 1903. It was thirteen years ago when he was living with his step-father? Yes.
 1904. And then he left him? Yes.
 1905. How many years ago did you know of this step-brother being on the "Vernon"? I do not know how long.
 1906. How many years ago, about? I cannot say.
 1907. You will not deny that you have been doing all you can to save this man? I would work for any boy.
 1908. You have been doing all you can to get him out of his difficulty? Yes.
 1909. President.] Have you been doing all you can to get evidence to show that this man Dean was innocent? I have only been to one party.
 1910. Sir Julian Salomons.] What party did you go to? Willoughby.
 1911. Is that the name of a person? No; the place.
 1912. What is the name of the person? Cook.
 1913. There are several families of Cook, are there not? I do not know how many Cooks there are.
 1914. What was his name, Edward or John? I cannot tell you; I do not know.
 1915. Now, was not it a Mrs. Cook? Yes.
 1916. Where does she live? I was not acquainted there.
 1917. What did you go to Mrs. Cook for? To get some evidence.
 1918. When did you go? I cannot remember.
 1919. Was it on Easter Monday? I did not go out on Easter Monday.
 1920. How long ago is it since you went there? I cannot say.
 1921. Well, about—is it four or five weeks ago? It is since the trial.
 1922. Of course it was;—how long after the trial? I cannot give any idea.
 1923. Did you go more than once? I think I went twice; I do not know.
 1924. What is the name of the person who went with you? I went by myself.
 1925. Both times? No.
 1926. Who went with you then? Mr. Paul.
 1927. He is one of the Defence Committee at North Sydney, is he not? Yes.
 1928. And takes an active part? Yes.
 1929. You went once alone? Yes; the first time Mr. Paul went with me.
 1930. You know these Cooks have made certain statements about this matter? I do not know.
 1931. Do you not know that one of them made certain statements about this case? I do not know. I went there to find out if she had any evidence.
 1932. Who told you about Mrs. Cook? I went with Mr. Paul.
 1933. You went at his request? Yes.
 1934. Where did you go from? Woollabra.
 1935. Where did you meet Mr. Paul? At North Shore.
 1936. And you went together? Yes.
 1937. When did you go by yourself? I have no idea.
 1938. When did you go over alone? I went out to see her.
 1939. To make a call? No, to see her.
 1940. What for? To see if she had any statement to make about this case.

- F. Konnecke. 1941. Had not you been there before with Mr. Paul? Yes.
- 17 May, 1895. 1942. Why did you go to her again? I wanted to fetch her in.
1943. Did you fetch her in? Yes.
1944. Where did you fetch her to? To Mr. Meagher's.
1945. When did you bring her to Mr. Meagher's? I cannot tell you.
1946. Which of these Mrs. Cooks was it? I do not know.
1947. You were bringing her there about an important matter? Yes.
1948. Will you swear you did not know her name? Her name was Mrs. Cook.
1949. You did not know her Christian name? No.
1950. You never asked? No.
1951. Did you drive to Mr. Meagher's office? Yes; I took her in my trap.
1952. Where from? Willoughby.
1953. And you cannot tell when that was? Not exactly.
1954. Have you seen her since? No.
1955. Whereabouts does she live in Willoughby? Close to the river at Lane Cove.
1956. What is her husband? I do not know; he was living there.
1957. What is his name? Cook.
1958. What does he do? I do not know what he does.
1959. You saw him? Yes.
1960. And spoke to him—Mr. Cook? Yes; I wished him the time of day when I went with Mr. Paul.
1961. You had no conversation with him? We asked for Mrs. Cook.
1962. Did you not go there about some statements made about the purchase of some poison by some person;—did you not go there for that? I went there to see if she knew anything about anybody who bought poison.
1963. And Mr. Paul went with you? Yes.
1964. You cannot tell me how long after that you went again? No.
1965. You went about the same matter? Yes.
1966. Have you seen Mrs. Cook since you took her to Mr. Meagher's office? No, not since.
1967. You have only seen that one Mrs. Cook? Yes.
1968. Did you know anything about the husband? No; I know nothing about him.
1969. You know nothing about the characters of these people Cook? No; I never saw them before.
1970. What caused you to go over with Mr. Paul in the first instance? Mr. Paul asked me to call for him because I had a trap.
1971. And you went together? Yes.
1972. President.] What interest was there for you to go with Mr. Paul at all:—did you know him before this? He was going bail with me.
1973. Do you not live at Woollahra—and Mr. Paul lives at North Shore? Yes.
1974. Sir Julian Salomon.] These Cooks—do they not live close to one of the steamer wharfs;—how far is it from a wharf? Where I went I saw the water.
1975. How far was it from the wharf? I do not know where the wharf is.
1976. What is Mr. Paul? I do not know what he is.
1977. Did he go bail with you? He was going bail with me.
1978. You admitted before that you did not know him? No.
1979. You came all the way from Woollahra in a sulky, went across to North Shore, and picked Mr. Paul up at his house and drove him to Willoughby? Yes.
1980. How far does Mr. Paul live from the water? Close to it.
1981. You never saw him before? No; he was a stranger to me.
1982. Where did you see Mrs. Cook—in a room, or in the garden? In the grounds.
1983. Who were present? Her husband was there.
1984. Was Mr. Paul there? Yes.
1985. And you and the husband and Mrs. Cook? Yes.
1986. And you know nothing of the character of these Cooks? No.
1987. What was the conversation between you and Mrs. Cook about this poison;—tell me all that happened? Mr. Paul asked her when we came to her house whether she knew anything about a woman and poison, and she said that she was in Walker-street, North Sydney, when a woman came up and asked her would she come into a chemist's shop and sign for some poison. She said she looked at the woman and said, "If you want to buy poison the best thing you can do is to get a policeman." She said she would not go.
1988. Poison for what? She said for rats.
1989. Did she describe that woman? She said she was a tall woman—tall and rather stout—and that she would know her if she saw her again.
1990. What was the further description she gave you? She said she would know her if she was to see her.
1991. Was this after the trial? Yes.
1992. After the conviction? Yes.
1993. Did not you ask her to describe this woman? Yes; she said she was rather tall.
1994. Did she give any further description of her? No.
1995. Did you not tell this woman (Mrs. Cook) that the description she gave you would correspond with Mrs. Seymour;—did not you tell Mrs. Cook that? I do not know.
1996. Will you swear you did not say that? I will not swear that.
1997. Were you excited? No.
1998. Will you swear that you did not tell Mrs. Cook that her description corresponded with Mrs. Seymour? No; I would not swear it. I do not know what I said.
1999. Will you not admit that you did; do you believe the description corresponded with Mrs. Seymour;—did you believe it? I did believe it corresponded with Mrs. Seymour.
2000. She (Mrs. Cook) only said she was rather tall and stout;—was that all? Yes; that is the only description she gave me.
2001. How long was this after the trial when you went with Mr. Paul? I do not know.
2002. Were you at the trial? Not every day.
2003. How many days were you there? I was not there on Saturday. 2004.

F. Konnecke.

17 May, 1895.

2004. Were you there twice? I was not there on Saturday.
2005. How long did you stay there;—all day? No; I went in the afternoon and had a look.
2006. One night how late were you there? I was there one night from half-past 10 o'clock to 11 o'clock.
2007. And the other night? That was the only night.
2008. You only saw one Mrs. Cook;—will you swear that? I might have seen many Mrs. Cooks, but I would not know their names.
2009. Did not you see any other Mrs. Cook? I would not know her name if I did.
2010. Did you not see another Mrs. Cook? I did not know her name was Cook.
2011. How many women were present;—you were there and Mr. Paul was there? I only saw one. I was told her name was Mrs. Cook.
2012. Did you not drive to another house? Yes; but I do not know the name.
2013. Who went with you? Mr. Paul; he got out.
2014. How far was this from the other house? I cannot tell.
2015. How many women did you see there? Only one woman.
2016. At the first place you only saw one woman, and at the second place one woman? Yes; at the first place I saw one woman and at the second place another.
2017. Was she a relation or a sister of the first Mrs. Cook? I do not know.
2018. How is it you went to the other one? Mr. Paul said he knew where they lived, and told me where to drive.
2019. When you drove out, you drove to a person named Cook? Yes; Mr. Paul told me where to drive.
2020. Did you see a woman at the first place where you went? I saw a man there.
2021. He appeared to be her husband? Yes.
2022. Mr. Paul said he knew the man? Yes; from a boy.
2023. There was only you, and Mr. Paul, and Mrs. Cook? Yes.
2024. How long did you stay there? We did not stay very long.
2025. About how long? I should say about a quarter of an hour.
2026. Then Mrs. Cook described to you the person who spoke to her in Walker-street, North Sydney, about the poison? Yes.
2027. And you told her that you thought the description corresponded with Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
2028. Did you and Mr. Paul go away together? Yes; we went together.
2029. Anybody else? Yes; Mr. Cook was in my vehicle.
2030. You do not know the first name of the first Mrs. Cook? No.
2031. Mr. Paul, yourself, and Mr. Cook went then to the second Mrs. Cook;—what did they tell you about the poison? The second woman it was that told us about the poison.
2032. The first woman then made no statement? No; she only said what she heard from the other Mrs. Cook.
2033. It was the second Mrs. Cook then that made the statement? Yes.
2034. At the first conversation did Mrs. Cook make any statement to you about poison? The first one, yes.
2035. What description did the first Mrs. Cook give you? I cannot tell.
2036. Will you swear you never got out of the trap? No; I never got out of the trap. Mr. Paul got out and I stayed in the trap.
2037. Did you not say that the description corresponded with Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
2038. What made you say that? I heard that.
2039. What did you hear? She said she was tall, and had some grey hair in her head.
2040. And you said that corresponds with Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
2041. That was at the second Mrs. Cook's? No; at the first Mrs. Cook's.
2042. President.] The conversation about the woman being tall and stout was at the first Mrs. Cook's, was it not? Yes.
2043. Did you not say that the first Mrs. Cook said that she was tall and stoutish? Yes.
2044. Sir Julian Salomons.] That conversation was at the first Mrs. Cook's? Yes.
2045. Then you drove to the second Mrs. Cook's, and the first Mrs. Cook's husband went with you? Yes.
2046. You believe it was her husband? Yes.
2047. At the second place you went to you saw the second Mrs. Cook and her husband;—what was the conversation? We asked her did she see a woman. She said yes; that a woman asked her to go into a chemist's, in Walker-street, North Sydney, and sign for some poison, and that she looked up at her and said, "Well, if you want to buy poison, you ought to get a policeman."
2048. Did not she describe this woman to you? She said she would know her again if she saw her.
2049. Which Mrs. Cook did the woman speak to? The second one—the second Mrs. Cook.
2050. What description did she give you? She said she would know her again if she saw her. She said she was tall and stoutish, and she would know her if she saw her.
2051. And you thought that corresponded with Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
2052. And told her so? Yes.
2053. Did she give you any further description? No.
2054. You had been to the Court and seen Mrs. Seymour giving evidence? Yes.
2055. Was it at the Water Police Court you saw her? Yes.
2056. She had been to your house? Yes.
2057. Where were you living then? At Woollahra, at the corner of Queen and Moncur Streets.
2058. Mrs. Seymour had been there? Yes.
2059. How long before this accusation? When George Dean got married they came up as visitors.
2060. Then George Dean and his wife and the mother have been at your place? Yes; Mrs. Dean and her mother have been there.
2061. You have seen Mrs. Seymour a number of times since Dean was married? Yes.
2062. You say the second Mrs. Cook told you that the woman she saw was tall and stoutish? Yes.
2063. No further description was given you, but tall and stoutish? No.
2064. Did not the second Mrs. Cook say something about her hair? I cannot tell you.
2065. Did not she say that her hair was cut short? I cannot say.
2066. How did you describe Mrs. Seymour? I did not tell anybody how she was.
2067. Do you not remember what you told both these Mrs. Cooks as to what kind of a woman Mrs. Seymour was? I only said what she was like.

- F. Konnecke. 2068. Will you swear you gave no description;—not in Mr. Paul's presence? I do not know.
- 17 May, 1895. 2069. Will you swear that, in Mr. Paul's presence, you did not describe Mrs. Seymour? I do not know if I did so or not.
2070. You cannot recollect? No; I do not know.
2071. Have you got a good memory or a bad one? I have a pretty fair memory.
2072. When you went to Crick and Meagher's office, you say you took Mrs. Cook there? Yes.
2073. Only one Mrs. Cook? Yes.
2074. How many times have you been to Crick and Meagher's office? I cannot tell.
2075. Did not you go to a third Mrs. Cook? No; I have never been to three Cooks.
2076. Did not you go to another relation of theirs;—will you swear that? No; not that I am aware of— not any Cook.
2077. Did not you go to another woman who lives in the Lane Cove neighbourhood? No.
2078. President.] Did you go to anyone else in Lane Cove after you had been to the two Mrs. Cooks? No. When we went out to the first place there was no one there, and Mr. Paul told me to drive further down somewhere, and there we saw Mr. Cook. We picked him up, and went to his house, and saw the first Mrs. Cook. Mr. Cook then came with us to the second Mrs. Cook's, and she described the woman who asked her to sign for some poison. She said the woman was tall and stoutish, and she would know her again if she saw her.
2079. Did you go to three places that day? No; I did not go to any three places.
2080. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have been in business a great many years, have you not? Yes; for twenty-five years.
2081. Will you tell me, before this accusation against Dean, how long before that had you seen Dean;— how long before he was accused of poisoning his wife? He used to often come.
2082. On his bicycle? Yes.
2083. Was it a day before? I do not know how many days.
2084. Did he come frequently? Yes; often.
2085. Was the child left at your house? Yes.
2086. You carry on a butchering business? Yes; a retail business.
2087. Do you cure hides? No.
2088. You have nothing to do with that business? No; I have never done so.
2089. Did you ever sell hides? No; I do not kill.
2090. Have you ever sold hides? Yes; a calf's skin occasionally.
2091. Were you selling hides some time before this accusation against Dean? No.
2092. Have you never cured any? No.
2093. No bullocks' or calves' skins? No; I never had any bullocks.
2094. From whom did you get your meat? From Glebe Island.
2095. What is the name of the person you got your meat from? I used to get it off anybody. Sometimes from Macnamara, sometimes from O'Brien, sometimes from O'Neill.
2096. No particular person? No.
2097. Do you keep books? Yes.
2098. Where are they? At home.
2099. They would show where you buy these things, would they not? I do not book these things. I know where I buy.
2100. You do not always book it? No.
2101. You buy from whom? Anybody on Glebe Island.
2102. You say you drove Mrs. Cook to Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
2103. Did Mr. Paul drive Mrs. Cook to Mrs. Seymour in Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
2104. And Mrs. Cook went to Mrs. Seymour's door and said she was a friend of hers, and wished to see her? I do not know; I was not there.
2105. Did she go with Mr. Paul? Yes.
2106. How did he take her? I do not know.
2107. Where is Mr. Paul? Mr. Pilcher: At North Shore.
2108. Are you going to call him? Mr. Pilcher: Perhaps so.
2109. To witness.] You did not go with Mr. Paul? No, I did not go with Mr. Paul.
2110. Did you leave Mrs. Cook at Crick and Meagher's, or wait for her? Mr. Paul took her away in a cab.
2111. You drove her there, but did not wait for her? No; I did not wait for her.
2112. Is Mr. Paul in this room? Mr. Pilcher: No, he is not.
2113. You went out expressly to see these two Mrs. Cooks, and all you can tell me you have told me so far? I have told you all I know.
2114. Of either of the Mrs. Cooks? Yes.
2115. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe what took you out to see Mrs. Cook was some information that the North Shore Committee had got about this poison? Only what Mr. Paul told me.
2116. You drove Mr. Paul out? Yes.
2117. You first drove to one house; the owner was not there; you found him, and then went to another house? Yes.
2118. After this you went by yourself? Yes.
2119. Did you bring Mrs. Cook in? Yes.
2120. To Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
2121. You did not go into Crick and Meagher's office? No.
2122. Mr. Paul drove Mrs. Cook up to see Mrs. Seymour, at Riley-street? Yes.
2123. You did not go? No.
2124. Did you not drive up in your own trap? Yes; I drove up in my trap.
2125. You drove up with Mr. Williamson? Yes; I took Mr. Williamson to the gaol and then went home myself to Woollahra.
2126. Personally you know nothing of the character of Mrs. Seymour's house? No.
2127. You were asked about hides; how are hides generally treated? All hides go from the slaughtering places to the big merchants. I have nothing to do with hides; they are dealt with by the carcass butchers.

F. Konnecke.
17 May, 1895.

2123. If you have an odd calf-skin you sell the skin there and then? Yes.
2129. How many doors did this man Finch live from you; you said he lived on the opposite side of the road? Yes.
2130. What street did you say you lived in? Caroline and Eveleigh Streets. [Mr. Pilcher draws plan.]
2131. You lived at the corner? Yes.
2132. Where did Finch live? [Witness marks on the plan where.]
2133. Can you tell me how far from your shop Finch lived—say roughly, is it about 50 yards? It might be between 50 and 100 yards, but I could not say how far.
2134. You said that Dean, before he was married, used to live with your family? Yes.
2135. At the time you took him as a lodger had you the same opinion of him as you have told us? Yes; or I would not have taken him in.
2136. Having lived between three and four years with you you express the opinion you have expressed? Yes.
2137. [President.] When Dean came to you he must have been about 14 years old? Yes; I should think about that.
2138. He came down to you from Narrandera? Yes; I understood that. He came from the country somewhere.
2139. Are you sure about Narrandera; you believe it was Narrandera? Yes.
2140. Did he tell you what he had been doing up there? He said he was working for a horse-shoer.
2141. Did he tell you anything else? No.
2142. When he came to you was he educated; had he been to school? Yes.
2143. He told you his only occupation was that he was with this man who shod horses? Yes.
2144. He lived with you for nearly four years? Yes.
2145. He lived with you up to the time he got married? Yes.
2146. Did he tell you he was going to get married? No; not a word.
2147. What time used he to go out and come in? He used to come home in the morning at 8 o'clock, half-past 8, or 9 o'clock; sometimes later.
2148. During the latter part of his stay he was on the night North Shore steamer? Yes.
2149. What time would he leave at night to go to his work? We used to call him at half-past 10 o'clock at night. He got his supper, and then got on his bicycle and went to work.
2150. Was there any time during the eight or nine months before the marriage that he failed to observe those hours? He used sometimes to say, "I want my supper earlier; I am going to see May."
2151. You knew then that he was going to get married some time or other? No; I did not.
2152. Did you know he was keeping company? Yes; but I did not know he was going to marry the girl.
2153. What hours did he go courting? He did not go out very often. Sometimes he would go out and home to tea, and then lay down and sleep till half-past 10.
2154. He would not be at home as much as before? He used to go out on his bicycle about half an hour before his usual time at night.
2155. How often used he to do that? I cannot tell you.
2156. Two or three times a week? I cannot say; I have no idea how often he went.
2157. But he went that way? Yes.
2158. Has he been in the day-time? Yes.
2159. In the day-time and in the night-time too? Yes.
2160. Both day and night? Yes; he used to go on Wednesday, when he had his pay.
2161. Used he sometimes to go by day and night? Yes; but not very often.
2162. Was he not very keen on this love-making business? I say he has been, but not very often.
2163. How many times a week used he to go? I do not know how often he went.
2164. Can you give us no idea, generally speaking, how often he went? I cannot say.
2165. Did he go once a week in the day-time? I do not know.
2166. Once a week in the day or night? I cannot tell; I do not know.
2167. How often by day or night did he see Mary Seymour? I cannot say. He has fetched her to my place.
2168. By day or by night? By day.
2169. And taken her home by day? I cannot tell you.
2170. How many times a week used he to go to see this girl? I cannot tell.
2171. Did he go every day? Not every day.
2172. Three or four times a week? I cannot tell.
2173. How long did you know he was keeping company with her before he got married? I think about seven months.
2174. Is there anybody who knows when he used to go there better than you do? I have my wife and daughter there, but I did not bother about him.
- 2175-6. Would your wife and daughter know better how many times a week he went to see this girl? I could not say.

WEDNESDAY,

MONDAY, 20 MAY, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D., | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and Mr. Charles Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

John Palmer sworn and examined:—

- J. Palmer. 2177. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you reside in Bourke-street? Yes.
 2178. What number in Bourke-street? At 603 Bourke-street, Surry Hills.
 20 May, 1895. 2179. What are you? I am a painter.
 2180. How long have you lived in Bourke-street? About twelve years.
 2181. Did you know Mrs. Seymour and her daughter? Yes.
 2182. And Madame Rose? Yes.
 2183. Have you ever seen either Mrs. Seymour or her daughter in connection with Madame Rose's? Yes. I have seen them there. I have seen both of them go there, but singly, not both together.
 2184. Which door did they enter by? The door at the gable entrance, in Collins-street.
 2185. Why do you call it the gable entrance? Because it is the gable end of the house.
 2186. When you say the gable entrance you mean the door that enters in Collins-street? Yes.
 2187. Have you ever seen them go in any other way? Only by the wicket-gate.
 2188. When you say them you mean both of them? Yes.
 2189. Separately? Yes.
 2190. Are you quite sure that you have seen Mary Dean go into Madame Rose's? Yes.
 2191. How long ago? Between three or four years ago.
 2192. Have you ever seen Mary Seymour speaking to people in the street? Yes, I have.
 2193. At what time of the day? Between dinner-time and tea-time, in the afternoon.
 2194. Can you tell me whereabouts, and what kind of people they were? I have seen her in Crown-street, and they looked respectable people.
 2195. Were they men or women? Young men.
 2196. That was in Crown-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
 2197. What time was that? Between 8 and 10 o'clock in the evening.
 2198. Did you know the young men? No. I took them to be respectable by their appearance.
 2199. By their dress and appearance? Yes.
 2200. Have you ever seen Mary Seymour speaking to people in any other part of the town? Yes; in Pitt-street, near the arcade which runs from Pitt to George Street. I think it is called the Royal Arcade.
 2201. Who was she speaking to there? Men.
 2202. Young men or old men? Young men.
 2203. Did you know them at all? No, I did not know them.
 2204. Were they the same class of young men that you saw her speaking to in Crown-street? Yes.
 2205. What time was this;—was it in the daytime? It was in the evening, from 8 to 10 o'clock. I cannot say exactly.
 2206. Was she alone, or was there anybody else with her? There was no other female with her.
 2207. About how often, can you remember, have you noticed her speaking to young men in the evening? Probably about three or four times.
 2208. Have you seen her more than once at the Arcades? I do not think I have seen her more than twice.
 2209. About the same time at night? Yes.
 2210. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you know that Mary Seymour, before she was engaged to George Dean, was engaged to a young man named Dixon? No; I did not know she was engaged to anyone.
 2211. Whether she had arrived with a young man you do not know? No; I do not know.
 2212. And the number of times you saw her going to Madame Rose's was? Four or five times.
 2213. President.] You say you have seen her talking to young gentlemen in the street;—did you see anything light or flighty in her conduct or demeanour? No; I did not.
 2214. Mr. Pilcher.] The time you saw her there, were there any other people about? Oh, yes; plenty of people about.
 2215. You said you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
 2216. Was she known by any other name? I knew her as much by Mrs. Jones as Mrs. Seymour.
 2217. Did you know a man named Jones was living with her? I did.
 2218. In her house? Yes.
 2219. President.] How long ago is it since you saw Mary Dean the last time going to the house opposite or speaking to young men in the street? It is between three and four years ago since I saw her going to Madame Rose's.

[Witness withdrew.]

Daniel McNab sworn and examined:—

- D. McNab. 2220. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you are in the Water Police? Yes, in the Water Police.
 20 May, 1895. 2221. How many years have you been there? For seven years.
 2222. Did you know George Dean? Yes.
 2223. For how many years? For about six years.
 2224. Did you know him up to the time he got into this trouble? Yes.
 2225. Had you opportunity of forming an opinion of him? Yes, I had.
 2226. In what way? I have seen him by night and in the day-time going home.
 2227. Did you know him personally to speak to? Yes. 2228.

2228. By the way, as Water Policeman, your duties are principally on the water, are they not? Yes, D. McNab. on the water and round Circular Quay.
- 2228½. It is part of your duty to know the characters of people connected with the water? Yes. 20 May, 1895.
2229. What opinion did you form of George Dean? He was civil and obliging. I have never heard a wrong word come out of his mouth; since he has been in the night boat, I have seen him often.
2230. Speaking generally of his character as a respectable man, what would you say? I can only speak of him in the highest terms. I never saw anything wrong with the man.
2231. Was he a sober man? I never saw him the worse for liquor. I never saw him the worse for insobriety. I used to see him on his bicycle going home in the morning.
2232. That was when he was on the Mossman's Bay line? Yes.
2233. Have you ever had an opportunity of forming an opinion of the relations upon which Dean and his wife lived? None whatever. I saw in the papers when his wife was confined, and after that I would ask him, "How is your missis, George?" and he used to speak in the highest terms of his wife then.
2234. President.] What do you mean when you say he spoke in the highest terms? I asked how she was, and he told me she was going to get up.
2235. That is what you mean by the highest terms? Yes; he always spoke feelingly of her.
2236. Sir Julian Salomons.] Who asked you to come here? No one asked me in particular; Mr. Moodie spoke to me.
2237. Who is Mr. Moodie? He lives opposite to me on the Shore.
2238. Was it through him you came here? Yes, he subpoenaed me.
2239. You are in the Water Police? Yes.
2240. Have you ever visited the house of this man Dean? No.
2241. Has he ever visited your house? No, sir.
2242. What are the occasions on which you have seen him? I have seen him on the boats and going to his work on his bicycle.
2243. Where have you been? On duty at the Circular Quay.
2244. He was not a personal friend of yours? No, he was not. I have seen him going to duty in the morning.
2245. He is not a friend or acquaintance of yours? Only that I knew him as master of the boat that I travelled by.
2246. Is there anything more that you knew about him? No.
2247. You say you saw in the paper that his wife was confined. What did he say to you? When I have been going home with him and I said, "How is your missis, George?" he said that she was getting on well. I sometimes took the wheel when he was collecting the fares.
2248. What did he say? That she was all right and would soon get up.
2249. How long was that ago? I cannot exactly say—last year some time.
2250. Is it about a year ago or how long when you had this conversation about his missis? I cannot say.
2251. You paid no attention to it? I did not.
2252. You have been asked to speak of his character. Except seeing him on the steamer he is not a friend of yours? No; I only saw him going to and fro.
2253. Did he ever tell you he had been in trouble? Never.
2254. Did he ever tell you that he had been charged with a criminal offence at Narrandera or Wagga Wagga and got three months in gaol? Never.
2255. Did you never hear that? I never did.
2256. You knew nothing of that? No.
2257. Did you ever know that his mother was married again, and was Mrs. Finch? No.
2258. You knew nothing about his mother? No.
2259. Did you know that he once went under the name of George Finch, and was prosecuted under this name? No.
2260. You know nothing of his life and previous history? No.
2261. How far can you go back to knowing anything about his being on the steamer? He has been on the night boat perhaps two years and six months. I cannot exactly say. Sometimes when there was some one half drunk on board there was some difficulty in getting the fare, and he would blow his whistle, and I would go to see what was the matter. On the boat coming from the North Shore anyone can go on board, and the captain has to collect the fares. In the day-time the collections are taken on this side. When he had any difficulty with his fares he used to blow the whistle, and when he did I used to go to see what was the matter.
2262. When he was thirteen years of age you do not know that he was charged with some criminal offence? I have never heard a word about it.
2263. Not under the name of George Finch? No; not one word.
2264. He never told you a word of that? No.
2265. Are you sure? Yes; if he had, I should say so.
2266. Mr. Pilcher.] Did he tell you that he was 13 years of age, and that this grave offence was riding another person's horse to the races, he and another boy, and that he was fined a nominal sum, and as he had not that nominal sum he had to serve his sentence? No; he said nothing to me about that; he never told me.
2267. Your opinion of him has been formed in connection with him on the boats? Yes; that is all. I know all the masters in the ferry-boats.
2268. Sir Julian Salomons.] As being a member of the Water Police? Yes.

Mrs. Lillie Konnecke sworn and examined:—

- Mrs. L. Konnecke.
20 May, 1895.
2269. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you are married to the son of the old gentleman who was here the other day, who carries on a butchering business in Woollahra? Yes.
2270. Was that his eldest son? No; his second son.
2271. Did you know Mrs. Dean? Yes.
2272. And Dean, too? Yes.
2273. Were you in the habit of visiting Mrs. Dean? Yes.
2274. At her house? Yes.
2275. After she was married to Dean? Yes.
2276. And she visited your house? Yes.
2277. Do you remember on one occasion when you were visiting her house after marriage having any conversation about her husband? Yes.
2278. What did she say to you about him? She told me that she liked him at first; that she was very fond of him; but after her mother used to come and interfere, and she then turned against him. She liked him at first, but she turned against him afterwards when her mother used to carry on, and always interfere.
2279. Did she say anything about how Dean used to treat her? She used to say he was kind and good to her.
2280. How many nights were you there? I was stopping a week there.
2281. Did you notice Dean's habits whilst you were there? Yes.
2282. What were they? He was very good, and always working.
2283. Do you remember what his hours were? Yes; he would come home in the morning at 8 o'clock, and went out at half-past 10 o'clock at night.
2284. In the day-time how did he employ himself? He was always making things for her, and always good to her.
2285. How much rest did he take? Not very much; he used to be working of a morning, and would lie down in the afternoon.
2286. Did you ever see him when he was going at night to his work, saying or doing anything to his wife? Yes; he used to be always kissing her.
2287. Did you ever make any remark to Mrs. Dean about this? Yes.
2288. Did she kiss him? No; he kissed her.
2289. Did you make any remark to her about it? Yes; on one occasion I asked her why did she let him kiss her.
2290. What did she say? She said, "It is only put on."
2291. Was that after she told you the statement she made about her mother? Yes; after that.
2292. President.] When was it that you were staying there for a week? It was about five or six months after she was married.
2293. Mr. Pilcher.] Whereabouts do you live? I live in John-street; I used to live in Paddington-street. I live now in John-street, Woollahra, close to my father.
2294. Sir Julian Salomons.] When were you married? In June.
2295. What year? I have been married about twelve months.
2296. Your husband is the son of Mr. Konnecke? Yes.
2297. Do you know Mr. Konnecke has been doing all he can to help Dean in this trouble? Yes.
2298. How far did you live from your father's house;—200 or 300 yards? About 5 minutes' walk.
2299. Your husband is his son? Yes.
2300. What does he do? He is a butcher.
2301. In the same business as his father? Yes.
2302. Before Mrs. Dean was married, she used to visit at your father's house? Yes.
2303. You were married in June last year, and before that you were living at home? Yes.
2304. How far did your parents live from Mr. Konnecke's? They lived in Sydney.
2305. How long were you visiting your now father-in-law's? For nearly four years.
2306. Have you seen Mrs. Dean there? No. I did not know her till she was married.
2307. Who introduced you to her? Miss Konnecke, my sister-in-law.
2308. Where? At Mrs. Konnecke's place.
2309. You have met her at Mrs. Konnecke's, then? Yes; she was married unknown to anybody then.
2310. When was that you were introduced to Mrs. Dean? I think she was about a month married.
2311. That is the first time you knew her? Yes.
2312. Was she taking tea, or what? She was there on a visit.
2313. And you were on a visit? Yes.
2314. Is that the only time you met her at your father-in-law's? That was the first time.
2315. How many times have you met her since? Dozens of times.
2316. At dinner and at tea? Yes.
2317. With your husband, of course? Yes.
2318. And sometimes Dean? Yes.
2319. Up to how long up to the time of this unfortunate affair had you met her at Mr. Konnecke's? About six months.
2320. Has she been to your house? Yes.
2321. To meals? No, not to meals; only visiting.
2322. When did you go to visit her at her house? When she was about six months married. When she got married she was unbeknownst to me; she was a month married before I knew.
2323. You did not know she was married? No.
2324. You never knew her until she was married? No.
2325. When was it you went to pay this visit to Mrs. Dean? I used to go of a Sunday all day. When I went to stop a week it was after she was married. I went on two or three Sundays.
2326. This time you are speaking of you stayed a week? Yes.
2327. Did you say that when he (Dean) came home in the morning he never went to bed till the afternoon? Yes.
2328. Will you swear it? Yes, I will.

Mrs. L.
Konnecke.
20 May, 1895.

2329. What time in the afternoon? All times; sometimes after his dinner—about 1.
 2330. What other times? About 2.
 2331. What is the latest that he went to bed? I have never noticed the times.
 2332. He did not go to bed when he came home within half an hour? No.
 2333. Not till the afternoon? No.
 2334. Will you swear that you asked this married woman why she allowed her husband to kiss her? Yes.
 2335. You say that he was kind and affectionate; that there was no cause of complaint; and that he was everything that a husband and man ought to be, and yet she told you that it was only "put on"? Yes.
 2336. That was how long ago? Five or six months after she was married.
 2337. You said her mother made her not care for him? Yes; she said it was all through her mother's doing she did not like him.
 2338. Although he was very attentive and very affectionate, and there was no cause of complaint whatever? Yes.
 2339. And you were staying there a week? Yes.
 2340. Did you visit Konnecke's home before being married? I have been going there for four years.
 2341. Dean was living there? Yes.
 2342. How many times did you go—what time in the day? All times—sometimes in the day; sometimes in the afternoon.
 2343. At no regular time? No.
 2344. You were there some hours sometimes? Yes.
 2345. You would not be there at night-time? Sometimes I would.
 2346. How often—once in a week? Yes, sometimes till about 9 or 10 o'clock.
 2347. Your now husband would see you home? Yes.
 2348. He was paying his addresses? Yes.
 2349. You went walking with him in the evening? Yes.
 2350. And then he would take you home? Yes.
 2351. You would walk down town to George-street? Yes, and then go straight home.
 2352. You would meet friends on the way? Very seldom.
 2353. You would not meet anybody sometimes? No.
 2354. Mr. Pilcher.] During the time that you visited at your father-in-law's place before Dean's marriage you said that was four years? Yes.
 2355. Did you come across Dean in Konnecke's house? Yes.
 2356. When he was living there? Yes.
 2357. Can you form any opinion upon which Dean and Konnecke's family lived? Yes.
 2358. How did they live? A happy life.
 2359. Was Dean a favourite with the family? Yes; he was on the best of terms. They seemed to be very fond of him.
 2360. Sir Julian Salomons.] He was like one of the family? Yes.
 2361. President.] Do you say that Mrs. Dean said to you that they got on all right until the mother-in-law interfered? Yes.
 2362. And it was through the mother she did not like him? Yes; she told me she did not like him;—she said she hated him.
 2363. She did not know you as well as any of the Konnecke's? She did not know me very well.
 2364. Did you know her very well? I saw her three or four times.
 2365. And she told you she hated Dean? Yes; she told me that when I was staying with her.
 2366. What did you mean by saying that when he went out he used to kiss her, and that she said it was only "put on";—do you mean to convey that she just suffered it? Yes.
 2367. What do you mean by saying that she got married unbeknownst to people? I mean the people in the street and about the place.
 2368. The Konnecke's know he was going to get married? No; they did not know.
 2369. Did they not know he was keeping company with her? Yes; but they did not know the day.
 2370. How can you say he got married unbeknownst to them? He was married a month before he told them.
 2371. Where was Mrs. Dean? Stopping at home with her mother.
 2372. She was married a month and stayed at home before anyone knew it? Yes.
 2373. What name did she go by? I thought it was Seymour.
 2374. During that month did she go to Konnecke's? Yes; it was then I saw her.
 2375. What did they call her? May; they introduced her to me as Miss Seymour.
 2376. It was after she got married she was introduced to you as Miss Seymour? Yes.
 2377. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you not notice she had a wedding ring on? No; she had gloves on; she stayed a few minutes only.
 2378. Why do you swear she had gloves on? She just came in and stopped a few minutes.
 2379. How long is that ago? She was married a month.
 2380. What time of the day? It was in the afternoon.
 2381. How many times did you see her? Only once.
 2382. What kind of gloves were they? They were grey gloves.
 2383. Kid? Yes; I think they were grey kid.
 2384. Therefore, you could not see if she had a ring on? No.
 2385. And you cannot tell me if she had a wedding-ring or not? No; I could not say whether she had a wedding-ring or not.
 2386. How long was she in the place? She was not long; she wanted to take one of my sisters-in-law with her to stay at Mossman's Bay.
 2387. Did she come again? She came again after that.
 2388. When was that? After I found out she was married.
 2389. When she was living at Mossman's Bay she was married? Yes.
 2390. What is the reason you remember she had these gloves on? I was just introduced, and then walked away. I was not near her. I did not think she was married.

- Mrs. L. Konnecke.
20 May, 1895.
2391. How is it that you remember she had gloves on? I noticed that.
2392. What made you notice that? I think you can notice how anyone is dressed.
2393. You noticed that? Yes.
2394. And remembered it? Yes.
2395. How long ago? I cannot tell you how long ago.
2396. About twelve months ago? More than twelve months ago.
2397. Did not you ever ask Dean why he did not tell you that he was married to this woman? No.
2398. Or ask her? No.
2399. Did you never ask Mrs. Dean? No; she never told me.
2400. Did you ever ask her? No.
2401. And never asked Dean? No.
2402. Never asked anybody? No.
2403. Not even your husband? No.
2404. President.] How was she dressed? She had a navy-blue dress on.
2405. What kind of a dress? I think serge.
2406. What make of dress? There was some velvet on it.
2407. What sort of a bonnet? It was a hat, navy-blue, with a large grey feather in it.
2408. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have no doubt about the gloves? No.
2409. They were grey kid? Yes.
2410. President.] Which of the Miss Konneckes seemed to be her friend most, or Dean's friend most? The eldest.
2411. Her name was? Miss Ellen Konnecke.
2412. How long would it take you to bring Ellen Konnecke here;—where does she live? At Moncur and Queen Streets, Woollabra.
2413. Is she married? No; she is living with her mother.
2414. Mr. Pilcher.] You say that was the first time you met her (Mrs. Dean) when you were introduced to her? Yes.
2415. Is it a common thing to notice one another's dress? I suppose so.
2416. How long after did she say she was going to fetch Miss Konnecke to her place? A couple of months after that.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Annie Sexton sworn and examined:—

- Mrs. A. Sexton.
20 May, 1895.
2417. Mr. Pilcher.] You are a married woman? Yes.
2418. Do you know Mrs. Lee? Yes.
2419. Did you know her when she was living at North Shore? Yes; I knew her when she was living at Brunswick Cottage, McMahon's Point, North Shore.
2420. Where does she live now? I do not know.
2421. For how many years have you known Mrs. Lee? I have known her about seven years.
2422. When you first knew her what name did she go by? She went by the name of Elizabeth Hardy.
2423. Was she a married woman? Yes; separated from her husband.
2424. Where was her husband? I think in Newcastle.
2425. In the Newcastle district? Yes.
2426. I believe you were associated with her in business in different hotels? Yes.
2427. And then you lost sight of her for some years? Yes.
2428. For how many years? For about two years.
2429. You were married about four years ago? Yes.
2430. Do you remember some time after that that Mrs. Lee removed to Bourke-street? Yes.
2431. You remember her going to live at Bourke-street? Yes.
2432. Did she ask you to rent any portion of the house? Yes; a furnished bedroom.
2433. Did you take the room in Mrs. Lee's house? Yes.
2434. How long did you live there? Since June up to September.
2435. What year;—how many years ago? Last year.
2436. Can you say from your own observation what the character of the house was? Yes.
2437. What was it? A brothel.
2438. And Mrs. Lee kept it? Yes.
2439. When were you at "Brunswick Cottage"? I moved from Bourke-street to "Brunswick Cottage" after September last year.
2440. Was your husband living with you? Yes.
2441. Did your husband go to Mrs. Lee's? Yes.
2442. What was the character of "Brunswick Cottage" at North Shore? The same as Bourke-street, Surry Hills.
2443. While you were at Bourke-street, living with Mrs. Lee, did you ever see Mrs. Seymour or Mrs. Dean? Yes.
2444. At what house? At Mrs. Lee's house.
2445. Whose visitors were they? Mrs. Lee's.
2446. That is Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean? Yes.
2447. More than once? Mrs. Dean only once; Mrs. Seymour more than once.
2448. That is between June and September of last year? Yes.
2449. Whilst you were living with Mrs. Lee at "Brunswick Cottage," did you ever see Mrs. Seymour or Mrs. Dean? Yes, both.
2450. Were they visiting the same way as at Bourke-street? Yes.
2451. How often did you see Mrs. Seymour at "Brunswick Cottage"? About four times before Christmas last year.
2452. And Mrs. Dean? Twice.
2453. Did you see them after Christmas? Yes; I saw them after Christmas.
2454. For how long? They did not come after Christmas. May Dean did not come till after the child was born.

Mrs.
A. Sexton.
20 May, 1895.

2455. Did you live with Mrs. Lee up to the time the child was born? Yes.
2456. Did you see Mrs. Dean in the house after the child was born? Yes.
2457. How many times? Three times.
2458. She brought the child to Mrs. Lee's? Yes.
2459. Did Mrs. Seymour come after Christmas? Yes; they came together.
2460. Was that the only occasion? Mrs. Seymour came before Mrs. Dean—after Dean told her to leave.
2461. Who did she stay with? She stayed with Mrs. Johnson, in Surry Hills.
2462. Did she go to Mrs. Lee's to live? Yes; she was a fortnight there on a visit.
2463. After she went to Mrs. Johnson's? Yes.
2464. Sir Julian Salomons.] Who told you she went to Mrs. Johnson's? Mrs. Seymour told me.
2465. Mr. Pilcher.] You understood from Mrs. Seymour that after Dean told her to clear out she went to Mrs. Johnson's, and after that stayed with Mrs. Lee for a fortnight? Yes.
2466. Can you call to mind was it before or after the baby was born that Dean turned her out? It was after the birth of the baby. He told his wife to tell the mother she must leave.
2467. About how long was she at Mrs. Johnson's? About two months or six weeks.
2468. Then she came to Mrs. Lee's for a fortnight? Yes; as a visitor.
2469. How many times did you understand from Mrs. Seymour that Dean had been instrumental in her leaving the house—more than once; how often? Twice.
- 2470-1. Which of the occasions did you refer to at Mrs. Johnson's? The last time.
2472. That was after the baby was born? Yes.
2473. Do you remember any occasion when Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Seymour, and yourself were having some porter;—were you having some? Yes; we were having some beer.
2474. What time of the day was this? At 9 o'clock in the evening.
2475. Where was this? In Mrs. Lee's bedroom at "Brunswick Cottage."
2476. About how long ago? During Mrs. Seymour's visit for a fortnight.
2477. After she came from Mrs. Johnson's? Yes.
2478. Did Mrs. Lee or Mrs. Seymour propose any toast? Yes; both of them.
2479. Did Mrs. Seymour propose a toast? Yes.
2480. Did Mrs. Lee propose a toast? Yes; she heard that her husband was going up the country, and she proposed "that her husband should never come back—that he should perish in the bush."
2481. Sir Julian Salomons.] Whose bedroom was this in? Mrs. Lee's bedroom.
2482. Mr. Pilcher.] After that did Mrs. Seymour propose a toast? Yes; her toast was that something might happen to George Dean, so that she might have back her poor girl.
2483. Did you make any comment on these toasts? Yes; I said to Mrs. Lee, "Don't say this," and to Mrs. Seymour, "Don't say that. He is your daughter's husband, and what would herself and the child do if anything happened him."
2484. What did she say to that? "We would manage without him."
2485. Did you know Minnie Phillips? Yes.
2486. What was she? A prostitute.
2487. Did you see her at Mrs. Lee's house? Yes.
2488. At both houses? Yes.
2489. How did she come there? First as a visitor, and afterwards with men.
2490. Was that to both houses? Yes.
2491. Can you say whether Minnie Phillips was known to Mrs. Seymour—personally known? Yes.
2492. Have you heard that from Mrs. Seymour? Yes; she said Minnie Phillips had boarded in her house.
2493. Sir Julian Salomons.] What house? The shop in Riley-street.
2494. Mr. Pilcher.] You remember the occasion of Mrs. Seymour telling you that she left Dean's house;—did Mrs. Seymour tell you anything about Dean's house? Yes; after she left Mrs. Lee's house she said she waited about Dean's house till Dean's wife came to gather chips. The wife told Dean that it was time to start for work, and Mrs. Seymour went inside.
2495. When was that? During the visit to Mrs. Lee.
2496. During that fortnight? Yes.
2497. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where were you living at the time this charge of poisoning was made? At 28, Wilson-street, Redfern.
2498. Had you been living over at North Shore at any time? Yes; at McMahon's Point.
2499. When did you go to live there? Last year.
2500. When did you leave? In February this year.
2501. Were you present when Mrs. Lee was examined before the Defence Committee? No.
2502. When did you last see Mrs. Lee? Last Friday.
2503. Did she tell you that she was subpoenaed? No, I saw it in the paper.
2504. Where did you see her? She called where I am staying.
2505. Where? In 38, Abercrombie-street, Redfern, about a week ago last Friday. I left 28, Wilson-street this day week.
2506. And now you have gone to Abercrombie-street? Yes.
2507. How long were you at Mrs. Lee's? From June, 1893, to February, 1894.
2508. How long did you live at North Shore? Between four and five months.
2509. How long at Bourke-street? About three months.
2510. When did you live at Mrs. Lee's in Bourke-street? June last year.
2511. Have you seen Mrs. Dean going there with her mother? Yes, once.
2512. How many minutes did they stay? About an hour.
2513. She came in the daytime? Yes.
2514. Before the child was born? Yes.
2515. How many times have you seen Mrs. Dean there? She came there before the baby was born.
2516. How long—a month? She was there twice before the child was born.
2517. Within about a month? Yes.
2518. How long did she stay? She stayed to dinner.
2519. On both occasions? Yes.

- Mrs.
A. Sexton.
20 May, 1895.
2520. And then she went away? Yes, with her mother.
 2521. After the child was born she was there also? Yes.
 2522. How many times? Two or three times.
 2523. In the daytime? Yes.
 2524. How long did she stop? A couple of hours each time.
 2525. Do you know Mrs. Seymour is about 62 years of age;—will you not admit that Mrs. Seymour was a servant of Mrs. Lee's, doing the work? No, not to my knowledge.
 2526. Is not this brothel a house where you were kept by one gentleman and Mrs. Lee by another? No, I lived with my husband.
 2527. You will swear you have not gone there with men when your husband was out? Certainly I will.
 2528. How did you know these prostitutes? Through living in Mrs. Lee's house.
 2529. Why did you stop there? Because I had no money to leave it. My husband was out of work, and I was hard up.
 2530. What is your husband? A barman.
 2531. Cannot he obtain employment? No.
 2532. You stayed because you had no means? Yes.
 2533. Mrs. Lee kept that brothel? Yes.
 2534. Why did you visit this woman who kept this brothel at North Shore? I did not visit her; I lived with her.
 2535. Did you live with Mrs. Lee in Bourke-street in a brothel? Yes.
 2536. How do you account for your going to North Shore and living again with Mrs. Lee? I am not going to account for it. I have told you I had no money.
 2537. Did you remove with her from Bourke-street? Yes.
 2538. Was your husband living with you in that brothel? Yes.
 2539. He saw it was a brothel? No, he did not; he thought a gentleman was keeping Mrs. Lee.
 2540. He slept there at night? Yes.
 2541. Why did you not tell him it was a brothel? I do not know.
 2542. When you went to live in the brothel at North Shore did your husband live with you? Yes.
 2543. Did he know that it was a brothel? No.
 2544. Why did you not tell him that it was a brothel? If I had told him he would most probably have gone out of the house, and he had no place for me to go to.
 2545. Would not that apply to Bourke-street? Yes; and that was why I did not tell him.
 2546. He had no means? No.
 2547. What did Mrs. Lee allow you in the house for? Mrs. Lee asked me to stay in her house and rent a room, and she said she would try and let the other rooms to respectable people, and then the police could not have her up for keeping a brothel.
 2548. Did you pay her rent? As much as I could.
 2549. Did you not say you had nothing? My husband had work, and I gave her as much as I could spare.
 2550. President.] How much did you pay her? £3 10s.
 2551. How long were you there? Six or seven months.
 2552. Sir Julian Salomons.] She told you the police could not come on her for keeping a brothel? Yes.
 2553. Will you not admit before you go that instead of this house being a brothel, in fact Mrs. Lee was kept by a gentleman in Sydney, and you were kept by another? Most certainly not.
 2554. You know a gentleman was keeping Mrs. Lee? No man was keeping her; she made a living on prostitution.
 2555. How do you know it? I have seen them there.
 2556. And you stayed all that time? Yes; and I have given my reasons.
 2557. Did you not prosecute your husband as a vagrant? No; the police did.
 2558. How long did he get? Three months.
 2559. Did you appear as a witness? No; I did not know anything about it till Mrs. Lee came and told me last Friday.
 2560. After he was convicted? Yes.
 2561. At that time your husband was living where? He had his meals where I was staying and was sleeping in my brother's shop.
 2562. What is your brother's shop? A picture-framers.
 2563. Where are you living? At 38, Abercrombie-street.
 2564. Why did not your husband live with you? I am living with my sisters, and have a furnished room.
 2565. Your husband is not at liberty yet? No.
 2566. How long did he get? Three months.
 2567. Do you swear that you were living the life of a virtuous woman in that house? Yes.
 2568. Did not your husband try to blackmail a gentleman in Sydney on account of your being at that house? Not to my knowledge.
 2569. You say Mrs. Lee kept a brothel, and Mrs. Seymour was there, and you gave us an account of what took place in the bedroom;—where was this? Downstairs in Mrs. Lee's bedroom.
 2570. In the daytime? No; in the night.
 2571. About what time? Nine o'clock.
 2572. When? When Mrs. Seymour was there on a visit—in February this year. About 9 o'clock Mrs. Lee proposed a toast that "her husband might perish in the bush," and Mrs. Seymour proposed that something might happen to Dean, that she might get her little girl back.
 2573. Was there anyone present but you three? No.
 2574. And you know that Mrs. Lee was subpoenaed? Yes; I saw it in the paper.
 2575. When were you subpoenaed? On Saturday morning.
 2576. Who did the housework at Mrs. Lee's? Mrs. Lee did her own housework; Mrs. Seymour used to help.
 2577. President.] Was Mrs. Seymour never a servant? No, not to my knowledge; she came only on a visit.
 2578. Sir Julian Salomons.] How did you come to leave Mrs. Lee? My husband got a week's work at Shea's Creek, and was paid on the Saturday.

Mrs.
A. Sexton.
20 May, 1895.

2579. And on that you left this place? Yes.
2580. When did he get this work at Shea's Creek? While Mrs. Seymour was visiting Mrs. Lee.
2581. President.] You say you rented a room from Mrs. Lee;—what were you to pay her for this room? Six shillings a week.
2582. How much did you pay her—that is, after your husband got work? I gave her 2s.
2583. You owed her a good deal then? Yes; she said she did not want me to leave.
2584. You gave the place an air of respectability? [No answer.]
2585. Sir Julian Salomons.] How did you know the other woman was a prostitute? Through Mrs. Lee.
2586. Where was that house in Bourke-street? To the best of my knowledge, it was 513, Bourke-street.
2587. Whereabouts? At the back of Wilson's steam laundry.
2588. You said you were there for some months? Yes.
2589. How long is it since your husband was employed as a barman? He was employed at Stephen Punch's "Swan with two Necks," four years ago.
2590. Has he been employed since? Yes; at "Milthorpe's Hotel," in Wynyard-square.
2591. When? About three years ago.
2592. How long was he there? He was there about a couple of months.
2593. Was he anywhere else? Yes; at "Roberts' Hotel," in Market-street.
2594. When was he there? He was there before he went to Milthorpe's.
2595. Where was he last? He was employed as a billiard-marker at "M'Quillan's Hotel," in Summer Hill.
2596. How long ago? About a year ago.
2597. How is it he leaves these places? I do not know.
2598. Since he has lost these situations he has not been able to contribute to your support? No.
2599. President.] You admit you heard of this charge against Dean? Yes, I heard of it.
2600. You know he was being brought up at the Police Court? Yes.
2601. And you knew of his trial at the Criminal Court? Yes; I read it in some of the papers.
2602. Did you know he was committed for trial? Yes.
2603. Have you told anybody what you have told us to-day? No; not till last Saturday.
2604. Sir Julian Salomons.] To whom did you make it known? To one of Crick and Meagher's clerks.
2605. At what time? Eleven o'clock.
2606. Did he come to you or did you go to him? He came to me.
2607. Where? At 38, Abercrombie-street.
2608. Had you written any letter before this? No; I mentioned one thing to the people I was in the house with. I said that if Mrs. Seymour had told the truth she would not have said that she had not been to Dean's house since he turned her out.
2609. You said that after the conviction? Yes.
2610. When was it you said that Mrs. Seymour told an untruth? About three weeks ago.
2611. The first time you said anything was to the clerk at Crick and Meagher's? Yes.
2612. How far were you living from the Court? I was living at Wilson-street, Redfern.
2613. During the hearing of the case at the Police Court? Yes.
2614. You say you saw Mrs. Lee last Friday;—how long before that is it since you saw her? Since I left her house at North Shore I have not seen her. She came to Abercrombie-street last Friday to ask about my husband being locked up.
2615. You have not seen her since? No.
2616. President.] How is it that knowing what you tell us to-day you did not go to the Court and tell there what you have told us here? I did not think my evidence was of any importance; I never gave it a thought.
2617. President (for Mr. Pilcher.) Was it last Friday your husband was taken up? Yes; last Friday.
2618. Did Mrs. Lee, the day she went to see you, say anything with reference to your giving evidence at this inquiry? Yes; she said if I came down and gave evidence at this inquiry she would go into my sisters' shops and try and get them dismissed, and bring witnesses to show that I was no good. That money would do a lot. It had already cost her £5 to bribe somebody.
2619. What are your sisters? They are tailoresses.
2620. They work in a shop? Yes.
2621. Mr. Pilcher.] You said you noticed that Mrs. Seymour said that she had not been to Dean's house after he turned her out;—when did you notice that? It was while Mrs. Seymour was on a visit to Mrs. Lee.
2622. Was it before or after the trial? I read in the paper where she stated that she had never been to Dean's house.
2623. Was it the trial before Judge Windeyer? Yes.
2624. Was that the first time you noticed she made that remark? Yes; that was the first time I noticed it.
2625. The first time you noticed that Mrs. Seymour had said she had not been to Dean's place after Dean turned her out? Yes.
2626. Was it after the trial was over or during the trial? During the trial.
2627. During the trial before Judge Windeyer? Yes.
2628. Was anybody present when Mrs. Lee made this statement you have just told us;—about your giving evidence at this inquiry? Yes; my sister Bridget.
2629. That is when Mrs. Lee said she would go to your sisters' shops? Yes.
2630. Where is Bridget? At 38, Abercrombie-street.

[Witness withdraw.]

Ellen Konnecke sworn and examined:—

Ellen Konnecke.
20 May, 1895.

2631. President.] What is your name? Ellen Konnecke.
 2632. You know George Dean very well? Yes.
 2633. Did you know Mrs. Dean? Yes.
 2634. Did you know George Dean was keeping company with Mary Seymour? Yes.
 2635. Did you know he was going to marry her? No.
 2636. When did you first know? About a fortnight after they were married.
 2637. Do you remember your sister-in-law, Lillie Konnecke, coming and being introduced for the first time to Mary Seymour? No; I do not.
 2638. You do not remember that? No.
 2639. When George Dean was keeping company with Miss Seymour did he make any secret of it? No.
 2640. It was understood that he was going to marry her, but you did not know when? No; we did not know when.
 2641. Did you know actually when he did marry? No.
 2642. Was he living at your place? Yes.
 2643. Did he stay on living at your place after he was married? Yes.
 2644. For a fortnight? I do not know.
 2645. For how long then? I cannot say.
 2646. Do you know now the day they were married? No; I do not know the day.
 2647. They were married on the 9th of March last year;—can you tell me when you first knew when they were married? It was about a fortnight after.
 2648. Who told you? My sister was the first to tell me.
 2649. After you heard that they were married was Dean still living at your place? Yes; for a little while.
 2650. For how long do you think? I cannot say how long.
 2651. Did he ever bring Mrs. Dean to your place after they were married? Yes; he did.
 2652. After you had found out they were married? Yes.
 2653. Did you ever ask why they kept the marriage a secret? No.
 2654. Did it not strike you as strange, knowing that Dean had been living at your house as one of the family? No.
 2655. You did not ask anything about it? No.
 2656. Do you know of any reason why they should keep it a secret? No.
 2657. When she came to the house, before you discovered they were married, what did he call her? May.
 2658. Did you call her May? Yes.
 2659. Do you remember her being introduced to your brother's wife, Lillie? She was introduced to her, but I was not there at the time.
 2660. Who introduced her? I cannot tell you who introduced her.
 2661. Did your sister introduce her? I cannot say.
 2662. Mr. Pilcher.] Whilst Dean was living with your family, what was his character—you saw a good deal of him? He seemed a very kind, good, and trustworthy fellow.
 2663. Speaking generally, what would you say? I would say he was a very good fellow.
 2664. In every sense you mean? Yes.
 2665. Your brothers and sisters and parents had every confidence in him? Yes.
 2666. Sir Julian Salomons.] You knew nothing against him? No.
 2667. How long was he living in your house? Between three and four years.
 2668. He was previously living with his step-father? Yes.
 2669. A person named Finch? Yes.
 2670. Where was he living before he came to live with you—with Mr. Finch or not? I think he was living at Miller's Point.
 2671. Do you remember the time;—where was Mr. Finch living? Opposite to my father's shop.
 2672. When Dean came to live with you was his step-father living there? I cannot tell.
 2673. Do you know where his mother lived? In Narrandera.
 2674. Do you know what her name was? No.
 2675. You do not know his step-father? No.
 2676. Did you know that he had a brother on board the "Vernon"? I have heard him speak of having a brother on board the "Vernon."
 2677. You know he was on the "Vernon"? Yes.
 2678. Was it an elder or younger brother? I do not know.
 2679. Did you not know that Finch who was living opposite to you was the second husband of his (Dean's) mother? No, I did not.
 2680. You supplied meat to Finch? Yes.
 2681. And you did not know that he was the husband of Dean's mother? No.
 2682. Did you only learn that lately, since he was married? Oh, long before he got married.
 2683. Dean, when he first came to you, was he George Dean or George Finch? George Dean.
 2684. You knew he once bore the name of George Finch; how long before was he George Finch? I have no idea.
 2685. Did you know of a charge against him at Wagga or Narrandera whilst he was living with you? No.
 2686. Did you know at the time he was living with you that he, under the name of George Finch, had a charge made against him, and was convicted on that charge? No.
 2687. How long have you heard that or known it;—do you know it now? No; I do not know it, and have never heard it till I am asked now.
 2688. He never told you, or you have never heard it from your father or anybody else? No.
 2689. It comes upon you as a surprise? Yes.
 2690. Did you know Finch was married to Dean's mother? Yes; that he was living with her.
 2691. I asked you that before and you said "no";—you knew then that Finch was married to Dean's mother, and that he was not living with his wife, that Mrs. Dean was at Narrandera? Yes.
 2692. Had you been any message to that house where Finch was living? No.
 2693. You only knew your father supplied him with meat—that was all? Yes. 2694.

2694. There is no question that until he was married about a fortnight you did not know he was married? No.
2695. You did not know it? No.
2696. You were living at home? Yes.
2697. And on good terms with him? Yes.
2698. How did you come to find out he was married? My sister was the first to tell me.
2699. Who told her? I think Mrs. Dean.
2700. And your sister told you? Yes.
2701. They were married in a proper way, at St. David's? Yes.
2702. By the Rev. Mr. Hargrave, a Church of England clergyman? Yes.
2703. Did Dean ever give you any explanation of why he did not tell you he was married to this woman? No.
2704. Was he ever surly? Sometimes.
2705. Is it not a fact that he did not speak for days or weeks? It was not many days.
2706. It was for a day or two? Yes, for days.
2707. Without any reason? He would have a reason.
2708. What reason? I do not know of any reason.
2709. You admit that sometimes he was very surly? Yes.
2710. And that until your sister told you you did not know he was married? No.
2711. Have you not said that sometimes he would not speak for weeks? I do not think so—no, not for weeks.
2712. Have you not said that he did not speak for days? Yes.
2713. What is the longest time? Two or three days.
2714. The reason you do not know? No.
2715. What time did he usually leave your house to go away on his bicycle? At different times.
2716. What time did he have his evening meal? Sometimes at 9'30, sometimes 11.
2717. What time did you have your evening meal? Six o'clock.
2718. You knew he was paying his addresses to Miss Seymour with the intention of making her his wife? Yes.
2719. Did you know he was going to marry her? No; I did not know.
2720. Did you know that he was paying her addresses such as if he were going to marry her? Yes.
2721. Did you know that he was paying his addresses in the sense that he was going to marry her? Yes, I knew he was paying his addresses to her.
2722. In the sense of a person he was going to marry? Yes.
2723. How long did you know that? About four or five months before.
2724. Was he engaged to a Miss Cassin before that? Oh, a long time before that.
2725. How long before he married Miss Seymour? Perhaps three years, I think.
2726. How long was he keeping company with Miss Cassin? For about three years.
2727. You knew when he was married;—how many months before that did he cease to keep company with Miss Cassin? I cannot tell you.
2728. Was it six months, or even a year;—how many months was that before he ceased to associate with Miss Cassin? It was years.
2729. A year, or two years, or what? I have no idea.
2730. Has Miss Cassin been to your house? Yes.
2731. You knew he was paying his addresses to her? Yes.
2732. In the same way as to Miss Seymour? Yes.
2733. How long had he been bringing Miss Cassin to your house? It extended over two or three years.
2734. And they walked out in the evening in the ordinary way? Yes.
2735. Mr. Pilcher.] You said that Dean was quiet for two or three days;—is that what you mean by surly? Yes.

[Witness withdrew.]

David Duncan sworn and examined:—

2736. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you a cab proprietor? Yes; for the last twenty-five years.
2737. Do you know Madame Rose's house at the corner of Collins and Riley Streets? Yes, sir.
2738. Have you ever driven anybody to that house? Yes.
2739. At what time in the day? Both in the day and at night.
2740. Up to how late at night? Up to 12 o'clock.
2741. Have you driven gentlemen there? Yes.
2742. Did you know Mrs. Seymour and Mary Seymour? I knew Mrs. Seymour.
2743. When you drove to the vicinity of Madame Rose's house, where did you stop with your cab? In Collins-street, near the public school, opposite Madame Rose's house.
2744. Is that where you always stop? Yes.
2745. Do you know the entrance-door to Madame Rose's house from Collins-street? Yes.
2746. When you stopped, how were you and your cab in reference to that door? Right opposite—on the other side of the street.
2747. On any of the occasions when you drove people to this place have you seen Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
2748. Where did you see her? I have seen her open Madame Rose's door.
2749. For whom? For the gentleman I drove there.
2750. Have you on these occasions entered Madame Rose's house yourself? Yes, I have.
2751. What for? I have been called over to have a drink by Mrs. Seymour.
2752. Have you on these occasions entered the house? Yes.
2753. And where did you go? Into the parlour off the hall on the ground floor.
2754. How often have you seen Mrs. Seymour there in the way you describe? It might be twenty times. I know it is a good many times.
2755. Who gave you the drink when you got inside? Mrs. Seymour.
2756. What was the drink? Whiskey.

D. Duncan.
20 May, 1895.

2757.

- D. Duncan. 2757. On any of these occasions have you seen any young girl—I mean any particular young girl? Well, I have seen several.
- 29 May, 1885. 2758. Have you ever been shown this photograph before. [Photograph of Mrs. Dean produced, and marked Exhibit B.] Yes.
2759. Did you ever see that young girl before? The photograph resembles a girl I have seen there.
2760. Take the photograph in your hand;—have you seen that before? Yes; and I have seen a girl like this photograph.
2761. What do you mean? I mean to say that this photograph resembles in features a girl I have seen.
2762. Seen where? The photograph resembles a girl I have seen at Madame Rose's.
2763. President.] Do you say you have seen the original of that photograph? Well, I have seen a young lady a good deal like it.
2764. Can you say you have seen the original of that photograph? I cannot swear I have seen it, but I have seen someone like it.
2765. Have you ever seen a person whose photo. that is? I do not think I have; I'm not sure. I would not swear that I know the lady. All I can say is I have seen a lady like that photograph.
2766. Will you tell me exactly what you mean. What I want to know is whether that is a photograph of a young woman you have seen at Madame Rose's? I cannot be certain. I have seen a girl like that photograph at Madame Rose's, but I will not swear it is the photograph of the girl I have seen.
2767. Do you know Mrs. Seymour? I cannot say whether I do personally.
2768. Have you ever seen a woman pointed out as Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
2769. Do you know Mary Seymour who was living with her mother? No.
2770. What have you to say about this photograph? All I can say is that I have seen a young lady whom it resembles.
2771. Did you go to the Sydney Hospital the other day? I did.
2772. Were you shown into a certain ward? I was.
2773. How many patients were in that ward—women patients of course? About twenty, I suppose.
2774. Who went with you to the hospital? A member of the detective force.
2775. Did you pick out anybody in the ward? No, I could not.
2776. Was anybody pointed out to you? No.
2777. Did you see any particular person there? I did.
2778. Did it resemble the person in this photograph? There was some slight resemblance. I saw a face that seemed to strike me as being familiar, but still it was different to the photograph.
2779. In what respect did it seem to be different? The face I saw which struck me as being familiar was very much thinner.
2780. Where did you see this woman? Lying in bed.
2781. How were the bed-clothes? Drawn right up to her neck. As I said before, she struck me as being familiar, but still the face was thin and not so stout as the one in the photograph.
2782. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you know the person referred to? I do not.
2783. Who was the detective with you? I do not know.
2784. Was it Detective Cheney? I think that's the name.
2785. When speaking about seeing this person with the bed-clothes up to her neck and thin in the face, what makes you remember the circumstance? Simply because the features seemed to me to be so familiar, but I would not swear that I had seen this woman before.
2786. I presume you were taken into the right ward on this occasion? I do not know.
2787. Is Detective Cheney here? Yes.
- [Detective Cheney was called into the room and conversed with Mr. Pilcher privately.]
2788. Mr. Pilcher, to witness.] I am told you were taken into the right ward, and now you say you noticed a woman lying in bed with the bed-clothes up to her chin;—what have you to say about the features of that woman? I do not say that I identify them with this photograph. They seem familiar to me, that is all. The face is not as stout now as it is in this photograph. [Photograph handed in, and marked Exhibit B.]
2789. How often did you see the young girl like this photograph at Madame Rose's house? On several occasions.
2790. What did she appear to be doing there? She was about the place, but I do not know what she was doing.
2791. Did she appear to be doing things inside the house? Yes; she was inside the house when I saw her.
2792. President.] Was she wearing a hat or bonnet? No; she had no bonnet on.
2793. Was her mother there at the time? Yes.
2794. At what time of the night was this? I have seen her there at 10 o'clock and at 11 o'clock. I cannot tell exactly to a few minutes.
2795. Sir Julian Salomons.] How many years ago is it since you saw this young girl, as you say, at Madame Rose's house? It is nearly two years ago.
2796. And this girl May Seymour of whom you speak, how old do you think she was then? I should think she could not have been more than 15 then, according to her size.
2797. How many times have you seen her at this house? Three or four times.
2798. Before you went to the Sydney Hospital had you seen the photograph produced? No, sir.
2799. Do you candidly admit that you could not identify this woman? She was so thin I could not identify her.
2800. Did you walk round the hospital ward twice? Yes.
2801. And do you say that after walking round you did not see a young woman there like this photograph? No; because when I saw that young girl who is resembled in the photograph, she had fair hair, and I did not see anyone with fair hair or light hair in the hospital ward.
2802. Do you not say candidly that you did not see anyone like that photograph or like the girl Mary Seymour when you went to the hospital? No; I did not.
2803. At that time had you seen this photograph? No.
2804. President.] What did you say about the girl's hair? I said that the young girl with the countenance like the one in the photograph had fair hair.

2805. What coloured hair had the lady in the hospital whose face seemed familiar to you? Rather grey D. Duncan. and darkish.
2806. Do you not say that the girl you saw at Madame Rose's, at the time you saw her, appeared to be 20 May, 1895. about 15 or 16 years of age? Yes; 15 or 16.
2807. Had she long dresses on? Yes; fairly long dresses.
2808. You know girls at the age of 15 or 16 begin to wear woman's clothing, and was this girl wearing an ordinary woman's dress or a girl's dress at this period? She was wearing a girl's dress.
2809. Are you quite sure of that fact? Yes; and that was two years ago—all that.

[Witness withdrew.]

Bridget Stapleton sworn and examined:—

2810. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you a sister of Mrs. Sexton, who gave evidence this morning? Yes.
2811. What is your occupation? I am a tailoress.
2812. Do you remember, one day last week, Mrs. Lee calling at your house to see your sister? Yes, on Bridget Stapleton.
20 May, 1895.
Friday morning.
2813. Where do you live? With my sister, at 38, Abercrombie-street. We have rooms there.
2814. Do you remember what took place when Mrs. Lee came to see your sister? Mrs. Lee and my sister began talking about something I did not understand, and in the course of conversation I heard her say to my sister, "If you go to Crick and Meagher I will go to the shop where your sisters are tailoresses and get them dismissed from their positions." I said, "What for?" and something was said about my married sister's husband getting into trouble under the Vagrancy Act. Mrs. Lee said that the husband could be punished under the Vagrancy Act, and this statement was denied by my sister. Mrs. Lee then said that "The Professor," I will not mention names, "said that money could do a lot and the gentleman was rolling in wealth." That is all that took place, as far as I remember; and I can assure you that it is quite against my will that I am brought into this case at all.
2815. You remember her saying that she would go to your sisters' employer and endeavour to get your sisters dismissed from their employment if she went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office in reference to this case? Yes.
2816. And do you distinctly remember her saying "that money can do a lot"? Yes. She said this man was a moneyed man, rolling in wealth.
2817. Sir Julian Salomons.] Who asked you to come here? My sister.
2818. Your sister, Mrs. Sexton? No, the other one, not Mrs. Sexton.
2819. Did your other sister hear what Mrs. Sexton had given as evidence before this Commission this morning? No; they came to me to give evidence not long ago, and my other sister said, "You heard the words spoken and you'd better go down to the Court."
2820. What is the name of the sister who told you? Miss Stapleton; she came home and told me that one of us would be brought into it, and as I heard the conversation I had better come.
2821. Who was present when you heard this conversation? Only my sister and I.
2822. Is that all the conversation you remember? I heard her say something about money doing a lot, and also something in reference to my sister's husband being brought under the Vagrancy Act.
2823. Didn't you know as a matter of fact that your sister's husband was in gaol at the very time this conversation took place? I did not know anything at all about it, but I will swear that she said to my sister, "If you go to Crick and Meagher's office I will show your sisters up;" my sister said they could not bring her husband up under the Vagrancy Act, and Mrs. Lee said that money could do a lot, and that "the Professor" was rolling in wealth. The word "Professor" was used because she didn't want any names mentioned.
2824. Were there no names mentioned at all? No; not to me nor in my hearing. Mrs. Lee just simply drew back and said, "Money can do a lot."
2825. President.] Who is Mrs. Lee? She worked with my sister in a hotel years ago. She was a respectable woman when she was working with my sister.
2826. Do you know what she has been doing since? I thought that she was being kept by a man.
2827. When did you begin to think that? When I was told of it by my sister, who was living with her.
2828. Living with her where? At Bourke-street, Surry Hills. There was another girl told me that Milly Lee wanted a respectable married couple to take rooms in her house to give the place an air of respectability, and a man who was supposed to be stopping there was keeping Milly Lee.
2829. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you know Mrs. Lee when she lived at North Sydney? Yes.
2830. Did you understand that she was being kept by some gentleman there? Yes.
2831. Were you ever at her house there? Yes; I went there to see my sister when she was living at Mrs. Lee's.
2832. Do you only know of Mrs. Lee at North Sydney from what your sister told you? Yes.
2833. And were you told that she was being kept by some man? Yes.
2834. President.] Did you understand that the place at North Sydney, known as "Brunswick Cottage," was an improper house? No; do you think I should have gone there if I did?
2835. Then you did not know it was an improper house? No; I only went there to see my sister, not to see Mrs. Lee.

[Witness withdrew.]

John Asbury sworn and examined:—

2836. Witness.] Gentlemen, I am very ill; I wish to tell you I am very ill. But in giving my evidence J. Asbury.
20 May, 1895.
I will speak the truth. I am nearly at death's door.
2837. Mr. Pilcher.] Is Mrs. Seymour here? [Mrs. Seymour was brought into the room.]
2838. Asbury, do you know this woman now before the Commissioners? Yes, that's my wife. [*Mrs.
Seymour retired.*]
2839. When did you arrive on this side of the world? In 1850, sir. I came out by the "Maria Scames" on the 19th of August, 1850.

J. Asbury.
20 May, 1895.

2840. To which port did you come? I came to Tasmania—Hobart.
2841. What was that port called then? Hobart Town. It had ceased to be Van Diemen's Land. I am nearly deaf and at death's door, and I wish to tell the truth while I am here.
2842. With whom did you live when you first arrived at Hobart Town? With Judge Horne. I went to him straight from the ship. He was then Puisne Judge, and I lived with him for a time.
2843. After living with Judge Horne did you enter the police force? Yes, sometime after. I left to go as chief messenger with Captain Burgess, the chief police magistrate, and was sworn in as a sergeant and a detective-constable under Captain Burgess.
2844. How long were you in the Police Force at Hobart Town? For six years and two months, as near as possible, as near as I remember.
2845. About this time did you meet the woman you have just identified as your wife? Yes, unfortunately, I did.
2846. When did she arrive in the Colony? She came out to Hobart Town on the "Sir Robert Devon" in 1853. I arrived on the 19th of August, 1850, and I married her on the 2nd of May, 1854.
2847. Where were you married? At St. George's Church, Hobart Town, by the Rev. Dr. Pry. I remember that distinctly, because I had occasion to send for a copy from the register when I was buried in the bush. I got the necessary answer.
2848. At any rate, she came to Hobart Town after you? Yes.
2849. And did you marry her after about two years? Yes; she came out as a pass-holder, that is, she could go about as she liked. She was neither at the Brick-field nor at the Cascade factory; but she had the privilege of marrying a free man or a ticket-of-leave man under certain conditions.
2850. At all events you married her? Yes; unfortunately I did.
2851. And then did you leave the Police Force and take an hotel? Yes; I took "Webb's Hotel," and remained in it about seven months. I then took the "Derwent Hotel," in Elizabeth-street, paying £700 to go into it.
2852. For how long did you remain at the "Derwent Hotel"? Close on two years.
2853. Where did you go next? I took the "Garrick's Head Hotel." I paid £950 to go into that.
2854. How long did you stay at the "Garrick's Head Hotel"? For nearly three years.
2855. Did you next take the "Emu Hotel"? Yes; the "Emu," in Elizabeth-street.
2856. How long did you remain there? Eleven years.
2857. While you kept the "Emu Hotel" what became of your wife? She ran away, and took the cash-box and all the ready money, and when I saw her in this room, this afternoon, it was the first time I had seen her for twenty-one years.
2858. Can you say exactly how long you had been in Hobart Town when you married your wife? It must have been close on three years.
2859. Then did you go into the first hotel and stay at it for seven months? Yes.
2860. Then into the second hotel for two years? Yes.
2861. And then do you say that you married her in the year 1853? Yes, I think that was the year.
2862. President.] Will you just think again, and say what year it was your wife came out to Tasmania? In 1852—that was the year. When I said 1853 I made a mistake.
2863. While you were keeping the "Emu Hotel," and your wife ran away with all the ready cash, did she go away with any other person? Not to my knowledge. She cleared out on a steamer named the "Southern Cross," and went to Melbourne. I can give you the day and date when she went away, for I have good cause to remember.
2864. When did she go? On the 5th July, 1865, she left me.
2865. Mr. Pitcher.] Sometime after she had left you did you go to Victoria? I did.
2866. In what year was that? It was in January, 1869.
2867. At the time you went over to Melbourne did you dispose of your hotel business and transfer all your affairs from Tasmania to Victoria? Yes, I transferred my banking account to Melbourne.
2868. Whilst you were living at the "Emu Hotel" had you any occasion to purchase poison? I had.
2869. What kind of poison? Arsenic.
2870. In what sort of bottle was that arsenic? A small bottle—a most peculiar-shaped phial. You do not see any bottles like that now-a-days.
2871. Can you remember in what year it was that you bought this poison? I cannot.
2872. What did you buy the arsenic for? I bought it for the purpose of poisoning rats. There was a butcher's-shop next door to me, and the place was over-run with rats. I bought half a crown's worth of arsenic.
2873. And did you use it for that poisoning purpose? Most decidedly I did.
2874. Was this peculiarly-shaped bottle full of poison when you bought it? No.
2875. How much was there in it then? It was about three-parts full of white powder.
2876. About how big was that bottle? It was a small, little, squat, thick bottle. I do not see any like them now. It had a poison label across it.
2877. After you had used this bottle where did you put it? I put it on a shelf in the bar behind some Old Tom bottles.
2878. What do you mean by that? I put it on a shelf in the bar behind some bottles of Old Tom Gin.
2879. Did your wife know where that bottle was put? Of course she did; she knew all about it. She helped me to poison the rats.
2880. But did she know that you put that bottle on the shelf? Yes; she was standing there close by me when I did it.
2881. Are you positive that she knew where you put the poison? Me and her put it there together.
2882. Can you say whether, at the time you put the poison on the shelf, there was anybody else present besides yourself and your wife? I can swear there was nobody in the bar but us two. I can also swear that no one but me and her knew about that bottle being there.
2883. Sometime after you placed the bottle of poison on the shelf, did you and your wife quarrel? Yes, once. We had one serious quarrel. We had been in the habit of having squabbles.
2884. Were you living happily with your wife? Yes, we had been for years.
2885. But were you living happily with your wife when you poisoned the rats? Yes, first-rate.
2886. Was it after you had put the bottle on the shelf that you had your first serious quarrel? Yes, the first serious one; we had had one or two tiffs, you know.
- 2887.

2887. When you had finished poisoning the rats, how much arsenic was left in the bottle? I will tell you: When I went over to the shop opposite, I asked the chemist for this poison, and he asked me what I wanted poison for. I said, "Look at them rats; that's what I want the poison for." I then said to him, "Will you tell me how to use it?" and he took one of those little things they smoothed salve with at the time, and on it he put the least tiny bit of this white powder. That he put on a bit of paper. I said, "There ain't much there, that wouldn't kill a mouse." He said, "At all events, there is enough there to kill six people." I then took it over and told the wife, and she and me mixed up the bait.
2888. You mixed up the bait, did you; and what did it do? Well, it just putrefied us out.
2889. It did what? It putrefied us out. It killed these rats, and we had to take up the boards and get the rats from underneath, they stunk so. We had to pick the rats out with the fire-tongs.
2890. Did you carry out the chemist's instructions in giving this poison to the rats? Yes.
2891. Did your wife help you? Yes. We were like a pair of children together. We both helped, and were laughing and joking about it.
2892. Did you tell her whilst this rat-poisoning was going on what the chemist had told you as to how much it would take to kill six people? Yes; I told her what the chemist told me, and I said to her, "We must not give them too much." I said the chemist showed me how much would poison six people, and then we put the poison down in different places.
2893. How much poison was left in the bottle after you had finished dealing with these rats? It was about a quarter full.
2894. After you put the bottle on the shelf had you a quarrel with your wife? Yes; one serious quarrel.
2895. What was the quarrel about? She was jealous of me. She was a very jealous woman. She abused me properly, and I retaliated.
2896. Were you warm-blooded in those days? Yes; I think I was a little.
2897. What happened to you shortly after you had that row? Ah, I remember that well. That's the very thing; what did happen?
2898. Well, what did happen? I was taken ill all of a sudden with pains inside—terrible pains inside—gripping, vomiting, and purging. They all come on all at once. I said, "My God! ain't I bad." And I was bad, too. I went straight to the bed-room, and was purging and vomiting at the same time.
2899. Where was your wife? She was in the bar at the time.
2900. Did not she come to you? The servant came to the bed-room, and I said to her, "Go and fetch Carrie; tell her I want her."
2901. Well, what happened next? She came to the bed-room door, and said, "What's the matter?" I said to her, "I'm in dreadful agony; bring me some brandy—for God's sake bring me some brandy." She said, "Oh, it's nothing," and went back into the bar. I said later on, "Fetch Dr. King, the lodge doctor," and he came.
2902. President.] What had you been eating before you became so bad? [No answer.]
2903. Mr. Pilcher.] Before you were taken with these gripping pains, vomiting and purging, had you had anything to eat or drink? I think I had had something, as near as I can recollect, about twenty minutes or half-an-hour previously. I had just a snack.
2904. President.] At about what time was that? Well, I think it was about 2 o'clock in the day.
2905. What did you have to eat? I cannot recollect, but I think it was part of a leg of boiled pork that I had to eat, with some bread; and I had a glass of ale.
2906. Who prepared the meal for you? The woman servant put it on the table, and me and my wife ate it.
2907. Mr. Pilcher.] Who cooked it? The servant woman, I suppose, I know me and the missis ate it in a little private parlour.
2908. After you had been taken ill, as you describe, did you send for Dr. King? Yes.
2909. And did he attend you? Yes, but he did no good.
2910. Did you send for anybody else? Yes, for Dr. Agnew, who is living in Hobart now, I believe. He had been living there for many years; he was a good man.
2911. Did he attend you? Yes, and he saved my life. He gave me a powder and some other medicine.
2912. Do you say you had a glass of ale with this snack? Yes. I told her, that's my wife, to fetch me one, and she did so.
2913. Did she have any ale? No fear, she never drank. I never saw her take a drop of drink not all the time she was with me. On this occasion she went into the bar, brought back the glass of beer and put it on the table.
2914. Was it bitter ale? It was Wilson's ale from the Cascade Brewery. It was draught ale, something like Allsopp's pale ale, as you get in England.
2915. President.] Was it draught or bottle ale, did you say? It was draught ale.
2916. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you remember when Dr. Agnew came to see you? Yes; I was perfectly sensible.
2917. Do you remember his giving you any particular directions? No, he only told me to take the medicine.
2918. What I want to know is, did he tell you to do something? No, except take the medicine, as I told you.
2919. Did Dr. Agnew give any directions to your wife? Yes.
2920. Were you present at the time? Yes.
2921. Did you hear what he said to her? Yes; I was lying in bed, and I heard every word.
2922. What was it the doctor said to your wife? He said to her, "Where is the vomit and purging from your husband?" There was a chamber standing on the chair at the side of the bed. She said, "It was in the chamber, but I took it and threw it away, washed the chamber out, and placed it back at the side of the bed."
2923. Did the doctor tell her then what she was to do? Yes. He said to her, "Now, Mrs. Asbury, whatever vomit or purging comes from your husband keep it, and let me see it. I will be back again in a few hours."
2924. After that did you vomit or purge? No, I got better when I took the medicine; well, nothing to speak of, you know.
2925. After Dr. Agnew had given these instructions did you vomit or purge any more at all? No, not that night.
2926. Did you next day? A little, but I got better after I had taken the medicine. 2927.

J. Ashbury.
20 May, 1895

- J. Asbury. 2927. Where did you vomit or purge? In the chamber.
 2928. What became of it? She took it away.
 20 May, 1895. 2929. Who took it away? My wife.
 2930. What did she do with it? I do not know.
 2931. After taking it away did she bring the chamber back to you? Yes; cleaned, washed out, and put it on the chair.
 2932. How long did you remain ill on that occasion? About three days. I was young and strong then, and soon got over it.
 2933. Did you ever think about or notice the bottle on the shelf or look for it after this occurrence? No, I never thought about such a thing.
 2934. Not at any time? No; I never dreamed of it. Not for a long, long time.
 2935. But when did you dream about it? I'll tell you all about it now: I was one day putting up some brandy, a new lot just come in, in place of the Old Tom bottles on the shelves in the bar. As I was putting this brandy up there, there, sure enough, I saw the poison. I forgot all about that it was there until I saw it. I took it down, and I said to myself, "My God! here's that poison. When I put it up that cork wasn't like that; it's not in the same way as I put it in." I pressed the cork down properly, and when I saw it it was lifted up a bit on the one corner. I then went to my wife, taking the bottle with me, and said, "Carrie, have you taken any of this stuff out of this bottle?" "Me," she said, "No; what do you mean?" I said, "This poison, what we poisoned the rats with." She says to me, "No." I said to her, "It looks to me as if somebody has been at it. I didn't put the cork in like that." I thought no more about it, and I put the bottle with the poison in the cash-box, and locked it up. I thought no more about it then, like a young and foolish fellow, as I was.
 2936. Did you have another attack of a similar nature after that? I did.
 2937. About how long after? I cannot remember; some months later on. I cannot be particular, as my memory is beginning to go.
 2938. Did this second attack come on after you had a meal? Yes, it was after supper-time. It was one night after I had crawfish and salad for supper. This is a dish of which I was very fond.
 2939. After having had crawfish and salad, what happened to you? It was night; after we had shut up the house, we, by our two selves, had supper, and then I was seized with these pains.
 2940. Did you have any beer on that occasion? Yes.
 2941. Did she have any beer? No, she never drank.
 2942. Did she eat any crawfish? Yes, and salad too.
 2943. On the first occasion when you had these pains, and when you say you and your wife had a snack in the middle of the day, did she suffer at all? No, she kept on serving behind the bar.
 2944. She was not taken ill then similarly to you? Oh, dear no.
 2945. When you had the crawfish supper, did she suffer? No.
 2946. And what do you say happened to you? I was taken in a similar way to what I was before, but the attack did not last so long on the second occasion.
 2947. Did you send for the doctor on this latter occasion? No, I helped myself to some pale brandy, and got sick. I went into the yard; I thought it was only an attack of dysentery, and I got better.
 2948. Just think now. On this second occasion, while you were suffering from this attack, didn't you send for the doctor? I do not think so; I am not positive whether I sent for Dr. Agnew. I might have sent for Dr. King, and he might have come.
 2949. But I want you to think; be certain? I believe Dr. King did come, and that he was drunk, and I said "go away." I think he had a glass of sherry, and did go away.
 2950. To the best of your recollection, if he came he did not attend you on this occasion? No, I wouldn't stand him. He was drunk, or nearly so.
 2951. Do you remember taking a trip to New Zealand while you lived at that hotel? Yes.
 2952. Do you remember returning from that trip? I do, thoroughly well.
 2953. Do you remember a man named Burdett? That I do. Robert Burdett, a shipwright, native of Tasmania.
 2954. Do you remember the date when you went to New Zealand? Well, it was while I kept the "Emu Hotel," and I think as near as possible it was the year 1861.
 2955. Do you remember making some accusation against your wife in reference to Burdett? Yes, that I do.
 2956. What did you say to her? I said to her, "Carrie, I have heard since I came back that you have not behaved the clean potato while I have been away." She said, "What do you mean, sir?" I said, "I mean that you have been carrying on with somebody, and I hope to be able to tell you something on Monday morning." This was on a Saturday. It staggered her. "What," said she, flying into a passion, "How dare you?" She was then in a violent temper. I said to her, "We'll drop it now; it's Saturday night; there's business on; the place is full." I said, "Leave it till Monday; if I am able to prove something then, it will be God help you." I slept in a separate room, and had no more to do with her.
 2957. What occurred on Monday? While I was talking to Mr. Robert Walker, the Mayor of Hobart, I saw the blind at one of the windows move slightly on one side. My wife put her eye to the place, and then dropped the blind. That was what I saw while I was talking, then I saw no more of her.
 2958. What do you mean? She rolled up her things, left her diamond rings, watch and chain, and wardrobe. She took all the money she could put her hand on, a portion of her clothing, and away she went.
 2959. She left you then, did she? Yes.
 2960. Then did you sell out and go to Melbourne? Ah! now I'm coming to my big misfortune. I did go to Melbourne.
 2961. Do you remember whilst you were at the "Emu Hotel" a detective, Sergeant MacGuire? Yes, he was a personal friend of mine. We were both in the detective force together.
 2962. Do you remember going out for a walk with him one evening? I do.
 2963. At about what time of the evening was it? About 8 o'clock, I suppose.
 2964. Was your wife living with you then? Of course she was, and the best of friends.
 2965. Was this before you had been to New Zealand? No; it was after I came back.
 2966. Was it after you had told her about this man Burdett? I came back from New Zealand on a Friday. I told her about Burdett on the Saturday, and went for the walk with MacGuire on Saturday evening about 8 o'clock.
 2967.

J. Asbury.
20 May, 1895.

2967. Where was your wife then? I left her in the bar.
2968. Do you remember walking along with him? Yes; I should think I had good reason to. We walked along and up Argyle-street. We got up towards the Brick-fields, when all at once somebody made a rush at us. I half turned round to see what it was when MacGuire laid hold of a woman, and both fell down in the road. They struggled for a minute, the woman turned out to be my wife, and she had a long dagger or knife in her hand, and a cloak over her head. MacGuire said to me, "You have had a narrow escape, Jack." He then got hold of the knife and threw it over a fence towards the Domain. He said to me, "For God's sake go home." I then ran away while he still had hold of my wife.
2969. Did your wife say anything? When I left they were both wrangling.
2970. Did she appear to be excited? Yes; she was shouting so that you could hear her for 200 yards, as if she was raving mad.
2971. President.] So you say Detective-Sergeant MacGuire stopped her from attacking you? Yes.
2972. Did you make any charge against her? No; I would not charge her with attempting to stab me. I would not have hurt a hair of her head in those days.
2973. Mr. Pilcher.] At these times when you were having rows with your wife did she ever say anything to you as to what she wished? Yes; she said, stamping with her foot, "I wish you were dead."
2974. Now, coming back to Melbourne, when you went to live at Melbourne, had you a daughter? Yes; I had a daughter, who was born on the 24th May, 1854. Her name was Caroline.
2975. Was she with your wife when she ran away from Hobart? No; my wife left her with me, and I put her to a boarding-school.
2976. When you went to Melbourne did you take your daughter Caroline with you? Certainly I did.
2977. How old was she then? Twelve years of age.
2978. When you went to Melbourne did you keep a hotel? Yes, unfortunately, I did. I took the "Commercial Hotel," in Little Bourke-street.
2979. Did your daughter live with you there? Yes.
2980. Did you put her to school while you were there? No; I was not properly settled in the hotel, so I did not put her to school. I kept her with me; I was so very fond of her.
2981. Did you see your wife in the "Commercial Hotel"? Yes, on three different occasions.
2982. What became of the little girl? One afternoon her mother rushed into the private bar, flourishing her umbrella, saying, "You wretch, give me my child; she shan't remain with you." She took the child; got into a cab, and drove away.
2983. After that did you do something towards the support and education of that child? Yes; I paid £1 per week.
2984. Who came to you for the money? The little girl, every Monday morning.
2985. How long after you came to Melbourne was it that your wife took the child away? Only a few weeks, about three weeks.
2986. President.] Did you know your wife was in Melbourne? No; I did not know she was in Melbourne when I took the hotel. I was told she was at Graymouth, on the West Coast of New Zealand.
2987. Mr. Pilcher.] When your wife came to the hotel brandishing her umbrella, was that the first time you knew she was in Melbourne? Yes; that was the first I knew of her for close on three years.
2988. Do you remember whilst you were keeping the "Commercial Hotel" in Little Bourke-street a man coming in with a watch and chain? Yes, that I do.
2989. Before you answer me any other question, I want to know if you knew your wife was in Melbourne while you were keeping the "Emu Hotel" in Hobart? Yes, because she kept sending messages to me.
2990. Do you not say you were told she had gone to New Zealand? Yes.
2991. When were you told that? Previous to me selling the "Emu Hotel" and going to Melbourne.
2992. How long before? Only a few weeks.
2993. So you remember whilst you were keeping the "Commercial Hotel" a young man coming in with a watch and chain? I do; I have every reason to remember.
2994. How was this young man dressed? Very gentlemanly.
2995. Did some conversation pass between you and him? Yes.
2996. What happened then? I bought the watch and chain from him for £5.
2997. Where did you put the watch and chain? I hung it up on the pier-glass in my bedroom. My own watch hung on one side, and the one I had bought I hung on the other side of the pier-glass.
2998. Some time after you bought the watch and chain from that young gentleman did the police come to you about it? Yes; the detective police came.
2999. Did you show them the watch and chain? No; that's where I did wrong.
3000. Did you tell them something? They had a search warrant, and made a search, but found nothing the first time.
3001. Did they search twice then? They came again and took me to the watch-house, and while I was at the watch-house a woman I had there, named Winifred Dalwood, told Detective Foster where the watch and chain were in the bed.
3002. Before this young man came with the watch and chain had you had any row with your wife? Yes; and I had stopped the payment of £1 per week.
3003. How long before that? The week before. I wanted to put the little girl in a boarding-school, her mother would not allow it, and we then had a row in front of the hotel.
3004. Were you living with any woman at the hotel? Yes; I must tell the truth; I was.
3005. Do you remember your wife saying anything to you about this woman before this watch and chain business? Yes; the night before she took the child away the wife called this woman everything. She said, "I will have my revenge upon you, you wretch, before I die." Then some people dragged her away and put her in a cab; there was an empty cab standing near. That was when she took the child away.
3006. By the way, when you were arrested over this watch and chain affair, were you taken to the lock-up? No; I was taken to the Detective Office.
3007. Did you get bail? Yes, I got bail at 10 o'clock at night, six or seven hours after I was arrested.
3008. After you got bail and returned to the hotel, what did you find there? My wife behind the bar, serving like a lady, with her daughter beside her. The house was full of people. She had turned the barman out and taken possession.

- J. Asbury. 3009. Had your wife ever been to the hotel before? No; never before like that.
- 20 May, 1895. 3010. What did you do when you came back? I flew into the bar and said, "How dare you come here?" She then went away from me.
3011. Did the daughter go too? Yes; she and the daughter jumped into a cab, and away they went.
3012. President.] Was there a cab there? Yes.
3013. Was there a cab-stand close at hand, or had they a cab waiting? There was a cab close to the hotel in the gutter. I could not say whether it was waiting or not, but she got in it the minute I turned her out.
3014. Mr. Pitcher.] Even if there was not a cab waiting I suppose cabs were always moving about in this street? Yes; they were always going up and down Bourke-street.
3015. How far up Little Bourke-street was the "Commercial Hotel"? Nearly at the corner of Commercial-lane, near the old Haymarket.
3016. As I understand you, then, the cabman pulled up, and the wife and daughter got into the cab and drove away? Yes, and she took all the money out of the till too.
3017. President.] What do you mean by that? She took with her all the money she had taken behind the bar after turning the barman out.
3018. Mr. Pitcher.] Now I want to ask you another question in regard to that watch business: You say you bought that watch and chain from the young man who came into the bar? I did.
3019. Is that the only way by which you became possessed of these things? That's all.
3020. And you say you paid £5 for the watch and chain? Yes, and I bought them at 11 o'clock at night.
3021. Had you been to the races that day? I had, bookmaking.
3022. Did you know the name of the young man from whom you bought the watch? No; I wish I had known; if I had I would not have had to suffer.
3023. Did you afterwards know that the watch and chain belonged to a warder at the gaol? I did at the trial.
3024. Was the warder at the gaol the young man who sold it to you? No, sir.
3025. Did you know that it had been stolen from the warder at the gaol? No, not until it came out at trial.
3026. Were you convicted? Yes.
3027. And what did you get? Three years. I produced certificates of good character, and Judge Barry told me (after he had read the certificates and heard gentlemen speak for me) that, having such a good character, I should have known better. Then he gave me three years.
3028. Do you say that Judge Barry, after looking at your certificates, told you that your previous good character was such that you ought to have known better? Yes, he did. He said that a good character was more against me than for me.
3029. Did you complete your sentence? I completed my sentence.
3030. While you were in Melbourne, before this trouble, were you doing a big business in the hotel? Yes; I was making a fortune.
3031. And did that trial ruin you? It did; it left me as I am—destitute.
3032. Since then, what has been your occupation? I have been buried in the bush as cook, shepherd, and drover, using a name not my own.
3033. President.] What parts of the bush have you been in;—can you mention some of the stations upon which you have worked? Yes, I could mention any amount. Todhunter's for one. I have been all over New South Wales, in fact. A telegram could get a reply any time in an hour. They all know me. I went by the name of Johnny Jeukins. They called me "Johnny the Londoner." That's what I'm best known as. I have been cook to shearers, and on homesteads and on stations.
3034. Mr. Pitcher.] How long have you been in Sydney? I came to Sydney five weeks ago on Wednesday. I went over to North Shore, and I have got a bit of a swag there now. I have got a little camp under some rocks.
3035. Whereabouts at North Shore? Oh, about 2 miles from the ferry.
3036. From which ferry? Milson's Point.
3037. Did you come out to this country as a convict? I came out to Tasmania as a ticket-of-leave man, and I was just as free as the Governor when I came ashore.
3038. How old were you when you came to Tasmania? I came out in the year 1850. I was then nearly 20 years of age. I was copped at home, and got seven years.
3039. What for? For stealing 2s. 8d. from my employer, who was a baker. That was part of it.
3040. What do you mean by part of it;—was there anything else against you? Yes; being found with boys who picked pockets.
3041. Have you lately come across a piece of paper,—a piece of newspaper, I mean? Yes; on Saturday night last.
3042. Did you find your name, amongst others, in it? Yes; I did.
3043. And is that what brought you here? Yes.
3044. How did this piece of paper come into your possession? A German showed me a part of the Evening News, and I saw my name in it.
3045. After you had read this paper, did you go into the public Park at North Shore? I did.
3046. Did you make some inquiries there? I did.
3047. Was something told you? Yes.
3048. In consequence of what was told you did you seek out Mr. Goddard, the chairman of the Dean Defence Committee? I did; and I found his house after a lot of trouble.
3049. Then did you make to Mr. Goddard a statement something like that you have made here to-day? I did.
3050. Do you know who stole that watch from the warder at the gaol? No.
3051. Had you anything at all to do with the stealing of it? No! No! No!
3052. Do you know who put the police on to you with a search-warrant? No; not for certain.
3053. Do you remember on one of the stations on which you were, you and other station hands getting poisoned? No; not station hands.
3054. Who then? Myself, some ladies belonging to the family, and a nursemaid got poisoned. All that was stated in the Town and Country newspaper.

3055. What poison did you and these ladies take? I do not know. It was said it was through eating tinned fish. It happened on a station near Balranald. The young lady nearly lost her life, and I suffered from purging and vomiting.

J. Asbury.
20 May, 1895.

3056. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is the name of the druggist who made up Dr. Agnew's prescription in Hobart? [No answer.]

3057. Mr. Pilcher.] When Dr. Agnew saw you in Hobart did he write you a prescription? Yes, I think he did.

3058. From what druggist did you get the medicine? I think it was from Wilkinson's in Elizabeth-street. I sent a man named Booth, a painter, to get the medicine, and he went to Wilkinson's the chemist.

3059. Had you a tenant named Fleming living in one of your houses in Hobart at that time? Yes, a grocer, and he was a gentleman.

3060. Do you know where he is now? Not for certain; but I believe he is an auctioneer in Pitt-street, Sydney.

3061. Have you seen him lately? No.

WEDNESDAY, 22 MAY, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., instructed by Messrs. Crik and Meagher, appeared for the defence.

Thomas Jones sworn and examined:—

3062. President.] I believe by business you are a tailor? Yes, sir.

3063. Do you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes, sir.

3064. Where did you first know her? I knew her in Hobart Town.

3065. When did you first know her? In the year 1852.

3066. What name did she go by then? I do not know what name she went by. I was not acquainted with her; I only knew her by sight.

3067. Was she married then? No; she got married afterwards.

3068. Whom did she marry? A man by the name of Asbury.

3069. Do you know anything of her while she was living in Hobart Town? No; I never spoke to her in Hobart Town.

3070. Were you afterwards in Melbourne? Yes.

3071. Did you know her there? I saw her there once or twice.

3072. Did you ever speak to her in Melbourne? Yes, sir.

3073. Did you ever live at her house or know anything about her while in Melbourne? I did not know anything of her in Melbourne.

3074. Do you remember her living in Riley-street, Surry Hills, Sydney? Yes, sir.

3075. When and where did you first know her in Sydney? In Norton-street, Surry Hills.

3076. Did you live at her house at any time? Yes; I was living in her house for very nearly fourteen years.

3077. In about what year did you first know her in Sydney? I cannot say the exact year, but it was about fourteen years ago.

3078. While you were staying in her house, were you living with her—you know what I mean? No; I was not living with her. I was boarding with her.

3079. Simply boarding with her? Yes; simply boarding with her.

3080. I believe you have been in a good deal of trouble yourself, haven't you? Never.

3081. Have you ever been in any trouble at all? No.

3082. Have you ever seen people whom you know to have been in trouble in Mrs. Seymour's house? I have seen people there, but I did not know what they were.

3083. Do you know Madame Rose's house? I did, sir; it was opposite Mrs. Seymour's.

3084. Used Mrs. Seymour ever to go to Madame Rose's? Yes; she used to go over there.

3085. Do you know Mary Seymour, or May Seymour I think they called her? I do, well.

3086. When you first lived at Mrs. Seymour's, how old was May? Between 5 and 6 years of age.

3087. And then did you live with Mrs. Seymour for fourteen years? I boarded with her.

3088. During the latter part of the time you were living at Mrs. Seymour's had you full opportunities of observing Mary Seymour? I had.

3089. Did she ever go to Madame Rose's? No, sir; I never knew her to go over.

3090. Do you mean to say that you never knew May Seymour to go over to Madame Rose's house? I never did.

3091. How did Mrs. Seymour treat her daughter, in the way of bringing her up? She brought her up very well according to her means, all the time I was with her.

3092. Amongst the different people you have seen at Mrs. Seymour's house have you noticed a Mrs. Fleury there? I saw a woman of that name.

3093. Do you know what she was? I believe she got her living on the bad.

3094. Did you know a man named Billy Gamble at Mrs. Seymour's house? No; not by that name.

3095. Did you know Jack Lynch? No; I didn't know him.

3096. I want you to tell me, if you have seen people at Mrs. Seymour's, whom you know to have served sentences? I do not know that I have. I never saw them.

3097. Do you not know that some of these people had served sentences? I do not know whether they had or not.

3098. How did you earn your living? At tailoring. I worked at David Jones's for two years, and I worked at Alfred Hordern's for about two years.

T. Jones.
22 May, 1895.

- T. Jones.
22 May, 1895.
3089. What sort of tailoring did you do? I was a coat hand.
 3100. Have you seen any young women come to Mrs. Seymour's house? I have seen young women there.
 3101. Can you tell me what kind of women they were? I do not know what they were.
 3102. During the time you saw these people there, whether men or women, how did Mrs. Seymour bring up her girl Mary? I consider she brought her up very well.
 3103. Did she allow her to mix with these people? No, she did not.
 3104. How did she prevent her from doing so? She never allowed her to mix with them at all.
 3105. Used Mary Seymour to go to school? Yes; she went to Crown-street school until she was 14 years of age.
 3106. Do you mean to Crown-street Public School? Yes.
 3107. Did you ever know of Mary Seymour going to Madame Rose's? I never did, sir.
 3108. Mr. Pitcher.] Jones, do you say you lived with Mrs. Seymour for fourteen years? I boarded with her.
 3109. She was a very respectable woman, was she not? As far as I know she was.
 3110. A very honest, respectable, good woman in fact? I do not know anything bad of her.
 3111. Well, in your opinion then, was she an honest, respectable, good woman? I suppose she was. She worked for her living.
 3112. I only want your opinion: Was she not an honest, respectable, good woman? She was honest as far as I know. I did not know anything about her business; I think she was right enough, from what I saw of her.
 3113. Will you tell me how long you have been at the Liverpool Benevolent Asylum? About eighteen months.
 3114. Do you know a certain hotel opposite the asylum? I do.
 3115. What is the name of that hotel? I don't know the name of the hotel, but I think they call it Bashford's hotel.
 3116. Did Mrs. Seymour come to see you at Liverpool a little time ago? She did.
 3117. I mean since Dean was committed for trial? Yes.
 3118. Are you sure he had not been tried when she last came? Yes.
 3119. Did she take you over to that Bashford's hotel? She did.
 3120. When she got over to the hotel did she ask for a private room? She did not.
 3121. Will you swear she did not ask for a private room? I will.
 3122. Did you and she go into a room together? We did.
 3123. Was there anybody else in the room at the time? No; nobody except Mrs. Seymour and myself.
 3124. Will you swear she did not ask for the use of a private room? She did not.
 3125. Did Mrs. Seymour say to you while in that hotel, "Now, mind, whatever you are asked, you know nothing about it." Now, sir, on your oath, did she not use those words? No; she did not.
 3126. Nor anything like them? No.
 3127. I will repeat the question. On your oath, sir, did not Mrs. Seymour say to you, "Now, mind, whatever you are asked, you know nothing about it"? No; she never did.
 3128. Nor words anything like them? No.
 3129. Did she visit you more than once at the asylum? Yes; more than once. She comes to see me now and then.
 3130. Has she visited you since that day to which you now refer? I had not seen her for months—some two or three months before.
 3131. How long before this visit, when you went with her to the hotel, was it since she had seen you at the asylum? About four months before that. She used to come to see me regularly.
 3132. How many months before then was she there,—I mean before the four months ago? I suppose about a month.
 3133. When she came to see you did not Mrs. Seymour say, "Be sure and know nothing if anyone asks you any questions, keep your mouth shut, and answer no questions of anybody"? No; she did not.
 3134. Did she not use words like that to you more than once at Bashford's hotel? She did not.
 3135. Now, I am giving you every opportunity to consider your answer to my question, and do you say again that she did not use these words to you? She did not.
 3136. Nor any words to the same effect? She did not.
 3137. By the way, will you swear that while you were living in this house for fourteen years, you did not know it was frequented by well-known thieves and criminals? They might have been; I do not know anything about them.
 3138. I am not saying what they might have been, I ask you if you do not know it;—will you swear the people who frequented Mrs. Seymour's house in Riley-street were not well-known thieves and criminals? I do not know anything about it.
 3139. Will you swear on your oath absolutely that you did not know these people to be thieves and criminals? They might have been thieves.
 3140. Will you swear you did not know they were thieves and criminals? I did not know.
 3141. Will you pledge your oath that you did not know them to be well-known thieves and criminals? I do not know anything at all about it.
 3142. Did you know a man named Scanlan, a one-eyed man? Yes.
 3143. Did he live at Mrs. Seymour's house? No.
 3144. Did he not board there for a time? No.
 3145. Never? No.
 3146. Did you know anything about him, or, in other words, did you know him as a respectable man? No; I do not think he was.
 3147. Do you remember Bluff Lynch and Grain living there? Yes.
 3148. Were they respectable honest men? I do not know; I would not say what they were.
 3149. Do you not know what they were? I do not know anything about them.
 3150. Do you remember them being arrested while there? I do not know.
 3151. Do you remember Mrs. Seymour being brought up on any charge? Yes; I believe she was at one time.
 3152. Do you know what that charge was? Yes. Williams suspected her.
 3153. Do you mean Detective Williams? Yes.
 3154. Suspected her of what? Picking pockets.

3155. Will you tell me this: Did you ever go out with Mrs. Seymour when she was engaged in this little amusement of pocket-picking? No.
3156. Did you never "give her the office"—you know what I mean? No.
3157. Did you never draw your handkerchief through your hands while you were in the street, as a signal to Mrs. Seymour when she was at work? No.
3158. If any person said he saw you do so, is that mere romance? [No answer.]
3159. Have you ever been cautioned by the detectives? No, never.
3160. Do you remember a man named Billy Gamble dying at Mrs. Seymour's house? I do not remember him by that name.
3161. Do you remember any man dying there? I do.
3162. What was his name? Millett.
3163. You do not remember him as Gamble? No.
3164. Do you remember Millett being under a charge, and when the police came to take him away from Mrs. Seymour's house, he being too ill to be removed? Yes.
3165. Was Millett a respectable man, in your opinion? No; I do not think he was.
3166. How long did Millett live there? About five or six months.
3167. By the way, was Millett living with Mrs. Seymour—I do not mean lodging with her—you know what I mean? I believe so.
3168. Did not Millett die at the house? He did.
3169. Is it not a fact that after Millett died, that you began to live with Mrs. Seymour? No; I boarded with her.
3170. Will you swear that you were not living with her? No, I was not; I boarded with her.
3171. Do you remember a girl, who went by the name of Rita, living with Mrs. Seymour? I do not know her.
3172. Do you remember a pretty girl living there? I did not know her. There were plenty of pretty girls.
3173. What, living at Mrs. Seymour's? I did not know any pretty girls there.
3174. Do you remember a very pretty girl living at Mrs. Seymour's? No; I do not.
3175. Do you remember any girls, pretty or otherwise, living at Mrs. Seymour's? I remember one or two girls living there.
3176. Do you remember their names? No; I do not.
3177. Cannot you remember whether one was called Rita? I do not remember it, sir.
3178. Do you remember three girls living there at the one time? No.
3179. Do you remember a girl named Dora? Yes.
3180. Was she living there? Yes.
3181. Also a girl named Ada Thompson? Yes; she was not living there till after Dora was.
3182. Did Ada Thompson ever live at Mrs. Seymour's? I believe she did.
3183. Was Amy Bennett living there? Yes; I think so.
3184. Were they good-looking girls? I do not know; I did not take much notice; I am getting too old now.
3185. Do you know if a Mrs. Lee came visiting Mrs. Seymour? No.
3186. Do you know Mrs. Lee? No.
3187. Do you know a girl named Millie? I do not.
3188. Have you seen a girl named Millie at Mrs. Seymour's? I might have seen her, but I did not know her to my knowledge.
3189. Do you know a girl named Minnie Phillips? Yes.
3190. Did she live at Mrs. Seymour's for two years? No, not for that long.
3191. How long was she there? A short time—a month or two.
3192. Did you not say some time ago, in reference to Mrs. Fleury, that she was not a respectable woman? Yes.
3193. What about Dora, Ada Thompson, and Amy Bennett;—were they bad girls? Dora and Ada Thompson were, but I don't say that about Amy Bennett.
3194. What is that about Amy Bennett—did you say she lived there? Yes.
3195. And what about her character? She was a good girl, as far as I know.
3196. What do you say about Minnie Phillips? She was a bad girl.
3197. How long did she live with Mrs. Seymour? About two months.
3198. Whilst these different girls you mentioned were living at Mrs. Seymour's where was Mary Seymour? Living with her mother.
3199. What,—in the same house? Yes.
3200. In the house with these different girls, and which was visited by these men? Yes.
3201. At the time Millett was living with Mrs. Seymour was Mary Seymour living in the same house? Yes.
3202. How long ago is it since these girls whose names you have mentioned were living at Mrs. Seymour's? A long time.
3203. How long ago I want to know? I cannot say.
3204. About how long I want to know—three or four years, or four or five years? I daresay it is. I cannot say for certain.
3205. Is it two or three years ago as near as you can say? I cannot fix the date; I cannot say. Except that it is two or three years ago.
3206. By the way, what room did you sleep in when you lived at Mrs. Seymour's? I slept in the back room.
3207. Upstairs or downstairs? In the back room upstairs.
3208. Where did Mrs. Seymour sleep whilst she was living with Millett? That was in Norton-street.
3209. Oh! did Millett live with her in Norton-street? Yes; and he died there.
3210. What room did Mrs. Seymour sleep in in Riley-street? In the front bedroom upstairs.
3211. Always? Yes; all the time I was there.
3212. You tell us that different girls were living there at different times;—did more than one girl live there at one time? I only knew it once.

