The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions, how received.

22. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How Petitions are to be dealt with.

30. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Provided, however, no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or to materially interrupt the discussion. Also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide, it shall not be complied with.

The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Mayor or Chairman to decide Points of Order—Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

37. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final in that particular case, and the Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order whenever in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman there shall be a necessity for so doing; and every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order; and the Mayor or Chairman, when called upon, to decide points of order or practices which he shall deem applicable to the case without discussing or commenting upon same.

Any member of the Council, either in Council or Committee, who shall have been called to order by the Mayor or Chairman, and who shall still persist in any line of conduct or argument which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable on conviction for each offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Mode of Voting.How Questions are to be put.

38. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions—Penalty for refusing to vote.

39. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division. In such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative, and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting—Protests to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

40. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote of the Council. Notice of the intention so to protest must however be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth or disrespectfully worded, it may, by resolution or notice, be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.Business in Committee.

41. The business Committees of the whole Council shall be conducted in accordance with the rules hereinbefore provided for meetings of the Council, as nearly as the same shall apply, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Usage of the House of Parliament to be observed, unless other provisions made.

42. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules and forms as laid down in May's Parliamentary Practice, which shall be followed as far as they can be applied to the proceedings of this Council.

Calls of the Council.How calls are to be ordered.

43. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given, for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

44. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered, or is required to be made by the last preceding section, shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk, as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reason for the same.

Penalties for absence without legal excuse—Further call when question adjourned.

45. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause, he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for ever such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such business; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment, this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing Committees.

46. There shall be four Standing Committees, namely:—A By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be held after the election of the Mayor.

Constitution of Standing Committees.

47. Each of the Committees first named in the last preceding section shall consist of three members. The Committee for General purposes shall consist of the Chairman of the three said first-named Committees.

Mode of re-appointing Standing Committees.

48. The re-appointment of the three said first-named Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case a list of the members shall be handed to each member present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong; and the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists as marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any of such first-named Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such Committees.

By-law Committee.

49. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Municipal District. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws and any Statute of which the operation has been, or may be, extended to the Municipality; and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or Statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

51. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Committee for General Purposes.

52. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned standing committees; and shall, from time to time, inquire into and report upon any such matter or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

53. The Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to the Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed; and no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any Special Committee. The appointment of every such Committee shall be made by resolution, after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of any such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein any such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members, to be appointed by ballot; and, in the latter case, or if any amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result; and in the event of its becoming necessary through an equality of votes to decide as to which of the two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

55. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee for Works, and the Finance Committee shall be for the whole municipal year. The Chairmen of these three Committees, as appointed to or removed from the Chairmanship of the same, shall be thereby, without any further order, regarded as having been appointed to or removed from the Committee for General Purposes. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to Committees in sections 109 and 110 of the Municipality's Act of 1867; and that so much of By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provision.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting, such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee for Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized; also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay, involving a disobedience or invasion of any order or resolution of such Council, shall, on any pretence, be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.—Certificate required with each claim.

60. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands, and no payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, from the Mayor, or from the officers of the Council, to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into.

In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How Books of Account are to be kept and inspected.

63. The Treasurer shall keep such books of accounts, and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda from time to time to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report to the Council at once any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may have discerned in the keeping of the same; also to report to the Council from time to time any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

No officer to show books or papers of Council without leave of Council.

64. No officer of the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, or expose any of the books, papers, or records of the Council to any person other than an Alderman without leave from the Council, except as otherwise provided for by section 103 of the Municipalities Act 1867.

No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council; and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

Requisitions from Aldermen how to be dealt with.

20. Every requisition by an Alderman, that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council, shall be regarded and treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman that such business be taken into consideration by the Council. And he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or to make any other motion which he may think fit in reference thereto, which shall be consistent with the notice of such business, and with good order. And if such Alderman be absent, or, if being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open to any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made, it shall be dealt with in precisely the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business or with good order. And if no motion shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck from the business paper.

Orders of the Day.Of what orders of the day shall consist.

21. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

22. Section 20 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered applicable to orders of the day. And the Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to, the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move: Provided that as to any order of the day entered as aforesaid, by direction of the Mayor, such Mayor may arrange with any Alderman to move, and may in such case call upon the Alderman with whom he has so arranged.

Petitions.Petitions to be respectfully worded.

23. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

24. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

25. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned; or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

26. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 25 to apply to letters.

27. Section 25 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered as fully applicable to letters addressed to the Council as to petitions.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject of motion.

28. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor or by any officer of the Council, and copies of which may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion, consistent with good order, may be entertained with reference to any such letters, whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

Reports from Committees and Minutes from the Mayor.Form of report.

29. All reports from Committees shall be written on foolscap paper with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper; and shall be signed by the Chairman of such Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the same.

Mayor's minute.

30. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.—Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

31. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand in order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without any due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman, or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid, as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

Questions and Statements.Limitations as to questions and statements.

32. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws.

Notice to be given.

33. Sufficient notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and, if necessary, for a reference to other persons or to documents.

Answers not compulsory.

34. It shall not be compulsory upon any person questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

Question to be put without argument, &c.

35. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

36. Every such statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on question, &c., rights of objection and of subsequent motion reserved.

37. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question, or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Order of Debate.Mode of addressing Council, &c.

38. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way, or for any other purpose, address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by means of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor, or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions, when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

39. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Limitations as to number of speeches, &c.

40. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than the mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion, and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak oftener than once upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain, without adding any further observations than may be necessary for the purpose of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

41. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

42. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make any personal reflection on, or impute improper motives to, any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

43. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned, shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

44. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Aldermen may require questions to be stated, &c., under certain conditions.

45. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or materially to interrupt the discussion. Also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, &c., but may address Council thereon.

46. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, nor put any question, as provided for by section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws, except as is further provided for by section 38 of the same. But such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of Order.Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

47. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final, except in so far as the same may be questioned, as in the manner hereinafter provided.

Acts of disorder.

48. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any section of this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise or attempt to raise any question, or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the said Council has no legal right to entertain or to discuss, or who shall use any other language which according to the common usage of gentlemen would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be out of order.

Mayor, &c., may call Member to order.

49. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order, whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any Member may raise question of order.

50. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

51. A member called to order shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided upon, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission such member may explain, retract, or apologise for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologise as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction, or apology shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with: Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be repeated: And provided further that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon any such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Decision of points of order.

52. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice, which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Motions out of order to be rejected.—Members to explain, retract, or apologise, &c.

53. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

54. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument, or of observations which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 48 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction, for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and on second conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction, and for every further conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

55. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice, may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retro-active operation: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which in his opinion is contrary to law.

Mode of Voting.How questions are to be put.

56. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions—Penalty for refusing to vote.

57. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Alderman shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.Mode of protesting—Protests to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

58. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute-book, but if, in the opinion of the Council it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution or notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.Rules applicable to business in Committee.

59. The following sections of this "Part" of these By-laws shall (except as herein excepted) be taken to apply to the conduct of business in Committee of the whole Council, namely, sections 13, 14 (except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded) 15, 16, 17, 18, 38, 39, 42, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 56, and 57.

Disorderly conduct in Committee—Refusal to vote.

60. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order, within the meaning of section 54 of this "Part" of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried, such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute-book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 57 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the Minute-book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary; but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the Whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

61. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provisions of section 47 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried, such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

62. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on any further day, or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sittings, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

63. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council vice versa by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided that in making of any such report as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceeding.

How reports are to be dealt with.

64. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute-book; but except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 60 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 57 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

65. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution, of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Such call compulsory in certain cases.

66. There shall, without any special order to that effect, be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 55 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

67. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered, or is required to be made by the last preceding section, shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk, as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse, and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

68. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent, and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence, shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment, this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

69. There shall be three Standing Committees, namely, a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, and a Finance Committee. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year at the first meeting of the Council, which shall be held after the election of the Mayor.

Constitution of Standing Committees.

70. Each of the three Committees in the last preceding section shall consist of three members.

Mode of re-appointing Standing Committees.

71. The re-appointment of the three said Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case, a list or lists of all the members of the Council shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such Committee.

By-law Committee.

72. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Municipality. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws, and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Municipality, and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Committee for Works.

73. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other public places under the care and management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

74. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Special Committees.

75. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed; and no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may, for the time being, have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as in his opinion ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes, to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Chairman of Committee.

76. Every Committee of which the Mayor shall not be a member shall elect a permanent Chairman of such Committee within seven days after their appointment.

Term of service in Committee.

77. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee for Works, and the Finance Committee shall be for the whole municipal year. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to Committees in sections 108 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1867; and that so much of this By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees, shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provisions.

Committee meeting, how called.

78. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee when requested so to do by the Chairman, or any two members of such Committee.

Records of transactions in Committee.

79. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make or cause to be made in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, memoranda of all the transactions of such Committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such Chairman, hand over to his successor.

Expenditure.

Except in emergent matters, cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

80. With the exception of emergent matters hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Municipality shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses—Expenses authorized to be reported—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council.

81. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

1. By order of the Committee for Works, or of the Mayor for repairs or emergent works, to the extent of five pounds.
2. By order of the Mayor for necessary current expenses, to the extent of two pounds.

Provided, that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee for works or the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized. Also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council; and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

82. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council, shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's order—Certificate to be attached to Report.

83. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, from the Mayor, or from the office of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorised or inquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons for its non-fulfilment, before recommending payment: Provided, however, that such special report as last herein mentioned may be embodied with the report by which payment of the amount in question is recommended: Provided also, that in cases of special expenditure under section 81 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate: And provided further, that in regard to salaries and wages of labour for officers, servants, and labourers, employed at fixed rates of payment by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor of the amount due to any such officer, servant, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for the payment of such amount, shall be a sufficient authorization for such payment; and such certificates, memoranda, and authorizations shall be attached respectively to the reports from the Finance Committee on the payments or outlays to which such certificates, memoranda, or authorizations have reference.

Common Seal and Records of the Council.

Common Seal and press—how secured—Care of same.

84. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be in the custody and care of the Council Clerk unless the Council shall otherwise determine.

When and how common seal to be used.

85. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without the signature of the Mayor, or in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How Books of Accounts are to be kept and Inspected.

Certificates of registration, &c.

4. The Council, upon the written application of any such occupier as aforesaid, stating the particulars aforesaid, and if, upon inspection by the proper officer, the building or land shall have been found to be secure and proper for the purpose stated, and if the proposed exhibition or amusement shall not be such as to require a license from the Colonial Secretary as aforesaid, and shall not be thought likely to entail any violation of public decency, or to endanger the public peace, or to be a nuisance to any inhabitants of the said Municipal District, the said Council shall cause the aforesaid premises to be registered in a registry book to be kept for that purpose, and shall thereupon grant to the applicant a certificate of such registration of such premises. And the said Council may at any time and for any of the causes hereafter mentioned, suspend for a stated period the effect of or cause of any such registration, and shall forthwith give notice of such suspension or cancellation to the occupier of the registered building or land; and during such suspension, or after such cancellation, such premises shall be deemed to be unregistered in respect of the purpose mentioned in the certificate of registration, and such certificate shall be of no force or virtue.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

25. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 22 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

28. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance, by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of any kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.—Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

29. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk, such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid, as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

30. The adoption of the report of the Finance Committee on the payment of accounts shall take precedence of every other report.

Questions and Statements.

31. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 34 of this "Part" of these By-laws.

Notice to be given.

32. Twenty-four hour's notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and, if necessary, for a reference to other persons or to documents: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained, shall prevent any question being put and answered without notice, by the permission of the Mayor and Council.

Answer not compulsory.

33. It shall not be compulsory upon any person questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

34. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

35. Every such statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on question, &c.—Rights of objection and of subsequent motion reserved.

36. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question, or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Order of Debate.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

37. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or any discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from doing so by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

38. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

39. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak upon any question other than upon a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain, without adding any further observation than may be necessary for the purpose of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

40. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Limited time of speaking on motion or amendment.

41. No Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer time than ten minutes except by permission of the Council.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

42. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, or impute improper motives to any other Alderman.

Adjournment of Debate.

43. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

44. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Alderman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Alderman may require questions to be stated, &c., under certain restrictions.

45. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt the discussion. Also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to be Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide, it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman may move or second motion, &c., and may address Council thereon.

46. The Mayor or Chairman may propose or second any motion, and such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of Order.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

47. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final, except in so far as the same may be questioned, as in the manner hereinafter provided.

Acts of Disorder.

48. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any section of this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise or attempt to raise any question, or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the said Council has no legal right to entertain or to discuss, or who shall use any language which, according to the common usage of gentlemen, would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be out of order.

Mayor, &c., may call Member to order.

49. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any Member may raise question of order.

50. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or the Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

51. A member named by the Mayor or Chairman as being disorderly, shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided upon, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission such member may explain, retract, or apologise for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission, to explain, retract, or apologise as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction, or apology shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with:

Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be reopened: And provided further that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon any such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Decision of points of order.

52. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice, which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Motion out of order, to be rejected.—Members to explain, retract, or apologise, &c.

53. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalty for persisting in disorderly conduct.

54. Any member of the Council who shall have been named by the Mayor or Chairman as being disorderly, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument or of observations which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 48 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and on second conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction and for every further conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council to dissent from ruling.

55. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice, may, by immediate motion, respectfully worded, invite the Council to dissent from such decision: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which, in his opinion, is contrary to law.

Mode of Voting.

How questions are to be put.

56. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.—Penalty for refusing to vote.

57. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting.—Protest to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

58. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution on notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Rules applicable to business in Committee.

59. The following sections of this "Part" of these By-laws shall (except as is herein excepted) be taken to apply to the conduct of business in Committee of the whole Council, namely—sections 15 (except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded), 16, 17, 18, 19, 36, 37, 40, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 56, and 57.

Disorderly conduct in Committees.—Refusal to vote.

60. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the Whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 51 of this "Part" of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 57 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the minute book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the Whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

61. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provision of section 47 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried, such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

62. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on any further day; or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sittings, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

63. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council, and to the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed; Provided that in making of any such report as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceeding.

How reports are to be dealt with.

64. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute book; but except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council and the order of debates on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 60 of this "Part" of these By-laws of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 57 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

65. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

66. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such members shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk, as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

67. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent, and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.Standing Committees.

68. There shall be five Standing Committees, namely—a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, a Parks Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes. These Committees shall be reappointed every year, at the first meeting of the Council which shall be held after the election of the Mayor.

Constitution of Standing Committees.

69. Each of the Committees shall consist of the whole Council, three to form a quorum.

By-law Committee.

70. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council, drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Borough. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Borough, and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

71. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges and reserves under the care and management of the Council. 73. The Parks Committee shall have the care, custody, and control of all public reserves and other public places under the care and the management of the Council; and all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council to be made therein shall be under their general direction. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

74. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned Standing Committees, and shall from time to time inquire into and report upon any such subject, matter, or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

75. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which in the opinion of the Council a Special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution of the Council; and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes, to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

The Chairman of these four Committees as appointed to or removed from the Chairmanship of the same, shall be thereby and without any further order regarded as having been appointed to or removed from the Committee for General Purposes. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to Committees in sections 100 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1877; and that so much of this By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provisions.

78. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee when requested so to do by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses.—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council.

81. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

3. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor, or any four Aldermen, for any emergent purpose, to the extent of five pounds.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized. Also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

82. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's order.—Certificate to be attached to report.

83. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate memorandum from the Committee, Mayor, or officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons for its non-fulfilment, before recommending payment. Provided, however, that such special report as last herein mentioned may be embodied with a report by which payment of the amount in question is recommended. Provided also, that in cases of special expenditure under section 81 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate. And provided further, that in regard to salaries and wages of labour for officers, servants, and labourers employed at fixed rates of payment, by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor of the amount due to any such officer, servant, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for the payment of such amount, shall be a sufficient authorization for such payment; and such certificates, memoranda, and authorizations shall be attached respectively to the reports from the Finance Committee on the payments or outlays to which such certificates, memoranda, or authorizations have reference.

Common seal and records of the Council.

Common seal and press, how secured.—Care of same.

84. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover or box, which, except when such seal and press are in use, shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor and the other by the Council Clerk. Such common seal and press shall be in the custody and the care of the Council Clerk.

When and how common seal to be used

85. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or, in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How books of account are to be kept and inspected

86. The Council Clerk shall keep such books of account and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may have discovered in the keeping of the same; also, to report to the Council from time to time any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

87. The minute-book, letter-book, and all rate and assessment books, books of account, records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, electoral rolls and other records relating to elections, business papers, reports from Committees, minutes from the Mayor, petitions letters on municipal business, addressed to the Council or to the Mayor, or to any officer or servant of the Council, orders, reports, returns, and memoranda relating to municipal business, drawings, maps, plans, contracts, specifications, agreements, and all other books and papers connected with the business of the Council, shall be deemed records of the Council. All such records other than the minute-book and other books, and other than electoral rolls and other records relating to elections, shall be numbered and filed in due order, and shall be duly registered by the Council Clerk in a book to be kept by him for that purpose. Upon the face of every document thus registered, to which there is any reference in the minute-book, there shall be a note of the page wherein it is so referred to. And when any order has been made by the Council, or a report has been brought up by any Committee thereof, in reference to any document so registered as aforesaid, a note of such order or report shall be made upon such document. It shall be the duty of the By-law Committee to inspect the records from time to time to ascertain that the same are properly kept as aforesaid, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may discover in the keeping of such records.

Impression of seal not to be taken, &c., without leave of Council.—Penalties

88. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to take any impression of the corporate seal, or to show, lay open, or expose any of the books or records of the Council to any person other than a member of the same, without leave from such Council, except as otherwise provided by law. Any member or officer of the Council who shall be guilty of a breach of this section shall be liable on conviction for the first offence to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds, for a second offence to a penalty not less than one pound or more than ten pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence to a penalty of not less than five pounds or more than twenty-five pounds.

MACLEAN MUNICIPAL BY-LAWS.

PART I.

Regulating their own proceedings, and the duties of their officers and servants, and preserving order at Council Meetings.

Meetings of the Council.

1. The ordinary sittings of the Council shall be on the second and fourth Tuesday in every month, at the hour of seven p.m., unless such day shall be a public holiday. In that case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor shall appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.—Adjournment for want of quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the Minute Book.

Business of ordinary meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and signed by the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
2. Correspondence to be read, and orders made thereon if expedient.
3. Petitions (if any) to be presented.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented and orders made thereon.
5. Payments.
6. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of the Committees or Officers to be made.

7. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.

8. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper. Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time by resolution without notice to entertain any particular motion or to deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper without any formal suspension of this section. And also in like manner to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at special meetings.

4. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or Aldermen at whose instance the special meeting shall be called may have directed.

Business paper for ordinary meeting—how prepared.

5. The business paper for every meeting of the Council other than a special meeting shall be made up by the Council Clerk not less than forty-eight hours before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received or shall have been required or directed so to enter in due course of law, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made (subject to the provision of section 4 of this Part of these By-laws) in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Summons to members.

6. The summons to members of the Council for every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

7. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall, at such meeting, be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with. And such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received and preserved until disposed of, unless withdrawn before the business paper is made up.

8. All notices of motion and all requisitions from Aldermen and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matters of business for the consideration of the Council at the then, next, or any future meeting, shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received. And each such notice, requisition, and direction shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the Minute Book of the manner in which such matter has been so disposed of shall have been duly verified, as required by section 4 of this Part of the By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction to the Council Clerk, shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of such business paper.

Motions—how to be moved.

9. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

10. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

11. No motion in Council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions to be in writing, and not withdrawn without leave.

12. Every notice of motion shall be in writing, dated and signed by the Alderman proposing the same, and no motion shall be withdrawn without leave of the Council. No motion, the effect of which, if carried, would be to rescind any motion which has already been passed by the Council, shall be entered upon the business paper, unless a call of the whole Council has been duly made and granted for that purpose.

Amendment may be moved.

13. When a motion in Council shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Only one Amendment at a time.

14. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of. If an amendment be carried, the amendment shall become the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment may be moved.

Petitions and correspondence.

15. The Council may at any meeting resolve, without previous notice, that any petition be received, and that the same, or any correspondence read, be referred to a Committee to report, or that requests contained therein be granted.

Mayor to preserve order.

16. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

17. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order, or to any point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

18. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor or Chairman thereon shall be conclusive, except as hereinafter provided.

Power of the Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

19. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may hereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding on all parties, unless, and until, it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mayor may take part in proceedings.

20. The Mayor may take part in all the proceedings of the Council or Committees thereof.

Questions put by Mayor.

21. The Mayor shall put all questions, first in the affirmative and then in the negative (provided that where an amendment is moved to any motion, the amendment shall be first put), and may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to determine the sense of the Council thereon, and thereupon he shall declare his decision, which shall be final, unless a division be called for.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience of Aldermen.

22. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor shall decide which of them shall be entitled to pre-audience.

Aldermen to stand while speaking, &c.

23. Every Alderman shall stand while speaking, and shall address the chair. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

No Alderman to speak twice on the same question or amendment except in Committee.

24. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question, unless in Committee, or in explanation, where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood, and then only by leave of the Mayor or Chairman: Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have a right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

25. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections on, or impute motives to, any other Alderman, or speak on any question more than twenty minutes.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologise.

26. When any member of the Council shall make use of any language or expression offensive or capable of being applied offensively, to any Alderman, the member so offending shall be required to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council. And if any Alderman shall refuse to withdraw such language and apologise, he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and be liable to a fine of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds.

Debate may be adjourned.

27. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day, or to another day.

28. The Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on resumption of the debate.

Adjournments.

29. Any motion for adjournment of the Council, if seconded shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion be negatived, it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until fifteen minutes shall have elapsed.

Any Alderman may divide Council.

30. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in Committee of the whole Council; and no Alderman shall leave his seat or place till the name of the Aldermen, and how voting, shall have been taken down by the Council Clerk, or person officiating for him.

Divisions to be entered on minutes.

31. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings.

