Sections 25, 27, and 62 lay duties on the Board which could not be performed by them unless they were entitled to obtain such information from the Departmental Records, and, indeed, section 25 is very specific in regard to Heads of Departments furnishing returns to the Board, in which they shall report on the "efficiency" and "character" of the officers, for reference in considering claims for promotion. It is just such a claim which the Under Secretary for Justice has submitted to the Civil Service Board in reference to the vacancy of the Seventh Clerkship in the Central Police Office, and the reports as to efficiency and character are absolutely necessary to a proper determination in regard to the claims to promotion of Mr. Reeve and Mr. Crane.

The Under Secretary for Justice contends that "it is clearly no part of the duty of the head of the Department to go beyond the nomination of one officer and disparage the competency or attainments of other officers, and place such depreciatory remarks on record"; but this view of the case scarcely accords with the reports furnished by him in reference to Mr. Crane, in the returns forwarded to the Board, dated 31st January, 1887, in which, against the name of Mr. F. W. C. Crane, is the following remark,— "Has only been at this office a few months, we therefore cannot form an estimate of his efficiency." This return was signed by Messrs. Marsh, S.M., and Addison, S.M. On papers dated 22nd July, 1887, referred to the Board for consideration of promotions in the Water Police Office, the Stipendiary Magistrates reported Mr. Crane as inefficient, and recommended his removal to some other position. Again, so lately as 31st January, 1888, in the Return of Officers employed in the Water Police Office, Messrs. Marsh, Addison, and Fisher, Stipendiary Magistrates, reported as follows on the efficiency and character of Mr. Crane:—"Not an efficient officer, conduct generally unsatisfactory, and, as we previously recommended, we suggest his removal to some other office." No such depreciatory reports have been made against Mr. Andrewes Reeve, who, in the returns of like date, is classed as an "efficient officer," and therefore, on that ground, more eligible for promotion than the other applicant, who is said to be "not an efficient officer." Length of service is an element in a claim to promotion, but the Board are bound to consider various other matters before making a report, and the seniority of an officer must certainly be considered in determining his competency and attainments.

The term "senior," to which the Under Secretary takes exception, has been used by the Board in its commonplace acceptation, as implying the right to precedence or preference, and in tracing the career of the two officers referred to in this minute they find that although Mr. Crane has a longer service than Mr. Reeve, the latter officer has had precedence of Mr. Crane in the matter of salary, and inferentially in his status in the service, Mr. Reeve having been Assistant Clerk of Petty Sessions at Armidale on 1st December, 1884, salary £100 per annum; while Mr. Crane was a pupil-teacher, with salary of £66 per annum. Mr. Reeve received a salary of £120 in 1885 and £140 in 1886; while Mr. Crane does not appear to have reached a salary of £120 till 1st June, 1886, when he was transferred from the Department of Public Instruction (where he was receiving £72 per annum as a pupil-teacher) to the position of Eighth Clerk in the Water Police Office, at £120 per annum, and in which position he was stated by his superior officer to be "not an efficient officer."

The claim of Mr. Reeve to the position of Seventh Clerk would therefore appear to be superior to that of Mr. Crane, by reason of his longer experience in the Department of Justice, and of his having been in receipt of the higher salary for the longer period; and as he has been reported to the Board as "efficient," they now report to the Minister the name of Mr. F. W. C. Crane as that of the officer recommended by the Head of the Department, and the name of Mr. Andrewes Reeve as that of the officer who, in the opinion of the Board, is the most eligible for promotion, by reason of his seniority, competency, and attainments.

Secretary.

Minute Paper.

Subject:—Vacancy of Seventh Clerkship in the Central Police Office.

Department of Justice, Sydney.

WITH reference to your minute of 11th ultimo, I beg to inform you that, as stated in my letter of 3rd instant to the Chairman of the Civil Service Board, respecting the case of Mr. F. B. Hales, Emergency Clerk of Petty Sessions, this department has no desire to withhold any information from the Board which might reasonably be required by them; nor is there anything in my previous communications to them upon the matter under consideration that should justify them in drawing such an inference. The contention of this department was that it was not necessary under the Civil Service Act for the Head of the Department to go beyond the nomination of one officer and disparage the competency or attainments of other officers, &c., &c. This view is still adhered to. Nor is there anything inconsistent in this view, as suggested by the Board, with the previous action of the department in reference to certain returns forwarded in January, 1887, in terms of the 25th section of the Civil Service Act. These returns were made out by the Heads of Sub-Departments, and merely forwarded to the Board by this department. Moreover, the references therein to Messrs. Crane and Reeve are of comparatively old date, while the strong recommendations of the Magistrates in favour of Mr. Crane are of recent date, and therefore considered sufficient to override those relied upon by the Board.

The

The Board appears to have introduced into the interpretation of the 27th section of the Civil Service Act some question of "seniority," as distinguished from "length of service;" but the Minister of Justice thinks it is safer, and more to the interests of the Public Service (in this instance, at least), to abide by the clear terms of the section itself.

Mr. Crane, therefore, being recommended as the officer best qualified to fill the vacancy, and having longer service than Mr. Reeve, is, in the Minister's opinion, the officer whom he is bound to recommend to the Governor and Executive Council.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD.

(ADDITIONAL PAPERS IN CONNECTION WITH REPORT FOR 1889.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 May, 1889.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 28 May, 1889.

I have the honor to invite your attention to the report of the Civil Service Board for 1888, in which it is stated that the Board considered improper preference had been shown to ineligible officers in two cases of promotion in the Department of Justice.

I may point out that of the numerous appointments made in this Department since the Civil Service Act came into operation (1st January, 1885), the Board have only taken exception to the two cases mentioned. If, as it is contended on behalf of this Department, the charges made against it are unjustifiable, the Board, it would appear, have committed a serious mistake in giving publicity to their unfavourable comments respecting the character and efficiency of the officers referred to.

Under the Civil Service Act, the head of this Department (the Under Secretary) is entrusted with the recommendation in the first instance of officers for promotion, and if blame is attachable to the Department with reference to the promotions made in these two cases, the Under Secretary cannot escape from his share.

Believing, as I do, that I have properly performed the duties imposed upon me by the Act, and also that the action of the Ministers of Justice who dealt with the cases previous to your holding office was thoroughly justified, I take the liberty of explaining to you how those cases stand, and to ask that the same publicity may be given to this explanation which has been given to the charges made by the Civil Service Board.

The first case mentioned by the Board is that of Mr. F. B. Hales. The 8th paragraph of the Report referring to this case states:—"In the one case, the point raised by us, and on which we based our objection to the proposed promotion, was that the officer had in 1879, been dismissed from the Service for serious dereliction of duty, and that such dismissal entirely obliterated and annulled all claim to count his service prior thereto. The dismissal was followed by a long break of service, after which he was appointed to a subordinate and temporary position, not by the Governor-in-Council, who had confirmed his dismissal, but by the authority of the Minister only. We held that the claims of officers who had efficiently performed their duties should be considered in the order of their seniority before we could give our assent to the promotion of a person whose misconduct had merited so severe a penalty as dismissal from the Service."

From the terms in which this paragraph is couched it would appear that Mr. Hales, having been appointed to a subordinate and temporary position by the authority of the Minister only, had from thence been appointed direct to the position of Police Magistrate at Port Macquarie. This is misleading. The facts as disclosed in the papers which were forwarded to the Board and bear the official stamp of their office are as follows:—The temporary appointment alluded to was made by the Honorable H. E. Cohen, then Minister of Justice, in March, 1884, before the Civil Service Act came into force. After Mr. Hales had served a year in such temporary position he was appointed by the Governor and Executive Council to act as Clerk of Petty Sessions and Registrar of the District Court at Orange, from 1st May, 1885, at a salary of £800 per annum during the leave of absence granted to the permanent Clerk of Petty Sessions there. He continued to act after the death of the Clerk of Petty Sessions until December, 1886 when the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council appointed him to be an emergency officer in the Department of Justice at a salary of £320 per annum. In the Executive Minute signed by the Honorable James P. Garvan, then Minister of Justice, it is stated in reference to Mr. Hales' services at Orange that "he has performed the duties in a most efficient manner, to the satisfaction of the local Bench, legal profession, and residents of Orange, by whom he has been recommended in the highest terms for permanent appointment." Further.—The Executive Council authorized "that the prescribed examination and probationary service be dispensed with in this special case, in terms of the 28th section of the Civil Service Act, on the grounds that Mr. Hales is an experienced and capable magistrate, and possesses special attainments and aptitude for the duties of a Clerk of Petty Sessions, with which he is thoroughly conversant."

conversant." A copy of this Minute was duly sent to the Civil Service Board. In this position Mr. Hales gave the Department proof of the value of his experience and ability. While serving in such capacity he was further appointed in April, 1888, by the Governor and Executive Council, upon the recommendation of the Hon. William Clarke, then Minister of Justice, to be Acting Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions at Port Macquarie, during the absence on leave of Mr. Reeve, Police Magistrate at that place. He continued to act until Mr. Reeve's retirement from the Service. No exception was taken by the Board to any of these appointments. It was from the last-named position that Mr. Hales was appointed, without concurrence of the Board, as permanent Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions at Port Macquarie.

The circumstances above detailed will, I venture to submit, place a different complexion upon the matter from that which appears to be placed upon it by the Board in their report.

I may further state that on the 1st October last, Mr. Clarke recommended to the Executive Council that Mr. Hales be appointed permanent Police Magistrate, Clerk of Petty Sessions, and Registrar of the District Court at Port Macquarie with salary at the rate of £390 per annum, but in consequence, as I understand, of certain verbal representations made the consideration of the appointment was held over. In the meantime, on the 5th December last, it appears from the correspondence attached to the report that the Chairman of the Civil Service Board wrote to the Principal Under Secretary bringing the matter under the notice of the Hon. the Colonial Secretary. The Board made no intimation to this Department that such a step had been taken, and I was ignorant of the existence of such a letter until I saw it in the appendix to the report of the Civil Service Board.

On the 23rd January last, on the recommendation of the Hon. T. M. Slattery, then Minister of Justice, Mr. Hales was appointed permanently to his present position, all the papers connected with the case having been submitted to the Executive Council.

The Hon. the Attorney-General gave it as his opinion that the question whether Mr. Hales could claim in the computation of his "length of service" the period served by him before his dismissal, was one purely of administration. Under the 27th section of the Act it will be seen that the Board cannot administer the Act as they choose, but that certain powers and duties belong to Ministers and Heads of Departments, with which the Board are not entitled to interfere. The Minister of Justice, in Mr. Hales' case, chose to administer the Act as far as he was entitled so to do, according to his own opinion of what was right, and declined to accept the dictum of the Board. Of this action the Board appear to have no grounds for complaint, and it is difficult to see in what manner they are justified in bringing this matter under public notice as a charge against this Department.

In a leading article which appeared in the Sydney Morning Herald of the 27th instant, written before both sides of the question could have been heard, and in fact before the copies of the Civil Service Board Report were distributed, it is stated that it is absurd to pass an Act for the regulation of proceedings of this kind (meaning appointments), and then go outside of it. So far from going outside of the Act, the Minister of Justice, in this case, was acting strictly within the scope of his functions, and if anything is to be complained of it is the proceeding of the Board in assuming a power of dictation to the Minister which it is clear, under the Act, was never intended they should possess. This article written as it has been with only partial knowledge of the circumstances may possibly have prejudiced the public mind, and therefore supplies an additional reason for giving publicity to an explanation of the matter.

The attention of the Minister of Justice is also invited to the opinion of the Hon. the Attorney General, that the Board had not complied with the provisions of section 27. The Board insisted that they had complied with such requirements. The Minister preferred to accept the opinion of the Attorney General; and the default of the Board left no course open to him but to make the recommendation he did, even if he had not held the view which he entertained of the strength of Mr. Hales' claims.

If the Civil Service Act is not to be administered according to its terms, there will arise great difficulties between the parties who have respectively distinct functions under it. In this instance the Board adopted the peculiar course of appealing to the Hon. the Colonial Secretary to delay the appointment for consideration of their objection, thereby clearly endeavouring to neutralize the action which the Minister had taken in the exercise of his undoubted right under the Act.

In looking through the correspondence printed, I observe certain documents have been omitted which ought to have been published, viz.:—Letter of this Department to the Civil Service Board, No. 9,289, notifying Mr. Hales' appointment, and also the case submitted to the Attorney-General by Mr. Williams, in his capacity as Crown Solicitor, in which he enters into arguments in support of the action of his Board as against the Minister.

With reference to the second case of Mr. F. W. C. Crane, who was appointed from the 9th to the 7th Clerkship in the Central Police Court in preference to another officer, I think little requires to be said in support of the action of this Department. These officers received the same amount of salary, but the officer passed over was styled 8th Clerk, and Mr. Crane 9th. In the Report of 1887, furnished to the Board by the Stipendiary Magistrates at the Water Police Court, an unfavourable comment, as shown by the printed correspondence, was made respecting Mr. Crane. After he was transferred to the Central Police Office the Stipendiary Magistrates of that Court made a good report respecting his efficiency.

For the reasons that Mr. Crane had greater length of service within the meaning of the Act than the other officer, and was reported by the Stipendiary Magistrates at the Central Police Court to be more efficient, the Minister in the exercise of his right of nomination elected Mr. Crane. As a singular commentary on the action of the Board in endeavouring to force the officer nominated by them into the vacancy in question, I would quote the character of that gentleman given to the Board in the last return by the Stipendiary Magistrates at the Central Police Court to the effect that "this officer is utterly incompetent."

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,

Under Secretary.

In view of the serious charge made by the Civil Service Board in their Report for the year 1888, virtually amounting to one of maladministration in connection with the appointments of Mr. Hales and Mr. Crane by this Department, I think it is not only fair to the Department, but desirable in the interests of the public that this explanatory letter with the documents referred to by Mr. Fraser should be laid on the Table of the House. Copies will therefore be prepared for that purpose.—A.J.G., 30/5/89.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Secretary to the Civil Service Board.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 9 February, 1889.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, has been pleased to appoint Frederick Barnwell Hales, Esquire, Acting Police Magistrate, Port Macquarie, to be Police Magistrate, Clerk of Petty Sessions, and Registrar of the District Court at that place, to take effect from the 1st January last. (Vide Government Gazette, 5th February, 1889.)

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,
Under Secretary.

Case for the opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General, submitted by the Crown Solicitor.

At the request of the Minister of Justice, I submit for the opinion of the Attorney-General, the papers relating to the appointment of Mr. F. B. Hales as Police Magistrate at Port Macquarie, with which will be found a Minute of the Civil Service Board stating the reasons for dissenting from such appointment.

The question put by the Minister of Justice is whether in the nomination by the Minister of Justice of an officer for an appointment under section 27 of the Civil Service Act of 1884 that section should be interpreted (in accordance with the Civil Service Board) as excluding from recognition the eighteen years service of Mr. Hales, which the Board refuse to recognize.

As stated in the Under Secretary's letter (which is with the papers herewith), Mr. Hales was dismissed from the service in 1879; this, it may be mentioned, was for misconduct, and apparently in the opinion of the Board such dismissal entirely terminated and wiped out all previous service.

It is said he was reappointed in 1886; it is understood, however, that he was not restored by Minute of the Executive to his former position, but was appointed by the Minister to another entirely different appointment (it is understood under section 29 to a new office then recently created), and as such appointment would not in anything interfere with the claims of any other officer it would not be reported to the Board, and could be given to any person outside the Service.

The Board appear to be of opinion that it must be considered Mr. Hales was outside the Service, and that, as his appointment was not a restoration to his former appointment, it did not affect his previous dismissal, which still remains unreversed.

Assuming this to be the case, the Board appears to have considered his present standing in the Service must date from his last appointment, as the Board were of opinion that his dismissal deprived him of all rights to any benefit from his previous service.

If the former finding of the Governor and Executive Council had been reconsidered and Mr. Hales restored to his former office, there could be no doubt that he was entitled to count his previous service; as, however, this was not done, but Mr. Hales was appointed to a place in the Government Service in the same way as any other person outside the Service could have been appointed, he cannot now, with the finding of the Governor and Executive Council still standing against him, claim to derive any benefit from his previous service.

The question now submitted, it will be noticed, does not affect Mr. Hales alone; but, as the report of the Board is to deal with the respective length of service, if the Board are by law bound to take into account the service of Mr. Hales prior to his dismissal, the effect may be to give him priority over officers whose service has been continuous, and who have an unblemished record.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD.

(FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING THE APPOINTMENTS OF MESSRS. HALES AND CRANE, REFERRED TO IN REPORT OF, FOR 1888.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 23 July, 1889.

The Under Secretary for Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 19 July, 1889.

I do myself the honor to bring under your notice a minute of the Civil Service Board, signed by the Chairman (Mr. John Williams), dated 12th June last, and laid upon the Table of the House on 17th instant, respecting the appointments of Messrs. Hales and Crane.

Although unwilling to prolong the controversy on the subject of these appointments, I respectfully submit that it would be manifestly wrong to leave unanswered certain representations made in that minute.

The 9th paragraph commences thus:—"The Under Secretary, in the last paragraph of his letter (dated 28th May, and addressed to the present Minister of Justice), says:—"I would quote the character of that gentleman, given to the Board in the last return to the effect that this officer (Mr. Reeve) is utterly incompetent." But the Under Secretary has disingenuously omitted to state that this 'last return' was not furnished to the Board until forwarded to them under cover of his letter of 2nd March, 1889, long after the appointment of Mr. Crane had been gazetted."

This, if it means anything, must mean that I intentionally endeavoured to keep the Minister of Justice in ignorance of the circumstance that the Board, when dealing with Mr. Crane's case, were not aware that the Stipendiary Magistrates had reported Mr. Reeve's incompetence.

The following explanation will, I think, show how ill-considered is the charge of disingenuousness, and that if there be any disingenuousness at all it is clearly on the part of the Board.

The quotation, as above made, is a mutilation of the original sentence, which I now give:—"As a singular commentary on the action of the Board in endeavouring to force the officer nominated by them into the vacancy in question, I would quote the character of that gentleman given to the Board in the last return by the Stipendiary Magistrates at the Central Police Court to the effect that 'this officer is utterly incompetent.'"

Had this sentence been properly quoted, it would have shown, beyond doubt, that the "last return," reporting the incompetency of the officer recommended by the Board, was referred to by me only as a commentary upon their past action in having pressed the appointment of that officer, and contained no implication that they had seen the return prior to their recommendation in his favour.

Further—the fact that my letter bore date 28th May, and that the last action of the Board, as shown by the printed papers, was taken in December previous, makes it clear that no such implication could have been intended by me.

The minute of the Board brings prominently into notice the fact that the information as to the incompetency of Mr. Reeve was in their possession in March last, more than two months before the date of their annual report. Notwithstanding this knowledge, they made no allusion to it in that report, but complained of the action of the Minister in passing over Mr. Reeve, who was described therein, "Stated to be efficient."

The assertion of the Board that they have pointed out inaccuracies in my letter, and that I have omitted material facts, is erroneous. In reality they have not specified a single inaccuracy nor the omission of one such fact.

It is easy for them to say, in the last paragraph of their minute, that on the whole, "therefore," it would appear the action of the Department has been misleading, &c. A perusal, however, of the minute of the Board will show that there is nothing to justify such a conclusion.

I have not, as stated in the minute, "carefully avoided any reference to the main issue raised by the Board in Mr. Hales' case, viz., whether dismissal for dereliction of duty does or does not cancel previous service." This question has been amply discussed. The Minister taking a large view of the interests of the Public Service, and giving consideration to the circumstances of Mr. Hales' case, thought he was right in dissenting from the severe dictum laid down by the Board, and being (as they admitted) entitled to act upon his own opinion, did so.

The

The Board have not met the charge that their report was misleading in respect to Mr. Hales' case. The terms of their report indicated that Mr. Hales, having been appointed to a subordinate and temporary position by the authority of the Minister only, had from thence been appointed direct to the position of Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions, at Port Macquarie; whereas, as I pointed out, he had after his restoration to the Service been successively promoted during a course of years to high positions, under the authority of the Governor and Executive Council, and I carefully specified which of these positions were temporary and which were permanent. This information was given in full by me, not merely to show that the Board had represented the matter in an incorrect manner, but that the fact of Mr. Hales' successive appointments by the Governor and Executive Council supported the opinion of the Minister of Justice, that Mr. Hales' dereliction of duty in 1879 had been condoned by various Governments.

As a further proof of such condonation, I may mention that the Government accepted Mr. Hales' contributions to the Superannuation Fund from the date of his first appointment by the Governor and Executive Council after his reinstatement to the Service, viz., his appointment as Acting Clerk of Petty Sessions at Orange, in May, 1885.

Nor have the Board explained how they came (in their report) to represent that Mr. Crane had been promoted over the head of an officer (Mr. Reeve) "stated to be efficient," meaning, in the ordinary construction of language, efficient in the duties performed by him at the time of the promotion in question; nor how they came to publish in support of their statement the assertion contained in their minute of 11th December, 1888, page 12 of the report, to the effect that in the return of the Stipendiary Magistrates, Central Police Court, dated in January of that year, Mr. Reeve was classed as an "efficient officer," when the absolute fact was that no such character had been given him in that or any other return by the Stipendiary Magistrates.

The question as to whether Mr. Reeve had been reported efficient by the Stipendiary Magistrates is the pith of the whole matter, and I submit that it was clearly the duty of the Board to acknowledge in unequivocal terms the error upon which their charge against the Department of Justice with regard to Mr. Crane's appointment almost entirely rested.

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,

Under Secretary,

P.S.—Since writing the above, the accompanying communication has been received from the Civil Service Board, intimating their concurrence in a further promotion of Mr. Crane.

Minute by The Secretary of the Civil Service Board to The Under Secretary for Justice.

Promotions in the Central Police Office.

Civil Service Board, Sydney, 18 July, 1889.

THE Under Secretary for Justice having reported that a vacancy had occurred by the promotion of Mr. E. M. Cohen, and having nominated Mr. W. J. M. Fincham to succeed Mr. Cohen, the Civil Service Board, in their letter of July 3rd, concurred in the nomination of Mr. Fincham.

In order to determine the respective claims of Messrs. Reeve and Crane to promotion to the position vacated by Mr. Fincham, the Board requested that they might be furnished with all papers and reports relating to those officers, which were forwarded under cover of the Under Secretary's letter of 8th instant.

Among the papers is a letter from G. O'Malley Clarke, Esq., S.M., for the Bench, of date 3rd June ultimo, reporting in strong terms upon Mr. Reeve's unfitness for promotion. In view of this information, and of Mr. Clarke's minute in favour of Mr. Crane of 29th March, 1889, the Board are of opinion that Mr. Crane should be nominated as the officer best qualified for the vacancy.

The Board are further of opinion that as the Stipendiary Magistrates appear to have been fully aware of Mr. Reeve's inefficiency when a former vacancy was under consideration, much trouble would have been saved if they had then afforded the Board the information and assistance now given.

REFERRED TO IN REPORT OF, FOR 1888.)Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 17 July, 1889.

The Chairman of the Civil Service Board to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Civil Service Board, Sydney, 14 June, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Civil Service Board, to request that you will invite the attention of the Colonial Secretary to the enclosed Minute of the Board, passed at a meeting held on Wednesday, 12th June instant.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Chairman.

[Enclosure.]

MINUTE of the Civil Service Board in reference to the letter of the Under Secretary for Justice, addressed to the Minister for Justice, on the subject of the Board's Report for 1888, for the consideration of the Hon. the Colonial Secretary.

THE Under Secretary for Justice having submitted to the Hon. the Minister a minute, of date 25th May, 1889, to "explain how the cases of Messrs. Hales and Crane stand," in which he animadverts upon the action of the Board and their Report for 1888; and that minute having been laid upon the Table of the Legislative Assembly, the Board feel called upon to point out the inaccuracy of many of its statements, and to request that the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, as the Minister charged with the administration of the Act, will cause this minute to be placed on record.

The Under Secretary has carefully avoided any reference to the main issue raised by the Board, viz.: whether dismissal for dereliction of duty does or does not cancel previous service. He has also omitted material facts, which, if stated, would have supported the action of the Board. The various appointments held by Mr. Hales between March, 1884, and December, 1886, though sanctioned by the Governor and the Executive Council, were all specifically of a temporary character, and the services could not have been performed without such sanction; and, as they did not interfere with the right of any other officer in the Service, the Board were not called upon to express any opinion on the subject. With his employment by the Minister as a temporary officer to December, 1886, under section 31, and his appointment to the new office of extra emergency Clerk of Petty Sessions, under section 29, the Board were not entitled to interfere; but when it was proposed, under section 27, to appoint him to a vacant position on the permanent staff, the Board felt themselves called upon to protect the rights of officers having, as it appeared to them, claims to seniority.

When Mr. Hales' name was submitted to the Board for the position of P.M. and C.P.S. at Port Macquarie, his service was stated by the Under Secretary to be twenty-one years, but this included service prior to 1879 (the year of his dismissal), and had the effect of making him appear the officer with greatest length of service among those having claims to the promotion. The Board considered that his service prior to 1879 had been annulled by his dismissal in that year, and that he was entitled to count only from the date of his re-entry into the Service in 1884.

The Board concur in the Attorney-General's opinion that the question is one purely of administration, and in that light they have acted. They never have claimed, as the Under Secretary suggests, that they "can administer the Act as they choose," and have carefully avoided interfering with any duties or functions of Heads of Departments, or Ministers, with which they are not entitled to meddle; but they hold that they are bound to deal with the appointments reported to them, whether recommended by the Head of the Department or proposed to be made by the Minister, if such appointments appear to them to be prejudicial to the just claims of other officers.

The Under Secretary says "it is difficult to see in what manner they (the Board) are justified in bringing this matter under public notice." The 62nd section provides that they shall annually make a report of their proceedings; and this matter being a part of their proceedings, and as they thought, and still think, one materially affecting the rights of all officers in the Civil Service, it was, it seems to them, peculiarly their duty to embody it in their report.

The Under Secretary asserts that, "The default of the Board left no course open to him (the Minister) but to make the recommendation he did," that Mr. Hales should be appointed. The Board affirm that there was no default on their part; their duty was clearly to report the name of the officer who appeared to them to be entitled to the appointment in place of the officer recommended by the Under Secretary, which they did by recommending Mr. Edwards; and, when informed that he declined to accept the appointment, they stated that, in their opinion, the officer next in seniority was entitled to the promotion.

The Under Secretary complains that "the Board adopted the peculiar course of applying to the Hon. the Colonial Secretary to delay the appointment for consideration of their objection." But the Board have always considered that they are bound to promptly apprise the Minister charged with the administration of the Act of any attempted action appearing to them to be inconsistent with the clear intention of the Legislature, in order that any proposed injustice may be averted by the action of the Governor and Executive Council. With reference to the complaint of the Under Secretary that he was not furnished with a copy of their letter, the Board did not consider it necessary to do so.

In connection with the appointment of Mr. Crane, the Under Secretary accuses the Board of "endeavouring to force the officer nominated by them into the vacancy in question." This statement is absolutely unwarranted. The Board requested information, in reference to Mr. Reeve's character and efficiency in the following terms:—"The Civil Service Board desire to point out that the papers submitted to them do not contain any report on the qualifications or attainments of Mr. Reeve, his name not being mentioned by the Stipendiary Magistrate. As Mr. Reeve is at present senior to Mr. Crane, the Board are of opinion that Mr. Reeve should have the promotion, unless it is shown that he cannot perform the duties of the higher position." The Under Secretary refused to give any information on this head, declaring that,— "It is clearly no part of the duty of the Head of the Department to go beyond the nomination of one officer and disparage the competency or attainments of other officers, and place such depreciatory remarks on record."

The Under Secretary, in the last paragraph of his letter, says:—"I would quote the character of that gentleman, given to the Board in the last return to the effect that this officer (Mr. Reeve) is utterly incompetent." But the Under Secretary has disingenuously omitted to state that this "last return" was not furnished to the Board until forwarded to them under cover of his letter of 2nd March, 1889, long after the appointment of Mr. Crane had been gazetted. Mr. Crane, on the 31st January, 1888, was reported in these terms by the Department of Justice, to which he had been transferred in June, 1886:—"Not an efficient officer, and, as we previously recommended, we suggest his removal to some other office." And it was found that unsatisfactory reports had also been made by the Department of Public Instruction, in which he commenced his career in the Public Service as a pupil-teacher; which service, in the opinion of the Board, did not entitle him to claim seniority over Mr. Reeve, who had been for four years in the Department of Justice, in which Mr. Crane had only had two years and a half of service.

It may be mentioned that in questions of seniority, the Board can obtain all necessary information from records, but in questions as to character the Board have to rely upon such information as Under Secretaries may see fit to furnish.

It is correct, as Mr. G. O'Malley Clarke remarks in his letter of 3rd June, 1889, that no report was made by the Magistrates at the Central Police Office to the Board. He well knows that the only channel through which the Board can ask for information is the Department of Justice, and therefore no inquiry would be made by the Board of the Magistrates. It now appears, by the Under Secretary's own showing, that there would have been no difficulty in obtaining the information asked for, which he declined to furnish.

Mr. O'Malley Clarke states that no report was made as to Mr. Reeve in 1887, but that in the last report, of which (singular to say) the date is not given, he was characterised as "utterly incompetent." This last report, we find, is the report referred to as having been forwarded under cover of the letter of 2nd March, 1889; the latest recommendation in favour of Mr. Reeve having been made by the Board on the 16th December, 1888, when the latest opinion of the Bench had not been brought before them.

The general position may be summarised as follows:—"That in the one case Mr. Hales was not eligible for appointment, as his service prior to dismissal had been annulled thereby, and in the other case the information supplied to the Board indicated that Mr. Reeve was an efficient officer, with greater length of service in the Department of Justice than Mr. Crane, against whom repeated reports of an unsatisfactory nature had been made, and that, therefore, Mr. Reeve was preferable to Mr. Crane both by efficiency and by seniority.

On the whole, therefore, it would appear that, instead of the Report of the Board being, as alleged by the Under Secretary, "misleading," and requiring the explanation he has given, the only thing misleading about the matter is the action of the Department of Justice, and the proffered "explanation" leaves that action as anomalous as ever.

FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING APPOINTMENT OF MR. F. W. C. CRANE, REFERRED TO IN REPORT OF, FOR 1888.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 6 June, 1889.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 6 June, 1889.

I have the honor, in reference to the report of the Civil Service Board for 1888, further to state that it would appear from the 9th paragraph of that report, Mr. F. W. C. Crane was promoted "over the head of an officer (Mr. Reeve) stated to be efficient," i.e., in the ordinary construction of language, efficient in the discharge of the duties performed by him at the time of the promotion in question. This construction is attempted to be borne out by the statement made by the Civil Service Board, in their minute of 11th December, 1888, page 12 of the report, to the effect that in the Return, dated 1st January, 1888, Mr. Reeve is classed as an "efficient officer." Such statement is not correct. Mr. Reeve was at the time referred to in that Return employed in the Central Police Office, and in the Return of that year no such character was given him. It was as far back as 1886, when acting as Assistant Clerk of Petty Sessions at Armidale, that Mr. Reeve was styled "efficient."

I enclose a letter from the Stipendiary Magistrates upon the subject.

As bearing upon the questions to be asked this afternoon in the Assembly by Mr. Traill, it might be advisable to table the enclosed additional papers referring to the opinion expressed by the Stipendiary Magistrates as to Mr. Crane's qualifications for the promotion in question.

Gentlemen,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 3 June, 1889.

I desire to call your attention to a statement made in the Minute of the Civil Service Board, dated 11th December, 1888, page 12 of Report of that Board for 1888, enclosed herewith, that Mr. Reeve, who was then in your office, was classed as an efficient officer.

Will you kindly inform me if you have any recollection of such a report having been sent in.

(No. 2.)

Sir,

Central Police Office, Sydney, 3 June, 1889.

In reply to your letter of the 1st instant, we desire to inform you that no report of Mr. Reeve's efficiency was made to the Civil Service Board by us. It is impossible that such a report could have been sent, as we have all entertained an opinion since he joined this office that he was incompetent.

In the return of 1887, no report of any kind was made respecting him. This was done out of consideration alone for the young man, but in the last report it was not considered advisable to continue the same course, and he was accordingly reported to be utterly incompetent.

We may venture to add that had Mr. Reeve been promoted instead of Mr. Crane, we should have found it necessary to have entered a very strong protest against such action, for we know the former to be not only incompetent but utterly useless for any position whatever in this office.

We have, &c.,

Sir,

Central Police Office, Sydney, 8 August, 1888.

In the event of the position of seventh clerk in this office becoming vacant through the promotion of Mr. Roberts, I do myself the honor of applying for that appointment.

In support of my application, I respectfully beg to state that I have been over seven years in the Service, and my former application for the same position was favourably recommended by the Stipendiary Magistrates at the Water Police Office.

The Under Secretary of Justice.

I have, &c.,

FRED. W. C. CRANE.

I feel pleasure in recommending Mr. Crane's application for favourable consideration, as during the short time he has been in this office he has performed his duties to my entire satisfaction.—

Referring to your letter of the 22nd instant, informing us of the appointment of Mr. H. F. Roberts as deposition clerk, and Mr. G. G. Brodie as extra clerk in this office, we desire to recommend that Mr. F. W. C. Crane be promoted to the position of seventh clerk, vice Roberts, with a salary at the rate of £144 per annum.

PROTHONOTARY OF THE SUPREME COURT.

(FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING SALARY OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 24 September, 1889.

No. 1.

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Chief Justice's Chambers, Supreme Court, Sydney, 10 October, 1887.

I have the honor to call your attention to the amount of salary paid to the Prothonotary of the Supreme Court, which, taking into consideration the responsibility of his office and the great importance of the duties he is called upon to discharge, is, I believe you will be of opinion, inadequate. He has now a salary of £700 a year, and for this he has not only to discharge the duties of the office of Prothonotary, but also the recently imposed duties of Registrar of the Divorce Jurisdiction.

When the Master in Equity was appointed to be also Master in Lunacy, his salary was raised from £1,000 to £1,250 a year, and yet the duties of Master in Equity and Master in Lunacy are in no respect more onerous or more responsible than the duties of Prothonotary of the Supreme Court and Registrar of the Divorce Court. In fact the Master in Equity discharges similar duties in regard to the limited jurisdiction of the Equity Court to those discharged by the Prothonotary in regard to the much more extended jurisdiction of the Common Law Courts.

This matter has, on previous occasions, been brought to the attention of the Minister, and I beg to call your attention to certain papers ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed on the 14th of October, 1886. (Copy enclosed.) These show the opinion of my predecessor and the other Judges, expressed in May, 1884.

What I venture to suggest is that a salary be allotted to the at present unpaid office of Registrar of the Divorce Court (say £800 a year), which, added to the salary at present attached to the office of Prothonotary, will make such salary equivalent to £1,000 a year, or £250 less than the Master in Equity is receiving. I may also point out that the vast increase of business of the Courts leads to increased work. The increase of business is shown by the fact that while in 1879 the amount of £3,644 was paid into the Treasury in respect of fees, the amount of fees for this year (1887) is calculated at £7,125, showing an increase since the year 1879 of no less a sum than £3,481.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 18 October, 1887.

I do myself the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, submitting the claims of Mr. F. Chapman, Prothonotary of the Supreme Court, to a higher salary, and to inform you that I shall give Mr. Chapman's case my best consideration.

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Chief Justice's Chambers, Supreme Court, Sydney, 11 June, 1888.

I venture to call your attention to a letter from me addressed to you, dated the 10th of October last, touching the inadequacy of the present salary of the Prothonotary, and suggesting that a sum of £800 should be placed upon the Estimates as a salary for Registrar of the Divorce Court, another office held by the Prothonotary, the duties of which have recently been added to his former duties, and which are by no means light. On the 18th of October you were good enough to acknowledge this letter 87-10,754, and informed me you would give Mr. Chapman's case your best consideration.

I have now the honor to ask you whether you can see your way to carry out my suggestion of increasing Mr. Chapman's salary by putting a salary upon the Estimates for that which is an entirely distinct office as was done in the case of the Master in Equity, when he was also appointed Master in Lunacy.

I may mention that my attention has been again called to this matter by His Honor Mr. Justice Stephen, pointing out how inadequate in his opinion the salary is for so valuable and efficient an officer as the Prothonotary, particularly when one takes into consideration the onerous and very responsible nature of his duties judicial and otherwise.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 13 June, 1888.

Referring to your Honor's letter of the 11th instant, touching the inadequacy of the present salary of the Prothonotary, and suggesting that a sum of £300 should be placed upon the Estimates as a salary for Registrar of the Divorce Court (at present attached to the office of Prothonotary), I have the honor to inform you that in view of the inquiry now being made by the "Public Service Inquiry Commission" as to (inter alia) the remuneration received by each officer in the Service, I consider that I should not be justified in dealing with the salary of the Prothonotary, until the Commission has furnished its report, and that I regret I cannot, therefore, at the present time comply with your Honor's request.

I have, &c.,

No. 5.

The Chief Justice to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Chief Justice's Chambers, Supreme Court, Sydney, 15 October, 1888.

I have the honor to enclose a letter from His Honor Mr. Justice Owen concerning a report from the Master in Equity touching the working of his office.

As to this I make no observation, beyond requesting your attention to Mr. Justice Owen's letter.

Some time back you were good enough to say that you would propose that a salary should be placed upon the next Estimates for the Registrar of the Divorce Court, an office now held by the Prothonotary, but without salary, following the precedent afforded when the Master in Equity was appointed Master in Lunacy.

The fees returned from the Prothonotary's Department are, perhaps, three times as large as the returns from the Master's office, and the work correspondingly heavier, and yet the salary of the Prothonotary is but £750, as against £1,250 received by the Master.

I quite agree with Mr. Justice Owen that the duties performed by the Master entitle him to be placed upon the same footing as a District Court Judge, and I may say the same with respect to the Prothonotary.

I desire also to remind you of your promise that you would place the Associates on a more satisfactory basis.

My Associate has but £200 a year, and as I sit almost entirely in Banco, he has no notes to copy, and yet his duties are much more onerous than are those of any of the other Associates.

May I ask you to refer upon this subject to my letter of the 7th May last, in which I gave you information as to the position and salary of Associates in the other Colonies.

Trusting that you will be enabled to place these gentlemen upon a more satisfactory footing.

I have, &c.,

FREDE. M. DARLEY, C.J.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 17/10/88.

Inform the Chief Justice, in reply to this communication, that, in accordance with my promise made on the 9th May, I have submitted, in my Estimates for 1889, increases in the salaries of the Judge's Associates, and will do my best to obtain the sanction of the Cabinet to the same; also, that I am favourable to the appointment of a sub-accountant in the office of the Master in Equity, and will submit a provision for same, but in respect to increasing the salary of the Master in Equity, I am not prepared to recommend it. In regard to salary of Prothonotary, in view of an early inquiry by the Civil Service Board into the salaries and duties of that officer, I think it best to delay action.—W.C., 18/10/88.

The Chief Justice, 22/10/88.

The Minister of Justice to The Chief Justice.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 22 October, 1888.

Referring to your letter of the 15th instant, enclosing a communication from His Honor Mr. Justice Owen, with a report from the Master in Equity, respecting the working of his office, and recommending increases in the salaries of the Prothonotary and your Associate, I do myself the honor to inform you that, in accordance with my promise of the 9th May last, I have submitted on my Estimates for for 1889, increases in the salaries of the Judges' Associates, and will do my best to obtain the sanction of the Cabinet to them. I may also state that I am favourable to the appointment of a sub-accountant in the office of the Master in Equity, and will submit a provision for the same, but I regret that I am not prepared to recommend the increase in the Master's salary proposed.

In regard to the Prothonotary's salary, however desirous I am of meeting your Honor's wishes, it appears to me that, in view of an early inquiry by the Public Service Inquiry Commission being held into the salaries and duties of all officers under this Department, it would be advisable to postpone the consideration of this officer's case for the present.

No. 7.

The President, Incorporated Law Institute, and others, to The Minister of Justice.

To the Honorable Albert J. Gould, Esq.,

Minister of Justice for the Colony of New South Wales,—

Sir,

Sydney, 26 April, 1889.

We, the undersigned practitioners of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, respectfully desire to bring under your notice the amount of salary now paid to the Prothonotary of the Supreme Court, which is, in the written opinions of their Honors the Judges of the Court, inadequate, and incommensurate with the onerous duties and increased responsibilities now imposed on the occupant of that important office, the duties of which, in the language of the late Primary Judge, Sir William Manning, "imperatively demand that such an officer should be a person of high efficiency," and that learned Judge unhesitatingly declared Mr. Chapman to be possessed of the essential qualification.

The Prothonotary was appointed to his present position on the 9th day of April, 1880, at a salary of £700 per annum, and was thereupon required by the Government to procure a fidelity policy from an approved guarantee society in the sum of £2,000 for the due performance of the duties of his office, the premiums on which have to be paid by him, thereby reducing his salary considerably below the stated amount.

At the time the appointment was offered to Mr. Chapman the Minister of Justice intimated to him that the position of Prothonotary was worth £1,000 per annum, and on that assurance the office was accepted, but the representation has not been realized, as Mr. Chapman never received anything whatever by virtue of his office, beyond his salary, which is inferior to that paid to his predecessor, whose duties and responsibilities were very much less.

We may here beg to remind you that since the appointment of Mr. Chapman as Prothonotary the responsible positions of Registrar of the Divorce Court, and of the Vice-Admiralty Court have been added to his other duties, and for which he receives no remuneration whatever; yet, by a singular anomaly, the Clerk of the Divorce Court, who is a subordinate officer to the Registrar, receives a salary of £50 per annum, in consideration of the increased duties of his position.

We also beg to invite your attention, by way of contrast, to the salaries allowed to the Registrar in Bankruptcy, to the Clerks of Petty Sessions of the Metropolitan District, and other officers in the Service, whose duties, we respectfully submit, are not so onerous or responsible as those performed by the Prothonotary in his various jurisdictions; and His Honor the Chief Justice, in writing to a former Minister of Justice on the subject, stated that the position occupied by Mr. Chapman entitles him to be placed upon the same footing as a District Court Judge, yet, notwithstanding this, the salary allowed the Prothonotary is much less than the amount paid to the Stipendiary Magistrates, not one of whom is a professional man. Again, the Master in Equity receives a salary of £1,000 per annum, for the performance of his Equity duties, and £250 per annum as Master in Lunacy,—the Government in that case having recognized the fact that increased jurisdiction deserved increased remuneration; yet the Prothonotary on whom devolves the work of four separate Departments has received no additional recompense whatever.

We deem it unnecessary to dilate on the vast increase in the business of the Supreme Court in all its branches since the time of Mr. Chapman's appointment, as the details thereof, together with the increased revenues derived therefrom have been fully shown in a return laid before Parliament, and dated the 23rd September, 1886, and although marvellous as that increase certainly is, it would be difficult to realize, were it not the fact the Prothonotary's salary is now actually less than that paid to the occupant of that office over twenty years ago; thus, while in all other Departments of the State increased business, and, consequently larger revenues, combined with multiplicity of duties, were accompanied with a higher scale of remuneration to the officers so circumstanced, the salary of the Prothonotary remains unaffected by the unquestionable developments which have arisen in his Department.

It may not be out of place to state that the gentleman now holding the position of Chief Clerk under the Judicature Act in the neighbouring Colony of Victoria, and whose duties are analagous to those of the Prothonotary here, is in receipt of a salary of £1,200 per annum.

We, therefore, have the honor to request that you will take into your favourable consideration, as Minister of Justice, the case of Mr. Chapman, who has for so many years efficiently and faithfully devoted himself to the laborious and important work of his several offices in the interests both of the Government and the public, and who has in the discharge of his varied and responsible functions earned for himself not only the confidence and esteem of their Honors the Judges and the profession generally, but the public at large, and that you will be pleased to represent this request to your Government, so that ample justice may be awarded to this really deserving officer, by an increase being added to his salary, which he so well deserves, and has so justly earned.

We have, &c.,

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Secretary to the Incorporated Law Institute.

Sir, Department of Justice, Sydney, 14 June, 1889.

Referring to your letter of the 11th instant, I have the honor to inform you that the Minister of Justice will be happy to receive a deputation from the Incorporated Law Institute of New South Wales, for the purpose of presenting a petition, signed by certain members of the legal profession, praying for an increase of the salary of Mr. F. Chapman, Prothonotary of the Supreme Court, on Thursday next, the 20th instant, at 10-30 a.m.

Deputation re Prothonotary's Salary.

Department of Justice, Sydney, Thursday, 20 June, 1889.

THE following gentlemen waited upon the Minister of Justice as a deputation this day, viz.:—Messrs. John Williams (Crown Solicitor, and President of the Incorporated Law Institute of New South Wales), J. W. Piggott (Vice-President of the Law Institute), J. Williamson, A'Beckett, Holdsworth, and J. Murray-White (Secretary, Law Institute).

Mr. Williams introduced the deputation, stating that they represented the Incorporated Law Institute of New South Wales, and had waited on the Minister of Justice with respect to an increase of salary to the Prothonotary. They had omitted to forward a copy of the petition they were about to present which set forth the grounds on which they based their representations, but their intention was simply to bring under the notice of the Minister the fact that in their opinion the present salary paid to the Prothonotary was very inadequate, considering the responsible duties he had to perform, and they were supported in this belief by a great many members of the profession outside the Institute they represented, who had also signed the petition. With the Minister's permission, he would read the petition, which more clearly defined their views. [The petition, which is attached, was then read.] There was one feature which he thought should not be lost sight of in Mr. Chapman's case, and that was that his duties were not only arduous, but very troublesome, having to tax the costs of the members of the profession. This certainly was not a very pleasant duty to perform, but Mr. Chapman had displayed such tact and discretion that his decisions invariably gave satisfaction. This was saying a great deal for him. He (Mr. Chapman) never allowed any personal feelings to operate in the discharge of his duties, and he had thus won the esteem of the Judges, legal profession, and, he thought, the public generally. For these reasons they would respectfully request that, seeing Mr. Chapman was such a deserving officer, the Minister would be pleased to recommend, when the next Estimates were being dealt with, a substantial increase to his salary. We might also read the following letter from the Chief Justice on the subject. (Letter attached was read). This letter fully bore out what they submitted in the petition. The Master in Lunacy, who was also the Master in Equity, received a salary of £1,250 per annum, while the Prothonotary was in receipt of £750, and his duties were more responsible than the former's. Sir Frederick Darley was of opinion that the Prothonotary should be placed on the same footing as a District Court Judge. The inference that could be drawn from this was that the salary should approach, if it were not the same, as that received by the District Court Judges. It was scarcely possible to form an idea of the responsibilities of the Prothonotary's position, especially as regarded the taxation of costs, having to mete out justice as between the plaintiff, the defendant, and the public. This, as the Minister was aware, was no easy matter, and the few appeals against Mr. Chapman's decisions were sufficient proof that in the discharge of his arduous duties, he gave every satisfaction. These were the opinions held by the members of the Institute they represented, and also by those professional gentlemen, not connected with them, who had signed the petition. He did not think there was anything else he could represent on Mr. Chapman's behalf. They desired to bear testimony as to the satisfactory and just manner in which he upheld the dignity of his office, and they did so by waiting on the Minister, and asking that the request contained in the petition should be complied with. They were honored by a member of their profession being Minister of Justice, and he was sure that he (the Minister) knew as well as he did the duties that attached to the office of Prothonotary.

Mr. Gould, in reply, said, that when dealing with the Estimates for the coming year, the forthcoming Estimates, he would bear in mind the representations the deputation had made, with any other representations made to the Department, and with his own knowledge of the duties performed by Mr. Chapman,

Chapman,

Chapman, he would endeavour to fix the salary in order that it might be a fair remuneration for the duties performed. He did not believe in any man being underpaid. Every man should be fairly and liberally dealt with, in accordance with the duties to be performed. They could very confidently leave the matter as they had represented it.

Mr. Williams, on behalf of the deputation, thanked the Minister, and retired.

Sir,

Chief Justice's Chambers, Supreme Court, Sydney, 19 June, 1889.

I bear that the Estimates of your Department are now under consideration. May I ask you to read my letters of the 10th October, 1887, and the 11th June, 1888, in which I point out how entirely inadequate is the provision made for that very important officer, the Prothonotary of the Court.

May I also, at the same time, ask you to read my letters of the 7th May, 1888, and the 15th October, 1888, in reference to the position of the Judges' Associates, whose salaries have lately been reduced. My Associate, who has most important duties to discharge, and a very large correspondence to conduct, has been reduced from £275 to £200 a year. In no other Colony does the Associate of the Chief Justice receive less than £300 a year.

[Laid upon the Table of the House in accordance with promise made by the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer in answer to sections Nos. 4 and 5 of Question No. 1 on Votes and Proceedings of 19th June, 1889.]

RETURN showing increases granted to the Clerical Staff in the Locomotive Department during the time Mr. Sheridan occupied the position of Chief Clerk.

So far as can be traced no direct recommendation was made by Mr. Sheridan while acting as Chief Clerk, Locomotive Branch, to increase the salary of officers, but the following is a return giving particulars of the increases of pay to the Clerical Staff in the Locomotive Department during the time Mr. Sheridan occupied the position of Chief Clerk, viz., from April, 1882, to 8th June, 1887. The increases were recommended by the Locomotive Engineer.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

DISMISSAL OF THOMAS BUCKLEY FROM THE ROADS
DEPARTMENT.

(RETURN RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 17 April, 1889.

[Return prepared in fulfilment of a promise made by the Secretary for Public Works, on the 9th April 1889, in reply to a question by Mr. Fletcher, M.P.]

Question.

- (7.) Dismissal of Thomas Buckley from Roads Branch, Public Works Department:—Mr. O'Sullivan, for Mr. Fletcher, asked the SECRETARY for PUBLIC WORKS.—Will he lay all papers and other documents connected with the dismissal of Thomas Buckley from the Roads Branch of the Works Department upon the Table of the House?
Mr. Bruce Smith answered,—I shall have no objection to comply with the request of the Honorable Member. I shall lay them upon the Table next week.

Mr. T. Buckley to The Commissioner for Roads.

Sir, Belmore-street, Balmain, 16 January, 1880.
I would like to know if you had any work at present as I am idle about three months. I would be very thankful for any work at present.

THOMAS BUCKLEY.

This man might do for Middle Harbour punt, 6s. a day, maintenance man. I do not think he has a boy old enough, otherwise he would be eligible.—W.C.B., 19/1/80. Mr. Symonds. I have engaged Buckley as maintenance man on South Head Roads at 6s. 6d. per day, in place of T. Shead, discharged.—J.S., 2/2/80. To Commissioner for Roads.

Mr. T. Buckley to Mr. Assistant-Engineer Wells.

Sir, 2 Renwick-street, Leichhardt, 16 November, 1888.
In reply to your letter of the 15th, I write the following:—On Saturday, November 3rd, I called to Mr. Dyson, as is usual every morning. Mr. Dyson made a list of men's time for the month of October; he asked me to sign it; I told him I knew nothing about it; I would not sign it until I asked the men myself. Mr. Dyson said if it pleases me it should please you; but I would not sign it, and Mr. Dyson said I will ease you of the responsibility. Alfred, you keep the time in future, as Buckley will not sign this paper. If he had the time so correct, why did Alfred go on the 8th to get the time. If Mr. Dyson made out this at random, why should I sign it, and if any person gave it to him, why not they sign it? Mr. Dyson has made out a similar one for the month of September; I did sign it, but after I had done so he altered it before my face. I have not witnessed any vouchers or other papers lately as I used to. I wish to know if I am to resume my duties as before or not? There are other things I will not mention pending decision of the above.

THOS. BUCKLEY.

Mr. Dyson.—F.W., 17/11/88.

In reply to this insinuating and mischievous letter on the 1st instant, I said to Messrs. Benson and Buckley that in future it would be advisable to have a time-sheet prepared for each month, and although I could prove it to be of great benefit to the Service to lend a man occasionally to contractors for certain works, I would, for other reasons, do so no more. I told Buckley to bring me in writing any particulars of the time by the 3rd inst. He came on Saturday morning with no writing, verbally giving number of days that some of the men were absent, and said for all he knew the rest had full time. I reminded him of my request on the 1st. Knowing he was no penman, I wrote the time of each man from my own knowledge. I in reality trust no one in this matter. Buckley generally approving as I called each name. I said "You can sign this if you like." He did not refuse as he states, but said he had not seen Thomas and Melrose. I took the opportunity of telling him that in future Mr. Benson would keep the time, and that he remain on the roads. Having for some time past suspected his want of truthfulness, attention to his duties, and his tendency to mischief, I thought it advisable to bring his foremanship to an end, and now think that he should be dismissed, as I am getting too old to have my life worried by having to refute petty charges made by wicked ignorant men. Buckley is an old hand at this work, dealing out treachery to his superior officers.—E.D.D., 19/11/88.

I know Buckley to be a troublesome man, and I objected to Mr. Dyson employing him at all, and certainly not in any position over a laborer. Mr. Dyson,—see me on Thursday.—W.C.B., 21/11/88.

Mr. A. E. Benson to Mr. Assistant-Engineer Wells.

Report on Buckley's letter.

Dear Sir,

Roseville, 220, Victoria-street, Darlinghurst, 21 November, 1888.

I herewith forward for your perusal a statement of what came under my own observation with reference to the timekeeping. On the 1st instant, Mr. Dyson returning from the office met Buckley and myself. Mr. Dyson said from that date he would have a proper time-sheet drawn up for each month, pointing out to Buckley that in justification of his receiving 1s. a day more than the other men he should prepare this. He being unable to write very well, Mr. Dyson said he or I would make one out, and Buckley could sign it. On the morning of the 3rd instant Buckley came to Mr. Dyson's office, and in his usual style commenced to verbally give the time of the men. Mr. Dyson asked him if he had forgotten the order he gave him on the 1st instant; at the same time taking a sheet of paper he jotted down the names, calling them out to Buckley as he did so; on concluding the list he passed it over to Buckley, saying, "You can sign this if you like." Buckley made an evasive answer, and said he had not seen Thomas or Melrose. Mr. Dyson said he knew the time of all the men, or words to that effect, and his (Buckley) signing it was of no account. Mr. Dyson then handed the paper to me, and told me to keep the time in future, quietly informing Buckley he could go back to his work, and he would relieve him of the timekeeping. I was further instructed to make any inquiries I might think necessary as to each man's time for the month, to be careful, and always have everything correct.

I would add the following remarks concerning what I observed myself: Buckley has exhibited a vast amount of conceit, being continually boasting of his vast influence and personal acquaintance with the Commissioner, to the men and others that he meets with; this has grown to be a mania with this man. This holds him to a certain amount of ridicule among the men, which causes him to have no influence as a foreman.

I remain, &c.,
ALFRED E. BENSON.

This has been addressed to me; I refer it back to Mr. Dyson. I think Buckley should be relegated to his old pay like any other maintenance man. He is not satisfactory in his conduct or manner.—F.W., 22/11/88. I never authorised any of these arrangements. Discharge Buckley; I know him to be a troublesome man, continually in rows, and I cautioned Mr. Dyson against employing him at all.—W.C.B., 22/11/88. As instructed, I have discharged Buckley, but am allowing him to remain at work till end of present month.—E.D.D., 26/11/88.

Mr. T. Buckley to Mr. Resident Assistant-Engineer Wells.

Sir,

Leichhardt, 8 December, 1888.

Referring to my dismissal from the service of the Roads Department, and feeling an unmerited injustice has been done me, I have the honor to request inquiry into the following matters:—

1. Whether the petition which I was requested to sign, together with other employees, for supply of blue metal spalls, was bona fide?
2. Does Mr. Dyson employ Government men in the yard of his premises, and take rent from others for occupation?
3. Is Mr. Dyson supplied by Government with coachman and groom?
4. Has it ever occurred that money was included in cheques paid to men as wages for which claimants could not be found, and was such money returned to Mr. Dyson?
5. Did Mr. Dyson furnish to Parbury at punt a draft statement of complaint against M'Lannan to cause his removal?
6. Has Mr. Dyson accounted for time expended by men paid by the department, also carts so employed, at Mr. Dyson's houses in Cleveland-street?
7. Whether vouchers agree with the time checked by me at Camperdown Bridge?

I am, &c.,
THOMAS BUCKLEY.

The department cannot be disturbed and a large amount of work undertaken on vague inquiries asked for by a discharged day-labourer. Buckley was told that if he preferred definite charges against Mr. Dyson they would be inquired into. If such charges were proved Mr. Dyson would suffer the due consequences; if, on the other hand, the charges were frivolous, Mr. Dyson would be allowed to pursue his remedy at law, civilly or criminally.—F.W., 12/12/88.

CASE OF MISS BRENNING.

REPORT.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly appointed on the 3rd July, 1889, "with power to send for persons and papers to inquire into and report upon the claims (if any) of Miss Brenning for compensation for wrongful dismissal as a School Teacher," have agreed to the following Report:—

Your Committee having examined the witnesses whose evidence will be found appended hereto, find as follows:—

That in May, 1881, Miss Charlotte Brenning received an appointment as teacher to the Tongarra School, from which post she was compelled by ill-health to resign.

That Miss Brenning afterwards re-entered the Service, and was appointed to the Public School at Nangar, near Orange, from which she was transferred to the Portland Head (or Ebcnezer) School, in the Windsor district.

That Miss Brenning, feeling herself unfitted for rough bush life, and again falling into ill-health, applied to be transferred to a school in or near Sydney.

That Dr. Fiaschi supplied a certificate, stating that the solitude of the Portland Head School, and the insanitary arrangements connected with it, contributed to the ill-health and nervous troubles of Miss Brenning.

That the Education Department refused the application for transfer to a Sydney school on the ground of want of proper classification, and construing a hasty expression of Miss Brenning's into the act of resignation, accepted it as such.

That Miss Brenning wrote to the Education Department, denying that she intended to resign, yet, nevertheless, she was removed from the Service and compelled to pay back a portion of the travelling expenses allowed her.

Your Committee are therefore of opinion that the Education Department showed a want of discrimination in sending Miss Brenning to schools in unsuitable localities, and acted hastily in construing her letter into an act of resignation, and your Committee recommend her case to the favourable consideration of your honorable House.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

CASE OF MISS BRENNING.

WEDNESDAY, 10 JULY, 1889.

Present:—

MR. O'SULLIVAN, | MR. PERRY,
MR. LEES.

EDWARD WILLIAM O'SULLIVAN, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Charlotte Brenning called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] What are you now? I teach music.
2. You were formerly a teacher in the Public Instruction Department? Yes.
3. Will you make a statement as to your complaint against the Department in your own way? On the 1st December, 1880, I made my first application to the Department of Public Instruction for employment as teacher in the Service. On the 13th of the same month, I saw Mr. Gardiner, the Chief Examiner; and afterwards I communicated with the District Inspector, Mr. M'Credie. I was then called upon to attend an examination, which occupied two days—the 10th and 11th January, 1881; and then I attended the Sussex-street Public School for one month, and obtained a certificate from the Head Master, Mr. Lobban, to that effect. That certificate was dated 11th February, 1881. On the 18th of the same month I received a letter from Inspector Jones, requesting my attendance for examination on the 21st. The examination lasted from Monday to Friday. On the Friday morning I attended the Sussex-street School, and gave a lesson in the Head Mistress' Department, before Mr. Inspector Jones, by his request. On the 13th May following I received my appointment to the Tongarra School. There was no school at the place at the time; there was no accommodation for a teacher. During part of the time of my stay there I had to walk 4 miles every day over rough, bushy country, and live on bush diet. I worked up that school to be an eighth-class Public School, and remained there for twelve months. My health failed, and, finding that I was unable to continue the long walk, I removed to a distance of 5 miles from the school, and had to ride that distance daily through every kind of weather. Finding that I was unable to obtain a removal from there, I was compelled to resign. After I had left the school I applied for classification from the results of the examination held in February, but for a long time that examination was denied; but, on my bringing proofs that the examination took place, it was acknowledged that the examination did take place, but it was said that it was not for classification. There were two teachers examined with me—Mr. Deasy and Miss O'Reilly. I could not obtain any result from that examination. I was afterwards appointed as teacher to the Public School at Nangar, a place situate between Orange and Forbes, about 49 miles inland from Orange. On my arriving at my destination, I had to leave my luggage under a tree whilst I went in search of some human habitation. The school-house was then closed the master having left. I got the driver of the coach to point out the school-house, and I was obliged to keep that in view whilst looking about. I was totally unacquainted with the bush, and if I had lost sight of the school-house probably I should not have found it again. At last I found a building where some people were living on the opposite side of the creek, and I had to stand at the creek and cooey and wave my handkerchief to attract the attention of some children on the other side. I then got the key of the school building and left my luggage there, and went to a place 2 miles distant for accommodation. This was at the end of November, 1882. I remained there till the next June, when I came down to Sydney, and explained to the Department that I was unable to return to that place on account of its isolation.

isolation affecting my health. I was directed by the District Inspector, Mr. Long, to attend an examination at Bathurst which I did. I was then appointed to the school at Portland Head. The place is called Ebenezer. The school there was held in a church building, and the residence was situated in the graveyard. I was there quite alone, I tried to obtain a removal from there, but was unable to do so. That school had been in the hands of an old gentleman for nineteen years. He was quite incompetent through age to maintain discipline. I found the school in a very great disorganization, and had very hard work for a long time to bring the children into fair order, particularly as two thirds of them consisted of big rough bush boys. I had been there about three months and a fortnight when Inspector Murray visited the school officially, and sent in an unfavourable and incorrect report. I had to answer that report, and on my sending in an application for removal from that school my application was taken as a resignation, and on leaving there I was unable to do anything at all with the Department. For a long time after leaving the school it was made to appear that I should obtain another appointment, but I could not get one. On the 30th September, 1884, Mr. Withers presented a petition to Parliament, but the case was not attended to. On the 12th October, 1885, I was directed again by the Department to send in an application for reappointment, but Mr. Johnson, the Under Secretary, who at that time was Chief Inspector, now makes it appear that I did not receive the appointment because I asked to be appointed to the charge of a large school at Sydney. That is utterly false. Mr. Johnson has also made the statement that I am incompetent as a teacher, and that has injured me very greatly. From that time I have tried different Members of Parliament, trying to get the case taken up, but have not been able to do anything in the matter. Last November twelve-month, 1887, Mr. Fletcher presented a petition to Parliament, and kept the case in hand for a long time, but nothing was done. I relieved him from the responsibility, and Mr. O'Sullivan then took up the matter. Mr. Johnson is the chief obstacle in my way. On my applying to him for classification from the result of the examination in February, 1881, he behaved most strangely, which has done me very great injury. On my begging of him to grant me the proper results from the examination he was rather forward, and on my resenting it, he took up a book, placed it before his face, and made big eyes behind it. Since that, on my seeing Mr. Maynard, the Chief Inspector, he made the remark—I had not the slightest idea what he meant—"We shall fix you this time, then blab that in your face. You think it can be done in a few months, but it takes years." On my leaving the Department, the money that had been advanced for my travelling expenses was deducted from my salary, and the salary being small at that school, I was left entirely without money, a fact of which the Department are fully aware. My health was very greatly destroyed by the hardships which I had endured. On Dr. Renwick succeeding to the position of Minister he took up the case and conducted it for a while. I was then sent to Dr. McKenzie, Departmental Medical Officer, and he sent in an unfavourable report in regard to my health. I was told by the Department that as soon as my health improved my case would again be considered. I have had to walk about Sydney trying to obtain music pupils with the influence of the Department against me, and reduced physically through the treatment I had received from the Department. That influence has been continued ever since I left the school five years ago. I have only been able to obtain a very precarious living. As soon as it was known that I had obtained a fresh music pupil some excuse was made for removing her. I received this certificate from Dr. Fiaschi:—

39, Phillip-street, 30 January, 1889.

I HEREBY certify that Miss Charlotte Brenning, during the period of time running between July, 1883, and April, 1884, resided as teacher in Ebenezer, Hawkesbury River. That during that time she suffered from general weakness and various nerve troubles. That the solitude of the place, the unsanitary arrangements of it, contributed to cause that state of ill-health, and that she was justified in applying for a removal.

THOMAS FIASCHI, M.D.

THURSDAY, 11 JULY, 1889.

Present:—

Mr. O'SULLIVAN,

Mr. PERRY.

Mr. EWING,

EDWARD WILLIAM O'SULLIVAN, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Edwin Johnson called in, sworn, and examined:—

E. Johnson,
Esq.
11 July, 1889.

4. Chairman.] What are you? Under Secretary for Public Instruction.
5. Do you recollect the case of Miss Brenning? Yes; perfectly.
6. Has her petition ever come under your notice? I could not say that that particular petition has; but I think a similar petition came under my notice in 1885.
7. Will you kindly state the case of the Department with regard to Miss Brenning. We have heard her case, and would like you to make out the case of the Department against her? Miss Brenning called upon me some time in 1880, and desired employment as a teacher. I made some inquiries into her case, and discovered that she had received no training, so I explained to her that she was only eligible for appointment to a small school. I told her the nature of such a position, and explained its difficulties and discomforts. She appeared to me to be of a somewhat delicate constitution, and I thought, after the explanation I had given her, that she would not feel disposed to accept the employment. But she said she had had a great deal of experience, I think in charge of emigrants, and also in charge of a school in New Zealand, and she thought she would be very well able to cope with the difficulties surrounding the position. I referred her to an inspector in Sydney, who subjected her to the usual preliminary examination. Here I should explain that the Department take no responsibility in connection with applicants for small schools; it is simply left to the inspector. An inspector examined Miss Brenning and found that her attainments were insufficient for the position, but, I suppose because he was impressed with her appearance, for she has a very happy way of stating her case and impressing one favourably, he said she might attend the school at Sussex-street and that he would examine her at the end of the term; that was within a month. She attended the school, and came up again for examination in February. The first examination was made in January. Her examination on the second time was fairly satisfactory, and she was placed on his list as an eligible candidate for a small school. Of course we did not undertake to find her with employment immediately. The matter was left entirely in the hands of the inspector, and and he was not able to find her a school until July of the same year. She visited him repeatedly, pressing her claims, and stating her embarrassed circumstances, so he asked her if she would accept a school at Tongarra. He explained to her that the school was a small one, and that the living was pretty rough, but she would take any school. She was appointed to that school, and she remained there until April, 1882, from June or July, 1881.

E. Johnson,
Esq.

11 July, 1889.

8. Mr. Ewing.] About nine months? Yes. I cannot vouch for the accuracy of every detail as regards dates, but I shall go as near as I can. She resigned the position. She was then out of the Service, I think, till about November of the same year. She complained that she was not accustomed to that kind of isolation—it would not suit her—and she wanted a big school in the city. Under the rules, of course, she could not get such a school. She was then appointed to a school at Nangar, a little distance from Eugowra—a new school, with a residence of three rooms. I think she was there about two months or less when she applied to the Inspector for her removal. The Inspector (Mr. Long) visited her school, and suggested to her, as she said she was very lonely and isolated, that it would be well for her to take a servant or a companion, but she did not receive that suggestion favourably. He then told her that he had a very nice school at a place called Budgerbung, and he invited her to go and see that school, but she would not take it. He asked her if she would go to Cudal, but she would not, and declined to take any school at all in the Forbes district. The papers will show that. She came down to Sydney in 1883, and interviewed the Minister—I think it was Mr. Reid—who said that he had seen the lady, and thought that she ought to have another country school. She had no classification, and was ineligible for appointment to a Public School in town. She was only eligible for appointment to a small school; and the small schools are necessarily in isolated places—they cannot be in the midst of a large population. I then got hold of a list of schools, and thought I would select a school for her which I was personally acquainted with. I selected a school at Ebenezer, close to Windsor. She was appointed, and I think she was not in the school more than a month or two before she applied for her removal. The Inspector (Mr. Murray) visited the school, and furnished a report on her work. The report was a very unsatisfactory one. He stated that she was very weak as a disciplinarian, that the school was not at all efficiently conducted, and that she had been guilty of gross irregularities in the keeping of the school records. She was cautioned. She applied for her removal again, and she followed that up by coming to Sydney. I think that would be about December, 1883. She called upon me, explained her position, and said that she would like to get into a big school. I said, "You cannot get into a big school because you hold no classification. I will tell you what we will do: I will recommend that you be sent to Balmain for six months as a probationer, and you will be paid at the rate of £7 a month, on the understanding that at the end of that period you will sit for examination in order to get a classification; then we can appoint you to a big school." She declined that; she would not take the position; she went back to Ebenezer. Mr. J. P. Abbott then came into office—this being April, 1884. She wrote a letter to the Minister and a similar letter to me, and in that letter she complained of her school as not being in the city, and she said, "I desire to state respectfully and decidedly that unless the Department is prepared to appoint me to a school not in the bush I shall seek employment elsewhere." That was taken to be her resignation. We could not, under the regulations, give her what she required, so we decided to take her letter as a resignation. She was told that her resignation was accepted. She made repeated applications for reappointment, without success, to all the Ministers who have had charge of the Department ever since. She has interviewed every Minister, and each Minister has gone through her papers carefully. Mr. Young, Dr. Renwick, Mr. Trickett, Mr. Inglis, and the present Minister have all considered her case.

9. Chairman.] She says that she applied to the Department on the 7th March, 1884, and that she sent a medical certificate to show that she was in failing health; did she do that? Yes; she supplied her own medical certificate.

10. From Dr. Fiaschi? I believe it was.

11. She states that she applied to the Department to be removed in consequence of failing health, and that in reply she received a letter saying that her resignation had been accepted? I deny that.

12. Can you tell us the date when you did send a reply intimating that her resignation was accepted. You say that it was in reply to a letter in which she most respectfully, but decidedly told you that unless she was appointed to a Sydney school she would retire from the Service? This is the letter which the Department received from Miss Brenning. [See Appendix A1.]

13. In response to that letter dated March 7th, 1884, you gave her to understand that her resignation was accepted? Yes.

14. What led you to accept that as a resignation? Because she said she could not accept employment in the country.

15. But does she not say distinctly that it is owing to her inability to contend with bush life. That would not mean that she would accept no employment except in Sydney or the suburbs? She states that distinctly in her correspondence, but not in that letter.

16. She might have been willing to accept employment in a large country town, according to this letter? Yes, that single letter would bear that interpretation.

17. Mr. Ewing.] You said it was impossible for the Department to put her in a large Public School? Yes, because she had no classification.

18. Chairman.] Was it out of your power to grant her request? It was.

19. And that being out of your power, did you naturally look upon it then as the termination of her connection with the Department? That, taken in conjunction with the amount of trouble which she had caused the Department extending over years. It was found impracticable to give this lady what she required under the rules of the Department.

20. Mr. Ewing.] You offered her a position at Balmain? Yes, but she declined that.

21. Was any reason given? Only that she would not go as a probationer.

22. Was it reasonable to expect that she should go there? At present we put young ladies in similar positions who have served four or five years as pupil-teachers and studied two years in the training college. We pay them £6 a month, but we offered Miss Brenning £7 a month, and she would not take it. Here is the letter from the Department, and her reply. [See Appendix A2.]

23. Chairman.] Are you aware that when she went to Tongarra she found there was no residence? I do not think there was any residence—it was a provisional school.

- E. Johnson,
Esq.
11 July, 1889.
24. Are you aware that when she arrived she had to put her box down beside a tree and go through the bush to seek a human habitation? On the contrary, she got lodgings with a respectable farmer.
25. Latterly? Immediately, pretty well.
26. She says that on the day of her arrival her box was taken off the coach and put at the foot of a tree, and she had to seek a human habitation in which to reside? I never heard of that before.
27. Did you hear that at another place she had to reside near a graveyard? That was at Ebenezer. She was not required to reside there. She could have resided with the old teacher, Mr. MacPetridge. She lived with the ex-teacher for some time, but could not agree with the family. Then she went to live with Mrs. Brown, close to the school. I ought to say that, whilst a probationer, she was paid at the rate of £156 a year. If she went to a similar school now she would be getting from £60 to £90 a year. When the Inspector saw her at Ebenezer, she complained of not getting suitable food, and he said "Mrs. Brown, can you not provide delicacies for this lady?" and Mrs. Brown said that she would gladly do so if Miss Brenning would pay for them, but she did not care to pay for delicacies.
28. Miss Brenning said you requested that she should refund all the money that had been allowed to her for travelling expenses? Yes; that is the rule of the Department, if they resign or quit the Service within three years.
29. Mr. Ewing.] Do they understand that when they join? They sign a declaration that they will refund it.
30. Did she refund that money? Part of it. We did not press the matter.
31. Chairman.] Did she ever notify to you that she would not resign? She replied to the letter from the Department, saying that she did not intend her letter to be a resignation.
32. Ought not you to have given her a chance to remain where she was? I submitted the matter to the Minister of the day, and he thought that she was not a deserving person, and that it would not be wise to take her into the Service again. She had been such a source of trouble, and we could not give her the employment that she required.
33. Mr. Ewing.] Do you not think it possible that she was placed in a position in which no lady is usually expected to live? I am not prepared to say that, because at the first school to which she went at Tongarra there was a lady in charge previously, and since she left we have had only lady teachers there. I may mention this fact: that immediately Miss Brenning resigned, a Miss McLean, a classified teacher, wrote to me, asking to be appointed to the school. I sent for her, and told her to go and examine the school, and to come and tell me whether she would like it. I thought that if she saw it, after the descriptions we had received of it, she would not care to take the position; but she went and saw the school, took it, and remained there for three years. That was the school at Tongarra.
34. Chairman.] With regard to Ebenezer School, is it a fact that it was in a very rough condition when she went, and that there had been a laxity of discipline before she arrived? Not according to the Inspector's report. He reported that the school was well conducted under Mr. MacPetridge, but that she had shown a want of ability to manage the children.
35. Why have the Department not given Miss Brenning something like a fair discharge from the Service? She has got her resignation accepted; is not that a fair discharge?
36. Is it not usual to give anything else? She never asked for anything else.
37. She complains that, owing to the action of the Department in not giving her some recognition of the fact that she had left the Service with a clean record, she was unable to get employment elsewhere as a teacher? She never informed the Department that she was under any disability of that sort.
38. She feels that the action of the Department was a virtual dismissal? She may feel so, but she never stated it in those words to the Department.
39. Has she not stated it to any succeeding Minister? She never said it to me.
40. Mr. Ewing.] Do you think her conduct was such that her dismissal was justified? I think her history would justify it. Her record was unsatisfactory. She was retained by successive Ministers out of pure charity.
41. It appears that her view of the matter is this—that she wrote a letter—possibly a hasty letter—considering that she was suffering some injustice; that letter was taken advantage of by the Department to get rid of her. It was virtually a dismissal, was it not? That may be her view.
42. Mr. Perry.] Is she justified in taking that view? I do not know that she is. The Department have found it impossible to find suitable employment for her. We have tried her in three schools, not one of which suited her; and she wants a school that she is not entitled to, and not fit to manage—a school in a big city.
43. Are there lady teachers in the schools which she had? Yes.
44. Have they complained of loneliness? No.
45. Chairman.] Is it not usual when a teacher complains of sickness, and produces a medical certificate, to allow her to be removed? Yes; if her illness is the result of the climate, we endeavour to remove her to a more suitable place.
46. She states that, owing to the unfavourable situation of the place which she was in her health failed, and she supplied you with a medical certificate to that effect, and then received a letter stating that you accepted her resignation; was she not there showing that she could not carry on the school owing to the unfavourable situation of the place, and the loneliness from which she suffered,—was she not merely notifying that a change was required? Yes; she sent a medical certificate to show that she needed a change.
47. And were there no other schools to which you could have removed her? No school that she would take. She distinctly stated that she would not go into the bush, and she would not take an appointment in a country town.

John Charles Maynard called in, sworn, and examined:—

- J. C.
Maynard, Esq.
11 July, 1889.
48. Chairman.] Can you tell us anything about Miss Brenning's case? All I can tell you is what I have learnt from the papers. She had left the Service before I was appointed Chief Inspector. My personal knowledge of the case is nil. I was Deputy Chief Inspector for two years whilst she was in the Service. I was appointed Chief Inspector on the 1st December, 1884, and she left the Service in the beginning of 1884.
49. She says that she applied to the Department on the 7th day of March, 1884, setting forth her urgent need

J. C. Maynard, Esq.
11 July, 1889.

- need for removal from the Portland Head school, of which she had then the charge, in consequence of failing health, owing to the unfavorable situation of the place, and received a reply, dated the 29th day of the same month, from the Department, to the effect that her resignation as teacher of the school had been accepted, to take effect from the 31st day of that month, and requesting that all the money which had been advanced for travelling expenses should be refunded, thereby implying that she had tendered her resignation. Do you consider that a fair statement of her case? I should say an exaggerated statement.
50. Was it possible to have given Miss Brenning better consideration than she appears to have received, according to her statement? I do not think so. In reading through the papers what impressed me most was the evident trouble taken by every Inspector to do the very best thing possible for Miss Brenning. She was removed more frequently than other teachers were removed. What she wanted was something which the Department could not give her—an appointment in Sydney. When she was dissatisfied with the school at Nangar the Inspector offered to take her round in a buggy to the vacant schools so that she might choose one. Mr. McCredie, the District Inspector, pointed out all the difficulties with regard to Tongarra, expressing the opinion that it would not suit a person who had been brought up in Sydney to live in the bush, but in spite of that she took the place, and I believe that the school is a miserable building.
51. Did you ever hear that when she arrived her box had to be placed beside a tree whilst she went to seek a human habitation? No.
52. Are you aware that she had to reside in a house that was surrounded by a graveyard at Ebenezer? No.
53. She said that she wrote to the Department stating that she was in bad health, and enclosing a certificate from a doctor, and that in return she received a reply stating that her resignation was accepted? That is not exactly the history of the case. It is not a fair statement.
54. Do you consider that she did virtually resign when she intimated respectfully but decidedly that she would not continue in a bush school? I do not think that you would look at it as anything else, because she distinctly said that she would not stop there, and that she would not accept a bush school.
55. Did she not write immediately afterwards and say that she did not intend to resign? Yes.
56. Admitting that she was equal to the post which she held, don't you think that some consideration ought to have been given to her? She tried to force the Department. It was a kind of threat, and she was taken at her word.
57. Mr. Ewing.] Might it not have been a better way of dealing with it if there had been a letter between when she wrote threatening to resign—instead of accepting the resignation right off;—was it not rather sharp work? Knowing the antecedents of Miss Brenning, I should not call it sharp work.
58. Chairman.] I suppose that the Department were not very anxious to retain her in the Service? I don't think that they had any feeling about it, but I don't think that they looked upon Miss Brenning as being of any special value. She had had three schools, of which she left the first and second before they were examined. The next school that she had was examined, and the Inspector's report was very unfavourable indeed.
59. How long had she been appointed when that school was examined? Not very long.
60. She had been two months, is that a fair time? The Inspector did not report about the teaching, but about the discipline and the records. One month would be enough for that.
61. If the school was in a bad state of discipline could she show discipline in two months? Yes, and the records should have been kept properly from the outset, because according to the report she found them correct.
62. Mr. Perry.] What was the state of the discipline when she took the school? I could not tell unless I saw the report. If even it was very bad an average teacher would soon rectify that.
63. Chairman.] You consider that Miss Brenning did virtually resign her position? Yes, that was the view taken by the Minister. I think it was Mr. Trickett or Mr. Abbott, and all the subsequent Ministers agreed that it was right.
64. Are you aware that she said that she did not resign, but was dismissed? I know she says that, but I do not attach importance to such a statement.
65. If so, would it not be a bar to her employment elsewhere? Not unless it was for misconduct. She could not be dismissed except for misconduct.
66. Are you aware that the action of the Department has been a bar to her employment elsewhere? No.
67. Has the Department ever interfered with her in any way since she severed her connection with it? Not to my knowledge.
68. Miss Brenning complains that she had no certificate or proper discharge from the Department? Did she ever apply for one?
69. Mr. Perry.] She says she was examined but never got a certificate? No, she never passed.
70. Chairman.] Do you say that she never passed? She passed no Certificate Examination. She sat once and failed.
71. She said she passed with Miss O'Reilly? That was only as a candidate for a small school. It was not an examination for classification. That examination was to admit her into the Service as a teacher of Provisional Schools, and it was the only examination that she ever passed.
72. Mr. Ewing.] Do you give a certificate for that? No. She is simply entered on the records as eligible for employment in a small school.

TUESDAY 16 JULY, 1889.

Present:—

Mr. O'SULLIVAN,		Mr. PERRY,
Mr. EWING,		Mr. LIPSON.
	Mr. FULLER.

EDWARD WILLIAM O'SULLIVAN, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Charlotte Brenning, called in and farther examined:—

73. Chairman.] I wish to ask you some questions in reference to the evidence given by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Maynard. Mr. Johnson says that prior to sending you to Tongarra he explained that the school was a small one, and that living in that locality was pretty rough—did he do so? He did not. I remember making the remark, that in going to these country places teachers generally had a difficulty in obtaining accommodation, but Mr. Johnson said that there would be no difficulty on that head.

Miss C. Brenning.
16 July, 1889.
7d.

Miss
C. Brenning.
16 July, 1889.

74. Mr. Johnson then said that you resigned the position, and that you were out of the Service until November in the same year? I remained there twelve months, and during that time tried very hard to obtain a removal, at the same time I used every effort to bear up against hardships, thinking that I should merit approval, and I worked up the school, when I left it was an eighth-class Public School.

75. Did you ask for a big school in the city when you resigned? I did not. The application I sent in must be in the Department, I certainly did not ask for a big school in the city.

76. When you desired to re-enter the Service did Inspector Long tell you that he had a nice school at Budgerbong which you might have, and did you refuse to take it? Yes; I had a letter from him giving me a chance to take the school. It was 24 miles inland from Forbes. I pointed out that there were no conveyances, but he said that if I would take the school he would see that a conveyance was provided.

77. Did you refuse to take a school at Cudal? I never had the chance.

78. Mr. Johnson said that you were asked to go to Cudal, but you refused to take one in the Forbes District? I did not.

79. Mr. Johnson says that the Inspector, Mr. Murray, visited the School at Ebenezer, and sent in a very unsatisfactory report. That the Inspector stated that you were very weak as a disciplinarian—that the school was not at all efficiently conducted, and that the school records were not properly kept, is that true? It is not true. I have had great experience in teaching in Public Schools. I have been teaching for twenty years. I have never done anything else, and I have always been considered a good disciplinarian. The school at Portland Head had been in the hands of an old gentleman for nineteen years, and he was incapable through age of maintaining discipline. I found the school in great disorder, particularly as two-thirds of the pupils consisted of big rough bush boys.

80. Mr. Johnson also said that he wished to send you to Balmain on probation for six months, at a salary of £7 a month, but he says that you declined? That is true.

81. Why did you decline that? Because I had been in the Service two years and a half, and I wrote to say that as I had been that length of time in the Service, I must decline to accept employment as a probationer.

82. Did you write to the Minister and say, "I desire to state respectfully and decidedly, that unless the Department is prepared to appoint me to a school, not in the bush, I shall seek employment elsewhere?" Yes, I wrote that.

83. What is the meaning that you intended to convey by that? I meant to give them to understand that I was suffering very great discomfort there. I had been under very great hardships, and my nervous system was worked up until I could not bear it any longer. I wrote thinking that I might work on the sympathies of the Department.

84. Then you wrote under a feeling of despair? More than anything else. I wrote the following letter to the Department on the 3rd April, explaining what I meant:—

Sir, Provisional School, Portland Head, 3 April, 1884.
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 27th ult., in which you state that my resignation as teacher of the above school has been accepted by the Minister of Public Instruction. I beg to state with reference to my letters of 7th and 15th ult. to the Chief Inspector:

The first was sent through Mr. Inspector Murray, but on hearing afterwards that that gentleman had left Parramatta, and not knowing to what part he had removed, I thought that the letter might be a long time delayed, or perhaps mislaid altogether, and sent another direct to the Chief Inspector, Mr. E. Johnson. I did not mean it as tendering my resignation. On reviewing the matter, I can see that I was perhaps unwise in speaking as forcibly as I did, by saying that I must at once seek other employment. I am extremely sorry for it. I meant to convey the idea of my great discomfort here, in the hope of prevailing upon the Department to be pleased to take the matter favourably into their consideration. The fact also of having to remain here another winter in this intensely cold building, with only bush surroundings, prompted me to be more earnest than I otherwise should have been. I trust, Sir, the Department will not require me to act upon the purport of your letter; and also desire to state that I am continuing the duties of the school here, and hope to be permitted to remain until the Department are able to grant me another appointment.

I have, &c.,

CHARLOTTE BRENNING.

To G. Miller, Esq., Acting Under Secretary,
Department of Public Instruction, Sydney.

85. That letter was written in answer to the letter of the Department saying that they accepted your resignation? Yes.

86. Were you astonished to find that they took it as a resignation? I was.

87. And you at once forwarded this letter to remove the impression that you had resigned? Yes.

88. How long was it after you had received the letter from the Department? The letter which I received stating that they had accepted my resignation was written on the 26th March. I was told that my employment was to cease on the 31st. That gave me about five days from the day that it was written.

89. Mr. Lees.] You replied then within five days in order that the Department might get rid of their wrong impression? About eight days after the letter of the Department was written. I left the Service about the 26th April.

90. Chairman.] What letter did you receive after that? I received another letter saying that the Minister adhered to his decision.

91. And at the time you wrote this letter under a feeling of despair, were you in ill-health? I was very weak—not in good health.

92. Had you produced a medical certificate to show that? I sent one in before I left the school, from Dr. Newmarsh, of Windsor—that was before I was offered the Balmain school.

93. Mr. Ewing.] You said that you had been teaching for twenty years? Yes, about that length of time.

94. In Public Schools? Yes.

95. It appears that you have no classification yet? I had from New Zealand. I have my testimonials and written appointments.

96. Why did you leave New Zealand? I went back to Queensland to meet a relative.

97. You left for purely personal reasons? Yes.

98. Mr. Johnson says in his evidence that other ladies have kept the same school that you left, and that they have done so without any trouble to the Department. Would you be surprised to hear that? Yes.

99. You would not be surprised that other ladies had stopped at the school since you left? There was no school at Tongarra. There was one for a time some years ago.

100. But after you left? The lady teacher sent after I left, did not commence duty there. She looked round at the place and left immediately.

101. Did any ladies stay there? A lady, a native of Moruya, was sent and asked to send word down to the Department whether she would remain, and she did. At that time the school was an eighth-class Public School, and from what I have heard she was a very strong sort of bush lady accustomed to bush habits.
102. When you endeavoured to obtain compensation from the Department, was it your idea to return to the Department? It was at the time.
103. You desired to return at the time? Yes.
104. Do you desire to return now? I do not. I would rather obtain compensation. The treatment which I have received has been very bad. It was continued through the last five years up to the present hour. Their influence has been very much against my welfare during that time.
105. And you have no idea of going back to the Department? I have not.
106. Mr. Lees.] You say that the old man who had charge of the Ebenezer School had not sufficient capacity to bring about proper discipline? He was very old.
107. And you found the school in a very bad state? Yes.
108. How long were you in it? I went in July, 1883, and remained there until April, 1884.
109. Did you get the school into a state of discipline in that time? To a certain extent it has very much improved. I am considered a good disciplinarian.
110. If the Inspector reported that you did not keep good discipline and that the records were badly kept would that be true? It would not. I found the school in a bad state and I could not get it right in three months.
111. Did you know all this time you were agitating for an appointment at some big school that you were not qualified according to the Rules of the Department? I was not seeking that position.
112. Were you not seeking a position in some city? I was not asking for a large school in a city at all.
113. What certificate have you? Third-class certificate.
114. You said in your evidence on the first day of this inquiry that a certain amount of influence was being used against you, and that when you got a music pupil some excuse was made for that pupil's removal—what did that mean? That people of the city are influenced against me.
115. By what? By the influence of the Department. It has been said, and Mr. Johnston stated it in particular, that I was incompetent as a teacher.
116. Do you know of any pupil having been taken from you through any direct influence of the Department? I am not sure that I can prove it, but I am sure of it from what has been said. Nothing quite direct has been said, but it has been done in a way that has given me fully to understand it—hinting at what Mr. Johnson had said—not directly, but saying that Mr. Johnson had stated that I was not competent as a teacher. Mr. Johnson has said it to me and others. He has said it to Mr. Carruthers in my presence only a few weeks ago.
117. Said what? That I was not competent. He also repeated that I had asked to be reappointed to the charge of a large school in Sydney. I contradicted that statement before Mr. Carruthers.
118. Chairman.] Mr. Maynard says that the Inspector did not report about the teaching of the Ebenezer school, but about the discipline, and the records, and he said that the school was in a bad state of discipline, and that the records were not properly kept from the outset—are those statements true? They are not. Mr. Murray sent in word that he found the children dirty, but that was not correct. Mr. Murray said that I did not keep the records correctly, that on a wet day when there were few children there I entered on the roll that there was no attendance, but that is incorrect.
119. The Department deny that they have interfered with your business as a teacher, or in any way persecuted you. Can you give facts to support your statements that they have done so? Mr. Murray tried to influence people at Ebenezer against me. He wanted me to promise to remain there a year and a half, and I said "No, Mr. Murray, I should be in one of those graves before that time," and he said "I dare say it would affect your health."
120. When was that? It was on the 13th or 14th November, 1883—before my resignation was sent in.
121. Mr. Maynard said that you had an examination so that you might pass for a small school but not for a classification? I attended four examinations—two before I entered the Service. On my way from Nangar to Sydney I attended a teachers' examination at Bathurst on the suggestion of Mr. Long, the inspector. I got no classification from that, but from what was said I am quite sure that I was intended to attend the examination in Sydney in June following my removal from Portland Head. I was afterwards told by Mr. McCredie that, on account of my then being out of the Service, my attendance at that examination was not recognized, and that he would take steps to have the papers destroyed.
122. Do you contend that you did attend the examination for classification? Yes.
123. Mr. Lees.] Did you pass the examination? I am sure I did. I know so well what I can do.
124. Chairman.] You say that you passed the examination, but you did not get any certificate? Yes. I think those papers ought to be investigated so as to ascertain whether I passed.
125. Could you give the date? Yes. The first examination was on the 10th and 11th of June, 1881. The second commenced on the 21st of February in the following year, and lasted until the 25th February. The next examination took place on the 18th June, 1883, and the next in June, 1884.
126. Chairman.] Mr. Maynard says, speaking of yourself, "She passed no certificate examination; she sat once and failed"—is that true? It is not true. I attended those four examinations, and Mr. Bridges, now in the Department in Sydney, was a District Inspector of Bathurst, and he conducted the examination, so that he knows perfectly well that I was at that examination. I went to obtain classification.
127. Was that at the time when Miss O'Reilly passed with you? No, that was in February.
128. What were you trying for? Classification.
129. That was for third class? Yes.
130. Referring to the examination when Miss O'Reilly was examined, he says that that was only for a small school, not for a classification? It was for classification.
131. Mr. Maynard says, speaking about that examination, "That was only as a candidate for a small school. It was not an examination for classification, and it was the only examination that she ever passed?" Totally false.
132. What other examination did you pass? On the 18th June, 1883, at Bathurst; and the next was after I had left the Service, and from what was said by the Department, I am quite sure that I was intended to attend that one. That was in June, 1884.

Miss
C. Brenning.
16 July, 1880.

Miss
C. Brenning.
16 July, 1889.

133. Mr. Lees.] Was that for a small school or for classification? All those examinations were for classification except the first, which was a preliminary one. The one at Bathurst I attended through the suggestion of Mr. Long, the local Inspector.

134. Mr. Fuller.] Did you decline to sit to be examined for your classification? No.

135. Chairman.] Have you any other letters which you wish to bring before the Committee? Yes. I wish the Committee to read the following letter from Mr. Horace Rogers, of the Sydney Morning Herald:—

Sir,—

Herald Office, 27 October, 1882.

Miss Brenning, who will deliver this to you, is a teacher in the Council of Education, and has, I am sorry to say, suffered a considerable amount of injustice at the hands of several officers of the Department. Some months ago she was appointed to a wretched school in the Illawarra district, but the exposure so affected her health that she was compelled to resign. Mr. Suttor has admitted to me, and Mr. Wilkins to Miss Brenning herself, that she ought not to have been sent to such a school. It is, therefore, admitted that she had some justification for resigning, and yet ever since then certain officers of the Department seem to be placing every obstacle in the way towards her getting a fresh appointment.

Mr. Suttor has been applied to, and he has called for the papers, but they are not yet forthcoming. I have done what I can privately in the matter, and I hope you may be able to influence Mr. Suttor in the matter, so that he will insist upon his subordinates clearing up the affair at once, and not allow them to shield themselves at the expense of a lady, who, I fear, is not in a position to stand such expensive and harassing delay.

I am, &c.,

HORACE ROGERS.

To J. Davies, Esq., C.M.G., M.L.A.

136. Mr. Fuller.] Where is Tongarra? It is in the Illawarra District.

137. It is near Mr. Mole's place? His residence is near the school.

138. And that is the place that you complain of as being unfit to live in? Except for such as Mr. Mole, who has a good residence.

139. Chairman.] Have you any other letters that you would like to lay before the Committee? Yes, the following letter addressed to Mr. Abigail.

Sir,

27, Botany-street, Surry Hills, 1 April, 1886.

I thank you most sincerely for the prompt manner in which you replied to my note requesting an interview for Miss Brenning, which she has now the honor to obtain. I thank you sincerely on her behalf for your kindness in granting her that interview, when I know that all your spare moments are so anxiously inquired after by many an unfortunate, upon whom justice or fortune has ceased to smile. She will explain her case in her own manner, and will give you any letters or papers which you may deem essential. I sincerely regret my own inability to be with her; but I will be happy to be of any service to you, as I can see you at Parliament House any night, and can convey to or from Miss Brenning what may be wanted by you. I may promise, for your information, that I have seen the Minister upon the subject privately at his own residence, when he promised to see that Miss Brenning received justice, but he has decided as you will see (doubtless upon the advice of some underlings) to screen the injustice of the past two years (the sole cause of Miss Brenning's ill-health) under the plausible pretext of physical unfitness.

Forgive me for trespassing so far on your valuable time, and believe me to be in full recognition of your kindness.

I have, &c.,

GEORGE T. LYETT.

To Frank Abigail, Esq., M.L.A.

I wish also to lay before the Committee a description of the Tongarra Provisional School taken from an Illawarra Newspaper.

TONGARRA PROVISIONAL SCHOOL.

(From the Illawarra Mercury, dated March 24th, 1882.)

THE buildings in which several Half-time and Provisional Schools in this Colony are held are, in many instances, the reverse of commodious. A very remarkable specimen in this respect may be seen by any person who visits the Provisional School at Tongarra, at the head of the Macquarrie River. This school, which, we understand, is attended by about thirty children, is conducted in a building not much larger than an ordinary sentry box, and not nearly so sightly as regards architectural appearance. And in addition to the smallness of the structure its floor is of "Mother Earth," which, during the present dry weather, has worked into dust, which, to speak modestly, is ankle deep. And the furniture and fittings of the so-called school house are on a par with the other characteristics of the premises. Altogether this shanty is one of the most wretched apologies for a school-house that could be imagined. The school mistress (Miss Brenning) is a very worthy and efficient person, but if under such adverse circumstances she can succeed in "teaching the young idea how to shoot," her proficiency must rival the very art of the Arabian box mystery. We understand that steps have been taken to have a Public School erected and established at the place mentioned, and not before it is required.

140. Do you produce testimonials of your competence? Yes. [See Appendix B 1.]

TUESDAY, 23 JULY, 1889.

Present:

MR. O'SULLIVAN,

MR. PERRY,

MR. LEES.

EDWARD WILLIAM O'SULLIVAN, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Charlotte Brenning called in and further examined:—

141. Chairman.] Since you were last before the Committee have you been up to Ebenezer School? Yes, I went on Saturday last.

142. What was the object of your visit? I went thinking that I should obtain the records, but the schoolmaster would not let me have them because I had not any order.

143. Did you get any document at all from there? Not from the school; I got from Mrs. Brown, with whom I lived, the following letter, which I wish to lay before the Committee:—

Ebenezer, 22 July, 1889.

In re Miss Brenning's removal from the office of teacher of the Ebenezer School in 1884, I beg to state in first place, as regards the previous order maintained in the above school, that it was by no means up to the proper standard, as I had opportunity of knowing, having had children attending the school before Miss Brenning took charge of it. My children, as far as I can judge, made better progress under the above-named teacher than under her predecessor. I am also in a position to state that owing to Miss Brenning's injured health, she had a difficult task to get the school into proper working order; also that I have every confidence in her ability as a school teacher, both as regards the discipline and progress of her scholars. While in this district Miss Brenning was always respected by every class with whom she came in contact. In conclusion, I may say that I consider the above-named lady to be quite capable of managing a similar school to that at Ebenezer, of which she was teacher for about eight or nine months, during which time she discharged her duties in a satisfactory manner to the parents of the children attending the above school.

MRS. JOHN BROWN.

144. Have you anything further to say? Not as regards the school; I am too late now to obtain the records. I could no doubt have got other letters from residents in the district, but it was raining very heavily during the whole of the time I was there.

CASE OF MISS BRENNING.

APPENDIX.

[To Evidence of Edwin Johnson.]

Sir, Provisional School, Portland Head, 7 March, 1884.
I have the honor, with reference to my letter of 8th ultimo asking for removal from the above school to a Public School situated in a more favourable locality, to request that you will be pleased kindly to cause me to be informed at your earliest convenience if I may hope to have my application granted.

I have on various occasions stated my inability to contend with the difficulties of a bush life; I desire now most respectfully and decidedly to state that if the Department are not willing to grant me the charge of a Public School, not in the bush, I must at once seek other employment, as I cannot risk the further loss of my health and strength by remaining in my present position any longer. There is no accommodation here suitable for a teacher. Trusting the Department will be pleased to consider the matter favourably,
I have, &c.,

CHARLOTTE BRENNING,
Teacher.

E. Johnson, Esq., Chief Inspector of Schools,
Department of Public Instruction, Sydney.

[To Evidence of Edwin Johnson.]

A 2.

Madam, Department of Public Instruction, Sydney, 12 January, 1884.
I am directed to acquaint you that your temporary attendance at the Infants' Department of the Public School at Bahmain has been authorized.

2. While attending that school you will receive an allowance of £7 a month from 1st January, provided you commence attendance as soon as possible.

3. Your attendance has been authorized on the distinct understanding that you will be employed as on probation for six months, at the end of which time you will be expected to gain a certificate of classification by examination.

I have, &c.,

E. JOHNSON,
Chief Inspector.

Miss Charlotte Brenning, Provisional School,
Portland Head.

Sir,

Provisional School, Portland Head, 22 January, 1884.
I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 12th instant, and in reply to state that as it is more than two years and a half since I entered the service of the Department, I must respectfully decline to accept of employment as on probation.

I have, &c.,

CHARLOTTE BRENNING,
Teacher.

E. Johnson, Esq., Chief Inspector of Schools,
Department of Public Instruction, Sydney.

[To Evidence of Miss Charlotte Brenning.]

B1.

MEMO. Education Office, Brisbane, 8 May, 1868.
Miss Charlotte Brenning has served the Board of Education in the capacity of work mistress for more than six years, in a manner which has won for her the esteem both of her pupils and her superiors. She now leaves the Board's employment of her own free will to return to England.

(Signed)

R. MAUDONNELL,
General Inspector.

Madam,

Canterbury Immigration Office, 16, Charing Cross, 24 July, 1870.
You are hereby appointed to be matron of the ship "Merope," conveying immigrants to Canterbury, New Zealand, under contract with the provincial Government. I beg to hand you a copy of the Queen's "Order in Council," which will fully explain to you the duties expected of you during the voyage.

A strict inquiry into the state of the ship and the treatment and behaviour of the emigrants during the voyage will be held immediately on your arrival in Lyttleton.

I am, Madam,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed) ALBERT O. OTTYWELL.

Emigration Agent for the Province of Canterbury, N.Z.

To Miss C. Brenning.

Kilmore-street West, 25 January, 1871.

HAVING had opportunity of becoming acquainted with Miss Brenning, who officiated as my matron on passage from London to Port Lyttleton, on board the ship "Merope," it affords me great pleasure in bearing testimony on her behalf. She was well liked by the emigrants on board, to whom she was uniformly kind and considerate.

I have had sufficient opportunity of forming a high opinion of her. There are none I could more confidently recommend as likely to fill a place of trust, feeling sure if you should honor this lady with an appointment her unremitting exertions will be used in so able and judicious a manner as to merit and retain your approval.

(Signed)

EDWARD HUSBAND,
L.R.Q.C.P.I. & M.R.C.S.L.

Madam,

Board of Education, Christchurch, 10 March, 1871.
I have the honor to inform you that your attendance will be required at my house, St. Asaph's-street West, on Thursday next, the 23rd instant, at 10 a.m.

I have the honor to be,

Madam,

(Signed) Your obedient servant,

T. P. RESTALL,
Inspector of Schools.

To Miss Brenning.

Madam,— Board of Education, Christchurch, N.Z., 7 August, 1872.
I have the honor to inform you that in the classification of teachers approved by the Board, you are ranked in the second division of the 3rd class.

I have the honor to be, Madam,
Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

FREDERIC MAINWARING,
Secretary.

To Miss Brenning, Mistress of the Addington Girls' School

Madam,— Waimate, 4 October, 1873.
I have to inform you that the Waimate School Committee have appointed you Schoolmistress to the Waimate District School, subject to the sanction of the Board of Education. I will inform you of the Board's sanction to your appointment in due course.

I am, Madam,

Yours respectfully,

(Signed)

FREDERICK HUGHES,
Chairman Waimate School Committee.

To Miss Charlotte Brenning, Addington, Christchurch.

Madam,— Board of Education, Christchurch, N.Z., 1 November, 1873.
I have the honor, by direction, to inform you that the Board sanctions your appointment as Mistress of the lowest half of the Waimate School, on Mistress' salary and lodging money.

I have the honor to be, Madam,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

FREDERIC MAINWARING,
Secretary.

To Miss Brenning, Addington, Christchurch.

Madam,— Main School, Palmerston, 9 March, 1875.
I have much pleasure in informing you that you are duly elected Schoolmistress at the Palmerston School. I need hardly tell you that we are very desirous for you to enter upon your duties with as little delay as possible, the Girls' School having been closed since December 20th, 1874.

I am, Madam,

Yours very truly,

(Signed)

WM. COBDEN,
Secretary, School Committee.

To Miss C. Brenning, Waimate School, Waimate.

Madam,— Palmerston, N.Z., 6 October, 1877.
In acknowledging the receipt of your letter, containing your resignation from your present post as Mistress of the Palmerston School, I beg to inform you of my having laid the same before the Committee, and that the same has been accepted, and, as required, to close your engagement at the end of the month current.

I am, Madam,

Yours very truly,

(Signed)

WM. COBDEN,
Secretary School Committee.

Miss Brenning.

Madam,— Board of Education, District of Canterbury, Christchurch, N.Z., 15 November, 1877.
I have the honour, by direction of the Board, and in reply to your letter of 29th ult., to put into your hands this testimony, that you were for some time a third-class teacher in schools under the control of this Board, and that you were so recognised up to the time of your leaving this provincial district this November.

I have the honor to be, Madam,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

W. J. HABENS,
Secretary.

To Miss Brenning.

To the Honorable Sir Henry Parkes, G.C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, Colonial Secretary's Office, Macquarie-street.

My Dear Sir Henry Parkes,

31, Wentworth Court, 5 July, 1889.

Permit me to call your attention to the terms of a resolution carried by Mr. O'Sullivan, M.P., last night, asking for a Return of the salaries paid to certain eminent public servants in the positions which they have respectively filled from time to time at the invitation of various Governments, and who, in the resolution, are described as my relatives.

Mr. Marsh, Stipendiary Magistrate, is one of those who is so described. I desire to inform you that I have not the honor of being related to that gentleman in any way. As to Sir William Manning, who is another of those mentioned in the resolution, he (as I believe you know) more than forty years ago was for a short time connected with my late father by marriage.

In justice to these gentlemen, I would ask that this letter be attached to the Return to be laid before the House.

I have, &c.,

B. R. WISE.

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 May, 1889.

[Laid upon the Table of this House in answer to Question No. 9 of Wednesday, 29 May, 1889.]

Questions.

9. MR. WALL asked THE COLONIAL TREASURER,—

- (1.) What are the names of the Officers in the Government Printing Office who have sons employed in that Department?
- (2.) The date of entry of these Officers' sons into the Department, their salary, and subsequent increase of salary?
- (3.) Is it a fact that such persons have received promotions and increases over the heads of employees on the same Staff who have been much longer in the Department?
- (4.) If so, will he have an inquiry made into the cause of such promotions and increases?

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

No. 1.

Dr. A. Ross, M.P., to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 14 July, 1887.

In disposing of cases at the Police Office at Molong, I desire to draw your attention to the objectionable system of making summonses returnable once a month, in place of on Tuesday of each week, which has been the custom at the Police Office since its origin. The delay is one fraught with much public injury and inconvenience, and therefore I have to request that steps may be taken to have all summonses issued for weekly sittings, in place of, as now, monthly ones, and that a roster of the Bench (if desirable) may be formed to carry out a long-recognized principle in the due administration of justice, so that there shall be no delay in bringing all cases before the Police Court, as has hitherto been the practice.

Yours, &c.,

Dr. A. ROSS, M.L.A.

No. 2.

Mr. W. M. Ross to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Molong, 14 July, 1887.

I beg to draw your attention to a much-felt want we have been subjected to here for years, viz., a weekly Court day.

From the great number of magistrates we have for this district, and all within reasonable distance of the Court-house here, I feel sure that if there was a weekly roster made out by our C.P.S., and published monthly (at least), for certain magistrates to attend the day in which their names are set down for, it would not only be a great convenience to the public, but to suitors who have cases to be dealt with.

For instance myself, allow I am Commons Ranger, and those in charge of travelling stock commit a breach of the Travelling Stocks Act, and that act is committed the day on which this monthly Court is held, does it not become a hard and expensive case on the drover to be brought back here, after travelling about one month at the rate of 8 to 10 miles per day, after the summons is issued to him. Even breaches of municipal by-laws, when infringed within the municipality, can only be dealt with once per month; whereas, if there was a weekly Court as above stated, such breaches, &c., would at once be stamped out. I laid this matter per letter a few days ago before our M.P., but as he has not gone to Sydney this week, I now lay it before yourself. Trusting you will give it your best and earliest attention.

I am, &c.,

W. M. ROSS.

Department of Justice, Sydney.

THE designation of the C.P.S., Mr. Nisbett, has been altered on the Estimates of present year to that of Police Magistrate and C.P.S., without additional salary. By Mr. Nisbett's appointment as P.M., the difficulty called attention to by Mr. Ross would be removed, and the P.M., Orange, might be relieved of the duty of visiting Molong, by which some saving would be effected. Will minute-paper be prepared to carry out proposed alteration of designation.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 18/7/87. Yes.—W.C., 18/7/87. Minute herewith, and Commission, 19/7/87. Letter to Colonial Secretary re appointment to Commission of the Peace, 19/7/87.

Minute by The Acting Under Secretary of Justice to The Secretary of the Civil Service Board.

Subject :—Appointment of Clerk of Petty Sessions, Molong, as Police Magistrate.

THE designation of the Clerk of Petty Sessions at Molong, having been altered on the Estimates of the present year to that of Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions, it is recommended that Mr. John Hyde Nisbett, the present Clerk of Petty Sessions at Molong, be appointed also Police Magistrate at that place, but without addition to his salary. This appointment would prove a public convenience and enable the Police Magistrate at Orange to be relieved of the duty of visiting Molong, whereby a saving in travelling expenses will be effected.

No. 5.

The Police Magistrate, Molong, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Molong, 22 August, 1887.

I do myself the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th instant, No. 87-7,861, together with my Commission appointing me Police Magistrate for the town and district of Molong.

I have, &c.,

J. H. NISBETT.

No. 6.

The Police Magistrate, Molong, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Molong, 13 August, 1888.

I do myself the honor to state my health for some time past having been very bad, caused by the heavy Land Office work performed between 1876 and 1882 from which I have never thoroughly recovered. I have been advised by my medical adviser to reside in a warmer climate by the sea side for the benefit of my health. Under the circumstances, I have the honor, respectfully, to request that I may be removed when a vacancy occurs to some office on the sea coast, and in the event of a vacancy occurring at Gosford or Port Macquarie, that you will kindly take into consideration my past services with a view of appointing me there. I may state I am reluctantly compelled to apply for this change, it being against my interest, as it will be a great loss to me leaving Molong, having made my home here. I may also add I have been Clerk of Petty Sessions at Molong for thirteen years, and Police Magistrate for the last twelve months.

I have, &c.,

J. H. NISBETT,

Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 14/8/88. This application might be noted for consideration in event of any vacancy occurring to which Mr. Nisbett could be transferred as desired for the benefit of his health. Mr. Nisbett might be offered Nowra at £320, and Mr. Chippendall to go to Molong at £300 per annum.—W.C., 15/8/88. Telegrams to Mr. Nisbett and Mr. Chippendall, 16/8/88.

The Under Secretary for Lands to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 3 September, 1888.

With reference to your letter of the 24th ultimo, stating that it has been decided to appoint Mr. J. H. Nisbett, Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions at Molong, to a similar position at Nowra in the place of Mr. Macarthur, and your blank cover communication of the 1st instant intimating that Mr. H. H. Chippendall will succeed Mr. Nisbett at Molong, I have the honor to inform you that Mr. G. H. Gibson (Emergency Land Agent) has been instructed to proceed to Nowra, and can act until Mr. Nisbett arrives, and to ask that the latter gentleman may remain at Molong a sufficient time to initiate Mr. Chippendall into the Land Agency duties there.

Telegram from The Police Magistrate, Molong, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

19 September, 1888.

With reference to your telegram of 18th instant, Mr. Chippendall entered upon his official duties on 17th instant; it will be impossible to initiate him in Land Office work properly, in a large office like Molong, under three or four weeks.

This telegram might be forwarded for the information of the Under Secretary for Lands. The period named by Mr. Nisbett as necessary to initiate Mr. Chippendall in the duties of the Lands Office, at Molong, is inconveniently long, as it is desirable that Mr. Nisbett should commence duty at Nowra as soon as possible, as his appointment at that place took effect from 1st instant. Submitted.—A.C.F., 21/9/88.

Under Secretary for Lands.—It is urgently necessary for Mr. Nisbett to proceed at an early date to Nowra. It is suggested that an officer from Orange could visit Molong and instruct Mr. Chippendall in land business.—W.C., 22/9/88.

A.C.F., B.C. Mr. E. H. Stobo, Clerk in charge, is the Land Agent at Orange.—B.J.A., 26/9/88. Mr. Inspector Curray. Submitted. Submitted. Mr. Nisbett might be asked whether Mr. Chippendall could not become sufficiently conversant with Land Office routine in a less period than that named by him (three or four weeks), as it is very desirable that Mr. Nisbett should proceed to Nowra as early as practicable.—A.C.F., 27/9/88.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

No. 1.

Telegram from the Police Magistrate, Wollongong, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

14 November, 1885.

I RECOMMEND Mr. and Mrs. Boys as Court-house keepers. Their names are Edward Hatton Boys and Elizabeth Boys. They have no family.

A. A. TURNER, P.M.

Mr. Cowper informed me he concurs in this recommendation, and the appointment may therefore be approved, and allowance fixed at £52 per annum, as agreed for.—T.E.M.N., 16/11/85. Approved.—T.M.S., 16/11/85. Inform P.M. and Sheriff of approval; to take effect from date of commencing duty.—T.E.M.N., 16/11/85. Done, 19/11/85.

No. 2.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Police Magistrate, Wollongong.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 19 November, 1885.

Referring to your telegram of the 14th instant, I am directed to inform you that the Minister of Justice has approved of Edward Hatton Boys and Elizabeth Boys being appointed (on trial for the present) Court-house keepers at Wollongong, with allowance at the rate of £52 per annum; to take effect from the date of commencing duty. You will please to inform Mr. and Mrs. Boys that the appointment is made on the distinct understanding that if it is found they are unable to perform efficiently the duties of the position their services will be dispensed with.

I have, &c.,

THOS. E. MACNEVIN,

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Sheriff.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 19 November, 1885.

Referring to previous correspondence respecting the appointment of a Court-house keeper at Wollongong, I am directed to state, for your information, that the Minister of Justice has approved of Edward Hatton Boys and Elizabeth Boys being appointed Court-house keepers at that place (on trial for the present), with allowance at the rate of £52 per annum; to take effect from the date of commencing duty.

I am to add that the Police Magistrate at Wollongong has been apprised that the appointment is made on the distinct understanding that if it is found that Mr. and Mrs. Boys are unable to perform efficiently the duties of the position their services will be dispensed with.

I have, &c.,

THOS. E. MACNEVIN,

For Under Secretary.

Sir, Department of Justice, Sydney, 18 April, 1887.
 With reference to the allowance of £52 per annum granted to Mrs. Boys, Court-house cleaner, Wollongong, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that this allowance appears to be a large one, and to request that you will be good enough to favour him with a report upon the subject, and also state whether the Court-cleaner is allowed, in addition, quarters and fuel.

No. 9.

The Police Magistrate, Wollongong, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Court-house, Wollongong, 23 April, 1887.
 Referring to your letter of the 18th instant, respecting the allowance of £52 per annum to Mrs. Elizabeth Boys, Court-house cleaner at Wollongong, I have the honor to inform you that that amount was authorized by the letter from your Department of 19th November, 1885, No. 85-11,512. In addition to that allowance, Mr. and Mrs. Boys have quarters and fuel.

This Court-house is a very large building, and there is a good deal of work attending the cleaning of it. When it was first handed over I proposed that the allowance should be £40, but that allowance was afterwards fixed at £52 per annum, as above stated. I think it would be difficult in Wollongong to get a suitable married couple without family to accept the position and perform the duties at a less allowance.

I have, &c.,
 ALFRED A. TURNER, P.M.

Submitted. Previous papers herewith.—A.C.F., 28/4/87.
 Forwarded to Sheriff for favour of any remarks he may wish to make before suggestion to Minister of Justice, in reference to salary paid by this office to Court-cleaner, Wollongong.—A.C.F., B.C., 28/4/87.
 Mrs. Boys is the most efficient Court-keeper I have. She has also a very large and troublesome Court, very peculiar in its construction, and consequently difficult to manage. I can recommend no reduction, and feel certain it would not be entertained if I did.—CHARLES COWPER, Sheriff. B.C., 7/6/87.

No. 10.

The Sheriff to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Darlinghurst Court-house, 28 June, 1887.
 At the request of the Minister I have the honor to report upon the question of amalgamating the duties of Sheriff's Officers with those of District Court Bailiffs, and I may state in the first place (although I know the Minister is aware of it) that it would require an alteration in the law to take from the Judges the power they now possess of appointment.

Secondly, the same power which the District Court Bailiff now possesses of appointing deputies to attend to minor matters (the officer or bailiff being held responsible), should be retained. I have endeavoured to get rid of the name bailiff as much as possible, and used the term Sheriff's officer, giving them a higher status, as the name bailiff always appears to me to give persons who wish to set the law at defiance an opportunity of speaking of these officers in terms of derision, which tends very much to lessen their usefulness. This has enabled me to get persons in good positions to take the appointment. Formerly no one but an ex-policeman or gaol warder, who was unfit for anything else would accept it. The appointment is actually made by the Governor and Executive Council, who generally act on my recommendation, but they do not appoint anyone unless I approve. This is most important, because New South Wales is an exception to the other colonies. In Victoria, for instance, there is a Sheriff for every district, which enables them to have personal supervision over every act of the officer. Some of my officers are located hundreds of miles away, and cannot communicate with me under a week. I have consequently to trust very much to them. It is important therefore that I should know them personally, and train them in the Sydney office before sending them to these distant parts. I have great trouble with District Court Bailiffs who have not been trained, when I have to employ them, and as a rule they are very unsuitable persons. Although I have not the power of dismissal, I have insisted on my officers giving me a note when appointed, stating they will remove from one district to another when ordered, and resign when they fail to give satisfaction. This gives me a power over them, without which I could not maintain efficiency. When I took charge at one time the officers set me at defiance, refused to remove when I ordered them, and appeared to think that by using political influence they could do as they liked. This was changed, and I have not had much trouble with them since. The salary, even with the fees, has not been sufficient in many cases. It is not equal to the pay of a senior constable, and considering they are liable to be called upon to travel long distances at a moment's notice, in all weathers, the officers should be fairly paid. The present system causes a fair rate of pay to be divided between two or three people. This has been obviated in many cases by the District Court Judges appointing my officers. It would be well however, to make the appointment of all officers to rest with me, and as I am responsible for the proper performance of the duties of officers in connection with the Supreme Court, I see no reason why the same should not also apply to officers of other Courts. I fail to see what the Judges of the District Court have to do with the carrying out of those duties any more than Judges of the Supreme Court, except when brought under their notice on the Bench by the legal profession.

I append a return showing that by paying my country officers £250 a year, they could do the work of the whole Colony (this would not cause an increase of expenditure), and the fees would be paid into the Consolidated Revenue, amounting to about £1,500 a year. The Sydney work could be done by the same number of officers, if not less, and their salaries increased in proportion to the amount of fees hitherto received by them. As the salary would be a certainty, a lesser sum might be sufficient. It is argued that the duties will not be performed as quickly and efficiently if the fees are not paid to the officers; but if I have the power of removal, I can soon deal with any laxity of this kind. It might, however, be contended with equal force, that the very fact of their receiving fees will induce them to favour the person who pays quickly rather than the person who does not; and I must confess that I think the system of payment of fees leads to irregularities; and as some one must hold a permanent appointment, whose duty it would be to deal with estreats, attachments in insolvency, jury matters, as well as other things not connected with writs of fi. fa. (and it would be impossible to pay him by fees), it would be better to have one salaried officer, all fees being paid into the Consolidated Revenue. The Fees Bill, lately passed, is the first step towards enabling me to manage the Department. I have been powerless up to this time, there being no regular rate recoverable at law, which placed one at the mercy of the profession, who could refuse to pay at any time. Now there can be no difficulty, as any officer charging a higher rate can be called to account at once, and if the officers are paid a fair salary, a better class of men can be secured, who, I think, should rank equally with a Clerk of Petty Sessions. The solicitors will find also that they must pay at once, and this will save a great deal of work and trouble at the office. As the charges in the Department differ, an amalgamation will cause the system to be uniform, and would prevent the different officers of the Courts proceeding long distances against the same defendant, and oftentimes coming into collision. The Judges have worked so well with me that I apprehend no difficulty. If they have any complaints against an officer they can inform me by letter, when I could send a trained man from the Sydney office to take up the duties pro tem., and if I did not sufficiently punish the officer I could be called to account by the Minister. I may mention that under the present system I have known some District Court Bailiffs called upon to do office-duty which should be done by the Registrar. This, with the help of an assistant-clerk, left the Clerk of Petty Sessions but little to do, and is very objectionable. The duties are distinct and should be left so.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. COWPER,
Sheriff.

This matter is now dealt with. Sheriffs' Officers to act also as District Court Bailiffs in the town where they are domiciled. District Court Bailiffs to be retained in towns where there are no Sheriff's Officers.—W.C., 19/12/87.

Circular from The Acting Under Secretary of Justice to The Bailiff, District Court, Wollongong.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 8 September, 1887.

I am directed to state for your information, that the Minister of Justice does not intend to place any salaries for District Court Bailiffs upon the Estimates for next year, and that the salary now paid to you in respect of this office will cease from and after the 31st December next.

The remuneration for the duties of the above office will, in future, be by fees only, as regulated by Order in Council, under authority of the "District Courts Act of 1858,"—which arrangement the Minister of Justice considers will be fair and reasonable, in view of the fact that District Court Bailiffs will not be debarred by the duties appertaining to their position as such, from following any other avocation.

You will please acknowledge the receipt of this circular.

F. Woodward, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

Wollongong, 11 April, 1888.

Sir, I have the honor to inquire whether it is intended to amalgamate the duties of the office of Bailiff of the District Court at Wollongong with those of the officer of the Sheriff at that place, and, if so, to bring under your notice the great inconvenience that must result to suitors should such a proposal be carried out.

2. Some time ago an unsuccessful effort was made to have the office of Bailiff of the Wollongong District Court and those of the Kiama Court discharged by the one person. Personally, I am aware this was a great inconvenience to litigants, and the arrangement was soon discontinued. Much more disadvantageous would it be if the officer, to perform the duties of the Bailiff of the District Court should be found—as he frequently would in the discharge of his duties as Sheriff's Officer—considerably further south of Wollongong than even the Kiama District.

3. I have no hesitation whatever in stating that no one person can satisfactorily perform the two-fold duties, and would remind you of the very great importance of this matter, since, even with the best and most efficient of bailiffs, the fruits of a verdict—oftentimes obtained at considerable cost and annoyance—have been lost by the various and frequently successful efforts of the execution debtor to evade and defeat a levy.

The effect of such a proposal as is here referred to would be a practical denial of justice to many an unwilling, though honest, litigant.

I have, &c.,

2. In again requesting a reconsideration of the proposal, I hope I shall be pardoned the liberty of reminding you that an experience of eighteen years' residence in the district and that afforded by my practice therein as a solicitor for that length of time, should make me well fitted to speak of the serious public inconvenience that must result should the proposal referred to be adhered to, and carried into effect.

Sir,

Wollongong, 6 June, 1888.

I have the honor to forward the accompanying letter for the information of the Minister, and in reference to it may say that its statements seem fair and reasonable.

My own experience, as a Registrar of District Courts, enables me to know that cases frequently occur when it is important to suitors to obtain instant issue of process.

The business of this District Court shows no sign of decreasing, whilst, on the other hand, that of our Small Debts Court has increased this year by nearly 100 per cent., the numbers being, 93 to 31st May, 1887, and 175 from 1st January to 31st May last. This I mention to show that the Bailiff needs to be in daily attendance; but yet, if the offices are served as contemplated, it would not be worth any man's while to accept the office of Small Debts Court Bailiff, notwithstanding the increased business.

I have, &c.,

[Enclosure.]

W. H. Thomas, Esq., P.M., Wollongong,—

Dear Sir,

Wollongong, 7 June, 1888.

We beg to bring under your notice the proposed alterations by the Minister of Justice of the performance of the duties of the District Court Bailiff here, viz., having those duties performed by the Sheriff's Bailiff, and trust you will endeavour to prevent the same being carried out.

You are doubtless aware that the Sheriff's Bailiff's district extends as far as Milton to the south, and that his duties in connection therewith frequently require his absence from Wollongong for several days at a time; consequently suitors in the District Court requiring immediate process would suffer great loss through not being able to obtain same through the absence of the Bailiff on Supreme Court business.

You are also aware that the offices of District Court Bailiff and Small Debts Court Bailiff are filled by one person, who obtains his livelihood from the proceeds of these two offices, and that if the office of District Court Bailiff be taken from him, it would be impossible for him to keep on the bailiffship of the Small Debts Court, the fees therefrom being insufficient to enable him to live thereupon, and that his attendance at the Court-house is required almost daily in connection with the duties of these two offices.

From your own personal knowledge of all these circumstances, you are aware that if the duties of Sheriff's Bailiff and District Court Bailiff be performed by one person, it would be impossible to get an officer to solely perform the Bailiff's duties of the Small Debts Court, and that a great injustice will be done to the residents of this district, and we trust, therefore, you will represent these matters to the Department of Justice, and oblige,

Yours truly,

BENJAMIN LIPSCOMB,

Referring to your letter of 6th instant, forwarding letter addressed to you by Messrs. B. Lipscomb, F. Woodward, M.P., and J. R. Sir,

Wollongong, 14 June, 1888.

Again adverting to the subject of the proposed amalgamation of the offices of the Bailiff of the District Court at Wollongong and Sheriff's Officer at that place, I have the honor to transmit herewith a petition from Magistrates, attorneys, and others residing in the town and district, praying that the services of a District Court Bailiff may be continued.

2. I have only to repeat that I am perfectly satisfied much public inconvenience must result from the proposal referred to if carried into effect, and have the honor to again respectfully urge the matter upon your attention.

I would add that the Petition has been signed by the most influential residents, and to assure you that I do not think a single individual within the Illawarra Electorate would refuse to sign the same. No attempt has of course been made to canvass for signatures.

I have, &c.,

FRAS. WOODWARD.

[Enclosure.]

To the Honorable the Minister of Justice,—

THE Petition of the undersigned Attorneys, Magistrates, and others resident within the jurisdiction of the Southern District Court, holden at Wollongong, and the Small Debts Court, Wollongong,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That your Petitioners have learned with regret that an amalgamation of the offices of Sheriff's Bailiff and District Court Bailiff in this district is contemplated.

That such a course if adopted will cause considerable inconvenience to suitor in both the above-mentioned Courts for the following reasons:—

1. The present Bailiff of the District Court, Wollongong, is also the Bailiff of the Small Debts Court at the same place, and such last mentioned Court is held on Thursday in each week, and a large number of cases are disposed of, and the duties devolving upon the person holding the office of Bailiff in such Court, are of such a nature as to preclude the person from being engaged in any other occupation.
2. The present Bailiff of the said Court is also Bailiff of the District Court, and the income derived from both sources enables him to support himself and family without seeking any other occupation, but in the event of the amalgamation before mentioned being carried out, and the salary and fees received by him in respect of his office of District Court Bailiff being taken away, the fees received by him in respect of his office as Small Debts Court Bailiff will be insufficient to support him, and he will in all probability be obliged to resign his position and seek some other means of livelihood, in which case it will be impossible to find another man to accept the position, as the work is such that requires daily attention, and the fees are in themselves insufficient to support a man.
3. The present Sheriff's Bailiff here is frequently away from Wollongong for some days together, as his district extends as far as Ulladulla, which is some 100 miles south of Wollongong, and if the offices of Sheriff's and District Court Bailiff are to be performed by him, considerable inconvenience and loss must arise to suitors in either one or the other of the Courts.
4. The present Bailiff (John Copae) has been District Court and Small Debts Court Bailiff for upwards of six years, and is a thoroughly competent, honest, and reliable man.

Your Petitioners therefore request that you will take the above facts into your earnest consideration, and allow the present District Court Bailiff to continue to act as such.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

[Here follow 100 signatures.]

The Sheriff to see this petition and to report to me thereon. I notice the District Court Bailiff at Wollongong is also Bailiff of Small Debts Court. This, I admit, places an aspect on the matter, so far as Wollongong is concerned, which I was not previously aware of.—W.C., 14/6/88.

Forwarded to the Sheriff with reference to the Minister's minute of the 14th instant herewith.—A.C.F., B.C., 15/6/88. Sheriff's report herewith.—J.M.W., 22/6/88.

Minute by the Sheriff.

Sheriff's Department, Sydney, N.S.W., 20 June, 1888.

SIMILAR reasons to those advanced by the petitioners against the amalgamation of the offices of Supreme Court Officer and District Court Bailiff at Wollongong, have been put forward on other occasions, but it has been proved beyond doubt, in districts equally important, that the Sheriff's Officer can satisfactorily perform the duties, as well as those of Small Debts Court Bailiff. A great portion of the work has to be done by a deputy, and by increasing the work of one officer, he is able to get a more efficient deputy.

The local solicitors like to have a District Court Bailiff, because he is able to do the work appertaining to the position of Sheriff's Officer, without charging Crown fees. In this way the Crown loses, as well as the Sheriff's Officer. While feeling confident that in all districts the work could be satisfactorily and efficiently performed by one officer, I am of opinion that one uniform system should prevail throughout the Colony.

CHARLES COWPER,
Sheriff.

In view of this report from the Sheriff, the petitioners might be informed, through Mr. Woodward, M.P., that the decision arrived at cannot be altered. Submitted.—A.C.F., 23/6/88. So inform.—W.C., 23/6/88. Mr. Woodward, M.P., 25/6/88.

Minute by His Honor Mr. District Court Judge M'Farland.

28 June, 1888.

UPON the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Justice, and in order to diminish public expenditure by there being one instead of two officers, and by virtue of the authority vested in me under the Districts Courts Act of 1858, I hereby appoint Mr. Edward H. Boys, Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong, to be also Bailiff of the District Court at that place, to take effect from the 1st July, 1888. And I request that a copy of this minute be forwarded by the Department of Justice to the now present Bailiff of that District Court, so that he may have notice of what is being done and of the reason.

ALFRED M'FARLAND,
District Court Judge,
Southern District.

Mr. Copas informed, 5/7/88.

No. 24.

The Under Secretary of Justice to Mr. J. Copas.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 5 July, 1888.

In compliance with the request of His Honor Mr. District Court Judge M'Farland, I do myself the honor to forward to you the enclosed copy of His Honor's minute, appointing a successor to you in the office of District Court Bailiff at Wollongong, from the 1st instant.

I have, &c.,
ARCH. C. FRASER,
Under Secretary.

No. 25.

F. Woodward, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Wollongong, 23 October, 1888.

I have again the honor to invite your attention to the matter of the appointment of District Court Bailiff at Wollongong.

I find from the papers the facts are shortly as follows:—

On the 8th September, last year, a circular was addressed to the then Bailiff of the District Court, intimating that it was not intended to place any salaries for District Court Bailiffs upon the Estimates for the next year, and that the salary then paid him would cease from and after the 31st December of the same year.

On the 13th March last, the same officer was informed that after the 30th June following the duties of the District Court Bailiff would be amalgamated with those of Sheriff's Office at Wollongong.

It will be remembered that some correspondence has already passed between your Department and myself upon the inconvenience of the arrangement, and I have again respectfully to repeat the same.

The inhabitants moreover forwarded a petition upon the subject.

I was assured the change then in contemplation, and subsequently carried out, was in the interests of economy.

His Honor Mr. District Court Judge M'Farland was induced to appoint the present Sheriff's Bailiff at Wollongong to be the District Court Bailiff at that place, to take effect from the 1st June, 1888.

From His Honor's minute it appears, however, that such appointment was not only made "upon the recommendation of the Minister of Justice, and in order to diminish the public expenditure by there being one instead of two officers;" but the Judge felt himself justified in adding a note to such minute requesting "that a copy of the same should be forwarded to the then Bailiff of the District Court, so that he might have notice of what is being done and of the reason."

Up to this point I was informed by you that no provision would, or could, be made for the salary of a District Court Bailiff. The facts are that on the same night, at the very last moment, the salary was placed on the Estimates, and, what is worse, the Sheriff's Bailiff—with whose office that of the Bailiff of the District Court has been amalgamated—is receiving such salary in addition to his own as Sheriff's Officer. I can only repeat what, in my correspondence and personal interviews I have frequently assured you, viz., that the work of the service and execution of process from the Supreme Court, as well as his own duties as Bailiff of the District Court, have been just as satisfactorily performed by the ex-bailiff as any one person can do such work at a salary of only £40 per year.

Now—in the interests of economy forsooth,—the same duties are being entrusted to the Sheriff's Bailiff at a salary, I think, of £120 per annum as such officer, and the sum of £40 per year for discharging the duties of District Court Bailiff, the holder of such offices moreover having the privilege of residing upon the Court-house premises.

I have, &c.,
FRAS. WOODWARD.

Acknowledge, 25/10/88. Done, 26/10/88. Submitted (see memo herewith).—A.C.F., 2/11/88.

The accompanying letter from Mr. Woodward, M.P. (with previous papers), respecting the office of District Court Bailiff at Wollongong is submitted for the Minister's consideration. The Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong was appointed District Court Bailiff there also, from 1st July last, without additional salary. Mr. Woodward is therefore incorrect in stating that the Sheriff's Officer is receiving the salary of the District Court Bailiff, whose services were dispensed with, in addition to his own as Sheriff's Officer, which is £160 per annum.—A.C.F., Department of Justice, Sydney, 1st November, 1888.

Inform in terms hereof which I approve.—W.C., 2/11/88. Mr. Woodward, M.P., informed, 5/11/88.

The Under Secretary of Justice to F. Woodward, Esq., M.P.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 5 November, 1888.

Referring to your letter of the 23rd ultimo respecting the office of District Court Bailiff at Wollongong, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that the Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong was appointed Bailiff of the District Court there also, from the 1st July last, without additional salary, and you are therefore mistaken in stating that that officer is receiving the salary of the District Court Bailiff (whose services were dispensed with), in addition to his own as Sheriff's Officer (£160 per annum), as the Bailiff's salary has been saved since the amalgamation of the offices in question.

I have, &c.,

ARCH. C. FRASER,

Under Secretary.

No. 27.

F. Woodward, Esq., M.P., to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Wollongong, 12 November, 1888.

Referring to your letter of the 5th instant, further respecting the offices of Sheriff's Bailiff and District Court Bailiff at Wollongong, and informing me that the Sheriff's Officer was appointed Bailiff of the District Court without additional salary, my statement that that officer receiving the salary of the District Court Bailiff in addition to his own, being a mistaken one, I have the honor to inquire what has become of the item of £40 voted as referred to in my letter of the 23rd ultimo.

2. From the Estimates-in-Chief for 1887, provision, as heretofore, was made for Bailiff, District Court, at Wollongong, and £40 voted. The Estimates for 1888 omit this item, with an explanation at foot that the officer was "also Sheriff's, under which heading salary is provided." Then follows what to me still appears a most extraordinary proceeding, as already stated in my letter, herein referred to; namely, that the Additional Estimates for 1888 provides for salary at £40 to District Court Bailiff, Wollongong.

3. As I have been informed that, instead of an expenditure of £120 or £160, the country is now paying some £300 in connection with the appointment of Sheriff's Officer here, and as there can be no question that the sum of £40 with, say an additional £52 for Court-house cleaner, is amply sufficient, may I ask the favour of being informed:—

1. What is the salary of the Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong?
2. What additional sum does such officer or his wife receive for the discharge of any, and what, duties at Wollongong?
3. What sum of money has been charged to the country, to the Department under your charge or to the Sheriff's Department, for the use of the Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong or in connection with his office since his appointment?
4. Will you cause to be furnished me or laid upon the Table of the Legislative Assembly copies of all correspondence, minutes, papers, and all other documents, &c., in reference to the amalgamation of the offices of the Sheriff's Bailiff and District Court Bailiff at Wollongong, and to the appointments of the present Sheriff's Officer at that place to the dual offices, and the dismissal or discharge of the late District Court Bailiff?
5. How long did the late Bailiff of the District Court at Wollongong discharge his duties, and were any complaints made against him during that time, either in the performance of such duties or those of a bailiff specially appointed by litigants in the Supreme Court?

I have, &c.,

FRAS. WOODWARD.

Acknowledged, 17/11/88.

This letter might, in the first instance, be referred to the Sheriff with a request that he will be good enough to favour the Minister with a report upon the subjects mentioned by Mr. Woodward in the third paragraph of this letter in reference to the Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong. Submitted.—A.C.F., 17/11/88.

So refer.—W.C., 19/11/88. The Sheriff.—T.E.M'N. (for U.S.), B.C., 19/11/88. Sheriff's report annexed.—J.M.W., 4/12/88.

Minute by Sheriff.

Sheriff's Department, Sydney, N.S.W., 4 December, 1888.

In order to enable the Minister to understand this matter fully, I must go back some years.

Sheriff's Officers were formerly allowed to enter into private business, when they acted more like agents for solicitors and independently of the Sheriff than as Civil Servants under the head of a Department.

They seldom ever sent returns of what they did with the money they received. If they obtained the full amount of the writ for the plaintiff they received an equivalent, if they did not obtain the amount of the writ they probably asked for no expenses.

This may have been a convenient arrangement. It is to some extent the present practice of District Court Bailiffs—at least so I am informed, at any rate I know that although they charge possession money, they seldom keep possession personally, and how it is they escape actions I cannot tell, for directly my officers fail in performing their duty I am made the subject of an action. The way in which they perform their duties acts very prejudicially to the proper working of the Sheriff's Department. In one case I may mention a Crown fee is charged for serving a writ of summons. In the District Court there is no such charge. Where there is a District Court Bailiff these summonses are invariably sent to him, and not to the Sheriff's Officer, to evade the payment of this Crown fee.

I have made it a rule that my officers shall confine themselves to their official duties, and not enter into private business, thereby reducing their incomes considerably. They have an allowance for forage, because they have a good deal to do in serving Crown writs, &c.

If their salaries are reduced, seeing that they are now paid only the same amount as a messenger, although they are liable to the Sheriff for the whole amount of the writ, if by any failure on their part they do not recover the full amount, they cannot possibly live and be honest.

Lately Sheriff's Officer Boys levied in a case at Kiama, and he put a Small Debts Court Bailiff in possession. This man, as appears was his habit as such bailiff, did not keep possession, but went away to see his brother. While he was away a person who had an unregistered bill of sale, which was of no value until he got possession of the goods, finding the bailiff away, entered into possession, sold the goods, and Mr. Boys, who was engaged in another case, through no fault of his own, but through the neglect of this quasi Government officer, was let in for the whole amount of the writ and costs.

Another officer has lately had a verdict returned against him for ninety days possession money, which I have been unable to recover from the parties, although the matter has been standing over for months.

The Government have refused to advise me, and I have no money to pay legal expenses if I go to law, indeed it cannot be reasonably expected that a Sheriff or his officer can fight these matters, and pay legal expenses out of their salaries. These officers have not only to do their duty but employ others and pay them, sometimes waiting for months before they are reimbursed the money they are out of pocket.

As regards the Court-keeper's salary, the Wollongong people would have a large Court-house with cedar fittings, good furniture, &c. It was difficult at the time to obtain suitable people on the salary offered. It is easy to get persons to occupy the buildings, but it is very difficult to get people who will keep the cedar and everything connected with the buildings in first-class order.

If expensive Court buildings are erected and furnished well, it seems a pity that they should be neglected. As a rule, Court-houses are not properly cleaned, and the position is only taken to secure a residence.

If the steel and brass upon expensive fenders and irons are to be covered with Brunswick-black, as is too often the practice in Government Departments, it would be better to purchase fenders of the commonest description. Then, instead of the cedar being properly cleaned, it is generally dusted with a feather duster.

I have in my mind's eye a case where a suite of furniture not being good enough for the Department where it was placed, was sent to me, and a much more expensive suite sent to replace it. The inferior suite is now in good condition, while the more expensive one looks disreputable.

Then again, where there are Jury Courts it was usual to make respectable citizens sleep on the bare boards, or the cocoanut matting, often infested with fleas. It has never fallen to Mr. Woodward's lot to have to put up with such inconvenience, as his profession exempts him, but some of his friends at Wollongong know from experience the change I have effected in this respect, as well as in providing good meals for them, instead of locking them up as was done on my first visit as Sheriff to the Court at that town, when twenty-four jurymen were denied even a drink of water, and the answer I received, when expressing my abhorrence at such treatment, was, "Serve them right, they should agree"; and Mr. Copas was in charge.

If these arrangements are to be carried out properly, the persons employed expect as much as they can get in private service, but the officers in my Department do not generally receive even that, so that I am continually losing them, because they are tempted by offers of higher pay.

If a separate couple were appointed for the Court-house, the work would not be better performed, probably not so well. It would be hard therefore to make the present officers suffer, because they make everything comfortable, and do not spend their money in drink at the public-house. Some persons cannot do work themselves, and cannot get servants to stay with them. They are naturally jealous when they see people who can work and keep their servants making everything comfortable around them.

If Mr. and Mrs. Boys are more comfortable than their neighbours they have themselves to thank. When the Court-house was completed the cattle were breaking down the palisades of the verandah, until I had the place fenced in. The fence has been objected to, but it is better than allowing the building to be destroyed. But those who cry out for economy now never raised their voice when so large an amount of money was being spent upon the building, but even asked for a still further expenditure on a dwarf stone wall and iron railing, when a batten fence would be quite sufficient.

After I had erected the fence I had a difficulty in getting enough money to keep the grounds in order, when Mr. Boys improved part of them himself. This has also been made a subject of criticism, and the question asked is, how can he afford it? The answer is, simply because he works himself and does not waste his time. Any decent couple in private service can get from £80 to £100 per annum with everything found them.

The usual salary for a Court-keeper at such a Court is £100 per year, and you cannot get the work done as it is done at Wollongong for less. The usual salary for a Sheriff's Officer is £160 a year. As proved by the work performed by Mr. Boys, the district is a most important one, and the appointment of a Sheriff's Officer was demanded long before I acceded to it.

No doubt it was thought I would give Mr. Copas the appointment, but neither by education nor in any other respect is he fitted for it, while Mr. Boys has received a university education, and has been trained in the office in the Sheriff's Department. Ordinary messengers in Sydney receive from £100 to £200 per year. Their work begins at 9 o'clock and ends at 4 o'clock, while a Sheriff's Officer is never off duty, and through the slightest neglect may be made responsible for large sums of money at any moment. Indeed there is no position in the Government service which it is so necessary to put beyond temptation.

I have no doubt Mr. Copas would take it without salary, if allowed, as he has been, to do as he liked. The Clerk of Petty Sessions would probably take the position of Police Magistrate at a much lower rate, without travelling allowances; while, among the many aspirants to office, possibly some one could be found to take the position of Sheriff at a nominal salary, if he was allowed to make what he could could in other ways; but we have not yet decided to follow the example of America in this respect, and until that time arrives I think we should not expect any one to devote his whole time to Government duties without paying him what is considered a fair remuneration out of the service.

I append a statement showing what has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Boys, and I may add, there is no Court where the same amount of work is performed for so low a rate of pay, while there is no district where a Sheriff's Officer is more required than at Wollongong.

CHARLES COWPER,
Sheriff.

B.C., The Under Secretary of Justice, 4th December, 1888.

Department of Justice, Sydney, 7 December, 1888.

Mr. WOODWARD, M.P., writing on the 12th ultimo, in reply to a letter from this Department, on the 5th idem, further, in reference to the offices of District Court Bailiff and Sheriff's Officer, at Wollongong, inquires what has become of the item of £40, provided on the Estimates for the present year for the bailiff of the District Court at that place. Half of this amount, it may be stated, was paid to the late bailiff (Mr. Copas) for his services up to the 30th June, when the Sheriff's Officer (Mr. Boys) was appointed to the position. No salary having been paid since that date, the unexpended balance of £20 will be saved.

With reference to the inquiries contained in the third paragraph of Mr. Woodward's letter, the Sheriff has submitted a report (herewith enclosed), and a statement in reply to the specific questions 1, 2, and 3, asked.

In section 4 of the letter, Mr. Woodward asks whether the Minister will cause him to be furnished with, or lay upon the Table of the House, copies of all correspondence, minutes, papers, and other documents, &c., in reference to the amalgamation of the offices in question.

In regard to the concluding portion of the letter, no complaints, so far as this Department is aware, were made against the late bailiff in the discharge of his duties.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 7/12/88. Mr. Woodward, M.P., to be informed in terms of this minute in respect of salary of bailiff, and that all papers would be laid on the Table of the House, if so ordered.—W.C., 17/12/88. Mr. Woodward, M.P., informed, 18/12/88.

No. 28.

The Under Secretary of Justice to F. Woodward, Esq., M.P.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 18 December, 1888.

Referring to your letter of the 12th ultimo, further respecting the offices of District Court Bailiff and Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that the Sheriff's Officer at that place receives a salary of £160, and forage allowance at the rate of £31 4s. per annum, his wife being in receipt of a salary of £52 per annum as Court-keeper there. Extra assistance in cleaning the Court-house has also been provided since the 1st March last, at an annual cost of £25. The total amount charged to the Sheriff's Department for the services of the Sheriff's Officer at Wollongong, since his appointment on 1st January, 1887, to the 31st October last, has been—salary, £289 9s. 8d., and forage allowance, £54 12s.

I am to add, in reference to your inquiry on the subject, that of the item £40 provided on the Estimates for the present year for the District Court Bailiff at Wollongong, £20 was paid to the late Bailiff (Mr. Copas) for his services to the 30th June last, a saving of the unexpended balance of £20 being effected.

The Minister desires me also to inform you that all papers in connection with the amalgamation of the offices of the District Court Bailiff and Sheriff's Officer above referred to will be laid upon the Table of the Legislative Assembly, if so ordered.

I have, &c.,
ARCH. C. FRASER,
Under Secretary.

No. 29.

The Sheriff to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Sheriff's Department, Sydney, 10 May, 1889.

I have the honor to point out that the papers in re appointments in the Sheriff's Department Wollongong, about to be laid before Parliament, do not include an application made by Mr. Lipscomb and others for a Sheriff's Officer to be stationed at Wollongong, and complaining of the cost of mileage, &c, paid to a Sydney officer, who up to that time did the duty, also the papers connected with the payment of £25 for extra assistance to Mrs. Boys. Mr. Lipscomb admits having sent the former, and the Police Magistrate (Mr. Thomas), cannot deny that he recommended the latter.

From the papers it would appear that Mr. and Mrs. Boys were appointed Court-keepers. This is not the case.

Mr. Turner, the late Police Magistrate, wrote and asked me to appoint a Court-keeper. I delayed until the Court-house was opened, not wishing to incur expense, but promised the position to an old Court-keeper as promotion. In the meantime Mr. Turner was informed he could make the appointment. He wished to put in the Court-house the sergeant of Police with a large family, to which I objected, as it turns out very wisely, for his two sons have since been convicted of serious offences and sent to gaol, while a third, who was temporarily employed about the Court, behaved badly, broke the outside lock of the door, and proved himself an improper person to be about the Court.

The matter was then compromised by my agreeing to Mr. Turner appointing Mrs. Boys, on condition that if she did not perform the work satisfactorily I could dismiss her. She has since proved herself a first-class Court-keeper.

Mr. Boys was, upon the urgent solicitation of the solicitors for a resident Sheriff's Officer, appointed to the district.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES COWPER,

Sheriff.

Submitted. The papers referred to herein cannot be traced in this Department, but if in existence a supplementary return can be tabled.—A.C.F., 14/5/89. Further inquiry will be made.

Memo. by The Minister of Justice.

Fees received by Clerks of Petty Sessions.

22 February, 1887.

Let a return be prepared as quickly as possible of all fees received by the Clerks of Petty Sessions during the year 1886, and which were in augmentation of their salaries, as provided in Estimates for 1886.

WILLIAM CLARKE.

Prepare at once.—W.E.P., 22/2/87. The Stipendiary Magistrates, Water and Central Police Offices.—W.E.P., 23/2/87. Telegrams to several C's.P.S., 24/2/87.

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Stipendiary Magistrates, Water Police Office.

Gentlemen,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 23 February, 1887.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice to request that you will have the goodness to obtain from the Clerks of Petty Sessions at the Water Police Court and at Balmain and St. Leonards the following information required to be furnished with the least possible delay, viz., a carefully prepared return of all fees, either as Registrar of Small Debts Courts, Commissioner of Affidavits, or in any other capacity received by Clerks of Petty Sessions during the year 1886, and which were in augmentation of the salaries provided on the Estimates of that year. It will be desirable in each case to specify the source from which such fees have been received, and the total amount of each case in supplement of official salary, during period named.

In the case of fees received under Small Debts Act the number of cases during the year might be stated as an approximate verification of return as regards fees under that head.

I have, &c.,

W. E. PLUNKETT,

Under Secretary.

Telegram from The Under Secretary of Justice to The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Albury.

24 February, 1887.

MINISTER of Justice desires to be furnished at once with carefully prepared return of all fees received by you during last year (1886), either as Registrar Small Debts Court, Commissioner of Affidavits, or in any other capacity, which were in augmentation of your salary as provided on Estimates last year. You will specify in each case source of fee and total under each head, and in regard to fees under Small Debts Act, number of cases during period named should be stated. Information required with utmost expedition to be verified as correct as far as practicable.

W. E. PLUNKETT,
Under Secretary.

Repeated to all Clerks of Petty Sessions.

NOTE:—Fees at the rate of 2s. per entry for registration of births, marriages, and deaths are paid to Clerks of Petty Sessions, who act as District Registrars, by the Registrar-General's Department, and are retained by them. The only fees paid to Revenue being those received from the public for searches and marriages, which are very trifling.

No. 6.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Grenfell, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Grenfell, 24 March, 1887.

With respect to the statements made recently by the public press, that it is the intention of the Government shortly to direct the payment to the Consolidated Revenue, of all future fees received by Clerks of Petty Sessions, beyond their actual salaries as voted by Parliament, I do myself the honor to respectfully point out that unless provision be made on the Estimates, or otherwise, to compensate such officers (myself amongst them) for the loss of the fees in question, the course suggested will have the effect of directly reducing their emoluments to the extent of the fees of which they are thus deprived; and although I do not wish to defend the system of the payment of public officers by fees, and I am, and I assume others are also, quite willing to submit to any general system of the reduction of the salaries of civil servants that may be deemed necessary under the present financial difficulties of the country. I trust that Clerks of Petty Sessions will not be more hardly dealt with in that respect than the officers of any other branch of the public civil service, which would be so if the fees in question were taken from them, and their salaries not increased in proportion thereto, while officers of the other branches retained their former salaries in full; or reduced only at the rate of the percentage that Clerks of Petty Sessions' salaries (in addition to the loss to the extent of the fees taken from them) are reduced, in any general system of retrenchment that the Honorable the Minister of Justice may feel called upon to make in the very important Department over which the Hon. Mr. Clarke now presides, and in the public service throughout.

The amount of fees which I receive is certainly not very large, having been, last year, about £29 (or about 6 per centum of my total emoluments), but I submit it is large enough to be appreciably (P) felt, when I have been accustomed for the past twelve years to regard it as part of my income.

I have, &c.,

W. F. ROBERTSON,

Clerk of Petty Sessions.

No. 7.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Forbes, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Forbes, 26 March, 1887.

In regard to the Bill providing for the payment of all fees received by Clerks of Petty Sessions into the Consolidated Revenue Fund, I have the honor to respectfully request that you will be pleased, on my behalf, to point out to the Honorable the Minister of Justice facts as under, viz. :—

1. That although I hold appointments, and perform duties entailed thereby on Clerks of Petty Sessions in places of higher emoluments, but of less importance, that my salary is already on a lower scale than the majority of such places, in many of which work is actually less.

2. That I am placed in one of the most expensive places in the Colony, remote from railroad communication, in which the necessaries of life are, consequently, only procurable at a high figure.

3. That house-rent is here so expensive (in my case amounting, with rates, to £85 per annum), that any reduction in the way of fees would be to me so serious a calamity that, with all due respect, I fail to see how, as a married man with six children, I could continue to maintain my position in a becoming manner, unless such reduction was neutralized to some extent, by an allowance which would have the effect of raising my salary to a like amount to that accorded to officials holding a similar position in places of cheaper living, and where the duties are no heavier:

4. That my fees received during the year 1886 amounted only to £61 9s. 3d., in addition to my salary of £320 per annum, and that the bulk of such fees were derivable from work chiefly performed outside the usual office hours, notably in my capacities of District Registrar, Commissioner for Affidavits, &c.

5. That in the case of fees derivable as Registrar of Small Debts Court, sale of dog-forms, &c., although much of the work may be performed during office hours, the forms used not being provided by the Government, have to be found at private cost.

6. That, in regard to the small commission allowed as Mining Registrar, and fees under Mining Board Regulations, the appointment in question was undertaken by me on account of such fees, as prior to same being conferred, I received a telegram from the Department of Justice, requesting to be informed if I could satisfactorily perform such duties in addition to my others, and which telegram I answered in the affirmative.

7. That although fully recognizing the necessity at the present juncture for retrenchment through the various branches of the service, I respectfully beg leave to submit that a loss to me of over £60 per annum, without some augmentation in the way of salary, would, for the reasons I have endeavoured to point out, be so severe that I trust, with all due respect, that the Honorable the Minister of Justice will be pleased to give my case his favourable consideration.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND A. T. PERY, J.P.,

Clerk of Petty Sessions, Forbes.

Submitted.—30/3/87. Acknowledge. Every case will receive due consideration. Put this and similar papers together to be perused again by me.—W.C., 31/3/87. C.P.S. informed, 1/4/87.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Forbes, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Court-house, Forbes, 1 July, 1887.
Having heard that the Estimates-in-Chief are shortly to be brought before the House, I have the honor respectfully to call to your remembrance my letter of 26th March last, and your answer thereto of 1st April last (No. 87-3,374), both in reference to increase of salary, in the event of fees of office being done away with.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND A. T. PERY,
Clerk of Petty Sessions.

To be placed with Estimate papers.

No. 11.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Maclean, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Police Office, Maclean, 9 August, 1887.
I have the honor to request that you will be pleased to make provision on the Estimates for 1888 for an increase in my salary, in lieu of the fees which are to be taken away from me.

My reasons for asking you to do this, are as follows:—I have been upwards of eleven years in the service, and my present salary, exclusive of fees is only £240 per annum, subject of course to a reduction of £4 per centum to the Superannuation Fund, and I find by the Estimates for last year that there is no Clerk of Petty Sessions that period in the service, who is in receipt of a less income than mine. On the contrary there are thirteen or fourteen who are my juniors, but whose salaries are in excess of mine. My fees for the year, ended 31st December, 1886, amounted to about £30, so that when I am deprived of them, it reduces my income by something like 10 per cent., and when the smallness of my salary is taken into account, I think you will see that this is by far too great a reduction, and that this application is one that merits your favourable consideration. As regards my abilities to perform the duties of a Clerk of Petty Sessions, I would refer you to a recommendation from Messrs. Buchanan, Marsh, and Addison, on an application of mine for the appointment of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Balmain or St. Leonards; also one by Mr. Marsh, on an application for a like appointment at Bathurst. I would also point out that any person filling the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions in a country district has a certain social position to maintain, and I am sure that no one can do that on the salary that is at present voted for my office, that is when the fees are taken away.

In conclusion, I may say that I am a married man, and have a family to maintain.

I am, &c.,

J. M'KENSEY,
Clerk of Petty Sessions, Maclean.

Forwarded for the favourable consideration of the Minister of Justice.—SAMUEL MACNAUGHTON, J.P., DAVID LEE, J.P. Submitted.—A.C.F., 13/8/87. C.P.S., Maclean, 13/8/87. Will be considered in due course.—W.C., 20/8/87.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Tenterfield, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Tenterfield, 8 October, 1887.
In view of the Clerks of Petty Sessions Act coming in force on 1st January next, I beg most respectfully that my claim for compensation for loss of fees by way of increase in salary may be considered in the Estimates for 1888.

Agreeing with the principle of abolishing payment to public officers by way of fees, yet I would draw your attention to the fact that such was allowed by Act of Parliament and therefore rightfully appropriated by us as recompense for work and labour done. I may add that promotion was sought after—not so much for the small increase of direct salary it brought in proportion to the additional work and responsibility thereby entailed—but for the extra salary by way of fees proportionate to the importance

tance of the position held by the respective officers—this increase in fees invariably represented a large increase of work irrespective of that for which the direct salary was received; as an instance, I may state that many of these appointments now held by Clerks of Petty Sessions at an actual saving to the State are also held separately by persons who receive a fixed salary for performance of such work as well as fees that may be accruing therefrom. I may also add that these appointments so held by Clerks of Petty Sessions, who, in most instances, are also Crown Lands Agents, entail arduous work out of office hours, as it is almost impossible, where a plurality of offices are held by the same officer, to do otherwise. Taking my own case as an instance. I am Clerk of Petty Sessions, Crown Lands Agent, Registrar of the District Court, Deputy Clerk of the Peace, Registrar of the Small Debts Court, Registrar of Births, Deaths, and Marriages, Curator's Agent, Warden's Clerk, and Mining Registrar in a rising and important mining district, with a gradual increase of work in each department, and under such circumstances, I find it impossible to do the work creditably to myself or to the satisfaction of the Departments I represent during the usual office hours, and in order to complete and keep the same under proper control, I have been forced to work far into the night four out of the six working days, and during the busiest months, often on holidays and Sundays. These are not bare statements of my own, as they can be corroborated by the Police Magistrate, and the public of Tenterfield generally. I admit my case is not singular, for I am sure there are other officers similarly situated, harder worked than myself: still I feel confident it is not the intention or wish of the various Heads of Departments I represent that work so performed in the public interest should be passed by unrequited. I therefore leave my case in your hands, feeling sure that you will deal justly and fairly with myself, as with each individual claim coming before you.

I have, &c.,
FREDERICK BURNE,
 Clerk of Petty Sessions.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 11/10/87. Will be considered in preparation of next Estimates.—W.C., 12/11/87. Accountant.—A.C.F., 12th.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Orange, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Court-house, Orange, 15 October, 1887.

Referring to the matter of the abolition, from 1st January next, of certain fees hitherto paid to Clerks of Petty Sessions, I have the honor to submit the following facts for the consideration of the Minister of Justice:—

1. That my collections for the nine months, ended 30th September last, for revenue proper, were £756. For the present quarter, I estimate that a sum of at least £100 will come in, thus making a total of £856 actual revenue for the year. My total collections from all sources will, I am satisfied, amount to at least £1,600 for 1887.
2. That I am carrying on the work of the office, with an assistant at £60 per annum, being a yearly saving under this head of £90.
3. That, on the basis of the receipts of the past nine months, my income from fees for the present year will be—

Fees for affidavits	18	0	0

4. That the collection of these fees for the Government will, of necessity, cause me considerable additional labour. Each fee must pass through the various books, be shown in the returns, be remitted to the Treasury, and ultimately appear in the quarterly attested account sent in to the Audit Office.

5. That I am under a Fidelity Bond of £1,000 as a Collector of Public Revenue.

6. That if the appointment I hold had been filled in 1885, when it became vacant, two increments, instead of one, would have been added to the salary, which would thus have been £390 instead of £370 as at present.

I trust that, in addition to the foregoing, the Minister will be good enough to bear in mind the importance of the town in which I am located, the various important and responsible offices I fill, and the extra hours I am compelled to work in order to perform my duties.

Feeling assured that, in view of the facts herein stated that the Minister of Justice will see his way to grant me a substantial increase on my present fixed salary.

STEPHEN MURPHY,

Sir,

Court-house, Balmain, 20 October, 1887.

As all fees under the Small Debts Act, &c., are, from the 1st January next, to be paid to the credit of Consolidated Revenue, I do myself the honor to request that you will be so good as to point out, for the information of the Honorable the Minister of Justice, that, on being appointed to the position I now fill, I considered it some promotion after my long service, and the augmentation of salary consequent on the retention by me of the small debts and other fees appertaining to the office, as a reasonable compensation for the onerous and responsible duties I would be called upon to perform.

As in future I will be deprived of the fees, which I conjecture will amount this year to about £120, the reduction to my salary caused thereby, will be a very serious loss to myself and family.

I therefore most respectfully submit this matter for the Minister's kind consideration, trusting he may be pleased to cause an amount to be added to my salary on the Estimates for 1888, commensurate with the loss I will sustain through the fees herein referred to being taken from me.

In view of the abolition of fees to Clerks of Petty Sessions, and the promise of the Honorable the Minister of Justice to deal with each case on its merits, I have the honor to lay before you, for Mr. Clarke's information, a short statement of my case.

About eighteen months after my appointment to my present office, I purchased a house on the suburban railway line, in the full belief that I should be able to pay for it out of my official income.

In December, 1885, I gave a mortgage over the property for £400, the unpaid balance of the purchase money. I have paid £150, and interest off the original amount, and should have been able to keep faith with the mortgagee, but for the very serious loss I shall sustain through being deprived of a very large portion of my income; a deprivation I never anticipated, as it was secured to me by Act of Parliament. My income derivable from fees was, in 1886, £210, and for the first three quarters of 1887 at the rate of £230 per annum. I will only add that my family is five in number, and an increasing one.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 31 December, 1887.

I am directed by the Minister of Justice to invite your attention to the provisions of the "Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act of 1887," 50 Victoria No. 32, which will take effect on and after the 1st day of January, 1888, from which it will be seen that:—"Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any Act, Regulation, By-law, or other authority, every Clerk of Petty Sessions, or officer performing the duties of a Clerk of Petty Sessions, who shall receive any fees pursuant to any Act of Parliament or to any Regulation made thereunder, or other authority whatsoever, shall in manner to be prescribed by the Governor in Council pay over such fees to the Colonial Treasurer to be by him placed to the credit of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. And every such clerk or officer shall in respect of such fees be deemed for all purposes of the Audit Act a public accountant."

Grafton, 3 January, 1888.

Are fees received by me as Commissioner for Affidavits to be paid into revenue.

WM. CLARKE,

Clerk of Petty Sessions.

Submitted. The Attorney-General thinks that the "Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act of 1887" ought to be interpreted so as not to affect the fees paid to Commissioners of Affidavits, who are also Clerks of Petty Sessions. Under the "Commissioners for Affidavits Act of 1874" it will be seen that the Commissioners for Affidavits are appointed by the Chief Justice, and the fees to be paid to them fixed by Rule of the Supreme Court.—A.C.F., 11/1/88.

It was stated by me in passing the Clerk of Petty Sessions Act through Parliament that all fees, inclusive of fees received as Commissioner for Affidavits, should be paid into Consolidated Revenue Account, and they must be so dealt with.—W.C., 12/1/88.

Referring to your circular of 31st ultimo, embodying the provisions of the "Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act of 1887," I have the honor to request that you will be so good as to inform me whether the Act refers to fees received by virtue of other offices which may or may not be held by a Clerk of Petty Sessions,—such as Commissioner for Affidavits, and District Registrar of Births, Deaths, &c. I have been informed that the Act would not interfere with fees received as Commissioner for Affidavits, and I am advised that the Act refers only to fees paid to a Clerk of Petty Sessions as such.