- T. Jones. 3213. Where did they sleep? Upstairs in the back room.
 3214. Where did you sleep then? In the middle room.
 22 May, 1895. 3215. Are there three rooms upstairs then? Yes. There is the front, middle, and back room, and bathroom.
 3216. Where did Mary Seymour sleep? With her mother in the front room.
 3217. Do you know Phillip Williams, a detective? Yes; I know him.
 3218. Was he the detective who arrested Mrs. Seymour on a certain occasion? Yes.
 3219. How do you know? Because I was told when I came home that night.
 3220. Were you not with her when she was arrested? No, sir.
 3221. Were you not in the street close by at the time of her arrest? No; I was working at David Jones's; and if anyone said I was in the street close by when she was arrested it is false.
 3222. Now, sir, did not Detective Phillip Williams warn you in Oxford-street? No, never.
 3223. Do you know Detective O'Sullivan? Yes.
 3224. Did he ever tell you that you were a thief and a pimp of thieves? No, he did not.
 3225. Did not you bring an action against him for saying this? No; but I did bring an action against him though.
 3226. Did you get a verdict? No.
 3227. What did you bring the action against O'Sullivan for? For accusing me of being in gaol for five years in Melbourne.
 3228. Was it not for accusing you for being a thief and a pimp of thieves? No; it was for saying I had been in gaol in Melbourne, and he got me discharged from where I was working.
 3229. But you did not get a verdict? No; it was Williams' fault, through some name not being signed. Judge Wilkinson decided that the case could not go on, and Mr. Reid defended me.
 3230. Did you know Mrs. Seymour in Victoria—I mean to associate with her? No.
 3231. Were you an associate of thieves in Victoria? I worked for my living.
 3232. Were you not an associate of those who were thieving for their living? No; I was not.
 3233. Sir Julian Salomons.] How long have you been in New South Wales? I came to New South Wales in 1856.
 3234. How long have you been living in Sydney? About fourteen years.
 3235. President.] Where were you between 1856 and fourteen years ago, or in other words, where were you between 1856 and 1880 or 1881? In Melbourne. I came to Sydney about the year of the big exhibition.
 3236. Sir Julian Salomons.] Then you brought an action against some member of the Police force? Yes.
 3237. But you did not get a verdict? No.
 3238. How many years ago is that? It might be five or six years ago.
 3239. Have you, during the whole of the fourteen years you have been in Sydney, ever been in gaol? No, never.
 3240. Will you swear that? Yes.
 3241. How many years were you working for David Jones and Company? Two years.
 3242. How many years were you working for Alfred Hordern, in Pitt-street? Two years.
 3243. For how long did you work for Mr. Clement Lewis? For twelve or eighteen months.
 3244. You said, some little while ago, something about Ada Thompson and Dora being bad girls; and did you not say that Amy Bennett was quite respectable? Yes.
 3245. And how many years do you say you knew the daughter, Mary Seymour? For the fourteen years I was living at the house.
 3245½. Did you during the fourteen years you lived in the house ever see anything wrong on the part of Mary Seymour? No; I never saw her do anything wrong.
 3246. Was she brought up respectably as far as the circumstances of the mother would permit? She was.
 3247. Did she go to school? Yes, regularly.
 3248. Did she go to Sunday-school too? Yes.
 3249. Did she go to the Rev. Mr. Hargrave's school? Yes.
 3250. How long ago is it since you left her mother's house? About eighteen months.
 3251. And up to the time you left there, was this girl well behaved in the house, and did she keep herself respectable? Yes; I never saw anything wrong.
 3252. Mr. Pileher.] Do you know Robert Greathead? I do.
 3253. Is he manager of the Australian Clothing Company in Kent-street, Sydney? Yes; I know him.
 3254. Did you often talk to him some two or three years ago? Yes.
 3255. Did you ever tell him anything about Mary Seymour? No.
 3256. Did you ever tell him anything words to this effect, "That this girl was going to learn dressmaking at some establishment in town because the old woman wanted to keep her down, as she was carrying on too high at home"? I did not.
 3257. Do you understand my question? Yes, perfectly.
 3258. Did you not also tell him that Mary Seymour could not knuckle down to sewing, and was going on a trip to New Zealand? No.
 3259. And did you not tell Greathead that the trip to New Zealand was only a "blind" to get away? No; I did not.
 3260. Did you not tell him anything like that two years ago? No.
 3261. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you ever tell anybody anything against this girl's character in your life? Never; it is all false. I have never seen anything wrong with the girl; she was never allowed out of her room after half-past 10 at night, not even when she was engaged to the man she was married to. She always had to be in her room by half-past 10 o'clock.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Ann Hughes sworn and examined :—

3262. Mr. Meagher.] Do you reside with your husband? Yes; at Belmont-street, Mossman's Bay.
3263. Do you know George Dean? Yes.
3264. Do you know his wife? Yes.
3265. When did you first become acquainted with Dean? About eleven years ago. And I met his wife for the first time about a fortnight after they were married.
3266. Where were they residing when you became acquainted with Mrs. Dean? At her mother's, to the best of my knowledge.
3267. Do you remember them residing at Mossman's Bay? Yes.
3268. Did they live close to you? Yes.
3269. Were you friendly with Mrs. Dean? Yes; both with her and her husband.
3270. Were you on visiting terms with one another? Yes; she used to come to my house very often.
3271. Had Mrs. Dean any particular reason for coming to your house? Yes; I taught her cooking after she took a house of her own.
3272. Did she frequently come to your house for this purpose? Yes.
3273. Do you remember whether, on any of these visits to your house, she has spoken to you about her husband? Yes; a fortnight after she was married, when she was living at her mother's she came to see me. When she was getting ready to go home she saw an envelope on the chest of drawers in my room with a likeness of George Dean in it. The envelope was addressed to my husband in his name.
- 3273½. Who was it addressed by? George Dean.
3274. President.] It was a photograph given to your husband, I suppose? Yes.
3275. Mr. Meagher.] Did any conversation ensue about Dean then? Yes. She picked up the envelope and said, "Oh, what an ignorant fellow; he cannot write; he is a bad writer; I would not have married him except for the good screw he got."
3276. Shortly after this did the Deans come to reside near you in the same street? Yes.
3277. Do you remember, in February last, on a certain Thursday, Mrs. Dean coming to your house? Yes.
3278. Did she make any observation to you about her husband? Yes; she did. She had been to see a Mrs. Pfaffly, a neighbour, and she brought the baby with her. I was surprised when I saw her at the door with so young a baby in her arms. She told me then "she wished she had been struck dead on the day she married George Dean."
3279. Did she visit you again shortly after this? Yes; on the Sunday following.
3280. In the course of conversation did Dean's name come up again? Yes; she said they had had a quarrel before she came out. I had asked her to come to dinner on that day. I asked her what they had been quarrelling about, and she said, "He brought the meat to cook for dinner, and I would not cook it."
3281. Did she say anything about a divorce? She said she wished he would do something, so that she could get rid of him.
3282. President.] Can you tell us the day in February on which this conversation took place? The 7th of February was on the Thursday. This was on the following Sunday, so it would be the 10th.
3283. Mr. Meagher.] When she made the remark, "I wish he would do something so as I could get rid of him";—did you make any reply? Yes. I asked her what she would do, and she said she would sue for a divorce.
3284. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is your husband, Mrs. Hughes? Captain of the Mossman's Bay steamer.
3285. Do you mean that he is captain of the boat of which Dean was at one time the master? He is a captain for the same company.
3286. Was your husband in charge of one boat and Dean in charge of another boat belonging to the same company? Yes.
3287. And do you say you have known Dean for the last eleven years? Yes.
3288. Where was he living? With some people named Lawson, in Cumberland-street.
3289. Then did he come to live with you? Yes.
3290. And how many years ago is that since he left Lawson's and come to reside with you? I think it was 1886 or 1887 when he came to live with us.
3291. And how long did he live with you? For thirteen months and a couple of weeks.
3292. Where was he employed then? He was a fire-boy on board the steamer, which runs from Circular Quay to Mossman's Bay.
3293. Was your husband then employed by the same company? Yes; my husband was then an engine-driver, but on another steamer.
3294. Did Dean and your husband work together on the same boat? Not that I know of.
3295. When did you first know that Dean was married? The Sunday he and his wife came to my house.
3296. Did you ever know him by the name of George Finch? Yes; I know he went by his stepfather's name.
3297. When he first came to live with you, was he not known as George Finch? I asked him his name, and he said he took his stepfather's name and called himself George Finch. When I knew him first he was called a nickname more than anything else.
3298. And what was that? They used to call him "Springey."
3299. When did he first take the name of George Dean? At my house.
3300. How long had he been there before he took the name George Dean? I told him it was not right to take his stepfather's name; he ought to use his own father's name.
3301. How long had he been at your house when he took the name of George Dean? I do not think he had been there long.
3302. How long was it—eight, seven, or six months? I cannot tell you.
3303. Cannot you say how many months elapsed after he came to live at your house before he left off using the name Finch and took the name of George Dean? I cannot tell you.
- 3304-5. Cannot you give me some idea, whether it was a week, or a month, or six months? I cannot tell you. All I know he used to get letters addressed sometimes to George Finch and sometimes to George Dean.

Mrs.
Ann Hughes,
22 May, 1895.

- Mrs. Ann Hughes.
22 May, 1895.
3306. That is not an answer to my question; you say he lived with you for thirteen months and a half, and what I want to know is, had he been at your place for six, eight, or ten months, when, on your suggestion, he took the name of George Dean? I do not know. I do not suppose he was there a month before he did.
3307. Did you know his stepfather? I did not.
3308. Did you know that his stepfather was living with a woman who was not his mother? No, I did not.
3309. Did you not know that Finch was living with a woman at Woollahra who was not his mother? No.
3310. Do you know anything about a criminal charge having been brought against Dean or Finch at Narrandera or Wagga Wagga, for which he got three months' imprisonment? No, I do not.
3311. Did he ever tell you anything about that? No.
3312. Did you know anything about his mother or his sisters? No.
3313. Did you know anything about his having a brother on board the "Vernon?" No, I did not.
3314. Have you not read in the newspapers that he had a brother on board the "Vernon?" No, I have not.
3315. You do not know anything at all about that? No, I do not.
3316. Now, Mrs. Hughes, will you say why you advised him to change his name from Finch to Dean? Because I thought it was not right for him to use his stepfather's name.
3317. Although you had always known him as George Finch? Yes.
3318. Did you ever know his father? No; but he told me his own father was a policeman.
3319. Did he tell you where his own father was a policeman? No; and I do not know.
3320. Do you mean to say that you being on such friendly terms with him (remember he was living with you for thirteen months) did not ask him where his father was a policeman? No, sir, I did not; I had other things to attend to, without minding his business.
3321. Do you mean to say that a person was living with you for that length of time, that he told you that his father was a policeman, that you had frequent conversations with him, and yet did not ask where his father was a policeman? No, sir, I did not.
3322. Do you know anything at all about his father? I know nothing at all about his family.
3323. Do you say that letters came sometimes addressed to George Finch, and sometimes to George Dean? Yes; but he did not have many.
3324. Did you begin to teach Mrs. Dean cooking? Yes.
3325. After she was married? Yes.
3326. And how many times has she been to your house? Frequently; as much as three times in one day.
3327. When did you begin to take an interest in this case? I have taken an interest in it all the time.
3328. How is it you have come here to give evidence? My husband told me to come.
3329. Oh, your husband told you to come, did he; was he living with you all the time Dean was living at your house? Yes.
3330. Do you know who got him to tell you to come here? No.
3331. When did he tell you to come here? I was subpoenaed.
3332. Will you answer my simple question;—when did your husband tell you to come here? I was up at the court one day, at the time of the trial, but my evidence was not wanted.
3333. How many days were you at the court? One; on the Friday, all day long.
3334. Did you go with the intention of giving evidence for Dean? Yes.
3335. And after waiting a whole day, you were not called? No.
3336. Now, will you tell me when you were asked by your husband to come before this Commission and give this evidence? I went to Crick and Meagher's office.
3337. When? I do not know the exact date.
3338. How many days ago was the last time you were there? I was there this morning.
3339. Now will you tell me when your husband asked you to come here—was it yesterday, to-day, or when? He told me to go to the court, and I came here on a subpoena.
3340. When were you subpoenaed? On Saturday night I got my subpoena to be here on the Monday.
3341. What time on Saturday night did you get it? My husband brought it home with him.
3342. Do you know where your husband got the subpoena from? No; but I know it was signed by Mr. Rogers, as President of this Commission.
3343. Did your husband know about Dean having been in trouble up country? Not to my knowledge.
3344. As far as your knowledge goes, did your husband know that Dean had a brother on board the "Vernon?" Not that I know of.
3345. Now will you turn your attention to the occasion when Mrs. Dean came to your house a fortnight after she was married, and said certain things to you about some writing on an envelope? Yes; it was on a Sunday when Dean brought her to visit me; she was then living with her mother.
3346. Was that the first time you met Mrs. Dean? Yes.
3347. Had they been married then about a fortnight? Yes, as far as I know.
3348. And on this occasion, when you met her for the first time, did she see the envelope containing the photograph? Yes, on the chest of drawers in my bedroom.
3349. What was she doing in your bed-room? Putting her things on, ready to go home.
3350. Was she there alone? Yes, with me. Her husband was in the back yard, playing with the children.
3351. And what did Mrs. Dean do? She picked up the envelope and said, "Oh, the ignorant fellow; he cannot write, and I would not have married him, only for the good screw he had."
3352. And do you mean to say that was the first occasion you knew her? Yes.
3353. And she used these words to you in your bed-room? Yes.
3354. And where was her husband at the time? In the back yard with the children. He had been playing cricket with them.
3355. And do you mean to say that to you, a comparative stranger, Mrs. Dean told you what you say, a fortnight after she was married;—told you this, mind you, when she was brought to see you by her husband, who was in the back yard playing cricket with the children? Yes.
3356. Do you mean to tell me that the husband brought the wife to you and introduced her to you a fortnight after they were married, and that, on the same day, she said to you, a comparative stranger, she would not have married Dean except for the good screw he got? Yes.
3357. What salary does he get? £3 per week.

3358. Do you say she brought the baby on one occasion to show you, and that she had some conversation with you then? Yes; that was on the 7th February.
3359. What time of the day was that? In the afternoon.
3360. Where was it that she said this extraordinary thing? She was in the dining-room having a cup of tea. I had to leave her after I had given her a cup of tea, as I had to go and fit some bodices on the minister's children in another room.
3361. President.] Are you a dressmaker, then? Yes; and the minister's three little children called to have their bodices fitted. I went into the other room, and when I came back, after fitting the bodices, she said she wished she had been struck dead the day she married George Dean.
3362. Sir Julian Salomons.] And do you admit that, although you knew her husband, and had been a friend for years, you and Mrs. Dean were strangers until after they were married? Yes; but we were not strangers when this conversation took place.
3363. Do you say you were subpoenaed to attend the trial of Dean at Darlinghurst? Yes.
3364. And that you went there, but were not called to give evidence? Yes.
3365. And did you know that Deau was being tried for his life on that occasion? Yes.
3366. For administering poison to his wife with intent to poison her? Yes.
3367. Were you at the Police Court at North Shore when he was charged with this offence? No.
3368. Still you knew that he was committed for trial? Yes.
3369. And that he was to be tried at Darlinghurst? Yes.
3370. And did you attend there the whole of the Friday as a witness? Yes.
3371. Did you not know that the defence set up was that there was a conspiracy between this man's wife, her mother, and some other person in connection with this charge? No, sir; I did not.
3372. Do you not read the newspapers at all? Well, sometimes I do.
3373. And did you not take a strong interest in this case from its very inception? Of course I did.
3374. Of course you knew Dean might have been hanged for this affair? I did not think so. If I had thought that I should have gone to the Police Court and told them what I knew.
3375. I suppose you and your husband have talked this matter over pretty freely? We have not.
3376. Have you not talked it over at all? Oh, sometimes we have talked about it.
3377. Had you been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office before going to the Criminal Court at Darlinghurst? I had not.
3378. Did you merely go as a witness and were not called? Yes.
3379. And who asked you to go as a witness? My husband.
3380. Do you know if your husband had been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's? No, he had not.
3381. Did he ask you to go to Darlinghurst, and then you were not called? Yes.
3382. Did you not say you were not wanted? After waiting all day I sent in to know if I was wanted, and Mr. Meagher sent word out, "Not to-day." Miss Cassin went in and asked if I was wanted; this was at half-past 8 at night. I had my baby in my arms, and wanted to get home. Miss Cassin told me I could go home.
3383. Were you subpoenaed to attend? I was subpoenaed to attend here.
3384. Who is this Miss Cassin you have mentioned;—is she not a young lady Dean knew? Yes; he knew her five or six years ago; he was keeping company with her. Then he was paying his addresses to Miss Pfafflyn long after that.
3385. Oh, to anyone else? I suppose his wife is another.
3386. How long have you known Miss Cassin? About nine years.
3387. Do you know Miss Pfafflyn? Slightly; just enough to say "Good morning." They keep a shop at the corner of Mossman's Bay wharf; you buy your boat tickets there.
3388. Were you at Darlinghurst on the Friday? Yes; I was not in the court, but I was in the waiting-room.
3389. And was that the day you saw Miss Cassin? Yes.
3390. Was she examined on that Friday? Yes.
3391. Do you not know that Dean was examined on that Friday? Yes.
3392. Do you not know that Captain Summerbell was examined on that Friday? I read it in the newspaper.
3393. And do you say you sent Miss Cassin into court to know if you were wanted? Yes; at half-past 8 at night. After I had waited all day.
3394. And you were not called as a witness at all? No.
3395. And then, on Saturday last, were you subpoenaed, receiving the subpoena from your husband, to be here? Yes.
3396. Is Miss Cassin living with you? Yes; staying with me now.
3397. Ah, you never told us that before, you know? I was not asked.
3398. How long has she been staying with you? She came to my place, ill with influenza, about five weeks ago.
3399. And you know she was a witness at Dean's trial? Yes.
3400. President.] And is she staying with you now? Yes.
3401. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you know that this Miss Cassin had a great affection for this man, Dean? No; not since their engagement was broken off.
3402. But I mean before it was broken off? I do not know anything about that.
3403. President.] Do you know if she had any affection for this man after the engagement was broken off, and he had married somebody else? Not that I know of.
3404. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is it not a fact that Miss Cassin was broken down with grief, and became ill on account of this charge against Dean? No; it was a heavy cold she had. That is what was the matter with her. Why she is engaged to another young fellow now.
3405. President.] How long has the new engagement been on? About two years and a half.
3406. Sir Julian Salomons.] How long has Miss Cassin been living with you? For the last five weeks.
3407. Now, returning to that conversation with Mrs. Dean, will you describe once more what actually took place? Yes.
3408. Did you not say something about her lifting up her hands and making use of some expression? Yes; she was sitting in the rocking-chair with the baby in her arms; she put the baby on her lap and lifted up her hands, on a level with her breast —

Ann Hughes.

22 May, 1896.

3409.

- Mrs. Ann Hughes. 3409. And what time in the afternoon did this take place? About 3 in the afternoon.
 3410. And what was she doing in the rocking-chair? I suppose she was resting.
 22 May, 1895. 3411. And when she lifted up her hands, what did she say? "Oh, I wish he would do something so as I could get rid of him."
 3412. Do you remember that distinctly? Of course I do, most distinctly.
 3413. Then what did you do or say? I said to her, "What would you do"; she said in reply, "I would sue for a divorce."
 3414. Was that the whole of the conversation? Pretty well all.
 3415. How long after that was it when she left your house? She left after tea. Miss Cassin was there to tea, and met her too.
 3416. Was there anyone present when this conversation took place but you and Mrs. Dean? No.
 3417. Was there anyone present when she said, "She wished she had been struck dead on the day she married George Dean"? No; except us two.
 3418. Has Dean been to your house frequently since he was married? Well, not very often; he has been a few times; he has come to teach my husband to ride on a bicycle.
 3419. Did he stay to dinner or tea then? No; he went back home. He and my husband went out together to learn to ride on the bicycle, and then Dean returned home.
 3420. How many times did this happen? On three occasions, I believe.
 3421. Mr. Meagher.] You say Dean resided with you for thirteen months? Yes.
 3422. What was his conduct during this time? He always seemed to be very kind. I had a child sick at the time, and he always asked about it.
 3423. Did he always conduct himself in a respectable way? Yes; I would not have had him at my house if he did not.
 3424. Do you not say you attended Darlinghurst Court on the Friday of Dean's trial? Yes.
 3425-6. Do you remember on the following Wednesday making a statutory declaration? Yes.
 3427. President.] Did you make a sworn declaration to the same effect as the evidence you have given to-day on the 10th of April? Yes.
 3428. Sir Julian Salomons.] And was Dean convicted on the 6th? Yes.
 3429. Did you make that sworn declaration in Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.

[Witness withdrew.]

John Ashbury recalled:—

- J. Ashbury. 3430. Mr. Meagher.] I propose to call a witness to identify this man as John Ashbury.
 23 May, 1895. 3431. Sir Julian Salomons.] I know he is John Ashbury; I admit he is the man, and the husband of Mrs. Seymour. There is no doubt about that.
 3432. President.] If you admit him to be John Ashbury, and the husband of Mrs. Seymour, there is no necessity of giving evidence of identification.
 3433. Sir Julian Salomons.] I admit he is the man. To witness.]—You mentioned a man named Fleming to me the other day, did you not? Yes, Sir Julian.
 3434. Where do you say Fleming was living at that time? I supposed him to be a tenant of mine.
 3435. A tenant of your's—where? In Liverpool-street, Hobart Town. He was keeping a grocer's shop.
 3436. How many years was he living there? I cannot say, Sir Julian; my memory is going.
 3437. Do you mean to tell me your memory is gone? Yes; I am afraid it is going very bad.
 3438. President.] But do you not remember what you told us the other day about taking Old Tom bottles down, and putting brandy bottles in their place? Yes; so I do.
 3439. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you not remember that you said when you were removing the Old Tom bottles you noticed something wrong about the cork in the arsenic bottle? Of course I did.
 3440. What did you notice wrong about the cork? Simply this, that when I put that bottle of arsenic behind there, after poisoning the rats, I pressed the cork down all round. When I took the Old Tom bottles down I had forgotten all about the bottle of poison being there until I found it.
 3441. Never mind that, will you answer my simple question;—what is it you swear you noticed wrong about the cork? When I was putting the brandy bottles up, I found this bottle of arsenic, and I then noticed that the cork had been put in a different way to what I put it in myself when I put it up at the back of the Old Tom bottles.
 3442. How many years ago is it since you noticed the cork had been put in a different way to what you put it in yourself? I cannot swear positively.
 3443. Is it not, sir, thirty-five years ago? I cannot tell. It would not do for me to let you get at me for perjury.
 3444. Never mind perjury; you appear to me to be constantly anticipating the joys of another place;—what I want to know from you is, how many years ago it is that you remember so particularly noticing that the cork of this bottle containing the arsenic was not as you left it when you put the bottle on the shelf? I cannot tell you off-hand, unless you give me time to reflect; let me think a few moments; I will answer as near as I can.
 3445. Cannot you tell me how long ago it was? [After consideration] I'll say between twenty and thirty years ago.
 3446. Is that the nearest you can give, as the time you impute that your wife attempted to poison you? I never said any such thing.
 3447. Was not that what you meant us and this Commission to understand? No; I never thought of such a thing at that time.
 3448. When you gave evidence the other day, did not you mean to say that your wife attempted to poison you? No; it was years after before I thought of such a thing.
 3449. The other day when you were here did you not impute that your wife tried to poison you? No.
 3450. Do you now think she tried to poison you; or, in other words, do you now charge your wife with having attempted to poison you? I can keep that to myself; no matter what I thought. I never got a warrant out against her for it.

3451. Did you not, when giving evidence the other day, desire the Commissioners to understand that your wife had attempted to poison you? No.
3452. President.] What was the object of giving the evidence at all then about the bottle and the cork being awry, or, at all events, it not being in the bottle the same way as you placed it there;—what did you give that evidence for? I will tell you. In the first place to show that she and me both handled the poison, and, in the next place, to show that the cork of the bottle had been tampered with.
3453. I want to know what you gave that evidence for? Because when I was buried in the bush at Paka Lakes Station, years after, I said to myself, "My God, that woman tried to kill me when I was in the 'Emu Hotel.'"
3454. Sir Julian Salomons.] Then you do mean to charge her with having attempted to poison you? I have my own thoughts.
3455. And what are they? After the Paka Lakes affair I did think so. When I was poisoned there.
3456. Was your wife there then? No; but the symptoms were the same as those I had when at the "Emu Hotel."
3457. What did the poisoning up country on the second occasion arise from; what had you been eating? I was drawing a batch of bread from the oven when the parlour-maid at the station brought out some potted tongues; we ate them, and that is when I was poisoned the second time.
3458. How many years ago is that? Five or six, I should think.
3459. And where do you say this happened? At Paka Lakes. We then had tinned tongues; the missis and the ladies had it at the table, and the nurse-maid and myself got it second hand; we were all poisoned and the ladies nearly lost their lives.
3460. Were the doctors sent for? Yes; they were sent for with horses to Balranald.
3461. How far was Balranald from the station? About 12 miles. It was Mr. Macpherson's station, Paka Lakes.
3462. And how many years ago do you say that is? Five or six years ago. It is easy to find out, and the whole thing appeared in the Town and Country Journal, for I read it there myself.
3463. Did you not swear the other day when giving evidence, that you had been eating tinned fish before you were poisoned on the second occasion? No, sir.
3464. Did you not say the other day that you had been eating tinned fish? No, sir.
3465. Then is that a mistake of mine? Yes; that is right; and I am glad you acknowledge it.
3466. Did you not swear the other day in this room that you had been eating tinned fish? No; I do not know anything about tinned fish.
3467. Will you not admit at once that you may be making a mistake now? No.
3468. And are you positive it was not tinned fish that the parlour-maid brought to you on the station near Balranald? No; it was not.
3469. Are you sure now that it was preserved tongues? I am positive.
3470. You have not the slightest doubt about it? No; not the slightest. I remember carving it for the girl and myself after it was brought from the dining-room. I know it nearly killed both of us.
3471. President.] Where did you say you had come from;—was it not from under the rocks? Yes; 2 miles from Milson's Point, about, where I was living, dead to the world.
3472. Sir Julian Salomons.] And how did you first hear of this North Shore poisoning case? Accidentally.
3473. How did you happen to hear of it;—did you not say you were sleeping under the rocks, and dead to the world? Well, not under the rock, you know; I mean under the rocks, you know; there was high rocks all round. A simple foreigner, a German, brought me the paper where I saw my name.
3474. Did you not swear two days ago that it was tinned fish you were eating when you were taken ill at Paka Lakes? No; not to my recollection.
3475. Do you swear now that it was preserved tongue? I am certain it was preserved tongue, because I remember carving it.
3476. How do you know it was preserved? Because it was tinned.
3477. And what happened after you had carved it? We ate some of it, and were ill; we were all ill; the two young ladies were very bad, and so was I.
3478. What did you say about crayfish the other day? I did not say I was poisoned by eating crayfish. I said I had a crayfish supper and felt bad after it.
3479. Where were you when you had that crayfish supper? I was keeping the "Emu Hotel." My wife and myself had a crayfish supper in the little private parlour.
- 3480-1. Was that in Hobart Town? Yes.
3482. At the time of which you speak as having found that the cork in the bottle of arsenic had been tampered with, where was Fleming living? I do not think he was a tenant of mine then. I do not know where he was living.
3483. Where was Fleming living at the time of the rat-poisoning? I do not know.
3484. How long after the rat-poisoning did Mr. Fleming become a tenant of yours? It might be two or three years; I do not know.
3485. How long after the rat-poisoning affair was it your wife tried to stab you with the dagger? I do not know. A long time after that—years after.
3486. How many years after? I do not know. You are running from one thing to another. I cannot answer everything. We had been living as happy as two princes before that.
3487. Did you suspect her of having poisoned you? No; not the slightest bit. No fear.
3488. Did you never suspect her of having tried to poison you? No; not till I was lying ill in the hut on the station. Then I had the same pains that I had before, and I said to myself, "Good God, these are the same pains as I had before." It struck me then, after I had eaten this tinned stuff, that they were the same symptoms that I had years and years before, when me and my wife was innocent, and used to play with one another like babies.
3489. President.] Did it strike you, when you were on the station, and felt these pains after having ate the potted tongue, that you must have been poisoned on the occasion when you were ill in Hobart Town? When I have been sitting under the gum-trees in the bush I have thought this all over, and I've said to myself, "Good God, I have had these symptoms before."
3490. Who is the owner of this Paka Lakes station? Mr. Peter Macpherson.

- J. Asbury.
23 May, 1895.
3491. Is he alive now? I cannot say.
3492. Sir Julian Salomons.] When did you leave that station? I cannot tell you for certain.
3493. Do you mean to say that you can remember a cork being placed in a bottle in a certain way thirty years ago, and that you cannot now remember how many years it is since you left that station? I cannot tell you.
3494. I ask you again—how many years is it since you left that station, sir? I cannot say; five or six years; my memory is not so good now as it was.
3495. What is the name of the inn at which the rat-poisoning took place? The "Bou."
3496. What was the year that you remember about that cork matter? It was after 1861.
3497. What do you mean by that? Well, it was about the year 1861, I think.
3498. I suppose you know that 1861 was thirty-four years ago? Unfortunately for me, I do.
3499. What was the size of the cork which you say you noticed in the arsenic bottle the wrong way? It was a little bottle; you do not see bottles like that now-a-days. What made me notice it more was, that when I took the cork out I could not put it back again.
3500. Why? Because it had swelled at the bottom.
3501. So much swelled that you could not get it back into the bottle? Yes.
3502. And you distinctly remember all these details of thirty years ago? Yes; and then there were the instructions about being careful.
3503. And do you mean to say you can remember such trifles as these? Yes.
3504. That happened thirty-four years ago, mind you? Yes; I remember it, because I could not get the cork back. I then bit it round the edge, because I could not force it into the bottle.
3505. Do you say you bit it? Yes.
3506. Are you sure you did not cut it with a knife? Yes, I am sure I bit it; I had good teeth then; I bit it round the edge.
3507. What was the effect of biting the cork? I just bit it round the edge, and got it into the bottle.
3508. Do you mean to tell me that you bit the cork of the poison bottle? Yes.
3509. And what was the poison in that bottle? Arsenic.
3510. And you bit pieces off the cork in the way you describe? I did; I was not afraid.
3511. You bit the pieces off the cork and spat them out? Yes, I did.
3512. Do you say at this time you did not suspect your wife? No; I did not then. We were as happy as princes—like two children. She would not have hurt a hair of my head then, and I am certain I would not have hurt her.
3513. Were you not afraid of the poison doing you harm through biting the cork? It did not hurt me, or I might have been dead.
3514. Do you not say that you have a wonderful memory? I am getting old now, and my memory is not as it used to be.
3515. Have you got a good memory now? No.
3516. How do you remember all these details about biting the cork, and so on? Because it has been preying on my mind when I have been sitting alone in the bush.
3517. Did not you swear that you never thought there was anything wrong until you were sitting under a gum-tree? No; not to my knowledge. I can tell you what I have thought, though, when I have been sitting under the trees on my swag. When I have sat there after being poisoned I have thought it all over.
3518. At the time of the first poisoning had you the slightest idea that your wife attempted to poison you? No; we were living together like children.
3519. Will you describe particularly what took place in regard to the removal of the Old Tom bottles when you found the arsenic behind them? I will. I had a lot of Old Tom bottles on the shelf in the bar. I bought some cases of brandy at a sale. I opened a case of brandy, and I said to the wife, "Carrie, we'll take them Old Tom bottles down." They were only dummies on the top shelf. I said to her, "Come and help me; take the Old Tom bottles down, and put the P.B's. up." I got on a chair, and she handed the bottles of brandy up to me. I had not thought about the poison then, but when moving the Old Tom bottles I found the arsenic. I saw that the cork had been altered, and I said to my wife, "Have you been using it?" I thought perhaps she had been poisoning rats. I did not think any more about it at the time, and put the bottle on the counter, and when I put all the bottles of brandy on the shelf I put the arsenic behind the cash-box in the drawer.
3520. Did you not swear the other day that you put it in the cash-box? I did not. I put it behind the cash-box. I am positive I did. It is a misstatement to say I said I put it in the cash-box. Perhaps I said it, but I was very ill that day, you must remember, and seeing my wife, you know, and not having seen her for twenty-one years, you know, that knocked me over. So come, Sir Julian, let me have fair play.
3521. Do you say now that you remember putting it behind the cash-box? I did not put it in the cash-box; I just put it behind the cash-box in my wife's drawers, and thought no more about it.
3522. And do you remember all that taking place thirty-four years ago? Yes, certainly; of course I remember.
3523. What age are you? I was 70 years old on the 4th of last December.
3524. Where were you born? In London.
3525. In what part of London? In the West End. I know Nelson's Monument, the Horse Guards, and the National Gallery.
3526. Where were you born? In Dean-street, near Soho Square.
3527. How old were you when you were transported to Tasmania? I had just turned 16.
3528. For what were you convicted while you were in England? Picking pockets.
3529. Were you tried at the Old Bailey? Yes, that is right.
3530. How many years' sentence did you receive? Seven.
3531. Was that the only offence for which you were tried in England? I will swear positively. What do you mean?
3532. Will you swear that it was the only offence of which you were convicted in England? [No answer].
3533. You were talking about perjury a minute ago; now will you swear that was the only offence you were convicted of in England? Certainly not.
3534. Will you tell me the other offences? No, I will not.

J. Asbury.
22 May, 1895.

3535. President.] You must answer the question.
3536. Sir Julian Salomons.] Now, will you tell me the other offence? The same—picking pockets.
3537. What sentence did you get for that? Merely nominal, three months.
3538. Will you swear that you were not convicted in England of a much more serious offence than that? I swear most positively, on my God, never in my life.
3539. How many times were you convicted in England? Twice only.
3540. And what were the sentences? Three months, and seven years. And then I came out to Tasmania on a ticket-of-leave, as a boy.
3541. You arrived in Hobart Town in what year? 1850; and I was as free as you are, and I could go where I liked. The Judge took me and put sense into my head. I was a wild boy.
3542. Will you not swear you were not charged with robbing your master in England? That was the baker; that was the first case. I took 2s. 8d. that I had collected when going round with bread in the trap. I lost that in the skittle-ground.
3543. Were you not tried for that? No; I was tried because I bolted, and went to Whitechapel, and got in with some bad boys, and then got into trouble for pocket-picking.
3544. For which you received a sentence of seven years? Yes; certainly I did.
3545. Was the public-house you kept in Melbourne in Little Bourke-street? Certainly it was.
3546. And was not that house of yours the regular resort of thieves? No, Sir Julian; I was not there long enough; you are out of it altogether. I was only there a week or two.
3547. How long did you keep that public-house? Only a few weeks; they did not give me any time to get any connection with thieves.
3548. What is the name of the public-house? The "Commercial."
3549. Did you have any other public-house than that? No; not in Melbourne.
3550. How many weeks were you at the "Commercial Hotel"? About five weeks altogether.
3551. What were you doing for your living while in Melbourne when you were not keeping the public-house? In gaol, to where I had been sentenced by Judge Barry.
3552. How long were you in gaol after you were sentenced by Judge Barry? Two and a half years.
3553. What did you do after your sentence had expired and you came out of gaol? I went hawkng.
3554. Where were you living at this time in Melbourne? I cannot tell you—anywhere and everywhere.
3555. Will you tell me what you were doing, and where you were living? No; you want me to do an impossibility. I must ask the protection of the President if you put such questions as that. I had no home to go to when I came out of gaol, so I went to Mr. Duncan's office, and got my discharge and the bit of money that was coming to me. I was then left destitute.
3556. Where did you live in Melbourne after you came out of gaol—that is what I want to know? I had no particular residence; I lived where I could.
3557. How long did you remain in Melbourne after coming out of gaol? I went from one friend to another—Johnny-come-here and a Johnny-go-there.
3558. For how long? For about twelve months.
3559. Can you tell me where you were living during this period? Shifting about from place to place.
3560. Will you tell me where you were living? In lots of places; I cannot tell you any more than that—anywhere.
3561. Where did you go after you left Melbourne? To my daughter's house.
3562. Where was that? At Williamstown.
3563. How long did you stay there? Not long; only a few days.
3564. What was the name of that daughter? Caroline Elizabeth Asbury.
3565. Where did you go after you had remained with your daughter, for a few days? Up country.
3566. Where to? To Deniliquin.
3567. How long did you stay there? Not long—two or three days.
3568. Where did you go then? Across the Old Man Plains, and the Ninety-mile.
3569. And where to then? To Hay.
3570. How long did you stay there? I might have stopped there about a week.
3571. Where did you go then? Up the river, the Murrumbidgee, in the direction of Wagga.
3572. Where did you stay at Wagga? At Robinson's. I engaged with him as a cook.
3573. Where did you go next? To another station.
3574. Did you then go from station to station? Yes; as cook.
3575. How long was it before you came to these Paka Lakes where you say you were poisoned? Years after. I was on the diggings at Temora, made some money, and spent it.
3576. What names did you go by? John Jenkins, unless somebody came across me that knew me as Asbury.
3577. Have you gone by any other names than Jenkins? I don't think so. I cannot positively swear that I have never used any names on the stations, or as cook to the shearers, except Jack Jenkins and Johnnie the Londoner.
3578. What was the name you were using at the station where you were poisoned? Just the same, Jenkins, or, wait a bit, Sir Julian, I am not quite positive about that, but it was either Asbury or Jenkins.
3579. Is it because your memory is bad that you do not remember which name you went by? Yes.
3580. How long has your memory been so defective? It has been bad for a long while.
3581. Do you mean for months or for years? Oh, for this ten years.
3582. Have you had any accident by which your head has been affected? No; not a mark on the whole of my body.
3583. When did you come to Sydney this time? Five weeks to-day.
3584. How long had you been away from Sydney before then? Over twelve months.
3585. Where were you stopping in Sydney over twelve months ago? At the Soup Kitchen, most of my time.
3586. Where did you come from then? Oh, I cannot tell; I go east, north, south, and west; I think I came from towards Tenterfield then.
3587. Cannot you remember distinctly where you came from? Yes; I am positive I came from Tenterfield way. I was in Queensland last September. I went there as cook for the shearers, but there was a strike, and I did not go out into the country.

- J. Asbury. 3588. Then did you come down through Tenterfield to Sydney? Yes.
3589. When you were in Sydney, and not at the Soup Kitchen, where were you living? In a camp on the North Shore.
3590. By yourself? Yes, all alone; I cannot bear anyone with me; I cannot stand company, and unless I know a man I won't speak to him. I have travelled hundreds of miles by myself, and would sooner be by myself.
3591. Where did you camp at North Shore? I cannot tell you, but I could take you to the place.
3592. Have you been to the Soup Kitchen during the last five weeks? No.
3593. How did you get your living? By doing up the gardens, mowing, and other odd jobs.
3594. Were you living all alone at that time? Yes; down amongst the rocks. No one would take the trouble to come down there. It would be as well if you would remand me for half an hour so that you could come and look at it.
3595. Do you say it is very difficult to get there? Just have a try and then you'll see.
3596. How long were you living there? For four weeks.
3597. And did you not say something about a German bringing you a piece of newspaper? Yes.
3598. When did that take place? Last Saturday night.
3599. What is the name of that German? I do not know; but I can show you where he found me. The poor fellow found me, and brought me some bread and meat.
3600. And do you say that he brought you the Evening News? Yes; on Saturday evening he brought the bread and meat wrapped up in part of the Evening News, and then he gave me the other part of the Evening News. I saw my name in that for the first time.
3601. President.] Do you say that the bread was wrapped in the Evening News? Yes; he gave it to me wrapped in the outside of the paper, and he gave me the inside of the paper, pointed out my name, and said "There."
3602. Why did he give it to you in that way? I had been very ill, and thought I was going to die. I told him my name, and told him to get a sergeant of police.
3603. So, then, the German knew your name? Yes; when I thought I was going to die I told him something.
3604. Do you mean to say that up to this time you had never heard anything about this inquiry? No; I had not.
3605. Did you not know anything about your wife being mixed up in this case? No; not until I saw the name in the newspaper last Saturday night.
3606. Do you mean to swear that until that time you knew nothing about this matter? No more than a crow until I saw it on the inside of the Evening News.
3607. Was it then you first saw your name? Yes; and that was the first time I knew anything about this case.
3608. Sir Julian Salomons.] Mr. Asbury, let me ask you this: You remember that dagger scene you mentioned yesterday, when she attempted to stab you? That was only a figgig. I did not take it seriously.
3609. You did not take it seriously? No; I did not think anything about it. I was not frightened. We slept together afterwards. What more can I tell you?
3610. You did not treat that seriously as an attempt to assassinate you? Not at all.
3611. You would not have slept with her after that if you did? I never thought any more about it. We slept together that night.
3612. She did not take the dagger to bed with her? No; I did not think anything about it at all. You won't give me a chance to tell you what she was jealous about. I thought nothing at all of the dagger. We went down home.
3613. And you slept with her that night? Yes.
3614. What is the name of that detective? MacGuire; him and me were friends for years together.
3615. You do not know whether that detective is alive? No; how can I tell?
3616. How many years is it since you saw him? Give me fair play. I read about you going to the old country and all that sort of thing. How can I tell?
3617. You do not know whether that detective is alive or not? Which detective?
3618. The one you have just mentioned? Oh! Johnny MacGuire.
3619. Yes, MacGuire? Him and me was intimate. His wife was the female searcher.
3620. Have you seen him for twenty-five years? How could I see him when I have been in the bush?
3621. How many years is it since you have seen him? You want me to fix a time and I won't. I was in the bush.
3622. You have not seen him since you left Hobart, have you? No; certainly not.
3623. President.] Was he a younger man than you? I think he was a little older. We were very intimate. His wife is the female searcher.
3624. Sir Julian Salomons.] Will you listen to what I have to say;—would you kindly listen to me? Well, go on.
3625. Which was the first, the case of the rat-poisoning or the dagger scene? The rat-poisoning, for years and years. Why, Sir Julian, you are going mad! It was years before.
3626. How many years elapsed? It was after I went to New Zealand and came back and threw a lot of sovereigns in her lap.
3627. You may be put out from here if you do not listen —
3628. President.] You must answer these questions. Do not answer me; attend to Sir Julian? What do you mean me to do, say "yes" or "no."
3629. Sir Julian Salomons.] How many years elapsed from the rat-poisoning case to the dagger scene? I have forgotten about it; we lived too happy.
3630. You were walking outside Hobart;—how did it happen that you kissed her and made it all right afterwards? —
3631. President.] You said you went for a walk with MacGuire, and that your wife appeared suddenly with something in her hand;—you cannot tell what it was or whereabouts that took place? Between Barnett-street and where MacGuire lived in Hobart, just round the corner.
3632. Sir Julian Salomons.] When did that take place? Between 9 and 10 o'clock at night.

J. Asbury.

22 May, 1895.

3633. What time of the year—in the summer or in the winter? I cannot tell you.
3634. Did you view it seriously at the time it took place;—did you take it as a joke or as an attempt to stab you? She would have stabbed me then out of jealousy. She had occasion for it.
3635. Did you not swear you kissed her afterwards? You have not asked me that. Why, reason would be — 3636. Did you not say you kissed her afterwards? Yes, certainly.
3637. And slept with her that night—that very night? Certainly I slept with her.
3638. What was this dagger scene? You will have to find out. I never seen it. I am sure she never did.
3639. What took place? MacGuire told me, "Jack, we had a narrow escape," and threw it over the fence, and that is all I know of it.
3640. What did MacGuire throw over the fence? I do not think it was a dagger. They say it was a dagger. I think it was a table-knife. He said, "Jack, we had a narrow escape."
3641. Who threw it over the hedge—who threw this knife? Why Detective MacGuire, of course.
3642. Threw it where? Where he liked—over the fence.
3643. You never prosecuted her afterwards—why? Prosecute my wife when I slept with her afterwards. That is where you are deficient, Sir Julian. I am surprised at you.
- 3643½. President.] If you will not be quiet I shall have to deal seriously with you. Attend to Sir Julian. Answer his questions, and answer them quietly? Was I misbehaving myself? President: Yes, you were.
3644. Sir Julian Salomons.] You say you kissed her afterwards? Yes, certainly.
3645. On the very road? No; oh, dear, no.
3646. Where did you kiss her? When we got home.
3647. Did you walk home together? Yes, certainly.
3648. What became of MacGuire? He had nothing to do with that. He went where he liked.
3649. And you walked home with her? Yes. Did you want me to charge her with attempting to murder me?
3650. Do you believe she was trying to murder you? Nothing of the sort. I did not believe anything of the sort. If she had I would not have told it at the time. I would not have said she did it.
3651. Do you think it was an ordinary table-knife? I did not see. It only had a little bit of a blade. He threw it away.
3652. That man is in the Police Force? Yes, a sergeant detective; and his wife is the female searcher.
3653. President.] Did you not say yesterday: "We walked along and up Argyle-street. We got up towards the brickfields, when all at once somebody made a rush at us. I half-turned round to see what it was, when MacGuire laid hold of a woman, and both fell down in the road. They struggled for a minute. The woman turned out to be my wife, and she had a long dagger or knife in her hand and a cloak over her head. MacGuire said to me, 'You have had a narrow escape, Jack.' He then got hold of the knife, and threw it towards the Domain. He said to me, 'For God's sake go home.' I then ran away, while he still had hold of my wife?" That is a mistake. I did not say it. I do not recollect it.
3654. You do not think you said that yesterday? No; nothing of the sort. I cannot say if it was a dagger or a knife. It was in the dark. How could I tell? He said to me, "Jack, we had a narrow escape," and he threw it over the fence. They tumbled in the road, and you can ask her if I am not telling the truth. MacGuire was a friend of mine, and he hushed it up.
3655. You say that what I have just read to you is a mistake? Which?
3656. Sir Julian Salomons.] "That I turned round, and MacGuire laid hold of a woman, and both tumbled in the road?" That is correct. Yes; she was disguised.
3657. You walked home with her? Yes; MacGuire went to his own house.
3658. Did you walk home with your wife? Certainly; we went home and slept together that night, and I kissed her, and I said, "What did you want to stab me for?"
3659. When did you say that? In my bed—when we were in bed together. I asked her what she wanted to stab me for, and she gave me an answer which you will not ask me.
3660. President.] Again I ask you to be quiet;—have you had anything to drink to-day? No; only excitement.
3661. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you not drunk anything to-day;—what have you been drinking—spirits or beer?
3662. President.] What have you been drinking since you were here before? A little tiny bit of cheese.
3663. What have you been drinking? One single glass of beer, that cost 3d., bought for out of my own pocket.
3664. Sir Julian Salomons.] In Melbourne you remember what you told us about the watch you bought from a young gentleman? I do not think I can forget it. I have not long to live; that is a certainty.
3665. Do you remember you said this yesterday in answer to questions put to you?
- (Q.) Some time after you bought the watch and chain from that young gentleman did the police come to you about it? Yes; the detective police came.
- (Q.) Did you show them the watch and chain? No; that is where I did wrong.
- (Q.) Did you tell them something? They had a search-warrant, and made a search, but found nothing the first time.
- (Q.) Did they search twice, then? They came again, and took me to the watch-house, and while I was at the watch-house a woman I had there named Winifred Dalwood told Detective Foster where the watch and chain were in the bed.
3666. Do you remember saying that? There was never such a word as Winifred Dalwood mentioned to my knowledge yesterday. You will see if I am correct.
3667. President.] Here are the notes: "(Q.) Did they search twice, then?" and your answer is: "They came again, and took me to the watch-house, and while I was at the watch-house, a woman I had there named Winifred Dalwood told Detective Foster where the watch and chain were in the bed?" Ah! I see; that is true.
3668. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you not swear you did not mention the name of Winifred Dalwood yesterday, or did you not? Well, I must have done.
3669. Do you remember mentioning it? Yes; I swear I recollect. Yes, I do. That gentleman on my left hustled me the other day.

- J. Asbury, 3670. Did you not a moment ago make a mistake when you swore that you said that you were positive that you did not mention the name of Winifred Dalwood yesterday;—that was a mistake, was it not?
 22 May, 1895. Did I say positively?
 3671. Yes; a moment ago? That is what I told you. Yes; I recollect something about that.
 3672. Did you not a moment ago swear positively that you did not mention the name of Winifred Dalwood? I say to the best of my belief.
 3673. Did you not say a moment ago that you did not mention the name of Winifred Dalwood yesterday? Not to my recollection.
 3674. Had you forgotten it? I suppose I must have, but not wilfully.
 3675. You had forgotten it? Yes.
 3676. Now you remember that Winifred Dalwood gave information to the police? No; what do I know about that?
 3677. Didn't you say that yesterday? Oh, dear, no.
 3678. She did not? Oh, dear, no.
 3679. She did not tell the police anything? Certainly not.
 3680. She didn't make any communication to the police? No; I will swear that positively.
 3681. President.] Listen to what you said yesterday then: "They came again (that is, the police) and took me to the watch-house, and while I was at the watch-house a woman I had there, named Winifred Dalwood, told Detective Foster where the watch and chain were in the bed." What do you mean by saying that Winifred Dalwood gave no information to the police?
 3682. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you swear to that yesterday?
 3683. President.] Did you say what I read to you just now on Monday? Certainly; that is correct.
 3684. Is that right? Correct.
 3685. That is right? Correct.
 3686. Detective Foster was in the police I presume? Correct to the letter. Yes, I swear all that.
 3687. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you not swear, a few moments ago, that Winifred Dalwood gave no information to the police? No! I did not say anything of that sort. What have I got to do with Winifred Dalwood? Show me where I have mentioned her name. You cannot show. I is a new thing to mention her.
Sir Julian Salomons.] I won't trouble you any more to-day.
President.] Do you want to ask him anything, Mr. Meagher?
Mr. Meagher.] No, I would rather not, without Mr. Pilcher.
 3688. Dr. Jones.] You remember the first occasion on which you were ill—you had taken cold pork, you said, and a glass of ale—you remember that occasion? On the first occasion?
 3689. Yes? No, no! a portion of a cold leg of pork—only a portion. We were having a little snack.
 3690. Do you remember what the medicine Dr. Agnew gave you was like? What, the powder? He gave me a powder, and they mixed it with sugar, and I had to take it dry. I vomited it directly I took it, and Dr. Dougherty, his brother-in-law, belonging to Oaklands, stood at the foot of my bed at the time.
 3691. The medicine was a white powder, you say? Yes; I took it and thought no more about it—no more than a baby.
 3692. You told us you had vomiting and purging? Yes, previously.
 3693. Previous to taking the medicine? Yes, certainly.
 3694. Did you have any other symptoms? Yes, I had tremblings in the fingers and contraction of the muscles.
 3695. Did you tremble in any other way? Yes, like I did under the tree. It brought my fingers up, and I said to M'Pherson, "For God's sake look here." I was drawing a batch of bread, and I said, "Mind this bread." I never thought of the poisoning then.
 3696. Were your legs affected? Yes, all the sinews were drawn up. I was a young man, and I didn't think anything about it.
 3697. How soon did you get well? Dr. Dougherty was standing at the end of the bed. He said, "Now, mind what you do; mind the vomit."
 3698. How soon did you get well? About three days afterwards.
 3699. You were alright after that? Yes, as right as the Bank of England. I never thought any more about it, or ever dreamt of such a thing as poison.
 3700. You remember the bottle of arsenic you put on the shelf behind the Old Tom bottles;—you took that bottle down sometime afterwards? Yes, a long time afterwards.
 3701. You say you noticed the cork was swollen? Yes, the cork was taken out.
 3702. You say the lower part of the cork was swollen? Certainly; exactly.
 3703. So that you had difficulty in extracting it? Yes, I did. I bit it with my teeth.
 3704. Was there any fluid in the bottle? No, a white powder.
 3705. There was no fluid there, no water or liquid? No, nothing; it was all dirty round the cork like cobwebs; like the other bottles were, because they were only show bottles; only dummy bottles.
 3706. You bit off some of the cork? Yes, round the edge.
 3707. You didn't know that was a dangerous thing to do? No; I never dreamt of such a thing.
 3708. You knew what effect it had on the rats? Didn't he explain to me all about it; how careful I had to be with it.
 3709. You knew what effect it had on the rats? Yes.
 3710. You did not think it was dangerous to bite that cork? No, not the slightest; I never dreamt about it, and it never hurt me. I bit some of the cork, but did not put the bottle in the cash-box as the papers state, I put it behind.
 3711. President.] When did you say you were married, in 1852 or 1853? In 1853; I laid awake thinking of it all night. I cannot sleep, thinking over this affair.
 3712. In 1853 you got married. What month? On the 2nd May, 1853.
 3713. Carrie was born in 1854? Yes, on the 24th May, 1854. We don't hear of her being called, thank God! because she was a respectable woman, and reared at boarding-school.
 3714. Then on this 24th May she would have been 41 years old? Yes.
 3715. Of this month? Yes, she was christened at Mrs. M'Guire's. Now, mind this, I must tell you Mrs. M'Guire is her Godmother. Now, President, what else? I have come to tell the truth.
 3716. You have been reading the paper carefully since you gave evidence yesterday? Not at all.

3717. Where did you find out the mistakes made by the reporters in your evidence? Simply by a party throwing the paper in front of me, and I casually looked over it; and there I saw where they made mistakes—that is all. I take no interest in it, because my mind is too upset after seeing that woman I have not seen for twenty-one years.

J. Asbury.
22 May, 1895.

3718. You remember the time you were charged with stealing the watch that you say you bought at 11 o'clock at night? Before 11; the house was not shut when I came home.

3719. But there was no law about 11 o'clock at night then? I beg your pardon.

3720. In Melbourne? I stand by that.

3721. That you had to close at 11 o'clock? Yes, exactly.

3722. In what year was this? In 1869. I am certain of the thing.

3723. What year did you go to Melbourne in first? When I first went there? Some years before there were any diggings thought about.

3724. When did you first go to Melbourne from Hobart? In January, 1869, when I sold my freehold property.

3725. Before you were charged you bought this watch and chain? Yes; before the house was closed.

3726. Had your daughter been down to your house before you were charged with stealing the watch and chain;—had your daughter been down to your house? Yes; two or three mornings before.

3726½. Did you ever show her the watch and chain? No fear. I didn't show her. I will tell you what attracted her attention. She was in the habit of coming from the mother from Carlton. I had not a barman, and had to be up very late at night; consequently, I did not get up in the morning, and she used to come earlier than usual and go behind the bar and help herself and had anything she liked, and the child used to run up the stairs to me and say, "Father, come along down." I would put her on the bed, and always used to give her something.

3727. When were you at this place in Melbourne? When I was allowing her £1 a week. Carrie was then 16 years old.

3728. Did you put her on the bed then? No; she was not 16 years old then.

3729. What did you put her on the bed for—to play with a rattle, I suppose? She used to come and sit alongside of me at the foot of the bed.

3730. You said on the bed? On the foot of the bed. I would not lift her off her feet to put her on the bed. On the foot of the bed, as a child would. She was only 15 years old.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Annie Thompson sworn and examined:—

3731. Mr. Meagher, for Mr. Pilcher.] Your name is Mrs. Thompson? Yes.

3732. And you live with your husband—where? At Miller-street, North Sydney.

3733. Do you know George Dean? Yes.

3734. Did you reside anywhere in the vicinity of where George Dean lived? Yes; I lived next door but one to him.

Mrs. A.
Thompson.
22 May, 1895.

3735. Were you there before the Deans came to live there or afterwards? I was there before they came to live there.

3736. And you live there still? Yes; I live there now.

3737. Do you remember the month of March some illness being in the house? Yes; I do.

3738. Did you go into Dean's house then? Yes; I went in on the 5th March.

3739. Do you remember what day the 5th of March was? Yes; it was on a Tuesday.

3740. You went into Dean's house on a Tuesday then? Yes.

3741. How did you come to go in. Were you sent for or did you go in on your own account? Mr. Dean came into my place and asked me or my husband to go for a doctor. He said he could not leave his wife, she was too ill.

3742. Who went for the doctor;—did your husband go for the doctor? I offered to do what I could for Mrs. Dean, and he said he would be very glad, and my husband went for the doctor immediately.

3743. Did you eventually go into Dean's house? Yes, that was the first time I was ever in there.

3744. You went in then? Yes, I went in.

3745. Where was Mrs. Dean? Mrs. Dean was in her bedroom, upstairs.

3746. Did you see Dean when you went into the bedroom? Yes; he was sitting on a chair close to the bedside, giving the baby its food.

3747. Mr. Pilcher.] What time in the morning was this? A little after 8 o'clock, I think. I cannot remember exactly.

3748. It was about 8 o'clock? Yes; or a little after.

3749. You went into the room? Yes.

3750. And where was Mrs. Dean? She was in bed.

3751. Did you sit down; or what did you do? I took some hot water and washed the baby. I took the baby from Mr. Dean, and he got me some of the things to wash the baby with.

3752. Did you notice Dean; did you notice what he was doing? When I took the baby he went to his wife and raised her up on the bed, and seemed to shake up the pillows as if to make her comfortable.

3753. Where was Dean when you went in? Sitting on a chair by the bedside, giving the baby its food.

3754. You took the baby from him? Yes, I did.

3755. When he raised his wife up in the bed to make her more comfortable, did his wife say anything? I do not remember.

3756. Did she ask you for anything? She asked me to give her some tea.

3757. Do you remember her words;—did she address him speaking to him by name? I do not remember.

3758. Well, say it as well as you can? She asked me for some tea, and he said, "You know you must not have it, it is forbidden by the doctor." She said, "I would feel so much better if I had some tea." He said, "I have not got any in the house." I said, "If she will have it go and get my tea." He asked her to drink it very slowly, but she drank it very fast.

Mrs. A.
Thompson.
22 May, 1895.

3759. After that? After he had given her the tea she said, "Oh, George! I will not get better; you'll have baby, she will be good to you." He said, "Oh! don't say that," and completely broke down.
3760. What do you mean by completely broke down? Crying.
3761. This was on Tuesday morning, between 8 and 9 o'clock? Yes.
3762. Shortly after 8 o'clock? Yes.
3763. Just about that time the doctor came in? Yes; Mr. Dean was crying when the doctor came in.
3764. That was on the Tuesday morning? Yes.
3765. Up to the time the doctor came in, can you tell me, whilst you were in the room, was Dean's manner affectionate and kind? Yes; it could not be more so.
3766. Dean could not be more affectionate and kind? No man could be more so.
3767. That was while you were in the room? Yes. When the doctor came I said to Dean, "You had better go down stairs to the doctor," and he said, "He knows the way."
3768. Dean was where;—on the bed? He was lying on the bed outside the clothes.
3769. What took place when the doctor came in? The doctor went to Mrs. Dean and he noticed she had taken tea, and he said, "What is the use of my coming here if you do not take my advice?" Dean said, "It is not my fault; she would have the tea."
3770. What did the doctor say? He said, "You must not give her the tea; I told you last night she was not to have it." He asked Mrs. Dean if she had been taking anything else, and she said, "No," and Mr. Dean said she had been taking something out of a bottle—lemonade, or lemon syrup, or something else.
3771. What did Mrs. Dean say to that? She said, "Doctor, I took some lemon syrup and I became ill. I took it out of a bottle on Saturday, and I became ill."
3772. What did the doctor say? He seemed to treat the matter very lightly.
3773. Did he say anything? No; he treated it very lightly.
3774. Do you remember the doctor saying anything while he was writing his prescription or directly after,—something about getting better or all right? No, I don't.
3775. Just after;—do you remember the doctor saying anything to Dean on that occasion;—anything about getting better, or all right? He told Mr. Dean there was no need for any alarm.
3776. Can you remember the words—see if you can;—just think as to whether she would be well soon or not; that is what I mean? I cannot remember.
3777. And he did say there was no need for any alarm? Yes; he did say that.
3778. Did Dean remain in the room all the time the doctor was there? Yes; and went down stairs with the doctor.
3779. Did he take anything with him;—what became of the prescription? I do not know.
3780. Dean went down with him? Yes; Dean went down stairs with the doctor.
3781. After the doctor went down did some lady come in? Yes.
3782. Who was that? I did not know the lady; I do not know her name.
3783. What was she like? She was a rather tall, thick-set woman; rather a young woman.
3784. Was she fair or dark? Well, you could not call it dark, and you could not call it fair; it was between the colours. She had light brown hair; frizzy hair.
3785. Was she a good-looking woman? Yes.
3786. Stout and tall? Yes; I did not know her name.
3787. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was this not Millie Lee? Mr. Pilcher: Yes.
3788. Mr. Pilcher.] When she came in she told you something about the medicine? Yes; she said she would be able to follow the doctor's prescription, to follow it out, and that she would remain there till Dean came back with the medicine, and do what the doctor ordered.
3789. Did you go away then? I was down stairs then.
3790. And did you go away? Yes; I went away a few minutes after.
3791. And you left Mrs. Lee in charge? Yes; and I didn't see her any more.
3792. President.] Where are these prescriptions? Sir Julian Salomons: I think they are attached to the depositions. We will inquire and get them.
3793. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you go in again in the afternoon? Yes.
3794. Was Mrs. Lee there then? No, she had gone.
3795. What time did she go? She went between half-past 3 and 4 o'clock.
3796. Was Dean's wife in bed? Yes.
3797. What was Dean doing? He was bathing his wife's head with vinegar and water with a cloth. He was sitting near the bed.
3798. Did Mrs. Dean ask you to get anything for her? Yes, some ice. A man was calling out ice in the street, and she said she would like some.
3799. Did Dean get any? Yes; and he broke some off in a cloth and put it on her forehead, and gave her some to put in her mouth.
3800. What did she say to that? She said it was very nice, and that she felt much better.
3801. Did you form any opinion as to whether she looked better? Yes; she looked much better. She said she hoped to be quite well by the end of the week.
3802. Then you went away? Yes.
3803. On that occasion was Dean's conduct kind, and as any woman would wish it to be? Yes.
3804. No doubt about it? No.
3805. Perfectly kind? Perfectly kind.
3806. And affectionate? Yes.
3807. Do you remember a Sunday night early in February? Yes.
3808. Where was your house with reference to Dean's house? My house was next door but one on the same side of the street. Mr. Dean's house was a two-storied house; mine was a cottage.
3809. Your house was next door but one on the same side of the road? Yes.
3810. Do you remember which Sunday it was—the first or the second Sunday? I don't remember.
3811. Where were you standing? At my front gate.
3812. In the street? Yes.
3813. Did you see Mrs. Dean that night? Yes.

Mrs. A.
Thompson.
22 May, 1895.

3814. About what time at night was this? About 8 o'clock, or a little after.
 3815. At night? Yes.
 3816. Where did you first see her? I saw her go into her own place.
 3817. How was she dressed? She was dressed in light clothes.
 3818. Where did you first see her;—where was she coming from? She was coming down the street.
 3819. Towards her house? Yes; towards her own house.
 3820. Was she dressed as if she had been out somewhere? Yes.
 3821. Did she have either a hat or a bonnet on? She had a hat on.
 3822. Did she remain in her own house long? No; just for a few minutes.
 3823. What did she do then? She came out again.
 3824. Which gate did she come out of? The front gate; the same gate as she went in.
 3825. Are there two entrances to Dean's place? There are three entrances—one in the front, a side entrance, and one at the back. The side entrance is from an allotment of land alongside.
 3826. Into the yard? Yes.
 3827. The front gate is in the front of the house? Yes.
 3828. Was anyone with her? No.
 3829. Where did she go? She went up the road, and came back with a lady, and the lady was carrying her baby.
 3830. Where did they go? They went inside and remained there.
 3831. After they had gone inside, and whilst you were still at the gate, did you notice anything else? Yes. Another lady came down the road on the opposite side, and I recognised her as Mrs. Seymour. She went towards the side gate, but I do not know whether she went in.
 3832. Are you quite certain it was Mrs. Seymour? In my own mind I am positive it was Mrs. Seymour.
 3833. Was it a moonlight night? Yes.
 3834. A clear bright night? A clear, beautiful, bright night. It was dull at times, but while it was bright it was very bright.
 3835. Shortly after that had you occasion to go down your yard? Yes, I did.
 3836. Your husband called you and you went down the yard? Yes.
 3837. You went down for some reason of your own? Yes.
 3838. When you went down the yard did your husband point out anything to you? He came down into the house.
 3839. Did you go down the yard with him then? Yes.
 3840. When you went down the yard did he point out anything to you? Yes.
 3841. What did you see? He pointed to a figure outside.
 3842. Outside your fence? Yes.
 3843. Did you look and see? Yes.
 3844. What did your husband say? He came down into the house and said, "Come out here," which I did, and he pointed out something and said, "Who do you think that is?" I said at once, "That is Mrs. Seymour." This person, when my husband noticed her first, before he told me, was sitting down on the grass. A light came suddenly into the back window, and she got up and moved. My husband saw her sitting on the grass, and she got up, and he asked me who she was, and I said, "That is Mrs. Seymour."
 3845. Where did she go? She stayed behind the shop fence. There is a shop at the corner, and she stayed behind it. She stopped there for a while, and presently I saw another lady.
 3846. Did you notice the lady who went over to Mrs. Seymour? Yes; I recognised her as Mrs. Dean. She had a black cloak on, and she remained with Mrs. Seymour.
 3847. Did you see anyone go out of the house? No.
 3848. When was this? About 9 o'clock, or a little after.
 3849. What did these people do;—how long did they stand there? They were there for some minutes, about 10 minutes or a quarter of an hour; then they came into Dean's house by the back gate.
 3850. Did you see where they went to then? No; I could not see them go into the house, but I could hear them wiping their feet outside their own house.
 3851. Do you know anything of Dean's habits? Yes; he used to come home with my husband in the morning, but did not go with him at night; it was not necessary for him to go so early.
 3852. Was this on a Sunday night? Yes.
 3853. What is your husband? He is the engine-driver on the same steamer as Dean.
 3854. You seem to have thought that Dean went away from the house without knowing Mrs. Seymour was there;—what hour did Dean go away? On a Sunday night he goes away a little after 9 o'clock.
 3855. Was that light in the window appearing or disappearing? It disappeared.
 3856. Just before these people went into the yard? Yes.
 3857. What you say happened on a Sunday early in February—the first or second Sunday in February? Yes.
 3858. Sir Julian Salomons.] What date is this you say in February when you saw Mrs. Seymour? When my husband saw her first she was sitting on the grass. I cannot remember the date.
 3859. When was it? The first or second Sunday in February.
 3860. I suppose your husband is in Sydney? Yes.
 3861. How long has he been employed on this boat? I cannot tell exactly, but I know it is more than three years.
 3862. He has been all the time that Dean was there? Yes.
 3863. And he was there at the time this accusation was made against Dean? Yes.
 3864. Did he visit you? He visited us occasionally.
 3865. He lived next door to you? No; next door but one.
 3866. You will admit that during all this account you have given us about lying on the bed, the ice, the prescription, the medicine, &c., that at that time you had no suspicion of anyone administering poison to his wife? No, I had not; such a thing never entered our minds.
 3867. It never entered your mind? No; it did not.
 3868. Will you admit that you said that this happened on a Tuesday? Yes.
 3869. And that you have spoken of this to Dr. Newmarch? Yes.
 3870. Did not Dr. Newmarch tell you you were wrong, and that what you have described happened on a Wednesday? I remember perfectly well that it was on a Tuesday. 3871.

Mrs. A.
Thompson.
22 May, 1895.

3871. Did not Dr. Newmarch tell you it was on a Wednesday? Yes; but it was on a Tuesday.
 3872. Are you positive of this? Yes; Dr. Newmarch said he could not remember Mr. Dean being in the room on the Tuesday.
 3873. Did not Dr. Newmarch tell you that when he came in, and Dean was crying through something his wife had said about not getting better, that was on a Wednesday and not on a Tuesday;—do you remember telling Dr. Newmarch that he was bathing his wife's head with ice? Yes.
 3874. Did not Dr. Newmarch tell you that there was no ice in the house on Tuesday, that it was on the Wednesday? No, he did not; it was in the afternoon that Dean was bathing his wife's head.
 3875. And you persist in saying that it was on a Tuesday? Yes, I insist; I say that it was on a Tuesday.
 3876. You say that it was in the afternoon that Dean was bathing his wife's head with ice? Yes; between half-past 3 and 4 o'clock, after the doctor had been. The doctor was there in the morning a little after 8 o'clock.
 3877. He was bathing her head with ice? He broke some off into a cloth, and gave her some to put into her mouth.
 3878. That was when? On Tuesday, between half-past 3 and 4 o'clock.
 3879. When was he crying on the bed? In the morning at 8 o'clock or a little after.
 3880. That was on a Tuesday? Yes.
 3881. You had no idea of any crime being committed? No.
 3882. You did not make any note in this matter of any kind? No, I did not.
 3883. Do you remember telling Dr. Newmarch this: "When you came in, doctor, he was bathing her head with ice"? No, I do not.
 3884. You say it was in the afternoon? Yes; it was in the afternoon he was bathing her head with ice.
 3885. Do you remember, since this agitation began, that you were asked by the police to state all you knew about this matter? Yes; by two gentlemen who came to my house.
 3886. Only about three weeks ago—on the 29th April? I cannot remember the date.
 3887. Something more than three weeks ago? Yes.
 3888. You remember the detectives coming and asking you about this matter;—did you state one word about what you have said to-day about this Sunday in February—on your oath? I did not. I said, anything I had further to say I would say when I was called to give evidence.
 3889. You admit you said that? Did you not make a long statement and put your name to it? Yes.
 3890. There is something you have said to-day about the baby and about the Tuesday;—is not the only matter you mentioned what took place on the 5th March? Yes.
 3891. Did you ever say one word about Mrs. Seymour crouching or sitting on the grass, or Mrs. Dean going out to meet her that Sunday night in February;—did you say one word? No, not one word.
 3892. That was three weeks ago? About three weeks ago.
 3893. Is not this what you said three weeks ago:—

Miller-street, North Sydney, 29 April, 1895.

ANNIE THOMPSON states: I am the wife of Thomas Charles Thompson, residing two doors from the house recently occupied by George Dean; on Tuesday morning, the 5th of March last, Mr. Dean came to my house and asked my husband if he would go for the doctor; Mr. Thompson went for Dr. Newmarch, and I went in to see what I could do for Mrs. Dean; Mr. Dean was feeding the baby out of a bottle; he was sitting in a chair near the bed; this was about 8.30 a.m.; I took the baby from Mr. Dean and washed her; Mr. Dean got me the utensils while washing the baby; Mrs. Dean insisted upon her husband giving her some tea; he begged her not to have it, mentioning that the doctor said she was not to have any tea; he had no tea made in his own house, and I told him he had better go to my place and get my tea-pot; he came in and got it; he gave Mrs. Dean about half a cupful, and told her to drink it very slowly; she drank it very quickly; afterwards Dean raised his wife on the pillow and fanned her; Mrs. Dean then said, "Oh, George, I won't get better, you are all right, you will have baby; she will be good to you;" then he said, "Oh, don't say that," and broke down; Dean was leaning over Mrs. Dean when the doctor arrived; he noticed that Mrs. Dean had been taking tea; the doctor said, "You have been taking tea, what is the use of my prescribing for you if you do not follow my advice?" Dean said, "It is not my fault, doctor, she insisted on having it;" the doctor then said to Dean, "There is no need for alarm, she is not dangerously ill," and the doctor wrote out a prescription and mentioned how the medicine was to be used; I said, "I will do my best if there is no one else here;" the doctor ordered lime water and milk, to be taken slowly; and then Mr. Dean told the doctor, "Doctor, she has been taking something out of a bottle, either lemonade or lemon syrup;" then Mrs. Dean told the doctor what she had been taking, referring to the syrup; she had taken it to him, but he was not in; the doctor appeared to take but very little interest in the matter, and they both left the room together; Mr. Dean was present in the room all the time the doctor was there; I tidied up the place, and returned about 10.30 a.m.; while I was there a lady called, and remained there after I left; she said she thought she could attend to Mrs. Dean; I went in again in the afternoon; I found Mr. Dean sitting on the bedside, bathing his wife's head with vinegar and water, and while I was there he purchased some ice from an ice-cream man who was passing the house; this was about 4 p.m.; he applied it to his wife's head, and gave her some to put in her mouth; Mrs. Dean remarked it was very nice and "my head is much better," and then she said, "I hope to be well by the end of the week;" I know Mr. Dean to be a kind and good natured man.

Witness—

WM. J. TINDALL.

ANNIE THOMPSON.

Will you tell me why you did not state a word of all this other matter you have told us to-day about Mrs. Seymour's visit? I thought I would wait till I was called and say it then.

3894. What reason can you give for not making that statement then; can you give any reason; is this the statement made by you in answer to questions asked by the police, or did you volunteer this statement? I made it of my own free will.

3895. President.] Were you asked by question and answer, or did you make the statement of your own free will? When these gentlemen came to my place they said they wanted me to make a statement, and I gave it of my own free will. They asked me to state all I knew up till the Tuesday. I made the statement and said, "That is all I know of the Tuesday; anything else I will tell when I am called."

3896. Sir Julian Salomons.] Mr. Tindall and Mr. Cliff came to see you—two gentlemen? Yes.

3897. Did not they ask you if you knew anything more about this matter, and you said no? They only asked me about on the Tuesday.

3898. Did not you say, "Anything else I know I will tell at the trial"? I said, "That is all I know on the Tuesday, and anything else I will say at the trial."

3899. Did they ask you whether there was anything else you knew? Yes; and I said I would say the rest when I was called.

3900. Did you remember this additional information at the time? Yes, I did.

3901. Then why did not you tell them? They only asked me what occurred on the Tuesday.

3902. Why did you not tell it to them then. You have admitted they asked you if there was anything more you could tell, and that they did not ask you particularly about the Tuesday, and that they asked you to tell all you knew. Did they not ask you to tell all you knew without any limit to time? They asked me if that was all I knew on Tuesday, and I said if I have anything else to say I will say it when I am called.
3903. Did they not ask you anything apart from the Tuesday? I do not remember them asking me about any other time.
3904. Did you remember what you have told us to-day then? Yes.
3905. Then why did not you tell it to them? I do not know why I did not tell them.
3906. Why did you keep it back. You can give no reason? No; I thought what I told them about the Tuesday was all they wanted.
3907. Did I not ask you if they did not ask if you had any more to say, and you said you would tell it here? Yes. They only asked me to tell them what they asked me about the Tuesday.
3908. Will you not admit that they did not limit you to Tuesday;—did you intentionally reserve it? I thought if I was asked anything more I would tell it when I was called.
3909. Did you intentionally reserve it? Yes.
3910. President.] Did you intentionally keep it back till now? Yes.
3911. Sir Julian Salomons.] You thought it would be better for Dean? Yes.
3912. Why, Mrs. Thompson? I can't give any answer.
[Sir Julian Salomons.] If you can give no reason I will not press you any more.
3913. How long have you known Dean? The first time I met him was about a year and five months ago.
3914. Was he then going under the name of George Dean or George Finch? He was going under the name of George Dean.
3915. You did not know him as George Finch? No.
3916. Do you know anything of any trouble at Nareandera? No.
3917. You knew nothing of that? No.
3918. Did you know anything about his brother being on board the "Vernon"? No; I know nothing of his family.
3919. You did not know his stepfather? No; I have never seen him.
3920. What is the name of the family that lived next door to you? Weynton.
3921. Did the Weyntons live between you and Dean? Yes.
3922. I suppose you remember Dean being brought up at the Police Court at North Shore? Yes.
3923. And his being committed for trial? Yes.
3924. And the trial at Darlinghurst, before Judge Windeyer? Yes.
3925. How long have you been living next door to the Weyntons, at North Shore? About a year and seven months.
3926. Were the Weyntons living there all that time? Yes, they were living there before I came to live there.
3927. Dean has been in your place? Yes, on different occasions.
3928. Have you visited the Weyntons? No.
3929. Have you ever seen Dean there, paying a visit? No, I have never seen him there.
3930. You know that strychnine was found in the medicines? Yes.
3931. Were you aware that the police unearthed strychnine in Weynton's paddock, since this man was convicted? Yes, I remember that.
3932. How long was this after this man was convicted;—about how long? Just a few weeks ago. I do not remember exactly.
3933. I suppose you did not know it was buried there? No.
3934. You knew nothing about that? No.
3935. You knew nothing about the Weyntons having strychnine at their place? I knew nothing about it till Mr. Weynton told my husband about it the day Dean was arrested. I remember Mr. Weynton telling my husband that he had had strychnine in his house. He had got it to poison a mangy dog, and when it came out that there had been some poisoning he thought it better to get it out of the house, and he buried it in his garden.
3936. You did know then? Yes; I did know then.
3937. Was this before or after Dean was tried that you knew this? When Mr. Dean was arrested Mr. Weynton told my husband that he had some strychnine, and that when this case came on he thought it better to bury it in the garden.
3938. Were you present when the police were told that there was no strychnine in Mr. Weynton's house? No, I was not.
3939. What day was that when Dean was arrested;—how many weeks was it before the police found it? It was after the conviction—a few weeks ago.
3940. You saw it dug up? No; I did not know anything about it till they got it.
3941. Where were you then? I was at my own place.
3942. From your place you could see over the fence into Mr. Weynton's? No; not very well.
3943. If you were to stand at your fence you could look over into Mr. Weynton's? Yes, you can at one part of it.
3944. You admit that you knew about strychnine being in the house next door; then why did you not make it your business to give information to the police? I did not think it was my business to say anything about my neighbours.
3945. You admit you know strychnine was found in the manner you have described, but you did not think it your duty to give information to the police? No.
3946. Did not the police come to your house as well as to Mr. Weynton's about this matter;—do you remember that? No, I do not.
3947. You won't swear that you do not? No.
3948. You say you did not think it was your business;—you have known Dean a good many years? About a year and seven months.
3949. Is it true that you did not think it your duty to give any aid to the police because you thought it might harm the young man? No, I did not think that at all.

Mrs. A.
Thompson.
22 May, 1895.

- Mrs. A. Thompson.
22 May, 1895.
3950. Didn't you say it was not your business;—well what do you mean by that? Because it was nothing to do with me.
3951. Is it not a fact that your husband asked you to say nothing at all about it? No, he did not.
3952. What do you mean by saying it was not your business to give information to the police;—can you give any reason? No, I cannot.
3953. You will not deny that you were on friendly terms with Mr. Dean? Just friendly.
3954. How long was he on the same boat as your husband? I cannot say how long.
3955. Was it for more than a year? Yes.
3956. I understood you to say it was more than three years;—is it three years that Dean was on the boat with your husband? I cannot say.
3957. Was he (Dean) not originally a fire-boy? No; he was captain.
3958. Was he not also a fire-boy at one time? Yes; I believe so.
3959. Didn't you say that your husband and this man Dean used to go to the boat together? Yes.
3960. What time did they start together in the morning? They are both on the night-boat.
3961. What time did they start? My husband used to leave at 10 o'clock on the week nights, and Mr. Dean used to leave at half-past 10.
3962. But for how long did they go together? For six months; they did not go together; Mr. Dean was always half an hour behind my husband.
3963. Didn't you say that they did not come back together, but that they did go together? No; Mr. Dean was always half an hour behind my husband; occasionally they might have gone together.
3964. Did they come back together? Yes; only always in the morning.
3965. For how long was that? For about six months; since they have been living in Miller-street.
3966. I want you to admit that the reason you did not give the information to the police was that you did not want to harm Dean? No; I did not keep it back on account of that.
3967. What is the reason you did not give this information that strychnine was found in the next house;—you said it was no business of yours? Yes.
3968. What do you mean by that? I did not want to tell anything about any other neighbours.
3969. Of course you will admit that you knew well that if strychnine was in the next place it could do Dean no good—that strychnine being found in the medicine and in the next house could do him no good? I do not know that it could do him any harm. It was a pink powder.
3970. That is in Weynton's? Yes.
3971. Where did you see this powder? I was told it was a pink powder.
3972. Who by? By Mr. Weynton.
3973. Didn't you know that that strychnine was kept in an open fowl-house or wash-shed in the next yard? No; I did not know.
3974. Will you swear it was not? No; I do not know anything about it.
3975. You do not know where it was kept? No; I do not know.
3976. There is an open wash-shed in the next yard? Yes; I believe there is.
3977. The reason you did not tell the police was because it would do Dean an immense amount of harm;—is not that the truth? No; it is not.
3978. You can give me no reason then why you did not tell? No; I cannot.
3979. Mr. Weynton you say told you about the strychnine after Dean was arrested? In the evening Mr. Weynton came into my place and told me that he had had some strychnine in the house for months, that he got it to poison a dog that had the mange.
3980. He came and told you that on the evening Dean was arrested? Yes.
3981. And was your husband there? Yes; my husband was there.
3982. And not only you didn't, but you and your husband never gave that information to the police? No; he did not know.
3983. Neither of you gave information to the police? No.
3984. Where were you when the police were digging in the ground? In my own house.
3985. Did you know the police were there? No.
3986. You did not know they were digging? No.
3987. You did not know it? No; the next morning I saw it in the paper.
3988. You admit that you did not know it had been buried there? Yes; I admit I did not know it had been buried there.
3989. Do you remember anything about that dog being poisoned? No; I know nothing about that.
3990. You do not know when it was? No.
3991. Am I right in saying that until the night when Mr. Weynton stated about the strychnine you did not know they had strychnine in the house? No; that was the first time I knew it.
3992. Mr. Pilcher.] Tell me this, Mrs. Thompson: As I understand it, on the night that Dean was arrested Mr. Weynton told you that he had some poison in the house, and that he had got it for some dog;—what was that you said about the burying? When Mr. Weynton came in he said he did not like the idea of the poison being in the house, and he thought he would bury it in the garden.
3993. Was that on two occasions? No; only on one occasion.
3994. The night that Dean was arrested Mr. Weynton told you that they had some poison in the house that they had got for a dog? Yes.
3995. When did he tell you that he buried that poison;—was it on the night of Dean's arrest? Yes; I believe it was the night Mr. Dean was arrested.
3996. You believe he told you on the same night that he buried it in the garden? Yes.
3997. You said nothing about that to the police, because you did not like to tell things about your neighbours? No; I did not.
3998. At the time Mr. Weynton told you that had you any reason to doubt his word? No; not at all.
3999. You believed Mr. Weynton's statement? Yes.
4000. To be true? Yes.
4001. So far as you believed that could throw no light on Dean's case? No; not as far as I believed. I never speak to my neighbours.
4002. At the time Mr. Weynton told you you believed it? Yes; I did.
4003. And you could see no connection between that and Dean's case? No.

4004. Sir Julian Salomons.] You admitted to me that you knew that strychnine was found in the medicine—that you read it in the paper, I think? Yes.
4005. Did you not know that one of the difficulties pointed out in this case was where could that strychnine have been got? Yes.
4006. All the time that difficulty was being dealt with by the press and the public, do you not admit you knew that poison was buried in the yard next to Dean's.—Then why did you not let the police know that? Because I did not think it had any effect on Mr. Dean's case at all.
4007. You thought it would have no effect? No; no effect whatever.
4008. Do you really mean it? Yes.
4009. The fact of strychnine being found in the next paddock had no bearing on the case.—Didn't you see it might have a serious effect? No; I did not.
4010. It would have no effect? No; no effect on Mr. Dean's case whatever.
4011. You said I think this strychnine was pink? Yes.
4012. Why did you say that? Because I read it in the paper.
4013. Why did you not let the police know that this particular poison was buried in the next ground? I cannot give any other reason than what I have given.
4014. Did not some of the police come to you personally and to your husband, or to one of you, and ask you particularly about poison on account of this charge, and you said you did not know? I cannot remember.
4015. Will you swear that this did not take place? No; I do not remember.
4016. You won't swear you did not? No; I won't swear I did not.
4017. Do you remember the police coming? Yes; but I do not remember them asking me anything about poison.
4018. Do you remember them asking your husband? I remember one of the gentlemen saying to my husband, "There is a bit of a stir next door."
4019. Will you swear you were not asked the question? No; I do not remember.
4020. Mr. Pilcher.] You have had it suggested to you about the police asking you about the poison;—does it assist your mind in any way whatever? No.
4021. When Mr. Weynton told you about the poison you believed him? Yes.
4022. You believed that what he said was true? Yes.
4023. And that you did not think it would throw any light on Dean's case whatever? None whatever. They are most particular people.
4024. President.] Who are most particular people? Mr. and Mrs. Weynton.
4025. So far as you know they are respectable? Yes.
4026. Mr. Pilcher.] Is there a word of truth in the suggestion that you concealed information about that poison? No; not a word of truth.
4027. With reference to the police going to you to get the information;—you say they asked you what occurred on the Tuesday? Yes.
4028. Did they ask you anything beyond that? No; nothing whatever beyond the Tuesday.
4029. Do you remember what they did ask you when they asked you about the Tuesday;—when the police came to you and asked you about the Tuesday, what did they say? They asked me if I was'n't Mrs. Thompson.
- President.*] She understood the police were only asking her about that Tuesday.
- Mr. Pilcher.*] Well, that will do.
4030. When did they ask you? About three weeks ago.
4031. Mr. Pilcher.] When was it you first stated this information to Messrs. Crick and Meagher about Mrs. Seymour? To day.
4032. That is the first time? Yes.
4033. Who put the question to you that elicited that information? Who asked you to-day the question in reply to which you told them about that night when Mrs. Seymour came? Messrs. Crick and Meagher's clerk.
4034. Messrs. Crick and Meagher's clerk asked you the question? Yes.
4035. Have you read the evidence taken at the Criminal Court? I have read a great deal of it.
4036. President.] Read it in what? I have read it in different papers.
4037. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you read Mrs. Seymour's evidence? I believe I did; I cannot say positively.
4038. You cannot be certain? No.
4039. Can you say whether you know now what Mrs. Seymour said at the trial before Mr. Justice Windeyer as to whether or not she had been at Dean's house between the time she was turned out by Dean and a certain day in March—the 4th March, I think? I cannot say.
4040. You say you are not certain if you have read Mrs. Seymour's evidence? No.
4041. President.] Do you know whether it was reported that she had said in her evidence that she was not at Dean's house between the time she was turned out, and the 4th March? I do not know.
4042. Dr. Manning.] You were two hours in this house on the Tuesday morning? I may have been a little longer.
4043. Was Mrs. Dean very ill at this time? She complained about a pain in her side and had headache.
4044. Was there any vomiting and purging? No; not while I was there.
4045. Not at all? No.
4046. Who introduced the conversation about the lemonade or lemon-syrup? I said to Mr. Dean, "You had better tell the doctor all that Mrs. Dean has taken." It was the first I knew about it.
4047. It did not occur in answer to inquiries from the doctor? No; he asked Mrs. Dean if she had been taking anything and she said, "No"; and Dean said she has been taking something out of a bottle, lemonade or lemon-syrup, I do not know which, and Mrs. Dean said to the doctor that it was lemon-syrup, and that it made her very ill. I took the bottle to him on the Saturday, but he was out.
4048. President.] Are you sure this was on the Tuesday morning? Yes.
4049. Dr. Manning.] When Dr. Nowmarch came on the Tuesday morning you were still there? Yes; I was.
4050. And Dean was on the bed crying? Yes.
4051. Did the doctor write a prescription that morning? Yes, I am sure he did; he went to the chest of drawers to write it.
4052. How did he write it? I think with a pencil.

Mrs. A.
Thompson.
22 May, 1895

- Mrs. A. Thompson.
22 May, 1895.
4053. Was that prescription taken to the chemist? I believe so.
4054. To what chemists? I believe it was to Guise's. The doctor gave me particular instructions how to use this medicine.
4055. What did he say? He said it was a medicine that had to be injected.
4056. It was not to be taken by the mouth? No. He asked me if I thought I could do it, and I said I would do my best. In the meantime this lady (Mrs. Lee) came. I told her what the doctor had told me, and she said she thought she could do it. I had a few little things to do in my own home, and came in again in the afternoon to see how Mrs. Dean was, and saw Mr. Dean with the vinegar and water and the ice.
4057. President.] Did the doctor write a prescription that morning? Yes. He told me I must have a syringe.
4058. Where was the syringe got from? I believe Mrs. Seymour brought one in the afternoon.
4059. Mrs. Seymour brought it then? I believe she did.
4060. Dr. Jones.] You did not see Mrs. Dean vomit? No. She did not vomit all the time I was there.
4061. Do you know whether she was purged? No; I do not.
4062. Mr. Pilcher.] You saw nothing of it? I tidied up her pedestal.
4063. President.] Didn't you see signs of it there? Yes; I did.
4064. There was matter in the chamber;—was it matter from her mouth or otherwise? Otherwise.
4065. It was still there till you went in? Yes.
4066. Was that matter of a purged character? It appeared to be so.
4067. Like a person with diarrhoea? Yes.
4068. There was no purging in your presence? No. It was before I went in.
4069. Not while you were there? No.
4070. It might have been the result of purging left there all the night from the day before? It might have been.
4071. There had been no endeavour to get rid of it? No.
4072. You got rid of it when you were tidying the place up? Yes.
4073. Dr. Jones.] You do not know of your own knowledge if that purged matter came from Mrs. Dean? No. I do not.
4074. President.] How old was the baby? It was born on the 26th December.
4075. There was only Dean and his wife and the baby in the house? Yes.
4076. You believe the purge came from Mrs. Dean? Yes; as far as I know.

[Witness withdrew.]

THURSDAY, 23 MAY, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade, appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

Mrs. Jane Reynolds sworn and examined:—

- Mrs. J. Reynolds.
2 May, 1895.
4077. Mr. Meagher.] Your name is Jane Reynolds? Yes.
4078. You are the wife of —? Walter Reynolds, licensee of the "Young Australia Hotel."
4079. Where is that? In Riley-street, Surry Hills.
4080. Do you remember being shown a photograph? Yes, sir.
4081. Would you know the photograph again if you saw it? Yes.
4082. How long ago is it since you were shown the photograph? It is about three weeks the first time.
4083. Is that the photograph? [Photograph of Miss Seymour, exhibit "B," handed to witness.]
4084. Can you say where you have seen the original of that photograph? Yes, at my place—at the hotel.
4085. How long ago do you think it can be? Between eight and nine months ago, as near as I can remember.
4086. Was there anything that had transpired which fixed this in your memory? Yes, I had a daughter married about that time, and there was a reference made to my daughter in the course of conversation with a person who came into the hotel.
4087. By the way, I might ask you this: Can you say how the person was dressed? The person I am speaking of had a jacket resembling that [pointing to the photograph].
4088. Sir Julian Salomons.] The person you are speaking of had a jacket resembling that? Yes.
4089. Mr. Meagher.] Did you know the person by name? I never saw the lady but twice. She came to my house, and I recognised her at once when I saw her again.
4090. You did not know her at that time? No.
4091. Sir Julian Salomons.] You never saw her before? No, not to my knowledge.
4092. Mr. Meagher.] In the course of conversation did she tell you where she lived or where she came from? Yes; she told me where she came from. She said she came from Madame Rose's.
4093. Was anything else said? She said she had been there, and that she had been drinking wine the night previously.
4094. Did she say "nearly all night" or "the night previously"? The "night previously."
4095. How did she come to mention the drinking of the wine? Because she had been drinking a bottle of English ale at my place, and she said she was very sick.
4096. Did she ask you for the ale? Yes; I served her.
4097. President.] Was it a big bottle of ale? Yes; an ordinary bottle of M'Ewan's ale.
4098. Sir Julian Salomons.] What did you charge for it? 1s. 6d. 4099.

4099. President.] Did she drink the whole bottle? She drank part of it, and got up and went to the back. She was very sick in the back and came back and drank the rest.

4100. Mr. Meagher.] Was it after that she told you where she had been? Yes; I asked her if she was better when she came through the passage, and that is how the conversation arose.

4101. When you asked her if she was better this conversation took place, and she told you she had been to Madame Rose's the night before? Yes; she came and sat in the parlour with me. Previous to that she was in the front parlour.

4102. What time was this? Between 10 and half-past 10 in the morning.

4103. President.] You said seven or eight months ago? Yes; seven or eight or eight or nine months ago.

4104. Mr. Meagher.] Well, was that all the conversation that took place? I could not tell you what we were conversing about. I suppose we were conversing twenty minutes. She told me she was the wife of a captain living at North Shore.

4105. Did she leave? She had a cab waiting for her all the time at the door. She came in a cab and went away in a cab.

4106. You say you saw this photograph about three weeks ago? Yes; it was shown to me in the bar.

4107. President.] Shown by whom? I could not tell in the first instance who showed it to me. It was shown to me in the ordinary way, and I was asked if I knew her. There were three or four photographs, and I picked this up and said, "I fancy I saw that lady before."

4108. You don't know who showed you that photograph? In the first instance I don't know who, but in the second instance I think it was somebody from Criel and Meagher's office who came up that day.

4109. Mr. Meagher.] Do you remember attending at the Sydney Hospital? Yes.

4110. When was that? Last Friday. I do not know the date.

4111. Do you remember if a constable or a detective was there with you? Yes; a detective and a doctor in the Sydney Hospital.

4112. Do you know the detective's name? Chaney or Cheney.

4113. Do you know the doctor's name? No, I don't know his name.

4114. You were together at the hospital;—were you shown into any ward there? Yes, I was shown into a ward, and asked to pick out the party I referred to.

4115. How many occupants were in that ward;—do you remember? I should say from twenty to twenty-five; I didn't count them.

4116. Did you go around amongst the inmates there? Yes, I went around, and picked out the person I referred to.

4117. Was that in the presence of the detective and the doctor? Yes.

4118. Do you now say the person you picked out was the person you had spoken about at the conversation in the hotel? Yes.

4119. Sir Julian Salomons.] I think, Mrs. Reynolds, you said she told you she had come from Madame Rose's? Yes, sir.

4120. Did she tell you what she had been doing there? No; she did not.

4121. You know, of course, the character of Madame Rose's house? Yes. I can see Madame Rose's from my place.

4122. Have you been in the house? No, I have not.

4123. You know the house? Yes.

4124. You know the reputation of it? Certainly.

4125. And you admit that you had never seen this person before in your life who came to you with this jacket? No.

4126. She was a perfect stranger to you? Yes; a perfect stranger.

4127. She told you she had come from Madame Rose's? Yes.

4128. Of course you knew that was a very improper house? Certainly.

4129. And she told you she was the wife of a captain living on the North Shore? Yes.

4130. This perfect stranger having come to your place told you she came from Madame Rose's, and she told you, besides, she was the wife of a captain living on the North Shore? Yes.

4131. You will swear that? I will swear that.

4132. That strange person told you that? Yes; in the course of conversation.

4133. What time did she drive up to your door? Between 10 and half past 10 in the morning.

4134. Where did she go when she came in? She went into the front parlour.

4135. Did you go there to her? No; she came there and went into the yard and was very sick.

4136. Before she had anything in your place? She drank part of the bottle of beer.

4137. Where? In the front parlour.

4138. Was anyone there when she drank it? No; she was the only one in the room. She went into the front parlour, and was served with a bottle of beer, and then went through to the back.

4139. You served her? Yes, I served her.

4140. And she paid you? Yes.

4141. Are you sure of that? Yes.

4142. How did she pay you? She gave me 1s. 6d.

4143. You remember that? Yes; distinctly.

4144. After she drank part of the beer she was sick? Yes.

4145. Then where did she go? She went through to the yard, just past the room I was sitting in; she asked me to show her through to the yard; as she came back I asked her if she was better; then she came into the parlour and we had this conversation.

4146. That is in the back parlour? Yes; in front of the bar.

4147. Where did she have this conversation when she told you she came from Madame Rose's? In the back parlour.

4148. You and she were in the parlour? Yes.

4149. Was anybody else there? No, not another soul; there was nobody else there.

4150. There were people in the house—I mean in that room you have told us about? Nobody else was there.

4151. Do you know that you are giving this evidence in the same manner as you would in a Court of Justice? Yes, certainly.

Mrs. J.
Reynolds,
23 May, 1895

Mrs. J.
Keynolds,
23 May, 1895.

4152. This strange woman having told you that, came back and finished the bottle of beer? She went into the front parlour after this conversation occurred. I suppose we were talking about twenty-five minutes.
4153. Was she in two different parlours? I served her in the front parlour and sat with her in the back parlour.
4154. Where was this conversation when she told you she came from Madame Rose's? In the back parlour, behind the bar.
4155. You were talking to her for twenty-five minutes? Yes.
4156. Was she sober or drunk? She looked very much off, I am sure.
4157. What do you mean by "very much off"? The woman had been drinking very heavily the night previously, to all appearance.
4158. This strange person told you she came from Madame Rose's, and that she was the wife of a captain on the North Shore—she must have been drunk? I should think she was not very far from it.
4159. That is what you mean by being "off"? Yes.
4160. Was she more drunk than sober? Yes, that is how I knew she was the wife of a captain. She asked me how she looked.
4161. What did you tell her? I told her she looked all right, although I was of a different opinion.
4162. You thought she was drunk? I am not sure she was drunk, but I could see she had been drinking.
4163. Was she more drunk than sober? Yes.
4164. She told you that she was the wife of a captain, living on the North Shore;—didn't she tell you his name? Certainly not.
4165. You did not ask her? No; certainly not.
4166. She asked you how she looked? Yes.
4167. And you told her how she looked? I told her she looked all right, but I had a very different opinion.
4168. You did not tell her what you thought? No; it is not usual for us to tell in an hotel business how people really look.
4169. I did not catch what you said;—that it is not usual for persons selling in a bar to tell people what? We are very often asked that question, and we generally tell them. "All right," until we see they are drunk.
4170. Of course she could walk? Oh, yes.
4171. You say she was more drunk than sober? Yes.
4172. She only had a bottle of beer in your house? Yes; that is all.
4173. She was practically in this state when she first came in? She was not drunk; I will not say that the girl was drunk, but she had been drinking very heavily.
4174. When she came into your place was she more drunk than sober;—was she in that state when she came in, or did your beer make her so? I do not know; she had all the appearance to me of a woman who had been drinking very heavily.
4175. She told you that she had been all night at Madame Rose's? She said she had been at Madame Rose's drinking wine.
4176. You said something about all night? I could not say exactly whether she said all night or not, but she gave me to understand that she had been there all night.
4177. And she looked like it? Yes; her clothes were very much disarranged.
4178. She had the appearance of having been at some house like Madame Rose's all night? She had the appearance as if she had been drinking very heavily; her general appearance impressed me that way.
4179. What do you mean about her clothes being disarranged? She kept on pulling her jacket round this way, to hide herself, as if she had dressed herself in a hurry.
4180. As if she had been staying in some place not her own? Yes.
4181. The place she told you she came from was Madame Rose's? Certainly.
4182. A well-known house of ill-fame? Yes.
4183. She told you further that she was the wife of a captain living on the North Shore;—did she tell you what wine she had been drinking all night? No.
4184. She had no more at your house than that bottle of beer? No; that is all.
4185. How long was she at your place? A good half hour.
4186. You say she came in a cab? Yes.
4187. And drove away in a cab? Yes.
4188. Could not you help us by telling us who the cabman was? I have no idea.
4189. Did you ever see that cabman before? No; I took no notice of him. I would have taken no notice of her only she was sick at my house.
4190. You did not notice the cab? No.
4191. You could not tell the colour of the horse? No.
4192. Or the cab? No.
4193. It was a hansom cab, I suppose? Yes.
4194. A one-horse cab? Yes.
4195. She came from Madame Rose's;—how many yards is Madame Rose's from you? I could not tell; I can stand at my door and see it, three streets up; you could not see people going in and out.
4196. She came in a cab you say? Yes.
4197. And she told you she came from Madame Rose's? Yes.
4198. How far is it to walk? I suppose about three minutes.
4199. You said it was what time? Between 10 and half-past 10 in the morning.
4200. Was it on Sunday? No; we are not open on Sunday.
4201. What day of the week was it? I could not tell you that.
4202. Did she tell you anything more about this matter;—she told you she was the wife of a captain living at the North Shore? She told me her husband was away all night, and that her husband was a captain.
4203. What else did she tell you? She did not tell me very much; she was not in my place long enough to tell me much.
4204. I understood she was there twenty-five minutes or half an hour? During that time she was drinking beer, and she was out in the yard very sick.

Mrs. J.
Reynolds.
23 May, 1895.

4205. You admit she told you her husband was out all night? Yes; that accounted for her asking me how she looked.
4206. What did you say to her? I said she looked all right.
4207. What else? She said she had been at Madame Rose's all night, and that she had been drinking wine, and that is how she accounted for the beer upsetting her.
4208. What did she tell you she had been doing at Madame Rose's? She did not tell me, and I did not ask her. I did not want to ask her that.
4209. She told you she was a married woman? Yes; she told me she was the wife of a captain.
4210. Have you any family yourself? Yes.
4211. What family? Four.
4212. Where was your husband at this time—was he in the house? No, he was out; he was not about at any rate.
4213. At this conversation you had with her, only you two were present? Yes; that is all.
4214. I suppose you won't deny that you have read about this case;—of course, you heard of this notorious case from the beginning? Yes; I saw it in the papers, and read it all through.
4215. How many papers do you take in—two papers or one? We take in three papers.
4216. You remember the charge being made? Yes.
4217. And naturally followed it in the papers all through? Yes.
4218. Will you tell me when you first saw that photograph? About three weeks ago as near as I can make out.
4219. In your bar, I think you said? Yes.
4220. Who brought the photographs there? I could not tell who brought them in the first instance, because they were put down in a casual way at the bar.
4221. What kind of a man brought them—was it a stout, fat man? I could not tell you.
4222. What kind of a man? I could not tell you what kind of a man brought them in the first instance.
4223. What kind of a man was it that produced these photographs? I think there were two together; I could not describe them at all; I never noticed them.
4224. You never noticed them? No.
4225. Neither of them? No.
4226. There were two? Yes.
4227. But you cannot describe them? No, I cannot describe them.
4228. What time was that;—was it in the night they brought these photographs? It was in the morning about 11 o'clock.
4229. That is about three weeks ago? Yes; to the best of my memory, about three weeks ago.
4230. That is the photograph, I think, on the table there? It may have been that one; but if that is not it it is one very much like it.
4231. As far as you can judge? Yes; as far as I can judge.
4232. You admit you have read all about this matter in the papers? Yes.
4233. Was this shown to you yesterday again? No, not yesterday.
4234. Was this photograph shown to you yesterday again? No, I do not think so.
4235. Will you swear that it was not shown to you yesterday? I do not think so.
4236. Will you swear it? No, I will not swear; but I do not think so.
4237. How is it you cannot swear one way or the other that it was not shown to you yesterday;—look what you have given us that occurred seven or eight months ago? I do not think it was.
4238. Will you swear that it was not? No, I will not swear.
4239. On your oath, will you not admit it was shown to you yesterday? I will not take my oath at all about it, but I don't think it was shown to me at all yesterday.
4240. Will you swear it? I will not swear it, but I will not swear otherwise.
4241. Will you swear it was not shown to you the day before? I do not know whether I saw it in Mr. Pilcher's office or not.
4242. Where did you see it the day before—in Mr. Pilcher's office? I do not know whether I was shown it or not.
4243. What time were you there? About 11 o'clock.
4244. Who took you there? I went by myself.
4245. Who gave you the address? I knew Mr. Pilcher's address myself; I did not want to know it.
4246. Have you been there before? No, I have not been there before.
4247. Who told you where it was? I knew where it was before.
4248. Who told you to go there? Mr. Meagher.
4249. Didn't you see that photograph there? I do not know whether I did; I will not swear I did.
4250. What did you go there for? I went there to give evidence—to give information.
4251. Didn't you know that Meazars, Crick and Meagher were the solicitors? Mr. Meagher sent me to Mr. Pilcher.
4252. When did you first see Mr. Crick or Mr. Meagher in this matter? About a week ago.
4253. Who took you to those gentlemen? I went there myself.
4254. In Phillip-street? Yes.
4255. You went to their office? Yes.
4256. About three weeks ago? About a week ago.
4257. That was the first time you had been there? Yes.
4258. About a week ago? Yes.
4259. Who told you to go there—think it over? I was sent for.
4260. You said a little while ago you went of your own accord? Yes, certainly.
4261. Who sent for you? I suppose Mr. Meagher.
4262. By letter or message? A gentleman came to my place and asked me to go.
4263. Who is that gentleman? I think it is the young gentleman sitting at the end of the table.
4264. What do you mean by saying you went of your own accord? So I did; certainly, of my own accord.
4265. Didn't I ask you if anybody sent for you, and you said you went of your own accord? Yes; I went.

Mrs. J.
Reynolds,
23 May, 1895.

4266. Didn't you a little while ago, when I asked you a question, lead us to believe that you had gone there without anybody sending for you; now you admit that a young man came for you? He called at my place and asked me to go down, and I went.
4267. Is that the only time you were there? No; I have been there once or twice since.
4268. I suppose you saw Mr. Meagher—the gentleman at the end of the table? Yes.
4269. When did you go to Mr. Pilcher's office? Last Friday.
4270. Do you mean last Friday? Yes.
4271. When you went to Mr. Meagher's office, I suppose you will not deny they showed you that photograph? I do not know that I saw that in Mr. Meagher's office. I have seen it so often that I could not tell you.
4272. Before you went to Mr. Pilcher's office had not you seen that photograph at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's? I had seen it in the bar.
4273. I am talking of Crick and Meagher's office;—will you swear that they did not show it to you? I will not swear anything of the sort, because I have seen it so often that I will not swear where I saw it.
4274. You saw it in Mr. Pilcher's office? Yes; I think I saw it there.
4275. Who went with you there? I went by myself.
4276. After you had been to Crick and Meagher's office, what was the occasion of your going to Mr. Pilcher's office? I was sent to Mr. Pilcher's.
4277. Were you ever in the North Shore Hospital? No, sir.
4278. You have not been to the North Shore Hospital? The Sydney Hospital.
4279. Of course you won't admit that you had described to you the very woman who was in the hospital in Sydney;—on your oath, don't you know you had her described to you? Certainly not.
4280. You won't admit that this woman who was in the hospital was described to you? Certainly not. She was not described to me at all. I was simply asked to go the hospital and see if I could pick her out, and I said that unless I could pick her out I would not give evidence in the case at all.
4281. You pledge your oath that the woman you picked out in the hospital is the woman who came to your hotel and had the conversation with you that you have related? Yes, I swear it.
4282. You will swear that? Yes.
4283. You know that the woman you saw in the hospital is the Mrs. Dean concerned in this inquiry? I know that was the woman in my place.
4284. When were you at the hospital? Last Friday, about 12 o'clock.
4285. And then you identified the woman as being the original of this [showing witness photograph of Mrs. Dean]? Yes.
4286. You knew that woman was Mrs. Dean? Yes; I know it now.
4287. And you swear it was Mrs. Dean who came to your hotel and had this conversation? Yes.
4288. You swear that? Yes.
4289. You know that the woman you saw in your hotel is the wife of the prisoner, Dean? Yes.
4290. You know that? Yes.
4291. The woman you saw in the hospital was in bed, was she not? Yes.
4292. I suppose everything except her face was covered up. Only her face was exposed? Yes.
4293. You know who I mean—you know she is the wife of the prisoner, Dean? I am led to believe that is the person.
4294. And you swear that was the woman who was in your hotel? Yes, sir.
4295. You said something about her dress—about a jacket? Yes.
4296. Can you tell me anything more? She had a sealskin jacket on, and that is how I came to recognise the photograph when it was shown in my bar, because the person who came to my house had a sealskin jacket on.
4297. By that you recognised her? Yes.
4298. President.] You said she dragged her cloak around her to conceal the fact of her not being properly dressed;—if she had a jacket on, how could she do that? Yes.
4299. Sir Julian Salomons.] How could she do that? The jacket was loose.
4300. How could she do that with a jacket? Certainly, if it was unfastened.
4301. What kind of a dress had she on under it? A morning wrapper of a very bright colour.
4302. You saw that? Yes.
4303. What do you mean by a bright colour? You would call it something like scarlet.
4304. Something like scarlet? Yes.
4305. Not the thing that a person would go down George-street in? Not exactly.
4306. This morning wrapper was what you call a dressing-gown? Yes.
4307. Then, to conceal that, you say she put this jacket around her, and that that was a sealskin jacket? Yes.
4308. When this photograph was shown to you you say you recognised it by the sealskin jacket? Yes.
4309. What do you mean by a jacket? There is only one sort of jacket.
4310. Take the jacket you have on now;—did it come down to her feet, or knees, or down to her waist? A good way past her knees.
4311. A long way? Yes.
4312. The red wrapper would go to her feet, naturally? Yes; further than her feet.
4313. Could you tell whether she had boots or slippers on? She would not go without boots, I suppose.
4314. Can you tell me? I could not.
4315. It is so long ago you could not tell? I did not take that much notice of it.
4316. You admit the dressing-gown went down beyond her feet? Yes.
4317. How would this dressing-gown be fastened round the waist? As a rule they do not fasten round the waist; they button down the front.
4318. Is that the way it was fastened? Yes.
4319. President.] Do you mean to say, then, it was a regular dressing-gown? We call it a morning-wrapper.
4320. Sir Julian Salomons.] When a person jumps suddenly out of bed it is a thing they would put on? Yes.
4321. It is buttoned all the way down? Yes.
4322. You could see that when the jacket was open in front? Yes; she kept pulling her jacket to and fro.

Mrs. J.
Reynolds.

23 May, 1895.

4323. You did not see whether she had boots or slippers on? No; I did not see that.
4324. What kind of a hat had she on? I could not swear to the hat.
4325. Can you give no idea? No; I have no idea what sort of a hat it was. I never noticed it.
4326. You never noticed the hat? I might have noticed, but my memory does not serve me about the hat.
4327. Where was it that she called for this beer;—when she came out of the cab where did she go? Into the front parlour.
4328. Can you come out of the street into the parlour? You step from the street into the parlour.
4329. Had she to come into the bar to go into the parlour? No, she had to come through a passage.
4330. What is the first you knew of her being there? She drove up in a cab, and I went in to serve her.
4331. What is the first thing that took place? She asked for a bottle of beer.
4332. Will you not admit that between your place and Madame Rose's there is a public-house nearer than yours to Madame Rose's? There are two.
4333. Two nearer? Yes.
4334. Are they on the same side as Madame Rose's or on the opposite side? One is on one side and one on the other.
4335. So that in driving from Madame Rose's she passed those two? Yes.
4336. She was no acquaintance of yours—she was a stranger to you? I never saw her in my life before.
4337. How do you account for a married woman coming to you, saying that she was the wife of a captain on the North Shore, and that she had been out all night and came from this assignation-house of Madame Rose's? She asked me how she looked.
4338. Can you give no reason before you leave this room why this strange person should tell you this unless she was drunk? They tell you some funny things in hotels.
4339. Do you say she was drunk? She had the appearance of a woman who had been drinking heavily the night before.
4340. Didn't you say she was more drunk than sober? Yes; she had not recovered.
4341. Did you notice anything else disorderly about her dress? No; I did not.
4342. When I asked you about Sunday you were quite indignant, and said you did not sell on Sunday? No; we do not sell on Sunday.
4343. Have you been convicted of selling on Sunday? Yes; but not since.
4344. How long ago is it since you were convicted of selling on Sunday? I do not know.
4345. You do not know? No.
4346. I suppose you will not deny you did sell on Sunday when you have not been convicted? We are not supposed to sell on Sunday.
4347. But you have been convicted of it? No; we have not been convicted of Sunday-selling.
4348. You have not? No.
4349. What have you been convicted of then? Selling after hours.
4350. Have you never been convicted of selling on Sunday? No.
4351. Selling after hours? Yes.
4352. What hours? After 11 o'clock.
4353. Your husband is in Sydney, isn't he? Yes.
4354. Do you take in the Bulletin? No.
4355. Do you never see it? I do not suppose I have seen one for two years.
4356. Do you see the Telegraph? Yes.
4357. The Evening News? Yes; we take three papers—the Star, Evening News, and Morning Herald.
4358. You will not deny you have seen photographs supposed to be photographs of Mrs. Dean in the paper? I do not know whether I have seen them of Mrs. Dean; I have seen them of Mrs. Seymour.
4359. You cannot give us any aid about the two persons who came up to you that morning with the photographs? No; I have no idea.
4360. You cannot describe them at all? No, I cannot describe them.
4361. What date was it you went to the hospital? Last Friday.
4362. I think you admitted that before you went to the hospital you had seen that photograph? No, I do not think I did; not the day I went to the hospital. I saw it in my bar, and once in my parlour.
4363. Didn't I ask you before? I don't remember it.
4364. Didn't you say you had seen it numbers of times yourself? Yes; so I have.
4365. Where? Two or three times at my place.
4366. How many times at Mr. Crick's office? I will not swear that I saw it at Mr. Crick's office at all. I do not remember.
4367. You will not swear it? No.
4368. How many times did you see it before you went to the hospital—twenty times? I have no idea.
4369. How many times before last Friday? I do not know how many times.
4370. About how many times? I could not tell you; I have no idea.
4371. Will you swear you had not seen it at least a dozen times before you went to the hospital? I would not swear at all how many times I had seen it. I cannot say how many.
4372. You admit you had seen it many times, but cannot say how many times before you went to the hospital? Yes.
4373. You knew you went there to pick out Mrs. Dean? Yes, I went there to pick the person out that was at my place.
4374. You were going to say Mrs. Dean? Yes; I did not know whether she was Mrs. Dean or not.
4375. Didn't you know you were going to pick out Mrs. Dean? I knew I was taken there for that purpose.
4376. For no other purpose? Yes.
4377. Than to pick out Mrs. Dean? Yes.
4378. You knew she was in the hospital? Yes.
4379. You were told she was in the hospital? Yes.
4380. You said the time this strange woman came to your place was between 10 and half-past 10 in the morning? Yes.
4381. And then she drove away in a cab? Yes.