Questions to be read when required.

32. Any Alderman may require the question or matter under discussion to be read once for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon any such question or matter, and upon such request the question or matter under discussion shall be read. But no such requisition shall be made so as to interrupt any Alderman while speaking.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

33. In all cases not herein provided for resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

Lapsed Questions.

34. If a debate, or any motion moved and seconded, be interrupted by the number of the members present becoming insufficient for the transaction of business, such debate may be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted, upon motion by notice.

35. If a debate upon any order of the day be interrupted by such insufficiency of numbers as aforesaid happening, such order may be restored to the notice paper for a future day, on motion upon notice, and then be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted.

Committees.

36. Besides such Select and Special Committees as may from time to time be found necessary, there shall be Standing Committees, namely:—a Finance Committee and a Public Works Committee.

37. The Standing Committees shall consist of three members, two to form a quorum. Every Committee, of which the Mayor of the Municipality is not a member, before proceeding to other business, shall choose its chairman. If the Chairman of a Committee shall cease to be a member of the Council, or shall decline to act further as such Chairman, a new Chairman shall be chosen before any further business is entered upon.

38. When the report of a Select Committee is brought up and presented to the Council, the question as to its reception may be moved, and put at once; but it shall not be adopted or taken into consideration without notice in the usual way.

39. Every Committee shall have a right to take evidence upon any question or questions of fact, wherein it is the duty of such Committee to report. A minute of the evidence thus taken, or of its substance, must, however, in all cases, be appended to the Committee's report.

40. Minutes of all proceedings of Committees, as well as their reports, numbered in consecutive order, shall be entered in the Committee's Minute Book, and being signed by the Chairman of the Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the Committee, shall be delivered by him to the Council Clerk twenty-four hours previous to the meeting of Council, when such report is to be brought up.

41. The Chairman of every Committee shall have the right, without asking leave of the Council, to remove from the Council Chamber, for any space of time not exceeding sixty hours, any book, document, or paper, other than the Minute Book, either for inspection by such Committee, or for reference in preparation of the report. In all such cases, however, he shall deliver to the Council Clerk an acknowledgment under his hand of having received such book, document, or paper, and shall be held responsible for the safe keeping of the same.

42. The Standing Committees shall be reappointed within one month after commencement of Municipal year.

43. Any Alderman moving for a Select Committee, may propose certain Aldermen as members of the same; or he may simply state the nature of such intended Committee, leaving the selection to be made by ballot.

44. Every Alderman proposing the appointment of a Select Committee must name himself as one.

45. The appointment of every Special Committee shall continue until the specified duty for which it has been appointed shall have been discharged.

46. Before any proposed By-law is discussed in Council, a copy thereof shall be open for public inspection in the office of the Municipality not less than seven days.

47. No By-law shall be passed until it has been reported upon by a Committee of the whole Council, nor until it has been twice read in Council on different days.

48. No matters of account shall be disposed of by the Council until they have been examined and reported upon by the Finance Committee.

49. No payments out of the funds of the Municipality shall be made but such as are authorized by a vote of the Council: Provided always, that the Mayor with the assent of any two members of the Committee of Public Works may, in cases of emergency, authorize the expenditure of any sum not exceeding ten pounds (£10); but such discretionary expenditure shall be reported to the Council at its next meeting.

50. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues; they shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect the finances of the Municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Public Works Committee.

51. The Public Works Committee, as such, shall have the general inspection of all public works in progress throughout the Municipality, and shall have the right of calling the attention of the Council by report to any matter connected with such works, or with the state of any public thoroughfare which may seem to require such attention, or which they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

52. No public works involving a probable expenditure of more than ten pounds (£10) shall be undertaken until the Public Works Committee have reported to the Council an estimate of the cost thereof.

53. All accounts against the Municipality relating to works shall be examined by the Public Works Committee, and such as are found correct shall be certified and passed by the Finance Committee.

Special Committees.

54. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully intrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time have been intrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be intrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein any such members as in his opinion ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; or an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot may be carried.

57. Every Alderman presenting a petition to the Council shall write his name at the beginning thereof.

58. Every petition shall be in writing and not printed or lithographed, and shall contain the prayer of the petitioners at the end thereof, and be signed by at least one person on every skin or sheet upon which it is written.

59. Every petition shall be signed by the persons whose names are appended thereto, by their names or marks, and by no one else, except in cases of incapacity by sickness; and all such signatures shall be received as the signatures of the parties purporting to sign the same, without proof thereof.

60. No letters, affidavits, or other documents shall be attached to any petition.

61. Every Alderman presenting a petition to the Council shall confine himself to a statement of the persons from whom it comes, of the number of signatures attached to it, of the material allegations contained in it, and to the reading of the prayer thereof.

Not later than the months of March and September in each year, the Mayor shall lay before the Council the accounts for the previous half-year duly audited; but should any auditor, who has by letter addressed to the Council Clerk accepted that office, not attend for the purpose of auditing the accounts, when required by authority of the Mayor to do so, or refuse to certify to the correctness of the account, unless he can prove to the satisfaction of the Council that the account is incorrect, he shall pay a fine of ten pounds, to be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices of the Peace, the said fine to be carried to the credit of the Municipal funds.

And no such suit shall be brought, or information laid as aforesaid, against any member of the Council or auditor, except by the order of such Council; nor shall any similar proceeding be taken against any officer of the Council except on the order of such Council or of the Mayor, nor against any other person except upon the order of the Council, or of the Mayor, or of the By-law Committee. And no such suit shall be directed to be brought, nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid, except on an express resolution of the Council, in any case where the bringing of such suit or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction by such Council, or where on the trial or hearing of any such suit or information the same shall have been dismissed on its merits: Provided that in any such case the conduct or prosecution of any such suit or information may, on the order of the Council, be entrusted to an attorney.

How notices are to be published.

77. Mode of addressing the Council.

31. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall take part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way, or for any other purpose, address observations to the Council, shall, while doing so, stand up in his customary place, unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity, and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case, the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.

(FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 7.

The Chairman, Fire Brigades Board, to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, Head Quarters Fire Station, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, April, 1889.
I have the honor, on behalf of the Fire Brigades Board, to present to you its fifth Annual Report for the year ending 31st December, 1888, in accordance with the 7th section of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884.

Combined with this report will be found the annual report and statistical returns of the Superintendent of Fire Brigades, and the whole is hereby presented as one, under the administration of the Board, in accordance with the 1st section of the Act. The seats on the Board held by the representatives of the Municipal Councils, Insurance Companies, and Volunteer Fire Companies became vacant in the month of March, by effluxion of time. The usual elections were then held, which resulted as follows:—For the Sydney Municipal Council, Mr. S. E. Loes (re-elected); for the Suburban Municipalities, Mr. R. McCoy (re-elected); for the local Fire Insurance Companies, Mr. Walter Church (re-elected); for the Foreign Fire Insurance Companies, Mr. W. A. Gibb (vice Mr. M. W. S. Clark); for the Volunteer Fire Companies, Mr. E. J. Love was re-elected.

At the first meeting of the newly constituted Board Mr. Church was unanimously elected to the position of Vice-Chairman.

With regard to the Insurance Companies a list is appended which shows the amount held at risk, and the amounts contributed by each Company.

On comparing the gross total of the amounts held at risk by the Insurance Companies, a slight increase will be observed, which appears to have been general with all Companies.

The figures representing the previous year amounted to £49,209,395, and those which represented last year were £50,528,368, showing the increase to have been £1,318,973. The previous year's increase amounted to £2,956,025.

The names of two new Insurance Offices appear on the list for 1888, viz.:—The Australian Traders' Mutual, and the Fire, Marine, and Accident Indemnity Company.

Messrs. S. Hoffnung and Company by an arrangement with the offices interested contributed a pro rata amount on the sum of £39,500. This last-mentioned sum represents an amount which that firm has insured with offices not represented in the Colony.

There are several firms in the city who are compelled to effect insurances elsewhere, and such firms have agreed with the Insurance Offices to pay all fire brigade charges, &c., as there is no provision in the Act empowering the Board to levy on these firms, no steps of a definite character have been taken.

The figures represented above, and which are shown in the list referred to, are compiled from a statutory declaration furnished by the Companies in accordance with the 15th section of the Act.

Forty-one Insurance Companies contributed during the past year as against forty-two during the previous year.

In connection with the Municipal Councils the list remains the same as last year's report, although the aggregate amount of ratable property has slightly increased. Each Council shows an increase, and on comparing the figures for 1887 with those of 1888 the following increase is found:—

Assessment 31st December, 1887...	£4,293,962
Assessment 31st December, 1886...	£3,945,291
Increase...	£348,671

as against, £272,137 for the year 1887.

The extension and maintenance of a thorough system of fire protection in the city and suburbs has been still further advantageously carried out, but as the Superintendent in his report has particularized the extension, there is no necessity to allude to it again.

The Superintendent also refers to the completion and occupation of the head quarters fire station.

The Board is confident, that the erection of this station was a step in the right direction, as the citizens can rely more confidently upon better and more effectual service. Much has been said in previous reports concerning the advantages to be derived from this station; and the Board is pleased to be able to report that all the anticipations have been fully realized.

The offices of the Board have been removed to the head station, where the administration of the Act is carried on in conjunction with the working of the department in the matter of fire extinction.

The Board would recommend the careful perusal of the Superintendent's report, as there are several important matters mentioned in it connected with the administration and working of this department.

During the year the position of the principal foreman, or second to the Superintendent, was vacated by Mr. William Bouch. After very careful consideration the Board was of the opinion that a person should be appointed, whose experience and knowledge was such as to be thoroughly qualified and fit to undertake the duties and responsibilities of superintendent, should at any time the latter be absent or temporarily incapacitated.

The appointment of Mr. Alfred Webb, late of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, London, was the outcome of this resolution; and from the excellent recommendations received the Board has no doubt that its expectations will be fully realized.

The Board regrets very much that it is obliged to again bring under the notice of the Honorable Colonial Secretary the defectiveness of the Fire Brigade Act. As the Board has repeatedly expressed its views on this subject in previous reports and by deputations, it would be needless to again recapitulate them. In former reports the special points requiring legislation, and also the unworkable nature of the Act, has been pointed out, and in an amending Bill the Board has shown how the defects might be remedied. Each succeeding year brings with it additional dangers, with fresh and increasing responsibilities, besides increasing values of the merchandise stored in the various warehouses. Representations have been repeatedly made in previous reports, and during the past year the Board proposed an amending Bill, and invited the Insurance Companies and Municipal Councils to suggest any amendments they might think desirable. Several amendments were made and embodied in the draft Bill (copy herewith annexed), and finally the same was presented to the Colonial Secretary in October last.

The Board desire therefore to place this matter more forcibly in the light which, in the interests of the public, it should be taken. As an instance why legislation should be brought to bear on the subject is the fact of the enormous value of the properties. There should be restrictions as to storage, otherwise, in the course of competition, we shall be having warehouses of tremendous cubical capacity, stocked with valuable goods, and as it has been repeatedly pointed out, were a fire to occur in any of these lofty buildings we shall be experiencing gigantic fires.

The Board feels that it has only done its duty by calling attention to these matters, as unless some steps are taken by the Legislature, and special endeavours made, immense sacrifice of property, and probably loss of life, may ensue. With regard to the question of holding inquests on fires, inquiries have been held where the circumstances attending the origin were suspicious. Here again, the want of better legislation is much felt. The special points requiring amendment have already been mentioned in former reports, and is also dealt with in the proposed amending Bill.

The most important subject, however, is that of our water supply. During the past year this matter has been seriously considered, and as several instances have happened of defectiveness in the existing system, the Board has considered it desirable to represent such in as forcible language as possible. Soon after the present Water Supply and Sewerage Board came in existence, the Brigade Superintendent reported very fully on the matter, and as that report contains the gist of what is absolutely required for the City of Sydney, the Board have considered it advisable to annex that document to this report. It is very pleasing to note that the Water Board has seriously taken the matter up, and it is confidently hoped that at an early date the whole system will be attended to such an extent as to be of more service, and also to be a source of reliability for all future time.

The unfortunate accident which befel one of the members of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade at a fire in York-street, whereby his life was lost, adds another instance for special comment. The defects of the Building Act have been repeatedly referred to, and as there are no provisions for protection from accident around dangerous openings, lifts, and well-holes in warehouses, great danger menaces the firemen, when performing their duty to the public.

The Board has framed various amendments to the City of Sydney Improvement Act, but up to the present time the Board administering that Act has not been successful in putting them in force, and it is feared that at some time there will be cause to regret that the suggestions referred to have not been carried out.

The Board again deems it its duty to call attention to representations made in previous reports concerning the great want of a fire station in the northern part of the City, and in doing so it desires to emphasize the remarks of the Superintendent in his report. That the station is absolutely required, when the value of the Government buildings, bonded warehouses, wool stores, shipping, and other properties at risk in that part of the City are considered.

Newtown is another important locality which deserves particular attention. Endeavours have been made to obtain a site for a fire station there, on the land lately occupied as a police station, as this site is the most central and would be the best for all time.

The Board desire to strongly urge the adoption of its recommendations more especially in the interest of the business and manufacturing portion of that community. The Volunteer Company at Newtown find the present station scarcely habitable, and in consequence of which have been on the point of disbanding. In the absence of possessing a suitable site the Board is unable to afford sufficient protection in this important locality.

With this report is annexed a tabulated summary of the working of the whole of the Volunteer Fire Companies as a body.

In conclusion the Board has to express a hope that at the most convenient and early date the Government will take action in this and former reports, with the view of affording further protection to life and property in this large and growing metropolis.

I have, &c.,
 CHARLES BOWN,
 Chairman, Fire Brigades Board.

APPENDIX I.

REPORT from the Superintendent of Fire Brigades to the Fire Brigades Board.

Gentlemen,

Metropolitan Fire Brigade Headquarters Station, 18 June, 1888.
 I am pleased to receive a letter from the Secretary of the Water and Sewerage Department asking me to furnish his Board with my suggestions respecting the adoption of some precaution such as I may think necessary to ensure a plentiful supply of water for the purpose of extinguishing fires. As this question of our water reticulation, and arrangements for putting out fires generally, is a serious one to consider for the future requirements of the city and suburbs, I have considered it my duty to answer it through the medium of your Board in order to record more fully the many objections in the water system that have existed, that now exist, and perhaps will continue to exist, if not dealt with at once.

In the first place, I do not think it necessary to go over the same ground covering all the subjects dealt with in our annual reports on the water supply as some of the defects have been removed though many still remain. I would, therefore, recommend a copy of each of your annual reports to be sent with the letter to the Water and Sewerage Board, to assist it in its work.

The first and most serious matter which I desire to point out, is the practice of putting down 3in. and 4in. water-mains in districts which are fast becoming manufacturing centres and where large warehouses are springing up, besides which the average drawing off after being laid for a few years would be much too great for their delivcing capacity. Irrespective of this it is a very great question whether the Prospect water being filtered (not naturally filtered, as in the case of the Botany water) will not corrode the water pipes quicker and thereby cause the smaller pipes to be taken up more frequently than hitherto, which, not only means additional expense for replacing the pipes, but the cost of reconnecting each house and remaking the roads or pavements.

Another serious matter which must be well borne in mind is, that if the water-mains are to be placed under the pavements in the future, some provision should be made respecting the depth they should be placed underground to save them from being broken, which, if not so protected, would happen if heavy walls fell on them during a fire, and thereby probably causing a sudden stoppage to all the fire-engines. Accidents such as these have happened before in many Cities.

As regards the present system of plug-boxes and ball hydrants on all mains for the extinguishing of fires, I may say that it is a foolish system indeed, as I have repeatedly pointed out that it is of no use putting plug-boxes down where the pressure is over 60 lb. on the square inch with a good flow, such as is found in York-street, as it is almost impossible for even three or four men to ship a standpipe when once the plug is drawn. To give an illustration of this mistake, I may state that at the late fire at Messrs. Fraser's in York-street I gave an order for a hydrant to be used, but the turncock, on his arrival at the fire, immediately drew a plug, and six men were unable to ship the standpipe, thereby causing a fearful waste of water, and not being able to extinguish the fire so quickly until the water had been shut off, the plug put in, and the valve opened again. I may here add that at times, under lower pressure, the same thing has occurred by the shoes of the standpipe catching the flange of iron, owing to the sand or clay shifting, thereby causing the plug-box to be slightly shifted.

Again, the system of placing one plug and one ball-hydrant along the main is extremely foolish, as the first hydrant may be doing very good work, but some Volunteer Company coming up might start a plug, which would take away the whole of the water until the standpipe was adripped.

While speaking of both plug-boxes and ball-hydrants, I would strongly recommend your Board to ask the Water and Sewerage Board to adopt a system of screw-down hydrants in our principal thoroughfares, and not to buy any more plug-boxes or ball-hydrants, as they are considered out of date, and are continually getting out of order, besides causing every engine to carry about 56 lb. more weight than should be carried. I am quite positive, if proper patterns were made of the hydrant I recommend, and many castings got at a time, with an engine to properly gauge and fit them together, in time they would prove themselves almost as cheap as the ball-hydrants, especially so, when once they are fitted they require very little attention, and I would gladly undertake to allow my men to periodically inspect them, as is done throughout the whole of the city of London and in most American Cities, where no plugs or ball hydrants exist. They can also be easily fitted to the present changes without further cost. If these valves were placed along our principal thoroughfares, the present plugs and ball hydrants might be utilized on new mains when being laid in the Suburbs, but in each case to so place them to suit the pressure, i.e., where there is over 45 or 50 lb. on the square inch, put down a ball hydrant under 45 lb., a plug-box, and so to use up in time the old plugs and ball hydrants, but eventually do away with them altogether.

One may be sent to the Board, complete if necessary, on application to myself.

Since receiving the letter from the Water and Sewerage Board I have tested the difference of flow and quantities of water delivered under an equal head for eight mornings at about 5-30 a.m., and the following are the results:—

Ball-hydrant, fully open, through 50 feet length of canvas rubber-lined hose, no branch or nozzle, with a pressure of 50 lb. on the square inch, a delivery of 167.7 gallons per minute was obtained.

Stance or full waterway-hydrant, as per sketch, under exactly the same conditions, 176.8 gallons per minute was obtained, showing clearly a benefit of 9.1 gallons per minute more than the ball hydrant, or 5.45 gallons per hour more, and I need hardly point out that with greater pressures better results would be obtained in favour of the hydrant recommended.

Another great gain to the ratepayers would be the chance of knowing they could put out a fire themselves by merely keeping a length of hose, branch and nozzle, and very likely it would be found cheaper to water the streets by these same hydrants, as is done in some parts of London, Paris, and other large Cities, by means of a watering apparatus.

I would also recommend that all street lamps be marked with small red numbers denoting the distance in feet of the hydrant or plug, with a small red hand pointing in the direction in which it is to be found, as is done throughout the whole of London. Main and stop valves should be placed at the intersection of the streets to ensure a system, and to enable the Fire Department in the future to be able to intercept the water from running to lower levels, especially so in the case of a turncock not being in attendance or available.

District maps should be made of all water reticulations, showing the sizes of the units, the positions of the plugs, stop-valves, main valves, &c., &c., the reticulation from each reservoir having a distinctive colour, and also showing the junction with other mains, as is done in England and America, and most continental cities.

All plugs, hydrants, &c., should bear a registered number in each street from north to south, or from east to west, and so on. The turncock having charge of the district should periodically inspect each hydrant and open same and report it to the Inspector of the district on printed forms. All dead ends should be flushed out periodically and also reported.

I would strongly recommend the Board to allow the removal of water meters in large establishments, especially in the case of large Government buildings, such as the Railway Department at Redfern and Kewleigh, where it is required to make great provisions against fire, and the full flow and capacity is wanted. The holes of the strainers of the largest water meters are not equal to the area of their quoted size, and the flow is therefore very much retarded in long services.

Some persons will perhaps say have a bye-pass in case of fire, but my experience teaches me that the bye-pass is invariably forgotten in the excitement of the moment.

The city and the suburbs contiguous to it should be placed under an inspector of turncocks, and a certain number of turncocks should have a certain area to look after together with the inspector of plugs, hydrants, and the water supply fittings in all houses, and who should report in accordance with the requirements. Each of these turncocks should take turn in attending the fire-quarters fire station. Three men should be encouraged to live within their boundary, and as close to the hot fire station as possible. They should be allowed to pay a small reward to any person calling them in case of fire within the radius of their respective districts, the payment of a reward being only allowed in the case of the first turncock in attendance at the fire. This system is carried out by the whole of the private water companies in London.

I may here point out, for the information of the Water and Sewerage Board, that at the present time the turncock is paid 2s. after every fire, if water is required from the plugs or hydrants for the extinguishment of a fire.

This practice of encouraging the turncocks has a tendency to create a spirit of emulation to assist the Fire Brigade as much as possible.

In the suburbs outside of the before-mentioned area an inspector of turncocks or a senior turncock should have full charge over a certain district, and deputy turncocks should be employed who would be subordinately responsible to the senior. These deputy turncocks should also be the actual pipe-layers of the whole of their own district as well as assisting with any other district.

I would strongly recommend the principle to be adopted that no turncock or deputy turncock should be appointed to such positions without first having served as a pipe-layer, and each and all should be governed by seniority, instead of each one doing as he liked as has been the case of late.

Steel gauges should be kept and all articles gauged to ensure uniformity, and so prevent the many mistakes that have existed occurring again.

In conclusion I strongly recommend the Water Supply and Sewerage Board to well think over the suggestions contained in my last annual report to your Board about placing the whole of the city and the suburbs having contiguity to it under a recognised and reliable head of water, so that warehousemen may be enabled to protect their own warehouses, especially so in cases of the upper stories, by means of their own fire extinguishing appliances, and further to be able to extinguish a fire long before any fire brigade could possibly be on the spot and get to work effectually.

If the scheme of Mr. E. O. Moriarty, the Engineer-in-Chief, is followed out (See page 5 "Extinction of Fires," in his report to the Honorable Secretary for Public Works, dated the 10th day of January, 1891), I am of the opinion that it will be a complete failure in many ways.

Copy of paragraph from the Report referred to "Extinction of Fires."