I have, &c.,

With reference to the circular, noted in the margin, I have the honor to request you will inform me what I am to do with a number of printed forms under the Small Debts Act, for which I have paid, as the fees received under that Act are now payable to the Colonial Treasurer; and further, with regard to the fees paid to Commissioners for taking affidavits; it would appear that only Clerks of Petty Sessions and officers performing duties as Clerks of Petty Sessions are prohibited from retaining these fees for their own use, but that other officers and private persons who are Commissioners for taking affidavits can do so. Will any compensation be made to me for the loss of these fees, which I have hitherto regarded as income?

I have, &c.,

F. W. EDWARDS,
Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions.

Submitted, 11/1/88.

The forms purchased by Mr. Edwards for use of public under Small Debts Act cannot be used in future, in view of provisions of Clerks of Petty Sessions Act of 1887. Forms will shortly be ready for issue by the Government Printing Office, and can be obtained on requisition in usual manner. The question of fees as Commissioner for Affidavits is now under consideration of Minister, and a decision will shortly be given.—T.E.M.N.

No. 26.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Central Police Court, to The Acting Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir, Central Police Office, Sydney, 13 January, 1888.

I desire respectfully to bring under your notice, for the information of the Honorable the Minister of Justice, that on the 1st instant the Fees Act came into force, thereby reducing my income to one half.

I see by this year's Estimates that my salary is put down at £500, although the Stipendiary Magistrates were pleased to recommend that it be increased to £800, and I was led to believe that the Minister intended to place this amount on the Estimates. My sole reason for accepting my present position was on account of the fees. I had previously held the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions at Maitland for twelve years, when my salary and emoluments were equal to between £650 and £700 per annum, besides the expenses of living there are considerably less than in Sydney, and my removal from there to here necessitated my selling off at a great sacrifice, and having to commence life afresh.

Just before my appointment, the Stipendiary Magistrates Act came into operation, and on my arrival in Sydney I was informed that besides my ordinary duties of Clerk of Petty Sessions and Registrar of the Small Debts Court, I would have to perform all the magisterial chamber duties, as it was impossible for the Stipendiary Magistrates to attend to them and be engaged in Court business at the same time.

This particular duty takes up a considerable portion of my time, and is a most important and onerous one, and to discharge which efficiently requires a thorough and practical knowledge of the law. This work used to be performed by the late Police Magistrate—Captain Scott—the unpaid Magistrate sitting in the Courts. Although this extra duty was given to me I received no addition to my salary, neither did I ask any, as I was satisfied with the fees I was entitled to under the Small Debts Act. The salary of my office now is the same as it was in 1867, when the duties to be discharged were simply those of a Clerk of Petty Sessions.

The Clerks of Petty Sessions in the country in the year 1881 received considerable increases to their salaries; for instance, at Maitland the salary was increased to £450. It was originally £225 as Clerk of Petty Sessions.

With the exception of the salary of the Clerk of Petty Sessions the whole of the staff of this office have from time to time had increases. Take, for example, that of my assistant's, which was in 1881 £350, and last year £490. It will, therefore, be seen that the position I now hold is an anomalous one, as although I have the whole responsibility for the proper working of the office, and the discharging the other important duties enumerated by me, my assistant's salary is only a few pounds less than mine.

I trust that my rather lengthy explanation has clearly shown that, without regard to substantial compensation, which I consider I am entitled to for losses sustained by me through the passing of the Fees Act, my present salary is quite inadequate to the position I now hold, and the important duties which I am called upon to perform.

In

In July next I will have been in the service twenty-eight years. I have a large family, who are solely dependent on my salary; two members of whom I have brought up to professions, and who will have to be provided for by me for several years. The great alteration which has been effected in my position will completely cripple me in the proper carrying out of my engagements, which I had entered into before I was aware that the fees were to be taken from me, as every day since the new year I am incurring responsibilities, which I know I cannot meet without an addition to my present salary. I am very desirous that the Honorable the Minister will, after taking all these circumstances into favourable consideration, be pleased to decide at his earliest convenience what compensation I am justly entitled to, and whether the claim I have put forward for an increase of salary is not a fair and reasonable one.

I have, &c.,
C. DELOHERY.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 16/1/88. Mr. Delohery to be informed that his claims, as set forth in his letter, are under my consideration, and will be dealt with next month.—W.C., 17/1/88. Informed, 18/1/88.

Probably so, but the Act does not refer to them. The Minister, in whose Department such officers are employed, should be informed that they receive fees, which is contrary to the action of the Government in this Department.—W.C., 11/2/88.

Forwarded to the Department of Lands in the first instance for notation.—A.C.F., B.C., 14/2/88. The Under Secretary for Lands. Will the Clerk of Petty Sessions be good enough to supply the names of the officers to whom he has referred in the enclosed paper?—H.C., (pro U.S.) B.C., Lands Department, 9/3/88.

If you peruse my letter and telegram you will perceive that I referred chiefly to one officer, and that officer is the Police Magistrate, Mr. McDougall. The others are the Inspector of Stock, Mr. Bawden, and the Crown Lands Agent. The Police Magistrate and Clerk of Petty Sessions, Molong, to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Molong, 10 February, 1888.

I have the honor to state that I have received a circular memorandum from the Registrar-General intimating that, for the future, all fees I may receive as District Registrar under section 7 of 19 Victoria No. 34 will be paid over to the Colonial Treasurer. I now do myself the honor most respectfully to state for your information that the office of District Registrar was formerly held by the late Crown Lands Agent, and when the Crown Lands Office was amalgamated with that of Clerk of Petty Sessions the Registrar-General asked me if I would perform the duties of District Registrar at Molong, and for which services I would be paid the usual fees. I would most respectfully submit that the office of District Registrar was received by me in virtue of my office as Crown Lands Agent. I would also beg to draw your attention to the fact that the work in connection with District Registrar is done at my private residence during the evenings, as I am unable to do it during office hours, having all my time engaged attending to my duties as Police Magistrate, Clerk of Petty Sessions, Crown Lands Agent, &c., and for the next two months I will have to work until very late every night at the Lands Office. That, under the circumstances, I most respectfully submit that I may be allowed to receive the fees as District Registrar. I would also respectfully add that all Land Agents who are District Registrars receive the fees.

Sir, Curator's Office, Sydney, 10 February, 1888.

Referring to the attached letter of the Clerk of Petty Sessions at Scone, as to whether he should deduct the 3 per cent. commission from his collections in intestate estates and pay it to the General Revenue Fund, or remit the whole of his collections to me, I presume he wishes to ascertain whether he is debarred by Act 50 Vic., No. 32, from retaining for his own use the 3 per cent. commission allowed him as Curator's Agent; if so, I am of opinion that the "Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act of 1887" does not repeal section 16 of 11 Vic., No. 24, and in no way affects a Clerk of Petty Sessions, who, by virtue of his position, is appointed by me Curator's Agent.

Such fees are received by him, not as Clerk of Petty Sessions but as Curator's Agent, for the performance of duties entirely separate and distinct from those of Clerk of Petty Sessions.

Sir, Water Police Office, Sydney, 15 February, 1888.

I have the honor most respectfully to invite your attention to the very serious loss I have sustained through the operation of the Clerk of Petty Sessions Fees Act, and I earnestly trust that my case may receive the favourable consideration of the Honorable the Minister of Justice. I have nearly completed my twentieth year of service, and I now find myself placed in a very difficult position through losing about one-half of my emoluments of office. The small debts fees alone, last year, amounted to £522 18s. 3d. I submit that the reduction from £1,072 18s. 5d. to £550 is one unparalleled, excepting in the case of the Clerk of Petty Sessions, Central Police Office.

With my responsibilities, this enormous reduction can only end in my ruin.

Relief has, I understand, been granted to Mr. Delohery, by which he will receive £700 per annum, and I ask that my case may be considered in an equally favourable manner.

I have, &c.,

In reference to your letter of the 18th February last respecting my application for an increase of salary in lieu of small debts fees, of which I have been deprived by the operation of the Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act, I have the honor to request that the Honorable the Minister will be pleased to reconsider my case, seeing that the end of the year is approaching and no more lucrative appointment has been offered to me. The loss of fees is a particularly heavy one—a reduction of my emoluments of about 50 per cent.

When I was appointed to my present position the emoluments attached thereto was well known; but I believe that the then Minister declined to interfere with the small debts fees. Had this not been so, it would have been to my advantage to have retained the lower position I then held in Maitland.

Your letter before alluded to having held out strong hopes of a more lucrative appointment being given to me, I subsequently made application for the office of Police Magistrate at Parramatta, the salary being £50 per annum more than I now receive. I may mention that the small debts fees received at this office from the 1st January to the 13th instant amount to £442 8s. My colleague at the Central Police Court has long since been granted relief, and I most earnestly ask that I may receive equal consideration.

Extract from Votes, 8th January, 1889.

(2.) Clerks of Petty Sessions:—Mr. Walker, for Mr. Henry Clarke, asked the Minister of Justice,—

(1.) Has the opinion of the late or of the present Attorney-General been given as to the construction of the Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act, 50 Victoria No. 32, with respect to fees received by District Registrars of Births, Marriages, and Deaths and Commissioners for Affidavits who happen to be also Clerks of Petty Sessions?

(2.) If such opinion has been given, what is the purport thereof?

(3.) Does the Act, in the opinion of the Attorney-General, include fees received by Clerks of Petty Sessions by virtue of other and separate appointments, such as District Registrars of Births, Marriages, and Deaths and Commissioners for Affidavits?

Mr. William Clarke answered,—

(1.) Yes; the present Attorney-General has given an opinion thereon.

(2 and 3.) The Attorney-General has stated his opinion as follows:—“All fees received by Clerks of Petty Sessions, or officers performing the duties of a Clerk of Petty Sessions, whatever other positions they may hold in the Public Service, must be paid over to the Colonial Treasurer, although the fees may be received by them under Acts of Parliament, the provisions of which are foreign to the duties of Clerks of Petty Sessions.”

No. 59.

The Stipendiary Magistrate, Central Police Office, to The Under Secretary of Justice,

Sir,

Central Police Office, Sydney, 6 February, 1889.

Our attention has been called by the Clerks of Petty Sessions at Newtown and Redfern respectively to the fact that although provision has been made on the Estimates for 1889, for an increase to the salaries of those officers at the Central and Water Police Courts—presumably on account of the abolition of their fees of office—no corresponding amount has been added to the former salaries. These officers receive only £340 per annum, although their responsibilities and duties are in excess of those attached to any courts outside the metropolis, and their services are—independently of the question of compensation for the abolition of the fees formerly received by them—honestly worth £500 per annum. They are also Magistrates, and attend to the Chamber business, as well as that of the clerical duties of Clerk of Petty Sessions requiring a thorough acquaintance with the procedure of the courts, and involving no small amount of responsibility in correctly enforcing the decisions of the Magistrates. We have, therefore, much pleasure in endorsing their application for an increase of salary, and recommending the same for the favourable consideration of the Honorable the Minister of Justice.

We have, &c.,

G. O'MALLEY CLARKE, S.M.

WHITTINGDALE JOHNSON, S.M.

No. 60.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Orange, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Orange, 11 February, 1889.

I have the honor to invite your attention to the following facts,—

The Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act, which came into operation on the 1st January, 1888, reduced my income for the past year by the sum of £65 16s. 6d., being the actual amount paid into the Treasury by me in pursuance of the Act referred to. I may state that the above sum included fees received by me as a Commissioner for Affidavits, as well as those paid me as District Registrar of Births, Marriages, and Deaths.

Although the fees first alluded to were not received by me in virtue of my office as Clerk of Petty Sessions, they were forwarded to the Treasury in accordance with the opinion of Mr. Attorney General Simpson, who advised that all fees received by a Clerk of Petty Sessions—no matter under what authority—should be so remitted.

On the 30th March, 1887, when the Act referred to was being passed through the Legislative Assembly, the then Minister of Justice distinctly promised that some compensation should be provided in the Supplementary Estimates for Clerks of Petty Sessions, in view of the loss of fees. I regret that no such provision was made, and may add that in the Estimates for the present year increases in lieu of fees are proposed for none but the Clerks in the two city offices. It should be borne in mind that the very loss of the fees has imposed considerable extra work upon all the Clerks of Petty Sessions, who have now to pass each fee through his books, and furnish the usual attested accounts.

I desire specially to point out that I am performing the duties at Orange with the assistance of a probationer, whose salary is £50 per annum, whilst my predecessor had a thoroughly-qualified assistant, at £190 per annum. It will thus be seen that a sum of £140 per annum has been saved to the Department, but much extra work and responsibility has been cast upon me.

The general work of my office has materially increased during the past two years, and judging by the receipts for the past month, the Treasury will benefit to the amount of £90 by fees paid in under the provisions of the Act in question during the present year.

In

In 1884 the "District Court Further Amendment Act," 48 Vic., No. 7, was passed, and under its provisions the Registrar of the Court has power in certain cases to enter up judgment for the plaintiff. The greater portion—I believe 75 per cent—of the District Court business is now dealt with by the Registrar thus saving loss of time to the suitors, and considerable expense to the Government. Although the serious extra labour and responsibility have been cast upon the various Registrars they have not received any increase of salary.

I respectfully submit that in view of the extra work imposed upon me in the various offices I hold, an increase of £30 per annum would be a reasonable compensation; thus raising my salary to £400 per annum. I also respectfully urge that the sum of £30 should be allowed me in lieu of fees for the year 1888, being less than half of my actual loss.

Trusting that my length of service, as well as the manner in which I perform my duties, may be duly considered, and that you will be good enough to recommend my application to the favourable consideration of the Minister of Justice.

I have, &c.,

STEPHEN MURPHY,

No. 61.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Wagga Wagga, to The Minister of Justice.

Sir,

Police Office, Wagga Wagga, 13 February, 1889.

I have the honor to request that provision may be made on the Estimates for 1889 for an increase to my salary, and I submit the following reasons for so doing.

When Mr. Clarke, the late Minister of Justice, moved the second reading of the Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act he made a distinct promise that he would make some allowance in lieu of the fees taken away by that Act, and I notice by the Estimates, submitted by the late Government for 1889, that the salaries of the Clerks of Petty Sessions at the Central and Water Police Courts were increased by £150, which I take it was in lieu of fees, and I beg respectfully to submit that if they are entitled to an increase country Clerks of Petty Sessions are also entitled to the same consideration at your hands.

2nd. The salary of the office I now hold was, previous to my acceptance of it, £340 per annum, and when it was offered to me at £300, I accepted it at that rate, being under the impression that all the increases which had accrued under the Civil Service Act were to be struck off, but as this has not been done I submit that I am entitled to the same salary as my predecessor, viz., £340 per annum, which I may say was the amount voted for 1888.

3rd. The duties of this office are very much heavier than those of any other town in this portion of the Colony, with the exception of Goulburn, while the salary is less. The Clerk of Petty Sessions at Albury is in receipt of £340 per annum; Hay, £390; Young, £390—and I have more service than any of those officers; so that taking into consideration the duties of this office, and my length of service, as compared with the offices I have mentioned I think you will see that I am fairly entitled to the increase I now ask for.

Trusting you will give this application your favourable consideration.

I am, &c.,

J. M'KENSEY,
Clerk of Petty Sessions, and Registrar District Court.

Submitted.—A.C.F., 15/2/89. Mr. M'Kensley was promoted from Maclean at £240 to Wagga Wagga at £300 fifteen months ago. The matter of fees of Clerks of Petty Sessions cannot be considered at present, but all such cases as Mr. M'Kensley's will be fully dealt with as soon as possible.—T.M.S., 19/2/89. Mr. M'Kensley informed, 21/2/89.

No. 62.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Balmain, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Balmain, 25 February, 1889.

I have the honor, respectfully, to request that you will be good enough to submit for the consideration of the present Minister of Justice my letter of 20th October, 1887, asking, for certain reasons therein stated, that my salary of £340 per annum may be increased, as compensation for loss of fees of office through the operation of the Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act, in reply to which I was informed that "my application would be fairly considered, and dealt with on the same basis as other salaries."

I may be allowed to point out that, while on the Estimates of the late Government the salaries of the Clerks of Petty Sessions at the Central and Water Police Courts are submitted at a substantially increased rate, presumably on the ground of loss of income by the abolition of fees, no increase of salary has been made in the case of any of the Clerks of Petty Sessions at the suburban police offices, who have equally suffered a corresponding loss of income, and who are, I most respectfully submit, as fairly and justly entitled to consideration as the officers at the city courts.

I may mention that the loss of fees from the Small Debts Court alone sustained by me during last year amounts to £160, and I need hardly state that such an unforeseen and heavy reduction of my salary, without any fault on my part, is a most undeserved hardship, and in my own case entails serious monetary inconvenience in the absence of any compensation by way of increase of salary, which might have lessened in some respect the embarrassment inevitably resulting from the pecuniary loss of income sustained by me.

You will pardon me, I feel assured, for adding that, after twenty-seven years faithful and zealous service, I am not unreasonable in asking the Honorable the Minister of Justice may be pleased to increase my reduced income of £340 on the Estimates of this year by such amount as he may think may justly meet the merits of my case.

I have, &c.,

EDWD. W. BYRNE,

The Under Secretary of Justice to The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Wagga Wagga.

Sir,

Department of Justice, Sydney, 21 February, 1889.

With reference to your letter of the 13th instant, in which you apply for an increase of salary in lieu of the fees taken away by the Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act, I am directed by the Minister of Justice to inform you that the matter of fees of Clerks of Petty Sessions cannot be considered at present, but that all such cases as yours will be fully dealt with as soon as possible.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Newtown, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Newtown, 5 March, 1889.

Referring to my representation to T. K. Abbott, Esq., S.M., with regard to the painful position in which I am placed, through the resumption by the Government of the Small Debts fees and fees for affidavits, I have the honor earnestly to submit that the Clerks of Petty Sessions at Redfern, Balmain, North Shore, and Newtown, respectively, be included in the increases of salary in the Estimates for this year as well as the gentlemen holding similar posts in the metropolitan offices. Last year (1888) the Small Debts fees and fees for affidavits returned from this office amounted to £452 17s. 6d. I therefore beg that our salaries may be increased as well as those of the Clerks of Petty Sessions in the Sydney Courts.

I have, &c.,

FRANK S. FIELDER,

Clerk of Petty Sessions.

I submit this confidently as a matter that should, for justice sake, receive favourable consideration. The officers referred to are more than doubly as hard-worked as those at the Central and Water Police Courts, and yet it is proposed to increase the salaries of the latter, and leave the others as they were. I do hope a sense of justice may be shown in dealing with these matters. Either the reduction was good and should be made to hold good all round or it was a mistake to make the reductions at all.—T.K.A., S.M., B.C., C.P.S., 25/3/89.

Memo.—Submitted.

Department of Justice, Sydney, 27 March, 1889.

The question of compensation to Clerks of Petty Sessions for loss of fees is now being carefully looked into in this office, and information is being procured which will assist the Minister in dealing with the whole matter.

A.C.F.

Mr. Fielder may be informed of the above. I shall be glad to receive the information necessary to deal with these cases as early as practicable.—A.J.G., 27/3/89. Mr. Fielder informed, 28/3/89.

The Acting Clerk of Petty Sessions, Michelago, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Michelago, 23 March, 1889.

Referring to the "Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act of 1887," 50 Vic. No. 32, I have the honor to ask if the fees received by the Registrars of the Small Debts Courts, 10 Vic. No. 10, sec. 6, are intended to be included in the payments to Consolidated Revenue under the provisions of the Act cited above; if so, what allowance will be made for the stock of forms on hand at the commencement of the Act, which I procured at my own expense from the Government Printer?

The following are the forms on hand at this office:—Plaints, 5 dozen; summonses, 5 dozen; Copy summonses, 5 dozen; Subpœna to Witness, 7 dozen; Notice of Defence, 2 dozen; Executions, 3 dozen; Attachments, 4 dozen.

I am, &c.,

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Junee, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Court-house, Junee, 17 April, 1889.

I have the honor most respectfully to make application for an increase to the salary I am receiving as Clerk of Petty Sessions at Junee, and in doing so, beg to invite your attention to the annexed copies of letters received by me from your Department, dated 8th September and 23rd December, 1887.

Since the receipt of these letters I am, by the operation of the Clerks of Petty Sessions Fees Act, suffering a loss of from £50 to £60 per annum—the fees paid by me under this Act into the Consolidated Revenue Fund for last month amounting to £6 6s.

Looking at my position from a pecuniary point of view, I am far worse off than when promoted to Junee some four and a half years ago, although the business has rapidly increased, and still increasing.

Being a Magistrate I am continually called upon to adjudicate in the cases brought before the court, and in view of this fact in 1885, Mr. Cohen (then Minister of Justice) would have granted me an increase of salary had it not been that at that time regular yearly statutory increases were provided by the "Civil Service Act."

Upon my present salary I find it impossible to maintain myself and large family as my position in the town requires, and under the circumstances referred to I respectfully ask that you will be pleased to give my case your most favourable consideration.

I have, &c.,

ALFRED ELLIOTT,
Clerk of Petty Sessions.

We respectfully recommend that the within application should receive the favourable consideration of the Minister of Justice. In our opinion Mr. Elliott is a most deserving officer, and should either get an increase of salary or promotion to a higher office.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Moss Vale, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Police Court, Moss Vale, 8 May, 1889.

Having received permission from the Minister of Justice, on his granting me an interview on the 19th ultimo, to state in writing my request for consideration of my claim for an increase of salary, I beg to state as follows:—

On the opening of the Court of Petty Sessions at Moss Vale, in 1879, I undertook the office of Clerk of Petty Sessions, and received a yearly salary of £50. In January, 1882, it was increased to £150, and subsequently, on appointment as Registrar of the District Court, to £200 in 1885. A further increase of £20 per annum was granted under the Civil Service Act for two years, leaving the salary at £240 and fees worth from £50 to £60 per annum. The latter having been taken away, the salary is reduced to £240, less 4 per cent., leaving the net income about £229 a-year, instead of £350, had no reduction been made.

I respectfully beg to mention that in 1887 I was duly appointed, by Governor in Council, a Police and Stipendiary Magistrate, and performed the duties for nearly twelve months during the absence of the Berrima Police Magistrate on leave, and acting as Stipendiary in Sydney. For so acting I received no salary or allowance of any kind. Some time after, the Minister (Mr. Clarke) requested me to return this Commission, which I supposed had been given to me instead of remuneration.

Having served under above circumstances for nearly ten years, I would beg that my case may receive consideration from the Minister, with a view to my receiving an increase of salary or promotion to a Police Magistracy.

The average number of cases before the Moss Vale Court is as follows:—Summons cases, 220; small debts, £200; District Court, £150, in addition to all licensing business, &c., in Berrima district.

I trust that the Minister of Justice will kindly consider my application, and that my letter may be submitted to him.

The Clerk of Petty Sessions, Cowra, to The Under Secretary of Justice.

Sir,

Cowra, 14 May, 1889.

I have the honor to request that you would submit for the favourable consideration of the Minister the following facts:—

Upon my appointment here the salary was reduced to £300 from £390 per annum, and the assistant's services, for which he had been paid £183 per annum, dispensed with, a month prior to my appointment, thus affecting a saving of £270 per annum.

The fees also have been taken away, making a total saving of about £300.

My salary in Sydney was £255 per annum. Out of the increase, £45 per annum, £20 is absolutely lost to me, as I am compelled to pay that amount more here for house-rent than when residing near Sydney, the rents here being excessive.

I am a married man, and find that the necessaries of life are more expensive, on the whole, at this distance from the metropolis.

The duties of my present office are far more onerous and responsible than they were before, and the revenue is still the same as that derived through this office during the period of my predecessors holding office here—Mr. Smith, who, with his assistant, received £573 and fees per annum.

Under

Under these circumstances, I would ask respectfully that £20 of the £90 taken from the actual salary might be added to my present salary of £300 per annum, to recoup me for the amount (£20) that I am compelled to pay over and above what I paid for house-rent near Sydney, for the same class of house.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MRS. CUNYNGHAME, LATE MATRON-SUPERINTENDENT OF PARRAMATTA ASYLUM.

(PAPERS RESPECTING REMOVAL OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 2 May, 1889.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 16th April, 1889, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers having reference to the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, together with a printed copy of the report of the General Asylum Board on this question.”*

(Mr. Grahame.)

The Director of the Government Asylums to The Principal Under Secretary.

Department of Charitable Institutions,

Sir,

Begg-street, Paddington, 14 November, 1888.

I regret to state that it is my duty, in the interests of the Public Service, and in consideration of the welfare of the inmates of Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, to request the Colonial Secretary to consider the propriety of removing Mrs. Cunyngame, Matron-Superintendent of that Institution, from her office. I need hardly say that I have adopted this extreme course with considerable pain, and only under a strong sense of responsibility to the Government for the safe and efficient management of the Asylums which have been committed to my direction and control.

2. The grounds upon which I consider Mrs. Cunyngame's removal to be necessary are—

- (1.) Harshness to inmates.
- (2.) Neglect of duty.
- (3.) Repeated disobedience of orders.
- (4.) General untruthfulness.

3. Soon after my appointment as Director I ascertained that the Superintendent disallowed the issue of tobacco to all hospital inmates for no other reason than that they occasionally spat upon the floors—an objection which was obviated by proper provision after she had been compelled to grant this great comfort to the sick. Then I found that for most trifling offences men were sent up daily to the Visiting Medical Officer for transmission to me for punishment, until he protested, and I refused to receive further complaints. In one instance the tobacco of a blind man was stopped for a week by the Superintendent's orders, and the punishment would have continued indefinitely if I had not discovered it, because an attendant had found a louse upon the old man's collar—an offence for which he should not have been held responsible, in view of his infirmity. Although this treatment may not seem actively cruel, still, as an indication of the Superintendent's general conduct and bearing, it shows her utter want of sympathy with the inmates, towards whom, I have noticed, and so has the Medical Officer, that her manner of address and intercourse is uniformly harsh and tyrannical. On

* The evidence (which is very voluminous) in connection with this Report was laid upon the Table of the House on 11th May, 1887.

On November 2nd, a man 68 years of age, named Samuel Hayselder, was sent from Sydney to Macquarie-street with an admission order under a certificate from the Health Board that he was suffering from "debility and senile decay." The Superintendent says that he was drunk when he arrived, and had lost his order. She therefore turned him out, and recommended him to go to the police. The man walked to the lock-up within half an hour, and the Police Sergeant, the Lock-up Keeper, and a Magistrate, who all at once saw him, state that he was quite sober, but very feeble from old age and illness. Admitting that the man had lost his order, his rejection, under the circumstances, was inhuman, and might have led to serious results; and the Superintendent in this instance disobeyed an instruction which I had given that every case of seeming distress was to be admitted and reported to me pending immediate inquiry into its merits. In another case a man admitted on police application was declared by the Superintendent to be drunk, and she placed him in the refractory ward all night. Inspector Latimer and his officers declare that this man was quite sober. I have no doubt that in one instance the applicant was stated to be drunk as an excuse for his rejection, and in the other because the Superintendent had quarrelled with the police authorities, and consequently sought to prevent them from presenting men for admission in future, as she had made this proposal to me, and I had refused to consent to it.

4. The Superintendent has systematically neglected her duty by not going through the wards after dark; by trusting to inmates to receive and pass stores, in defiance of orders to the contrary; by not reporting thefts of medical comforts from the sick; and, in one grave instance, by conniving at the escape of the thief—an inmate-attendant named Cooke—who had throughout several weeks stolen porter, spirits, and wine from hospital patients.* On being found out this man was allowed to leave the asylum to "report himself" at the Sydney office, instead of the matter being at once reported to me by the Superintendent, or the man being handed over to the police. He, of course, never came to the office, and the whole occurrence was concealed from me until I was informed by a patient, when an inquiry took place, and the Superintendent admitted it. I had previously instructed her not to entrust these stimulants to inmates for distribution; if she had obeyed this order the thefts could not have occurred, and the patients would not have suffered. Some cases of neglect have also been brought under my attention (indeed I have myself seen them) which the Superintendent was quite unaware of, but must have discovered if she had paid ordinary attention to her duties; as, for example, a man dying for two days in a ward adjoining her own quarters without her even knowing that he was ill; and again, a consumptive inmate being left without medical comforts for three days, because she was not aware that he should be submitted to the doctor. I noticed this man when passing through the hospital at 8 p.m., and sent for the Superintendent, who admitted that his condition was most serious, and at once proceeded to procure him wine. Indeed the Superintendent seems to have delegated her whole responsibilities with regard to the sick to inmate-attendants, and the Visiting Medical Officer, who appears to have been content to do double duty, until I called upon him for a report, which I have attached, marked "A." Under this system, during his absence at other institutions, patients were of course neglected by the responsible resident official, who simply did not know anything about them.

5. Ten weeks ago the Superintendent asked me to allow her to have an able-bodied inmate as her own private servant. As the concession was not generally granted, I declined. The request could only have been made to mislead me, as at that time she concealed from me that she had four inmates exclusively employed as private servants—one as cook, one designated "butler," and two at general house work—while frequently a fifth inmate was similarly employed; and these men were allowed to ration themselves from the Government stores without oversight under a system which, when I discovered it, had for a long time led to serious misappropriation of provisions. The cook was allowed to go into the general kitchen when meat and other provisions arrived, and take without check such quantities as he thought necessary for himself and fellow-servants. Thus, instead of receiving 4lb. (the full ration weight) of meat daily, the man stated in Mrs. Cunyngame's presence, and she did not venture to deny it, that he usually helped himself to joints weighing from 9 lb. to 10 lb., and several disinterested inmates—including the Asylum cooks—variously estimated the weight at from 12 lb. to 15 lb. And in the same manner private servants received without check their daily allowance of tea, sugar, and other household necessaries. After holding an inquiry into this matter in her presence, I forwarded her a memorandum in which I directed her to discharge all private inmate-servants into the general division, and to discontinue taking Government rations into her private quarters. Upon visiting the Institution at 7 a.m. five days afterwards, I found that no notice whatever had been taken of my direction. I saw the Superintendent's inmate-cook help himself to more than a double ration of meat for four men; and I saw an inmate (despite my instruction to the contrary) receive and pass the meat from the contractor. Mrs. Cunyngame did not enter the kitchen for the first time that day until half an hour subsequently, when I sent for her, and then I ascertained that she never inspected the meat before it was passed for use.

6. As a further example of Mrs. Cunyngame's want of consideration for sick inmates, and of her continued disobedience of orders, I mention that Dr. Violette directed that an inmate named Cummings, who suffered from phthisis, should be sent to the Hospital for Consumptives at Liverpool for special treatment. This man chanced to be a good cook, and the Superintendent had employed him in her kitchen, where he usually had to cook for twelve or thirteen persons daily. Two weeks afterwards the doctor reported to me that his orders had been disregarded, and I ordered the man to be removed at once. Five days subsequently I found Cummings still employed in the Superintendent's kitchen, and she then excused herself for this further disregard of orders by saying that she had persuaded the doctor to allow the man to remain a few days longer until she could employ another cook.

7. The serious charge of general untruthfulness is fully borne out. Mrs. Cunyngame has, for instance, reported that she personally received and passed all provisions, and supervised the distribution of medical comforts, when she did neither. Again, when carrying out certain changes tentatively, I warned her not to make them public until I had tested results and reported them officially. When they began to operate successfully I saw a paragraph in the Herald fully describing them. I called upon her for an explanation, and she telegraphed that the information had been furnished by inmates; and in a subsequent report she repeated that statement fully. I know that it could not be true, and I gave her a full opportunity of setting herself right, but she persisted in it. At that time I had proofs in my possession that she had herself dictated the paragraph to an Asylum clerk, had signed it, and supplied it to the newspaper newspaper reporter. This may possibly be regarded as a small matter, but it is an example of the disingenuousness which characterises the Superintendent's general conduct; and the Medical Officer and I feel that with such an unreliable official there is no certainty that something may not one day happen at the Macquarie-street Asylum of a nature to cause a public scandal. The paid subordinates have informed me that they have been afraid to report instances of neglect and unkindness in the sick-wards on the part of inmate-attendants, because the Superintendent has practically shown them by her treatment subsequently that such information was not acceptable.

* See Medical Officer's report on this matter (attached).

8. I beg to apologise for the length of this report; but the matter at issue is of so much importance that I felt it could not be dealt with more briefly.

I have, &c.,

SYDNEY MAXTED,

Director of Government Asylums.

Sir,

No. 4, Ashton Terrace, Argyle-street, Parramatta, 5 November, 1888.

In reply to your communication of the 6th instant, requesting me to state, for your information, my opinion of the Matron-Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum, in her conduct towards the inmates in general, and in her capacity as Superintendent of the Hospital wards, I beg to state that, in many instances, she has appeared to me to have acted with undue severity and harshness in pursuing a delinquent for punishment—her discipline is very arbitrary, and in several instances a vindictive spirit seems to have prompted her actions.

Speaking generally, from my own experience, I have found her to be shifty and evasive in her dealings—untruthful on several occasions—in fact, I have no confidence in her whatever.

Many complaints have been made to me with regard to the distribution of medical comforts in the hospital wards. The supervision of the inmate-attendants was so unsatisfactory on my taking over medical charge of the Institution that, as soon as I became acquainted with the defects of the system, I applied for two paid wardmen to supervise the inmate-attendants, and to instruct them how to discharge their duties, as well as to care for the more urgent cases. These wardmen were ordered to be engaged by the Colonial Secretary, Sir Henry Parkes. The Matron's duties now are consequently those of Superintendent alone, no work in the wards being necessary on her part. Several instances of misappropriation of medical comforts and negligence in the care of the sick on the part of the inmate-attendants have been brought under notice by one of the wardmen, but no action to punish the offender or to prevent a recurrence of the offence has been taken by the Superintendent.

Referring to paragraph 3 of your communication, I would respectfully suggest that a code of rules and regulations be drafted for the staff and inmates, and that the inmates be classified as—I, incapable; II, fit for light work; III, fit for work; so as to secure the comfort of the inmates and the harmonious working of the Institution.

Enclosed I beg to offer for your perusal the rules and regulations of Bristol Poor Law Incorporation.

I have, &c.,

W. BRADLEY VIOLETTE.

Sydney Maxted, Esq.,

Director of Government Asylums, Sydney.

Rules and regulations are in course of preparation, and they provide fully for a classification of inmates, but unfortunately this classification cannot be effected until additions are made to all existing buildings. Some such additions have been asked for.—S.M., 12/11/88.

Sir,

No. 4, Ashton Terrace, Argyle-street, Parramatta, 22 October, 1888.

On making my usual visit to the Macquarie-street Asylum yesterday morning several of the patients in the hospital wards made complaints to me that the medical comforts I had ordered for them were not issued on Saturday last. One of them, J. Kerry, stated that he was induced to drink beer, in lieu of his ordinary comfort, on the remark of a lady visitor that he would get that or nothing. Another, James Boucher, complained that his malady had been aggravated by the beer supplied to him in lieu of his ordinary medical comfort.

This morning, James Nimmo complained to me that Mrs. Cunyngame had overwhelmed him with abuse, and had threatened to discharge him, for his having dared to bring the matter under my notice. Nimmo also stated that Mrs. Cunyngame visited the ward yesterday and served out portions of a sucking-pig or a joint of pork, saying that was her own treat to the men, and making sneering and defamatory remarks about the Quong Tart feast.

I also have to complain of Mrs. Cunyngame having called in Dr. Phillips to pronounce an opinion on inmates Bannan and McCovern without my knowledge or sanction.

In the case of M^r Govern she is desperately anxious to get rid of him, in consequence of his having been connected with several others, now dispersed, in making a statement that the medical comforts were stolen and carried out of the hospital by means of a window leading from No. 3 Ward to the premises occupied by Mrs. Cunyngame. In my opinion this statement was never disproved.

I respectfully ask you to give these matters your early attention, as I could never tolerate my orders and treatment being set aside by the Matron-Superintendent.

Suspension of Mrs. Cunyngame, Matron-Superintendent, Macquarie-street Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, at Parramatta.

HAVING found it necessary to suspend Mrs. Cunyngame from her office as Matron-Superintendent, Macquarie-street Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, at Parramatta, on account of the misconduct recorded in the accompanying papers, I advise that action be taken in the matter in accordance with the provisions of Section 33 of the Civil Service Act, 1884.

Madam,

Executive Council Office, Sydney, 23 November, 1888.

I am directed to inform you that His Excellency the Governor, under the advice of the Executive Council, has approved of your suspension from official duty, in consequence of serious charges of misconduct in your management of the Institution, as fully set forth in the Report of the Director of the Government Asylums, a copy of which I enclose.

I am now to request that you will furnish me, within seven days from this date, with such explanation of the complaints set forth in Mr. Maxted's report as you may wish to offer, and show cause why you should not be removed from the Service.

I have, &c.,

ALBX. C. BUDGE,
Clerk of the Council.

The Matron-Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, to The Clerk of the Executive Council.

Sir,

Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, 29 November, 1888.

I have the honor to hand in herewith my answers, statements, testimonials, and explanations, as directed by you, to the various charges contained in Mr. Maxted's report, forwarded to me by you a few days ago.

I have, &c.,

S. CUNYNGHAME.

[Enclosures.]

Answer to the Director of Asylums re the suspension of Mrs. Cunynghame.

I HAVE the honor respectfully, in answer to your report on my conduct as Matron-Superintendent of Macquarie-street Asylum to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, and your recommendation for my removal from that Institution, to state—

1. That I have never been unduly harsh to any of the inmates under my charge, but have only exhibited that firmness which is absolutely necessary to discipline in an Institution of the kind, and to that I am sure the respectable portion of the inmates will willingly testify.

2. I am unaware of any neglect of duty on my part.

3. Nor am I conscious of any repeated disobedience of orders so far as it was possible on my part to at once carry into execution any direction given me. On the contrary, it has always been my aim to devote myself to the work of the Institution, and the carrying out of any fresh orders or regulations that may have been issued under the new directorate.

4. I am quite at a loss to understand how my character for truthfulness has been called in question by the Director, inasmuch as it has never before been impugned by any manager, officer, or official connected with the Asylum, or by any of the many visitors to it.

Referring to paragraph 3, tobacco was never issued to inmates of hospital wards, and could not therefore have been discontinued by me as a punishment to the inmates, as alleged by the Director. The Institution was started in 1876 under hospital rules, it then being for crisyipelas patients only, and up to the time that Mr. Maxted gave the order for the supply of tobacco to the hospital wards it was never issued in those wards except as a medical comfort by order of the doctor.

Dr. Violette never protested or spoke to me concerning the matter of men being brought up for trifling offences, neither did the Director ever refuse to receive any complaint made by me. I have occasionally found it necessary, in compliance with an old Asylum custom, to punish inmates for neglect of duty, disobedience, &c., by the stoppage of tobacco. To maintain discipline, as well as to secure the cleanliness of the inmates and of the wards, I have occasionally been obliged to have recourse to this very slight mode of punishment. It surely cannot be urged against me that I exhibited an utter want of sympathy with the inmates in my anxiety for their welfare and cleanliness of the inmates and the Institution.

I fail to understand how either the Director or the doctor can describe my "manner of address and intercourse as uniformly harsh and tyrannical" to the inmates, inasmuch as only upon one occasion have I been permitted by the Director to accompany him through the Institution, and by the doctor never.

I am certain that throughout the building I am held in very different estimation by the inmates generally.

On the 2nd November, 1888, Samuel Heyselden presented himself at the Asylum for admission in a state of intoxication, and without an order. His pockets were searched by the head wardman and messenger, but none was to be found. As my orders have always been imperative not to admit applicants in a state of intoxication or without an order (except under special circumstances), I directed the applicant to go to the watch-house for protection, telling him I would admit him in the morning, which, in fact, I did.

I presume the second case referred to by Mr. Maxted to be that of William Bannen, who was brought to the institution at nearly midnight on 29th September, 1888, in charge of the police. The clerk came and roused me up, when I directed him to go to Attendant Edgar to take charge of him, and place him in No. 3 hospital ward, and in the event of his being taken ill to inform the doctor. At the doctor's daily visit on the following morning he entered in the prescription-book, opposite Bannen's name, "Alcoholism—Isolation ward." I have made it an invariable rule to refuse admission to any man visibly under the influence of drink, knowing that it was necessary to secure the good order of the Institution. I could not admit inmates at the will or caprice of the police authorities. If refusing admission to the Asylum of drunken men is to be construed into a quarrel with the police, I must admit being at fault. The proposal I made to the Director was, that a police officer should meet certain trains and take charge of any applicants arriving at the station, this being merely a revival of an old custom.

4. I have not been in the habit of late, at all events, of systematically going through the wards after dark, as there are two paid attendants whose business it was, as I deemed, to report any case of sudden illness, misbehaviour, or otherwise requiring my presence. This was actually their practice, and at all hours of the night when occasion required.

I have not trusted to inmates to receive and pass stores, as the contractors will themselves prove. The stores, such as meat, bread, &c., have always been taken out of the cart whilst I attended, and passed or rejected, as the case might be.

The case of the inmate John Cook, who left on the 4th of September, was fully inquired into by Dr. Violette and myself, and I am of opinion that Attendant Edgar was much to blame in not reporting the circumstance to me immediately instead of waiting, as he said, "until he had a good case against Cook." I had no legal power to restrain Cook in the Asylum, as he refused to remain after I turned him into the yard, pending a visit from the Director. As Matron-Superintendent I had no power to hand Cook over to the police until a prima facie case was established, and I had received instructions from the Director; and I doubt very much if the police would have entertained such a charge had I made it.

I may mention that the two chief witnesses in the case were M'Govern and another imbecile (Peter Jorkensen), the latter of whom was found a few days after selling his medical comforts (porter), for which the doctor stopped the supply. The practice of distributing medical comforts by inmate-attendants exists, I believe, in other similar institutions. I did not, therefore, think that I was in error in utilizing (as I supposed) trustworthy inmates for the purpose of assisting in this and other matters, the more so as I have not the assistance of a sub-matron, whilst the superintendents of other asylums are provided with matrons and assistant sub-matrons. As to the alleged cases of neglect, I think it would be only fair to me on the part of the Director if he would furnish the names of the cases alluded to in his report.

5. I have no desire to mislead anyone. I was simply waiting until a suitable person for my requirements was at liberty before I parted with the servants I had employed about the house—a privilege allowed me for years past. The accommodation in the house being so scanty, and the Asylum being specially for men, I have always found it a difficult matter to keep a suitable staff of female servants. With regard to the alleged misappropriation of provisions, I have been long compelled from motives of prudence, owing to the close proximity of my residence to a yard containing 200 men, to refrain, as much I could, from introducing female labour, and in consequence availed myself of the services of those inmates (never exceeding three) whom I found willing and suitable.

These inmates certainly draw their rations from the general kitchen, but though the allotted quantity might be exceeded on one day, a day and perhaps two would elapse before another allowance was drawn, so that in reality their average Government allowance was never exceeded.

6. With regard to the inmate named Felix Cummings, suffering from phthisis, the doctor entered in the Medical Register on the 13th October—"Transfer to Liverpool." I obtained from the Sydney office his pass and admission order for the same. He begged my permission to remain a few days longer, and Dr. Violette entered in the Medical Register—"Remain here another month." He left for Liverpool on the 12th November.

7. As to the grave charge made against me by the Director of general untruthfulness and deceit, which he repeated to me in the presence of the lady in charge of the Institution (Mrs. Brook), I respectfully contend that he has failed to make good his unwarrantable accusation, which I insist must be more fully inquired into. My character for truthfulness, kindness, and general ability in superintending an Asylum which from the very nature of it must contain many discontented, ill-affected, and ill-conditioned persons has been known for many years, and without hesitation I beg most respectfully to submit that the report of the Director is overdrawn, and founded on hearsay and untrustworthy evidence, and cannot be substantiated, while the memorandum of the Medical Officer can only be characterised as being contrary to fact, exhibiting, I regret to see, an evident animus against me, and altogether in direct opposition to his behaviour and language to me, which have been of the most friendly character.

The paid subordinates have spoken contrary to fact when they informed the Director they had been afraid to report instances of neglect and unkindness. I have always been willing to hear their reports, and have always encouraged the attendants to report to me at all times any cases (night or day) that required my presence or attention. I am sorry to have to say that I have experienced great difficulty with one, at least, of them, whose behaviour amounted almost to insubordination, evidencing, as it did, a desire to act in opposition to my wishes, and not to take orders from me as Superintendent. This was most prejudicial to the well-working of the Institution. I consider that the duties defined by me for the hospital attendants were in accordance with the objects for which they were engaged, and would not allow them to interfere with the dormitories or the yard, knowing if they did their duty in caring for the sick they would find employment for all their time, and I checked them on several occasions, and had repeated interviews with them on the subject.

The charges made against me are so sweeping and so utterly untrue that I feel bound in justice to demand, with all respect, that a more searching investigation be made, which will afford me an opportunity of rebutting not only this, but other charges preferred against me, and of producing evidence to support the statements I have made.

S. CUNYNGHAME.

Reply to the Medical Officer's Report.

REFERRING to the Medical Officer's Report "A," bearing date 8th November, 1888, I beg most respectfully to express my surprise and pain that Dr. Violette should have written to the Director of Asylums in such disparaging terms of me as Matron-Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum.

As a matter of justice to myself, I think I am warranted in requesting that that gentleman be called upon to specify some, at least, of the "many instances" in which I "have acted with undue severity and harshness in pressing a delinquent for punishment," and in which of "several" instances a vindictive spirit seems to have prompted my actions; also to specify upon what occasions, "speaking from his own experience," has he "found me to be shifty and evasive in my dealings—untruthful on several occasions—in fact, to have no confidence in me whatever." This statement is so utterly at variance with the professed friendship of the Medical Officer, and his expressed surprise on my informing him of my suspension, when he assured me that he had nothing to do with it, and that no inquiries had been made of him, that I cannot but regard it as a statement in which the Government cannot, nor ought not, to place any credence whatever. Not only to myself, but to others, has Dr. Violette expressed himself in very different terms as regards myself and my conduct as Matron-Superintendent.

I am quite at a loss to understand what can have caused this sudden change on the part of the doctor.

Referring to Dr. Violette's letter to Mr. Maxted, bearing date 22nd October, 1888, Dr. Violette describes me as "desperately anxious" to get rid of M'Govern in consequence of his having been connected with several others, now dispersed, in making a statement that the medical comforts were stolen, &c. I am surprised that Dr. Violette ventures to make so utterly unfounded an assertion about me, and to impute to me such unworthy and dishonest motives. Dr. Phillips's memorandum on this matter will, I think, utterly disprove this most unfair and ungenerous statement.

Referring to the Medical Officer's report about Nimmo. On the 22nd October I forwarded to the Director particulars of Nimmo's case, of which the following is a copy (extract from diary):—"Sir,—I have the honor to call your attention to the following memorandum left by the doctor in the prescription-book. I regret being absent this morning at the time of the doctor's visit, leaving Parramatta at 10.25 a.m. and returning at 4.30 p.m., and feel grieved that he did not send for me before writing them:—

"James Kerry complains of the non-issue of the stimulant ordered for him yesterday, and he was ordered to drink beer on the order that if he did not he would get nothing else."

"Lady Visitors."

"James Nimmo."

"John Bowcher, idem, malady aggravated in consequence thereof." The spirits were retained by me in consequence of the feast, at the same time stating that if they preferred their stimulants I would issue them later on in the day. (This stoppage of medical comforts is an old custom, always resorted to on feast-days, when beer has been freely issued.) I visited the hospital, giving all the patients in the cancer ward their stimulants about 5 p.m., but found them all asleep and quiet in Nos. 1, 2, and 3 hospital wards, and I did not disturb them. In this matter I think there is a little misunderstanding between the doctor, myself, and the attendants.

This morning, opposite James Nimmo's name, is written "complaints of abusive language from the Matron-Superintendent."

A few days ago this inmate was talking to me about the manner in which the food was cooked, at the same time stating that he was a cook, and was well able to do the work, but would not do it under £2 a week. I then said to him, "You are a pauper, and cannot take the situation." On Wednesday, 16th instant, he complained of his curry, the cook (an inmate) having made a mistake dividing the thyme and marjoram, putting half into the curry and half into the soup, thus giving the curry a peculiar appearance. On Sunday morning I had occasion to visit the hospital wards, distributing that which was left at the feast. A lady friend who was with me remarked, "Is that young man ill?" I thought he was "suffering from a disease called impudence," he at the time talking a great deal, saying that lemonade had been sent and drunk by other people, which was not true. I may mention that two ladies accompanied me to the hospital wards (Mrs. Payton and Mrs. Claude Gale), and the matter had been fully dealt with, and I considered satisfactorily settled.

James M'Govern.—"The Director &c Matron-Superintendent and Dr. Phillips."—I enclose copy of Dr. Phillips's memo. respecting this man. Dr. Violette entered in the Medical Register, on 19th October, opposite M'Govern's name—"Statement in reference to papers in his swag about proprietorship of land, &c."

"Wm.

"Wm. Carlon, aberration of intellect; send for Dr. Phillips." I at the time said to Dr. Violette, "As Dr. Phillips is coming to see Carlon, might I ask him to see M'Govern?" to which Dr. Violette assented.

Dr. Phillips, in consequence, saw M'Govern. I draw your attention to the statement in Dr. Phillips's letter, 26th November, 1888, as follows:—"To your second question, 'Did you seem anxious to get rid of M'Govern?' I can only answer, 'Certainly not.' After I had questioned him for a time you remarked, 'We can manage him all right, but I thought it better you should see him.' To this I assented, and nothing was done."

Regarding the case of John Cook (wardsman, 3 hospital), respecting which Dr. Violette says that "the statement was never disproved," I beg to furnish extract from diary of 3rd September, 1888:—"In consequence of a statement made by P. M'Carthy to Hospital Attendant Edgar, the charge being laid against John Cook, wardsman, No. 3 hospital (an inmate), of robbing the patients of their medical comforts, viz., rum, porter, and eggs, and selling the first named, the Superintendent made a thorough inquiry into it in the presence of Edgar, and so serious did she consider it that she asked the doctor to assist her in the investigation in the afternoon. This matter has been fully dealt with in paragraph 4 of my reply to Mr. Martell's report."

I have endeavoured to answer the Director's and Medical Officer's reports as concisely as the importance of the case permitted; and in conclusion I would again respectfully request, in my own interests as well as those of the general public, that a searching inquiry may be made into the whole matter, as I am confident that the Director has been misled by untruthful statements on the part of certain inmates.

S. CUNYNGHAME.

The following letter has reference to the case of Nimmo, entered into in the foregoing reply:—

"Dear Mrs. Cunyngname,

Darling Road, Balmain.

"I am very sorry you are in such trouble, but the incident you speak of is untrue. The Sunday yourself, Mrs. Paton, and I went round the wards and yard everything went off so remarkably well only for the man Nimmo. Mrs. Paton helped serve the beer. I was with you in the next ward when one of the attendants came and made the complaint that the lady visitor (meaning Mrs. Paton) said if the man Nimmo did not take beer he should not have anything. Mrs. Paton, you, and I returned to the ward. The man Nimmo said he did not say anything of the kind. The other men in the hospital and yard seemed very well satisfied with it all. I hope it will be all very satisfactorily cleared up, but it is very hard to deal with those who do not keep to the truth. I believe you to be perfectly truthful and straightforward, and I have every hope that those who are not so will be found out. Dear Mrs. Cunyngname, you have my best wishes for your children, husband, and dear self. Believe me to remain,—

"Yours very truly,

"JESSIE GALE.

"I will come and see you in two or three days."

Copies of Testimonials.

(1.)

To Miss Gibson (Mrs. Cunyngname).—

Botany Road, 28 October, 1870.

Having heard that you are about relinquishing an occupation in which you have served me for nearly three years, I cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing my opinion of your general character during that period. I always found you persevering and industrious, together with a most cheerful and willing disposition, and that with a respectful address, makes you, in my humble opinion, a very suitable person for the occupation you are about fulfilling. In conclusion, accept my sincere wishes for your future happiness.

JOHN G. GRIFFITHS.

Sydney Hospital, 10 September, 1873.

This is to certify that Sarah Gibson (Mrs. Cunyngname) was employed in this Institution for two and a half years. We found her to be honest, sober, clean, and respectable. She has been trained to nurse medical and surgical cases.

L. OSBORN.

Lower Fort-street, 22 January, 1874.

Will you kindly do what you can to obtain for Nurse Gibson (Mrs. Cunyngname) the office of sub-matron in connection with the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind Institution. I have known her for some time, and can confidently recommend her to you as one in every way fitted for the appointment which she now seeks to obtain. She bore the highest character when at the Sydney Infirmary for industry, sobriety of mind, kindness of disposition, and other excellent qualities, and was in fact one of the most efficient nurses belonging to that Institution. She has my best wishes, and I shall be glad to hear that her application has been successful.

I am, &c.,

THOS. W. UNWIN.

(4.)

My dear Mrs. Hay,

St. James' Parsonage, 22 January, 1874.

The bearer, Miss Sarah Gibson, (Mrs. Cunyngname), has requested me to give her a recommendation, and I have great pleasure in doing so. I have known her at the Sydney Hospital for the last three years, where she has proved herself to be not only an efficient nurse, but a steady, well-conducted, and obliging young person. I shall be very glad to hear that you have selected her for a sub-matron for the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind Institute.

I am, &c.,

R. ALLWOOD.

6, Lyons Terrace, 23 January, 1874.

SARAH GIBSON (Mrs. Cunyngname) has been known to me for two or three years as nurse and probationer in the Infirmary. She has been well trained in her business, and is, I believe, a thorough competent nurse. She has a cheerful manner, with a kind and obliging disposition, appears to be fond of children, and is, in my opinion, a very fit person to fill the post of Assistant Matron to the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind Institution.

G. FORTESCUE, B.M.

Sydney, 27 January, 1874.

I CERTIFY that the bearer, Sarah Gibson (Mrs. Cunyngname), was trained in the Sydney Infirmary in the surgical and medical wards for nearly three years during which time I believe she conducted herself to the entire satisfaction of myself and the honorary medical officers whose patients she had in charge, and I have no doubt she will do credit to herself at any Institution to which she may be attached.

CHARLES MACKAY, M.D.,

Hon. Surgeon, Sydney Infirmary.

(7.)

27 January, 1874.

I HAVE much pleasure in recommending Sarah Gibson (Mrs. Cunyngname) as a fit and proper person for the situation of Sub-matron of the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind Asylum. I have had constant opportunity of forming an opinion of her qualifications for such an office during three years' attendance at the Sydney Infirmary.

JAMES C. COX, M.D.

Cleveland-street, Redfern.

THE bearer of this, Sarah Gibson (Mrs. Cunyngname), I have known for many years. She was in the Sabbath-school connected with my charge for about ten years previously to her engagement at the Sydney Infirmary, and her deportment and character were invariably good. Since then I have been but little acquainted with her, but all that I have heard and observed has been in harmony with her earlier years. I believe that she is well qualified for the situation she seeks, and will be found an acquisition to the Institution.

WILLIAM SLATYER, Congregational Minister.

(9) Sydney Infirmary, 23 October, 1875.
 SARAH GIBSON (Mrs. Cunyngbame) was known to me as a nurse in the medical wards of the Sydney Infirmary. She was quick and intelligent in the execution of her duties, and she had a lively and agreeable manner with the patients. I believe her to be a well-trained and thoroughly competent nurse.

(10) Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, 26 December, 1877.
 Madam,
 I have been requested by a number of the inmates to express their thanks to you for the very excellent dinner provided for them yesterday under your management. Hoping that yourself and Mr. Cunyngbame may live to see many Christmas Days, and wishing you both all the compliments of the season,—

I beg to remain, &c.,

J. PULLBROOK,

Macquarie-street Asylum.

To Mrs. Cunyngbame, Matron.

(11.) Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, 31 December, 1878.
 To the Matron,—Madam,
 We cannot allow this year to pass without expressing to you our thanks for the unvarying kindness and attention you have invariably paid us. Your sympathy to the aged and sick has tended to cheer and soothe them when they had no one to look to or to take care of them. Therefore, we, the undersigned, on behalf of the inmates, wish you, Mr. Cunyngbame, and your family, "a happy new year," and may each succeeding one be more happy and prosperous than the last.

We are, &c.,

FREDK. T. ADAMS, Clerk.

HENRY SAMUEL, Head Wardsman.

 To the Matron,—Dear Madam,
 We, the undersigned, inmates of the above Institution, beg to tender you our sincere thanks for the invariable kindness and rectitude wherewith you have fulfilled your onerous duties as Matron of this Asylum, and wish you to accept this small token of our esteem and gratitude, trusting that you will long be spared to continue your kind offices, and wishing you, Mr. Cunyngbame, and family every happiness and prosperity.

We are, &c.,

WILLIAM CLARK, AND 123 OTHER INMATES.

(13.) 27 November, 1888.
 Dear Mrs. Cunyngbame,
 I am so sorry to hear of your suspension, and send you a line to express my sympathy with you. I have known you ever since you came to the Asylum, and have always considered you attentive to your duties, and kind in your treatment of the men under your charge.

I trust your suspension will soon be removed.

Yours, &c.,

W. J. GUNTHER.

(14.) Parramatta, 25 November, 1888.
 I HAVE known Mrs. Cunyngbame, of the Asylum in Macquarie-street, for many years. I have also been in the habit of visiting the Asylum, and I have every reason for thinking Mrs. Cunyngbame very attentive to the wants and comforts of the inmates.

WALTER BROWN, M.D.

(15.) Church-street, Parramatta, 27 November, 1888.
 Dear Madam,
 I have been the contractor for bread and flour to the Macquarie-street Asylum for about three years on and off, and have always found you very careful in receiving the bread and flour, which must be of the finest quality, or it would not pass. I may further state that on several occasions when dinners have been prepared by you, which would number about twenty-five large dishes, and when brought to my bakery for baking, I have often remarked that the way you had them made up was a credit to you, which goes to show the great interest you took in your Asylum.

I am, &c.,

JOHN W. UPTON.

(16.) Parramatta, 27 November, 1888.
 Memorandum from J. E. Kelly.
 It is with deep regret that I learned that you have been suspended from your position as above. Accept my sympathy, and I can testify that during the last twelve years, the greater time of which I have supplied the Institution with most of the goods required, that you have been most vigilant over the quantity and quality of the goods received, and any further testimony of such that I can give I shall only be too happy to do so.

(17.) Parramatta, 20 November, 1888.
 I CERTIFY that during the thirteen months I was employed by Mrs. Cunyngbame I never knew her to be away from her duties as Matron of the Macquarie-street Asylum, except during her illness in her confinement, especially since Mr. Maxted's appointment.

(18) New Year's Wishes.
 DEDICATED to Mrs. Cunyngbame, in memory of her great kindness to my late revered father, Mr. Thomas Boyce, who eight years ago was an inmate of the Erysipelas Ward, Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta.

Dear lady, for your kindly grace,
 And care for one whose stately face
 Sleeps lowly in the dust to-day,
 Accept these leaves of song I lay
 Before your shrine, and may this prove
 A glad New Year of peace and love.

Kind soother of the suffering breast,
 Friend of the humble and distressed,
 How high the path, how great the gain,
 What recompense for toil and pain,
 To know the warm well done will cheer
 The advent of this bright New Year.

May absolute contentment be
 A dweller 'neath your household free;
 May loving hearts with summer crowned
 Within your happy halls be found;
 And take, dear lady, 'ere we part,
 This offering from a stranger's heart.

MIMOSA.

St. Mary's, South Creek, New Year's Eve, 1886.

My dear Mrs. Cunynghame,

Ashfield, 29 November, 1888.

I was much surprised to see by the daily papers that you were suspended, and that you are accused of insubordination and untruthfulness. I can only think that you are considered to have acted in an insubordinate manner because you have failed to carry out some direction which you felt, from your experience as to the internal management of the Institution, would be subversive of discipline and the good order of the Asylum; but I am confident that you would not willingly commit any act which could fairly be considered insubordinate. I have known you for twelve years, in your present position, and of course, as Manager of the Asylums till the 31st December, 1887, had every opportunity of noticing your action, and I can safely assert that a more obedient, painstaking, and trustworthy officer could not be found in the Civil Service, while the skill with which you worked up the Erysipelas Hospital, which was started in 1875, to the large Asylum as it now stands, has been so apparent that it has elicited approval from all parties, and must assure the Government that in you they have a highly efficient and reliable officer.

I never knew you to be untruthful, and cannot believe for a moment that you would be guilty of deception, or would try to mislead those with whom you are connected.

Your kindness to the inmates and attention to their wants have been testified to so frequently by the old people of the Asylum, and by those who have had ample opportunities of observing your action, that I cannot think that you can be justly charged with harshness and vindictiveness towards those placed under your care.

Hoping that your suspension will be speedily recalled, and that you will be reinstated to a position which, in my opinion, you are so well qualified to fill,—

I remain, &c.,
FREDERIC KING.

Parramatta, 29 November, 1888.

REFERRING to a paragraph which appeared in the newspapers respecting the change of diet at the Macquarie-street Asylum, referred to in par. 7 of the statement of Mr. Maxted, I beg to state that Mrs. Cunynghame did not dictate the paragraph, nor in any way suggest anything in connection with it.

The idea of inserting anything in the newspaper having reference to the matter originated with me at the time that a paragraph was being prepared expressing gratitude on the part of the inmates for a supply of hams generously given them, and this bearing to some degree on the question of diet, I suggested that the world outside should know how great an improvement had been wrought in that direction, and myself dictated the paragraph.

I deny in toto that any one dictated the paragraph in question.

ALFRED HANSON,
Late Head Wardsman, Macquarie-street Asylum.

As Mrs. Cunynghame denies the charges that have been preferred against her by the Director of the Asylums and the Government Medical Officer, it would, I think, be as well to refer her statement to Mr. Maxted for further inquiry.—C.W., 3/12/88.

Mr. Maxted, for any remarks he may desire to make.—H.P., 3/12/88. The Director of the Government Asylums.—C.W., B.C., 3/12/88.

The Matron-Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, to The Clerk of the Executive Council.

Sir,

Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, 3 December, 1888.

Herewith I beg to enclose to you additional testimonials and letters of sympathy addressed to me and received by me since handing you the papers connected with my suspension on Friday last.

Will you have the goodness to attach them to the papers previously left with you.

I beg, &c.,
S. CUNYNGHAME.

[Enclosures.]

My dear Mrs. Cunynghame,

Church-street, Rookwood, 30 November, 1888.

We were very much surprised and grieved to hear that you had been suspended, and considering the nature of the charges brought against you we feel sure they are made without any foundation. And we remember when you took charge of the Macquarie-street Asylum as the Erysipelas Hospital it was a lot of dilapidated old sheds, and the rats ran about in all directions; but under your management these old sheds were not only made habitable, but clean, healthy, and comfortable, so much so that the Government made use of your skill and industry to relieve the overcrowded institutions of the Liverpool and Parramatta Asylums, and converted the Erysipelas Hospital into the Macquarie-street Asylum. And we also know that had you used your talents on your own behalf as you have used them for the Government you would now be an independent woman (we mean in the pecuniary sense). Some four or five months ago me and a friend of mine called to see an inmate of the Institution, and the remark he made to me after leaving was to this effect: "I do not regret Foltham going there, as he could not be more cared for at home, and his wife to nurse him." At any time that me and Mrs. R. have called to see you the management and care of the Institution seemed to engross your whole attention. And we feel sure that if the inquiry is conducted in a fair and proper spirit you will have no occasion to fear the result. And believe us, dear madam, we wish to remain your sincere friends,—

ROBERT AND EMILY ROBINSON.

Dear Mrs. Cunynghame,

Sydney Meat-preserving Company's Works, Auburn, 27 November, 1888.

We had a visit from our mutual friend Mr. Robinson on Sunday last, who told us that you were in some trouble with your superior officer. I trust we need hardly assure you that we were very sorry indeed to hear it, but hope it will soon blow over. One thing we can assure you: We shall never cease to feel grateful to you for your great kindness to me when I was so ill with erysipelas. By following your valuable advice I was saved a long doctor's bill, or what at the time would have been more probable a stay in the Parramatta Hospital, which by your skill and kindness was averted. Since then, on several occasions we have visited you, and on going out to have a smoke whilst you ladies were having a "confidential" have had many a chat with the inmates of the Asylum, who, as far as I have heard, have always spoken of your kindness and consideration, and I may add at the same time they were not aware that I was visiting you.

Trusting you will soon come out of the conflict with flying colours, allow us to assure you that none will rejoice more than,—

Yours very sincerely,
GEORGE AND MARY LESLIE.

Memorandum from C. Lakeman.

Dear Madam,

Parramatta, 1 December, 1888.

It is with extreme regret that I have seen through the papers that you have been suspended. I must say I have had many opportunities for several years past of seeing how strictly you have attended to your duties, both to the great benefit of inmates and all who have had to do business with you.

Trusting you will soon be reinstated,—

I remain, &c.,
C. LAKEMAN.

Madam,

Parramatta, 29 November, 1888.

Having seen by the paper that you have been suspended for neglect of duty, I have made inquiry from my carter, and he states that ever since I have been supplying the hospital with meat for Mr. L. Dunn you have always inspected the meat personally.

Hoping you will soon be reinstated,—

Yours truly,
WM. FINLAYSON.

The

The Director of the Government Asylums to The Principal Under Secretary.

Department of Charitable Institutions,
Begg-street, Paddington, 4 December, 1888.

Sir,

I have carefully read Mrs. Cunynghame's defence in the matter of her suspension, as requested by you, and it does not appear to me to in any sense explain away the charges preferred against her, but seems to consist mainly of allegations that the statements of myself, the Government Medical Officer, the paid officials of the Asylum, and the police authorities are untrue.

Several of the most serious charges have not been replied to at all, and where explanation has been made in other cases the statements in the defence are both inaccurate and misleading, as the office records clearly show, as well as being contrary to Mrs. Cunynghame's own admissions to me on the occasions of my numerous endeavours to keep her up to the performance of her duty, before resorting to the extreme course of recommending her removal from the Civil Service.

For example, the charges relative to men being in a dying state in hospital, without the Superintendent knowing they were ill, are not referred to in the defence, although I pointed out these cases personally to the Superintendent on the occasion of my discovery that one of these men had been left for three days without hospital comforts. And in the charges relating to Heyselder and Bannarc, who, she says, were intoxicated when presented for admission; to Cooke, the wardman who stole the medical comforts; to the alleged misappropriation of rations by her own inmate servants; and in several equally important matters referred to in the papers, the clearest proof possible is afforded, apart from my own and the Doctor's allegations, that her answers are altogether contrary to facts. The charge of disobedience of orders in reference to distribution of medical comforts by inmates is not denied; and the neglect to visit hospital wards is admitted, and attempted to be justified on the ground that attendants performed that duty. I am really in a position to show that the Superintendent never visited these wards at all for several months at a time.

2. I ought to mention that the Superintendent is in error in supposing that I have relied upon inmates' information. Knowing how unreliable that is generally supposed to be, I was careful to be guided only by my own observations, and by particulars furnished to me by the Medical Officer and paid officials of the Institution.

3. I think very little importance can be attached to the testimonials which the Superintendent has forwarded with her defence. My peculiar official experience has shown me how generously people afford this kind of help when requested; and with the exception of one from Mr. King, the late Manager of Government Asylums, and several from contractors for provision supplies, which it occurs to me are hardly in good taste, seeing that on several occasions I had to insist on provisions being returned (which the Superintendent had previously passed as being of good quality), because they were unfit for human food, the testimonials are from gentlemen who could not possibly know anything of the internal management of the Institution.

4. Since Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension a number of other irregularities at Macquarie-street Asylum have come to my knowledge; and several are of so grave a character—involving alleged misappropriation of moneys—that I deem it my duty to make them the subject of a further report.

I have, &c.,

SYDNEY MAXTED,

Director.

After perusing Mr. Maxted's further report, I do not see how Mrs. Cunynghame can be retained in her present position. The reports are now submitted for the decision of the Colonial Secretary.—C.W., 4/12/88. Minute to remove Mrs. Cunynghame from her office.—H.P., 4/12/88.

The Director of the Government Asylums to The Principal Under Secretary.

Department of Charitable Institutions,
Begg-street, Paddington, 4 December, 1888.

Sir,

I have the honor to report that since the suspension of Mrs. Cunynghame, Matron-Superintendent of Macquarie-street Asylum, further irregularities have come to my knowledge in connection with the management of that Institution which I consider sufficiently serious to bring under the attention of the Colonial Secretary.

2. I should first state that soon after my appointment I asked the Superintendent if she held any moneys belonging to inmates, and she informed me that she did not. I then directed that all collections from the men should be forwarded to the Sydney office, and this was done in a number of cases subsequently. On October 17 my order was repeated in writing. I mention this to show that the Superintendent fully understood what I meant with regard to these moneys. During the past few days a number of inmates have requested advances from sums which they alleged the Superintendent held belonging to them. Upon inquiring from Mr. Abbott, the clerk, I was informed that Mrs. Cunynghame had for a long period prior to my appointment collected money from inmates, which she had caused to be paid into her private account at the Australian Joint Stock Bank, and that a statement of these accounts, and also of advances made to the men from time to time, was contained in a small book which she had removed from the office since her suspension. Abbott had always kept this book, had filled up the deposit-slips for the Superintendent, and paid the money into her bank account. I sent to Mrs. Cunynghame for the book, and she returned instead merely a slip of paper representing that she held moneys of men now in the Asylum amounting to £33 7s. 9d., made up of seventeen sums named in the margin. No reference is made in this slip to any other than present inmates' accounts. I submitted the statement to Abbott, the clerk, and asked if it included all the amounts paid by him into Mrs. Cunynghame's bank account. He said it did not; that the missing book indicated balances to the credit of a dozen or more inmates now dead, which had never been forwarded to the office. I then again sent to Mrs. Cunynghame for the book, and she personally brought me the following memorandum:—

Sir,—I have already sent an account of moneys due the men by me, and prefer detaining the book until I have been further advised.—SARAH CUNYNGHAME.

The Superintendent also stated that the whole matter had nothing to do with the Government—that it was a private concern between herself and the inmates. The matter at this stage appeared to me to have assumed an aspect which made it desirable that the clerk should make a legal declaration with regard to his knowledge of these monetary transactions. This declaration is appended (marked A). On the 30th instant, acting under your instructions, an officer was sent to Mrs. Cunyngame with a notice intimating that I had been directed by you to notify that unless the book was handed over within twenty-four hours proceedings would be taken, and it was thereupon delivered to the messenger. I find that it shows the following balances to the credit of deceased inmates:—

Alexander Bowie... ..	4	0	4	John Maltby	4	17	6
Robt. C. Brown	0	15	0	James Spooner	0	4	0
C. Clifford	0	1	0	Alex. Carter	0	4	10
Carl Egia	2	2	0
W. James... ..	0	5	0
W. Mashetor	1	8	0

Some of these persons have been dead for several years; their accounts have been marked as closed in the book referred to; and it is stated that their balances have not been forwarded by the Superintendent for transmission to the Treasury. It therefore appears, so far as the matter can be now traced, that Mrs. Cunyngame holds altogether £47 5s. 5d., left by inmates, some of whom are deceased, for which she has not accounted in the usual way, although she informed me in August last that she had no such moneys.

2. On November 24 I was informed that a paralytic patient had been cruelly ill-used in hospital by a warder named M'Phee. I found the charge to be true, and at once expelled M'Phee from the institution. I asked Mrs. Cunyngame why she had not reported the matter, or recorded it as usual on the books. She first said it had occurred since her suspension, but on my pointing out that the assault had been committed eight days previously, she said it was not her business to take action—that the head wardsmen should have reported it to me.

3. Several weeks ago I directed the Superintendent to allow the inmates to remain up until 7 o'clock during the summer months, instead of sending them to bed at 6, as they had complained of the twelve hours' confinement in the bedrooms being irksome. She first objected on the ground that the change would upset the discipline of the place, but upon my giving a positive instruction, she apparently concurred. I have since found that no notice whatever was taken of my orders.

4. At that time I directed that poisonous lotions, which were left carelessly about the cancer ward, should be locked up, for reasons which, in their application to unfortunates who are seldom free from pain, are obvious; and I also directed that the Superintendent should occasionally superintend the use of these lotions by the wardsmen, who would, in that event, understand that they were under some kind of supervision, and that any want of attention to the sick would probably thus be detected. Both orders have been disregarded.

5. I had also questioned the Superintendent as to the manner in which the meat-bones and provision refuse were dealt with, with a view to selling them as at the other asylums. She assured me that the bones were required, and had always been used at the Institution farm, and that under my new dietary arrangement the refuse was so small as to be worthless. I have since discovered that both bones and refuse were regularly disposed of to her tenants at her farm; and no return whatever has been made to the Government.

6. I have further ascertained that one of the main charges preferred against Mrs. Cunyngame—namely, that in defiance of orders she used inmates as servants and rationed them at the Government cost has been so utterly disregarded that the men have remained in her quarters since her suspension; and have been sent for their meals to the Institution mess-room.

7. I also directed the Superintendent to allow the inmates to use occasionally for recreation purposes the grass plats within the quadrangle, instead of keeping so many men confined throughout the day in the unhealthy and limited space of the shelter shed. This order has been disregarded; but the grass plats have been used as a grazing ground for the Superintendent's horses.

8. When the Superintendent was suspended, I cautioned her, as I had done on previous occasions, not to give information to the newspapers pending the settlement of the matter. Notwithstanding this, a paragraph, which I have traced to her, has been published stating that she was suspended for not carrying out an order which could not be complied with in the interests of humanity.

9. I have directed Mrs. Cunyngame to make monthly musters of inmates, in order that I could check the numbers with the ration lists and see that men whose maintenance was charged for were actually in the Institution, as at another asylum I had found names on the books of persons who had not been inmates for years. Of this most important order, which was given both verbally and in writing, no notice whatever has been taken, so far as I can judge by the non-receipt of returns which were asked for.

10. Other charges of this character could be made if necessary. I know that some of them may appear trivial; and these are merely mentioned to indicate the Superintendent's continued contumacy and utter disregard of the authority which it is her duty to obey.

11. It is now necessary for me to ask for instructions in reference to the moneys which are detained. I respectfully suggest that the Superintendent may be directed to hand them over to me; and if that is done at once, perhaps a lenient view of the matter may be taken, and any further action in that particular matter considered unnecessary.

I have, &c.,
SYDNEY MAXTED,
 Director.

[Enclosure.]

A.

Parramatta, 29 November, 1888.

I, Peter Abbott, clerk at Macquarie-street Asylum, do hereby solemnly declare:—That Mrs. Cunyngame has been in the habit of receiving moneys to hold for inmates of Macquarie-street Asylum; the moneys were the property of such inmates, and were handed to Mrs. Cunyngame by me after their admission; these sums were entered by me in a small black book about three-quarters of an inch thick, containing an index; this book showed the state of each inmate's account; I have myself frequently paid these moneys into Mrs. Cunyngame's private account at the Australian Joint Stock Bank at Parramatta; I see the list purporting to be a statement of these accounts, now, at the request of the Director, initialled by me for identification; this list does not contain a statement of all the accounts contained in the book; the book contains a record of a great many many closed accounts; by closed accounts I mean the accounts of inmates who are dead, or who have been paid off and left the institution; I think the book may contain a statement of about a dozen or more accounts of inmates who are dead; one I particularly remember—that of Alexander Bowie, a pensioner, who had a balance to his credit at his death amounting to about £4; I used to pay Bowie's money repeatedly in to Mrs. Cunynghame's credit, after a portion had been deducted and forwarded for his maintenance to Mr. King; I remember the money of an inmate named Patrick M'Grath being forwarded to the Sydney office since the appointment of the present Director; M'Grath's money amounted from £12 to £14; I remember other sums than M'Grath's being forwarded in like manner; the following are recorded in the diary as having been forwarded:—On August 6, £2 to the credit of John Studdart; £4 17s. on account of quarterly pensions of Stephen Fowler and John Lackey; £1 5s., on 4th September, on account of John Lackey.

Declared before me, a Justice of the Peace, }
 this 20th day of November, 1888,— }
 OLIVER SAUNDERS, J.P. PETER C. ABBOTT.

Minute for the Executive Council.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 4 December, 1888.

Removal of Mrs. Sarah Cunynghame, Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, at Parramatta.

With reference to the suspension of Mrs. Sarah Cunynghame from the office of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, at Parramatta, I now feel it my duty, on perusal and consideration of the whole of the papers in the case, to recommend that Mrs. Cunynghame be removed from the Public Service.

HENRY PARKES.

Minute of the Executive Council.

AFTER careful consideration of the explanation offered by Mrs. Cunynghame of the charges made against her, the Executive Council now advise that she be removed from the Public Service.—ALEX. C. BUDGE, Clerk of the Council. Approved.—CARRINGTON, 4/12/88. Min. 88-57, 4/12/88. Confirmed, 13/12/88.

The Clerk of the Executive Council to Mrs. Cunynghame.

Madam, Executive Council Office, Sydney, 5 December, 1888.

Referring to former correspondence on the subject of charges made against you, I am now directed to inform you that after the most careful consideration of the explanation you have offered, His Excellency the Governor, under the advice of the Executive Council, has approved of your removal from the Public Service, which I now notify.

I have, &c.,
 ALEX. C. BUDGE,
 Clerk of the Council.

The Principal Under Secretary to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 December, 1888.

Mrs. Sarah Cunynghame having been suspended from the office of Matron-Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, at Parramatta, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to state for the information of the Colonial Treasurer that His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, and in accordance with the 33rd section of the Civil Service Act, 1884, has been pleased to direct that Mrs. Cunynghame be dismissed from the Public Service.

I have, &c.,
 CRITCHETT WALKER,
 Principal Under Secretary.

The Principal Under Secretary to The Director of the Government Asylums.

Sir, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 14 December, 1888.

Referring to your letter of the 14th ultimo, regarding the removal of Mrs. Sarah Cunynghame from the office of Matron-Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, at Parramatta, I am directed by the Colonial Secretary to inform you that His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, and in accordance with the 33rd section of the Civil Service Act, 1884, has been pleased to direct that Mrs. Cunynghame be dismissed from the Public Service.

I have, &c.,
 CRITCHETT WALKER,
 Principal Under Secretary.

Note.

An anonymous complaint against Mrs. Cunynghame has been received, but it is of such a disgusting nature as to be unfit for publication.

1886-7.
GOVERNMENT ASYLUMS INQUIRY BOARD.
REPORT.

Sir, Board Room, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 29 April, 1887.

In compliance with the instructions contained in the foregoing letters, we have the honor to hand you our Report upon the general management and mode of conducting the Asylums at Newington, and George and Macquarie Streets, Parramatta, visited and inspected by us, at each of which evidence attached to this Report was taken.

Your Board began their sittings at Newington, but prior to their inspection as a body the members visited and closely inspected each Institution separately, and at uncertain periods, in order to note the then existing condition of things, and observe if any and what alterations had taken place when the inquiry began, or were made during its progress.

• • • • •
 Your

Your Board purpose dealing with each Asylum separately, and under various headings, and finally reviewing the whole of the circumstances and evidence; and they are guided in adopting this course by several reasons:

- 1st. Because the evidence affecting each Asylum is kept entirely distinct.
- 2nd. Because it will facilitate reference to that evidence,—and
- 3rd. Because it will enable comparisons to be drawn between the methods pursued at each Asylum.

Two factors of primary importance must be borne in mind in reading these pages:

- 1st. That it is a mistake to suppose that all the inmates of these Asylums, or indeed a majority of them, are persons of such a character, or with such a previous history, as to render their statements unworthy of belief. On the contrary, many of them are persons who have held respectable positions in life, and who, through incurable illness or accident, after having spent all their means in vain endeavours to obtain relief outside, have finally been compelled to seek refuge in the Asylums or die in the streets.
- 2nd. That no person can judge so well the value of the testimony given as those who hear it; and so every statement made in this Report is founded either upon evidence which the Board believe to be thoroughly trustworthy, or upon facts which have come within their own personal observation. In either case the authority upon which the statement rests will be given.

* * * * *

MACQUARIE-STREET, PARRAMATTA.

This Asylum is situated in Macquarie-street, Parramatta, and contains 291 inmates, of whom 77 are in hospital. Like the Asylum in George-street, it is a very old building, and was also erected for military purposes. The total area, including buildings, court-yard, vegetable garden, and poultry-yard, is 15,210 square yards. (Vide plan, Appendix F.)

Inmates.

The number of inmates in the Asylum when your Board began to take evidence was 291, and the complaints were about the inattention of the medical officer, insufficiency and bad cooking of food, and acts of cruelty perpetrated by the wardsmen upon the helpless inmates of the hospital wards.

Water Supply.

As at George-street, the water is laid on, and in addition there are tanks which conserve the rainfall from the roofs of the various buildings.

Books.

The books are exceedingly neatly and apparently accurately kept, with the exception of the medical comfort book, but for reference to this see report from Mr. M'Alister (Appendix C). No stock book or stock list is kept, nor is there any delivery book showing articles distributed to inmates, and so, as stated with regard to Newington and George-street, when the Manager forwards goods for the use of the inmates he has no means of knowing whether the articles ever reach those for whom they are intended or not.

Rations.

These are ordered and weighed daily, as at George-street, and the matron states that there are seldom any deficiencies.

Servants.

These consist of paid inmates and others who receive extra rations or grog in remuneration for small services rendered in tidying and keeping the place clean. (Appendix G.)

Punishment.

There are no cells and no mode of punishment, except by expulsion or deprivation of gratuities and medical comforts.

Supervision.

The matron is supposed to supervise everything, and being solely responsible for whatever occurs within the walls of the Asylum, it will be necessary here to draw attention to the following extracts from the evidence taken before the Board. The whole of this evidence should, however, be most carefully read, as, if it be true (and the Board have no doubt of its truth), it discloses a most terrible state of things.

Robert Baird states (Q. 6500) that the food is of inferior quality; (Q. 6504) that in June, 1885, Henry Todd was turned out of No. 1 hospital ward and sent to the yard, being dragged about by the head wardsmen and another man from place to place for two or three days, and that he finally died from the effect of such treatment—his body was allowed to remain in the ward until it became offensive; also that Benjamin Isaacs, a wardsmen, mopped a man, who had only one leg, with cold water, and mopping up the excrement put it into the man's mouth; (Q. 6502) that they dared not report such cases for fear of "getting the gate," and that it was the clerk who told them that if they made complaints they would "get the gate"; (Q. 6507) that a man named John Cashin was forced on to a closet-box till his skin stuck to it, that he was afterwards tied down to his bed, and that his back was bleeding when he died; this man and several others were mopped down; a man named M'Innis was tied to his bed, the wardsmen using force; (Q. 6508) that this man M'Innis, an imbecile, received unnecessary rough treatment, and was given the needle by Cunningham every night. (Q. 6509) Athol Coy and others were also mopped down after soiling their beds. (Q. 6513) John Dowling was also treated in the same way; a wardsmen named Thomas Ashton deliberately hit Dowling in the eye. Walker, a cripple, was turned out of No. 2 hospital for singing and making a noise; he was dragged to his meals by two men, and died a week after having been again admitted to hospital. (Q. 6521) That James Marshall was turned out for refusing to take a letter after it had been opened; Christopher Gage was turned out for not letting the clerk keep a pound that had been sent him; and a German named Fiddler* was turned out for walking across the grass, and another man for loud talking.

H. Barber states (Q. 6583—4) that on the occasion of the visit of the ophthalmic surgeon in March the inmates were informed by the clerk that any of them asking Dr. Maher for medical comforts—flannels or socks—would be turned out; that the clerk gave this out in the mess-room upon two occasions, and that it was by the matron's orders.

J. Rooney states (Q. 6666) that John Dowling was ill-treated by the wardsmen, Thomas Ashton—Ashton dragging him from his bed by the hair, and, throwing him on the floor, would mop him down with cold water, and, by his (Ashton's) own own admission, mopped up Dowling's filth, and stuck it in Dowling's mouth. (Q. 6667) States this on the authority of Ashton's own admissions. (Q. 6668) Ashton often struck Dowling on the face with his fist, also kicked him and beat him with the mop; he (Ashton) used to be quite exhausted after it. Mr. Cunningham showed Dr. Rowling Dowling's testicles and back, which were swollen and black. Dr. Rowling said, "No doubt he has been kicked or struck with something—that looks bad"; but it was hushed up. Brennan spoke out about it, and was turned out of the ward, although unfit to be out, which proved to us that if we complained we should be turned out. (Q. 6670-3) Wymise Bruce, an imbecile, suffering from diarrhoea, was also badly treated; he was put in a straight-jacket on his hands, and had a bed-pan tied to him, and allowed to remain so all night. When Ashton was made wardman he compelled Bruce to sit on an iron bucket until he fell off from exhaustion, when he was beaten with a mop. The night before Bruce died he was raving, and Ashton beat him unmercifully for making a noise. (Q. 6673) The doctor does not see the bodies of the dead, except he sees them in the dead-house. If an inmate dies before 9 p.m. he is removed at once; if after, he is left till 6 a.m. next morning. (Q. 6724) A man named Dempsey, in No. 3 hospital, suffering from diarrhoea, was allowed to remain in his filth twenty-four hours, only being cleaned at 6 every morning; the man was one mass of corruption from bed sores. It was reported to Cunningham, who showed it to Dr. Rowling, who said, "Cover him up," and that was all there was about it.

W. Roy states (Q. 6575-61) that a man named Bruce, an imbecile, suffering from diarrhoea, was cruelly treated, he being made to sit on an iron bucket till he fell off from exhaustion. (Q. 6765) The wardman named Ashton used to boast about how he had beaten him. (Q. 6767) Dr. Rowling did not, to his (Roy's) knowledge, see Bruce's body. (Q. 6769-71). Bruce also was mopped, the water being brought into the ward over night; his screams might have been heard all over the Institution. (Q. 6776-88) John Dowling, an imbecile, used to be frequently beaten and mopped with cold water, force being used, and have his head knocked against the wall when sitting on the bucket. Bolton was wardman then, and he struck Dowling in the eye, and told the doctor a fly must have stung him; that during May, 1885, seven inmates died in ten days, all of whom were mopped with cold water; and that if any of the patients said it was a shame the wardman threatened them with the same treatment.

J. Pryor states (Q. 7503-24) that he has been three years in the Asylum, and is suffering from paralysis; that he was a carrier at Gunnedah, on the Namoi; he has two brothers, selectors, and one living at Maitland; that he has lived on his brother's selection at Bando, and with his nephew; that he was never a drunkard; that he has been deprived of his extra bread which had been allowed him for two years, and that six or seven buckets of tea are thrown away which they would be glad of; that the best part of the soup is thrown into the pig-tub, which is emptied every day; that they never get any pork, nothing but the Asylum ration.

M. Brennan states (Q. 7367-98) he is suffering from paralysis, and has been in the Asylum three years; that he is 74 years of age; that he saw Dowling kicked by Martin Bolton and his mate hundreds of times; the doctor saw Dowling, and said, "The man has been kicked, but I do not know who kicked him"; that Dowling was an imbecile, and used to soil his bed, for which he was mopped with cold water and had his excrement thrust into his mouth, and was punched in the ribs with the mop-handle; that Dowling had to crawl on his hands and knees to get to the night stool, when Bolton would take him by the ears and hammer his head against the wall; that he did not complain about it to the matron.

H. Fitzpatrick (Q. 7023-46) states that James Rooney was turned out of the ward for complaining of the treatment of the wardman; that he has seen patients dragged out of bed and mopped; that a man named Bolton was badly treated, the wardman (Wallace) using all his strength to bend him straight, and strapping him to the bed with a sheet till he roared with pain, and that four or five hours afterwards he died; that Bolton had been a wardman, but was then a patient; that personally he had been well treated, being able to help himself; that the doctor just looks in, and that Monday is the day he examines the sore legs, but that he (Fitzpatrick) never hears him say anything except to Mr. Cunningham; that he has been in the country twenty-eight years, is a temperate man, and but for his accident would never have been there, as he owned a horse and dray, and had constant employment; that he formerly worked at Manilla, for Mr. Veness, Mr. Dickson, and a Mr. Baldwin of Dinnowarindie.

Henry Crozier (Q. 7647-68) states that he is 61, and that he remembers James Rooney being turned out for complaining of the wardman; that a Canadian named Johnson was forced on to the tub and his head knocked against the wall; that he has seen patients mopped for messing their beds, and that they were kept naked for half an hour; that he has seen a wardman (Wallace) put a mop between a man's legs at the back, and pull him backwards and forwards, and then throw him down on the bed; that he had been living at Bowral with four clergymen, one after the other, and did not complain, as he intended to leave as soon as possible; that the wardman had taken his clothes and hat from him.

W. Vavasour (7040-6) states that a man subject to fits has been appointed barber, and that he fell out of his chair on Sunday and smashed his face; that he used to be milker, but had to give it up on account of having those fits; that the old men get lousy, and get their tobacco stopped, from picking up old bits of rags to wrap round their feet, &c., as they are not allowed socks or flannels; that he (Vavasour) was a chief officer in the merchant service, holding a master's certificate; that he had to sell his instruments before he came to the Asylum, and that he has received scarcely any treatment since he came in.

J. Crighton states (7495-502) that he was in the erysipelas ward and saw a wardman strike a patient; that he did not know their names; that he was told it was no use complaining, as nothing was believed, and if they complained they would be turned out; that inmates were threatened to be turned out for walking on the grass; that he has always been fairly treated himself.

Your Board have quoted largely from the evidence taken at this institution, because, upon their final visit, it was sought by the matron to throw discredit upon the statements made by the various witnesses, and she even went so far as to say that none of them would dare to tell such falsehoods in her presence. Thereupon your Board called several of them into the Board room, and they reiterated, in the presence of the matron, every word of their former statements, which were read over to them. (Q. 8,315 et seq.) Now, as the matron avers that these persons conspired together to state things which were wholly untrue, it becomes necessary to see to what extent their evidence can be relied upon. Your Board has already stated that they are impressed with the absolute truth and sincerity of many of these witnesses, incredible as it may appear that no such statements had ever been made previously to any of the numbers of persons visiting. The residence in the latter case will, however, be accounted for by a perusal of the whole of the evidence, from which "the gate" is seen to have been constantly held over them in terrorum. The Chairman of your Board has for twenty years been engaged in taking and hearing evidence, and it cannot be denied that such practice enables an individual to develop a faculty for eliciting the truth, and recognizing it when it is spoken. In addition, the witnesses Pryor, Fitzpatrick, and Crozier were all known to him in their former lives outside the Asylum, and known as men of honesty and respectability. It seems to your Board wholly incredible that such men as these should deliberately conspire to make statements entirely without foundation. And this is inconceivable when it is borne in mind that they occupied different parts of the Asylum, and some of them had no means whatever of communicating or exchanging ideas with others. Your Board were favourably impressed also with the earnest and sincere way in which the evidence of Roy was given, as also that of Baird, Crozier, Vavasour, Rooney, and Brennan. Roy's case may profitably be examined as one of a type; and your Board are in possession of facts relating to the previous history and career of this man which render the probabilities of his conspiring or lying extremely remote. In a book, known to military authorities as a Soldier's Account Book, every private serving in the army has a complete record of his history while he remains in that service. His punishments, wounds, promotions, or distinguished conduct are all entered in the handwriting of the officer commanding the company, troop, or battery. From this book, which is in the possession of your Board, we gather—that William Roy, being then a baker, and a native of Dundee, in the county of Forfar, Scotland, enlisted at the age of 17 years, in 1870, in the 32nd Regiment of Foot. Information is also given, in as complete a manner as possible, of his appearance, which which renders his identification easy. He was subsequently transferred to the 1st battalion of the 24th Regiment of Foot. He landed at Natal, in South Africa, on the 5th of July, 1871, and returned, landing in England on the 2nd October, 1879; and during this period, while engaged upon active foreign service, not one solitary entry against him for insubordination or misconduct of any kind is to be found; but on the contrary, your Board find that he was promoted to be a corporal, and under the hand of G. S. Browne, captain, we find the following:—

Date.	Campaign.	Medal granted.
22 January, 1879	Zululand	Distinguished services, Rorke's Drift, 22 January, 1879.

Your Board have also in their possession the medals gained in this campaign—one marked "for distinguished conduct on the field," and the other, with clasps, marked "South Africa." These, with a Bible containing her autograph, were presented to Roy, at Windsor, by Her Majesty, in December, 1879.* Your Board have been thus particular in giving Roy's previous history, because it has been stated (inter alia by Mr. Taylor, M.L.A.) that the inmates of these Asylums are the scum of the country, and that, therefore, their statements, no matter how firmly we may be impressed with their truth, should not be received or credited. Your Board, on the contrary, have found that many persons, as they have stated in an early part of this Report, are as much entitled to credence as any witness they have ever listened to. The courage with which Roy gave his evidence very favourably impressed your Board, and it is gratifying to find upon further inquiry that his previous history justifies that impression. Roy is now paralysed and blind, and has only a few months more probably to live. He was one of those witnesses called to confront the matron at her request; but he was so far from then retracting one tittle of the terrible evidence he had previously given that he added to it, and made further statements with regard to treatment he received after he had given evidence on the first occasion. These are perhaps the best examples we could give of the harshness and petty tyranny prevailing in this Institution. Your Board deem it advisable to reprint the whole of this evidence.

William Roy, 28 March, 1887, was called in and further examined:—

8326. Chairman.] You have given evidence before? Yes.
8327. Do you remember being in No. 3 hospital ward, and a man named John Dowling being there? Yes.
8328. At question 8776 you stated, "A man named John Dowling used to be beaten continually. He was an imbecile who did not know what he was doing. Sometimes he used to get out and sit on the stool, and sometimes he would not. Because he did not do that the wardman beat him unmercifully, pulling him out by his legs. He used force to him with the mop, and he beat his head against the wall when he was sitting on the bucket. The wardman used to come to me and boast that he had done that. I have often known the wardman regularly exhausted and winded through the effects of beating him." Do you recollect making that statement to the Board? Yes; I do.
8329. Is that true? It is quite true.
8330. The Matron. (through the Chairman.) Did you see it? I did not see it, but I heard of it. The wardman came down and boasted of it.
8331. How was it that you did not ask to see the matron and report it to her or to Mr. Cunningham? It was reported to Mr. Cunningham, and he reported it to the doctor.
8332. Do any ladies or gentlemen ever visit the ward, or other persons to whom you could make complaint? None; except they are sent for to officiate over a sick person.
8333. Do any ladies ever visit the ward? Ladies visit the ward once a fortnight.
8334. Chairman.] At question 6849 you were asked did you say that when the complaint was made to Dr. Rowling about Dowling's treatment Mr. Cunningham pulled the clothes over Dowling, and you answered he pulled the wardman back, and would not allow the wardman to show Dr. Rowling the marks of ill-treatment that Dowling received. Is that true? Yes.
8335. The Matron (through the Chairman.) Did you see it? The wardman told me.
8336. What was his name? Brown. I heard that the wardman told Mr. Cunningham to mind his own business before the doctor. I wish to speak of the way in which I have been treated since I was here before. Early in January Mr. Robison came down No. 3 ward and asked if there were any complaints to make about our food or anything else. The bread had been very bad for several days before this. I told him about it. The next day the porter the doctor allowed me was taken from me by the matron. I spoke to the doctor next day, and Mr. Cunningham told me in front of the doctor that I had made a complaint about the bread, and it was taken from me in consequence of that. With reference to the last question, the matron made the following statement:—"Roy having complained about the bread, the bread was laid on the doctor's table, and found to be perfectly good. The doctor inquired if Roy had any extras, and he immediately put his pen through the extras, and said he was to receive no more; but I neither saw the doctor nor took any other action in reference to the stopping of Roy's extras. I simply left the bread on the table for the doctor to see."
8337. Chairman.] The doctor stopped the extras because Roy made a complaint about the bread?
- (The Matron.) Yes, a complaint which was not true. Canon Gunther and the Inspector of Charities both examined the bread, and reported that it was perfectly good.
- (The Witness Roy.) The bread we had for breakfast was taken away, and I believe fresh bread was put in its place.
8338. Dr. Ashburton Thompson.] Can you bring anyone else that will say as much? The men have been shifted away; they have been distributed among the other wards.
8339. Did the assertion that the bread was bad rest entirely upon your opinion? There was no one else asked about it, but all the men were complaining about it. Dyer was complaining about the bread.
8340. On that occasion? Yes.
8341. Who else besides Dyer? If I am not mistaken, Baird complained about it too. As regards the porter, I knew nothing about it until the next morning, when Mrs. Cunningham told me that I had complained about the bread.
8342. Was it because you complained of the bread that these things had been stopped? Yes. When I spoke to the doctor Mr. Cunningham spoke up and said that Roy had been making a complaint about the bread, and that the porter had been stopped. The doctor said, "Well, if you make trouble like that, do not expect to get extras." He did not know anything at all about the porter being stopped. On the first of this month the ward was broken up—the ward I was in—and I was ordered upstairs into No. 2 ward to go to bed and to live up there. I have had the privilege of going out for exercise every day during the last two years by the doctor's order. By sending me up there my privilege was stopped. At the same time there was a little ward on the ground floor where I could walk in and out. I had either to go upstairs, or remain in the yard, and you can see, gentlemen, that I am not in a fit state to go into the yard.
8343. You cannot walk by yourself? I cannot walk at all by myself.
8344. And by going upstairs you were practically made a prisoner? The matron told me that I had to get to bed. I have witnesses to prove every word that I have said.
8345. Who will prove that? The man who brought me here in front of her, Barber.
8346. After you gave evidence last time, have you been talking matters over in the yard between yourselves? No one knows what I have said.
8347. The men who gave evidence did not tell each other what they had said? Some of them might; I did not.

* See Graphic for December 26th, 1879, which contains an illustration of the presentation, and states that Roy, being an invalid in hospital at Rorke's Drift when that building was in flames, broke through the wall, and while exposed to the enemy's fire succeeded in rescuing eight of his comrades. Four others were burned to death.

8348. Have you reason to think that anybody besides the Board knows what evidence you gave? I do not know, I am sure.

8349. Do you mean to say no? I have no reason to think that anybody knows what evidence I have given.

8350. How then do you come to say that these things were done to you because you had given evidence, since the persons who did these things could not know whether the evidence was favourable to or against them? I do not say that.

8351. (To the Matron.) You are aware, Mrs. Cunynghame, that this man has been in the habit of taking exercise in the yard? Yes.

8352. You are also aware that he cannot get up and down stairs by himself? Yes.

8353. Do you think it was a good arrangement to put him at the top of a flight of stairs? I do not know; but there was no other place for him. Every bed in the other place was occupied. The six beds there were occupied with very bad cases.

8354. None of those persons could be moved upstairs instead? There are twenty men in the same position; Roy's is not the only case.

From this it would appear that Roy, upon some alteration in the hospital arrangements, the necessity for which was not made clear by the matron, was ordered to occupy a ward at the top of a flight of stairs, or remain in the yard. He elected to go into the yard, thus placing himself entirely at the mercy of the charitably-disposed or sympathetic inmates, if such happened to be there, as he can neither walk nor see. To place him in a ward at the top of a flight of stairs, up and down which it would be necessary that he should be carried, would have been making him practically a prisoner, as he could not go out, unless with such assistance as he was not in a position to obtain; and so the unfortunate creature, if he had gone to this ward, would have been deprived of even the slight enjoyment of life which his pitiable condition had left him, viz., an opportunity of breathing comparatively fresh air, and talking with other inmates. The other matter to which Roy refers (Q. 8330), that in January last the Inspector of Charities, presumably in the discharge of his ordinary duties, as the Board was not sitting then, visited the ward, and asked Roy if there was any matter of complaint, and upon his replying that the bread was sour (which was a matter of common complaint), the next day his medical comfort, the porter allowed him by the doctor, was cut off. Here we have the case of an inmate invited by an officer holding a high position in connection with these Asylums to make a complaint, and when that complaint is made, we have the officer and visiting clergyman forming themselves into an irresponsible Board to inquire into the truth or otherwise of the complaint.* We have no evidence that the bread of which Roy complained was the same as that which formed the subject of inquiry; but we have evidence that Roy was a baker by trade, and possibly as capable of judging of the character of the food as either of the self-elected Board. We have still further evidence that when Roy complained to another high official, the medical attendant, the reply he received was (Q. 9342), "Well, if you make trouble like that, do not expect to get extras." Your Board cannot believe that the officer who first invited Roy to make any complaint or statement was in any way privy to the petty tyranny of depriving such a creature of his paltry medical comfort, because the latter complied with his request, the case rather showing the means taken by the permanent officers to stifle complaint.

The evidence of another witness, Vavasour, so far as your Board are aware, should be thoroughly reliable. He (see evidence quoted) was, when outside, a sailor, holding a master's certificate; was obliged to sell his nautical instruments to pay for medical attendance; and finally, when reduced to absolute penury, was compelled to seek the refuge the Asylum provided. Vavasour presents a remarkable complaint from the other inmates which is evidence of grave neglect in the management, and that is, that an epileptic inmate was appointed to shave the others (Q. 7040, evidence quoted). One can imagine the feelings with which a feeble, nervous old person would place himself under the hands of such a barber. Men of this type are not usually untruthful, and so your Board, with deep regret that such a horrible state of affairs ever should have existed in a charitable institution, feel bound to accept as literally and positively true the story of the inmates of the Macquarie-street Asylum at Parramatta.

COMMENTS.

Apart from the comments necessary and indispensable upon those portions of the Report dealing with the medical attendance, dietary, and involving credibility of evidence, your Board have hitherto contented themselves with a bald statement of facts. They have carefully refrained from commenting upon the horrors and miseries and the amount of human suffering endured for years in these Institutions; although the groans and cries of distress from the helpless creatures never appear to have reached official ears, or, if they did, those ears were so insured to agonizing appeals and so dulled to all sympathy with human suffering as to render the appeal unavailing. It is not now the purpose of your Board to dilate upon this subject; it is far too painful, and no pen is capable of exaggerating the horrible story of wretchedness and misery in a single detail. The evidence so simply yet pathetically given by those blind paralyzed witnesses, corroborated, as it is, over and over again by others, cries for alteration and amendment, and the cry should not be allowed to pass unheeded.

* * * * *

At Macquarie-street the evidence is incontrovertible of the gross brutalities practised upon helpless inmates by the wardsmen who were appointed by the matron.

It would be quite impossible to absolve from blame the matrons affected by the evidence of these atrocities. The wardsmen and wardswomen are all appointed by them. By no process of reasoning can your Board arrive at the conclusion that these matters were daily happening under the management of these officers and yet remain unknown to them, except on the assumption (which is equally discreditable) that they systematically neglected the work for which they were paid.

* * * * *

Again, at Macquarie-street, take, as an example, the case of Dowling, not because that particular case exhibits any peculiar or special cruelty of treatment, but simply because it is typical of a number of others. Here we have a helpless, paralyzed, and almost idiotic creature dragged out of bed on a cold winter morning, swilled over with water on the floor of the apartment; the excrement, which in his helpless condition he had passed during the night, wiped from his buttocks with a mop—the mop used to clean out the room—and thrust into his face by his brutal tormentor, who was receiving pay and extras from the Government to attend to the wants of those under his charge. In view of the existence of such atrocities as these, your Board therefore urge that immediate steps may be taken to better the condition of

* Read Act 30 Vic. No. 19, defining the duties of the Inspector of Charities; also Q. 7233, asked by that gentleman. From these it will be seen that in constituting themselves a Board to decide a matter, where punishment of a helpless paralytic followed, he and Canon Guether were acting without authority.

of these unfortunates, and end a system of ill-treatment and neglect which, although existing under the name of charity, and in the midst of a Christian community, would be degrading to the most inhuman race of savages.

* * * * *

At Macquarie-street the space available for recreative purposes is less than that set apart for the accommodation of the matron's poultry; and while there is a green sward destitute of seats, which might be made available, the inmates are confined to that portion marked "drying ground" on plan, and to the shed; and evidence has been given to the Board of inmates (6583) having been expelled for merely walking upon this sward, while the horses of the matron's husband are allowed to feed over it.

* * * * *

In the Report of a Commission presided over by His Honor Mr. Judge Windeyer, in 1873, the following passage occurs:—

"A number of the men having made complaints to us respecting the management of the Institution, it appears that they were afterwards turned out of the Asylum by Mr. Dennis for having done so. This conduct on his part we consider highly reprehensible, and indeed cruel, as one of the men was blind, and utterly unable to obtain a living."

It does not appear that at that time any action was taken upon this conduct. Your Board have now to point out that a similar course was followed in the present case by Mr. King with regard to the witness Baird. Baird gave evidence first upon November 18. In January your predecessor in office, who had commanded this Inquiry, went out with the Ministry, of which he was a member. Immediately the Manager of Public Asylums repaired to Macquarie-street. Baird was brought before him, and was there and then ejected from the Asylum because, as Baird himself says, (8316), he was accused of collecting evidence for the Board, and of fomenting a spirit of insubordination; because, as the matron says (8188), there were several complaints about him, and (8183) he had been seen going about with his pencil and paper; and because, as the entry of the transaction in the matron's diary says, the Manager ordered it (8188), no reason being there assigned. Baird came to Sydney the same day and sought out your Chairman. The case being at once referred by him to your predecessor in office, that gentleman (who had not yet handed over his Department to you) immediately directed Baird's re-admission, and issued the very necessary order that for the future, and pending further instructions, no inmate should be discharged except upon his own request. Your Board are clearly of opinion that this is an instance of the manner in which "the gate" was habitually employed at this Asylum as a means of coercing and cowering the inmates; and, further, that its use in the case of a helpless cripple like Baird, who had given evidence in this Inquiry, is an offence from every point of view of the very gravest kind. This superior officer having been present on the occasion referred to, nothing can be said of any share which the matron may have taken in this proceeding; but other, and not less important matters, have now to be described, for which she is responsible. On March 30 a document, signed by 138 of the inmates, was obtained and forwarded to the Board. It certifies that the undersigned, having heard that a few of the inmates had conspired to make many false and exaggerated statements to the Board, especially with regard to the treatment of patients in the hospitals, wish to certify that, "until made known to us by the Superintendent, we were unaware of any such misconduct or cruelty had been carried on." (Appendix A, No. 69.) The same day this certificate was obtained, Baird (loco citato, No. 70) wrote to the Chairman, informing him that on the morning of March 30 all the more important witnesses before the Board, including himself, had been shut up in a dormitory while this certificate was being signed; and that they were induced to submit to this isolation on the understanding that they were waiting for the arrival of the Board to prosecute this Inquiry, although the matron knew the Board had concluded their inspection. Thereupon the Chairman repaired to Parramatta, and saw Baird, Roy, Fitzpatrick, Thompson, and two others, who corroborated Baird's statement; and at the same time he questioned three or four of those who signed the certificate, and these then averred that they did not understand exactly what it was they had signed. It seems reasonable to surmise that had the witnesses, who are the more courageous and intelligent of the inmates, been allowed to be present when the matron appealed to the rest to testify in her favour, they might have succeeded in explaining the true import of the document, and that then so many signatures would not have been obtained to it. A further certificate, that the attendance of various Protestant clergymen had been regular, was signed by eighty-seven inmates on April 4, and transmitted to your Board.* To both of these certificates, and in the same order in each, are affixed the following six names: John Johnson, Charles J. Olin, Joseph Lambert, James Burton, Albert Regamy, and Thomas Herford. In the document certifying that the undersigned had heard of no cruelty, &c., Olin's name alone may have been written by himself; the other five are in one hand, and, by the attachment to each of crosses, the owners are represented as being unable to write. But in the second certificate, while Olin again signs his own name (that is, while his name appears in the same hand as at first), the other five are respectively written in different hands, and by inept penmen. If those five men can write, why did they not sign the certificate which denies cruelty? Have they ever seen that document, or were their names and marks affixed without their knowledge? The certificate against allegations of cruelty bears nothing on the face of it to show that it was not spontaneous; but there is no doubt it was solicited by the officers of the Institution, of whom Mrs. Cunyngame (the matron-superintendent) is the head. She, therefore, is responsible for it. But Mr. Cunyngame must share this blame; for he, too, busied himself in obtaining signatures. Officially he is known to you only as the dispenser, and in that capacity fault need not be found with him; but he relieves his wife of much of her managerial work, and may be properly described as the de facto superintendent. And as for this officer's evidence, your Board are now obliged to say plainly that they feel unable to rely upon any part of it whatever; and this opinion was formed at the time it was taken.

* * * * *

We have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servants,
T. KINGSMILL ABBOTT, S.M., Chairman.
J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON.

[NOTE.—The foregoing extracts are the only portions of the Report referring to Macquarie-street Asylum.]

* It may be worth while to remark here that no evidence had been given before the Board upon this subject; and the irregularity, or non-attendance, of spiritual advisers formed no portion of the Inquiry.

The third Member of the Board, the Inspector of Public Charities, having declined to sign this Report, for certain reasons stated in the minutes of the last meeting, his Anticipatory Report, dated 4th January, 1887, is appended hereto.
4/5/87. T.K.A.,
Chairman.

[Minutes referred to.]

WEDNESDAY, 4 MAY, 1887.

MEMBERS PRESENT:—

T. Kingsmill Abbott, Esq., S.M., Chairman.
J. Ashburton Thompson, Esq., M.D. | H. Robison, Esq.

The Chairman brought up his Report, which was read page by page.

The Chairman asked that the Report, as read, should be adopted.

Dr. J. Ashburton Thompson concurred, and had pleasure in seconding the motion of the Chairman.

Mr. Robison demurred, and said he should have time further to consider the Report; he had no objection to sign it, but desired, if he thought fit, after further consideration, to make such comments upon it as he might deem desirable.

The Board deliberated.

The Chairman eventually pointed out that the Board were already in possession of the views of Mr. Robison, conveyed in his Report, dated 4th January, 1887, and written in anticipation of that of the Board forwarded to the Colonial Secretary, and by that gentleman returned to the Chairman, and requested Mr. Robison to sign the Report now presented and agreed to by a majority of the Board, or, if he objected, his anticipatory Report could be printed as an addendum.

Mr. Robison declined to attach his signature to the Report presented, and agreed that the one written by him should be printed.

The Chairman then attached his signature to the Report, and Dr. Thompson having done so likewise, Mr. Robison was informed that his Report would be printed as an addendum to the Report.

ADDENDUM.

Report of The Inspector of Public Charities.

The views of Mr. Robison, as expressed herein, should be forwarded to the Chairman of the Newington Commission, who, I understand, is now preparing the report of the Board.—G.R.D., 13/1/87. The Chairman of the Government Asylums Inquiry Board.—C.W., B.C., 14/1/87.

Management.—The evidence goes to show: That, in regard to general cleanliness and order, little to be desired has been wanting, at the same time the personal comfort of the inmates has scarcely been sufficiently studied.

That in the distribution of extras, especially for the sick, economy has been carried to excess.

That the Manager has placed too implicit reliance on his officers, some of whom deputed to their subordinates duties requiring their personal supervision.

NOTE.—Applies to Newington and Macquarie-street, Parramatta.

That at the Macquarie-street Asylum, Parramatta, complaints against the medical officer and the matron were made to the Board—against the former for neglect, and the latter for having introduced a species of terrorism by expulsions, and for having allowed the chief wardman to exercise powers which it is said he has used in a tyrannical manner.

Dissatisfaction was also expressed at the quality of the food, especially the deficiency of vegetables.

That, in some of the Asylums, consequent on the matron being allowed to exercise the power of expelling inmates, acts of oppression, and even of cruelty, were alleged to have occurred, and that complaints were stifled by a fear lest the fact of bringing charges forward might render the complainants liable themselves to expulsion.

NOTE.—Extreme caution is necessary in accepting such statements, few of the inmates being scrupulous as to veracity.

It would be safer, unless under extraordinary circumstances, that expulsion should be made only after reference to the General Manager. At the same time it is very necessary that inmates not only submit themselves to authority, but that they acknowledge their obligation to assist in carrying on the work.

The charges of cruelty against some of the attendants referred to a time too remote to allow of their being properly investigated. It is not unlikely some of them were well founded, the duties requiring to be performed on behalf of the helpless and imbecile being often of a most repellent and disgusting character, and likely to irritate the person who renders them when resisted or accepted ungraciously by the patient.

To reduce this danger in the future to a minimum, extra precautions are necessary, both by a closer supervision and by providing trustworthy nurses of a higher grade of intelligence than can be selected from the general inmates of the Asylums.

HUGH ROBISON,
Inspector Public Charities.

NOTE.—The foregoing extracts are the only portions referring to the Macquarie-street Asylum.

MRS. CUNYNGHAME, LATE SUPERINTENDENT OF MACQUARIE-STREET
ASYLUM FOR INFIRM AND DESTITUTE, PARRAMATTA.

PROGRESS REPORT.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly appointed on 5th July, 1889,— “with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into, and report upon, the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute,” and to whom was referred on 31st July, 1889, “a Return to Order on the same subject,” and to whom was granted on 7th August, 1889, “leave to make visits of inspection to, and to hold inquiries at, the Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, Parramatta, with power to sit during any adjournment, for the purpose of making such visits of inspection,”—have agreed to the following Progress Report:—

Your Committee having examined the witnesses named in the list*, have resolved, owing to the advanced period of the Session, to report the evidence to your Honorable House, and to recommend that the inquiry be resumed early next Session.

JAMES P. HOWE,

Chairman.

No. 2 Committee Room,

Sydney, 27th September, 1889.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMITTEE.

TUESDAY, 16 JULY, 1889.

MEMBERS PRESENT:—

Mr. Howe, | Mr. Frank Farnell,
Mr. Ritchie.

Mr. Howe called to the Chair.

Entries from Votes and Proceedings appointing the Committee and granting leave to Mrs. Cunyng hame to be represented by Counsel, read by the Clerk.

Committee deliberated.

[Adjourned till Wednesday, 24th July, at Half-past Two o'clock.]

WEDNESDAY, 24 JULY, 1889.

MEMBERS PRESENT:—

Mr. Howe in the Chair.
Mr. Crick, | Mr. Ritchie.

Entry from Votes and Proceedings appointing Mr. Crick a Member of the Committee, read by the Clerk.

Present:—Mr. P. B. Bourke (Counsel for Mrs. Cunyng hame), instructed by Mr. John Herbert.

Mr. T. M. Williamson, Solicitor, informed the Committee that he appeared to watch the interests of Mr. Sydney Maxted, Director of Government Asylums, in this case.

Objection being taken to Mr. Williamson so appearing without leave of the House first having been obtained,—

Room cleared.

Committee deliberated, and decided that Mr. Williamson had no authority to appear before the Committee, inasmuch as Mrs. Cunyng hame was the only party to whom leave had been granted by the House to be represented by Counsel.

Counsel called in and informed.

Ordered,—That S. Maxted, Dr. Violette, Critchott Walker, F. Dyer, A. Hanson, C. Crawley, W. Stirling, and Attendants Edgar and Warner be summoned under the Parliamentary Evidence Act to give evidence at next meeting.

[Adjourned till Wednesday next, at Half-past Ten o'clock.]

WEDNESDAY, 31 JULY, 1889.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

MRS. CUNYNGHAME, LATE SUPERINTENDENT OF MACQUARIE-STREET ASYLUM FOR INFIRM AND DESTITUTE, PARRAMATTA.

WEDNESDAY, 31 JULY, 1889.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,
MR. CRICK,
MR. HAWTHORNE.

MR. FRANK FARNELL
MR. KIDD,
MR. RITCHIE.

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sydney Maxted called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] What position do you occupy? Director of Government Asylums and Boarding-out Officer.
2. Mr. Bourke.] What position did you hold before? Boarding-out Officer of the State Relief Board, and Chief Inspector.
3. For how long? Eight years.
4. What position did you hold before that? Master of the Protestant Orphan Asylum.
5. How long have you been in the Service? I suppose about eleven or twelve years altogether.
6. Was there any similarity between your position before you were appointed Director of Government Asylums, and the position that Mrs. Cunyngame held, which would have given you an insight into her particular duties? Yes; at the time I was Master of the Protestant Orphan School, Mr. Dennis died, and I expected that I would succeed him, and I therefore took trouble at that time, and also since, to make myself sufficiently acquainted with asylums and other institutions connected with the charities generally.
7. You had no practical experience? I had practical experience of an orphan institution.
8. But Mrs. Cunyngame's institution was a hospital? No; Mrs. Cunyngame's institution was an Asylum for the Infirm and Destitute, to which there were attached chronic hospitals. I wrote a series of papers on those institutions.
9. What practical experience had you of an institution like Mrs. Cunyngame's? Only the experience which came from visiting.
10. From natural wisdom, I suppose? No; which came of visiting, and I read a great deal on the subject.
11. In your report of the 14th November, 1888, you make four charges against Mrs. Cunyngame, the first is a charge of harshness to inmates? Yes.
12. On what date were you first appointed Director of the Government Asylums? August 1st, 1888.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1889.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1889.

13. The first charge you make is, "Soon after my appointment as director I ascertained that the superintendent disallowed the issue of tobacco to all hospital inmates for no other reason than that they occasionally spat upon the floors,"—are you aware that there was no general order allowing tobacco (until you issued one) to the hospital inmates? Yes.
14. Why did you make a charge against Mrs. Cunynghame that she disallowed tobacco when no order existed for issuing it? Simply because I spoke to her; noticing that at other institutions it was allowed to hospital inmates, I asked why she did not allow it; she said they spat on the floor. I said it must be allowed.
15. You are aware that there was no order, no general order, before for the issue of tobacco to hospital patients? Yes.
16. You are aware that it was only issued to hospital patients when the doctor ordered it? No.
17. You are aware that there was no general order for the issue of tobacco? I was not aware until I put the question to Mrs. Cunynghame.
18. Were you the first to make the general order? Yes.
19. Then how is it that you make it a charge against Mrs. Cunynghame that she did not issue the tobacco before there was any order? This is the explanation I wish to give: I knew that the superintendents did as they liked, and I asked Mrs. Cunynghame, seeing that the patients at the other hospitals were allowed tobacco, why she did not allow the inmates to have tobacco in her institution; then I said, "You must let them have it," and she said she did not because they spat upon the floors; I said, "You must let them have it." I remember her saying, "Who is to clean up?" I said, "That is for you to arrange, not me." I directed three times before this was carried out.
20. Then you say, "I found that for most trifling offences men were sent up daily to the visiting medical officer for transmission to me for punishment?" Yes.
21. Can you give us any instances; you make charges against Mrs. Cunynghame, but why do you not give names or dates? From memory, I do not remember instances, but I can procure instances from this very asylum.
22. Are you prepared to procure them for the Committee? I think Dr. Violette can give the names. I simply at last said to Mrs. Cunynghame, "I will have no more of those men brought up."
23. You made those charges against Mrs. Cunynghame; you are here to substantiate them, and you ought to be prepared? I understand perfectly the position I am in. I will throw as much light on the subject as I can. It has been no pleasure to me to remove Mrs. Cunynghame. She and her husband have been old friends of mine, and it has been the most painful duty I have ever had to do in my life.
24. You say that you noticed that Mrs. Cunynghame's demeanour towards the inmates was universally harsh and tyrannical? Yes; so much so that I declined to allow her to come round the yards with me.
25. How many times did she go through with you? She says once; I say three times. I have seen the pamphlet she has published.
26. Do you say that on the three occasions you mention her demeanour was very tyrannical? Yes; a man would come up to make some complaint, or to mention something that he wanted, and her demeanour was simply brutal, I considered.
27. In what way? She would not listen to him; she would pass on.
28. Do you say that is brutal? It is one of the instances of brutality.
29. Mr. Crick.] Were you present on any occasion when this conduct took place? Yes. I was present with her three times when this conduct took place.
30. Did you stop and listen to the complaints which she refused to listen to? Not at the time. I went on; but I spoke to her in the office about it. I said she had better see the man in the office.
31. Mr. Bourke.] Did you not know that Mrs. Cunynghame had all the rest of the day to listen to those men? Yes.
32. How could it be brutal for Mrs. Cunynghame to pass on when she had many hours afterwards to hear the complaints? She would answer them cruelly too.
33. Do you remember any of the cruel answers? I remember particularly the case of a man named White; he wanted to make some complaint to her; she said, "I will not believe a word you say White." I remember that perfectly well.
34. Is that the only example? I can bring evidence enough from the institution.
35. With regard to the man Hayselder—his case is one of the charges of harshness—Mrs. Cunynghame says that he was drunk. Evidence of that can be given by the assistants Hanson and Blencoe? You will hear something about Hanson.
36. Mr. Crick.] Did you write a letter on September 4th beginning "My dear Mrs. Cunynghame?" Yes; I know the letter.
37. Had you any complaints against Mrs. Cunynghame when you wrote that letter? I think I had one or two complaints. I can scarcely remember, but I know that for two or three weeks I thought Mrs. Cunynghame was doing very well, and I said to Mrs. Dennis, one of the superintendents: "If you do as well as Mrs. Cunynghame, you will get on very well."
38. Mr. Bourke.] Were you perfectly satisfied for some time? For two or three weeks I was. When I made the remark I have mentioned to Mrs. Dennis she did not say anything, but her reply to me now is that she thought she would leave me to find out Mrs. Cunynghame.
39. What led you to think that Mrs. Cunynghame was so satisfactory? A man who took charge on the 1st August could not possibly find out everything in connection with the institutions in two or three weeks. I had other places to visit as well.
40. Do you not seem to have found out things very quickly? I was very energetic.
41. But at this time had you not had charge for a little over a month? I had spoken to Mrs. Cunynghame about her general want of oversight on a great many occasions before I actually quarrelled with her about it. I advised her, and said that I hoped we would get on well together. I had been told that she had not been going around the wards, the sick wards especially, and I drew her attention to it, because I had seen the report of the Commission appointed to inquire into the Public Asylums that some horrible things had been reported, and I wished to find out from personal observation if it were true. I asked her particularly to go through the wards. I found out afterwards that she did not do so, and I can produce evidence to prove it.
42. Did those horrible reports refer to asylums generally? No; only about her asylum and Newington.

43. Mr. Crick.] Was that a written report? It was a printed report, laid on the Table of the House. I discussed it with Mrs. Cunynghame, and said I could not conceive that anything of the kind could go on; her reply was that they were all telling lies, and she asked me if I saw her reply. I said "No," and she gave me a copy.

44. Mr. Bourke.] Did you investigate those charges? No; those charges had already been investigated by a Commission appointed by the Government, and consisting of Mr. Abbott, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, and the then Inspector of Charities.

45. What was the result of that inquiry? The result was very bad, as will be seen from the papers.

46. Mr. Crick.] How long ago was that? 1886 and 1887.

47. Long before you took charge? Not very long. It was in consequence of that that Mr. King retired on a pension, Mr. Robison, the Inspector of Charities, went out on an allowance, and Mrs. Hicks went out on a pension.

48. Mr. F. Farnell.] By whom was the original report made on which the inquiry of the Commission was based? I think some charges were made in the House.

49. Mr. Hawthorne.] About the management of Newington and Hyde Park Asylums? Yes.

50. Mr. F. Farnell.] Was a ladies' committee appointed? Yes; I believe that was the first step.

51. M. Crick.] I understand that certain charges were made, the Government appointed the proper officers to make inquiry, and, having that report before them, the Government did not think fit at that time to take any action against Mrs. Cunynghame;—therefore is not that a matter now which has been dealt with? My memory is perfectly clear that I laid that report before Mrs. Cunynghame with reference particularly to visiting the hospital division. I asked her to keep her own eyes on that division, and not trust to inmates and attendants.

52. Mr. Bourke.] Up to the time that you brought up the report of the 4th September, were you friendly with Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes, fairly friendly.

53. You did not give her any intimation? Yes, I did, because she objected to carry out some dietary arrangements which I thought ought to be carried out, and I had some very warm words about it.

54. Mr. Kidd.] You seemed very well satisfied up to the 4th September? No.

55. Mr. Bourke.] You say that you were fairly friendly? Yes; I suppose for three weeks or a month.

56. You have said that you were fairly friendly with her up to the time that you wrote the report of the 14th November? No, not at all; I did not mean up to the date of my report to the Government, but of my letter of 4th September.

57. You wrote a letter on the 4th September of a friendly character—how soon after that did you become enemies? At that time I was not friendly with her.

58. Although you wrote a very friendly letter? I was disappointed with her after the first three weeks.

59. You have mentioned the case of Hayselder as an instance in support of your charge of harshness against Mrs. Cunynghame; the charge is that Mrs. Cunynghame behaved harshly in sending him back to the lock-up; Mrs. Cunynghame says that he was drunk when he was brought to the asylum, in your report you say that he was not;—what evidence have you? I have the evidence of the police officer, the lock-up keeper, the sergeant of police, and the magistrate who saw the man.

60. Who was the magistrate? Mr. Hugh Taylor. It is a common practice for these old men and people who want to get children put into orphan schools, to go to Mr. Taylor, who is rather noted in connection with that sort of thing. I think the police showed this man to Mr. Taylor as the nearest magistrate.

61. Mr. Kidd.] I notice that those applicants have to be provided with an order for admission, and that this old man had lost his order? I will explain. Mrs. Cunynghame and others had been served with a notice from the office that they were not to reject any person apparently in distress, because it was done once there before. The man was taken to the lock-up, and he died. My instructions in writing were that they were to take in any case of apparent distress, to report the case to me immediately, so that I might have it inquired into; but they were to reject nobody who in their opinion was in distress.

62. Mr. Ritchie.] Was it also within your rules to admit a drunken man under those circumstances? Certainly not; he should be handed over to the police. If I had been the superintendent in a case of that kind I would have detained an old man like that, he being an imbecile, and I would have sent round for a police constable.

63. But suppose the case of a man who was drunk and also in distress? I would send for the police.

64. Suppose he was in a state of destitution and very much emaciated? In a case like that, even if he were drunk, I would admit him.

65. Was this man emaciated or diseased? On the report of the Government medical officer he was suffering from imbecility and senile decay. It was a very bad case indeed.

66. Mr. Bourke.] Seeing that the man came without an order, would it not be for the superintendent to exercise her judgment as to whether or not she would admit him? She had a positive instruction.

67. Had she not a discretionary power? Of course she had, in a general way.

68. After all, then, at the very most, this would only be an error of judgment? I should call it harshness, most decidedly.

69. But other persons besides Mrs. Cunynghame say that he was drunk? I understand.

70. The second case which you mention in support of your case of harshness is that of William Bannan? In reference to the case of Hayselder, I wish to say that Inspector Latimer, the sergeant of police, the lock-up keeper, and the magistrate are prepared to give evidence as to his condition, and they say he was not drunk.

71. But do you not say that the police are not on good terms with Mrs. Cunynghame? They have complained of her obstructing them in the execution of their work.

72. You know they are unfriendly? I do not know that.

73. Do you not charge it here? Inspector Latimer, I believe, is not friendly, but I do not believe that the others care one way or the other.

74. Have you not charged it here, that they have quarrelled? Yes; I know several police officers have.

75. With regard to the case of Bannan, you say that when he was brought to the asylum Mrs. Cunynghame declared him to be drunk, and put him in the refractory ward? Yes, I call it the refractory ward; but I believe that Mrs. Cunynghame calls it the seclusion cell.

76. Mrs. Cunynghame says that she placed him in No. 3 Hospital ward. There is a memo. by the doctor with regard to this man, stating that he was suffering from "alcoholism," and that he should be put in the isolation ward? Dr. Violette says that he made that entry upon Mrs. Cunynghame's statement. I can tell tell you that the entry was "alcoholism." I do not remember the date, because up to a certain point I did not take any step to record my observations in books at the asylums. Since then I have put a book in each of the institutions, in which I make all entries, so that there shall be no mistake whatever about what occurs there.

77. But you have not mentioned dates or given names? I can produce the people, but I cannot produce the dates.

78. Would it not have been fairer to Mrs. Cunyngame in the first instance, when recommending her removal, if you stated the dates and names of the persons? She has answered this report, and she did not plead any inability on that account, else probably it would have been taken into consideration and the information given. She was not dismissed before the report was replied to. I saw the man in the Isolation Ward and I did not think there was anything the matter with him.

79. Is it not for the doctor to make any orders about a man who is unwell, and would it not be Mrs. Cunyngame's duty to carry out any order he might give? Yes, any order with reference to the medical department of the institution.

80. Mr. Crick.] Are you prepared with any other evidence of cases of harshness to inmates that are not disclosed in this report? I can produce instances if they are necessary. I spoke of harshness which I observed in Mrs. Cunyngame's general demeanour to the inmates. I will give you another instance of harshness. A pair of slippers were ordered for a man suffering from horrible feet. I saw that man walking about the yard with half the sole of a boot tied on one foot with rags and the other foot was tied with rags only. I said to him, "What is the matter with you"; he said, "The doctor ordered me slippers and Mrs. Cunyngame will not give them." Mrs. Cunyngame can tell you the name of that man. I said to the man, "Are you sure you have asked Mrs. Cunyngame?" he said, "Yes." I found that the doctor had ordered the slippers and applied for them and she refused them because she had none in stock and it was not a general custom, but she had only to send out for them. That was a very bad case.

81. Mr. F. Farnell.] You say that she could have sent out for slippers; had she money placed at her disposal to provide articles of that sort? If necessary she could get the slippers on credit as other things were got.

82. Mr. Hawthorne.] Was it usual to get things on credit? Yes; small things.

83. Clothing? No; but I am sure there were slippers in stock.

84. Mr. F. Farnell.] Did you see the slippers in stock? I saw a number of slippers in stock.

85. Why did you not go and order the slippers to be supplied at once? I said she must give the man slippers, and she did so eventually.

86. Mr. Bourke.] This case appears to be ten times worse than those you have mentioned; why did you not mention this case? I did not specify instances, I said in a general way that her demeanour to the inmates was harsh. I mentioned the case of this man, Hayselder, because I knew the police would have to give evidence.

87. Mr. Crick.] You said that you knew there were slippers in stock; did you go as the superior officer and take a pair of the slippers and give them to this man? Would you do such a thing yourself?

88. I am not here to answer questions? I beg pardon for having asked the question; my proper duty is to tell the superintendent—everything must go through her. It would upset discipline if I went behind her back.

89. You did not? No; I dare say that if I had done so I would have had a great many others applying for slippers unnecessarily.

90. Mr. Ritchie.] You would not have time to do such things? No; but that did not enter my mind. I made it a point not to receive communications behind Mrs. Cunyngame's back.

91. Mr. Bourke.] In that case who supplied you with the evidence of all those charges? From my own observation from the paid assistants, and in several cases from the inmates.

92. You say that you never went behind her back; were those statements made in her presence? No, but I did not go behind her back, the evidence was proffered to me I listened to it and I spoke to her about it.

93. Mr. Ritchie.] Some little time ago you spoke of reports outside against the conduct of the asylums; you do not refer to that just now do you? No; I have declarations from all those people, and they will be called.

94. Were those reports not behind Mrs. Cunyngame's back, and not in front of her? They were of course behind her back.

95. What action did you take on those reports? Those reports did not come to me until after her dismissal; you will see that from the dates of the declarations.

96. I thought that you referred to those reports as leading you to a close inquiry and criticism of Mrs. Cunyngame's conduct; I thought they were immediately prior to your accepting office? I may say that the particular reason for my close inquiry was the report of the Commission of Inquiry into Public Asylums to which I called Mrs. Cunyngame's attention at the time when I took office. I do not wish to be asked the names of the people outside who gave me the evidence, though—if it is necessary—I will give them. Some of them are officials connected with other institutions, and it might be very unpleasant for them if their names were mentioned.

97. Your charges were not based upon outside talk? Partly, also upon that. In two cases, I had information from persons in very responsible positions—in fact, I may say that one of them is at present the superintendent of one of the other institutions.

98. Mr. Bourke.] When people in the institution made complaints to you, as they did, did they not? They did.

99. Did you investigate them in Mrs. Cunyngame's presence or behind her back? No, I called her in. Mrs. Cunyngame will particularly remember one case, which took nearly a whole day—a charge preferred against her by a man named Hall of misappropriating provisions.

100. You exonerated her on that occasion, did you not? I said that I did not believe that she had deliberately done so, but that she had shown a singular want of discretion, and I gave her directions for her future guidance.

101. Mr. F. Farnell.] Who was Hall? A man who lived there, and who came to the Sydney office and asked if I could get him work. I am not sure whether he was employed by Mrs. Cunyngame. I telegraphed to the Macquarie-street Asylum, "Kindly let me know Hall's character while he was with you."

you"; to which Mrs. Cunyngame replied, "Very good, indeed." I then took down Hall's statement. The declaration was made before Mr. Redgrave, at the Central Police Court.

102. Mr. Bourke.] The result was that you exonerated her? I did not.

103. You asked Mrs. Cunyngame about John Hall's character? I think that was the man.

104. Do you remember the reply which Mrs. Cunyngame gave to you? Yes, if the man was Hall, it was certainly good.

105. Simply that he had transgressed once when he was out? I think so.

106. You are sure it was Hall who made these charges, not Chrevelyer;—you took him up there to make the investigation regarding the rations? I think it was Hall; I can tell you by referring to my books. As I say, I came to the conclusion then that Mrs. Cunyngame had been very careless, and I wrote a minute for future direction.

107. Mr. F. Farnell.] Hall was not then an inmate of the asylum, but employed there as an attendant? He had been an inmate. I had a reason for asking about the man's character, because there is a general impression, and Mrs. Cunyngame herself has said, that it is impossible to believe what any of the inmates say. I know that this is true in many cases, but there are many of the inmates whom you can believe.

108. Mr. Bourke.] A good many came to you in Sydney and made complaints? They are always doing it.

109. You say you did not exonerate Mrs. Cunyngame? As far as direct misappropriation goes, I did; but I said that she had been very indiscreet.

110. You say, "My inquiry fully exonerated Mrs. Cunyngame from the charge of directly misappropriating Government stores?" Yes; will you read a little further?

111. "My inquiry fully exonerated Mrs. Cunyngame from the charge of directly misappropriating Government stores; but she has been indiscreet in her method of rationing men whom she has employed in her private kitchen, and the practice she has adopted must be discontinued. They appear to have been allowed to go into the general kitchen and select their own meat without check of any kind. The superintendent does not herself know the quantity of meat which these men (usually four in number) have received daily, but it is variously stated from 14 to 8 or 9 lb."

Do you know by whom that was stated? It was stated before Mrs. Cunyngame, and she did not deny it.

112. By whom? By three witnesses.

113. They were inmates, I suppose? The people who went from her kitchen and took the meat. You see what it means. If the provisions were dealt out in that way, some of the inmates must have gone short.

114. Supposing the man in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen took 10 lb. one day, have you any evidence to show that he took that weight every day? It was stated so, and the statement was not denied.

115. They were entitled to 4 lb. and you say they took from 8 to 14 lb.? I caught them in the act.

116. They must have had very good appetites for sick men? These were not sick men; they were men employed in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen.

117. They were old men, and supposed to be incapable? They were not incapable. You will have the doctor's opinion on the subject.

118. Why were they there then? There were certain men kept about the institution to do work. Mrs. Cunyngame kept a number of these men in her own private kitchen—and I am sorry to say this, because it reflects upon Mrs. Cunyngame's honesty—rationed them from the Government stores. She put them down on the pay-sheet as holding fictitious positions. For instance, her cook was put down as the head wardman, a position which he never filled. This was the plan adopted. There was a man in the institution named Thomas Ghost. That man, between the years 1885 and 1888, was put down on the pay-sheet and paid by the Government £19 15s. 5d. He is variously named on the Government pay-sheet as cook, as having charge of the reading-room, as a deputy in No. 4 hospital, as gate-man, and soil-heap man; yet he states that he never held those positions, but was employed in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen during the whole of the time.

119. During the whole time? Yes. He was entered on the pay-sheet as cook. He was then entered as having charge of the reading-room at 6d. a day.

120. Mr. Ritchie.] What had he as cook? 3d. a day.

121. In Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen? In the institution. He was then entered as a deputy in No. 4 hospital at 2d. a day; then, as having been a gate-man at 2d. a day; and lastly, as having been a soil-heap man. For that he was getting 2d. a day, making in all £19 15s. 5d. He was entered on the Government pay-sheet, on which people are paid, as holding these positions; but during the whole of that time he never held one of them. He has made a declaration to that effect—I can only go on that.

122. Upon what date did he enter upon his first occupation as cook? In March, 1885, and his employment terminated in July, 1888.

123. During the whole of that time he was never acting in the capacity for which he received payment? He says that he was never acting in any of those capacities. He has made a declaration to that effect; but he will be here to give his evidence himself.

124. What was he doing then? He was occupied principally as cook in Mrs. Cunyngame's private kitchen. He states that on oath; I shall bring him here.

125. Did he within your knowledge do so? No; I bring it in now, as justifying the action I took.

126. Mr. Bourke.] In what way does that reflect upon Mrs. Cunyngame's honesty? Simply that she sent in what I call, and what the Audit Office will consider, fraudulent pay-sheets.

127. Did not the man get those payments? Yes; but he was employed in her kitchen.

128. Did you not charge her with employing a man named Cummins? Yes.

129. Has she had two cooks? She has had many cooks. The following have made statements to me:—Hugh Farley; William Miller, now in Liverpool Asylum; Thomas Ghost, who, I believe, is now in George-street Asylum. He was employed as Mrs. Cunyngame's butler. I think it is necessary that you should understand the point. The pay-sheets represent that these men are employed in certain capacities, and are doing a certain kind of work for the Government, but instead of that they never filled those positions, but were employed in private positions by Mrs. Cunyngame, and paid and rationed by the Government.

130. Mr. F. Farnell.] Did they do any other work on behalf of the Government in the institution? On oath they stated that they did not. It is for the Committee to judge as to the truth of their statements.

131. Chairman.] Are these old men? Fairly old men—50 and 60 years of age, or a little older.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1889.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1889.

132. Mr. Bourke.] Are you not aware that these men are simply put down on the pay-sheets as a matter of form, and that it is impossible to specify the occupations in which these men are engaged? It is not done in any other institution. Whilst this was going on Mrs. Cunyngame asked me if she might have one man as a servant.

133. Will you go on with the names now—you can tell us about that afterwards? John Pearman, then there is a man who is dead. I had perhaps better give you all the names, because I can produce secondary evidence, that of the man who paid them.

134. What is the name of the man who is dead? James Heathcote. Then there is Felix Cummins.

135. He is in Liverpool? Yes. Henry Elmrick, at the Macquarie-street Asylum; Thomas Beale, he can be produced. That is all I can produce now. I can go back further, and you would find that the same thing had been going on then, but I did not, because I thought it would be sufficient to prove what had been going on recently.

136. Mr. Williamson.] Were all these men working in the institution, or on Mrs. Cunyngame's farm? Alexander Thompson was working on the farm, I think. I am in a position to show that he was rationed from the institution.

137. Mr. Hawthorne.] Has Mrs. Cunyngame a farm of her own? Yes; a private farm a few miles out of Parramatta.

138. Mr. Crick.] This is evidence which you have brought out after the Committee was appointed. You were not aware of these facts at the time you made the charge on the 14th November, when Mrs. Cunyngame was removed? I was not actually aware of them, but I had a very strong suspicion, and I did not want to go further.

139. You were not aware of them? No, I had not proved them, because I deliberately did not seek into them. I had been told of them. I did not seek into them, because I saw what they would ultimately lead to.

140. Mr. Williamson.] At that time you had no evidence? No.

141. Mr. Bourke.] You "saw what they would ultimately lead to." What do you mean by that? What might possibly happen to Mrs. Cunyngame if I pursued these frauds to the bitter end.

142. Frauds? I call them frauds. But any man has a natural disinclination to pursue a woman. If it had been Mr. Cunyngame I should have done it.

143. You say that all of these men have been paid? They signed the pay-sheets, and they will swear that they have been paid.

144. How then can there be any fraud on Mrs. Cunyngame's part if the men have been paid? In paying her own private servants from the Public Treasury, and putting their names upon the Government pay-sheets as holding fictitious positions.

145. Are you not aware that in institutions similar to that which Mrs. Cunyngame was superintending, the superintendents and others make use of the people for their kitchens? Occasionally; but they do not pay them from the Government Treasury. If it was authorized in this case, it is not done in any other of the institutions under my control.

146. As a matter of fact, do you not know that it is very often done in these Government institutions; that they regard it as a right, if there is an inmate who is strong and willing to do anything about the place? And then put him down as the head wardman, and pay him from the public treasury? I say it is not done.

147. Although the pay-sheets are made up, a man's position may be altered two or three times a week? These men declare that they never held any of these positions at any time; that they were always privately employed by Mrs. Cunyngame. All of them say that. You will get evidence on that point that will astonish you.

148. How many men were employed at a time by Mrs. Cunyngame? I think she says herself, never more than three. When she asked me whether she might have one man, she had four.

149. Say there were three, and that they were getting 2d. or 3d. a day;—do you know whether they were doing any work in the asylum besides what they were doing in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen? They declared on their oaths that they were not. I have their declarations, stating that they never held those positions.

150. In paragraph 4 of your report, you charge Mrs. Cunyngame with "neglect of duty," and in support of that you say, first, that Mrs. Cunyngame did not go through the wards at night time;—are you not aware that the doctor recommended the appointment of two paid warders in the hospitals? I am perfectly aware of it.

151. And that it was their duty to go through the wards at night time, and report anything to Mrs. Cunyngame? I told her, especially after the report of the Royal Commission, that their supervision was not sufficient and that she would have to go through the wards herself to see that the patients got the comforts ordered by the doctor. I was aware that two attendants had been appointed to look after the hospital wards; but after reading the report of the Royal Commission, I did not consider that superintendence sufficient, and I told Mrs. Cunyngame that she, as superintendent was responsible for everything, and that she should make it her duty to go through the wards at night.

152. Every night? Every night, to see that the men got their medical comforts. It would not take half an hour.

153. Do you say that she never did this? I was there twice when she did not do it, and I have it on the authority of the attendants and patients that she never did.

154. Mr. Crick.] You were only there on two occasions? At night. It is impossible for me to prefer charges excepting upon hearsay evidence or personal observation. When I had hearsay evidence, I spoke to Mrs. Cunyngame about it. Patient after patient complained to me that they never got their medical comforts, and afterwards it transpired that they did not get them.

155. Mr. Bourke.] Supposing a complaint were made to you in September last, and you investigated it, you came to some conclusion about it? I did, and spoke to Mrs. Cunyngame about it.

156. Would you consider the matter closed then? If I told Mrs. Cunyngame? Certainly not. I remember the case of a man named Cadogan particularly who complained, but not on his own account. He said that the man opposite had not had his comforts. I sent at once to Mrs. Cunyngame about it. I called her in, and she frankly admitted that she did not know whether he had or not. She said that she had to rely upon the attendants, I told her often that she must do that duty herself.

157. You expected her to do everything? I did not. I expected her to go through the wards and see that things had been done which were ordered. I did it myself, and it is not a duty which I ought to be expected to do. I took what is called the hospital card. On it a man might be set down as having perhaps, beef-tea, milk, and brandy. I would go to that man's bedside with the card, and say, "What have you had to-day?" By doing that from time to time, I found out whether these men got their comforts, and it was only that, that I wanted Mrs. Cunynghame to do.

158. But Dr. Violette is supreme in the hospital? It is for him to issue directions, and for Mrs. Cunynghame to see that they are carried out.

159. But complaints are made to Dr. Violette, if the comforts are not supplied? They have complained to me mostly. They have power to complain to him.

160. Mr. Crick.] Would they see Dr. Violette more often than they would see you? They would see him every day.

161. They would have a right to complain to him? Yes.

162. It is the rule, you say, for him to give instructions, and for Mr. Cunynghame to carry them out? He puts his directions in the prescription book, and she is supposed to see that they are carried out.

163. The attendants were appointed on Dr. Violette's recommendation, and he gave the orders more especially to them? He would enter them in the book, and the medicines would be made up by the dispenser.

164. But the usual course would be for a complaint to be made to Dr. Violette? I do not know so much about that. No; I will tell you why. I think those men, as a rule, thought I took more personal interest in them than anyone else had done before, and they were therefore more inclined to report complaints to me than to the doctor, because they related to the superintendent's neglect, and they invariably said it was useless to complain to her.

165. Mr. Bourke.] You are prepared to call witnesses to prove that Mrs. Cunynghame never went through the wards at night? I was informed by them that she never went through the wards at night. She has admitted that in her reply, and has attempted to put the responsibility upon the attendants.

166. Your second statement in support of your charge of neglect of duty is that Mrs. Cunynghame trusted to the inmates to pass the stores;—what evidence have you to prove that? I shall call the clerk at the institution, and on three occasions I myself was present when Mrs. Cunynghame was not there, and stores were received. Once that happened with the meat. The meat was just being cut up for the pot when I got there, and Mrs. Cunynghame had not come from her bedroom on that morning.

167. You arrived at the institution between 6 and 7 o'clock? At 7 o'clock.

168. Do you know that the train arrives at Parramatta at 6:30 a.m.? I leave Sydney by the 6:30 train, which gets to Parramatta at 7:10, I think.

169. But at that time the train used to arrive in Parramatta at 6:30 a.m.? I am not prepared to say. I saw the meat passed in one particular morning, and I waited nearly half an hour for Mrs. Cunynghame to come out, but she did not come out. The meat had then been accepted.

170. You gave Mrs. Cunynghame orders that if she did not come out the meat could be left, and it could be passed when she did come out? I said further that a responsible attendant should take it. On this particular morning no one seemed to know how the meat got in.

171. You complained about Mrs. Cunynghame putting a memo. in the diary to the effect that the meat was bad? I did not complain of it.

172. You did? No; I complained about her making memos. about the meat, and not about the other stores. I have correspondence to show you the reason of my complaint.

173. Do you remember that a memo. was put in the diary about the meat being bad on a certain day, and you complained that Mrs. Cunynghame did not also write a memo. to say that the groceries were bad? I quite remember that.

174. You know Mr. Hugh Taylor? Very well; he is one of my dearest friends.

175. Did he ever complain to you about Mrs. Cunynghame? Never that I can recollect. In fact if you look at the report of the Royal Commission you will see that he gave evidence most strongly in her favour.

176. Do you know that Mr. Taylor's sons really supply this institution with meat, although the nominal contractor is R. L. Dunn? I believe for a time they did; in fact I know that for a time they did. Taylor Brothers is the name of the firm. I know nothing about Mr. Dunn as a "nominal" contractor.

177. Mr. Crick.] For how long? That is more than I can tell you.

178. Mr. Bourke.] You say that Mr. Taylor never made any complaints to you about Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes, I do say that; and I say more, that when it was coming to a climax he and his brother and another gentleman were the only three people who tried to save her. I know what complexion is being put upon this, and that is why I make the statement. His own words were, "For God's sake, Maxted, do not do anything about those defalcations, or else you will put that unfortunate woman in gaol."

179. Mr. Ritchie.] Who said this? Mr. Hugh Taylor.

180. Mr. Bourke.] The defalcations are those alluded to in your report? Yes, and many others, as these vouchers will show.

181. Another charge you make is that Mrs. Cunynghame did not report thefts of medical comforts from the sick, and in one grave instance she connived at the escape of a thief named Cooke who had throughout several weeks stolen porter, spirits, and wine from hospital patients? Yes.

182. How did Mrs. Cunynghame connive at his escape? Simply because, when she found out what had been done, she let the man out. The complexion I put upon it is this, that she was afraid. There had been so many instances in which the food had been found fault with that I suppose she was getting afraid. The complexion I put upon her not reporting to me was this: She discharged the man from the institution, as I am informed—in fact, she did not deny it when I told her—and told him to go to the Sydney office, as much as telling the man to hand himself over to the police. I was not informed of it until one day going through the ward one of the patients told me about Cooke, and then I initiated an inquiry, and found that the comforts which I had asked him to see were given to the sick had been stolen wholesale.

183. You appear to have given a tremendous lot of attention to this hospital? Not more than to the others.

184. You gave a great deal of attention to it, at any rate? Yes, I did; I was new to the thing, and it was natural that I should do so.

Mr.
S. Maxted,
31 July, 1889.

Mr.
S. Marted,
31 July, 1889.

185. Was it your habit to look into the diary when you went there to see what took place in your absence? I did not every time; I used to do it, I suppose, twice a week.
186. Are you aware that there was an entry in the diary with reference to Cooke, and an inquiry being made? That was after it was all done.
187. Did you see a memorandum in Mrs. Cunynghame's diary, which you were supposed to read whenever you went to the institution, with regard to Cooke? No; I did not see it till afterwards. My reply to you is that the mischief was done then. The man was gone; the man ought to have been handed over to the police; there is no question about that.
188. You made this matter of Cooke's a very serious one in your report? It seemed to me to be a very serious one. The men who had had certain comforts prescribed for them had been having them systematically stolen from them.
189. In a letter you wrote to Mrs. Cunynghame on the 7th September regarding this matter of Cooke's, you appear to have dealt with it, and to have regarded it as past and finished;—you did not report it to Mr. Crichton Walker or anything of that sort? If I had reported such a thing as that to Mr. Crichton Walker, and asked that the superintendent should be dismissed on that alone, I should have been laughed at. It is a succession of things I complain of. For instance, following that, I gave very specific directions about seeing personally that these comforts were distributed, and they were never carried out.
190. But here is your letter in which you appear to deal with the thing finally, and yet a couple of months later you drag it up as a serious charge against Mrs. Cunynghame;—this is the letter dated the 7th September, 1888:—

Madam,—Be good enough in the event of anything far less serious occurring than the robbery of patients' medical comforts to report it to me at once. Although the men have doubtless exaggerated a good deal in Cooke's case, there is no doubt in my mind that the man has been a brute and a thief; and it shows a great weakness of system that his misdoing could have continued so long under the very eyes of a paid wardman without discovery, notwithstanding the silence of the inmates themselves.

The safest plan now will be not to allow any inmate to occupy a post in which he can misappropriate property or comforts or ill-use the men. Whatever paid help may be necessary to prevent these scandals shall be given. I want you to send me a description of Cooke. He ought to have been given in charge at once. If I can find him now I will as a warning hand him over to the police upon his own admissions to you.

In that you seem to have dealt finally with the case. You do not charge Mrs. Cunynghame with anything? Good gracious me! She is supposed to have supervised the whole thing, to see the thing was carried out, otherwise what was the use of her being there?

191. Speaking of this man, Cooke, you say she ought to have given him in charge—that she connived at his escape, in fact? I say that.

192. Are you aware that Mrs. Cunynghame and Dr. Violette made an investigation into Cooke's matter, and the result was that they suspended him from his duties and put him in the yard pending your arrival? Yes, I am aware of that.

193. And yet you charge Mrs. Cunynghame with conniving at his escape? She put him into the yard, but how long did she keep him there?

194. But she had no power to keep him there? Putting him into the yard simply meant turning him out of the place, as he could escape at any time.

195. Is the asylum a gaol or not? Of course it is not.

196. Had Mrs. Cunynghame power to keep any man there against his will? She had power to send him down to the police.

197. Do you tender the following entry in the diary on the 3rd September to show what action Mrs. Cunynghame took with regard to Cook, at whose escape she is charged with conniving:—
“In consequence of a statement made by Phillip M'Carthy to hospital wardman Edgar, the charge being laid against John Cook, wardman of No. 3 Hospital, of robbing the patients of their medical comforts, viz., rum, porter, and eggs, and selling the first-named. The superintendent made a thorough inquiry into it in the presence of Edgar, and so serious did she consider it that she asked the doctor to assist her in the investigation. In the afternoon, which she did, with the result that Cook was discharged from the ward pending the Directors' sanction, and William Harding was appointed in his place?”
I do.

198. Do you know who are the principal witnesses with regard to this matter of stolen comforts? I think so.

199. Who informed you? I think it was Cadogan.

200. I suppose you investigated the matter up there? I did. I spoke to Edgar about it.

201. To whom else did you speak? I spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame. I told her exactly what I had done and what I thought she ought to have done.

202. What witnesses did you examine? I examined Edgar, Cadogan, and the man next to him.

203. Was it Jorginson? No; a man lying near the corner who saw him climb up and pass it from the window ledge of No. 3 ward to the apartments occupied by Mrs. Cunynghame. I assume that he passed it through for the purpose of selling it in the yard; I do not assume that he passed it through for her use.

204. Do you remember two men named M'Govan and Jorginson? Yes.

205. Were they not two of the principal witnesses? No.

206. Dr. Violette says that M'Govan was? He may have said so in connection with his inquiry.

207. Is not M'Govan an imbecile? I should not call him an imbecile, he is not a man to whose word I should attach much credence; he is of rather weak intellect; he is capable of talking coherently sometimes. I should not be surprised to find that he was an imbecile now. He had nothing whatever to do with my inquiry. Edgar, Cadogan, and another man, whose name I do not recollect, were the first to tell me of the matter.

208. The charges against Mrs. Cunynghame are, first, that she did not take action in the matter; and, secondly, that she connived at Cooke's escape? Yes.

209. Are you aware that she put Cooke in the yard to await your arrival? I was not aware of anything of the kind, it is a matter of such serious importance that a man should not be allowed to leave the yard.

210. I read your letter of September, and in that letter you appear to have dealt finally with the matter? There can be no dealing finally with these cases by me. It was a succession of cases which induced me to send in this complaint to the Government.

211. The object of my question is to ascertain whether you did not report that at the time, you report many things which are not serious enough to warrant dismissal? I do nothing of the kind. 212.

212. You are, after all, only a Branch of the Colonial Secretary's Department? If I were to report every little disagreement which has been dealt with in that way to the Colonial Secretary's Department, I should be considered simply a nuisance, and unfit to hold the position I occupy. If you call Dr. Manning he will tell you the same thing. I did not think it sufficiently serious of itself to refer it to the Colonial Secretary's Department.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1839.

213. You say here that you previously instructed Mrs. Cunynghame not to entrust stimulants to the inmates? I did.

214. When? Very soon after my appointment.

215. Are you positive about that statement? Perfectly positive. It is based on one of the cruelties alleged in the Report of the Royal Commission. My first duty was to take the report, and go in to the actions which were alleged to have taken place.

216. That is, that the patients did not get their medical comforts? Yes, and other things of that kind. I took them in detail, and I asked her to keep a special watch over them. I wanted to introduce certain reforms, which have since been introduced and very successfully carried out. I selected Mrs. Cunynghame first, as having control of the smallest institution, and next, because I considered her to be one of the smartest officials. I said to her, "I see by the Estimates you are only getting so much per annum; now if you will enable me to show by your actions that these reforms can be carried out, I will see whether I cannot have your salary brought up to the same amount as that of the other superintendents."

217. The reforms were principally of a dietary nature? That is one of them.

218. Did she not give you every assistance with regard to the new dietary scale? She did not. That was the cause of the first difference between us.

219. Did she not draw up a bill of fare at your request? Yes; but not until I had to force her into doing it. She said that it could not be done; but I told her that it must be done, and it was done. I first submitted a dietary scale, which I drew up after consultation with Dr. Manning and Dr. Kenwick, which had reference to the same sort of dietary scale as that set forth in the report.

220. Did Mrs. Cunynghame, at your request, draw up a dietary scale? She did.

221. Did you accept that scale? I did, with variations from others which I had.

222. It was satisfactory to you, with some modifications? Yes.

223. It was under her control and management that it was carried into effect? It was under my constant supervision.

224. Was Mrs. Cunynghame there as superintendent? She was there nominally as a superintendent; but what I complain of is that she was practically not a superintendent.

225. You have acknowledged that she drew up a dietary scale, that it met your wishes, and that it was satisfactorily worked under her management while she was there? Yes; while she was there, but not under her direction. I was continually dodging up and down to see that it was being carried out. I remember one day seeing the pudding, the potatoes, the meat, and the vegetables all scrodd together—a mess not fit to give to a pig. I called Mrs. Cunynghame in, and she admitted that she had not seen it. The men were about to sit down to dinner. I made her alter the system, and go round herself.

225½. On what date? I do not remember the day, but Mrs. Cunynghame must remember the occasion, because I made her remove the pudding from the meat and vegetables.

226. Mr. Ritchie.] Was it long before she was dismissed;—was it on the 20th October, the feast day? No, it was not the feast day.

227. Mr. Crick.] Was that after the new scale was introduced? Yes.

228. It would be on a Tuesday, as it was the only day they had pudding? It might be. I have not the details at the present time; but I will bring the minute under which I instructed the superintendents that they might vary the diet, so long as it was made substantially the same, because it might not be convenient on certain occasions for the contractors to supply certain provisions.

229. Mr. Ritchie.] Was there an objection to that mode of serving up the food? Yes.

230. It should have been served in separate courses? Yes.

231. Had you given any instruction prior to that time that the food should be so served? No, I had not.

232. Do you know if it was the habit to serve the food in that holus bolus fashion? I never saw it done except at this institution. I gave instructions that it should not be served in that way again. I cannot say whether the instructions were carried out or not; but they might have been, because I know nothing to the contrary.

233. You are not positive whether it was carried out afterwards during her management? I cannot say.

234. Mr. Bourke.] It occurred only once to your knowledge? Only once to my knowledge.

235. In the fourth paragraph of your report, in regard to charging Mrs. Cunynghame with neglect of duty, you allege that a patient was dying for two days, and that she knew nothing about it, but you do not give the name of the patient? The man's name was Kilmar. I think you will find the matter entered in the diary on the 7th of October. Another case is that of a man named Elmas.

236. Is that the case of a man who, you say, was for three days without medical comforts? Yes.

237. How did you know? Because I was informed.

238. By whom? I could not find any record of the man having received medical comforts for three days.

239. Mr. Williamson.] Have you the book here? Yes, it is here.

240. Mr. Bourke.] Who orders the medical comforts? Dr. Violette.

241. Mr. Kidd.] You have given evidence in regard to Mrs. Cunynghame's attention being directed to the fact that a man was dying;—did the doctor visit the patient when he was dying? Yes.

242. Is it not possible that a man might be in a dying condition and that the doctor did not draw the attention of the superintendent to the fact;—how do you know that Mrs. Cunynghame had a knowledge that the man was dying for two days and neglected his case? The custom is for patients who wish to see the doctor to be asked whether they so wish. I instructed Mrs. Cunynghame to ask if any patients wished to see the doctor; but she delegated that duty to the inmate wardman, and the consequence was that this man was not asked, and the doctor's attention was not drawn to him.

243. To ask whom? To ask the inmate whether he required to see the doctor. An inmate may be too far gone to complain, and it would be for a trained woman like Mrs. Cunynghame to see his condition at once and speak to the doctor.

244. Mr. Bourke.] Is not this the case; if an inmate feels unwell he reports it either to Mrs. Cunynghame or to one of the wardmen? No. A man might come in almost in extremis. I gave positive instructions to Mrs. Cunyngame when I found out the defects of the system under which inmate wardsmen asked patients whether they wished to see the doctor. I told Mrs. Cunyngame that I wanted her to do that duty herself, and to personally go through the hospitals, as she was a trained nurse, and whenever she thought it was necessary to direct the doctor's attention to a patient who had not complained.

Mr.
S. Mexted.
21 July, 1889.

245. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you give these instructions in writing? I did not.

246. Was it not usual to give instructions in writing? I did not give any instructions in writing. I trusted to the honor and honesty of the superintendent. It is not usual to give instructions in writing. I should consider it almost an insult to a superintendent to give him a written instruction about a trivial matter.

247. Mr. Bourke.] You have given some trivial instructions, as regards the diet, for instance? I do not think so.

248. Mr. Kidd.] Is it not possible that a patient might be in a dying condition, and that even an experienced nurse in some cases would not be able to realize that such was the case? I can hardly undertake to answer that question. It would require a medical man to give the information.

249. Mr. Crick.] Is it not possible, where there are so many patients, that occasionally a person may be dying, and that even the doctor, without a daily examination, would not be able to tell? I can quite realize that.

250. Is it not probable that it might have happened in this case? Not in a case extending, I should say, over two days. This man was suffering from pulmonary consumption.

251. How did you come to learn that he had been suffering for two days? I inquired, seeing the state he was in, how long he had been like that.

252. He was in a fearfully low condition? Just at the last moment, at the end of the two days.

253. How did you gather that it was two or four or six days? Because I inquired.

254. How did you arrive at the conclusion that the man was in this condition for two days? I went to the wardsmen and I said, "How long has this man been like this?" He said, "Two or three days;" and I said, "He is dying;" and then I sent for Mrs. Cunyngame. It turned out that he was dying. He would have died if he had been left another few hours without sustenance;—there is no question about that.

255. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose the doctor can give evidence in this case? Yes, if he is asked. I do not know what evidence he will give for I had no conversation with him. The superintendent was so shocked that she ejaculated, "That man is very bad." I asked her if he had any medical comforts. She answered, "I do not know." I asked, "Don't you think he ought to have some brandy or wine." She answered, "Yes, I will go off and get him some at once," and she went off and got him some. The man was placed in the hospital, but no record of medical comforts was entered in the hospital books at the time.

256. Mr. Bourke.] You mentioned the case of a man named Kilmar, will you be good enough to confine your remarks for the present to his case? Kilmar was admitted into the hospital, I saw him, on the 6th of October, and he died on the 8th. The medical entry was "omit wine, brandy four ounces." I saw this man on the 7th of October. My attention was specially directed to him because there was a screen around him. I went over and looked at the man; he was in No. 3 bed in the upstairs' ward, near the door. He then seemed to be dying, and as a matter of fact he was dying, because he died two days afterwards. I went down stairs then. I did not tell Mrs. Cunyngame then that he was in a dying state, but I questioned her about his case. I had so little faith in her at that time that I had to descend to the meanness of questioning her to see whether she knew anything about the matter.