- Mrs. J. Reynolds.
23 May, 1895.
4382. Where that person went to you don't know? No.
4383. And you have never seen her since? No; only at the hospital.
4384. Mr. Meagher.] Did I understand you to make it clear that unless you were positive the person who was in your hotel was identical with the person in the hospital you would not have picked her out or come into the case at all? Yes.
4385. Do you know Dean at all? No, sir; I have never seen him at all in my life.
4386. Have you any earthly interest at all in connection with the matter? No, none whatever.
4387. Sir Julian Salomons.] Will you, on your oath, besides what you have sworn, swear that you did not know well that the evidence that has been given here to-day is to touch the character of Mrs. Dean? I know that the inquiry is to try and get Dean out of gaol.
4388. Mr. Meagher.] You say you recognised the sealskin jacket that you saw in the photograph? I recognised the lady also by her face, also by the jacket.
4389. You recognised the lady by her face and appearance, and her features? Yes.
4390. You picked out the person in the hospital, I understand, not as Mrs. Dean, but as the person who was in your hotel on the date you spoke about? Yes.
4391. Sir Julian Salomons.] But you admit that that is Mrs. Dean? [Mr. Meagher.] Yes.
4392. President.] You say that undoubtedly her jacket was open in front? Yes.
4393. Can you give me any idea, pretty well, how long ago this was that you saw her? Well, as near as I can remember, about eight or nine months ago.
4394. Can you remember anything that happened about then—anything you remember? No, not exactly. I don't know that I could do that.
4395. Do you know whether it was race-time or anything of that kind? No; I do not. It is private circumstances that occurred which makes me remember it.
4396. About your daughter getting married? Yes.
4397. Don't you remember the date your daughter got married? Yes; I don't exactly remember the day; it was in October—the 26th October.
4398. In the end of October or the beginning? About the 26th.
4399. That is the end? Yes.
4400. And she told you she had been at this Madame Rose's, which you know is an improper place? 26th October my daughter was married, and she was living at home at the time.
4401. What date was your daughter married—what day of the month? About the 26th.
4402. Then it was after your daughter was married that you saw Mrs. Dean? Yes; she must have been married a couple of months at the time that this person came to the house.
4403. Then was your daughter married on the 26th October? Yes; about the 26th.
4404. Then if it was a couple of months after, it would be only December? I could not tell you the month. I have no idea about the month.
4405. Are you sure it was a couple of months after your daughter got married? Yes.
4406. Your daughter got married on the 26th October? Yes; I am sure about that.
4407. It was about a couple of months after your daughter got married? Yes.
4408. This lady—Mrs. Dean, if you like—told you that she had been at Madame Rose's? Yes.
4409. Did you notice whether she was in the family-way? No, sir, I did not.
4410. Do you mean to say you could not tell? Her clothes were so loosely on I could not tell.
4411. She was confined on the 26th December, and you did not notice it at all? Was she?—no.
4412. You are sure about that now—that it was about two months after the marriage of your daughter? No; I would not fix the time. My daughter lived with me for a couple of months.
4413. Your daughter was married on the 26th October? Yes, about the 26th.
4414. And it was about two months after your daughter was married that this lady was at your house? Yes.
4415. There is no doubt about it being the same lady? I do not know about the same lady.
4416. But it was the same lady you have been examined about by Sir Julian Salomons and Mr. Meagher? Yes.
4417. That is the lady I am asking about? Yes.
4418. Mr. Meagher.] You understand, in December, January, February, March, April, and May, making it five months ago? Five months ago.
4419. Do you remember saying in your examination-in-chief it was nine months ago? Yes.
4420. You said you thought it was eight or nine months ago? Yes, as near as I can remember.
4421. If you fix it by your daughter's marriage, it can only be five months ago? In October.
4422. You say two months after October? As near as I can remember. I cannot remember exactly the day, but I know my daughter had not left home at the time, and she was not long with me after she was married.
4423. President.] I suppose you have been married very many years;—you have got a family? Yes.
4424. You have seen lots of people in the meantime? Yes.
4425. Would you have any difficulty in recognising when a woman is in the family-way when she was eight or nine months that way? When a person is loosely dressed like that you might have a difficulty. This person was loosely dressed at my place.
4426. Could not you tell pretty well by her appearance? I never noticed that. I would not say whether she was or was not. I cannot say.
4427. It seems unlikely that a woman who was seven or eight months, or perhaps more, in the family-way, would be likely to go to Madame Rose's, or, if she did go to Madame Rose's, that it would be any use her going there? I could not say that.
4428. Sir Julian Salomons.] How long after your daughter's marriage did she stay with you? I suppose a couple of months.
4429. I suppose you would know the exact day in October that she was married? No, I would not. I think it was about the 26th.
4430. Might you not be mistaken—that it was not in October when she was married? No; it was in October, because her birthday was in October, and she was married about three days before her birthday.
4431. What is her birthday? The 29th October.
4432. You noticed that, being the same month your daughter was married? Yes.
4433. Then it was three days before that? Yes.

4434. Then she lived with you for a couple of months afterwards? Yes; a couple of months afterwards.
 4435. What is the name of that daughter? Mrs. Dalton.
 4436. Where is she living now? In Albion-street.
 4437. Do you know the number? I think it is 113.
 4438. What is her husband? He is a jockey.
 4439. She got married in October last? Yes.
 4440. And she lived with you for two months afterwards, sleeping in the place? Yes.
 4441. President.] Did she see this lady? No, sir, she did not.
 4442. Where was she? I do not know.
 4443. How is it that only you were about that morning? There are very few people about in the morning in a hotel like that.
 4444. Were there not servants? They are generally downstairs or upstairs.
 4445. Would they not be doing up the rooms, and so on? Of course they would; they would not be noticing a person.
 4446. It was about half-past 10 in the morning? Yes.
 4447. What time would they be cleaning out the rooms? From the time they got up.
 4448. What time did they get up? About 6 o'clock.

Mrs. J.
Reynolds.
23 May, 1895.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mary Burns sworn and examined:—

4449. Mr. Meagher.] Your name is Mary Burns? Yes, Mr. Meagher.
 4450. You are a single lady, are you not? Yes.
 4451. And what is your occupation? I am a domestic servant.
 4452. Who are you employed by? Mrs. Le Faire, "Clyto," Darlington Road.
 4453. Do you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes, Mr. Meagher; she came into the Water Police Court, and took a false oath against me, and I have watched her to have her up for perjury.
 4454. You know Mrs. Seymour, and she has been in the Police Court against you? Yes; she has been pointed out to me in the Police Court.
 4455. Who was suing you in the Police Court when evidence was given? Florrie Clifford.
 4456. President.] In the case of Florrie Clifford against you, Mrs. Seymour gave evidence? Yes.
 4457. Mr. Meagher.] Do you know where Madame Rose's is? Yes.
 4458. You say that in consequence of what Mrs. Seymour swore you observed her? Yes, Mr. Meagher.
 4459. Have you seen her in Madame Rose's place? I have seen her go out and in to Madame Rose's.
 4460. Did you know her shop? Yes; it was opposite.
 4461. You have seen her go over from her shop to Madame Rose's? Yes; both Mrs. Seymour and her daughter.
 4462. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have seen them go over to Madame Rose's? Yes.
 4463. Mr. Meagher.] When you say she and her daughter, do you mean one at a time, or do you mean in company? I have seen her daughter go to Madame Rose's with Florrie Clifford. Cabs would come up with so-called gentlemen, and they would go to Madame Rose's; and I have seen her go for Florrie Clifford and bring her from her house to Madame Rose's.
 4464. How long ago was this? About two years ago. Florrie Clifford used to go to Madame Rose's, and bring girls out of her house.
 4465. Have you seen Mary Seymour in Madame Rose's? Yes, I have seen her going in.
 4466. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have never been to Madame Rose's? No; I have never been there.
 4467. Where were you when you saw all these things going on? I was on the road in Riley-street.
 4468. How late at night? Between 7, 8, and 9 o'clock.
 4469. What is the latest hour—7, or 8, or 9 o'clock? I cannot remember the latest hour.
 4470. What was this case you speak of at the Police Court? Florrie Clifford sued me for throwing stones at her window.
 4471. Where at? I was keeping company with a young man for some years, and his father told me that he was going to a house of ill-fame in Riley-street. I went to see if it was true, and I saw him there. There was no one there but him and Florrie Clifford. I was sued, and I had to pay for the breakage.
 4472. You found your sweetheart with Florrie Clifford? Mrs. Seymour came into Court and said I was going to take this woman's life, and to blind her, for the purpose of having my character damaged and having me sent to prison.
 4473. What is the name of the house you are living at now? "Clyto," Darlington Road.
 4474. How long have you been living there? I have been out of a situation six weeks and I went there about a week ago.
 4475. Who got the situation for you? I got it myself.
 4476. Where were you living before you went there? At 81, Stanley-street.
 4477. And where were you living before that? In the "Shamrock Hotel," at the corner of Woolloomooloo-street and Crown-street. Before that I was a cook.
 4478. How long were you at the "Shamrock Hotel"? A fortnight.
 4479. What were you—a barmaid? No, a servant.
 4480. Where is the "Shamrock Hotel"? At the corner of Woolloomooloo-street and Crown-street.
 4481. Is it near the wharf? I suppose it is towards the wharf.
 4482. Is it not on the Darlington side? It is at the corner of Woolloomooloo and Crown-streets, down from William-street.
 4483. How long ago is it since this Police Court matter? It was in May, 1893.
 4484. What Court? At the Central.
 4485. Who was the Magistrate? Captain Fisher.
 4486. Did you plead guilty? Yes, I did sir.
 4487. And Mrs. Seymour gave evidence in that case? Yes; and she wasn't in the place at all.
 4488. Who was the attorney for you? Harry Levien.
 4489. I suppose you have read all about this case? I have read some of it.
 4490. You know what it is all about? Yes.

Mary Burns.
23 May, 1895.

4491.

- Mary Burns.
23 May, 1895.
4491. Who told you to come here and take up our time? When I saw that the man was sent up on the evidence of Mrs. Seymour and her daughter I thought it very poor evidence to convict anybody on, so I made a statement and showed it to the North Shore committee.
4492. When did you go to the North Shore committee? About three weeks ago.
4493. And did they send you to Messrs. Crick and Meagher? No; they did not.
4494. Did you go on your own account? How I came to go was this: Mr. Crick sent some gentleman to me. I did not know his proper name, and I went to look for him to tell him what I knew. I thought he was connected with the office.
4495. You say on the occasion you spoke of at the Police Court Mrs. Seymour swore about you what was not true? Yes; it was not true.
4496. President.] It was because she swore what was not true about you you went and watched the place? Yes; I thought I would have her up for perjury when I found she got her living between two houses. I thought the more you stir up muddy water the worse you make it.
4497. Mr. Meagher.] And while observing this place you observed Mary Seymour going to Madame Rose's from Florrie Clifford's place? Mary Seymour went to Florrie Clifford and brought her up the back way and up Little Riley-street to Madame Rose's, and went in the side door.
4498. Sir Julian Salomons.] You admit Mary Seymour was not a witness in that case? No; I did not observe her at all.
4499. How many times did you watch this place? Several times.
4500. All alone? Yes; all alone.
4501. How many weeks? I was up and down for about three months. When I saw what their characters were I did not require to watch much.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Elizabeth Pfaflin sworn and examined:—

- Mrs.
E. Pfaflin.
23 May, 1895.
4502. Mr. Meagher.] What is your name, Mrs. Pfaflin? Elizabeth.
4503. Are you a married lady? Yes.
4504. And you live with your husband—where? Cole's Road, Mossman's Bay.
4505. And what is your husband's occupation? He is an overseer for the Borough of Mosman.
4506. President.] Overseer of works? Yes, overseer of works.
4507. Mr. Meagher.] Do you know George Dean? Yes, I do.
4508. How long have you known him? I have been a resident of North Shore these nine years. I have known him about six years going backwards and forwards. I knew him by coming into my shop. I kept a refreshment-room at No. 4 Jetty, Circular Quay.
4509. Did you know his wife? Yes, I did.
4510. Do you remember seeing Dean on the 5th of March? Yes.
4511. What day of the week was that? On a Tuesday.
4512. Where did you see him? I was standing just opposite the Town Hall, at the corner of Mount-street, North Sydney, waiting for a tram.
4513. While you were standing there did Dean come up? Yes; he came up on his bicycle, and I noticed him and called him over. It was just the same time he saw me, and I called him over.
4514. Had you any conversation with him? Yes.
4515. President.] About what time of the day was this? It was about a quarter to 9 or 9 o'clock.
4516. Dr. Jones.] Nine o'clock in the morning? Yes.
4517. Sir Julian Salomons.] It was in the morning? Yes; about 8-45 or 9 o'clock.
4518. Mr. Meagher.] Did he tell you where he was going? I asked him first, "What is the matter with you, George?" because I saw he looked very bad.
4519. Well, I don't want the whole of the conversation; where did he tell you he was going? He told me he was going to the chemist's for medicine.
4520. Did you go to see Mrs. Dean at all? Yes, I did.
4521. When was that? The same week, on the following Friday.
4522. Did you see anyone besides Mrs. Dean? Yes, Mrs. Seymour.
4523. What time of the day was it when you went there? About 1 o'clock on the Friday.
4524. Do you remember having any conversation with Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
4525. Did she tell you that she was sending for anyone? She told me that "the detectives were here this morning, and that George was likely to be arrested to-night." She said, "You see what he has done to my child." I said, "I am sure you can't say he done that." She says, "Who else do you think would do it?"
4526. President.] Did she say "you think" or did you think? I cannot say exactly what she said.
4527. What else did she say? "You see he gets a few years for that, and after that May can get a divorce."
4528. Mr. Meagher.] You say that you lived in Cole's Road? Yes.
4529. Was that close to where Dean lived? Yes; it was about five minutes walk from where he lived.
4530. Had you ever visited them at Belmont Road, or had Mrs. Dean ever come to Cole's Road? Yes; she was in my place nearly every day.
4531. Can you say, from seeing her as often as you have seen her, whether she has ever spoken about her husband? She has never spoken bad of her husband.
4532. President.] You knew her well? I did—only by sight.
4533. Have you ever spoken to her? Oh, yes.
4534. She visited you? Yes; she was in my house nearly every day.
4535. Mr. Meagher.] Did you ever go to Miller-street to see her? Yes.
4536. Did she ever mention to you there about her love for her husband? I cannot say.
4537. When did you go there? I was there three times in Miller-street.
4538. Sir Julian Salomons.] That is the house where the arrest was made? [Mr. Meagher.] Yes.
4539. Next door to Weynton's? [Mr. Meagher.] Yes.
4540. Mr. Meagher.] Has she ever spoken to you about her husband's affection there? The first time her mother was staying there; Mrs. Dean said he was very kind—"George is very kind; I wish he would be always like that."

4541. Sir Julian Salomons.] You believe that Mrs. Dean always spoke affectionately about him? Not always. After she had a quarrel with her mother she did not.
4542. Did you tell Dean that she had not spoken well of him? Yes, I did.
4543. When was it that you told Dean his wife had not spoken well of him? That was when I met him—when he was going for the medicine.
4544. Did you never tell him before? No; I never saw him after he left Mosman's Bay till I saw him when he was going for the medicine. I only asked him, "What about the quarrel you always have together?"
4545. They had been quarrelling then? Yes.
4546. Which is the truth—did they live affectionately or did they live on bad terms? They lived affectionately till the mother came.
4547. And after that? After the mother came, on very bad terms.
4548. At the time you saw him going for the medicine you said what? "What is that you are always quarrelling about?" and he said, "It is not my fault. I am all right with May. It is only the mother."
4549. He said he was all right with May, and that it was only the mother? Yes.
4550. As far as May was concerned they were on good terms? So I thought.
4551. Then only for the mother they would have got on splendidly? Yes; I think they would.
4552. And that is what he told you when you met him in the morning that he was going for the medicine? Yes; he said that only for the mother they would live happily together.
4553. Did they seem affectionate to one another when the mother was away? Yes.
4554. Mrs. Dean was affectionate to him and he was affectionate to her? Not when the mother was there. When the mother wasn't there he was affectionate to her and she was affectionate to him.
4555. The quarrels arose, then, through the mother as far as you could see? Yes; after the mother left Mrs. Dean came over to me and said, "I am very glad mother has left; I do not know who to please when mother is there."
4556. So that the cause of any unpleasantness was gone? Yes.
4557. Did he ever tell you that he had found out anything about the character of Mrs. Seymour—the mother? No.
4558. He never told you? No.
4559. Never? No, never.
4560. How long have you known Dean? I have known him for about five or six years, but only by sight.
4561. Did you know him before he was married? Yes; I knew him before he married.
4562. Has he ever been to your place to buy things? Yes, many times.
4563. You have spoken to him, of course? Yes; I was a resident of Mosman's, and used to speak to him on the boats. Both Mrs. Dean and he came to my shop. I saw them about twice together in my shop.
4564. You said you kept a store? Yes.
4565. On the Circular Quay, and that he bought things there, and that you knew him for five or six years? Yes.
4566. You did not know Mrs. Dean before she was married? Yes, because she came into my shop, and through that I knew her.
4567. She came into your shop before she was married? Yes; I did not know they kept company together.
4568. Mr. Meagher.] When you saw Mrs. Dean in Miller-street did she ever make any remark about her affection for her husband—whether it had changed at all;—do you remember having any conversation with Mrs. Dean about her husband? The second time—after she had the baby—she sent me a letter to come and see her, and I went and visited her.
4569. President.] How old was her baby then? About three weeks old, perhaps a little more; I could not tell—three or four weeks.
4570. Then it was some time in January? Yes.
4571. Mr. Meagher.] Did she speak to you about her husband then? Yes; they just had a quarrel in the morning. She told me they had a quarrel.
4572. Was the mother there then? Yes; Mrs. Seymour was there when she told me first about the quarrel.
4573. President.] You say the morning you saw him he was going to the chemist's? Yes; he was crying bitterly before he could speak a word.
4574. He was crying bitterly? Yes.
4575. Did he tell you why he was crying? He told me May was nearly dead.
4576. And that, you thought, was the reason of his crying? Yes; he asked me to go and see her, and I said, "I have no time."
4577. Was that in answer to your saying, "What is the matter, George?" Yes.
4578. And then he told you that May was nearly dead? Yes.
4579. Did he burst out crying then? No; he was crying before he said that.
4580. Was he crying before you put the question? Yes.
4581. When you called him over? Yes.
4582. Was he near the chemist's? Yes; it was just near the chemist's, opposite the Town Hall.
4583. At St. Leonards? Yes.
4584. Was he on his bicycle? Yes.
4585. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you notice whether he had a mark on his face or not? No, I did not.
4586. You did not notice that? No.
4587. Have you ever seen him in any way under the influence of drink? No, never.
4588. You never have? No.
4589. President.] Can you tell whether the crying was the maudlin crying of drink, or whether it appeared to you to be honest crying? I do not think he had any drink. I am sure he had no drink.
4590. Sir Julian Salomons.] You said he said that his wife was nearly dead? Yes.
4591. And he asked you to go and see her;—why did not you go if that was true? I had no time.
4592. You said you had no time? Yes.
4593. You were told she was nearly dead, and you said you had no time;—how far were you from the house? A good bit.

Mrs.
E. Piddin.
23 May, 1895.

- Mrs.
E. Pfafflin.
23 May, 1895.
4594. How long would it take you to go;—why had you no time to go and see her? Because I had to go to Sydney on business.
4595. What time did you come home? In the afternoon.
4596. Did you go to see her then? No.
4597. What day in the week was this that you are speaking of? It was on a Tuesday.
4598. What time did you get back in the afternoon? About 5 or 6 o'clock.
4599. You did not go that afternoon? No.
4600. You did not go on Wednesday? No; I did not.
4601. Did you go on Thursday? No.
4602. Neither in the day nor in the evening? No; I went on Friday.
4603. You did not go on a Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday, although he told you she was nearly dead and he was crying? No.
4604. Was anyone with you? Yes.
4605. Who was with you? My daughter was with me.
4606. How old was she? She is a married woman.
4607. What is her name? Knoll—Mrs. Knoll.
4608. Where does she live? She lives at Mosman's Bay.
4609. President.] Is she here? No.
4610. Is she summoned? No.
4611. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where is she now? She is in Mosman's Bay.
4612. What is her husband? He is an accountant.
4613. Whereabouts does she live at Mosman's Bay? In Raglan-street.
4614. President.] What is her first name? Elise.
4615. Is there any name or number to the house? I could not say; it is near Mrs. Merrick's, a draper's shop.
4616. Sir Julian Salomons.] What did you say your daughter's name was? Knoll.
4617. Your daughter was with you? Yes.
4618. Did you start from home together? Yes.
4619. And when Dean came up where were you? At the corner of Mount-street, opposite the post-office.
4620. Was Mrs. Knoll going into town with you? Yes; we went to a shop, and then went into town together.
4621. She was going to town with you then when you called Dean over? Yes.
4622. Were you standing close together? Yes.
4623. She could hear what was said? Yes; I think so.
4624. How old is your daughter? She will be 22 next June.
4625. Did your daughter say anything? No.
4626. She said nothing? Oh, she spoke to George.
4627. What did she say? I do not remember what she said.
4628. When did you first give any information about this matter;—did you go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? No.
4629. Some person on the North Shore, I suppose, came to see you? Yes, two gentlemen. My husband said he would not have me to be mixed up in it.
4630. Do you know the names of the gentlemen who came to you? I went to a Mrs. Sutton, and Mrs. Sutton came to me once, and asked me for a photograph of Mrs. Dean, and then I went to see Mrs. Sutton to bring the photo. back. We were talking about the matter, and she said to me, "You ought to know something about Dean"; and I said, "I don't like to be mixed up with it; my husband does not like me to be mixed up with it." And she said to me, "If he is innocent you ought to speak." I said, "If he is innocent I would like to speak"; and she said, "Then come with me, and we will go to Mr. Elliott." We went to Mr. Elliott, and then I told the gentlemen what I knew. After that, two gentlemen—a Mr. Davis, and I don't know the other gentleman's name—came and asked me.
4631. Did they not send you anywhere? No.
4632. You did not go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's? No.
4633. You made a statement? Only to those two gentlemen.
4634. Those two gentlemen took it down, I suppose? Yes.
4635. You never told them that your daughter was with you on that occasion? No, I did not.
4636. Why did you not tell them your daughter was with you? I did not want my daughter's name to be mentioned, and she did not want it either.
4637. President.] How long would it take to go to where your daughter lives? The only way is by a boat; the boat, I think, leaves every hour.
4638. Sir Julian Salomons.] You said that you were told "that if he was innocent you ought to help him"? Yes.
4639. You said you would if you thought so? Yes.
4640. Have you and your daughter discussed this matter? No.
4641. You have never spoken to your daughter since? Oh, yes, I have spoken to her.
4642. You have not spoken to her about the time you met Dean going for the medicine? Yes; we spoke together about the matter, that is all.
4643. Have you and your daughter spoken about what you are telling us here to-day? I cannot remember.
4644. You cannot remember whether you have spoken to your daughter about this conversation? Yes; we spoke over it sometimes.
4645. President.] Have you ever spoken to her about your interview with George Dean on that morning, about what you said to George Dean when you saw him going to the chemist's for medicine? I cannot remember that we mentioned it that morning.
4646. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your daughter knows that you are coming here? Yes, she knows.
4647. When did you see her last;—how long ago? I have not seen her since Sunday.
4648. She knows you are coming here? Yes; my husband told her, and she did not like it.
4649. You have spoken to her on this matter, but you do not know whether you have spoken to her about this conversation? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

Thomas Charles Thompson sworn and examined:—

T. C.
Thompson,
23 May, 1895.

4650. Mr. Meagher.] What are you, Mr. Thompson? Engineer on board the "Possum."
4651. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is that the boat Dean was on? Yes.
4652. Mr. Meagher.] You reside where, Mr. Thompson? One door from Dean's. I live next door but one from Dean's.
4653. Do you remember Saturday, 2nd March? Yes.
4654. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are the husband of the lady who gave evidence here yesterday? Yes.
4655. Mr. Meagher.] Did you have occasion to go to Dean's house? Yes: I went there on the Saturday morning.
4656. At what time? About 12 o'clock.
4657. Did you see Dean? No, I did not see Dean.
4658. Whom did you see? I saw Mrs. Dean.
4659. Did you speak to her? Yes; I told her that I had come for the bicycle that her husband promised to lend me. She said, "I think it is all right; he fixed it up before he went to bed."
4660. Had you seen Mrs. Dean often previous to this? Well, I have seen her coming in and out of her own place in the street.
4661. On this Saturday at 12 o'clock how did she look in appearance? She appeared quite well to me.
4662. When she told you that Dean had fixed up the bicycle before he went to bed did you take the machine away? Yes, I took the machine away.
4663. Did you call at the house again during that day? Yes.
4664. When was that? I called back again between 1 and 2 o'clock, as near as I could say.
4665. Did you go into the house? Yes; I knocked at the front door, but I got no answer; the door was just ajar. I pushed it in and I put the machine up against the mantelpiece in the front room. On coming out again I saw Mrs. Dean coming to the gate. She had just come down the street. She said, "That will be all right, Mr. Thompson," and I said, "Tell Mr. Dean I do not think the wheel is secure; it is leaking still."
4666. How close was she to you when she addressed you? She was not within 3 yards of me; she was like going through her own gate, and I was coming out of her gate. She had no hat on.
4667. Did she appear to be unwell? No; she appeared to be the same as she was in the morning. She addressed me the same as she did in the morning.
4668. Did she make any complaint to you about feeling unwell? No; none whatever.
4669. That was between 1 and 2? Yes; between 1 and 2, as near as I can say.
4670. Did you have occasion to go there at any other time on that Saturday? Yes; I went there after I had had my tea.
4671. Did you see Dean there? Yes.
4672. Did you see his wife there? Yes.
4673. What part of the house were they in when you went there after tea? They were in the kitchen.
4674. Had they finished tea? They were just about to have tea; they were just sitting down to tea.
4675. Had you any conversation with Dean there? Yes; my business was to ask him if he had a nut to fit my machine, because on coming home on Saturday I lost one of the nuts off my machine, and I thought by going in there I might get one off him. It was between 7 and 8 o'clock.
4676. President.] What then? I went to ask him for a nut to my machine.
4677. How did Mrs. Dean seem? She seemed quite well. Dean said to her, "Don't stand on those cold stones; you know you are not well; keep out of the cold." She said, "What are you looking for, George?" He said, "I am trying to find Charley a nut; I have them in a little bag somewhere." She said, "I have cleaned up that place; I do not think they are there." He said, "Never mind; I am going down town, and I will see if I can get you a nut there." This was between 7 and 8 o'clock on Saturday night.
4678. Did she seem very well? Oh, yes.
4679. Apart from his saying, "Don't stand on the cold stones; you know you are not very well," did she seem very well? Yes; all right. She had an evening wrapper on.
4680. Did she complain of any pain in her head? No; not while I was there.
4681. How long were you there between 7 and 8 o'clock? About five or ten minutes.
4682. Can you go any nearer the time than between 7 or 8 o'clock? It might have been nearer 8 than 7 o'clock.
4683. Was it half-past 7 or a quarter-past 7 or five minutes past 7? I could not say.
4684. It was about half-past 7? Yes; as near as I can say. It was just about the time I go to lie down. I usually lie down before I go to the steamer. I usually leave home about 10.
4685. Mr. Meagher.] Do you remember the Monday following? Yes; I do.
4686. Do you play cricket? Yes; we play cricket sometimes.
4687. On that day were you playing cricket anywhere? Yes.
4688. Where were you playing? In the reserve.
4689. Sir Julian Salomons.] On the Monday following? Yes.
4690. You were playing cricket? Yes.
4691. President.] At what time were you playing? Between 5 and 6 o'clock. I was playing with Mr. Elliott, sub-editor of the Herald.
4692. Mr. Meagher.] Did you see Dean on that afternoon? Yes; I went in to get the cricketing tools off him.
4693. President.] Did he have the cricketing tools? Yes; he borrowed them off Mr. Weynton next door.
4694. Mr. Meagher.] Did he tell you anything about his wife that day? Yes.
4695. What did he say to you? He said, "You had better take them, Charley; I cannot go with you, my wife is too bad. You can tell Mr. Elliott that I could not come along." I took the cricketing tools with me, and his machine also. I asked him to lend me his machine to go to the Park on.
4696. Did you take the things on the bicycle? Yes; under my arm on the bicycle.
4697. Were they in a bag? No; loose—four stumps, a bat and a ball.
4698. After you got on the Reserve did you see Dean? Yes; I saw Dean.

T. C.
Thompson.
23 May, 1895.

4699. That same afternoon? Yes. Dean came rushing down. He was almost out of breath. He said, "I will take the bicycle, Charley; I want to go to Dr. Newmarch; the missis is that bad I can't stand it any longer." He was away about a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes, and he returned again with the bicycle. He stopped with us until about 6 o'clock. I think it was 6, or a few minutes after then, and he returned home with me.
4700. Sir Julian Salomons.] When did he come back with the bicycle? Within a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes of when he left for the doctor.
4701. At what time of the day was this? Between 5 and 6 o'clock.
4702. And he stayed with you till when? Until just about 6 o'clock, or a few minutes after.
4703. He took the bicycle away, went for the doctor, and came back to the cricket ground? Yes.
4704. Dr. Jones.] How long did he remain with you? I should say about half an hour after he came back.
4705. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean to say he was playing cricket with you? Yes; he played cricket with us.
4706. President.] Did he play with you till you knocked off? Yes; he played until we knocked off.
4707. What time did you knock off? At 6 o'clock, or a few minutes after. The 6 o'clock bell had just gone, I think, when we knocked off.
4708. You did not play as long as you could see? We could have played a little longer, but Mr. Elliott asked me to stop for a few minutes until he sent over for a bottle of beer.
4709. Did you play till it was not light enough to see? Yes.
4710. Sir Julian Salomons.] Then you say somebody sent for a bottle of beer? Yes. Mr. Elliott asked me to wait till he sent over to his house in front of the reserve.
4711. Mr. Meagher.] Did you see Dean on the following Tuesday? Yes; I saw him on the Tuesday morning.
4712. Did he go into your place? Yes; he came into my place.
4713. What state was he in? He was crying when he came in, and was very excited.
4714. What time was this on the Tuesday? This would be just on 8 o'clock.
4715. Did he make any request to you? Yes.
4716. What did he say? He said, "Are you going to bed, Charley?" I said, "No." He said, "Would you go down to the doctor's for me?" I said, "Yes; what is the matter?" He said, "For God's sake go down to the doctor, my wife is awfully bad; there is no one inside to look after the child. Mrs. Weynton was there, but she has gone home." He said to me, "They are talking something about a bottle with poison in it, Charley."
4717. Being a neighbour of Dean's, did you know Mrs. Seymour by sight? Yes, I knew her by sight.
4718. By the way, did you go and get the doctor at once as you were asked? Yes; I went straight down; I did not wait to finish my breakfast. I put on my boots and took his machine and went at once to the doctor.
4719. President.] How far does the doctor live? I should say about a mile.
4720. Sir Julian Salomons.] You went on his bicycle? Yes.
4721. Mr. Meagher.] Did you see the doctor come there on that Tuesday? I saw his carriage outside.
4722. You are perfectly clear that it was you who went for the doctor? Yes, I am positive of it.
4723. Sir Julian Salomons.] What day was this,—Tuesday the 6th? The 5th.
4724. Mr. Meagher.] You say that shortly after you came back from Dr. Newmarch you saw his carriage outside? Yes, I saw his carriage outside.
4725. How did you know his carriage;—did he attend on your wife? Yes, he attended on my wife.
4726. Sir Julian Salomons.] It was on a Tuesday? Yes, on the 5th—on Tuesday the 5th of March.
4727. Mr. Meagher.] You say you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes; I know her by sight.
4728. Do you remember if you saw her in the vicinity of Dean's place in the month of February? Yes.
4729. Under what circumstances did you see her;—tell us in your own way? When I got up out of bed (I usually get up on Sunday between a quarter-past 8 and half-past 8) my wife told me the boys had been at the fruit in the afternoon; and said "You had better go up and see if the gate is secure." It was a moonlight night; at times it was bright and at times dull. I went up gently to open the gate so that the latch would not make a noise if the boys were there. I saw that the gate had a stanchion up against it. I peeped through the fence and I saw a person all in black sitting on the grass. I did not take any notice of that, but when I turned my head I saw a light in Dean's window, and I saw this person get up and stand for a moment and walk away into the shed just near the fence at the back of the shop. She seemed to be walking backwards and forwards. I did not pay much attention. I said to my wife when I came down to have a wash, "I wonder who this is standing outside; there is a woman; she seems to be watching the light in Dean's window." My wife came up with me, and she said, "I think that is Mrs. Seymour." I said, "Do you think so?" I fancy it is Mrs. Seymour myself," and with that I walked away. I had my wash and put on my things and went to the boat. I did not think anything more about it till I got to the boat. When I got to the boat I said to Dean, "George, did you notice anything to-night as you came away from your place." He said, "No, nothing unusual." I said, "Well, I don't like to interfere, but I saw a person who seemed to be watching a light in your back window, and when the light went out of the back window the person seemed to go closer." I said, "If I were you I would take a run home and see what is the matter." He seemed to treat it very lightly; he did not seem to think anything about it at all; then, when he did not take any interest, I never bothered my head over it.
4730. Sir Julian Salomons.] You don't know who it was? I recognised it as Mrs. Seymour.
4731. Did you tell him it was Mrs. Seymour? Yes; I said I recognised it as Mrs. Seymour. I said, "I saw a person watching the light in the window, and I recognised her as Mrs. Seymour."
4732. President.] Did Dean take that lightly? Yes; he seemed to treat the matter lightly.
4733. When was this? On a Sunday night, the first or second Sunday in February.
4734. Was it a moonlight night? Yes; when the clouds were not obscuring, it was a bright moonlight night.
4735. Did you say anything else to him? I told him I would look after the boat if he went back.
4736. Sir Julian Salomons.] You swear that it was Mrs. Seymour? I took her to be Mrs. Seymour.
4737. Mr. Meagher.] Can you say from your personal knowledge that Dean was a man very fond of his home? Yes; he was always very fond of his home. He was always doing things about his home.

T. C.
Thompson.
23 May, 1895.

4738. He always went straight home from his work? Yes; straight home. He usually went home with me. If he did not have his machine he would take the tram to the butcher's, and we would walk together; he would walk alongside of my machine and we would go home together.

4739. President.] He would take the tram that goes from Milson's Point? Yes; that is where we moored our boat after we were done. We would leave Milson's Point, and he would catch the tram to Walker-street, and then I would meet him.

4740. Mr. Meagher.] Have you yourself seen him making any articles of furniture? Well, I have not been in seeing him making them. He has taken me in and shown me what he has done, shown me the articles of furniture he has made.

4741. Have you ever heard him speak of his wife? Yes.

4742. In what manner has he spoken of her? Always very kindly; he has always spoken of her kindly. He told me on Saturday night, the 2nd or 3rd, that if his wife was well enough he was going to send her to Nowra for a week, to a party by the name of Fimmister. I think he kept an hotel.

4743. President.] When did he tell you that? Either on Saturday or Sunday night.

4744. That is on the 2nd or 3rd of March? Yes; we were having a conversation about a tour on our bikes to the mountains. I said, "In the holidays I intend to go to Moss Vale, and then to Nowra." He said, "I would like to go with you, but my wife not being well I must send her to Nowra, and then I might go with you." I did not press him, because I knew he did not have much money to spend, on account of having a piece of land. He was trying to pay off the coat and to build a fence on it.

4745. Sir Julian Selomons.] Were you not there when your wife made a statement to Tindall? Yes.

4746. Did not Tindall ask you if you knew anything, and you told him you knew nothing? Tindall asked me did I know anything about the case, and I said, "What I know you are welcome to have; what I know about the case you can have." He said, "Do you know much about it?" I said, "Nothing of importance."

4747. Did you tell him anything? I told him nothing.

4748. Did you not tell him after your wife made these statements that you knew nothing? These are the words I used: I asked Tindall did he want me to make a statement. He said, "Do you know anything about the case?" I said, "Nothing of importance." He said, "If you are called you will be able to explain."

4749. Did you tell him anything? No.

4750. Of any kind? No; Tindall came to my house and asked my wife to make a statement about the Tuesday she was in Dean's.

4751. Did you or did you not;—you know what your wife had given an account of? Yes.

4752. You knew that? Yes.

4753. Did he not ask you if you could give any information, and you said "Nothing"? Tindall didn't ask me. I asked Tindall if he wanted me to make a statement. He said, "Do you know anything?" I said, "Not much; but if I am called I will give my evidence." I made no statement.

4754. I suppose you won't deny that Tindall was there to get information? Yes, he was there to get information about my wife's being in Dean's on the Tuesday morning. Tindall came for that, and he asked my wife to make a statement.

4755. When were you first communicated with about this matter? I was subpoenaed to the Criminal Court, but I was not called.

4756. Were you not subpoenaed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher to the Criminal Court? Yes.

4757. What days were you there? I was there on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday—three days.

4758. Was your wife with you? Yes, my wife was there.

4759. You and your wife were there on what days? On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

4760. You were not called as a witness? No.

4761. Had you given a statement before that? No.

4762. Had you given the solicitors any statement? No.

4763. Were you not there as a witness? Yes.

4764. Had not your wife made a statement? Yes.

4765. Had you not made any statement to anybody? I had made no statement to anybody.

4766. You were subpoenaed and made no statement to anybody? I made no statement to anybody. I was subpoenaed by Crick and Meagher, and my wife was subpoenaed by the Crown.

4767. You were not called? No.

4768. Was she subpoenaed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher? No.

4769. You were subpoenaed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher? Yes; I was subpoenaed for the defence. I suppose that would be Crick and Meagher.

4770. Didn't you say that the person you saw there you recognised to be Mrs. Seymour? To the best of my knowledge I thought it was Mrs. Seymour.

4771. And your wife thought so too? Yes.

4772. You were both agreed that it was Mrs. Seymour? Yes; she said, "I believe that is Mrs. Seymour."

4773. And you thought so too? Yes.

4774. If there is a word of truth in it how could you have told the husband, Dean, to go back to the house about his own mother-in-law, when you knew it was Mrs. Seymour? I asked him did he see anybody knocking about his place, and he said, "No." I said, "Well, I don't want to interfere with your business, George, but I saw somebody watching the light in your back window. I fancy, but I would not swear, that it was your mother-in-law. If you think there is anything wrong you go back and I will look after the boat." I advised him to go back.

4775. Although at the time you said you would not swear it was his mother-in-law, now you swear it was? To the best of my belief I thought it was his mother-in-law, but I would not swear it was his mother-in-law.

4776. Will you swear it was Mrs. Scymour on that night? To the best of my belief I will.

4777. When you spoke to him? To the best of my belief I thought it was Mrs. Seymour.

4778. Then when you talked to the husband you believed it was Mrs. Seymour? I had my own opinion.

4779. Didn't you believe the same as you believe now, that it was his mother-in-law? I would not swear that it was his mother-in-law.

4780. President.] Did you believe then the same as you believe now—just as much then as you do now that it was Mrs. Seymour? In my own mind I believed it was Mrs. Seymour.

4781.

T. C.
Thompson,
23 May, 1895.

4781. Sir Julian Salomons.] And your wife thought the same? Yes.
4782. What is the reason you spoke to the husband about the mysterious woman at his house? On account of the person watching the light in the window; his mother-in-law dodging about the back there.
4783. Although it was his mother-in-law you thought it necessary to tell him that you would mind the boat while he went back? Yes.
4784. That is your account of it? Yes.
4785. As you were so careful about that, will you tell me why you did not tell the police when Weynton gave you the information about the strychnine being in his place? Because the police did not ask me.
4786. You know that Dean was charged with having attempted to poison his wife? Yes.
4787. You have known him for years? Yes, for four years.
4788. You were on the steamer with him? Yes.
4789. And you were very intimate with him? No more than working with him and going home together.
4790. You played cricket with him? Yes.
4791. And thought of going on an excursion with him? Yes.
4792. And went to his house? I did not go to his house much; only a few times, when he asked me to go in.
4793. You played cricket with him, you were going an excursion with him, and you were on the same steamer with him? Yes.
4794. You know that he was arrested on this serious charge of attempting to poison his wife;—you read some of the papers, of course? Yes, occasionally.
4795. And watched the course of the case? I never watched every paper.
4796. You want me to understand that you did not pay any attention to it; didn't you read to see what was becoming of the case? Yes.
4797. Did you read what your wife said here yesterday? No.
4798. Didn't you read the paper to-day? No.
4799. Or last night's evening papers? No, I did not.
4800. Not even after your wife was examined? No.
4801. You knew that Dean was tried and convicted? Yes.
4802. Is it not true that in your presence, and in your wife's presence, Weynton told you about having strychnine on his premises? I won't swear to that.
4803. Will you admit it?—don't you know that it is true, as well as that your name is Thompson, and that your wife has sworn to it? My belief of the poison that Weynton told me about is that it was in the morning. Weynton called me to the fence, I believe in the morning, and told me about the poison. That is the only thing I can make out about the poison.
4804. Was your wife there? No, my wife was not there.
4805. What did he tell you? He told me that the poison he had was to poison a dog that was knocking about the place. He said he was either going to bury it or that he had buried it.
4806. What position was Dean in at that time; was that the night that he was arrested, or was it before he was arrested;—was not this conversation before he was arrested? My belief is that Weynton told me in the morning, in the daytime, but I am not positive about it.
4807. Was that before Dean was arrested? After he was arrested.
4808. Will you swear that until after he was arrested you did not know about Weynton burying that poison? Yes; I did not know about Weynton burying that poison before he was arrested.
4809. You didn't? No.
4810. How long after he was arrested, then;—here was a charge of poisoning, partly by arsenic and partly by strychnine; you have a conversation with a man next door, and yet you cannot give me any idea of the time or the day? I had no more conversation than that he asked me what I thought of the affair.
4811. It is about the poison that I am talking? That is just where the poison comes in. He asked me, "What do you think of this affair?" I said, "It is not a very nice affair." He said, "I have got some strychnine here to poison my dog; I am going to bury it," or "have buried it." I didn't pay much attention to what he said.
4812. You didn't pay much attention;—when a man was charged with attempting to poison his wife, and in the next house there is strychnine either buried or going to be buried? It might be important, but I did not take much notice of what he was saying.
4813. Look at the notice you took of other trifles;—playing cricket, going for a bottle of beer;—you can give us all these things? Yes.
4814. Do you swear the police did not go to your place as well as Weynton's, to make inquiry about the poison? They did not come to my place.
4815. They did not see you? Yes, they saw me.
4816. How long after his arrest was it when they saw you? I do not think he had been brought up at the Police Court. I think it was either the first or the second night after. It was either the Saturday or Monday night that Brennan came to the boat and asked me if Dean had any things there, and I said he had his books, tickets, and cash-box. I opened my box, and I let Brennan search it, and he found some sugar.
4817. Why didn't you tell that constable about the strychnine being in the next place? Because he did not ask me.
4818. That is the reason you give? Yes.
4819. Did not Sergeant Brennan inquire particularly from you if you knew anything about poison being in Dean's possession? Yes.
4820. He did? Yes.
4821. What did you say to him? I said, "No."
4822. Why did you not tell him about the strychnine being buried in the next ground? I am not too sure I knew about it then.
4823. Will you swear that you did not know about it then? I would not be positive about it. I treated the matter very lightly.
4824. Why did you treat it so lightly—was it because you were trying to shield Dean? No, I was not.
4825. Then why didn't you let the police know it? Because I was not sure it was buried in the next garden.

T. C.
Thompson.
23 May, 1895.

4826. You did not doubt what Weynton told you? Not for a moment. I do not know whether he told me that he was going to bury it or had buried it.
4827. That was the strychnine? Yes, strychnine.
4828. Why did you not tell the police? Because I did not pay much attention to it.
4829. Is it not a fact that the police came and dug up the ground and found the strychnine there? Yes, I heard it.
4830. You admit the sergeant asked you if you noticed any poison in Dean's possession, and you said, "No"? He asked me if there was any arsenic or poison used about the boats; also whether I noticed any in Dean's possession, and I said, "No."
4831. Didn't he ask you if you knew anything about poison at your house or anywhere and you said, "No"? I never saw Brennan at my place.
4832. Didn't he ask you first of all if you kept any poison in your house? No, I don't believe he did; he may have.
4833. He was there inquiring about this poison? I don't remember his being at my house; I saw him on the boat once.
4834. And you don't know how long this was after the arrest; you say a day or two? I won't be too sure.
4835. Isn't it a fact that you left the police in the dark, and made no communication whatever? I did not make any communication to the police, but I was questioned by Brennan afterwards.
4836. President.] Afterwards? Yes.
4837. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you ever see Brennan or any other constable at your house about this matter? No, not to my knowledge; I did not.
4838. Will you swear you did not see any member of the police at your house about it? Brennan came one night, but he did not see me at my house, he saw me on the road about 100 yards from my house. He was waiting for me when I was coming from work. He asked me what I knew about the poison at Weynton's, and whether I had had any conversation with a man named Cumming.
4839. Was that after the poison was dug up? Yes; after it was dug up.
4840. Until the time it was dug up you made no communication to the police of any kind about that poison being buried there? No.
4841. Were you not in your house when the police came and spoke to your wife about this business? I don't think they ever spoke to my wife about poison.
4842. If they did you were not there? No; I was not there.
4843. If he spoke to your wife about it you heard nothing of it? No.
4844. This time you are speaking of is after the police had dug it up? Yes.
4845. You were not there when they dug it up? No; I was asleep. I read it in the paper in the morning. I heard it was dug up in Dean's yard, not in Weynton's yard.
4846. When did you hear about strychnine before the poisoning of the dog? I knew nothing about strychnine until Weynton told me. I knew he had buried a dog, but not that he had poisoned it. He said it was a mangy little dog, and he did not care for the children to play with it.
4847. When was this, about the dog being buried? It was a good while before this affair of Dean's cropped up.
4848. Dean was arrested in March;—I suppose you know that? Yes; he was arrested on the Friday.
4849. How long before that was this matter about the mangy dog, and the dog being buried? It must have been a couple of months before that, I was in Weynton's place one day, and he said, "My things ought to grow well, I have a dog buried there."
4850. That was a few months before? Yes.
4851. You know nothing about his poisoning it? I did not know.
4852. Do you know a Mr. Johnson? Just by bidding him good morning.
4853. You knew nothing about his having laid poison? Nothing until I saw it in the paper.
4854. He lives near, does he not? He looks after the bridge close by me. He lives about half a mile from me.

[Witness withdrew.]

Elise Knoll sworn and examined:—

4855. President.] Do you know George Dean? Yes.
4856. Do you remember on any day early in March seeing George Dean? Yes.
4857. Were you with anybody at the time? Yes; with my mother.
4858. Where were you? At North Shore.
4859. Whereabouts at North Shore? I don't exactly know the street. I think it was Miller-street.
4860. At what time did you see Dean on that occasion? Some time in the morning.
4861. Early in the morning? I think between 9 and 10 o'clock.
4862. Was he on foot or riding? He was on his bicycle.
4863. Did your mother speak to him? He got off his bicycle and spoke to my mother.
4864. Did you hear what was said? Yes.
4865. Can you tell us what was said? He said his wife was very ill, and he asked my mother if she would go up and see her. My mother declined. My mother asked him what was the matter with her, and he said, "She is very ill, vomiting." My mother asked him what was the cause, and he replied, "There is some rumour going about that she has been drinking lemon syrup out of a bottle containing a white powder, and they blame me for it." My mother said, "Surely, George, you would not poison your wife?" He said, "No; that is the last thing I would do. I would sooner join a ship and leave her than I would poison her."
4866. What condition was Dean in at that time? He looked very miserable.
4867. Was he crying? Yes; he was.
4868. Did your mother ask him where he was going? Yes; he told us he was going to the chemist's. The doctor had given him a prescription, he said, and was going to get the medicine.
4869. Did he say that the doctor had given him a prescription? Yes.
4870. Do you know Mrs. Dean at all? Not very well.

E. Knoll.

4871.

- E. Knoll. 4871. Do you know Dean well? Not very well.
 4872. Do you remember on what day of the week this occurred? Yes, I do remember now; it was on a Tuesday.
 23 May, 1895. 4873. Was there any other day except that Tuesday on which you, with your mother, saw Dean? No; that was the only occasion.
 4874. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you not say something about poisoning and joining a ship? Yes.
 4875. Will you tell us exactly what took place? Dean told my mother he would not poison his wife; that he would sooner join a ship and leave her.
 4876. Why did he say that to your mother? He said that there was a rumour about.
 4877. About what? That she had been drinking out of a bottle that contained a white powder.
 4878. And then? Then mother said, "Surely, George, you would not poison your wife?" He said in reply, "No; I would sooner join a ship and leave her before I would do that."
 4879. President.] Did Dean seem to be distressed? Oh, yes; he was very much distressed about it.
 4880. Have you any idea if he had been drinking? No.
 4881. Was there any sign of it? No.
 4882. What did he say about the rumours? He said that there was a rumour that his wife had been drinking out of a bottle that contained a white powder.
 4883. Then did your mother say, "Surely, George, you would not poison your wife"? I don't know whether those were exactly the words, but that was the substance of what she said.
 4884. And what did he say in reply? He said, "No, I would not think of doing such a thing; I would sooner join a ship and leave her."
 4885. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did this conversation take place on a Tuesday morning? Yes; I am quite sure it was on a Tuesday morning.

Thomas Charles Thompson, examination continued:—

- T. C. Thompson. 4886. Sir Julian Salomons.] I did not quite catch what you said;—when was it Dean rushed down and said his missis was so bad, he could not stand it any longer? It was on the Monday when he said he would not stand it any longer, and that he would go and fetch the doctor.
 23 May, 1895. 4887. When he said, "For God's sake, go for the doctor," was that on the same day? No; that was on the Tuesday, the 5th.
 4888. Was it on the Monday that he went back to the cricket ground? Yes.
 4889. I suppose you did not make a note of the time? No; but I remember particularly the time when I went into the house on the Monday.
 4890. Will you swear that what you said took place between 1 and 2 on the Saturday, when you knocked at the front door and got no answer, did not take place between 2 and 3? I know I caught the half-past 1 horse-boat, and rode straight up on the machine.
 4891. Where to? The top of Miller-street.
 4892. Where did you take the horse-boat from? Sydney.
 4893. What time do you swear you took that boat? Half-past 1.
 4894. How long does it take to get across? About five minutes.
 4895. And you won't admit that it was after 2 o'clock when you got to the house? No.
 4896. What time do you swear it was then? Well, it took five minutes to cross in the boat.
 4897. Will you swear that you caught the half-past 1 boat? Yes.
 4898. When you got over on the other side, what did you do? I went straight home with the two machines.
 4899. Did you go direct from the wharf? Yes.
 4900. What do you mean by "with the two machines"? I rode one machine and led the other.
 4901. How far is it from the wharf to the house? The house is at the top of Miller-street.
 4902. And do you not know that it is all up hill? It is, a good bit of the distance.
 4903. And what did you do? Well, I put my machine up against the side of the fence and took Dean's to his own door. I knocked at the front door, which was ajar, and no one answered; I put the machine in the house.
 4904. How do you say you came from the wharf? I was riding one machine and leading the other alongside of me.
 4905. Did you see Mrs. Dean when you got home? Yes; when I was coming out of his gate.
 4906. Did you see your own wife, I mean, before you went to Dean's with the bicycle? No; I do not think I did.
 4907. Will you swear you did not speak to her before you went to Dean's? To my knowledge, I did not.
 4908. Had you had lunch in town? No; I came home to dinner.
 4909. What time did you have dinner? I sometimes have it about 2, sometimes 3.
 4910. And you have no recollection of speaking to your wife? No. I left my bicycle alongside my fence and took his on.
 4911. President.] Which machine did you ride from the steamer? Dean's.
 4912. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you say it is $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the wharf to your house? Nearly so.
 4912 $\frac{1}{2}$. And nearly all up hill? Well, there is from Milson's Point and Junction-street and that part by the tram terminus.
 4913. Are not these places very steep indeed? Not so steep that I can't ride it.
 4914. Mr. Pilcher.] Is it so very steep that you cannot ride your bicycle up it? No; there is no hill that I cannot ride my bicycle up between the wharf and my house, and carry other things besides.
 4915. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you generally carry other things as well? I usually carry other things every morning.
 4916. And what did you do with Dean's bicycle? I put it in the front room, and left it leaning up against the mantel-piece.
 4917. What did you do then? As I was coming out of the gateway I met his wife, and she said to me, "That's all right, Mr. Thompson." I said to her, "Tell George I don't think the wheel is secure, I think it is leaking." 4918.

T. C.
Thompson.
23 May, 1895.

4918. Did you stop to talk to her? No; I just told her I thought the wheel was not secure.
4919. Did you not say something about getting the bicycle in the morning? Yes.
4920. What time was that? About 12 o'clock.
4921. Where did you find the bicycle then? I took it out of Dean's house. I knocked at the door, and Mrs. Dean came to the middle door. She said to me, "I think it is all right; George mended it before he went to bed." I took the machine.
4922. Were you there a minute? I was there just long enough to get the machine.
4923. Is that all that took place then? Yes.
4924. Did you go to Dr. Newmarch's? Yes.
4925. Was it a man or woman servant whom you saw there? Some lady opened the door.
4926. What did you say to her? I asked her if the doctor was in. She said he was not up, and I left a message for him to come as soon as possible, and then I went away.
4927. Did you see Dr. Newmarch? I did not.
4928. And you left word that he was to go where? To Dean's.
4929. Did you leave that message with the servant? I left it with the lady who came to the door.
4930. Did you not tell us something about Mrs. Dean standing on the cold stones? Yes; she was standing on the back step of the kitchen, and Dean said to her, "Don't stand on the cold stones; you know you are not well."
4931. At what time was that? Between 7 and 8 o'clock.
4932. How long were you there then? Between five and ten minutes. I went to see if he had got a nut that would fit my machine.
4933. Did you not say something about a man named Elliott sending for some beer? Yes; he asked Dean to wait while he sent to his house for some beer. He did so; then we each had a drink.
4934. Was it quite dark by then? It was just getting dusk.
4935. President.] Had it got too dark to play cricket? [No answer.]
4936. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where does Elliott live from the Reserve;—did you not swear that Dean stayed for half-an-hour and played cricket, and then Mr. Elliott sent over for some beer? I don't think I stipulated when we knocked off playing. You asked me how long Dean stopped, and I said about half-an-hour.
4937. Didn't you say he stopped playing cricket for half an hour before anything was said about fetching a bottle of beer? I do not think I said so. I think I said he remained there about half an hour altogether.
4938. Who was he playing cricket with? With Mr. Elliott, myself, and a little boy.
4939. How far is Elliott's house away from where you were playing cricket? About 500 yards. Mr. Elliott lives opposite the Reserve, and he sent his little lame boy to fetch the beer from his house.
4940. Do you say it was a lame boy he sent? Yes.
4941. Mr. Pilcher.] Who is Mr. Elliott? He is the sub-editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.
4942. Sir Julian Salomons.] How long after sundown did all this happen? I say I think it happened somewhere about 6 o'clock.
4943. Was it before or after sundown? I did not look at the sun. It was about 6 o'clock, or a few minutes afterwards. The sun would be just about going down, and it must have been getting dusk.
4944. Were there any other persons playing cricket besides those you mention? No, not with us.
4945. Has anybody been talking to you about this matter since you were here before lunch? No; I have not mentioned anything to anybody.
4946. Has anyone been talking to you? Mr. Meagher has spoken to me.
4947. President.] Has Mr. Meagher been talking to you about this case? Mr. Meagher took me to Mr. Pilcher's chambers to see if Mr. Pilcher wished to examine me, and he did not wish to ask any questions.
4948. Why did Mr. Meagher take you to Mr. Pilcher? He told me to go with him for fear Mr. Pilcher wished to ask me any questions.
4949. And that although you were in the middle of your examination? Yes.
4950. Did you meet Mr. Meagher at his office? Yes, I did.
4951. And of course you talked nothing at all about the case? No; he didn't talk about the case. He merely told me he wanted me to see Mr. Pilcher.
4952. What for? I cannot say; that is best known to himself. I suppose it was for fear Mr. Pilcher wanted to ask me anything.
4953. Didn't you ask what Mr. Pilcher wanted to ask you? No, I did not.
4954. Have you not been trying all you can to get this man Dean out of this difficulty? Not particularly so.
4955. Have you not subscribed to the fund for his defence? Yes.
4956. How much? 25s.
4957. Has that been paid in two subscriptions? Yes.
4958. How much was the first? £1.
4959. How much since then? 5s.
4960. And I suppose you believe this man is innocent? Yes.
4961. Did you not say something about having seen Mrs. Scymour at the back of the house? Yes.
4962. Where was she? She was up by the fence.
4963. What were you doing? I was going to get a wash, ready to go to work.
4964. When you were washing yourself what did you see? I looked through the fence and saw a person crouching in the grass.
4965. In whose paddock was that? It was between Dean's and my fence.
4966. Was that on Dean's ground? I do not know; I think it is a vacant allotment.
4967. Where do you say you saw this person crouching in the grass? Right at the back, between my place and Dean's.
4968. Whereabouts in relation to the back gate? It would not be above 15 or 20 yards away.
4969. Was she against the fence? She was crouching on the ground.
4970. What do you mean by that? She was sitting down on the grass.
4971. Whom do you think it was? I thought it resembled Mrs. Seymour.
4972. What took place then;—did you speak to her? I did not go out and speak.

T. C.
Thompson.
23 May, 1895.

4973. How many yards distant were you away from this person or figure whom you saw crouching on the grass? Between 15 and 20 yards.
4974. Did she hear you? I did not speak.
4975. Why didn't you speak to her;—were you afraid? No.
4976. Then why did you not ask what she was doing crouching in the grass? Because it was no business of mine.
4977. What did you do when you saw this woman in the grass? I just called my wife.
4978. Where was she when you called her? Down in the kitchen.
4979. What took place then? I asked my wife who she thought the woman was.
4980. What did she say? She said she thought it was Mrs. Seymour.
4981. Did you think the same? Yes.
4982. Why didn't you speak to her when you saw her sitting there? Because it was no business of mine.
4983. So you both agreed that it was Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
4984. Had you seen Mrs. Seymour before that? Yes.
4985. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you know her to speak to? I had never spoken to her much. She had been once or twice about the place.
4986. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did not you say you called your wife from the kitchen? No; I did not call her; I went and told her.
4987. Why did you go and tell her if it was no business of yours? I wanted to ask her who she thought it was.
4988. And then did she come to where you were? Yes, and she said, "I fancy it is Mrs. Seymour."
4989. And you agreed with her? Yes; I agreed with her.
4990. When did you speak to Dean about it? When he came down to the boat to his work.
4991. At what time was that? About half-past 9 or a quarter to 10 at night.
4992. Did you see Brennan and Inspector Tindall and Wearin? Yes; I did.
4993. Did you ever say one word to either of these officials about this woman crouching in the grass in the way you have given evidence to-day? No.
4994. Mr. Pilcher.] When did you give your statement to Messrs. Crick and Meagher? Yesterday.
4995. Is that the first time? Yes.
4996. When you were questioned by the police officers what did you understand they wanted to know? I understood they wanted to know what took place during my wife's visit to Dean's.
4997. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher before your wife gave evidence here? Yes; before, I think.
4998. Mr. Pilcher.] When you went up to my chambers did I see you? No.
4999. There is one other question concerning that subscription to the defence fund;—is it not a fact that all the employees of the company have subscribed to the Dean Defence Fund? Yes.
5000. And have you subscribed with the others? Yes.
5001. As you have subscribed, is it not because you believe the man is innocent? Yes, certainly.
5002. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you attend Dean's trial? I was outside the Court.
5003. Did you hear the evidence? No.
5004. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you remember, when the poison was dug up at Weynton's, Inspector Tindall speaking to you about it? Tindall came there, but he did not speak to me. I spoke to him about it.
5005. What was said? I said, "You had a bit of a stir up here the other day." He said, "Oh, yes; that's nothing." Weynton himself got very much excited about strychnine being found in the backyard.
5006. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean to swear that Inspector Tindall said finding poison was nothing? That's the way I took it from him. The way he spoke about it was to the effect that he had got some statement from Mrs. Weynton, and that Mr. Weynton was quite excited and went to Elliott Brothers, where his sons were employed, and made inquiries.
5007. President.] Are Weynton's boys employed at Elliott Brothers' then? Yes.
5008. Do you know if Dean was on bad terms with Mrs. Seymour? I did know he was.
5009. Did you know it on that Sunday night in February? I was not sure, and that was the reason I mentioned the matter to Dean when he came down to the boat. Yes, that was the reason.
5010. And then do you mean to say that Dean took the information very easy when you told him what you had seen? Yes; he just took it lightly.

[Witness withdrew.]

George Small sworn and examined:—

G. Small.
23 May, 1895.

5011. Mr. Pilcher.] What are you? I am employed by Mr. Gail.
5012. What Mr. Gail is that? Mr. Gail of North Shore.
5013. What are your duties? I drive a horse and cart for him.
5014. What is Mr. Gail? Furniture broker.
5015. Do you remember the time when Dean's case was being heard in the North Shore Police Court? Yes.
5016. Do you know Mrs. Seymour? I do not know her to speak to.
5017. Were you in Gail's employ when Dean's case was heard in the North Shore Police Court? Yes.
5018. During the time the Police Court proceedings were on did you see Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean anywhere? Yes; at the house.
5019. At what house? At Gail's.
5020. Were they there during the Police Court inquiry? Nearly every day.
5021. Did they have any meals there? They had some.
5022. What meals? Dinner.
5023. Mid-day dinner? Yes.
5024. Did you know a Mrs. Lee's place at Paddington? Yes.
5025. Do you know whether Mrs. Lee lived at North Shore? Yes; at "Brunswick Cottage," M'Mahon's Point.
5026. Do you know whether Gail or his wife ever visited there whilst you were staying at Gail's? Yes.
5027. Mrs. Dean too? I don't know whether Mrs. Dean did.
5028. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were you there with them? No, sir.

5029.

5029. Mr. Pilcher.] How do you know they visited them? Because they were speaking about it next morning; that was on a Sunday.
5030. Who were talking about it? Mrs. Gail.
5031. Do you remember certain circumstances which happened after Dean was committed for trial? Yes.
5032. Did you take part in anything that was then done at Dean's house? Yes.
5033. Was that before the trial before Judge Windeyer or afterwards? It was before the trial came on at Darlinghurst Court-house.
5034. And what did you do? I helped to shift the furniture.
5035. Who went with you and gave orders at the time you shifted the furniture from Dean's house? I went with Gail in a cart.
5036. Who told you to go? I was not told to go. It was an understood thing that I should go.
5037. President.] Who ordered Gail and you to go together? Mr. Gail and I went out together—that is all I know.
5038. Mr. Pilcher.] Who got the horse and cart ready that morning? I got it ready every morning.
5039. And then did you go with the cart? Yes.
5040. Who with? Mr. Gail.
5041. Who drove? He drove himself.
5042. Where did he drive to? To Dean's house.
5043. When you got there what was done? We shifted the furniture.
5044. Who did? Gail and I.
5045. What furniture did you shift? The furniture that was in Dean's house, or in the house where Dean used to live.
5046. Did you shift the whole of the furniture? Yes.
5047. Where did you take it to? It was stored at Gail's place.
5048. How long did that furniture remain at Mr. Gail's house? It must have been there three weeks or a month.
5049. Was the furniture then shifted from Gail's? Yes.
5050. Was that after Dean had been convicted at Darlinghurst? No; it was when the trial was going on.
5051. Did something take place after which you with Gail again removed the furniture in the cart? Yes.
5052. Where did you take the furniture to this time? To Paddington.
5053. To whose house? To Mrs. Lee's and Mrs. Seymour's.
5054. Do you remember the name of the street in which the house was? Yes, Macdonald-street, Paddington.
5055. What did you do with the furniture when you got it there? Put it in the house.
5056. How came you to put it there? Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour told us where to put it.
5057. President.] Were the different articles of furniture put in different rooms, and so distributed right through the house? Yes.
5058. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour tell you where to put the things? Yes.
5059. Mr. Pilcher.] In addition to the furniture you took away from Lee's place, did you remove any of Dean's personal effects? No; nothing.
5060. Not any boxes? No.
5061. I mean, did you take any boxes when you took the furniture away from Dean's house? Oh, yes; we did take some boxes away.
5062. What else did you take away? We didn't take anything else.
5063. Do you know what was in those boxes? I do not.
5064. What became of the boxes? We took them to Paddington.
5065. What kind of boxes were they? Luggage boxes.
5066. Leather trunks? Yes, and wooden ones.
5067. President.] Did they appear to have anything weighty in them? Yes, they were weighty.
5068. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you see a bicycle at Dean's house? Yes.
5069. What did you do with that? Shifted it to Paddington.
5070. While you were going from Gail's house to Mrs. Lee's, in Macdonald-street, Paddington, did you meet anyone? Yes.
5071. Who was that? Detective Brennan.
5072. Did he say anything to Gail? He read something to him out of a paper.
5073. Did you hear what he read? Yes.
5074. To whom did he read it? Mr. Gail.
5075. Did he say anything? He told him Dean was sentenced to life.
5076. Was it a newspaper or document he read from? It was a newspaper.
5077. Did Gail tell you that? It was said that Dean was sentenced to life; then we drove on and Mr. Brennan went away.
5078. Who told you that? Mr. Gail.
5079. Before Gail told you that, and when Brennan first read something to him from the paper, did Gail do anything? Yes, he got off the cart.
5080. Where did he go? On to the footpath and spoke to Detective Brennan.
5081. Was that when Brennan read the paper? Yes.
5082. Did you hear what was said? No.
5083. Then did Gail come back? Yes; he then got on the cart again.
5084. Was it then he told you that Dean had been sentenced to life? Yes.
5085. Did you know apart from what Brennan read from the daily paper that Dean's sentence had been altered to imprisonment for life? I did not know until Gail told me.
5086. Did you see the same information in the evening papers? Yes.
5087. Then this must have happened after the trial at Darlinghurst? Yes.
5088. Did you take anything else besides the furniture, the boxes, and the bicycle from Dean's? No.
5089. How many loads of furniture were there? There must have been five or six.
5090. And did you take five or six loads to Mrs. Lee's house at Paddington? Yes, we took them to Paddington.

G. Small,
23 May, 1895.

- G. Small
23 May, 1895.
5091. Had you only one cart? That's all.
5092. So that you went five or six times to Dean's house? Yes.
5093. And you went the same number of times to Mrs. Leo's house? Yes.
5094. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you say Mrs. Leo and Mrs. Seymour were there? Yes.
5095. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you sure there was nothing else taken from Dean's beyond the furniture, boxes, and bicycle? Not to Paddington.
5096. Was there any timber at Dean's house? Yes.
5097. What was done with that? It was moved to Gail's.
5098. Was there a carpenter's bench moved to Gail's too? Yes.
5099. Do you know what became of the timber afterwards? It was left at Gail's and used there.
5100. Was that timber taken to Gail's house at the time the furniture was shifted? Yes; it was shifted from Dean's house to Gail's, left there, and not taken away again.
5101. Was there anything else in the way of trade material removed from Dean's to Gail's? Some paint.
5102. What else? Nothing else.
5103. What was done with the timber? It was used by Gail.
5104. What, in his furniture business? Well, it was used about the place.
5105. What sort of timber was it? Cedar, hardwood, and redwood.
5106. Was there much of it? About half a cart load.
5107. What became of it? Some of it was used, and some is left there now.
5108. Mr. Pilcher.] What was done with the paint? That was used in the business.
5109. Do you know where Dr. Newmarch lived? Yes.
5110. Which of the two houses, Dr. Newmarch's or Gail's, is the nearest to Dean's on the way down towards the wharf? They are both about the same distance away.
5111. Coming from Dean's to Gail's would you have to pass Dr. Newmarch's house? You turn off down a street to the left before you come to Gail's.
5112. Do you remember the day on which a bottle was brought to Gail's? Yes; I remember something about it.
5113. What bottle was that? I did not see what bottle it was.
5114. Do you know what it was said to contain? No.
5115. Who brought the bottle? Mrs. Dean.
5116. Were you and Gail coming out of the shop when Mrs. Dean brought the bottle? We were out in the cart.
5117. Doing what? We had been in town on business.
5118. Did you see the bottle in the possession of Mrs. Dean? I did not see it.
5119. When you first saw Mrs. Dean, as you came into the yard, what was she doing? Standing near the front door of the shop.
5120. Was she crying, or smiling, or what? She seemed to be jolly enough.
5121. Did you see any bottle there? No.
5122. Did you see a bottle at all that day? No.
5123. Is it only from something that you were told that you heard about the bottle? Yes.
5124. On what day did this happen? One Saturday.
5125. And at what time of the day? It must have been between 3 and 4 in the afternoon.
5126. Where did Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Gail, and Mr. Gail go? They went inside.
5127. Where was Mrs. Gail when you saw her first? She was standing with Mrs. Dean.
5128. When Mrs. Dean and Gail went inside where did Mrs. Gail go? She went inside too.
5129. About how long did they remain in the house? I do not know. I went round the back with the cart.
5130. Did you see them again that day? No, I did not.
5131. Did you see Mrs. Seymour there that day? No, I did not.
5132. Did you know who lived in that house at Macdonald-street, Paddington, before you took the furniture there? No.
5133. Did Gail ever tell you who lived there? No.
5134. Do you know the number of the house? No, I do not.
5135. Do you know whether Mrs. Dean lived there after you put the furniture in the house? I do not.
5136. Sir Julian Salomons.] How old are you? Twenty years of age.
5137. Did you know Dean before this unfortunate matter arose? No.
5138. Have you ever seen him at Gail's? No.
5139. How long had you been at Gail's? About three months.
5140. Do you mean three months back from the present date? Yes.
5141. Where were you before you went to Gail's? I was working for Mr. Clarke, wood and coal man, on the North Shore.
5142. Is that Mr. Clarke a member of the Dean Defence Committee? No; Mr. Clarke of the tram terminus.
5143. I suppose you have not subscribed anything to the defence fund? No, I have not.
5144. When did you say you entered the employ of Mr. Gail? It was about the 5th or 6th of February.
5145. And have you never seen Mr. Dean at the house of the Gail's? No, only at the front door.
5146. Talking to whom? To Mr. Gail.
5147. In a perfectly friendly way? Yes.
5148. And how many times have you seen him talking to Mr. Gail? Once.
5149. How long was that after you entered Mr. Gail's employ? About a couple of weeks.
5150. Did you ever see Mrs. Dean there? No; beyond what I have said.
5151. Did you know anything of Gail before you entered his employ? No.
5152. Or anything of the Deans? No.
5153. Nor Mrs. Seymour? No.
5154. Where did you find that paint at Dean's? It was in the shed in the back yard.
5155. Was there much paint? Lots of tins of paint.
5156. Do you mean kegs of paint? No; one pound tins.
5157. What kind of paint? Different kinds.
5158. Was there any of it unopened? It was all opened.

G. Small.
23 May, 1895.

5159. How many tins were there, do you know? I do not know how many there were.
5160. Were there some partly full and some full? Yes.
5161. What was the brand of the paint? I cannot say.
5162. Was it paint that had been bought or paint that you think had been made by Dean? It looked as if it had been bought from shops.
5163. Cannot you give me the names on the paint? I cannot.
5164. Cannot you say how many tins there were? No.
5165. Can't you give me an idea of the number? About a dozen, I should think.
5166. Were any of the tins nearly empty? Some of them.
5167. When moving the furniture did you move everything? Yes.
5168. To Gail's first? Yes.
5169. And Mr. Gail was with you? Yes.
5170. And did all this take place in the day-time? Yes.
5171. And on what day was it? I do not remember the day.
5172. I should like you to give me an idea of when it was that these things were removed? I do not remember the day.
5173. Was it while Dean was being tried at Darlinghurst? No; it was before then, after he was committed for trial.
5174. At what time of the day were they removed? We commenced in the morning, and the moving lasted all day.
5175. And were these goods removed to Mr. Gail's place in a perfectly open way? Yes.
5176. Do you know whether these boxes contained plated ware or ornaments? I cannot say.
5177. How many boxes did you move? I did not count them.
5178. Was it one, two, or twenty? I think there would be seven or eight.
5179. Do you know who packed them? No.
5180. Were they ready to be removed when you arrived at the house? Yes; I didn't pack them.
5181. Did you pack any little ornaments, or odds and ends that were about the place? No.
5182. What furniture did you take away? Just the ordinary furniture.
5183. Were there any little ornaments, or electroplated goods of any kind? I did not see any.
5184. Do you not know sir, that Dean's personal effects have been in the possession of the Government ever since his committal? I did not know.
5185. Will you swear that you saw any of his personal effects removed? No; only his bicycle.
5186. I do not mean his bicycle;—did you see any of his clothes or personal effects removed? I saw some boots.
5187. And where were those boots? In an open box.
5188. And how many pairs of boots did you see in the open box? I didn't count them—two or three I suppose.
5189. Can you swear that these other boxes did not contain the ordinary small things belonging to the house? I cannot say what they contained.
5190. Were the boxes light or heavy? They were weighty.
5191. Were they taken to Gail's? Yes.
5192. Where were they put there? In the store.
5193. Were the other things put in the store too? Yes; the other furniture was with them.
5194. Was it locked up there? Yes; it was put in the empty store and locked up.
5195. Then about this timber;—what do you say you saw? Some cedar, hardwood, and redwood.
5196. Are you not aware that the house Dean lived in was given up? Yes, it was given up.
5197. How many days after you removed that furniture and other things? I gave the key up myself when the last cart-load had been taken away. I gave the key to the next door neighbour. I left it at Weynton's.
5198. Was the kind of timber you removed ordinarily used by Gail? Yes.
5199. What for? Shelves and things like that.
5200. Was it used for anything else besides shelves? No.
5201. Concerning them going to Gail's for their meals during the Police Court proceedings, will you not admit that Gail's was much nearer than Dean's to the Police Court? Yes.
5202. How far was Dean's place away? A mile and a half.
5203. And how far was Gail's? About 200 yards.
5204. Then concerning the conversation with Detective Brennan, was that after the trial at Darlinghurst? Yes, about a fortnight after the trial was over.
5205. When the Executive had commuted the death sentence to one of penal servitude for life? Yes.
5206. Was it then that Brennan read something out of the newspaper to Gail? Yes.
5207. And who told you Dean was sentenced to penal servitude for life? Mr. Gail.
5208. Mr. Pilcher.] Was that after Gail and Brennan had had a conversation on the footpath? Yes.
5209. Sir Julian Salomons.] That conversation you did not hear? No.
5210. Gail got off the cart and Brennan read something to him out of the newspaper? Yes.
5211. How many minutes were Brennan and Gail speaking together? About two.
5212. Then did Gail get on the cart and tell you what Dean's sentence was? Yes.
5213. Were you subpoenaed to give evidence at the trial? No.
5214. When were you first told that you would be required to give evidence before this Commission? I got a subpoena last Friday.
5215. Who came and talked to you about this? Mr. Paul.
5216. Is he a member of the Defence Committee? Yes.
5217. Did he come and have a conversation with you? Yes.
5218. When was that? About a couple of weeks ago.
5219. Mr. Pilcher.] When asked about the relative distances of Gail's and Dean's from the Police Court, are there not refreshment-rooms quite near to the Police Court? Yes, there are.
5220. Quite as close as Gail's house? Yes.
5221. President.] Do you say that Gail's house and Dr. Newmarch's are about equi-distant from Dean's house? Yes, about the same distance.

- G. Small. 5222. How far are they from each other? About 100 yards.
 23 May, 1895. 5223. Sir Julian Salomons.] You spoke about Mrs. Dean coming to Gail's with a bottle;—did you not know that she had been to Dr. Newmarch's with a bottle before she came to Gail's? I did not.
 5224. Would there be any difficulty about doing that? I do not think so.
 5225. President.] Have you ever been to Dr. Newmarch's yourself? Yes.
 5226. Is there a surgery there? Yes.
 5227. When you came home on that Saturday was Mrs. Dean waiting near Gail's herself? Yes.
 5228. Did you hear anything about the bottle? No; she simply said, "I have been waiting for you for an hour."

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Esther Thompson recalled:—

- Mrs. E. Thompson. 5229. Mr. Pilcher.] Since you gave evidence here last have you read the reports of the evidence taken before the Commissioners? I read some of it in last night's Star.
 23 May, 1895. 5230. Did you read the evidence given by a man named Thomas Jones? Yes.
 5231. When you had read that evidence did you communicate with anyone? No, sir.
 5232. Did you go any where? I came to this building and saw Mr. Meagher's clerk.
 5233. When you came to see Mr. Meagher's clerk, did you come here of your own accord? Yes.
 5234. After having read this man Jones' evidence? Yes.
 5235. Can you tell me, from your knowledge, whether the girl Rita was living at Mrs. Seymour's place while the man Jones was there? Yes; I am certain of that.

[Witness withdrew.]

Florrie Clifford sworn and examined:—

- Florrie Clifford. 5236. President.] Did you know Mrs. Seymour when she was living in Riley-street? I did.
 23 May, 1895. 5237. Have you frequently been in her shop? I have.
 5238. Do you know Madame Rose's house opposite? I do.
 5239. Have you, yourself, been at Madame Rose's? I have.
 5240. Have you ever seen Mrs. Seymour there? Yes.
 5241. More than once? On several occasions.
 5242. Do you know Mary Seymour? I do.
 5243. Did she become Mrs. Dean afterwards? I think so; I have not seen her for eighteen months.
 5244. Have you any doubt as to who Mary Seymour is? No; she is Mrs. Seymour's daughter, as far as I know.
 5245. I want you to tell me, as far as Mrs. Seymour is concerned, what you know of her character? As far as I know, by going to the shop, I know her as a respectable woman.
 5246. Have you seen different men at the shop? I have seen two or three there.
 5247. Do you know at all who these men were? I do not know.
 5248. Can you say if anyone was living there? Not to my knowledge.
 5249. Do you know a girl named Rita? No; I do not.
 5250. With regard to Mary Seymour, can you tell me how she was brought up? As far as I know she was brought up very nicely. I never saw her do anything that was not nice. She has been out with me repeatedly.
 5251. Did you see anything wrong in her conduct? Never.
 5252. Did you ever see her carrying on with people—you understand what I mean? Never.
 5253. Did you ever see her at Madame Rose's? Never.
 5254. Do you know what sort of a place Madame Rose's house is? Certainly; it is an assignation-house.
 5255. Did you ever see Mary Dean there? Never.
 5256. But you have seen Mrs. Seymour there? Yes.
 5257. On what business, do you know? She brought over lemonade and greengrocery.
 5258. Is that all? That's all, to my knowledge.
 5259. I believe on one occasion you took Mary Seymour to the races? Yes, she has been with me on several occasions; but that was before my husband died.
 5260. On the occasions she has been out with you what was her conduct? She was a most respectable, nice young girl; and I would not allow anyone to say anything against my character before my husband died.

[Witness withdrew.]

THURSDAY, 30 MAY, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and The Hon. Charles Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. H. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

John Hall re-examined:—

- J. Hall. 5261. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were you examined before? Yes, sir.
 30 May, 1895. 5262. Were you sworn? Yes.
 5263. Do you remember William Sutherland, a senior-constable, coming to your shop about the 14th or 15th of last March? I cannot say if I remember the name of the constable who came to the shop, but some officer came.

J. Hall.
30 May, 1895

5264. Do you know what constable saw you? I do not remember the name of the constable.
5265. Did that constable show you a photograph? Yes; he showed me a photograph of a man which he said was supposed to represent George Dean.
5266. I believe he said he was making inquiries to see if any person had purchased poison at your shop during the last year or so? Yes; that was it. He asked me if I remembered anyone resembling the photograph having purchased poison.
5267. Do you recollect the photograph? Yes.
5268. Did you then get your poison-book? Yes, I did.
5269. I believe you looked through it for a period of about two years? Yes.
5270. Did you then say that you had sold no poison to a man resembling the photograph shown to you? I said "No." To the best of my belief I had not sold poison to a man like the photograph.
5271. Did you not say to the constable it was a face that seemed familiar to you, but that you could not say that you knew him? No; I could not swear that I knew him.
5272. Did you not say that the face was familiar to you? I said I thought so. I could not say so from personal knowledge.
5273. Did you not tell Constable Sutherland that the face of the photograph was familiar to you? I do not think so.
5274. Did you not tell him that you were particular in regard to the sale of poisons, and that you never sold poisons to anyone without a witness? Yes; I told him I never sold poisons under the Act, which required a witness, without a witness being present.
5275. Do you remember the constable coming to your shop a second time—about a fortnight after the first time? Yes.
5276. And then did he tell you that Mary Dean, the wife of George Dean, and Caroline Seymour were parties in a poisoning case? I do not know that he mentioned any names.
5277. Do you mean to swear that no names were mentioned on the second occasion? I will not swear it.
5278. Did the constable read over a description of both women to you? No.
5279. Not of either? I do not think he did.
5280. What did he come to your shop for? To inquire if any women had purchased poison.
5281. What was the use of that constable making inquiries from you if he did not give you a description of the women whom it was thought had purchased the poison? I do not know. That was not my business; it was the constable's.
5282. Did not that constable read over to you a description of those two women? No; I don't remember what took place—not at that long time ago.
5283. Do you mean to swear, sir, that the constable did not read over to you a description of these women? I say I will not swear what took place ten months ago.
5284. Don't you think this happened two months ago—in March last? No. You are talking of something else now.
5285. Do you swear that on the second occasion the constable did not read over to you the following description of Mrs. Seymour:—"A woman of about 53 years old, 5 ft. 6 or 7 in. high, medium build, dark hair turning grey, thin-faced, sallow complexion; walks very erect, and holds her head up; generally dressed in a black dress and small black bonnet";—did he not read over those very words to you? No, he did not.
5286. I ask you to think a little;—and did you not say, "I believe a woman answering that description came to my shop some little time ago and wanted to purchase strychnine, which I refused to sell her as she had no witness"? I won't swear.
5287. Did you not then sell her a box of "Rough on Rats"? No.
5288. Did you not swear in your statement that you did? No; I told him that I sold one woman some "Rough on Rats."
5289. Didn't you take your poison-book and point out the name of the person to whom you sold "Rough on rats"? I did point out that I sold some person "Rough on rats."
5290. You pointed to a name in the book? Yes.
5291. And did not you say that this was the person who wanted to purchase strychnine? No, I did not.
5292. Do you swear you didn't say that? I did not.
5293. Did you pay much attention to what was said in the shop? No, I don't say that I did.
5294. Will you not swear that you told the constable that the person whose name you pointed out in your book answered the description given to you of the woman? I won't swear, but I don't think I did.
5295. Will you not swear that you said the woman whose name was in the book was the only woman you knew answering the description read over to you, who got poison from your place, the woman to whom you sold "Rough on Rats," whose name and address was in your book? I don't think he read over any description.
5296. Did you not say that a woman answering the description had been to your shop? I told him that a woman had been there and bought "Rough on Rats," and that her name and address were in the book.
5297. And then did you point out the name in the book? Yes, the name of the woman who bought "Rough on Rats."
5298. Do you mean to tell me that that was the only woman you knew who approached this description? No.
5299. Will you swear that this was the only one you knew on your books as having bought "Rough on Rats"? That was the only woman who bought any poison at my shop.
5300. Did not you tell him that that was the only woman, as far as you knew, corresponding with the description he had given you? He didn't give me any description; it was I who described the woman to him.
5301. Will you swear that you described the woman (Mrs. Seymour) to the constable? I don't remember him describing the woman to me.
5302. Will you swear that the constable did not read over the description of the woman I have read to you? I do not remember the constable describing the woman at all.
5303. Don't you admit that you spoke about some extraordinary coincidence of the woman going to your place in August of last year? I think it was about that time.
5304. Didn't you tell the constable that the woman who came to your place in August (on 13th August) was the woman to whom you sold "Rough on Rats"? I told him that I had sold "Rough on Rats" to a woman on the 13th August.

J. Hall,
30 May, 1895.

5305. Have you looked at your book? The book is here.

5306. Will you kindly point out the entry in the book on the 13th August? Yes. [Book produced and examined.] The entry is: "Name, Annie Goldstein, 16, Mary-street; purchased, 13th August, one box of 'Rough on Rats.'"

5307. Is it not a fact that the person you represented as corresponding with the description read to you was not the person who gave you the name of Annie Goldstein, and which is entered in your book? I showed the policeman that entry.

5308. Didn't you show him that entry and give him the name of the person who, in your opinion, corresponded with the description of Mrs. Seymour? My opinion is that I gave him the description, and that the policeman did not describe the woman to me, and I must admit that I made a mistake and described the wrong party. That is how I was brought into this case.

5309. What do you mean? I described the wrong person. If I had been asked to describe Annie Goldstein I could have done so—she was a different woman altogether, but I mixed two people up.

5310. Didn't you tell the constable that the person who bought that poison was the person you believed at that time corresponded with the description of Mrs. Seymour? I gave the description to the policeman, who seemed to recognise it as Mrs. Seymour. I omitted to tell the policeman that a woman had asked me for strychnine without a witness. Mrs. Goldstein is not anything like Mrs. Seymour, and, as I said, I made a mistake by mixing the two people up.

5311. Did you then find that your description would not fit in? Yes.

5312. And you gave that description meaning it to apply to Annie Goldstein? Yes.

5313. Had you ever been to her house at that time? No.

5314. You did not know her as Mrs. Goldstein, and for all you know she might have been Mrs. Seymour? Yes.

5315. You mean to say that when you gave the description to the constable that you meant it to apply to the person whose name appeared in your book as Annie Goldstein? Yes.

5316. How then did this mistake arise? Through me not carefully remembering the transaction, I suppose.

5317. I suppose you have seen Mrs. Goldstein since you were examined here before? Yes.

5318. Do you admit that when you spoke to the constable that you were under the impression that you were giving a description of Mrs. Seymour, and that you now find it fits in with the woman who gave you the name of Annie Goldstein? I gave the description of the woman according to my impression at that time. That's where I made the mistake, through not thinking about the other transaction of the woman who came to my place to buy strychnine without a witness.

5319. Will you not frankly admit that when you sold the "Rough on Rats" you did not tell the constable that it was to a woman resembling Mrs. Seymour? I will admit that the person I sold "Rough on Rats" to was not Mrs. Seymour.

5320. What I want you to admit is this, that at the time you were under the impression that it was Mrs. Seymour who spoke to you, and that the description would not fit Mrs. Goldstein? I have answered that question two or three times. I told the constable that the only woman who had bought poison from me answered the description referred to, and I gave the wrong description.

5321. Was there not something said by the woman who bought it about, "Supposing anyone took any of the poison by mistake, what was best to be done?" and you replied, "Give her an emetic";—who was the woman who passed this remark? I don't think that occurred with Mrs. Goldstein.

5322. Didn't you tell me that Mrs. Goldstein bought "Rough on Rats" and asked you what was best to be done supposing she took some of it by mistake? I don't think Mrs. Goldstein asked that question, or that I gave her that reply.

5323. Will you not admit that it is not Mrs. Seymour? I can say that it was not Mrs. Goldstein to whom these remarks were made; it was to some other women.

5324-5. Didn't you tell the constable that the woman who came into the shop corresponded with Mrs. Seymour, and that she was the person to whom you sold "Rough on Rats," and that you afterwards turned to your book and showed him the name that has been pointed out to-day? I told you I had made a mistake.

President.] As I understand, there were two people who went to his shop—two women—and asked him for poison. One asked him for six pennyworth of arsenic, and he refused to sell it. Then Mrs. Goldstein came and bought some "Rough on Rats." As far as I can see he mixes up the description of these two women, and attributes to Mrs. Goldstein what fits the other woman.

5326. Sir Julian Salomons.] I want to show that there is only one woman;—will you not admit that the person with whom you had the conversation was not Mrs. Seymour? I do not know; it was not Mrs. Goldstein.

5327. Did you not tell the constable that only one woman was in your shop to buy poison? Yes.

5328. Didn't you tell him that the person with whom you had the conversation was the person whose name was in your book, you showing him Mrs. Goldstein's name? I believe I told him that; but, as I said before, I was making a mistake. I gave the description to the policeman, and if he didn't recognise it as something similar to Mrs. Seymour, why should he take any further notice?

5329. Will you swear that he did not read the description to you? He did not. I do not remember him doing any such thing.

5330. Except the person who bought the poison, did you mention any other woman as having been there? I could not mention any other. There may have been a dozen or half a dozen people who wished to purchase poison, and I refused.

5331. When you spoke to the constable were you under the impression that the woman you described was Mrs. Goldstein? Yes.

5332. Now you find that Mrs. Goldstein does not in any way correspond with the person described? Yes.

5333. Do you know that she lives at the address she gave you? Yes.

5334. Did not the constable, as a matter of fact, come back and tell you that he had been to the address, as given in your book? Yes; he came back and said she was living at 10, Mary-street, instead of 16.

5335. Did you not say the other day that in selling poison it was necessary to have a witness? Yes.

5336. Is not "Rough on Rats" a poison under the Act requiring a witness to its sale? I do not think so.

5337. How many years have you been in this business of a chemist? About fifteen years.

5338. And don't you know that the sale of "Rough on Rats" requires a witness? No, I do not think it does;—

does; I do not think the sale of "Rough on Rats" needs to be entered in the poison-book at all. I do not believe a witness is necessary; but I enter it when sold as an extra precaution.

Dr. Manning.] I think it is under a separate schedule.

5339-40. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was there a witness to this sale? There was no witness, and it is not necessary; "Rough on Rats" is under a different schedule to ordinary poison.

5341. Mr. Pilcher.] This matter looks to me quite clear;—was there not a lady—one lady—who came into your shop and bought "Rough on Rats"? Yes.

5342. And another lady came in, answering the description of the one described? Yes.

5343. And as I understand, you mixed up the two descriptions, put the wrong description on the "Rough on rats" woman? Yes.

5344. And that is the mistake you made? Yes.

5345. Have you seen Mrs. Seymour since you gave your last evidence? The only time I have seen her was to-day; I don't remember seeing her any other time.

5346. Did you have a good look at her to-day? No more than to notice her manner and style; she passed through the passage while I was standing outside.

5347. The last time you were here giving evidence did you not say you believed her to be the woman who came to your shop and the woman you described? Yes, from her manner and style.

5348. Do you believe—but you will not be sure—that she was the woman? Yes, I do; and in giving the description to the policeman I happened to say it was a remarkable coincidence that I should give the wrong description, and that I should make a mistake and put the description on the wrong woman.

5349. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you not tell the constable that the description you gave fitted the woman who bought the "Rough on Rats";—I want no mistake about it, as I intend to call the constable? Well, I said I believed it did at that time.

5350. Are there not nine entries in your book for the sale of "Rough on Rats"? Yes; I put these names and addresses down as an extra precaution. It is not necessary to do so under the Act, but I think as a matter of practice it is safer to follow this custom.

[Witness withdrew.]

Thomas Edmund Macdonald sworn and examined:—

5351. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you a chemist on North Shore? I am.

5352. Have you your prescription-book with you? Yes.

5353. Are these four prescriptions, copies of which I place in your hands, from Dr. Newmarch? [Prescriptions produced and marked for the Commission "C."] Yes; I recognise these prescriptions.

5354. Are these copies of prescriptions taken from your prescription-book? Yes.

5355. Are they correct copies? Yes.

5356. Can you give us the dates of the four prescriptions? Yes.

5357. First, then, we will take the 26th December, 1894, read it please?

5362. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean to say that these are correct copies? Yes.

5363. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you make up any other prescriptions except these for Mrs. Dean, for Mrs. Seymour, or for Mr. George Dean? No; those are all I made up.

5364. Did you make any up for either of these parties as prescribed by any other doctor than Dr. Newmarch? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

Richard

J. Hall.
30 May, 1895.

T. E.
Macdonald.
30 May, 1895.

Richard John Smith sworn and examined:—

- R. J. Smith. 5365. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you a chemist practising on North Shore? Yes, Sir.
 30 May, 1895. 5366. Can you tell me if this is a correct copy of a prescription you received from Dr. Newmarch to make up for Mrs. George Dean? My assistant dispensed the medicine, but I can give you a true copy of what was dispensed. [Prescription produced.]
 5367. What is the date of that prescription? The 3rd of January, 1895.
 5368. Will you tell me what it contains?—

Liq. Morphia Acet., ʒvi.
 Sp. Chlor., ʒiii.
 Glycerine, ʒiv.
 Aqua. ad., ʒvi.
 ʒss., 4tes. horis.

5369. Is that a stiff dose? It is a strong dose repeated every four hours.
 5370. How many grains of morphia are taken in twenty-four hours according to this prescription? I think it would be somewhere about 2 grains. She takes a tablespoonful every four hours. There are twelve doses in the bottle, and in forty-eight hours she would take the 6 drachms.
 5371. But how many grains of morphia are there in the 6 drachms? This is a solution of acetate of morphia. I suppose she would take the 6 drachms in forty-eight hours.
 5372. Dr. Jones.] But what is the strength of this solution of acetate of morphia, is it 6 grains to the ounce? I could not swear exactly. I think it is about 4 grains to the ounce. [Witness after examining a copy of the Pharmacopœia said, "I think it is nearer 4½ grains to the ounce; I do not think it is 4½."]
 5373. But were the directions to take half an ounce, or a tablespoonful? No; it was to take one tablespoonful—that was the direction given on the bottle.
 5374. Do you not know that there is a vast difference between half an ounce and an ordinary tablespoonful? It might be so; I labelled the bottle the medicine to be taken as a tablespoonful.
 5375. What was on Dr. Newmarch's prescription? It was half an ounce.
 5376. Do you not know that there is a difference between half an ounce and a tablespoonful? I labelled it one tablespoonful, which is customary for a chemist to do in instances of this kind.
 5377. Mr. Pilcher.] Can you tell me how many grains she took in 24 hours—that is, according to the prescription you made up? I think it would be about 2 grains; in fact it might be just a trifle over 2 grains; perhaps nearly 2½ grains.
 5378. Would that be assuming it was an ordinary dose? Yes.
 5379. And when would she take these doses? She would take six of these doses in twenty-four hours.
 5380. Has this prescription of yours ever been mentioned before? No; my prescription has not been mentioned before.
 5381. I forgot to ask you, do you remember Mrs. Dean bringing a bottle of lemon-syrup to you? Yes; it was on a Saturday afternoon.
 5382. In what month? I think it was about the 2nd of March.
 5383. She wanted you to analyse the contents of that bottle? Yes.
 5384. What did you do? I told her I wanted a fee of 10s.
 5385. Did you look at the bottle? Yes.
 5386. Was there any deposit in the bottle? I did not notice any deposit.
 5387. Did you see any sediment of any kind? No; I did not observe any sediment, but the contents were quite cloudy and turbid.
 5388. Are you referring to the contents or the glass of the bottle? I am saying the contents were cloudy and of a coloured appearance.
 5389. Was there any deposit in the bottom of the bottle? No, Sir; supposing the bottle had been allowed to stand for half an hour there might have been a deposit.
 5390. You did not see any deposit—actual deposit, I mean—but only a cloudiness in the liquid? Yes, that was all; it was a turbid colour, and I asked her if she could give me any information about the contents of the bottle.
 5391. What did she say in reply? She suspected poison.
 5392. Do you remember a baby's feeding-bottle having been bought from your shop? I sell so many I could not answer that.
 5393. Do you remember George Dean buying a feeding-bottle at your shop? No; I could not swear that he did.
 5394. Can you say from memory what condition of health Mrs. Dean was in when she brought that bottle to you? My conversation lasted about five minutes, and during that five minutes Mrs. Dean conversed with me fluently. She looked a little pale, but I did not notice that she was ill in any shape or form. There was nothing beyond her paleness.
 5395. At what time in the afternoon did you see her? I think it was between 2 and half-past 2.
 5396. Can you tell me this: Had you been accustomed to see Mrs. Dean? I had not seen her before to my knowledge.
 5397. Did you simply think her to be only a little pale? Yes; generally speaking, she didn't seem to be ill.
 5398. Can you say specifically what was her general appearance on the 2nd of March? She was perfectly well as far as I could judge, and I have seen a good many people.
 5399. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you admit that you don't know Mrs. Dean at all? I do not know her.
 5400. Was she a perfect stranger to you when she came to your shop with the bottle? Yes.
 5401. Did you see any evidence that she had been purged or vomiting that morning? No, not at all.
 5402. Could you form any opinion whether such had occurred? No.
 5403. Do you know whether the bottle contained any sediment or not? No; I cannot say if there was any sediment.
 5404. In carrying that bottle do you think it would be possible for whatever sediment might have settled to be mixed up with the contents? Yes.
 5405. Do you think it made the contents of the bottle look cloudy? Yes, perhaps so.
 5406. Dr. Manning.] What did Mrs. Dean say to you when she brought the bottle and asked you to analyse the contents? I asked her first of all to give me any information she possessed about the contents of that bottle. She said she suspected that there was poison in the bottle.

5407. Was that the only reason she gave you, or did she say anything else? She said nothing else. R. J. Smith.
5408. Nothing else whatever? I told her my fee would be 10s. or 10s. 6d. for analysing the contents of that bottle. She said she had not got the money, and I said she could not expect me to do it for nothing. 30 May, 1895.
5409. I asked her if she knew any doctor, and she said she knew Dr. Newmarch. I then said to her, "You take it to him." That was the end of our conversation. I tasted the syrup in her presence—it had a bitter-sweet taste. After tasting from the bottle, I wrapped it up and gave it back to her.
5410. President.] Did you ask whom she suspected? Yes; but she had her suspicions.
5411. Do you know much at all about it;—for instance, what sort of a bitter-sweet taste you recognised when you tasted the contents of this bottle? No answer.
5412. Did you know there was any strychnine in it? I thought there was something wrong. I did not know it was strychnine from the taste.
5413. Dr. Jones.] Did you not taste it? I did, of course.
5414. Did you swallow a mouthful of it? No, I simply took the cork out of the bottle and placed the neck of the bottle to the ball of my thumb. I then turned the bottle up and tasted what was left on my thumb. I had heard something, and that was the reason why I took these precautions. Mrs. Dean then left my shop. When she was going I said there was something wrong, and she had better be careful.
5415. President.] Did Mrs. Dean say that she suspected anyone in connection with the lemon syrup—that is you know putting poison in the syrup? No, sir; but she had her suspicions.
5416. Do you mean to say that after what she did that she said she suspected no one? She said she had her suspicions, but she was not going to say anything.
5417. Did she inform you that she was married? Yes; she said she was married.
5418. Mr. Pilcher.] Was this on Saturday? Yes; that was the time she brought the bottle to me.
5419. Dr. Jones.] Had the liquid in the bottle the appearance of lemon syrup? Yes; it was the consistency of that syrup—the colour was cloudy and turbid.
5420. What kind of bottle was it she had? It was a white wine bottle, a 24-ounce bottle.
5421. President.] What did you say—a wine-bottle? You can call it what you like, a wine or a whisky bottle, but it was a white glass bottle, like what you usually see in shop windows containing both wine and whisky, but this was labelled lemon syrup.
5422. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was it an ordinary white wine bottle? Yes; you see the same sort every day.
5423. Dr. Jones.] Was it a bottle made of white glass—a material through which you could see? Yes; but the contents were cloudy and turbid.
5424. Sir Julian Salomons.] You say it was white clear glass? Yes, it was.
5425. Dr. Jones.] Is your knowledge derived from looking at that bottle? No; I tasted the contents of the bottle, and found from taste that its contents were bitter-sweet.
5426. But your knowledge of the colour was from merely looking at it—what I mean is, you did not pour any out and test the contents? No, I just took the cork out, as I told you before, tipped the neck of the bottle on the ball of my thumb and tasted it.
5427. President.] Can you say that there was anything in the taste that was not like lemon syrup? I could not tell you what was in it. I did not keep it on my tongue long enough. As soon as I tasted it I found there was something wrong and I washed my mouth out quickly.
5428. Dr. Jones.] Had you been told before you tasted the contents of the bottle that it was suspected that it contained poison? Yes; and then I washed my mouth out quickly.
5429. Mr. Pilcher.] Did Mrs. Dean tell you where she bought the bottle of lemon syrup? No, sir.

[Witness withdrew.]

William James Guise sworn and examined:—

5430. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you a chemist? Yes. W. J. Guise.
5431. At North Shore? Yes. 30 May, 1895.
5432. Are these two prescriptions correct copies of prescriptions by Dr. Newmarch? Yes. The one on the 4th March is as follows:—

Mrs. G. Dean.

R—Tr. Opii, ʒij.
Liq. Bismuthi, ʒij, Schacht.
Acid Hydrocyan. Dil., ʒss.
Syrup, ʒvj.
Aq. ad., ʒviij.
ʒss. O. 4 H.

4/3/95.

(Sd.) B.J.N.

5433. Was that dispensed at your place? Yes.
5434. Do the originals go back with the medicines and you keep copies? Yes.
5435. And those copies are in the book, from which you verify those now produced? Yes.
5436. I now produce one dated the 5th of March;—is this a correct copy? Yes; it is an injection, and is as follows:—

Mrs. G. Dean.

Enema, Opii.
Mitte. ij.
Give every six hours one.
Liq. Morph. Acet., ʒij.
Acid Hydrocyan. Dil., ʒss.
Spt. Chloroformi, ʒss.
Aq. ad., ʒjss. sumat ʒj. O. 3 H.

5/3/95.

(Sd.) B.J.N.

5437. Is the one on the 5th an injection? Yes.
5438. Is the one on the 4th a mixture? Yes.
5439. This is not your prescription [copy of another produced and handed to witness]? I see it is not; it bears the name of R. J. Smith, and is dated 3/1/95. 5440.

- W. J. Guise. 5440. Can you tell me what is in that prescription? Yes; 6 drachms of a solution of morphia; liq. morph. acet. 6 drachms.
- 30 May, 1895. 5441. Was the morphia in your prescription, dated March 5th, the same strength as that dispensed by Mr. Smith? No; the dose of liquor morphia every four hours was ten minims.
5442. President.] Can you tell me who came over with that prescription on the 5th March—I mean for the enema and mixture? George Dean.
5443. What condition was he in when he entered your shop on the 5th of March? He seemed to be quite exhausted; indeed he went to sleep in the chair while he was waiting for the medicine.
5444. What did he do when he came into the shop? He came in and put the prescription down. We started making it up. I noticed that he appeared to be very exhausted, and I told him to get into the easy chair and have a sleep while I made up the prescription.
5445. When he came in did he appear to be excited? Not on the Tuesday morning. When I saw him on Monday night he was in a state of great excitement.
5446. What condition do you say he came in on Monday night? He was much excited and much distressed, and urged me to make all the haste I could in dispensing the prescription.
5447. Did you not say at the police court that he had forgotten the prescription? The first time he came down he had his hands in his pockets; then he put his hands into his coat-pockets and said he had left the prescription at home.
5448. Was that on the Monday night? Yes, shortly before 9. I know it was that time, because it was near closing hour, and I asked him to hurry as I wanted to shut my shop. He returned with the prescription, and I made up the medicine. While dispensing it he urged me to be quick. I asked him to sit quiet and wait patiently for the medicine, because hurrying might result in making some mistake.
5449. On Tuesday morning when he came in what did he do? He put the prescription down, but I have no memory of what he said. I went behind the dispensing screen to make the enema opii, which has to be boiled, and which would take some little time. I then asked him to just sit down.
5450. What condition was he in then? I could not say. I did not notice particularly just then, but when I passed the counter I saw him leaning back in the chair with his chin down on his breast.
5451. How long was he there? About twenty minutes.
5452. When he came in first, did you notice whether he was crying? I really could not say.
5453. Was anyone in the shop at the time he came in? Yes; my assistant was there behind the dispensing screen. Dean had a most ghastly appearance and a distressed look. I put this down to trouble and to his having been at work all night.
5454. Do you say you put it down to trouble? Yes; the two causes combined.
5455. Do you say he had a distressed look? He was quite pale; in fact he was ghastly; and I said to him, "This will take a short time to make," meaning the enema opii, "you had better lie down in the chair." He reclined in the chair, and went to sleep there.
5456. Did he say anything to you about poison? No, nothing; he never mentioned it.
5457. Used you to make up many prescriptions for him? That was the first I believed I made up for that sickness; but, in December, I made up a prescription for Mrs. Dean for some uterine trouble, a trouble which is not infrequent with woman in an advanced stage of pregnancy.
5458. Dr. Jones.] What quantity of enema opii did you send? Four ounces. Here is the bottle [produced], and you will see it is marked at the back with paper into two divisions, one for each dose. That is 2 ounces each time.
5459. President.] Do you remember whether the prescription you made up on the Tuesday morning was written in ink or in pencil? I cannot say.
5460. Can you remember whether the prescription of the night before was written in ink or in pencil? I really could not say; but, whatever it was written in, my stamp would be on it.
5461. Dr. Todd.] Will you look at this prescription [prescription produced, dated 4th January, 1895];—read it? [Witness complied.]
5462. Is not that an effervescing mixture? Yes.
5463. Does it contain hydrocyanic acid? Yes.
5464. And two other drugs? Yes.
5465. What are the other drugs? Bi-carbonate of soda and tartaric acid.
5466. When you combine the two last-named what do you get;—do you not get a tartrate of soda which is generally known as Rochelle salts? Yes.
5467. Is not Rochelle salts one of the ordinary purgatives? Yes.
5468. Would you have from this combination Rochelle salts in a large dose? No; it would be an infinitesimal quantity.
5469. Sir Julian Salomons.] What was that you said just now? I explained, in answer to Dr. Todd, that a chemical reaction of tartaric acid and bi-carbonate of soda would form tartarate of soda, otherwise known as Rochelle salts in an infinitesimal quantity.
5470. Dr. Todd.] Would such a small quantity be sufficient to have any purgative action? No.
- [Witness withdrew.]

Samuel Thomas Knaggs, M.D., sworn and examined:—

- S. T. Knaggs, Esq., M.D. 5471. Dr. Todd.] Will you look at this prescription, dated 3rd January, 1895;—what does it contain? Liq. morphia acet., 6 drachms; spirits of chloroform, 3 drachms.
- 30 May, 1895. 5472. Will you say what doses you find? Twelve doses in all. There are 6 ounces in the whole mixture—half-an-ounce to each dose. In each half-ounce there is half-a-drachm of morphia acetate.
5473. Does that prescription contain a large dose of morphia? Yes.
5474. President.] Is it a heavy dose if it were for a woman? Yes, I think it is, especially if it were the first prescription. Personally, I would rather commence with a smaller dose.
5475. Dr. Todd.] By the prescription, how many doses would there be taken in twenty-four hours? Six doses.

5476. Would she then take 3 drachms of liquid morphia acetate? Yes, provided she took it.
5477. And would that be between a grain and a half and two grains of morphia? I believe so.
5478. Would that quantity taken in successive doses in twenty-four hours be likely to make a woman vomit? That would depend upon circumstances.
5479. One of those circumstances is if she were accustomed to take morphia? Yes.
5480. If she were not accustomed to morphia, would it be a large dose, and what would be the symptoms it would be likely to produce? There is another factor, which must be taken into consideration. If there were any great pain the patient would tolerate more morphia.
5481. If she were not in great pain, or had not taken any morphia before, would these be large doses? Provided there was no idiosyncrasy; some people can tolerate more than others.
5482. Supposing there was vomiting, would doses like this account for it? I certainly think so.
5483. If you gave that prescription yourself to a person and in twenty-four hours that person began to vomit, would you be inclined to think it might be owing to your mixture?

Sir Julian Salomons: I object to that question. Dr. Knaggs said it would depend whether that person was in great pain or on other circumstances.

5484. Dr. Todd: I mean if the person were in great pain? It might do so.
5485. If this prescription was for giving the woman morphia the first time, would you have given her doses as large as that? No, not if I had no previous knowledge of her constitution.
5486. This prescription produced is dated the 4th of January, 1895;—will you read it please? Yes.
5487. Do you see that it is an effervescent mixture containing hydrocyanic acid? Yes.
5488. What symptoms do you say that mixture was given to counteract? I should look upon it as a sedative mixture to relieve vomiting, or rather as sedative effervescent mixture.
5489. Would it be likely to be given by a doctor if he desired to counteract purging and vomiting? I think not; there is nothing in it to counteract purging, and Rochelle salts is slightly purgative.
5490. What quantity of Rochelle salts could produce purging? I do not know exactly, but there is nearly as much in the whole prescription as there is in an ordinary seidlitz powder. But wait a moment; I see I must explain the quantity ordered is divided into sixteen doses.
5491. Mr. Picher: In point of fact, was the medicine prescribed for vomiting? Yes.
5492. Must the question of purging then be some mistake? There is nothing in the prescription that would stop purging.
5493. Sir Julian Salomons: Do you say there is as much Rochelle salts as there is in a seidlitz powder? In the whole sixteen doses there is about the same quantity as in a seidlitz powder, but there is really no purgative force in a dose containing one-sixteenth part of a seidlitz powder.
5494. Dr. Todd: Is there anything there to directly relieve purging? No, it is to relieve vomiting.
5495. Will you take this tumbler [exhibit produced as used at Court and marked "F" and "J"] and measure glass? Yes.

5496. Will you see how much that glass reasonably holds? Yes. I have eight ounces of water in this measure. I pour it from the measure glass to the tumbler and I notice it fills the glass up to the brim. It is practically a tumbler full of water, but still strictly speaking it is not absolutely full.

5497. I want to ask you to make a little calculation. There is no dispute about this glass for you will see in the Judge's notes on page 7 "the tumbler is the tumbler I drank the syrup in," and again, on page 15, where Mrs. Dean, in answer to a juror showed how much syrup she put in the glass, the witness, Hamlet, saying the quantity was a little over 2 oz. Then you will see, on page 5, Mrs. Dean described that she made a drink of this lemon-syrup with water, which she got from the tap in the same way she had before in a tumbler. It was a clean tumbler. She took two or three mouthfuls, and noticed a most bitter taste, and recognised the same taste as in the beef-tea. For the purposes of argument, I say we will fill this tumbler to the extent of 8 oz., and according to the size there certainly could not be more than 8 oz. That, you will see, will give 8 oz. of fluid, and, according to Mrs. Dean's evidence, she used about 2 oz. of syrup, filled up the tumbler nearly with clean water, and then took two or three mouthfuls, as described on page 18 of the proceedings of the Police Court, where she said "On Saturday morning the 2nd March, I came downstairs into the kitchen. I then prepared a glass of lemon-syrup from the bottle in the kitchen and the water from the tap. I noticed that the tumbler was clean before I put the syrup in. I then made a drink and swallowed three or four mouthfuls. I then noticed a most bitter taste." For the purposes of this experiment, I will ask you, Dr. Knaggs, what is the size of a mouthful? I have tried it—my mouth holds half-an-ounce.

5498. President: What of? Water.

5499. Dr. Todd: Mrs. Dean said she took two or three mouthfuls, and therefore I want you to calculate, in view of other evidence, how much poison she must have taken into her system, if she took the two or three mouthfuls of lemon-syrup and water, as described in the evidence. To further this experiment, we will turn to Hamlet's evidence on page 9. There Mr. Hamlet says, "On 6th of March got from Cotter sealed and labelled, containing lemon-syrup (produced); made a preliminary analysis; it contained 2½ ounces of a clear liquid, with a white powder on the bottom; it had a persistent bitter taste; a chemical analysis was made, and 1½ grains of white arsenic was found in the contents of the bottle, and 1·5 grains (one and a half of strychnine)"—do you see Mr. Hamlet says that? Yes.

5500. Now you turn to page 22, you will see that Mr. Hamlet at the Police Court said, "I am the Government Analyst; on the 6th of March instant I received from Inspector Cotter a bottle properly sealed, and labelled, 'Easton, Roberts, and Agnew, Camperdown, Lemon-syrup,' the second label is 'Dean No. 1, March 5th, 1895.' The capacity of the bottle is twenty-four fluid ounces; it contained a clear liquid, lemonade amounting to 2½ fluid ounces;—there was a dense white substance at the bottom of the bottle; the analysis of the contents was made, and 1½ grains was found; together with 1·54 grains of strychnine;"—that, you will see, is practically the same. I want to show you, if the argument is good for the large quantity in the tumbler, would it be good for the smaller quantity. Can you tell me the amount of strychnine she would take if a mouthful of lemon syrup in water weighed, say, ½-ounce,—that is, if the glass contained 2½ ounces of syrup, which, in turn, contained 1·5 grains of strychnine—would she drink 1 ounce at least? Yes; she would take fully an ounce, which would contain 3/22nds of a grain—that is practically 1/7th of a grain.

5501. Would she take a seventh of a grain of strychnine? Yes.

S. T. Knaggs,
Esq., M.D.
30 May, 1895.

S. T. Knaggs, Esq., M.D.
30 May, 1895.

5502. I want to make the same argument apply to the arsenic;—would that be so? Yes. There were $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains of arsenic in the $2\frac{1}{2}$ fluid ounces of lemonade. There would be $7/446$ or $14/11$ ths of arsenic.

5503. What do you say the glass would contain? Two ounces.

5504. Would she drink $1/8$ th of that? I should think so.

5505. So then, in swallowing and taking two or three mouthfuls of this drink—what poison must she at least have taken;—would it not be the 7 th of a grain of strychnine, and the 6 th of a grain of arsenic? Yes; about that, assuming that the two mouthfuls contained (say) half an ounce each.

5506. Do you agree, Dr. Knaggs, with the following passage from Stille and Maisch, in the "National Dispensatory,"—

The first dose of strychnine should not be greater than from $1/20$ th to $1/12$ th grain; as a general rule it is better to begin with $1/30$ th of a grain, and cautiously increase the dose until a slight manifestation of its specific effects occur, or until the object of its administration is obtained.

Do you agree with that? Yes. That $1/20$ th of a grain is the ordinary medicinal dose, and that $1/12$ th of a grain is the maximum of a dose? Yes.

5507. And is that just about half the quantity of $1/7$ th of a grain? Yes.

5508. If you gave strychnine in anything like that quantity to a woman, on an empty stomach, in the morning, would you expect the effect to be greater than if you had given it after a meal? It would be greater and more immediate in its action.

5509. Do you mean it would be greater, and act more rapidly? Yes.

5510. Would you call one-seventh of a grain, or, to be correct, $3/22$ nds of a grain, a large medicinal dose? Yes; $3/22$ nds of a grain is a large dose.

5511. Do you think that $3/22$ nds of a grain—would you expect that this quantity, given on an empty stomach, would be likely to cause symptoms? It is quite possible.

5512. And if these symptoms were caused would they be marked symptoms—such for instance that could not be overlooked, or that a woman could overlook herself? Yes.

5513. President.] Would this dose necessarily cause symptoms? No, not necessarily; like other medicines, the symptoms from strychnine vary in different subjects.

5514. Dr. Todd.] I wish to read you something from Potter's "Materia Medica," having reference to a full dose. This authority says:—

By a full dose (strychnine $1/16$ th of a grain) the pupils are dilated, the limbs jerk, respiration becomes spasmodic, and the lower jaw stiff, a sensation cerebral tension, sudden shuddering and anxiety follow, the face wearing an unmeaning smile.

do you agree with that? Yes; these are the symptoms you can expect in some cases as the result of an excessive dose.