"Much has been said and written by the advocates of Kenny Hill as to the advantages possessed by their scheme in regard to the extinction of fires, the saving in fire insurance alone being variously estimated at £150,000 to £300,000 per annum.

"That newspaper writers, non-professional men, and quasi-engineers should fall into this error is of course not to be wondered at, but that a gentleman occupying the position of City Engineer should not only make such a mistake but should enlarge in most eloquent terms upon it does seem surprising. None of them seem to be aware that it is one of the most ordinary arrangements in connection with the water service of a town where there are reservoirs at different levels to have the means of placing the whole town or any part of it which may be desired under the pressure of the highest reservoir when required for the extinction of fire, and that the operation is performed in a few minutes by merely shutting off the connection with the low-service reservoirs and opening the valve communicating with the high service; this can be done in a minute or two on the signal of fire being conveyed to the central pumping station and instantly the whole town or any desired part of it is brought under the pressure of the higher reservoirs. Thus supposing a fire were to occur in any part of Sydney the people at the nearest fire-station instead of fussing about in the manner described by the City Engineer in his speech at the Royal Society, would telegraph the single word "fire" to the Central Station, say at Crown-street, whereupon the person in charge of the machinery there merely screws down the valve connecting Crown-street with the city mains, and opens the valve connecting them with Paddington, Woollahra, or Waverley, and in less time than it takes to write it, the whole city or any section of it which may be desired, is under the pressure of whichever of the high service reservoirs it has been connected with. This arrangement is in full operation in the city of Auckland (N.Z.), the water supply of which has been carried out from my designs. That it has not been in operation in Sydney too is a matter more for surprise than commendation of those who have had the charge of such matters."

First—The Fire Department may not get an early call for the fire, and even supposing it did it would take time to send it through the different stations, and then 5 minutes to turn off a large valve and turn another one on. By this time if a fire occurred in one of our present large warehouses, which has a tremendous cubical capacity, it would be beyond control if steam fire-engines were not in existence.

Second—If hydrants are fitted up throughout a warehouse, the night watchman would probably think of putting out the fire at once, and after getting everything ready for work in stories above the Crown-street reservoir he would find that there was no water. To my mind there is no doubt that the tremendous rush of air through the pipes caused by the water being turned on at the waterworks would add considerably to the harm already done. This is bound to be the case where the reticulation is very great in large warehouses.

Third—The telephone or telephone wire may be out of order, or the man at either end away from his post, or many such unforeseen accidents may happen by leaving things in such an haphazard way.

My experience of nearly twenty years as a paid and continual fireman in a public service teaches me never to trust to such complications, as they are bound to fail at a moment when we little expect them to do so. There are, if such a system is to be brought into working order the fire department will always have to maintain a large number of steam fire-engines, and I need hardly point out that this would be a far more expensive way than pumping the water up to higher levels at a rate given by Mr. E. O. Moriarty of one million gallons per 100 feet high for the sum of £1 sterling. If the Board think that I have gone out of my province I trust they will excuse the liberty I have taken, but having had a great practical experience in London with all the water companies, and knowing their systems, I have thought it best to state the case as plainly and openly as possible, to get the best system for the future benefit of this great city, with a view in mind that if a proper system is commenced with the present Board it will no doubt save some thousands of pounds being spent hereafter to alter it to what is both simple and perfect.

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM D. BEAR,

Superintendent of M.F.B.

Mr. Superintendent Bear's Annual Report.

31 January, 1889.

To the Fire Brigades Board, Sydney,—
Gentlemen,

I do myself the honour to submit to your Board herewith my Fifth Annual Report of the working and general efficiency of your Brigade and the several Volunteer Fire Companies, together with the details of fires attended in the City and Suburbs of Sydney, for the year ending 31st December, 1888.

The total number of alarms received for fires or supposed fires was 311; of these 35 were false alarms, 10 proved to be only chimney alarms, and 265 were actual fires. Of the actual fires 222 were slight or trifling, 19 were serious, and 25 resulted in total destruction.

Of the 265 actual fires 166 were insured, 31 not insured, and in 69 instances insurances on the buildings or contents could not be ascertained.

In addition to the ordinary fires there have been 51 chimney-fires requiring the attendance of firemen with hand-pump only, and 22 casualties in which life was lost or endangered, but in which no damage was done to buildings or their contents, making an aggregate total of 384 calls for fires, false alarms, chimney-fires, and casualties.

The fires of 1888 compared with those of 1887 show an increase of 59. In chimney-fires with engines an increase of only one. Chimney-fires attended by firemen with hand-pump numbering the same as last year, viz., 51.

In fires which were slight there has been an increase of 48; in serious an increase of only one; and in fires which resulted in total destruction an increase of 10. Among the buildings totally destroyed are classed shed buildings, weather-board cottages, &c., the extent of the damage done in these cases being comparatively small.

Attached are detailed statements of the various fires attended by the Brigade and the Volunteer Fire Companies, as well as those unattended but which have been reported to the Brigade from various sources, and a member of the Brigade was sent to obtain the necessary particulars.

The various summaries appended show the particular date, time of calls, time of outbreak, trades, localities, insurances, hourly and daily, weekly and monthly.

There is also appended a summary of the "Supposed origin of Fires" for the year.

Referring to the summary of localities, it will be noticed that in the City of Sydney alone there were 193 calls—138 of which were actual fires, 15 false alarms, 6 chimney-fires reported as houses on fire, and 34 chimney-fires, attended by firemen, with hand-pump only.

Of the actual fires in the city there were in Denison Ward, 25; Cook, 22; Macquarie, 21; Gipps, 19; Brisbane, 18; Bourke, 13; Fitzroy and Phillip Wards, 10 each.

In the suburbs there were 169 calls—of which 128 were for actual fires, 20 were false alarms, 4 were for chimney-fires, reported as houses on fire, and 17 were for chimney-fires which were attended by firemen with hand-pump only.

The suburbs affected in regard to actual fires only were as follows, viz.—Redfern, 10; Glebe, Newtown, and Paddington, 10 each; Balmain, 9; Waterloo, 8; Alexandria, Leichhardt, and Parramatta, 7 each; Petersham, 6; St. Leonards, 5; Murrickville and St. Leonards East, 4 each; Burwood, Camperdown, Manly, Randwick, and Woollahra, 3 each; Darlington, Macdonaldtown, and Waverley, 2 each; Ashfield, Canterbury, St. Peter's, and Rodd Island, 1 each.

Of the chimney-fires, 21 happened in dwellings belonging to poor persons, against whom proceedings were not taken; 15 persons were fined, which in the aggregate, together with costs, amounted to the sum of £24 6s. 6d.; two cases were withdrawn, and in one case no action was taken. The remaining 21 being outside of the city boundary, were not amenable to the "City of Sydney Improvement Act."

In summarizing the trades it will be observed that private dwellings have been mostly affected by fires, the number for all classes of damage being 93, but taking the actual trades into consideration, the most notable stand in the following order, viz.—Licensed victuallers, 22; grocers, 18; butchers, 9; general dealers, 7; drapers and milliners, fruiterers and green-grocers, hairdressers, ironmongers, printers, and stables, 6 each; boarding-houses, bootmakers, builders, engineers, general importers, restaurants, and timber merchants, 3 each; the respective numbers of each other trade affected is less than the last mentioned figure, and are to be found in the "Summary of Trades."

The strength of the Brigade is as follows, viz.—

One large steam fire-engine
Five small steam fire engines
One 7-inch manual engine
Four 6-inch manual engines
Six under 6-inch manual engines
Two telescopic ladders
One ladder van
One hose van
Three hose reels

13,787 feet of 2½ inch hose, most of which is in good condition
Eight horses
Thirty-nine telephones
Four fire-alarm telephones
Six fire-alarms in circuit
Twenty-nine firemen, including Superintendent, principal foreman, and conchman

Your Brigade has been called upon to mourn the loss of one of its members during the past year, that of Richard Dalton, who was killed at the fire in York-street, on the night of the 22nd of February, by accidentally falling down an unprotected lift, whilst the warehouse was very dense with smoke. Richard Dalton joined the Brigade on the 16th June, 1886, and served from that time until his death with zeal and energy, and was an exceedingly good member.

During the year a new Volunteer Fire Company was formed at Waverley in place of the old one, and a new fire station has been built in the Carrington Road, for which your Board supplied a first-class manual engine, plant, and a fire bell.

Another Volunteer Fire Company was also formed at Ashfield, and a fire station built in the Liverpool Road, for which your Board also supplied a first class manual engine and plant.

The Burwood Volunteer Fire Company has been furnished by your Board with a new manual engine and plant in place of the one formerly stationed there, which was found too heavy to be moved about quickly, and a new fire-bell has also been supplied.

A new Volunteer fire station has been built by the North City Volunteers in Cumberland-street, City, towards which your Board granted a donation of £25. As so much valuable property exists at the northern end of the City, I have thought it best to place one of the small steam fire-engines in reserve at the latter station, for the express purpose of being able to obtain this engine quickly by means of the horses from the first steam fire-engine to arrive at a fire instead of sending back to the head fire station first. This is the best arrangement I can make until a Northern Station is built, although the thoroughfares are exceedingly steep round Cumberland-street, thereby making it awkward for travelling.

Extensive alterations have been made to the Waterloo Volunteer fire station which is vested in the hands of your Board, and towards which your Board granted a donation of £25.

Woollahra

Woollahra Volunteer Fire Station and No. 2 Parramatta Volunteer Fire Station have been reconstructed by each company from their subsidies at a considerable cost, and I may here remark that they deserve great credit for the alterations, as both stations are now good structures.

I feel very glad to inform your Board that all Volunteer Fire Companies registered under your Board are now clear of any financial difficulties, and I think this will tend to induce the members to take a better interest in the affairs of the companies than formerly.

Telephonic communication has been established between the head quarters fire station and the undermentioned places during the year, viz.:—North City Volunteer Fire Station, Albamta Music Hall, Criterion Theatre, Gaiety Theatre, Haymarket Music Hall, Opera House.

A duplicate telephone line was erected between the head quarters fire station and the Exchange, at the General Post Office, as there was a risk of the one line being in use on the occasion of a call of fire being required to be transmitted from the Exchange.

A fire-alarm telephone was placed at the St. Peters Municipal Town Hall in connection with our No. 3 fire station, Marrickville.

I may here inform your Board that nothing has yet been done with regard to the telephone communication being established between the No. 2 fire station and Campdown Municipal Town Hall for which I had your authority, as there is no caretaker living at the hall.

All Volunteer fire stations, with the exception of Ashfield, Burwood, Manly, and Parramatta, all theatres, and all music-halls, with the exception of the Academy of Music, the Government Printing Office, the Railway Department, and the Town Hall, are in direct telephonic communication with our three permanent fire-stations.

The various police stations are also connected up through the Central Police Station. The various wharves, warehouses, business houses, and many public buildings, are also in telephonic communication, though indirectly through the Telephone Exchange at the General Post Office, which is open to receive and transmit calls for fires at any hour of the day or night.

By your Board's authority a new exchange-board has been ordered for the head quarters fire-station containing 200 shutters, and when fitted proprietors of the large warehouses will be invited to place their premises in direct telephone communication with our head quarters fire-station. The 30-shutter board will then be removed to the No. 2 station, the No. 2 station's 10-shutter board will be removed to the No. 3 station, and their 6-shutter board will then be used at the head quarters fire-station for the telephone fire-alarms distributed about the city.

The six fire-alarms fitted up on circuit have caused us a great deal of anxiety during the year, and I have had to put up a notice on each of them to say that they are "not in working order." It will be remembered by your Board that I reported some time back that I was not very sanguine as to their working continually with success. It would have been waste of money to have erected many fire-alarm wires before we occupied the new head quarters station, on account of the expense of their removal; but I trust that shortly I shall be in a position to recommend a special telephone fire-alarm system to your Board, and if approved of the telephone fire-alarm will be placed throughout the principal streets of the city.

On the 1st of March the new head quarters fire-engine station was opened and the old one in Bathurst-street was closed. The new station has fulfilled in every way what was anticipated for it, both with regard to turning out quickly to fires and for holding the necessary reserves of every kind for a large fire; and I think your Board may be well satisfied with the result.

A heater similar to that at No. 2 station has also been fitted up, for the purpose of keeping from 5 to 10 lb. of steam on a steam fire-engine during the day and night; and we can now obtain 100 lb. pressure of steam in 3½ minutes from the time of lighting the fire at a cost of about £9 a year, which is less than a fourth for which we should pay for gas to obtain the same result.

Since the fire at the Evening News Office several persons writing to the newspapers have suggested that a man should be continually on watch in the tower at the head station, and I take this opportunity to answer them instead of doing so through the newspapers.

To keep a man continually on watch in the tower means the cost of three additional men; and for the number of fires which show a light before we are called (about three a year) this appears a great waste of money. I am strongly of opinion that the same amount expended on telephone fire-alarms each year would give infinitely better results, as in time the whole of the city would be placed in direct communication with the permanent fire-stations, thus ensuring us early information of fires occurring, which is certainly not the case when they are showing a light.

In consequence of the fire which happened at Wentworth House on the 25th of December, when two men lost their lives by falling from the roof, the question of placing fire-escapes about the city has been mooted; and although it is very doubtful that the men would have been saved had an escape or a long ladder been near, on account of their peculiar position, I feel it my duty to refer to the subject.

In my first report to your Board and the Government, on my arrival, I recommended three permanent fire-stations for the protection of this city—the head station to be situated about where it now stands, another one about the same situation as the present George-street West station, and the third somewhere near Circular Quay; the latter to answer a twofold purpose, viz.,—a land station, for the protection of the enormous property at the northern end of the city and the wharves; and, in time to come, it would also be convenient for the men in this station getting away quickly with a steam fire-boat for the protection of the shipping, if the Government at any time provided one. Up to the present, as your Board are well aware, no northern fire-station has been built, and all the protection we have at present for the safety of millions of pounds worth of property is a volunteer fire-station, situated in Cumberland-street. The distance of some of the wharves from our head station is over ½ miles, therefore a fire occurring on these properties would be likely to have made great progress before we can be in attendance.

It was my intention of running fire-escapes from each of these stations, and with this object in view your Brigade has manufactured, under my own supervision, a fire-escape which can be raised to a height of just over 50 feet, and which has proved to be very suitable for the purpose. To meet the requirements of our city these escapes must be of a special design, to surmount the difficulties of the telegraph wires and the narrow streets and lanes, and your brigade must be well trained to their use otherwise fire-escapes would be useless.

While on the subject of fire-escapes it is a great question whether occupants of houses should not make some provision of their own for escaping in case of fire, and experience teaches that this is the more ready and inexpensive way, as well as the most efficient. The construction of the generality of the houses also favours this view, especially those having balconies, and the hotels, coffee palaces, boarding-houses, &c., in many instances having verandahs. In buildings of more than two storeys in height the provision of domestic fire-escapes would doubtless be best, and the business places provided with them would be more likely to be patronized than where they did not exist.

Perhaps it would not be thought out of place to say what are considered the best. For the back of premises an iron ladder might be hung from the top by means of a pivot bolt, and placed at the side of all approachable windows with a rod of iron at the bottom, also on a pivot, to enable the first person down, or any person, to pull the bottom of the ladder out about 6 feet, and slip the movable rod of iron into an eye fixed into the wall; this makes a first-class escape which any timid person could descend with confidence; it takes up very little room and its cost should be trifling.

For front escapes steel wire or steel chain ladders may be used for floors above the first floors. The ladders can be made with hooks at the bottom to hook on to eyes let into the kerb-stone, and may be kept very conveniently round small wooden drums under the approachable windows, with a portable wooden cover over them, having directions on the top how the ladder is to be used in case of fire.

With this latter kind of escape, if the fire should be coming out of the lower windows, the people in the street can keep the lower end of the ladder on the windward side of the windows, thereby making it a first-class escape. I need hardly say that any wire-worker in this city can make this description of ladder.

If fire-escapes were to be adopted, as some persons have suggested, and watches kept up throughout the night, the cost would be enormous, to say nothing about every suburb requiring the same kind of apparatus merely because they are paying a contribution, however small, to your Board. I am positive the result would be very disappointing, for many reasons. Our streets at night are almost deserted, therefore the fire-escape would probably get into calls for fires, as was the case with ourselves in the late fire at Wentworth House, and, as I have before pointed out, the telegraph lines running through the streets and in front of houses would necessitate at least two trained men on duty with each escape instead of one man, as in London.

The great question arises whether it is fair to tax the whole community, and especially so the Government and the insurance offices contributing to the support of the fire-brigade for the purpose of keeping fire-escapes in Sydney at an enormous cost to all, for the smallest benefit to a very few who should be made by legislation to provide for themselves and for their customers.

During the past year many high buildings have been erected without any regard having been paid to the distance between them and other premises, and in some cases only narrow lanes intervene. I must again repeat what I have stated in previous reports, that should a fire obtain a firm hold of one of these buildings it would not only result in total destruction to itself but would very seriously endanger the surrounding property. No fire brigade could expect to cope successfully with such a body of fire as some of these buildings and their contents represent.

Owners of warehouse buildings, having openings in their walls under a given distance from other premises, should be compelled by law to provide against the spread of fire by protecting such openings with iron shutters, and it should be made a regulation that they should be closed during the night. I would also point out that there is an absence of complete internal divisions in some of these buildings, which is an additional source of danger, and considerably augments the difficulties experienced in extinguishing fire.

I sincerely hope that this year we shall see the commencement of a system of screw-down fullway hydrants adopted by the Water and Sewerage Board, to take the place of the old-fashioned fire-plugs, which are the cause of so much waste of water and waste of valuable time in getting to work at fires. With the hydrant I have recommended the full water-way is secured and the hose can, if necessary, be connected to the hydrant without the intervention of any appliance. Neither with the ball hydrants nor with the fire-plugs is this the case, and this point is of such material importance that it cannot be over-estimated. Again, when the pressure of water is not good, hose connected to the screw-down hydrants can be led to the steam fire-engines, which may then be placed close to the fire, and thus we should have the advantage of the full power of the engines, instead of so much force being lost by friction in pumping, as we often have done through 400 or 500 feet of hose. Besides the ball hydrants very frequently get out of order, and cause us a great deal of trouble owing to the balls not working properly. Another point is the advantage which would be gained through the turncocks not having to interfere with the locks to such an extent as is necessary now to command the fire-plugs, and I have no doubt that your Board will be surprised to hear that these plugs in some cases cannot be properly governed unless five or six locks are first shut down, during which process water is running to waste, as it is very difficult to put in a standpipe when there is a good head of water. In the event of the screw-down hydrant being adopted, I have offered to take them over and cause them to be periodically inspected and tested by my own men, who will send in their reports to me in the same manner as is carried out in London and other large cities.

The whole of the Volunteer Fire Companies when at fires have worked in complete harmony both with the Metropolitan Fire Brigade and amongst themselves, and through your Board I desire to express my obligations to them for their valuable co-operation during the past year.

My best thanks are due to the officers and members of the Police Force and to the city turncocks for the cordial and energetic assistance which I have received from them on every occasion.

I have also to offer to your Board my sincerest acknowledgments for the unvarying support accorded to me, and I trust that it is pleased with the result of the year's working.

In conclusion, I have to state that the condition of the Brigade with regard to discipline and general efficiency is very satisfactory.

I have, &c.

WILLIAM D. BEAR,

Superintendent, M.F.B., and Inspector of Kerosene.

Sydney, 19th August, 1889.

WOLLONGONG FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.—REGULATIONS.

THE following Regulations, made by the Fire Brigades Board of the Borough of Wollongong, under the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF WOLLONGONG.—WOLLONGONG FIRE BRIGADES

WHEREAS by Proclamation in the Government Gazette of the 2nd of June, 1885, the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884," was extended by the Governor to the Borough of Wollongong; and whereas by letter of appointment, Francis Woodward was made a member of the Wollongong Fire Brigades Board; and whereas a meeting of the Insurance Companies, held in the Council Chamber, at Wollongong, on the 25th September, 1888, was convened by a notice published in the Government Gazette of the 14th September, 1888, but no Insurance Company was represented at such meeting; and whereas by a Proclamation in the Government Gazette of the 6th November, 1888, Archibald Campbell was appointed a member of the Fire Brigades Board, in accordance with the provisions of section 1 of the said Act; and whereas William Wiley, who was, on the 13th day of February, 1889, elected Mayor of Wollongong, in accordance with the "Municipalities Act of 1867," became by virtue of his office, and of clause 20 of the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884," a member of the said Fire Brigades Board. The Board thus legally constituted have framed the following regulations for meeting and conduct of business by the Wollongong Fire Brigades Board, as constituted under the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884."

1. The Board may meet for the despatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate its meetings as it thinks fit. Two members shall form a quorum.

2. The Board shall elect one of its members annually, to be chairman, who shall preside at all meetings at which he may be present. In his absence any other member may preside.

3. The Board may from time to time appoint a Secretary (who shall also act as Treasurer) and such other officers and servants as it may deem necessary, and shall determine their duties, salaries, and wages; and may at any time, with or without notice, suspend or dismiss any such secretary, officers, or servants. The secretary and such other officers as the Board may deem expedient shall give security for the faithful discharge of their duties.

4. The Secretary shall send notices of all meetings to each member of the Board, in which shall be stated the business to be transacted at those meetings; such notices to be delivered not later than twenty-four hours previous to each meeting.

5. The Chairman or Secretary may call meetings as may be deemed necessary, provided notice be given as here provided.

6. The Secretary or other officer acting (with the consent of the Board) in his stead shall attend all meetings of the Board, and shall enter the minutes of resolutions and proceedings in a minute-book to be kept for that purpose. He shall lay all correspondence before the Board, and shall also discharge all such other duties as the Board may from time to time direct.

7. The Board shall open an account at such bank as they may from time to time determine. All moneys exceeding £1 shall be banked by the Secretary on the day after the receipt of the same, or in the event of the bank being closed, on the next banking day.

8. Proper books of receipts and expenditure shall be kept, and receipts for all moneys shall be given on printed and consecutively numbered receipt forms, with corresponding butts, which alone shall be evidence to the Board of the payment thereof.

