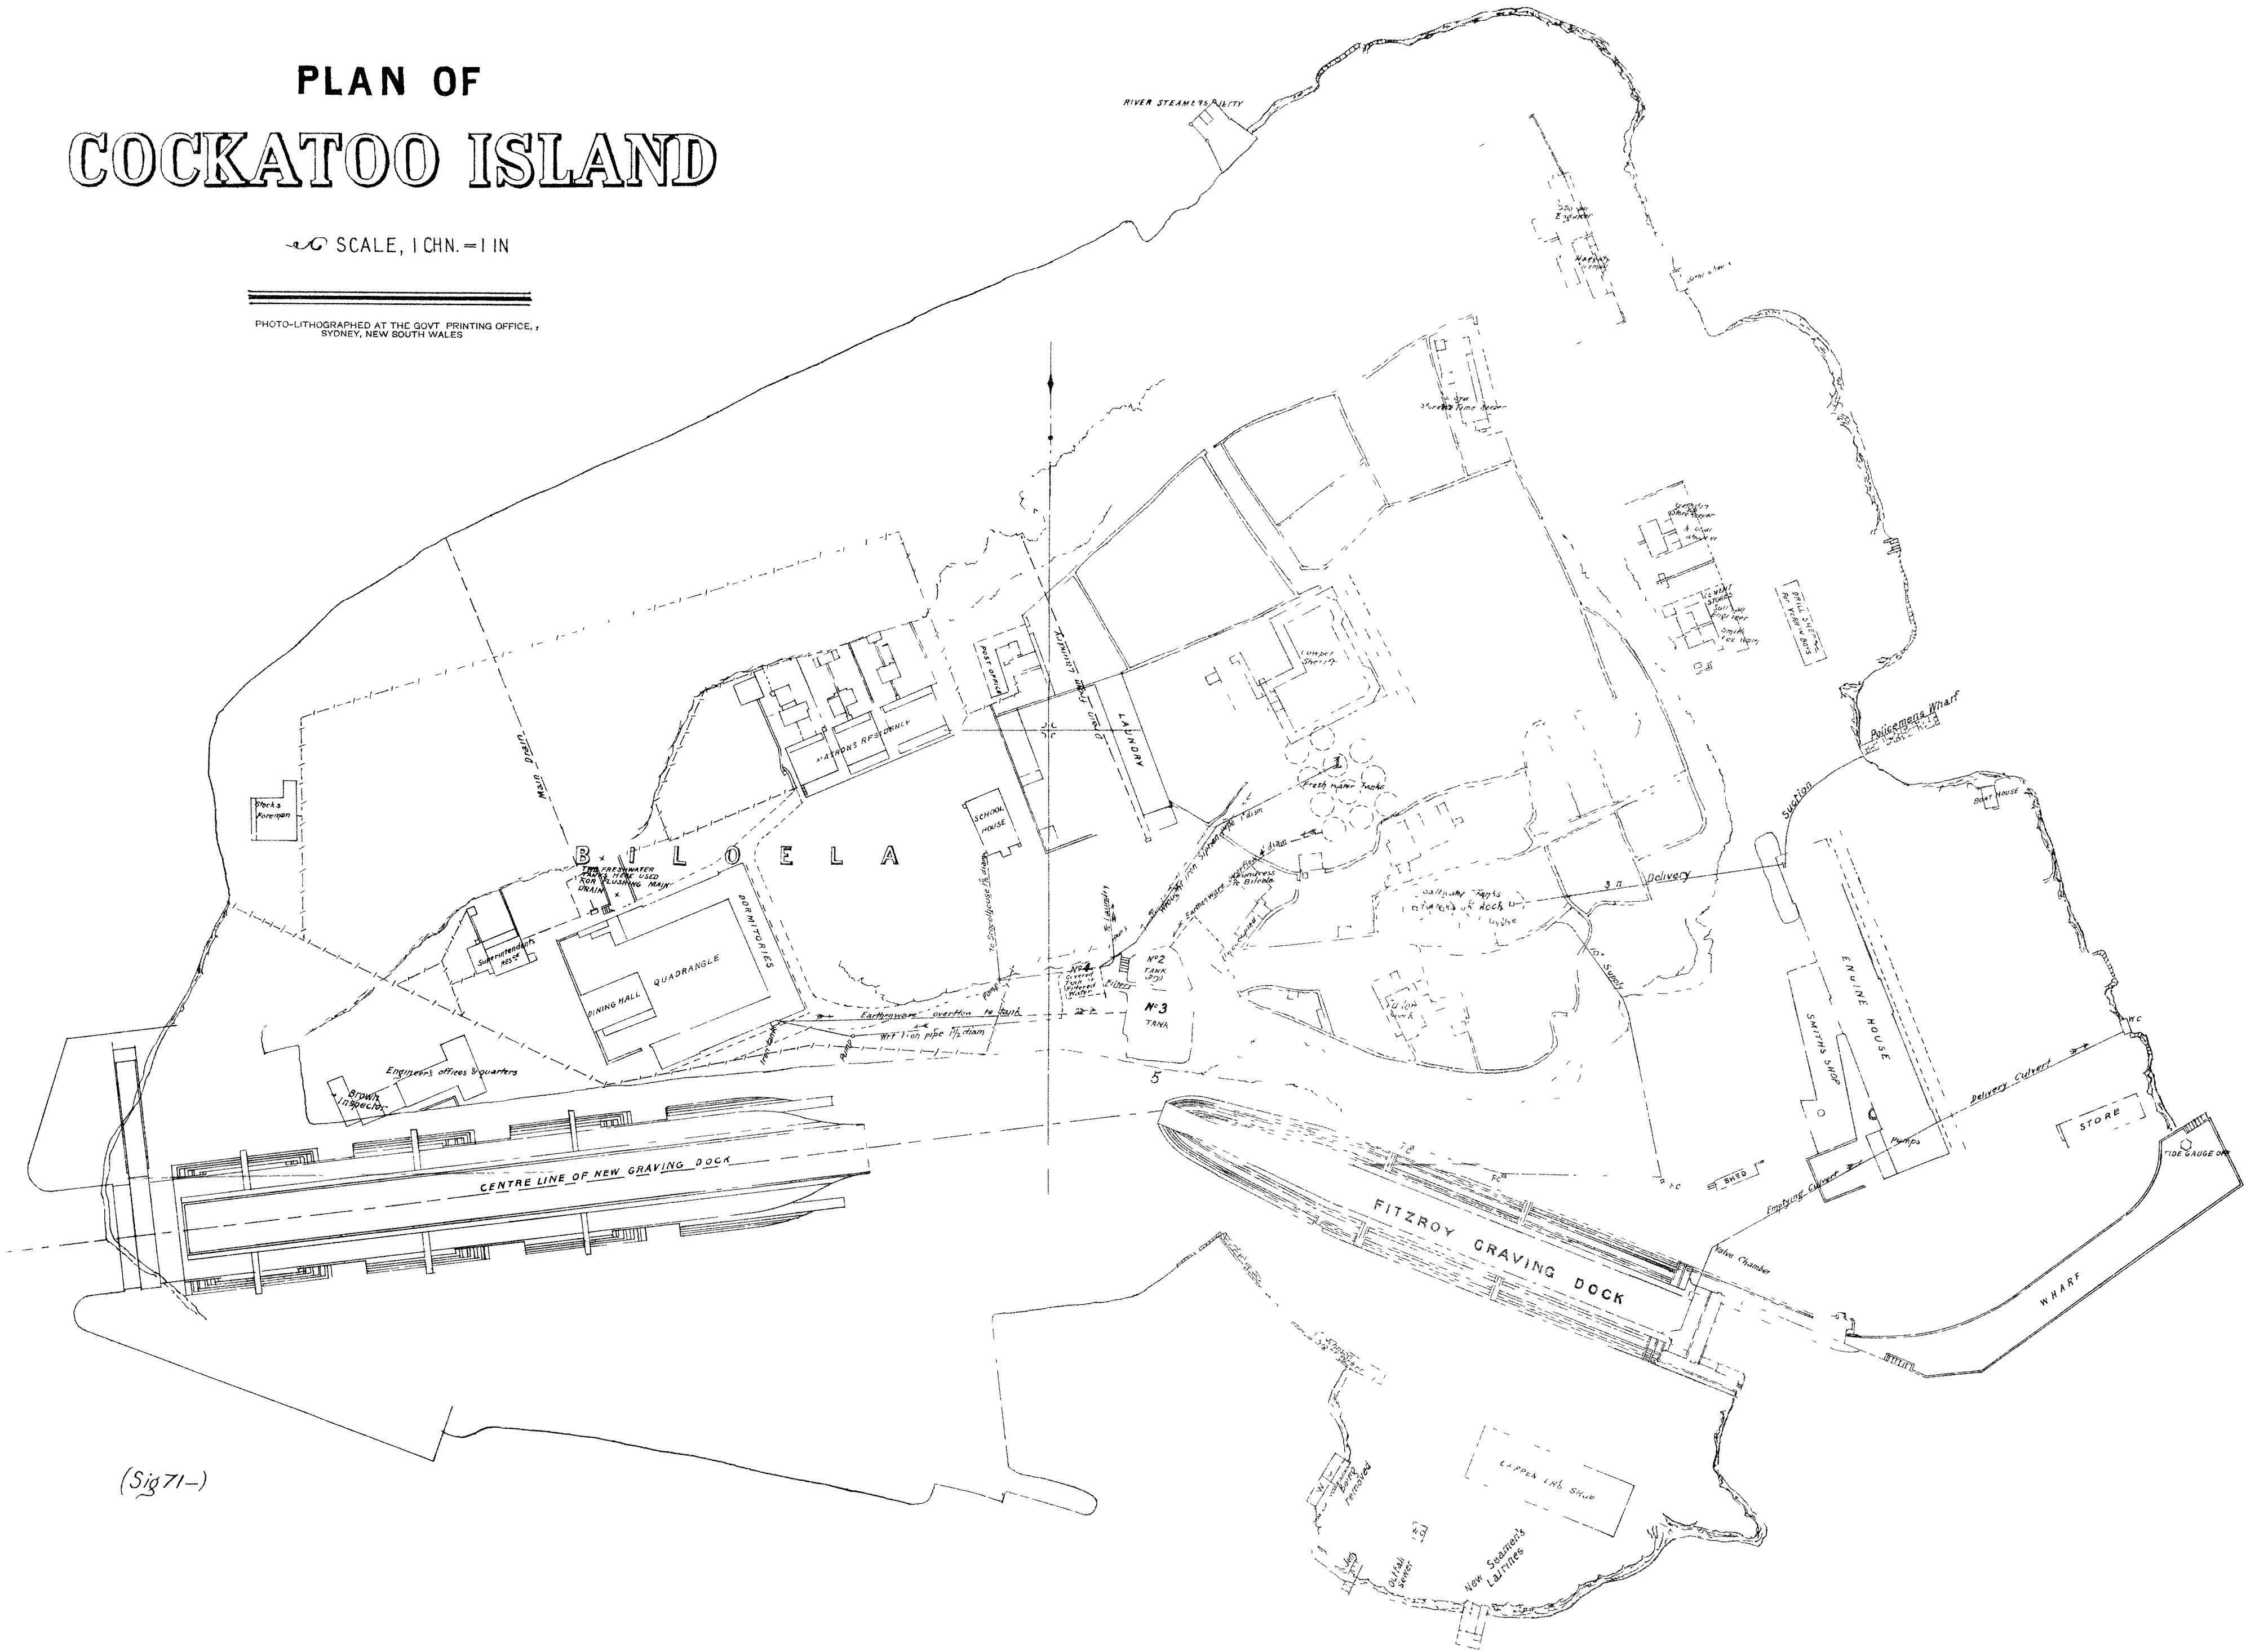

This is a matter in which the attention of the Works Department should be invited.—C.W. The Secretary for Public Works.—H.P., 6/8/87. The Under Secretary for Public Works.—C.W., B.C., 8 August, 1887. Harbours and Rivers, B.C., 9/8/87.—J.R.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CITY OF SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT BOARD.

(EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 2 November, 1887.

City of Sydney Improvement Board,
Offices, 35, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 31 August, 1887.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary,—

Sir,

We have the honor to submit a report for the Board year, ended 31st August, 1887.

Two members of the Board—Mr. Benjamin Backhouse (architect) and Mr. William Bailey, J.P. (builder)—having been granted leave of absence, have temporarily left the Colony:

The City of Sydney Improvement Act requiring that of the five members constituting the Board one shall be a professional architect and one a practical builder—Mr. Harry Chambers Kent (architect) and Mr. John William Harris (builder) were, upon the recommendation of the Board, and with your concurrence, appointed by the Governor-in-Council to be acting members during the absence on leave of the before-named gentlemen.

Twenty-two meetings of the Board have been held; twenty-nine references from the City Building Surveyor, under the 27th and 29th sections of the Act, have been received and disposed of; and one appeal was heard—thirty-five buildings and erections of various descriptions having been dealt with.

The Board regret that, owing to the imperfections of the City of Sydney Improvement Act, they considered that they had not power to deal with a number of references, also received from the same officer, in respect of an objectionable and dangerous class of structures abounding in the city, and used as fruit, refreshment, and coffee stalls. These erections are constructed of wood, and in many instances form part of advertising hoardings, nearly as undesirable, to which they are usually attached; they are a description of building which, in the opinion of the Board, it was one of the objects in view in framing the present Act to get rid of, being constructed in direct violation of its provisions, and certainly they are not provided for in any of its schedules; they are a disgrace to the metropolitan city, but still remain, and their number is on the increase, the Board being powerless to prevent their erection or to effect their removal. These buildings which, in most instances, have gas and water laid on, are built (with some exceptions) on foundations, and it is well known, are erected without the authority or sanction required by the City of Sydney Improvement Act in respect of buildings of every description within the city.

Regarding the hampered and unsatisfactory position in which the Board still find themselves placed, owing to the numerous defects and deficiencies in the Act, so frequently and prominently brought under notice in each of the seven preceding annual reports, and whenever any other opportunity presented itself, the Board can now only again invite attention to their former oft-repeated representations, believing it to be superfluous to recapitulate the many difficulties they have to contend against which, from time to time, have been vividly reviewed, together with the proposed alterations in the Act deemed to be necessary in order to effect the much-needed improvement, and to make the Board a more effective body, as well as to open up for their action a more extended sphere of usefulness.

[1,217 copies—Approximate Cost of Printing (labour and material), £2 1s. 10d.]

Quite

Quite recently (on 29th July last) a deputation from the Board waited upon you, and gave you a brief outline of what had previously been done since June, 1880 (when a Bill to amend the existing Act was introduced by you), towards applying or seeking a remedy for the state of affairs complained of, and the disabilities under which the Board labour; they then once more urged the pressing necessity for legislative action on the subject, draft amending Bills prepared by the Board having already more than once been submitted for consideration, and you then promised to give special attention to the whole subject in the light of the explanations made.

The Board have also several times conferred with the City Corporation upon the subject of the deficiencies in the City of Sydney Improvement Act, and with a view to co-operating as to its proposed amendment; at the last interview held His Worship the Mayor stated that he considered the Act required amending, and that increased power to effect the improvement of the city should be obtained from Parliament.

Having done everything practicable to make known the defects, constructive and otherwise, and the deficiencies of the Act, and the remedies in their opinion required, the Board feel that they have not failed in their duty, and that at present they are unable to do more than await some definite action on the part of the Government; but they desire to express the earnest hope that such action will not much longer be delayed, and that during the present session of Parliament some measure to bring about the much-needed reform will be introduced.

During the remainder of the term for which Mr. Benjamin Backhouse had been appointed Chairman of the Board, Dr. Craig Dixson, F.R.C.S., E., was elected to succeed him in that capacity.

We have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servants,

CRAIG DIXSON, M.D., F.R.C.S., E.,

Chairman.

GRANTS TO MUNICIPALITIES.

(RETURN RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 23 July, 1888.

[Return prepared in fulfilment of a promise made by the Honorable J. F. Burns, for the Secretary for Public Works, in answer to a question by Mr. Crouch, M.P., dated the 21st June.]

QUESTIONS.

- (6.) Grants to Municipalities:—Mr. Crouch asked the Secretary for Public Works,—
- (1.) As the "Mileage Vote" is not available this year for such portions of main Government roads as may be within the limits of country municipalities (the distance having been altered between towns), is it a fact that a number of roads proclaimed as "main roads" have for years been maintained by the Government, although within municipal boundaries?
 - (2.) Will he take steps to proclaim as main roads such other roads as may fairly be entitled to be so recognized?
 - (3.) Is Unwin's Bridge, for which £2,000 is voted in the Schedule, within the boundaries of a municipality?
 - (4.) Are the following roads and streets, for which amounts are specified hereunder in Schedule, within municipal limits, viz.:—Union-street, Adamstown, £600; road, Wickham, £700; Kingsgrove Road, £1,000; Military Road, £1,000; Spit Road, £1,000; Lane Cove to Pittwater, £500; approach, Fig-tree Bridge, Lane Cove, £500; Lane Cove Road (metalling), £1,000; roads, Botany, £1,500; Missenden Road, £500?
 - (5.) Is it not usual to refuse all similar requests from country municipalities for Government roads, or portions thereof, within their boundaries?

ANSWERS.

- (1.) The main roads specified in the last proclamation are maintained by the Government, but in special cases subsidies as voted on the Estimates are paid to the Municipal Councils if they consent to accept the same.
- (2.) It is not considered desirable to increase the number of main roads.
- (3.) No; one-half is within Municipality of St. Peter's, and the remainder of bridge is outside municipal limits.
- (4.) Union-street, Adamstown, £600; within municipality; for approach to railway platform. Road, Wickham, £700; within municipality; road lies partly along reserves. Kingsgrove Road, £1,000; within municipality of Hurstville; it is an approach to the railway line. Military Road, £1,000; part of the defences. Spit Road, £1,000; part of the defences, and constructed to give work to the unemployed. Lane Cove to Pittwater, £500; outside municipal limits. Approach to Fig Tree Bridge, £500; approach to a bridge for which funds have been specially voted, to be ultimately charged against Field of Mars Common account. Lane Cove Road, metalling, £1,000; this is a proclaimed main road. Roads, Botany, £1,000; at time money was voted these roads were outside municipal limits. Missenden Road, £500; boundary of Government property.
- (5.) Unless under exceptional circumstances it is considered that the endowment to the municipalities relieves the Government of all responsibility for roads within municipal limits.

Claim for Endowment.

THE points raised here are of considerable importance, and not free from difficulty. Kerbing and guttering I consider quite within the scope of "corporate purposes," entitling, under 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 189, to endowment, kerbing and guttering being objects for which the municipalities are specially empowered by the 153rd clause to make by-laws. I am inclined also to think that expenditure, or rather subscriptions, for the purpose of gas-lighting within the municipality, form a legitimate claim for endowment. Sec. 153 authorizes making by-laws for gas-lighting, and sec. 165 empowers rates for that purpose. (inter alia), which places such expenditure or subscription within the category of "corporate purposes" under the 189th sec. I do not think the fact of the subscriptions being by Road Trustees in place of private individuals makes any difference.

New fences to private properties stand on quite a different footing, and I think subscriptions for that purpose do not fall within the "corporate purposes" contemplated in the Act, and that obtaining Government endowment for such purpose is an evasion of the Act.

I confess, however, that although my opinion is very strong on these points, I would not act upon it without the case being referred to the Crown Solicitor, as much depends on the legal interpretations of the clauses in the Act, which a layman often fails to appreciate, contenting himself more with the equity or apparent intention. I have not failed to notice the allegations that the old fences had slightly overreached on the alignment, but there is not sufficient proof that they had done so to render it to corporate benefit to remove them at the Corporation and Government expense.

In re the claim of the Municipality of St. Peters, Cook's River, for endowment.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 8 May, 1876.

I have the honor to return, herewith, Treasury minute in this matter, bearing date the 19th February last, and the papers relating to the subject of such minute, and to state that I have laid them all before Mr. Attorney-General Dalley, who has been pleased to write an opinion in the matter, a copy of which I send you with this letter.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,
Crown Solicitor.

[Enclosure.]

Opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General.

In re the claim of Municipality of St. Peters, Cook's River, for endowment.

MY honorable colleague, the Colonial Treasurer, has forwarded for my information a Treasury minute concerning the claim for endowment of the Municipality of St. Peters, Cook's River, together with an abstract of the revenue and expenditure of such municipality for the half-year ended the 2nd August, 1875.

I have also had forwarded to me an explanatory letter from the Council Clerk of the municipality, addressed to the Treasurer, giving certain information with regard to the particulars of contributions for corporate purposes included in the Abstract of Revenue and Expenditure, and another letter from one of the aldermen of the municipality, protesting against certain proceedings of the Council Clerk. No case has been specifically stated for my opinion; but I presume it is desired that I should advise generally as to whether any or all of these contributions are of such a character as to entitle the municipality to the endowment for corporate purposes from the Consolidated Revenue in the proportion provided for by 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 189. It will be necessary that I should examine these items with the view of advising the Government as to whether they are subscriptions paid up for corporate purposes within the meaning of the Act.

The 189th section of the Act provides that "on or before the 31st March and the 30th September in every year the Council of every municipality shall cause to be prepared and transmitted to the Colonial Treasurer, a detailed account of all sums of money actually raised therein by rates and all subscriptions paid up for corporate purposes during the last past half of the late year, or of the current year, or the fraction of a year, as herein provided for, such account to be signed by the Mayor, and countersigned by the treasurer of the municipality. And upon receipt of such account it shall be lawful for the Governor, by warrant under his hand addressed to the Colonial Treasurer, to direct him to pay from the Consolidated Revenue to the Treasurer of the municipality, by way of endowment for corporate purposes, according to the provisions of this Act, &c., &c."

It was manifestly the intention of the Legislature to encourage by this provision the action of rate-payers, within municipalities, to make contributions towards the general public purposes, for the accomplishment of which it was deemed expedient to provide more effectually for the establishment of municipalities. It never could have been intended by the Legislature that what are called contributions for corporate purposes should include several of the transactions which appear in the abstract before me, and which are explained by the letter of the council clerk.

The various sums of £35, £30, £10, £40, £30, and £50 subscribed, as it is alleged, by Messrs. Rose, Gannon, Cook, Bond, Cozens, and Terry towards the cost of removing old and substituting new fences opposite the respective properties of these persons, do not appear to me in any way to entitle the municipality to endowment for such subscriptions.

I

I cannot see what general public advantage can be derived from any such expenditure, nor why it should be supposed that the Consolidated Revenue should be charged with the performance of work which can only be advantageous to the individuals who obtained new instead of old fencing. I can readily understand how, in the case of a ratepayer who (anxious for the improvement of his Municipality) pays into its Treasury a sum of money for the construction or repair of a bridge, for the opening of a public road or way, for taking any steps for enclosing places in the Municipality where public safety is likely to be endangered, or for many of the purposes set forth in section 153, an indisputable claim is made out for endowment money from the Government, for this is a contribution on behalf of an object which is of an equal interest to the whole body of ratepayers. And I have little hesitation in laying down as a rule that what is intended by the words "Subscriptions paid up for corporate purposes" in section 189 is such subscriptions as have for their object the accomplishment of a public corporate purpose in which all the ratepayers are interested, and by the attainment of which they will all be benefited. I consequently am of opinion that the Government should sanction no endowment on the amount of the various items specified in the abstract as contributions for this purpose.

I am also of opinion that the Municipal Council is entitled to no endowment for subscriptions for corporate purposes from persons or trusts not within the Municipality. I perceive that three sums of £26 2s. 6d. each were subscribed by the trustees of the Cook's River Road towards defraying the costs incurred in the Municipality of St. Peters in lighting such road, so far as it is within the municipality, with gas; I do not think that this is a subscription within the meaning of the Act. To hold that it is so might lead to such a state of things as this: that any trust outside the municipality might hand over large sums to the municipality, sums utterly disproportionate, either to the necessities of the municipality or to its claims upon the public Treasury, and the Government would be compelled to give equal sums, by way of endowment, during the first five years of the incorporation of such municipality.

The same observations will apply to the sums subscribed by the trustees of the Cook's River Road for kerbing and guttering a portion of the road within the municipality.

It seems to me that the attention of the Government ought to be immediately directed to the case of this municipality, and of any others in which the contributions for corporate purposes are so excessively disproportionate to the rates received. In the abstract submitted the rates received in both wards amount in all to only £96 18s. 4d., while the contributions for corporate purposes amount to £333 1s. 3d.

It could never have been the intention of the Legislature to endow to the extent of £436 17s. 8d., for the half-year, a municipality which only taxed itself to the extent of £96 18s. 4d.

I have endeavoured to deal (as far as I am enabled to understand from these papers what it is desired that I should advise upon) with the case of this municipality, and I think it is of the highest importance in the administration of the Act to be excessively vigilant in resisting a tendency to lighten municipal taxation by imposing upon the general public burdens which should be as local as the advantages derived from the expenditure which has created them. The Consolidated Revenue can only be resorted to by ratepayers who have, for public corporate purposes, taxed themselves, and cannot be made use of either to minister to the private advantage of members of municipalities, or to the endowment of such bodies to the extent of five times the sum at which they have taxed themselves.

WILLIAM B. DALLEY,
Attorney-General.

Crown Law Offices, 6 May, 1876.

Case of the Municipality of Leichhardt.

No. 1.

Minute of the Treasury Examiner.

THE Municipality of Leichhardt has included in the application herewith two subscriptions amounting to £1,789 15s. 8d., received from a company in Sydney, presumably for improvements to property owned by the company in the borough, on which endowment is claimed. In submitting this matter for the Treasurer's decision I may state it appears to me most doubtful that endowment can legally be paid on the amounts in question, contributed as they are by a "business association" without the municipality.

Section 189 of the Act 31 Vic. No. 12 provides that "the Council of every municipality shall cause to be prepared and transmitted to the Colonial Treasurer a detailed account of all sums of money actually raised therein by rates and subscriptions paid up for corporate purposes." The words actually raised therein would signify that endowment is payable only on subscriptions paid up for corporate purposes by persons residing within the municipality. If therefore the intention of the Act is to endow local subscriptions only, the amounts under consideration are, I presume, inadmissible.

My attention having been directed to an opinion given by the Attorney-General (Mr. Dalley) on 6th May, 1876, in the case of the Municipality of St. Peters,—“That no endowment for subscriptions for corporate purposes from persons or trusts not within the municipality, can be allowed”—the items objected to by Mr. Cantor must be struck out.

Case of the Municipality of Merewether.

No. 1.

Minute of The Treasury Examiner.

THE Mayor should be requested to state, in reference to the contribution of £500, if Mr. E. C. Merewether, the contributor of that amount, is a resident of the Municipality, if he has a personal interest in the advancement thereof, and if the money is intended for the general improvement of the Municipality, and any other particulars he may be pleased to afford.

No. 2.

The Mayor of Merewether to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

Council Chambers, Merewether, 27 September, 1886.

In reply to yours of the 24th instant, I beg to inform you that Mr. Merewether is not a resident and has not been for the past five or six years. 2. Mr. Merewether is the owner of the Burwood Estate and about 1,100 acres of land; in fact the whole of the Municipality is on the Burwood Estate, except 35 acres of Glebe land held in trust for Church purposes. The £500 was given for corporate purposes, to which it is being applied, viz., the making of roads, bridges, streets, and drainage, and with a distinct understanding that no portion of it was to be applied to litigation, and that it is in compliance with section 189 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and entitles this Municipality to the full endowment. No. 3 is answered by No. 2. But I may say the money is being applied for the general improvement of the Municipality of Merewether.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 1 February, 1888.

I have the honor to return herewith the papers relating to the above matter which were forwarded to me from your Department on the 20th day of January, 1888, and to state that I have submitted them to Mr. Attorney-General Wise, a copy of whose advising thereon will be found below.

Opinion of Mr. Attorney-General Wise.

I SEE no reason for altering the practice established by the Leichhardt case, which was founded upon the opinion of Mr. Attorney-General Dalley. I think, therefore, the Municipality of Merewether has no claim at law for an amount from the Consolidated Revenue equal to the voluntary contribution of Mr. Merewether.

Case of the Municipality of Canterbury.

No. 1.

Minute of The Acting Treasury Examiner.

THE Canterbury Municipality included in the Statement of Rates and Subscriptions for the half-year ended 1st August, 1887, a sum of £100, subscribed by Messrs. Davis and Clissold, as directors of the Canterbury Racecourse Company, for metalling part of a street which passes the racecourse. Acting on numerous precedents, based on an opinion given by Mr. Attorney-General Dalley (herewith), I disallowed this amount as being a subscription from "persons or trusts not within the municipality," the Mayor admitting in his letter of the 14th October that these gentlemen did not reside in Canterbury. There is also another aspect of the case, viz., as this street is the principal if not the only approach to the racecourse, it is essential to the success of the course that that portion of the street, used in going to and from the course and the local railway station, should be kept in a thorough state of repair, therefore it may reasonably be expected that the Company will be compelled, in their own interest, to periodically assist the municipality in renewing this part of the street; and of course the Government will be called upon to subsidize all such amounts, which, it must be admitted, are given primarily for the benefit of the Racecourse Company. The Mayor now protests against the endowment (£50) on the above amount (£100) being withheld, on the ground that one of the Company, Mr. Foord, does reside in the municipality; but as this appears to me to be a parallel case to that of the Leichhardt Municipality (papers herewith), where large sums were disallowed by the then Colonial Treasurer, Mr. Dibbs, I therefore submit the matter for the decision of the hon. the Treasurer as to whether he considers this amount should be paid.

Subject:—Claims of Municipality of "Merewether" and "Canterbury."

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 20 January, 1888.

THE action of the Treasury, in a case presumed to be analogous, in principle, to those above stated, namely, the "Leichhardt Case," and which has been treated by the Treasury as a leading case, was based upon the opinion of Mr. Attorney-General Dalley, of date 6th May, 1876, herewith, as stated at pages 2 and 3 to the end. W. L. Davis, Esq., M.P., to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Hurstmonceaux, Petersham, 12 March, 1888.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your communication of 7th inst., and must confess my surprise at the decision of the Honorable the Attorney-General respecting the endowment to the Canterbury Municipal Council, the case in question being a thoroughly bona fide one.

I enclose herewith for your perusal copy of letter forwarded to the said council by the secretary of the Canterbury Park Race Club on the 25th February, 1887, offering the sum of £100, which was accepted and subsequently paid in the names of Mr. F. Clissold and myself as trustees to the club, and I think it will at once convince you that the money was given and expended for a legitimate purpose, and if endowment is not allowed in a case of this kind I respectfully submit that any charitable donation given by a person residing out of the locality in which the institution is situated would in like manner not be entitled.

I trust, however, on reconsideration of the matter you will see fit to order the amount claimed to be paid over to the Canterbury Council, for although Mr. F. Clissold and myself both reside outside of the borough boundaries we are both large ratepayers in the borough outside of the property in question.

I beg also to draw your attention to the fact that the trustees of the Ashfield Park have not been advised as to what bank the balance of moneys due to them have been placed in, and may I respectfully request that you will give this matter your earliest attention and advise them accordingly.

I have, &c.,

WM. LOVEL DAVIS.

I am directed by the Committee of the Canterbury Park Race Club to inform you that in the event of your Council carrying out the following works they will be willing to contribute the sum of one hundred pounds (£100) towards their cost, viz. :—

Forming and metalling King-street, from the termination of the present metal to the culvert near south-east corner of Racecourse.

Metalling King-street, from the present metal at north end to junction of Goodlet-street.

Mr. Attorney-General Simpson's Opinion.

In re Municipality of Canterbury's claim to endowment.

I HAVE considered this case, which was submitted to me on the 24th April, in accordance with a memo. of the Colonial Treasurer upon a letter of Mr. Davis of the 12th March last.

Without entering into the question of how far the claim of the Council is governed by the opinion of Mr. Attorney-General Wise in the Merewether case, or that of Mr. Attorney-General Dalley in the St. Peter's case, I am of opinion that the contribution of the Canterbury Park Race Club being for the carrying out of certain specified work to portions of specified streets is not a subscription paid up for corporate purposes (that is, general corporate purposes) within the meaning of section 189 of the Municipalities Act; and that, consequently, the claim of the Council to a sum of money by way of endowment in respect of the contribution ought not to be complied with.

Request petitioners to nominate suitable persons as auditors.—C.W., 12/2/88.

Telegram from the Mayor of Forbes to The Colonial Secretary.

9 February, 1888.

FIND that petition for special audit of Forbes Municipal Accounts has been sent to His Excellency the Governor. Ratepayers generally very much opposed to same. Indignation meeting to be held, and petition against the unnecessary expense to be forwarded. Many signatures to petition to special audit obtained by misrepresentation, and no just cause can be given for requiring such audit.

The Principal Under Secretary to H. H. Cooke, Esq., M.P.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 February, 1888.

Referring to the petition presented by you from certain electors of the Municipal District of Forbes, praying that special auditors may be appointed to audit the accounts of that Municipality, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to request that the petitioners will be good enough to submit the names of two suitable gentlemen to hold the proposed audit.

I have, &c.,

CRITCHETT WALKER,
Principal Under Secretary.

Memorial.

To the Right Honorable Baron Carrington, K.C.M.G., Governor of New South Wales.

The memorial of the Mayor and Council of the Municipal District of Forbes humbly sheweth,—

Firstly. That your memorialists are aware that a petition from certain ratepayers of Forbes has been presented to your Excellency asking that a special audit of the books of the Forbes Municipal Council may be made.

Secondly. That upon ascertaining the above fact your memorialists met and passed the following resolution, viz.:—"That a communication be sent to His Excellency the Governor of the Colony showing that the special audit asked for by a certain section of the ratepayers of this Municipality is certainly unnecessary, and absolutely unwarrantable, inasmuch as no circumstances have arisen, and no reason can be assigned by the petitioners to justify the demand for a special audit of the Council's accounts, and that the action of such petitioners can only be attributed to a spirit of spleen and vexatiousness."

In addition to the above objections, your memorialists are in a position to state that the canvasser for signatures had great difficulty in obtaining the requisite number, that many were obtained by misrepresentation, and also that your memorialists have every confidence in the integrity of their officers, and the ability of the gentlemen who have audited the accounts, the present auditors being men of high commercial standing, holding the responsible position of bank managers in this town.

Your memorialists also desire to draw your attention to the fact that they have recently, on account of the insufficiency of funds for carrying out necessary works, been compelled to reduce the salaries of their officers, and the cost of a special audit (which could serve no useful purpose) would be a severe tax upon the resources of the Council.

In

*In the interests of the ratepayers, and of the well-being of the Council generally, your memorialists therefore pray that you will be pleased to refuse the prayer of the petition referred to till the petitioners are in a position to show some reasonable grounds for plunging the Council into the expense of a special audit.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c., &c.
Signed on behalf of the Municipal Council of Forbes,

HORACE C. SANDFORD,
Mayor of Forbes.

Forbes, February 16, 1888.

Chief Clerk, 21.

About forty ratepayers of Forbes ask, without assigning a reason for a special audit of the Municipal accounts. The Mayor has represented that no circumstances have arisen to warrant such a course, and strongly protests against it. It is presumed that the special audit will therefore be refused.—E.W.M., 22/2/88.

Under this representation perhaps no further steps should be taken at present.—C.W., 22/2/88.
Stand over, 23/2/88.

Sir,

Council Chambers, Forbes, 17 February, 1888.

I am directed by the Municipal Council of Forbes to apply to you for a copy of the memorial sent to His Excellency the Governor by a number of ratepayers of this Municipality, asking for a special audit of the books and accounts of the Forbes Municipal Council, which memorial was presented a few days ago by H. Mr. Richard Jenkins to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Forbes, 28 February, 1888.

Mr. Cooke, M.P., has handed me your telegram of the 27th inst., to the following effect, "Letter to you posted on Saturday asking petitioners to state reasons for appointment of special auditors, Forbes." This letter has not come to Mr. Cooke's hands yet.

Your letter to Mr. Cooke of 14th instant requests "That the petitioners submit the names of two suitable gentlemen to hold the proposed audit."

I most respectfully submit that this is an absolute grant of the special audit as applied for. No reasons were asked for then, why request such a thing now?

I do not see that you have any occasion to request reasons to be assigned for the special audit already granted, vide 31 Victoria No. 12, section 184.

The petitioners object for not setting forth reasons for such a special audit must be obvious to you

We, however, submit for your perusal copies of local newspapers, in which are published various correspondence from ratepayers, questioning the accuracy of the statements of the municipal accounts at Forbes, and the statements otherwise.

You will observe the matter in italics, and kindly note the same. The letters and items challenging the correctness of the balance-sheets are up to the present twice totally uncontradicted.

We have not thought it necessary to furnish you with any information prior to 1886, as we believe you will see since that time that there is quite sufficient matter before you for the special audit already granted.

I have, &c.,

RICHARD JENKINS,

Solicitor for the Petitioners.

To the Editor.

Sir,

A statement was made by Alderman Hutchinson re the Water Works balance sheet, and my letter on the same, which both papers omitted to report, viz., "That through the items in the balance-sheet not being properly extended, it was made to appear that a loss to the Council had resulted from the water scheme, whereas they had paid their way and been able to expend £399 ls. of water-rates in extending the reticulation." So far so good; if such is the case, what is Alderman Hutchinson doing to allow such an erroneous statement to be published. I thought that all the errors in the statement were made by your contemporary, but his corrected statement showed nothing of this. Why you omitted to publish the aforesaid remarks I cannot imagine, but it looks very like as if your contemporary dare not. After all it seems that my three responsible persons were in error. Another little item as a debit omitted in my former, through not wishing to lay it on too thick. From August 2nd, 1882, till December 31st, 1885, is three years and nearly five months, during which the Council have held Mr. Stokes' £5,000 at six per cent. By a rough calculation this interest amounts to £1,023 16s. 8d. from which deduct £654 13s. as per corrected statement, leaving a further deficit to be added to my former one thus—loss as per profit and loss £166 17s. 7d.; further loss originally appearing as an error £30 0s. 7d.; depreciation £354 6s. 6d. (too little by far, considering that the pumps are not reliable even now); interest owing Mr. Stokes, £362 3s. 8d.; total, £920 8s. 4d., a nice little sum, truly, when we are told that we are paying our way, and have made £399 ls. expended in reticulation. It is no use mincing matters, the account is bungled, and appearances indicate that those who were so lavish in their promises of looking after the ratepayers' money, are quite content to let it remain so, so long as the Forbes Municipal milch cow can supply sufficient to carry on with, and find billets for their friends. Like Alderman Baldoock, whom your contemporary, true to his instincts, sat upon, I believe that the statement that assisted to raise the Clerk's salary, appears to be cooked, and this is evidently the same or worse. Report says that since Forbes was first proclaimed a Municipality, various deficiencies have been in the accounts, even to the tune of hundreds of pounds, but whoever saw any of our balance-sheets that were not certified to be correct, and to correspond, &c. As Alderman Hutchinson and the Council Clerk seem to be the lock, stock, and barrel of the concern, and as it is evident that promises to ratepayers are only made to gull them, perhaps one or the other will, just to oblige, you know, state how much of the "Tumperty Substitute" published does correspond with the books, if any, and perhaps Alderman Hutchinson will explain how he can make a profit out of the statement published. It will give him such a gentlemanly chance of showing his talents, much better than the contest, a la Professor Anderson, he was talking of the other day, as a means of squelching your humble servant. In the meantime I must remain that insignificant and useless object (except at election time).

To the Editor.

Sir,

Kindly allow me space in your columns to make a few remarks in reference to the statement of receipts and expenditure of the Forbes Water Supply, as appearing in your contemporary's columns of the 20th instant. Passing by the fact that (although we have been long promised a balance-sheet) the statement referred to is only an abstract from a cash-book, and although certified to as being correct by three responsible persons, is still wrong to the tune of £30 0s. 7d. in the addition, on the credit side. I would like to put the items contained therein in somewhat different shape, say:—To cash borrowed from Mr. Stokes and Council, £7,341 13s. 9d.; by purchase of land, £200 (grand price for the seller); H. Hand, contracts, £6,555 11s. 9d.; Ferguson, shed, £31 10s.; Callow, fencing, £18 3s. 9d.; Blacket, plans and supervision, £281 5s.; refund to Council, £40; unexpended balance of borrowed money, £215 3s. 3d. Putting the rest of said statement into profit and loss form, it appears thus:—To weekly payments, £51 10s.; ordinary water rates, £707 2s. 8d.; meter charges, £47 0s. 6d.; stable charges, £134; stand-pipe charges, £46 16s.; factory charges, £25 2s. 8d.; plumbers license fees, £10; refund from reserve moneys, £23 12s. 10d.; refund from Council (A. Baillie), £4 10s.; total, £1,049 14s. 8d. By Wood, £41 12s.; supplies, £17 0s. 7d.; labour, £45 10s. 6d.; sundries, £11 6s.; By-laws, £5; wages, £270; interest (Mr. Stokes), £624 13s.; interest (Council), £120; law expenses, £38 18s. 10d.; printing £20 13s. 6d. account; reserves, £21 17s. 9d.; total, £1,216 12s. 2d., or a loss of £166 17s. 6d., add to which, balance in Bank, £18 5s. 2d., and the error in addition, £30 0s. 7d., makes a total of £215 3s. 3d., the balance of the borrowed money. But if you add depreciation at (say) 2½ per cent. per annum on the amount expended in construction, £354 6s. 6d., to the loss of £166 17s. 7d., as shown by profit and loss, we have a deficiency up to the 31st December of £521 4s.

It is but right that when the statement is corrected, that a balance sheet in proper form should be published, showing assets, also liabilities. Our water scheme may be worth £1,000, or it may be worth £10,000; it may be indebted £1 or £500 for all the ratepayers are likely to know from the trumpety substitute already published as a balance-sheet. Till the publication referred to came out, I, and without doubt many more, were under the impression that a certain amount from the water scheme was paid for collecting its rates; and also, if my memory serves me right, the clerk's salary has been paid from it once or twice; perhaps the refunds mentioned are these moneys disinterestedly returned, or has the general rates paid these and other sums justly due on the water scheme. If the books are in such a state that proper statements cannot be got from them, it would be perhaps as well to get a professional accountant to straighten them at once, for the longer muddle continues the worse matters will get, then let the ratepayers insist on having a special audit, and perhaps then we can get them kept correct in the future, or at any rate in a manner that would not disgrace an average schoolboy. I am perfectly astonished that the gentlemen in our council, and our auditors, should ever publish such a thing, and then to certify that it corresponds with the books, vouchers, &c., and that the above balance sheet is correct.

Trusting that this matter will be attended to, and that in future all balance sheets will be in proper form, as befits a Municipality of our importance.

I remain, &c.,
A RATEPAYER.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ADAMSTOWN—BY-LAWS).

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 8th February, 1888.

ADAMSTOWN MUNICIPALITY—BY-LAWS.

The following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Adamstown, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF ADAMSTOWN.

BY-LAWS for regulating the proceedings of the Council of the Municipality of Adamstown, and the duties of the officers and servants of such Council; for preserving order at meetings of the said Council; for determining the times and modes of collecting and enforcing payment of rates; for preventing and extinguishing fires; for suppressing nuisances and houses of ill-fame; for preventing or regulating and licensing exhibitions held or kept for hire or profit, bowling alleys, and other places of amusement; compelling residents to keep their premises free from offensive or unwholesome matters; opening new public roads, ways, and parks; aligning and cleansing roads and streets; regulating the supply and distribution of water, sewerage, and drainage; preserving trees and shrubs; regulating free libraries; preventing or regulating the bathing or washing the person in any public water near a public thoroughfare; preserving public decency; providing for the health of the Municipality, and against the spreading of contagious or infectious diseases; restraining noisome and offensive trades; and generally maintaining the good rule and government of the said municipality.

PART I.

Proceedings of the Council and Committees.—Preservation of order at Council Meeting.—Duties of Officers and Servants, &c.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary Meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the despatch of business at the hour of 7 p.m. every alternate Thursday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case, the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.—Adjournment for want of Quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect, from among themselves, a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be recorded in the Minute Book.

Order of Business.

Business of Ordinary Meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
2. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
3. Correspondence to be read, and, if necessary, dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees, and minutes from the Mayor to be dealt with.
5. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council, to be put and replied to; and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances, requiring attention by the Council or any of its Committees or officers, to be made.
6. Motions, of which notice has been given, to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
7. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution, without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at Special Meetings.

4. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor, or the Alderman at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Business Paper for Ordinary Meetings—how prepared.

5. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a special meeting, shall be made up by the Council Clerk, not less than twenty-four hours nor more than four days before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received, or shall have been required or directed so to enter, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made subject to the provisions of section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws, in the order in which such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Business Paper for Special Meeting.

6. The business paper for a special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Alderman calling such meeting.

Summons to Members.

7. The summons to members of the Council for every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

8. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall, at such meeting, be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of Motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until matter disposed of, unless withdrawn before business paper made up.

9. All notices of motion, and all requisitions from Aldermen, and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matters of business for the consideration of the Council at its then next or any future meeting, shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received; and each such notice, requisition, and direction shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the minute book of the manner in which such matter has been so disposed of shall have been duly verified as required by section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction to the Council Clerk shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

After business paper made up, all notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

10. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motion, requisitions, and directions, as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended, without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Motions and Amendments.Motions—how to be moved.

11. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck out and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

12. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall, except as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

13. No motion in Council shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

Amendments may be moved.

14. When a motion shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

Motions and amendments to be in writing.

15. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it has been reduced into writing.

Only one amendment at a time.

16. No second or subsequent amendment shall be discussed until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of.

Amended question—further amendment may be moved thereon.

17. If an amendment be carried, the question as amended thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

How subsequent amendments may be moved.

18. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any amended question shall be negatived, a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on: Provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournment.

19. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council; and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

Requisitions from Aldermen how to be dealt with.

20. Every requisition by an Alderman, that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council, shall be treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman that such business be taken into consideration by the Council; and he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or make any other motion he may think fit in reference thereto, which shall be consistent with the notice of such business, and with good order. And if such Alderman be absent, or if, being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open to any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made it shall be dealt with in the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business or with good order. And if no motion shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck out of the business paper.

Orders of the Day.Of what Orders of the Day shall consist.

21. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

22. Section 19 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered applicable to orders of the day; and the Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to, the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move: Provided that as to any order of the day entered as aforesaid, by direction of the Mayor, such Mayor may arrange with any Alderman to move, and may in such case call upon the Alderman with whom he has so arranged.

Petitions.Petitions to be respectfully worded.

23. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain certain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

24. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

25. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned; or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor as to Correspondence.

26. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 26 to apply to letters.

27. Section 25 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be equally applicable to letters addressed to the Council.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject of motion.

28. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor, or by any officer of the Council, though copies may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion, consistent with good order, may be entertained with reference to any such letters, whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council, which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

Reports from Committees and Minutes from the Mayor.

Form of Report.

29. All reports from Committees shall be written on foolscap paper, with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by the Chairman of such Committee, or, in his absence, by some other member of the same.

Mayor's Minute.

30. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How Reports, &c., are to be dealt with.—Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

31. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, it may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without such due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which it is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman, or member of such Committee signing such report, or of the Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid, as will enable the Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give due notice.

Questions and Statements.

Limitation as to Questions and Statements.

32. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws

Notice to be given.

33. Sufficient notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and, if necessary, for a reference to other persons or to documents.

Answer not compulsory.

34. It shall not be compulsory upon any person questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

Question to be put without argument, &c.

35. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

36. Every such statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on Question, &c.—Rights of objection, and of subsequent motion reserved.

37. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question, or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Order of Debate.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

38. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way, or for any other purpose, address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor, or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by the permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to objection on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy; and all members of the Council shall, on all occasions, when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted, if in order.

39. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Offensive language.

40. If any Alderman uses, whilst in Council, any offensive or insulting language, the words shall be written down, and he shall be asked to withdraw them. If he refuse to withdraw such language, and apologise, he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and be liable to a fine of not less than 20s. nor more than £5.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

41. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than the mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion, and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak oftener than once upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain, without adding any further observations than may be necessary for the purpose of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

42. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

43. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, nor impute improper motives to, any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

44. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the debate.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

45. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Alderman may require question to be stated, &c., under certain circumstances.

46. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated, for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or materially to interrupt the discussion; also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bond fide it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, &c., but may address Council thereon.

47. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, nor put any question, as provided for by section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws, except as is further provided for by the section 38 of the same; but such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of Order.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

48. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final, except in so far as the same may be questioned, as in the manner hereinafter provided.

Acts of disorder.

49. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any section of this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise or attempt to raise any question, or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the said Council has no legal right to entertain or discuss, or who shall use any other language which, according to the common usage of gentlemen, would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be deemed to be out of order.

Mayor, &c., may call member to order.

50. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order, whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any member may raise question of order.

51. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation, moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

52. A member called to order shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided on, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission such member may explain, retract, or apologise for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologise as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council, at once and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction, or apology shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with: Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be re-opened. And provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Decision of points of order.

53. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice, which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Motions out of order to be rejected.—Members to explain, retract, or apologise, &c.

54. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

55. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument, or of observations, which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 49 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds; and on a second conviction for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound, nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction, and for every further conviction, for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds, nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to altering rules on points of order.

56. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice, may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mode of Voting.

How questions are to be put.

57. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions—Penalty for refusing to vote.

58. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division. In such case, the questions shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting.—Protest to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

59. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council. Notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the Minute Book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution on notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.

Business in Committee.

60. The Business Committees of the whole Council shall be conducted in accordance with the rules hereinbefore provided for meetings of the Council as nearly as the same shall apply, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Disorderly conduct in Committee.—Refusal to vote.

61. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 49 of this "Part" of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the Minute Book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 53 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the Minute Book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary; but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

62. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provision of section 48 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

63. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of the Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on some other day, or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sitting, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

64. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council, viva voce, by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case, the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided, that in making any such report as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceedings.

How reports are to be dealt with.

65. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the Minute Book; but, except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council, until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption, or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid, and the order of debate on such motion, shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council, and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 61 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 58 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof, and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

66. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Such call compulsory in certain cases.

67. There shall, without any special order to that effect, be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 56 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

68. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered, or is required to be made by the last preceding section, shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order, each member present shall answer to his name as so called, and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

69. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent, and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings, nor more than five pounds. Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

*Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees

70. Besides any such Special Committees as may from time to time be found necessary, there shall be three Standing Committees, namely, a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, and a Finance Committee, each consisting of not less than three members. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of the Mayor.

*Standing Committees may also be appointed as required for improvement, lighting, water, hall, library, or general purposes.

Mode of re-appointing Standing Committees.

71. The re-appointment of the three said first-named Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case, a list or lists of the members for each ward shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such first-named Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such Committee.

By-law Committee

72. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Borough. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws, and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Borough; and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Committee for Works.

73. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other public places under the care and management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee

74. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Borough, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Special Committees.

75. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed; and no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution, after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution, to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes, to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Chairman of Committee.

76. Every Committee of which the Mayor shall not be a member, shall elect a permanent Chairman of such Committee within seven days after their appointment.

Committee Meeting—how called.

77. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee when requested to do so by the Chairmen or any two members of such Committee.

Records of transactions in Committee.

78. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make or cause to be made, in a book kept by him for that purpose, memoranda of all the transactions of such Committee, which book he shall on ceasing to be such Chairman hand over to his successor.

Term of service in Committee.

79. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee of Works, and the Finance Committee shall be for the whole municipal year. The Chairman of these three Committees as appointed, or removed, from the Chairmanship of the same shall be thereby and without any further order, regarded as having been appointed to, or removed from, the Committee for general purposes. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee, to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to Committee in sections 109 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and that so much of this By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provisions.

Expenditure.

Except in emergent matters, cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

80. With the exception of emergent matters hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Municipality shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses.

81. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

- 1st. By order of the Committee of Works or of the Mayor and one member of such Committee for repairs or emergent works, to the extent of two pounds.
- 2nd. By order of the Mayor for necessary current expenses, to the extent of two pounds.
- 3rd. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor of any four Alderman, for any emergent purpose, to the extent of five pounds.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting: such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized. Also that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council, shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

82. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's order.—Certificate to be attached to report.

83. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, from the Mayor, or from the officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or enquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons for its non-fulfilment before recommending payment: Provided, however, that such special report as last herein mentioned may be embodied with the report by which payment of the amount in question is recommended: Provided also that in cases of special expenditure under section 82 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate. And provided further, that in regard to salaries and wages of labour, for officers, servants, and labourers employed at fixed rates of payment, by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor or working foreman of the amount due to any such officer, servant, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for payment of such amount shall be a sufficient authorization for such payment; and such certificates, memoranda, and authorization, shall be attached respectively to the reports from the Finance Committee, on the payments or outlays to which such certificates, memoranda, or authorizations have reference

Common Seal and Records of the Council.

Common Seal and Press how secured.—Care of same.

84. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover or box, which, except when such seal and press are in use, shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor and the other by the Council Clerk. Such common seal and press shall be in the custody and the care of the Council Clerk.

When and how common seal to be used.

85. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or, in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How books of account are to be kept and inspected.

86. The Treasurer shall keep such books of account and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda, from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect, or appearance of inefficiency which they may have discovered in the keeping of the same; also, to report to the Council, from time to time, any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

Impression of seal not to be taken, &c., without leave of Council.—Penalties.

87. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to take any impression of the corporate seal, or to show, lay open, or expose any of the books or records of the Council to any person other than a member of the same, without leave from such Council, except as otherwise provided by law. Any member or officer of the Council who shall be guilty of a breach of this section shall be liable on conviction for the first offence to a penalty of not less than five shillings, nor more than two pounds; for a second offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds.

Records not to be removed, &c.—Penalties.—Exceptional circumstances.—Receipt to be given in every case before document received.—Proviso as to use of records as matter of evidence.

88. Any person removing any such book or other record of the Council, as aforesaid, from the Council Chamber, or the place where, by direction of the Council, such book or other record is usually kept, without leave for such removal having been first obtained from such Council or without other lawful cause for such removal as hereinafter provided, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book or other record, as aforesaid, and shall not have returned the same, to prosecution for stealing such book or record, or to an action at law for detention of the same, as the circumstances of the case may warrant: Provided that leave for temporary removal of a book or other record may be granted to the Council Clerk or the Treasurer by the Mayor, in order that such Clerk or Treasurer may post up entries, prepare returns, or perform any other duty which it may be necessary that he should perform. Also, that the Mayor or Chairman of any Committee or any Alderman acting for any such Chairman, may temporarily remove any record necessary for the preparation of a minute or a report, or for the purposes of any prosecution or suit at law, by, against, or at the instance of the Council. But in all such cases such Clerk, Treasurer, Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be, shall give a receipt under his hand, for every document so removed, and every such receipt shall be carefully preserved among the records until the book or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed. And provided also that the Mayor, Council Clerk, or other officer or the Council who may be subpoenaed to produce any book or other record of the Council in a Court of law, shall have the right to remove such book or other record for the purpose of obeying such summons, but shall return such book or record as speedily as may be, and shall, before removing the same, leave at the Council Chamber a receipt for such book or other record as aforesaid. And every such person so temporarily removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid, shall be legally responsible for the safe keeping and return of the same.

Penalty for defacing or destroying records.

89. Any person destroying, defacing, or altering any record of the Council shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of not less than five pounds, nor more than fifty pounds.

Records of the Council defined—provisions for proper keeping of the same.

90. The minute-book, letter-book, and all rate and assessment books, books of account, records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, electoral rolls, and other records relating to the elections, business papers, reports from Committees, minutes from the Mayor, petitions, letters on municipal business addressed to the Council, or to the Mayor, or to any officer or servant of the Council, orders, reports, returns, and memoranda, relating to municipal business, drawings, maps, plans, contracts, specifications, agreements, and all other books and papers connected with the business of the Council, shall be deemed records of the Council. All such records other than the minute-book, and other books and other than electoral roll and other records relating to elections shall be numbered and filed in due order, and shall be duly registered by the Council Clerk in a book to be kept by him for that purpose. Upon the face of every document thus registered to which there is any reference in the minute-book, there shall be a note of the page wherein it is so referred to. And when any order has been made by the Council, or a report has been brought up by any Committee thereof in reference to any document so registered as aforesaid, a note of such order or report shall be made upon such document. It shall be the duty of the By-law Committee to inspect the records from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept as aforesaid, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency, which they may discover in the keeping of such records.

Officers and Servants.

Notice to candidates in certain cases.

91. No appointment to any permanent office at the disposal of the Council, to which a salary or allowance of fifty pounds per annum, or a salary or allowance exceeding that amount is attached, shall be made until public notice shall have been given as hereinafter provided, inviting applications from qualified candidates for the same, the salary or allowance attached to such office shall in every case be fixed before such notice is given, and shall be stated in such notice.

Mode of appointment

92. Every such appointment shall be made by ballot in such mode as may at the time be determined on, whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

93. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the employment, as may be from time to time found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workmen or labourers on the public works of the Municipality.

Bonds for good conduct.

94. All bonds given by officers and servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties, shall be deposited with the attorney or the bankers of the Corporation as the Council may order, and no officer or servant of the Council shall be received as surety for any other such officer or servant.

Duties of Council Clerk.

95. The Council Clerk, in addition to the duties which, by the "Municipalities Act of 1867," or by the present or any other By-laws thereunder he may be required to perform, shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Municipal District under the provisions of the said Municipalities Act. He shall also, under the direction of the Mayor, conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of such Council, except such books or documents as may (as hereinafter provided) be entrusted to any other officer, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council and the duties of such Mayor.

Duties of Treasurer, &c.

96. The Treasurer shall have charge of such books of account and other records of the Council as are mentioned in section 87 of these By-laws, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of the same; any other officer of the Council may have any other records thereof committed to his charge by an order of the Council, and in such case shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records.

Duties of other officers and servants.

97. The duties of all officers and servants of the Corporation shall be defined by such regulations as may from time to time, and in accordance with law, be made.

Special powers of Mayor.

98. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless such return or statement shall have been already prepared, or such explanation or information already given, and such return, statement, explanation, or information is on record or hereinbefore provided; or unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statement, or the giving of such explanation or information. All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such explanation or information may except as hereinafter provided, be either rendered via voce, or put into writing as the Mayor may direct.

How complaints against officers, &c., are to be dealt with.

99. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing and addressed to the Mayor, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining. And no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing, or is anonymous. All such complaints as aforesaid shall be laid by the Mayor before the Council, at the next meeting thereof which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have received the same and shall be duly recorded.

Miscellaneous.

Leave of absence.

100. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or to any Alderman otherwise than by a resolution of the Council, adopted after due notice.

Motions for rescission on previous orders, &c.

101. Whenever a motion for the rescission of any order, resolution, or vote of the Council, shall have been negatived, no other motion to the same effect shall be permissible until a period of three months shall have elapsed from the time of negativing such first-mentioned motion: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to prohibit the reconsideration and amendment of any proposed By-law which may have been submitted to the Governor for confirmation, and may have been remitted to the Council with suggested amendments of the same, or the passage, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, and in due course of law, of any By-law, for the repeal or amendment of any other By-law.

Lapsed business.

102. Whenever the consideration of any motion or matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the resumption of such consideration may be ordered by resolution of the Council, after due notice; and such consideration shall in such case be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted as aforesaid.

Suits and prosecutions for penalties, &c.

103. Such suits or informations for the enforcement of penalties for or in respect of breach of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or of any By-law made thereunder, or of any statute the operation of which may have been extended to the Municipality, as may have been directed by the Council or by the By-law Committee, or by the Mayor, to be commenced or laid, shall be so commenced or laid as follows:—When against a member of the Council, or an Auditor, or any officer of the Corporation—by the Council Clerk, unless such Council Clerk shall be the officer to be proceeded against, and in such case by any other officer named by the Council for that purpose; when against any other person, by the officer to whom the carrying out of the statutory provision or By-law imposing the penalty sought to be enforced has been entrusted; and if there shall be no such officer, then by any such officer or person as shall be appointed for that purpose by the Council, or the By-law Committee, or the Mayor, as the case may be, on directing such suit or information as aforesaid; and no suit shall be brought or information laid, as aforesaid, against any member of the Council or Auditor, except by order of such Council; nor shall any similar proceeding be taken against any officer of the Council, except on the order of such Council or of the Mayor, nor against any other person, except upon the order of the Council, or of the Mayor, or of the By-law Committee. And no such suit shall be directed to be brought, nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid, except on an express resolution of the Council, in any case where the bringing of such suit, or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction by such Council, or where, on the trial or hearing of any such suit or information, the same shall have been dismissed on the merits: Provided that in any such case the conduct or prosecution of any such suit or information may, on the order of the Council, be entrusted to an attorney.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

104. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

Power to suspend temporarily certain portions of this By-law.

105. Any such section or sections of this "Part" of these By-laws, or any portion or portions of such section or sections as are not hereinafter excepted, may be suspended by resolutions, on notice, at any meeting of the Council: Provided that there shall be a distinct statement in every such resolution, and in the notice of the motion whereon the same shall have been adopted, of the purpose for which such suspension is required; and that for every separate matter or business, as to which such suspension is so required, there shall be a separate resolution as aforesaid: And provided also that the following sections hereof shall never be suspended, nor shall any one of them, nor any portion of any of such sections, be suspended on any pretence whatever, namely:—Sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 20, 21, 22, 23, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 34, 38, 39, 42, 44, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 95, 98, 99, 100, 101, 104, 106, 107, and 118.

PART II.

Collection and enforcement of Rates.

Times and modes of collection.

1. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under the provisions of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said Act, shall be collected once a year, and such rate shall be held to be due and payable on and after such days as the Council may from time to time appoint.

Special rates.

2. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under sections 165, 166, and 167 of the said Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said sections, or under the provisions of any of the said sections, or for any of the purposes mentioned therein, shall be collected in such manner, and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council may, by resolutions at the time of making or imposing such rates, or any of them, having appointed.

Rates to be paid at office of Council Clerk.

3. All persons liable to pay any rates as aforesaid shall pay the amount thereof within the time prescribed by the Act into the office of the Council Clerk during office hours.

Defaulters.

4. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor with a list of names of all persons whose rates are unpaid at the expiration of the times fixed for payment of the same as aforesaid.

Mayor to enforce payment.

5. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to take proceedings to enforce payment of all rates in default, either by action at law or by issuing warrants of distraint upon the goods and chattels of the defaulter.

Enforcement by Distress.

Bailiff.—Tenure of office.

6. The Bailiff shall be appointed by resolution of the said Council, and shall be at any time removable by a like resolution.

Sureties for Bailiff.

7. The Bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Mayor to the extent of twenty-five pounds each for the faithful performance of his duty.

Duties of Bailiff.

8. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrants of distress.

9. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

10. If the sum for which any such distress shall have been made shall not be paid with costs, as hereinafter provided, on or before the expiration of five days, the Bailiff shall, on the sixth day, sell the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the said municipal district as the said Bailiff may think proper to remove them to for such purpose; and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and costs, as hereinafter provided, to the owner of the goods so sold, on demand of such surplus by such owner.

Inventory.

11. At the time of making a distress, the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf, resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand, at any time within one month after the making such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

12. The Bailiff, on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of the five days hereinafter mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof. And any owner of the said premises, or occupier thereof, who shall in any way interfere with the said Bailiff in the discharge of his duties hereunder, shall on conviction forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Owner to direct order of sale.

13. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

14. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Costs.

15. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law, the costs and charges in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked "C."

SCHEDULE A.

PART III.

Preventing and extinguishing Fires.

Fire or combustible materials, &c.

1. Every person who shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, workshop, out-office, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings, shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials; and every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials, to remain as aforesaid for forty-eight hours after any such conviction, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Inflammable fences, &c.

2. Every person who shall erect any fence of brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place, as or for the covering of any such stack, any inflammable material, so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit, on conviction for every such offence, a penalty of not more than five pounds, and also shall remove such fence, stack, or covering or within a reasonable time after such conviction, and any person failing to remove such fence, stack, or covering, within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Fireworks.

3. Every person who shall light any bon-fire, tar-barrel, or firework upon or within sixty yards of any public or private street, or any public place, or shall sell gunpowder, squibs, rockets, or other combustible matter by gas, candle, or other artificial light, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Wilfully setting fire to chimneys.

4. Every person who wilfully sets, or causes to be set on fire, any chimney-flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, herein called in common a "chimney," shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds: Provided always that nothing herein contained shall exempt the person so setting or causing to be set on fire any chimney, from liability to be informed against or prosecuted before any Criminal Court for such act as for an indictable offence.

Negligently suffering chimney to be on fire.

5. If any chimney accidentally catch or be on fire, the person occupying or using the premises in which such chimney is situated shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings: Provided always that such forfeiture shall not be incurred if such person prove to the satisfaction of the Justices before whom the case is heard, that such fire was in nowise owing to the omission, neglect, or carelessness, whether with respect to cleansing such chimney or otherwise, of himself or his servant.

Setting fire to matter without notice.

6. Every person who shall wilfully set fire to any inflammable matter whatsoever in the open air; within five yards of any dwelling house or other building or boundary or dividing fence within the said Municipality without having given notice in writing to the occupier of the land adjoining to the land upon which such matter shall be of his intention to do so, or between the hours of six in the afternoon of any day and six in the morning of the following day, shall, for every such offence, forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Water-carters to attend at fires.

7. Every owner and driver of a licensed water-cart shall keep such cart loaded with water during all times after sunset and before sunrise, and shall, if any building, premises, or property shall be on fire within the municipality, attend at the place of such fire with such cart loaded with water, and shall continue to cart water by full loads to such place, and shall deliver such water in such manner as may be required by the Mayor or by any Alderman or officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf and then present, for extinguishing such fire; and every such owner or driver who shall, without reasonable excuse, fail to comply with the provisions of this section, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Compensation for attendance at fires.—Rewards.

8. There shall be paid out of the municipal funds to the owner of every licensed water-cart who shall have attended with any water at the place of any fire as herein provided, and delivered the same as required for extinguishing such fire, such reasonable compensation as the Council shall by resolution have appointed in that behalf, and also to the owners of such carts as shall have first and second in order attended with loads of water, such further sums, by way of reward as, the Council may by similar resolutions have fixed.

PART IV.

Notices.—Streets and Public Places.—Public Health and Decency, &c.

Mode of calling for Tenders.

1. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed, or any materials supplied by contract, tenders for the execution of such work or the supply of such material shall be called for by public notice as hereinafter provided.

Drafts of intended By-laws.

2. A draft of every intended By-law shall lie in the office of the Council for at least seven days before such draft shall be taken into consideration by such Council, and shall be open to the inspection of any ratepayer who may desire to inspect the same; and public notice shall be given, as hereinafter provided, that such draft is so lying for inspection.

How notices are to be published.

3. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law of any appointment, resolution, act, order, or regulation of the Council, or any Committee thereof, or by the Mayor or any officer of the said Council, such notice shall be given and published by posting the same on or near the outer door of the Council Chambers for the space of seven days, and by advertising the same twice in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality.

Persons obstructing officers of the Council.

4. Any person or persons who shall obstruct any officer of the said Council while in the performance of his duty, or who shall interfere with any officer of the said Council doing, or performing, or going to perform, or returning from the performance of any duty or act under these By-laws, by using any threats, offensive language, hindrance, or insulting language towards the said officer, in any street, road, or other place within the said Municipality, shall forfeit and pay, for every such offence, a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

New roads to be reported upon.

5. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place, proposed to be dedicated to the public shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or park shall have been formed by the proprietor or proprietors, to the reasonable satisfaction of the Committee of Works, or any duly authorized officer, or until the said road, street, way, or park shall have been duly examined and reported upon to the Council by such Committee or duly authorized officer.

Dedication of new roads, &c.

6. If the Council shall determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans, so signed as aforesaid, shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council, and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument, dedicating such road, way, park, or other place to public use or recreation as aforesaid, as may be considered necessary by the Committee for General Purposes; and such further instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Change of street levels.

7. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, or way, as aforesaid, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section, showing the proposed cuttings, to be exhibited at the Council Chamber for fourteen days, for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify, by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality, that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council, the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman, and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption, and countersigned by the Council Clerk; and such plan and section, so signed and countersigned, shall be a record of the Council.

Roads and streets and encroachments thereon, &c.

8. The Committee for Works or the Surveyor of the Municipality, or other officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf, shall be the proper officer for marking out, and shall fix, mark, and lay out the levels of all public roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares, and the carriage and foot ways thereof, which now are or shall hereafter be under or subject to the control, construction, care, or management of the Council. In making out such roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which the land with frontage to the road, street, lane, or thoroughfare in question shall have been sold or let. And it shall be the duty of such Committee of Works or Surveyor or other officer to place posts at the corners or intersections of such streets, roads, lanes, and thoroughfares whenever the same may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Council, so as to give a width of forty-two feet for the carriage-way, and twelve feet for the foot-way on each side where the road, street, lane, or thoroughfare shall be sixty-six feet wide, and in proportion and in the discretion of the Council, in any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, or other public place of other width than sixty-six feet. Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, &c., until the same shall have been submitted and adopted by the Council as hereinafter provided. This By-law shall be read subject in all respects to the Width of Streets and Lanes Act of 1881. (45 Vic. No. 28.)

Pipes, gutters, &c.

9. It shall not be lawful for any person to carry, by means of pipes, gutters, or other contrivances, any rain water from the roof of his or her premises or house upon any of the footways of any street or public place within the said Municipality; and any owner or occupier of any such house or premises who shall neglect or refuse to remedy or remove any such pipes, gutters, or contrivances, when required to do so by any officer of the said Council, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings: Provided that the owner or occupier of any such premises or house may convey any such rain water by means of pipes laid under the surface of any such foot-ways into the gutter adjoining the same, subject to the approval of the Committee for Works or other duly authorized officer.

No balcony, &c., to project.

10. With regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, it shall not be lawful for any awning, verandah, portico, balcony, coping, parapet, overhanging eaves, cornice, windows, string-cornice, string-course, dressing, or other architectural decoration forming part of, or attached to, any external wall, to project beyond the building line of any street or road, except with the consent of the Council first obtained; nor shall any balcony or any other external projection as aforesaid, which may hereafter be added to any existing building, be allowed to project as aforesaid, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, except with the consent of the Council first obtained: Provided that no such awning, verandah, portico, or balcony shall be permitted to be erected in any street less than thirty feet wide: Provided also that any person desiring to erect any such structure shall first submit a plan for the approval of the Council.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.

11. The Surveyor or other such officer or person may at any time, on the order of the Council and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall, in this case, be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroachment in structure belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected.

Council may remove encroachments.

12. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same, under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the person so offending, provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds; or, at the Council's option, to proceed against the offender for breach of By-law, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor be less than one pound; and, in case of every successive offence, the penalty on conviction not to be less than five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

13. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action for trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or to proceed as for a breach of such By-law as aforesaid.

To apply also to obstructions by digging, &c.

14. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavations, and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the Surveyor or other officer as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him or either of them, in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these By-laws imposed or cast on the said Surveyor or officer, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Hoards or fences to be erected.

15. Every person intending to build or take down any building within the limits of the Municipality, or to cause the same to be so done, or to alter or repair the outward part of any such building, or to cause the same to be done, where any street or foot-way will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall, before beginning the same, cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up, in order to separate the building where such works are being carried on from the street, with a convenient platform and hand rail, if there be room enough, to leave as a foot-way for passengers outside of such hoard or fence, and shall continue such hoard or fence with such platform and hand-rail as aforesaid standing in good condition, to the satisfaction of the officer of the Council of the said Municipality, during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall in all cases in which it is necessary, in order to prevent accidents, cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during the night; and any such person who shall fail to put up such fence or hoard or platform, with such hand-rail as aforesaid, or to continue the same respectively standing in good condition as aforesaid during the period of such building or taking down, or who shall not, while the said hoard or fence is standing, keep the same sufficiently lighted in the night, or who shall not remove the same when directed by the officer of the Council within a reasonable time afterwards, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day such default is continued.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without permission.

16. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material, in or from any part of the carriage or foot-way of any street or other public place within the said Municipal District, without leave first had and obtained from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or foot-way, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Holes to be enclosed.

17. Any person or persons who shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave or cause to be left any hole adjoining or near to any street or public place within the said Municipal District, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building, and shall not forthwith enclose the same and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner to the satisfaction of the Committee for Works of the said Municipal District, or shall keep up or cause to be kept up and continued any such enclosure for any time which shall be longer than shall be absolutely necessary in the opinion of the said Committee, and shall not place lights upon each side of the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not being less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds.

Open spaces and steps adjoining the foot-ways to be enclosed under penalty.

18. Every owner or occupier of any house, building, premises, or land within the said Municipality, having any entrance, area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building lot, waterhole, or excavated space, adjoining the foot-way of any street or public place in such Municipality, shall protect or guard the same by good and sufficient paling fence, so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land, having any steps adjoining the foot-way of any such street or public place, shall in like manner protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosures, so as to prevent the like danger to persons passing or repassing; and on failure thereof every such owner or occupier shall, as often as he shall be convicted of such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not being less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds. And every such owner or occupier as aforesaid, who shall fail to erect such rails, fences, or other enclosures as aforesaid, within seven days after any such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Wells to be covered over.—Penalty.

19. Every person who shall have a well or underground tank, used for domestic or other purpose, situated between his or her dwelling-house or the appurtenances thereof and any road, street, or foot-way within the limits of the said Municipality, or at the side of or in any yard or place open or exposed to such road, street, or foot-way, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any person having such well or underground tank as aforesaid shall fail to cover over and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for such person at his or her usual or last-known place of abode, or on the said premises, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings; and for every day after such notice that such well shall remain open or uncovered, contrary to the provisions hereof, such person shall be deemed guilty of a separate offence against this By-law.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs, &c.

20. The Committee for Works, or any officer or person acting under the authority of such Committee, may at any cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

21. Any person who shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of any street or public place within the said Municipal district any timber, stone, or other thing otherwise than upon wheeled vehicles or barrows, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon any wheeled vehicle or barrow, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place to the injury thereof, or to hang over any part of any such vehicle or barrow so as to occupy or obstruct the street beyond the breadth of the said vehicle or barrow, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not more than forty shillings nor less than five shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby.

Driving carriages, &c., on foot-ways, and throwing h, &c., &c.

22. Any person who shall throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing in or upon the carriage-way or foot-way of any street or other public place in the said Municipal District; or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal, in or so near to any such street or other public place as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over, or be on any or either of any such carriage or foot-way or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any of the said foot-ways of any such street or public place any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheel, wheel-barrow, hand-barrow, or truck, or any hogshead, cask, or barrel or shall wilfully lead, drive, or ride any horse, ass, mule, or other beast upon any such foot-way, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than five shillings; for the second offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than ten shillings; and for a third and every subsequent offence, a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound for each such offence.

Placing carriages, goods, &c., on footways, &c.—Not removing when required.—Replacing the same after removal.—Not to prevent awnings being erected in front-shops.

23. Any person who shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall-board, chopping-block, show-board (on hinges or otherwise), basket-wares, merchandise, casks, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, wash, or cleanse, or shall cause to be hooped, washed, or cleansed, any pipe, barrel, cask, or vessel, in or upon or over any carriage or foot way in any street or public place within the said Municipal District; or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit, or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed, any coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, or wheel-barrow, hand-barrow, sledge, truck, or other carriage upon any such carriage-way, except for the necessary time of loading or unloading such cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage, or taking up or setting down any fare, or waiting for passengers when actually hired, or harnessing or unharnessing the horses or other animals from such coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage; or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be set or placed, in or upon or over any such carriage or foot way, any timber, stones, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as herein directed), or any other matters or things whatsoever; or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or other building or premises, over any part of any such foot-way or carriage-way, or over any area of any house or other building or premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside of the front or any other part of any house or other building or premises or over or next unto any such street or public place, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Inspector of Nuisances, or other proper officer of the Council; or if any person who having, in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed or caused to be removed, any such stall-board, show-board, chopping-block, basket-wares, merchandise, casks, goods, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, wheel-barrow, hand-barrow, sledge, truck, carriage, timber, stones, bricks, lime, meat, offal, or other matters or things, shall at any time thereafter again set, lay, or place, expose or put out, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, exposed, or put out, the same or any of them, or any other stall-board, show-board, chopping-block, basket-wares, merchandise, goods, timber, stones, bricks, lime, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, truck, wheel-barrow, hand-barrow, sledge, meat, offal, or other things or matters whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid), in, upon, or over any such carriage or foot way (or next unto any such street or public place as aforesaid), shall, upon conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings; for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and for a third and every subsequent offence, a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing an awning in front of his or her shop or house in such a manner as that such awning shall be at least seven feet above the height of the foot-way, and that the posts be placed close to the kerbstone or outer edge of such foot-way.

Obstructing public pathways.

24. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this Municipality shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant, kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any foot-path or foot-way on the side of any such street or road, and on demand made by the Council shall not cut, lop, or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants to the height of ten feet at the least, the said Council, by their servants, labourers, and workmen, may cut, or caused to be cut or lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, or shrubs, and to remove or burn any such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Slop, night-soil, &c., to be conveyed away only at certain hours.

25. Any person or persons who shall drive or cause to be driven any cart or other carriage, with night-soil or ammoniacal liquor therein, through or in any street or public place within the said Municipal District, between the hours of five o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock at night, or shall fill any cart or other carriage so as to turn over or cast any night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, slop, mire, or channel dirt or filth in or upon any such street or public place, or shall deposit night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, or other offensive matter nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or by the Inspector of Nuisances, or shall remove night-soil or other offensive matter otherwise than in properly covered and watertight carts or other vehicles, or shall cause any vehicle used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or the said Inspector of Nuisances, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; and in case the person so offending shall not be known to the said Council or Inspector, then the owner of such cart or carriage in which such night-soil or other offensive matter shall be put or placed, and also the employer of the person so offending, shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

26. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind shall ride upon any such carriage in any street as aforesaid, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse and driver, or guided with reins only expected), or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same, or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage whatsoever, meeting any other carriage, shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage, on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care, upon such street, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every such driver or person so offending shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Riding or driving furiously, &c.

27. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Municipal District so negligently, carelessly, or furiously, that the safety of any other person shall or may be endangered, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Breaking-in horses, &c.

28. Any person or persons who shall in any street, road, or public place within the said Municipality, drive any carriage or carriages for the purpose of breaking-in, exercising, or trying horses, or shall ride, drive, or lead any horse, mare, or gelding for the purpose of airing, exercising, trying, breaking, or showing or exposing for sale, any such horse, mare, or gelding, otherwise than by passing quietly through such streets or public places, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings; and any person who shall within the said Municipality furiously or carelessly drive any horse, mare, or gelding, to or from any public watering place, creek, or river, or pasturage, or elsewhere, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Blasting Rock.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Council Clerk.

29. Any person who shall be desirous of blasting any rock within one hundred yards of any street or public place, or dwelling-house in the said Municipality, shall give notice in writing twenty-four hours previously to the Council Clerk, who shall appoint a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as he may deem necessary for the public safety; and if any person shall blast, or cause to be blasted, any rock within the limits aforesaid, without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him by the said Council Clerk, he or she shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Public Property.Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

30. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Municipality, shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

As to damaging buildings.

31. Any person who shall damage any public building, toll-gate, toll bar, toll-board, wall, parapet, fence, sluice-bridge, culvert, sewer, water-course, or other public property within the said Municipality, shall pay the costs of repairing the same, and, if such damage be wilfully done, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

Affixing placards on walls, &c.

32. If any person or persons shall past, or cause to be pasted, or otherwise affix any placard or other paper, or chalk or paint, upon any wall, fence, culvert, kerbstone, path-way, hand-rail, or any other property of the Council, shall forfeit and pay for every such separate offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Damaging trees.

33. Any person who shall wilfully, and without the authority of the Council, cut, break, bark, root-up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood, growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Nuisances.Dead animals, &c., not to be thrown into any public watercourse, &c.

34. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, road, or path-way; or who shall suffer slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer any such slops, suds, or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the foot-ways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause, by means of pipes, shoots, channels or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatsoever to flow into any public watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal; or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer or watercourse, river, creek, or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

Dead animals—mode of removal.

35. If any animal shall die in any part of the said Municipality, and the owner of such animal, or the occupier of the place, if private property where such animal shall have died, shall not cause such animal to be immediately destroyed by fire or so effectually removed and disposed of that no nuisance can possibly result therefrom in any part of the said Municipality, he shall for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than two pounds.

Swine not to be kept, or swine, horse, goat, &c., suffered to wander about the streets.

36. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any house, building, yard, garden, or other hereditament, situate and being in or within twenty yards of any street or public place in the said Municipal District, or shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, or other cattle belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street or public place, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Cleansing butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, &c.

37. For preserving the cleanliness of the said Municipal District and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council, from time to time, and when and as often as he or either of them shall see occasion to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, and fellmongering establishments in the said Municipal District, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing the said shambles, slaughter-houses, tanneries, and establishments, both within and without, as to him shall seem needful; and any butcher, or the owner or occupier of any such shamble, slaughter-house, tannery, or establishment who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Complaints respecting dirty premises, &c.

38. Upon the complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other officer appointed by the said Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officer of the said Council shall have the full power, with out any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose; and any person who shall personally, or by any person in his employment or under his control, suffer any waste or stagnant water, or any muck, filth, soil, or other offensive matter in any cellar or place within any dwelling-house or premises within the said Municipality, or shall in like manner suffer the contents of any water-closet, privy, or cesspool to overflow or soak therefrom shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

39. Every person who, in any street or other public place or passage within the said Municipality, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences, shall, on conviction for any and every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds:—

- (1.) Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the foot-way thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.
- (2.) Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place the carcase or any part of the carcase of any newly-slaughtered animal, without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same for the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butcher's meat for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.
- (3.) Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon, or allow any tree or shrub overhanging the foot-path, to the danger or annoyance of any person.
- (4.) Every person who shall place any flower-pot in any upper window, near to any street or public place, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.
- (5.) Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof, or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure when any house or building is being erected, pulled down, or repaired).
- (6.) Every blacksmith, whitesmith, anchor-smith, and nail-maker, metal-founder, lime-burner, brickmaker, potter, or other person using a forge, furnace, or kiln, and having a door, window, or aperture fronting or opening into or towards any street, lane, or passage, and not enclosing such door, or not fastening the shutters or other fastenings of such window, and closing such aperture, or placing a screen before the same every evening, within one hour after sunset, so as effectually to prevent the light from showing through the doorway, window, or aperture next or upon such street, lane, or passage.
- (7.) Every person who shall, within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house, burn any rags, bones, cork, or other offensive substance, to the annoyance of any inhabitant.
- (8.) Every person who shall carry goods or any frame to the annoyance of any person upon the foot-way of any street or other public foot-way.
- (9.) Every person who shall be the keeper of, or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right-of-way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or any other place within the said Municipality.

Premises in state to endanger public health.Houses to be purified on certificate of two medical practitioners.

40. If, upon the certificate of any two duly qualified medical practitioners, it appear to the Council that any house or any part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, within the limits of the said Municipal District, is in such a filthy or unwholesome condition, that the health of any person is or may be liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and that the white washing, cleansing, or purifying of any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, would tend to prevent or check infectious or contagious diseases, the said Council shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith to white-wash, cleanse, or purify the same, as the case may require; and if the person to whom notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within such time as shall be specified in the said notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings for every day during which he continues to make default: Provided that no such penalties shall collectively amount to any greater sum than twenty pounds; and the said

Council shall, if they shall think, cause such house, building, or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to be white-washed, cleansed, or purified; and for such purposes the proper officers, servants, and workmen of the said Council shall have power to enter the same, and the expense incurred by the Council in so doing shall be paid by the owner or occupier.

Offences against public decency.

Bathing prohibited within certain limits.

41. Any person who shall bathe near to or within view of any inhabited house, or of any public wharf, quay, bridge, street, road, or other place of public resort within the limits of the said Municipal District between the hours of five o'clock in the morning and eight in the evening, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one pound for every such offence.

Penalty on indecent exposure of the person.

42. Any individual who shall offend against decency by the exposure of his or her person in any street or public place within the said Municipal District, or in the view thereof, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

Houses of ill-fame.

43. Upon representation of any respectable ratepayer that any house or premises within the Municipality and near to the residence of such ratepayer, is of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the By-law Committee to cause the residents of such house or premises to furnish to the Council a list of names, sexes, ages, and occupations of all the inmates of the said house or premises, and upon non-compliance with such request, or if upon consideration the said Committee consider the house to be one of ill-fame, they shall, with the sanction of the Council, declare the same to be a nuisance, and shall cause a notice in writing to be served upon the holder of such house or premises, or any person resident or being therein, to discontinue or abate the said nuisance within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice. And if such nuisance be not so abated, the holder of such house or premises or other person residing or being therein and acting as such holder, shall be liable to be proceeded against for such nuisance, and shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay any sum not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds; and if such nuisance shall not be abated within forty-eight hours after such conviction, such holder of such house or such other person residing or being therein as aforesaid shall forfeit and pay for such second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds. And if a further period of forty-eight hours shall elapse after such second conviction without the abatement of such nuisance, such holder of such house, &c., as aforesaid shall, for such third offence, forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

PART V.

Noisome and Offensive Trades.

1. No person shall carry on any noisome or offensive trade within the said Municipality so as to injure or be a nuisance, as hereinafter stated, to be inhabitants thereof.

Definition of noisome and offensive trades.

2. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which, or in consequence of or in connection therewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed or carried on, any gas, vapour, effluvia, or any large quantities of smoke shall be evolved or discharged with gas, vapour, effluvia, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the said Municipality, shall be considered a "noisome and offensive trade" within the meaning of these By-laws.

Complaint.—Inquire and report.—Order of Council thereon.—Notice to discontinue, &c.—Penalty.

3. Upon complaint in writing by any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property as to injure his or her health, or the health of any member of his or her family, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, and the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint and shall report thereon to the said Council; and if the said Council shall, on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so complained of, and so being conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, is a "noisome and offensive trade," within the meaning of these By-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such trade to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, as the said Council may direct, or so to conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be noisome and offensive, within the meaning of these By-laws, either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Municipality. And if such trade shall not be discontinued as aforesaid, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be noisome and offensive as aforesaid, within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on such trade as aforesaid, shall, for the first offence, forfeit and pay a sum not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds; for a second offence, a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds; and for the third and every subsequent offence, a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Mode of proceeding when "noisome and offensive trade" is about to be commenced.—Penalty.

4. The like proceedings shall be taken as aforesaid whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, save and except the notice to be given as aforesaid shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same, or to take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, to any resident within the Municipality. And any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so that the same shall be in any way "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Inspector of Nuisances may take legal proceedings.

5. The Inspector of Nuisances or other person appointed by the Council, may take legal proceedings against any person or persons committing any offence or offences against any of the By-laws of the said Municipality.

Penalties to be paid over to the Treasurer.

6. All penalties under any of these By-laws shall be paid over to the Treasurer of the said Municipality, to be appropriated as the Council may direct.

Interpretation of "Mayor" and "Municipality."

7. Whenever in any of these By-laws the word "Mayor" is made use of, it shall, unless the context shall indicate a contrary intention, be construed also to signify and include any Alderman lawfully acting for the time being in the place or stead of the Mayor: and whenever the word "Municipality" is made use of in the said By-laws it shall be understood to signify the "Municipality of Adamstown."

PART VI.

Public Exhibitions, &c.

Exhibitions, &c., to be licensed.

1. No exhibition, other than exhibitions licensed by the Colonial Secretary, under the provisions of the Act 14 Victoria No. 23, or exhibitions of a temporary character hereinafter specially provided for, shall be held or kept for hire or profit within the said Municipality, nor shall any bowling-alley, dancing saloon, or other place of public amusement, other than a place licensed as aforesaid, or a place of public amusement hereinafter specially provided for, to be used as such for hire or profit within the said Municipality, unless and until permission, in writing, be granted by the Mayor.

Penalty for exhibiting, &c., without license.

2. Every person holding or keeping any such exhibitions or using any place within the said Municipality for public amusement as aforesaid, or causing or permitting such place to be so used without such permission of such Mayor, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less five shillings nor more than forty shillings, for every day that such exhibition shall be so held or kept, or such place shall be so used for public amusement as aforesaid.

No exhibitions, &c., on Sundays, &c.

3. No such exhibition or place of public amusement as aforesaid shall be held or kept open or used for the purpose of such public amusements on Sundays, Christmas Day, or Good Friday, and every person offending against this By-law in this behalf, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds for every such offence.

PART VII.

Water Supply.

Polluting water reservoirs, &c.

1. Whosoever shall bathe in any stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct or other waterworks belonging to or under the management or control of the Council, or shall wash, cleanse, throw, or cause to enter therein any animal, whether alive or dead, or any rubbish, filth, stuff, or thing of any kind whatever, or shall cause or permit or suffer to run or to be brought therein the water of any sink, sewer, drain, engine, or boiler, or other filthy, unwholesome, or improper water, or shall wash any clothes at any public fountain or pump, or in or at any such stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other waterworks, as aforesaid, or shall do anything whatsoever whereby any water or waterworks belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, shall be fouled, obstructed, or damaged, shall, for the first offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; for a second offence, any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and for the third and every subsequent offence, any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds.

Wilful waste of water.

2. Whosoever being supplied with water by the Council from any waterworks, fountain or reservoir, or of belonging to, or under the control or management of the said Council, or having access to any such waterworks, fountain, or reservoir, for the taking of water therefrom, shall wilfully or negligently suffer any water to run to waste from any pipe, pump, or conduit, from or by which he shall be so supplied or to which he shall have such access, shall forfeit and pay, for the first offence, any sum not exceeding five pounds; for a second offence, any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence, any sum not less than five pounds nor more than forty pounds.

Damming up water without consent.

3. Whosoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment, or allow a淤 accumulation of drift or silt to accumulate in or across any river, creek, or natural watercourse, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if, after such second conviction, such person shall fail to remove such dam or embankment within a further reasonable time, he shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty pounds, nor more than fifty pounds; and if, within a reasonable time after a third or any further conviction, he shall still fail to remove such dam or embankment, he shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Diverting water from reservoirs.

4. In any case in which the Council shall have the exclusive right of collecting for the supply of any reservoir or waterworks belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, the storm-water having fallen on any gathering ground, whosoever shall, by any means whatsoever, divert any such water from the course of its natural flow, so that the same shall tend to flow elsewhere than to such reservoir or waterworks, or some watercourse leading thereto, or shall flow to the same respectively in a foul state, shall forfeit and pay, for the first offence, any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds; for a second offence, any sum not less than two pounds nor more than forty pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence, any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

PART VIII.

Parks.

Powers as to number and description of stock lessee entitled to depasture.

8. Any person who shall unlawfully cause any annoyance or inconvenience to any other person in the free use and enjoyment of the said park or public recreation ground, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Persons committing offences in neighbourhood of park.

9. Any person who shall be found committing any breach of any By-law affecting the said park or public recreation ground not expressly provided for in this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall, by disorderly or insulting conduct in the immediate neighbourhood of such park or public recreation ground, cause any annoyance or inconvenience to persons on the said park or public recreation ground, or going to or coming from the same, may be removed by force by any ranger or other proper officer appointed by the Council, which officer shall have the power to call in the aid of the police; and such person so offending shall also forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Penalty for trespass.

10. Any person who shall, without the authority of the Council, be found occupying any portion of the said park or public recreation ground, either by residing or by erecting any tent, hut, or building thereon, or by clearing, digging up, enclosing, or cultivating any part thereof, shall be liable on conviction to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Lawful games.

11. The Council shall, with the consent of the majority of the Aldermen assembled at any meeting, have power to grant to any person or persons, for any period not exceeding twelve calendar months, the right to play any lawful game on the reserve.

PART IX.

For the Regulation of Public Vehicles.

BY-LAWS for the regulation and licensing public carriers, carts, water drawers, and public vehicles, omnibuses, cars, hackney-carriages, cabs, water-carts, drays, carts, or vans, and the drivers and conductors of passenger-carrying vehicles.

All vehicles to be licensed.

1. No vehicle shall ply or be used for hire within the Municipality, unless the same be duly licensed in the manner herein described.

Requisition to be made for license.

2. Before any license for plying a vehicle, or to drive or to conduct the same, shall be granted, the party requiring such license shall obtain from the Council Clerk, free of charge, a requisition in the form of Schedule A hereto, or to the like effect, and duly fill up and sign the same, and deliver it to the Council Clerk; and, in the case of drivers or conductors, shall also obtain a certificate from two respectable householders to the effect that the applicant is of good character and competent to act as such driver or conductor, as the case may be.

Conditions under which licenses to be granted.

3. No license shall be granted in respect of any vehicle which, in the opinion of three Aldermen who shall be appointed by resolution of the Council of the said Municipality, is unsafe or in bad repair or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein, nor until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon on a plate or plates affixed thereon outside on the panel of each door of such vehicle, or any such other place or places and in such manner as the said three Aldermen may direct.

Licenses, and how to be issued.

4. Licenses for proprietors, drivers, and conductors of vehicles shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereto annexed, marked with the letter B, or the like effect; and any person plying, driving, or conducting any vehicle for hire with passengers without such license, shall be deemed guilty of a breach of these By-laws.

Licenses to be under corporate seal.

5. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be under the common seal of the Council, and signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Council Clerk, upon production of a certificate signed by the Aldermen who shall be appointed as aforesaid, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the 31st day of December next ensuing, subject to the conditions in By-law 10; and no such license shall include more than one vehicle: Provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor shall so desire, he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be then specified and endorsed on the license: signed by the Mayor and countersigned as aforesaid.

Age of drivers.

6. No license shall be granted to any person to drive any passenger-carrying vehicle who shall be under the age of eighteen years.

Licenses to be made out by the Council Clerk.

7. All licenses shall be made out by the Council Clerk and numbered consecutively.

Owner of vehicle.

8. The person in whose name a license shall appear to have been obtained shall be prima facie deemed to be the owner of the vehicle in respect of which the same shall have been taken out.

Inspection of vehicles.

9. The three Aldermen aforesaid shall, as often as they may deem it necessary, cause an inspection to be made of all or any licensed vehicles, and of the harness, horse, or horses; and if any such vehicles, harness, horse, or horses, shall at any time be found by the said Aldermen to be unfit for use, the Mayor may cancel the license of such vehicle on the written report of the said Aldermen.

Number of license to be painted on vehicle.

10. The number of the license granted to every omnibus or car, in figures not less than four inches in height, and for every hackney-carriage or cab, in figures not less than two inches in height, of proportionate breadth, white upon a ground of black, shall be painted outside on the panel of the door or doors of such vehicle, or on such other part or parts thereof as the Aldermen aforesaid shall direct; and such numbers shall be kept legible and undefaced during all the time such vehicle shall ply or be used for hire.

Table of fares, &c, to be fixed to vehicle.

11. The number of the license of every hackney-carriage or cab, on a card or plate six inches by three inches, painted or printed in clear legible figures, and the table of fares fixed by the Council, shall be affixed at the upper part of the front panel, or in such other place or places inside of such carriage or cab as the three Aldermen aforesaid, may direct; and such card or plate shall be kept so affixed and legible and undefaced during all the time the carriage or cab shall ply or be used for hire.

Term applied to vehicles.

12. So far as concerns fares in these by-laws, any vehicle, of whatever form or construction, for which a hackney-carriage license has been taken out, if drawn upon four wheels shall be deemed to be a hackney-carriage, and if drawn upon two wheels a cab.

Water carts.