5515. Dr. Todd.] I am now reading from Hamilton's system of legal medicines. Vol. 1, page 448, he says:—

The symptoms occasionally begin to show themselves after the swallowing of the poison, but more often they are delayed for ten or fifteen minutes. They do not usually appear earlier than five minutes, nor are they often delayed later than an hour, although they have been known to be postponed until the end of the third hour. This great difference in the time of the first symptoms is due chiefly to the form in which it is administered and to the condition of the stomach. If taken in solution it acts more rapidly than in the form of a powder, and in pills it is still slower in its action. If taken on an empty stomach it is absorbed more quickly, and produces its effects earlier than when the stomach is full of food. The first symptom manifested is usually a sense of discomfort, accompanied by a feeling of tightness about the chest and throat and a twitching about the muscles of the hands and feet. These, however, usually last but a short time, and are followed suddenly by a violent tetanic convulsion. Sometimes the entire muscular system seems to be affected almost simultaneously, but generally the rigidity appears first in the extremities, rapidly extending to the trunk, and finally to the face and jaws. The legs are extended, the feet arched, and the head is thrown violently backward, so that the body often rests only upon the heels and occiput, producing a condition known as opisthotonos; the arms are sometimes widely extended, and sometimes drawn tightly across the chest; the muscles of respiration become so rigid that breathing is difficult, and often seems to cease, and the pulse is weak and irregular, occasionally becoming imperceptible. The countenance is livid, the eyes staring, the pupils widely dilated; foam often appears at the mouth, and the countenance generally assumes a ghastly grinning expression. The convulsion lasts from half a minute to several minutes, when the muscular rigidity nearly or entirely disappears. There is generally now a condition of great relaxation; cold perspiration breaks out over the whole body. The pupils contract, a sense of weariness is expressed, and the patient, not unfrequently, sinks into a profound sleep. This period of intermission continues from a few minutes to half an hour, when another paroxysm shows itself. It sometimes comes on unexpectedly, but often is preceded by a few moments of intense anxiety on the part of the patient, who piteously pleads for relief. All the senses are unnaturally excited, and the convulsion is often brought on by a loud noise, the slamming of a door, a sudden current of air, or even a gentle touch. The second paroxysm is usually a counterpart of the first, but is more severe; the breathing is more difficult, the strength more exhausted, and the suffering more acute. After two or more paroxysms, unless relief is afforded, the patient lies either in the height of a convulsion from asphyxia, or at the close of one from exhaustion. The mind is usually not affected, the intellect generally remains clear until the end, and there is a thorough appreciation of the gravity of the situation and the imminence of death. Vomiting is occasionally but not often seen."

5516-17. Sir Julian Salomons.] Will you admit that Hamilton is a higher authority than yourself? Yes; certainly I do.

President.] My colleagues have that book before them, and I think we can accept what it lays down as correct.

5518. Dr. Todd.] I want you now to turn your attention to arsenic;—what is the maximum medicinal dose of arsenic which is given in practice? $1/20$ th of a grain. I never like to give more than a 20 th of a grain.

5519. Is that the maximum medicinal dose given in practice? I use not more than $1/30$ th.

5520. Dr. Sydney Jones.] Of course that is to begin with, you mean? Yes.

5521. Dr. Todd.] Arsenic on an empty stomach—what is its action? It is more rapidly absorbed than if given on a full stomach.

5522. Is it the rule in medical practice never to give arsenic on an empty stomach? We always instruct patients to use it after taking food.

5523. If you gave $1/6$ th of a grain of arsenic to a person not accustomed to its use, and it was used on an empty stomach, would it be likely to produce symptoms? I think so.

5524. What would be the symptoms? There would be a great tenderness, possibly vomiting, and if the person were weak there would be slight symptoms of a weak action of the heart.

5525. Would you expect any purging? It would be quite possible, and that would come later on.

5526. At what time would these symptoms from arsenic be expected to arise on an empty stomach? Within ten minutes or up to half an hour.

5527. Are they usually as quick as that? The times vary according to circumstances.

5528. If a woman had taken an excessive dose of arsenic, on an empty stomach, and vomiting and purging had followed all the morning, what do you think would be her condition in the afternoon? She would be very weak.

5529. Is it at all likely that the effects of the poison would have disappeared by the afternoon? I think not. S. T. Knaggs,
Esq., M.D.
5530. Would she be able to walk about during that afternoon? I think not.
5531. And carry a baby in her arms? No; certainly not. I think after vomiting and purging she would show a great deal of nervous exhaustion. 30 May, 1895.
5532. Returning again to strychnine;—do you not say that strychnine, in small medicinal doses, has a tonic effect on the heart? Yes.
5533. And that it increases the blood pressure? Yes.
5534. Is it usual to give strychnine in some cases of weakness of the heart? Yes.
5535. Will it strengthen a weak heart, when given in medicinal doses? Yes.
5536. What other effect has strychnine besides that? It makes the heart's action steadier, slows the pulse, and makes it stronger.
5537. That is if strychnine is administered in tonic doses? Yes.
5538. And that dose is what? Three to 5 minims of liq. strychnine.
5539. Is that from 1/20th to 1/30th of a grain? Yes.
5540. Would that be a tonic dose, and strengthen the action of a weak heart? Yes.
5541. In his work "Pharmacology and Therapeutics," page 332, T. Lauder Brunton says:—

All these drugs, as already mentioned, stimulate the cardiac muscles and render its contractions slower and stronger. Although in larger doses they tend to produce irregular and peristaltic contraction of the heart, yet in moderate doses they tend to remove irregularity already present. The cases in which they are, sends the blood with sufficient force into the aorta. It is evident that this inability may depend on simple weakness of the ventricle without any valvular lesions, or on a combination of two or more of these conditions.

Do you agree that a large dose will stimulate the cardiac muscles and tend to produce irregular and peristaltic contraction of the heart? Yes.

5542. And do you think that the seventh of a grain is a dose large enough to do that? Yes, I do.
5543. What would be the after effects of an excessive dose of strychnine on the heart? It would weaken the heart's action and make it more rapid. The heart would subsequently have less muscular power than it had before the administration of the strychnine.
5544. Do you say that the stimulating effects of strychnine upon the heart are transient? Yes.
5545. And that, after passing away, leave the heart more exhausted than it was before? Yes.
5546. Is it not a rule, in administering strychnine as a cardiac tonic, to repeat the dose frequently? Yes.
5547. How often? That depends upon the patient.
5548. Within what limits? Within limits of two, three, or four hours. You must be guided by the condition of the heart's action.
5549. Would a large dose of strychnine, given at 7 o'clock in the morning, even if it produced no symptoms at the time of administration, be likely to depress the heart at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, or would it be likely to leave it stronger in the afternoon? I think that by 3 o'clock in the afternoon that a reaction from over-stimulation would have set in, and the heart's action consequently would be depressed.
5550. Now, turning to arsenic again, will you explain how arsenic acts as a poison in the alimentary canals? It acts in two ways—it is an irritant on the mucous lining of the stomach; secondly, it acts when absorbed upon the whole of the constitution of the person who has taken it.
5551. Is part of this action to cause a weakness of the heart? One of the first symptoms of arsenical poisoning is collapse and weak action of the heart.
5552. And is that due to vomiting and purging? Yes; as well as shock to the patient, and irritation of the stomach.
5553. In addition to the effect of arsenic upon the heart itself? Yes.
5554. Do you tell us, then, that arsenic weakens the heart-beat? Yes.
5555. And that strychnine, in medicinal or small tonic doses, will strengthen the heart-beat? Yes.
5556. And that administered in large doses strychnine produces irregular action of the heart? Yes.
5557. Do you know whether any of the muscular tissues upon which the arsenic acts when it produces the depressed action of the heart, are the same or different tissues which strychnine acts upon when it strengthens the heart's beat? I do not think so.
5558. Are you of opinion theoretically that strychnine and arsenic cannot counteract one another? No; they cannot.
5559. President.] Do you say that arsenic acts on one set of tissues and strychnine on another. Will you explain this action? Strychnine acts on the muscular tissues of the heart and strengthens its action, assuming that it is given in tonic doses, while arsenic produces a collapse, which is usually accompanied by anæmia of the brain (which is the want of a proper supply of blood to the brain). This produces collapse; anæmia of the brain brings about great weakness.
5560. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you say arsenic acts on the tissues of the stomach and strychnine on the heart? Yes.
5561. Dr. Todd.] If a stimulating dose of strychnine was taken, would it leave the force of the heart-beat unaltered? I believe not.
5562. If you had a stimulant dose of strychnine added to a depressing dose of arsenic, would there be any effect on the force of the heart? I think not.
5563. If you had a poisonous dose of strychnine and a poisonous dose of arsenic together, what would be the result? You would have poisoning by strychnine and by arsenic.
5564. Would these neutralise one another outside the body? No.
5565. Would they neutralise inside the body? No.
- 5566-7. Do you know of any clinical experience or experimental evidence to justify this assertion: "Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic, then took a dose of strychnine, it would be an antidote to it"? No.

President.] I do not think it has ever been insisted that it was meant to say that. We do not understand it as such.

5568. Mr. Pitcher.] Supposing that two doses were taken together, what in your opinion would be the result? We should have poisoning by arsenic and by strychnine then.

5569. Do I understand you to say that in your opinion arsenic and strychnine would not neutralise one another? No; they would not.

S. T. Knaggs, Esq., M.D. 5570. President.] Would one disguise the other? I think strychnine would help the arsenical poisoning.
5571. Dr. Todd.] The last question I asked you was if you knew, in your clinical experience, a certain statement? Yes.

30 May, 1895.

5572. Do you know of any clinical experience or experimental evidence that would justify this statement. The statement is taken from Mr. Hamlet's evidence on page 15, evidence given at Criminal Court:—
"Mrs. Dean, at the request of juror, then shows how much syrup she put in the glass. Hamlet says the quantity is a little over 2 oz. That would not be a fatal dose, but a dangerous dose. There would be $\frac{1}{2}$ a grain of arsenic in a tablespoonful of tonic. The strychnine would modify the arsenic, to which it is antagonistic, and would counteract it. A series of doses, though not one is fatal, may kill." Do you know of any evidence, experimental or otherwise, that would lead you to suppose that a mixture of strychnine and arsenic will cause one to counteract the other?

5572½. President.] Do you know if, when both strychnine and arsenic are given, whether one has any effect of counteracting the other? No, I do not.

5573. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have no knowledge of strychnine and arsenic together? No.

5574. Dr. Todd.] The matter was never heard of before? Well, I have never heard of it.

5575. Sir Julian Salomons.] You do not understand, in one way or the other, of a mixture of arsenic and strychnine? No.

5576. It has not arisen in your practice? No; it has not.

5577. Dr. Todd.] You have never read any book which made any statements about this matter? No; I have not.

5578. You have never known of any reference to any antagonism between strychnine and arsenic? No; I do not know.

5579. You have read a great many books, I suppose? Yes, I have.

5580. Have you read anything suggestive of the antagonism of strychnine and arsenic; do you know of any authority who advises that strychnine should be used in acute arsenical poisoning? No; I do not.

5581. President.] I do not think that this is suggested in any way in the evidence referred to. Nothing is meant but that one stimulates and the other retards the action of the heart.

Sir Julian Salomons: I admit that if a man is poisoned by arsenic that strychnine will not cure him.

5582. Dr. Todd.] Will strychnine stop the vomiting and purging caused by arsenic? Do you mean in small doses?

5583. Say in small or in large doses? No; it will not. There is no action in strychnine to have that effect. In large doses of course it will stop it by causing the death of the person.

5584. President.] Apart from the death of the patient, would strychnine ever stop the vomiting and purging of arsenic? No; it would not.

5585. Sir Julian Salomons.] In large doses it would not? It might increase it by increasing the muscular action of the bowels.

5586. Dr. Todd.] Will strychnine have any effect to stop the caustic effects of arsenic on the mucous membrane of the alimentary canal? No; it would not.

5587. What would be the effect of strychnine, as regards the purging, in arsenical poisoning? It might increase it by increasing the muscular action of the bowels.

5588. Is strychnine rapidly absorbed from the alimentary canal, from the stomach, and from the intestines? Yes.

5589. If strychnine is taken with water and with an acid, will that increase the rapidity with which it is absorbed? Yes; strychnine alone is very insoluble in water, but an acid makes it soluble and more easily absorbed.

5590. If a person, after taking a solution of strychnine, moves about actively, would that hurry on the absorption of the strychnine? Yes; the movement will accelerate the circulation of the blood, and hasten the process of absorption.

5591. Would it have any effects in passing from the stomach into the intestines? Yes.

5592. After taking strychnine as a poison, in what time do the symptoms usually appear? Do you mean on a full stomach, or on an empty stomach?

5593. Say on an empty stomach first? You will find that symptoms will appear in from five to twenty minutes. If it is in a soluble form it will be very rapid.

[Taylor's Legal Medicine, page 460.]

Strychnine is eliminated from the body chiefly by the kidneys, and its presence in the urine may usually readily be demonstrated, even when fairly small doses have been taken. The examination of the strychnine is sometimes of very great importance in cases of suspected poisoning, as a means of verifying the presence of the poison in the system. The elimination of the kidneys is rapid in strychnine being found in the urine generally after the second day. The poison seems to be eliminated from the body within forty-eight hours.

5594. Do you agree with this? Yes.

5595. Is arsenic absorbed less or more rapidly than strychnine? Less rapidly. It would depend on its form. Arsenic is less easily absorbed if it is in the form of arsenious acid.

5596. In any case the strychnine symptoms would appear before the arsenical symptoms? Yes, they would.

5597. President.] The symptoms of strychnine poisoning would appear first? Yes.

5598. Dr. Todd.] Is strychnine rapidly eliminated from the body? Yes; it is eliminated from the kidneys very rapidly—(say) in forty-eight hours.

[Taylor's Legal Medicine, page 460.]

Both nuxvomica and strychnine produce essentially the same effects, the only difference observable being that the latter, as would naturally be expected, acts somewhat more rapidly than the former. The symptoms occasionally begin to show themselves immediately after the swallowing of the poison, but more often they are delayed for ten or fifteen minutes. They do not usually appear earlier than five minutes, nor are they often delayed later than an hour, although they have been known to be postponed until the end of the third hour. This great difference in time of the first symptoms is due chiefly to the form in which it is administered, and to the condition of the stomach. If taken in solution it acts more rapidly than in the form of a powder, and in pills it is still slower in its action. If taken on an empty stomach it is absorbed more quickly and produces its effects earlier than when the stomach is full of food.

5599. Do you agree with that? Yes.

5600. If anyone took a dose of strychnine, such a dose as would have the effect of stimulating the action of the heart, on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, would that have any effect in counteracting symptoms of weakness arising on the following Monday at 11 o'clock at night—sixty-four hours after? You would most likely have all the strychnine eliminated in forty-eight hours. Even after forty-eight hours you would have no strychnine left.

5601. If there had been strychnine present would the heart's action have been stronger or weaker? I think weaker as the remote effect of strychnine.

5602. I want now to go to that faecal stain on the nightdress [night-dress produced];—you have seen that stain? Yes.
5603. Would you recognise it by its appearance as a faecal stain—that is, as it appears now;—could you be certain? No.
5604. To find out whether it was you would require to examine it in some other way? Yes.
5605. If a trace of arsenic was found in every part of that stain, would that indicate that a large amount of arsenic was present in the whole stain. Suppose it covered all that part that is cut out—suppose there was a trace of arsenic found in every part examined, would that indicate a small amount or large part in the whole stain. (Hamlet's evidence, page 22, at Police-court): "I next received a woman's night-dress, 3 feet 7½ inches in length, and 27 inches at its widest part; on the lower part, behind, I found large, irregular stains of faecal matter, extending over an area of 17 by 15 inches, close down to bottom edge of the garment; the faecal matter was subjected to analysis, and found to contain distinct traces of arsenic"? Assuming that the arsenic was mixed thoroughly with the amount of faecal matter which produced that stain, I would think there was a large total amount of arsenic in the stain if it was mixed well in it.
5606. If that amount of arsenic is present in that stain, would that indicate a large or small amount of arsenic in the body after it had passed through the alimentary canal? Certainly, a person must have used a large dose of arsenic to produce that.
5607. You know the appearance of crystals of arsenious acids? Yes.
5608. They are not anhydrate crystals? Yes.
5609. You can see them with a powerful magnifying glass? Yes.
5610. And recognise them by their appearance? Yes.
5611. Suppose you examine the whole 17 inches of that faecal stain with a lens, there being that quantity there, and you found no arsenious acid crystals, would that be an indication whether arsenious crystals were there;—you would not expect to get crystals? No.
5612. Is there any other sort of arsenic that can be detected in its crystalline form with a lens? No.
5613. The other sorts of arsenic are not recognisable by means of the lens? No; I think not.
5614. So that in that stain, although you cannot see any crystals, there might be arsenic in some form present? Yes.
5615. And it might be present in other parts beyond the stain;—some of the fluid of that stain might have permeated into the linen and carried the arsenic without carrying the stain? Yes.
5616. A solution of arsenite of soda and arsenite of potash are all colourless? Yes.
5617. Suppose you had a solution of arsenic and potash (Fowler's solution), that would be colourless? Yes.
5618. If a solution of arsenite of soda appeared at all in any other part, could you detect arsenite of potash or soda on the calico? No, not in crystals.
5619. Not with the eye, or with the lens? I think not.
5620. You think it would be quite possible to put a solution of some sort of arsenic on that nightdress, and yet it could not be detected with a lens? Yes.
5621. Would it be more or less difficult to detect it with a lens? I do not think the crystals would form unless the arsenic had been sublimed by heat.
5622. If arsenious acid was given by the mouth, would you expect to find arsenious acid in the excreta? No.
5623. Would it be acted upon by the salts, acids, and alkalis? You would most likely have the sulphide of arsenic passed. I think the arsenious acid might be changed into the sulphide of arsenic.
5624. President.] Is sulphide of arsenic of a yellow colour? Yes, it is yellow.
5625. Dr. Todd.] You think it would be possible to produce such a stain as this by diarrhoea in appearance? Yes.
5626. And that arsenic could have been added to it by the application of arsenic in solution? Perhaps so.
5627. President.] If a person was poisoned with arsenic and had motions, would you expect only to find this yellow sulphide? Yes.
5628. That only? Yes; not arsenious acid.
5629. That is the ordinary arsenic—the ordinary white arsenic? Yes; if a patient had taken a large quantity, part of it would pass altered into sulphide. It is quite possible that some of it might have escaped from the intestines as arsenious acid—that is, the person having taken a large dose.
5630. Dr. Todd.] In order to get that effect they must have taken an enormous quantity of arsenic? Yes; a large quantity.
5631. Greatly larger than one-sixth of a grain? Yes.
5632. I will read extract from Judge's notes at Criminal Court:—
- On Monday morning at breakfast the prisoner brought me some cocoa, bread and butter, and a chop, which I took; about twenty minutes or half an hour after eating it I started vomiting and purging very seriously. I felt severe pains in my head and a very heavy pain in the stomach—a burning pain—and a burning in the throat; I had no such symptoms before he gave me this food; I was feeling much better up to the time he gave it to me; no one else was in the house but us two; I lay down on the bed feeling very ill; he was laying on the bed with me; I was dressed; the symptoms went on all through the day; in the afternoon he suggested my having the doctor; at about 5:30 he had done so on the Sunday, but I would not, as I was feeling pretty right; I consented, and about 8 he went for him; Dr. Newnarch came about 9 or 10 and saw me; I was still feeling the same symptoms; he prescribed for me, and prisoner went for the medicine and brought it; he offered me some at about 11 p.m.; I was still ill, but not vomiting; I had ceased vomiting; he brought the medicine in a tumbler to the bedside; he had a spoon in the tumbler pressing the back of the spoon against the glass as though he was trying to mix something; he asked me to drink it; I noticed it had a milky appearance; I asked him what made it look like that; he said it was the powder that the doctor had ordered; I then drank it; the mixture in the tumbler was very thick, and looked like curdled milk on the top; I drank it; he then went to work and left the house; about half an hour after taking it, I began vomiting and purging again with the same burning symptoms that I had before in the throat and stomach, and I could hardly see out of my eyes; it went on all through the night, vomiting and purging nearly every ten minutes; prisoner came to me about 7 a.m., on Tuesday; he asked me how I was; I said I had been very ill all night; the doctor came about 10, I think; I was very thirsty all night, continually drinking.
5633. In examining that stain, if you found traces of arsenic in it—in portions of it—and examined the whole surface with a lens and found no arsenic with the lens, would that be sufficient evidence to justify you in saying that the arsenic that was found by the tests was found in the alimentary canals;—would that be sufficient evidence to justify you in saying it had gone through the alimentary canal? No, I think not; it is quite possible that the arsenic might have been added subsequently.
5634. It does not prove that it went through the body at all? There is not enough evidence.
5635. Would it be possible to produce a faecal stain containing arsenic by mixing a solution with faecal matter and applying it? It would be quite possible.

S. T. Knaggs, Esq., M.D. 5636. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have not made such an experiment? No.

5637. Dr. Todd.] You know what is done in sick rooms;—is it usual to leave a nightdress soiled about the house from Sunday morning until the following Monday morning? —

30 May, 1895.

President: I should think that would depend on the cleanliness of the people; all persons do not act alike in such matters.

[Judge's Notes, Criminal Court, page 6 of Evidence.]

I was sleeping in a night-dress that night; I had put on a clean night-dress on Sunday morning, and I wore it till Monday morning about 11 o'clock, when I took it off; I had been purging whilst I wore it, and I took it off because it was soiled by the purging which followed my taking the cocoa; I put it in the clothes-basket; I saw my mother take it out of the clothes basket and look at it and put it back in the basket; (this was on Wednesday the 6th); the doctor took the night-gown away on the following Sunday, the 10th; it is in the same state now as when I took it off on the Monday.

5638. Dr. Todd.] I will now proceed to the exhibit of urine of 10th March—urine that Mrs. Seymour sent to Dr. Newmarch. If a specimen of urine, say 6 oz., showed a trace of arsenic by analysis, after arsenic had been taken, would this indicate a large or small dose being taken? It would be a long time for the arsenic to remain. It would mean a large dose.

5639. If there was a trace of arsenic in 6 oz. of urine, that in the whole urine, say, would that indicate a large quantity? Yes, proportionately to the amount of urine passed by the individual.

5640. Suppose a heavy dose of arsenic was taken on Monday morning (this was taken on Monday morning, the 10th, or night)—suppose it was taken then? If a person took a large dose of arsenic on Monday morning at breakfast-time, would you expect her to have a fairly good pulse on Monday evening after purging and vomiting? How long did the purging and vomiting last?

[Extract from Judge's Notes, Criminal Court, page 6 of Evidence.]

The symptoms went on all through the day; Dr. Newmarch came about 9 or 10, and saw me; I was still feeling the same symptoms; the doctor prescribed for me, and prisoner went for the medicine and brought it; he offered me some about 11 p.m.; I was still ill, but not vomiting; I had ceased vomiting.

5641. Assuming that went on all day, would you expect to find a fairly good pulse? If the patient had a large dose in the morning, and purging and vomiting all day, I should expect to find a weak and shaky pulse in the evening.

5642. The pulse would not be regular? No.

[Extract from Dr. Newmarch's Evidence at Criminal Court, on page 8.]

When I saw her at 8:10, she was very pale, skin moist and clammy, tongue clean; symptoms gone of vomiting and purging directly after taking anything; the body was tender over the stomach region, pulse regular, respiration normal; the symptoms are consistent with arsenical poisoning.

5643. When it is advisable, as a medical practitioner, to examine the urine of a person, is it not considered necessary to either draw the urine yourself or to have it passed under circumstances that it would not be the urine of anybody else? For a medico-legal case you should draw it or see it passed.

5644. That is the rule that applies in cases of medical examination in life assurance offices? Yes; as a safety against fraud.

5645. If the mother is nursing at the breast a young baby on Saturday, March 2nd, when she is supposed to have taken a strong dose of strychnine—a large medical dose,—would you expect that child to suffer symptoms—that is, if she had the strychnine at 7 on the Saturday morning? Milk is one of the means of eliminating strychnine from the body, and I would expect some symptoms of strychnine poisoning in the child.

5646. Are the symptoms marked? Pretty well marked.

5647. Does it take a large or small dose of strychnine to produce these symptoms? Yes; a large dose. If the mother has a fairly large dose, one of the means of eliminating the poison is through the milk. It must be a fairly large dose.

5648. If strychnine is added to lemon syrup, would it go into solution;—in any form would it remain in solution, or go into solution if it was not? I want to know what is the lemon syrup made of. If it is an acid solution it would help the solution of the arsenic.

[Extract from Wm. Hamlet's Evidence at Criminal Court, page 9 of Evidence.]

On March 6th, got from Cotter a bottle, sealed and labelled, containing lemon syrup (produced); made a preliminary analysis; it contained 2½ oz. of a clear liquid, with a white powder on the bottom of the bottle; it had a persistent bitter taste; a chemical analysis was made, and 1½ grains of white arsenic was found in the contents of the bottle, and 1·5 grains (1½) of strychnine in the liquid; there was about twice as much liquid as there is now; I produce the strychnine I obtained; the strychnine was in solution; anyone looking for arsenic only would not find the strychnine; 2½ grains is a fatal dose of arsenic; one-half (½) grain of strychnine is a poisonous dose; the mixture of strychnine and arsenic would cause one to counteract the other.

5649. President.] I understand that the white powder found in the bottle is altogether distinct from the liquid? (Dr. Todd): Yes; anyone looking for strychnine would not find that.

5650. Dr. Todd.] In this lemon-syrup, if there was a white powder of arsenic at the bottom of the fluid, would there be any arsenic in solution as well as the arsenic at the bottom? I am not sure, and would prefer not to answer that question.

5651. Mr. Pilcher.] Can you say whether the liquor would take up all the arsenic in solution and deposit the balance? It is a matter I cannot speak surely of. I am not sure if arsenious acid is soluble in an acid medicine without the application of heat.

[Extract from Dr. Newmarch's Evidence at Criminal Court, page 8.]

When I saw her at 8:10 she was very pale; skin moist and clammy; tongue clean; symptoms gone of vomiting and purging directly after taking anything, &c.

5652. Dr. Todd.] Are these symptoms consistent with any other illness besides arsenical poisoning? Yes, they are.

5653. What other causes can you suggest? Ptomaine poisoning from tinned meats, the gastric form of influenza, and sporadic cholera.

5654. These symptoms are consistent with these conditions? Yes.

5655. Have you read this evidence of Mrs. Dean's. Yes.

5656. You have read the account of Mrs. Dean's illness;—do you think that these two occasions were part of the same illness;—must they be separately two illnesses? It might be quite possible that it was part of one illness with a slight intermission between.

5657. You have read this account of her illness on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and so on;—if you had to form an opinion that she had ptomaine poisoning, do you see in the history of her illness any cause to change the course of diagnosis? I have not read the account of her illness lately, not for some time.

[Extract from Judge's notes, at Criminal Court, on page 6, setting forth symptoms of illness on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, read to witness.]

Dr. Knaggs.] I can hardly be able to answer that without having seen the patient. There might be something in her aspect and appearance to guide me. It is a question I could hardly answer.

5658. You know the disease influenza of the gastro-intestinal type;—peripheral neuritis is known to follow that type? Not to my personal knowledge, but I know there are cases reported of it.

5659. Is peripheral neuritis a disease that follows arsenical poisoning? Yes; lead poisoning, alcoholic poisoning, and this form of influenza, also malarious fevers. There are a number of causes.

5660. When you get a case of peripheral neuritis is there anything else except the history of the patient as a rule to determine the diagnosis? You generally rely upon the history to form a diagnosis. Syphilis is another cause.

[Witness withdrew.]

Alexander James Weynton sworn and examined:—

5661. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you lived and do live next door to where Dean lived? I do so now.

5662. And at the time Dean lived there? I did, sir.

5663. Sometime ago you obtained some poison for some purpose? Yes, I did.

5663. You obtained it from Elliott Brothers? Yes.

5664. You remember this illness of Mrs. Dean's? Yes; I remember she was ill.

5665. Can you tell me where the poison was at the time that illness was going on? The poison I put into the garden on Tuesday morning in a small phial.

5666. Where was the poison before that? I do not know; Mrs. Weynton will tell you that.

5667. Sir Julian Salomons.] You were Dean's landlord, were you not? No, I was not.

5668. Then who was? My brother was.

5669. Where does your brother live? At a point—one of the points on the river.

5670. Which river? The Lane Cove River.

5670. Were you acting as agent for your brother? No.

5671. Only looking after the house? Yes.

5672. Then this George Dean was a tenant of your brother's? Yes.

5673. Is it not a fact that you and your wife, at 6 o'clock in the morning, got up and buried this poison in the ground at the back of your house? I can answer that very simply; no, sir.

5674. Was this strychnine buried in the ground of your premises? It was, sir.

5675. At what hour was it buried? At a quarter to 7 in the morning.

5676. Did you time it? That is as near as I can tell you.

5677. Have you ever said that it was buried at 6 o'clock in the morning? No, sir.

5678. It was buried, then, at a quarter to 7? Yes, as near as I can guess.

5679. Who was there when that poison was buried? Myself and my wife only.

5680. No other persons were present? No, sir.

5681. Who dug up the ground? I did, sir. I knew where it was after my wife told me.

5682. Where was this strychnine poison before you buried it? On the top of a wardrobe in my house, in my bedroom.

5683. You remember this charge being made against Dean;—when did you first hear of Mrs. Dean being ill from the action of poison;—was it on the Monday? I presume so.

5684. On Monday evening? Yes, sir.

5685. Who did you hear it from? My wife.

5686. The next morning you thought fit to bury it? Yes. I did not know it was poison that Mrs. Dean had taken. I thought it was some acid out of a bottle.

5687. You admit that on the following Tuesday morning you and your wife buried this strychnine in the ground? I do.

5688. Your wife was there? Yes.

5689. You came from your own house and went into the garden and dug up the ground and buried it and covered it up? I did.

5690. Do you remember that on that very morning you saw Dean? I did.

5691. At what time did you see him? At about a quarter to half-past 7 o'clock.

5691. President.] After you had buried the bottle? Yes.

5692. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where did you see Dean? He was coming along his yard leading his bicycle.

5693. Did you speak to him? Yes, I did.

5694. Did you say anything to him about burying this poison? No, sir.

5695. Mr. Weynton, before that strychnine was in your house, on the top of the wardrobe in your house, where was it;—will you not admit that that strychnine had been left in the wash-house in your yard? Yes.

5696. What have you stated before? I have not stated it before. This is the first time I am asked now.

5697. I think you will not deny that you made a statement to one or more members of the police force about this matter? No, sir, I did not.

5698. No statement of any kind? No, sir, I did not. To the detective, when I met him that evening, certainly I did.

5699. Did you not make a statement to members of the police force? I may have done.

5700. Don't you know that you did to two or three members of the police? To two only, if I did at all.

5701.

A. J.
Weynton.
30 May, 1895.

5701. Will you not admit that you did? I am not quite sure.
5702. Will you not admit that you did make a statement to Sergeants Brennan, and Weacin, and Tindall? To the two first, no, decidedly; to the latter, yes.
5703. Don't you remember that you made a statement to Tindall? I cannot alter my statement, I may have done so. It is likely I did.
5704. Don't you know as well as your name is Weynton that you did? I will give in.
5705. Don't you know that you did make that statement? I am not certain; I tell you, emphatically, I am not certain.
5706. Is not that your signature, sir [deposition produced]? It is.
5707. Do you not see that not only is your name there, but that the witness to your signature is Tindall? Yes; it is Tindall. [Deposition read.]

North Sydney, April 25, 1895.

ALEXANDER JAMES WEYNTON states:—I am a warehouseman, and reside at Clifton, Miller-street, North Sydney; I know Mr. and Mrs. Dean, and Mrs. Dean's mother, Mrs. Seymour; they resided next door to me for about six months; I was on friendly terms with them but they never visited my place; I have had poison in the house for about twelve months, that poison I obtained to poison a dog suffering from the mange, which I used successfully with the dog; my eldest boy, Oswin, obtained it from Elliott Brothers; it was strychnine, and was in a small bottle; the boy handed it to me and I placed it in the wash-house on a shelf; it remained there perhaps for six months, and I do not know of my own knowledge that it was removed until my wife told me, which was caused by my going to that corner and accidentally missing the bottle; I then inquired from my wife, who said she had put it away, but did not say where; I saw no more of it until I took it to bury it, which was on Tuesday morning, the 5th of March last, between 6 and 7 a.m.; I buried it in case the detectives should ask if I had any poison about the place; the police did not inquire of me if I had any poison about the place; I knew Inspector Cotter and Sergeant Brennan; neither of those officers asked me if I had any poison about the house; about twelve months ago I was talking to a man named Johnson, who has charge of the Suspension Bridge; he pointed out to me a garden and said that he had been robbed of vegetables by rabbits and pigs; I told him he had better poison the vegetables so as to get rid of the intruders; I then said I will send you down some strychnine, but do not forget to put up a notice that poison is laid; I afterwards sent him down by my son, Russell, a small bottle containing the strychnine, but only a small quantity, and I marked the bottle specially "Poison;" I have never been inside Dean's house, but I have been in the yard on three occasions; on one of these occasions I was speaking to Dean; I have also spoken to Mrs. Dean, and on one occasion hearing Mrs. Weynton's name mentioned I felt very much annoyed at what had been said, and said to her, "Look out you are not committed for perjury;" I never asked Inspector Cotter or Sergeant Brennan, or any member of the police, not to call me as a witness in the Dean case; I never had any arsenic in the house; Mr. Dean, Mrs. Dean, or Mrs. Seymour, never asked me for any poison or referred to poison in any way; I have never been in Mr. Dean's company away from home.

A. J. WEYNTON.

Witness—Wm. J. TINDALL.

I, ALEXANDER WEYNTON, said on Tuesday morning, March 5:—

(Conversation)—Dean appearing on his instrument (bicycle): "Dean, do you know that your wife has taken poison from a bottle containing lemon syrup?" He looked and simply looked dazed, said nothing more, but entered in his back door to the house.

5708. Do you remember now making that statement? Yes.
5709. How is it that you forgot that matter a moment ago;—how is it you forgot you made that statement to the police? I cannot tell you.
5710. You had forgotten it? Yes.
5711. It had passed out of your mind? Yes; it had.
5712. You had forgotten you made that statement altogether? Yes; particularly about its being in the wash-house.
5713. President.] You had forgotten that you had made a statement about poison to the police? No; I did not. The police I recognized as the North Shore police; I did not think of detectives, and was not referring to the detectives.
5714. Don't you count detectives as police? Yes; I do now.
5715. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did not I mention detectives to you before I showed you that document;—is it not a fact that you forgot it? Yes; I had partly forgotten it.
5716. When the police came round do you remember saying this: They asked you if you had any poison in the house, and you said, "No, none in the house";—do you remember saying this to any member of the police? No, sir; I was never asked except by Tindall.
5717. Did you not tell Tindall that you had no poison in the house? No, sir.
5718. Did you not tell Brennan that you had no poison in the house? He did not ask me.
5719. Will you swear that Brennan did not say to you, "I suppose you have no poison in the house"? Yes; that is not true.
5720. Did you not draw a distinction between poison being in the house and poison being in the garden;—did you draw that distinction? No, sir.
5721. Did your wife draw that distinction? I do not know, sir. I was not asked the question, and therefore I said nothing about it.
5722. Will you not admit that your wife was asked that question, and she said "No"? I do not know whether my wife was asked that question or not, because she was asked by the police when I was away from home.
5723. Don't you know that you heard that from your wife as well as you know your name is Weynton? No, sir, I don't.
5724. You don't? No.
5725. Were you not both present when Tindall took the statement referred to? Yes.
5726. Your wife is named Catherine Weynton? I believe that is her name.
5727. Is her name Catherine? Yes.
5728. Was not her statement taken at the same time as yours? No; the statement taken from Mrs. Weynton was between 12 and 2 in the day, when I was away from home.
5729. Were you not there when that statement was taken from Mrs. Weynton? No, sir.
5730. Or when she made any statement? When they took my statement Mrs. Weynton was in the room.
5731. Do you not know that your wife said absolutely that there was no poison in your house? I do not know what they told Mrs. Weynton, or what she said. I was not there.
5732. Do you not know that your wife has told you that she told the police that she had no poison in the house;—you thought it was not in the house because it was in the garden? No, sir.
5733. That is all new? Yes, sir.
5734. You or your wife never told the police that you never had poison in the house;—will you swear that? Yes.

5735.

A. J.
Weynton.
30 May, 1895.

5735. You will swear that you did not tell the police that? All except Tindall.
5736. Did not you tell Tindall you had no poison in the house? You have read my statement.
5737. Did you not tell Tindall you had no poison in the house? No, sir.
5738. Did you not tell Tindall, sir, that you had no poison in your house? No, sir.
5739. You never told Tindall that? No, sir.
5740. Will you swear you never did? Yes.
5741. Don't let us have any misunderstanding now? I tell you, no, sir. How can I make a mistake if I told him there was no poison in the house.
5742. Didn't you tell Tindall there was no poison in the house? No, sir.
5743. Did you tell Tindall you had poison in the house? I don't believe I did.
5744. You didn't? I do not see how I could when it was in the garden.
5745. Did you tell him it was in the garden? I do not think I did.
5746. Do not you know you did not? Yes.
5747. Why did you not tell the police that this poison was buried in the garden? Because Tindall was not there till after it was buried, and I did not know till after it was dug up.
5748. You know that strychnine was one of the poisons supposed to have been used in this case? Not till after—a week afterwards, or ten days, did that come out.
5749. Didn't you say that you heard on the Monday evening something about a bottle? Yes, that there was some white stuff in the bottle.
5750. Why did you and your wife bury it—why did you bury this poison in the garden;—why did you not tell the police the poison was in the garden? Well, we put two and two together and thought there might be something wrong.
5751. Is it not a fact that you missed this poison from the wash-house? Yes.
5752. How long did you miss it? For, I dare say, about six months.
5753. President.] How long was it in the wash-house? About five months.
5754. Whereabouts did you keep this strychnine, in the wash-house? On a lower shelf away in the corner.
5755. Was it an open wash-house? Yes, it is quite open.
5756. There is no door to it? No.
5757. How much strychnine was there in this bottle? It was about an inch deep in the bottle. It was a small pomade bottle with a wide neck, 2 inches or 2½ inches high.
5758. That was left in an open place in the wash-house in your yard? Yes; next to the kitchen.
5759. Could anyone see it there? There were a lot of boxes in front of it; it was a place one would not dream of going to look for anything.
5760. Sir Julian Salomons.] I ask you why did you not tell the police about this poison;—you said you put two and two together. What did you say—something about “Because I was not asked”? I did not know what might accrue.
5761. You know the police dug up this poison after this man was convicted? Yes.
5762. Do you know how long after? It was after the trial; somewhere about ten days—close on three weeks.
5763. I suppose you knew of this agitation that was going on in favour of Dean? Yes, I did.
5764. That he had been convicted? Yes.
5765. I put it to you ten days—you say a fortnight;—why did not you tell the police that this poison was buried in your garden, and had been in your wash-house? Because it had nothing to do with it; this happened four months before Dean came near the place.
5766. Have you stated this poison was there four or five months before Dean came there? I got the strychnine six months before this Dean matter turned up.
5767. For four months you had that strychnine in the wash-house next door to the yard where Dean lived? Yes; but it was not there four months during that time.
5768. During the time they were living there where was it then? Mrs. Weynton had it on the top of a wardrobe in her bedroom.
5769. You admit you buried this poison on the Tuesday morning, at 7 o'clock;—then why when you saw this agitation going on did you not inform the police? Because it was not necessary.
5770. What do you mean by not necessary? I did not know that strychnine was going to appear in this case.
5771. Were you not at the Court when he was tried? Yes.
5772. Did not know that at the trial it was stated that the poisons found were strychnine and arsenic? I did.
5773. You knew that Dean was found guilty? I did.
5774. And you knew of this agitation? Yes, I did.
5775. Then up to a fortnight then why did you not tell the police that strychnine was buried in your garden? Because it had nothing to do with it.
5776. Nothing to do with it;—what do you mean by that? This was a pink strychnine, and had nothing to do with it.
5777. Did you not see that this was a most important matter? I know this, that it did not leave mine or my wife's sight for six months before I buried it.
5778. Why did not you give this information to the police? Because it had nothing to do with the case.
5779. Then why did you bury it? Because I did not want to be annoyed with the police as we were.
5780. President.] I want you to fully realise that there is not the least imputation against you. The question we want to know is: Could anyone get at this poison where it was kept? I know that. This poison was upstairs in our bedroom for six months before Dean was there; it was planted in the garden on the Tuesday. What had this to do with the case?
5781. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you not stated that at the time you buried it you admitted that the police had never spoken to you? No, they did not; this poison was in our bedroom during the time the Deans were there, and seeing that Mrs. Dean was poisoned with strychnine I planted it in the garden on Tuesday. Knowing Dean had no strychnine at all what had it to do with the case?
5782. Then why did you get up in the morning at 7 o'clock and bury it? I didn't get up at 7 o'clock, it was when my wife came down stairs.
5783. Why did you bury it at a quarter to 7 in the morning? I might have buried it at 5 o'clock in the morning.

5784.

A. J.
Weynton.
30 May, 1895.

5784. Why did you get up at a quarter to 7 and bury it? Because I wished to say that we had no poison in the house.
5785. Is it not a fact that you and your wife told the police that you had no poison in the house? It seems we did tell them.
5786. You draw the distinction between poison in the house and poison in the garden? Decidedly; if I am in the house I cannot be in the garden.
5787. The police did not ask you if it was in the garden, therefore you did not tell them? Yes.
5788. You buried it in the garden so that you might tell them you did not have it in the house? Yes.
5789. Is not that the distinction you drew? Yes.
5790. So you did tell them you hadn't it in the house? Yes.
5791. You drew the distinction between the house and the garden? I have already said yes.
5792. Why would you not let the police know that you had strychnine in the house or in the garden? Because I did not want to be mixed up with the strychnine at all; it would make matters much worse for me.
5793. Didn't you see it might make it much worse for Dean if it had been known that strychnine was in your place? I do not see it would; the might was on my side.
5794. Did you not tell Mrs. Dean before the case came into Court at all that if she went on with this matter she might get seven years for perjury? I do not think I mentioned seven years; I think I said punished.
5795. Well punished for perjury? Yes.
5796. Which is the policeman you said that to—or a detective—that she might get punished for perjury? I would like to see the statement. In that conversation I said that she would get into trouble; nothing about perjury or anything else.
5797. Did you not tell her that she might get seven years for perjury? No; decidedly no.
5798. That conversation was before any proceedings whatever—the conversation, I mean, when you told Mrs. Dean that she might get into trouble? I believe it was.
5799. Did you not tell her that she would have a very severe lawyer to face, and “you will all get seven or eight years for perjury”? No, sir.
5800. Think it over? No, sir.
5801. Did you tell her that she would have a very severe lawyer to face? No; I said she would have a very severe cross-examination.
5802. And that “she would get seven or eight years for perjury”? Decidedly no.
5803. What did you tell her? That she would get into trouble.
5804. What would she get into trouble about? These continuous paltry yarns—conversations that I have heard from one quarter and another.
5805. President.] When did you first hear anything about the matter which made you tell Mrs. Dean that she was likely to get into trouble? After Dean was arrested.
5806. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you not mean that she might be charged with perjury? No, nothing of the kind. I was annoyed at having heard what I had. It was these paltry things that made me annoyed, and I told her that she would get into trouble if she did not keep her tongue quiet. I spoke hastily.
5807. What do you mean by trouble;—didn't you mean committed for perjury? No, I did not.
5808. What did you mean? I meant simply for her to keep quiet, and not cast the ideas about that she was casting about.
5809. You can give me no other explanation? No. I was annoyed at what she was saying about my wife and myself, and I spoke in a hurried way.
5810. Didn't you tell her she might get seven or eight years for perjury? No, I did not.
5811. What did you mean by about “severely examined”? I did not say anything about it.
5812. What did you mean by severely examined by a lawyer? I did not say anything about it.
5813. Is that a mistake? I think it is.
5814. You won't admit you swore to that a moment ago? I did not tell you anything of the kind.
5815. I put it to you, sir, whether you did not tell her that she would have a very severe lawyer to face, and would get seven or eight years for perjury;—is that a mistake; did not you swear to it a moment ago? You are asking the question so hurriedly that I cannot understand you.
5816. Did not you say what I have just told you a few moments ago? I do not know whether I used those words a few moments ago.
5817. What did you mean by that remark about the lawyer? I cannot tell you.
5818. What did you mean by telling her that? Presuming the case went on, I knew she would.
5819. What has that got to do with the tittle-tattle about you and your wife? It has a lot to do.
5820. Was it because of Mr. Moagher? No.
5821. You didn't mean him? Decidedly not.
5822. Your sons are in the employ of Elliott Brothers? They are.
5823. When did they get that poison? Between fourteen and fifteen months ago, as near as I can tell.
5824. Before you took it down from the shelf in the wardrobe, how long had it been in that wardrobe? My wife thinks about six months.
5825. Don't you know that your wife stated in your presence that you poisoned a dog on the same night as the poison was brought home;—is that true? Yes, that is correct.
5826. That would be two or three months before last Christmas? If it is Mrs. Weynton's statement, I cannot tell you.
5827. Was not that what your own wife said: “This would be about two or three months before last Christmas”? Who was that statement made to?
5828. It was made to some of the police—made by your own wife; I am asking,—was it made to Tindall; I am asking you, don't you know that that statement was made by your wife, “That you poisoned the dog on the same night poison was brought home;” you say, “That is right,” and this would be two or three months before last Christmas? I don't know when that statement was taken down; I cannot tell you.
5829. Isn't it true that that was two or three months before last Christmas? I dare say about four months.
5830. Was that poison kept in a bottle for some considerable time? Yes.
5831. The Deans were living next door to you? No; they were not living next door. 5832.

A. J.
Weynton.
30 May 1895.

5832. Mr. Weynton, do reflect what you are swearing: "That, at the time the poison was in the wash-house, the Deans were not living next door to your house"? I don't think they were.
5833. At the time that poison was in the washhouse the Deans were not there? I do not think they were. They may or may not. I am not quite certain.
5834. When did the Deans come there; when did they come to that house; how long had they been there before this unfortunate affair arose? Between six and seven months.
5835. They came in the previous August;—is not that so? Somewhere about that time, I think.
5836. Mr. Pilcher.] What is your wife's name? Catherine.
5837. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your wife, of course, is in Sydney, on the North Shore? She is, sir.
5838. I have asked you about Tindall; and now about Brennan;—will you not admit that you made a mistake in your former statement, and that, besides Tindall, Brennan saw you within four days of the arrest of Dean; he and Wearin, I think, called at your house and saw you;—when was this? Yes; I think it was either on Wednesday or Thursday, Brennan and Wearin called.
5839. Where did they see you? In the front room of my house.
5840. Do you remember swearing a little time before that the only one you had seen was Tindall, the detective? No; decidedly no. Tindall and another man with him; I have had two distinct visits.
5841. Do you mean to say that, when they both came to you, you made no statement to Brennan and Wearin? Decidedly I did.
5842. What did you say? I cannot tell you.
5843. Did not you say that you had not made a statement to Brennan and Wearin? No, I did not.
5844. Did not you swear you did not? No.
5845. You did not? No; decidedly no.
5846. It is a mistake then? I have made a dozen different statements to both these men.
5847. Did not you make a statement in this room to-day that you had not seen these two men;—will you swear that? No, I did not.
5848. Will you swear it? Yes; I did not.
5849. Did not the sergeant ask you if you told Dean on Tuesday morning before he was arrested that his wife had been taking poison, to which you said "No"? I was the first one to accuse him of it.
5850. To accuse him of what? Of his wife having taken some kind of acid—some white stuff to make her appear unwell. I accused Dean.
5851. The first one to accuse who? Dean.
5852. And you said, "No, I have not accused him"? Decidedly I did.
5853. President.] When did you tell Dean? On the Tuesday morning.
5854. Mr. Pilcher.] When you say accused, what did you say to him? He came along on his bicycle, and I said, "What is it about your wife taking some white stuff in some lemon-syrup. How the devil can you expect the doctor to treat a case like this if he is working in the dark. Go and see about this immediately."
5855. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did the sergeant say to you this: "Did you tell Dean on Tuesday morning before his arrest that his wife had taken poison";—do you remember his asking you that? Yes, I do.
5856. And that you said, "No"? That I said, "No;" I had not accused him.
5857. Yes? Decidedly not; I did say so.
5858. What did you tell Sergeant Brennan in answer to that? I told him my conversation.
5859. What did you tell him? If I told him anything at all it would be this: I told him that Dean came along the yard and I said, "Dean, what is it about your wife taking some white stuff in some lemon-syrup. How the devil can the doctor treat the case if he is working in the dark. You had better see about it immediately." He left me then, and I have never seen him since.
5860. Will you not admit that is a pure fabrication, and that your answer to Sergeant Brennan was "No";—that instead of telling him what you have said just now you said "No"? I told him, if I told him anything, what I have I told you just now.
5861. You cannot remember what you said? I am not quite positive.
5862. Did not the Sergeant say to you, "Did you tell Dean on the Tuesday morning, before his arrest, that his wife had been taking poison?" and you said, "No, I did not say anything about poison"? You say now you said, "Dean, what is this your wife has been drinking out of a bottle that made her sick; you ought to give her a good scolding for not telling the doctor, for how the devil would the doctor know how to treat her if he does not know what is the matter?" Yes, that is what I told him.
5863. Did not the sergeant say to you, "I suppose you have no poison in your house?" and you said, "Oh, no"? Yes; I had no poison in the house.
5864. You drew a distinction between the garden and the house? I had no poison in the house.
5865. You don't deny that you had in fact buried it in the garden? I must have been daft if I did not know it.
5866. Why did not you tell the sergeant that it was in the garden then? Because it had nothing to do with the case.
5867. Don't you know that it was quite untrue what you told him? Yes; according to your version.
5868. Why did you not tell him that that poison was buried in the garden? Because it had nothing to do with the thing.
5869. When you told him it was not in the house you knew it was in the garden? Of course.
5870. And you reckoned you told him the truth when you said it was not in the house? Yes.
5871. It has been stated you were not the landlord of the house—that the key was only left at your place? Yes, on my brother's behalf.
5872. When Mrs. Dean gave up the house the key was left with you for your brother? Yes.
5873. After this unfortunate affair she asked to be allowed to give the house up? Yes.
5874. Mr. Pilcher.] You say that this poison was brought from Elliott Brothers, and used by you for the purpose for which you bought it, and that it remained for some time in an outhouse? Yes.
5875. Can you tell me whether Dean or his wife or family ever had access to your house? Mr. Dean has never been to my house. Mrs. Dean has been to the front door to ask my wife something about the baby when it was unwell.
5876. So far as you know none of the family were ever on your premises? No.
5877. So far as you know they knew nothing about the poison? No; decidedly no.
5878. Even your boys did not know of it? No; they had a horror of that sort of thing.

A. J.
Weynton.
30 May, 1895.

5879. Your wife found it in the wash-house, and took it from the wash-house upstairs to your bedroom as a matter of greater safety, and put it where it could not be touched? Yes, as a matter of greater safety.
5880. You asked her about it after you had missed it? Yes.
5881. Was it shortly afterwards? Perhaps a month or two afterwards.
5882. When you missed it what did you do? I asked her immediately.
5883. And she told you what she had done with it? Yes; that she had put it upstairs on the wardrobe.
5884. At the time she told you that she had taken it away was it before the Deans came to live there? I really think it was.
5885. That is as far as your memory serves you? Yes.
5886. You told us that this poison was of a pink colour? Yes, sir.
5887. And you have told us how you buried it. With the exception of being afraid of any possible question arising about your having this poison, was there any knowledge that you had connected with that poison, except that of your and your wife's name being brought into it? No, sir; nobody knew about it. That is all.
5888. Had you any suspicion or knowledge that anybody knew you had it with the exception of yourself and your wife? Except Johnson, nobody knew. I buried it simply to keep mine and my wife's name out of it. I gave Johnson some of the poison months since, and he knew of its existence.

[Witness withdrew.]

FRIDAY, 31 MAY, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D.

FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Charles Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. H. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

Alexander James Weynton re-examined:—

A. J.
Weynton.
31 May, 1895.

5889. Sir Julian Salomons.] You know Mr. John Johnson? Yes.
5890. He lives, I think, three-quarters of a mile from you? Yes, sir.
5891. Do you remember his telling you about his garden having been robbed a second time? Yes; I told him that I would give him some poison to put on the vegetables, so that he could detect who was robbing him.
5892. How long would that be ago? It would be about nine or ten months ago.
5893. In what month? About May last.
5894. You expressed sorrow about his garden being robbed a second time? He told me that his garden had been robbed.
5895. Are you an old friend of his? Yes; I know him through going to the bridge and having a smoke with him.
5896. You gave him some poison to put on his vegetables, in order that he might find out who was robbing the garden? Yes.
5897. Did you tell him anything about putting up a notice? Yes; I told him to put up a notice, "Poison laid here."
5898. When did you tell him that? I told him that before I gave him the poison, and saw that he did so.
5899. You sent him a small bottle containing strychnine? Yes.
5900. So that he could put poison on the vegetables? Yes.
5901. President.] Did you label the bottle? Yes; I labelled it "Strychnine" and "Poison." I wrote "Poison" on it in large letters.
5902. Sir Julian Salomons.] How much strychnine was in that bottle? About a tablespoonful and a half of strychnine, I should think.
5903. Was that part of the same strychnine that was buried in your garden? Yes; it was part of that I had in the house.
5904. President.] When did you first hear anything about acid or poison in this lemon-syrup? I first heard it from my wife.
5905. Sir Julian Salomons.] What time was it when you told Dean? I told him about a quarter to 7.
5906. Was that before he had been home? It was just as he was going home on his bicycle into his yard.
5907. What did he say? "Poison! Poison!" and then entered the house. Those were the only two words that he uttered.
5908. President.] When you had this bottle of poison up on the shelf was it labelled with anything? Yes; it was labelled "Poison."
5909. How big was the bottle? The bottle was about that depth—[Witness illustrated depth of bottle with thumb and first finger.]
5910. Was the bottle full? It was about half full.
5911. How much did you give to Mr. Johnson? About a teaspoonful and a half.
5912. Still there was a good lot left in the bottle? Yes.
5913. Would you tell me why you buried it—I cannot understand why you should bury it when there could be no suspicion attached to you? I see now it was a foolish thing to do, but I did not wish to be mixed up in the case.
5914. Supposing you had poison next door—a great many people have poison in their house? My idea was to clear myself, and to be able to say there was no poison in the house. I did not want to be mixed up in the case.
5915. How could you be mixed up in it? It was my idea to bury it, and be able to say we had no poison in the house; so I did away with it. It was pink coloured, and not white.
5916. Sir Julian Salomons.] The Act requires it to be coloured? Yes.

5917.

5917. President.] In this place that it was in on the shelf what was there in front of it? A lot of odds and ends of all sorts. It was a cast-off corner, and I put it there so that it would not be taken any notice of. It was completely hidden.

5918. When did you miss it from there;—about when did you miss it from the wash-house? I should imagine about the end of June last, as near as I can possibly tell.

5919. Sir Julian Salomons.] I think you said it was only bought in October? No.

5920. When was it purchased? In February of last year.

5921. President.] How long after you first got it did you miss it;—about how many months after? Between three and four months as near as I can tell.

5922. Presumably then it was three or four months on the shelf in the washhouse? Yes.

5923. You found out from your wife that she had taken it away? Yes; she told me where she had put it.

5924. What sort of things were they that were on the shelf with it? Some boxes, and old candle sticks and old blacking-brushes—all sorts of old things.

5925. Would anybody have access to that shed? Yes.

5926. What sort of a shed was it? It was an old shed. Nobody would dream of looking for it there, nobody could get at it.

5927. Where is your house in respect to Dean's house? It is next door—absolutely next door.

5928. What divides the yards? A paling fence.

5929. Is there any means by which people could get through from one yard to the other? It is nearly a new fence.

5930. Is there a back lane? No; it is an open paddock at the back.

5931. Can you get into the yard without going through your house? Yes; there is a back gate at the end of the yard.

5932. Is that gate padlocked up? Yes, every night regularly.

5933. Is it open in the day-time? Yes.

5934. Have the Dean's a gate similar to your gate? Yes; similar in every respect—a fac-simile.

5935. Are they detached houses? No.

5936. Then they are built together? Yes; they are twin houses. They are built in the terrace idea.

5937. How many houses are there? Only two of them.

5938. This yard fence would run then right away from the middle of the houses? Yes.

5939. Sir Julian Salomons.] When this poison came from Elliott Brothers had it a label with "Poison" on it? Yes.

5940. Mr. Pilcher.] Whilst this poison was in the back shed you say it was in an old lumber corner? Yes.

5941. You put it there so as it would not be interfered with? Yes.

5942. Could you notice anything in front or around it being disturbed? When I noticed it it had gone. I noticed that it had been removed.

5943. Did you notice whether anything around it was disturbed? No.

5944. The only thing you missed was the bottle? Yes.

5945. When your wife took it away you noticed it had gone? Yes.

5946. On that occasion you did? Yes.

5947. And then only? Yes.

5948. President.] You did not know till your wife took it away who disturbed it? No.

5949. Do you remember the state the bottle was in? Yes, it was wrapped in newspaper.

5950. Was it a stoppered bottle or a corked bottle? It was a corked bottle.

5951. Did you notice if it was in the same state as when you put it there? No, sir.

5952. You did not notice that on the morning when you buried it? I noticed that the paper on it was all covered with dust.

5953. How did you come to bury this bottle? My wife said, "Alick you ought to bury this now," and I did. It was simply done. [Bottle produced.]

5954. Mr. Thompson has told us that you got the strychnine to kill a mangy dog;—is that so? Yes, sir.

5955. Do you know Mr. Thompson? Yes, he lives next door on the other side.

5956. Do you remember about a couple of months before March last you said something about "my trees ought to grow well, I have a dog buried there"? Yes, I remember making that remark; it was under the passion-fruit vine.

5957. How long had you buried the dog before you said that to Mr. Thompson? It might have been the next morning. I cannot tell.

5958. Had the dog been recently buried? Yes, within a few days.

5959. Did you hear from anybody when you heard something about poison and you spoke to Dean about it when he came home on his bicycle? No, sir.

5960. Did you hear what the poison was? No, sir.

5961. Then why did you bury this strychnine? Because we did not now know what was going to happen. My wife thought from what Mrs. Dean had said that the bottle had been taken to the doctor. Mrs. Seymour had told Mrs. Dean this. She was only in the house one night. She did not know it on the night previous, but she knew it on the Tuesday morning. Of course I did not know that the bottle had gone to the doctor.

5962. Mr. Pilcher.] What did you say about her not knowing it on the night previous? Mrs. Dean did not know it on the Monday night. She knew it on the Tuesday morning.

5963. You did not know that the bottle had gone to the doctor? No; I did not know till the Tuesday morning.

5964. Mrs. Seymour was there on the Monday night? Yes; she came late at night.

5965. Did you see her come? Yes; I went to the French window, and I heard her calling out "Mary, Mary."

5966. What time did she come? About midnight.

5967. Did you tell her anything? Yes; Mrs. Weynton told her that the door was open and to go in.

5968. Do you remember last Christmas? Yes.

5969. Can you recall about how long before last Christmas you missed the poison from the washhouse, and

and your wife telling you that she had taken it into the bedroom upstairs? It is since Christmas that my wife told me she had taken it up to the bedroom. It was not got till the end of February.

5970. February of what year? Last year.

5971. Your idea is then that the stuff was bought in February last year? Yes.

5972. Fifteen months ago? Yes.

5973. You said you were under the impression that it remained three or four months in the shed before your wife took it away? Yes.

5974. That would make it then about June last year? Yes, as far as my memory serves me.

5975. Can you recall to mind, as far as you remember, how long it was before last Christmas that you missed the bottle—was it three or four months ago that your wife told you that she had taken it and put it in the bedroom upstairs? It is since last Christmas.

5976. President.] Your boy that is at Elliott Brothers might remember. How old is your boy? About 18.

5977. How long before you buried the dog did you get this strychnine? I got the poison in the afternoon and buried the dog at night.

5978. Sir Julian Salomons.] You remember last Christmas? Yes, I do.

5979. Is it since last Christmas that you got the poison? It was two months after June—I asked my wife.

5980. President.] You remember playing cricket on the Monday afternoon. You know the Tuesday morning that you saw Dean coming home and told him about the poison. Were you playing cricket the afternoon before that, on the Monday? No.

5981. You were not? No; my youngest boy was playing cricket.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Catherine Weynton sworn and examined:—

Mrs.
C. Weynton.
31 May, 1895.

5982. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are the wife of Mr. Weynton who has just been examined? Yes.

5983. And reside at "Clifton," North Sydney? Yes.

5984. Your husband asked your son to bring home some poison to poison a dog? Yes.

5985. Was it on the same night you poisoned the dog? Certainly.

5986. You remember last Christmas? Yes.

5987. How long was it before last Christmas that the dog was poisoned,—how many months ago? It was eight or nine, or ten months before.

5988. You have always said it was two or three months before? Oh no, it was many months before. The dog was poisoned last April twelvemonth.

5989. Mrs. Weynton, is not that your signature,—look there (handing witness deposition). Do you remember you made this statement on the 25th of April this year, and said then, "My husband asked my son in the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers to bring home some poison about two or three months before Christmas. The poison was kept in a bottle in the washhouse rolled up in paper for some considerable time, but how long I cannot say. It was then removed to my bedroom, where it was kept out of sight and reach, being placed on the top of the fixture that was used as a wardrobe?" I can fix the date since I made that statement, because my son's holidays were coming on in June, and it was a month or six weeks before we poisoned the dog that the poison was taken down to Mr. Johnson.

5990. Did you not state that it was two or three months before Christmas? Yes.

5991. Then that is a mistake? Yes.

5992. What is the name of the son that brought it? Alexander.

5993. Did he not say the same as you did? Yes.

5994. Then you both fell into that mistake? Yes.

5995. You both said that it was two or three months before Christmas? Yes.

5996. Didn't Alexander know when he brought it home? No, he is not quite sure. He remembers now from my youngest son that it was about the time the poison was taken to Mr. Johnson. It is a mistake in the deposition about the time. It was in April. I am certain it is in the beginning of the year.

5997. You have been discussing it in the family? Yes.

5998. You did not make any note of it? No.

5999. How long after that dog was poisoned, which you say was on the same night, did that strychnine remain in the washhouse in your yard? About three or four months to the best of my memory.

6000. That is an open washhouse is it not? Yes.

6001. Anybody who went into your yard could have taken it? Yes.

6002. It is not locked up? No.

6003. The gate is ordinarily open? Yes; but we always keep it locked at night.

6004. When did you hear anything about poison or anything of that kind with regard to Mrs. Dean's illness? We put our own construction on what she told me on the Monday night.

6005. Your husband said that it was early on the Tuesday morning when you buried it? Yes; we buried the poison at about a quarter to 7.

6006. You and your husband were both there? Yes.

6007. And you buried it in the garden? Yes.

6008. Why did you bury that poison? Because we did not want to be mixed up with anything. We had an idea, from what Mrs. Dean said the night before, that there would be trouble, and we thought it better to have the poison out of the house.

6009. You drew a distinction between the house and the garden? Yes.

6010. You did not tell the police anything about it? No, I did not.

6011. You knew of the excitement after Dean was convicted? Yes.

6012. You were at the court when he was tried? Yes.

6013. You knew about this question of arsenic and strychnine? Yes.

6014. And that the difficult question to answer was where it could have been got? Yes.

6015. Then why did not you state to the police that the poison was buried in your yard? The questions did not lead up to it.

6016. Did you ever tell the police anything about it? No.

Mrs.
C. Weynton.
31 May, 1895

6017. Did you ever tell the Crown Prosecutor? No, I did not.
6018. Before you were subpoenaed at the trial the police were at your house? Yes.
6019. And asked you if you had any poison, and you told them so? Yes.
6020. Even when subpoenaed you were asked about poison, and you said you did not have any? I had no question asked me about it.
6021. Were you not asked if you knew anything more? No; I merely got the subpoena.
6022. You did not tell the police or the Crown that this strychnine was buried in your garden? No.
6023. Can you give me any reason why you did not? I had no reason.
6024. How long was this poison in the washhouse—how many months was it there? For about four months, and then I put it on my wardrobe for further security.
6025. How long had it been in your wardrobe before you buried it? Until the morning of the 5th March, and when taken down it was all covered with dust.
6026. Why did not you leave it where it was? Because if we were asked the question we wanted to be able to say that there was no poison in the house.
6027. You and your husband thought that was the best course to take? Yes.
6028. Although you had buried it in the garden? Yes.
6029. How long had it been in your house then? Eight or nine months up to Christmas from February or March.
6030. Your original statement that it was two or three months before Christmas was not correct? No; it was not correct.
6031. You say that is a mistake? Yes; it is a mistake.
6032. Where did you make your statement? At my house.
6033. Where was your husband? My husband was in Sydney.
6034. Where did your son make his statement? My son made his statement in Sydney, independent of mine.
6035. What is that son's name? His name is Alexander.
6036. Is that the son that got the poison? Yes.
6037. Have you ever at any time said a word to the police about your son getting poison, or your husband, or anybody else? No, sir.
6038. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you remember who it was that took the poison that your husband gave to Mr. Johnson? It was my youngest son, Russell.
6039. Was he the son whom you referred to a moment ago to recall to your mind when he took it to Mr. Johnson? Yes.
6040. That was in reference to the June holidays? Yes.
6041. The poison was in your possession before any was sent to Mr. Johnson? Yes.
6042. A month or six weeks before? Yes, sir.
6043. Can you tell me whether the Deans or Mrs. Seymour or any person connected with that house ever had access to your premises? Never. Mrs. Dean brought her baby to the door on one occasion, and said the baby was not well. I offered to give the baby a bath, and that was the only time she was over my threshold.
6044. Was that the only time that she was on your premises? Yes.
6045. Has George Dean ever been on your premises? Never.
6046. Has Mrs. Seymour ever been on your premises? Never.
6047. You say that from what your youngest son says it must have been about June when you got that poison? It was before June, the June holidays were just coming on. I remember Mr. Johnson saying, "I suppose you will be coming across the bridge during your holidays."
6048. Your belief is that it was taken away about the end of June to your bedroom? Yes.
6049. And it remained in your bedroom until the 5th of March? Yes; I am positive of that.
6050. And it was not disturbed? No; it was not disturbed.
6051. You are positive about this? Yes; I am positive.
6052. Can you remember the circumstance of the Deans coming to live next door to you? Only, I think they came towards the end of the winter—in August or September.
6053. You remember the fact of their coming? Yes.
6054. Can you tell me from memory whether that bottle had been removed to your bedroom before they came to live there? Yes; I am quite certain of that.
6055. Sir Julian Salomons.] Which son is that you are speaking of about the holidays? The youngest one, my son Russell.
6056. How many are there? Three, and that is the youngest.
6057. Which son used to play cricket with Dean? They all played cricket just outside the back.
6058. Where did your sons play cricket? On the paddock at the back of our house.
6059. Your three sons used to play cricket there? Yes.
6060. How old is the youngest? About 15; there are other boys. The eldest is 18 and the others 16 and 15.
6061. Those are the sons that played cricket? Yes.
6062. Neither Mrs. Dean nor Mrs. Seymour, you say, were ever in your house? No; except on the Saturday morning, and then she just came in the door to ask me about the baby.
6063. Neither Mrs. Dean nor Mrs. Seymour were ever in your house? No.
6064. Was it Sunday morning or Saturday morning that Mrs. Dean came? Saturday morning.
6065. What time did she come? At half-past 7 in the morning.
6066. Did she appear to be ill? No. I went back and offered to bath the baby. I said, "It will do the baby good to have a bath." It had a sort of convulsive fit, and I thought a bath would do it good.
6067. Did you give it a bath? We did it together.
6068. How long did that take? About a quarter of an hour.
6069. Did Mrs. Dean seem well at that time? Yes; in her usual health.
6070. How long did you remain? About a quarter of an hour; that would be about a quarter to 8.
6071. Did the baby seem all right? It seemed much better. An hour after I saw Mr. Dean and I said that I thought the baby was all right.
6072. Up till a quarter to 8 did you see anything to indicate anything wrong with Mrs. Dean? No.
6073. Did you see her again that day? No, not till the Monday night.

Mrs
C. Weynton,
31 May, 1895.

6074. Dr. Manning.] Was Mrs. Dean nursing the baby at that time? I understood that she was doing so.
 6075. Did you see her nursing it? I understood she was.
 6076. Did she tell you that she had taken any lemon-syrup that morning? No, nothing about it.
 6077. What time did you go there on the 4th of March? Between half-past 5 and 6 o'clock.
 6078. How long were you there? Three-quarters of an hour.
 6079. Were you there again? Yes; I took the baby's food and made it at my own house, and went back with it and stayed with her till 10 o'clock.
 6080. You were there then when the doctor came? Yes.
 6081. You were there several hours? Yes.
 6082. What did she tell you about the lemon-syrup? She said she had taken some lemon syrup on Saturday, and that it had a very disagreeable taste, and she took a little later on, and it still had that taste, and that it made her feel sick. I said, "Why did you do so? Why didn't you tell the doctor?" She said, "The bottle is at the chemist's being examined, and we shall know more about it to-morrow."
 6083. Did she say she had any suspicion? No.
 6084. President.] She took the syrup between 7 and half-past 7 on Saturday morning, so that it was after she took it she felt sick? Yes, it was immediately after.
 6085. Dr. Manning.] You told your husband when you got home what Mrs. Dean had told you? Yes, on the Monday night when I came home I told my husband.
 6086. President.] On the Monday what did she tell you about the syrup? She told me that it had a disagreeable taste.
 6087. Did she tell you anything about poison at all? No.
 6088. Did you tell your husband anything about poison? No.
 6089. Can you understand how your husband said anything about poison to Dean on the Tuesday morning;—was that before Dean came home? She called me to go to the baby on Tuesday morning the first thing. Before Dean came home I went in and took baby, and brought it down, and warmed its bottle of food, and I asked Mr. Weynton for a jug of hot water over the fence to stand the bottle in. She told me that the doctor had the bottle when I went upstairs, and I told Mr. Weynton that the doctor had the bottle just as she told me, and we put our own construction upon it—that there was something more in it.
 6090. Sir Julian Salomons.] What time was that? Just before Dean came home on the Tuesday morning.
 6091. That was before you buried the poison? No, after.
 6092. Did you suspect poisoning? We thought it might be so.
 6093. You put two and two together? Yes.
 6094. And you thought it might be poison? Yes.
 6095. Dr. Jones.] Why should you think it might be poison;—was it because of Mrs. Dean telling you about the lemon-syrup, saying that it had a disagreeable taste? Yes; and that there was some white powder at the bottom. I thought it was strange that anything should make her sick. She said she felt sick, and seeing the sediment at the bottom. It is not usual to have a sediment.
 6096. Sir Julian Salomons.] Why should you think about poisoning when this strychnine is pink;—what put poison into your mind? We only put our own construction on it.
 6097. You can give no other reason? No, sir.
 6098. You say you left the house a little after 10 on that evening? Yes, sir.
 6099. You cannot fix the time any nearer? It was about 10 o'clock when I left the house on the Monday evening.
 6100. The prisoner Dean had not come back? Yes; I waited in the house till he came back, and when he came back he said, "I will go upstairs and give her the medicine."
 6101. President.] Did you see the medicine? No, sir.
 6102. On the Monday night did Mrs. Dean say anything to you about porter? No.
 6103. She did not complain to you about any porter? No.
 6104. She did not say anything about it? No.
 6105. Did she say anything to you about cocoa? No.
 6106. Did she say anything to you on the Monday night to lead you to believe that she had had anything administered to her? No; only what she had taken herself.
 6107. That was all that you heard then? Yes.
 6108. How long were you there? Nearly three hours.
 6109. She never told you anything, but about the lemon-syrup? No.
 6110. Did she mention anybody with reference to that lemon-syrup? No.
 6111. You said the baby seemed to be convulsed? Yes; I do not understand a convulsive fit. The little thing's eyes were sunken, and I said to Mrs. Dean that it might be a sort of convulsive fit. I knew a warm bath would be quite safe in any case.
 6112. Dr. Jones.] Were the baby's limbs at all stiff? It laid very quiet, but it revived wonderfully after the warm bath.
 6113. You believe that Mrs. Dean was suckling the baby? Yes; I think so.
 6114. You believe that she had been suckling it until Monday? Yes; I think so.
 6115. They only commenced with the artificial food on Monday? Yes.
 6116. Did Mrs. Dean say anything in your presence about the tea or cocoa? No.
 6117. Mr. Pilcher.] Was the child eating or munching biscuits? I cannot say.
 6118. Dr. Jones.] Whilst you were in the house on Monday did you notice Mrs. Dean vomiting at any time? No, I did not; she said she had been vomiting.
 6119. From what you saw of her state there was no outward sign of illness? No.
 6120. She made no complaint to you of anything at all on the Monday night? She said early in the evening that she had been vomiting during the day.
 6121. Did she give you any reasons for this? No.
 6122. Did you ask her what would make her vomit? No.
 6123. What time did she say that she was vomiting? About a quarter to 6 in the evening.
 6124. You were there before tea and after tea? Yes; I went into my own home to make the baby's tea.
 6125. When was she vomiting? During the Monday, she said.
 6126. What time did Dean go for the doctor? He went before tea.
 6127. Before you came to this conclusion about the poisoning you had heard these statements from her that you have mentioned? Yes.

6128. Mr. Pilcher.] Whilst you were there on the Monday night did Mrs. Dean tell the doctor about the syrup? No.
6129. Whilst you were there did she tell him anything about the tea, or the cocoa, or the porter? No.
6130. Not one word? No, sir.
6131. Whether she had been vomiting you could not say? No.
6132. From your knowledge of them can you say if they were clean and tidy people? As far as I know they were. It never struck me that it was a dirty house at all.
6133. Was it a well-kept house? Yes; that was my impression.
6134. Was the bed-room neat and tidy on the Monday night? Things were a little tossed about because Mr. Dean was there all day. I attributed that to the circumstance of there being no female about the house.
6135. Sir Julian Salomons.] You say you were there before tea? Yes; at about a quarter to 6 o'clock.
6136. How long did you stay there then? Till about half-past 6.
6137. Was it then that Mrs. Dean complained about the vomiting? Yes; she said she had been ill and sick and vomiting through the day.
6138. Where was she then? In bed.
6139. Did you leave her in bed? Yes.
6140. What time did you go back? I went back about 7 o'clock.
6141. Was it at this second interview you heard about the bottle being sent to the doctor? Yes.
6142. You stayed till after 10 and then went home? Yes.
6143. Was your husband at home when you came home? Yes.
6144. And you told him your suspicions? Yes; I told him what Mrs. Dean had said.
6145. Did you not bury the poison because you thought that this was a case of poisoning? We had some such idea as that.
6146. President.] When did Mrs. Dean mention to you about the bottle? After the doctor had been. That is why I scolded her and said to her, "Why didn't you tell the doctor?"
6147. Did she tell you about anything else? No.
6148. Anything about tea, porter, or cocoa? No.
6149. Mr. Pilcher.] She didn't tell the doctor either? No; she said she had nothing but tea and toast from Saturday.
6150. President.] Was she very much prostrated? Yes; she did look weak.
6151. Was she well enough to get anything for herself? No; I do not think so, although she got out of bed early the next morning.
6152. That evening was she prostrated? I did not think so.
6153. Was she too prostrated to get anything for herself? I do not think so.
6154. Before tea could she have got anything for herself? She looked really ill. She looked out of sorts. She looked completely out of sorts on the Monday night.
6155. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you know that she was so ill that her husband had to support her in the bed,—do you know that? No; I do not.
6156. Mr. Pilcher.] She told the doctor that she had nothing but tea and toast since the Saturday? Yes; that is all.
6157. Did she make any complaint to the doctor? No.
6158. President.] Do you know her very well? No.
6159. Is that the first time you were at all familiar or intimate with her? When the baby was born—when it was about three weeks old—they sent in for me, and she said that she had been vomiting and ill all day. She did not say what made her ill, but that both she and Mrs. Seymour had been vomiting all day. That was before she was out of bed, and I have not been in the house since till the 3rd March.
6160. Sir Julian Salomons.] And she was never in your house? No.
6161. Did they tell you any reason for their being ill then? No.
6162. Did they give you any reason for being ill when the baby was three weeks old? No; nothing except that they had been ill all day long.
6163. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you see Mrs. Dean actually vomiting? No; I did not.
6164. During all the time they were living there, you were living next door? Yes.
6165. When the baby was some weeks old they sent for you? Yes.
6166. And you lent them assistance? Yes.
6167. And afterwards, later on, in March, you told us what you did? Yes.
6168. And you did what one married woman would do for another? Yes.
6169. Were your associations good and kindly? Yes.
6170. Anything that you did was what one would do in a case of sickness? Yes.
6171. What one married woman would do for another? Yes.
6172. President.] She told you she had been sick and vomiting on the Monday? Yes.
6173. Did she tell you whether she had been ill in any other way? No.
6174. Did you see an illness of any other kind? No.
6175. Anything about the room at all? No.
6176. Was the baby at home? I had the baby.
6177. What became of the baby on the Monday? I knew nothing of it till I was sent for.
6178. Did you take the baby on the Monday night? No; I attended to it.

[Witness withdrew.]

Ethel Adye sworn and examined:—

6179. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you live with your mother, at North Sydney? Yes.
6180. What is the street and number? I live in Miller-street, North Sydney.
6181. Has your mother got a place of business at the North Shore? Yes, a shop.
6182. About how far is your mother's shop from where Dean lived? Not many steps.
6183. Suppose you were in the street outside this building, how far would your shop be from the Government House gates? About as far from Government House gates as to the entrance to this building.

642—R

6184.

*Mrs.
C. Weynton.*
31 May, 1895.

Ethel Adye.
31 May, 1895.

- Ethel Adye 6184. It would be about that distance? Yes, about that distance.
 6185. You know Mrs. Dean? Yes.
 31 May, 1895. 6186. Do you remember Saturday, the 2nd March? Yes.
 6187. Did you see Mrs. Dean at all that day? Yes; I saw her about 2 o'clock on that day.
 6188. You saw her in the afternoon? Yes; she came to my house.
 6189. Had she anything with her when she came? Yes; she had a bottle.
 6190. Was that a syrup bottle? Yes; it was a syrup bottle.
 6191. Had she anything else? No.
 6192. Was she carrying anything? No.
 6193. What did she do with the bottle? She came through our house, and took the bottle to my mother.
 6194. Did she leave the bottle with your mother? She asked my mother to taste it.
 6195. Did she leave the bottle with your mother? Yes, and myself and Mrs. Walke.
 6196. Did she go away and leave the bottle? Yes; she went back to her home and got her baby. She brought the baby back with her.
 6197. About what time was she away? She was away about five or ten minutes, and came back with the baby.
 6198. Did she come into your house with the baby? Yes, and gave the baby to me to mind.
 6199. How long did she remain in your house? Not many minutes.
 6200. Did she nurse the baby at that time? No, not then.
 6201. Dr. Jones.] You mean suckle the baby;—she did not suckle it then? No; not then.
 6202. Mr. Pilcher.] Did she go away with the syrup bottle? Yes; she went away alone.
 6203. Did she come back? Yes; she came back at 4 or 5 o'clock.
 6204. Had you charge of the baby all that time? Yes.
 6205. When she came back she suckled the baby? Yes.
 6206. Did she suckle the baby in your presence? Yes.
 6207. You are quite sure of that? Yes.
 6208. This is on Saturday, the 2nd of March? Yes.
 6209. How long did she remain suckling the baby? She remained about a quarter of half an hour.
 6210. What did she do then? She left to go home.
 6211. When did you see her next? On the Monday following.
 6212. At what time? About 11 o'clock.
 6213. Eleven o'clock in the morning? Yes.
 6214. Where did you see her? She came to my house.
 6215. Had she the baby with her then—on the Monday morning? No.
 6216. President.] Are you sure about that? Yes.
 6217. Mr. Pilcher.] Did she tell you who was minding her house? She said that a Mr. Hans was there.
 6218. Did you know Hans? No; she told me a man named Hans was minding her house.
 6219. That is on the Monday morning? Yes.
 6220. How long did she remain at your house on the Monday morning? She remained about five or ten minutes.
 6221. Who was there? My mother and myself.
 6222. Anybody else? No; no one else. She came for a bottle of soda-water.
 6223. Did she get the soda-water? No; mother hadn't any; mother said she would send it down later in the day.
 6224. Did you see any more of her that day? Yes; I saw her at 1 o'clock.
 6225. Where did you see her? I saw her at home, in bed.
 6226. Was this at 1 o'clock? Yes.
 6227. Where was the baby? The baby was downstairs.
 6228. Who had charge of the baby? Mr. Dean said it was downstairs. I did not see it on that occasion.
 6229. When you went down at 1 o'clock what did you go for? I took some sago that Mr. Dean had brought up for mother to make.
 6230. Who took the soda-water down? A little girl.
 6231. President.] Who was the sago for? For Mrs. Dean.
 6232. And your mother made it? Yes.
 6233. And you took it back? Yes.
 6234. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you go anywhere for Mrs. Dean on the Tuesday morning? She wanted me to go for a syringe to Mrs. Lees, "Brunswick Cottage," M'Mahon's Point.
 6235. Did you go for the syringe? A man next door was going that way and he said he would call.
 6236. Who was that? Mr. Walke.
 6237. Was Mrs. Thompson there? Yes; she was washing the baby.
 6238. You knew Mrs. Dean? Yes; just to come in for a chat.
 6239. Did you go to her house for a chat? Yes.
 6240. And you went to her house? Yes.
 6241. Were you often at Dean's house? Yes; about eight times altogether.
 6242. Up to the time of Mrs. Dean's illness? Yes; about eight times.
 6243. Did Dean go to your house? No; only Mrs. Dean.
 6244. From what you saw of Dean's house, was it comfortable? Yes; it was a happy home.
 6245. Can you say if they were clean people? Yes; they were clean people.
 6246. You would say they were clean people? Yes.
 6247. From your observation of Dean and his wife, what would you say of Dean? That he was a good husband.
 6248. Did he appear kind? Yes; very kind.
 6249. As far as you could judge, did there appear to be any ill-feeling? None that I saw.
 6250. Do you remember after the baby was born? Yes.
 6251. Did you ever see Dean in connection with the baby? Yes; I have seen him nursing it.
 6252. Could you form any opinion of him from what you saw? Yes; I thought he was a kind father.
 6253. Did he appear fond of the baby? Yes; very fond of the baby.
 6254. That is the conclusion you arrived at from what you saw? Yes; of course.
 6255. Sir Julian Solomon.] How old are you? Nineteen.

6256. Is it true that Dean was never in your father's house? He might have come in for a box of tacks, but he was never inside my house. Ethel Adye.
6257. Did you not know that your father and Dean were very intimate? I cannot tell you. 31 May, 1895.
6258. Did you not know that your father saw Mr. Meagher before this case began? I cannot say; I do not know.
6259. You swear that on Monday Mrs. Dean came to your place with the baby? No; not on the Monday, it was on the Saturday she came.
6260. On your oath will you swear that Mrs. Dean was at your place on the Monday? Yes; I will, on the 4th March.
6261. What day is it to-day? Friday, the 31st May.
6262. How do you know that was on the 4th of March? Because it was two days after she brought the bottle of lemon-syrup.
6263. Did you make any note of it? No; I did not.
6264. Where did you go to make this statement? To Mr. Meagher's office.
6265. When did you go to Mr. Meagher's office? Yesterday.
6266. Who mentioned to you about the Monday? I told him of my own free will.
6267. No question was asked you? No; I told him of my own free will.
6268. You were examined at the trial? Yes.
6269. Why did you not tell it then of your own free will? Because I was not asked.
6270. Why did you not tell it to the police? Because they did not ask me.
6271. Will you not admit that you were wrong in stating that Mrs. Dean was at your house on the Monday;—that Mrs. Dean was not at your house on the Monday? No.
6272. What hour was she there? At 11 o'clock.
6273. Did you make any note of it? No.
6274. How was she dressed? She wore a loose wrapper.
6275. What kind of hat? She had no hat; only a loose wrapper.
6276. She was at your house at 11 o'clock? Yes.
6277. How do you remember such a lot about this? Because I was going out at the time.
6278. How could that make you remember? Because I was getting dressed.
6279. Where were you getting dressed? In the kitchen. I was doing my hair.
6280. And that was the reason you remembered it;—you swear that? Yes.
6281. You can give no other reason of any kind? No.
6282. Don't you know, as well as you know that your name is Ethel Adye, that the truth is that Mrs. Dean was never out of her house on that day? It is not the truth; she was out of her house. She came and laid down on our sofa.
6283. How long was she on the sofa? For one or two minutes.
6284. Where was the sofa? In the kitchen.
6285. Who was there? My mother.
6286. You and your mother were there? Yes.
6287. Not your father? No.
6288. Only you and your mother? Yes.
6289. Was Mrs. Dean ill? She said she felt faint.
6290. Did you give her anything? No.
6291. Where is your mother now? She is in the witness-room outside.
6292. Have you spoken to your mother about this matter? No.
6293. You have never spoken to her? No.
6294. Will you swear that you have never spoken to her? We spoke to one another about it at the time.
6295. At what time? On the Monday, but not since; on Monday, the 4th March.
6296. Not since? No.
6297. Is that true? Yes, it is true.
6298. That you and your mother have never spoken since about Mrs. Dean being at your house on the Monday? No.
6299. Will you swear that? Yes.
6300. Your mother is in the witness-room outside? Yes.
6301. Did you and your mother come here together? Yes.
6302. Do you know what your mother has come here to prove? No.
6303. And your mother does not know what you have come here to prove? No.
6304. And the only conversation you had about this matter was on Monday, the 4th March? Yes, that is all.
6305. Did you come in with your mother? Yes.
6306. And you and your mother have never talked about this matter? No.
6307. You are living at home? Yes.
6308. When did you make this statement to Messrs. Crick and Meagher? Yesterday.
6309. Did you go alone? No, I went with my mother.
6310. Did you start together? We came here first, and then went to Crick and Meagher's together.
6311. And you swear that you have never spoken together about the evidence you were going to give? Yes.
6312. Mr. Pilcher.] You never told your mother and your mother never told you? No.
6313. President.] Are you sure that Mrs. Dean was at your place on the Monday? Yes, at 11 o'clock. I went down to her place at 1 o'clock and took some sago.
6314. Where was Mr. Dean when you went down at 1 o'clock? Mr. Dean was at home. Mrs. Dean was in bed. He came up with a mutton chop and some bread. She said she could not eat the sago, and could not eat the mutton chop. Mr. Dean took it down stairs, and then I left.
6315. Did you see the sago made? It was made when I came home from Sydney, and I took it down about 1 o'clock.
6316. Dr. Jones.] You cannot give any reason why you did not discuss that matter of the Monday with your mother? No; we have never thought of it.
6317. President.] Did Mrs. Dean walk to your house on the Monday at 11 o'clock? Yes.

- Ethel Adye. 6318. Did she walk home again? Yes; before she went she said she felt faint, and mother told her to lie down on the sofa.
 31 May, 1895. 6319. She was actually sick? No, she was not sick.
 6320. Mr. Pilcher.] Not sick in your presence? No.
 6321. President.] How long was she at your place? About five minutes.
 6322. What did she come to your place for? She came for a bottle of sodawater.
 6323. And then she told you that Hans was in charge of her house? Yes.
 6324. What is this man's name? She called him Hans.
 6325. What is he? I do not know.

[Witnesses withdraw.]

Mrs. Bessie Adye sworn and examined:—

- Mrs. B. Adye. 6326. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you live pretty close to Dean's house in Miller-street, North Sydney? Yes.
 31 May, 1895. 6327. And that is your daughter who has just been examined? Yes.
 6328. You knew the Deaus? Yes.
 6329. And your daughter knew them also? Yes.
 6330. Do you remember early in March seeing Mrs. Dean? Yes.
 6331. Can you call to mind the days? Yes; it was on a Saturday she came to me.
 6332. What day of the month was it? It was on the 2nd of March.
 6333. Where did she come to? She came to my shop.
 6334. What time of the day did she come? About 2 o'clock in the afternoon.
 6335. Did she bring anything with her? Yes; a part of a bottle of lemon-syrup.
 6336. Who was present at the time? My daughter and Mrs. Walke and myself.
 6337. Did she do anything with the bottle of lemon-syrup? Yes; she asked me to taste it.
 6338. After that did she leave the bottle of lemon-syrup with you? Yes; she left it on the dining-room table.
 6339. Where did she go to then? To dress herself at her own house.
 6340. Did she come back? Yes; but I was not there when she came back.
 6341. Did you see her at all that day;—that is on the Saturday? Yes; at my house when she came back from down the town.
 6342. You mean down town on the Shore? Yes.
 6343. Was there a baby there when you came back? Yes; she left the baby.
 6344. When she came back you were not there—whether she brought her baby back you cannot say, but the baby was there? Yes.
 6345. Were you back at your house before she returned from town? Yes.
 6346. And when you came back the baby was there? Yes.
 6347. What did she do to the baby? She gave the baby a drink.
 6348. You are quite sure of that? Yes, quite sure.
 6349. When she first came with the bottle of syrup, and she went back and dressed, and you went out and she went out, about what time did she suckle the baby? About half-past 4 or 5.
 6350. She came first about 2 o'clock, and went back to her house to dress herself, and you went out and were not at home when Mrs. Dean returned; but you found on your return Mrs. Dean's baby in your house, and afterwards Mrs. Dean came in and suckled the baby? Yes.
 6351. She remained some time, and then went away? Yes; she said she had a bad headache, and I made her a cup of tea.
 6352. Did she have the tea? She drank very little of it.
 6353. What took place then? She went home with the baby.
 6354. Did you see her again that day? No; I saw her again on the Sunday.
 6355. Did you go to her house? Yes; on the Sunday Mr. Dean came up and said that she was ill, and asked me would I go and see her.
 6356. Did you go? Yes.
 6357. Was she in bed? Yes.
 6358. About what time was this? It was about half-past 10 o'clock.
 6359. When she was in bed did she look ill? No, she didn't look ill. She said she had a very bad headache.
 6360. Is that all she complained of? Yes.
 6361. Whilst you were in the house on that Sunday when you went down to see her did anything occur? She had a cup of tea and some toast beside the bed. She said, "Mr. Dean had brought it up to her." I said, "Why don't you drink it, it will do your head good?" She said, "I did not like it; I got out of bed and put part of it away." She asked me to taste it.
 6362. Did she say where she put it? No; nor what she put it in.
 6363. President.] Did she point out a tumbler under the chest of drawers? No, sir.
 6364. Mr. Pilcher.] With reference to the cup of tea;—how full was it? It was about half full.
 6365. She told you that she did not like it? Yes.
 6366. That she got out of bed and put part of it away? Yes.
 6367. She didn't tell you where she put it? No.
 6368. She asked you to taste it? Yes.
 6369. Did you taste it? Yes.
 6370. Did you notice anything the matter with it? I detected nothing wrong with it.
 6371. Did you tell her so? Yes; I said, "Why did you not drink it?" and she said, "Because I do not like it." I said, "Oh, that is all right; why don't you drink it?"
 6372. Did you taste it? Yes; I took a mouthful of it.
 6373. President.] Did you see any cream of any kind, or any white stuff around the edges—anything white at all? No, sir.
 6374. You said it was all right? Yes.
 6375. Mr. Pilcher.] When you tasted that cup of tea was there any bitter taste about it;—had it any taste foreign to it whatever? No, none whatever.
 6376. Did you take a good mouthful of it? Yes.
 6377. And did you swallow it? Yes.

6378. And you were not ill? Oh, no.
6379. You are quite certain of that, Mrs. Adye? Yes, I am quite sure.
6380. At the time you are speaking of where was the baby? The baby was lying on the bed crying.
6381. Did you take the baby away? Yes, I took it away. I said, "I will take the baby away and make it comfortable."
6382. Did you take the baby away? Yes.
6383. And when you made it comfortable was it taken back to the Deans? Yes; when it was ready I took it back.
6384. When was that? On the Sunday, about 11 o'clock.
6385. About how long were you there at the first time—when you found Mrs. Dean in bed? I was there a quarter of an hour or ten minutes; I was not there many minutes.
6386. When you went back with the baby where was Mrs. Dean? She was lying in bed.
6387. When you saw her did she appear to be ill? No; she appeared to be just the same as when I left. She looked just the same. She had a colour in her face.
6388. Did she appear at all different to what you were accustomed to see her? No; she appeared about the same as usual. She complained of a bad headache. I suggested to her to lie in bed all day, and if she did so that she would feel better to-morrow.
6389. When was this, did you say? On Sunday morning; on Sunday about 11 o'clock in the morning.
6390. Did you see any more of her on that Sunday? Yes, I saw her about 4-30 in the afternoon.
6391. Was she in bed then? Yes, she was in bed.
6392. How did she appear then? She appeared much about the same; she said she was about the same, when I asked her.
6393. On the Monday morning did you see her? Yes; she came up to my shop.
6394. On Monday morning, the 4th of March? Yes.
6395. About what time did she come? About 11 o'clock in the morning.
6396. What did she come for? She came for a bottle of soda-water.
6397. Had you any? No.
6398. How long did she stay at your shop? She stayed about 10 minutes, a few minutes.
6399. Did you tell her anything about the soda-water? Yes, I said "The man will be here soon, and when he comes I will send it down to you."
6400. Did you send some soda-water down? Yes, I sent some down by the little girl, next door. I sent four bottles.
6401. Did Dean come to your place? Yes, he brought some sago to me and asked me to make it for his wife.
6402. Did you make it? Yes.
6403. Did you send the sago down? Yes, I sent it down by my daughter.
6404. About what time was it that you sent it down? Between 12 and 1 o'clock. I cannot say exactly.
6405. About what time did Dean bring this sago to your place? He brought it about 12 o'clock.
6406. Did you keep it any length of time? No, I made it directly he brought it, and said that when my daughter came in that I would send it down to Mrs. Dean. My daughter came in a few minutes afterwards.
6407. Did you send your daughter down with it? Yes.
6408. You say you saw Mrs. Dean about 11 o'clock on the Monday morning when she came for the soda-water? Yes.
6409. And how long did she stay? She stayed for a few minutes.
6410. Do you remember her saying anything? Yes; she said she felt faint, and I said to her, "Lie down on the sofa, it might pass away." She laid down on the sofa for a minute or two and then got up and went away home.
6411. Now, on the Saturday; when you saw her on the Saturday, when she came with the lemon-syrup bottle, what state of health did she appear to be in? She appeared to be quite well; as far as I could judge, quite well.
6412. On the Sunday she looked all right too, but complained of a headache? Yes.
6413. And on the Monday she complained of feeling faint? Yes.
6414. Did you see her again on the Monday? No.
6415. Did you see her again on the Tuesday? No.
6416. Did you see her on the Wednesday? Yes, I went down to ask how she was on the Wednesday.
6417. About what time did you go down? At about half-past 10 o'clock.
6418. Was Mrs. Seymour there when you went down? Yes.
6419. Did you see Mrs. Dean? Yes.
6420. Was Mrs. Dean in bed when you were there? Yes.
6421. You are sure Mrs. Seymour was there? Yes.
6422. You were not there on the Tuesday? No, I did not see her on the Tuesday.
6423. You say you did not see Mrs. Dean on the Tuesday? No, sir.
6424. What day was it that you took the baby home? I took it home on the Sunday to wash it and make it comfortable.
6425. Did you take the baby again on the Tuesday? No; my daughter went down on the Tuesday and brought the baby back with her, and I had it at my place all day.
6426. Sometime on Tuesday did Mrs. Seymour come to your shop? Yes; she came after the baby.
6427. What time was this? It was about half-past 5 in the afternoon she came for the baby.
6428. Did she say what she was going to do with the baby? She said she had come to take it home to give it a drink; that May's breasts were very hard and she wanted the baby to have a drink.
6429. Do you remember her giving any particular reason? She said, "It must come and have a drink. We do not want her to get in the family-way again." That she did not want the milk to dry up.
6430. Mrs. Seymour said that to you at half-past 5 on the Tuesday? Yes.
6431. You were not at Mrs. Dean's on the Tuesday? No.
6432. You made a statement to Messrs. Crick and Meagher—to Mr. Meagher;—what day was it that you made that statement? Yesterday.
6433. Did you make the statement at his office? Yes.
6434. You and your daughter went together to Mr. Meagher's office? Yes.

- Mrs. B. Adya. 6435. And you both gave statements there? Yes.
6436. President.] How long had the baby been at your house on the Tuesday? It was there all day.
- 31 May, 1895. 6437. Who brought the baby there? My daughter.
6438. Did she bring it in the morning? Yes.
6439. Mr. Pilcher.] You were called to give evidence at the trial immediately after Mrs. Dean, were you not? Well; I do not know.
6440. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were you at the Police Court, Mrs. Adya? Yes.
6441. Did you give evidence there? No, I did not give evidence at North Shore; I was not called.
6442. Were you summoned to appear there? Yes, I was told to come, but I was not called.
6443. Were you in the Court? No.
6444. Can you read? Yes; I can read.
6445. Do you read the papers? Yes; sometimes.
6446. You took a particular interest in this matter? No; not a particular interest.
6447. You took no particular interest in this charge of a man having poisoned his wife;—is that true? No; no particular interest.
6448. You were a witness at the trial and you read the newspapers, and yet you took no particular interest in this matter;—your daughter was a witness at the trial and at the Police Court, too, and you took no particular interest in this matter? No.
6449. Did not the police see you as to all the information you could give upon this matter;—did not Sergeant Brennan see you? Yes.
6450. Did you tell him one word of what you now swear to-day? Did you tell him one word about your drinking a mouthful of that tea? Yes; I told him I sipped the tea.
6451. Did you tell him about Mrs. Dean being at your house on the Monday? I cannot say.
6452. Did you believe that you did? I do not think I did.
6453. How many times did the sergeant see you? Only once.
6454. Did he not see you three or four times? I cannot remember.
6455. Who asked you to go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher? Some gentleman asked me; I don't know his name.
6456. Will you tell me who that was that asked you to go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher? I do not know what his name is; he asked me outside this room yesterday to go to Crick and Meagher's office.
6457. And when he asked you you went? Yes.
6458. Do you know what you went for? He asked me to go and sign a paper.
6459. Where was that paper? In Mr. Meagher's office.
6460. Did you make a statement? Yes.
6461. And they wrote down something? Yes.
6462. You didn't know what you were going there for? No.
6463. And your daughter did not know either? No.
6464. What took place while you were there? Somebody asked me questions.
6465. Was it that young gentleman at the corner of the table there? Yes.
6466. Who were there? This young gentleman, my daughter, and myself.
6467. Were you in the same room? Yes.
6468. Who was asked first? My daughter was asked first.
6469. You heard what your daughter said? Yes.
6470. And when she was finished you were asked questions? Yes.
6471. You heard what your daughter said, and your daughter heard what you said? Yes.
6472. Which of you was examined first? My daughter.
6473. What time did you go there? About 3 o'clock.
6474. Was that the first time you had been there? Yes.
6475. And the first time for your daughter too? Yes.
6476. Did you and your daughter talk over what you were going for? No; we had no conversation.
6477. Have you not been subpoenaed to appear here since the very first day of this Commission meeting here? Yes.
6478. About three weeks ago? Yes.
6479. Did you hear it stated three weeks ago that neither you nor your daughter were wanted here. You were here three weeks ago? Yes; about that time.
6480. Have you been coming every day since? Nearly every day.
6481. On this Monday that you have been speaking of when did you first see Mrs. Dean? I saw her on the Monday morning about 11 o'clock.
6482. Where did you see her? She came to my shop.
6483. Where was your daughter Ethel on the Monday morning when Mrs. Dean came to your house? My daughter was in the shop. Mrs. Dean came into my shop for some soda-water, and I told her that I had not any, but that when the man came I would send some down to her. When the man came I sent some down with a little girl who lives next door. Mrs. Dean went home afterwards.
6484. Where was Mrs. Dean at this time? She was standing in my shop waiting for the soda. She said she had a pain, and I said to her that she had better lay down. She lay down on my sofa in the kitchen, and shortly afterwards she got up and went away home.
6485. You will swear that you and your daughter have not spoken over this matter? Yes, sir; we have not spoken about it.
6486. You will swear that you have never spoken about it? Yes.
6487. Never? No.
6488. You swear that? Yes.
6489. Was that the first time you mentioned it at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
6490. You did not tell the gentleman who spoke to you here about this? No.
6491. He only asked you to go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
6492. Did he tell you what you were going there to prove? No.
6493. The first time that you and your daughter mentioned this matter was at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
6494. You mentioned it at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office for the first time? Yes.

Mrs. B. Adye.
31 May, 1895.

6495. How do you know it was on the Monday, Mrs. Adye? I am quite sure it was on the Monday.
 6496. What day of the month was it? It was on the 4th of March.
 6497. How is it that you remember that date so well? Nothing particularly.
 6498. You had no suspicion that anything was wrong at that time? No.
 6499. What day was it that you said she gave the baby the breast? On the Saturday.
 6500. The Saturday in last March? Yes.
 6501. How did you come to notice such a thing of that kind? I do not know.
 6502. You can give no reason why you noticed it? No, sir.
 6503. Will you not admit that you and your daughter had been talking this matter over before you went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? No.
 6504. You will not admit that you have spoken to one another about it? No.
 6505. You will still swear that that was the first time at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office that you spoke about it? Yes.
 6506. Your daughter did not know what you were going to swear? No.
 6507. And you did not know what your daughter was going to swear? No, sir.
 6508. Do you remember seeing Dean on that Monday? Yes; I saw him about 12 o'clock.
 6509. Where was his wife then? I do not know.
 6510. Was she at your place? No.
 6511. She had been to your place? Yes.
 6512. Did you tell Dean that she had been to your place? No.
 6513. Although you knew she was unwell and laid down on your sofa, you did not tell Dean? No.
 6514. Then why did not you tell him, Mrs. Adye? Because I did not think of it; I thought there was no necessity.
 6515. What was it you swore about Mrs. Dean being ill? She said she felt faint, and I told her to lie down on the sofa in my dining-room.
 6516. I thought you said the sofa in the kitchen? Well, it is all the same; the kitchen is the dining-room.
 6517. How long did she stay there? She stayed a few minutes only.
 6518. Then she got better and went away? Yes.
 6519. What time did she go away from your house? A few minutes after 11 o'clock.
 6520. And her husband came to your house at about 12 o'clock? Yes.
 6521. Why didn't you tell him a word about her illness, and having to lie down on your sofa? Because I did not think about it.
 6522. You say Dean brought some sago? Yes.
 6523. And when he brought the sago you never told him about his wife being ill? No.
 6524. Will you not admit that Mrs. Dean, his wife, was never in your place on the Monday? No, sir.
 6525. You never told the husband? No.
 6526. Then how do you remember it? I do not know any reason.
 6527. Did you say one word at the trial of what you are telling us to-day? No.
 6528. Did you say one word after the trial? I do not know.
 6529. Or before you read the papers? I have no time to read the papers.
 6530. Did you say one word at the Police Court or at the trial? I do not know that I did.
 6531. Why did you not? Because I had my duties to attend to.
 6532. Will you swear that you have never read the papers? No; I had not time to read them.
 6533. Will you swear that you did not know what Mrs. Dean had sworn? No.
 6534. Do you take any papers in? Yes; we are news-agents.
 6535. What newspapers do you take? All kinds of papers.
 6536. Are you agents for the Sydney Morning Herald? Yes.
 6537. And for the Daily Telegraph? Yes.
 6538. And the Star? Yes.
 6539. And you have never read the report of the trials in any of these papers? Sometimes I might take up a paper, but not very often.
 6540. Will you swear that you did not read the reports of this trial? Sometimes I did, but not very often. I might read a little of it.
 6541. Dean had been a friend of your husband's, had he not? No.
 6542. He did not know him? He might know him.
 6543. Has he been to your house? Yes; he has been there as a customer.
 6544. You saw, of course, that this was a very serious matter? Yes.
 6545. Your daughter was a witness at the trial, and yet you did not read the report of what had taken place at the trial? Sometimes I read a little, but not very often.
 6546. You did not follow it? No, sir.
 6547. Then I can take it from you that the first time you made a statement in the presence of each other was yesterday? Yes.
 6548. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you remember having spoken or stated anything of what you knew? Yes.
 6549. Do you remember this gentleman [pointing to Mr. Moodie] coming to your place the night before last? Yes.
 6550. Alderman Moodie? Yes.
 6551. Did he see you and your daughter? Yes.
 6552. Did he give you any directions? No; he never told me to go to Mr. Meagher's office, not that evening.
 6553. Was it the next morning that he told you? Yes; but I did not know his name.
 6554. You recognise the gentleman now? Yes; that is the same one.
 6555. You did not know his name? No.
 6556. Was the night before last the first time that your attention was drawn to this matter? Yes.
 6557. You remember Dean being arrested? Yes.
 6558. And the circumstances—the fact of his being arrested? Yes.
 6559. You say that you saw Mrs. Dean on the Monday? Yes.
 6560. But that you did not see her on the Tuesday? No.
 6561. And you saw her again on the Wednesday? Yes.

- Mrs. B. Adye. 6562. Can you recall whether that was the last day on which you saw her before he was arrested? Yes; the last time I saw her was on the Wednesday.
- 31 May, 1895. 6563. Can you recall what day of the week he was arrested? It was either on Thursday or Friday.
6564. It was within a day or two of his arrest that you saw him for the last time? Yes.
6565. It was all in that week? Yes.
6566. The next week the police came to you? Yes.
6567. And you were called to appear at the Police Court? Yes.
6568. But you were not called? No.
6569. Sir Julian Salomons.] You swear that you can remember Mrs. Dean at your house on the Monday? Yes.
6570. How is it, then, that you cannot remember when he was arrested? It was either on Thursday or Friday.
6571. You say that Mr. Moodie came to your house? Yes; that gentleman over there did.
6572. When did he come to your house? The night before last.
6573. Who was at your house at the time? My daughter and that gentleman and myself.
6574. What was the conversation about? He asked me a few questions.
6575. What questions did he ask you;—did he not ask you the very things you have come here to swear to-day? Yes.
6576. You did talk to this gentleman then? Yes.
6577. And yet you said you did not speak to anyone? Yes.
6578. How long was this gentleman there? About ten minutes or a quarter of an hour.
6579. Talking to you and your daughter? Yes.
6580. And the conversation was about this evidence that you are giving here now? Yes.
6581. You say you were told yesterday to go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
6582. They were the solicitors acting in the interests of Dean? Yes.
6583. And this Mr. Moodie was one of the committee acting in the interests of Dean also? Yes.
6584. President.] When you saw Mrs. Dean on the Sunday—on Sunday the 3rd of March—did she tell you anything then about some porter? Yes; she said that her husband poured her out some porter and that it was sour, and that he threw it away because it was sour.
6585. Did she say she had taken any of it? No; she said she had not drunk any of it because it was sour.
6586. Did she say anything about a powder in the bottom of the glass? No.
6587. Nothing whatever? No, nothing whatever.
6588. Do you know that Mrs. Dean had sworn at the trial that her husband offered her some tea and that in the tea there were white lumps floating about, and that her husband said they were cream? I remember hearing about that.
6589. Did you hear about that at the Police Court at North Shore? I cannot say; I cannot remember.
6590. If you did hear it then, would it not have been very important to have mentioned at the trial what you have mentioned to-day? Well, I didn't remember.
6591. You are quite sure that she never pointed out to you any tea in a tumbler under the chest of drawers? Quite sure.
6592. There was no bad taste in the tea you drank? None whatever.
6593. How much tea was in the cup when it was given to you? It was about half full.
6594. Was there any milk in the tea? Yes.
6595. Was there any sugar? Yes.
6596. Did you know that Mrs. Dean had sworn at the trial that she noticed something floating like lumps in this tea? I heard them say that was what she said.
6597. When did you hear that—was it before the trial at Darlinghurst? I think it was.
6598. Why did not you give the evidence you have given here to-day at the trial at Darlinghurst? Because I was not asked.
6599. Did you not know that this was a very serious charge and important to Dean; and if Mrs. Dean was saying something that was not true, why did not you volunteer the information? I did not think of it; I did not remember what I heard about those lumps clinging to the side of the saucer.
6600. Did you ever know that he poured out some of the tea into a saucer and offered it to her? No; I did not know that.
6601. When he came to you on the Sunday, what did he say? He asked me to go and see his wife; he said that she seemed very ill.
6602. Dr. Jones.] You have told us that on Tuesday the baby was at your house all day? Yes.
6603. Did you observe anything about the baby? No.
6604. Was it sick? No.
6605. Was it purged? No.
6606. Nothing of that kind? No.
6607. The baby appeared to you to be quite well? Yes sir.

[Witness withdrew.]

Bessie Walke sworn and examined:—

- Bessie Walke. 6608. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you live next to Dean? No; I live next to Mrs. Adye.
- 31 May, 1895. 6609. Do you remember seeing Mrs. Dean on a day early in March? Yes.
6610. Whereabouts did you see her? I saw her at Mrs. Adye's shop.
6611. What day of the week did you see her? On Saturday, the 2nd March.
6612. About what time? A little after 2 o'clock.
6613. Did she bring something with her? Yes; she brought a bottle.
6614. Did she go away anywhere? Yes; she went home.
6615. Did she come back? Yes; she came back with her baby.
6616. Did she go away anywhere then? Yes; she went to the chemist's—to Smith's, the chemist, I think.
6617. Were you there when she came back? Yes.
6618. Did she do anything with the baby? Yes; she gave it a drink from the breast.
6619. Are you quite sure of that? Yes; I am quite sure.
6620. Did you know her before? Yes; I knew her at the shop.

6621.

Bessie Walke,
 1 May, 1895

6621. How did she seem in health? Oh, all right.
 6622. Sir Julian Salomons.] How is it you remember about this? Because I was at the shop.
 6623. Did you suspect that a crime was going to be committed? No.
 6624. What did you pay those trifles so much attention for? I don't know.
 6625. Who asked you to come here to-day? Mr. Moodie.
 6626. Have you been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Yes.
 6627. When did you go there? Yesterday afternoon.
 6628. Who went with you? Mrs. Adye and Miss Adye.
 6629. Are you quite sure? Yes.
 6630. Where did you meet Mrs. and Miss Adye? I met them here.
 6631. And you all went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's together? Yes.
 6632. Are you quite sure of that? Yes; quite sure.
 6633. Where did you go? Into a room.
 6634. Was that young gentleman sitting at the end of the table present? Yes.
 6635. And who else? Mrs. Adye, Miss Adye, and Hans Bach.
 6636. Were you all together? Yes.
 6637. Who spoke first? Miss Adye, Mrs. Adye, and myself.
 6638. You spoke last? Yes.
 6639. Did you interrupt them? No.
 6640. Or suggest anything? No.
 6641. Did you hear what they said? Yes; I was in the same room.
 6642. Were you near enough to hear all they said? Yes; I heard what they said.
 6643. You are quite sure that you were in the room? Yes; I was in the room all the time.
 6644. Where did you three go afterwards? We came back here.
 6645. Did you know what you were going to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office for? No.
 6646. Not what you were going to state? No; all I can state was what I could state at the Court.
 6647. Were you asked questions, or did you make a statement? I simply told what I knew.
 6648. And somebody wrote it down? Yes.
 6649. And you signed it? No, I did not sign it.
 6650. And the same was done with Mrs. Adye and Miss Adye? Yes.
 6651. Didn't he ask any questions of you? No.
 6652. Did he ask any questions of Mrs. Adye or Miss Adye? No; I did not hear.
 6653. You all made your own statements? Yes.
 6654. That is the truth? Yes.
 6655. And you swear it? Yes.
 6656. How did you know that it was on Saturday, the 2nd of March, that you saw Mrs. Dean? Because I have been at the Court so often. At North Shore and Davlinghurst so often.
 6657. You noticed this about suckling the baby too? Yes.
 6658. President.] When you saw Mrs. Dean had she a bottle of lemon-syrup with her? Yes.
 6659. What was she doing with it? She had it in her hand. She asked Mrs. Adye to taste it, then Miss Adye, and then me.
 6660. Did Mrs. Adye taste it? Yes.
 6661. Did Miss Adye taste it? No.
 6662. Did you taste it? Yes.
 6663. What did it taste like? It was like gail; it had a sweet bitter taste.
 6664. How much did you drink? I took a very little out of the mouth of the bottle.
 6665. You didn't pour it into a glass? No, just out of the bottle.
 6666. Were you ill afterwards? I felt a little sick afterwards.
 6667. Did you vomit? No, it was an empty retch. I retched, but it was an empty retch.
 6668. You merely, as you say, strained? Yes, that was all.
 6669. You saw the baby? Yes.
 6670. Did it seem all right? Yes.
 6671. It was not sick or anything? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

William Henry Goode, Esq., M.D., sworn and examined:—

6672. Dr. Todd.] Are you Lecturer on Medical Jurisprudence at Sydney University? Yes, I am.
 6673. I place two prescriptions in your hand [produced];—do you see the one contains morphia, and is dated the 3rd of January, and the other containing morphia, is dated the 5th March? Yes; that is so.
 6674. Do you notice that both of these prescriptions are for the same patient, and are given by the same doctor? Yes; for Mrs. Dean.
 6675. Do you notice any difference in the quantity of morphia prescribed on the two occasions? Yes; I do. One contains 6 drachms and the other 2 drachms of morphia, and both are prescribed by Dr. Newmarch.
 6676. What is the difference between the two doses? There are four half-grain doses in one and twelve different doses in the other.
 6677. In the medical administration of strychnine, will you tell me if it is required to be given frequently in order to maintain its action, or will the effect of one dose last a long time? That would depend upon the size of the dose.
 6678. Then I will say a tonic dose? That should be given frequently—two or three times a day.
 6679. Why is that necessary? To keep up the action.
 6680. Is that because the action disappears rapidly? Yes.
 6681. If you were to give a large medicinal dose—say double the maximum dose—at 7 o'clock in the morning, what would be the effect upon that person at 3 o'clock in the afternoon? I should think that person would be very ill after taking a double medicinal dose.
 6682. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon do you think that person's heart would be stimulated or depressed? Depressed, I should say. Such a person, most likely, would be exhausted; in fact, prostrated.
 6683-8. I want to ask you a question, so that you may comment upon the statement;—have you, from experience, been enabled to comment on such a statement as this: "Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic, and then took a dose of strychnine, the one would be an antidote to the other—"

W. H.
 Goode, Esq.,
 M.D.
 31 May, 1895.

W. H.
Goode, Esq.,
M. D.,
31 May, 1895.

President.] I do not think that there is any necessity to try to prove that strychnine is an antidote to arsenic; we do not understand the matter in that way.