9. All payments of one pound or upwards shall be made by cheques upon the bank, signed by the Chairman or by two other members, and countersigned by the Secretary or other officer authorized by the Board.

10. The accounts of the Board shall be made up by the Secretary in the months of April and October in each year for the half-year expiring the 31st March and 30th September respectively, and shall be examined and verified by at least one auditor, appointed by the Board, to whom shall be produced by the Secretary all vouchers, books, and documents, necessary to verify the balance sheets, which shall be published in local newspapers by the Secretary. The bank pass-book made up to date shall be laid before the Board at each meeting by the Secretary.

11. The Secretary of the Board shall be the person to lay all informations necessary under all regulations made by the Board in terms of the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884."

12. The common seal of the Board shall be in the custody of the Secretary, to be affixed by him only by resolution of the Board, and when so affixed to be signed by all the members of the Board present at the passing of such resolution.

13. All acts done by any meeting of the Board or of a committee thereof, at which a quorum as provided by the Board is present, shall be deemed to be the act of the Board or Committee, as the case may be, and notwithstanding it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such members or persons aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, shall be as valid as if every such person had been appointed, and was duly qualified.

14. The sum of £1 is. shall be paid to each member of the Board who attends any duly convened meeting, whether there be a quorum present or not. Should a quorum not be present a quarter of an hour after the time appointed, the meeting shall lapse, and the Secretary shall call another meeting in his discretion.

15. The Board shall, as they deem necessary, purchase or lease any land, houses, or other buildings, for the purpose of providing engine-houses, brigade-offices, or alarm-stations, and may purchase or hire any engine, machinery, or other appliances for the purpose of extinguishing fires or saving life or property, and may place such appliances at the disposal of any Fire Brigade that may be from time to time established under the Board; and the Board may by resolution permit any part of these appliances to be used for any purpose, providing the expenses and charges are paid by the party or parties using the same, and that the said party shall have entered into a guarantee with the Board against all loss or damage to such appliances.

16. Members of the Board shall not vote upon any matter in which they may be personally interested in any way whatever; and during the discussion of any such matter members so interested shall withdraw from the Board-room.

17. The Board shall appoint a Captain and Foreman, who shall be paid such salaries as the Board may determine. The Captain shall be the officer in charge of all Fire Brigades under the Board, and shall have control of such Brigades when on duty or parade. During his absence the officer next in seniority shall fulfil all such duties and have charge of such Brigades. The Captain shall instruct the Brigades in their practices, drills, and parades, and direct them when on active duty at fires.

18. The Captain shall keep a roll of all members of Brigades, with a record of their attendance at drills, practices, parades, and fires. He shall report to the Board as soon as possible all breaches of rules or disobedience of orders, and pending inquiry shall suspend any member, and report such suspension to the Board, who shall inquire into the cause of the complaint; and if sustained, such member shall at once be dismissed from his Brigade, and his name removed from the roll, or shall pay such fine as the Board may impose, and failing so to pay, may be sued for same before any two Justices of the Peace. In no case shall a fine be imposed exceeding £5, in addition to any damage done to any plant, uniform, or any property of the Board.

19. The Captain shall, once in every three months, report on the efficiency of each Brigade, such report to be in writing under his hand.

20. The Captain shall preside at all meetings of the firemen, and furnish the Secretary with a list of all subordinate officers appointed by the Brigade, with their titles, such titles being first approved of by the Board.

21. The Captain shall receive all fines imposed, and all enrolment fees, and pay same to the Secretary in due course, giving all necessary particulars required by the Board.

22. The Captain shall have possession of, and be responsible for, all engines, machinery, or other appliances for the purpose of extinguishing fires, and saving life or property, belonging to the Board.

23. The Board shall pay all firemen enrolled, on the certificate of the Captain, the sum of five shillings for each attendance at drill, practice, or parade, and ten shillings when on duty at fires, if not detained more than four hours. After that time at the rate of two shillings per hour.

24. The Board shall supply each fireman with such uniform as they may decide, and such uniform shall remain in the custody of the fireman as long as he continues to be enrolled, and shall be delivered up to the Captain upon his ceasing to be a member of the Brigade.

25. On the day after any fire a report in writing shall be made to the Board by the Captain, in which report information, so far as can be ascertained, shall be given under the notice of the following heads:—Hour and date of alarm of such fire; by whom and how reported; name of occupier and owner of premises, and purposes for which occupied; origin or supposed cause of fire; particulars as to insurance of premises and contents; construction of buildings; general remarks, extent of damage, etc. The form of report to be determined by the Board from time to time.

26. On receipt of a report of a fire from the Captain a meeting of the Board shall be convened to decide whether the Coroner shall be directed to hold an inquest concerning such fire; and the Secretary shall convey at once to the Coroner the resolution directing the inquest to be held, if so decided upon.

27. The Board shall appoint a caretaker of its property, and pay such remuneration as they may from time to time determine upon, and shall define the duties of such caretaker, and may dismiss him at any time for any cause.

28. Subject to the approval of the Board, the Secretary may furnish abstracts of the proceedings to the Press, but in no case shall the presence of strangers be permitted unless with the unanimous consent of the members present, such consent to be obtained before admission to the Board-room.

29. Any member of the Board wishing to rescind, alter, or add to these regulations must give to the Secretary seven days' notice in writing to that effect, such notice to contain copies in full of his proposal.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

(LETTER OF SIR F. M. DARLEY, CHIEF JUSTICE, RESPECTING WITNESSES SENT TO GAOL FOR DRUNKENNESS IN COURT AT TAMWORTH.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 3 September, 1889.

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Chief Justice's Chambers, Supreme Court,

Sydney, 5 August, 1889.

My dear Sir,

The above appeared in the Herald of this morning, and I desire to draw your attention to it.

I submit that some inquiry should be made as to who it is that furnishes such misleading and erroneous information to be placed before the public.

These men, as you are aware, were not imprisoned merely "for appearing in the witness-box in a state of intoxication," but were imprisoned for deliberately getting drunk, or feigning drunkenness, and thus enabling a possibly guilty man to escape just punishment.

Such a crime is as serious and as dangerous to the well-being of the community as can well be conceived.

If I may be allowed to offer an opinion on the matter, and as to the length of the sentences, it is this, that Mr. Justice Windeyer is to be highly commended for what he did in the vindication of justice, that the sentences are not one day too long, and that to let these men out one day sooner than the term of their sentence will be striking a blow at the proper and efficient administration of justice, from which it will not easily recover.

This is my deliberate opinion, formed after mature consideration.

Believe me, &c.,

FRED. M. DARLEY.

MR. JUSTICE WINDEYER.

PETITION FROM CERTAIN JURORS AND RESIDENTS OF DENILIQVIN PROTESTING AGAINST THE CONDUCT OF.

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 2 May, 1889.

Unto the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

WE, the undersigned Jurors and Residents of the Town and District of Deniliquin, respectfully beg to draw your attention to the following resolutions passed at a Public Meeting, held in the Town Hall, Deniliquin, on the evening of Thursday, 28th February ultimo, and to request that you will cause searching inquiry to be made into the matter. The resolutions unanimously passed were as follows:—

- “(1.) That this meeting is of opinion that the remarks of His Honor Mr. Justice Windeyer at the “ Circuit Court, at Wagga Wagga, in October last, referring to the jurors of Deniliquin generally,
“ and more particularly to those empannelled in the case of the Queen v. Wood, were unjust, “ unwarrantable, and totally at variance with the facts of the case as given in evidence.
- “(2.) That this meeting deplors the hurried manner and undue haste displayed by His Honor Mr.
“ Justice Windeyer at the last sittings of the Circuit Court, at Deniliquin, and is of opinion that “ such conduct on the part of a Judge is calculated to bring the Supreme Court of the Colony into “ contempt.
- “(3.) That the resolutions already carried by this meeting be embodied in a Petition to the Minister “ of Justice, with a request that he will be pleased to cause an inquiry to be made into the whole “ subject.”

It is with great reluctance that we bring this matter directly before you, but feel we should be wanting in respect to ourselves if we allowed the remarks made and the recent discourteous behaviour of Mr. Justice Windeyer to pass unnoticed. We also feel that we are bound to furnish you with a reason for our apparent delay in so doing, and trust that the following statement will exonerate us in this respect:—Immediately subsequent to the remarks complained of being made at Wagga Wagga several of the Jurymen brought the matter under the notice of our senior member, Mr. J. M. Chanter, who in his place in the House called the attention of the then Minister of Justice to the facts of the case, but finding after about four months that no steps were taken to remove the imputation conveyed by the remarks referred to, a public meeting was called, with the result as above stated.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will cause your Minister of Justice to make such inquiries and to take such steps as your Honorable House shall deem to be necessary in the circumstances.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

CROWN SOLICITOR.

(LETTER FROM, AND STATEMENT SHOWING ACTIONS IN WHICH COSTS HAVE BEEN RECOVERED, THE AMOUNT OF SUCH COSTS, AND HOW ACCOUNTED FOR.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 3 September, 1889.

The Crown Solicitor to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 30 August, 1889.

I have the honor to state that I notice, in the report of Parliamentary proceedings in this day's Sydney Morning Herald, that when the question as to the vote for the salaries of this Department came before the Assembly, Mr. Lakeman stated that if what he believed was true in respect to the costs in Crown cases the Crown Solicitor must be getting £5,000 or £6,000 a year, and that it would be interesting to know how many thousands the Crown Solicitor received in the great case against the Bank of New South Wales.

I regret to say that the Honorable Member has been misinformed. I do not receive the costs recovered in Crown cases, such costs are paid into the Treasury.

Mr. Tonkin stated "this matter had been mentioned on a previous occasion; he knew for a fact that the Crown Solicitor received these fees."

The occasion on which this matter was previously mentioned was shortly after the settlement of the Pymont resumption cases, and I then prepared a Return, showing the amount of costs received in Crown cases, and the manner in which the amounts so received had been disposed of. The Return was not called for, and was retained by me. I now forward a copy thereof herewith, from which it will be seen that these costs were either paid into the Treasury or credited to the Government in settlement with the claimants. The sums paid into the Treasury amount to £1,393 9s. 6d., and the amounts credited to the Government, on settlement, £1,984 8s. 11d., making a total of £3,417 14s. 5d. received by the Government.

With respect to the case of the Bank of New South Wales against the Government, the information Mr. Lakeman requires is easily given. I have not received one shilling for costs in that case, and shall not do so; whatever costs may be recovered will, on settlement, in due course be credited to the Government.

With respect to the Pymont resumption cases, considering the exceedingly large amount of the several claims, the great labour and anxiety attending the defence, and the exceptionally successful result so far as the Crown was concerned, I think I might have fairly claimed to be allowed to retain the costs awarded against the claimants, which, however, I did not do.

I cannot understand upon what grounds Mr. Tonkin asserted that "he knew as a fact that I received these fees."

With reference to the large amount supposed to be received by me, I may perhaps be allowed to mention that the salaries of Attorney-General and myself were largely supplemented by the fees we received from patent applications, amounting lately to £1,200 or £1,300 a year; by the alteration in the mode of dealing with patents we were deprived of these fees, thus reducing our salaries by (so far as I am concerned) nearly one-half. It was understood that this reduction would be taken into consideration, but as yet nothing has been done in relation thereto.

I shall be greatly obliged if you will cause the information I now forward to be communicated to Mr. Lakeman and Mr. Tonkin.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,
Crown Solicitor.

1889.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

BANKRUPTCY ACT OF 1887.

(REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament by Command

The Registrar in Bankruptcy to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Chancery Square, Sydney, 26 March, 1889.

In accordance with your letter of 25th September last, I have the honor to submit a Report of Proceedings under the "Bankruptcy Act, 1887."

This Act came into force on the 1st January, 1888, and, being framed upon the lines of the English Act of 1883, has brought about an assimilation between the law of this Colony and that of England which cannot be otherwise than beneficial.

In reviewing the operation of the Act during the past year the most notable fact, perhaps, to be observed is the sudden drop in the number of sequestrations; the number for 1888 being only 823, whereas the number in 1887 was 1,351, and in 1886, 1,221. It cannot be alleged that there has been any corresponding improvement in the state of trade to cause this difference. Several reasons may be adduced to account for it. First, perhaps, a dread of the supposed stringency of the new law; secondly, the fact that money has been obtainable on easier terms than have prevailed for some years; thirdly, that there has been an increased willingness on the part of creditors to allow time to their debtors; and lastly, that, in anticipation of a change in the law, a great number of debtors presented petitions against themselves in 1886-7 earlier than they would otherwise have done. Reduction in number of sequestration.

The total number of petitions presented in 1888, as shown by table A, was 851; of these 728 were presented by debtors against themselves, 5 by administrators or executors, 2 by the trustees of assigned estates, 1 by the Master in Lunacy on behalf of an insane debtor, and 115 by creditors. Of these 87 were granted, 12 withdrawn by leave of the Judge, 6 dismissed, 6 were struck out in consequence of no appearance, and 4 were still pending on the 31st December. Petitions in bankruptcy.

The following are the acts of bankruptcy relied on in the several petitions, on which sequestration orders were made, under section 4 (1):— Acts of bankruptcy.

(b) Making assignment of property with intent to delay creditors	2
(c) Making fraudulent transfer of property	1
(d) Debtor absenting himself with intent to delay his creditors	10
(e) Not satisfying debt within five days after execution	2
(f) Filing a declaration of inability to pay debts	1
(g) Failing to comply with a bankruptcy notice	50
(h) Giving notice of suspension of payment	9
(j) Not presenting petition when duly required, after having admitted inability to pay at meeting of creditors	2

The amount of liabilities and assets shown in the debtors' "statements of affairs" is about the average of former years, the loss to creditors being estimated by the debtors at £190,620 16s. 7d. (See Table B.) How false this estimate was, is shown by the fact that out of the assets valued by debtors at £459,677 9s. 4d. only £58,001 13s. 2d. had been realized at the close of the year. Liabilities, assets, and deficiency.

The chief portion of the estimated assets usually consists of equities of redemption, the value of which is invariably grossly exaggerated by debtors, and which are generally found to be utterly valueless. In very many cases too, estimated assets are swelled by alleged good debts, which, in most cases, turn out to be worthless. Exaggerated value of assets.

The "bankruptcy notice," which is new to this Colony, has been made use of in 210 instances. (See Table A.) Out of these* 66 were followed by petition and sequestration; it is to be presumed therefore that in 144 cases they led to a satisfactory settlement. Bankruptcy notice.

The number of notices issued here has been, of course in fact, but also comparatively, much smaller than in England, where I find that in 1887 they nearly equal the number of receiving orders, the numbers being—bankruptcy notices, 4,861; receiving orders, 4,896; whereas the number of bankruptcy notices issued here was little more than one-fourth of the number of sequestration orders. No doubt the bankruptcy notice would be much more largely availed of if the limitation of the right of a creditor to present a bankruptcy petition were reduced. At present if a debtor has no creditor over £50 the bankruptcy notice is useless unless two or more combine. In the estates sequestered last year 4,576 debts were proved; of this number 3,328—that is, nearly 73 per cent.—were under £50. In some estates against which twenty or thirty debts were proved all were under £50. Creditors' right to petition limitation of £50.

* Only fifty of these were on creditors' petitions, the rest were by petition of the debtors

Opinion of Inspector-General in bankruptcy in England.

The Inspector-General in bankruptcy in England in his report to the Secretary to the Board of Trade argues very strongly against this limitation. His arguments appear so conclusive that I cannot refrain from quoting them. He says:—

The hardship which it entails upon small creditors has been considerably aggravated by the increasing disposition already noticed to stave off bankruptcy proceedings under the present Act. It appears that nearly 60 per cent. in number of the debts in bankruptcy are under £10, and the proportion of those under £50 probably exceeds 80 per cent. Thus four-fifths in number of the entire body of creditors have no individual power of making a debtor bankrupt, while he on his part has the power of making dispositions of his property which they have no effectual means of challenging. It is true that several creditors whose aggregate debts amount to £50 may combine in the petition, but this power is practically valueless; the creditors, as a rule, are unknown to each other, and, as a matter of fact, concerted action among independent creditors with a view to making a debtor bankrupt (unless on the initiative of the debtor himself) is, as a rule, impossible.

The arguments in favour of this limitation do not, so far as they can be ascertained, appear to rest on any solid foundation of justice or expediency. For example, it is said that its abolition would make bankruptcy proceedings too common; that a debtor may readily overlook his liability on a small debt, and that he should not on that account be exposed to the stigma of bankruptcy proceedings; and that if every petty trader might petition, it would throw the conduct of bankruptcy proceedings into the hands of an inferior professional class, and lead to an increase of professional costs. But these arguments entirely overlook the following considerations, viz. :—(1.) That a petition in bankruptcy cannot be presented by any creditor unless the debtor has committed an act of bankruptcy. (2.) That even after the commission of an act of bankruptcy no receiving order can be made against a debtor until a copy of the petition has been formally served upon him, and ample opportunity has been afforded him to contest his liability, or pay the debt, or satisfy the Court that he is able to pay his debts. (3.) That inability, when proved, to discharge a small debt is even a stronger proof of insolvency than inability to pay a large one. (4.) That the conduct of the bankruptcy proceedings in their initial stages does not now rest with the petitioning solicitor, but with the official receiver of the Court; and (5.) that the cost of a bankruptcy petition are fixed by scale, are within the supervision of the official receiver, and must be taxed by the taxing officer of the Court. The inconsistency of limiting the right of petition to creditors for £50 and upwards is made still more apparent, when it is considered that a creditor for any amount, however small, can serve his debtor with a bankruptcy notice, and thereby establish an act of bankruptcy on the debtor's failure to comply with it. It is only when he attempts to carry his action to its legitimate conclusion by securing the equal administration of the debtor's estate under a receiving order that he is met by statutory difficulties. The act of bankruptcy which he has established may be made the foundation of a petition in bankruptcy by any other creditor for £50, but it cannot be made use of by himself if his debt is under that amount. This is an anomaly and hardship which it is submitted should be removed, and the removal of which would probably aid very materially in securing an early control over the estate of an insolvent debtor in the interests of the general body of his creditors.

A Bill has, it seems, already been introduced in the House of Commons on behalf of the Associated Chambers of Commerce in England to reduce this limitation of £50 to £20.

Table C shows the number of accounts lodged during the year by the several official assignees in bankruptcy, with other particulars. It will be seen that out of 232 only 29 showed a dividend of 5s. and upwards.

There is no doubt that the vast majority of debtors only come into Court when no other course is left to them to avoid arrest or to remove the bailiff from the premises, and when they have disposed of every available asset except their furniture; and even this is in most cases found to be under bill of sale, or it is alleged to belong to the wife or some relative of the bankrupt.

This will no doubt continue to be the case so long as debtors can obtain a discharge without reference to the amount of assets available for creditors, and even when not a shilling can be realized. So long as the debtor has no interest in the amount of dividend paid to his creditors, so long will he continue to stave off bankruptcy by denuding himself of every available asset. The Associated Chambers of Commerce in England are endeavouring to remedy this state of things by the Bill before mentioned as having been introduced in the House of Commons, one of the provisions of which is that an "order of discharge" is not to be granted until one of two things is proved to the satisfaction of the Court. The first requisite is that the estate has yielded (inclusive of the expenses of realization), or with due care in realization ought to have yielded, or is likely to yield, at least 10s. in the pound of the liabilities. Failing this, it must be shown that, in the opinion of the Court, the bankruptcy is not attributable to reckless trading or other culpable conduct on the part of the bankrupt, but has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible. This would tend to put a stop to the reckless dissipation of assets before bankruptcy.

Another remedy would be the passing here an Act somewhat similar to the Victorian Act (40 Vic. No. 557) "to amend the law relating to bills of sale," which Act is to be construed with and as part of Part VII of "The Instruments and Securities Statute 1864." By the 1st section of the first-named Act it is enacted that "No bill of sale shall be operative or have any validity at law or in equity until the same shall be filed in manner provided by section 56 of 'The Instruments and Securities Statute 1864.' And no such bill of sale shall be so filed unless notice of the intention to file the same be lodged at the office of the Registrar-General fourteen days before the filing thereof." Such notices would no doubt be published in the various "Trades circulars" and give warning to creditors.

The new method of proving debts, as established by the second schedule to the Act, is much appreciated by creditors, who have been relieved of the wearisome attendance in Court, which was necessitated under the old law. This new method is not only apparently a great benefit and relief to creditors, but it removes the inconvenience experienced by official assignees in only being able to glance at the proofs when presented in Court, as was the case under the old practice. Now every proof, about which there appears to be any possibility of doubt, is referred to the official assignee, to enable him to inquire into and obtain evidence of the circumstances, and, if necessary, is entered for hearing before the Registrar and for the examination of the claimant and other witnesses.

Under the old law it was a common practice in country insolvencies, where one meeting was held in Sydney, for an alleged creditor, whose claim had been ordered to stand over when presented in Sydney, for want of evidence or when opposed, to get a special meeting held in the country, and get his proof admitted by a district commissioner. This happily is no longer possible.

But simple as the present method is, and in spite of the clear directions given on the printed forms sent by the official assignee to each creditor appearing in the debtor's "statement of affairs," it is extraordinary how many persons forward imperfect proofs, and make mistakes which with ordinary intelligence, and a careful perusal of the printed directions endorsed on each affidavit form could be avoided.

And, notwithstanding the 1st clause of the second schedule to the Act, creditors are very dilatory in proving. Again and again the official assignees are compelled to withdraw plans of distribution, which have been advertised for confirmation, in consequence of a fresh proof being made, which could just as easily easily have been made immediately after sequestration. In one estate this occurred three times, so that the rest of the creditors were kept out of their dividends for six weeks. It is difficult to see the use of the above-mentioned clause, which enacts that "every creditor shall prove his debt as soon as may be after the making of an order of sequestration," so long as there is no penalty for non-compliance, and section 71 gives creditors such wide latitude. If creditors, proving after an account and plan had been lodged, were not able to disturb the distribution, or were obliged to pay interest on the dividends delayed, unless they could show to the satisfaction of the Court that it was impossible for them to have proved earlier, they would be much more prompt in sending in their proofs, and dividends would be more promptly paid.