257. Mr. Williamson.] Did you mention his name to her? I did. I also mentioned the bed he was in.

258. What did you say to her? I think I said "How is Kilmar to-day?" she said, "Oh, getting on first-rate." I said "Has he taken his food to-day?" she said, "Yes." I said, "When did you last see him?" she said, "Two or three hours ago." I said to her, "How can you say that, go up and look at him." I charged her then distinctly with lying to me; and she admitted that she had not seen the man. The man died on the 8th of October.

259. Mr. Bourke.] What time of the day was that? I cannot quite remember.

260. Was it in the morning or the afternoon? It would be after the morning. I cannot remember whether it was in the afternoon or in the evening.

261. Your charge against Mrs. Cunyngame is that this man was dying for two days, and that she did not know anything about the matter? Exactly. I questioned her as to how long he had been in that condition. I think the doctor can give the same evidence.

262. Mr. Crick.] Was the doctor present when you charged Mrs. Cunyngame with telling a lie? No; I did not say she was telling a lie. I said, "You are deceiving me, and you know it. I am getting quite sick of it."

263. Mr. Bourke.] Your charge is that Mrs. Cunyngame had not seen the man for two days before he died;—can you prove that she did not see him the day before? I simply told her that I had been informed that she had not seen him for two days.

264. That is all the evidence you have to give? Yes; excepting her own admission.

265. That is only for one day; your charge is in regard to two days? I charged her with neglecting this man for two days, and although she denied at the time, she eventually admitted the fact and asked me to overlook it.

266. You have no evidence to offer about the previous day at all except that you were informed? No.

267. Who informed you? The attendant at the time.

268. What was his name? I do not know. I charged her with neglect of duty, and she denied it. I said, "How can you say so when you have not seen the man for two days?"

269. Did she acknowledge that? Yes; she asked me to overlook it. I then said, "I have had so much of this kind of thing that I am quite sick of it."

270. The man was in the hospital at the time? Yes.

271. With regard to the case of the man Elmas, you say in your report that he had not received medical comforts for three days? I will show you the entry in the doctor's book.

272. Is it not for the doctor to order the issue of medical comforts? Yes; but I say it is for the superintendent to look at each patient and see whether he is receiving medical comforts. It is quite possible that a superintendent, seeing a man sick in the yard, may direct him to be taken into the hospital, which is frequently done, and unless she or the inmate attendant reports the matter to the doctor the man may be overlooked.

273. Mr. Ritchie.] Is it your duty to see that the doctor, the matron, and all other subordinates do their duty? It is.
- 273½. You do not interfere with the doctor in the practice of his profession? I would not presume to do so.
274. Still you would consider it your duty, if you saw it was necessary, to report that he was not attending properly to his duty? Yes.
275. Mr. Bourke.] Is not the doctor in full charge of the hospital branch of the Asylum? No one is in full charge of any branch of the institution except myself. The doctor is simply visiting medical officer.
276. Is he not independent of Mrs. Cunynghame in the matter. Does he not issue his own orders? Yes, certainly.
277. Mr. Ritchie.] Was Mrs. Cunynghame bound to obey his orders? No; she was bound to obey my orders, except with regard to medical comforts.
278. If the doctor were to prescribe certain medical comforts or medicines for a patient was she bound to obey them? Undoubtedly.
279. Without referring to you at all? Exactly; and if she saw that all was not right it was her duty to report the matter to me, as she and her husband did untruthfully in more than one case.
280. Mr. Bourke.] All complaints about the hospital are first made to the doctor? Certainly not; they should be made to the superintendent.
281. Is it not the case and has it not been the case for some time whenever there is anything wrong at the hospital for the complaint to be made first to the doctor? I understand your question now. It would be by the hospital attendant, either Edgar or Warner. If anything occurred during the doctor's absence it would be the attendant's duty immediately to report it to the superintendent, who would send for the doctor.
282. If Elmas was so bad for three days that he required medical comforts it is the doctor's fault? No; it is not. I have no doubt in my own mind how it happened. I have no doubt from the records as to how it happened.
283. Was the doctor there during these three days? He visits every day.
284. You acknowledge that the doctor orders the medical comforts? Yes; but I have also explained the system under which cases are reported to him. I repeat that it is the superintendent's duty to go through the hospital wards every morning and see how the patients are, and also to see what medical comforts they are to get for the day; otherwise how are the medical comforts to be given out?
285. The doctor leaves the orders? Yes; in his book. In such a case as that of this man named Elmas, who was placed in the hospital, it would be the superintendent's duty to know that he required something, and, at any rate, to report his case to the doctor.
286. Did the doctor go there every day? That does not affect the question at all.
287. But it does affect the question? The doctor might come and the man might be dying, but the case might not be reported by the superintendent to the doctor, who might never see the man.
288. Does not the doctor come in and go round the wards? He does not go round every bed-side; he could not do it; it would be impossible to do it.
289. He is paid for doing it? It is impossible to do it. He has, I suppose, between 600 and 700 people to see.
290. Mr. Kidd.] How many patients would there be in the hospital of this one institution? He would have about 60 patients there.
291. And the doctor would not go round each sick-bed unless his attention was called to each case? That is the fact.
292. Mr. Bourke.] Yet it was on his orders that the medical comforts were distributed? Yes, under the system I have just explained to you.
293. Mr. Crick.] Was there anyone else besides Mrs. Cunynghame whose duty it was to report a case of sickness to the doctor? Yes.
294. Mr. Bourke.] Two paid attendants? Yes, while the doctor was visiting.
295. Who were appointed on the recommendation of Dr. Violette? Yes. They simply report to the responsible head of the institution, whose duty it is to see that all the duties of the subordinate officers are carried out.
296. Mr. Crick.] Who were the two attendants when the man was in this dying state? Edgar and Warner.
297. Where are they now? They have been subpoenaed as witnesses.
298. Are they still at the institution? Yes.
299. You have not ordered their discharge? I will explain that to you: I asked Edgar whether this case had been reported, and he said it was no use reporting it to Mrs. Cunynghame because to use his own words he got no satisfaction.
300. Mr. Kidd.] The doctor goes round every day? Yes.
301. These two attendants have charge of the sick patients? Yes.
302. Is it not the duty of each attendant to go round his ward and point out each case to the doctor himself, even though he should also report to the superintendent? I will have to answer "no" first and then explain the weakness of the system. You see these two paid attendants are not constantly in the wards. Inmates are paid to overlook the wards and they are called "inmate attendants." It is the duty of the paid attendants to go through the wards and see that things are all right, and also to go through the wards with the doctor.
303. My question is, are they supposed at all times to go round with the doctor? Yes.
304. How can it be possible that a case is overlooked if these men in charge of the sick beds are aware of the inhumanity, so to speak, of the superintendent—if they are humane enough to draw the doctor's attention to that particular case? That has been the system. They trusted to paid attendants, who in their turn trusted to inmate warders to report the cases of those patients who asked to see the doctor. The effect of the system has been that the superintendent has shunted her responsibility in the matter on to the paid attendant, and the paid attendant has shunted his responsibility on to the inmate attendant.
305. Mr. Bourke.] How do you know that? From my own observation.
306. In Dr. Violette's second report, in reply to your inquiry of the 6th November, he says:—

"Many

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1889.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
31 July, 1859.

"Many complaints have been made to me with regard to the distribution of medical comforts in the hospital ward. The supervision of the inmate attendants was so unsatisfactory on my taking over medical charge of the institution that as soon as I became acquainted with the defects of the system I applied for two paid wardsmen to supervise the inmate attendants and to instruct them how to discharge their duties as well to care for the more urgent cases. These wardsmen were ordered to be engaged by the Colonial Secretary, Sir Henry Parkes. The matron's duties now are consequently those of superintendent alone, no work in the wards being necessary on her part." Is this correct? My directions to the superintendent were not actually to do the work, but to see that it was done. She was the head of the institution, and to whom could I look but her? It was of no use punishing a warder.

307. In the matter of medical comforts you do not blame the doctor nor the two paid attendants appointed on his recommendation, but only Mrs. Cunyngame? The doctor's duty is simply to prescribe.

308. He did not prescribe? Because it would appear that the case was not pointed out to him.

309. Do you think Mrs. Cunyngame ought to have pointed it out to him? Yes, I think she ought to have known the physical condition of every inmate of that ward.

310. Mr. Crick.] Then it does not matter what dereliction of duty there may be on the part of those paid attendants, you do not hold them responsible in any way, but throw the whole of the blame on the superintendent? I do say that she is primarily responsible, and it is her duty to see that the work is done. If she had pointed out to me that an attendant was not doing his duty I would have dismissed him on the spot. I can only find out through the superintendent whether the wardsmen were doing their duties.

311. Do you think the paid wardsmen did not do their duty in the case of the man who was dying? I do not think they did their duty.

312. And they are still in the institution? Yes, for the reason I have stated.

313. Mr. Bourke.] The wardsmen did not do their duty in the case of the man Elnas? The man had not any medical comforts provided; they were not prescribed by the doctor until attention was called to it.

314. You say that the doctor was content to do double duty. What do you mean by that? He was doing duty which I considered the superintendent ought to have done, as well as doing his own duties.

315. What was that? I understand that he was really acting practically as superintendent as well as medical man.

316. But then he had nothing to do with the rest of the Asylum—only the hospital? Only the hospital, and overlooking and going through the sheds. I have seen him doing it myself.

317. Had he any right to do that? No, he had no right to do it.

318. Don't you think he was exceeding his duty? Yes, to prevent general neglect.

319. Mr. Ritchie.] Is it not the duty of the doctor to superintend the sanitary arrangements? It is.

320. Then he would have to superintend the place generally? What I mean by general management is that he would have no power to interfere with the men and to give directions as to their general conduct.

321. But as far as the cleanliness and the sanitary condition of the place are concerned, he would have ample power to give direction to the matron superintendent if necessary? Yes.

322. Mr. Bourke.] In doing that he would not be doing double duty would he? No.

323. Then that matter of double duty falls to the ground? I do not see that it does. The doctor complained to me that he could not get his orders carried out unless he waited and saw to it himself.

324. We have not any substantiation of that? The doctor said that in addition to doing his own duty he had to see that what he ordered was done, that is what I mean by double duty.

325. Mr. Hawthorne.] Would that be the fault of the wardsmen or of the superintendent? I say it is the fault of the superintendent, it is her duty to report to me.

326. You look to the superintendent alone to see to everything being carried out that is recommended by the doctor not to the wardsmen? Yes, she says in her own statement that she takes the responsibility; things could not work otherwise.

327. Mr. Bourke.] The charge you make against her is that of repeated disobedience of orders; in paragraph 5 you say that she asked you to allow her to have an able-bodied inmate as her own private servant; did she not ask you for a female help for herself;—did she not say that the other asylums had matrons and sub-matrons? She never asked me for one at all or I should have recommended it. You will see that she objected to a female servant on certain grounds.

328. That is to a female servant, but a sub-matron is a different thing? She never asked me.

329. Mr. Kidd.] You say that if Mrs. Cunyngame had asked for an assistant matron you would have been very glad to have appointed one? I should have been very glad.

330. You knew the duties she had to perform and seeing that you would have acted in that way; was that not recognizing that Mrs. Cunyngame had too much to do? The question never entered into my mind.

331. But you say as to your own knowledge, admitting that she had too much to do, that you would have granted her an assistant matron if she had asked for one? Yes.

332. Is that not an admission that she had too much to look after? I do think that there was too much.

333. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know Dr. Ashburton Thompson? Yes.

334. Did he tell you that Mrs. Cunyngame was overworked? No. You are coming now to the question of Dr. Ashburton Thompson. I had a consultation with him when he was the visiting medical officer, and he concurred with me that Mrs. Cunyngame was not fit for the office she held. I am going to call him.

335. You say that you declined to give an able-bodied inmate for a servant; then you say, "The request could only have been made to mislead me, as at that time she concealed from me that she had four inmates exclusively employed as private servants, one as cook, one designated as butler, and two at general house-work?" The cook was a man named Cummings, and the butler a man named Helmrich, and the names of the two others I can get.

336. Do you say that she had four at one time? No; she had three at one time, and another one would come in at another part of the day; there were generally three.

337. Are you aware that the man who cooked in Mrs. Cunyngame's private kitchen cooked also for the inmates? He declares that he did no other work.

338. You say that frequently a fifth inmate was similarly employed;—five at one time? Generally there were three, very frequently there were four, and often a fifth was called in.

339. Mr. Kidd.] Were there four or five employed at one time? Four or five generally.

340. Mr. Crick.] Were there four or five? Take it as four if you like.

341. Mr. Bourke.] Generally there were three? Generally three.

Mr.
S. Marted.
31 July, 1889.

342. You say, "And these men were allowed to ration themselves from the Government stores without oversight under a system which, when I discovered it, had for a long time led to serious misappropriation of provisions." In your letter of the 24th to the Under Secretary you exonerate Mrs. Cunynghame? I did not exonerate her; what I did was to exonerate her from deliberately misappropriating provisions, but I, at the same time, stated that she had been very indiscreet. I gave her positive instructions as to the course she was to adopt for the future, and on calling some days afterwards I found that she had not taken the slightest notice of my instructions.

342½. Did you give her instructions that those men were not to go to the kitchen any more to take the rations? Yes.

343. And they were not carried out? No. I went and saw a man taking away meat, and had it weighed for the number of men he said it was for, and it was exactly a double ration.

344. On the 24th October you make a report on that, and you give her certain instructions, which she says she carried out, and then considered the matter closed? I say that she did not carry out the instructions. I went four or five days afterwards and saw the same thing going on. At 7 o'clock in the morning I saw a man going with the meat, and when he saw me he stopped. I said, "Do as you have been always doing." He cut the meat off, and I said, "Is that what you take for that number of men?" I had it weighed, and it was a double ration.

345. Mr. Hawthorne.] Your object in going at seven in the morning was to prove whether your instructions were being carried out or not? I went in regard to the provisions, and to see how things generally were going on in reference to the breakfast.

346. Mr. Bourke.] You mentioned another case of disobedience;—you said that Dr. Violette directed that an inmate named Cumming should be sent to the hospital for consumptives, at Liverpool, for special treatment;—there is an entry in the book about that? I will show you how the doctor was induced to make that entry.

347. The doctor ordered that this man should go to Liverpool? Yes; the man was in a very bad state; he was taken out of the hospital without the doctor's instructions; and the doctor found him acting as cook in Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen, and the doctor ordered him to Liverpool.

348. If she sent him away in the first place it would have been in obedience to the doctor's orders, would it not? Yes.

349. Then in accordance with a further order, she kept him there? I directed her then to send him; he was cook in Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen, and not a hospital patient. Mrs. Cunynghame knew that I was the person to send him away; she disobeyed my orders in that respect.

350. What was she to do between you and the doctor? I am the person to be obeyed in everything, except hospital matters.

351. Mr. Crick.] Did you attach much importance to it? I did; it was a repetition of disobedience of hers which had been going on for some time. She asked whether she might have one man in the kitchen, and at the time she had three or four men there, this man being one of them.

352. Was it not on account of this order of Dr. Violette that you sent the man to Liverpool? Yes.

353. Then you did not allow him to remain? I said to the doctor, "Is that man a hospital patient?" and he said, "Of course not; he is employed as her cook;" then I said, "Very well, I will deal with the matter." Then I went to Mrs. Cunynghame.

354. Then you told her one thing, and the doctor told her another? Yes. She knew that my authority was supreme in this matter, and she ought to have obeyed me. I insisted on the man going before the lapse of the month.

355. Did you insist on it? I said to Mrs. Cunynghame, "You had no right to persuade the doctor after I had given you positive orders."

356. The fourth charge is that of untruthfulness, and in support of that there are two allegations; the first being that Mrs. Cunynghame reported that she passed the provisions herself, and you say that she did not? I say she did not; I can only swear to four occasions, but I have evidence on the point.

357. You said three this morning? No; if I said only three I made a mistake; there was once the meat and three times the groceries.

358. The second charge was with regard to general untruthfulness, you say that Mrs. Cunynghame supplied a paragraph to the Herald, what evidence have you about that? It was a paragraph about something that was being done, and I did not want anything to be made public about it until we had ascertained the results.

359. Mr. Crick.] Did you attach much importance to it? Not at all, except that I was told an untruth about it; if she had admitted that she did it there would have been no more about it.

360. Mr. Hawthorne.] What was the paragraph about? It referred to certain changes which were made by me, and carried out by Mrs. Cunynghame. The paragraph said how admirably they were working, and so on. I had asked her to keep the matter dark until we saw how it answered; not to let it get into the newspapers.

361. Mr. Kidd.] Then you had some idea that she was going to send the information to the newspapers? Yes; I know that she does that.

362. Mr. Bourke.] You found the charge of untruthfulness on that? Yes, and upon other things, what she said about having gone through the wards.

363. Mr. Ritchie.] Did Mrs. Cunynghame ever admit, after having denied it, that she had sent the paragraph to the Herald? She admitted having signed it. A clerk there wrote it for her, and she signed it. She told me at first, when I asked her, that she had nothing to do with it; she said it came solely from the inmates.

364. Are you sure that you did not directly or indirectly sanction it? No; I was rather strong on the point.

365. Yes, after it appeared, but it is possible that a man may approve of a thing beforehand but not approve of it afterwards when he sees it in print. You did not approve of it directly or indirectly? I can show that I immediately investigated the thing, and that I sent a telegram to Mrs. Cunynghame about it.

366. Chairman.] What was the puff? There was nothing objectionable in the paragraph, but supplying it to the papers was a deliberate act of disobedience, as I had asked her to keep the matter as quiet as she could.

Mr.
S. Marted.
31 July, 1889.

367. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you ever get hold of the manuscript afterwards to prove that she signed it? No.
368. How do you know that she signed it? I was told.
369. Mr. Bourke.] By whom? By a person connected with a newspaper.
370. Chairman.] Did you make inquiries at the Herald Office to ascertain? No; I made inquiries at Parramatta of the assistant editor of a newspaper. I was told that I could, if I was mean enough to do it, have got possession of the manuscript. Mrs. Cunynghame does not deny that she signed the paragraph.
371. Mr. Bourke.] She says it emanated from the inmates? By signing it, knowing what it was intended for, she accepted it as her own.
372. What she said was that it emanated from the inmates;—is that not so? Yes.
373. Mr. Kidd.] I should have thought it would be gratifying to you to have a notice of the institution in the press? I did not want it done then.
374. Mr. Ritchie.] You would not take the insertion of a paragraph to be a very great offence? I should not have troubled about it but for the fact that one thing following on another showed that she was deliberately disobeying me.
375. Mr. Bourke.] Immediately on Mrs. Cunynghame being suspended Mrs. Brooke was put in? Yes, temporarily.
376. And she has since been appointed permanently? Yes; but I am not sure that was intended originally. Dr. Violette and I were so struck with her good management that we recommended it. Mr. Fosbery, Mr. Street, Mr. McMillan, Mr. Inglis, Dr. McLaurin, and others also recommended it.
377. How long was it before she was permanently appointed? I think the papers will show you that.
378. Is she not separated from her husband? Yes, and it is a very painful story. She is about as cruelly-used a woman as I ever came across.
379. You had only a slight acquaintance with her? Only a slight acquaintance.
380. Had she had any experience of such institutions? I will tell you how she came to be appointed. There were a number of applicants, and I think I selected her just to put her in temporarily, and to tell you the truth I did not at that time contemplate her permanent employment. I thought it would be but a lift for her.
381. Mr. Crick.] Is she a friend of Mr. Hugh Taylor's? As far as I know, she is not.
382. Mr. Bourke.] Is she a friend of Mr. Critchett Walker's? Not particularly, I think. It was Mr. Inglis who sent her to Mr. Walker. I do not think that I saw Mrs. Brooke six times before she went there; then it was only when she was applying for employment.
383. I suppose you have many other persons of experience? I have not; they seem to be able to get employment readily enough. There was one person whom I thought of trying, but her character was too bad.
384. You have none on your list who have had experience? Yes, I have some.
385. Yet you select a woman with no experience at all to fill an important position like this in a place where there are 300 men. You know I may have heard a great deal about this woman? I have been told that a great deal of mud is to be thrown.
386. I want to know whether Mr. Walker recommended her? I do not think so; it was the gentleman I have named; and I believe that Mr. Inglis introduced her to Mr. Walker.
387. Did Mr. Walker introduce her to you? I think he spoke to me about her in a general way, as he usually does about applicants; but I knew her previously.
388. Do you know what she was doing before she went to this place? She was living at either Strathfield or Burwood; I do not know which.
389. Was she in or out of employment? She was out of employment. You can have her here, and I think she will tell you a story that will have your sympathy at once.
390. Mr. Ritchie.] When she sent in her application, did she send any testimonials? Yes, from Mr. J. R. Street, Mr. Fosbery, Dr. McLaurin, Mr. McMillan, M.P., and Mr. Gotthelf.
391. Was her appointment made upon your recommendation? Yes.
392. Did you have any pressure beyond those testimonials brought to bear on you by anyone else outside these testimonialists? No pressure whatever.
393. No persuasion? No persuasion.
394. Mr. Hawthorne.] Simply those letters of recommendation? Yes; I knew that the woman was a business-like person.
395. Mr. Ritchie.] Has she given you anything like satisfaction since she was appointed? Yes. I venture to say that none of the institutions, especially those having hospitals, have been attended to better than that has been.
396. You said that Mr. Walker had spoken to you—one might infer from that that he knew her? He asked me what I thought of her testimonials. I do not know exactly what he said, but he did not bring anything like pressure to bear upon me.
397. You would infer that he had some knowledge of her? Yes, but only from her applications for employment.
398. Had you any idea of appointing Mrs. Brooke before Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? I would have given her an appointment if I could.
399. Mr. Crick.] So you knew her before the suspension? Yes; I have already said so.
400. Had she an application in before that date? No, I think not.
401. Did you tell her to put in an application? I did not. I think she had a sort of general application at the Colonial Secretary's office for employment—a verbal application I think it was. It was then that Mr. Walker spoke to me about her; she had gone and asked for work, being in distress.
402. That is a very unusual course, is it not? No; many women go there and do that.

WEDNESDAY, 7 AUGUST, 1889.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,		MR. FRANK FARNELL,
MR. CRICK,		MR. KIDD,
MR. HAWTHORNE,		MR. RITCHIE,
MR. NOBBS.

JAMES PETER HOWE, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sydney Maxted called in and further examined.

403. Mr. Bourke.] I wish you to explain how it is that in the third paragraph of your report you charge Mrs. Cunyngame with sending a number of men up to the doctor for transmission to you for punishment, while at the end of the seventh paragraph you say that one of your charges against Mrs. Cunyngame is that it was no use of the warders making any complaint to her, because she would not take notice of them? I said they complained so to me.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
7 Aug., 1889.

404. But how do you reconcile these two contradictory statements? I do not see the discrepancy.

405. In the third paragraph you say:—"Then I found that for the most trifling offences men were sent up daily to the visiting medical officer for transmission to me for punishment, until he protested, and I refused to receive further complaints." Then, in the seventh paragraph, you say, "The paid subordinates have informed me that they have been afraid to report instances of neglect and unkindness in the sick wards on the part of inmate-attendants, because the superintendent has practically shown them by her treatment subsequently that such information was not acceptable." I understand your meaning now. Edgar, Warner, and paid inmates, when I have complained to them about not reporting cases to Mrs. Cunyngame have told me that they did not care about doing it because, to use Edgar's expression, "she marked them."

406. That does not explain the discrepancy between those two statements? It does. Cases might have been sent to the doctor, and the doctor might have done as I have described there, and still attendants might be afraid to report to the superintendent. I cannot see any discrepancy between the two statements. One instance, in reference to the attendant Edgar not reporting a case to Mrs. Cunyngame has just occurred to me. It was the case of a paralytic patient found in a corner of the hospital ward unable to get on to his bed. Edgar, the wardman, was in charge at that time, and a man named Drew had got drunk on that day, and I discovered that this paralytic patient had been for some time in a very painful position in the room whilst this man Drew was said to be drunk; I said to Edgar on that occasion "Why did you not report it to Mrs. Cunyngame?" His reply was to the effect that latterly he had not reported to Mrs. Cunyngame because he had found that when he did so she marked him.

407. Still you complain in the third paragraph of your report that there were too many reports coming to you, and that they were rather trivial? That is a different kind of thing altogether. I complained of very trivial complaints but surely the matter which I have just explained cannot be characterized as trivial.

408. Mr. Crick.] I understood that Edgar admitted that he did not report that case to Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes.

409. Mr. Bourke.] The first charge made in your report on the 4th December, really amounts to a charge of misappropriation of money on the part of Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes.

410. Do you remember that shortly after you were appointed Director of Asylums, when you went to Parramatta early in August, Mrs. Cunyngame showed you a despatch-box, with books and bills and money in it belonging to the inmates, and asked you for instructions as to what she would do with them? She did nothing of the kind. My explanation of that is, that seeing that the other superintendents had passed in moneys of this description to the office, and being struck on reference to the office books with the fact that Mrs. Cunyngame had never passed in any moneys of this kind, so far as I could trace, I asked her if she held any such moneys.

411. You say Mrs. Cunyngame never passed in moneys? Not so far as I could trace from the books at the office. I ascertained when I took office that from the time when Mr. King left, and, so far as I could discover, previously, no moneys of this character had been passed into the office. Being struck by the books with the fact that no moneys of this description from old men had come in from Mrs. Cunyngame—certainly from the time when Mr. King left (I am in a position to produce evidence on that point), and there was an interregnum of eleven months between that time and my appointment—and seeing that other superintendents had passed in moneys, I asked her if she held any such moneys as these; any inmates' moneys, that is the expression I used.

412. When did you ask that? I think that was on my first or second visit. Her reply to me was that she had not. I told her then that all moneys collected by her in future must be sent in at once to the office, and she was written to twice subsequently, I believe. My books will show that after that these moneys did come in, but no return whatever was made to the office of the moneys referred to in my report.

413. That is, the moneys received between Mr. King's retirement and your appointment; you say there was no return made then? Yes; and there would be some of these which were received previously.

414. But there were some moneys sent in after your appointment? Yes; moneys received by her afterwards. But no reference whatever was made to the moneys which at that time she held, some of them being the moneys of a number of men who were dead, and those were moneys which certainly should have gone into the Treasury at once.

415. Mr. Crick.] Under what regulation was Mrs. Cunyngame required to send those moneys to the Treasury;—is there any printed regulation? Not that I am aware; but it is a requirement from every public officer on the part of the Treasury.

416. There is no regulation, you say? No printed regulation that I know of. It is a generally understood custom.

417. Mr. Bourke.] These were not public moneys, were they? These were inmates' moneys. Certainly the moneys belonging to dead men immediately became public moneys, and ought to have been passed in at once.

Mr.
S. Marted.
7 Aug., 1889.

418. Mr. Williamson.] Mrs. Cunynghame had been doing so eleven months previously to your appointment—sending the moneys in when she was first appointed? No.

419. Mr. Bourke.] For those eleven months you say there were no moneys sent in? Not any.

420. Will you swear positively that on your first or second visit to the asylum Mrs. Cunynghame did not show you a despatch-box and say that it contained moneys and accounts concerning the inmates' moneys? I did see a despatch-box there, and she said she had some documents in it, but made no reference to books or moneys.

421. Now you are coming to it? I am anxious to give you the truth, and nothing but the truth. I asked her, as far as my recollection serves me, if there was anything that it was necessary for us to discuss, because we were going into a lot of other matters, and she said there was not. I know what you want to arrive at. You want to arrive at whether I saw that small account book which was taken out of the box after Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension. I can produce evidence that I never saw it until after that time.

422. You do acknowledge that you saw the despatch-box? Yes; Mrs. Cunynghame told me that she had public documents in a despatch-box, together with her private papers, but that there was nothing of any importance.

423. I will ask you the question again: Did Mrs. Cunynghame, soon after your appointment, show you a despatch-box, and tell you that there were books and documents in that despatch-box relating to the inmates' moneys? I again answer "No."

424. You saw the despatch-box, and were told that there were some documents in it, but you were not told what they related to? She said she had a lot of her own private accounts and other documents mixed up with some unimportant official letters, as I have already told you.

425. You acknowledge that you were shown the box, and told that there were some documents in it, but you were not told that they related to the inmates' moneys? Yes; I distinctly say that no reference was made to inmates' moneys, except when I asked her whether she held them.

426. Mr. Kidd.] Had you a knowledge that Mrs. Cunynghame had some money in her possession belonging to the inmates of the institution at the time when you gave her instructions to send on all moneys from that time? No, I had not.

427. What induced you to give those instructions? Because I saw that there were no moneys coming in, and I said, "If you collect such moneys, send them on."

428. But did you not suspect that she must have had moneys at that particular time before you thought of giving these instructions? I did not suspect that; I did not suspect her of dishonesty.

429. I do not want to imply that there was any dishonesty; I simply wish to ask you what induced you to give those instructions? Because I saw that no moneys had been coming in from her. I was told that in Mr. King's time—Mr. Rossiter told me—she had collected and sent in moneys, generally, I think he said, by her own cheque, and it struck me as being peculiar that during the whole time she had been there between Mr. King's time and my own appointment no moneys had come in, while there had been some from another institution.

430. But seeing that eleven months had elapsed, during which no moneys had been sent in, did it not strike you, when you gave instructions that they should be sent in in future, that she must have had moneys in hand? No; I have already answered that. I asked her if she held moneys, and she said no, she did not.

431. That was prior to your giving her instructions to send moneys in? Yes—any she might collect in that way in future.

432. Mr. Bourke.] You asked her if she had any inmates' moneys, and she said no? Yes.

433. Mr. Crick.] Would it be at all out of place for Mrs. Cunynghame if an inmate made her a present of this money to accept it? I should think it would be a very great impropriety on the part of any public officer to do such a thing. I should be very sorry to do it.

434. Mr. Kidd.] However, you admit she accounted for all the moneys from the time you gave her instructions? Yes.

435. And you do not know in what way she has accounted for the other moneys? I do not.

436. You do not know if she has accounted for them up to the present? I am sure she has not.

437. Mr. Bourke.] Have you ever seen that book—did Mrs. Cunynghame ever show it to you? I never saw it before; but it has been explained to me by the clerk Abbott that this was taken out of that box by her with some other books.

438. Did you see any books on that occasion, and did you say to Mrs. Cunynghame that they were so nicely kept that she had better go on as she had been going on before? No. The only book I saw on that occasion was a book I have here. It is really a copy of the pay-sheets.

439. You have a book now which contains an account of the inmates' moneys? Yes.

440. Did you see that book at the time of which I speak? I never saw that book until after Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension.

441. Do you know that these moneys were taken from the inmates by Mrs. Cunynghame at their request to be paid back to them in sums of 1s. or 2s. per week, just as they required it? Yes, I think it is very probable. Mrs. Cunynghame has stated already that she was instructed by the manager to send all sums above £2 to the Pitt-street office. Here is one dead man named Maltby who has £4 17s. 6d. to his credit.

442. Mr. Crick.] I understood Mr. Bourke to refer to amounts given by people living in the institution to be returned to them as they required it? The rule was to deduct £2, to be given out to them in small sums and to send the balance to the Pitt-street office.

443. Mr. Bourke.] What was it sent there for? To be paid into what was called a trust account—an account opened at the bank into which the moneys of these men are to be paid for safety and kept until they leave the institution or die.

444. Mr. Crick.] Then there was no regulation, but it was simply a matter of custom? That is all, so far as I am aware.

445. Mr. Bourke.] Mrs. Cunynghame need not have taken these moneys unless she liked; she only did it at her own option, and to oblige the old men? She need not have taken them certainly.

446. Sometimes pensioners were sent to the Parramatta Asylum? Yes.

447. And in their case half of their pay, or £2 per month, or something of that kind was deducted and sent to Sydney and the other half was kept by Mrs. Cunynghame for the use of the pensioner—is that so? Yes, that was supposed to be the custom.

448. Then this regulation you speak of related only to pensioners' moneys, did it not? Not at all. It related to people who went into the institution having money in their possession which they handed to Mrs. Cunyngame and others to keep for them.

449. But there was a regulation about pensioners' moneys? No, there was no regulation whatever dealing with any matter concerning the institution. It was simply a matter of instruction from the Sydney office, and it is the same with regard to all the other institutions.

450. But is there a rule that when a pensioner goes to one of these asylums you deduct something from his pension towards his maintenance? Yes. It depends, of course, on the amount of his pension. If a man gets 1s. a day, we deduct 6d.; but if he only gets 4d. we let him keep it to buy little necessaries and luxuries with.

451. If the pension was 1s. a day or over, you generally deducted half? Yes; the rule was understood by all the other superintendents, and the money was regularly forwarded by them.

452. After Mrs. Cunyngame was suspended, you sent to her for this book, showing an account of the inmates' money? Yes, I did.

453. And you say she sent a slip of paper representing that she held moneys belonging to men then in the asylum, then amounting to £83 7s. 9d.? Yes.

454. You see there are seventeen sums named in the margin? Perhaps I may be allowed to explain why I sent for that book. I was asked by Abbott, the clerk, if I knew of this book and of these moneys, and I said I did not. He said then, so that he might be clear, he must tell me. Then he said Mrs. Cunyngame had taken that book. She had applied to be allowed to take some private documents from this despatch box, and I sent up a clerk from the office to hand over the private documents. The acting superintendent was then present to let Mrs. Cunyngame take her private documents. Among her private documents, among what she took, Abbott told me, was a book which he himself had kept showing what is described here in the report in reference to these moneys. I sent to her for the book, and she refused to give it up. She sent on that occasion a slip stating that she held moneys to this amount. I then asked her if she would come into the office.

455. This was after she was suspended? Yes, I spoke to her, and told her that for her own sake she had better give up this book. She replied that it was a private matter between her and the inmates, and the Government had nothing to do with it.

456. In connection with that book your charge against Mrs. Cunyngame is that the slip sent to you did not show a sum of £13 17s. 8d. belonging to dead inmates? Yes.

457. Mr. Kidd.] Is this money of the character which you have previously described; that is to say, money which she might have held in trust for the inmates so as to give them a shilling or 2s. when they required it? Yes, of that character—inmates' money.

458. Mr. Bourke.] The second charge in your report of the 4th December is that a paralytic patient has been cruelly ill-used in hospital by a warder named M'Phee;—from whom did you get your information about that? I was going through the ward, and one of the patients, whom I do not recollect now, spoke about the matter to me. I do not remember his name, but I can produce evidence in reference to this.

459. This was told to you by a patient when you were going through the wards? Yes.

460. Mr. Crick.] Did Mrs. Cunyngame ever advance any moneys of her own for the benefit of the institution, in advance of the money she got from the Government? I am unable to tell you. The custom was this:—I have here what is called a petty cash account; for instance, the petty cash account for October amounted to £5 3s. 4d.

461. Would that be money paid by Mrs. Cunyngame and afterwards repaid to her by the Government? Some of the items would be, and others not.

462. You are satisfied that Mrs. Cunyngame did advance some petty cash? Occasionally. It was the custom of superintendents to do that occasionally and be reimbursed at the end of the month.

463. Mr. Kidd.] Is £5 3s. 4d. about the average amount of petty cash a month? Yes, that would be about the average.

464. Mr. Bourke.] Your next charge is that you gave some directions as to poisonous lotions being left about in the hospital wards? Yes.

465. Was that not a matter for Dr. Violette to give directions about? Not at all; as I said before, he prescribes and there his duty ends. I should not consider, however, that he would exceed his duty if he gave such an instruction; but I gave the instruction and it was not obeyed. That is my complaint.

466. Dr. Violette was visiting the place every day, and he had two experienced men under him, and yet he never gave such an order? I know nothing about Dr. Violette in the matter. He may or may not have given such an order. My complaint is that I gave the order and it was disobeyed.

467. Was it not a matter for Dr. Violette—it was a matter of ordinary hospital management, and Dr. Violette was then the head of the hospital? I should not think so. I have given the same order at the Liverpool Asylum and it has been obeyed. I found the same danger existing there.

468. In the latter part of paragraph 4 in your report you say you gave the superintendent orders to superintend the application of these lotions; how do you know that Mrs. Cunyngame did not constantly superintend the application of these lotions? From the information of the wardman.

469. What wardman? The wardman who was there at the time. I can get his name by reference to the book.

470. This wardman complained to you? No, he did not complain; I asked the question. I may explain that dealing with these cancer cases is a very horrible thing, and I knew very well that the man might like to get out of administering the lotions if he possibly could. I simply asked that Mrs. Cunyngame should occasionally go in to this ward.

471. And are you prepared to give us evidence that she never did go in? I taxed her with it afterwards—with not going into the hospital.

472. To superintend the application of these lotions? Occasionally only. You see I used that word; I would not expect her to do it every day.

473. Your charge is that she never went? Yes, that is my charge. When I taxed her with it she told me that it was not her duty; that she thought it was the duty of the paid attendants.

474. Don't you think it was their duty? I think it was her duty also, because an inmate wardman would not consider the instructions of a paid attendant of very much weight. If Mrs. Cunyngame had gone in twice a week to see the lotions administered the inmate wardmen would have been sufficiently afraid not to have neglected the patients.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
7 Aug., 1893.

475. You speak particularly now of the cancer patients? Yes.
476. How many of those were there? I suppose on an average seven or eight.
477. And do you not think that paid wardsmen were sufficient to look after the cancer patients? No, I would trust no supervision to wardsmen.
478. These are paid wardsmen, men of experience? Whether or not I would trust no supervision to subordinate officers.
479. Then you expected the superintendent to do everything? The superintendent has already admitted before the Public Asylums Inquiry Board that she was responsible for all supervision.
480. Mr. Crick.] Are you referring now to the Inquiry Board whose report was printed some time ago? Yes, in 1886 or 1887, I think.
481. Mr. Bourke.] The next charge is about the disposal of refuse and meat bones, contained in paragraph 5 of your report of the 4th December. You say there that you had questioned the superintendent as to the manner in which the meat bones and provision refuse were dealt with and that she assured you that they were required and had always been used at the institution's farm? Yes, and that, under the new dietary arrangement, the refuse was so small as to be worthless.
482. What is this institution farm? It is the garden—a large garden attached to and where they grow the vegetables for the institution. It is part and parcel of the institution.
483. You say in your report that you have since discovered that both bones and refuse were regularly disposed of to her tenants at her farm? Yes, and that no return whatever had been made to the Government. I should like to explain that I do not mean by that that they were sold. She gave them to him. I have since got £28 a year for them.
484. From whom? From this tenant, until he failed and went out of the place.
485. For how long did you get that? For several months, until he failed. I could not tell you without reference.
486. Can you tell us how long ago it is since he failed? I fancy about three or four months, but I cannot say exactly. I called for tenders, and he, knowing what it was worth, tendered at £28 a year for the refuse only.
487. Mr. Crick.] You say she did not sell this refuse? I did not intend to convey that she sold it.
488. She did not personally benefit by what she did? I am unable to say.
489. Can you say she did? I cannot say she did. I can only say that it is a very suspicious circumstance that this tenant of hers who got the stuff immediately afterwards, knowing the value of it, undertook to pay £28 a year for the refuse only.
490. This was a tenant of hers—he had the use of the land? Yes; he rented a farm from her.
491. She gave him this stuff? Yes.
492. Can you say that she got any higher rent by giving him this stuff? I cannot say.
493. Can you say that she derived any personal pecuniary benefit by it? No; but I say that she might have sold or disposed of it to the advantage of the Government.
494. Mr. Bourke.] You put it rather insidiously in your report. You say she disposed of it to her tenants? I did not intend to put it insidiously. Disposing of it does not literally mean selling it.
495. In paragraph 6 of your report you say that Mrs. Cunyngame disregarded your order against using the labour of the inmates? Yes.
496. How long was it from the time you gave her the order until you made this report?—You gave the order on the 24th October, in writing, did you not? Yes.
497. And she was suspended on the 19th of the following month? Yes.
498. That would be a little less than four weeks? Yes.
499. Do you not think that Mrs. Cunyngame might have been allowed that period of four weeks to have rearranged matters with regard to these servants and so on? This thing had been going on for some time, and my complaint is that even after her suspension Mrs. Cunyngame so utterly disregarded my order that she still kept these men about her.
500. After her suspension? Yes.
501. But we are not dealing with what Mrs. Cunyngame did after her suspension. You complain that up to the time of her suspension she still had these people there. Of course after her suspension you put Mrs. Brooke in charge? But Mrs. Cunyngame still kept these men in her kitchen.
502. But you know that she was suspended and had no power in the place? Still it shows what a recalcitrant woman she was and how utterly disobedient.
503. Mr. Crick.] Could not Mrs. Brooke have sent those men away? She was acting superintendent and could if she had chosen; but you can understand that she would have some delicacy in interfering with Mrs. Cunyngame under those circumstances. You see that notwithstanding everything that had occurred there was still a continuation of disobedience.
504. Mr. Bourke.] Then you would not give Mrs. Cunyngame three or four weeks to reorganize matters, and get one or two female servants? You know it is very difficult to get female servants to go into an institution like the Parramatta Hospital? I do not know anything of the kind.
505. You say in your report that these inmate servants were sent for their meals to the institution mess-room? Yes.
506. Your orders were obeyed in that particular? Yes; I have explained why I inserted that paragraph—simply that it all tended to show how utterly disobedient Mrs. Cunyngame was, and how she disregarded all my orders.
507. In paragraph 7, another very peculiar charge is made. You say “I also directed the superintendent to allow the inmates to use occasionally, for recreation purposes, the grass plats within the quadrangle, instead of keeping so many men confined throughout the day in the unhealthy and limited space of the shelter shed.” You say that that order has been disregarded? Yes, it was disregarded. This was a matter to which the Asylums Inquiry Board attached very great importance.
508. You say that your order was disregarded; how do you know that? By the evidence of my own eyes, I saw it.
509. What was the evidence of your own eyes? That the men were never there.
510. But did the superintendent, to your knowledge, ever issue an order that they were not to go there? She disobeyed my orders in not informing them that they might use the plats. It has been a matter of constant complaint.

511. Did Mrs. Cunyngame ever issue any order that the men were not to occupy these grass plats? How can I tell that. Inferentially she did, because they did not use them after they had asked leave that they might use them, and I had directed that they should.

512. Mr. Crick.] You cannot say that she did issue an order prohibiting these men from going there, for there was nothing so far as you know to prevent them from going there? No, except that I told her to order them to go there.

513. You would not expect that she should carry them there if they did not care to go? She will not deny what I have said. Will you allow me to explain what happened to a man who did go on that grass? I have it on the most reliable information.

514. What was the result of your own observation; tell us what you saw yourself? I saw nothing myself because I was not there. I have it on the most reliable information that a blind man named Burns was lying down on the grass plat one warm day and fell asleep. Mrs. Cunyngame came up to him and struck him twice violently with her umbrella. I will produce evidence of this. The man hastily jumped up and became abusive, as a man suffering from his infirmity naturally would under the circumstances, and she at once put him in what I call the refractory cell.

515. Mr. Bourke.] You say in your report "This order has been disregarded, but the grass plats have been used as a grazing ground for the superintendent's horses." Do you know whether these plats were used for the purpose of grazing cattle belonging to the institution? I cannot say that. I think I saw a cow there once.

516. How did you find out that horses were there and not the cattle belonging to the institution? I have seen the horses there myself. In fact one morning I turned them off myself.

517. Did you see the cow there more than once? Only once. I have seen horses which belonged to Mrs. Cunyngame there a number of times.

518. The eighth charge is that you had ordered Mrs. Cunyngame not to supply the newspapers with any paragraphs, and afterwards traced the authorship of a paragraph to her. How did you trace that to her? I do not think I ought to be asked to answer that question. I swear it upon oath and I have no doubt whatever about it. As I said before with reference to that paragraph, it is not a matter to which I attach very great importance, except that it tends to show that there was a succession of acts in disobedience of my orders.

519. Do you think you had any right to give such an order to Mrs. Cunyngame? Certainly; in anything connected with or referring to the institution, I think she should obey me.

520. You are not prepared to give any evidence with respect to this charge? No; I will not betray my authority.

521. Your ninth charge is that you directed Mrs. Cunyngame to make monthly musters of inmates, and that she did not do so;—do you remember when you gave that order? I do not remember now.

522. Some time in September, was it not? I think it was in September. If it is a material point I can trace it.

523. Did you not get an account on the first of the following month of a muster made by Mrs. Cunyngame? I never received any such account. I have asked at the office and have been told that no musters were received.

524. You have thoroughly searched for the paper? I asked the gentleman in charge at the office, and that was the information I received. I might have been misinformed; I cannot say.

525. Is the diary here? It is in possession of the clerk of the Committee.

526. You say that the reason why you directed those musters to be made was to enable you to check the numbers with the ration lists and see that men whose maintenance was charged for were actually in the institution, as at another asylum you had found names on the books of persons who had not been inmates for years;—can you tell us where that happened? It happened at Newington. I am informed by the superintendent of the Newington Asylum that there were eight such cases.

527. Did this happen at Newington since your appointment? No, before my appointment. I gave instructions to have these musters made, so that I could check the number of men. Supposing that eight people were charged for in the ration list who had been dead for years it meant a charge of £15 per annum to the Government for people who had never been there? The object of the musters was to prevent that.

528. This did not occur during your term of office? No.

529. Do you know a Mrs. Fletcher? Yes; very well.

530. Do you remember telling her that Mrs. Cunyngame was a first-class officer? I may have done so, because as I have told you, I said to Mrs. Dennis, "If you all get on as well as I think Mrs. Cunyngame will it will be all right"; because she struck me as being a particularly clever woman; in fact, I have no doubt she is a very clever woman.

531. And you found the place when you first went there very well managed? Yes, to a superficial eye.

532. You have often commended Mrs. Cunyngame for her good management? No.

533. Never? I have told you already; I have answered that very fully already. If Mrs. Cunyngame had managed as I am sure she can manage this would not have happened.

534. Mr. Williamson.] When you were examined on the last occasion you said that when you took charge of the Macquarie-street Asylum you interviewed Mrs. Cunyngame, and called her attention to the report of the Public Asylums Inquiry Board;—will you take that report and tell me what portion you went into in reference to the management and conduct of the institution? Yes.

535. Mr. Crick.] Have you seen the part of the report contained in the papers referred to the Committee on the motion of Mr. Grahame? Yes.

536. Is the part of the report you went into with Mrs. Cunyngame contained in those papers? Yes, some of them. You will see that the man Roy gave evidence there.

537. Then you went into parts of that report other than the parts contained in the papers? Yes.

538. Mr. Williamson.] This was a matter affecting the good government and supervision of the institution? Yes; it dealt with various matters.

539. Is it not a fact that you stated in your last examination that you went into the report with Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes, I did. I said I took it with me as the basis of my instructions from the head office in regard to all the asylums.

540. At your first interview with Mrs. Cunyngame you went into the report of the Inquiry Board and pointed out certain things that should be remedied? Yes; I asked her questions with reference to several several matters. For instance, with reference to her disposal of fat for soap, I remember that. I did that, because there was some very nasty things said about the institutions generally with reference to these particular things. It was supposed, in fact, that the superintendents were making something out of them, and I wanted to get at the bottom of the matter.

541. Then, as a matter of fact, when going into this report, you called her attention to certain portions of it, and asked her to see that they were not continued any longer? Exactly.

542. And, as a matter of fact, some portion of those directions have not been carried into effect? Certainly they have not.

543. Will you kindly look at the report of the Inquiry Board and point out to the Committee what you first of all called her attention to? The first thing, to which I drew her attention was the evidence of the three witnesses Roy, Baird, and Rooney.

544. What did you say to her? I asked her if she had read it.

545. What did she say? She said she had, and that they were all telling lies; and I also remember she said that they were men that could not be relied on. Then she asked me if I had seen her reply. I said I had not, and she got me a copy of her reply—a printed paper.

546. Then did you give her certain directions? Yes, I did.

547. What directions did you give her with reference to the statements made by these three men? The directions I gave her were to watch the inmate-attendants carefully, and see that there was no recurrence of those atrocities, as I called them.

548. Did you go into any other portion of the evidence? I did. I spoke to her then about the fat for the soap. I referred to question 6393 in the report of the Inquiry Board and others following. I spoke about the fat in exchange for soap. I drew her attention to that. I asked her how she was disposing of the fat. She said she was getting soap for it from Messrs. Pritchard Brothers. Then I asked her if she did not think it would be better to take money. I remember telling her that I thought it was very unfair to the contractor, and I asked her if she did not think it would be better to sell the fat and get money—that it was unfair to the contractor to deprive him of his right in that way. I have since found that Mrs. Cunyngame did not get soap for the fat as she stated, but that she got cheques.

549. Mr. Ritchie.] Are you prepared to prove that? Yes; I am prepared to prove it by Messrs. Pritchard Brothers, and I am prepared to prove where the cheques passed through.

550. Will you give the number of the cheques? The first one was paid before the first sitting of the Inquiry Board. I pointed out to Mrs. Cunyngame that she had told the Inquiry Board that she had received soap always in exchange for the fat. I have ascertained since that a month before she gave that answer she received a cheque for £2 12s. 4d. from Pritchard Brothers for soap. I further ascertained that during the whole of the sittings of the Inquiry Board she took soap, and no money. After the Inquiry Board had completed its proceedings she commenced to take money again. I will give you the dates of the cheques—July 20th, 1887, cheque for £3 2s.

551. Mr. Ritchie.] When did she receive the cheque for £2 12s. 4d.? In the month before the Board commenced its investigations.

552. When was that? The Board sat from August, 1886, until May, 1887.

553. Mr. Williamson.] And during that time she took soap and no money? Yes. The next cheque was dated September 10th, 1887, and was for £2 9s. 7d.; the next was dated December 16th, 1887, and was for £2 10s. 5d. The others were as follows:—January 6th, 1888, £2 9s.; February 14th, 1888, £2 14s. 11d.; July 21st, 1888, £1 17s. 6d.

554. Chairman.] Was soap received between those dates from Mr. Pritchard in exchange for fat? Yes, three lots of soap were received.

555. Mr. Williamson.] How much? I cannot tell you the quantity. I think it was a box containing a hundred weight each time.

556. Mr. Bourke.] Did you say that Mrs. Cunyngame bought some soap? No.

557. Mr. Williamson.] Have you ascertained that these moneys have been paid into her credit? I have not ascertained that exactly. What I have ascertained is this, that they were passed through the Australian Joint Stock Bank at Parramatta where she kept her account; and then, of course, they were dealt with at Mr. Pritchard's own account in the Newtown Bank.

558. Have they ever been handed over to the Government? No.

559. Mr. Bourke.] You have not made any charge about this; it does not appear in your report? It is part and parcel of my charge of untruthfulness—untruthfulness in saying that she always received soap in exchange for the fat. She said the same thing to the Board, and that is how the question arose. These cheques have never been passed in to the Government.

560. When you asked Mrs. Cunyngame whether she had received money or soap did she specify any period? No; she said she had always been in the habit of doing it, and I pointed out then that it was unfair to the contractor.

561. Mr. Williamson.] What else did you speak to her about, anything in reference to the hospital? Yes, I asked her to supervise the hospital personally.

562. Did you call her attention to anything in the report of the Inquiry Board? I called her attention to the statements of the witnesses Rooney, Roy, and Baird, as showing the necessity for this supervision.

563. Did you call her attention amongst other things to the fact that she had already admitted before the Board that she had not been in the hospital for nine months? I cannot remember that I did that; if I had done so I should have remembered it.

564. Will you swear you did not? No, I cannot swear.

565. Did you refer to any evidence at all taken before the Board? Yes. She said the men would not say these things before her face, and I pointed out to her with reference to certain witnesses that she had an opportunity of being present. I then told her to exercise strict supervision over the hospital to prevent these things happening in the future.

566. I am referring to her evidence. Did you call her attention to the fact that she admitted before the Inquiry Board that she had not visited the hospital wards for nine months? I do not recollect that I did. If I had done so I should probably have remembered it.

567. When you say you refer to her evidence do you mean to say you referred to the whole of the evidence she gave before the Board? I did, and I told her that upon that it seemed to me that her supervision had been very lax. I did not say anything about that nine months business, I think.

568. Did you refer to anything else in the course of this conversation with her in reference to statements which she made before the Inquiry Board? I do not recollect that I did particularly. 569.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
7 Aug., 1889.

569. Did you refer in any way to the fact of persons dying in the institution and she not being aware of it? No, that came in subsequently; that is part of my own observation.
570. Do you recollect anything further that took place? I do not recollect anything particularly now.
571. Is there anything in the report of the Board or have you any other papers that might refresh your memory as to anything further that took place at this conversation? No; I recollect asking her how the men were paid.
572. Do you recollect, among other things, calling her attention to the fact that she had a farm away from the institution? Yes, I remember that.
573. Will you tell us what transpired in reference to that—give us the substance of what you said? The substance was this, that I have seen from the report of the Inquiry Board that she had a number of men employed out there at different times—several men I think I said—there were five or six at different times. I said that that must not be continued. I think she said then that it was not going on, and I do not think it was going on.
574. Is there anything else you can recollect with regard to that first conversation? No. I recollect with reference to these men that I pointed out to her that it seemed to me a very improper thing that she had been keeping these men at work and, as I understood, rationing them from the Government kitchen.
575. Mr. Bourke.] You say it had been discontinued for some time? Yes. I am asked to say what I told her, and I told her that, and so far as I know, it was not continued after I told her.
576. Mr. Williamson.] After you had pointed out these defects and these cruelties to her, did she make any reply? Yes; she said they were all lies, and she gave me a copy of what she called her reply. She asked me if I had seen her reply.
577. That is all she said to you? That is all I can remember. We were on exceedingly friendly terms at that time. As I have explained, she and her husband were old friends of mine.
578. In answer to Mr. Bourke on the last day, you referred, amongst other things, to Mrs. Cunyngame employing people as her own servants, and rationing them from the Government store, and you said she put them down on the pay-sheet in fictitious positions? Yes; I have the pay-sheets here, and the names of the people.
579. Will you produce them? I produce the pay-sheets. This is an epitome for the information of the Committee. They go from 1883 up to September, 1888.
580. How many men are there? Eleven men.
581. Mr. Bourke.] Those are pay-sheets signed by the men? These are duplicates. I think they are signed by Mrs. Cunyngame. I can get the originals if they are required.
582. Mr. Williamson.] You have a synopsis of the pay-sheets? Yes; it is as follows:—Joseph Wallace, now in Macquarie-street Asylum, was employed as cook in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen in June and July, 1883; he was paid £1 9s. 6d. Government money, and was entered on the pay-sheet as a hospital wardsman. Thomas Beale, from February to May, and from August to October, 1883, was employed as cook in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen, for which he received £5 6s. of Government money, and he was entered on the pay-sheet as a hospital wardsman. H. Le Chong, whereabouts not known, was employed in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen as cook in November and December, 1883, and in January, 1888, for which he received £2 6s., and he was entered as a hospital wardsman on the pay-sheet. Hugh Farley was employed in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen from February to December, 1888, and in January, 1885; he was paid £9 3s. Government money, and was entered as a hospital wardsman on the pay-sheet. William Millar, now in Liverpool Asylum, was employed as cook by Mrs. Cunyngame from February to December, 1885, and from January to July, 1886, for which he received £13 13s. Government money, and he was entered as a hospital wardsman on the pay-sheet. Thomas Ghost was employed from March to December, 1885, as butler by Mrs. Cunyngame during those periods—from January to December, 1886; from January to December, 1887; January, 1888; from February to May, 1888; and June and July, 1888; for which he received £19 15s. 5d. Government money, and he was variously entered on the pay-sheets as third cook, as being in reading-room, as being a deputy in No. 4 hospital, as being a gateman, and as being a soil-heap man. Peter Bottana was employed by Mr. Cunyngame as cook—from August to October, 1886; from January to February, 1887; for which he received £3 15s. 6d.; he was entered as a hospital wardsman. James Heathcote was employed as cook by Mrs. Cunyngame in November and December, 1886, for which he received £1 10s. 6d. of Government money; he was entered as a hospital wardsman. John Pearman was employed as cook during half of March, 1887, by Mrs. Cunyngame; he received 7s. 9d., and is entered as a hospital wardsman. Felix Cummings was employed the other half of March, and from April to November, 1887, and also from February to June, 1888, as cook by Mrs. Cunyngame, for which he received £10 5s. 3d. Government money; he was entered as a hospital wardsman. Henry Halmariak was employed in January, 1888, and from February to August in the same year, as cook by Mrs. Cunyngame, for which he received £6 2s. of Government money, and he is variously entered as hospital wardsman, and as having had charge of the reading-room. These different amounts represent a total of £73 13s. 11d.
583. In answer to Mr. Bourke you stated amongst other things this morning that Mrs. Cunyngame received certain moneys from the inmates, some of whom are living and the others dead? Yes.
584. Can you give me the amounts she has received from those who are living? They amount to £33 7s. 9½d.
585. Will you look at your report of the 14th December, and at the list of names there. Are those the names of the persons and the amounts she received? Yes; so far as I can trace them. That is a copy of the slip handed to me by Mrs. Cunyngame.
586. Have you that slip? I cannot say; I think I have. It is just a little piece of paper 3 or 4 inches long.
587. Can you find any book showing a list of these names or how they were entered? This is the book. [Book produced.]
588. In whose handwriting is this book? Abbott's.
589. He is the clerk? Yes.
590. Was this book handed to you by Mrs. Cunyngame? No, it was handed eventually to Mr. Green.
591. Was this book kept under the supervision of Mrs. Cunyngame? It should have been. I never saw the book until after her suspension. I shall have to produce other evidence as to that. I do not know anything personally with reference to that book at all.

- Mr. S. Maxted.
7 Aug., 1889.
592. And is this book still in use? No, I have kept it since locked up.
593. I see in this book a number of names with amounts set opposite to them and not crossed out? Yes, those would be the accounts of men who are still living.
594. And who are still inmates? That I am not prepared to say just now, but I suppose they are in some of the asylums, otherwise we should have had to get the money for them. I know as a matter of fact that some of them have been drawing small amounts on account of those sums.
595. Has any copy been made of this book? No, that is the only record of the transaction so far as I know.
596. I see in this book a large number of moneys apparently received during the time that Mrs. Cunyngame was superintendent. Has Mrs. Cunyngame in any possible way accounted to you for the moneys that are in this book? No; she has offered to do so since her dismissal, but not previously.
597. During the time of her suspension, did she furnish you with anything? She furnished me with a slip, as I have just explained.
598. That is the slip previously referred to? Yes; but it did not contain any record of these moneys to the credit of men who had died.
599. Has she furnished you with any slip or any statement of the moneys received beyond what you have already referred to in your report? No.
600. Mr. Crick.] How soon after her removal did she offer to account for these moneys to you? I could not tell you without referring to records; I think it was soon after.
601. Mr. Bourke.] Was it not the day she left? I am not prepared to say that. It was after her removal, and very soon after. I know I arranged to meet Mrs. Cunyngame up there and receive these moneys, but I was prevented from going; then another appointment was made, which I think Mrs. Cunyngame could not keep. Then as I had received no instruction to take these moneys it appeared to me, on considering the thing over, that it might be rather dangerous to take them.
602. Mr. Crick.] So that, as a matter of fact, you attach no blame to Mrs. Cunyngame for not having accounted for the moneys until after her removal? I did not say that. I say she told me she did not hold them at all.
603. Mr. Bourke.] There is a letter from you, of the 7th January, to Mrs. Cunyngame, asking her to meet you? Yes; I have no doubt whatever that, after her removal, Mrs. Cunyngame would have handed me over these moneys if I had met her.
604. There is a telegram from Mrs. Cunyngame to you, dated the 11th January, in which she says—"Am leaving. Will you appoint time to-morrow, at which matters referring to inmates' deposits may be settled"? I admitted that just now. I say that, immediately after her removal, I have no doubt she would have refunded these moneys if I had met her.
605. Then it was your fault, you admit, that they were not given up immediately after? I said I would not take them then. On further consideration I thought I ought not to take them.
606. You got £10 in the despatch-box belonging to Donald McDonald? That was handed to him.
607. That takes £10 off the amount belonging to the living inmates? Yes; but that was after her suspension. I forget how that came to be handed to him. Abbott, the clerk, knows about that. It was after her suspension.
608. There were two other sums, were there not, in the despatch-box? I cannot tell you that now; but those were the sums which Mrs. Cunyngame sent me on the slip as holding.
609. At the time of her suspension? Yes.
610. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at this account in the book? I see entered in the book that the superintendent received from Francisco Palma—on September 5th, £1; paid him October 3rd, 2s. 6d.; received from him 23rd October, 10s.; on the 25th October, paid him 7s. 6d., and on November 3rd, received from him 10s., making in all, moneys received to the extent of £2, and paid away 10s.
611. And the account Mrs. Cunyngame has furnished you shows only a balance due to that man of 10s.? Yes. That looks rather difficult to understand from the way in which it has been kept; but the clerk who kept it is very clear about it.
612. Mr. Bourke.] It is in the slip that the discrepancy occurs? Yes.
613. Does the total amount in the slip agree with the total amount here? No.
614. What is the difference? I cannot tell you without looking at the book. It is not very material.
615. Mr. Crick.] Does it amount to £1? That is more than I can tell you without taking the book and checking it, but it is kept in such a peculiar way that it would take some time.
616. Will you also look at an account there of John Thompson? In the slip furnished, I find the amount stated at £1 9s. 6d.
617. Will you look at this book. You see that the amount received is £3 5s. 6d., and the amount paid away £1 2s. 0d.? Yes.
618. Mr. Crick.] Did Mrs. Cunyngame have that book when she sent you the slip? Yes.
619. When did you get possession of the book? The book was handed to Mr. Green, I cannot quite tell you the date.
620. Mr. Bourke.] On the 30th November? It might have been.
621. Mr. Williamson.] What is the amount purported to have been received? There is a balance left according to the book of £2 3s. 6d.
622. Have you any book showing the amount of moneys held by Mrs. Cunyngame belonging to men who are dead? That book does—those crossed out. Turn up Alexander Bowie.
623. Do you know when he died? The date is there.
624. On the 3rd of January, 1887? Yes.
625. The balance in hand would be £4 0s. 4d.? Yes.
626. Have you been able to trace any notification of the receipt of these moneys by the Treasury? They have never been passed into the Treasury. The next is Robert C. Brown.
627. Have you any idea when he died? No, the date is there.
628. On 12th December, 1886? Yes. The amount is 15s.
629. Has that ever been paid into the Treasury? I am informed not. That was before my time, but I am informed not, in fact I have no doubt it has not.
630. Mr. Bourke.] You do not know yourself as a positive fact whether it has or not? No; but I can ascertain.

631. Mr. Williamson.] Carl Egie—do you know when he died? The date is in that book.
632. No? Then I shall have to check that by another record.
633. Have you any idea when he died? I have not, without reference to records.
634. I see according to this book that the last sum he received was 2s. 6d., in January, 1887? It may be; of course the book will show.
635. W. Mashitaw—do you know when he died? No, unless the date is there. I can produce in half an hour the dates when these men died.
636. Mr. Crick.] Can Abbott give all this information? Yes.
637. Mr. Williamson.] Do you tender this book in evidence? Yes. [Exhibit C.]
638. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember sending a form to Mrs. Cunyngame in which to enter the moneys belonging to the inmates? No, I have seen a statement about that, but no one connected with the institution can find any such form, or recollect anything about it.
639. Mr. Williamson.] When you were placed in the position of Director of Asylums, did you request Mrs. Cunyngame before her suspension to supply you with a list of the moneys she had? Yes.
640. And you took the position of Director early in the month of August? I told you this morning that I asked her if she held any inmates' moneys and she said no.
641. Did you have any further conversation with her in reference to that? Yes. I directed her to send me in future any inmates' moneys that might be collected, and I have taken inmates' moneys from her since.
642. Did you ask her to supply you with any list of moneys she had received? I simply asked her if she had any moneys, and she said no.
643. Can you tell me about the date? That was on either my first or second visit.
644. Would that be early in the month of August? It was during August. I was there every third or second day for some little time—there and at the other institutions too.
645. You requested her to forward any moneys on? Yes.
646. Did she forward any moneys on after you spoke to her? Yes.
647. What moneys? Moneys similar to those noted in the diary—inmates' moneys.
648. Have you a list? I have not a list here now. There are some amounts in the diary noted by me.
649. Have you the diary here? Yes. I only received one or two sums, and then I told her she had better send them to the office and get the usual receipt for them. On Monday, 6th August, she handed me £2, balance due to Studdart; then again she handed me a further sum of £4 17s., in favour of the Director. I am not sure whether one of those amounts was not sent to the office, and then I signed afterwards.
650. Whom was the second amount on account of? In favour of pensions. That would be deductions for the maintenance of men, as I explained this morning. That would be on the 6th August—about my second visit. Then passing on to the 4th of September, I see the superintendent drew out a cheque for £1 5s., in favour of the Director, in payment of money from John Lackey Ward, to be handed to him at his next visit. That would be a balance, I presume, due to the man who probably called at the office for it. If my memory is correct, I do not think I received any sums after that.
651. Mr. Bourke.] That man was a pensioner also? I could not say without reference; it may be so.
652. Mr. Williamson.] Beyond those sums received the rest of the moneys were to be forwarded on to the office? Yes.
653. Forwarded to your office and then transmitted to the Treasury? Yes; if they were trust moneys they would be paid into the trust account at the bank. If they were collections—as, for instance, for the sale of fat or anything like that—they would go into the Treasury.
654. After the moneys sent in in September did Mrs. Cunyngame open a trust account? No, the trust account is opened at the office.
655. Then of course your books will show? Our books will show what moneys were forwarded since then. I will have those books produced.
656. On the last day you were asked a question by Mr. Bourke in reference to a man to whom slippers were refused;—can you tell me the name of that man? Yes; I have been informed since that it was a man named William Stoddart. The doctor recollects it, and other people recollect it. That is the man I described as the man whose feet were in such a deplorable condition.
657. On the occasion you have described when you saw Stoddart walking about with rags round his feet and no slippers did you visit the cancer ward? I did.
658. Did you see a man named Peters in the cancer ward? I did.
659. In consequence of some complaint he made did you speak to Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes; I told her that Peters had complained to me that he had asked her several times for spectacles and she had told him there were none in stock—spectacles so that he could read; he was lying in a bad state and it was the only comfort he could have. His remark was that he had asked her over and over again.
660. You told her this? Yes, and her excuse to me, as it was to him, was that she had no spectacles in stock. I do not know whether she had or not. She said she had not. I told her she had better send and get a pair. She first denied that Peters had asked her. "Well," I said "it is strange, Mrs. Cunyngame, because there are people in the ward who remember it." The wardman particularly spoke about it. I think he is to be found at Liverpool now. Then she said she recollects, but she had no spectacles in stock. I said "In the case of a man like that it is the only comfort he has, and you ought to send out and get a pair at once; do it."
661. Did she obtain the spectacles? I saw them on the man subsequently.
662. Did she give any excuse for not paying any attention to the man other than that she had not the spectacles? No, except what I have said. I told her that I thought it was a case in which any person possessed of humanity would have attended to the wants of a man like that, who could not possibly live more than a few weeks, and probably only a few days. I know he did not live very long.
663. Did she say she had no money belonging to the man, or that she had no petty cash in hand? No, she did not say anything of that kind. Of course she knew that that would have been no obstacle.
664. Somewhere about the middle of August do you recollect visiting the hospital? Yes.
665. Do you recollect seeing a man there named Drew? Yes.
666. Did Drew make some complaint to you? No, he did not make a complaint; I asked him a question.
667. Did you subsequently see Mrs. Cunyngame and speak to her with reference to what you had been informed? Yes, I did.

Mr.
S. Mexted.
7 Aug., 1889.

- Mr. S. Marted.
7 Aug., 1880.
666. Will you tell us what you said to her? I have explained that already.
669. What Drew said to you in reference to the fact of her not visiting the ward? Yes.
670. About the same time that you spoke to Drew do you recollect a man named Holmes making a complaint to you? I do not know that it was at that particular time. As I was passing through the yard a man named Holmes did make a complaint to me.
- 671-2. When this man Holmes made a complaint to you did you see Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes.
673. Will you tell us what transpired between you and Mrs. Cunynghame? I told Mrs. Cunynghame that this man Holmes had complained to me that he had asked her several times to permit him to see his sick wife at Newington and that she had passed him by without taking any notice. She said that was not true. Then I said "Let the man go at once and see his wife." The man was eighty-two years of age and had been married fifty-five years, and he had only been separated from his wife for eighteen months, she being placed in Newington and he in the Macquarie-street Asylum.
674. Mr. Crick.] These seem to be facts that have come to your knowledge since your report? I had this knowledge at the time, but as I explained before I did not put all these facts in because—
675. Mr. Williamson.] It would have made your report too voluminous? Not only that, but I wanted to be as merciful as I could in dealing with this case.
676. Mr. Bourke.] You have been busy collecting information since—even since last Committee meeting? Why should I not collect evidence?
677. Mr. Williamson.] You told Mrs. Cunynghame to let the old man go at once? Yes.
678. Did you, several days afterwards, visit the institution, and did you see this man again? I did; and the man came to me crying.
679. In consequence of what he said to you did you again see Mrs. Cunynghame? I did.
680. What did you say to her? I told her that he had complained to me that he had not been permitted to go for some days after I gave the instructions, and that when he did reach Newington he found that his wife had died two days previously. So that in consequence of that disobedience of orders on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame the man never saw his wife. I explained that case to Sir Henry Parkes.
681. What explanation did she give of that? She had no explanation to give at all. As far as I can remember she did not make any explanation or defence about it whatever.
682. Mr. Crick.] You have just stated that you explained that case to Sir Henry Parkes. Had you some private interviews with Sir Henry Parkes in reference to this matter? No; none at all.
683. Then how did you explain it to him? I was consulting with him in reference to the establishment of cottage homes for aged and destitute couples, which I had recommended in consequence of this particular case. I had seen that nice old man visiting there, and I thought it would be a good thing to keep these old people together.
684. Was that subsequent to Mrs. Cunynghame's removal or before? It was before her removal. It was at my first interview with Sir Henry Parkes with reference to the establishment of these homes.
685. Can you give us about the date of that? I think it was just about the date of my appointment, or very shortly afterwards.
686. Mr. Williamson.] You had some further conversation with the old gentleman, and, in consequence of what he said, did you make any complaint to Mrs. Cunynghame in reference to a letter? I did. I told her that on the last occasion when I spoke to him he handed me a letter from Newington, which was dated five or six days previously, but which bore the Sydney post-mark of the day when I last spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame, and that he said that if he had received that letter at the time he would have known that his wife was dying.
687. What statement did she make in reference to that? Well, she simply said that the letter had only come that day.
688. It had taken five or six days to come from Newington? I am simply telling you what she said—that the letter had arrived that day, and that she had handed it to him.
689. You say that it had the Sydney post-mark of the previous Monday? It had the date of the previous Monday, from Newington. It was written at Newington on the previous Monday, but it bore, on the day he received it, the Sydney post-mark, and that was the day when he came crying to me and told me that his wife was dead.
690. Mr. Bourke.] It bore the Sydney post-mark of the same day on which he received it? That is what he said.
691. Mr. Williamson.] When you visited the institution subsequently, did a deputation of the old men wait upon you? Yes, five or six of them.
692. Did they make a complaint to you? They did.
693. In consequence of the complaint which they made to you did you interview Mrs. Cunynghame? I did.
694. What did you say to her? I told her that they had complained that when they were sent to bed at 6 o'clock they were not allowed to talk, and were kept there for twelve hours—that would be the whole night—without being permitted to say a word to each other. I told her also that they had further informed me that they had been punished for talking, by having their tobacco stopped.
695. For how long? That I could not tell you. I told Mrs. Cunynghame I thought they ought to be allowed the privilege of talking within reasonable bounds—bed-neighbours was the expression I used. I said, "I think you ought to allow bed-neighbours to talk so long as they do not make a noise." She very strongly objected to it, and I said I would consider the matter and let the men know on my next visit. I did give consideration to it, and when I visited the institution again I gave her an instruction that they were to be allowed to talk so long as they did not abuse the privilege. Her manner to me then was very insulting.
696. What did she say? She said I did not know the kind of men I was dealing with, that she thought her experience was better than mine in that way, and that if I made concessions to these men I would upset the whole discipline of the place.
697. Did she allow it to be done? I insisted upon the order being complied with, of course.
698. I believe you have a reading-room there, have you not? Yes.
699. Is that reading-room kept open at night time? Now it is.
700. Was it in Mrs. Cunynghame's time? I am not quite sure. I think I gave an order to keep the reading-room open until eight o'clock. In fact I know I did, I remember noticing afterwards how badly the gas was burning.

Mr.
S. Maxted.

7 Aug., 1889

701. In this reading-room were the men allowed to smoke and to amuse themselves with dominoes and so forth? Yes, I have no complaint to make about that.
702. Do you recollect going to the dining-room some time in the month of September? Yes.
703. Was the dinner being served up? Yes.
704. Was Mrs. Cunynghame there? No.
705. Did you send for her? I did.
706. When you sent for her did you make any statement to her? I pointed out to her that a man was handing round potatoes with his dirty hands and putting them on the tables by the side of the plates, and I at the same time pointed out to her that the potatoes were not fit for human food.
707. Did she make any reply to that? She admitted they were not.
708. The potatoes being part of the provisions supplied to the institution, was it her duty to inspect them as they were being sent in? It was.
709. Did you call her attention to any other provisions? Not on that occasion.
710. Did you at any other time? Yes; I called her attention to the tea.
711. To anything else? No; on this other occasion only to the tea.
712. What did you say to her with reference to the tea? I tasted it first in the coppers and then in the basins, and I said there was no flavour of tea about it and I did not consider it fit to give to the men. I also told her that I would take away two small bottles of the tea, one from the basin of a man who was drinking it, and another from the copper, and have it examined by the Government Analyst. I did so and I got his report.
713. Have you got his report here? I have the original report; it is on record.
714. Was the analysis condemnatory of the tea? The analysis was to the effect that it was utterly without powers of nutriment, and possessed none of the qualities of genuine tea.
715. Did you point that out to her? I did tell her of that subsequently.
716. What did she say to that? I cannot remember.
717. With regard to the tobacco, are the men allowed tobacco? Yes.
718. Did you see some tobacco? Yes; on more than one occasion I saw some very bad tobacco.
719. Did you point it out to her? Yes.
720. Did you also forward a sample of that to the analyst? I did.
721. And was his report of such a nature as to prohibit the use of that tobacco? Yes. He said there was no poisonous matter in it; but, apart from that, it was of a very poor quality indeed.
722. Mr. Crick.] These provisions—the potatoes and the tobacco—would be paid for by the Government on vouchers, I suppose? Yes; certified to by the superintendent.
723. She would benefit nothing by having an inferior quality of tobacco? No; of course she would not.
724. Mr. Williamson.] Not directly? No.
725. Mr. Crick.] What do you mean by "not directly"? I do not see how she would benefit at all. It shows a pure want of oversight in not seeing that proper provisions came in. I am certain in my own mind that Mrs. Cunynghame did not derive any benefit.
726. You hold as a complaint against her that she passed inferior tobacco? Yes.
727. Mr. Williamson.] And inferior potatoes and inferior tea? And inferior other provisions. I have a letter here.
728. Mr. Ritchie.] With regard to the potatoes, you said they were unfit for human food;—was that after or before they were cooked? They were all black; they were simply rotten potatoes.
729. Not the fault of the cooking? No; they were rotten potatoes, black right through.
730. With regard to the tea, you said the analysis was very bad? Very bad.
731. Was it Mrs. Cunynghame's duty to select that tea and inspect it? It was her duty to see that it was of a proper quality when it was passed in. That was my reason for asking her to see to it herself.
732. And the same way with the potatoes? The same way with everything.
733. Would you consider that a lady like Mrs. Cunynghame would be an expert judge of tobacco? No.
734. Then you would forgive her with regard to the tobacco? I should have called in one of the men or the attendants who smoked, and got him to give his opinion on it.
735. Mr. Frank Farnell.] You do not smoke? No; I myself had to call up an attendant to give his opinion on the tobacco.
736. Mr. Ritchie.] And the same may be said with regard to the tea? That is more than I can tell you. I can judge tea.
737. Mr. Williamson.] But there was no excuse, whatever, for the potatoes; she did not offer any excuse? No, she could not offer any excuse. Here is a letter which shows that complaints were frequent from the men.
738. Had you to complain of anything else with regard to the provisions? Not that I recollect. I hardly hold her blame-worthy with regard to the tobacco, I should like to say that.
739. Nothing with regard to the bread? Not that I remember.
740. Mr. Crick.] Was there any complaint about the meat? Several complaints were made to me about the meat.
741. Was that during the time that this nominee of Mr. Taylor had the contract;—did you not admit in your evidence that the meat was supplied from Mr. Taylor's shop during the time that Dunn had the contract? I know nothing of any nominee. I said the meat came from Taylor Brothers for a time, but I could not say for how long.
742. Do you know whether any of the bad meat that came there was supplied by Taylor Brothers through Dunn? That is more than I can tell you. I cannot tell you who it was supplied by, because I am informed that a man named Finlayson commenced to supply meat soon after I was appointed.
743. Mr. Bowke.] You admitted that you knew that Taylor Brothers supplied the meat? Yes; some of it.
744. Mr. Williamson.] During your time? I said that I had no doubt that during a portion of my time the meat did come from Taylor Brothers' shop. That is in my printed evidence.
745. There was no complaint about that? There were several complaints about meat. I could not say whether it was about that meat or about any other meat; but my instructions to the superintendents were always the same—to reject bad provisions. In fact the superintendents know their duty in that respect.
746. In paragraph 3 of your first report you say: "In one instance the tobacco of a blind man was stopped for a week by the superintendent's orders, and the punishment would have continued indefinitely

Mr.
S. Maxted.
7 Aug., 1889.

if I had not discovered it, because an attendant had found a louse upon the old man's collar—an offence for which he should not have been held responsible, in view of his infirmity." With regard to that portion of your report, do you know the name of the man? No, I do not.

747. Did you see Mrs. Cunynghame in reference to it? I did. I went straight from him and complained.

748. What did you say to her? I told her that I thought it was an absurd and harsh punishment to inflict upon a blind man, because he could not tell whether he had such vermin about him or not; and I think she said in reply that there was a man appointed to look after him and keep him clean. "Then," I said, "you ought to have stopped the tobacco of that man, and not of the blind man."

749. What did she say? I told her to restore it.

750. How long had the man been kept without his tobacco? He informed me a week. I told her so, and she did not deny it. I told her to restore it at once, and it was restored.

751. Do you remember in the month of October the men complaining to you in reference to their pudding being stopped? Yes, I do.

752. Did you interview Mrs. Cunynghame in reference to that? Yes.

753. Will you tell us what transpired? She said she had stopped it because there had not been enough cooks, as far as I can recollect.

754. How long had the men's pudding been stopped? I cannot tell you. It had been stopped over a week at any rate. There would only have been one stoppage if it was only a week. It was a disobedience of strict orders.

755. In what respect? I gave her a dietary which she was to adhere to, and this was part of it.

756. And she excused herself by saying she had not enough cooks? Yes.

757. Mr. Crick.] What was the date of it? Some time in October.

758. Mr. Williamson.] In the beginning of the month of November, did you find that Mrs. Cunynghame was allowing stores to be passed in by the clerk instead of inspecting them herself? Yes; I was informed so, and I will produce the evidence. I cannot of course know except from hearsay.

759. Did you speak to her about it? Yes, I did.

760. When you challenged her about allowing stores to pass in without inspecting them, and delegating the work to the clerk, what took place? She said she was doing it, but she thought Abbott was quite competent. I did not believe her. I told her then that it was not a question of competency at all; that I could not look to Abbott, an inmate clerk, to be responsible for the quality of the provisions. This duty of looking over the provisions would not take ten minutes.

761. As a matter of fact, the building is facing Macquarie-street, a short distance from the footpath? Yes.

762. And the provisions pass the door of the Superintendent's office when they are being brought in? At any rate they were brought right round quite close to her quarters, where she could have come out and seen them without any trouble. I suppose it is not twenty yards from her quarters to the place where the provisions are passed in.

763. What did she say in reference to that when you complained to her? She replied that she thought that Abbott was quite competent.

764. What did you tell her? I told her that it was not a question of competency at all, and that I could not allow Abbott, an inmate clerk, to be responsible for the quality of these provisions, about which there had been so many complaints.

765. Did you subsequently find that, notwithstanding that warning which you gave her, she did not inspect the goods as they came in—after the beginning of November? Once only after that, I think. I know I did once with reference to the meat. I remember that occasion.

766. As a matter of fact, she was not there when the meat was passed in? I was there myself, and the meat had been passed into the kitchen and partially cut up, and one of the servants was in the act of taking a joint, and Mrs. Cunynghame had not come out.

767. Mr. Bourke.] That was the morning when you went out at 7 o'clock? It may have been 7 or after 7. It must have been after 7, because the custom is for the contractor to go first to George-street and then round to Macquarie-street.

768. Mr. Williamson.] So that she had paid no attention whatever to your previous instructions? No; apparently not.

769. Again, in the beginning of November, did you happen to make some inquiries concerning an attendant named Edgar, and as to the finding of a man suffering from paralysis lying on the floor? Yes. The case of Edgar finding the man in the ward was the case which I explained in this way: the wardsman Drew was drunk, so Edgar said, and a patient informed him that this man who was lying on the floor and struggling to get back into bed had been there for a long time. Edgar, when I spoke to him about it, said that he had been afraid to report the case the day that Drew was drunk; he was afraid to tell of this because, to use his own expression, she would "mark" him.

770. With regard to this man Drew, did you make any complaint to Mrs. Cunynghame about the matter? Yes.

771. Did you call her attention to the fact that it was self-evident that she had not inspected? I told Mrs. Cunynghame the whole thing.

772. Mr. Bourke.] Give us the name of this man who was struggling on the floor? I cannot; but I can produce the evidence of Edgar.

773. Mr. Williamson.] Did you make a complaint to Mrs. Cunynghame about Drew being drunk, and the man being allowed to lie in this state on the floor? She said she did not believe Edgar had told the truth, and she denied Edgar's charge of marking him.

774. Did this happen on the very day you visited the asylum, or had it happened in the morning? It was on a feast day.

775. Do you recollect the case of a man named Petersen? I think Petersen's case is one of the police cases. Of course I have only their statements about Petersen, but official records prove them to be correct.

776. On the last occasion you were asked with regard to some men working on Mrs. Cunynghame's farm—have you ascertained the names of some of them? I have ascertained the names of a number of them.

777. Being inmates of the asylum? Yes. The names are Brophy, Alexander Thompson, James White, Wensley, and Dyer. Of course this is only information supplied to me.

778. Mr. Ritchie.] Is it a general rule in the institutions under you not to allow the men to go out to work elsewhere? I have never allowed it to be done.

779. Not in any other institution? No; I never think of doing such a thing.

780.

Mr.
S. Marted.
7 Aug., 1899.

780. Was it a practice previous to that at any of these institutions? I cannot say.
781. You are not aware of any case? No.
782. Mr. Williamson.] Did you speak to Mrs. Cunynghame about these men? This was altogether before my time. I did speak to her, and told her that kind of thing must not go on; and she said then there were no men there. As a matter of fact there were not in my time; it was previous to my time.
783. Mr. Ritchie.] Can you give us any definite information as to when it was discontinued? No, I cannot; I have the men as witnesses.
784. Mr. Williamson.] You cannot fix any date as to when this was discontinued? You will find that some of these men were employed after the Inquiry Board reported. I am not sure, but I think so.
785. When Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, would she be in charge of moneys received on behalf of the men? Yes.
786. Any men who came into the asylum during her suspension? No.
787. How many times did you visit the Macquarie-street Asylum between the time of your appointment and Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? I suppose between twenty and thirty times.
788. On every occasion, were complaints made to you? Oh, no; not on every occasion.
789. Mostly? Many times.
790. Chairman.] How many times a week? It might happen in this way: I might go two or three times one week, and a week would elapse when I would have to visit the cottage hospitals in the country and other places. Then, when I had the time, I would visit these institutions again frequently, and then there would be another lapse perhaps of a fortnight before I went again. I have thirteen institutions under my direct control, apart from those which are subsidized. I mean institutions wholly supported by the Government.
791. Mr. Williamson.] Did you receive the Medical Officer's report in reference to Mrs. Cunynghame—was it forwarded to you by the doctor? Yes.
792. When you received the first communication from Dr. Violette, dated 22nd of October, 1888, did you see Mrs. Cunynghame? I did.
793. Did you hand her the letter? I told her exactly what the letter was, and she said it was not true, and I think she referred to some ladies who could state that it was not true. That is the letter in which he complains about the ale having been substituted for medical comforts.
794. Did you also specially refer to the case of M'Govern, mentioned in the doctor's letter? No; I did not specially refer to any case.
795. What did she say in reference to M'Govern? She did not particularize. She said that as the men had received the ale that day she did not think the medical comforts were necessary. That would be on the day of the feast.
796. Did she send you in any written report with reference to that letter of the 22nd October? No; I do not think so. You will find it referred to in the pamphlet.
797. Did you also receive a communication from Dr. Violette on the 8th of November? Yes.
798. Did it contain these charges: undue severity, arbitrary discipline and vindictive spirit, misappropriation of medical comforts, neglect in the care of the sick, no action to prevent a recurrence of the offence by superintendent, and that she was untruthful—eight charges? Yes; I wrote to him and asked him to supply me with information under certain headings. The headings were based upon my own observations, which I have explained throughout my evidence, of the way in which the place was conducted, and that was his reply.
799. Did you show that letter to her? I do not think I showed her that.
800. Did you speak to her in reference to the charges made by the doctor? No; I reported her soon afterwards. I gave her up as hopeless, to tell you the truth, just about that time. My report went in six days after I got that letter. I tried everything I could with her—coaxed her, bullied her, and threatened her, but to no purpose.
801. Subsequently she was supplied with a copy of Dr. Violette's report, and she forwarded him an answer? Of course that would all be done through the head office; but it is evident on the face of it that she was supplied with a copy.
802. With regard to these two reports of the 4th September, were they sent in on that day? Yes.
803. And was she on the same day removed from office? So the papers show.
804. Some reference has been made to your ability to occupy the position of Director? Yes; Mr. Bourke challenged that at the opening of this inquiry.
805. You were first master of the Protestant Orphan School? Yes.
806. How long? One year and nine months, as far as I can recollect. I was then appointed Boarding-out Officer and Chief Inspector under the State Children's Relief Act. I was appointed to administer that Act and to introduce the Boarding-out system—under a Board, of course.
807. How long were you in that position? I hold it still, in conjunction with my present office. I also had practical experience at the Sydney Benevolent Asylum, because I was there often selecting children, and that institution combines the elements of all these other institutions—men, women, and children.
808. As a matter of fact, in obtaining this position of Director of Asylums you had recommendations from the leading doctors of Sydney? I had recommendations from those gentlemen whose names you have there, and they are rather of a special character—they are not ordinary recommendations. They include recommendations from Dr. Manning, Dr. MacKellar, Dr. Renwick, Bishop Barry, Dr. Garran, the Hon. James Brunker, Mr. Street, M.P., the late Hon. W. B. Dalley, and the Rev. Dr. Jefferies. I got these testimonials because these gentlemen know my qualifications thoroughly; they were intimately acquainted with me.
809. When did you get these? In connection with the application for my present appointment. I would like you to see what Dr. Renwick says. He is a high authority in these matters.
810. They gave you these testimonials for the purpose of getting your present appointment? Yes.
811. These deal with your personal character and your ability to occupy the position? Yes.
812. If any doubt is raised as to your qualifications, I suppose you will have no objection to submit these testimonials to the Committee? No. [Testimonials produced.]
813. Mr. Williamson.] Since Mrs. Cunynghame has left the institution everything has gone along smoothly? Yes.
814. And satisfactorily? And satisfactorily.
815. No complaint of any kind? No; you will have evidence other than mine about that.

WEDNESDAY,

WEDNESDAY, 21 AUGUST, 1889.

Present:—

Mr. HOWE,
Mr. GRAHAME,
Mr. EDMUNDS,
Mr. KIDD,

Mr. RITCHIE,
Mr. CASS,
Mr. HAWTHORNE,
Mr. CRICK.

JAMES PETER HOWE, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sydney Maxted called in and further examined:—

Mr.
S. Maxted.
21 Aug., 1889.

816. Mr. Williamson.] Do you produce the original pay-sheets which were referred to in your last examination? I do. [Pay-sheets handed in.]

817. Mr. Bourke.] Do you produce an order for the admission into the asylum of one McDonald, who had £10 when he left? Abbott will know, and will produce that.

818. With regard to this man Donald McDonald, do you remember that in the despatch-box you got there was £10 belonging to him? I have explained that before. I said Abbott would be able to give you clear information on that point.

819. We do not want Abbott's evidence? Abbott handed in, I think, two £5 notes; they were handed to the man, I believe.

820. By you or by Abbott? I cannot recollect now; by one of us.

821. Do you remember that when he was coming into the institution you gave Mrs. Cunyngame an authority, on the back of his order, to receive this £10, and hold it for him? I do not recollect; the order will show. I have, I know, in special cases, given such instructions to the superintendents.

822. In answer to question 33 in your former examination, you said as part of the brutality charged against Mrs. Cunyngame, that she said to a man named White when he approached her to make a complaint, "I will not believe a word you say, White,"—do you remember that man? Yes; I remember the man White.

823. Do you remember whether he also made a complaint of Dr. Violette? No; I do not recollect that.

824. You do not recollect that he made a complaint about Dr. Violette's treatment? I do not remember.

825. This reply that Mrs. Cunyngame gave you—it was a printed copy, was it not? It was among the replies which the superintendents had made upon the report of the Asylums Inquiry Board.

826. Mr. Williamson.] Have you that reply? Yes; I can get a copy of it.

827. Mr. Bourke.] In your reply to question 61 you say, "The man was taken to the lock-up and he died"—was that Hayselder? No, I was not referring to Hayselder.

828. I forgot to ask you with reference to this man Bannan. It was one of the complaints against Mrs. Cunyngame that he was put in an isolated ward? Yes; I base one of my charges of deceit upon that.

829. It is a complaint against Mrs. Cunyngame, is it not, that he was put into the isolated ward? No, you misunderstood me there; he had no right to be there undoubtedly.

830. On the 10th October you sent the following telegram to Mrs. Cunyngame, "Respecting William Bannan, carry out my verbal instructions yesterday. Isolate man. Have him watched, and when he becomes violent send for Dr. Violette and Dr. Phillips, who will then certify that he is insane." Do you remember that telegram? Yes; perfectly well.

831. We should like to have that telegram, if possible? That is a copy of the telegram. I admit the telegram.

832. You say in that telegram that you gave verbal instructions yesterday;—then I suppose you saw Bannan the day before you sent the telegram? I gave Mrs. Cunyngame verbal instructions.

833. Did you see the man? Yes; I have stated in my evidence that I saw the man, and there did not appear to be anything the matter with him.

834. Notwithstanding that, you gave the instructions? Mrs. Cunyngame wrote that the man was insane, and I thought it better that another doctor besides Dr. Violette should see him.

835. Mr. Williamson.] He was afterwards sent to the Asylum for the Insane? I do not know. I know that Dr. Phillips refused to certify that he was insane.

836. In answer to question 95 you say you received certain information about Mrs. Cunyngame from people outside, some of whom were connected with other institutions;—was Mrs. Dennis, the superintendent of the George-street Asylum, one of those persons? With all respect to the Committee, I decline to say.

837. You say in your evidence that the superintendent of another asylum gave you some of this information;—did the daughter of one of the superintendents of another institution who gave you this information afterwards apply for Mrs. Cunyngame's position? No; I can honestly say that. There was no application from anybody for Mrs. Cunyngame's position.

838. You say Miss Dennis never applied? Never. In fact, I have been taxed since with having been very unfair in not offering the appointment to one of the sub-natrons, including Miss Dennis and Miss Burnside.

839. In answer to question 59 you referred to an investigation you made in Mrs. Cunyngame's presence with regard to the misappropriation of supplies; can you tell us now whether the man there referred to was Hall or Chrevelyer? I believe now that it was Chrevelyer. The clerk tells me still that it was Hall, but I believe it was Chrevelyer; although both of them were in it—both of them gave evidence.

840. But on this particular occasion there was only one man, and he went up from Sydney with you? He went up in the same train. I think it was Chrevelyer, but the clerk seems positive that it was Hall. I was myself positive that it was Hall until I came to think the circumstance over afterwards.

841. You said you could tell by referring to your books? I can find the information.

842. After investigating before Mrs. Cunyngame the complaint which Chrevelyer made, did you not say to him that you had a good mind to kick him, or something to that effect? Yes, I did say that to Chrevelyer.

Chreveleyer. I said he deserved to be kicked. I was rather inclined from what he said to attribute to him some filthy letters which Mrs. Cunynghame had picked up on the grounds referring to herself.

843. Then in your answers to questions from 99 to 106 Hall's name should be struck out, for it was really Chreveleyer who was referred to? No; they both gave evidence—they were both there.

844. On the same date? Hall was one of the witnesses; Hall made this declaration.

845. I am speaking of the man whom you took up from Sydney;—he went to the Sydney office and made a complaint, and you went out to Parramatta with him to investigate the complaint? I am not sure, but I will ascertain.

846. You were almost sure, I think you said? I think it was Chreveleyer. The clerk is just as positive that it was Hall.

847. In answer to Question 113 you say, with reference to the people who were served with meat in Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen, that they had more than their share, and that the inmates must have gone short. Have you ever had any complaint about the inmates going short of food or not having sufficient? No, not on that account, but the fact speaks for itself.

848. There is another matter as to which I expected you would have refreshed your memory. It has reference to the man Kilmar, who was dying for two days. You were asked how you arrived at the conclusion that the man was in that condition for two days, and you replied: "I went to the wardman, and I said, 'How long has this man been like this?' He said, 'Two or three days,' and I said, 'He is dying,' and then I sent for Mrs. Cunynghame." Could you give us the name of that wardman? I think it was Drew. I can give you the name positively to-day, but speaking from memory I think it was Drew.

849. You said, in answer to Question 289, that the doctor had between 600 and 700 people to attend to. You did not expect the doctor to see every case? I did not.

850. When the doctor has to attend to such a large number of sick people, do you think he can do them justice? No, that is a matter I am at present discussing with the Government Medical Officer.

851. You have not, up to the present, reported on that matter? There has been no opportunity of doing so. I am discussing the matter with the Government Medical Officer, with the view of having a proper pauper hospital and a proper medical staff, and to separate these two classes of people. I do not think one man can attend properly to 600 or 700 patients. I had to take the matter at my hand and make the best of it.

852. You did not blame the doctor at all, you blamed Mrs. Cunynghame for any want of supervision in the hospital? Certainly I do, because there were only sixty hospital patients, and the present superintendent does it.

853. But you admit that one doctor cannot attend to 600 or 700 sick people in one day? No, I do not think he can; but I think the superintendents should, by their supervision, ascertain the cases which it is necessary to show the doctor. I have given that answer three or four times over.

854. I want to get names, if possible. I asked you this question (458), "The second charge in your report of the 4th of December is that a paralytic patient has been cruelly used in hospital by a warder named McPhee. From whom did you get your information about that?" To this you replied, "I was going through the ward, and one of the patients, whom I do not recollect now, spoke about the matter to me. I do not remember his name, but I can produce evidence in reference to this." Can you tell us his name now? I cannot. But I can state this, that when I directed Mrs. Cunynghame's attention to the matter, her reply was that it happened since her suspension. I then pointed out to her that it happened eight days before her suspension. I cannot give the name of the patient now.

855. You say you can produce evidence in reference to this; can you give us the names of the witnesses whom you intend to call? I am going to call Edgar in reference to this; I think I can find McPhee too.

856. Questions 468 and 469 are as follows:—

"In the latter part of paragraph 4 in your report you say you gave the superintendent orders to superintend the application of these lotions; how do you know that Mrs. Cunynghame did not constantly superintend the application of these lotions? From the information of the wardman.

What wardman? The wardman who was there at the time. I can get his name by reference to the book."

Can you give us his name now? I am going to call the man. I think his name is England; he was a dentist, and is from New Zealand. I had his name on my list of witnesses, but I cannot quite recollect it now.

857. I want to be quite clear in reference to the men who worked on the farm, evidence regarding which is on page 21. You have said that since you were appointed you do not think that Mrs. Cunynghame used any of this labour on the farm. You are quite sure about that? I do not believe she did. I said something more than that; that was not the whole of my answer.

858. That is all I want now. I want to be clear about that? Yes.

859. Referring to Question 670, can you tell us, as nearly as possible, the date when you first saw Holmes, and when he made a complaint to you? I do not recollect the date. I am going to call the man.

860. You were appointed Director of Asylums on the 1st August; it was soon after that date that you went up? I cannot recollect the date of Holmes' matter.

861. Can you recollect whether it was on your first or your second visit? I cannot recollect that; I am going to call the man.

862. You say that Holmes was 52 years of age, and had been married 55 years? That was his statement to me.

863. I have a memorandum here from the undertaker who buried Maria Holmes, who died on August 7th—seven days after your appointment—from which it appears that her age was 57; she must therefore have been two years old when she was married? I am only telling you what the man said to me.

864. There were a number of orders given to Holmes to go to Newington to see his wife;—will you kindly produce those? I have no knowledge of them. They may be up at the institution. You can have access to whatever documents you require.

865. With reference to these cottage homes; was it not Mr. John Tayob's land that was purchased for this purpose? Yes.

866. Can you give us the date of the circumstance referred to in Question 691 as follows: "When you visited the institution subsequently did a deputation of the old men wait upon you? Yes, five or six of them?" I cannot give you the date exactly. I am calling the men.

867. In answer to Question 728 you say that the inmates complained about the potatoes being bad? I saw the potatoes myself.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
21 Aug., 1889.

Mr.
S. Maxted,
21 Aug., 1880.

868. I want to know who made the complaint about them to you? I saw them myself.

869. There was no complaint? I heard the men grumbling. I cannot tell you exactly who complained; there was a general grumble about them.

870. Were there any complaints made to you by the inmates about any other food besides potatoes? Not that I can remember. They complained occasionally about both the potatoes and the meat, and I think the vegetables also.

871. You said that the meat was bad at times, but you complained particularly about the tobacco and the tea—this was all from your own observations; there were no complaints made to you about those? Yes; the men grumbled as I passed through. They would say "The tobacco is bad to-day, sir," and I would break a piece off and smell it to judge if possible as to its quality.

872. Did they complain about the tea? Yes.

873. About the quality or the quantity? About the quality.

874. Did you take any action on their complaints against the contractors—did you write to the contractors? I produced you a letter the other day that was written to Mr. Kolly; but that is a matter I always expect the superintendents to deal with. I never go between them and the contractors if possible.

875. You did not take any action? Excepting to write. I have written to the contractors over and over again. My books are full of letters to the contractors.

876. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose you have a lot of trouble with contractors from time to time? Yes. They tender at rates that are too low and then try to run in all the rubbish they can.

877. Mr. Bourke.] Are there any rules for the guidance of matrons in the institution—any printed register? No.

878. Then I suppose that in most matters they have a large discretion? I have not allowed them very much discretion since I was appointed, because it struck me that it was being abused. I allowed them very little discretion.

879. But up to the time you were appointed? Undoubtedly; they were a law unto themselves.

880. But there are no written rules even at present? No. Dr. Manning and I are trying to separate the two systems before we bring in printed regulations. One set of regulations would not suit the dual system of dealing with these paupers.

881. At the end of your examination last week, you were asked three questions by Mr. Williamson with reference to the state of the institution since Mrs. Cunyngame left. I do not intend to go into the matter, but I think I am entitled on those questions to cross-examine you. You were asked "Since Mrs. Cunyngame has left the institution everything has gone smoothly?" and your reply is, "Yes." Are you aware that five boys at a feast one night at that institution became very drunk there, and that there was a police report about it? I am aware that that is absolutely untrue.

882. What about the police report? I have seen the police report. The police report was outside of the institution altogether, and it did not state five boys.

883. How many boys, then? As far as I could understand this happened—

884. You had better get the papers? I will get the papers, including the police report.

885. Are you aware that since Mrs. Cunyngame left the institution five men who were let out were locked up one night and fined? I am not aware of that; it may have happened. If the men go out they do get drunk. That was one of my reasons for trying to abolish the payments. They save up their threepences and sixpences and go out together and get drunk for three or four days or a week; then they become very low and we have to take them back. I regarded these payments as simply affording them the means of doing that sort of thing.

886. Mr. Williamson.] They do it in all the institutions? Yes; it happens over and over again. I could produce from fifty to one hundred cases in different institutions.

887. Mr. Bourke.] You said in your evidence that everything had gone on satisfactorily since Mrs. Cunyngame left? Of course you regard that as being very unsatisfactory, but it would not affect the internal management of the institution, and it is a usual thing.

888. I should like to be clear about another matter—with regard to the misappropriation of provisions;—you do not charge Mrs. Cunyngame with using the provisions of the institution in her own private house? I have not done so.

889. Except that she allowed the servants to ration themselves? How can I tell whether she used the provisions? I did exonerate Mrs. Cunyngame from any direct misappropriation of these provisions.

890. Do you charge her with using them in her own private house? Not these provisions.

891. Not the asylum provisions? Not in this particular case, I do not.

892. In any case? Yes. I shall bring evidence which will, I think, prove that, but it is not within my own knowledge.

893. Then your charge is this: First, that Mrs. Cunyngame used the labour of the inmates of the institution in her own kitchen; and secondly, that she allowed them to ration themselves from the asylum provisions? Yes.

894. But you have not charged her with using any of these provisions for her own private table? I have not.

895. Do you remember a man named Henry Allen, who was a wardman in the cancer ward; Mrs. Cunyngame brought him under your notice, or he came under your notice in some way for neglecting the patients? She ordered him out of the ward, if my memory serves me right.

896. You charged her with not attending to that ward and she turned him out for neglect; do you remember that you wanted to put him back again? Yes; I considered that the man was being ill-used. That was one of the things upon which I based this.

897. That she did not put him back? Yes.

898. Did you ever give the attendants permission to leave and return to the institution without obtaining Mrs. Cunyngame's consent? Certainly not; I would never do such a thing.

899. Did Mrs. Cunyngame ever ask you for rules and regulations to guide her in the management of this institution? I do not remember. Mrs. Cunyngame knew there were no rules.

900. Did you ever complain to Mrs. Cunyngame or anyone else of want of attention on the part of the doctor? I do not remember.

901. Or to the doctor himself? I have spoken to the doctor about things which have been said to me with reference to his attendance there by Mrs. Cunyngame.

902. Have you ever been there yourself when the doctor came? Yes, no doubt I have.

903.

903. Do you remember how long he stopped? That is more than I can tell you.

904. About the paragraph that appeared in the Herald;—that is part of your complaint;—will you produce that? I have told you that I do not attach much importance to the publication of the paragraph except that it was a portion of the disobedience that occurred from time to time. If Mrs. Cunynghame had asked me whether she might put it in at the proper time, I should have said "yes." [Paragraph produced and read by the Chairman.]

Mr.
S. Maxted.
21 Aug., 1889.

905. Do you know Daniel Watsford who used to be a wardman? Yes.

906. He was put into the institution as a wardman was he not? He was put in there when the alterations were being effected to look after the men in the reading-room, and to see that the dinners were distributed.

907. Do you know what he was before he was put in there;—do you know that he was a "man milliner," whatever that might be? I do not know. He was put in at the instance of Mrs. Cunynghame, and one of her friends, Mrs. Fletcher.

908. Did Mr. Taylor recommend him? I do not remember. Mrs. Fletcher did. Mr. Taylor might have done so. It was Mrs. Fletcher who spoke to me first, and when I spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame, she said "Yes, she would be very glad to have him." He is there still.

909. With regard to this man Watsford, did you read a paragraph which he caused to be inserted in the Mercury, stating that he was librarian, and had charge of the reading-room? No; this is the first I have heard of it.

910. You saw the one he has imputed to Mrs. Cunynghame? I saw that, of course.

911. One or two questions about the cost of this institution. When Mrs. Cunynghame was there, up to the time you were appointed, she had only two paid assistants? Yes. I have changed the whole system of dealing with these things since then.

912. Then, after you were appointed, this man Watsford was put on, and that made three paid assistants? Yes.

913. And she had about 300 people there? That would be about the average. She dealt with them in this way: she took the labour of inmates for positions which I do not think they ought to be placed in. They all did this, in fact—not only Mrs. Cunynghame.

914. Will you tell us how many paid attendants are there now? I think there are five.

915. Do you think that institution could be properly managed with only two paid attendants, one of whom, you must remember, was a man milliner before he was appointed? I never heard any complaint from Mrs. Cunynghame about that.

916. But since she left you have put on two additional attendants? I have put in positions myself outside people who were before inmates.

917. You are sure there are only five paid men altogether now? Only five altogether.

918. That is to say two, in addition to those who were there when Mrs. Cunynghame left? Yes, so far as my memory serves.

919. You have made some reference to Peter Abbott, the clerk, who would bear you out in some of your evidence? Yes.

920. What is he getting now? Well, it is difficult to say what he is getting now. Seeing the position which he had in Mrs. Cunynghame's time and believing him to be a very valuable man, in fact I know he practically managed the institution for a very long time; I have discovered that since I have had opportunities of going more fully into the matter, I made him one of the paid attendants. Since he has become very ill and feeble he supervises and pays a portion of his money to somebody else.

921. How much does he get? £50 per year.

922. Since Mrs. Cunynghame left? Yes. In Mrs. Cunynghame's time he was getting £33.

923. Do you remember a circular you sent to Mrs. Cunynghame a few weeks before she was suspended, containing a list of those who were receiving pay at the institution and telling her that she was to reduce the pay in nearly every case, and amongst these was Abbott whose name appeared at 2s. per day, and you said that he was to be reduced to 1s. a day? Yes. I want to explain that. It is another evidence of what I call deceit. In going through this list when I wanted these inmates' moneys reduced, I asked Mrs. Cunynghame, as I naturally would, to let me know the extent to which reductions could be effected. I took down a list from her in which she reduced Abbott from 2s. to 1s. a day. Then Mrs. Cunynghame asked me this question. She put it this way to me, I cannot remember the exact words. She asked me, in order that she should not run against these inmates, whether I would send her up upon the basis of what we had been discussing a direction so that I should bear the responsibility, and I at once did it. She then, as I am informed ———

924. You must only state what you know of your own knowledge? The point I wanted to get at was simply that she had gone too far.

925. How do you know? I was informed so.

926. You cannot tell us what you were informed? Well I will say this: that at Mrs. Cunynghame's request I restored Abbott to 2s. a day afterwards.

927. Is that all in explanation about that matter? That is all.

928. I should like to know what you mean by deceit, and where it comes in? You stopped me when I was coming to that.

929. You must prove that by somebody else? I am going to prove what she said to Abbott about this reduction.

930. She first recommended to you that he should be reduced 1s., and then she afterwards asked you to make it 2s.? Yes, after something which had taken place with Abbott.

931. Mr. Ritchie.] What you state is that she did not wish it to appear that she recommended the reductions and wished you to give her a document directing that they should be made? Yes.

932. Mr. Bourke.] When Mrs. Cunynghame had charge of the institution, her quarters were very meagre, were they not? No; they were not in a good state of repair.

933. You did not think they were as they ought to be? I did not think they were as they ought to be, and I tried to get her a new house.

934. Are you aware that since Mrs. Brooke has gone there she has taken a part of the hospital that was formerly used for the patients? I directed myself that a rearrangement should be made.

Mr.
S. Maxted.
21 Aug., 1880.

935. She has larger quarters than Mrs. Cunynghame had? No, she has not larger quarters. What I did was this: the attendants had two divisions which were down the yard, and which I am now using for hospital divisions. I took the attendants from those quarters and put them into the quarters that Mrs. Cunynghame occupied, because I could there secure additional store-room which I could not obtain in any other part of the building. Then I gave Mrs. Brooke the two divisions which had been used as hospital divisions in the main building, and an old office and store-room, so that she has four rooms for her quarters.

936. Has she any more rooms than Mrs. Cunynghame had? No, I do not think so.

937. But have you not spent or caused to be spent a considerable sum of money? No; the walls were scraped and painted.

938. How soon after Mrs. Brooke went there? I cannot tell you, but I could get the particulars. Mrs. Brooke was living in one room for some weeks. I did my best, as Mrs. Cunynghame knows, to get a new house for her.

939. Mr. Ritchie.] How long have you known the institution which Mrs. Cunynghame presided over of your own knowledge? About eleven or twelve years.

940. Nearly from the time she first took charge of it? Very nearly so.

941. Did you know the condition of the building at that time? I had no knowledge of it.

942. Did you know ten or twelve years ago? I did not; I had no active concern in it.

943. You know the history of the institution? Oh yes.

944. That it was first established as an Erysipilas Hospital? Yes, with half-a-dozen patients.

945. Do you know the history of Mrs. Cunynghame's management of that institution throughout? I have no knowledge of it at all.

946. How long have you known the history of that institution in connection with Mrs. Cunynghame and her management? I could only answer that by saying, since I took office myself.

947. But you have lived in Parramatta? Yes.

948. You were Superintendent of the Protestant Orphan School? Yes.

949. Had you no personal knowledge of the management of the institution then? Very little. I do not think I had any. I have been in and out once or twice and it appeared to be all right.

950. Mr. Bourke.] I suppose you know what reputation the institution had under Mrs. Cunynghame's management? No.

951. Mr. Williamson.] Not until after the report of the Asylums Inquiry Board? Yes; so far as I knew it was all right up to the period of the publication of the report of that Board.

952. Mr. Ritchie.] You know from the history of the place that the buildings were very old and dilapidated? Yes.

953. And that Mrs. Cunynghame took charge of it and managed it with considerable credit to herself? So far as I know to the contrary she did.

954. You never heard of or saw any report blaming her for want of capacity or attention to her duties? No. You asked me if I had known of any complaint being made. I have a letter here which shows that the late manager, Mr. King, considered things were very bad.

955. What date? The document is dated 6th of May, 1887.

956. When you took charge in August, 1888, had you any bias towards Mrs. Cunynghame from information you had received? No. My sympathies were rather with her, because I honestly thought that the Commission's report was overdrawn. She herself will admit that she and her husband were old friends of mine.

957. But you have stated in your former evidence that you received some outside reports which led you to an inquiry, was that prior to your taking charge or afterwards? Some were prior and some were afterwards. I spoke to several people who, I thought, might understand something about the place, because the men are constantly being transferred from one institution to another.

958. Then I suppose you will admit that, owing to these reports, you were a little extra critical? I was undoubtedly.

959. And hence had some bias? I do not admit that I had any unfriendly bias. I had none. I kept the same keen watch over other places.

960. You have made some reference to the mannerism of Mrs. Cunynghame towards the inmates, and of cruelty of disposition on her part. Can you describe an instance to the Committee? It is impossible to describe one. I have a number of witnesses who will give you evidence about it. She simply appeared to me to ignore them when they wanted to speak to her. I never heard her say a kind word to one of them.

961. But two men might differ with regard to an expression? I admit it may be a matter of opinion. In my opinion her manner was harsh as I have stated.

962. In Mrs. Cunynghame's defence, she gives the names of a number of persons who have given her certificates of character. Do you know Walter Brown, M.D., of Parramatta? I do.

963. Would you consider him a man capable of judging character, and judging of the management of an institution of the kind? He is a keen man. He is at present Medical Officer at Newington. He was not visiting Medical Officer at the Macquarie-street Asylum.

964. But would you consider him a capable man of judging? I should consider him a capable man undoubtedly.

965. He says in his letter, "I have known Mrs. Cunynghame, of the Asylum in Macquarie-street, for many years. I have also been in the habit of visiting the asylum, and I have reason for thinking Mrs. Cunynghame very attentive to the wants and comforts of the inmates." Do you believe that that is of any weight as coming from Dr. Brown? No, and I will tell you why,—because he had not any intimate acquaintance with the management of the institution. He was a mere superficial observer going in not on duty.

966. Mr. Bourke.] How do you know he was a superficial observer;—were you with him when he went there? I do not imagine that he was over the institution more than half a dozen times altogether, because he was not connected with the management of it. If he had been the medical officer I should have considered that his opinion had great weight.

967. Mr. Ritchie.] Then there is the Rev. W. J. Gunther;—he had opportunities of visiting the institution very frequently, had he not? Yes; please read what he said. I want to show you what he said to me. This is his letter:—

Dear Mrs. Cunyngame,

27 November, 1888.

I am so sorry to hear of your suspension, and send you a line to express my sympathy with you. I have known you ever since you came to the Asylum, and have always considered you attentive to your duties, and kind in your treatment of the men under your charge.

I trust your suspension will soon be removed.

Yours, &c.,
W. J. GUNTHER.

*Mr.
S. Masted.*
21 Aug., 1889.

I want to show you what Archdeacon Gunther said in a letter to me on the subject.

968. Would you not consider Archdeacon Gunther a gentleman capable of forming a very good estimate of the management of the institution? If he gave close attention to it, certainly.

969. But was he not there very frequently? I cannot say. He has not been there much in my time.

970. Do you not think that Archdeacon Gunther would scarcely be likely to give a recommendation of this kind unless he saw some reason for doing so? He should not undoubtedly; no gentleman should. But I attach very little importance, I am sorry to say, to testimonials I get from clergymen in another department which we are carrying on.

971. With regard to the employment of inmates in the kitchen, is it not usual or had it not been usual for these institutions to employ the inmates in these places? Not in that way. What I complain of is that these men were employed in a private capacity by Mrs. Cunyngame, but were paid and fed from the Public Treasury, and were put on the pay-sheets of the institution as occupying fictitious positions—official positions which they never occupied at all.

972. Is it not a fact that in the institution in George-street, and at Liverpool, the inmates are employed in the kitchen? Occasionally they are, but not in that way—not paid by the Government.

973. Then the only impropriety that occurred was that they were entered on the pay-sheets as something else than what they were? They were entered as holding Government positions, and were used for private purposes, and paid from the Public Treasury; that is my complaint. I am asking the paymaster of the Treasury to give his opinion upon that.

974. In a letter written on the 4th of September, you commended Mrs. Cunyngame very highly for her conduct of the institution? No.

975. You wrote a letter on that date referred to in questions 86 and 87. You then thought that Mrs. Cunyngame was managing very well? I did not think so.

976. As this was about three weeks after you took charge you had then received the reports from outside? Yes, I had received those reports from outside.

977. And how do you reconcile your passing a compliment to Mrs. Cunyngame at that time when you had these reports in your mind against her? That I have already told you. I was not biassed in an unfriendly way by any of these reports. I judged mainly by my own observation.

978. What is Daniel Watsford doing? He has charge of the reading-room catalogue and issues the books, looks after the blind principally and sees that their provisions are properly provided, as they cannot provide for themselves. He earns his money.

979. He has nothing to do otherwise with the working of the institution? No, not in a general way.

980. With regard to the moneys received by Mrs. Cunyngame for fat and other things she sold, have you been paid all the moneys she received? No, I have not. I have not received any account of those fat moneys. That is one of my charges of untruthfulness. I have said before that I had no doubt that if I had not Mrs. Cunyngame after her removal she would have immediately paid me the inmates' moneys.

981. Can you bring any charge against Mrs. Cunyngame for the misappropriation of these moneys—the fat moneys? I cannot. I do not know what became of them.

982. Then you do not know whether or not she has paid them all in? Oh, yes, I know that she has not paid them into the office.

983. Mr. Graham.] Would it not be the duty of Mrs. Cunyngame to return a monthly statement of accounts? Undoubtedly it was her duty to return any moneys she received in that way so that they could be paid into the Treasury. Moneys received for fat in other places have been paid into the Treasury.

984. Mr. Ritchie.] You spoke of harshness on the part of Mrs. Cunyngame in not allowing a man a pair of spectacles. How do you prove any kind of harshness in that case;—this man was without spectacles for a day or two? I explained that the man said he had been refused spectacles. That is the man in the cancer ward.

985. He had made application for them? Yes; so he said to me, and he detailed what took place.

986. I suppose that during the course of a day, where there were so many hundred men, many applications of the kind were made verbally to Mrs. Cunyngame? I cannot say that.

987. You ought to know? I have no doubt many applications are made.

988. You can imagine, from your knowledge of institutions, that they have many wants during the day? Certainly, I can understand that.

989. And you will admit, from your knowledge of the institution, that Mrs. Cunyngame might have been asked for twenty or thirty, or even a hundred different things during the day? So far as I know she might have been.

990. And if that is the case would you consider that it was any neglect of her duty not to attend to the requests of these men? If I had been in her place I should not have allowed the man to remain in that condition for two hours without spectacles.

991. Not even if there were a hundred applications for different other things? I cannot say that, of course. I do not suppose there were a hundred other applications. It is not very likely.

992. Mr. Edmunds.] Some reference has been made to a certificate given to Mrs. Cunyngame by Archdeacon Gunther. Have you any letter from Archdeacon Gunther of a later date? I have a letter here of a later date.

993. Mr. Crick.] Is it in reply to a letter written to Archdeacon Gunther? No. It arose out of a conversation I had with Archdeacon Gunther in a railway train about Mrs. Cunyngame's case.

994. Mr. Ritchie.] How did you obtain the letter? I had a conversation with Archdeacon Gunther in the train.

995. In reference to the testimonial he had given? No, not in reference to that; in reference to Mrs. Cunyngame's dismissal.

996.

Mr. S. Maxted. 996. Mr. Edmunds.] Would you read the letter? It is as follows:—
21 Aug., 1889.

Dear Mr. Maxted,

4 February, 1889.

I have received your note. Will reply as soon as I have had the opportunity of seeing Mr. Darcy Irvine and Mr. Kemmis. I now write to let you know how much I regret that certain statements have got into the papers. I am in no way responsible for any of them. I know that the matter under inquiry was talked about, and refused to give information when asked. I did, however, tell one gentleman that I had reported the matter to you, little thinking the communication would be published. Since the paragraph appeared in the Daily Telegraph I have told a pressman how unfair it was, and that if Mrs. Brooke, as it stated, knew nothing of the circumstances, that fact ought at once to be made known. I am surprised that it has not been. I have not seen Mrs. Cunyngame since you spoke to me. I was satisfied that you had good reasons for speaking as you did. In haste.

Yours, &c.,
W. F. GUNTHER.

997. All except the last sentence, I understand, refers to a letter which is irrelevant to the present inquiry? Yes.

998. You have stated that you have received another letter from Mr. King? I have a letter from Mr. King.

999. Which you regard as modifying his first opinion? It makes his first opinion perfectly valueless.

1000. What is the date of Archdeacon Gunther's testimonial? The 27th of November, 1888.

1001. And what is the date of his letter you have just read? February 4th, 1889.

1002. What is the date of Mr. King's testimonial? 29th of November, 1888.

1003. And have you got his other letter to which you have just referred? That letter is dated 6th of August, 1887, after Mr. King had any experience of Mrs. Cunyngame's management.

1004. Mr. Crick.] And before he gave his certificate to Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes.

1005. Then his subsequent letter would override the other? No; he knew nothing of the place when he wrote this letter.

1006. Chairman.] Will you read Mr. King's letter? It is as follows:—

My dear Mr. Bossiter,

Ashfield, 6 May, 1887.

Thanks for your letter. I think you should see Mr. Walker about Mrs. Cunyngame's matter. It is quite impossible for her to continue unless she can keep order. The people at the Asylum are becoming quite insubordinate.

I was at Liverpool yesterday. Dr. Beattie will give in his resignation on Monday. I am glad you visited Newington, and sent Fox to do the plumbing.

Yours truly,
FREDERIC KING.

1007. Mr. Bourke.] About the old men. You have told us that you had no practical experience of institutions for old men until you became Director of Asylums? Yes.

1008. Now that you have had over twelve months experience will you tell us whether you find the old men very apt to make complaints—very querulous? Yes of course they are. I suppose 50 per cent. of them are.

1009. I forgot to ask you with reference to the report of the Asylums Inquiry Board. You have read the evidence of Vavasour and Pryor? Yes.

1010. You remember that they speak very highly in their evidence of Mrs. Cunyngame and impute whatever went wrong in the institution to Abbott—any harshness that took place in the institution they attributed to Abbott? They do undoubtedly impute harshness to Abbott; but that is not my experience of him.

1011. Mr. Crick.] The report of the Asylums Board was as strong against other persons holding similar positions as it was against Mrs. Cunyngame was it not? Against one only.

1012. Who was that? Against the Newington Asylum. The superintendent of that Asylum who went out was one of the officers who went out on a pension in consequence of that report. Otherwise I have no doubt whatever from my knowledge since that I should have had some trouble there.

1013. What pension did she go out on? On the usual pension computed according to her period of service.

1014. Then the report was more strongly against her than against Mrs. Cunyngame? It was very strong against both of them—against those two institutions only.

1015. Mr. Edmunds.] Were any of the facts mentioned in the report within your personal knowledge? Not at that time.

1016. Of course you could not have got knowledge of them since except by hearsay? They were not within my personal knowledge.

William Bradley Violette, M.B., called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mr. W. B. Violette, M.B. 1017. Mr. Williamson.] What are you? Government medical officer for the Parramatta district.

1018. How long have you had a knowledge of that district? A little over two years.

1019. Who was your predecessor? Dr. Rowling.

21 Aug., 1889. 1020. During your charge of the Parramatta district you have had something to do with the Macquarie-street Asylum? I am visiting surgeon.

1021. And during a portion of that time Mrs. Cunyngame was the matron in charge? Yes.

1022. Do you recollect on the 22nd October last forwarding to the Director of Government Asylums the following communication:—

Sir,

No. 4, Ashton Terrace, Argyle-street, Parramatta, 22 October, 1888.

On making my usual visit to the Macquarie-street Asylum yesterday morning several of the patients in the hospital wards made complaints to me that the medical comforts I had ordered for them were not issued on Saturday last. One of them, J. Kerry, stated that he was induced to drink beer, in lieu of his ordinary comfort, on the remark of a lady visitor that he would get that or nothing. Another, James Boucher, complained that his malady had been aggravated by the beer supplied to him in lieu of his ordinary medical comfort.

This morning, James Nimmo complained to me that Mrs. Cunyngame had overwhelmed him with abuse, and had threatened to discharge him, for his having dared to bring the matter under my notice. Nimmo also stated that Mrs. Cunyngame visited the ward yesterday and served out portions of a sucking-pig or a joint of pork, saying that was her own treat to the men, and making sneering and defamatory remarks about the Quong Tart feast.

I also have to complain of Mrs. Cunyngame having called in Dr. Phillips to pronounce an opinion on inmates Bauman and M'Govern without my knowledge or sanction.

In the case of M'Govern she is desperately anxious to get rid of him, in consequence of his having been connected with several others, now dispersed, in making a statement that the medical comforts were stolen and carried out of the hospital by means means of a window leading from No. 3 Ward to the premises occupied by Mrs. Cunyngame. In my opinion this statement was never disproved.

Mr. W. B. Violette, M.B.

I respectfully ask you to give these matters your early attention, as I could never tolerate my orders and treatment being set aside by the matron-superintendent.

21 Aug., 1869.

I have, &c.,

W. BRADLEY VIOLETTE,

Government Medical Officer, Parramatta.

Sydney Maxted, Esq.,

Director of Government Asylums, Sydney.

Yes.

1023. What evidence have you to substantiate the statements you make there? I made entries at the time in the medical register which is kept at the institution. Opposite the name of James Kerry there is this entry:—"Complains of the non-issue of the stimulant ordered for him yesterday, and that he was induced to drink beer on the order that if he did not he would get nothing. Lady visitors." That means that a lady visitor told him. The lady visitors were distributing the refreshments.

1024. Mr. Crick.] Then it was a lady visitor who told him that? They were distributing what was given. Boucher made the same complaint, and against his name is the entry:—"Malady aggravated in consequence thereof." That was in consequence of his taking the beer instead of the stimulant he was getting. I think it was either gin or some other spirit; he was suffering from asthma.

1025. You made those entries on complaints made to you? Yes.

1026. Mr. Williamson.] Did you inquire into the complaints? Yes. I found that they had not got the comforts I ordered, and that beer had been given instead.

1027. Did you speak to Mrs. Cunyngame? Mrs. Cunyngame was not there that morning. I made this entry in the journal.

1028. Mrs. Cunyngame was not there? Not at the institution.

1029. What is the date of those entries? 21st October.

1030. Mr. Ritchie.] Is James Nimmo still in the institution? No.

1031. Mr. Edmunds.] Is Boucher there? Yes, and also Kerry and M'Govern.

1032. Mr. Williamson.] Did you say anything to Mrs. Cunyngame in reference to the case you have mentioned? No; I said nothing at all. I reported it to the director. I had nothing to do with Mrs. Cunyngame in the matter.

1033. In your letter of the 22nd October, you refer also to James Nimmo. Did he make the complaint there mentioned to you? Yes; it is entered in the book. It is dated the 21st, and is in these words:—"Complains of abusive language lady superintendent."

1034. Did you bring that under the notice of Mrs. Cunyngame? I do not remember. I do not think I did. I could not say.

1035. Was that book always open for her inspection? That was the book that was always open in the office; it is the medical register.

1036. Nimmo made some further complaint as to Mrs. Cunyngame making sneering and defamatory remarks about the Quong Tart feast? Yes; that occurred at the same time.

1037. Then you go on to say in your letter, "I also have to complain of Mrs. Cunyngame having called in Dr. Phillips to pronounce an opinion on inmates Bannan and M'Govern without my knowledge or sanction." What about those cases? There was the case of a man—

1038. Mr. Edmunds.] Is this within your own knowledge? It is information from the hospital attendant.

1039. Mr. Williamson.] Is there an entry with regard to calling in Dr. Phillips? There is an entry opposite the name of Carlyon. Dr. Phillips came to see Carlyon, and the hospital attendant Edgar, asked me if I had given instructions for him to see Bannan and M'Govern also.

1040. Did you give him such instructions? No; I gave no instructions for him to see these two men at that time. Previously Bannan had been seen by him.

1041. Then you go on to say,—

"In the case of M'Govern she is desperately anxious to get rid of him, in consequence of his having been connected with several others, now dispersed, in making a statement that the medical comforts were stolen and carried out of the hospital by means of a window leading from No. 3 Ward to the premises occupied by Mrs. Cunyngame. In my opinion this statement was never disproved."

You say there "she is desperately anxious to get rid of him." Is that from your own observation? Yes, from my own observation.

1042. Will you tell us the result of your own observation? Mrs. Cunyngame repeatedly spoke to me about him as a man who was insane, and unfitted to take care of himself, and who gave a lot of trouble in the ward; and she also once previously to this put him in a batch for transfer to George-street, without as much as "by your leave," or anything else, and this man was, at the time, under my care in the hospital. The man was put in a batch, and I told him to stand aside, and sent him back to his ward.

1043. At all events she told you he was insane? Yes.

1044. On how many occasions did she ask you? I could not tell you on how many occasions. She was repeatedly speaking of him to me.

1045. Was the man insane? The man was not insane; but he was suffering from softening of the brain.

1046. Was the man with others? This man gave contributory evidence about the grog being passed through the window.

1047. From your observations Mrs. Cunyngame seemed anxious to get rid of this man? Certainly.

1048. Then the next communication you sent in was on the 8th of November? I had a reply to the previous one; that was dealt with. Mr. Maxted replied on the 24th of October as follows:—

In refer-ence to your letter of to-day's date and our conversation relating thereto, I have given Mrs. Cunyngame a strong caution not to act in future in any matter relating to the medical treatment of inmates, except under your authority; and to rigidly adhere to your directions as to medical comforts. You will see that I have made a minute to that effect in your dispensary register.

I have also directed Mrs. Cunyngame to again submit Cummings, her cook, to you for examination, in order that you may judge whether it would be to the man's advantage to go to the Liverpool Asylum.

With regard to the alleged robbery of medical comforts, I am quite certain that they were stolen by the wardman Cooke, who is now away from the institution; but I have been unable to discover whether any one else was concerned in the theft. I sometime ago issued a direction that these comforts should in future be carried out by Edgar, who, is, I think to be fully trusted; and I shall be obliged if you will occasionally when going through the hospital ask patients (as I shall do also) whether they receive what you order for them.

Before

Mr. W. B. Violetto, M.B. Before seeing you or receiving your letter I had received a statement from James Nimmo of his particular matter to which you have referred. Mrs Cunyngname denied it in toto, but you know how unreliable she is.

21 Aug., 1889. I do not think, however, we shall have any more trouble with her after my warning to her to-day. Certainly if she disregards it, I shall feel compelled to take steps which will be as unpleasant as they will be necessary for the good government of the asylum.

On the 8th of November of the same year you forwarded another communication to the Director of Government Asylums in which you say,—

In reply to your communication of the 6th instant, requesting me to state for your information my opinion of the matron-superintendent of the Macquarie-street asylum in her conduct towards the inmates in general, and in her capacity as superintendent of the hospital wards, I beg to state that, in many instances she has appeared to me to have acted with undue severity and harshness in pursuing a delinquent for punishment—her discipline is very arbitrary, and in several instances a vindictive spirit seems to have prompted her actions.

Speaking generally, from my own experience, I have found her to be shifty and evasive in her dealings—untruthful on several occasions—in fact, I have no confidence in her whatever.

Many complaints have been made to me with regard to the distribution of medical comforts in the hospital wards. The supervision of the inmate-attendants was so unsatisfactory on my taking over medical charge of the institution that, as soon as I became acquainted with the defects of the system, I applied for two paid wardsmen to supervise the inmate-attendants, and to instruct them how to discharge their duties, as well as to care for the more urgent cases. These wardsmen were ordered to be engaged by the Colonial Secretary, Sir Henry Parkes. The matron's duties now are consequently those of superintendent alone, no work in the wards being necessary on her part. Several instances of misappropriation of medical comforts and negligence in the care of the sick on the part of the inmate-attendants have been brought under notice by one of the wardsmen, but no action to punish the offender or to prevent a recurrence of the offence has been taken by the superintendent.

1049. In that letter you make eight distinct charges; first, undue severity; second, harshness; third, discipline arbitrary; fourth, a vindictive spirit; fifth, misappropriation of medical comforts; sixth, negligence in the care of the sick, and no action to prevent a recurrence of the offence; seventh, evasiveness; and eighth, untruthfulness. Do you recollect a man named William Roy? Yes; that was in the early part, when I went there first.

1050. And that man continued to be an inmate of the asylum for some considerable time up to the writing of this letter on the 8th of November? Oh, no; he had left some time before that. He had been out over a year then.

1051. Do you recollect anything in connection with that man? I recollect that he was brought up repeatedly before me for trivial breaches of discipline. He was a man who suffered from locomotor ataxy and could not get about very well, and as far as I could see he was treated as an ordinary able bodied inmate. He would not go into the hospital; he wanted to get exercise, and if he went up into the hospital he would not be able to get down the stairs. It seemed that there was great difficulty about fixing him in any dormitory where he could get out. I had to put him in the epileptic ward at last.

1052. Did this man give evidence before the Asylums Inquiry Board? I do not know anything about that.

1053. Did Mrs. Cunyngname desire you to stop his medical comforts? She did not desire me to stop his medical comforts; but she seemed surprised that I should give him medical comforts. She did not look upon him as a case deserving of them—that he should be punished by stopping his medical comforts. She did not ask for it but that would be the tenor of her conversation.

1054. Mr. Criel.] What do you mean by the tenor of her conversation; if her words would not express that? You do not ask a thing often, when you convey a hint that you would wish it done—it would please you if it were done.

1055. Mr. Edmunds.] When was that? It was in the early part of 1887—May, June, and July.

1056. Mr. Williamson.] Did the man ultimately leave the place? Yes, the man was taken out. The Bulletin raised a fund to support him outside. Mr. Charles Byrnes, the Mayor of Parramatta, was the almoner of the fund.

1057. Mr. Bourke.] This was the Rorke's Drift man? Yes.

1058. That was the reason I think they raised the fund? Yes, and his friends did not seem to think he was well treated.

1059. Mr. Williamson.] And it was also in consequence of the evidence given before the Asylums Inquiry Board? Yes.

1060. Do you recollect a man named Baird? Yes.

1061. Did Mrs. Cunyngname bring him before you? Well, Mrs. Cunyngname did not bring these men before me; but it was by her order and with her knowledge that they were brought up before me.

1062. Mr. Bourke.] How long ago? That was in 1887.

1063. Mr. Williamson.] What were the charges against him? They were frivolous charges—wanting the man to work. The man could not possibly work. He was often brought up for refusing to work, and that sort of thing.

1064. Were the charges substantiated? Well, the charges were not substantiated, because the man could not work. There were charges against him of causing discontent among other inmates, and that sort of thing.

1065. Mr. Edmunds.] Do you mean that Mrs. Cunyngname charged him before you? Yes; it would be with Mrs. Cunyngname's knowledge, because it was the head wardman who brought him up before me.

1066. Mr. Criel.] Are those the wardsmen you refer to in your letter as having been appointed by the Colonial Secretary? No. It was Hanson.

1067. Mr. Bourke.] But do you know of your own knowledge that Mrs. Cunyngname made these complaints or that she herself was responsible for bringing him up? The head wardman would not dare to bring the man up before me without her authority.

1068. Mr. Williamson.] It is part of the routine? Yes. This man was Mrs. Cunyngname's agent, and of course I took his action as hers.

1069. Mr. Edmunds.] As a matter of fact it was not Mrs. Cunyngname who preferred the charge? Not personally.

1070. Did you have a conversation with Mrs. Cunyngname about it? I have spoken to Mrs. Cunyngname about it—about this one and two other men.

1071. What did she say? I spoke to her about her general bearing towards these men. I said that one could not help feeling resentment towards a person if you thought he had done you an injury, but that it was very unwise of her to show it. I also heard her husband remonstrate with her for the same thing. Mr. W. P.
Violette, M. B.
21 Aug., 1889

1072. Mr. Williamson.] You told her it was unwise? To show resentment to these men who had given evidence. This was in 1887, when I went there first. I do not know anything about the Asylums Inquiry Board.

1073. You made inquiries into these cases, did you not? No; I did not make special inquiries about these men coming before me so often. Mrs. Cunynghame herself would say, "Oh, that man gave evidence," or something in that way. That is how I came to know them. I did not pick these men out.

1074. They were brought before you? They were brought before me, and in the ordinary sequence of events I found that several of them had given evidence before the Inquiry Board.

1075. You advised Mrs. Cunynghame not to show resentment, and her husband advised her also? Yes; we were talking in a friendly way.

1076. Mr. Edmunds.] And what did she say? I do not think she made any reply. It was just a friendly talk at the gate. Often before leaving she and her husband would come to the gate talking.

1077. Mr. Bourke.] This was all in 1887? Yes.

1078. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect a man named James Rooney? Yes; he is in the hospital now.

1079. Do you recollect anything in connection with Rooney? I remember Rooney applying to me for an easy chair and for permission to have exercise in the yard and to go to church. It is in the book, but I cannot tell you exactly the date.

1080. Were your instructions carried out? Oh, yes, after that. But before this Rooney complained that he was persecuted; that he was not allowed to go to church or to take exercise outside; and Mrs. Cunynghame certainly did not readily give in to the man having a chair in the hospital. She made many trivial objections, but ultimately it was given to him.

1081. Mr. Ritchie.] I suppose these complaints are pretty general amongst these old men, are they not? They all grumble a great deal.

1082. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact Mrs. Cunynghame raised frivolous objections? I thought so. Of course that is a matter of opinion, but I thought they were. He did not get permission to take exercise and to go to church, and most of the patients who could get about went there. Certainly he is a man who cannot walk about; he has to be assisted.

1083. Do you recollect a man named Sinclair? No.

1084. Do you recollect a man who was ordered a pair of boots by you? Yes; M'Coy.

1085. Do you know whether he gave evidence before the Asylums Inquiry Board? Not that I am aware of.

1086. Mr. Bourke.] Anything you know about the Asylums Inquiry Board would be second-hand? Of course it would.

1087. Mr. Williamson.] You recollect M'Coy;—you ordered him a pair of boots? Yes; he is partially and almost totally blind, and he walks up and down the yard. He walks on one track all day long.

1088. Did you order him a pair of boots? Yes, I ordered him a pair of boots. There is an entry in the book.

1089. Will you tell us what transpired in reference to that? Well, he came to me about three weeks afterwards. He had put his name down to see me again, and when he put it down he was given a pair of boots, and his statement to me was that he did not receive them until he put his name down a second time, and when he came up to me that time he had new boots on that were about three sizes too big for him, and he said they were purposely given to him because he had given evidence against Mrs. Cunynghame. He also made a complaint about his clothing being lousy, and that he was not given good food in the dining-room.

1090. Mr. O'rick.] Complained generally about everything? Yes. In the middle of this, while I was speaking to him, two attendants were there, and I told one of them, Norton, to go to his bed at night when the man was in it and see if his statement about the vermin was true. He examined his clothing, but could not find any trace of vermin. In the middle of this Mrs. Cunynghame bounced into the office from the spirit-room or the store, and she commenced to abuse me. She said, "Dr. Violette, you are no gentleman; I wonder at you allowing a man like that to make a complaint against me." And she would insist that I should go off there and then and see the man's bed. I went off. I was not going to have a flood of Billingsgate and a scene before the men, and I went off with Mrs. Cunynghame to see the man's bed. We were some time up there—about five minutes—before we found the bed, and when we found it the bedding seemed clean, and there was no sign of anything.

1091. His complaint was in no way borne out? The man was very old and blind, and he had got new flannels, and thought he was affected with vermin. A kind word would have soon explained the matter and prevented the old man from getting into a flurry.

1092. Mr. Bourke.] When was this? In June, 1888. Norton and Warner were both present.

1093. Then you examined the bed as well as the clothing? Yes. I went up with Mrs. Cunynghame to see the bed; she would insist upon my doing so at once. Norton made a report to me next morning, and he said he found the old man had no vermin about him; but it was explained that the man felt as if he had vermin by having the flannels on him.

1094. Mr. Ritchie.] Was he accustomed to wear the flannels before? Yes.

1095. Mr. Bourke.] These were new ones. I suppose? Yes.

1096. Perhaps he had been without flannels for a little time? Oh, no; I think I can say for Mrs. Cunynghame that she certainly looked after the men in that way; they did not have to complain about flannels.

1097. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect a man named Phillip M'Carthy? Yes; he was the man who made the first complaint about the medical comforts being stolen from the No. 3 hospital ward.

1098. In consequence of a complaint he made to you in reference to medical comforts being stolen from the hospital ward, did you speak to Mrs. Cunynghame? No. Mrs. Cunynghame sent for me one afternoon. I do not know to whom he made the complaint, but Mrs. Cunynghame sent for me shortly after 2 o'clock. I went down and we investigated the matter there. M'Carthy, Codogan, and Rooney were there. These men gave evidence substantiating the statement that the grog went through the window, and and in consequence of that I asked Mrs. Cunynghame to suspend the wardman Cooke and report the matter to the director, and that is where my business with that matter ceased.

1099. Mr. Edmunds.] Did Mrs. Cunynghame comply with that direction of yours? That is what I cannot tell you. Mr. Maxted says she did not report the matter.

1100. Mr. Bourke.] Did she suspend Cooke? Cooke was suspended.

1101. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know if M'Carthy was punished afterwards? M'Carthy complained to me afterwards several times. He was very angry with me for allowing Cooke to escape. He said it was my fault, and that the man ought to have gone out of the institution with the handcuffs on. At another time he complained to me that Mrs. Cunynghame had abused him for giving evidence, and called him a spy and a liar and a lousy mischief-maker, and he was very much upset and begged me to send him away. Mrs. Cunynghame also wanted to get rid of him, and there was another man she wanted me to send to Liverpool. I put an entry in the book, "Transfer M'Carthy to Liverpool," in consequence of his begging me to send him away. He was not happy there on account of the abuse he was getting. I put him down as having consumption (the man had no more consumption than I have) so as to get him sent there.

1102. Mr. Crick.] He was not consumptive, but you put him down consumptive? Yes; he was spitting blood.

1103. Mr. Ritchie.] Your reason was to get him sent away? Yes.

1104. Did you not think it wrong at the time to give a reason of that kind? No; we have many things to do in medicine that we cannot square by ethics. We have to consider the patient first.

1105. Mr. Bourke.] You make reports sometimes that you cannot square by ethics? No; I do not understand you.

1106. Mr. Hawthorne.] Is M'Carthy at the Liverpool Asylum? I do not think he is at Liverpool; he is alive.

1107. Mr. Williamson.] We now come to this man Bannan. Do you recollect Bannan being sent to the isolation ward? Yes; there is an entry in the book, on the 30th September, 1888.

1108. Do you recollect what transpired in reference to that man? When I saw him he was in the isolation ward. Mrs. Cunynghame told me he had come in on the previous night, very late, under the influence of drink, and she had sent him up there, and she did not wish to send for me at that late hour. When I saw the man I could not get anything out of him; he was sullen and morose, and I took Mrs. Cunynghame's statement that he was drunk, and put him down as drunk. From what I heard later from the attendants I questioned it very much, and the police told me that the man they brought up was not drunk.

1109. Mr. Crick.] Do I understand that you saw this man yourself, and you are not in a position to say whether he was drunk or sober? Quite so.

1110. You are not in a position to say? I am not in a position to say; and if you saw the man now you could not tell whether he was drunk or sober.

1111. Looking at the man and you being a medical man you could not say whether he was drunk or sober? No.

1112. Then do you attach any blame to Mrs. Cunynghame for saying that he was drunk? It was in the morning that I saw him.

1113. If anything he would be recovering from his drunkenness? The man was sent up there for being noisy—drunk and noisy.

1114. Mrs. Cunynghame says the man was drunk. If he was drunk over night he would be getting towards sobriety in the morning; when you saw him the effects of the drink would be working off—the night's sleep, at any rate, would take some of it off? Of course he would not be so drunk.

1114½. And when you saw him in the morning you could not say whether he was drunk or sober? Well, he was in a sullen mood; he would not speak.

1115. Do you attach any blame to Mrs. Cunynghame for saying that the man was drunk the night before? I do not believe the man was drunk.

1116. You said you did not know at the time? I had to take Mrs. Cunynghame's statement for it. The man would not speak. He has no palate to his mouth, and you cannot hear him distinctly.

1117. He would get no drink in the Asylum during the night? No.

1118. Mr. Williamson.] Who had authority to put him in the isolation ward? I had, and no one else, by the Colonial Secretary's order.

1119. So that he was put in the isolation ward the night before, and you found him there next morning? Yes.

1120. As a matter of fact, he had no right to be put in the isolation ward until you came there the following morning? No.

1121. Mr. Crick.] And what would Mrs. Cunynghame have done with him during the night? Well, she should have handed him over to the police.

1122. She should have refused him admittance? Yes.

1123. Is that still the practice? I could not tell you. I know they will not take a man in who is drunk. The matron has a discretion as to whom she will take in, when she thinks they are in a state of drunkenness.

1124. She exercises a discretion as to whether she will let him in or not? Certainly. She would not let a man in drunk to disturb the whole establishment.

1125. Mr. Edmunds.] Have you got those instructions you speak of from the Colonial Secretary? There is a minute; it belongs to the medical officer's department.

1126. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect a man named John Burnes? He was an eye patient.

1127. Do you recollect that he was sent to the isolation ward? Yes, I saw him there.

1128. What was the charge that Mrs. Cunynghame made against him? That of obscene language and riotous conduct.

1129. Then, as a matter of fact, she put this man in the isolation ward without consulting you? She put him there; yes. He was there when I saw him. I kept him in there because of the obscene language and riotous conduct. The man made a complaint to me that Mrs. Cunynghame had ordered him off the grass plot and struck him with her umbrella.

1130. When was he put in the isolation ward? About 12 o'clock.

1131. When did you see him? I saw him about a couple of hours afterwards—about 2 or 3 o'clock.
1132. Do you recollect a man named Sparkes or Sharpe? There was a scullion of that name. He came to me complaining of fainting, and he said he could not bear the heat of the kitchen. I exempted him from work. He was working outside one afternoon or one morning, and Hanson or Mrs. Cunynghame came up and forced him inside and made him work inside, and the man took his discharge and went out the next day.
1133. Mr. Bourke.] Were you there next day when he left? No; I was not.
1134. Mr. Williamson.] You ordered the man out of the kitchen? I ordered the man to work outside the kitchen.
1135. Do you recollect a man named Georgiason? Yes.
1136. Do you recollect that man making a complaint? No; he did not make any complaint, but he was charged by Mrs. Cunynghame with selling his porter to somebody. He was a demented man. He had given evidence about the robbery of the comforts from the hospital ward, and Mrs. Cunynghame brought this as a case against him. "They will all do it; you cannot rely on the men. Here is this man who comes and makes a statement one day and sells his porter the next." Well, he was a demented old creature, and it would have been better to take care that he got his porter.
1137. Mr. Bourke.] He must have got it—he could not have sold it? Care should have been taken to see that he drank it when he got it.
1138. Mr. Williamson.] In what manner did Mrs. Cunynghame behave when she reported this? Well, she seemed rather pleased to have to report him.
1139. Do you recollect a man named Felix Cummings who was under your treatment for consumption? Yes; I sent that man to the hospital.
1140. On what date? I cannot tell you from memory.
1141. Did you enter it in the book? Yes; the hospital admission is in the book.
1142. You ordered him to the hospital? Yes.
1143. Mr. Bourke.] Can you give us some idea as to how long ago—how long before Mrs. Cunynghame left? It was within three months before Mrs. Cunynghame left the institution.
1144. Mr. Williamson.] Was he in a bad state? He was suffering from hæmorrhage of the lungs—he was very bad when I sent him into the hospital. In fact he came to me and asked me to send him in.
1145. Was that man taken out? Yes; he was taken out to work by Mrs. Cunynghame. I knew nothing about it.
1146. Did you give her any sanction, or was it without your knowledge? I knew nothing about it. I asked one morning where he was, and they told me he was out working.
1147. Do you know where he was working? I could not tell you what part.
1148. Did you question Mrs. Cunynghame about it? No; I discharged him when I found he was out working.
1149. Mr. Crick.] How do you mean that you discharged him? Wrote him off the hospital books.
1150. Mr. Bourke.] You discharged him from the hospital? Yes.
1151. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know a man named Henry Helmrick? Yes. This man was working in Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen; I found he was sleeping in the hospital, taking up a bed, and I sent him out. He was not on the hospital books at all; he was occupying an hospital bed without being on the books, and without my knowledge that he was there.
1152. Did you speak to Mrs. Cunynghame in reference to that? No; I just sent Helmrick out of the hospital, and told the wardman to tell him he would have to find accommodation elsewhere.
1153. On the occasion when you spoke to her, was Mrs. Cunynghame very abusive to you? On the occasion when she came in and told me that I was no gentleman for listening to the complaint from M'Coy, I did not know what the man wanted to see me about. When a man's name is on the book I must see him. I came up, and of course he made his complaints, and I had to listen to them. But I have never had any falling-out with Mrs. Cunynghame,—I have never used an ill-word to her since I have been there.
1154. Mr. Bourke.] That was the only occasion when Mrs. Cunynghame had any angry word with you, and that was in 1887? No; that was in June, 1888.
1155. That was the only occasion in M'Coy's case? Yes. That is the only occasion I remember.
1156. Mr. Williamson.] You first of all charge Mrs. Cunynghame with undue severity? Yes.
1157. On what do you base that charge? Well, I think I have given you instances.
1158. Are there any other cases you can mention? I do not know of any more.
1159. "Discipline arbitrary"—the same with regard to that I suppose? You will see in those instances.
1160. "Vindictive spirit"? This was shown by the abuse which Nimmo and M'Carthy got for informing against her.
1161. "Neglecting the care of the sick"? I do not make any charge of neglecting the care of the sick.
1162. You say, amongst other things, negligence in the care of the sick on the part of the inmate attendants? Yes.
1163. These persons are under Mrs. Cunynghame's supervision? As superintendent of course the whole institution is under her supervision.
1164. You charge her also with being untruthful? Yes.
1165. On what do you base that? The statement which she made to the Director that I ordered wines and beers and medical comforts indiscriminately. She first asked me not to withdraw the medical comforts until I knew that the dietary scale was working satisfactorily, and I agreed to that.
1166. Mr. Bourke.] How do you know she made this communication to the Director? Mr. Maxted told me.
1167. Have you any evidence; was it made in writing; perhaps you have the writing here? I have part of the writing.
1168. Mrs. Cunynghame's writing? Yes, Mrs. Cunynghame's writing. Here is Mr. Maxted's letter, dated November the 6th, 1888:—

Pinned to this you will find the table which Mrs. Cunynghame forwarded with reference to the subject of our conversation yesterday.

I have kept no copy of it, but it appears to have been pressed in her letter book.
You may destroy it if you choose.

Believe me, &c.,

S. MAXTED.

P.S.—You will notice Mrs. Cunynghame says "as requested." I certainly did ask for the return, as I explained yesterday, but it was after she had verbally complained, as I explained to you. You will see from the nature of the return that I could not possibly have known anything about the matter otherwise.

Mrs.

Mr. W. B.
Violette, M.B.
21 Aug, 1889.

- Mr. W. B. Violette, M.B.
21 Aug., 1899.
- Mrs. Cunynghame first asked me not to withdraw the medical comforts until the new dietary scale was working satisfactorily, and on the face of that she gives this statement to Mr. Maxted, and tells him that I give medical comforts indiscriminately to any one who comes and asks.
1169. Chairman.] Where does she say that? Mr. Maxted says so.
1170. Mr. Bourke.] Does it appear in that report? A portion of it does.
1171. Does she say that? No, she sends in a table of medical comforts which have been given by me.
1172. But she does not state in the report that you gave them indiscriminately? No, but Mr. Maxted said she told him.
1173. Mr. Williamson.] In consequence of some statement Mr. Maxted made to you, did you have a conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; I spoke to Mrs. Cunynghame, and she denied it altogether.
1174. And this return came from her? That return came from her to Mr. Maxted, and Mr. Maxted sent it to me.
1175. Anything else with reference to that? At the same time Mrs. Cunynghame complained to the Director or made a statement to him that I was poisoning a man in the cancer ward with morphia.
1176. Mr. Bourke.] What evidence have you to show that she made that statement? Mr. Maxted said she made the statement to him.
1177. Mr. Williamson.] In consequence of a complaint made to you by Mr. Maxted, did you have a conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; I asked Mrs. Cunynghame about it. Mrs. Cunynghame denied it, and said that when she was speaking to the director she referred to Dr. Rowling.
1178. How long had Dr. Rowling been away? He had been away then about eighteen months.
1179. Anything else? She represented to the Director that I wished his permission to consult with Dr. Phillips.
1180. In consequence of a complaint made to you by the Director, did you ever give her any authority to consult with Dr. Phillips? No; she represented to the Director that I wished to consult with Dr. Phillips on the case of a man named Bannan, and the Director then said it was a matter for my own discretion. Mrs. Cunynghame represented to me then that the Director considered this man Bannan to be insane, and not a fit subject for the institution, and that he wished me to consult with Dr. Phillips.
1181. This was the man Bannan she wanted to get rid of? Well, it was M'Govern she wanted to get rid of. I did not say she wanted to get rid of Bannan.
1182. The man who was put in the isolation ward? Yes; you will see entries in the Medical Journal on the 7th and 8th.
1183. Did you consult with Dr. Phillips? I did so in consequence of this. You will find an entry in my book on the 7th and 8th of October to this effect, "Filthy habits, riotous, send for Dr Phillips; put him in the isolation," that is my entry, and it has reference to Bannan.
1184. Made at Mrs. Cunynghame's request? In consequence of the statement she made that the Director wanted me to consult Dr. Phillips.
1185. Mr. Bourke.] What was the entry? "Filthy habits, riotous."
1186. Did she tell you that? Yes, that was the statement she made to me.
1187. Mr. Williamson.] Did you and Dr. Phillips examine the man? I sent for Dr. Phillips. He made an entry about the man William Bannan as follows. "The man is dangerous at times to the other inmates of the institution, but I do not consider him a fit case to send to a lunatic asylum, but consider that he, and similar cases should be kept in a special ward in the institution."
1188. Any other instance? She states that I gave her permission to send for Dr. Phillips to examine M'Govern.
1189. Did you give her permission? No, never, either directly or indirectly.
1190. Any other instance? That is all.
1191. You say, you cannot rely upon her, that she is shifty and evasive in her dealings? Yes; after this what could you say. She makes one statement to me and another to Mr. Maxted.
1192. From the 1st August, when Mr. Maxted was appointed or before that, and from the time of the Inquiry Board up to the time Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, had you continual complaints with reference to the institution from the men? No; not continual complaints. The men were often making complaints, but I could not say they were continual.
1193. Well, from the time Mr. Maxted was appointed up to the time when you wrote this letter of the 8th of November, had you numerous complaints? A number of complaints.
1194. Did you ever speak to her with regard to not going through the hospital? No.
1195. That is not a portion of your duty, is it? No; I am a visitor; I have nothing to do with the management.
1196. When you are going through the hospital having so many men to attend to, is it the duty of the superintendent to call your attention to special cases? The superintendent should know every case in the place, and if there is a bad case it is the custom for the superintendent or the person in charge to send for the doctor and point it out to him.
1197. And that is done by the present superintendent? Yes; every superintendent of a hospital does that.
1198. Mr. Bourke.] Did Mrs. Cunynghame do it? Well, not in cases that have been pointed out to me.
1199. There were some cases in which she did not, but did she generally? She did.
1200. Mr. Williamson.] In consequence of what took place you deemed it expedient in the interests of the institution to forward that report? It was in reply to a letter from Mr. Maxted that report was forwarded.
1201. Where is that letter? It is as follows:—

I shall be obliged if you will, as visiting medical officer to the Macquarie-street Asylum, let me know if in your opinion the matron-superintendent is unduly harsh and arbitrary in her treatment of the inmates; and generally whether, from your own observations, you think she is a truthful reliable and trustworthy official.

2. I may say that I have been much struck with the number of inmates who have been submitted to you, at this institution only, for punishment for most trivial offences; with the general want of oversight prevailing on the part of the superintendent with regard to the distribution of medical comforts in the hospital wards, which as you are aware has recently led to the knowledge that inmates have improperly been deprived of their allowances, and also in reference to the superintendent's apparent want of knowledge of the working of that most important division of the institution for the efficient management of which she is locally responsible.

3. The foregoing are the main points which I think it necessary to submit for your consideration; but I shall also be glad to be furnished with any other particulars bearing upon the management of Macquarie-street Asylum that you may deem it your duty to place before me in the interests of the inmates and with the view of securing its future good government.

Mr. W. B.
Violette, M.B.
21 Aug., 1889.

1202. Mr. Williamson.] On the receipt of that letter you forwarded that report? Yes.
1203. You have no ill-feeling towards Mrs. Cunynghame? No.
1204. As a matter of fact, as you said before, you advised her not to resent any feeling towards those men because they gave evidence? I have not recently spoken of some of these things that occurred, because I avoided Mrs. Cunynghame as much as I could after she spoke to me in the way she did, when she said I was no gentleman. I did not come in her way if I could help it. But I had no quarrel with her, and no ill-word.
1205. At the time you wrote that report you had no feeling or prejudice against her? No.
1206. Mr. Bourke.] You say you were very friendly with Mrs. Cunynghame up to the time that she spoke to you about M'Coy? Yes.
1207. And on that occasion she said you were no gentleman? Yes.
1208. Did not M'Coy, when speaking to you about his being afflicted with vermin, speak of Mrs. Cunynghame as "Mother Cunynghame?" No; I could not understand what M'Coy said. He came into me fuming and spluttering with anger, and I could not tell what the man said. I asked Norton and the other wardman, "What does the man say?—what does he mean?" and they told me that he complained that he was swarming with vermin. I could not tell you what he said; he was spluttering and fuming, and quite incoherent with passion.
1209. You do not remember that he said it; but do you remember that Mrs. Cunynghame complained to you for listening to him using her name in that disrespectful manner? Mrs. Cunynghame bounced into the room saying that he said that.
1210. That was her complaint against you—that you listened? That I was listening to the man making a complaint.
1211. Did she use the expression "Mother Cunynghame?" I believe she did use the words "Mother Cunynghame."
1212. She was surprised that you should listen to an expression like that? Yes. I did not hear the man say "Mother Cunynghame."
1213. That was her complaint at the time, at any rate—that you listened to the man referring to her as "Mother Cunynghame?" Yes.
1214. Naturally she would be angry? She must have known that on previous occasions I had always upheld her authority, and would never allow any men there to speak disrespectfully of her.
1215. Still that would account for her being in a flurry? Yes, but she might have known that I would not do it.
1216. You say the man was incoherent? Certainly; I could not tell what he said.
1217. After this, in consequence of the man complaining of vermin, you examined the bed next day? No; I went at once with Mrs. Cunynghame.
1218. Did not Mrs. Cunynghame insist that you should go at once? Yes. But I had told the Attendant Norton, in the first instance, to go and examine the man's bed at night, which would be the best time for the purpose.
1219. Mrs. Cunynghame insisted that you should go at once? Certainly she did, and I went with her rather than have a scene, because she was in such a temper.
1220. Well, you do not regard that as evidence of shifty or evasive conduct? No, I do not. That was the only time I had any ill-word with her; and I did not have an ill-word with her—she had it with me.
1221. Supposing the bed had been actually verminous and your examination had been put off for a few hours—she could have made it clean, could she not, and you would have been none the wiser? She insisted upon your going at once just to show you that the place was really clean? Certainly.
1222. In your letter of the 22nd October your complaint in reference to the three men, Kerry, Boucher, and Nimmo, is that they did not get their medical comforts? Yes.
1223. It was on the Saturday that they did not get their medical comforts? Yes.
1224. That would be the 20th? Yes.
1225. You are aware that that was a feast day? Yes.
1226. I suppose you are aware that on feast days there is a quantity of beer, porter, and other things, taken up and given out generally to the inmates? Yes, but not in the hospitals, unless on my express order.
1227. But supposing lady visitors were to go in, not knowing of your order, and distribute beer, as was done on this occasion? But the men got it substituted for their medical comforts.
1228. But this is what took place according to your report: Some ladies went in and gave the beer, and told Nimmo, according to your statement, that he would get nothing else unless he took that. You would not blame Mrs. Cunynghame for that? I would blame Mrs. Cunynghame for not seeing that the medical comforts were sent out.
1229. Do you know if they got them later on in the day? No, they did not get them. The report to me was that they did not get them. The beer was given to them in place of the medical comforts.
1230. Given by the lady visitors? Yes.
1231. Not by Mrs. Cunynghame? Well, of course Mrs. Cunynghame distributes the medical comforts; she has charge of them. I do not suppose that she gives the medical comforts personally to each one.
1232. But as a rule, are not the medical comforts withheld on a feast day? No.
1233. Never? Exceptional cases are always exempt.
1234. The ladies might say to a man who had been ordered gin,—“Will you take some beer;” but the complaint of these men is that the beer was forced down their throats? Yes; they took the beer because they could not get the other; that is the statement they made to me.
1235. They asked the lady visitors for the beer? No; they say that the lady visitors said:—"You get that or nothing."
1236. The second paragraph in your letter seems too trivial to be seriously entertained—that is where you say that Mrs. Cunynghame went round with some pork and made encering and defamatory remarks about the Quong Tart feast? The man made the statement to me in the ward, and I could only take it down.
1237. It is on these reports of yours, and on Mr. Maxted's report, partially founded on yours, that Mrs.

Mr. W. D.
Violette, M.D.
21 Aug., 1880.

Cunynghame was suspended and dismissed, and surely you would not put in a thing like that? But this had been dealt with when my second letter went in. Here is Mr. Maxted's letter dealing with that, and there is the entry in the book.

1238. Still it is on your reports in conjunction with those of Mr. Maxted, that Mrs. Cunynghame was dismissed, and surely you do not put a trifling thing like that forward as a reason why you were dissatisfied with the management of a lady who had been twenty years in the position? But don't I tell you that that has been dealt with.

1239. No, it is put forward afterwards? But not with my knowledge.

1240. Do you know to whom she made these sneering and defamatory remarks? She made them in the ward.

1241. Do you know to whom? No, it is only a statement made to me.

1242. You know nothing about it yourself? No.

1243. Mr. Hawthorne.] Did more than one man make the statement to you? This man Nimmo made it to me before the whole of them.

1244. Mr. Bourke.] You complain also that Mrs. Cunynghame sent for Dr. Phillips to pronounce an opinion on inmates Banuan and M'Govern without your knowledge? Yes.

1245. When you gave authority for Dr. Phillips to be sent for to see Carlyon, do you remember having a conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes, distinctly.

1246. And while she was speaking to you about Carlyon, did she ask you if Dr. Phillips might see M'Govern at the same time? Certainly not. I deny that positively.

1247. Nothing at all was said about M'Govern? No.

1248. Supposing that Mrs. Cunynghame did without authority ask Dr. Phillips while he was up seeing this other man to see M'Govern also, would that be a very serious offence? I should think so. Would you care for anyone to interfere with your duties? I consider it a very serious offence.

1249. But if the man were imbecile and troublesome? Well, I am responsible for that, I would take all responsibility.

1250. What I want to know is, do you regard it as a very serious offence? I do. If I interfered with Mrs. Cunynghame's duties she would very soon object.

1251. Then this is the whole of your complaint, that while she had a doctor there seeing another man, this man M'Govern being a troublesome imbecile, she asked the doctor to see him also? Yes.

1252. That is your complaint? That is my complaint.

1253. Mr. Hawthorne.] Who pays for Dr. Phillips' attendances? It is done through my department. I have to certify for them.