13. The Council shall from time to time license to ply within the Municipality such carts for the sale and carrying of water as shall upon inspection be found fit for that purpose. Every such cart shall be, or shall contain or carry, a vessel or tank capable of containing not less than fifty gallons, and shall have the name of the owner and the words "licensed water-cart" painted on such cart in legible letters.

Water license—how obtained, &c.

14. Every such license shall be issued on the written application of the owner thereof, in which application shall be set forth the name and surname and place of abode of the applicant; and for every such license there shall be paid to the Council the sum of two shillings and sixpence, and every such license shall be in force until the 31st day of December next ensuing after the granting of the said license.

Hawking water.—Penalty.

15. Any person hawking or carrying water for sale or hire, otherwise than in a licensed water-cart as aforesaid, shall, upon conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound.

Name and place of abode to be painted on licensed carts, &c.

16. The name and place of abode, number of license, and the words "licensed cart, dray, or van," as the case may be, are to be painted in letters one inch long upon the right or left side of such cart, dray, or van.

Vehicles to carry lights, &c.

17. All vehicles shall be provided with suitable carriage lamps to burn candles, one to be fixed on each side of the driver's box, and a third on inside of all omnibuses and closed coaches; and the same shall be lighted not later than one hour after sundown, and be kept burning while the vehicles are on the stand or running in the streets, either with or without passengers.

Number of passengers to be carried.

18. When any carriage is submitted for inspection by the owner or other applicant with a view to obtain a license, the Aldermen appointed by the Council for that duty shall then determine upon the number of passengers the vehicle shall be permitted to carry, and give a certificate to that effect, such number to be mentioned in the license.

Legal fares, &c., to be painted on vehicles.

19. The number of passengers the vehicle is licensed to carry, and the legal fare, shall be painted or printed in legible characters and affixed within and without the vehicle in such places as the inspecting Aldermen shall direct.

Penalty for breaking By-laws.

20. For every offence against the provisions of these By-laws the offender shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Vehicle not to be drawn faster than a walk past place of worship on Sunday.

21. No licensed vehicle shall be drawn by any animal or animals past a place of public worship on Sundays during Divine Service at a faster pace than a walk, and no bugle, horn, whistle, or other instrument shall be used on that day for the purpose of attracting the attention of passengers.

Description of persons not allowed to travel in vehicle.

22. No person suffering from an infectious or contagious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor shall knowingly carry, or permit to be carried, any such person or (except to some police office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself, or otherwise so misbehaving, as to occasion any annoyance or to disturb the public peace; and no passenger shall carry inside any vehicle, except a dray, any animal or any substance of an offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle or the apparel of other passengers; and no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle, nor use the same for eating his meals therein.

Vehicle not to carry greater number of passengers than licensed for.

23. No driver or conductor shall admit to the inside, or allow on the outside, of any omnibus, at any one time, a greater number of passengers than the number it shall be licensed to carry, inside or outside, as the case may be; and no omnibus shall be licensed for more passengers than the same will accommodate upon fit seats properly cushioned, allowing for each passenger a space of eighteen inches, measuring in a straight line lengthwise on the front of each seat, nor shall any vehicle be taken off the line of road for which it shall be licensed: Provided that no child under five years of age sitting on the lap shall be deemed to be a passenger within the meaning of these By-laws; no passenger to carry more than one child.

Fare not to be increased until 10 p m.—Driver, &c., not to refuse to carry passengers.

24. No owner, driver, or conductor of any omnibus shall demand, receive, or take from any passenger a larger fare than shall be shown in large unmovable figures in some conspicuous place inside and outside the omnibus as the fare for which such omnibus plies: Provided that no fare shall be increased except between the hours of ten o'clock at night and five o'clock in the morning. And no driver or conductor of an omnibus shall neglect or refuse to admit and carry any person for whom there is room and to whom no reasonable objection can be made under these By-laws; nor, in cases of accident or other unavoidable cause, shall any driver or conductor stop such vehicle upon any place where foot-passengers usually cross the carriage-way.

Fare to be paid upon taking seats—Driver and conductor to be provided.

25. Any person having taken his seat in or upon an omnibus shall pay the fare when demanded after the commencement of his journey. The owner of every omnibus plying for hire shall provide the same with a licensed driver.

Property found in vehicles to be delivered at Council Clerk's Office.

26. The driver of any carriage and conductor of every omnibus shall carefully examine his vehicle immediately after setting down his fare, and in every case of property having been left in any vehicle by any person having used or hired the same, such property, if found by another passenger or person, shall be delivered to the driver or conductor, who shall deliver the same, with any other property found by him, within eighteen hours after such finding, to the Council Clerk's office, and there shall deposit it; and no owner shall detain any property delivered to him by any driver or conductor in his employment longer than the time before-mentioned, but shall deposit it at the office at the Council Chamber with the Council Clerk or his assistant.

Licensee fees to be paid to Council Clerk.

27. For every license issued under the By-laws in force for the time being in that behalf within the said Municipality, there shall be paid to the Council of the said Municipality, by delivering the same to the Council Clerk or other person authorized to receive the same, the several sums mentioned or set forth in Schedule C to these By-laws for the general purposes of the said Borough.

Terms to be applied to licensed vehicles.

28. Whenever the word "vehicle" shall be used in these By-laws, the same shall be construed to extend and apply to any omnibus, car, hackney-carriage, or cab. The word "omnibus" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon four wheels drawn by two or more horses, having seat accommodation for more than ten passengers and a driver. The word "car" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon two or four wheels drawn by one or more horses, having seat accommodation for not more than ten or less than five passengers and a driver. The word "hackney-carriage" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two or more horses, and having seat accommodation for not more than five passengers and a driver, and in respect of which a hackney-carriage license within the said Municipality shall have been obtained. The word "cab" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon two wheels, having seat accommodation for not more than two passengers and a driver, in respect of which a cab license within the said Municipality shall have been obtained. The word "cart" shall extend and apply to any cart, dray, van, or waggon, drawn by one or more horses or other animals, used wholly and for the carriage of goods and parcels. The word "water-cart" shall extend and apply to any cart used for the carriage of water within the said Municipality in respect of which a water-cart license shall have been obtained.

Fares to be charged.

29. No proprietor or driver of any hackney-carriage or cab within the said Municipality shall demand, receive, or take more than the several fares or sums mentioned or set forth in the Schedule D to these By-laws, or such other sums as the Council of the said Municipality shall from time to time determine or appoint in substitution therefor as hereinafter provided; and every proprietor, driver, or conductor failing to comply with this By-law shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty or sum of not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Power of Council to amend scale of fares, &c.

30. The Council of the said Municipality may from time to time, by resolution passed in that behalf, alter and vary or amend the said Schedule D and the respective sums chargeable thereunder or any of them, and such alterations, variations, or amendments shall become of full force and effect so soon as the same shall have been publicly notified by advertisement in the New South Wales Government Gazette and at least one newspaper circulating in or near the said Municipality; and the Council of the Municipality shall not be responsible for any loss which such alterations or amendments may have or may be alleged to have occasioned to the holders of licenses for the time being or any of them.

Toll to be paid by hirer.

31. All tolls to be paid by the hirer of any hackney-carriage or cab, in addition to the ordinary fare.

Passengers to be taken up, &c.

32. No driver of any hackney-carriage or cab shall refuse to take up any passenger or passengers unless already engaged for hire, nor refuse to convey such passenger or passengers to such place or places within the said Municipality as he, she, or they may reasonably desire; and every person failing to comply with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Cab-stand, &c.

33. The Council shall by resolution, to be publicly notified as in By-law 30 of this "Part," from time to time appoint any place or places within the said Municipality as stands for licensed hackney carriages, cabs, and omnibuses within the said Municipality.

34. No vehicle shall be allowed to stand or remain stationary on any street within the said Municipality, except on the duly appointed cab-stand for the time being, for a longer period than the time reasonably necessary to take up or set down any passenger or passengers for the time being requiring or using the same, or for loading or unloading or receiving or delivering the goods or parcels which the driver of such vehicle shall have been employed to carry; and any driver or proprietor of any such vehicle remaining stationary contrary to this By-law shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty or sum of not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Driver not to leave his horse or horses.

35. No driver of any licensed vehicle shall be or remain at such a distance from his horse or horses while attached to his vehicle anywhere within the said Municipality as not to have immediate and full control over the same; and every person so doing shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Speed at which to travel.

36. All hackney-carriages, cabs, or omnibuses carrying passengers shall (except when turning street corners) proceed at a speed of not less than six miles an hour, unless when attending funerals, or when otherwise ordered by the hirer; and every driver of any such carriage, cab, or omnibus, failing to comply with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Copies of Schedule D to be printed and fixed at cab-stand.

37. Copies of the said Schedule D hereto shall be printed or written in legible characters, and exhibited on boards placed in conspicuous positions—one at each cab-stand within the Municipality, and one at the Railway Station, in such place as the Commissioner for Railways may approve.

Copies of By-laws to be given with license.

38. Copies of these and of all other By-laws passed by the Council of the said Municipality, for the regulation of licensed vehicles, and still remaining in force, shall be delivered with each license issued, unless the person shall have previously received copies thereof.

Penalty to be enforced for breach of By-laws.

39. All proprietors and drivers of licensed vehicles shall at all times be amenable to and observe and comply with the By-laws for the time being in force for the care and management of the public roads, public streets, and public thoroughfares within the said Municipality, and for every breach thereof shall incur the same penalties as other persons.

40. Any person offending against any of these By-laws shall, except when otherwise expressly provided, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings for every such offence.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(BOROUGH OF ALEXANDRIA—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 11th August, 1887.

BOROUGH OF ALEXANDRIA.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Alexandria, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for establishing and regulating a toll-bar within the Municipality, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

WHEREAS it has been deemed expedient by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Alexandria to place a toll-gate on the Mitchell Road, for the purpose of collecting tolls for the maintenance and repairs of the said road, they, the said Municipal Council, have agreed to the following By-laws for establishing and regulating the same, for the scale of tolls to be levied, and for collection of said tolls:—

That a gate be erected on the Mitchell Road, at Sparke's Bridge, with a catch-bar across Copeland-street, at its junction with the Mitchell Road.

That the following scale of tolls be levied on every vehicle or animal passing through the said gate each time, the said vehicles or animals being allowed to return without such toll being demanded:—

	s.	d.
For every sheep, goat or pig	0	0½
For every ox or head of neat cattle	0	1
For every horse, mare, gelding, ass, or mule	0	1
For every cart, dray, or other such vehicle, with two wheels, drawn by one horse or other animal	0	2
If drawn by two horses or other animals	0	3
And for every additional horse or other animal	0	1
And for every wain, waggon, or other such carriage with four wheels, drawn by two horses or other animals	0	4
And for every additional horse or other animal drawing such carriage	0	1
For every gig, chaise, or other such carriage with two wheels, drawn by one horse or other animal	0	3
If drawn by two horses or other animals	0	4
For every coach, chariot, or other such carriage with four wheels, and drawn by one horse or other animal	0	5
If drawn by two horses or other animals	0	6
And for every additional horse or other animal	0	1

That for every vehicle with four wheels, usually drawn by two or more horses, affixed, tied, or secured to any other vehicle, there shall be paid for such vehicle the same rate of toll as if drawn by two horses.

And for every vehicle with two wheels, the same rate of toll as if drawn by one horse.

Provided always that if any such vehicle so tied or secured to any other vehicle shall contain any goods other than the harness thereto belonging, and such articles of packages as may be necessary for the protection of such carriage or passengers, the same shall be liable to double the toll hereby imposed.

The said toll-gate and catch-bar shall be sold annually, for a term of twelve months, by auction or otherwise, as the Council may deem expedient.

Any person with any horse, beast, or carriage going off or passing from the road through or over any land or ground near or adjoining, not being a public highway, with intent to evade payment of toll, or if any person shall give or receive from any person other than a collector of tolls, or shall forge, counterfeit, or alter any note or ticket with intent to evade the payment of tolls or any part thereof, or if any person shall neglect or refuse to pay toll or shall fraudulently or forcibly pass through such toll-gate with any beast or carriage or shall leave upon the said road any beast or carriage whatsoever by reason whereof the payment of any toll shall be avoided or lessened, or shall take off or cause to be taken off any beast from any carriage either before or after having passed through such toll-gate, or having passed through the gate shall afterwards add or put any beast to any such carriage and draw therewith upon any part of road so as to increase the number of beasts drawing the said carriage after the same shall have passed through the said toll-gate whereby the payment of toll shall or may be lessened, or if any person shall do any other act whatsoever in order or with intent to evade the payment of toll and whereby the same shall be evaded; every such person shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Any person or persons whomsoever shall wilfully or maliciously pull or cut down, pluck up, throw down, break, level, or otherwise damage, demolish, or destroy the toll-gate or toll-house or any chain, post, rail, bar, wall, or other fence or fences of or belonging to such toll-gate or any other chain, post, bar, or fence of any kind whatsoever used therewith, or set up or erected or hereafter to be set up or erected to prevent passengers or travellers or their beasts or carriages from passing without paying toll or any house or houses erected or to be erected for the use of such toll-gate, or shall forcibly rescue any person or persons being lawfully in custody of any officer or other person for any of the offences hereinbefore mentioned, then and in each and every such case every person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby.

Any person or persons whosoever shall wilfully pull down break, injure, or damage any table of tolls put up at the toll-bar as aforesaid, or shall wilfully or designedly deface, or obliterate any of the inscriptions, letters, figures, or marks thereon, or if any person or persons shall wilfully pull up, throw down, cut, break, injure, damage, or destroy any post, rail, or fence placed or to be placed or put up, either by the side or sides of the road, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding £3 over and above the damages occasioned thereby.

(BOROUGH OF BALMAIN—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158, and sec. 4 of the Borough of Balmain Wharves Act.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 19th April, 1888.

BALMAIN MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Balmain, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Borough of Balmain Wharves Act of 1887," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF BALMAIN.

BY-LAWS of the Borough of Balmain, made under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and "Borough of Balmain Wharves Act of 1887."

1. That the wharves situate within and belonging to the Borough of Balmain are public wharves, at which tolls, rates, and dues may be collected under the Municipalities Act of 1867.

2. That the Municipal Council for the time being of the Borough of Balmain, or any person or persons authorized by and acting for and on behalf of the said Council, or any lessee or lessees of any of the said wharves, shall be entitled to and may charge, demand, and receive, at each of the said wharves respectively, such tolls, rates, and dues as shall from time to time be named or fixed by any resolution of the said Council, but not exceeding the amounts following, that is to say:—For each steamer embarking or landing passengers or cargo at any of the said wharves, for each trip two shillings and sixpence; from every licensed waterman plying for hire to or from any of the said wharves, for each week one shilling; for all other vessels embarking, loading, or discharging any cargo at any of the said wharves, sixpence for each ton or for any quantity less than a ton embarked, loaded, or discharged at one time; and for every steamer or vessel moored or fastened to or lying alongside any of the said wharves, and from or in which passengers or cargo are not actually being landed, embarked, loaded, or discharged, the sum of twelve shillings for each day or part of a day during which such steamer or vessel shall be so moored, fastened, or lying; but it shall be lawful for the said Council from time to time to enter into any agreement with the owners or proprietors, or persons in charge or command of such steamers or vessels, for the payment of a certain sum weekly or otherwise for and in respect of such landing or embarkation of passengers as aforesaid, or in respect of the embarking, loading, or discharging of any such cargo as aforesaid, or of such steamer or vessel being so moored, fastened, or lying alongside as aforesaid.

3. If any person shall embark or land any passenger or cargo from any steamer, or cause or permit any passenger or cargo to be so embarked or landed, or shall embark, load, or discharge, or cause or permit to be embarked, loaded, or discharged, any cargo at, upon, or from any of the said wharves; or, being a licensed waterman, shall ply for hire to or from any of the said wharves; or if any person shall cause any steamer or other vessel to be fastened by a warp or otherwise to, or to be moored or lie alongside, any of the said wharves without having first paid the said tolls, rates, or dues, or entered into the agreement referred to by these By-laws; or if any person shall cause any steamer or vessel to lie alongside of, or to be fastened to, any of the said wharves for any period beyond what may be reasonably necessary for the purpose of landing or embarking passengers, or embarking, loading, or discharging cargo as aforesaid; or if any person who shall be apparently in charge or command of any steamer or vessel shall not remove the same from any of the wharves immediately upon being required so to do by any authorized officer of the said Council,—every person so offending shall be liable, on summary conviction, to pay a penalty for the first offence not exceeding £5, for the second offence a sum not less than £5 nor exceeding £10, and for the third and every subsequent offence not less than £10 nor exceeding £20. And all such tolls, rates, and dues may be sued for and recovered by or on behalf of the said Borough in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Balmain, this the twenty-ninth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

(BOROUGH OF BATHURST—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 21st June, 1888.

BOROUGH OF BATHURST.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Bathurst, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for Regulating and Licensing Vehicles, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF BATHURST.

BY-LAWS for the regulating and licensing of public carriers, carters, water drawers, and public vehicles, omnibuses, cars, hackney carriages, cabs, water-carts, drays, carts, or vans, and the drivers and conductors of passenger-carrying vehicles.

1. No vehicle shall ply or be used for hire within the Borough of Bathurst, unless the same be duly licensed in the manner hereinafter described.

2. Before any license for plying a vehicle or to drive or conduct the same shall be granted, the person requiring such license shall obtain from the Council Clerk, free of charge, a requisition in the form of the Schedule hereunto annexed marked with the letter A, or to the like effect, and duly fill up and sign the same and deliver it to the Council Clerk; and all drivers and conductors shall obtain a certificate from two respectable householders setting forth that the applicant is of good character and competent to act as such driver or conductor as the case may be.

3. No license shall be granted if in the opinion of a Board of five Aldermen, three to form a quorum, who shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council, any vehicle is unsafe or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein, nor shall it be licensed until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon, as provided by numbers 10 and 11 of these By-laws respectively.

4. Licenses for proprietors, drivers, and conductors of vehicles shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked with the letter B, or to the like effect; and no person shall ply, drive, or conduct any vehicle for hire without such license.

5. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be under the Common Seal of the Borough of Bathurst, and signed by the Mayor, and countersigned by the Council Clerk, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the 31st day of December next ensuing, subject to the conditions in By-law 9; and no such license shall include more than one vehicle: Provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor shall so desire, he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be then specified and endorsed on the license signed by the Mayor and countersigned as aforesaid.

6. No license shall be granted to any person to drive any passenger-carrying vehicle who shall be under the age of eighteen years.

7. All licenses shall be made out by the Council Clerk and numbered consecutively.

8. The person in whose name a license shall appear to have been obtained shall be prima facie deemed to be the owner of the vehicle in respect of which the same shall have been taken out.

9. The three Aldermen aforesaid shall, as often as they may deem it necessary, cause an inspection to be made of all or any licensed vehicles and of the harness, horse, or horses; and if any such vehicle, harness, horse, or horses shall at any time be found by the said Aldermen to be unfit for use, the Mayor may cancel the license of such vehicle on the written report of the said Aldermen.

10. The number of the license granted to every omnibus or car in figures not less than four inches in height, and for every hackney carriage or cab in figures not less than two inches in height, of proportionate breadth, white upon a ground of black, shall be painted outside on the panel of the door or doors of such vehicle, or on such other part or parts thereof as the Aldermen aforesaid may direct, and such numbers shall be kept legible and undefaced during all the time such vehicle shall ply or be used for hire.

11. The number of the license of every hackney carriage or cab shall be painted or printed in clear legible figures on a card or plate six inches by three inches, with the table of fares fixed by the Council, and shall be affixed at the upper part of the front panel, or in such other place or places inside of such carriage or cab as the three Aldermen aforesaid shall direct; and such card or plate shall be kept so affixed and legible and undefaced during all the time the carriage or cab shall ply or be used for hire.

12. Carters, plying for hire, of water-carts, drays, or vans, are to be registered at the Council Clerk's Office and receive a license, for which each applicant shall pay in accordance with Schedule C.

13. The owner's name and place of abode, in letters two inches high and proportionately broad, and the number of license, and the words "licensed cart, dray, lorry, or van," as the case may be, in letters one inch long, shall be painted upon the right or off side of such cart, dray, lorry, or van, legibly in white letters on a black ground.

14. All vehicles licensed to carry passengers shall be provided with suitable carriage-lamps to burn candles, one to be fixed on each side of the driver's box, and a third one inside of all omnibuses and closed coaches, and the same shall be lighted not later than half-an-hour after sundown, and kept burning while the vehicle is on the stand or running the streets, either with or without passengers.

15. When any carriage is submitted for inspection by the owner or other applicant, with the view to obtain a license, the Aldermen appointed by the Council to that duty shall then determine upon the number of passengers the vehicle shall be permitted to carry, and give a certificate to that effect, such number to be mentioned in the license.

16. The number of passengers each vehicle is licensed to carry, and the legal fare, shall be printed or painted in legible characters and affixed within and without the vehicle, as directed by the inspecting Aldermen.

17. No licensed vehicle shall be driven past a place of public worship on Sundays during Divine Service at a quicker pace than a walk, and no bugle, horn, whistle, or other instrument shall be used on that day for any purpose.

18. No person suffering from any infectious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor shall knowingly carry, or permit to be carried, any such person, or (except to some police office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself, or otherwise so misbehaving as to occasion any annoyance, or to disturb the public peace; and no passenger shall carry on any licensed passenger-carrying vehicle any animal, or any substance of any offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle or the apparel of other passengers; and no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle, or use the same for eating his meals therein.

19. No driver or conductor shall carry on any omnibus at any one time a greater number of passengers than the number it shall be licensed to carry inside or outside, as the case may be, and no omnibus shall be licensed for more passengers than the same will accommodate upon fit seats properly cushioned, allowing for each passenger a space of 18 inches, measuring in a straight line lengthwise on the front of each seat, nor shall any vehicle be taken off the line of road for which it shall be licensed: Provided that no child under five years of age sitting on the lap shall be deemed to be a passenger, and no passenger to carry more than one child.

20. No owner, driver, or conductor of any omnibus shall demand, receive, or take from any passenger a larger fare than shall be shown in large immovable figures in some conspicuous place both inside and outside the omnibus as the fare for which such omnibus plies: Provided that no fare shall be increased, except between the hours of 10 p.m. and 5 a.m., and no driver or conductor of any omnibus shall neglect or refuse to admit and carry any person for whom there is room, and to whom no reasonable objection can be made under these By-laws, nor, except in cases of accident or other unavoidable cause, shall any driver or conductor stop such vehicle upon any place where foot passengers usually cross the carriage way.

21. Any person having taken his seat in or upon any omnibus shall pay the fare when demanded, after the commencement of his journey.

22. The driver and conductor of any vehicle shall carefully examine the same immediately after setting down all passengers, and in every case of property having been left in such vehicle by any person having used or hired the same, such property, if found by another passenger or other person, shall be delivered to the driver or conductor, who shall deliver the same, with any other property found by him, within twelve hours after such finding, at the Council Clerk's office; and no owner shall detain any property delivered to him by any driver or conductor in his employment longer than the time before mentioned, but shall deposit it at the Council Clerk's office as before mentioned.

23. For every license issued under these By-laws there shall be paid to the Council Clerk, or other officer authorized by the Council to receive the same, the several sums set forth in Schedule C to these By-laws.

24. Wherever the word "vehicle" shall be used in these By-laws, the same shall be construed to extend and apply to any coach, omnibus, car, hackney carriage, cab, cart, water-cart, or lorry. The word "omnibus" shall apply to any vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two or more horses, having seat accommodation for more than ten passengers and a driver. The word "car" shall apply to any vehicle upon two or four wheels, drawn by one or more horses, having seat accommodation for not more than ten nor less than five passengers and a driver. The word "hackney carriage" shall apply to any vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two or more horses, having seat accommodation for not more than five passengers and a driver, and in respect of which a hackney carriage license shall have been obtained. The word "cab" shall apply to any vehicle upon two wheels, having seat accommodation for not more than two passengers and a driver, in respect of which a cab license shall have been obtained. The word "cart" shall apply to any cart, dray, or van drawn by one or more horses, and used for the carriage of goods or parcels. The word "lorry" shall apply to any waggon, trolley, or timber carriage drawn by two or more horses. The word "water-cart" shall apply to any cart used for the carriage of water, in respect of which a water-cart license shall have been obtained.

25. No proprietor or driver of any hackney carriage or cab shall demand or receive more than the several fares or sums set forth in Schedule D to these By-laws, or such other sums as the Council of the said Borough shall from time to time determine or appoint in substitution thereof as hereafter provided.

26. The Council of the said Borough may from time to time by resolution passed on that behalf, alter, vary, or amend the said Schedule D, and the respective sums chargeable thereunder, or any of them, and such alterations shall become of full force and effect so soon as the same shall have been publicly notified by advertisement in the New South Wales Government Gazette, and at least one newspaper circulating within the Borough; and the Council of the said Borough shall not be responsible for any loss which such alterations may have or may be alleged to have occasioned to the holders of licenses for the time being, or any of them.

27. No driver of any hackney carriage or cab shall refuse to take up any passenger or passengers unless already engaged for hire, nor refuse to convey such passenger or passengers to such place or places within the said Borough as such passenger or passengers may reasonably desire: Provided nevertheless, that the provisions of this By-law shall not extend or apply to any of the persons disqualified from using public vehicles by By-law 18.

28. No driver of any hackney carriage or cab shall engage to convey any person or persons at a particular time and afterwards neglect or refuse to do so.

29. The Council shall, by resolution to be publicly notified as in By-law No. 30 of this part, from time to time appoint any place or places within the said Municipality as stands for licensed hackney carriages and cabs within the said Municipality.

30. No driver of any licensed vehicle shall be or remain at such a distance from his licensed vehicle, anywhere within the said Borough, so as not to have immediate and full control over the same.

31. No vehicle shall be allowed to stand or remain stationary on any street within the Borough, except on the duly appointed stands, for a longer period than the time necessary to take up or set down any passenger or passengers, or requiring or using the same for loading, unloading, receiving, or delivering the goods or parcels which the driver of such vehicle shall have been employed to carry.

32. All hackney carriages and cabs standing upon any duly-appointed cabstand within the Borough shall be deemed to be disengaged, and shall not refuse to convey any passenger or passengers to such place or places within the said Borough as they may reasonably desire: Provided nevertheless, that the provisions of this By-law shall not extend or apply to any of the persons disqualified from using public vehicles by By-laws 19 and 29.

33. All hackney carriages and cabs carrying passengers shall (except when turning street corners or going over crossings) proceed at a speed of not less than six miles an hour, unless when attending funerals, or when otherwise ordered by the hirer.

34. Copies of Schedule D, hereto attached, shall be printed or written in legible characters, and exhibited on boards placed in conspicuous positions—one at each cabstand within the Borough, and one at the Bathurst Railway Station, in such place as the Commissioner for Railways may approve.

35. Copies of all By-laws passed by the Council for the regulation of licensed vehicles shall be delivered with each license issued.

36. All proprietors and drivers of licensed vehicles shall at all times be amenable to, and observe and comply with, the By-laws for the time being in force for the care and management of the public roads, public streets, and public thoroughfares within the said Municipality, and for every breach thereof shall incur the same penalties as other persons.

37. Any person offending against any of these By-laws shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five shillings for every such offence.

Given under my hand, and under the Common Seal of the Borough Council of Bathurst, in the Colony of New South Wales, this 10th day of February, A.D. 1888.

THOS. A. MACHATTIE,
Mayor.
DAVID C. WILLIAMSON,

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BOURKE—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws made by the Council of the Municipal District of Bourke, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for licensing and regulating hackney carriages, drays, and waggons, and the owners and drivers thereof, plying for hire within the Municipality, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THOSE By-laws published in the Supplement to the Government Gazette No. 315, Wednesday, 4th August, 1880, and intitled "A By-law to empower the Municipal Council of Bourke to collect license fees from all carters plying for hire, or carrying sand, loam, stone, bricks, firewood, hay, or other material for sale or delivery within the Municipality,"—and being portion I of such By-laws and sections 1 to 5 of such portion are hereby repealed.

BY-LAWS for licensing and regulating hackney carriages, drays, and waggons, and the owners and drivers thereof plying for hire within the Municipality of Bourke.

1. No carriage shall ply for hire as a hackney carriage within the Municipality until and unless the same be duly licensed by the Council of the Municipal District of Bourke.

2. Before any license for a carriage shall be granted a requisition for the same shall be made at the Office of the Town Clerk by the owner of the carriage, and signed by him in the form contained in the Schedule hereto annexed and marked A; and if any false statement be contained in any such requisition any license issued in compliance therewith shall be void.

3. No license shall be granted in respect of any carriage which, in the opinion of the Inspector, shall be unsafe or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers.

4. Licenses for hackney carriages shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereto annexed and marked B, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the thirty-first day of December next ensuing, and no longer; and no such license shall include more than one carriage: Provided that where the licensed carriage shall be under repair or otherwise the owners thereof may be permitted to substitute another carriage for a period to be specified by endorsement on the license, and signed by the Town Clerk.

5. For the license of every hackney carriage, and for every renewal thereof there shall be charged and received by the Town Clerk as follows, i.e. :—

If the carriage be licensed to carry not more than five passengers, £1 10s.

If licensed to carry more than five, and not more than ten passengers, £2.

If licensed to carry more than ten passengers, £3.

No license shall be granted for less than a half year, which shall expire on the 30th June and 31st December.

6. No person shall keep, use, employ, or let for hire for the carrying of passengers any hackney carriage, or act as the driver thereof within the Municipality of Bourke unless he shall have a license granted and in force under provisions of these By-laws to do so; and no person shall be granted a license unless he can satisfy the Council that he is a person of fit fame and character.

7. Before a license be granted to any person as a hackney carriage driver he shall sign a requisition for the same in form of Schedule C annexed hereto, and shall if so required produce certificates of good conduct and ability.

8. The licenses of owners and drivers of hackney carriages shall be in the forms contained in the Schedule hereto annexed marked D, and for every such license there shall be paid to the Town Clerk the sum of two shillings and sixpence (2s. 6d.), and every such license shall remain in force until the 30th of June or the 31st of December next ensuing.

9. All licenses granted under this By-law shall be signed by the Town Clerk, and numbered in such order as may be determined by the Council.

10. No person shall be at liberty to part with or lend his license; and any owner who shall sell his licensed carriage shall report in writing the name and address of the purchaser to the Town Clerk, and shall, along with such report, return to the Town Clerk the number plates.

11. The number of the license granted for every hackney carriage, in figures not less than two inches in length and of proportionate breadth, shall be painted or fixed outside and inside of such carriage, on such parts thereof and in such manner as the Council through the Clerk may direct, and such figures shall be kept conspicuous, legible, and undefaced during all the time such carriage shall ply or be used for hire.

12. Every carriage for which a license shall be desired, must be submitted for inspection to an Inspector, who, on behalf of the Council, shall examine such carriage as to its suitability in every particular, and shall determine the number of passengers which it shall be deemed to be constructed to carry, allowing not less than sixteen inches length of seat for each passenger, and the number so fixed and appointed to be carried shall be written by the owner in some conspicuous place on the inside of such carriage as may be directed by the Inspector, distinctly and legibly in words at length, in the following form: - Licensed to carry (here insert the number fixed) inside and (here insert the number fixed) outside. The letters to be at least one inch in length and of proportionate breadth.

13. No licensed carriage shall ply for hire or carry passengers unless at the time of such plying or carrying such carriage be drawn by at least a number of horses proportionate to the number of passengers which such carriage shall have been licensed to carry, as follows:—

If licensed to carry six or any less number of passengers, one horse.

If licensed to carry more than six and not more than fifteen passengers, two horses.

If licensed to carry more than fifteen and not more than twenty-four passengers, three horses.

14. Every licensed carriage, and every private carriage, dray, waggon, or other vehicle that shall be driven after sunset and before sunrise, shall be provided with proper carriage lights, and the driver thereof shall keep the same lighted while such vehicle shall be so driven.

15. The owner of every covered licensed carriage shall cause to be placed inside thereof, in such manner as shall be directed by the Inspector, a lamp having upon the glass thereof the number of such carriage painted in figures plain and legible; and the driver of such carriage shall keep the said lamp properly clean and lighted whenever such carriage shall ply for hire, or carry passengers at any time after sunset and before sunrise.

16. If, upon inspection at any time by the Inspector, any licensed carriage or the harness, or horse, used in drawing the same be found insufficient or unfit for public use, it shall be the duty of such Inspector to give notice to the owner or driver of such carriage in writing in the form of Schedule E hereto annexed; and no such owner or driver shall, after the receipt of such notice, use, or let for hire, such carriage, or permit the same to be used, or let for hire until it or the horse, or the harness used in connection with the working of the same, shall, in the opinion of the Inspector, be in a fit condition for use.

As to Hiring.

17. No driver, or owner of any licensed carriage, having agreed to take any fare at any time, or from any place, shall fail to fulfil such agreement. Every carriage standing at any duly appointed stand for carriages plying for hire, shall be deemed to be so plying, and the driver thereof shall be bound to take immediately any fare not exceeding the number of persons which his carriage is licensed to carry; and no such owner or driver shall refuse to carry thereby a reasonable quantity of luggage for any person hiring or desiring to hire such carriage, nor shall refuse to drive the same to any place within the limits of this By-law, nor for any time not exceeding twelve hours if so required by any person hiring or desiring to hire such carriage, nor shall fail to drive the same at reasonable speed—not less than five miles an hour: Provided nevertheless that no owner or driver shall be compelled to take such fare, unless the intending hirer shall, upon demand, pay in advance the legal fare for the proposed journey, or in the event of such owner or driver being already engaged.

18. Every owner or driver licensed under the provisions of this By-law shall, at the time of obtaining his first license, have delivered to him a copy of these By-laws without charge, and for every succeeding copy the said owner, or driver, shall pay to the Town Clerk the sum of two shillings, and shall at all times have such copy, or some other copy of the same, and shall produce it for perusal to any person using or hiring such carriage; and every driver shall at all times when plying for hire have with him his license, and shall, upon demand, produce the same for inspection to any officer of the Council or of the Police requiring to inspect the same.

19. The driver of every vehicle licensed or otherwise shall, while driving, keep upon his proper driving seat, and shall keep on his left or near side of the road except in case of actual necessity or other sufficient reason for deviation.

20. Any person who shall find any lost or forgotten property in any licensed carriage shall, before leaving such carriage, deliver such property to the driver of such carriage, who shall deliver the same within twelve hours at the Council Chambers.

21. Any person who, having hired or used a licensed vehicle, shall fail to pay the legal fare when demanded, shall be deemed guilty of a breach of these By-laws, and upon conviction thereof before one or more Justices, shall forfeit and pay the same with such additional sum as damages, costs, and charges for loss of time or otherwise as the Justices before whom he shall have been convicted shall think fit.

22. In case of dispute between the hirer and driver, the hirer, if required to do so, shall state truly his name and address to the driver.

As to Fares.

23. The rates and fares for the conveyance of passengers by hacking carriages plying for hire within the Municipality of Bourke shall be those which are mentioned in the Schedule to these By-laws annexed and marked F; and the same shall apply in the manner and to the extent in the said Schedule specified as well to omnibuses and waggonettes as to hackney carriages of other descriptions; and the said rates or fares shall be the greatest amounts which it shall be lawful for any owner or driver within the Municipality of Bourke to charge or demand.

24. Children over four years and under twelve years of age shall be charged for at half fare.

25. The owner or driver of every omnibus shall exhibit on such omnibus where and in such manner as shall be directed by the Inspector, so much of the table of rates and fares as fixed by the Council as shall in the opinion of the Inspector be applicable to such omnibus, and the amount of fare chargeable for each passenger carried thereby. And save by the provisions of these or any other By-laws which shall be duly made and passed by the Council no alteration shall be made in such fares.

26. The owners or drivers of hackney carriages shall, within seven days after the coming of these By-laws into operation, cause the tables of rates and fares to be exhibited in or painted upon their respective vehicles, and made so as to correspond exactly with the rates and fares set forth in the Schedule F hereto annexed.

27. Fares by distance shall be computed from the stand or place where the carriage was hired to the most distant part of the journey therefrom.

28. Fares shall be made payable on demand at the commencement of the hiring or using of a licensed carriage.

[Schedules referred to in the foregoing By-laws.]

COONAMBLE MUNICIPALITY.—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.

THE following additional By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Coonamble, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF COONAMBLE.

ADDITIONAL By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Coonamble, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for the regulation of tree planting in the streets, thoroughfares, and public reserves within the said Municipality.

Tree Planting.

1. The Council shall have power to plant trees on any public street, thoroughfare, or place within the said Municipal District.
2. The Council may by a resolution at any regular meeting vote a sum of money to be expended in the planting and preserving of trees and shrubs in the public streets, thoroughfares, or places within the Municipality, and from time to time determine what streets, thoroughfares, or places shall be so planted.
3. The Council shall cause trees or shrubs to be planted in any street, thoroughfare or place, in accordance with these By-laws, in the following manner, that is to say :—In the main streets having full width, at a distance not greater than six feet from the kerbing, and at such distances apart as the Council may from time to time determine, and in accordance with a plan to be approved of by resolution of the Council. Where trees or shrubs are planted in lanes or other public places, plans also to be approved by resolution of the Council.
4. The trees or shrubs to be planted in the public streets or other public places shall consist of such as may be authorized by resolution of the Council; and such other trees or shrubs upon recreation grounds or reserves, as the Council may determine.
5. The Council may erect, or cause to be erected, guards of wood or other material to protect trees or shrubs planted in any street or thoroughfare or public place within the Municipality; the said guards or enclosures to be of such design and dimensions as the Council may determine.
6. Any person in any way injuring, destroying, or interfering with trees or shrubs planted, or guards enclosing same, or protected in any street, thoroughfare, or public place within the Municipality shall be upon conviction liable to a fine of not less than one shilling nor more than ten pounds.
7. The Council Clerk, on the authority of the Mayor, shall have power to prosecute any person or persons who offend against the last preceding By-law.

Passed at a meeting of the Municipal Council of Coonamble, held on 27th day of September, 1887, under Municipalities Act of 1867.

(BOROUGH OF COOTAMUNDRA—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 26th March, 1888.

COOTAMUNDRA MUNICIPALITY.—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.

THE following additional By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Cootamundra, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

THAT the following be and are hereby confirmed as the additional By-laws of the Council of the Borough of Cootamundra.

Conduct of Business.

Motions to be in writing, and not withdrawn without leave.

1. The Council Clerk shall put every motion into writing, which shall be signed by the mover; and every motion, when seconded and read by the clerk, shall be considered the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn without leave of the Council.

Streets and public places.Noxious weeds.

2. Any person appointed by the Council may enter upon any land within the said Borough, and for that purpose may break open gates, or take down or remove fences, to extirpate the weed known as Bathurst burr or Scotch thistle, or other noxious weeds: Provided always that if any gate be broken or fences removed the same shall, immediately after the work then required to be done, be restored to their former condition as nearly as may be; and the expense of extirpating such weeds and restoring such fences may be recovered as an ordinary debt from the owner or occupier of such lands. Any person hindering or obstructing any person so appointed as aforesaid shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of forty shillings. All owners or occupiers of property within this Borough shall remove and burn all kinds of thistles, Bathurst burr, or other noxious weeds upon lands owned, rented, or occupied by them; and any owner, tenant, or occupier neglecting to comply with this By-law, after fourteen days' notice from any officer of the said Borough requiring him to remove and burn such weeds as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty shillings and not exceeding fifty pounds.

Miscellaneous.Erection of houses, &c.

3. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place in the Borough without first serving notice, in writing, on the Mayor or Council Clerk, on any lawful day, between the hours of 8 o'clock a.m. and 8 o'clock p.m., stating such intention, and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, and without having received an authority from the Mayor or Council Clerk, who will give the required level and alignment, if in a proclaimed street, on a payment of a fee of ten shillings. No person shall be at liberty to encroach beyond the building line in any street, or lane by the erection of houses, verandahs, door-steps, fences, or any other obstruction whatever.

Using bark for building in the main thoroughfares.

4. No person shall erect any building of bark or roofed with that material or with calico within the populous parts of the town, except by express permission of the Council, and then for a temporary purpose only; any person so offending shall on conviction be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds, to be recovered in a summary way, and shall be bound to remove the aforesaid building within such period as the Council may determine.

BY-LAWS FOR REGULATION OF PUBLIC VEHICLES.

BY-LAWS for the regulation and licensing of public carriers, carters, water-drawers, and public vehicles, omnibuses, cars, hackney carriages, cabs, water-carts, drays, carts, or vans, and the drivers and conductors of passenger-carrying vehicles.

Vehicles to be licensed.

5. No vehicle shall ply or be used for hire within the Borough of Cootamundra, unless the same be duly licensed in the manner herein described.

Requisition to be made for license.

6. Before any license for plying a vehicle, or to drive, or to conduct the same, shall be granted, the party requiring such license shall obtain from the Council Clerk, free of charge, a requisition in the form of the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter A, or to the like effect, and duly fill up and sign the same, and deliver it to the Council Clerk; and in the case of drivers or conductors shall also obtain a certificate from two respectable householders to the effect that the applicant is of good character, and competent to act as such driver or conductor, as the case may be.

Condition under which licenses to be granted.

7. No license shall be granted in respect of any vehicles which in the opinion of three Aldermen, who shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council of the said Borough, is unsafe, or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein; nor until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon on a plate or plates affixed thereon outside on the panel of each door of such vehicle, or on such other place or places, and in such manner as the said three Aldermen may direct.

Licenses, and how to be issued.

8. Licenses for the proprietors, drivers, and conductors of vehicles shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter B, or the like effect; and any person plying, driving, or conducting any vehicle for hire with passengers without such license, shall be deemed guilty of a breach of these By-laws.

Licenses to be under Corporate seal.

9. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be under the common seal of the Borough Council of Cootamundra, and signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Council Clerk, upon production of a certificate signed by the Aldermen who shall be appointed as aforesaid, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the 31st day of December next ensuing, subject to the conditions in section 10; and no such license shall include more than one vehicle: Provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor shall so desire, he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be then specified and endorsed on the license signed by the Mayor and countersigned as aforesaid.

Age of drivers.

10. No license shall be granted to any person to drive any passenger-carrying vehicle who shall be under the age of eighteen years.

Licenses to be made out by the Council Clerk.

11. All licenses shall be made out by the Council Clerk and numbered consecutively.

Owner of vehicle.

12. The person in whose name a license shall appear to have been obtained shall be prima facie deemed to be the owner of the vehicle in respect of which the same shall have been taken out.

Inspection of vehicles.

13. The three Aldermen aforesaid shall as often as they may deem it necessary, cause an inspection to be made of all or any licensed vehicles, and of the harness, horse, or horses, and if any such vehicles, harness, horse, or horses, shall at any time be found by the said Aldermen to be unfit for use, the Mayor may cancel the license of such vehicle on the written report of the said Aldermen.

Number of license to be painted on vehicle.

14. The number of the license granted to every omnibus or car, in figures not less than four inches in height, and for every hackney carriage or cab, in figures not less than two inches in height, of proportionate breadth, white upon a ground of black, shall be painted outside the panel of the door or doors of such vehicle, or on such other part or parts thereof as the Aldermen aforesaid shall direct; and such numbers shall be kept legible and undefaced during all the time such vehicle shall ply or be used for hire.

Table of fares, &c., to be fixed to vehicle.

15. The number of the license of every hackney carriage or cab on a card or plate six inches by three inches, painted or printed in clear legible figures, and the table of fares fixed by the Council shall be affixed at the upper part of the front panel, or in such other place or places inside of such carriage or cab as the three Aldermen aforesaid may direct; and such card or plate shall be kept so affixed and legible and undefaced during all the time the carriage or cab shall ply or be used for hire.

Term applied to vehicles

16. So far as concerns fares in these By-laws, any vehicle of whatever form or construction, for which a hackney carriage license has been taken out, if drawn upon four wheels, shall be deemed to be a hackney carriage, and if drawn upon two wheels a cab.

Water-carts.

17. The Council shall from time to time license to ply within the Borough such carts for the sale and carrying of water as shall upon inspection be found fit for that purpose. Every such cask or vessel contained therein for the holding of water for sale shall be capable of containing not less than fifty gallons, and shall have the name of the owner, and the words "licensed water-cart" painted on such cart in legible letters.

Water licenses, how obtained, &c.

18. Every such license shall be issued on the written application of the owner thereof, in which application shall be set forth the name and surname and place of abode of the applicant; and for every such license there shall be paid to the Council the sum of two shilling and six-pence; and every such license shall be in force until the 31st day of December next ensuing, after the granting of the said license.

Hawking water—penalty.

19. Any person hawking or carrying water for sale or hire, otherwise than in a licensed water-cart as aforesaid, shall upon conviction be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound.

Name and place of abode to be painted on licensed cart, &c.

20. The name and place of abode, number of license, and the words "licensed cart, dray, or van," as the case may be, are to be painted in letters one inch long, upon the right or off side of such cart, dray, or van.

Vehicles to carry lights.

21. All vehicles licensed to carry passengers shall be provided with suitable carriage lamps, to burn candles, one to be fixed on each side of the driver's box, and a third one inside of all omnibuses and closed coaches; and the same shall be lighted not later than one hour after sundown and be kept burning while the vehicles are on the stand or running in the streets, either with or without passengers.

Number of persons to be carried.

22. When any carriage is submitted for inspection by the owner or other applicant, with a view to obtain a license, the Aldermen appointed by the Council for that duty shall then determine upon the number of passengers the vehicle shall be permitted to carry and give a certificate to that effect, such number to be mentioned in the license.

Legal fare, &c., to be painted on vehicle.

23. The number of passengers the vehicle is licensed to carry and the legal fare shall be painted or printed in legible characters and affixed within and without the vehicle in such places as the inspecting Aldermen shall direct.

Penalty for breaking By-laws.

24. For every offence against the provisions of these By-laws the offender shall be liable to and pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Vehicle not to be drawn faster than a walk past place of worship on Sunday

25. No licensed vehicle shall be drawn by any animal or animals past a place of public worship on Sundays during divine service at a faster pace than a walk; and no bugle, horn, whistle, or other instrument shall be used on that day for the purpose of attracting the attention of passengers.

Description of persons not allowed to travel in vehicle.

26. No person suffering from an infectious or contagious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor shall knowingly carry, or permit to be carried, any such person or (except to some police office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself, or otherwise so misbehaving as to occasion any annoyance or to disturb the public peace; and no passenger shall carry inside any vehicle, except a dray, any animal or any substance of an offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle or the apparel of other passengers; and no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle, nor use the same for eating his meals therein.

Vehicle not to carry greater number of passengers than licensed for.

27. No driver or conductor shall admit to the inside, or allow on the outside, of any omnibus, at any one time, a greater number of passengers than the number it shall be licensed to carry, inside or outside, as the case may be; and no omnibus shall be licensed for more passengers than the same will accommodate upon fit seats properly cushioned, allowing for each passenger a space of eighteen inches, measuring in a straight line lengthwise on the front of each seat, nor shall any vehicle be taken off the line of road for which it shall be licensed: Provided that no child under five years of age sitting on the lap, shall be deemed to be a passenger within the meaning of these By-laws: no passenger to carry more than one child.

Fare not to be increased until 10 p.m.—Driver, &c., not to refuse to carry passengers.

28. No owner, driver, or conductor of any omnibus shall demand, receive, or take from any passenger a larger fare than shall be shown in large unmoveable figures in some conspicuous place inside and outside the omnibus as the fare for which such omnibus plies: Provided that no fare shall be increased except between the hours of 10 o'clock at night and

5 o'clock in the morning. And no driver or conductor of an omnibus shall neglect or refuse to admit and carry any person for whom there is room, and to whom no reasonable objections can be made under these By-laws; nor, except in cases of accident or other unavoidable cause, shall any driver or conductor stop such vehicle upon any place where foot passengers usually cross the carriage way.

Fare to be paid upon taking seats.—Driver and conductor to be provided.

29. Any person having taken his seat in or upon an omnibus shall pay the fare when demanded after the commencement of his journey. The owner of every omnibus plying for hire shall provide the same with a licensed driver and licensed conductor.