Under clause 22 of the second schedule, which provides for the admission or rejection of proofs by the Registrar, 4,576 debts were admitted in the estates sequestrated last year. In 748 cases, further evidence was required in support of claims, some of which were rejected and others admitted in part only. In thirty-six cases of opposed proofs, entered for hearing in Court before the Registrar, examinations of the claimants and other witnesses became necessary. There was no appeal from any decision of the Registrar in respect of proofs admitted or rejected by him during the year; but one proof was expunged and one reduced, under clause 23 of the second schedule, on evidence not forthcoming when the debts were admitted.

The Court business for the first year under the new Act was naturally much lighter than may be expected in the future, as many of the bankruptcies of the past year must occasion applications to be made to the Court for years to come; and also the scope and nature of the Act are hardly yet generally understood; thus it will be sometime before the normal limit of business in bankruptcy is reached. Table D shows the principal business in Court under the Bankruptcy Act during the year.

Creditors did not very frequently exercise their right, under section 21, of electing trustees, no doubt being unwilling to increase the cost of administration, and having full confidence in the present official assignees. In only ten cases were trustees elected, and out of these two only were in place of the official assignee. Confirmation of the election was refused in two cases; in one, on account of there not having been a quorum at the meeting, in the other case, on account of the trustee not having accepted the trust by writing. In neither of the two cases in which the services of the official assignee were dispensed with have any assets yet been realized, although in one case the sequestration occurred in June last.

Proposals for composition were accepted by creditors under section 19 in seven cases, two of which, being opposed by certain creditors, the Judge refused to approve; the first on the report of the official assignee, that a larger sum could be realized by sale of the assets, and also on account of the conduct of the bankrupt having been unsatisfactory; the result was that the creditors obtained a better dividend. In the second case also the official assignee reported that better results would follow from realization; the refusal in this case eventuated in the bankrupt so satisfying his creditors that he obtained the release of his estate under section 35. In the five cases in which a composition was approved by the Judge, the debts amounted in the aggregate to £7,378 15s. 5d., and the amount accepted was £3,867 8s. 3d.

This power for creditors to accept a composition is very beneficial where, by reason of there being foreign creditors, an assignment could not be made with promptitude. This was exemplified in bankruptcy No. 671. This estate was brought into Court solely on this account.

The 130th section is perhaps the most important of the whole Act, and the one which will involve decisions on the most weighty questions, and cause an incalculable saving of time and expense. Nine cases under this section were heard and determined by the Judge during the year, for in none of them did either of the parties desire a jury.

The applications for certificates of discharge have been very few; out of 617 bankrupts who might have applied, only 58 did so. The great majority are probably unaware of the provisions of section 41 that "no application by the bankrupt for a certificate shall be allowed after twelve months from the date of sequestration, unless notice of his intention to apply has been duly advertised before the expiration of that period, except by leave of the Judge on such terms as he may think proper."

Out of the 58 applications made 26 were granted, 6 refused, 4 suspended, 8 struck out, and 14 were still pending on the 31st December. The grounds on which certificates were refused were—omitting to keep proper books, giving undue preferences, and continuing to trade after knowledge of insolvency.

The percentage payable under section 137 out of every estate administered under the Act into the Colonial Treasury was fixed last year at the maximum rate of 4s. This, it seems, caused great dissatisfaction to creditors, and, it is asserted by the official assignees, caused a number of estates to be wound up by private arrangements instead of being brought into Court. The fixing of the maximum was merely tentative, and this cause of dissatisfaction has now been removed by a Regulation, dated 19th December, 1888, fixing the rate at 1s. per centum on the gross proceeds in every estate in which the gross proceeds do not exceed £5,000; and in cases where the gross proceeds of any estate shall exceed £5,000, then at the rate of 10s. per centum upon the amount in excess of such sum of £5,000.

Table E shows the revenue derived from the Bankruptcy Division of the Supreme Court and the salaries paid to the officers. It will be seen that the revenue exceeds by £215 12s. 1d. the total salaries paid, including that of the Judge in Bankruptcy of £2,600. But as the Judge in Bankruptcy is a Judge of the Supreme Court and can sit in any jurisdiction of the said Court, it would hardly be fair to charge the whole salary of the Judge to the expenses of the Bankruptcy Division.

Table F shows the realization of assets during the year, the cost thereof, the amount of dividends paid to creditors, the balance still in hand, and other particulars. The gross amount realized in bankrupt estates under the Act was £58,001 13s. 2d. The law costs paid amounted to £358 0s. 8d. In 1887, under the old law, the amount of £61,647 13s. was realized, and the law costs paid amounted to £3,553 14s. 9d. This of course is not an absolutely fair comparison, as many bills of costs incurred last year have yet to be taxed and paid, and the amount for 1887 included some costs incurred in previous years. But, allowing for these, the figures are still significant. There was no application for review of any bill of costs taxed by the Registrar during the year.

Table H shows the number of sequestrations in the different trades and occupations. This table was made up for the first time for 1887, at the instance of the Government Statistician. The numbers last year in the different trades are comparatively about the same as in 1887. Tailors, however, appear to have been more unfortunate.

Bankruptcy

Private Arrangements.

Bankruptcy Statistics are of comparatively little value in showing the financial state of the country unless information can be obtained as to the number of private arrangements between debtors and creditors. In England a useful piece of legislation has occurred in the passing of the "Deeds of Arrangement Act," which came into force on the 1st January, 1888, and which provides for the public registration of all such deeds. Until some such Act is passed here there will be no possibility of arriving at the total insolvency of the country. The argument that private assignments show better results than administrations in bankruptcy, is often made use of to show the inefficiency of the law. But it must always be borne in mind that where, upon a debtor calling a meeting of his creditors, the assets are shewn to be comparatively satisfactory, and there is no allegation of fraud or misconduct, in such cases the creditors nearly always, no matter how excellent the bankruptcy law may be, wind up such estates themselves; and the consequence is that private arrangements seem to realise better in comparison. It is easy for any honest debtor, who can offer his creditors a substantial dividend, to effect a private arrangement, and so avoid the publicity of the Bankruptcy Court. Debtors know that only the hope of a good dividend will induce creditors to listen to any proposals for private arrangement, and hence take care, when anxious to avoid the Court, to face their difficulties in time. It is generally only when they have utterly exhausted their assets that they have recourse to the Court. They know that there it matters not what, or whether any, dividend is paid to creditors. They can still be "whitewashed." If their certificate of discharge depended upon some certain dividend being paid to their creditors, or upon their shewing a certain proportion of available assets, debtors would pull up in time, and the records in bankruptcy would tell a very different tale.

From the sources of information open to me, I am led to believe that the assignments in 1888, were not very numerous, but that they are becoming much more common. This latter fact tends to show the good effect of the law, rather than the contrary, so far as it affects creditors, as it shows an increasing unwillingness on the part of debtors to undergo a public investigation, on account of the increased stringency of the law; and hence many arrange with their creditors while they still have it in their power to offer what creditors will accept. The more stringent the bankruptcy laws, the more numerous will be private arrangements, and consequently the loss to creditors will be less. Whether it effects any improvement in commercial morality is another question.

It is perhaps early yet to form a very clear opinion on the working of the "Bankruptcy Act, 1887," in entirety; but there is no doubt that it possesses many unquestionable advantages over the old law, among which may be mentioned—(1) the extended jurisdiction given to the Court by section 130; (2) the control of the Judge over official assignees and trustees given by section 93; (3) the power of creditors to appoint a committee of inspection under section 21 (3); (4) the manner of holding first meetings of creditors; (5) the power of creditors to accept a composition under section 19; (6) the power of the Judge to grant an injunction under section 4 (5) to prevent a debtor disposing of his property; (7) the improved and easy method of proving debts; (8) the creation of the "Bankruptcy Estate Account" under section 98; (9) the title of the official assignee relating back to the Act of Bankruptcy under section 10; (10) power of the Judge to commit bankrupts for trial under section 124; (11) the advertising meetings of creditors and applications for certificates in local newspapers; (12) the official assignees or trustees having to give seven days' notice in writing to each proved creditor of the intention of the bankrupt to apply for his certificate of discharge.

Section 14 provides that a bankrupt shall furnish to the official assignee a copy of his "statement of affairs." This, in the great majority of cases, is disregarded; and, although the Judge has power, on the application of the official assignee, to punish a bankrupt for failing to comply with the provisions of this section, for some reason or other official assignees do not move in the matter.

Table G shows the number of sequestrations in the several districts of the Colony. It appears that the mining centres show the larger numbers. As this table has never before been compiled, no comparison can be made between the year 1888 and the preceding years as to the state of the various districts.

The keeping the "Bankruptcy Estate Account," provided for by section 98, has been found to work exceedingly well, and, as it must naturally tend to strengthen the confidence of the public in the bankruptcy administration, must necessarily prove beneficial. This account has been audited every quarter by an officer of the Treasury, and has been found satisfactory.

In submitting this report I am well aware of its shortcomings, but must plead the excuse that it has been compiled with some difficulty in rare intervals snatched from very busy days, which have been found all too short for the discharge of the onerous duties of my office.

I have, &c.,

ARTHUR HENRY,

Registrar in Bankruptcy.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

RULES OF THE SUPREME COURT.

(IN EQUITY.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 44 Vic. No. 18, sec. 81.

In the Supreme Court of New South Wales.

IN EQUITY.

REGULÉ GENERALES.

The 6th day of September, 1889.

IN pursuance of the several powers vested in us in that behalf, we do hereby order and direct that the following Consolidated Standing Rules of 29th June, 1883, be hereby repealed, viz.:—Rules 4, 6, 11, 13, 26, 27, 28, 38, 58, 63, 64, 66, 68, 69, 73, 74, 75, 77, 78, 79, 81, 89, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 108, 109, 110, 120, 121, 123, 124, 128, 139, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 155, 188, 191, 192, 193, 195, 196, 197, 198, 202, and 271. And in further pursuance of the said several powers we do hereby further order and direct in manner following:—

Proceedings generally.

1. All statements of claim, statements of defence and subsequent pleadings, interrogatories, answers, and exceptions, and copies thereof respectively, and all petitions, reports, decrees, and decretal, and other orders shall be on foolscap paper written briefwise on one side only, with a quarter margin, and having not less than six folios nor more than eight folios of seventy-two words on each page, and divided into convenient paragraphs with the numbers of the paragraphs severally written on the inner edge of the margin.

2. All orders, except Chamber orders, and all decrees shall be signed and passed by the Master, and then sealed with the seal of the Court and entered in the entry-book.

3. All statements of defence, sworn pleas, and answers to interrogatories shall be taken before the Master or Chief Clerk and filed forthwith: Provided that statements of defence, sworn pleas, and answers of any party residing more than five miles from the Equity Office may be taken before a Commissioner of Affidavits or a Justice of the Peace, and the same shall be immediately sealed up and indorsed by such Commissioner or Justice of the Peace as aforesaid, as the case may be, with his signature, and transmitted to the Equity Office with the least possible delay, and filed on receipt thereof; and the signature of the party swearing the same shall be affixed or acknowledged by such party in the presence of the person before whom the same are sworn.

4. On the filing of any statement of defence, or any subsequent pleading, plea demurrer, interrogatory, or answer, an attested copy thereof shall be forthwith served on the opposite party.

Interlocutory applications.

5. Interlocutory applications in a suit may be made by motion or petition and supported by affidavit or otherwise, according to the present practice of the Court, save only that applications for orders of course may be by summons in Chambers, and that a petition shall be used in applications for special orders where so provided by Act of Parliament, or where, from the circumstances of the case or the position of the parties sought to be affected by the order applied for, the notice of motion would not sufficiently convey information of the facts and circumstances upon which the application is based.

6. Any party to a suit may at any stage thereof apply by motion on notice to the Court for such order as he may, upon any admission of fact in the pleading, or under the 36th of these rules, be entitled to, without waiting for the determination of any other question between the parties (provided that where the execution of a document is admitted, such document may be put in evidence), and the Court may, on such application, give such relief, subject to such terms, if any, as the Court may think fit.

7. Every petition shall, upon being presented and before any copy thereof is served upon any person intended to be served therewith, be filed in the Equity Office, and every person intended to be served with a copy of such petition shall be served with a written copy thereof according to the practice in reference to the service of statements of claim, together with an indorsement thereon, in the form or to the effect set out in Schedule A to these rules, with such variations as circumstances may require, stamped with the proper stamp by one of the clerks of the Equity Office.

Service.

8. Where any party shall proceed or appear in person, he shall except in the case of statements of claim and appearance thereto, hereinafter provided for, leave a memorandum in writing in the Equity Office, at the time of his taking the first step in the matter, setting forth his full name and address; and also if his address shall be at some place more than one mile from the Equity Office another proper place to be called his address for service which shall not be more than one mile from the said Equity Office; and service at the address for service set forth in the said memorandum shall be good service on him.

Pleadings generally.

9. Statements of claim, statements of defence, and all subsequent pleadings, demurrers, and pleas shall, except by leave of the Court, be signed by counsel.

Statements of claim.

10. Any person or persons trading under the name of a firm may be sued in the name of the firm, and any party to a suit may in such case apply by summons to the Court for a statement of the person or persons who are trading under the name of such firm, to be furnished in such manner and verified on oath or otherwise as the Court may direct.

Statements of defence.

11. When a defendant does not know, and is not in a position either to admit or deny a fact alleged in the plaintiff's statement of claim, he may state that he does not know, and that he is not able to admit that fact.

12. It shall not be sufficient for a defendant in his defence to deny generally the facts alleged by the statement of claim, or for a plaintiff in his reply to deny generally the facts alleged in a defence by way of counter claim; but each party must deal specifically with each allegation of fact of which he does not admit the truth.

13. Where any defendant sets off or sets up any right or claim by way of counter claim, he shall in his statement of defence state specifically that he does so by way of set-off or counter claim, and shall pray specifically for the relief that he may consider himself entitled to.

14. Subject to the last preceding rule, the plaintiff by his reply may join issue upon the defence, and each party in his pleading, if any, subsequent to reply, may join issue upon the previous pleading. Such joinder of issue shall operate as a denial of every material allegation of fact in the pleading upon which issue is joined; but it may except any facts which the party may be willing to admit, and shall then operate as a denial of the facts not so admitted.

15. Where a defendant disputes the validity of a patent, he shall deliver to the plaintiff at the time of delivering his statement of defence, or within such further time as the Court may direct, particulars stating on what grounds he disputes it, and where one of the grounds is want of novelty, must, unless the Court shall otherwise direct, state the time and place of the previous publication or user alleged by him; and at the hearing no evidence shall, except by leave of the Court, be admitted in proof of any alleged infringement or objection of which particulars are not so delivered.

Indorsement on statement of claim.

16. The indorsement on a statement of claim shall be varied from the form set out in the Schedule of the Equity Act of 1880, and shall be as follows:—

VICTORIA R.

To the within-named defendant A.B. [or where there is more than one defendant, defendants A.B. and C.D.] greeting: We command you ["and every of you" where there is more than one defendant] that within _____ days after the service hereof on you, exclusive of the day of such service, you cause an appearance to be entered for you in the Equity Office of our Supreme Court to the within statement of claim. And that you do, at the same time of entering your appearance, file in the Equity Office a memorandum stating in effect that you dispute or admit in whole or in part the plaintiff's claim, or submit to such decree or order as the Court may think fit to make, or disclaim all right, title, or interest in the subject matter of the within statement of claim. And if you admit the plaintiff's claim, you may, on the Tuesday following the eighth day after such appearance, or so soon after as you can be heard, attend either personally or by counsel or solicitor before the Judge sitting in Chambers at Chancery-square, in the City of Sydney, at ten of the clock in the forenoon, and submit to such decree as is within prayed or shall be just.

Witness the Honourable A.B., the Primary Judge in Equity, at Sydney, the _____ day of _____, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-_____, and in the _____ year of our Reign.

NOTE.—Appearances are to be entered in the Equity Office of the Supreme Court, at Chancery-square aforesaid, and if you neglect to enter your appearance, or to file a memorandum as above mentioned, or personally or by counsel or solicitor to attend at the place and time above mentioned, you will be subject to such order as the Court may think fit to make in your absence.

17. The solicitor of a plaintiff suing by a solicitor shall indorse upon every statement of claim the address of the plaintiff, and also his own name or firm and place of business, and also, if his place of business shall be more than one mile from the Equity Office, another proper place to be called his address for service, which shall not be more than one mile from the Equity Office, where writs, notices, petitions, orders, summonses, warrants, and other documents, proceedings, and written communications may be left for him. And when any such solicitor is only agent of another solicitor, he shall add to his own name or firm and place of business, the name or firm and place of business of the principal solicitor.

18. A plaintiff suing in person shall indorse upon every statement of claim, his place of residence and occupation, and also, if his place of business shall be more than one mile from the Equity Office, another proper place to be called his address for service, which shall not be more than one mile from the Equity Office, where writs, notices, petitions, orders, summonses, warrants, and other documents, proceedings, and written communications may be left for him.

Appearance.

19. The solicitor of a defendant appearing by a solicitor shall state in such memorandum his place of business, and a place to be called his address for service, which shall not be more than one mile from the Equity Office.

20. A defendant appearing in person shall state in such memorandum his address, and a place to be called his address for service, which shall not be more than one mile from the Equity Office.

21. If the memorandum does not contain such address, it shall not be received; and if any such address shall be illusory or fictitious, the appearance may be set aside by the Court, on the application of the plaintiff.

Default of appearance.

22. Where any defendant, not being an infant or a person of weak or unsound mind, unable of himself to defend the suit, is duly served with the statement of claim, and does not enter an appearance thereto within the time limited by the indorsement, the plaintiff may, after seven days from the time so limited for appearing thereto, apply to the Court on affidavit of service of the claim for a decree or order against such defendant in his absence, and thereupon the Court may, if satisfied of the due service of the claim, make such decree or order, or give such directions as to the taking of evidence and otherwise, for the further prosecution of the suit, as may seem just.

23. A defendant, notwithstanding his default of appearance, may at any time apply to the Court for leave to appear and defend upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as the Court may direct.

Security for costs.

24. If it appears upon the statement of claim or otherwise, at any time during the prosecution of the suit, that the sole plaintiff, if only one, is, or if more than one, all the plaintiffs are, residing out of the jurisdiction of the Court, the defendant shall be entitled as of course to an order for the plaintiff or plaintiffs to give security to the Master for costs. And the Court may order such security, if it shall think fit, in respect of any one or more of several plaintiffs who shall be out of the jurisdiction; and no further proceedings shall be taken in the suit except by leave of the Court until after such security shall have been given.

Demurrer.

25. Any party may demur to any pleading of the opposite party, or to any part of a pleading setting up a distinct cause of action, ground of defence, set off, counter claim, reply or as the case may be, on the ground that the facts alleged therein do not show any cause of action, or ground of defence to a claim or any part thereof, or set off, or counter claim, or reply, or, as the case may be, to which effect can be given by the Court as against the party demurring.

26. A demurrer shall state specifically whether it is to the whole or to a part, and if so, to what part of the pleading of the opposite party. It shall state some ground in law for the demurrer, but the party demurring shall not, on the argument of the demurrer, be limited to the ground so stated.

27. A defendant desiring to demur to part of a statement of claim, and to put in a defence to the other part, shall combine such demurrer and defence in one pleading. And so, in every case where a party entitled to put in a further pleading desires to demur to part of the last pleading of the opposite party, he shall combine such demurrer and other pleading.

28. If the party demurring desires to be at liberty to plead as well as demur to the matter demurred to, he may, before demurring, apply to the Court for an order giving him leave to do so; and the Court, if satisfied that there is reasonable ground for the demurrer, may make an order accordingly, or may reserve leave for him to plead after the demurrer is overruled, or may make such other order and upon such terms as may be just.

29. While a demurrer to the whole or any part of a pleading is pending, such pleading shall not be amended, unless by order of the Court; and no such order shall be made except on payment of the costs of the demurrer.

30. When a demurrer is overruled, the Court may make such order, and upon such terms as to the Court shall seem right, for allowing the demurring party to raise by pleading any case he may be desirous to set up in opposition to the matter demurred to.

Plea.

31. A defendant may file a plea to a statement of claim within fourteen days after his appearance thereto, but not afterwards except by leave of the Court. And either party may set down the plea for argument immediately.

Statement of defence.

32. A defendant who has not filed a demurrer or plea shall file a statement of defence within three weeks after the time limited for the appearance of such defendant, or within such extended time as may be consented to by the plaintiff, or as the Court may, on application for that purpose, allow. And a statement of defence shall, except in the cases of corporations aggregate, be on oath. And corporations aggregate may put in a statement of defence under their common seal: Provided that in such case the Court may nevertheless order that a statement of defence be put in on oath by such member or officer of the corporation as it shall think fit.

Reply and subsequent pleadings.

33. A plaintiff shall deliver his reply, if any, within two weeks after the defence or the last of the defences shall have been delivered, unless the time shall be extended by the Court.

34. No pleading subsequent to reply, other than a joinder of issue, shall be pleaded without leave of the Court, and then upon such terms as the Court shall think fit.

35. Subject to the last preceding rule, every pleading subsequent to reply shall be delivered within one week after the delivery of the previous pleading, unless the time shall be extended by the Court.

Admissions.

36. Any party to a suit may give notice, by his own statement or otherwise, that he admits the truth of the whole or any part of the case stated or referred to in the statement of claim, defence, or reply of any other party.

Close of pleading.

37. As soon as either party has joined issue upon any pleading of the opposite party simply without adding any further or other pleading thereto, the pleadings as between such parties shall be deemed to be closed.

Amendment of pleadings.

38. The Court may at any stage of the proceedings allow either party to alter his statement of claim, or defence, or reply, or may order to be struck out or amended any matter in such pleadings respectively as may be scandalous, or which may tend to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the fair trial of the cause; and all such amendments shall be made as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the real questions or question in controversy between the parties.

39. The plaintiff may, without any leave, amend his statement of claim once at any time before the expiration of the time limited for reply and before replying, or, where no defence is filed at any time before the expiration of four weeks from the appearance of the defendant who shall have last appeared.