Mr. Pilcher.] If that is so, I need not go into the evidence; but Dr. Newmarch set up some opinion, according to the Judge's note, that strychnine was an antidote to arsenic.

President.] It will be, perhaps, as well for you to go on with the case in your own way. If Dr. Goode is going to give the same evidence as Dr. Knagg gave yesterday, would it not save time to read Dr. Knagg's evidence over to him, and ask him if he agrees with it?

Dr. Todd.] The course I propose to follow will be shorter.

President.] Go on then, please.

6689. Dr. Todd.] What is your opinion on this statement: "Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic, then took a dose of strychnine, it would be an antidote;"—what would you say to that? I do not think it would.

6690. Do you, then, agree with that statement? No.

6691. Supposing she had taken some strychnine it would account for a strong pulse, supposing she was suffering from arsenical poisoning? I do not agree with that.

6692. Here is another assertion:—"A mixture of strychnine and arsenic would cause one to counteract the other." That is a statement according to the evidence of Mr. Hamlet; what have you to say to that? I say there is no ground for such a statement as that.

6693. Do you know of any authority which recommends that strychnine should be used as an antidote to arsenic? No.

President.] I think my colleagues and myself take that for granted that there is no such authority as that.

6694-5. Dr. Todd.] If the woman took on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock a mixture which contained 1/7th of a grain of strychnine, and 1/6th of a grain of arsenic, would the fact of the strychnine being there account for her being able to go about on Saturday afternoon freely? No; not in my opinion.

6697. Mr. Pilcher.] Supposing that on Saturday morning this good lady took some mixture which contained 1/6th of a grain of arsenic, and the 1/7th of a grain of strychnine on the Saturday; that she suffered from vomiting and purging;—would the effects on the Monday night at 11 o'clock have passed away, so that the pulse would remain regular and strong, and the respiration normal? I think I have said no to that question.

6699. Dr. Todd.] I want to ask you one question about the action of a solution of arsenious acid;—have you carried on any experiments on the subject of, say, pouring a solution of arsenious acid on to dry calico, or perhaps, more correctly speaking, have you poured it on to calico, and let it dry? Yes; I have made such experiments.

6700. Will you be good enough to tell me what you have discovered in those experiments? Well; you cannot detect anything on the fabric on which you have poured a solution of arsenious acid.

6701. Do you mean to say that you cannot detect anything? No; you cannot detect it, even with a microscope; there is nothing to be seen, as the arsenious acid has been absorbed by the fabric.

6702. President.] How would you detect the presence of this acid then? By chemical tests; analysing for instance.

6703. Then this night-dress, which you are now examining, might be covered with a solution of arsenious acid and dried, and yet you could not detect the fact by the aid of the microscope? No; you could not.

6704. Not if the whole night-dress had been washed in it? No.

6705. Mr. Pilcher.] In your opinion could anybody detect it? No.

6706. Not with the use of the lens? I could not; and in my opinion, I do not think anybody else could.

6707. Dr. Todd.] I will now ask you a question in reference to other solutions: What would be the result of pouring a solution of arsenite of potash or arsenite of sodium on a piece of calico? You would have the same result; nothing could be seen, not even with a microscope.

6708. Mr. Pilcher.] Could anything be seen by the aid of any power that could be brought to bear upon it? No.

6709. Dr. Todd.] If a solution of arsenious acid, or arsenite of soda, or arsenite of potash, was used, and an amount of arsenic soap was added to a faecal stain on a night-dress or garment of that kind, would you be able to detect the arsenious acid then with the aid of the glass? I do not think so.

6710. Would it make it any easier to see it, owing to the fact of the garment being stained? If there was any mixing with any organic matter I do not think it would.

6711. Assuming that the woman took this dose—1/7th of a grain of strychnine and 1/6th of a grain of arsenic on an empty stomach, before breakfast, on the Saturday morning, that vomiting followed with purging during the morning, would she be able to walk about freely and apparently in her normal health the same afternoon? She might, if she got rid of the poison very rapidly from the stomach.

6712. What would be her state if she did not vomit for say an hour? In my opinion I think she would be very weak, if not exhausted, in the afternoon.

6713. If she took a 7th of a grain of strychnine and a 6th of a grain of arsenic in the morning, and there was no severe vomiting, what would be her state in the afternoon? I think she would be weak, and not fit to walk about.

6714. Would it be apparent to anyone seeing her that she was not, or would not be, in her normal health? It is my opinion that she would not be in her full normal health. I do not see how she could be in her normal health judging from the size of the dose.

6715. Have you read the Judge's notes of the description of Mrs. Dean's illness on the Monday and the following day? Yes.

6716. Are you able to form an opinion as to the nature of that illness? She must evidently have been suffering from some irritant taken into the stomach.

6717. Do you think that her illness on Monday night and the following day was one illness, due to one cause, or several illnesses? Due to several causes.

6718.

6718. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you seen the patient at all? Yes; I saw her at a distance in the hospital. W. H. Goode,
Esq., M.D.

6719. Only at a distance? Yes.

Then I object to that question.

6720. Dr. Todd.] Do you think, or do you know, if arsenious acid is soluble in any acid medium? Yes; it is soluble.

6721. Will you be good enough to look at the bottle I now produce—[bottle of strychnine produced];—is that coloured strychnine? Yes; it is strychnine, coloured pink.

6722. Do you know if that coloured strychnine dissolved would colour the solution in which it was dissolved? Before I can answer that, what is it coloured with? I could not answer the question unless I knew what the strychnine in this bottle is coloured with.

6723. Cannot you answer that question without ascertaining what is the colouring matter of the strychnine? No.

6725. Have you read the report of any case in which it is said such is the result? I have heard of such cases.

6726. If a mother's milk is poisoned, do you know if there would be any different effect upon the child if the milk were drawn off into a cup, and then given to the child? No; I do not think there would be any difference.

6727. President.] I want to ask you a question: Supposing this Mrs. Dean is now suffering from peripheral neuritis, and there is no suggestion of alcoholism or disease, would that peripheral neuritis indicate or show that she had been poisoned by arsenic? Not necessarily so; she might have peripheral neuritis through many other causes.

6728. What other causes? Influenza, exposure to cold, lead-poisoning, alcohol.

6729. Supposing that there is no evidence of alcohol or lead-poisoning, leaving out even syphilis, and excluding all common causes, and assuming that she is now suffering from peripheral neuritis, following extreme vomiting on the 4th of March and the 5th March, caused by some irritant passing into the stomach, would you say that these after effects were the result of arsenical poison? If I was perfectly satisfied that she had taken a large quantity of arsenic I should say that arsenic was the cause of the peripheral neuritis.

6730. Supposing she suffered from some extreme irritant on Monday, the 4th, and Tuesday, the 5th, of March, and is now suffering from peripheral neuritis, and there is no evidence of alcoholism, or any other causes that have been mentioned, would you not suspect the use of arsenic? No; that is the last thing I would think of, unless something put it into my head.

6731. Supposing that she was constantly vomiting and purging? She might vomit and purge from other causes.

6732. But coupling this fact with the peripheral neuritis, what then would be your opinion? I should not suspect arsenic, unless I found some in the vomit or purge.

6733. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you ever made any experiment on a person who has happened to have taken a mixture of arsenic and strychnine? No; we do not make experiments of that kind.

6734. Mr. Pileher.] Supposing you were taken to the hospital, and shown a person suffering from peripheral neuritis, could you, without diagnosis, say, in the absence of alcohol, syphilis, or lead-poisoning, what was the cause of that peripheral neuritis? No.

6735. President.] Not if you were informed that the patient had suffered from extreme vomiting and purging? No.

6736. Sir Julian Salomons.] Would you say it was from arsenical poisoning? No; I should not be forced to admit that it was from arsenical poisoning; it might be produced by other causes; there might be twenty other causes to produce peripheral neuritis, causes that we know nothing at all about yet, causes which up to the present are undiscovered.

6737. Dr. Todd.] This is an American Text-book [produced] of the Theory and Practice of Medicine, by Pepper, and volume 1. I wish to read you what he says on page 806, under the heading, "Multiple neuritis, peripheral neuritis, and poly-neuritis." He says the cases may be classified as follows:—“(1) Those in which the disease sets in after exposure to cold or follows exertion, the so-called idiopathic form. (2) Toxic form, by far the most important variety, causing which the following poisons may be mentioned—(a) Diffusible stimulants: alcohol, carbon, monoxide, carbon bisulphide, dinitro-benzene (roburite), aniline; (b) Metallic poisons: lead, arsenic, mercury, and phosphorus; (c) Animal poisons: diphtheria, typhus and other fevers, syphilis, tubercle malaria, and leprosy; (d) Vegetable poisons: ergot, morphine, &c.; (e) Endogenous poisons: rheumatism, gout, antritis, diabetes, the puerperal state, chorea (James Ross). (3) Dyscrasic form, in which the neuritis develops in the cachectic states, such as cancer, anæmia, and marasmus. (4) Endemic neuritis, or beri-beri”;—do you recognise that this covers a very wide field? Yes; it does.

6739. In other words, a diagnosis of the case would depend upon the knowledge of the history of the case? Yes.

6740. To fix and determine the cause of peripheral neuritis would you want a thorough knowledge of the history of the case before you could do so? Yes; if I knew the woman had taken arsenic it would not be difficult.

6741. Dr. Manning.] Did you not say, earlier in your examination, that you thought arsenious acid was soluble in some acid medium? Yes; it is soluble in hydrochloric acid.

6742. Do you know if hydrochloric acid is used in the manufacture of lemon-syrup? I do not know what lemon-syrup is.

[Witness withdrew.]

Ethel Adye recalled:—

- E. Adye. 6743. Mr. Pilcher.] When you were here before I forgot to ask you one question;—do you remember the 5th of March, it being Tuesday? Yes.
- 31 May, 1895. 6744. Did you see Mrs. Seymour at all on that day? Yes; in the afternoon.
6745. Where did you see her? At my home.
6746. Do you remember about what time it was? Between 5 and 6 in the afternoon.
6747. Did she come to your mother's house? Yes; she came for the baby.
6748. Where had the baby been? At my home all day.
6749. Who had been looking after it? I had.
6750. Did Mrs. Seymour say what she wanted the baby for? Yes; she said she wanted to take the baby home to have a drink, as May's breasts were very hard.
6751. Did she say anything else? Yes.
- President.*] You need not repeat it; we know what it was.
6752. Mr. Pilcher.] Were you at the court at Darlinghurst? Yes.
6753. Was your mother there too? Yes.
6754. Did you hear any question asked of your mother while she was outside the court and outside the witness-box? Yes.
6755. Do you remember where she was when this question was asked her? Yes; in the passage-way.
6756. Do you know who it was asked the question? I fancy it was Mr. Wade.
6757. Who is Mr. Wade? He was the gentleman sitting alongside Mr. Want in the court.
6758. Is that the gentleman there sitting near Sir Julian Salomons? Yes.
6759. And what question did he ask your mother? He asked mother if she tasted the tea.
6760. What tea was he referring to? That tea in Mrs. Dean's on the Sunday.
6761. Did he ask your mother if she had tasted the tea alongside the bed on the Sunday? Yes.
6762. What did your mother say? She replied, "Yes."
6763. Was there anything else asked of your mother? Yes. He asked if Mrs. Dean told her where she put the tea, and mother said "No."
6764. Your mother said "What"? My mother said Mrs. Dean did not tell her, neither where she put the tea nor what she put it in.
6765. Do you say Mr. Wade asked your mother if she tasted the tea? Yes; and my mother said she did.
6766. Did Mr. Wade ask anything else about tasting the tea? Yes.
6767. What was that? He asked her what it was like, and she replied that it tasted alright.
6768. Sir Julian Salomons.] Who do you say said the tea was alright? My mother said so.
6769. And did all this occur in one of the passages at Darlinghurst? Yes.
6770. Did not you give evidence here this morning? Yes, I did.
6771. Do you not remember then swearing that you and the young man at the corner of the table were the only persons present when you made your statement? No, I did not.
6772. Will you not swear that you made that statement by question and answer? No; I made my statement of my own free will.
6773. Before you were examined this morning did not a certain person, Mr. Moodie, ask you to make a statement to him? No.
6774. Was there nothing at all said to you about what you were going to say before you went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office with your mother? No.
6775. Did not you and your mother talk it over? No.
6776. Did not you know what your mother was going to say? No.
6777. Did not she know what you were going to say? No.
6778. And do you swear what you are saying now to be true? Yes.
6779. You say Mr. Wade asked your mother some questions while you were at Darlinghurst Court? Yes.
6780. Had you been examined then in this case? No, we had not.
6781. Neither of you? No.
6782. On what day were you examined—on the same day, or the day before, or the day after this conversation is said to have taken place? I cannot say the date.
6783. Who first put this matter of your mother tasting the tea into your mind? I heard the question up at Darlinghurst.
6784. But who put it in your mind to mention it to-day in this manner? No one.
6785. Why then did you not state it when you were here this morning? Because I was not asked it.
6786. Will you swear that you have not spoken to anybody about it since you were here this morning? No, I have not.
6787. Do you mean to swear that you have not mentioned it to a soul? No, no one.
6788. And do you now swear that Mr. Wade asked your mother if she had tasted that tea? Yes.
6789. Did he ask your mother or you? It was my mother he asked.
6790. And did your mother say she did, and that the tea was alright? Yes.
6791. Were you examined after that? Yes.
6792. Was your mother examined after that? Yes; but she was examined before me.
6793. So you were both examined after that conversation in the passage at Darlinghurst? Yes.
6794. What time of the day did this conversation take place? I cannot tell you the exact time.
6795. Was it in the afternoon or evening? It was just at lunch-time.
6796. Was it during the lunch hour? It was when Mr. Wade was going to his lunch.
6797. Was there anyone else there besides you and your mother? Yes; Mrs. Walke was there.
6798. Was that the witness whom we examined a little while ago? Yes.
6799. Were there any of the police officers there at the time? No.
6800. Is it not a fact that you went to Mr. Wade? No; he asked us to stay back.
6801. Did Mr. Wade know you then? I had never seen him before.
6802. How did he know you at all then? I do not know.
6803. Had you been in court? No.
6804. How then could Mr. Wade then know you? I cannot tell you that.
6805. You admit that you had never spoken to Mr. Wade before? No.

6806. And you had not been in court, neither had you given any evidence? No.
6807. And you say there were no police about at the time? Not at the time.
6808. And that Mr. Wade asked you to stay back? Yes; we were just going to lunch at the time.
6809. Who were? My mother, Mrs. Walke, and I.
6810. Where did you go then? He said he wished to speak to us, and we followed him along the passage.
6811. Was it then that your mother said she tasted the tea, and she told him it was all right? Yes.
6812. Dr. Jones.] What was the day on which you took charge of Mrs. Dean's baby? Tuesday.
6813. All day? Yes, all day.
6814. Did you notice any signs of illness on that baby? None at all.
6815. Did the baby appear to be quite well? Yes; quite well.
6816. Did you know Mr. Wade before he spoke to you? No; but I know his name after he had examined me.
6817. Did you know him at first? No, I did not.
6818. Sir Julian Salomons.] How was this gentleman dressed when he spoke to you? He had a black cloak and a wig on.

E. A dye.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Bessie A dye recalled :—

6819. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you remember being examined this morning, and being pressed as to why you did not make some statement about tasting the tea? I do.
6820. Did you say at the time that you were not asked about it? I did.
6821. And is that your explanation? Yes.
6822. Do you remember, while at Darlinghurst courthouse, being asked by any gentleman about the tea? I think I was.
6823. Do you remember who it was who asked you the question? Someone called me and asked me if I had tasted the tea.
6824. Who was present when that question was asked? I think my daughter and Mrs. Walke were standing at my side.
6825. Do you remember who the gentleman was who asked you the question? I think that was the gentleman [pointing to Mr. Wade].
6826. Can you call to mind where it was in the court-house that he asked you the question? It was in the passage, I think.
6827. Do you remember what time of the day it was? It was when he was going to lunch.
6828. And what did he ask you? If I had tasted the tea, and I said yes.
6829. Did he ask you anything else about the tea? Yes; he asked me what it tasted like, and I said I did not notice that it tasted different to any other tea.
6830. Did he ask you anything about as to whether Mrs. Dean said anything to you? He asked me if she told me where she put the tea.
6831. Put what? I said, she said she had put part of it away, but she did not say where she had put it, neither what she had put it in.
6832. Did this conversation take place in the passage at Darlinghurst, as you were going to lunch? Yes.
6833. Can you recollect whether you had given your evidence at the time? No; I had not.
6834. President.] Did Mrs. Dean tell you where she had put the tea? No, she did not.
6835. Did you ask her? No.
6836. When she asked you to taste the tea did she say why she wished you to taste it? She said she did not like it, and I said to her, "Why do you not drink the tea; it will do you good." She said she did not like tea; she said she was thirsty.
6837. Did not she tell you she had put some of it away? Yes.
6838. Why did she tell you that; did she give you no reason? No.
6839. Did you ask her for any reason? No.
6840. And then did she ask you to taste it? Yes.
6841. Why, if she did not like the tea herself, did she ask you to taste it? I cannot tell you; I do not know.
6842. Sir Julian Salomons.] As a matter of fact did you not go away and make her some fresh tea? No; not then.
6843. I mean shortly afterwards? No; I got her a cup of tea, and gave it to her.
6844. And do you mean to say that she did not like it? She said she was very thirsty, and I advised her to drink the tea.
6845. Did you not go away and make it for her? I did not make it. I got it for her, and she drank some of it.
6846. Where did she say she put part of it? I did not ask her.
6847. And she did not tell you where she had put part of it away? No.
6848. She simply told you that she did not like the tea? Yes.
6849. Did you not make a statement to the police before you went to the court-house at Darlinghurst? Yes.
6850. Is it not a fact that you never mentioned that you had tasted this tea? They never asked me if I had tasted the tea.
6851. And you made a statement of your evidence, which you subsequently swore before going to Darlinghurst? Yes; I answered the questions that they asked me.
6852. That was some three or four days before the trial? It was before the trial; but I cannot say how many days.
6853. Do you not know that Mr. Wade, in this very passage you spoke of, asked you if you had tasted the tea, and did you not tell him that you had not? No, sir.
6854. On your oath will you swear that you did not tell him that you had not tasted the tea? I did not tell him that I had not tasted the tea.
6855. Do you not know that you are going back on your former evidence? No, sir.
6856. Did you not tell Mr. Wade that you were in a hurry to get away from Dean's house, and that you had not tasted the tea? No, sir; I did not.

Mrs. B. A dye.
31 May, 1895.

Mrs.
B. Adye.
31 May, 1895.

6857. Just reflect for one moment;—will you not admit that? No, sir; I will not.
6858. Did you not say something about tasting the tea, and it was like ordinary tea? Mr. Wade asked me if I tasted the tea. I said I did, and he then asked me what it tasted like, and I said like tea.
6859. Then, why did you not ask Mrs. Dean why she wanted to put part of the tea away? I did not ask her—I did not think of it.
6860. Where was Mrs. Walke at the time Mr. Wade was talking to you? Standing in the passage.
6861. Close to you? Yes; very near.
6862. Were you and your daughter and Mrs. Walke all together at this time? Yes.
6863. Did he ask Mrs. Walke anything? I think something was said about the lemon-syrup.
6864. Have you any distinct recollection? I cannot recollect what was said.
6865. Mr. Filcher.] You were asked why you did not ask Mrs. Dean about the tea she said she put away;—was not the tea kept for four days and never mentioned to anyone? I do not know anything about that.

[Witness withdrew.]

Sydney Jamieson, Esq., M.B., L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., sworn and examined:—

S. Jamieson,
Esq., M.B.,
L.R.C.P.,
M.R.C.S.
31 May, 1895.

6866. Dr. Todd.] What are you, Dr. Jamieson? I am honorary pathologist and honorary physician at the Sydney Infirmary.
6867. Have you had considerable practice in your profession in Sydney and its suburbs? Yes; I have.
6868. Do you remember, in following your practice during last February and March, anything of importance? Yes; I can remember several matters.
6869. Will you tell me this: Was influenza of the gastro-intestinal type, or some gastro-intestinal disease of an acute nature, prevalent in your practice during the months I have named? Yes, it was; and it is still prevalent, for I am attending a case at the present time.
6870. Do you mean to say that you have a case in your own practice now? I have.
6871. Have you read the account of Mrs. Dean's illness in the Judge's notes, as given by Mrs. Dean and Dr. Newmarch? Yes; I have.
6872. Are you able to say whether the disease of influenza, of the gastro-intestinal type, would, when diagnosed, be perfectly consistent with the symptoms as shown by Mrs. Dean? I think so. I know that this influenza, of the gastro-intestinal type, is not uncommonly followed by peripheral neuritis.
6873. Some of these cases of influenza of the gastro-intestinal type—did you call that influenza, because influenza was prevalent at the time? Yes; I failed to diagnose it rapidly at the outset, but I know it was followed, or accompanied by, rather, vomiting and purging and an extreme prostration, which lasted longer than it usually does in an ordinary attack of diarrhoea.
6874. If influenza had not been prevalent at this time would you have looked for other causes for the peripheral neuritis? Yes.
6875. What other causes would produce, or be likely to produce, this acute gastro-intestinal trouble? Any irritant poison, such, for instance, as ptomaine poisoning, sporadic cholera, or summer diarrhoea.
6876. Will you listen to this passage: "In the gastro-intestinal form the symptoms may be of moderate severity, consisting of nausea and occasional vomiting, heavily-coated tongue, complete anorexia, fullness and tenderness of the epigastric region, some distension of the abdomen, and a tendency to looseness of the bowels, and fever, not exceeding 102½ degrees F., with headache and myalgic pains, and running a favourable course of from seven to ten days; but in other cases the onset is abrupt, with the violence of cholera morbus, and indicating intense irritation of the mucous surface, with profound disturbance of the splanchnic nerves";—have you seen any case which corresponds with this description? Yes.
6877. How far are these cases of gastro-intestinal influenza consistent with the symptoms of ptomaine poisoning? They are almost analogous.
6878. Do you consider the seventh of a grain of strychnine to be an excessive dose? Yes.
6879. If that amount were taken on an empty stomach, would it act more powerfully than on a full stomach? It would act more rapidly; the effect would be apparent much sooner; I do not know that it would act more powerfully.
6880. If given with plenty of water or in an acid solution, would the effect be more speedy? It is more soluble in an acid solution, and anything that would increase its solubility would increase its power of absorption.
6881. Do you agree with this: "Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic and then took a dose of strychnine, would that be an antidote?" I certainly do not agree with that.
6882. Do you agree that strychnine is an antidote to arsenic? No; I think it is more likely to increase the purgative action of arsenic.
6883. With regard to the pulse or the heart, would a large dose of strychnine taken at the same time as a dose of arsenic be likely to have any effect upon the pulse or heart? I cannot speak from personal experience upon that point. I know what the physiological effect of strychnine is, and I know that you can bring the pulse down by taking arsenic.
6884. If you took a seventh of a grain of strychnine, would that have a tonic effect upon the pulse? I think it would produce a contraction of the muscular fibres.
6885. If you took strychnine and arsenic mixed together in an excessive dose, say twice the maximum medicinal dose, on an empty stomach, and did not vomit for an hour, do you think the one would counteract the other? No; I do not think so.
6886. If you took strychnine and arsenic together in an excessive dose, which would be the first to show its effects? The strychnine would.
6887. In what time would strychnine show its effects if no vomiting should follow its absorption? Within 20 to 30 minutes; of course it would depend upon the size of the dose.
6888. Say that dose was the sixth or the seventh of a grain? Well, then I should say, at the outside, 20 minutes.
6889. What do you think would be the effects upon a child suckling at the breast of a mother who had taken a large dose of strychnine? That the child would show symptoms of strychnine poisoning.
6890. Do you know of any case of this kind from personal experience? I do not from personal experience; I only know it from reading. 6891.

6891. But do you recognise it as an established fact professionally, or as one of the established facts of the medical profession? I think it would be an extremely dangerous proceeding to administer strychnine to a suckling woman, as it is a well-known fact that the poison is rapidly eliminated through the milk.
6892. If strychnine had been given, say a seventh of a grain, on Saturday morning, do you think it would effectually counteract a poisonous dose of arsenic taken at 11 o'clock on Monday night—sixty-four hours afterwards? No; it is rapidly eliminated. I do not think it would remain in the system that time.
6893. What would be the effect upon this woman of taking an excessive dose of strychnine? It would produce a jerking and spasmodic action of the muscles.
6894. Supposing this woman took an excessive dose—the seventh of a grain of strychnine and the sixth of a grain of arsenic—and continued to vomit and purge all the morning, what do you think would be her condition in the afternoon? I think she would be considerably prostrated. I do not know anything that pulls a patient down so rapidly as violent diarrhoea. I should think any person who had taken that quantity of these poisons in the morning would be considerably prostrated in the afternoon.
6895. If a mother ceased to suckle her child (say) on Friday, the 1st of March, would there be any milk left in the breast on the 12th of March? No; I do not think so, because when a woman ceases to suckle her child the milk, in the majority of cases, disappears from the mother's breast within a week.
6896. Then, you think if a woman ceased to suckle her child on the 1st, you could not draw off milk on the 12th? No; I do not think you could.
6897. President.] Were any of your cases of gastro-intestinal influenza followed by peripheral neuritis? No; one I thought might develop into that.
6898. He is not well yet, then? No.
6899. Would you take this as true:—"Strychnine taken with arsenic will account for the steady pulse described?" I think strychnine, in all probability, would have the effect of improving the tone of the pulse which had been subdued by taking arsenic. This effect, of course, would depend upon the size of the dose of strychnine.
6900. Mr. Pilcher.] Take, for instance, a patient who had taken the seventh of a grain of strychnine and the sixth of a grain of arsenic; what effect would you expect to find there? I cannot speak from actual experience, and I can only give an opinion based on my knowledge. I should say that strychnine, taken in such a large dose as one-seventh of a grain, would not produce any great effect upon a pulse which had been depressed by the taking of arsenic.
6901. President.] Supposing that they were taken together, would arsenic deaden the heart's action and strychnine stimulate it? It is hardly absolutely correct to say that strychnine would stimulate the heart's action. Strychnine acts on the blood vessels or the muscular fibres surrounding the blood-vessels, doing this through the nervous system more than immediately on the heart itself.

MONDAY, 3 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D.

FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. B. H. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

William Henry Crago, L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., sworn and examined:—

6902. Dr. Todd.] Can you tell me, Dr. Crago, from your experience and practice, whether influenza of the gastro-intestinal type was prevalent in Sydney and neighbourhood during the months of February and March? Yes; I had at least two or three cases of that nature during the month of February.
6903. Have you had any cases since then? Yes; I have had one or two since amongst children.
6904. Do these cases bear strong similarity to cases of acute irritant poisoning? Yes; the symptoms are almost identical; there is vomiting and purging with some abdominal pain.
6905. President.] Don't you get that in an ordinary bilious attack? Yes; but we do not usually get fever with an ordinary bilious attack.
6906. Dr. Todd.] If there had been no epidemic of influenza prevalent in the community at the time you had your cases would you have called these particular cases influenza? No; I think not. I should have thought them to be ptomaine poisoning, but I could not trace that the people to whom I refer had eaten tinned fish or bad food. And as there were cases of the ordinary type of influenza in the house I came to the conclusion that this disease was influenza. I looked upon it as such.
6907. You are quite certain in your own mind that they were influenza? Certainly.
6908. Did they appear to resemble cases of arsenical poisoning, inasmuch as the symptoms of arsenical poisoning, vomiting and purging, with abdominal pains, were present? Yes; somewhat similar.
6909. Did these cases of gastro-intestinal influenza show a suffusion or redness about the eyes? Yes; that is nearly always shown in influenza.
6910. Have you had in your own practice any case of gastro-intestinal influenza, followed by peripheral neuritis? I cannot say whether peripheral neuritis succeeded influenza of a gastro-intestinal type, but I have had two cases of peripheral neuritis, both being elderly women. The disease followed after a cold, and the symptoms were distinctly those of peripheral neuritis.
6911. Judging from these cases and your treatment, are you of opinion that the peripheral neuritis was a sequela of influenza? Yes; of course I cannot be positive but from the fact that the illnesses were followed by peripheral neuritis, I considered influenza to be the cause. I did not see the cases during the primary illness, but ordinary colds are not followed by peripheral neuritis, and I excluded in any diagnoses, alcoholism and arsenical poisoning from such a source as green wall-paper or anything like that.

W. H. Crago,
Esq.,
L.R.C.P.,
M.R.C.S.

3 June, 1895.

- W. H. Crago, Esq., L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S.
3 June, 1895.
6912. Will you be good enough to describe those cases and what were the symptoms? Yes; there was pain in the right foot followed by slight oedema and a drooping of the foot [position shown by witness] due to a partial paralysis of the extensor muscles of the leg.
6913. Are you speaking of both cases? I am speaking of the first case.
6914. Do I understand you to say that there was any wasting of the muscles? There was wasting of the muscles of the leg.
6915. In fact did you diagnose this case as one of peripheral neuritis? Yes.
6916. Was the other case to which you refer as marked as that? The other case was in the left arm, and not quite so typical as the one in the leg, but still there was no doubt that it was a case of peripheral neuritis.
6917. Could you differentiate both cases from rheumatism? It is difficult to differentiate from rheumatism, but I practically excluded rheumatism from my diagnosis.
6918. Can you tell me, if it is likely, that on the eleventh day, after a mother has ceased to nurse her child a physician could draw off a sufficient quantity of milk from the breast for the purpose of analysis? I think it would be possible in certain cases, but not in all. I believe it has been done after the lapse of eleven days.
6919. Do you think it would be likely to be done? It would be a long time, but still experience enables me to say that it is not impossible to do so. You might not do it in one case out of six, and then you might have a case in which it could be done.
6920. Would that depend to a great extent upon the pathological condition of the mother? Yes.
6921. And the absence of galactorrhœa? Yes. I have known women to cease suckling children for two or three weeks, and then the milk has come back again.
6922. Have you had any experience of an infant at the breast having been poisoned by strychnine taken by the mother? The only case I can call to mind is one which occurred last week, and then I did not see the child. I was told by the mother, I think it was on last Wednesday.
6923. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you say you did not see the child? Not at the time, but I was told it was very ill one day last week.
6924. To Dr. Todd.] The mother explained to me that the child was livid, and drawn up as if in a ball, they could not account for this, except in one way, and this was, the lady explained to me, that the wetnurse of the child had eaten some olives. The next day it was discovered that this wetnurse had stealthily taken a mixture of ergot and strychnine which had been made up for the mother. The nurse had evidently taken a larger dose than had been prescribed for the mother.
6925. Did the wetnurse suffer any symptoms? No; the child had most of the symptoms.
6926. Did the symptoms in the child suggest to you strychnine poisoning? No; not at the time; I never dreamt of the nurse taking that mixture, and the fact that arrested the mother's attention in the first place was the lividity of the child. I cannot mention to you the name of the mother; if I did the parents of the child would be well known to everyone here. I simply give you the mother's statement as she gave it to me, when she said the child was livid, and rolled up as if in a ball. When I heard the wet nurse had taken this strychnine and ergot I had no doubt of what caused the symptoms.
6927. Is it not an established fact in medicine that an infant is most susceptible to strychnine poisoning if the mother has taken strychnine? Certainly; the child would rapidly show symptoms, as it would be easily affected. I may add, that the infant of whom I am speaking is only about five weeks old.
6928. As regards symptoms of influenza, can you tell me whether perversions of taste are common? I should say they are almost universal. A patient suffering from influenza has a distaste for foods of all kinds.
6929. Have you noticed people who are accustomed to take tea ordinarily have a special dislike for tea when suffering from influenza? I do not know that I have noticed it more especially in regard to tea, but I know that there is a distaste of all kinds of food.
6930. To some extent do they reach a stage of nausea? Yes.
6931. Do they lose the sense of taste? Yes; and the sense of smell is equally affected. I have had many patients suffering from influenza who had neither taste nor smell.
6932. Do you mean they had not a right taste? Yes; they get a wrong taste, and because of their perverted taste they dread to take food.
6933. Sir Julian Salomons.] May I ask you, do you keep a note-book? Yes, I do; to record cases I see in the house; but not as a rule those I visit.
6934. Have you the notes of those cases of which you speak? I think not, but I think I have copies of the prescriptions given.
6935. Have you not your note-book showing the cases of influenza which you say developed symptoms of peripheral neuritis? No; I have not.
- President.*] I may at once say that I personally know nothing about these matters, but I think that my brother Commissioners, the doctors, are quite satisfied that there were cases of gastro-intestinal influenza prevalent in the months of February and March, and that they are satisfied that peripheral neuritis follows this type of influenza. They are prepared to believe such cases did occur without further evidence.
- 6936-7. Sir Julian Salomons.] I suppose you will not deny that peripheral neuritis follows arsenical poisoning? Certainly not.
6938. Do you say "Yes" or "No" to this question: "Supposing you attended and examined a patient, could you say whether peripheral neuritis arose from the cause you have mentioned, or from arsenical poisoning?" Is that the present state of medical science? Yes. I could not tell unless I knew the history of the case.
6939. Do you mean to say you could not tell where it was established. Supposing you knew the history of the case, then examined the patient, and found him to be suffering from peripheral neuritis, do you mean to tell me that the present state of medical science would not enable you to tell whether this peripheral neuritis arose from arsenical poisoning, or influenza of the gastro-intestinal type? If I absolutely knew the history of the case, and that the patient had taken the arsenic, I could tell the source of the neuritis.
6940. Do you not admit that, outside the general truths in connection with peripheral neuritis, that knowledge from personal examination of the patient would be one element, and important element, in coming coming to a conclusion that the case was one of peripheral neuritis, or, in other words, would not a medical practitioner who had seen and examined a patient be in a better position than one who had not to state the cause of the disease? Most certainly I admit that.

6941. Supposing you examined the person suffering from peripheral neuritis several times, in periods extending over several weeks, would you not be better able to say from what it arose than a practitioner forming an opinion from ordinary theories? I should say it would be so, especially if I knew from what the neuritis commenced; but on the other hand I do not think fifty examinations made during the prevalence of neuritis would help me in arriving at its cause.

6942. Have you examined Mrs. Dean in this case? No.

6943. And is all that you are stating now to be found in books? Yes; but I speak from the experience of my own practice.

6944. You have made no new discovery on your part? No.

6945. Dr. Jones.] Do you say that you have seen several cases of influenza of the gastro-intestinal type? Yes.

6946. Were they accompanied by a rise in the temperature? Almost invariably. There was a temperature of not less than 101 degrees; sometimes it was higher.

6947. Would you expect to get any rise of temperature in cases of arsenical poisoning, the symptoms being practically the same as those of gastro-intestinal influenza? No; not until inflammatory symptoms had developed.

6948. In influenza of this type would you get the high temperature in the earlier stages of the disease? Yes; at once.

6949. I think you said that in those cases of peripheral neuritis, which presumably followed gastro-intestinal influenza, the neuritis affected one limb only? Yes; one right leg and the other a left arm, and both were in elderly women.

6950. In the case of that child who is supposed to have taken strychnine might not the lividity have been due to an ordinary convulsion? There was no history of previous or general convulsion, and in describing the case I am only using the mother's words, when she said the child was drawn up like a ball. I think the lividity was due to the ergot, and that the drawing up like a ball was due to the strychnine.

6951. Might it not have been due to other causes? Yes; first of all it was thought that it was due to the nurse eating olives.

6952. Mr. Pilcher.] Supposing the doctor in the first instance diagnosed the case as ptomaine poisoning, and then subsequently a statement made by two women leads to a change in the diagnosis, would your report as an outside medical man on that case depend very much whether or not you put any confidence in the statement of the women? Certainly it would.

6953. Dr. Todd.] Do you know Dr. Samuel West? I do not know him personally.

6954. Do you know him by reputation? Yes.

6955. I want to read you a passage out of an address delivered by that gentleman in 1894, and which is published in Braithwaite's "Retrospect of Medicine," page 130. It is as follows:—

The eyes are suffused and heavy, and pain is often felt of great intensity in or behind the eyeballs. Another common place for initial pain is the small of the back, and in other rarer cases the first symptom has been violent abdominal colic, or more correctly, visceral neuralgia.

Further on in the same paper the same authority says, under the heading Fever:—

The usual type of fever is a sudden elevation to 102° or 103° F., at which level it remains with little remission for two or three days, and then suddenly falls. Hyperpyrexia is rare. The temperature may reach 104° or 105°.

I have seen it on two occasions rise to 107° or 108° respectively in an uncomplicated case. As such elevation of temperature is rarely maintained for long—that is to say, for more than an hour or two, if so long—symptoms of hyperpyrexia are usually absent. With pneumonia it may run high; but on the other hand many of the worst cases of influenzal pneumonia have a low temperature. Whether apyretic influenza exists, i.e., influenza with other symptoms but without fever, it is difficult to prove, but I believe it does, and I think it is not uncommon.

Dr. West having said this, are you inclined to regard the statement as of value? Most certainly; I think it is likely, for I have read of cases of typhoid without fever.

Dr. Thomas Morgan Martin, L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S., made an affirmation:—

6956. Dr. Todd.] Do you know a disease called influenza of the gastro-intestinal type? Yes.

6957. Have you seen any cases of it? I have seen a great many.

6958. Will you state to this Court the similarity of this disease to poisoning by ptomaine or other irritants? To my mind there is not much distinction between them. Were influenza not prevalent at the time it would be very difficult to say whether the disease was due to poisoning or influenza, it is so similar. The main thing that would make one inclined to put this down as being due to influenza would be generally the great depression that accompanies the disease of influenza. When you find gastro-intestinal trouble accompanied by extreme depression at a time when influenza itself is prevalent, you usually put it down to that cause.

6959. Is there any marked difference between cases of influenza of this type, where there is vomiting and purging, as compared with ptomaine poisoning with respect to the temperature? Not that I know of.

6961. Do you know if there is collapse in these cases of gastro-intestinal influenza? There is extreme depression.

6962. Have you seen any case of peripheral neuritis which has followed on influenza, or that have been associated with influenza? I have seen one; it occurred some two or three years since. The patient was a man who came from the country suffering from peripheral neuritis, which, to the best of my belief, although it is a point upon which I cannot be absolutely sure, was an after effect of influenza.

6963. Will you be good enough to describe the symptoms? The man complained of shooting pains in his legs.

6964. In both legs? Yes, in both legs, and more or less all over his body, accompanied by great loss of power and difficulty in walking. He had to be almost carried from his cab into my room. He was assisted into the room, as he was almost paralytic.

W. H. Crago,
Esq.,
L.R.C.P.,
M.R.C.S.

3 June, 1895.

Dr.
T. M. Martin,
L.R.C.P.,
L.R.C.S.

3 June, 1895.

- Dr. 6965. Did you notice whether there was any wasting of the muscles in this case? I would not like to say there was, but I believe there was. I only saw the man on two or three occasions, and that was about two or three years ago. He then drifted away from Sydney, to where I do not know.
- T. M. Martin, L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S. 6966. Had you any consultation with any other doctor on this case? No.
- 3 June, 1895. 6967. Did you notice whether the paralysis of which you speak affected any certain group or groups of muscles? I cannot say so.
6968. Will you tell me why you formed the opinion that this peripheral neuritis was due to influenza? (No answer.)
- President.*] Might I suggest once more, to save time, that my medical colleagues have no doubt that peripheral neuritis follows influenza of the gastro-intestinal type. There is no necessity for showing this, as far as they are concerned.
6969. Dr. Todd.] I should be glad if you would inform me what led you to form the opinion that this symmetrical peripheral neuritis occurred in both legs and arms, followed on, and was associated with, influenza? I only said so because, from what I recollect of the history of the case, I believed the man had suffered from influenza, which was the prevailing epidemic at that time. I cannot be certain about the disease, but that is my impression.
6970. Were you able to attribute this peripheral neuritis to alcohol? No.
6971. Or to any other cause, except influenza? No.
6972. Did you seek for any other causes of the peripheral neuritis? Yes.
6973. And, in your opinion, you could only arrive at the conclusion that it was due to influenza? Yes.
6974. Is that your opinion from the history of the case? Yes.
6975. As a rule, in cases of peripheral neuritis, is there anything to guide you as to the cause other than the history of the case? There is nothing else, as a rule.
6976. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you not say there are certain symptoms associated with peripheral neuritis, arising from arsenical poisoning, which are altogether different from peripheral neuritis as the result of influenza;—will you not state that it is a well known fact that medical men can tell one cause from the other without a thorough knowledge of what you call the history of the case? What I say is, when I speak of the history of a case, that I include and consider all the previous symptoms and probable causes of the illness.
6977. Dr. Todd.] Is it not a fact that everything the patient tells you makes the history of the case,—of course, together with the symptoms you observe? Yes.
6978. Sir Julian Salomons.] Can you point out to me in any medical works results which are peculiar in peripheral neuritis when it has arisen from arsenical poisoning, which do not appear in peripheral neuritis that has arisen from influenza? I have found little or no description of peripheral neuritis arising from influenza of the gastro-intestinal type in medical books.
6979. Have you had much experience in the treatment of peripheral neuritis? I have seen a few cases.
6980. How many cases do you think? I could not be sure, but not more than three.
6981. Extending over a practice covering some years? Yes.
6982. Now, then, will you not admit that it is well known as a matter of medical science that there are certain symptoms shown in peripheral neuritis arising from arsenical poisoning which do not appear when peripheral neuritis has followed influenza? I cannot say that of my own knowledge.
6983. Nor from your own reading neither? No.
6984. Or any such symptoms or results which would enable you to say that any particular case of peripheral neuritis did not arise from influenza? No.
6985. You do not know it from your own experience or from books? No.
6986. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you not say that you only remember three cases of peripheral neuritis arising from any cause whatever? Yes.
6987. Do you limit those cases to having been caused by influenza? No; I referred to them as cases arising from all causes.
6988. You were also asked whether, from your knowledge or reading, the symptoms of peripheral neuritis arising from arsenical poisoning are distinct from the symptoms of peripheral neuritis arising from other causes? I know of no difference. There may be some difference, but I do not know of it yet.
6989. Do you know of any distinction, either practically or theoretically? No.
6990. Dr. Jones.] In the practice of your profession have you seen any cases of poisoning by arsenic? Yes, two.
6991. What were they? They were the two husbands of Louisa Collins; both were poisoned.
6992. Do you remember whether in these cases there was any rise in temperature? As well as I recollect, there was not.
6993. Had you an opportunity of observing these cases some time after the poison was actually taken? No; I only saw one case on two occasions, and in the other I only saw the patient once. I was merely called in for consultation.
6994. Did any symptoms follow the taking of the poison other than the immediate irritant symptoms? The patients did not live long enough to show them. Death came too soon.

[Witness withdrew.]

Hans Bach sworn and examined:—

- Hans Bach, 6995. Mr. Pilcher.] You are a butcher, I believe? Yes.
- 3 June, 1895 6996. And you work for Mr. Carnegie, at North Shore? Yes.
6997. Do you remember on what date you first went to work for Mr. Carnegie? On Monday, the 11th of March.
6998. The 11th of last March? Yes.
6999. Do you remember being at North Shore a week before that? Yes; on Monday, the 4th of March, at about 8 o'clock in the morning, I went to George Dean's place.
7000. Had you been to Carnegie's establishment that morning? Yes; I went there first to find out what day I was to start work for Mr. Carnegie.
7001. Of course you know George Dean? Yes.
7002. And after leaving Carnegie's you went to Dean's house? Yes. 7003.

7003. Do you know Mrs. Dean? Yes, but not well. I knew her by having seen her once or twice at Hans Bach, Mr. Konnecke's, at Woollahra.
7004. Have you seen her several times? Yes; but I do not know her well.
7005. Did you go into any particular part of Dean's house on that morning? Yes. When I got to the door Mr. Dean asked me to go upstairs. He took me upstairs.
7006. Did you see Mrs. Dean? Yes.
7007. Where was she? In bed.
7008. Did you see the baby? Yes.
7009. And where was the baby? Lying alongside Mrs. Dean in the bed.
7010. Did you remain upstairs with Dean any length of time? I remained upstairs about 10 minutes or a quarter of an hour.
7011. With Dean? Yes.
7012. Sir Julian Salomons.] What, in the bedroom? Yes, in the bedroom.
7013. Mr. Pilcher.] While you were there did you see Mrs. Dean do anything with the baby? Yes; she gave her a drink.
7014. Do you mean a drink from the breast? Yes.
7015. President.] Did she do that while you were in the room? Yes. I was standing at the foot of the bed while she did it.
7016. Mr. Pilcher.] Can you call to mind what Dean was doing while you were there? No, I cannot.
7017. Were you talking together? Well, I told Mrs. Dean I was going to start on the following Monday at Carnegie's.
7018. Where did you and Dean go after about 10 minutes, as you say? Downstairs.
7019. To what part of downstairs? To the kitchen.
7020. Did you remain in the kitchen with Dean? Yes.
7021. What did he do in the kitchen? He got the breakfast ready, and asked me to stop.
7022. Whose breakfast did he get ready? Mrs. Dean's.
7023. What did he get for her? A cup of tea, some bread and butter, and a couple of mutton chops.
7024. Did he cook the chops himself? Yes.
7025. Was the tea in a teapot? Yes.
7026. Did Dean pour the tea into the cup out of the teapot? Yes; he stood at the stove and poured it out.
7027. Did he take that breakfast upstairs? Yes.
7028. President.] What did he take upstairs? Some bread and butter, a cup of tea, and two chops.
7029. Mr. Pilcher.] On what did he take it upstairs? On a little tray.
7030. How long was he away? Not long, just a few minutes.
7031. When he came down did you and Dean have breakfast? Yes.
7032. What did you have? There were a couple of chops left and a piece of rump-steak.
7033. Did you and he have the two chops and the rump steak? Yes.
7034. Did you have tea to drink? Yes.
7035. What tea? Out of the same teapot as Mrs. Dean's had been poured.
7036. Was it the same pot of tea, or was fresh tea made for you and Dean? It was what was left in the same pot of tea, and we drank it.
7037. After you and Dean had had that bread and butter and meat and tea,—after you had finished your breakfast in fact, what did Dean do? He washed up the crockery and swept the house.
7038. Do you remember his going anywhere and doing anything after he had washed up and swept the house? Yes, he went and got the baby.
7039. Where did he bring the baby from and where did he take it to? He brought it from upstairs to the dining-room downstairs.
7040. Did he do anything to the baby? Yes; he washed it; put some fresh clothes on it and a napkin.
7041. What did he do with the baby after he had done that? He left it there, put it on the sofa, and then I nursed it for a while till it fell asleep. I then put it on the sofa on a little bed. I watched the baby and minded it.
7042. And where did Dean go? He went upstairs to have a lie down; he said he was tired, and would go and lie down for a time as he had been at work all night.
7043. Do you remember Dean coming downstairs again? Yes.
7044. At about what time of the day was that? 11 o'clock, or a little after.
7045. When he came down on that occasion did he go away anywhere? He said to me, "I am going to the chemist for a feeding-bottle."
7046. And did he go away? Yes.
7047. How? He took his bicycle and went on it.
7048. How long was he away? About half-an-hour.
7049. Whilst he was away getting this feeding-bottle did you see Mrs. Dean? Yes; she came downstairs.
7050. How was she dressed? She had a morning wrapper on.
7051. Do you know what she had on her head? Nothing; her hair was all loose.
7052. Did you see where she went to? No; she went out of the front door.
7053. How long was she away? Between 5 and 10 minutes, as near as I can judge.
7054. Then did she come back? Yes; she came through the dining-room, and at that time I had the baby on my knee.
7055. At that time did the baby wake up? Yes.
7056. Did she speak to you? No; she went straight through, and when she came back she went upstairs.
7057. When she came downstairs before going out, did she go into the dining-room then? No.
7058. When she came back, did she pass through the dining-room? Yes; she went into the kitchen for something; she came back again and went upstairs.
7059. How were these rooms arranged? The stairs come between the front-room and the dining-room.
7060. Is there a passage or hall through the house? No; you come straight into the front-room, then the stairs go up between the front-room and the dining-room.
7061. Are the stairs in a little room then? Yes; in a little room between the front-room and the dining-room.
7062. Supposing you were in the front-room and wanted to go into the kitchen? Well you would have to go through the dining-room.

- Hans Bach. 7063. And did Mrs. Dean go through the dining-room into the kitchen; then return through the dining-room, and go upstairs? Yes.
- 3 June, 1895. 7064. When she came back had Dean returned? No.
7065. And how long do you say this was after he (Dean) left? Oh; close on half-an-hour.
7066. What did Dean do when he came back? He brought the feeding-bottle, and some baby's food.
7067. And what did he do? He went into the kitchen, and gave the baby some of the food. He prepared it in the kitchen, and gave it to the baby in the dining-room.
7068. After he had fed the baby, what did Dean do next? He began to get the dinner ready then, but he took some sago away before that.
7069. And where did he take the sago? To a little shop near by.
7070. Do you remember the name of the people who kept the shop? I believe he said the name was Adye.
7071. Did he take the sago to that little shop down the road? Yes.
7072. How long was he away with the sago? Not long.
7073. Did he bring the sago back or leave it at the shop? He left it there.
7074. Cannot you give me an idea of how long he was away? I should think about 10 minutes.
7075. When he came back what did he do? He began to get the dinner ready for the whole lot of us.
7076. Before you had dinner, did Dean go anywhere else on that morning? He went out to try and get some fresh eggs, some cocoa, and cheese.
7077. How long was he away on that occasion? Not long.
7078. Do you know how many minutes? No. He told me he was going to the little shop. He went to the shop, and was away a few minutes.
7079. When he came back what did he bring? A tin of cocoa and some cheese.
7080. About what time was that? Just on dinner-time.
7081. What time do you call dinner-time? About 12 o'clock.
7082. Did you see Dean do anything with the cocoa he brought back? Yes; he got a cup of cocoa ready for Mrs. Dean.
7083. Did he open the tin? Yes, he opened the tin first of all, and then got the cocoa ready.
7084. When Dean was going upstairs, did a man come to the door and say anything about eggs? Yes. A man came and said he could get no eggs.
7085. Do you know who the man was? No.
7086. Can you say how long that was after he had been for the cocoa and had made a cup of cocoa for his wife? No. I should think somewhere about half an hour.
7087. Did you see Dean make the cocoa? Yes.
7088. What did he put in it? He put the cocoa in the cup and poured the hot water on it.
7089. What else did he put in the cup? I didn't see anything else.
7090. Did you see him do anything to the cocoa tin? He just put the cocoa out of the tin into the cup, and then he poured hot water on it.
7091. Are you sure he made it with hot water, and not with boiling milk? He made it with hot water.
7092. How long was he away when taking the cocoa upstairs? Not long, and while he was away I poured out some tea in the cups ready for him when he came down.
7093. Did you make tea for your own dinner then? No; he made it himself before he took the cocoa up.
7094. Then did you pour it out for himself and yourself to be drunk during your dinner? Yes.
7095. What was said when Dean came down? When he came down he said the tea was cold.
7096. Did he bring the cup back in which he had taken the cocoa upstairs? No; he left that upstairs.
7097. Did you then pour him out another cup of tea? Yes.
7098. Did you both drink tea for dinner? Yes.
7099. Do I remember aright that you said Dean came back with the cocoa about 12 o'clock? Yes; it was about dinner-time.
7100. And that within half-an-hour of the time of coming back with the cocoa he took a cup of cocoa up to his wife? Yes; about that.
7101. And on coming down stairs after doing so, was it then that you and he had dinner? Yes.
7102. After dinner what did you and he do with the crockery used at dinner-time? Washed it up.
7103. Where did the baby remain all this time? Well, I had been looking after the baby for the best part of the morning.
7104. Did it go away anywhere? Yes, it was taken upstairs.
7105. Before the cocoa was taken to Mrs. Dean? No, after the cocoa.
7106. Who took the baby up? Mr. Dean.
7107. Up to that time had it remained in the dining-room? Yes.
7108. And had more than one feed out of the bottle? Yes, two feeds out of the bottle in the dining-room down stairs.
7109. Do you remember what Dean did after dinner? He went upstairs, saying he was going to have a lie down.
7110. What time was that? I should think about 1 o'clock.
7111. Did you remain down stairs? Yes.
7112. Did anybody come to the house while you remained down stairs? Yes; a little girl came with a basket containing bottles of soda-water;—she came to the back door.
7113. About how long after Dean had gone upstairs to lie down did this little girl come to the back door? About three-quarters of an hour, as near as I can recollect.
7114. Did you take the soda-water from the girl? Yes; I took it upstairs; I knocked at the bedroom door, opened it, and said to Mrs. Dean, "Here's a basket of soda-water for you;" I then put it inside the bed-room door.
7115. Did you see Dean then? Yes, he was lying on the side of the bed.
7116. Could you judge from his appearance whether he was asleep or not? I thought he was asleep.
7117. Was the door open? Just a little.
7118. Did you then go downstairs again? Yes.
7119. Did you remain downstairs for some time? Yes, until between 2 and 3 o'clock.
7120. Did you then go upstairs again? Yes; I went upstairs to say good-bye to Mrs. Dean as I was going.

7121. Was Dean awake then? He was awake; he came downstairs and went to the front door with me; he opened the door and said good-bye, and I then went away. Hans Bach.
3 June, 1896.
7122. You remember you said that Dean took some sago to Mrs. Adye's? Yes.
7123. Did you see the sago come back? A young lady or a young woman brought the sago back.
7124. Do you know that young woman? No.
7125. Was it the same girl who brought the soda-water? No; that was only a girl; this was a young woman grown up.
7126. Don't you know who she was? No; I did not know her.
7127. Can you recollect when it was that young lady brought the sago back; was it before or after the cocoa was taken upstairs? That I cannot recollect.
7128. Was it before or after you had had dinner? It was just before we had dinner, I think.
7129. Do you remember whether it was before Dean went to lie down or after? I think it was before.
7130. Was this the first day you have been here? No, I was here two days last week.
7131. Did you on those occasions see that young lady who brought the sago waiting about this place? Yes.
7132. Has anybody told you who she is? No.
7133. Don't you know her name? Only what Dean said it was.
7134. And what was that? Adye, or something of that kind.
7135. Is that the same lady whose mother keeps the shop? Yes.
7136. Sir Julian Salomons.] I suppose you have taken a great interest in this matter? No, I haven't taken any particular interest in it.
7137. Is that the truth, sir? Yes, that's the truth.
7138. Is it not a fact that you were living at Konnecke's when Dean was living there? Yes, sir.
7139. How long were you living with Dean at Konnecke's? For about three or four years at Woollahra.
7140. In what street? At the corner of Queen and Moncur Streets.
7141. Were you employed by Konnecke at this time? Yes.
7142. And living in Konnecke's house? Yes.
7143. Were you living there before Dean went to live there? No, Dean was there first, at Woollahra, but I lived with Mr. Konnecke long before that when he had a business in Sussex and Liverpool Streets.
7144. But at Woollahra, I mean;—was Dean there before you? Yes.
7145. And then you lived there together for how long did you say? For between three and four years.
7146. Do you know that Dean was charged with attempting to poison his wife? No, I do not.
7147. Do you mean to tell me, sir, that you do not know the nature of this charge? I do not know the charge.
7148. Do you mean to tell me that you have not read this case; that you have not read it in the newspapers? No.
7149. Do you mean to say you have not read it in the newspapers—read the trial and proceedings of the man who was your friend and charged with such a serious offence as this? No; I can't read the newspapers; I can't read at all.
7150. Oh! you can't read the newspapers, and how many years have you been in this Colony? About fourteen.
7151. And will you swear that you can't read the newspapers after living fourteen years in this country? No, not to understand what they mean.
7152. Do you mean to tell me, sir, that you do not know the nature of the charge against your friend, Dean? Well, some of the men where I was working used to read it over to me.
7153. How is it then that you did not know Dean was charged with attempting to poison his wife? I do not know.
7154. When did you first come into this matter; what I mean to ask is, who did you give this statement to that you have given to-day? Well, it was first taken down at Mr. Crick's office.
7155. And how long ago is that? Last Thursday was the first time I was there.
7156. And who did you see there on last Thursday? Some ladies.
7157. Who were the ladies—Mrs. Adye, Miss Adye, and Mrs. Walke? I don't know them. I know that there were some ladies there.
7158. Do you know whether these ladies were those whose names I have mentioned? [No answer.]
7159. Was there anyone else in the room besides these three ladies and yourself? That young gentleman at the corner of this table, but I was not near them.
7160. Well, where were you then in Mr. Crick's office? I was on the other side of a big screen or desk. I couldn't see anyone on the other side.
7161. Why did you go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? Some gentleman came to see me and asked me to go.
7162. What was the name of that gentleman? That gentleman is Mr. Moodie.
7163. When did that gentleman come to you? He came to me one night when I was working at Carnegie's Hotel on the North Shore.
7164. When did Mr. Moodie come to you, sir? I don't recollect which night it was for certain, but I believe it was on the Wednesday night, the night before I went to Mr. Crick's office.
7165. And what were you doing behind that desk or screen as you call it? I was sitting on the sofa.
7166. What were the three ladies doing there? I don't know.
7167. And was there any writing on this desk to which you have referred? Yes, that young gentleman at the end of the table did some writing there.
7168. And yet you mean to tell me that you don't know the name of Mrs. Adye or Miss Adye after you saw her come to Dean's house with the sago? I saw these people in Mr. Crick's office, but I never thought it was the same young lady who came to Dean's with the sago.
7169. Who took your statement down at Mr. Crick's office? That young gentleman at the end of the table.
7170. What were these three ladies doing while you made your statement? I could not see what they were doing on account of the desk.
7171. Did you go there alone? No; some gentleman took me there.
7172. Who was the gentleman? Mr. Moodie. 7173.

- Haas Esch. 7173. Who went away from Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office first? The ladies went away first.
 7174. Then did you go away? Yes; that is right.
 3 June, 1895. 7175. When did you cease to be in the employ of Mr. Konnecke? At Woollahra, about five months ago now.
 7176. That would be, then, before this charge against Dean? Yes.
 7177. You remember giving the particulars about the tea and cocoa at Dean's house;—I suppose at the time all this occurred you did not suspect any crime, or know that there was anything wrong? No; I did not suspect anything wrong then.
 7178. How, then, sir, is it possible that at the present moment you remember so distinctly all these little details of what happened—for instance, about the bread and butter and the two chops? Because I saw the chops on the plate.
 7179. How do you know that there were only two chops? Because I noticed them on the plate.
 7180. How was it you came to notice these details about the teapot and the tea-cups and so on, and that he left the cup which contained the cocoa upstairs;—did you suspect anything wrong at all when he came downstairs without the cup? No; he came and sat down at the table when he came downstairs, and he had no cup in his hand then.
 7181. And do you swear that you remember that Dean came down without the cup? Yes.
 7182. What drew your attention to this cup? Well, he was only away about two minutes, and he hadn't got the cup when he came back.
 7183. What do you say he took the cup upstairs on? A little tray.
 7184. And what do you say he took up on the tray? Two chops, some bread and butter, and a cup of tea.
 7185. And then what did you do? When he came downstairs we sat down to breakfast.
 7186. When did he take the cup of cocoa up to Mrs. Dean? At dinner-time.
 7187. Didn't you say that the cocoa cup business took place at breakfast-time? I say he came downstairs both times without the cup, and that after the meals he went upstairs and got the crockery and washed it up.
 7188. Did you not say before that he left the cocoa cup upstairs? Yes; and then he afterwards went upstairs for the crockery, brought it down, and washed it up. I helped him wash the things up, that is how I know he left the things upstairs. He said to me, "I will go up and bring the cup down," and there were a couple of little plates beside.
 7189. Do you mean to swear that you recollect all that? Yes; I swear I can recollect all that.
 7190. Was there anything left in the cups? Yes; there was a little bit of something left in the bottom of one.
 7191. A little bit of what? Well, some slops in the bottom of the cup. I remember that because I washed it up.
 7192. And at that time you thought there was nothing wrong going to be done, or had been done? Certainly not.
 7193. I am sorry to trouble you, but what time did you say you went to Dean's house? About 8 o'clock in the morning.
 7194. Well, will you be good enough to tell me in your own way everything you did, and all that took place? Yes; at about 8 o'clock in the morning I went to Dean's house and knocked at the door. Dean opened the door, and he said to me, "Good morning, Haas;" I said, "Good morning, George;" I then said to him, "I thought I was going to start work at Carnegie's this morning, but I shall not start until next Monday;" he asked me in; I then went upstairs and said, "Good morning" to Mrs. Dean.
 7195. Where was the baby at this time? Lying alongside Mrs. Dean in bed. I said, "Good morning" to Mrs. Dean, and she then asked me how I got on. I told her I was going to start for Carnegie, but not that morning.
 7196. Will you tell us what happened next? We went downstairs, and Mr. Dean started to get the breakfast ready; he took Mrs. Dean's breakfast upstairs, and we had breakfast together when he came down; after breakfast I helped Dean to wash up and sweep the rooms out; Dean then went upstairs and got the baby; he washed the baby and put clean things on it; I minded the baby for him nearly all the morning; after a while George Dean said to me, "I'll go and have a lie down;" I said to him, "All right, I'll mind the baby;" he went upstairs, and I looked after the child; he came down again about 11 o'clock, or a few minutes after.
 7197. What time did he go to lie down? Oh; I should think about 10 o'clock, or a little after.
 7198. Then, do you say he came down again about 11? Yes; he said he was going to the chemist's for a feeding-bottle and some baby's food; he took his bicycle and went out through the front door. He had only gone away a few minutes when Mrs. Dean came downstairs and went out through the front door; I do not know where she went.
 7199. Are you sure she went out through the front room? Yes, she went out through that room into the street; when she came back she passed through the front room, through the little room into the dining-room, and then into the kitchen.
 7200. Will you swear that you said she went through the front room when you first gave your account of this proceeding? I know that when she came back that she went right through from the front room into the dining-room and then into the kitchen.
 7201. And is that what you originally stated? Yes.
 7202. How many minutes was she away? Only 5 or 10 minutes.
 7203. What kind of hat or bonnet did she wear? She had neither hat nor bonnet, and wore just a morning wrapper.
 7204. Did you speak to her as she was going through? No; she went through so quickly.
 7205. Do you mean to tell me she passed by and you did not speak to her, after you had been in the bedroom in the morning? Yes; she only just passed through.
 7206. And you admit that you saw her in bed in the morning and she did not speak on this occasion? Yes.
 7207. Was she undressed when she was in bed? I could not say what she had on when she was in bed; I don't suppose she had clothes on when she was in bed.
 7208. Where were you at the time Dean was being tried in the Police Court? Working for Mr. Carnegie.
 7209. Have you known Dean for a long time? For a good few years.
 7210. And do you mean to tell me that you did not know that he was charged with having attempted to poison his wife? After he was arrested, I did.
 7211. Were you at the Police Court at all? Yes, I was.

Hans Bach.
3 June, 1895.

7212. Were you at the Darlinghurst Court too? No.
7213. Did you know he was committed for trial? Yes.
7214. Did you know he was tried at Darlinghurst? Yes.
7215. And convicted on this charge? Yes.
7216. Were you living at Carnegie's at that time? Yes.
7217. Did anyone read the papers containing the accounts of the trial? Yes; it was read over to me.
7218. Was the evidence in the case read to you? Yes; right through.
7219. Do you not say that you remember the baby having two feeds out of the bottle? Yes; it had two feeds the morning I was at Dean's.
7220. Who gave it the two feeds? Mr. Dean.
7221. Had the baby been fed before that? It had a drink while I was upstairs. The mother gave it the breast.
7222. Did you see that done too? I did.
7223. How is it you can remember all these trifling things, and that you did not know the nature of the charge against Dean? Because I saw these things.
7224. How is it you remember them, I ask you, sir? Well, I do recollect them.
7225. Are you sure the baby didn't have three feeds? It didn't while I was there; but I know I saw the baby have a drink from the mother upstairs.
7226. What made you notice anything of that kind? I saw her take the baby up and give it a drink.
7227. Did you ever see it done before? Yes; many a time.
7228. What drew your attention to it on this particular morning? I saw it, and recollect it.
7229. When were you last at Konnecke's house? About two months ago.
7230. Have you been to Konnecke's since proceedings were taken at the Police Court? Only once.
7231. Were you there whilst the case was proceeding at Darlinghurst? No, sir.
7232. Have you been there since then? No, sir, I have not. I have only been to Konnecke's once since I left Mr. Konnecke's employ.
7233. Have you been to Darlinghurst Gaol since Dean was convicted? Yes; and I have seen Dean.
7234. When did you go to see Dean? I think it was on the Sunday after he was convicted.
7235. Have you been there since? No; I have not.
7236. Did you go alone on that occasion? No; I was there with four or five others.
7237. Who were the four or five others? They were all friends of Dean's, I should think.
7238. Did you not say that a man came to Dean's door just as Dean was going upstairs with the cocoa and said he had got no eggs? Yes, I have sworn that.
7239. And you remember all that to have taken place? Yes, that is true.
7240. Were you going to pay for the eggs if there had been any? No.
7241. Did you order them? No.
7242. Had you anything at all to do with them? I had not ordered them.
7243. And yet you remember all these details about the eggs? I do. The man came to the front door, and said he had got no eggs.
7244. Do you swear that you remember seeing Dean put the cocoa out of the tin into the cup? Yes; I recollect that.
7245. And that he then made the cocoa with hot water? Yes; that is right. That is all I saw him make it with.
7246. I suppose you are no relation to Konnecke? No.
7247. Are you a German by nationality? No, a Dane.
7248. But you were living with Konnecke at the time Dean was living there? Yes; and I worked for Konnecke years before that.
7249. What time was it when Dean went for that feeding-bottle? Just about 11 or a few minutes after.
7250. Did Dean give you any reason why he was going for that feeding-bottle? No; he told me he was going to the chemist's for a bottle for the baby.
7251. Did he say anything to you about weaning the child? No.
7252. Simply told you he was going for a feeding-bottle, eh? He said, "I am going to the chemist's for a feeding-bottle; I won't be long away."
7253. What time do you say you were in the bedroom? About 8 o'clock or a little after.
7254. How long was that before Mrs. Dean had her breakfast? About half an hour.
7255. And where was the baby when Mrs. Dean fed it? Upstairs in bed with her.
7256. That was half an hour before she had her breakfast? About that.
7257. Where were you with Dean when you were downstairs? In the kitchen.
7258. And what time do you say Dean went to have a lie down? In the forenoon, and must have been about 10 o'clock.
7259. And how long did he lie down? About an hour.
7260. Then up to the dinner-time how long was he away from you? About an hour, or just over.
7261. And then he went away on his bicycle? Yes.
7262. While Dean was upstairs was the baby downstairs with you? Yes.
7263. Was the baby washed downstairs? Dean washed the baby in the dining-room.
7264. Did you see it done? I did.
7265. Did he undress it, wash it, and dress it again? He did—that is true.
7266. What time in the day did he do that? Just after breakfast.
7267. When Dean went to lie down did he go into the room where his wife was? Yes; I saw him.
7268. President.] Is that where you saw him lying down when you took the soda-water up? Yes.
7269. Sir Julian Salomons.] The first time he went to lie down where did he go? I do not know; it was after we had had dinner that I saw him lying on the outside of the bed with his clothes on.
7270. President.] Where was Mrs. Dean then? She was in bed.
7271. And he lying outside? Yes; he was on the bed.
7272. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you on good terms with Konnecke? Not very.
7273. Have you quarrelled with him? Yes; that was why I left.
7274. President.] What did you leave for? We had a row over some work in the salt-house.
7275. Sir Julian Salomons.] What do you mean by having a row—just an argument or a trifling dispute? Yes; just an argument, and I left.

- Hans Bach, 7276. Have you been to Konnecke's house since? Yes.
7277. And when were you there last? About two months ago.
- 3 June, 1895. 7278. I suppose that you will admit, Bach, that you did not write all these things down? I can't write.
7279. Oh! you can neither read nor write? No.
7280. You are therefore speaking from memory about all these matters? That is all.
7281. Mr. Pitcher.] Having given us your account of spending the day at Dean's, let me ask you, have you ever stayed with Dean on any other day? I have visited him before.
7282. Just called to see him, or spent the day with him? I have spent the day with him.
7283. At his house at North Shore? Yes; I think about a month before that Monday.
7284. Have you known Dean for some years? Yes; I lived with him, and knew him before that.
7285. And after he was convicted did you go to see him? Yes; I went there because I knew him well.
7286. Knowing him well as you say, was he a man who always bore a high character? Yes, he was a steady young man.
7287. And very respectable? Yes, very respectable.
7288. Were you always very good friends with him? Yes.
7289. You liked him? Yes, very much.
7290. So you went to visit him in the gaol after he was convicted? Yes.
7291. Was a prison-warder present during the interview? Yes; the interview was through the iron rails.
7292. Was Dean in the condemned cell at the time? Yes.
7293. Was the door of the condemned cell open? No; Dean came to the iron bars, and the door was locked.
7294. Is there an iron railing which kept you and the others apart from the prisoner during the interview? Yes.
7295. And did a warder stand alongside and hear all you said to the prisoner? Yes.
7296. In the account of what took place at Dean's house, did you not say that Dean washed the baby downstairs? Yes.
7297. What was it you said about a napkin? Dean put one on the baby.
7298. Do you mean a clean napkin? Yes.
7299. You are quite sure Dean washed the baby downstairs? Yes, I saw him; I went and got some more hot water and put it in the water he was using. I am quite certain it was downstairs.
7300. Do you say you got some more hot water and put it in the dish? I got some more hot water.
7301. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was the baby washed in a dish? No; in a big basin.
7302. Are you quite sure that it was washed downstairs? Yes; in the dining-room.
7303. You'll swear that this also is true? Yes.
7304. And that you remember getting some more hot water? Yes.
7305. In what room? In the dining-room.
7306. Which do you call the dining-room? The middle room, next to the kitchen.
7307. Was there a fire there? No; not in the dining-room.
7308. Was there a fire in the kitchen? Yes.
7309. Now about Dean being a respectable man and all that;—do you know where he was living before he went to Konnecke's; was he not living with his step-father? I do not know. He used to come to Konnecke's place, at the corner of Liverpool and Sussex Streets, twelve or thirteen years ago.
7310. Did you know of his living with someone named Finch, who is said to be his step-father? No, I do not.
7311. Didn't you know where he was living at that time? No.
7312. Do you mean to say that you did not know where he was living, when you have been out with him? I have been out with him, but not often.
7313. Where have you been together? To the play at the theatre.
7314. Did you ever play cricket with him? No; I don't play cricket.
7315. Where else have you been with him? Down the harbour now and then when he has had a day off.
7316. Did you never know him by the name of Finch? No; only as George Dean.
7317. When he used to come to see you at Konnecke's in Liverpool-street, surely you remember where he was living? Yes; I remember he was living in the Argyle Cut, near the Circular Quay.
7318. Do you not remember this young man living nearly opposite Konnecke's, in the same street, at Woollahra? No, I do not.
7319. Did you ever go to see Dean while he was living in the Argyle Cut? Once I was there.
7320. Whereabouts was the house? It was a big two or three-storied house where he lived.
7321. What was the name of the person who kept it? I cannot tell you that; Dean simply had a room there.
7322. How many years ago is that? I think eight or nine years ago.
7323. Did you know him before he entered the employ of the Ferry Company? It was just about the time that I knew him first.
7324. Do you know what Dean was doing before he went to the Ferry Company? He was working for Mr. Chadwick, who had a sawmill in Liverpool-street.
7325. Was Konnecke living in Sussex-street when this young man was working for Chadwick? Yes; at a place further down the street.
7326. President.] I want to ask you a few questions. Was tea taken up to Mrs. Dean for breakfast? Yes.
7327. You are sure about that? Yes.
7328. It was not cocoa? No.
7329. Did you see the breakfast things brought downstairs after Mrs. Dean had finished breakfast? Yes; after we had breakfast Dean fetched them down.
7330. What do you say was taken upstairs for breakfast? Some bread and butter and two chops and a cup of tea.
7331. What came down? Just a bit of meat on the bones of the chops.
7332. Do you mean to say that Mrs. Dean ate nearly the whole of the two chops? Yes.
7333. Was there any bread and butter left? There was the corner of a piece of bread.
7334. How much bread and butter was taken upstairs? I am not sure; I think two or three slices.
7335. Was the baby taken upstairs after Dean had washed it? Not just then. 7336.

Haas Back
3 June, 1895

7356. When did Dean take the baby up stairs after he had washed it? Not long after; about 10 minutes.
7357. Did the baby want washing after it went up stairs? No; it was just washed when Dean took it up stairs.
7358. At what time did he take the baby up stairs? I could not tell you the time.
7359. Well, about what time do you think he took it up stairs? I think it was a quarter to 10 or 10 o'clock; then he brought it back again, and I minded it afterwards.
7360. I thought you said that after the baby was washed it went to sleep and you put it to bed on the sofa? Yes; that is right.
7361. When did Dean take it upstairs;—did it have a sleep, and then was it taken upstairs? I do not recollect; I think so.
7362. Are you sure it was taken up stairs before it was taken up at 10 o'clock? Yes; it was taken up before that, and he brought it back again.
7363. What was the baby taken upstairs for? I do not know.
7364. Who took it up? Mr. Dean.
7365. Was that before Mrs. Dean came down in her morning wrapper? Yes; I think it was before that.
7366. I should like to know if it was before Mrs. Dean came down and went out in her wrapper? Yes; I think it was, but I would not be sure. I cannot quite recollect that. [After consideration.] Yes; it was before Mrs. Dean went out.
7367. Did you not say that Dean took it up? Yes.
7368. Did you not also say that about 10 o'clock Dean said he would go upstairs and have a lie down? Yes.
7369. Where was the baby then? I had charge of the baby when Dean went upstairs.
7370. When did Dean come down again? He came down about 11 o'clock.
7371. Was it then that he took the baby upstairs again? Yes; that is the time he took the baby up.
7372. Was that before Mrs. Dean came downstairs? Yes. He took it up before he went to the chemist's, and before Mrs. Dean came down. He was not long with it upstairs, and brought it back again and gave it to me to mind until he returned with the feeding-bottle.
7373. Who took the sago up to Mrs. Dean? A young lady; I don't know her name.
7374. Did she take it up to Mrs. Dean? I saw her with a basin with something in it.
7375. Was it milky-looking stuff in the basin? Yes.
7376. And did this young lady take it up to Mrs. Dean? She came straight in at the door and went upstairs.
7377. Was she carrying a basin or a cup? A basin.
7378. Was there much of this milky material in the basin? I do not know how much there was.
7379. Was there a fair quantity? I did not see it in the basin. I saw Mr. Dean go away with the sago to get it made.
7380. You do not know how much there was? No.
7381. Did you see the basin after it came downstairs? I did not see the basin after; it was left upstairs.
7382. It was not washed up with the other things then? No.
7383. I want to know how many times you went upstairs; you went up first in the morning, and Mrs. Dean was suckling the baby;—when did you go again? Not until the sodawater came.
7384. When was that? A little after dinner. Then I went up again when I said good-bye to Mrs. Dean.
7385. Did you see any signs of vomiting or purging about? I did not.
7386. When you went to Dean's house in the morning I suppose you called thinking you would get some breakfast? No, I shan't exactly say that; I did not go for my breakfast; I went there to pass the morning away.
7387. But I suppose you thought you would get a bit of breakfast? Yes.
7388. Do you say you had been there about a month before? Yes.
7389. Did you get any breakfast then? No.
7390. Did you have a meal there then? Yes; I had lunch there that day—Mrs. Dean got it ready.
7391. Was Dean at home to lunch that day? Yes; we all had lunch together.
7392. Where was the baby on that occasion? Mrs. Dean looked after it that day.
7393. Can you remember what you had for lunch? No; I do not recollect now.
7394. You do not remember whether it was chops, steak, or what it was? Yes; I do now; it was cold meat; it was leg of mutton cold.
7395. And what did you have to drink for lunch? Tea.
7396. What were you doing with the baby when that young woman came with the sago? I had the baby in my arms.
7397. Sir Julian Salomons.] And could you see the staircase from where you were? Yes; I was sitting in a chair opposite the door nursing the baby.
7398. Was that when you saw this young woman come through the front door and go upstairs carrying the basin? Yes.
7399. President.] Did the baby show any signs of illness that morning? No.
7400. Was the baby asleep at that time? No; it had been to sleep, and had wakened up.
7401. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean that the baby had been asleep, and wakened up when this young woman came in with the sago? Yes.
7402. Did she say anything to you? No.
7403. Do you say you saw her distinctly? Yes.
7404. And what time was this? About 12 o'clock, I should think.
7405. And is that what you mean by dinner-time? Yes.
7406. How far did she pass from you when she came in through the front door and took the sago upstairs? As far from this chair to that corner (from the middle of the Board room to the Macquarie-street window).
7407. President.] It must have been a pretty big room then? Yes, it was a nice house and big rooms.
7408. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was the baby crying at that time? No, the baby was quiet.
7409. And you were nursing it? Yes.
7410. It had been to sleep and had wakened up, and was quiet? Yes.
7411. And you swear you remember all this? Yes.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Catherine Reay sworn and examined:—

- Mrs. C. Reay. 7392. Mr. Pilcher.] Your husband is a grocer, I believe? Yes.
 7393. And your shop is at Miller-street, North Sydney? Yes.
 3 June, 1895. 7394. Your shop is somewhere near Dean's residence, is it not? Yes.
 7395. How far from Dean's is your shop? It is next door to where Dean lived.
 7396. Do you remember a day, early in March, Dean coming to your place for something? Yes.
 7397. What did he come for? He came for a tin of cocoa.
 7398. Do you remember what day it was he came? I remember his coming for the cocoa, but do not remember the day.
 7399. Can you remember the day of his arrest? We were told about it on the Saturday night.
 7400. You heard on the Saturday that he was arrested on the Friday? Yes.
 7401. When was it he came to your shop for the cocoa with reference to the day when he was arrested? It was at the beginning of the week, either Monday or Tuesday.
 7402. Where did you see him when he came for the cocoa? I saw him in my shop.
 7403. Where were you when he came? I was just coming into the shop.
 7404. Had you been in all the time? Yes.
 7405. Who was serving in your shop at the time Dean came in? Mr. Kirk.
 7406. Who is Mr. Kirk? He was employed by my husband as an assistant in the shop.
 7407. He was an assistant in the shop? Yes.
 7408. Was Dean there? Yes.
 7409. What did you see when you went into the shop? Dean was just getting the cocoa and paying for it.
 7410. What was the cocoa in? A tin.
 7411. And he was just paying for it? Yes.
 7412. Whose cocoa was it—what was the brand? Van Houten's.
 7413. When he got the cocoa what did he do? He went out of the shop directly he paid for it.
 7414. What hour in the day was this? It was between 12 and 1 o'clock.
 7415. Was it mid-day or midnight? Mid-day.
 7416. Did you hear Dean ask for anything else? No. He paid for the cocoa and went out.
 7417. You say you just came in as he was paying for the cocoa? Yes; just as he was paying for it.
 7418. What had passed before that you did not know? No.
 7419. And that was between 12 and 1 o'clock in the middle of the day? Yes.
 7420. Do you remember Mr. Kirk leaving your shop to go a message after that? Yes.
 7421. About what time was that when he went the message? I cannot tell you exactly.
 7422. About how long was it after Dean had been there? I cannot say.
 7423. Do you know where Kirk went to? That was before Dean came to the shop for the cocoa. It was in the early part of the morning.
 7424. Where did Kirk go to with the message? He went down the Shore, and on his way back he called at Lady Abbott's.
 7425. Do you know of Kirk going any message after Dean had bought the cocoa? No; I do not know.
 7426. On that same morning, the morning you saw Dean in your shop, had you seen Mrs. Dean? Yes.
 7427. Where did you see her? I saw her passing the shop.
 7428. Where was she going when you saw her? She was going towards Mrs. Adye's.
 7429. Was that before Dean came for the cocoa? Yes.
 7430. About how long before Dean came for the cocoa was it? I cannot say.
 7431. You know it was before he came for the cocoa? Yes.
 7432. Mrs. Adye's shop is up the street from your place? Yes.
 7433. Did you notice how Mrs. Dean was dressed? Yes; with a loose wrapper. She had no hat on and her hair was hanging loosely round her.
 7434. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is the name of the man who sold the cocoa? Kirk.
 7435. How do you spell it? Kirk.
 7436. Where is this man now? He is outside.
 7437. Did you come here together? No.
 7438. Were you here this morning? Yes.
 7439. Do you know Mr. Moodie? Yes; he came to our place on Saturday night.
 7440. What time did he come to your place on Saturday night? I cannot say.
 7441. Why cannot you tell me the hour he came? I cannot say.
 7442. Look at the memory you have on other matters—look at the things you have just told us, and yet you cannot tell me when this Mr. Moodie came;—what time did he come to your shop? He came on Saturday night.
 7443. That is only forty-eight hours ago; what time was it? I cannot tell.
 7444. What time, I ask you, did he come? I do not know.
 7445. You cannot tell me what time he came, and yet you have such a good memory for all these other matters? I do not know.
 7446. You do not know? No.
 7447. Do you know what day of the month it is to-day—what day of the month is it to-day;—as you have spoken about this matter having taken place some months ago, perhaps you can tell me what day of the month it is?

[Witness, at the suggestion of the President, retired for a short time, to be recalled later.]

James Kirk sworn and examined:—

- J. Kirk. 7448. Mr. Pilcher.] You, I believe, Mr. Kirk, were engaged in a grocer's shop at North Sydney? Yes.
 7449. Are you engaged there now? No, not now.
 3 June, 1895. 7450. Whose shop were you in? Mr. Reay's.
 7451. The husband of that lady who has just retired? Yes.
 7452. Where is that shop? It is next door to Dean's. There is a vacant allotment between the two houses.
 7453.

J. Kirk.

3 June, 1895.

7453. Do you remember seeing Dean early in March last? Yes.
7454. Where did you see him? At Mr. Reay's shop.
7455. When did you see him? On Monday, the 4th March.
7456. What did he come to the shop for? A tin of Van Houten's cocoa.
7457. Anything else? Yes, some eggs.
7458. Did he get the eggs? No.
7459. Why didn't he get the eggs? Because we had none in stock at the time.
7460. Did he get the cocoa? Yes.
7461. And did he pay for it? Yes.
7462. Did anyone come into the shop while he was there? Yes.
7463. Who came into the shop? Mrs. Reay.
7464. What time of the day was it that Dean came into the shop? About half-past 12 or a quarter to 1.
7465. Was it midnight? No, mid-day.
7466. Then what became of Dean after he got the cocoa? He went out with it.
7467. He did not get any eggs? No.
7468. Did you afterwards get any eggs? Yes; about 10 minutes after Mr. Reay came in with the eggs. He had been to Sydney to get them.
7469. Before Mr. Reay came from Sydney with the eggs did you go anywhere? No; I did not.
7470. Did you go to Dean's that morning? Yes; after Dean had purchased the cocoa.
7471. After Dean had purchased the cocoa? Yes.
7472. How long afterwards? About 10 minutes afterwards. Perhaps not that long—from 7 to 10 minutes afterwards.
7473. You went a few minutes after? Yes.
7474. Did Mr. Reay come in at that time? Yes; just about that time. A few minutes after.
7475. He came in with the eggs? Yes.
7476. When you got to Dean's house did you see Dean? Yes.
7477. Is there a verandah to the house? Yes.
7478. Where did you see him;—which door did you go to? I went to the front door, it was wide open, and I saw Dean.
7479. Where did you see Dean? I saw him at the foot of the stairs.
7480. Where was he going? He was just going upstairs.
7481. Had he anything in his hand? Yes.
7482. What had he? A cup and saucer.
7483. Could you see if there was anything in the cup? He was carrying it as if there was something in it.
7484. How was he carrying it? He was carrying it very steadily.
7485. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have known Dean for some time? No, sir.
7486. How long have you known him? A very short time.
7487. How long were you at Mr. Reay's shop? About three or four weeks.
7488. You remember Dean buying the cocoa? Yes.
7489. Do you remember him buying any cocoa before that? No, I do not; I do not recollect him buying any cocoa before.
7490. You had been some message before that? Yes.
7491. Where did you go to? I went down the North Shore, and then came back to Miller-street.
7492. What time was that? About 9 o'clock in the morning.
7493. Did you go any message after Dean had been to your shop and bought this cocoa? No.
7494. The only message you went was at 9 o'clock in the morning? Yes.
7495. And what time did you get back? When I got back it was about 10 o'clock.
7496. When did you say that Dean came for this cocoa? At half-past 12 or a quarter to 1.
7497. Did you make any note of this? No.
7498. Did you write it down? No.
7499. You are speaking to the best of your recollection? Yes.
7500. Did you attach any importance to this purchase? No, none whatever.
7501. When was your attention called to this matter then;—has Mr. Moodie been to see you? Yes.
7502. Is this Moodie a man who put up for Parliament a short time ago? I do not know.
7503. When did Mr. Moodie come to see you? On Sunday last.
7504. When did he come? Yesterday.
7505. President.] He came to see you yesterday? Yes.
7506. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is that the first time he came to see you? Yes.
7507. Is he in the room now? I do not think so.
7508. Has he been speaking to you outside this room this morning? Yes.
7509. Had he ever been to your house before Sunday? No.
7510. What time did he come to your house? At about 11 o'clock.
7511. Did he take any written statement from you about what you told him? Yes.
7512. Did he write anything down? Yes.
7513. Is that the gentleman that has just come into the room now? Yes.
7514. You have not been to the solicitors at all? No.
7515. You went a message, you say, about 9 o'clock in the morning? Yes.
7516. When did you say Dean came to the shop? About half-past 12 or a quarter to 1.
7517. When you went that message about 9 o'clock in the morning, where did you go to? Down towards the ferry boat.
7518. Where did you go to? I cannot say.
7519. What did you go for? I cannot say exactly what I went for.
7520. You cannot say where you went or what you went for? No.
7521. And yet you will swear to this hour, that Dean came to your shop, at this particular moment, and you cannot tell me where you went to? Yes.
7522. Did you know of Dean being charged at the Police Court? Yes.
7523. And at the Central Criminal Court at Darlinghurst? Yes.
7524. And of his being convicted? Yes.
7525. Did you read it in the paper? Yes.

- J. Kirk. 7526. So Mr. Moodie came to you for the first time yesterday? Yes.
- 3 June, 1895. 7527. Have you a good memory? Fairly good.
7528. How is it you cannot remember then the place you went to a short time before? I believe it was to the printer's, but I cannot swear to it.
7529. What fixed your memory about seeing Dean in his house, and the front door being wide open? When Dean was arrested, then, like other people we began to think over past events.
7530. Have you subscribed to the defence fund? No, I have not.
7531. Did you visit Dean at his house? No.
7532. Did you form an impression that he was innocent? I formed no impression whatever.
7533. You said the front door was wide open, and he had a cup and saucer in his hand; what would that have to do with you, and yet you remember it? I simply saw him going upstairs with the cup and saucer in his hand, and a short time before he got some cocoa.
7534. Have you not sold cocoa to many people before? Yes.
7535. What should draw your attention to such a thing as that? Well, the cup and saucer was before my eyes, and I could not help seeing it.
7536. How many months ago is it you are speaking of? Three months ago.
7537. Three months ago is it? Yes.
7538. You went this message, you say, about 9 o'clock? Yes.
7539. And when did you get back? About 10 o'clock.
7540. What did you do then? I went out again at 10 o'clock.
7541. Where did you go to? To different places.
7542. What were you doing, delivering goods? No; not delivering goods.
7543. What were you doing then? The business was a new one, and I was soliciting orders, canvassing from house to house.
7544. What time did you come back? About 12 o'clock.
7545. How far did you go away from this place? Not very far, in the vicinity of the store.
7546. You got back about 12 o'clock? About 12.
7547. You went on some message about 10, you do not remember that? No.
7548. What time did you get back from the message? I went at 9 and came back at 10 o'clock.
7549. Did you start out again immediately? I immediately started out again. I would have gone out in the first instance canvassing, only I had to go this message to the Shore.
7550. You cannot remember what that was? No, I cannot.
7551. You came back at 10 o'clock and started out again immediately to build up the business? Yes.
7552. And came back about 12 o'clock? Yes.
7553. Did you suspect anything wrong of any kind when the cocoa was purchased? No.
7554. Or when you saw Dean, when the front door was wide open, with the cup and saucer in his hand? No, certainly not.
7555. Who came into your shop about half-past 12 o'clock? Dean came in; George Dean.
7556. You say you have made a statement to Mr. Moodie;—did you notice that my learned friend, Mr. Pilcher, asked you whether you had gone out after the sale of the cocoa and you said "No"? No.
7557. How is it that statement escaped you. Had you started before you had gone the message. You were asked this very question. Have you not stated before that you had gone a message? No, never.
7558. You cannot account for being asked that question? No.
7559. Have you never stated that you had? No.
7560. Not how often? No.
7561. And you cannot account for that statement? No.
7562. What kind of a cup and saucer was this? I cannot swear.
7563. Are you sure it was not a cup without a saucer? It was a cup and saucer.
7564. Was there a spoon? I will not swear to the spoon.
7565. Did you speak about his having a cup and saucer in his hand? To whom?
7566. To Mr. Dean? No, certainly not.
7567. What were you doing at the time? I was standing at Dean's front door. When he came into the shop for the cocoa he wanted eggs, and we had none. A few minutes after Mr. Reay, who had been to Sydney, came home with the eggs, and I went down to Dean's to tell him we had the eggs, and that if he wanted them he could have them.
7568. Did you take the eggs with you? No.
7569. Where was Dean with the cup and saucer when you went there? At the foot of the stairs.
7570. Had he commenced to mount them? I cannot speak definitely about that, he might have been up about two steps.
7571. You admit there was nothing to make you notice these trifles? No; but a week afterwards there was.
7572. You admit that you have read the evidence about the trial and at the police court? Yes; as it appeared in the newspapers.
7573. And the evidence before this Commission you have read naturally? Yes.
7574. Where was Mrs. Reay when Mr. Moodie was at your place? I cannot say.
7575. Was she at home? She may have been in; I do not know.
7576. He saw you at your own house? Yes.
7577. You do not know whether he had been to Mrs. Reay's before that? Yes; he told me he had been to Mrs. Reay.
7578. Won't you admit that he told you what Mrs. Reay had said? No, he did not.
7579. Didn't he tell you anything about what Mrs. Reay had stated? No; he said Mrs. Reay had made a statement.
7580. But he did not tell you what her statement was about? I had to make my statement.
7581. And you put it that at 10 o'clock, directly you came back, you went out again? Yes.
7582. You never saw Mrs. Dean on the Monday? No, I did not.
7583. You of course say that when you came back at 10 o'clock you went away again? Yes.
7584. And you cannot tell me at this moment, although you swear to all these details about the cup and saucer, who was the person you went to on this message on that morning at 10 o'clock? No, I cannot.

7585. Can you give me any explanation why you cannot? Only that the message was an unimportant one. J. Kirk.
7586. Didn't you say you were sent a message? Yes; I went with Mr. Reay in the cart. He was going to Sydney and I jumped on the cart. 3 June, 1895.
7587. Will you not admit that you do know where you went to? No, I cannot.
- 7587½. Will you tell me when you went with Mr. Reay in the cart where you went to? I cannot swear where I went.
7588. Where is Mr. Reay? I believe he is in Sydney to-day.
7589. Where did you go with Mr. Reay in the cart? On the North Shore.
7590. But where did you go to? I cannot remember. I tried to remember before I came here, but I cannot do it.
7591. What time did you say Mr. Dean came for this cocoa? About half past 12, or a quarter to 1.
7592. How much did it come to? One shilling.
7593. Did you make any note of the time? No.
7594. How many eggs did Mr. Reay bring with him from Sydney? I cannot tell you that.
7595. You didn't take any eggs round to Dean's house? No.
7596. Why is it that you remember this particular day at all, the day of the month, and the week when this sale of the cocoa took place. You say he paid cash? Yes.
7597. How is it that you remember that? On the Friday Dean was arrested, naturally I began to try and recollect what had happened and I recollected him coming for the cocoa.
7598. It was when you heard that he was charged with poisoning his wife, do you say that you began to think about letting him have this cocoa? No.
7599. Was it only then that you thought of it? Yes.
7600. Was poison said to have been administered in the cocoa? No; not at that time.
7601. Why should it fix itself upon your memory—the fact of his buying the cocoa? The case had not come on in the police court then.
7602. Did you think it was likely it might have been administered with cocoa? Just as likely as with anything else.
7603. And then you began to think it over in your mind? Yes.
7604. It was then you thought it over? Yes.
7605. And about the eggs in the same way? Yes; and the eggs too.
7606. Were the eggs taken there afterwards? No; they were not taken at all.
7607. You only went round to tell him you had the eggs? Yes.
7608. What did Dean say to you? "Oh! very well."
7609. Do you really mean to swear, sir, before this Commission, that you recollect that he said to you three months ago, "Very well"? Yes.
7610. Have you got such a good memory as that? Yes.
7611. Will you swear that? Yes.
7612. You didn't leave any, and he didn't take any? No.
7613. You account for these things because you thought the poison might have been given with the cocoa? It is just possible.
7614. Why did that strike you? Because it was just as likely to be given in cocoa as any other stuff.
7615. Can you give me any other reason? No more reason than that the poison might be given in tea.
7616. That poison might be given in cocoa passed through your mind—will you swear that? Yes.
7617. You only knew he was arrested? Yes.
7618. President.] Did you see Mrs. Dean at all on Monday? No; not at all on Monday.
7619. Why did you ask what time? I am not certain whether it was Monday or some other day. I did not see her on Monday at all.
7620. Mr. Filcher.] Was Dean a regular customer of yours? No; only now and again.
7621. He was a cash buyer? Yes.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Catherine Reay recalled:—

7622. Sir Julian Salomons.] What did you say before when you were here? In reference to what? Mrs. C. Rea.
7623. In reference to your evidence? In here? June, 1895.
7624. Yes, what did you say;—you said your husband was a grocer, and that his shop was next door to where Dean lived? Yes.
7625. You said something about a Monday or a Tuesday that Dean came for some cocoa? Yes.
7626. Do you know a man named Kirk? Yes, he was in the employ of my husband.
7627. Do you remember Dean coming for the cocoa? Yes.
7628. Do you know anything about Kirk being sent a message? No.
7629. You know nothing about that? No; nothing about his being sent a message.
7630. Do you remember your husband going out in the cart? Yes.
7631. Did Kirk go with him on that occasion? Yes, he went with him.
7632. Where did they go to? Down the Shore.
7633. Where did Kirk go to? I don't know.
7634. What time did he come back? He came back about 11 o'clock.
7635. How long was he away? From about 9 o'clock.
7636. And he came back about 11 o'clock? Yes.
7637. What does he do? He serves in the shop and goes out in the cart.
7638. You say he came back about 11 o'clock? Yes.
7639. What did he go about then,—what did he do then? He went into the shop.
7640. What did he do,—did he follow out his ordinary duties? Yes.
7641. Does he sell? Yes.
7642. Did you see him behind the counter? Yes.
7643. Was he in charge when you were out? Yes.
7644. What time did you go into the shop? At about a quarter to 1.
7645. And was he still in the shop? Yes.

7646.

- Mrs. C. Reay. 7646. Where was your husband? He was in Sydney.
 7647. You or your husband or Mr. Kirk attended to the shop? Yes.
 3 June, 1895. 7648. Have you any other man who attends to the shop? No.
 7649. Your husband was in Sydney, and you came into the shop about a quarter to 1 o'clock? Yes.
 7650. Who was attending to the shop while Kirk was away? I was.
 7651. Your husband came back and stayed in the shop till what time? Till shortly after 1 o'clock.
 7652. What did Mr. Reay do then? He had his dinner.
 7653. Who attended to the shop while you were at dinner? Anyone goes into the shop while we are having dinner.
 7654. Who was attending to the shop? Mr. Reay.
 7655. Does Kirk dine with you? Yes.
 7656. Where was he? Having his dinner.
 7657. What did he do then? I cannot say.
 7658. What time did you have dinner? Shortly after 1 o'clock.
 7659. You cannot say whether he was in the shop or not? No.
 7660. What fixes this day in your mind; what day was this? I do not know.
 7661. You do not know what day it is? It was either on Monday or on Tuesday, I am not certain what day.
 7662. You are not certain what day it was? No.
 7663. Did Mr. Moodie come to your house to speak to you about this matter? Yes.
 7664. When did he come? On Saturday night and on Friday night.
 7665. How long did he stay on Friday night? Only a very short time.
 7666. How long did he stay on Saturday night? A very short time; he came to ask for Kirk's address.
 7667. Who was there? Myself and my husband.
 7668. Did he tell you he was going anywhere else? He told us on Saturday he was going to Kirk's.
 7669. Outside the Court here he has been talking to you, I mean Mr. Moodie? Yes.
 7670. Do you remember when that German or Dane was giving evidence, what was Mr. Moodie asking you about then? He didn't ask me anything particular.
 7671. What did he ask you? I cannot say.
 7672. Mr. Moodie was not a friend of yours before this unfortunate matter? No.
 7673. He was a stranger to you? Yes.
 7674. What was Mr. Moodie talking to you about? I cannot remember.
 7675. Will you swear, Mrs. Reay, that Mr. Moodie, outside this very building, did not speak to you about the state of Mrs. Dean's hair or dress? No, he did not.
 7676. Not either of them? No.
 7677. Reflect a little, Mrs. Reay? No.
 7678. Will you tell me what Mr. Moodie said to you outside this building to-day? I cannot say what he said; it was nothing with reference to Mrs. Dean at all.
 7679. President.] He was not talking to you about this case was he, about any evidence you were to give? No, he was telling me to keep up, not to be nervous.
 7680. To be composed? Yes.
 7681. That is all? Yes.
 7682. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where were you when Mr. Kirk came back again? In the shop and in the house.
 7683. While he was minding the shop where did you go to? I don't know.
 7684. When you left him in the shop where did you go to? Into some other room.
 7685. What other room? Both the dining-room and kitchen.
 7686. You were attending to your household duties? Yes.
 7687. Does this shop of yours look on to the road? Yes.
 7688. President.] Into Miller-street? Yes.
 7689. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where were you when you saw Mrs. Dean? I was standing at the shop-door.
 7690. Did she come into your shop? No.
 7691. Did you speak to her? No.
 7692. Did you at that time suspect anything wrong? No.
 7693. How did you come to notice all these trifles? I thought it rather strange to see her going about as she was.
 7694. Did you tell Mr. Dean anything about this before the trial? I did not know Mr. Dean to speak to.
 7695. He lived next door but one to you? Yes.
 7696. Has he not been into your shop? Yes; but I have only spoken to him upon business matters.
 7697. Was he a customer of yours? No; he only came in casually to buy things.
 7698. You knew, of course, of the charge against him? I did not know at the time what the charge was. It was later on in the week that I knew.
 7699. When he was arrested did you not know what the charge was? Yes.
 7700. Did you ever tell Dean about his wife going about in this state? No; I have never spoken to him outside of the shop.
 7701. What time did he come to the shop—after you had seen his wife—for the cocoa? Between 12 and 1 o'clock.
 7702. Did you not speak to him then about his wife going about with her hair down? No.
 7703. Not a word? No.
 7704. You never said anything to him about this? No.
 7705. And you were not a witness at the Police Court? No.
 7706. And you were not a witness at the trial? No.
 7707. You say you were standing at your shop-door when you saw Mrs. Dean? Yes.
 7708. What part of the shop was Kirk in at this time? He was not in the shop. He was out at this time.
 7709. What time was this? It was after 11 o'clock, I think.
 7710. Did you not swear that he remained in the shop till about 1 o'clock? That was after he came back.
 7711. What time did he (Kirk) come back? He came back about 11 o'clock.

7712. What time did you see Mrs. Dean go by your shop? It was a little after 10 o'clock. It was in the early part of the morning, about 10 o'clock. Mrs. C. Reay,
3 June, 1895.
7713. What time do you say? About 10, or a little after 10 o'clock.
7714. Will you swear that that was the time you swore to originally? Yes.
7715. You will swear that Kirk came back at 11 o'clock? Yes.
7716. And remained there till 1 o'clock? Yes.
7717. And then had his dinner? Yes.
7718. Is it not a fact that Kirk came back about 10, and went away, and left the place for some hours? No; he went out about 9 o'clock.
7719. And what time did he come back? About 11 o'clock.
7720. When he came back did he not start out again immediately after? No; he did not go out again until he had had his dinner.
7721. Then before he came back it was that Mrs. Dean passed your place? Yes; before he came back the first time.
7722. What time did Kirk go out in the afternoon? I cannot say.
7723. How is it you have noticed all these other little matters, and cannot tell me that? Mr. Reay was in the shop all the afternoon. Both of us were in the shop.
7724. What time did Kirk go out in the afternoon? I cannot say.
7725. Can you not tell me what time he went out? I do not know.
7726. Did you make any note of the time Mrs. Dean went by this place? No.
7727. You did not make any note of it? No.
7728. What time was it that your husband brought the eggs home? Shortly after 1 o'clock.
7729. Where did he bring the eggs from? I cannot say.
7730. You do not know where he brought the eggs from? No.
7731. You know nothing about that? No.
7732. Why did he bring them? He brought them to sell.
7733. Where did he go for them? I do not know where he went for them.
7734. What time did he start to go for them? About 9 o'clock.
7735. Did he go before Kirk went out, or after Kirk went out? Kirk went with him. They both went together in the cart.
7736. Was Kirk trying to get eggs on the North Shore? No.
7737. What time did Mr. Reay bring back the eggs? A little after 1 o'clock.
7738. Were the eggs then sent round to Mr. Dean? Mr. Dean was in the shop asking for some eggs, and we had not any, and when Mr. Reay came home he sent Mr. Kirk to Mr. Dean's to ask him if he wanted any eggs then, and I do not think he did.
7739. You did not go to Mr. Dean's? If there was anyone else to go I would not go. I am never in the shop unless they are all out.
7740. Then no eggs were sent to Mr. Dean? Not that I know of.
7741. What time was it that Kirk went to Dean's about these eggs? When Mr. Reay came in—a little after 1 o'clock.
7742. What became of Mr. Kirk after that? I do not know.
7743. How is it you can give me no information about this, and yet you remember all these other little things that you have told us; you can give me no idea of what became of Kirk after dinner? No, I cannot.
7744. Did you say you were in the shop when this cocoa was bought? I just came into the shop at that time.
7745. Who took the money for the cocoa? Mr. Kirk.
7746. What cocoa was it? Van Houten's cocoa.
7747. How was it wrapped up? It was in a tin.
7748. The tin was not in anything? No.
7749. How was it wrapped up? It was wrapped up in the original package.
7750. Was it tied with a string? No.
7751. It was in the paper it is sold in? Yes; in the original package.
7752. You did not take the money for it? No.
7753. But you happened to be there when it was sold? Yes.
7754. President.] You know where Mrs. Adye lives? Yes.
7755. In what direction does she live from you with regard to Mrs. Dean's house? Mrs. Adye lives six doors up from us.
7756. Sir Julian Salomons] I understood you to say that at the time Mrs. Dean went by you were standing at the door of your shop? Yes.
7757. There was nobody else in the shop? No, no one else.
7758. What direction was Mrs. Dean going in at the time? She was going towards Mrs. Adye's.
7759. Did she go into Mrs. Adye's? Yes, she went in.
7760. Did you see her go in? Yes; you can see Mrs. Adye's place from our shop.
7761. How far is Mrs. Adye's from your shop? It is six or seven doors up.
7762. Did you see Mrs. Dean come back again? No.
7763. How long did you stay at your door? About 5 minutes.
7764. And you did not see Mrs. Dean come back? No.
7765. You went back then into your shop? Yes.
7766. Can you see the street from your shop? Yes.
7767. Did you see her come back at all? No.
7768. President.] What did Mr. Moodie say to you on the Friday night when he came to see you? He asked if we knew anything about the cocoa, and if Mr. Dean had bought the cocoa there.
7769. Did he mention it to you or did you mention it to him first? I think he mentioned it first, and then we told him he bought it from us.
7770. Is that the first thing you remember having heard about it—on that Friday night? I don't think so; everybody that came to the shop used to speak about it. He was the only gentleman we had at the shop who said anything about it.
7771. Everybody used to speak of what? Mr. Dean's case. 7772.

- Mrs. C. Reay. 7772. About the cocoa? No, nobody knew about that but ourselves. Mr. Moodie asked us if we had given the cocoa.
 3 June, 1895. 7773. He was the first to mention to you about the cocoa? I think he did.
 7774. What did he want to know on the Saturday? He wanted to know Mr. Kirk's address.
 7775. Is that all he wanted? He asked me if I would come and give evidence.
 7776. Did he say anything to you about the time the cocoa was bought? Yes, he asked me if I could remember.
 7777. He didn't suggest any time to you? No, I knew it on account of it just being dinner-time.
 7778. What time was that? One o'clock; it was getting on for 1; nearer 1.
 7779. Have you ever been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office? No.
 7780. You don't know them? No.
 [Mr. Pilcher here drew the President's attention to pages 13 and 14 of notes of the defence at the trial, and mentioned that the references to the cocoa put the Defence Committee on the inquiry.]
 7781. Mr. Pilcher.] You remember my asking you if Kirk had been a message, and you mentioned a name;—do you remember that he went there? Yes.
 7782. Why do you remember;—how is it you mention that name? Because he went there.
 7783. That was his message in the morning? Yes; and other places I do not know of.
 7784. Do you mean he was building up your business in soliciting orders, &c.? Yes.
 7785. You were asked if you ever told Dean anything about his wife at the time you saw her;—until Dean was arrested this matter had not attracted your attention? No.
 7786. Since he has been arrested he has been in gaol? Yes.
 7787. Ever since? Yes.
 7788. I do not ask you offensively;—you have never been there? No.
 7789. Is that Lady Abbott you spoke of? Yes.
 7790. Does not Lady Abbott live quite close to Mrs. Adye? Not very close, but closer than to our place.
 7791. You would not go down to the Shore to go to Lady Abbott's? He had to go down the Shore on business, and on his way back to call at Lady Abbott's.
 7792-3. You admit that going to the Shore would not take him to Lady Abbott's? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

WEDNESDAY, 5 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. H. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

Walter Alfred Newcombe sworn and examined:—

- W. A. Newcombe. 7794. Mr. Meagher.] What is your name? Walter Alfred Newcombe.
 3 June, 1895. 7795. And you are a clerk in the employ of the Asylum Branch of the Government service of this Colony? Yes.
 7796. Dr. Manning.] In the Charitable Institutions Branch? Yes.
 7797. Mr. Meagher.] Where do you reside? At No. 15, Collins-street, Surry Hills.
 7798. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is that the same street that was mentioned some little time ago (Mr. Meagher)? Yes.
 7799. Mr. Meagher.] How long have you lived in that locality? In Collins-street fourteen or fifteen years.
 7800. Do you know a house in that locality known as Madame Rose's? Yes, I do.
 7801. Where would the location of Madame Rose's be in regard to where you live? Right opposite.
 7802. Did you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes, by sight.
 7803. Did you know her daughter? Yes, I knew her by sight.
 7804. That would be during the period you have been there? Yes.
 7805. How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour and her daughter by sight? About fifteen or sixteen years.
 7806. You have only known them by sight? Yes, that is all.
 7807. Have you ever seen Mary Seymour enter Madame Rose's? Yes, I have.
 7808. Where is the entrance to Madame Rose's house? In Collins-street.
 7809. That would be directly in front of where you live? Yes, directly in front.
 [The President here read telegrams received from the Postmaster-General, sent by James Hobson, North Sydney, to Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean.]
 North Sydney, 17th April, 1895.
 From James Hobson, Milson's Point, to Mrs. Dean, 2 Little Collins-street, Surry Hills.
 "Dean's sentence commuted by Executive to imprisonment for life."
 25th April, 1895.
 From James Hobson, North Shore Times, to Mrs. Seymour, 2 Little Collins-street, Surry Hills.
 Splendid news for you. Come over if possible to-night.
 7810. Mr. Meagher.] Do you remember ever seeing Mary Seymour on any occasion leaving Madame Rose's house? Yes; on one occasion.
 7811. How long ago would that be? At the latter end of 1893 or the beginning of 1894.
 7812. What circumstance impresses this on your memory;—what time was it you saw her coming out? At 7 o'clock in the morning.
 7813. What day of the week was it? Sunday. 7814.

W. A.
Nowcombe.
5 June, 1895.

7814. You saw her then leaving Madame Rose's house at 7 o'clock one Sunday morning? Yes.
7815. Did she come out of the entrance opposite to your place? There are two entrances, a door and a gate.
7816. What entrance did she come out? She came out of the door.
7817. In what street was this? In Collins-street.
7818. What caused you to be up that morning about 7 o'clock. How did you come to be up at that hour? I was just getting ready to go out fishing.
7819. Did you notice how she was dressed? Well, I cannot say how; in her ordinary walking dress.
7820. Had she a hat on? Yes.
7821. Did you see where she went? She went towards her shop.
7822. You mean where she lived? Yes, to the shop where she lived.
7823. President.] Did you see her going in? I have seen her going in.
7824. Did you see her going in on this occasion? No.
7825. Sir Julian Salomons.] For all you know she might have gone in for a moment or two, and have come out again immediately? Yes.
7826. At the time you speak of did she have a jug in her hand? No; nothing whatever.
7827. She was coming out when you saw her on this Sunday morning? Yes.
7828. You said that you have seen her going over to Madame Rose's? Yes.
7829. How many years ago is that? It was about the middle of 1893. I am not sure of the date.
7830. It might be further back than that? Yes.
7831. You have some dim recollection of seeing her over there;—you know the mother had a shop? Yes.
7832. Did not these people supply Madame Rose's? Yes; I have seen things taken over there.
7833. What time did you say you saw her going over to Madame Rose's? They were taken over by Mrs. Seymour.
7834. How many times did you see that happen? I have seen things taken over by Mrs. Seymour on several occasions.
7835. Did Mary Seymour go over with her mother? No, she went by herself.
7836. You stated that they were taken over by Mrs. Seymour? Yes, the goods were taken over by Mrs. Seymour. It might have been fruit or something like that.
7837. Not might have been? It was in a basket.
7838. What time of the day was this? I cannot say what time of the day. It might have been in the afternoon about half-past 4 or 5 o'clock.
7839. You are only speaking to the best of your recollection? Yes, to the best of my recollection.
7840. How many times have you seen the mother taking this basket of things to Madame Rose's? I cannot swear to how many times.
7841. Was it two or three times? Two or three times; it might have been more.
7842. How many times have you seen the daughter going over? Twice.
7843. What time was that—in the morning or in the afternoon? In the evening about 8 o'clock.
7844. From her own mother's shop? No, from Crown-street on the opposite side. Not from the shop.
7845. Who was with her? She was by herself.
7846. Where was she going to when you saw her? To Madame Rose's.
7847. Did you see her come out again? No.
7848. Had you been watching these things? No; I was passing by at the time.
7849. Have you ever been into Mrs. Seymour's shop? No, never in my life.
7850. You had no connection with Mrs. Seymour, or the daughter? No.
7851. When did you see Mary Seymour, at 8 o'clock in the evening, going to Madame Rose's? In 1893.
7852. What time was it when you saw her going there? I cannot say what time.
7853. You say that twice you have seen her going in there? Yes.
7854. What was the other time you saw her? It was a little later on.
7855. Where was she coming from then? From the shop.
7856. Once you saw her not coming from the shop, and once you saw her going from the shop? Yes.
7857. Was that also in 1893? I cannot swear whether that was or not.
7858. Was she carrying anything then? No; I cannot remember.
7859. Of course you will admit frankly that it was not a matter of any importance to you? No; none whatever.
7860. Was it a thing you had any interest in whatever? None whatever.
7861. You stated that you were just passing at the time? Yes; I happened to be passing by across the street from my place.
7862. Then you saw her going in? Yes.
7863. She might have come out in one minute afterwards—might she not? Yes; she might.
7864. You cannot tell if she was taking things there or not? No; I cannot tell.
7865. Just think for a moment;—have you got a good memory. You say you have lived there for fifteen or sixteen years; I might remind you they were not there then. How long did you say you were living in this house where you are living now? The house I am living in now I have been living in for three or four years.
7866. Whereabouts is that house? Right opposite Madame Rose's.
7867. You said something about living somewhere about fifteen or sixteen years ago? Yes, but not in the same place.
7868. Where were you living before then? About six or seven doors lower down.
7869. How long were you living there? Ten or eleven years.
7870. Is that Aston-terrace, Collins-street? Yes.
7871. No. 15, Aston-terrace? Yes.
7872. Then did you live at No. 31 previous to that? Yes.
7873. You have been living in that part for fifteen years altogether? Yes, in that one street.
7874. For fifteen years you have been living in that one street? Yes.
7875. Who asked you to come here? I received a subpoena.
7876. From whom did you receive the subpoena? From Crick and Meagher.
7877. How did you come to receive a subpoena. How is it you know anything about this matter. Is it

- W. A. Newcombe.
5 June, 1895.
- through seeing this girl going over on one occasion, and on another occasion coming from the shop;—have you been in communication with them? No, none whatever; I have been reading the evidence.
7878. That would not account for you getting a subpoena;—who did you go to? I went straight to Crick and Meagher.
7879. Eh! Can you tell me how it was you got communication with Messrs. Crick and Meagher? No, I cannot tell.
7880. You have been talking to them about it? Yes.
7881. Is George William Newcombe a relation of yours? Yes; he is my father.
7882. You have been talking with your father about it? Yes, I have a few times.
7883. How many times altogether have you seen Mary Seymour? I cannot say.
7884. About how many times have you seen her? I could not state—I have seen her often.
7885. Hundreds of times, I suppose? Yes, hundreds of times.
7886. You have seen her always properly dressed, and behaving in a proper manner? Yes, she seemed to be.