Property found in vehicles to be delivered at Council Clerk's office.

30. The driver of any carriage and conductor of any omnibus shall carefully examine his vehicle immediately after setting down his fare, and in every case of property having been left in any vehicle by any person, having used or hired the same, such property, if found by another passenger or person, shall be delivered to the driver or conductor, who shall deliver the same, with any other property found by him, within eighteen hours after such finding, to the Council Clerk's office, and there shall deposit it; and no owner shall detain any property delivered to him by any driver or conductor in his employment, longer than the time before-mentioned, but shall deposit it at the office at the Council Chamber with the Council Clerk or his assistant.

License fees to be paid to Council Clerk.

31. For every license issued under the By-laws in force for the time being in that behalf within the said Borough, there shall be paid to the Council of the said Borough, by delivering the same to the Council Clerk, or other person authorised to receive the same, the several sums mentioned or set forth in Schedule C to these By-laws for the general purpose of the said Borough.

Terms to be applied to licensed vehicles.

32. Whenever the word "vehicle" shall be used in these By-laws the same shall be construed to extend and apply to any omnibus, car, hackney, carriage, or cab. The word "omnibus" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon four wheels drawn by two or more horses, having seat accommodation for more than ten passengers and a driver. The word "car" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon two or four wheels drawn by one or more horses having seat accommodation for not more than ten nor less than five passengers and a driver. The word "hackney carriage" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon four wheels drawn by two or more horses, and having seat accommodation for not more than five passengers and a driver, and in respect of which a hackney carriage license within the said borough shall have been obtained. The word "cab" shall extend and apply to any vehicle upon two wheels, having seat accommodation for not more than two passengers and a driver, in respect of which a cab license within the said Borough shall have been obtained. The word "cart" shall extend and apply to any cart, dray, van, or waggon, drawn by one or more horses, or other animals, used wholly, and for the carriage of goods and parcels. The word "water-cart" shall extend and apply to any cart used for the carriage of water within the said Borough, in respect of which a water-cart license shall have been obtained.

Fares to be charged.

33. No proprietor or driver of any hackney carriage or cab within the said Borough shall demand, receive, or take more than the several fares or sums mentioned or set forth in the Schedule D to those By-laws, or such other sums as the Council of the said Borough shall from time to time determine or appoint in substitution therefor as hereinafter provided; and every proprietor, driver, or conductor, failing to comply with this By-law, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Power of Council to amend scale of fares, &c.

34. The Council of the said Borough may from time to time, by resolution passed in that behalf, alter and vary, or amend the said Schedule D, and the respective sums chargeable thereunder, or any of them, and such alterations, variations, or amendments, shall become of full force and effect so soon as the same shall have been publicly notified by advertisement in the New South Wales Government Gazette, and at least one newspaper circulating in the said Borough, and the Council of the Borough shall not be responsible for any loss which such alterations or amendments may have or may be alleged to have occasioned to the holders of licenses for the time being or any of them.

Toll to be paid by hirer.

35. All tolls to be paid by the hirer of any hackney carriage or cab in addition to the ordinary fare.

Passengers to be taken up, &c.

36. No driver of any hackney carriage or cab shall refuse to take up any passenger or passengers unless already engaged for hire, nor refuse to convey such passenger or passengers to such place or places within the said Borough as he, she, or they may reasonably desire; and every person failing to comply with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

37. The Council shall by resolution from time to time appoint any place or places within the said Borough as stands for licensed hackney carriages and cabs within the said Borough: Provided always that no such resolution or resolutions of Council aforesaid shall have any force or effect, until such notice thereof shall have been published in the New South Wales Government Gazette, and at least one newspaper circulating within the said Borough.

Driver to have full control over his horse or horses.

38. No driver of any licensed vehicle shall be or remain at such a distance from his horse or horses, while attached to his vehicle, anywhere within the said Borough, as not to have immediate and full control over the same; and every person so doing shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

39. No vehicle shall be allowed to stand or remain stationary on any street within the said Borough, except on the duly appointed cab-stand for the time being, for a longer period than the time reasonably necessary to take up or set down any passenger or passengers for the time being requiring or using the same, or for loading or unloading or receiving or delivering the goods or parcels which the driver of such vehicle shall have been employed to carry; and any driver or proprietor of any such vehicle remaining stationary contrary to this By-law shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Speed at which to travel.

40. All hackney carriages and cabs carrying passengers shall (except when turning street corners) proceed at a speed of not less than six miles an hour, unless when attending funerals or when otherwise ordered by the hirer; and every driver of any such carriage or cab failing to comply with this By-law, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Copies of Schedule D to be printed and fixed at cab-stand.

41. Copies of said Schedule D hereto shall be printed or written in legible characters, and exhibited on boards placed in conspicuous positions, one at each cab-stand within the Borough, and one at Cootamundra Railway Station, in such place as the Commissioner for Railways may approve.

Copies of By-laws to be given with license.

42. Copies of these and all other By-laws passed by the Council of the said Borough, for the regulation of licensed vehicles, and still remaining in force, shall be delivered with each license issued, unless the person shall have previously received copies thereof.

Penalty to be enforced for breach of By-laws.

43. All proprietors and drivers of licensed vehicles shall at all times be amenable to, and observe and comply with the By-laws for the time being in force for the care and management of the public roads, public streets, and public thoroughfares within the said Borough, and for every breach thereof shall incur the same penalties as other persons.

44. Any person offending against any of these By-laws shall, except when otherwise expressly provided, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings for every such offence.

MUNICIPALITIES

(BOROUGH OF EAST MAITLAND—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158.Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 26th November, 1887.

BY-LAWS OF THE BOROUGH OF EAST MAITLAND.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of East Maitland, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS to regulate the proceedings of the Borough Council of East Maitland; the collection of rates; the prevention and extinguishing of fires; the care and management of the public roads and streets; the suppression of nuisances and houses of ill-fame; and for the general good rule and government of the Borough.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient that provision should be made for regulating the proceedings of the Borough Council of East Maitland, &c., and in accordance with a resolution adopted by the said Borough on the 10th day of August, A.D. 1887, and in virtue of the power and authority vested in them in that behalf, that the following by-laws do now take effect—they are hereby established for the purposes aforesaid.

Standing Orders of the Borough Council of East Maitland.

1. The Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order shall be final.
2. When the Chairman is required or called upon to decide a point of order or practice, he is to state the rule, custom, or precedent applicable to the case, without argument.
3. The Mayor or Chairman for the time being may take part in all the proceedings of the Council.
4. The Mayor or Chairman shall put all questions to the meeting, and declare the sense of the Council thereon.
5. The Mayor or Chairman for the time being, in case of an equality of votes upon any division, shall have a casting vote in addition to his original vote as Alderman.
6. If two or more members rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which member is entitled to pre-audience.
7. The Chairman may, without waiting for the interposition of any member of the Council, call to order any member of the Council proceeding to speak a second time on the same question, unless in explanation when he has been misrepresented or misunderstood: Provided, however, that the mover be allowed to reply, and that every member shall be entitled to speak once on every amendment as well as on the original motion.
8. In Committee the foregoing rule shall apply, with the exception that any member shall be allowed to speak twice,

9. The Council shall vote by show of hands, but any Alderman may call for a division on any question.

10. The Chairman shall, on every motion made and seconded, put the question first in the affirmative and then in the negative, and he may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion, from the show of hands as to the majority.

11. In special cases, such as the accepting of tenders, the appointment of Committees, or any officers, the Council may, if they deem it expedient, have recourse to the ballot (which may be done on motion without notice), and cause the names of the tenderers or candidates to be written on slips of paper, of which one shall be handed to each Alderman. Having struck out the names of all but those for whom he votes, each Alderman shall fold his paper and hand it to the Chairman. The ballot-papers, having been first mixed so as to prevent identification, shall then be examined by the Chairman in the presence of the Alderman, and the result ascertained and recorded.

12. Every member shall stand when speaking, and address the Chair.

13. No Alderman, when discussing any matter, shall be interrupted unless by a call to order, when he shall sit down. The Alderman calling to order shall then be heard, and the question of order decided before the debate or any other business is resumed.

14. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, nor make personal reflections on members, nor impute motives, and all personal reflections shall be considered highly disorderly, and any member so offending shall be required by the Mayor or Chairman to withdraw the expression and to make a satisfactory apology to the Council.

15. No Alderman shall make offensive personal reflections upon or impute discreditable motives to any other Alderman. Any Alderman so offending shall immediately, upon being thereto required by the Mayor or presiding Alderman, withdraw the offensive expressions and retract any such imputation of motive, and make an apology satisfactory to the Council. Any Alderman declining so to apologise and to withdraw the offensive expressions, or to retract the imputation of motive, shall be liable, on conviction, to a fine or penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds for the first offence, and on a second conviction for a like offence he shall be liable to a fine or penalty of not less than two pounds. Any Alderman may move, without notice, that the offensive words be taken down, and when this has been done it shall be prima facie evidence of such words having been used.

16. The foregoing by-law shall apply also to any Alderman when called to order by the Mayor or Chairman for the time being who shall refuse to obey the ruling of such Mayor or Chairman.

17. All divisions of the Council shall be entered in the minutes of the proceedings.

18. Any member may require the question or matter under consideration or discussion to be read for his information at any time during the debate, but not so as to interrupt any other member while speaking.

Order of Business.

Business of ordinary meetings.

19. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings.

20. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.

21. Correspondence to be read, and, if deemed advisable, dealt with.

22. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.

23. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor to be dealt with.

24. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and any statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of its Committees or officers to be made.

25. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper: Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at special meetings.

26. At special meetings of the Council the business after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or the Aldermen at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called may have directed.

27. Any motion entered on the Notice Paper, and the Alderman who has given notice of the same being absent, any other Alderman may move the same.

28. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day, or to another day specified, and the member moving the adjournment shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same. If the Mayor be not present within half an hour after the time appointed for the meeting of the Council, or shall have signified his inability to attend, any Alderman may be elected Chairman for that particular meeting. Any number of amendments may be proposed on a motion before the Council: And when more than one amendment is moved and seconded, the question shall first be put on the last amendment, and then on the next to the last, and so on in the reverse order in which they are moved, except when such motion or amendment shall relate to the fixing of salaries, rates, or other matters of finance, in which case the lowest sum shall be put first, then the next to the lowest, and so on to the highest.

30. Any motion for adjournment if seconded, shall be put from the Chair, but if such motion be negatived it shall not be competent for any member to make a similar motion until half an hour at least shall have elapsed from the moving of the one that has been negatived.

31. No notice shall be taken by the Chairman of any motion unless it is seconded. All notices of motion shall be dated, signed, and given to the Town Clerk, and shall be considered the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn without leave of the Council.

32. No motion, the effect of which if carried, would be to rescind any motion which has already passed the Council, shall be entertained for a period of three months from the date of such resolution (excepting matters connected with the public works) unless a call of the whole Council has been duly made for that purpose, and no motion for rescinding any resolution of the Council which has been negatived, shall be again put for three months from the time it has been so negatived.

Petitions.

33. On the presentation of a formal petition no debate shall take place until notice has been given in the usual manner, and the only question that can be entertained by the Council on the day of its presentation shall be that the petition be received or that it be referred to a Committee.

34. It shall be incumbent on any member presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the language thereof, and to report to the Council that he considers it unobjectionable.

35. That all petitions be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

Committees.

36. Besides such Special Committees as may from time to time be found necessary there shall be three Standing Committees, namely, a Finance Committee, an Improvement Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes, and such other Standing Committees as may hereafter be found necessary.

37. No Standing Committee of the Council shall consist of more than three members, a majority of whom shall form a quorum.

38. The Chairman of every Committee shall be the convener thereof, and may direct the Town Clerk to call meetings whenever he shall think it expedient.

39. The appointment of Special Committees shall continue until the specific duty for which they are appointed shall have been discharged, provided that such Committee may at any time be dissolved by a vote of the Council.

40. The orders of the Council shall be observed in Committee of the Whole Council.

41. Every report of a Committee shall be signed by the Chairman thereof.

42. The Finance Committee in addition to the duty of examining all accounts shall deliberate and report upon all questions affecting the finances of the Municipality which may be committed to it by a resolution of the Council. It shall be the duty of this Committee to watch generally over the financial affairs and administration of the Municipality, and it shall have the right of calling the attention of the Council by a report to any matters connected with such administration, which may seem to require such attention.

43. The Improvement Committee shall have the general inspection of all public works in progress throughout the Municipality, and shall have the right of calling the attention of the Council by report to any matters connected with such works, or with the state of any public thoroughfare which may require such attention, it shall also consider and report upon any questions of an analogous nature to those which may be referred to it by a resolution of the Council.

44. Every Committee shall have a right to take evidence upon any question of fact referred to it by a resolution. A minute of the evidence thus taken or of its substance must however in all cases of this character be appended to the Committees report.

45. The Standing Committees shall be appointed within thirty days after the commencement of each Municipal year.

46. Any member moving for a Special Committee may propose certain Aldermen as members of the same, but if demanded, the selection of the Committee shall be made by ballot.

47. Every member proposing the appointment of a Special Committee, and naming its proposed members, must name himself as one of them.

Miscellaneous Regulations.

48. In cases where security is required by the "Municipalities Act of 1867," the sureties offered shall be approved by the Council, and it shall not be competent for them to accept as sureties any of its members, or any person holding office under the Council. And in all cases in which security for the due and faithful performance of any duty or contract is required, the expenses of preparing the bond for such security shall be borne by the Council.

49. No work affecting the funds of the Corporation to an amount exceeding ten pounds shall be undertaken until the probable expense be first ascertained by the Council, and all accounts to be paid by the Council (except in cases of special contracts) shall be examined by the Finance Committee, and reported on by them before any warrant shall be issued for the payment thereof. Provided always that in cases of emergency, the Mayor, with the assent of any two Aldermen, or in the absence of the Mayor, any three Aldermen may authorize the expenditure of any sum not exceeding ten pounds, and such expenditure shall be reported to the Council at its next sitting.

50. The Bank books of the Council shall be laid before the Council at the first meeting of each quarter, or oftener if required by the Council.

51. No officer appointed by the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, or expose, any of the books, papers, or records of the Council to any person not a member of the Council without leave from such Council, except as otherwise provided by law.

52. No by-laws shall be decided on without due notice, as in case of motions.

53. Any member may record his protest against any decision of the Council, provided the same be made in writing before the next meeting of the Council, and couched in respectful language, and be consistent with truth. Notice of such intention must however be given on the adoption of the resolution.

54. No election to any paid office at the disposal of the Council shall take place until seven day's notice be given in a local newspaper inviting applications for the same.

55. The Town Clerk shall have charge of the Common Seal of the Corporation and shall be responsible for the safe custody and proper use of the same, each impression thereof being duly verified by the signature of that officer, and he shall not affix the seal to any corporate documents without the express order of the Council, nor unless such documents have the signature of the Mayor.

56. Any one or more of the standing orders of the Council may be suspended pro tempore in cases of emergency, provided that the majority of the members present deem it necessary.

Collection of rates.

57. The rates shall be levied and collected yearly, and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day as the Council shall by resolution appoint from time to time.

58. All persons liable to pay any rates or assessments shall pay the amount within the time prescribed by the Act into the office of the Council Clerk during office hours.

The Bailiff and his duties.

59. The bailiff shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council, and may at any time be removed in a similar way.

60. The bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Mayor to the extent of fifty pounds each for the faithful performance of his duty.

61. The bailiff shall make all levies and distresses for the recovery of rates under warrant, in the form of the schedule hereto annexed and marked with the letter A, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

62. At the time of making a distress, the bailiff shall forthwith make out a written inventory in the form or to the effect of the schedule annexed hereto, and marked with the letter B, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress has been made, and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress has been made, and the bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand at any time within one month after the making of such distress.

63. It shall be lawful for the bailiff and such assistant, as he may take with him to enter into any part of the land, building, tenement, or other property in respect of which a warrant has been issued for the recovery of any rate or rates as aforesaid, and to distrain the goods therein or thereon, and to remain in such building, tenement, or other property in charge thereof, and if the sum for which such distress shall have been made or taken shall not be paid on or before the expiration of five days it shall be lawful for such bailiff to sell the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof by public auction either on the premises or at such other place within the Municipality as the said bailiff may think proper to remove them to for such purpose, and the surplus, if any, that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for, together with the expenses, attendant upon such distress shall be paid over on demand to the owner of the goods so sold: Provided always that nothing herein contained as to the time of sale shall apply to any corn, grass, hops, roots, fruits, pulse, or other product whatever which may be growing at the time of the same being seized as a distress.

64. The bailiff in making a distress as aforesaid may impound or otherwise secure the distress so made of what nature or kind soever it may be in such places or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with the rate as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose, and it shall be lawful for any person whatsoever after the expiration of the five days hereinbefore mentioned to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where any distress shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid in order to view, and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

65. The owner of any goods so distrained upon may at his or her option direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold, and the goods and chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

66. The bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of such distresses within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

67. The bailiff with the sanction of the Mayor of the Borough may authorize any person to act temporarily as his deputy, and the person thus authorized shall have and exercise for the time being all the powers of the bailiff himself, but the bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be held responsible for the acts of such deputy.

68. The bailiff shall be paid for every levy made under these by-laws according to the schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

Preventing and extinguishing fires.

69. No householder shall place or knowingly permit to be placed in any house, yard, workshop, out-offices, or other premises, fire, powder, or combustible materials of any kind in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings.

70. It shall be lawful for the Mayor upon the representation of one or more householders that fire is being used to the danger of contiguous buildings, to cause a notice in writing to be served upon or left at the residence of the owner or occupier of the premises on which any such fire may exist, and direct (if the urgency of the case should require it), that the said fire shall be removed at once or within any reasonable time afterwards which he might deem expedient.

71. Any such householder, however, shall have the right to show cause (except in what may, as already related, be considered urgent cases) why the said or any such fire should not be removed. And the opinion of a majority of the Council in such cases shall be final.

72. In every case in which it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of any two Justices of the Peace that the chimney of any house, or building within the limits of the Municipality has taken fire, from the occupier of any such house or building having omitted to cause such chimney to be regularly and sufficiently swept and cleaned, or from any other neglect of such occupier, or of his or her servant or servants, such occupier shall on conviction before any two Justices of the Peace forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings, to be recovered by distress and sale of the offender's goods and chattels. And in every such case the proof that any such chimney did not take fire through the neglect of such occupier in not having the same regularly and sufficiently swept or cleaned shall be upon such occupier.

Care and management of the public roads, and streets, and public thoroughfares of the Borough.

73. All roads and public thoroughfares, streets, and lanes within the Municipality, which have been, or hereafter may be, duly proclaimed or marked out, or in actual public use as such, shall be from henceforth under the charge and care of the Borough Council.

74. The Surveyor of the Municipality duly appointed by the Council thereof, or any person acting for him, shall be the proper person for marking out, when necessary, any roads, streets, or thoroughfares in actual public use as such within the Borough, in marking out such roads, streets, or thoroughfares, recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which lands with frontage to the road, street, or thoroughfare in question shall have been sold. And it shall be the duty of the surveyor, or any person acting for him, to place posts at the corners or intersections of any roads, streets, lanes, or thoroughfares, wherever the same may be considered necessary or desirable by the Municipal Council, so as to give a width of forty-two feet at least for the carriage-way, and twelve feet at least for the foot-way on each side, when the street shall be sixty-six feet wide and in proportion, and in the discretion of the said surveyor or person acting for him, in any public roads, streets, lanes, or thoroughfares of other width than sixty-six feet.

75. Whenever any road, street, or lane has been marked out in the manner herein provided, no house, shop, fence, or other structure shall be erected or allowed to project or encroach on any part thereof.

76. Whenever any foot-ways shall have been marked out the surveyor, or person acting for him, may, with the sanction of the Council, cause the same to be levelled and made as nearly as practicable of equal height and breadth, and with an equal slope and inclination, and for this purpose may remove any flagging, steps, or other matter or thing that may injure or obstruct the said foot-way, or render it unequal or inconvenient, and which now is, or may hereafter be erected or placed on the space marked out for any of the said foot-ways.

77. The surveyor may at any time, or the person acting as such, on the order of the Council, and upon due notice of ten days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment which shall be made in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, under the charge of the Council. Notice shall, in this case, be served either personally, or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroaching structure belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected, or who may be in charge of the same.

78. In any case where, after the notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the owner or of the person thus offending, or of the person who may be in charge thereof. Provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of fifty pounds, to be recovered summarily in manner provided for the recovery of penalties under these by-laws.

79. In case when the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than fifty pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all costs thereof above fifty pounds from the Municipal funds, or to proceed by action of trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or who may be in charge thereof.

80. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavation.

81. The Surveyor, or person acting for him, may at any time by order of the Council, cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose, and any person or persons offending against this by-law, either by travelling on or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding fifty pounds for every such offence.

82. No person shall be allowed to obstruct any pathway, road, street, or public thoroughfare within the Municipality by building materials, drays, carts, goods, merchandise, or anything whatsoever calculated to obstruct or hinder free passage, without the sanction of the Mayor in writing. And no person shall be allowed to leave water-holes or excavations for cellars or other purposes unfenced, or in such a manner as to be dangerous to passers-by, under a penalty not exceeding forty shillings. And at all places where buildings are being carried on, or where any obstruction to the danger of passers-by exists, the person causing such obstruction shall be required to provide lights on either side, and keep the same lighted from sunset to sunrise.

Trespass and removal of Nuisances, &c.

83. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning into any public water-course, sewer, water-hole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall suffer filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such water-course, sewer, water-hole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer any slops, suds, or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the foot-ways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatsoever to flow into any public water-course, sewer, water-hole, river, creek, or canal—or obstruct or divert from its channel any such sewer or water-course, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds, and shall pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction, or of restoring such sewer, river, or water-course to its proper channel. Such penalty and costs of removal to be recovered summarily in the manner provided for the recovery of penalties under these by-laws.

84. No person shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer in any public road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, or shall cut up the surface of any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, upon any pretence whatever, without leave in writing from the Mayor.

85. No person shall be allowed to throw rubbish, sweepings, or deposits of any kind whatsoever on the streets, pathways, or gutters of the Borough.

86. No driver, carter, or other person shall wilfully or negligently do or suffer, or cause to be done any damage or injury to the kerb stones, gutters, or pathways of any street or roadway. And no person shall be at liberty to drive a wheeled vehicle of any kind, or ride or drive, lead or stand, or permit to stand, any horse or horses, or other animals on the pathways within the Borough.

87. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer on any part of the roads, streets, or thoroughfares of the Borough—or who, from the banks of any of the creeks or rivers which bound the Borough, over which the Council may have control, shall remove or cause to be removed, any turf, loam, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material without leave in writing first had and obtained from the Council—or who shall break up or otherwise damage any part of the said roads, streets, or thoroughfares, shall on conviction before any two Justices of the Peace, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

88. Any person who shall damage any public building, wall, parapet, bridge, road, street, sewer, water-course, sluice, pump, fountain, cock, water-pipe, shoot, embankment, or other public property in the possession of the Council, shall pay the costs of repairing the same, such costs to be recovered summarily in the manner provided for the recovery of penalties under these by-laws, and if the same be wilfully done, shall, on conviction before any one or more Justices of the Peace, forfeit and pay a sum not less than five shillings and not exceeding ten pounds.

Throwing filth on carriage or foot-ways—Driving carriages or barrows on pavements, &c.

89. If any person shall, in any street or road, throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing in or upon the carriage-way or foot-way of any such street or road—or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other cattle in or so near to any of the said streets or roads, as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over or be on any such carriage or foot-way—or shall, run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any of the foot-ways of any street or road, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheelbarrow, or any truck or cask—or shall wilfully lead, stand, drive, or ride any horse or other beast upon any of the foot-ways aforesaid, every person so offending, upon conviction before any Justice of the Peace, or upon the view of any such Justice, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings for every such offence.

Awnings.

90. Nothing in these by-laws contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing an awning in front of his or her shop or house, provided, however, that such awning be not less than eight feet above the height of the foot-way in front of such house or shop, and that the posts to be placed in the kerb-stone at the outer edge of such foot-way.

Suppression of nuisances or houses of ill-fame.

91. No householder or resident shall be permitted, under a penalty of any sum not exceeding ten pounds, to allow his or her premises, yards, closets, or drains to be offensive or a nuisance to the neighbouring householders or residents.

92. No noisome or offensive trade shall be permitted, under a penalty of any sum not exceeding ten pounds, to be carried on in any premises to the inconvenience or annoyance of the residents of neighbouring or adjoining houses or premises.

93. Upon representation of any respectable householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other person appointed by the Council shall make an inspection of the premises complained of, and the officer of the Council shall have full power without any other authority than this by-law to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose; and if any such premises shall be found to be a nuisance, or otherwise offensive, notice in writing shall be given to the proprietor or resident of such premises, that if within seven days after the service of such notice, the nuisance shall not be removed, the proprietor, tenant, or occupant of the aforesaid premises shall, upon conviction before any two Justices of the Peace, be liable to any penalty not exceeding fifty pounds.

94. Upon representation by any respectable ratepayer that the house, or neighbouring or adjoining premises is of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the mayor and any alderman to cause the residents of such house or premises to furnish to the Council a list of the names, age, sex, birth-place, and occupation of all the inmates of the said house or premises, and upon non-compliance with such request, or, if upon consideration, the Mayor and any Alderman consider the house to be of ill-fame, they shall, with the sanction of the Council, declare the same to be a nuisance, and the Mayor shall cause a notice in writing to be served upon such householders or residents to discontinue or abate the said nuisance within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice, otherwise they shall, upon conviction before any two Justices of the Peace, be liable to any penalty not exceeding fifty pounds for every day or part of a day during which such nuisance shall remain unabated within the Municipality.

95. Any owner or occupier of any house or place who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, and ways within the said premises, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, shall forfeit, upon conviction, and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than ten shillings, for every such offence.

Swine, horses, goats, &c., not suffered to wander about the Streets.

96. It shall not be lawful for any person whatsoever to suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, or goat, or other cattle belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about or to be tethered or depastured in any road, street, or public place; and any person who shall so offend shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Hog-styes and Nuisances not removed on complaint.

97. In case any privy, hog-sty, boiling-down, or any other matter or thing which shall at any time or times hereafter be in any place within the said Municipality, shall be or become a nuisance, it shall be lawful for the said Council upon complaint thereof to them made by any of the inhabitants, and, after due investigation, of such complaint by notice in writing to order that such privy, hog-sty, boiling-down, or other matter or thing being a nuisance, shall be remedied and removed within seven days after such notice shall have been given to the owner or occupant of the said premises wherein such nuisance shall exist, or shall have been left for such owner or occupier at his or her last or usual place of abode or on the said premises, and every such owner or occupier neglecting to remedy or remove such nuisance pursuant to such notice and to the satisfaction of the Council, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds for every such neglect or disobedience; and also it may be lawful for the said Council to indict, or cause to be indicted, for such nuisance, such person so neglecting or disobeying any such notice at the then next Court of General or Quarter Sessions, to be held in or nearest to the said Municipality; and such person or persons being found guilty thereof, such nuisance or nuisances shall be removed, taken down, and abated, according to the law with regard to public or common nuisances.

Drawing and trailing Timber, &c.

98. If any person shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn upon any part of the streets, roads, or public places, any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheeled carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon wheeled carriages to drag or trail upon any part of such streets or public places to the injury thereof, or to hang over any part of any such carriage, &c., so as to occupy or obstruct the street or road beyond the breadth of the said carriage—every such person so offending shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby, and it shall be lawful for any constable to apprehend any person whom he shall find in the act of committing any such offence, and to convey such person before any Justice of the Peace to be dealt with according to law.

Cellars or openings beneath the surface of foot-ways prohibited.

99. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any cellar or any opening, door, or window in or beneath the surface of the foot-way of any road, street, or public place, and if any person shall offend in the premises he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds over and above the expenses of remedying or removing any such cellar, opening, door, or window, such expense to be assessed and allowed by the convicting Justice or Justices.

Wells to be covered over, &c.

100. Every person who shall have a well situated between his dwelling-house or the appurtenances thereof, and any road, street, or foot-way within the limits of said Borough, or at the side thereof, or in any yard or place open or exposed to such road, street, or foot-way, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over, and if any person having such well as aforesaid shall fail to cover and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for such person at his or her last known place of abode or on the said premises, shall, on conviction before any Justice of the Peace, forfeit and pay the sum of two shillings and sixpence for every day that such well shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions hereof.

Enclosure around scaffolding.

101. If any person shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave or cause to be left any hole in or adjoining to any street, road, or public place for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, and shall not forthwith enclose the same in a good and sufficient manner—or shall keep up or cause to be kept up and continued any such enclosure for any time which shall be longer than shall be reasonably required—or shall not, when thereunto required by the said Council or its officer, well and sufficiently fence or enclose any such hole within twenty-four hours after he shall be required to do so by the said Council or officer, and in the manner and with such materials as they or he shall direct, and to their or his satisfaction, and shall not place a light upon the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure—or shall fail to place or erect a fence, rail, or hoarding around any scaffolding or ladder that may be required during the repairs or erection of any building (such fence, rail, or hoarding not to extend beyond the foot-way of any street)—or fail to keep, during the existence of such fence, rail, or hoarding, a light burning from sunset to sunrise, at each corner of the same, then, and in every such case, the person so offending shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence, and for every such refusal or neglect, any sum not being less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds.

Erections, &c., in front of public roads, streets, &c.

102. No person shall build, erect, put up, or remove, or cause to be built, erected, put up, or removed, any building, house, shop, warehouse, wall, or fence, fronting any public street, road, or thoroughfare, unless he shall have previously given seven days' notice of his intention to commence such works to the Mayor or the Council Clerk of the Municipality; and any person so offending shall, upon conviction before a Justice of the Peace, pay for every such offence, any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings.

Slops, night-soil, &c., to be conveyed away only at certain hours.

103. If any person or persons shall drive, or cause to be driven, any cart or other carriage with any night-soil or ammoniacal liquor therein through or in any of the streets or roads or public places within the said Borough, between the hours of five o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock at night, or shall fill any cart, or other carriage so as to turn over or cast any night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, slop, mire, or channel dirt or filth in or upon any such streets or public places, or shall deposit night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, or other offensive matter nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or by the Inspector of Nuisances; or shall remove night-soil or other offensive matter, otherwise than in properly-covered and water-tight carts or other vehicles, or shall cause any vehicle used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council, or the said Inspector of Nuisances shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; and in case the person so offending shall not be known to the said Council or Inspector, then the owner of such cart or carriage in which such night-soil or other offensive matter shall be put or placed, and also the employer of the person so offending shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

104. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind, shall ride upon any such carriage in any street as aforesaid, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse and driver, or guided with reins only excepted); or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same; or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage whatsoever meeting any other carriage shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage, on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare; or if the driver of any vehicle, waggon, dray, cart, or coach, shall proceed from one street into another at a pace faster than that known as walking; or shall at any time between sunset and sunrise on any occasion fail to have lamps lighted, one on either side of such vehicle, waggon, dray, cart, or coach, showing a white light in front and red at the back clear of such vehicle, waggon, dray, cart, or coach; or if any person shall, in any manner, wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care upon such street, or by negligence or misbehaviour, prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every such driver or person so offending shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Furious or careless driving, &c.

105. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Borough, so negligently, carelessly, or furiously, that the safety of any other person shall or may be endangered, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Leading animals on foot-paths, &c.

106. Any person who shall lead, drive, or stand, or permit to stand or ride any horse or other animal upon any of the foot-paths of any of the streets or roads of the Borough shall, upon conviction before any Justice of the Peace, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Affixing placards on walls and chalking thereon.

107. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or other paper upon any wall, house, or building by chalk or paint, or in any other matter, without the consent of the owner thereof. And any person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall, on conviction before any two Justices, forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings.

Open spaces and steps adjoining the foot-ways to be enclosed under penalty.

108. Every owner or occupier of any house, building, premises, or land within the said Borough, having any entrance, area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building, lot, water-hole, or excavated space adjoining the foot-way of any street or public place in such Borough, shall protect and guard the same by good and sufficient rails, fences, or other enclosures, so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land having any steps adjoining the foot-way of any such street or public place shall, in like manner, protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosures, so as to prevent the like danger to persons passing and repassing. And on failure thereof every such owner or occupier shall, as often as he shall be convicted of such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not being less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds.

Carrying carcasses of newly-slaughtered meat, &c.

109. Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place the carcass, or any part of the carcass of any newly-slaughtered animal, without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same for concealment from public view, shall be liable, on conviction, to a penalty of any sum not exceeding two pounds for every such offence.

Rain not to be carried on foot-ways.

110. It shall not be lawful for any person whomsoever to carry by means of pipes, gutters, or other contrivances any rain-water from the roof of his or her premises or house, nor permit nor suffer any rain-water to drop from the roof of his or her premises or house upon any part of the foot-ways of any street or public place within the Borough. And any owner or occupier of any such house or premises who shall neglect or refuse to remedy or remove any such pipes, gutters, or contrivances when required to do so by any Municipal Officer, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay the sum of five shillings, and a like sum for every day, or part of a day, that the same shall not be remedied or removed: Provided that the owner of any such house or premises may convey any such rain-water by means of pipes laid under the surface of any such foot-ways into the gutters adjoining the same. And provided also that all such pipes shall be laid down to the satisfaction of, and under the superintendence of the Town Surveyor or any other person appointed by the Council.

Breaking horses, &c.

111. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons in any street or public place within the Municipality to drive any carriage or carriages for the purpose of breaking, exercising, or trying horses, or to ride, drive, or lead any horse, mare, or gelding for the purpose of airing, exercising, trying, breaking, showing, or exposing for sale any such horse, mare, or gelding otherwise than by passing quietly through such streets or public places: Provided further that no person or persons shall be allowed within the said Borough to furiously or carelessly drive any horse, mare, or gelding to or from any public watering-place, creek, or river. And the person or person in charge thereof, and who shall be prima facie presumed to be the owner of the said animal or animals, and shall be liable accordingly, and every person so offending, upon conviction before any two Justices of the Peace, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Damaging trees, &c.

112. Any person who shall wilfully and without the authority of the Council cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or under wood growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council shall forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound. Any owner or occupier of land within the Municipality under cultivation, or which has been cleared and enclosed by fences, who shall permit or suffer to grow or remain on the said lands the weeds known as Bathurst burr, Scotch thistle, or other noisome weeds, and who shall fail to extirpate, remove, or destroy the same within ten days after the receipt of a notice in writing by post or otherwise from the Council so to do, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than twenty shillings, to be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices in Petty Sessions. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to ride upon or propel any bicycle, tricycle, or other machine of like character upon or along any of the foot-paths in any part of the Borough, and any person so offending shall, upon conviction, before any two Justices, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

All the by-laws passed by the Council of the Borough of East Maitland, and dated 8th day of May, 1871, the 26th February, 1877, and the 13th April, 1881, are hereby repealed.

113. All fines and penalties incurred under these by-laws may, anything in the said by-laws to the contrary notwithstanding, unless otherwise provided for, be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices in Petty Sessions according to the provisions of the Act fourteen Victoria number forty-three and the Acts therein adopted.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(BOROUGH OF KEMPSEY—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 7th October, 1887.

BY-LAWS OF THE BOROUGH OF KEMPSEY.

The following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Kempsey, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS for regulating the proceedings of the Council of the Borough of Kempsey, and the duties of the officers and servants of such Council; for preserving order at meetings of the said Council; for determining the times and modes of collecting and enforcing payment of rates; for preventing and extinguishing fires; for suppressing nuisances and houses of ill-fame; for preventing or regulating and licensing exhibitions held or kept for hire or profit, bowling-alleys and other places of amusement; compelling residents to keep their premises free from offensive or unwholesome matters; regulating public carriers, water-drawers, and vehicles plying for hire; killing of cattle and sale of butchers' meat; opening new public roads, ways, and parks; aligning and cleansing roads and streets; regulating the supply and distribution of water, sewerage, and drainage; preserving trees and shrubs; regulating free libraries; preventing or regulating the bathing or washing the person in any public water near a public thoroughfare; preserving public decency; providing for the health of the Municipality and against the spreading of contagious or infectious diseases; restraining noisome and offensive trades; collecting and managing tolls, rates, and dues upon roads, bridges, wharves, jetties, and markets; and generally maintaining the good rule and government of the said Borough.

SECTION I.

Regulating their own proceedings and the duties of their officers and servants, and preserving order at Council meetings.

Meetings of the Council.

Clause 1. The ordinary sittings of the Council shall be on every alternate Friday in every month, at the hour of 7:30 p.m., unless such day shall be a public holiday; in that case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor shall appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of the Mayor.—Adjournment for want of a quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the Minute Book.

Business of ordinary meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and signed by the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
2. Correspondence to be read, and orders made thereon if expedient.
3. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented, and orders made thereon.
5. Payments.
6. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of the Committees or officers to be made.
7. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
8. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper: Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion or to deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper without any formal suspension of this section; and also in like manner to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at special meetings.

4. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at any ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or Aldermen at whose instance the special meeting shall be called may have directed; and no other than the special business for which the meeting has been convened shall be entertained.

Business paper for ordinary meetings—how prepared.

5. The business paper for every meeting of the Council other than a special meeting shall be made up by the Council Clerk not less than forty-eight hours before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received or shall have been required or directed so to enter in due course of law and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made (subject to the provisions of sec. 4 of this Part of these By-laws) in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Summons to members.

6. The summons to members of the Council for every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

7. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of Motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until disposed of, unless withdrawn before the business is made up.

8. All notices of motion and all requisitions from Aldermen and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matters of business for the consideration of the Council at the then next or any future meeting shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received; and each such notice, requisition, and direction shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the Minute Book of the manner in which such matter has been so disposed of shall have been duly verified, as required by section 4 of this part of the By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction to the Council Clerk shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of such business paper.

Motions and Amendments.Motions—how to be moved.

9. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

10. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motions to be seconded.

11. No motion in Council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions to be in writing and not withdrawn without leave.

12. Every notice of motion shall be in writing, dated and signed by the Alderman proposing the same, and no motion shall be withdrawn without leave of the Council. No motion, the effect of which if carried would be to rescind any motion which has already been passed by the Council, shall be entered upon the business paper unless a call of the whole Council has been duly made and granted for that purpose.

Amendment may be moved.

13. When a motion in Council shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Only one amendment at a time.

14. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of; if an amendment be carried, the amendment shall become the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment may be moved.

Petitions and correspondence.

15. The Council may at any meeting resolve without previous notice that any petition be received, and that the same or any correspondence read be referred to a Committee to report, or that the requests contained therein be granted.

The Mayor to preserve order.

16. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

17. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order or to any point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

18. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor or Chairman thereon shall be conclusive, except as hereinafter provided.

Power of the Council as to laying down General Rules, &c.

19. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may hereafter arise; any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding on all parties unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operations: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any question to the Council which in his opinion is contrary to law.

Mayor may take part in proceedings.

20. The Mayor may take part in all the proceedings of the Council or Committees thereof.

Questions put by Mayor.

21. The Mayor shall put all questions first in the affirmative and then in the negative (provided that where an amendment is moved to any motion, the amendment shall be first put), and may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to determine the sense of the Council thereon, and thereupon he shall declare his decision, which shall be final unless a division be called for.

The Mayor to decide as to the pre-audience of Alderman.

22. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor shall decide which of them shall be entitled to pre-audience.

Aldermen to stand while speaking, &c.

23. Every Alderman shall stand while speaking, and shall address the Chair; and all the members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be; and no Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking unless for the purpose of calling him to order.

No Alderman to speak twice on the same question or amendment except in Committee.

24. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question unless in Committee or in explanation where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood, and then only by leave of the Mayor or Chairman: Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have a right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

25. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion or make personal reflections on, or impute motives to, any other Alderman, or speak on any question more than twenty minutes.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologize.

26. When any member of the Council shall make use of any language or expression offensive or capable of being applied offensively to any Alderman, the member so offending shall be required to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council. And if any Alderman shall refuse to withdraw such language and apologize, he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and be liable to a fine of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds.

Debate may be adjourned.

27. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day or to another day.

28. The Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on resumption of the debate.

Adjournment.

29. Any motion for adjournment of the Council, if seconded, shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion be negatived it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until fifteen minutes shall have elapsed.

Any Alderman may divide Council.

30. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question both in full Council and in Committee of the whole Council; and no Alderman shall leave his seat or place till the name of the Alderman, and how voting, shall have been taken down by the Council Clerk, or person officiating for him.

Divisions to be entered on minutes.

31. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division (not being disabled by law from so voting), shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds.

Questions to be read when required.

32. Any Alderman may require the question or matter under discussion to be read once for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon any such question or matter; and upon such request the question or matter under discussion shall be read. But no such requisition shall be made so as to interrupt any Alderman while speaking.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

33. In all cases not herein provided for resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

Lapsed questions.

34. If a debate or any motion moved and seconded be interrupted by the number of the members present becoming insufficient for the transaction of business such debate may be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted upon motion by notice.

35. If a debate upon any order of the day be interrupted by such insufficiency of numbers as aforesaid happening, such order may be restored to the notice paper for a future day on motion upon notice, and then resumed at the point where it was so interrupted.

Committees.

36. Besides such select and special Committees as may from time to time be found necessary, there shall be standing Committees, namely,—Finance Committee, a Public Works Committee, a Lighting Committee, a Library Committee, and a Committee of general purposes.

37. The standing Committees shall consist of four members or more, three to form a quorum. Every Committee, of which the Mayor of the Borough is not a member, before proceeding to other business, shall choose its chairman. If the chairman of a Committee shall cease to be a member of the Council, or shall decline to act further as such chairman, a new chairman shall be chosen before any further business is entered upon.

38. When the report of a select Committee is brought up and presented to the Council the question as to its reception may be moved and put at once; but it shall not be adopted or taken into consideration without notice in the usual way.

39. Every Committee shall have a right to take evidence upon any question or questions of fact wherein it is the duty of such Committee to report. A minute of the evidence thus taken, or of its substance, must, however, in all cases be appended to the Committee's report.

40. Minutes of all proceedings of Committees as well as their reports, numbered in executive order, shall be entered in the Committee's minute book, and signed by the chairman of the Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the Committee.

41. The chairman of every Committee shall have the right, without asking leave of the Council, to remove from the Council Chamber for any space of time not exceeding sixty hours, any book, document, or paper, other than the minute book, either for inspection by such Committee, or for reference in preparation of the report. In all such cases, however, he shall deliver to the Council Clerk an acknowledgment under his hand of having received such book, document, or paper, and shall be held responsible for the safe keeping of the same.

42. The standing Committee shall be reappointed within one month after the commencement of the municipal year.

Special Committees.

43. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which in the opinion of the Council the special Committee ought to be appointed. And no standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time have been entrusted to any such special Committee. The appointment of every such special Committee shall be made by resolution, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein any such members as in his opinion ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; or an amendment to the effect that such special Committee be appointed by ballot may be carried.

44. Every Alderman proposing the appointment of a select Committee must name himself as one.

45. The appointment of every special Committee shall continue until the specified duty for which it has been appointed shall have been discharged.

46. Before any proposed By-law is discussed in Council the copy thereof shall be open for public inspection, in the office of the Corporation, not less than seven days.

47. No By-law shall be passed until it has been reported upon by a Committee of the whole Council, nor until it has been twice read in Council on different days.

48. No matters of account shall be disposed of by the Council until they have been examined and reported upon by the Finance Committee.

49. No payments out of the funds of the Corporation shall be made but such as are authorized by the vote of the Council: Provided always, that the Mayor, with the assent of any two members of the Committee of Public Works may, in cases of emergency, authorize the expenditure of any sum not exceeding (£10) ten pounds; but such discretionary expenditure shall be reported to the Council at its next meeting.

Finance Committee.

50. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues; they shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect the finances of the Borough, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed, by resolution of the Council, to inquire and report upon.

Public Works Committee.

51. The Public Works Committee, as such, shall have the general inspection of all public works in progress throughout the Borough, and shall have the right of calling the attention of the Council, by report, to any matter connected with such works or with the state of any public thoroughfare which may seem to require such attention, or which they may be directed, by resolution of the Council, to inquire into and report upon.

52. No public works involving a probable expenditure of more than (£10) ten pounds shall be undertaken until the Public Works Committee have reported to the Council an estimate of the cost thereof. No works undertaken by the Council shall be deemed to have been completed, and no order shall be made for the payment in full of the same, except upon a report of the Works Committee to that effect.

53. All accounts against the Corporation, relating to works, shall be examined by the Public Works Committee, and such as are found correct shall be certified and passed by the Finance Committee.

Lighting Committee.

54. The Lighting Committee shall, once at least in each municipal year, make an inspection of the Borough, and shall recommend the erection of any additional public lamps they may consider necessary, or the removal of any existing lamps, and shall submit the report to the Council in writing.

Library Committee.

55. The Library Committee shall have general control of the Public Library, and shall, once at least, in each year submit to the Council a written report upon the same as to its efficacy usefulness, and the manner in which it is conducted, and may also recommend the purchase of additional books or any other matter or thing they have reason to consider will be of benefit.

General Purposes Committee.

56. All matters which the Council shall think fit to refer to a Committee, and which do not fall within the province of any other standing Committee shall be referred to the Committee for general purposes: Provided, however, that the Council may at any time refer such matters to a Committee appointed for that particular purpose.

Rules to be observed in Committee.

57. The rules of the Council shall be observed in a Committee of the whole Council, except the rule limiting the number of times of speaking.

57½. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee whenever requested so to do by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee.

Reports from Committees.

Form of Report.

58. All reports from Committees shall be in writing, and signed by the Chairman of such Committee.

Mayor's Minutes.

58½. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction, or official cognizance, by a minute in writing, signed by himself.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.

59. No motion shall be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may be moved or considered in due course.

Petitions.

59½. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council, and that the contents do not violate any By-law or any provision thereof.

60. Every Alderman presenting a petition to the Council shall write his name at the beginning thereof.

61. Every petition shall be in writing, and not printed or lithographed, and shall contain the prayer of the petitioners at the end thereof, and be signed by at least one person on every skin or sheet upon which it is written.

62. Every petition shall be signed by the persons whose names are appended thereto, by their names or marks, and by no one else except in cases of incapacity by sickness; and all such signatures shall be received as the signatures of the parties purporting to sign the same, without proof thereof.

63. No letters, affidavits, or other documents shall be attached to any petition.

64. Every Alderman presenting a petition to the Council shall confine himself to a statement of the persons from whom it comes, of the number of signatures attached to it, of the material allegations contained in it, and to the reading of the prayer thereof.

Member or officer of the Council not to be surety.

65. In cases where surety is required by the Municipalities Act, it shall not be competent for the Council to accept as surety any of their members, or any person holding office under the Council.

Duties of the Council Clerk.

66. The Council Clerk shall attend at the office of the Council for the purpose of transacting the ordinary business of the Council on every Tuesday, from 2 to 4 p.m., and on every Friday, from 10 to 12 a.m.

67. The Council Clerk, in compliance with the Municipalities Act of 1867, or by the present or any other By-laws made thereunder, shall perform the following duties, namely:—

1. Attend all Council meetings.
2. Attend all Committee meetings.
3. Attend all Courts of Revision and Appeal.
4. Attend the members of the Council to all Council or Committee meetings.
5. Take notes of all meetings and prepare reports of all Committees.
6. Conduct all correspondence ordered by the Council under the direction of the Mayor, and give all other officers instructions as directed by the Minutes.
7. To see that the accounts are audited and the Balance Sheet duly submitted twice a year, within the times specified by law.
8. To see to the gazetting of all By-laws and necessary advertisements.
9. To see that the Assessment Books and the Municipal Lists and Rolls are duly prepared, examine proofs of latter, and arrange for distribution of copies on payment to electors prior to the elections.
10. Make all necessary arrangements for the elections, preparing all papers, &c., for Presiding Officers and Poll Clerks.
11. Prepare all bonds of officers, see that the guarantees are given and arrangements duly signed, &c., and reports sent to the Council.
12. Advise with the officers from time to time as to their duties and the mode of carrying them out.
13. See that all levels and names of streets have been duly advertised as provided for by law, and authenticated by the Mayor's signature.
14. To bring under the notice of the Mayor any matter or thing requiring his prompt attention.
15. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of the Council, except such books or documents as may be entrusted to any other officer of the Council, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council.
16. He shall enter into a bond for not less than (£150) one hundred and fifty pounds for the faithful performance of his duties.