40. A defendant who has set up in his defence any set-off or counter claim may without any leave amend such set-off or counter claim at any time before the expiration of the time allowed him for pleading to the reply, and before pleading thereto, or in case there be no reply, then at any time before the expiration of twenty-one days from the filing of his defence.

41. When any party has amended his pleading under either of the last two preceding Rules, the opposite party may within eight days after the filing of the amended pleading apply to the Court to disallow the amendment, or any part thereof, and the Court may, if satisfied that the justice of the case requires it, disallow the same or allow it, subject to such terms as to costs or otherwise as may seem just.

42. Where any party has amended his pleading under rules 39 or 40, the opposite party shall plead to the amended pleading, or amend his pleading within the time he then has to plead, or within eight days from the delivery of the amendment which ever shall last expire, and in case the opposite party has pleaded before the delivery of the amendment, and does not plead again, or amend within the time above mentioned, he shall be deemed to rely on his original pleading in answer to such amendment.

43. In all cases not hereinbefore otherwise provided for, application for leave to amend any pleading may be made by either party to the Court, and either before or at the trial of the cause, and such amendment may be allowed upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may seem just.

44. If a party who has obtained an order for leave to amend a pleading filed by him does not amend the same within the time limited for that purpose by the order, or if no time is thereby limited, then within fourteen days from the date of the order, such order to amend shall on the expiration of such limited time as aforesaid, or of such fourteen days as the case may become ipso facto void, unless the time be extended by the Court.

45. Whenever any pleading is amended, such pleading when amended shall be marked with the date of the order, if any, under which the same is so amended, and of the day on which such amendment is made, in manner following, viz.: "Amended day of

46. Whenever a party has obtained leave to amend any pleading, and the amendments are so inconsiderable that no re-engrossment is required, he shall thereupon give notice to the opposite party of such amendments, and the attested copy of such pleading when so amended (or, if the amendment be of such a nature as to require a new engrossment, then an attested copy of such new engrossment) shall at the time such amendment is made or a new engrossment filed (if requiring no new appearance), be served on the solicitor of the opposite party. But if a new appearance be required, the amended attested copy or an attested copy of the new engrossment shall be served on the opposite party, together with the indorsements thereon.

Interrogatories.

47. A plaintiff may, by leave of the Court, at any time before the expiration of fourteen days after the suit is at issue, file interrogatories for the examination of a defendant; and the defendant shall, on oath, answer such interrogatories and file such answers within fourteen days after the service of the interrogatories on him: And the answer shall be deemed sufficient, unless exceptions are filed thereto within seven days after the filing of such answer.

48. A defendant may, by leave of the Court, and either at the time of filing his statement of defence or subsequently before the expiration of fourteen days after the suit is at issue, file interrogatories for the examination of the plaintiff, to which interrogatories shall be prefixed a concise statement of the subjects on which a discovery is sought. And the plaintiff shall, on oath, answer such interrogatories and file such answer within fourteen days after service on him of the said interrogatories: And the answer shall be deemed sufficient, unless exceptions are filed thereto within seven days after the filing of such answer. Provided always that it shall not be competent to any defendant to file interrogatories until he has answered any interrogatories previously filed by the plaintiff for his examination.

49. Under special circumstances the Court may allow either party to file interrogatories at a later period in the suit.

Exceptions for insufficiency.

50. Exceptions for insufficiency may be filed to any answer or further answer to interrogatories within seven days after the filing of such answer or further answer. And such exceptions shall describe the passages which are alleged to be insufficient.

51. Where exceptions are allowed the Court may direct that a further answer be filed, or that the party in default be examined viva voce.

Setting down suit for hearing.

52. Within seven days after a joinder of issue, the plaintiff shall set down the suit for hearing on some day, except by leave of the Court, not earlier than the fourteenth nor later than the twenty-eighth day after so setting down the suit; and the plaintiff shall forthwith serve notice of the suit being so set down for hearing upon all the defendants thereto.

53. If the plaintiff does not set down the suit for hearing within seven days after a joinder of issue, any defendant may set down the suit for hearing, within like periods as hereinbefore provided for setting down by the plaintiff, and shall forthwith serve on the plaintiff and the other defendants notice thereof.

Default of pleading.

54. If the plaintiff does not file a reply or demurrer, or any party does not file any subsequent pleading or a demurrer, within the period allowed for that purpose, the pleadings shall be deemed to be closed at the expiration of that period, and the statements of fact in the pleading last filed shall be deemed to be admitted.

55. Any decree or order by default may be set aside by the Court, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as such Court may think fit.

Dismissal for want of prosecution.

56. Any party may move to dismiss a suit or counter claim for want of prosecution when the opposite party has not, within the time fixed by the rules in that behalf or by an order of the Court, taken such step as may be then necessary in the suit or counter claim.

57. Upon any application to dismiss a suit or counter claim for want of prosecution, the Court may make an order to that effect, or such other order, or may impose such terms, as may appear just and reasonable.

Decrees and orders.

58. The party who has the carriage of any decree or order shall, within ten clear days of the same being pronounced, or within such further time as the Court shall direct, lodge the minutes of the same in the Equity Office, and take out an appointment to proceed therein.

59. Where in any suit a set-off or counter claim is established as a defence against the plaintiff's claim, the Court may, if the balance is in favour of the defendant, make a decree for the defendant for such balance, or may otherwise adjudge to the defendant such relief as he may be entitled to upon the merits of the case.

Appeal.

60. Notices within rules 183 and 184 of the Consolidated Standing Rules of 29th June, 1893, may be signed by one counsel.

References.

61. Proceedings on reference to the Master shall be by summons or appointment signed by him. Such summons may be in the form set forth in Schedule 9 to the Consolidated Standing Rules of 29th June, 1883, and such appointment may be in the form set forth in Schedule B to these rules.

62. When a reference has been made by the Court to the Master or Chief Clerk to settle any decree or order, the Master or Chief Clerk shall direct what proceedings shall be taken thereunder, and the decree or order so settled shall be submitted to the Court for approval.

63. In directing what proceedings shall be taken under any decree or order the Master may direct what parties are entitled to attend future proceedings, the necessary advertisements, and which of the several proceedings may be properly going on pari passu, and the manner in which inquiries and accounts are to be prosecuted, and the evidence to be adduced in support thereof; and if the Master shall think it expedient so to do, a certain time or certain times shall be fixed within which the parties are to take any proceedings, and all such directions may afterwards be added to or varied from time to time.

64. Where the party entitled to prosecute a decree or order does not proceed therein within the time fixed or limited for that purpose by the Court or Master, or by any rule for the time being in force in that behalf, then the Court or Master may, upon the production by any other party interested either as a party to the suit or as one who has come in and established his claim under the decree or order of the certificate of the Clerk of the Records in the Equity Office, that the party entitled to prosecute such decree or order has not proceeded therein within such time as aforesaid, commit to each other party the further prosecution of the said decree or order, and from thenceforth the party making default shall not be at liberty to attend as prosecutor of the said decree or order, and the certificate shall be indorsed accordingly, and such indorsement shall be signed by the Master.

65. No more than one summons or appointment shall be taken out for the time during which the Master or Chief Clerk shall continue or adjourn the proceedings under such summons or appointment.

66. Every summons or appointment before the Master or Chief Clerk shall be considered peremptory, and in case the Master or Chief Clerk shall not be attended by the solicitor or a competent person on behalf of the solicitor of any party, the Master or Chief Clerk shall in such case disallow the usual fee for the solicitor's attendance, and he shall mark such determination in his book.

67. Where some or one, but not all the parties, shall attend the Master or Chief Clerk at an appointed time, whether the same be fixed by the Master or Chief Clerk personally or upon summons or appointment, then the Master or Chief Clerk shall be at liberty to proceed ex parte if he thinks proper considering the nature of the case, so to do.

68. When the Master or Chief Clerk has proceeded ex parte, such proceeding shall not be reviewed by him unless he shall, upon special application made to him for that purpose by the party who was absent, be satisfied that the party was not guilty of wilful delay or negligence.

69. Every summons or appointment to proceed upon any matter before the Master or Chief Clerk shall be issued and served two clear days before the time fixed, and, upon any proceeding whereon evidence is to be given, the Master shall be at liberty to direct from time to time that evidence shall be taken separately upon any selected point or points, and the evidence shall be taken accordingly.

Costs.

70. Where it is directed that costs shall be taxed in case the parties differ about the same, the party claiming the costs shall bring the bill of costs into the Equity Office, and give notice of his having so done to the other party; and at any time within eight days of such notice, such other party shall have liberty to inspect the same, if he thinks fit. And at or before the expiration of the eight days, or such further time as the Master shall in his discretion allow, such other party shall either agree to pay the costs, or signify his dissent therefrom, and shall thereupon be at liberty to offer payment of a sum of money for the costs. But, when he makes no such offer, or when the party claiming the costs refuses to accept such offer, the Master shall proceed to tax the costs; and when the taxed costs shall not exceed the sum offered, the costs of the taxation shall be borne by the party claiming the costs.

Time of operation, &c.

71. These Rules are to be read with the Consolidated Standing Rules of June, 1883.

72. Such of these Rules as relate to pleadings shall not apply to any pending suit in which a statement of defence has been filed, except by leave of the Court.

73. These Rules shall come into operation on the 16th day of September, 1883, and shall apply to any proceedings commenced on or after that date.

74. These Rules may be cited as the "Consolidated Standing Rules of September, 1883."

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

RULES OF SUPREME COURT.

(ADMISSION OF BARRISTERS UNDER 11 VIC. No. 57 AND 39 VIC. No. 32.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 9 July, 1889.

[Laid on the Table of this House in accordance with promise made in answer to Question No. 1 of the 5th July, 1889.]

RULES for the Admission of Barristers, under 11 Victoria No. 57 and 39 Victoria No. 32, New South Wales to wit, Friday, the 14th day of December, 1877.

WHEREAS by an Act of the Governor and Legislative Council of New South Wales, passed in the eleventh year of the reign of our Lady the Queen, intituled "An Act to regulate the admission in certain cases of Barristers of the Supreme Court of New South Wales," after reciting that it was expedient to make provision in certain cases for the admission of properly-qualified persons to practise as barristers of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, it is enacted that the Judges of the Supreme Court at Sydney, the Attorney-General for the time being, and two Barristers of the Supreme Court, to be annually elected in the month of December for the year then ensuing by the practising Barristers of the said Court, should form a Board for the approval of properly-qualified persons to be Barristers of the Supreme Court of New South Wales.

And that the said Board should from time to time, as might appear to them to be expedient, make and promulgate rules for the examination of candidates in the Ancient Classics, both Greek and Latin, in Mathematics, in Law, and in such other branches of knowledge as they should deem meet; and that the said Board might from time to time depute the examination of such candidates to such persons as they should consider competent to examine such candidates, subject to the payment of such reasonable fees to the examiners respectively as the said Board should order to be paid by such candidates: Provided that no candidate, however qualified in other respects, should be admitted to be a Barrister of the said Supreme Court, unless the said Board shall be satisfied that he is a person of good fame and character.

And whereas, by an Act passed in the thirty-ninth year of the reign of our said Lady the Queen to amend the said recited Act, it is enacted that after the passing of the said Act no candidate for admission to practise as a Barrister of the Supreme Court of New South Wales who shall have passed two annual examinations in the University of Sydney shall be required to pass an examination in the Greek and Latin Classics, or in Mathematics, and that it shall not be obligatory on any candidate whatsoever for such admission who shall pass an examination in the Latin Classics and in Logic, or in the Latin Classics and the French Language and Literature, to be examined in the Greek Classics; anything in the said recited Act to the contrary, notwithstanding. And that the Board constituted by the said recited Act shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the passing of the said Act, and from time to time as may appear to them expedient, make and promulgate rules for the examination of candidates for admission to the Bar in Logic and the French Language and Literature:

And whereas it is considered expedient to repeal all rules heretofore made for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them, and to make and promulgate the rules hereinafter contained for giving effect to the said recited Acts:

Now, therefore, we, the Honorable Sir James Martin, Chief Justice, and John Fletcher Hargrave, Esquire, Peter Faucett, Esquire, and Sir William Montagu Manning, being the present Judges of the said Supreme Court, with the Honorable William Bede Dalley, Esquire, Attorney-General, and the Honorable Frederick Matthew Darley, Esquire, and William John Foster, Esquire, the Barristers elected according to the first above-mentioned Act in the month of December last, do hereby repeal all rules now subsisting under the said Acts, or either of them, excepting in respect of acts and matters done or commenced to be done thereunder; and we do, in pursuance of the said Acts, make and promulgate the following rules for the examination and admission of candidates hereafter (see rule 28) applying to be admitted Barristers of the Supreme Court under the said Acts:—

1. Every candidate hereafter applying shall give written notice to the Board, through the Attorney-General, ten clear days at the least before the first day of some Term of his intention to apply to be admitted a Barrister; and shall at the same time transmit to him, to be submitted to the Board, written testimonials testimonials from two or more persons resident in Sydney (of whom one shall be a Barrister or a Graduate of some University within the meaning of the Acts hereinafter mentioned), to the effect that they have been well acquainted with the candidate for twelve months and upwards, and that he is a person of good fame and character.

2. The Board shall meet at the Chief Justice's Chambers at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the first Wednesday in that Term, or on some other day and hour named for that purpose by the Chief Justice, to consider the application of any such candidate: Provided that such meeting may be adjourned from time to time, as shall be found necessary.

3. No such candidate shall be admitted to any examination under the said Acts and these rules until the Board shall first have been satisfied by the written testimonials submitted to it, or by such further proofs as it may deem necessary, that he is a person of good fame and character; nor shall any such candidate after the required examinations be admitted to practise as a Barrister unless the Board shall then continue to be so satisfied.

4. In any case in which it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Board that any such candidate is a Graduate of a University within the meaning of the Acts 20 Victoria No. 14 and 22 Victoria No. 23, or either of them, he shall be at once entitled to be admitted as a student-at-law under these rules; and if it be shown that he has passed two Annual Examinations in the University of Sydney, he shall, prior to being so admitted as a student-at-law, be examined in such branches of knowledge other than the Greek and Latin Classics, and Mathematics, French, or Logic, as the Board shall have required by any rule under the authority of the first above-recited Act.

5. Every other such candidate shall before being admitted as a student-at-law be examined in the following matters, that is to say, in the Greek and Latin Classics, and in Mathematics and History, or in the Latin Classics, Mathematics, and History, and either in Logic or in the French Language and Literature; and any candidate applying to be examined accordingly shall be admitted to examination in the subjects selected by him within the terms of this rule; for which purpose direction shall be given by the Board at any meeting held under the second above rule, or at some adjournment of the same.

6. The Board shall annually on the first Wednesday in the Third Term of the Court, or on some other day to be named as aforesaid, appoint such examiners for the several branches of examination as they may deem necessary: Provided that in default of such appointment at any time the examiners previously appointed shall continue in office unless and until others shall have been duly appointed in their place; and provided also that in any case of vacancy, or upon any special occasion, the Board may at any time appoint another examiner either generally or pro hac vice, as the case may require.

7. The said examiners shall respectively attend in Sydney for the examination of the candidate on such day (after signification to them, by the Prothonotary, that the candidate is to be admitted to such examination), and at such place and hour as they shall appoint; of which appointment they shall give not less than two clear days' notice to the candidate and to the Prothonotary: Provided that the said meeting shall be within fourteen days after such signification, and that the examiners respectively shall have power to adjourn from time to time, as may be thought necessary.

8. The subjects for examination, under Rule 5, shall be those specified in the Appendix hereto, marked A; and so soon as conveniently may be after the examination has been concluded the examiners shall respectively transmit to the Prothonotary a certificate, to be laid before the Board, that they have duly examined the candidate on those subjects, in the manner prescribed by these rules; and they shall report, as to each of the said subjects, whether his examination has or has not been satisfactory.

9. The standard of proficiency to be required at such examinations as last aforesaid shall be equal to that of the two annual examinations in the University of Sydney, mentioned in the second above-recited Act,—so far as such standard is capable of being applied to the subjects of examination under the said Appendix A.

10. If it be certified that the candidate's examination has, on any subject, not been satisfactory, or if, for any reason to be allowed by the Board, he shall not have prosecuted his examination, the candidate may, upon application to the Board for that purpose, be admitted to a second examination: Provided that the fees hereinafter mentioned shall be payable in respect of each examination.

11. On the first or third Wednesday in the Term next after the receipt of any such application as last mentioned, or of any certificate from the examiners, or on some other day named by the Chief Justice for that purpose, the Board shall meet at the Chief Justice's Chambers, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, or at such other hour as may be named by the Chief Justice for the purpose, to consider the same; and shall then, or on some day and hour of adjournment therefrom, determine on the admission or rejection of the candidate as a student-at-law, or to a second examination as aforesaid, as the case may require.

12. Every such candidate as last mentioned shall be admitted as a student-at-law when he shall (subject to the next succeeding rule) have passed satisfactorily in all the subjects in Appendix A, in which he shall have elected or shall be required under the provisions of the second above-recited Act to be examined.

13. Provided that where one paper only has been answered unsatisfactorily, the Board may, in its discretion, approve of the candidate, if the examiners certify, as to any three of the other papers, that his examinations therein have been "very" satisfactory.

14. Provided also that nothing in these rules shall prevent any person who shall have failed in passing, notwithstanding two examinations, from applying de novo at any time after twelve months after the date of such failure.

15. The several examinations in law of any such candidate may be at any times within three years after he shall have been admitted as a student at law, upon signification by him to the Prothonotary of the Court that he is prepared for any such examination, and that he desires to proceed to the same: Provided that the Board may, if it so think fit, allow any such examination at a time later than the expiration of the said period of three years.

16. The final examination in law of any candidate shall not be permitted until he shall have been a student-at-law within the meaning of the preceding rules for at least one year; and during the period between the admission of a candidate as a student-at-law and his admission to the Bar such candidate shall pursue no business or occupation otherwise than in the way of study and preparation for the Bar or in the nature of a literary pursuit.

17. Such examinations in law shall be by two or more practising Barristers, to be annually appointed for that purpose by the Board, as provided by Rule 6: Provided that the Board may, in respect of any branch of such examinations, appoint also, as examiner, any Professor or Lecturer of the University of Sydney who may be conversant with the subjects thereof.

18. The examiners in law shall attend in Sydney, for the examination of any student-at-law, on such day after signification to them by the Prothonotary that such student desires to proceed to any such examination, and at such place and hour as they shall appoint; of which appointment two clear days' notice shall be given to the student by the examiners. Such attendance to be as soon after such signification as conveniently may be; but the examiners shall have power to adjourn from time to time, as may be by them thought necessary.

19. The subjects for examination in law shall be those specified in the appendix hereto, marked B; and so soon as any examination has been concluded in either of the branches therein prescribed the examiners shall transmit to the Prothonotary a certificate and report as to those subjects, to the effects mentioned in the 8th of these rules: Provided that the students shall be first examined in the subjects of the first branch, and shall not proceed to examination in the second branch until they shall be adjudged to have passed satisfactorily in the said first branch.

20. On the first or third Wednesday in the Term next after the receipt of any certificate from the examiners in law, or on some other day to be named by the Chief Justice for that purpose, the Board shall meet and consider the same; and shall then, or on some day of adjournment, determine as to the sufficiency or otherwise of the student's proficiency in the subjects of the examination to which the said certificate shall relate, or on admitting the candidate to a second examination, as provided in Rule 10 as to examinations under Appendix A.

21. No candidate shall be admitted to the Bar until he shall have passed in all the subjects of examination in law: Provided that any candidate who shall have failed to pass may apply de novo at any time after twelve months thereafter, as in cases within Rule 14.

22. The examinations, under either Appendix A or B, shall be by printed or written questions, given to the candidate at the time of examination, and answered by him in writing, in the presence of the examiners or one of them; and there shall be separate examination papers on the several subjects, containing each not less than twelve nor more than eighteen questions, or in respect of the classical papers, and the French language, three passages for translation, of not less than fifteen nor more than twenty-five lines each, from the books specified, with at least ten questions in addition, having reference to the said books or to the construction and grammar of the passages given for translation.

23. Not more than two hours shall, in general be allowed for answering one examination paper: Provided that the examiners may, at their discretion, allow an additional hour.

24. The answers to each paper shall be signed by the candidate, and be forwarded by the examiners to the Prothonotary as soon as conveniently may be, under seal, with the questions, and their certificate and report on such answers.

25. Whenever the report of the examiners under either appendix shall not be that the examination has been "satisfactory" as to at least four, or "very satisfactory" to at least three of the subjects for examination, the second examination, if allowed, shall extend to all the subjects of the examination; but whenever the report is "satisfactory" as to four, or "very satisfactory" as to three subjects, the second examination may be ordered to extend to the remaining subject, or subjects, only.

26. So soon as any candidate for the Bar shall have passed all the examinations required by these rules, the Board shall, subject to the provisions in Rule 1, give directions for his admission at the Bar; and he shall be admitted and sworn in open Court, on any day following, in or out of Term, by any two Judges sitting together.

27. Each examiner shall be paid by each candidate a fee of ten guineas for his examinations respectively, including the report thereon; such fees to be paid to the Prothonotary, and certified as so paid, before the candidate shall be admitted by the Board to such examination.

28. These rules shall come into operation on and from the 31st day of March now next.

FURTHER RULES FOR THE ADMISSION OF BARRISTERS.

(Under 11 Victoria No. 57 and 39 Victoria No. 32.)

New South Wales to wit.

Wednesday, 2nd March, 1887.

WHEREAS by certain rules prepared on the fourteenth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, by the then Chief Justice and the Judges of the Supreme Court and the Attorney-General for the time, and two Barristers elected in pursuance of the Act of the eleventh year of Her Majesty's reign, numbered fifty-seven, as members of a Board for the approval of properly-qualified persons to be Barristers of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, it was amongst other things ordered by the sixteenth rule as follows:—

"The final examination in law of any candidate shall not be permitted until he shall have been a student-at-law within the meaning of the preceding rules for at least one year, and during the period between the admission of a candidate as a student-at-law and his admission to the Bar such candidate shall pursue no business or occupation otherwise than in the way of study and preparation for the Bar, or in the nature of a literary pursuit."