[Witness withdrew.]

James Read Heath recalled:—

- J. R. Heath.
5 June, 1895.
7887. Sir Julian Salomons.] I wanted to ask you a few questions, Mr. Heath;—what is your name? James Read Heath.
7888. You were living in Riley-street, Surry Hills, seven years back? Yes; about six years ago. I am not positive as to the time.
7889. About six or seven years ago? Yes; a good long while ago.
7890. Is that the time you were living in that neighbourhood? I think it was about five or six years. I lived in Collins-street, and went into Foveaux-street, round the other side of the block.
7891. Have you been living there ever since? No; not ever since.
7892. How long did you live in the neighbourhood? Between two and three years.
7893. Have you seen this young woman that was Miss Seymour, and now Mrs. Dean, about after that in the street? Oh, yes.
7894. Was she not always respectably dressed and well-behaved, and as respectable as any other person in the street? Yes. I have seen her up to a couple of years ago.
7895. Where have you seen her? In the street.
7896. Was she always respectably dressed? Yes; the same as any other girl.
7897. Was she always conducting herself respectably? Yes; I do not know anything about her actions.
7898. You have seen her in the street up to about two years ago? Yes; numbers of times I have passed her in the street. I am living now in the same locality in a part of Surry Hills, Oxford Square.
7899. Do you only go by the time? I have seen her at Mark Foy's and at private houses.
7900. You have always seen her behaving and conducting herself properly? Yes; always behaving herself well. I did not speak to the girl more than two or three times after she was a grown-up girl.
7901. You have seen her frequently at shops and in the street? Yes; I have seen her outside Mark Foy's with other ladies, and at the skating rink.
7902. Have you seen her at the skating rink? I have seen her going towards the skating rink with a lady once or twice.
7903. You are living in the neighbourhood yet? Yes.
7904. Mr. Meagher.] You have been asked if you have seen her in the street? I really think I have stated all I know in reference to the case.
7905. Do you know a person named Mrs. Smith, who lived in Surry Hills about two or three years ago? Yes.
7906. Was that near the corner of Riley-lane and Foveaux-street? Yes; she lived there at that time. I knew her too living in two other places beside that.
7907. Where—in Surry Hills? No; in Bourke-street, Woolloomooloo—at No. 297, Bourke-street—and I knew her at the corner of Riley-lane and Foveaux-street. I only live just about there.
7908. Do you know what reputation this Mrs. Smith had—what character she possessed? I think she kept one of those fast houses. As far as her own character is concerned, I do not know anything about it; I used to serve her with wood and coal.
7909. Have you seen Mary Seymour in company with this Mrs. Smith in the street? Yes; I have seen her going towards the skating rink with Mrs. Smith.
7910. President.] What time was this? In the evening.
7911. What year was this in? A couple of years ago, two or three years ago, when the skating rink was open.
7912. It is a long time ago since that was open? Yes.
7913. Do you mean the Darlinghurst skating rink? Yes. That was when Mrs. Smith was living at 297, Bourke-street, close to my yard.
7914. When you saw Mary Seymour with Mrs. Smith she was not doing anything wrong, was she? No. She was always nicely dressed.
7915. She was not doing anything wrong? No, for all I know. She was always decently dressed.
7916. Mr. Meagher.] Have you seen her at Mrs. Smith's house, or have you seen her going there? I saw her there once, at the corner of Riley-lane and Foveaux-street. That was where they lived at one time.
7917. Do you know, Mr. Heath, a lady named Madame Flamère, or De Henri Ville? Yes.
7918. Do you know No. 80, Glenmore Road? Yes. She went by the name of Adams, or Flamère. I removed them from Upper William-street to 80, Glenmore Road, with my van.
7919. Did she employ you to do any work for her? My vans removed her from Upper William-street to Glenmore Road.
7920. Then outside your wood and coal business you are a van proprietor? Yes.
7921. Did you notice any other girls at the house? Yes; there were three or four girls there the morning I moved them. The Upper William-street house was a large house in a square vacant piece of land standing off the street.
7922. Whose house was that? Madame Flamère's.

7923. There is no doubt she possessed the reputation of not being quite respectable;—can you say that? J. R. Heath,
No; I cannot say that.
7924. Can you say if you have ever seen Mary Seymour in the company of any of those girls you saw there? She came there that morning I removed the furniture, and went away again immediately afterwards. 5 June, 1895.
7925. Sir Julian Salomons.] Had she any parcels with her? She just came to the front. There is a verandah all round the house. It belongs to Mr. Jones, the solicitor.
7926. And she went away immediately? Yes; there were several other girls there, but I did not know their business, or what it was.
7927. Mr. Meagher.] Did you see her conversing or talking to the other inmates of that house? Some of them left immediately after, and I saw no more of them.
7928. Did she go away by herself, or in company with any of the other girls? No; she went with one of the girls.
7929. You subsequently took the furniture away to Glenmore Road? Yes.
7930. Sir Julian Salomons.] Why did you not state these things before, when you were here a fortnight ago? I was distinctly told by Mr. Meagher not to make any statement, but only to answer the questions put to me.
7931. You have not been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's since you have been examined? No, I have not been at their office.
7932. Not since you were examined? No.
7933. You say you were told to only answer what you were asked? Yes.
7934. When was it you saw this Madame Flamère? Two or three years ago; not since they moved from there.
7935. What time in the morning, or was it in the daytime? Between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning.
7936. She stayed there? Yes.
7937. Did you know the young woman who went away with Mary Seymour? No, I did not know her.
7938. Was she a respectable girl? I cannot say.
7939. You cannot say she was not a respectable girl whom she went away with? No.
7940. You moved her furniture? Yes.
- 7941-2. And you supplied her with wood and coal? Yes, for a year or eighteen months.
7943. Did you ever see Mrs. Dean there more than once? No.
7944. The only time was when you saw her go there and speak to that young woman, and she and that young woman went away? Yes.
7945. The whole of the time you supplied them with wood and coal you did not see Mary Seymour there? No.
7946. Did you know Mrs. Smith? No, I did not.
7947. Have you ever been in the house? No, only through the house; I had to pass through to carry the wood and coal in.
7948. You saw Mrs. Dean with Mrs. Smith once in the street? Yes.
7949. Have you ever seen Mrs. Dean in that house? No, I didn't see her in that house.
7950. How long did you know the house? For about twelve months.
7951. And then only one evening? Yes, one evening.
7952. What time was this in the evening? About 7 or 8 o'clock.
7953. You saw her walking in the street, and Mrs. Smith was walking with her? Yes.
7954. And they were going towards the Darlinghurst skating rink? Yes.
7955. Where was it you saw Mrs. Smith;—you admit you did not see them go in there? No. I said going in that direction.
7956. They might have been going to visit someone? Yes; I said in that direction.
7957. Where they were going you do not know? No.
7958. How long ago is that? Two or three years ago. I had no reason to take any notice of her movements.
7959. How long did you know that Mrs. Smith's house;—how long were you supplying things there? For about twelve months.
7960. You never saw this young woman in that house? No, I did not.
7961. Never? No, never.
7962. Won't you admit that you never heard any word against Miss Seymour's character? No, never. I say positively I never heard anything about her character.
7963. She was always well-conducted and well-behaved? Yes, as far as I knew.
7964. How many years have you been living in that neighbourhood? A good many years. Nine or ten years.
7965. And you are living there still? Yes.

[Witness withdrew.]

Edward Harold Binney, Esq., M.B., sworn and examined:—

7966. President.] What is your name? Edward Harold Binney.
7967. Dr. Todd.] You are the senior medical resident of the Sydney Infirmary, I believe? Yes.
7968. Do you know Mrs. Dean, doctor? Yes.
7969. Has she been under your care in the hospital? Yes.
7970. Can you tell me the date when she was admitted to the hospital? On the 17th of May.
7971. Can you say if Mrs. Dean is now in a fit state of health to come and give evidence before the Commission here? Yes; I think she is.
7972. President.] Do you think she is? Yes.
7973. How could she be brought here—in a cab, I suppose? Yes.
7974. Dr. Todd.] Do you think she could walk here now? Yes, she could walk here. She is able to walk about, but she has never tried any distances.
7975. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have attended Mrs. Dean at the hospital? Yes.
7976. Since the 17th of May, I believe? Yes; I have seen her every day.

7977.

E. H. Binney,
Esq., M.B.

5 June, 1895.

- E. H. Binney, 7977. Have you noticed that she is and has been suffering from peripheral neuritis—have you noticed that? Yes, she is.
 Esq., M.B.
 5 June, 1895.
7978. In your opinion, is that the result of influenza? Do I believe it is the result of influenza?
 7979. Yes? I cannot say that it is or that it is not.
 7980. President.] Has she been under your care in the hospital? Yes, since the 17th of May. I have seen her nearly every day since the 17th of May.
 7981. Are you the physician attending her? I am the medical resident officer, and I see her every day. She is practically under Dr. Thompson's care.
 7982. Have you examined her? Yes.
 7983. Will you not admit that your belief is that it is not caused by influenza? I have not any belief as to what is the cause.
 7984. You have no belief, no opinion on the matter? I have no opinion as to the cause.
 7985. You have not formed an opinion? I formed an opinion of her condition.
 7986. Will you not admit that this peripheral neuritis is not the cause of influenza? I do not believe that; I have not really formed an opinion as to what is the cause.
 7987. Dr. Todd.] Has it ever been suggested to you by anyone that her condition was due to influenza? No, it has not.
 7988. You have not thought of that question? No.
 7989. President.] You have formed no opinion as to what her condition is due to? No.
 7990. Dr. Todd.] I have asked you if you think it was due to influenza? No.
 7991. Are you of opinion that her present condition, or can you say for certain that her present condition is due to arsenical poison? I have formed no opinion.
 7992. President.] You have formed no opinion as to what her condition is due to? No.
 7993. You have formed no opinion? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

Lilly Konnecke sworn and examined:—

- Lilly
 Konnecke.
 5 June, 1895.
7994. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you know if Mrs. Dean's baby was taken to your house? Yes; it was.
 7995. Did you take it there? Yes.
 7996. Where did you take it from? From Mr. Gale's.
 7997. When was it taken to your house? On the 6th of March.
 7998. It was taken to your house? It was taken to Dean's house first—then to our house.
 7999. Your house is at Woollahra, is it not? Yes.
 8000. And your father keeps a butcher's place in Woollahra? Yes.
 8001. The baby was taken to your place on the 6th of March, did you say? Yes.
 8002. Is the baby a boy or a girl? A girl.
 8003. When you took it back it was very ill, and you took it to the doctor? No; we never took it to the doctor, nor anyone from our house.
 8004. Was it taken from the North Shore on the 6th of March? Yes, on the 6th of March.
 8005. From where? From Mr. Gale's to Mr. Dean's.
 8006. Between the time of its leaving Gale's and being taken to your house, was it taken to Dean's? Not at all.
 8007. Was it taken to the doctor's? No.
 8008. Do you remember the child after it was taken from your house being taken to Dr. Newmarch at North Shore? I do not know whether it was taken to any doctor after it left our house.
 8009. It was taken to the North Shore some two or three days afterwards? Mrs. Seymour took it, but I do not know where.
 8010. Do you know if the child was ill when it came to your house? I do not think the child was ill when it came to our house.
 8011. Do you know that it was not ill after it came to your house? It was pale looking, but I do not think it was ill.
 8012. Who asked you to take the child? Dean came to our house and asked me to take the child away.
 8013. And you did take it away? Yes.
 8014. When did you take it away? On Wednesday, the 6th.
 8015. You went over and brought it away? Yes.
 8016. You will not admit the child was not taken by somebody from your house to Dr. Newmarch's? I do not know whether it was or not.
 8017. How many young ladies are there in your family; how many sisters have you got? Five sisters.
 8018. There are six of you altogether? Yes.
 8019. When did Mrs. Seymour take the child away? On the Tuesday following in the next week.
 8020. She took it away on the Tuesday following? Yes.
 8021. Was it brought back to your house after that? No.
 8022. It never came back to your house? No.
 8023. And whether it was taken to Dr. Newmarch or not you do not know? No; I do not know.
 8024. You say the child was pale but not ill? No, sir.
 8025. Do you mean it was a strong healthy child? I do not know whether it was strong and healthy.
 8026. Was it a sickly, weak, child? It was only pale looking.
 8027. Do you think it was a strong and healthy child? Yes.
 8028. Only pale looking? Yes.
 8029. President.] You do not know whether it was taken to Dr. Newmarch or not while it was at your house? It was not while it was at our house.
 8030. Was it at your house from the 6th to the 12th? Yes.
 8031. And then Mrs. Seymour took it away? Yes.
 8032. When it came to your house was it looking pale and ill? It was pale looking, but I do not think it was ill.
 8033. Mr. Todd.] Did it take its food properly in your house? Yes.
 8034. Everyday? Yes.
 8035. Did it sleep well? Yes.

8036. Did it cry? It cried now and again.
 8037. Did it whine like a sickly child? I do not think it did.
 8038. Have you had any experience of children to know if it had been recently weaned? No, not at all.
 8039. Did you have much to do with the child while it was at your house? I was nursing it most of the time.
 8040. So that if anybody in your house should know anything about it you should know? I think so.
 8041. It was in perfect health all the time it was in your house? Yes.
 8042. Did Mrs. Seymour express any dissatisfaction with the manner in which the child had been treated in your house? No, not at all.
 8043. Was it on account of it being ill that Mrs. Seymour took it away? I do not think so.
 8044. She had no complaint to make against you? No.
 8045. And since then she has made no complaint? No, not that I have heard.
 8046. President.] Who has the child now? That I do not know.
 8047. Sir Julian Salomons.] What made you come here this morning? I was asked to come.
 8048. By whom were you asked? By a gentleman.
 8049. Who was the gentleman? I was at Mr. Meagher's office yesterday afternoon.
 8050. And did you make a statement there? I do not know if it was a statement.
 8051. Was what you said taken down? Yes; I think so.
 8052. Yesterday? Yes.
 8053. Did some gentleman ask you to come here this morning? Yes; some gentleman asked through the telephone.
 8054. Did he ask you through the telephone this morning? No; the day before yesterday.
 8055. Dr. Jones.] Did the child vomit while at your house? No.
 8056. Or purge? No.
 8057. Sir Julian Salomons.] My friend asked you about your experience. I suppose you have had no experience of children. How old are you now? Nineteen years of age.
 8058. Dr. Todd.] Are you the youngest member of your family? No; I have three sisters younger than me.
 8059. Do you know whether any of those know anything about babies? No; I do not.
 8060. Do you remember when they were babies? No.
 8061. Have you had anything to do with other people's babies? No, sir.

[Witness withdrew.]

Edward Johnstone Jenkins, M.D., sworn and examined:—

- 8061½. Dr. Todd.] You are one of the visiting physicians at the Sydney Hospital? Yes.
 8062. And Mrs. Dean has been under your charge since she went into the hospital? Yes.
 8063. You have examined her and prescribed for her? Yes, I have not prescribed for her but I have had the treatment of her.
 8064. You have not prescribed drugs? No.
 8065. You have examined her with a view to this inquiry? Yes.
 8066. And you have formed an opinion as far as you are capable of forming an opinion of her case? Yes.
 8067. You have seen her every day except to-day? Yes, I have not seen her to-day.
 8068. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you examined her in reference to this particular inquiry? Yes.
 8069. Dr. Todd.] How long has she been under your care? Ever since she came to the hospital.
 8070. That is since the 17th of May? Yes, I think so.
 8071. Do you think she is in a fit condition to come and give evidence before this Commission? Yes, she has been walking about for some time now.
 8072. Have you formed any opinion that the illness which she has is peripheral neuritis? Yes.
 8073. President.] The illness that she has, or the illness that she has had? The illness that she has, but she is now in the recovering stage of it.
 8074. Dr. Todd.] Do you think this peripheral neuritis is due to alcoholism? No, certainly not.
 8075. Will you describe to the Court on what grounds you base your diagnosis of peripheral neuritis? In the first place she has distinct loss of power in her legs.
 8076. Sir Julian Salomons.] We admit that she has had peripheral neuritis; the only question in dispute is the cause of the illness, not the nature of it.
 8077. Dr. Todd.] Have you formed any opinion as to the cause of this peripheral neuritis? No.
 8078. You have not formed an opinion as to the cause? I do not know the cause.
 8079. You are not able to discover the cause? I do not know it.
 8080. There are several causes for peripheral neuritis. She might have had it in a multiple form? Yes.
 8081. Have you formed an opinion as to the cause in this case? No. I am unable to state the cause beyond the ordinary history of the case and what I have seen in the newspapers.
 8082. In cases of peripheral neuritis similar to this, where the question would arise as to what was the cause, what would you depend mostly upon on forming the diagnosis? The electrical reaction, to a large extent; but, further, the history of the case is the most important.
 8083. As to the cause of it, not as to whether it is peripheral neuritis or not; but taking it for granted it is peripheral neuritis, you want to inquire the cause of it? The history of the case is the most important.
 8084. Did you form an opinion on this case? On the history of it.
 8085. Have you discussed the question with yourself as to whether this is arsenical peripheral neuritis—have you thought over this? Yes. I could not very well help that.
 8086. There are certain signs, are there not, by which peripheral neuritis due to arsenical poisoning can be definitely determined? I believe that is so in cases of chronic arsenical poisoning, but I am not certain about the signs in acute arsenical poisoning in this particular stage of her illness; but still there are definite signs.
 8087. Sir Julian Salomons.] What are these? The pigmentation of the skin, the falling out of the hair, œdœma or swelling of the eyelids, and changes in the nails; occasionally there are others.
 8088. Dr. Todd.] Are there any skin lesions that are pathognomonic of this—characteristic of this? Yes, ulcerations in certain forms in chronic arsenical poisoning.

Lilly
Koussouck.
5 June, 1895.

E. J. Jenkins,
Esq., M.D.
5 June, 1895

8089.

- E. J. Jenkins, Esq., M.D.
5 June, 1895.
8089. Are there any rashes that you know of? Yes; erythematous rashes—red rashes.
8090. You would not say they were symptoms? I am not well enough up to say if they are pathognomonic, but they do occur.
8091. Red rashes are a symptom? I cannot absolutely say they are pathognomonic.
8092. Do they occur here in this particular case? No.
8093. Of all these symptoms you have described which are characteristic and by means of which peripheral neuritis due to arsenical poisoning can be differentiated from peripheral neuritis due to other causes, these symptoms you have given are those of chronic arsenical poisoning? I could not say all of them, one of them that I have mentioned, the swelling of the eyelids, would occur in acute cases, possibly also the red rashes, but I would not be certain on that point.
8094. These symptoms are from chronic arsenical poisoning? Yes, that is my idea.
8095. Now about these characteristic signs;—has Mrs. Dean any of these? None marked at all.
8096. None since she came under your care? I might add, perhaps, that she has a change in her nails which is peculiar, but I am not absolutely able to state that it is due to arsenic. She has white lines in her nails which she says have only developed since the illness has commenced on the 4th of March.
8097. That is her history? Yes.
8098. Sir Julian Salomons.] Can you see those white lines distinctly? Yes, distinctly.
8099. Dr. Todd.] What do these white lines indicate? Some change that has occurred in the nutrition of the body.
8100. Is that a sudden change or a gradual one? As far as one could see, gradual. It might occur with any acute illness.
8101. The significance of this change in her nails amounts to that she had an acute illness sometime not long ago? Yes, that is all I can say about it.
8102. Why did you say not long ago? Simply the fact that one knows that it takes a certain length of time for these things to develop. According to skin authorities you can tell pretty well from the distance of the line from the root of the nail when the illness occurred.
8103. This white mark will disappear altogether in time? Yes.
8104. About this falling out of the hair. Have you noticed any falling out of the hair? Not more than would happen in most women. It is quite common with women to lose their hair, and I did not attach much importance to it. It was not coming out in handfuls, and it is not particularly loose; you cannot pull it out very easily.
8105. Any fever or any acute illness will cause that? Yes.
8106. Does she show any signs of having had shingles? No, none whatever.
8107. No signs of shingles? No, none whatever.
8108. Of all these characteristic signs which you have mentioned in connection with chronic arsenical poisoning, is any one of those by itself enough to found an opinion upon? I should say not.
8109. Suppose this woman had peripheral neuritis and falling out of the hair, and a history of vomiting and purging three months before, would you be able to say that she had on that account arsenical poisoning? No.
8110. If she had falling out of the hair, and this mark on the nails, would you be able to say on this account she suffered from arsenical poisoning? No.
8111. As regards the description of the pigmentation by authorities, do you know whether it is described in acute poisoning? That I am not sure of.
8112. You are only speaking of what you have read? Yes.
8113. But in chronic cases? Yes; the cases I refer to are where people were taking arsenic medicinally, and then got an acute attack from taking an overdose. I have not seen a case; I do not remember having seen any acute cases of arsenical poisoning. I am not speaking from experience, but only from what I have read.
8114. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are not speaking from experience? No; I am only speaking of what I have read.
8115. Do you know of anything characteristic about the pigmentation in arsenical poisoning,—how would you diagnose it from any other pigmentation? In well-marked cases the skin has a peculiar bronzed appearance—a general sort of pigmentation over the whole of the body; that is one form of it. Another form is, if the patient is suffering from any form of skin disease, a particular patch might be pigmented more than any other part. It remains a long time, as a rule, or may fade away altogether.
8116. Do you know whether it has been ascertained whether this pigmentation is due to an actual deposit of arsenic in the tissues of the skin or to a stimulation of the pigment cells in the skin? I do not know.
8117. You do not know whether that has been decided? No; I do not.
8118. Has Mrs. Dean got the deep reflexes? At the present moment she has the knee jerks well marked. The superficial reflexes are normal.
8119. Dr. Jones.] About the knees? She has the tendon reflexes in the knees—in both knees.
8120. Dr. Todd.] In the biceps? That is natural.
8121. In the triceps? Yes; everywhere. I examined her.
8122. The reflex is as it should be? Yes.
8123. Is there anything abnormal in the tendon reflex in the legs? The left knee jerk is more marked than the right.
8124. Are you able to form an opinion as to whether the reflex in the left is an increase or decrease in the normal? From the electrical examinations we have made it is probably a slight increase in the left.
8125. In the right? It is about normal in the right.
8126. Have you applied all the electrical reactions carefully? Yes.
8127. Are the results consistent with one another? The results during the last two examinations are consistent. The first we did not take any note of, because the battery was not in good order. The last two were practically the same, as far as I could see.
8128. Has she what is known as the reaction of degeneration marked? No; she has not.
8129. It is not marked? No, not at this stage.
8130. You think she has peripheral neuritis? Yes.
8131. You have seen more marked cases of peripheral neuritis than that? Yes, certainly. In her case the signs are not strongly marked.

8132. Are the electrical changes, if there are electrical changes, marked or very slight? They are generally marked, but in this particular case they are not strongly marked; but they are generally.
8133. Are they qualitative changes, as we term them? No, quantitative, not qualitative.
8134. There is no reversion of the normal formulae of muscular contractions? No.
8135. Have you in your own practice ever had any case of peripheral neuritis of this kind in any way resembling this of Mrs. Dean's, arising after influenza? No, I have not.
8136. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have no knowledge of such a case? No, I have never seen it in my practice.
8137. You have had no experience of such a case? No.
8138. Do you know if multiple peripheral neuritis of this form does arise from influenza? I have read that it does. In fact cases have occurred in Sydney in the hospital, but I have not seen them. There was one case a short time ago put down to that, but I cannot say what it was.
8139. You are speaking only of what you have heard? Yes.
8140. It was put down to that? I cannot say it was.
8141. Dr. Todd.] Do you know what that peripheral neuritis was—I have asked you about multiple peripheral neuritis? It was different from this case altogether. It affected the whole of the muscles; this is localised to a few.
8142. By being more extensive than by being less extensive? Yes.
8143. It involved both the arms, legs, and throat? Yes; legs, both arms, and the trunk muscles.
8144. And the trunk muscles? Yes.
8145. In your opinion it was not an isolated case of peripheral neuritis? No, it was a multiple.
8146. It was multiple and symmetrical? Yes.
8147. You did not know the early history at the onset of this peripheral neuritis in Mrs. Dean? No; only from hearsay. I heard it as a matter of fact from Dr. Newmarch.
8148. What did Dr. Newmarch tell you? He said that at the very first time he saw her all the reflexes and sensations were very much increased; that there was a marked increase of sensation and a great increase of the reflexes.
8149. Did he tell you if these deep reflexes had been greatly abolished? No; greatly diminished, but not abolished.
8150. Was that conversation directly after Dr. Newmarch knew of it? I only wanted that for my own information.
8151. Dr. Jones.] Was that in the early part of her illness; do you mean on March 7th? I cannot say if it was when he saw her at her own house, or whether it was over at the North Shore hospital; but he said, I think, it was in the early part of her illness.
8152. Dr. Todd.] Do you know that in arsenical peripheral neuritis the deep reflexes are almost always lost? Yes; I believe so, but I only know from reading.
8153. Is it a fact that in peripheral neuritis due to arsenical poisoning the deep reflexes are almost entirely lost? Yes. I only know it from my reading.
8154. In this case there are a great many points of divergence between it and a classical case of arsenical poisoning? Yes.
8155. I asked you if you thought Mrs. Dean was in a fit state to give evidence here, and you said "yes"? Yes.
8156. Sir Julian Salomons.] I suppose you know of many cases of poisoning which have given rise to criminal proceedings? Not very many.
8157. But you do know of some? Yes.
8158. You know that in cases of people who have been convicted of poisoning that different theories have been formulated by medical men? Yes.
8159. You will admit that in nearly every case different theories are put forward by medical men as to how it happened? Yes.
8160. And also that a knowledge of the state of Mrs. Dean before she came to the hospital would be valuable in deciding what caused this peripheral neuritis? Yes, I quite admit that.
8161. Supposing she had been a patient of yours you would have an advantage in deciding that question? Certainly.
8162. You seem to have already admitted that all you have seen is perfectly consistent with this peripheral neuritis having arisen from arsenical poisoning? Yes, if I had known she had taken it I should be certain of it.
8163. If other circumstances had pointed to her taking arsenic, would it not confirm that view? If I knew she had taken arsenic I would certainly put it down to arsenic.
8164. There is nothing that you have seen that is not consistent with that? It is not a typical case, but you get different cases.
8165. When Mrs. Dean came to you she was gradually getting better—when she came to the hospital? I looked upon her case as a very mild one. She was recovering quickly, although for some days she was unable to move about, but she gradually improved. There might have been symptoms which passed away before I saw her.
8166. She was what you would call on the mend? Yes.
8167. She was improving? Yes.
8168. You had no knowledge of Mrs. Dean before that? No, not at all.
8169. Was she a perfect stranger to you? Yes, I had never seen her before.
8170. There might have been symptoms before she came to you which would be decisive, and which had passed away when she came to you? Yes, there might have been.
8171. If you had been attending to her you might be able now to say absolutely that she was suffering from arsenical poisoning? I might.
8172. You have only known her since she has been at the hospital? Yes, since the 17th of May.
8173. What did you say about her nails—I would like to know something about that? There was a peculiar mark on the toe-nail, as well as on the finger-nails—a peculiar white line, linear or semi-linear.
8174. Is not that a well-known result or symptom from arsenical poisoning? It might occur after any severe illness.

- E. J. Jenkins, Esq., M.D.
5 June, 1896.
8175. Is not that one of the things that does show itself—that about the nails—after arsenical poisoning? Undoubtedly it has occurred from what I have read.
8176. Have you noticed anything with regard to the pigmentation of the skin since Mrs. Dean was at the hospital? I have not been able to find any definite signs of pigmentation. I have examined it very carefully and do not find any pigmentation at all. I think she is peculiarly free from it at the present moment.
8177. It might have passed away before she came to you at the hospital? Yes, possibly so.
8178. I did not understand what you said about the reflexes of the knee. What was it you said? In connection with arsenical poisoning as a rule from what I have read they are abolished. It was the rule for them to be quite absent. They are present in this case, but, as a rule, they are absent.
8179. You are speaking of chronic arsenical poisoning? In the case of any arsenical poisoning the knee jerks appear at a certain stage. This is characteristic of peripheral neuritis.
8180. Have you had any experience in this matter? I am speaking from books.
8181. Any competent medical man would know these books? Yes.
8182. They are common knowledge to members of the medical profession? Yes.
8183. You have no personal knowledge of arsenical poisoning of any kind? No.
8184. You have never had a case under your medical care of multiple peripheral neuritis due to arsenic? No; not till this one.
8185. And you frankly admit that in this one all the symptoms, as far as you have noticed—that is to say, supposing Dr. Newmarch said of his knowledge of the case from what he saw that it was a case of arsenical poisoning—you have not seen anything to cause you to doubt that opinion? I should be quite satisfied.
8186. You have never had such a case? No.
8187. Dr. Todd.] With reference to that last question put to you by Sir Julian Salomons, if Dr. Newmarch had told you—you not knowing the case—that it was due to typhoid fever, would you have taken that for granted? Yes.
8188. Do you say it may be due to any other acute illness? Yes.
8189. Or due to septicæmia, would you have taken it for granted? Yes, from any of the causes of peripheral neuritis.
8190. If you knew she had had influenza would you have taken it as due to that? Yes.
8191. Is it not a rule that in cases of arsenical poisoning the nails fall off? Yes, I believe, as a rule, that in chronic arsenical poisoning they do, but I would not be definite as to acute cases; it might be so, but I am not sufficiently well up in that.
8192. You are describing book knowledge, and you are satisfied that the books say that there is “falling off” of the nails? Yes, a falling off like the hair.
8193. Do the books say that this particular mark is due to arsenical poisoning? I have not seen any particular reference to it in any book.
8194. But you have often seen this mark on the nails in acute pneumonias? Yes, but I have never seen it so well marked.
8195. Sir Julian Salomons.] Will you not admit that the falling off of the nails in arsenical poisoning is not usual, but that it is exceptional? I should say it was extremely rare.
8196. What I wanted to ask you was this—but my learned friend appears to have misunderstood it—if a doctor knew the previous history of the case (Dr. Newmarch or any other doctor) before it came to you would he not be able then to tell better whether it arose from these other causes than you would be;—would he not be in a better position to say that it arose from these other causes? Yes, he would be in a much better position.
8197. You now admit that you knew nothing of this patient before;—supposing you had been the medical attendant, and knew the previous history, might you not then have the means for stating positively it did not arise from these other causes stated by Dr. Todd? Yes.
8198. And shut them out? Yes.
8199. That is to say that in a certain stage you can form a definite opinion from having a knowledge of the history of the case? If you had a knowledge from the beginning.
8200. Whereas a time might arise when you are not able to state positively what it was caused by? That is if I found any definite symptoms myself that led me to make a diagnosis.
8201. Apart from any opinion do you not admit that there is nothing that has come under your knowledge since that woman came into the hospital, that is inconsistent with arsenical poisoning? I should say I would be quite convinced of it if I were certain she had taken it.
8202. Dr. Todd.] If your first diagnosis was wrong of the acute illness, your ultimate diagnosis of the peripheral neuritis would be wrong, would not that follow? If I were the medical man who attended her from the beginning, yes. It would depend on whether other things turned up in the meantime, as they sometimes do to alter my diagnosis.
8203. Dr. Jones.] Would the nature of the electrical reaction in any given case of peripheral neuritis enlighten you as to the cause of the peripheral neuritis? I do not think so.
8204. You told us that you had formed no opinion as to the cause in this particular case, and also that you were quite sure that it did not arise from alcohol? Yes, that is from my general observation of the patient and from what she has told me. Of course, believing her as I would any other person.
8205. Were you able to exclude any other causes of peripheral neuritis? Yes, I cannot find any other cause.
8206. Were you able to exclude any other causes at all; you exclude alcohol? Yes, I cannot say that I should exclude any other cause. Lead poisoning was the principal thing I thought of after the alcohol, and I excluded it.
8207. Sir Julian Salomons.] You exclude syphilis? Yes, syphilis; I exclude these three.
8208. Dr. Manning.] Any other; gout and acute rheumatism? Yes.
8209. Dr. Jones.] There was no pigmentation of the skin? I have not been able to find any; I mean not anything of any consequence. There might be a freckle here and there, something of that sort, but nothing definite that I can find at the present moment.
8210. Was there any pigmentation about the epigastric region? She had a mark just here above the navel, which she said was due to her stays.
8211. Was there some darkness of the skin there? Yes, there was a little mark there. S212.

8212. What about the aureola? It was very dark and marked too, but I put that down to the fact that she had been confined about the beginning of the year. E. J. Jenkins,
Esq., M.D.
8213. Can you tell us what her gait was at the time of her admission to the hospital? She had a peculiar gait, not absolutely an ataxic gait, but more of a waddle and shuffle than an absolute locomotor ataxy. 5 June, 1895.
8214. The gait, however, was ataxic? Yes; she had not got the particular high step that is general [Witness illustrated with his foot.] She more shuffles along than lifts her leg.
8215. Did you test the condition of the power of flexion and extension of the feet? They were all very well marked considering. She had power of complete flexion and extension. If you put your hand against her feet she could resist very well—she could push your hand very well.
8216. I am talking of the time of her admission? At that time it was not so marked as now. She was then weaker.
8217. There was a diminution on her admission? Yes; a good deal.
8218. Both in flexion and extension? Yes; she did not move about very well at all then. It was rather difficult to get much information. We did not get her on to the floor at all, we only got her on the side of the bed and lifted her across.
8219. Sir Julian Salomons.] You said there was a gradual diminution when she came to the hospital? Yes; a general weakness of the lower extremities.
8220. She is gradually getting better? Yes; she is now able to walk about quite well, but she has this peculiar gait.
8221. Has she got this gait yet? Yes; she has got a well-marked peculiar gait.
8222. Do you call it non-co-ordination? No, inco-ordination.
8223. Is not that one of the things that arises after, or that is produced by, arsenical poisoning? It arises in any form of peripheral neuritis. It is not uncommon in this particular form, but there are forms in which it is more marked than in this.
8224. Peripheral neuritis, particularly due to arsenical poisoning—it is not inconsistent with that? No.
8225. Dr. Manning.] When you saw this case it was practically the fag end of it? Yes.
8226. Would you have been in a much better position to have formed a diagnosis if you had seen her at an earlier period? Yes, in a much better position.
8227. Now about these reflexes. You found them pretty well restored? Yes.
8228. Is that inconsistent with their being absolutely lost at an early stage? They may not be lost at any stage.
8229. But they often are? Yes.
8230. They were not lost? They were not lost.
8231. They often are? Yes.
8232. Was the condition in which you found them inconsistent with their being absolutely absent in a prior stage? No.
8233. Did you not think this rather long for the areolar mark to be here present five months after confinement? I am not in a position to say.
8234. On this scar on the navel there is some pigmentation still? There is some, but it would not have attracted my attention.
8235. Have you noticed whether she is hysterical? No; since she has been in the hospital she has been particularly free from hysteria.
8236. Dr. Todd.] With regard to these reflexes, about which Dr. Manning asked you, is it at all likely that if the deep reflexes were lost—entirely abolished in March or April—that you would expect them to be entirely restored the next month? It would be very unusual.
8237. When they are abolished, is it not a rule that they are abolished for a very long time? In the case of alcohol they take a very long while.
8238. About the pigmentation of this scar, at the lower part of the sternum, was that due to the pressure of the stays;—would it be pigmented? Yes, it would be pigmented.
8239. As a rule, wherever there is friction there is pigmentation on the body? Yes; I attach no importance to that at the stage in which I saw it.
8240. Did you notice that the whole time she was in the hospital? No, not till someone asked me about pigmentation, and I looked for it and found it.
8241. Was there any wasting of the muscles? No, no wasting. No naked-eye wasting.
- [Witness withdrew.]

James Giles, Esq., S.M., sworn and examined:—

8242. Mr. Meagher.] Your name is James Giles? Yes.
8243. You are a Stipendiary Magistrate for the Colony? Yes.
8244. You presided at the Police Court investigation in March last when Dean was charged with attempting to poison his wife? Yes. J. Giles,
Esq., S.M.
8245. The charge was poisoning with attempt to murder? Yes. 5 June, 1895.
8246. Can you remember Mrs. Dean giving her evidence at that time? Yes; I do.
8247. After she had given her evidence do you remember the portion of the Court she sat in? Yes; she sat on my right hand on a form.
8248. While the hearing of the charge was proceeding was your attention directed to her conduct? Yes.
8249. Will you kindly tell us what it was, and what remarks you made? I noticed that she was laughing rather immoderately, and I rebuked her for what I thought gross levity of conduct, considering the charge that was laid against her husband.
8250. She did not seem to indicate any signs of illness? Oh, no. She said she was going to write me a letter, explaining what had caused her to laugh, but I did not think that was necessary, and I told the sergeant to tell her that it was not necessary for her to write.
8251. Who told you that she wished to give some explanation? Sergeant Brennan informed me that Mrs. Dean thought of writing me a letter in explanation of what had caused her to laugh, and I said to him to tell her not to write to me, that I did not want to hear from her on the subject; I told the sergeant she need not do that.

J. Giles,
Esq., S.M.
5 June, 1895

8252. What was her explanation? I asked the sergeant if he knew what her explanation was, and he told me that it was the peculiar manner in which Mr. Meagher pronounced the word arsenic that caused her to laugh.
8253. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is the name of the sergeant? Brennan; I am not sure whether it was the detective-sergeant who was in charge of the case, but he was acting with the sub-inspector in the case.
8254. President.] What sort of a man was he? A tall man.
8255. How did Mr. Meagher pronounce the word arsenic;—did you notice anything peculiar about it? No, I did not notice any peculiarity.
8256. Sir Julian Salomons.] We will have Brennan called in, so that there can be no doubt about it. [Sergeant Brennan was called in for identification.] Is that the man you are speaking of? Yes, Sergeant Brennan, of the North Shore.
8257. You say that the sergeant told you that her laughter arose from the peculiar pronunciation by Mr. Meagher of this word arsenic? Yes; that would be the statement that he understood she was going to write to me in explanation.
8258. Mrs. Dean had told him that? Yes; I understood the sergeant to say that. I was engaged in a case, and I wanted to get on with the business, and I did not take much notice.
8259. Will you swear that the sergeant said such a thing to you? I won't swear positively to that man.
8260. You won't swear to that man saying so? I said I think it was; but I won't be positive that it was the sergeant.
8261. Don't you admit that it was only one person that spoke to you? Yes, one police officer. I have not said it was him. It was the officer who had charge of the case, with the sub-inspector.
8262. And who gave evidence? Yes; he was engaged in the case.
8263. Don't you know Sergeant Brennan well? I do not know many of the police by name.
8264. Did the person give evidence in the case? Yes; he produced some bottles.
8265. That is the person you have just seen? I am inclined to think it is.
8266. And he gave evidence before you? Yes, of course he did.
8267. Don't you recognise that man? I am inclined to think he is the man. I really didn't know much of him before.
8268. What did you say to him upon his telling you that? I said, "She need not write to me at all. I do not want to hear anything more about it." Neither I did.
8269. And then you used the expression about her laughing immoderately? Yes, she was.
8270. Is it not a fact that Mr. Meagher, who was sitting there, referred to something she had said;—were not some depositions being read over at the time you are speaking of? I am not clear about that.
8271. Will you swear that;—did not Mr. Meagher turn round to her and say, "We have only your word for that"? She was not in the box at all—she was not within his view for him to speak to her.
8272. Then why can't you tell me that that sergeant was the man who gave evidence in the case? I think he was the man, but I won't swear positively.
8273. And that was the man who told you? I think so.
8274. How is it you speak of this irrelevant matter? Because I am inclined to think he was the man, and I told you he was the officer engaged in the case.
8275. And who gave evidence? Yes.
8276. And who produced the bottles? Yes.
8277. Did you travel down with Mr. Crick, or Mr. Meagher? He was on the same tram.
8278. Who was on the same tram—Mr. Crick or Mr. Meagher? Mr. Meagher.
8279. Is it a fact that directly you came into the Court, and without anybody having said anything to you, you ordered the prisoner to leave the dock, and come and sit down where the solicitors were? The usual course is to make an application to me.
8280. Without any application on that morning? I very frequently order persons to do it.
8281. Did you on this occasion? I cannot remember that I did. I do not think I would have done it without an application.
8282. Don't you remember that when you came into the Court he was in the dock? Yes.
8283. And that afterwards he was sitting all the time at the solicitor's table? Yes, with my permission; decidedly.
8284. That when you came into the Court, before anything was said, you immediately ordered him to leave the dock? I do not believe I did, not unless some communication was made to me.
8285. Will you state positively you did not? The usual thing.
8286. Will you state positively that you did not, without any application being made to you? I am not certain; I knew nothing about the case till I came into the Court.
8287. You ordered the man out of the dock? I do not recollect the circumstance at all.
8288. Which of these gentlemen travelled down with you? I really cannot tell you. They did not travel with me; they were on the same tram.
8289. Were they in the same compartment? I do not think so.
8290. Just think it over? I really cannot tell; I was sometimes outside, and sometimes inside.
8291. President.] Where were you on this occasion? I cannot tell; there is no reason why I should remember it; I sometimes stand on the outside of the tram.
8292. What do you mean on the outside? There is a seat on the outside of the tram.
8293. Does the tram go up to the Court? Yes; to the other side of the street.
8294. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did not you and Mr. Meagher get out together at the Police Court? I may have done; I only supposed we would, but I may not have spoken to him that morning.
8295. Were you not talking to Mr. Meagher before you came down to the Court? It is possible I did.
8296. And when you came into the Court that you arranged for this man to come out of the dock? Decidedly not, not unless arranged; I do not believe I did. Mr. Meagher must have asked me.
8297. Will you state that positively? No, I cannot; because I cannot fix the matter in my memory.
8298. Without any request being made in Court at all? I do not think it at all likely I did such a thing.
8299. But you will not state it positively? No, I cannot; I know nothing about it.
8300. You know Mr. Meagher was a member of the firm, Crick and Meagher? Oh, yes; certainly.

8301. At the time you are speaking of was there then existing an order for the payment of costs against you under a prohibition? I do not remember anything of the sort; the Crown usually pay costs awarded against magistrates. I am under no obligation to any man in Sydney.

8302. President.] When Mrs. Dean laughed, and you rebuked her for it, did she laugh heartily? Yes, I thought rather so; I have no doubt that she was laughing.

8303. Do you know the difference between laughing hysterically and an ordinary laugh? Yes.

8304. Was she laughing hysterically? No.

8305. Was it the laugh of enjoyment? No doubt about it. I did not want any correspondence with the unfortunate woman. I was rather indignant considering the gravity of the charge that she should take such a liberty. My feelings were very much aroused, and I thought her conduct was disgraceful, and I told her so in open Court. My remarks were published in all the newspapers.

8306. Mr. Meagher.] At any time during the hearing at North Shore was there anything between you and me during the whole of the case, I might ask you in a direct way, which apparently was asked in an indirect way. Was there ever one syllable between you and me about the Dean case? I think it only fair to Mr. Meagher to say that when I got out of the tram that morning he did not walk up with me, and I thought he was acting a very proper part in doing so. I may also say that I received a subpoena this morning, and was rather surprised to find I was asked to come here.

8307. The only means of locomotion from the ferry is the cable tram? Yes; sometimes I try to get a cab, but they are not always there.

[Witness withdrew.]

Margaret Sophia Parker sworn and examined:—

8308. Mr. Meagher.] What is your name? Margaret Sophia Parker.

8309. You are a widow, I believe, Mrs. Parker? Yes; a widow.

8310. And where do you reside? At No. 8, Bellevue-street, Surry Hills.

8311. Do you remember where you were living at the end of the month of March last, or the beginning of April last? I was staying in Cooper-street.

8312. And, I believe, Mrs. Parker, you are what is known as a clairvoyant? Yes.

8313. And I believe that at the end of March, or in the beginning of April, you were exercising your powers of clairvoyancy? Yes.

8314. That was in the present year? Yes.

8315. And while you were in Cooper-street? Yes.

8316. And I believe you have people who come to you as clients? Yes, I have.

8317. Do you remember that at about that time a young lady came to you whom you afterwards know as Mary Dean? Yes.

8318. Do you remember what day of the week Mrs. Dean came to see you? Yes; on a Monday evening, about 7 o'clock.

8319. Was she by herself? When I saw her, yes, she was accompanied by a child whom she left in the drawing-room, and then she came to me into my room.

8320. President.] What age was the child? I cannot say; I did not see it until I saw it in the street. I would not know the child if I were to see it.

8321. The child could walk about? I do not know her.

8322. How did you know it? I heard about it.

8323. Sir Julian Salomons.] How old was that little girl? I do not know whether I saw the right one or not. She came running up to me and said, "Mrs. Dean desired to speak to me."

8324. What age was she? I cannot say what age she was, she might be 7 or 8 years old.

8325. The child came up to you and asked if Mrs. Dean could see you;—was this after? After the time they were going to hang him.

8326. President.] You ought to be able to tell this.

8327. Sir Julian Salomons.] Can you tell us clairvoyantly? You get the scene and you do not go back to that scene.

8328. Mr. Meagher.] At any rate before Mrs. Dean came in a child came up to you, and asked if Mrs. Dean could see you? Yes.

8329. Was this after? Yes; after the time they were to hang him.

8330. This Monday evening that you speak about, was that before the trial of Dean at Darlinghurst? Yes; the Monday before the trial of Dean at Darlinghurst.

8331. President.] Is that what you mean by the end of March or beginning of April, when you remember Mrs. Dean coming to you? That was the Monday before the Thursday of the trial.

8332. Mr. Meagher.] She came into your consultation-room? Yes.

8333. Will you tell us, as closely as you can, what was the conversation you had with her, and what questions she asked you? I asked her if she wished to consult me. She said, "Yes," and I told her to take off her gloves. I brought her over to the lamp and put on my glasses and looked at her hands. I said to her, "You are a married lady." She said, "No." I said, "No; not a married lady?" She said "No;" I said, "No?" "Show me your hand again. You are, and you have a child." She said, "No."

8334. President.] You said, "You are a married lady," and she said "No," and you said, "You have a child?" I asked her to let me look at her hand again, and I said, "You have a child"; and she said, "No"; she denied it staunchly.

8335. How did you know she was married; did you look at her wedding-ring? Oh no! we have signs that I can tell anything in that way. There is a gentleman in the "Australia" now who is practising the same thing.

8336. You can tell without seeing the wedding-ring? She had nothing on her fingers, that is, a very frail mark.

8337. Mr. Meagher.] After she denied having a child what was the next question? I said, "I saw her husband."

8338. President.] By this power of clairvoyance? Yes; clairvoyantly. I said, "I see your husband." She said, "Where is he?" I said, "In gaol." She said, "Will he get out of it?" I said, "Yes, but there is a woman in this crime; you can get him out of it if you like." She said, "Yes, I know there is a woman in it." She distinctly distinctly repeated it three times: "There is a woman in it." Then I said, "You can get him out of it." She said, "No, if he got out she would get divorced; that she hated him." I said, "I see an old woman holding a child, a dark-haired woman"; and I said, "There is another old woman by." I said, "I see a fair man here with different complexion from your husband, but he seems to do something with water." She said, "That is the man I am going to marry." Then I said, "You are not married?" and she said, "No" three times. I cannot remember other things just now, but a knock came to the door and I was asked out. A lady sent her daughter to ask me not to go out that evening because she desired to see me, and when I went out a little girl in the passage said, "You have got Mary Dean in there." I thought of Dean, the solicitors, and I said, "Dean! Dean! what Dean?" and she said, "That woman who has been poisoned by her husband." I asked her in and said, "Are you Mrs. Dean?" and she said, "Yes." She then said, "Will you go over it again?" and I said, "No, it has gone." She said, "Can't you give me a cut of the cards?" I said, "I can do it no more for you." I said, "Won't you save your husband?"—that is how I know it was on Monday—I said, "Won't you save your husband?" She said, "No, I hate him." I said, "That was all I knew when I told her that man would not marry her." She said, "That is all you know about it." That is how I know it was Thursday. He was going up to be tried. Then I saw on Monday that he was going to be hanged. Then I called on Mr. Crick and told him what this creature had said.

8339. On the Monday you came into Messrs. Crick and Meagher's and gave a statement? I think it was on Tuesday.

8340. With regard to the fair man—you told her there was a fair man in the scene? Yes.

8341. Did Mrs. Dean make any request, or any remark, when she heard of the fair man? She asked me if she would marry that man, and I said "No, never." She said, "No! that is all in my eye." Then she said, "If he gets out I will get divorced." Mrs. Seymour came to my house last night and penetrated my room.

8342. Are you sure it was Mrs. Seymour that came to your house last night? She introduced herself as Mrs. Seymour.

Sir Julian Salomons: The police took Mrs. Seymour up there.

8343. Mr. Meagher.] Your professional name I believe is Madame Von? Yes.

8344. You say that in this scene that you as a clairvoyant saw a fair man and two elderly females? Yes; two elderly females and a child.

8345. Was it then that she spoke to you about marriage? Yes, I described the man, and not a dark man, and told her the dark man was her husband. Mrs. Dean told me she was never married, but going to be married, to a fair man. She denied the child when I charged her with being a mother.

8346. What did you say when you told her you saw a fair man and two elderly females? She asked me which she was going to marry, and I told her she would never marry the fair man. I told her she was married to the dark man and she denied it.

8347. Did you describe the dark man to her? Yes.

8348. President.] Have you ever seen any one like the dark man? Only while in clairvoyant state.

8349. Did you describe the dark man to her? I did; I described both; and she disowned the dark man in toto.

8350. Mr. Meagher.] Did you tell her the dark man was her husband and that he was in gaol? Yes, and she denied it.

8351. Sir Julian Salomons.] You told her all this as a clairvoyant of course? Yes.

8352. You did not go to the gaol to see Dean, did you? No, I came here in the interests of justice I hope, and I don't want to be made fun of now I am here.

8353. Mr. Meagher.] Were you informed that this woman was Mary Dean when she left your house? While I was engaged with this woman a knock came to the door, and when I opened it a little girl had been sent by her mother to ask me not to go out that evening as she was coming to see me. As soon as I went into the passage this little girl told me that Mrs. Dean was the woman in the house. I said to her, "What Mrs. Dean do you mean?" (thinking perhaps my client was one of the Deans, the lawyers, of the firm of Dean and Dean.) This girl said to me that it was Mary Dean, who was supposed to have been poisoned. Then I came in and confronted Mrs. Dean. I asked her if she was the Mrs. Dean in question, and she said she was.

8354. Did you ask her if her name was Mary Dean? I did. She said, "Yes, that is correct." She told me something, and I said to her, "When you come to anyone like me for opinions you do no good to your character by denying anything, because, as a clairvoyant, I have means of finding things out." I said there was a woman in it, and she said, "Yes, there was." I said to her, "Won't you save him?" She said, "No; and if he gets out of gaol I will get a divorce and marry the other one." I made some reply, to which she answered, "I hate him." Let me explain that I took no notice of this case until after Mrs. Dean had called on me; that was on the Monday, and she said he was going to be up on Thursday. The first thing I saw in Monday morning's Herald was that someone was going to be hanged. I said there was a woman in this. I then called at Crick and Meagher's.

8355. On the Monday did you see that Dean had been sentenced to death? Yes.

8356. Did you attend at our office on the following day and make a statement in effect the same as you have given in evidence to-day? I did.

8357. Since giving that statement have you been subjected to inquiries by the police? Yes; I have had to change my residence. I have actually been frightened of them.

8358. President.] Frightened; what had you to be frightened of? Well, my landlady was frightened. She did not like the policemen coming about the place; I did not like it either. Then it injured me, as I only receive ladies as clients; I never treated with gentlemen.

8359. Where are you staying now? I am staying at Bellevue-street, Surry Hills.

8360. Mr. Meagher.] Did you know Mrs. Seymour previous to last night? No; I never saw her in my life till then. She came to the house; she asked my landlady to allow her in. As soon as she entered she said, "I may as well tell you I am Mrs. Seymour." I said, "What brings you here?" She then told me that it was a lie that I had told Messrs. Crick and Meagher. I then told her that she must leave my room.

8361. President.] To what was Mrs. Seymour referring when she said that you had told Messrs. Crick and Meagher a lie? The time Mrs. Dean visited me, I suppose.

8362. Mr. Meagher.] In what part of the house did this conversation take place? She marched right through to my table and sat down.

8363-4. Was it the front room? No; in my bed-room.

8365.

8365. Was she accompanied on this occasion by any policeman? I do not know who accompanied her. I think there were some policemen at the door; but I know some policemen were there on Saturday.
8366. Did I understand you to say that you never received more than one person at a time? Yes, that's all, and only ladies then. I never receive gentlemen. A man came to the house yesterday and said he wanted to visit me professionally, but my landlady has got strict orders not to admit men if they come.
8367. What took place with the policemen? The constable asked me to make a statement. He said he belonged to the police force, and I said, in reply, I would have nothing to do with them. The whole three then went away together. They frightened the life out of me.
8368. Would you know those police officers or that police officer again? No, I would not.
8369. President.] Why should you be so frightened of the policemen? Well, it is annoying to have a constable round the door bothering after an old woman like me.
8370. Mr. Meagher.] Did Mrs. Dean come to see you at the time you were living in Cooper-street? Yes.
8371. Was it in consequence of the persistent visits of the police to your house there that you changed your residence? No, I didn't like the locality.
8372. Where did you move to? I moved nearer to town, but the police followed me there.
8373. Where did you go to? I went to 218 Riley-street—Mrs. Beck's.
8374. Did the police follow you there? They did.
8375. Did they cause you to leave Riley-street? Partly, by preventing clients coming to me. Then I had to take a cheaper place as I could not afford to keep that on. They followed me still to where I am now, and they were there twice on Saturday and again on Sunday morning.
8376. Do you mean to say that since you gave this statement to Messrs. Crick and Meagher you have been persistently annoyed by the police calling on you? I have.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mr. James Elliott sworn and examined:—

8377. Mr. Meagher.] Are you the sub-editor of the Sydney Morning Herald? I am.
8378. I believe you live at North Sydney? I do.
8379. Do you know George Dean? I have known him for about nine years.
8380. Was he during the whole of the time you speak of in the employ of the Ferry Company? The whole of that time.
8381. During that nine years I suppose you came into contact with him almost daily? For about four years, while I was living at Mossman's Bay, I saw him once or twice a day.
8382. Sir Julian Salomons.] As a passenger on the steamer, I suppose? Yes; and while he has been a skipper on the night-boat running from Circular Quay, I have seen a great deal more of him, and have had conversations with him nightly.
8383. Mr. Meagher.] I suppose the night-boat does not carry a great number of passengers? No; I am generally the only passenger at the time I go over.
8384. And as a passenger you frequently held conversation with him? Every night it has been my custom to stand by the wheel and talk to Dean during the whole of the passage across.
8385. During these conversations which you say you had nightly on the boat has Dean confided to you any of his domestic affairs? He has spoken a great deal to me about his private affairs; indeed I have been much surprised at his having told me certain things.
8386. Did he make then a kind of confidant of you? Well, he has asked me for my advice on various matters; for instance, when he came to live at North Shore he told me that he was going to take a house there, and as he knew I lived somewhere in the neighbourhood, he asked me about the place.
8387. Could you form any opinion during this intimacy, when he was confiding to you his domestic affairs, as to whether he was fond of his wife and home? I have always heard him speak in terms of great affection of his wife, and with regard to the child, he seemed to be a very devoted father.
8388. Did you notice anything in his action or in his conduct which would lead you to form an opinion of his character at that time, or that would be to his detriment in any way? From my estimate of Dean, I have always regarded him as a steady, sterling, straightforward fellow.
8389. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are the sub-editor of a paper, I believe? I am—the Sydney Morning Herald.
8390. And when did you first know this young man, the prisoner? When he was a boy on the Mossman's Bay boat.
8391. Do you, as a man of the world, consider that if Dean had done anything wrong that he would have told you so? No, perhaps not, but I formed my estimate of Dean's character from what I have seen of his general demeanour.
8392. Were you ever in his house in your life? Never.
8393. Do you know his wife? I do not.
8394. I understand you to say, and correct me if I am wrong, that he told you a good deal about his private affairs—that he made you a kind of confidant; but did he ever tell you in these confidential moments that he spent three months in Wagga-gaol? No, he did not.
8395. Did he ever tell you that he lived with a man named Finch, while that man Finch was living with a woman to whom he was not married? No.
8396. Did he ever tell you that he was living with Finch at the time when Finch was living with a woman who was not this young man's mother? He did not.
8397. Did he ever tell you that he had a brother on board the training-ship "Vernon"? He did not.
8398. Did he ever tell you that his mother's place at Narrandera had been burnt down; that the insurance money could not be paid, and that his mother was living in a tent until he could build her another home? No, the only references he made to his mother were when he said she lived at Albury, and that his father was a policeman.
8399. Did he tell you that his father had died? He told me that his father died when he was 3 months old. He said nothing to me about Narrandera.
8400. Oh! he told you his father was a policeman, and that he was a child himself at Albury? Yes.
8401. Did he tell you what became of his father? Yes, he told me that his father met his death under rather sad circumstances.

Mrs.
M. S. Parker.

- J. Elliott.
5 June, 1895.
8402. Did he ever tell you anything about Finch? He never mentioned him.
8403. Did you ever hear the name of Finch in connection with this young man? I never heard of the name of Finch at all until this case came up. I knew Dean by the name of the "skipper," or George. I did not even know his name was Dean until comparatively recently.
8404. Is it not a fact that you only knew him through travelling by the night-boat? Yes.
8405. That you formed your acquaintance by talking to him when going over? Yes; and every night I held a conversation with him which would last, perhaps, about a quarter of an hour.
8406. As to what he told you, whether it was true or not, had you any means of finding it out? I had a very favourable opportunity of judging the man's character.
8407. But do you not know that persons of the highest character have been hanged? I do not dispute that, but from what I know of George Dean I should say, if I may be permitted to pass an estimate, that he would be utterly and absolutely incapable of concocting such a diabolical plot as that laid to his charge.
8408. I suppose George Dean was not a companion of yours? No, except in so far as I was a passenger on his boat; but if I met Dean in the street I should certainly speak to him.
8409. You were not on terms of friendship with his wife, I suppose? I never saw her.
8410. And the matters I have spoken to you about you knew nothing of? I knew nothing at all about Narranders.
8411. You knew nothing of Dean having been in trouble on any occasion? No, he never mentioned it to me.
8412. President.] Do you say that, after making a confidant of you, that he spoke affectionately of his wife and was devoted to the child? I am positive he was devoted to that child.
8413. Did he ever tell you anything about his mother-in-law? He never mentioned his mother-in-law to me.
8414. Did he ever tell you that he had had any quarrels with his wife? No.
8415. Were you playing cricket with Dean on Monday afternoon, the 4th of March? Yes; may I explain that circumstance: I was playing cricket with my son, a little boy of 11. I had been playing about an hour, when Thompson, the engineer of the night-boat, was passing through the Reserve. I knew Thompson was going to play cricket, he having told me. My boy saw the engineer, and called my attention to him. I then asked Thompson to come and field. He had been there about 10 minutes when Dean came along. I saw that the man seemed distressed, worn and weary, and in a great hurry. I said to him, "What is the matter, skipper?" He told me his wife was very ill, and that he was determined to have a doctor. Seeing that he was in a hurry, I said no more. He took a bicycle and rode away.
8416. President.] Whose bicycle? Thompson's I believe. He was away about a quarter of an hour, when he returned. He seemed to me as if he had been hurrying. I saw that he was distressed and partially exhausted. I said to him, "Would you like a drink?" He said, "I should." I said to my boy, "Go over to your mother; ask her for a bottle of ale and a glass." My boy went to my house and came back with the ale. The skipper had two glasses and Thompson had the other glass. In the meantime, while the boy was fetching the ale, I asked the skipper if he would bowl or bat or field in the interval. He played. After he had taken the ale, I picked up my boy's bat and stumps, and we then went away. That is what happened. The reason I sent for this ale was that I saw Dean appeared to have hurried, and seemed to be a great deal worried. He did not appear to be excited; but he looked as if he had hurried a good deal.
8417. When he came up to you, did you hear anything said about Weyton's? I did not.
8418. Or to Thompson? I did not.
8419. Did Dean then go away on the bicycle? Yes, in such a hurry that it surprised me. He rode the machine right through the long grass, instead of walking over to the pathway. He, undoubtedly, was in a great hurry.
8420. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have said that he made you a kind of confidant; did he ever tell you that his wife had frequently accused him of being the father of illegitimate children? He never said a word of that kind to me.
8421. About these cricketing tools—the bat, stumps, and so on—did Thompson bring any of these tools down with him at the time he was passing? Yes. I was playing with my boy's bat and stumps, but Thompson had a bat and stumps with him when he came there. I believe that there was some match to be played by the various sections of the employees in the Ferry Company, and that Thompson had taken the tools to play in a practice match. He did not use the tools he brought, but he played with the materials belonging to my boy.
8422. Dr. Sydney Jones.] How long was Dean playing cricket with you on this particular occasion? Ten minutes or a quarter of an hour. Just while the boy was fetching the ale. After drinking the ale he went away.
8423. President.] To his home? He went in that direction.

[Witness withdrew.]

Dr. Ralph Hodgson, L.R.C.P., Lond., M.R.C.S., Lond., sworn and examined:—

- R. Hodgson,
Esq.,
L.R.C.P.,
M.R.C.S.
5 June, 1895.
8424. Dr. Todd.] I have called Dr. Hodgson to give information to this Commission in the matter of mothers having poisoned their children. I understand you Dr. Hodgson have had special experience in poisoning by strychnine of infants through the mother? Yes, I have.
8425. Will you tell me have you had three cases in which infants have been so poisoned? Yes.
8426. Will you tell us the circumstances of the cases? The first case was a year ago. In this it became necessary to administer strychnine to the mother for the purposes of a tonic. She took 5 minims of a solution of strychnine. It was one dose for one night. Next morning she probably took another dose. At midday I saw her again, when the child she was nursing at the time had pronounced muscular twitching. This child, I may say, was not four months of age. In the second and third cases strychnine was administered for the purposes of a tonic. In each the doses were increased until the symptoms appeared in the children. As soon as the symptoms appeared in the children, the medicine was stopped, although there was no effect visible upon the mothers.
8427. What were the symptoms which appeared in the child indicating a necessity for stopping the medicine? A pronounced muscular twitching.

8428.

8428. On what part of the body? I do not know; I did not see the children, but I was told at the time that the children had muscular twitchings.
8429. Do you mean to say that those symptoms were described to you? Yes.
8430. Sir Julian Salomons.] You did not see these twitchings? No.
8421. In the first case did you see the child? I have seen all three subsequently during the day in which the muscular twitchings occurred. In the first place the child was brought to me because of the twitchings.
8432. Had it the twitchings when you saw it? No, it had not. It was brought to me because of the twitchings.
8433. Dr. Todd.] Did you attribute these twitchings to strychnine? Yes. As soon as the strychnine was stopped there was no further complaint.
8434. Was the first case produced by two doses of strychnine of 5 minims each? Probably 2. The patient in the evening took one dose, probably she took another the next morning, and at midday the effect was visible in the child.
8435. Do you know as a matter of fact that strychnine in small doses can be excreted in the milk of a nursing mother? I do. I have at the present time a lady under my treatment in which this is shown. She was confined on Saturday, and took 2 minim doses of strychnine. I have tasted her milk daily, and it is certainly not nearly as sweet as mother's milk ought to be. There was a bitter taste in that milk, not quite the taste that you would expect strychnine to give. As you are aware mother's milk, human milk I mean, is extremely sweet; but in this particular instance there is an absence of sweetness, which is remarkable.
8436. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you know the name of Dr. Lauder Brunton? Yes.
8437. Do you know his name as an authority on medicine? Yes; one of the first.
8439. Do you know Mrs. Dean? I have seen Mrs. Dean.
8440. Have you examined her as a medical man would examine her? No. I saw her in Court on the Saturday; that was when Judge Windeyer summed up.
8441. Have you examined her as a medical man? Oh, no.
8442. Are you familiar with the symptoms attendant upon multiple peripheral neuritis? No; not beyond having a general knowledge of it.

[Witness withdrew.]

William Andrew Phillips sworn and examined:—

8443. Mr. Meagher.] Are you a publican, Mr. Phillips? Yes.
8444. Carrying on business at North Shore? Yes.
8445. Is there a house known as "Brunswick Cottage" in your vicinity? Yes, there is.
8446. Do you remember a woman named Mrs. Lee coming to reside at "Brunswick Cottage"? Yes; I know she was there, when I got the hotel.
8447. How many females have you seen at "Brunswick Cottage"? Sometimes two and sometimes three, and I have seen more there occasionally than at other times.
8448. Did you supply "Brunswick Cottage" with liquor? Yes.
8449. Have these females come over to your hotel to order the drink? Yes.
8450. Different ones, at different times? Yes.
8451. Had you a pretty fair custom from "Brunswick Cottage"? Yes, fair.
8452. How much do you think you have taken in a day? I think I have taken up to as high as £1 per day, although I have never kept count. I fancy I have taken as much as £1 from there in one day.
8453. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean that this happened on some occasions? Yes; on some occasions, not constantly.
8454. Mr. Meagher.] But apart from your taking as high as £1 a day on some occasions, were the people of "Brunswick Cottage" regular customers of yours? Yes.
8455. Do you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
8456. Did she ever come to your hotel for drink? Yes; she has come over occasionally.
8457. When you have taken as high as £1 per day for drink supplied to "Brunswick Cottage," what was the nature of the drink you sold? It was ale, whisky, brandy, schnapps, &c.
8458. Sir Julian Salomons.] And I suppose Mrs. Seymour came for this drink? Yes; she was the person who generally came for it.
8459. Did you know Mrs. Sexton, the woman who was living there? Yes.
8460. Have you seen a Miss Stapleton there? To my knowledge I have not. I do not know her.
8461. Was Mrs. Seymour an elderly woman? Yes.
8462. Do you know whether she acted as a servant for Mrs. Lee or not? I could not say.
8463. Have you ever been to "Brunswick Cottage"? I have taken goods to the door, that is all.
8464. Mr. Meagher.] Do you know a female named Minnie Phillips? Yes.
8465. Did she go to Mrs. Lee's occasionally? Yes.
8466. Was she residing there? She was when I went to the hotel first of all; she left some months ago.

[Witness withdrew.]

[This closed the case for the defence.]

Senior-constable William Sutherland sworn and examined:—

Senior-constable Sutherland.
5 June, 1895.

8467. Sir Julius Salomons.] Are you a senior constable in the police force of this Colony? Yes.
8468. Stationed at No. 2 Division, Regent-street? Yes, sir.
8469. It has been said that on the 14th of March last you visited a chemist's shop, owned by Mr. T. P. Swindale, in Albion-street, Surry Hills:—is that so? Yes.
8470. Was a man named John Hall, who has given evidence before this Commission, in charge of that establishment? He was.
8471. Did you show Hall a photograph of George Dean? I did.
8472. Were you at that time making inquiries concerning a certain matter? I was. I told Hall I was inquiring from him if any poison had been bought at his establishment by a man named George Dean, at the same time showing him a photograph.
8473. Did you mention any time during which you supposed the poison had been bought? Yes; I said I thought it had been bought during the preceding two years.
8474. Do you remember Mr. Hall getting his poison-book? I do.
8475. What did he do or say when the book was produced? He looked through the book, but found no entry in the name of George Dean.
8476. What did he say about Dean's photograph which you showed him? He said, "The face seems to me familiar, but I cannot say that I know him."
8477. Did you visit the shop again on the 30th March? I did, sir.
8478. Did you make inquiries on that occasion concerning a woman whom you considered to be Caroline Seymour? I did.
8479. What did you say on that occasion? I had descriptions of two women, and read them over to Mr. Hall. One was of Mrs. Dean and the other was of Mrs. Seymour. They were in my book, and I read them over to Mr. Hall.
8480. Have you the description of Mrs. Seymour which you read to Mr. Hall? I have got it in this book [produced]. The first is in reference to Mary Dean, 21 or 22 years old.
8481. Never mind Mary Dean; what is Mrs. Seymour's description? This is what I read: "Caroline Seymour, a woman about 53 years old, 5 feet 7 inches high, medium build, dark hair turning grey, thin face, sallow complexion, walks very erect, and holds her head up; generally dressed in a black dress and small black bonnet."
8482. What did Mr. Hall say to that? After considering a few minutes he said: "A woman of that description came to my shop sometime ago; she wanted to purchase some strychnine." Those are the words he used, and then he added: "I refused to sell it to her as she had no witness."
8483. Are you quite positive that he said this woman said she wanted to purchase strychnine? I am quite positive, for I entered the statement at the time.
8484. Were you under special instructions to visit all the chemists' shops in your division for the purpose of ascertaining if poison had been bought? Yes; and I went to all the chemists' shops in No. 2 police division with this object in view.
8485. When you saw Mr. Hall and made these inquiries, what did he tell you concerning the purchase of strychnine? He told me that he had sold poison to one woman—a box of Rough-on-Rats.
8486. What did he say in reference to his poison-book? He said he had got the name and address of the person to whom he had sold the poison. He took his poison-book out from behind the counter, and looking down the page pointed out to me the name of Annie Goldstein, saying, "That is the name of the woman who purchased the Rough-on-Rats." It was then explained that she lived either in 10 or 16 Mary-street.
8487. What did he tell you about the woman who purchased the Rough-on-Rats in connection with the description you read to him from your book, and which has been read here to-day? He said, "I am sure that is the description; it tallies very much with the description you have read."
8488. Did Hall say one word to you about that woman wanting to buy arsenic? No; he never mentioned anything about arsenic. He said it was strychnine.
8489. What did he tell you further concerning this strychnine; was there not something said about the woman asking him what should be done supposing by mistake the poison were taken? He said that she said to him, "Supposing that any person took this by mistake, what would be the best thing to do." He said, in reply, "Administer an emetic, and send for a doctor."
8490. What did you tell him then? I said I would go to 16 Mary-street according to the address in his book, and make inquiries. I went there, made inquiries, and ascertained that Annie Goldstein, the woman who had purchased the Rough-on-Rats, lived at No. 10 Mary-street, and not No. 16 as stated in the poison-book.
8491. Did you see that woman there? Not at the time.
8492. Did you see her there afterwards? I did.
8493. You know the woman then? I do.
8494. Does she at all tally with the description of Mrs. Seymour as it was read by you to Mr. Hall? No, not at all.
8495. Did you ask that woman if she knew anyone by the name of Mrs. Seymour? Yes; and she said she knew no one of that name.
8496. You say you found Mrs. Goldstein living in the street, if not in the actual house, as shown in the chemist's poison-book? Yes.
8497. Did she admit to you that she had bought the box of Rough-on-Rats? Yes.
8498. Did you then go back to Hall's shop? I did, and told him where I had found Annie Goldstein residing in Mary-street.
8499. Did he take out his poison-book again? Yes. He turned over the leaves of the book, and he said it was very likely that Mrs. Goldstein lived at No. 10 instead of at No. 16 as was apparently shown by the entry in the book. There might have been a mistake in the figure.
8500. Did he say one word to you of their having been another woman besides Mrs. Goldstein to whom he had sold arsenic or strychnine, or to whom he had refused to sell arsenic or strychnine, who corresponded with the description you had read? He never mentioned any other woman, except the one whose address he pointed out. He said that was the only woman to whom he had sold poison or whose address he knew in any such respect.
8501. Did he mention any woman to whom he had sold anything? No; the only one he alluded to was Annie Goldstein.

8502. And you at once went to the address of this woman, found the woman herself, and discovered that she did not correspond with the description of Mrs. Seymour? Yes, that is it.
8503. You did this going round, after having received special instructions and in discharge of specific duty? Yes.
8504. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you give the description of the woman to Mr. Hall? Yes.
8505. Did Mr. Hall give any description of a woman to you? Yes.
8506. I suppose the woman you meant to describe was Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
8507. And that description was as has been read? Yes.
8508. Sir Julian Salomons.] That means a woman about 53 years old, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, medium build, dark hair turning gray, thin face, sallow complexion, walks very erect and holds her head up, generally dressed in a black dress and small black bonnet? Yes, that is it.
8509. And that description does not apply to Mrs. Goldstein? No.
8510. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you know a chemist named Townley? No.
8511. Do you know his shop, 423, Crown-street? No, I do not.

[Witness withdrew.]

Constable Sydney Wearin sworn and examined:—

8512. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a member of the Police Force, stationed at North Sydney? I am.
8513. Do you know a woman who was called to give evidence here, whose name is Mary Burns? I do.
8514. Did she at one time live at North Sydney? She did, about six years ago.
8515. Do you remember the year 1890? I do; and she lived at North Sydney then.
8516. Where did you see this Mary Burns sleeping then? I saw her about 1 o'clock one morning with a man under a rock in Berry's Bush, over at North Sydney.
8517. Do you know the name of the man with whom you saw her on this occasion? Yes; his name was Moore or Crowe. He went by both names.
8518. Where is Berry's Bush? It is part of a large estate slightly to the west of North Sydney.
8519. And did you see this Mary Burns there with a man named Moore or Crowe at 1 o'clock in the morning? I did. This man was camped there under the rocks—in fact, in a cave—for some time.
8520. Did you ever see this woman, Mary Burns, going towards this rock or cave? I have seen her going in the direction of the bush down the Bay-road.
8521. Frequently? I have seen her going in that direction on several occasions.
8522. And you have seen her there with a man at 1 o'clock in the morning? On one occasion I saw her there at 1 o'clock in the morning lying on the ground, with some bushes screening herself and a man with whom she was.
8523. At what hours of the night have you seen this man and this woman going in this particular direction? At 9 and 10 o'clock, and sometimes earlier in the afternoon.
8524. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you a policeman? I am a plain-clothes constable.
8525. Were you present when this Mary Burns was examined before this Royal Commission? I was not.
8526. Where were you on that day? I believe I was at North Sydney.
8527. Are you quite sure of that? Yes.
8528. Were you not in this room, or in the precincts of this building, on the day Mary Burns was examined before this Commission? I do not think I was.
8529. Will you swear you were not? I was not here.
8530. Were you here the day before Mary Burns was examined? I may have been; I do not know for certain.
8531. Were you here the day after she was in attendance? I do not remember. I did not see the woman here at all.
8532. How do you know that she was examined before this Commission? I saw the report of her examination in the next day's papers.
8533. Did you come here on the day you read this witness's evidence in the papers? I cannot say; I may have done so.
8534. Did you, after reading the evidence, communicate with your superior officer? Yes.
8535. On what day did you do that? A few days after I made a report.
8536. Do you know Sergeant Bronnau? Yes.
8537. Do you know Detective Sergeant Keating? Yes.
8538. Do you know where Mrs. Seymour is living now? I cannot say that I do. From what I have heard she is supposed to be living with a Mrs. Johnson.
8539. Where does Mrs. Johnson live? In a lane off Riley-street, Surry Hills.
8540. Is that anywhere near Detective Keating's residence? He lives somewhere in that vicinity; I do not know.
8541. Is it not a fact that Mrs. Johnson lives in one of Sergeant Keating's houses? I do not know.
8542. Will you swear you do not know that Mrs. Seymour is living with a Mrs. Johnson who is a tenant in one of Detective Keating's houses? I do not know whether the house in question belongs to Keating or not.
8543. Does not Detective Keating live next door to Mrs. Johnson? No; he does not live in the same street.
8544. Will you swear that he does not live next door? I really have never been to Keating's house. I have never seen him at his house; and I do not know which house he lives in. I am under the impression he lives in the next street.
8545. How do you mean "in the next street;"—does he not live in an adjoining house round the corner? No; his house is not in the same lane.
8546. Will you swear that? He does not live in the lane at all.
8547. Never mind the lane at all; what I am asking is: Does not Keating live next door to Mrs. Johnson with whom Mrs. Seymour is now residing? I cannot swear positively where Detective Keating lives beyond the fact that his address is Kippax-street. I am not sure about the house.
8548. Where is this Berry's Bush you speak of? Just to the west of North Sydney.
8549. Are there any habitations in the vicinity? There are a few camps.
8550. What do you mean by "a few camps?" There are tents; no houses.
8551. Were there any camps at the time to which you refer? No; the locality was all bush then. It has been considerably cleared since.

- S. Wearin,
5 June, 1895.
8552. How far was this cave or rocks from any habitation? The nearest place was about a quarter of a mile distant.
8553. Were there any streets through this Berry's Bush? No; it was simply bush.
8554. Was the place in any portion of your beat? No; I have no particular beat. I go pretty much where I like when I am on duty. My duty does not confine me to any particular locality.
8555. What time do you say you saw this man and woman? At 1 o'clock in the morning.
8556. Where were you standing at the time? I went to the cave where they were.
8557. Did you speak to them? Yes.
8558. Had you a light? Yes; I struck a match.
8559. Do you mean to say you went right up to them? Yes; within 5 or 6 feet of them.
8560. Who was this man? His name was Moore or Crowe, and he had been a Roman Catholic priest at one time.
8561. Do you know where we could find him now? I do not. I have not seen him since about that time. He was only over here about twelve months altogether.
8562. Cannot you tell us where we can find this man whom you say was once a priest? No; I have neither seen nor heard of him for I suppose about five years.
8563. How often had you seen this girl whom you suppose to be Mary Burns before this particular occasion? Frequently.
8564. Did you ever see her about this building at all? No.
8565. Did you see the woman Mary Burns when she gave evidence here? No.
8566. How then do you know it is the same woman? Because I have seen her since she gave evidence.
8567. Where did you see her? At the house in which she lives in Darlinghurst Road.
8568. Who took you to this house? I went there with Sergeant Brennan.
8569. Is Darlinghurst Road on your beat? No; I have no beat; I am a plain-clothes policeman.
8570. Are you attached to the North Sydney Division? I go anywhere when I am required.
8571. Why did you go to Darlinghurst Road with Sergeant Brennan;—was it for the protection of the buttons? No.
8572. Why then did you go with Sergeant Brennan? Because he wished to see this woman, and he did not care about interviewing the likes of her by himself.
8573. Then you did not go up there for his personal protection? No; I went so that I could hear all that was said, as Sergeant Brennan did not care about his testimony alone being all that could be used when dealing with a woman of this character.
8574. Then it was not to protect this sergeant's buttons that you went with him to interview a woman? Certainly not. He is a plain-clothes officer as well as me, and we work together.
8575. And you say you saw this Mary Burns and a man whom you believed to have been a priest lying together in a cave;—where had this man been a priest? I cannot say for certain; but in New Zealand I believe. I heard that he was a priest, and I saw him dressed in priest's clothes.
8576. Where did you see him so dressed? Coming up Lavender Bay steps, some six years ago, and he was then drunk.
8577. Did you arrest him? No.
8578. Nor on the night you found him with the woman in the cave? No.
8579. I suppose you did not suppose they were man and wife, did you? No; I did not.
8580. What sort of a cave where they in? It is a good-sized cave, with a shelf of rock inside.
8581. Could anyone going by see them? No; the place was all bush, and the cave itself was screened with bushes.
8582. What was it took you there, then? I went down specially, having been told that a man and woman were camped there.
8583. Who told you they were there? A lamplighter named Adamson, and a man named Brown, told me somebody was camping down under the rocks.
8584. Did you arrest this man and this woman? No.
8585. President.] What did you go down there for then? I was told that a couple were camping there, and I went down to see who they were.
8586. What was the good of going down if you took no action? I went down to see who they were.
8587. Mr. Pilcher.] You went down, and having seen who they were, left them alone?
8588. I suppose you saw no harm in them being there as they were? No; I saw nothing which would permit me as a police officer to interfere.
8589. Were they lying on this ledge of rock? No, they were lying in the cave on a bed of bushes.
8590. How was this man you describe as a priest dressed that night? He had on an ordinary light tweed suit.
8591. How was the woman dressed? I cannot remember that.
8592. Had she a dress on at all? Yes; both were dressed.
8593. Had she a hat or bonnet on at the time? No; neither had a hat on.
8594. Had they boots on? I do not remember, and they had some kind of a rug over them.
8595. Which of the two was lying outside? The priest was lying on the outside; the woman was further in the cave.
8596. On what day in the week did all this happen? I cannot remember that for certain.
8597. Are you quite sure it was at 1 o'clock in the morning? Yes.
8598. Do you say you saw nothing in their conduct which would allow you as a policeman to interfere? No; there is nothing that I could interfere with them for.
8599. Where was this lamplighter that he could tell you about this man and woman being there at 1 o'clock in the morning? It was some days before that he told me about the matter, and then he said there was a couple—the man and woman—camping down in the cave, as he had seen them going in the evening and coming away in the morning.
8600. When did the man Brown tell you of this man and this woman being there? I cannot say; it may have been a week before I went down.
8601. Will you mind telling me why you, as a policeman, seeing what you did, attached so little importance to this proceeding that you made no arrest or took any other proceedings? There was nothing I could lay a charge against them for. I saw them do nothing with which I could interfere.
8602. Were you told who they were by the lamplighter? No. 8603.

S. Wearin.

5 June, 1895.

8603. Nor by Brown? Brown might have told me but I do not recollect.
8604. Did you make any note of these particulars at the time? I did not.
8605. And five years after is the first time your attention has been drawn to it? Yes.
8606. And do you say that you attached no importance to the circumstance at the time you saw it? I certainly thought it was a most immoral thing to do, but I saw nothing with which I could interfere.
8607. Is that the only immoral thing you have seen during the last five years? Perhaps not.
8608. Have you not seen hundreds of immoral actions during the last five years? Naturally I often see immorality as a policeman whilst on duty.
8609. Apart from its being immoral you attached no importance to what you saw between this man who had been a priest, and this woman Mary Burns in a cave at 1 o'clock in the morning? There was nothing I could lay a charge about; the only importance I attached to the fact was that a girl whom I had known to be in service as a domestic was sleeping on the rocks with a man.
8610. And nothing brought this to your notice except the fact that she had given her evidence before this Commission? Well, I had never forgotten the circumstance; it had always been in my memory.
8611. Do you remember any other case of immorality of the servant girl that has occurred within the last five years? I do not suppose I do.
8612. Can you call to mind any one single case of immorality except this one? Yes, I can.
8613. How many could you swear to as having occurred within this period? I could point out a couple at any rate, even more immoral than this.
8614. Do you know a place kept by a person named Gandy? No, not now.
8615. Was that an immoral place? I cannot say I never saw anything immoral there.
8616. Did you know a girl who lived there? Yes, one; only one.
8617. Was she an immoral girl whilst she lived there? No, not that I am aware of.
8618. Did you and Sergeant Brennan ever take two girls there? We took two girls to Balls Head. I know what you are alluding to when you refer to the girls.
8619. And where did you take the two girls did you say? I did not take the two girls to Gandy's.
8620. Where did you and Brennan take these two girls? From Balmain to Balls Head.
8621. Was one of them living at Gandy's place? Yes.
8622. Do you know what her occupation was there? She was doing nothing as far as I know.
8623. Do you know anything about a place called "Brunswick Cottage"? Yes, I know it.
8624. Is that an immoral house? I do not know anything immoral about it.
8625. President.] What is that you say in reference to "Brunswick Cottage"? I know the house, but I never knew anything immoral about it.
8626. Mr. Pilcher.] Were you only told it was an immoral house after this case came on? Yes; Mr. Moodie told me he heard it was an immoral place. I never heard a word against this house before this case began.
8627. Did you know Mrs. Seymour lived there? No, not until this case was on. I knew the house and frequently passed it, but I never saw anything wrong there.
8628. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is all this matter about you and Brennan taking women from Balmain to Balls Head? Some women had been to Balls Head and had said that they had seen some silver-mounted harness there supposed to have been stolen. The matter was reported to the Balmain police, Brennan and myself went to Balmain and brought these women over to see if we could find the harness. We brought the women but we did not find the harness. That is all there is in it.
8629. President.] I thought by the way the question was asked that there was some inference of impropriety between you and Brennan and these women. Did you take these women to Balls Head for any immoral purposes? No, certainly not; but only in the performance of our ordinary duties.
- [Witness withdraw.]

Charles Gregory Wade sworn and examined:—

C. G. Wade.

5 June, 1895.

8630. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a barrister-at-law? Yes.
8631. Were you and the Attorney-General prosecuting for the Crown at Darlinghurst when Dean was charged with having administered poison to his wife? Yes.
8632. Did you hear Mrs. Adye give her evidence before this Commission? Yes.
8633. Did you hear her say she told you, while in the corridor at Darlinghurst, that she had tasted the tea at Mrs. Dean's, and found that it was all right? I heard what she said about the tea.
8634. Is that true? No; it is not.
8635. Where did you say you saw her? It is true that I saw her in the passage or corridor at Darlinghurst, in company with Miss Adye and Mrs. Walke. I think Mrs. Walke spoke to me with regard to the lemon-syrup and the retching, and Mrs. Adye in regard to the tea. I am not quite positive of the actual words she used with regard to the tea, but I am absolutely positive that the impression she left on my mind was that there was nothing to suggest that the tea did agree with Mrs. Dean. Whether she said she did not remember tasting the tea or did not taste it, I am not sure about, but I am absolutely positive she never told me the tea was sweet, or that it was all right.
8636. Did she say she tasted that tea? No.
8637. Was that the first time you had heard it when it was stated here in this room? I had arranged with Sir Julian Salomons to call her for the defence to prove this particular point in our favour.
8638. And you never heard her say one word in this direction until she made the statement in this room? No.
8639. President.] If you will look at the evidence, question 6858, you will see this statement: "Did you not say something about tasting the tea, and it was like ordinary tea?" That was a question put to Mrs. Adye. Her answer to that question was, "Mr. Wade asked me if I had tasted the tea. I said I did, and he then asked me what it tasted like, and I said like tea." Is that reply true? No.
8640. Were all three together—Mrs. Walke, Bessie Adye, and Ethel Adye? They were quite close together, and I asked the police to tell Mrs. Adye and Mrs. Walke that I wanted to speak to them. I saw them in the passage, and Miss Adye came up.
8641. Then do I understand you to say that the first time you heard about her tasting the tea was in this room, and that you were actually going to call her to show that it was true that the tea had been put into a tumbler under the chest of drawers? Yes; and directly to show that the person to whom Mrs. Dean spoke about having put this tea under the drawers was Mrs. Adye, and that she could corroborate that fact—that it was not an afterthought.
8642. Mr. Pilcher.] Why did you not ask that at the trial? I think you will see from the Judge's notes that an objection was taken when I wanted to ask the question.

8643.

Mr.
C. G. Wade.
5 June, 1895.

8643. If you look at the notes—the Judge's notes—you will see that Mrs. Adye said: "I went to see Mrs. Dean; she was in bed; she had a cup of tea by the bed; about half a cup; her face was flushed; we had a talk." Why did you not ask for the nature of this conversation at the time of the trial? I did; but Mr. Meagher objected.

8644. Did you not ask if Mrs. Adye had asked Mrs. Dean about the tea that had been put away in the tumbler under the drawer. Did you, at the trial, ask if Mrs. Dean pointed out anything at all about that tea? I do not recollect that. I do not see anything of it on the Judge's notes.

8645. When did that trial commence? On the Thursday morning.

8646. What was the day of the month? The 4th of April, I think.

8647. And did it last through Friday, the 5th, and Saturday, the 6th? Yes.

8648. Will you turn to page 3 of the Judge's notes, and there you will find a report from Sergeant Sawtell. I will read that report; it is as follows:—

No. 6.

Sergeant Sawtell's Report.

No. 3 Police Station, Sydney, 28 March, 1895.

Re the attached inquiry referring to the character and history of Mrs. Caroline Seymour, her daughter, Mrs. May Dean, and the man Thomas Jones mentioned in the case of attempted poisoning of Mrs. Dean at North Sydney, Sergeant J. E. Sawtell begs to report that, from inquiries, he has been informed that Mrs. Seymour is a well-known pickpocket, and a companion of Sarah Clifford, alias Fox, who is now serving a term for stealing from the person. Mrs. Seymour has lived in Riley-street and in Little Norton-street, Surry Hills, for the last thirteen years, and her house was the rendezvous of many of the Victorian criminals when visiting Sydney. No one seems to have ever seen the man Seymour, said to be her husband. The man Jones was a constant lodger with Mrs. Seymour, and has been convicted in Sydney; also an ex-convict from West Australia; he is at present an inmate of the Liverpool Asylum for the Destitute (No. 13 ward). He is well known to Superintendent Campbell, Detective John O'Sullivan, Detective Keating, also ex-Detective Phillip Williams. Mrs. Dean, as Mary or May Seymour, is well-known in most of the bawdy-houses in Surry Hills, being a frequent visitor at Madame Rose's brothel in Riley-street, opposite her mother's late residence; also at the house of Margaret M'Greggor, in Crown and High Holborn Streets—a fact apparently well known to the people in the neighbourhood. Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean called on Mr. G. H. Townley, 423, Crown-street, chemist, on Sunday last and made a small purchase, which Mr. Townley cannot remember was the nature of at the present.

J. SAWTELL,

Sergeant.

Had you that report in your possession on the 4th of March? No; I had not. I had not seen it at that time.

8649. When did it first come to your notice? I never saw it until after the trial. The report came in on the morning of the trial, and I was told the effect of it, which was that Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean were both bad characters.

8650. Do you see the subsequent report dated the 1st of April? Yes.

8651. I will read that, it is as follows:—

No. 7.

Sergeant Sawtell's Report.

No. 3 Police Station, Sydney, 1 April, 1895.

Re the attached inquiry, Sergeant J. E. Sawtell begs to report that Mrs. Seymour's conviction for stealing is so obscured at the present that nothing definite can be said regarding it. Some of the neighbours say she has been convicted in Sydney, but cannot fix the date, or give any definite particulars of her case.

Mrs. Dean bears the reputation of being a frequent visitor at Madame Rose's brothel in Riley and Collins Streets; but those who could substantiate the facts decline to supply the required information. She is not known to any of the police in this division.

The Sergeant has not been able to see Detective O'Sullivan yet, who may be able to throw some light on the matter, but will endeavour to see him to-day.

The sergeant has been informed that Mr. Meagher, the solicitor for the defence, has evidence of Mrs. Dean having received men at Mrs. M'Greggor's brothel in Crown-street, also as to the character of the house her mother, Mrs. Seymour, kept in Riley-street.

J. E. SAWTELL,

Sergeant.

James Brennan, Esq., Inspector.

Had you read these two reports at the time of the trial, or do you know if they were in the possession of the police at the time of the trial? I suppose they must have been, one of them at all events, but the trial was over before the date of the next report.

8652. Do you remember if the question was asked Mrs. Seymour at the trial whether she had been convicted and she said, "Yes, thirty years ago"? No; that is not exactly the question. As far as I can recollect, the question was whether when she was in Melbourne she was convicted, and she said, "Yes."

8653. You will see on page 10 of the Judge's notes, that Mrs. Seymour said: "The charge against me in Melbourne was for stealing. A gentleman gave me a mantle, and I would not tell where I got it from, and took the charge myself. I was convicted and served a sentence;"—did you hear all this evidence given? Yes.

8654. And I suppose the police in charge of the case were there too and heard the same evidence? No; I do not suppose they were.

8655. Who were the officers in charge of that case? I think there were three—Inspector Cotter, Sergeant Brennan, and Constable Chivers.

8656. Was not Brennan in court during the whole of the trial, and at the request of the Judge handing the bottles and other exhibits to the witnesses? I think that happened on the day previous.

8657. Did you read the report of the Judge's summing up? No, I did not, not a word; in fact I avoided doing so; neither was I present during the summing up.

8658. Did you ask Mrs. Weynton any question at the Court-house? I think I did; I know that Weynton came to me and implored of me not to call him or his wife. I asked her what she knew about it, and she replied that she knew but very little.

8659. Do you say that you did not ask Mrs. Adye whether Mrs. Dean pointed out anything to her about the tea? I do not recollect it.

8660. Is there any mention of such a question on the Judge's notes? No, there is not.

8661. According to the Judge's notes, you see what she says here: "Dean asked me to go and see his wife, as she was very ill; I went to her; she was in bed; she had a cup of tea by the bed, about half a cup; her face was flushed; we had a talk; I took the baby away home." Do you see that—it is Mrs. Adye's statement? Yes.

8662. Is that the substance of what she said? Yes; but you will see that there is an important difference. She did say here that she tasted the tea and that the tea was all right; but she certainly never mentioned that fact to me.

8662½.

8662½. Did you ask her in the Court whether that tea was right or wrong? I didn't get the opportunity.
 8663. You see that from the Judge's notes that you do not appear to have asked her anything about the cup of tea? The cup of tea is mentioned; I asked her to give their conversation, between herself and Mrs. Dean, but the question was objected to by Mr. Meagher.
 8663½. Have you got Brennan's report about the Adyces? Yes.

Mr.
 C. G. Wade.

THURSDAY, 6 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. H. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

[Original Depositions.—Sir Julian Salomons read the original depositions in the charge against George "Dean," heard at the Narrandera Petty Sessions on November 25th, 1879. The charge was that of illegally using a horse. The depositions were tendered. Mr. Pilcher, later in the day, objected. Depositions withdrawn.]

Senior-constable Hector Maclean sworn and examined:—

8664. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a constable in the police force of this Colony? I am senior-constable.

8665. How long have you been in the force? About nine years.

8666. Do you know if there has been a witness in this case on behalf of George Dean named Mrs. Sexton? Yes.

8667. And that her sister, Bridget Stapleton, also gave evidence? Yes.

8668. Has Mrs. Sexton another sister named Barbara Stapleton? Yes.

8669. Is Mrs. Sexton's husband named Henry Sexton? Yes.

8670. Are Mrs. Sexton, her husband, Bridget and Barbara Stapleton known to the police? Yes. Harry Sexton received four sentences for stealing in September, 1892. Bridget Stapleton received sentence of six months for stealing in company with Sexton in the same month. Barbara Stapleton received a sentence of nine months at the same time. Annie Sexton was charged with receiving in company with her husband and two sisters, but the case was dismissed by the magistrate on the grounds that she acted under coercion from her husband.

8671. Were they all living together at the time of these charges? Yes; there were eight charges, and Harry Sexton was convicted on four, the other four were withdrawn.

8672. They are therefore well-known to the police? Yes.

8673. Dr. Todd.] Were you engaged in investigating these charges against these people? Yes, I was the arresting constable.

8674. Were all these charges preferred at the same time? Yes.

8675. And were you in charge of the cases? Yes.

8676. Do you mean to say that all these charges were preferred at the same time? Yes, in the month of September, 1892.

8677. Have you known Mrs. Sexton since then? No, I have seen her several times, but I have not known anything against her since then.

8678. Has she always been living with her husband since then? I cannot say that.

8679. Where have you seen her since? I have seen her in Regent-street, Redfern, Regent-street, Sydney, and also in Alexandria.

8680. Have you known her to be a respectable woman since this affair? I have not known anything against her since this conviction.

8681. Have you seen her many times since the conviction? I have seen her several times, but not many. I have not paid a great deal of attention to her since.

8682. Did you ever know anything against her character since? No.

8683. Did you know anything against her character before? All I know against her is the charge that resulted in being mixed up with her husband and sisters on this occasion.

8684. President.] How was she brought into the case? She was identified by the person to whom the stolen goods were sold.

8685. Do you mean to say that she had been in possession of the goods? Yes. She and her husband sold the stolen goods.

8686. Was she traced to where the goods were sold? Yes; and she could have got away, but she preferred to be charged with her husband, and go to gaol with him.

8687. Did she want to stick to her husband then? Yes.

8688. Dr. Todd.] Did you understand that she had always lived with her husband, and was much attached to him? Yes.

8689. President.] Did you ever know she was living at Mrs. Lee's, at "Brunswick Cottage"? No; I did not.

8690. Sir Julian Salomons.] In fact you know nothing of her, except in connection with these charges? No; and I have only seen her on the street since.

8691. Dr. Todd.] Do you mean living on the streets? No; I have seen her walking along the streets.

8692. You know nothing wrong about her morally then? No.

8693. Sir Julian Salomons.] You know nothing of her when she was living at Mrs. Lee's, or anywhere else? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

8694. Sir Julian Salomons.] The following is a statement; I will read it; it is as follows:—

Miller-street, North Sydney, 29 April, 1895.
ANNIE THOMPSON states: I am the wife of Thomas Charles Thompson, residing two doors from the house recently occupied by George Dean; on Tuesday morning, the 5th of March last, Mr. Dean came to my house and asked my husband if he would go for the doctor; Mr. Thompson went for Dr. Newmarch, and I went in to see what I could do for Mrs. Dean; Mr. Dean was feeding the baby out of a bottle; he was sitting in a chair near the bed; this was about 8:30 a.m.; I took the baby from Mr. Dean and washed her; Mr. Dean got me the utensils while washing the baby; Mrs. Dean insisted upon her husband giving her some tea; he begged her not to have it, mentioning that the doctor said she was not to have any tea; he had no tea made in his own house, and I told him he had better go to my place and get my tea-pot; he came in and got it; he gave Mrs. Dean about half a cupful, and told her to drink it very slowly; she drank it very quickly; afterwards Dean raised his wife on the pillow and fanned her; Mrs. Dean then said, "Oh, George, I won't get better; you are all right; you will have baby; she will be good to you;" then he said, "Oh, don't say that," and broke down; Dean was leaning over Mrs. Dean when the doctor arrived; he noticed that Mrs. Dean had been taking tea; the doctor said, "You have been taking tea; what is the use of my prescribing for you if you do not follow my advice?" Dean said, "It is not my fault, doctor, she insisted on having it;" the doctor then said to Dean, "There is no need for alarm; she is not dangerously ill;" and the doctor wrote out a prescription, and mentioned how the medicine was to be used; I said, "I will do my best if there is no one else here;" the doctor ordered lime-water and milk, to be taken slowly, and then Mr. Dean told the doctor, "Doctor, she has been taking something out of a bottle, either lemonade or lemon syrup;" then Mrs. Dean told the doctor what she had been taking, referring to the syrup; she had taken it to him, but he was not in; the doctor appeared to take but very little interest in the matter, and they both left the room together; Mr. Dean was present in the room all the time the doctor was there; I tidied up the place, and returned about 10:30 a.m.; while I was there a lady called, and remained there after I left; she said she thought she could attend to Mrs. Dean; I went in again in the afternoon; I found Mr. Dean sitting on the bedside, bathing his wife's head with vinegar and water, and while I was there he purchased some ice from an ice-cream man who was passing the house; this was about 4 p.m.; he applied it to his wife's head, and gave her some to put in her mouth; Mrs. Dean remarked it was very nice and "my head is much better," and then she said, "I hope to be well by the end of the week;" I know Mr. Dean to be a kind and good natured man.

Witness—

WM. J. TINDALL.

ANNIE THOMPSON.

8695. I will now read a statement made by Mrs. Weynton. It is as follows:—

North Sydney, 25 April, 1895.
CATHERINE WEYNTON states: I am the wife of Alexander James Weynton, and reside with him at "Clifton," Miller-street, North Sydney; my husband asked my son, Alexander, who is in the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers, to bring home some poison to poison a dog of ours; my husband poisoned the dog on the same night that the poison was brought home; this would be, I think, about two or three months before last Christmas; this poison was kept in a bottle in the wash-house rolled up in paper for some considerable time, but how long I cannot say; I then removed it to my bed-room, where it was kept out of sight and reach, being placed on top of a fixture which is used as a wardrobe; on Tuesday, the 5th of March last, about 6 a.m. I, with my husband, took the poison from where it was in my bed-room and buried it in the garden; I fix the date of the burial of the poison in consequence of Mrs. Seymour calling at midnight the night previous to see her daughter, Mrs. Dean; on this occasion, I heard Mrs. Seymour calling out in the front of the house to her daughter, Mrs. Dean, as follows, "Mary, Mary"; this caused me to open the balcony-door, and I said to Mrs. Seymour, "Mrs. Dean has been very unwell all the evening, and you will find the back door open;" on Monday, the 4th of March, about 6 p.m., Miss Adey, who was in Mrs. Dean's house, called to me and asked me if I would go in, that Mrs. Dean was very unwell; a few minutes afterwards I went in to see Mrs. Dean, and found that Mr. Dean had gone for the doctor, and I remained there until he returned; I then left the house and went into my own place, and made Nestle's food for Mrs. Dean's baby; shortly afterwards Dean came to our fence, and asked me if the food was ready; I replied, "Not quite, but I will run in with it when it is ready"; I did so a few minutes afterwards, took the baby and fed it; whilst doing so, Dr. Newmarch came, and I remained there with her until about 10 p.m. and then came in home, leaving Mr. Dean in the house; before I left, I placed a small mustard plaster on Mrs. Dean's chest, which was ordered by the doctor; I have always been on good terms with Mr. and Mrs. Dean, and also with Mrs. Seymour; Mr. Dean and Mrs. Seymour have never been in my house, but Mrs. Dean on one occasion came inside my front door simply to ask a question relative to her baby; I think Sergeant Brennan asked me if I had any poison in the house; I told him, "No, I have no poison in the house"; I said that because at that time the poison was buried in the garden, but I did not mention to Sergeant Brennan that the poison was buried in the garden; but I said to him, "I did not know which I was most afraid of—firearms or poison;" the poison I have referred to and dug up in the garden in my presence by Mr. Tindall is the same poison I have already spoken of.

Witness—

WM. J. TINDALL.

CATHERINE WEYNTON.

Sergeant Richard Brennan sworn and examined:—

Sergeant
Brennan.

8696. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were you present yesterday, and did you see Mr. Giles, one of the Stipendiary Magistrates of Sydney, give his evidence before this Commission? Yes.

8697. Are you the police officer who was appointed by him at the Police Court to hand the bottles and other exhibits in this case to the witnesses? Yes.

8698. I believe there is no doubt that you are the Sergeant Brennan who spoke to Mr. Giles in regard to Mrs. Dean having laughed or smiled while in the Court? Yes; I remember that occurrence.

8699. I want to ask you, is it true that you told Mr. Giles that Mrs. Dean wished you to tell him that she was laughing at the strange way in which Mr. Meagher pronounced the word "arsenic." Will you tell us the circumstances of the case? —

8700. President.] Was Mrs. Dean smiling or laughing in Court? Yes, she was.

8701. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was she laughing immoderately, or seemed to be enjoying herself? Oh, I would not say that, but she was smiling.

8702. Then, did the magistrate make some remark? Yes.

8703. What was it Mrs. Dean said to you afterwards? On the following morning —

8704. What did you say to Mr. Giles? I told him Mrs. Dean wanted to write a note to explain why she smiled. Mr. Giles said she was laughing—that he did not want any explanation from her.

8705. President.] What was it she was laughing at? When I saw her smiling she did not tell me she was amused at the way Mr. Meagher pronounced that word. When Dr. Newmarch was giving his evidence Mr. Meagher leaned across the table and said, "We have only your word for that," and this seemed to make Mrs. Dean smile.

8706. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you tell Mr. Giles that the reason given to you for Mrs. Dean smiling was the peculiar way in which Mr. Meagher pronounced the word "arsenic"? No.

8707. Did you tell him anything at all about the word "arsenic"? No.

8708. Did Mrs. Dean ever tell you anything about the word "arsenic"? No.

8709. What was it she told you? That she smiled across the table when Mr. Meagher said something.

8710. Was she laughing immoderately? I did not see her.

8711. Apart from what Mrs. Dean did, while Dr. Newmarch was being examined, did you yourself notice that she was trifling or flighty during the trial? No; Mr. Meagher addressed her across the table of the court.

8712.

6 June, 1895.

Sergeant
Brennan.

6 June, 1895.

8712. Was that while Dr. Newmarch was being examined? Yes.
8713. Did you hear what Mr. Meagher spoke across the table? He said, "We have only got your word for that."
8714. And then did she smile? I heard Mr. Meagher draw the magistrate's attention to the fact that Mrs. Dean was smiling. I turned round and then saw her smile.
8715. Was it then that the magistrate made any remark rebuking her? Yes.
8716. Mr. Giles has sworn here that you told him that Mrs. Dean said she was laughing at the way Mr. Meagher pronounced the word "arsenic"? Mrs. Dean never said that to me.
8717. Did you ever tell it to Mr. Giles? No.
8718. Are you positive you didn't? I am positive I never mentioned the word "arsenic" to him.
8719. Do you admit that there is some indirect double entendre in this word at which Mrs. Dean was smiling? I don't know anything about that.
8720. Do you remember Mr. Meagher turning round to the reporters in the Court and saying, "I hope you have taken notice of this circumstance"? No, I do not remember that.
8721. Do you know Mrs. Adye who gave evidence here? Yes.
8722. Did you go to see Mrs. Adye on the 11th of March? Yes.
8723. Did she make a statement to you? Yes.
8724. And you read that statement over to her? Yes.
8725. Did you ask her to tell you all she knew about the case? I did.
8726. How many times did you see Mrs. Adye altogether? I saw her three times. I got a bottle of lemon-syrup from her on the 11th of March.
8727. Is this the original statement (produced)? Yes, it is.
8728. In that statement do you say as follows:—

North Sydney Station, 28 March, 1895.

Sergeant Brennan respectfully reports to Inspector Cotter in reference to the case against George Dean of attempted murder: That Bessie Adye, wife of Thomas Procter Adye, of Miller-street, North Sydney, a grocer, states, that about half-past 10 o'clock on Sunday, 3rd instant, Dean called on her and told her Mrs. Dean was ill and wanted to see her. She went with Dean to his house, and went upstairs to Mrs. Dean. Dean remained downstairs. There was some toast, and about half a cup of tea by her bedside. She looked very flushed in the face, and said Dean brought her the tea and toast, and that she put half the tea away, but did not say where or for what purpose she put it away. Mrs. Adye only remained at Dean's about two minutes. Mrs. Adye took Mrs. Dean's baby away with her to dress and attend to it. She also states that she was present when Mrs. Dean brought the bottle of syrup to her shop on Saturday, the 2nd instant.

Is that a true copy of Mrs. Adye's statement to you? Yes.

8729. Did she say one word to you about having seen Mrs. Dean out on the Monday? No.
8730. Did she say one word to you about having tasted the tea and found that it was all right? No; she never told me that.
8731. Did you make your report at the time and send it in immediately afterwards? Yes; on the same day, the 28th of March.
8732. In your report is there one word about Mrs. Dean having been out on the Monday, or about Mrs. Adye saying she tasted the tea? No, sir.
8733. Did you ever hear anything of Mrs. Adye having tasted that tea until she herself made the statement to the Commission? No.
8734. And yet you say you saw her three times upon this subject? Yes.
8735. I believe Constable Wearin saw her too? Yes, with me.
8736. How many times did Constable Wearin see her? Twice.
8737. And how many times did you see her between the 11th and the 28th of March? Three times.
8738. Was it on the 11th of March that she told you about the lemon-syrup? Yes. Mrs. Adye told me that Mrs. Dean had brought a bottle of lemon-syrup there and asked her to taste it, and that it had a bitter taste.
8739. Who else was there besides Mrs. Adye and Mrs. Dean? Mrs. Walke.
8740. Did anybody else taste it? Yes, Mrs. Walke.
8741. Do you know what effect it had? Well, she said that Mrs. Walke got sick afterwards.
8742. Did she tell you anything about having seen Mrs. Dean in bed? Yes.
8743. What did she tell you? She told me that Dean came to her house and asked her to see Mrs. Dean, who was ill. She said she saw Mrs. Dean in bed; about half a cup of tea was at the bedside and a plate of toast. Mrs. Dean told her that she had put the remainder of the tea away.
8744. Did Mrs. Adye tell you how long she stopped there on that occasion? Yes, she said she stopped there about a couple of minutes.
8745. Do you know Mrs. Adye's daughter? Yes.
8746. Did you see the daughter, too? Yes.
8747. Did either the mother or the daughter ever tell you that they had seen Mrs. Dean at Adye's house on Monday, the 4th of March? No, sir.
8748. President.] Have you ever asked them any question upon that subject? No, I did not ask.
8749. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you ask them to tell you all they knew about the case? I asked Mrs. Adye to.
8750. On three different occasions? Yes.
8751. And she mentioned to you what had taken place on the Saturday and the Sunday? Yes.
8752. Did you see her daughter twice? I saw the daughter about three times too.
8753. Do you know Mrs. Thompson at North Shore? Yes.
8754. Do you remember serving a subpoena on Mrs. Thompson? Yes.
8755. Did you go to Thompson's house and see Mrs. Thompson? Yes.
8756. What did she tell you when you went to serve the subpoena? She said that all she knew about the case was that she went to Mrs. Dean for the baby, and dressed it.
8757. Did you ask Mrs. Thompson anything about arsenic? I asked her if she kept arsenic or poison of any sort in the house, and she said no.
8758. Was there not some doubt when the case was before the Police Court about Mrs. Dean going out on the Saturday morning? Yes.
8759. Was it in consequence of that doubt that you served the subpoena on Mrs. Thompson? Yes. I served the subpoena on her because at the Police Court Mrs. Dean was asked had she been out on Saturday morning.

8760.

- Sergeant
Brennan.
6 June, 1895.
8760. Was she called at the trial? No; she was not called.
8761. Was not all the information you had at the time to the effect that Mrs. Dean had been to Mrs. Thompson's house on the Saturday morning? Yes.
8762. Did Mrs. Thompson tell you that she knew nothing further about the matter? Yes. I mentioned something about Mrs. Dean being out on the Saturday morning before Dean returned home, and Mrs. Thompson told me that Mrs. Dean had brought some sausages or something of that kind.
8763. And Mrs. Thompson was not called? No.
8764. What was it Mrs. Thompson told you that Mrs. Dean told her? She told me that Dean had bought some good sausages from Konnecke's on the previous night, and then Mrs. Dean brought them to Mrs. Thompson on the Saturday morning.
8765. President.] Do you know Mrs. Raey, a witness who gave evidence here, the wife of a grocer, who lives quite near to Mrs. Dean's house in Miller-street? I have seen her, but I do not know her to speak to.
8766. Do you know a man named Kirk, employed in the shop? No.
8767. Do you know anything against him in any way? No.
8768. Do you know Mrs. Raey's shop? Yes.
8769. Are you stationed at North Shore? Yes.
8770. As far as you know, are the Raey's respectable people? I do not know anything against them; but I may say that this is a new shop.
8771. Mr. Meagher.] Had you the conduct of this case at the North Shore Police Court? Yes.
8772. Were you at the Court when Mrs. Dean gave her evidence? I was.
8773. Do you know, as a matter of fact, that Mrs. Dean admitted she had been out on the Saturday morning when she swore, "I now remember I was in Mrs. Thompson's"? Yes.
8774. What necessity was there, then, to call Mrs. Thompson, when you knew, according to Mrs. Dean's own admission, that she was out on Saturday morning. Is that all the information that you got from Mrs. Thompson? Yes; that is all.
8775. Were you not at Darlinghurst talking to Mrs. Thompson at the time of the trial? I saw her there, but I do not know that I held any conversation with her.
8776. Did you not go to Mrs. Adye on three occasions before the trial at Darlinghurst? Yes.
8777. Was it on the first occasion that you took the statement down that has been read? I am not positive of that.
8778. Will you tell me where you saw her on the first occasion? In her shop.
8779. On what day? On the 11th of March.
8780. Would that be before the Police Court proceedings? Yes.
8781. Did you ask her what she knew about the case? Yes.
8782. What did she tell you? She told me Mrs. Dean came to her with a bottle of lemon-syrup and asked her to taste it. She tasted it, and the lemon-syrup had a bitter taste. Mrs. Walke also tasted it, and was sick afterwards; that she went out, leaving Mrs. Adye and Mrs. Walke in the dining-room and the bottle of lemon-syrup with them.
8783. You did not put that in the statement, did you—that, I mean, what you have just told us? I am not positive if I did write it down.
8784. Had you at that time in your possession a tumbler half full of tea, which it was alleged had been under the chest of drawers for three days? No, I had not; I took the tea away on the 7th of March.
8785. Between the 7th and the 11th of March did you see Mrs. Dean and have a conversation with her about the tea? Yes.
8786. Having had a conversation with Mrs. Dean concerning that tumbler containing the tea, did you on the first occasion you saw Mrs. Adye say anything to her about the tea? No.
8787. Although you knew it had been under the chest of drawers you did not call Mrs. Adye's attention to it? No.
8788. Do you know if Mrs. Dean had told Mrs. Adye anything about this tea? Not that I know of, Mrs. Dean did not tell me.
8789. When did Mrs. Dean first tell you that she had pointed out the tea to Mrs. Adye? I do not know.
8790. Would it not be after the date on which you saw Mrs. Adye on the first occasion? I am not positive.
8791. When did Mrs. Dean first tell you that she pointed out the tea under the chest of drawers to Mrs. Adye; was that before you got any statement from Mrs. Adye or when was it? I cannot be positive.
8792. Did you take any notes of your actions in this case? Yes.
8793. Have you got those notes with you now? I think I have a short note here.
8794. Have you in your notes any statement about Mrs. Dean pointing out the tea which was put under the chest of drawers to Mrs. Adye? No, I have not that.
8795. When did you first know Mrs. Adye as the person to whom this tea was pointed out. Is that told on your notes? On the 11th of March.
8796. Was it on the 11th of March that you took the tea from Mrs. Dean? No, on the 7th.
8797. Who handed the tea to you? Mrs. Seymour.
8798. On what day? On the 7th of March.
8799. Was it after you received the tea from Mrs. Seymour that you went to Thompson's? Yes.
8800. Who was present at the time you got the tea? Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Seymour, Mr. Gale, and his wife.
8801. Did you see it taken from under the chest of drawers? Yes; I saw it taken from underneath.
8802. Was it on that day and on that occasion that Mr. Adye said she saw the tea put there? No.
8803. Will you tell me what date she did tell you this? I cannot give you the date of that occurrence.
8804. Why cannot you fix that date; do you not think it is one of the most important elements in the case that you should know all about this tea, and the persons who saw it on the first day. Do you not think that that is a matter of some importance? (No answer.)
8805. Do you know that the tea was there for three days without Mrs. Seymour seeing it? Yes.
8806. Did it not strike you as an important thing to find out who was the first person to see it there under the chest of drawers? (No answer.)
8807. Did it not strike you as being most material to this case to become possessed of facts such as these? It certainly was material.
8808. Do you not admit that this was a most material factor, and that you, as an intelligent police officer in charge of this case, having taken the tea away on the 7th of March, should have found out who was the

Sergeant
Brennan.