Custody of records, seal, &c.

68. The common seal and all charters, books, papers, and records of the Council shall be kept in the Council Chambers, or office of the Council, in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the Council shall otherwise order for any purpose, and the common seal shall not be used except with the signature of the Mayor, or in case of absence or illness of the Mayor, of two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

Bonds of good conduct and deeds of real and personal estate.

69. All bonds given by officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties and deeds of real and personal estate shall be deposited with the Bankers of the Corporation as the Council may order, and no officer or servant of the Council shall be received as surety for any other such officer or servant.

Records, &c., not to be defaced or altered.

70. Any person who shall deface, alter, or destroy, or attempt to deface, alter, or destroy any such common seal, charter, deed, muniment, book, paper, or record, shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay for the first offence a penalty not exceeding (£50) fifty pounds nor less than (£5) five pounds, and upon every subsequent conviction, a penalty of not less than (£20) twenty pounds.

Nor removed.

71. Any person who shall remove or attempt to remove (except for the purpose of any legal proceedings) any such seal, charter, deed, muniment, book, paper, or record from the Council Chambers, without leave from the Council first had and obtained, shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay the penalty of not more than (£20) twenty pounds nor less than (£2) two pounds, and for every subsequent offence a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than (£50) fifty pounds.

Duties of other officers and servants.

72. The duties of all officers and servants of the Corporation shall be defined by such regulations as may from time to time be fixed by the Council.

Special powers of Mayor.

73. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless such return or statement shall have been already prepared, or such explanation or information already given, and such return, statement, explanation, or information is on record as hereinbefore provided, or unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statement or the giving of such explanation or information.

All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such information or explanation may, except as hereinafter provided, be either recorded in voce or put into writing, as the Mayor may direct.

Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

74. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council before directing the same to be read as by clause 59½ of the By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the correspondence to be read, and to the order thereof, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section or clause shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman: Providing that should any correspondence not be read, the same may be moved for by motion upon notice.

Statement of accounts.

75. Not later than the months of March and September in each year, the Mayor shall lay before the Council the accounts for the previous half-year, duly audited; but should any auditor, who has by letter addressed to the Council Clerk accepted that office, not attend for the purpose of auditing the accounts when required by authority of the Mayor to do so, or refuse to certify to the correctness of the account unless he can prove to the satisfaction of the Council that the account is incorrect, he shall pay a fine of ten pounds, to be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices of the Peace, the said fine to be carried to the credit of the Municipal funds.

How complaints against officers are to be dealt with.

76. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing or is anonymous. All such complaints may be addressed to the Mayor, who immediately upon the receipt of any such complaint, and without laying the same before the Council, shall have power to investigate the same. And if any such complaint be made to the Council, or to any member or officer thereof, it shall be referred to or investigated by the Mayor before it shall be in any way (otherwise than by such reference) ordered upon or dealt with by such Council: Provided that every report, explanation, and information which may be made or rendered in reference to every such complaint shall be in writing. And such Mayor shall state in writing the result of every such investigation and his opinion as to what order (if any) ought to be made in connection therewith. And such complaint, with all reports, explanations, and information as aforesaid, in connection therewith, and the Mayor's statement as aforesaid thereon, shall be laid before the Council at the next meeting thereof, which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have made such statement, and shall be duly recorded: Provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the special powers conferred on the Mayor by section 152 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or any other special power which now is, or hereafter may be, conferred by statute upon such Mayor.

Leave of absence

77. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or any Alderman, otherwise than by resolution of the Council.

Mode of calling for Tenders.

78. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed or any material supplied by contract, tenders for the execution of such work or the supply of such material shall be called for by public notice, as hereinafter provided.

Suits and prosecutions for penalties, &c.

79. Such suits or informations for the enforcement of penalties for or in respect of breaches of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or of any By-law made thereunder, or of any statute, the operation of which may have been extended to the Borough, as may have been directed by the Council, or by the By-law Committee, or by the Mayor, to be commenced or laid, shall be so commenced or laid as follows, namely:—When against a member of the Council, or an auditor, or any officer of the Corporation—by the Council Clerk, unless such Council Clerk shall be the officer to be proceeded against, and in such case by another officer named by the Council for that purpose. When against any other person—by the officer to whom the carrying out of the statutory provision or By-law imposing the penalty sought to be enforced has been entrusted; and if there shall be no such officer, then by any such officer or person as shall be appointed for that purpose by the Council, or the By-law Committee, or the Mayor, as the case may be, on directing such suit or information as aforesaid. And no such suit shall be brought, nor shall any such information be laid as aforesaid against any member of the Council, or auditor, except by the order of such Council; nor shall any similar proceeding be taken against any officer of the Council, except on the order of such Council, or of the Mayor, nor against any person except upon the order of the Council, or of the Mayor, or of the By-law Committee. And no such suit shall be directed to be brought, nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid, except on an express resolution of the Council, in any case where the bringing of such suit, or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction by such Council, or whereon the trial or hearing of any such suit or information the same shall have been dismissed on its merits: Provided that in any such case the conduct or prosecution of any such suit or information may on the order of the Council, be entrusted to an attorney.

How notices are to be published.

80. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law, or any appointment, resolution, act, or regulation done, made, or passed, or proposed to be done, made, or passed, by the Council, or by any Committee thereof or by the Mayor or any officer of the said Council, such notice shall be given and published by posting the same on or near the outer door of the Council Chambers for the space of seven days, or by advertising the same twice in some newspaper circulating in the Borough.

SECTION II.

Determining the time and modes of collecting and enforcing payment of the rates, either current or in arrear.

Rates—Levying Rates.

Collection of Rates.

Clause 1. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under sections 164, 165, 166, and 167 of the said Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said sections, or under the provisions of any said sections, or for any of the purposes mentioned therein, shall be collected in such manner and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council may, by resolution at the time of making or imposing such rates or any of them, have appointed. All such rates shall be paid at the Council Chambers at the hours appointed by the Council for that purpose.

Rate Collector to furnish list of defaulters.

2. Every person not paying his or her rate at the time appointed shall be deemed a defaulter and it shall be the duty of the rate collector to furnish the Mayor and Council, or any Committee as directed, with lists of all persons so in default.

2½. In the event of any premises being wholly or partially destroyed by fire the Council shall have power to accept an equitable proportion of the assessed rates for the remainder of the Municipal year.

Bailiff.

3. The Bailiff shall be appointed by a resolution of the said Council, and shall be at any time removable by a like resolution.

Bailiff's sureties.

4. The Bailiff shall find two sureties, to the satisfaction of the Mayor, to the extent of twenty-five pounds each, for the faithful discharge of his duty.

Duty of Bailiff.

5. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates, in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

6. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

7. If the sum for which any such distress shall have been made shall not be paid, with costs as hereinafter provided, on or before the expiration of five days, the Bailiff shall sell the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the said Borough as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them to for such purpose; and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and costs as hereinafter provided, to the owner of the goods so sold on demand of such surplus by such owner.

Inventories.

8. At the time of making a distress, the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with which such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand at any time within one month after making such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

9. The Bailiff on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained of what nature or kind soever in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of the five days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

10. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

11. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk, all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Costs.

12. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law the costs and charges in the Schedule hereto annexed marked "C."

SCHEDULE A.

Warrant of distress.

I, _____, Mayor of the Borough of Kempsey, do hereby authorize you, _____, Bailiff of the said Borough, to distrain the goods and chattels in the dwelling-house, or in and upon the land and premises of _____, situate at _____, for the sum of £ _____, being the amount of Municipal rates due to the said Borough to the _____ day of _____, for the said dwelling-house, land, or premises, as the case may be, and to proceed thereon for the recovery of the said rates according to law.

SECTION III.

Streets and public places, &c.

New roads to be reported upon, &c.

1. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public, shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council, until after such road, street, way, or park shall have been examined by a Committee for works, and reported upon to the Council by such Committee.

Plans of proposed new road, and to be deposited.

2. Whenever any proprietor or proprietors of land within the said Borough, shall open any road, street, or way, or lay out any park or other place for public use or recreation through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, way, park, or other place, he or they shall furnish the Council with the plan or plans, signed by himself or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, way, park, or other place as aforesaid. If the Council determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans, so signed as aforesaid, shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council, and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument, dedicating such road, way, reserve, or other place to public use or recreation as aforesaid, as may be considered necessary by the Council, and such further instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council, but the Council shall not be compelled to take charge of, or spend moneys on, or vote money, for any new street, road, lane, or thoroughfare that is not forty feet wide, including pathway, and unless such street, road, lane, or thoroughfare or other place is first proclaimed, and properly formed, and completed to the satisfaction of the Council at the expense of the owner or owners of the land through which such road, street, lane, thoroughfare, or other place is carried.

Roads and streets and encroachments thereon.

3. The Surveyor of the Borough, Clerk of Works, or other officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf, shall be the proper officer for marking out, and shall fix, mark, and lay out levels of all public roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares, and the carriage and foot ways thereof, which now are or shall hereafter be under or subject to the control, construction, care, or management of the Council. In marking out such roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares, recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which the land with frontage to the road, street, lane, or thoroughfare in question shall have sold or let. And it shall be the duty of such Surveyor, Clerk of Works, or officer to place posts at the corners or intersections of such streets, roads, lanes, and thoroughfares whenever the same may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Council, so as to give a width of 42 feet for the carriage-way, and 12 feet for the footway on each side where the road, streets, lane, or thoroughfare shall be 66 feet wide, and in proportion, and in the discretion of the Council, in any such street, road, lane, or thoroughfare, or other public place of other width than 66 feet: Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, lane, thoroughfare, or public place, until the same shall have been submitted to, and adopted by the Council as hereinafter stated: Provided further that this By-law shall be read subject in all respects to "The Width of Streets and Lanes Act of 1881."

Change of street levels.

4. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the levels of any such public road, street, or way as aforesaid, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section showing the proposed alteration to be exhibited at the Council Chambers for fourteen days, for the information and inspection of rate-payers, and shall notify by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Borough that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption and countersigned by the Council Clerk; and such plan and section so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

Footpaths may be levelled.

5. When any footway shall have been marked out in manner hereinbefore directed, the Surveyor or such officer or persons so authorized as hereinbefore mentioned may cause the same to be levelled and made as nearly as practicable of equal height and breadth and with an equal slope and inclination, and for this purpose may remove any flagging, steps, or other matter, thing, or obstruction that may injure or obstruct the said footway or render it unequal or inconvenient, and which now is or may hereafter be erected or placed on the space marked out for any of the said footways.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs, &c.

6. The Mayor may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person who shall travel on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or remove or destroy any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay the penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

No encroachment allowed on streets, &c.

7. Whenever any road, street, or lane has been marked out in manner herein provided, no house, shop, fence, or other structure shall, except as hereinafter mentioned, be allowed to project or encroach on any part thereof, and it shall not be lawful for any person to erect or put up any building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, or make any excavation, hole, or opening, in, under, upon, or near to any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, unless the consent of the Council or Mayor has been obtained to the erecting or making of any such building, erection, obstruction, fence or enclosure, excavation, hole, or opening as aforesaid; and every person offending against this By-law shall forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding five pounds, and for the second and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Obstructing public footways.

8. If the owner or occupier of any land situated on the side of any street or road in this Borough shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant, kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any footpath or footway on the side of any such street or road, and on demand made by the Council shall not cut, lop, or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants, the said Council, by their servants, labourers, and workmen, may cut, or cause to be cut and lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, or shrubs, and to remove or burn any such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist, or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen in due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall on conviction of every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

No balcony, &c., to project.

9. With regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, it shall not be lawful for any awning, verandah, portico, balcony, or window forming part of or attached to any external wall to project beyond the building line of any street or road, except with the consent of the Council first obtained, nor shall any balcony or any other external projection as aforesaid which may hereafter be added to any existing building be allowed to project as aforesaid under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, except with the consent of the Council first obtained: Provided that no such awning, verandah, portico, or balcony shall be permitted to be erected in any street less than thirty feet wide: Provided also that any person desiring to erect any such structure shall first submit a plan for the approval of the Council, such structure not to be less than nine feet in height.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.

10. The Surveyor, or other such officer or person, may at any time, on the order of the Council and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment, in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall in this case be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroaching structure belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected.

The Council may remove encroachments.

11. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within thirty days, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same, under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the person so offending: Providing that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, or at the Council's option to proceed against the offender for breach of By-law, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor be less than five pounds; and in case of every successive offence the penalty on conviction not to be less than five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

12. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action by trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or to proceed as for a breach of such By-law as aforesaid.

To apply also to obstruction by digging, &c.

13. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to obstructions by digging or excavation; and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the Surveyor or other officer as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him, or either of them, in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these By-laws imposed or cast on the said Surveyor or officer shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Hoads or fences to be erected.

14. Every person intending to build or take down any building within the limits of the Borough of Kempsey, or to cause the same to be so done, or to alter or repair the outward part of any such building, or to cause the same to be done, where any street or footway will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall, before beginning the same, obtain permission of the Council and cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up in order to separate the building where such works are being carried on, from the street with a convenient platform and handrail, or upon the public street or road within a distance of less than twelve feet from the building line thereof if there be room enough to leave a footway for passengers outside of such hoard or fence, and shall continue such hoard or fence with such platform and handrail as aforesaid standing in good condition to the satisfaction of the officer of the Council of the said Borough during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall in all cases in which it is necessary in order to prevent accidents cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during the night; and every such person who shall fail to put up such fence or hoard or platform with such handrail as aforesaid, or to continue the same respectively standing in good condition as aforesaid during the same period of such building or taking down or who shall not while the said hoard or fence is standing keep the same sufficiently lighted in the night, or who shall not remove the same when directed by the officer of the Council of the said Borough within a reasonable time afterwards shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds for every day such default is continued.

SECTION IV.

Offences—Nuisances—General Good Order of the Borough.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

3. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Borough, shall over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for such offence a sum of not more than one pound nor less than five shillings.

Trees and enclosures.

4. The Council shall have power to plant trees on the public streets and ways of the said Borough; and any person who shall wilfully or without the authority of the Council cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council, or in or upon any public reserve or park, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Extirpation of noxious weeds.

5. Any owner or occupier of land within the Borough of Kempsey, who shall permit to grow or remain on the said land or upon the public streets or roads within a distance of twelve feet from the boundary line thereof any of the weeds known as "Bathurst burr," "Scotch thistle," "prickly pear," "sweet briar," or any other noxious weed, and who shall fail to extirpate or destroy the same within thirty days after the receipt of the notice, in writing by post or otherwise, from the Council or proper officer of the Council so to do, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum not exceeding five pounds.

Throwing dead animals, &c., into any water-course, &c.

6. Any person who shall throw or cast any filth, rubbish, saw-dust, or any other matter which shall be adjudged by the Council to be a nuisance, or any dead animal, or any animal, with intent to drown the same, into any water-course, water-hole, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer slops, suds, night-soil, sewerage matter, or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Borough, or shall permit or cause by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, night-soil, sewerage matter, slops, suds, or filth of any kind whatsoever to flow or to be cast in any water-course, water-hole, creek, or canal, or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer, or water-course, creek, or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, and shall in addition to any such forfeiture pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction or of restoring such water-course or canal into its proper channel.

Throwing filth on roadway, &c.

7. If any person shall, in any street, road, lane or public place, throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal in or so near to any of the said streets or roads as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over or be on any carriage or foot way, or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any foot way, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, any wheel-barrow, or truck, or any cask, or shall wilfully lead, drive or ride any horse or other beast upon any footway aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Rubbish for offensive matter, &c.

7½. No kind of rubbish or offensive matter shall be thrown upon any public or private property within the Borough without permission first obtained from the Municipal Council and the owner or owners of such property. Persons found guilty of a breach of this By-law, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Placing goods, &c., on roadway, &c.

8. If any person shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall, show-board, basket, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed any cask or vessel in or upon or over any road, footway, or public place within the said Borough, or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause, or procure, permit, or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed any coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, or other carriage upon any footway, or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be set or placed in, upon, or over any of the said carriage or foot ways any timber, stone, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as hereinbefore directed), or any other matters or things whatsoever; or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or premises over any part of such footways or carriage-ways, or over any area of any house or premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside of any part of any house or premises over or next to any such street or road and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Council or any officer thereof, and shall not continue and keep the same so removed; or if any person having, in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed or cause to be removed any such stall, show-board, basket, goods, coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, carriage, timber, stone, brick, lime, meat, offal, or other matter or things, and shall at any time thereafter again set or lay, or place, expose, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, or exposed the same or any of them, or any other article or thing whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid) in, upon, or over any of the carriage or foot ways of or next unto any streets, or roads as aforesaid, in every such case every person so offending shall forfeit a sum not exceeding two pounds.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

9. If any person shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any street, road, or public place any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheeled carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing that shall be carried principally or in part upon wheeled carriages, to drag or trail upon any part of such carriage-way so as to occupy or obstruct the street or road beyond the breadth of such carriage, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding two pounds over and above the damages occasioned thereby: Provided that such penalty and damages shall not together exceed the sum of five pounds nor be less than one pound.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without leave.

10. Any person who, from any part of the roads, streets, thoroughfares, reserves, or other lands, or public places, shall remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material without leave first had and obtained from the officers or persons having lawful charge of such roads, streets, thoroughfares, reserves, or other lands, or public places, or who shall wantonly break-up, or otherwise damage a part of the said roads, streets, thoroughfares, reserves, or other lands, or public places shall on conviction pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings, and for every subsequent offence shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than one pound. The driver of any vehicle shall, for the purpose of this By-law, be held and taken to be owner thereof until the contrary be shown.

No driver to ride on vehicle without a person to guide his beast (vehicle with reins excepted), or to go a distance from his vehicle, or drive on wrong side, &c.

11. If the driver of any cart, waggon, dray, or vehicle of any kind shall ride upon the same in any street, road, or thoroughfare not having some person on foot to guide the animals drawing the same (such vehicles as are drawn by horses driven or guided with reins only excepted); or if the driver of any carriage or vehicle whatsoever shall wilfully be at such distance from such carriage or vehicle, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street, road, or thoroughfare that he cannot have the direction or government of the horse or horses, or cattle, drawing the same; or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, coach, carriage, or other vehicle shall not drive on the left or near side of such road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any vehicle under his or her care, upon such road, street, or thoroughfare, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any person or vehicle or carriage in or upon the same: every such driver or person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum not exceeding two pounds.

Name and place of abode, &c.

12. The owner of every such waggon, cart, dray, or vehicle of any kind plying for hire, who shall allow the same to be driven through the said Borough of Kempsey without having his name and place of abode painted on the off side legibly, the driver or person in charge of any such waggon, cart, or dray as aforesaid, who shall refuse to give his and the owner's name and address shall forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum not exceeding two pounds.

Lights on vehicles.

13. Every person whilst driving, leading, or riding upon any cart, carriage, van, buggy, or other vehicle whatsoever, drawn by any horse, ass, mule, or other animal, through any part of the Borough between the hours of sunset and sunrise shall carry a lighted lamp affixed in a conspicuous place on the off side of such cart, van, waggon, buggy, or other vehicle, under a penalty of five shillings for the first offence, and for every subsequent offence not less than ten shillings nor more than two pounds.

As to riding or driving improperly through streets, &c.

14. Any person who shall ride or drive through any road, street, or public place negligently, carelessly, or furiously, or so as to endanger the life or limb of any person, or to the common danger of the passengers, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Riding or driving round corners, &c.

15. Any person who shall ride or drive round the corner of any street, road, or public place within the said Borough at a pace faster than a walk, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings for every such offence.

Erection of houses, &c.—Fee for permission.

16. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place within the Borough, without having first served notice in writing to the Mayor or Council Clerk before commencing the same, stating his intention and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, and shall at the time the said notice is given as aforesaid pay to the Council Clerk a fee of five shillings for permission to erect any such house, shop, or building in any street, lane, or other place within the said Borough; and every owner thereof, and every contractor for such house, shop, or building, or any part thereof, commencing to build, or work thereon without such notice having been given, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

Affixing placards on walls and chalking thereon.

17. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste, affix, damage, deface, or destroy any placard or other paper upon any wall, fence, house, or building, or to deface any such wall, fence, house, or building by chalk or paint, or in any other manner, unless with the consent of the owner thereof; and any person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall forfeit and pay the sum not exceeding ten shillings. It shall not be lawful for any person (other than the person affixing the same or the owner of the premises to which such may be affixed) to wantonly deface or destroy any placard not out of date which may have been lawfully affixed to any such wall, fence, or house; and any person guilty of such offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten shillings.

Swine, &c., not to wander about the streets.

18. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any house, yard, or enclosure, situated and being in or within forty yards of any street or public place in the Borough, or who shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, cattle, mule, sheep, goat, or any other animal of like nature belonging to him or under his charge to stray or to go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street, road, or other public place within the Borough, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

Restrictions on certain trades, &c.

19. It shall not be lawful for the business of soap boiler, tallow melter, tanner, currier, pig keeper, or any occupation, trade, or manufacture of an obnoxious or unwholesome nature, prejudicial to the health of, or otherwise offensive to any of the inhabitants thereof, to be commenced or established within the limits of that portion of the Borough, to be defined from time to time by resolution of this Council, without consent of the Council first had and obtained; and whosoever shall offend against this By-law shall forfeit and pay on conviction a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds, and a further sum of one pound for each and every day during which he continues to offend.

Hours for removing night-soil, &c.

20. Any person who shall remove any night-soil or ammoniacal liquor, bones, or other offensive matter, or shall come with carts or carriages for that purpose, between the hours of five in the morning and eleven o'clock at night, or shall at any time remove any such night-soil or ammoniacal liquor, otherwise than in properly covered and watertight carts or vehicles, or in such a manner as to upset, cast, spill, or strew any of the said night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, slop, urine, or filth in, or upon, or near to any of the streets, roads, public places, or footways of the Borough, or shall deposit or throw night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, bones, or other offensive matter, nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house, than shall from time to time be directed by the Council, or by the Inspector of Nuisances, or shall allow vehicles used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house, than forty yards, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and in case the person or persons so offending cannot be found, then the owner or owners of such carts, carriages, or other vehicles employed in and about emptying or removing such night-soil, bones, or other offensive matter, and also the employer or employers of the person or persons so offending shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Inspection of premises, yards, &c., to be kept clean.

21. Upon the reasonable complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbourhood, or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officers of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose. An owner or occupier of any house or place within the said Borough who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, paddocks, and ways within, attached to, or occupied in conjunction with the said house or place, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell, after receiving such notice shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two pounds.

Discharging firearms, &c.

22. Any person who shall discharge any firearms without lawful cause, or let off any fireworks or other explosive matter within forty yards of any road, street, or public place, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Entrance to cellars, &c., to be covered, &c.

23. If the owner or occupier of any premises, having any rails or bars over the areas or openings to any kitchen or cellars or other part of the said premises beneath the surface of the footway of any streets or public places, or having any doorway or entrance into the basement or cellar story thereof, shall not either keep the same, or the rails of such kitchen, cellars, or other parts in sufficient and good repair, or constantly keep the same securely guarded by rails, or cover the same over with a strong flap or trap-door, according to the nature of the case, and so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; or if any such owner or occupier shall leave open, or not sufficiently nor substantially keep covered and secured, any coal or other hole, funnel, trap-door, or cellar flap belonging to or connected with his premises, save and except only during reasonable time for use, alteration, or repairs; or if such owner or occupier shall not repair and from time to time keep in good and substantial repair all and every or any such rails, guard-rails, flaps, trap-doors, and other covering, then and in every such case the person neglecting so to do shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay the sum not exceeding five pounds.

Cellars or openings beneath footways prohibited.

24. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any cellar, or any opening, door, or window, on or beneath the surface of the footway of any road, street, or public place, within the said Borough, except by the permission of the Council; and if any person shall so offend he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds over and above the expense of remedying or removing any such cellar, opening, door, or window, such expense to be assessed and allowed by the convicting Justice or Justices: Provided that such expense and penalty shall not together exceed fifty pounds.

Wells to be covered over, &c.

25. Every person who shall have a well situated between his dwelling-house or the appurtenances thereof, and any public place, road, street, or footway within the limits of the said Borough, or at the side of such public place, road, street, or footway, or in any yard or place open and exposed to such public place, road, or footway, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any person having such a well as aforesaid shall fail to cover and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left at such person's usual or last known abode, or at the said premises, in the manner and with such materials as the Council or its officer shall direct, and to their satisfaction, such persons shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten shillings every day that such well shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions hereof: Provided that with respect to wells open at the time when this By-law shall come into operation, such penalty shall not be recoverable if the same be properly covered within one week thereafter.

Notices not to be painted on pavement.

26. Any person who shall stamp, stain, paint, write or post any advertisement or notice upon any footway or kerbstone within the Borough of Kempsey shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds.

Offensive or indecent placards.

27. Any person who shall, in any street or public place within the Borough of Kempsey, post, write, expose to view, or distribute any placard, handbill, or other document whatever of an offensive or indecent character shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

Musicians to move on.

28. Any street musician or vocalist who shall not, when requested by any householder within the Borough of Kempsey, or his servant, or by any officer or servant of the Council of the Borough aforesaid, or by any Police officer, depart from the neighbourhood of the premises of such householder, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds.

Persons not to stand or loiter in streets.

29. All persons standing or loitering upon any of the carriage-ways, footways, or other public places in the Borough of Kempsey, to the inconvenience of passers-by, or in any way interrupting the traffic, who shall not discontinue to do so on being required by any officer or servant of the Council of the said Borough, or by any Police officer, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds.

Holes made for cellars, &c., to be enclosed, &c.

30. If any person shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave, or cause to be left, any hole in or adjoining any street, road, lane, or public place for the purpose of making any cellar or cellars, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, and shall not forthwith enclose the same in a good or sufficient manner, and keep up, or cause to be kept up and continued, any such enclosure, or shall not, when thereunto required by the said Council or officer thereof, well and sufficiently fence or enclose any such hole within the time and in the manner provided by the preceding By-laws, and shall not place a light upon the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise, during the continuance of such enclosure, then and in every such case the person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, and for every refusal or neglect, any sum not exceeding five pounds, and on conviction for every subsequent offence not less than ten shillings.

Excavations, &c., to be protected by fence or wall.

31. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any quarry, excavation, or opening in the ground on any property adjoining or near to any public road or footpath within the limits of this Borough, until the owner or occupier of the said property shall have erected a good substantial fence or wall, at the least 4 feet high, around such parts of the said property as adjoin such public road or footpath; and any person neglecting or refusing to enclose any premises upon which any such quarry or excavation shall be made shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds. And all existing quarries, excavations, or precipices situated within the limits of this Borough shall be closed and protected in the manner aforesaid, within twenty-four hours after due notice to that effect shall have been given by the said Council; and in the event of the failure or neglect of the owner or occupier of any such last-mentioned property to enclose the same, after notice as aforesaid, such persons so offending shall be subject to the penalty before mentioned.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

32. Every person who, in any street or other public place or passage within the said Borough, shall commit any of the following offences shall, on conviction for any and for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds:—

Every person who shall hoist, or cause to be hoisted, or lower, or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the footway thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place, the carcase, or any part of the carcase, of any slaughtered animal without sufficient and proper cloth covering the same, for the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butcher's meat for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.

Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.

Every person who shall place any flower-pot in any upper window, near to any street or public place, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.

Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof, or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure when any house or building is being erected, pulled down, or being repaired).

Every blacksmith, metal-founder, lime-burner, brickmaker, potter, or other person using a forge, furnace, or kiln, and having a door, window, or aperture fronting or opening into or towards any street, lane, or passage, and not enclosing such door, or not fastening the shutters or other fastenings of such window, and closing such aperture, or placing a screen before the same every evening within one hour after sunset, so as effectually to prevent the light from showing through the doorway, window, or aperture next or upon such street, lane, or passage.

Every person who shall, within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house, burn any rags, bones, cork, or other offensive substance (garden refuse excepted) to the annoyance of any inhabitant.

Every person who shall carry goods, tools, implements, ladders, scaffolding, or any frame upon any footway to the annoyance of any person.

Every person who shall be a keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right-of-way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or other place within the said Borough.

Polluting water, reservoirs, &c.

33. Whoever shall bathe in any reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other waterworks belonging to or under the management or control of the Council, or shall wash, cleanse, or throw, or cause to enter therein any animal (whether alive or dead), or any rubbish, filth, or thing of any kind whatsoever, or shall cause or permit, or suffer to run, or to be brought therein the water of any sink, sewer, drain, engine or boiler, or other filthy, unwholesome, or improper liquid, or shall wash any clothes at any public fountain or pump, or in or at any such stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other waterworks as aforesaid, or shall do anything whatsoever whereby any water or waterworks belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, shall be fouled, obstructed, or damaged, shall, for the first offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; for a second offence, not more than ten pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence, a sum not more than twenty pounds.

34. It shall be the duty of the Inspector of Nuisances to report without delay the existence of any nuisance arising from live or dead animals of any kind or species within the Borough, and to give notice to the owner or owners thereof, or the owner or occupier of the premises upon which such animals may be, to remove and destroy the same (if very offensive) within a period of six hours; and if not removed or destroyed within that period, to cause the removal and destruction of the said nuisance without delay; and the owner or owners thereof, or the owner or occupiers of the premises in default, and conviction thereof before any two Justices of the Peace, in each case shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds in addition to all legal and other expenses incurred in the proceedings and in the removal and destruction of said nuisances.

SECTION V.

Noisome and Offensive Trades.

No noisome or offensive trades to be carried on to the injury of any inhabitants.

1. No person shall carry on any nuisance or offensive trade within the said Borough so as to injure or be a nuisance as hereinafter stated to the inhabitants thereof.

Definition of "Noisome and Offensive Trades."

2. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which, or in consequence of, or in connection therewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed, or carried on, any gas, vapour, effluvia, liquid, or any large quantities of smoke shall be evolved or discharged, which gas, vapour, effluvia, liquid, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the said Borough, shall be considered a "noisome and offensive trade" within the meaning of these By-laws.

Complaint.—Inquire and Report.—Order of Council thereon.—Notice to discontinue, &c.—Penalty.

3. Upon complaint in writing by any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property, as to injure his or her health, or the health of any member of his or her family, or to be a nuisance to such householder and to his or her family, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other person or persons appointed by the Council shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint, and shall report thereon to the said Council. And if the said Council shall, on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so complained of, and so being conducted or carried on as aforesaid is a "noisome or offensive trade" within the meaning of these By-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such trade to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, as the said Council may direct, or so to conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid, the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be noisome and offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Borough. And if such trade shall not be discontinued or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be noisome or offensive within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on such trade as aforesaid shall for the first offence forfeit and pay a sum of not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds; for a second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than ten pounds.

Mode of proceeding when a "Noisome or offensive trade" is about to be commenced.—Penalty.

4. The like proceedings shall be taken whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, and the notice to be given as aforesaid shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same; and the Council shall take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, to any resident within the Borough. And any person who shall in any such case, commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so that the same shall be in any way "noisome or offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds.

Service of notice—Liabilities.

5. Service of any such notice as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is being conducted, followed, or carried on, or is about to be commenced, or entered upon, or at the last known place of abode of such occupier or owner, or upon any person on the said premises or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these By-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as aforesaid, shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting, following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade, calling, or occupation, within the meaning and for all the purposes of these By-laws.

SECTION VI.

Severage and Drainage.

No private sewers to be made to communicate with the public sewers without notice.

1. It shall not be lawful for any person, without notice to the Council or otherwise than according to such plans and directions as such Council make and give, to make or branch any private drain or sewer into any of the public drains, sewers, or channels or to any drain or sewer communicating therewith; and in case any person or persons shall make or branch any private drain or sewer communicating or to communicate therewith without such notice, or otherwise than as aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds, and shall, at his own expenses, make good all roads, streets, kerbing, &c., which shall have been injured by or through any such work; and all such repairs shall be performed to the satisfaction of such officer as the Council shall appoint to superintend such work; and any person who shall do or perform anything contrary to this clause, or shall neglect to make good all such damage as aforesaid, shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Proprietors of private sewers, &c., to repair and cleanse same.

2. All private drains or sewers communicating with any public drain or sewer shall from time to time be repaired and cleansed under the inspection and direction of the Council or officer thereof, at the costs and charges of the occupiers of the houses, buildings, lands, and premises to which the said private sewers or drains shall respectively belong; and in case any person shall neglect to repair and cleanse, or cause any such private drain or sewer to be repaired and cleansed according to the direction of the Council, he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Water from roof, &c.

3. Every owner or occupier of any dwelling-house, shop, or other building who shall permit rain-water to fall from any roof, balcony, or other projection upon any street, road, lane, or footway, or to flow over the pathway of any such street, road, or lane, or shall cause or permit any such roof or rain water to be discharged by any pipe upon any such street, road, lane, or footway shall, if such nuisance be not abated within seven days after notice to abate shall have been given by the Council, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Drains and footpaths.

4. No surface drain shall be made in any footway, nor any pipes laid under or across the same, without the authority of the Council; and no such pipe or drain shall be used for the discharge into any street or roadway of any offensive liquid or matter of any kind whatsoever, and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Drains for discharge of surface water from land.

5. Every owner or occupier of land so situated that surface or storm water from or upon the same shall overflow or shall tend naturally, if not otherwise discharged to overflow any road, lane, or footway shall, within seven days next after the service of notice by the Council, abate such nuisance where possible; and in default of compliance with any such notice within the period aforesaid, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds; and if, within seven days after such conviction, such owner or occupier shall still have failed to comply with such notice or be otherwise in default as aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds. And every such owner or occupier who shall still have made default as aforesaid for more than seven days after such second or any future conviction, shall be guilty of a further offence within the meaning of this clause.

Natural water-courses.

6. Any person who may have closed or shall close or intercept any natural water-course, by building or otherwise, shall provide another outlet for the surface water with pipes or sewers of a size and in a manner to be approved by the Council, and any person failing to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than five pounds.

7. That the owners of houses or agents thereof who have laid pipes to convey slops, suds, refuse, or dirty water of any kind whatsoever into the street, water channel, water-course, water-hole, river, creek, or canal shall conduct a cesspit and charcoal filter of a design hereinafter mentioned to each house; such cesspit to be made according to plan and specification, to be seen at the Council Chambers; the said cesspit and filter to be constructed to the satisfaction of the Public Works Committee or other duly authorized officer. And any owner of such house or his agent who shall refuse or neglect to construct such cesspit and charcoal filter within seven days after receiving a written notice, signed by the Mayor or Council Clerk, or other duly authorized officer, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds. Should any owner of such house or his agent refuse or neglect to cleanse such cesspit and charcoal filter after twenty-four hours' notice from a duly authorized officer, he shall forfeit any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Preventing and extinguishing fires.

Fires or combustible materials, &c.

1. Every person who shall place or knowingly permit to be placed in any house, yard, workshop, out-offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings, shall on conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or other combustible or inflammable article to remain as aforesaid for forty-eight hours after any such conviction shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

I flammable fences, &c.

2. Every person who shall erect any fence of brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, and place as or for the covering of any such stack any inflammable material, or shall place, keep, or store any hay, straw, or other inflammable material in any building so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit on conviction for every such offence a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound, and also remove such fence, stack, covering, or inflammable material within forty-eight hours after such conviction. And any person failing to remove such fence, stack, covering, or inflammable material within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Burning shavings &c., in the street.

3. Any person burning any shavings or other matters or things in any street, road, or public place, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

Wilfully setting fire to chimneys.

4. Every person who wilfully sets or causes to be set on fire any chimney, flue, smoke-vent or stove-pipe, herein called in common a "chimney," shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

SECTION VIII.

Planting Trees.

1. The Council shall, by resolution, annually place upon the estimates a sum of money to be expended in the planting and preserving trees and shrubs in the public streets and recreation grounds within the Borough, and from time to time determine what streets or recreation grounds shall be so planted.

2. The Council shall cause trees or shrubs to be planted in any street or recreation ground in accordance with these By-laws in the following manner, that is to say:—Where the streets are over one and a half chains wide, at a distance of eighteen feet from the kerbing, and at a distance of thirty feet apart; where the streets are one chain or less wide, at a distance of fifteen feet from the kerbing, and at a distance of thirty feet apart; and upon recreation grounds, in accordance with a plan to be approved of by resolution of the Council.

3. The trees to be planted in the public streets shall consist of such as may be authorized by resolution of the Council, and such other trees in addition as the Council may determine.

SECTION IX.

Ferries.

1. The Council shall, by resolution, establish such ferries as may be required for the public convenience, and lease the same for a period not less than one year nor more than five years.

2. All leases shall be sold by public auction or by tender, as the Council may determine. Such sales shall be advertised in some paper published in the Borough, and given not less than fourteen days' notice. The upset price of each ferry to be fixed by the resolution of the Council.

3. The purchaser shall, at the time of sale, if by auction or notification of acceptance by tender, pay to the Council one-fourth of the monthly rent, and provide, within seven days, two sureties who are willing to enter with him into a bond to the amount of one hundred pounds; such sureties to be approved by the Council. All expenses connected with the bond and lease to be paid by the lessee.

4. The lessee shall pay, at intervals of one month, one-twelfth of the annual rent in advance, upon such days as may be fixed in the lease, to such person as the Council may appoint to collect the same. In default of payment, the lease will become void and forfeited.

5. The lessee must either himself, or by his servants, ply the punt and boat at all hours, and without unnecessary delay for the convenience and accommodation of the public.

6. The lessee shall, immediately on taking possession, put up in some conspicuous place at or near the ferry, a board with a table printed in distinct and legible letters, containing at the top the name of the ferry, and a list of all tolls and dues payable thereat (as hereinafter provided in the Schedule hereto) and the name of the lessee.

7. No tolls or dues shall be demanded or taken in addition to those provided in the Schedule annexed to these By-laws, and no tolls or dues shall be demanded in respect of any horses or carriages, or in respect of any person attending a funeral, or from any Minister of religion in the exercise of his duty, or from any person going to or from a place of worship, or policemen on duty, or from any member or officer of the Council while upon the business of the Council.

8. Any person who shall be guilty of a breach of these By-laws shall be deemed guilty of an offence, and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds, to be recovered before any two Justices of the Peace in Court of Petty Sessions assembled.

9. Schedule of Tolls.

SECTION X.

Public Wharves.

1. The Kempsey public wharves shall be appropriated to the landing and embarking of passengers, the loading and unloading of farm of produce, general merchandise, building materials, or any produce whatever.

2. The Council may appoint wharfingers, or let by tender, or sell by public auction, the tolls and dues arising from the wharves.

3. The wharfinger or lessees shall find two sureties in the amount of twenty-pounds for the faithful performance of their duties.

4. The wharfinger or lessee shall preserve order and regularity upon the said wharves, and may remove therefrom any person making a riot or disturbance, or guilty of cursing or swearing or using indecent language, offending against common decency, being drunk, or in any way misconducting himself or herself thereon.

5. The wharfingers or lessees shall be entitled to demand and receive the tolls and dues set out in the Schedule hereto annexed from all parties using the wharves.

6. No dray, cart, or vehicle shall be allowed to remain on the wharves longer than the time actually required for loading or unloading the same.

7. No goods, merchandise, produce, live stock, lime, timber, stone, or other building material shall be allowed to remain on the wharves more than twenty-four hours from the time when the same may have been landed thereon.

8. It shall be compulsory on all parties loading or discharging cargo at the wharves to keep and leave a space of six feet clear as passages to the landing stages.

9. No vessel or boat shall be allowed to be made fast to the wharves or occupy the berth but for the purpose of loading or unloading.

10. The vessel or boat first arriving shall be entitled to precedence in the use of the wharves, and shall be loaded and unloaded, after which such vessel shall haul off from the wharves.

11. The master of every vessel shall, when demanded before or after unloading any cargo, give to the wharfinger or lessee particulars in writing, signed by himself, of such cargo with the name of the consignee; and if the same shall not be removed within the time limited by these By-laws, the wharfinger or lessee shall have power to remove or, if he think fit, to store the same at the expense or risk of consignee; and further, if such goods be not claimed and removed, and all charges and expenses accrued in respect thereof paid within thirty days from their landing, shall dispose of the same by public auction and dispose of the proceeds first in payment of all charges and expenses, and shall pay the balance, if any, to the consignee.

12. The Borough Council wharfinger or lessee, shall not be liable to any consignor, consignee, owner or master of vessel, or any other person landing or shipping goods, for any loss or damage to any goods placed upon the wharf, or in respect to any loss or damage occasioned by the removal or sale thereof, under the preceding section of these By-laws.

13. In discharging coal, sand, ballast, or gravel, it shall be compulsory on the masters of vessels to comply with the ordinary harbour regulation in respect to such discharging.

SCHEDULE A.

14. Tolls and dues payable at the Kempsey public wharves by vessels taking up berths, shall pay as follows:—

	s.	d.
One hundred tons register or under	5	0
For every additional hundred tons or part of tons	5	0
Vessels not occupying a berth for more than one hour	2	0
For every vessel loading or embarking passengers at the wharf, for every hour or part of half-hour	1	0
For droghers, half the above rates to be charged.

SCHEDULE B.

15. Time allowed to discharge or load at public wharf, from taking up the berth :—

For vessels not exceeding one hundred tons register, 24 hours.

For vessels over one hundred tons, 48 hours.

Sundays not to be included.

SECTION XI.

Free Library

1. The Library shall be known as the "Kempsey Free Library," it shall be under the control of the Borough Council, and shall be managed subject to these By-laws or any other By-laws that may hereafter be duly passed by the said Council, and shall be in a room set apart for that purpose. The Library shall be open to the public daily from 7 o'clock p.m. to 9 o'clock p.m., Sundays, Christmas Days, and Good Fridays excepted.

2. Every person using the Free Library, whether for the purpose of inspection or of ordinary study, shall immediately write his or her name in a book to be called the "Visitors Book," and which it shall be the duty of the Librarian to have constantly placed for that purpose, and no person shall be allowed to use or inspect the Library, without having first complied with this By-law.

3. Any person who shall enter the said Library in a state of intoxication, or who shall use improper language, or indulge in improper behaviour therein, or who, by loud talking or unseemly conduct of any kind, shall disturb or annoy those using the said Library shall be liable to be forcibly ejected therefrom; and it shall be the duty of the Librarian or any member of the Committee of Management who may be cognizant of such conduct so to eject the offender forthwith or to deliver him into the custody of a Police officer to be taken before a Bench of Magistrates to be dealt with, and such offender shall upon conviction of such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds, nor less than ten shillings.

4. Any person who shall, without larcenous intent, remove or attempt to remove from the Library any book or other property whatever belonging to the Library, or in use therein, may be summarily proceeded against, and upon conviction shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

5. Any person, whether wilfully or otherwise, damaging any book, catalogue, record, chart, apparatus, model, specimen, or any other article or thing attached to or in use, or otherwise in the room used for the purposes of the Library, shall, at the discretion of the Committee, be proceeded against summarily, and upon conviction forfeit a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

6. Any person desirous of promoting the objects for which the Free Library has been established may, with the consent of the Council, deposit with the Librarian for further use, reference, or inspection, any book or other publication, chart, apparatus, model, specimen, &c., subject always to such special rules and restriction, as such person shall dictate in writing, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the Librarian, his assistants, and the Committee to respect such dictation faithfully in all its terms and conditions, and to impress the necessity for a strict observance thereof upon all persons visiting the Library.

7. The salary of the Librarian shall be fixed and determined by the Council from time to time and the appointment and removal of the said officer shall rest wholly with such Council. In all matters of routine the Librarian shall be wholly under the direction and control of the Council.

8. The Council shall have power to appoint a Library Committee who may amend such regulations for the internal management of the Library and guidance of the Librarian as circumstances may render necessary or desirable. Such regulations to be approved by the Council and Attorney-General.

9. A copy of these By-laws and all regulations passed, or to be passed thereon, shall be constantly suspended conspicuously in the Library, for the direction and information of the public, and copies shall be provided for circulation generally.

SECTION XII.

By-laws for the regulation and licensing of public carriers, carters, water-drawers, and public vehicles, omnibuses, cars, hackney carriages, cabs, water-carts, drays, carts, or vans, and the drivers or conductors of passenger-carrying vehicles.

1. No vehicle shall ply or be used for hire within Municipality of Kempsey, until and unless the same be duly licensed in the manner hereinafter described.

2. Before any license for plying a vehicle or to drive or conduct the same shall be granted, the party requiring such license shall deliver to the Council Clerk a requisition in the form of Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter A, duly filled up and signed; and, in case of drivers or conductors, shall obtain a certificate from two respectable ratepayers to the effect that the applicant is of good character and competent to act as such driver or conductor, as the case may be.

3. No license shall be granted in respect of any vehicle which, in the opinion of the Mayor or such officer as may be duly appointed for that purpose, is unsafe or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein, nor until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon on a plate or plates affixed thereon outside on the panel of each door of such vehicle or on such other place or places, and in such manner as the Mayor or in his absence two Aldermen may direct.

4. Licenses for proprietors, drivers, and conductors of vehicles shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter B.

5. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be under the common seal of the Municipal Council, and signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Council Clerk, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the 31st day of December next ensuing, and no such license shall include more than one vehicle: Provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor desire, he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be thereby specified by indorsement on the license, signed by the Mayor and countersigned as aforesaid.

6. For every such license there shall be paid to the Municipal Fund, annually the several rates set forth in the Schedule hereunto annexed, and marked with the letter C.

7. No license shall be granted to any person to drive any passenger-carrying vehicle who shall be under the age of seven years, and no license under these By-laws shall be granted unless after seven days' notice.

8. All licenses shall be made out by the Council Clerk, and numbered consecutively.

9. The person in whose name a license shall appear to have been obtained, shall be prima facie deemed to be the owner of the vehicle in respect of which the same shall have been taken out.

10. The Mayor shall, as often as he may deem it necessary, cause an inspection to be made of all or any licensed vehicles, and of the harness, horse, or horses, and if any such vehicle, harness, horse, or horses, shall at any time be found to be unfit for use, the Mayor may cancel the license of such vehicles.

11. The number of the license granted to every omnibus or car, in figures not less than four inches in height, and for every hackney-carriage and cab in figures not less than two inches in height and of proportionate breadth, white upon a ground of black shall be painted outside, on the panel of the door or doors of such vehicle, or on such other part or parts thereof as the Mayor may direct; and such numbers shall be kept legible and undefaced during all the time such vehicles shall ply or be used for hire at the expense of the licensee.

12. The number of the license of every hackney-carriage or cab on a card or plate six inches by three, painted or printed in clear legible figures, and the table fares fixed by the Council shall be affixed at the upper part of the front panel or in such other place or places inside of such carriage or cab as the Mayor may direct, at the expense of the licensee; and such card or plate shall be kept so affixed and legible and undefaced during all the time the carriage or cab shall ply or be used for hire.

15. Carters (plying for hire) of water-carts, drays, carts or vans are to be registered at the Council Chambers, and receive a license upon payment of the rate set forth in Schedule C, hereunto annexed.

16. The name, place of abode, number of license, and the words "licensed cart," dray, or van, as the case may be, are to be painted in letters one inch long upon the right or off side of such cart, dray, or van, at the expense of the licensee.