And whereas it is deemed fitting for the purpose of securing better preparation for the Bar, in accordance with the practice for admission to the Bar in other parts of Her Majesty's Dominions, that such period of law studentship should be extended as herein provided in respect of all persons who shall hereafter be admitted as students-at-law:

Now, therefore, we, the Honorable Frederick Matthew Darley, Chief Justice, and Peter Faucett, William Montagu Manning, and Joseph George Long Innes, Judges of the Supreme Court, with the Honorable William John Foster, Attorney-General, and Henry Emanuel Cohen, one of the Barristers elected according to the said Act in the month of December last, do hereby make and promulgate the following rules:—

1. From and after the thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, no candidate not admitted as a student-at-law before that date (save as hereinafter provided) shall be admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of the Colony unless he shall have been for three years an admitted law student, within the above recited rule, and shall have complied with the requirements of that rule during the whole of such extended period; and such rule shall, in all respects, be read as if the words "for at least three years" were inserted therein in lieu of the words "at least one year."

2. Any undergraduate of the University of Sydney, or of any other University recognized by it, who shall have passed two annual examinations at such University may be admitted as a law student; and if such student shall thereafter in due course become a graduate of such University he shall be entitled to apply for admission to the Bar at the expiration of two years from his admission as law student, and while continuing at such University for the last year of his course as an undergraduate he shall be deemed to be engaged in a literary pursuit within the meaning of the said recited rule.

3. Any graduate of any such University who shall be admitted as a law student shall be entitled to apply for admission to the Bar after the expiration of two years from his admission as law student.

(ORDERS OF THE SUPREME COURT UNDER.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 50 Vic, No. 20, sec. 38.

In the Supreme Court of New South Wales.

The 17th day of July, 1889.

In pursuance of the powers given by the "Settled Estates Act, 1886," and of all other powers and authorities enabling us in that behalf, we do order and direct in manner following:—

THE SETTLED ESTATES ACT.

ORDERS, 1889.

Definitions.

1. The words "settlements," "settled estates," and "the Court" in these orders shall have the same interpretation as in the Act. The words "the Act" in these orders shall mean the Settled Estates Act, 1886; "the petition" shall mean a petition under the Act, and "the Judge" shall mean the Primary Judge in Equity, or any other Judge of the Court acting under the Act, with the concurrence of the Primary Judge. "Infant tenant in tail" shall include infants, within sub-section G of section 2 of the Act.

Title of the petition, &c.

2. All petitions, notices, affidavits, and other proceedings under the Act shall be entitled "In the matter of the estates settled" [by the settlor or settlors, naming one of them and referring to the instrument by which the settlement shall have been created, and mentioning the parish or place and county in which the lands, messuages, or tenements proposed to be dealt with are situate], "and in the matter of the Settled Estates Act, 1886"; and every such petition shall be marked with the words "In the Supreme Court of New South Wales in Equity." (See Form No. 1 in the Appendix hereto.)

Petition.—Description of property.—Address to be given.

3. Every petition shall, in the body thereof, or in a Schedule thereto, or by a plan thereto annexed, contain a detailed description of the property proposed to be dealt with by such petition sufficient to identify the same. And shall set forth the name, address, and description of the petitioner, and also a place within 2 miles from the site of the Supreme Court-house, Sydney, where he may be served with any order of the Court or of the Judge in Chambers, or any notification or notice relating to the subject matter of such petition.

Infant petitioner.

4. If an infant is the petitioner, the petition may be presented by the infant by his next friend, and after the petition has been presented and answered, and a guardian appointed as directed by Order 10, the word "guardian" shall be substituted by the Master in Equity or other proper officer in the petition for the words "next friend," and the name of the guardian (if the next friend and guardian shall not be the same person) for the name of the next friend.

Hearing.

5. Upon the presentation of the petition, a day shall be appointed for hearing, not less (unless the Judge gives special leave) than eight clear days after such presentation, and in the computation of such eight clear days, Sundays and other days on which the offices are closed shall not be reckoned.

Restoring petition to paper.

6. When a petition has been put into the paper for hearing, and for any cause the Judge allows it to stand over generally, it may be put into the paper for a subsequent day, without any application to the Judge, on the petitioner or his solicitor applying for that purpose to the Master in Equity. Notice of the appointment of such subsequent day shall be given by the petitioner or his solicitor, two clear days before the day appointed, to the other parties entitled to appear on such petition.

Notice.

7. The notice required to be given by the 22nd section of the Act, if given before the hearing (or if given after the hearing and the Judge shall not otherwise direct) may, without any other direction of the Judge, be given within the jurisdiction of the Court, except in the case of a person of unsound mind, not so declared by the Court, by delivering to the person to be served a notice (in the Form No. 3 in the Appendix hereto) with such variations as the circumstances require.

Time to be specified in.—In case of guardian of infant.—Married woman.—Committee of lunatic.—Other cases.

8. The time to be specified in such notice for the person served to deliver or leave a notification shall, in case the person to be served is a guardian of an infant, be such as shall be directed by the Judge in the order appointing the guardian; and in case the person to be served is a married woman, or a committee of a lunatic, not less than twenty-eight clear days after the service; and in other cases not hereby otherwise provided for, not less than fourteen clear days after the service.

Person of unsound mind not so found.—Out of jurisdiction.

9. In case the person to be served is a person of unsound mind, not so declared by the Court, or out of the jurisdiction of the Court, or it is desired to serve such notice on any person within the jurisdiction of the Court, in any other manner than above provided, an application shall be made to the Judge at

Chambers, ex parte, by the petitioner, for directions as to the manner in which such notice shall be given, and as to the time to be specified in such notice within which the notification is to be made by the person served.

Guardian of infant.—Appointment of.

10. When it is desired that any guardian of an infant shall make or consent to any application to the Court under the Act, or make any notification respecting any application to the Court, or that notice may be given to any such guardian on behalf of an infant, the Court may appoint a guardian to such infant for the purposes of the Act; and an application for such appointment may, after the petition is presented, be made to the Judge at Chambers by the petitioner by summons.

Special direction under section 42.

11. In the case of a lunatic or infant tenant in tail by his committee or guardian applying or consenting to an application or giving a notification respecting an application, an application may be made to the Judge at Chambers by the petitioner, after the petition is presented, that such committee or guardian may be directed to so apply, or consent, or give a notification; and in the case of an infant such application may be combined with the application to appoint a guardian.

Special directions under section 42.

12. In cases where the committees or guardians of lunatics or infant tenants in tail shall be served with a notice of the application, in pursuance of the 42nd section of the Act, an application may be made to the Judge at Chambers by the petitioner, before the expiration of the time specified in such notice, that such committees or guardians may notify that they either assent to or dissent from such application, or submit their rights or interests, so far as they may be affected by such application, to be dealt with by the Court.

Service on guardian under order 10.

13. Upon an application to appoint a guardian to an infant for any such purpose as aforesaid, the summons shall be served upon the parent, or testamentary or other legally constituted guardian of the infant, if there be any such parent or guardian, unless the Judge shall dispense therewith.

Service on committee or guardian under orders 11 and 12.

14. Upon any application that a committee or guardian of a lunatic or infant tenant in tail may be directed to make or consent to any application on behalf of such lunatic or infant, or to notify that the lunatic or infant assents to or dissents from such application, or submits his rights or interests, so far as they are affected by such application, to be dealt with by the Court, the summons shall be served on the committee of such lunatic, or the guardian, appointed or proposed to be appointed, of such infant for such purpose.

Evidence on application of a guardian.

15. Upon an application to appoint a guardian of an infant, the following facts shall be proved:—

- (1) The age of the infant.
- (2) Whether he has any parent or any such guardian as mentioned in order 13, and if so, whether such parent or guardian has any interest in the application, and if he has, the nature of such interest, and whether or not adverse to the interest of the infant.
- (3) Where and under whose care the infant is residing, and at whose expense he is maintained.
- (4) In what way the proposed guardian is connected with the infant, and why proposed and how qualified to be appointed.
- (5) That the proposed guardian has no interest in the application, or if he has, the nature of his interest, and that it is not adverse to the interest of the infant.
- (6) The consent of the proposed guardian to act.

Evidence in case of application for consent of committee or guardian.

16. Upon an application that a committee or guardian of a lunatic or infant tenant in tail may be directed to make or consent to any application or to give any notification respecting any application, evidence is to be produced to satisfy the Judge that it is, and the committee or guardian is to make an affidavit that he believes that it is, proper and consistent with a due regard for the interests of such lunatic or infant that such direction shall be given.

Examination of a married woman.

17. The examination of a married woman under sections 43 and 44 of the Act may be taken at any time after the petition is presented and answered.

18. When it is desired that a married woman, resident within the jurisdiction of the Court, shall be examined otherwise than by the Court, a solicitor, may be appointed for that purpose by the Judge at Chambers in the Form No. 10 in the Appendix hereto, without summons or order, upon the request of the petitioner, and a certificate of the solicitor for the petitioner in the Form No. 10 in the appendix hereto that the solicitor to be appointed is not a solicitor for the petitioner, or for any person whose concurrence or consent to the application is required; but where an examination by such solicitor will cause unreasonable expense, delay, or inconvenience, or where the married woman is resident out of the jurisdiction of the Court, an application by summons may be made ex parte by the petitioner to the Judge at Chambers to appoint a solicitor, if such woman is resident within the jurisdiction of the Court, and if not so resident, a person, whether a solicitor or not, to take such examination.

Evidence of propriety of the application.

19. Upon every petition, the Court shall be satisfied by the evidence that it is proper and consistent with a due regard to the interests of all parties entitled under the settlement that the powers should be exercised; and it shall be stated in the affidavit why and upon what ground it is deemed to be so.

Evidence of service on trustees.

20. Upon every petition, when there are any trustees seized or possessed of any estate in trust for any of the persons whose consent or concurrence to or in the application is required, evidence is to be produced that notice of the application has been served on such trustees.

Notices and advertisements.

21. If upon the hearing of any petition the Court shall be of opinion that notice ought to be served on any person who shall not have been served, or that notice of the application ought to be inserted in any newspaper, the Court shall give directions accordingly, and the petition shall stand over generally or to such time as the Court shall direct.

Applying for leave to be heard.

22. When the Court shall, at the hearing, have directed notice of any application to be inserted in any newspapers, any person may, within the time specified in the notice, apply to the Court, by motion, either ex parte or upon notice to the petitioner, for leave to be heard in opposition to or in support of the application; but if such motion shall be made ex parte, and the Court shall think fit to give such leave, it shall be subject to such order as the Court shall think fit to make as to costs: Provided always that an extension of time may be granted by the Judge in cases where some reason or excuse satisfactory to the Judge is alleged why the application was not made within the specified time.

Inspecting and obtaining copies of petition.

23. Any such person, having obtained leave under the last preceding order, shall be at liberty, upon a reasonable notice, to inspect and peruse the petition at the office of the solicitor for the petitioner, upon payment of a fee of 13s. 4d. on each inspection, and shall be entitled (either without or after such inspection) to be furnished with a copy of such petition upon such application, terms, and conditions as are by the next three succeeding orders provided.

24. If the person having obtained such leave shall require a copy of the petition, such person shall make a written application to the petitioner's solicitor for such copy, with an undertaking to pay all proper charges for the same.

25. Within two clear days after such application, a copy of the petition shall be ready to be delivered, and shall be delivered on demand, upon payment for the same after the rate of 4d. per folio.

26. The name and address of the solicitor by whom any such copy is furnished is to be endorsed thereon in like manner as upon proceedings in Court; and such solicitor is to be answerable for the same being a true copy of the original, or of an office copy of the original of which it purports to be a copy, as the case may be.

Service of ex parte order for leave to be heard.

27. Any order made on an ex parte motion giving leave to such person to be heard on any application, shall be served on the solicitor for the petitioner.

Trustees to be entitled to inspect copy of petition.

28. Any person served with a notice, pursuant to the 22nd section of the Act, requiring him to notify whether he assents to or dissents from the application, or submits his rights or interests so far as they may be affected by such application, to be dealt with by the Court; and any trustee or other person served with notice, pursuant to the 26th section of the Act, shall be at liberty, upon reasonable notice to the petitioner's solicitor, to inspect and peruse the petition without payment of any fee; and he shall be entitled to be furnished with a copy thereof upon such application, terms, and conditions as are provided by orders 23, 24, 25, and 26.

Recording of notice of order.

29. THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

Lord President.

Lord Ashbourne.

Earl of Coventry.

WHEREAS by the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, it was amongst other things enacted, that where an arrangement has been made with any foreign State with respect to the surrender to such State of any fugitive criminals, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the said Acts shall apply in the case of such foreign State; and that Her Majesty may, by the same or any subsequent Order, limit the operation of the Order, and restrict the same to fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in the part of Her Majesty's dominions specified in the Order, and render the operation thereof subject to such conditions, exceptions, and qualifications as may be deemed expedient; and that if, by any law made after the passing of the Act of 1870 by the Legislature of any British possession, provision is made for carrying into effect within such possession the surrender of fugitive criminals who are in, or suspected of being in, such British possession, Her Majesty may, by the Order in Council applying the said Acts in the case of any foreign State, or by any subsequent Order, suspend the operation within any such British possession of the said Acts, or of any part thereof, so far as it relates to such foreign State, and so long as such law continues in force there and no longer.

And whereas a Treaty was concluded on the fourth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, between Her Majesty and the King of Spain for the mutual extradition of fugitive criminals.

La demanda de extradicion de un acusado estará acompañada de un mandamiento de prision expedido por la autoridad competente del Estado que pida la extradicion, y de la prueba que, conforme á las leyes del lugar donde se encuentra el acusado, justificarian su detencion, si allí se hubiere cometido el delito.

Si el requerimiento se refiere á un individuo ya condenado, se acompañará la sentencia condenatoria pronunciada contra el condenado por el Tribunal competente del Estado que pida la extradicion.

A sentence passed in contumaciam is not to be deemed a conviction, but a person so sentenced may be dealt with as an accused person.

ARTICLE IX.

If the requisition for extradition be in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the competent authorities of the State applied to shall proceed to the arrest of the fugitive.

ARTICLE X.

A fugitive criminal may be apprehended, under a warrant issued by any Police Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, or other competent authority in either country, on such information or complaint, and such evidence, or after such proceedings as would, in the opinion of the authority issuing the warrant, justify the issue of a warrant if the crime had been committed or the person convicted in that part of the dominions of the two Contracting Parties in which the Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, or other competent authority exercises jurisdiction: Provided, however, that in the United Kingdom the accused shall, in such case, be sent as speedily as possible before a Police Magistrate in London. In the Republic of Mexico the Government will decide on the extradition by administrative procedure, until a judicial procedure be established by law, when the accused will be delivered as soon as possible to the Judge designated by law. The criminal shall, in accordance with this Article, be discharged, as well in Mexico as in the United Kingdom, if within the term of thirty days a requisition for extradition shall not have been made by the Diplomatic Agent of his country in accordance with the stipulations of this Treaty.

The same rule shall apply to the cases of persons accused or convicted of any of the crimes or offences specified in this Treaty, and committed on the high seas on board any vessel of either country which may come into a port of the other.

ARTICLE XI.

The extradition shall take place only if the evidence be found sufficient, according to the laws of the State applied to, either to justify the committal of the prisoner for trial, in case the crime had been committed in the territory of the same State, or to prove that the prisoner is the identical person convicted by the Courts of the State which makes the requisition, and that the crime of which he has been convicted is one in respect of which extradition could, at the time of such conviction, have been granted by the State applied to; and no criminal shall be surrendered until after the expiration of fifteen days from the date of his committal to prison to await the warrant for his surrender.

ARTICLE XII.

In the examinations which they will have to make in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the authorities of the State applied to for said extradition shall admit as valid evidence the depositions or statements of witnesses taken in the other State, under oath or under solemn affirmation to tell the truth, according as its legislation may provide, or the copies of these depositions or statements, and likewise the warrants issued and sentences pronounced in the State which demands the extradition, the certificates of the fact of the condemnation, or the judicial documents which prove it, provided the same are authenticated as follows:—

1. A warrant must purport to be signed by a Judge, Magistrate, or Officer of the other State.
2. Depositions or affirmations, or the copies thereof, must purport to be certified under the hand of a Judge, Magistrate, or Officer of the other State, to be the original depositions or affirmations, or to be true copies thereof, as the case may require.
3. A certificate of, or a judicial document stating the fact of a conviction must purport to be certified by a Judge, Magistrate, or Officer of the other State.

4. In every case such warrant, deposition, affirmation, copy, certificate, or judicial document must be authenticated either by the oath of some witness or by being sealed with the official seal of the Minister of Justice or some other Minister of the other State; but any other mode of authentication for the time being permitted by law in the State where the examination is taken may be substituted for the foregoing.

ARTICLE XIII.

If the individual claimed by one of the two High Contracting Parties, in pursuance of the present Treaty, should be also claimed by one or several other Powers on account of other crimes or offences committed upon their respective territories, his extradition shall be granted to that State whose demand is earliest in date.

ARTICLE XIV.

If sufficient evidence for the extradition be not produced within two months from the date of the apprehension of the fugitive, or within such further time as the State applied to, or the proper Tribunal thereof shall direct, the fugitive shall be set at liberty.

Una sentencia pronunciada en rebeldía no se tendrá como sentencia condenatoria; pero el individuo así condenado será considerado como acusado.

ARTICULO IX.

Si la demanda de extradición está conforme con las precedentes estipulaciones, las autoridades competentes del Estado al cual se haya pedido aquella, procederán a la aprehensión del prófugo.

ARTICULO X.

Se podrá aprehender a un reo prófugo en virtud de un mandamiento librado por cualquiera Magistrado de Policía, Juez de Paz u otra autoridad competente en uno u otro país, fundado en los informes ó quejas, y en las pruebas ó diligencias que, en opinión de la autoridad que expida el mandamiento, justificarian este acto si el delito hubiese sido cometido ó condenada la persona en aquella parte de los dominios de ambas Partes Contratantes en la cual el Magistrado, Juez de Paz, u otra autoridad competente ejerce jurisdicción; con tal, sin embargo, que en el Reino Unido el acusado sea consignado, en este caso, tan pronto como sea posible, a un Magistrado de Policía en Londres. En la República Mexicana el Gobierno decidirá en la vía administrativa sobre la extradición, entretanto las leyes no establezcan un procedimiento judicial, en cuyo caso el acusado será consignado tan pronto como sea posible el Juez que la ley designe. De conformidad con este Artículo el reo será puesto en libertad, tanto en el Reino Unido como en la República Mexicana, si en el término de treinta días no se ha hecho la demanda de extradición por el Agente Diplomático del país respectivo, con arreglo a las estipulaciones de este Tratado.

Se observará la misma regla en los casos de individuos acusados ó condenados por alguno de los delitos especificados en este Tratado, y cometidos en alta mar á bordo de un buque de alguno de los dos países que llegue a un puerto del otro.

ARTICULO XI.

Solo tendrá lugar la extradición si, conforme a las leyes del Estado al cual se pide aquella, se consideran suficientes las pruebas, ya para que el detenido hubiera sido sometido á juicio, en caso de haberse perpetrado el delito en el territorio del mismo Estado; ya para probar que el preso es la misma persona condenada por los Tribunales del Estado que hace el requerimiento, y que el delito por el que fué condenado es de aquellos en punto á los cuales el Estado á quien se pidió la extradición, podía conceder esta en la época de la condenación. Ningun reo será entregado hasta despues de haber trascurrido quince días contados desde la fecha en que fué puesto en prisión en espera del mandamiento para su entrega.

ARTICULO XII.

Las autoridades del Estado al que se pida la extradición, en el exámen que deben hacer conforme a las precedentes estipulaciones, admitirán como pruebas válidas las deposiciones ó declaraciones de testigos, tomadas en el otro Estado bajo juramento ó bajo protesta de decir verdad, conforme lo prevenga su legislación, ó las copias de estas deposiciones ó declaraciones, ó igualmente los mandamientos librados y sentencias pronunciadas en el Estado que pide la extradición, los certificados del hecho de la condenación, ó los documentos judiciales que lo comprueben, con tal que estén legalizados en la forma siguiente:—

1. Un mandamiento debe expresar que está firmado por un Juez, Magistrado, ó funcionario del otro Estado.
2. Las deposiciones ó declaraciones, ó sus copias, deben expresar que están certificadas por un Juez, Magistrado, ó funcionario del otro Estado, y que son las deposiciones ó declaraciones originales, ó copias exactas de las mismas, segun lo exija el caso.
3. Un certificado del hecho de la condenación, ó un documento judicial que lo compruebe, debe expresar que está certificado por un Juez, Magistrado, ó funcionario del otro Estado.

4. En todo caso, este mandamiento, deposición, declaración, copia, certificado, ó documento judicial serán legalizados ó por el juramento de algun testigo, ó sellándoseles con el sello oficial del Ministro de Justicia u otro Ministro del otro Estado; pero cualquiera otra forma de legalización permitida por la ley en la época y en el Estado donde se haga el exámen pueda ser sustituida por la precedente.

ARTICULO XIII.

Si el individuo reclamado por una de las dos Altas Partes Contratantes, en virtud del presente Tratado, lo fuere tambien por una ó por varias otras Potencias por razon de otros delitos cometidos en sus respectivos territorios, se concederá su extradición al Estado cuya demanda sea primera en fecha.

ARTICULO XIV.

Se pondrá en libertad al reo prófugo, si no se produce prueba suficiente para la extradición en el término de dos meses contados desde la fecha de su aprehensión, ó dentro del término que, ademas de estos dos meses, señale el Estado á quien se pide la extradición ó el Tribunal competente del mismo.

ARTICLE XV.

All articles seized which were in the possession of the person to be surrendered at the time of his apprehension shall, if the competent authority of the State applied to for the extradition has ordered the delivery of such articles, be given up when the extradition takes place; and the said delivery shall extend, not merely to the stolen articles, but to everything that may serve as a proof of the crime.

ARTICLE XVI.

All expenses connected with extradition shall be borne by the demanding State.

ARTICLE XVII.