1254. Is there some fund from which you can pay a medical man at any time? There is a medical contingency fund. I certify to the expense and the nature of it, and when it is approved of by my chief, Dr. Manning, it is paid from the Treasury.

1255. Could the superintendent without your authority, at any time she thought fit, bring in a medical man from outside to report on the institution or the patients? Well, they did do that previously, because a lot of vouchers were sent from the Asylums Department which had been paid through that department previously.

1256. Was it usual after you were appointed medical officer? It was for a time.

1257. Mr. Edmunds.] Was Dr. Phillips paid for these services? Yes. I certified for it after it was sent to me. I protested at first, but as Dr. Phillips had done it without any knowledge of the circumstances, I thought it was wrong that he should be deprived of his fee, and so the voucher was paid.

1258. Mr. Bourke.] Supposing a man were brought into the institution and exhibited signs of insanity during the day, would they be justified in sending for another doctor if you were not on hand? If I were not in town.

1259. Supposing you had been there in the morning and seen the man, two doctors must certify if a man is insane before he can be removed? Yes.

1260. Under those circumstances, would they be justified? No; I am responsible there.

1261. They would have to send for you first? Yes; and if I did not send for another doctor the man would stay there.

1262. Mr. Williamson.] Otherwise, of course, it might lead to a man being sent away as insane who was not insane? Yes.

1263. Mr. Bourke.] You have given us two or three examples of what you call Mrs. Cunynghame's untruthfulness, and you say in your letter of the 8th November that she was also shifty and evasive? Yes.

1264. That is a distinct charge;—I do not think you have given anything in support of that? Well, here is one instance—she made a statement to the effect that I was poisoning a man, and when I asked her about it she said she referred to Dr. Rowling. That was evasive.

1265. How do you not know that she was speaking of Dr. Rowling? Mr. Maxted denies that Dr. Rowling's name was mentioned during the interview.

1266. On your recommendation two paid wardsmen were appointed? Yes.

1267. I suppose you practically look to them for the distribution of the comforts and lotions, and so on? No.

1268. Would you expect them to point out cases to you;—as you have not very much time to devote to each institution you would expect them to point out any cases that require your attention? Yes.

1269. Were you satisfied with the general conduct of these men in the discharge of their duties? Fairly; they might have done their work better than they did—fairly well, there was nothing exceptional.

1270. Would you expect those paid wardsmen of Mrs. Cunynghame to go through the hospital at night after the men were in bed? I had nothing to expect at all as long as the place was carried on properly.

1271. As a medical man overlooking this institution your opinion is of some value. The men whom you recommended as wardsmen I presume knew something about hospital nursing. Would you expect them to go through the wards at night and report anything to Mrs. Cunynghame? Certainly they should, and Mrs. Cunynghame should see they did it.

1272. It is their duty to go through the wards? And Mrs. Cunynghame's to see they did it. If she went through the hospital twice a day I should think she did very well considering the nature of her duties.

1273. There are no instructions about the number of times? No; there are no instructions. I have applied times out of number for instructions.

1274. You would not expect Mrs. Cunynghame herself to go through every night? I should think Mrs. Cunynghame might go through twice a day at any rate.
1275. But there is the complaint that she did not go through at night, and it is put forward as a proof of neglect of duty. You would expect these wardsmen to do it, and to report anything that was necessary to Mrs. Cunynghame. Is that so? Well, I do not know; there is no rule as long as Mrs. Cunynghame is satisfied that these men do their duty. It was her duty to see they did it.
1276. You would expect the paid wardsmen to go through at night? Yes; and Mrs. Cunynghame as well, I should say.
1278. Suppose the wardsmen did not report the case to Mrs. Cunynghame, could she be blamed? Not if they did not report it. If she went through and the case was a patent one then of course she would be equally responsible with them.
1279. Mr. Bourke.] But seeing that Mrs. Cunynghame had to look after the clerical work including the diary and the medical register, and to attend to the medical comforts and the cooking and so on, you would not expect her to look into every case. She is not supposed to know all the cases in the hospital? No, but she should know the bad cases. It is a general rule for the superintendent to report the bad cases.
1280. Did not Mrs. Cunynghame know all the bad cases as a rule? As a rule I have had no complaint.
1281. You found her well acquainted with what was going on in the hospital? Yes, as a rule I had no complaint.
1282. As far as you know she attended very well to the hospital; you have had no complaint? No, I have had no complaint.
1283. When you heard that Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended did you say to her that you had nothing to do with it? I did. I said "I know nothing about it."
1284. You did not expect that these reports of yours had been used? No, I did not think they had been used.
1285. You did not think that the charges you made here were serious enough to bring about Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? The first one had been dealt with, and as to the second one you will see there are no particulars at all; it is a general statement.
1286. And not only that, but it is in answer to what might be called leading questions. You were given a number of heads under which to reply for instance, as to whether Mrs. Cunynghame was harsh and vindictive and so on, and you did reply generally to what was really a leading question? Yes.
1287. Mr. Williamson.] It was your honest opinion, otherwise you would not have written it? Certainly I would not have written it unless I had the facts to give.
1288. Mr. Bourke.] But you did not think the matters were serious enough to bring about Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension, and you were surprised when you heard of it? I was surprised when I heard of it. Besides these facts, there were numbers of others which Mr. Maxted enumerated in conversation with me, and he said "well it is this way, it has gone so far, it is a terrible thing to do, but I have told her that I will give her one more chance." Of course after that I did not think that my report was the active agent.
1289. You consider that your report of the 22nd October was dealt with and passed? Yes.
1290. With regard to the man Cummings, you made an entry in the medical register that he was to go to Liverpool? Yes.
1291. And afterwards you made another entry that he might remain a month? Yes.
1292. You would expect, I suppose, that your second order that he was to remain a month should be complied with? Certainly.
1293. If Mrs. Cunynghame observed that order of yours, you could not blame her in any way? No. I will tell you how that second order arose. The man came to me and said he was in a billet and was getting pay, and if he went then he would lose his money, and if I would let him wait for the month he would have a little money when he went to Liverpool.
1294. Then it was at his own request that you allowed him to stay another month? Yes.
1295. Are you aware that this was one of the charges brought by Mr. Maxted against Mrs. Cunynghame, that she was disobedient in allowing the man to stay there? No, I am not.
1296. Do you consider she was quite justified in keeping that man there another month on your order? On my order she was.
1297. Mr. Williamson.] He was out of the hospital then? Yes.
1298. You had nothing to do with him? No. I had ordered his transfer to Liverpool and I said he could remain another month.
1299. Mr. Bourke.] You must have had something to do with him if you made the order in the register. It is within your province to order a man to Liverpool? Yes.
1300. With regard to the man Cooke, you held an investigation together with Mrs. Cunynghame into his conduct? Yes.
1301. And you came to the conclusion that he had stolen the medical comforts? Yes.
1302. What was the result of that? I requested Mrs. Cunynghame to suspend this man Cooke and report the matter to the Director.
1303. She did suspend him? Yes.
1304. Do you think Mrs. Cunynghame was blameworthy in that matter in any way? I do think Mrs. Cunynghame was blameworthy in the matter.
1305. In what respect? She gave the man his clothes and allowed him to leave the institution.
1306. Do you know whether she told him to go to Mr. Maxted and report himself? I do not know anything about that.
1307. I think Edgar was one of your men in the hospital? Yes.
1308. You think he was a man who could be fully trusted in giving out medical comforts? I never heard he could not.
1309. You always found him trustworthy? Yes.

Mr. W. B.
Violetta, M.B.

- Mr. W. B. Violette, M.B.
21 Aug., 1899.
1310. You would not expect Mrs. Cunyngbame herself to give out the medical comforts to every individual man? No, I should think not. Mrs. Cunyngbame would, of course, have to give them out to the attendants.
1311. Mr. Williamson.] You expected her to see that they were attended to? Yes; she should give them out to the attendants, and ask the patient occasionally if he got them.
1312. Mr. Hawthorne.] Is there no check in the hospital as to when the attendants give out the medical comforts? There is a card above the patient's bed showing what he is getting—beef-tea, milk and rice, rum, or whatever comforts he is to get. If he does not get it, he very soon lets you know.
1313. Mr. Bourke.] If a man did not get his medical comforts, I suppose the wardsmen would tell you? Yes; the patient would tell him.
1314. Were there many complaints that they did not get their comforts? A good number of complaints.
1315. And did you investigate those? I investigated them in a sense, but I did not go into each individual case. I gave Edgar instructions to watch and see what became of these medical comforts.
1316. Speaking generally, where medical comforts had not been given in the cases you investigated, who would you blame? The inmate wardsmen, to a great extent.
1317. Who was Edgar—was he paid? He was a paid attendant.
1318. You say you gave him particular instructions to watch and see that the men did get their medical comforts? Yes.
1319. Then if a man did not get his medical comforts and the fact was not reported to Mrs. Cunyngbame I suppose it was no fault of hers? Not if she gave them out to the man. I suppose she would give them out to the nurse or attendant and he would distribute them to each one as he went through the ward.
1320. She would give them out but it might be that the patient would not get them? It might be.
1321. Suppose he did not get them and he told the wardsmen about it, and the wardsmen did not carry the complaint to Mrs. Cunyngbame, of course the wardsmen would be to blame? Certainly.
1322. Mr. Williamson.] If she went round and asked the patients if they got their comforts that could not happen—she would check the wardsmen? Yes; she would check the wardsmen.
1323. Mr. Bourke.] After she had given out the medical comforts to the wardsmen to give to the men, would you expect her to go to every individual man and ask him whether he had got them? No.
1324. You would expect the wardsmen to report? I would expect her to ask occasionally as she went through, "Are you getting your comforts," to one and another—not taking each one seriatim, but occasionally.
1325. You yourself do not blame Mrs. Cunyngbame with regard to medical comforts? No, not Mrs. Cunyngbame. I have made no complaint against Mrs. Cunyngbame in regard to the medical comforts.
1326. Do you remember that when you first went to Macquarie-street Asylum or shortly afterwards you made an entry about Baird? Yes; in the medical register.
1327. Did you not make an entry to the effect that he could do light work such as cleaning tinware? I believe I did.
1328. You said to-day that the complaint against Baird was that he would not work, and you did not think he was able to work? Neither I did; cleaning tinware is very light work.
1329. Your evidence there is not quite consistent. You acknowledge that you made an entry in the register that he was to work, and yet you have told us that he was not fit for work? He was not fit for work in the ordinary sense. A man might be able to clean his pannikin and not be able to do ordinary work.
1330. I suppose strong men often refuse to work? Yes. Baird has some spinal complaint and rheumatism. Very often men won't work.
1331. Mr. Edmunds.] What work had Mrs. Cunyngbame ordered him to do? General work he was brought up for.
1332. Mr. Bourke.] Are you sure of that? Yes; that is what he was brought before me for.
1333. Not doing general work? Yes.
1334. Are you sure there was no reference to cleaning tinware? No, because that is a special thing I put in; I said he could do that.
1335. Mr. Hawthorne.] Was it your opinion that he was physically incapable of general work? Yes; he might sit down and clean his pannikin and pot, but he could not work.
1336. Mr. Bourke.] And you say that in most of these cases where complaints were made to you that it was really the wardsmen who made the complaints? The head wardsmen would bring the man up to the surgery.
1337. What proof have you to give that Mrs. Cunyngbame knew of all these complaints? The only proof I can give you is that Hanson acted for Mrs. Cunyngbame.
1338. You infer that she knew? Yes.
1339. Mr. Williamson.] That was part of the routine of the institution? Yes; he was head wardsmen, had charge of the yard.
1340. Mr. Bourke.] You say that before you gave an order for Rooney to have an easy chair and to be allowed to go to church he was persecuted? That is the statement he made to me.
1341. You do not know yourself of any persecution that was inflicted upon him? He was not allowed to go to church.
1342. Only by his own statement? Yes.
1343. Mr. Edmunds.] Did you speak to Mrs. Cunyngbame about that? Mrs. Cunyngbame was present when I gave the order for the chair.
1344. Mr. Williamson.] What did she say? She did not seem to approve of his having a chair in the ward.
1345. Mr. Bourke.] Did not seem to? She did not approve of it.
1346. Was he not a helpless man—you would hardly expect a man like him to go to church? He could get friends to take him there.
1347. Mr. Williamson.] They do it now? Yes, he goes to church regularly now and goes for exercise in the yard.
1348. Mr. Ritchie.] He can walk well? No, he cannot; he has spinal complaint and is quite blind.
1349. Mr. Bourke.] With regard to this man M'Coy, I do not quite understand about the boots. You say

- say that three weeks after you had ordered the boots he complained that he did not receive them until he had put his name down? Yes.
1350. Do you know how long that was after the order was given? I could not tell you exactly.
1351. Was it a couple of days? It was longer than that.
1352. Is it not quite possible that a verbal order like that might be forgotten? It was not a verbal order; it was in the book.
1353. You cannot tell us how long it was after the order was given? It was about three weeks.
1354. But then he had the boots? He said he got the boots the day he complained.
1355. Mr. Hawthorne.] Have they a good stock of boots in the institution? I do not know; I have no knowledge of the stores.
1356. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know that if he asked the head wardman for a pair of boots he could get them? I cannot tell you that.
1357. Mr. Edmunds.] Did you speak to Mrs. Cunynghame about that order with reference to the boots? Any order in my book like that is sent in to the superintendent.
1358. You had no conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame in reference to it? No.
1359. Mr. Bourke.] With regard to this man Bannan; you say that Mrs. Cunynghame was not justified in putting him into the isolation ward because she had not your order to do so. You have an entry on the 30th September, 1888, "Alcoholism— isolation ward." On that order was Mrs. Cunynghame justified in putting him in the isolation ward? But she had put him in before that order was entered in the book.
1360. Are you sure he was not in No. 3 hospital during the night? When I saw him he was in the isolation ward.
1361. What time was that? In the morning, about ten o'clock.
1362. You do not know where he had spent the night? No.
1363. It was Sunday morning when you saw him? Yes.
1364. Are you quite sure you saw Mrs. Cunynghame on that morning? I think so.
1365. Are you sure she was not away at church? I am quite sure I saw her in reference to it, because she made the report to me that she had sent the man in there. It was late at night, and she did not care to disturb me.
1366. You yourself after seeing the man in the morning made an entry in the book to the effect that he was drunk? Alcoholism does not mean drunkenness; he might be recovering from the effects.
1367. If he was suffering from alcoholism in the morning he must have been pretty merry the night before, so that Mrs. Cunynghame would be justified in putting him in the isolation ward? No, she was not justified in putting him there, because the authority from the Colonial Secretary states distinctly that only the medical officer could put him in the isolation ward.
1368. Mr. Edmunds.] Is that authority here? There is such an authority in existence.
1369. Mr. Bourke.] Are you sure it was not Edgar who told you of the condition of this man and showed him to you? Edgar was with me when I saw him.
1370. And he told you of the condition in which the man was brought into the institution? He may have done so too, but I think it was Mrs. Cunynghame. It was Edgar who told me, but I believe it was a message from Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. W. B.
Violetto, M.R.
21 Aug., 1889.

FRIDAY, 23 AUGUST, 1889.

Present:—

Mr. HOWE, | Mr. RITCHIE,
Mr. KIDD.

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Peter Christopher Abbott called in, sworn, and examined:—

1371. Mr. Williamson.] What is your occupation in the Macquarie-street Asylum? Clerk.
1372. How long have you been engaged in that occupation? Since October, 1882.
1373. From that time up to the date of Mrs. Cunynghame's resignation what duties did you perform? The general work of the office.
1374. Then as a matter of fact you had charge of all the books connected with the working of the establishment? I had.
1375. Will you first of all look at this diary? That is in my handwriting from the 1st October, 1887, to the 19th July, 1889.
1376. You kept this diary up to the time when Mrs. Brooke was appointed? I did.
1377. Is this book—the wages book—in your handwriting? Yes, from October, 1882, to the 31st July, 1889.
1378. These two books of weekly reports—are they in your handwriting? Yes; one is from the 26th December, 1885, to the 20th October, 1888, and the other is from the 27th October, 1888, to the 27th July, 1889. There may be a few entries that are not mine.
1379. Will you kindly look at these pay-sheet vouchers—are they in your handwriting? Yes.
1380. While you were in the institution did you also have to attend to the financial work? Yes.
1381. Did you receive all moneys, and, according to directions, forward them to the head office in Sydney? According to directions, I received the moneys and reported the same to the superintendent.
1382. Mr. Bourke.] What moneys? Moneys received from inmates.
1383. Mr. Ritchie.] You always reported them to the superintendent? Yes.
1384. Mr. Williamson.] Did you keep any book relating to the inmates' moneys? I did.
1385. Is that the book? Yes.
1386. When you received these moneys what was done with them? As soon as I saw the superintendent I reported their receipt to her, and then locked them up in the despatch-box, after entering them to the credit of the party from whom I received them.

Mr.
P. C. Abbott.
23 Aug., 1889.

- Mr. P. O. Abbott.
28 Aug. 1889.
1387. Mr. Ritchie.] Does that book show a debit and credit account on behalf of the inmates? Yes.
1388. Mr. Kidd.] Were the moneys locked up in the despatch-box? Yes.
1389. Mr. Williamson.] In the case of any inmates dying who had money what was done with anything to their credit? It was closed in the book and the amount remained.
1390. The amount remained where? You must understand that after a certain amount had accumulated in the despatch-box it was paid into Mrs. Cunyngame's private account at the A.J.S. Bank, Parramatta.
1391. Mr. Ritchie.] All moneys were? All moneys.
1392. Without exception, all monies you received from inmates? All.
1393. Mr. Williamson.] What was done with the bank deposit slips that you received from the bank? I used to make out a bank deposit note and take it up with the money to the bank. I received no duplicate; but I took up at the same time a deposit book of Mrs. Cunyngame.
1394. Have you that deposit book? Oh, no.
1395. Mr. Ritchie.] Were there any other money matters transacted in this account with Mrs. Cunyngame—were there any other deposits made by Mrs. Cunyngame apart from these? No; I believe at that time I made all deposits.
1396. Mr. Williamson.] On behalf of Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes.
1397. That is, on Mrs. Cunyngame's private account as well? Yes; if there was any money on hand both Mr. and Mrs. Cunyngame would give it to me, and I used to lock it up in the despatch-box, and with any money I might have received from the inmates, deposit it in the Joint Stock Bank.
1398. And how did you keep the accounts separated; how did you keep the money of the inmates separate from Mrs. Cunyngame's? It was not kept separate.
1399. It was all mixed up together? Yes.
1400. Mr. Bourke.] The only check would be the book you kept of the inmates' moneys? Yes; but there was a small book in which, every time I paid money in, I put down to whose credit I had paid it in.
1401. You mean you put down the amount you paid in of the inmates' moneys? Suppose there were half a dozen sums of money, I put down the names to whom they ought to be credited. At one end of the book there were moneys I paid weekly for Mrs. Cunyngame—not only to inmates but on her own private account.
1402. But you kept no separate account of the inmates' moneys, except in the book you have shown us? No.
1403. Mr. Williamson.] When any patients having money died, what was done with the money? That I cannot say. I paid it into the bank—with the exception of two.
1404. Who were those two? They were not dead, and up to the time of Mrs. Cunyngame's leaving there were £10, £2, £1, and I think 4 or 5 shillings left in the box.
1405. But the question I am asking you is this:—I see, looking through this book, that men died two years before Mrs. Cunyngame left the asylum. Were the moneys ever forwarded to the Treasury or to the Sydney office? Not that I am aware of.
1406. Were you in the habit of filling up Mrs. Cunyngame's cheques? Yes.
1407. Mr. Kidd.] Do I understand that all the moneys that belonged to the inmates were kept in a separate account? Notwithstanding that you deposited them to Mrs. Cunyngame's credit, you kept them in a separate account, and each individual's money was kept separate in the book of which you had charge—is that so? Yes; and the date on which each amount was paid to them.
1408. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact, there never was any return of dead men's moneys forwarded either to the head office or to the Treasury as far as you know? So far as I know.
1409. Mr. Ritchie.] Were any moneys forwarded that you know of? No.
1410. Were there any moneys to the credit of these men when they died? There was money to their credit at their death, which that book will show, but I never recollect its being forwarded to the Treasury. I recollect money that had been received on account of pensions being forwarded regularly.
1411. What I want to know is this—do you know of any specific sum due to any inmate when he died that was in the bank and was never forwarded to the Treasury? I do not know of any being forwarded to the Treasury.
1412. Could you show by this book any sum that was due to an inmate at the time of his death and was never taken out or paid by Mrs. Cunyngame to any fund whatever? Yes; here is one—Carl Egia.
1413. Mr. Kidd.] You do not know whether it was sent or not, except that it was not paid through you? It was not sent through me.
1414. Mr. Williamson.] You did all the clerical work? Yes.
1415. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose this book, with the other books, was open to the examination of any inspector occupying the same position that Mr. Maxted now occupies; he could have come and seen for himself that book or any other book connected with the institution? As a matter of course he could.
1416. I simply want to get from you if there was anything apparently covered up by the superintendent with regard to that or any other account? Never to my knowledge.
1417. Mr. Bourke.] The books were always in your charge. I generally had the keys of the despatch-box, and in the despatch-box the books were kept.
1418. Mr. Williamson.] What sum of money is to the credit of Carl Egia? I forget now.
1419. Mr. Ritchie.] Carl Egia is dead? Yes.
1420. When did he die? In January, 1887.
1421. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact you do not know that Mr. Maxted saw this book until after Mrs. Cunyngame's departure? I do not know that he did.
1422. You have no knowledge of its being brought under Mr. Maxted's notice until after Mrs. Cunyngame left? No.
1423. After Mrs. Cunyngame's departure did not Mr. Maxted when you showed him that book express surprise and go through the book with you? He expressed surprise that the money had not been forwarded to the Treasury.
1424. Mr. Ritchie.] Are there any sums that you know of in this book that have lapsed and remained to the credit of Mr. Cunyngame that have not been forwarded to the Treasury? There are the moneys of nine persons as given in page 10 of the printed papers.
1425. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at the book and tell us the state of Carl Egia's account? The amount received to his credit was £7 10s.; he was paid various sums amounting to £2 12s. 6d., leaving a balance of £4 17s. 6d. due at his death.

1426. Mr. Ritchie.] When you made deposits in the bank did you always sign your own name to the slip as depositor? "Pro S. Cunynghame."
1427. Then you did not distinguish in any particular way between the moneys of these inmates and the moneys of Mrs. Cunynghame? They were all included in one.
1428. Then the bank has no record as to where these moneys came from? None whatever.
1429. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at this book and explain how it was that certain leaves were torn out at the end? After the first visit of Mr. Abbott, the Chairman of the Asylums Inquiry Board, Mrs. Cunynghame took that book away one day, and at that time the book was perfect; it had all the letters including those from Y to Z. She brought it back during the sitting of the Commission, and at the time she had the key of the despatch-box, and then the first time I saw it afterwards I noticed that those leaves were gone.
1430. Mr. Bourke.] What book is that? The book containing the account of the inmates' moneys.
1431. Mr. Williamson.] Will you tell us what those leaves contain? There was a list of the moneys of deceased inmates, but what the amounts were I could not tell you; my memory will not serve me.
1432. Can you remember how many entries there were? I cannot.
1433. Were there ten, fifteen or twenty? There might be perhaps twenty or thirty; but the sums were generally small.
1434. Mr. Bourke.] Were they the moneys of dead inmates or live inmates? Dead inmates.
1435. Mr. Williamson.] Were they separate altogether from the nine names already mentioned? Yes.
1436. When you found out that these leaves were missing, did you draw the attention of Mrs. Cunynghame to the fact? I did say "Mrs. Cunynghame there are some leaves away from here." She said "yes I know all about it." I think that was the reply. It is long ago and I am an old man and my memory is not as good as it ought to be.
1437. Mr. Ritchie.] You are not quite sure of it? No.
1438. Mr. Williamson.] You are quite sure about the leaves being missing? Oh, yes.
1439. Mr. Ritchie.] Was it you who first called Mrs. Cunynghame's attention to the missing leaves? I believe so. I do not know that anybody else ever had access to the book.
1440. The book was always in your charge? Yes.
1441. Mr. Williamson.] Until Mrs. Cunynghame took it away when the Asylum Inquiry Board was sitting? Yes; it could not have been away above a day or so. I always had the key of the despatch-box in my possession except when I went out, and then I generally gave it to Mrs. Cunynghame, or deposited it in a certain place where she might find it and told her where it was. I never went to Sydney without doing that.
1442. Mr. Ritchie.] Did that book ever get into the hands of anybody else except Mrs. Cunynghame before these leaves were out? No.
1443. You are quite sure of that? Quite sure.
1444. Mr. Williamson.] And when you spoke to her she said she knew all about it? I think that was the reply.
1445. Mr. Bourke.] You spoke of the leaves being taken out after the Commission had been appointed? During the time the Commission were sitting.
1446. Which Commission? The Commission of Inquiry which took place about two years ago, of which Mr. T. K. Abbott, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, and Mr. Robison were members.
1447. Mr. Williamson.] Was Mrs. Cunynghame in the habit of disposing of any fat belonging to the institution? The fat used to be sent to Pritchard Bros.
1448. Have you kept any book showing what fat was sent? I have not.
1449. Was there any record kept? No. The cask was there; the fat was put into it by the men from the kitchen, and it was headed up and sent away.
1450. What return did you get for the fat? Cheques occasionally; occasionally soap.
1451. Was fat sent to anybody else besides Pritchard? I think that some considerable time ago, shortly after I came into the office, some fat went to Ashby.
1452. Mr. Bourke.] That would be about 1832? Yes; 1832 or 1833.
1453. Mr. Williamson.] From that time up to the time when Mrs. Cunynghame left the institution, was Pritchard in the habit of receiving the fat? Yes.
1454. You received cheques in return; was any record kept of those cheques? I never kept a record of those cheques.
1455. What was done with them? What Mrs. Cunynghame might have done with them I cannot say.
1456. Mr. Ritchie.] Were they placed in the despatch-box under your charge? Occasionally they were.
1457. Mr. Williamson.] Were they occasionally paid to her credit? I really cannot say without referring to a book.
1458. Mr. Bourke.] Did you say that these cheques were put into the despatch-box? Yes, at times.
1459. Mr. Ritchie.] But did you allow Mrs. Cunynghame to take these cheques and papers, and moneys out of the despatch-box without keeping a record of them? She would tell me if she had taken anything out.
1460. Then did you find that any of those cheques you received from Pritchard Bros., were taken away without your being told of it? I really cannot recollect.
1461. Could you direct the Committee to any record whatever, showing what became of these cheques? I have no record of them.
1462. Mr. Williamson.] Was there any record of them kept at all? None.
1463. As a matter of fact, so far as you know, Mrs. Cunynghame took these cheques? As far as I know, I believe she did.
1464. Mr. Ritchie.] Have you any specific knowledge that any of these cheques were taken away without your keeping a record of them, or of which you have no record? I have no specific knowledge of that.
1465. You know what became of all the cheques you received? Yes, I did know at the time.
1466. You said just now you did not? Yes, except these cheques of Pritchard's.
1467. It is of those I am speaking exclusively—did you keep a correct record of all you received from Pritchard in the shape of cheques, cash, or soap? No, I did not. When a cheque was handed to me I put it into the despatch-box, making a memorandum on a little bit of paper, which I kept in the purse in which these cheques were, showing what the amounts were.
1468. And when you received soap, what was done with that? It was used for the institution.
1469. For the Government Service? Yes, entirely.

Mr.
P. C. Abbott.
23 Aug., 1889.

- Mr. P. C. Abbott.
23 Aug., 1889.
1470. Can you give us a record of how many cheques you received from Pritchard Bros.? I cannot.
1471. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect handing any of these cheques to Mrs. Cunyngame? Mrs. Cunyngame always had them in her possession before they came to me.
1472. Mr. Bourke.] And she handed them to you I suppose to put in the box? Yes. I never opened Mrs. Cunyngame's letters.
1473. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know whether any of those cheques were ever sent to the Sydney office? No, I do not know that ever one was.
1474. And if anything was sent to the Sydney office you would generally write the memorandum and forward it. As a matter of fact you attended to the financial business of the institution as well as to Mrs. Cunyngame's business? I believe so.
1475. Have you any recollection of paying any of these cheques into her private account at the Parramatta A.J.S. Bank? No, I have not. I might have done it, but I cannot say. I cannot recollect it now. I paid so many different amounts in that I cannot recall them to my recollection.
1476. Do you ever recollect saying anything to Mrs. Cunyngame about these cheques? Yes; I believe I did on one occasion.
1477. What transpired? I said, "Don't you think we had better have soap for this." She said, "Oh, no, get money."
1478. Mr. Bourke.] That was for the fat? Yes.
1479. Mr. Williamson.] Did you say anything to her about using this money, or anything of that kind? I cannot recall it to my recollection.
1480. Mr. Kidd.] It did not strike you at the time that there was anything wrong going on? It did not.
1481. Therefore, of course, you would not think particularly of anything of that kind? I did not during the whole time that Mrs. Cunyngame was here consider there was anything going wrong.
1482. Then what you did was just in the ordinary course of business—whether it was paying in money or anything else? Entirely.
1483. Mr. Williamson.] You were simply under the directions of Mrs. Cunyngame? I acted under her directions.
1484. Mr. Ritchie.] If you received a cheque for any purpose, and it was placed in the despatch-box, it would excite your surprise if it went away without your knowing how it was disbursed or dealt with? Of course it would.
1485. Then you admit receiving cheques? I admit receiving a great many cheques.
1486. But cheques from this particular source—from Pritchard Bros.? I might have received them. I do not say positively I did receive them, but I might have received them in the course of business with Mrs. Cunyngame. But whether I did or not, without referring to my own handwriting in a book, I could not swear it either one way or the other.
1487. Mr. Williamson.] I suppose Mrs. Cunyngame was in the habit of coming to you constantly, you being in charge of the whole of the clerical work, and it is a matter of impossibility for you to recollect everything? I cannot.
1488. Have you perused these pay-sheets? I made them all out with the exception perhaps of one or two.
1489. Can you give us any explanation about men who were employed in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen being entered on the pay-sheet. For instance, here is one, Joseph Wallace. He was employed in Mrs. Cunyngame's kitchen in June and July, 1883. He was paid £1 9s. 6d., and was entered on the pay-sheet as a hospital wardsman. Then there is another, Thomas Benle. He was down as hospital wardsman, and others, although employed by Mrs. Cunyngame, were entered in fictitious occupations? When making out the pay-sheets monthly, after entering all those names and men whom I knew were employed in the various stations carrying on the work of the institution, there were several vacancies left, sometimes four, sometimes five, sometimes seven; and I then referred to Mrs. Cunyngame in each separate case as to what name I was to put in to those various places. It was a stereotyped affair, as to the list of his duties, as you will see by referring to the pay-sheet; it is the same thing month after month.
1490. Then, as a matter of fact, whatever was entered on the pay-sheet was entered by you at Mrs. Cunyngame's direction? Of course it was. I had no authority to put any man's name down without her directions.
1491. Have you heard Mr. Cunyngame remonstrate with Mrs. Cunyngame in reference to this mode of making up the pay-sheets? Yes.
1492. What transpired? He said, "Oh, do not put that man's name down," and she has turned round and said, "Oh, mind your own business—you have nothing at all to do with it."
1493. Had you any knowledge then that these men were employed in her kitchen, and were put down in these fictitious positions? Of course I had knowledge of it.
1494. Did you speak to Mrs. Cunyngame about it? No; I cannot say I did. I cannot recollect at the present moment that I did. It was not my place to speak to her about such a thing as that. Of course I saw their names and I knew what they were doing.
1495. You knew, as a matter of fact, that they were employed in the kitchen, although they were put down in other occupations? Yes.
1496. Being employed in the kitchen as Mrs. Cunyngame's private servants, were they entitled to be paid? That I cannot tell you.
1497. Mr. Ritchie.] Did Mrs. Cunyngame initial the pay-sheets after you had prepared them? Yes.
1498. Not before at any time? No.
1499. After you had all the entries down she certified to them by initialing them? Yes.
1500. Mr. Kidd.] What is meant by the private kitchen—are there two kitchens in the establishment? There are. The superintendent's kitchen is in one part of the building, and the men's kitchen in another.
1501. Have you had any previous experience in any similar institution? This is the first I have had the honor to be in, and I believe it will be the last.
1502. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at that paper. There were certain contractors who supplied goods to the institution? Yes—food.
1503. Prior to Mrs. Cunyngame leaving the institution, who was in the habit of passing the goods in the morning? In the morning I usually received the meat and weighed it. If I found it up to weight, I went and reported the same at Mrs. Cunyngame's door, and it would not be touched until either Mr. or Mrs. Cunyngame had seen it. If the meat was good, Mr. Cunyngame would pass it; if not, Mrs. Cunyngame would come out and condemn it, or otherwise, as she thought proper. 1504.

Mr.
P. C. Abbott.
23 Aug., 1889.

1504. If it was not good? Yes, if there was any fault to find with it.
1505. And the person delivering it—had he gone? He was gone.
1506. In the afternoon, who passed the stores generally? Well, I sometimes went and saw them; sometimes Mrs. Cunynghame. Generally in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Cunynghame were out for a drive at the time—when being supplied, at any rate, by Kelly it was generally late, and they were generally out for a drive. But had there been anything wrong during the time they were out I should report it the moment they came in.
1507. Then the contractor would have gone? Yes.
1508. Mr. Kidd.] Did you not find this to be the case—that when the goods were not up to the mark the contractor cleared out quicker than when the goods were very good? No, I did not find that out.
1509. Mr. Williamson.] I suppose the contractor did not go until you weighed it? No, not until I saw the weights were all right.
1510. There was no supervision then on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame, because she was not present? At times she was, but it was seldom.
1511. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose you experienced a good deal of trouble with the contractors in keeping them up to the mark? Yes, with some of them.
1512. Mr. Ritchie.] Were many complaints made of the quality of goods by the inmates? No, not a great many. In an institution like this, let the food be ever so good, you will always find somebody who will find fault.
1513. Then, according to your opinion, the goods you received as food were pretty good, take it all through? Yes.
1514. Mr. Williamson.] Taking things on the whole? Yes, and the prices paid.
1515. Mr. Kidd.] When you drew the attention of the superintendent at any time to the goods not being what you considered up to the mark, did she take any steps with regard to them? Invariably.
1516. Always, I suppose? Always.
1517. She had the goods returned, and others of a better quality substituted? Sometimes she would send them back by the messenger, and at other times she would write telling the contractor that better goods must be supplied in future.
1518. Do you think that with regard to these matters she did her duty, as well as it possibly could be done, in the passing of the stores? Yes.
1519. Mr. Williamson.] You were entrusted pretty well with the management of the institution, were you not? I do not know about that.
1520. That is, the clerical work and passing the stores, and so forth? If you think proper to dubb me so, and pass me the compliment, you may do so.
1521. You had a store department here, had you not, in which you kept flannels, calicoes, and so forth? Yes.
1522. Have you seen Mrs. Cunynghame taking calico and flannel from these stores for her own private use? I have seen her take calico and flannel into her own private house, but whether it was for her own private use or not I do not know.
1523. Mr. Ritchie.] Were these calicoes received from the contractors for the Government? Yes.
1524. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know if some of the things taken from the stores by Mrs. Cunynghame were sent down to the tailors? No—not of my own knowledge.
1525. Did you receive information from any person;—tell me the person's name? I cannot tell you the person's name.
1526. Have you seen material belonging to the institution sent? No.
1527. A message given to a person, who was directed to go to a certain tailoring establishment? No.
1528. When goods were required for the institution from the stores, what was done;—suppose you wanted any flannels or calicoes from the stores, what was generally done? The sheets were cut up in the office, and they were sent down to the tailors to be hemmed, and each evening they would bring up a number hemmed, and I would take a memorandum of them until I had received back the whole quantity that had been sent away, and then they would be entered in the diary.
1529. Did you ever keep a memorandum of what Mrs. Cunynghame took into her private quarters? No.
1530. Mr. Kidd.] Is it not possible that some of those things might go into Mrs. Cunynghame's for the purpose of being made up in some way or other, or something being done with them;—is that not possible, for anything you know? For all I know, they might have been.
1531. Mr. Williamson.] But you have a tailor here for that purpose? We have tailors here now, and have had them all through the piece, ever since I have been in the institution.
1532. And you received a return from these tailors? Yes.
1533. But never of what Mrs. Cunynghame received? What Mrs. Cunynghame took to her own private house I know of course nothing as to what it was required for.
1534. Mr. Kidd.] You do not know whether it was required for the institution or not—it might have been? It might have been.
1535. Mr. Williamson.] With regard to the provisions, where were they kept—in the same place as the calicoes and flannels? No.
1536. Where were the provisions kept? They were generally kept in the kitchen until we had the store put up. But there was never any large quantity on hand, because they were only received from day to day.
1537. Have you seen provisions taken from the Government stores into Mrs. Cunynghame's private kitchen? Yes, I have.
1538. When—daily? Well, I have not been there daily when it has been taken away, but I have known that it was going on.
1539. How often—how many times a week? Meat, generally, every day.
1540. What weight? Well, I cannot say absolutely the weight, for I never weighed it, but I should say 12 or 14 lb.
1541. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know what it was used for? No; I was never an inmate of Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen, and I do not know; it went up there; that is all I know.
1542. Mr. Williamson.] And with regard to other things—vegetables and potatoes? Potatoes they might have had a few.

Mr.
P. C. Abbott.
23 Aug., 1889.

1543. As a matter of fact, did you keep her butcher's bills? I used to see her butcher's bills; they used to be brought in to me.
1544. What was the average quantity in the butcher's bill—the charge? Generally when looking down the bill it seemed to be 1½ lb. or 2 lb. steaks or chops and some corned beef once or twice a week.
1545. How many persons were there in Mrs. Cunynghame's establishment—family and servants? Mr. and Mrs. Cunynghame and the family—about three or four children.
1546. And a female servant? Sometimes there was and sometimes there was not.
1547. How many men? Three men.
1548. Mr. Kidd.] The men belonged to the institution? Yes.
1549. Mr. Williamson.] Have you seen tea going in from the Government stores? Yes.
1550. What sized packages? 4 lb.
1551. How many times a week? About once in ten days; but I have not noticed every time it has gone; I did not live there; it was only occasionally, when I went into my breakfast, or anything like that.
1552. Did you speak to her about it? I did on one occasion.
1553. What did she say to you? She said, "Oh, never mind; those men of mine are making very strong tea."
1554. Do you know what quantity of tea is allowed to each of the men in the rations? The quantity of tea allowed per day to each man was one-fifth of an ounce at that time, and that had to be divided into two meals.
1555. Mr. Bourke.] How long ago was it when you drew Mrs. Cunynghame's attention to this? I daresay it was between two and three years ago.
1556. Mr. Williamson.] And it continued right up to the very time she left the institution, did it not? Well, I was very little in the kitchen the latter part of the time.
1557. Well up to Mr. Maxted's time? Yes; it continued up to the time Mr. Maxted was appointed.
1558. Mr. Bourke.] This is only to the best of your belief? Yes; I will not swear to anything I am not thoroughly convinced about.
1559. Mr. Williamson.] You have already said with regard to that little book that Mr. Maxted expressed his surprise when he saw it? Yes.
1560. Do you recollect what your pay was when Mr. Maxted came here? Yes, it was 2s. a day.
1561. Do you recollect Mrs. Cunynghame having some conversation with you, relative to the reduction of 1s. a day? Yes, I do.
1562. Will you tell us what that conversation was? She said she had a great deal of trouble in persuading the Director to continue me at 2s. a day. That is what she told me herself.
1563. Do you know Dr. Brown? I do slightly.
1564. Was he in the habit of visiting the institution from 1882 up to the time Mrs. Cunynghame left? I think I have seen Dr. Brown here on two occasions.
1565. From 1882 to the time Mrs. Cunynghame left, of your knowledge, he only visited the institution twice? That was I believe to see two patients at the instigation of Dr. Rowling.
1566. And in reference to lunatics I believe? No; Dr. Brown never certified to a lunatic.
1567. Mr. Ritchie.] He was simply performing the work of Dr. Rowling during his absence? No; to the best of my recollection he came at Dr. Rowling's request to see two patients whom Dr. Rowling wanted his opinion upon.
1568. You only then know of his being here twice? That is all. I have repeatedly seen his carriage outside of Mrs. Cunynghame's door.
1569. Have you ever seen him examining the institution throughout? No; never to my knowledge.
1570. When he was here I suppose he visited the hospital? Yes, upstairs.
1571. Was he only in the hospital. He only came to see those two patients in the hospital. He might have had some conversation with Mrs. Cunynghame? I do not say he did not, but I never knew him to go over the institution.
1572. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know when the Rev. Canon Gunther used to come? He used to come here generally on Thursdays.
1573. Once a fortnight? He was generally here every week, but he performed service once a fortnight.
1574. He came regularly every week? Not regularly, but generally every week.
1575. For the purpose of holding a service? Every alternate Thursday he used to hold service, but at other times his curate did, and he used generally to come in here and either leave a note or speak to his curate on some particular thing, and then go away.
1576. But he did not go round the institution? No.
1577. Mr. Bourke.] Are you sure he did not go round the institution;—did you see all his movements? No; I could not see all his movements.
1578. Were you here? In the office.
1579. Mr. Kidd.] You would not take notice particularly whether he went round the institution or not;—it would not concern you whether he did or not? Not a bit.
1580. If he was here every week he might have gone round frequently? He might.
1581. Mr. Williamson.] From 1882 up to the time when Mrs. Cunynghame left, how many times did Dr. Phillips visit the institution? That I cannot say.
1582. Mr. Bourke.] After Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, did you spend a week, or any time, at Mr. Maxted's place at Paddington? I did.
1583. You were a guest of Mr. Maxted? I was.
1584. About a week after Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? Yes.
1585. And when Mrs. Cunynghame left the institution you were getting 2s. a day? I was.
1586. What are you getting now? £50 a year.
1587. Then I suppose you are not an inmate of the institution now;—you are clerk, are you not? Yes.
1588. What do you mean when you say you had also to attend to the financial work of the institution? I received the moneys.
1589. What moneys? From the various inmates.
1590. Then all the financial work you did was to receive these moneys from the inmates and pay them into the bank? Oh, no!

Mr.
P. C. Abbott,
23 Aug., 1889

1591. Well, what do you mean by doing the financial work generally? The financial work of this institution simply consists in receiving what moneys may come in through the superintendent's hands, and paying to the inmates money they may require.
1592. Then the principal part of your financial work was to receive money from the inmates, paying back every Wednesday what each man required? Which I did out of my own pocket, and then received a cheque from Mrs. Cunyngame at any time I happened to ask for it.
1593. That is what you mean when you say you do the financial work? Yes; all the financial work of the institution is done in Sydney—the Government financial work.
1594. You say that these books showing the inmates' moneys were always in your charge, and of course if the inspector or manager came along it was quite open for him to see them—they were always there? He had only to ask and he could have seen them at any moment.
1595. You say that a certain book was brought back to you with leaves torn out. Do you know whether the leaves which you see have been inserted in this book are the leaves that were torn out? Yes, those are the leaves.
1596. What moneys are represented there? Those are Pritchard's cheques.
1597. Entered in your writing? Yes.
1598. You said you kept no record? I did.
1599. You forgot that I suppose? I did not even know they were down upon this.
1600. Do you know how many cheques in the year would be received from Pritchard? I have heard from others, but I do not know myself.
1601. These cheques were always first received by Mrs. Cunyngame, and then given to you to put in the despatch-box? Yes.
1602. And in the usual course of things they would be banked with the other moneys in the cash-box? Yes, if they remained there.
1603. The usual course would be for all moneys in the despatch-box to be banked by you? Yes.
1604. Is the handwriting on that slip of paper yours? Yes.
1605. That is an entry about one of those cheques, is it not? Yes; it is an extract from the diary.
1606. With regard to receiving the goods from the contractors, you say that in the morning you took the meat in, and it was not touched until Mrs. Cunyngame had examined it? Yes.
1607. In the afternoon when you took in groceries and other supplies you would leave those for Mrs. Cunyngame to examine also? She sometimes went down and looked at them herself after her return; they would be there, but would not be required until the following morning.
1608. If stores came in the afternoon when Mrs. Cunyngame was out, the general practice was for you to keep those stores for her to look at when she came back? Not generally.
1609. But would she generally come herself and look at them? No.
1610. Only sometimes? Sometimes.
1611. She trusted then to you with regard to the afternoon stores? Yes, she entrusted a great deal to me.
1612. But with regard to these particular stores received in the afternoon when she was out, she trusted to you? In a great measure yes.
1613. Mr. Williamson has asked you whether you were not generally the manager of the institution? No, I was not.
1614. Your particular duties were those of clerk, were they not? Clerk and supervision.
1615. General supervision of the stores? And other things; I used to go round the wards.
1616. You assisted Mrs. Cunyngame generally? Of course.
1617. And Mrs. Cunyngame also went round? Mrs. Cunyngame used sometimes to go round in the morning—round the hospital wards.
1618. Mr. Williamson.] In Mr. Maxted's time? I cannot say about Mr. Maxted's time.
1619. Mr. Bourke.] To your knowledge has Mrs. Cunyngame during Mr. Maxted's time been in the habit of going through the wards;—through the hospital wards;—would you know whether she did or not? I do not know that I should.
1620. With regard to the passing of the stores, did what you have told us about them take place before Mr. Maxted was appointed or afterwards? Both before and after.
1621. The practice was just the same after he was appointed as it was before? There was more supervision on the part of Mrs. Cunyngame after Mr. Maxted's appointment.
1622. You would not know whether Mrs. Cunyngame went much through the hospital ward. Would you know whether she went regularly through the other parts of the institution—say the yard and so on? No, I do not know that I should.
1623. Because you were in the office I suppose? Generally I was.
1624. With regard to these butchers' bills of Mrs. Cunyngame's, do you remember the amounts? They were only paid once in three months.
1625. I suppose you would not remember the amount of them? No.
1626. Did Mr. Maxted ever tell you after Mrs. Brooke was appointed, when you were writing out a list of all the things you did, that it did not matter, and that if you could show Mrs. Brooke how to manage the institution as it had been managed by Mrs. Cunyngame that would be sufficient—did he tell you anything to that effect? No.
1627. Did Mr. Maxted commend Mrs. Cunyngame's management to your knowledge? I cannot say that. I was never present at any interview between Mr. Maxted and Mrs. Cunyngame.
1628. Since Mrs. Cunyngame left have you ever heard Mr. Maxted speak well of her management? No.
1629. Mr. Ritchie.] Have you ever spoken to Mr. Maxted at all about Mrs. Cunyngame? Oh yes; I have had many a conversation with Mr. Maxted about Mrs. Cunyngame.
1630. Could you relate any of these conversations? No, I could not.
- Mr. Bourke.*] You have seen a good deal of Mr. Maxted since Mrs. Cunyngame has been suspended? I have.
1631. Has he ever spoken to you about appearing before this Committee to give evidence? Yes, he did.
1632. Has he refreshed your memory about any of these matters? Not in the least.
1633. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose that during the week that you were a guest of Mr. Maxted's you had conversations from time to time about the general management of the institution? During the time I was

Mr.
P. C. Abbott.
23 Aug., 1839.

was a guest of Mr. Maxted I was in excessively ill-health and I was very little at Mr. Maxted's. I used generally to breakfast there (an egg and brandy in the morning, that was all) and sometimes I had my tea there in the evening. I used to pass the day as much as possible in the open air.

1634. I do not want to imply that there was anything improper in your being at Mr. Maxted's, but it is not likely that you would be there without having some general conversation about the institution? Well, Mr. Maxted at that time was engaged a good deal and was very seldom at home.

1635. Mr. Ritchie.] When was it that you were at Mr. Maxted's? Last December.

1636. What was the purpose of your living there—were you invited by Mr. Maxted? I was invited by Mr. Maxted on account of my being in excessively ill-health at the time—excessively weak and unable to eat.

1637. And you lived at his house in Paddington? I did.

1638. Mr. Bourke.] Something has been said about Mrs. Cunynghame's private kitchen;—do you know whether anything was cooked for the inmates in Mrs. Cunynghame's private kitchen? Not that I am aware of.

1639. You did not have much to do with the kitchen of late? Nothing at all—with Mrs. Cunynghame's never.

1640. You were in the institution a long time; do you think Mrs. Cunynghame was kind in her behaviour towards the inmates;—what is your own opinion? I did not see anything decidedly wrong in it.

1641. You were an inmate for some time; what was her conduct to you? To me it was the utmost kindness.

1642. Did you ever see any severe harshness displayed by Mrs. Cunynghame towards any of the inmates, anything very severe? No, I can't say I did.

1643. You know that Mrs. Cunynghame has been charged with shocking harshness towards inmates;—you know that I suppose? I do not know that she is charged exactly with that, but that she was charged with allowing it to go on. I have heard that.

1644. Then of your own knowledge you do not know anything about this great severity? I knew nothing of it; nor did I know anything of it at the time the Commission so rigidly inquired into it.

1645. Your own experience is that Mrs. Cunynghame was very kind to you, and that generally she was kind and attentive? I speak for myself alone, and I say she showed the utmost kindness to me, and I very much regret that I have had to appear here at all.

1646. Mr. Williamson.] You have no interest whatever in this inquiry? None whatever.

1647. And you have not been influenced in any way by Mr. Maxted? I have not been influenced by Mr. Maxted in any way.

1648. You know this plot of ground outside? Yes.

1649. Have you seen Mrs. Cunynghame turn the men off that plot of ground? Well, I have seen that done.

1650. Mr. Ritchie.] Did she do it in anything like a harsh manner? She generally sent me to do it; she did not go herself.

1651. What was done? She would say "go down and tell that man he is not to lie on the grass."

1652. Did she give any reason why they were not to lie on the grass;—she would have had some reason for it? Well, the grass made the place look bright and pleasant.

1653. It was to preserve a nice lawn? Yes.

1654. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact do you know that the horses and the cow used to go there? Yes.

1655. Mr. Bourke.] About the same time? Yes.

1656. Were any of these men you were told to order off the grass blind men? Not that I am aware of; they might have been, but I cannot recollect.

1657. Mr. Williamson.] It is a nice bit of grass;—nice bit of clover? Yes, a nice bit of clover.

1658. Mr. Bourke.] With regard to Mr. Cunynghame speaking to Mrs. Cunynghame about putting the men on the pay-sheets. Will you read that. You say that Mr. Cunynghame remonstrated with Mrs. Cunynghame about a certain man being on the pay-sheet; do you remember whether that is the man? I do not know whether that is the man or not.

1659. How often did you hear that? Only on one occasion.

1660. Mr. Williamson.] Since the present Superintendent has been in charge of the Institution the men are always on the grass plot; it is the only piece of ground they have? It is.

1661. Mr. Bourke.] Were the men ever allowed to go on the grass when Mrs. Cunynghame was here? No.

1662. Mr. Ritchie.] Was the grass mown regularly? When we had a man in the institution who could do it, it was generally mown.

1663. Then the lawn was kept in nice condition during Mrs. Cunynghame's time? Yes.

1664. Is it kept in as good condition now? It does not look well just at present; the late rains have made some grasses spring, and others remain dormant.

1665. The men are allowed to roam over it just as they like, are they? Yes.

1666. Mr. Williamson.] They have no other place to go to unless they stop in the building? Yes they may go down to the lower yard, but that is rather a dangerous place because they can get over the fence.

1667. Mr. Bourke.] There was no general order I suppose that the men were to keep off the grass? No, it was an understood thing.

1668. Occasionally you were sent to turn them off? Yes.

WEDNESDAY, 28 AUGUST, 1889.

Present:

MR. KIDD,		MR. CRICK,
MR. RITCHIE,		MR. HOWE,
MR. EDMUNDS,		MR. HAWTHORNE,

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

William Bradley Violette, M.B., called in, and further examined:—

1669. Mr. Bourke.] You told us, with regard to your report of the 22nd October, 1888, that you thought the matter was quite done with and dealt with? Yes; I had a letter from Mr. Maxted explaining to me the action he had taken in regard to Mrs. Cunynghame and what he said, and there is an entry in the book in reference to that particular thing.

Mr. W. B. Violette, M.B.

28 Aug., 1889.

1670. And with regard to your report of the 8th November, did you think that also had been dealt with? No, that had not been dealt with; that was a matter to come on, because I had not given the particulars. I was surprised to find that it had been acted upon so precipitately.

1671. You were surprised that Mrs. Cunynghame had been suspended partly on your report of the 8th November? Yes, because I had not given particulars; it was a general statement. A question was asked me and I replied to it, but I did not give particulars.

1672. You replied categorically, as it were? Yes.

1673. In your last examination, in reference to the man Bannan, you say you thought it was Edgar who brought you the message from Mrs. Cunynghame and that you did not see Mrs. Cunynghame in the morning? Yes, I remember it now distinctly; I could not at the time.

1674. Then you correct your former evidence and say it was not Mrs. Cunynghame? Yes; I saw Mrs. Cunynghame subsequently, and she confirmed the message I got from Edgar.

1675. Then it was really Edgar who described the state of Bannan to you and said he was drunk? Yes; he brought a message from Mrs. Cunynghame to that effect.

1676. And on the statement he made to you and after looking at the man you made the entry in the medical register to the effect that he was suffering from the effects of drink? "Alcoholism." I wrote that the man would not answer me at all. It was a case of purely negative evidence. The man would not defend himself from the statement that he was drunk.

1677. But that is very clear—that on Edgar's statement and on your own observation you made that entry in the register? No, it was not on my own observation, because my observation gave a purely negative result.

1678. You saw the man? Yes.

1679. About this man Cummings, was he very bad do you remember? He suffered from hæmorrhage from the lungs; he was very bad at the time I sent him into the hospital.

1680. At the time he went to Liverpool? At the time he went to Liverpool I could not tell you, because I had not seen him I suppose for about a fortnight when he went to Liverpool.

1681. But at the time you made the order that he might remain in the institution another month, was he in a very bad condition? Well he was not in actual danger then.

1682. You felt justified at any rate in making an order that he should remain another month in Parramatta? Yes, I felt justified; but you must understand that when a patient is in the yard I have not the same control over him that I have when he is in the hospital.

1683. Mr. Critch.] Supposing Mrs. Cunynghame had disobeyed that order of yours, what would have been the result—suppose she had sent the man away after you had said that he might remain another month? There would have been no result at all if she acted upon instructions from Mr. Maxted.

1684. Never mind about that. What would have been the result if she had disobeyed your direction? None at all.

1685. Then you had no authority over her? I had no authority over the patients in the yard.

1686. Mr. Bourke.] But you would complain to Mr. Maxted if she disobeyed any order of yours? In reference to the hospital I would.

1687. Mr. Ritchie.] Then a man is supposed to be out of your charge if he is not in the hospital? Out of my discipline. He may come to me perhaps if he is in the yard for directions about medicine or diet, but I have nothing further to do with him.

1688. Mr. Bourke.] If a man is reported to you as sick, and you say he is ill, he then comes under your charge? He would if I sent him to the hospital, or gave special instructions about him; if I said for instance that he was to go to a certain ward and stay there.

1689. You gave instructions about Cummings yourself I suppose—that he was to go to Liverpool? Yes; that he was to be transferred to Liverpool.

1690. I suppose after that he would be considered to be under your supervision in a way? No; I should think that after I had given the order for his transfer I had dealt with the case in a sense. He came to me and asked if he might remain, and I said "Oh yes, you can remain." I would not oppose his remaining.

1691. Then we cannot get anything very definite about the position of a man who is neither in the hospital nor out of it? Well, he is in the yard.

1692. Mr. Critch.] Why did you make the entry? Because the man applied to me.

1693. Was that entry to have no effect or meaning whatever—do you make entries that have no effect or meaning? The effect was this, that I would not oppose the man remaining; it was letting Mrs. Cunynghame know that I would not oppose the man remaining.

1694. Did you ever make a similar order before under such circumstances? I could not tell you, I am dealing with about fifty patients a day; I could not say.

1695. Mr. Bourke.] There was a communication to which you referred from Mrs. Cunynghame to Mr. Maxted about the medical comforts that were given by you, that caused you some dissatisfaction did it not? It did certainly.

1696.

Mr. W. B.
Violette, M.B.
28 Aug., 1889.

1696. Will you tell us why? Because it was a false statement.
1697. In what way? It was a false statement, because Mrs. Cunyngame represented to Mr. Maxted that I was giving medical comforts indiscriminately to any who came to me and asked for them.
1698. Can you tell us the name of the man whom Mrs. Cunyngame is said to have charged you with poisoning with morphia? I believe the man's name was Jacobs.
1699. Is he still in Parramatta? Yes.
1700. Were you ever in the habit of giving him morphia? Certainly; you will find the entries in my book.
1701. This was the letter in reference to medical comforts addressed by Mrs. Cunyngame to Mr. Maxted on the 8th October, 1888:—
I have the honor to draw your attention to a return of a few men who have been receiving spirits, beer, &c., since the 21st April, 1887, as requested by you at your last visit.
Will you read Mr. Maxted's letter in explanation? The answer of Mr. Maxted is dated 6th November, 1888, and is as follows:—
My dear Dr. Violette,
Pinned to this you will find the table which Mrs. Cunyngame forwarded, in reference to the subject of our conversation yesterday. I have kept no copy of it, but it appears to have been pressed in her letter-book. You may destroy it if you chose.
Yours, &c.,
S. MAXTED.
- P.S.—You will notice Mrs. Cunyngame says "as requested." I certainly did ask for the return, as I explained yesterday, but it was after she had verbally complained, as I explained to you. You will see, from the nature of the return, that I could not possibly have known anything about the matter otherwise.
1702. There is nothing in that about medical comforts being given indiscriminately? It was mentioned in the conversation that Mrs. Cunyngame had with Mr. Maxted.
1703. Mr. Kidd.] You made your report of the 8th November two days after the date of Mr. Maxted's letter;—I suppose you felt indignant? No; I had seen Mr. Maxted before that with reference to it. I saw Mr. Maxted three or four times, almost daily then.
1704. What I mean is that your report appears to breath some indignation on account of that letter, because it is only dated a couple of days afterwards? Yes; I say the statement is untruthful, as you will see by reference to my report.
1705. Mr. Bourke.] But in the report of Mrs. Cunyngame there is nothing on the face of it saying that there was any indiscriminate use of medical comforts; it is just a bald report? But if you read Mr. Maxted's letter, you will see what occurred in connection with it.
1706. But he does not mention anything about it? He speaks of a conversation.
1707. You say that the return was untruthful? I say that the report which Mr. Maxted made to me accompanying that return was untruthful.
1708. Mr. Crick.] Is the report Mrs. Cunyngame made untruthful? Yes.
1709. Not the report that Mr. Maxted made to you of what Mrs. Cunyngame told him, but the report Mrs. Cunyngame herself made—was that untruthful? Mrs. Cunyngame denied that she had stated it.
1710. Mr. Bourke.] Is the return forwarded by Mrs. Cunyngame accompanying her letter, which I have just read, a correct return? I could not tell you; I have not got the books.
1711. Mr. Crick.] You will not undertake to say it is incorrect? No.
1712. Mr. Bourke.] You cannot, as a matter of fact, now say that that return is untruthful? I cannot tell you that table is untruthful, but I can tell you that the report Mrs. Cunyngame made is untruthful.
1713. That report you say was untruthful, and that made you angry naturally with Mrs. Cunyngame? Naturally if a person makes a false statement of you you will get angry.
1714. You never gave Mrs. Cunyngame authority, you say, to send for Dr. Phillips to see M'Govern? Certainly not.
1715. Did you give her authority to send for Dr. Phillips to see any one else? To see Carlyon.
1716. From the time Mr. Maxted was appointed Director until Mrs. Cunyngame left did you have many complaints from the people in the hospital? I had a good number of complaints; in fact I had so many that I refused to hear any more.
1717. From whom did they come? From men in the yard.
1718. And I suppose the reason why you refused was because most of them were rather trivial? No; but because I considered Mr. Maxted was the Director. I was Medical Officer. When I was acting for Dr. MacLaurin I had a certain amount of authority over the asylum, but when Mr. Maxted came I declined to have anything more to do with it.
1719. Mr. Crick.] These complaints were from men in the yard? Yes.
1720. What was the character of the complaints? I could bring friends of mine who were there, and who have seen men coming up to me crying.
1721. You can remember some of them? I cannot, because I would not listen to them. I said, "Make your complaint to the Director."
1722. But at the first go-off you must have listened to some of them? You mean before this?
1723. Yes? You will find them entered in the book, whether the complaints were substantiated, or whether the evidence was not conclusive. You will find there are a lot of complaints in the medical register at times.
1724. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose, from your experience of these institutions, you can say that there are a number of complaints which, when inquired into, are found not to have much in them? Yes.
1725. Mr. Ritchie.] I suppose that is the view you take of these complaints? Not of all.
1726. If you never paid any attention to them how could you form an opinion as to whether there was anything in them or not? Speaking of these latter ones, I could not tell you whether the complaints were grounded on fact or not, because I declined to have anything more to do with them after Mr. Maxted came.
1727. Mr. Bourke.] The fact is you did not investigate them at all but referred them to Mr. Maxted? Certainly.
1728. So that you do not know whether the complaints were trivial or otherwise? No, I could not tell you.
1729. Mr. Williamson.] Can you not give us, as an illustration, the one particular case where the man came up crying after Mr. Maxted was appointed? No; I could bring you a friend of mine who knows the incident.
1730. Who is that? Mr. Mingaye.

Mr. W. B.
Violette, M.B.
28 Aug., 1889.

1731. Who is he? The Government Assayer.
1732. Mr. Bourke.] Was Mrs. Cunynghame present on any of these occasions? Mrs. Cunynghame may have been—I could not say she was not.
1733. Can you tell us whether, when Mr. Maxted was first appointed, it was usual for all the hospital patients to get tobacco? I could not tell you whether it was usual or not. I have often been asked to give a man permission to smoke in the ward.
1734. But it was generally on your order, was it not, that men in the hospital were given tobacco? I could not say—there was no rule about it. But I know I have given special permission for men to smoke in the ward, and I have forbidden men to smoke in the ward after they had set fire to their bedding. Under such circumstances I have discontinued their tobacco.
1735. Mr. Crick.] Suppose a man would persist (say) in spitting on the floor, and chewing, would you consider it right to allow that man to do that;—would it add to the cleanliness of the place? No; I would not allow a man to cause discomfort to others.
1736. And suppose that after that the man's tobacco was stopped for a week would you consider that a harsh and brutal punishment? Not if he were a man of filthy habits like that.
1737. Mr. Ritchie.] Would it not be possible to supply him with an ordinary spittoon which would enable him to enjoy the luxury of tobacco? I presuppose that he has that convenience.
1738. Then there is no objection to a man smoking in the wards if he is cleanly? No, not at all.
1739. Would it not be an act of charity to allow him some kind of spittoon rather than that he should expectorate on the floor? It is usually done.
1740. You do that, do you? Yes.
1741. Was that done in Mrs. Cunynghame's time? I could not say it was; I have seen spittoon boxes about the ward.
1742. Whose duty would it be to do that? That would be a domestic matter that would come under Mrs. Cunynghame's superintendence.
1743. Mr. Bourke.] You say you have seen boxes for the men to spit in? Yes.
1744. Those being there I suppose it would be a piece of misconduct for a man to spit about the floor? Yes; you would think a man was not a cleanly man who would go spitting about the floor.
1745. Do you remember after Mr. Maxted being appointed a general order being issued that all the hospital patients should have tobacco? I did not see it but I recollect something about it in conversation only, I did not see any order.
1746. And prior to that you do not know whether there was any order or not? No.
1747. I suppose you consider that you have charge of the hospital independently of the superintendent? Not, of course, of the domestic arrangements.
1748. The general conduct of the place. If you gave orders you would expect the superintendent to carry them out? If I gave orders, certainly.
1749. Were your orders generally carried out by Mrs. Cunynghame? As a rule they were. Where they were not I have complained, as you will see in one of my letters about the medical comforts.
1750. There are only one or two instances altogether, I think, where you have complained; one is about the medical comforts, and the other in reference to calling in Dr. Phillips? Yes.
1751. In those cases you think your orders were defied or disregarded? Yes; I think they were defied in those cases.
1752. You have no other cases besides those two? Not that I remember; there may have been something very slight that I have spoken to Mrs. Cunynghame about.
1753. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you consider the calling in of Dr. Phillips a serious act of disobedience on the part of the superintendent? Certainly; I am the medical officer-in-charge of the institution, and they look to me in regard to any expense that is incurred in a medical sense, and if Dr. Phillips came in he must be paid.
1754. And under the circumstances was there no necessity at all? There was no necessity at all.
1755. None whatever? No.
1756. Mr. Bourke.] But if he came in to see Carlyon, and at the same time saw another man (McGovern), would there be an extra charge for that? Yes; he would get a guinea for seeing Carlyon and half-a-guinea for seeing the other.
1757. Mr. Ritchie.] Did any of the patients ever pay for extra medical advice? No.
1758. There has been no instance of the kind? No, not in my time.
1759. Mr. Bourke.] A case was reported by Mr. Maxted against Mrs. Cunynghame in reference to a man named Kilmair. The man, I think, is really named Pokorney. His bed was surrounded by a screen. Mr. Maxted says this man was dying for two days, and he charges Mrs. Cunynghame with not knowing anything about it. You visited the patients every day did you not? Yes.
1760. I suppose, in a case like that, you would see a man if he were dying? Yes; in a bad case I always saw the patient.
1761. As you went there every day, do you think such a thing could happen;—that a man could be there in a dying condition for two or three days and you not see him? Not if it was reported to me. In the hospital wards it could not have happened, of course, because I go through the hospitals.
1762. Then you do not think that is possible? I do not think it is possible.
1763. Mr. Crick.] If the man were in that condition, whose duty was it to report it to you? Mrs. Cunynghame is superintendent, but the wardsmen would most likely report it to me, as he went round with me.
1764. In your letter of the 8th of November, 1888, addressed to Mr. Maxted, you say that you had applied to the Colonial Secretary for two wardsmen, who had been appointed, and that "the matron's duties are now consequently those of superintendent alone, no work in the wards being necessary on her part"—no work of superintendence. Therefore was it not clearly the duty of these two paid wardsmen to report the matter to you if this man was in that state? And to Mrs. Cunynghame to, she should have known.
1765. Whose duty was it to report it in the first instance. Was it not the duty of these paid wardsmen? These men would report it to Mrs. Cunynghame and she would report it to you. She should have known of it.
1766. As you went into the ward the wardsmen would say "Dr. this man is in a dying condition"? That would be his duty.

- Mr. W. B. Violette, M.B.
28 Aug., 1869.
1767. It was for that purpose that you applied for the wardsmen? Yes.
1768. Mr. Kidd.] You would notice any one who was very ill in the hospital? Yes.
1769. You go there every day? Yes; and I see every bad case.
1770. No patient who was dying would escape your notice? No.
1771. Mr. Ritchie.] Has there ever been an instance of a man dying under aggravated circumstances of any kind? In consequence of violence towards him.
1772. No, but by neglect or want of proper care? No such a case has ever been brought under my knowledge.
1773. Was it the duty of Mrs. Cunyngame to make herself acquainted with your patients so far as domestic comforts and nursing were concerned? Yes.
1774. She had charge of the two wardsmen who were appointed by the Colonial Secretary? Yes; she superintended. The duty of the superintendent is to supervise all these things.
1775. Mr. Edmunds.] And should her supervision take place every day—should she make an inspection daily? Yes; as I said before, in answer to Mr. Bourke, I think she should go through twice a day, once in the morning and once in the evening.
1776. Mr. Bourke.] You would expect her to ask these wardsmen to draw her attention to anything; if there were sixty patients you would not expect her to go and examine each one? No.
1777. If a wardsmen did not report a bad case to Mrs. Cunyngame that would be his fault? It would be her fault too. But if a man was in this condition you could not go through the ward without noticing it. If you saw the screen round a man's bed you would naturally know there must be something unusual.
1778. Mr. Edmunds.] Do you remember this case at all? I remember a man named Pokorney, but I remember nothing unusual about him.
1779. Do you remember his death? I believe he died, but I could not tell you; I know Pokorney's was a bad case.
1780. Did you make any special note with reference to it? No.
1781. Mr. Crick.] If one of the paid wardsmen knew that Kilmair was in this condition for two or three days and did not tell Mrs. Cunyngame, who would you blame? I should blame the wardsmen in the first instance for not telling Mrs. Cunyngame; but I do not think that would relieve Mrs. Cunyngame, for if she went through the ward and the man was in that condition she must have noticed it.
1782. Supposing the paid wardsmen who was appointed on your application had informed Mrs. Cunyngame that Kilmair was all right;—suppose Mrs. Cunyngame had asked, "How is Kilmair?" and the wardsmen had said, "Getting on very well," or "All right," would you think that any dereliction of duty on the part of Mrs. Cunyngame for not going herself? Certainly. Mrs. Cunyngame could soon tell as an experienced nurse, which she is, that the man was not all right.
1783. Mr. Kidd.] You have stated that it is your duty to go through the hospital wards every day? Yes.
1784. Instead of charging Mrs. Cunyngame with neglect of duty in not discovering that this man was dying, you would charge yourself with neglect of duty? I do not make any charge.
1785. You would admit that it was a dereliction of duty on the part of yourself not to notice that this man was dying? Certainly.
1786. Mr. Ritchie.] Mr. Maxted answered a question put to him in this way: "It turned out that he was dying. He would have died if he had been left another two hours without sustenance." Is it possible for a man in a dying condition to remain in the hospital without sustenance for hours or for a day? A man might remain for hours in a dying condition if I were not sent for. If his case was a very bad one, Mrs. Cunyngame or the wardsmen might send him direct into the hospital. I might be away at the George-street Asylum or somewhere else, and they would send for me. I would go down and see the man and proscribe for him in an urgent case like that, but, until I did, he might remain without sustenance unless they gave him on their own authority some milk, or some stimulant, or something else, as they occasionally do.
1787. It would be the duty of the wardsmen to do that, would it? I do not know. It would be more the duty of the superintendent in a bad case like that, because the superintendent would send him into the hospital.
1788. Is it possible for a man in a dying condition to be allowed to remain in the hospital without sustenance for a number of hours? It would be in the way I have described. If, after I had made my morning visit, a bad case came in, the man might remain without sustenance unless it were given to him by the superintendent.
1789. Mr. Bourke.] But in this case the man was there when you went in the morning and had been there for some time;—could it occur in such a case as that? Not if the man was brought under my notice.
1790. Mr. Kidd.] You yourself do not know of any case in which Mrs. Cunyngame has neglected the patients in the hospital wards? I have had no complaints made to me.
1791. Mr. Bourke.] And the effect of your evidence is that such a thing could not happen with you going there every day as a man dying for two or three days? Not without my knowledge it could not happen.
1792. Mr. Crick.] Do you remember the case of this man Kilmair who died on the 8th October? I do not remember anything particular about the case. I remember there was such a man as Kilmair there.
1793. I think you have already stated in answer to Mr. Edmunds that you remember nothing special occurring in regard to this case? Yes.
1794. Did you as a matter of fact go round every morning with these paid attendants? Every morning.
1795. And you must have seen him every day? I must have seen every case that was in the hospital every day.
1796. And therefore, if this man was in the state described for three days without receiving any attention whatever, it could not have been done without your seeing it? I would have known it.
1797. Mr. Edmunds.] Or without its being a dereliction of duty on your part and on the part of Mrs. Cunyngame? Certainly, I would have been responsible.
1798. Mr. Williamson.] I suppose you could not say whether the medical comforts were administered—that is the duty of the superintendent? It is the duty of the superintendent to distribute the medical comforts.
1799. Mr. Bourke.] I suppose it is really the duty of the wardsmen to administer these comforts;—you say Mrs. Cunyngame superintends? Yes; the wardsmen is the man who actually gives the comfort.

Mr. W. B.
Violette, M.B.,
28 Aug., 1880.

1800. Mr. Williamson.] But it is the duty of the superintendent to see that he does? Yes.
1801. Mr. Bourke.] Supposing there is a case in the hospital to which your attention has to be drawn, who reports it to you? The wardman in the morning. There is a book with a list of patients—those who want to see me, and urgent cases.
1802. And if they left out any cases, that would be their fault? Yes, and it would be my fault too if I went through the ward and did not see a case that was bad.
1803. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect telling Mrs. Cunyngame at any time to remove the cancer ward? Yes, when the cancer ward was above the bath-rooms and lavatories.
1804. On the eastern side of the quadrangle? Yes, the steam from the hot water in the lavatories used to go up into the cancer ward.
1805. Mr. Bourke.] Did you make a report in reference to this? No, there was no report; I spoke to Mrs. Cunyngame.
1806. Mr. Williamson.] In summer time it was intensely hot? Yes.
1807. Mr. Edmunds.] Did you make a recommendation or did you express an opinion? It was an opinion. It would be in conversation with Mrs. Cunyngame; I would recommend her to shift the cancer ward to another place.
1808. Mr. Williamson.] About what time was that? I should think it was about March; it was in the hot weather.
1809. Was the cancer ward removed by Mrs. Cunyngame? I think it was removed subsequently.
1810. Was it removed by Mrs. Cunyngame? My memory will not enable me to say unless I know the dates.
1811. So far as your recollection will serve you? I do not think it was.
1812. Mr. Edmunds.] The recommendation was made in March, 1888? So far as I can remember; it was in the hot weather.
1813. When was the cancer ward actually removed—not during Mrs. Cunyngame's time? Not as far as I can remember; if it was it would be at the termination of Mrs. Cunyngame's time.
1814. Did you afterwards repeat the direction to Mrs. Cunyngame? No, it would only be a recommendation of mine; I could not order the thing.
1815. You made no complaint from March, 1888, until the end of Mrs. Cunyngame's tenure of office? I have made no complaint at all about it.
1816. Mr. Ritchie.] Only you found it expedient owing to the hot vapours that the ward should be shifted? Yes; it was an uncomfortable ward for the men.
1817. Was it only to Mrs. Cunyngame that you suggested the removal of the ward? And to Mr. Rossiter too, I believe.
1818. Mr. Maxted had not then been appointed director? No.
1819. Mr. Bourke.] Mr. Rossiter was then acting director? Yes.
1820. Do you remember going to No. 2 dormitory with Mr. Rossiter and Mrs. Cunyngame with reference to this very matter? Not about the cancer ward in particular; it may have been about hospital matters.
1821. Mr. Williamson.] With reference to the supervision of the hospital, your duty is simply to go round and visit the patients and recommend in the medical register certain treatment? Yes.
1822. Will you show the Committee where your duties terminate? Take this case: Here is a man, John Knowles, in the cancer ward. Well, I saw that man and examined him, and here is an entry of what I prescribed for him, "Anodyne powder of morphia, half a grain at night time." He would be on diet too from my prescription, but that does not occur at this one time. Well, after I have done that my duty ceases, except to check and see that the man gets his medicine and his diet. Of course, if I noticed that his bed was in disorder and neglected, I should speak of it to the superintendent, and if the ward was not clean I should speak of it to the superintendent, and if there was anything defective.
1823. Then it became the duty of the superintendent to see that the medical comforts were distributed and also the diet? Yes. The order from me goes to the superintendent.
1824. After you had gone through the hospital in the morning you could not tell what occurred during the day? No, not unless it was reported to me.
1825. Then as a matter of fact, after you left the whole place was under the supervision of the superintendent? Yes, she was the responsible officer then.
1826. You cannot say whether or not she saw this man Kilnair for two or three days? I could not tell you that.
1827. Mr. Edmunds.] Have you got the entry about Kilnair in the register? Yes, it is dated the 4th October—"Two eggs, milk, beef-tea, wine, 4 oz."
1828. Mr. Williamson.] You changed this prescription on the 6th? Yes, on that date the entry is, "Omit wine; brandy, 4 oz."
1829. Mr. Ritchie.] Can you tell the Committee on what date Kilnair entered the asylum? I could not tell you from memory; you will find it in the register.
1830. Mr. Kidd.] The 4th October was the first date on which you prescribed for him? There is an entry on the 1st October, "Continue medicine."
1831. Mr. Ritchie.] In your report of the 8th November you say, "In several instances a vindictive spirit seems to have prompted her actions"; to what did you refer? To the cases of two men in particular, Nimmo and McCarthy, both of whom had made complaints; one complained about medical comforts not being distributed on a feast day, and the other complained about the medical comforts being sent through a window. After both these men had made their complaints Mrs. Cunyngame, as they said, went up and abused them.
1832. Mr. Bourke.] Did they state this in Mrs. Cunyngame's presence? No, they stated this to me.
1833. Mr. Ritchie.] Can you particularize where her discipline was very arbitrary? I gave one instance about a man who wanted a chair in a hospital ward and Mrs. Cunyngame would not allow him to have it. He applied to me for it, and then afterwards I gave it to him.
1834. Mr. Bourke.] Did he afterwards get that chair? Yes, immediately afterwards.
1835. Mr. Kidd.] That was the statement of the man to you? Yes; he did not get it until I ordered it for him.
1836. But he said he had asked for it, and on his making that report to you you ordered it and it was provided? Yes.

- Mr. W. B. Violetto, M.B. 1837. Of course you do not know but what the man might have been telling you a lie? Only from the fact that he did not get it.
- 28 Aug., 1889. 1838. But as to the truth of his statement you do not know? Mrs. Cunyngame was present when I ordered the chair.
1839. Mr. Edmunds.] Did you speak to Mrs. Cunyngame about his complaint? No; he made the complaint in her presence.
1840. Did she say he was telling an untruth? No; she put the onus on to me to order the chair for him.
1841. Did Mrs. Cunyngame say anything when he said he had made a complaint that he could not get the chair? She said a chair in the ward would take up a lot of room, or something to that effect.
1842. Mr. Bourke.] She put the onus on to you? Yes.
1843. Mr. Williamson.] What was the man's name? Rooney.
1844. One of the men who gave evidence before the Asylums Inquiry Board? I believe he did, but I cannot say.
1845. Mr. Ditchie.] You further say in your report: "Speaking generally, from my own experience, I have found her to be shifty and evasive in her dealings, and untruthful on several occasions; in fact I have no confidence in her whatever";—what do you mean by that? Well, from the statements which she made to Mr. Maxted in reference to Bannan. She made one statement to Mr. Maxted, and she made a different one to me.
1846. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know where the medical comforts are kept? No; I could not tell you. They used to be kept in a store, I believe.
1847. If proper supervision had been exercised over the medical comforts, was there any possibility of thefts taking place? No; there could not be.
1848. Mr. Bourke.] You were on very good terms with Mrs. Cunyngame up to the time of her suspension, were you not? Up to the time when she told me one day that I was no gentleman. I had no ill-feeling towards her; but after that I did not come in her way if I could help it. I always treated Mrs. Cunyngame as a lady.
1849. You had no complaint to make? No.
1850. Mr. Edmunds.] In your evidence on the last day you spoke of avoiding a flood of Billingsgate? Yes.
1851. Did you ever receive a flood of Billingsgate? Not from Mrs. Cunyngame; but a woman in a passion —
1852. Had you, in fact, ever heard Mrs. Cunyngame pour a flood of Billingsgate on any person? I have heard of her abusing people there until they have cried.
1853. Have you heard that yourself? No; I have not seen the occurrence.
1854. How long have you been medical officer? Altogether I have been in charge at Parramatta from April, 1887.
1855. Had you any previous experience of a similar institution? I had charge of Little Bay as medical superintendent.
1856. For how long? I was there for eleven months.
1857. And prior to that? Prior to that I was House Surgeon at the Royal Infirmary, Glasgow, House Physician in the Western, and Physician's Clerk in the London, Hospital.
1858. Is your diploma from London or Glasgow? Glasgow.
1859. M.D.? M.B.
1860. Mr. Bourke.] I think you said you were rather surprised when Mrs. Cunyngame was suspended? I was.
1861. Mr. Edmunds.] You have had very large experience in the superintendence of hospital wards? Yes; I think I have had as much as anyone out here.
1862. Chairman.] In one portion of your report you say:—"In the case of M'Govern she is desperately anxious to get rid of him, in consequence of his having been connected with several others, now dispersed, in making a statement that the medical comforts were stolen and carried out of the hospital by means of a window leading from No. 3 ward to the premises occupied by Mrs. Cunyngame. In my opinion this statement was never disproved";—what made you think she was anxious to get rid of them? Mrs. Cunyngame had spoken to me of this man as insane, and this is the man whom she got Dr. Phillips to see without my sanction or knowledge, and she had also brought him with a batch for transfer to George-street without asking me if she could. He was my patient at the time, and I had the control of where he was to go.
1863. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know whether the object of transferring him to George-street was to make room for any others? No, I make room in the hospital; Mrs. Cunyngame has nothing to do with making room in the hospital.

Sarah Cunyngame called in, sworn, and examined.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngame. 1864. Mr. Bourke.] How long ago were you appointed superintendent of the Parramatta Asylum? Fourteen years last December.
- 28 Aug., 1889. 1865. And before that you had some experience in hospitals? Yes, from the time I was 18 years of age—in the Sydney Hospital.
1866. That was six years? Yes.
1867. When you went to Parramatta, what was the object of sending you to that institution? They were to start an infectious hospital to relieve the City of Sydney of erysipelas cases of which there was then an epidemic.
1868. In what condition did you find that institution? There were no buildings except tumble down old ruins. There was one ward and there were about thirty patients lying on the floor when I went there. They had a bottle of oil and a feather at each of their bedsides. The place was filthy dirty; there was an accumulation of filth for about six weeks previously.
1869. Was anyone attending to the people? There was a married couple whose name I believe was M'Phee, but I am not sure; they were both drunkards.
1870. Then altogether you found the place in a very bad condition? Fearfully so.
1871. And you worked the place up to its present condition? For about four years none but erysipelas cases were received, and other infectious diseases. After the City of Sydney was cleared of the disease

the

the number of cases in the hospital naturally decreased, and then Mr. King started an asylum for old men; but erysipelas cases—male and female—and cancer cases, and all infectious diseases were admitted up to within twelve months ago. It was still an hospital for infectious diseases, but the cases were not so numerous after the Little Bay Hospital was started.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
28 Aug., 1889.

1872. Until Dr. Violette went there, you had no paid assistants? None whatever, only a paid servant for myself.

1873. And how long before you were suspended was it that you got two paid assistants in the hospital? I think, within twelve months.

1874. Then, for thirteen years you managed the place without any paid assistants whatever? Without any assistance whatever, except the help of the inmates.

1875. The first thing that Mr. Maxted complains of is the stoppage of tobacco. You, as superintendent, will be able to tell us whether there was any general order that the hospital patients were to get tobacco? I started the institution on hospital rules, and it was always carried on under those rules, until Mr. Maxted gave the order, and directly he did so, I issued the tobacco.

1876. You issued it to all the hospital patients? To all the hospital inmates.

1877. Until Mr. Maxted came there, there was no such order? No, but tobacco was issued at the doctor's request in particular cases.

1878. There is a case mentioned by Mr. Maxted of a blind man whose tobacco was stopped for a week—do you remember him? His name was Carter; he came from Liverpool.

1879. Why was his tobacco stopped? He was a very obstreperous man; he would not conform to the rules, and would do nothing.

1880. So to punish him you stopped his tobacco for a week? Mainly that; he refused to allow the head wardman, Alfred Hanson, to attend to him in some way, and he was described to me as neglecting to perform his toilet, and I told Hanson that he was to have his tobacco stopped for one month, which was the custom. I might say further that Carter set fire to his bed in No. 5 dormitory the night after the day of my suspension, and there was a great commotion, and I was very anxious to go out and quell the disturbance, but my husband would not allow me to do so.

1881. When Mr. Maxted was appointed he went up to see your institution in the beginning of August? On his first visit he came with Mr. Hugh Taylor.

1882. On what date? The 1st of August.

1883. The very day of his appointment? Yes; we had a conversation generally about the inmates. He did not leave the office except when I accompanied him to the gate when he went away from the institution. I saw him no further that day; but he made an appointment to meet me on the Saturday following at 12 o'clock, which he did.

1884. On the first day, did he go round the institution? Never, nor outside the office until I accompanied him to the gate.

1885. Then on the Saturday? On the Saturday he came out at 12 o'clock, and I accompanied him and showed him every part of the institution, every nook and corner.

1886. And when he went up after that? After his first inspection Mr. Maxted said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, I prefer going alone; it will make no difference to you." I said, "None whatever, I prefer it; but Mr. Maxted let me know if anything unkind should be said or any complaint made;" and he said he would do so.

1887. His remark had reference to proposed future visits? Yes; he said he preferred going alone, and he said he hoped I would not object.

1888. You went round the institution with Mr. Maxted on the occasion of his second visit; did you ever go round with him afterwards? Only one Sunday. On the second Sunday after his appointment I went with Mr. Maxted to the men's sitting-room and the kitchen. This was on Sunday afternoon. I may say that he came several times between the first Sunday when he came and the second Sunday, but I did not go through with him. I never walked a step with him and he never saw me speaking to an individual inmate.

1889. After his visit on Saturday, the 3rd of August, and on the Sunday when you went a short distance over the institution with him, did you ever accompany Mr. Maxted through the institution? Never, after that.

1890. Do you remember this man White speaking to you and you saying, "I do not believe a word you say, White." That is one of the charges which Mr. Maxted makes against you of brutal treatment to these people? If so, it was on the first visit.

1891. About this man White, was he in the habit of complaining? Mr. Maxted always went to him straight whenever he visited.

1892. Before this? Yes. White came from the George-street Asylum, and he said he would not submit to my rules and asked what authority I had for the rules. He said he would do just as they did in George-street, and he would not go by my rules—what authority had I?

1893. Was he frequently in the habit of complaining? Oh, continually, and also a man named Burns.

1894. That is why you passed him by then, without paying much attention to him? If I did so; but I do not remember. I might have done so. I did not attach any importance to it.

1895. Can you explain anything about Hayselder's case? Hayselder came one Friday afternoon, between 3 and 5 o'clock. My little children were at school opposite, and I went to the gate to see if they were coming, and I saw him sitting on the kerbstone in Barrack-lane. I heard no more of the old man. I told him to come back to me at 6 o'clock in the morning.

1896. What was after you had sent him out? Yes. He did come back at 6 o'clock in the morning, and was taken in by the head wardman. About half-past 7 o'clock on Saturday morning—it might have been later—Mr. Maxted came, and he said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, about that man Hayselder; are you sure he was drunk?" and I said, "I am positive." He went away in a great hurry, and came back about 11 o'clock and said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, the police say that man was sober." "He may have been sober," I said, "when he arrived at the lock-up." Mr. Maxted said, "I am in a hurry to catch the train; are you sure he was drunk?" I said, "Positive." With that he ran outside the gate, got into his cab, and I saw nothing more about Hayselder until I saw the report.

1897. When he was first brought there you saw him? I saw him, and I believe I held his arm while the clerk and the head wardman searched his pockets for the order.

1898. You held him on the chair? Yes; I took hold of his arm.

1899. Mr. Crick.] Was he so drunk that he could not sit up? Yes.

1900.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame:
28 Aug., 1889.

1900. Mr. Bourke.] Then it was some hours after he left the institution before he got to the watchhouse? I knew nothing more. It was between 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon when he came to me, and I neither saw nor heard anything more of him until 6 o'clock next morning, when he was brought to the institution and admitted.

1901. When Mr. Maxted was first appointed, and for some time afterwards, was his demeanour to you kindly;—did he seem satisfied? Very satisfied.

1902. Mr. Edmunds.] What time was it when you first saw Haaylder? It was somewhere between 3 and 5 o'clock. I could not positively say, but it must have been about 4 o'clock when I went to the gate and saw him.

1903. Did he tell you he had a certificate from the Health Board? No; he was so tipsy that we had to search for his order. He had no order.

1904. Why did you suppose he had an order? By reason of his coming to the institution.

1905. Did he come alone? Yes; he had never been there before. He did not present an order, and we could not find one about him.

1906. Who searched with you? The head wardsman, Alfred Hanson, and Glencoc, the messenger.

1907. Had the Health Board been mentioned to you as the authority that sent him to your institution? No; the first time I saw that stated was in the printed paper laid before the house. I would not have turned him out had he been sober.

1908. Mr. Bourke.] Even without the order? Without the order.

1909. On what terms were you with Mr. Maxted? We were very friendly up to within a week of my suspension—very friendly indeed.

1910. Did he give you any intimation at all up to that time that he was taking these proceedings? None whatever.

1911. Did Mr. Maxted, on the occasion of different visits, give you a number of verbal directions? His conversation was generally about matters connected with the institution, and I considered he knew very little about the matters he was discussing with me.

1912. Do you remember getting any orders from Mr. Maxted which you did not carry out? No; I never worked harder in my life than I did during those three months. I was working day and night, and I obeyed him in every sense of the word.

1913. Mr. Maxted has stated that immediately after he was appointed he went to your institution, and pointed out to you certain portions of the report of the Asylums Inquiry Board. Do you remember that? He never did; the only conversation I had with Mr. Maxted in reference to this matter was in the railway carriage coming from Parramatta to Sydney, directly after the report was published.

1914. Mr. Ritchie.] That was before Mr. Maxted was appointed director? Yes; about eighteen months before.

1915. Was that conversation in reference to the report? We were talking about the inmates generally, and those who had given evidence, and I did mention about Roy Rooney and Baird, and spoke of the character of these men. This occurred in the railway carriage.

1916. And Mr. Maxted was not then appointed? He was not appointed then, and I had no idea that he would be appointed.

1917. How long was it before his appointment? Directly after the report of the Inquiry Board was printed.

1918. What brought up the conversation? He met me at the Parramatta Railway Station, and he said he was very anxious to see me, and we both got into the same railway carriage, and we discussed this matter until we arrived in Sydney.

1919. Mr. Bourke.] But when Mr. Maxted was appointed did he ever make any reference to the report of the Inquiry Board? Never.

1920. Never showed it to you? No; and he never told me my management was lax. His manner and behaviour were very gentlemanly and proper to me.

1921. And he always appeared satisfied? Always, up to within about a week before I was suspended, and then he did not make any complaints to me.

1922. Mr. Maxted said you objected to carry out some dietary arrangements, and you had some warm words with him about it? Never.

1923. About this dietary—can you tell us how the thing first cropped up and what was done in the matter? When Mr. Maxted first came he would generally come into the office, and on three or four occasions I had long conversations with him about alterations that were to take place in the diet and anything else.

1924. But especially in reference to the diet? Well, he sat down and took two pieces of paper, and he made a rough copy of what I dictated to him—that is, the quantities and the pudding.

1925. Did he ask you to suggest a diet? No; I offered to do so.

1926. To suggest what you thought would be a suitable diet? Yes; and I said I thought the fifth of an ounce of tea was not sufficient.

1927. Then, at your dictation or your suggestion, he wrote down a rough draft of the dietary? Yes, and I have that rough draft.

1928. And after that did he accept the dietary that he wrote down? He made an addition about treacle and honey; I only suggested butter.

1929. He made some slight modifications? Yes.

1930. He approved of the dietary that you suggested, slightly modified? Yes. Then he sent it on to me with that letter of the 4th September, just as I had dictated it to him.

1931. After Mr. Maxted had approved of the dietary scale, did you carry it out according to instructions? I set it in motion directly I saw the contractors. I arranged with the baker, and I came into Sydney Hospital about the bread, and I went to a lot of trouble.

1932. Before you gave Mr. Maxted that rough dietary scale did you inquire into the matter of dietary at any other institution? Mr. King and I had discussed it repeatedly, and I had also done so with Mr. Rossiter, wishing to bring about this reform in the dietary.

1933. But you made some inquiry into the dietary of other institutions? No, I know it off by heart on account of being in the hospital. We give them No. 1, which is called full diet. The hospital is full diet.

1934. Then this dietary scale was actually your own suggestion? Yes, and had been years ago; Mr. King and I discussed the matter.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
28 Aug., 1889.

1935. And you always did your best to carry it into effect? Always, but of course I could not do so until I had authority. Moreover, Mr. Maxted said at the time that he wished to have a book, and he took a journal that Mr. Cunynghame had; it is like a daily almanac. I used this book, and it was to be used also for other asylums. There is in it a daily record of the diets.
1936. That you had prepared? Yes, my clerk prepared it for me daily.
1937. And this was to be used in other institutions afterwards? Yes, after it was successfully carried out in Macquarie-street.
1938. Then you had no disputes about this dietary scale? No, I never had an angry word with Mr. Maxted on the subject.
1939. Do you remember an occasion when Mr. Maxted called you in, and pointed out to you that the men had been served their pudding, vegetables, and meat all on one dish? I do not remember anything about it.
1940. Not on any feast day? Yes; on the 20th October Mr. Maxted came up to me when I was engaged with Archdeacon Gunther, and touched me on the arm and said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, I wish you would go in and tell those men that they are serving the pudding and all the other eatables on the plates at the same time."
1941. Did this occur on a feast day? Yes. The potatoes were peeled and baked and the dinners were served up properly; but the old men had had a glass of beer. The attendants and the dormitory ward-men had charge of each table, all intelligent men, and I went into them quietly and I said, "Mr. Maxted wishes you to serve the pudding later on," and one man named Shaddock said "Well, Mrs. Cunynghame, the men have no patience; they will not give me time; they are asking for pudding," so I went outside. I did not see Mr. Maxted, but he came out again to me and he said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, I wish you would go into those old men, they are eating with their fingers, and I do not like to see it."
1942. That was on the feast day? Yes. And then I said to Mr. Maxted, "I could not go in again, the old men would not know what to make of it."
1943. Then was it in consequence of their having had some beer that they wanted their pudding with their other food? Yes, I think so.
1944. Did you attribute it to that? I did.
1945. They were rather greedy to get their pudding? Yes, for fear they would not be well served.
1946. They were afraid they would lose their pudding? Yes; their pudding was no better than that usually served.
1947. Mr. Hawthorne.] How often did they get pudding? Three times a week under the new dietary.
1948. Mr. Bourke.] Have you ever had any quarrel with the police? No, I cannot say that I have had a quarrel exactly, but I thought they ought to give me a certain amount of help, which they did not seem inclined to give. I could not say there was a quarrel. There was a man named Petterson with whom I had a lot of trouble. He was a lunatic, and absconded, and would not remain in the institution. It was brought before the public.
1949. And what did the police do in that case? The man absconded, and I gave notice to the police that Petterson had got out, and that they had better look after him. They did not do so, but on a Saturday morning—that would be three days after—he was taken before the bench of magistrates in a very exhausted condition, and a constable came up to me to ask if I would take Petterson back, and I said "No, certainly not," that he was in good hands when he was in the custody of the police, and that they could get him into a lunatic asylum much easier than I could.
1950. That was one cause of your complaint against the police and theirs against you? Yes, I think that was about the only one. There were a few little arguments occasionally—if the police for instance brought a drunken man, and I thought they ought to take charge of him—but there was no quarrel, that I can think of.
1951. In Hayselder's case did the police make any complaint to you? No; not at all.
1952. Do you remember the man Bannan that we have heard so much about? Yes.
1953. When did he arrive at the institution? He arrived between 12 and 2 o'clock on Saturday night. The clerk came to my door and knocked. I did not know the man, I did not know who it was, and I simply said to Abbott—the man was brought by the police—I said "Tell Edgar to admit him, and put him in No. 3 ward, the corner bed vacated by Ehnua."
1954. Was No. 3 ward a refractory ward? No, it was No. 3 hospital ward.
1955. Who is Edgar? The paid attendant.
1956. Is he a reliable man? Yes, I found him quite so.
1957. You gave Edgar instructions that the man was to be put into No. 3 hospital ward? Yes; and I named the bed.
1958. Did you see the man on the next day—Sunday? Not until after the doctor had visited. I do not generally go on Sunday morning unless there is anything particular; and after the doctor had gone I went into No. 3 ward to see who this man was. I did not know it was Bannan, although he is well-known to me—he has been in and out for years—and I was pushing the door of the ward open to go in and see who the man was, and Edgar just pushed the door open a little and said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, you cannot come in; the man is all disarranged and he is filthy dirty, and the doctor has ordered him to the isolation ward."
1959. Then you did not see him? No.
1960. After the doctor went away did you see an entry in the medical register against Bannan's name? Yes.
1961. What was that entry? "Refractory ward, alcoholism."
1962. You remember that? Yes.
1963. After he had been put into the isolation ward did Mr. Maxted see him some time afterwards? I would not know because I never visited with Mr. Maxted.
1964. But you got a telegram on the 10th October from Mr. Maxted concerning this man Bannan? Yes; I think that was in consequence of some conversation Mr. Maxted and I had about this man Bannan.
1965. He gave you some verbal instructions? No, no instructions; it was simply about the state of Bannan and what he should say. I do not remember exactly what Mr. Maxted did say about Bannan.
1966. But you got a telegram on the 10th October authorizing you? Mr. Maxted seemed very much put about. First he came to me then he went to Dr. Violette.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
28 Aug., 1889.

1967. About this man Bannan? Yes. He came back to Macquarie-street and said something, to which I did not attach any importance, and he took a piece of paper and made a certain entry in this book; and I said, "Mr. Maxted you seem quite concerned about Bannan;" and he asked me for the medical journal, and I handed it to him. He saw I was a little hurt at what he was putting in the book about Dr. Violette being sent for alone to see patients, and I said that I always had sent for Dr. Phillips at Dr. Violette's suggestion. He saw I was a little hurt, and he said, "Oh, Mrs. Cunynghame, I am putting the very same entry in Mrs. Dennis' book," and then I did not say anything, I thought, well it seemed very funny.

1968. Did Mr. Maxted approve or not of your having this man in the isolation ward? I had nothing to do with it, because it was the doctor who made the order.

1969. You received a telegram on the 10th October about Bannan? Yes.

1970. That telegram has been put in, and the substance of it is that you were to isolate the man and watch him? That must have been on the second occasion.

1971. Do you remember the case spoken of here of the man who was said to have been refused a pair of slippers—he had bad feet? Yes, I remember Studdart very well. Studdart was a man who was very troublesome—he was just after the style of Carter—one of these insubordinate men. The boots were always kept in the head wardman's room. When he wanted fifty or twenty pairs of boots or slippers he came to me and I issued stores out every Monday morning. I devoted all Monday morning to that work. I issued whatever was wanted out of my store-room into the yard store-room, so that if twenty pairs of boots were required during the week the head wardman could supply them. A man had no need to come to me to ask for slippers or boots; he could have gone to the head wardman and got either slippers or boots.

1972. Did this man ask you for slippers? I offered them to Studdart at Mr. Maxted's suggestion, and he refused to take them.

1973. When was that? After Mr. Maxted spoke to me about Studdart.

1974. But before Mr. Maxted came there at all did this man ask you for slippers? Yes; he was repeatedly asking me for them.

1975. Did you ever give him slippers? Always. Of course he did not have to ask me; he asked the head wardman. But this time, at Mr. Maxted's request, I sent for Studdart, and I gave him the slippers myself; and he said he would throw them at me; that they were not the slippers Mr. Maxted had promised him. So I quietly took them away, and said, "If these will not suit you, I can do no more for you." The old man went away, and was very abusive, and told me he would go to Members of Parliament. I enclosed his £2 to Mr. Maxted, with a memorandum asking Mr. Maxted to take some steps to punish these men who were insubordinate, and who set my authority at defiance.

1976. Do you mean that you wanted Mr. Maxted to deduct something from his £2? Yes; as a sort of punishment.

1977. Mr. Williamson.] You sent a memorandum? I did, to Mr. Maxted, with his £2.

1978. Mr. Crick.] Did you in this memorandum say anything about the insubordination of this man? Yes, I must have done so.

1979. Mr. Williamson.] And to punish him? I might have said punish him.

1980. Mr. Bourke.] You thought that as the man was impudent and insubordinate, something ought to be deducted from his £2 towards paying for his maintenance? Yes; as was always the custom under Mr. King, if these men did not behave themselves. After Mr. Maxted was appointed of course I did not know then the spirit in which Mr. Maxted was working against me, and also against Dr. Violette. Dr. Violette speaks about these being trivial matters, they were not trivial matters. Mr. Maxted went among these inmates, and I know for a positive fact and can bring evidence that he tried to disorganize my institution.

1981. Did Mr. Maxted ever investigate reports that were made to him by the inmates in your presence? Never in my presence.

1982. Do you remember the case of Chevalier? Chevalier he brought from Sydney, and I spent a half-day with him.

1983. Is that the only case? That is the only case he ever investigated in my presence, and even then I thought Mr. Maxted was friendly towards me and considered him so.

1984. Reference has been made to a man named Hall. Mr. Maxted said he took Hall up once to make an investigation? Never.

1985. What was the name of the person he took up? Chevalier, he used to be a bath man. Chevalier on the 20th October, got drunk, and I remonstrated with him and refused to give him what money was coming to him, and I know nothing further about the man.

1986. He left the institution? Yes, he left at his own request.

1987. And some time after leaving he came back with Mr. Maxted and preferred some complaint? It was only four days after; I think it was the Tuesday or Wednesday following the feast day.

1988. And he made certain complaints in your presence? No; he made certain complaints in Sydney.

1989. But did not Mr. Maxted come to your place to investigate those complaints, and what was the result? He made certain statements in Sydney, and when Mr. Maxted brought him up to me, Chevalier stayed outside. Mr. Maxted came in and told me to close the door that he had certain things to say to me, and I did so. I then explained everything, and Chevalier was ushered into the office to say these things which he had said to Mr. Maxted, and he could not say them. He would not repeat them, and Mr. Maxted got angry with him and told the man to clear out, that he had a good mind to kick him, and his attitude was quite a kicking attitude. This was because Chevalier would not say in my presence what he had said in town.

1990. Mr. Ritchie.] Was anyone present besides Mr. Maxted, yourself, and the man? No.

1991. Mr. Bourke.] Mr. Maxted in his evidence said the name of this man was Hall; you say it was Chevalier? I am positive it was Chevalier.

1992. Did you read that letter marked Exhibit N.? Yes, it is dated, 6th August, 1888.

1993. There are two minutes on the paper; did you see either of those before? No; I considered that the matter was satisfactorily settled.

1994. Mr. Edmunds.] Was that in reply to some communication from you? No; that is my usual course if anything happens in my office; I send to the Sydney office direct.

Mrs. E.
Cunynghame.
28 Aug., 1880.

1995. Mr. Kidd.] This old man left the institution voluntarily? Yes, in a very impudent manner.
1996. You did not want him to go? No; I tried to persuade him to remain.
1997. You had some inmates of the institution working in your private quarters? Yes.
1998. How many? It all depended on how many I required—usually three.
1999. A complaint has been made as to the way these people rationed themselves;—they got their rations from the asylum stores? Yes.
2000. Mr. Maxted complains that they took too much meat and tea, and so on;—can you tell us anything about that? I did not go round after them to see how much they did take. I trusted to the cook in the lower kitchen, and if he ever complained that they took too much I spoke to them about it.
2001. But did the people complain about them? No; I don't remember any outside complaint.
2002. Did anyone else in the asylum complain that on account of these people taking too much the inmates were going short? No; I do not remember any complaints at all, unless a man was leaving angrily on account of his pay being stopped, or anything of that sort.
2003. But I mean about this particular matter? No. Of course there was abundance for everybody, both under the old and the new arrangement.
2004. Mr. Hawthorne.] Had you not a storekeeper there? There were no stores; everything was ordered by daily requisition.
2005. The stores came in every day? Yes. The allowance of tea for each inmate was the fifth of an ounce, and I am at a loss to know how the tea could accumulate for me to take a certain number of pounds.
2006. Mr. Bourke.] About using the labour of these inmates, do you know whether it is a general thing in Government asylums? I always believed so. I never visited at the other asylums, so I really do not know what was customary with them.
2007. You always believed that the superintendent of an asylum was allowed to use the labour of the inmates in her private quarters? Certainly; and when I first went Mr. King distinctly told me that whatever help I required I could have.
2008. Then you had Mr. King's authority for using this labour? Yes, for whatever help I required.
2009. Mr. Owick.] All the work these people did, whether they were paid by the Government or not, was in the interest of the institution, I suppose? Whatever I required from them.
2010. Only it was for the institution? Yes, it was all one. My quarters joined the hospital, and the beef tea and the rice and milk, and whatever extras I required were prepared in the kitchen of late years.
2011. Mr. Bourke.] The extra things you required for the hospital were cooked in your own kitchen by these inmates? Yes; especially since Mr. Maxted came.
2012. Mr. Ritchie.] Did they have much to do? It all depended on what was ordered. Some five or seven years ago I started a hospital kitchen. It is a small room in the west wing. There was a colonial oven fitted in it, and a cement and brick sink was built, and I had a table and cooking utensils, and this was supposed to be the hospital kitchen. But I only had pauper help, and I found it was too much for me to supervise, and the two cooks used to disagree very much—they both wanted to boss, and therefore I found it very difficult. When I wanted a certain thing done in the hospital kitchen, the cook used to make an excuse, and say that the other cook had the saucepans he required. So I removed the utensils to the upper kitchen, and I removed the hospital cook to my own quarters, and he was never removed from the pay-sheet, and it went on from then till now.
2013. Mr. Ritchie.] He also did the cooking for your private family? Yes, with whatever help I gave him. I always kept a woman servant until a month or two before I was suspended.
2014. While he was doing your cooking he was entered on the pay-sheet as cook for the hospital? For doing anything I required, not only my own cooking, but whatever I required him to do.
2015. But was he not entered on the pay-sheet as a wardman? As anything at all—wherever there was a vacancy; outside situations I put anybody in.
2016. Mr. Bourke.] Will you kindly explain the system you had of putting men on the pay-sheet? Permanent situations went first—that is, so many dormitory wardmen, and so many hospital wardmen; then came all the minor cases, such as cooks, soil-heap men—there was not a soil-heap for years—gate-keeper—the gate-keeper never got paid; I put anybody I liked in as gate-keeper. If a man did any work at all, and I considered that he had earned money, and was a worthy man, I put him down in one of these occupations.
2017. Explain how it is that men's names were on the pay-sheet in capacities they were not filling? Because the salary abstract contained certain headings or situations which were never to be altered unless I got a written memorandum, or applied for leave to alter them. They went on for years and I was never allowed to alter a situation for anybody.
2018. Mr. Ritchie.] Who determined these situations? Mr. King.
2019. And the names? Oh no, I was always changing the names; I could change the names as often as I required. But the situations were not altered for years.
2020. Mr. Bourke.] Is this the position of affairs: suppose you had a man to whom you wanted to give say 8d. per day, and he was an hospital wardman actually, there being no vacancy on the pay-sheet except that of soil-heap man, you would put him down as soil-heap man? Certainly; I should call that an outside situation, such as white-washer. For several months there was a blank under the heading of white-washer, because if I wanted any white-washing done I did not consider that the men deserved paying for it.
2021. Then you put him down as anything at all? It did not matter what it was—outside situations I called them. The clerk always left these vacancies for me to fill in, because I knew the men. If a man was hard-working and well behaved, and wanted work, I would perhaps say to him: "I will let you go on working, and the first vacancy that occurs I will put your name in." It did not matter what he had been doing. The only thing is that Mr. Cunynghame would not allow me to put down his man who used to attend to his buggy and horse, and clean the stables and look after the mortuary. Mr. Cunynghame would not allow me to put that man in, although I think I would have been justified in doing so.
2022. Although these people who were working in your kitchen received 2d., 3d., and 4d. a day, did you feel justified in using their labour? I did. For instance, there was one man spoken of—Thomas Ghost. That man, although he was down on the pay-sheet for several months, in addition to what he did for me in my kitchen, he had to attend to the attendants' tables in the lower kitchen, lay their table and wash up for them, and when he was done I expected him to come up and attend to whatever I required.
2023. Then these men who worked in your kitchen did anything you required in the institution as well? Yes.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
28 Aug., 1880.

2024. Something has been said about a farm belonging to you, and some of the men working out there; this occurred before Mr. Maxted's appointment as Director? Yes.
2025. Will you tell us what they were doing? They were cleaning up and minding the place until it was let. That is the place we are living in at present. It is not a farm; there was nothing on it but a few orange trees, which we have had removed. It is a weatherboard cottage with stable and necessary out-houses, and there are about 7 acres of land.
2026. Reference was made to some men who were sent out there some time ago; was it not used for some Asylum purpose? In connection with the night-soil; but that is some time ago. The men were put on the pay-sheet for that also. If inmates received pay, I require the names, amounts, and when received.
2027. What were they doing then? The night-soil was removed by the Council from the George-street asylum and the Macquarie-street Asylum. The Council undertook to remove it if Mr. Cunynghame would allow these inmates to dig the holes and bury the soil, so that it would not become a nuisance. Two men were told off to dig these holes and cover the night-soil, and I believe I put them down in one of these outside situations, and felt I was justified in doing so.
2028. Whatever was vacant on the pay-sheet you would put them down as? Yes, but they varied every month.
2029. Mr. Crick.] That was the only work they did then? If I wanted them to dig a bit of ground they would do it.
2030. Mr. Williamson.] And stump or clear? There was no stumping required.
2031. Mr. Bourke.] All these men received pay at any rate and signed for it, and the pay-sheets have been put in? Yes.
2032. Mr. Edmunds.] Where is the land situated—how far from the asylum? About a mile.
2033. Mr. Hawthorne.] How many men were kept engaged there—two? Generally more if I required it; it all depended on the sort of men they were.
2034. So that these men were really doing the work of the Municipal Council of Parramatta? They considered it a favour to be allowed to put night-soil there, because there was no place to bury it. This arrangement was made by Mr. Garrick, employed by the Council.
2035. Did they not offer to send men to dig these holes and make the excavations in which to deposit the night-soil? No; we did not attach any importance to it.
2036. Mr. Ritchie.] Who removed the night-soil? The Council.
2037. And your men dug the holes out at the farm? Yes, and covered them over.
2038. Did they fill the cart? No, they had nothing to do with that. They lived in a little hut on the farm, and they used to come and get their rations.
2039. Chairman.] The Municipal Council simply used your land as the depot? That was all. It was an arrangement between ourselves, they did not demand it.
2040. Mr. Ritchie.] When did you make this arrangement about the men being on the farm, and with whom? After we bought the place. It rather hurried our purchase of the place; of course we had a little money to invest.
2041. Was it in Mr. King's time? Yes, about four years ago.
2042. Did you carry on this system of keeping men on your land up to the time of your removal? No.
2043. It was discontinued before Mr. Maxted came then? Yes, something else came in vogue; they had a cesspit built in the ground in Macquarie-street, and then all this fell through.
2044. And the night-soil was then emptied into these pits in the town? Yes, in Macquarie-street, until the new arrangement with the Council was made.
2045. Mr. Bourke.] This discontinued a considerable time before Mr. Maxted was appointed Director? Yes; it must have been about eighteen months or more than that before, because the place was let.
2046. It has been said that you never went through the hospital wards at night, is that true? I was there continually. Whenever I was required I was there, and I was present at any minute.
2047. And were you in the habit of going through the hospital wards at night after they were closed? No; it was not a rule or habit of mine unless anything urgent happened.
2048. If anything happened you went through? I was there directly. If I heard any argument or any dispute going on I would walk leisurely down and ascertain what it was all about.
2049. There were two paid wardsmen there? That is only recently.
2050. Mr. Ritchie.] At what hours did you go through during the day, had you any stated hours? Yes. I went into the office at 9 o'clock punctually, and I waited there to see what men were going out on leave, or leaving the institution. The doctor visited; and directly he left, the first thing I did was to go into the surgery and look at his book, and then I walked through the hospital wards, every ward in the institution.
2051. At what time in the morning did the doctor leave? He generally left about half-past 10 or between 10 and half-past.
2052. Was it immediately after he left that you went through the wards? That was the first thing I did.
2053. You did not go through the wards with the doctor? No, unless he expressed a wish on any occasion. I asked him if he wished me to go, and he said he did not see there was any necessity, even before the paid wardsmen came. When Dr. Violette was first appointed, I said, "If it is your wish that I should accompany you through the hospital wards I shall be happy to do so," and he said, "Oh no, Mrs. Cunynghame, I do not think there is any necessity for it."
2054. You used to visit the wards immediately after 10 o'clock? Yes.
2055. Did you visit them at any other time during the day? It all depended. If any visitors came, or if anything required my presence there I did.
2056. But in your regular routine, did you make a habit of visiting the wards a second time every day? No.
2057. You only visited them once? Yes, unless there was anything required.
2058. Mr. Bourke.] That was your regular round of inspection? Yes. But if I were engaged—I am not speaking of Mr. Maxted's time—say Mr. Rossiter or Mr. King came in the 10 o'clock train, I would wait and go through with them; so that it might be half an hour later or half an hour earlier. They usually came by a certain train.
2059. After your regular round in the morning, you would be sometimes called in to the hospital by the wardsmen? Oh yes, repeatedly, sometimes I have been in the hospital three and four times a day.
2060. Mr. Ritchie.] Were you in the habit of going round the institution with Mr. Maxted? No, I only did so on one occasion.
- 2061.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame,
28 Aug., 1889.

2061. You never went with him except once? I never attempted.
2062. What was your reason? He asked me not to do so; he did not wish me to.
2063. Did he give you any reason? No; he merely said he thought it would be much better. To which I agreed, if he would let me know if there were any complaints.
2064. Were you in the habit of going round with Mr. King? Always.
2065. Did you volunteer your services to Mr. Maxted to go through the asylum with him? No; I considered that I was asked politely not to do so.
2066. He distinctly asked you not to go? He distinctly told me he had certain reasons for doing so.
2067. Mr. Edmunds.] It was your invariable practice to go through the wards every morning? Yes.
2068. Would you observe the inmates individually? Yes; they would all look for my coming, and seem very pleased. I used to have little discussions with them. For instance, that man spoken of in the cancer ward, Peters—a man for whom I had a great respect—he was an educated man—Peters and I used to have great discussions. He told me he was going to live for a hundred years. He asked me for glasses, and I said, "Well, Peters, I have plenty of glasses in stock, but I do not think I have the age for you, but I will fetch over half a dozen pairs, and you can pick them out." I went over and told the deputy-warden to come with me to my office, and I took over six or eight pairs of spectacles, and when I got there Peters said, "No, there is not one of the age for me, Mrs. Cunynghame; I have always been wearing pebbles"; and I went and found a pair of spectacles with one glass out and one pebble in, and next morning I took them to Peters and told him if he could make any use of them he was welcome to them.
2069. Mr. Bourke.] Mr. Maxted has stated that there was a man named Kilmair dying in one of the wards for two days, and that you knew nothing about it; he describes the position of the man as being surrounded by a screen;—do you remember any such man? I remember the man distinctly; he was a man named Pokorney, who refused to take his food.
2070. Which was the man surrounded by the screen? Pokorney.
2071. It was not Kilmair? One lay next to the other; I would not be positive as to which bed the screen was round. One man died on the 8th, and the other on the 10th. But I am speaking of Pokorney, and I remember the old man dying from the decay of nature, but I really cannot remember whether his name was Kilmair or not.
2072. Pokorney and Kilmair were next to each other? Yes.
2073. What do you remember about Pokorney? Pokorney refused to take his food, and Edgar or Warner, and sometimes both of them, would sometimes come and converse with me at the side of this man. I went over to him and said, "Pokorney, how is it that you refuse to take your food; if you do not, you know the doctor will use the stomach-pump, and it will be very painful."
2074. Did you see him very frequently? Daily; and I told the attendants to be most particular, and to draw the doctor's attention to him. If it was Kilmair, I don't remember his name. Perhaps I called him "Dad." But an old man was lying next to him, and dying from the general decay of nature. The man of whom I am speaking was about 80 years of age.
2075. At any rate, you went and saw Pokorney every day? Every day.
2076. And if Kilmair were in the bed next to Pokorney, and he was dying, that would not escape your attention? No; but perhaps I would not pay so very much attention to him, knowing that he was dying from the decay of nature. I used to call him "Dad." I could not say whether his name was Kilmair or not.
2077. Mr. Ritchie.] Did Mr. Maxted question you at all about this man? Never.
2078. Did he never question you about anyone in a dying condition? No.
2079. Did he ever accuse you of deceiving him in any particular? I will tell you what occurred exactly.
2080. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember Mr. Maxted speaking to you about Kilmair? No, not about Kilmair.
2081. Well, about any man? No, not in reference to any man.
2082. What did he say to you on this occasion? Mr. Maxted came down-stairs and I was in the office, and I thought he looked a little put out—very red looking—and he said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, did you stop the tobacco in the hospital ward?" and I said, "No, Mr. Maxted"; and he said, "Are you sure?" and I said, "I am positive." There was no tobacco issued to the hospital wards, so I could not stop it. I said, "If you say the men are to have tobacco I most certainly will give it to them." He went up-stairs and came down again, and seemed very angry, but I was not a bit put out, and he said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, you are untruthful"; and I said, "Name an occasion when I have been untruthful to you"; and he said, "About the paragraph to the Herald, and about this stopping of the tobacco, and about Felix Cummings." This all happened a few days before I was suspended.
2083. Have you seen Mr. Maxted's evidence about the man Kilmair? Yes, and he never spoke to me about the man. The only time he ever accused me of telling falsehoods was on this occasion.
2084. He never spoke to you about Kilmair? Never.
2085. Mr. Ritchie.] Did he never say to you that he had been informed that you had not seen Kilmair for two days? No, nor anything of the kind.
2086. Mr. Edmunds.] Did he say, "How is Kilmair to-day"? No, nothing about Kilmair.
2087. You used to look through the medical register every day? Yes.
2088. Do you remember Kilmair's name being on the book? Not unless anything special was ordered for him.
2089. Mr. Hawthorne.] You do not remember any man named Kilmair dying—I suppose he did die? He died on the 8th.
2090. Mr. Bourke.] Mr. Maxted said he was in No. 3 bed, in the up-stair ward? Mr. Maxted has said the man was dying near my quarters for two days and I know nothing about it; he then said that he had made a mistake, and that the man was dying in No. 3 hospital ward, the third bed from the door. How could I possibly make my answer in a straightforward way, if Mr. Maxted in his first charge made a statement that the man was dying in the hospital ward adjoining my quarters for two days, and I knew nothing about it?
2091. Do you remember the man Kilmair? Not by the name of Kilmair; I only know a man who lay next to Pokorney. If he was about 80 years of age, I know him well. Mr. Maxted does not give the age of the man, he does not give his name, nor does he give the date of his death. I have no idea if the man died after Mr. Maxted was appointed, or if he died three years previously.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngame. 2092. Mr. Ritchie.] Have you any remembrance of Mr. Maxted asking you "How is Kilmair to-day?" I have not.
2093. According to Mr. Maxted's evidence your reply was "Oh, getting on first rate"; and then he said, "Has he taken his food to-day," and you replied "Yes." Do you remember that conversation? No, and if Mrs. Maxted had asked me such a question I should most certainly have had to refer to the paid attendants.
2094. You do not remember any conversation at all about any particular sick man? None whatever.
2095. There were generally about 60 people in the hospital? Yes.
2096. If you were asked to remember one you would not be able to answer unless there was something peculiar in the case? No.
2097. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect the wardman named Drew going down to one of the attendants, and the communication coming to you that Mr. Maxted was kicking up a row about want of attention to the hospital patients;—do you recollect that? No; but I will tell you what I do recollect: I recollect one wardman, a tall man, Birchfield, coming down to me one day after Mr. Maxted had left, and saying, "Mrs. Cunyngame, I think I ought to tell you, Mr. Maxted was up yesterday afternoon and spoke to the people, and asked if you visited the wards after dark," and I said, "I wonder what his object was for doing that?" and Birchfield said, "Well, I think I ought to tell you." The next day, when Dr. Violette came, Mr. Ireland was in the office, and I said to Mr. Ireland, "Don't you leave, but wait here, I am going to ask Dr. Violette a question." Dr. Violette was coming round to me, and I said, "Dr. Violette is it your wish that I should visit the hospital wards after dark; it appears that Mr. Maxted has been asking the patients if I am in the habit of doing so?" Dr. Violette said, "No, Mrs. Cunyngame, there is no need; I suppose you visit during the day?" and I said, "I am in and out all day long." Mr. Ireland will come forward and corroborate this evidence.
2098. Mr. Ritchie.] Did Mr. Maxted ever accuse you of lying to him? Only on that occasion when he spoke about the tobacco.
2099. Mr. Bourke.] When was that? It was a few days after the paragraph appeared in the newspaper, and that was 10th October, 1888. He charged me then about the paragraph in the newspaper and about Felix Cummings, and when I went to the surgery and told him that the doctor had put it in his own handwriting about Felix Cummings, he turned on his heel, and said, "Mrs. Cunyngame, you say one thing and Dr. Violette says another, and between the two I can make nothing out of it."
2100. Then the only time when he spoke to you about untruthfulness was a few days after the 10th October? That was the only time that he ever appeared to be displeased with me or gave me any cause to be annoyed.
2101. There is another man, named Elmas, do you remember him? Perfectly well.
2102. Mr. Maxted has reported that this man had no medical comforts for three days, and that he was very bad? When Elmas was admitted he was certainly seen by the doctor, and therefore it was for Dr. Violette to say if medical comforts were necessary, although when Mr. Maxted called me in to see the man he was in a very bad state.
2103. What was he suffering from? Phthisis.
2104. And I suppose the condition of the man would vary very much during the day? Yes. It was in the evening when Mr. Maxted called me in to see him, and I had seen him repeatedly during the day. On one occasion he had a large basin and was struggling to drink some soup, and I took it up and I went to the crockery cupboard and took a small medicine phial out, and I said to him, "Give me the saucer, and take a little drop at a time, and it will be easy for you," and the man took his soup.
2105. Did Mr. Maxted speak to you about that? Only in a general way. He called me in to see him, and said he was very bad, and I said he was bad, and I went directly to get him some wine. He had been seen by the doctor.
2106. Would his condition vary very much during the day? No; he was very ill, poor fellow.
2107. And then he left for Liverpool two or three days afterwards? I just had time to get his admission order for Liverpool.
2108. Do you know, as a matter of fact, whether he had any medical comforts during those few days besides the soup of which you spoke? There had been none ordered by the doctor.
2109. Did the wardman draw your attention to this man's condition? No, I saw him myself.
2110. It did not occur to you to give him anything until Mr. Maxted drew your attention to him? No; he was sitting then on the bed coughing very much, and he seemed very much distressed. He was a dark man.
2111. As the doctor had not ordered him medical comforts you did not give him any? No; had I seen the man in such a state I certainly would have given him anything at all.
2112. A man suffering, as you describe this man, from such a disease;—would his condition vary during the day; would he be worse at one time than at another? Yes, he had spasms of coughing.
2113. Then it was during a spasm of coughing that Mr. Maxted called you in? Yes, he called my attention to him.
2114. When Mr. Maxted called you in the man was suffering from a spasm of coughing? He had a very severe attack of coughing. He left for Liverpool a few days afterwards.
2115. And the doctor had seen him every day during those three days—the doctor had been there every day? He had been there, and I know he saw the man on the day of his admission, because had Elmas come in after the doctor's visit I would have sent for Dr. Violette to see him.
2116. Did you make it your business to look after these two wardmen who were in the hospital to see that they gave the men what was ordered for them as a general thing? I never had any faults,—there was not one complaint that the men did not get their comforts.
2117. Did you ever go into the cancer ward or the other ward to see how the patients were getting on? When the alteration in the dietary took place, there was not a morning that I did not go into each of the hospital wards to superintend the new dietary arrangements.
2118. And while you were there, did any of the patients make any complaints to you about not getting what was ordered for them? None whatever. I also assisted to feed the helpless myself.
2119. Did the inmate wardmen at any time ever refuse to feed the sick, saying that it was not their work? They complained about Edgar and Warner not giving them proper assistance, and when I spoke to Warner, he said he understood he was there to superintend the inmate wardmen, and I remonstrated with with him, and told him I expected him to do what I had been doing—that was to help the helpless, and to feed them.

2120. Did you on any occasion help to feed the sick yourself? Repeatedly. There was an old man named O'Neill who always looked for me. When the alterations took place, while Warner would be feeding one man I would be feeding another, and so I would go about from one hospital ward to another.

2121. That was actually in Mr. Maxted's time? Yes. And there was a man named Allen whom I dismissed from the cancer ward on account of his allowing the gruel to remain in the bucket and not asking the inmates if they required any more. He said it was Edgar's fault, and Edgar said it was his fault, so I put him into the yard. I did not dismiss him altogether; I put him into the yard, and he had to forfeit his pay.

2122. Did you ever ask Mr. Maxted to allow you to have an able-bodied inmate? I asked Mr. Maxted to allow me a woman servant. If I wanted inmates I could have had twenty.

2123. What did he say? He said, "Hold it over for a little while, Mrs. Cunyngame." Whenever I made a suggestion to Mr. Maxted in reference to any assistance I required, or any particular thing to which I thought I was entitled, the reply I always got was, "Oh, hold it over for a little while, Mrs. Cunyngame."

2124. On the 24th October Mr. Maxted gave you some instructions to the effect that you were not to use the labour of the inmates any more for your own private kitchen. Will you explain why it was that you did not immediately carry that out? I felt unable. I was paying so much attention to the institution that I was not able to go and look after a suitable person. The woman I had had for fifteen or eighteen months had left me a fortnight or three weeks before, and she was married, and therefore I was left without a good woman—it would not do for me to have anybody; and a friend of mine had said that her servant, who was a very good one, was about to leave her, and I had better wait for a fortnight or three weeks, which I was doing very quietly, and was getting on very well.

2125. How long was it after Mr. Maxted gave you that order that you were suspended? I was suspended on the 20th November.

2126. That would be a little more than three weeks? Yes; I have a letter from Mrs. Murray, to whom I had written, asking her if she could supply me with a sober woman for Newington:—

Dear Mrs. Cunyngame,

I hear you want a useful woman. I have found one who promises not to drink.

Newington Asylum, 19 Nov.

When can I send her to you?

Yours truly,

E. L. MURRAY.

2127. And when you got this servant you were going to dispense with inmate labour? No, I think I should have argued the point with Mr. Maxted, and asked him if I was not entitled to it. I never considered that I was wrong in using the inmate labour. You must understand that Mr. Maxted during this time did not give me an opportunity to explain anything. He kept away until I got my letter of suspension. Between the last occasion of his visit and when I received the letter of suspension I did not see Mr. Maxted, except on one occasion, and then I could tell that he was very displeased with me.

2128. Mr. Ritchie.] What was the interval between his seeing you and the time when you got the letter? About a week.

2129. You had not seen him the whole of that time. Was he in the asylum at all? No; on his last visit before my suspension he seemed to be very peculiar all at once. He came in and walked through, and went down to a man named Watsford, and came out again and shrugged his shoulders, passed me in the hall, and went out at the gate.

2130. Without speaking to you? He just nodded, but did not shake hands in his customary friendly way. This brings another matter to my mind: That very morning Mr. Ireland came in to me and said, "I say, Mrs. Cunyngame, do you know what Mr. Maxted has done for you?" and I laughed. He said, "It is all very well to laugh, but it is true"; and I said, "What is it?" "Why," he said, "Mr. Maxted has written a letter to the Government, stating that you are the most untruthful and unreliable officer in the Service." "Oh," I said, "Get away, you must mistake the name." I said, "Here is Mr. Maxted, now we will just see." So Mr. Maxted came in and shook hands and said, "How do you do, Mrs. Cunyngame; beautiful morning; everything all right," and I said, "Yes." Mr. Ireland turned on his heel and said, "Well that beats all," and I said I would not believe it.

2131. Mr. Edmunds.] How long was it from the time when Mr. Maxted gave the order to discontinue the use of the inmates in your kitchen up to the time when you were suspended? Three weeks.

2132. And during the whole of that three weeks did you still continue the use of the inmates? Yes.

2133. Mr. Bourke.] But they were being partly used for the institution generally? Of course; all the hospital food was cooked in my kitchen on account of so much work being done in the general kitchen.

2134. Mr. Williamson.] Was this man Ireland, of whom you speak, a servant at the institution at one time—overseer of works? Yes.

2135. And Mr. Maxted abolished his office, did he not? I could not say what Mr. Maxted did.

2136. Mr. Bourke.] Did Dr. Violette ever complain to you that he had to do double duty in the institution? Never.

2137. I suppose you do not know what is meant by that charge? No.

2138. Now about the contractors who supplied the institution;—were you in the habit of receiving the stores yourself? I was generally about the building. If I was in the building I inspected them.

2139. Did Mr. Maxted ever give you authority to let Abbott receive them? No.

2140. Was Abbott in the habit of receiving these goods? Yes; for me.

2141. Did you consider Abbott a reliable man? I did.

2142. And generally speaking you left it to him? Yes; he had been with me so many years; he was always present. He brought the requisition-book down—it did not matter whether I was there or not—and I insisted upon his checking the goods, and that if they were of good quality they could be taken by him, but if there was anything wrong they were to be reported to me, and I would condemn them. He on no occasion ever condemned anything.

2143. Do you know a man named Drew? Yes; he is hospital wardman.

2144. What is the character of that man? I always found him very kind and very trustworthy. He would certainly ask for three days and go out and get tipsy, but while he was in the institution I never knew him to be under the influence of drink.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
28 Aug., 1889.

2145. Mr. Williamson.] Truthful, I suppose? In the institution.
2146. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember anything about a paralytical patient having been found in the corner of the hospital ward, unable to get to his bed;—was there any complaint made to you about that? I never heard anything about it until Mr. Maxted stated it in his evidence.
2147. There is a man named Edgar, who has been spoken about already;—did he ever make any complaint to you that you disregarded? Never.
2148. If he made complaints to you about anything in connection with the hospital did you investigate them? I generally found out things myself.
2149. But you never remember refusing to investigate any matter at Edgar's instigation? No; I used to be very smart with Edgar, especially after the new dietary came into operation.
2150. It has been charged against you by Mr. Maxted that Edgar was afraid to report matters to you, because if he did so you would not look into them, and he would be marked by you—is that true? You see there is no individual case given, and, therefore, how am I able to answer the charge? With regard to the paralytic man who was said to be on the floor, it is impossible that that could have happened on the day that Mr. Maxted said it did. There are 200 or 300 people in that institution, and Mrs. Payten and myself visited the hospital wards at 8 o'clock that very evening. It was on a feast day. Therefore it would be impossible for Drew to be drunk, or for this paralytical patient to have been in the condition described. Perhaps if I had the man's name I might be able to give some little explanation about it.
2151. When Mr. Maxted went up to the institution in August, shortly after he was appointed, did you say anything to him about certain moneys you had belonging to inmates? I did.
2152. What was it you said? I opened the despatch-box, and I opened two books, and I said to him, "Mr. Maxted, there are several money matters here which require settling up; when you can devote an hour or two to the matter we can talk it quietly over and look at the books;" and he said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, these books are so nicely kept; you cannot do better than go on as you have been doing, and I will get some slips printed."
2153. Mr. Ritchie.] What date was this? It must have been after the second week in August.
2154. This was in reference to moneys you had received on account of the inmates? Moneys that had accumulated from the time of Mr. King's retirement.
2155. Mr. Bourke.] But the inmates' moneys as well? Yes; the moneys of deceased inmates and the fat money.
2156. All moneys? Yes.
2157. Will you enumerate the different sources from which these moneys came? To begin with, when Mr. Rossiter was acting manager he would come repeatedly, and I would say to him, "Mr. Rossiter, you had better have a settling up of money matters with me." I did not say to him, distinctly or separately, "Deceased inmates' moneys—I want to hand these moneys over to you." I said this in a general way, in the same way that I said it to Mr. Maxted, "I want to have money matters settled with you." Fat money I spoke of distinctly as wishing to settle up.
2159. Only from those two sources? The money for the fat, the money of deceased inmates, and inmates' deposits.
2160. Did you ever receive money for refuse from the institution? Not one penny; and there was no arrangement made. But when I was under suspension I heard that Mr. Maxted went out to Mr. Gould, who was living in my place; and Mr. Gould being away from home, he spoke to Mr. Gould's cripple boy, who gave him a very ready answer. Nevertheless, Mr. Gould made arrangements to meet Mr. Maxted at the Sydney office, which he did. The first word Mr. Maxted said to Mr. Gould was, "I see you are a gentleman, but it was Mr. Hugh Taylor who told me that Mrs. Cunynghame was in the habit of receiving money."
2161. This is what Mr. Gould told you? Yes.
2162. We do not want to know that. About this refuse and the farm, were you in the habit of sending the refuse to your farm? Yes.
2163. How long did you do so? For eighteen months or two years. But before that we kept pigs ourselves there and we used the refuse.
2164. On the institution? Yes.
2165. Were they Government pigs? No our own.
2166. You fed them? Yes, we fed them and sold them.
2167. And the proceeds you kept for your own profit? Yes, they were never very great.
2168. Mr. Hawthorne.] Was there nothing in the Municipal laws of Parramatta to prevent your keeping pigs in the town? Yes; that was the reason why we had to remove them.
2169. Mr. Ritchie.] How did you acquire the right to use the refuse? Mr. King gave me permission to do as Mrs. Burnside had been in the habit of doing. When the Council objected we bought the place which has already been spoken of, and we removed all the pigs from Macquarie-street to Sherwood, and we had a horse and cart of our own, and I used to send all the refuse out there.
2170. Bones and so forth? Very few bones, bones were always buried about the place; but all the eatables and anything that was unpleasant.
2171. You sent on to the farm? Yes, and when we let the place we sold everything to Mr. Gould.
2172. After Mr. Maxted's appointment? No, this was eighteen months ago.
2173. You sold all the pigs and the animals that you had on the place? Yes—only pigs, there were no other animals.
2174. With regard to the moneys for the fat—you sold the fat? No. For the first three years we used to send our own horse and cart to Pritchard's with the fat, and he used to send us soap in return. For the first three years I never had any cheques.
2175. Of what years do you speak now? 1883, 1884, and 1885.
2176. Mr. Hawthorne.] You started in 1882 with Pritchard? Yes, and the first cheque we got was in 1885.
2177. Mr. Ritchie.] And this soap was for the asylum? I used to get on an average 20 cwt. of soap a year, and it accumulated so much that I said to Mr. King, "I have such a quantity of soap on hand, suppose I take a cheque occasionally, and I should like to have the money, if you will allow me, to buy a piano piano for the Institution." He said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, I see no objection, but don't you attempt to make any arrangement or buy a piano unless I give you authority." Those cheques were always paid over to Mr. King. There might be three a year, because as the soap accumulated so I would get a cheque occasionally. The cheques were always paid over to Mr. King.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
23 Aug., 1889.

2178. This was from the year 1885 up to the time when Mr. Maxted was appointed? Up to the time of Mr. King's retirement. When Mr. King retired everything was satisfactorily settled up. Then when Mr. Rossiter had been acting for four or five months he said to me, when I spoke to him about money matters, "Mrs. Cunynghame, you had better hold your money until I am appointed, or until you have a chief, I do not wish to have anything to do with money matters at all." I repeatedly asked him, jokingly, about these money matters. Then when Mr. Maxted came I did the same with him and he refused—not as Mr. Rossiter had done, but he said, "Wait till a more appropriate time."

2179. Are the moneys still in your possession? Yes. When I was suspended I asked Mr. Maxted to make an appointment with me, so that these matters might be settled up.

2180. Mr. Edmunds.] Are they still in your possession? Yes.

TUESDAY, 3 SEPTEMBER, 1889.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,		MR. KIDD,
MR. RITCHIE,		MR. CRICK.

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sarah Cunynghame called in and further examined:—

2181. Mr. Bourke.] You said that the first cheque you received from Pritchard Brothers was in 1885? About that time.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
3 Sept., 1889.

2182. Can you tell us how many cheques in a year you would receive from Pritchard Brothers? Not more than three.

2183. At the time when Mr. King retired had you settled up with him—had you paid him all the cheques? There might be one or two cheques for 1887, but up to that date everything was satisfactorily settled when Mr. King took ill, with the exception of those cheques.

2184. Then at the time of Mr. King's retirement you had paid him any cheques for fat that you had received? Yes, any moneys at all.

2185. And also any moneys belonging to inmates and dead inmates? Yes.

2186. There is a list in the printed Parliamentary Report on your case of moneys belonging to dead inmates—are those people who have died since Mr. King's retirement? There might be one or two; but everything would be entered in that black book.

2187. You say that with the exception of one or two they have all died since? Yes.

2188. The book which I now hand you shows the moneys belonging to inmates exclusively? Yes, deceased inmates and living inmates.

2189. Who gave you authority to keep the book in that manner? Mr. King.

2190. After Mr. King retired an account of all the fat moneys and all the inmates' moneys since his retirement was kept in that book? Yes.

2191. Did you make any attempt with Mr. King's successor, Mr. Rossiter, to settle accounts? Yes, repeatedly.

2192. What did Mr. Rossiter say? He told me to wait until a chief was appointed.

2193. Is that why you kept these fat moneys and inmates' moneys in your own possession? Yes.

2194. The book you have in your hand shows the moneys payable to the inmates and is a check on your account in the bank? Yes; this was kept by the clerk.

2195. All the inmates' moneys and all the fat moneys were paid into your own account, and this book is the check? Yes.

2196. And the book was in the possession of Abbott the clerk? It was, under my superintendence.

2197. But in his charge? Yes, he kept it.

2198. And it was open to the inspection of Mr. Rossiter, Mr. King, and Mr. Maxted? Yes, it was offered to Mr. Maxted; I offered it to him.

2199. Does the book marked K show everything paid into your account, whether it was the moneys of inmates, your own moneys, or fat moneys? Yes.

2200. It shows everything paid into the bank? Yes. It did not go to the bank, but was kept as a check of whatever inmates' moneys were banked by me. Each of the inmates' names is here.

2201. The other book—what does that show? This is only the money as the clerk received it and paid it to the people, and when accounts were exhausted they were crossed out, and when any money was left it was put on a piece of paper and entered in the diary, and Mr. King receipted for it.

2202. You say you have Mr. King's authority for keeping the accounts in that way? Yes.

2203. In one of these books is Mr. King's handwriting, showing you how the books ought to be kept? Yes; this was from the very beginning of my term of office.

2204. What does this book show—the inmates' moneys? Yes; this is Mr. King's own handwriting.

2205. That entry is to show you how to keep the books? Yes.

2206. Then in keeping these books concerning the inmates' moneys and the fat moneys in the way shown in them, you have Mr. King's authority, and you followed the example given you by Mr. King in that book? Yes, as nearly as I possibly could.

2207. Mr. Crick.] You say that with the exception of one or two all the moneys of deceased inmates had been paid to Mr. King. What was the reason why those one or two were not paid also? Mr. King fell ill. I called at his house during his illness, and he said it would be all right, that they were perfectly safe, and when I told him about offering them to Mr. Rossiter, and Mr. Rossiter refusing to take them over, he said he had done the same with regard to other asylums.

2708.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngname.
8 Sept., 1889.
2208. Then you did offer all the dead inmates' moneys you had to Mr. Rossiter before Mr. Maxted's appointment? Repeatedly; they were not very large sums, but I never liked to keep them, and I paid them over about every month or six weeks.
2209. Mr. Bourke.] Can you tell us now about these fat moneys;—after Mr. King's retirement, you say that Mr. Rossiter would not take them from you because he was not appointed, and that you offered to settle up with Mr. Maxted, who told you to wait until a more appropriate time—can you tell us how much you had? The following are the cheques I received from Pritchard Brothers after Mr. King's retirement:—December, 1887, £2 10s. 5d.; September, 1887, £2 9s. 7d.; February, 1888, £2 14s. 11d.; July, 1888, £1 17s. 6d.; January 6th, 1888, £2 9s., making a total of £12 1s. 5d.
2210. You hold that money now? Yes.
2211. And the reason you have not paid it in is because you could not get anyone to take it from you? Yes.
2212. You have in your hand bills representing the cheques which you now hold for the fat? Yes.
2213. Do you know what the dead inmates' moneys amount to altogether? I am unable to say without reference to a book which is in Mr. Maxted's possession, and which I asked might be returned so that I might settle up money matters.
2214. That book has been in Mr. Maxted's possession since you were suspended? Yes; it was handed over to Mr. Green on the understanding that it was to be returned to me, and I have his receipt for it.*
2215. And it is only by reference to that book that you can tell the amount of dead inmates' moneys that you really have? Yes, and how money matters stand.
2216. When Mr. Maxted asked you for a memorandum shortly after you were suspended of the moneys you had it was sent to him, giving only the moneys of living inmates. Will you explain how it was that moneys of dead inmates were not included in that memorandum? This book was brought over by Abbott, the clerk, on the day of my suspension, and I never went back to the office. Mr. Maxted asked me for the first list, and I asked an old friend, Mr. Gale, if he would take that book and give a complete list of the moneys, the open accounts. I made no reference to deceased inmates.
2217. Did you forget them? No; it did not occur to me. Mr. Maxted asked to have that book or an account of the money that was due to the men, and I simply said to Mr. Gale, "Take that book and take out for Mr. Maxted the accounts, the open accounts; you will see by their different names." I did not even look at the list.
2218. You simply gave the book to Mr. Gale, and he made out this list which has been supplied to Mr. Maxted? Yes.
2219. And in that list he omitted the dead inmates' money? No reference was made to them.
2220. He omitted them? Yes; he did not know anything about them.
2221. And that is why they were omitted? Yes; I did not attach any importance to them.
2222. You have always been ready to deliver these moneys over to anyone who would take them? Yes; and have had plenty of money to my credit always.
2223. And you could not get Mr. Rossiter or Mr. Maxted to take these moneys from you? No.
2224. Mr. Abbott in his evidence speaks of a book from which some leaves were taken out—are these the leaves? Yes.
2225. Can you tell us why you took those leaves out of that book? There is one book you have that has been completed; that exactly tallies with the one you have just put down. This is the book I kept for entries when they were settled up with Mr. King—this alphabetical book. I did not keep it because it was an alphabetical book; it was merely a book I had in hand.
2226. But why were those leaves taken out? When I took this over to Abbott to make certain entries in, it had never been used. It was one I kept, and I kept it in my own house. Abbott wanted a new book, and I took him over this new book, which also had not been used; but these leaves at the end of the book had been used for the memoranda entered here, and I said to Abbott, "Here is a book for you." He said he wanted an alphabetical index, and I said to him, "Take the end leaves out of this book, and I will sew them in another book," and I took them in his presence and sewed them in his book.
2227. Why? Because these had all been settled up from the very beginning of my holding the position.
2228. But was it because they contained a record of moneys you had paid to Mr. King? Yes.
2229. And you wanted to keep that record for your own information and your own protection? Yes.
2230. The reason you took the leaves out was that they contained a record of moneys that you had already paid to Mr. King? Yes.
2231. Did you take the leaves out yourself? No; I authorized Abbott to take them out.
2232. It was Abbott who took them out by your order? Yes.
2233. And put them in another book? No; I put them in this book.
2234. Mr. Orick.] Who always had possession of the book afterwards? I had.
2235. And they only contained a record of settled accounts? Yes, from the very first.
2236. Mr. Ritchie.] These were moneys you had received from inmates? Yes.
2237. And which you held in trust for them? Yes.
2238. Mr. Bourke.] When you paid any of the inmates' moneys to Mr. King, what receipt did you get? It was generally entered in the diary on each visit of Mr. King. There was a pencil mark put for them and he would look and initial in the margin of the diary "Received so and so, or such an amount"—whatever the sum was, sometimes 5s., sometimes 4s. 6d.
2239. If you had a cheque for fat when Mr. King visited your institution, and also some of the paid inmates' moneys in your despatch-box you would pay all this to Mr. King? No; I would not pay him any cheques; I always paid him in cash.
2240. Supposing you had received £3 for fat during Mr. King's absence, and say £2 of inmates' money which you were not to pay back to them—when Mr. King came would you pay that money to him? If it had not been banked, but we generally banked everything.
2241. If it had been banked you would give him the cash? We would have a settling up. I would deduct different small sums which would have to be refunded to the inmates and hand over to Mr. King the balance, being myself responsible that the inmates got the different sums that I had deducted.

2242.

*NOTE (on revision).—I am accused by Mr. Maxted of misappropriating various sums, viz., £10, £3, £1, and a few shillings, which were at the time of my suspension in the despatch box, which was locked by Mr. Green, he taking possession of the key.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame,
3 Sept., 1889.

2242. With regard to the tea that was received at your institution—how did you generally find that as to quality? As far as quality went as good as one could expect; but only the fifth of an ounce was allowed to each inmate, and it had to be divided into two meals; so that the men could not get very strong tea.
2243. Did you often find that the tea was bad; do you remember any occasion when you objected to the tea? Only on one occasion.
2244. What did you do then? The quality of the tea was not bad but it was full of sticks.
2245. What did you do? Sent it back direct.
2246. Mr. Orick.] How much tea did you say was allowed each inmate per day? The fifth of an ounce, and it had to be divided into two meals—breakfast and tea.
2247. As a general rule what would be the amount of tea used by one person? A pint.
2248. I suppose a quarter of a lb. of tea a week is considered a fair thing? That is the full ration that is allowed; that is what I should send if I were sending ration to Newington for any of the inmates.
2249. Mr. Kidd.] That was only one ounce every five days? That was all. Then I had a conversation with Mr. Maxted about the quality of the tea, and I myself got the two bottles to which he referred in his evidence. But I did not know then that Mr. Maxted was using them against me; he gave me to understand that he was using them against the contractor.
2250. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember a man named White who was in Parramatta Asylum? Yes.
2251. Did that man make any complaint to you? He was always complaining before Mr. Maxted came. He was not very long there, he came from the George-street Asylum.
2252. What was the nature of his complaint? About being allowed to talk in the dormitories and smoke in the dormitories. He and a man named Burnes were very much after the style of Baird, the man who gave evidence at the inquiry. He came up one day—I believe this was before Mr. Maxted was appointed—with five other men as a deputation. I believe the same deputation waited upon Mr. Maxted afterwards, and I did not know anything about it. These five men were ushered into the office to me, and they made a long rigmarole about not being allowed to talk in the dormitories. Very often very old men in the institution would like to go to their bed and go to rest, and White was comparatively a young man and they would sometimes have these discussions, and the older men would complain to me and that was my reason for being a little strict in the matter.
2253. Did you allow them to talk in the dormitories? I never knew whether they talked or otherwise, as long as there was no discussion or complaint made.
2254. Have you never issued an order that they were not to talk in the dormitories? I have only instructed the wardsmen to keep proper order in the dormitories. If the old men complained I would send to the wardsmen and he would name the man.
2255. Did the old men sometimes complain that some of the men in the dormitory caused disturbance at night by their discussions? Repeatedly. Before Mr. Maxted was appointed, Mr. Rossiter had to be called late one night in consequence of the conduct of the man Burnes, who, though hopelessly blind, was in the habit of going about pulling the clothes off the old men and annoying them. Mr. Rossiter reprimanded the man, and told him that if he did not behave himself he would be sent to prison. He also used to trip up other inmates with his stick.
2256. Did you ever beat that man with an umbrella? No; I never did.
2257. Do you remember receiving any complaint about a man named M'Phee being ill-treated in a ward? Not until after I was suspended.
2258. Who complained then? Mr. Maxted. I had never heard anything about it.
2259. Do you remember a complaint being made by Mr. Maxted about the quality of the potatoes? On one occasion only.
2260. Did you see the potatoes on that occasion? I did, and I drew Mr. Maxted's attention to a memorandum made in the medical register by Dr. Violette.
2261. Do you remember the date of that memorandum? The 25th October. In the month of October potatoes are always going to seed. But we have good potatoes. If the potatoes were of inferior quality they were always picked out by the inmates, put into a bag, and given to the grocer on his next visit, and he returned the weight of good quality.
2262. The potatoes that were shown to Mr. Maxted were cooked? Yes; they were also shown to Dr. Violette, who, on the 25th October, 1888, wrote this entry in the medical register: "The potatoes as shown me, as taken from the wash-tub, are of good quality, and fit for any use to which they can be put.—W. Bradley Violette." Mr. Maxted visited the institution on the 30th October, and made the following memorandum in the medical register:—"These are the potatoes which Watsford complains were bad. He has also submitted some bread to me as being bad; I have found it perfectly good.—S.M., 30/10/88." The day on which Mr. Maxted made his memorandum he was in a great hurry, as he usually was when leaving the institution; and I called to him and said—"Mr. Maxted, I have something to say to you before you leave"; and he said—"What is it, Mrs. Cunynghame?" in a great hurry. I called him in and showed him this book, and he put his hand in the pocket of his coat and drew out a piece of bread, and he said what he has entered in the book. I said—"Go to the bread cupboard and look for yourself at the quality of the bread." It was not only once but repeatedly that Mr. Maxted did that sort of thing without speaking to me; and had I not called him into the office against his wish and shown him that memorandum, I would never have known that he had a complaint against me from Watsford.
2263. Do you remember a man named Henry Allen? Yes; he was an inmate wardsmen in the cancer ward.
2264. Did he misconduct himself in any way? He neglected to attend to the people who were sick. On my visiting the ward while the food was being issued at meal time, as I usually did, I saw that he neglected to ask the patients if they would take any more gruel. I asked them myself and they said none had been offered to them. I remonstrated with the man and told him he was very neglectful.
2265. What action did you take? I dismissed him into the yard, and he met Mr. Maxted who promised to intercede for him with me.
2266. To get him back into the cancer ward? Yes, but I would not have him.
2267. Mr. Crick.] Why did you put him out? He neglected to give the old men the gruel; there was a bucket of good gruel under the table.
2268. Did Mr. Maxted ask you to let him back? No, I do not remember Mr. Maxted speaking to me about him at all.
2269. You say he asked Mr. Maxted to intercede for him? Yes.
2270. And Mr. Maxted did not do so? I do not remember Mr. Maxted doing so.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngame.
3 Sept., 1880.
2271. Mr. Bourke.] Did you ever ask Mr. Maxted for any rules or regulations to guide you in the management of the institution? No, because I had previously drawn up rules, and when I spoke to Mr. Maxted about them he said he was going to make a few alterations. At present they are with Dr. M'Laurin, but a copy is printed in my letter-book.
2272. You drew them up yourself? Yes.
2273. But they have not been ratified? I do not think so.
2274. Do you remember a man named Daniel Watsford who was in the institution? Yes.
2275. Mr. Maxted has stated that he was put on partly at your request? That is not so. I refused to have him, and stated at the time to Mr. Maxted that I did not consider he had sufficient judgment—those were the words I used. Mr. Maxted said, "Mrs. Cunyngame, he will be a very useful man to you, because you have a large family of children"; but I said I thought he would give me trouble.
2276. Mr. Maxted has said that he was put on at your instance, is that true? No.
2277. Did you ever complain to Mr. Maxted that you wanted more paid assistants in the institution? I did repeatedly.
2278. And what did Mr. Maxted say? He said, "Hold it over, Mrs. Cunyngame, for a little while."
2279. It has been said that this man, Peter Abbott, who was clerk during your time, practically managed the institution—is that true? Not at all.
2280. What did Abbott do? The reason he was there so long was because I felt he was perfectly safe, and would never act on his own responsibility. If it was only a memorandum I wished made he would have to wait until I dictated it to him.
2281. We have been shown the books—he kept all in his own handwriting;—were these kept by him under your supervision? Yes, every book; and I always supervised the diary, and anything that was objectionable I told him to erase.
2282. Then all these books that he kept were under your constant supervision? Yes, and mostly entered at my dictation.
2283. Something has been said with regard to the reduction of Abbott's pay. When Mr. Maxted asked you to draw up a list of the paid inmates, with a view to reduce their pay, did you recommend that Abbott's pay should be reduced? No, I did not. I do not think I drew up the list at all; I think Mr. Maxted took a rough statement of everything.
2284. At your dictation? Yes; but there was no mention made of Abbott until it came back.
2285. In this list that Mr. Maxted drew up at your dictation, did you ask him to reduce Abbott's pay from 2s. to 1s.? Certainly not.
2286. When the list came back to you with the amounts that were to be paid to these inmates, what was Abbott put down at? 1s. instead of 2s.
2287. This was in the list that came to you from the head office? Yes.
2288. Is this the list you got from the head office [list produced]? Yes.
2289. In this list Peter Abbott is put down to receive 1s. per diem instead of 2s.? Yes.
2290. When you got this list, what did you do? I simply put it in my sideboard. I did not take it to the office until Mr. Maxted visited again.
2291. Why did you keep it there? Because I did not want to hurt the old man's feelings by telling him that Mr. Maxted had reduced his pay from 2s. to 1s. When I expected the next visit from Mr. Maxted I brought the list to the office with me, and I said, "Mr. Maxted, don't knock the old man off a 1s.; he deserves the 2s."; and he put in the margin in his own handwriting, "To remain as at present."
2292. Then you say that you never recommended to Mr. Maxted that Abbott's pay was to be reduced? No; I considered that he was worth the 2s.
2293. You considered him a very useful and reliable man? Yes. When I was suspended he was considered so reliable that Mr. Maxted gave him £50 a year, and classed him as a junior clerk in the Government service.
2294. You know that he is not now an inmate, but a Civil Servant? Yes. Mr. Maxted paid him because he was so reliable and could pass the stores, and yet he did not consider him capable of passing a few pounds of flour or tea for me.
2295. Mr. Maxted has said that when the institution was first established as an erysipelas hospital there were half a dozen patients when you first went there. You have told us, I think, that there were about thirty? There must have been about that number, male and female; I am sure there were ten or fourteen women.
2296. You remember the 20th October, I suppose? That was a feast day.
2297. In Dr. Violette's report of the 22nd October, which he considers has already been dealt with and settled, it is charged that certain men—Nimmo and Boucher—did not get their medical comforts on that day? We never issued spirits on the morning of a feast day. Beer, as I have described before, was very liberally supplied, not only by myself, but also by visitors, who were not able to judge how much these men could take.
2298. Is that the reason why the men did not get their medical comforts during the day? Yes; it was always an understood thing.
2299. What was the usual time for distributing the medical comforts? I would not distribute them at all unless I thought it was necessary.
2300. But what was the usual time? Ten o'clock in the morning.
2301. Would any one go round at night after the feast was over? Yes; that night Mrs. Paton and myself visited each hospital ward, and we went to each bed in the cancer ward, and gave the patients their comforts.
2302. That very night? Yes, that night at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Paton went with me. We went up-stairs to No. 1 and 2 wards, and they were all so quiet and appeared to be asleep that we both came down again, and put the bottles in the store-room.
2303. Were Nimmo and Boucher in either of those two wards where the men were all asleep? Yes, in No. 2 ward.
2304. Is that the reason they did not get their medical comforts that day? Nimmo was not allowed any comforts; he spoke for the other men. Boucher had been ordered gin, but it had not been given to him that day on account of his having been so liberally supplied with beer.
2305. You say you went round at night to give the men their medical comforts, but you thought they were all asleep in the ward? I knew they were asleep; we opened the door very quietly.
- 2306.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
3 Sept., 1889.

2306. Mr. Crick.] You say it was customary not to give them their medical comforts on a feast day? Yes, when they had taken beer liberally.
2307. Mr. Bourke.] According to Dr. Violette's report these men complained that they were compelled to take the beer;—do you know whether anyone forced the beer down their throats? I think if they had not wanted it they would have objected, and asked for something else, and the ladies would have come to me.
2308. It is also complained that they were told that if they did not take the beer they would not get anything else;—was that said by you or by any of the visitors? No.
2309. You do not know whether it was said by anyone else? No; the ladies say they do not remember anything of the sort.
2310. Another charge in Dr. Violette's report is that you abused Nimmo, and made disparaging remarks about the Quong Tart festival;—is that true? I could not have done so.
2311. It is said that you were distributing some pork, and while doing so made some disparaging remarks about the Quong Tart festival;—did you do so? No; Nimmo was saying a great deal about lemonade having been drunk by my friends, and I told him he was only one person, to let every one speak for themselves.
2312. But did you make any of these disparaging remarks? No; what could I say?
2313. About this pork? It was part of a sucking pig that had not been sufficiently cooked on the Saturday.
2314. It was pork remaining from the feast? Yes.
2315. Then it was not yours? No.
2316. Dr. Violette has said that it was some pork supplied by yourself, and that you said it was your own treat to the men;—is that true? No.
2317. Mr. Crick.] Did the men get any beer on the following day—Sunday? Yes; we made shandy-gaff with the beer and ginger-beer that was left from the feast.
2318. Did any of them refuse beer on the Sunday? No; they were all glad to get it.
2319. Mr. Bourke.] It has been said that you were very anxious to get rid of a man named M'Govern;—is that true? I brought him up to Dr. Violette.
2320. Why did you bring him before Dr. Violette? Because he was imbecile, and kept making charges about the warders wanting to take his landed property.
2321. You thought he was insane? No, I did not think so, because I knew he was imbecile.
2322. Then it was because he was imbecile? Yes, and because he was annoying everybody about the place. He made different charges about the wardsmen taking away the things. He had some money amounting to £1 14s. 9½d. which he left under his pillow, and which he could not find, and there was a great commotion in the ward, because everyone was afraid that he was going to be charged with having taken this money. I made the wardsmen take him out, and sit him on a chair, and search his bed, and they found one part of his money in one place and the rest in another place. I felt that it was not right to the other men that he should have this money, and make these charges against people, and that is the reason why I brought him under Dr. Violette's notice several times. There were memoranda in the book about his making charges.
2323. One of Dr. Violette's charges is that you called in Dr. Phillips to see this man, and that you wanted to get rid of him;—did you want to get rid of him? Not at all.
2324. Why did you bring him before the doctor? Dr. Violette had made an entry in the book that Dr. Phillips should be sent for, to see Carlon, and as I was leaving the surgery I said to Dr. Violette, "If Dr. Phillips is here, may I call his attention to M'Govern," and I understood Dr. Violette to say "Yes." Dr. Phillips came about 12 o'clock, and when he had finished with Carlon I had M'Govern brought in to him, and I asked him several questions. I said, "We can manage him; he is childish, and I thought it better that you should see him," to which Dr. Phillips assented, and there was nothing more about the man.
2325. Mr. Crick.] So that Dr. Phillips really came there on an errand authorized by Dr. Violette? Yes, to see Carlon, a man who was a raving lunatic.
2326. Mr. Bourke.] Was Carlon sent to the lunatic asylum? Yes.
2327. Do you remember a wardman named Edgar? Yes.
2328. Was Edgar a reliable man? I had no fault to find with him.
2329. Was he the man who distributed the medical comforts during your time? Yes.
2330. I believe Edgar was authorized by Mr. Maxted to administer these medical comforts? A man named Crawley used to distribute the comforts until Mr. Maxted spoke to me about allowing Edgar and Warner to do it.
2331. He asked you to allow Edgar and Warner to distribute the medical comforts? Yes.
2332. Then it was really on Mr. Maxted's authority that Edgar distributed the comforts? Yes.
2333. You recollect William Roy, I suppose? Yes.
2334. He is one of the men who gave evidence before the Asylums Inquiry Board? Yes. He was totally blind and quite helpless.
2335. It is a considerable time ago since he left the asylum? He left directly after the inquiry. A fund was raised for him, and he was taken out by his friends.
2336. Dr. Violette has stated that a great many men were sent before him on trivial charges;—were they sent before him by you? It all depends upon who the men were. If he would name the men I could tell;—for instance, I sent Baird before him.
2337. He says that a wardman named Hanson was frequently bringing men before him on trivial charges;—did Hanson report these matters to you before he brought the men before the doctor? Yes. Hanson was a man who had charge of all the minor work of the yard, and he used to come to me and say there were certain men who were able to work, but who refused to do so. At one time I was allowed to use my own discretion as to whether or not a man should be turned out of the institution, but after an order was received from the Colonial Secretary about this no man was turned out of the institution until his case had been brought before Dr. Violette.
2338. Supposing the doctor decided that a man had been insubordinate and abusive, what action would be taken? I would report the case to the Sydney office, and they would take whatever action they deemed necessary.
2339. Most of the men who were sent before the doctor by you were charged with refusing to work and using abusive language? The charge was generally one of insubordination; they were very seldom charged with abusive language.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
8 Sept., 1889.