17. Wherever the word vehicle shall be used in these By-laws, the same shall be understood to apply to either an omnibus, a car, hackney-carriage, or cab; and an omnibus shall be meant to be a vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two or more horses; and a car a vehicle upon two wheels for which an omnibus license has been taken out; and a hackney-carriage shall mean a vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two or more horses; and a cab, a vehicle upon four wheels for which a hackney-carriage license has been taken out; and the word "carters" shall be understood to apply to carts, drays, or vans plying for hire.

18. For every offence against the provisions of these By-laws, the offender shall be liable to and pay a penalty of not more than ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

19. All penalties recovered under any of these By-laws shall be paid to the Municipal Council, to be appropriated towards the general revenue of the Municipality.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS for the regulation and management of the Corporation Baths, Newcomen-street.

1. That the baths shall be known as and styled "The City of Newcastle Corporation Baths."
2. That the said baths shall be open for the use of the public during the following hours, in the months of October, November, December, January, February, and March, on week days, from 5 o'clock a.m. to 11 o'clock p.m., and for the remaining months of the year the baths shall be open daily from 6 o'clock a.m., and close at 10 o'clock p.m., excepting on Sundays throughout the year, when the baths shall be open from 5 o'clock a.m. to 10 o'clock a.m., and from 3 o'clock p.m. to half past 5 o'clock p.m.
3. That the baths and dressing-rooms shall be open for the use of gentlemen from the hour of opening till 11 o'clock a.m., and from 5 o'clock p.m. till 11 o'clock p.m., and none but gentlemen shall be admitted during those hours.
4. That the baths and dressing-rooms shall be open for the use of ladies, from half past 11 o'clock a.m. till 5 o'clock p.m., and none but ladies shall be admitted during those hours.
5. That no person under the influence of intoxicating liquors nor any person of known disreputable character, be permitted to use the baths, and the caretaker shall refuse admittance to such.
6. That no person shall create or place filth or commit a nuisance of any kind within the precincts of the baths, nor deface the walls of the dressing-rooms or woodwork of the baths, by writing or drawing thereon.
7. That no person shall smoke within the baths.
8. That every person who may visit the baths, shall, whilst within the premises, conduct himself or herself in a decent, orderly, and proper manner.
9. That any person wilfully damaging the bath premises and appurtenances thereto shall be liable to prosecution, and will be charged with the costs of repairs.
10. That no person shall use any of the warm baths for a greater period than half an hour at one time, nor shall the swimming bath be occupied more than an hour at any one time.
11. That all dogs found within the precincts of the baths shall be removed, or the owners thereof summoned for a breach of this By-law.

12. That the Council shall have power from time to time to regulate the fees to be paid for the various classes of baths, and to give such instruction as it may consider necessary for the proper internal management of the baths, and may set apart any portion or the whole of the baths for the use of ladies or gentlemen on special days or occasions.

13. That any person offending against any of the provisions of these By-laws shall be liable on conviction to forfeit and pay a penalty for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF PARKES—AMENDED AND ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 6th September, 1887.

The following amended and additional By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Parkes, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the provisions of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

AMENDED AND ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF PARKES.Ordinary Meetings.

1. Unless otherwise ordered, the Council shall meet for the despatch of business on the first and third Mondays in every month, at the hour of 8 p.m., unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on the day following.

The like.

38. No officer shall be appointed until a specification of his duties and the amount of his salary shall be approved of by the Council, nor until one week's notice at least shall have been given in one or more of the local newspapers inviting applications for such appointments; but an officer already in the employment of the Council may, by a two-third vote of the members present, be reappointed without such notice calling for applications.

Notice to Proprietors.

67. Upon complaint being lodged at the Council Chambers, or with the Mayor, that the yards, closets, or drains of any premises is or are a nuisance or offensive, and after inspection such shall be found to be the case, notice shall be given in writing to the proprietor or tenant of such premises to remove or abate such nuisance within forty-eight hours after such notice; and if, after such notice, the nuisance shall not be removed or abated, the proprietor or tenant of the said premises shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Erection of bark buildings.

70. All persons are prohibited from erecting buildings within the town boundary, any portion of which shall be constructed of bark, or other dangerously inflammable material; and any person or persons erecting such building shall forfeit, on conviction of every such offence, a penalty of not more than ten pounds or less than twenty shillings, and such buildings shall be immediately pulled down at the expense of those erecting them. Provided that this By-law shall only be enforced within the now populous portion of the Municipality of Parkes, that is to say, within the following boundaries: Commencing on the west by Bogan-street, on the north by Bushman-street, on the east by Hill-street, and on the south by Robinson-street, including both frontages of each street.

86. No person shall place, expose, or offer for sale, on the pathways or streets, either for private sale or public auction, live or dead stock of any description, vehicles of any sort, goods or produce of any kind, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than twenty shillings.

Additional By-laws.

No person shall make or cause a fire to be made on their premises, in the open air, for the purpose of burning any weeds or rubbish of any kind within the town boundaries, under a penalty of not more than forty shillings and not less than ten shillings.

No person shall make or cause to be made in the open air any fire within the town boundaries, except for domestic purposes, or carrying on trade, and such fires shall not be made by any person so as to endanger their neighbours' property; and no such fire shall be made earlier than 4 o'clock in the morning, and shall be put out not later than 7 o'clock in the evening; and should any complaint be made to the Mayor or Inspector of Nuisances that any such fire is dangerous, the Mayor or Inspector shall inspect the same, and should such fire, in their opinion, be dangerous, they shall cause the same to be immediately quenched. Anyone infringing this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Every person who allows his or her chimney-flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, herein called in common "chimney," to be on fire, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

(L.S.) JOHN A. ROSE,
Mayor.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF PORT MACQUARIE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 22nd May, 1888.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF PORT MACQUARIE—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Port Macquarie, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for regulating the proceedings of the Council, the duties of their officers and servants, for compelling residents to keep their premises clean, and generally for the proper government of the Municipality, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES,

By-LAWS made and passed by the Municipal Council of Port Macquarie, for regulating the proceedings of the Council, the duties of their officers and servants, for compelling residents to keep their premises clean, and generally for the proper government of the Municipality, in accordance with the requirements of "Municipalities Act of 1867."

1. The Council shall meet for the dispatch of business at the hour of 3 p.m. on every alternate Tuesday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday: in the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

2. If the Mayor shall be absent at the expiration of twenty minutes after the time appointed for the holding of any meeting the Aldermen present shall choose a chairman: Provided always that if the Mayor shall afterwards attend such Alderman shall leave the Chair, to be taken by the Mayor.

3. Whenever any meeting shall lapse, or be adjourned for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be recorded by the Council Clerk.

4. The business of each ordinary meeting shall be transacted in the following manner, viz. :—

1. Reading and confirming minutes of previous meeting or meetings.
2. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
3. Correspondence to be read and dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor to be presented and ordered upon.
5. Questions as to matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to.
6. Motions on notice to be dealt with in their respective order.
7. Orders of the day, which shall comprise all business set down for the day by order of any previous meeting or necessarily arising out of the proceedings of a former meeting. The Council may, by resolution, take any particular matter out of the regular order on the business paper.

Power to suspend By-laws.

5. The Council shall have power to suspend, pro tem., one or more of the By-laws: Provided that no such suspension shall be allowed for the purpose of voting money, and that two-thirds of the members present consent.

Postponement of debate on motion.

6. Any debate or order of the day when called on may be postponed to another time to be duly specified: Provided that no discussion be allowed upon such motion for adjournment, and the Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to open the debate on resumption.

Notices of Motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until matter disposed of.

7. All notices of motion, &c., for consideration at general meetings, shall be delivered to the Council Clerk at least four days before such meeting, in writing, and shall be numbered by him as received and entered on the business paper according to their number, and each notice shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, &c., shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

Motions to be in writing and seconded.

8. All resolutions proposed and all amendments shall be submitted in writing, and no motion or amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions not to be withdrawn.

9. No motion of which notice has been given shall be withdrawn if any Alderman object: and if any Alderman who has given notice of motion fail or decline to move it, the Mayor or any other Alderman may move the same.

Questions may be put.

10. No question shall be put to the Mayor when in Council requiring the production of papers, or which cannot be replied to without reference to books or papers, unless it twenty-four hours notice in writing shall have been given thereof to the Council Clerk.

Amendments and order of.

11. Any number of amendments may be proposed on a motion before the Council, and when more than one amendment is moved and seconded the question shall first be put on the last amendment, and then on the next to the last, and so on in the reverse order in which they are moved, except when such motion or amendment shall relate to the fixing of salaries, rates, or other matters of finance, in which case the lowest sum shall be put first, then the next to the lowest, and so on to the highest.

Motions for adjournment.

12. Any motion for adjournment shall be put immediately without discussion. If such motion be negatived, the business then under consideration or the next in order on the business-paper shall be discussed before any notice for adjournment may be moved.

Divisions.

13. Any Alderman may call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative, and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded, and any Alderman present when a division is called for who shall not vote (not being disabled by law for so doing) shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of ten shillings.

Motions that would rescind.

14. No motion the effect of which, if carried, would be to rescind any resolution passed by the Council during the current Municipal year shall be entertained unless at a special meeting of the Council called for that purpose: and no such motion, if negatived by the Council at such special meeting, shall be again entertained during the same Municipal year.

Aldermen not to speak more than ten minutes.

15. No Alderman shall speak twice on any motion or amendment without the consent of the Council, except when in committee or in explanation where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood. The mover of every question shall have the right to reply: Provided that no Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer period than ten minutes.

To stand when speaking.

16. Every Alderman shall stand when speaking, unless prevented by bodily infirmity, and shall address the Chair.

Privilege of Mayor or Chairman.

17. The Mayor or Chairman shall have the same privilege as any other Alderman in making or seconding a motion, and have the right of speaking on any subject or amendment introduced. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking, but shall be considered as still presiding.

Offensive personal statements.

18. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, nor make personal reflections on members, nor impute motives: and all personal reflections shall be considered highly disorderly, and any member so offending shall be required by the Mayor or Chairman to withdraw the expression, and to make a satisfactory apology to the Council or committee thereof.

Committee of the Council.

19. The rules of the Council shall be observed in Committee of the Whole, except the rule as to standing and that limiting the number of times of speaking. It shall be competent for any Alderman to move that any subject, matter, motion, or order of the day be considered in committee; the Council, as may thereupon be decided, may go into committee or otherwise.

Points of order.

20. No Alderman when discussing any matter shall be interrupted, unless by a call to order, when he shall sit down; the Alderman calling him to order shall then be heard, and the question of order decided before the debate or any other business is resumed.

Speaking.

21. Any Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon, but no Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he had seconded the same shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Petitions.

22. Any Alderman presenting a petition shall satisfy himself that the wording thereof is respectful and in order. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the persons signing the same; and no debate shall take place upon the presentation of a petition until notice shall have been given in the usual manner.

Committees.

23. Besides such special Committees as may from time to time be found necessary there shall be two standing Committees, namely, a Finance and an Improvement Committee.

Reports from Committees.

24. All reports upon standing Committees to be presented in writing and signed by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction by a minute in writing.

Works and tenders.

25. Works undertaken by the Council, and estimated to cost over five pounds, to be let by tender. Estimates of the cost of all works determined upon shall be laid before the Council, on the report of the Works Committee, before the contract is entered upon for such works.

Urgent works may be ordered.

26. The Mayor, or in his absence any two Aldermen of the Works Committee, may order any sum not exceeding five pounds to be expended in repairing any public work under the control of the Council which may be suddenly damaged, and such order shall be reported at the next meeting of Council.

Payment, how made.

27. No money shall be paid by the Council until the account for the same shall have been examined by the Finance Committee and approved of by the Council.

Common Seal, &c.

28. All charters, deeds, muniments, and records of the Municipality shall be kept in the office thereof, in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the contract shall order otherwise. All papers, deeds, contracts, and agreements requiring to be sealed with the common seal shall be witnessed by the Mayor and the Council Clerk. For the purpose of authenticating documents the common seal may be attached thereto, witnessed by the Mayor and the Council Clerk, for which a fee of five shillings shall be paid.

Rates to be paid.

29. The rates of the Municipality shall be collected half-yearly, and shall be due and payable on such days as the Council shall determine at the time of making the assessment, or on such other days as the Council may direct. All persons liable to pay rates or assessments shall pay the same to the Council Clerk, or such other officer as may be appointed for that purpose, at the Municipal Council Chambers, during office hours, on such days as may from time to time be appointed by the Council.

Council Clerk.

30. The Council Clerk shall be required to enter into an approved bond into double the amount of his salary for the faithful performance of his duties.

Bailliff.

31. The bailliff shall make all levies and distress under warrant signed by the Mayor in the form of Schedule marked A hereunto annexed, and shall be paid for every such entry and levy made under these By-laws the fees as per Schedule B annexed herewith. He shall enter into a bond for the due performance of his duties.

Distress and inventory.

32. At the time of making a distress the bailliff shall make out a written inventory in the form of the Schedule hereto annexed and marked C, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person for his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress has been made,

Preventing and extinguishing fires.

Fire or combustible materials, &c.

33. Every person who shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, or workshop, outhouses, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger any buildings, shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than ten pounds; and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or inflammable materials. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or inflammable materials, to remain as aforesaid for a period of twelve hours after any such conviction shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Lighting bonfires.

34. Any person who shall light any bonfire, tar-barrel, or fireworks upon or within twenty yards, or shall discharge any firearms within sixty yards, of any public or private street, or any public place, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Setting on fire chimney-flues.

35. Every person who shall wilfully set, or causes to be set, on fire any chimney-flue, smoke-vent, or stove pipe, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Chimney catching fire by neglect.

36. If any chimney catch fire through the wilful neglect of any person occupying or using any premises in which such chimney is situated he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings: Provided always that such forfeiture shall not be enforced if such person prove to the satisfaction of the Justices before whom the case is heard that such fire was in no wise owing to the neglect or carelessness, whether with respect to cleansing such chimney or otherwise, of himself or his servant.

Water-carts, licensing of.

37. The Council shall from time to time license to ply within the Municipality such carts for the carrying and sale of water and extinguishing fires as shall on inspection be found fit for that purpose. Every such cart or vessel for the holding of water for the purposes aforesaid shall be capable of containing not less than fifty gallons, and shall have the name of the owner and the words "Licensed water-cart" painted on such cart in legible letters.

Vehicles, &c., plying for hire to be licensed.

38. All water-carters, firewood-carters, and owners of vehicles plying or carrying passengers, goods, or other materials for hire, shall be licensed by the Council, and the owners shall have their names painted in legible letters, with the word "Licensed," on some conspicuous part of such vehicles respectively. The license fee shall be at the rate of five shillings per wheel per annum. And all such licenses shall be issued for a period of twelve months, terminable on the 30th day of June in each year. And every owner who shall omit or fail to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than ten shillings.

Penalty for hawking or carrying water without a license.

39. Any person hawking or carrying water for sale or hire within the Municipality, otherwise than in a licensed water-cart as aforesaid, shall, upon conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound.

Streets and public places, public health, and decency, &c.

New roads to be reported on.

40. No new public road, street, way, reserve, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or reserve shall have been examined by the Committee for Works, and reported upon to the Council by such Committee.

Plans of proposed new road to be delivered to the Council.

41. When any proprietor or proprietors of land within the said Municipality shall open any road, street, or way, or lay out any park or other place for public use or recreation, through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, way, reserve, or other place, he or they shall furnish the Council with a plan or plans, signed by himself or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, way, reserve, or other place as aforesaid.

Dedications of new roads, &c.

42. If the Council determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans so signed as aforesaid shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council; and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument dedicating such road, way, reserve, or other place, to public use or recreation as aforesaid, as may be considered necessary by the Committee for Works; and such instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Committee for Works to fix street levels.

43. The Committee for Works, or any officer or person acting under the supervision of such Committee, shall, subject to such orders as shall from time to time be made by the Council in that behalf, fix and lay out the levels of all public streets, roads, and ways within the Municipality, and the carriage and foot-ways thereof. And it shall be the duty of such Committee, officer, or person, to place posts at the corners of intersections of any such public roads and streets wherever the same may be considered necessary or desirable by the Council. Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, or way, until the same shall have been submitted to and adopted by the Council, as hereinafter directed. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, or way, as aforesaid, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section showing the proposed cutting to be exhibited at the Council Chambers for seven days, for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality that such plan is so open to inspection; and no objections thereto shall be the Council, unless made within twenty-one days after such notice shall have been given at a subsequent meeting of the Council.

The said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption, and countersigned by the Town Clerk; and such plan and section so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without permission.

43½. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove or cause to be removed any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material, or any road scrapings or sweepings, in or from any part of the carriage or foot ways of any street, or any other public place within the said Municipality without leave first had and obtained for that purpose from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or foot way shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound. And any person who shall have or make any cellar, or any opening, door, or window, in or beneath the surface of the footway, or any street or public place within the said Municipality without the consent of the Council, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds over and above the expense of filling up, remedying, or removing such cellar, opening, door, or window.

Holes to be enclosed.

44. Any person or persons who shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave, or cause to be left, any hole adjoining or near to any street or public place within the said Municipality for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building, and shall not forthwith enclose the same and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner, to the satisfaction of the Committee of Works of the said Municipality, or shall keep up or cause to be kept up and continued any such enclosure for any time which shall be longer than shall be absolutely necessary in the opinion of said Committee, and shall not place lights upon each side of the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise, during the continued existence of such enclosure, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not being less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds.

Open spaces and steps adjoining footways to be enclosed, under a penalty.

45. Every owner or occupier of any house, building, or premises, or land within the said Municipality having any entrance, area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building lot, waterhole, or excavated space adjoining the footway of any street or public place in such Municipality, shall protect and guard the same by good and sufficient rails, fences, or other enclosures, to be previously approved of by the Works Committee or any officer whose special duty it shall be to attend to such works, so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land having any steps adjoining the footway of any such street or public place shall in like manner protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosure, so as to prevent the like danger to persons passing and repassing; and on failure thereof, every such owner or occupier shall, as often as he or she shall be convicted of such offence, forfeit and pay a sum not being less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds; and every such owner or occupier as aforesaid who shall fail to erect such fences or other enclosures as aforesaid, after fourteen days' notice from the Council or any duly qualified officer, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Penalty for not covering over wells.

46. Every person who shall have a well or excavation situated between his or her dwelling-house or the appurtenances thereof, and every road, street, or footway within the limits of the said Municipality shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any person having such well as aforesaid shall fail to cover over and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for any such person at his or her usual or last-known place of abode, or on the said premises, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum of ten shillings, and for every day after such notice that such well shall remain so uncovered, contrary to the provisions hereinbefore made and provided, such person shall be deemed guilty of a separate offence against this By-law.

Temporary stoppage to traffic for repairs.

47. The Committee for Works, or any officer or person acting under the authority of such committee of the Council, may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

48. Any person who shall haul or draw timber, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of any street or public place within the said Municipality, any timber, stone, or other thing otherwise than upon wheeled vehicles or barrows, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon any wheeled vehicle or barrow, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place, to the injury thereof, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum of not more than forty shillings nor less than five shillings over and above the damage occasioned thereby.

Driving on footpaths, and throwing filth thereon.

49. Any person who shall throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing in or upon the carriage-way or footway of any street or public place in the said Municipality, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal in or so near to any such street or public place as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over or be on any or either of any such carriage or foot way, or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any of the said footways of any such street or public place, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheelbarrow, handbarrow, or truck, or any hogshead, cask, or barrel, or shall wilfully lead, drive, or ride any horse, ass, mule, or other beast upon any such footway, shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than five shillings; for the second offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound for each such offence.

Lights to be placed on vehicles.

50. Every person driving any vehicles within the Municipal District between sunset and sunrise shall carry a light on such vehicle in a conspicuous place; anyone offending against this by-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Destroying kerbstone, gutters, pathways, &c.

51. No driver, carter, or other person shall wilfully or negligently do or suffer or cause to be done any damage or injury to the kerbstones, gutters, or pathways of any street or roadway; and no person shall be at liberty to drive a wheeled vehicle of any kind, or ride or drive, lead any horse or horses or any animals on the pathways within the Municipal District; and every person so offending shall for such offence forfeit and pay a fine or sum not exceeding one pound nor less than five shillings in excess of any damages done.

Licensing timber-carriages.

52. No timber carriage or vehicle used for that purpose, or dray attached as a substitute for the conveyance of timber or other material, will be allowed to ply or work within or through the Municipal District unless the same be licensed. This clause only to apply to timber-carriages and other vehicles attached as aforesaid, working for hire or drawing timber to railway station or for shipment. The owners of any such timber-carriage as aforesaid shall have their names painted in legible letters with the word "licensed" on some conspicuous part of such timber-carriage respectively. The license fee shall be at the rate of ten shillings per wheel per annum, and all such licenses shall be issued for a period of three months, terminable on the last day of each quarter in each year. And every owner who shall omit or fail to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

53. No timber-carriage or truck will be allowed to ply or work at such time as the Council shall think the roads unfit for traffic, and the Council Clerk shall give notice to owners of such timber-carriages to the effect that they must cease work for a specified time not longer than seven days; and every owner who shall fail to comply with this By-law shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings for each offence.

Placing goods, carriages, &c., on the footways—not removing the same when required—replacing same after removal—awnings to be excepted.

54. Any person who shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall, board, chopping-block, showboard (on hinge or otherwise), basketwares, merchandise, casks, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or shall cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed, any pipe, barrel, cask, or vessel in or upon or over any carriage or foot-way in any street or public place within the said Municipality, or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed, any coach, cart, waggon, dray, wheelbarrow, handbarrow, sledge, truck, or other carriage upon any such carriage-way, except for the necessary time of loading and unloading such cart, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage, or taking up or setting down any fare, or waiting for passengers, when actually hired, or harnessing or unharnessing the horses or other animals from such coach, cart, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage; or if any person who shall set or place, or cause to be set or placed, in or upon or over any such carriage or foot way, any timber, stone, bricks, lime, or other material or things, for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as herein directed), or any other matter or things whatsoever; or shall hang out or expose or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or other buildings or premises, or any other matter or thing, from and on the outside of the front or any other part of any house or other buildings or premises, over or next unto any such street or public place, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Inspector of Nuisances, or other proper officer of the Council, shall, upon conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than five shillings; for the second offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than ten shillings; and for the third and every subsequent offence, a sum not exceeding ten pounds, nor less than one pound: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing an awning in front of his or her shop or house in such a manner as that such awning shall be at least seven feet high above the height of the footway, and that the posts be placed close to the kerbstone or outer edge of such footway, and a plan of such awning submitted to the Council prior to its erection, and approval of by said Council or any officer duly appointed for the purpose.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

55. If the driver of any waggon, cart, or dray, of any kind, shall ride upon any such carriage in any street as aforesaid, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse, or driver or guider with reins only excepted); or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same, or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach or other carriage whatsoever, meeting any other carriage shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care, upon such street, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every driver or person so offending shall upon conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF SILVERTON—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 29th August, 1887.

MUNICIPALITY OF SILVERTON—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Silverton, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

By-LAWS made and passed by the Municipal Council of Silverton, for regulating the proceedings of the Council, the duties of officers and servants; for compelling residents to keep their premises clean; and generally for the proper government of the Municipality.

PART I.

Place and time of meeting.

1. The Council shall meet at "Tantrania Hotel," or at such other place as a majority of the Council shall from time to time appoint, for the dispatch of business, at 8 p.m. on every alternate Monday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor shall appoint; provided that three days notice of such alteration shall be given.

Chairman.

2. If the Mayor shall be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for the holding of any meeting, the Aldermen present shall choose a chairman: Provided always that if the Mayor shall afterwards attend, such Alderman shall leave the chair to be taken by the Mayor.

Want of quorum.

3. Whenever any meeting shall lapse, or be adjourned for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be recorded by the Council Clerk.

Mode of conducting business.

4. The business of each ordinary meeting shall be conducted in the following manner, viz. :—

1. Reading and confirming minutes of previous meeting or meetings.
2. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
3. Correspondence to be read and dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor to be presented and ordered upon.
5. Questions as to matters under the jurisdiction, or within the official cognizance of the Council, to be put and replied to.

6. Motions on notice to be dealt with in their respective order.

7. Orders of the day which shall comprise all business set down for the day by order of any previous meeting, or necessarily arising out of the proceedings of a former meeting.

The Council may, by resolution, take any particular matter out of the regular order on the business paper.

Suspension of By-laws.

5. The Council shall have power to suspend pro tem. one or more of the By-laws: Provided that no such suspension shall be allowed for the purpose of voting money, and that two-thirds of the members present shall consent.

Postponement of debate on motion.

6. Any debate or order of the day when called on, may be postponed to another time to be duly specified: Provided that no discussion shall be allowed upon such motion for adjournment, and the Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to open the debate on resumption.

Motions to be in writing.

7. All resolutions proposed and all amendments shall be submitted in writing, and no motion or amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions not to be withdrawn.

8. No motion of which notice has been given shall be withdrawn if any Alderman object; and if any Alderman who has given notice of motion fail or decline to move it, the Mayor, or any other Alderman may move the same.

Questions.

9. No questions shall be put to the Mayor when in Council, requiring the production of papers, or which cannot be replied to without reference to books or papers, unless twenty-four hours' notice in writing shall have been given thereof to the Council Clerk.

Amendments and order of.

10. When any motion of Council shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman may move an amendment thereon, and if an amendment be carried, the questions as amended thereby becomes itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved. If any amendment shall be negatived, then a further amendment may be moved to the question which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on, provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournments.

11. Any motion for an adjournment shall be put immediately without discussion. If such motion be negatived, the business then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper shall be discussed before any notice for adjournment may be moved.

Divisions.

12. Any Alderman may call for a division. In such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative, and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded, and any Alderman present when a division is called for who shall not vote (not being disabled by law for so doing) shall be liable for every such offence, to a penalty of ten shillings.

Motions that would rescind.

13. No motion the effect of which, if carried, would be to rescind any resolution passed by the Council during the current municipal year, shall be entertained unless at a special meeting of the Council called for that purpose, and no such motion, if negatived by the Council at such special meeting shall be again entertained during the same municipal year.

Aldermen not to speak more than ten minutes.

14. No Alderman shall speak twice on any motion or amendment except when in committee, or in explanation where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood. The mover of every question shall have the right of reply, provided that no Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer period than ten minutes without the consent of the Council.

To stand when speaking.

15. Every Alderman shall stand when speaking and shall address the Chair.

Offensive personal statements.

16. No Alderman shall make offensive personal reflections upon or impute discreditable motives to any other Alderman. Any Alderman so offending shall immediately, upon being thereto required by the Mayor or presiding Alderman, withdraw the offensive expressions and retract any such imputation of motive, and make an apology satisfactory to the Council. Any Alderman declining so to apologise and to withdraw the offensive expressions and retract any such imputation of motive shall be liable, on conviction, to a fine or penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds for the first offence, and on a second conviction for a like offence he shall be liable to a fine or penalty of not less than two pounds. Any Alderman may move without notice that the offensive words be taken down, and when this has been done it shall be prima facie evidence of such words having been used.

Committee of Council.

17. The rules of the Council shall be observed in Committee of the Whole, except the rule as to standing, and that limiting the number of times of speaking. It shall be competent for any Alderman to move that any subject, matter, motion, or order of the day be considered in Committee, and should the Council so decide that such business be considered in Committee, the Council as may thereupon be decided, may go into Committee or otherwise.

Points of Order.

18. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any Alderman being out of order, and every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor or Chairman thereupon shall be conclusive.

Speaking.

19. Any Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon, but no Alderman, who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Petitions.

20. Any Alderman presenting a petition shall satisfy himself that the wording thereof is respectful and in order. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the persons signing the same, and no debate shall take place upon the presentation of a petition until notice has been given in the usual manner.

Committees.

21. There shall be three Standing Committees: the Finance, Improvement of Works, and By-law Committees, and each such Committee shall consist of three Aldermen, and may be called together at any time by direction of any one member of such Committee.

Reports.

22. All reports from Standing Committees to be presented in writing, and signed by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within the jurisdiction by a minute in writing.

Work and Tenders.

23. Works undertaken by the Council and estimated to cost over five pounds, to be let by tender; estimates of the cost of all works determined upon, shall be laid before the Council by the Council Surveyor, or on report of the Works Committee, before the contract is entered into for such works.

Urgent Works.

24. The Mayor, or in his absence, any two Aldermen may order any sum not exceeding twenty pounds to be expended in repairing any public work under the control of the Council, which may suddenly be damaged, and such order shall be reported at the next meeting of the Council.

Payments—How made.

25. No money shall be paid by the Council until the account for the same shall have been examined by the Finance Committee, and approved of by the Council.

Common seal, &c.

26. All charters, deeds, muniments, and records of the Municipality shall be kept in the office thereof in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the Council shall otherwise order. All papers, deeds, contracts, and agreements requiring to be sealed with the common seal, shall be witnessed by the Mayor and the Council Clerk. For the purpose of authenticating documents, the common seal may be attached thereto, witnessed by the Mayor and Council Clerk, for which a fee of five shillings shall be paid.

Rates to be paid.

27. The rates of the Municipality shall be collected yearly, and shall be due and payable on such days as the Council shall determine at the time of making the assessment or in such other way as the Council may direct. All persons liable to pay rates or assessments shall pay same to the Council Clerk, or such officer as may be appointed for that purpose at the Municipal Council Chambers during office hours, on such days as may from time to time be appointed by the Council.

Bailiff.

28. The bailiff shall be appointed by the Council, and shall give such surety, if required, for the faithful discharge of his duties as the Council may determine upon.

29. The bailiff shall make all levies and distress under warrant, signed by the Mayor, in the form of Schedule marked A hereunto annexed, and shall be paid for every such entry and levy made under the By-laws and fees as per Schedule B annexed herewith.

Distress and inventory.

30. At the time of making a distress, the bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of the Schedule hereto annexed and marked C, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person for his or her behalf, resident at the place where the distress has been made.

PART II.

Streets and Public Places.

New streets to be approved of.

31. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council, until such road, street, way, park, or other place, shall have been examined by the Improvement Committee, and reported upon to the Council by such Committee.

Plans to be furnished.

32. Whenever any proprietor or proprietors of land within the Municipality shall open any road, street, or way, or lay out any park or other place for public use or recreation through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, way, park, or other place, he or they shall furnish the Council with a plan or plans signed by himself or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, way, park, or other place as aforesaid.

Records to be kept.

33. If the Council shall determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans so signed as aforesaid shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council, and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument dedicating such road, way, park, or other place to public use or recreation as aforesaid as may be considered necessary by the Committee for Works. And such further instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Council Surveyor to lay out streets and levels.

34. The Surveyor of the Municipality or other officer or person duly authorised by the Council in that behalf, shall be the proper officer for marking out, and shall fix, mark, and lay out when and where necessary in the opinion of the Council or Improvement Committee, the levels of all public roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares, and the carriage and footways thereof which now are or shall hereafter be under or subject to the control, construction, care, or management of the Council; and it shall be the duty of such Surveyor or officer to place posts at corners or intersections of such streets, roads, lanes, and thoroughfares, whenever the same may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Council: Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, lane, thoroughfare, or public place, until same shall have been submitted to and adopted by the Council as herein-after specified.

Alteration of level.

35. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, or way as aforesaid, the Council shall cause a plan and section, showing the proposed alterations to be exhibited at the Council Chambers for fourteen days, for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify, by advertisements in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality, that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council, the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor, or Chairman, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

Persons damaging roads, &c.

36. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material, in or from any part of the carriage or footway of any street or other public place within the Municipality without leave first had and obtained from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or footway, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Cellars or openings.

37. Any person who shall make any cellar or any opening, door, or window in or beneath the surface or the footway of any street or public place within the said Municipality shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds over and above the expense of filling up, remedying, or removing such cellar, opening, door, or window.

Hoardings.

38. Any person or persons who shall dig, or make or cause to be made, or dug, any hole, or leave or cause to be left, any hole adjoining or near any street or public place within the said municipality, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations of any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building, and shall not forthwith enclose same, and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner, to the satisfaction of the Committee of Works of the said Municipality, or shall keep up, or cause to be kept up and continued, any such enclosure for any time which shall be longer than shall be absolutely necessary in the opinion of the said Committee, and shall not place lights upon each side of the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not being less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds.

Vacant lots, waterholes, &c., to be enclosed.

39. Every owner or occupier of any house, building, premises, or land within the said municipality, having any entrance, area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building, lot, waterhole, or excavated space adjoining the footway of any street or public place in such Municipality, shall protect and guard the same by good and sufficient rails, fences, or other enclosure, so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing, and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land having steps adjoining the footway of any such street or public places shall, in a like manner, protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosures, so as to prevent the like danger to persons passing and repassing, and on failure thereof every such owner or occupier shall, as often as he shall be convicted of such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not being less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings. And every such owner or occupier as aforesaid who shall fail to erect such rails, fences, or other enclosures as aforesaid, within seven days after any such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Wells to be covered.

40. Every person who shall have a well situated between his or her dwelling-place or the appurtenances thereof, and any road, street, or foot-way within the limits of the said municipality, or at the side of, or in any yard or place open or exposed to such road, street, or foot-way, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any persons having such well as aforesaid, shall fail to cover and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for such person at his or her usual or last-known place of abode, or on the said premises, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings; and for every day after such notice that such well shall remain open or uncovered, contrary to the provisions hereof, such person shall be deemed guilty of a separate offence against this By-law.

Temporary stoppage of traffic.

41. The Committee of Works, or any officer or person acting under the authority of such Committee may, at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same or for any other purpose; and the person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Hauling or dragging over streets.

42. Any person who shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled and drawn, upon any part of any street or public place within the said municipality, any timber, stone, or other thing otherwise than upon wheeled vehicles or barrows, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing, which shall be carried principally or in any part upon any wheeled vehicle or barrow, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place to the injury thereof; or to hang over any part of such vehicle or barrow so as to occupy or obstruct the street beyond the breadth of the said vehicle or barrow, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum of not more than forty shillings nor less than five shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby.

Driving, &c., over foot-ways.

43. Any person who shall run, roll, drive, draw, or place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any foot-way of any street or public place in the Municipality of Silvertown, any waggon, cart, dray, velocipede, or other carriage (excepting perambulators, which may be drawn thereon) or any wheel, wheelbarrow, handcart, or truck, or any hogshead, cask, or barrel, or other article or thing, or shall lead, ride, or drive any horse, ass, mule, horned or other cattle, upon any of the foot-ways aforesaid; then, and in every such case, every person so offending shall upon conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not less than five shillings, and not more than five pounds.

Obstructing traffic.

44. Any person congregating with others in any street or foot-way within the Municipality of Silvertown, so as to obstruct the free passage and traffic through, along, or upon the same, who shall refuse or neglect to move on so as to cease from and discontinue such obstruction when requested to do so by any police constable or officer, or by an inspector or other officer of the Council, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds.

45. Any person who shall continue to occupy with any horse or other animal, or any carriage, coach, omnibus, dray, cart, truck or other vehicle, or with goods, wares, merchandise, boxes, cases, or other articles any street or foot-way within the said Municipality, after he shall have been required by any Inspector of Nuisances, or Constable, or other officer of the Council to remove the same, or who shall replace the same after having been required to remove the same, shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Encroachments.

46. Whenever any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare has been marked out in manner herein provided, no house, shop, fence or other structure shall be allowed, except as hereinafter mentioned to project or encroach on any part thereof, and it shall not be lawful for any person, unless for any temporary or other purpose permitted by the Council, to erect or put up any building, erection, obstruction, fence or enclosure or make any excavation or hole, on, under or near such road, street, lane or thoroughfare unless due notice of same shall have been given to the Council at least forty-eight hours before any such building, erection, obstruction, fence or enclosure, excavation, or hole as aforesaid, shall be commenced to be erected, or put up, or made, and the assent of the Council first obtained. Any person or persons offending against this By-law shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Balcony and verandahs

47. It shall not be lawful for any awning, verandah, portico, coping, balcony, parapet, overhanging eaves, cornice windows, string-course, dressing, or other erection or construction of any kind to project beyond the alignment of any street, road or thoroughfare, except with the consent of the Council first obtained, under a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Encroachments

48. The Surveyor or other officer of the Council, may at any time, on the order of the Council, give seven days' notice, in writing, directing the removal of any building, fence, sign-board, obstruction, encroachment, or erection of any kind, in and upon any reserve road, street, lane, foot way, thoroughfare, or place under the charge of the Council, and such notice shall be served either personally or at the usual or last-known place of abode of the person to whom such erection, obstruction, or encroachment belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected, and shall state that in the event of such notice not being complied with within ten days the work will be done at the risk and expense of the person served with such notice. And in case where, after service of notice as aforesaid, the person served shall not comply therewith, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its officer, and the cost thereof to be recovered from the person neglecting to comply with such notice shall in addition to the cost of removal be liable to a penalty of not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound, and in case of every successive offence the penalty shall not be less than five pounds.

49. The provisions, remedies, and penalties, contained in the last two By-laws shall apply in all cases of obstruction, injuries, or encroachments, by excavating under, digging, or taking away any portion of any reserve, road, fence, street, lane, foot-way, thoroughfare or place within the Municipality, or under the charge of the Council.

50. Any person injuring or defacing any public property within the Municipality shall forfeit and pay a sum of not exceeding five pounds.

Fires

51. No person shall make or permit to be made within the town boundary any fires in the open air, except in properly constructed fire-places or furnaces, under a penalty of not exceeding five pounds; and any person throwing hot ashes or live coals adjacent to any building shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

Sweeping Rubbish

52. Any person sweeping or throwing refuse of any kind into the gutter, path ways, road-ways, reserves, or any other place other than those set apart by the Council for that purpose, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds.

Drains in foot paths

53. No surface drains shall be made in any foot path, nor any pipes laid under or across the same, without the authority of the Council, and no such pipe or drain shall be used for the discharge into any street or road way of any offensive liquid or matter of any kind whatsoever; and any person who shall offend against this By law, or any owner, occupier, or tenant from whose premises such, offensive matter, slops, or filth shall flow over or on to any foot way, water course or street, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Natural Water-course

54. Any person who shall close or intercept, or keep closed or intercepted, any natural watercourse, by building or otherwise, shall provide another outlet for the surface water with pipes or sewers of a size and in a manner to be approved of by the Council, and any person closing or intercepting any such water-course and failing to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds, and each day that such watercourse shall be closed or intercepted shall be a new offence.

Water from roofs

55. Every owner or occupier of any dwelling-house, shop, or other building who shall permit rain water to fall down from any roof, spout, balcony, or other projection upon or over any street, road, lane, or foot way, or shall cause or permit any such roof or rain-water to be discharged by any pipe upon any street, road, lane, or foot way, shall, if such nuisance be not abated within seven days after written notice to abate the same, shall have been given by the Council or its officer, forfeit and pay for every such offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds. Provided that any tenant on such premises who shall erect any spouting or pipe in accordance with any such notice, may deduct the cost thereof from the rent of the said premises.

Planting trees

56. The Council shall have power to, or owners of property may subject to approval of Council, plant trees, shrubs, and plants in the streets and public ways of the Municipality, and any person wilfully injuring or destroying any of such trees or any railing, guard, or thing protecting the same, shall on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound, in addition to the value of the trees, railing, fence, or thing so injured.

Trees not to be damaged

57. Any person who shall wilfully and without the authority of the Council cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood, whether the same be indigenous or otherwise, growing in or upon any street, road, or lands under the jurisdiction and management of the Council, shall forfeit any sum not less than one pound.

Offal, ashes, &c, in road way

58. Any person who shall throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animals, blood, or other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing, in or upon the carriage-way or foot-way of any street or other public place in the said Municipality, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for the first offence, a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings; for second offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and for a third and every subsequent offence, a sum not exceeding ten pounds, nor less than one pound for each such offence.

Unlawful driving

59. Any person who shall ride or drive through, or upon any street or public place within the said Municipality so negligently, carelessly, or furiously, that the safety of any other person shall be endangered, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Hedges, &c, to be trimmed

60. Any person refusing or neglecting to comply with any order or notice from any officer of the Council to cut back or trim any hedge, tree, plant, or shrub, projecting on to or over any foot-way or street within the Municipality, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a sum of not less than five shillings, nor more than two pounds.

Crossings over foot ways

61. Crossings over foot-ways within the Municipality may be formed by permission of the Council, and subject to the approval, and as the Surveyor may direct. And any person forming a crossing over any foot-way within the Municipality without the permission or without the approval of the Council's Surveyor, or in any way contrary to the foregoing provisions, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not less than five shillings nor more than ten pounds.

Houses of ill fame

62. Any person acting as the proprietor or occupier or having the chief control or management of any bawdy-house, brothel, or house of ill-fame, or knowingly letting any house for the purpose of being used as a bawdy-house, brothel, or house of ill-fame, or knowingly and wilfully continuing as a tenant any person who shall keep any bawdy-house, brothel, or house of ill-fame, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a fine not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

PART III.

Sanitary Matters

Noisome or offensive trade

63. No person shall carry on any noisome or offensive trade within the said Municipality so as to injure or be a nuisance as hereinafter stated to the inhabitants thereof.

64. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which or in consequence of, or in connection therewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed, or carried on, any gas, vapour, effluvia, liquid, or any large quantity of smoke shall be evolved or discharged, which gas, vapour, effluvia, liquid, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the Municipality, shall be considered a noisome and offensive trade within the meaning of these By-laws.

Commencing noisome or offensive trades

65. Whenever it shall appear to the Council or its officers that any manufacture, trade, or calling, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove noisome and offensive, notice of same shall be served upon the owner or occupier of such premises or manufactory, and shall require the owners or agents thereof not to commence or enter upon the same, and the Council shall take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming noisome or offensive within the meaning of the By-laws, to any person resident within the limits of the said Municipality, and any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so that the same be in any way noisome or offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum of not less than five pounds.

Health of public.

66. If upon the certificate of any duly qualified medical practitioner it appears to the Council that any house, or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, within the limits of the Municipality, is in such a filthy or unwholesome condition that the health of any person is or may be liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and that the whitewashing, cleansing, purifying, or fumigating of any house, or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith would tend to prevent or check infectious or contagious diseases, the said Council shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house, or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to whitewash, cleanse, purify, or fumigate the same as the case may require, and if the person to whom the notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within the time specified in the said notice, he or she shall be liable to a penalty of not less than forty shillings: Provided that each day during which such house shall, after such notice as aforesaid, remain uncleaned or unfumigated, shall be a separate offence.

Inspection of premises.

67. It shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any officer appointed by the Council, at any time to visit and inspect any butchers, slaughterhouse, shambles, shops, boiling-down establishments, breweries, or places of a like nature, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing of the premises as to the said officer may seem needful; and any occupier of any such premises as aforesaid who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within seven days after so being directed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one pound.

Dead animals.

68. If any animal shall die in any part of the said Municipality, and the owner of such animal, or the occupier of the place or property where such animal may have died, or should any animal die on any lands under the care, control, or jurisdiction of the Council, the owner of such animal shall, on notice being served upon him, remove the carcass of such animal to the manure depôt, or shall cause the same to be destroyed by burning, and should the owner of such animal not be found, the Council shall, by its servants or workmen, destroy or remove the carcass, the costs and charges thereof to be recovered from the owner in the same way as for any ordinary debt.

Pigs.

69. On and after the date of this By-law becoming law, it shall not be lawful for any person to keep any kind of pig or swine within a radius of sixty chains from the Post Office.

Slaughter-houses.

70. The Government Inspector of slaughter-houses and of cattle, and of all animals intended for slaughter, shall be the inspector of slaughter-houses situated within the Municipality, and every such inspector shall from time to time enter into and examine all cattle and other animals intended for slaughter, and shall examine the melts or spleens and lungs and carcasses of all animals slaughtered, and the owner of all animals slaughtered, intended for human food, shall keep the melts or spleens and lungs of all animals so slaughtered, for a period of six hours after the animals have been slaughtered, unless in the meantime the inspector shall have examined the same; and any such owner or occupier as aforesaid, who shall neglect or refuse to do so, shall forfeit and pay a penalty not less than forty shillings.

Slaughtering diseased cattle.

71. If the owner or occupier of any such slaughter-house shall knowingly cause, permit, or suffer any animal infected with any disease affecting the melt or spleen, or lungs, to be slaughtered in any such slaughter-house, or if after the slaughter of any animal it shall be found to be diseased, and such owner or occupier, as soon as the animal is inspected and condemned, shall not immediately thereupon cause the entire carcass to be destroyed by fire in the presence of the inspector, such owner or occupier shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty pounds, nor less than two pounds.

Offal, &c., to be removed.

72. The blood, offal, and filth of all such animals as may be slaughtered shall be removed to such place as may be appointed by the Council at least once in twelve hours, and any owner or occupier of any slaughter-house who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to comply with this By-law, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings.

Cattle to be slaughtered.

73. No cattle, except calves, under one year old, sheep, goats, and swine, shall be slaughtered within the Municipality of Silvertown, nor shall any cattle be slaughtered except at slaughter-houses licensed pursuant to the By-laws.

Construction of slaughter-houses.

74. The building to be licensed for slaughtering of cattle authorized to be slaughtered within the Municipality shall be of such area and construction as shall be approved of by the Council.

Situation of slaughter-houses.

75. The building to be licensed as aforesaid shall, where practicable, be at least fifty feet from any public way, and twenty feet at least from any building other than the buildings forming part of the same premises. The Council in granting the license shall decide as to the practicability or otherwise of such distance.

Licenses.

76. Licenses may be issued for the year, commencing first day of March in each year, at the discretion of the Council, the fee for such license not to exceed three pounds for annual license payable in advance.

77. No license to keep a slaughter-house in the Municipality shall be granted except upon the terms of these By-laws.

Inspection of slaughter-houses.

78. The Sanitary Inspector of the Municipality shall frequently inspect all licensed slaughter-houses, and cause these By-laws to be strictly observed, and shall have full power without any further authority than his appointment to his office by the Council, to enter in, examine, and inspect all licensed slaughter-houses at all hours of the day and night, and no person shall obstruct the inspector in the exercise of the powers conferred on him by this clause.

Penalties.

79. If any person shall in any respect fail to comply with these By-laws regulating the keeping of slaughter-houses he shall, on conviction, if no other penalty be inflicted by statute, forfeit and pay for the first offence not less than one pound and not exceeding five pounds, for the second offence a sum not less than two pounds and not exceeding ten pounds, and for the third offence ten pounds.

Deprivation of License.

80. If any person shall be convicted of any offence against these By-laws, the Council may deprive him of his license either absolutely or for such time as the Council shall think fit, and any person so deprived during the period of such deprivation for all the purposes of these By-laws shall be dealt with as unlicensed.

Slaughter-houses erected.

81. The Council shall have power, in respect to any private slaughter-house erected at the time of the passing of these By-laws, to dispense with such or so much of the conditions of these By-laws as may be thought advisable, but so, nevertheless, that every such slaughter-house shall be so constructed and maintained as to prevent a nuisance to the neighbourhood in which it is situated.

PART IV.

Miscellaneous.

Exposure of person.

82. Any person who shall offend against decency by the exposure of his or her person in any street or public place within the said Municipality, or in view thereof, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

Refusing true name and address.

83. Every person offending against any provision of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or any provision of the By-laws made or to be made by the Council of the Municipal District of Silvertown, pursuant to the said Act, or any of them, who shall refuse on demand to give to any officer of the Council or police constable his true name and address, may be apprehended without warrant by such officer of the Council or police constable, and conveyed to the nearest police station, there to be detained until such time as he may be brought before some Justice of the Peace for the Province. Any person so refusing shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds.

Buildings of inflammable nature.

84. It shall not be lawful for any person to erect, or permit, or cause to be erected within the Municipality, any house, shed, wurley, stable, or other building of inflammable material without first having obtained the consent of the Council, and any person who shall construct or permit or cause to be constructed any such house, shed, wurley, stable, or other building, without such permission who shall not remove the same within seven days after having received notice from the Council Clerk so to do, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than five shillings, and every forty-eight hours that the house, shed, wurley, stable, or other building shall remain after such conviction, shall constitute a fresh offence.