6 June, 1895.

the first Mrs. Dean spoke to about the tea, and who was the first to see it under the chest of drawers? Perhaps so.

8809. Did Mrs. Dean tell you on the 8th of March that she had drawn Mrs. Adye's attention to the tea? No.

8810. Did you see her on the 9th of March? Yes.

8811. Did she then tell you that Mrs. Adye had seen her or knew that it was put there? No.

8812. Cannot you tell me the date when Mrs. Dean told you Mrs. Adye knew that it was put there? No; I cannot give you the date.

8813. And were you not at this time preparing the case for the Police Court proceedings? Yes.

8814. When were they to take place? It was first before the Court on the Saturday.

8815. What date was that Saturday? It would be the 9th of March.

8816. And was Dean then remanded till the Tuesday? Yes; until Tuesday, the 12th.

8817. And will you swear that you didn't have a conversation with Mrs. Dean between the 9th and the 12th, and that she did not tell you who saw her put the tea under the chest of drawers? I cannot say.

8818. Do you not remember whether you saw any witnesses in the case between the 9th and the 12th of March? I must have seen some of them.

8819. Who did you see? I saw Mrs. Dean for one.

8820. And do you mean to say that as far as you remember you did not ascertain that Mrs. Adye was the first to see the tea under the chest of drawers? No.

8821. Was there a second remand of George Dean from the 12th to the 19th of March? Yes.

8822. Did you see Mrs. Adye before the 19th of March? Yes.

8823. How long before the 19th? I think I saw her about the 15th.

8824. Did you know then that she was the first person to see the tea under the chest of drawers on the Sunday? I am not quite sure.

8825. And yet you were collecting evidence for the case during this period? Yes; I was making inquiries about the poisoning.

8826. When you spoke to her on the 15th, did she give her conversation in a straightforward manner? No; she seemed to be reluctant in her answers.

8827. Will you tell me in what part of her conversation she was reluctant? I asked her to tell me what she knew, and all she knew, about this Dean matter, but she did not say anything to me at all about the tea at first.

8828. "At first"—what do you mean;—tell me what she said at the last, then, about the tea? The first time she told me anything about the tea would be about three or four days after Dean's committal.

8829. Now, Brennan, will you tell me when you first knew Mrs. Adye to give you any information about the tea, and what was the nature of the information placed at your disposal? I think she first mentioned it at about the time of the trial in the lower Court.

8830. Was that after the trial had proceeded? Yes.

8831. You were in the Court at the time of the trial, were you not? Yes.

8832. Did you hear Mrs. Dean swear: "I put the tumbler under the chest of drawers. I did not drink any of it. Mrs. Adye came, and I had a conversation with her, prisoner not being present. I pointed out the tea in the tumbler under the chest of drawers, and the cup. This was after 10 a.m. After leaving, in about 10 minutes prisoner came to me. He asked me had I drunk the tea. I said 'Yes.' He said it would do me good. He had not waited on me this way during my confinement illness. During the rest of the day I only took lime-water and milk"? Yes.

8833. When you saw her on the 19th did you ask her if that was true? No.

8834. Did you not consider the person who first saw the tea would be of some importance to the inquiry? Yes.

8835. Having heard Mrs. Dean swear that Mrs. Adye was the first person to whom she pointed out the tea, can you give any reasonable explanation why you did not speak a few words and ask her all about it? [No answer.]

8836. Mrs. Adye was present at the Court, was she not? Yes.

8837. Her daughter too? Yes.

8838. Can you give no explanation why, when you saw both at the police station, you did not ascertain if Mrs. Dean's statement was true? Well, I understood that Mrs. Adye was going to be called.

8839. Did Sub-Inspector Cotter take any evidence from Mrs. Dean? He took a statement from Mrs. Dean.

8840. Do you know whether he went to either of the Adye's for a statement? No, he did not.

8841. Are you the only individual who took a statement on this occasion? Yes.

8842. And you got that statement from the Adye's before the Police Court proceedings took place? Yes.

8843. And hearing this important bit of evidence given before the trial at the Police Court, four days before, you did not think it important to ask Mrs. Adye if there was any truth in Mrs. Dean's statement? No, I understood she was to be called.

8844. And you were the only one collecting her evidence? Yes.

8845. And you knew that if your sub-inspector called Mrs. Adye, his examination of her would be from the notes supplied by you? Yes.

8846. So that he was absolutely in your hands as to what he would ask her? Yes.

8847. And it was not until three or four days after Dean's committal that you went to see her about it? Yes.

8848. You know that the trial at the Water Police Court extended from the 19th to the 23rd of March? Yes.

8849. And having charge of the case, did you see Mrs. Adye at the police court on each of those days? Yes.

8850. During neither of these days you did not take the trouble to make inquiries from her about this fact? No, I did not.

8851. Are you sure, Brennan, that the tea was taken from under the chest of drawers? Yes.

8852. And who took the tumbler out and gave it to you? Mrs. Sevmour.

8853. What appearance did this glass present; was it covered with dust? No, it was not.

8854. Was there any indication of dust or dirt about it? No.

8855. Did you think Mrs. Thompson's evidence was at all material? No.

Sergeant
Brennan.

6 June, 1896.

8856. In order to be quite clear on this matter, let me ask you again, did you see Mrs. Adye on three occasions? I did.
8857. Was it on the first, second, or last occasion that you spoke to her about the tea? It would be on the last.
8858. That would not be until the 28th March? That was about the date.
8859. Do you remember whether in the corridor at Darlinghurst Mrs. Adye waited on Mr. Wade? Yes; she saw him there, I think.
8860. At the time Mr. Adye saw Mr. Wade, was he in possession of the statement supplied by you containing Mrs. Adye's remarks which have been read before the Commission, or did you give him that document? I did not give him any document. I generally sent my reports to the Inspector.
8861. But as the case at Darlinghurst started before this document was in possession of the Crown—
[Sir Julian Salomons.] You may take it for granted that this was known at the Police Court, and that this man has not seen his report since it left him on the day it was handed in to the Inspector.
- 8862-3. Mr. Meagher.] I suppose that on the 28th March you sent your report to your superior officer? Yes.
8864. Where did you write that report—in Adye's house? No; I wrote it at the police-station.
8865. Do you remember after Mrs. Adye had given her evidence, and while she was sitting in that portion of the Court allotted to witnesses who have been examined, telling her to follow you into Mr. Wilshire's room for the purpose of undergoing an examination? I do not remember doing so.
8866. Will you swear you did not take Mrs. Adye into the Crown Solicitor's room on this occasion? I will not swear that, but I have no remembrance of it.
8867. Have you any recollection that you took her from the witnesses' room at all? No.
8868. Will you swear that you did not take her? I do not recollect it.
8869. Will you swear that you had no conversation with Mrs. Adye about tasting the tea, after Mr. Wade had seen her and asked her to try her memory to be clear upon the point? No.
8870. With regard to the proceedings in the Police Court, at the time the magistrate censured Mrs. Dean for laughing, were you not close to the witnesses' box at the back of the reporters facing me with your back towards Mrs. Dean? No; I was at the end of the press-box. I was not standing opposite you.
8871. Had you your back towards Mrs. Dean? No; I was standing sideways.
8872. The Court was crowded, was it not? Yes, it was crowded.
8873. At the moment Mr. Giles censured Mrs. Dean, did you not hear expressions of disgust come from the people in the Court? —
8874. President.] What have we to do with that?
8875. Mr. Meagher.] Did you not hear the people in the Court express disgust at Mrs. Dean's levity? [No answer.]
8876. Were you not in charge of the case, handing up the exhibits? Yes.
8877. Was Dr. Newmarch in the box at the time? Yes.
8878. Were you not the officer handing him the bottles and other exhibits? Yes.
8879. Were you not standing close beside the witness whilst he was in the box? No; this happened after the exhibits had been handed up and passed back again. At the time it happened you were cross-examining Dr. Newmarch.
8880. Did you see Mrs. Dean's face a few moments before the magistrate censured her? No.
8881. After the trial was over, were inquiries made into the character of some of the witnesses for the Crown? Yes.
8882. Do you remember certifying that "Brunswick Cottage" was a respectable place? No; I never mentioned it.
8883. Do you know "Brunswick Cottage"? Yes.
8884. Have you been in "Brunswick Cottage"? No.
8885. Do you know Mrs. Lee? Yes.
8886. Do you know that Mrs. Lee kept a house of ill-fame at Surry Hills? No.
8887. Did you never know or hear that she kept a house of ill-fame in Collins-street? No.
8888. Did you go to Riley-street to make inquiries? Yes.
8889. Do you know where Collins-street is? Yes.
8890. Did you ever hear Mrs. Lee's name mentioned as a woman keeping a house of ill-fame there? No.
8891. Did you ever hear that she kept a house of this character in Bourke-street? No.
8892. Do you know a woman named Harriet Clevee? I do.
8893. Where does she live? In Bourke-street.
8894. When did you first meet this person, Mrs. Lee? I think it would be on the Monday night, the 11th of March.
8895. Who was she with? She came into Mrs. Dean's house.
8896. Was Mrs. Seymour there? Yes.
8897. While taking Mrs. Seymour's statement were you told that Mrs. Lee had been there often during the illness of Mrs. Dean, and that Mrs. Lee had given Mrs. Dean various kinds of food? No; I was not told that.
8898. While you were taking Mrs. Seymour's statement down will you swear that it was not said that Mrs. Lee had been frequently to the house during Mrs. Dean's illness and brought food? Yes; I swear I did not hear that. I did not speak to Mrs. Lee at all.
8899. Did Mrs. Seymour tell you this? No.
8900. Sir Julian Salomons.] Had you any legal assistance at the Police Court? No.
8901. Was Mr. Meagher conducting the case on behalf of Dean? Yes.
8902. And was Sub-Inspector Cotter conducting the case for the prosecution? Yes.
8903. President.] What did Mr. Giles say when he rebuked Mrs. Dean for laughing? He said it was disgraceful levity to see her laughing, considering the gravity of the charge against her husband.
8904. What is your opinion about Mrs. Dean's conduct;—do you think it amounted to levity? I saw her smiling at the time Mr. Giles was speaking.
8905. Mr. Meagher.] By the time you looked at her, had she not sobered up a good deal in her conduct? [No answer.]
8906. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you see anything there from beginning to end in her conduct amounting to impropriety, or which might be characterised as levity? No, sir, I did not.

8907. President.] Did you see her stalling? Yes.

8908. Did it not strike you as strange that a woman whose husband was going through a preliminary investigation, probably involving his life and liberty, should smile during the proceedings? Yes; of course such conduct was anything but proper.

Sergeant
Brennan:
6 June, 1895.

[Witness withdrew.]

Alexander Oswin Weynton sworn and examined:—

8909. Sir Julian Salomons.] How old are you? I am 18.

8910. I believe you are employed at Messrs. Elliott Brothers, wholesale druggists, in O'Connell-street? Yes.

8911. Do you remember that on the 25th of April last you made a statement to the police? Yes.

8912. Is this your statement (produced)? Yes; that is my signature.

8913. Where did you make that statement? In the office at the warehouse, O'Connell-street, at about 10 o'clock in the morning.

8914. Was that the first occasion on which the police communicated with you about this matter? Yes.

8915. I will read that statement to you; it is as follows:—

Sydney, 25th April, 1895.

ALEXANDER OSBORNE WEYNTON states, I am a clerk in the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers, wholesale druggists, O'Connell-street, and reside at "Clifton," Miller-street, North Sydney. That is next door to the late residence of George Dean, now under sentence for administering poison to his wife. About six months ago my father asked me to bring home some poison for the purpose of poisoning a dog of ours. I took home a bottle containing strychnine a day or two after being asked by my father, and I handed it to my father, who poisoned the dog referred to on the same night. I never saw the bottle containing the poison after I handed it to my father, and I do not know where it was kept. I know the prisoner George Dean, who lived next door to our place, and I have spoken to him on several occasions, and on two occasions I have played cricket with him. Dean never spoke to me on any occasion about poison, neither have I ever given him any poison. I do not know of my own knowledge that Dean never entered our house, neither do I know that Mrs. Dean or her mother, Mrs. Seymour, ever entered our house. I am 18 years of age.

Witness—

W. J. TINDALL.

ALEXANDER OSWIN WEYNTON.

8916. Will you tell me did you buy that strychnine at Elliott Brothers? I obtained it from one of the chemists in the employ of the firm. I did not pay for it.

8917. So then it is a fact that the sale was not entered in any book? It is not entered into any book that I know of.

8918. Did you get the strychnine in a bottle? Yes.

8919. I believe you were not aware that this bottle was subsequently kept in your own wash-house? No; I simply brought it home, and did not know any more about it.

8920. Were you aware that it was buried in your garden one morning? No; I knew nothing more about it.

8921. You do not know, then, that your mother and father got up early one morning and buried this bottle? No; I had no idea of that.

8922. Did you know anything at all about this bottle until the police dug it up? No. The first time I knew anything about that affair was when I came home at night and found the police on the premises.

8923. Was that the first time you knew the bottle had been buried in the garden? Yes.

8924. Are you positive there is no entry in the books of Messrs. Elliott Brothers of the date on which you took that poison home? Not that I am aware of.

8925. Have you any memorandum of the transaction yourself? No.

8926. Can you fix the exact day on which you obtained that poison? No.

8927. Can you name the day of the month or the day of the week on which you obtained that poison? No.

8928. President.] Would it be six months before you made your statement? No; I think I have made a mistake there.

8929. But do you not say in your statement that it was about six months ago—that is, before the 25th of April—that your father asked you to bring the poison home, and that you then took home the strychnine? Yes; I said that in my statement, but I found out subsequently that I had made a mistake.

8930. When did you find out that you had made this mistake in regard to time? I think it was on the same day as I made the statement.

8931. To what police officer did you make that statement? To Mr. Tindall.

8932. Where did you make the statement? In Messrs. Elliott's office.

8933. Did you take any means of informing the police that you had made this mistake in the time? No; I did not think it was necessary.

8935. And is that the only explanation you can give when you say you made a mistake? Yes.

8936. Now, when do you say that strychnine was obtained? About March or February, in 1894.

8937. Would that be in the year before the date you gave? Yes.

8938. Although you said that it was about six months ago that you took it home when you made the statement? Yes; I remember that I had some pigeons stolen; the dog was bad at the same time they were stolen. I got the poison to kill the dog, and the dog was poisoned. That is how I remember the date.

8939. What was the strychnine you took home coloured with? I do not know.

8940. What colour was it? Pink.

8941. Do you know if it was strychnine or sulphate of strychnine? I do not know.

8942. What is the name of the chemist from whom you obtained this strychnine? Butchart.

8943. Is he at Messrs. Elliott Brothers now? No; he left and went to Tasmania last Monday.

8944. Why did he go to Tasmania last Monday? I do not know; something about his private affairs I think.

8945.

Weynton.

- A. O. Weynton.
6 June, 1896.
8945. Sir Julian Salomons.] What do you say he went to Tasmania for? I think in regard to some private matters.
8946. President.] Do you mean that he has left the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers? I do not know. He may come back again for all I know.
8947. Do you say you found out your mistake the same day you made your statement to the police? Yes, after I had been trying to locate it properly.
8948. Why could not you have located it properly before you gave the police the statement? I do not know.
8949. Was it before you got home that night that you found out your mistake? Yes.
8950. Before you saw any of your own people? Yes.
8951. What time in the day did you make that statement? About 10 o'clock in the morning.
8952. What time did you find out you had made the mistake? During the same day.
8953. Did you know where Inspector Tindall was after he had got your statement from you? No.
8954. Of course you have telephones at your establishment? Yes.
8955. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were there any police officers at your house the same night that you got home? Yes; two.
8956. Was not the very same officer at your house when you got home to whom you had given the statement at Elliott Brothers in the morning? Yes; he was there.
8957. President.] And did you not correct the mistake you had made in your statement as soon as you saw him? No, sir, I did not.
8958. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were there not two officers at Elliott Brothers when you made that statement? Yes.
8959. And were not both of them at your house when you got home that night? Yes.
8960. And you never said one word to either of these officers that you had made a mistake? No.
8961. Why did you not tell them that you were wrong in your date? I did not think it was necessary then.
8962. Did you not say a moment ago that during the day you had been trying to locate the date on which you took the poison home, and that you had come to the conclusion that you were wrong when you said it was six months before the 25th of April? Yes.
8963. I ask you then to give me an explanation why, when you got home and found the two constables there, you did not admit that you were wrong? I was not exactly sure at the time.
8964. But do you not admit that you say you had thought the matter over, and is it not a fact that you had fixed the date in your own mind as February or March? Yes, I know that now.
8965. Were not these the same two officials that were at Elliott Brothers in the morning? Yes.
8966. How long were they there? About three-quarters of an hour.
8967. Could they have had any other business with your family except this case? No, sir, not that I know of.
8968. At the time you went home did you know that the poison had been dug up from your father's garden? I did not.
8969. President.] Did you know that the poison had been dug up when you made your statement to the Police? No.
8970. When did you find out that it had been dug up in your garden? The same night.
8971. While the policemen were at your house? Yes.
8972. And yet you did not tell them that you had made a mistake as to the time you took the poison home?
8973. Sir Julian Salomons.] So you did not know when you made your statement that the strychnine had been dug up? No.
8974. And when you got home you found the constables there? Yes.
8975. And you did not tell them your mistake? No.
8976. Mr. Meagher.] When you were interviewed by the police had you any idea that they had come to see you about the poison you had taken from Elliott Brothers sometime previously? No; I did not know what they had come for.
8977. Did you give them your statement straight off without consideration? Yes.
8978. Then you thought the matter over? Yes.
8979. And when you got home at night you found the policemen there? Yes.
8980. I suppose the reason why you did not say anything to the police was, when you came home you preferred to talk the matter over with the members of your family first? Yes.
8981. And I suppose it was after the police had left that you had a chat with your father and mother? Yes; before we had tea.
8982. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean to say that you corrected your mistake to your mother the same night? Yes; I said I had made a mistake. I told my mother so.
8983. Have you a younger brother? Yes.
8984. What's his name? Marsden.
8985. Have you another? Yes, Russell.
8986. Do you remember that he had some holidays in June last year? Yes; I do remember.
8987. Mr. Meagher.] Can you recollect in that incident, to say positively if it was previous to your younger brother having his holidays that you took that poison home? Oh, yes, it was before then.
8988. Do you say it was Mr. Butchart who gave you the poison? Yes.
8989. Did you ask any other one of Messrs. Elliott Bros' employees for this poison before you asked Mr. Butchart? Not that I remember.
8990. Is any other employee of Elliott Bros. living at North Shore? Mr. Butchart was.
8991. Do you know where he lived at North Shore? I cannot say exactly where he did.
8992. Can you say whether Mr. Butchart was residing at North Shore at the time you got the poison or not? I think he resided there ever since he came back to Elliott Bros. I cannot say exactly where he lived.
8993. Has Mr. Butchart lived at North Shore during the whole of the time you have known him? Yes.
8994. Have you ever made a statement to the effect that you asked a gentleman living on North Shore, other than Mr. Butchart, for this poison? No. I asked Mr. Butchart for it first of all, and he handed the poison to me.
8995. Whereabouts did he reside at North Shore? I do not know.

8996. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you not stated that you asked some one else at Elliott Bros. for this poison before you spoke to Mr. Butchart? No.
8997. Have you been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office to make a statement? No.
8998. Have you made a statement to anybody else? No.
8999. What is this Mr. Butchart? He is a chemist in one of the country departments.
9000. Does he live far from you? I do not know where he lives.
9001. Why did he go to Tasmania last Monday? He did not know he was going himself until Monday morning.
9002. President.] What did he go away for? His wife died there.
9003. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did she live at Tasmania? No; she had left in the mail-boat to go to England, and died when she reached Tasmania.
9004. Has Mr. Butchart been at Elliott Brothers long? Yes.
9005. Do you know if he made any memorandum of when he gave you that poison? I do not know.
9006. You know of no memorandum to that effect, I suppose? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

George Adamson sworn and examined:—

9007. Sir Julian Salomons.] What are you, Mr. Adamson? I am a lamplighter.
9008. Where do you follow this vocation? At North Shore.
9009. Do you know the witness Mary Burns, who gave evidence before this Royal Commission? Yes.
9010. How many years have you known her? Close up to five years.
9011. Do you remember seeing her some few years ago in any particular place? I do.
9012. Where? She was lying under a rock.
9013. Was she alone on this occasion? No; a man was with her.
9014. Is that the only time you have seen this Mary Burns? No; I saw her for two months, or nearly two months, about that time going towards those rocks. I keep a pony near where these rocks are, and when I have been going for my pony I have seen her. I have seen her there at 7 o'clock at night, and I have seen her early in the morning round about this place.
9015. And did this seeing of her extend over a period of about two months, some five years ago? Yes.
9016. Mr. Meagher.] Could you see this Mary Burns and the man in the cave? Yes.
9017. When was your attention first called to the fact that you had seen this man and woman in this cave some five years ago? Last week.
9018. And by whom was your attention called to this five-years'-ago fact so late as last week? By Sergeant Brennan, of the Police Force.
9019. Did Sergeant Brennan come to you on this subject? Yes.
9020. Have you seen the girl Mary Burns since the time she frequented this cave? No; I have not.
9021. Were you at this place on the day Mary Burns gave her evidence? No; I was not.
9022. How then do you know it is the same woman? I knew her as a servant girl before I saw her go down to the cave.
9023. Did you often see Constable Wearin when he was on his beat? Yes; every second night.
9024. Has Constable Wearin spoken to you about this matter? Yes; last Monday, when I was cleaning my lamps, he said he wanted to see me. He asked me something about this affair, but he did not tell me all about it. I told him I did not want to have anything to do with the case.
9025. Was that before Sergeant Brennan saw you? Brennan, I think, saw me on the following Monday.
9026. You say you used to see the constable every second night during the two months you saw Mary Burns and this man going to the cave? Yes.
9027. Did you meet Constable Wearin every second night during this time? It was only last week that he spoke to me about it.
9028. Did you speak to the constable, or did the constable speak to you? He spoke to me.
9029. What I mean is this: During the two months you remember this man and this woman being under the rocks, how often did you see Sergeant Brennan? Nearly every day.
9030. Did you meet Constable Wearin frequently five years ago, too? Yes.
9031. Will you swear that you mentioned to Constable Wearin anything about seeing these people under the rocks? No; I mentioned it to Sergeant Brennan.
9032. Then you did not mention the fact to Constable Wearin at all? No, to Brennan; he was the man I spoke to.
9033. Well, then, five years ago, how often did you see Sergeant Brennan? Nearly every day.
9034. Was it at the beginning, or in the centre, or at the end, of the period you saw these people going to the rocks that you mentioned the fact to Sergeant Brennan? I think it was about the sixth week.
9035. Do you remember the date on which you first spoke to Sergeant Brennan on this subject? It was one day when I was lighting the lamps in Bay Road.
9036. At what time of the day was this? It would be about half-past 3 in the afternoon, I think.
9037. In what month would that be? In December, I think.
9038. Do you not know that December contains some important dates—Christmas Day, for instance;—was it before or after Christmas Day in this December that you told Brennan? I think it was just a bit before Christmas.
9039. In whose employ are you as a lamplighter? The North Sydney Gas Company.
9040. Does the North Shore Gas Company generally have its lamps illuminated at half-past 4 in the afternoon during the month of December? No; but I have to fetch my pony from the paddock before I go round lighting the lamps, and it was when I was fetching the pony that I saw Brennan.
9041. Did you not swear a few moments ago that you were lighting the lamps when you saw Sergeant Brennan? I generally go for the pony about half-past 3 in the afternoon, and it was then that I saw him. I take the pony home, and light the lamps about 6 o'clock.
9042. Did Sergeant Brennan ever tell you that he went there and saw these people? No.
9043. As far as you know, did anyone see them there? No; the place at that time was bush all round. It had not then been opened out as it is now.

G. Adamson.
6 June, 1895.

- G. Adamson. 9044. Have you seen other people there during the last five years? Only men who have been camped about that part.
 6 June, 1895. 9044½. Was not the railway to Milson's Point in course of construction through this estate at that very time? Some parts of it; but not near this cave. That was in the gully, and the railway-line stopped at St. Leonards.
 9045. Where do you say? The railway-line stopped about 2 miles away, right up at St. Leonards Railway Station.
 9046. When Constable Wearin spoke to you on Monday last about this particular matter, what did he say? He first said, "How do you think Dean will get on?" I replied, "I think he will get out of it." We then went on talking, and I asked him what he wanted to know; he then asked me about this girl, Mary Burns. Sergeant Brennan came to me first.
 9047. What did Sergeant Brennan ask you? He asked me what I thought about Dean's case, and I said I thought Dean would get out of it. He then said, "Do you remember that affair of Mary Burns and the man under the rocks?" I replied, "Yes; it is about five years since they were there."
 9048. What did Sergeant Brennan say to that? He went away, and I continued cleaning my lamps. Shortly afterwards Constable Wearin came to me and asked me the same kind of questions.
 9049. What did Constable Wearin say to you? He said, "Do you remember Mary Burns sleeping down in Berry's Bush, under the rocks?" I said, "Yes." He said to me, "You had better come down with me, and have a look at the place." I went with him, and we had a look at the rock.
 9050. Did you point out the rock which you remembered five years previously? Yes; and I pointed it out to Sergeant Brennan from the Bay Road.
 9051. Are there many rocks round about that particular locality? Yes; but this particular place is a great big cave.
 9052. Sir Julian Salomons.] But what have you to say about Constable Wearin? I went down to the place with him, and pointed out the very same rock.
 9053. Have you the slightest doubt about having seen Mary Burns there as you describe? No; I am sure she was there.
 9054. You have not the slightest doubt about her being the same woman? No; she is the same woman.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mr. Meagher notified that this closed the case on his side.

George William Newcombe sworn and examined:—

- G. W. Newcombe. 9055. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your name is George William Newcombe? Yes.
 6 June, 1895. 9056. And you reside at No. 15, Aston-terrace, Collins-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
 9057. I think you have been residing there during the last four years? About that time.
 9058. And ten years previously you lived at No. 31? Yes.
 9059. How many years have you been living in that neighbourhood? Fourteen years.
 9060. You are the father, I think, of that young gentleman that gave evidence here yesterday? Quite right.
 9061. How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour by sight? I would hardly like to say.
 9062. Well, about how many years? About three or four years.
 9063. Can you see Madame Rose's house from your house? I think the best answer to that will be to show you this photograph. [Photograph exhibited.] This is a fac-simile of the house I live in.
 9064. Your house is opposite to Madame Rose's? No, not opposite.
 9065. Can you see Madame Rose's house from your house? Yes; as well as anybody.
 9066. Have you seen Mrs. Seymour go in there, and if so, when and how? I have frequently seen her.
 9067. How was she dressed—in her working clothes or otherwise? In her working clothes, and always in the morning with her apron on.
 9068. Have you seen her going over with things from her shop to Madame Rose's, doing business? Oh, yes; the same as the butcher, the baker, and the grocer, the wine and spirit merchant, and the Ice Company's servant, and the wood and coal—going in and out.
 9069. The daughter, Mary Dean, did you know her by sight? I did.
 9070. Have you seen her passing your house frequently in the daytime? No, not frequently.
 9071. Have you seen her pass? Yes.
 9072. Have you a verandah to your house? Yes.
 9073. You can see Madame Rose's house from your house? Yes.
 9074. Have you ever seen Mrs. Dean, when she was Mary Seymour, going into Madame Rose's house? Never in my life.
 9075. What did you judge of her character? Sometimes she would have a broad hat on, at other times a little kind of pork-pie hat. Her dress would be very unassuming and unattractive, and her manners were most prudent as far as I could see.
 9076. Have you ever seen in all your life anything on the part of Mrs. Dean that would lead you to believe that she was a slightly improper, or irregular person? Quite the contrary. I have often passed the remark, "What a decent girl she looked as compared to her mother."
 9077. You have always seen her well conducted, and quietly dressed, and have never seen her going into Madame Rose's in your life? No, never, I will swear.
 9078. You have been living there fourteen or fifteen years? About fourteen years.
 9079. Mr. Meagher.] Have you ever seen Madame Rose in the street? Pretty often at the door watching to let customers in.
 9080. Have you ever seen anything wrong on her part? Only doing a little beckoning.
 9081. Is that all you saw? I won't say that.
 9082. You reside, you say, nearly opposite? Yes, nearly opposite.
 9083. You did not keep sentry on the house, I suppose? If I did it would not be there. I had a better opportunity from my balcony if I chose.
 9084. It would be quite possible for Mary Seymour and her mother to be there both day and night without your knowing anything about it? Quite possible. I was not always on the watch.

9085.

9085. Sir Julian Salomons.] You know it is a house of assignation? Yes; it is a hell upon earth.
 9086. You know the character of the house? Yes, well. I mean Madame Rose's.
 9087. In giving the evidence you have you know the character of her house? Yes, well.
 9088. In the warm weather did you ever sit on your verandah? Yes. I am a retired Civil Servant, and when I get up early in the morning I take a walk up and down the verandah. I wait for the postman, take a walk around the park, then have a smoke, read the paper, have my dinner, then have another smoke, and another walk.
 9089. Did you ever sit on the verandah in warm weather? I may tell you that three parts of my verandah were thickly studded with vines. You could see neither inside nor outside, but the other side was quite vacant.
 9090. In walking up and down in front have you ever seen this daughter, Mary Seymour, going into Madame Rose's in your life? Never; I will swear it.

[Witness withdrew.]

G. W.
Newcombe,
6 June, 1895.

Detective William John Tindall sworn and examined:—

- 9090½. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is your name? William John Tindall.
 9091. I believe that on Monday, the 29th April, accompanied by Detective Clough, you called on a Mr. and Mrs. Thompson at North Sydney? Yes.
 9092. Did you tell Mr. Thompson who you were? Yes.
 9093. What did you tell him? I saw his wife, Mrs. Thompson, first, and told her who I was, and that I wanted her to make a statement with reference to the Dean case.
 9094. Had you instructions to go there? Yes; I received instructions from the Inspector-General of Police to make inquiries into the whole matter. Mrs. Thompson asked me to wait a moment, and she went out and brought her husband in.
 9095. You went there to see if they could throw any light upon this case? Yes.
 9096. You received special instructions to go there? Yes.
 9097. When did you go there? On the 29th April.
 9098. What did you say to Mrs. Thompson? I told her I was a sub-inspector of detectives, and that I had come there to ask her to make a statement on the Dean case. She brought her husband in, and I told him I wanted him to make a statement with reference to the case. I asked him if he knew anything, and he said, "I know nothing about it at all." Mrs. Thompson made her statement in his presence. It was taken down by Detective Clough, and read over to her. I asked her if she had anything further to add to it, and she said, "No." Then she signed it.
 9099. Mrs. Thompson made the statement in the presence of her husband—a general statement—taken down by Detective Clough, and you asked her if she had anything further to add, and she said, "No," and signed it;—are you clear about that? Yes. That statement is almost identical with the evidence she gave before the Commission, with the exception of seeing Mrs. Seymour on the Sunday night in February at the back of the house.
 9100. Did she say one word about that Sunday night in February? No; nothing at all.
 9101. You read her the statement, and she signed it? Yes.
 9102. Before she signed it do you remember you asked her something? I asked her if she had anything else to say, and she said, "No," and then she signed it.
 9103. Did you confine her to any particular date or circumstance? No. I had no motive for doing so. She gave a general statement.
 9104. Did you say one word about any particular time on that occasion? No, nothing whatever. I had no motive for doing so.
 9105. Mr. Thompson has said in his evidence, in reply to questions put to him by me:—

Were you not there when your wife made a statement to Tindall? Yes.

Did not Tindall ask you if you knew anything, and you told him you knew nothing? Tindall asked me did I know anything about the case, and I said, "What I know you are welcome to have; what I know about the case you can have." He said, "Do you know much about it?" I said, "Nothing of importance."

Did you tell him anything? I told him nothing.

Did you not tell him after your wife made these statements that you knew nothing? These are the words I used: I asked Tindall did he want me to make a statement. He said, "Do you know anything about the case?" I said, "Nothing of importance." He said, "If you are called you will be able to explain."

Did you tell him anything? No.

Of any kind? No. Tindall came to my house and asked my wife to make a statement about the Tuesday she was in Dean's.

Did you or did you not;—you know what your wife had given an account of? Yes.

You knew that? Yes.

Did he not ask you if you could give any information, and you said, "Nothing"? Tindall did not ask me. I asked Tindall if he wanted me to make a statement. He said, "Do you know anything?" I said, "Not much; but if I am called I will give my evidence." I made no statement. I suppose you won't deny that Tindall was there to get information? Yes; he was there to get information about my wife's being in Dean's on the Tuesday morning. Tindall came for that, and he asked my wife to make a statement.

Mr. Thompson has said that you said to him, "Do you know much about it?" and he said, "Nothing of importance"? He has made a mistake.

9106. What did he tell you? After Mrs. Thompson signed the statement, I asked Mr. Thompson if he knew anything about the case, and he said, "Nothing of importance."

9107. Is what Mr. Thompson has said in his evidence true? It is not. After Mrs. Thompson signed her statement, I asked Mr. Thompson if he had anything to state, and he said, "No."

9108. After she had made her statement? Yes.

9109. Did you say anything to lead him to think about your limiting her to the Tuesday morning? I never referred to it at all.

Detective
W. J. Tindall,
6 June, 1895.

Detective
W. J. Tindall.
6 June, 1893.

9110. Did you know these details at all? At the time—the importance of one point more than another—no, I did not. That was my reason for asking him.
9111. You were told to get all the information you could about this matter? Yes; to get all I could in Dean's favour, or throw any light on the case.
9112. Mrs. Thompson said positively that she kept it back because you only asked her about what happened on the Tuesday;—is that correct? No, I never mentioned Tuesday; in fact she gave her statement, and I do not think I interjected anything. Her husband was opposite her nursing the baby.
9113. Did she say, "That is all I know of the Tuesday, and anything else I will say at the trial"? No, nothing of the kind. That is not correct.
9114. Did not you want to find out everything she knew? Yes.
9115. Did she say one word, or her husband, anything beyond what they told you? Nothing whatever.
9116. They gave you all the information they had as far as you knew? I thought so.
9117. The husband had no statement to make, and the wife made a statement, which you took, and she signed it? Yes.
9118. You went to see that young Woynton about that strychnine that was dug up in the garden? Yes, I saw him.
9119. At Elliott Brothers? Yes, at Elliott Brothers.
9120. Do you know the clairvoyant who was called yesterday, Madame Von, now Mrs. Parker? Yes.
9121. Do you know her by repute? Yes.
9122. Is she a respectable person? She bears a very indifferent character. I knew her first as Mrs. Ferguson fifteen or sixteen years ago, also as M'Lean, and as Mrs. Parker.
9123. She is known to the police? Yes.
9124. Mr. Meagher.] You went to Mrs. Thompson on the 29th of April;—do you know that one of the most important parts of Dean's case at Darlington, which was tried in the early part of the month, was that he stated in his evidence that on the Tuesday he was lying beside his wife, and that Dr. Newmarch was brought to contradict him at the trial on that point? I knew nothing about it; I was absent from duty on special duty, at Minmi; I was brought specially back from there to make the inquiry, and learnt everything I could on behalf of Dean, and collected all the evidence possible.
9125. How many people have you interviewed? I could not tell you. Some hundreds, I suppose. I returned everything in writing from every person and signed.
9126. Do you know that previous to your going to see Mrs. Thompson she had been cross-examined by Dr. Newmarch about this very Tuesday? I did not indeed; I knew nothing whatever about it. When the case came on before the Court, and he was committed, I knew nothing about it; I never read one word in the newspapers.
9127. You did not read anything of the case at all? Not one word; where I was it was a difficult matter to get a newspaper.
9128. Where were you? At Minmi.
9129. Where did you glean that information from, then, if you did not read about the case—where did you glean everything both for and against him? Every day I would learn something here and there.
9130. Of the inquiry? Yes, decidedly.
9131. You learnt nothing of the case till you went about those inquiries? No.
9132. Dr. Todd.] You started on this inquiry without knowing anything about it? I knew nothing about it—nothing whatever concerning it. I have sworn that. I never even read about it until the time of his committal. That question was asked me by the Inspector-General of Police.
9133. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is not that the reason why you were chosen? I believe it was; that question was asked me by the Inspector-General of Police.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Sarah Ruth Fiford sworn and examined:—

Mrs.
S. R. Fiford.
6 June, 1893.

9134. President.] What is your name? Ruth Fiford.
9135. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your name is? Sarah or Ruth, Sarah Ruth Fiford.
9136. You are a widow, residing at No. 436, Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
9137. With your children? Yes.
9138. How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour? Nine years.
9139. Have you known the daughter who was Miss Seymour at that time? Yes; she has visited my house, and my daughter went out with her.
9140. She was a friend of your daughter's? Yes; my daughter went out with Mary Seymour.
9141. Is your daughter outside this room? Yes.
9142. And soon after you became acquainted did you visit the shop? Yes, sir.
9143. How many times were you there? I used to go about twice a week.
9144. Did you deal there? Yes; and I used to do work for Mrs. Seymour.
9145. What did you buy? Vegetables.
9146. Was it a real shop, or only a pretence—a shop, I mean, where real business was carried on? Yes, it appeared to be. I thought she was a thorough business woman, and that it was a shop of business.
9147. President.] Was it a blind for anything else? It was not a blind; I do not believe it.
9148. Was there any ground for you believing that it was a blind? No, sir, there were no grounds.
9149. Sir Julian Salomons.] What things did they sell there? Vegetables, apples, and fruit of all kinds.
9150. You have dealt there for years? Yes; I have dealt there for nine years.
9151. Have you seen other people dealing there? Oh, plenty.
9152. Did you ever see anything about the girl, Mary Seymour, during all the years that you have known her that was immodest, indecent, improper, or anything of that kind? She is the most modest girl I ever knew.
9153. Was she a fit girl to be a companion of your daughter's? Yes, or I would not have allowed my daughter to go with her.
9154. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
9155. How long have you known her? For nine years.
9156. You lived near her? No, I lived a good distance from her. I live near the corner of Riley-street.
9157. Still near enough to form an opinion? Yes.

9158.

9158. To know her well? Yes.
9159. She was a very respectable woman? I always thought so. I never thought any harm of her till I read it in the papers. Mrs.
S. R. Fiford.
9160. But you do not attach any importance to the papers—from your own experience? I thought she was a very good, kind-hearted, respectable, hard-working woman. 6 June, 1895.
9161. A virtuous woman and a modest woman? I believe so.
9162. In fact a highly reputable member of society? Yes.
9163. That is Mrs. Seymour? Yes, that is Mrs. Seymour.
9164. And her daughter the same? Yes, her daughter the same. I thought the daughter was a little more childish than herself—childish to my daughter when she was about the same age. She was not grown up a woman like my daughter.
9165. She did not develop so quickly into a woman as your daughter? No, I mean in her ways.
9166. A simple little thing? Yes.
9167. Had her mother any characteristic simplicity about her too? I do not know, I thought she was a business woman.
9168. A kind of woman that would know her way about? Yes, of course.
9169. However, as I gather from you, as far as your opinion goes, and you had plenty of opportunities of forming one, Mrs. Seymour was a very respectable member of society? I thought so.
9170. And you formed the same opinion of her daughter? Yes, I did, and I shall always believe the same. I will, no matter what anybody else says.
9171. You stick to your opinion? Yes, I always will.
9172. May I ask you is your acquaintance with Mrs. Seymour up to a recent date, or have you cut her now? I have never cut her now. Why should I?
9173. Have you seen her lately? Yes, just now.
9174. Only now have you seen her? Yes, up till about a fortnight ago.
9175. At her house? Yes.
9176. Where was she living then? At Mrs. Johnson's.
9177. Of course you did not talk about this case? Of course we didn't? Of course we did.
9178. Of course I knew you did when you say you didn't? Well, I would not say I did if I didn't.
9179. Are you a washerwoman? Yes; I am—laundry.
9180. By the way do they give in your neighbourhood any surprise parties? Not that I know of. I never went to one.
9181. Has your daughter ever gone to one? No; she never went to one.
9182. Not that you know of? No.
9183. I am not suggesting anything wrong? There is no wrong in it, but my girl has too much to do at home.
9184. You say that she and Mary used to go out together sometimes. Do you know where they went? If I wanted anything from town she went with Mary, and my daughter went with Mary when her mother wanted anything from town.
9185. They went out messages together? Yes.
9186. They went out as girls do? Yes; as girls go out together.
9187. Amongst the people whose washing you did in that neighbourhood, can you tell me of some of them? Yes, Smart's. I did work for Smart the painter, and the rest is mangling I do, and I go out washing.
9188. Whom do you go to wash for? For a butcher named Carrick.
9189. Up in your neighbourhood? Yes.
9190. How far do you live from Mrs. Seymour? About two doors from Devonshire-street.
9191. Would that be a quarter of a mile away? Good gracious, no. Don't you know where that is?
9192. Is it 100 yards away? I could not say, just the distance from the corner of Devonshire-street.
9193. How long have you lived in the neighbourhood? Twenty-three years in the one house.
9194. It is a respectable neighbourhood? Yes; as far as I can see.
9195. Any bad houses about there? I suppose there are; there are bad houses everywhere.
9196. You know nothing about them? I do not have anything to do with any of them.
9197. So far as you know there are no bad houses in the neighbourhood? Of course there are.
9198. I do not know? If you don't know you ought to know.
9199. Have you done any washing for any of them? No; neither would I.
9200. Were you a personal friend of Mrs. Seymour's apart from business? No; only in business.
9201. You did not visit them socially at all? No; she only brought her clothes to me to wash them. I have gone into their house. Her daughter and my daughter used to go ferning together. I have often been through her yard.
9202. You never saw any men about the place? I saw Mr. Jones.
9203. Except him? No.
9204. President.] Did you ever hear of a girl named Rita? No.
9205. Do you know of a Mrs. Thomson who does washing? No.
9206. Did you wash for Mrs. Seymour? No; mangling, not washing.
9207. Do you know who washed for her at any time? No, I do not; I used to get the clothes once a week or once a fortnight, and I used to go up there and deal with her. When I used to take the clothes home she used to say, "Is that you, Mrs. Fiford? Come through," and I used to go through.

[Witness withdrew.]

Alice Fiford sworn and examined:—

9208. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is your name? Alice Fiford.
9209. That was your mother who has just been examined? Yes.
9210. And you reside with your mother at 436, Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
9211. How long have you known Mary Seymour? For the last twelve years.
9212. Have you constantly been in company with her? Yes; specially during the last three years.
9213. Were you girl friends together? Yes, up to some twelve months before she was married.

Alice Fiford.
6 June, 1895

- Alice Fford. 9214. Have you been in the house waiting while she was getting ready to go out with you? Yes; I have been all through the house.
- 6 June, 1895. 9215. You have been through the house at different times? Yes.
9216. What was the character and conduct of Miss Seymour? Respectable.
9217. Was it ever otherwise than that? Never.
9218. What kind of a girl was she? Always quiet, and always a well-behaved girl while she was out with me.
9219. Did you see anything about the house in any way of a disreputable or criminal nature whatever? No, never.
9220. Have you been in all the rooms of the house? Yes, in all the rooms.
9221. Without let or hindrance? Yes.
9222. You have been more intimate with her during the last three years? Yes; constantly in her company for some three years. Up to twelve months of her marriage I was a constant companion of hers.
9223. And she has been often out with you? Yes, often out with me.
9224. Mr. Pilcher.] I suppose, visiting the house, you had an opportunity of forming an opinion of Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
9225. Was she a respectable woman, and nice? Yes.
9226. Quite a credit to her country? Yes.
9227. The daughter and the mother were very much the same? Yes; as far as I saw.
9228. As far as you could form an opinion? Yes.
9229. I am not asking this offensively, nor do I mean to imply anything, but I have a reason in asking you this question. There is no doubt about yourself? Not the slightest. You can go to anybody.
9230. I mean about you yourself being a very respectable and well-conducted girl. That any girl who associated herself with you would naturally conduct herself properly, otherwise you would not know her? I would not.
9231. Sir Julian Salomons.] As far as you saw of Mrs. Seymour's conduct and character it was always respectable? Yes.
9232. You knew nothing of her life before she came to that shop? Nothing whatever.
9233. You only knew her as having that shop? Yes.
9234. And having her daughter there? Yes.
9235. You saw nothing improper on the part of the mother, or in the house? No; I never heard anything against Mrs. Seymour until this case started.
9236. Mr. Pilcher.] You thought it was a most respectable house? Yes.
9237. You knew nothing about Mrs. Seymour's previous character? Not till this case.
9238. You never saw the police watching the house? No.
9239. Or knew that it was a house that was frequented by thieves? No.
9240. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you see any signs of such a thing? No.
9241. Or did you ever hear of such a thing? No.
9242. Mr. Pilcher.] You never saw any police shadowing the house? No.
9243. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have seen no people of that sort there? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

Richard Brennan recalled:—

- R. Brennan. 9244. Mr. Pilcher.] Brennan, do you know that girl Mary Burns? Yes.
- 6 June, 1895. 9245. Did you go with Wearin on one occasion to see her? Yes.
9246. Did Wearin go in with you? Yes.
9247. In where? Into the door.
9248. Where did you go then? I went to speak to her.
9249. Where did you go to speak to her? At the end of the house.
9250. What room did you go into? None at all.
9251. It was outside the house, was it? Yes.
9252. In the yard? In a kind of side passage.
9253. A side passage? Yes, something like that at the end of the house.
9254. Was it the back end or the front end? It was the gable end.
9255. Where did Wearin stay? He came in with me.
9256. Was he standing with you when you were talking with her? Portion of the time.
9257. Where did he go then? She said she would not speak to me while he was there. He removed away from me, after a time.
9258. Did he go away from where you and she were standing? Yes, 5 or 6 yards.
9259. Did you not go away? After a shower of rain.
9260. Did he go away when she said she would not speak to you? Yes, 5 or 6 yards.
9261. Did he hear what she said? I cannot say.
9262. What did you say about the shower of rain? That it came on at the time, and Wearin went away.
9263. Is that the time he went 6 or 7 yards away? No.
9264. Where were you? In the passage.
9265. Where did you and Mary Burns go when the shower of rain came on? We remained in the passage.
9266. At the back? Yes, it was covered over.
9267. Did you continue talking after Wearin went away? Yes.
9268. Did you see Mary down the town that day? No.
9269. Did you see her the day before? No.
9270. Did you see her down town before you went to see her? No.
9271. Did you see her down town at all? I saw her here, sitting on the chair, and she bid me good morning.
9272. Did you speak to her more than that? No.
9273. Did you arrange for her to telephone for you? No.
9274. Will you swear that? Positively.

9275.

R. Brennan,
6 June, 1895.

9275. Positively swear that? Yes.
9276. Did you tell her to use the telephone at the Darlinghurst Police Station? No.
9277. Did she telephone from there? Yes.
9278. From the Darlinghurst Police Station to you? Yes.
9279. And in consequence of that you went up? Yes; and took Wearin with me.
9280. That Mary used to be in your service at one time? Yes.
9281. Whilst she was there did you have any trouble in your own house? Yes; sickness. My wife was sick with my first child.
9282. Was there any misunderstanding between you and your wife while Mary was living there? No.
9283. Something about other girls? Never.
9284. Nothing of that sort? Never.
9285. Will you swear that? Positively.
9286. Did you see Mary when she came down here, and tell her to be sure and not let out anything that took place at your house while she was living there? Not a word.
9287. Did she not say, "I have come to give evidence in the Dean case, and will not say anything about it"? No.
9288. Did not you arrange with her to telephone to you to come up and see her? No; I will positively swear that.
9289. Did not you also when you did see her speak to her about some matter that had happened in your own house? No.
9290. You understand what I mean? She spoke to me about a matter that Mr. Mcagher was asking me a question about to-day.
9291. What was that? About Harriet Cleave.
9292. She spoke to you about that? Yes; about a conspiracy to get me out of the police.
9293. Was that that night that you went up? Yes.
9294. President.] A conspiracy between Cleave and whom? A conspiracy to get me out of the police through this case in reference to a woman named Cleave, whom I called upon officially on three occasions.
9295. Between whom was the conspiracy? She said there was a conspiracy to get me out of the police.
9296. What about Harriet Cleave? She told me they were bringing a charge against me about Harriet Cleave.
9297. Mr. Pilcher.] What was that about Harriet Cleave? She said there was a charge being brought against me about Harriet Cleave and an abortion case. On one occasion I took a woman there who was supposed to be confined of a child—a woman who had been living with a man named Stenning, at Neutral Bay. I took her away to this woman Cleave, in Crown-street, Surry Hills. It appears the neighbours noticed that this woman was near her confinement—the woman who had been living with the man named Stenning. It was reported to the local police, and I was told to make an inquiry. This woman told me she was confined by Mrs. Waugh, and I went and saw the senior constable in Sydney about it. I went and saw Mrs. Waugh, and she told me that her mother was an infirm old woman living in the country. I then went back to this woman, Mrs. Waugh, and she told me this woman was confined at Cleave's.
9298. President.] When did you take the woman to Cleave's? Last January twelve months.
9299. The neighbours noticed at the time you took her that she was in the family-way? It was previous to that.
9300. Shortly previous to that? Yes; the neighbours noticed she was in the family-way, and she was missed for a time, and a report was made to the local police, and I was directed to assist the local men to make the inquiry. She is still living at Neutral Bay.
9301. Did you take her there when she was in the family-way? No; after she was confined.
9302. You took her there after she was confined? Yes; to confront her with this woman.
9303. That was what Mary was talking to you about? Yes; she was asking me if I took a woman there over an abortion case of twins, and that there was a conspiracy to get me out of the police over the Dean case.
9304. It is not true that she was talking to you at all about anything in your own family? No.
9305. Sir Julian Salomons.] This woman was in your employ about nine years ago? Yes; over nine years ago—nearly ten years ago.
9306. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you ever know that Mary before then? No.
9307. Before she was in your service? No; not before.
9308. Or after? Of course I have seen her after.
9309. You never knew anything about her except that she was in your employment, and casually meeting her in the street? That is all; I am very glad that I have been able to give this information.
9310. President.] Is there any suggestion in the world that your wife has suspected you of being unfaithful to her? Nothing whatever; I have a good wife, and I am quite willing that she should be called before I leave the Court.
9311. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is there any foundation in the world for such a thing? No, none whatever; I have a good wife, and she can be called before I leave the Court.

[Witness withdrew.]

William Mogford Hamlet, Esq., sworn and examined:—

9312. Dr. Jones.] You examined two bottles of urine? Yes; I examined a number of bottles of urine.
9313. The two bottles of urine said to have come from Mrs. Dean? I think I examined more than that.
9314. More than two? Yes, more than two. I cannot give you the number.
9315. I am speaking of urine said to be Mrs. Dean's urine; I am referring now to the evidence at the trial? I think I had three of them.
9316. Three at that time? No, not at that time. I have had one since.
9317. I am referring to your evidence at the trial. As far as I can learn from your evidence at the trial, you examined two specimens of urine said to be Mrs. Dean's? Yes.
9318. Did you discover arsenic in both of these specimens? I found distinct traces of arsenic in the one drawn during the 9th and 10th March, said to have been drawn on the 10th March, and in the one drawn on the 1st of April (labelled No. 7) no arsenic was found.

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.,
6 June, 1895.

9319.

- W. M. Hamlet, Esq.
6 June, 1895.
9319. Do you know of your own knowledge which of those specimens were drawn from Mrs. Dean with the catheter by Dr. Newmarch? I think the last one, on the 1st of April.
9320. It was handed to you with that intimation? No.
9321. How do you know it was? It was stated on the bottle, I think, "Drawn with the catheter."
9322. It was labelled, "Drawn with the catheter"? Yes.
9323. Did you examine the medicine that Dr. Newmarch prescribed for the vomiting and purging on the 4th March,—Tincture opii, liquor Bismuthi, hydrocyanic acid, syrup, and water? Yes, I examined that.
9324. You analysed that medicine? The one with the hydrocyanic acid.
9325. The one containing tincture opii, 3 drams; liquor Bismuthi, 2 ounces; acid hydrocyanic dil., $\frac{1}{2}$ dram; and syrup and water? There was no arsenic and no strychnine in that.
9326. As to the solubility of strychnine, would strychnine be much more soluble in a solution containing an organic acid than in a solution without an organic acid? Yes, it would be more soluble.
9327. Much more soluble? No, not much more soluble. The solubility as tartrate would be 1 in 52, the solubility as citrate 1 in 37, and as the hydrochlorate 1 in 35. The solubility increases with the mineral acids.
9328. Would strychnine be likely to have been given in the form of an alkaloid or in the form of a salt? It would be impossible for an analyst to say whether it was in the form of a salt or in the form of the alkaloid; probably as alkaloid, judging from some experiments I made of a pink strychnine. Pink strychnine is always in the form of the alkaloid. The salt is generally used in medicine, but for poisoning the alkaloid is used.
9329. Did you analyse this bottle that was dug up out of Mr. Weynton's garden? No, sir.
9330. You do not know whether it is the salt of strychnine or the pure alkaloid? No; I know nothing of it.
9331. Dr. Manning.] You said that in examining the urine the arsenic was perfectly dissolved which showed it had probably passed through the kidneys? Yes.
9332. What quantity of this arsenic was there? Traces.
9333. Not appreciable by weight at all? Oh, no; I estimated it as below one fiftieth of a grain. Why I say it passed through the kidneys was because I tried a similar experiment with urine by adding arsenic to it, and I found I never could get a clear solution even after standing for five or six or seven days; but in the case of the urine alleged to have come from Mrs. Dean it was perfectly dissolved and there was no sediment—no arsenic in the sediment.
9334. Supposing then that the urine had been tampered with and that arsenic had been added to it after it had been passed, in your opinion that arsenic would not have been so perfectly dissolved? No.
9335. Are you of opinion it would have been in larger quantities? Yes, certainly; because my general impression about this Dean case is that it is a most bungling and crude method of adding the arsenic. The arsenic if it has been added has been added by a careless and ignorant person.
9336. It has been added in a much larger quantity than was necessary for the purpose? Yes.
9337. Therefore, if they had tampered with the urine it would be likely to be used there in much larger quantities? Yes.
9338. President.] Do you mean to say that the arsenic has been given by some bungling person? No, I don't. What I mean is that if you were to add a pinch of arsenic to a vessel containing urine it would be an exceedingly difficult matter for you to make it dissolve. In order to get a clear urine afterwards you would have to filter it. This urine I am speaking of was perfectly clear.
9339. It was your impression that, through the cause you have said just now, it has been given by some bungling person? Because the arsenic in the lemon-syrup was insoluble on the bottom of the bottle. Had it been a careful person he would have taken more care to dissolve it.
9340. Sir Julian Salomons.] Part of it was insoluble? Nearly the whole of it.
9341. Mr. Filcher.] Nearly the whole of the arsenic was in a solid state in the bottom of the bottle? Yes.
9342. Dr. Jones.] As far as the strychnine is concerned it was just the reverse? Yes.
9343. That was not added in a bungling fashion if added at all? That was dissolved, but not so perfectly as if alcohol had been present. Had alcohol been present a more perfect solution would have been obtained.
9344. But it was not, as far as you can judge, added by a bungling person—that is to say, in absurd excess? Oh no, certainly not.
9345. But in the case of the arsenic it was so? Yes.
9346. Dr. Manning.] Was there anything to show you that this strychnine had been put into these various things—this lemon-syrup, the tea you examined, and into the other articles as a powder, in crystals, or solution? No, nothing whatever.
9347. It was so perfectly dissolved in all of them? I could not say whether it was in crystals or in solution.
9348. Taking this tea—it is in evidence that part of the tea out of the tea-cup was poured into the tumbler. The chances are that under the circumstances the arsenic being very insoluble the greater part of it would be still left in the tea-cup, so that what you examined from the tumbler would be only a small part very likely of what was put in? Yes, but even then there was a large proportion of insoluble arsenic in the tumbler, and I transferred the liquid from the tumbler to a stoppered bottle in order to take care of it.
9350. As far as the arsenic and the tea is concerned, did you find that it had been added in a bungling manner? Yes, because a large proportion was insoluble.
9351. Suppose the arsenic had been dumped into the tea (or whatever expression may be right) and then that some of that tea was poured off into a tumbler which was put on one side, would you expect the tea to take up the arsenic that was put in it, or would not whatever arsenic there was in the tumbler be in solution? Yes, chiefly in solution, and some would be in excess.
9352. Sir Julian Salomons.] The excess there would be insoluble? Yes.
9353. President.] Suppose a small quantity of arsenic is put in a tea-cup, then say that the tea is tasted and and some objection is found to taking it, afterwards some of the tea is found to be in a saucer and then the tea in the saucer is poured back into the tea-cup, then from the tea-cup some is poured into a tumbler which is put on one side and that tumbler is given to you, would you expect under those circumstances to find solid arsenic unless it had been put in afterwards? I should not expect to find much.

9354. Would you expect to find as much as you did find? No, I should not.

9355. Unless it had been put in afterwards? I should not. I should like to add, that it depends upon the person who had the cup in her hand—whether she stirred it. If she, by the rotary stirring motion, stirred up the arsenic it would be in suspension, but if it was quiet and the sediment of arsenic had been deposited on the bottom of the tea-cup, then it would be quite possible for very little of the arsenic to pass over into the saucer.

9356. Supposing this to be the case, that some tea is brought upstairs, that from that tea some is poured into a tea-cup, and it is said that there are lumps on the surface of the tea and in the saucer, that the person to whom it is offered refuses to take the tea out of the saucer, and it is poured back into the tea-cup, and then some short space of time elapses while one of the persons there is asked to go on a message, and while the man is on the message some of the tea remaining in the tea-cup and of that which has been poured back into the tea-cup is poured into the tumbler and that tumbler put away, would you expect, under those conditions, to find what you have found in this tumbler? Yes, I should.

9357. That amount of arsenic? It is a small amount—only one-tenth of a grain.

9358. The greater part, of course, would be left in the tea-cup? Yes, the greater part.

9359. Mr. Pilcher.] Would you expect to find as much undissolved in the tumbler as you found? No; I should not expect to find so much undissolved.

9360. Sir Julian Salomons.] I suppose it is impossible for anybody to speak about this matter positively one way or the other? It would be exceedingly difficult to speak positively about it.

9361. Is it in any way inconsistent? No; it depends upon the habit of the person who has been handling it. One person will handle a thing perfectly steady, and another person will shake it up.

9362. Mr. Pilcher.] I suppose all cases of poisoning present great difficulties? Yes.

9363. Dr. Manning.] What was the quantity of arsenic which you found in this faecal stain? A trace.

9364. A trace only? Yes, a minute trace.

9365. If that had been added artificially to the stain afterwards, would you have expected to find a much larger quantity than that? Yes; and I should have expected to find the faecal matter disarranged. Evidently it had not been tampered with from the time it had been deposited.

9366. Supposing the arsenic and the faecal matter had been mixed? It would require a very clever sort of artist-criminal to do that.

9367. In that case, would you expect to find a very much larger quantity of arsenic than a mere trace? Yes.

9368. Talking about not finding it in crystals—you would hardly expect to find crystals under any circumstances? I could if it had been added in the form of arsenious anhydride. I have done so since.

9369. If it had been mixed artificially afterwards, you mean? Yes.

9370. You have talked about the strychnine and the arsenic, the one counteracting the other;—would you like to offer an explanation of that statement? I was asked the question in Court, and I, at first, declined to answer it because I considered it was beyond my province, but the request was made again and I did answer it and I said "probably" but in the Judges notes on page 9, line 39 from the top, the word "probably" does not appear which considerably alters my statement. I said that it would probably cause one to counteract the other.

9371. Had you had any evidence whatever on the subject? Yes.

9372. What evidence? It was reasoning by analogy with the action of metallic irritants such as antimony and zinc which are powerful emetics. I know Dupuy's work on alkaloids (vol. ii, p. 603), where it says: "If immediately after ingestion of strychnine a salt of zinc or antimony or some heavy metal be administered as an emetic, it will probably relieve the person drinking it from strychnine poisoning."

9373. Dr. Jones.] By exciting vomiting? Yes.

9374. In that sense you mean? Yes.

9375. Dr. Manning.] In that sense only? In that sense only.

9376. You had no idea of counteracting it in the system? Not in the method you mean.

9377. Your idea was that arsenic would counteract the strychnine by causing vomiting? Yes, my opinion was further strengthened by Dr. Newmarch, who asked me how it was Mrs. Dean did not die.

9378. Will you give us the conversation;—what did Dr. Newmarch say? Dr. Newmarch asked me if I knew anything about the antagonistic action between arsenic and strychnine. I told him that the only case on record that I knew was the celebrated Cross case in Dublin, but there, the patient died. Then I said that I remembered reading something about the antagonistic action between strychnine and arsenic, but that I could not then state where I had read it. I said probably there might be some counteracting influence between the two substances. Then I looked up the matter and I found the reference mentioned. Dr. Newmarch said he could not understand why she did not die.

9379. You could give the doctor no explanation? I could give him no explanation. I felt justified in saying they might counteract each other, but I did not say positively that they did counteract each other.

9380. Sir Julian Salomons.] Were not you referring to the same matter when talking to Dr. Newmarch? Yes, to the same matter.

9381. Dr. Jones.] Simply it was antagonistic because it acted as an emetic? Yes.

9382. And any other emetic would do the same? Yes.

9383. Sir Julian Salomons.] I see that my learned friend, Dr. Todd, put the following questions to Dr. Knaggs:—"When you combine tartaric acid with bicarbonate of soda, would not you get tartrate of soda, which is known as Rochelle salts," to which Dr. Knaggs said "Yes";—is that accurate? No, Rochelle salts are not formed in that way at all.

9384. Is it a mistake? Entirely.

9385. What drugs would form that? Tartrate of potash and soda.

9386. Make Rochelle salts? Rochelle salts. Rochelle salts is the double salt of tartrate of soda and potash.

9387. Is this correct too;—Dr. Knaggs was then asked, "Will you tell us, in connection with that matter, what

Hamlet, Esq.

Hamlet, Esq.

what you have just been swearing to about this case?" Then he said, "The chemical reaction of tartaric acid and bicarbonate of soda would make tartrate of soda in a very infinitesimal quantity"? That is nonsense. It would form tartrate exactly in the proportion in which the substances existed; that is, if there were n grains of one and n grains of the other, they would unite to form n grains of tartrate.

9388. Sir Julian Salomons.] That is to say, the original question is a mistake in saying that when you combine tartaric acid with bicarbonate of soda will you not get tartrate of soda, which is known as Rochelle salts? You would not get Rochelle salts.

Dr. Todd.] That is Guise the chemist's evidence—not Dr. Knaggs'.

9389. Sir Julian Salomons.] I admit that is a mistake; it was Mr. Guise's evidence, not Dr. Knaggs'. Dr. Knaggs was asked this, speaking about the prescription (Question No. 5489): "Would it be likely to be given by a doctor if he desired to counteract purging and vomiting?" I think not. There is nothing in it to counteract purging, and Rochelle salts is slightly purgative. What quantity of Rochelle salts would produce purging? I do not know exactly, but there is nearly as much in this as there is in an ordinary seidlitz powder. But wait a moment; I see I must take some exception—there are sixteen doses here." In point of fact, was the medicine prescribed for vomiting? Yes.

9391. Would you give the figures, if you know? $1\frac{1}{2}$ grain was insoluble, and $\frac{1}{2}$ grain was soluble.

9392. President.] In what? In the bottle.

9393. Sir Julian Salomons.] $1\frac{1}{2}$ grain you have to take out as insoluble? Yes.

9394. In calculating what a person would take in the liquor, you would have to eliminate $1\frac{1}{2}$ grain? Yes.

9395. And that only leaves how much to be calculated upon? Half a grain.

9396. That is $\frac{1}{2}$ grain to every $2\frac{1}{2}$ oz.? Yes.

9397. And then that even would require the bottle to be shaken up to make it like that? To take the whole of it.

9398. If the bottle of lemon-syrup were standing like that where would the arsenic go;—would it rise all through it with the strychnine or go to the bottom? The arsenic was lying on the bottom of the bottle; and I have no doubt if you find the bottle you will still find it still at the bottom.

9399. Not only would you have to take out the $1\frac{1}{2}$ grain, which was insoluble, but also the other $\frac{1}{2}$ grain would be distributed through it, but would depend upon whether it was shaken or not? Yes, exactly; there is some insoluble arsenic at the bottom of the bottle now.

9400. This being in a bottle of syrup of this kind, there are two things to be considered in calculating what a person would take in pouring some out: First of all, the insoluble part must not be reckoned at all; and second, the other that would be left would depend on whether the bottle was shaken to mix it through the rest of the liquid? What remained soluble would not require to be shaken.

9401. What did you mention was the quantity? Half a grain was soluble in $2\frac{1}{2}$ oz.

9402. With regard to the night-dress: I think you said that if this arsenic were put into the fecal matter and mixed with it, it would require a very clever artist to do it;—that was the expression? Yes; a criminal artist of great ability.

9403. What are the appearances? Perfectly natural.

9404. That is to say, it has been passed through the system as fecal matter? Yes.

9405. That is, fecal matter coming from the system of a person who had already taken arsenic? Yes.

9406. Dr. Goode said that the crystals could not be seen under any microscope.

9406½. President.] He said that he had experimented on calico, and that he could not discover it with a glass? I am ready to prove it to you.

9407. Sir Julian Salomons.] You can speak positively on that? Yes.

9408. And you say they can be seen by a microscope? I can demonstrate it.

9410. President.] You say that solution of arsenic thrown on calico can be well enough distinguished with a glass? Certain solutions can.

9411. I mean to say a solution of white arsenic? Yes.

9412. Would it show any crystals? Yes; it would show the crystals.

9413. Do you say a solution could not be thrown in any way on this calico, in this particular case, that had fecal matter on it—that it could not possibly be done without showing crystals? I do not say that. I could take Fowler's solution of Liquor Arsenicalis, if I had a fine jet, and pour it on very carefully, and I do not think you would be able to see it then.

9414. That is almost a scientific instrument—you mean a thing that would throw a very fine spray? Yes.

9415. But if it was done in the other way—for instance, if it was scattered about? I would detect it.

9416. You say it would alter the fecal stain? No; it would not alter the fecal stain. You would actually see the crystals; and you could isolate them, and pick them out with a needle under a common magnifying glass, and subject them to sulphuretted hydrogen, and get the sulphide of arsenic.

9417. And it would not be distributed through it in the way you found it? In a solution such as Fowler's solution it would be more finely divided and more incorporated—more permeated; but dissolved white arsenic would remain as crystals on the surface. That is one of the first things an analyst has to look for in the coating of the stomach. There would be crystals of white arsenic. They are readily recognisable by a common magnifying glass.

9418. Sir Julian Salomons.] Outside the stain itself (supposing it had been thrown in mixed) did you find any of those things at all? None whatever.

9419. That is to say, they were limited to the stain on the night-dress? Yes.

9420. Assuming that the solution was mixed with the excreta? It was a well defined stain, and I carefully searched at all these points [Diagram D, C, B] outside the region of the stain, and I found no arsenic.

9421. One of the medical gentlemen asked you: Supposing the excreta had poison mixed properly with it in

in solution, and then it were applied to the nightgown, what would be the result? It was not dipped; it was a genuine faecal stain; there is no doubt about that.

9422. Supposing it were dipped in or put on somehow, then, as I understand, there would be no traces of poison outside the faecal stain? No.

9423. So the fact of your not finding the poison outside the faecal stain would not prove whether it came there in the natural course of events, or whether it was put on;—that fact would not prove it? No; that fact would not prove it.

9424. Dr. Todd. [The bottle containing the strychnine handed to witness.] Can you state, from looking at that, whether it is an alkaloid or a soluble salt of strychnine? It is the alkaloid—that is, coloured with rosaniline for the protection of the public.

9425. With reference to this lemon-syrup, I gather from what you say that all the strychnine in the lemon-syrup was in solution? Yes.

9426. Was there $1\frac{1}{2}$ grain of arsenic found in a $2\frac{1}{2}$ oz. bottle, and of that $1\frac{1}{2}$ grain was in deposit, and the $\frac{1}{2}$ -grain was in solution? Yes.

9427. If that amount of arsenic was in the lemon-syrup, and had been put in on top of the bottle, how long would it take for that arsenic to settle down in the bottle? Four or five days.

9428. Supposing it was put in about 2 o'clock in the morning, or at 12 at night, and someone came next morning and poured out some of that lemon-syrup, would not some of that powder come out with it? Yes.

9429. So that if Mrs. Dean at 7 o'clock in the morning poured out 2 oz. of syrup, she would pour out a considerable quantity of the arsenic which was put in? She would.

9430. Then, if she took that 2 oz. of syrup and put it under a tap, and poured water on it from the tap, that arsenic would be still intimately mixed up with the fluid? Yes.

9431. It takes some time for the arsenic to settle? Yes.

9432. It is likely that in drinking the mixture of lemon-syrup and water she would take it very much in the same way as if it were in solution—in very much the same quantity? Possibly she would.

9433. Don't you think it is more than possible, more than likely, when you come to consider the circumstances? It depends upon the way in which this arsenic was diffused at the time throughout the liquid.

9434. You have already explained to me that it would not be deposited in the lemon-syrup in that time between the night and morning? It depends upon what has been done to it.

9435. Supposing somebody put it in and shook the bottle, for instance? It would go down much quicker.

9436. It would be fairly mixed four or five hours afterwards? It takes a long while to mix unless it is violently agitated.

9437. Suppose it was violently agitated, then it would be fairly mixed? Yes.

9438. It would take some hours at all events for that to sink to the bottom? No. What I say is this: Suppose you were to drop some arsenic into some lemon-syrup and allow it to be perfectly quiescent, that arsenic would float on the top for a long time, and it would be several days before it got down to the bottom. But if, on the other hand, you put arsenic into it and shook it up violently and stirred it and then allowed it to be set aside, after the capillary attraction between the water and the arsenic had been sufficiently overcome, the arsenic, when it was thoroughly wetted, would rapidly subside and fall to the bottom.

9439. You are talking about water? Yes.

9440. Lemon-syrup is a viscid stuff? Yes.

9441. Would it take a longer or a shorter time for it to fall to the bottom? I do not think it would make much difference.

9442. It depends upon the specific gravity of the fluid? Not very much, because you can put it on a very light liquid and it will still float.

9443. In reference to this question which Dr. Manning asked about the urine and the quantity of arsenic in it, you say there was one-fiftieth of a grain in the specimen. How many ounces were there in the specimen you examined? It was an 8-oz. bottle more than half full.

9444. Three or 4 oz. in it? Yes.

9445. Say 5 oz.? Yes.

9446. At the outside 5 oz.? Yes.

9447. One-fiftieth of a grain in 5 oz.? Yes.

9448. How many ounces of urine are passed in the twenty-four hours? That entirely depends upon the subject.

9449. The normal quantity you know? About 36 oz. to 56 oz.

9450. We will take it at 40 oz.; in summer weather, when people are drinking a great lot, they probably pass more water? No; less.

9451. If one fiftieth of a grain were in 5 oz., and there were eight times that quantity passed in twenty-four hours, that would be 40 oz.? Yes.

9452. That would be eight-fiftieths or one-sixth of a grain? I do not think I should make any calculation upon that statement of one-sixth of a grain because I did not weigh it.

9453. How much arsenic did you find in the tea on Sunday, 3rd March? One-tenth of a grain.

9454. Would one-twelfth or one-tenth of a grain be a large or a small quantity to look at? A very small quantity; it is very heavy.

9455. So that when people in the evidence talk about a white powder being seen in the bottom of the lemon-syrup you can quite understand that the arsenic might be there and nobody would see it at all? There was a copious white powder. You could see it very distinctly.

9456. You say there was a copious white powder? Yes; a large deposit at the bottom of the bottle.

9457. You could see it at the bottom of the bottle? Yes.

9458. And yet there were only one and a quarter grains in it? Yes.

9459. Don't you think that is very extraordinary? No, I don't, simply because it had been deposited equally, and the whole of the superficies at the bottom of the bottle had been equally covered, and it made a great show.

9460. Dr. Manning. What was the thickness of the deposit? Only just a film on the bottom.

9461. Now about the stain on the night-dress; all your examination was for arsenious acid? Yes.

9462. You were looking for those octahedra crystals? Yes.

9463. Can you tell me the conditions under which those octahedra crystals are formed? Generally by sublimation.

9464.

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
6 June, 1885.

- W. M. Hamlet, Esq. 9464. When they are not formed by sublimation how are they formed? The white arsenic of commerce is generally an amorphous powder. There is a vitreous variety and a crystalline variety.
- 6 June, 1895. 9465. You are talking about the arsenic of commerce? Yes.
9466. This crystalline variety is prepared with very much greater care than the amorphous variety? Yes.
9467. If you were buying white arsenic in a shop, for instance, which would you get? You would get a mixture of the two. The great bulk of it would be amorphous.
9468. Don't you know that it is only by considerable delicacy in the manner of experimenting that you can sublime arsenic in such a way as to get those octahedra crystals? Yes.
9469. It requires a great deal of delicacy to do it? Yes.
9470. And unless you get those octahedra crystals your microscope or lens would not be a fraction of good for detecting arsenic? Yes.
9471. In what way would it;—if you found what you thought to be a crystal of arsenic under the microscope, you would transfer it to the subliming call? I say that I can find it if it is there, and I can find it first of all with the preliminary examination with the microscope, and then by discovering the crystal with sulphuretted hydrogen.
9472. Suppose you had a stain 17 x 15 inches, would you be able to go the whole way over that—over every fraction of an inch—so as to be certain you could find a crystal of arsenic if it was there? Yes, I could.
9473. You would not undertake to find one crystal if it was on that? I don't think I could undertake to find one crystal, but I could find it chemically, if not by the glass.
9474. Supposing the ordinary crude drugs were used; I am talking of ordinary arsenious acid? Certainly not, if it passed through the body.
9475. Would you find it with the eye if it had passed through the body? As sulphide.
9476. Could you see sulphide of arsenic with the eye? No.
9477. I asked you what you could see with the eye if it had passed through the body? You could see the faecal matter.
9478. But you would not see anything to suggest arsenic? No.
9479. If you took some of the arsenious acid of commerce (not these octahedra crystals which are formed with a delicate operation) and dissolved it in water and filtered it, and if then you poured it on some linen and let it dry, what would you find? Crystals.
9480. Do you mean to tell me that if you take the ordinary arsenious acid of commerce, dissolve it in water, pour it on linen and let it dry, you will get those octahedra crystals? I would, yes.
9481. Would anybody else get them? I don't know.

FRIDAY, 7 JUNE, 1895.

[The Board met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; the Hon. Chas. Edward Filcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. M. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

William Mogford Hamlet, Esq., re-examined:—

- W. M. Hamlet, Esq. 9482. Sir Julian Salomons.] I saw you, yesterday, take some of this strychnine in your hand? Yes.
- 6 June, 1895. 9483. Was that the first time you have examined it? Yes, the first time.
9484. Do you know what it is? Yes, I know what it is.
9485. You have examined it? Yes; only by tasting it.
9486. You know the strychnine which you found mixed with arsenic in the lemon-syrup? Yes. [Bottle of strychnine handed to witness.]
9487. Supposing strychnine out of this bottle had been used, would that accord with what you found? Yes.
9488. Assuming that a person had got strychnine out of this bottle, would all that you have seen in your examination as to the strychnine correspond with that very kind of strychnine? Yes, it would. This (indicating bottle) is pure colourless crystals of strychnine, and this (indicating bottle) is strychnine coloured with a little rosaniline to prevent mistakes.
9489. President.] That is to say, it would be strychnine—you cannot say more than that? Yes; this is the pure colourless crystal, and this (indicating bottle) is used for poisoning dingoes.
9490. Dr. Todd.] With reference to that question which Sir Julian Salomons has just asked you, supposing a soluble salt of strychnine had been used all through in this case—not the alkaloid strychnine—would the results, as far as your tests were concerned, be exactly the same? Yes; exactly the same.
9491. From your examinations you were not able to say whether a soluble salt was used, or whether the alkaloid was used? I cannot say.
9492. Supposing that the strychnine coloured with rosaniline had been used in this poisoning, would you in your examination have any means of telling whether the rosaniline was present? The colour would disappear in the lemon-syrup. It would be discharged.
9493. It would turn into another colour? Yes; it would be decolourised.
9494. It would be colourless rosaniline? Yes.
9495. What property in the lemon-syrup would produce that change? The organic acid. All acids discharge the colour of rosaniline, especially mineral acids.
9496. President.] Would it colour the lemon-syrup? No.
9497. Dr. Todd.] In any case the quantity would be small? I tried the experiment with pink strychnine in lemon-syrup, and found identically the same appearance. I took some pink strychnine, and dissolved it in two or three ounces of lemon syrup, and the colour was completely discharged. 9498.

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1895.

9498. Dr. Manning.] The acid bleaches it? Yes.
9499. Dr. Todd.] In your tests there was nothing to show that the rosaniline strychnine was used? No; I might have brought back the colour by isolating the rosaniline, but I did not do that.
9500. President.] Is that lemon-syrup that we saw in the bottle yesterday cloudy? Yes.
9501. Would there be any possibility of bringing the colour back in that? Yes.
9502. Would it take long to do it? About two hours.
9503. Dr. Todd.] When I left off last night I was talking about this night-dress, and you told me that as far as your microscopic examination was concerned it all had reference to octahedra crystals of arsenious acid. If the arsenic had been in any other form than arsenious acid I think you told me that your examinations with the microscope would not have helped you? No, not much.
9504. If the arsenious acid had been in any other form than the octahedra crystals your microscope would not have helped you? No.
9505. You said these octahedra crystals were produced only by a very careful preparation? Yes, by crystallisation from solution.
9506. From solutions of the octahedra crystals? From solutions of any white arsenic.
9508. Is commercial arsenious acid the vitreous form or the amorphous form, or a mixture of both? It is a mixture of the amorphous, crystalline, and vitreous. The vitreous is generally found as a kernel in the middle of a lump, after the arsenic has remained in mass for a long time. The crystalline form comes from the arsenic having been sublimed at the lowest possible temperature. The octahedra is a variety which is spontaneously formed from the crystals of the amorphous. There is a tendency in the amorphous to crystallise and ultimately become octahedra crystals.
9509. You have examined with a microscope the pharmaceutical or commercial form of arsenious acid;—did you find many of these octahedra crystals? They were few and far between.
9510. You might examine a whole specimen and then find no octahedra crystals at all? I should be surprised to find none.
9511. You have under the microscope here a piece of calico which has been prepared? Yes.
9512. Will you tell me how you prepared that piece of calico? The piece of calico was a portion of an old shirt. It has been thoroughly washed, and it was saturated with the solution of arsenious acid in water—simply dipped into the solution and allowed to dry in the air and put immediately under the microscope.
9513. You say a solution of arsenious acid in water. Was that solution in hot water or in cold water? In hot water.
9514. Is arsenious acid more or less soluble in hot water than in cold water? More soluble in hot water.
9515. Much more soluble than in cold water? Can you give me the figures? The solubility in cold water is 1 in 100, and in hot water at boiling point 1 in 20.
9516. When you say that that is the solubility in cold and in hot water you mean I suppose that is the extreme solubility? No.
9517. Cold water would never take up more than 1 part in 100, and the hot never more than 1 in 20? That is difficult to answer, because in all the text-books there is a discrepancy as to the solubility of arsenic in water owing to the complex nature of white arsenic. I have said that there are the amorphous crystalline and vitreous varieties. Some text-books will tell you that the solubility of arsenic in cold water is 1 in 800, others 1 in 50, others 1 in 80, others 1 in 100. I think the mean is 1 in 100.
9518. That is the mean? Yes.
9519. Don't you think it is leaning towards the extreme when they say that the solubility in cold water is 1 in 800 and in hot water 1 in 50? It depends upon whether you use the octahedra crystals. With ordinary white arsenic I think you might be quite safe in saying 1 in 100 would be the solubility.
9520. Do you think that I, not a chemist, would be able to get commercial arsenic to dissolve in cold water at 1 in 100. Suppose I mixed it in my crude way? I think you would get 1 in 100.
9521. One in 100 is a very strong solution of arsenious acid? Yes.
9522. Now about the solution of arsenious acid in hot water—you say 1 in 20? Yes.
9523. You have expressed the opinion that this was done by a very unskilled person? Yes.
9524. Will you tell me what sort of arsenic is used in sheep dip? Common white arsenic.
9525. What form of arsenic is used in arsenious soap? Common white arsenic.
9526. Are there any soluble colourless salts of arsenic used in commerce? Arsenites, arseniates and sulphides.
9527. The sulphide is not colourless? It is yellow.
9528. What are the arsenites in commerce used for? They are used in medicine, in the preparation of Fowler's solution and in skin preparations, and in electro-metallurgy, and for producing deposits on metals, also for staining gun barrels and other purposes.
9529. Do you know if it is easy in a place like Sydney to procure these solutions of soluble forms of arsenic for any of these purposes you have mentioned? Quite easy. You simply add white arsenic to a solution of common washing soda crystals, and you have arsenite of soda at once.
9530. That is the preparation for sheep-dip? In making sheep-dip you must dissolve the arsenic. Arsenic will not dissolve easily in water, and the shepherd takes washing soda to make it dissolve.
9531. If any of these colourless salts were used on this night-dress, would your microscopic examination help you to detect their presence? Yes; in rendering the crystals visible. Arsenite of soda or potash.
9532. What form are they in? Prismatic crystals.
9533. Can you recognise them under the microscope? Yes.
9534. On the linen cloth? No; I would have to separate them.
9535. You would have to see something which would suggest their presence? Yes, of course.
9536. Would it be easier to see something to enable you to recognise their presence if arsenious acid solution had been used, or would it be harder? If I were to look upon a piece of white calico for crystals of any arsenical compound I should after microscopical examination apply the chemical tests.

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1895.

9537. Did you do that to every part of this night-gown? I did not apply the chemical tests over many parts outside the stain. I only took outside patches—some patches outside the stain.
9538. And you did not see anything through the microscope? No; I did not go any further.
9539. After examining this stain did you see any blood? I did not look for blood—not microscopic blood.
9540. Did you see anything of the naked eye appearance that would suggest blood? It seemed to me like a very soluble kind of stool, and there were little irregular tufts or lumps dotted all over.
9541. It had been a very fluid stool? Yes.
9542. As if somebody had been purged? Yes.
9543. And would have spread itself on the nightgown? Yes.
9544. Would you kindly describe that stain? I have a diagram. [Diagram exhibited.] I will read my notes: "It was a large irregular stain of faecal matter on the lower part behind, extending over an area of 17 x 15 inches down to the bottom edge of the garment." The faecal matter contained traces of arsenic.
9545. Did you see on which side of the night-dress it was? The night-dress had been worn inside out.
9546. Why inside out? Because of the position of the buttons. Evidently the person who had put it on had put it on the wrong way.
9547. President.] Inside out? Yes; the faecal stain was on the back at the lower part of the garment inside, assuming that it had been worn so; but from the evidence of the buttons in front, the nightgown had been worn the wrong way, as if a person had put it on carelessly.
9548. The faecal stain if it had been properly put on would have been on the outside? Yes; the buttons were on the wrong way. The button on the throat would be inside instead of outside.
9549. Dr. Jones.] Was the faecal deposit on the inside or on the outside of the night-dress? It would depend on how the wearer wore the night-dress.
9550. If it was worn the regular way was it on the inside or on the outside? On the outside.
9551. It was worn inside out? Yes.
9552. Sir Julian Salomons.] The person had it on the wrong way? Yes, inside out.
9553. Dr. Todd.] Did you see the person who had it on? No.
9554. It is your own hypothesis? Yes; it appeared to me that a person had worn it that way, and the faecal matter agreed exactly with the position of the buttons.
9555. You have spoken about a button? Yes.
9556. A nightdress has generally more than one button? Yes. [Night-dress produced.]
9557. Do you remember which button it was? Here is the button [examining night-dress], and the embroidery is on this side, and the faecal stain is here; the hem is the opposite side to the faecal stain.
9558. The hem is on the one side and the faecal stain is on the other side? Yes.
9559. President.] Are there any other buttons than the top button? There is the top button and the second button.
9560. Are there any buttons to the wrists? No.
9561. Dr. Todd.] Those buttons are on the side they should be? Yes.
9562. It is not as if the hem was on the one side and the buttons on the same side? No, assuming the night-dress to be worn inside out, then the faecal stain was on the right side; if, on the contrary, it was worn the right way, then the stain was on the wrong side.
9563. Sir Julian Salomons.] Suppose it was put on the right way, might not the end part be doubled up to show the stain? Yes, the stain being at the bottom, extending to the bottom edge.
9564. If a person had it on the right way it would go there, too? Yes.
9565. Dr. Todd.] That nightdress has no side slits in it—it is closed right down to the bottom? Yes.
9566. Would it be possible to turn the tail of the nightdress up, inside out, so neatly as to produce the stain on that side only, and not so as to come on both sides? I do not think I can answer that question; the experiment might be made by someone putting the nightgown on.
9567. A person lying in bed with the weight of the body on that nightdress, supposing it were put on the right side out to start with, in order to get it turned up in such a way, it would have to be turned up inside against the body and not outside? It would be turned up in an irregular manner.
9568. You are satisfied that in order to account for that stain being on the side of the nightdress on which it is, some hypothesis must be made on the way it was worn? I think it was worn the wrong way.
9569. It is a hypothesis? Yes.
9570. You have to make some hypothesis to account for the stain being on that side? Yes.
9571. Some hypothesis would have to be made to account for it? We make hypotheses in almost everything. That was the first thing I looked at, outside where the stain was.
9572. In looking at the shape of that stain it is practically a rectangular stain? No; I have a diagram of it; it is more of a paraboloid; it is elliptical—it is egg-shaped.
9573. If this nightdress had been turned up in the way Sir Julian Salomons suggested, the sheet would also have been stained? I really cannot say. I do not know whether the patient was lying down or not. She might not have been lying at all.
9574. President.] It might have been done outside in a closet? Perhaps.
9575. Dr. Todd.] In your opinion, would it have been possible to produce that stain artificially or not? It would require a very clever artist to produce the stain artificially, because if it had been dipped, the act of dipping it would have caused the matter to have extended in quite a different direction altogether. It appears to me to have been produced naturally from what I can see from what had passed from the patient.
9576. Could you have produced that otherwise than by dipping? Yes; you might take a brush and dot it over.
9577. Are there no other ways that you can suggest? No; if you took a brush and had plenty of matter you could imitate it.
9578. Or with a spoon? No; I think it would be impossible to produce it with a spoon.
9579. Would it require artistic skill to produce it with a brush;—it would not take a Royal Academician I suppose? He must be a very clever designing criminal to do it.
9580. With reference to the lemon-syrup—the evidence is that it was bitter to taste;—was there anything in your examination which you discovered to produce that bitter taste besides the strychnine? Strychnine has a taste of itself peculiar to itself.
9581. Was there anything in that you found that would produce a persistent bitter taste? If quassia or calabar

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1896.

calabar bean, or something like that, had been put in it would have discoloured the lemon-syrup. Strychnine being a colourless body, and with a strong bitter taste, I did not think that anything else could have produced it.

9582. Did you find anything in your testing to produce it? I found the strychnine.

9583. Besides the strychnine? Oh, no; nothing else.

9584. Nothing that would account for the bitter taste? No.

9585. Suppose gentian had been added to it? Gentian would have produced a sarsaparilla kind of solution.

9586. Suppose cardamoms had been added to it? Then it would present the appearance of an organic infusion, which it did not.

9587. Just tell me, for my information, how it would alter the appearance of the lemon-syrup supposing a little liquorice had been added—enough to give it a taste,—or supposing the infusion of quassia had been added, which is your own suggestion? It would still be coloured.

9588. Is quassia coloured? No, when freshly made it is not.

9589. A freshly made infusion of quassia might have done it? But I got crystals of strychnine.

9590. Supposing strychnine had been added afterwards to produce the bitter taste;—when Mrs. Dean took it might not that bitter taste have been due to something else? Yes; you could have had some of the alkaloids. You could have brucine to make it bitter.

9591. I am talking of common things that would be in the house. You say infusion of quassia might have produced the bitter taste without altering the appearance of it very much? You could not have a quassia solution so bright and clear as that. It was practically as colourless as water.

9592. Supposing aloes are added? You would get the tint of the aloes.

9593. But you would not get the tint of the rosanaline? No.

9594. Are you perfectly certain that there is no colourless solution of aloes? It is slightly yellow.

9595. What is the colour of lemon-syrup? The lemon-syrup I got was perfectly colourless.

9596. Is not lemon syrup generally coloured slightly yellow, as you say? No; there is a very faint degree of it forced by the essence of lemon, but that is a different kind of yellow from the yellow I speak of.

9597. So that you think that the quantity of solution of bitter aloes which would be necessary to give that bitter taste would alter the appearance of the syrup so that you could detect it? Yes.

9598. You think that decidedly? Yes.

9599. Even though it had not been suggested to you? Yes.

9600. Looking back on the fact, you could say that certainly a solution of bitter aloes had not been added to it? Yes.

9601. But you could not say that a solution of quassia had not been added to it? No, not with certainty.

9602. I suppose the same argument would hold good with respect to calumba? Yes.

9603. Or cardamoms? Yes; it would not be so persistently bitter.

9604. As what? As strychnine.

9605. But "persistent bitter" is, of course, a technical term describing the strychnine taste? It is characteristic of the strychnine. It is a character sui generis.

9606. If someone who had never tasted strychnine before tasted a solution containing a little strychnine, would they describe it as a "persistent bitter" taste? Probably they would not use the word "persistent." They would say, "Well, that is a biting bitter taste," or "very strong."

9607. So that if a witness in a witness-box said "a persistent bitter taste," you would infer that he knew something about strychnine? I don't think that would altogether follow.

9608. I mean the term "persistent bitter taste" is a phrase used technically in connection with strychnine? Yes; because it remains on the tongue a long while.

9609. I think you said something yesterday about alcohol being in the lemon-syrup or not being there? I say that had alcohol been present in the lemon-syrup it would have facilitated the solution of the strychnine considerably.

9610. Was alcohol present in the lemon-syrup? I did not examine it for that.

9611. Was there any fermentation in that lemon-syrup? I see now that there is a fungoid change beginning.

9612. Is that the fungoid change which you pointed out to the President? Yes.

9613. Did not you describe that as a deposit of tartaric acid? No; it is probably derived from the tartaric acid, because the tartaric acid would nourish the fungus.

9614. You didn't examine it to see if the lemon-syrup had gone bad? It hadn't gone bad; it was perfectly clear, but it seemed to me not to be so strong as ordinary lemon-syrup.

9615. You don't know whether there was alcohol in it? I don't know.

9616. Is it not usual in making those beverages to put alcohol in? Yes.

9617. To prevent fermentation? Yes.

9618. Because they all contain sugar? Yes; alcohol or salicylic acid. Then they can say on the label that it does not contain alcohol.

9619. Did you find salicylic acid in this? I didn't look for it.

9620. You didn't look for it? No.

9621. You didn't look for alcohol? No.

9622. I asked you this because you said if alcohol had been present it would have done so, and I concluded from that that you had looked for alcohol? No; I did not.

9623. You remember the evidence about this tea? Mr. Doherty made the examination of the tea.

9624. I mean the witness's evidence. It is partly on pages 6, 7, and 19. On page 7 Mrs. Dean says: "I saw seven or eight lumps round the edge of the saucer. They were much smaller than a pea. (A remark about some the size of a pin-head.) Some were a little larger";—can you form any idea as to what quantity of arsenious acid that would represent? A very small quantity.

9625. How many grains? Arsenious acid is so fine, and its repulsive action with water so great, that it would cover an air bubble and so appear as a globule or bubble. The word lump would be the expression of an ordinary person for these bubbles.

9626. If you take arsenic and put it on the top of some tea, do you get these globules straight away or do you get little lumps of arsenic? You would not get lumps; you would get globules.

9627. Where would the globules come from? From the atmosphere.

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1895.

9628. Would it be impossible to get these little lumps? If you were to take a pinch of white arsenic, as much as would remain on a threepenny piece, and put it into hot coffee or tea you would find the greatest difficulty in making that arsenic subside. It would remain on the air-bubbles and all round the rim of the vessel.
9629. Supposing you put it on the end of a knife and put it on the top of some tea in a saucer would it spread itself into separate air-bubbles? Yes; the froth on the surface would simply be covered. You cannot pour any organic liquid from one vessel to another without having air-bubbles. If you pour a glass of beer from one glass to another you would have these air-bubbles.
9630. We are talking of hot tea? Yes.
9631. In hot tea? No; not many in very hot tea.
9632. But with cold tea perhaps? Yes.
9633. Cold tea more than in hot tea? Yes.
9634. This was a cup of tea which was just made and brought upstairs. You do not get cold tea under those circumstances? But you get air-bubbles.
9635. Not to the same extent as with cold tea? Not to the same extent.
9636. Not to the same extent as if it were a glass of beer poured out with a good head on it? Not to the same extent.
9637. Suppose you had a hot cup of tea, and you took some of this arsenious acid and put it on the end of a knife, or with a bit of paper, and put it on that one piece, would you get that appearance do you think with the globules? Yes, it would float.
9638. But you would get little lumps? Yes, certainly.
9639. You would not necessarily get those globules? In a liquid like tea you would.
9640. In hot tea? Yes.
9641. You would not get little lumps? You would get both lumps and little globules. Some of the fragments of the arsenic would remain in little lumps on the surface.
9642. Taking this evidence as it was given—page 7—"I saw seven or eight lumps around the edge of the saucer. They were much smaller than a pea (a remark about the same size as a pin-head), some were a little larger," and then on page 19—"I noticed something white clinging to the saucer round the edge of the tea," how much arsenic would you get in the seven or eight little lumps? It would be exceedingly difficult to hazard an opinion. A very small quantity I should say.
9643. You say that these little lumps which she describes by saying "I saw seven or eight lumps round the edge of the saucer" would represent a small quantity of arsenic? Yes.
9644. Will you tell me in grains the least quantity that would produce that appearance? It would be extremely difficult to hazard an opinion. Supposing there was a grain of arsenic it would be quite sufficient to produce a powdery film.
9645. We are talking about seven or eight little lumps. How much arsenic do you think it would take to produce that? I say it is difficult to hazard an opinion as to how much it would take. I should say that a single grain would account for that appearance.
9646. You understand they are distinct enough for a person who is handed a cup of tea to notice them before she drinks it? Yes.
9647. They must be pretty marked? Yes; but if you had a saucer of tea handed you with a grain of arsenic on the top of it, you would see it and reject it.
9648. Tea with milk? Yes.
9649. You would see seven or eight little lumps clinging to the saucer? Yes; possibly there would be seventy little lumps.
9650. From one grain? Yes.
9651. The evidence of Mrs. Dean (page 6) is that Dean, before he left the room, took the saucer and poured it into the cup and let it stand there, and that when he went for Mrs. Adye Mrs. Dean then got out of bed, got a clean tumbler, wiped it and put two-thirds of the tea—the whole of the tea in the cup—into the tumbler;—how much tea did you get in that tumbler? Mr. Doherty measured it. Here is Mr. Doherty himself. I was away at the time the tea came.
9652. You do not know? No.
9653. Have you no evidence about that;—have you got the report? All that I have in my notes is that there was a tenth of a grain of arsenic, and a fifteenth of a grain of strychnine.
9654. You do not know how much was in the tumbler? I have it recorded in my books in the laboratory. I suppose this is in Mr. Doherty's evidence. [Mr. Doherty, who was in the room, interposed "6 ounces."]
9655. That will be about two-thirds of a cup? More than that. If it were a small cup 6 ounces would probably fill it.
9656. A breakfast cup would hold how much? 9 ounces.
9657. 6 ounces would be two-thirds of a breakfast cup? Yes.
9658. In your opinion, if a person had noticed certain appearances about this tea which aroused her suspicions, and she wanted to preserve it for the sake of analysis, she would preserve the suspicious part naturally? I should think so.
9659. So that she would be sure to get those little white lumps if possible? A great many of them would adhere to the saucer, and she would not have been able to get them into the tumbler.
9660. She had the saucer too—she would look for those little lumps? She could not transfer them to the tumbler properly.
9661. If she wanted to do so she could? To some extent; not perfectly.
9662. Then, having poured it into the tumbler, it would be more or less intimately mixed with the tea and milk? Yes.
9663. So that the appearance of the little lumps on the top would be likely to be lost? Yes.
9664. Don't you think that in that way of treating it, when it is done by a person who wants to preserve the evidence of poisoning, or the evidence of something wrong, that the greater part, at all events, of that substance that produced that appearance would be preserved? Yes, the greater portion of it.
9665. A greater portion of it would be preserved? Yes.
9666. One-tenth of a grain is found. Do you think one-tenth of a grain is the greater portion of that which is floating on the top in the first instance? I cannot hazard an opinion. It is merely supposition.

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1895.

- The personal equation comes in. If a careful person tried to transfer some arsenic from a saucer to a tumbler, he would get a far greater proportion of arsenic into the tumbler than a careless person.
9667. A careful person would be careful, having noticed the appearance of those little lumps, to preserve their appearance? Yes.
9668. If one-tenth of a grain was all that was found afterwards, you could not say whether that would be a large proportion or a small proportion of the quantity which was originally seen in these seven or eight little lumps? No, I cannot say.
9669. You would rather incline to the small than the large proportion? Yes.
9670. You have said that if a careful person had done it, you would get more than one-tenth of a grain? Yes.
9671. With reference to the arsenic which was passed in this urine on March 12th, and brought to you on March 13th?—
9672. President.] Is that the urine drawn off by the catheter?—
9673. Dr. Todd.] No, that was March 31st.
9674. Dr. Jones.] The 9th and 10th of March is the evidence. Doherty's evidence (p. 9) says: "On the 11th March I got from him a bottle of urine."
9675. Dr. Todd.] Do you know in what form the arsenic was in that urine? It would be impossible to say.
9676. Was the urine acid? Yes.
9677. When you examined it? Yes.
9678. How long after it came to your office did you examine it? It arrived, I think, on the 11th March. I did not actually receive it from Sergeant Brennan, I received it from Mr. Doherty.
9679. But it was examined by you? Yes. It was passed on the 9th and 10th of March.
9680. You say that you tried some experiment to see if you could add arsenic to urine and get the appearance you got with the other? I will tell you exactly what I did. I took a glass beaker containing 6 ounces of urine, and I dropped some arsenic into it.
9681. White arsenic? Yes, arsenious acid.
9682. What kind of arsenious acid? Ordinary commercial arsenic. [Sample produced.]
9683. You dropped some of it in? Yes.
9684. Then what did you do? I allowed it to remain all Saturday and Sunday, and I came on a Monday morning, and I still found arsenic remaining on the surface of the urine.
9685. You did not stir it in? No, I did not stir it at all.
9686. If you had added a few drops of sheep-wash made in the way you describe—arsenite of soda or arsenite of potash in solution—to the 6 ounces of urine, so as to give you one-fiftieth of a grain, would you have altered the appearance of the urine? No.
9687. So that experiment of yours was of no value to show whether that had passed through the kidneys at all? No; that experiment was not made with that view at all. It was simply to show that if anyone threw white arsenic into urine it would not mix with the urine without stirring.
9688. Not without stirring or shaking it up in a bottle? No.
9689. This urine came to your office in a bottle? Yes.
9690. It would have had a good deal of shaking before it came to your office? Yes.
9691. And it would have to be carried by one person or another, and would have taken probably a couple of days in transit? I do not know how many days it took in transit.
9692. It would have had a fair amount of shaking in that time? Yes.
9693. So that your experiment would not be satisfactory with reference to this;—even supposing arsenious had been added to that, you would not expect, after the travelling, that that arsenic would have been on the top? It just depends on the amount added.
9694. It would not be much, because you say one-fiftieth of a grain? That would be imperceptible.
9695. With reference to liquor bismuthi (Schacht's, as it is called);—you know that was used in the prescription of March 4th? I know that liquor bismuthi was used, but I do not know whether it was Schacht's or not.
9696. Do you know Schacht's liquor bismuthi? By repute.
9697. You never handled it? No.
9698. Do you know whether it contains any bismuth? It does.
9699. Is it an acid solution? I believe not.
9700. Would it be easy to get bismuth in an acid solution? No, not easy.
9701. So that 30 drops, or half a drachm, of Schacht's liquor bismuthi would not contain very much bismuth? No.
9702. If that mixture of tinct. opii, liquor bismuthi, acid hydrocyn, dyl. and syrup and water were added to a glass which had some milk and lime-water in it, would that give a milky appearance? Yes.
9703. Although it might not be due to the precipitation of the bismuth? I have no doubt it would be due to the precipitation of the bismuth by the lime-water.
9704. Have you tried that? I have not actually tried it.
9705. But suppose the bismuth were not there at all? The water would throw down the oxy-chloride of bismuth.
9706. In any case it would do that, so that would make it milky? Yes.
9707. If it was only a glass with milk and lime-water and a teaspoonful of the mixture were put in, do you think that would make the milky appearance? The very fact of the milk being in the tumbler would obscure the phenomenon; you would not see it very easily.
9708. Would you not see it through the glass as a clear liquid? You would not.
9709. And at 11 o'clock at night by candle-light would it probably be clearer or less clear? I do not think anybody would take special notice of it; it would be opaque.
9710. So that a person might think there was something in it? They might.
9711. In reference to that milk you examined, what quantity of milk was there? The milk drawn from the breast?
9712. Yes? I think about 1½ oz.; it was in a small phial.
9713. You found no arsenic in that? No; I found an exceedingly minute trace which I am not justified in saying was arsenic.

- W. M. Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1896.
9714. It might have come out of the materials you used? No; but if you refer to Taylor you will find that Dr. Stevenson lays down that, if a man finds an exceedingly minute quantity such as 1-10,000th part of a grain, he is not justified in using that in any criminal case.
9715. That 1-10,000th part of a grain even in pure zinc might be present? Yes.
9716. Did you use zinc? No; I carefully avoided using it.
9717. What did you use? Magnesium.
9718. Is there any possibility of contamination by magnesium? No; it is used by toxicologists as being the most suitable thing to use in the detection of arsenic.
9719. You cannot say whether this particular metal magnesium contained any arsenic or not? It contained no arsenic.
9720. About those Rochelle's salts. What are Rochelle's salts? The double tartrate of potash and soda.
9721. What is generally known as potassio-sodium tartrate? Yes.
9722. It is very closely allied to tartaric acid in its physiological action? Yes.
9723. They are both mild purgatives? But the purgative requires the addition of a base as well as tartaric acid; the acid itself would not act as a purgative.
9724. Tartaric acid would not act as a purgative? Not tartaric acid alone.
9725. Tartrate of soda has a slight laxative action? It is a mild laxative.
9726. Have you seen that prescription which contained the bicarbonate of soda and the tartaric acid? I have seen the prescription, but did not notice the quantities.
9727. In any case there would not be enough there to produce an aperient action—2 drams in an 8-ounce mixture;—one-sixteenth of 2 drams would not be a strong aperient? No.
9728. But tartrate of soda would be formed in that bicarbonate of soda and tartaric acid? Certainly.
9729. In the Judge's Notes, on page 15, you are reported as saying, "Strychnine would modify the action of the arsenic to which it is antagonistic, and would counteract it"? Yes.
9730. The explanation which you gave yesterday, you meant to cover that note also? Yes.
9731. Sir Julian Salomons.] My learned friend, Dr. Todd, has put to you many questions about what would produce a bitter taste—quassia and other matters? Yes.
9732. I understood you to say, though perhaps my learned friend did not notice it, that you, in fact, found strychnine crystals? I did.
9733. And you swear they are strychnine crystals? I will produce them.
9734. I mean that notwithstanding all these theories about other things producing bitter tastes these crystals are crystals of strychnine? Yes.
9735. President.] In the lemon-syrup? Yes.
9736. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have no doubt about it whatsoever? No; absolutely no doubt whatever.
9737. My friend put to you a question about what a person might do, and you said there would be a personal equation in that;—is it not a fact that there was only 1-10th of a grain of arsenic found in the glass? In the tea?
9738. In the tea in the glass? Yes, in the tea in the glass.
9739. That is a very small quantity? Yes.
9740. Suppose a person who was not a chemist was putting arsenic in it would it be possible for him to limit himself to 1-10th of a grain? Yes, but it would be exceedingly difficult.
9741. It would be exceedingly difficult? Yes.
9742. You said that 1-10th of a grain was all that was in it? That was all.
9743. One-tenth of a grain would be harmless, I suppose? Yes, harmless; quite within the range of a medicinal dose.
9744. And that was all you found in it? Yes.
9745. President.] You say that bismuth in the medicine mixed with a little limewater and milk would make it look cloudy? Yes.
9746. And at 11 o'clock at night it would be quite opaque looking? In a dirty milky tumbler it would be quite opaque.
9747. Sir Julian Salomons.] You made some experiment at the trial? Not in regard to bismuth. Mr. Doherty made some experiments.
9748. Did you not? I did not personally.

[Witness withdrew.]

Rev. Joshua Hargraves sworn and examined:—

- Rev. J. Hargraves,
7 June, 1896.
9749. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your name is Joshua Hargraves? Yes.
9750. And you are a clergyman of the Church of England, residing at St. David's Parsonage, Arthur-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
9751. And you knew Mrs. Seymour in Riley-street? Yes; slightly.
9752. How long have you known her? About ten or twelve years.
9753. And her daughter;—did you know her very well? Yes.
9754. For how many years did you know the daughter? About ten or twelve years.
9755. Was she a constant and regular attendant at your Sunday-school? Yes; it was there that I knew her best.
9756. What opinion did you form of her conduct at the Sunday-school? She was a quiet, steady, well behaved, nice young girl.
9757. Was her dress in any way attractive? There was never anything in her dress to attract attention. She was as one among others.
9758. She continued to attend your Sunday-school for how long before she was married? For about two or three years.
9759. What opinion did you entertain of her character and conduct? I always looked upon her as a quiet, decent, well-behaved girl, from what I saw of her.
9760. Did you ever hear anyone say a word against her character? No; I never did.
9761. Did your duties as a clergyman take you out at all hours? I was out all hours of the day, and frequently out of an evening.
9762. Have you ever seen this girl, Mary Seymour, out late at night? No; I have never seen her.

9763. You have not seen anything to alter your opinion of Mary Seymour? No; up to the time of her marriage I had seen nothing to alter my opinion.
9764. Your knowledge, I think you said, extended over ten or twelve years? Yes, ten or twelve years.
9765. President.] Did you know Dean? No.
9766. Did you know she was going to be married? No.
9767. She did not tell you that? No.
9768. Did you know Mary Seymour after she left your Sunday-school? I cannot say. Having grown up to be a young woman she left the Sunday-school as many others do, and I cannot speak of her after she left.
9769. You did not visit at the house? No, I did not visit at the house.
9770. Sir Julian Salomons.] You married her to Dean, did you not? Yes; that is the only time I ever saw Dean.
9771. Did Mrs. Seymour's shop appear to you to be a bona fide shop? Yes.
9772. You did not consider it a mere blind? I think it was a well-stocked decent shop and not a blind.
9773. Are you sure about that? Yes, as far as one can judge.
9774. Do you know any people she supplied with things from her shop? No, I do not.
9775. Did she supply your house with things? No, she did not.
9776. Mr. Meagher.] Were you ever in the shop? Yes.
9777. Were you ever upstairs? No, only in the shop.
9778. You live I think some distance away from there? Yes.
9779. Do you know a house kept by a Madame Rose opposite? I know of it by repute.
9780. From where you reside you would not have a view of the entrance to that house? No.
9781. And I suppose Mary Dean and her mother could enter very often without your being aware of it? Yes, a dozen times a day.
9782. How long is it since Mary Seymour left your Sunday-school? About a couple of years.
9783. By the way, do you remember Sergeant Brennan calling upon you for the purpose of a character? Yes.
9784. And do you remember the substance of the character you wrote out? Yes, that I knew nothing against her.
9785. In that character I think you used the following words:—"I have known Mrs. Seymour, late of 413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, for the last ten years or more. I have also known her daughter, Mary Dean, late Mary Seymour, whom I married to George Dean on the 8th March, &c."
9786. You have also given an excellent character to Mrs. Seymour too? Yes, as far as I knew.
9787. I suppose you have never heard that up to three years ago one of the leading members of the police force had to watch that place for criminals who were in the house? No, I have never heard of that.
9788. The neighbours would be in a better position to know the character of that house than you would be? Yes.
9789. Sir Julian Salomons.] As a clergyman you would of course mix with all the people about there? Yes, I visit all sorts of people.
9790. Respectable and not respectable? Sometimes; all sorts of people send over for me.
9791. Did you ever hear from anybody that Mary Seymour ever visited Madame Rose's? No.
9792. You knew the girl well? Yes.
9793. And you have been in the mother's shop? Yes, once or twice.
9794. And you consider that it was a bona fide shop? Yes, I believe it was a bona fide shop.
9795. You saw nothing to lead you to come to any other conclusion? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

George Withers sworn and examined:—

9796. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your name is? George Withers.
9797. And you reside at Croydon-street, Petersham? Yes.
9798. You once resided at 409, Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes; and afterwards at 411, Riley-street.
9799. How many doors did you live from Mrs. Seymour's shop? Two doors.
9800. Did you live there for fifteen years? Yes, for about fifteen years.
9801. Out of that fifteen years how many years would be covered by Mrs. Seymour living next door? As near as possible about ten years.
9802. I think the shop close to your residence was your property? Yes; at that time it was my property.
9803. Did she see you about the letting of that shop? Yes; I saw her personally.
9804. How many years ago would that be? About ten years ago, in round numbers. It might have been more, because I have been away from Surry Hills for seven years.
9805. Of course you have heard since this hearing; but do you know anything about her living in Melbourne? All the disclosures I have heard respecting Mrs. Seymour are news to me.
9806. You knew nothing of her living in Melbourne? No.
9807. What opinion did you form of her during the time she was a tenant of yours in Sydney? Just what I have stated in a letter. While my tenant, she was all that could be desired in that capacity, and also as a neighbour.
9808. In your opinion, she was a perfectly respectable, well conducted woman? Exactly; certainly.
9810. How many years did she remain a tenant of yours? She remained a tenant of mine until I left Surry Hills, until about two and a half years ago. About four years after I left Surry Hills.
9811. During the whole of that time was she a good neighbour, and a hard-working woman? Yes; she was one of the best tenants I ever had.
9812. She was always particular in her language, and respectful in her manner? Yes; she was a particularly clean and reputable woman. I think her home was the pink of neatness.
9813. Did you ever see any improper characters in that house? No, certainly not.

9814.

Rev. J.
Hargreaves,
7 June, 1895.