2340. Mr. Ritchie.] When did the regulation under which you had power to turn a man out cease to have effect? Before the inquiry by the Asylums Board—up to 1887.
2341. Then up to that time you had absolute control as to whether a man was to be allowed to be in the institution or not? Yes.
2342. Mr. Kidd.] Did you report the matter to the head office before you took action, or did you take action and then report what you had done? I would send a memorandum saying how the man had transgressed, and what action I had taken, and the Sydney office would inquire and approve or disapprove of my action.
2343. But the man would be turned adrift by you on your own responsibility before you would report the matter? Yes.
2344. Mr. Bourke.] That discretion was left to you until the time you have mentioned? Yes.
2345. Do you recollect the man named Rooney? Yes; very well.
2346. Dr. Violette says that Rooney complained that he had been persecuted by you, and that he was not allowed to go to church. Did he ever ask to be allowed to go to church? The men would not want to ask me; services were always held in the yard, and in Rooney's case, if he could get half a dozen men to take him to church—for he was quite helpless—there was no objection.*
2347. To church in the yard? Yes; there was always service there for Catholics and Protestants every Sunday morning, and every facility was offered to enable the men to attend mass or any other service.
2348. Was Rooney allowed to attend these services? No objection was ever raised.
2349. Did he ever ask you? If he did men were told off to take him; but he suffered from paralysis, and it required very strong men to assist him.
2350. Did you ever refuse Rooney? No.
2351. Do you remember the case of the man M'Coy? Perfectly well.
2352. What happened at the time when M'Coy was making a complaint to the doctor that made you so angry? M'Coy said that he was lousey, and that "Mother Cunynghame" gave him dirty clothes.
2353. What was it that made you angry on that occasion? It was because the doctor did not check the man.
2354. For what? For saying "Mother Cunynghame," and because he attached importance to what the man said, and refused to go and see the man's bed when I asked him. But I was not angry.
2355. When the doctor ordered the boots, did this man get them? He would get them from the head wardman.
2356. Then the matter of the boots was not brought before you at all. Was the head wardman always in charge of the boots? Yes; whenever he wanted ten or twenty pairs he would get them.
2357. Then if the doctor ordered a man to get a pair of boots who would see to that? If there was a special order I would see to it or send Hanson. Hanson said he had repeatedly offered M'Coy boots, but he would not take them, making some excuse.
2358. Was this man one of the complaining sort—was he very querulous? I considered him a little imbecile also.
2359. A troublesome man? No, not when he is left alone. He would never say a word to anybody, but walked up and down all day long.
2360. Did you know that he was left without boots for three weeks? No; he must have had boots. I would have known it if he had had no boots.
2361. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose there is always some difficulty in fitting the men with boots? They were never very particular—as long as they were boots.
2362. I mean as regards size? No; we would always make requisition for the sizes required.
2363. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember the case of Cook, who was charged with stealing the medical comforts? Yes.
2364. Did you make an inquiry into the matter? I began, but I considered it a very serious matter, and I sent at dinner-time for Dr. Violette as he was going to George-street to call in and assist me which he did, and I put this man Cook into the yard that very evening.
2365. The result of the inquiry was that he was dismissed from the hospital and put into the yard? Yes.
2366. It has been complained against you that you did not give this man in charge of the police; why did you not do that? I did not think it was a clear case. I told the man to remain in the yard until Mr. Maxted came.
2367. It is said that you gave him his clothes? But he did not go until the following Tuesday; this happened on a Thursday.
2368. When he was leaving did you give him an order? No; he said he would go to Mr. Maxted and tell him what had occurred and I let him out on that promise.
2369. Did you let him out on the understanding that he was to go to Mr. Maxted and explain matters to him? When he told me he would do so I said he might have his clothes.
2370. You had no power to detain the man there? No; had he demanded to leave the institution two hours after this affair happened, I could not have prevented him.
2371. I suppose that at any time that a man demands to go out you must let him go? Unless he is in the hospital ward, in which case I should send for a doctor.
2372. You did not feel justified in giving Cook in charge? I had nothing to give him in charge for.
2373. Do you remember a man named M'Carthy who was an inmate of the hospital? He was only there for a short time—six or seven weeks.
2374. It was during his time in the hospital that these medical comforts were stolen? Yes, he made the complaint.
2375. It has been said that you abused this man M'Carthy and called him a spy and a lousey mischief maker? I could not have done so. I am not in the habit of using such language to the inmates no matter how badly they behaved. Whatever occurred took place in Dr. Violette's presence.
2376. Mr. Williamson.] You deny that you used such words? Yes.
2377. Mr. Bourke.] You are not in the habit of using abusive language? No, not to anybody.
2378. You recollect the case of Bannan I suppose? Yes, perfectly well.
2379. Who received him into the institution? Edgar.

2380.

* NOTE.—(On revision).—Dr. Violette, in his evidence, speaks of Rooney's chair, and my putting the onus on his shoulders of ordering the chair. The chair was requisitioned for and obtained. I cannot see where the persecution comes in.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
8 Sept., 1889.

2380. Do you know where Edgar placed him? In No. 3 ward in the corner bed.
2381. Did you see him there? No, I did not see him there. I was pushing the door open when Edgar said "The man is all disarranged."
2382. When you went to No. 3 hospital ward on the Sunday morning to see Bannan, Edgar told you not to go in for the reason you have stated? Yes, and that the man was filthy dirty and the doctor had ordered him in to the isolation ward. Then he told me it was Baunan; of course I knew Bannan well.
2383. Did you describe Baunan's condition to the doctor on Sunday morning? I did not see him on the Sunday morning.
2384. You are charged with having put a man named Burnes in the isolation ward? Yes, I did put him there.
2385. What for? General insubordination. On the morning in question he and a man named Donald M'Kenrick had an argument in the shed and I had to send for the police to take M'Kenrick in charge.
2386. Did he become violent? He and another man were having a stand-up fight under the shed and this man Burnes was prompting them.
2387. Did you make a charge against Burnes of abusive language and riotous conduct? Yes, I told Dr. Violette.
2388. That was the reason why he was put into the isolation ward? Yes.
2389. Did you charge him with abusive language and insubordination? I do not think I made any specific charge; I merely sent for the doctor, and told him what I had done.
2390. The reason you put him in the isolation ward was that he was prompting men to fight? No. He jumped up when I went to him. He was lying with his face exposed to the sun.
2391. You said that two men were engaged in a stand-up fight, and that this man Burnes was prompting them? Yes; this occurred in the morning.
2392. Was it on that account that you put him in the isolation ward? No. He was lying on the grass at dinner time, and I went across the lawn to him and just touched him with a light parachute—a sunshade—
2393. To draw his attention? To put his hat up over his face. He jumped up, and I just moved quietly away, and he threatened to hit me with his stick. I called Edgar and Warner to take him up and put him in the refractory ward, which they did, and he was fighting and tusselling with them. I walked over behind them, and they carried him to the refractory ward, and there and then I sent for Dr. Violette to come and say whether or not he agreed with what I had done, which he did, and he made an entry in the book.
2394. Did you beat this man with your umbrella? Not at all.
2395. You simply touched him to draw his attention to you? No; to draw his hat over his face.
2396. Mr. Kidd.] Did he know that it was you who touched him? Yes, I spoke to him. He was not asleep.
2397. Mr. Ritchie.] You admit that you put the man in the isolation ward before you consulted the doctor, but you say that the doctor was immediately called in and ratified your action in the matter? Yes.
2398. Mr. Bourke.] You sent for the doctor immediately after you put the man into the ward? Yes.
2399. Do you remember a man named Sparkes, or Sharp, who was employed in the kitchen? No; I do not remember a man with either of those names.
2400. Do you remember any man being exempted from work in the kitchen by the doctor? Yes; they were repeatedly exempted from work.
2401. I mean from work in the kitchen? Yes.
2402. And when the doctor exempted them from work did you afterwards compel them to work there? No; I never willingly disobeyed the doctor.
2403. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you ever do so unwillingly? Not that I know of.
2404. Mr. Bourke.] Shortly after Mr. Maxted's appointment did you supply him with a return of medical comforts? I did.
2405. Was that return made at Mr. Maxted's request? It was.
2406. Did you say anything to Mr. Maxted about Dr. Violette giving away the comforts indiscriminately? No; but we had a conversation about it, and Mr. Maxted himself went up into the cancer ward and went about the institution. I myself did not pay any attention to what these men were getting; I knew the doctor had ordered it for them. Two or three men passed the window as Mr. Maxted and I were sitting talking of this matter; and as the men were passing by Mr. Maxted said, "Is that man receiving stimulants?" I replied, "I really could not say without looking at the book, but I have no doubt he is."
2407. Then it was at Mr. Maxted's own request that you supplied that return? Yes; and he spoke of a man named Jacobs, in the cancer ward, getting so much.
2408. That he was getting too much? The expression he used was this: "That man must be a walking public-house."
2409. The man Jacobs? Yes; he was getting a bottle of porter and 4 oz. of rum.
2410. Every day? Yes; and that was the expression that Mr. Maxted used to me.
2411. Then Mr. Maxted gave you to understand that Dr. Violette was giving these people too much? Yes; and he also said, when I made a remark somewhat kindly towards Dr. Violette, "If Dr. Violette does not do his duty we will soon get somebody who will." And another thing: what Dr. Violette had asked me to do was perfectly true, but I was caught on the spur of the moment. Dr. Violette and I had agreed that the medical comforts should not be interfered with until the dietary was working satisfactorily. Mr. Maxted came once in the morning, and he came again in the afternoon, and he said, "Mrs. Cunynghame, I know you can do this for me, and I must have it this evening."
2412. Do what? Give him this return of the spirits, which I did.
2413. He was anxious to curtail the quantity? I did not know what his object was. There was another thing that Mr. Maxted said to me on this very afternoon. When he was speaking of curtailing the issue of spirits he said to me, "Mrs. Cunynghame, do not you think you could substitute something such as gentian?" And he spoke of a "pick-me-up," which he said he was in the habit of giving to the reporters when he was a reporter on a newspaper up country. We were conversing in a friendly way, and I laughingly said, "Oh you are referring to a 'pick-me-up'—they are very good"; and he said, "Yes." He said, "Dr. B——, of Liverpool, is substituting something; don't you think you could introduce some gentian and ammonia into the spirits?"

- Mrs. S. Cunyngame.
3 Sept., 1889.
2414. Mr. Maxted wanted you to add gentian and ammonia to the spirits? Yes.
2415. Did you refuse to do so? Yes.
2416. Mr. Kidd.] Did he only suggest it? He asked me if I could do so.
2417. Your business was to obey the doctor's orders with regard to medical comforts? Yes, and I had also agreed with Dr. Violette that the medical comforts should not be interfered with until the new dietary was in good working order.
2418. Did you ever complain to Mr. Maxted that Dr. Violette was poisoning a man with morphia? Never.
2419. Did you ever complain that Dr. Rowling was poisoning a man with morphia? No. Mr. Maxted was asking me what was the effect of a hyperdermic injection of morphia, but I mentioned no person's name, and Dr. Violette's name was never mentioned in reference to morphia. I never mentioned the name of any one.
2420. Will you look at the diary and read to the Committee the entries with regard to the man Burns? The first entry is as follows:—
"Charles Burns was observed by the superintendent lying at full length on the grass, and sent the head wardsmen to ask him to get up, which he positively refused to do. The superintendent then went herself, and he again refused, and was also abusive. He was then ordered to a separation ward; refusing to walk, he was carried by the head wardsmen and two of the paid attendants. The doctor was sent for, and decided that he should remain until the Director's next visit."
- That was on the 2nd October. The next entry is on the 4th October, and is as follows:—
"A telegram was sent to the Director asking him to call at Macquarie-street at his next visit to Parramatta * * * A memo. was also sent to the Director having reference to Charles Burns in the isolation ward. Letter book, p. 108."
"While in the isolation ward he was visited by Mr. Maxted and Mr. Rossiter. I was present with Mr. Rossiter, but not with Mr. Maxted."
2421. Is there an entry by Dr. Violette concerning Burns in the medical register? Yes; the name "Charles Burns" is entered in the doctor's handwriting.
2422. Does that signify that the man was under his care? It means that the doctor saw him, and that he had nothing to say.
2423. The doctor saw him in the isolation ward? Yes.
2424. But supposing he were not in the isolation ward, would the doctor see him? Not at that time of day.
2425. His name would not be entered amongst the hospital patients? Not in the doctor's handwriting; this is a special case.
2426. That entry merely proves that he was under the doctor's charge? Yes.
2427. But he would not be in the doctor's charge if he were not in the isolation ward or in the hospital? Oh, yes; sometimes in the yard.
2428. Do you deny altogether that you told Mr. Maxted that Dr. Violette gave out the comforts indiscriminately? I do not remember saying anything approaching that.
2429. You deny it distinctly? I do.
2430. You also deny that you told Mr. Maxted that the doctor was poisoning some man with morphia? I never spoke of it in that way; I did not mention anybody's name.
2431. Did you represent to Mr. Maxted that Dr. Violette wished Dr. Phillips to come and see the man Bannan? I would have no object.
2432. But did you? I do not remember; I would have no object in saying that to Mr. Maxted.
2433. Did you represent to Dr. Violette that Mr. Maxted considered that Bannan was insane? No, I do not remember any reference to it whatever—merely a conversation I had.
2434. Then your authority for sending for Dr. Phillips to see Bannan was Mr. Maxted's telegram of the 10th October? Yes, and Dr. Violette's order in the medical register.
2435. Dr. Phillips in his memorandum in the medical register, regarding Bannan, said that the man was dangerous at times, but not dangerous enough to be sent to a lunatic asylum, and he therefore recommended that he should be put in a special ward; had you any such special ward in the institution? No.
2436. With reference to going through the wards at night, did you see that the paid wardsmen did that? Always.
2437. You are aware that they always went through? Yes; every night at 8 o'clock they were supposed to go through and report at the office anything that was specially required, which they did.
2438. You know yourself that they went through? I do.
2439. And they have made reports to you sometimes after going through? Yes.
2440. Often? Occasionally; I was always about and would generally know what was happening.
2441. Did Mr. Maxted ever say to you that he would give you one more chance? Never. He never gave me any idea that he was displeased with any action of mine up to within a week of my suspension.
2442. Mr. Ritchie.] And then what indication did you have? He walked through the hall and down to the reading-room and remained there hardly 10 minutes when he came back again and passed me very abruptly.
2443. Did he say anything then? No, he just nodded, and I was rather astonished.
2444. Mr. Bourke.] Then it was entirely from his manner? That was all; there was nothing said. He never gave me any idea that he was displeased with me.
2445. Mr. Ritchie.] That was a week before your dismissal? Yes.
2446. Mr. Bourke.] Were you in the habit of going through the hospital and asking the patients whether they had received their comforts—did you ever do that? No, I seemed to know they had. A man who did not receive his comforts would very soon let me know. I was in the habit of speaking to them, and I knew them all individually.
2447. And you inferred that as there were no complaints from them, everything must have been right? I thought so; and so would the doctor—the doctor would only know if anything was wrong.
2448. You remember of course the man Baird? Very well.
2449. Do you remember his being sent before the doctor for misconduct of some kind? Yes.
2450. What was the misconduct? He was before the doctor so many times.
2451. For refusing to work? Yes, that was the charge on one occasion.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
8 Sept., 1889.

2452. What kind of work? It was just to employ him, I thought he would be better working; he could use his arms and hands, and he could have sat down and done anything that was required of him.
2453. What kind of work did you ask him to do? It was to clean some tins, after some great day we had. All the baking tins wanted cleaning, and I suggested to Dr. Violette that he was able to do that work, and Dr. Violette put in the book "able to clean tin ware."
2454. The doctor has said that he was brought before him, for refusing to do general work about the institution; did you ask him to do any other kind of work besides cleaning tins? No; there were so many to do all that was required. It was only to employ him and keep him out of mischief. He was very fond of gambling. This is what first caused the dispute with Baird. He was in the habit of gambling and taking away the old men's money, and the men under the shed had told me he was a great cheat. I had of course nothing to go by except what they told me, and I insisted upon their not playing for money.
2455. Playing cards? No, they never had cards—dominoes or draughts. I did not mind their playing for tobacco, but I would not allow them to gamble for money.
2456. When Hanson took men before the doctor and complained of them were you aware of all the complaints he made? I gave him a general order that if the men refused to assist in doing the out-door work of the institution he was to take them up to the doctor. This order applied to all the other wardsmen, because Hanson was not always there.
2457. In each individual case that went before the doctor were you aware of the complaint? Not if it were a very trifling one; but I was if it was anything very serious.
2458. The wardsmen had some discretion in the matter themselves? Yes.
2459. Would they often take men before the doctor with complaints that had not been made to you? I generally knew what was going on, because it is only a small institution, and very little could occur without my knowing something about it. On the daily course of walking round I would know every little thing that occurred.
2460. You know Peter Abbott? Yes, very well.
2461. You used him as a clerk? For anything that I required him to do.
2462. But what was his general work? He would sit in the office and attend to the books, enter admissions in the books and keep them for me if I was about the building.
2463. Did you find him a reliable man in that kind of work? No, every thing had to be dictated for him.
2464. Then these entries in the diary and the books he kept you had to constantly supervise? Always; he could not even write a memorandum or a report or anything like that.
2465. Mr. Ritchie.] Were all the entries in the books that have been put in evidence before this Committee correct to your knowledge? Yes; I generally looked at them in the morning.
2466. Mr. Bourke.] You always inspected them after Abbott made the entries? Always; the work was always done at night when I could devote time to go over it quietly with him. He was a very aged man.
2467. Was he a man who would not do anything on his own responsibility? Yes; that was one reason why I always relied upon him. I felt that he was perfectly safe; he never assumed.
2468. He would submit everything to you? Yes, and I knew he would never write a memorandum hastily or do anything that was indiscreet.
2469. Then it is not true that he was really the manager of the institution? Oh, no, he would be a very bad manager I should imagine if left to himself.
2470. With regard to the fat moneys, Mr. Abbott has said that these were not kept separate; which of these books show the entries of the fat moneys? The book with the leaves out and also my cheque book, the small red covered book.
2471. Will you show us the cheques for the fat money? This book marked K contains the entries of the cheques in Abbott's handwriting. Pritchard's cheques—The entries are as follows:—19th September, 1887, £2 9s. 7d.; 17th February, 1888, £2 14s. 11d.; July, 1888, £1 17s. 6d., that was paid into the bank on the 8th August; 10th January, 1888, £2 9s.
2472. Are all those entries in Abbott's handwriting? Yes.
2473. Then when Abbott said he kept no record of Pritchard's cheques he was mistaken? Yes; this has always been kept by him.
2474. You have also the bills representing the fat for which you got these cheques? I have a few; I tendered those in evidence this morning.
2475. When you received these cheques from Pritchard, what did you do with them? I put them into the despatch-box.
2476. With inmates' moneys? With everything.
2477. And Abbott would bank those cheques for you with other moneys? He or the messenger; he would not always go, the messenger would occasionally.
2478. Whoever went to the bank with your moneys took those moneys as well? Yes, all moneys, in fact; a special account of them was kept in that red book.
2479. The reason why you kept these in your private account was because Mr. King gave you authority to do so? Yes; and for the reason that it was safer to keep them in the despatch-box, because Mr. King's visits were uncertain.
2480. And the despatch-box was always there for the manager of the institution to see? Always, and the key was in the hands of the clerk except when he was away, and then it would be in my possession.
2481. Mr. Abbott has said that Mr. Cunynghame remonstrated with you for putting some man's name down on the pay-sheet? On one occasion he did.
2482. On only one occasion? Yes.
2483. Who was that man? Constadine.
2484. What was he doing? Everything that I required him to do.
2485. Did you put his name down? No.
2486. Only once? That is all, I thought I was entitled to put him down. He used to look after the mortuary, chop the wood, and do anything I required him to do. All he did for Mr. Cunynghame was to get his horse and buggy ready.
2487. Mr. Williamson.] He was not the groom, then? Yes, anything; he understood horses.
2488. Mr. Bourke.] There was a store in the asylum containing calicoes and flannels of which Abbott was in charge? No.
2489. Who was in charge of it? I was, no one else ever had the key.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngame.
3 Sept., 1889.
2490. Abbott says that sometimes calicoes and flannels were taken from that store to your private quarters, is that so? I can hardly tell, because I do not think the things were good enough for me to use.
2491. But for any purpose whatever connected with the institution? If I wanted bedclothes I would send one of the children up to Abbott with the key for 20 or 30 yards of calico. If I wanted flannel for bandages for the surgery I would send to the store for the flannel. All these things had red stripes through them.
2492. This occurs in Abbott's evidence, question 1522:
Have you seen Mrs. Cunyngame taking calico and flannel from these stores for her own private use? I have seen her take calico and flannel into her own private house, but whether it was for her own private use or not I do not know?
- If the tailor wanted 50 or 100 sheets I always tore off the sheets myself, so that perhaps he is right.
2493. It is a fact then that calicoes and flannels were taken into your private quarters, but you say they were used for the purposes of the institution? Yes.
2494. Mr. Kidd.] You say that all these calicoes and flannels had a red stripe through them? Yes; we were not in the habit of getting all these things until recently, such as table linen. It was only recently that we had goods of such good quality.
2495. I only wished to know if they were marked with a red stripe? Yes, the flannel and the calico.
2496. Mr. Williamson.] Previous to Mr. Maxted's coming? No, for the last three or four years; before that they were very rarely required. There has been very little flannel ordered from the Sydney office during my career. Not more than four or five pieces of flannel were required for the making of bandages.
2497. Mr. Bourke.] Then you say that if any flannel or calico was taken to your private quarters it was for the use of the institution? Yes.
2498. When provisions were taken from the hospital supplies into your quarters, what would they be for? For the men working about, or anything I required in fact.
2499. That is, for the men in your kitchen? Yes.
2500. Innates? Yes, and if I required to do anything for the sick myself.
2501. Mr. Williamson.] In your kitchen? Yes.
2502. Mr. Bourke.] And some of these stores would be for the people in the sick wards? Yes.
2503. Mr. Kidd.] Were most of the small things prepared in your kitchen for those in the sick wards? All of them, after Mr. Maxted came.
2504. And before? Before only occasionally. It depended on the man I had and the time I could devote to it. I would very often prefer going into the lower kitchen to do what was required.
2505. Mr. Bourke.] You superintended the cooking in a general way yourself? Always.
2506. In both kitchens? Yes.
2507. Something has been said with reference to your butcher's bills; will you now produce some of your butcher's bills? Yes.
2508. Are those monthly bills for July, 1887, July, 1888, and July, 1889? Yes, one month in each year, the amounts are as follows:—July, 1887, £1 10s. 3d.; July, 1888, £1 13s. 6d.; July, 1889, £1 9s.
2509. Do you also produce poultry bills which you paid while you were in the institution? Yes; we used to have poultry three or four times a week.
2510. Do you also produce your tea bills? Yes.
2511. And your vegetable bills? Yes.
2512. Do you know Dr. Walter Brown? Very well.
2513. Was he in the habit of visiting the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
2514. Pretty frequently? He visited me very frequently, and if I was not in my quarters he would go to wherever I was in the building. He took particular interest in the institution, and if there was anything fresh going on he always exhibited a great interest in it, as did also his wife and his daughters.
2515. And I suppose you took him round the institution to explain any alterations? Yes, not only recently but during past years.
2516. Mr. Ritchie.] What was his purpose when he came to the institution? He was always my medical man.
2517. And attended you and your family? Yes.
2518. Mr. Bourke.] With reference to the tradesmen's bills, how many in family were there;—how many children? Five when I left the asylum.
2519. And yourself and Mr. Cunyngame? Yes; and sometimes a female servant.
2520. Besides the poultry, were you in the habit of procuring fish? Yes; two or three times a week.
2521. Then besides meat, you had poultry and fish at your own expense? Yes, continually.
2522. Do you know the Rev. Canon Gunther, of Parramatta? Yes.
2523. Was he in the habit of visiting the institution? Yes, repeatedly.
2524. Every week? Every week.
2525. On Sundays? No; every Thursday, and occasionally on Sunday morning; we had service every Sunday morning.
2526. And did you not have a service every alternate Thursday? Yes.
2527. Then sometimes he would come as often as twice a week? Yes, repeatedly, and oftener.
2528. Mr. Ritchie.] What did he do when he came? He would come in and see me, and go and see perhaps one or two of the old men, or he would want an old man for a friend or for himself.
2529. And did he view the institution throughout? He always seemed to take an interest in the institution.
2530. Did he walk through the Institution? Not each time he came, but if there was anything going on he was always interested in it.
2531. Mr. Bourke.] He held service for the Church of England? Yes.
2532. And he would see all those men, of course? Oh, yes; and he used to have chats with them.
2533. Mr. Kidd.] He used to look after their spiritual condition I suppose? Yes; and very often other wants.
2534. But that was his principal business? Yes.
2535. Mr. Bourke.] Do you know Dr. Phillips? Yes.
2536. Did he come frequently to the institution? Only if he was required. He was not like Dr. Browne.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame;
3 Sept., 1889:

2537. How often would he be required? Sometimes twice a week, sometimes not for a month. It all depended on what there was for him to do. He was generally called in for Dr. Violette; after Dr. Violette came he was repeatedly there.
2538. Did you generally trust Peter Abbott to receive the stores? No; I did not trust him for this reason: they would come in in the afternoon, and would not be required until next morning, and if I were away from the building when they arrived I would walk down and see them on my return. They would be left on the table for me to look at.
2539. And if any of the goods were of inferior quality what would you do? I would send a messenger off with them direct to the different contractors. It was only the groceries that came in the afternoon, and they were not required until the next morning.
2540. You remember the case of Holmes? Perfectly well.
2541. Did that man ever ask you to be allowed to go to Newington? He was always allowed; it was an understood thing.
2542. Did he ever ask you? Yes.
2543. Did you ever refuse? Never.
2544. And on several occasions you allowed him to go? For eighteen months he was in the habit of going to Newington to see his wife.
2545. How long was it after Mr. Maxted's appointment that his wife died? It was on the 7th August, 1888.*
2546. And when he went crying to Mr. Maxted? It was after his wife's death.
2547. What caused him to cry, the death of his wife? She had died without his seeing her, or knowing anything about her illness.
2548. That was because a letter was not delivered to him at the time? He did not even know then about the letter; it was on Saturday that the letter came, and his wife had died during the week. I gave him an order or the cash to go and see his wife, and when he got there she was dead. I saw him coming in, and I spoke a few words of sympathy to him. I said—"What have you got in that parcel, Holmes?" and he said—"I have my wife's few duds"; and I sympathized with him, and he went into the yard. The next thing that occurred was that Mr. Maxted brought up this letter that I had given Holmes.
2549. Mr. Williamson.] Can you tell me when Mr. King retired? I cannot give you the date exactly.
2550. Can you tell me what time in 1887? No; he was ill for several months before he resigned.
2551. Could you give me about the date? We saw very little of him the latter part of 1887.
2552. Up to the time that Mr. King retired you had settled with him with regard to all matters relative to the inmates' moneys and everything else? With the exception of one or two accounts.
2553. Accounts of living inmates? I could not tell unless I saw the book.
2554. If Mr. King resigned in November, 1887, how long was it before he resigned that you settled up with him? Three or four months.
2555. Then that would be somewhere about August? He was ill at his house, and I went to him and asked him if he would have a settling-up, and he said, "No, Mrs. Cunynghame; it will be all right; it is perfectly safe in your hands." After Mr. King's resignation Mr. Rossiter did the work.
2556. Can you tell me when you settled up with Mr. King? Mr. King will tell you that; I could not state the date.
2557. In order to refresh your memory, will you kindly look at Mr. King's cash-book for 1885 and show me one item where you have settled up with Mr. King? I cannot tell from Mr. King's book.
2558. Will you swear that from May 25th, 1885, up to the time of Mr. King's retirement you ever paid him any money? Of course I did.
2559. Can you give me any date of payments of fat moneys made to Mr. King from 1885 up to the time he retired? According to the diary, page 342, Mr. King received £3 18s. 4d. on the 23rd of January, 1885.
2560. Is that the last? I could not say, this is only one.
2561. Is that the only item you have? Mr. King, I think, will be able to give you all this information.
2562. I want it from you? I should have to go back through all the diaries.
2563. Will you kindly let me know if you ever paid Mr. King anything after that date? I think this will have to be left for Mr. King to give you the information.
2564. Can you show me from Abbott's books where you paid Mr. King from that date you have just mentioned up to the time of his retirement? I made payments to him frequently.
2565. On account of fat moneys? Anything at all—everything.
2566. Can you show me in any book where you accounted for a cheque of £2 12s. 4d., received on the 30th July, 1885, from Pritchard Bros. for fat? I would not be able to do so unless I saw the diary.
2567. You have a book? I have not the dates.
2568. You gave the Committee certain dates a few moments ago? Those were out of the cash-book.
2569. Will you point out to me in that book where you paid any amount of £2 12s. 4d. received from Pritchard Bros. for fat on the 30th July? Yes; here is an entry, "Pritchard Bros., £2 12s. 4d." This is a list of all cheques I got from Pritchard Bros., they have been paid over.
2570. Where is the item £2 12s. 4d. on the 30th July in that book? Here is the item £2 12s. 4d., but it does not say the date.
2571. Mr. Ritchie.] Have you any record of having paid any lump sums to Mr. King? Yes; I see looking in old book that the sum I paid him was £12 7s. 3d.
2572. Mr. Williamson.] Looking at the list in the book marked "K," does that indicate all the moneys you have received and have paid to Mr. King? Yes.
2573. Will you turn over to the name of Simeon Wilson? Yes; I know all about Simeon Wilson. This money amounting to £4 7s. 6d. I believe was paid over to his friends who came from Newcastle.
2574. That man died on the 14th July, 1886, did he not? Yes.
2575. You did not pay that money to Mr. King? No, I do not say I did; I gave it to Simeon Wilson's friends.
2576. Consider again and see what moneys you paid to Mr. King out of all those, and what moneys you did not—just say to whom you paid these moneys? I do not say the cheques were paid, but the cash has been paid; not all at one time.

2577.

* NOTE (on revision).—Mr. Maxted charges me with disobeying his orders repeatedly in this case, and he made false representations to Sir Henry Parkes. Mr. Maxted did not see Holmes on his first or second visit. Maria Holmes died on the 7th August, 1888.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngname.
3 Sept., 1889.
2577. Mr. Bourke.] Are there any moneys entered there that you have paid to other persons besides Mr. King? The money paid to Simeon Wilson's friends.
2578. Any other? Paid to Neil Stuart, on behalf of Michael Toohey, £1.
2579. Any other? Edmund Still.
2580. What about that? It has been paid to Mr. King.
2581. Mr. Williamson.] Do you swear that Still's money was paid to Mr. King? Yes.
2582. Are you positive about that? Yes.
2583. Can you tell us on what date? I cannot, unless I can look at the margin of the diary.
2584. But that was all written at one time, was it not? It was taken from slips of paper.
2585. Will you swear that the list was not written at one and the same time? I could not swear that.
2586. That is not your handwriting? No.
2587. Mr. Ritchie.] Did Mr. King ever give you any receipt for these moneys? Only in the diary.
2588. He wrote in the diary himself? Yes, in the margin.
2589. You paid him these moneys when he came to the asylum? Yes.
2590. Or did you send them to him? In the case of cheques, I sent them to him by post, but when it was cash, I paid it to him when he came to the asylum.
2591. And what entries did you make—what receipt did you take? Only in the margin of the diary.
2592. And that diary is not here? No; there are two or three books, because these transactions extend over a long time.
2593. Mr. Williamson.] Was not that list written at one and the same time? I am unable to say.
2594. Why was it written there—on those pages X Y Z? It was taken from other entries on slips of paper and all sorts of rough entries.
2595. Did you never pay any moneys to Mr. King from the time you went to the institution up to 1885? Of course I did.
2596. Where is that list? When once the payments were entered in the diary I had nothing further to do with them.
2597. Did you not swear that the list already referred to was a complete list of the moneys you received and which you paid to Mr. King up to time of his retirement? I believe so.
2598. Do you swear that you received no moneys previous to that—you see certain dates at the top—you see Pritchard's cheques? Yes, I see Pritchard's cheques; they were all taken down on different pieces of paper.
2599. What I want you to explain is this. There is a list of names and the last item of Pritchard's cheques is dated 10/6/86, then you see a list of names.—Do you mean to swear that from the time you entered the institution up to the time Mr. King retired that was the only amount of living inmates' moneys you paid to Mr. King? To the best of my belief it was.
2600. Did you keep any account book besides that? No; the items were all on slips of paper until I got Mr. King's authority for that book.
2601. Mr. Bourke.] Did these slips show the amount you paid to Mr. King? No.
2602. Mr. Williamson.] Where is your list of dead men's moneys? Here in this book.
2603. Can you tell me what persons on this list are dead? They are all dead.
2604. If they are all dead how is it that that list is not included in this book? There are no names there.
2605. Will you look at that book marked "C" and tell the Committee how it is that the moneys of those men, who were living when they went into the institution, were not entered in that book? Because the other book was exhausted.
2606. Will you kindly say how it is that that list of inmates' moneys was not included in the book marked "C"? Because that has all been settled for.
2607. You see that Simeon Wilson's name is included in this book? Yes, 1886.
2608. Well how is it his name is included in that book. First of all you started with this one? Perhaps he came in a second time.
2609. Will you swear that he came in a second time? No, I could not without looking at the books.
2610. You say that the reason this list was made out was because the other book was exhausted. I will give you one item to start with—when did Simeon Wilson die? On the 14th July, 1886. That man was only in the institution four or five days.
2611. You say the reason that this list was made out was because the previous book was exhausted, and it was not in that book; now I am pointing out to you, first of all, that Simeon Wilson's name is in the book marked "C." Can you give me any explanation of that? That has been paid over.
2612. You have sworn that this list was a list that was not put in those books in consequence of those books being exhausted; now I point out to you, first of all, that the name of Simeon Wilson appears in the book? Yes, but I could not put it in this book when he was dead.
2613. But it is in that book. You have it in this list and you have it in the book? Well Mr. King will give you the information you require about that.
2614. I want you to give us the information. I want to know how it is that you have Simeon Wilson's name in that book, and also in the list? Well, through the neglect of Abbott if there is anything in it.
2615. Mr. Bourke.] The entry of Simeon Wilson's name on the list might have been taken from the book. Do you know whether that is so—you will observe that Simeon Wilson's account in book "C" is marked closed? Yes.
2616. And you have it entered here amongst the closed accounts in this book? Yes, I say still that it is closed.
2617. Consequently is it not probable that you took this entry from the book as it was a closed account? Yes.
2618. Mr. Williamson.] Do you admit then that most of the names on this list were taken out of the book? You must make a little allowance for me inasmuch as this book was taken away from me in a hurry.
2619. Mr. Bourke.] When did you last see this book? On the day of my suspension.
2620. Mr. Williamson.] You have sworn that that book contains a list of the moneys you paid to Mr. King? I believe so.
2621. You have sworn that the list on pages X Y Z is a list of moneys you settled up with Mr. King? Yes.
2622. Then I ask you the plain question, how it is that Simeon Wilson's name is entered in the book marked "C" when you have sworn that the reason why the list was made out was because the book was exhausted? Yes, I believe it was exhausted when the clerk asked me for another. 2623.

2623. Mr. Ritchie.] This was money you received from Wilson? Yes.
 2624. And you entered it in this book as being paid to Mr. King? No. The man came in and he only remained a few days, and his friends came to the institution and asked for this money. Whether I paid them the money in the presence of Mr. King, or whether Mr. King paid it to them for me, I am unable to say just now without a little consideration.
 2625. Then this book does not indicate that all these moneys were paid to Mr. King? No; it indicates settled accounts as far back as I could get a record of.
 2626. And you are not able to inform the Committee how you disbursed this sum of £4 7s. 6d.? I cannot say whether I gave it to the man's own friends. I have two letters.
 2627. You cannot say whether you gave it to his own friends or to Mr. King? It was given in the presence of Mr. King.
 2628. Mr. Bourke.] You are quite positive they got it, either from you or from Mr. King? Yes; and I think I paid it in the presence of Mr. King.
 2629. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect receiving a copy of that? (Paper handed to witness.) Yes; I remember that perfectly well.
 2630. Have you got the original? It is in the diary.
 2631. Will you read the document? It is as follows:—

Macquarie-street Asylum, 8/4/85.

Memo.—In reference to your memo., 1/4/85, relative to the services of deputy in cancer ward, also the services of the fever-cottage warder and female erysipelas wardswomen, although absolutely they are not in this case doing duty, their money is distributed amongst others whose avocations are not shown in the pay abstract, viz.: carpenter, tinsmith, shoemaker, milk-man, and second gardener and others.
 S. CUNYNGHAME,
 The Manager.

- 2631½. Will you read the endorsement on that memo.? The endorsement is as follows:—

This explanation shows that you receive £1 16s. 2d. for which you do not produce receipts. Allen, Fleming, and Jackson have signed for what they have not received. This arrangement must not be continued. If it is necessary that the carpenter, tinsmith, &c., should receive pay their names should appear on the pay-sheet. You are exposed to much blame in this matter, as the pay-sheet is wrongly acquitted.—P. KING, 10/4/85.

2632. You received that notification from Mr. King? Yes; and the pay-sheets were altered accordingly.
 2633. Mr. Kidd.] There is an entry in Mr. King's cash-book of £12 1s. 7d. received from the Macquarie-street Asylum on account of inmates;—how did Mr. King get that money? By cheque. It represents half the inmates' pension money. When the cheque would come from the pension office it would be banked to my account, and I would keep half the amount and would send the other half to the Sydney office.

THURSDAY, 6 SEPTEMBER, 1889.

Present:—

Mr. KIDD, | Mr. CRICK,
 Mr. RITCHIE, | Mr. EDMUNDS,
 Mr. HAWTHORNE.

JOHN KIDD, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR, pro tem.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared as counsel for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sarah Cunyngame, called in and further examined:—

2634. Mr. Williamson.] You said on the last day that the receipts for these moneys that were spoken of were initialled by Mr. King in the margins of the diaries? Some of them, I could not say all.
 2635. Will you take the diary and point out any items of money paid to Mr. King being either the money of deceased inmates or fat money? Here is an entry on 23rd January, 1885, as follows: "Pritchard's account and their cheque for fat £3 18s. 4d. to the Manager." Opposite to this, there is this entry in the margin by Mr. King, "Received, F.K." The cheque was received on 19th January and handed to Mr. King on the 23rd.
 2636. There is a cross over the sum of £3 18s. 4d., whose mark is that? It is yours I suppose; I never put crosses to anything.
 2637. Do you know what the object was in putting that cross? I could not say. It looks as if it was recently done; it is in pencil.
 2638. Will you look through the diary from 19th January, 1885, up to the time of Mr. King's retirement and show me any receipt for inmates' moneys or fat moneys handed to him? I will give you the dates—first of all, 30th July, 1886, £2 12s. 4d.
 2639. Is there any entry there showing where Mr. King received that amount? No.
 2640. Mr. Bourke.] Did you get any other receipts from Mr. King besides those in the diary? Yes; many others. There is a small bundle of receipts from Mr. King at present in the Macquarie-street Asylum.
 2641. Mr. Williamson.] Then do you still persist in saying that whenever you paid either fat money or the money of dead inmates to Mr. King he gave you a receipt in the diary? He did not always give a receipt in the diary, sometimes he gave other receipts.
 2642. On how many occasions did he give you a receipt in the diary for fat money? I am not able to say.
 2643. How many cheques did you receive for fat in 1885, only one? On the 23rd January, 1885.
 2644. Did you receive any other cheques? Yes; 3/8/85 and 2/10/85.
 2645. Did you hand those to Mr. King? Not cheques.
 2646. Did you hand him cash? I paid him cash.
 2647. How do you account for entering the receipt of the first payment in the diary, and not the receipt of the other two? Because, I was going to make an arrangement with Mr. King.
 2648. Did you make that arrangement? Yes.
 2649. In 1885? About that time.

Mrs. S.
 Cunyngame.
 3 Sept., 1889.

Mrs. S.
 Cunyngame.
 5 Sept., 1889.

2650.

- Mrs. S. Cunyngame.
5 Sept., 1889.
2650. Have you kept any entry of a cheque paid to you by Pritchard Bros. on 30th July, 1886, for £2 12s. 4d.? In that book with the leaves torn out there is an entry.
2651. Did you make any entry of it in the diary? No.
2652. Why? Because I was making an arrangement with Mr. King.
2653. You say the arrangement was made in 1885? It continued on.
2654. What was the arrangement? The arrangement was that if I occasionally got a cheque Mr. King would save the money up to buy a piano for the institution.
2655. Was that the reason why it was not entered in the diary? No; there was no special reason.
2656. Can you not give any explanation why you omitted these entries from the diary? It was optional as to whether I made entries in the diary or not. The diary was a book—
2657. For the supervision of the manager when he came? Yes, or anybody else.
2658. Mr. Ritchie.] A book in which to record anything eventful? Yes. I was not compelled to make entries in the diary.
2659. Mr. Bourke.] I understand that you held over this sum of £2 12s. 4d., and did not pay it to Mr. King? Yes; until three or four payments had accumulated.
2660. Mr. Ritchie.] You were holding them back in order to purchase a piano for the institution? Yes, I wanted Mr. King's authority to purchase the piano, and I wanted to keep this money until I got sufficient.
2661. You had Mr. King's authority before you held it back? Yes.
2662. Mr. Williamson.] On the last day you gave us a list of cheques as follows:—December, 1887, £2 10s. 5d.; September, 1887, £2 9s. 7d.; February 18th, 1888, £2 14s. 11d.; July 18th, £1 17s. 6d.; January 6th, £2 9s. That is perfectly correct? Yes; I believe so.
2663. Did you not receive a cheque for £3 2s. on the 29th July, 1887? I cannot say.
2664. Have you no record of the receipt of the sum of £3 2s.—have you nothing by which you can check the receipt of these moneys? Only at the end of the book marked K.
2665. Is there any such item there? No.
2666. Mr. Crick.] You cannot say whether you received it or not? I cannot.
2667. Mr. Williamson.] What check have you? The papers.
2668. Mr. Ritchie.] When you received any money, did you enter it in this book—is this a record of all the moneys you received? Only as I passed them over to Mr. King.
2669. Then this is simply a record of what you paid to Mr. King? Yes.
2670. Did you keep a correct record of all the moneys you received and paid away? I kept a receipt on the back of one of these for whatever I sent away—for cheques; that is, money in my possession. If I gave that up, I would get a receipt, or something acknowledging the receipt of the cheque.
2671. And you never entered it in your book? No, because I wanted to keep this money. Even now, if I had been settling up with Mr. Maxted, I would have asked him to allow me to purchase the piano with these fat moneys that have accumulated.
2672. What was your reason for not keeping a record of these moneys? I thought matters would be settled up; I did not think they would go on so long.
2673. Mr. Williamson.] Have you any record of the cheque for £3 2s. on 29th July, 1887, and where did you keep it? I am unable to say just now.
2674. Where did you keep a record of the cheques received for fat in book K? Yes, cheques paid away.
2675. But the cheques received for fat? I would keep those until I paid them away.
2676. But where did you keep the record? In the despatch-box.
2677. You did not keep them in any book? No, I kept them simply in the form of accounts from Pritchard Bros.
2678. As a matter of fact, within a month after the receipt of each of these cheques, did you not have them paid into your account at Parramatta? Yes.
2679. Then if you had them paid into your account within a month after their receipt they could not be in the despatch-box? These bills of Pritchard Bros. are a check on the moneys? But even that money is in the bank, and I am waiting to hand it over.
2680. Mr. Kidd.] Did you keep any record except Pritchard's bills? No.
2681. Mr. Williamson.] Does not the diary show the receipt of a cask of fat by Pritchard Bros. on the 1st January, 1886? Yes; to be repaid in soap.
2682. Is there not an entry of a cask of fat forwarded to Pritchard Bros. on February 19? Yes.
2683. And another entry of a cask of fat to Pritchard Bros. on 8th November? Yes.
2684. And on 13th December do you find that one cask of fat was forwarded to Pritchard Bros.? Yes.
2685. On 6th January, 1887, is there an entry of a cask of fat forwarded to Pritchard Bros.? Yes.
2686. Do you see an entry on the 9th February, 1887, of one cask of fat forwarded to Pritchard Bros.
2687. On 11th March, 1887, according to the diary, was a cask of fat forwarded to Pritchard Bros.? Yes.
2688. Is there also an entry of a cask of fat forwarded to Pritchard Bros. on May 2nd, 1887? Yes.
2689. Do you see also, on 8th June, 1887, an entry in the diary of a cask of fat forwarded to Pritchard Bros.? Yes.
2690. On July 27th there is an entry, "man headed up cask of fat,"—was that forwarded to Pritchard Bros.? In exchange for soap.
2691. What does the entry say? "Cask of fat, which was to be forwarded to Messrs. Pritchard in exchange for soap." The entry in regard to this fat is as follows:—
"Alfred Carr, the deputy bathman, who being by trade a cooper, was employed before dinner in heading up a cask of fat, which was to be forwarded to Messrs. Pritchard in exchange for soap, poured some water into a recently emptied run hogshead, made himself so intoxicated that he fell down in the mess-room at dinner time, and, after being brought outside, lay in a state of insensibility for some considerable time. He was, after recovering his senses, assisted to the bath-room, where he fell on the ground, cutting his head, and bleeding very profusely. Edward Butler and James Wymie were also intoxicated at dinner, but were able to continue their work after dinner."
2692. What became of the cask of fat? I suppose it remained there if it was not sent to Pritchard Bros.
2693. It either remained there or was sent to Pritchard Bros.? Yes. I might have got a cheque for it.
2694. Did you sell it to anybody else? Certainly not.
2695. There is an entry in the diary on the 27th July, 1887, that a cask of fat was headed up. I ask you plainly plainly and distinctly what became of that cask of fat. Do you remember that particular cask of fat? I remember the men getting drunk, and I remember the cask of fat.

2696. Do you remember what became of it? It went to Pritchard Bros.; I had no arrangement with anybody else.

2697. Will you turn over to September 6th? On that date there is this entry, "A memo. was sent to Messrs. Pritchard, advising them having forwarded to them a cask of fat."

2698. Mr. Kidd.] With regard to the fat sent that day? Yes. I always advised them, so that they might send to the railway.

2699. Mr. Williamson.] The cask of fat referred to in the entry on the 27th July could not be the same cask of fat that was sent on September 6th? It might have been.

2700. Do you mean to swear that? It might have been. The men got so drunk that I do not suppose they completed what they were doing.

2701. Did it take them six weeks to get sober? There might have been another cask added to it.

2702. Mr. Ritchie.] What was about the average quantity of fat that accumulated? I always reckon that I got about a ton of soap a year in exchange for the fat.

2703. But how much fat did you accumulate? The contents of a hogshead. The quantity varied according to the quality of the meat; sometimes the cask would fill quickly, and at other times it would take longer.

2704. Can you give a rough idea? I should say it took about six weeks to fill it.

2705. The cask that was made up on the 27th July, when the men got drunk, was full at the time? There was an empty run cask which we intended to use as an additional cask for the fat, but the men got drunk over the empty run cask, and did not complete the full cask they were heading up. It was to be exchanged for soap, and I remember that we had to wait for the soap.

2706. Mr. Crick.] As it was to be exchanged for soap you would not in any case have received a cheque for it? No.

2707. Mr. Williamson.] You entered in the diary every occasion on which fat was forwarded to Pritchard Bros. in exchange for soap, and how is it that you did not also enter the occasions when you forwarded to Pritchard Bros. fat which was paid for by cheque? I have already explained in regard to cash received for fat, that I had Mr. King's authority for holding it for the purpose of purchasing a piano for the institution.

2708. Mr. Kidd.] If you did not send a memo. to Pritchard Bros. that they were to send soap in exchange for the fat, they would take it for granted, I suppose, that they would have to send a cheque? No; I always wrote to tell them when I preferred a cheque for the fat.

2709. Mr. Ritchie.] The question Mr. Williamson wishes you to answer is this—when you forwarded fat to Pritchard Bros. and wanted soap in exchange, you always made an entry in the diary; why did you not also make an entry in the diary in respect of the fat you forwarded for which you were to receive a cheque? When I paid Mr. King the first cheque in 1885, I had a conversation with him in which I asked if he would allow me to save up these moneys in order to buy a piano for the institution, and he agreed to the proposal. There was no arrangement made as to whether it should be entered in the diary. There was no mention made of entering it in the diary. I was neither instructed to enter it in the diary nor not to do so.

2710. Mr. Williamson.] What I want to know is this—when you wanted soap in exchange for the fat you entered it in the diary. When you wanted money in exchange for the fat did you also enter it in the diary? No, but I sent a memo. just the same.

2711. What was your reason for not making those entries in the diary? I can only say that I had no reason whatever.

2712. Mr. Crick.] You say you always sent a memo. to Pritchard Bros.;—if they have got those memos. I suppose they can be produced? Yes.

2713. Mr. Williamson.] You entered the cask of fat sent to Pritchard Bros. as a check upon what you sent away? No.

2715. Did you weigh the fat yourself before sending it away? No; I had no means of weighing.

2716. You trusted Pritchard Bros.? Yes.

2717. Then your explanation is this—that when you wanted soap you always entered in the diary, "cask of fat in exchange for soap"? Always.

2718. And when you wanted money, you never entered "cask of fat" at all, or that you wanted money? No.

2719. Mr. Ritchie.] Did you keep any record at all of the fat you sent away for money? When soap came a memorandum form was forwarded by Pritchard Bros., informing me that two and a half boxes of soap had been sent. When I required a cheque I sent a memorandum saying "kindly forward cheque in exchange for fat," and a cheque would be forwarded to me accompanied by a memo. of the weight of the fat.

2720. Mr. Williamson.] But you made no entry in the diary? No.

2721. Mr. Ritchie.] Then the only record you had of the casks of tallow sent to Pritchard Bros. which were paid for by money is contained in these receipts or memoranda from Pritchard Bros., giving the weight of each cask of fat as it was forwarded? Yes. Had Mr. Maxted or Mr. Rossiter settled up these money matters I would not have had even such records as I have. You might have come to me in twelve months time and said "Where on earth are your records?" The Director with whom I settled up would have taken these documents, and I should have had nothing at all. I acknowledge that I did wrong in this respect.

2722. Mr. Crick.] You mean that there was a bad system of book-keeping? Yes.

2723. Mr. Ritchie.] During the whole course of your dealings with Pritchard Bros. did you supply the institution with soap received for the fat? There may have been one box of soap purchased just before my dismissal, but I will not be positive. I have a slight recollection of purchasing soap but only on one occasion since 1882, but whether it was a few bars or a box of soap I am unable to say.

2724. There was no other soap purchased? No.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame
6 Sept., 1889.

2725. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at that paper [paper handed to witness];—do you not see there a number of purchases of soap? This refers to Parranatta generally, and not to the Macquarie-street Asylum. I think you are wrong.

2726. Those purchases were in 1886? In 1886 and 1888—February and March, 1888.

2727. Mr. Bourke.] At any rate if those supplies of soap were sent to the Macquarie-street Asylum you have no remembrance of them? No.

2728. Mr. Ritchie.] You did not speak positively just now. I understood you to say that to the best of your memory only one purchase of soap was made? Yes; I did not even think then that I was correct.

2729. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at those vouchers and read them to the Committee? The first is dated June, 1886, is signed by me, and is for the delivery of 224 lb. of soap supplied to the Macquarie-street Asylum, the amount being £1 10s. The next voucher is dated July, 1886, is initialled by me—the quantity of soap is 112 lb., and the amount 17s. 6d.; the next is dated August, 1886—the quantity of soap is 112 lb., and the amount 17s. 6d., and the voucher is also initialled by me. The others are as follows:—September, 1886, 224 lb. of soap, £1 15s.; February, 1888, 112 lb. soap, 15s. 2d.; March, 1888, 112 lb., 15s. 2d.

2730. Can you tell me how long the inquiry of the Asylums Board continued at your institution? I think the Board was only there about six weeks.

2731. Was not the inquiry going on from August, 1886, to May, 1887? I think so.

2732. Can you account to the Committee how it was that, pending that inquiry, you never received any money, but only soap, from Messrs. Pritchard? I suppose we were extra clean and required more.

2733. Extra clean? Extra particular.

2734. You admitted on the last day that in September, 1887—five or six weeks after the inquiry was concluded—you received a cheque from Pritchard Brothers for fat amounting to £3 9s. 7d. Can you give the Committee any explanation how it was that you started again to receive cheques after the Asylums Board had concluded its inquiry? No; I had no motive whatever, except that I was anxious to purchase the piano.

2735. Can you explain why it was that for twelve months, while the Board was sitting, you were not anxious to purchase the piano? We required the soap then; I can give no other reason.

2736. Can you give us any explanation of how it was that according to your own admission, though you received a cheque for £2 12s. 4d. on the 30th July, 1888, you discontinued receiving cheques from that day which was seven or eight days before the Asylums Board commenced its inquiry? No, I cannot give you any reason.

2737. Do you know when the Inquiry Board visited your institution? I think they came on the 6th August, 1886. I think we were extra careful for fear we would be scrutinized.

2738. Do you recollect saying to the Asylums Board that you only received soap in exchange for fat? No; I did not say that. I would have had no motive in telling a lie.

2739. Do you recollect giving this evidence before the Asylums Board:

6394. What is done with the fat which accumulates? The fat I exchange for soap.

6395. Where do you send it? To Mr. Pritchard's, at Camperdown.

6396. Do you send it direct or through the office? Direct.

6397. What is the quantity of fat which you are able to send away in that manner? About once in four months I send a 36-gallon cask, which by that time is generally nearly full. The quantity of fat depends upon the quality of the meat. During the last three or four months the meat has been very much better, and the quantity of fat has therefore been very much larger. Prior to that it used often to take six or eight months to fill the cask.

6398. When was this arrangement made? I think I ought to tell you that the arrangement with Pritchard is one which I have made myself of my own motion. Previous to about eighteen months ago Mr. Dunn, who is the person with whom I transact all business relating to the meat contract, used to demand this fat from me.

6399. On what ground? I do not know. He asked me if I would permit him to take it, and so carry out the same arrangement which he told me was carried out at George-street. I asked the Manager about it, and he said that I must not give the fat to Mr. Dunn, but that I might sell it to him, in which case I must produce a check, and hand it to the Manager. I tried that plan; but there was no means of weighing the fat, and Mr. Dunn used to fetch the fat and give me for it whatever he chose to consider its value. I thought this arrangement unsatisfactory, and I then made the arrangement to which I have referred with Mr. Pritchard, by means of which I obtained an exchange of soap for the use of the institution.—?

Yes.

2740. As a matter of fact, a month before you gave that evidence, did you not receive a cheque from Pritchard Bros. for fat? Yes; I must have done so, if you say so.

2741. On the last day you stated that the total amount of the cheques received by you from Pritchard Bros. was £12 1s. 5d.? No; that is the total amount of the cheques I hold at present.

2742. At the present time do you not hold in your possession cheques for fat amounting to £17 15s. 9d.? I may. I have only got on my list a total of £12 1s. 5d., and there is, in addition, an amount—about which I am doubtful—of £3 2s., which would make £15 3s. 6d.

2743. Mr. Crick.] Here is an entry of a cheque for £2 12s. 4d. for fat;—was that paid to Mr. King? I am doubtful about that; but I cannot account for its being there unless it was settled up.

2744. Mr. Kidd.] If you have not paid these two cheques of £3 2s. and £2 12s. 4d., that will just make the total amount in your possession £17 15s. 9d., the sum mentioned by Mr. Williamson? Yes.

2745. Mr. Crick.] To put this matter in a nutshell, you admit having cheques to the amount of £12 1s. 5d.? Yes.

2746. There is £2 12s. 4d. you say you may have paid to Mr. King? Yes.

2747. And there is £3 2s. that at the present time you cannot explain? Yes; but I think I will be able to explain it.

2748. Those three sums make a total of £17 15s. 9d.? Yes.

2749. Mr. Williamson.] You said in your previous evidence that Mr. King gave receipts in the diary;—where is the receipt in the diary for the sum of £2 12s. 4d.? I presume it has been paid to Mr. King, but I am not sure. I cannot account for its being in the book unless it has been paid.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
5 Sept., 1889.

2750. You have looked at the vouchers from February to March, 1888, showing that you were supplied with 2 cwt. of soap for the institution? Yes.
2751. You have admitted receiving from Pritchard Bros. during the time they contracted to supply you with soap two sums of money, on the 6th January and the 14th February, the amounts being respectively £2 9s. and £2 14s. 11d.? I do not doubt but what I did.
2752. Can you give any explanation of how it was that knowing the institution wanted soap you received cheques? Because I was anxious to get a piano for the asylum.
2753. Mr. Crick.] Was the soap that was purchased ordinary soap, or was it perfumed or fancy soap? It was ordinary soap. I expect it was got in this way, I may have been busy, and one of the head wardsmen wanted perhaps ten or twenty bars of soap in a hurry.
2754. Mr. Williamson.] That would not come to 1 cwt.? We could not get less than 1 cwt. from the contractor.
2755. Mr. Crick.] You say you think this is how it occurred—that probably the head wardsmen wanted soap in a hurry and delivered this order? Yes.
2756. Mr. Williamson.] Did you keep a stock-book? Yes.
2757. Do you swear that you kept a stock-book showing what the contractors brought in and how it was disposed of? The goods were brought in by the contractors according to daily requisition. The daily requisition book was the only check I had.
2758. Mr. Crick.] Were these things supplied daily? Yes; everything was ordered day by day—the meat, bread, flour, tea, and everything that was required.
2759. Mr. Bourke.] You had a stock-book in which you kept an account of the flannel and calicoes? Yes; and the brooms and all the hardware.
2760. Mr. Williamson.] Did you keep a stock-book with regard to soap? It was entered in the diary—the quantity that came.
2761. That is from the contractor? It would be on the requisition form.
2762. Will you look at book “K”—the first name is that of James Whitehead;—can you tell me when he died? On the 16th April, 1883.
2763. There is a sum of 12s. to his credit when he died? Yes.
2764. Will you read to the Committee the other names on the list? Michael Connor—there was a sum of £2 11s. 3d. to his credit, and he died on the 18th September, 1883; William Marsh—there was 13s. to his credit, and he died on the 10th August, 1884; John Butcher—he died on the 22nd May, 1884, and there was 12s. 3d. to his credit; George Potts had 13s. to his credit, and died on the 24th September, 1884; James Brennan had 18s. to his credit and died on the 20th December, 1884; J. G. Plummer had £1 5s. to his credit, and died on the 16th July, 1885; Thomas Hubbard had £3 10s. to his credit and died on the 18th February, 1885; Thomas Harding had £2 16s. 4d. to his credit, and died on the 10th June, 1885; John Brown had £1 8s. 4½d. to his credit, and died on the 15th September, 1885; Samuel White had 9s. 6d. to his credit, and died on the 26th December, 1885; Edmund Still, £2 to his credit, died 18th November, 1885; John Daley, 13s. 2d. to his credit, died 14th February, 1886; Thomas Colvin, 12s. 6d. to his credit, died 10th April, 1886; James Johnson, £1 8s. 9d. to his credit, died 9th May, 1886; Richard Cook, 10s. to his credit, died 17th June, 1886; George Grey, £5 10s. to his credit, died 20th November, 1884.
2765. Will you swear that George Grey did not die on the 2nd August, 1887? Not the one to whom I am referring; there might have been another George Grey.
2766. What is the amount to his credit? I have £5 down. I only remember one George Grey.
2767. Will you continue the list you were reading? James McFarlane, £2 17s. 4d., died 9th April, 1886; Simeon Wilson, £4 7s. 6d., died 14th July, 1886; John Beadon, 17s. 6d., died 26th July, 1886; Edward Macelroy, £2, died 9th July, 1886; Edward Arkey, 19s. 8d., died 25th October, 1887.
2768. Did you ever keep a list of the inmates' moneys deposited with you besides that contained in book “C”? Yes, in book marked “K” too.
2769. Is this book “K” after book “C” or before it? They are both together.
2770. Did you keep any other books besides these with regard to the inmates' moneys? Yes; I kept this book [marked U] prior to K 1.
2771. But this is simply a book of disbursements, and not of receipts. See if it is not a book of disbursements—moneys paid away? And cheques too—cheques paid into the bank, including inmates' moneys. It is a general book.
2772. Was it only in book “C” and book “O” that you kept a debit and credit account of the inmates' moneys? And also the red book; one is not complete without the other.
2773. Are these the only books that refer to the inmates' moneys—book “C,” book “K,” book “O,” and the last book put in marked “U”? Yes.
2774. You refer to a man named George Grey who you said had £5 to his credit and died on the 20th November, 1884;—can you show me in any of these books any entry relating to the receipt of his money and the disbursement of it? Grey never had any money issued to him.
2775. But you say that when he died he had £5 to his credit? That was forwarded to Mr. King.
2776. You say that Grey had £5 to his credit when he died on the 20th November, 1884. I want to know in what book you kept an entry of the deposit of that money, and how it was paid away? I simply gave it to Mr. King, as that small book will show.
2777. Prior to Grey's death? He died the day the money was taken from him. The George Grey to whom I refer is a man who is supposed to have appropriated money belonging to a man named Doherty. I did not know where the money was, and could not find any trace of it, but when Grey took very ill this money was found on him. He died either the same day or nearly so, and the money was paid over to Mr. King.
2778. Mr. Edmunds.] You said there was some book which would show the payments to Mr. King? I expect the receipt in this case will be amongst those which I have spoken of as being at the asylum. When I sent the money accompanied with a memorandum from the corner of the form would be turned back and returned to me with the word “received,” and that paper would be put among the other receipts.
2779. Mr. Williamson.] In book “C” you have a debit and credit account of certain inmates' moneys, showing when they were paid away;—have you any book to show when you received this money, and when it was paid away? No, I have not.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
5 Sept., 1880.

2780. Mr. Crick.] Does not this entry in the book which I hold in my hand show that it was paid to Mr. King? Yes; but there is no date.
2781. Mr. Kidd.] If the money was only received from the man just before he died I do not suppose you would open a debit and credit account? No; I did not know that he had this money in his possession.
2782. How did you come to enter it in that book;—I suppose from the slips to which you have referred? Yes. These entries were taken from slips of paper that were put in the despatch-box and which were a record of moneys there deposited.
2783. Mr. Edmunds.] Were they all entered in the book at the same time? No; at different times.
2784. Mr. Williamson.] You referred to a man named James Johnson; he died on the 9th May, 1886, having £1 8s. 9d. in his possession. Will you look at book "C" and show me any debit and credit account in Johnson's name? I do not see anything in book "C."
2785. Can you tell me how much he originally paid to you and how it was disbursed? Yes; I have the account here. The amount deposited was £1 15s. 9d. on the 2nd April, 1886. Various small sums were paid to him amounting in all to 10s., leaving a balance of £1 8s. 9d.
2786. There is nothing in that book to show what was done with the money? No.
2787. Nothing to show that Mr. King received it? No.
2788. Mr. Bourke.] The account is marked "closed"? Yes.
2789. Mr. Crick.] I suppose the book containing that account was open to the inspection of Mr. King? Yes; on the occasion when I paid him it would be open to him.
2790. Mr. Williamson.] The list in book "K" is taken partly from some of the books and partly from slips of paper in the despatch-box? Yes, after comparing the entries with the book in use.
2791. You have referred also to a man named Edmund Still who had £2 to his credit and who died on the 18th November, 1885; can you show where Still's name is in any of these books? The money Still had when he died was stolen from him, and when I obtained it I put it in the despatch-box to his credit.
2792. And you put in a slip of paper marked with his name? I have no doubt I could find the receipt.
2793. Mr. Kidd.] The amounts on the lists you read just now to the Committee may not all be accounted for in these books, but if they are not accounted for there they are accounted for on some slips that were put in the despatch-box? Yes; and the money has all been paid over to Mr. King.
2794. And you think you can find these slips? Yes, some of them.
2795. Mr. Williamson.] Then if there are no receipts amongst the receipts at Parramatta for the moneys of the persons to whom I have referred you have never handed over those moneys to Mr. King? Oh, no; I have handed them over to Mr. King, and he will say so in my presence.
2796. But if you have no receipts at Parramatta? No, I would not say that. You must take Mr. King's word. If he says they were not paid over to him I will stand the consequences.
2797. But you told us on the last day that you always got a receipt for these moneys? Not always.
2798. Mr. Kidd.] Abbott the clerk made these entries; he must have got them in some way. Are you sure he did not get them from books you have been keeping and from documents you have still got or that should be at Parramatta? No, I do not think I have the documents, because I considered the matters closed, and would attach no more importance to them. Those slips he took, and he closed the accounts in this book, and it was at my request that he entered about twelve names on one occasion.
2799. But how did you furnish him with the information;—was it from the books or from slips you had? From both. Where the names did not occur in the book they were obtained from slips which were deposited with the money in the cash-box.
2800. If money was obtained from a man the day before he died it was not entered in any book at all? No.
2801. For instance, when you got £5 from Grey on the same day that he died, you did not make it a point to enter that because there was no necessity to keep a debit and credit account? No; the money was merely rolled up in a paper and put in the despatch-box with a memo. of the date and the man's name.
2802. When no small sums were paid away to the inmates you did not think it necessary to open an account in the book? No.
2803. You stated on the last day that when Mr. King retired, or shortly before, you settled up all the accounts on that list? Yes, with the exception of one or two.
2804. Did you ever pay money to Mr. King in a lump? I paid it to him at various times as it accumulated. Whenever it was convenient to him I would go to the despatch-box, take these papers out, and give him the money.
2805. Would that transaction be entered in the diary? I do not think so.
2806. On the last day you stated that when Mr. King received these moneys he always initialled them on the margin of the diary? If an entry had been made for the purpose.
2807. Have you had a chance of looking through the diary during the adjournment? Yes.
2808. Can you show me amongst the items shown in the diary as having being received by Mr. King one of the items in book "K"? No; but there are several entries of money having been received by Mr. King from me.
2809. Pensioners' moneys? No, not pensioners' moneys.
2810. Then the only receipt you could have outside of the diary would be an ordinary receipt, which you say is amongst the bundle in the despatch-box? Yes.
2811. When you paid Mr. King the moneys of these men did you pay him by cheques or in cash? In cash.
2812. Did you never pay a cheque? I could not say I never did. We always settled up our money matters by my asking for so many advances on account of different men. £2 was what I was supposed to get. I would ask for £2 for certain people, and then at the end Mr. King would say, "There is only so much coming to you."
2813. Then you can trace no cheque that passed through your account where you had paid Mr. King for this list marked in book "K"? I have not looked.
2814. You furnished Mr. Maxted with a list of other moneys you had in your possession, and which are referred to by Mr. Maxted in his report, amounting to £33 7s. 9½d.? On the 12th September, 1888, I sent to Mr. Maxted £1 6s. by cheque.

2815. Will you look at Mr. Maxted's report of the 4th December;—you see there the list of moneys with a total of £33 7s. 9½d. ? Yes.
2816. You furnished Mr. Maxted with that list, did you not? I authorized a gentleman to do so for me—Mr. Gale.
2817. Where did you obtain that list from? From book "C."
2818. The book was in your possession? Yes.
2819. Do you swear that that is a correct list of the moneys of living inmates in your possession? I would not like to swear that without proper consideration.
2820. But surely you must have taken some consideration at the time? I took none whatever because I thought the matter would be settled up in a few hours. I had no idea it was going to be such a serious affair.
2821. As a matter of fact you furnished the list to Mr. Maxted? I did not; I authorized a friend to do so.
2822. I suppose you saw the list after it was prepared by Mr. Gale; did you go carefully through it? I did not.
2823. Then you cannot vouch for its correctness; the amount might be £50 for all you know? I consider it near the mark.
2824. Mr. Bourke.] Mr. Gale had the book to go by? Yes; I handed him the book, and asked him to give a list to Mr. Maxted of the open accounts. I made no reference to the deceased inmates. I only referred to those who were receiving weekly allowances, and it was in answer to a memorandum I received from Mr. Maxted stating that the men were asking for advances.
2825. Mr. Williamson.] Are you prepared to swear that that is a correct list? I would not like to swear it; I believe it is correct.
2826. Had you any moneys at all belonging to living inmates that were not entered up in the book "C"? Since reading the evidence of Abbott I believe there were three amounts in the despatch-box.
2827. Then there were three others in the despatch-box? I believe so; I did not know at the time.
2828. Has Mr. Maxted now got a complete account of all the moneys you received? Are there any moneys in your possession of which Mr. Maxted has not now a knowledge? He has the book, and I have the money.
2829. Whether by giving him the book or by memoranda, or in any other way, have you now informed Mr. Maxted of all the moneys belonging to living inmates that you have received? Yes.
2830. According to this list furnished in the despatch-box? No; I go according to that book.
2831. When Mr. Maxted assumed office, why did you not furnish him with a list of deceased inmates' moneys, living inmates' moneys, and fat moneys? It required a little conversation with Mr. Maxted, and I asked him when he had an hour or two to spare to sit down quietly and talk the matter over.
2832. Did you ever furnish him with any list? I did not; he did not ask me for one. He only said, "Wait until a more appropriate time," and that he would get slips printed, and we could talk the matter over.
2833. You furnished Mr. Maxted with a list of living inmates' moneys when called upon? I did.
2834. Did you, at the same time, furnish him with any list of deceased inmates' moneys? I did not.
2835. Can you give any explanation of that? Yes; I had never thought of it.
2836. Or the fat moneys? No; because I did not consider that was the time to settle up. And another thing, it was inconsistent on the part of Mr. Maxted to have repeated interviews during my suspension without granting me an inquiry in a proper manner. That is my reason. Mr. Maxted sent for me two or three times during one or two days, and it was not consistent.
2837. Then the only explanation you can give why you did not furnish a list of the fat moneys and deceased inmates' moneys at the time you furnished a list of the living inmates' moneys, is that you never thought of it? No; it would have required explanation from me to Mr. Maxted, which I was willing to furnish from the day of his appointment.
2838. Have you ever made out any list at all of the deceased inmates' moneys which you have in your possession? It was impossible for me to do so, as I was not in possession of the book.
2839. But you had book "C" in your possession up to the time of your inquiry? I had no idea I was to be suspended.
2840. But you had it for a week after your suspension? I was waiting to know what I was going to be dismissed for. I thought I could see Mr. Maxted and talk the matter quietly over.
2841. Mr. Crick.] I think it is already in evidence that you made several attempts to have an interview with Mr. Maxted? Yes.
2842. Mr. Williamson.] Can you supply the Committee with any list of dead inmates' moneys in your possession at the present time? I am unable to do so, because the book has been in Mr. Maxted's possession since my dismissal, and he would not meet me, although I repeatedly requested him to do so.
2843. Mr. Ritchie.] In his report of the 4th December Mr. Maxted says—"I should first state that soon after my appointment I asked the Superintendent if she held any moneys belonging to inmates, and she informed me that she did not"? That is not true.
2844. Then he says again—"I then directed that all collections from the men should be forwarded to the Sydney office, and this was done in a number of cases subsequently"? I do not remember any conversation of the kind. I repeatedly forwarded Mr. Maxted pension moneys.
2845. He says also—"On October 17th my order was repeated in writing"? I could not settle these money matters without having a conversation with Mr. Maxted, and each time I asked him he declined.
2846. Is it a fact that he did repeat this order in writing? No; not that order. He never gave me the order, so that he could not repeat it.
2847. Mr. Williamson.] Will you look at this letter from Mr. Maxted to yourself, dated 9th of August, 1888, and kindly read it to the Committee? It is as follows:—

Madam,

9 August, 1888.

As it is intended to liquidate all accounts of the Department as far as possible, will you have the goodness to forward, on the last day of each month, a complete statement of your claim for money expenses as petty-cash, with the necessary vouchers attached, as also a statement of all moneys received, in order that there may be no inconvenience in carrying out the new arrangements in connection with the books in the Sydney office.

I have, &c.

2848. Mr. Ritchie.] Referring to these words in Mr. Maxted's report of the 4th of December, "On October 17th my order was repeated in writing." Do you admit receiving that order in writing having reference to inmates' moneys? No.

2849.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
5 Sept., 1839.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame,
5 Sept., 1889.

2849. That is the written order? No; it has no reference to inmates' moneys. Mr. Maxted in his report of the 4th of December says:—"I then directed that all collections from the men should be forwarded to Sydney office, and this was done in a number of cases subsequently."

2850. What were these moneys you forwarded? Pension moneys belonging to the inmates. On the 12th of September, I sent a cheque to Mr. Maxted for £1 5s.; on October the 18th, I sent him a cheque for £14 5s.; on the 25th of the same month, I sent a cheque to Mr. Maxted for £11 19s. 7d., and on the 3rd of November, I sent him a cheque for £3.

2851. Did you also receive this letter from Mr. Maxted:—

Madam,

I have the honor to request that you will be so good as to have an account made up on the last day in each month of the sums received by you during the month under the head of collections, and forward the same, with remittance, to this office, that the necessary returns may be forwarded to meet the requirements of the Auditor-General.

I have, &c.,

17 October, 1888.
SYDNEY MAXTED,
Director.

The Superintendent Macquarie-street Asylum.

Yes.

2852. Mr. Williamson.] In reply to those letters from Mr. Maxted, did you forward the following:—

Joseph Leahy. I enclose a P.O. from Boston, U.S.A., in his favour. He receives these orders repeatedly, when he goes out, procuring a fresh order for his readmission. He is exceedingly lazy, and a great difficulty is experienced in getting him to assist. Will you deduct a portion of his keep in the Asylum—the date of his admission, 25/6, 83—this being the first time this course has been adopted in Leahy's case?

Yes. I merely sent this to the Director, as money matters were so unsettled, and I had Mr. King's authority previously for doing as I had done, and I had no authority from Mr. Maxted in reference to money matters.

2853. Mr. Ritchie.] And you had authority previous to that for carrying out such a system as this, and charging an inmate with part of his expenses? Yes; from the Sydney office.

2854. Mr. Williamson.] In reply to those letters of Mr. Maxted did you also forward the following:—

Peter Dow, 69, No. of order 2535, who came in last evening, deposited £3 10s. for safe custody. I herewith enclose my cheque for £3 (say three pounds), retaining the balance, 10s., to be paid to him as required.

After Mr. Maxted's appointment, and after the receipt of that first letter from him you always forwarded any sums received from the inmates, and also for the sale of fat, did you not? There were no sales of fat.

2855. Did you stop selling it after Mr. Maxted was appointed? I got a cheque in July, and there was not another cask ready.

2856. But that was before Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes.

2857. Did you forward that cheque to Mr. Maxted? No; I wished to speak to him about the piano; I could not get an explanation.

2858. Will you turn to your evidence given before the Asylum's Inquiry Board at page 147? Yes.

WEDNESDAY, 11 SEPTEMBER, 1889.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,
MR. RITCHIE,

MR. KIDD,
MR. CRICK.

JAMES PETER HOWE, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared for Mrs. Cunynghame.

Mr. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sarah Cunynghame called in and further examined:—

Mr. S.
Cunynghame,
11 Sept., 1889.

2859. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect giving the following evidence, page 147, before the Asylum Inquiry Board:—

6310. If you find money in a letter what do you do? I take charge of it.

6311. Do you give the inmate a receipt for it? I do not.

6312. What do you do with the money which you impound in this way? Sums over £2 I send to the Manager.

6313. Does he send any receipts? He receipts my diary.

6314. When has he an opportunity to receipt your diary? It is always before him when he visits the institution.

6315. That is to say once a fortnight? Yes.

6316. What do you do with sums less than £2? I take charge of them myself and issue them to the inmates in sums of 2s. 6d. a week.

6317. What book do you keep showing how much money an inmate has to his credit? I keep the account in a small book.

Is that perfectly correct? Yes.

2860. You say that when Mr. King visited the institution, which was about once a fortnight, the diary was always in front of him? Yes.

2861. And his attention was called, I presume, to any entries of moneys that were to be handed to him? I would not say once a fortnight, but occasionally; if there was anything particular his attention would be drawn to the diary.

2862. On the last day when you gave evidence you said he had given you some other receipts which you believed were at the institution; did you call at the institution? I did.

2863. When did you call? Last Monday morning.

2864. Did you find anything that was of service to you with regard to any moneys that you had paid to Mr. King? I found several old receipts.

2865. Before 1883? Yes. I produce one dated the 8th of October, 1880, to the following effect:—"An inmate named George Mee has deposited the sum of £8 for safe custody. Please receive the same.—S.C. Received.—F.K." I produce also another receipt by Mr. King for £7, dated the 15th January, 1880.
2866. In looking through the diary do you find that on the 7th June, 1880, there is a receipt by Mr. King? I believe so; that was in the despatch-box.
2867. Have you been able to find anything else beyond these? No. I asked the clerk to hunt up a small parcel for me containing different memoranda. I did not specify receipts. I simply said that I wanted to get this parcel. He told me he could not find it, and did not remember anything about it; but the office had been changed. He assured me that no papers had been destroyed, and promised to look for them.
2868. You told us on the last day that Mr. King always receipted your diary? I did think so. There ought to be several receipts like those I have produced.
2869. As a matter of fact, there ought to be at least 200? Oh, no.
2870. Where were these separate receipts kept—in the despatch-box? No; in a pigeon-hole, with other official documents and different memoranda from Mr. King.
2871. Where did you obtain the two receipts you have now produced, and which were given in 1880? In the despatch-box.
2872. Why were they kept in the despatch-box? Because they were old ones, and had been condemned. I did not know they were there until I found them.
2873. Can you tell me the amount of money you forwarded to Mr. Maxted since you took office? There is one amount of £10 6s. belonging to M'Grath, as to which I have a query.
2874. You retained £2 and sent £14 6s. to the head office? Yes.
2875. The question I asked you was how much money did you forward to Mr. Maxted from the 1st of August when he was appointed until your suspension? I made the following payments to Mr. Maxted, as shown by the entries in my bank-book, when the cheques were cashed, namely—9th of August, 1888, £2; 9th of August, 1888, £4 17s. 6d.; 12th September, £1 5s.; 4th of October, £3; 18th of October, £14 5s.; 25th of October, £11 19s. 7d.; 3rd of November, £3; total, £40 7s. 1d.
2876. You say you forwarded these moneys to Mr. Maxted from the time of his appointment to your suspension; how was it you did not forward the other moneys you had in hand? Because it required an explanation to Mr. Maxted.
2877. Has not Mr. Maxted, during the time he has been visiting the institution, been with you in the office at times for an hour and an hour and a half? He has been with me the whole morning.
2878. Then how is it you have not explained to him with regard to these moneys? He has confined himself to certain matters alone.
2879. But surely, he being there with you all the morning in conversation, you would have had a chance of talking to him? I asked Mr. Maxted to let me explain money matters, and he said, "Wait, I am getting slips printed." This occurred not once, but on two or three occasions.
2880. But did you never have a list;—you had all these moneys there, and surely Mr. Maxted could have ascertained whether or not the list was correct? No; it required explanation.
2881. What was the explanation? It was necessary that I should explain about the piano. I wanted to get a piano for the institution, and had saved up money for the purpose.
2882. That was only with regard to the cheques for the fat. The money of the deceased inmates was not to go for a piano. You have told me that you have been all the morning in conversation with Mr. Maxted, and surely you could have said what you had to say with regard to these moneys of deceased inmates in two or three minutes? But Mr. Maxted was always uncomfortable—always in a hurry to get out of the place, and if he was there all the morning he would confine himself to certain matters—diet for instance.
2883. Had you not ample opportunity when you were conversing with Mr. Maxted to intimate to him that you had a certain list of deceased inmates' moneys? And I did so on more than one occasion.
2884. Did you ever produce the list? I did not. The money matters generally required explanation, and it was necessary to go through the books.
2885. What explanation was necessary with regard to the deceased inmates' money? My reason for detaining them.
2886. Could you not have stated that in two or three minutes? When I proposed to do so, Mr. Maxted said, "Wait till I get slips printed"; and he had slips printed.
2887. As a matter of fact, can you give either Mr. Maxted, or any other gentleman, a correct list of deceased and living inmates' moneys? Not unless I go through the book.
2888. And even supposing you go through the book? Well, I will do so as nearly as I can, considering the way money matters were.
2889. Can you furnish Mr. Maxted or any other gentleman at the present time with such a list? I cannot do so at the present moment.
2890. But can you at any time furnish a list of the dead men's moneys and living inmates' moneys? Most certainly I can.
2891. Did you not say on the last day in answer to me that you would not swear that you could give a correct list of the deceased inmates and living inmates who had deposited money with you? My statement was distinctly that I could not do so without referring to this book, and I really could not. I believe I could do so if I took this book and went over it quietly with somebody, and took out the separate accounts.
2892. Have you ever received moneys from inmates which you have never entered in any of the books? Never.
2893. In your former examination, you told Mr. Bourke that you had authority from Mr. King to enter a cook in your establishment as a wardman and so forth? No; I had authority from Mr. King to use whatever help I required.
2894. I am speaking of the way you entered them on the pay-sheets? I do not think I told Mr. King that I was going to put my cook down as a wardman, but simply that I put him down to some outside situation.
2895. But do you recollect saying, on a previous occasion, that Mr. King had given you authority to fill up any vacancy by putting in the name of your cook? No; he gave me authority to use what help I required, but I do not think the cook was mentioned or the help specified. 2896.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1885.

2896. And charge the Government? He did not say charge the Government. I did not make a compliment of it; I merely did it.
2897. When did you receive this authority from Mr. King? It was always understood.
2898. But when did you receive the authority? From the very beginning, I believe. I have always done it.
2899. Cannot you fix the date? I cannot.
2900. As a matter of fact, on the 10th of April, 1885, did you not receive a communication from Mr. King? Mr. King wrote to me on the 1st of April, 1885—I had been asking for certain help—and this was my answer:—

Macquarie-street Asylum, 8/4/85.

Memo.—In reference to your memo., 1/4/85, relative to the services of deputy in cancer ward, also the services of the fever-cottage warder and female erysipelas wardswomen, although absolutely they are not in this case doing duty, their money is distributed amongst others whose avocations are not shown in the pay abstract, viz.: carpenter, tinsmith, shoemaker, milkman, and second gardener and others.

S. CUNYNGHAME.

The Manager.

2901. Will you read the memo. written by Mr. King on the back of that, dated the 10th April, 1885? It is as follows:—

This explanation shows that you receive £116s. 2d. for which you do not produce receipts. Allen, Fleming, and Jackson have signed for what they have not received. This arrangement must not be continued. If it is necessary that the carpenter, tinsmith, &c., should receive pay, their names should appear on the pay-sheet. You are exposed to much blame in this matter, as the pay-sheet is wrongly acquitted.—P. KING, 10/4/85.

These men, the tinsmith, the carpenter, or whoever I wished to put on the pay-sheet, were put down to any vacancy. The situations were never altered. Then there were three or four men whose names I was in the habit of putting down in petty cash, and in reference to whom there was no receipt on the salary abstract.

2902. Mr. Bourke.] Were these men paid out of petty cash before their names were put on the pay-sheet? They must have been, because I did not produce their names on the salary abstract.

2903. And is that what Mr. King objects to—their being paid out of petty cash? Yes; because the receipt was informal. They should have been on the salary abstract.

2904. Mr. Williamson.] From what period had you been putting down people in your kitchen as occupying different positions, and paying them with the Government funds? From the very day of my appointment; not only in my kitchen alone, but whatever help I wanted.

2905. And you believed it to be perfectly correct? I did, and believe so still.

2906. Can you give any explanation of how it was that after Mr. Maxted's appointment you discontinued the practice, and sent in a proper pay-sheet? There had always been proper pay-sheets.

2907. But I mean putting down your cook, and so forth? I would not have done this if Mr. Maxted had not authorized me to do it.

2908. I want to know how it was that after Mr. Maxted was appointed you ceased to send in these fraudulent pay-sheets? I never sent in fraudulent pay-sheets.

2909. Well, fictitious pay-sheets? Nor fictitious. I never thought for a moment that I was doing such a thing. When Mr. Maxted came he agreed with me that the diet should be altered. I had a certain time within which to perform this duty, and I agreed with Dr. Violette that in the meantime he was not to interfere with the medical comforts, such as spirits. Mr. Maxted came one day and caught me on the hop, and I gave him a report, not against Dr. Violette, but about the quantity of spirits that was issued. He then gave me certain instructions about the pay-sheet, and sent me a list of only the men who were to receive pay.

2910. As a matter of fact, did you not tell him who were the men to be paid? I told him that I could manage with certain men being paid.

2911. How could Mr. Maxted know who was employed in the kitchen or at other avocations, and whether or not the men were good men, unless you had spoken to him with reference to the matter? Of course I gave Mr. Maxted a list. It was at my dictation.

2912. At your dictation a list was made out? Mr. Maxted made the list himself, and then I made out the pay-sheet accordingly.

2913. Did you tell Mr. Maxted on that occasion what you had been doing with regard to putting down the cook and these other people? No. When we were talking the matter over I merely said what a saving it would be to the institution if I could get a paid cook. I always understood that I was to have a paid cook, but I never got one.

2914. Mr. Kidd.] You said that certain of the inmates were not engaged in the particular occupations for which they were put down on the pay-sheets; what was done with the moneys put opposite to the names of these men on the pay-sheets? It was paid to the men who performed the work.

2915. Although the man might be employed at something else other than that stated in the pay-sheet he would receive the money that was put opposite his name? Yes.

2916. What was the rate of pay that was given to inmates under those circumstances? About 3d. a day; but it varied very much. If I had a man this month who was getting 2d. a day, and I knew that he was a good man, if there was a vacancy next time at 6d. a day I would give him the situation.

2917. And would he get the 6d. a day? Yes.

2918. The money was never retained by you in any instance;—it was paid over to the same man? Always. There were about fifty-eight situations, and as the men were to have a liberal diet under the new regulations, I considered they ought to assist in the institution without being paid until one or two good paid men were selected and the new arrangements were in perfect order.

2919. As a matter of fact, were not some of the men mentioned on the pay-sheet employed on your private farm, feeding your pigs and cultivating the farm? Will you give me the names of any who were employed on my farm?

2920. Mr. Ritchie.] Will you say whether you did or did not employ men on your farm who were paid by the Government? Certainly not. Not one penny of Government money was paid to any of the men for working on my farm.

2921. Had you any men working on your farm who were not paid? No. Every man who was there I paid myself.

2922. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know a man named Connell Boyle? Yes. I have his receipt here.

Mrs. S.
Cusyngame.
11 Sept., 1899.

2923. Was he working on your farm? He was not working there. He used to go out in the morning and come back in the evening, and he did this only for about eight or ten days.
2924. Will you swear that this man was not supplied with provisions from the store belonging to the institution? No; he received his food and took it out with him every morning.
2925. Did he not take out the cart belonging to the institution? No.
2926. Whose cart was it? My cart. And he did not take it out because he was a very infirm old man.
2927. What was he doing out there? I do not know. He was very anxious to go; it is a nice change for the old men.
2928. Do you wish us to believe that he simply went out there for pleasure? You may believe it or not, but it is true.
2929. What used he to take out in your cart? I do not think he ever drove the cart; I do not think he was able to do so.
2930. You said just now that he did? No, I said it was our cart and not the Government cart. He did not take the cart out; we had other men to do that.
2931. Will you swear that he did not go out with the cart? He might have gone out in the cart; I am sure he did not drive the cart for he was not able.
2932. Did not some other inmates of the institution drive the cart;—was it not driven by men belonging to the institution? Yes.
2933. What used they to take out? Dirt and rubbish from the cleaning out of the yard and all the filth.
2934. Used they to take out food for the pigs? Yes; that is rubbish.
2935. Can you tell me who were working on the farm? No; I had so many working there. I have receipts amounting in the aggregate to over £100, money paid for labour on the farm.
2936. If you paid this man Boyd in money for working on the farm, why should you feed him and clothe him at the Government cost? I did the same thing for several neighbours. I thought it a great thing to get the men away.
2937. According to your statement, the man was doing nothing, why then did you pay him? I was not there to see what he was doing.
2938. Did you send him out on your own business? No; the head wardsman might have done so.
2939. Mr. Kidd.] Is the document which you produce a receipt dated the 10th of June, 1886, and signed by Connell Boyle for money paid to him by you for labour done while he was on your farm? Yes.
2940. Mr. Williamson.] Did he not take out provisions and clothing belonging to the institution? He had his breakfast and took with him his dinner and tea, and went out in a suit of clothes.
2941. Do you recollect a man named Alexander Thompson? Yes.
2942. Was he working on your farm? For a few days.
2943. Will you swear that he was not working on your farm for two months? I am positive he was not.
2944. Was he not supplied with provisions from the institution while he was working on the farm? He must have been, for he could not get food there.
2945. What you admit then is this, that all the men who were working on your farm were fed from the Government stores? There were not more than two. Occasionally one would go out with the horse and cart, and take all the refuse and keep the place clean.
2946. Not more than two? Not at one time.
2947. How many men altogether belonging to the institution were employed on the farm off and on, during the time you had it? About 100 I should think.*
2948. Mr. Kidd.] You said that Alexander Thompson was employed for a day occasionally on your farm? Yes.
2949. Do you produce a receipt for money paid to him for what he did amounting to 10s.? Yes.
2950. Mr. Williamson.] You say that the total number of men employed on your farm was about 100.†
2951. As a matter of fact, were not all these men supplied with provisions from the Government store? Some would go for a day and come back again in the evening; some would go and stop for a month, and some would stop for two or three months, just as I required them.
2952. If they stopped there for two or three months you would send stores out to them? No; a man would come in with a bag and get his daily allowance.
2953. From the Government store? No; from the kitchen; I would not give it to him; the man in the kitchen would give it to him.
2954. It came from the Government store? No; all articles of diet came in by requisition daily.
2955. Did you ever attempt to sell the refuse that came from the institution? No; I did not think it was worth selling.
2956. Do you not know as a matter of fact that even your tenant subsequently gave a good price for the refuse. What was he giving? Only one payment was made by our tenant; I could not say what he gave; he regretted giving so much.
2957. Could you not give any idea? I could not; he never paid me anything.
2958. Have you got a tenant there now? No; I am living there.
2959. Mr. Ritchie.] Had you a tenant before your suspension? Yes; Mr. Gould lived there for three months after I was suspended.
2960. Then you gave the refuse to him free of all charge? Yes. We had been keeping pigs of our own. I told him he could have the refuse until some arrangement was made. I did not make any charge, but simply gave it to him, and he used to send his horse and cart and take away the dirt and all the stuff, as we had been in the habit of doing.
2961. Was there any arrangement between you and him afterwards for this stuff? None whatever. I did not think it was worth selling.
2962. Mr. Williamson.] How long was he a tenant before your suspension? Quite twelve months.
2963. Surely the old men belonging to the institution did not go out while he was tenant? No.
2964. When you arranged that he should pay you a certain rent, was not the refuse taken into consideration? No; not a word was said about it. Mr. Gould will tell you that himself.
2965. Were you keeping pigs at the time that Mr. Gould was a tenant? No; we sold them to him.
2966. Did he give you a bonus to go on the farm? No. 2967.

* NOTE (on revision):—Not more than twelve permanently employed off and on.

† NOTE (on revision):—When I made this statement I was thinking of the amount of money I had paid to various men.

- Mrs. S. Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1889.
2967. Did he buy out all you had there? He made the arrangement with Mr. Cunynghame. I had nothing to do with it. Mr. Sargeant, butcher, George-street, Parramatta, valued the pigs, and they were sold accordingly.
2968. But I suppose you gave him to understand that he could have the refuse? No. I did not make any arrangement with him. I was very glad to get rid of it.
2969. Do you recollect Mr. Dunn coming to you and wanting to buy the refuse? Mr. Dunn came so often. Yes; I think I spoke to him about its being so small.
2970. Do you recollect his wanting to buy it and your telling him it was not worth carting away, and that you wanted it for your fowls? Yes.
2971. Had you not at this time 200 or 300 pairs of fowls and ducks? I do not think I had 200 or 300 pairs. We were always eating poultry and always buying poultry.
2972. As a matter of fact were you not selling the eggs? If I had too many I would sell them.
2973. Did you not sell the eggs to the contractor? Never.
2974. Will you swear that you did not sell the eggs to any of the contractors? Yes. I never sold an egg to a contractor in my life. I had no dealings with the contractors.
2975. As a matter of fact you bought large numbers of fowls and other poultry down at Mr. Brodie's now and again? No; not so much at Brodie's. Mr. Ferris Wilson used to buy them.
2976. Was not he a contractor? No; it is his brother the auctioneer of whom I am speaking.
2977. Mr. Bourke.] You bought them from the auctioneer? Yes; he supplied them.
2978. Mr. Williamson.] And these fowls were kept on the premises belonging to the institution? Yes, and we used to feed them with our own corn—corn from Mr. Cunynghame's stable—and I frequently supplied the sick.
2979. Do you recollect having a groom? We had many.
2980. Do you recollect a man named Thomas Hutchinson? No.
2981. He was in the asylum a short time previous to your suspension? Then he was evidently a stranger, and I would hardly know him.
2982. Do you not know that he was engaged in the kitchen? I do not know him by that name. I know a German, a stranger to me.
2983. Do you know as a matter of fact that he was acting for some time as groom for Mr. Cunynghame? He could not have been a groom if he was in the kitchen.
2984. But you turned him from a cook into a groom? No, I do not think so.
2985. You do not recollect the man? No.
2986. Do you recollect a man named Henry Wilkinson? Yes; he died three years ago in the institution.
2987. Do you recollect putting him down in the pay-sheet as a wardman for No. 3 dormitory when he was actually a groom for your husband? I do not recollect putting him down as a wardman. Perhaps he was a wardman and attended to the horses at the same time; he could do both.
2988. But did you put him down in the pay-sheet? I have no doubt I did. I have his receipt here.
2989. Do you recollect a man named Robert Corns who was woodcutter at the institution? I do not know the names of all the men in the yard. I call them by some name, but I cannot say that I recollect the name of Corns.
2990. Did not the contractor supply the institution with a certain quantity of wood? Yes, as much as was required.
2991. Did you ever send any of that wood out to your farm? No, I am quite sure I did not.
2992. Will you swear that? Yes.
2993. Were you in the habit of sending out straw? Yes. The straw that was condemned as I proposed burning it off the premises.
2994. And blankets? No, not blankets. I do not know what they would use blankets for.
2995. You used to send straw out from the institution? Yes, from the lower yard.
2996. Used you to send out blankets? No, unless an old man wanted a blanket to cover him, and in such a case he would take it with him; we would not send it.
2997. As a matter of fact, then you used to send out to the farm a quantity of provisions and goods from the store? No; a man used to come in and get his ration.
2998. And take whatever he wanted? No; he could not take whatever he wanted; his proper ration would be given to him.
2999. As a matter of fact, have you not yourself, helped to put blankets into the cart for the purpose of their being taken to the farm? If I did, they were our own blankets, and I was going out to stay there for two or three days.
3000. Will you swear they were not blankets belonging to the institution? Yes, I will.
3001. When men stopped on the farm for two or three months, would they be supplied with blankets from the institution? They generally had their own swags.
3002. Do you recollect after your suspension alleging in the presence of Mrs. Brooks, that the Government had nothing to do with the living inmates' moneys, that it was a matter between you and the inmates? It was hardly that; it was something to that effect. I was so indignant at Mr. Maxted accusing me of deceit in the presence of Mrs. Brooks, that I scarcely knew what I was saying at the time.
3003. Do you know Mr. Green? Yes.
3004. Do you recollect saying to Mr. Green, that the Government had nothing whatever to do with the living inmates' moneys, that it was simply a matter between you and the inmates? I said something to that effect—hardly that; and Mr. Green took the book on the understanding that I was to have it back to have money matters settled up, and he gave me a receipt for it.
3005. Did that take place between you and Mr. Green then? Yes, he came for the book.
3006. Will you tell us the conversation that took place between you and Mr. Green? Mr. Green came with an order from the Colonial Secretary's Office for the two books. I refused to give up one, and I said look through it yourself and you will see that it is my own private book. I showed him both books and said that I declined to give them both up, but that he could take one which he did giving me a receipt and an understanding to return it that matters might be settled up.
3007. You say that there was an understanding that he was to return it? Yes.
3008. When Mr. Maxted demanded the book from you did you not hand him a memo. to this effect "Sir, I have already sent an account of the weekly moneys due to the men by me, and prefer detaining the book until I have been further advised"? Yes.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1833.

3009. Did the list you mention there set forth any dead men's moneys? No; but Mr. Galo will give evidence on this matter.
3010. Did you produce any of these books before the Asylum's Inquiry Board? I do not know.
3011. I mean the little books referring to the dead men's moneys? They did not ask for them.
3012. You heard Abbott's evidence the other day; what was your object in tearing out the leaves X Y Z while the Commission was sitting? That is not true; and I did not tear them out to begin with—I told Abbott to take them out for me.
3013. You have stated before that Abbott tore them out? He did not tear them, but took them out at my request.
3014. Then Abbott makes a mistake in saying that you tore them out? He certainly does.
3015. What was your object in taking them out at the time the Commission was sitting? I cannot say it was at that time.
3016. Abbott says it was;—are you prepared to deny that? Yes, I am prepared to deny it.
3017. Were not the leaves taken out during the time the Royal Commission was sitting? No.
3018. Then Abbott is again making a mistake? Yes.
3019. You also heard Abbott's evidence to the effect that you were not at the institution in the afternoons, and were generally out driving? I did not go out until after 4 o'clock, sometimes 5 in the summer, sometimes 6. I did not go out every day. I have no doubt Abbott was speaking of years ago. I had Newington as a branch asylum, and then I was backwards and forwards repeatedly. I had 150 men at Newington.
3020. As a matter of fact when you were not present yourself in the afternoon you used to allow Abbott to receive the goods from the contractors? Only the grocer came, and he was generally there before 4 o'clock.
3021. During the time that Abbott was in the institution did you go through the hospital once a day? I was in and out all day long.
3022. As a matter of fact used not Mr. Cunynghame occasionally go through the hospital in order to do your work? Not to do my work. Being resident dispenser he used to go up between 6 and 9 o'clock a.m. He never left the institution until 9 o'clock a.m.
3023. As a matter of fact have not days and days gone by without your going through the hospital wards? Yes.
3024. Then you simply relied upon the wardsmen reporting to you anything that took place? No; I depended on Mr. Cunynghame and the various doctors—Dr. Beattie, Dr. Richards, Dr. Bowling, Dr. Rutter, and Dr. Violette? During my confinements, and a few weeks occasionally during any illness, the doctor was always aware that Mr. Cunynghame performed these duties for me, he being resident dispenser.
3025. If it happened occasionally that you did not visit the hospital for days and days, how could you check the distribution of medical comforts ordered by the doctor? I gave the medical comforts out, and I could sit in the office and do that.
3026. How did you know that the unfortunate men in the hospital received them? Because Mr. Cunynghame or the doctor would tell me.
3027. But were not the medical comforts distributed after the doctor had gone? The men would soon let the doctor know if they did not get the comforts.
3028. Did you not admit before the Royal Commission that you had not been in the hospital for eight or nine months? That was a mistake. If I said that, I meant officially. I could not live in the institution and not go round during such a long period. I did say seven months, but it should have been officially, because I went round whenever it suited me.
3029. You mean you had not gone through officially? Yes.
3030. What was the time of your official visit? The morning visit. But I used to go whenever it suited me and whenever I felt called upon to do so. I do not deny making the statement referred to, but it will be seen by reference to the context that I alluded to my official visits. I had a severe illness at that time, as Dr. Brown can testify.
3031. The evidence you gave on this point was as follows:—
8126. Do you visit the hospital regularly? Not lately. Up to seven months ago I usually did, and when I thought it necessary I would visit it three or four times a day.
8127. You do not visit the inmates regularly? Not during the last few months, since the inquiry has been going on. My baby is seven months old, and I have not been through the ward since, nor for about two months before.
- As it is put there it seems very silly. It does not convey the meaning I intended. I did not say how many times I had been round since the baby was born. The baby was seven months old.
3032. The evidence was read over to you, I presume, and you were very careful, as you had previously given evidence? I do not think the evidence was sent to me for revision.
3033. Mr. Kidd.] The meaning of your evidence was that during the period mentioned you had not gone round the wards officially every morning? Yes. The dispenser visited for me, there being no paid attendants to act for me.
3034. Mr. Ritchie.] What do you mean by the word "officially"? At 9 o'clock.
3035. Would you not consider that you were on duty at all times when you went through the wards? I might go through with a visitor, or I might go up to see anything specially for myself.
3036. You would not call that an official visit? No.
3037. Still you would consider it your duty to do anything that you saw was wanted on those occasions? Yes; I used to go to the office at 9 o'clock, and I would stay there perhaps until half-past 9 or 10 o'clock. Then I would make my rounds through the hospital wards and through the dormitories. If I thought a personal visit to any particular part was not necessary I might say to Abbott, "Petor, go through a certain dormitory for me"; or I might say to Hanson, "Go and look at No. 5 dormitory, and see if those cobwebs that I ordered to be removed yesterday have been taken down, and let me know." I do not say that I walked all over the institution.
3038. Mr. Williamson.] Did you ever visit the hospitals except when you were accompanied by a visitor? Most certainly I did.
3039. Between the time when the Royal Commission sat and your suspension did you ever visit the hospital wards except when you were accompanied by a visitor? Most certainly I did; and from the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment I visited them three or four times a day.
- 3040.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1889.

3040. Did you not admit in your previous evidence that after Mr. Maxted's appointment you only went through the wards once, and that was in the morning, and that you never went on the Sunday? I could not have said that. After Mr. Maxted's appointment I was present three or four times a day, at every meal, regulating the new dietary.
3041. Do you not recollect saying that while there were no complaints you presumed everything was correct and consequently did not go through the wards? I was always there three times a day.
3042. Do you swear that? I was looking after the diet, so I must have been there.
3043. Since Mr. Maxted's appointment do you recollect being away and never visiting the hospitals for two or three days at a time? I was never away for one day since Mr. Maxted's appointment.
3044. As a matter of fact, did you not simply rely upon the wardsmen to report anything to you in connection with the hospital, and consequently did not give much attention yourself to the hospital? I must have given attention when I was there to regulate the dietary. I could not have worked harder.
3045. I simply want to ask you with regard to visiting the hospital whether you did not rely upon the wardsmen's reports that they were doing their work properly and did not pay any attention to the hospital yourself? Why, I helped to feed the sick myself, not once but repeatedly.
3046. If you visited the hospital every day, how was it Cook was able to steal the medical comforts for so long a period? It was not proved that he did steal them.
3047. You admitted turning Cook out of the place for stealing the medical comforts; how was it that Cook had been stealing these medical comforts for so long a period if you had gone through the hospital every day? I had never heard of his stealing them. When I did hear, I of course took action directly.
3048. You say you went through the hospital every day. If that is so, how was it that Cook had been stealing these medical comforts for so long a period? If he had been stealing them I do not suppose he would have stolen them in my presence. He would not be likely to come and tell me, and if nobody else told me how would I be likely to know.
3049. You have sworn that you went through the wards for the purpose of checking the distribution of the medical comforts? I did not swear that at all I said I gave them to the paid attendants.
3050. And you relied upon the paid attendants distributing them? I should not think they would drink them.
3051. Did you rely upon the paid warders or attendants distributing the medical comforts? Yes, and if they did not do so the patients in the hospital would soon let me know.
3052. Had Cook been taking the medical comforts for about a month or five weeks? I could not say he took them at all.
3053. Was that the allegation? Yes; the party who made the charge had only been there for six or eight weeks.
3054. Do you recollect Dr. Violette saying in his evidence that you were apparently anxious to get rid of M'Govern? Yes.
3055. Is that correct? No; I was not anxious to get rid of him.
3056. Did you ever ask Mr. Maxted to get rid of him? I might have done so.
3057. Did you not write the following communication to Mr. Maxted on the 22nd September, 1888:—
Will you kindly send the orders for the transfer of Peter Jorgenson, Joseph Sweeney, and James M'Govern, to the George-street Asylum in lieu of four selected by Dr. Marr to the ophthalmia department of this asylum?
Yes; four ophthalmia cases were to be transferred from George-street to Macquarie-street, and the three men mentioned in my letter were picked out to go to George-street in place of the four ophthalmia patients, and their names were submitted to the doctor.
3058. Why did you forward this letter—to get M'Govern removed? He was only one of many.
3059. One of three? One of fifty.
3060. One of the three mentioned? He was one of three who were selected from fifty to be transferred to George-street, in order to make room for the ophthalmia patients.
3061. Why did you pick M'Govern? He was not picked; he was merely one of others. (His admission to Macquarie-street, September, 1888, order attached.)
3062. One of fifty for the purpose of being transferred, so as to enable you to take the ophthalmia cases—was that it? Yes; the letter says, "In lieu of four selected by Dr. Marr."
3063. Mr. Kidd.] Is this a usual course? Yes.
3064. Mr. Williamson.] Before writing this letter did you ask the doctor to transfer M'Govern or Jorgenson? No; I would not have written that letter if I had asked the doctor, and he had said "No." The following memorandum on the subject was written by Mr. Rossiter, "As the Macquarie-street Asylum is very over-crowded these men may be transferred; but the question must be brought before the Director as to whether the doctor should not select the men to be transferred, or the Director himself, instead of the superintendent." This memo. was never sent to me.
- 3064½. You were anxious to get rid of this man Jorgenson? No; he was merely one of many.
3065. Mr. Kidd.] The reasons you have given were the reasons that actuated you in asking that these men might be removed to make room for others? Yes.
3066. Mr. Williamson.] Was not Jorgenson one of the men who complained of the stealing of the medical comforts? This man was brought under the notice of the doctor for selling his porter.
3067. And also M'Govern? Oh, no! M'Govern was always under the doctor's notice.
3068. Was he not one of those men who complained about the stealing of the medical comforts? Yes; he had only been a few days in the institution.
3069. Do you recollect Dr. Violette saying, amongst other things, in presence of your husband, not to treat these men in the way you had been doing out of resentment? No; I do not think so.
3070. Mr. Kidd.] You have no recollection of it? No.
3071. Mr. Williamson.] You will not swear he did not? I do not remember it.
3072. Do you know that Mr. Cunynghame spoke to the doctor? I did not know that; I never heard him speak to the doctor.
3073. Or to Mr. Maxted? No.
3074. Do you recollect one day going into the store-room when your husband was asking Mr. Maxted to intercede to prevent you? No, I do not.
3075. Do you recollect your husband remonstrating with you? Certainly not;—not in the presence of Mr. Maxted.
3076. In the presence of anybody? No; he would not remonstrate with me in the presence of anybody.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1880.

3077. Did you tell him to mind his own business that you were the superintendent? Not on that occasion.
3078. Do you recollect telling him to mind his own business when the doctor was present? I decline to answer that.
3079. Since the doctor gave his evidence have you tried to probe your memory to ascertain if you can recollect clearly the case of Kilmare? No.
3080. You know who the wardsmen were at the time? Warner and Edgar.
3081. And the inmate wardsmen? Drew was away for a holiday that time. Kilmare died on the 8th or 10th of October.
3082. Will you look at the Medical Register and see where Kilmare's name occurs previous to the 1st of October? Here is an entry on the 24th September and another on the 20th September. The first entry of Kilmare's name occurs on the 5th September.
3083. Opposite his name on the 1st October is the entry "continue medicine?" Yes.
3084. On the 2nd and 3rd October there is nothing opposite his name? No.
3085. Then the doctor could not have seen him on those days? The doctor saw him every day.
3086. But there is no entry in the Medical Register? The doctor did not think it requisite. If a patient did not require medicine, of course no entry was made in the book.
3087. Mr. Kidd.] If medicine was prescribed on the 1st, and it was to be afterwards continued, would there be an entry in the book every day it was continued? No, only when the bottle was exhausted. The entry would then be made by the dispenser, unless the doctor ordered fresh treatment.
3088. Mr. Williamson.] His name is mentioned on the 4th, and it does not occur again until the 6th? It takes four days to exhaust an 8-oz. bottle, and I think it is usual to give an 8-oz. bottle.
3089. Have you a vivid recollection now of Kilmare's case;—do you recollect Mr. Maxted speaking to you about his case? I do not.
3090. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted stating to you that Drew had informed him that you had not seen Kilmare for two or three days? Mr. Maxted did not mention anybody's name. I do not know what he might have said to Drew.
3091. Then you deny in toto what Mr. Maxted has sworn with regard to this man Kilmare? He came down and had a certain conversation with me—
3092. He had a certain conversation with you, and you first of all said that the man was all right—that you had only seen him a short time previously, and then Mr. Maxted told you the man was dying? That is decidedly untrue.
3093. You have heard some evidence with regard to the man Elmas, will you look at the Medical Register for the 23rd and 24th of September do you find Elmas's name there? Yes; and the entry "Continue"
3094. In whose hand-writing is the word continue? The dispenser's.
3095. Do you see Elmas' name on the 24th? No.
3096. Is it there on the 25th? Yes, and the entry "Phthisis, cough mixture".
3097. Mr. Kidd.] And that is the dispenser's entry too? Only the name not the prescription.
3098. In whose hand-writing is the prescription? Dr. Violotte's.
3099. Mr. Williamson.] Can you find the name entered on any previous day? The man was only in the institution for three or four days.
3100. The first entry in the book was on the 23rd when the word "continue" is placed opposite the name; therefore there should have been a previous entry? If such entry has been omitted I can only surmise that it has been the fault of the attendant.
3101. I want to know if there is any entry previous to that on the 23rd, when the word "continue" is written? Yes, on the 20th September there is this entry opposite the name of Elmas "Phthisis, hospital, cod liver oil and maltine".
3102. Mr. Bourke.] So that the entry "continue" on the 23rd would refer to that prescription? Yes, the bottle of medicine would then have been exhausted.
3103. Mr. Williamson.] Do you remember Charles Burns? Yes; he was a very insubordinate man.
3104. Is it true that you beat that man with your umbrella, and drove him off the grass? No.
3105. Did you refuse the men the use of this grass-plot? I did not refuse them but it was an understood thing; there was no order that they were not to use it. I did not refuse them and I did not order them off the grass. They did not go on the grass. It was an understood thing that it was a lawn.
3106. As a matter of fact did you not allow your horse and your cow to graze there? Yes; I said so before.
3107. If the men were not allowed to go on to this grass-plot where could they go to—were they simply kept in the shed? No, they had a very nice yard, and they could go into the garden and into the lower yard. They could walk all about everywhere.
3108. As a matter of fact did you ever allow them to go into the lower yard? Well, I did not drive them there, and I did not tell them not to go.
3109. Did you ever allow them into the garden? Yes.
3110. Only those who were working? No.
3111. The whole of the inmates? If they wished to go, they were never told not to go.
3112. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted complaining to you about Pokorney's case? No; the only thing I remember was some woman coming from Sydney with a message from Mr. Maxted. I think he gave the woman a note to me about some case, but I really do not know. Mr. Maxted never complained during the whole time he was coming to Macquarie-street.
3113. Do you recollect any conversation at all with Mr. Maxted when he complained to you of your neglect in Pokorney's case? Pokorney lay in the next bed to Kilmare.
3114. It was in connection with some sour milk; do you recollect a man who would not eat? Yes.
3115. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted complaining to you about the neglect in Pokorney's case? I have no recollection of it. Mr. Maxted was not in the habit of complaining. If he complained he had a very nice way of complaining; he was particularly civil.
3116. Do you recollect Mr. Maxted calling you up into the ward where Pokorney was—sending for you, and your going up? He might have done that, and I should have had great pleasure in going.
3117. Do you recollect when you went up his complaining to you, and telling you that he had neglected the case, that the milk was sour and so forth? I never heard of this. Perhaps Drew had better give the explanation.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1889.

3118. Do you recollect anything at all about it? I simply say that if Mr. Maxted complained to me it was a very nice way of complaining, and if I went up into the ward it was a great pleasure to do so.
3119. Do you recollect a man named Daniel M'Carthy? Yes; he is the man who made all the disturbance in No. 3 hospital with Rooney.
3120. Do you recollect in what ward he was a patient? He was in the middle bed of the inside No. 3 ward, adjoining my quarters.
3121. Do you recollect that man singing out to you to come in as one of the wardmen, Cook, was beating Smith? He did not call me, but I went in.
3122. Did you not refuse to go in? M'Carthy did not call me.
3123. Did you refuse to go in? I heard a disturbance and went in; it was adjoining my house.
3124. Did you not then say that Smith should be removed to the isolation ward? No, I did not. Poor old Smith, no one could touch him; he is a harmless old man, and would not hurt a fly.
3125. Do you not recollect saying this: "I will hear nothing against the wardmen; you do not come here to do as you like, but to do as you are told"? No, I do not remember that; I believe Daniel M'Carthy to be bad enough to do and say anything, and also Rooney.
3126. I suppose there were other inmates there at the time? Yes, there were M'Govern, O'Niel, Cadogan, Rooney, Jorgenson, and I think a man named Jenkins. There were only about eight. I think Elmas must have been there.
3127. With regard to the list you sent in in reference to the supply of liquor, what was your object in starting with the date first referred to there? It was at Mr. Maxted's request.
3128. Was it a verbal or written request? Verbal. It must have been made in the conversation I had with him. I do not know that there was anything written about the matter.
3129. Mr. Bourke.] What is the first date on the list? April 28, 1887.
3130. Mr. Williamson.] Did Mr. Maxted ask you to send in a twelvemonth's return or a return from a specific date? I am unable to say just now.
3131. When that matter was referred to, do you recollect discussing the question of the Royal Commission's report? I cannot say I do. If I did I did not attach any importance to it.
3132. You are not prepared to say then that when you were speaking to Mr. Maxted with regard to that return of spirits you did not have some conversation with him relative to the report of the Royal Commission? I am prepared to say that no conversation ever took place between Mr. Maxted and myself about the Royal Commission in the Macquarie-street Asylum—neither in the office, in the wards, or in the yard.
3133. You said a moment ago that if any conversation did take place with reference to the Royal Commission's report you did not attach any importance to it? Yes; and you now ask me if I remember, and I say distinctly that no such conversation took place.
3134. You said that if a conversation did take place in reference to the report of the Royal Commission you would not attach much importance to it? I distinctly say that no conversation in reference to the report of the Royal Commission was ever held in the Macquarie-street Asylum between Mr. Maxted and myself.
3135. Never referred to in any possible way? No. This was on the 8th October. The following Saturday I said to the clerk, "This new arrangement has been so beneficial that I will tell you what I will do, Peter. Mr. Maxted has asked to be supplied at the end of the month with a list giving the quantity, the reductions, and the prices of the spirits. We will not wait till the end of the month; I will get you before Saturday to have this list ready for me to give to Mr. Maxted."
3136. Mr. Bourke.] That was why you started on that date? No; that was at Mr. Maxted's request.
3137. Mr. Williamson.] Do you recollect Mr. Maxted ever having the report of the Royal Commission in his hand? No.
3138. And calling your attention, amongst other things, to the cruelties and so forth that were spoken of? I have told you before, no.
3139. You heard Mr. Bourke state in his opening address to the Committee that the trouble at the asylum between you and Mr. Maxted arose because you refused to take meat from the contractor, Mr. Dunn? Yes, and I say so now.
3140. Can you fix that date at all? At the present time I cannot.
3141. Will you look at this document and see if it is signed by you? Yes, it is; but Mr. Dunn gave me to understand when he came for this that it only applied to the period since Mr. Maxted had taken office. The document is as follows:—

From Superintendent, Macquarie-street Asylum, to R. L. Dunn, Esq.

20 September, 1889.

THE meat supplied by Mr. R. L. Dunn has been of good quality until the 6th of the present month. Since that date the meat has on several occasions been of poor quality. The average of overplus has been 12 lb. per day, thus making up for the quality. The new arrangements necessitate my giving the inmates joints, and beef will be required to be supplied with the fore and hind quarters, and the mutton in the whole and half sheep.

S. CUNYNGHAME.

3142. As a matter of fact, at the time you gave that letter Taylor Bros. had ceased to supply meat to the institution? Yes.
3143. Can you tell me when Taylor Bros. ceased to be contractors? Soon after Mr. Maxted was appointed—some time in September, I think. They did not cease to be contractors, but they sub-let, and Mr. Finlayson had to supply the meat. Mr. Dunn could not supply the quality for the price.
3144. But when did Taylor Bros. cease to supply the institution with meat? On the 15th August.
3145. Then Dunn supplied the meat from the 15th August up to the time you gave him the certificate on the 15th September? Yes.
3146. You have told us that there was no ill-feeling between you and Mr. Maxted until some two weeks before your dismissal, and that you were on the best of terms? Always.
3147. That he was polite, gentlemanly, and courteous in his manner towards you? Yes; and all my friends know that.
3148. Do you recollect writing this letter to the Mercury,—

Sir,

Following up the thread of the narrative of my case, I should like to point out to you that immediately upon the appointment of Mr. Maxted to the position of Director of Government Asylums he appears to have made a dead set upon me, devoting both his own and his clerk's time to correspondence with me and visits to the institution?

I did not write the letter.

3149. Did you cause it to be written? I am only speaking of things as they were; it did seem so to me, and it does now.
3150. Did you write that letter or cause it to be written? Yes; I knew it was written; it was hardly from my dictation.
3151. Mr. Crick.] You saw it before it went to the Press? Yes.
3152. Mr. Ritchie.] It was written after your suspension? Yes.
3153. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember being asked about an invoice for fat, amounting to £3 2s.? Yes.
3154. Have you looked through the books since, and can you tell us anything further about that invoice? I have an invoice for £3 2s. which is without a date.
3155. Can you tell us now whether or not you paid that money over to Mr. King? No, I did not; it is entered in the red book as being passed into my account.
3156. Mr. Crick.] The invoice shows that you received the amount from Pritchard Bros.? Yes; and it was banked to my account on the 4th August, 1887.
3157. Mr. Bourke.] How is it that you were doubtful about the amount when you were asked by Mr. Williamson? Because the invoice had no date, and was therefore misleading.
3158. You say that you have some cheques for fat moneys now in your possession? Yes.
3159. Those cheques, including the £3 2s. just referred to, make a total of £15 3s. 5d., instead of £12 1s. 5d., the amount at which you previously fixed your indebtedness on the score of fat moneys? Yes.
3160. And the reason you did not include this item of £3 2s. was because the invoice having no date you were doubtful about the matter? Yes, and I had overlooked the entry in the book marked "KI."
3161. Mr. Crick.] Then you now admit owing to the Government the sum of £15 3s. 5d. for fat money? Yes.
3162. Mr. Bourke.] You were asked if you did not also have in your possession a cheque for £2 13s. 4d. which you received for fat;—will you look in your book now and see whether or not you paid that money to Mr. King? The sum of £2 12s. 4d. is entered here as being paid to Mr. King, and not having the invoice of Pritchard's bill I say still that the amount has been paid to Mr. King.
3163. When you paid Mr. King the fat moneys, what did you do with the invoices? I gave them to him.
3164. Then for the moneys you have paid him you would have no invoices in your possession? No.
3165. You have said that sometimes when you paid money to Mr. King he made entries in the margin of the diary? Yes.
3166. It has been said that there is only one entry there;—in the first place, is there not a receipt initialled by Mr. King on the 29th July, 1886? Yes.
3167. What is that a receipt for? For 28s., being four weeks' keep in the asylum of Frederick Barber. There is also a receipt by Mr. King for pension money on the 8th July, 1886; there is another receipt by Mr. King on the 3rd July, 1887; another on the 29th August, 1887; and there is one on the 23rd January, 1885. All these are receipts in the margin of the diary in Mr. King's handwriting.
3168. In addition to these receipts in the diary, you stated that you got receipted memoranda from Mr. King sometimes? Yes, a few of them; I could not say how many.
3169. I believe that since last meeting you have visited the Macquarie-street Asylum, to see if you could find those receipts? Yes.
3170. And you only found two, which you now produce? Yes, two old ones.
3171. You could not find any later than these? No.
3172. Has the office been moved since you were there? Yes; the office has been moved from the main building into the superintendent's quarters.
3173. And you requested Abbott to hunt up the papers which you required? Yes.
3174. But the two you produce are examples of the others? Yes.
3175. When you first commenced to take money from inmates the amount was small, I suppose. Yes.
3176. How did you keep the account at that time? On a slip of paper. The different dates would be entered, and the slip left in the despatch-box.
3177. And you have a sample slip in your hand which you submit to the Committee? Yes.
3178. You said in reference to passing the stores that you were sometimes out and allowed Abbott to pass the stores;—were you then speaking of the time before Mr. Maxted was appointed or since? Before Mr. Maxted was appointed.
3179. What was your custom since Mr. Maxted's appointment with regard to passing the stores? I was there and received everything and passed everything. I was never away from the building.
3180. If you happened to be out when the stores came what would be done? They would be left on the table until I returned. But after Mr. Maxted's appointment until I was suspended I was never absent, except on one day, when I went to the Women's Industrial Exhibition.
3181. Then, as a matter of fact, you were far more careful and hardworking after Mr. Maxted's appointment than before? Yes, I was working always, and had very little help except that the men were always very willing and well behaved.
3182. You were in the habit of advancing petty-cash for the use of the institution? Yes.
3183. Is there any amount due to you by the Government now on account of petty-cash? Yes, about 30s.
3184. Are there any other sums due to you by the Government? Yes; there is a sum of £3 10s. for twenty mess-boxes at 8s. 6d. each.
3185. Anything else? And a sum of £13 6s., which was left in the despatch-box.
3186. That is to be credited to you against the total amount of inmates' moneys? Yes.
3187. Is there anything else due to you besides the two sums you have named? There is an amount in lieu of rations for a little over four months, namely, from 20th June to the 20th November, which I roughly calculate at about £8 15s.
3188. Mr. Williamson.] Did you ever make any claim? Yes; I have been to the Sydney office, I did not make a claim in writing.
3189. Mr. Bourke.] Something has been said about keeping the men off the green. On the day when the Committee were at the asylum, you observed that there was a large quantity of clothes hanging up to dry, and that they were in the yard? Yes.
3190. Was that where you usually hung the clothes to dry? No.
3191. That place was always left open for the men? Yes.

Mr. S.
Cunynghame.
11 Sept., 1889.

WEDNESDAY, 18 SEPTEMBER, 1889.

Present:—

MR. HOWE,

MR. KIDD.

MR. GRAHAME,

JAMES PETER HOWE, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Bourke, instructed by Mr. Herbert, appeared for Mrs. Cunyngame.

Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared as solicitor for Mr. Maxted.

Sarah Cunyngame recalled and further examined:—

Mrs. S.
Cunyngame,
18 Sept., 1889.

3192. Mr. Bourke.] You have said that the only record you had of Pritchard's cheques were the invoices you produced? Yes.

3193. Have you not also some entries in the books of Pritchard's cheques? Yes; they are entered in my private book as having passed into my account at the bank.

3194. You have seen the vouchers that were presented to the Committee showing that purchases of soap were made from the contractor (Mr. Kelly) in 1886? Yes.

3195. When you were asked by Mr. Williamson about soap being bought, you did not recollect those? No; I know how it occurred now. The soap was required in a hurry, and the head wardman put it down on the requisition, and therefore I had overlooked it.

3196. With regard to the man Rooney and his easy chair, why was it that you refused at first? I did not refuse. He said he required a chair from his own friends, and this being a Government institution, I had been given to understand that private property was not allowed, and I said that the Government would provide him with a chair. As soon as the chair was requisitioned for it came.

3197. On the occasions when entries were made in the diary that fat was sent away, and that soap was to be returned, did you always get soap? Yes; about a ton of soap a year was supplied.

3198. It was said by Mr. Williamson that for twelve months while the Asylums Board was sitting you received no cheque. As a matter of fact I believe the Inquiry Board was sitting about eight and a half months? Yes.

3199. And it appears by your book that you received no cheques during that period? I had no reason for not doing so.

3200. In the book in which is kept an account of the cheques received from Pritchard there is an interval of about eight months during which no cheques were received. Can you tell us whether there is a similar interval at any other time during which no cheques were received from Pritchard? Yes; there was such an interval between the 23rd January, 1885 and the 3rd August, 1885.

3201. In that case there was an interval of seven months between the receipt of the cheques? Yes.

3202. Could you give us any idea as to how many times a year you paid money to Mr. King? I could not say positively how often—whenever he felt inclined to have a settlement. So everything was satisfactorily arranged with Mr. King up to the time of his illness, prior to his retirement.

3203. Did your account at the bank always leave a margin to cover these moneys? Always.

3204. Have you your bank account here to show that? Yes.

3205. It will show that you always left a margin to cover the amounts you held? Yes.

3206. Did Mr. King know that your servants were paid by the Government 2d. and 3d. a day? Yes; he always told me I was entitled to any help I required.

3207. Did you generally have a servant of your own? I always had a servant woman and also a little nurse girl if I required one.

3208. So that these men you had belonging to the institution would not have done very much for you? No; they were always pleased to come and also to receive a few shillings, and anything I required them to do they did, not only about my home but whatever was required.

3209. You were asked about taking your own servants and others off the Government pay-sheet soon after Mr. Maxted was appointed. Do you remember receiving this letter from Mr. Maxted on the 27th September, 1888:—

MADAM,—I have the honor to request that you will be good enough to remove the names of all the inmates from your pay-sheet for the ensuing month (October), with the exception of those appearing on the annexed page, so that the amount paid as wages to inmates may be considerably reduced. In cases where you may consider it advisable you may issue extra tobaccos for work performed by inmates, but it will be necessary for you to keep a separate account of the tobacco thus issued.

Then follow a number of names and the amounts each person is to receive per day. Was it in consequence of that letter that certain names were taken off the pay-sheet? Yes.

3210. You have seen the letter put in from Mr. King dated 6th May, 1887, where he said you would have to leave the Asylum unless subordination could be maintained? That is not as it should be.

3211. Do you remember the letter? Yes.

3212. Do you know what it refers to? It refers to a report I believe, I sent about an inquiry in reference to Baird, Roy, Rooney, and one or two others, who had given evidence before the Inquiry Board.

3213. Was it in reference to insubordination on their part? Yes, they were defying my authority, and inciting the inmates to quarrel, because they knew I had no power to dismiss them, or to take any action, and I forwarded a report to Mr. King. Mr. Rossiter was at the time Acting Manager, Mr. King being indisposed.

3214. Then it was in consequence of that report that Mr. King wrote the letter of the 6th May, in answer to Mr. Rossiter's communication? Yes. Mr. Rossiter saw Mr. Walker, and told him that it would be impossible for me to go on managing the institution unless my authority was upheld.

3215. It was the custom some time ago for you to allow men to go out to work for people round about Parramatta, was it not? Yes.

3216. And they received some little payment for it? Yes; they received whatever the people liked to give them.

3217. And in such cases would they take their rations with them? Yes, always, or come in to dinner.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
18 Sept., 1869.

3218. If a man went out like that, of course he would have the asylum clothing on him? Yes.
3219. And if he came back to his tea, after working all day for some one outside of the institution, he would not be refused his tea because he had been working for somebody else? No.
3220. Do you remember the man Henry Wilkinson? He died three years ago.
3221. Do you remember that, just after you were suspended, Mr. Maxted sent to you for a list of the inmates' moneys? Yes; he asked for the names of the men who were taking advances.
3222. Is this the memorandum he sent you, "28th November, 1888. Will Mrs. Cunynghame kindly send in the account-book of inmates' moneys, as some of the men are asking for advances"? Yes.
3223. Then you understood from that memorandum that he wanted a list of the living inmates' moneys? Yes. I knew that they wanted their weekly allowance, and of course I did not think anything about the deceased inmates or the other accounts that were not opened.
3224. Is that the reason why the dead inmates' moneys were not included in that list? Yes.
3225. As a matter of fact the dead inmates' moneys amounted in round numbers to about £14? Yes.
3226. And at that time the Government owed you about the same amount, did they not? Yes, quite that much.
3227. Did you make use of the expression "that it was a matter between you and the inmates"? Yes; I said something to that effect, but not exactly in those words.
3228. You said, in answer to Mr. Williamson, that you were sometimes days and days without going through the hospital. Will you tell us on what occasions those were? During my confinement.
3229. And in cases of illness? Yes; I was very seldom ill.
3230. The Government knew you were married? Yes. And my husband, the resident dispenser, always performed my duties with the doctor's consent, and always conveyed messages from me and to me.
3231. Did Mr. King and Mr. Maxted know that Mr. Cunynghame was representing you in the institution? I do not know about Mr. Maxted, because I do not think I was ill during Mr. Maxted's time.
3232. Even when you were well Mr. Cunynghame helped you? Yes; every morning. When Mr. Maxted was appointed Mr. Cunynghame declined to go through the hospital wards as he had usually done, knowing that I was so anxious to assist Mr. Maxted in carrying out the new arrangements he was making.
3233. During those months when you were ill, was Mr. Cunynghame in the habit of going regularly through the institution for you—that is to say, doing your official duties in the morning? Yes.
3234. And during the other part of the day you would be in and out as occasion required? Yes; any time I felt able to go.
3235. Since Mr. Maxted's appointment have you ever been away from the hospitals? No; not for one whole day, and never in the afternoon. On looking at the diary yesterday afternoon I found that Mr. Maxted visited the institution about 100 times, and he never on one occasion came and found me away from the building, repeatedly visiting two and three times in the day.
3236. Part of Dr. Violette's charge against you is that you were anxious to get rid of M'Govern, because he gave evidence in Cook's case? Yes.
3237. Do you remember the date of Cook's affair; you held an investigation;—did you receive a letter of the 7th September referring to that? Yes.
3238. Then it must have taken place before the 7th September? Yes.
3239. Is this M'Govern's admission order into the Macquarie-street Asylum:—"No. 2,487, 24/9/88. To the Superintendent, Macquarie-street Asylum,—Admit James M'Govern an inmate—country order"? Yes.
3240. Then that admission order being dated the 24th September M'Govern, as a matter of fact, could not have been in the institution at the time of Cook's affair? Not by that.
3241. You have said that you allowed horses and the cow to pasture on the lawn;—why did you allow that if it was understood that the inmates were not to go on the grass? It took fully five years to cultivate this lawn that has given so much offence. It was Sunday, and the man did not take the cow out.
3242. But was there any reason for allowing the horses and the cow on the lawn? No. I did not pay any attention to it; the men merely put them there for an hour or two to eat the grass.
3243. Keep it down? Yes. We did not have any occasion to mow it, and the cows ate it down every Sunday.
3244. You remember going into the hospital when it was said that Cook was beating Smith? Yes.
3245. As a matter of fact, was Cook beating Smith? Certainly not. The old man used to go to sleep and make a fearful noise in his sleep.
3246. Do you remember receiving the following letter from Mr. Maxted about the meat:—

Madam,

20 September, 1888.

The meat contractor has just forwarded to me your memo. relating to the future supply of meat. The contractor has the Colonial Secretary's authority to supply the meat in pieces. This need not interfere with the new arrangements being carried out, and it does not appear to have done so thus far. You will of course see that the meat is of good quality. I am informed that you have a copy of the authority referred to, but I will apply for a copy to-morrow.

Yes, I remember that letter. There is a minute in the diary on this subject which I discovered yesterday, and which I should like to read to the Committee. It is as follows:—

Mr. Hugh Taylor and Sub-Inspector Intimer were present. The latter watching on behalf of the police, and the former in consequence of an anonymous letter which he had received.

I believe the beginning of this entry has reference to a coroner's inquest.

In consequence of the tenders for the new meat contract being obliged to be in the Treasury by noon to-morrow, Mr. Dunn asked the Superintendent to give him a list of the description of meat that it would be necessary to supply each day, and he received the following:—

Monday.—Beef, fore and hind-quarters alternately.	Friday.—Mutton, supplied as above.
Tuesday.—Mutton, whole or half sheep.	Saturday.—Beef
Wednesday.—Beef, supplied as above.	Sunday.—Beef or mutton, or some of each.
Thursday.—

Meat to be delivered not later than 7 each morning. The Superintendent also gave Mr. Dunn a memo. having reference to the quality of the meat supplied, also the average overplus beyond that ordered. See Letter-book, fol. 101.

3247. Mr. Kidd.] Which Mr. Hugh Taylor is there referred to—the elder or the younger? The elder—Mr. Hugh Taylor, the Member.

3248. Was he the contractor for the meat? No. Mr. R. L. Dunn was the contractor.

3249. Mr. Bourke.] Who supplied the meat—Taylor Brothers—Mr. Hugh Taylor's sons? Yes.

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
18 Sept., 1889.

3250. Mr. Williamson.] At this time—20th September? Yes; up to the 1st October. Mr. Finlayson supplied the meat for Mr. Dunn to my asylum.
3251. Mr. Kidd.] But what did Mr. Hugh Taylor want to come with the Inspector for? There was an anonymous communication. I do not know why he came, but I remember that there was a great rumour about it, and I was a little bit put out.
3252. Mr. Bourke.] Was not Mr. Hugh Taylor in the habit of coming when there was any complaint about the meat? Yes, repeatedly.
3253. Mr. Williamson.] When there was any complaint about the meat? No, not complaint, but anything at all.
3254. Mr. Bourke.] He came to see about the meat generally, just as if he were the contractor;—is that so? Yes.
3255. Is there an entry in the diary on the 16th or 17th September about the quality of the meat? No. There is the following entry on the 1st October, 1888:

Messrs. Taylor Brothers brought their account for meat for last month, amounting to £56 14s. 9d.

3256. Will you look at the 18th September, and see if there is an entry? Yes; on that date there is the following entry:—

In consequence of the poverty of the beef supplied by the contractor, a stew had to be supplied again to-day with soap, and a memo. was sent to Mr. Dunn asking him to supply mutton for to-morrow's issue of good quality.

[The original letter of Sept. 18, 1888, was tendered as evidence by Mr. Bourke on last Committee day.]

Department of Government Asylums for the Infirm and Destitute,

Madame,

Manager's Office, Sydney, 18 September, 1888.

During my visit yesterday I noticed in your diary you had recorded that the meat was so poor that you had been unable to carry out the instructions as to dietary; yet I found no similar record in reference to the butter and tea, which I saw were both unfit for use, nor was there any indication that the goods which you agreed with me were of such bad quality, had been sent back. This matter is one of so much importance—indec the success of the changes I am making so largely depend upon it—that I must request you to be most careful to see the good quality of the provisions, for which you are responsible, is fully maintained. It will not do for an inmate attendant to receive any articles supplied to the Asylum; they must be received and passed by you, or, if you should be absent, by a responsible official, who must immediately on your return submit them to you for approval or otherwise. You need not incur the expense of purchasing suet for the puddings, the dripping from the soups will do.

I have, &c.

SYDNEY MAXTED,

Director.

3257. At the last sitting of the Committee Mr. Williamson put in a memo. in which you said that the meat was good up to the 6th of September;—do you remember that? Yes. The entries in the diary will prove the correctness of my evidence.
3258. After the 6th of September was the meat supplied to you by Dunn or Taylor Bros. of bad quality? It was so poor that I could not issue it in joints to carry out the new arrangement.
3259. Have you ever complained to Mr. Maxted or shown him any of this meat? Repeatedly. I kept a rib of beef, and when Mr. Maxted came I sent down to the dairy for the rib of beef, and he rolled it in a piece of paper and took it away with him.
3260. Did he tell you what was the result of his inquiries? No; he did not say anything more about the meat.
3261. Do you remember a man named Burns, who made threats about Mr. Taylor? I remember Robert Parkes.
3262. Did he say anything to you about Mr. Taylor? Yes.
3263. What did he say? He said he had put me away to Mr. Taylor, and that my reign here would be very short. There were two or three of them.
3264. As a matter of fact, were there several men in the institution who threatened you with Mr. Taylor's anger? Yes; I could give the names of them.
3265. You were asked (Question 2174) when you first received cheques for fat, and you said that during 1883, 1884, and 1885 you received no cheques for fat;—is that correct? No; it ought to have been 1882, 1883, and 1884.
3266. Then during the first three years you supplied the fat to Pritchard you received no cheques? Yes; in the answer I gave before the years should have been 1882, 1883, and 1884.
3267. Have you been able to find any of those receipts you spoke of? No, I have not asked the clerk since whether he found the parcel I spoke about; I have not seen him since. Besides receipts, the parcel contained memoranda and authorities for different things.
3268. A great deal has been said about Roy and Baird;—how long ago is it since they left the institution? Baird was turned out of the institution by the Colonial Secretary's authority twelve months before I was suspended; that would be two years ago. Roy left shortly after the inquiry—about June, 1888. Vavasour left the day after the last meeting of the Inquiry Board.
3269. Were the moneys you now hold received before Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes.
3270. The moneys you received since his appointment you always sent to him? I think there are one or two sums that I did not send.
3271. In his evidence in support of the charge of untruthfulness against you, Mr. Maxted says that you told the Commission that you never received cheques for fat? I did nothing of the sort, and there was no mention of cheques. I simply said that I supplied the institution with soap, which I had done.
3272. Were you asked anything about cheques? No, there was no mention of cheques.
3273. You say that once in six weeks the fat would be exchanged for soap? Not so frequently in those days, because the meat was of very poor quality.
3274. Have you seen the salary-book of the inmates lately? Yes, I saw it in the Committee-room at the last meeting.
3275. And did you see according to that book that the following salaries are now paid to certain people in the institution, namely:—Peter Abbott, £50 per year; George Hawkins Baker, £145 a year; T. Edgar, £60 a year; C. Warner, £60 a year; Daniel Watsford, £60; P. Dryer, £26; C. Crawley, £26; W. Johnson, £24; W. Stirling, £60; J. Smith, £125;—is that the case? Yes.
3276. Showing a total of ten persons in the institution now being paid? Yes.
3277. You remember the Commission of Inquiry that has been spoken about so often? Yes.
3278. Who were the members? Mr. T. K. Abbott was chairman, and the other members were Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. Hugh Robison, Inspector of Charities.

3279.

3279. When they were holding their inquiry here, were you present during the hearing of the evidence? Never.
3280. Were you represented by anybody? No.
3281. You had no opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses? No, I never had a word to say.
3282. And how many people did they call altogether? About 14 out of about 290 inmates.
3283. You have seen the evidence since; were these fourteen people or the greater number of them adverse to you? Only about five were adverse to me and my management.
3284. Were any witnesses called by the Committee to rebut the evidence of the men? No.
3285. Do you know whether all the members of that board subscribed to the report? They did not.
3286. How many did not? Mr. Hugh Robison objected to sign.
3287. You wrote a reply to the report did you not? Yes.
3288. Will you hand it in to the Committee? Yes.
3289. Did you receive the following letter on the 4th September from Mr. Maxted?—

Mrs. S.
Cunynghame.
18 Sept., 1889.

Dear Mrs. Cunynghame,—I have directed the books to be sent up to-morrow. Will you kindly put Watsford on. I think it will be well to let him superintend the arrangement of the mess-tables, look after the men in the evenings, and patrol the wards occasionally until say 10 o'clock. This will give him about nine hours of duty daily. He can fill up his time in that period in any other way you wish. You may buy in Parramatta about £1 worth of drafts, dominoes, &c. You can set to work with the new diet at once. I send you a copy of the table. Kindly keep a daily diary of the meals.

Yes.

3290. On the 20th October, which was a feast day, did you receive the following address from the inmates?

Dear Madam,—We, the undersigned inmates of the above institution, beg to tender you our sincere thanks for the invariable kindness and rectitude wherewith you have fulfilled your onerous duties to us as matron of this Asylum, and wish you to accept this small token of our esteem and gratitude. Trusting that you will long be spared to continue your kind offices, and wishing you, Mr. Cunynghame, and family, every happiness and prosperity, We are, &c.

[Here follow list of names, or number of signatures.]

Yes.

Peter Christopher Abbott recalled and further examined:—

3291. Mr. Williamson.] You kept the diary? I did.
3292. And you did all the correspondence in connection with the institution? Yes, except that when Mrs. Cunynghame required any particular memorandum written, she used to dictate it.
3293. It has been sworn before the Committee that Mr. King used to give receipts in the diary for inmates' moneys? I do not recollect that he gave receipts except on certain occasions when money was sent to him. Generally speaking, he did not receipt the diary, but there is one receipt for fat money which I have seen myself.
3294. Was that in 1885? I cannot say.
3295. Can you give the Committee any explanation of why you did not enter the fat cheques in the diary? A general order from Mrs. Cunynghame.
3296. To what effect? "You need not put that in; it is going down for a cheque—for money to be returned."
3297. What you mean is this,—that when she wanted a cheque for the fat she requested you not to enter in the book that fat had been sent to Pritchard? There was one general order that I received in the first instance, that when fat was sent to Pritchard it was not to be entered in the diary.
3298. That is, if she wanted a cheque? Yes.
3299. Was any such order given to you with regard to moneys of deceased inmates? No; I cannot say that Mrs. Cunynghame ever gave me any orders about not entering deceased inmates' moneys in the diary.
3300. The only explanation you can give why entries were made when fat was sent to be exchanged for soap, and not entering fat that was sent when you wanted a cheque was because of a direction you received from Mrs. Cunynghame? It was.
3301. Are you aware of any fat cheques since 1885 that were paid to Mr. King? No.
3302. Mr. Kidd.] Did you not state, when you last gave evidence, that Mrs. Cunynghame gave you fat cheques from time to time to put in the despatch-box? I did.
3303. And these cheques, from time to time, were paid into the bank to Mrs. Cunynghame's credit with other moneys taken from the cash-box? I do say so.
3304. Mr. Williamson.] The question I put to you was this: Did you know of any of those fat moneys being paid to Mr. King since 1885? No.
3305. When Mr. King received money did you make out the receipt—I mean when he did not receipt the diary? No; Mr. King made a memo. in the margin of the diary when he received any money.
3306. But, apart from the diary, since 1885, were any separate receipts given by Mr. King to Mrs. Cunynghame? Not that I am aware of.
3307. Mr. Kidd.] Not given through you? No.
3308. Mr. Williamson.] Did you ever make out any receipts like those to be signed by Mr. King? [Paper shown to witness.] No.
3309. Mr. Bourke.] Those are dated 1880? Yes.
3310. Were you in the asylum in 1880? I believe I came at the end of 1881. I know this handwriting; it is that of the clerk who preceded me.
3311. Mr. Williamson.] What was his name? Adams.
3312. Did you make out all receipts? Generally speaking, yes.
3313. And any receipts for moneys would be handed to you? Yes, they would, and be put away.
3314. Mrs. Cunynghame has said that there were some receipts in one of the pigeon-holes in the office? Mrs. Cunynghame paid a visit to the office—I believe after the sitting of the Committee—and I could not find any receipts. I have searched since and cannot find one receipt.
3315. What you say is this, that when moneys were paid to Mr. King he always receipted the margin of the diary? Yes.
3316. Mr. Bourke.] You say you do not know of any fat moneys being paid to Mr. King? I do, on one occasion, when he gave a receipt in the diary.
3317. Were you present when Mrs. Cunynghame paid moneys to Mr. King? I was not.

Mr.
P. O. Abbott.
18 Sept., 1889.

- Mr. P. C. Abbott.
18 Sept., 1889.
3318. Mr. Williamson.] Is your recollection clear with regard to Mrs. Cunynghame tearing the leaves X, Y, Z out of the book? I did not see her do it.
3319. Did you tear them out? Certainly not. I was not implicated in the matter at all. I had nothing to do with those monays.
3320. She swears that you tore them out;—did you tear them out? Certainly not.
3321. Suppose Mrs. Cunynghame asked you to tear them out, would you do it? I might do it at her direction, but I certainly did not do it myself.
3322. Mr. Bourke.] Mrs. Cunynghame does not say you did it yourself, she says she asked you to do it? Mrs. Cunynghame is mistaken there.
3323. You do not recollect? Had I attempted to do such a thing she ought to have turned me out of the office at once.
3324. Mr. Williamson.] At any rate, do you recollect her asking you to tear the leaves out of the book? Certainly not.
3325. What you say is this, that when the Royal Commission was sitting she took the book away, that the leaves were in when she took the book away, and that when it was returned the leaves were out? Yes; X, Y, Z were out.
3326. Mr. Kidd.] And they were put back again? Into another book.
3327. Mr. Bourke.] They were put into another book? Yes; when I saw them here I saw them in another book.

Philip M'Cauley called in, sworn, and examined:—

- P. M'Cauley.
18 Sept., 1889.
3328. Mr. Williamson.] Where do you reside? The other side of Campbelltown at present.
3329. What are you? A railway man.
3330. What are you doing on the railway? I am working on the duplication of the line.
3331. Were you an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum at any time? Yes.
3332. I believe you were an inmate from the 9th July to the 24th December last year? Yes.
3333. And you were here under the name of M'Carthy, having been sent from the Sydney Hospital? Yes; I got an order from Dr. Strong; my name was entered as M'Cauley in the dispensary, but the name M'Carthy was written on the card over my bed, and it was in that way that my name appeared as M'Carthy when I came to the Asylum; my right name is M'Cauley.
3334. You have no interest in this matter—you have been in no way influenced by Mr. Maxted? In no way whatever.
3335. I believe you were an inmate of No. 3 hospital in this asylum? Yes.
3336. I believe you were in the next bed to Cadogan? Yes.
3337. And a man named Cook was the wardman? Yes.
3338. Used this man Cook to rob the patients of their medical comforts? Yes.
3339. How? By taking their eggs and grog and porter.
3340. And how used he to get rid of them? He used to take them sometimes down into the yard, and he told us himself that he used to sell them in the yard, and he used to put the medical comforts into the matron's kitchen through the window repeatedly.
3341. You mean Mrs. Cunynghame's kitchen? Yes. He used to get upon the bed and put them into a party inside who received them.
3342. Mr. Bourke.] Did you see them do these things? Yes.
3343. You saw him get up on the bed and put them through the window? Yes, more than once—more than half a dozen times.
3344. Mr. Graham.] You do not know who received them at the other side? I do not. He used to get up on the foot of the bed occupied by a man named M'Govern, and put them in, and he used to get the empty bottle back.
3345. You did not hear him say to whom he gave them? No; I used to hear the voice on the other side, but I did not know who it was.
3346. Mr. Kidd.] Was it a female voice or a male voice? It was a male voice, I think.
3347. Mr. Graham.] You believe it was a man to whom he gave the comforts on the other side? I do.
3348. Mr. Williamson.] Did you subsequently inform Edgar, the attendant? I did.
3349. And the Director? I did.
3350. And an inquiry was held? Yes; the inmates advised me not to make any complaint or any charges against Cook.
3351. You wanted to make some charges against Cook, and you were warned against doing it? Yes.
3352. Mr. Bourke.] By the inmates? Yes.
3353. Mr. Kidd.] Was there an inquiry about this matter at the time? Yes.
3354. And you gave evidence then? I gave evidence to Dr. Violette, and I stated the case to Mr. Maxted when he came up. The doctor put Cook out of the ward. The thing was so clear against him that he had to admit it himself, and then I requested that he should not be allowed to go away until the Director came up. Next morning Cook went away.
3355. The doctor dismissed Cook from the ward? Yes.
3356. Mr. Graham.] Was it ever ascertained who got the medical comforts from Cook? He used to take them to the yard and he used to drink them himself. He used to drink a bottle of porter every day for dinner that belonged to a man named Jorgenson. He drank a bottle of porter belonging to that man for about seven weeks, and he used to make no secret of it.
3357. Mr. Williamson.] During the time that you were in No. 3 hospital, used Mrs. Cunynghame to come to see how matters were going on? Occasionally she would come in the day-time—very seldom.
3358. Mr. Graham.] She did not go every day? No.
3359. Mr. Kidd.] The doctor came to the hospital every day, I suppose? Yes; he might miss a day, but he came regularly.
3360. Mr. Williamson.] Did Mrs. Cunynghame ever go at night at any time? Never; she used to come to the window outside, but not inside.
3361. What did she come to the window for? To speak to the wardman.
3362. She did not go through the hospital though at night? No; never during the time I was there.
3363. After you had made a complaint with regard to the way things were going on, how were you treated? Very poorly.

3364. Mr. Grahame.] You consider you got punished for what you did? Yes; and I was told that I would get that punishment before. P. M'Cauley.
3365. Mr. Williamson.] How were you treated? I had previously had the privilege of being able to walk through the wards, but after the complaint and inquiry my clothes were taken away, as I understood, by Mrs. Cunynghame's orders, and I was not allowed to get out of bed at all. Then I asked the doctor if he would allow me to get up and walk about through the wards. The doctor said yes, and then I got my clothes. On several occasions Mrs. Cunynghame told me that I had no business to be there, and that I was a mischief-maker, and the cause of all the disturbances in the hospital. She said she would have me transferred to a Coast hospital. I told the Director when he came up. 18 Sept., 1889.
3366. Did she call you a sneak? She did.
3367. And a liar? Yes.
3368. Did you then receive a notice that you were to be moved out of the hospital? I did. She sent Edgar into me to tell me that I was to go in the morning, and I refused to go on the Saturday morning. I refused to go until I saw Dr. Violette.
3369. Did you ask to be removed to Liverpool afterwards? This order came up on the Friday night.
3370. But in consequence of the way you had been treated, had you previously asked to be removed to Liverpool? Yes, I had spoken of it.
3371. Mr. Bourke.] To whom? I believe I spoke of it to Mr. Maxted. Mrs. Cunynghame stopped the privileges I had after the inquiry was over—my beef-tea, and milk, and rice.
3372. Chairman.] What was the inquiry? The inquiry by the doctor into Cook's conduct.
3373. Mr. Williamson.] Was Mrs. Cunynghame present at that inquiry? Yes. Mrs. Cunynghame, Dr. Violette, and Cook were present. Mrs. Cunynghame said in my hearing that she would pull Cook through.
3374. While you were in No. 3 hospital did you see Cook ill-treat a patient? I did.
3375. What was the patient's name? He was a man named Smith.
3376. What was Cook doing to him? He was very bad with bed-sores and he asked Cook to give him a turn in the bed. Cook went over and got him by the leg like that, and lifted him and threw him down on the bed repeatedly, and this man Smith sang out—in fact it was a kind of cry; at all events Mrs. Cunynghame must have heard him in her own kitchen because she came to the window and sang out "Wardsman what is the matter?" He said that Smith was annoying him, and she said that she would have Smith shifted to the isolation ward. She said, "You did not come here to do as you like, but to do as you are told."
3377. Did she come in? No.
3378. Mr. Kidd.] Mrs. Cunynghame was not present when the wardsman was pulling Smith about? No, she did not come into the hospital that night.
3379. Mr. Williamson.] Was Smith removed to the isolation ward? No, he was not.
3380. You say that Cook lifted him and threw him down? Several times; the man roared—sang out.
3381. Was he annoying Cook? No, he was not; he simply asked to be turned. In fact, the same night Cook refused a man a drink of water who was not able to get out of his bed.
3382. And this is the man she said she would pull through at the inquiry? Yes.
3383. Mr. Kidd.] Did this man, who was pulled about, pull through—did he get better? No, he died.
3384. How long after? I heard of his death about a month after I was transferred to Liverpool, and I believe he was helped on the road too—to the best of my belief.
3385. Mr. Grahame.] But Cook had gone then. Was Cook there when the man died? No.
3386. Mr. Williamson.] But the way Cook treated him did not do him any good, apparently? No, Cook did not treat anyone well.
3387. Do you recollect seeing Mrs. Cunynghame with regard to an anonymous letter that was sent to Sydney? Yes, I had a conversation with her about the letter.
3388. Did she come to you with reference to an anonymous letter? Yes.
3389. Did she produce the anonymous letter? She did not.
3390. Did she ask you to put your signature to anything? Yes.
3391. What did she ask you? She came into the ward about 11 o'clock and said to Wardsman Cook, "I believe you have got some pretty good writers here," and he made some remark which I did not understand. She told Cook to get all the men's signatures on a piece of paper. I refused to put my signature to the paper; I said I wanted to know what it was for. Mrs. Cunynghame came in and she asked me why I objected. I said, "I do not know what it is for, and I do not sign anything unless I do know what it is for."
3392. Mr. Williamson.] What was Mrs. Cunynghame's manner during the time you were here? I was pretty fairly treated until we had that inquiry.
3393. And after that inquiry what was her manner? Well, the sooner I could get away out of it the better.
3394. Mr. Kidd.] Do you think you got what the doctor ordered for you? No, I did not; it was stopped.
3395. Mr. Grahame.] Was Cook taking your comforts, too? It appears that there was a new scale of rations, and the extras the doctor allowed me Mrs. Cunynghame said I was not to have and that I should not have them.
3396. Chairman.] Did you ever complain that you never received them? I told Mr. Maxted.
3397. But if you were in the hospital why did you not complain to the doctor? I did not get a chance, because it was only the second time she refused me. Mr. Maxted told me to ask the doctor for those things I was getting. The doctor came next morning and I asked him and I certainly got them.
3398. Mr. Williamson.] I understand that you were afraid to complain of Mrs. Cunynghame for fear you would be a marked man? I was. I was told that repeatedly.
3399. You were actually afraid? Yes.
3400. And from the way the inmates were treated it appeared to you that there was no proper supervision? None.
3401. Where did you hear Mrs. Cunynghame tell Cook that she would pull him through? There was a partition in No. 3 hospital; there were two compartments with four or five beds in each. She was going out of the door and she said, "I will pull you through, Cook." She admitted in the presence of Dr. Violette

P. M'Cauley. Violette that she had a suspicion that Cook was taking some of the men's comforts from them, because he said, "I came in the other morning and he was having eggs for his breakfast and he is not allowed eggs."

18 Sept., 1889.

3402. Mr. Bourke.] Who asked you to give evidence here? Mr. Maxted.

3403. Did he have any conversation with you about the evidence you were to give? I have never spoken to Mr. Maxted since I left here, except once at Liverpool; I never spoke to him before to-day.

3404. When you found that Cook was taking these medical comforts did you complain to anybody? I complained to Edgar.

3405. The wardman in the hospital? Yes.

3406. What did Edgar say? He said he believed Cook had been doing it all along.

3407. Did the stealing of the medical comforts cease after you complained to Edgar? After Cook went away it ceased.

3408. When you complained to Edgar did he take any action in the matter? Certainly.

3409. What did he do? He made Dr. Violette acquainted with the circumstance.

3410. So that as soon as ever you complained about this matter the thing was seen to? Yes; it was seen to on the Monday.

3411. How long was it going on before you complained? For five or six weeks.

3412. Why did you not complain all that time? Because I was not able to leave my bed.

3413. But you saw the wardman and Mrs. Cunynghame sometimes and did not complain? I did complain.

3414. I mean during the first five or six weeks? I did.

3415. You said just now you did not? For some time after I first went there, and when I was unable to leave my bed, I did not know whether or not these men were getting medical comforts; but as soon as I was able to walk about I could see the cards on the wall, and could tell what the men were getting.

3416. You say that as soon as you complained things were improved? Yes.

3417. Do you not know that Mrs. Cunynghame and Dr. Violette held the inquiry at which you gave evidence? Yes, Mrs. Cunynghame, the doctor, and Cook were present.

3418. How often in the day would Mrs. Cunynghame come to the hospital? I never saw her twice in the one day, and I have known occasions when she has not been there at all for three days and four days.

3419. Were you bedridden at this time? Yes.

3420. Did you ever sleep in the day-time? Very seldom, and very little at night.

3421. You slept very little at night? I slept very little for five weeks.

3422. Did you ever go to sleep during the day? Never to my knowledge.

3423. You say that after you reported about the theft of these medical comforts you were poorly treated;—who was it treated you poorly—did Mrs. Cunynghame do so in any way? My beef-tea was stopped by her orders, so the wardman told me.

3424. How do you know it was by her orders? Because the wardman told me.

3425. How do you know it was not the doctor who stopped your beef-tea? When I asked the doctor he replaced it.

3426. But you do not know whether he stopped it or not? No.

3427. What were you suffering from? I was hurt in the back by a fall of timber.

3428. You were not suffering from consumption? No.

3429. You say that Mrs. Cunynghame called you a sneak and a liar;—who heard her? Myself.

3430. Who else? I cannot say.

3431. Mr. Kidd.] Did she say it in a harsh sort of way, or gently? As harshly as she could.

3432. Mr. Bourke.] You do not know that anybody else heard her? No.

3433. Did anyone else see Cook ill-treat Smith besides yourself? Yes; Codogan must have seen.

3434. Who was present besides you? Codogan was in the next bed to me.

3435. Was anyone else there? There were two or three blind men there; they could not see it.

3436. You say he took him by the leg and lifted him up? Yes; and he pulled him out of the bed.

3437. Where was Edgar while this was going on? I could not tell you.

3438. He was not in the hospital? No.

3439. Did you make any complaint to Edgar about this ill-treatment? I did and to Dr. Violette too.

3440. And what did the doctor say;—did he investigate the matter? He did, and the consequence was he turned Cook away.

3441. Cook was turned away for stealing the medical comforts? Yes, and cruelty.

3442. Was Smith a bedridden man? He was.

3443. Didn't he get up and walk about the place? He used to walk when he went in first; he would be able to go down to the yard and come back again with a great deal to do, but owing to Cook's ill-treatment he very soon got so that he was not able to walk.

3444. At the time you speak of was he able to get about the ward at all—to get up and walk about? No, he was not. He might just get out of bed when he would lay down on one side; he could not turn.

3445. Was he a very old man? I should think he would be a man of 80 years of age.

3446. After the inquiry of which you have spoken for how long were your comforts stopped? Only until I asked Dr. Violette, he gave them back to me.

3447. Was it a day? Yes, more than two days.

3448. A week? It might be a week; it might be more.

3449. Two or three days? Yes.

3450. Did you ask Dr. Violette whether he stopped your comforts? I did not.

3451. Did he make any remark when you asked for them? I told him my comforts had been stopped, and asked him if he would allow me to have them.

3452. Did he make any remark? He made no remark, but only said, "You will have them M'Carthy."

3453. Mr. Kidd.] What sort of comforts were they? Beef-tea, and a drop of milk and a bit of rice.

3454. Mr. Grahame.] You do not know whether the doctor stopped them, or whether Mrs. Cunynghame stopped them? The wardman told me it was Mrs. Cunynghame; of course I had to go by what he said.

3455. Mr. Bourke.] What wardman? The wardman who came after Cook.

3456. Do you know his name? No; I do not.

3457. Was it Edgar? No.

3458. Did you ever make any complaint to Mrs. Cunynghame herself? No.

3459.

3459. Mr. Williamson.] Because he was afraid he would get the run.
 3460. Mr. Bourke.] Why were you afraid you would get the run; who put that in your head? All the patients told me.
 3461. Can you tell us their names? Mrs. Cunyngame said she would listen to nothing that was said against the wardman.
 3462. Did she say that to you? She said so, in my presence.
 3463. Who else was present? The others who were in the ward—five or six.
 3464. Can you tell us their names? I believe Cadogan must have heard it, if he was not asleep.

P. McCauley.
 18 Sept., 1889.

James Rooney called in, sworn, and examined:—

3465. Mr. Williamson.] You are an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
 3466. How long have you been in the asylum? Upwards of five years.
 3467. You gave evidence before the Royal Commission? Yes, on 27th November, 1886.
 3468. Do you recollect being in No. 3 hospital-ward last year? I do.
 3469. Who was in the hospital with you? A man named M'Carthy, Cadogan, M'Govern, Jorgenson, Smith, and an old man named Greenfield. Those were all who were in the same half of the ward as myself. Then there were several others in the other half of the ward.
 3470. During the time that M'Carthy, Cadogan, Smith, and the others were there, did you know of the inmates losing their medical comforts? Yes, I remember the whole of the circumstances. On the 2nd June I made an application to be removed from No. 1 down to No. 3 ward, for reasons which it is not necessary, I suppose, to explain, as they have no connection with the present case. Dr. Violette kindly consented, and sent me down, on the 2nd June last year, into No. 3 ward. I was removed on the Saturday afternoon, and on Sunday morning the wardman, whose name was John Cook, with whom I was previously slightly acquainted, boasted to me that he was very well off there, that he had two eggs for his breakfast every morning and a bottle of porter at his dinner, that he got a great deal of grog and other things, and was almost as well off as if he was outside. I thought it strange that he should make this confession to me, especially as I had reported another wardman for things not very decent, yet he made no secret of it to me. That was on 3rd June. Cook told me he was in the habit of getting those things; and of course I could see him draw the bottle of porter at dinner, and could see him drink it, and he would tell me that it was Guinness' double stout, and pass remarks about it, saying that he was very well off; that it was fattening; that he got two eggs for breakfast, and got other medical comforts—so much rum from one and so much rum from another.
 3471. Mr. Kidd.] Were you deprived of any medical comforts through him? No, never.
 3472. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know a man named Smith? Yes; I remember him.
 3473. Do you recollect hearing him cry out at any time? I remember him one Saturday night. He was rather restless, and Cook turned him in bed a short time previously, and he asked to be turned again, as he was suffering from bad circulation of the blood, and Cook lost his temper with him, and I heard him slap him in the bed, and Smith cried out, "Oh, Jack, don't kill me; you'll break my back." Mrs. Cunyngame came to the window when she heard the cries, and she asked what that was. Cook said, "It is this old man Smith, who is giving a lot of annoyance," and Mrs. Cunyngame said, "Smith, if you don't behave yourself, I will bring you up before the doctor," and she said, "Bring him up before the doctor on Monday morning."
 3474. Did she come in? No; she spoke through the window from outside. We heard the voice from outside. Smith was crying, and no one came to investigate the cause of the complaint. She took Cook's word. We all knew Cook was in the wrong, but we dare not open our mouths.
 3475. Why did you make no complaint to her? I really believed it would have been useless.
 3476. Why? Well, I heard Cook himself often boast and say that Mrs. Cunyngame had told him she would always protect him; to be as rough as he liked to the patients, she would always protect him.
 3477. Were you afraid to make a complaint? I always found that whenever I made any complaint I was always opposed in it.
 3478. When you made a complaint to Mrs. Cunyngame, what would she do? I sent for her on one or two occasions, but she would not come, and I made the complaints to her husband. Her husband always opposed me; always tried to bully me, and to make it appear that I was in the wrong and that the wardmen were in the right.
 3479. And what you speak about took place after Mr. Maxted was appointed? What we are talking about now occurred long after Mr. Maxted's appointment.
 3480. Mr. Kidd.] How long—six months? Oh, no. Mr. Maxted was appointed on the 1st August, and this occurred about the end of August, because Cook left on the 3rd September, and it was only a short time before he left.
 3481. Mr. Williamson.] Did Mrs. Cunyngame, after the sittings of the Royal Commission, go through the wards in the day-time? Not for a long time after the Royal Commission.
 3482. Since Mr. Maxted's appointment? She was not in the habit of visiting the wards until about the time the paid wardmen were appointed. She was not in the habit of visiting much up to that time. After they were appointed she used to visit oftener. At the time a man named Adams and another named Godden were appointed she visited the wards oftener, but up to that time she did not. Mr. Cunyngame visited the wards up to that time.
 3483. After Mr. Maxted was appointed did she ever visit at night-time? I only recollect her visiting the wards officially at night on one occasion, and that was when a muster was taking place, and she went round with the men who took it in company with Watsford and I think Crawley.
 3484. Mr. Kidd.] Were you badly used about this time? Not about this time.
 3485. Have you been badly used by Mrs. Cunyngame at any time? Well, I know so little about Mrs. Cunyngame that I can't say she ever badly used me.
 3486. Mr. Williamson.] As a matter of fact, have other persons been badly used? Yes; I was within about 3 yards of a man who was ill-used.
 3487. You know of your own knowledge of people being ill-used and ill-treated? Yes. I know of dozens of men who have been ill-used in the institution during my five years.
 3488. Mr. Graham.] By whom? By cruel wardmen.