Camels and Donkeys.

85. It shall not be lawful for any person to approach with any donkeys or asses within one mile of the Silverton Post Office, except between sunrise and sunset, and no camels shall be brought within one and a half miles of the same place, or within half a mile of any public road, except between the hours of 4 a.m. and 9 a.m., and any person who shall offend against this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound, nor more than five pounds.

TENTERFIELD MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Tenterfield, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

PRELIMINARY REPEAL OF EXISTING BY-LAWS.

THAT all existing By-laws of the Council of the Municipal District of Tenterfield, published in the Government Gazette from time to time prior to the adoption of the following, be and are hereby repealed.

PART I.

Regulating their own proceedings.—Duties of officers and servants, and preserving order at Council meetings.

Meeting of the Council.

1. The Council shall hold their meetings on every alternate Monday, and such meeting shall commence at half-past seven o'clock in the evening, and the Mayor or presiding Alderman may adjourn any such meeting or any special meeting to any such other day and hour as the majority of the Council then present may determine upon.

At any monthly or special meeting questions may be considered at such meeting or any adjournment thereof without previous notice.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and shall be recorded in the Minute-book, and at the same time his decision upon any disputed point shall be final.

Questions of Order.

3. The Mayor or presiding Alderman, as the case may be, shall preserve order and prevent interruption at any meeting of the Council or of any Committee; may of his own authority call to order any member of the Council or Committee; may regulate the order and precedence in which each speaker is to address the Council when two or more rise to speak at the same time; his decision upon any disputed point of order shall be final.

4. No person whomsoever, except a member of the Council, shall, by words, sound, or otherwise howsoever, interrupt the business of the meeting of the Council or of any Committee, or at the sitting of any Court held under the Municipalities Act of 1867 for the revision of the Municipal list or roll, or cause a disturbance thereof; any person except as aforesaid, interrupting the business of any such meeting or sitting, or causing any disturbance thereof, shall forfeit any sum not less than two pounds nor more than five pounds, to be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices of the Peace in Petty Sessions, according to the provisions of the Act 14 Victoria No. 43.

Orders of the Day.

5. At every meeting of the Council the minutes of the proceedings of the previous meeting shall be read by the Council Clerk, and, after confirmation by the vote of the majority of the Council present, shall be signed by the Mayor or presiding Alderman.

6. Then reports from Committees shall be received, but these shall not be taken into consideration or adopted unless after due notice has been given at a previous meeting, or to the Council Clerk, not less than four days before meeting.

7. After the reading of correspondence and the presentation of reports and petitions, such motions as may be in the Motion-book shall take precedence of all other business of the day, and shall be taken up in the order in which they are in the Motion-book.

8. The order of the day shall include all business of which due notice has been given, and all matters arising out of former meetings of the Council. Any motion entered on the Motion-book, and the Alderman having given notice of the same being absent and no other Alderman deputed in writing to bring forward such motion when the business is called in order, shall be struck out.

9. Any one or more of the standing orders of Council may be suspended at any meeting of the Council (for that meeting only) in case of emergency: Provided that a majority of members present consider it necessary.

Business may be dealt with out of regular order.

10. It shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion or to deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper without any formal suspension of this section also, and in like manner to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

der of debate

11. Every member shall stand when speaking, and shall address the Mayor or presiding Alderman; and in course of a debate if any question or order shall arise it shall immediately be taken into consideration and be disposed of by the Mayor or presiding Alderman.

12. Except in Committee, no member shall speak twice on the same question; if he has been misrepresented or misunderstood, he may, if he thinks proper, briefly make such explanation as may be necessary: Provided that the mover shall be allowed to reply, and that every member shall have the liberty of speaking once on every amendment as well as on the original motion.

13. No member shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer period than fifteen minutes without the consent of a majority at least of the members present at the time, and he shall not digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections on members, or impute improper motives.

14. If any member shall make use of any expression, or so conduct himself that his words or actions shall be taken, construed, or held by a majority of the members present to be offensive to the Council, or to any member thereof, he shall be called to order by the Mayor or presiding Alderman, and by him required to withdraw the objectionable expression and satisfactorily apologize for having used the same, or for having conducted himself in such manner as to give cause of offence. Any member neglecting or refusing to withdraw any objectionable expression, or satisfactorily apologize when called upon so to do by the Mayor or presiding Alderman, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than ten shillings and not more than one pound.

15. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day or to another specified day, and the member upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to precedence on the resumption of the debate.

16. Any member may require the question or subject under discussion to be read or the substance thereof explained to him at any time during the debate, but not in such a way as to interrupt any member while speaking, or to unduly protract the proceedings.

17. The Mayor or presiding Alderman shall, on every motion made and seconded, put the question first in the affirmative and then in the negative, and then declare the result to the meeting, and if any dispute or misunderstanding shall arise as to the declared result, the Mayor or presiding Alderman shall be entitled to put the question again, and so often as may be necessary, in order to enable him to declare definitely by the show of hands whether the motion has been carried or negatived.

18. The Mayor or presiding Alderman shall have equal rights with the other members of the Council in speaking to the merits of all questions brought before the Council.

19. It shall be competent for any member to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in Committees of the whole Council; and upon such division those who are in the affirmative shall pass on the right hand of the Mayor or presiding Alderman, and those who are in the negative shall pass on to his left hand, and no member after dividing shall leave his place till the names of all the members shall be taken down by the Council Clerk or some person officiating for him.

20. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

21. Any number of amendments may be proposed on a motion before the Council, and when more than one amendment is moved and seconded, the last amendment shall be first put to the meeting, or in the reverse order in which they were moved, until the whole are disposed of, when the original motion shall be put to the meeting and the result declared by the Mayor or presiding Alderman.

22. Any motion for adjournment, if seconded, shall be immediately put without any discussion; and if negatived it shall not be competent to put a similar motion until five minutes at least shall have elapsed from the time of moving the one which has been negatived, but no notice shall be taken by the Mayor or Presiding Alderman of any motion unless it has been seconded.

Petitions.

23. No discussion shall take place on the presentation of any petition without notice of motion given after its reception.

Motions.

24. The Council Clerk shall enter in a book to be kept for that purpose, and to be called the "Motion-book," all notices of motion in the order in which they are received.

25. Notices of motion shall be given to the Council Clerk at any meeting of the Council, or not less than four days before the meeting of the Council at which the motion is intended to be made: Provided that no motion of which notice shall have been given as aforesaid shall be made, except at an adjourned meeting, unless notice thereof setting forth in general terms the purport of such motion shall have been given by the Council Clerk to each member of the Council in the summons issued by him for the meeting of the Council.

Committees

26. No Committee of the Council shall consist of less than three members and the Chairman. The Chairman or a majority of every Committee shall summon the Committee, and may direct the Council Clerk to call meetings whenever they may consider it necessary or expedient.

27. The appointment of Special Committees shall continue until the specific duty for which they were appointed shall have been discharged, provided that such Committee may at any time be dissolved by vote of the Council.

28. The rules affecting the Council shall be observed and be in force in any Committee, with the exception of the rule limiting the number of times of speaking; and every report of a Committee shall be signed by the Chairman thereof.

Special Committees.

29. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully intrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed; and no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been intrusted to any such Special Committee.

30. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be intrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the event of its becoming necessary through an equality of votes to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Officers.

31. No Officer shall be appointed until a general outline of his duties and the amount of salary shall be approved of by the Council; and no appointment of any kind shall take place until one week's notice at least shall have been given in one or more of the local papers inviting applications for the same.

32. Every officer or servant of the Council who, by reason of his office or employment under the Council, shall be intrusted with the custody or control of any moneys, shall give security to the satisfaction of the Council in the sum of not less than fifty pounds for faithfully and duly accounting for the same.

33. Any officer or servant of the Council who shall be intrusted with the receipt of any moneys for the Council shall not have or retain in his hands any sum at any one time exceeding ten pounds of any such moneys; any such officer or servant offending against this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds and not more than twenty pounds.

34. In cases where security shall be required by the Municipalities Act of 1867, the sureties offered shall be approved of by the Council before they are accepted as surety, any of its members, or any person holding office under the Council; and in all cases in which security for the due and faithful performance of any duty or contract is required, the expense of preparing such security shall be borne by the person or persons giving the same.

35. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, expose, or give any information of any of the books, papers, records, or any other documents or vouchers belonging to the Council to any one not a member of the Council, without permission from the Council, except always as may be otherwise provided by law. Any member or officer of the Council who shall be guilty of a breach of this section shall be liable on conviction for the first offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than two pounds; for a second offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds.

How complaints against officers, &c., are to be dealt with.

36. All complaints against officers or servants of the Council must be in writing and addressed to the Mayor, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing or is anonymous.

37. All such complaints as aforesaid shall be laid by the Mayor before the Council at the next meeting thereof which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have received the same, and shall be duly recorded.

Common Seal and Records, &c.

38. The Common Seal shall be kept at the Council Chambers, and the Mayor shall have the custody of the same, and shall in the presence of the Council Clerk; but for the purpose of affix it to all documents creating obligations on the Corporation officially authenticating documents the Mayor may alone fix the seal.

39. All charters, deeds, muniments, and records of the Municipality shall be kept in the Council Chambers in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the Council shall otherwise order. Any person removing any such book or other record of the Council as aforesaid from the Council Chambers, or the place where by direction of the Council such book or other record is usually kept, without leave for such removal having been first obtained from the Council, or without other lawful cause for such removal, as hereinafter provided, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds.

Penalty for defacing or destroying record.

40. Any person destroying, defacing, or altering any record of the Council shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Treasurer's Report.

41. The Treasurer's Account shall be laid before the Council by the Mayor or presiding Alderman at every alternate meeting, or oftener if required.

Leave of absence.

42. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or to any Alderman otherwise than by a resolution of the Council after due notice.

Call of the Council.

43. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of a call of the Council, who being absent shall not be legally excused, or who if absent and not so excused shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of ten shillings.

Work or appointments affecting the funds of the Council.

44. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed or any material supplied by contract other than provided by By-law, tenders for the execution of such work or the supply of such material shall be called for by public notice, as hereinafter provided.

45. No work affecting the funds of the Corporation shall be undertaken until the probable expense shall be first ascertained and authorized to be executed by the Council; and before any motion shall be made for the payment of any such works the account shall be examined and passed by the Finance Committee: Provided that in the event of any day labourer being discharged by a majority of the Improvement Committee, such majority shall have power to authorize the Mayor to pay the amount actually due to such labourers, or any of them, by cheque drawn in the usual way on the Bank Account; and any such payment shall be confirmed at the ensuing meeting of the Council: Provided further that in cases of emergency the Improvement Committee may authorize the expenditure of any sum not exceeding three pounds, and such expenditure shall be reported to the Council at its next meeting, and the reasons given why the authority so to expend became necessary.

Collection and enforcement of rates.

46. The rates shall be levied and collected half-yearly, and shall be held to be due and payable on such days as the Council shall by resolution from time to time appoint.

47. All persons liable to pay any rate or assessments shall pay the amount within any such period that the Council have directed by a resolution into the office of the Council Clerk during the office hours, that is to say, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Mondays.

48. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor of the Municipality, for presentation to the Council every six months, with a list of the names of all persons who are in default within the meaning of section 176 of the Municipalities Act of 1867.

49. It shall be the duty of the Mayor of the Municipality to issue distress warrants against defaulters after such default shall in manner aforesaid have been reported to him, and to cause such warrants to be enforced: Provided that this By-law shall not prevent such other proceedings being taken for the recovery of overdue rates or assessment as a majority of the Council shall from time to time deem necessary.

50. The bailiff of the Municipality shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council, and may at any time be removed in a similar way.

51. The bailiff shall find surety to the Mayor, himself in fifty pounds, and two sufficient sureties in twenty-five pounds each for the faithful performance of his duty.

52. It shall be the duty of the bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates, in the manner hereinafter provided.

53. Any person who shall interrupt, interfere with, or obstruct the bailiff of the Council or his deputy, or any of his assistants in the execution of any warrant to distress, or in the execution of his or their duty under such warrant, or under any of the provisions of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or under any of these By-laws, or in the performance of any matter or thing which he or they are authorized by law to do, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty-five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

54. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form or the effect of the Schedule hereunto annexed and marked with the letter A, under the hand of the Mayor and seal of the Municipality.

55. It shall be lawful for the bailiff or his deputy and such assistants as he may take with him to enter into any part of the building, tenements, or other property, in respect of which such rate or rates shall have been levied as aforesaid, and to distrain the goods therein or thereon, and to remain in or upon such building, tenement, or other property in charge thereof, until payment; and if the sum for which such distress shall have been made or taken shall not have been paid on or before the expiration of five days from the date of making such distress, it shall be lawful for such bailiff or his deputy to cause the goods or other property so distrained on, or a sufficient portion thereof, to be sold by public auction on the premises or at some public place within the Municipality to be appointed for that purpose by the Council, and the surplus, if any, that may remain after deducting the amount distrained for together with expenses, over on demand to the owner of the goods so sold.

56. The bailiff on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the distress so made, of what nature and kind soever it may be, in such part of the land or premises chargeable with the rate, or in such other place as shall be most fit and convenient for the purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whatsoever after the expiration of the five days hereinbefore mentioned to come and go to and from such part of the said land and premises where any distress shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchase thereof.

57. The bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of such distresses within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

58. If the bailiff shall neglect or refuse faithfully to perform any of his duties, or shall make any bad use of the powers entrusted to him, or shall neglect to pay over the moneys received by him as such bailiff within the time hereinbefore mentioned, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

59. The bailiff may, with the sanction in writing of the Mayor of the Municipality, authorize by writing under his hand any person to act temporarily as his deputy; and the person thus authorized shall have and exercise all the powers of the bailiff himself, but the bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be held responsible by the Council for the acts of such deputy.

SCHEDULE A.

Warrant of distress against tenant actually rated, and occupant.

To and his assistants.

Whereas the person whose name appears in the Schedule hereunder written has been rated by the Municipal Council of the Municipal District of Tenterfield, in respect of the property also appearing in the said Schedule at the sum and for the purpose set down opposite his or her name. And whereas the said sum was and still is due and payable on account of such rate, and default having been made in the payment thereof to the Treasurer although demand has been made as is required by law. These are therefore to authorize you forthwith to make distress of the goods and chattels in the first place upon those of the person named in the Schedule if he or she be then resident in the said premises, and have any goods and chattels there, and in case of a change of possession, then upon the goods and chattels of any person who shall then be the occupier thereof, or upon the goods and chattels of the person in possession of the said premises so appearing in the said Schedule at the time of executing the warrant. And if within the space of five days after the making of such distress the said sum of money set opposite to his or her name at which the person was so rated as aforesaid shall not be paid together with costs, that then you do sell the said goods and chattels of the person so by you distrained, and out of the money arising by such sale you retain the sum so due and owing for the premises in the same Schedule mentioned and occupied by the party whose goods you shall have sold together with costs, rendering to him or her the overplus, and that you certify to me on or before the day of _____, what you shall have done by virtue of his warrant.

Council Clerk.

PART III.

For the care and management of the roads and public streets and public thoroughfares of the Municipality of Tenterfield.

60. The Council shall, within the Municipality, have the care, construction, and management of all roads and public streets, and public thoroughfares within the Municipality which may have been, or may hereafter be, duly proclaimed or marked out or in actual public use as such.

61. In any street or road where it may be deemed necessary to cut or fill up to a greater depth than 3 feet, the Council shall cause a plan and section showing the proposed cuttings and fillings to be exhibited at the Council Chambers for seven days, for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and notify the same in one or more of the local newspapers, and no objection thereto shall be entertained by the Council unless made within twenty-one days after such notice shall have been given.

62. No person shall encroach beyond the building line in any street or lane, by the erection of houses, verandahs, doorsteps, fences or any other obstructions whatsoever, without consent of the Council.

63. No person shall be allowed to alter, cut up, or destroy the pathways or roads, or to remove stone, loam, sand, gravel, or any other substance whatsoever from any of the roads or streets of the Municipality without the authority of the Council.

64. No person shall be allowed to obstruct any road, street, or public thoroughfare within the Municipality, by building materials, drays, carts, or anything calculated to obstruct or hinder free passage, without the sanction of the Council in writing, and no person shall be allowed to leave waterholes or excavations for cellars or other purposes, unfenced, or in such a manner as to be dangerous to passers by; and at all places where buildings are being carried on, or where any obstruction to the danger of passers by exists, the person causing such obstruction shall be required to provide lights on either side, and to keep the same lighted from sunset to sunrise.

65. If any person or persons shall drive or cause to be driven, any cart or other vehicle with any night-soil, or shall take away or remove any noisome matter in any cart or other vehicle through or in any of the streets, roads, or public places within the said Municipality, between the hours of 6 o'clock in the morning and 11 at night, or shall fill any cart or other carriage so as wilfully to turn over or cast any night-soil or other offensive matter in or upon or near any of the said streets or public places, or shall deposit or cast out the night-soil hereinbefore described from such carts as aforesaid nearer to any street, road or dwelling-place than shall be directed by the said Council, or shall allow any such carts to stand nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-place than shall be directed by the said Council, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound and not more than ten pounds; and in case the person so offending cannot be apprehended, then the owner of such cart or other vehicle in which such night-soil or offensive matter shall be put or placed, and also the employer of the person offending shall be liable to pay and forfeit such penalty as aforesaid.

66. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer in any part of the lanes, roads, streets, or thoroughfares within the Municipality, or shall move or cause to be moved any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone or other material without leave first had been obtained from the officer or persons having lawful charge of such lanes, roads, streets, or thoroughfares respectively, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any part of the said lanes, roads, streets or thoroughfares, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

67. The Council, or any officer appointed by them, may, after one month from the date of the publication of these By-laws in the Government Gazette, upon due notice, direct the removal of any fence or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any lane, road, street, or thoroughfare under the management of the Council; and such notice shall be served personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person who made or caused to be made such obstruction or encroachment, or any party who may be in charge of the same, or to whom the same may belong.

68. In any case where service of notice for removal of any obstruction as aforesaid, the same shall not be removed within such reasonable time as the Council shall appoint, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same at the cost of the person by or to whom the same shall have been made, or any party who may be in charge or to whom the same may belong, provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall not exceed the sum of twenty pounds; and in any case where the obstructions or encroachments cannot be removed unless than at a greater cost than twenty pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and pay all costs thereof above twenty pounds from the Municipal funds or to proceed by action of trespass against the person who shall make or cause to be made such obstruction or encroachments, or who may be in charge thereof.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs, &c.

69. The Mayor, or any officer or person acting under the authority of the Mayor, may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any other necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

70. If any person shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of the streets, roads, or public places, any timber, stone, or other thing otherwise than upon wheeled carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon wheeled carriages, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place, to the injury thereof, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds over and above the damages occasioned thereby; and it shall be lawful for any constable or any other person to lay an information against any person whom he shall find in the act of committing such offence.

71. If any person shall in any street or road throw, cast, or lay, or shall permit or suffer to be thrown, cast or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth, or annoyance, or any matter or thing in or upon the carriage-way or footway of any such street or road, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other cattle, in or so near to any of the said streets or roads as that the blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over, or to be on any such carriage or footway, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings.

Consent of Mayor for depositing building materials, &c., or making sheds and streets.

72. That no person or persons shall place or deposit any stone, wood, lime, sand, or other materials, or erect, build, or place any shed for workmen, or other erections or enclosures, on any road, street, carriage or foot way, or other public place within the said Municipality, without the consent of the Mayor of the said Municipality for the time being first had and obtained.

73. That no person shall throw, cast, or fire any squib, cracker, rocket, or any firework, in, near, or into any street, road, lane, or thoroughfare, or passage, within the boundary of the town proper, or permit or suffer any person to fire off or discharge, at or from his house, or in any street, road, lane, thoroughfare, or passage within the boundary of the town proper, any gun, pistol, or other firearm, nor burn any matter in any street, road, lane, or thoroughfare, or passage within the said boundary of the town proper; and that every person so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the sum of five pounds.

Fires in the open air, &c.

74. That no person or persons shall burn, or cause, permit, or suffer to be burned, any shavings, rubbish, or other matter, nor shall kindle, or continue, or cause, permit, or suffer to be kindled or continued, any fire in the open air, or in any place not properly and sufficiently constructed for the purpose, within the distance of one hundred feet from any dwelling-house, building, or fence, in any place whatsoever within the boundary of the town proper.

Covering in wells.

75. That every person who shall have a well, underground tank, or cistern on his or her premises in the said Municipality, shall well, securely, and permanently cover the same, and every day during which such well, underground tank, or cistern shall remain not so covered shall constitute an offence under this By-law.

Stock yards erected in public streets, &c.

76. That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons, after the passing and approval of this By-law, to erect, or cause to be erected, in any street or public place within this Municipality, any stock-yard or other yard for the reception or killing of cattle and horses, or for any other purpose whatever: Provided also that it shall be lawful for the Municipal Council of the said Municipality to remove, or cause to be removed, any already existing yards or stock-yards, in any street or public place, upon complaint of at least ten ratepayers residing in the locality where such stock-yards are situated: Provided also that in case the owner or occupier of any such yard or stock-yard shall, within twenty-one days after notice from the said Municipal Council, fail to remove such yard or stock-yard, said owner or occupier shall upon conviction thereof before two or more Justices of the Peace forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds sterling, together with all costs of suit.

Shades or awnings in front of shops, &c.

77. That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to erect or cause to be erected, any shade, awning, or other work, building, or erection of any nature or material, over or across any public street or footpath, or any part thereof, within the said Municipality, without first having obtained in writing the consent of the said Municipal Council: Provided also that such awning, &c., be at least eight feet above the height of the footway in front of such house or shop, and that the posts to be upright and placed close to the kerbstone or outer edge of such footway, and be approved of by the Mayor of the said Municipal Council.

78. That it shall not be lawful for any person to drive any mob of horses or cattle or flock of sheep into any part of the said Municipality for the purpose of depasturing the same, nor shall it be lawful for the driver of any mob of horses or cattle or flock of sheep to camp with such mob of horses or cattle or flock of sheep within any part of the said Municipality under a penalty or sum not exceeding one shilling per head of horses and cattle, and one penny per sheep found so trespassing, which sum with costs may be recovered before any two Justices of the Peace as other penalties under these By-laws: Provided that nothing in this By-law shall prevent mobs of travelling horses or cattle or flocks of sheep from passing through on the travelling stock reserved road within the said Municipality.

Damming water without consent.

79. Whosoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment in or across any creek or natural water-course, or divert any stream or water-course to any other channel shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum no less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if after such second conviction such person shall fail to remove such dam or embankment within a further reasonable time he shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if within a reasonable time after a third or any further conviction he shall still fail to remove such dam or embankment he shall forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Dead animals—mode of removal.

80. If any animal shall die in any part of the said Municipality, and the owner of such animal shall not cause such animal to be immediately destroyed by fire, or so effectually removed and disposed of that no nuisance can possibly result therefrom in any part of the said Municipality, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than two pounds.

81. Every person who shall erect, or repair, or knowingly permit to be erected or repaired within the said Municipality, any building or portion of a building, any portion of which shall be constructed of bark or other dangerously inflammable materials, shall on conviction of every such offence pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds; and every person who shall suffer any such building or portion of a building to remain as aforesaid for twenty-four hours after such conviction, shall be guilty of a further offence against this By-law: Provided that this By-law shall only be enforced within that portion of the Municipality bound on the west by Tenterfield Creek, on the north by Nass-street, on the east by Wood-street, and on the south by Douglas-street.

82. Every person who shall, within that portion of the Municipality named in the preceding By-law, erect any fence of brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place, or cause to be made or placed, any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place as for the covering of any such stack any inflammable material, so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce thereof, or any chattels therein, shall on conviction of every such offence pay a penalty of not more than ten pounds; and shall also remove such fence, stack, or covering within seven days after such conviction; and any person failing to remove such fence, stack, or covering within the time specified after such conviction as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

83. Every person who, in any street or other public place or passage within the Municipality, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences shall on conviction for any and every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

84. Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the footway thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

85. Every person who shall place a line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.

86. Every person who shall place any flower-pot, box, or other thing, in any upper window near to any street or public place, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown out.

87. Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof or any part of any house or other building any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a board or enclosure), when any house or building is being erected, pulled down, or repaired.

88. Every person who shall carry goods or any frame to the annoyance of any person upon the footway of any street or other public footway.

89. Every person who shall be the keeper of, or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right of way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or any other place within the Municipality.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

90. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Municipality, shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

Rubbish.

91. No kind of rubbish or offensive matter shall be thrown upon any public or private property within the Municipality, without permission first obtained from the Municipal Council or the owner or owners of such property. Persons found guilty of a breach of this By-law shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

As to private avenues, &c.

92. Any owner or occupier of any house, building, yard, garden, premises, or other place within the Municipality who shall neglect to keep clean any private avenues, passages, yards, thoroughfares and ways within the said premises so occupied or belonging to him, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings for every such offence.

Obstructing public pathways.

93. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this Municipality shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant kept for ornament or otherwise to overhang any footway or footpath on the side of any such street or road, and, on demand made by the Council, shall not cut, lop, or cause to be lopped all such trees, shrubs or plants to the height of eight feet at the least, the said Council by their servants labourers, and workmen, may cut, or cause to be cut or lopped, at the expense of such owner or occupier, all such overhanging trees, plants, or shrubs, and to remove or burn any such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall on conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Drains for discharge of surface water from land.

94. Every owner or occupier of land in, adjoining to, or near any street, if such land shall be so situated that surface or storm water from or upon the same shall overflow or shall tend naturally, if not otherwise discharged, to overflow any footway of such street shall, within seven days next after the service of notice from the Council for that purpose, construct and lay a covered drain from such point upon such land, being near to the footway, as shall be specified in such notice by plan appended or otherwise, and higher in level than the bottom of the channel at the outer edge of the footway to the said channel, and through, under, and transversely to the footway, and keep in good condition such covered drain, as and subject to the inspection of the Council or its proper officers; and in default of compliance with any such notice within the period aforesaid, or with the provisions of this By-law, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings. And if after such conviction such drain shall not be constructed as herein specified, or kept in good condition, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds per day for each and every day after such conviction.

Fire or combustible materials, &c.

95. Every person who shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, or workshop, out offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable material of any kind, in such manner as to endanger contiguous buildings shall on conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials to remain as aforesaid for twenty-four hours after any such conviction, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Placards not to be affixed to walls.

96. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placards or other paper upon any wall, house, fence, or erection with chalk, paint, or other matter, unless with consent of the owner thereof; and every person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall pay a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

Placing carriages, goods, &c., on footways—Not removing the same when required.—Replacing same after removal.—Awnings to be exempted.

97. Any person who shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall-board, chopping-block, show-board (on hinges or otherwise), basket, wares, merchandise, casks, or goods of any kind whatsoever; or shall hoop, place, wash or cleanse, or shall cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed, any pipe, barrel, cask, or vessel, in or upon or over any carriage or foot way in any street or public place within the said Municipality; or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit or suffer, to be set out, laid, or placed, any coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray wheelbarrow, handbarrow, sledge, truck, or other carriage, upon any such carriage-way, except for the necessary time of loading or unloading such cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck or other carriage, or taking up or setting down any fare, or waiting for passengers when actually hired, or harnessing or unharnessing the horses or other animals from such coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage; or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be set or placed, in or upon or over any such carriage or foot way any timber, stones, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as herein directed) or any other matters or things whatsoever; or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or other building or premises over any part of any such footway or carriage-way, or over any area of any house or other building or premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside of the front or any other part of any house or other building or premises or over or next unto any such street or public place, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Inspector of Nuisances or other proper officer of the Council, or if any person who having, in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed or caused to be removed, any such stall-board, show-board, chopping-block, basket, wares, merchandise, casks, goods, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, wheelbarrow, handbarrow, sledge, truck, carriage, timber, stones, bricks, lime, meat, offal, or other matters or things, shall at any time thereafter again set, lay, or place, expose or put out, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, exposed, or put out, the same or any of them, or any other stall-board, show-board, chopping-block, basket, wares, merchandise, goods, timber, stones, bricks, lime, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, truck, wheelbarrow, handbarrow, sledge, meat, offal, or other things or matters whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid) in, upon, or over any such carriage or foot way of or next unto any such street or public place as aforesaid, shall upon conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings; for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Complaint respecting dirty premises.

98. Upon the complaint of any householder, or upon the order of the Mayor, that the house, premises, yards, closets, or the drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other officer appointed by the said Council shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officer of the Council shall have the full power without any other authority than this By-law to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose, between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. And any person who shall personally, or by any person in his employment or under his control, suffer any waste or stagnant water, or any muck, filth, soil, or other offensive matter, in any cellar or place within any dwelling-house or premises within the said Municipality, or shall in like manner suffer the contents of any water-closet, privy, or cesspool to overflow or soak therefrom, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Proprietors of private sewers, &c., to repair and cleanse same.

99. All drains or sewers communicating with any public drain or sewer shall from time to time be repaired and cleansed under the inspection and direction of the Council, at the costs and charges of the occupiers of the houses, buildings, lands, and premises to which the said private sewers or drains shall respectively belong, and in case any person shall neglect to repair and cleanse, or cause any such private drain or sewer to be repaired and cleansed, according to the directions of the said Council, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Erection of closets, &c.

100. Every person who shall be about to erect a closet or form, excavate, or make a cesspit within the boundaries of the town proper shall, before he shall commence to erect such closet or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, deliver to the Council Clerk of the Municipality of Tenterfield a notice in writing of the intention of such person to erect such closet, or form, excavate, or make such cesspit, and of the place or position in which it is intended that such closet shall be erected, or such cesspit formed, excavated, or made; and if any person shall commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit within the said boundaries without having given such notice in writing as aforesaid, and before the expiration of seven days after the delivery of such notice, except by the written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances for the said Municipality or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Municipality in that behalf, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds. But any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer, may at any time within fourteen days after such Inspector or other officer shall have made his decision, appeal in writing against the same to the Council; and further that the owner of any closet not removing the same when ordered to do so by the said Council within fourteen days after the receipt of such order, the same shall be removed by the Inspector of Nuisances at the cost and expense of the said owner, and he the said Inspector of Nuisances may sue the said owner for such cost as though for an ordinary debt. If any alterations shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in their behalf, for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to the health or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall not make the necessary alterations after receiving fourteen days' notice from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to remove the said nuisance, and any expense incurred thereby may be sued for and recovered in a summary way before any two or more Justices of the Peace.

Power of Inspector as to dead animals on private property.

101. The Inspector of Nuisances or any other officer appointed by the Council of the Municipality, may at any hour in the day-time enter upon any premises or place within the said Municipality where any animal has died, and require the owner or occupier of such premises or place immediately to destroy such animal by fire, and, if necessary, to remove the same for that purpose, as such Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council shall direct, or otherwise forthwith effectually to remove and dispose of the same as aforesaid, in default of which it shall be lawful for any one or more of such officers to cause such animal to be removed for that purpose, and every owner or occupier of such premises or place failing, neglecting, or refusing to comply with such requisition shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding thirty pounds nor less than three pounds.

Dead animals in certain cases to be removed at the cost of the Municipality.

102. If any animal shall die in any public street or place within the Municipality, and has not been removed by the owner or owners in accordance with By-law No. 80, it shall be immediately removed by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the said Council, and destroyed in the manner aforesaid at the cost of the owner.

103. Upon representation of any two respectable householders that the house or premises adjoining is one of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the Mayor or any two Aldermen to cause the resident of such house to furnish to the Council a list of the names, sex, birth-place, and occupation of all the inmates of the said house, and upon non-compliance with the request, or if upon consideration, the Mayor and any two Aldermen shall consider the house to be one of ill-fame, the Mayor shall cause a notice in writing to be served on such householder or resident to discontinue and abate the said house of ill-fame within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice, otherwise to be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound for every day or part of a day which such house of ill-fame shall remain unabated within the Municipality.

104. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any animal or animals with intent of drowning, or any dead animal into any public water-course, sewer, water-hole, or river, or creek, or canal, or shall obstruct or direct from its channel any such sewer, canal, or water-course, shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds, and shall pay the costs of removing such filth or obstructions, or of restoring such water-course or canal to its proper channel, not exceeding fifty pounds in the whole.

105. Any person who shall wash or cause to be washed any wool, hides, skins, or otherwise, in any creek, or water-course within the Municipality, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Hog-sties to be 120 feet from streets.— Animals suffered to stray, &c.

106. Any person who shall breed or keep, so as to be a nuisance, any kind of swine in any house, building, yard, garden, or other place situated and being within 120 feet of any street or public place within the said Municipality, or shall suffer any kind of swine belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about any street, road, or public place, shall on conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings for such and every animal so bred, kept, suffered to stray or go about any such street, road, or public place as aforesaid, and the owner or occupier of any house or premises, or other place within the said Municipality, wherein any kind of swine is bred, kept, or fed, shall within the meaning of these By-laws, be deemed the owner of every such animal so bred, kept, or fed, or suffered to stray in any such street or public place as aforesaid, and the words any "house," "building," "yard," "garden," or "other place," wherein any kind of swine shall be kept or bred as aforesaid, shall respectively be deemed hog-sties within the meaning of these By-laws.

107. It shall not be lawful for any person whosoever to suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, or cattle belonging to him, or under his or her charge to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any lane, road, or street within the said Municipality; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay, in respect of every such animal a sum not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds: Providing that after due inquiry shall have been made and the owner thereof cannot be discovered, it shall be lawful for the said Council, or any officer belonging to the said Council, to destroy any swine or goats so straying and injuring property of any description: Provided further that the Council, or any officer or officers appointed by them, may impound any swine, horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, or cattle found straying or going about, or depasturing in any lane, road, or street within the Municipality.

Persons bathing.

108. No person shall bathe between the hours of 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. within one hundred yards of any public road, or place within the Municipality unless in some enclosed place, or otherwise in such manner as not to offend against common decency.

To prevent the contamination of the water of the Tenterfield Creek.

109. Whosoever shall bathe in any creek or water-course within the boundary of the town proper, or permit or suffer to run, or to be brought therein, the water of any sink, sewer, drain, engine, or boiler, or other filthy, or unwholesome, or improper water, or shall wash any clothes at any such stream as aforesaid or shall do anything whatsoever whereby any water-course as aforesaid shall be fouled, obstructed, or damaged, shall for the first offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds (£5); for a second offence any sum not less than ten shillings (10s.) nor more than five pounds (£5); and for the third and every subsequent offence any sum not less than one pound (£1) nor more than twenty pounds (£20).

110. Any person who shall damage any public building, wall, parapet, fence, culvert, sewer, water-course, pump, or other public property within the Municipality shall pay the costs of repairing the same; and if such damage be wilfully done shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds (£20) nor less than five pounds (£5).

PART V.

Nuisances, noisome and offensive trades.

111. For preserving the cleanliness of the said Municipality and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council from time to time, and when and as often as he or either of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, and fellmongering establishments, in the said Municipality and to give such directions concerning the cleaning the said shambles, slaughter-houses, tanneries, and establishments, both within and without as to him shall seem needful; and any butcher, or the owner or occupier of any such shambles, slaughter-house, tannery, or establishments, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

112. No person shall carry on any noisome or offensive trade within the said Municipality so as to injure or be a nuisance as hereinafter stated to the inhabitants thereof.

113. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which, or in consequence of or in connection wherewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed, or carried on, any gas, vapour, or effluvia, or any large quantities of smoke shall be evolved or discharged, which gas, vapour, effluvia, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the said Municipality, shall be considered a noisome and offensive trade within the meaning of these By-laws.

114. Upon complaint in writing by any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on, in the vicinity of his or her property as to injure his or her health, or the health of any member of his or her family, or to be a nuisance to such householder, and to his or her family, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on, as aforesaid, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint and shall report thereon to the Council. And if the said Council shall, on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so complained of, and so being conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, is a "noisome or offensive trade," within the meaning of these By-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, carrying on such trade, to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than one month nor more than three months, as the Council may direct, or so conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid, the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be "noisome and offensive," the meaning of these By-laws either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Municipality. And if such trade shall not be discontinued as aforesaid, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be "noisome and offensive," as aforesaid within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on such trade, as aforesaid, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

115. The like proceedings shall be taken, as aforesaid, whenever there shall be a complaint, as aforesaid, that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is about to be commenced, or entered upon, which is likely to prove noisome and offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, save and except that the notice to be given as aforesaid, shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same, or to take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming noisome or offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, to any resident within the Municipality: and any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so as that the same shall be in any way "noisome and offensive," within the meaning of these By-laws, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

116. Service of any such notice as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises, or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is being conducted, followed, or carried on, or is about to be commenced, or entered upon, or at the last known place of abode of such occupier, or owner, or upon any person on the said premises, or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these By-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged in superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, as aforesaid, shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade calling, or operation, within the meaning and for all the purposes.

PART VI.

Regulating Slaughter-houses, &c.

117. That in pursuance of the powers vested in the Council by 7 Vic. No. 2, the said Council shall appoint, by notice to be published in any newspaper published within or nearest to the said Municipality some person to be called the Inspector of Slaughter-houses,—such person to be the Inspector of Slaughter-houses and of animals intended to be slaughtered within the Municipality, for all the purposes of these By-laws.

118. The Inspector shall only inspect animals for slaughter in the yards adjoining licensed slaughter-houses.

119. Such Inspector shall from time to time enter into and examine all such slaughter-houses, and shall examine the melts or spleens and lungs and carcasses of all animals slaughtered, or any animals intended to be slaughtered therein.

120. The owner or occupier of any or every such slaughter-house used for the slaughter of animals intended for human food, shall keep the melts or spleens and lungs of all animals slaughtered in the said slaughter-house for a period of six hours after the animals have been slaughtered, unless the Inspector of Slaughter-houses shall have previously examined the melts or spleens and lungs of such slaughtered animals. And any such owner or occupier as aforesaid who shall neglect or refuse to do so shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than forty shillings nor more than twenty pounds.

121. The blood, offal, and filth of all such animals as may be slaughtered in any such slaughter-house shall be removed at least once in every twelve hours: and any owner or occupier of any such slaughter-house who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to comply with this By-law shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than forty shillings nor more than ten pounds.

122. Nothing herein contained shall extend to or affect any person or persons slaughtering at his or her or their own residences within the said Municipality, animals for his or her or their family, servants, or labourers' use: Provided that the place where any such animals are so slaughtered be not less than 40 feet from any street or other public place, or from any residence other than the residence of such person or persons so slaughtering as aforesaid.

123. Any person or persons other than those provided for by Clause 122, slaughtering animals within the Municipality, in any place or places other than such as are duly licensed by the Magistracy, shall be subject, on conviction, to a penalty in any sum not exceeding one pound for the first offence, and for any subsequent offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

124. The Inspector of Slaughter-houses shall from time to time, as he may be required, produce to the Municipal Council or the Mayor, or the By-law Committee of the said Council, for inspection, the book of particulars as ordered to be kept by him by the 5th William IV, section 4.

125. The word "animal" shall, for the purposes of this "Part" of these By-laws, be held to include cattle, sheep, pigs, calves, and lambs, and the word "slaughter-house" shall be held to mean any building or place wherein or whereat animals are slaughtered.

126. If the owner or occupier of any such slaughter-house shall knowingly cause, permit, or suffer any animal infected with any disease affecting the melt or spleen, or lungs, to be slaughtered in any such slaughter-house; or if, after the slaughter of any animal, it shall be found to be diseased, and such owner or occupier, as soon as the animal is inspected and condemned, shall not immediately thereupon cause the entire carcase to be destroyed by fire in the presence of the Inspector, such owner or occupier shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than ten pounds: Provided, however, that should the owner of any animal which may be condemned by the Inspector object to the decision of that officer, such owner shall be at liberty to appoint some veterinary surgeon or other competent person as arbitrator in his behalf, and in the event of the Inspector and such veterinary surgeon or other competent person not agreeing, it shall be lawful and incumbent upon them each to appoint an umpire, whose decision shall be final.

PART VII.

For carts, drays, waggons, &c, plying for hire within the Municipality of Tenterfield.

127. That from and after the passing of this By-law, any person who shall be desirous to ply with any car, cab, or other vehicle, or with any cart, dray, or waggon, for hire or reward, or to draw, or to carry, with any cart, dray, or waggon, any wood, water, butcher's meat, bread, dairy farm or other produce, bricks, stone, or any building materials, or any merchandise or other property whatsoever, for hire or reward within the said Municipality shall, on being approved of by the Mayor, register his name and place of abode in the office of the Council Clerk, and shall thereupon, and from time to time thereafter, on payment by him of the rate according to the scale hereinafter mentioned, receive from the Council Clerk a license, on which shall be written his name, place of abode, and number of vehicle so approved—every such license to continue and be in force until the thirty-first day of December in each and every year, and no longer; and if any person shall ply with any car, cab, or other vehicle, or with any cart, dray, or waggon, without being so licensed, or shall cause, or procure any person to ply, not being so licensed, within the said Municipality, or if any person shall draw or carry any wood or water with any cart, dray, or waggon, for the supply of the inhabitants of the said Municipality, without being so licensed, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than one pound: Provided always that nothing herein shall apply to carters bringing or taking any goods or merchandise to or from any place without the said Municipality, but shall apply in all cases when the same property is loaded and delivered from any cart, dray, waggon, or other vehicle within the said Municipality.

The following is the scale of fees for licenses above mentioned:—

	£	s.	d.
For every four-wheeled waggon, an annual sum of	2	0	0
For every bullock dray, an annual sum of	1	10	0
For every car, cab, dray, water-cart, or light cart, an annual sum of	1	0	0

128. The above fees shall be payable on the first day of January, in each year, and not later than the thirty-first of the same month: Provided always, that upon any such license issued after the thirty-first day of March, in each year, there shall be demandable three-fourths of the above fee mentioned, and any such license issued after the thirtieth day of June, in each year, there shall be demandable one-half of the above-mentioned fee, for the same, and no more.

129. And be it further ordered and directed that when any person shall have in his employ and servant licensed as aforesaid, and such servant shall leave such employment before his license shall have expired, then, and in any such case, the license of such servant shall, and may be, transferred to any other person, by registering such transfer in the office of the Town Clerk. And be it further ordered and directed that the name of every person licensed as aforesaid, together with the number of his licensed cart, dray, waggon, or other vehicles as the case may be, shall at all times be legibly painted in letters not less than one inch in length upon the off side of the cart, dray, waggon, or other vehicle with which he shall ply for hire or carry as aforesaid. And if any such person shall at any time fail or neglect to keep his name, the number of his license, and the words licensed cart, dray, waggon, or other vehicle, as the case may be, legibly painted as aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay for every offence not less than ten shillings nor more than one pound sterling; and if any person not duly licensed as aforesaid shall ply or draw, or carry wood or water, other property, or merchandise, with a cart, dray, waggon, or other vehicle, on which there shall be painted licensed, or the words licensed cart, dray, waggon, or other vehicle, as the case may be, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence not less than one pound nor more than five pounds sterling.

130. No driver, carter, or other person shall wilfully or negligently do or suffer, or cause to be done, any damage or injury to the culverts, kerbstones, gutters, or pathway of any street or roadway.

131. Any person whosoever who shall wilfully drive, lead or ride any horse or cattle or any other animal along any pathway (except in crossing such pathway to or from any premises adjoining the same), or shall permit any horse or cattle to stand upon any pathway or any part thereof within the Municipality, shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

132. Any person who shall ride or drive through any lane, road, street, or public place, negligently, carelessly, or furiously to the common danger of the public, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Conditions under which licenses to be granted.

133. No license shall be granted in respect of any vehicle, which in the opinion of three Aldermen, who shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council of the said Municipality, is unsafe, or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein; nor until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon on a plate or plates affixed thereon outside on the panel of each door of such vehicle, or on such other place or places, and in such manner as the said three Aldermen may direct.

Inspection of vehicles.

134. The three Aldermen aforesaid shall, as often as they deem it necessary, cause an inspection to be made of all or any licensed vehicles, and of the harness, horse, or horses, and if any such vehicles, harness, horse, or horses shall at any time be found by the said Aldermen to be unfit for use, the Mayor may cancel the license of such vehicle on the written report of the said Aldermen.

Age of drivers.

135. No license shall be granted to any person to drive any passenger carrying vehicle who shall be under the age of sixteen years.

Description of persons not allowed to travel in vehicle.

136. No person suffering from any infectious or contagious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor shall knowingly carry, or permit to be carried, any such person or (except to some police office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself, or otherwise so misbehaving, as to occasion any annoyance or to disturb the public peace, and no passenger shall carry inside any vehicle, except a dray, any animal or any substance of an offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle or the apparel of other passengers, and no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle, nor use the same for eating his meals therein.

Vehicles to carry lights.

137. All vehicles licensed to carry passengers shall be provided with suitable carriage lamps to burn candles, one to be fixed on each side of the driver's box and a third one inside of all omnibuses and closed coaches, and the same shall be lighted when running in the streets either with or without passengers.

Carts, Bicycles, or Tricycles to carry lights.

138. The driver of every cart, night-cart, bicycle, or tricycle which shall, during the hours after sunset of any day and before sunrise of the following day, be in any street or public place within the boundary of the town proper, shall keep a light attached to or suspended from the off or right side of such cart or in front of such bicycle or tricycle so as to be plainly visible to the driver of any carriage proceeding along or through such street or place in a contrary direction to that in which such first-mentioned cart, bicycle, or tricycle shall be directed, and every driver who shall fail to comply with this section shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Property found in vehicles to be delivered at Council Clerk's Office.

139. The driver of any carriage and conductor of every omnibus shall carefully examine his vehicle immediately after setting down his fare, and in every case of property having been left in any vehicle by any person having used or hired the same, such property, if found by another passenger or person, shall be delivered to the driver or conductor who shall deliver the same with any other property found by him within eighteen hours after such finding to the Council Clerk's office and there shall deposit it, and no owner shall detain any property delivered to him by any driver or conductor in his employment longer than the time before mentioned, but shall deposit it at the office at the Council Chamber with the Council Clerk or his assistant.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

140. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind shall ride upon any such carriage in any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the Municipality, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse and driven or guided with reins only excepted) or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage, or in such a situation whilst it is passing upon such street, road, passage, thoroughfare, or public place that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same, or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or any other carriage whatsoever, meeting any other carriage shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare, or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care upon such street, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every such driver or person so offending shall upon conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Ratepayers may give information.

141. That it shall and may be lawful for any ratepayer residing within the Municipality to give such information as may be necessary for the conviction of any party or parties who may ride or drive any horse, cattle, or vehicle upon the foot-path of this Municipality.

PART VIII.

Water Supply.

Water-carriers to attend at fires.

142. Every owner and driver of a licensed water-cart shall keep such cart loaded with water during all times after sunset and before sunrise, and shall, if any building, premises or property shall be on fire, within the Municipality, attend at the place of such fire with such cart loaded with water, and shall continue to cart water by full loads to such place, and shall deliver such water in such manner as may be required by the Mayor, or by any Alderman or officer, or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf, and then present, for extinguishing such fire; and every such owner or driver who shall, without reasonable excuse, fail to comply with the provisions of this section, shall pay a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Compensation and reward for attending at fires.

143. There shall be paid out of the Municipal funds, to the owner of every licensed water-cart, who shall have attended with any water, at the place of any fire as herein provided, and delivered the same as required for extinguishing such fire, such reasonable compensation as the Council shall, by resolution, deem fit, and also to the owners of such carts as shall have first and second in order attended with loads of water, such further sums by way of reward, as the Council may, by similar resolutions, award.

Hose to be attached to water-carts.

144. No water-carrier shall obtain a license unless he has a proper butt with hose attached, and approved of by the Mayor of the said Municipality.

Noxious weeds.