The stipulations of the present Treaty shall be applicable to the Colonies and foreign possessions of Her Britannic Majesty, so far as the laws for the time being in force in such Colonies and foreign possessions respectively will allow.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal who has taken refuge in any of such Colonies or foreign possessions shall be made to the Governor or chief authority of such Colony or possession by the Chief Consular Officer of the Republic of Mexico in such Colony or possession.

Such requisition may be disposed of, subject always, as nearly as may be, and so far as the law of such Colony or foreign possession will allow, to the provisions of this Treaty, by the said Governor or chief authority, who, however, shall be at liberty either to grant the surrender or to refer the matter to his Government.

Her Britannic Majesty shall, however, be at liberty to make special arrangements in the British Colonies and foreign possessions for the surrender of Mexican criminals who may take refuge within such Colonies and foreign possessions, on the basis, as nearly as may be, and so far as the law of such Colony or foreign possession will allow, of the provisions of the present Treaty.

Requisitions for the surrender of a fugitive criminal emanating from any Colony or foreign possession of Her Britannic Majesty shall be governed by the rules laid down in the preceding Articles of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE XVIII.

The present Treaty shall come into force ten days after its publication, in conformity with the forms prescribed by the laws of the High Contracting Parties. It may be terminated by either of the High Contracting Parties by a notice not exceeding one year and not less than six months.

The Treaty, after receiving the approval of the Congress of Mexico, shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Mexico as soon as possible.

In witness whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the same, and have affixed thereto the seal of their arms.

Done in two originals, at the city of Mexico, the 7th day of September, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

ARTICULO XV.

Todos los objetos secuestrados que, al tiempo de la aprehension, estaban en poder del individuo á quien se ha de entregar, tambien serian entregados cuando la extradicion tenga lugar, si la autoridad competente del Estado al que aquella se ha pedido, ordena la entrega de los mencionados objetos; dicha entrega se extenderá, no solo á los objetos robados, sino á todo lo que pueda servir de prueba del delito.

ARTICULO XVI.

Todos los gastos originados de la extradicion seran pro cuenta del Estado que la haya pedido.

ARTICULO XVII.

Las estipulaciones del presente Tratado se aplicarán á las Colonias y posesiones extranjeras de Su Majestad Británica, en cuanto lo permitan las leyes respectivas de dichas Colonias y posesiones extranjeras vigentes en la época en que se pida la extradicion.

La demanda para la entrega de un reo prófugo que se haya refugiado en alguna de estas Colonias ó posesiones se hará al Gobernador ó principal autoridad de la Colonia ó posesion por el principal Agente Consular de la República Mexicana en la Colonia ó posesion.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled “An Act for the more effectual abolition of Oaths and Affirmations taken and made in various departments of the Government of New South Wales, and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof, and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial Oaths and Affidavits.”

Petition.

Petition.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable CHARLES ROBERT, BARON CARRINGTON, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

The humble Petition of James Morrison, now a prisoner under sentence of death in Her Majesty's Gaol at Darlinghurst, New South Wales,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :

That your Petitioner was tried before His Honor the Chief Justice, on the fifteenth day of July, for the murder of one David Sutherland, a constable of the Police Force of the Colony of New South Wales, who died early in the morning of Monday, the third day of June last, from a wound inflicted by your Petitioner. The circumstances of the case have already been laid before Your Excellency.

At the trial, before the jury came into Court to announce their verdict, counsel for your Petitioner asked his Honor to direct the jury that if the jury found that the arrest by the constable, though lawful, was made with unnecessary violence, amounting to an assault, your Petitioner was guilty of manslaughter only. Secondly, that if the jury found that the constable struck your Petitioner a violent blow with his baton before the shot was fired, it was competent for them to take that fact into account as evidence that the homicide was not murder.

His Honor refused so to direct the jury, on the ground that there was no evidence either that the arrest was made with unnecessary violence, or that any blow was struck with the baton before the shot was fired.

The question whether His Honor ought so to have directed the jury was reserved for the consideration of the Full Court, and a case was stated for the opinion of the Court by His Honor.

The above points were argued on the third day of August last, and the Court, without calling upon counsel for the Crown, upheld the conviction.

The judgment of their Honors directed mainly to the question whether a prisoner's statement, made under the provisions of the "Criminal Law Amendment Act," section 470, is evidence or not? and their Honors held that such statement is not evidence. The question had not previously been decided in the Colony of New South Wales, and it is humbly submitted that it involves consideration of the highest importance to the proper administration of the criminal law in the Colony.

Your Petitioner is desirous of appealing to Her Majesty in Council against the above-mentioned decision of the Supreme Court. Leave to appeal can only be obtained by petition to Her Majesty in Council. The prisoner has been sentenced to death, and the date of the execution of the sentence has been fixed for the 20th day of August instant.

Your Petitioner humbly prays:—

- (1.) That Your Excellency will order the said sentence to be respited, and that time be allowed to your Petitioner to petition Her Majesty in Council for leave to appeal, and to have such appeal dealt with by Her Majesty in her Privy Council if such leave be granted.

Your Petitioner is without any means of paying the costs of a petition to Her Majesty, and attorney and counsel were assigned to him at his trial; your Petitioner therefore humbly prays:—

- (2.) That steps may be taken to have your Petitioner's petition submitted for the opinion of Her Majesty's Privy Council in such a manner that the questions involved may be properly heard and determined.

And your Petitioner will ever pray, &c.

JAMES MORRISON.

THIS is the paper writing marked "A," and referred to in the declaration of Mark Annesley Williamson, hereto annexed, and dated the fifteenth day of August, 1889,—

THOMAS JOSEPH RYAN, a Commissioner for Affidavits.

E. Barton, Esq., Q.C., and P. J. Healy, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, to His Excellency the Governor.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable CHARLES ROBERT, BARON CARRINGTON, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,—

We are informed that a petition for respite of sentence has been presented to Your Excellency by James Morrison, convicted of murder, and now under sentence of death, the object of such petition being to afford the prisoner an opportunity of exercising his right to petition Her Majesty the Queen in Council for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council against such sentence, and of being heard on such appeal, if leave be granted. We understand the grounds of the convict's petition to Your Excellency to be that he is advised and believes that the judgment of the Supreme Court of New South Wales overruling the objections taken on his behalf in the course of the trial is erroneous in point of law.

We think it our duty to express our opinion that the question involved in the judgment of the Court is one of great importance, and likely by its authority as a precedent to affect materially the future administration of justice in criminal cases. We are also of opinion that the question is of such a grave and serious character as to demand further discussion and consideration, and that it ought only to be decided after full and deliberate argument before our final Court of Appeal.

The

The contention of the prisoner's Counsel is not without the support of authority, and the considerations of reason which may be urged in its favour are such as seem to us to render the result of an appeal at least a very debatable question. We would further invite Your Excellency's attention to the principles laid down by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the case of Rogina v. Bertrand (1 L.R., P.C. 520, at p. 530). Not only do we think it highly arguable that the case in question is within the principle there stated as calling for the intervention of Her Majesty in Council, but as in the terms of the judgment of their Lordships the authority has not by charter or statute been parted with, "It is the inherent prerogative right, and on all proper occasions the duty of the Queen in Council, to exercise an appellate jurisdiction, with a view, not only to ensure as far as may be the due administration of justice in the individual case, but also to preserve the due course of procedure generally." This inherent prerogative right has not been delegated to any other authority, and it follows, therefore, that where there is matter for argument its exercise should not be anticipated or prevented by the action of any other authority. As the prisoner uses his right to invoke by petition the exercise of this prerogative by Her Majesty, the execution of the capital sentence at the time contemplated would be to prevent both the invocation and the due exercise of that prerogative by the warrant of an authority not invested with any such preventive power. With all respect we submit that such would be the result unless Your Excellency, in the exercise of your undoubted right, sees fit to order that the sentence be respited until and unless Her Majesty shall have had the opportunity of exercising her prerogative upon the petition about to be addressed to her.

We would also invite your attention to the fact that the decision of the Supreme Court in this case is one which is likely to materially affect all criminal trials in which it might be expedient for accused persons to make statements. The decision of the Court would seem to have deprived prisoners of any advantage which may arise from statements made by them under the provisions of the 470th section of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, and to so far contravene the apparent intention of the Legislature.

We would respectfully express our hope that your Excellency will exercise the power vested in yourself, and will respite the prisoner for such a time as may be necessary to enable his case to be submitted to the final judgment of Her Majesty the Queen.

We have not taken the course of addressing Your Excellency personally without the most careful consideration; and we would respectfully point out to you that this course is not without memorable precedent, which is furnished by a letter written by the late Sir James Martin (Sydney Morning Herald, March the twenty-fourth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three), to one of Your Excellency's predecessors.

We have the honor to be,

Your Excellency's obedient servants,

MR. JOHN GARSEED.

(REPORT OF MR. HEALY, BARRISTER-AT-LAW, RESPECTING CASE OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 11 September, 1889.

RETURN to an Order of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated the 5th September, 1889, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“ A copy of the Report by Mr. Healy, Barrister-at-law, on the case
“ submitted to him by Mr. Clarke, late Minister of Justice, having regard “ to the sad miscarriage of justice on the part of the Crown against one
“ John Garsed.”

(Mr. Hurley.)

P. J. Healy, Esq., to The Minister of Justice.

Regina v. John Garsed.—Charge of Perjury.

Sir,

Having been entrusted by the late Minister of Justice (Mr. W. Clarke) with the task of “preparing,” to quote the substance of his minute, “a clear statement of the facts of this case, in order that the Minister might decide on the issues involved,” I have the honor to lay before you the following statement as the most accurate I can arrive at upon the materials before me. Those materials consist of evidence taken and documents produced before Select Committees (of which there have been no less than four) of the Legislative Assembly, and reported mainly in vol. 2 of Votes and Proceedings, Session 1876-7, pp. 891 to 931, and vol. 3, Sessions 1877-8, pp. 11 to 77, together with voluminous correspondence from Mr. Garsed.

Unfortunately the volumes referred to do not contain, nor have I before me, a copy of the Judge's notes of the evidence at the trial, and in their absence the statement I am about to submit must, to a considerable extent, be necessarily incomplete. However, taking the evidence as it stands, the history of this very intricate, and, in many respects remarkable case, is as follows:—

On the 9th February, 1858, an action was commenced in the Supreme Court by William Dean and Archibald Ashdown (who were then partners trading as Dean & Co.) against Garsed upon an overdue bill of exchange for £680 15s. 3d. The declaration, which is set out at p. 29, Appendix, vol. 3, and p. 1, Appendix, Progress Report 79-5,120, herewith, is against Garsed as acceptor of the said bill, dated 3rd October, 1857, drawn by the plaintiffs in favour of themselves, payable four months after date, and, consequently, due on the 6th February, 1858. To that declaration the defendant Garsed, on the 26th of the same month, filed a plea upon equitable grounds, and annexed thereto his affidavit of the truth of the same as required by law.

The plea and accompanying affidavit (which are both set out in full, vol. 2, and at pp. 18 and 19 of Progress Report 77-5,050, herewith) both state, amongst other things, that the defendant Garsed gave to the plaintiff Ashdown, in settlement of certain partnership transactions, a bonus of £2,000, or thereabouts, of which the £680 15s. 3d., the amount of the bill of exchange sued upon, formed part.

It is on the affidavit, or rather so much of it as is above quoted, that the prosecution and conviction of Garsed for perjury, hereinafter referred to, proceeded. On the 2nd March, 1858, application was made by the plaintiffs to the Judge in Chambers (Mr. Justice Dickinson) to have the plea struck out on the ground that it was wholly false, and on the further grounds stated in the joint affidavit of Ashdown (one of the plaintiffs) and C. P. Pritchard. Upon this joint affidavit (to which I shall have occasion hereafter to refer more particularly) Garsed relies as affording very cogent evidence that he was wrongly convicted.

[370 copies—Approximate cost of printing (labour and material), £2 9s. 3d.]

However,

However, the application founded upon it was dismissed, and the case was in due course set down for trial. After the case was so set down, and before the trial came on, a circumstance worthy of observation, Ashdown, on the 31st March, 1858, laid in the Police Court an information for perjury against Garsed, founded upon that part of his affidavit above mentioned. The Bench, however, declined to entertain the charge pending the trial of the civil action. That action came on to be tried before Mr. Justice Dickinson and a Jury of four in the April following, and after lasting six days resulted in a verdict for the plaintiffs for £696 2s. 6d., being, I presume, the amount of the bill, with interest thereon. This finding of the Jury against the defendant has an important bearing upon the present inquiry, as the Jury must be taken to have found that the plea had not been proved. It is right, however, to mention that Garsed filed a notice of motion for a new trial, the grounds for which were duly certified by his Counsel, and that Garsed having become insolvent in July, 1858, his Official Assignee was, by suggestion on the record, admitted to proceed in his place. What became of that notice of motion? Whether it ever came on to be heard or not does not appear. Probably it never did, and this is perhaps what Garsed means when he says in one of his letters that "this action never terminated."

On the 9th December following (1858) Ashdown laid a fresh information in the Police Court against Garsed for perjury upon the same part of his affidavit, verifying his plea, as is quoted above, as well as upon certain evidence given by Garsed upon the trial of the action before Mr. Justice Dickinson. Upon this charge Garsed was, on the 21st December, 1858, committed for trial at the then next Criminal Court, and on the 1st of August in the following year the then Attorney-General, Mr. L. H. Bayley, filed an information for perjury against him in the Central Criminal Court. The trial upon this information did not take place until the ensuing October (1859), when it took place before Sir Alfred Stephen and a Jury of twelve, and after lasting about seven days resulted in Garsed's being found guilty, and sentenced to three years imprisonment in Darlinghurst Gaol.

By this conviction Garsed has ever since considered himself grossly aggrieved, and now seeks not, as I understand him, compensation from the Government, but some authoritative pronouncement that he was wrongly convicted.

The assignment of perjury in the information filed by the Attorney-General was upon the same passage of Garsed's affidavit, as is quoted above, and the information goes on in the usual form to negative the truth of the passage, and also to aver that the said sum of £680 15s. 3d., the amount of the said bill of exchange, was the balance of an account due from the said John Garsed to the firm of Dean & Co., of which firm the said W. Dean and A. Ashdown were partners, and was not a debt due to the said A. Ashdown alone. I gather from the evidence before the Select Committee and the correspondence of Garsed that the main contest, both at the Civil and at the Criminal Court, was whether the bill for £680 15s. 3d. was really a debt due to the firm of Dean & Co. or to Ashdown individually. Ashdown swore that it was a debt due to the firm, and produced a copy in black ink of an account which is endorsed "Pritchard's red-ink account or memorandum," the original of which he swore he saw delivered to Garsed about the 23rd or 24th September, 1857. This copy account, which is set out at p. 38 of Progress Report 79-5,120 herewith, certainly does show that the bill for £680 15s. 3d. was a debt due to the firm, being part of the larger sum of £7,830 15s. 3d. due by Garsed to the firm, whilst it also shows the sum of £2,000 as a liability of Garsed to Ashdown individually, and as being settled and paid for, not in any way by the bill for £680 15s. 3d., but by the transfer of three separate properties. On the other hand, Garsed contended, and still contends, that the £680 15s. 3d. was part of a bonus of £2,000 given to Ashdown alone, denies that he ever saw the red-ink account, and asserts that it is wholly fictitious. In support of this contention he relies in the first place upon certain paragraphs in the joint affidavit of Ashdown and Pritchard filed in support of the application to have his plea struck out.

That joint affidavit, which is set out at p. 3, Appendix to Progress Report 79-5,120, states, in paragraph 3, that the settlement of transactions mentioned in Garsed's affidavit was made by an agreement, of which a copy is thereunto annexed, and, in paragraph 14, that the bill of exchange for the sum of £680 15s. 3d. did not form part of a bonus of £2,000, but was the balance found to be due on the accounts between the said A. Ashdown and the said J. Garsed, but was in no way a part of any bonus.

The part underlined, coupled with the agreement referred to in paragraph 3, would seem clearly to point to the bill as being a private transaction between Garsed and Ashdown individually, and not as a member of the firm. The agreement (A. 5) set out at p. 4, made between Garsed and Ashdown alone on 30th September, 1857, and which, as stated in the joint affidavit, was a repurchase by Garsed of certain properties previously purchased by Ashdown from him, seems also to confirm this view. By that agreement, in the 5th paragraph, the very last item of the sum £9,830 15s. 3d., which was the sum to be paid by Garsed to Ashdown on the repurchase, is this very sum of £680 15s. 3d., which the paragraph says is to be secured by Garsed's promissory note and a memorandum and deposit by way of equitable mortgage over certain title deeds.

Moreover, the items of this agreement are set down in a book called "Pritchard's Journal," a book which Ashdown admitted at the Police Court was kept by Pritchard as a record of the transactions of Garsed and Ashdown individually, in the order in which they appear in the agreement, the £680 15s. 3d. being the last item, and so appearing in that private account book, to which the firm of Dean & Co. were strangers, would lead to the inference that it was a liability to Ashdown alone. Further, according to the evidence of the late Mr. Carroll, a competent accountant, who gave evidence before the Select Committee, and also at Garsed's trial, and who went through the items both of Pritchard's journal and Dean & Co.'s ledger before the Committee, this bill for £680 15s. 3d. must, according to both those books, have been given by Garsed to Ashdown alone in settlement of private transactions between them. He further points out, pages 10 and 11, that while on the 13th October, 1857, Garsed's advance account was in Dean & Co.'s ledger properly credited with the amount of the bill in question, the latter was, when dishonored, not debited, as it should have been, to the same account, but to Garsed's general account (which would be Garsed's real account with the firm of Dean & Co.), and this under date the 20th February, 1858—that is, some time after the action on the bill had been commenced. Carroll further states that across the entry of the bill so wrongly debited a pencil-mark had been drawn, apparently by some accountant who had previously examined and discovered the error. He also states, page 10, that the copy of the red-ink account above referred to was not a genuine account either from Dean & Co.'s books or Pritchard's journal, inasmuch as there are two items of £1,300 each in that account which do not appear in either of those books, and which certainly ought to have appeared in Dean & Co.'s books if those amounts were, as represented represented by that account, owing to the firm. It may be mentioned that these books are said to be at present in the Legislative Council Chambers. According to Garsed they were rejected as evidence on his criminal trial. If so, it was probably because Carroll had not kept them himself, and that Pritchard, who had previously left the Colony, was not a witness. It may also be as well to mention here that Garsed is in error when he says in his evidence before the Select Committee that the joint affidavit and the agreement of 30th September were not in evidence at his trial for perjury. They were both in evidence. I may further point out in connection with the agreement of the 30th September, that the copy red-ink account does not, in the order of the items, accord with it, various of the items, and amongst them that for £680 15s. 3d., having been transposed.

While, however, the circumstances above alluded to would seem to point to the fact of the bill and the agreement of which it was the outcome having been a private transaction between Garsed and Ashdown alone there can be no doubt, and it is in fact, as I understand, so conceded by Garsed, that the sum of £7,830 15s. 3d., was due by him, or by him and Ashdown, to Dean and Company, and formed part and parcel of the £9,830 15s. 3d. mentioned in that very agreement.

According to Garsed's version, the first four items in that agreement of 30th September, 1857, making in all £8,050, and which Ashdown received from him, exceeded the amount due to Dean and Company by £219 4s. 9d., and adding to this sum the residue of the items as and in the order mentioned in the agreement, viz., Russell's £600, Newtown Foundry, £500, and the bill or promissory note for £680 15s. 3d., the sum total will make exactly the £2,000 which he says he gave to Ashdown as a bonus, and for which he got no consideration.

As against this and the other grounds relied upon by Garsed, there is not only the evidence of Ashdown, but also, to some extent, that of the late Mr. Daintrey and the late Mr. Want, solicitors; as also, I believe, the evidence of Garsed's official assignee, Mr. A. Wilson, his former attorney, Mr. P. A. Thompson; and later, before the Select Committee alone (he was absent from the Colony at the time of the trial) that of Mr. M. Constable. The evidence of Mr. Daintrey at the Police Court (I am informed by Garsed the whole of the Police Court depositions were read in evidence on his trial), though not very precise, shows, on the one hand, that there was some talk on Pritchard's part about Garsed's having agreed to give Ashdown a bonus, and, on the other, seems to some extent to bear out Ashdown's version that the £2,000 to Ashdown was made up of the transfer of certain land and mortgages to him. Mr. Want, p. 14, says that in coming to the agreement of 30th September the £2,000 was named as payable from Garsed to Ashdown for excessive value of land charged by Garsed to Ashdown, and for certain other considerations, and that it was to be paid by certain mortgages and lands, and that these were picked out to make up that sum. He adds that nothing was said as to a bill for £680 15s. 3d., as forming part of the £2,000, and that an amount due to Ashdown, or to Dean and Ashdown, remained unsecured, and a bill was to be given for it—was to be given for the balance—by Garsed to Ashdown, at a short date, payment of which was to be secured by the depositing of deeds.

He is also corroborated to a great extent by Mr. Constable (see p. 16 of Report 79-5,120), as also, it would appear from the latter's evidence (though I have not their evidence before me), by that of Mr. P. A. Thompson and Mr. Adam Wilson, Garsed's assignee.

I have now endeavoured to collect together, to the best of my ability, out of a mass of, in many respects, irrelevant matter, the essential points on both sides of this case. I have endeavoured to eliminate the non-essential matters, such as other criminal charges against, and civil proceedings by and against, Garsed, as only calculated to further perplex the present question. I do not, of course, pronounce any opinion upon the case one way or the other; but I feel bound to call the Minister's attention to the minute of Sir A. Stephen, while acting as Lieutenant-Governor, and who, it will be remembered, presided at Garsed's trial for perjury. That minute, which is dated 24th July, 1879, and is written on Garsed's petition herewith, runs thus:—"This matter arose above twenty years ago, and the litigation and criminal proceedings arising out of it ended in 1859, by the (in my opinion proper) verdict of guilty against the petitioner. I have since that time repeatedly considered the case, and it has been considered several times elsewhere. I therefore decline to take any action on this petition."

I will conclude by adding that in this case there have been two verdicts, one by a civil and one by a criminal Jury, in which they must have found that Garsed's plea was not made out, and that the red-ink account, which he contends was a fictitious one, was in reality a genuine one.