J. Rooney.
 18 Sept., 1889.

- J. Rooney. 3489. You yourself have no reason to complain of harshness on the part of Mrs. Cunynghame to you? Well, as I told you before, Mrs. Cunynghame was so seldom in the ward that I could not say she personally used hardness to me.
- 18 Sept., 1889. 3490. Mr. Williamson.] In consequence of improper supervision, cruelty was carried on? It was on account of improper supervision; and her husband encouraged cruelty to me.
3491. How? He got the doctor to stop my extras once, because I sent back a bottle of medicine that did not agree with me, and another time, because I reported a wardaman for beating a dying man's head against the wall. He got very wrath, and turned me out of the hospital into the yard.
3492. Did you apply for a chair? I did.
3493. When? Shortly after I got down from No. 1 to No. 3 ward, the first week in June. I asked Dr. Violette to be kind enough to allow me to buy a chair, as there was no chair there for me to sit upon, and as I was very bad and could not sit upon a hard wooden chair, and he said "Yes." I was in the act of getting a letter written when Mrs. Cunynghame came into the ward, and said there was no private property allowed, and that I could not be permitted to send for a chair, but that Dr. Violette was going to get a chair at the Government expense. Of course I said that was all right—as long as I got a chair I did not care at whose expense it was. After about a fortnight the chair arrived, and Mrs. Cunynghame came into the ward and said in the presence of all who were there that I was to be allowed to sit on the chair; but she said to Wardsman Cook, "That chair is for you; it is for anybody and for everybody who wants to sit on it, and if anyone is sitting on it he must not be compelled to rise if Rooney wants it."
3494. Mr. Bourke.] How long ago was that? In June, 1888.
3495. Mr. Williamson.] That continued up to Mr. Maxted's time? The chair came in June, and Mr. Maxted of course did not come until August. Of course we had the use of the chair all the time it was in the ward, but the wardsmen told me that the matron told them to try to put someone else in it so as to inconvenience me.
3496. As a matter of fact you gave evidence before the Royal Commission condemning the management of the institution? Yes; and I was persecuted in every shape and form ever afterwards for it.
3497. Up to the time of Mrs. Cunynghame's suspension? Yes.
3498. And do you know as a matter of fact that up to the time of her suspension other people were put in this chair to keep you out of it? Well, no, the wardsmen did not do that. He told me he would not take Mrs. Cunynghame's advice in that way. He did not put anyone in; he said he would disobey her in that respect; he said it would be a cruel thing to put anyone in.
3499. Who was the wardman? Cook; he was there up to the 3rd of September.
3500. You say she persecuted you up to the time of her suspension, because you gave evidence before the Royal Commission;—in what way have you been persecuted? Well, if I asked for any favour of him Mr. Cunynghame always opposed me.
3501. Mr. Cunynghame? Mr. Cunynghame came round with the doctor. Several times Mrs. Cunynghame would not be there. It was only on odd occasions that Mrs. Cunynghame came in, and when she did she did not come near me. She would generally go round and ask this one how he was and that one, but she always passed me by; she always showed that she had a vindictive feeling against me, because she never would speak to me but passed me by and spoke to everyone else.
3502. Mr. Kidd.] What do you mean by asking for favours? Well, the slightest indulgence. On one occasion I asked Dr. Violette to change me to a bed next the wall. There was a bed that fell vacant next the wall, and on account of my being blind and paralyzed it is better for me to have a bed next the wall and I asked Dr. Violette to change me into that bed and Mr. Cunynghame opposed it, and said the matron had great objection to anyone being removed from one bed to another, and he asked Dr. Violette not to do it, and Dr. Violette complied with his request.
3503. Mr. Bourke.] Did you ever make any complaint to Mrs. Cunynghame herself? Yes. On one occasion I was brought before her and she asked me of what I had to complain, and I said that the potatoes were hard and she said, "They are quite good enough for you, and if you want any better you can go outside and get better."
3504. How long ago was that? That was not during Mr. Maxted's time; it was three years ago.
3505. Mr. Williamson asked you whether Mrs. Cunynghame came into the hospital at any time and you said you only remembered her visiting there once; since Mr. Maxted's appointment had she been in the habit of coming to the hospital? Occasionally.
3506. Every day? Oh, no. Sometimes three or four days would elapse when she would not come.
3507. Is it possible that Mrs. Cunynghame could be in the ward without your knowing;—you being blind you would not know Mrs. Cunynghame from anyone else if she came into the ward without speaking? I would only know her if she spoke.
3508. You have not told us yet how you were persecuted. During the last three months before Mrs. Cunynghame was suspended, in what way were you persecuted. Did you ever ask Mrs. Cunynghame herself for any favour that was refused? I do not think I ever asked her for any more than that.
3509. Were you not shifted pretty often by the doctor at your own request? No. I was once shifted at my own request and I was put out of the hospital at another time for reporting the wardman for beating a dying man's head against the wall.
3510. Can you tell us of any ill-treatment towards you by Mrs. Cunynghame herself? Mrs. Cunynghame did not personally ill-treat me; it was her subordinates.
3511. Mr. Kidd.] You do not know of any act of cruelty by Mrs. Cunynghame herself to any patient? It was always by subordinates.
3512. Mr. Bourke.] And it was much worse years ago? Oh, a great deal worse years ago. When I came here first the cruelty was something fearful.
3513. It has been better since Mr. Maxted's appointment? Yes, Mr. Maxted paid good attention; we were better protected after he came no doubt.

Dixwell Jones Cadogan called in, sworn, and examined:—

- D. J. 3514. Mr. Williamson.] You are an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum? Yes.
- Cadogan. 3515. And you have been so for some considerable time? Yes, over five years.
- 18 Sept., 1889. 3516. I believe that during last year you were in No. 3 hospital? Yes.
3517. And previous to that you had given evidence before the Royal Commission? No. 3518.

D. J.
Cadogan.
18 Sept., 1889.

3518. When you were in No. 3 hospital do you recollect a man named Macauley being there? Yes.
 3519. Also a man named Smith? Yes.
 3520. And the last witness, Rooney? Yes.
 3721. And Cook was the wardsman? Yes.
 3522. Can you tell me the date when you left No. 3 hospital? I went down to the yard when the hospitals were changed.
 3523. Were you there during the whole time that Macauley was there? Yes.
 3524. Do you know of the medical comforts being stolen? Yes.
 3525. And you know also of the ill-treatment of the man Smith by Cook? Yes.
 3526. Did you see it yourself? Yes.
 3527. What did he do to him? He was very unkind to him.
 3528. In what respect? He was unkind to him in every way.
 3529. Do you recollect one night Cook ill-treating this man Smith, and Mrs. Cunyngame coming? Yes.
 3530. Did she come in or stand at the window? She stood at the window.
 3531. What remark did she make? She said that if Smith did not alter he would be put in the isolation ward.
 3532. This man, Smith, was suffering from bed sores was he not? Yes.
 3533. And in every respect he was in very bad health? Yes.
 3534. Can you tell me the month when the hospitals were changed? No.
 3535. How long ago was it that you were removed from No. 3 ward? About nine months ago.
 3536. Up to the time of her suspension did Mrs. Cunyngame ever visit the hospital at night? Very seldom—about three or four times.
 3537. How long were you in that ward? From March—about nine months.
 3538. And during the whole of that time Mrs. Cunyngame only visited the ward three or four times at night? Yes.
 3539. Used she visit it in the day-time? Very seldom.
 3540. Up to the time of her suspension? Yes.
 3541. During the time that Mr. Maxted was Director used she visit the hospital in the day-time? Very seldom.
 3542. During Mr. Maxted's time did she ever visit it at night? Yes; on two or three occasions.
 3543. When you say very seldom, do you mean for instance once every two days or once every three days? Perhaps once or twice in a month she used to come.
 3544. Mr. Bourke.] During Mr. Maxted's time? No.
 3545. Mr. Williamson.] But during Mr. Maxted's time? During Mr. Maxted's time she never used to come into the hospital, with the exception of the last week.
 3546. Mr. Bourke.] Never used to come at all? Very seldom.
 3547. In the day-time? Very seldom.
 3548. Mr. Williamson.] And in the night-time during Mr. Maxted's time she visited the ward two or three times? Yes.
 3549. Was that during the last week? Yes.
 3550. Mr. Grahame.] Mrs. Cunyngame did not visit the ward in the night-time except during the last week? No.
 3551. And she went three or four times during that week? Yes.
 3552. Mr. Williamson.] During Mr. Maxted's time, while you were there, did you see ill-treatment going on—were the patients looked after? Well, there was one fellow there; I do not know his name; he slept in the next bed to me—he was very bad. If you knew the room—there were about eight beds in it. I cannot say that anything happened with the exception of Smith.
 3553. Who used to see that the medical comforts were attended to, if Mrs. Cunyngame only visited the wards seldom? Edgar, the paid wardsman.
 3554. Then you say that Edgar used to look after the medical comforts? Yes.
 3555. And did Mrs. Cunyngame ever speak to you at all—ask you if you ever received your medical comforts, or anything of that kind, during the time of Mr. Maxted's appointment? No.
 3556. She never came round and asked you if you had got your medical comforts? No.
 3557. Mr. Grahame.] Were you robbed of your medical comforts? No; I took care they did not rob me of them.
 3558. Mr. Williamson.] Do you know the men who were robbed? Yes.
 3559. Do you know if Mrs. Cunyngame went to those men and asked them anything about the medical comforts until the complaint was made? Not at all.
 3560. There was no supervision on her part with regard to the hospital? No supervision at all.
 3561. You have not been in any way influenced by Mr. Maxted? No.
 3562. As a matter of fact has he ever spoken to you? No.
 3563. Mr. Bourke.] Has any one at all ever spoken to you about the inquiry?—
 3564. Do you know a man named Stirling? Yes.
 3565. Did Stirling speak to you about the evidence you were going to give here? Not a soul knows the evidence I give here.
 3566. You said just now that during Mr. Maxted's time Mrs. Cunyngame was not in the habit of going through the hospital at all in the day-time? Very seldom.
 3567. Could you tell us how often in the week? I could not tell you exactly.
 3568. But about? I will swear she was not there three times a week.
 3569. Were you always in the hospital? Yes.
 3570. Bedridden? Yes.
 3571. You never went out? No.
 3572. Did you ever sleep in the day-time? Yes.
 3573. Mr. Kidd.] You slept when you could? Yes.
 3574. Mr. Grahame.] I suppose she could go through the ward while you were asleep and you would not know? Yes.
 3575. Mr. Williamson.] But she could not always go through while you were asleep? No.
 3576. Mr. Bourke.] Did visitors ever go into the hospital? Yes.

- D. J. Cadogan.
18 Sept., 1889.
3577. How often in the week would that occur? Perhaps there would not be visitors once a week.
3578. After Mr. Maxted was appointed the food was somewhat better—there was a better dietary scale? Yes.
3579. And in the hospital, who assisted and helped to give the food to the inmates;—do you recollect whether Mrs. Cunynghame was in there at meal-times to help? No.
3580. Did she never give you your food at dinner-time or tea-time? No.
3581. Did you ever see her giving anyone else food in the ward? Yes. I recollect she came there and spoke to some of the people.
3582. At meal-times? Yes.
3583. Did she ever give them their food and assist the helpless ones. Were there any helpless ones in the ward who could not eat? Yes.
3584. Who fed them? The deputy wardman.
3585. Did you ever see Mrs. Cunynghame feeding any of them? She came there just about once or twice.
3586. To feed the helpless? Yes.
3587. Was she unkind to those helpless people—was she harsh to them? Well, I can't say.
3588. You never saw any harshness? No.
3589. Did you ever hear any of these people who were robbed of their comforts complain to Mrs. Cunynghame about it? No.
3590. Even if she only went into the hospital once a week they would then have had an opportunity of complaining to her? Yes.

Thomas Ghost called in, sworn, and examined:—

- T. Ghost.
18 Sept., 1889.
3591. Mr. Williamson.] You are an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum? I am now an inmate of the George-street Asylum.
3592. You were an inmate of the Macquarie-street Asylum from the 27th March, 1883, to the 15th August, 1888? Yes.
3593. And subsequently from the 22nd August, 1888, until the 11th December, 1888? Yes.
3594. During the time that you were in the Macquarie-street Asylum, did you ever hold any of these situations:—In 1885, third cook; 1886, third cook; 1887, in charge of reading-room; 1888, in charge of reading-room; 1888, deputy in No. 4 hospital; June, 1888, gateman; July, 1888, soil-heap man;—did you ever occupy those positions? I cannot remember those dates. I have been gateman, deputy wardman in the hospital ward below, and attendant in the yard.
3595. Mr. Graham.] You have not been cook? No.
3596. Mr. Williamson.] Or in charge of the reading-room? No.
3597. I suppose you know your own signature? Yes.
3598. Did you ever work outside the institution? No.
3599. Do you recollect doing certain private cooking for Mrs. Cunynghame or work in the house? Yes.
3600. During the time that you were doing that private work in Mrs. Cunynghame's house, did you ever work outside the institution? No.
3601. While you were doing work for Mrs. Cunynghame in the house, were you doing other work for the institution? No, I think not.
3602. Mr. Kidd.] You belonged to the institution even if you did do some work in the house? Yes; I was an inmate of the institution the whole time.
3603. Mr. Williamson.] And do you recollect whether while you were attending to Mrs. Cunynghame's private business you were paid? Yes.
3604. And did you sign the pay-sheet? Yes.
3605. Mr. Bourke.] And you received the money? Yes.
3606. Mr. Williamson.] You are sure that no other work was done at the institution except that of cleaning and attending to the place? Taking the meals down and fetching up things.
3607. Mr. Kidd.] You would do anything you were asked? Yes, anything that I could do for anybody.
3608. Mr. Bourke.] Did you have much to do in Mrs. Cunynghame's house while you were working there? Sometimes I would work there all day.
3609. And sometimes you worked in the other parts of the institution? Yes.
3610. And while you were in Mrs. Cunynghame's house, did you not generally help to wash up and attend to the kitchen? Yes; I was attendant there for a while—attendant for some months.
3611. During the five or six years that you were in the institution, did you ever experience any unkindness from Mrs. Cunynghame? No.
3612. Was she kind to you? Yes.
3613. Did you ever see her show any unkindness to anyone else in the institution? No; I have seen more the other way.
3614. Mr. Williamson.] Did you know of any unkindness or cruelty going on in the institution? No.

Thomas Edgar called in, sworn, and examined:—

- T. Edgar.
18 Sept., 1889.
3615. Chairman.] You are a wardman in this institution? Yes.
3616. Mr. Williamson.] How long were you employed here? About fifteen months.
3617. Do you recollect a blind man who was in the institution named Burnes? Yes.
3618. Do you know the grass-plot in the front? Yes.
3619. Were the blind men allowed to use that? No. No one was allowed to use it.
3620. Used Mrs. Cunynghame's horses and cattle to graze there? I have seen them there.
3621. It was the only piece of grass about the institution that the men could walk upon? Yes.
3622. Do you recollect seeing this man Burnes upon the grass-plot? Yes.
3623. Do you recollect Mrs. Cunynghame coming up? I do.
3624. Will you tell us what transpired? Mrs. Cunynghame came up to him, and he was sitting with his back to her when she came up, and she had an umbrella in her hand, and she gave him a prod with the umbrella twice on the back, and told him to get up. He refused to get up. I was standing at the door of

- of the quarters and I could see what happened. Mrs. Cunynghame called me and the other attendant, and we went up, and she said she would protect us if we would put him up in the refractory ward.
3625. That is what you call the isolation ward? Yes.
3626. Had the man done anything? Nothing that I had seen; he was sitting there.
3627. She said she would protect you? Yes, that is what she said.
3628. Mr. Kidd.] From what? I think it was from the law.
3629. Mr. Williamson.] From any inquiry? Yes.
3630. Did you remonstrate with her at all? I did not.
3631. Did you say anything to her? I did not.
3632. Mr. Grahame.] Did you put the man in the isolation ward? Yes.
3633. Mr. Williamson.] When you were taking the man up to the isolation ward did you say anything to Mrs. Cunynghame? No; I do not remember saying anything.
3634. Were the men compelled then only to walk round this grass-plot? None of the men were allowed to go on the grass-plot at all. It was an order, I believe, that no one should be allowed to walk on the grass.
3635. An order from whom? I believe from Mrs. Cunynghame; that is what I always understood—there was no one allowed to walk on the grass.
3636. Mr. Grahame.] Do they walk on it now? Yes.
3637. Mr. Williamson.] And ever since Mrs. Cunynghame left the institution they have been allowed to use this grass-plot? Yes.
3638. And there are seats on it? Yes.
3639. Did Burnes use any bad language? I did not hear any.
3640. If he had used any could you have heard it? Yes.
3641. When Mrs. Cunynghame said she would protect you, did you make any remark about harshness or anything of that kind? I did not make any remark at all; of course I obeyed Mrs. Cunynghame.
3642. Could you tell us the reason why she said she would protect you;—did you first hesitate when she told you to remove the man;—was she in a passion? I did not care to take him because I did not think there was any occasion for it. I did not think he was doing any harm.
3643. Have you seen cows and horses there repeatedly? Yes.
3644. What time of the day was it? I think it was before dinner, but I am not certain.
3645. Then, as a matter of fact, the doctor would not see him until the next morning? The doctor saw him late that afternoon.
3646. When you went to take this man, did Mrs. Cunynghame call for any further assistance? The other assistant who was there gave me a hand, and we had to get another man. He was a very heavy man, and he did not care for walking up—he would not walk up in fact.
3647. Mr. Kidd.] He preferred being carried, I suppose? Yes; we carried him up.
3648. Mr. Williamson.] Did the man make any remark? Not at that time.
3649. Did he subsequently;—did he say anything? He said he would go down to Sydney.
3650. Mr. Kidd.] Is that the man who said he would go down to Sydney and tell some member of Parliament? He said he would go down to Sydney and make some complaint; I do not know whom he intended to go to.
3651. Mr. Williamson.] From what you say there was no reason whatever for it, but you were compelled to obey orders? I do not think there was any reason for it.
3652. Was Mrs. Cunynghame in a temper at the time? Well, she did appear to be put out a little.
3653. Mr. Grahame.] I suppose the man refused to get up when she told him? Yes.
3654. Mr. Williamson.] It would not hurt the grass, would it? I do not think so.
3655. Mr. Bourke.] You say it was in the middle of the day that this man Burnes was on the grass? I would not be certain as to the hour. It was towards the afternoon I think. I could not exactly say what time of the day it was.
3656. Was it a very hot day? It was.
3657. Was not this man lying on the ground? He was sitting down on the grass.
3658. You are quite sure he was not lying down? Well, he might have had his elbow on the grass.
3659. You are not quite sure that he was not lying on the grass? Well I would not swear.
3660. Is there not some danger in a man lying there not well covered on a hot summer's day? Not in the hot weather. No, it was not so very hot as that. I do not consider it would do him the least harm myself.
3661. How long ago is it since the lawn was made? I do not know. It was made before my time.
3662. What was the character of this man Burnes—was he an abusive man? He was never abusive to me.
3663. Was he abusive to any one? I remember that he was abusive to me on one occasion.
3664. Was he abusive to any body else? I do not know.
3665. What was his character generally was he a quiet man? He never interfered with me except on one occasion.
3666. What was the man's character generally was he quiet or troublesome? He was very quiet as far as I could see, and I had an opportunity of seeing him every day.
3667. You did not have very much to do with him; you are a hospital wardsman? I am.
3668. You do not say that Mrs. Cunynghame struck him with the umbrella—she touched him with it to attract his attention? She just made a shove at him with the umbrella twice.
3669. You never saw any written order for the men to keep off the grass? No.
3670. Do you remember a man named Peters who was in the hospital ward? There was a man of that name.
3671. Did he ever ask you for any spectacles? I think he did; I am not exactly sure.
3672. Did you give him the spectacles? I cannot say. If he asked me for spectacles I took him up to the office and got them.
3673. If he asked you for spectacles you could go and get them? No; I had to go to the clerk.
3674. But you could get them from the clerk without any trouble? Yes.
3675. And you would not refuse? No.
3676. You would have no reason to refuse? No.
3677. Did you ever see Mrs. Cunynghame ever give the patients any glasses? I do not remember.
3678. Do you know whether she was particularly unkind to that man or was she friendly and kind to him? I could not say; I do not exactly remember the man.

T. Edgar.
19 Sept., 1882.

- T. Edgar. 3679. Dr. Violette says there was some hesitation on the part of the wardsmen in applying lotions to cancer patients;—was there any such hesitation on your part? No.
- 18 Sept., 1889. 3680. You always did it cheerfully? Yes.
3681. Do you remember the man Bannan coming into the institution? Yes.
3682. Who received him? I did.
3683. And where did you put him? In No. 3 ward.
3684. Is that the hospital ward? Yes.
3685. He was not put by you then in the isolation ward? No.
3686. When was he put in the isolation ward? I think it was the next day. I think it was Saturday night when he came in, and that it was the next day that he was put into the isolation ward.
3687. By the doctor's order? Yes; I think so.
3688. The doctor came on the Sunday morning? Yes.
3689. You told him the state that Bannan was in the night before, and the doctor went with you and saw Bannan? Yes.
3690. And after that he gave an order that he was to be removed to the isolation ward? Yes.
3691. Do you remember the man Cook? Yes.
3692. You know that he was charged with stealing the comforts of the patients in the ward? Yes.
3693. Were you in that ward? Yes.
3694. How did that go on without your knowing anything about it? I do not know; it was done very quietly.
3695. He did it very cunningly I suppose? He must have done.
3696. Then if you did not know about it Mrs. Cunyngame could not have known? I do not know, I am sure.
3697. As soon as it was reported to you did you report it to Mrs. Cunyngame? Yes.
3698. And what was done? It was Sunday morning when it was reported and there could be nothing done that day. Mrs. Cunyngame told me there could be nothing done until next day.
3699. What was done next day? The doctor was informed of it and he came up and investigated the matter on Monday afternoon.
3700. Did the stealing of the medical comforts go on any longer after that? No.
3701. What was done with Cook? He went away.
3702. But what was done with him first—was he put out of the ward? He was put out of the ward into the yard.
3703. And after he was put into the yard he went away? Yes.
3704. Do you know whether you people here have any authority to keep a man in the institution against his will? I do not know; I have no rules.
3705. I suppose that if a man wants to leave the place he can? Whenever he wants to go out he goes to the doctor and gets his discharge.
3706. Supposing he is in the yard? If he is in the hospital his discharge is given in the hospital.
3707. But if he is in the yard who gives the discharge? Dr. Violette.
3708. So the man applied to Dr. Violette? He did not apply to Dr. Violette. I take the names of all who want discharges.
3709. Mr. Kidd.] I suppose that a lot of the inmates of an institution like this are very discontented—discontented with their lot? Some of them are.
3710. Some of them will go out even before they are able to do so? Yes.
3711. Would you account for a good deal of that discontent by their age and their poor prospects in life? Yes.
3712. It would make them melancholy sometimes? Yes; you would have to take that into consideration.
3713. Mr. Bourke.] Do you remember a man named Smith in your ward? Yes.
3714. Do you remember his being ill-treated by Cook, or a complaint being made to that effect? Yes; there was a complaint that he did ill-treat him.
3715. How long was that before Cook was put out of the ward? I could not exactly say; I think it was about a fortnight.
3716. Was the complaint made to you by any one? No.
3717. To whom was it made? I do not know, but I came to hear it afterwards.
3718. Then there was no complaint made to you? Not to me.
3719. Do you know anything about a man who was suffering from paralysis, and who was lying on the floor helpless, in the beginning of November;—was any complaint made about that in the hospital ward about seven or eight days before Mrs. Cunyngame was suspended? Yes; I do remember.
3720. Was any complaint made to you about it? There was not. I happened to go up to the ward just at the time.
3721. How did you come to hear it? I saw the man lying on the floor.
3722. And what did you do? I put him into bed.
3723. As soon as ever you found the man lying there, you put him in bed? Certainly.
3724. Do you know how he came to get there—did he fall out of bed? He fell out of bed; he was helpless.
3725. You were in charge of part of the hospital;—do you know whether, in Mr. Maxted's time Mrs. Cunyngame was in the habit of going through the place during the day? I have seen her during the day.
3726. Every day? No; not every day.
3727. How often? For three days at a time she has not been through some of the wards.
3728. Since Mr. Maxted was appointed? Yes.
3729. But would you be there all day? I can't be everywhere; I know she was not.
3730. Would you be there all day? No, not all day.
3731. Was she ever there at meal times after the new dietary came into force? Yes.
3732. Did she not take a great deal of pains to make that a success? Well, I heard that she did.
3733. And did you see her going round herself at meal times? I have seen her sometimes at meal times going round.
3734. Amongst the hospital people? Yes.
3735. At meal times would Mrs. Cunyngame send for you and Warner and assist in feeding the hospital patients? Sometimes.

T. Edgar.

18 Sept., 1889.

3736. Not every day? Oh, no.
3737. Nearly every day? No.
3738. Do you know whether Mrs. Cunynghame was in the habit of going through about 10 o'clock in the morning—just taking a walk through? Sometimes she was; sometimes I have seen her going through about 10 o'clock.
3739. You do not know whether she went through every day at that time? I do not think she did.
3740. You cannot say for certain? No, I cannot say for certain.
3741. But you swear positively that Mrs. Cunynghame did not go through the hospital every day—just go through on a round or visit? Yes.
3742. Do you swear she did not—were you there all day? I can swear, because I know she did not.
3743. How do you know; were you there? I know she did not.
3744. Were you there all day? I was not present all day in the hospital.
3745. Is it possible that Mrs. Cunynghame could have gone through in your absence? I know she was not in the hospitals; I was attending in for quite three days.
3746. Is it possible that Mrs. Cunynghame might have gone through during your absence? It is possible that she might have gone through, but I think I would have heard it.
3747. Was Mrs. Cunynghame harsh towards the sick people? Well, sometimes she was.
3748. In what way? I consider the way she treated them was very harsh sometimes.
3749. What was the harshness? Well, the way she talked to them.
3750. She would talk harshly? Very.
3751. Anything else? Not that I know of.
3752. Did she ever feed the helpless? I never saw her.
3753. Did you ever feed them? Yes.
3754. You never saw Mrs. Cunynghame do so? No.
3755. Did you ever make any complaint to Mrs. Cunynghame about the ill-treatment of inmates by inmate wardamens? Yes, I think I have.
3756. What was the result? The men were taken up before Mrs. Cunynghame, and she investigated any case of that kind.
3757. Whenever a complaint was made by you that there was anything wrong in the hospital Mrs. Cunynghame investigated it? Yes.
3758. And set it right, I suppose? Yes.
3759. Mr. Williamson.] Did Mrs. Cunynghame ever go through the hospital at night-time? No, I never saw her.
3760. And with regard to her not being there for three days at a stretch, you would have known it if she had gone there? Yes.
3761. As a matter of fact it was her duty to go through and see that the patients received their comforts from you and the other attendants? Yes.
3762. Do you know where she was during those three days? I do not.
3763. Did you see her about the institution during those three days? Yes.
3764. Was she in the yard and other parts of the institution? Yes, but not in the hospital.
3765. When you say she spoke harshly to the inmates, what do you mean? Well, the manner in which she talked to them.
3766. How do you mean the manner? Why, tell them not to bother her, and things like that.
3767. She would not listen to them? No.
3768. Some of the inmates in the hospital? Yes; I have often seen that.
3769. When they wanted to make a statement outside of the hospital, in the yard, she was harsh to the men? Yes.
3770. And from what you saw, as a matter of fact she was also lax in her supervision? Yes.
3771. Mr. Bourke.] Can you tell us the names of the people to whom Mrs. Cunynghame was harsh? I cannot exactly tell you the names.
3772. Neither in the hospital nor in the yard? No.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MRS. CUNYNGHAME.
(PETITION OF—TO BE HEARD BY COUNSEL.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 9 July, 1889.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales.

The Petition of Sarah Cunyngame, now residing at Parramatta, in the Colony of New South Wales, the wife of George Cunyngame, of the same place,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1. That on the fifth day of July instant, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, your Honorable House appointed a Select Committee, with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the removal of Mrs. Cunyngame—your Petitioner—from the position of Superintendent of the Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute.

2. And your Petitioner humbly prayeth that your Petitioner may be heard by Counsel or Attorney before the Select Committee of this Honorable House appointed to inquire into and report on the said matter.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MRS. CUNYNGHAME.

(PETITION FROM SYDNEY MAXTED TO BE REPRESENTED BY COUNSEL BEFORE SELECT COMMITTEE SITTING ON CASE OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 30 July, 1889.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of Sydney Maxted, Director of Government Asylums and Boarding-out Officer, of Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1. That on the fifth day of July instant, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, your Honorable House appointed a Select Committee, with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the removal of Mrs. Cunynghame from the position of Matron-Superintendent of Macquarie-street Asylum for Infirm and Destitute, which removal it became the painful duty of your Petitioner, Sydney Maxted, to recommend, in his official capacity, to the Government.

2. That the said Sarah Cunynghame received the consent of your Honorable House to be heard by counsel or attorney before the Select Committee.

3. That your Petitioner, as agent of the Government in this matter, obtained the authority of the Colonial Secretary to be likewise represented by attorney before the Select Committee appointed by your Honorable House.

4. That at the first meeting of the Select Committee objection was raised to the attorney appointed to represent your Petitioner, as agent of the Government, appearing in the case, without the leave of your Honorable House; and the meeting was accordingly adjourned until Wednesday, the 31st day of July instant, to admit of the question being determined.

5. That as the said Sarah Cunynghame is represented by both counsel and attorney, learned in the law, your Petitioner humbly prayeth that he may, in his official capacity, also be represented by attorney before the Select Committee of your Honorable House appointed to inquire into and report on the said matter, with the right to call witnesses and adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine such witnesses as may give evidence before the said Committee.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MR. WILLIAM ELPHINSTONE GRAHAM.

(PETITION FROM, PRAYING FOR AN ALLOWANCE FROM THE SUPERANNUATION FUND.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 11 June, 1889.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of William Elphinstone Graham, late teacher of the Public School at Cedar Party Creek, Wingham, presently of Glen Albyn, Wingham,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

1. That your Petitioner, having completed the 60th year of his age on the 31st day of August, 1888, resigned from the Public Service in terms of section 43 of the Civil Service Act, having served eleven years and three months, such resignation taking effect from the 31st December last.

2. That your Petitioner has paid monthly from his salary since the Civil Service Act came into operation, the £4 per centum per annum required by the said Act.

3. That the Department of Public Instruction refuse to grant him any allowance from the Superannuation Fund, because he has not served fifteen years, or to give him a refund of the sum contributed by him to that account, as the Act contains no provision for such refund.

4. Your Petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honorable House will be pleased to take the premises into your favourable consideration, and to grant him some allowance from the Superannuation Fund, or a refund of the moneys deducted from your Petitioner's salary towards that fund, or to grant to your Petitioner such further or other relief as to your Honorable House may seem just, as your Petitioner cannot think that it was the intention of your Honorable House to deprive an officer in the Public Service, resigning at the age prescribed by the Act, from all benefit of the said Civil Service Act.

And your Petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

WILLIAM ELPHINSTONE GRAHAM,
Glen Albyn, Wingham.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

VACCINATION.

(REPORT FOR 1888.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Medical Adviser to the Government to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 20 May, 1889.

I do myself the honor to forward for the information of the Colonial Secretary the Annual Returns of Vaccination performed during the year 1888, by the Government Vaccinators in New South Wales.

The returns show that 2,095 vaccinations were performed during the year, of which 2,069 were successful. Of the total number, 1,091 vaccinations, or more than half were performed in Sydney, mainly by two vaccinators, and the remainder were distributed over fourteen country districts, the names of which are given in the returns. In 90 districts in which there are Government Vaccinators (Return No. 4) no vaccinations were performed during the year.

It appears from the returns that of the successful cases, 299 were under 1 year; 818 from 1 to 5 years, 921 from 5 to 10 years, and 31 upwards of 10 years of age. The unsuccessful cases were 26 or 1·24 per cent. of the total number.

An additional Vaccination Return for the year 1887 is given, including the number received too late for insertion in the statistics for that year. From this it is seen that 216 cases, of which 213 were successful, must be added to the returns for 1887, to render them complete.

Early in the current year my predecessor, the Hon. H. N. MacLaurin, addressed a circular letter to 393 medical practitioners known to be practising in the Colony, requesting a return of the whole of the vaccinations performed by them during the year 1888, but only 187 replies were received to this circular, and from these it appeared that the number of vaccinations performed other than at the public expense were few, and were not sufficient to materially affect the vaccination statistics of the Colony.

On reviewing these statistics the condition of the inhabitants of the Colony with regard to vaccination must be pronounced to be in the highest degree unsatisfactory, as the proportion of vaccinations to births is decreasing, and the number of unvaccinated persons, in proportion to the general population, rapidly increasing.

Taking the year 1888, the proportion of vaccinations to births* was somewhat less than 1 to 18, and, as will be seen on reference to Return No. 1, showing the births during the last twenty-eight years, whilst the number of these is rapidly increasing, there is a falling off in the vaccination which in the quinquennial period 1884 to 1888 inclusive amounted to 16,328, a less number than during any five years since 1861. The births during the same period were 181,014, a number greatly in excess of that during any other five years, and more than double that for the earlier years of the period under consideration. Taking the births for the last five years and subtracting therefrom the number of deaths, there are at present upwards of 130,000 unvaccinated children below 5 years of age now in the Colony, and as the returns for years past show that there has been comparatively little vaccination over 5 years, and that revaccination is very unfrequent, the conclusion arrived at is that the population of the Colony is practically in an unvaccinated, and therefore with regard to small-pox, in an unprotected condition.

That there is an increasing apathy and carelessness with regard to vaccination is shown not only by the long list of places in which no vaccination has taken place during the year 1888, but by the fact that a number of vaccinators have performed no vaccinations whatever since the year 1882; that a number appointed since that date have performed no vaccinations whatever (See Return No. 5); and that at the Central Vaccine Station in Sydney the numbers vaccinated in 1887 and 1888 were only 62 and 23 respectively.

There is no real reason to believe that the decrease in the amount of vaccination is due to any objection to the operation, or any want of belief in its protective influence. A few cases of small-pox at the Quarantine Station, a single case in Sydney or its suburbs, or even one or two newspaper articles on the subject is sufficient to greatly increase the number of persons presented for vaccination; but there is an increasing number of persons in the Colony who have never seen small-pox, and to whom its very existence is only a vague belief, who are not imbued with either the dread of the loathsome and fatal malady which renders vaccination a prudent and safe necessity, or the wholesome English tradition which prescribes it as a duty.

In

* Registrar-General's Return of Births in N.S.W., 1888—38,605.

In the absence of any small-pox scare the mental attitude of the large majority of the public is one of apathy and indifference, and vaccination is, as a consequence, neglected.

A number of the public vaccinators, especially in country districts, have pointed out that so long as vaccination is optional only, the number of cases submitted to them is insufficient to render the Government grant in any way remunerative, or to enable them to keep up a proper supply of fresh lymph, and it is only in special districts, and on the part of enthusiastic and energetic practitioners, that vaccination is carried out in a satisfactory manner.

Whilst I am most anxious to increase the number of vaccinated persons, shall spare no pains to facilitate the operations of those public vaccinators who are desirous of carrying out the work, and shall be prepared to recommend the appointment of others to replace those who no longer carry out the duties incumbent on them, I cannot but feel that no mere voluntary vaccination will be satisfactory so far as the protection of the general population is concerned; and that nothing but compulsory vaccination can ensure the protection and immunity which is desirable. In concluding my report, I beg to quote the following weighty words from the Report on Vaccination for the year 1882, written by the Hon. C. K. Mackellar, then Medical Adviser to the Government, which are more applicable now than even at the time they were written, because the population is in a greater degree unvaccinated:—

I cannot refrain from here expressing a fear that we shall one day be aroused from this condition of apathy by an epidemic of small-pox which may decimate the Colony.

The unvaccinated condition of our people is, moreover, a source of perpetual danger to the neighbouring Colonies, who, in the event of such a calamity as a small-pox epidemic overtaking us, would, doubtless, in self-defence, place such restrictions upon communication with our ports as would prove most damaging to the interests of commerce.

Quarantine, no matter how vigorously administered, may, and in fact occasionally will, fail to keep out small-pox. It may reach us in one of the millions of letters or articles of ready-made clothing which are annually imported, or in the effects of passengers from foreign countries; and once established here it will find but too suitable a soil for its propagation in our unvaccinated population.

I desire, therefore, in the most emphatic way, to urge the Government to make the practice of vaccination compulsory, by means of legislative enactment, as is the case in Victoria, New Zealand, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania, Western Australia, and Fiji, as I feel assured that in the absence of such a law we are in perpetual danger of the introduction of small-pox, at each fresh outbreak.

I have, &c.,

F. NORTON MANNING.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

(VIEWS OF, IN REGARD TO COMPULSORY VACCINATION.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 7 August, 1889.

The Secretary, Board of Health, to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Compulsory Vaccination.

Sir, Board of Health Office, 127, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 5 July, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to forward you, herewith, for the information of the Colonial Treasurer, a copy of a memorandum upon compulsory vaccination, which was forwarded to the Colonial Secretary on the 27th ultimo.

As the administration of the Quarantine Acts, with which the Colonial Treasurer is charged, would be greatly assisted by the passing of a compulsory Vaccination Act, the Board are desirous that Mr. McMillan should have an opportunity of being acquainted with their views on this subject.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

[Enclosure.]

Sir,

27 June, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to forward you herewith, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, a memorandum upon compulsory vaccination, which was adopted at a meeting of the Board held yesterday.

As this matter is one of much public interest it is suggested that publicity might be given to the views of the Board on the subject.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

The Principal Under Secretary.

[Sub-enclosure.]

COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

THE Board having considered the report of the Medical Adviser to the Government on vaccination for the year 1888, desire to place on record the expression of their regret that nothing has yet been done in New South Wales towards the establishment of a system of compulsory vaccination, the only known method of successfully avoiding the ravages of small-pox.

While prepared to exercise to the full the powers vested in them by the Act relating to outbreaks of small-pox, the Board consider it their duty to make it known that, in their opinion, the powers thus conferred of placing in quarantine infected persons will be insufficient to enable them to cope with this disease should it be introduced into the Colony at any time when the atmospheric and other conditions favour its spread; and, further, that in such event it will be impossible, unless vaccination be practically universal, as it would be under a compulsory system, for them to meet the large demand for lymph which would be at once experienced, as that obtainable in the other colonies would be needed for revaccination there, and while lymph was being imported from England there would be a rapid development of the disease.

The Board desire to invite special attention to the statistics published in the Medical Adviser's report, from which it appears that during an outbreak of small-pox in the year 1881, 58,962 persons were vaccinated, whilst the number vaccinated in 1888 was only 2,069.

The Board would point out that compulsory vaccination is the law in the large majority of English-speaking communities and colonies, including the whole of the Australasian colonies, except New South Wales, and that wherever an Act has been passed its working has been so generally satisfactory, and the danger of infection, the severity of the malady, and the mortality have been so greatly diminished that in no instance has the Act been repealed.

The Board, though sensible of the enormous money loss and personal inconvenience which would arise from the stoppage of trade, and from the enforcement of a rigid quarantine consequent on an epidemic of small-pox in this Colony, deem these matters of but small moment when compared with the great suffering and high mortality which must follow such an outbreak in an unvaccinated population; and they trust that the extreme gravity and urgency of the danger will be recognised, and that a Bill for establishing compulsory vaccination will forthwith be introduced.

By order of the Board,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

REPORT

ON AN

OUTBREAK OF FEVER

AT

BALRANALD,

CAUSED BY POLLUTED WATER;

BY

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON, M.D. (BRUX.);

DIPLOMA PUBL. HEALTH (CAMB.); CHIEF MEDICAL INSPECTOR OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH;
DEPUTY MEDICAL ADVISER TO THE GOVERNMENT.

ORDERED BY THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY TO BE PRINTED,
15 August, 1889.

SYDNEY: CHARLES POTTER, GOVERNMENT PRINTER.

1889.

The Deputy Medical Adviser to The Medical Adviser to the Government of New South Wales.

Sir, Health Department, New South Wales, 22 July, 1889.

In accordance with your instructions, I proceeded to Balranald on February 11th, to make inquiry into the cause of an outbreak of fever, and to arrange for the care of the sick. On that occasion, owing to circumstances which have already been brought to your notice, I was unable to do much more than attend to current needs; but, in conjunction with the Government Medical Officer for the District (Dr. G. L. L. Lawson), I issued some suggestions for the guidance of the Municipal Council and the public, a copy of which is appended to these papers.

2. The epidemic continuing with scarcely abated force, in accordance with further instructions, I went to Balranald a second time on March 28th; I then gathered much information as to the cause and course of the outbreak.

3. I now have the honour to make report. You will observe that had the suggestions mentioned above been attended to by the general population the epidemic would not have long continued after my first visit, imperfect as they are.

4. I beg leave to acknowledge here much assistance cordially rendered by the Mayor and Municipal Council, as well as by other gentlemen of the town. And I desire to draw your attention especially to the unsparing labour and careful accuracy with which Dr. Lawson has gathered a great deal of the detailed information on which this Report is based; without his assistance it would not have been possible to bring to a conclusion such an inquiry as this touching a place which is many hundred miles distant from Sydney.

I have, &c.,
J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON.

REPORT UPON AN OUTBREAK OF TYPHOID FEVER AT BALRANALD.

THE epidemic which was the subject of inquiry occurred in a small and isolated bush township, whose inhabitants drew their drinking-water from the considerable river on which they are seated. The beginning of the outbreak was abrupt; but its course was steady and prolonged, so that while 120 persons suffered (of whom 15 died) out of a population of about 670, the attacks were nearly evenly spread out over the weeks between December 15, 1888, and July 6, 1889. Thus a rather strong suspicion was aroused that the river was the medium of infection, which was strengthened when it was learned, not merely that fœcal matter had been cast into the stream at a point above several commonly-used intakes, but that among the contributors (in all probability) to this pollution there was a man known to have been suffering from typhoid fever during the two days he stayed in the town. But at an early stage of the inquiry it became apparent that any contamination the stream might have received at points near the town in that or some other ways could not easily be brought to account for the outbreak; and therefore, if the river water might be more reasonably regarded as being in fault than any other, it was seen that the infection must have been communicated to it at a great distance away. Indeed, the considerable town of Hay was the only source that could be named consistent, in this view, with the observed phenomena of the epidemic. This place, it is true, was 260 miles up the stream; but typhoid fever was known to be endemic there, breaking out with more or less force nearly every year. If, however, the infection of Balranald were indeed attributable to poisonous matter which had been added to the river at any very great distance above the town, the evidence in support would, as far as it might go, indicate a new danger—or at least one which thus far has only been pointed out for suspicion by the partially-revealed facts concerning the life-history of the Eberth-Gaffky bacillus of typhoid. As hypothetical objections, the immense volume of water which must be more or less evenly infected, and the great distance and varying events of the journey that the infection must survive in practically efficient form, cease to have weight in view of the facts that this organism can live, and apparently proliferate, in flowing streams, and that it can retain its efficiency over distances which, if they are not actually very great, are yet only to be measured in miles. At present it is precisely the limit of its proliferation in running streams in respect of distance, time, temperature, season, and composition of the water which is unknown; and therefore, as the conditions of the case of this town seemed to favour an explanation of the outbreak in the manner shadowed forth, it was thought especially important that the true mode of infection should, if possible, be discovered; and that, from some points of view, the result which should furnish a commonplace explanation of the epidemic would be scarcely less valuable than one which should establish a practically new mode of infection.

The inquiry had to be conducted mainly upon lines which should tend to reveal coincidences and differences between the conditions of life obtaining in invaded and in not-invaded households. The isolation which, it might be supposed, would favour this method was, in reality, an obstacle; by causing nearly all households to lie under nearly the same conditions it rendered the discrimination alluded to rather more than usually difficult. For this and for other reasons I have chosen as the basis of investigation the period between December 15—when the first case occurred—and March 28; and, although there is no interval of real importance between the last-named date and that on which the next succeeding case was attacked, for convenience I call the space of time thus defined “the epidemic period.” For similar reasons I take as farther data the enumerated population of the defined Suburban Area, and the cases which occurred among them during the epidemic period, rather than an estimate of the population within the Population Area, as defined for Census purposes (which is that mentioned above), and the whole number of cases.

1. Geographical position.

Balranald stands in lat. 34° 38' S., lon. 142° 33' E., on the Murrumbidgee. It is nearly 600 miles distant from Sydney by the nearest route, and in the south-western part of the Riverina plains. It is connected by mail-coach lines with Oxley to the east, Euston to the west, Wilcannia towards the north-west, and Swan Hill, in Victoria, to the south. All of these towns are small, the nearest being 60 miles away, the farthest farthest several hundreds; and the coach lines, by which there is but little passenger traffic, are not main lines from any of the greater centres of population. The surrounding plain is all mallee country. Within a 60-mile radius is a small population, living on several sheep-stations and in a few dwellings; these people are in communication with Balranald, and, for the most part, come in from time to time. A few commercial travellers drive through Balranald every year on their way from Victoria to the Barrier country, but during 1888 their number was smaller than usual on account of the scarcity of feed and water. When the river is navigable small steamers, running from Echuca as high as Hay, call in considerable numbers (thus, in November nineteen called, and in December five or six); they usually stay from twenty-four to forty-eight hours. About May in each year rather large numbers of shearers ride through to the north-west of New South Wales and the west of Queensland from Victorian farms, to which they return by the same route about October.

2. Geological formation.

The Government Geologist (Mr. C. S. Wilkinson), furnishes the following details:—At a great depth the plain mentioned is underlaid by the Miocene marine formation of greyish-green clays, greensands, and limestones, which usually contain fresh water. Above these are found red clays of Pleistocene or late Tertiary age, with interstratified beds of red sandy clays, sand, and well-rolled quartz gravels. Above these, tracts of recent river-silt—a black loamy clay and gravel—are met with, which are of variable thicknesses, but which extend on an average 50 feet in depth. The red clay mentioned is of fluvial formation; it is marly in places, as at Balranald, and contains concretions of lime; its depth is often several hundred feet; water does not easily percolate through it, and is always brackish.

Hence, although water is reached at suitable spots 30 or 35 feet down, none is drawn from wells for drinking purposes in Balranald.

3. Meteorology.

Some meteorological details will be found in Tables X and XVI, where they are more conveniently inserted in connection with the progress of the epidemic. The most important general facts are, that while very little rain fell during 1888 none at all fell during November, and only .31 of an inch on three days in December; of which .14 fell on the 15th, during a thunderstorm. There was then a considerable fall from the 1st to the 4th of January, and from that date onwards rain-tanks contained water. The great and dry heat of this part of the country in summer is also to be noted: first, as leading to a large consumption of drinking-water by both sexes; secondly, as rendering the river and overground-tank waters warm and unrefreshing, and thus causing the people to seek a cooler source at any underground tank to which they may have access.

4. The River.

At all points near the town the width of the stream at summer-level may be taken at a chain and a half; its depth is variable, but at that height appears to be 2 feet at the least. The current flows at about 4 miles an hour. When the water is very low it is better in quality than when somewhat higher; at summer-level it is contaminated by cattle, both dead and alive, and it is then muddy. There are very few people living actually on the banks above the town; a larger, but still small, number live on ana-branches or tributary creeks. About 60 miles away in a straight line it receives the Lachlan, the village of Oxley being situated on that river, six miles above the junction. The nearest town up-stream is Hay, which is about 260 miles distant, following the river channel.

5. Population.

The population boundary encloses an area of about 16,000 acres, and at the Census of 1881 carried 646 persons. The suburban boundary encloses an area of about 1,549 acres on the right bank of the river, and by rough enumeration, on April 2—4, I ascertained that it carries 622 persons, who live in 128 houses (including 6 huts or tents).

6. Water-supply.

Public Waterworks.—During 1888 arrangements were completed by the Department of Public Works for distributing the river-water over the town. The intake is at a point at the upper end of the town [see map]. The water, which is unfiltered, is raised by a pair of 8 h.p. Worthington engines from just below the surface to a height of 12 feet, and it is forced through a lift of 70 feet into an iron tank of 30,000 gallons capacity, whence it gravitates to the mains. The service is constant.

General

General Water-supply.—The waterworks did not begin to come into use until December 19, when the first house-connection was made. The general supply was therefore as follows:—By rain in over-ground tanks, by the same in underground tanks, and by the river from private pumps and from water-carriers' pumps. Fifty-seven houses had iron rain-water tanks, twelve had brick underground tanks, and there was one well which yielded water a little less brackish than usual, but still such as would be drunk only through inadvertence. Of the underground tanks seven were on private premises, and their use was confined to the residents; three were on hotel premises, and were used in the bars, but otherwise were confined to the residents; one was on the premises of a mineral-water maker, and was used in that manufacture and in a store attached, where it was kept for the use of customers. The last was on the premises of an importer, and was resorted to by some of the inhabitants of the town. Certain river pumps are shown on the map. Of these, Nos. 3 and 5 belonged to householders, and were used by them alone. Nos. 1, 2, 4, and 6 belonged to water-carriers; and a seventh, still lower and not shown on the map, belonged to a Chinese garden. During October, November, and December, the iron rain-tanks were nearly all exhausted.

7. Scavenging.

The site of the town, like the rest of the plain mentioned, is flat. The streets are cheerful, broad, well-formed, and planted with a double row of trees. The houses are in large proportion of red brick, and for the most part stand on ample allotments. The general conditions appeared to be especially favourable to health; and, with the exception of some yards and one or two small areas where there was accumulation of garbage, the surface was clean. Two or three of the older buildings showed serious structural faults; but upon the whole the state of dwellings was such as to call for no special remark.

Nightsoil.—At the date of inspection there were eighty-eight cesspits in use, and thirty-four pan-closets (this term is too commonly used to make it worth while to correct it—pail-closets are meant); and six "houses" were returned as having no privies, which, with one or two exceptions, were huts or tents on Government reserves, generally near the river. Persons having pan-closets were not compelled to employ the scavenger to empty them. Removal, in as far as this was done by the scavenger, seemed to be managed neither better nor worse than usual; some evidence of carelessness was got, but this was not important enough to receive more than passing notice.

Slop-water.—There were no sewers. Slop-waters were thrown out to evaporate or soak into the soil. At the "Alpha Hotel" this sewage was cast into a nearly filled-up excavation (which may have been a well or a cesspit); and perhaps a similar arrangement was adopted in other comparatively large establishments. No nuisance arose from this cause at any part of the town.

Garbage.—The inhabitants removed their own house-refuse. They were enjoined to take it to a place apart, which was about a mile from the town down-stream, and about half a mile from the river. They did not always carry it as far, but tipped it in the bush on the way to this depôt. To the same place night-soil removed by the scavenger was taken, and buried in trenches.

8. Former occurrence of Typhoid in Balranald.

Tradition tells of no former epidemic, and only vague rumours of rare cases for as far as ten or twelve years back are current. The hospital records show that two cases were admitted during December, 1883, and three in January and February, 1885, in addition to which one other was treated at home in the town about the same date. The Government Medical Officer (Dr. G. L. J. Lawson) has seen no case during the two years he has been here. About May, 1888, a young man whose parents live in Balranald had typhoid fever at Broken Hill, and a relapse thereafter. He left Broken Hill some time in August (before he had recovered), and on reaching Wentworth he was obliged, by illness or weakness, to stay his journey for a week. He arrived in Balranald some time in August, and said that by that time he was quite well. A child of ten years, having suffered from typhoid in Melbourne, joined her mother at Balranald as soon as she was convalescent, arriving about the beginning of January, 1889. She was then not perfectly well; and six weeks later she suffered a recrudescence (or a second attack) of the illness. On October 14–15 the river steamer "Waradgery" lay at the private wharf (see map). On the 15th, one of the hands, J.B., applied to Dr. Lawson, at the hospital, for advice; he was found to be suffering from typhoid, and was recommended to stay, but he rejoined his boat and went to Echuca. He was admitted to the Echuca Hospital the day after he arrived, or October 23, by the Government Medical Officer for Moama (Dr. Eakins), who confirmed the diagnosis; and he was discharged November 17. On October 28–29 the "Waradgery" lay at the same wharf, and on the 30th left for Echuca. On November 5 the master (who was in charge during the former trip) was found to be suffering from typhoid by Dr. Eakins, and he died December 13.

9. The Outbreak.

In Table I is shown the number of persons attacked, in order of their approximate date of attack, the first date being December 15. In few cases was the onset sudden, and the symptoms thenceforward continuous and well-defined. In the majority a long period of malaise preceded the date of declared illness. The symptoms during that period were languor; aching of the limbs, which occasionally was severe enough to cause the sufferer to speak of "loss of use" in the lower extremities; acute pains, sometimes in the loins, more often in the back of the head and neck; giddiness (which was very common); abdominal pains, and, rather often, attacks of vomiting; in some instances (also rather numerous) slight diarrhoea; and anorexia. The period of incubation thus marked, in several cases lasted three weeks; but it often merged by imperceptible gradations into the term of declared illness, and in some of the slighter cases advice seemed to be sought at last rather because the symptoms described persisted than because they had become remarkably worse. In a few other cases advice was not sought until the patient had become too ill to be closely questioned; while in one case at least the sufferer was moribund when he was brought in. Under these circumstances it is obvious that the assigned dates of attack are approximate only, although it seemed possible to fix them with tolerable certitude in a very considerable proportion of the whole number.

It may be noted here conveniently that during illness both deafness and nose-bleed were unusually common, comparison being made with the general course of cases observed in Sydney; and, although diarrhoea was seldom troublesome, looseness of the bowels was also a little more frequent than usual. Perhaps in a rather large proportion of cases the term of illness was rather more prolonged than is the rule; but it may be doubted whether this was marked enough to warrant any confident assertion. No necropsies were made.

TABLE I.—Showing the Age, Sex, and approximate Date of Attack of all cases that occurred during the Epidemic Period. First-cases in households are distinguished by black type.

* Died.

† Visitor to the town.

Certain entries in this Table are unnumbered; these represent doubtful cases—that is to say, their symptoms would not have suggested typhoid fever had that disease not been prevalent. But among them is included the case of the child already mentioned in section 8, it seeming more likely that she suffered a relapse of the fever caught in Melbourne than that she should have been twice attacked within three months. The following account of these cases sufficiently shows the ground on which they were considered to be of doubtful character. They are omitted from further notice.

Eight

Eight Doubtful Cases.

- (a).—F., *æ*t. 15. It is necessary to describe this under case No. 52, q.v. (Section 12).
- (b).—M., *æ*t. 19. He suffered from the early symptoms already described in a well-marked degree, beginning on January 25th. He did not leave work, and was well again in a week.
- (c).—F., *æ*t. 14. It is necessary to describe this in connection with case No. 51, under "Non-residents," q.v., (Section 10).
- (d).—M., *æ*t. 48. Returning to town after long travel in the back country during very hot weather, this patient suffered from quite indefinite symptoms—chiefly headache and languor; these continued two or three weeks.
- (e).—M., *æ*t. 45. This patient was the scavenger. He began to be ill about the beginning of February, and says he was decidedly ill about February 10th, but he did not seek advice until February 27th. He was then in bed a week; his symptoms were indefinite, and there was no great disturbance of temperature.
- (f).—M., *æ*t. 9 mos. Was teething, and cut one or more teeth during this illness. He had diarrhoea with a high temperature for twelve days, and then died.
- (g).—F., *æ*t. 10. This child had typhoid in Melbourne, and left for Balranald "as soon as she was fit to travel," arriving January 14th. She seemed not to be thoroughly well. She was first examined on March 1st, and she suffered a mild but distinct attack of the fever. She is classed as doubtful for obvious etiological reasons—not because the nature of her illness was doubtful.
- (h).—F., *æ*t. 10. Was first examined March 27th, when she had been complaining for fourteen days, and in bed two days. On April 4th she was well again. Her symptoms were indefinite. She was sister to case (a).

10. Cases which occurred to persons being non-residents of the town.

It will be readily conceded by all who know the conditions of life in the bush that it is highly improbable that any case can have occurred within some such radius as is mentioned in section 1, or any upon the coach-lines to the towns which are there named, without its becoming known in Balranald. It may be taken that no others besides those mentioned in the table did occur during the period dealt with.

Nine cases among non-residents.

Case 15.—M., *æ*t. 22. Approximate date of attack, 8th January—A station-hand who visited the town, and stayed over Christmas and the New Year; he lived at the "Gamma Hotel" (where also case No. 77 stayed when in town); says that he drank there nothing but whiskey and lemonade, but he visited many hotels with his fiddle, and played it at the sports on January 1st; he left Balranald feeling unwell at the beginning of January, and reached Boundary Bend, V., January 8th; he helped on that date to take out of the river the body of a man drowned three days before; he felt very ill immediately, and dated his sickness from then; he was admitted to Balranald hospital 16th January.

Case 43.—M., *æ*t. 25. 1st February—Lived 50 miles out; came in about 12th January and remained a fortnight, drinking all the time; went home 26th January, feeling ill then (or perhaps for a few days before then); he was brought to the hospital 21st February, unconscious, and bleeding from the bowels, and he died 5th March.

Case 45.—M., *æ*t. 21. 1st February—Lived 2 miles down stream; for three weeks preceding admission worked at a wool-wash 2 miles farther down stream, and he came into Balranald twice at least during that time; he died at home 6th March.

Case 47.—M., *æ*t. 24. 14th February—A teamster who lived at Hatfield, 70 miles out; was in Balranald getting his lading 26th January; he left 28th January; fell ill on the road about 2nd February; reached home later and stayed there a week; and was admitted to hospital 4th March.

Case 51, and the doubtful case (c.)—M., *æ*t. 21; F., *æ*t. 14. No. 51 is a station-hand, living 15 miles out; he was in town 31st December and 1st January, when he attended the sports-meeting on 1st January; from this date he never felt well, but he returned to his work; on 28th January he went to an out-station (15 miles farther from Balranald), where case (c) had lived with her family for many months without leaving; he stayed there until 2nd February; on that date he went to town again to the "Epsilon Hotel"; the next day he returned to his own place, when he was obliged to take to his bed; but he was not admitted to hospital until 15th February. Doubtful case (c) left her father's 1st February; as she entered the outskirts of the town she suddenly had severe headache; she slept at the "Gamma Hotel"; went home next day; and was brought to hospital 5th February; I saw her repeatedly between 13th and 20th February, and while Dr. Lawson saw some reason to hesitate before making a diagnosis at first, we concluded that the case was not one of typhoid, but probably slight heat-stroke.

Case 57.—M., *æ*t. 13. 2nd February—Lived a mile away up stream; came to town every day; visited school, the "Alpha Hotel," and generally also his father, who worked in the town, at the importer's mentioned in Section 6.

Case 77.—M., *æ*t. 26. 25th February—Had work and a camp on a creek 6 miles up stream, and a little way from the river; frequently came to town, and stayed at the "Gamma Hotel"; 25th February, walked out to his camp; waded across the creek and drank at it; started to return to town, and about half-way suddenly had so severe a pain in his head that he had to lie down; after a time dragged himself with difficulty to a house at some distance, whence he reached the hotel. Thenceforward he suffered a well-marked attack.

Case 85.—M., et. 23. 3rd March—Lived 40 miles out; was in town 23rd and 24th February, when he stayed at hotel, "Beta," but frequented hotels, "Alpha" and "Delta"; went home 25th February; 4th March had diarrhoea and abdominal pain for two days; got better for one day; then began to have "bad cold" with shivering; on 11th March rode 34 miles towards Balranald for treatment, but could get no farther, and was thence driven to the hospital.

Case 100.—F., et. 11. 23th March—Sister to case 79, but lived at home, 2 miles south of the town (79 having been in service in the town, and attacked with the fever 25th February). The family of which No. 100 was a member consisted of the parents and seven children below 15 years of age; during No. 79's illness No. 100 used to fetch from the hospital her dirty linen, to be washed at home; she was accompanied by another child; she is said never to have entered the building, and the clothes were wrapped up securely by the wardman in a cloth brought for the purpose; the clothes were "sprinkled" at home with carbolic acid, and were then put to soak in water. On 28th March No. 100 sent another child with a cup to get her some water, and he filled it from the tub in which the clothes had been soaked; on tasting it she spat it out again on account of the carbolic acid in it; 29th March fever set in, and she suffered a severe attack. No other member of the household was seized.

It is therefore to be concluded that the town was the focus of infection; no one suffered who had not visited it within a reasonable incubation period. This point being ascertained, these nine cases among non-residents are omitted from further consideration, because it is not possible to identify the particular household in which each received the infection.

NOTE.—The following observations seem of sufficient importance and general interest for insertion here, although many of them have no direct bearing on the present case. No. 16 (Table I) left Balranald, and six days afterwards fell ill, in Melbourne; No. 34 left after the beginning of illness, and suffered at Buninyong, near Ballarat; No. 36 left Balranald, visited Sandhurst, and on arriving at St. Kilda, Melbourne, about the fifth day after leaving Balranald, was seized and suffered there; No. 55 left Balranald February, 7th, and within a few days was attacked in Sandhurst, and was admitted to the Hospital there. Conversely, (h) suffered in Melbourne and relapsed in Balranald; No. 52 was infected in Hay and suffered in Balranald; J. B. (Section 3) visited Balranald while he was suffering; and another person has been mentioned who returned from Broken Hill after suffering, and at a time when he may or may not have perfectly recovered.

11. The First Cases.

The cases which stand first in Table I were attacked before any of the others; but which one fell ill first of all is uncertain.

Case 1.—F., et. 19. A barmaid at the "Alpha Hotel" for several months; was a rather delicate girl, but had fairly good health; 26th October she left the "Alpha" to go to the "Beta Hotel," not far off; she stayed there about three weeks, and then, on 17th November, returned to her old place at the "Alpha"; she fell out of health at least two weeks after she came back again; the only ascertained fact regarding her case between 17th November and 17th December is that on 16th December she was suffering from diarrhoea; on 18th December she consulted Dr. Lawson, who found her with an evening temperature of 101°; she was never well after this, but, under pressure, did some work, and did not see the doctor again until 30th December, when he admitted her to hospital. She died 7th January.

Case 2.—M., et. 11. A weakly boy, not suffering from any definite disease, anæmic, porri-go capitis; he was never admitted to hospital, but applied there for advice 16th December; Dr. Lawson's note made at the time runs as follows:—"Says he has been ill three weeks, pains in the back of head and neck and loins, cannot sit up long, is always sleepy; symptoms came on gradually; had some pain in back more than three weeks ago. Moist râles in chest, bowels constipated, abdominal pain sometimes; temperature 101°6 (morning), no rash." The râles disappeared soon afterwards, but the fever continued, and the illness lasted three or four weeks from the date mentioned; there was long-continued subsequent debility. The case was a slight one, but Dr. Lawson has no doubt that it was one of typhoid.

Case 3.—F., et. 22. A barmaid at the "Alpha" hotel. Was out of health for several days before 8th December; the symptoms were headache, loss of appetite, aching of the limbs, and especially in the legs, which she said she could sometimes scarcely use; 9th December she left for Melbourne to see her sister who was ill, and who died during her visit. She returned on 16th December, and was very ill during the journey; but she recovered after resting, and resumed her duties for a week. During this time she was in the same indifferent health as before her departure; she went to bed on 22nd December; went for a drive, December 26th, whence she returned collapsed, and thenceforward suffered from a well-marked attack of typhoid.

The six earlier cases have had assigned to them the order in which they appear in Table I, after especially careful inquiry; but from the remarks made under section 9 it will be properly inferred that it is not intended thereby to express any strong opinion that that was their true order of attack. It is possible that several of them were infected on the same day. A more important point is the following:—In face of the account given above of the cases 1 and 2, and of similar facts relating to cases 4, 5, and 6, it is certain that all of the persons referred to received their infection within the town, which none of them had left for several months before illness. Case 3, if it stood alone, would appear doubtful from this point of view; but taken in conjunction with the rest, and due regard being had to the history of it recorded above, I believe it appears most probable that this patient was incubating before she left the town on her visit to Melbourne on December 9. This, however, is a detail of no practical importance.

12. Progress of the Epidemic.

Between December 15 and March 29, 100 persons were attacked. But of these, nine were visitors to the town. They are numbered in Table I, but for the reason given (section 10) they are omitted from present consideration. I also except case 53, for reasons which the following history discloses, as well as case 92:—

Case 53—F., et. 26. This patient lived in a very good brick house, where she was confined for the second time about the end of November. The girl referred to under (a) among the doubtful cases went to help No. 53 on 2nd December, and remained well until 23rd December. Her symptoms were slight and indefinite, headache chiefly; but she went home to her mother, who lived in the town. She stayed at home a fortnight; and then, although still out of sorts in the same way, went to help in another household in the town (where no illness occurred), and stayed there for a fortnight from 10th January. She then went home again feeling rather worse; and she was admitted to hospital 5th February. She began to get better as soon as she was confined to bed; I saw her there 13th to 20th February; and I agree with Dr. Lawson that she had not typhoid, nor any definable illness. No. 53 did not recover strength well after her confinement, and she did not leave her home until the week 4th to 10th January, when she visited two houses. In one there had never been any fever; in the other there was a case at the time of her visit, and she did not enter it for that reason; she conversed in the garden for a few minutes only. On 10th January she left Balranald for Hay, and visited her parents there; and she returned to Balranald on the morning of the 15th. She was thus in Hay four clear days. She there stayed in a house which her parents had occupied for a few months; the household consisted of M. et. 60, F. et. 56, and a son et. 23. To these were added from 1st December to 2nd January, a married daughter et. 24, and two children, M. et. 6, and M. et. 1. The water supply there was from the river and from an underground tank; there had been scarlet fever in the family of the next preceding tenant, and in the same street much typhoid fever about a year earlier; whether this fever had occurred in the house itself is not known. On 8th February, the son et. 23, having been indisposed for some days, took to his bed and suffered a severe attack of typhoid in the hospital at Hay; and on 6th February, case 53 not having left her own house since returning to it on 15th January, fell suddenly ill with typhoid, and when I first saw her a week later was in great danger. The married daughter and her two children remained well. The doubtful case (h) was sister to (a); and the note of her case made above should therefore be re-perused in connection with this history, it being remarked that (h) lived continuously at home. I conclude that No. 53 was infected at Hay.

I also except Case 92. This man was admitted to hospital for rheumatism 15th February; stayed in until 5th March; was discharged, but fell ill of typhoid on 10th March, and was again admitted for that 16th March. He thus appeared to have contracted the disease in hospital, and therefore cannot, with certainty, be referred to any household.

The nett statement therefore with regard to the progress of the epidemic is as follows:—Between 15th December and 28th March, 89 persons, occupying 46 town-houses, were attacked with typhoid fever; and the cases occurred by periods of seven days, reckoned from 15th December, as shown in the Table II, below:—

These, therefore, are the data on which the inquiry into the cause of this outbreak proceeds.

13. Incidence of the Disease.

Table III shows the population within the suburban boundary (which is fixed for Census purposes), as ascertained by enumeration on the three days, April 2-4, distributed under age-periods; and the total cases which occurred during the epidemic period in invaded households within that area (usually referred to as "town-households"). The percentage of persons of both sexes attacked among the total population at the three age-periods, 0-15, 15-25, and 25-40, was, respectively, 10.2, 23, and 13.8.

Table IV shows the population of the 46 town-households invaded during the epidemic period distributed under sex and age; and the 89 persons attacked similarly distributed. There were in these households 161 males and 130 females, 47 males and 42 females having been attacked; and this proportion of males to females is as 100 to 89. But the percentage of each sex living in invaded households attacked was 29.1 per cent. of the males and 32.3 per cent of the females. While the absolute numbers show that more males than females suffered, the females appear to have been attacked in a rather greater proportionate number than the males. 45 per cent. of the total cases were between 15 and 30 years of age.

TABLE IV.—Epidemic Period, December 19–March 28. Showing the Population of 46 invaded Town-households, and 89 cases that occurred among them, distributed under Sex and Age-Periods.

But the age-distribution of the females was not the same as that of the males. Table V shows what the distribution of the two sexes actually was at the three age-periods, 0-15, 15-40, and from 40 onwards, and the numbers at each period that were actually attacked.

Table VI shows in the upper line the 130 females distributed under the three age-periods in the same proportions as the males are so distributed; and in the lower the numbers of females that would have been attacked had they been distributed as shown, and had they suffered in the proportion in which they actually did suffer, as set forth in the preceding Table V.

From this it appears that if the age-distribution had been the same as that of the males the respective numbers attacked would have been 47 males and 40 females, the proportion between these numbers being as 100 to 85. Thus the respective percentages would be 29.1 and 30.7. The numbers dealt with are but small, but attention may be drawn to the following points:—There was a proportionately heavier incidence of disease upon females than on males, amounting to 1.6 per cent. upon the total number of each sex living in invaded households. This does not represent the full weight of this especial incidence, however, since normally more men than women are attacked. But if children (persons at the ages 0-15) and women are reckoned together, and compared with the men (males above 15), the especial incidence upon the former class is seen, which is usual when the medium of infection is water, the percentages attacked being among women and children 33.5, and among men 25.4. Farther, the incidence of disease upon the whole population at the age-periods 0-15, 15-25, and 25-40 having been 16.2, 23, and 13.3 per cent., the incidence upon persons living in invaded households at the same age-periods was 34.2, 40, and 33.9. The relation borne to each other by these two groups is better seen by comparison between the following series, in both of which the percentage attacked at the age-period 0-15 is taken as unity:—Total population, 1, 1.41, .82; population of invaded households, 1, 1.17, .99. The incidence in the latter case was much more nearly equal, persons at the third age-period suffering nearly as heavily as those at the second, or age of special liability to attack; and this points to a special distribution of the infective medium. Again, of the 46 town-households, 17 yielded more than 1 case. Thus, 7 yielded 2 cases a-piece, 4 yielded 3 cases, 2 yielded 4 cases, 1 yielded 5, 2 yielded 6, and 1 yielded 10 cases. Table VII shows the number of days that elapsed between the approximate date of attack of the first and second cases in each of these households.

Now, the incubation period of typhoid fever is variable; yet when water or milk is the medium of infection it appears to be usually from 10 to 14 days. If the latter period be used, then in 10 out of the 17 households the second case may be supposed to have been infected independently of the first. But if a shorter period be taken—as, for instance, 7 days—so that there may be as little doubt as possible that the second case was infected independently of the first, then only 7 of the 17 fall within it. On the other hand, it is a fact not without significance that in several instances the interval between successive attacks was remarkably lengthy. Safe inductions from this table appear to be (a) that the infective medium was not uniformly infective in all its parts; (b) that it did not regularly reach all the members of the invaded households; (c) that, being but weakly infective, its effects were determined more often than usual by the general health of the persons whom it reached. The first and third of these are doubtless true in their degree; but only the second seems sufficient to explain the irregularity mentioned.

14. Inquiry into the Mode of Spread.

It must be assumed here that the etiology of typhoid fever is known; and it must suffice to note the well-established fact that of large numbers of people exposed to the same source of infection only a proportion (which is often rather small) suffer. With this proface, therefore, I proceed to observe that in a town which has no sewers the only possible cause of a wide-spread epidemic of typhoid fever must lie in the specific infection of some article of diet which is procured from a common source, and which is shared by all, or nearly all, the infected population alike; and that in the present case that article must have been either milk or water. No doubt after an epidemic has become established aerial infection (by cesspits) and direct infection (by food, the chance of nursing, or specific fouling of the air within houses) play their limited parts; and for this reason, among others, it is not to be expected that the mode of infection shall be demonstrated in every case, even if the main factor in an epidemic should be discovered with certainty.

15. The case as to Milk.

Among the 128 households were 31 in which no milk was used; 5 in which condensed milk was used; 55 which were supplied from their own respective flocks of goats; 17 which were supplied from other people's goats, the number of owners being 13; 11 which were supplied from the cows of a town cow-keeper; and 3 which were supplied by a country cow-keeper. The remaining 6 were supplied either from their own cows or from mixed sources. The 46 infected households were supplied from 24 different sources; 17 of them having each its own flock of goats. These circumstances exclude milk as the cause of this epidemic. But it is possible that a few secondary cases were infected through the milk supplied by the town cow-keeper; and the following are details of her business. She had eight cows, which did not yield well until the rain fell; and 11 households, holding 67 persons, were all she supplied besides the hospital, where, during December, 5 quarts a day were taken; in January, 12; and in February, 21 quarts. The dairy premises became infected January 1 (case 7), and a second case (No. 49) occurred on February 3. The arrangement and state of the premises seemed to call for no especial remark. The cows were milked by a man who was not attacked; but the milk was strained by the cow-keeper, who was the mother of the two patients aged 13 and 10 years respectively. During the early part of January, and before that, water from Tank X (see section 16) was regularly fetched for drinking, other water being at the same time got from the river. The 11 households supplied may be divided into 4 not invaded and 7 which were invaded, and which yielded altogether 21 patients. The following Table exhibits all the particulars which are at present necessary.

It is therefore possible that for some of these cases this milk may have been the medium of infection.

16. The case as to Mineral Waters.

There were two makers of mineral waters, who may be distinguished as maker "A" and maker "B." "A" had the more considerable business in the town, and all that was done in the surrounding country within 60 miles; but the latter was not very much altogether. To make soda-water he used rain-water when he had any; for other kinds he used river water, which was clarified with alum or isinglass, and this served also for soda-water when rain-water ran short. It was alleged that whenever river water was used for any of these purposes he always first boiled it, but the appliances necessary to boil the required quantities, and to allow for the subsequent thorough cooling which is essential, did not appear to be at hand. Having run short of rain-water towards the end of last year, he must have used river water alone, for he could get rain-water in the required quantities only from one of the two underground rain-tanks which are mentioned at the end of section 6; but independent testimony shows that he did not resort to the tank at the importer's (which may be distinguished as Tank X), while the other was in possession of a rival manufacturer. The water from Tank X, however, was regularly taken to his house to drink, and six cases occurred among his family; on the other hand, his mineral waters were very seldom (or even never) drunk by them. The evidence against infectivity of his product is as follows:—No cases of fever occurred in the surrounding country except among persons who had visited the town; there was a race-meeting and dance on December 26, at both of which his manufacture was used; about 250 people attended the former, a large but unestimated number the latter; and Table I does not point out this day as one of specially widespread infection. "B."—This maker had a smaller trade, which was confined to the town; he used rain-water from his under-ground tank, which was situated in a dirty ill-kept yard, probably not free from old cesspits, and he said that he used no other. One case (No. 82) occurred in his household at a late date. He supplied the "Alpha Hotel;" and all the mineral water used at a sports-meeting which was held on January 1, and which was attended by about 500 people, was taken from that hotel. January 1 is not singled out as a day of special infection, perhaps, although this is not so clear as in the former case, because on January 3 there does seem to have been some increased diffusion of the poison, and that is too near to the 1st to be very clearly distinguished from it in this way. But inquiry in individual cases falling early in the epidemic shows that but very few had drunk of this make, as far as was known or remembered. Perhaps the negative evidence afforded by the absence of any very marked increase of declared cases dating from January 1 may be considered sufficient to exonerate this water from suspicion, nothing appearing in the other circumstances of the outbreak to attract attention to it.

17. Pollution of the River.

The river was liable to pollution from several sources—from dwellers near its banks above the town, or on the banks of tributary creeks and ana-branches; by the village of Oxley, which stands on the Lachlan, 6 miles above its junction with the Murrumbidgee; by the town of Hay, on the Murrumbidgee, and by the steamers running between Echuca and Hay. A possible source of contamination, which must also be reckoned as above the town, is shown on the map. At the south-eastern corner of the hospital reserve three large pits have at various times been dug to receive night-soil from the hospital closets. Two of these have been closed with earth as they became full; the third had but just been dug, at the date of inspection. The western boundary of the reserve marks the beginning of the higher land on which that end of the town is built. There is a rather abrupt fall of a few feet from that line to river-flats which begin immediately on the east, and when the river is high these flats are flooded by water which flows westerly in the direction of current, impinges against the rise mentioned, and sweeps out again into the channel 50 or 60 yards above the waterworks intake. The distance from the south-east corner of the hospital reserve to the river in a direct line is about 180 yards; the soil is a yellowish-white marly clay. Below the waterworks intake the river is known to have been polluted some months ago by full closet-pans cast into it at the foot of Myall-street, or thereabouts, by persons having pan-closets who did not employ the scavenger. It is believed that more recently it was polluted in the same way, but of this there was no such evidence as would have supported a prosecution. The point mentioned is above all the pumps. A little way above this is the private wharf at which the river steamers lie. The hands always sleep on board during the twenty-four or forty-eight hours they stay. The vessels have closets that discharge into the stream in the way usual on sea-going boats. There is no closet at the wharf, which the boatmen engaged in unloading, and townsmen taking delivery, might use; and I understand that they are in the habit of repairing on occasion to the river bank below the staging, where it is very steep. The ways in which the stream may have been contaminated are thus indicated. The large town of Hay is about 260 miles away; typhoid has often prevailed there, but without effect upon upon Balranald. (See section 8.) The village of Oxley has no sewers, and it is scattered, and of insignificant size. As for dwellers near the river, between the Lachlan and Balranald there is but one on the south side, who lives about 60 miles away by the stream, and but three or four on the north side, none of whom have been ill. Between thirty and forty others live on creeks which were not running during the latter half of 1888, or on billabongs, and at varying distances from the river; there has been no illness among them. It seemed unlikely, considering the nature of the intervening soil, and their distance from the river, that the pits in the hospital reserve had contributed anything to the stream, the epidemic period falling at the end of a long drought; yet it is not certain that there was no communication between them and the river through the soil, and it is known that one of them had received typhoid excreta (section 8). Their depth, as I was informed, was about 15 feet, and that is far above the ground-water level; the one recently excavated carried no water at the time I saw it after rain. A more important risk seemed to be in connection with the space beneath the wharf-staging and with the emptying of closet-pans. A specifically infectious deposit near the water's edge might conceivably contribute bacilli to the stream during a long period, from a growing swarm in the foul earth between it and the water; and one man already referred to (sec. 8) was at the private wharf on the 14th and 15th October, and was suffering from typhoid at the time. So, also, a specifically infected closet-pan, if cast into the stream, might, during a long period contribute its contents slowly to the water; the pan itself (old kerosene-tins are often used) being cast in full would not readily lose its contents if it fell upright. In all of these ways the river may have been specifically poisoned. But if probabilities may for a moment be contemplated, then it appears to me that infection contributed to the stream at points near to, and yet at some small distance from, the several intakes, would be less sufficient to account for the phenomena of the outbreak than infection contributed at some very considerable distance away; for, considering the depth and swiftness of the current, it seems that the lapse of a considerable time must be a factor necessary to such general infection as this explanation of the outbreak requires, to allow of sufficient proliferation of the infective matter, and to effect its sufficiently even distribution throughout the whole body of water.

18. Possible Pollution of the Tank X.

This tank stood in the yard attached to the extensive premises of the principal importer, about 80 yards from the river bank, and on ground about 20 feet above the summer level of the river. It received rain-water from the iron roofs of several large stores. It was constructed ten or twelve years ago of brick and cement, circular, with a domed roof, 13 feet deep and 15 feet in diameter, and having therefore a capacity of about 15,000 gallons. It was sunk in the marly clay, and is not known to be puddled outside. In the roof is a manhole, which was covered with a heavy slab of stone, which rested on two battens; by the dome the mouth of the manhole, thus kept open for ventilation, was raised 18 inches or 2 feet above the yard surface. Water entered the tank by three lines of glazed piping, which connected as many down-comers with it, and which ran beneath the surface. The overflow was by a line of 3-inch glazed piping, which passed transversely beneath a wood and iron store, and ended on the surface at the point shown (see plan). At the date of survey the outermost length of piping lay on the surface, and was at a level 3 inches higher than the level of its opening within the tank. At a later date this outermost length was found loose, and with its mouth raised above the ground by a block of wood. On examination I found that the outermost length for as far as it could be examined with a stick (or about 3 feet), and at the other end within the tank for as far as a stick could be made to penetrate (or about 3 inches), carried a copious deposit of moist silt or mud. The fine mineral matter of which this silt consisted may have been carried into the pipe either during dry weather as dust, or during wet weather along with water from the yard surface; but the water which at the time of examination had converted it into mud could not have come from the tank, since the water-level was several feet below the overflow pipe, and must have been furnished either by surface water entering by the outer end of the pipe, or else by the several joints of it beneath the building, the space under which was in no way protected from inflow of surface water. In the yard, at a point shown, were two closets, fitted with pans, which were always kept locked; and a urinal, which drained into the trench indicated, which carried a good deal of stinking mud. In the surrounding area, not within the yard alone, there have been, or still are, several cesspits. The building on the adjoining allotment was a considerable hotel; and the "Alpha Hotel," where ten cases occurred, stood nearly opposite to it. This last, although for a year past furnished with pan-closets alone, which were emptied by the scavenger, had in its yards several old filled-up cesspits, for the most part long disused. It also had close to the rear buildings an excavation (which may have been a well, or which may have been a cesspit) which was nearly filled up and boarded over with rough planks; into this the house-slops were cast through the crevices between the

the planks, which were not removed for this purpose. Further, a part of the building had basement cellars, from which an offensive smell issued to the ground-floor rooms over them, and these (as I was informed), on being opened and secretly filled with earth by the licensee after the occurrence of several cases of fever in his house, were found to carry a good deal of offensive water. The distance from the frontage of the building to the tank was about 80 yards. Human excreta had been found on the yard surface at the point marked with crosses on the plan, but several months ago. The cart-gates shown were closed at evening; but alongside them was a little wicket-gate, which was allowed to remain open all night. Some persons are known to have been in the habit of entering by the latter to get a cool draught of water before going to bed; and although these, being townspeople, doubtless went for that alone, the line of the adjacent building would indicate a sufficiently private spot for any other who might go there for other purposes. The mouth of the overflow pipe was so placed that it seemed more likely than not that its neighbourhood would, unintentionally, be pitched upon. The tank was fitted with a pump, and, for the convenience of the numerous hands employed on the premises, a dipper usually stood near it; and although it is necessary to speak of it as in a yard, it was nevertheless so accessible that perhaps many more people would not have resorted to it had it been in some place acknowledged to be public. The permission to townspeople to drink there was practically without restriction; and the extent to which they took advantage of it seemed to be regulated by propinquity chiefly. But, as to the carrying away of water, there was restriction. No one was allowed to carry off large quantities—at all events at any one time; but several householders were permitted to fetch as much as was necessary to fill their coolamms or water-bags for the day. To these further reference is made below.

This tank was not emptied so as to examine the deposit accumulated in it. On one occasion, however, I saw a dead frog floating in it; and tanks similarly constructed and placed are very often found to have in them the bodies or bones of some of the smaller animals—rats or mice, for the most part. Several analyses were made at different dates by the Government Analyst (Mr. W. M. Hamlet, F.C.S.), and the following table shows the more important points revealed:—

TABLE IX.—Examination of the Water of Tank X by the Government Analyst.

Other samples than these were taken by the proprietor and elsewhere analysed. They were not gathered at the same time as the above, and the results may very likely have been different, as it is alleged they were. But in such cases as the present, chemical analysis of water does not yield results of very great value. A water may be much polluted, and yet not so as to cause typhoid fever; or it may be shown to be pure (in the chemical sense in which drinking-waters are spoken of), and yet it may hold the cause of typhoid, and may produce that disease; so that while such analysis may afford an indication of danger, it can give no assurance of safety. And, therefore, the best test of the quality of a water in respect of power to cause disease or the reverse is afforded by a comparison between the facts as to illness and escape from illness gathered among those people who did or did not drink it. To the result thus got the evidence afforded by chemical analysis is but secondary; it may be corroborative as far as it goes, but it cannot be contradictory.

It will be observed that the outbreak began while the river was falling, and that the increased number of cases which occurred about the fifth and tenth weeks coincided respectively with a rising and with a falling river. And then, should it be surmised that the rainfalls of the third and eighth weeks may have modified local circumstances in a way to favour the occurrence of the increased number of cases which happened about the fifth and tenth weeks, it will not fail to be noticed that the beginning of the outbreak was independent of any rainfall whatever. Thus nothing useful is revealed; but it remains possible that the epidemic begun during dry weather in one way may have been favoured by rainfall acting in some other way.

19. The case as to the Waterworks Source.

The reservoir was filled for the first time during the first week in November, in order to test the mains. This water was run to waste during the ensuing night. Only one householder (in whose family no illness occurred) who had provided himself with the hose and piping without which no tank could at that date be filled, replenished his underground tank with it. No other person saved any of it. The reservoir was not again filled until the middle of December, when the proprietor of the "Alpha Hotel" filled his underground tank from a street hydrant; but this had, for many weeks past, received supplies of river-water drawn from pump No. I (see map). The books of the two plumbers licensed to make connections show that the first connection was completed December 19. The following table, compiled from those books, shows in its first line the rate at which connections were thereafter completed week by week; in the second line are shown the connected houses which at some time or other became infected, the date at which each case declared itself being given; the third line shows the number of houses which became infected although they were never connected; and the fourth shows the gross number of fresh cases which occurred week by week:—

From this table it appears that of the total connected houses (being eighty in number), twenty-seven were invaded sooner or later, but twelve of them before the connection was made, while nineteen were invaded which were never connected. Farther, if instead of the approximate date of attack the date of infection be regarded (the incubation period when water is the medium of infection being usually from ten to fourteen days), it appears that a still larger proportion became infected before connection was made than became attacked. Two cases were declared in two separate households, and eleven cases were in all probability already incubating before any connection had been completed, that is to say, before December 19. Ultimately, but fifteen connected houses out of eighty were invaded subsequent to connection. These considerations, if the water-works water had been derived from some new, purer, or cooler source than the people were accustomed to, might be insufficient to show that it was not a very important factor in the epidemic. But it was the same river water with which they were already supplied, although drawn a little higher up stream. The only inducement to unconnected households to resort to the stand-pipes of connected households lay in their having to pay for carted water, and in their being able at that date (for the works were not handed over to the municipal body) to get it without charge from any stand-pipe to which they might have access. But, apart from there having been rain enough from 3rd January onwards, the rather scattered position of the houses, and consequently long distance over which the people must themselves have carried water thus got, makes it certain that it was not much more widely distributed than the account of connections seems to show; nor is there any evidence at all that it was more widely used. And therefore, if the water now referred to be considered in relation to the point of the river at which it was drawn, there is nothing in the circumstances mentioned to point to its possession of specially infective properties; but, if it be regarded merely as river water, and in connection with a possible infectivity of the general stream, nothing appears in them to show that it was harmless either, since more than one-sixth of the connected households were invaded after connection.

20. Analysis of the Water Supply (a) on invaded premises in relation to 46 First-cases in Town-households, (b) in relation to 89 Town-cases, which occurred during the epidemic period; those who drank water from Tank X in addition being distinguished.

The general supply to the town was from the river; a supplementary supply was furnished to rather less than half the houses by overground rain-water tanks, with which they were furnished, and which had water in them from January 3rd. A considerable number of the population (but a rather small proportion of the total) was ascertained to be in the habit of drinking water from the tank X; and such of these as are reckoned among the sufferers are distinguished. These, it is known, did drink from that source; but the remainder are not known not to have drunk from it—they did not know whether they had drunk from it, merely. In the following Tables the letter R stands for rain-water in overground tanks, and in such underground tanks as (being used practically only in the households to which they were attached) could not have been factors in the epidemic. In referring to the river water it is necessary to distinguish between that which was drawn at the water-works intake and that from pump No. 1. The distinction between the two intakes was furnished by their position with regard to the town—the former being above it, the latter within it. And therefore the water-works water, which is indicated by the letter W, is taken to include any drawn at or above that intake; and the No. 1 pump water, which is indicated by the letter P, is taken to include any which was drawn from the river at or below that pump, whether from other private pumps or by hand.

The general distribution of the river water to the town was in the hands of three carters, who each set up for himself a pump on the river bank. The position of the pumps is shown on the map, and they are there distinguished by numbers. But at a time which was "long before Christmas" one of these pumps got broken, and its owner made an arrangement with the owner of No. 1 pump to use that; in view of the opening of the water-works it did not seem to him worth while to purchase and fix a new pump. The third cartor, whose pump was that numbered 6, was attended by Dr. Lawson during October for an obscure abdominal pain with fever, which was set down as typhlitis; the attendance only lasted a week, but he was unable to work for a longer period. On December 6th he fell ill again of some other complaint, and he carted no water until the middle of January. He then for three or four days used No. 4 pump, but it went out of gear; and from that time, for a space unascertainable, he filled his cart at a street hydrant (water-works intake). For this reason all those persons who are known to have been supplied by this cartor are reckoned under W, and not under P.

* Including 5 cases in which there was some doubt.

The foregoing analysis shows that of 46 first-cases in town-households all had opportunity of drinking river water (with one doubtful exception) at some time or other of each day; and that while 21 of them are known to have drunk X water as well, the remaining 25 appear to have drunk (of possibly infective waters) river water only. A similar account of the total 89 town-cases yields a similar comparison; but its value as evidence is less than the former because of the large proportion of secondary cases which is included among them.

Table XIV shows the 46 first-cases distributed under seven-day periods, and discriminates the 25 who are not known to have drunk X from the rest by italic type :—

The following notes are the result of a very careful inquiry made by Dr. Lawson as to the twenty-five cases in which X is not known to have been drunk :—

No. 9, M., et. 30; No. 10, F., et. 31; No. 19, F., et. 28.—All that could be learned with regard to these three cases (the facts being particularly well known of No. 18) was that they attended the sports meeting on January 1 and drank water at the principal booth. This was held by the proprietor of the "Alpha Hotel," who at different times gave different accounts of the water he carried there. Probably the truth is that he took a small quantity of X and a large quantity of P. It is possible therefore that these three may have drunk X there; but their dates of attack were January 1, 2, and (apparently) 15, and January 1 was not (perhaps) a day of numerous infections.

No. 13, M., et. 10.—This boy spent most of his time with household No. 2, whither X was regularly taken for drinking.

No. 16, M., et. 40.—A Chinese, who says he never drank any but river water, and that only as tea without milk.

No. 21, F., et. 13.—She never drank X to her knowledge, nor, as it seems, ever went where she might have got it unwittingly.

No. 22, F., et. 17.—Her sister worked at a shop where X water was taken more or less regularly for the water-bags; she has drunk water there at dates not fixed.

No. 29, M., et. 7, (and his brother, No. 30, M., et. 13, attacked the same day), gives a clear account of his movements, and apparently never drank X.

No. 34, F., et. 14.—Had no opportunity of drinking X indoors; was a constant companion of No. 20, but the two dates of attack are rather far apart.

No. 38, M., et. 9.—Drank for three weeks before illness nowhere except at home and at school, where rain and river waters only.

No. 39, F., et. 28.—Was not away from home for three weeks before illness, where rain and river water only.

No. 40, F., et. 25.—X water was taken at irregular intervals to her place of employment; dates cannot be fixed.

No. 52, F., et. 48.—X water had been taken home, not very rarely, but at forgotten dates.

No. 64, F., et. 11.—Visited various stores from time to time.

No. 68*, F., et. 4.—Never away from home, where river water only.

Nos. 69* and 70*, aged 3 and 4 years.—Members of different families (of which they are the youngest members) living in different but adjacent huts. They always played together, and their play-place was a spot where the excreta of the previous tenant of one of the huts (who had typhoid) were occasionally deposited.

No. 71, F., et. 10.—Visited various stores from time to time.

No. 79, F., et. 17.—Apparently had no opportunity of drinking X.

No. 81, F., et. 42; No. 82, M., et. 19; and No. 90, F., et. 24.—Apparently did not drink X wittingly or otherwise.

No.

*These three may possibly have been infected through milk. (See Table VIII.)

No. 94, M., et. 24.—Resorted to both the "Alpha" and "Delta" Hotels, where X was taken for bar and table purposes.

No. 96, M., et. 20.—A Chinese, who says he never drank X.

No. 98, M., et. 6.—Apparently did not drink X.

21. Provisional Summary as to Water.

It may be supposed that the rainfall of January 3, by filling rain-tanks, must have diminished the consumption of river water. But it was ascertained that although rain-water when it had fallen was, as a general rule, economised for drinking by continuance in drawing river water for cooking, washing, and the like purposes, the latter was often drunk upon premises-supplied with both kinds, if only it happened at the time of thirst to be a little nearer at hand than rain-water. In short, no such general liking for rain-water, or no such objection to the impurity and flavour of the river water existed, as would cause the former to be persistently sought by any great number of the inhabitants. So that throughout the epidemic period every householder either received the river water regularly, or (if there were any exceptions) had easy access to it regularly; and therefore no comparison can be made between the incidence of the disease upon those who did and those who did not drink it. Nor is it more possible to draw a similar comparison in the case of those who did and those who did not drink the X water. Of the twenty-five who are provisionally reckoned above as not having drunk from this source, some, doubtless, are secondary cases in reality, although they are first cases in the households to which they belong. Thus, in three of them it is at least possible that the milk of the town-cowkeeper was the source of infection; in two others there is good reason to believe that their infection was independent both of milk and of water; and there may be a few others still in which similar probabilities have remained undetected. But, apart from such speculative considerations, it is easy to see that the position assigned to these twenty-five persons (that is to say, apparently apart from influence of X water) is far from being assured. In the first place, the sole incitement to drink that water lay in its coolness, and in its being the only cool water to which the majority of the inhabitants could get access. Now, the water of the river, and much more rain-water in overground tanks, was warm and unrefreshing throughout the epidemic period, during which the maximum shade temperature never fell below 98°, but varied between that and 124°; the rainfall of January 3rd would therefore not in the least tend to diminish the consumption of X water, although it filled all rain-tanks. Those who had been accustomed to drink it for its coolness would continue to drink it, and its influence (whatever that may have been, and whatever its scope) would continue to be exerted. In the second place, the X water was regularly carried for drinking, not only to a few private houses, but to at least one store, where it was kept for the convenience of customers, and to two hotels, where it was used in the bars and at table; so that the negative evidence which the twenty-five furnish that they did not drink this water necessarily has but little weight, unless it be taken to show merely that they did not resort to the tank itself. And, in point of fact, Table XIV shows that the twenty-five first-cases in which it is not known to have been drunk are uniformly distributed among the twenty-one first-cases in which it is known to have been drunk. The twenty-five persons can testify only that they do not know whether they drank it or not; and it is plain that they cannot be accurately described as persons who did not drink it. Thus the details given in the foregoing section show that the quality of the river water and the quality of the X water cannot be discriminated by the method there followed; for all persons drank the former more or less often, and those who did drink the latter cannot be certainly distinguished from those who did not drink it.

22. Comparison between the incidence of disease upon certain households to which X water was regularly carried for drinking, and upon the remainder.

Everyone of those persons among the attacked who drank water from the Tank X more or less regularly cannot be distinguished with certainty. But there were households to which this water was taken daily for drinking purposes, and the incidence of disease upon them, as compared with the rest of the population, can be examined. Such households comprised six families, six places of business, and two hotels, and they held altogether 124 persons. The following table shows these 124 persons (who may be distinguished as the "special population"), distributed under sex and three age-periods, and the numbers that suffered; in a second line is placed, for comparison, the rest of the townspeople (who may be distinguished as the "general population"), similarly distributed, and the numbers that suffered among them.

TABLE

TABLE XV.—Comparing the incidence of disease upon 14 households in which X water was regularly drunk with that upon households whose relations to X water cannot be defined.

	0-15.		15-25.		25-.		Total.
	M.	F.	M.	F.	M.	F.	Persons.	Attacked.

	19		46		59
Attacks.....	7	6	7	6	11	5	Percentage attacked.
	13		13		16		33.87

So that it appears that of the special population, who all of them regularly drank the X water either at home or at business, or at both places, nearly 34 per cent suffered, whereas of the general population only 9.4 per cent. were attacked. But of the 47 cases which remain, after deducting from the total 89 those who fall among the special population, are 22 who, as individuals, are certainly known to have drunk from the tank. The comparison sought being between the incidence of disease upon those who did drink X water and those who are not known to have drunk it (not those who did not drink it, for they cannot be discriminated), these 22 should be subtracted from the 47, and a percentage struck on the general population (less 22) with the remainder. This being done the following comparison is arrived at:—Of 124 persons who regularly drank X water 34 per cent. suffered; of 476 persons whose relation to X water cannot be defined only 5.2 suffered. Farther, the percentages attacked at the three age-periods, 0-15, 15-25, 25-, were among the general population (the last-mentioned deduction not being made), 11.3, 19.4, and 4.8; but among the special population, 68.7, 28.2, and 27.1. The middle period no longer appears to approach the normal in being one of especial susceptibility; there is a displacement by which the incidence upon the period of special susceptibility is equalled by the incidence upon the ages above 25, and by which the incidence upon the age-period 0-15 was quite disproportionately severe. Lastly, the incidence upon males among the special population was 27.7, but upon the females no less than 50 per cent. Although the numbers are small both of these peculiarities may be taken to point to a special distribution of the infected matter; that is to say, that it reached a part only of the population.

23. Conclusion as to the Cause of the Outbreak.

It may now be suggested that if the evidence adduced in the preceding section had been brought forward at first a difficult and tedious course of inquiry might have been avoided. But that evidence is not, by itself, free from the suspicion of mere coincidence—a source of error which is ever present in such investigations, which is always difficult to eliminate, and which in this case was even more than usually embarrassing, because of the intimate relations which existed between the inhabitants of this small and perfectly isolated township. But when, by a general preliminary examination, it has been made clear that the medium of infection must have been either milk or water, and when the influence of milk and of mineral waters has been defined or eliminated; when by closer examination it has been shown that the focus of infection was within the town, and that the infective medium must have been either the river water, which the whole population may be regarded as having drunk, or else the water of the tank X, because that alone of other waters reached a sufficiently large proportion of them; and, lastly, when the special incidence upon women, and upon women and children together as compared with men, the abnormally even incidence upon the three age-periods, and the irregular interval which elapsed between the attacks of the first and subsequent cases in several households, have been discovered,—then the evidence alluded to becomes acceptable with confidence. Notwithstanding the acknowledged and rather considerable residue of cases which cannot be seen clearly to have been subject to its influence, the conclusion that the X water was the medium of distribution for the infection is irresistible.

The time called “the epidemic period,” which has thus far been dealt with, and the cases which fall within it, are separated from the remaining time during which the epidemic endured, for the following reasons:—When communicable disease is introduced into a populous place and establishes itself there, the

the first cases, and the majority of the earlier cases, are due to the one source of contagion which is to be the main factor of the epidemic; it is this first or chief source which such etiological inquiries as the present seek to discover. But that one source of the earlier, and of many of the later, cases never remains the sole medium of contagion when outbreaks are prolonged, for, as time elapses, the cases which were due to it at first become themselves fresh (or secondary) centres of infection. During the earlier weeks the primary and these secondary centres of infection operate side by side; but as time goes on a larger and a larger proportion of cases is due to the secondary centres alone, until at last it becomes unprofitable (and even futile) to attempt to fix upon the source at which each of the latest cases received the contagion. For practical purposes of inquiry, therefore, a limit must be set, but there is no definite circumstance by which it may be fixed. It will vary in different cases, and at the discretion of the investigator; only it must never be very short lest embarrassment of an exactly opposite kind to that referred to above be introduced. It is therefore unnecessary to devote much time to consideration of the remaining cases that occurred.

* Died.

Details of the above cases.

101.—M., æt. 23; approximate date of attack, March 20. A civilized aboriginal, employed as a station-hand, who lived off the track 6 miles short of Hatfield, which was about 70 miles out. Had not visited Balranald during incubation period, and for long before. No. 47, a carrier, who was infected in Balranald, was taken ill about February 24, while on the road to Hatfield, where he resided; he travelled thirteen days, stayed at home a week or thereabouts, and made his way back to Balranald Hospital, March 4.*

102.—M., æt. 38; April 2. This man was the scavenger, successor to the doubtful case (g) above; but he only began work the night before he was attacked. Before that he used to be in town two days a week, and the rest of the time in the bush.

103.—M., æt. 32; April 10. Used to visit Case 35 during her illness, which began January 25.

104.—F., æt. 16; April 10. The sixth case in the household; the last preceding died April 3.

105.—M., æt. 24; April 16. Lived at hotel "Delta." A preceding case was attacked January 25, and there were one or two doubtful cases after that.

106.—M., æt. 14; April 17. Lived in one of two houses standing close together a mile outside the town. In own house Cases 60 and 61 (apparently infected in Balranald) were taken ill, February 14, but did not stay there after illness was declared. In adjacent house Case 56, attacked February 12 (and infected in Balranald), passed through illness.

107.—M., æt. 25; April 18. Coach-driver between Balranald and Euston.

108.—M., æt. 9; April 20. Third case in the household.

109.—M., æt. 4; April 21. A second case. The last preceding (No. 98) was attacked March 17th.

110.—M., æt. 6; April 22. A second case in household, the last preceding having been attacked March 1.

111.—F., æt. 29; April 28. A third case in household, No. 98 being the first.

112.—M., æt. 28; May 1. Coach-driver on the Swan Hill line; a first case.

113.—F., æt. 19; May 1. A first case.

114.—M., æt. 22; May 2. A first case.

115.—M., æt. 56; May 14. The tenth case ("Alpha Hotel").

116.—F., æt. 6; May 18. A first case.

117.—M., æt. 16; May 22. A second case, the last having been attacked February 15.

118.—F., æt. 27; May 22. A first case. The married daughter of a household in which 6 cases occurred.

119.—F., æt. 6; June 12. A first case.

120.—M., æt. 9; July 6. A first case.

* No. 47 travelled about 9 miles a day. Soon after February 2 he began to have diarrhoea, and he camped near water-holes two or three times which were in the region frequently traversed by No. 101; and the latter must occasionally have drunk at these holes, since there was no other water at hand. He would also make his mid-day camp near them.

The pump was removed from Tank X on March 19, and it was replaced on April 26. The date of its restoration is noted; but, as the weather was by that time cold, it would no longer be much used. Of these concluding cases, several are not first cases; while in others it is more or less easy to conjecture the manner in which they probably received the infection.

Nothing has yet been said as to the way in which the Tank X became infected; and although it would be satisfactory to know what that was, yet it is a detail of quite secondary importance. That this reservoir lay exposed to imminent risk of pollution has been pointed out; and that it actually did become infected is now proved with sufficient clearness. In short, without speculating on this detail, the case yet once more illustrates the urgent necessity there is for guarding with greatest care the purity of drinking-waters, and the danger which always attaches to such water when it is collected in underground receptacles which are not constructed with reasonable precautions. When underground tanks are built in sound earth and are entirely surrounded beneath the soil with a 6-inch layer of faithfully-puddled clay they are safe from pollution by soakage from the soil through their brick walls. But labour spent in puddling is labour lost as long as the joints of supply-pipes which pass underground are not rendered tight in some permanent fashion, and as long as the overflow can act as a supply-pipe, either by its mouth or by its loose joints through which foul surface-water can soak and pass to the interior of the tank. Were all these matters very carefully attended to, it would still remain to protect all orifices—manholes, overflows, and rain-water heads—with grids, so as to prevent the entrance of small animals; and to pass the roof-water through one or other of the several patterns of "separators" which cause the first roof-washings after drought to run to waste, and only allow the rain to pass to the tank after a sufficient time has elapsed to wash the roofs clean. Failing all these precautions, he will act most wisely who drinks underground tank-waters only when they have been boiled within twenty-four hours.

Bahranald, which heretofore seems to have experienced only occasional cases of typhoid fever, is now sown in very many different spots with the contagium of this disease. This will continue capable of causing fresh cases for a very long time; and although it is most probable that few will happen during the next season, or even none at all, yet there is reason to fear that a year or two later fresh cases may be met with in important number. It is therefore necessary that during the cold weather steps should be taken to effectually remove the contagium, and to diminish the opportunity of doing harm for any that may be overlooked. This can only be done by emptying, cleansing, and filling up all existing cess-pits, for which pan-closets should be everywhere substituted; and by forbidding householders to empty their pans for themselves. After the pits have been emptied, and their walls scraped to remove the earth as far as it seems to be soaked, they should be very thoroughly dressed with a solution of one pound of chloride of lime to a gallon of water. They may then be filled with clean earth, but it will be prudent if, in addition, the house be moved a few feet away before placing the pan.

APPENDIX.

Suggestions made to the Municipal Council, February, 1889 (see covering letter).

THE DISEASE.

The disease which has caused so much illness in Balranald lately is Typhoid Fever.

THE CAUSE.

Typhoid Fever is a communicable disease; but it is not contagious from person to person as Scarlet Fever is. The contagion is in the bowel-discharges of persons suffering; and it is communicated through these diseased bowel-discharges. When any person suffers from typhoid he does so because he has taken into his system some portion of the bowel-discharges of a person already suffering. This may happen by one of the three following:—

MODES OF SPREAD.

1. By food. When persons are engaged in nursing the sick and in household duties at the same time, they may pollute food in a direct way.
2. By air. When large masses of filth are mixed with the excreta of typhoid cases, and when the foul air which arises is confined and is breathed for a time by a person in health, that person is likely to contract the disease through the foul air. A closet-pan, if used by a person suffering from typhoid, may spread the disease in the same way; and if it is emptied without being cleansed, perhaps it may continue infective for some time. If the excreta are allowed to soil linen and to dry on it, then they may break up into dust, float on the air, and so spread the disease. But all of these are less common modes of spread—or all of these modes have a narrower scope of action and are less powerful than the third mode.
3. By water. This is the commonest mode of spread of all; and in places without sewers pollution of drinking-water is almost always at the bottom of widespread outbreaks. Even when the fever spreads through milk it is by way of polluted water that the milk becomes infected as a rule, although, of course, it may be infected directly, as mentioned under "food" above. The cause of illness, or poison, can grow and increase in water just as yeast can grow in wort; thus a small quantity of typhoid excreta can poison large volumes of water—even rivers—so that persons who drink of it get the fever, though the water may have seemed pure. This has been known to happen in very many parts of the world. Another way in which drinking-water may thus get poisoned is furnished when in towns or other places cesspits and wells are found within moderate distances of each other. Another way is when nightsoil from pans or elsewhere is either carelessly cast out or put into water, or on the banks of rivers so that it may be washed into the stream. This is the most insidious way of spread, because the poison can travel with water a long way under or through the earth; and it is the commonest, both because water is most exposed to this risk, and because when it is quite deadly it may still seem bright and pure to the sight and taste.

PREVENTION.

Personal Precautions.—As the poison resides in the discharges of the sick, the disease may be confined to the person actually suffering, if his excreta are very carefully collected and destroyed at once. Linen which has got soiled with them should be specially removed and put in a vessel with a disinfectant, and thence be transferred to a boiler and boiled for half-an-hour. If other things got soiled, the spot should be carefully scrubbed with the disinfectant. The nurse should wash her hands carefully and often. Food, and especially milk, should not be kept in the sick-room. When drinking-water can be got from rain falling on roofs and caught in iron overground tanks, it may be regarded as safe. But when it comes from any other receptacle or source—from underground tanks, from wells, from creeks, or from rivers—it should not be drunk unless it has been first boiled. If this precaution were always observed there would be no wide-spread outbreak of typhoid, although some limited communication might take place by the other modes already mentioned. Milk should ALWAYS be boiled before use.

Public Precautions.—These consist (a) in a proper system of night-soil removal, and (b) in guarding the purity of sources of drinking-water.

- (a) Cesspits are bad. They are found convenient by the lazy, the short-sighted, and the penny-wise; but there is, in reality, nothing to be said in their favour. They are the means of keeping upon inhabited premises large masses of putrefying filth, and of that very kind of filth which should be most speedily and thoroughly removed from them. Besides contaminating the air over them, cesspits allow their fluid contents to soak deep into the soil, where they poison the ground-air and the ground-water. A pan-closet is free from these serious objections. It may become offensive; but the prevention of this is in the hands of every householder who will take the trouble to keep a little dry earth in the closet, and who will then take care to see that it is supplied to the pan in proper proportion. But no municipal council should rely upon this being done; experience shows that it will be done only by a few people out of a great number. It must be taken that no earth will be supplied, and—on this supposition—the pans will require emptying twice a week throughout the summer, at the least. The only way of doing this work properly is by having a double set of pans with an interchangeable air-tight lid, so that the work may be done in daylight, and so that the pans may be thoroughly cleansed at a suitable depot. The emptying of pans by individual householders should be absolutely forbidden. It is the duty of the Inspector of Nuisances to so superintend the scavenger that his work is really done thoroughly, regularly, and decently.
- (b) The protection of the water supply under the circumstances of Balranald should include the licensing and supervision of water-carriers, the supervision and cleansing at suitable opportunities of all private and public water-tanks, and periodical inspection of the river bank for (say) from 7 to 10 miles up stream, and careful inspection of all premises situated within easy reach of the banks, whether within the town boundary or beyond it. Wharves, especially, but also all places where boats are employed, should be provided with sufficient privy accommodation. It is most desirable that all river boats should carry pan-closets, and avoid casting the contents into the stream; but, when lying at a wharf, this should be compulsory under very heavy penalties. There is no offence of the kind more likely to do harm than the defiling of fresh water which may be used by man.

The neglect of general scavenging is an auxiliary of all fevers. Masses of filth, dirty yards, collections of garbage, &c., &c., keep the air impure; and when such air is breathed by man, the vital powers are lowered, the body loses its natural defence—which consists in general good health—and the way is cleared for the attacks of typhoid, as well as of other diseases. All such nuisances should be regularly and steadily removed, therefore; and, indeed, the prevention of disease largely consists in removal of nuisances. In a general view, dirt and disease are seen to be inseparable allies.

DISINFECTANTS.

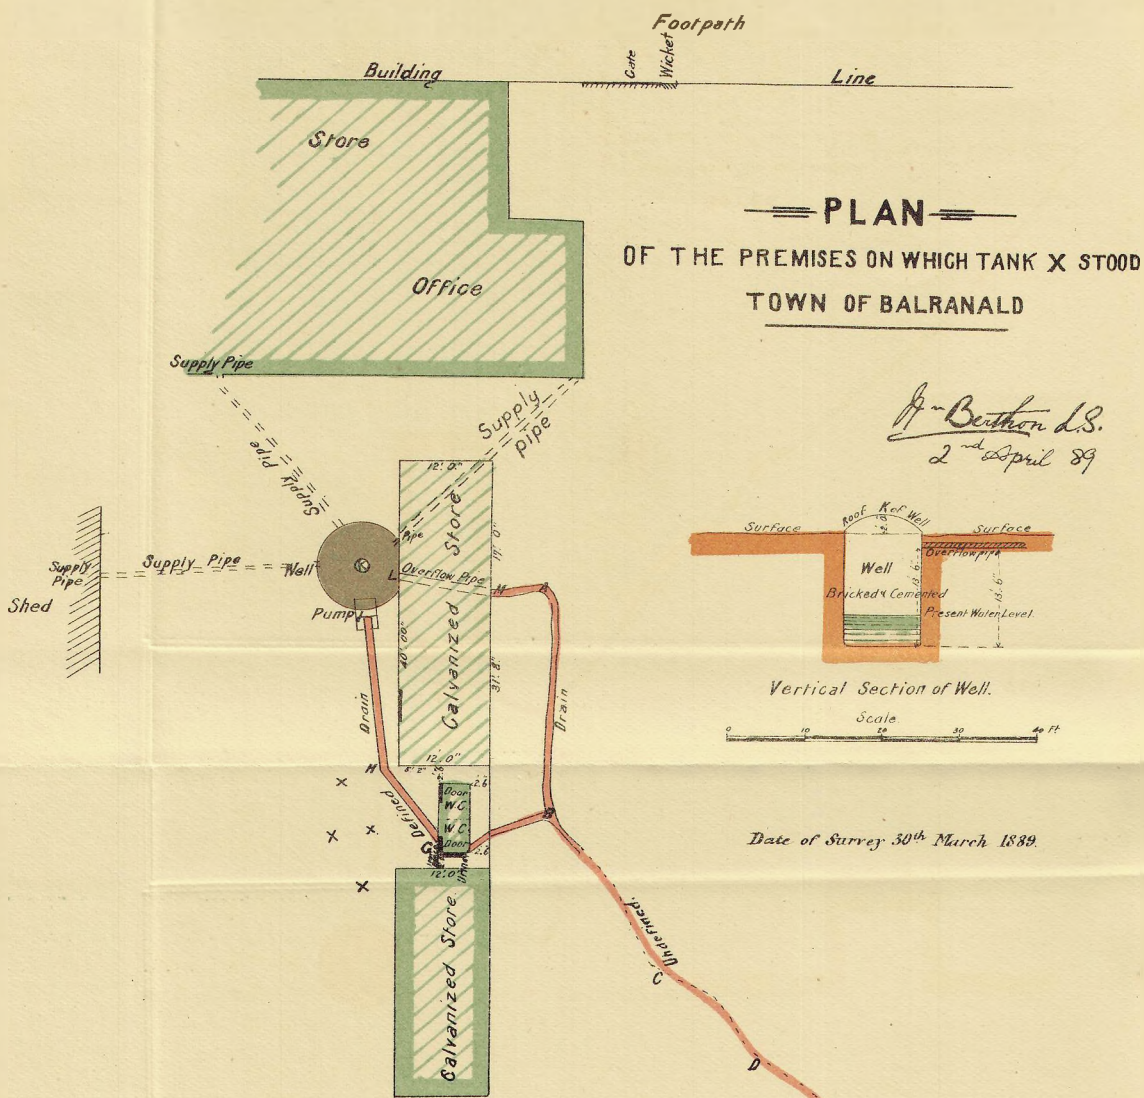

The most effectual disinfectants for the present case are the following:—No. 1: Corrosive sublimate, 1 part water, 1,600 parts; tartaric acid, 6 parts. This is a violent poison, and should be coloured, so that it may not be mistaken for water. It is suitable for all the purposes mentioned above. No. 2: Coarse (brown) carbolic acid, 10 parts; water 100 parts. This also is a poison.

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 28 February, 1889.

Minute by The Secretary for Public Works.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 17 January, 1889.

Subject :—Outbreak of Typhoid at Newtown.

WITH reference to the suggestion contained in my minute of yesterday, viz., that a short measure should be passed enabling the officers of the Works Department, in conjunction with those of the Health Board, to visit any suspected locality or house, and if it is found necessary to have the power to compel owners of property to carry out any requisition which may be made for the purpose of abating any dangerous nuisance found to exist,—I think I am justified, in view of the serious nature of the case, and dealing as it does with the subject quite apart from political considerations, to give instructions for the preparation of a short Bill to accomplish what I have suggested. By doing this I think I shall be giving valuable help to my successor, who I am sure will be only too glad, in the interests of public health, to carry to completion the measure proposed by me to cope with this evil.

I therefore wish the Under Secretary to put himself into communication with the Parliamentary Draftsman and Dr. Maclaurin, with the object of having a draft Bill prepared as quickly as possible.

I think it will be recognized on all hands that I have ample justification for taking this somewhat unusual course.

TYPHOID FEVER.

REPORT to the Honorable the Minister for Public Works upon an Outbreak of Typhoid Fever at Newtown and Macdonaldtown; with a description of the cause and modes of spread of this Disease, and suggestions for its prevention:

By J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON, M.D. (Brux.), Dipl. Publ. Health (Camb.), Deputy Medical Adviser to the Government, Chief Medical Inspector to the Board of Health; and GEORGE H. STAYTON, M. Inst. C.E., Sewerage Branch, Department of Public Works.

Sir,

Sydney, 11 February, 1889.

In accordance with your minute of 3rd January, and with a minute of the Medical Adviser of 4th January, we have the honor to submit the following report upon an outbreak of typhoid fever in the municipal districts of Newtown and Macdonaldtown.

We venture to draw your attention especially to the documents which form the second Appendix to this Report. They show that so long ago as 1884 fever was prevalent in the same locality; and that public attention was fully directed to the causes of illness by letters in the daily papers, by communications made to the Municipal Councils concerned, by an action in a court of law, and by numerous deaths. They show also, when read in conjunction with this Report, that, after all, no effectual remedy was applied; the same causes of illness which existed then exist and operate to-day. The sole difference is that whereas they were then fully exposed to view, now they are covered over; so that the locality which was full of obvious, and therefore avoidable, dangers, is now fair-seeming, although converted into a veritable trap. We regret that there are no means of ascertaining how many valuable lives have been swallowed up in it during the past few years.

We have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servants,

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON.

GEORGE H. STAYTON.

The Honorable the Minister for Public Works.

The Chief Medical Inspector to The President of the Board of Health.

Sir, Health Department, N.S.W., 9 February, 1889.

In accordance with your minute of the 4th ultimo, and with the tenour of other minutes herewith (Appendix I), I have the honor to submit the following Report upon an outbreak of Typhoid Fever in parts of the Municipalities of Macdonaldtown and Newtown, written by Mr. George H. Stayton, M. Inst. C.E., and myself.

I have, &c.,

REPORT.

PART I.

THE case on which the following Report is based is as follows:—A family named Jones—which consisted of William, the father, aged 34; Charlotte, the mother, aged 31; and five children, aged from 12 years to 9 months—lived for about eighteen months in University-street, Camperdown, and there enjoyed good health. At the beginning of April, 1888, William Jones left for Broken Hill, and Mrs. Jones moved into a smaller house, choosing No. 53 Gowrie-street, Newtown. About November 10th, Jones, returning from Broken Hill, stayed a few days in Melbourne, and he is said to have fallen out of health while there. He came on to Sydney and joined his wife at Gowrie-street about November 16th. Continuing out of health, about ten days later he attended Prince Alfred Hospital as an out-patient; afterwards he applied for admission, and on December 18th he died there of typhoid fever. Mrs. Jones' illness began about November 20th; she was admitted to the hospital suffering from typhoid the same day as her husband, and is now convalescent. Edward, aged 12, fell ill about November 26th, was admitted to hospital December 13th, and died of typhoid. Maggie, aged 5, fell ill about December 10th, was admitted to hospital December 18th, and died December 31st of typhoid. The other three children were taken charge of by various friends on their parents being removed, and they are believed to be in good health.

Examination of the house and of adjacent dwellings.

The house in which this unfortunate family lived is one of a small terrace of seven, which are all exactly alike. Reference to the map [see Appendix] will show that they (as well as a few more houses next to them in the direction of Harold-street, and others at a still greater distance) are built upon the site of old clay-pits. These, which extend far on each side to the east and west, have been filled in with earth and garbage during past years. Actually under the houses 53 to 63 and under No. 65, Gowrie-street, however, either earth was never put in or it has been taken out again; a large cavity thus exists which is undrained and imperfectly ventilated, and which apparently always carries stinking water and mud. There is nothing between the rooms of the houses and this damp and filthy cavity but the ordinary joists and flooring boards. The size of the lots is about 13 x 80 feet. The houses, which at present are let at 8s. a week, consist of three rooms; the street door opens on the front room, which extends the width of the frontage; the back room is narrower by the space occupied by a passage which leads to the kitchen; the kitchen by a door leads to a wash-house measuring about 8 x 6 feet, and open on one side to the yard; it contains a copper with a furnace, and this is placed close to the kitchen grate, which is on the other side of the party wall. Close to the copper is a yard gully; this is connected to a 6-inch pipe-drain, which runs under the wash-houses and across the lowest yard of the row, and discharges in the gutter of Angel-lane at the back. The gullies of all these houses are connected with this drain. At the bottom of the yard is one half of a double cess-pit constructed of half-brick work.

In

In an account furnished on January 16th of the progress made in this investigation down to the date mentioned, such a description of these houses was furnished as was possible in the absence of power to excavate and to uncover drains, &c. [See Appendix I.] The Minister for Public Works had already directed letters to be written to the owners requesting their consent to this work being done, but no reply was received until after the account had been presented to Parliament by the Minister, and, in consequence, had appeared in the daily papers. Immediately thereafter the owners of the premises, Nos. 51 to 65 inclusive, gave their written consent to the sinking of the necessary trial-holes and the uncovering of drains and yard-gullies. The work was carried out on the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd of January. Seven trial-holes were sunk to a depth of 4 or 5 feet each, the drains and yard-gullies were examined in five places, the floor-boards were taken up in seven rooms, and the exterior of the cess-pit at No. 53 was partly exposed. This examination enabled the facts of the case to be fully ascertained, and it will be seen that they confirm the opinions expressed in the interim report of the 16th ultimo. [Appendix I.]

Filling in back yards.—The five trial holes in the back yards proved that the present surface is about 4 feet 10 inches above the bottom of the old clay-pit or the natural surface, and that earth of a fairly satisfactory description had been used in "making up" the site. The lower part of the made earth contained a considerable quantity of subsoil water; in fact the first hole opened at No. 53 Gowrie-street was found to contain about 7 inches of soakage after being left open for a day. At No. 63, which is at a lower level, the excavated material and subsoil waters had a peculiarly unpleasant smell. At No. 53 further trial holes were sunk—one within 2 or 3 yards of the cess-pit, and one actually at the cess-pit. The former contained some dark looking mud at the bottom of the made ground, and considerable soakage was present; but on sinking the latter, the work had to be suspended on account of the liquid from the cess-pit filling it up to the same level as in the cess-pit itself. This soakage was highly discolored, and of an offensive nature, and clearly demonstrated the fact that the liquid contents of such cess-pits soak into the adjacent made up earth. In the vacant land between Nos. 63 and 65, where there is room to erect two or three dwelling-houses similar to Nos. 51 to 63, but which is at present a stable yard, two holes were sunk, and it was ascertained that the ground had been made up entirely with garbage. In fact the excavated material comprised rags, ashes, vegetable fibre, matting, cinders, broken glass, tins, and the usual contents of dust-bins. Decomposition was still present as evinced by the high temperature of the material, and the foul smells which were given off. The hole near No. 63 was sunk to a depth of 4 feet, and in a short space of time some 18 inches of foul water soaked in, and appeared to stand about 2 feet 6 inches below the level of the surface.

Drains and Yard Gullies.—The position of the gullies and direction of the drain at the back of the premises Nos. 51 to 63, and the point of discharge in Angel-lane, have already been described. The pipes are jointed with clay, and in some parts are scarcely under the surface of the ground. At the lower end the fall is slight, consequently the drain becomes very foul at times, and emits dangerous gases. On testing the discharge, although the drain had been washed out by turning a tap fully on for two hours on the previous day, it was found to be of a filthy description. The whole of the gullies are absolutely untrapped, and although covered by iron gratings, they discharge by a direct vertical opening into the drain underneath. The water supply taps are immediately over these open drains.

At No. 63 a 6-inch drain is provided to carry off the water from the space under the living and sleeping rooms. This drain runs under the footway to Harold-street, and in its course receives the slop-waters from three or four other houses. It enters No. 63 under the front room, but at too high a level to carry off the waters effectually, and being absolutely untrapped it may be said to be a means for actually laying on sewer-gas to the premises. On applying a lighted candle to the open end of the pipe a strong current of air was found to be passing into the house. The drain of No. 65 is badly trapped, and is said to discharge into a pipe-drain in Angel-lane.

Spaces under Floors.—At No. 53 the ground is 6 feet 10 inches below the floors of the front and back rooms. Its surface was found to be damp and muddy, and it had a close smell. Its relative level appeared to be about 6 inches below the surface of the original earth in the back yard. There was ample evidence of soakage from the made-up earth in the back yard. Under the front room at No. 63 the surface of the ground is about 5 feet below the floor-level, and consisted of fetid mud and dirty water, some 12 inches deep in places. Under the kitchen floor, at a depth of 2 feet, a quantity of soft mud was found. At No. 65 (unoccupied) the surface of the ground is about 2 feet below the floor-level. Under the kitchen floor some 2 feet of soft mud was found, but under the bed-room it was 2 feet 8 inches, and under the front room 4 feet deep. The moisture is doubtless caused and maintained by the ground water in the before-mentioned stable yard.

Cess-pits.—The closets of all the houses abut upon Angel-lane. The cess-pit at No. 53 was examined internally, and, as already explained, externally. It is formed of half brickwork only, and is not rendered. The floor was taken up and the contents of the pit which were about 18 inches deep contained articles of clothing, and the surface was both frothy and offensive, notwithstanding that disinfectants are said to have been freely used since the illness at the house in December. At No. 65 a cess-pit has been replaced by a pan-closet.

The

The facts thus disclosed clearly prove that the premises are in a most insanitary condition, and that they are unfit for human habitation. The open and untrapped gullies being placed close to the constantly hot walls behind the coppers and next to the kitchen grates, are in the best position for emitting sewer air; and as the washhouse has no opening in its roof this foul air must circle round and round within it before it escapes by the open side, so that any person working there must breathe and rebreathe it. The cess-pit being constructed on made up earth, as described, cannot, even if the bricks were set and properly rendered in cement, be impervious; and on the first examination of the matter contained in the pit, which has not been emptied since the Jones' family removed, it was clear from its thick consistency that the greater part of the liquid constituents had drained away. Subsequent rains doubtless caused the greater quantity of liquid found on the second occasion. These being the conditions, the way in which the health of the occupants of the houses is touched by them may be pointed out. Made earth, of whatever it may be composed, is of course much more freely permeable by air and water than is the natural soil. The rain that falls on the surface of these unpaved yards, any sewage that soaks from the cess-pits, and any soakage from neighbouring gutters carrying slop-water, all enter it easily, and pass through it quickly. Owing to the natural fall of the ground, and in so low-lying a situation, the space left under the houses would ensure that a large proportion of this liquid filth should drain to it and stand under them, and there we saw and smelt it. From the space the vapours ascend and enter the houses through the flooring; and these vapours, while under any circumstances they would be prolific sources of illness of one sort or another, would, if the excreta of typhoid fever from cess-pit leakage or otherwise were added even in very small quantity to the filthy water, be certain to communicate the fever to the inmates. But the catalogue of the disadvantages under which the inhabitants of these houses live in them is by no means complete. If on the map a line be drawn from the north angle of the area shown to the paddock at the south where an open watercourse or sewer is shown, the lowest part of a valley is indicated; the land slopes up from that line to the ridges along which run the Erskineville Road on one side, and Cook's River Road on the other. Roughly following this line and nearly all the way, are acres of old excavations, now filled either with earth, garbage, or (as in one case) with street sweepings. The natural lay of the country tends to throw all surface waters to this central line, and the comparatively loose soil in the clay-pits retains some of it below the surface. But with regard to Gowrie-street, several of the houses under consideration are so placed that the surface water flowing during any storm down several lanes and streets, concentrates about them; and at a point in Angel-lane, which is a little way to the north of the corner of Harold-street, drain-pipes have been put down to carry this off, which discharge into Harold-street. These pipes are entirely insufficient for their purpose, and the inlets are shamefully neglected by the Municipal Council; in consequence surface waters flood the back yards, running forward to Gowrie-street by passages between two or three detached houses at its southerly end. In these passages there was plain evidence by the usual marks that the water had recently flowed in a stream about 18 inches deep; while a resident at No. 69 stated that at the back of the house it has risen above his knees. At the same time, of course, it flows into the spaces under the houses. If this water were perfectly clean and fresh, if it merely kept these basements damp, it is well known that the consequences to health would be serious; but it must be remembered that in reality it carries down with it slop-water from a large number of houses situated up the northerly slope, as well as soakage from cess-pits there standing and from other accumulations of garbage.

The houses in question ought to be peremptorily closed until such structural remedies as the following are satisfactorily carried out:—(a) The spaces under the floor to be filled up with clean earth and the surface properly concreted, ample air-bricks being provided. (b) The old drains abolished and new ones laid outside the washhouses; the discharge pipe from sinks to be in the open air over trapped yard gullies, the upper end of the drain to be ventilated. (c) The back areas to be paved and drained. (d) The cesspits to be emptied, covered with fresh lime, and filled up with suitable earth, the surface being concreted to receive movable pans. The Western Suburbs Sewerage Scheme will doubtless provide a permanent outlet for slop waters and excreta, and will enable deeper and more effective drainage of the premises to be carried out hereafter. Sewerage alone, however, will not remedy the evils referred to, the above remedies being urgently necessary for the health of the occupants.

There are in Gowrie-street twelve houses adjoining No. 53 which are more or less exposed to the same sources of ill-health; and if the latter really caused the spread of the fever among the Jones' family (as there is no doubt whatever that they did), then the inhabitants of the other houses should also show an unusual incidence of disease. But a part of the area shown on the map, which covers about 106 acres, and is estimated to carry about 935 houses, is but little or no better, and for the same reason there should have been an unusual incidence of disease there too. Much time was spent in endeavouring to ascertain the facts under this head, but with little success.

When

When it is desired to ascertain the state of the public health in a particular district, scarcely any other means are at hand than house-to-house visitation. This plan, while under the most favourable circumstances it is tedious and uncertain (the allegations of persons that they have suffered from specified diseases being often made under misapprehension of the true nature of their illness), is in exactly the unhealthy districts the least available; for from houses in them tenants remove as soon as they can, and in fact for this reason generally but little information worth serious notice can be got. But the Medical Adviser to the Government obtains from the several metropolitan hospitals, by favour of their Boards of Management, a monthly statement of the number of persons admitted for typhoid fever; and, therefore, in the case of this, one of the most constant and most important of such diseases, some trustworthy information is recorded. But, valuable as this is, persons removed to hospital for typhoid fever bear but a small proportion to those who suffer: they are selected from the total number, by severity of illness, by continuance of illness in one household, by want of friends at hand, and lastly, but in a very much smaller proportion than might be surmised, by poverty. Rarely a wise choice of the advantages of hospital treatment over the drawback of separation from friends acts as a selecting influence. Probably the statement may be safely hazarded that among the well-to-do and the very poor alike but a small proportion of the sick resort to hospitals. So that in endeavouring to state the incidence of illness lately on the area now under consideration only the hospital reports mentioned can be referred to, and only an obviously unsafe comparison made between the incidence on it and the incidence (as shown by hospital returns) on the whole of Macdonaldtown and Newtown.

The following statement with regard to the twelve houses in Gowrie-street may be made with some confidence in its essential accuracy. The entry which is made in italics is thereby shown to be a statement which amounts to but little more than hearsay.

Details concerning the tenants of the houses 49 to 73, Gowrie-street.

- No. 49. Have lived here several years. One child ill of typhoid at present.
- No. 51. Here but a short time; no illness.
- No. 53. Jones's house. Four cases; three deaths. Now empty.
- No. 55. In the family of a former tenant (Johnson), one case. In the family of the next tenant, one case. In the family of the present tenant, here since August, one case.
- No. 57. In family of former tenant (Kirby), one death, and one other case. Present tenant here a few days only.
- No. 59. Tenant out on several occasions; no sickness reported.
- No. 61. Tenant here two or three weeks only.
- No. 63. Present tenant came in January 14th; 2 adults, 2 children. Complains of constant bad smell in the house. The eldest girl has had headache and vomiting during her week's residence, and says she cannot eat anything. Last tenant here seven months; no illness, but lived before on the opposite side of the road, and there the family had illness of unascertained character.
- No. 65. Empty.
- No. 67. Here five years; present tenant is the owner; one member suffered "from blood-poisoning for two years after coming here"; "has not had a day's good health"; has just recovered from a mild attack of typhoid; the children away now for their health. Eight months ago tenant's brother suffered typhoid here; some time ago lost two children—not from typhoid.
- No. 69. Three years here; two adults, two children; no illness.
- No. 71. Two adults; here one year; one death from paralysis. Now one adult, one child; no sickness (but the child not long here).
- No. 73. Nine years here; two adults, three children; no history of illness given.

. When people own the house which is the subject of inquiry, and occupy it themselves, or, not owning it, believe themselves to be in any degree under influence of the owner or his agent, they will seldom make frank statements. By a tedious process of cross-examination in the neighbourhood, however, it is possible to get very near the truth.

Doubtless a complete history of these houses would be most instructive; however, the imperfect account furnished by the above items is enough for the present purpose. Almost all that can be said of the mapped area in general on this point is comprised in the following statement:—Whereas the two municipalities of Newtown and Macdonaldtown are estimated by the Directory to carry together 4,231 houses, and there were removed to hospital for typhoid fever during the season, June, 1887–8, and the half season, July to December, 1888, in all 106 cases, or a proportion of cases to houses of about 2·5 per cent.; the percentage of cases to 935 houses on the area mapped (being partly in each municipality) was nearly five, while the percentage of cases to all the houses in the remaining parts of these municipalities was nearly two. This statement must be taken for what it is worth; it shows, of course, not the incidence of typhoid fever, but the proportion of persons suffering from that disease who, for one or other reason, sought admission to hospital. Little more can be said on this subject; but in the course of a speech made at a recent meeting of the representatives of different suburbs with the Minister for Public Works to discuss the proposed scheme of sewerage for the western suburbs, the Medical Adviser to the Government made the following reference to a table recently issued by the Board of Health:—"It would be seen from this table that whereas the death rate in Sydney from typhoid and other infectious fevers was at the rate of 4·38 per 10,000 of the population, in the north-western suburbs it amounted to 9·48, and in the west-central suburbs, that is to say, Newtown, St. Peters, Camperdown, and Macdonaldtown, it amounted to 12·44."

PART II.

The Cause of Typhoid Fever.

BEFORE proceeding farther it is necessary that the nature of the cause of typhoid should be mentioned, and the manner in which it is disseminated.

The essential cause of this fever is an exceedingly minute organism, which can live and reproduce itself within the body, but which can also live and reproduce itself under favourable circumstances outside the body. It has been isolated, examined, and described by trustworthy observers in several parts of the world, and also in Sydney.

In 1888, Dr. Oscar Katz, the bacteriologist at present conducting similar investigations for the Rabbit Commission, demonstrated this organism at the Coast Hospital. He found it present in the excreta of persons there lying ill of typhoid, and he showed that it possesses here just the same characteristics as it has been shown to possess in other countries.

The essential cause of typhoid, then, is one. Wherever typhoid exists there this same, one, particular organism, exists; and whenever this one organism gains access to and establishes itself in the human body, the train of symptoms known as typhoid fever is set up.

The origin, or proper place in nature, of this organism is, perhaps, unknown; but, like some of the organisms which are the causes, each for itself, of other similar diseases, in practice nothing is known of it apart from cases of the particular kind of illness it produces. On the one hand, if a man suffer from typhoid it is certain that he has had direct or indirect communication with a former case of the same disease; on the other, if the organism be found anywhere outside the human body, then it is certain that it has been cast off by a person suffering from typhoid, either in the place in which it is found, or elsewhere whence it could reach that place.

It is cast off from the body which it infests with the excretions from the bowels. If these excretions could be at once destroyed then the fever would be confined to the person producing them, for with them the organism would be destroyed. But when they are dealt with in one or other of the usual ways—when they are cast into a cesspit or into a sewer, or on moist ground—then the organism does not die, but lives and multiplies exceedingly.

It does not live and multiply with the same force within the body in all cases. Against this and other such diseases the human body has great natural powers of defending itself. Generally speaking, if the body into which the organism enters be in really sound health, there will be no fever; the organism will die, because it finds itself under conditions which are harmful to it, and which it cannot resist. The constitution, it may be said, is stronger than the organism, overcomes it, and kills it. But if the body be in impaired health—if the vital forces have been reduced by one or other of many causes, of which in cities the respiration of impure air is perhaps the most constantly operative, and therefore the most important—then the organism finds it can live and multiply, and prove itself at last stronger than the body, which it kills in its turn. Between these two extremes all the intermediate degrees of illness occur. But perhaps, in general, it is only the question of attack or escape which is decided by the constitutional conditions mentioned; the degree of illness suffered (in case of failure to resist completely) being probably dependent on other circumstances as well, to which it is unnecessary to refer more particularly in this place. Nor does the organism live and multiply with the same vigour in every place outside the body indiscriminately. As it is thrown off from the diseased body by the bowels, so it finds its most favourable soil outside it in masses of excrement.

It is not possible to be much more explicit on this point. It seems certain that the organism lives longest in such places as cesspits, or among masses of other sorts of filth which have become mixed with the specifically infected excreta of man; or when, from a cesspit or leaking sewer, it gains access to the ground water. In pure water some evidence has been adduced to show that although at first it may rapidly multiply with sufficient vigour to infect, its tendency in that medium is towards extinction. A few drops of infected water added to milk are sufficient to poison large quantities of the latter; it grows there with astonishing rapidity and prolificness. When it abides in night-soil many examples show that it retains its virulent powers for long periods.

These facts show practically, first, that the living thing which is the cause of typhoid is not known of apart from human excrement, with which it appears and in which it best flourishes; and secondly, that every person who suffers from this disease does so because he has, more or less directly, received into his body a portion (which is small, doubtless, or even minute) of the excrement of some person already suffering from the same disease. They show moreover that although one case of fever can furnish enough of the specific poison to do great damage to man this is no measure of its power for harm, because the discharges from one person can multiply after they leave the body so as to virulently infect immense masses of excreta and of water.

In the well-known case which occurred at Caterham, in England, where the circumstances were ascertainable with unusual accuracy and certainty, a quantity of excreta from a man suffering typhoid, which could scarcely have exceeded 12 ozs., was accidentally mixed with about 1,800,000 gallons of water in the well from which the town supply was drawn, and being being distributed among a large population during about a fortnight, 32 cases of typhoid fever were caused. In another case, the correspondent of the Lancet Sanitary Record in the United States, after describing the unhealthy circumstances of the city of Plymouth, Pa., says:—"The foul condition of the soil and of the river front are alluded to because—though they do not seem to have caused the epidemic—it is possible that they combined to lower the vitality of the inhabitants to such an extent as to render them easily susceptible to the onslaught of any contagious disease." He then relates how the fever suddenly broke out, and how, out of a population of about 12,000, more than 1,000 had been attacked at the date of report, and more than 100 had died. He gives the reasons which exclude the river water from any share in causing the epidemic, and explains the latter as follows:—"On the bank of the stream (not the river, but a mountain stream) from which came the city's water supply lived a man named Davis. About Christmas this man visited the city of Philadelphia, where they generate typhoid for visitors to carry away. He contracted the disease, and returned to his farm about New Year's day, and soon he was taken ill. . . . The discharges from the sick man were thrown without disinfection upon the snow, only a few feet from the stream, and on ground declining in that direction. In March a warm thaw came on, washed the dejecta, with its hibernating typhoid germs, into the stream, and on into the public water supply. The disease, after its usual period of incubation (after the thaw), broke out among the citizens with great virulence."

The organism under consideration has been spoken of as exceedingly minute. It is thus able to float in the air, as water, when reduced to the state of vapour, floats in air. And in fact it is with the vapour which is constantly ascending from all moist places—as well cesspits as others—that it rises up. This exemplifies what is called a miasm. The exhalations which cause agues are of a similar kind; they consist of the watery vapour drawn up from the earth when the latter contains the organism which causes ague, which the vapour carries up with it so that it can be breathed in by man.

Whether when taken in from the air the organism of typhoid enters the body by way of the lungs (or after interception in the nose or elsewhere, is swallowed, so that it really enters by the stomach), is a detail which seems of little practical importance.

Not by any hazardous speculation, but by consideration of facts in nature which have gradually been revealed by the careful observations of many thoughtful men, continued during many years, this knowledge is arrived at:—That the poison of typhoid is derived always from the bodies of persons suffering from this fever; that it is cast off in the bowel excretions of such persons; that it can increase in accumulations of human excreta and in water to which it finds access; that thence, either by way of the air or of water (or, in gross cases, food) it does pass to the bodies of healthy persons; and that there it renews its vigour, increases vastly, is thrown off by the bowels again in large quantity, and so, after re-entering air or water, passes to man again in unbroken series.

The series is unbroken, but it is not uninterrupted. The organism referred to is of vegetable nature, and it may therefore be expected to show seasons of activity which will correspond with the annual recurrence of climatic conditions most favourable to this kind of crop. Accordingly, while typhoid is everywhere most prevalent in the autumn, here it is active during the months from November to June, but most active as a rule from February to May. There is now no entire cessation of attacks in any month of the year in Sydney; but there is no epidemic prevalence during the colder months. At that time it seems that the organism as a rule lies dormant, to revive at a more favourable season.

Nevertheless many people are puzzled to account, on the lines described above, for the outbreaks of this fever occasionally witnessed in isolated situations. To them study of the following passage, from the "Geographical and Historical Pathology" of Professor Hirsch, may be commended:—

"And the proof of the communicability of typhoid furnishes an answer decidedly in the negative to the question of the autochthonous origin of the typhoid virus, for everyone who holds, as a principle hitherto unshaken, the specificity of the acute infective diseases, and the corresponding specificity of the morbid poison proper to each. . . . There are, no doubt, many observations on the occurrence of isolated cases of typhoid, or on the outbreak of epidemics, in which no conveyance or importation of the disease from without could be ascertained. Observations of that kind must be always received with scepticism, inasmuch as it is often notoriously difficult to trace and to unmask the ways of conveyance of a disease, especially where intercourse is of the more active kind. Still, there are many observations to which this is not applicable, especially those relating to the occurrence of the disease in districts with very limited means of communication, or with a scanty and widely spread population, where the facts are easily controlled, and error as much as possible excluded.* Of this class are the data of Metcalfe for Norfolk Island, Maclean for Ascension, Lange for Greenland, Hjaltelin and others for Iceland, and Ripley for the Fiji Islands. But even in these and similar cases I find no sufficient reason for assuming a spontaneous origin of the morbid poison. I am rather inclined to think that we are here concerned with the quickening of the germs of disease which had remained long latent; and this conjecture seems to be all the more justified that other infective diseases, such as cholera, yellow fever, plague, and the like, are known to exhibit the same behaviour. There is this difference, however, that, in contrast to the ubiquitous diffusion of typhoid, these are indigenous only at a few points of the globe, the poisons proper to them being able to survive outside their habitat for a relatively short time, and speedily perishing; so that, unlike typhoid, the disease, when it reappears, presupposes a fresh importation of the morbid poison."

Typhoid fever is thus shown to be essentially a local disease; and accordingly even its epidemic manifestations are local too. They are seen in parts of cities; they are witnessed in single houses, and even in single rooms. A moderate number of mild cases may be met with in one town, while in another, not far distant, the disease is raging with frightful violence. Whole countries, or very large districts, do not suffer almost uniformly from typhoid as they sometimes do from measles or whooping-cough, scarlet-fever

* With certainty, then, not possible—

fever or sunaipox. The establishment of this purely local character for typhoid is one of the many triumphs of preventive medicine; for, as it shows that the disease is spread, not so much by man as by his reckless habits and his ill-judged contrivances, so it shows that by proper measures taken it may be entirely prevented.

Of the means by which typhoid fever spreads.

Typhoid is included among the so-called filth diseases, because its spread depends on the entrance to the human body of the diseased excreta of other human beings. It may now be inquired how so disgusting an event can happen; and how it happens in Sydney, not occasionally, but almost every day and in all neighbourhoods, may be shown.

The one essential condition of spread just mentioned exists when water, air, or food to be used by man becomes specifically, or in this particular way, infected. Excepting milk, food can become thus polluted only by the grossest carelessness and uncleanliness. This seems obvious; and although it is seen to happen oftener than may be supposed, it is therefore unnecessary to say more about it here. The case with the other fluids is different. Air and water are everywhere; they are above the earth, where they are seen and felt by all; but they are also beneath or in the earth. Wherever there is a thickness of earth its interstices are filled near the surface with air; and then at a depth, which is different in different places, they are filled with water. When a well is dug water is not got until a depth of soil has been passed through; in this the particles of earth are permeated with air only. A little lower, and water begins to run into the pit, or, as it is said, "water is reached." At this level the interstices of the earth are filled with water. Air and water are always in motion. In the earth they are not fixed; and clearly if it were not so, a well could not be made. The shaft would yield dry earth at first, and then it would yield moist earth; but when the moist stratum had been excavated and a bottom found on rock or shale or dense clay, it would remain a mere hole in the ground without contents if the water in the soil were fixed there and could not flow. But, in fact, every such shaft when it is sunk in a suitable situation does fill up with water to about the height in it at which the moist layer of earth was met with in excavating; and this proves that the water in the earth, which is not seen until it is uncovered, is always travelling through it in the direction of fall, resting on the underlying impervious layer, very much as it is seen to run in rivers and streams on the earth's surface. Nor is the air any more fixed than the water—it is always moving too, but in its own way; it is always ascending, and always being replaced by fresh air, which descends from the atmosphere.

There are places of course where there is no water in the earth except during rainy weather—those are spots where the layer of earth over some impervious layer is not thick enough to save the water from speedy evaporation; and there are also places where there is no air in the earth. When, for instance, from the form taken by the impervious layer, a great thickness of earth is held in it, as in a cup, the water can then neither run off nor thoroughly evaporate from it; and thus a marsh or swamp is formed. Again, in Sydney some wells are found which have been sunk in the rock. They are bottomed on the same layer of rock, and yet keep full of water. In these cases examination would show faults in the rock—cracks or crevices—and the water would be seen to issue from these cracks. If such a crack were traced it would be found (at perhaps a great distance) to be overlaid with a stratum of earth, containing water, which it drains off to the reservoir, carrying it as in a pipe.

Air and water in this situation are called "ground-air" and "ground-water" respectively. They have received a distinctive name because they have distinctive qualities. These qualities are those of the earth through which they travel. The air takes up the gases, some of the water, and the minute organisms which the earth contains, and carries them to the upper air, with which, as already mentioned, they find access to the lungs of man. The water can dissolve some of the constituents of the earth: thus mineral springs are formed. All water falls from the clouds, and is alike pure originally. But if it fall upon earth containing soluble salts, for example, it takes them up; and when a well is sunk so as to intercept it, or when it naturally appears at the surface again, it is found to be saline, and pure water no longer. In the same way it can take up soluble filth.

In order to discover ground-water it is not necessary always to dig wells. As has just been mentioned, owing to the lay of the country, it sometimes comes to the surface naturally, when it is called a spring, and it is from the same source that rivers receive their constant stream, their flood-waters being in great measure what is called surface-water. Nor must the ground-water be thought of in its condensed state, as water, alone. It evaporates or assumes the condition of vapour; then it rises from the earth, and if it thus rise under a building it again becomes visible as what is called "damp," or is demonstrated by the occurrence of "moulds" or "fungus," organisms which cannot grow without a good supply of moisture. Many houses which are thought to be dry because the walls look sound may be shown to be damp by raising any floor-cloth which is laid on the ground floor and observing that its under surface is covered with blue mould. If the air under the floor were dry the mould could not grow.

Ground-air and ground-water, then, have special characters which warrant their designation by these special names, and these characters are in greater or less degree those of that composite material which, for convenience, is briefly called earth. It cannot be necessary to speak in detail of the putrescible matters which, in inhabited places, may and do find their way into the earth. Foul water, when it is cast out, sinks into it; foul solids are washed into it by rain; or filth, which is perhaps carefully buried in order that its more obvious offensiveness may be got rid of, remains there slowly putrefying with the assistance of the ground-air and ground-water, rendering them poisonous. And when on earth thus defiled houses are built, the heat of the houses sucks up the air and aqueous vapour, and their inhabitants fall out of health or actually ill; and similar results follow when water is taken from wells or imperfectly constructed water-tanks sunk so as to tap the under-stream of befouled ground-water. This is always happening in ill-constructed houses in cities; it is always happening in and around Sydney. Man's elaborate and expensive methods of getting rid of the refuse of daily life are stupidly supplemented by man by elaborate and expensive arrangements, which make sure that that refuse shall return to him again, and with fatal effect.

It must not be forgotten that the subjects here alluded to are at present regarded solely from the stand-point afforded by the conditions of house life. Air (with moisture) is the great purifier; and the purifying processes, which are in part vital and in part chemical, go on well beneath the earth. Filth of all kinds gives off foul smells, and these are reduced or banished when the matters producing them are carefully buried. Man is naturally led, therefore, to bury filth, and generally and practically speaking that is the best, just as it seems the natural way of disposing of it. In the earth it gradually decomposes; it is there converted into its elementary constituents, which are not only harmless, but necessary to the continuance of life. This is generally true; but whether this plan shall be unattended with harm depends entirely upon its being completely followed out. From want of attention to the few elementary natural facts above described, very much sickness and death have resulted, and are now being caused. Men are slow to perceive that even in burying filth, to get rid of it they are in reality only taking pains to ensure its return to them if they bury it where it is able to pollute the streams of ground-air and of ground-water which presently are to flow into their houses or into their tanks. Still, the natural processes of purification always go on in the earth to the extent of the opportunity; if it were not so the burial or exposure of filth in the neighbourhood of dwellings would be infinitely more fatal than it is. If, however, after thus referring to filth in general terms attention be turned to such filth as is specifically poisoned with the cause of typhoid, a most important exception to these general statements falls to be noted. The organised living cause of this disease is not always killed by the processes of natural filtration; it can pass unharmed through great thicknesses of earth and appear, active and fatal, at the other side.

The bad influences of ground-air and ground-water are very well known. Even when they are pure, wise people take precautions to exclude them from their houses. They underdrain the site, they insert a damp-course in the walls, and they take care that the basement thus kept dry is thoroughly well ventilated. If there is reason to suspect the purity of the soil of the site, they even adopt special modes of construction. It is true that there are not here many who are thus wise; however, on the other hand, there is a large incidence of preventable illness. Impurity of site and improper construction together may manifest themselves by the repeated occurrence of definite kinds of sickness, such as typhoid or diphtheria, or diarrhæal diseases, and the like; but they do so more constantly by causing a general debility and pallor—by a lowering of the constitutional powers. This in itself is a sufficiently serious thing. People who are not quite well cannot do their work so well, and they cannot produce a healthy offspring; much less can they rear the latter healthy, if indeed they rear them at all. But even if actually incapacitating illness be not caused, the low state of health induced, besides being marked by the more or less frequent occurrence of the slighter ailments, places the sufferer entirely at the mercy of any cause of specific disease (such as typhoid, or diphtheria, or scarlet fever) which may gain access to him. The power of resisting these causes enjoyed by the healthy body has already been referred to. In fact, it cannot be doubted that not infrequently all men in towns must inhale the causes of some of these diseases; and it is certain that all the persons who have the chance of inhaling, and who probably do inhale them, nevertheless are not struck down by them. These resist in virtue of their general good health; but when this is undermined by breathing impure air (to mention one among many causes) they are robbed of their defence, and are overcome at the first attack.

Forty years ago the Right Honorable Sir Lyon Playfair, K.C.B., F.R.S., was a member of the Health of Towns Commission in England. He relates how puzzled he was at first to find out the haunts of fever in strange towns without undue loss of time; and how at last a friend suggested that he should visit the public schools and examine the children. "Find out where the sickly looking children live," said his adviser; "there you will find the fever-stricken spots you are seeking to abolish." And so useful did he find this hint that thereafter he began his investigations by going first to the schools.

It has seemed necessary to devote thus much space to the subject of ground-air and ground-water, because the facts of house-life everywhere observable in Sydney—and not in Sydney or in New South Wales alone, but in Australasia—show that it is either not generally understood, or else neglected. But it must be remembered that both air and water above the earth may be fouled as well, and become active and efficient carriers of disease. In examples mentioned above poisonous matter was cast respectively into a river and into a well from which drinking water was supplied. Those instances are taken from English and American experience because communication to the same convincing extent by that mode has not yet been observed on this side of the world. So also it may be mentioned that pollution of the upper air by sewer-gas passing from foul sewers into the houses to which they are connected, without the precautions known to be necessary to prevent that accident, is perhaps best exemplified on the large scale by the case of the town of Worthing in 1865 and of Croydon in the same year; which was there a very wet one.

In a report to the Medical Officer of the Privy Council, Dr. Buchanan said, after remarking that notwithstanding the adoption of sewers there had been actually an increase of typhoid in those towns—"In the case of Worthing the defect of the outfall arrangement was most serious, and in the absence of other exits sewer-gas had demonstrably been forced into houses, and outbreaks of typhoid had occurred as the demonstrable result thereof." So in speaking of Croydon, after showing that during the period 1845-50 there were more deaths from typhoid by two-thirds than during the period 1857-64, when a sewerage system was in full operation, he refers to the sudden and serious outbreak of 1865, and shows that in that case too it was due to the demonstrable forcing into the houses from the unventilated sewers of the sewer-gas at two particular times of very heavy rain.

Nevertheless, for examples of both modes of the spread of typhoid by pollution of air or water, it is not necessary to refer to remote parts of the world. The City of Sydney is served at present with old, ill-constructed sewers, entirely without ventilation; and the sewer-gas, which has no other means of escape, is constantly forcing its way past the inefficient syphon-traps which are improperly relied upon to exclude it, into privies and into houses. Were it not that many houses in Sydney have no drain connection within their walls—the closet being often in the yard, where also is a yard-gully to take slop-water, bath-wastes, moreover, often discharging on the yard surface and so not communicating with the sewers, fever would be much more common, and the mortality from other causes would be higher in the city even than it is. Among the examples to be presently given, of the several ways in which typhoid spreads here, will be found one or more instances of this way. But the air may be polluted so as to cause diseases by the emanations from masses of filth. Such masses are found in cesspits among other places, although they need not be so large as is contained in a cesspit. A dirty pan-closet—one which is emptied week after week by roughly tumbling its contents out into the night-cart, without an attempt to cleanse it—if it once receive typhoid excreta, may probably acquire the power of spreading the fever through the air. The matter which adheres after the kind of emptying described ferments the newly added matter. The process is similar to that which would happen if one were foolish enough to be satisfied with emptying a milk vessel without scalding it; fresh milk would become sour in it in an hour. Yet pan-closets in Sydney are thus emptied from week to week, without any adequate attempt to cleanse them after each emptying. Of this mode of spread also an example is given. However, a pan-closet is less likely to be hurtful than a cesspit: first, because, at all events, it does not contaminate the ground-air and ground-water; secondly, because, although it may be imperfectly emptied, yet it is emptied at comparatively short intervals—its contents are diluted, and it neither gives off such volumes of foul air, nor is it so putrid. But these poor advantages are often nullified by the very Councils who enforce the adoption of pans. Often, in the poorer neighbourhoods, they neglect to empty them. In consequence the people have to do this themselves, and they managed it by taking the contents far enough perhaps from their own homes, but of necessity still in the neighbourhood (judging by the facilities for the subsoil water to flow in the direction of neighbouring houses or of neighbouring sources of water) of other people's dwellings. Examples of this mode are also given. Still because upon the whole the pan-closet saves the soil from pollution it is a great and valuable improvement on the cesspit. The following instances of the several modes in which typhoid is spread are selected from a large number of cases which have been examined for the Board of Health from time to time during the past three or four years, by the Chief Medical Inspector, and recorded in the Health Department.

Examples of the spread of typhoid by pollution of air.

The first example to be referred to of this mode is the Gowrie-street case, the subject of this Report. Its causes and the manner in which they operated, will now, it may be hoped, be clearly understood.

By cesspits. Case 1.—The family E., which consisted of the parents, a niece aged 14, and three children between the ages of 5 years and 3 months, lived at Balmain in a cottage furnished with a cesspit. The family M. (Mrs. E. being one of its members) lived in a house in Underwood-street, Paddington, also furnished with a cesspit. It consisted of the parents, aged 65 and 55, Richard aged 30, John aged 25, Samuel aged 22, and Martha aged 20. At the end of September, 1885, Mrs. E. fell ill of typhoid at Balmain; the baby at the middle of October. Mrs. E. died about the middle of October, and about October 28 the rest of the family removed to join the M. family at Underwood-street. At this time their niece was sickening, and she suffered at Underwood-street from a very severe attack. Twenty-three days later, E.'s baby died, the cause being ascribed to convulsions; but in the meantime Martha M. and two others of E.'s children began to suffer from comparatively slight illness, which was however protracted. The same day the E.'s baby died, Samuel M. was attacked; and he died after nineteen days. John M. was taken ill also on the same date; and Richard twenty-six days after the E. family arrived in Underwood-street; the latter died after long illness. The condition of the house in Underwood-street is thus described. "The house is a sufficiently good brick house in a short terrace, having five rooms on two floors; the size of the allotment is about 12½ feet by 50. Water is laid on from the main to a stand-pipe over a gully which has no trap, and which communicates with a 6-inch earthenware pipe which issues in the gutter of Little Underwood-street, 50 or 60 yards away. A bucket of clean water thrown down this gully issued from the drain with all the appearance of sewage. At the bottom of the yard, and about 30 feet from the house, is a cesspit. The Ms. have been living here about nine months; they say that it was full when they came, and that they have unsuccessfully made four attempts to get it emptied. It is now full, and both from its not having overflowed long ago, and from the consistency of its contents there can be be no doubt that the more fluid portions drain through the imperfect brickwork into the surrounding soil. At the foot of the yard is a little lane or passage 2 or 3 feet wide, which leads to Little Underwood-street. It is covered from end to end with all sorts of garbage. From this and from the cesspit abominable smells were arising. The town water is said to be turned on for so short a time each day that it is not possible to save enough for use. There is no underground source. In Underwood-street, about 30 feet from the front of this house, there are gullies in the gutter which communicate with a sewer which here crosses the street running in the direction of Cascade-street. These gullies are untrapped; a 14-inch glazed pipe descends straight into the sewer, and from this a sickening stench issued. A little further to the west, on the opposite side, is a vacant lot, on which the backs of houses in Victoria-street abut, and from these houses streams of filthy slop water issue, which collect and soak into the allotment. These puddles of putrid liquid have in them islands composed of garbage."

Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered that a fatal form of fever should spread when once it was introduced. It is not known where Mrs. E. got the contagion; perhaps from some friend's cess-pit or well or underground tank. But as soon as the E.'s cesspit was infected the disease spread among that family, and as soon as they conveyed the poison to Underwood-street it spread among the Ms. The filthy surroundings had so lowered their vitality that they fell an easy prey to the fever as soon as the specific contagion was added; but the grandparents escaped, because old people enjoy a certain degree of immunity from this illness.

Case 2.—The T. family had lived in Wells-street, Redfern, for two years, when, during April, 1886, typhoid attacked them. The family consisted of the parents, and twelve children from 23 years of age downwards, and there was also a young man, a lodger. Emily, aged 23, who went out to work every day, fell ill during April; she stayed at home and recovered; Edith, aged 3, and Jessie, aged 14, fell ill in the middle of June; they were removed to the Children's and to Prince Alfred Hospital respectively and both recovered. Mabel, aged 3 months fell sick next and died. Mrs. T. was attacked about the end of June and died. A few days later Sydney, aged 7, fell ill; he was removed to the Children's Hospital and recovered, but Florence, aged 9, who had fallen sick about the same time as the last, was removed to Prince Alfred Hospital and died there. The other members escaped. The house was of brick, and one of a long terrace. There was no drain opening within the house. Town water was laid on, and there was no underground source. At the bottom of the small yard was a cesspit. This had been emptied once before the illness at an early period of T.'s occupation. As soon as the first case occurred, T., who was aware of the danger, requested the landlord to have it emptied, and thenceforward reminded him of it every Monday morning. The latter, however, told T. as often that he had requested the Council to attend to the matter; but they neglected it so that at the date of report it still remained full. The report concludes by observing "that at the back of these premises is a 10-foot lane which has never been formed, and which is in a state which may be called disgraceful. The cesspit of the next house in Wells-street, which abuts on this lane, is broken, and the soil runs out on this public way. I am informed that this damage happened during late heavy rains; but no steps to repair it have yet been taken."

This example bears a very close resemblance to the first. Filthy surroundings, although they may have induced ill-health, did not (as far as was ascertainable) cause disabling illness until the first case of fever had been produced by outside contagion. When that patient had nearly recovered it began to spread through the household rapidly.

Case 3.—This occurred at 54, Hanover Terrace, Union-street, Macdonaldtown, about August, 1887. The family C., after living in the country, came to Sydney and resided at this address for less than two months. It consisted of the parents and four children. Five of them were admitted for typhoid fever to Prince Alfred's and one to the Children's Hospital; but owing to their illness further particulars could not be then got. They had, however, been much too long in Sydney to have brought the fever with them; and the place they came to is circumstanced practically as is Gowrie-street, close to which it lies, and on part of the same area of made ground. The house has a cesspit. Town water is laid on, and there is no underground source.

In the next instance it seems most probable that the spread occurred by means of the filthy pan-closet; emptied, but uncleaned, as abovementioned.

Case 4.—Five persons out of a family of six or seven were attacked in a weatherboard house on the Parramatta Road, in the district of Camperdown. At the back was an old excavation in which garbage was still being cast; possibly the house was built on a former deposit of the same kind. Town water was laid on; the closet was a pan. The surroundings being rendered filthy, the first case probably contracted the illness outside; then it spread from that by way of the foul closet-pan, through the air of the privy.

These are examples of spread by specific fouling of the upper air in privies. Fouling of the ground air as well was ensured by the non-removal of filth, and this helped to make the attacks of the fever certain and deadly. But the foul air need not come from just that source. An example of poisoning by the air of an open sewer is given next.