145. Any person appointed by the Council may enter upon any land within the said Municipality, and for that purpose may break open gates, or take down or remove fences, to extirpate the weed known as the Bathurst burr, Scotch thistle, variegated thistle, or other noxious weeds: Provided always that if any gate be broken or fences removed, the same shall, immediately after the work then required to be done, be restored to their former condition as nearly as may be, and the expenses of extirpating such weeds and restoring such fences may be recovered as an ordinary debt from the owner or occupier of such lands; any person hindering or obstructing any person so appointed as aforesaid, shall for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of two pounds.

146. The owner or occupier of any land within the said Municipality who shall permit or suffer to grow or remain on the said land any of the following noxious weeds, namely, the Bathurst burr, Scotch thistle, variegated thistle, or any other noxious weed, and who shall fail to extirpate, remove, or destroy the same within the space of ten days or such other time as the Council may allow, after receipt of a notice in writing from the Council or proper officer of the Council so to do, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

147. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law of any appointment, resolution, act, order, or regulation done, made or passed by any Committee thereof, or by the Mayor, or any officer of the Council, or of the said Council, such notice shall be given and published by posting the same on or near the outer door of the Council Chambers for the space of seven days, and by advertising the same twice in some newspaper circulating in the district.

Alteration of By-laws.

148. Any alterations proposed to be made in the By-laws, or any new By-law proposed to be added, shall require the same motion to be given, and proceedings taken thereon as in the case of motions.

Penalties.

149. That every neglect, breach, or offence of or against any of the provisions of these By-laws, where no specific penalty is hereinbefore provided for such neglect, breach, or offence, the maximum penalty shall be twenty pounds sterling, and all fines, fees, and penalties so recovered, shall be paid to the Council Clerk for the time being, or to such other person or persons as the said Municipal Council shall appoint, for the benefit of the said Municipality.

150. In any By-laws of this Municipality any words in the singular number shall be taken to import the plural number, and any words in the plural number shall be taken to import the singular number, and any words in the masculine gender shall be taken to include the feminine gender, unless the same shall be repugnant to the construction thereof.

Made and approved by the Council of the Municipal District of Tenterfield, on the first day of September, 1887.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ULLADULLA—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 22nd May, 1888.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Ulladulla, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for regulating and licensing Vehicles, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ULLADULLA.

BY-LAWS for regulating and licensing vehicles plying for hire within the Municipal District of Ulladulla.

THE Council of the Municipal District of Ulladulla, do, by the virtue of the power and authority vested in such Council by the "Municipalities Act of 1867," hereby make the following By-laws for regulating and licensing vehicles plying for hire within the said Municipal District:—

1. No vehicle, &c., of any kind shall ply for hire within the Municipal District of Ulladulla, unless licensed in the manner hereinafter described.

2. Before any license for plying any vehicle can be granted, the party requiring such license, shall send in a requisition in the form of Schedule A hereto, or to the like effect, and shall duly sign the same and deliver it to the Council Clerk.

3. Licenses for proprietors, &c., shall be in the form of Schedule B hereto, or to the like effect, and shall be made out and numbered by the Council Clerk, and shall bear the seal of the Municipal Council.

4. No license shall be granted in respect of any vehicle which in the opinion of the By-law Committee or of the Mayor and any two Aldermen shall be unsafe, or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for accommodation and conveyance of passengers.

5. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be in force from the date of such license until the thirty-first of December then next ensuing; and no such license shall include more than one vehicle: Provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor shall so desire he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be thereby specified by endorsement on the license under the hand of the Mayor or Council Clerk.

6. Licenses may be renewed each year by endorsement thereon under the hand of the Council Clerk for the time being.

7. For every such license and renewal thereof there shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Municipality, in advance, for the benefit of the same, the following rates:—

For each 2-wheeled dray drawn by bullocks or horses, 2½-inch tire, to carry not more than 1 ton, £1 (one pound) per wheel annually.

For each 2-wheeled dray drawn by bullocks or horses, 4-inch tire, to carry not more than 3 tons, £1 (one pound) per wheel annually.

For each timber carriage or waggon, tires to be not less than 3 inches, 15s. per wheel annually.

For each 4-wheeled coach or omnibus, or waggonette, drag, 5s. per wheel annually.

For each buggy, carriage, or other light passenger 4-wheeled vehicle, 5s. per wheel annually.

For each gig, sulky, or other 2-wheeled passenger vehicle, 7s. 6d. per wheel annually.

For each 4-wheeled vehicle for hawking, 2s. 6d. per wheel annually.

For each 2-wheeled vehicle for hawking, 4s. per wheel annually.

For hawkers with pack, basket, or barrow, 2s. 6d. annually.

8. Quarterly licenses may be granted at corresponding rates. Licenses not transferable.

9. All vehicles, licensed or unlicensed, travelling through or any part of the Municipal District shall carry lights after sunset till sunrise, or owner or driver shall forfeit a penalty of one pound or not more than £5 (five pounds).

10. Water carts to be licensed at one pound per annum.

11. The By-law Committee shall, as often as they may deem it necessary, cause an inspection to be made of all licensed vehicles, or of any such vehicles, and of the harness and horse or horses used in drawing the same; and if any such vehicle, horse or horses, or harness, shall at any time be found by them unfit for public use, notice in writing of the same shall be given to the proprietor of such vehicle, and if after such notice he shall use or let to hire such vehicle, or suffer the same to be used or let until the same, or horse or horses or harness used in drawing the same, as the case may require, shall be in a fit condition for public use, the said Committee may suspend, for such time as they may deem proper, the license of such vehicle; and in case any person shall neglect or refuse to attend with his licensed vehicle before the said Committee when called upon for the purpose of having the same inspected, the said Committee may suspend the license of such vehicle.

12. No passenger vehicle shall ply for hire within the said Municipality unless there be painted on the outside the number of passengers such vehicle is licensed to carry.

13. For every public vehicle plying or carrying passengers for hire within the Municipality, there shall be paid to the Treasurer of such Municipality, for the benefit of the same, an annual, half-yearly, or quarterly charge according to rates fixed by these By-laws.

14. Every such vehicle while carrying passengers for hire shall be provided with a sufficient and readily available brake properly attached to such vehicle: Provided that this section shall not apply to 2-wheeled vehicles.

15. Every horse or other animal used in the shafts or pole of any such vehicle shall have sufficient breeching as a portion of its harness whilst so used, unless a certificate shall have been granted by the Council licensing such vehicle that such breeching is unnecessary on the portion of the road on which such vehicle is running.

16. Every such vehicle shall carry at least two sufficient and properly furnished lamps, one on either side; and three such lamps, if more than a pair of horses or other animals be employed in drawing it, and the third lamp shall be carried and exhibited over the fore part of the body of the vehicle; and such lamps shall be kept continuously burning between sunset and sunrise, while such vehicle is being used for the purpose of travelling.

17. If any proprietor, licensee, or driver of any such vehicle as aforesaid neglects or omits to comply with any of the requirements mentioned in the last preceding section, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £40 (forty pounds).

18. Every vehicle shall be licensed to carry only as many passengers as can be seated, allowing the space of 20 inches for each passenger on the seat; and such seats are not to be less than fourteen (14) inches wide from front to back, and to have sufficient room between them to allow all passengers to be seated with comfort and decency.

19. The Council can appoint an Inspector who shall see that these By-laws are strictly carried out, and who shall report to the Council once every quarter with reference to any deficiencies whatsoever.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Ulladulla, on the fourth day of January, 1888.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ULLADULLA—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158.Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 30th May, 1888.

ULLADULLA MUNICIPALITY.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

The following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Ulladulla, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

AMENDED BY-LAWS for the purpose of enabling the Council to appoint their own Bailiff.

Bailiff how appointed.

1. The Bailiff of the Municipality shall be appointed by the Council, and may from time to time be removed by them.

Bailiff to find sureties.

2. The Bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Council to the extent of £25 (twenty-five pounds) each for the faithful performance of his duty.

Duties of Bailiff.

3. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to serve all summonses issued by the Council, and to make levies by distraint for recovery of rates in manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

4. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in form of Schedule A hereto under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

5. It shall be lawful for the Bailiff or his deputy, and such assistants as he may take with him, to enter into any part of the land, building, tenement, or other property in respect of which such rate or rates shall have been made as aforesaid, and to distraint the goods therein or thereon, and to remain in such building, tenement, or other property in charge thereof. And if the sum for which any distress shall have been made or taken, together with the costs of such distraint, shall not have been paid on or before the expiration of three clear days, the Bailiff or his deputy may, between the hours of eleven in the morning and two in the afternoon on the next day thereafter, cause the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, to be sold by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the Municipality as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them for such purpose, and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for, and the cost of such distraint, to the owner of such goods so sold on demand by such owner.

Inventory.

6. At the time of making a distress, the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf, resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the Council Clerk.

Goods may be impounded.

7. The Bailiff on making a distress as aforesaid may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of three days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secure as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

8. The owner of the goods or chattels so distrained upon may at his or her option direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

9. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Deputy.

10. The Bailiff may, with the sanction in writing of the Mayor, or in his absence, with the sanction of any two Aldermen of the Municipality, authorize, in writing under his hand, any person to act temporarily as his deputy; and the person so authorized shall have and exercise all the powers of the Bailiff himself, but the Bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be responsible for the acts of such deputy.

Costs.

11. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law, the costs and charge in the Schedule C hereunder.

SCHEDULE A.

Warrant of distress.

I, _____, Mayor of the Municipality of Ulladulla, do hereby authorize you _____, the Bailiff of the said Municipality, to distrain the goods and chattels in the dwelling-house, or in and upon the land and premises of _____, situate at _____, for _____, being the amount of rates due to the said Municipality to the _____ day of _____, for the said dwelling-house (or land or premises as the case may be) and to proceed for the recovery of the said rates according to law.

Dated this _____ day of _____, 1888.

Mayor.

SCHEDULE B.

Inventory.

I have this day, in virtue of the warrant under the hand of the Mayor of the Municipal District of Ulladulla, dated _____, distrained the following goods and chattels in the dwelling-house (or in and upon the land and premises) of _____, situate at _____, within the Municipality, for _____, being the amount of rates due the said Municipality to the _____ day of _____

Dated this _____ day of _____, 1888.

Bailiff.

SCHEDULE C.

WEST MAITLAND MUNICIPALITY.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following Amended By-law, made by the Council of the Borough of West Maitland, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for regulating and licensing vehicles plying for hire within the Municipality, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, is published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF WEST MAITLAND.

BY-LAW in place of number twenty-eight of the By-laws for regulating and licensing omnibuses, waggonettes, cars, and hackney carriages plying for hire within the Borough of West Maitland.

The Council of the Borough of West Maitland do, by virtue of the power and authority vested in such Council by the "Municipalities Act of 1867," hereby repeal number twenty-eight of the By-laws made and passed by the said Council on the thirtieth day of March, 1886, for regulating and licensing omnibuses, waggonettes, cars, and hackney carriages plying for hire within the Borough of West Maitland, and published in the supplement to the Government Gazette, number 391, of Thursday, 15th July, 1886, and make the following By-law in the place of and instead of such repealed By-law, viz. :—

28. Any licensed driver of any licensed omnibus, waggonette, car, or hackney carriage, not specially licensed to ply for hire to and from the Railway Stations of the said Borough, having started with such omnibus, waggonette, car, or hackney carriage drawn by one or more horses, from either of the public stands at Regent-street or Victoria Bridge, within the said Borough, shall complete the journey to the other of such public stands without turning round or leaving High-street at a pace faster than a walk, that is to say, at an ordinary trot, and no such driver under any pretence whatsoever shall permit either horse, should two horses be attached to such omnibus, waggonette, car, or hackney carriage, to canter during such journey or any portion thereof; and every such driver shall perform the journey with the said vehicle so drawn as aforesaid from the public stand situate at Regent-street, within the Borough, to the corner of High and Bulwer Streets, within the said Borough, in not less than six minutes nor more than eight minutes; from the corner of High and Bulwer Streets to large lamp at Hunter-street, in said Borough, in not less than four minutes nor more than six minutes; from the large lamp at Hunter-street, in said Borough, to the railway crossing in High-street, in said Borough, in not less than four minutes nor more than six minutes; from the railway crossing in High-street, within the Borough, to the public stand at Victoria Bridge, within this Borough, in not less than five minutes nor more than eight minutes, making the whole journey from the public stand at Regent-street to the public stand at the Victoria Bridge in not less than nineteen minutes nor more than twenty-eight minutes, in due rotation in the order in which each driver shall have started from the said stand at Regent-street. And the foregoing periods of time shall be observed on the return journey from the said public stand at the Victoria Bridge to the said stand at Regent-street, except in the case of the driver of any such licensed vehicle returning with such vehicle from the stand at the Victoria Bridge, who shall be at liberty to go on to the stand at High-street railway crossing to meet the 11 a.m. train from Newcastle on all days when sales of live stock are to take place at the sale-yards at Campbell's Hill; but no such driver shall on any occasion remain on such railway crossing stand for more than ten minutes after the departure of such train, and he shall then proceed on his journey with his vehicle to said sale-yards with his passengers, and at once return to the public stand at Regent-street and take up his position at the rear of the last vehicle on the said stand.

Made and passed by the Borough Council of West Maitland, this 12th day of August, A.D. 1887.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BEGA—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 13.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th January, 1888.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BEGA.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Bega, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS of the Municipal District of Bega, made under and for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875." To amend certain of the By-laws at present in force within the Municipal District of Bega, and to further provide for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," within the said Municipal District.

From and after the passing of the following By-laws and the confirmation and publication thereof according to law, so much of the By-laws numbered 12 to 21, Part 4 inclusive, passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Bega, on the 1st day of May, 1884, as is or shall be repugnant to or inconsistent with the following By-laws, or any of them, shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

1. Every person who shall be about to erect a closet, or form, excavate, or make a cesspit, shall, before he shall commence to erect such closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, deliver to the Council Clerk of the Municipal District of Bega a notice in writing of the intention of such person to erect such closet, or form, excavate, or make such cesspit, and of the place or position in which it is intended that such closet shall be erected, or such cesspit formed, excavated, or made; and if any person shall commence or erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit within the said Municipality without having given such notice in writing as aforesaid, and before the expiration of seven days after the delivery of such notice (except by the written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances for the said Municipality or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Municipality in that behalf) he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

2. No person shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit, except in such place or position as shall be approved by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid; and any person who shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, without having obtained the approval of the said Inspector or other officer, or in any place or position other than the place or position approved of by the said Inspector or other officer as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than forty shillings: Provided that no such closet shall be erected or cesspit formed within 15 feet of the boundary of the land of any other person without the written consent of the Council. But any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer may appeal against the same to the Council.

3. Every cesspit to be constructed within the Municipal District of Bega shall be built of 9-inch brickwork, set in cement, floor as well as walls; and the top of such cesspit shall be at least 6 inches higher than the highest part of the surface of the ground immediately joining such cesspit; and no cesspit shall be formed, excavated, or made under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance than 20 feet therefrom, area permitting. If any person shall so form, excavate, or make any cesspit which shall not be in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, or shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit under any dwelling-house, or at a less distance than 20 feet, area permitting, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than two pounds.

4. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened inside and with a man-hole in the floor not less than 2 feet square, clear internal measurement, to be covered with a trap-door, and shall have ventilated holes $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide; and every person who shall build or erect any closet which shall not be in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds.

5. Where two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between every two closets, and such wall shall extend from the bottom of the cesspit up to the roof of the closet, so as to effect a complete separation; and if any person shall erect any two or more closets adjoining each other, and not in accordance with this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds.

6. A separate closet shall be provided for each tenement; and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

7. For houses containing not more than four rooms and out-houses, the cesspit shall not be less than 3 feet by 4 feet and 5 feet deep, inside measurement; for houses containing more than four rooms and out-offices, the cesspit shall be not less than 3 feet 6 inches by 4 feet and 5 feet deep, inside measurement.

8. In schools, factories, or other places of business where a number of persons exceeding 12 shall ordinarily reside or be occupied or employed, one closet shall be provided for every twenty persons, with a cesspit of a capacity of not less than 80 cubic feet, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of such school, factory, or other place of business, and every person who shall offend against this By-law or fail to provide the number of closets, and of the capacity in this By-law mentioned, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

9. If any alteration shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in their behalf, for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to the health or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall not make the necessary alterations after receiving fourteen days' notice from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to remove the said nuisance, and any expense incurred thereby may be sued for and recovered in a summary way before any two or more Justices of the Peace.

10. Owners of existing closets and soil-pits may be required to alter or improve them in such manner as may be necessary in order to bring them into conformity with these regulations on notice being given by the Inspector of Nuisances to that effect; persons failing to make such alterations or improvements within one month after the receipt of such notice shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the sum of three pounds for each and every week or portion of a week during which they shall fail to comply with the terms of said notice.

11. Persons desirous of using earth closets may be permitted to do so on making written application to the Council, and intimating the arrangements to be made for their construction and management, provided that such arrangements shall be approved by the Council.

12. Every earth closet now built, or hereafter to be built or placed on any premises, shall be kept provided with a suitable galvanized iron pail of the following dimensions, namely, 17 inches in diameter and 16 inches in depth, such pails to be provided by the Council and sold at cost price.

13. Every earth closet, whether already built or hereafter to be built, shall be provided with a box or earth compartment, and provided, where necessary, with a scoop for each occupant to throw in stored dry earth or ashes through the seat into the galvanized iron pail; and in case of any breach or neglect of this By-law, the owner and occupier of the premises respectively shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

14. If at any time the cesspit in any premises shall overflow or cease to be water-tight, the owner or occupier shall, within 24 hours, give notice to the Inspector of Nuisances, otherwise such owner or occupier shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

15. No person shall be at liberty, without the permission of the Council, to use on his own premises any night-soil collected thereon, but notwithstanding the permission to use such night-soil, if any nuisance shall arise therefrom he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

16. No person shall be at liberty, without the permission of the Council, to use on his premises any night-soil brought from elsewhere, and for every such offence he shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

17. The night-soil shall be removed by contract in properly constructed water-tight covered vehicles, between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m.

18. It shall be lawful for the said Council to grant licenses to nightmen, authorizing them to carry on the business of removing night-soil, and an annual fee of £2 shall be paid by such nightman in respect of each cart used by him in such work.

19. Licensed nightmen for the removal of night-soil shall, under the direction of the Inspector of Nuisances, make a trench or trenches on the depôts appointed for reception of night-soil, and shall deposit in such trench or trenches all night-soil which shall from time to time be taken to such depôt or depôts, and shall cover the whole of such night-soil with earth to a depth of 2 feet, and with disinfectants, so as to prevent any nuisance or offensive effluvia from arising therefrom; and any nightman or other person who shall deposit night-soil in other offensive matter on any such depôt otherwise than in such trench, or without covering and deodorizing the same in manner aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

20. No person shall empty, or aid or assist in emptying, whether entirely or only partially, any cesspit or dry-earth closet within the said Municipal District, without the authority in writing of the Council or of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council.

21. The said Council may from time to time appoint one or more depôts within the said Municipality, or other approved place for the reception of night-soil and other offensive matters; and any person depositing the contents or any part of the contents of any closet, privy, cesspool, cesspit, or night-soil pans, in or upon any place within the said Municipality other than such depôt or depôts as aforesaid, shall for each such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

22. No person shall be permitted to cover up or cause to be covered up any existing cesspit with earth or other material, unless and until the same shall be properly emptied by the contractor with, or the servants of, the Council. Any person offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

23. No surface drain shall be made in any footpath, nor any pipes laid under or across the same without the authority of the Council, and no such pipe or drain shall be used for the discharge into any street or roadway of any offensive liquid or matter of any kind whatsoever; and any person who shall offend against this By-law, or any owner, occupier, or tenant from whose premises suds, offensive matter, slops, or filth shall flow over or on to any footway, watercourse, or street, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

24. All expenses incurred by the Council in emptying any cesspit shall be repaid to the Council by the owner or occupant of the premises whereon such cesspit is situated, within one week after a written demand of the amount made by the Council or Inspector of Nuisances shall have been served upon him, otherwise the same may be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices of the Peace.

25. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council on their behalf, shall furnish the Council with a monthly return, showing the number of cesspits emptied, the amount due and payable for each cesspit, and the amount of arrears due for emptying cesspits. He shall collect the amounts so due and payable, and account therefor to the Council at least once in every month, or as may be determined upon by such Council.

26. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises, or do any work authorized by the Nuisances Prevention Act 1875 therein, on all days except Sundays and holidays, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.; and any person who shall hinder or obstruct any Inspector of Nuisances, or other officer as aforesaid, upon such visitation or inspection, or in the doing or performing of any work, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

27. The owner or occupier of any premises within the Municipality, or any other person, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of any of the preceding By-laws, or who shall commit any breach thereof, shall (in cases where no special penalty is provided) forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

28. All words occurring in these By-laws, and which also occur in the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," shall have the like meaning assigned to them as are provided in the 4th section of the same Act.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Beva, on the 16th day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF HAMILTON.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

*Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.*Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 6th January, 1888.MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF HAMILTON.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Hamilton, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF HAMILTON.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following Amended By-laws have been made by the Municipal Council of Hamilton, for the better carrying out of the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," within the Municipal District of Hamilton. By-laws Nos. 9, 11, 13, 14, 16, 19 of the By-laws published in the Government Gazette of 23rd October, 1884, are hereby amended, and in lieu thereof the following By-laws shall stand as Nos. 9, 11, 13, 14, 16, 19 of the aforesaid By-laws:—

9. The contents of cesspools, cesspits, privies, earth-closets, or other receptacles for night-soil, shall be removed in properly constructed water-tight carts, approved of by the Council, by persons who have been duly authorized and licensed for the performance of such work by the said Council; and no person shall be allowed to perform such duties of nightman without having first obtained a license from the said Council; and any person infringing this part of the By-laws shall on conviction thereof be subject to a penalty for every such offence of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds.

11. The occupier of every house, building, or tenement within the said Municipal District shall cause every cesspit, cesspool, or privy therein to be emptied and cleansed from time to time, as soon as any portion of the contents of such shall have so accumulated therein as to be within a distance of six inches from the top of such receptacle or cesspit, or sooner on complaint being made and notice given by the said Council's duly appointed officer for the removal of such night-soil: Provided that the contents of any cesspool, cesspit, privy, or closet-pan shall not be removed or discharged therefrom except by such nightman duly authorized or licensed as such by the aforesaid Council, and only between the hours of 11 o'clock p.m. and 5 o'clock a.m. No cesspool, cesspit, or privy shall have connected therewith or attached thereto any pipe or other appliances capable of being used for the purpose of discharging or removing the contents of such cesspool, cesspit, or privy upon or under the surface of any adjoining ground, or into any drain or sewer, or into any other place or places whatsoever. Any person or persons wilfully violating this part of the By-laws in any respect shall be liable to and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than ten pounds.

13. Licensed nightmen for the removal of night-soil shall, under the direction of the Inspector of Nuisances for the time being, or their officer or officers appointed by the said Council, make a trench on the depôts fixed upon by the said Council, for the purpose of depositing therein all night-soil that shall from time to time be taken thereto; and the whole of such night-soil shall, as deposited, be covered with earth and disinfectants, so as to prevent any nuisance to arise therefrom; and any nightman or other person who shall deposit night-soil, either on the appointed depôt or other land within the said Municipal District, without covering or otherwise deodorizing the same, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than ten pounds.

14. Every cesspool, cesspit, or earth-closet shall be in such a position that the same may be emptied without the contents thereof being carried through any part of any dwelling-house; and any person or persons having or building any cesspool or cesspit contrary to this part of the By-laws shall be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds.

16. Any person or persons who intend to construct any privy or closet shall give notice in writing to the Inspector of Nuisances for the time being of their intention so to do; and the said Inspector shall within forty-eight (48) hours inspect the premises on which such is intended to be constructed, and, if in accordance with these By-laws and the Nuisances Prevention Act, shall give the necessary permission for the construction of such closet. Any person constructing a closet or other receptacle for the deposit of night-soil without giving such notice and receiving such permission shall upon conviction be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than ten pounds.

19. Every person guilty of a breach of any of the provisions of the foregoing By-laws shall be liable for every such offence, when not otherwise expressly provided for, to a fine or penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than twenty shillings.

Made and passed by the Municipal Council of the Municipal District of Hamilton, this seventh day of September, in the year of Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF LISMORE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8th February, 1888.LISMORE MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Lismore under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.LISMORE MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS UNDER THE NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

THE Council of the town of Lismore do, by virtue of the authority vested in them by the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," hereby make and establish the following By-laws for the regulation of nuisances within the town boundaries, gazetted 2nd October, 1886, of the Municipality of Lismore, and generally for carrying into effect the provisions and purposes of the said Act, and declare that the same shall, on and after the 1st day of July, 1888, stand in the place and instead of the By-laws heretofore in force, gazetted 25th March, 1885, which By-laws so dated heretofore shall on the 1st July, 1888, be hereby repealed:—

1. That underground cesspools for the reception of night-soil, being injurious to the public health, shall be done away with, and any existing underground cesspits shall, therefore, be emptied, and be filled up with dry earth and quick lime, on or before the 1st day of July, 1888. Any person refusing or neglecting to empty or fill up any such cesspit, in accordance with this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

2. On and after the first day of July, 1888, no person or persons shall dig, make, or construct, or cause, or permit to be dug, made, or constructed, on any premises within the town boundaries of the Municipality, any open closet or cesspit for the deposit of faecal matter; and all closets or privies, from and after the said date, shall be constructed and made on the dry earth system only; and any person or persons offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

3. No person shall cover up, or cause or permit to be covered or filled up, any existing cesspit with earth or other material, unless and until the same shall be properly emptied, and also inspected by the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person or persons offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

4. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement. In schools and factories, where a number of persons shall attend or be employed, separate closets, with a door to fasten on the inside, shall be provided for each sex, and a separate closet shall be provided for every twenty persons so attending or employed. In hotels a separate closet for every ten bedrooms shall be provided. All closets hereafter to be built shall be constructed of 4½-inches brickwork or approved sawn timber. Where two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a dividing brick wall between each, of not less than 4½ inches in thickness, to effect a complete separation; and any person offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds, and a like penalty for every succeeding seven days.

5. Every closet shall be built at least 7 feet high from the floor to the wall-plate of the roof, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, internal measurement, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened from the inside, and shall have ventilating pipes or holes 4½ inches wide, or a louver, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

6. Every earth closet, whether already built or hereafter to be built, shall be provided with a box or earth compartment, and provided where necessary with a scoop for each occupant to throw in stored dry earth or ashes through the seat into the iron pan or pail, and shall have a supply of dry earth or ashes constantly in or within easy access of such closet; and in case of any breach or neglect of this By-law the occupier or owner of the premises respectively shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

7. If in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances, any alteration is required in existing cesspits or closets, he shall report the same to the Council, which shall determine what alteration is necessary for the preservation of health or decency; and such alteration shall forthwith be made by the owner or occupier of the premises after receiving seven days' notice to that effect, under a penalty of not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

8. If at any time the earth closet pan in any premises shall overflow or become a nuisance, the owner or occupier shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

9. All closets shall be supplied with iron pans; each pan shall be supplied with two side handles, and shall not be more than sixteen to eighteen inches in depth, and not more than seven inches in diameter, and of the pattern to be approved by the Council; such pans to be kept in good order, to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances. Any owner or occupier committing a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not more than two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

10. No person shall be permitted to connect any closet with any drain, watercourse, or sewer without the sanction of the Council; and any person so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

11. The night-soil shall be removed by contract in properly constructed carts, between such hours as the Council shall determine, and the contractor will be held responsible for the careful conveyance of the night-soil to the appointed depôt, and shall dispose of the same as directed. For any breach of the conditions of this By-law he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

12. If the night-soil or any portion thereof shall be sold or given away by the Council, the person removing the same shall do so only at such times and in such manner as not to cause a public nuisance; and the person purchasing or obtaining it, and so dealing with or disposing of it as to cause a nuisance, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

13. The Inspector of Nuisances shall have power to visit and inspect any premises on any lawful day, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.; and any person refusing admittance, or obstructing or hindering such inspector in the discharge of his duty, shall incur a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

14. No closet shall be erected, or commenced to be erected, except in such place or position as shall be approved by the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person being guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

15. When any new building is about to be constructed, the builder or builders thereof shall first erect, or cause to be erected, on the premises, a temporary closet, not less than three feet by two feet six inches, for the use of workmen employed in the construction of the new building, provided there is no other suitable accommodation upon the premises; and any person neglecting to conform to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

16. The place of deposit shall be in such locality as may from time to time be determined upon by the Council.

17. Persons requiring their closets emptied shall send written notice to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances (unless otherwise provided for); and any person wishing to use the refuse from any earth-closet shall be at liberty to do so by making proper provision for emptying the same to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person causing a nuisance from the careless use of such pan or its contents shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

18. No person shall use, or permit to be used, on the premises occupied or used by him or her, any night-soil which shall have been brought from any other premises, unless written permission so to do shall have been first obtained from the Municipal Council or the Inspector of Nuisances of the Municipality; and any person offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall be liable on conviction to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than five pounds.

19. The Inspector of Nuisances, or other properly appointed officer of the Council, shall have power to visit at all times all night-soil depôts or places at which night-soil may be deposited, for the purpose of inspecting the same; and any person or persons interfering with, obstructing, or resisting the above-named officer in the execution of his duty shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

20. Written notice must be given to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances by all persons about to construct new or alter existing closets, to enable the inspector to visit and report on the same, under a penalty for neglect not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and closets constructed without such notice being given must be removed or altered, if judged necessary by the Council, under a further penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

21. The Council shall from time to time fix the charges to be made for emptying and removing night-soil from closets, which shall be emptied as often as may be necessary in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances.

22. All notices required to be given under these By-laws shall be signed by the Council Clerk of the Municipality of Lismore for the time being, and may be served personally on the person for whom such notice is intended, or left at his last known place of abode or business in Lismore, or sent through the post addressed to such person at such last known place of abode or business in Lismore aforesaid.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Lismore, this twenty-first (21st) day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 13.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 25th October, 1887.

BOROUGH OF NEWCASTLE.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Newcastle, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS under the Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875.

THE Council of the Borough of Newcastle do, by virtue of the authority vested in them by the Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875, hereby make and establish the following By-laws for the regulation of nuisances within the City of Newcastle, and generally for carrying into effect the provisions and purposes of the said Act, and declare that the same shall, on and after 1st January, 1889, stand in the place and instead of the By-laws heretofore in force, gazetted 17th July, 1882, which By-laws so dated heretofore shall on 1st January, 1889, be hereby repealed.

1. That every underground cesspool for the reception of night-soil is injurious to the public health, and shall therefore be emptied and be filled up with dry earth and quicklime; and after notice to that effect any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

2. On and after the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, no person or persons shall dig, make, or construct, or cause or permit to be dug, made, or constructed on any premises within the Municipality any open closet or cesspit for the deposit of faecal matter, and all closets or privies from and after the said date shall be constructed and made on the dry earth system only; and any person or persons offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

3. No person shall cover up, or cause or permit to be covered or filled up, any existing cesspit with earth or other material unless and until the same shall be properly emptied and also inspected by the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person or persons offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

4. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement. In schools and factories, where a number of persons shall attend or be employed, separate closets, with a door to fasten on the inside, shall be provided for each sex; and a separate closet shall be provided for every twenty persons so attending or employed. All closets hereafter to be built shall be constructed of $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches brickwork or approved sawn timber. Where two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a dividing brick wall between each of not less than $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches in thickness to effect a complete separation; and any person offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds, and a like penalty for every succeeding seven days.

5. Every closet shall be built at least 7 feet high from the floor to the wall-plate of the roof, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, internal measurement; and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened from the inside, and shall have ventilating pipes or holes $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide, or a louvre, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

6. Every earth closet, whether already built or hereafter to be built, shall be provided with a box or earth compartment, and provided, where necessary, with a scoop for each occupant, to throw in stored dry earth or ashes through the seat into the iron pan or pail, and shall have a supply of dry earth or ashes constantly in or within easy access of such closet; and in case of any breach or neglect of this By-law the occupier or owner of the premises respectively shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

7. If, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances, any alteration is required in existing cesspits or closets, he shall report the same to the Council, which shall determine what alteration is necessary for the preservation of health or decency, and such alteration shall forthwith be made by the owner or occupier of the premises after receiving seven days' notice to that effect, under a penalty of not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

8. If at any time the earth closet pan in any premises shall overflow or become a nuisance, the owner or occupier shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

9. All closets shall be supplied with two iron pans; each pan shall be supplied with two side handles, and shall not be more than sixteen to eighteen inches in depth, and not more than seventeen inches in diameter, and of the pattern to be approved by the Council, such pans to be kept in good order to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances. Any owner or occupier committing a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not more than two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

10. No person shall be permitted to connect any closet with any drain, water-course, or sewer without the sanction of the Council, and any person so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

11. The night-soil shall be removed by contract in properly constructed carts, between such hours as the Council may determine, and the contractor will be held responsible for the careful conveyance of the night-soil to the appointed depôt, and shall dispose of the same as directed. For any breach of the conditions of this By-law he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

12. If the night-soil or any portion thereof shall be sold or given away by the Council, the person removing the same shall do so only at such times and in such manner as the Council may direct, and shall dispose of the same so as not to cause a public nuisance, and the person purchasing or obtaining it, and so dealing with or disposing of it as to cause a nuisance, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

13. The Inspector of Nuisances shall have power to visit and inspect any premises on any lawful day, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.; and any person refusing admittance or obstructing or hindering such inspector in the discharge of his duty shall incur a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

14. No closet shall be erected or commenced to be erected, except in such place or position as shall be approved by the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances, and any person being guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

15. When any new building is about to be constructed, the builder or builders thereof, shall first erect or cause to be erected on the premises, a temporary closet, not less than 3 feet by 2 feet 6 inches, for the use of workmen employed in the construction of the new building: Provided there is no other suitable accommodation upon the premises; and any person neglecting to conform to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

16. The place of deposit shall be in such locality as may from time to time be determined upon by the Council.

17. Persons requiring their closets emptied shall send written notice to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances (unless otherwise provided for); and any person wishing to use the refuse from any dry earth closet shall be at liberty to do so by making proper provision for emptying the same to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person causing a nuisance from the careless use of such pan or its contents shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

18. No person shall use, or permit to be used, on the premises occupied or used by him or her, any night-soil which shall have been brought from any other premises, unless written permission so to do shall have been first obtained from the Municipal Council or the Inspector of Nuisances of the Municipality; and any person offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall be liable on conviction to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than five pounds.

19. The Inspector of Nuisances, or other properly appointed officer of the Council, shall have power to visit at all times all night-soil depôts or places at which night-soil may be deposited, for the purpose of inspecting the same; and any person or persons interfering with, obstructing, or resisting the abovesaid officer in the execution of his duty, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds.

20. Written notice must be given to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances, by all persons about to construct new or alter existing closets, to enable the Inspector to visit and report on the same, under a penalty for neglect not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and closets constructed without such notice being given must be removed or altered, if judged necessary by the Council, under a further penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five shillings.

21. The Council shall from time to time fix the charges to be made for emptying and removing night-soil from closets, which shall be emptied as often as may be necessary in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances.

Made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Newcastle, this fourth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ST. PETERS—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 23rd July, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ST. PETERS.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of St. Peters, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

ST. PETERS MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

1. That on and after Friday, the 1st day of July, 1887, all closets erected within the Municipality of St. Peters shall be constructed as dry earth closets.

2. No closet shall be erected except in such position as shall be approved of by the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances, or other officer appointed by the Council: Provided that where practicable no closet shall be formed within twenty feet of any house or factory.

3. Every person about to erect a closet shall, before he commence any such work, give to the Council seven days' notice in writing of his intention, and of the proposed position of such closet; and in default thereof, or in case of his commencing such work without such notice, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds or less than one pound.

4. In places where lanes shall be at rear of premise the closets shall be erected on the boundary of their property, and the trap-door shall open on to lane for the purpose of emptying such closets; and in all cases the opening for removing and receiving such pans shall be not less than fifteen by fifteen inches (15" x 15").

5. If any alteration to any existing closet shall, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in that behalf, be requisite for preserving public health and decency, the Council, upon complaint of Inspector, adjudge such closet to be injurious to health or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, the Inspector shall give the owner or occupier notice in writing to make such alterations as may therein be stated, so that the closet shall be brought into conformity with these By-laws; and if such owner or occupier shall not comply with the terms of such notice within twenty-one days after the same shall be served upon him or her (which service may be effected by leaving the same with him or her personally, or upon the premises with any adult person), he or she shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, and a like penalty for every succeeding seven days during which such owner or occupier shall fail to comply with the terms of this notice.

6. All earth-closets or other receptacles wherein night-soil may be deposited shall be kept in such a state of decency and cleanliness so as not to be a nuisance or offensive to neighbouring householders or residents, under a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds sterling.

7. All pans shall be of the uniform size of fourteen inches by fourteen inches by eighteen inches (14" x 14" x 18"). Persons requiring pans must apply to the Council for same, in writing.

8. Every person guilty of a breach of any of the provisions of the foregoing By-laws shall be liable for every such offence (when not otherwise expressly mentioned) to a fine or penalty of not more than six pounds (£6) or less than one pound (£1)

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipality of St. Peters, this the 16th day of May, 1887, and the corporate seal of the Municipality affixed hereto.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF NORTH WILLOUGHBY—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 20th July, 1888.

BOROUGH OF NORTH WILLOUGHBY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of North Willoughby, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS for the Borough of North Willoughby, for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875."

1. Every person who shall be about to erect a closet, or form, excavate, or make a cesspit, before he shall commence any work, shall give to the Council Clerk seven days' notice in writing of his intention, and of the proposed position of such closet or cesspit; and in case of his commencing such work without having given such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

2. No closet shall be erected, or cesspit formed, excavated, or made except in such position as shall be approved of by the Inspector of Nuisances of the said Borough, or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Borough in that behalf; and every person being guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds; but any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer may appeal against the same to the Council.

3. Every cesspit within the said Borough shall be 4 feet by 4 feet internal measurement, and 4 feet deep, with a fall of 3 inches to back part of cesspit, which is to be 5 feet deep for 2 feet by 4 feet below the ground surface; and any person making a cesspit contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

4. Every cesspit within the said Borough shall have a man-hole outside and at back of closet 2 feet by width of pit. The cover of the same shall be made to fit tight. In no case shall there be more than 18 inches by 4 feet of cesspit inside of closet. The floor of closet to be cemented up to front of riser, and all seats to have a flap hung on hinges to cover hole. The whole to be done to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances. And any person having or making a cesspit contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

5. The walls of every cesspit shall be built of brick or stone of a thickness of not less than 9 inches, and shall be built in cement floors as well as walls, and rendered $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch thick, with cement inside in such manner as to make it perfectly watertight; and every person having or constructing a cesspit contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

6. No cesspit shall be built under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance than 20 feet, area permitting, therefrom; and any person having or building a cesspit contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

7. Every closet having a cesspit shall be built with walls not less than 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches by 4 feet 6 inches internal measurement, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened from the inside; and every person having or building a closet contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

8. Where two or more closets adjoin each other there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between every two closets, and such wall shall extend from the bottom of the cesspit through the roof of the closet, so as to effect a complete separation; and every person having or building closets adjoining each other contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

9. The top of every cesspit shall not be less than 6 inches higher than the highest part of the ground immediately adjoining it; and every person having or building a cesspit contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

10. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement, and a breach of this By-law shall make persons using a joint closet liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

11. In schools, factories, or other places of business where a number of persons exceeding twelve shall ordinarily reside or be occupied or employed, one closet at least shall be provided for every thirty persons, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of any such schools, factories, or other places of business who shall be guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

12. Every cesspit shall be built in such position that the same may be emptied without the contents thereof being carried through any dwelling-house; and every person having or making, forming, or excavating a cesspit contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

13. The place of deposit of night-soil shall be in such locality as may be from time to time determined upon by the Council of said Borough.

14. Persons desirous of using earth closets may be permitted to do so on making written application to the Council, and intimating the arrangements to be made for their construction and management, provided that such arrangements shall be approved of by the Council.

15. Owners of existing closets and soilpits may be required to alter or improve them in such manner as may be necessary in order to bring them into conformity with these Regulations, on notice being given by the Inspector of Nuisances to that effect. Persons failing to make such alterations or improvements within one month after receipt of such notice shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor exceeding the sum of three pounds for each and every week or portion of a week during which they shall fail to comply with the terms of said notice.

16. Any person or persons who shall drive, or cause to be driven, any cart or other carriage with any night-soil or ammoniacal liquor therein through or in any street or public place within the said Municipality, between the hours of 5 o'clock in the morning and 11 o'clock at night, or who shall fill any cart or other carriage so as to run over or leak, or cast any night-soil or ammoniacal liquor, slops, or filth in or upon any portion of the Borough, or who shall deposit night-soil or other offensive matter as enumerated on any spot within the said Borough without permission from the Council, or who shall remove night-soil or other offensive matter otherwise than in properly covered and water-tight carts or other vehicles, or who shall cause any vehicle used for such purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or Inspector of Nuisances, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds and not less than one pound; and in case the person so offending shall not be known to the said Council or Inspector, then the owner of such vehicle in which such night-soil or other offensive matter shall have been put or placed, and also the employer of the person so offending, shall be liable to pay such penalty as aforesaid.

17. Upon complaint being lodged with the Inspector of Nuisances that the yard, closets, or drains of any premises is or are a nuisance or offensive, and, after inspection, such shall be found to be the case, notice shall be given in writing to the proprietor or tenant of such premises to remove or abate such nuisance within twenty-four hours after such notice; and if after such notice the nuisance shall not be removed or abated, the proprietor or tenant of the said premises shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

18. The said Council may recover such sums for the emptying of cesspits or earth closets as may be decided upon from time to time by resolution of the said Council.

Passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of North Willoughby, on the 19th day of March, 1888, and the Corporate Seal attached.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT OF 1867, AND NUISANCES
PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF ARMIDALE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Acts 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158, and 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 29th September, 1887.

ARMIDALE BOROUGH COUNCIL.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws made by the Council of the Borough of Armidale, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

ALL existing By-laws of the Council of the Borough of Armidale are hereby repealed.

PART I.

Regulating their own proceedings and the duties of their officers and servants, and preserving order at Council meetings.

Meetings of the Council.

1. The ordinary sittings of the Council shall be on the second and fourth Tuesdays in every month, at the hour of half-past seven o'clock p.m., unless such day shall be a public holiday. In that case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor shall appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor—Adjournment for want of a quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of thirty minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the Minute Book.

Business of ordinary meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and signed by the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes except as to whether they are correct.
2. Correspondence to be read and orders made thereon, if expedient.
3. Petitions (if any) to be presented.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented and orders made thereon.
5. Payments.
6. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of the Committees or Officers to be made.

7. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
8. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper. Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion or to deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper without any formal suspension of this section. And also in like manner to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at Special Meetings.

4. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or Alderman at whose instance the special meeting shall be called may have directed.

Business paper for ordinary meeting—how prepared.

5. The business paper for every meeting of the Council other than a special meeting shall be made up by the Council Clerk not less than forty-eight hours before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received, or shall have been required or directed so to enter in due course of law, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made (subject to the provisions of section 4 of this part of these By-laws) in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Summons to members.

6. The summons to members of the Council for every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

7. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall, at such meeting, be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with, and such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received and preserved until disposed of, unless withdrawn before the business paper is made up.

8. All notices of motion and all requisitions from Aldermen and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matters of business for the consideration of the Council at the then, next, or any future meeting, shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received. And each such notice, requisition, and direction shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the Minute Book of the manner in which such matter has been so disposed of shall have been duly verified as required by section 4 of this part of the By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction to the Council Clerk shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of such business paper.

Motions—how to be moved.

9. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

10. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motions to be seconded.

11. No motion in Council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions to be in writing, and not withdrawn without leave.

12. Every notice of motion shall be in writing, dated and signed by the Alderman proposing the same, and no motion shall be withdrawn without leave of the Council. No motion the effect of which, if carried, would be to rescind any motion which has already been passed by the Council shall be entered upon the business paper unless a call of the whole Council has been duly made and granted for that purpose.

Amendment may be moved.

13. When a motion in Council shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Only one amendment at a time.

14. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of. If an amendment be carried the amendment shall become the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment may be moved.

Petitions and correspondence.

15. The Council may at any meeting resolve without previous notice that any petition be received, and that the same, or any correspondence read, be referred to a committee to report, or that requests contained therein be granted.

Mayor to preserve order.

16. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

17. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order, or to any point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

18. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor or Chairman thereon shall be conclusive, except as hereinafter provided.

Power of the Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

19. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may by motion respectfully worded invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may hereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding on all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mayor may take part in proceedings.

20. The Mayor may take part in all the proceedings of the Council or Committees thereof.

Questions put by Mayor.

21. The Mayor or other Chairman shall put all questions, first in the affirmative and then in the negative (provided that where an amendment is moved to any motion the amendment shall be first put), and may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to determine the sense of the Council thereon, and thereupon he shall declare his decision, which shall be final, unless a division be called for.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience of Aldermen.

22. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor or other Chairman shall decide which of them shall be entitled to pre-audience.

Aldermen to stand while speaking, &c.

23. Every Alderman shall stand while speaking, and shall address the Chair. And all members of the Council shall on all occasions when in such Council address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

No Alderman to speak twice on the same question or amendment except in committee.

24. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question unless in committee, or in explanation where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood, and then only by leave of the Mayor or Chairman: Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have a right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

25. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections on, or impute motives to, any other Alderman, or speak on any question more than fifteen minutes.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologize.

26. When any member of the Council shall make use of any language or expression offensive, or capable of being applied offensively, to any Alderman, the member so offending shall be required to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council. And if any Alderman shall refuse to withdraw such language and apologize he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and be liable to a fine of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds.

Debate may be adjourned.

27. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day, or to another day.

Pre-audience on resumption of debate.

28. The Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on resumption of the debate.

Adjournments.

29. Any motion for adjournment of the Council, if seconded, shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion be negatived it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until fifteen minutes shall have elapsed.

Any Alderman may divide Council.

30. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in committee of the whole Council, and no Alderman shall leave his seat or place till the names of the Aldermen, and how voting, shall have been taken down by the Council Clerk, or person officiating for him.

Divisions to be entered on minutes.

31. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings.

Questions to be read when required.

32. Any Alderman may require the question or matter under discussion to be read once for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon any such question or matter, and upon such request the question or matter under discussion shall be read. But no such requisition shall be made so as to interrupt any Alderman while speaking.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

33. In all cases not herein provided for resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

Lapsed questions, &c.

34. If a debate, or any motion moved and seconded, be interrupted by the number of the members present becoming insufficient for the transaction of business, such debate may be resumed at the point where it was interrupted, or upon motion by notice.

35. If a debate upon any order of the day be interrupted by such insufficiency of numbers as aforesaid happening, such order may be restored to the notice paper for a future day, on motion upon notice, and then be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted.

Committees.

36. Besides such select and special committees as may from time to time be found necessary, there shall be standing committees, namely—a Finance Committee, a Public Works Committee, a Lighting Committee, a Library Committee, and a Committee of General Purposes.

37. The standing committees shall consist of four members, two to form a quorum. Every committee of which the Mayor of the Borough is not a member, before proceeding to other business, shall choose its chairman. If the chairman of a committee shall cease to be a member of the Council, or shall decline to act further as such chairman, a new chairman shall be chosen before any further business is entered upon.

38. When the report of a select committee is brought up and presented to the Council the question as to its reception may be moved and put at once; but it shall not be adopted or taken into consideration without notice in the usual way.

39. Every committee shall have a right to take evidence upon any question or questions of fact wherein it is the duty of such committee to report. A minute of the evidence thus taken, or of its substance, must, however, in all cases be appended to the committee's report.

40. Minutes of all proceedings of Committees, as well as their reports, numbered in executive order, shall be entered in the Committee's Minute Book, and being signed by the Chairman of the Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the Committee, shall be delivered by him to the Council Clerk twenty-four hours previous to the meeting of the Council when such report is to be brought up.