By an open sewer. Case 5.—Over an open sewer in Redfern stood an hotel. There was nothing between the stream of sewage and the air of the house except ordinary joists and ordinary flooring-boards which bridged the channel. This open ditch received drainage from the neighbourhood of Wells-street, Redfern, taking its origin, indeed, near the house mentioned in case 2. The tenant, after he had been in occupation no more than nine weeks, reported that a lodger had recently been removed to hospital with typhoid fever, and that his daughter, aged 11, then lay ill of the same disease (May, 1886). He also said that he had learned that the tenant before him had recently lost a son there from typhoid. He complained of the smell of the sewer, which in favourable states of weather filled the house during the day, and always filled it when it was closed for the night. How many other cases may have arisen among casual lodgers in this house of public entertainment there are no means of knowing.

But

But sewer-air is more deadly and more effectually introduced to houses when they are improperly connected with closed sewers. Several examples might be adduced, being essentially the same (though on a small scale) as the great outbreaks in England above alluded to.

By closed sewers. Case 6.—Another public-house in the city was inspected recently, three cases of fever in the tenant's family having been removed to one of the hospitals. The house is a tolerably good one, and as far as superficial cleanliness goes, is kept in excellent order. But there are two water-closets in confined situations, and the kitchen, which is in the basement, has in one corner a common yard-gully. This communicates with the city sewer, and the work was done two years ago by the present tenant. The house is not cut off from the sewer by any air-disconnector; perhaps there is a syphon-trap on the house sewer, but the Board of Health has at present no authority to make the necessary investigations fully. This, however, is not an efficient protection; and it is certain that the heat of the fire assists the expulsive force of gases confined in the unventilated sewer and makes sure that they enter the kitchen, and thence the house. This then is the most probable source of the fever mentioned. (January, 1889.)

Examples of spread by Pollution of Water.

Under this heading are included those cases in which the fever was spread by milk; for it is almost always through polluted water that the milk acquires its deadly properties. Of this kind of cause the Leichhardt outbreak in 1886 is a well known instance.* It need not be farther referred to here than just to recall the fact that the sole supply of water to the dairy was from a well sunk in the bed of a creek, which carried the sewage of about 1,500 persons in a subsoil stream. The water, in fact, was not water at all, but sewage. Another case, which was investigated at the end of 1886 at North Shore, is not so well known. Like the Leichhardt case, this, too, exemplifies the danger which arises when Councils permit their rate-payers—or, rather, by neglect compel them—to empty their own closet-pans. It is far too intricate to be given at length here, but the following is a statement of the result of the inquiry.†

By milk (and water). Case 7.—District of St. Leonards. A cowkeeper on the Military Road, had her sole supply of water from holes in a surface channel which runs into Middle Harbour. There was an especial incidence of the fever among her customers, and there were discovered twenty-two cases in all. The banks of the creek carry a number of newly erected small huts, which are furnished with pan closets. For some reason the Council does not empty these; the tenants bury the contents on several parts of the banks of the creek; and one such place was pointed out within a few feet of the water-hole nearest to the dairy premises. (December, 1886.)

The next instance is still in progress. The circumstances, as in the last two cases, point unmistakably to the pollution of the ground-water, which the inhabitants drink, and that by the contents of closet-pans.

By water. Cases 8, 9, and 10.—District of North Willoughby: Two neighbourhoods similar in circumstances are here involved—that about Central Township and Gore Hill. The houses concerned are mostly scattered; generally they get water from underground tanks, shallow wells, or from water which springs from the rock. There are a few cesspits among them, but the majority have pan closets. These the Council does not empty, even in the usual imperfect way; it leaves the ratepayers to do this for themselves. The earth, therefore, over a large area, is penetrated by filth. This is carried by the ground water to considerable distances; and there people, feeling secure in the knowledge that their own night-soil is buried at a safe distance from their own allotment, dig shallow wells, or put in ill-constructed underground tanks. For a time the foul water thus got causes little or no illness perhaps; it is not obviously foul, or else it could not be drunk. But presently some traveller—some person who has visited another part of Sydney, and there drunk polluted water or inhaled polluted air, comes home and falls ill. Then his excreta are buried as usual; with the water they find their way to some more or less distant well, and then the fever spreads. From the district mentioned very many cases have lately been removed to hospital, and are still being removed. A similar sequence of events was investigated at Coward's Estate, Botany, in 1886.

It will be observed that it is not essential that the source of poison should always be actually on the premises where the illness occurs. Some of the houses in which persons have sickened in the last mentioned districts, have no drinking water on them except what is caught in overground tanks, and this of course is pure, or at all events free from the cause of typhoid. But the persons attacked have been travellers; they have breathed and drunk elsewhere than on their own premises, and from sources of whose purity (if they gave the matter a thought) they could not be sure.

Probably the examples given may seem to place air and water on the same footing of efficiency as media in which the typhoid poison may be spread among mankind. The fact, however, is seen to be otherwise when large numbers of cases are examined and compared: water then appears the more efficient medium of diffusion. While it is certain that the poison can be carried in and received by man from the air, there is no reason to suppose that in that medium it can long survive, or be wafted to great distances. In short, the poisoned air must be confined, and the source of its poison copious. These conditions are fulfilled when the air of sewers penetrates to sleeping-rooms, or when persons respire for some minutes within a privy, and with their mouths within 2 or 3 feet of a poisoned cess-pit.

The above instances are selected from a large number, as being exemplary; and although, the districts in which they occurred are mentioned by name, it must not be supposed that those are the only districts from which similar examples might be culled. This is so far from being the case that there is no part of Sydney, and few parts of the country (from which also some good instances which have been investigated might be mentioned—as Kiama in 1887, the neighbourhood of Stockton in 1888, Laggan in the same year, &c., &c.) in which the same causes of illness might not be found, and the same incidence of fever be seen. It is not necessary to give any of these; the fact of illness everywhere is generally known, and the above brief exposition of the ways in which typhoid may be spread, will enable the channel by which the one invariable cause came into operation in any particular case to be sought for with a chance of success. It is apparent that neglect of excrement disposal is at the bottom of all, so far as typhoid is concerned, and for that neglect Municipal Councils are chiefly responsible.

* A Report to the President of the Board of Health on an outbreak of typhoid fever in the Municipal District of Leichhardt, due to polluted milk, by J. Ashburton Thompson, M.D., Chief Medical Inspector. Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 4th May, 1886. In this document most of the causes of typhoid now described were referred to and illustrated by a different set of examples taken from several parts of Sydney. See especially pp. 11, 12, 15, 18, and 19.

Of the share taken by other kinds of filth in facilitating the spread of typhoid.

But it must be remembered that this is not the only illness caused by neglect of excrement disposal; nor, as already mentioned, must it be thought that neglect to safely remove other kinds of filth is without effect. While to these combined causes may be traced the very high infantile mortality which Sydney shows when that is due to other causes than typhoid—to summer diarrhœa, to diphtheria, to cholera, to dysentery, to convulsions, and in great measure to acute diseases of the respiratory organs—and also a part of the adult rate due to some of the same causes, it is certain that lowered states of health are thus produced, which pave the way for the inroads of specific infections, and render the body incapable of resisting them. This neglect, too, is on the shoulders of Municipal Councils; but although it is most important that scavenging of every kind should be carefully, regularly, and thoroughly done, it is not necessary to refer here to the general neglect of which so much evidence may be gained by any person choosing to pass away from main thoroughfares in comparatively good neighbourhoods to the poorer and less frequented streets, and to the yards and lanes behind them. It is not necessary to multiply specific instances such as those already mentioned under cases 1 and 2, or to name other such open spaces polluted with house-refuse as that mentioned in connection with case 1. A hundred such could be given. Yet there are particularly atrocious examples in which the fatal neglect to safely dispose of street sweepings and house-refuse is supplemented by the greed of individual landlords—cases in which the latter make their money out of the flesh and blood of the poor—and these must be referred to. Very many houses in Newtown and Macdonaldtown, as well as in other parts of Sydney, are flagrant instances of this kind of abuse. Houses cannot well be built in a clay-pit; it must be filled first. Plainly it ought to be filled with clean earth, and this is sometimes done; but clean earth or building refuse costs money, while Councils will gladly on request tip as much house refuse there as an unscrupulous landlord desires. This is so common a practice, as well in the city of Sydney as in the suburbs and some country towns, and is so fraught with danger, that some space must be devoted to it here, although it seems somewhat aside of the main subject of this report: for it is only apparently aside of it. It has been more than once remarked already that pollution of upper and under air in this way produces ill-health and works in with the more definite causes of illness.

The kind of filth now to be referred to is comprehended under the term “house refuse and street sweepings.” Street sweepings, which consist for the most part of road detritus, when they are removed from town roads, contain from 30 to 40 per cent. of horsedung.

The putrefying excreta of animals do not greatly differ in their general effects upon health from putrefying human excreta, and the mere surface-cleansing of streets has again and again been seen to exercise a favourable influence on the health of the adjacent inhabitants. The Traction on Roads Committee of the Society of Arts (London, 1875), after observing that the dirty skins of children in the cities of England are not due to coal-smoke, as is most generally believed, but to street-filth, and that the result of carefully and regularly washing dirty children has been seen to be favourable in proportion to the filthy origin of the dirt, in its report records a special example in which serious illness was caused, both among teachers and children, when the latter, being thus dirty, were collected in numbers in school-rooms, and in which the illness ceased as soon as the precaution of washing the children before allowing lessons to begin was adopted.

Garbage or house refuse consists of ashes, bones, dead animals, disused bedding, decayed fruit and fragments of vegetable matter, broken meat, pieces of textile fabrics which have served their turn, paper, and the thousand-and-one odds and ends produced by the wear and tear of civilized life. When these things are collected in heaps they form a mass of loose texture; air permeates it very freely; its constituents slowly putrefy, and by their decomposition great heat is evolved. At first such heaps are penetrated by rats; but after a few weeks or months the heat becomes too great for them, and they leave it. While putrefaction is going on—and the process lasts until the last shred of putrescible matter is resolved—an especially offensive odour is given off; an odour which is more penetrating, more “faint,” and more repulsive, than that of many substances which, from their origin, might be expected to smell worse. Water which flows through such a heap issues from it with all the characters of sewage; and when the heap is cut into—more especially if it have been confined by casting into an excavation and covering with earth than if it has been merely piled on the surface—it gives off vapours which frequently cause sudden illness.

An instance of the latter event occurred not long ago in Sydney. When men were set to construct a sewer through the valley formerly called Blackwattle Swamp in 1886, it was found that a large part of the site was made up with house-garbage; and when it was cut into many of the workmen suffered from severe diarrhoea and fever, and were from time to time compelled to leave off working there.

These putrescible and dangerous materials are the ordinary refuse of town life. People cannot suffer them in the streets and houses, and accordingly it is one of the duties of local authorities, of Municipal Councils, to collect and dispose of them. Nearly everywhere they are thus collected, the cost being defrayed out of the general rate; and it may for the present be assumed that this collection is regularly and carefully carried out.

By a remarkable oversight the law does not authorise any special rate to be struck for this work, nor provide for charging it to the account of any other; its indispensable nature, however, is taken to justify any irregularity there may be in the manner in which it is paid for. This should be borne in mind in considering charges of neglect to scavenge house-refuse thoroughly; there is neglect which should be promptly amended, but there is also some excuse for it. The case of disposal is quite different; and when this is in any degree so managed as to cause the accumulation of this refuse in populous places or to encourage its use on building sites, no excuse whatever can be found for so deadly a proceeding.

But what is done with the accumulating material? Occasionally it is taken to certain recognized depôts. There are not many of these; perhaps that at Mount Rennie is the only one. There have been such depôts in many places which, doubtless, once were distant from dwellings, but now are covered by them. There is on that part of the old water reserve, which adjoins Botany-street, Randwick, a large mound of garbage—and it was there while that reserve was still the source of water for Sydney. From reports made to the Medical Adviser in June, 1886, it appears that a large natural hollow on the eastern side of the tram-line at Moore Park, and on the water reserve, was then being filled up with garbage either cast there direct, or removed there from Mount Rennie; that near the banks of Nannygoat Pond many loads of garbage had been cast and were there lying; and that a very large tract of the sand in the same neighbourhood was being covered with half-decayed garbage removed from the Mount Rennie depôt (the offensive smell from which was complained of in the newspapers of the day). Also it appears from a report made in the same year to the President of the Board of Health, on a complaint from the inhabitants of Dowling-street, that a cart-track was being formed over a sandy place with similar material removed from the same tips, to the annoyance of the neighbouring residents. A still more serious abuse was reported on in 1885. In this case a pair of good semi-detached houses were being built, of which the rent would probably be not less than £150 a year apiece. Good houses already occupied the opposite side of the road. The new houses were to be built at a point where the road ran along the edge of an abrupt fall of some 15 or 20 feet. For three or four months carts tipped large quantities of house refuse there. The report says:—

Retaining walls built on each side of the tipped garbage hold it up; and the foundations are excavated between them. The tip extends back a few feet beyond the rear of the houses and ends there in a bank some seven or eight feet high. . . . In front, at the road the garbage is as deep as the cliff mentioned; it slopes down at the back, and is not so deep there. . . . The foundations are run down through the garbage to the rock; they are buried in it to the depths indicated—more or less, because the surface has been covered with sand. These foundations are made of rubble work; the cells formed by them in the basement and corresponding with the rooms above have been filled of garbage. This site gives off an odour of putrefaction which is highly offensive.

The Board drew attention to this case, and certain things were done by way of remedy. The houses, however, remained planted in the garbage which was not removed; and indeed on inspection it was observed that the directed improvements were utterly unavailing. When those houses came to be inhabited, and were closed for the night, they must in accordance with natural laws have drawn air into themselves through the garbage; but whether illness were caused or not is not known, for in such cases the Board has no power to enter nor means of making inquiry. It is therefore not such miserable tenements as those in Newtown and Macdonaldtown alone which are exposed to this danger. Another place where many houses are said to be founded on garbage is Blackwattle. In another case in the latter neighbourhood a report made under the Dairies Supervision Act in 1887, shows that a very irregular paddock fronting to Darling-street was then being made up by tipping street-sweepings on it, of which many hundred loads had already been spread out. In this stuff horse-dung was so large an ingredient that it seemed to consist of that diluted with mud. Attention was called to the matter by the Board of Health, and tipping ceased for about three weeks; it was then resumed, and the work was finished as it had been begun. On this, too, no doubt, houses will be by-and-bye built. But the city is far from being the only district within which the same kind of thing may be seen. In August, 1886, from a report made to the Medical Adviser on a complaint by an aggrieved resident, it appears that very large quantities of garbage were being accumulated on a part of the Allen Estate, in the district of the Glebe, so as to continue Wigram-street across the bay there. A very great part of the work having been done, on representations being made to the Council (and publicity being given to the matter by the press), the tipping of garbage was stopped, and the work was "finished" by covering this filth with clean earth. At the present date the road is partly completed, and it is said that its frontages are for sale at a high rate. But it runs as a causeway across the bay on which the houses must rest, and by just so much as the foundations in front touch the side of the causeway will the buildings draw in foul ground-air from it. In March, 1887, on complaint of residents in Leichhardt, a report was made on a deposit of garbage on the south side of Chester-street, Camperdown. The vacant lot, which at the point complained of is bounded by that street, was very irregular; a very large amount of garbage was accumulated there, "apparently," as the report says, "to make the surface good for building purposes." At this date no building has been done—as in the last case the work has been finished by covering with clean earth, and the lot now looks very well for the purpose mentioned. The ground-air, however, is full of the gases of putrefaction, and nothing but a layer of concrete can keep it out of any houses which may be built either on it or abutting on it.

From what has been said above it will be seen that it is not necessary that a house should stand actually on garbage in order that the health of the inhabitants may be injuriously affected by it. The heat of houses causes an updraught of air from the ground on which they stand; and the vacuum is filled by air drawn from the surrounding soil not under the house. This air will be foul if the surrounding soil from which it is drawn be foul. So, also, the ground-water which flows under houses will be polluted if it first flow through a deposit of garbage; but in this case the deposit may be at a much greater distance than in the former, and yet harmful.

It is surely needless to multiply examples of this kind of abuse—the more that the older inhabitants of Sydney must be well aware of very many others now difficult to discover by an examination which does not include excavation. They would not be difficult to discover, however, if the mortality returns enabled the rates in comparatively small areas to be compared, and the necessity for thorough local examinations to be thus indicated. At present it is only when some such sudden outbreak as that now going on in the neighbourhood of Gowrie-street happens that a particular neighbourhood is obviously singled out by death; but when this does occur some of the faults indicated above are sure to be discovered, and to be discovered without any difficulty. Disease, however, does not most commonly work its ravages by series of attacks of explosive violence; it rather operates quietly and steadily, and thus secures its myriad victims. It cannot be disputed, therefore, that the vital statistics of the country should be reported upon by its chief health authority. By this means alone can those who are able to point out the causes of disease get the local knowledge which would enable them to give the returns a practical value, by showing from them which of the deaths may be justly considered preventable, in what localities such deaths chiefly occur, and why they do not occur elsewhere—whenafter it would be possible to say what, specifically, is necessary to be done to prevent continued loss of life from that kind of cause in the future. For want of this organization the mortality returns are at present mere records of past events. They may be perused, and then their tale must be lamented; but thereafter they are useless, save as a memento mori—as a warning that next year and for ever the like causes will produce a like effect. To all humane observers, a sufficiently dreary outlook, it may be supposed. —

In places where the prevention of disease is understood to be a practical possibility, attainable to all peoples who determine that a good deal of commonplace and rather dirty work shall, under skilled supervision, be done with steadfast thoroughness, the plan just referred to is usually carried out. It involves, however, great attention to details which are far beyond the public view; and a condition precedent in a population so much influenced by migration as that of New South Wales, is the taking of a rough annual enumeration of the population. This should not be one to supersede the decennial census, but should consist only of the number, sex, and ages of the people and the number of houses they live in. The Right Worshipful the Mayor of Sydney (Mr. Alderman John Harris), with excellent good sense, has seen the urgent necessity for means of comparing district rates, and was said a short time ago to have wished to map the city into small areas for this purpose. Probably, however, the division into wards is as small as can be employed without the risk of introducing a source of error. His most worthy intention would be quite well fulfilled, as far as the city is concerned, if only he would direct annually the rough enumeration indicated, and if the Registrar-General should co-operate by using especial care to procure the registration of births and deaths within the wards to which they really belong. This might be done with comparatively little expense by the officers who annually compile the Rate Roll; or it might be done by the officers of police who annually compile the Electoral Roll. Simple, however, as this plan is, and quite invaluable as the result, in conjunction with a careful system of registration, would be, it cannot be fully utilized—not fully utilized—until all Municipal Councils number the houses in their districts uniformly, and until the repetition of the same name for different streets in different but often adjacent districts is forbidden. Probably inquiry of the police would elicit evidence of the very great importance for several other reasons of amendment in this matter; but it may be mentioned, for example, that in the course of the present inquiry it was found impossible to mark on the appended map the position of houses from which hospital cases have been removed, even approximately. The area is small, the number of streets is small, and the number of cases small; but because the houses are most irregularly numbered, and because of repetitions of the same street name in the two districts, it was found that the several dwellings could not be marked down without a very tedious personal inquiry made in each case.

The conclusion of this matter may be stated in few words, if it be wished to single out the persons who are responsible. Municipal Councils are the only bodies who become possessed of large quantities of garbage; landlords who acquire irregular sites which are useless until they are levelled or "made up" are the only persons who can put it to profitable use—profitable to themselves, that is, if they do not occupy the houses they build on it; otherwise fatal to them, as they must observe it to be to their unsuspecting tenants. In committing this crime, therefore, two parties are concerned, both of whom must be considered in attempting to prevent its continued perpetration.

Of the Duties of Municipal Councils.

When outbreaks of illness of certain kinds occur, the Executive Government steps in and does whatever seems most necessary, or, at the least, specially advises and directs the action of Municipal Councils; but it is not by such outbreaks—not, at all events, by such as have hitherto happened—that very great damage to the progress of the country is done. This has been, and is being, caused by the sickness and mortality which are always going on, and which are due to such preventable diseases as typhoid fever, rather than to the occasional visitations of some other kinds of illness which seem more formidable because they are less accustomed. Now, this everyday sickness—which causes Sydney, fortunately placed as she is, to have (for example) a rate of infantile mortality of 173 on an average of the ten years 1876-85, while with its many disadvantages London's rate for the same period was only 160—is reducible chiefly by faithful performance of that work which is called "nuisance-removal." This is the especial duty of Municipal Councils; and if any neighbourhood is to be kept moderately healthy, it must be by the daily, almost the hourly, removal of nuisances. Councils then are, de facto, the working health-authorities of the country. They, and no others, have the greatest power for good or ill over the public health and over national progress. But, in the performance of this part of their most important duties they are practically left to themselves; and however capable and well-meaning they may be—and here there is no intention of detracting from them—it must not be forgotten that they are elected by their immediate neighbours to regulate local affairs. It is possible, therefore, that they sometimes find themselves not so free to act in right ways as the law assumes they are. However that may be, it is at all events not doubtful that in some cases they would welcome the support in proper courses of action contemplated by them which they would derive if they were known to be in some degree subject to supervision; and if, on appeal, it were competent for the Government to step in and remove the local obstruction with which they were hampered. In matters described above it is clear that these bodies have in the past disregarded, and are now disregarding, their duties to a fatal extent.

PART III.

THE PREVENTION OF TYPHOID.

This subject is here dealt with from the standpoint of State-medicine. Personal precautions, and destruction of the excreta of individual fever cases are matters for the practising physician to advise upon, and for domestic management to carry out. They are most important; but in practice they cannot be brought under State control.

The essentials.

The matters which are within control of the State, and which, if they were provided for, would reduce the importance of typhoid fever as a drag upon national progress to a minimum, are two—efficient excrement removal, and the supply of pure water. In the future, very much may be done by action taken under these two heads alone; but past errors have also to be corrected. The following additional points have therefore to be considered:—First, in view of the strictly local character of this disease, and the extent to which individual cases arise in remediable local faults, knowledge of dangerous spots must be got by providing for the compulsory notification of every case that occurs; secondly, power to order removal of the causes of illness, whether they be primary or secondary, must be granted.

Excrement Disposal.

To effect this promptly and thoroughly, sewerage is by far the best means; but if sewers are not connected with houses with certain precautions well known to be necessary to prevent the entrance of sewer-air to living and sleeping rooms, and if the sewers are not very thoroughly ventilated, this provision becomes the surest means of disseminating typhoid. There is authority to construct sewers, and considerable lengths actually have been made; but there is no law compelling house-connections to be carried out with the precautions necessary to prevent them from becoming instruments of death. This is a matter which clearly cannot be left to the indifference or neglect of the many, and accordingly a Bill to amend the Act in this respect has been drafted by order of the Minister for Public Works; but this has not yet been submitted to Parliament.

Abolition of Cess-pits.—The advantages of properly constructed sewers cannot be quickly extended to very large districts, nor to some populous districts, for many years to come. It is therefore necessary to abolish cess-pits in the meantime, and to effectually prevent the burial of night-soil, in bulk or from pans, in populous places.

One object in view is to keep the subsoil clean. This was attempted under the Nuisances Prevention Act by providing that cess-pits shall be water-tight. It is therefore necessary to point out that in this respect the Act has failed. No doubt an underground receptacle can be made water-tight; but the expense of such work makes sure that in a majority of cases an ineffectual mode of construction will be adopted; and, in point of fact, all Councils pass as sufficient $4\frac{1}{2}$ in. brick work, generally laid in mortar, and not often rendered in cement, which is not, and with the best materials could not, be made water-tight. In ordering the abolition of cess-pits, however, it would be absolutely essential that provision should be made for inspecting the work. The pits should be thoroughly emptied, well sprinkled with fresh lime, the brickwork removed, the adjacent soil excavated as far as any great fouling is visible, and the hole filled with clean earth. Another object of the abolition of cess-pits is to avoid the poisonous pollution of the air of privies already so often alluded to. As to disposal of the soil, the Act mentioned, by providing that no depôt for the purpose shall be used until it has been proclaimed by the Governor-in-Council, seems to have contemplated inspection of proposed depôts by professional officers of the Government before approval. As to the burying of night-soil on house allotments, or rather by individual householders, that is due solely to neglect of duty by Councils; they require correction. The definition of "populous places" need not present any insuperable difficulty.

If cesspits are abolished, pans must be substituted for them in all those parts which are not served by sewers. This change has been partially effected already in many municipalities—completely in one or two only. But the arrangements for emptying are simple to a degree which entitles them to be qualified as crude and primitive; one pan to each privy, a tank-cart to receive the contents once a week, and the work done in darkness, being the leading features. Often the night-man has to enter private premises to get the pan; and when it can be reached from a public way by a suitable door in the outer wall, this is either entirely without fastening or else fitted with a button which anyone can undo. In consequence in the poorer neighbourhoods children and larrikins often play tricks which are grossly indecent, or which lead to fouling of the floor of the privy, or they even remove the receptacle altogether; the contents being scattered in the lanes, and the pans injured or destroyed. It would be a more hopeful task to endeavour to correct any carefully carried-out plan however wrongly conceived, than the brutish indifference which warrants the foregoing description, but the remedies must at all events be mentioned. (a) It ought not to be necessary for a scavenger to enter private premises as a rule; pans should be accessible from outside them, but the door of access should be fastened by some simple but efficient contrivance. Perhaps a railway carriage lock and key would answer the purpose. (b) Then, if it be wished to do away with dirt and slovenliness there is no assistant so valuable as plenty of light; the mechanical arrangements should be such as allow of the work being done by day. The requirements are (c) a double set of pans, having (d) an interchangeable air-tight lid, and (e) carried in suitable covered vans. Clean pans may thus be carried to houses by day and the full ones removed, and thus the opportunity is given of (f) properly cleansing as well as emptying the full ones. This cleansing is most speedily, thoroughly, and effectually done at a depôt by a steam jet. Of course, all this would cost money—probably a good deal of money; but large sums expended for other purposes are not begrudged, and the sole consideration to be entertained is, how much it is worth while to pay to secure health and decency.

Water Supply.

The foregoing details, in as far as they keep the soil free from the specific infection to which typhoid is due, will keep water supplies free from it. A great safeguard under this most important head, however, would be the extension to all towns of a regular and constant supply taken from pure sources. But this alone is not sufficient. Landlords will sometimes—how often cannot be said—pay water-rates on dwellings within 100 ft. of a main according to law, and yet not take the water, in order to avoid the expense of connections and fittings. In other cases, persons to whose houses town-water is laid on, prefer some old underground receptacle or source to which they have become accustomed for drinking purposes. For these reasons, it should be within the power of the Government to order the abolition of every underground reservoir or source of water on premises situated within 100 ft. of a main, as soon as the water shall have been shown to be polluted. But, farther on this head, very many small dwellings are built beyond reach of any town-supply, and these often take their water from surface wells or underground tanks alone. Under these circumstances the digging of such wells or tanks cannot be justly prevented; but it might at all events be made certain that the residents shall have an opportunity of drinking pure water, and this would be done if it were made illegal to occupy any dwelling to which town water is not laid on until certain over-ground storage for rain-water has been provided. These two suggestions may seem, in a measure, arbitrary; but, after all, a function of Governments is to do for the people what they cannot individually—whether from want of power or from want of knowledge—do for themselves.

Garbage Disposal.

Garbage ought to be very carefully and regularly collected—rather more carefully in worse than in better neighbourhoods—and removed from among the people who produce it. It should be carried in covered carts to a depôt, and there, together with street-sweepings, be destroyed by fire. This may be done, even in towns, by one or other form of the apparatus called a "destructor," without causing any nuisance; and thus, by erecting three or four small ones rather than one large one, the expense of haulage may be reduced. Some profit may be got by using the heat evolved, and from the slag very excellent mortar may be made. The cost of garbage-removal may be thus somewhat reduced; but on the whole, it is a source of expenditure merely. There is no other practicable means of effectually dealing with this filth, and the necessary expenditure must be faced if typhoid is to be conquered.

Building on Made Ground.

It should be made illegal, without reservation, to erect any dwelling-house upon or abutting upon made ground, except under certificate issued by the Government.

Recommendations.

Conclusions.

We have no hesitation in saying that the importance of typhoid fever as a drag upon the national prosperity will be very much reduced if the following measures be taken, viz.:—

1. If the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Act (Sewerage) Amendment Bill, as already prepared, become law; and if the several proposed schemes of sewerage be carried out; *
2. If cess-pits be abolished with proper precautions, and pan-closets substituted for them;
3. If the burial of nightsoil in gross or in detail elsewhere than on reserves appointed after inspection be effectually prevented;
4. If power be granted to close wells and sources of foul water on inhabited premises within 100 feet of a water-main, and to make the necessary inquiry and analysis;
5. If it be made illegal to occupy or to continue to occupy any dwelling-house which stands beyond reach of a town-water-supply and which is not provided with overground storage for rain water in iron tanks in the proportion of (say) 600 gallons to every three rooms or part of three;
6. (a) If the erection of any dwelling-house on made-up ground, or upon ground which is swampy or too low to be effectually drained, be forbidden, except in accordance with conditions expressed in an order issued by the Government on recommendation of its professional officers; (b) if the erection of any dwelling-house be forbidden until particulars and plans of the proposed drainage have been submitted, and if occupation be forbidden until all drainage and plumbing-work has been inspected and approved; (c) if powers be granted to enter on any premises on which a case of typhoid fever shall have occurred, or shall be reasonably suspected to have occurred, to cause the owner to make all such openings in connection with foundations, drains, cess-pits, closets, &c., and to sink such trial-holes as may seem necessary to ascertain the sanitary state of the premises, and (d) to order and enforce the execution of such remedial measures as appear necessary to prevent continuance of insanitary conditions thereon;
7. If by compulsory notification of cases of the infectious fevers the opportunity of distinguishing unhealthy houses and localities be afforded.

* Bills are before Parliament for the completion of the North Shore sewerage scheme and the Manly sewerage scheme. The large sewerage scheme for the Western Suburbs of Sydney is under investigation by the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Public Works. A sewerage scheme has also been prepared for the Southern Suburbs of Sydney.

APPENDIX I.

OUTBREAK OF FEVER AT NEWTOWN. (PAPERS RELATING TO).

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 16 January, 1889.

[Laid upon the Table of the Legislative Assembly by the Secretary for Public Works, on the 16th January, 1889, papers referring to an inquiry which is being held into the causes of the recent outbreak of Typhoid Fever at Newtown.]

INTERIM REPORT upon an outbreak of Typhoid Fever in parts of the Municipalities of Newtown and Macdonaldtown.

In accordance with the verbal instructions of the Honorable the Minister for Public Works, that he should this day be furnished with an account of the progress made in the investigation directed by him to be undertaken by us in his minute of the 3rd inst., we have the honor to submit the following particulars:—

The minute referred to was made upon an extract from the Sydney Morning Herald of the 2nd instant, in which an account was given of the attack and death by typhoid of several members of a family residing at 53, Gowrie-street, Newtown. It will be seen that the minute in question orders an examination of the localities referred to in the extract, and a report to be made on their sanitary condition. Accordingly on the following day we visited Gowrie-street together and examined No. 53 and several houses in the vicinity. On the 5th instant we made further inquiries from house to house, in order to get some idea of the extent to which disease had fallen upon the houses adjoining No. 53, and also upon other houses which appeared to be similarly situated. In the absence of any organisation, which would enable the Health Department to get detailed knowledge from time to time of the occurrence of disease in Sydney, this kind of house to house investigation, essential as it is, is exceedingly tedious. On the 6th several letters were written to persons living in the locality, from whom it was thought that valuable information might be procured; much of this, however, has not yet come to hand. On the 7th further action was taken, and on the 8th we further inspected the locality, and gave instructions on the spot for the preparation of the sketch map*, which is appended to this interim report. On the 9th we conferred, and in the course of the day a verbal report on certain points was made to the Under Secretary for Works (see minute 89-66-12/1), in pursuance of which a letter of request to be allowed to make examinations of the ground and drains of the premises at Gowrie-street was written to the agent on the 11th. No reply having been received, on the 14th instant the Minister gave further instructions. On the 11th further investigations were made in the locality, and in consequence, the Medical Adviser desired the Inspector-General of Police to direct an officer, who had for many years been on duty in Newtown, to accompany the Deputy Medical Adviser, and to point out to him the areas on which houses suspected to be built in a specially unsanitary way stood. These areas will be found marked as they were pointed out on the 15th instant by the Police Sergeant, and as confirmed by old residents.

*Appendix.

The case which attracted the Minister's attention has been ascertained to be as follows:—

A family named Jones, which consisted of William (the father), aged 34, Charlotte (the mother), aged 31, and five children aged from 12 years to 9 months, lived for about 18 months in University-street, Camperdown, and there enjoyed good health. At the beginning of April, 1888, William Jones left for Broken Hill; and Mrs. Jones moved into a smaller house, choosing No. 53, Gowrie-street, Newtown. (See Map.*) About November 10, Jones, returning from Broken Hill, stayed a few days in Melbourne, and he is said to have fallen out of health while there. He came on to Sydney, and joined his wife at Gowrie-street, about November 16. Continuing out of health, ten days later he attended Prince Alfred Hospital as an out-patient. At last he applied for admission to the hospital, and was admitted; on December 18 he died of typhoid fever. Mrs. Jones began to be out of health about the 20th of November; she was admitted to the hospital suffering from typhoid the same day as her husband, and is now convalescent. Edward, aged 12, fell ill about November 26; was admitted to hospital December 13, and died of typhoid. Maggie, aged 5, fell ill about December 10; was admitted to hospital December 18, and died December 31 of typhoid. The other three children were taken charge of by various friends on their parents being removed; they are believed to be in good health.

*Appendix.

It will be seen from reference to the map that this and the adjacent houses in Gowrie-street, being Nos. 49 to 71, stand over an old clay-pit, which has been partially filled up. We found that the filling extended only to the front and back walls of the houses, leaving a deep hollow space underneath the floors in which stagnant water, having an offensive smell, was standing, and we were informed that there was always water, more or less, in this space. We also found that the back yards were unpaved, that they were flooded in wet weather as indicated in places by the usual marks to a depth in some parts of 18 inches. The whole row of cottages is provided at the rear with the usual yard gullies, each of which is connected with one drain which runs parallel with the back of the houses and discharges into the open channel in the back lane. In the first place these gullies are most improperly placed in an open brick wash-house, about 8ft. by 6ft., and close to the copper and kitchen grates, no vent pipe having been provided for carrying off the foul air which is drawn upwards by the heat of the fires. In the case of Nos. 51 and 53 there was evidence of subsidence by cracks in the walls of the washhouses, and there is every reason to suppose that the drains are imperfect and unsound. All these houses are furnished with cesspits formed in the loose made ground, which are not watertight, being of the usual half-brick and cement work. The cesspit at No. 53 was specially examined. It had not been emptied since the outbreak, and from the consistence of the contents (about 2' 6" in depth), it was apparent that the greater part of the liquid had drained away from it, the space under the houses affording it an easy outlet in that direction.

A glance at the map will show that the whole neighbourhood is open more or less to criticism on similar grounds. During the past five years disease has been rife there, including typhoid fever, and many general complaints have from time to time been made. For instance, in August, 1884, on a similar occasion to the present, so much alarm and indignation was aroused that the Sydney Morning Herald on its own account made an investigation and published a very long report. Nevertheless nothing was then done done by way of remedy. And therefore the Minister for Works having shown his determination not to let the matter pass this time, and having given directions that a thorough investigation shall now be made, we are preparing such a detailed report as we hope will effectually support his efforts.

In the present state of the law no such immediate step as is necessary can be taken; but the evidence furnished, even in this interim report, is sufficient to show that the houses 51 to 63 Gowrie-street, are, in our opinion, entirely unfit for human habitation.

16th January, 1889.

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON, M.D.
GEORGE H. STAYTON, M. Inst., C.E.

Extract from the Sydney Morning Herald of January 2nd, 1889.

THE RAVAGES OF TYPHOID.

A SAD instance of the ravages of typhoid fever has recently come under the notice of the authorities of Prince Alfred Hospital. On the 13th ultimo a lad named Edward Jones was admitted to that institution suffering from typhoid fever, and on the following day his sister Maggie was admitted with the same disease. Four days later the mother, Charlotte Jones, and the father, William Jones, entered the institution for the same cause. The father succumbed to the attack on the 21st, the son died on the following day; on Monday the daughter died too; and the mother alone is left. Mrs. Jones is now recovering from the fever; but does not yet know of the loss of her husband and children. The family lived in Gowrie-street, Newtown. Including their number there have been six cases of typhoid taken to the Prince Alfred Hospital from the same street within the past few weeks, and four of these have proved fatal.

Minute by The Secretary for Public Works.

I SHALL be glad if Mr. Stayton and Dr. Thompson will have the goodness to examine the localities referred to above, and report to me on their sanitary condition. I think by following up cases like this considerable light will be thrown on the causes which lead to the outbreak of this disease. Its prevalence in our community is causing me much concern, more especially as it is preventable by the adoption of a proper system of sewerage, which I trust the Parliamentary Standing Committee will see its way shortly to recommend. I should like to give them the benefit of the report for which I now ask.

JOHN SUTHERLAND, 3/1/89.

Will Dr. MacLaurin kindly invite Dr. Thompson to join Mr. Stayton in this inspection and report. Mr. Sutherland will be particularly obliged if the latter can be presented to him on Monday next.—J.B., 3/1/89. Dr. MacLaurin.

I should like Dr. Thompson to furnish me with a report on this matter as soon as possible, so that it may be with the Minister for Public Works at the time stated.—H.N. MacL., B.C., 4/1/89. The C.M.I.

Report by The Deputy Medical Adviser to the Government.

7 January, 1889.

WITH reference to your direction, attached, and the memorandum of the Under Secretary for Works, in which he says that the Minister will be particularly obliged if a report can be furnished this day, perhaps the latter should be informed that it is not possible to do this. On Friday afternoon Mr. Stayton and I visited Gowrie-street; on Saturday morning I made a house-to-house inquiry in one part of that street, and a general inspection of the neighbourhood (with which, however, I am already well acquainted); in the afternoon I abstracted from returns in this Department and tabulated information concerning Newtown and Macdonaldtown of essential importance, and yesterday I spent several hours in writing letters to elicit farther necessary information, and in defining the topographical limits within which the inquiry must be carried on. I also interviewed on Saturday, at this Department, an informant who volunteered valuable details.

I do not doubt that this inquiry will furnish an important example of the sanitary defects of several parts of Sydney, due to absence of sewerage and of building laws; but if it is to carry weight it must be accurate, and from the above I think it will be perceived that, even with the best endeavour, I am to-day in reality only ready to begin the inquiry systematically.

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON, M.D.,

Deputy Medical Adviser.

Urgent.—For the information of the Hon. the Secretary for Public Works.—H.N. MacL., B.C., 7/1/89. The Under Secretary for Public Works. Mr. Stayton.—W.B., 8/1/89. Dr. Ashburton Thompson and myself have arranged to inspect the district again this (Tuesday) afternoon.—G.H.S., 8/1/89.

Subject:—Outbreak of Typhoid at Newtown—Investigation by Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. G. H. Stayton, M.I.C.E.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 10 January, 1889.

ALTHOUGH I have not yet been furnished with a full report on this serious matter, which by my direction was at once investigated by Dr. Thompson and Mr. Stayton, sufficient has been brought under my notice by verbal report from one of these gentlemen to show that the most grave causes exist for public anxiety in regard thereto. Mr. Stayton, I understand, has informed the Under Secretary that it would be very desirable to sink shafts at the back of the premises occupied by the victims of the outbreak, and at other places, to ascertain the nature of the soil on which the buildings are erected; but Mr. Stayton says he is afraid that in doing so there may be some danger of the collapse of the walls of one of the houses. The matter, however, is of such urgency that I am prepared to take upon myself the entire responsibility of authorising Mr. Stayton and Dr. Thompson to have the necessary investigation made whatever may be the result to the building, and I wish the Under Secretary to write in strong terms to the owners of the house in question, and any others similarly affected, requesting them in the interest of the public health to permit the work to be carried out, at the same time informing them that I will hold them harmless for any injury which may occur to the buildings.

The whole thing is too serious to admit of any hesitancy, and I am simply acting on the maxim, "Salus populi suprema est lex," which is peculiarly applicable in the present case.

JOHN SUTHERLAND.

Write

Write at once.—J.B., 11/11/89. Mr. Kitchen, 11/1/89. Mr. Piper.—W.B., 12/1/89. The papers were handed to Mr. Stayton for his report on 8/1/89, and have not yet been returned.

As the permission to sink the trial shafts has not yet been received, anticipate it, and carry out the work at once; it is a matter that admits of no delay; I will not permit if I can help it the lives of the citizens to be trifled with.—JOHN SUTHERLAND, 14/11/89.

Mr. Stayton and Dr. Thompson.—J.B., 14/1/89. Immediate. Perhaps Mr. Stayton will be good enough to inform me when he proposes to do this work, so that I may attend.—J.A.T. G. H. Stayton, Esq., C.E., 14/1/89.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to Mr. A. Kitchen.

[Very urgent.]

Sir,

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 11 January, 1889.

Referring to the recent outbreak of typhoid fever at Newtown, which occurred in some houses, the owner of which, it is understood, you represent, and in regard to which Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. G. H. Stayton, M.I.C.E., have been directed to make an investigation, I am directed by the Secretary for Public Works to inform you that it has been found necessary, for the purposes of this investigation, to sink shafts at the back of the premises, and in view of the urgency and vital importance of the matter as affecting the public health, to request that you will move the owner of the premises to permit the works to be carried out.

I am to add that should any damage occur to the buildings in question, in consequence of the work, the Government will be fully responsible.

I have, &c.,

J. BURLING,

Under Secretary.

P.S.—The favor of an immediate reply will oblige.

Minute by The Secretary for Public Works.

Subject:—Outbreak of Typhoid Fever at Newtown.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 15 January, 1889.

The documents in the office will show what action I have taken in this very serious case, which I regret being compelled to believe is only one of a great many others of a similar nature which have been occurring in the city and suburbs, to the disgrace of our civilization. My action during the period I have been Minister for Works will show that since the time my predecessor, Mr. Lyne, gave instructions for the carrying out of the surveys necessary in connection with the works for the improvement of the sanitation of the city and suburbs, I have been able to push the matter forward to a point where it now only requires the approval of the Parliamentary Committee and Parliament in order that the great works which have been designed by this Department may be executed.

Knowing the evils that have resulted from our defective sewerage arrangements, I have strained every nerve, not only to push on the works necessary for the amelioration of the existing state of things, but have endeavoured to arouse the public mind to a sense of the great evils which have already been caused, and the still greater ones which are threatened, if a supine attitude is maintained, which I regret to say has been only too common in matters of this kind.

I now leave the whole subject to the consideration of my successor, promising him that I will give him my most energetic support with a view to carrying to completion the works initiated by Mr. Lyne, pressed forward by me, and which are now left to him to give final effect to.

JOHN SUTHERLAND.

Minute by The Secretary for Public Works.

Outbreak of Typhoid at Newtown.

16 January, 1889.

I HAVE read with deep concern the interim report which has been furnished to me by Dr. Thompson, and Mr. Stayton in reference to the recent outbreak of typhoid in Gowrie-street, Newtown. The state of affairs therein revealed is simply appalling, and though attention has been often drawn to the matter before in various ways it has never probably been brought out so prominently in all its repulsive features. I wish these gentlemen to pursue their inquiries and probe the matter to the very bottom; and in leaving the further consideration of the subject to my successor I am sure I need not urge him to take the most energetic steps to cope with the great evil which threatens the community. I am thoroughly convinced that unless decided steps are taken the present encroachments of typhoid fever, which is rapidly though stealthily gaining upon us, will develop into something very near the terrible epidemics of yellow fever which decimate the populations of some countries.

I would strongly recommend that in advance of a comprehensive Health Bill a short measure be passed enabling the officers of the Works Department, in conjunction with those of the Health Board, to visit any suspected locality or house, and if it is found necessary to have the power to compel owners of property to carry out any requisition which may be made for the purpose of abating any dangerous nuisance found to exist. The neglect shown in these matters is little short of criminal.

JOHN SUTHERLAND.

APPENDIX II.

It is not unimportant to note, in connection with the foregoing account, that the following documents and extracts from the columns of the Sydney Morning Herald shows that just four and a half years ago attention was drawn to this locality by the sweeping off from it by typhoid fever of a whole family. It is only necessary to add that to-day the sources of disease are hidden below the surface, which then were uncovered; they have not been removed. Gowrie-street, indeed, on a bright afternoon would, to a superficial observer, present a perfect contrast to the condition of things described—and, as old residents aver, correctly described—in this document. The record of the twelve houses which is given in the report shows, however, with what rigour he would be punished who should, through carelessness or ignorance, disregard inevitable natural laws and take up his residence in them.

The Rev. J. Horuby Spear, a clergyman of the Church of England, and formerly incumbent of Macdonaldtown, who exerted himself during the years 1883-4-5 in vain attempts to get the sanitary condition of the district amended, has forwarded the following letter, as well as some other important information. It came to hand too late, however, for incorporation in the body of the foregoing report:—

Dear sir,

Mount Victoria, 30 January, 1889.

Sickness at home prevented me replying to your letter of inquiry dated 9th instant.

I now enclose you a map of Macdonaldtown showing, so far as memory guides me, the situation of the house where "a whole family was attacked with typhoid," in 1884-5, just beyond that part of Macdonald-street towards the railway, where George-street strikes it at right angles; you will notice it as the terminating point of the stream, shown in red dotted lines on the map, and along the course of which typhoid abounded. The number of persons attacked, including the furniture-man, were six; deaths, five. I cannot give names, but a milkman who lived opposite this house may remember. He raised a subscription for the sole survivor, whom I had removed to the Prince Alfred Hospital in the hospital ambulance.

On enclosed map I have described a figure, something like a heart; within its area fever cases abounded in 1884-5. The cause was not far to seek—the red dotted stream on the map being nothing more than inky slime carried down from Newtown to the lower levels of Macdonaldtown. All along its banks every house had typhoid in 1884-5.

Abutting out from George-street a terrace of cottages were run out on piles over old brick holes and low lying swamp land. This was just as I was leaving. Some resident remarked at the time, "I would not be paid to live in those cottages." I cannot learn whether fever visited them, but I can't see how they could have escaped—the conditions were so favourable, in fact, if I may so say, inviting. In Harold-street and other places I have seen these old brick holes filled up with the sweeping of the gutters and refuse of backyards, rocking with vegetable and animal matter in the highest state of putrefaction, emitting odours which would have thrown the "thirty-six stanches of Cologne" into the shade; and these vile deposits were sold to the owners of the land by the Corporation of Newtown at 6d. a load (I am prepared to prove this up to the hilt), and deposited on the lands by these Corporation carts.

I enclose a cutting from the Herald, written by myself in 1884-5, which will add to this information, as it had reference to this very matter. Please make use of me, and any information I give or may give, in any way you think may serve the cause you have so ably taken in hand.

Believe me, &c.,

C. HORNBY SPEAR,

Clerk in Holy Orders

(formerly Incumbent of Macdonald Town).

J. Ashborton Thompson, Esq., M.D., &c., &c., &c., Health Office, Sydney.

The other information Mr. Spear forwards consists of a map on which are certain marks and notes. The former have been transferred to a second map* attached to the report, and the latter are given below with reference to the large figures on it. He says, first, that during 1883-4-5 typhoid raged over the large area approximately defined by dotted lines, most of the cases proving fatal. * Appendix.

1. "This is the hole that called forth from the late Dr. Day the indignant exclamation, 'Is there no one here with manliness enough to protest against this horrible state of things? If this terrible nuisance is not abated before summer then God help the residents.'"

2. "It was somewhere herabouts that Mr. Churelwood, of Union-street, prosecuted the owner of the land (who was Mr. Peter James, a wealthy resident of Macdonaldtown), at my suggestion, for filling up old brick-holes with foul and filthy sweepings from the gutters and back-yards of the Borough of Newtown, which were sold to him by that corporation at 6d. a load. When the case came before the Magistrate at Newtown, sitting in the Temperance Hall, both the Mayor of Newtown and the Mayor of Macdonaldtown appeared in court on behalf of the defendant. The magistrate snubbed an important witness for the plaintiff, and adjourned the case for a week to give Mr. James an opportunity of abating the nuisance. This was 'done' by sprinkling over the vile deposit a thin layer of earth, and at the adjourned hearing the case was dismissed. It was opposite this spot (that is, on the site of the houses the subject of the foregoing report) that I called the attention of the Inspector of Nuisances for Newtown to an abominable deposit just made by a Newtown Corporation cart, and ordered him to summon the carter. He replied, 'No; I know my way about too well for that.'"

It will be observed that the spot thus indicated in chief is on the east side of Gowrie-street. It may be mentioned here that a terrace of good-looking houses now stands thereon, and that a cursory inspection of one of them showed that after a thorough inspection and the necessary excavations it would probably be found that they are as unfit for human habitation as are those opposite, which are the subject of the report.

3. "At the cottage herabouts a young married woman was attacked with typhoid, and died."

4. "This is the approximate position of the cottage in which a whole family was attacked with typhoid in 1884-5. All of them died except the mother, who was severely ill, but who was removed to hospital and eventually recovered. As far as my memory serves me, the father, a son, and two children died, as well as a young man who removed the furniture." In connection with these cases, the Rev. Mr. Horuby Spear (whose map indicates the course of the natural watercourse—then, and now, converted into a sewer—by dotted lines) says, "All along the course of this dotted stream—or, to speak correctly, black, inky slime—fever cases abounded, nearly all of them being fatal. This is the 'pestiferous swamp' thus alluded to in my communication to the Herald in 1884-5 (see below). Its course was stayed exactly opposite the house in which the whole family was attacked by reaching a higher level of land."

The following is the letter written by Mr. Spear to the editor of the S. M. Herald, and published in that paper in 1885:—

TYPHOID FEVER IN NEWTOWN.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sir,—The clarion blast of alarm from the pulpit of St. Andrew's Cathedral was not sounded an hour too soon, nor without great and weighty cause. I trust it will be heard in the Council Chambers of our rulers, and awaken some action there.

Nothing

Nothing short of special legislation will arrest the progress of the pale spectre which is entering our homes and desolating our hearts. In the greed and rapacity of grasping demons we must seek for the cause of this appearance in our midst. The awful story from London of the man who was detected carrying the carcass of a pig which had died of small-pox "to be cured into bacon and ham," finds its parallel here, in the owners of low-lying lands in populous localities, bargaining with borough councils for the filthy scourgings of lanes and gutters to fill up their sections to a required level. "I," says an eye-witness, "have stood in the sweltering sun of a summer's day and watched these corporation carts depositing their vile contents on vacant allotments, 'as per agreement;' the reeking exhalations therefrom rivalling the 'tips' at Botany; and I have come away rowing that the owners thereof were murderers."

In 1878 typhoid fever raged in the town of Napier, New Zealand, to such an extent that public attention was directed to it. The medical experts traced the cause to the low-lying swamp lands in the immediate vicinity of the town, and suggested their being filled up by the town council. But the land was private property. The owners, when requested, refused to fill up these town sections, and the council had no power to make them. But what did they do? They appealed to Parliament and asked for the power; and they got it. They then filled up the sections at the owner's risk—not with the vile garbage that is employed here, laying the germs of more deadly disease, but with good solid earth; and the result was the property ran up 400 per cent., and the fever disappeared entirely from that locality.

Now, this is what we want:—First, an imperative Order in Council to stop all corporation carts from discharging refuse in any part of the city or suburbs. Let night trains, or trams, with special trucks, convey such refuse to a point of safety beyond the outskirts. And then let the Government institute a Commission of inquiry to collect information as to the cause of the present typhoid epidemic, and the best means of stamping it out, with the view of introducing a Bill, if necessary, during the approaching session of Parliament to obtain the requisite power for effectually dealing with the matter; which, affecting as it does the lives and happiness of thousands of our fellow citizens, should be approached in a spirit of broad and enlightened and philanthropic statesmanship. That it can be dealt with effectually I have endeavoured to show by quoting the prompt, vigorous, and decisive action of Napier, New Zealand, under very analogous circumstances to our own. And that there is information available to such a Commission, pointing direct to the cause of the present epidemic, and much more that may be obtained in the background, may be gathered from the following from the pen of an Anglican clergyman:—"A short time ago I had charge of a populous suburb in the immediate vicinity of Sydney. Its low-lying parts were here and there studded with stagnant pools of indescribable abominations. The far-famed '36 stanches of Ceylon' seemed to have emigrated and congregated and taken up their habitation and abode there. I will not offend the delicate sense by attempting to describe the pollution; sufficient for the purpose that every deceased quadruped, small or great, from the shambles, the gutters or the lanes, were freely deposited there by the local corporation carts, and left

'To exhale their fragrance
Uncollied and unknelt.'

And all around, and about, and on every side, houses were springing up like magic, some of them actually being built over these death-dealing swamps. In vain I strove to check this madness. I appealed to the Mayors of the respective boroughs, but was told they could not interfere with private property. I wrote to the suburban fathers in council assembled, and with no better result. One council referred my letter to its committee of works, and there the matter ended. The other refused to receive it, or to consider it; and neither of them had the manners to acknowledge it. I then appealed to the Board of Health, and was courteously informed, under date 24 June, 1884, that the Board had no power to interfere with the affairs of the municipalities, but that my letter had been forwarded to the Ministerial head of the Department; and shortly afterwards the Colonial Secretary forwarded my letter of complaint to one of the delinquent boroughs, and 'asked for information.' He was near getting it with a vengeance; for, when the communication came under consideration of the 'suburban fathers,' one of them arose in his wrath and moved that 'The letter be not received, as it contained offensive matter.' However, wiser counsels prevailed, and the council clerk was instructed to return the dignified reply 'That no such nuisance existed.' This proved, however, the 'last feather.' So the press was appealed to, and the Herald despatched a 'special' to 'see the land, what it is.' And he came, and saw, and, like the Queen of Sheba, found that 'the half' of the horrors 'had not been told him.' He embodied the result of his observations in an article, which created a sensation—so much so that attention was attracted to it in all directions. Now, I thought, the 'suburban fathers' will move. And so they did; but it was an explosion of wrath, which culminated, and burst on the head of the 'parson who had dared to stir up these puddles, and on the head of the pressman who had aided and abetted him therein.' So some day or other I expect to see terraces of houses run out over excavations, which would be more appropriately described as 'morgues.'

It is no wonder typhoid is rife when fever beds are allowed to exist. A pestiferous swamp—since "reclaimed"—threaded its sinuous course through the neighbouring low-lying flats, not as "a thread of silver," but as a black, inky slime; wriggling in and out like a black snake, dealing death in its course! Its whole track is marked with fever cases. In one house a girl, nine years of age, died; in another house a young man was robbed of the wife of his youth through the same pernicious source. She died at the age of 21 years. In another house, near where this puddle was stayed in its course, three adults and two children were attacked, and all died but one. There were other cases, but not fatal ones; and others again of which I had no personal knowledge, for I only speak of what I have seen; and I pause to ask, "Who slew all these?" Was it not the foulness which emanated from the contents of Corporation carts deposited on the sections of private owners at 6d. a load?

I am, &c.,

SANITAS.

It should now be mentioned that in November last, upon general complaint of the unhealthiness of the district by the Rev. Father Doyle, of the Church of St. Mary of the Suburbs, George-street, Macdonaldtown, the Board of Health directed inquiry to be made by the chief medical inspector; and that, with the exception of recommending the Council to cause the removal of nuisances from one exceptionally filthy property, nothing could be done to remedy the matters very properly complained of by Father Doyle, for want of legal power to intervene.

The

The following is the special report made by the Herald in 1884 upon this locality—partly in Newtown, partly in Macdonaldtown:—

A TYPHOID VALLEY NEAR SYDNEY.

Sydney Morning Herald, 2nd August, 1884.

NEWTOWN, with its district, is one of the few suburban localities that is not now recommended as specially healthy or specially picturesque. What its virtues may have been at the time when its low-lying land was first invaded by brick and mortar it is hard to say; but its original attractiveness, if it ever had any, has long ago been a thing of the past. It has long been a point in dispute as to whether the roads there are at their worst in summer or winter; but, judging from the statements made about them by some of the suffering inhabitants, there would appear to be very much of a sameness in this respect. The roads, however, are but a minor nuisance compared with another matter which will form the subject of the present article. There is a large tract of low-lying country to the left of the tramline going from Sydney, which is approached by a gentle declivity of some quarter of a mile. In the driest of dry seasons, this place is a kind of Botany dam, inasmuch as it naturally receives all the drainage for miles around. The Corporations of Newtown and Macdonaldtown, whose domains meet in this valley of humiliation, do their best to follow nature by sending down thither all the rubbish, and "all," in this case, comprehends a very great deal. When artificial and natural means combine so harmoniously, as in this case, the results are, perhaps, considerably more than might be imagined by a resident of Double Bay or Pott's Point. Yesterday morning a number of local gentlemen, including an Anglican clergyman, an inspector of nuisances, and an alderman, accompanied by a reporter from this paper, proceeded to this valley, sometimes called "Frogghollow," the condition of which has been a grievance for a long time past, and, under the present order of things, seems destined to continue to be one indefinitely. The first locality inspected was Harold-street, which is reached from the Erskineville Road. Although the weather was splendid, and the air crisp and clear, a more thoroughly disheartening spectacle for a sanitary reformer could scarcely be imagined. In an open space to the right of the road there stands a board labelled "Clean rubbish may be shot here." Close by are a couple of wooden tenements (see map), and at the rear is the "rubbish." It was stated that a sort of small lake of a quarter of an acre existed here about twelve months ago, and judging by the damp visible on some of the adjacent houses, the lake would appear to have been a tolerably prosperous one. The effect of the rubbish has been to divide the lake into a number of small puddles which smell as badly as they look. There was no fence to one of the two wooden houses, which have literally been built in a morass. A small, vile stream of putrid water passes under the W.C.s. at the back, and flows on alongside the street till it finally takes a downward course to the bottom of the valley. The back yards were simply black oozy mud, over which a couple of rude causeways had been constructed by one of the tenants. It was stated by the rev. gentleman present that one of the houses had been invaded with typhoid, with the usual results, and since then it had been uninhabited. An inspection, however, revealed the fact that an old lady was living there. She said that she had come on the previous day, and intended to depart on the morrow. A call at the other house brought to light a respectable looking but very pale woman, who with her husband and family had occupied the abode for a month. She complained bitterly that it was a shame that "nobody done anything" to make the place better, and added that the stench was so bad at nights and mornings that she dare not open the doors or windows. Considering that the two gentlemen who interviewed her at the time—it was nearly noon—had to keep camphor to their nostrils, the state of things at "lovely morn and dewy eve" can only be imagined by a scavenger or a resident there. In and out of the pools on the hillocks and in the Stygian stream was the "clean rubbish"—the emptyings of dust-bins, old kerosene tins, dead animals of various genera, and in fact anything and everything that could create a stench or manufacture a fever. On the other side of a narrow road which skirted the swamp on one side, was another gigantic dust-heap and more mud, not honest mud, but green, slimy filth, which required no small amount of ingenuity to cross. It was finally accomplished, with one or two accidents, by the party clinging to the wooden fence of a back yard of the last of a terrace of houses inhabited, not by Chinamen, but by Europeans. Then there was yet another road and more morass, only as the ground was higher, the mud and smell were not so bad. Small houses were on every hand, fringing the quagmire, and some of them appeared to have been built right in it. One little "cottage by the sea" was specially noticeable. It was said that at one time this "detached villa" had been swimming, and the one and only means of checking the water, viz., "clean rubbish," had evidently been resorted to pretty considerably. Only that morning, in fact, a load of particularly abominable rubbish had been shot right in front of the verandah, which was waiting to be shovelled under the house. It may seem sensational to talk of such things, but there was no disputing the rubbish, or the statements of the local men. It was simply impossible to stand on the verandah for 2 minutes without one's handkerchief applied to the face. The cottage was at the bottom of a long terrace of small houses which continued at intervals to the Newtown Road. The inhabitants seemed, however, to be tolerably acclimatised. The little children were playing about the stink heap, and appeared to be thoroughly enjoying themselves. One or two grown-up people, however, who were spoken to on the matter, did not look upon it in a philosophic way. A policeman of the Newtown force declared that soon after he took up his residence in the valley the "shadow of death" came in at the threshold, and, acting under the doctor's orders, he fled just in time to save his children's lives. The late Dr. Day, who, it may be remembered, recently lost his life in combating typhoid at Forster, paid a visit to this place and spoke of it in terms of the most unmistakable character; while other medical opinions of the same character could be quoted by the score. It was stated, in fact, although the statement is given simply as coming from one of the gentlemen yesterday, that Inspector Larkins had spoken of criminal informations in connection with the landlords of the houses. The inhabitants, when they feel a little worse than usual, or when fever breaks out, have a habit of petitioning the Newtown Corporation, which is supposed to exercise some sort of supervision over the interests of health and decency in the borough, and, according to one of the most influential aldermen of that influential body, the Council have a habit of doing nothing. They used to talk about it, but the question has long ago become too hopeless for that. "Clean rubbish" is the only palladium in their eyes, and as none of them are said to reside there, their view of the case is in every respect a neutral one. The alderman in question said yesterday, while the party were in the Newton Road, at the top of Erskineville

Road, "You see this hill"? pointing to the rising ground in the direction of the city. "Well, that hill is simply fringed by a belt of typhoid country." Upon being asked what remedial measures he would advocate, he suggested that some of the inhabitants should summon the nuisance-makers, including the borough scavengers. It must, however, be tolerably obvious that to the people who could allow themselves to live in such a place the idea of summoning the local authorities would be a trifle too daring. At any rate, it does not appear that any summoning has yet been done.

It has been before stated that the Boroughs of Newtown and Macdonaldtown meet in the valley. The putrid stream spoken of traverses about a mile of morass in the latter borough, being joined in its evil course by several tributary streams, which unite in one open drain not far from one of the arches of the Illawarra Railway. There the country thus "watered" is mostly open, and about 4 acres in extent. This is the bottom of the valley. There is, comparatively speaking, very little "clean rubbish" here, as the houses are few and far between, and the Corporation has not been much troubled in connection with it. It is simply an undrained swamp, and is, it was stated, about to be built upon altogether. There are waterholes here and there of the same character as would be found in the Cobar District during a drought, and some feeble specimens of yellow brick architecture, with galvanized iron roofs, are dotted here and there. Typhoid has called at some of these places—more, in fact, than is generally known, as some medical men, it was said, had a dislike to certify as to the fever. In Victoria-street, close to the line, there is what is called a road, which leads under the railway arch; but inasmuch as it is dangerous for a horse and cart to venture there, the Corporation have taken prompt measures, and railed the quagmire off. A picturesque structure on the rising ground was pointed out as a dairy, and the patches of green visible were stated to be the grazing ground for the cows. One of the party remarked that it was as well to be careful with the milk; for his part he boiled it, and then boiled the water also before it was used. He gave his reasons, which, under the circumstances, appeared obvious enough.

The inspection lasted a little while longer after this stage. The course of the open drain was traced to where it lost itself in the rising ground of a street the other side of the line. A house which stood close by this locality was pointed out as having been once cleared out by typhoid, the mother happily escaping after a change of residence. It was added that a young man who came to remove the furniture took it, and with it the germs of the disease, which proved fatal in a few days. There were more dairies and more cows visible here, and the condition of the animals at a distance appeared to testify to a remarkably hard struggle with circumstances.

As an excuse for this state of things it was stated that the Macdonaldtown Corporation were poor and could do little, but great things were hoped for when a new loan of £5,000 was raised. Perchance some of the dwellers in the "clean rubbish" locality might have thought so too when Newtown got £80,000 a few months ago from the London market.

The clerical gentleman aforesaid remarked, as the party were finishing their tour: "You now see the place at its best; wait till the summer, and come then." It is to be trusted that before the summer does come something more potent than summoning officials or depositing "clean rubbish" will be thought of. There apparently is no power or authority to do anything. One local functionary last summer, seeing how things were going, said he waited upon a member of the Board of Health, and was informed that unless a plague broke out nothing could be done. Whether the informant is right or not, nothing appears to have been done. The City Improvement Board have no official knowledge of the valley; and there is no Mr. Inspector Scymour or City Architect to "visitate" this place, which is far worse than Sussex-street or Kent-street. If it was necessary to put the law in motion there, it is asked, why should it be impossible to do so in the suburbs? If a butcher can be fined and imprisoned for selling putrid meat, why should not a landlord be dealt with when he allows people to occupy putrid houses?

One of yesterday's party, who had been in Napier, New Zealand, in 1878, when a similar state of things existed in one quarter of the town, and when fever was making havoc on all sides, said that an indignation meeting of the citizens, some of whom were well to do, was held, the result being that a special Act was passed by the New Zealand Legislature. The town council took the matter in hand thoroughly, and called upon the landowners to pay. Those who refused had their land seized and sold by auction, and out of the proceeds the necessary expense was defrayed. It may, perhaps, be as well to give this gentleman's name, as he has expressed his willingness. It is that of the Rev. J. Spear, an Anglican clergyman, whose pastorate lies partly in the valley.

Whether or not it should be necessary to wait until the hot weather and the typhoid make their appearance is a matter that possibly pertains to the Government; and in the meantime, if there are any whose practical Christianity would lead them to do something for "the poor and needy," and who may possibly deem that these statements are highly coloured, they are recommended to pass through the valley and "see what they can see."

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 15 February, 1889.

Subject :—Report of Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. G. H. Stayton on the outbreak of Typhoid Fever at Newtown.

WITH regard to the conclusions with which this Report winds up, I have to inform the Minister that recommendations 2 to 7 inclusive deal with matters coming under the cognizance of the Colonial Secretary, and Dr. Maclaurin, the President of the Health Board, informs me that he intends immediately to bring the whole subject mentioned therein under the attention of Mr. Dibbs.

The first recommendation is the only one which comes within the scope of this Department. It relates to the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Act Amendment Bill and the proposed schemes of sewerage. In respect of the first mentioned matter I have to inform Mr. Fletcher that the Bill has for some time been prepared, and is now awaiting final revision and Ministerial approval to its being introduced into Parliament. I will briefly indicate the provisions of this Bill :—

First—The Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Act of 1880 makes provision for the transfer of the sewerage of the city to the Water and Sewerage Board on the completion of the present system. As a matter of fact the new scheme of sewerage is not yet complete, but is sufficiently advanced to admit of its being brought into use and produce revenue, and in many cases connections have already been made; but until the sewers are handed over to the Board no rates can be collected, and thus the Government are losing a large revenue which would be available to pay interest on the large sum already spent in the construction of the system, something like £900,000. The first object of the Bill, therefore, is to provide for the transfer of the sewers, so far as completed, to the Board, including the old reticulation system of Sydney and the Suburbs. It will be remembered that last year a similar measure was passed dealing with the water supply. Hence the coming into existence of the present Water and Sewerage Board.

Secondly, as to minor matters, the Bill provides for a proper system of sewer ventilation, and for power to inspect properties for the purposes of sewerage. Provision is also made for giving the Minister for Works certain necessary powers to deal with those portions of the sewerage scheme which by reason of their not being complete, cannot yet be handed over to the Sewerage Board. With regard to the Borough of Redfern they have borrowed a sum of money to carry out their sewerage works, but arrangements have been made between the Council and the Government that in anticipation of the passing of this Bill the Government shall construct their sewers with the money they have borrowed, amounting to £30,000, and a special clause in the Bill provides for the transfer of the Council's obligations in respect thereof to the Government.

Further, in the present Acts there is no provision made for the leasing of lands which have become the property of the Board of Water Supply and Sewerage, and it is considered desirable that such powers should be given, as the Board hold valuable quarries at Prospect and other lands which it is proposed they should have power to lease, subject, of course, to the approval of the Governor-in-Council. Provision is therefore made in the Bill to permit of this being done.

If the Minister approves of the Bill it will be necessary for him to give final instructions to the Parliamentary Draftsman to complete the measure, of which I submit a rough draft for his inspection.

With regard to the proposed schemes of sewerage, I should point out that those for North Shore and Manly have already been reported upon by the Parliamentary Standing Committee, the reports have been adopted by the House, and the necessary construction Bills were read a first time.

With regard to the scheme for the Western Suburbs, the matter was referred to the Standing Committee, and a large amount of evidence on the subject was taken by them, when their proceedings were brought to a close by the dissolution of the late Parliament.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 18 February, 1889.

Subject:—Report on outbreak of Typhoid Fever at Newtown.

I HAVE taken into most serious consideration the able and exhaustive report which has been furnished to me on the above subject by Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. Stayton, M.I.C.E. The report reveals a very grave, not to say alarming, state of affairs in many parts of the suburbs in matters appertaining to sanitation, and it is clear that the most energetic measures are necessary, in order to cope with the evils which have been disclosed. I of course leave to my honorable colleague the Colonial Secretary those parts of the recommendations which relate to his Department, but with regard to the share which my Department will have to take in the matter I at once approve of the draft Bill being revised, with a view to its early submission to Cabinet and subsequent introduction into Parliament, and I shall be glad if Mr. Oliver, the Parliamentary Draftsman, will take such measures as will enable me to submit the Bill to my colleagues in time for its introduction to the House immediately after the meeting of Parliament.

With regard to the sewerage schemes which have been considered, I shall do my best to urge on the introduction of the necessary Bills to enable them to be carried into effect. The whole question is one which is far above all party politics, and demands immediate consideration of Parliament, no matter which party is in power.

In conclusion I have to express my entire concurrence with the action taken by my predecessor.

JAMES FLETCHER.

Minute by the Under Secretary on above.

Will Mr. Bennett please arrange with Mr. Oliver about the final revision of the Bill as quickly as possible.—J.B., 19/2/89.

The Under Secretary for Public Works to A. Kitchen, Esq.

Department of Public Works, Sydney, 19 January, 1889.

Sir,

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, in reply to mine of the 11th instant, granting the requisite permission to sink trial shafts at the back of your houses in Gowrie-street, and on behalf of Mr. Secretary Fletcher have to thank you for your ready acquiescence in my request.

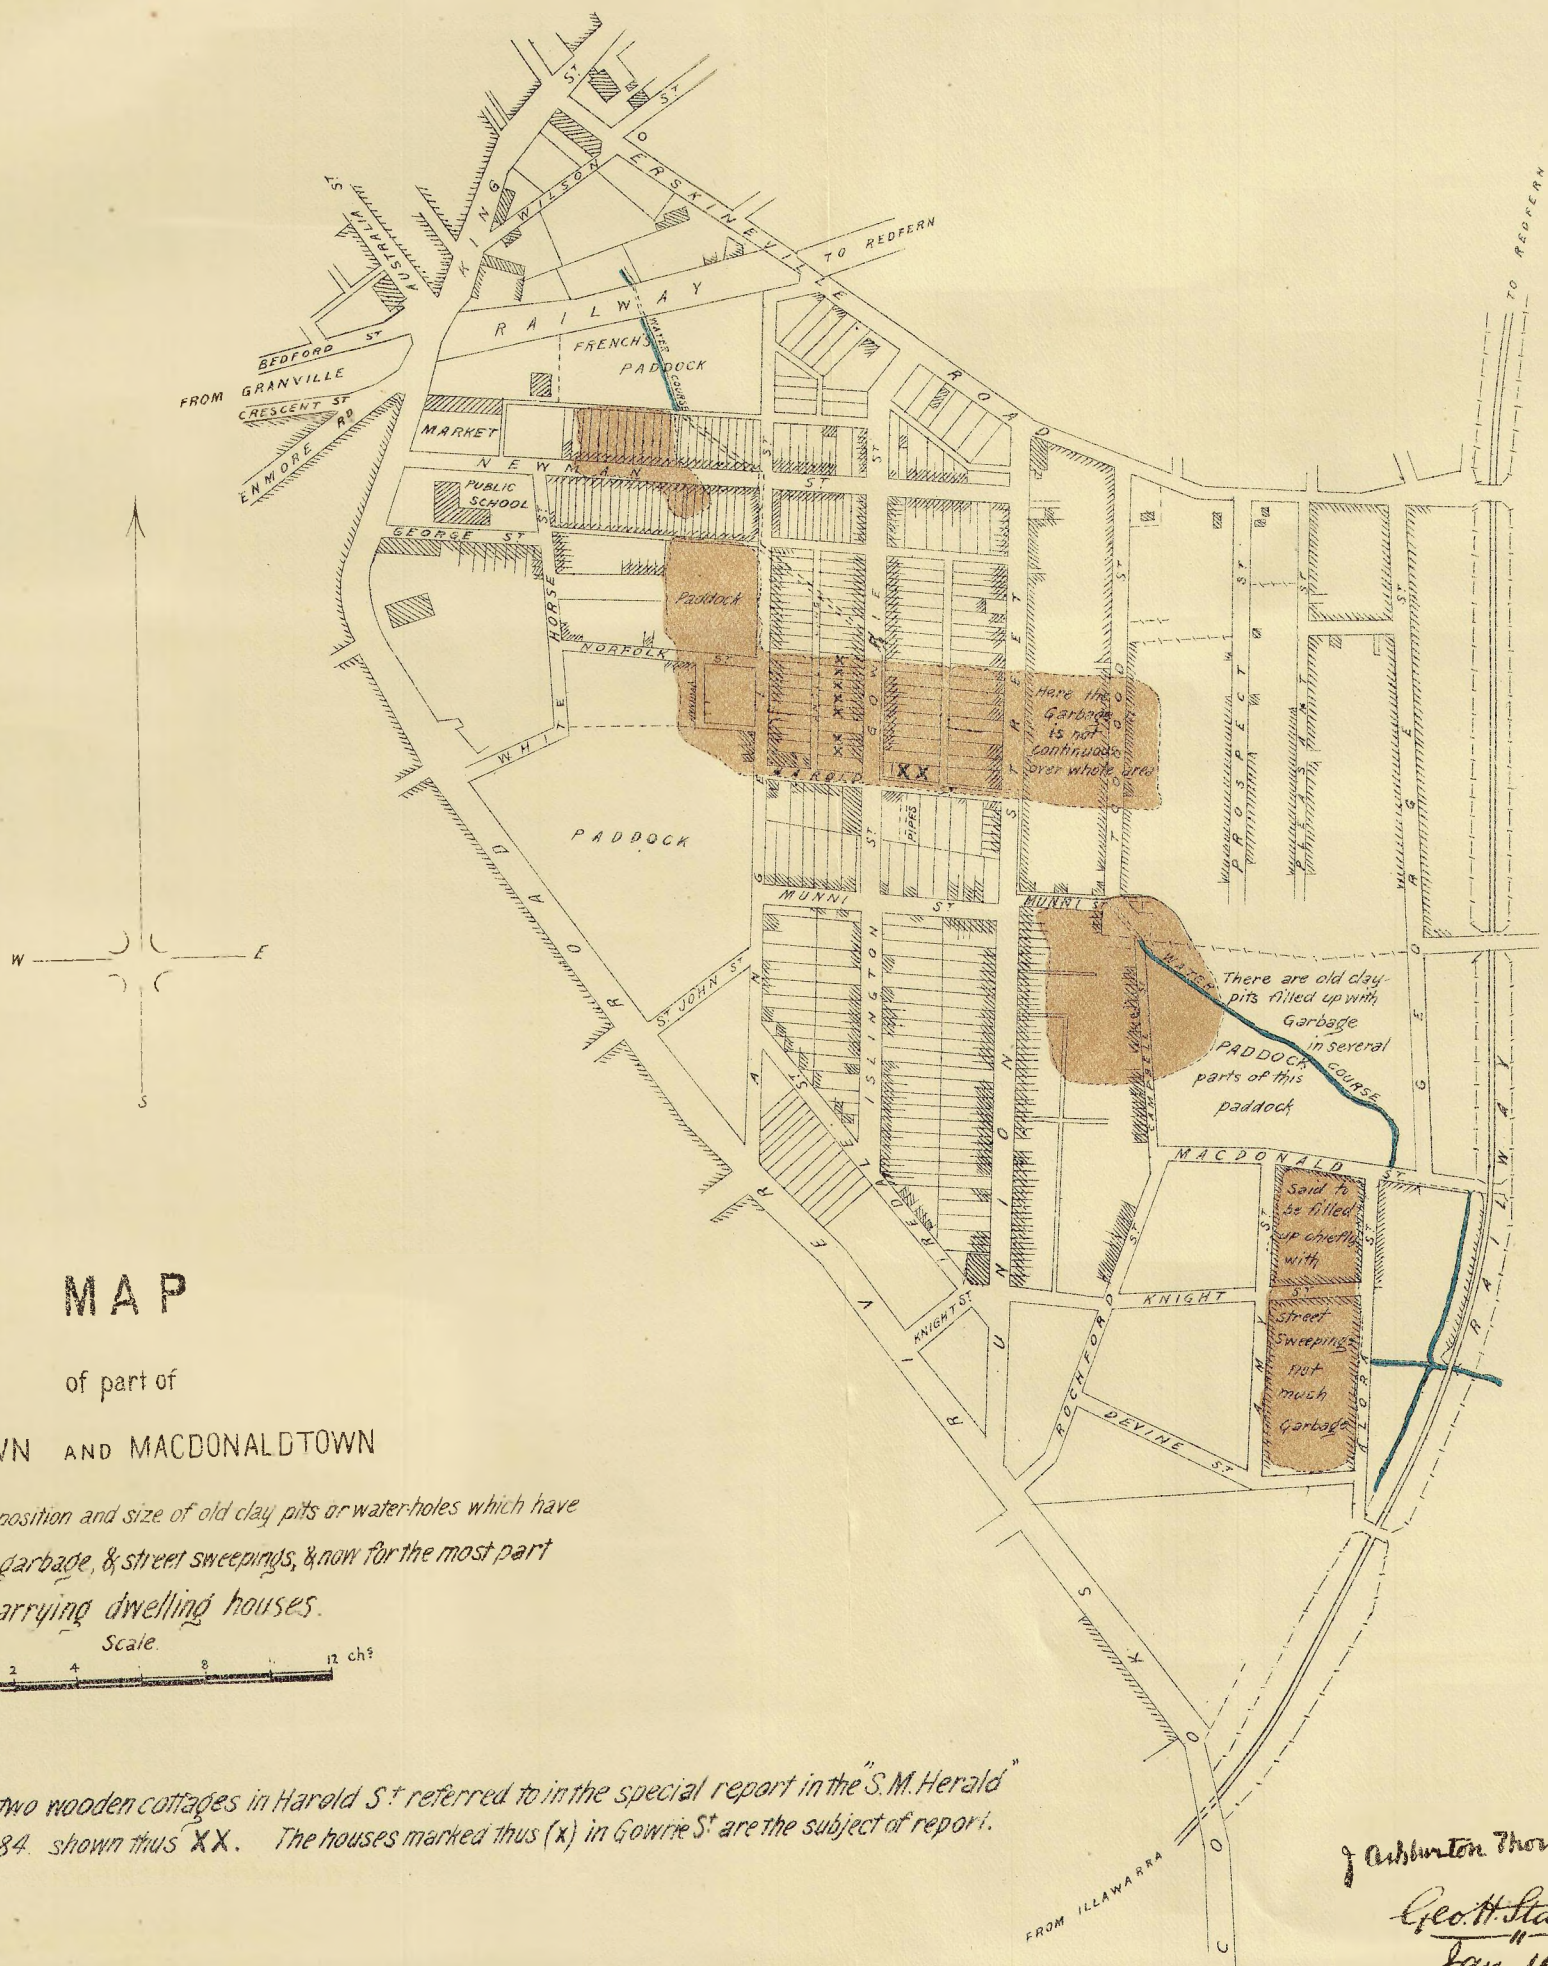

Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. Stayton have been directed to place themselves in communication with you, and they will be glad to avail themselves of your offer of assistance.

I have, &c.,

J. BARLING,
Under Secretary.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

TYPHOID FEVER IN SYDNEY AND SUBURBS,
(FROM 1876 TO 1888.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 23 May, 1889.

The Secretary to the Board of Health to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street, Sydney, 12 April, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to forward you the enclosed paper on the prevalence and mortality of Typhoid Fever in the City of Sydney and Suburbs during last thirteen years, which has been prepared from the records in this Office for the information of the Colonial Secretary.

As this paper is of much public interest the Board would suggest that it be placed upon the tables of both Houses of Parliament.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

[Enclosure.]

TYPHOID Fever in the City of Sydney and its Suburbs from 1876 to 1888.

The accompanying tables, which have been carefully prepared for the information of the Colonial Secretary, contain certain interesting facts with reference to the prevalence and mortality of typhoid fever in the city of Sydney and suburbs during the last thirteen years, and are a continuation of returns previously furnished, completed to the 31st December last.

In table I a statement is given of the number of deaths in each month of the ten years ending 31st December, 1885, together with the ratio calculated per 100,000 of the population, as estimated on the 30th June in each year. From this it will be seen that during the decennial period there was a very large increase in the mortality from this disease, viz., from 46.07 per 100,000 in 1876 to 102.17 in 1885.

Table II gives a similar statement for 1886, 1887, and 1888. From this it will be seen that the mortality from typhoid fever has of late undergone considerable and progressive diminution; thus in 1886 the rate per 100,000 was 90.90; in 1887 it was 58.11; and in 1888, it was 51.42.

Table III, which contains a return of the number of cases of typhoid fever admitted to the metropolitan hospitals of Sydney, and of the number of deaths which have occurred in these institutions during 1886, 1887, and 1888. From this it appears that there were 814 cases admitted, with 128 deaths; in 1887 there were 598 cases with 81 deaths; and in 1888 there were 648 cases with 82 deaths; the death rates being 15.72, 13.54, and 12.65 per cent. on cases admitted during each year respectively.

From these figures it will be noted with much satisfaction that the death rates have been progressively diminishing for the past three years, and that, although the number of cases admitted in 1888 is greater by 50 than that of cases admitted in 1887, the number of deaths is practically the same. Experience has shown that the chances of recovering from typhoid fever are very much increased if the patients are placed under suitable treatment in the earlier stages of the disease.

Table IV shows the number of persons suffering from typhoid fever who were admitted to the metropolitan hospitals during the twelve months ending December 31st, 1888, arranged according to the localities from which they were removed, together with a calculation of the ratio of cases per each 10,000 of the population.

Table V shows the deaths which took place in the hospitals among the cases mentioned in the previous table; in this it has not been deemed necessary to calculate the ratio per 10,000.

From the two latter returns it appears that the West Central and Eastern districts have supplied by far the largest proportion of typhoid fever patients to the hospitals. From the West Central district came 100 cases, giving a ratio of 31.32 per 10,000 of the population, the Municipality of Newtown furnishing no less than 67 of the cases. The insanitary condition of this district has been recently pointed out in a report by Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. Stayton.

From the Eastern district 101 cases were sent to hospital, the ratio being 26.92 per 10,000 of the population. From a return recently furnished to the Colonial Secretary it appears that in the boroughs of Paddington and Woollahra, out of a total of 5,264 houses no less than 4,384 were provided with cess-pits, a method of dealing with night-soil which has been shown to be in the highest degree insanitary.

It would have been more satisfactory if a return could have been given of the cases of typhoid fever actually occurring in the city and suburbs during the period in question, but, owing to the absence of any provision for the registration of infectious disease, no data exist on which such a return could be founded.

It is proposed to continue these returns annually, so as to record all the available information on this important matter.

In submitting returns for previous years, the Board pointed out that typhoid fever is essentially a preventable disease, and makes its ravages chiefly among the younger and more vigorous members of the community. By well-concerted sanitary measures the prevalence of the disease can be very greatly reduced, and much sickness and death may be spared to the community. The necessity for a Public Health Act is, in the opinion of the Board, more and more urgent.

By order,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary to the Board of Health.

Sydney, 10 April, 1889.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

TYPHOID FEVER IN SYDNEY AND SUBURBS.
(FROM 1876 TO 1888.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 23 May, 1889.

The Secretary to the Board of Health to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street, Sydney, 12 April, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to forward you the enclosed paper on the prevalence and mortality of Typhoid Fever in the City of Sydney and Suburbs during last thirteen years, which has been prepared from the records in this Office for the information of the Colonial Secretary.

As this paper is of much public interest the Board would suggest that it be placed upon the tables of both Houses of Parliament.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

[Enclosure.]

TYPHOID Fever in the City of Sydney and its Suburbs from 1876 to 1888.

THE accompanying tables, which have been carefully prepared for the information of the Colonial Secretary, contain certain interesting facts with reference to the prevalence and mortality of typhoid fever in the city of Sydney and suburbs during the last thirteen years, and are a continuation of returns previously furnished, completed to the 31st December last.

In table I a statement is given of the number of deaths in each month of the ten years ending 31st December, 1885, together with the ratio calculated per 100,000 of the population, as estimated on the 30th June in each year. From this it will be seen that during the decennial period there was a very large increase in the mortality from this disease, viz., from 46.07 per 100,000 in 1876 to 102.17 in 1885.

Table II gives a similar statement for 1886, 1887, and 1888. From this it will be seen that the mortality from typhoid fever has of late undergone considerable and progressive diminution; thus in 1886 the rate per 100,000 was 90.90; in 1887 it was 58.11; and in 1888, it was 51.42.

Table III, which contains a return of the number of cases of typhoid fever admitted to the metropolitan hospitals of Sydney, and of the number of deaths which have occurred in these institutions during 1886, 1887, and 1888. From this it appears that there were 814 cases admitted, with 128 deaths; in 1887 there were 598 cases with 81 deaths; and in 1888 there were 648 cases with 82 deaths; the death rates being 15.72, 13.54, and 12.65 per cent. on cases admitted during each year respectively.

From these figures it will be noted with much satisfaction that the death rates have been progressively diminishing for the past three years, and that, although the number of cases admitted in 1888 is greater by 50 than that of cases admitted in 1887, the number of deaths is practically the same. Experience has shown that the chances of recovering from typhoid fever are very much increased if the patients are placed under suitable treatment in the earlier stages of the disease.

Table IV shows the number of persons suffering from typhoid fever who were admitted to the metropolitan hospitals during the twelve months ending December 31st, 1888, arranged according to the localities from which they were removed, together with a calculation of the ratio of cases per each 10,000 of the population.

Table V shows the deaths which took place in the hospitals among the cases mentioned in the previous table; in this it has not been deemed necessary to calculate the ratio per 10,000.

From the two latter returns it appears that the West Central and Eastern districts have supplied by far the largest proportion of typhoid fever patients to the hospitals. From the West Central district came 106 cases, giving a ratio of 31.32 per 10,000 of the population, the Municipality of Newtown furnishing no less than 67 of the cases. The insanitary condition of this district has been recently pointed out in a report by Dr. Ashburton Thompson and Mr. Stayton.

From the Eastern district 101 cases were sent to hospital, the ratio being 26.92 per 10,000 of the population. From a return recently furnished to the Colonial Secretary it appears that in the boroughs of Paddington and Woollahra, out of a total of 5,264 houses no less than 4,384 were provided with cess-pits, a method of dealing with night-soil which has been shown to be in the highest degree insanitary.

It would have been more satisfactory if a return could have been given of the cases of typhoid fever actually occurring in the city and suburbs during the period in question, but, owing to the absence of any provision for the registration of infectious disease, no data exist on which such a return could be founded.

It is proposed to continue these returns annually, so as to record all the available information on this important matter.

In submitting returns for previous years, the Board pointed out that typhoid fever is essentially a preventable disease, and makes its ravages chiefly among the younger and more vigorous members of the community. By well-concerted sanitary measures the prevalence of the disease can be very greatly reduced, and much sickness and death may be spared to the community. The necessity for a Public Health Act is, in the opinion of the Board, more and more urgent.

By order,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary to the Board of Health.

Sydney, 10 April, 1880.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

ALLEGED NUISANCE NEAR SPARKE'S BRIDGE, BOROUGH OF ALEXANDRIA.

(CORRESPONDENCE IN REFERENCE TO THE.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 3 July, 1889.

RETURN to an Order made by the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 4th June, 1889, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers, correspondence, and documents in connection with
“and hearing upon the alleged nuisance near Sparke's Bridge, in the Borough
“of Alexandria, including the Report of the Medical Officer of the Govern“ment thereon.”

(Mr. Joseph Abbott.)

Mr. J. A. Smith to The Health Officer.

Dear Sir,

Mitchell Road, Alexandria, Sydney, 22 March, 1887.

I see in the Evening News of to-night that a visit has been made to some part of this borough with respect to its sanitary condition. I do hope that some of the officials would visit the south end of the Mitchell Road when the horrible noxious odours of the offensive trades were floating about in the atmosphere. To the fireholders who are stationed here it is something awful, the nuisance we submit to. As to rented houses and cottages, although they are the cheapest in and about Sydney, they stand empty, as none but those who are compelled will reside about here. It is a sad thing for parents to hear their little ones complaining about the horrid, sickening stench they have to endure. Cannot you, sir, move in the matter to see if the noxious trades site could be at once utilized for its special purpose of these trades? Being so very near the city, it is absolutely needful that they should be moved away at once. Apologizing for troubling you, and hoping you will use your powerful influence in the removal of this pestilential nuisance.

I remain, &c.,
(on behalf of many others),

J. A. SMITH.

Mr. Smith might call and see me (say) Friday, at 2 p.m.—H.N.M., 30/3/87. Requested to do so.—E.S., 30/3/87.

The Secretary, Board of Health, to Mr. J. A. Smith.

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 30 March, 1887.

MEMO.—Re your letter of the 22nd, Dr. MacLaurin would like you to call and see him at these offices, on Friday, the 1st proximo.

EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

Mr. J. A. Smith to The Secretary, Board of Health.

Dear Sir,

Mitchell Road, Alexandria, 31 March, 1887.

Re your letter of yesterday's date, I beg to say that owing to slackness of trade, I have been, and am at the present, working amongst the unemployed at Kogarah. The wages being so small, I am not able to afford to lose time to see Dr. MacLaurin. Any one residing about here can corroborate my statements statements as to the abominable nuisance of the vicinity of the boiling-down establishment. A new place, called Godfrey's, has just been started in the immediate vicinity of about fifty dwellings, and only persons who are compelled will reside about here. We learn that the above establishment had a place at Cook's River, and they had to move. Just imagine coming nearer Sydney with such a business! Hoping the Noxious Trades site will soon be used for its legitimate purpose.

I have, &c.,
JOHN A SMITH.

Perhaps the Chief Medical Inspector will inquire into this matter when he has finished with the business at present in hand.—H.N.M., B.C., 1/4/87. The Chief Medical Inspector, 87-247.

The Chief Medical Inspector, Board of Health, to The President, Board of Health.

Health Department, N.S.W., 13 April, 1887.

I VISITED Mitchell Road and inquired into the nuisance referred to in the attached papers yesterday afternoon. I entered Green's factory in company with Mr. Green, junior. I observed many houses standing empty in the immediate neighbourhood, and as the complainant avers that this is due to the nuisance, and as this, if true, would be good evidence of nuisance, I think that before making final report the following persons should be written to:—Mr. W. Hutchinson, Bond-street; Mr. George Hudson (Hudson Bros.); Mr. Phillips, auctioneer, Newtown, who are said to be owners of, or agents for, many of these houses. The letter should run somewhat as follows:—"The attention of the Board of Health having been drawn to the state of various parts of the Borough of Alexandria, the Chief Inspector has been directed to make an inspection. He has observed many houses standing empty about the southern end of Mitchell Road, some of which he thinks he noticed empty nearly two years ago. He understands that you are interested in some of the property referred to; and I have the honor to inquire whether you are aware of any special reason why the houses do not let, and to ask you to be good enough to communicate it to the Board."

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON,
Chief Medical Inspector.

Letters written.—E.S., 13/4/87. Approved.—H.N.M., 13/4/87. The gentlemen referred to by you have been communicated with.—E.S., B.C., 14/4/87. The Chief Medical Inspector.

The Secretary, Board of Health, to Mr. G. Hudson.

Sir,

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 13 April, 1887.

The attention of the Board of Health having been drawn to the state of various parts of the Borough of Alexandria, the Chief Medical Inspector has been directed to make an inspection. He has observed many houses standing empty about the southern end of Mitchell Road; some of which, he thinks he noticed empty nearly two years ago. He understands that you are interested in some of the property referred to; and I have the honor to inquire whether you are aware of any special reason in connection with the immediate surroundings why the houses do not let, and to ask you to be good enough to communicate it to the Board.

I have, &c.,
EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

[Letters similar to the above were sent to Mr. T. Phillips, auctioneer, 132 King-street North, Newtown, and to Mr. W. A. Hutchinson, 1 Foy's Chambers, Bond-street.]

Mr. T. Phillips to The Secretary, Board of Health.

Sir,

Newtown, 15 April, 1887.

I am in receipt of your favour, dated 13th instant, with reference to the number of untenanted houses situate in the Mitchell Road, Alexandria, and surrounding neighbourhood.

It is true that a number of those houses at the southern end of the Mitchell Road have been empty for close upon two years. The tenants I have had from time to time have always left for the same reason, i.e., they cannot stand the abominable stench arising from the boiling-down works in the immediate vicinity. In my opinion it is most injurious to health and harbour of disease which the Government should at once have removed to some outlying district. There is not a doubt but the municipality suffers greatly through this evil.

If my views were carried out, I have no hesitation in saying the district would become thriving and populous. The removal of the boiling-down works by the Government would be a boon alike to the property-owners and inhabitants.

I have, &c.,
T. LAMBERT PHILLIPS.

The Chief Medical Inspector, Board of Health, to The President, Board of Health.

Nuisance from Boiling-down at Mitchell Road.

Health Department, N.S.W., 20 April, 1887.

It being more than a fortnight since letters of inquiry were despatched in accordance with my memorandum of the 13th instant, and one answer having been received from Mr. T. Lambert Phillips, of Brown-street, Newtown, an owner of house property in the neighbourhood, of the nuisance complained of; which letter corroborates the statements made by the complainant, Mr. J. A. Smith, in his letters attached; I now submit the following report.

I visited the locality on the 12th instant. At the south end of Mitchell Road I found three boiling-down establishments within a rather short distance of each other, established on the banks of a creek. I was informed that they belong respectively to Messrs. Green, Eve, and Godfrey; all are long established; Mr. Smith says, however, that Godfrey's is a new place. Possibly he refers to Mr. Green, who who has occupied his premises only six months, but who took them over from a former proprietor who had been there many years. I smelt a little of the very offensive smell which generally issues from such establishments, and while I was still at a considerable distance from them; but the neighbours told me that the nuisance is not constant, but is chiefly observed when the boilers are being emptied for recharge, or when, while the boiling continues, steam and hot water escape from them. I spoke to one resident who has a stable, and who said that he had bought his property and must therefore stop where he is; but that if he were a tenant he would at once remove out of reach of the stench. I noticed many empty houses in the neighbourhood, and some of these (as already mentioned) I remember seeing empty nearly two years ago. Mr. Smith says, and Mr. Phillips agrees, that it is the smell which prevents the houses from letting, or, rather, drive away tenants who have entered into occupation of them; and other persons whom I spoke to gave the same reason; generally explaining (as in the case already given) that they had themselves built their own houses, and therefore could not move. It seems to me that there is very good evidence in this case of the existence of a very serious nuisance, which, whether dangerous to health or not, is the cause of great pecuniary loss to property-owners and to the borough.

I entered Mr. Green's place, and, in company with Mr. Green, junior, went over it. It appeared tidy and clean in an ordinary sense. But there were large quantities of greaves and bones which had been boiled, stacked, and awaiting grinding; these, of course, were offensive. The boiling is done in two upright vessels (having a steam-gauge, but no safety-valve); and there is no arrangement for drawing the vapours to the furnace; and these, when the boilers are opened, must escape into the air. Steam from these boilers is led to a tank, where it is subjected to some condensation; but it is not perfectly condensed, and no doubt some of the smell complained of arises from it. I believe that this business can be so conducted as to cause no offensive smell outside the factory, and that the necessary appliances are not in use at this establishment. I did not visit the other factories, but possibly similar remarks may apply to them.

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON,
Chief Medical Inspector.

The Board of Health.—H.N.M., 2/5/87. Read at a meeting of the Board held on 4 May, 1887.—E.S.

The Secretary, Board of Health, to The Council Clerk, Alexandria.

Sir,

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 6 May, 1887.

I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to forward for your Council's information a copy of a report made by the Chief Medical Inspector of this Board upon a nuisance from boiling-down establishments at Mitchell Road, within your municipality, with a suggestion that your Council will take such steps as they may think desirable to remedy the evils of this serious nuisance.

I have, &c.,
EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

[Copy of the Chief Medical Inspector's report of the 20th April, 1887, forwarded herewith.]

The Secretary, Board of Health, to Mr. T. Phillips.

Sir,

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 6 May, 1887.

Referring to your letter of the 15th ultimo, I have the honor to inform you that I have this day forwarded to the Municipal Council of Alexandria a copy of a report made by the Chief Medical Inspector of this Board, upon a nuisance from boiling-down establishments at Mitchell Road, in Alexandria, with a suggestion that they should take such steps as they may think desirable to remedy the evils of this serious nuisance.

I have, &c.,
EDMUND SAGER,
Secretary.

Mr. W. A. Hutchinson to The Secretary, Board of Health.

Dear Sir,

Bond-street, Sydney, 13 May, 1887.

I have to acknowledge your letter, 87-2561, dated 13th April, in reference to the continued untenanted condition of a number of houses near the southern end of Mitchell Road, in the Borough of Alexandria. While I think the houses in that quarter of the city are outside the range of 'bus, tram, or railway, and the roads are in such a deplorable state, that they militate against the letting of the houses; but I think the chief cause is the fearful smell arising from the boiling-downs in the neighbourhood. It is absurd that such like works should be permitted in a populous portion of the city, as such establishments boil down the refuse from the butchers of the city, and such refuse, especially in summer time, is in a decayed condition before reaching them, and dangerous to the health as well as fearfully offensive to the inhabitants.

I have, &c.,
W. A. HUTCHINSON.

Inform Mr. Hutchinson of the action taken in this matter.—H.N.M., 16/5/87. Done.—E.S., 16/5/87.

Mr. W. Koet to The Board of Health.

Gentlemen,

No. 11, Pleasant-street, Macdonaldtown, 25 April, 1888.

I beg to draw your attention to the abominable nuisance allowed to exist between the boundaries of Macdonaldtown and Alexandria Municipality, of some two or three boiling-downs. The stench arising from them after sundown is something unbearable, and must be the cause of a considerable amount of sickness. I have, over and over again, drawn the attention of the Council to the matter, but they tell me they have no power in the matter, as it is outside of their boundary; so that thousands of people have to draw out a miserable existence in stench and discomfort for the benefit of two or three individuals, who do not even take the trouble to keep their places clean, and one in particular allows piles piles of rotten bones stacked about his yard exposed to the sun without cover, from which the stench arises from after sundown; so I hope you will take this matter into your earliest consideration, and abate this wretched nuisance.

I have, &c.,

W. KOET.

The C.M.I.—H.N.M., 26/4/88. Herewith.—J.A.T., 27/4/88.

The Chief Medical Inspector, Board of Health, to The President, Board of Health.
Complaint, re Boiling-down Nuisance, at Alexandria.

27 April, 1888.

THE accompanying letter appears to refer to the same nuisance which I inquired into and reported on 29th April, 1887.

Complaint was then made both by an aggrieved resident and an owner of houses in the neighbourhood, which he said stood empty, because successive tenants had been driven away by the smells; and I remarked that it was within my knowledge that many houses had for two years before that stood empty for one reason or another. I also ascertained that the factories, which are the cause of the nuisance, are all long established there, and that population has gradually approached them, until a large number of houses now stand within a short distance of them. I visited one of these factories, and I saw that the business is conducted without proper appliances; I learned that the others are similarly imperfect; and I pointed out that, although this trade is under the circumstances in which it is here actually carried on, a nuisance, which, in my opinion, should be at once abated, the prevention of nuisance from it is merely a matter of money to be expended in the purchase of the well-known machinery devised for this purpose and in general use in large cities.

There does not appear to be any ground for supposing that a farther inspection would reveal any new facts; but, for reasons which may be gathered from the above statement, it appears to me that the case is one which may be deemed suitable for Government prosecution, since a trial would draw attention to the fact that such trades can, with proper appliances, be carried on without nuisance in populous neighbourhoods, and are not necessarily and inevitably noxious. This would be an important result; it would tend to render prosecutions for other nuisances of the same class less hazardous than at present.

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON, M.D.,

Chief Medical Inspector.

The Secretary, Board of Health, to The Principal Under Secretary.

Boiling-down Nuisance at Alexandria.

Sir,

Board of Health Office, 127, Macquarie-street, Sydney, 5 May, 1888.

I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to request that the enclosed papers, respecting a nuisance, dangerous to the public health, be forwarded to the Crown Law officers for the consideration of the abatement of this nuisance by law.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

[Enclosures.]

Sir,

Redfern Police Station, 15 August, 1888.

I have the honor to report for your information, that the part of Alexandria where the boiling-down establishments complained of are situate, is very low-lying ground, drained by Sho'a's Creek.

The places referred to were evidently erected at a time when population was but small in the locality, and at present, the number of empty houses, especially of large size, is very noticeable, but whether this proceeds from the proximity of the works, or that the building of the houses was an unfortunate speculation, is hard to say.

In my opinion the locality is not suitable for the erection and letting of the better class of property, the only houses required being what would be convenient for the families of men employed at or about the works, and also resident tradespeople, who from motives of financial interest, and perhaps becoming habituated to any smell arising from the factories, &c., would not be likely to make complaints.

In addition to the places referred to, a butterine factory has recently been started, and the erection of a candle factory in connection with Mr. Godfrey's establishment, is in contemplation, and will probably attract a number of men and their families to this part of the borough. I have frequently called at the places spoken of and found them as clean as I believe they can be kept, and have reason to think that the proprietors (short of having the kind of machinery suggested by the Chief Medical Inspector) use their best endeavours to minimise the evil.

It must, however, be admitted that at times, the effluvia from the places can be noticed, but the inhabitants of Alexandria do not seem disposed to make complaints respecting the matter. With regard to a prosecution of the proprietors, I can only say, speaking as a servant of the Government, that I do not believe that any successful result would follow, owing to the want of support from the Mayor and Aldermen of Alexandria, who evidently do not see their way clear to institute or assist in a prosecution; and also the absence of any specific complaints from the inhabitants of the borough, many of whom are employed at the places referred to.

In

In my opinion the best course to follow, at all events until the establishment of a site for noxious trades, would be to request the co-operation of the officers of the Health Board and the Council, in seeing that strict attention is paid in those places to the details of management, viz., the reception and storage of the bones, offal, fat, &c., and the letting off of the "digesters and condensers," all of which if neglected, or conducted in a way regardless of the public health, can only result in a nuisance and afford good reason for complaint.

R. Anderson, Esq., Inspector.

ALFRED POTTER,
Sub-Inspector.

Forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police. I do not think that a prosecution in this case is advisable at present.—R. ANDERSON, Inspector, 17/8/88. The Principal Under Secretary.—G. READ, A.I.-G., 17/8/88.

Sir,

I have the honor herewith to return you papers, re boiling-down establishments, Alexandria, and I am also instructed to forward you the enclosed copy of the Mayor's report to the Council on the subject. The report in question was received, and it was determined to recommend that Messrs. Godfrey and Munroe be granted permission to connect with the sewer.

Mayor's Report.—Complaint re Boiling-down Nuisances at Alexandria.

Gentlemen,

Town Hall, Borough of Alexandria, 13 July, 1888.

Owing to a number of complaints having been made to the police regarding offensive smells arising from the boiling-down establishments within the borough, I deemed it my duty to inquire into the matter and acquaint you with the result. Accordingly, in conjunction with the Inspector of Nuisances, I visited all these establishments on the 10th ultimo.

The first place inspected was Mr. Godfrey's and I made arrangements the day previous for a digester to be blown off in our presence. I may here explain that a digester is a large upright boiler in which the meat and bones are cooked by steam, and from which, in this case, pipes lead to the furnace for the purpose of destroying the gases that arise during the process of cooking. There was no smell outside the works, and but very little on them. In fact, none that exception could be taken to, if I omit the smell from the bones. When the liquid called "soup" was blown off into the receiving tank there was a smell which lasted for about 30 minutes. Mr. Godfrey informed me that he cooks during the night only, and blows off the soup at about 4 a.m. The premises were very clean, and if Mr. Godfrey could make arrangements to connect his premises with the sewer, into which the "soup" could be blown, I am certain all grounds of complaint would be removed.

The next premises visited was that of Mr. Munroe's. The digesters at this place are not blown off, but are allowed to cool before being emptied. During the process of cooking the gas is allowed to escape into the open air. The premises were clean, and if connected with the sewer would be satisfactory.

I found the premises of Mr. Green in a very clean state, and he affirms that no offensive gas escapes. The digesters are blown off into an enclosed tank with a pipe leading across a stream into another tank, where it is allowed to cool, and is then let off at midnight in the form of cold water. There was a digester blown off in my presence, and I could not detect any smell during my stay upon the premises. After leaving, however, and when about 100 yards along the Mitchell Road, I noticed a very strong smell, but whether it came from Mr. Green's or not I am not in a position to say, as it was quite dark at the time, and therefore impossible for me to see which establishment was giving off the vapour.

Messrs. Eve Brothers do a great deal of their boiling in open pots, hence the gas is continually escaping. The premises were fairly clean.

In a report made by the Chief Medical Officer on 27th April last, he states that "The prevention of nuisance is merely a matter of money to be expended in the purchase of the well-known machinery." I think it a pity that particulars of this machinery were not given, as I feel sure that the owners of these premises are ignorant of its existence.

In conclusion, I may add that at the present time owners of boiling-down works here have no security. They may be removed at any time; hence it is scarcely fair to ask them to expend large sums of money in improvements.

J. R. DACEY,
Mayor.

Sir,

I have the honor to inform you, with reference to the complaint made of a nuisance proceeding from the boiling-down establishments in Alexandria, that it would appear that the prosecution of the offenders in that respect comes within the scope and powers of the Alexandria Borough By-laws (Nos. 40 and 41), and should it be thought necessary to officially inform the officers of the borough to that effect, that they might also be assured of every assistance, if required, from the Redfern Police.

J. Ryeland, Esq., Superintendent.

Sir,

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 6 September, 1888.

Referring to a report by Mr. Sub-Inspector Potter, dated 15th ultimo, forwarded to you, and transmitted to this Board through the Principal Under Secretary, on the subject of the nuisance caused by certain boiling-down establishments at Alexandria, I have the honor to request, by direction of the Board of Health, that you will be good enough to instruct that officer to ascertain, from time to time, whether any nuisance arises from the establishments referred to.

Secretary.

Extract from S. M. Herald, 19 November, 1888.

A CORRESPONDENT, residing in Alexandria, writes:—"Within a quarter of a mile of my residence, on the eastern side, is a boiling-down establishment, to the south. Within the same distance, in another direction, is a similar establishment, whilst on the western side, at a similar distance, stands a piggery of large extent. I live in a thickly populated portion of Alexandria, and providing the wind is not northerly, the residents there are treated daily to nauseating and pestilential smells from the establishments mentioned. The heat this week has been intense, and it would have been a treat to have been able to open the doors and windows in the evenings to admit the cool air; but this was rendered utterly impossible in consequence of the effluvia with which the air was charged." The writer hopes the attention of the City Health Officer will be called to these facts.

Perhaps Dr. Thompson might inspect and report.—H.N.M., B.C., 19/11/88. The C.M.I. Herewith.—J.A.T., 28/11/88.

The Chief Medical Inspector, Board of Health, to The President of Board of Health.

Boiling-down Establishments in Alexandria.

27 November, 1888.

In company with Sub-Inspector Potter and the Inspector of Nuisances for Alexandria (Mr. Parr), I this morning revisited the boiling-down works situated in Alexandria, and belonging to Messrs. Green, Eve, Godfrey, and Munroe, respectively. [I also visited a piggery, which may be that referred to in the attached anonymous letter to the Herald; but as it is in the district of Macdonaldtown, and as I am going to inquire into Father Doyle's complaint of a piggery in that district, I do not refer to it herein.]

Green's.—As at my visit of April, 1887, I found this place very clean and tidy. Mr. Green's arrangement for condensing the vapours from the digesters in course of emptying them seem complete and likely to avoid all nuisance from that source; but, perhaps, some may arise when the manhole is opened and the bones and greaves taken out. This would be least if the digester were allowed to cool thoroughly before opening it. The sole smell perceptible here arose from the bones, which were either stacked for grinding or being ground. Without wishing to detract from the efforts Mr. Green makes to keep his works free from nuisance, which in fact are fairly successful, I must observe that this is a rather small place where but the two operations of tallow-making and bone-grinding are done.

Eve's.—At this place tallow-making, oil-making, wool-washing, and sometimes tanning, are done. Apparently a larger amount of work is done here than at Green's. The works seem cramped; they are ill-constructed and have such flooring as prevents cleanliness; and they were very dirty and offensive. Little care is taken to avoid nuisance. Oil, I am informed, must be made in open vessels, and from these offensive vapour rises; this, at some expense, might of course be collected and either condensed or burnt, by means of some such appliance as varnish makers use for a similar purpose.

Godfrey's is a much larger establishment, where tallow and oil are made and bones ground. It seems well-arranged and fairly well kept. It is farther removed from neighbouring dwellings than the two former, and I am not aware that any complaints of nuisance have been made against it.

Munroe's.—Here the arrangements for boiling down are primitive and the establishment is dirty. Tanning is done in another set of buildings. This is a small place.

The works last named stand close to the southern outfall sewer, and, perhaps, are far enough from inhabited dwellings to avoid complaint of any nuisance that may arise. But whether this be so or not, Munroe's should be kept cleaner, and I am of opinion he might fairly be called upon to use such apparatus for condensing the offensive vapours from the digesters as Green uses; this would not be necessary, I believe, if he allowed those vessels to get quite cold before opening them; but, while I do not know whether whether he lets them get cold or not, but consider it improbable that he can afford time for it, it would not be possible to make sure that thorough cooling was always waited for. It would therefore be better, I think, in such establishments to insist upon digesters being blown off and the vapours being condensed in a suitable apparatus. I do not think Mr. Godfrey has efficient condensing apparatus. The arrangement referred to by the Mayor of Alexandria in his report, dated 13th July last, is one for burning off the vapour and foul air displaced from the charge when heat is first applied to the digester, and is, of course, shut down after the first few minutes, the digester being, in fact, Papin's invention, designed for stewing under pressure.

Mr. Eve's place appear to me so constructed as to become inevitably a nuisance, whether the vapours above referred to be condensed or not. It might undoubtedly be kept cleaner than it is kept; but the irregular and broken flooring would prevent any high standard of cleanliness being attained.

In conclusion, I observe that the offensive smell given off by such establishments arises from the following causes:—(1) From the raw material; (2) from the vapours which escape from the digested material when its constituent parts are exposed to the air hot, and these constituent parts are tallow, liquor, and bones and greaves; (3) from the open coppers in which oil is made; and (4) from the dry bones and greaves when stacked in quantity, and especially in course of grinding. Offence from the raw material and from dry bones, &c., can be avoided by storing these materials in comparatively closed chambers, ventilated by exhaustion, so that there is always an inflow of fresh air from the outside; the delivery being under a furnace in which the foul air withdrawn is consumed. I do not know of any other plan. I have already indicated the way in which offence from the heated material in the digesters may be got rid of when those are emptied, namely, by insisting upon their always being blown off and the vapours condensed. Offence from the oil-making vats might, of course, be avoided by covering those vats and exhausting the vapour, either with a fan, or perhaps, by furnace draft alone; if the contents require stirring or frequent inspection, there is a form of cover which allows of this, and which I can describe if necessary; the vats for receiving the hot tallow should also be similarly covered. The Mayor observes that these factories have no security—by which, I take him to mean no security against action for causing nuisance, and that therefore the proprietors cannot risk much money in such improvements as would avoid nuisance. But this reasoning has little force. Boiling-down is an offensive trade; that is to say, it cannot be conducted without there being offence on the premises. But actions for nuisance can be supported, I believe, only if the nuisance extends beyond the premises, and it is far from inevitable that it should so extend, provided the premises are of reasonable area. If, therefore, the owners expended money in confining offensive smells within the walls of their factories they would have the security necessary to warrant that expenditure. I think I am not wrong, however, in tracing the most offensive, and farthest reaching, smell issuing from them to the hot contents of the digesters, and this may be avoided without very great expense, as Mr. Green is, I think, able to show. This measure of improvement should, in my opinion, be insisted on, if no more is demanded.

Thus far I have spoken of nuisances caused by the necessary trade processes, and the manner in which they may at all events be confined to the factory. But there is another and gratuitous source of offence with which the Inspector of Nuisances has power to deal, and with which he should not be deterred from dealing just because the trade itself is offensive. I mean the neglect of ordinary cleanliness which I observed at Eve's and Munroe's. There can be no doubt that the Council should insist upon such a construction of flooring as at least admits of washing down, and that the Inspector should insist upon its being washed down regularly, and on the premises and apparatus being kept scrupulously clean. The accumulation of filth is no part of this business, and should be as strictly prevented as on any other premises. It is necessary, therefore, that smooth and unbroken flooring should be insisted upon everywhere except where the casks are filled with the finished tallow; and that in any other department where at present there is no flooring, a suitable kind should be forthwith laid.

Sir,

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 18 December, 1888.

Referring to certain correspondence which has recently appeared in the Sydney Morning Herald respecting the alleged nuisances caused by certain boiling-down establishments within your borough, I have the honor, by direction of the Board of Health, to inform you that, in accordance with their instructions, the Chief Medical Inspector of the Board has made a thorough examination of the establishments referred to, and to forward you herewith, for the information and guidance of your Council, a copy of the recommendations made by him with a view to the nuisances being minimised.

I have, &c.,

Sir,

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 24 January, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction, to forward you herewith a copy of a report on the dairy premises of Mr. John Andes, whose son was admitted to the Coast Hospital on the 18th instant, suffering from typhoid fever.

I am also directed to request you to be good enough to favour me with a reply to my letter of the 12th ultimo, transmitting a copy of a report on the boiling-down establishments in your district, and to draw the attention of your Council to the question of the unsuitability of the situation for dairy premises.

[Enclosure.]

CONSEQUENT on the admission to the Coast Hospital on the 18th January, 1889, of one John Andes, suffering from typhoid fever, an officer of the Board of Health visited and inspected, on the 15th, the dairy premises of his father John Andes, situated in the Borough of Alexandria, near the brickworks, at a place known as the Waterloo Flats, and reports as follows:—

Mr. Andes was absent from home. His wife states, that their son, aged 18 years, who is an only child, resides with them, but was employed at the brickworks in St. Peters. He took ill on Sunday, the 13th instant, and three days later went to see Dr. Kingsbury of Newtown, who advised his removal to an hospital. Mr. Andes is milking eleven cows; his dairy stands in a grass paddock; the buildings are of wood, and are rather old; stalls paved with brick, and drained out to an adjoining street. Water is obtained from a well sunk in the paddock near the dwelling. Earth closet, emptied by Council. The whole of the premises, including dwelling, were inspected, and everything about the place was found clean and tidy.

The officer desires to bring under the notice of the Board that in this locality are several dairies, also a number of boiling-downs and wool-washing establishments. Yesterday evening, and it is said to be so at all times, the atmosphere was loaded with a very disagreeable effluvia emanating from these establishments.

The Council Clerk, St. Peters, to The Secretary, Board of Health.

Sir,

Town Hall, St. Peters, 20 February, 1889.

I am directed by this Council to draw your attention to the offensive smell arising from Shea's Creek and boiling-down establishments in close proximity, also to habitations along the creek, near Ricketty-street. The stench is such that complaints have been received by this Council from residents in the borough; and as these places are in the Borough of Alexandria, which adjoins this borough, this Council has written to the Alexandria Council to take some steps to abate the nuisance complained of. The Council, therefore, urge that some immediate steps be taken before an epidemic breaks out, to the danger of human life.

Board of Health Office, Sydney, 7 March, 1889.

Referring to your letter of the 20th ultimo, respecting the nuisance caused by boiling-down establishments situated within the Borough of Alexandria, I have the honor to inform you that this Board has repeatedly brought under the notice of that Council the nuisances caused by these establishments, and has urged it to take some steps to abate such nuisances. The Board addressed the Alexandria Council on this subject on the 18th December and 24th January, but to neither communication has any reply yet been received. For the information of your Council I beg to forward you herewith a copy of a report which was furnished to the Alexandria Council on the 18th of December last.

Sir,

Council Chambers, Macdonaldtown, 12 March, 1889.

I have the honor, by direction of the Mayor of Macdonaldtown, Andrew Murray, Esq., to draw your immediate attention to the intolerable nuisance, caused by boiling-down establishments in the adjoining Borough of Alexandria to the inhabitants of this municipality.

The stench from these places at times is unbearable, and certainly most injurious to the public health, and the removal or abatement of this public nuisance would confer a boon upon the whole of the residents of Macdonaldtown and the surrounding district.

The Council Clerk, St. Peters, to The Secretary, Board of Health.

Sir,

Town Hall, St. Peters, 20 March, 1889.

I am directed by the Mayor to acknowledge receipt of your letter, dated 7th March, also enclosing copy of report furnished to Alexandria Council by your Medical Adviser, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, which copy was read at the last meeting of this Council, held 18th March.

The report in itself is most carefully compiled, and should be of most valuable assistance to the Alexandria Council in trying to minimise these noxious vapours which arise from these establishments. I may state that this Council is leaving nothing undone and sparing no effort to keep the sanitary condition of this borough in a good state, and their results are crowned with success.

Parliamentary Question.

11. MR. JOSEPH ABBOTT to ask THE COLONIAL SECRETARY,—

- (1.) Is it a fact that a nuisance exists in the vicinity of Sparke's Bridge, in the Borough of Alexandria?
- (2.) Will the Government cause inquiry to be made, for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the nuisance (if any), and obtain a report thereon?
- (3.) If, upon inquiry, a nuisance is found to exist in this locality, will the Government lay upon the Table of this House, the report, showing (1) the nature of the nuisance, (2) its cause, and (3) its effects upon the health and comfort of the residents in its neighbourhood?
- (4.) If, upon inquiry and report, a nuisance is found to exist in the abovenamed locality, will the Government take steps to have it removed or abated without unnecessary delay?

Will you be so good as to furnish me with the necessary information to enable the Colonial Secretary to reply to the above Question?—C.W., B.C., 18 May, 1889. The Medical Adviser to the Government.

P.S.—The Colonial Secretary is desirous of receiving the reply before 1 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday.

Will Dr. Ashburton Thompson please visit and make inquiries, so as to enable me to reply to Questions 1 and 3 herewith.—F.N.M., 20/5/89. Herewith.—J.A.P., 20/5/89.

Questions as to Nuisance at Sparke's Bridge, Alexandria (being a nuisance from boiling-down factories).
20 May, 1889.

A NUISANCE does exist in the vicinity of Sparke's Bridge, Alexandria. I made inquiry into the matter in 1887, and on two occasions in 1888, reports being dated 15th and 26th April, 1887, 27th April, 1888, and 27th November, 1888. The first afford evidence of damage to house property by this nuisance, and refer to certain boiling-down factories which cause it; the second makes further remarks upon the conduct of the same establishments, and suggests that the case is suitable for prosecution. The third deals with the establishments, and with the kind of business at considerable length, and shows that in one case the proprietor has taken effectual steps to prevent nuisance from his works, and recommends that the others should adopt similar expedients. A farther inspection this morning enables me to add to the last report the following with regard to Mr. Godfrey's factory. An offensive (and, as I am told, hot) effluent used to be conducted by earthenware pipes into Shea's Creek at a point distant from the works, and about mid-way between them and Sparke's Bridge; and there was considerable nuisance from this at the out-fall. These pipes have recently been removed. The above particulars answer the questions 1 to 3, except as to the effect of the nuisance on the health of the inhabitants. No means of making any practically useful statement of facts under this head are possessed by the Health Department; but it may be stated that, although the comfort of persons exposed to the effluvia which constitute the nuisance, is doubtless seriously interfered with, health is (in other parts) not found to be injured by it.

Reply:—

(1.) Yes.

(2.) Inquiry has been made, and a report thereon obtained.

The papers in this case are somewhat voluminous, but there does not appear to be any objection to laying them on the Table of the House. The matter has been already before the Attorney-General.

- (9.) Nuisance at Sparke's Bridge, Alexandria:—Mr. Joseph Abbott asked the Colonial Secretary,—
- (1.) Is it a fact that a nuisance exists in the vicinity of Sparke's Bridge, in the Borough of Alexandria?
 - (2.) Will the Government cause inquiry to be made, for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the nuisance (if any), and obtain a report thereon?
 - (3.) If, upon inquiry, a nuisance is found to exist in this locality, will the Government lay upon the Table of this House the report showing (1) the nature of the nuisance, (2) its cause, and (3) its effects upon the health and comfort of the residents in its neighbourhood?
 - (4.) If, upon inquiry and report, a nuisance is found to exist in the abovenamed locality, will the Government take steps to have it removed or abated without unnecessary delay?
- Sir Henry Parkes answered,—
- (1.) Yes.
 - (2.) Inquiry has been made, and a report thereon obtained.
 - (3.) The papers are somewhat voluminous; but there will be no objection to laying them upon the Table, if moved for in the ordinary way.
 - (4.) The matter shall be looked into.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

COMPARATIVE VIEW OF THE MORTALITY OF THE DIFFERENT COLONIES FROM CERTAIN DISEASES.

(RETURN.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 5 March, 1889.

[Address delivered at the Intercolonial Medical Congress, held in Melbourne, by H. N. MACLAURIN, M.D., LL.D., President of the Board of Health of New South Wales, as Chairman of the Section of Public Health, on the 10th January, 1889.]

WHEN I was requested to undertake the honorable duty of presiding over the section of Public Health in this Congress, I felt at first a good deal of difficulty in deciding upon the subject to which I should call your attention in this preliminary or introductory address. If I had consulted my own convenience alone, I should have probably selected the condition of public health legislation and administration in New South Wales, as being the matter with which I am the most familiar. But it seemed to me that while this would naturally be of the highest importance to myself and to my fellows from the oldest colony, it could yet hardly be regarded as of sufficient interest to gentlemen from the other colonies to justify me in making it the subject of an address which ought to be of a somewhat comprehensive and general character. I was further induced to look in another direction for my text by learning that from at least two gentlemen of New South Wales the members of the section will have the privilege of hearing papers on the sanitary laws and administration of that colony, both generally and with particular reference.

After casting about in every direction, it seemed to me that I could not do better than try to lay before you a short sketch of the health condition of the various Colonies of Australasia, including New Zealand, as deduced from the registration of mortality during the last few years. This will, at all events, be an attempt to lay a foundation for the labours of the sanitarians, by showing what the diseases really are which cause death in the various communities, and consequently what are the directions in which sanitary influences are most required. It is true that the materials at my command, being entirely drawn from mortality tables, cannot give a complete presentation of the actual diseased conditions of the colonies, for no account is taken of those cases of disease which recover. But there are no materials in existence from which such complete information could be obtained; and I think that, on the whole, the mortality of a colony may be taken, for the present, at least, to furnish a sufficiently accurate approximate estimate of the amount of disease of the colony. The plan adopted by me for this purpose has been to select from the statistical report of the various colonies the forty most prevalent causes of death in three successive years, excepting in Western Australia, for which I was in possession of materials for only the year 1886. For the other colonies the years selected were 1884, 1885, and 1886, excepting in the case of New South Wales, in which I had to take the years 1883, 1884, and 1885, as the complete returns for 1886 were not published in time for my inquiry.

The diseases have been first of all arranged in order of frequency, giving the total number of deaths from each registered cause; they have then been distributed, so as to show the prevalence of each cause of death during the different quinquennial periods of life; and, moreover, percentages have been calculated showing, 1st, the ratio of deaths from each cause to 100,000 of the estimated mean population published in the year to which the table refers, and secondly, the ratio which the number of deaths produced by each cause bears to the total number of deaths registered in the colony for the year. In addition, where the information was sufficient for the purpose, I have distributed the causes of death as far as possible between urban and rural districts, giving in each case similar percentages to those which were calculated for the whole Colony. Owing to the insufficiency of the information at my command, this has been possible for Australia only in the cases of New South Wales and Victoria, and even in those the method has not been altogether so satisfactory as I could wish. Thus, in New South Wales I am able to give tables for Sydney, for its suburbs, and for the country districts generally, but I am not able to separate from the country such important centres of population as Newcastle, Goulburn, or Bathurst, which are consequently included in the country, thereby somewhat influencing the character of the mortality return. Similarly, for Victoria, I am able to distribute the return into two parts, one embracing Melbourne and its suburbs, and the other the remainder of the colony, including the country districts as well as such large and important centres of population as Ballarat, Geelong, Sandhurst, and other great towns. There can be no doubt that by this the apparent mortality of the country districts of these colonies is somewhat increased owing to the influence of the large country towns; but at all events it is possible to ascertain the health condition of the great cities of Sydney and Melbourne and to frame an estimate of that of the country parts sufficiently approximate to be not devoid of interest to us.

It will be readily understood that the taking out of this information has been very laborious; for the single colony of New South Wales nearly 1,000 calculations were required, all of them being of an intricate and complex character; and for the other colonies similar calculations, although not in such large numbers, had also to be made. It would have been quite impossible for me, taken up as my time is with numerous other engagements, to have carried out this very intricate piece of work by myself; and I have here to express my hearty obligations to Mr. Sager, the Secretary of the Board of Health of New South Wales, to whose ready and kindly co-operation it is due that I am able to place these tables before you.

Apart from the mechanical difficulty necessarily attached to such an enormous series of calculations, another difficulty has arisen from the fact that the nosological system adopted is not quite the same for all the colonies, and in some cases seems to have been modified in particular colonies in the course of the period under consideration. And while I am on this subject I would also point out the great advantage that would result from a sanitary point of view if measures were taken in all the colonies to ensure the compulsory notification and registration of at least the more important infectious diseases. We know from our tables the mortality which results from typhoid fever, scarlet fever, and measles, but we have no means at present of estimating the misery which arises from the very numerous cases of such diseases which, however, do not end in death. It is easy for medical men to conceive the grief and pain arising from these causes, as well as the absolute loss to the community, even from a pecuniary point of view, but I am afraid that the importance of this matter has not yet been brought home to the public mind. If we were able to show in an exact form the actual suffering and loss which result from the infectious diseases alone, we might hope to be able to arouse the attention of the public and to convince them of the necessity of introducing those sanitary reforms which the profession of medicine have been so long and for the most part ineffectually demanding.

As in almost every other part of the world, consumption of the lungs figures in most of our returns as the greatest single cause of death. It is first in the colonies of New South Wales and Victoria for the whole period, and in South Australia for one year. In Queensland it occupies the second place, in Tasmania the third place excepting for one year, when it is second, and in the sparsely-peopled territory of Western Australia it is only the tenth in the order of fatality. In New Zealand it is at the head of the list for two years of the period, and for the third it is bracketed an equal first with accidental causes. Where I have been able to separate approximately the urban and rural districts (i.e., in New South Wales and Victoria), it will be found to head the list in Melbourne and suburbs, and in Sydney; in the country districts of Victoria and the suburbs of Sydney, it is found to take second place excepting one year when it is third; but in the rural districts of New South Wales it holds only the third place—being exceeded by old age and accidents. What is the relative prevalence of phthisis in the various colonies? To answer this, I have prepared the accompanying table for the year 1885, the latest common to all the colonies for which I had materials—excepting Western Australia, for which I have only materials for one year, viz., 1886. It gives the number of deaths per 100,000 living in each colony or district which I have been able to separate.

TABLE I.—1885.

District or Colony.	Per 100,000.
New South Wales	115.71
Sydney	222.87
Suburbs	197.46
Country	75.77
Victoria	141.94
Melbourne and Suburbs	239.16
Rest of Victoria	88.62
Queensland	186.23
Tasmania	108.38
South Australia	96.01
New Zealand	89.65
Western Australia (1886)	68.21

It will be seen from this table that the districts under consideration divide themselves into two classes, according to the prevalence of the disease. In the first, containing in order Melbourne, Sydney, suburbs of Sydney, and whole colony of Queensland, the percentage of cases is high, approaching to the average of the thickly-peopled countries of the old world. In the second division the percentage is low, the order being Tasmania, South Australia, New Zealand, Victoria outside Melbourne and suburbs, country parts of New South Wales, and lastly Western Australia, in which there were only twenty-seven deaths in all from phthisis, or at the rate of 68 per 100,000 living. In the last case, however, we should most likely consider the numbers involved too small to form an accurate standard, especially as the return is given for only one year.

Another method of regarding the prevalence of this disease is to estimate the ratio of deaths from phthisis to those from all causes. A table containing this information for all the colonies for the same period (i.e., 1885, excepting Western Australia, 1886) is here given.

TABLE

TABLE II.—1885.

Colony.	Ratio to deaths from all causes.
New South Wales.....	7.16
Sydney.....	11.00
Suburbs.....	7.80
Country.....	5.73
Victoria.....	9.63
Melbourne and Suburbs.....	11.87
Rest of Victoria.....	7.54
Queensland.....	9.51
Tasmania.....	7.12
South Australia.....	7.70
New Zealand.....	8.45
Western Australia (1886).....	3.35

As in the former table, Melbourne and Sydney head the list, in Melbourne the ratio of deaths from phthisis to those from all causes being 11.87, and in Sydney 11.00; these are followed by Queensland, 9.51; Victoria, as a whole, 9.63; New Zealand, 8.45; suburbs of Sydney, 7.80, and South Australia, 7.70; and gradually in a descending scale until we reach Western Australia, with 3.35. Here I may mention as a curious fact that, from an examination of the death returns of the Australian Mutual Provident Society for a period of thirty years, and of the Mutual Life Association of Australasia for a period of twenty years, I find the ratio which claims arising from deaths by phthisis bear to claims from all other causes whatsoever to be almost exactly the same in both societies, viz., 12.4 per cent. When we consider the very great care taken by both of these Associations in examining persons who propose to them for assurance, and when we take into account the identity of the percentage of loss to each society from phthisis, I think we may infer that this ratio of 12.4 may be taken as the percentage of deaths from phthisis which may be expected among any number of healthy adults, principally males, distributed over the greater part of Australasia. At first sight, considering that the ratio of deaths from phthisis to deaths from all other causes for the whole colony of Victoria is only 9.63, and for the colony of New South Wales is only 7.16, it would look as if the life-insurance companies cut a very poor figure with their 12.4, in spite of all the trouble they take to exclude unhealthy lives. But this is only apparent, for we must bear in mind that the life-assurance companies rarely accept proponents under the age of fifteen, and for the most part their entrants are several years older. They thus escape the very serious causes of death which operate for the most part in infancy and early childhood; and therefore phthisis, which is chiefly a disease of adult life, figures very highly among the death-dealing causes in the assured population. In order to make this more clear, I have taken out the ratio which deaths from phthisis bear to deaths from all causes occurring above the age of fifteen in the colonies of Victoria and New South Wales, and the results are as follows:—In Victoria, percentage of deaths from phthisis to deaths from all causes over fifteen years of age is 15.43, and in New South Wales, 13.40. Hence we see that the assurance companies' result is rather better than the average of Victoria and a shade better than that of New South Wales; and this confirms the opinion that most intelligent men have held, that the true use of medical examination for a life-assurance company is not to provide a class of entrants much above the average in the expectancy of life, but rather by the exclusion of diseased and unhealthy lives to prevent the expectancy of the whole class of entrants in any year falling below the average. I have calculated a similar ratio for Queensland and find it to be 16.01.

When we come to compare the condition of Australia with that of the countries of the old world we cannot be but struck with the comparative immunity from consumption which a considerable proportion of this country enjoys. If we take the trouble to glance down the very elaborate table given by Hirsch in the third volume of his Handbook of Geographical and Historical Pathology, we shall be pleased to find that the rural parts at least of Australia occupy a position with respect to this disease which will compare very favourably with most other countries in the globe. Even Queensland, which is much the worst of our colonies as a whole, would stand very well among European countries, being practically the same as Switzerland, in which the death-rate from phthisis is very low for Europe, and to some parts of which phthisical patients are occasionally sent by medical advice. And the more-favoured colonies (at all events in the country parts) will compare favourably with the rural portions of north-west Africa, which have long been celebrated for comparative immunity from phthisis.

It is but right, however, to bear in mind, on the other hand, that the urban portions of Australia possess no such immunity, and that Melbourne and Sydney show a very considerable proportion of phthisical deaths—the former city, with its suburbs, showing 2.39 deaths per 1,000 persons living, a proportion which, according to Hirsch, is nearly equal to that of many European cities, although, of course, much below many German and Austrian towns, in which phthisis seems to assume the proportions of a real plague.

It is useless to shut our eyes to the fact that consumption has got a footing among us, and that it is now one of our most important causes of death. How it is to be checked in its advances, and, if possible, lessened in its prevalence, are among the most important sanitary problems of the day.

It would take too long if I were here to go into this question. I would venture, however, to draw your attention to two matters:—1st, that phthisis is essentially a disease of towns, especially of great towns, and that, consequently, improvement of the hygienic conditions of great towns, more especially in ventilation, free space, and, not least, in good morals, will necessarily tend to the diminution of the phthisical death-rate; 2nd, the discoveries of the last few years with respect to the bacterial origin of phthisis ought surely to awaken the public from the apathy with which they continue to consume the flesh of tuberculous oxen and the milk of tuberculous cows. That these tuberculous animals do present the characteristic bacilli of tubercle there is no doubt. I suppose I must admit that I cannot point to a case in which the transfer of the bacillus from the ox or cow to the human being, by feeding, has been actually demonstrated; but the identity of the morbid cause in the ox and the human being is quite sufficiently probable to raise a suspicion strong enough to justify us in preventing any risk of the kind, and

I suppose no one would knowingly allow his family to be fed on tuberculous beef or tuberculous milk. There is, however, a good deal of trafficking in tuberculous cattle, at least in New South Wales, whether for slaughtering or dairy purposes; and one measure which is most urgently required in that Colony is a law rendering penal all trafficking in such diseased animals for any purpose whatsoever. I believe that such a law would be of great service in preventing the spread of consumption among our population.

This view will, I think, be strengthened if we inquire how the Jews in Australia fare in regard to phthisis, and I am indebted for some valuable information on this head to my friend the Rev. A. B. Davis, the learned and much respected Jewish clergyman in Sydney. It is well known that the greatest care is taken by the Jews to avoid the consumption of meat which is in any way tainted by disease. As Mr. Davis says in his letter to me, "the slightest speck on the lungs (which are blown out to their full extent), or blemish of any kind would be sufficient to condemn the carcass, and the butcher accredited by the Jewish community would not be permitted to dispose of it." Now, just as I should expect, the Jews in Australia show a great immunity from phthisis. Mr. Davis states that in the Jewish population of New South Wales, numbering 4,000, he can only call to mind one death from phthisis in three years. Taking the average for the whole Colony of New South Wales, the expected deaths in 4,000 persons for this period would have been 13.68; and as Jews for the most part live in cities, we might fairly expect the death-rate to be higher than for the whole Colony. Instead of the rate expected we find, however, only one death, and a consequent saving of (say) twelve lives in this number of persons in three years. I do not say that this saving of life is entirely due to the avoiding the use of tuberculous meat, but I take leave to maintain that I am justified in crediting this cause with a good deal of the beneficial result. Perhaps it will be still more striking if I point out the saving of life in the Colony which would ensue if the Jewish average were maintained for the whole population. In 1885, 1,095 persons died of consumption in New South Wales, being at the rate of 115.51 for each 100,000 of the population. If the Jewish rate had been general, only 79 would have died, being a saving of over 1,000 lives in one year.

It may of course be alleged that this death rate among the Jewish population ought not to be taken as being absolutely accurate, and that therefore it is hardly fair to compare it strictly with the general death rate of the Colony. Possibly this may be so, but even after making every allowance for mistaken diagnosis, and for any other probable source of error, I cannot but feel convinced that the alleged immunity of the Jews from phthisis, does, on the whole, really exist, at all events in New South Wales, and that their condition with respect to this disease contrasts very favourably with that of the general population.

As for Melbourne, I cannot give you exact figures; but I learn from Mr. Davis, on the authority of Mr. Meyer, and Dr. Brownless, the respected Chancellor of the Melbourne University, that little or no phthisis exists among the Jews in that city.

It might be worth while to notice that the country districts of New South Wales, where the phthisis rate is low, are for the most part devoted to the rearing of sheep; while Queensland, where the rate is high, is, at all events in the coast divisions, almost exclusively devoted to the raising of cattle.

Surely there is sufficient energy among us to lead us to try to reduce the general death-rate to that of the Jewish community, and the first step in this direction is in my opinion, to put an absolute end to the use of meat from tuberculous oxen, and of milk from tuberculous cows.

Although consumption is nominally the most important cause of death from the numerical point of view, still we may say that in reality it must give place to certain of the diseases of infancy and childhood. To show that this is the case it is necessary to make certain changes in the mode in which the diseases of infancy have been registered, and to classify them in groups by adding together diseases which though nosologically separate are yet so closely allied as to constitute practically different varieties of one great disease. Thus, atrophy and diarrhoea of infancy, teething, want of breast-milk, and the like may be fairly considered as varying manifestations of infantile mal-nutrition, and similar groups may be formed from the fatal nervous, and pulmonary diseases of children. If we then proceed to add together the various diseases constituting each of these principal groups we shall find our tables assume a somewhat different character. Herewith I give three tables in which these diseases have been arranged in the manner indicated.

INFANTILE DISEASES.

CLASS A.—NUTRITIVE.

TOTAL Deaths of persons under 5 years of age from the undermentioned causes in the Australasian Colonies during the year 1885.

Percentage to deaths from all causes	5.72	5.77	3.13	6.25	7.07	6.52		5.59

From these it will be seen that in the case of the nutritive diseases of childhood the warmer Colonies, viz., Queensland, New South Wales, and South Australia, have a decidedly greater mortality; whereas in the colder Colonies—Victoria, New Zealand, and Tasmania—infantile mortality from nutritive disorder is less. On the other hand, from respiratory diseases Queensland shows a great immunity, but South Australia here also has an unfortunate pre-eminence. In nervous diseases, exemplified by convulsions, cephalitis, and so forth, Tasmania, contrary to our expectation, show the greatest fatality, followed by New South Wales, Queensland, and South Australia. Taking it altogether it must be observed that in all the classes of diseases of infancy Victoria and New Zealand are decidedly the most healthy.

Old age is fourth in New South Wales, is thirteenth in Queensland, eighth in Victoria, first in Tasmania, fifth in South Australia, and in Western Australia, third. In the country parts of most of the Colonies it seems, as a cause of death, to be much on an equality with accidents.

There are many matters connected with these tables which it would be exceedingly interesting to inquire into; but in a brief sketch like the present, detailed inquiry necessarily would be somewhat out of place, my object being to give a few of the most salient points, which are obvious on a cursory glance. I must, moreover, remember that the time at our disposal is but limited, and that there are also limits to your patience on which I must not encroach too much. I shall therefore refrain from going regularly down the columns, and shall now confine myself to considering one or two of the most important diseases, especially those which are generally considered the most amenable to sanitary influences. Of these, typhoid fever is certainly one of the principal, whether we consider its prevalence, the amount of public attention it excites, or the influence which sanitary improvements are believed to have in checking it. The exact details of the prevalence of this disease during the three years under consideration will be found set forth at length in the larger tables which I have caused to be prepared. For convenience I have, as in the case of phthisis, selected the latest year for which a return common to all the Colonies is in my possession, viz., 1885, and I have drawn up a short table giving at a glance a comparative view of the mortality from typhoid fever in the various Colonies during that year. And it is to be borne in mind that this is only an account of the mortality from typhoid, and that the real sickness from typhoid—that is to say, the number of persons affected by this disease who recovered from it, or at all events who did not die from it—cannot in any way be ascertained, there being no materials for the purpose, but must be simply estimated as a matter of speculation by each of us, in accordance with his experience of the fatality attendant upon the disease in different places.

Typhoid

Typhoid Fever, 1885.

Name of Colony or District.	Order of Fatality.	Total Deaths.	Rate per 100,000 of population.	Percentage of Deaths.
New South Wales	12th	503	53.06	3.20
Sydney	9th	93	71.31	3.53
Suburbs	9th	130	85.28	3.37
Country	11th	280	42.10	3.18
Victoria	10th	424	43.48	2.95
Melbourne and Suburbs	12th	183	52.98	2.63
Country	9th	241	38.27	3.25
Queensland	3rd	541	169.90	8.68
South Australia	11th	145	45.34	3.64
New Zealand	16th	128	22.32	2.10
Tasmania	18th	30	22.42	1.47
Western Australia 1886	16th	13	32.84	1.61

From this table it will be seen that Queensland is by far the greatest sufferer from this disease of any of the Colonies. In that tropical province typhoid occupies the second place in the list of fatality, causing 541 deaths in the year, an absolutely greater number than in any other Colony; the relative mortality was at the rate of 169.9 per 100,000 of the population, and the percentage to deaths from all causes was 8.68. Taking the other years in my tables, it appears that in 1884 the results were rather worse, and in 1886 rather better; we may, therefore, assume that the results of 1885 give not an unfair idea of the mortality from typhoid fever in Queensland. It is certainly very high, quite sufficiently so, I think, to attract the attention of sanitary inquirers in that Colony. Leaving Queensland, which occupies an unenviable position by itself, we shall find that the death-rate in even the most populous of the other Colonies is much lighter, although there can be no doubt that in some there is still a good deal of room for improvement. New South Wales is the worst, with its death-rate for the whole Colony of 53.06, which rises in Sydney to 71.31, and in the suburbs to 85.28. These figures, especially the last, are far from creditable; but I am glad to say that public attention has at last been called to this matter, and various measures have been adopted or are in process of adoption with a view to reducing the mortality from this disease. Of these, I may mention the Dairies Supervision Act, which was passed in 1886, and is now gradually being extended to different parts of the Colony. I should also notice that the Government have in preparation a comprehensive scheme of sewerage for the western suburbs of Sydney, which have hitherto been left to their own devices in this important matter.

The somewhat sensational reports which from time to time appeared in the newspapers last summer as to the prevalence of typhoid fever in Victoria would lead us to suppose that there had been at that time a considerable increase within a comparatively recent period in the prevalence of this disease in that Colony. I am, of course, not in a position to give the number of deaths for 1888, but for 1887 there were 631, whereas in 1885 there were only 424, being at the rate of 43.48 per 100,000, Melbourne and suburbs being credited with 183 of these deaths, at the rate of 52.98 per 100,000 of the population.

It would appear from these figures that of late typhoid fever has been increasing in severity in Victoria. What may be the reason of this I shall leave to those to say whose business it is to manage the health affairs of the Colony.

South Australia appears to be, as regards this disease, much on a level with Victoria and New South Wales, the mortality being 45.34 per 100,000. But when we come to consider the island colonies we find a very different and much more agreeable state of matters, the death-rate falling in New Zealand to 22.32, and in Tasmania to 22.42 per 100,000. Here then is a problem for the sanitarians, which I trust they will lose no time in attacking, viz.: How to reduce the 169.9 of Queensland—not to speak of the smaller figures of the other Australian Colonies—to the very desirable 22.32 of New Zealand.

The last disease with a notice of which I shall trouble you to day is one which has always attracted great attention in the different parts of Australia, viz., diphtheria. In accordance, as I believe, with the views of the best authorities, I have associated croup with it. I attach hereto a table giving a comparative view of the prevalence of the disease in the different Colonies for the year 1885, already selected, excepting, as usual, Western Australia, for which I have only one return, viz., 1886:—

Name of Colony or District.	Order of Fatality.	Total Deaths.	Rate per 100,000 of population.	Percentage of Deaths.
New South Wales	10th	532	61.38	3.76
Sydney	—	40	35.27	1.74
Suburbs	—	91	59.70	2.35
Country	—	445	66.90	5.06
Victoria	14th	332	34.05	2.31
Melbourne and Suburbs	—	129	37.35	1.85
Country	—	203	32.24	2.74
Queensland	9th	208	65.32	3.34
South Australia	7th	188	58.79	4.71
New Zealand	10th	172	29.99	2.83
Tasmania	13th	50	37.37	2.45
Western Australia	23rd	9	22.74	1.12

From this it appears that, if whole Colonies be taken, Queensland has again a bad pre-eminence, heading the list with a death-rate of 65.32 per 100,000, to which New South Wales comes, as a very close second, with 61.38. If we leave out from the latter the figures for Sydney and the suburbs, we find that the country districts of New South Wales surpass the whole Colony of Queensland, the death-rate amounting to 66.90 per 100,000. This is another illustration of the well-known principle that diphtheria is a disease rather of the country than the town. An apparent exception to this is shown by the suburbs of Sydney, which, with the high ratio of 59.70, approach closely to the rural rate; this excessive prevalence prevalence of diphtheria appears to me to be, to a considerable extent, due to the absence of any systematic method of getting rid of the faecal accumulations within these suburbs, a defect which, I am glad to say, is likely very soon to be remedied. South Australia, with its ratio of 58.79, follows close on New South Wales; and the three Colonies named are in a distinctly worse position as regards mortality from diphtheria than any of the other Colonies. Thus in Victoria the rate was only 34.05, in Tasmania it was 37.37, in New Zealand it was just under 30, while in Western Australia it was a little over 22 per 100,000.

The difference in these figures is sufficiently striking; and here again plenty of scope is offered for the exertions of sanitarians.

There are very many other matters of interest connected with these tables to which I might draw your attention; for example, the prevalence of different diseases in different quinquennial periods of life would afford us a most interesting subject of study. But time will not allow me to enter into the subject with further detail; and in fact, as you will see, I have not been able to do more than deal with it in the most superficial way, touching merely on the matters which were most obvious on the surface. But even such cursory consideration as we have been able to give to-day is quite sufficient to show that there is an ample field in these Colonies for the exercise of all means for the improvement of the public health.

In conclusion, I venture to express the hope that our sanitarians will leave no stone unturned until they succeed in lowering the death-rates from preventable diseases in all the Colonies—at all events to the minimum level which our tables show to exist in the most salubrious of our districts.

And I am sure that I cannot give utterance to this aspiration more appropriately than before the present audience, composed as it is of the most distinguished practitioners of medicine from all the Australasian Colonies, and more especially of those who take particular interest in matters of public health. This great congress of the profession, so successfully organized by our Victorian friends, ought to lead to the most beneficial results in every branch of medicine, and certainly not least are the hopes entertained from our action in the department of public health. Medical men have always been honourably distinguished by the great interest they take in sanitary matters, and it is to us that the public naturally look for guidance and advice in such questions. It is our duty to make plain to everyone what are the shortcomings of our community in questions of public health, and to show how these shortcomings can be remedied. No better opportunity can be conceived than this congress affords for the proclaiming of our views, and it is difficult to overestimate the influence for good which it will have with the public, who are never backward in acknowledging with respect any honest effort to advance the interest of the community.

RETURN of Deaths from the forty most prevalent causes in the COLONY OF VICTORIA during the year 1885. 1889.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

EUREKA PATENT SANITARY BURNING WORKS, NEWCASTLE.

(REPORT OF THE DEPUTY MEDICAL ADVISER ON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 August, 1889.

The Medical Adviser to the Government to The Principal Under Secretary.

Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street,

Sydney, 14 August, 1889.

Sir,

In forwarding herewith a report by the Deputy Medical Adviser to the Government on the Eureka Patent Sanitary Burning Works, Newcastle, I beg to append a resolution of the Board of Health, to whom this report has been submitted, and to inform you that having visited these works without previous notice, and when they were in full operation, I concur thoroughly in all that Dr. Thompson has stated with regard to them.

I have, &c.,

F. NORTON MANNING.

Board of Health Office, 127 Macquarie-street, Sydney, 14 August, 1889.

The attached report by the Deputy Medical Adviser (Dr. J. Ashburton Thompson) on the Eureka Patent Sanitary Burning Works, Newcastle, was submitted by the Medical Adviser to the Government to the Board of Health at a meeting held this day, when the following resolution was passed:—

“The Board consider the report of great public interest, as the process appears to have practically met the difficulties which have been experienced in the disposal of night-soil at Newcastle, and recommend its publication for general information.”

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

Report by Dr. J. Ashburton Thompson.

The Eureka Patent Sanitary Burning Works, Newcastle.

29 July, 1889.

Two minutes attached to the two collections of papers which are returned herewith direct the inspection upon which report is now made. The first is dated May 21st, and the second June 12th. At those dates respectively the works were either not erected, or not in operation. They were formerly opened on July 1st, and on that day some soil was treated; but for nine days thereafter the furnaces were kept alight, but no soil was treated. The regular operations and the daily treatment of soil began on the 10th of July, and have been since continued.

Two collections of documents are returned with this report. The larger affords a description of the difficulties hitherto experienced by the borough of Newcastle in disposing of its refuse. A report made by me touching this matter in 1886, and forwarded to the Colonial Secretary by the Medical Adviser on August 31st of that year, shows that the night-soil of the borough was, until about 1882, buried in a paddock attached to the general hospital, and in the heart of the city; that thereafter arrangements were made for burying it on the race-course; that, at the date of report, the proprietors of the race-course had given the Council notice to cease making deposit there, because the medical practitioners of Newcastle had drawn attention to the excessive prevalence of typhoid fever in the houses bordering upon it; and, lastly, that in 1886 the Council had again begun to use the paddock attached to the hospital which has already been mentioned. In the face of public opinion, they did not long continue this plan; but, as the advice persistently given them during several years to adopt a crematory apparatus did not meet with their approval, they had to find some other spot in which this refuse could still be tipped in its crude state. They fixed upon an old shaft in the public park, and they used that for some months; but, application being made to the Supreme Court by residents who felt themselves aggrieved by this action, they were directed to cease using the shaft after a day fixed by the Court. Attempts to lease a wharf at which the soil might be put in barges and carried out to sea being strenuously opposed, the Council were thus brought to the end of their resources. About this stage two gentlemen who had designed and patented an apparatus for converting the soil into poudrette came forward and laid their plans before the Council; they were M. Monleau de Montemas, formerly an officer of engineers in the French Army, and Mr. Rooke, a merchant, both of them residents of Newcastle. The scheme appearing feasible to them, the Council called a conference of the Mayors of the several adjacent municipalities who in their official capacity were experiencing similar difficulties. The outcome of this meeting was a request made in the attached letter, dated March 11th, 1889, and signed by the Mayors of Newcastle, Waratah, Wickham, Lambton, Carrington, Adamstown, and Merewether, that they should have permission from the Government to erect the necessary works upon some piece of Crown land, so that the opposition of property-holders might be avoided, and the experiment have fair trial. It appears, however, that the gentlemen named leased a piece of land in the municipality of Hamilton, on the borders of Wickham. They put up their apparatus there, and having entered into contracts with the borough of Newcastle and with the district of Hamilton formally opened them on July 1st, but did not begin work until July 10th. On April 20th, however, a petition (herewith) had been presented to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary from very many residents of the districts of Hamilton, Wickham, and Waratah, showing "that they have grievous cause of complaint against certain persons now promoting and erecting works for the purpose of carrying on a noxious trade, viz., a night-soil depôt, and the subjecting of night-soil to a burning process"; because "this cannot be other than a public nuisance, alike detrimental to the health and comfort of the inhabitants of the locality," the works being "in close proximity to residents' homestead dwellings, and within a few chains of a blind creek, which is dry for several months during every year. The works are, furthermore, situated amid the centre of a large and increasing population." Upon receipt of this petition the Medical Adviser to the Government was desired to make inquiry and report.

I paid a first visit without notice. I went to Newcastle by the evening mail of 17th July, and drove out to the factory early on the morning of the 18th. I found only one or two workmen about, and the charge of the previous night already withdrawn. The furnaces were still alight, and the ovens had not been cleansed. I then visited M. Monleau, and arranged with him to pay a second visit, at which the apparatus was to be prepared, and work begun immediately after my arrival. This was done on 23rd July, when I watched the process from beginning to end. The following remarks are the result of observations made on those two occasions, on the latter of which the Mayor of Hamilton (Alderman Arkins) and the Inspector of Nuisances (Mr. Brain) were present.

The site chosen is in the municipality of Hamilton, on the borders of the municipality of Wickham, and about 2 miles distant from Newcastle Railway Station. It stands on an extensive plain, which is probably but little above sea-level. On this plain, which at present is flooded, but below whose surface the ground-water is always met with at a very shallow depth, there are several scattered buildings. Some of these are the cottages of residents, and (besides two which belong to the manufacturers) there is one other which is nearly opposite the works. The others, being few in number, stand at distances which vary from one or two to several hundred yards. Within a radius from the works of (as I was informed) decidedly less than 500 yards stand, and have stood for years, two slaughter-houses, a large copper smelting-works, a bone mill, a tannery, and a glue factory. The last-named place is within 100 yards of the boundary fence of the poudrette factory. In company with the Mayor I visited it. I found it a mere shed in a paddock, and, together with the adjacent land, in a filthy state. It was entirely without apparatus for preventing the nuisance which this process always gives rise to, and which is greater than that caused by a boiling-down factory. It should be mentioned here that M. Monleau, fearing that the far-reaching and offensive smell emanating from this place would in future be laid at his door, bought the proprietor out, but that the agreement made was evaded, the proprietor continuing to work, but as the agent for the owner of the land. All of the factories mentioned are not in the municipality of Hamilton, near as they are; and not much farther away is a part of the Styx Creek, upon the offensive state of which I made report on 19th January, 1889, the inspection being directed at instigation of the Mayor of Wickham.

The factory consists of a small plot of land which is entirely enclosed by an iron fence, 12 feet high. Against the fence and within it are stables, stores, &c. In the middle is an iron shed. Within the shed and sunk to the ground level is a battery of two cells, built of fire-brick, each of the cells containing a reverberatory oven and a fire-place. At the ground-level is a small tank, against which the carts back up; and this tank is in communication with a shoot which conducts the soil into the oven. The fumes which arise are led first of all to a large closed chamber or smoke-box, where they are cooled, condensed, and washed by a spray of steam and water. The water falls to the bottom of the chamber and passes through a charcoal filter; it is drawn off thence to a well or tank near by. The partly purified fumes leave the smoke-box and enter a flue of 18-inch glazed piping, which pursues a serpentine course, 185 feet in length, beneath the surface to the foot of the smoke stack. This flue is supplied with about 6 inches of water which is kept always circulating from the smoke-box to the foot of the stack and thence back again to the well or tank already mentioned. The fumes, thus still farther cooled and purified, enter a chamber at the base of the stack through which another spray of water is always descending. On leaving this chamber they ascend the stack and without further treatment issue at the summit at a height of 75 feet above the ground. Other apparatus used are a small upright steam boiler to circulate the water and distribute it and to move a mortar mill in which some part of the poudrette and the charcoal from the filters are ground up and mixed together.

The method of operation is as follows:—The proprietors have entered into contracts with several of the municipalities mentioned, but as yet are at work only in the districts of Newcastle and Hamilton. A condition of their contracts on the part of the Municipal Councils (and by their own wish) is that all soil shall be deodorised before removal; and they, on their part, wisely insist that the collection of it and the deodorisation be entirely under their control. Another stipulation made by the proprietors, most important to the public health, is the abolition of cesspits and the substitution of pail-closets for them, the contents of the former being too watery for economical treatment in this or any similar apparatus. The method of operation, therefore, is carried out by the proprietors' own staff, who deodorise and then collect the soil and deliver it at the works. It is discharged from the carts in which it arrives into the tank, and, the fires having been lighted earlier, it is thence admitted in suitable quantities to the oven. After a time, which necessarily differs according as there is more or less moisture in the soil, but which is comparatively comparatively short, the charge, reduced to four-tenths or three-tenths of its natural bulk, is withdrawn, passed through a sieve, and in such part as is necessary, through the mill; it then forms a dark-brown powder which is nearly dry. This powder is quite inoffensive; it has only a very slight smell of ammonia, and this would rapidly diminish with lapse of time.

As to the production of nuisance by these works while in operation, the following is the case as I found it. First of all, however, I repeat that I paid two visits—the first without any notice, the second with notice, and that my remarks apply equally to both visits. I saw a tank cart full of night-soil waiting for treatment. Near the cart there was absolutely no odour whatever. On opening it, or on letting the contents flow into the tank, a very slight sweetish smell was perceptible at a distance of not more than 9 feet; beyond that distance it was imperceptible; within that distance it could not be properly described as an offensive smell. When the fresh soil was admitted to the oven all draught was inwards; no smell at all was perceptible within the building enclosing the battery. I therefore went to the foot of the smoke stack, where an iron door gives admission to the chamber through which water is falling, and where the vapours receive their final purification. I put my head far enough into this chamber to surround it with the smoke and vapour, about half-an-hour after I had seen the charge admitted to the oven, and while it was rapidly drying. The chief smell was that of coal smoke; it was possible to observe that there was something else present besides; the latter odour was very slight, and although not in itself agreeable, it was so slight that in the presence of the coal smoke it might probably be overlooked by a careless observer, or by one not specially on his guard. When this door was left open, wreaths of smoke were blown out; at a distance of 2 or 3 yards—that is to say, when these puffs were diluted with air—no smell but that of coal smoke was perceptible.

Complaints of nuisance have been made by the residents in the neighbourhood first mentioned. When the works were first opened on 1st July, a load of soil was treated in order to demonstrate the process to the company assembled; but for nine days thereafter the proprietors kept the furnaces going, although they neither received nor treated any soil. During these days many complaints of the nuisance caused by the works were made. On leaving the works on occasion of my second visit I was accosted by Mr. Curley, who occupies the cottage mentioned as being nearly opposite to them. Mr. Curley spoke at great length. What he said, however, amounted to an assertion that the smoke issuing from the stack was offensive to him, and to others in the neighbourhood at a greater distance away; and he instanced occasions on which, several days before the 23rd, there had been greater nuisance than (as he alleged) is usual. While we were speaking together, at a distance of about 50 yards from the foot of the stack and outside the premises, the Mayor and the inspector being present, he twice attempted to point out an offensive smell, which he alleged issued from the stack. On neither of these occasions could the officials mentioned, or I, perceive any smell at all. On both occasions I invited Mr. Curley to go with me and examine the vapours in the chamber at the foot of the stack, pointing out to him that if they smelt where we were standing they must smell a thousand times stronger within the chamber, and before dilution with the atmosphere; but he declined to set foot on the premises, alleging that he was concerned only with any nuisance he might observe outside them. I then informed him that I had just before carefully examined the vapours within the stack, and had found them quite inoffensive. I mention these circumstances at length, because I gathered that Mr. Curley appeared on behalf of other persons as well as for himself, and because I have not the slightest doubt that his complaint is now, at all events, without foundation in fact. I saw the work carried out, not merely without nuisance, but without causing any offensive smell.

The result of my inquiry is, therefore, to show that at Newcastle the conversion of excreta into poudrette is actually effected by M. Monlean without causing any offensive smell, and still more, without causing any nuisance to persons residing in the neighbourhood of the factory; and, surprising as this may seem to persons unacquainted with the subject, I desire to observe here that the prevention of nuisance from this and other offensive trades is in reality without difficulty, and, in fact, merely a question of expense. This being the case, and the present experiment being successful, it may be well to point out the advantages which flow from it. The proprietors know very well that if by carelessness they should allow offence to arise at any stage of their proceedings, they will certainly be called upon to shut their factory. Hence, in the first place, they deodorise the soil before carting it; secondly they work with their own staff, over whom they have thorough control; thirdly, being aware that the greatest surer for decency, cleanliness, and safety of property is the doing of this work by day, they propose to take such measures as will allow them to adopt that mode of working. In the next place, for a reason already given, a part of their scheme is the abolition of cess-pits, and the substitution of pan-closets. This step, in a recent report upon an outbreak of fever at Newtown and Macdonaldtown which I made in conjunction with Mr. Stayton, I recommended for general adoption as being among those which are essential to the prevention of typhoid fever; but its bearing on the public health may be illustrated by the following extract from my report on the sanitary state of the city of Newcastle already alluded to. It is there pointed out that the inhabitants of that city alone estimated in 1835, at the moderate number of 10,000 individuals, produced a quantity of solid and fluid excreta which weighed considerably more than 4,000 tons; but that the books of the Inspector of Nuisances liberally considered, could not be shown to account for more than 1,700 tons removed and disposed of. The remaining 2,300 tons, then, having certainly been produced and not having been removed, remained in the neighbourhood of dwellings, together with an unestimated quantity which was the similarly unremoved proportion of former years: and had every receptacle after this statement appeared, been thoroughly emptied, it is known by experience that a very small part of the 2,300 tons would have been realised, the unreckoned surplus of former years in addition notwithstanding. In other words the accumulated surplus has spread from the cess-pits to the surrounding soil, whence it cannot be reclaimed, but where it must remain until the slow destruction which is naturally brought about has been effected. But in the meantime that surplus has been (and still is) befouling air and water, and in a hundred ways, both direct and indirect, causing disease and death; so that if the present process effected no more than the abolition of cess-pits, it would render an inestimable benefit to the population. Thus indirectly the plan followed by these gentlemen is likely to effect very great improvements in the direction both of decency and health. Essentially, however, or regarded as a business, it involves the rendering inodorous, comparatively harmless, and portable, the immense quantity of refuse mentioned. Now, the difficulties which hitherto Municipal Councils have encountered in the way of disposal (which is a different matter to the collection already spoken of) have been entailed upon them entirely by their unwillingness to accept the advice so often given them to adopt one or other of the several several well-known plans for reducing the bulk of this refuse, and for rendering it portable, and by their obstinate adherence to the primitive, offensive, dangerous, and inconvenient plan of burying it in gross. Obviously the way to make it possible to handle a ton of stinking, semi-fluid, poisonous matter, is to so treat it that it is converted into 6 cwt. or less of inodorous, dry, harmless powder. This the present process (as well as several others very well known) effects; and then all difficulty in the way of disposal disappears at once, since a body having the last-mentioned qualities can be stored in sacks and carried about in open carts by day. Besides rendering ultimate disposal thus easy, however, that need no longer be merely a source of expenditure; for the dry powder is a valuable fertilizer, and, where a market for it can be got, is a source of revenue which goes far towards paying current expenses. Lastly, this factory is strictly an industry. It will ultimately afford work to a large number of men; and it will do this without materially diminishing the staff of scavengers already employed by the several Councils. These will be still wanted for other work, being already (if I may judge by apparent results) far below what is necessary.

In conclusion, therefore, I have to state that, while my inspection reveals nothing whatever in corroboration of the statements contained in the petition upon receipt of which inquiry was ordered, I am of opinion that the adoption of the process described constitutes a very important improvement in the detail of Municipal Government.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY,
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CITY OF SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT BOARD.
(TENTH ANNUAL REPORT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 September, 1889.

City of Sydney Improvement Board,
Offices, 13, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, 31 August, 1889.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary,—

Sir,

Your attention is earnestly invited to our former nine Annual Reports, which will be found to deal very fully with many of the difficulties the Board have had to contend against, and the pressing necessity for legislative amendment of the Act under which they operate.

During the Board year now closed only thirteen meetings have been held; five references were brought under notice, and orders made thereon; one rehearing of a reference was considered; and two appeals were determined—dealing, in all, with thirteen buildings or structures. The reasons for the meagreness of the quantity of business submitted for the decision of the Board, and leading to the partial inactivity disclosed, are similar to those already so frequently pointed out. Amongst others are the inability of the Board to deal with such matters, unless set in motion either by the City Building Surveyor or by some person complaining or appealing; in the latter case—i.e. with regard to complaints or appeals—it is due, in a large measure, it is believed, to the great doubt and difficulty existing, both with the public and in the minds of the members of the Board themselves, and those from whom they have received legal advice, as to the precise scope of the powers which are legally vested in the Board, and as to how far they may proceed in any attempt to enforce such powers, and further, to the want of a duly authorized executive officer under the undivided control of the Board, as well as to the disinclination (shown in a very marked manner) of the City Council to allow the proper officer appointed, as provided by the Improvement Act, expressly to give due effect to its provisions, and for the very purpose of laying such reports or informations before the Board, and thus setting them in motion, to perform that which is clearly set forth in the 21st, 27th, 29th, and other sections of the City Improvement Act as his duty. This officer, the City Building Surveyor, is, apparently through a strange anomaly in the Act, appointed and paid by the City Council, and therefore is practically under their sole control.

Another reason is to be found in the clashing of the provisions of the City of Sydney Improvement Act with those of the Sydney Corporation Act of 1879. As an illustration, it may be mentioned that recently the City Council have been endeavouring to exercise powers thought to rest in them and in the City Surveyor (a different officer to the City Building Surveyor), under the 78th, 79th, and 81st sections of the Sydney Corporation Act, somewhat resembling those vested in the Improvement Board under the 29th section of the City Improvement Act, and in so doing, the City Council, the Board believe, are acting contrary to law, besides trying to give effect to a supposed provision which, in any event, is unwieldy and unsuitable for the purpose, especially in view of the powers provided under the City of Sydney Improvement Act, which could be made more effective if the Council would but co-operate with the Board in a reasonable manner.

In

In connection with various points of law which have arisen as to the exact legal significance of several sections in both the Acts named, the Board have sought and obtained the advice of the Honorable the Attorney-General and other eminent Counsel.

Mr. Attorney-General Simpson recognizes the difficulties arising from the clashing of these Acts, and in the enforcement of the orders made by the Board, and expresses himself that the Board cannot do much in the matter.

Mr. C. B. Stephen, Barrister-at-Law, in an opinion recently given by him, refers to the City of Sydney Improvement Act as containing many puzzles, says that the clashing of jurisdiction and authority ought to be altered, and adds, "The consideration which I have given to this Act clearly shows that the duties and authorities of the Board and the Corporation under the Act are not kept sufficiently separate from each other. They obviously conflict in many cases, and also with some of the provisions of the Sydney Corporation Act. It also seems incongruous and likely to lead to embarrassment that the Board's Chief Officer is an officer of the Corporation, and appointed and paid by the latter. The power of making By-laws under the Improvement Act is given to the Corporation, but the Board may, in its discretion, dispense with their observance in any case. In all these matters, and in a want of clearness in defining the functions of the Board, particularly as to its powers to review and alter decisions of the Corporation or its officers, it would be highly desirable to obtain amendment of the law, if possible."

The following question and answer on this subject are extracted from the Votes and Proceedings of the Legislative Assembly of Wednesday, 5th December, 1888:—

(12) The City of Sydney Improvement Board:—Mr. McMillan asked the Colonial Secretary,—Is it the intention of the Government to bring in a Bill to alter the present constitution of the City Improvement Board?

Sir Henry Parkes answered,—I am well aware that this Act requires amendment, but I do not think I can undertake to introduce any Bill for its amendment during the present Session.

It will be seen upon reference to the First Annual Report that so far back as 28th November, 1879, the faulty construction of the Act was pointed out by this Board, and a Bill was prepared by the Board and presented, to remedy its most prominent defects; but the Bill was not passed into law. Year after year the Board have renewed their efforts to obtain the necessary amendment, but without success; several Bills have been drafted and handed by them to successive Governments for the purpose sought. During the past year the Board have several times written to and waited upon you with regard to the proposed measure, and they are unable to say why a matter of so much importance should be so unnecessarily and unreasonably delayed—nearly ten years have elapsed since the date mentioned. In their opinion it should be dealt with at the earliest possible moment, and they are still prepared to do all in their power to give effect to this opinion.

The Fire Brigades Board have sought the co-operation of this Board with regard to the prevention of the danger proceeding from open lifts in warehouses, and have suggested a clause for insertion in the proposed Bill to amend the Improvement Act with this object in view. The members of the Improvement Board see the force of, and sympathise with the representations which have been made. Many preventable deaths have occurred in connection with lifts and lift-openings which probably might have been avoided were the Improvement Board in a position to regulate the construction or use of lifts, or to exercise a proper supervision over such matters, but they regret that the Act is defective in this respect; also as to providing for enforcing the construction of all buildings in the city, more particularly of the warehouse class, in such a manner as may be found most effective to prevent, as far as possible, the further danger of the spread of fire when a conflagration takes place; and they realize that nothing can be done towards carrying out such improvements until the Act is amended. These representations, involving, as they do, questions concerning the safety or loss of human life, are serious and urgent, and should not be unnecessarily postponed or lost sight of.

It would likewise tend to the greater safety, well-being, and health of the inhabitants of the city were it enacted in any proposed legislative amendment of the City Improvement Act that a stricter and more comprehensive control, both constructively and sanitarily, should be maintained by this Board, or some similar body, over all buildings in course of construction.

Mr. Benjamin Backhouse has been again unanimously re-elected Chairman of the Board for the year.

It may be remarked that although the Act does not provide for the services of the Chairman and members of the Board being honorary, their emolument ever since the creation of the Board has been merely nominal, and it should be here explained that they are not remunerated from the public revenue, the fees they are paid coming, in an objectionably inconvenient manner, direct from appellants or owners of buildings dealt with or condemned. The Act provides that the Board "shall consist of five members, of whom one at least shall be a professional architect, one a practical builder, and one a medical practitioner," but the Chairman of the Board or the professional members do not receive anything more than the other members, the fees being equally divided; the average amount received by each of the five members of the Board during the past year was £10 14s. 2½d.; in the preceding year it was £11 19s. 4½d.

It has been observed by the Board that several of the suburban and other municipalities are desirous of having the provisions of the City of Sydney Improvement Act extended to them. This may be done, being expressly provided for in the fourth section of the Act. The present opportunity is taken, however, of reminding you that the latest amending Bill prepared by the Board contains what may be termed an elastic clause, to enable this to be carried into effect, and at the same time to ingraft any suitable modifications which may be deemed applicable to the requirements of any municipal district applying for such extension, and affording such district an opportunity of making known any special modifications particularly desired. This would, the Members of the Board are confident, confer a great boon upon the suburban or country municipal districts, and would remove any difficulty felt as to the advisability of the extension of the Act as it now stands.

We have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servants,

BENJAMIN BACKHOUSE, CHAIRMAN.

(MUNICIPALITY OF ALBURY—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 1st February, 1889.

ALBURY MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Albury, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Albury Cattle Sale Yards Act of 1887," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

BOROUGH OF ALBURY.

BY-LAW made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Albury, on the twenty-first day of November, 1888, under the powers contained in section 153 of the "Municipalities Act of 1867":—

For preventing obstruction in any street or on any footways within the Borough.

1. Any person congregating with other persons in any street or on any footway within the Borough of Albury so as to obstruct the free passage and traffic through, along, or upon the same respectively, who shall refuse or neglect to move on, so as to cease from and discontinue such obstruction upon being requested so to do by any Inspector of Nuisances or other officer of the said Borough or any police constable or officer, such person so offending shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than five shillings and not exceeding forty shillings.

Passed by the Council of the Borough of Albury, the twenty-first day of November, 1888.

(L.S.) THOMAS H. MATE,
Mayor.

JNO. H. PAINE, Council Clerk.

BOROUGH OF ALBURY.

ADDITIONAL By-laws made by the Council of the Borough of Albury, and passed by the said Council, on the twenty-first day of November, 1888, under the powers contained in section 153 of the "Municipalities Act of 1867," relating to public vehicles:—

25. No person suffering from any infectious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor of such licensed vehicle shall knowingly carry or permit to be carried any such person, or (except to some police-office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself or otherwise so misbehaving as to occasion any annoyance or to disturb the public peace; and no passenger shall carry on any licensed passenger-carrying vehicle any animal or any substance of any offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle or the apparel of other passengers, and no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle or use the same for eating his meals therein.

26. The driver of any hackney-carriage or cab carrying passengers shall (except when turning street-corners or going over crossings) proceed with such hackney-carriage or cab at a speed of not less than six miles an hour, unless when attending funerals, or when otherwise ordered by the hirer.

27. The driver of any licensed vehicle shall not stand or loiter at any place in any public street within the said Borough excepting he be bona fide waiting for a passenger.

28. The places specified in Schedule G, hereto annexed, are heretoby respectively appointed public stands for licensed vehicles. The Council may, by resolution, from time to time as they may see fit, alter the position of such stands or increase their number.

29. The fares payable by persons hiring licensed vehicles shall be those provided for in Schedule E hereto annexed.

30. The fees payable by persons hiring van or dray shall be those provided for in Schedule F hereto annexed.

31. Copies of Schedule E shall be placed in each licensed vehicle by the proprietors thereof in such a position as to be easily seen by passengers.

32. For every offence against the provisions of this part of these By-laws to which no specific penalty has been attached herein the offender shall pay a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five shillings.

33. Whenever the word "vehicle" shall be used in this part of these By-laws the same shall be understood to apply to either an omnibus, car, hackney-carriage or cab; and an omnibus shall be meant to be a vehicle upon four wheels drawn by one or more horses; and a car is a vehicle upon two wheels drawn by one horse, and for which omnibus licenses have been taken out; and a hackney-carriage shall mean a vehicle upon four wheels drawn by two or more horses; and a cab, a vehicle upon two wheels for which hackney-carriage licenses have been taken out.

SCHEDULE E.

BOROUGH OF ALBURY.

BY-LAWS made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Albury on the twenty-first day of November, 1888, for regulating the management of public baths and the charges for use of same.

1. That the baths shall be known and styled "The Albury Municipal Baths."
2. That the said baths shall be open for the use of the public during the following hours, in the months of October, November, December, January, February, and March, on week days from 5 o'clock a.m. to 8 o'clock p.m., and for the remaining months of the year the baths shall be open daily from 7 o'clock a.m., and close at 5 o'clock p.m., excepting on Sundays, throughout the year, when the baths shall be open from 5 o'clock a.m. to 10 o'clock a.m., and from 3 o'clock p.m. to half-past 5 o'clock p.m.
3. That the baths and dressing-rooms shall be open for the use of gentlemen from the hour of opening till 8 o'clock a.m., and from 4 o'clock p.m. till 8 o'clock p.m., and none but gentlemen shall be admitted during those hours.
4. That the baths and dressing-rooms shall be open for the use of ladies from half-past 8 o'clock a.m. till 4 o'clock p.m., and none but ladies shall be admitted during those hours.
5. That no person under the influence of intoxicating liquors, nor any person of known disreputable character, shall be permitted to use the baths, and the caretaker shall refuse admittance to such persons.
6. That no person shall create or place filth or commit a nuisance of any kind within the precincts of the baths, nor deface the walls of the dressing-rooms or woodwork of the baths, by writing or drawing thereon or otherwise.
7. That no person shall smoke within the baths.
8. That every person who may visit the baths shall, whilst within the premises, conduct himself or herself in a decent, orderly, and proper manner.
9. That any person wilfully damaging the bath premises and appurtenances thereto shall be liable to prosecution, and will be charged with the cost of repairs.
10. That no person shall use the swimming-bath more than an hour at any one time.
11. That no person shall bring any dog, or suffer same to stray, within the precincts of the baths, and any dog found within such precincts shall be removed, and the owner thereof summoned for a breach of this By-law.]

12. That the Council shall have power from time to time to regulate the fees to be paid for the various classes of baths, and to give such instruction as it may consider necessary for the proper management of the baths, and may set apart a portion or the whole of the baths for the use of ladies or gentlemen on special days or occasions.

13. That any person offending against any of the provisions of these By-laws shall be liable, on conviction, to forfeit and pay a penalty for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

BOROUGH OF ALBURY.

BY-LAWS made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Albury, under and in virtue of the powers contained in and by section 4 of the "Albury Cattle Sale-yards Act of 1887," for the maintenance, regulation, and management of said sale-yards, and collection and payment of fees and charges, and generally for carrying out the purposes of the said Act.

1. The said cattle sale-yards of the Borough shall be open for the reception and delivery of cattle and other live stock on every lawful day from sunrise to sunset.

2. There shall be appointed for such cattle sale-yards an officer, to be called the Inspector thereof, whose duties shall be as follow:—

- (1.) To see that the By-laws or regulations be duly observed.
- (2.) To demand and receive all fees and charges due under the said By-laws or regulations.
- (3.) To allot the yards for the use of the parties bringing cattle thereto for sale in such manner as in each particular case may seem to such Inspector most convenient, and the order of sales shall be by lot, according to the lanes and pens as marked, to be drawn for the day before the sale.
- (4.) To preserve order and cleanliness within the said cattle sale-yards and the precincts thereof, and to summarily eject therefrom any person creating a riot or disturbance, or cursing or swearing, or using any gross or indecent language, or being guilty of any gross, cruel, or indecent conduct therein.
3. No person or persons shall obstruct the Inspector or his assistants in the performance of his or their duty, or shall release any cattle from the said sale-yards before the fees and charges have been duly paid (the proof of which payment shall rest with the party charged with a breach of this regulation), nor shall remove the same from the said yards, or from one part of them to another, without the authority of the Inspector; and any person committing a breach of this By-law in any respect shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

4. The owner, auctioneer, or any person in charge of any cattle which shall break or injure the said yards, or any part thereof, or any erection connected therewith, shall forthwith repair and make good such damage or injury, or in default of his so doing shall be liable to forfeit and pay a sum of money not exceeding twice the cost of repairing and making good such damage or injury.

5. Any person or persons who may be found drunk or disorderly within the said sale-yards or the precincts thereof, or cursing or swearing, or using gross, profane or abusive language therein, or who shall cruelly beat or ill-treat any animal therein, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound or more than five pounds.

6. The party or parties placing cattle in the said cattle sale yards, or any other sale-yard within the said Borough, for sale, and also the auctioneer or agent to whom the same shall be brought for such sale, and the person or persons bringing any cattle to any premises in the said Borough for slaughter and also the occupier of such premises, shall be liable for the payment of all fees and charges accruing thereon.

7. Any person or persons who may place cattle in the cattle sale-yards of the Borough for sale, and shall neglect for twenty-four hours to supply such cattle with sufficient food and water, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; and in case of such neglect for such space of twenty-four hours at any time, the Inspector shall cause such cattle to be supplied with sufficient food and water, and the person so neglecting as above shall be liable to repay the cost of the same, including a reasonable charge for labour and attendance.

8. The following fees and charges shall be paid and taken for all cattle brought to the cattle sale-yards, or yarded in or brought to any other sale-yards or premises within the Borough of Albury for sale, and also for all cattle brought to any premises within the said Borough for the purpose of being slaughtered, that is to say:—For every horse, mare, gelding, foal, ass, or mule, the sum of one shilling; for every bull, cow, ox, heifer, steer, or calf, the sum of sixpence; for every sheep, lamb, or goat, halfpenny each; for every pig, threepence.

9. The said fees and charges shall be payable by the several persons hereinbefore rendered liable to pay the same so soon as the cattle in respect of which they are chargeable, shall be brought to the said cattle sale-yards of the Borough, or yarded or brought to any other sale-yard or premises in the said Borough for sale or for slaughter, and the same shall be paid accordingly into the hands of the Inspector of the said cattle sale-yards or his assistants: Provided that such Inspector may, with the consent of the Mayor for the time being, arrange with the owner or occupier of any sale-yards other than those of the Borough, or of any premises for the slaughter of cattle, or with any auctioneer conducting sales in the Borough sale-yards, for making weekly returns or statements of all cattle brought to their yards or premises respectively for sale or slaughter, or of all cattle sold by such auctioneer since the time up to which the next preceding return shall have been made, and for payment upon such weekly returns. And if any person shall fail to make payment as herein first above provided, or shall, after arranging as aforesaid, make any false or incorrect return or statement therein, or shall omit from the same any of the required particulars of cattle, or shall fail to make faithful weekly payments in accordance with such arrangement, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound for any such offence.

10. The said Inspector or the Council shall, upon demand (and if he or they shall so require in writing) refund the fees and charges paid in respect of cattle intended for sale, but not afterwards sold within the said Borough, and if any person shall obtain any such refund by wilfully making any false or incorrect statement, he shall, without reference to any other liability, forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

11. Any person who shall neglect to comply with these By-laws, or be guilty of any breach thereof, shall, in cases where no special penalty is provided, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

12. In construing these and any future By-laws or Regulations made under the said Cattle Sale-yards Act, the word "cattle" shall have the same meaning as expressed in "The Albury Cattle Sale-yards Act of 1887."

Made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Albury, on the twenty-first day of November, 1886, under the powers conferred by section 4 of the Albury Cattle Sale-yards Act of 1887.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPALITY OF MEREWETHER—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th February, 1889.

MEREWETHER MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Merewether under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

BY-LAWS—MUNICIPALITY OF MEREWETHER.

BY-LAWS made by the Municipality of Merewether, for regulating the proceedings of the Council and the duties of the officers and servants of such Council; for preserving order at meetings of said Council, for determining the times and modes of collecting and enforcing payment of rates; for preventing and extinguishing fires; for suppressing nuisances; for preventing or regulating and licensing exhibitions held or kept for hire or profit, bowling or skittle alleys, and other places of amusement; compelling residents to keep their premises free from offensive or unwholesome matters; opening new public roads, streets, ways, and reserves; for protection of public fountains and water-courses; aligning and cleansing roads and streets; the slaughtering of cattle; for the collection of rates and special rates; for regulating as to the blasting of any rock or rocks; preventing trees from overhanging public pathways and preserving trees, shrubs, and other public property; for preventing or regulating the bathing or washing the person in any public water near a public thoroughfare; for preserving public decency; for providing for the health of the Municipality, and against the spreading of contagious or infectious diseases; for restraining noisome and offensive trades, and generally for maintaining the good rule and government of the said Municipality.

Meetings of Council.

Ordinary Meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the dispatch of business at the hour of 7 p.m., every alternate Tuesday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case, the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor—Adjournment for want of quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting to give place to the Mayor if he should arrive at any later hour during meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members shall be taken down, and shall be recorded in the minute book.

Order of Business.

Business of Ordinary Meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council, other than special meetings:—

- 1st. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
- 2nd. Correspondence to be read, and, if necessary, dealt with.
- 3rd. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
- 4th. Reports from Committee and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
- 5th. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to; and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council, or any of its Committees or officers to be made.
- 6th. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
- 7th. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Business may be dealt with out of regular order.

4. Provided it shall be competent to the Council at any time by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at Special Meetings.

5. At Special Meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and verified, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor, or the Alderman or whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Business Paper for Ordinary Meeting—how prepared

6. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a special meeting, shall be made up by the Town Clerk or other person acting as his substitute, not less than 48 hours before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received, or shall have been required or directed so to enter in due course of law, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made subject to the provisions of section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Business Paper for Special Meeting.

7. The business paper for each special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Aldermen calling such meeting.

Summons to Members.

8. The summons to members of the Council of every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How Business Paper is to be disposed of.

9. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall, at such meeting, be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper so noted shall be a record of the Council.

After Business Paper made up all notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

10. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motions, requisitions, and directions as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Motions and Amendments.Motions how to be moved.

11. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

12. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall, as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motions to be seconded.

13. No motion in Council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Amendments may be moved.

14. When a motion in Council should have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions and amendments to be in writing.

15. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced into writing.

Only one amendment at a time.

16. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of.

Amended Question—Further amendment may be moved thereon.

17. If an amendment be carried, the question as amended thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

How subsequent amendments may be put.

18. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any amended question shall be negatived, a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on; provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof, shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournment.

19. On receipt of a petition form, and sealed with the corporate seals and signed by at least two-thirds of the members of the several Councils of any two or more adjoining Municipalities in each of which an assessment shall have been made as hereinafter provided, of, from, and signed by at least two-thirds of the ratepayers of each such Municipality, praying that the said Municipalities may be united and form one Municipality, the Governor may—after a like publication of such petition as aforesaid—declare by proclamation as aforesaid such Municipalities to be united—and to form one Municipality by a name and according to boundaries in the said same or some subsequent proclamation to be mentioned and described. And any existing division of the said Municipalities, or any of them, into wards shall thereupon be abolished. But if a division into wards shall have been requested in the said petition for union, the Governor may—by the said proclamation of union or by any subsequent proclamation published as aforesaid—declare such united Municipality to be and the same shall be accordingly divided into wards according to the following scale, that is to say, if the respective Councils of the said Municipalities shall, taken together before union, be composed of twelve members and less than fifteen, the united Municipality formed by such union as aforesaid shall comprise three wards; if of fifteen members and less than twenty-four, four wards; if of twenty-four members and less than thirty, five wards; and if of thirty or more, six wards; and thereupon such Municipalities shall become and be one Municipality, within the meaning and for all the purposes of this Act, provided, however, that those members of the Municipal Council, whose term of office shall not at the time of such union have expired, shall remain in office as Aldermen until the ordinary time of retirement as hereinafter provided. And provided also that no such union shall take place within thirty days of the day hereinafter appointed for holding any election of Aldermen.

That is to say, all the Aldermen of both Municipalities remain in office as Aldermen of the united Municipality, until the next annual election, when, according to sec. 41, a sufficient number must retire to reduce them to the number stated in sec. 20, which will allow three for each of the wards constituted under this section.

Signatures to all Petitions to be verified.

20. In all cases of annexation to an adjoining Municipality, union of one (sic) or more Municipalities, or division of any Municipality, the signatures to all petitions and counter-petitions shall be verified in conformity with the eleventh section of this Act.

Orders of the Day.Of what Orders of the Day shall consist.

21. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or Chairman, or any committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration, and all such matters may be dealt with by the Council as if due notice of motion had been given in respect thereof.

Property rights and liabilities of several Municipalities to vest in united Municipality.

22. All land, property, and moneys, at the time of any such union vested in or belonging to the body corporate or bodies corporate of any of the Municipalities so united as aforesaid, shall on such union be vested in the body corporate of the united Municipality. All rates due, all rights, liabilities, contracts, and engagements existing, and all actions, suits, and prosecutions pending, at the time of such union as aforesaid, by or against the body corporate of any of such several Municipalities, shall on such union be paid to, and levied and recovered by, and attach to, and be carried on and prosecuted by and against, the body corporate of the said united Municipality, and be of the same force and effect to all intents and purposes with regard to the united Municipality, as they would have been severally with regard to each of the said Municipalities before union.

Petitions.Petitions to be respectfully worded.

23. It shall be incumbent on every alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the alderman presenting the same.

Petitions how received.

24. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

25. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned, or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise, unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

26. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council before directing the same to be read as by section 23 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed on aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letters addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any alderman. If the Mayor be absent and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding alderman.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject of motion.

27. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor or Town Clerk, and copies of which may be read to the Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion consistent with good order may be entertained with reference to any letters, whether read or not or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council which the Mayor or presiding alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

Reports from Committees, and Minutes from the Mayor.Form of report.

28. All reports from committees shall be written on foolscap paper with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by the chairman of such committee, or, in his absence, by some other member of the same.

Mayor's minute.

29. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of this Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written on paper of the same kind, and with same margin as a report from a committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with; duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

30. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a committee, or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting; Provided, however, that if any alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if any order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course; and whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the chairman or member of such committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Town Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid as will enable such Town Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

Questions and Statements.Limitations as to questions and statements.

31. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws.

Notice to be given.

32. Twenty-four hours' notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and, if necessary, for a reference to other persons or to documents.

Answer not compulsory.

33. It shall not be compulsory upon any person questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

Question to be put without argument, &c.

34. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

35. Every such statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on question, &c.—Rights of objection, and of subsequent motion reserved.

36. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion after due notice, as hereinafter provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question, or reply or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Order of Debate.Mode of addressing the Council.

37. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose address observations to the Council, shall while so doing stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in a like manner; but in every such case the question so put, and the answer thereto, shall be subject to every legal objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations—as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

38. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

39. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than the mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion, and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak longer than fifteen minutes nor oftener than once upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain, without adding any further observations than may be necessary for the purposes of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

40. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

41. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make any personal reflections on, nor impute improper motives to any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

42. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

43. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Committee of the whole Council.Business in Committee.

44. The Council may at any time resolve itself into a Committee of the whole for the consideration of any matter affecting the Borough, and the business of such Committee of the whole Council shall be conducted in accordance with the rules hereinbefore provided as near as the same shall apply, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Calls of the Council.How call of Council to be made.

45. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution which may be moved, without previous notice, for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before the Council.

Such call to be compulsory in certain cases.

46. No motion, the effect of which if carried would be to rescind any resolution, order, or decision of the Council, shall be entered on the business paper unless a call of the Council has been duly made and granted for such purpose.

Mode of proceeding.

47. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered shall be moved or considered, and all absent members shall be liable to a penalty of five shillings for such absence, recoverable in a summary manner, provided that the said Council may excuse such absence for any reasonable cause.

Standing and Special Committees.Standing Committees.

48. There shall be three Standing Committees, namely, a By-law, an Improvement, and a Finance; but the Council shall have power to appoint such further or other Committees as may from time to time be considered necessary. These Committees shall be reappointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be held after the election of Mayor.

Mode of reappointing Standing Committees.

49. The reappointment of such Committees shall be made by ballot. A list or lists of the members shall be handed to each then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong; and the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result; and if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed.

Substitutes for Returning or Presiding Officers.

50. In case the Returning Officer, or any other Presiding Officer, shall be prevented from attending to any of his duties by illness or other sufficient cause, he may, or in case of his refusal or inability, the Council Clerk shall, by writing under his hand, appoint a substitute to act for such Returning or other Presiding Officer, and such substitute shall thereupon, for the time being, have all the power and authority of the officer, for whom he has been so substituted.

Improvement Committee.

51. The Improvement Committee shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other public places under the care and management of the Council; they shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

52. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect or to be likely to affect the finances of the Municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Records of transactions in Committee.

53. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make, or cause to be made, in a book kept by him for that purpose, memoranda of all the transactions of such Committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such chairman, hand over to his successor.

Expenditure.—Except in emergent matters, cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

54. With the exception of emergent matters, hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Municipality shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses.—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accordance with the Orders of the Council.

55. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

(1.) By order of the Improvement Committee, or of the Mayor, and one member of such Committee, for repairs or emergent works, to the extent of five pounds.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting, such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Improvement Committee or the Mayor.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

56. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's Order.—Certificates to be attached to Report.

57. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee or Mayor showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons for its non-fulfilment before recommending payment; and provided further, that in regard to salaries and wages of labour for officers, servants, and labourers employed at fixed rates of payment by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor of the amount due to such officer, errand, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for payment of such amount, shall be a sufficient authorization for such payment.

Common seal and records of the Council.—Common seal and press, how secured.—Care of same.

58. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover or box, which, except when such seal and press are in use, shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor and the other by the Town Clerk. Such common seal and press shall be in the custody and the care of the Town Clerk.

When and how common seal to be used.

59. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Town Clerk. Provided that the Mayor may attach such common seal to any document for the purpose of authentication, with his certificate to that effect, and the Mayor shall keep a record of all such occasions.

How books of account, &c., be kept.

60. All books, deeds, memorial, letters, documents, and other records of the Council, except as hereinafter mentioned, shall be kept at the Council Chambers in the custody and care of the Town Clerk, who shall be responsible for the safe custody of the same, but the Mayor or Town Clerk may for any special purpose authorize their removal.

Books, &c., not to be shown or exposed to view without leave.

61. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, or expose any of the books, papers, or records of the Council to any person not a member of the Council, without the written permission of the Mayor. Any member or officer who shall commit a breach of this section shall be liable on conviction to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than two pounds.

Records not to be removed.

62. Any person removing any such book, paper, or record from the Council Chambers, without leave from the Mayor or Town Clerk in writing first had and obtained, shall be subject to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have received such book, paper, or record, and shall not have returned the same, to prosecution for stealing such book, paper, or record, or to an action at law for detention of the same, as the circumstances of the case may warrant.

Receipt for documents.

63. Every person removing any document or record with such consent as aforesaid shall give a receipt under his hand for every such document, which receipt shall be carefully preserved among the records until the document or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed.

Penalty for destroying or defacing records.

64. Any person destroying or defacing, or wilfully or improperly altering any books, papers, or records, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

65. A detailed account of all moneys received and of all sums disbursed on behalf of the Council, up to the end of each month, and also the cash-book and bank pass-book, balanced, shall be laid before the Council by the Town Clerk, at each fortnightly meeting.

66. Every contractor shall be required to find approved securities for the due performance of his contract.

67. In no case shall the Council accept as surety, for the due and faithful performance of any duty or contract, any member of the Council, nor any person holding office or employment under the Council.

Officers and Servants.Notice to candidates.

68. No appointment to any permanent office at the disposal of the Council shall take place until notice shall have been given as hereinafter provided, inviting application from qualified candidates for the same. The salary or allowance attached to the office shall in every case be fixed before such advertisement is published, and shall be stated in such advertisement.

Mode of appointment.

69. Every such appointment shall be made by ballot, in such mode as may at the time be determined upon, whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

70. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the employment, as may be from time to time found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workman or labourers on the public works of the Municipality.

Bonds for good conduct.

71. All bonds given by officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties shall be deposited with the attorney or bankers of the Corporation, as the Council may order; and no officer or servant of the Council shall be received as surety for any other such officer or servant.

Duties of Town Clerk.

72. The Town Clerk, in addition to the duties which by the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Municipalities Act of 1867 Amendment Act of 1874" or by the present or any other By-laws thereunder he may be required to perform, shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Municipality under the provisions of the said Municipalities Acts; he shall also conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council; he shall likewise have charge of all the records of such Council, except such books or documents as may be entrusted to any other officer, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records; he shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council, and the duties of the Mayor, and shall make a half-yearly return of the revenue and expenditure.

Duties of other Officers and Servants.

73. The duties of all officers and servants of the Corporation, in addition to the duties which by the present or any other By-laws thereunder he may be required to perform, shall be defined by such Regulations as may from time to time and in accordance with law be made.

Special powers of Mayor.

74. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation, or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless such return or statement shall have been already prepared, or such return or statement, explanation, or information, already given and on record, or unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statement, or the giving of such explanation or information. All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such explanations or information may be either rendered vice voce, or put into writing as the Mayor may direct.

Complaints against Officers.

75. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, addressed to the Mayor, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing, or which is anonymous. And such complaint as aforesaid shall be laid by the Mayor before the Council at the next meeting thereof, which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have received the same, and shall be duly recorded.

Miscellaneous.

Leave of absence.

76. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor, or to any Alderman, otherwise than by a resolution of Council, adopted after due notice.

Mode of calling for Tenders.

77. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed, or any material supplied by contract, tenders for the execution of such work, or the supply of such material, shall be called for by public notice, as hereinafter provided.

Draft of intended By-laws.

78. A draft of every intended By-law shall lie in the office of the Council for at least seven days before such draft shall be taken into consideration by the Council, and shall be open to the inspection of any ratepayer who may desire to inspect the same; and public notice shall be given, as hereinafter provided, that such draft is so lying for inspection.

Motions for rescission of previous orders, &c.

79. Whenever a motion for the rescission of any order, resolution, or vote of the Council, shall have been negatived, no other motion to the same effect shall be permissible until a period of three months shall have elapsed from the time of negativing such first mentioned motion: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to prohibit the reconsideration and amendment of any proposed By-law which may have been remitted to the Governor for confirmation, and may have been remitted to the Council, with suggested amendments of the same, or the passage, after due notice as hereinbefore provided, and in due course of law, of any By-law for the repeal or amendment of any other By-law.

Lapsed business

80. Whenever the consideration of any motion or matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the resumption of such consideration shall in such case be resumed at the next meeting, at the point where it was so interrupted.

How notices are to be published.

81. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law, such notice shall be given and published by advertising the same in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

82. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceeding of the Council.

Special Meetings.

83. The Mayor may call a special meeting of such Council as often as he shall think proper, and if he shall refuse or delay to call any such meeting after receiving a requisition for that purpose, signed by at least two Aldermen, such Aldermen may call a meeting of the Council by giving such notice as is hereinafter directed to the other members thereof.

PART II.

Collection and Enforcement of Rates.

Rates when due and payable.

1. All rates levied and imposed by the Council shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council shall by resolution, without any notice of motion, from time to time appoint.

Time and place of payment.

2. All such rates shall be paid at the Council Chambers, during the hours appointed by the Council for that purpose.

Defaulters.

3. Every person not paying his or her rates as aforesaid within thirty days after the day so appointed for payment thereof shall be deemed a defaulter, and it shall be the duty of the Town Clerk to furnish the Mayor from time to time with a list of the names of all persons so in default.

Mayor to enforce payment.

4. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to take proceedings to enforce the payment of all rates in default, either by action at law or by issuing warrants of distress upon the goods and chattels of the defaulter.

Bailiff, how appointed.

5. The Bailiff of the Municipality shall be appointed by the Council, and may from time to time be removed by them.

Bailiff to find sureties.

6. The Bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Mayor to the extent of (£25) twenty-five pounds each, for the faithful performance of his duty.

Duties of Bailiff.

7. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make levies by distraint for the recovery of rates in manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

8. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto under the hand of the Mayor, or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

9. It shall be lawful for the Bailiff or his deputy, and such assistants as he may take with him, to enter into any part of the land, building, tenement, or other property, in respect of which such rate or rates shall have been made as aforesaid, and to distraint the goods therein or thereon and to remain in such building, tenement, or other property in charge thereof. And if the sum for which any such distress shall have been made or taken, together with the costs of such distraint, shall not have been paid on or before the expiration of three clear days, the Bailiff or his deputy may, between the hours of eleven in the morning and two in the afternoon, on the next day thereafter, cause the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, to be sold by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the Municipality, as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them for such purpose, and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for, and the costs of such distraint, to the owner of such goods so sold, on demand by such owner; and any person interfering with the said Bailiff in the execution of any of the duties devolving upon him under these By-laws, or hindering or preventing him from delivering to the purchaser thereof any property so sold by the said Bailiff, shall be liable to a penalty of (£5) five pounds.

Inventory.

10. At the time of making a distress the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the Town Clerk.

Goods may be impounded.

11. The Bailiff on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of three days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

12. The owner of the goods or chattels so distrained upon, may at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

13. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Town Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Deputy.

14. The Bailiff may, with the sanction in writing of the Mayor, or in his absence with the sanction of any two Aldermen of the Municipality, authorize by writing under his hand any person to act temporarily as his deputy; and the person so authorized shall have and exercise all the powers of the Bailiff himself, but the Bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be responsible for the acts of such deputy.

Costs.

15. There shall be payable to the Bailiff for the use of the Council for every levy and distress made under this By-law the costs and charges in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

Warrant of Distress.

To _____ and his assistants
 WHEREAS _____ the premises comprised in the Schedule hereunder written have been rated by the Borough Council of Newcastle in the sum of £ _____ as for general and gas rates.

PART III.

Preventing and Extinguishing Fires.

Fire, or combustible materials, &c.

1. Every person who shall place or knowingly permit to be placed in any house, yard, workshop, outhouses, out-offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable material of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings, shall on conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than £5; and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials; and every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials to remain as aforesaid for twenty-four hours after any such conviction shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Inflammable fences, &c.

2. Every person who shall erect any fence or brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place as or for the covering of any such stack, any inflammable material, so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit on conviction for every such offence a penalty of not more than £5, and also shall remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Setting fire to matter without notice.

3. Any person who shall wilfully set fire to any inflammable matter whatever in the open air, within five yards of any dwelling-house or other building or boundary or dividing fence within the said Municipality, without having given notice in writing to the occupiers of the land adjoining the land upon which such matter shall be, of his intention so to do, or between the hours of six in the afternoon of any day and six in the morning of the following day, shall for every such offence forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Fireworks.

4. Every person who shall light any bonfire, tar barrel; or firework, upon or within ten yards of any public or private street, or any public place, or shall discharge any firearms without lawful cause within one thousand yards of any dwelling within the boundaries, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Wilfully setting fire to chimneys.

5. Every person who wilfully sets or causes to be set on fire any chimney-flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, herein called in common a "chimney," shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall exempt the persons so setting or causing to be set on fire any chimney from liability to be informed against or prosecuted before any Criminal Court for such act as for an indictable offence.

Burning shavings, &c., in the streets.

6. Any person who shall burn any shavings, rubbish, or any other matter or thing, in any road, street, lane, or public place within the said Municipality, or who shall within ten yards of any dwelling-house burn rags, bones, corks, or other offensive substance, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Placards not to be affixed on walls without consent.

7. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or other paper upon any wall, house, fence, or other erection, nor deface any such wall, house, fence, or erection with chalk, paint, or other matter, unless with the consent of the owner thereof; and every person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall pay a sum not exceeding twenty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Compensation for attendance at fires.—Rewards.

8. There shall be paid out of the municipal funds to the owner of every water-cart who shall have attended with any water at the place of any fire as herein provided, and delivered the same as required for extinguishing such fire, such reasonable compensation as the Council shall by resolution have appointed in that behalf, and also to such owners of such carts as shall have first and second in order attended with loads of water, such further sums by way of reward as the Council may by similar resolution have fixed.

PART IV.

Streets and Public Places.—Public Health and Decency, &c., Streets, &c.

New roads to be reported on.

1. No new public road, street, way, reserve, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or reserve shall have been examined by the Improvement Committee, and reported upon to the Council by such Committee.

Plans of proposed new road, &c., to be deposited

2. Whenever any proprietor or proprietors of land within the said Municipality shall open any road, street, or way, or lay out any park or other place for public use or recreation, through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, way, reserve, or other place, he or they shall furnish the Council with a plan or plans, signed by himself or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, way, reserve, or other place as aforesaid.

Dedication of new roads, &c.

3. If the Council determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans, so signed as aforesaid, shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council, and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument dedicating such road, way, reserve, or other place to public use or recreation as aforesaid, as may be considered necessary by the Improvement Committee, and such further instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Improvement Committee to fix street-levels, &c.

4. The Improvement Committee, or any officer or person acting under the supervision of such Committee, shall, subject to such orders as shall from time to time be made by the Council in that behalf, fix and lay out the levels of all public roads, streets, and ways within the Municipality, and the carriage and footways thereof; and it shall be the duty of such Committee, officer, or person to place posts at the corners or intersections of any such public roads and streets, wherever the same may be considered necessary or desirable by the Council. Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, or way, until the same shall have been submitted to and adopted by the Council as hereinafter directed.

Change of street-levels.

5. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, or way, as aforesaid, the Improvement Committee shall cause a plan and section showing the proposed cuttings to be exhibited at the Council Chamber for fourteen days, for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption, and countersigned by the Town Clerk; and such plan and section so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without permission.

6. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material, or any road scrapings or sweepings, in or from any part of the carriage or footway of any street or any other public place within the said Municipality, without leave first had and obtained from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or footway, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Holes to be enclosed.

7. Any person or persons who shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave or cause to be left any hole adjoining or near to any street or public place within the said Municipality, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or building, or for any other purposes whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building and shall not forthwith enclose the same, and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner, to the satisfaction of the Improvement Committee of the said Municipality, or shall keep up or cause to be kept up and continued any such enclosure for any time which shall be no longer than shall be absolutely necessary in the opinion of the said Committee, and shall not place lights upon each side of the said enclosure and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not being less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds.

Open space and steps adjoining footways to be enclosed under penalty.

8. Every owner or occupier of any house, building, or premises, or land within the said Municipality, having any entrance area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building lot, waterhole, or excavated space, adjoining the footway of any street or public place in such Municipality, shall protect and guard the same by good and sufficient rails, fences, or other enclosures, so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land having any steps adjoining the footway of any such street or public place, shall in like manner protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosures, so to prevent the like danger to persons passing and repassing; and on failure thereof of every such owner or occupier shall as often as he shall be convicted of such offence forfeit and pay a sum not being less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds. And every such owner or occupier as aforesaid who shall fail to erect such fences or other enclosures as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Wells to be covered over—Penalty.

9. Every person who shall have a well situated between his or her dwelling-house, or the appurtenances thereto, and any road, street, or footway, within the limits of the said Municipality, or at the side of or in any yard or place opened or exposed to such road, street, or footway within the limits of the said Municipality, or at the side of or in any yard or place open or exposed to such road, street, or footway, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any person having such well as aforesaid shall fail to cover over and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for such person at his or her usual or last known place of abode, or on the said premises, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum of ten shillings, and for every day after such notice that such well shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions thereof, such person shall be deemed guilty of a separate offence against this By-law.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs.

10. The Improvement Committee, or any officer or person acting under the authority of such Committee, may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Drawing or trailing timber.

11. Any person who shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of any street or public place within the said Municipality any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheeled vehicles or barrows, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon any wheeled vehicle or barrow, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place to the injury thereof, or to hang over any part of such vehicle or barrow, so as to occupy or obstruct the street beyond the breadth of the said vehicle or barrow, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay for each such offence a sum not more than forty shillings nor less than five shillings over and above the damage occasioned thereby.

Driving carriages, &c., on footways, and throwing filth &c.

12. Any person who shall throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing in or upon the carriage way or footway of any street or other public place in the said Municipality, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal, in or near to any such street or other public place as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over or be on any or either of any such carriage or foot way, or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any of the said footways of any such street or public place any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheelbarrow, handbarrow, or truck, or any hogshead, cask, or barrel, or shall wilfully lead, drive, or ride any horse, ass, mule, or other beast upon any such footway, or do, or cause to be done, any damage to the kerbing, streets, pathways, roads, lanes, or gutters of the Municipality, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings; for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound for each such offence.

Rain not to be carried on to footpaths.

13. It shall not be lawful for any person whomsoever to allow to fall upon, or to carry by means of pipes, gutters, or other contrivances, any rain-water from the roof of his or her premises or house upon any of the footways of any street or public place within the said Municipality, or any owner or occupier of any such house or premises who shall neglect or refuse to remedy or remove any such pipes, gutters, or contrivances, when required to do so by any officer of the Council, shall on conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten shillings, and a like sum for every day or part of a day that the same shall not be remedied or removed: Provided that the owner or occupier of any such house or premises may convey any such rain-water by means of pipes laid under the surface of such footways into the gutters adjoining the same: and provided also that all such pipes shall be laid down to the satisfaction and under the superintendence of the officer appointed by the Council.

Placing carriages, goods, &c., on footways, &c.—Not removing when required.—Replacing the same when after removal.—Not to prevent awning being erected in front of shops.

14. Any person who shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall-board, chopping-block, show-board (on hinges or otherwise), basket, wares, merchandise, casks, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or shall cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed, any pipe, barrel, cask, or vessel, in or upon, or over any carriage or footway in any street or public place within the said Municipality, or shall set out, lay or place, or shall cause or procure, permit, or suffer to be set out, laid or placed, any coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage, upon any such carriage-way, except for the necessary time of loading and unloading such cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage, or taking up or setting down any fare, or waiting for passengers when actually hired, or harnessing or unharnessing the horses or other animals from such coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, sledge, truck, or other carriage, or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be set, or placed, in or upon or over any such carriage or footway, any timber, stones, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as herein directed), or any other matters or things whatsoever, or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause, or permit to be hung out or exposed any meat or offal, or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or other building or premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside of the front or any other part of any house or other building or premises, over or next unto any such street or public place, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Inspector of Nuisances or other proper officer of the Council, or if any person who having in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed, or caused to be removed any such stall-board, show-board, chopping-block, basket, wares, merchandise, casks, goods, coach, cart, wain, waggon dray, wheelbarrow, sledge, truck, carriage, timber, stones, bricks, lime, meat, offal, or other matters or things, shall at any time thereafter again set, lay or place, expose or put out, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, exposed, or put out, the same or any of them, or any other stall-board, show-board, chopping-block, basket, wares, merchandise, goods, timber, stones, bricks, lime, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, truck, wheelbarrow, handbarrow, sledge, meat, offal, or other things or matters whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid), in, upon, or over any such carriage or footway, or over next unto any such street, or public place as aforesaid, shall, upon conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings; for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings, and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing an awning in front of his or her shop or house, in such manner as that such awning shall be at least ten feet above the height of the footway, and that the posts be placed close to the curb-stone or outer edge of such footway, and a plan must be submitted to the Council prior to its erection.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

15. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind shall ride upon any such carriage in any street as aforesaid, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse and driver or guided with reins only excepted), or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage, or in such a situation, whilst it shall be passing upon such street, that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses, or cattle, drawing the same, or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage, whatsoever meeting any other carriage shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage, on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare, or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care upon such street, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every driver or person so offending shall upon conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Riding or driving furiously, &c.

16. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Municipality so negligently, carelessly, or furiously that the safety of any other person shall or may be endangered, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Swine, &c., not to wander about the streets.

17. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any house, yard, or enclosure, situate and being in or within fifty feet of any street or public place or dwelling within the Municipality, or shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, cattle, mule, sheep, goat, or any other animal of the like nature belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street, road, or public place, within the said Municipality, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

18. Every person driving any vehicle within the Borough between sunset and sunrise shall carry a light on such vehicle in a conspicuous place. Any one offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound.

19. No person shall be allowed to remove loam, sand, gravel, or other material from any reserve or other lands of the Municipality without authority in writing of the Council or their duly authorised officer, under a penalty not exceeding two pounds. Any person offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not less than one pound nor more than forty shillings. The driver of any vehicle shall, for the purpose of the By-law, be held and taken to be the owner thereof until the contrary be shown.

Blasting Rock.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Town Clerk.

20. Any person who shall be desirous of blasting any rock within one hundred yards of any street or public place or dwelling-house in the said Municipality, shall give notice in writing, twenty-four hours previously, to the Town Clerk, who shall appoint a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as he may deem necessary for the public safety; and if any person shall blast or cause to be blasted any rock within the limits aforesaid without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him by the said Town Clerk, he or she shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Public Property.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

21. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Municipality, shall over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

As to damaging buildings.

22. Any person who shall damage any public building, toll-gate, toll-bar, toll-board, wall, parapet, fence, sluice, bridge, culvert, sewer, watercourse, or other public property, within the said Municipality, shall pay the costs of repairing the same, and if such damage be wilfully done, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

Damaging trees.

23. Any person who shall wilfully, and without the authority of the Council, cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood, growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Obstructing public pathways

24. That the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this Municipality who shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any footpath or footway on the side of any such street or road, so as to obstruct the passage thereof, and who, on demand made by the Council, or their overseer or inspector, shall not cut or cause to be cut, lopped, or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants, to the height of eight feet at the least, the said Council and their servants, labourers, and workmen may cut, or cause to be cut or lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, and shrubs, and to remove or burn any portion of such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen, in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Injuring public fountains, &c.

25. Any person who shall injure any public fountain, pump, cock, waterpipe, or any other thing connected with the preservation or supply of water to the Municipality, or to any portion thereof, shall forfeit and pay the amount of such damage, and any further sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound; and any person who shall bathe and wash himself, or shall wash any clothes or other article at or in any reservoir, channel, fountain, or basin provided for public use, or who shall in any other way foul the water preserved or used for the purpose aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding one pound nor less than five shillings.

Dead animals, &c., not to be thrown into any public places, reserves, watercourses.

26. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall suffer slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause, by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatever to flow into any public watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer or watercourse, river, creek, or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Suppression of nuisances, &c.

27. In case any privy, hogsty, or any other matter or thing whatsoever which shall at any time be or become a nuisance by causing unwholesome smells to arise within any part of this Municipality, it shall be lawful for any two Justices, upon complaint thereof by any person, to investigate such complaint, and to order that such privy, hogsty, boiling-down establishment, or other matter or thing, being a nuisance as aforesaid, to be cleansed, removed, or discontinued, as the case may be, within seven days after such order has been made, and notice given to the owner or occupier of the premises whereon such nuisance shall exist; and every such owner or occupier neglecting to remedy or remove such nuisance, pursuant to such notice or order, and to the satisfaction of such Justices, shall forfeit and pay a sum of ten pounds for every such neglect or disobedience.

Cattle, &c., not allowed to go about the streets, &c.

28. It shall not be lawful for any person whomsoever to suffer any kind of cattle, horse, ass, mule, sheep, swine, or goats belonging to him, or under his or her charge, to depasture, stray, or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street, road, or public place within the said Municipality; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay in respect to every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

As to private avenues, &c.

29. Any owner or occupier of any house or place within the said Municipality who shall neglect to keep clean any private avenues, passages, yards, and ways within the said premises, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shilling nor less than ten shilling for every such offence.

Cleansing butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, &c.

30. For preserving the cleanliness of the said Municipality and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council from time to time, and when and as often as he or either of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, and fellmongering establishments in the said Municipality, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing the said shambles, slaughter-houses, tanneries, and establishments, both within and without, as to him shall seem needful; and any butcher, or the owner or occupier of any such shamble, slaughter-house, tannery, or establishment, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Inspection of premises.

31. Upon the reasonable complaint in writing, of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drain of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officer of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

32. Every person who in any street or other public place or passage within the said Municipality, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences, shall on conviction for any and every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds—

Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or caused to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the footway thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place, the carcass, or any part of the carcass, of any newly-slaughtered animal without a sufficient or proper cloth covering the same from the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butcher's meat for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.

Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.

Every person who shall place any flower-pot in any upper window near to any street or public place without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.

Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof, or any part of the house or other building, any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure when any house or building is being erected, pulled down, or repaired).

Every blacksmith, whitesmith, anchormsmith, nailmaker, metal founder, limeburner, brickmaker, potter, or other person using a forge, furnace, or kiln, and having a door, window, or aperture fronting or opening into or towards any street, lane, or passage, and not enclosing such door, or not fastening the shutters or other fastenings of such window, and closing such aperture, and placing a screen before the same every evening, within one hour after sunset, so as effectually to prevent the light from showing through the doorway, window, or aperture next or upon such street, lane, or passage.

Every person who shall be the keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right-of-way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or any other place within the said Municipality.

Premises in State to endanger Public Health.

Houses to be purified on certificate of two medical practitioners.

33. If upon the certificate of any two duly qualified medical practitioners, it appears to the Council that any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, within the limits of the said Municipality, is in a filthy or unwholesome condition, that the health of any person is or may be liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and that the whitewashing, cleansing, or purifying of any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, would tend to prevent or check infectious or contagious disease, the said Council shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to whitewash, cleanse, or purify the same as the case may require; and if the person to whom such notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within such time as shall be specified in the said notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings for every day during which he continues to make default: Provided that no such penalties shall collectively amount to any greater sum than twenty pounds.

Offences against Public Decency.

Bathing prohibited within certain limits.

34. Any person who shall bathe near or within view of any inhabited house, or of any public wharf, quay, bridge, street, road, or other place of public resort within the limits of the said Municipality, between the hours of seven in the morning and seven in the evening, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one pound for every such offence, except in proper attire.

Penalty on indecent exposure of person.

35. Any individual who shall offend against decency, by exposure of his or her person in any street or public place within the said Municipality, or in the view thereof, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

PART V.

Noisome and Offensive Trades.

No noisome or offensive trades to be carried on to the injury of any inhabitants.

1. No person shall carry on any noisome or offensive trade within the said Municipality so as to injure or be a nuisance as hereinafter stated to the inhabitants thereof.

Definition of "Noisome and Offensive Trades."

2. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which, or in consequence of, or in connection therewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed, or carried on, any gas, vapour, or effluvia, or any large quantities of smoke shall be evolved or discharged, which gas, vapour, effluvia, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the said Municipality, shall be considered a "noisome and offensive trade" within the meaning of these By-laws.

Complaint—Inquiry and report—Order of Council thereon—Notice to discontinue, &c.—Penalty.

3. Upon the complaint in writing of any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property, as to injure his or her health, or the health of any member of his or her family, or to be a nuisance to such householder, and to his or her family, the Inspector of such Nuisances, or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint and shall report thereon to the said Council; and if the said Council shall on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, operation so complained of, and so being conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, is a "noisome or offensive trade" within the meaning of these By-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such trade, to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, as the said Council may direct, or so to conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid, the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be noisome or offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Municipality; and if such trade shall not be discontinued as aforesaid, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be noisome and offensive as aforesaid, within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on any such trade as aforesaid, shall for the first offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds; for a second offence a sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds; and for a third and every subsequent offence, a sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Mode of proceeding when "Noisome or Offensive Trade" is about to be commenced—Penalty.

4. The like proceeding shall be taken as aforesaid whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, save and except that the notice to be given as aforesaid shall be given to the person or persons about to enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same, or take such measures as shall effectually prevent the same from becoming "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws to any resident within the Municipality. And any person who shall in such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so that the same shall in any way be "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Services of notices—Liabilities.

5. Services of any such notice as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is being conducted, followed, or carried on, or is about to be commenced or entered upon, or at the last known place of abode of such occupier or owner, or upon any person on the said premises or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these By-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged in superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as aforesaid, shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting, following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, within the meaning and for all the purposes of these By-laws.

PART VI.

Miscellaneous.

Exhibitions, &c., to be licensed.

1. No exhibition other than exhibitions licensed by the Colonial Secretary under the provisions of the Act 14 Victoria No. 23, or exhibitions of a temporary character specially provided for, shall be held or kept for hire or profit within the said Municipality; nor shall any bowling alley, skittle alley, or other place of public amusement other than a place licensed as aforesaid, or a place for temporary amusement, be used as such for hire or profit within the said Municipality, unless and until permission in writing be granted by the Mayor.

No exhibition, &c., on Sundays, &c.

2. No such exhibition or place of public amusement as aforesaid shall be held or kept open, or used for the purpose of such public amusement, on Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday; and every person offending against this By-law in this behalf shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds for every such offence.

Wilful trespass.

3. Every person who shall wilfully let in or knowingly suffer to enter upon the reserves of public recreation ground any animals, without due authority, shall be deemed guilty of wilful trespass, and shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

Penalty for destroying boundary marks.

4. Any person pulling down, destroying, defacing, or injuring any marks, or any fence or other erection thereon, without the authority of the Council, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Erection of houses, &c.

5. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place in the Municipality, without first serving notice, in writing, on the Mayor or Town Clerk, on any lawful day between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m., stating such intention, and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, and without having received an authority from the Mayor or Town Clerk, who will give the required level and alignment, if in a proclaimed street, on a payment of a fee of five shillings. No person shall be at liberty to encroach beyond the building-line in any street or lane, by the erection of houses, verandahs, door-steps, fences, or any other obstruction whatever.

Houses, &c., to be spouted.

6. All proprietors of houses within the Municipality having a frontage to any main thoroughfare shall be bound to have the same sufficiently spouted with down pipe, to be carried under the surface of the footpath into the gutter, under a penalty of ten shillings on conviction; and if not remedied at the expiration of seven days after such conviction, the offender shall be again liable to a like conviction and penalty also for every succeeding seven days.

Using bark for building in the main thoroughfares.

7. All persons are prohibited from erecting buildings any portion of which shall be constructed of bark, palings, or other dangerously inflammable material; and any person or persons erecting such buildings shall forfeit, on conviction of every such offence, a penalty of not more than twenty pounds.

8. Any person who shall convey or carry, or caused to be conveyed or carried, along any street or thoroughfare within the Municipality, the carcass, or any portion thereof, of a slaughtered animal, or of an animal which has apparently been slaughtered, without a sufficient cloth or other covering to conceal the same from public view, shall be liable, upon conviction, to a penalty not exceeding two pounds for every such offence.

9. No person shall obstruct any road, street, pathway, or public thoroughfare, by building material, drays, carts, or anything calculated to prevent a free passage to persons using the said passages, nor leave waterholes, excavations, or cellars, or dangerous openings of any kind whatever, whereby the public safety shall or may be endangered, without sufficient fencing or other means of security against risk to individuals, nor allow any obstruction necessarily created to remain without providing lights thereat, to prevent accidents, between sunset and sunrise, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

10. Any person or persons riding or driving into or out of any yard or alley abutting on any street or road within the Municipality shall do so at a walking pace, and anyone offending against this By-law shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds.

11. Any person wantonly or maliciously breaking or injuring any lamp-post, or street name-plate, or extinguishing any light set up for public convenience, or damaging any corporation property whatsoever, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds, to be recovered in a summary way before two Justices in Petty Sessions.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPALITY OF SCONE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th February, 1888.

SCONE MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Scone, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

BY-LAWS made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Scone for regulating the proceedings of the said Council, the duties of their officers and servants, for compelling residents to keep their residences clean, and generally for the proper government of the Municipality, in accordance with the requirements of the "Municipalities Act of 1867."

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient that provision should be made for regulating the proceedings of the Municipal District of Scone; and in accordance with a resolution adopted by the said Council on the 8th day of October, 1888, and in virtue of the power and authority vested in them in that behalf, that the following By-laws do now take effect, they are hereby established for the purposes aforesaid.

By-Laws.Standing Orders.

1. The meetings of the Council shall be held fortnightly, on Wednesday, at the hour of 7.30 p.m., except as provided under clause 103 of the "Municipalities Act of 1867."
2. The Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order shall be final.
3. When the Chairman is called upon to decide a point of order or practice, he is to state the rule, custom, or precedent applicable to the case without argument.
4. The Mayor, or Chairman, may take part in all the proceedings of the Council.
5. All questions duly proposed shall be put by the Mayor or Chairman, and the sense of the Council thereon shall be declared by him.
6. Every question shall be put in the affirmative, and then in the negative, and this may be done as often as the Mayor or Chairman shall deem necessary for enabling him to determine which side has the majority.
7. No member, having taken his seat, shall be allowed to withdraw without asking the permission of the Chairman.
8. If two members or more rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of them is entitled to pre-audience.

9. The Mayor or Chairman may, without waiting for the interposition of any Member of the Council, call to order any Member proceeding to speak a second time on the same question, except in explanation.

Order of Business.

10. The business of each ordinary meeting of the Council shall be transacted in the following order:--
 - (a) The reading and confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting.
 - (b) The reading of official correspondence.
 - (c) The presentation of petitions.
 - (d) Reports brought up from Committees.
 - (e) Miscellaneous business.
 - (f) Motions, of which notice has been given.
 - (g) Notices of motion.
 - (h) Consideration of tenders.
 - (i) Orders of the day.

Provided it shall be competent to the Council at any time by resolution, without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

11. The question for confirming the minutes of the previous meeting shall be proposed by the Mayor or Chairman immediately upon their being read, and shall be to the effect that the minutes now read are a correct record of the proceedings, and no discussion shall be allowed thereon except on the point of accuracy.

Business at Special Meetings.

12. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall have been done in the same manner as at any ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor, or Alderman at whose instance the special meeting shall be called, may have directed; and no other than the special business for which the meeting has been convened shall be entertained.

Rules of Debate.

13. Every member shall stand when speaking, and shall address the Chair.

14. Except in Committee no member shall speak more than once on the same question, unless in explanation, when misrepresented or misunderstood, provided however that the mover of the question shall be allowed the liberty of reply; and provided further that every member shall be at liberty to speak once on any amendment as well as on the original motion, but the right of reply shall not extend to the mover of an amendment.

15. No member shall speak on any motion or amendment for a longer time than fifteen minutes, unless by permission of the Council.

16. No member shall digress from the matter under discussion nor make personal reflections on members, nor impute motives.

17. When any member shall use any expression which the Mayor or Chairman or any Alderman shall think capable of being offensively applied to any other member, the member so offending shall be required by the Mayor or Chairman to withdraw the expression and to make a satisfactory apology to the Council. Any Alderman declining so to apologise and to withdraw the offensive expressions, or to retract the imputation of motive, shall be liable, on conviction, to a fine or penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds for the first offence, and on a second conviction for a like offence he shall be liable to a fine or penalty of not less than two pounds. Any Alderman may move, without notice, that the offensive words be taken down, and when this has been done it shall be prima facie evidence of such words having been used.

18. No Alderman, when discussing any matter, shall be interrupted, unless by a call to order, when he shall sit down. The Alderman calling to order shall then be heard, and the question of order decided before the debate or any other business is resumed.

19. Any member may require the question under discussion to be read for his information at any time during a debate, but not so as to interrupt any other member when speaking.

20. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the evening, or to another evening specified, and the member on whose motion a debate is adjourned, shall be entitled to pre-attendance on resumption of the debate.

Divisions.

21. It shall be competent for any member to divide the Council upon any question put from the Chair, either in full Council or in Committee of the Council, and upon such division those who are on the affirmative shall place themselves on the Mayor's or Chairman's right hand, and those who are on the negative shall place themselves on his left hand; and no member shall leave his place until the names of all the members present have been taken down by the Council Clerk, or person officiating for him.

22. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings.

Motions.

23. Motions shall take precedence of the orders of the day, and be moved or postponed in the order in which they stand on the notice paper, or lapse.

24. No motion or amendment shall be discussed or put unless and until it be seconded.

25. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced into writing.

26. When a motion has been proposed and seconded it shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn without the consent of the Council.

27. Any number of amendments may be proposed on a motion before the Council, but no second or subsequent amendment shall be proposed or taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of.

28. Any motion for adjournment, if seconded, shall be put immediately, without discussion, but if such motion be negatived it shall not be competent for any member to make a similar motion until at least half-an-hour shall have elapsed from the period of moving the one that has been negatived.

29. No motion, the effect of which, if carried, would be to rescind, or be repugnant to any resolution which has been passed by the Council, shall be entertained within three months, unless a call of the whole Council has been duly made for that purpose; and no such motion, if negatived by the Council, shall be again entertained during a period of three months.

30. Matters of extreme urgency may, with the consent of the Council, be brought under consideration without notice being previously given.

31. A book to be called a "Motion Book" shall be provided by the Council for the purpose of immediate reference, in which the Council Clerk shall enter all motions duly made, and amendments thereon, if any, specifying the manner in which such motions or amendments have been dealt with.

Petitions.

32. It shall be incumbent on any member presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to report to the Council that it does not contain any disrespectful language.

33. On the presentation of a petition no debate shall take place, and the only question that can be entertained by the Council shall be that the petition be received, or that it be referred to a committee; provided, however, that any petition that has been received by the Council may be taken into consideration upon notice of motion being given in the usual way.

34. Every petition received by the Council shall be received only as the petition of the party or parties whose signature or signatures it bears; and no petition shall be received unless at least one signature be upon the sheet containing the petition.

Committees.

35. In a Committee of the whole Council the general rules of the Council shall be observed, except the rule limiting the number of times of speaking.

36. Every report of a Committee shall be signed by the Chairman thereof.

37. When the report of a Committee is brought up and presented to the Council, the question as to its reception may be moved and put at once; but it shall not be adopted or taken into consideration without notice in the usual way.

38. There shall be three Standing Committees—the Finance, Improvement or Works, and By-law Committees; and each such Committee shall consist of three Aldermen, and may be called together at any time by direction of any one Member of such Committee. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year, at the first meeting of the Council which shall be held after the election of the Mayor. And any vacancies occurring therein during the year shall be filled up by the Council.

39. All reports of Committees shall be fairly written on foolscap paper for the convenience of filing or binding.

Finance Committees.

40. No matters of account shall be disposed of by the Council until they have been examined and reported upon by the Committee of Finance.

41. The Chairman may, however, with the assent of two members of Committee, under signature, authorize the expenditure of any sum not exceeding ten pounds during any recess; and such expenditure shall be reported to the Council at its next meeting, and the usual draft obtained for payment thereof.

42. All drafts upon the funds shall be signed by the Mayor of the Municipality and one member of the Finance Committee, and be countersigned by the Council Clerk.

43. The Mayor of the Municipality shall in all cases give the necessary information to the bankers, whose signatures are necessary to constitute a genuine draft.

44. No accounts of any kind whatsoever, except those otherwise specially provided for, shall be paid except at the usual meetings of the Council, or until such accounts shall have been first passed by the Finance Committee, and be then allowed by the Council.

45. No contract shall be paid for until such contract shall have been fully completed to the satisfaction of the Committee under whose authority the contract was entered into, nor by it, unless in the form prescribed for other payments.

Committee of Works.

46. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, and bridges under the care and management of the Council, with the exception of any reserves set apart or dedicated by the Government and Executive Council for recreation or other public purposes. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

By-law Committee.

47. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Municipality. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws, and of any statute of which the operation has been, or may be, extended to the Municipality, and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Making By-laws.

48. Before any proposed By-law is discussed in Council, a copy thereof shall be open for public inspection in the office of the Council, not less than seven days.

49. No By-law shall be passed until it has been reported upon by a Committee of the whole Council, nor until it has been twice read in Council on different days.

50. All By-laws, when confirmed and published as the "Municipalities Act of 1867" directs, shall, at all reasonable times, be open to public inspection.

Miscellaneous.

51. Works undertaken by the Council, and estimated to cost over £10 (ten pounds), shall be let by tender, and no tender shall be entertained unless it be accompanied by an agreement, signed by one or more respectable parties, as sureties for the due performance of the contract.

52. Any member may record his protest against any decision of the Council, provided that the protest be handed to the Council Clerk not later than the next Council meeting; and provided also that notice of his intention to protest be given immediately on the passing of the resolution to which the protest refers.

53. The common seal shall not be affixed to any document without the express authority of the Council; and every impression thereof so authorized shall be verified by the signatures of the Mayor and Council Clerk; or in case of illness or absence of the Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

54. No officer of the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, or expose any of the books, papers, or records of the Council to any person other than an Alderman, without leave from the Council, except as otherwise provided for by section 108 of the "Municipalities Act of 1867." Any member or officer who shall commit a breach of this section shall be liable, on conviction, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than two pounds.

55. In cases where security is required by clause 151 of the "Municipalities Act of 1867," no sureties shall be accepted otherwise than by a vote of the Council; and it shall not be competent for the Council to accept as sureties any of its own members, nor any person holding office in the Corporation.

56. Any one or more of the Standing Orders may be suspended pro tempore in a case of emergency, if a majority of the Council then present shall deem such suspension necessary.

57. All books, deeds, memorials, letters, documents, and other records of the Council, except as hereinafter mentioned, shall be kept at the Council Chambers, in the custody and care of the Council Clerk, who shall be responsible for the safe custody of the same; but the Mayor may for any special purpose authorize their removal.

Duties of the Council Clerk.

58. The Council Clerk shall attend at the office of the Council, for the purpose of transacting the ordinary business of the Council, on every Tuesday, from 2 to 4 p.m., and on every Friday from 10 to 12 a.m.

59. The Council Clerk, in compliance with the "Municipalities Act of 1867," or by the present or any other By-laws made thereunto, shall perform the following duties, namely:—

1. Attend all Council meetings.
2. Attend all Committee meetings.
3. Attend all Courts of Revision and Appeal.
4. Summon the Members of the Council to all Council or Committee meetings.
5. Takes notes of all meetings, and prepare reports of all Committees.
6. Conduct all correspondence ordered by the Council, under the direction of the Mayor, and give all other officers instructions as directed by the Minutes.
7. To see that the accounts are audited, and the balance sheet duly submitted twice a year, within the times specified by law.
8. To see to the gazetting of all By-laws and necessary advertisements.
9. To see that the Assessment books and the Municipal lists and rolls are duly prepared, examine proofs of latter, and arrange for distribution of copies on payment, to electors, prior to the elections.
10. Make all necessary arrangements for the elections, preparing all papers, &c., for Presiding Officers and Poll Clerks.
11. Prepare all bonds of officers, see that the guarantees are given, and arrangements duly signed, &c., and reports sent to the Council.
12. Advise with the officers from time to time as to their duties, and the mode of carrying them out.
13. See that all levels and names of streets have been duly advertised as provided for by law, and authenticated by the Mayor's signatures.
14. To bring under the notice of the Mayor any matter or thing requiring his prompt attention.
15. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of the Council, except such books or documents as may be entrusted to any other officer of the Council, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council.
16. He shall enter into a bond for not less than £50 (fifty pounds) for the faithful performance of his duties.

The Bailiff and his duties.

60. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under the provisions of the "Municipalities Act of 1867," and for the purposes mentioned in the said Act, shall be collected half-yearly, and each rate shall be held to be due and payable on and after such days as the Council shall by resolution appoint at the time of making or imposing such rate.

61. All rates made and authorized by the Council shall be paid at the Council Chambers of the Municipality, or at any other place appointed by the Council, at such hours, and on such days as the Council shall from time to time appoint.

62. The Council Clerk shall prepare at such times as he may be ordered by the Council, by resolution, a list of the names of all persons whose rates are unpaid at the expiration of the time fixed for the payment of the same, and the Mayor shall take immediate proceedings, either by summons or by the issue of distress warrants against defaulters.

63. The bailiff shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council, and may be at any time removed in a similar way, and shall find two sureties of (£10) ten pounds each for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office.

64. The bailiff shall make all levies and distresses for the recovery of rates, under warrant in the form of the Schedule hereto annexed, and marked with the letter A, under the hand of the Mayor, or any person who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

65. At the time of making a distress the bailiff shall forthwith make out a written inventory, in the form or to the effect of the Schedule annexed hereto, and marked with the letter B, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf, resident at the place where the distress has been made; and in case there shall be no person at such place, with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress has been made, and the bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer, on demand, at any time within one month after the making of such distress.

66. The bailiff in making a distress as aforesaid may impound or otherwise secure the distress so made, of what nature or kind soever it may be in such places or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with the rate, as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whatsoever, after the expiration of the five days hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where any distress shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

67. The owner of any goods so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the goods and chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

68. The bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of such distresses within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

69. The bailiff, with the sanction of the Mayor of the Municipality, may authorize any person to act temporarily as his deputy; and the person thus authorized shall have and exercise, for the time being, all the powers of the bailiff himself; but the bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be held responsible for the acts of such deputy.

70. The bailiff shall be paid for every levy made under these By-laws, according to the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked C.

71. The bailiff, and such assistants as he may take with him, shall enter into any part of the land, building, or tenement in respect of which a warrant has been issued for the recovery of any rate or rates as aforesaid, and to distrain the goods therein or thereon, and to remain in such building, tenement, or other property in charge thereof; and if the sum for which such distress shall have been made or taken, shall not be paid on or before the expiration of two days, it shall be lawful for the bailiff to sell the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof; and if the party so distrained upon shall so require, by public auction, either in the premises or at such other place within the Municipality as the bailiff may think proper to remove thereto, such party consenting in writing to pay the charges of the auctioneer, if so sold; and the surplus, if any remain after deducting the amount distrained for, together with the expense attendant upon such distress and sale, shall be paid over to the owner of the goods so sold: Provided that nothing herein contained shall apply to the sale of any produce whatever which may be growing upon the land at the time of making the distress: Provided always that no distress shall be made on the goods of any casual visitor or on the goods of any lodger in any house or apartment ordinarily let or used as a lodging-house or apartment.

Prevention and extinguishing of fires.

72. It shall not be lawful for any persons to burn any shavings, or other matters or things in any street, road, or public place within the Municipality.

73. No householder shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, workshop, outhouses, or other premises, fire, powder, or combustible materials of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings.

74. The Mayor, upon the representation of any two householders, that fire is being used, to the danger of contiguous buildings, shall cause three days' notice in writing (unless the urgency of the case requires that it should be removed at once) to be given to such householder, to show cause why the same should not be removed or remedied, and an opportunity thereupon given to show such cause.

75. For every offence against the provisions of these By-laws, the offender shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

76. Any person who shall suffer the chimney of any house or building within the limits of the Municipality to take fire, from the occupier of any such house or building, having omitted to cause such chimney to be regularly and efficiently swept and cleaned, or from any other neglect of such occupier, or of his or her servant or servants, such occupier shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

77. Every owner and driver of a licensed water-cart shall keep such cart loaded with water during all times after sunset and before sunrise, and shall, if any building, premises, or property, shall be on fire within the Municipality, attend at the place of such fire with such cart loaded with water, and shall continue to cart water by full loads to such place, and shall deliver such water in such manner as may be required by the Mayor, or by any Alderman or person duly authorised by the Council in that behalf and then present, for extinguishing such fire; and every such owner or driver who shall, without reasonable excuse, fail to comply with the provisions of this section, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding ten pounds, nor less than two pounds.

78. There shall be paid out of the Municipal funds to the owner of every licensed water-cart who shall have attended with any water at the place of any fire, as herein provided, and deliver the same as required for extinguishing such fire, such reasonable compensation as the Council shall by resolution have appointed on that behalf, and also to such owners of such carts as shall have first and second in order attended with loads of water, such further sums by way of reward as the Council may by similar resolution have fixed.

Care and management of the public roads and streets and public thoroughfares of the municipality.

79. The surveyor of the Municipality duly appointed by the Council thereof, or any person acting for him, shall be the proper person for marking out, when necessary, any roads, streets, or thoroughfares, in actual public use as such within the Municipality; in marking out such roads, streets, or thoroughfares recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which lands, with frontage to the road, street, or thoroughfare in question, shall have been sold; and it shall be the duty of the surveyor, or any person acting for him, to place posts at the corners or intersections of any roads, streets, lanes, or thoroughfares, wherever the same may be considered necessary or desirable by the Municipal Council, so as to give a width of 42 feet, at least, for the carriageway, and 12 feet at least for the footway on each side, when the streets shall be 66 feet wide; and in proportion, and in the discretion of the said surveyor, or person acting for him, in any public roads, streets, lanes, or thoroughfares of other width than 66 feet.

80. Whenever any road, street, or lane has been marked out in the manner herein provided, no house, shop, fence, or other structure shall be erected or allowed to encroach on any part thereof.

81. Whenever any footways shall have been marked out, the surveyor, or person acting for him, may with the sanction of the Council, cause the same to be levelled and made, as nearly as practicable, of equal height and breadth, and with an equal slope and inclination, and for this purpose may remove any flagging, steps, or other matter or thing that may injure or obstruct the said footway, or render unequal or inconvenient, and which now is, or may hereafter be, erected or placed on the space marked out for any of the said footways.

Obstructions and encroachments.

82. The Council may at any time, and upon due notice of ten days, direct the removal of any fence, building, or other obstruction or encroachment which shall be made in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, under the charge of the Council; notice shall in this case be served, either personally, or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstructive or encroaching structure belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected, or who may be in charge of the same.

83. In any case where after the service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same, under the superintendance of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the owner or of the person thus offending, or of the person who may be in charge thereof: Provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, to be recovered summarily in manner provided for the recovery of penalties under these By-laws.

84. In case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed, unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open for the Council to direct such removal, and to pay all costs thereof, above ten pounds, from the municipal funds, or to proceed by action of trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or who may be in charge thereof.

85. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging, or excavation.

86. The Council may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on or removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon, for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

87. No person shall be allowed to obstruct any pathway, road, street, or public thoroughfare within the Municipality, by building materials, drays, carts, goods, merchandise, or anything whatsoever calculated to obstruct or hinder free passage, without the sanction of the Mayor in writing; and no person shall be allowed to leave waterholes or excavations for cellars or other purposes unenclosed, or in such a manner as to be dangerous to passers-by; and at all places where buildings are being carried on, or where any obstruction to the danger of passers-by exists, the person causing such obstruction shall be required to provide lights on either side, and keep the same lighted from sunset to sunrise. Any person so offending shall forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding two pounds; for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds; and for the third offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Trespasses and removal of nuisances.

88. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal, with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek or canal, or who shall suffer slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer any such slops, suds or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause, by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatsoever to flow into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or shall obstruct, or divert from its channel any such sewer or watercourse, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings, and ten shillings for every day of continuation after the lapse of seven days from the date of notice to remedy such nuisance, such penalty to be recovered summarily in the manner provided for the recovery of penalties under these By-laws.

89. No person shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer in any public road or street, lane or thoroughfare, or shall cut up the surface of any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, upon any pretence whatever, without leave, in writing, from the Mayor.

90. No person shall be allowed to throw rubbish, sweepings, or deposits of any kind whatsoever, on the streets, pathways, or gutters of the Municipality.

91. Any driver, carter, or other person who shall wilfully or negligently do, or suffer or cause to be done, any damage or injury to the kerbstones, gutters, or pathways of any street or roadway, or who shall drive a wheeled vehicle of any kind, or ride or drive, lead or stand, or permit to stand, any animal (other than dogs) on the pathway within the Municipality, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

92. Any person who shall damage any public building, wall, parapet, bridge, road, street, sewer, watercourse, sluice, pump, fountain, cock, water-pipe, shoot, embankment, or other public property in the possession of the Council, shall pay the costs of repairing the same, and if such damage be wilfully done, shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than five shillings and not exceeding ten pounds.

93. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Municipality, shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the same or injury committed, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

94. Any person who shall be the keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right of way, or use of any private yard, alley, street, or other place within this Municipality, shall, on conviction, for any and every such offence forfeit and pay as penalty any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Throwing filth on carriage or footways.—Driving barrows and carriages on footways.

95. If any person shall, in any street or road, throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animals, blood, or any other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing, in or upon the carriageway or footway of any such street or road, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other cattle, in or so near to any of the said streets or roads as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over, or to be on any such carriageway or footway, or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any of the footways of any street or road any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheelbarrow, or any truck or cask, or shall wilfully lead, or stand, or drive, or ride any horse or other beast upon any of the footways aforesaid, every person so offending, upon conviction, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings for every such offence.

96. Nothing in these By-laws contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing an awning in front of his or her house or shop; provided, however, that such awning be not less than seven feet above the height of the footway in front of such house or shop, and that the posts be placed close up to the kerbstone or outer edge of such footway.

Suppression of Nuisances.

97. No householder or resident shall be permitted, under a penalty of any sum not exceeding ten pounds, to allow his or her premises, yards, closets, or drains, to be offensive or a nuisance to the neighbouring householders or residents.

98. No noisome or offensive trade shall be permitted, under a penalty of any sum not exceeding ten pounds, to be carried on in any premises, to the inconvenience or annoyance of the residents of neighbouring or adjoining houses or premises.

99. Upon representation by any respectable householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of, and the officer of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose, and if any such premises be found to be a nuisance, notice in writing shall be given to the proprietor or resident of such premises, that if, within seven days after the service of such notice, the nuisance shall not be removed, the proprietor, tenant, or occupant of the aforesaid premises, shall, upon conviction, be liable to any penalty not exceeding twenty pounds.

100. For preserving the cleanliness of the said Municipality, and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or other person appointed by the Council, from time to time, and when as often as he or the Council shall see occasion to visit and inspect the butcher's shambles and slaughter-houses, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing of such shambles and slaughter-houses, both within and without, as to him or the said Council shall seem needful; and any butcher, and the owner or occupier of any such shambles or slaughter-houses, who shall obstruct or molest any such officer in the inspection thereof, or who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time, shall, on conviction, on the complaint of any such officer, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Swine, horses, goats, &c. not suffered to wander about the streets.

101. It shall not be lawful for any person whatsoever to suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, or goat, or other cattle belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray, or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any road, street, or public place; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay, in respect of every such animal, a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Hog-styes and nuisances not removed on complaint.

102. In case any privy, hog-stye, boiling-down, or any other matter or thing (which shall, at any time or times hereafter be in any place within the said Municipality) shall be or become a nuisance, it shall be lawful for the said Council upon any complaint thereof to them made by any of the inhabitants, and after due investigation of such complaint, by notice in writing, to order that such privy, hog-stye, boiling-down, or other matter or thing, being a nuisance, shall be remedied and removed within seven days after such notice shall have been given to the owner or occupant of the said premises wherein such nuisance shall exist, or shall have been left for such owner or occupier at his or her last or usual place of abode, or on the said premises; and every such owner or occupier neglecting to remedy or remove such nuisance, pursuant to such notice, and to the satisfaction of the Council shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds for every such neglect or disobedience, and such person or persons being found guilty thereof such nuisance or nuisances shall be removed, taken down, and abated, according to the law with regard to public or common nuisances.

Swine not to be kept.

103. It shall not be lawful for any person whosoever to breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine, in any house, building, yard, garden, or other hereditaments, situate and being in or within forty yards of any street or public place in the Municipality; and any person who shall so offend, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Drawing or trailing timber.

104. If any person shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of the streets, roads, or public places, any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheeled carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon wheeled carriages, to drag or trail upon any part of such streets or public places, to the injury thereof, every such person so offending shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Wells to be covered over.

105. Every person who shall have a well situated between his or her dwelling-house or the appurtenances thereof, and any road, street, or footway within the limits of the said Municipality, or at the side thereof, or in any yard or place open or exposed to such road, street, or footway, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any person having such well as aforesaid shall fail to cover and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for such person at his or her usual or last known place of abode, or on the said premises, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay the sum of two shillings and sixpence for every day that such well shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions hereof.

Enclosures and scaffolding.

106. If any person shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave or cause to be left, any hole in or adjoining to any street, road, or public place, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other buildings, or for any other purposes whatsoever, and shall not forthwith enclose the same in a good and sufficient manner, and shall keep up, or cause to be kept up and continued, any such enclosure for any time which shall be longer than shall be reasonably required, or shall not, when thereunto required by the said Council or its officer, well and sufficiently fence or enclose any such hole within twenty-four hours after he shall be required to do so by the said Council or officer, and in the manner and with such materials as they or he shall direct, and to their and his satisfaction, and shall not place a light upon the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, or shall fail to place or erect a fence, rail, or boarding around any scaffolding or ladder that may be required during the repairs or erection of any building (such fence, rail, or boarding not to extend beyond the footway of the street), or fail to keep, during the existence of such fence, rail, or boarding, a light burning from sunset to sunrise at each corner of the same; then and in every case the person so offending shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence, and for every such refusal or neglect, any sum not exceeding five pounds or less than forty shillings.

Erections, &c., in front of public streets, roads, &c.

107. No person shall build, erect, put up, or remove, or cause to be built, erected, put up, or removed, any building, house, shop, warehouse, wall, or fence, fronting any public street, road, or thoroughfare, unless he shall have previously given seven days' notice of his intention to commence such works to the Mayor or the Council Clerk of the Municipality; and any person so offending shall, upon conviction, pay for every such offence any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings.

Interrupting free passage, &c.—Driving on wrong side of road, &c.

108. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind shall ride upon such carriage in any street as aforesaid, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse, and driven or guided with reins only, excepted), or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such distance from such carriage, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses, or cattle drawing the same; or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage whatsoever, meeting any other carriage, shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray or coach, or other carriage on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care, upon such street, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every such driver or person so offending shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Furious or careless driving, &c.

109. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any road, street, or public place, negligently, carelessly, or furiously, so as to endanger the life or limb of any person, or to the common danger of the passengers, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Affixing placards on walls, and chalking thereon.

110. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or any paper upon any wall, house, or building, by chalk or paint, or in any other manner, unless with the consent of the owner thereof, and any person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten shillings nor less than two shillings and sixpence.

Carrying carcasses of newly-slaughtered meat.

111. Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place, the carcase or any part of the carcase of any newly-slaughtered animal, without a proper and sufficient cloth covering the same from the concealment from public view, shall be liable, on conviction, to a penalty of any sum not exceeding forty shillings for every such offence.

Rain not to be carried on footways.

112. It shall not be lawful for any person whomsoever to carry by means of pipes, gutters, or other contrivances, any rain-water from the roof of his or her premises or house, nor permit nor suffer any rain-water to drop from the roof of his or her premises or houses upon any part of the footways of any street or public place within the Municipality; and any owner or occupier of any such house or premises who shall neglect or refuse to remedy or remove any such pipes, gutters, or contrivances when required to do so by any Municipal officer, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten shillings, and a like sum for every day or part of a day that the same shall not be remedied or removed; provided that the owner or occupier of any such house or premises may convey any such rain-water by means of pipes laid under the surface of any such footways into the gutter adjoining the same; and provided also, that all such pipes shall be laid down to the satisfaction of, and under the superintendence of the Town Surveyor, or any other person appointed by the Council.

Breaking horses, &c.

113. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons in any street or public place within the Municipality to drive any carriage or carriages for the purpose of breaking, exercising, or trying horses, or to ride, drive, or lead any horse, mare, or gelding, for the purposes of airing, exercising, trying, breaking, showing, or exposing for sale, any such horse, mare, or gelding, otherwise than by passing quietly through such streets or public places. Provided further, that no person or persons shall be allowed within the said Municipality to furiously or carelessly drive any horse, mare, or gelding, to or from any public watering-place, creek, or river; and the person or persons in charge thereof, and who shall be prima facie presumed to be the owner of the said animal or animals, and shall be liable accordingly; and every person so offending, upon conviction, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than five shillings.

Lights to be placed on vehicles.

114. Every person driving any vehicle within the Municipality between sunset and sunrise shall carry a light on such vehicle in a conspicuous place. Any one offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than five shillings.

Names of owners on drays, &c.

115. The owner of every wain, waggon, van, cart, or dray, plying for hire within, into, through, or from the Municipal District of Scone, shall have his name and place of abode painted in full length on the off-side legibly, at least two inches high and proportionately broad, in white letters on black ground. Anyone offending against the provisions of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings, nor less than two shillings and sixpence for each offence.

Hours and route for driving cattle, sheep, &c.

116. No drafts of stock, horses, cattle, or sheep shall be permitted to travel through this Municipality, except by the following route, viz.:—Via Susan-street, Main-street, Kingdon-street, Aberdeen-street, and Liverpool-street west of its intersection with Aberdeen-street, or any of the streets lying west of Aberdeen-street; provided that this By-law shall not apply to any horses, cattle, sheep, or swine being driven the nearest route to the public pound, for the purpose of being impounded therein, or to the nearest public watering-place.

Driving and riding round street corners.

117. Any person who shall ride or drive round the corners of any street within the Municipality at a pace faster than a walk shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not more than ten shillings, nor less than two shillings and sixpence.

Extirpation of noxious weeds.

118. Any owner or occupier of land within the said Municipality, who shall permit or suffer to grow, or remain on the said lands, the weeds known as the Bathurst burr and Scotch thistle, or other noisome weeds; and who shall fail to extirpate, remove, or destroy the same within a reasonable time after the receipt of a notice in writing by post or otherwise from the Council to do so, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than twenty shillings.

Bathing prohibited within certain limits.

119. Any person who shall bathe near to or within view from any inhabited house, or from any public bridge, street, road, or other place of public resort, within the limits of the said Municipal District between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and eight o'clock in the evening, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding twenty shillings, unless in proper bathing costume.

Licensing public vehicles.

120. All water-carters, fire-wood carters, and owners of vehicles plying or carrying passengers, goods, or other materials for hire, shall be licensed by the Council, and the owners shall have their names painted in legible letters with the word "Licensed" on some conspicuous part of such vehicles respectively. The license fee shall be at the rate mentioned in Schedule D hereto annexed, and all such licenses shall be issued for a period of twelve months terminable on the thirty-first day of December in each year, and every owner who shall omit, or fail to comply with the provisions of this By-law, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty shillings, nor less than five shillings.

SCHEDULE D.

Passenger carrying vehicles, 5s. per annum each for licensed carrying number.

Carters plying for hire—water-carts, drays, carts, or vans, 10s. per annum, or a proportionate rate in cases where one or more quarters of the year have elapsed.

A license shall be issued upon payment of the rate at Council Chambers.

Planting trees, &c.

121. The Council shall have power to plant trees on the public streets and ways of the Municipality, and shall reserve the power to grant permission to any person so to do. Any person who shall wilfully and without the authority of the Council, cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood, or pull down, destroy, deface, or injure any marks, or any fence, or other erections under the management of the Council, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than one pound.

Bicycles or tricycles on foot-paths.

122. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to ride upon or propel any bicycle, tricycle, or other machine of like character upon or along any of the foot-paths in any street or part of the Municipality, and any person so offending shall, upon conviction before any two Justices, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings, nor less than five shillings.

Discharging firearms, &c.

123. Any person who shall discharge any firearms without lawful cause, or let off any fireworks or other explosive matter within forty yards of any road, street, or public place, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Interpretation of "Mayor" and "Municipality."

Whenever in any of these By-laws the word "Mayor" is made use of, unless the context shall indicate a contrary intention, it shall be construed also to signify and include any Alderman lawfully acting for the time being in the place or stead of the Mayor; and whenever the words "Municipal District" or "Municipality" are made use of in the said By-laws it shall be understood to signify the "Municipal District of Seone."

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF WICKHAM—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 20th February, 1889.

WICKHAM MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

The following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Wickham, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

AMENDED By-laws for regulating and Licensing Vehicles plying for hire within the Municipal District of Wickham, and for the regulation and control of all private vehicles standing or passing over any roads, streets, or public thoroughfares within the said Municipal Districts. All existing By-laws relating to vehicles are hereby rescinded. The Council of the Municipal District of Wickham do, by virtue of the authority vested in them by the "Municipalities Act of 1867," hereby make and establish the following By-laws for the regulation of Public and Private Vehicles within the boundaries of the Municipal District of Wickham, and generally for carrying into effect the purposes and provisions of the said Act; and declare that the same shall stand in the place and instead of all By-laws relating to vehicles heretofore in force, which said By-laws heretofore made are hereby repealed.

Interpretation.

1. The word vehicle in these By-laws shall include and apply to every omnibus, car, hackney carriage, cab, buggy, waggonette, or dray; and an "omnibus" shall mean a vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by one or more horses, and a "car" shall mean a vehicle upon two wheels for which an omnibus license has been taken out, and a "hackney carriage" shall mean a vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two or more horses, and a "cab" shall mean a vehicle upon two wheels, drawn by one horse, and a "buggy" shall mean a vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by one or more horses, a "waggonette" shall mean a vehicle upon four wheels, drawn by two horses, and a "dray" shall mean any vehicle used exclusively for the carriage of goods and plying for hire within the Municipal District of Wickham.

"Owner"—Every person who alone or in partnership with any other person shall keep any vehicle for which a license shall or may be obtained by, or transferred to him under these By-laws.

"Driver"—Every person engaged or employed in driving any vehicle.

"Conductor"—Every person other than the driver engaged or employed in attending upon passengers in or upon any omnibus.

"Passenger"—Every person carried in or upon any vehicle other than the driver or conductor.

"Horse"—Horse, mare, gelding.

And in the construction of these By-laws any word importing the singular number shall be understood to include several persons or things as well as one person or thing, and any word importing the plural number shall be applied to one person or thing, and every word importing the masculine gender shall extend and be applied to a female as well as a male.

Public Vehicles generally.

No Vehicle to Ply or Person to Drive or Conduct without a License.

2. No vehicle shall ply for hire, nor shall any person act as the driver or conductor of any such vehicle within the Municipal District of Wickham unless licensed in the manner hereinafter mentioned, nor during the suspension or after cancellation of such license, as hereinafter provided. The owner of any such vehicle shall not permit the same so to ply for hire until he shall have taken out the license therefor, and paid the fee provided in the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked C, applicable to the description of vehicle intended to be licensed. Provided that the Council may, upon sufficient reasons being adduced, reduce such license fee.

Character, &c, &c.

3. Before granting any license to any owner, driver, or conductor of any vehicle about to ply for hire, the Mayor or Council Clerk may demand a certificate of good character and ability, and the applicant must also be of suitable age, and must also pay the fees as provided for in Schedule C hereunto annexed.

No license to be granted for Vehicle in bad condition.

4. No license for any vehicle shall be granted or renewed, unless the vehicle, horse, or horses, and harness shall have been examined by the Inspector or other person appointed by the Council, and found by him to be in a fit state to be licensed; and no license shall be granted in respect of any vehicle which, in the opinion of the Inspector, shall be unsafe, in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers, or for the conveyance of goods or merchandise.

Form of License.

5. Licenses for owners, drivers, or conductors shall be in form provided in Schedule B, for each such license respectively, or to the like effect, and shall be made out, numbered, and registered by the Council Clerk and signed by the Mayor, and shall be in force until the 31st day of December next ensuing the date thereof, and no such license shall include more than one vehicle, but shall extend to any vehicle used as a substitute bearing the same number of any licensed vehicle withdrawn for repairs and certified as such by the Inspector of Vehicles.

Renewal of Licenses.

6. Licenses may be renewed at the end of every year by endorsement under the hand of the Council Clerk. Provided that the applicant for such renewal shall have been reported by the Inspector as having conducted his business creditably and satisfactorily.

Driver, Conductor.

7. Every proprietor of a licensed omnibus or omnibus-car shall provide a driver for the same, and shall be held responsible for the good conduct of the driver, and also for the conductor, if a conductor be employed by him, and shall also be liable for all penalties which such driver or conductor may incur under these By-laws.

Not to part with License.

8. No proprietor shall be at liberty to part with or lend his license, nor sell or dispose of his licensed vehicle to any person without the knowledge of the Mayor, and if sold shall cause the name of the purchaser, with the approval of the said Mayor, but not otherwise, to be registered on the book of the said Municipal Council, whereupon the purchaser shall become amenable to these By-laws to the same extent as the original license; and the purchaser of such vehicle who shall allow the same to be used or to ply for hire without such knowledge, approval, and registry, shall be considered as plying such vehicle for hire without a license, and liable under these By-laws accordingly.

Not to lend License.

9. No driver or conductor of any licensed vehicle shall lend his license, nor shall the proprietor of any such vehicle employ any unlicensed person as the driver or conductor thereof.

Who Licensed.

10. Every person driving or conducting any vehicle and every vehicle shall be deemed to be licensed under these By-laws, on the production of the license-book containing a copy of any such license.

License may be Cancelled.

11. The license of the proprietor, driver, or conductor of any vehicle may be cancelled by the Municipal Council of Wickham in case such proprietor, driver, or conductor shall have been convicted of three offences against these By-laws committed within a period of six months next preceding, or for such other cause as to the said Municipal Council may seem sufficient.

Inspector of Vehicles.

12. Such person or persons as may from time to time be in that behalf appointed by the said Municipal Council shall be the Inspector or Inspectors of all licensed vehicles plying for hire within the municipal district, and such Inspector or Inspectors of all licensed vehicles shall, as often as he or they deem necessary, inspect all licensed vehicles, and also the harness and horse or horses or other animals used in drawing the same; and if such vehicles, horse or horses, animal or animals shall, in his or their opinion, be unfit for public use, he shall report the same in writing to the Mayor, who shall have power to suspend the license of such vehicle until such vehicle, harness, horse or horses, or other animal or animals used in drawing the same shall be, in the opinion of the said Mayor, in a fit state for public use; and it shall be the special duty of such Inspector or Inspectors at all times to see that as far as possible these By-laws are duly observed and enforced, and the owner of every such vehicle shall, upon receipt of a notice in writing, forthwith put such vehicle in repair.

Not to hinder Inspector.

13. No owner or driver of any vehicle nor any other person shall hinder or obstruct such Inspector or Inspectors in the execution of his or their duty.

Number to be Painted.

14. Proprietors of every licensed vehicle shall cause to be painted or printed thereon the number of the license granted for every omnibus or car in figures not less than four inches in height, and for every hackney carriage, cab, or buggy, in figures not less than two inches in height, and of proportionate breadth, white upon a ground of black on the panel of the door or doors of such vehicle, or on a plate or plates affixed thereon, and also upon each lamp used upon such vehicle or as the inspector may direct, any such number shall be kept legible and undefaced during all times such vehicles shall ply or be used for hire; and the rate of fare chargeable under license granted for such inside in figures of not less than two inches in height and of proportionate breadth.

Fares.

15. No proprietor or driver of any licensed vehicle shall demand or take more than the several fares endorsed on the license of such vehicle, and if required by the Council shall exhibit a printed table of fares in some approved part of such licensed vehicle, which said fares must be paid by any passenger taking a seat in any licensed vehicle.

Lamps to be Lighted.

16. Every licensed vehicle shall be provided with a lamp on each side of the same, outside, and the driver of same, when plying for hire, between sunset and sunrise, shall light and keep such lamps lighted, and the conductor of an omnibus shall also, between the hours of sunset and sunrise, light and keep lighted one lamp inside such omnibus. Such lamp must be of an approved pattern and lighting power.

No Vehicle to be withdrawn without Notice.

17. No owner of any licensed vehicle shall withdraw the same from hire, without leave from the Inspector, except in case of accident.

To ply from Stands.

18. The owner or driver of any licensed vehicle shall not permit the same to stand or ply for hire, except at or from an appointed stand.

Stands in Schedule.

19. The places specified in Schedule G hereunto annexed, are hereby respectively appointed public stands for licensed vehicles. And the said Council may, by resolution from time to time as they may see fit, alter the position of such stands.

Mode of Driving on Stands.

20. The driver of every vehicle shall, on its arrival at any public stand, drive the same to the end of the rank of any vehicle that may be on such stand, and be last on the same; and at every public stand all vehicles shall be arranged in single rank only.

Space left at Stands.

21. At every second vehicle on every stand there shall be left a space of at least eight feet, and no more than twelve.

Vehicles to start in rotation.

22. The time of starting shall be according to the table in Schedule K. The first vehicle to start on one day shall be the last on the next, and the others in their order, starting earlier by the interval appointed by any two vehicles on such stand; and each owner shall furnish a vehicle to perform the journeys in every turn that falls to him, so as to keep a continuous rotation daily: Provided that there shall be an interval of 15 minutes between the starting of every two vehicles plying from any stand to the same place, or such other special cases as the Council may see fit to direct.

Starting Vehicles.

23. The driver entitled by turn or rotation to start first from any appointed stand, shall drive his vehicle on to such stand not later than the hour of 8 a.m., and shall also start with his vehicle from such stand at 8-15 a.m., the remaining licensed vehicles and drivers then in their entitled turn or order shall take up their respective positions on the said stand at least ten minutes before their proper starting time, and shall directly time is called by the authorized timekeeper or inspector, leave the terminus or stand and proceed along the appointed road and route without unnecessary delay, and shall also return to the stand or starting point in due rotation from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Not to stand longer than necessary for loading.

24. No driver shall, except whilst standing on an appointed stand, permit his vehicle with or without horse or horses, to stand in any part of the Municipality longer than may be absolutely necessary for loading or unloading, or for taking up or setting down passengers, nor shall he cause any obstruction in any part of the Municipality.

Driver to keep on the near side of the road.

25. Every driver of any vehicle shall keep the same on the left or near side of the road, except in case of actual necessity, and shall permit any other vehicle to pass, having the right so to do, and when about to stop shall raise his whip straight up, so as to warn the driver of any vehicle that may be behind; and in no case shall such driver annoy or frighten passing horses, or horses standing in the street, by any excessive or undue use of his whip.

Driver to turn Vehicle at a walk, &c.

26. The driver of every vehicle shall bring the horse or horses to a walking pace before commencing to turn, and shall also go at the same pace in turning the corner of any street.

Pace for Omnibuses and Carriages, &c.

27. No vehicle except a dray shall be drawn through any part of the Municipality, at a walking pace, except as before provided, or on Sundays, when all shall be so drawn, when passing places of public worship during divine service, nor at pace faster than that of a trot, which shall not be at a less rate than six miles an hour, nor more than seven, at which rate all carriages shall be drawn; and in no case shall any horse be driven at a pace out of that known as trotting, and in the event of any driver allowing his horse or horses to proceed at a pace known as cantering, the said pace will be considered and treated as furious driving.

Condition of Vehicle.

28. The owner of every vehicle shall at all times, when the same is plying for hire, make and keep it clean, strong, and in good order in all respects, and if with windows, they shall be sound and unbroken, with the leathers or lifts suitably attached to the frames. The horse or horses shall be able and sufficient for their work, free from disease, and properly broken in to harness; the harness for each horse shall be perfect, good, and sufficient for the purpose, and every driver or conductor shall be clean in his person, and wear a good hat, and other clean and respectable clothes, and conduct himself in a proper and decorous manner; and no driver shall ill-use any horse in any such vehicle.

Who shall be carried.

29. No person suffering from any infectious or contagious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor shall knowingly carry, or permit to be carried, any such person, or (except to some police office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself or otherwise so misbehaving as to occasion any annoyance, or to disturb the public peace; and no passenger shall carry inside any vehicle except a dray, any animal or any substance of an offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle, or the apparel of other passengers. And no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle, or use the same for eating his meals therein.

Smoking.

30. No driver or conductor shall smoke tobacco or other thing whilst driving or conducting any licensed vehicle engaged on any fare, nor shall any passenger smoke on any vehicle without the consent of the driver or against the wish of any other passenger, and in no case shall any smoking be allowed inside any omnibus or other vehicle. No conductor shall enter any omnibus nor mount on the top of it whilst performing his journeys, for the purpose of collecting any fares or for any other purpose, or permit any person to stand on the steps or monkey-board whilst he shall be conducting.

Not to carry a greater number than licensed for.

31. No driver or conductor shall admit to the inside, or allow on the outside of any vehicle, at any time a greater number of passengers than the number it shall be licensed to carry inside or outside, as the case may be, and no vehicles shall be licensed for more passengers than the same will accommodate upon fit seats properly cushioned, allowing for each passenger a space of 18 inches, measuring in a straight line lengthwise, on the front of each seat. Provided that no child under five years of age sitting on the lap shall be deemed to be a passenger under these By-laws. No passenger shall carry more than one child without paying its fare. No omnibus shall be taken off the line of road for which it shall be licensed excepting as is herein provided; neither shall any driver turn his vehicle round or break his journey after having left an appointed stand, without first obtaining the consent of the appointed Inspector of Vehicles.

Extraordinary Occasions.

32. The Inspector of licensed vehicles for the time being shall be at liberty to grant permission to the owner or driver of any licensed vehicle to leave the line of road for which such vehicle is licensed, and ply the same from any place, not being an appointed stand, and no owner or driver of any licensed vehicle shall permit or suffer the same to leave the line of road for which such vehicle is licensed without such permission.

No blowing of horns, &c.

33. No driver or conductor of any omnibus, or other vehicle, whilst standing at a public stand or plying for hire in any part of the Municipality, shall endeavour to attract notice by ringing of bells, blowing of horns, or other instruments, nor deceive any person in respect of the route or destination thereof by word or sign, nor shall the driver or conductor of any vehicle endeavour to attract notice by shouting on Sunday whilst standing at a public stand, or in any part of the Municipality: Provided that the Inspector may in certain cases give the driver permission to sound a horn or blow a whistle.

Passing.

34. The driver of any vehicle shall not permit his vehicle to pass any other in the Municipality proceeding in the same direction from or to the same stand, if the latter be proceeding on its journey at a pace faster than a walk.

Eligible Passengers not to be refused.

35. No owner, driver, or conductor of any vehicle shall demand receive, or take from any passenger a larger fare than shall be shown in large immovable figures in some conspicuous place, both inside and outside the vehicle, as the fare for which such vehicle plies: Provided that no fare shall be increased, except between the hours of 10 o'clock at night and 5 o'clock in the morning. And no driver or conductor of any vehicle shall neglect or refuse to admit or carry any person for whom there is room, and to whom no reasonable objection can be made under these By-laws; nor, except in cases of accident, or other unavoidable cause, shall any driver or conductor stop such vehicle upon any place where foot-passengers usually cross the carriage-way.

The Register of Licenses.

36. Every owner, driver, or conductor, on receiving his license, shall sign a copy purporting to be such, and acknowledging the receipt of the original license, which copy shall be kept by the Council Clerk, and the production of which, on any proceeding for breach of the By-laws, shall be sufficient evidence that the person so signing is in fact the person to whom such original license was issued, without any notice to produce the original.

Waterproof Aprons.

37. Waterproof aprons shall be provided sufficient to cover the legs of all outside passengers, which aprons the driver shall offer for use. And in the case of vehicles without doors an apron of approved quality and pattern must be fixed on a spring roller, capable of being raised or lowered at the will of any passenger or a majority of any passengers inside.

Plying for hire.

38. Any licensed vehicles on leaving any public stand shall be deemed to be plying for hire, or any omnibus, omnibus car, waggonette, hackney carriage, or cab taking up any person or persons, passenger or passengers, within the Municipality, shall be deemed to be plying for hire within the meaning of these By-laws.

Removing Furniture, &c.

39. Any driver of any dray, cart, van or other vehicle loading or removing any furniture, household effects, goods, merchandise, or anything other than his own property, shall be deemed to be plying for hire within the meaning of these By-laws, and, if unlicensed, shall be prosecuted under these By-laws.

Carriage Regulations.Carrying Capacity of Hackney Coaches.

40. The number of the license granted for every hackney carriage or cab, shall be painted in figures not less than two inches in height, and of proportionate breadth, of a colour to contrast with the colour of the ground on which it shall be painted. Outside on the panel of each door on any hackney carriage, and on the sides of the boot of any cab, and upon each lamp on any of the aforesaid vehicles, the same number of the same size shall be painted black, and all the aforesaid numbers shall be kept legible and undefaced during all the time such vehicle shall ply or be used for hire, and the owner of any such hackney carriage or cab shall be liable to the penalties herein provided for a breach of this By-law. The drivers of such vehicles respectively shall be bound to take, if required, exclusive of the driver, four persons inside and one outside, a hackney carriage, or two persons inside a hansom cab. The driver shall not be obliged to take any luggage exceeding fifty pounds in weight, being clean and of such a description as may be placed inside or outside the vehicle without injuring the same, and the driver shall be entitled to claim one shilling for every additional fifty pounds weight, or portion thereof, so carried; but the person hiring such vehicle shall be allowed eighty-four pounds weight of luggage when the number of persons is short of the number aforesaid. Whenever the number of persons carried shall exceed that named for each vehicle respectively, the driver shall be entitled to charge—by time or distance, as the hiring may be—one-third more for each adult or two children over five and under fifteen years of age. Further, the driver shall not allow any person to ride, drive, or be carried in or upon such vehicle without the consent of the hirer.

Number of Carriage and Table of Fares to be affixed inside.

41. The number of the license of every carriage on a card six inches by three, printed in clear legible figures, and the table of fares to be fixed by the Council, shall be affixed at the back of the panel of such carriage, or in such other place as the Council may direct; and such card shall be kept so affixed, legible and undefaced, during all the time the carriage shall ply or be used for hire, and also the following notice, viz:—Driver is required in all cases to give the hirer on entering the vehicle a ticket, and to produce the By-laws and table of fares on demand. The owner of every carriage shall provide, and the driver shall deliver when demanded, to every person hiring a carriage, on entering the same, a printed ticket in the following form, or such other as the Council from time to time direct, and on such ticket the table of fares fixed by the Council:—

“Preserve this ticket and see that number corresponds with that on vehicle. In case of complaint apply at the Inspector's office. Table fares (as in Schedule E). Tolls in all cases to be paid by the hirer. No owner or driver of a licensed hackney carriage or cab shall demand, receive, or take more than the several fares set forth in the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked E.”

Drivers to draw to near side to put down, &c.

42. Every driver of a carriage whilst engaged in taking up or setting down any passengers shall, during such taking up or setting down, place his vehicle as near as conveniently may be to that side of the street, and in a line parallel with the kerbstone at which the taking up or setting down is required: Provided that he shall put down or take up on his near side.

Fares to be paid for Vehicles sent for but not used.

43. Any person calling or sending for a carriage, and not further employing the same shall pay as follows:—For a hackney carriage, one shilling; for a cab, nine pence, or the fare from the stand or place from which the carriage was engaged at the driver's option. And if the person calling the carriage shall detain the same more than five minutes, he shall pay for any time it may be detained, not exceeding a quarter of an hour; if a hackney carriage, nine pence, if a cab, sixpence, and any further time in the same proportion.

Legal Fares to be paid.

44. Any person having hired a licensed carriage shall pay the legal fare when demanded; and any person refusing or neglecting to pay the same shall, on conviction before two Justices of the Peace, forfeit and pay the same with such amount of over damages, costs, and charges, for loss of time, or otherwise, as the said Justices shall think fit.

Dray Regulations.

No Person to ride upon Dray without Reins.

45. No owner, driver, or other person having the care and charge of any dray drawn by one or more horses, or other animals, shall ride thereon, unless he shall be provided with sufficient reins nor in any case if such dray be loaded; and no block dray shall be allowed to proceed out of a walking pace, neither shall there be carried a greater weight than two and a half tons weight upon any two-wheeled dray having tires three inches or less in width, provided that drivers or owners of drays may carry a greater weight than two and a half tons on their drays by using wheels with tires one-half inch wider than the said three inches, for every extra ton weight carried.

Property left on Dray.

46. For every case of goods or merchandise being left on any licensed dray, or with the driver thereof, by any person having hired or used the same, such property shall be delivered up to such person, or shall within eighteen hours be taken, in the state in which it shall have been found, to the Inspector's office, and there deposited with the Inspector.

Not to carry more than one ton on Dray.

47. No owner or driver shall at any one time carry on any licensed dray, having only two wheels and drawn by one horse, a greater weight than one ton.

Detention.

48. Whenever any dray, hired by the load or distance, having taken up a load, shall be detained with the same more than fifteen minutes, the hirer shall pay for every fifteen minutes after the first, sixpence, and so in proportion for any longer period.

How Numbers placed on Dray.

49. The number of the license granted for every dray shall be painted white on a ground of black, or the reverse, on the sides thereof, in a conspicuous place, in figures not less than three inches in height and of proportionate breadth, with the letters “W.M.C.” of the same colour immediately above the figures, and the driver or owner of such dray shall at all times keep the same legible and undefaced,

Not to demand more than Legal Fare.

50. No owner or driver of any dray shall demand, receive, or take more than the several fares or amounts fixed by the Council by these By-laws, and no owner or driver of any dray shall carry for hire any persons as passengers.

Fares for sending for, but not using Dray.

51. Any person calling or sending for any licensed dray and not further employing the same, shall pay the sum of two shillings, or the fare or hire from the stand or place where the dray was engaged, at the driver's option; he shall further pay for any time the dray may be detained, not exceeding a quarter of an hour, the sum of one shilling; and for any time not exceeding a second quarter of an hour, the sum of sixpence, and for any further time at the rate of sixpence for every quarter of an hour.

Distance—how computed.

52. The distance shall be computed from the stand or place where the dray was hired.

To pay Legal Fare.

53. Any person having hired a dray shall pay the legal fare when demanded.

Council appoint Stands.

54. The places enumerated in the Schedule marked G are hereby appointed public stands for drays, vans, and cabs.

Drays not to stand across Street.

55. No driver of any licensed dray shall suffer the same to stand for hire across any street, except so directed by the inspector, or alongside any other vehicle, nor obstruct the driver of any other dray in loading or unloading any goods or merchandise, or wilfully, wrongly, or forcibly prevent, or endeavour to prevent, the driver of any vehicle from taking a fare or hiring.

Miscellaneous Regulations.

Property found in Vehicles.

56. The driver of every carriage and conductor of every omnibus shall carefully examine his vehicle immediately after setting down his fare, and in every case of property having been left in any vehicle by any person having used or hired the same, such property, if found by another passenger or other person, shall be delivered to the driver or conductor, who shall deliver the same, with any other property found by him, within eighteen hours after such finding to the Inspector at his office, and there deposit it; and no owner shall detain any property delivered to him by any driver or conductor in his employment longer than the time beforementioned, but shall deposit it at the Inspector's office with the Inspector.

Additional Fare after 10 p.m. and before 5 a.m.

57. For as much of every drive by time or distance as may be performed by any vehicle not an omnibus, after 10 o'clock at night and before 5 o'clock in the morning, an addition of one-half the ordinary fare shall be paid with such ordinary fare, and in case of an omnibus the charge shall be double the ordinary fares between the abovementioned hours.

Information may be made on behalf of the Complainant.

58. It shall be lawful for the Inspector on receiving any complaint from the owner, driver, or conductor of any licensed vehicle, or from any person using or intending to use, or hiring or intending to hire, any such vehicle, that any of these By-laws have been disobeyed, to cause the person against whom the said complaint shall have been made, to be summoned to appear before the Justices.

Vehicles on a Stand bound to take a Fare.

59. Every vehicle except an omnibus or omnibus car standing or being on any public stand shall be deemed to be plying for hire, and the driver thereof shall be bound to take immediately any fare, notwithstanding any pre-engagement: Provided, however, that no person shall be bound to take such fare unless the person requiring the same shall upon demand tender and pay the legal fare for the required hiring there and then. Further, if at any other place than a public stand the owner or driver shall solicit engagement by word or sign, he shall be bound to take a fare immediately under the same conditions as before mentioned as to the hirer.

Inspector may be appointed.

60. Such person or persons as may from time to time be in that behalf appointed by the Council shall be Inspector or Sub-inspector, during the pleasure of the Council, of all licensed vehicles plying for hire in the Municipality, and such Inspector or Sub-inspector shall, every three months, examine all such vehicles and report to the Council on the same, and shall at all times see that as far as possible the By-laws are duly observed; and such Inspector or Sub-inspector shall have power to order from any stand or from being driven or used for hire any vehicle which, with horse or horses and harness attached thereto, upon examination shall not be in a proper and cleanly state, and in all respects in accordance with the By-laws fit for work; and every owner, driver, or conductor shall comply with the orders and directions so given.

No person to obstruct Inspector.

61. No owner, driver, or conductor, or other person, shall obstruct or hinder any such Inspector or Sub-inspector in the execution of his duties, or refuse to comply with any lawful order or direction to be given by him in relation to these By-laws.

62. For any offence against the provisions of these By-laws the offender shall be liable to and shall pay a penalty not exceeding £10 nor less than 5s.

AMENDED BY-LAWS for the Collection and Enforcement of Rates, Duties of Bailiff, Suppression of Nuisances, Promotion of Municipal Property, and Regulation of Proceedings in Public Parks, Gardens, &c., within the Municipal District of Wickham. By-law No. 5 relating to enforcement of rates is hereby rescinded.

Rates in Default.

Mayor to enforce Payment.

1. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to take proceedings to enforce the payment of all rates in default, either by action at law or by issuing warrants of distress upon the goods and chattels of the defaulter.

Bailiff, how appointed.

2. The Bailiff of the Municipality shall be appointed by the Council, and may from time to time be removed by them.

Bailiff to find Sureties.

3. The Bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Mayor to the extent of (£50) fifty pounds each for the faithful performance of his duty.

Duties of Bailiff.

4. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make levies by distraint for the recovery of rates in manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of Distress.

5. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto under the hand of the Mayor, or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and Sale, &c.

6. It shall be lawful for the Bailiff or his deputy, and such assistants as he may take with him, to enter into any part of the land, building, tenement, or other property in respect of which such rate or rates shall have been made as aforesaid, and to distrain the goods therein or thereon and to remain in such building, tenement, or other property in charge thereof. And if the sum for which any such distress shall have been made or taken, together with the costs of such distraint, shall not have been paid on or before the expiration of three clear days, the Bailiff or his deputy may, between the hours of eleven in the morning and two in the afternoon on the next day thereafter, cause the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, to be sold by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the Municipality, as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them for such purpose, and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for, and the costs of such distraint, to the owner of such goods so sold, on demand by such owner; and any person interfering with the said Bailiff in the execution of any of the duties devolving upon him under these By-laws, or hindering or preventing him from delivering to the purchaser thereof any property so sold by the said Bailiff, shall be liable to a penalty of (£5) five pounds.

Inventory.

7. At the time of making a distress the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the Council Clerk.

Goods may be impounded.

8. The Bailiff, on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of three days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to Direct order of Sale.

9. The owner of the goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his other option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of Distress.

10. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Deputy.

11. The Bailiff may, with the sanction in writing of the Mayor, or in his absence with the sanction of any two Aldermen of the Municipality, authorize by writing under his hand any person to act temporarily as his deputy; and the person so authorized shall have and exercise all the powers of the Bailiff himself, but the Bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be responsible for the acts of such deputy.

Costs.

12. There shall be payable to the Bailiff for the use of the Council for every levy and distress made under this By-law the costs and charges in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

Warrant of Distress.

To _____ and his assistants,
Whereas the premises comprised in the Schedule hereunder written have been rated by the Council of the Municipal District of Wickham in the sum of £ _____ as _____ for general and gas rates.
And whereas the said sum was due and payable on account of such rates by the said _____ on the _____ day of _____ and whereas default has been made in payment of the same, and the same is still due and owing; and whereas due notice demanding payment of the said sum of £ _____ have been duly served.
These are therefore to authorize you forthwith to make distress of the goods and chattels of the said _____ and if within _____ days after the marking of such distress the sum of £ _____ and also all costs thereon, payable according to the Schedule of costs hereunder written, shall not be paid, that then you do sell the goods and chattels of the said _____ so by you distrained, and out of the money arising by such sale you retain the said sum of £ _____ rendering to the said _____ the surplus, if any, after deducting the costs as aforesaid, and that you certify to me on or before the day of _____ what you shall have done by virtue of this warrant.

Obstructions.

Dead Animals, &c., not to be thrown into any Public Places, Reserves, Watercourses.

13. Any person or persons who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall suffer slops, suds, scourings, filthy water, tannery refuse, liquids, filth, or any objectionable matter or thing to run into any public watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, drain, sewer, or canal by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, from any felmongering or wool-washing establishment, tannery, manufactory, works, or dwellings within the Municipality, without the written consent of the Council Clerk authorized by the Council, or who shall cause or suffer any slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from any premises occupied or used by such persons over any of the footways, streets, or gutters of the Municipality, or who shall divert from its channel any sewer, watercourse, river, creek, drain, or canal, or dam such watercourses up, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds for every such offence, nor less than one pound.

Penalty for Destroying Public Property on Street, &c.

14. Every person driving over any kerbstone where no proper bridge is erected, or wilfully or negligently damaging any public building, wall, parapet, sluice, bridge, road, street, sewer, watercourse, kerbstone, gutter, or other public property within the said Municipal District, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Injury to Pumps, &c.

15. Every person who shall wilfully or negligently injure any public fountain, pump, cock, or waterpipe, or any part thereof, shall forfeit and pay a sum of not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Injury to Lamps, &c.

16. Every person who shall wilfully or negligently injure any public lamp, or lamp-pillars, or the pipes and connections and fittings of the same, shall forfeit and pay a sum of not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Extinguishing Lamps, &c.

17. Every person without authority of the Council of the said Municipal District lighting or extinguishing any public lamp, or extinguishing any lamp in use for the purpose of guarding the public against obstructions or excavations in the streets, shall forfeit and pay a penalty or sum of not less than ten shillings nor more than twenty pounds.

Public Gardens, Parks, &c.

18. No person, public body, or gathering or assembly of persons shall make use of any park, garden, or recreation reserve under the control of the Municipal Council of Wickham for the purpose of conducting meetings or public discourses of any kind likely to annoy or interfere with the enjoyment of any persons making use of such parks or reserves in a legitimate manner for recreation purposes: Provided always that nothing herein contained shall prevent the Mayor, by consent of the Council, from granting permission to hold such meetings should they be deemed to be of a non-objectionable character: and provided also that any person or persons continuing to hold any such meetings or public discourses after being called upon to desist by any authorized member or officer of the Council, such person or persons so offending shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds (£5) for every such offence.

Control over Games, &c.

19. No person or persons or members of clubs shall take up any space in any park, garden, or reserve under control of the Municipal Council of Wickham for the purpose of playing any game or games of football, cricket, or other games without first obtaining the written permission of the Council Clerk authorized by the Mayor and Council, and in the event of permission being granted spaces will be allotted by the Council for carrying on such games, which said games must in all cases be carried out in a peaceable manner, without disorder or improper or unbecoming language. All athletes using such parks, gardens, or reserves must appear in proper approved costume and shall not in any way commit any offence against the common rules of good order or decency whilst being upon or using such parks, gardens, or reserves.

20. No owners or persons in charge of any horses, cattle, or other animals shall turn, drive, or permit such horses, cattle, or animals to be upon or in any park, garden, or reserve for grazing or other purposes without first obtaining the permission of the Municipal Council or some duly authorized officer of the said Council.

Penalties.

21. Any person offending against these By-laws shall for each offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty pounds; and any person may, on committing any such offence, be forthwith removed from the gardens by the proper officer of the Council, or by any of the gardeners or labourers employed in such gardens, without affecting the liability of such person so offending to be subsequently prosecuted for such offence.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Wickham this 7th day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BOURKE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sct. 158.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 4th March, 1889.

BOURKE MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws made by the Council of the Municipal District of Bourke, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Country Towns Water and Sewerage Act of 1880" respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Municipal Council of the Municipal District of Bourke for regulating the proceedings of the Council and the duties of the officers and servants of such Council, for preserving order at meetings of said Council, for determining the times and modes of collecting and enforcing payment of rates, for extinction of fire, for regulating the supply of water for domestic, public, and other purposes, and the terms and conditions relating to such supply, and generally for maintaining the good rule and government of the said Municipality:—

PART I.

Meetings of the Council—Ordinary meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the dispatch of business at the hour of 8 p.m. every alternate Wednesday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor or the Council may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor—Adjournment for want of a quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting, to give place to the Mayor if he should arrive at any later hour during the meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and shall be recorded in the Minute-book.

Order of Business.

Business of ordinary meetings.

3. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.

2. Correspondence to be read, and if necessary, ordered upon.
3. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented and ordered upon.
5. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of its Committee or officers, to be made.
6. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
7. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper; but it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business out of its regular order on the business paper without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at special meetings.

4. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and verified, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or the Alderman at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called may have directed.

Business paper for ordinary meeting, how prepared.

5. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a special meeting, shall be made up by the Town Clerk or other person acting as his substitute, not less than forty-eight hours and not more than three days before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter upon such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion and of every requisition or order as to the business proposed to be transacted at such meeting, which he shall have received, or shall have been required or directed so to enter in due course of law and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made subject to the provisions of section 3 of this Part of these By-laws, in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Business paper for special meeting.

6. The business paper for each special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Alderman calling such meeting.

Summons to members.

7. The summons to members of the Council of every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

8. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall cause a note to be made upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with, and such business paper so noted shall be a record of the Council.

All notices of motion to be numbered.

9. All notices of motion, and all requisitions from Aldermen and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matter of business for the consideration of the Council at its then next or any future meeting, shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received; and each such notice, requisition, and direction, shall be preserved by such clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the Minute-book of the manner in which such matter has been so disposed of shall have been duly verified, as required by section 3 of this Part of these By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction, to the Council Clerk, shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

After business paper made up, all notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

10. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motions, requisitions, and directions as to which entries have been made thereon shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered or amended, without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Motions and Amendments.

Motions—how to be moved.

11. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

12. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper shall, except as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

13. No motion in Council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Amendments may be moved.

14. When a motion in Council shall have been made and seconded any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions and amendments to be in writing.

15. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced into writing.

Only one amendment at a time.

16. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of.

Amended question—further amendment may be moved thereon.

17. If any amendment be carried, the question as amended, thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

How subsequent amendments may be moved.

18. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any question amended as aforesaid, shall be negatived then a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on: Provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournment.

19. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council; and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

Requisitions from Aldermen—how to be dealt with.

20. Every requisition by an Alderman that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council shall be regarded and treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman, that such business be taken into consideration by the Council, and he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or to make any other motion which he may think fit in reference thereto which shall be consistent with the notice of such business and with good order. And if such Alderman be absent, or, if being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open for any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made it shall be dealt with in precisely the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business or with good order. And if no motion shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck from the business paper.

Orders of the Day.

Of what orders of the day shall consist.

21. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

22. Section 20 of this Part of these By-laws shall be considered applicable to orders of the day; and the Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move: Provided that as to any order of the day entered as aforesaid by direction of the Mayor or Chairman, such Mayor may arrange with any Alderman to move, and may in such case call upon the Alderman with whom he has so arranged.

Petitions.

Petitions to be respectfully worded.

23. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

24. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

25. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided be permissible on the presentation of a petition except that the same be received or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall if otherwise unobjectionable be considered in order.

Correspondence.

Duties of Mayor as to Correspondence.

26. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council before directing the same to be read as by section 25 of this Part of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 25 to apply to letters.

27. Section 25 of this Part of these By-laws shall be considered as fully applicable to letters addressed to the Council as to petitions.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject of motion.

28. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor or by any officer of the Council, and copies of which may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion consistent with good order may be entertained with reference to any such letters whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

Reports from Committees and Minutes from the Mayor.

Form of report.

29. All reports from Committees shall be written on foolscap paper, with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by all members of such Committee agreeing thereto.

Mayor's minute.

30. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance, by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with; duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

31. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without any due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction, as aforesaid as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper and to give such due notice.

Questions and statements.

Limitations as to questions and statements.

32. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 8 of this Part of these By-laws.

Notice to be given.

33. Forty-eight hours notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and if necessary for a reference to other persons or to documents.

Questions to be put without argument, &c.

34. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

35. Every such statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on questions, &c. Rights of objection and of subsequent motion reserved.

36. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put or such reply or refusal to reply is given or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice as hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question or reply or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Order of debate.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

37. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose, address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may by permission of such Mayor or Chairman be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

38. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order as hereinafter provided; and any Alderman using, whilst in the Council, any offensive or insulting language, the same to be written down, and on being asked to do so, withdrawn; and if any Alderman shall refuse to withdraw such language and apologize, he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and be liable to a fine of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

39. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman other than the mover of such original motion shall have a right to speak once upon such motion and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak oftener than once upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain without adding any further observations than may be necessary for the purposes of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

40. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

41. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on or impute improper motives to any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate

42. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to preaudience on the resumption of the same.

Mayor to decide as to preaudience.

43. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Alderman may require questions to be stated, &c., under certain restrictions.

44. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or materially to interrupt the discussion; also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide, it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, &c., but may address Council thereon.

45. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, or put any question, as provided for by section 4 of this Part of these By-laws, except as is further provided for by section 37 of the same; but such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of Order.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of Order.

46. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final.

Acts of disorder.

47. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any section of this Part of these By-laws, or who shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise or attempt to raise any question, or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the said Council has no legal right to entertain or to discuss, or who shall use any other language which according to the common usage of gentlemen would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be out of order.

Mayor, &c., may call member to order.

48. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order, whenever in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any member may raise question of order.

49. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member, which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

50. A member called to order shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided upon, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission, such member may explain, retract, or apologize, for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member on being called to order shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologize as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction, or apology, shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with. Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be reopened; and provided further that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally as hereinbefore provided upon any such point of order after the same shall have been discussed.

Decisions of points of order.

51. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Motions out of order to be rejected. Members to explain, retract, or apologize, &c.

52. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

53. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument, or of observations which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder as defined in section 48 of this Part of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable on conviction for the first offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and on a second conviction for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction, and for every further conviction for the like offence, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

54. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retroactive operation: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which, in his opinion, is contrary to law.

Mode of voting.

How questions are to be put.

55. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.—Penalty for refusing to vote.

56. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by a show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present, when a division is called for, shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division (not being disabled by law from so voting) shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Committees of the Whole Council.

Rules applicable to business in Committee.

57. The following sections of this Part of these By-laws shall (except as herein excepted) be taken to apply to the conduct of business in Committee of the Whole Council, namely—sections 14 (except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded), 15, 16, 17, 18, 39, 39, 42, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 56, and 57.

Disorderly conduct in Committee.—Refusal to vote.

58. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the Whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 54 of this Part of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting and that such matter shall be reported; and if such motion be carried such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the Minute-book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the Whole Council, as required by section 56 of this Part of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the Minute-book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the Whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

59. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the Whole Council under the provision of section 47 of this Part of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried, such decision shall be so embodied in such report whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

60. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the Whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on any further day, or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried the Council shall resume its sittings, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Report of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

61. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the Whole Council shall be made to the Council viva voce by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided that in making of any such report as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceedings.

How reports are to be dealt with.

62. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the Whole Council shall be recorded in the Minute-book, but, except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 59 of this Part of these By-laws of disorderly conduct in Committee, under section 57 of this Part of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committees upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof, and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

63. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given, for the consideration of any motion or matter of business, before such Council.

Such call compulsory in certain cases.

64. There shall without any special order to that effect be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 55 of this Part of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

Modes of proceeding.

65. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered or is required to be made by the last preceding section shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called, and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

66. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who being absent shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who if absent and not so excused shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who having answered to his name as aforesaid shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than one pound: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration, and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment, this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

67. There shall be Standing Committees, namely, a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, and all other necessary Committees. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of Mayor.

68. Each Standing Committee shall consist of three members, and the Mayor who shall be Chairman.

Modes of reappointment of Standing Committees.

69. The reappointment of the three Standing Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case a list or lists of the members shall be handed to each then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee or Committees to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong; and the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists so marked, and shall declare the result, and if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed.

By-law Committee.

70. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such By-laws as shall be required for the good government of the Borough. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Borough; and shall take such steps as shall be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Committee for Works.

71. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other public places under the care and management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they shall think necessary, or as they shall be directed by resolution of the Council, to inquire into and report upon.

Finance Committee.

72. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Borough; and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they shall be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Special Committees.

73. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully intrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been intrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution, after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be intrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as in his opinion ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes, to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Chairman of Committee.

74. Every Special Committee of which the Mayor shall not be a member shall elect a permanent Chairman of such Committee within seven days after their appointment.

Terms of service in Committee.

75. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee of Works, and the Finance Committee, and any other Committee shall be for the whole municipal year. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee has been appointed shall have been duly performed.

Committee meeting, how called.

76. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee when requested so to do by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee.

Records of transactions in Committee.

77. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make or cause to be made in a book to be kept by him for that purpose memoranda of all the transactions of such Committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such Chairman, hand over to his successor.

Expenditure.

Except in urgent matters, cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

78. With the exception of urgent matters hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Borough shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have first been ascertained by the Council.

Urgent matters and necessary current expenses.—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council.

79. For urgent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

1. By order of the Committee for Works, for repairs or emergent works to the extent of £5.
2. By order of the Mayor, for necessary current expenses, to the extent of £2.
3. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor, of any four Aldermen, for any urgent purpose, to the extent of £5.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized; also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council; and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported on by Finance Committee.

80. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with such claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's order.—Certificates to be attached to reports.

81. No payment shall be ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, from the Mayor, or from the Officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons of its non-fulfilment before recommending payment: Provided also that in cases of special expenditure under section 80 of this Part of these By-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate; and provided further that, in regard to salaries and wages of labour for officers, servants, and labourers employed at fixed rates of payment, by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor of the amount due to any such officer, servant, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for the payment of such amount shall be a sufficient authorization for such payment; and such certificates, memoranda, and authorizations shall be attached respectively to the reports from the Finance Committee on the payments or outlays to which such certificates, memoranda or authorizations have reference.

Common seal and records of the Council.

Common seal and press, how secured.—Care of same.

82. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover or box, which, except when such seal and press are in use shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor, and the other by the Council Clerk.

How and when common seal to be used.

83. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How books of account are to be kept and inspected.

84. The Treasurer shall keep such books of account and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect, or appearance of inefficiency which they have discovered in the keeping of the same; also to report to the Council from time to time any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

Records of the Council defined.—Provisions for proper keeping of same.

85. The Minute-book, Letter-book, and all rate and assessment books, books of accounts, records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, electoral rolls, and other records relating to elections, business papers, reports from Committees, minutes from the Mayor, petitions, letters on municipal business addressed to the Council or to the Mayor; or to any officer or servant of the Council, orders, reports, returns, and memoranda relating to municipal business, drawings, maps, plans, contracts, specifications, agreements, and all other books and papers connected with the business of the Council, shall be deemed records of the Council. All such records other than the Minute-book and other books, and other than electoral rolls and other records relating to elections, shall be numbered and filed in due order, and shall be duly registered by the Council Clerk in a book to be kept by him for that purpose. Upon the face of every document thus registered, to which there is any reference in the Minute-book, there shall be a note of the page wherein it is so referred to. And when any order has been made by the Council, or a report has been brought up by any Committee thereof in reference to any document so registered as aforesaid, a note of such order or report shall be made upon such document. It shall be the duty of the By-law Committee to inspect the records from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept, as aforesaid, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may discover in the keeping of such records.

Impression of seal not to be taken, &c., without leave of Council.—

Penalties.

86. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to take any impression of the corporate seal, or to show, lay open, or expose any of the books or records of the Council to any person other than a member of the same, without leave from such Council, except as otherwise provided by law. Any member or officer of the Council who shall be guilty of a breach of this section shall be liable on conviction for the first offence to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds, for a second offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds.

Records not to be removed, &c., penalties, exceptional circumstances. Receipt to be given in every case before document received. Proviso as to use of records as matters of evidence.

87. Any person removing any such book or other record of the Council, as aforesaid, from the Council Chamber or the place where by direction of the Council such books or other record is usually kept, without leave for such removal having been first obtained from such Council, or without other lawful cause for such removal as hereinafter provided, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book or other record as aforesaid, and shall not have returned same, to prosecution for stealing such book or record, or to an action at law for detention of same, as the circumstances of the case may warrant: Provided that leave for temporary removal of a book or other record may be granted to the Town Clerk or the Treasurer by the Mayor, in order that such Clerk or Treasurer may post up entries, prepare returns, or perform any other duty which it may be necessary that he or they should perform; also that the Mayor or Chairman of any Committee or any Alderman acting for any such Chairman may temporarily remove any record necessary for the preparation of a minute or a report, or for the purpose of any prosecution or suit at law by, against, or at the instance of the Council; but in all such cases such Clerk, Treasurer, Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be, shall give a receipt under his hand for every document so removed, and every such receipt shall be carefully preserved among the records until the book or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed; and provided also that the Mayor, Town Clerk, or other officer of the Council who may be subpoenaed to produce any book or other record of the Council in a Court of law shall have the right to remove such book or other record for the purpose of obeying such summons, but shall return such book or record as speedily as may be, and shall before removing the same leave at the Council Chamber a receipt for such book or other record as aforesaid; and every such person so temporarily removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid shall be legally responsible for the safe keeping and return of the same.

Penalty for defacing or destroying record.

88. Any person destroying, defacing, or altering any record of the Council shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Officers and Servants.

Officers and servants. Notice to candidates.

89. No appointment to any permanent office of a value exceeding £20 per annum at the disposal of the Council shall take place until notice shall have been given as hereinafter provided, inviting applications from qualified candidates for the same. The salary or allowance attached to the office shall in every case be fixed before such advertisement is published, and shall be stated in such advertisement.

Mode of appointment.

90. Every such appointment shall be made in such mode as may at the time be determined on, whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

91. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the employment, as may be from time to time found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workmen or labourers on the public works of the Borough.

Bonds for good conduct.

92. All bonds given by officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties shall be deposited with the attorney or the bankers of the Corporation, as the Council may order; and no officer or servant of the Council or any member of the Council shall be received as surety for any other such officer or servant.

Duties of Town Clerk.

93. The Town Clerk, in addition to the duties which by the Municipalities Act of 1867, or by the present or any other By-laws thereunder, he may be required to perform, shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Borough under the provisions of the said Municipalities Act; he shall also, under the direction of the Mayor, conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council; he shall likewise have charge of all the records of such Council, except such books or documents as may as hereinafter provided be intrusted to any other office, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council and the duties of such Mayor. He shall be required to give security in the sum of five hundred pounds.

Duties of Treasurer, &c., &c.

94. The Treasurer shall have charge of such books of account and other records of the Council as are mentioned in section 84 of these By-laws, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of the same. Any other officer of the Council may have any other records thereof committed to his charge by an order of the Council, and in such case shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records.

Duties of other officers and servants.

95. The duties of all officers and servants of the Corporation shall be defined by such regulation as may from time to time and in accordance with law be made as follows, viz.:—As to the duties of the Town Clerk and his assistants, by the Council or any Committee appointed for the purpose; as to the Treasurer and all collectors of rates, bailiffs, bailiffs' assistants, and other officers and servants employed in and about the collection of revenue, whose superintendence is not herein specially intrusted to any other Committee, by the Finance Committee; as to the Inspector of Nuisances, surveyors, architects, clerks of works, overseers, inspectors of water supply, sewerage or drainage thereof whose superintendence is not herein specially intrusted to any other Committee, by the Committee of Works and Parks Committee; as to the Attorney for the Corporation, and other officers and servants employed in and about the carrying out and employment of the general provisions of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and of any other statute of which the operation has been extended to the Borough, and of the By-laws for the general good government of such Borough whose superintendence is not herein specially intrusted to any other Committee by the By-law Committee; and as to librarians, managers of public institutions or reserves under the charge of the Council, and all other officers and servants employed in and about any matter over which the Council has control, and whose superintendence is not specially intrusted to any other Committee, by the Works Committee: Provided that all such regulations shall be in writing, and shall be in all cases laid before the Council at the first meeting thereof which shall be holden after the making of any such regulations, and shall be in strict accordance with any such orders or directions as may have been at any time given by such Council touching the matters to which any such regulation may have reference.

Special power of Mayor.

96. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information, by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, or unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden, or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statement, or the giving of such explanation or information. All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such explanation or information may, except as hereinafter provided be either rendered viva voce or put into writing, as the Mayor may direct.

How complaints against officers, &c., are to be dealt with.

97. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining, and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing or is anonymous. All such complaints may be addressed to the Mayor, who, immediately upon the receipt of any such complaint, and without laying the same before the Council, shall have power to investigate the same; and if any such complaint be made to the Council or to any member or officer thereof, it shall be referred to and investigated by the Mayor before it shall be in any way (otherwise than by such reference) ordered upon or dealt with by such Council: Provided that every report, explanation, and information which may be made or rendered in reference to every such complaint shall be in writing, and such Mayor shall state in writing the result of every such investigation and his opinion as to what order (if any) ought to be made in connection therewith; and such complaint, with all reports, explanations, and information as aforesaid in connection therewith, and the Mayor's statement as aforesaid thereon, shall be laid before the Council at the next meeting thereof which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have made such statement, and shall be duly recorded: Provided further that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the special power conferred on the Mayor by section 152 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or any other special power which now is or hereafter may be conferred by statute upon such Mayor.

Miscellaneous.

Leave of absence.

98. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or to any Alderman otherwise than by a resolution of the Council adopted after due notice.

By-laws, draft of, to lie in office seven days, &c.

99. A draft of every intended By-law shall lie in the office of the Council for at least seven days before such draft shall be taken into consideration by the Council, and shall be open to the inspection of any ratepayer who may desire to inspect the same; and public notice shall be given as hereinafter provided that such draft is so lying for inspection.

Motions for rescission of previous orders.

100. Whenever a motion for the rescission of any order, resolution, or vote of the Council shall have been negatived, no other motion to the same effect shall be permissible until a period of two months shall have elapsed from the time of negativing such first-mentioned motion: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to prohibit the reconsideration and amendment of any proposed By-law which may have been submitted to the Governor for confirmation, and may have been remitted to the Council with suggested amendments of the same, or the passage after due notice as hereinbefore provided and in due course of law of any By-law for the repeal or amendment of any other By-law.

Lapsed business.

101. Whenever the consideration of any motion or matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the resumption of such consideration shall be an order of the day for the next meeting of the Council and such consideration shall in such case be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted as aforesaid.

Suits and prosecutions for penalties.

102. Such suits or informations for the enforcement of penalties for or in respect of breach of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or of any By-law made thereunder, or of any statute the operation of which may be extended to the Borough as may have been directed by the Council, or by the By-law Committee, or by the Mayor to be commenced or laid, shall be so commenced or laid as follows, namely:—When against a member of the Council or an Auditor or any officer of the Corporation, by the Town Clerk, unless he shall be the officer to be proceeded against, and in such case by any other officer named by the Council for that purpose; when against any other person by the officer to whom the carrying out of the statutory provision or By-law imposing the penalty sought to be enforced has been intrusted: and if there shall be no such officer, then by any such officer or person as shall be appointed for that purpose by the Council or the By-law Committee, or the Mayor, as the case may be, on directing such suit or information as aforesaid; and no such suit shall be brought or information laid as aforesaid against any member of the Council or Auditor except by order of such Council, nor shall any similar proceeding be taken against any officer of the Council except by order of such Council, or of the Mayor, nor against any other person except upon the order of the Council, or of the Mayor or of the By-law Committee. And no such suit shall be directed to be brought, nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid, except on express resolution of the Council, in any case where the bringing of such suit or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction by such Council, or where on the trial or hearing of any such suit or information may on the order of the Council be intrusted to an attorney.

Power to suspend temporarily any portion of these By-laws.

103. Any of the foregoing By-laws which relate to or affect the proceedings at meetings of the Council may be suspended pro tempore without notice in cases of emergency, if all the members of the Council then present shall deem such suspension necessary.

PART II.

Collection and Enforcement of Rates.

Rates when due and payable.

1. All rates levied and imposed by the Council shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council shall by resolution from time to time appoint.

Time and place of payment.

2. All such rates shall be paid at the Council Chambers during the hours appointed by the Council for that purpose.

Special rates.

3. All rates levied or imposed by the Council, under sections 165, 166, and 167 of the said Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said sections, or under the provisions of any of the said sections, or for any of the purposes mentioned therein, shall be collected in such manner, and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council may by resolution at the time of making or imposing such rates, or any of them, have appointed.

Mayor to enforce payment.

4. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to take proceedings to enforce the payment of all rates in default, either by action at law or by issuing warrants of distress upon the goods and chattels of the defaulter.

Bailiff—how appointed.

5. The Bailiff of the Municipality shall be appointed by the Council, and may from time to time be removed by the said Council.

Enforcement by Distress Bailiff.

6. A Bailiff shall, when found necessary, be appointed by the Mayor.

Bailiff's sureties.

7. The Bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Mayor to the extent of twenty-five pounds each, for the faithful performance of his duties.

Duty of Bailiff

8. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

9. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who for the time being may be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

10. It shall be lawful for the Bailiff or his deputy, and such assistants as he or they may take with them, to enter into any part of the land, building, tenement, or other property, in respect of which such rate or rates shall have been made as aforesaid, and to distrain therein or thereon, and to remain in such building or other property in charge thereof. And if the sum for which any distress shall have been made or taken, together with the costs of such distraint, shall not have been paid on or before the expiration of three clear days, the Bailiff or his deputy may, between the hours of eleven in the morning and five in the afternoon on the next day thereafter, cause the goods so distrained or a sufficient portion thereof to be sold by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the Municipality as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them for such purpose, and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and the cost of such distraint, to the owner of such goods so sold on demand by such owner.

Inventory of goods seized to be delivered to ratepayer.

11. At the time of making a distress the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made, and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand at any time within one month after making such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

12. The Bailiff, on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of three days, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

13. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold, and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

14. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Town Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within twenty-four hours after having received the same.

Bailiff's fees.

15. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law, the costs and charges in the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

Every person who shall erect any fence of brushwood, bushes or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place as or for the covering of any such stack any inflammable material, so as to endanger any buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit on conviction for every such offence a penalty of not more than five pounds, and shall also remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid; and any person failing to remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Setting on fire wilfully any inflammable matter.

3. Every person who shall wilfully set fire to any inflammable matter whatsoever in the open air, without having given notice in writing to the occupiers of the land adjoining to the land upon which such matter shall be located, and also inform the Town Clerk of his or her intention so to do, and receiving written permission so to do from him and the occupant of said adjoining land, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Lighting bonfires.

4. Any person who shall light any bonfire, tar-barrel, or firework upon or within sixty yards, or shall discharge any fire-arms within one hundred yards of any public or private street or any public place, or shall sell gunpowder, equibs, rockets, or other combustible matter by gas, candle, or artificial light, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Setting on fire chimney-flues.

5. Every person who wilfully sets or causes to be set on fire any chimney-flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Chimneys catching fire by neglect.

6. If any chimney catch fire through the neglect of any person occupying or using any premises in which such chimney is situated shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings: Provided always that such forfeiture shall not be enforced if such person prove to the satisfaction of the Justices before whom the case is heard that such fire was in nowise owing to the neglect or carelessness, whether with respect to cleansing such chimney or otherwise of himself or his servant.

PART IV.

By-laws for the management and regulation of Water Supply.

The Mayor and Aldermen of the Council of the Municipal District of Bourke, pursuant to and in exercise and execution of the powers and authorities conferred on such Council by the "Country Towns Water and Sewerage Act of 1890," make the By-laws following:—

1. The rates and charges which the owners and occupiers of lands and tenements within the Municipality of Bourke, shall pay and become liable for in respect of water supplied by the Council for domestic, public, and other purposes, and the terms and conditions relating to such supply, shall be as follows:—

Domestic purposes.Water rates.

2. The Council shall have power to make a water rate up to 1s. in the £ on the assessed value of all ratable properties on the respective lines of the reticulation of any mains constructed by or vested in the Council, for the purpose of defraying the cost of supplying water for domestic purposes only.

Charges by measure.

3. The Council may supply water for such purposes and may charge for the same according to measure.

Charges by contract.

4. The Council may supply water for such purposes by agreement. Provided that the charge for such supply shall not be less than 4s. per annum for each tenement, and that no contract shall be for a lesser period than six months.

Rate when water not required or used.

5. In the event of any person or persons not requiring or using the supply of water, or not agreeing with the Council for the same, the Council shall have power to impose a water rate up to 1s. in the £ upon the ratable property of each portion or portions on the line of reticulation as aforesaid.

Business premises requiring little water.

6. Where any person or persons owning or occupying business or other premises requiring little or no water are assessed at a rental value of £100, or over, per annum, the rate for such premises may be fixed at 1s. in the £ up to £100, and at the rate of 6d. in the £ on any sum over and above the first £100.

Meaning of domestic purposes.

7. The words "domestic purposes" shall not mean or include supply of water to hotel or livery stables, gardens, or factories, nor for irrigation, water-power, fountains, or ornamental purposes.

Public and General purposes.Charges on stables.

8. The Council shall have power, in addition to any water-rate on any tenement, to make and fix charges on all hotel, livery, and coach-horse stables, and premises where horses are constantly kept, and if within 50 yards of any main: Provided that such charges may be fixed either according to measure or by agreement.

Irrigation, factories, &c.

9. Water may be supplied for irrigation of market or other gardens, ornamental grounds and manufactories, or for purely agricultural purposes, also for hospitals, and other charitable institutions, not supported out of the Municipal revenue, and may be charged for either according to measure or by agreement.

Unimproved lands.

10. Unimproved town or suburban allotments and lands, if not more than 50 yards from any main, shall be charged at the rate of 5 per cent. on the whole assessment.

Water-carts, steam-boilers, &c.

11. For the supply of water by the Council and the use thereof, owners of horse-troughs shall pay a charge of 10s. per annum; owners of steam-boilers shall pay 10s. per annum for each horse-power of such steam-boiler unless supplied by meter, owners of water-carts shall for use of stand-pipe, pay a monthly fee as may be fixed from time to time by the Council, such fee to be not less than £1 per month.

Buildings in course of erection.

12. For the temporary supply of water to buildings in course of erection, contractors shall pay £1 per cent. on amount of the contract for stonework, brickwork, and plastering, or the Council may charge according to measure or agreement.

Charges by measure.

13. The charge for water supplied by the Council by measurement (unless by special agreement) shall not be less than 2s. per 1,000 gallons up to 100,000 gallons, and 1s. 6d. for every 1,000 gallons in excess of that quantity.

Quantity by measure for general purposes.

14. For public and general purposes the minimum quantity of water to be charged for by measure shall be equal to what would have been charged for the premises so supplied if supplied otherwise than by measure, but in no case shall less than 25,000 gallons per quarter be charged for unless by special agreement.

Meters.

15. The Council may cause meters to be fixed in any case where they may consider it necessary, such meter to be provided and fixed at the expense of the person requiring and using the supply of water. If, however, the meter shall be supplied by the Council, such person shall be charged the rent of 10 per cent. per annum on the cost of the meter, which rent, together with the cost (if any) of providing and fixing the meter so supplied, shall be recoverable in the same manner as the ordinary water-rates and charges.

Rates and charges when due.

16. All rates and charges under these By-laws for the supply of water (except charges under any agreement, which shall be paid in advance), shall become due within thirty days from the service of the notice in writing of same having been made, such service to be made either personally on the person or persons rated or charged in such notice, or by posting the same to his or their last known place of abode or business, or by leaving or posting the same at or upon the premises assessed, rated, or charged.

Penalty for taking away water.

17. Any person supplied with water by the Council, who shall take and carry away such water from his premises, or who shall allow any person to take or carry away such water as aforesaid, or who shall sell or supply the same to any other person, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5.

Penalty for fixing meter, pipes, &c., without license.

18. Before any person shall affix any service pipe to any pipe or main of the Council, or alter or repair, or in any manner interfere with any meter or pipe of the Council, or with any service pipe, cock, or fitting connected with any pipe or main of the Council, he shall obtain from the Council a license in that behalf to execute such works, and any unlicensed person affixing, altering, repairing, or in any manner interfering with any such meter, service pipe, cock, or fittings as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £10. Before any such license shall be granted by the Council, the person applying for the same shall satisfy the Council that he is a competent plumber.

Uncovering pipes, &c., without notice.

19. Any person, whether licensed as aforesaid or not, who shall open any ground so as to uncover any main or pipe of the Council without giving two days' notice to the Council of his intention so to do, or who shall in any way tamper with or alter any pipe of the Council without the permission in writing of the Council being first obtained, or who shall wilfully or carelessly break, injure, or open any lock, cock, valve, pipe, work, main, or engine, the property of the Council, shall be liable for each such offence to a penalty not exceeding £20.

Injuring public fountains, &c.

20. Any person who shall injure any public fountain, pump, cock, or water pipe, or any part thereof, shall pay the cost of repairing the same, and, if the injury be wilfully done, shall also forfeit a sum not exceeding £20 nor less than £1; and any person who shall have in his possession any private key for the purpose of opening any cock, and any person who shall open or leave open any cock of any public fountain, or pump, or stand-pipe, so that the water shall or may run to waste, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding £2 nor less than 5s.; and any person who shall wash any clothes, omnibus, carriage, cart, or other vehicle, or any horse at any public fountain or pump, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding £5 nor less than £1.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipality of Bourke in Council assembled, this eighth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

The Seal of the Council was authorized to be attached hereto, at a meeting of the Council, held this eighth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Hay under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF HAY.

BY-LAWS for regulating the Park and other Reserves under the control of the Council.

1. The Park and other public places of recreation under the management or control of the Council shall be open every day to the public for recreation.
2. No person shall pluck any of the flowers, plants, or shrubs, or walk on the beds, or climb upon, or get over any of the fences, or disturb, destroy, or in any way damage any property or thing in the Park or other reserve.
3. No person shall carry any firearms through the Park or other reserve, or shoot, disturb, snare, or destroy any wild fowl or animal, either in the Park or other reserve, or in, or on any water therein, or bathe, or fish in any such water.
4. Children under 8 years of age, not being under the control of some competent person, may be removed from the Park.
5. All dogs found within the Park will be removed, and the owner prosecuted for any damage done by any such dog, and all goats found in the Park or other reserve without the owner thereof first having obtained permission of the Council, will be destroyed, and the owner shall make compensation for any damage done.
6. No visitor shall interrupt the gardener, or any person employed in the Park by conversation or otherwise.
7. Any person convicted of offending against any portion of the foregoing By-laws will be liable to a penalty of not more than £10 nor less than 10s.
8. The Council shall have power to issue grazing rights, and determine the number and description of stock which each holder of a grazing right shall have the right to depasture on the Park, water reserve, reserve at South Hay called Hew's Paddeck, or any other reserve under the control of the Council.
9. Any person who shall wilfully let, or knowingly suffer to enter upon the said Park, water reserve, or reserve at South Hay, or any other fenced reserve under the control of the Council, any animals without written authority of the proper officer of the Council, shall be deemed guilty of wilful trespass, and shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding £10 nor less than £1.
10. Any person pulling down, destroying, defacing, or in any way interfering with any notice, placard, or any fence, or other erection or construction thereon in any Park, recreation ground, reserve, or other public place without the authority of the Council, shall upon conviction of every such offence be liable to a penalty of not more than £10 nor less than 10s.

The above By-laws were made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Hay, at a Special Meeting held on Wednesday, 3rd October, 1888.

Mayor.
T. W. BLANCHÉ,
Council Clerk.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF HAY.

BY-LAWS for regulating the keeping of Goats.

1. Each and every person who shall keep any goat within the boundaries of the Municipal District of Hay, shall register his or her name and address with the Council Clerk thereof, and shall at such time of registration pay the sum of 1s. for each and every goat proposed to be kept; and the Council Clerk shall give to the person so registering a collar for each goat so registered (to be placed and kept upon the neck of each such goat), bearing thereon a number corresponding with the number set opposite the name of such person as registering, in a book kept for that purpose, and called the "Registration Book."
2. If any goat shall be found within the Municipal District of Hay, having on its neck a collar purporting to bear the number corresponding with that set opposite the name and address of any person in the "Registration Book," such goat shall be presumed to be owned and kept by such person.
3. Every goat found at large in any street within the District of Hay, may be forthwith seized, and confined in any enclosure appointed by the Council until dealt with as hereinafter provided.
4. Every goat so seized and confined may be destroyed or sold, at or after noon on the day next after the day of such seizure, unless claimed and removed before that time, and the person so claiming and removing shall for all the purposes of this By-law be considered to be the owner of the said goat.
5. The owner, whether registered herewith or not, of every goat found at large in any street or public place in the Municipal District of Hay, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than £2, nor less than 5s.

The above By-laws were made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Hay, at a Special Meeting held on Wednesday, the 3rd October, 1888.

MOSS VALE MUNICIPALITY.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Moss Vale, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the provisions of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS OF THE MOSS VALE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

PART I.

Meetings of the Council.Ordinary Meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the dispatch of business at such hour in the evening as its members may from time to time determine, upon motion after due notice, on every alternate Monday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Provided if the Mayor shall afterwards attend, the chair shall be vacated and be taken by him.

Adjournment for want of a Quorum.

3. In the event of a quorum not being present at any meeting of the Council within half an hour after the time appointed for the holding of such meeting, the names of the Aldermen then present shall be entered in the minute book by the Council Clerk and the meeting shall lapse. Should it appear at any time during the holding of any meeting that there is not a quorum of members present, the Mayor shall have power to adjourn such meeting or intended meeting to some other time.

Order of Business.Business of Ordinary Meetings.

4. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

- (a) The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes except as to whether they are correct.

- (b) Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
(c) Correspondence to be read and, if necessary, to be dealt with.
(d) Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor to be received.
(e) Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction, or within the official cognizance of the Council, to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of the Committees or officers to be made, or any other special business, but shall not be debated.
(f) Motions, of which notice has been given, to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
(g) Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Business at Special Meetings.

5. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at ordinary meetings, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor, or the Alderman at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Answers to Questions.

6. It shall not be compulsory for the Mayor to give official replies to questions put to him, unless he shall have had twenty-four hours notice thereof.

Business Paper, how prepared.

7. The business paper for every meeting of the Council shall be made up by the Council Clerk, and delivered to the Mayor and Aldermen, or left at their respective residences at least forty-eight hours before the time appointed for such meeting. The Council Clerk shall enter on such business paper, a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every order referring to business proposed to be entertained at such meeting.

Business Paper for Special Meetings.

8. The business paper for a special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Alderman calling such meeting.

How Business Paper is to be disposed of.

9. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper so noted shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of Motions, &c., to be numbered as received and preserved until matter is disposed of.

10. All notices of motions, &c., for consideration at general meetings shall be delivered to the Council Clerk at least four days before such meeting, in writing, and shall be numbered by him as they are received, and entered on the business paper according to their number; and each notice shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of. Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

After Business Paper made up all Notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

11. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motions, requisitions, and directions, as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alterations, or amendment.

Motions and Amendments.Motions, how to be moved.

12. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck out and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed Mover.

13. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall, except as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motions to be seconded.

14. No motions in Council shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

Amendment may be moved.

15. When a motion shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon; but no such amendment shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

All Amendments must be in writing.

16. All amendments must be in writing, signed by the mover, and delivered to the Clerk, who shall add thereto the name of the seconder.

Amendments, how disposed of.

17. Whenever an amendment is moved upon an original proposition, no second amendment shall be taken into consideration until the first amendment has been disposed of. If the first amendment be carried it shall displace the original question and become itself the question, subject to any further amendment. If the first amendment be negatived, then a second amendment may be moved upon the original question under consideration; but only one amendment shall be submitted to the Council for discussion at one time.

Adjournments.

18. Any motion for adjournment, if recorded, shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion is negatived it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until twenty minutes shall have elapsed.

Orders of the Day.Of what Orders of the Day shall consist.

19. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters, other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

Who to move.

20. The Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move. Provided that the Mayor, or Chairman for the time being, may, as to any order of the day entered by his direction, arrange with and call upon any Alderman to move the same.

Petitions to be respectfully warded.

21. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions, how received.

22. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How Petitions are to be dealt with.

23. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned, or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Reports from Committees, and Minutes from the Mayor.Form of Report.

24. All reports from Committees shall be written on foolscap paper, with a margin at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by the Chairman of such Committee or, in his absence, by some other member of the same.

Mayor's Minute.

25. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How Reports, &c., are to be dealt with.

26. No motion shall be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if any order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders for the day, such motion or order may be moved or considered in due course.

Order of Debate.Modes of addressing the Council, &c.

27. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or who shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place, unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity, and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy; and all members of the Council shall on all occasions when in such Council address and speak of each other by the official designation, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Offensive Language.

28. If any Alderman uses, whilst in Council, any offensive or insulting language, the words shall be written down and he shall be asked to withdraw them. If he refuse to withdraw such language and apologise, he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct and be liable to a fine of not less than 20s. nor more than £5.

Limitations as to number of Speeches, &c.

29. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than the mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion, and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak more than once upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain without adding any further observation than may be necessary for the purpose of such explanation.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

30. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Mover and Seconder.

31. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but any Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment, without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

32. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, nor impute improper motives to, any other Alderman.

Adjournment of Debate.

33. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been adjourned shall be entitled to pro-audience on the resumption of the debate. Provided that such member shall have not spoken to the motion.

Mayor to decide as to pro-audience.

34. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Aldermen may require Questions to be stated, &c., under certain restrictions.

35. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible. Provided, however, no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or to materially interrupt the discussion. Also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide, it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second Motion, &c., but may address Council thereon.

36. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment nor put any question, as provided for by section 4 of this part of the By-laws, except as is further provided for by the 20th section of the same; but such Chairman or Mayor shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Mayor or Chairman to decide Points of Order—Penalties for persisting in Disorderly Conduct.

37. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final in that particular case, and the Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order whenever in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman there shall be a necessity for so doing; and every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order; and the Mayor or Chairman, when called upon, to decide points of order or practice which he shall deem applicable to the case without discussing or commenting upon same.

Any member of the Council, either in Council or Committee, who shall have been called to order by the Mayor or Chairman, and who shall still persist in any line of conduct or argument which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable on conviction, for each offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Mode of Voting.How Questions are to be put.

38. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions—Penalty for refusing to Vote.

39. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division. In such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative, and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.Mode of protesting—Protests to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

40. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote of the Council. Notice of the intention so to protest must however be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth or disrespectfully worded, it may, by resolution or notice, be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.Business in Committee.

41. The business Committees of the whole Council shall be conducted in accordance with the rules hereinbefore provided for meetings of the Council, as nearly as the same shall apply, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Usage of the House of Parliament to be observed unless other provisions made.

42. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules and forms as laid down in May's Parliamentary Practice, which shall be followed as far as they can be applied to the proceedings of this Council.

Calls of the Council.How calls are to be ordered.

43. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given, for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.