G. Withers,
7 June, 1895.

- G. Withers. 9814. President.] Did you ever hear anything of a girl named Rita? No; never.
9815. Or something worse than that? No.
- 7 June, 1895. 9816. You never saw any improper characters about the place? Once or twice I saw some young women in the shop, but I could not say that they were not purchasing fruit or vegetables, although, like she and her daughter, they were behind the counter.
9817. Sir Julian Salomons.] You know the daughter, Mary Seymour? Yes; I have known her from a child.
9818. Was her conduct respectable? Yes, generally respectable.
9819. Was she well conducted? Yes, particularly so. I regarded her as a rather unsophisticated girl.
9820. Was she guilty of any levity of any kind? If you lived two doors on my left and Mrs. Seymour on my right, you and your family would be entitled to no more respect than she would.
9821. You have been through the house frequently? No; she very rarely troubled me about any repairs, I have only been twice through the house, but frequently through the shop.
9822. Was the daughter under your observation? The same as any neighbour's or business people's child.
9823. You saw nothing to alter your opinion in regard to her? No, not in the slightest.
9824. Did you ever see anything or hear anything against this young woman's character? I have seen certain evidence given here. That is a revelation and surprise to me altogether.
9825. It is? Yes, undoubtedly.
9826. In your opinion, and you have seen nothing to alter it, she was a thoroughly respectable well-conducted woman? Yes.
9827. Was that shop a bona-fide shop, or was there any ground, as far as you know, for anyone saying that it was a "blind"? I am perfectly satisfied that it was a genuine greengrocer's shop. The place was as respectably conducted as any of our most reputable establishments in this city. The only man I saw there, with one exception, was this man Jones, who seemed to be a quiet working man. He used to come home from his work very regularly every night.
9828. Have you the slightest doubt about this shop being a bona-fide shop? I have no doubt at all.
9829. And that this woman was earning her living by it? I believe the woman was. I had not the slightest suspicion of anything else.
9830. Was your house next door, or next door but one? Next door but one.
9831. You know a house called Madame Rose's? Yes.
9832. Have you ever seen the girl, Mary Seymour, visiting that house? I have reason to believe that some years before I left Surry Hills I made some comment to the family about Mary Seymour going over to Madame Rose's; but, as far as my knowledge goes, it was in ordinary business hours, and in an ordinary business way. I am under the impression that I may have seen her going there with a basket, but I regarded it as part of her business—which was to assist her mother by delivering goods to customers.
9833. You thought it was an imprudent thing for her to do? Yes; I viewed it in connection with her mother's establishment.
9834. Do you know of anything to say that she visited that house? I have not the slightest doubt that during the time I lived there that her mother would not be a party to it. I have only a faint recollection of her going once with a basket. That is the only occasion that I have seen Mary Seymour going to Madame Rose's.
9835. You must have had her under your observation for some years? Yes; during the time till she was 16 years of age, but I saw her several times after that, because the property belonged to me until two and a half years ago.
9836. You knew nothing about what Mrs. Seymour had been in Melbourne? No.
9838. She admitted that;—what did you see as to her life;—what was the conclusion you came to from all you saw? I have gone seriously into the matter and am of opinion in regard to the woman that she has admitted what her career has been, but there is nothing against her character in this Colony. The admission was wrong out of her, and as far as I know the woman was living a reformed life.
9839. Your knowledge of this woman extends how far—is it ten or twelve years? About fourteen years. I remember when she came to me to take the house. I happened to be present. I always make a rule to inquire into the character of my tenants, but in this instance I took the appearance of the woman before making any inquiry.
9840. Have you seen anything to alter your opinion that she is living a reformed life? No; nothing, except what has transpired before the public.
9841. Mrs. Withers and your family were living with you at the time? Yes; and my children were also with me at the time.
9842. It has been stated that sometimes the blinds were one colour and sometimes another;—did you ever see such a thing? In the first place I would not dream of looking for such a thing. I never heard of anything of that kind before it came out before this Commission. I never was in front of Mrs. Seymour's house, and never heard anything of that kind.
9843. President.] Did Mrs. Seymour supply you or any of your friends with goods? I have frequently bought lollies at the shop, and other persons—Mr. Dawson, a well known gentleman and particular friend of mine, he would go in there and buy lollies and take them home. My wife frequently bought vegetables there.
9844. Did Mrs. Seymour ever go by the name of Mrs. Jones? Not that I know of. I would not be surprised if she did, as Jones lived there. Although he was only a lodger, people might have thought he was her husband.
9845. Did you ever hear of her being in trouble of any kind here? No.
9846. You know her as a very good tenant? Yes, one of the best I ever had. I think she told me that she once kept an hotel in North Sydney. That is why I thought of the transactions with the place opposite.

9847. Did you say that she used to speak with your wife? Yes; just as much as is usual with customers. It was altogether the opposite of a brothel. G. Withers, 9848. Mr. Meagher.] You remember taking steps to get a petition up for the removal of Madame Rose? 7 June, 1895.
No.
9849. Will you swear that you did not? No; I was instrumental in getting the police. I declined to sign a petition presented to me by Mr. Dawson, and told the petitioners that I would see the Inspector-General of Police.
9850. What Mr. Dawson is that you spoke of? The brother of one of those persons who discovered the Londonderry mine in Western Australia.
9851. Sir Julian Salomons.] You say you saw the police about it? Yes. I remember three policemen. One of them met me and said, "We have just been to Madame Rose's," and they gave me particulars of their visit. They said I should take steps to remove these people. I was seriously affected by this property, because it brought down the value of my property from £12,000 to £8,000. I was particularly affected by having these people opposite.
9852. Mr. Meagher.] Did you ever express surprise to anyone that Mrs. Seymour allowed her daughter to go over to Madame Rose's—to the residents of Surry Hills and the immediate locality? I express it now. It was generally understood that — 9853. Did you not, while residing in Surry Hills, express surprise to any neighbours at Mrs. Seymour allowing her own daughter to go to a house like Madame Rose's? I am not clear as to whether I expressed it openly, but I do now.
9854. At the time you were in Surry Hills, some four and a half or five years ago, will you swear that you have not expressed surprise at this? I have only a faint recollection of the girl going business errands with a basket; but since I have read the evidence given before the Commission I have been surprised.
9855. Will you swear that you did not express surprise? Yes. If the question came up I regard it as a very risky thing for a girl to do. If the matter had been brought up and commented upon in my presence I might have expressed some surprise at her allowing her daughter to visit the place, even with goods.
9856. You have told the Commission you were unaware of her being prosecuted for picking pockets? Yes.
9857. You are not aware I suppose that one of the active members of the detective force at the present time watched Mrs. Seymour's place for criminals who were in the house? Yes; I am aware of that for several years.
9858. For several years you are well aware that criminals frequented that house? Good gracious! certainly not.
9859. Sir Julian Salomons.] What were you aware of? I may tell you that I was ignorant of all this till this evidence came forward.
9860. Mr. Meagher.] You were not aware that while you were residing at Surry Hills—at that very time—that two men named "Bluff" and "Graham," notorious criminals, were staying at the house, and while staying there that one of them was in trouble at the Police Court here? No; I knew nothing about that.
9861. You were only a couple of doors away? Yes.
9862. As a matter of fact, if she was carrying on the business you would not be aware of it;—you were away during the greater part of the day? Yes; I was in town.
9863. It would have been possible for both Mrs. Seymour and her daughter to visit Madame Rose's without your being aware of the fact? Without any doubt.
9864. Do you remember, after Dean was sentenced to death, when meetings were being held in favour of the reopening of his case, your going to a public demonstration at Waterloo, and that you requested the chairman of the meeting to be allowed to speak, and that you opened your remarks by saying that you believed George Dean was innocent? No. I said I was in accord with the people in agitating for the reopening of the case, and that I did not feel satisfied that the evidence was sufficient to convict the man; and I think so now.
9865. That was how you opened your address; and in your opinion there was not sufficient evidence to warrant his conviction? Yes.
9866. Do you remember apologising for the character you had given of Mrs. Seymour? No, never.
9867. Do you remember that there were cries of your backing down on the following day? I saw something about it in most of the papers.
9868. Were there not cries and interruptions on the night that you addressed that meeting of your "backing down"? I am not aware that a solitary interjection occurred. There were 4,000 people present there, and it was one of the most orderly meetings I ever addressed. I thought Dean had been sent too hurriedly on trial. Mr. Davis was the chairman of that meeting.
9869. Did you say that Mr. Davis was the chairman of that meeting;—don't you know the Mayor of Waterloo was the chairman? Yes. Mr. Davis was arranging the speakers, and he came to ask a gentleman beside me to second some resolution. At the time I did not know what the resolution was. He asked me if I would like to speak, and I told him that I wanted to make myself clear before the public, because I had given a letter as to my knowledge of Mrs. Seymour and her daughter, and the public had taken an erroneous view of it.
9870. Sir Julian Salomons.] You thought there ought to be a further inquiry? Yes; I thought he was sent very hurriedly on trial.
9871. Mr. Meagher.] Do you remember having a large number of canaries at one time? Yes, many years ago.
9872. Do you remember losing a considerable number? Yes.
9873. Did you express the opinion to any person in Surry Hills that you thought that some of the men in Mrs. Seymour's might have taken them? No; I never entertained the slightest idea of such a thing. I remember my boy losing the birds. My associations with Mrs. Seymour were of the most real character.
9874. Sir Julian Salomons.] There is no foundation for that statement? No.
9875. How many years ago is it since that canary business? About fifteen years ago. It must have been before Mrs. Seymour came to the place.
9876. Did you ever in your life have any suspicion of Mrs. Seymour or her daughter, or anyone in her place, having anything to do with the loss of those canaries? No.

- G. Withers, 9877. Was it possible that Mrs. Seymour might be constantly visiting Madame Rose's without your knowing anything about it? I do not think so.
- 7 June, 1895. 9878. What time did you go out in the morning? About 10 o'clock.
9879. What time did you come back in the evening? Sometimes about 2 o'clock in the morning.
9880. Is it possible that girl could visit or go over to Madame Rose's without your seeing her or hearing something about it? She might have gone over every day in the ordinary way of business with the basket.
9881. Apart from the business view of it, could she visit Madame Rose's without it in some way coming to your ears? I don't think it could be possible, or I would have heard of it.
9882. Was that your electorate? Yes, that accounts for my late hours.
9883. That accounts for your coming home late at night? Yes.
9884. You knew the character of Madame Rose's? Yes.
9885. And you made complaints against her establishment because it was injurious to your property? Yes; I do not think I could identify Madame Rose if I saw her. I have seen someone peeping through the blinds.
9886. You thought it was an unwise thing for the daughter to go over there with vegetables? Yes, certainly. I thought it unwise for children to do things like that.
9887. About this place being watched by the police, what have you to say on this subject? To show my absolute innocence of that house, I remember meeting Inspector Peri and two officers of the police who were watching that house.
9888. What house? Mrs. Seymour's house. I asked them what was wrong, and they told me that she was suspected of receiving stolen goods. Even then, I never considered it worth my while to watch the house, or did it shift my confidence in the slightest. The police then told me that the old man Jones had been a convict. With regard to Jones, he came to me in great distress on one occasion and said that someone had informed his boss that he was a gaol-bird, and was endeavouring to secure his dismissal from where he was employed. He told me it was all false, and got me to give him a letter to his employers as to what I knew of him.
9889. Where was he working at that time? He was working at David Jones'. I never knew he was a convict.
9890. You never saw this man Jones do anything wrong? No, never.
9891. Although you were a neighbour living two doors away from him? No.
9892. Mr. Meagher.] How many times do you think you have seen Mary Seymour going to Madame Rose's in the way of business? Once, and once only.
9893. Sir Julian Salomons.] That conversation you have told us about with Peri, when was that? About ten years ago. It never raised my suspicion, because I thought there was some mistake.

[Witness withdrew.]

Edmund Burns sworn and examined:—

- E. Burns, 9894. Sir Julian Salomons.] Your name is Edmund Burns? Yes.
- 7 June, 1895. 9895. And you live in Trafalgar-street, Annaudale? Yes.
9896. And you are a salesman, I believe, for a produce merchant in Sussex-street? Yes.
9897. And you have a stall in the Belmore Market? Yes.
9898. What time did you start work? At half-past 4 in the morning.
9899. For the last ten or eleven years has Mrs. Seymour been a customer of yours? Yes.
9900. What days used she to come to you? Generally on Tuesdays and Saturdays.
9901. What time in the morning did she come? Usually at 6 o'clock and sometimes a little after 5 o'clock.
9902. Did you know she kept this shop in Riley-street? Yes.
9903. Have you been to this shop both in the day-time and in the night-time? Yes.
9904. Was it an ordinary shop? Yes.
9905. And you have been there frequently? Yes; day and night.
9906. Did you ever see it conducted otherwise than respectably? No; I did not.
9907. You knew nothing about Mrs. Seymour in Melbourne? No.
9908. What opinion did you form of Mrs. Seymour's character during the time she dealt with you? She was as honest a woman as ever dealt with me.
9909. The daughter, Miss Seymour, did you see her? Yes.
9910. What opinion did you form of her conduct? I never saw anything bad; she was always very respectable.
9911. Her manner and language was all that you could wish? I never heard anything bad.
9912. Did you ever see anything about Mrs. Seymour's house to lead you to think it was not a respectable house? No, nothing.
9913. How late have you been there? Till 10 o'clock at night.
9914. And what time have you been there in the morning? At 6 or 7 o'clock in the morning.
9915. Were you delivering goods there? Yes; for two or three years; after that I was made salesman, and I did not drive the cart.
9916. Did you ever during the time you were going there on any one occasion see disreputable people there? No.
9917. Did you see a man named Jones there? Yes.
9918. Did you know anything about him? No.
9919. Anything as far as his behaviour and conduct was concerned? No.
9920. You know nothing of his previous life? No.
9921. From now going back, how late does your knowledge go from now—how many months—how long before last April—before this unfortunate matter arose? I was going to Mrs. Seymour's shop up till the time she sold the business out.
9922. Mr. Meagher.] You say she used to attend the markets on Tuesdays and Saturdays? Yes; and sometimes on a Thursday.
9923. As many as three days in a week? She used to come in about once in a month on Thursday.
9924. What time would she come? She always came in the morning. 9925.

9925. What did she come for? To buy vegetables.
 9926. How many other people bought vegetables from you? Twenty or thirty; perhaps more than that.
 9927. Did she take the things away? I delivered them in my cart to her shop.
 9928. What brought you there at night-time? I would be out for a walk, and used to call in and visit her.
 9929. Where did you live? At the Glebe.
 9930. Was that a favourite walk of yours—it is a long way from the Glebe to Surry Hills? I had nothing else to do.
 9931. How many nights in the week used you to visit there? Not oftener than once in three months of a night.
 9932. And the time in the day-time would be early in the morning? Yes; early in the morning.
 9933. How long were you driving the cart and delivering goods? For about three years; it might be more.

E. Burns.
 7 June, 1895.

[Witness withdrew.]

William Mogford Hamlet, Esq., recalled:—

9934. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you test the urine of Dr. Newmarch? Yes, a series of samples.
 9935. For arsenic? Yes, arsenic.
 9936. What do you say as to the results you found with regard to the urine as compared with the urine that had been passed by Mrs. Dean? I say it was very similar. The appearance of the urine was the same, and the traces of arsenic were apparently the same.
 9937. Of course you know that Dr. Newmarch's urine passed through the system? Yes; he took half a grain of arsenic.
 9938. Did the appearance of the arsenic in the urine of Mrs. Dean correspond with that in the urine which you knew had passed through the system of Dr. Newmarch? Yes.
 9939. How many samples were there of Dr. Newmarch's urine? One on March 31, April 1, April 2, and April 4.
 9940. Four? Four.
 9941. Dr. Todd.] Did your examination, when you were examining Dr. Newmarch's specimens, go further than to show the presence of arsenic and its quantity? No, I simply examined it for arsenic.
 9942. So that, if an arsenic solution had been added to Dr. Newmarch's urine in the same way as it has been suggested it might have been added to Mrs. Dean's urine, you would have got the same results? Yes, the same results.
 9943. So that all this examination of Dr. Newmarch's urine adds nothing to the evidence to show that it passed through the system? It shows that, given Mrs. Dean's urine and Dr. Newmarch's urine side by side, they would be the same. The appearance of both would be the same.
 9944. Do you think that had any particular value to show whether it came from the kidneys or not? Yes.
 9945. Why? Because, if arsenic had been added, there would probably have been a precipitate of mucin.
 9946. If a solution containing 1-50th of a grain of arsenic had been added to 6 oz. of urine, I do not think there would have been a mucous deposit? Yes, turbidity at least.
 9947. Have you ever tried that? Yes.
 9948. You have tried that, and you have found it to produce a deposit? No; not with one-fifth of a grain—with a small quantity. I did not weigh it—about half a grain, I think.
 9949. In using this half grain did you put it on the top? No.
 9950. In the way you described in the other experiments? No. I had a clear solution of arsenious acid.
 9951. Half a grain in solution produced a deposit of mucous? Yes; of proteid bodies in the urine.
 9952. Did you examine this deposit? No.
 9953. How do you know it was protein in the urine? Because it bore a resemblance to an albumen precipitate.
 9954. How would an albumen precipitate be produced which would give the appearance you got;—you know that with albumen you get coagulation;—you heat it, for instance, and you get a precipitate if you add a strong acid, and in the same way there are many other methods by which you get a precipitate of albumen? Yes.
 9955. All these precipitates of albumen have not the same appearance? No. It was a flocculent, slimy precipitate.
 9956. I suppose you got this precipitate of albumen by boiling the urine;—is that the kind of precipitate you got? No, not exactly that; but it resembled to some extent an albumen precipitate.
 9957. An albumen precipitate, produced how? By the addition of corrosive sublimate.
 9958. That would be in appearance, and what we call protein bodies, got by adding arsenic to this urine? Yes.
 9959. Have you any other ground for saying that this was a deposit of protein bodies from the urine? No. I did not examine the precipitate.
 9960. It had a mere appearance like that;—would there be sufficient to justify you in saying that was a precipitate of mucin? Yes.
 9961. How does mucous generally appear in the urine when copious? As a very light precipitate, occupying a good deal of space—flocculent, and at the same time slimy.
 9962. It occupies a good deal of space; in what part of the glass? In the bottom of the glass.
 9963. Did you ever see albumen produced in the bottom of the glass showing an appearance exactly like you described the mucous? Albumen when recently precipitated occupies the whole body of the liquid.
 9964. And then when it is deposited it becomes what? Flocculent and filamentous.
 9965. Would it be possible for you, as an expert, in examining urine, to mistake the appearance of a precipitate of albumen for a precipitate of mucous? No; I do not say it is an albumen precipitate, but a similar precipitate in appearance; that is to say, when arsenic is added to ordinary urine you get a precipitate and a deposit; but the two urines I got were clear, and had evidently all the appearance of not having been tampered with.
 9966. We were talking of 1-50th of a grain of arsenic being added; if that was added to 6 ounces, would you get a precipitate of mucous? No.

- W. M. Hamlet, Esq.
7 June, 1895.
9967. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is there anything you have stated to this learned gentleman in any way inconsistent with what you have stated to me? No, certainly not.
- 9967½. Supposing Dr. Newmarch's urine passed through the system, did you not state that in the other urine when arsenic was put in afterwards the appearance was exactly the same? Yes.
9968. And, therefore, you inferred they both passed through the system? Yes.
9969. Dr. Todd.] You also said that if 1-50th of a grain of arsenic had been added to Mrs. Dean's urine it would have had the same appearance as Dr. Newmarch's; it would not have altered it at all? No; they would not put in such a small quantity.
9970. Suppose you took a tumbler of water like this, and added some arsenious acid and some soda, couldn't you take a teaspoonful out of that and get 1-50th of a grain? Yes.
9971. Or 1-100th of a grain? Yes.
9972. Or 1-200th of a grain? Yes.
9973. Will you tell me candidly whether you think this theory which I am advancing, i.e., that these exhibits have been tampered with, is a feasible one? Yes.
9974. Is it a theory that could be possible and yet all the appearances which you get in these specimens would be the same? Yes; it could all be done artificially.
9975. President.] By a very clever artist? By a very skilled criminal or someone who know the properties of these things.
9976. By a toxicologist? Yes.
9977. Dr. Todd.] Or by someone with less skill than a toxicologist—someone who knew how to use arsenic for tanning skins, &c.? Not necessarily a toxicologist.
9978. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is there any degree of probability that it could be done by any ordinary person? Not by any ordinary person.
9979. President.] It must be a person with an intimate knowledge of these poisons? Yes.
9980. As to their solubility in urine, &c.? Yes.
9981. A person to a certain extent a chemist? Yes; they would not get it haphazardly.
9982. Sir Julian Salomons.] He would have to have a knowledge of arsenic, strychnine, and soda, and be shown or know how to do it? Yes; they would not get it haphazardly.
9983. President.] Is the theory put forward as to the stain being put on the nightgown afterwards a practical one? Yes, it is; because as I said before, you could take a painter's brush and put it on.
9984. Yes, or with a fine spray? Yes.
9985. Sir Julian Salomons.] It is possible? Yes, it is possible.
9986. What is the inference you draw from having examined it? That it is highly improbable.
9987. President.] It is hardly reasonable? No, not by an ignorant person.
9988. Dr. Todd.] But anybody who knew as much about it as I do could do it? Yes, I presume so.

[Witness withdrew.]

Rhys Jones sworn and examined:—

- R. Jones.
June, 1895.
9989. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are a licensed vanman? Yes.
9990. Living at 224, Clarence-street? Yes.
9991. As a vanman have you ever carted fruit from the markets to Mrs. Seymour's shop in Riley-street? Yes.
9992. How many years have you been carting things for her and known her? For ten or twelve years.
9993. You used to be in the market from 6 in the morning till 6 in the evening? Yes.
9994. How early in the morning has Mrs. Seymour been there? At 5 o'clock in the morning.
9995. When have you seen her in the fruit market? From 6 o'clock to 8 in the summer—not always at the same time.
9996. How long did you cart things to Mrs. Seymour's place—for how many years? For about eleven years, as far as I can remember.
9997. What was the shop;—was it a respectable, well-conducted, ordinary shop? Very.
9998. Did you ever see the slightest sign of that place being a brothel? No.
9999. Or did you ever see anything in mother or daughter to lead you to suspect such a thing? No.
10000. Did you know Mary Seymour from a child? Yes.
10001. What kind of a young woman was she? She was a nice child.
10002. Was she well-behaved? I thought so, and when she grew up, a nice woman.
10003. Did her mother take great care of her? I always thought so.
10004. In all these years you have known her was there ever anything to lead you to think it was not a respectable place? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

Sergeant John Hunter Day sworn and examined:—

- Sergeant J. H. Day.
7 June, 1895.
10005. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a sergeant in the Constabulary Force of this Colony? I am.
10006. For how many years have you been in the force? Twenty years and six months.
10007. I believe that for the last nine years you have known the house where Mrs. Seymour lived, in Riley-street? Yes.
10008. Did you live within 100 yards of Mrs. Seymour's shop? Yes; I live in Kippax-street.
10009. Have you as an officer in the police force frequently been about this locality? Very.
10010. Have you ever seen or heard anything whatever in connection with Mrs. Seymour's house that has called for police interference of any kind? I have not.
10011. As far as you could judge was Mrs. Seymour's shop conducted as a bonâ fide business establishment should be? Yes; Mrs. Seymour always appeared to be a hard-working woman.
10012. Have you frequently seen Mary Seymour, now Mrs. George Dean? Yes.
10013. Have you ever seen anything wrong about her or in her conduct? Never.
10014. Did you ever see her behave in any way fast about the town? Never.
10015. Was Mary Seymour, as far as you could see, always a well-behaved and well-conducted girl? Yes as far as I know. I never saw anything to the contrary.

10016,

10016. And you for nine years resided within a hundred yards of her home? Yes; within about a hundred yards.

10017. Mr. Meagher.] Was this on your beat, Sergeant Day? I have no particular beat; I am in charge of that section of the division.

10018. Do you live in Rippax-street? Yes.

10019. Could you see who entered Mrs. Seymour's shop or back gate from where you live? No.

10020. For all you know could scores of fast girls enter her back gate or go through the shop? Yes.

10021. Have you ever had occasion to personally interfere with an establishment kept by Madame Rose, on the opposite side of the street? No; that house is not in our division.

10022. But supposing improper conduct was going on, necessitating police interference, would the fact of this house being outside your division prevent you from taking action, say you saw anything wrong? Certainly not.

10023. President.] Do you know Detective Roche? I do.

10024. Do you know, from conversation with this official, what class of people used to visit Mrs. Seymour's house? I never had any conversation with him on that subject.

10025. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you ever heard anything derogatory, disgraceful, or discreditable in reference to this house or Mrs. Seymour? No.

10026. Do you receive reports from the constables on duty in this vicinity? Yes.

10027. Have you, from any of your subordinates, ever received reports against this house, or against Mrs. Seymour? I have not.

[Witness withdrew.]

Senior-Sergeant James Brodrick sworn and examined:—

10028. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a senior-sergeant in the Police Force of New South Wales? Yes.

10029. Have many years have you been in the force? Twenty-eight years to-day.

10030. Have many years have you known Mrs. Seymour's house in Riley-street, Surry Hills? Casually for about fourteen and a half years. I have known it by passing backwards and forwards frequently.

10031. Have you ever in passing, either in the night or day, seen anything which aroused your suspicions that this particular house was the resort of thieves or prostitutes? No.

10032. Have you known the place as a greengrocer's shop? Yes.

10033. Have you ever known it to be anything but a greengrocer's shop? No.

10034. And how long has your experience of it being a bona fide greengrocer's shop extended? For fourteen and a half years—all the time I have been in No. 2 division.

10035. Mr. Meagher.] Is it not a fact that the detectives have often watched this house without communicating with the local police officials? I believe so.

10037. Do you, as a matter of fact, receive reports from these constables on the beat? As a rule, I do.

10038. Do you remember in the last twenty-eight years, fourteen and a half of which have been spent on Surry Hills, whether any report has been given to you stating that Mrs. Seymour had been charged with pocket-picking? No.

Sir Julian Salomons: But that happened in Norton-street.

10039. Mr. Meagher.] How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour to have a shop in Riley-street? For about fourteen years. I have known the place by passing by. I have known the woman by seeing her as I passed by. I do not know much of the shop personally; I may have been in it once or twice when collecting the electoral roll.

10040. Did any constable on the beat ever report to you, or do you know personally, that two notorious characters, Graham and Billy Lynch, were at one time residing at Mrs. Seymour's house? No; I only heard of these matters since this Royal Commission began its investigation. I heard nothing at the time these men are said to have been there.

[Witness withdrew.]

Senior-Sergeant Thomas Collins sworn and examined:—

10041. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a senior-sergeant in the New South Wales Police Force? I am.

10042. Did you know Mrs. Seymour's shop, 413, Riley-street? Yes.

10043. For how many years have you known that locality? For the last twenty-two years.

10044. Have you passed the house frequently during the greater part of that period? Yes.

10045. Have you ever been in the house? I think I have been in the shop.

10046. Was it a greengrocer's shop, the same as any other? Yes, as far as I could see.

10047. Do you think the selling was merely a "blind," or was it a bona fide shop, like any other place of business of this kind? There was nothing about the place to lead me to think it was a "blind."

10048. Did you ever see any bad characters, such as prostitutes and thieves, at the place? I never saw anyone except an old man named Thomas Jones.

10049. Did you know he had been a criminal? Yes.

10050. Did you ever see any other criminals there? No.

10051. How long is it since this Tommy Jones was convicted? I cannot say; he was convicted in Victoria.

10052. Has he ever been convicted in New South Wales? I do not know.

10053. How many years have you known this place? For twenty-two years. I know nothing of my own knowledge about Mrs. Seymour. All I can speak of is from hearsay.

10054. Have you seen anything about the house that would lead you to suspect something wrong? I never saw anything wrong about it—nothing more than in any other greengrocer's shop.

10055. Have you seen Mrs. Seymour when passing the shop? Yes; nearly every time I passed the place.

10056. Did you ever see anything wrong or suspicious about the woman? No. 10057.

Sergeant
J. H. Day.

June, 1895.

Senior-
Sergeant
J. Brodrick.

June, 18

Senior-
Sergeant
T. Collins.

7 June, 1895.

Senior-
Sergeant
T. Collins.
7 June, 1895.

10057. Do you know Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean? Yes.
 10058. What did you observe in her manner and conduct? She was a very quiet girl. I never saw her mix up with other persons; she was generally in the shop, or at the door, when I was passing.
 10059. Mr. Meagher.] Have you ever been in the shop? About once, I think.
 10060. Have you ever been in the room off the shop? Never; only in the shop.
 10061. Do you know a man named Jones who stopped there? Yes.
 10062. Do you know a woman named Mary Ann Fleury? I have heard the name, I think; I do not know her.
 10063. Would it surprise you to know that she stayed at Mrs. Seymour's? I never heard she stayed there.
 10064. Did you ever see Jones there? I saw him there once or twice.
 10065. Do you know if young women named Dora and Ada Thompson and Amy Bennett stayed at Mrs. Seymour's house? No.
 10066. If you turn to question 9193, you will see that the witness Jones, whom you say lived at Mrs. Seymour's, said that Dora and Ada Thompson were both bad girls, but he could not say that about Amy Bennett, and that these girls were in the habit of living at Mrs. Seymour's;—can you contradict that? I do not know anything about it.
 10067. As far as you know, could the mother and other females go to Madame Rose's without you knowing of it? Yes, people could go there of course without my knowledge. I never saw Mrs. Dean there or Mrs. Seymour when I was passing.
 10068. Did you know Detective Williams, who was once in the Police Force? Yes.
 10069. He was a capable man, was he not? Yes; he was pretty good, as far as I know.
 10070. Did you ever know that Detective Williams shadowed Mrs. Seymour's house, and eventually prosecuted Mrs. Seymour on a charge? I did not know of it until after this Commission began.
 10071. Do you know Detective O'Sullivan? Yes.
 10072. Do you know that O'Sullivan described Jones as a thief, or fence for thieves, and that Jones instituted proceedings against O'Sullivan, and claimed £200 as damages for slander or defamation of character? Yes; I know such action was taken.
 10073. Do you know that up to three years ago Detective Roche, a well known member of the Force, watched Mrs. Seymour's house in Riley-street for thieves and criminals? No; I did not know that.
 10074. Do you know if a man named Graham ever stopped there? No, I do not.
 10075. Do you know whether a man named Billy Bluff ever stopped there? No; the only man I knew to be staying there was Tommy Jones.
 10076. Have you passed the shop hundreds of times? Yes, I daresay I have.
 10077. Have you once seen her going over to Madame Rose's house? Never.
 10078. Have you ever heard, or do you know of anything as a police official, whether this house of Mrs. Seymour's was the resort of prostitutes and criminals? I have never heard anything, neither do I know.
 10079. Not from anybody? No, from nobody.
 10080. Mr. Meagher.] Have you a clear idea of the houses of ill-fame in that district? Well, yes; I know a good many of them.
 10081. Do you know a house kept by Mrs. Lee in Collins-street? No.
 10082. Do you remember Mrs. Lee having been turned out of the house in Collins-street by the police, and then taking a similar house of ill-fame in Bourke-street? No; I do not know what takes place in that division.
 10083. Do you know a woman named Minnie Phillips? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

Senior-Constable John Thompson sworn and examined:—

Senior-
Constable
J. Thompson.
7 June, 1895.

10084. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a senior constable in the Police Force of this Colony? Yes.
 10085. How many years have you been in the Police Force? Fifteen years last December.
 10086. Do you know the house, 413, Riley-street? Yes.
 10087. For how many years have you been on duty in the vicinity of this house? Between seven and eight years.
 10088. Have you had it under your observation particularly? Well, I have seen it frequently.
 10089. Have you seen the people who frequented the house? Yes; I have seen people there.
 10090. Did you ever see anything objectionable in Mrs. Seymour personally, or any other person going into that place? I never did.
 10091. Did the shop seem to be anything other than a bonâ-fide business place? I never saw anything different.
 10092. Was there the slightest sign of the shop being merely a blind? Not the slightest.
 10093. Did you ever see anything to complain about Mrs. Seymour, her house, or the way in which it was conducted? There was never any complaint made to me.
 10094. And how many years have you known the place? Between seven and eight.
 10095. Have you passed it frequently? Yes.
 10096. Both by night and by day? Yes; sometimes four and five times in the night.
 10097. Have you ever been in the shop itself? No.
 10098. Mr. Meagher.] Do you say you have never been in the shop? No.
 10099. Can you state what quantity of stock was in the place? No; I cannot.
 10100. I suppose that as a constable you would not expect to see anything immoral in the shop? No; but I have seen people going with jugs and bags and come out again, after having made purchases.
 10101. Which way have you seen these people go in? Through the front way.
 10102. I suppose you would not be able to see people who went in the back way? No.
 10103. I suppose you will admit that the people who reside alongside, and who could overlook the back yard would be able to speak with more authority than you as to the people who went in the back way? Yes.
 10104. I suppose you would not care to swear that neither Mrs. Seymour nor her daughter had not been to the brothel on the opposite side of the street? I never saw them go there.

10105. And how many times do you say you have passed that place in the day? Four or five times; sometimes as often as twice in an hour.
10106. Do you know Detective Roche? I do.
10107. Have you ever seen him shadowing Mrs. Seymour's shop? Never.
10108. And yet you say you have passed the shop four or five times in the day? Yes, I have.
10109. Have you ever seen Detective O'Sullivan shadowing the place? Never.
10110. Did you know Williams when he was in the Detective Force? I did.
10111. Did you ever know that he prosecuted Mrs. Seymour? No; except from what I read in the paper, and she lived in Norton-street when Williams prosecuted her.
10112. But I am speaking of Riley-street;—have you ever seen men go through the shop into the room behind? No, never.
10113. If Mrs. Seymour has ever sworn, "I remember Melbourne men coming to the house; I don't remember whether I was introduced to them; they started coming about three years ago; I believe they were bookmakers";—do you know anything about that? No.
10114. Did you ever see a number of flashily-dressed men, whom you would take to be bookmakers, going to the house in Riley-street? No; I did not.
10115. Have you ever seen Mrs. Seymour herself taking notes round to Crown-street? No; I have not.
10116. I suppose if Mrs. Seymour swears that she has taken, and been paid for taking, notes from Madame Rose's house to gay girls, you would be surprised? I should.
10117. Do you know that she has sworn, "I have taken several notes from Madame Rose to gay girls; I cannot say if it was less than a dozen times; I was paid for going messages; Madame sent the notes to me";—would you be surprised to know that she has sworn all that? I should be surprised at nothing after what I have read in this case.
10118. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you say you know Detective Roche? I do.
10119. And did he ever tell you anything at all about watching this place? No; he never did.
10120. President.] Do detectives, as a rule, when they are watching any house for any special purpose, tell the constable on the beat what they are doing? Sometimes, but only when they may want help.
10121. Then it is not their official duty to make known their business to the constable? No.
10122. Sir Julian Salomons.] Have you ever known or seen anything improper about this house? No; I have not.
10123. Not in all the years you have known it? No.

Senior-
Constable
J. Thompson.
7 June, 1895

[Witness withdrew.]

John Wilkinson sworn and examined:—

10124. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a sergeant in the Police Force of this Colony? Yes.
10125. Did you know Mrs. Seymour's house in Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
10126. For how many years did you perform duty in that neighbourhood? For the last fourteen or fifteen years.
10127. Have you ever been in the shop? No; I have not.
10128. How many times have you passed it in a day? Sometimes not at all, and sometimes as often as three times in the night.
10129. Did you ever see anything in connection with this shop which would lead you to believe that it was not respectably conducted? No, never.
10130. Did you ever receive any complaint from any constable on duty in that vicinity to the effect that anything was wrong at this establishment? No.

J. Wilkinson.
7 June, 1895.

[Witness withdrew.]

Thomas Jones sworn and examined:—

10131. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you reside at 371, Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
10132. How many years have you been living there? Eight years.
10133. Have you retired from active business? Yes.
10134. What business were you in before your retirement? The last business I had was that of a bedding manufacturer.
10135. Have you been retired for some time? Yes.
10136. How many years have you been living in this particular neighbourhood? Fourteen years.
10137. Do you know the house that Mrs. Seymour occupied in Riley-street? Yes.
10138. For how many years did you know Mrs. Seymour while she was living in Riley-street? I knew her before she took that shop in Riley-street.
10139. Did you deal with Mrs. Seymour at that shop? Sometimes my missis did.
10140. Of course you knew nothing about Mrs. Seymour in Melbourne? I did not.
10141. As far as your knowledge went, was that a bona-fide business in Riley-street? Yes.
10142. Did you regard Mrs. Seymour as being a respectable, straightforward, hard-working woman? Yes.
10143. Have you been to the house? Yes, repeatedly.
10144. Did you then see Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean? Yes; often.
10145. And what was her conduct as far as you could see? Respectable, decent, and well-behaved in every way.
10146. Was Mary Dean about the same age as your own girl? I think she was a year younger.
10147. Did you allow these girls to associate? Yes.
10148. Has Mary Seymour ever been in your house? Often.
10149. Have you ever seen anything in her conduct different to what you have stated? I never saw anything wrong with her.
10150. Mr. Meagher.] Have you ever known that Mary Dean, or rather Mary Seymour, has been at Madame Rose's brothel? Never.
10151. I suppose it is possible for her to have been there scores of times without your knowing? Yes, of course.

T. Jones.
7 June, 1895.

10152.

- T. Jones. 10152. Was it in Norton-street that you first knew Mrs. Seymour? Yes; I knew her when she was in Norton-street.
- 7 June, 1895. 10153. Do you remember a man dying at her place in Norton-street? No; that was before I went to live there.
10154. Did you know a man named Gamble at all? No.
10155. And you knew Mrs. Seymour when she moved from Norton-street to Riley-street? Yes.
10156. Did you see a man with one eye at both places frequently? No, I never did.
10157. Do you know Tommy Jones? Yes; he was a tailor, and a boarder at Mrs. Seymour's.
10158. Did you know more than one man who stayed at Mrs. Seymour's? Yes; when she lived in Norton-street two or three men stayed there.
10159. Do you know the names of these men? I knew one was a stonemason and another was a carpenter.
10160. Did either of the two ever work for you? No; but the two were customers of mine.
10161. What were the names of these men? I think one was named Simeon, and the other was named Jack—Jack Macpherson.
10162. Have you ever seen either of these men at work? No. I think one was a stonemason though, and he used to associate with the carpenter. I have not seen either of these men for twelve years.
10163. You say you remember the name of one was Jack;—do you know if the name of the other was Jerry? I do not remember.
10164. To be perfectly clear, I want you again to state all you know;—first of all, you know Mrs. Seymour? Yes; my acquaintance commenced when she was living in Norton-street, when she was a customer of mine.
10165. Well, then, about Riley-street? I have known her there as keeping a shop.
10166. Do you know Madame Rose's opposite? I knew it by repute. The place was pointed out to me.
10167. Would you be surprised to learn that Mrs. Seymour at times took notes from Madame Rose to gay girls living in Crown-street? I have never known of it.
10168. I suppose, as far as you are concerned, you do not know that females of bad character associated at Mrs. Seymour's at different times;—could they do so without you becoming aware of the fact? I hardly think that. I have been visiting there as often as four days in the week, and sometimes I have sat in the back room for hours. This man Jones, the tailor, has made clothes for me, and I have gone there and chatted with him and with Mrs. Seymour too. I have called in there to purchase cigars, and stopped and had a chat with Mrs. Seymour for an hour at a time.
10169. I suppose you will admit that the man Thomas Jones, the tailor, knows more about the place than you? Yes.
10170. Would it surprise you to hear that Jones has said that girls of a bad character have slept at Mrs. Seymour's? It would surprise me.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Ada Burgess sworn and examined:—

- Mrs. A. Burgess. 10171. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are a married lady residing with your husband at Bowral-street, Kensington? Yes.
- June, 1895. 10172. I think you were a teacher in the Public Instruction Department of this Colony? Yes.
10173. Was that in the year 1887? Yes.
10174. Were you at the Crown-street Public School, and in charge of the Upper Third Class? Yes.
10175. Do you remember Mary Seymour being a pupil of yours at the day-school? Yes.
10176. Was she a well-conducted, well-behaved girl? She was a well-behaved girl while in class.
10177. Was she always quietly dressed and well behaved? Yes, while in her class.
10178. Did you ever know her to knock about with people;—you understand what I mean? No.
10179. Was she a pupil of yours for a year or more? Yes, she was for about a year, in 1887, I think.
10180. And during that year you taught her, was she a well-behaved, modest, and well-conducted girl? Yes, in the school.
10181. You did not visit her house, I suppose? No.
10182. Were you over in her mother's house in your life? No, never.
10183. I think, after leaving the Crown-street School, you went to some other school in the country, did you not? Yes, I went to Tenterfield.
10184. In what year did you go there? In the year 1888.
10185. Then you know nothing more of Mary Seymour? No, that is all my knowledge of her.
10186. President.] When you say she was well-behaved in school did you mean to qualify your assertion in any way, or simply that you knew nothing of her beyond what you saw while she was under your care in the class? I know nothing else of her besides.
10187. Did you see anything against her in her conduct out of doors? Nothing whatever.
10188. Mr. Meagher.] How long was she in your class? The whole of the time I was at the school, I think.
10189. Was she there before you went to the school? Yes.
10190. How long were you there? I think I was there a year and four months.
10191. Can you tell me the names of the other pupil-teachers who were at the school in your time? I was not a pupil-teacher, but I remember the assistant teachers. They were Miss Hall, Miss Russell, and Miss Hogan. I think the last-named lady is there still.
10192. Who was the head-teacher? Mrs. Greville; but she is now in Edinburgh.
10193. Is Miss Hall there still? I think she is there still; as far as I know she is.

[Witness withdrew.]

John Macleannan sworn and examined:—

- J. Macleannan. 10194. Sir Julian Salomons.] I think you carried on business as a hairdresser at 379, Riley-street, Surry Hills? Yes, sir.
- 14 June, 1895. 10195. For how many years have you known Mrs. Seymour's shop? Nine years.
10196. Have you been in that shop both by day and by night at different times? Yes, sir.

10197.

10197. Did you ever see anything disreputable about it? No; it always seemed to me to be a respectable sort of place. J. MacLennan.
10198. Did you ever see anything against Mrs. Seymour? Nothing, whatever. 7 June, 1895.
10199. How long have you known Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean? For about the same time.
10200. Was she, as far as you know, a well-conducted, respectable young woman? Yes.
10201. Did you see her frequently? Yes, sometimes three and four times a day. She passed my place going to school.
10202. Did you ever see anything loud or improper in her conduct, or did you ever see her associating with bad characters? No.
10203. Did you ever hear anyone say anything against her character? Never.
10204. Did your business ever cause you to go out late at night? My business did not, but after I closed the shop at 9 o'clock I generally went out for a walk.
10205. Then you would consequently be out in the evening? Yes.
10206. How did your place stand in regard to Mrs. Seymour's;—did you ever pass her shop? Yes, I frequently did.
10207. Have you ever seen young women—you know the character I mean—knocking about with Mrs. Seymour? No. I have seen Mary Seymour going down the street with a music-book under her arm to go to Jones' for her music lesson.
10208. During the whole of the nine years you speak of, did you see anything to that girl's detriment, or different in her character to what you state? No, nothing.
10209. Mr. Meagher.] Do you know a man named Jones who was staying at Mrs. Seymour's? Yes.
10210. Do you know that he has said that at different times in the year bookmakers have passed in and out of Mrs. Seymour's house;—have you ever seen any flashy-dressed men passing in and out? No, I never did.
10211. Of course you would be at your business during the day? Yes.
10212. And you have never seen these men going into Mrs. Seymour's shop? No, never.
10213. I suppose they could go there without you being aware of the fact? Yes.
10214. If Jones has stated that two prostitutes lived at the house—two bad girls, one named Dora and the other named Ada Thompson—what have you to say to that? I have never seen them there.
10215. Do you know a house of ill-fame in Collins-street, kept by a Mrs. Lee? No, I never heard of it.
10216. Have you ever been beyond the shop in Mrs. Seymour's house? Yes.
10217. Have you been in the shop itself? Yes, to buy fruit.
10218. Have you ever been in the room at the back of the shop? Yes.
10219. What were you doing there? Mrs. Seymour took me there to show me her fernery in the backyard.
10220. How many times did you go through the front way to the fernery? I was only there that once.
10221. Is there a back entrance to Mrs. Seymour's house? I do not know.
10222. Do you know Minnie Phillips? No.
10223. Do you know Florrie Clifford? No.
10224. Will you swear that you have never known of this back entrance? No.
10225. Do you mean to say you do not know Florrie Clifford by sight? I do not.
10226. Have you seen Mrs. Seymour going to the house of ill-fame opposite her own house? I have never seen her there.
10227. During the nine years you have lived in this neighbourhood have you ever seen Mrs. Seymour at Madame Rose's? Never.
10228. I suppose if she herself has sworn that she has been there, and that she has taken letters to gay girls from that house, would that surprise you? No; it would not. I have been to Madame Rose's myself, but I went there on a business matter. I went there to shave old Rose when he was sick in bed.
10229. President.] And did you shave him under those circumstances? Yes.
10230. Mr. Meagher.] Was that at the time he died? No; that was before he died.
10231. You never saw Mrs. Seymour there then? No.
10232. Do you know that the only person who was at the funeral of old Rose, besides Madame Rose, was Mrs. Seymour? No. I was not at the funeral myself, and do not know who was there.

[Witness withdrew.]

Lindsay John Osborne sworn and examined:—

10233. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you reside at Beronia-street, Redfern? I do.
10234. What are you? I am a cutter at Messrs. Thompson and Gates' tailoring establishment.
10235. How long have you known Mrs. Seymour and her daughter Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean? About four years.
10236. Have you been in the shop at all? Yes, I have.
10237. And purchased goods? I have gone in to pay accounts after my wife has bought vegetables hop-beer, and fruit.
10238. Did Mrs. Seymour carry on a perfectly respectable business? I never saw anything to make me think otherwise.
10239. Did you ever hear or see anything against the character of Mrs. Seymour? I never did.

[Witness withdrew.]

Sir Julian Salomons: I wish to put in this telegram. It is as follows:—

North Sydney, 7th March, 1895.

TELEGRAM to Crown-street, Surry Hills, addressed to Mrs. Johnstone, 2, Little Collins-street, Surry Hills: Come over as soon as you can. Mary seriously ill. Signed MRS. SEYMOUR, address c/o Mrs. Dean, Miller-street.

L. J.
Osborne.
7 June, 1895

Detective William Richard Clough sworn and examined:—

- Detective
W. R.
Clough.
7 June, 1895.
10240. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a detective in the Police Force? Yes.
10241. Have you been making inquiries as to school-teachers at the Crown-street Public School? Yes.
10242. Is it a fact that one of the teachers who was there is now in Edinburgh? Yes. I went and made inquiries, and found that one Mrs. Burgess is married, and from her I got a statement, another had gone to England. Another could not remember Mary Seymour at all as a scholar at the school—that was Miss Russell.
10243. Have you been able to find out any more concerning Mary Seymour's school-days? I have not, Sir Julian.
10244. Is the only person who remembers anything of Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Burgess, who has given evidence here? Yes.
10245. Have you done the best you could to get all the persons who knew her school history? I have.
10246. And you are not keeping any of the teachers back at all? Certainly not.
10247. Did you interview a Mrs. Gooch? I do not remember that lady.
10248. She is at the Bourke-street Public School? No; I did not go to Bourke-street. I went to the Public Instruction Department, to the Pymont-street School, and to the Crown-street Public School.
10249. And who did you see at the Pymont-street School? Mrs. Burgess.
- Sir Julian Salomons.*] Mr. President, I have nine or ten other witnesses, trades-people and others, whom I can bring here to swear that Mrs. Seymour carried on this shop in a bona fide way, and that so far as they knew it, it was a well-conducted and respectable business. I will hand in the names of those witnesses, and they can be called if necessary.
- President.*] Unless Mr. Meagher desires these witnesses to be called I do not see that there is any necessity to labour this part of the case.
10250. Mr. Meagher.] (To witness.) I think you have been present, Detective Clough, while a number of police officers have given their evidence? I was not present.
10251. Do you know Detective Sergeant Keating? Yes.
10252. Where does he live? I do not know as a fact, but I think it is somewhere just behind where Mrs. Johnstone lived.
10253. Are you and Detective Tindall the officers in charge of this case? I suppose we made most of the inquiries.
10254. In that capacity I suppose you have been to Surry Hills, and to the shop which was kept by Mrs. Seymour in Riley-street? Yes.
10255. How far was that shop from Detective Keating's house? I cannot tell you exactly; I have not seen him at his house; I do not know exactly where it is, except that it is somewhere at the back of Mrs. Johnstone's.
10256. Do you mean to say that Keating's house has not been pointed out to you? No, it has not.
10257. Do you not know as a matter of fact that Detective Sergeant Keating resides within a few doors of the shop in Riley-street? Keating, I think, resides within a hundred yards of Mrs. Johnstone's.
10258. Do you know if Keating has resided in that locality for a considerable time? I believe he has lived there ever since he was married.
10259. How long ago is that? Some five or six years. I won't be positive.
10260. Now, as a matter of fact, do you not know that Keating's house is immediately at the back of Mrs. Johnstone's? I have never been to the house. Mrs. Johnstone merely pointed out the locality.
10261. Do you know that Mrs. Johnstone is a great friend of Sergeant Keating? Yes.
10262. Do you not know that at the present time Mrs. Seymour is living at Mrs. Johnstone's? Yes.
10263. Do you not know that where Mrs. Johnstone lives is not more than 30 yards from where Mrs. Seymour's shop was? It is difficult to say how far it is in yards. I should say perhaps it is not more than a hundred yards away.
10264. As far as your information goes, has Keating lived where he does now for the last five years? Yes, as far as I know.
10265. And Keating has not been called as a witness? No; I have not seen him.

[Witness withdrew.]

MONDAY, 10 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. H. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared in the interests of George Dean.

Joseph Knillands sworn and examined:—

- J. Knillands.
10 June, 1895.
10266. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are a bootmaker, living at 362, Riley-street? Yes.
10267. How many years have you lived in that neighbourhood? Three years.
10268. Do you know Mrs. Seymour's shop? Yes.
10269. How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour and her daughter in connection with that shop? About two or three years.
10270. Have you bought things in the shop? On one occasion.
10271. Have you been in the shop more than once? I have been there twice.
10272. Have you done work for these people, too? Yes.
10273. Did you ever see anything in that shop that would lead you to believe that it was anything beyond an ordinary greengrocer's shop? No.
- 10274.

10274. Have you ever heard one word against the character of either Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Dean, or the shop? No. J. Knillands
10 June, 1895.
10275. Did you know Mary Dean previously? I have seen her several times.
10276. What was her general conduct? That of a well-behaved and respectable girl.
10277. Have you seen anything improper or loud about the character of this young woman? No, I have not.
10278. How far did you live from them? About 100 yards.
10279. Dr. Todd.] How long do you say you have been living in Riley-street? Three years.
10280. How old are you? Twenty-three years of age.
10281. How long have you known Mrs. Seymour? For about two years.
10282. Is that the last two years of your life, or during the last two years they lived in Riley-street? Oh, it was before they left; I have not seen her for the last twelve months.
10283. Then you knew her for the first two years out of the last three? Yes.
10284. How did you get to know her? Through doing business with me.
10285. Did she get her boots made by you? She had work done.
10286. Did Mrs. Dean get her work done, too, by you? Yes.
10287. While you have known them have you seen anything wrong in connection with her character? No; both seemed to be honest and well-beloved.

[Witness withdrew.]

Frederick William Gail sworn and examined:—

10288. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you a furniture-broker and a licensed vanman, living at Miller-street, North Sydney? I am. F. W. Gail
10 June, 1895.
10289. How many years have you lived at North Shore? About five years.
10290. We have heard that on Tuesday, the 22nd of March, Mrs. Dean informed you that she would give up her house, and that at her request you removed her furniture from the house she and George Dean previously occupied to your store? Yes, that is so.
10291. Was that furniture removed openly during the daytime? Yes; it was removed to my store.
10292. Were you paid £1 for removing it? Yes.
10293. On the 12th of April did you go to see Mrs. Dean and her mother at Mrs. Johnstone's? Yes. That was on the Good Friday.
10294. Did they say anything to you about having looked for a house? Yes; she said they had been looking for a house the whole of Tuesday.
10295. I believe they had been staying at Mrs. Johnstone's? Yes.
10296. Did you take the furniture, then, to Mrs. Lee's? No; I was under the impression I was taking it to Mrs. Dean's at No. 1, Macdonald-street, Paddington.
10297. Dr. Todd.] But did you not take it to Mrs. Lee's? I took it to No. 1, Macdonald-street, Paddington. I don't know whose house it was.
10298. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was Mrs. Dean with Mrs. Lee at the house at the time? The first load I took over there I met Mrs. Seymour, who told me that Mrs. Dean was very bad.
10299. At all events did you remove the furniture on the Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday after the 16th of April? Yes; it was on the Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.
10300. I believe there was something mentioned about a work-bench, a tressel, and some timber at Dean's;—what were you told about these things? I was told to take them to my place and store them up.
10301. Can you give the sizes of the pieces of timber, and tell us what has become of them? There was one 7 ft. by 12 in. wide and 1 in. thick; that was used. There were other lengths 5 ft. by 12 in., $\frac{3}{4}$ in. thick, and 4 ft. long and 1 in. thick. Then there was a piece of cedar 7 ft. long, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in.; that was used. A piece of cedar 5 ft. 6 in. was sold. Then there is another piece of cedar in the store.
10302. Have you used any of this for your benefit or profit? Yes; one piece 7 ft. long, worth about sevenpence.
10303. Who gave you leave to use that piece of timber? The instruction I had was to sell it if I could. Well, I used it myself, and credited Mrs. Dean for it—that's the same.
10304. How many pieces of wood did you use? Two pieces.
10305. And how much were they worth? One and sixpence.
10306. What did you use them for? One was for a shelf and the other to mend the cart.
10307. Is the other timber still stored at your place? Yes; it is still stored there.
10308. I suppose you are aware that the bulk of the furniture you moved originally belonged to Mrs. Seymour? I am.
10309. When you moved the furniture to Paddington was Mrs. Seymour at the house on your arrival? She was.
10310. And did she tell you where to put the furniture? Yes.
10311. Were there not also some tins of paint at Dean's house, or in the shed at the back of the house? There was one tin of paint weighing about 5 lb., that was white paint, and there was about half a pound of black paint, and a small tin of varnish, about two-thirds full.
10312. What did Mrs. Dean tell you about shifting these things? She told me that these old bottles and rubbish could be left in Miller-street as they were no good. I took them away.
10313. Did you use any of the paint? I did.
10314. How much did you use? About half a pound of the white.
10315. What was that worth? Ninspence or a shilling.
10316. Are all the other things still at your place? Yes.
10317. Did you sell any timber for Mrs. Dean? Just the one piece of cedar.
10318. How much did you get for that? Sixpence.
10319. Do you owe that 6d. to Mrs. Dean yet? Yes.
10320. Dr. Todd.] When did you last see Mrs. Dean? I believe it was on the Sunday previous to her removal to Sydney Hospital.

10321.

- F. W. Gail. 10321. Did not Mr. Meagher charge you at Darlington with being mixed up in a conspiracy with Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean to charge Dean with having attempted to poison his wife? I believe so.
- 10 June, 1895. 10322. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you give evidence at the Police Court? Yes.
10323. Were you subpoenaed to give evidence at Darlington? I was.
10324. Do you remember if you were arrested on a charge of bigamy about this particular time? Yes. On the Tuesday night before the Wednesday on which Dean's trial was commenced two detectives came to me and read a warrant.
10325. President.] Did that warrant charge you with bigamy? Yes. I had obtained a decree nisi from my first wife some twelve months previously. I then married again, and did not know that the rule nisi had not been made absolute. This was twelve months after.
10326. Sir Julian Salomons.] When do you say you were arrested on this charge of bigamy? I was arrested at half-past 6 on the Tuesday night before Dean's trial came on on the Wednesday.
10327. Did you ever hear one word about your being liable to this charge before that night? Never.
10328. Is it not a fact that you were remanded on that charge? Yes; on three different occasions.
10329. After the conviction of this man Dean did anyone appear against you to go on with this charge of bigamy? No.
10330. And did your wife give evidence at the Police Court and at Darlington? Yes.
10331. Mr. Meagher.] Previous to this alleged poisoning had Mrs. Seymour been in the habit of calling at your place? Yes.
10332. I believe for six weeks preceding Mrs. Dean's illness Mrs. Seymour called at your place on an average about once a week? Yes; I believe she did.
10333. Were you on friendly terms? Yes, we were.
10334. Mrs. Dean called at your place at different times, did she not? Yes.
10335. Would her visits to your place be oftener than her mother's—that is, once a week? I could not say that they would be oftener.
10336. Do you remember if she used to meet her mother there? No; not that I am aware of.
10337. So I understand you to say that during this period of six weeks, when the mother visited you on an average once a week, and the daughter visited you the same, you never recollect either of them meeting together there? I do not.
10338. Would you undertake to swear that they did not meet there during the period I have asked you about? Yes, I think I can swear it;—I can.
10339. Were you friendly with Dean at this particular time? Yes, I was.
10340. I think when Dean resided at Mossman's Bay you removed Mrs. Seymour's effects when she left the house? Yes.
10341. Do you remember at what time Mrs. Seymour left this house in consequence of a disagreement with her son-in-law? I cannot say for certain.
10342. What do you mean by saying, "Not for certain;"—is it not since this case commenced that you heard for the first time that there was a disagreement? No.
10343. Did you not know, as a matter of fact, being on speaking terms with all the parties, that the reason the mother-in-law left the house was on account of some quarrel with the son? There was a row of some description, but what it was I do not know.
10344. Do you remember speaking to Dean about that row? No; he spoke to me on the day I removed the things.
10345. Do you remember Dean telling you on the occasion of moving the things from Mossman's Bay that the absence of the mother-in-law meant happiness for him? Yes; something to that effect was said—as much as to say it was a good job she was going. Words to that effect were used.
10346. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you mean to say he used those exact words? I will not say they were the exact words, but they were to that effect, at all events.
10347. Did Mrs. Dean bring a bottle of lemon-syrup to your place on Saturday afternoon, the 2nd of March? Yes, she did.
10348. Do you remember her stating that she had been to a chemist or a doctor? Yes; she said she had been to Smith, the chemist, and that she had been also to Dr. Newmarch.
10349. Did she ask you to take this bottle of lemon-syrup anywhere—to the chemist for her, or to the doctor? She asked me if I could get it analysed for her.
10350. Did you ever, from the time you knew Mrs. Dean, remember her coming to your place on such an errand before? No, never.
10351. President.] Did she ask you to have a drink of the lemon-syrup? Yes.
10352. Did you? I tasted it. I spat it out; it was bitter; it was quite sufficient for me.
10353. Did you take it in a cup? Yes, I did.
10354. Did you drink it as you would drink an ordinary lemon-syrup? Yes.
10355. And you say you found it bitter? Yes.
10356. And then you did not drink it? No.
10357. Sir Julian Salomons.] In other words, you spat it out from your mouth? Yes.
10358. Mr. Meagher.] What time would it be when you received that lemon-syrup from her? About half-past 3 in the afternoon.
10359. Where did you put the bottle? In the pantry.
10360. I believe, as a matter of fact, you took such an amount of interest in it that on the following day you took that bottle somewhere? I deny that. I denied it before.
10361. Do you deny it now? Yes.
10362. Do you deny that you, yourself, went to a chemist to see if he would analyse the contents of this bottle? That is different to seeing him about it and taking the bottle.
10363. Sir Julian Salomons.] I am asking you if you did not go yourself to a chemist the next day about analysing the contents of this bottle? On Sunday night, yes. I asked him what the cost of analysing it would be.
10364. President.] Did Mrs. Dean tell you how much Smith wanted to do it? Yes; she said 7s. 6d. or 10s.
10365. Did you then go to another chemist? Yes, and asked what it would cost.
10366. To what chemist did you go? To Mr. Guise, a chemist on North Shore.

10367. What did he say? He said he was doing something regarding the probate of his father's will, and he had not time to analyse the contents of the bottle. F. W. Gail.
10368. Did Mrs. Dean ask you to do that? She asked me if I could do it, and I said I could. 10 June, 1895.
10369. Could what? See what the white powder in the bottle was. She thought there was something wrong.
10370. When did she ask you that? On the Saturday afternoon. That was when she brought the bottle down to me.
10371. Mr. Meagher.] You received that bottle on Saturday afternoon at about 3 o'clock? Yes.
10372. And you never remember Mrs. Dean coming to your place before on such an errand as this, and on the next night you went to a chemist to see what he would charge to analyse the stuff in the bottle? Exactly so.
10373. Can you tell me if between the time that Mrs. Dean left in your custody that bottle on Saturday afternoon and the time of your going to the chemist if Mrs. Seymour called at your house? Yes; she called on that Saturday night.
10374. Did she come into the shop or into your house? I think she came there on business.
10375. Did she come into the shop or was she in the private portion of the house? She was in the private portion of the house.
10376. Did you not say she was on visiting terms with you? She came in on business.
10377. Would you mind telling me how long she remained on business on that Saturday night? I dare say about half an hour.
10378. Do you say she was in the private portion of your house? Yes.
10379. During that half hour on the Saturday night, when she was in your private house, did you say one word to her about the mysterious bottle her daughter had brought a few hours previously? No.
10380. Not a word? No.
10381. President.] Why didn't you say something about it;—did Mrs. Dean when she brought the bottle to you say anything to you about it, about the bottle, I mean, you know;—she said she wanted you to get it analysed, you remember; do you know why she said that? Yes, on account of it making her ill on the Saturday morning. All the neighbours up above had had a taste, and said it had a peculiar taste. On account of the taste she brought it down to me.
10382. Did she tell you anything at all about suspecting poison? No.
10383. Didn't she say she suspected anybody? She said she had her suspicions. She said to me, "Do you think it is poison?" I said, "No." She said that on account of it making her vomit.
10384. Did you, when her mother came, tell her anything that night about her daughter having been ill after drinking from the bottle? Not a word.
10385. Mr. Meagher.] And I think, at this particular time, you were on friendly terms with Dean? Yes.
10386. Do you remember if Dean called at your place on that Saturday night at all, or spoke to you at your shop? He spoke to me outside the shop.
10387. Although you were on friendly terms with Dean, did you on that Saturday night utter one single syllable to him about his wife being at your place two hours previously with this mysterious bottle? I told him his wife had been there, but I never mentioned the bottle.
10388. Have you been to "Brunswick Cottage" on business? Yes.
10389. How many times? About three times.
10390. Did you know Mrs. Lee? Yes; but not previous.
10391. Do you know where she moved from to "Brunswick Cottage"? No.
10392. Do you remember conveying the occupants of "Brunswick Cottage" to Macdonald-street, Paddington? Yes.
10393. Who would they be? Only Mrs. Lee.
10394. Was Mrs. Seymour there? She was.
10395. Do you remember young Small who was in your employ? I do.
10396. Can you give me the names of the females who were in the house at Macdonald-street, Paddington when you drove up with young Small? Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour.
10397. President.] Do you know what Mrs. Lee is at all? I do not.
10398. At "Brunswick Cottage" do you know what she was? No; I never saw her before, until I was ordered down there on the Monday morning to fetch some things away. I never saw her before then.
10399. Mr. Meagher.] Did you see Mrs. Lee at Dean's house upon any occasion? I believe she was there, but I did not see her.
10400. What caused you to believe that? Because I heard Mrs. Seymour say she was there.
10401. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was that during Mrs. Dean's illness? I believe it was the week after Dean's arrest. I am not certain. I know one night we were visiting up there, and a gentleman and lady came out as we went in. I heard afterwards it was Mrs. Lee.
10402. Mr. Meagher.] Do I understand you to say that the only time you heard that Mrs. Lee was at the house was after Dean had been taken into custody? Yes; that is all.
10403. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you know her at all? No; I did not then.
10404. Was some person coming out, and in passing say that was Mrs. Lee? Yes.
10405. Mr. Meagher.] Have you got Dean's bicycle? No.
10406. Where was that taken to? With the rest of the furniture, I suppose.
10407. Was that taken to Macdonald-street, Paddington? Yes.
10408. Do you remember removing from Macdonald-street, Paddington, Mrs. Lee's or Mrs. Seymour's furniture and effects to Collins-street, Surry Hills? Yes.
10409. To the house of Mrs. Johnstone? No; to a store somewhere.
10410. Whereabouts? It was stored in a shed opposite Mrs. Johnstone's.
10411. Who directed you to put it there? Mrs. Seymour, through Mrs. Dean's order.
10412. Did you ever hear of Mrs. Johnstone? Yes.
10413. Did you see her there? Yes.
10414. Was Mrs. Johnstone at the house in Macdonald-street? No.
10415. How many times have you seen her at "Brunswick Cottage"? Never.
10416. Is the shed opposite Mrs. Johnstone's house or in her yard? Opposite the house.
10417. Who owns the shed? I do not know. 10418.

- E. W. Gail
10 June, 1895.
10418. How long have you known Mrs. Johnstone? Only since the illness of Mrs. Dean.
10419. Where did you meet her, at Dean's house? Yes.
10420. Do you know that Mrs. Johnstone is a tenant of Detective Keating? I cannot say for certain.
10421. Is to-day the first time you have heard of it? Not exactly. I have heard reports to that effect.
10422. Sir Julian Salomons.] I will make inquiries; and if true I will make that admission for you.
10423. Mr. Meagher.] Do you know that the shed you put the furniture in is the property of Detective Keating? I do not know.
10424. But the person who told you to put it into the shed and who appeared to have sole control over the furniture was Mrs. Seymour? Yes, by Mrs. Dean's order.
10425. Did Mrs. Lee accompany you there? No.
10426. When did you last see Mrs. Lee during this moving of the furniture from Macdonald-street, Paddington, to Surry Hills? At Macdonald-street.
10427. Was that the last you saw of her? Yes.
10428. How much of Dean's furniture was put in the house at Macdonald-street? All.
10429. Do you know, as a matter of fact, that Mrs. Lee had no furniture, except what was on the time payment system and taken away; did you remove any furniture from "Brunswick Cottage" Macdonald-street? Yes.
10430. How many loads? One load.
10431. How many loads did you take from Dean's place? About four.
10432. How long did they live at Macdonald-street, Paddington, before you moved them again—from the day that you brought the furniture there when Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour were there—how long was it before you moved them again? Tuesday, the 16th of April, the first load went into the house, and the 1st of June was the day on which it came out.
10433. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did you know Dean before he was married? I did.
10434. Was he a friend of yours? Yes.
10435. Did you ever have a quarrel with him? No.
10436. Was it not through Dean that you know his wife and Mrs. Seymour? Yes.
10437. Up to this time have you ever had any dispute with Dean about any matter whatsoever? No, never.
10438. Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean, I believe, have been living for sometime with Mrs. Johnstone, have they not? They have.
10439. When was it you took the furniture and stored it at Surry Hills? Since Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour have been living with the Johnstone's. The 1st of June (Saturday) was the day I moved it.
10440. Have you had anything to do with it since? No.
10441. Do you mean that you moved it just about a week ago? Yes, on a Saturday afternoon; the Defence Committee saw me shifting it.
10442. Was all that you have done with this furniture done openly in the light of day? Yes.
10443. Do the Defence Committee live around you? Some of them do. I should like to know, too, what they did with the boy?
10444. President.] What do you mean by "doing with the boy"? The lad that was working for me. Since he gave his evidence here he has never shown up. I called at his mother's and asked her where he was on the Monday following the Thursday on which he was subpoenaed. He was over here on the Monday, and on the Tuesday there was no Commission. He did not come to work, and I went up and asked his mother where he was. She said he had to go up to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office. On the Wednesday we came over here, and I asked him where he had been. He said they had made a fool of him over here. On the Thursday we came over again, and he has not been near me since then. On the Friday, I think it was, he gave the evidence, and he has not been near me since. I went and asked his mother where he was, and she said she believed he was working in town.
10445. Sir Julian Salomons.] And he has never been back to you since? No.
10446. And you do not know where he is? No; he never told me he was going to leave, or anything else, or that he had got a better job. His conduct has put me to a great deal of inconvenience.
10447. Mr. Meagher.] Did you not threaten to put him under the Vagrant Act if he came over here to give evidence? No.
10448. In justice to the Defence Committee, I must state that if there is any doubt about this young man Small, the Committee itself will be able to show that they are not implicated in his removal or his non-appearance.
10449. President.] Why did you not tell Mrs. Seymour that Mrs. Dean had been down with this bottle? Well, to tell you the truth, I thought it was just a bit of a squabble between husband and wife, that things might come out all right, and that there was no use bothering.
10450. What did you think was in that bottle? Carbonate of soda.
10451. Why should you think that carbonate of soda being in the bottle should show that there had been some row between the husband and wife? Because I know that they had not been living very happily together.
10452. But why should carbonate of soda in a bottle have anything to do with them living unhappily? I cannot give you any definite reason, except that there must have been words between them.
10453. What has carbonate of soda to do with the whole question? That is how I account for the white powder in the bottle.
10454. Had that anything at all to do with the quarrel? I do not know that it had.
10455. Dr. Jones.] What do you suppose would be the result of carbonate of soda? I thought of that on account of her being sick.
10456. President.] What would be the effect of carbonate of soda if put into lemon-syrup—would not the whole thing go off? I cannot say.
10457. What would that have to do with any quarrel that may have taken place between them? I do not know.
10458. Did the carbonate of soda in the bottle make you think so? Well, I cannot give any definite reason, but that was the opinion I formed. There must have been some words up there between the husband and wife, because she told me she drank out of the bottle on the Friday night, and it did not make her ill; on Saturday morning she drank again out of the same bottle, and it made her ill.

10459. Did you think that he put in some stuff just to touch her up like? I do not know whether he put it in or not. P. W. Gail.
10460. Is not that what you thought? I cannot say. I cannot give you any definite reason. 10 June, 1895.
10461. I want to ask you one more question. On the Wednesday, which, I think, would be the 6th of March, were you at Dean's house? I was.
10462. In the morning? Yes.
10463. At about what time? Close on dinner-time.
10464. Are you quite sure? No; it would be about 10 in the morning.
10465. Was Mrs. Dean there? Yes.
10466. Was she in bed? Yes.
10467. Did you see her in bed? Yes.
10468. Was her mother there—in the room, I mean—at the time? Yes.
10469. Did Mrs. Seymour show you anything that morning? Yes; she showed me a chamber with vomit in it.
10470. Are you quite certain about that? Yes.
10471. Do you know what she showed it to you for? I suppose it was to show me how bad her daughter had been.
10472. Was anyone else there? I do not think so.
10473. Did anything else take place on this particular occasion except her showing you this vomit? No, not that I can remember. [Witness looked at notes.]
10474. Mr. Meagher.] I should like to know what those notes are? You can read them, Mr. Meagher. [Handed over.]
10475. President.] Did anything else take place except you seeing this vomit? No, not so far as I can recollect. The wife had been up previous to me in the morning, knowing that Mrs. Dean was ill, and she brought the baby down, and at the same time asked me to bring a block of ice. I took it up.
10476. Did you take the ice to Mrs. Dean? Yes. I did that, and then came back again.
10477. Dr. Manning.] Did you get this bottle of lemon syrup on the Saturday? Yes, sir.
10478. And you did not take it to Dr. Newmarch until 10 o'clock on Monday night? Yes; that was the time I took it.
10479. Why did you not take it before that time? Because I did not place any extra importance in it.
10480. Why did you take it to Dr. Newmarch so late as 10 o'clock at night on Monday? Through Dean calling on Monday night and saying his wife was so bad that he had to go down for the doctor again. That brought the fact of the bottle back to my mind, and I thought then that there must have been something more than what I thought at first. So now I delivered it up to Dr. Newmarch—for one thing to get it out of my possession, seeing that she asked me if she did not call back on Saturday would I deliver it to Dr. Newmarch, and I said yes, I would. I may explain that this by rights should have been taken round to Dr. Newmarch on Saturday.
10481. President.] Was that bottle left at your place by Mrs. Dean? Yes; by Mrs. Dean herself.
10482. Was she still there when that boy named Small and you came home together—was she waiting, that is what I want to know? No; I met her along the street.
10483. Was she at the house waiting? No.
10484. Have you read what Small swore? Yes; I read it in the papers.
10485. Is that right? No, sir; I met her along the street. We had been working together, and had been over to Sydney.
10486. Did not you come back home with Small? Yes, I did.
10487. And was not Mrs. Dean standing under the verandah of your house talking to your wife? No; she was 50 or 60 yards from the shop. She said, "I have been waiting for you for about an hour." Then she came up and told me about the bottle.
10488. Is that what you mean about it having been left at your place? Yes. She came back with me, and told me she had left it there.
10489. Dr. Jones.] Did you notice the appearance of the contents in the lemon-syrup bottle? Yes; there was only a sediment of white powder at the bottom.
10490. Did you notice the nature of the liquid—the colour and consistence? No; I did not do that.
10491. Did you notice it at all? No; I only saw there was a sediment.
10492. Dr. Todd.] Regarding this white sediment of which you speak, when you first saw Mrs. Dean, did she show you a bottle with white sediment at the bottom of it? Yes.
10493. How much white sediment was in the bottle? As near as I can recollect, just about enough to cover the bottom.
10494. Did you see all this distinctly? Yes.
10495. Quite distinctly? Yes.
10496. Had the bottle been resting at all when you saw it, or must Mrs. Dean have been carrying it? It must have been resting.
10497. Where did Mrs. Dean take it from when she showed it to you? I cannot say.
10498. Did she have it in her hand when she met you? No, she had left it at the house. I cannot say whether she took it off the table or from where she took it. It was in the kitchen when it was shown to me, and she asked me to have a drink of it. [Bottle produced.]
10499. Will you show me how much sediment there was in the bottom of the bottle; did it come to the top of that mark? No.
10500. How far did it come up the bottle? Just about as much as would cover round the bottom of it.
10501. Mr. Meagher.] Why did you take the bottle to Mr. Guise, the chemist, when Dr. Newmarch lived so much closer? I did not take the bottle to Mr. Guise. I went to him to know for how much he would make an analysis. I did not take the bottle to Guise.
10502. Why then did you go to Guise? To inquire his price of analysis.
10503. President.] Why did you bother about having it analysed at all; Mrs. Dean had told you what the price would be? She asked me to find out, if I could, what was in the bottle. She asked me if I knew a chemist that could do this. I said, "Yes, Mr. Guise, the chemist, would do it in a minute." She then asked me if I would see to it. She then said, "If I do not come back on Saturday night for the bottle again will you take it round to Dr. Newmarch." I said I would.

- F. W. Gail. 10504-5. Dr. Todd.] When Mrs. Dean spoke to you about that bottle what did she say about poisoning? She said to me, "Do you think it is poison?"
- 10 June, 1895. 10506. Did she ask you to drink of it? Yes, she asked me to have a drink of lemon-syrup.
10507. Although she thought it was poisoned herself? Not then. It was after the remarks that were passed about the bitter taste that she asked me what was in it.
10508. When you went to Guise did you ask anything at all about poison? Nothing.
10509. Will you swear that you said nothing to Guise about the poison? Yes, I will.
10510. Sir Julian Salomons.] Will you swear that? Yes. I asked Mr. Guise what he would charge to analyse a bottle containing lemon-syrup. He said he could not do it as he was doing something in reference to his father's will. I asked him what would be the price, and he replied that it would cost £2 or £3 to analyse the contents of that bottle.
10511. Dr. Todd.] Do you mean to convey that Mr. Guise showed no curiosity about the contents of that bottle? No.
10512. Did he ask you any questions? No.
10513. And you told him nothing? No.
10514. Did you go to Dean's house on that Wednesday morning with ice? I did.
10515. Did you go any other morning to the same place with ice? I went on the Thursday morning.
10516. Did you go on any other morning besides the Wednesday and the Thursday? I think I went on the Friday as well as the Thursday.
10517. Did you go there any other day of the week with ice? As far as I recollect, I did not.
10518. What time of the day did you go on the Friday? I think it was on the Friday night.
10519. Were you not there on Friday morning? No, I do not think I was.
10520. Will you swear that you were not there on Friday morning? I do not think I was there in the morning. I could tell you from my notes.
10521. Mr. Pilcher.] When did you make those notes? At the time.
10522. At what time? At different times.
- [Notes handed by Mr. Pilcher to the President.]
- Mr. Pilcher:* I should like the Members of the Commission to look at these.
10523. President.] It appears to me these notes were made as the occurrences took place, or have they been made since the Commission has been sitting here? No; the first time I started making notes was after reading Mrs. Hughes' evidence.
10524. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was the 7th of February on a Thursday? Yes.
10525. And was this on the following Sunday, the 10th? Yes.
10526. You were at the house on the 10th of February? Yes. We went up there between 3 and 4 in the afternoon. We had tea there, and we did not leave until between 8 and 9 at night.
10527. Dr. Todd.] In whose handwriting are these notes? My own.
10528. Had you any conversation with a Mr. Hobson about these notes? No.
10529. Do you know Mr. Hobson? Yes.
10530. Has he been to you in your shop? He has often been there.
10531. Was he there at about the time you began to write these notes? No.
10532. Did he supply you with any information about the dates on these notes? No, he did not.
10533. Will you swear that he did not? No; those dates are taken from my working day-book.
10534. What book? My van-work leads me all over the place. I know what I do day by day, and I copied these notes from the entries in my van-book.
10535. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you say you copied all of them or most of them? I say most of them.
10536. Do you know by your van-book where you were? Yes.
10537. Mr. Pilcher.] Did you lend those notes to Mr. Hobson? No; they never left my possession.
10538. Did you ever give him a copy of them? No.
10539. Dr. Todd.] On what days were you at Dean's house between Saturday the 2nd and the following Friday—were you there on Saturday the 2nd; that was the day of the lemon-syrup? No.
10540. President.] The day the bottle was left at your place? No; I was not.
10541. Dr. Todd.] Were you there on the next day, Sunday? Yes.
10542. At what time? About 4 o'clock.
10543. How long did you stay? About a quarter of an hour.
10544. Did you go there again on that day? No.
10545. Were you there on Monday, the 4th? No.
10546. On Tuesday, the 5th? I do not think so.
10547. You cannot remember? No.
10548. But you might have been there? Yes; I cannot remember anything about Tuesday, but I could tell you by my notes.
10549. Do you keep a day-book showing where you spend the evenings and go out to tea? No.
10550. Were you at Dean's house on Wednesday, the 6th of March? Yes, on the Wednesday morning.
10551. Mr. Pilcher.] Will you show me according to the notes the entry of the 2nd of March, or Sunday the 3rd of March, or Monday the 4th of March, or Tuesday the 5th of March;—show me, according to your notes, as produced to this Commission, the way you identify your dates? Here is Sunday, the 3rd.
- [Note produced.]
10552. Will you just read the entry? "Visited Dean with company, Sunday afternoon." There were two young ladies from Paddington, my wife, and myself. These two young ladies comprised surprise party which we gave on February the 14th.
10553. Sir Julian Salomons.] Then on this day, the 14th of February, these same two young ladies who were in the surprise party were at Dean's house? Yes.
10554. Did they go with you to call at Mr. Dean's? Yes; we all went up there to fetch the Deans down to tea, but Mrs. Dean was ill in bed, she could not come.
10555. Mr. Pilcher.] On Monday, the 4th, I see there is an entry on your notes which is as follows:—"Spoke to Dean about 9 o'clock at night; then took bottle to Dr. Newmarch"? Yes, that's so.
10556. Is that taken out of your books? Yes.
10557. Then there is Tuesday, the 5th, another entry—"Never went to Dean's;"—is that out of your van-book? No.

10558. Sir Julian Salomons.] Where did you say you were on Tuesday? I could easily tell you if I had my notes. E. W. Gail,
10 June, 1895.
- 10558½. Mr. Pilcher.] The next entry is Wednesday, the 6th: "Wife went up in morning, brought baby back, took ice up";—is that so? Exactly.
10559. "Took ice up and showed me tea, and took baby away that night"? Yes, that is on Wednesday.
10560. Then on Thursday: "Took ice in the morning"? Yes.
10561. "Hans and Mrs. Adye there in the kitchen"? Yes, exactly so.
10562. "Hans came down with me and wife, and I took food up"? I did, on Thursday night.
10563. That was on the Thursday night; you are sure? Yes.
10564. Then on Friday the entry is: "Sent boy up that day with tea, brought message back to come up. Dean arrested. Mrs. Adye was there; spoke of tea"? Yes, that is so.
10565. President.] What tea was that? That was the tea under the chest of drawers.
10566. I asked you if you remember if there was anything else shown to you on the Wednesday except this vomit, and you said, "No, there was not," and now you say you saw tea? Yes, there was.
10567. Mr. Pilcher.] Who showed it to you? Mrs. Seymour.
10568. President.] You told me before, that on the Wednesday morning Mrs. Seymour showed you some vomit? Yes, she did.
10569. I asked you if you were shown anything else and you said, no, that you had forgotten; now you appear to remember that you were shown some tea? Yes.
10570. Tell me what was said about the tea? She showed me the tea and told me how it was placed under the chest of drawers. She said Mrs. Dean was lying on the bed, and Mrs. Adye was in there. She showed me the tea, and then put it back under the chest of drawers.
10571. What for? She didn't say.
10572. What did she say to you about the tea? She said she was going to keep it.
10573. Did she say how the tea came to be put under the chest of drawers? She told me her daughter had put it there on the Sunday.
10574. When? On the Sunday. That she put the tea there after she told Dean to go for Mrs. Adye—she got up and put the tea underneath the chest of drawers.
10575. Mr. Pilcher.] Is there anything whatever about vomit there on that date—I mean on your memorandum? No; I remember that.
10576. The vomit was not there then? No; my notes are only a key.
10577. But you did not say that what took place on the Wednesday was according to the key? There are so many days that it is so difficult to remember. We had been going up there continually on business matters. I cannot remember everything.
10578. President.] I see Hans is mentioned there;—is that Hans Bach? Yes; that refers to the Thursday.
10579. What was he doing there on the Thursday? He was down stairs in the kitchen when I took the second block of ice up, so was Mrs. Adye.
10580. What was Hans Bach doing there? I cannot say; as far as I know he was on a visit. On second thoughts, I think he went up for his tools. He had left his tools at Dean's house. He came down in the cart and told me that he was going to start with Carnegie on the following Monday, and that he was going to Dean's to fetch his tools. He drove with me in the cart, and left his tools at my place until the Monday morning. I cannot say what else he was doing there.
10581. Mr. Pilcher.] Was Hans there on the Friday? I did not see him there at all, only on that day.
10582. What day do you mean? I was not there on the Friday morning, only on the Friday night.
10583. Is it a fact that either on the Thursday or Friday you were in Mrs. Dean's bedroom while she was ill in bed, and that you were tickling her feet, and she was laughing? No.
10584. Is there any truth at all in such a statement as that? No, none.
10585. It never occurred? Never.
10586. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is there any truth whatever in such a suggestion? No; it's the first word I have ever heard of it.
10587. President.] What day do you say? Any day at all.
10588. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did it occur on any day? Never in my life. I never heard a word spoken about Mrs. Dean out of place. What I mean, I never heard Mrs. Dean speak a word out of place.

[Witness withdrew.]

George Edward Rennie, Esq., M.D., sworn and examined:—

10589. Dr. Manning.] Did you see Mrs. Dean at the trial? Yes, sir.
10590. Did you notice anything wrong with her walk at that time? As she walked across the Court I noticed that she appeared to drag her leg slightly. G. E. Rennie,
Esq., M.D.
10 June, 1895.
10591. When did you next see her? On the 23rd of April, at the North Shore Hospital.
10592. What was she suffering from then? At the time I believed she was suffering from peripheral neuritis.
10593. In addition to the peripheral neuritis, what other symptoms were there? I noticed that her hair was coming out, and that she had a pigmentation in the upper part of the abdomen, and a deeper pigmentation about the nipples.
10594. When was the next time you saw her? The 9th of May was the next time.
10595. You saw her then in company with Dr. Jones and myself? Yes, I did.
10596. In what respect, on the 9th of May, did her condition differ from that on your previous visit? The symptoms of peripheral neuritis were more marked.
10597. Do you mean to say they were more marked on the 9th of May? Yes, they were.
10598. At the visit in April can you tell me how the reflexes were—were they exaggerated? Yes.
10599. On your visit in May were they quite lost? They were—that is, the knee jerks had gone.
10600. Is that what you would exactly expect in a case of peripheral neuritis? Yes.

- G. E. Rennie,
Esq., M.D.
10 June, 1895.
10601. And further, you stated you think they had recovered? Yes.
10602. Looking at the case at this time—that is, on the 9th of May—were the hairs still falling out; did the pigmentation still remain? Yes.
10603. Looking at these symptoms, especially the loss of the hair and the pigmentation of the skin, what do you consider would be the cause of the peripheral neuritis? I consider it was due to arsenical poisoning.
10604. On what ground do you base your conclusion? On the combination of symptoms, together with the previous history of the case.
10605. But what do you know of the history; I suppose you just simply took the history as it came? Yes.
10606. What would you say without knowing the history of the case? Well, I should consider first of all the combination of circumstances, and all the symptoms present, that would include particularly the falling out of the hair and the pigmentation. Those circumstances would be a sufficient indication for symptoms of peripheral neuritis.
10607. In that way do you differentiate this from peripheral neuritis due to influenza or any other cause? Yes.
10608. Did you search for indications of lead poisoning? I did.
10609. Did you look for indications of alcohol, or any other irritant which would cause peripheral neuritis? I did, but did not find any other cause.
10610. Have you seen Mrs. Dean since then? Yes, I saw her on Saturday.
10611. Is her hair still falling out? No, it is not coming out now.
10612. Did she show you any collection of hair she had got? No, she did not.
10613. I ask you that question because I understood that she had a big collection of hair? She did not show it to me.
10614. President.] Supposing that six days after traces of arsenic are found in the urine, what would that indicate as to the dose—would it indicate a large or a small dose? It would indicate a fairly large dose.
10615. What would it indicate? When I say a large dose I do not mean, of course, 5 or 10 grains, but 1 or 2 grains, which would be a large dose given medicinally.
10616. That is, if you gave it medicinally? Yes; that's what I mean.
10617. Do you know how much makes a fatal dose of arsenic—what is the minimum? Half a grain has proved fatal, I believe, in some cases.
10618. What, of arsenic? Yes. The average fatal dose is about 2 grains. Of course there are exceptional cases, where one might give a small dose or a large dose. The effect would depend upon the subject.
10619. Dr. Todd.] About this pigmentation, will you describe as accurately as you can the pigmentation that you noticed on the upper part of the abdomen—what, in the first place, was its size, and where was it? I am certain it was about the epigastrium. There were patches of pigmentation.
10620. Did you notice the number of patches? I could not tell you the number.
10621. Were there several patches about the epigastrium? Oh, yes.
10622. How large were they? About the size of a three-penny piece.
10623. And what colour were they? They were a brown colour.
10624. Was there any desquamation? No.
- 10625-6. Did you notice the condition of the hair follicles? No.
10627. Was each patch of a uniform colour? Yes.
10628. Did you examine the whole with the lens? No, I did not.
10629. Was it only around the nipples that you saw pigmentation—was that the only part? Yes; it was deeply pigmented about the nipples.
10630. Have you seen pigmentation due to arsenic? Yes, I have.
10631. What form did that pigmentation take? A case of psoriasis treated by arsenic.
10632. After that experience of yours in this case of psoriasis, are you able to say that the pigmentation in this particular case was due to arsenical poisoning? I do not say it was, but my opinion was formed from the fact that the pigmentation occurred at the spot where this woman told me herself that she had a scar or some other injury or abrasion of the skin from the stays.
10633. Do you mean to say that the pigmentation occurred on the portion of the woman's body where she told you she had some abrasion of the skin from the action of the stays? Yes; I mean to say where her skin had been rubbed by her stays.
10634. Did she show you the extent of the skin injury involved by the stays? No; I didn't ask her.
10635. When you say that these patches were about the epigastrium, will you inform us over what area the patches were distributed? I should think it was about $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch by $1\frac{1}{2}$ inch; I did not measure exactly.
10636. Was it the upper part of the epigastrium? Yes.
10637. Over the lower part of the sternum? It was just opposite the end of the sternum.
10638. So that if you were to put your finger on that spot would you touch bone? No; you would not, because it was below the sternum.
10639. That seems to be a very small area;—can you say how many patches there were in that small area? Five or six; I cannot tell you for certain.
10640. Would there be a hundred? No.
10641. Do you say that these would be about the size of a threepenny bit? That is about the size as far as I can remember.
10642. Is it not a fact that if a person had an abrasion of the skin due to an injury or continuous friction that this particular part becomes pigmented? No; I do not think so.
10643. Do you mean to say that a person does not get pigmented over parts of the body where there has been friction? I would not say they did not. I have no knowledge of it, unless there is some cause for pigmentation.
10644. Do you mean some cause besides the friction? Certainly.
10645. Are you of opinion that these patches could have been caused by the previous scars as the natural result of continuous friction? No; they could not have been.
10646. Do you know, from your experience, whether pigmentation follows acute arsenical poisoning from a single dose? I could not say.

10647. Do you know if it would follow two or three doses? I cannot speak from any experience of my own—I have not had many cases of arsenical poisoning. G. E. Rennie,
Esq., M.D.
10648. Do you say you cannot speak from your personal experience? No, I cannot. 10 June, 1895.
10649. Have you seen cases of arsenical poisoning? I have seen one or two.
10650. Have you seen all the cases that have occurred (say) at the Prince Alfred Hospital during the last two years? I have only seen one of them.
10651. Was there any pigmentation in that case? The person was only in the hospital for a day or two, and you could not expect to get pigmentation in that time.
10652. Have you ever seen a case of acute arsenical poisoning in which pigmentation followed? No.
10653. Did you ever read in any authorised medical work that pigmentation follows acute arsenical poisoning? I have read that it follows the administration of arsenic.
10654. Have you read any authoritative book which reports a definite case of pigmentation following acute arsenical poisoning? I do not know that I have read of such a thing.
10655. Are all the cases of pigmentation reported in the books, or have you read of any cases where arsenic had been administered for a long time? I could not say, but there have been cases where pigmentation has followed where arsenic was administered for some time.
10656. Would that be after a fairly large dose of arsenic had been taken into the system? Yes.
10657. Do you know anything about pigmentation following acute arsenical poisoning? No. What I mean is this: I have no personal knowledge of pigmentation following one large dose of arsenic. I admit I have seen cases of pigmentation following the prolonged use of arsenic, in which a fairly large amount of arsenic has been taken into the system.
10658. Coming to the matter of authorities, which authorities coincide with your experience? There are authorities that coincide with my experience.
10659. With what you said was your experience? Yes.
10660. If you saw pigmentation in a person, and you knew it was due to arsenic from other reasons, would you not conclude that it was due to the chronic use of arsenic? What do you mean by the chronic use of arsenic?
10661. Well a continuous use of it for weeks (say) in medical doses.
10662. President.] Arsenic-eating, for instance.
10663. Dr. Todd.] Let me ask you again; if you saw pigmentation on a person, and you knew this pigmentation was due to arsenic, would you not conclude that the arsenic had been administered for a considerable period; I am talking of arsenic medicinally applied—not arsenic eating? I do not think so, it would not necessarily be for a considerable period.
10664. Would you not conclude that it must either have been from a considerable number of large doses, or else a very great number of small doses? The answer to that question would depend upon the degree of pigmentation. If I found a whole body covered with patches of pigment, then I should consider that probably a large number of doses had been spread over a long time.
10665. Do you think that is of any diagnostic value at all, as to whether it is in one place or in several places over the whole body? Certainly.
10666. Is it not a fact that drugs like arsenic and silver produce pigmentation, and that this pigmentation is more or less nearly always a general pigmentation? No; I do not think so. It affects certain areas of the body.
10667. Is it the result of constitutional poisoning? Yes; but the pigmentation following the use of drugs is always more liable to affect parts of the body that have been irritated, and which are naturally the seats of the pigment.
10668. Have you ever looked at Mrs. Dean's vaccination marks? No.
10669. Did you look inside her mouth? Yes.
10670. Did you notice any sore places or any ulceration there? No.
10671. Do you say there was no ulceration? I do.
10672. Did you notice the condition of her teeth? I did.
10673. Did you ever hear, or read any authority, of any case of arsenical poisoning where the pigment was confined to a small area like that? This was not confined to a small area; the pigmentation was marked on the nipples as well.
10674. Did you ever read of a case in which the pigmentation from arsenical poisoning was confined to one of three places, the two areolæ and another patch (say) an inch by an inch and a half? I do not know that I ever read any description of the localisation of pigmentation in any case of arsenical poisoning.
10675. I suppose you have read text books on the subject? Yes; and I have read that there are areas more liable to pigmentation than others.
10676. Will you tell me what are the areas which you say are more liable to attack? The areolæ; those are parts where pigmentation naturally occurs.
10677. Do you say that is mentioned in these authoritative books that this particular area is more liable to attack than others? Yes.
10678. What are the other areas? If I may explain, you asked me if I had ever read of a description of the pigmentation following arsenical poisoning or following any case of acute arsenical poisoning. I said that I had never read a description of the localisation of a pigment after acute arsenical poisoning.
10679. Do you not say that you have read in books that certain areas are more liable to be attacked than others? There are situations where pigment naturally occurs, and parts of the skin where previous inflammation may have existed.
10680. Is that all? That is all, so far as I know.
10681. Have you ever read Crocker? Yes.
10682. Do you know what he says about the distribution of pigmentation in arsenical poisoning? I cannot remember what he says.
10683. If he says on page 292, "The face, axilla, abdomen, are first involved," would you dispute his assertion, would you say such an authority as this was wrong? No, I would not dispute anything that Crocker says on the subject.
10684. Will you tell me what authorities you have read on these matters? I cannot give you any special authority; but that is the general impression I have formed from my reading.

- G. E. Rennie, Esq., M.D.
10 June, 1895.
10685. Concerning this pigmentation about the nipples, do you know that this woman, Mrs. Dean, had a child some six months ago? Yes.
10686. Do you know that pigmentation is quite natural in such circumstances? Yes.
10687. And that it would last a considerable time? I do.
10688. Do you know that it might last a life-time? Yes.
10689. Can you be absolutely certain that these pigmentary spots which you saw on the abdomen were not due to any other cause? I can assign no other cause for them.
10690. Are you certain they were pigmentation? Yes.
10691. Are you certain that they were not due to some such disease as pityriasis versicolor? Yes.
10692. Now, about the falling out of the hair, I suppose you will fully admit that the hair will fall out of any woman's head from innumerable causes? I do not admit that.
10693. Does it not fall out after child-birth, regularly, more or less? It may.
10694. Does it not fall out of any woman almost after an acute illness? Not necessarily.
10695. But does it not very frequently do so? No.
10696. Is not the falling out of the hair a very common thing that women complain of? After a long and acute illness, I will admit that the hair does sometimes fall out.
10697. Is it not a common thing for the hair to fall out of women who have had babies after three or four months? No, not that I know of. I have never had that experience.
10698. Is it not a very common thing for the hair to fall out without the woman being apparently ill at all? Yes, if there is some cause for it.
10699. But do not women come to you as a doctor frequently and complain to you merely about their hair falling out? They may.
10700. But do they not? I do not think they come very frequently.
10701. President.] Do they come to a doctor if their hair is falling out? Yes, sometimes.
10702. Dr. Todd.] Is it not a fact that most women lose a great deal of hair at certain seasons of the year? I cannot say. I am not in the hair-dressing line.
10703. President.] Do you mean to tell me that they molt, the same as a bird? The hair falls out.
10704. Dr. Todd.] Can you tell me whether this pigmentation following on arsenic is due to a deposit of arsenic in the skin? I cannot say anything on that point.
10705. I will put it to you this way then: Supposing this woman had come to you from the country as a patient, that you had known nothing about her previous history, except what she told you concerning her symptoms. Supposing she had been a stranger concerning whom you had no facts, no accusations, and no charges, and that she was suffering from peripheral neuritis, and that you only knew she had had an acute illness some two months before, with vomiting and purging, could you then be able to swear if the word arsenic had never been mentioned to you, that her then condition was due to arsenical poisoning? I do not think anybody could swear anything under such circumstances.
10706. Do you say that nobody could swear to it? Not under the circumstances.
10707. Will you not admit that your opinion on this matter is biased by the belief that she had arsenic, as stated at the trial? Yes, it was found that she had had arsenic; that was established as a fact at the trial. Nobody doubted that she had had arsenic at all. It was founded on that, and the combination of circumstances confirmed me in my opinion.
10708. All that your evidence goes to show then is this: It is admitted that the woman had arsenic, you found she had peripheral neuritis, with falling out of the hair and a pigmentation of the skin, and this is taken as further proof that she had arsenic? Yes, that is the confirmation.
10709. Is that what your evidence amounts to? Yes, I do not say that is all.
10710. Plus what else then? The previous history.
10711. The fact of the admission of arsenic? Yes.
10712. The falling out of the hair and pigmentation together with the peripheral neuritis are merely confirmatory of your opinion? Yes, they are all confirmatory of course, but apart altogether from that, the combination of symptoms presented by this woman is almost diagnostic of arsenical poisoning.
10713. President.] Is that to say that if you knew nothing at all about arsenic, and that this woman was brought to your place deaf and dumb, you would say that she had arsenic?
10714. Sir Julian Salomons.] You would give it as your opinion that she had, I suppose? I would give it as my opinion, but I could not swear to it positively.
10715. Dr. Todd.] Concerning that spot on the abdomen, did the woman give you the history of that spot? No; I do not know that she told me until I noticed the pigmentation, and then she said that there had been some abrasion of the skin at this spot by her stays.
10716. Did she tell you how long that abrasion had been there? No.
10717. Concerning this visit of yours to Mrs. Dean on the 9th of May? Yes.
10718. Was that to the North Shore Hospital? Yes.
10719. Are you quite satisfied that the knee reflexes were abolished? Yes.
10720. Totally abolished? Yes.
10721. Is it not an extraordinary thing that these knee reflexes should be abolished on May the 9th and present to a normal extent on May the 17th? Who said they were present on May the 17th?
10722. I am asking you something about them being abolished on May the 9th and present to a normal extent on May the 17th, and I now ask you is not that an extraordinary thing? I say they were absent on May the 9th, and it would be an unusual occurrence for them to be present on the 17th.
10723. Would it be a very unusual occurrence? I say it would be an unusual occurrence.
10724. For them to return so soon? Yes, to return so soon.
- 10725-6. How did you first distinguish these reflexes? In the ordinary way.
10727. Was that by tapping the tendons? Yes; on Saturday I saw her, and they are not present even now in a normal condition.
10728. Mr. Pilcher.] Were you a witness in Buttner's case? No, I was not; I had nothing to do with it.
10729. Dr. Todd.] In what way are the reflexes abnormal now? They cannot be readily obtained. One could not be obtained at all, and the other I could only obtain by reinforcement.
10730. Sir Julian Salomons.] And was that on Saturday last? Yes.
10731. What was the day on which you first saw Mrs. Dean? It was on the 23rd of April.
10732. And then you examined her again last Saturday? Yes.

10733. In your opinion could the symptoms you have seen from the beginning to the end be reconciled with an attack of influenza? No. G. E. Rennie, Esq., M.D.

10734. The President.] Can there be any doubt that arsenic passed through the woman's body?

10735. Dr. Todd.] I would not like to make any statement.

10736. Mr. Pilcher.] That's impossible to say.

10737. Sir Julian Salomons, to witness.] If peripheral neuritis had appeared at or before the trial, would it have weakened or strengthened the assumption that the cause was arsenical poisoning? It would have strengthened the assumption certainly.

10738. Was it not after the Darlington trial that peripheral neuritis was developed? Yes.

10739. Something has been said before this Commission about the action of arsenic and the action of strychnine;—have they not a different effect upon the pulse? Yes.

10740. That is, as regards the pulse itself, the strychnine will have a counteracting tendency, or in other words arsenic will have an opposite effect? Yes, the opposite effect.

10742. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you know with what effect? He observed the tetanizing properties of strychnine counteracted by arsenic.

10743. Dr. Todd.] Where are the details of this case given? In Taylor's Principles and Practice of Medical Jurisprudence, vol. 1, page 499.

10744. Have you got particulars of the case? I have not been able to get hold of the original case.

10745. Do you know that Vella wrote it? It is quoted, as I say, in Taylor's Principles and Practice of Medical Jurisprudence.

In Italy the acqua di Perugia was, according to tradition, a secret compound prepared by rubbing white arsenic into the flesh of a pig, and collecting the liquid which dropped from the flesh. It is possible the activity of the arsenic was increased, both by the formation of readily absorbable compounds of arsenic with the inorganic alkalies, and by the formation of arsenical bases. The same object may have been in view in preparing acqua Toffana, with the addition, as is known, of the juice of the ivy-leaved broad flax (Linaria cymbalaria). Selmi and Vella are of opinion that in the acqua di Perugia, the concealment of the action of the arsenic on the one hand, and also of the tetanizing poisons on the other, was accomplished; but this opinion, which is based upon an observation of Vella, in a case of poisoning with arsenic and strychnine, does not accord with observations made on warm-blooded animals with a mixture of arsenite of potassium and strychnine, whereby the tetanizing action of strychnine was not prevented, provided the alkaloid was given in poisonous doses.

And this is recorded as an Italian authority? Yes, it is recorded there.

10747. Mr. Pilcher.] You were asked whether the existence of this peripheral neuritis, following after the trial, was not confirmation that there had been arsenical poisoning by somebody in some form, and you said, "Yes";—is that so? It strengthened the assumption.

10748. Were you at the trial? Yes.

10749–50. And was not the question there, who administered the arsenic? Of course; that was the main point of the trial.

10751. Dr. Jones.] Do any of the authorities with which you are acquainted state that pigmentation of the skin does not follow a single poisonous dose of arsenic? None of them that I know of.

[Witness withdrew.]

William Shaw Montgomery sworn and examined:—

10752. Sir Julian Salomons.] What are you? I am a messenger at the Australian Joint Stock Bank.

10753. Do you reside at 141, Kippax-street? Yes.

10754. How long have you known Mary Dean? Upwards of three years.

10755. Where did you see her? As a neighbour.

10756. Did you ever see or hear anything against her character? Nothing whatever.

10757. I believe you do not know Mrs. Seymour? I do not.

10758. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you say you are a messenger at the Australian Joint Stock Bank? Yes.

10759. Where do you say you have seen Mary Dean on the occasions you have seen her? Just casually in the street.

10760. Do you mean just passing along the street? Yes.

10761. Are those the only opportunities you have had of forming an opinion of her? That's true.

10762. I suppose you have seen her in the day-time principally, or sometimes in the evening? Yes.

10763. Was she alone, or with somebody else? I generally met her alone.

10764. Do you know where Mrs. Seymour is living now? I could not swear where she is living.

10765. Do you know Mrs. Johnson? I know her very well.

10766. Whose house is she living in—do you know that? I cannot tell you who is the landlord.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Mary Corben sworn and examined:—

10767. Sir Julian Salomons.] You live, I believe, in Riley-street, No. 368? Yes.

10768. With your husband? Yes.

10769. How long have you been living in that house? Thirty-six years.

10770. How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean, formerly Miss Seymour? I first heard of Mrs. Seymour fourteen or fifteen years ago as a widow who had opened a boarding-house to keep herself and her one child.

10771.

G. E. Rennie,
Esq., M.D.
10 June, 1895.

W. S.
Montgomery.
10 June, 1895.

Mrs.
M. Corben.
10 June, 1895.

Mrs.
M. Corben,
10 June, 1895.

10771. Have you known Miss Seymour for a number of years—when she was Miss Seymour? Yes.
 10772. And you saw how she was brought up? Yes.
 10773. How was she brought up, or how did she appear to be brought up? I knew her first as a little child going to school; after she grew up to be a young woman I often saw her, even more frequently than before, for she then went to a ladies' school opposite my house to learn music.
 10774. How did she conduct herself? She always conducted herself in a most respectable manner. She was a well-behaved girl, well conducted in every respect.
 10775. Did you ever know her in your life, or see her, enter Madame Rose's house? I never did.
 10776. I suppose you have heard that there is an improper house in that neighbourhood? Yes.
 10777. Did you ever hear of her visiting that house? No.
 10778. Have you ever heard anything against her character or reputation in any way? I never heard anyone speak against Mary Seymour's character in my life.
 10779. And you have known her for about fourteen years? Yes.
 10780. Do you know anything against Mrs. Seymour? I never heard anything against her from the time she came to live there, and I saw her nearly every day.
 10781. Having seen her nearly every day, what would you say of her? A clean, hard-working, civil, obliging woman.
 10782. Have you dealt at the shop? Yes. I have been in the shop. I did not go often as a rule. I frequently sent for goods.
 10783. And you dealt at the shop? Yes, and I have sometimes sent a woman, and sometimes went myself.
 10784. Mr. Pilcher.] I suppose I may fairly assume that you have not been watching to see who goes to Madame Rose's house? No; I don't know anything at all about.
 10785. Not having watched the house, therefore you cannot say who goes there and who does not? That's it; I cannot say.
 10786. If you were looking from your house, could you see who goes to Madame Rose's? No, I could not see them go to the door. I could see them go towards the door.
 10787. You live in Riley-street, do you not? Yes.
 10788. And the entrance to Madame Rose's is in Collins-street? Yes.
 10789. With regard to Mrs. Seymour, have you spoken to her at all? Yes.
 10790. When you have spoken to her, where have you been at the time of the conversation? I have spoken to her in her shop. If I met her in the street, I should not pass her but speak to her, recognise her; nothing more than that.
 10791. With reference to Mary Dean, have you spoken to her in just the same way? Yes.
 10792. Your experience of her has been casually passing her in the street? Yes; and I have spoken to her and seen her in the shop.
 10793. Just the same as you would to Mrs. Seymour when you went to purchase articles? Yes.
 10794. Did you always find Mary Dean civil? Yes; she was always civil and obliging.
 10795. Then you would pay her for what you got? Yes; that is what would usually occur in the shop.
 10796. Did you speak to Mary Seymour more than to say "Good morning," or something to that effect, just to pass the compliments of the day? No; never.
 10797. Simply said "Good morning" to her, and she would return the compliment? Yes; that's it.
 10798. And that would be in the street or in the shop? Yes.
 10799. And is that the whole of your conversation with and experience of these two people? Yes; that is all.

[Witness withdrew.]

John Robert Campbell sworn and examined:—

J. R.
Campbell,
10 June, 1895.

10800. Sir Julian Salomons.] You live in Norton-street, I believe? Yes, Norton-street.
 10801. With your mother? Yes.
 10802. President.] What are you? Carpenter and joiner.
 10803. Sir Julian Salomons.] How many years have you known Mrs. Seymour and her daughter, now Mrs. Dean? About fourteen or fifteen.
 10804. Do you know a house occupied by Madame Rose, situated opposite Mrs. Seymour's shop? Yes.
 10805. Have you ever in your life seen Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean, go to that house? No.
 10806. Have you ever been to the shop? No; I have passed it repeatedly, backwards and forwards.
 10807. Have you ever seen anything wrong in Mary Dean's character or conduct, or heard anything wrong about her at any time? No.
 10808. You passed the shop repeatedly? Yes.
 10809. Have you seen Mrs. Seymour going over to Madame Rose's frequently? Yes, I have.
 10810. But never the daughter? Never.
 10811. Going from the shop to Madame Rose's, that is what I mean? Yes, I understand.
 10812. Have you seen Mrs. Seymour going over frequently? Yes.
 10813. President.] With vegetables, or what? I cannot tell; I never took any notice if she had anything or not in her hand.
 10814. Sir Julian Salomons.] But you never in your life saw the daughter going there? No.
 10815. Did you ever see or hear anything against the character of Mary Seymour? I never saw or heard anything.
 10816. Mr. Pilcher.] You were asked a minute ago if you had ever seen or heard anything detrimental to Miss Seymour;—what was your answer? I had said I had never seen anything wrong.
 10817. What do you mean by saying you had never seen anything? I have never seen anything personally wrong.
 10818. Do you mean to say you have heard something, then? I have heard something, that she went there.
 10819. Went where? That she went to Madame Rose's house.
 10820. Who told you that? A young man named Newcombe, and also Tommy Sunners.
 10821. Anybody else? I have heard lots of conversation about it.

10822.

10822. Have other people as well told you that they have seen Mary Seymour going in to Madame Rose's? Yes.

J. R.
Campbell.

10 June, 1895.

10823. Do you mean from your own observation and conversation with other people, that it was common talk that Mary Seymour did go to Madame Rose's? Well, it was not common talk, but I have heard it from others; but I cannot say if it was correct.

10824. I understood you to say you heard it from these two, Newcombe and Sunners? Yes.

10825. And then I understood you to say that you had heard it from others? Yes.

10826. Who were the others? Well, one is a slipper-maker who works for Solomons, in Riley-street.

10827. Do you know what his name is? No, I don't remember his name. I know he is a man who was working for Solomons in Riley-street, and he said he had seen her go in there.

10828. Do you know his name? It was either Stone or Ward, I think.

10829. Is there anybody else you recollect? No; I think that's about all.

10830. Speaking of your personal knowledge, have you ever seen Mary Seymour going into Madame Rose's house? No.

10831. I suppose your observation of her has been simply meeting her in the street? Yes.

10832. As far as you know her as a girl, it was by meeting her in the street as you were going along and she was coming along? Yes. She was living four doors from Norton-street before they moved into Riley-street. I have known her from a young girl, and seen her growing up.

10833. Your own personal knowledge of her does not extend to having met her in any house anywhere? No; never.

10834. And any opportunity you had of judging of her character was afforded you when passing her in the street? Yes.

10835. Either as a child or a young woman? Yes.

10836. Did you know her to speak to? I don't know; I may have spoken to her.

10837. Just to give her the time of day, or say "Good morning"? No; I didn't do that much.

10838. Do you know anything at all about the mother, except meeting her in the street;—did you not say you have not been to the shop? I have been in the shop.

10839. Have you ever been in the house, or met her in her own house—Mrs. Seymour, I mean? No; I have never been in the house.

10840. Has your observation been when passing her in the streets? Yes, and seeing her in the shop.

10841. And going across to Madame Rose's? Yes.

10842. Can you say whether she had vegetables with her or not when she was going over to Madame Rose's? No; I could not say.

10843. I suppose your attention was never drawn to it? No.

10844. And I suppose you did not consider it important enough to know what she went for? No, but if I had noticed anything about Mrs. Dean I should have remembered it.

10845. But meeting her in the street casually, there was nothing particular for you to notice? No, but you could see what company she was in.

10846. Did you ever see her in the company of a girl known as Rita? No.

10847. Did you know anything at all about this girl they called Rita;—was there such a girl? I saw a girl pointed out to me, and was told it was Rita.

10848. Where was she pointed out to you? When she was passing in Crown-street.

10849. Who was she pointed out by;—somebody you were with? Yes, some of my chaps.

10850. Was she a good-looking girl? She seemed to be good-looking enough.

10851. So she was pointed out to you by some of your chaps, was she? Yes.

10852. That was in Crown-street? Yes.

10853. Was she walking along when you saw her? Yes.

10854. Did you know a girl named Ada Thompson? Not by name. I could not say that I know her at all.

10855. Have you ever had a girl pointed out named Amy Bennett? No.

10856. Has a girl named Dora been pointed out to you by the chaps? No.

10857. You do not know either of them? No; I know nothing at all about them.

10858. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did that youth Newcombe mention to you what he had seen since this unfortunate occurrence arose? Yes.

10859. It is since then that he has spoken to you about it? Yes.

10860. Also the other one, Sunners, did he speak to you on this subject since this inquiry commenced? Yes.

10861. All that has been told you about Mrs. Dean going to Madame Rose's has been told since this inquiry began? Yes.

10862. You, personally, never saw anything of the kind? No.

10863. And this is only just what is told you? Yes.

10864. I suppose it was since it became anybody's business to know what sort of a character Mrs. Dean was? I do not know anything about that.

10865. I suppose there was a time when the character of Mrs. Dean had nothing at all to do with it, and it was nobody's business to know what sort of a character she was? No; but I never saw anything improper.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Lydia Ruth Gail sworn and examined:—

10866. Sir Julian Salomons.] What is your name? Lydia Ruth Gail.

10867. Are you the wife of Gail, the proprietor of the van who removed and stored furniture? Yes.

10868. I believe you were at Mrs. Dean's house on Sunday, the 3rd of March? Yes, I was.

10869. What time in the day was it, or about? About 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

10870. Did you see Mrs. Dean? Yes.

10871. Did you see anything in the way of things to eat and drink? Yes, I was shown some toast.

10872. President.] What did they show you the toast for? Mrs. Dean said that her husband had brought her some tea and toast for breakfast.

10873. Sir Julian Salomons.] Did she tell you anything about the tea? Yes.

10874.

Mrs.
L. R. Gail.
10 June, 1895.

Mrs.
L. R. Gail.
10 June, 1895.

10874. And what did she say? She said she didn't like the look of it, and that she got her husband to go for Mrs. Ayle, and while he was gone she got out of bed and put the tea in a tumbler and placed it under the chest of drawers, and said, "It is under the chest of drawers." I did not see it.
10875. Are you sure, quite sure, she told you that on this occasion? Yes, I am positive.
10876. What did she tell you? She said she didn't like the look of that tea.
10877. Did she tell you anything about what she noticed, the colour of the tea, or anything of that kind? She said she did not like the look of it, as there were little white lumps clinging to it.
10878. Were you examined at the trial at Darlinghurst? Yes.
10879. What you have stated now you were not asked, and did not state then? No.
10880. Did you before you were examined at the trial make any statement to the police? I did.
10881. To Sergeant Brennan? Yes.
10882. Was that about the end of March? I am not quite sure when it was.
10883. Was it before or after the trial at Darlinghurst? I am not quite positive.
10884. Are you positive you did make a statement to Sergeant Brennan? Yes.
10885. Are you positive too that what you have stated now you did not state at the trial? No; I did not. The answer I have given to-day was overruled somehow then. There was something asked me at the trial, but the answer was objected to.
10886. President.] That was the statement about what Mrs. Dean said concerning the tea to you? Yes.
10887. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you state positively that you did not make that statement at the trial? I only spoke about the toast.
10888. Do you state positively that it is true what you are stating now? Yes.
10889. It has been stated by your husband that you gave Mr. and Mrs. Dean a surprise party? Yes; we did.
10890. Were you on good terms with Mr. and Mrs. Dean? Yes.
10891. You visited their house? Yes.
10892. And they visited yours? Yes.
10893. Did you know Dean before he was married? Yes; and Dean introduced me to his wife. I knew Dean first, then Mrs. Dean.
10894. Was it through Dean that you know Mrs. Dean? Yes. He was at the house on the Wednesday before he was arrested on the Friday.
10895. Did you ever have any disagreement with him? No. He was at our house on the Wednesday before he was arrested, and he left on perfectly good terms.
10896. Mr. Pilcher.] Is this your writing [letter produced]? It is not.
10897. Is it anything like it? No; I don't think it is.
10898. Will you be good enough to give me a specimen of your writing? [Witness wrote on a sheet of official Commission paper, "Is it not likely that the man."]
10899. Now write a line below? "Just a line begging you to forgive me."
10900. Now write another sentence? "The doctor gave me a prescription, and I took it to the dispenser."
10901. Now write? "Tuesday, April the 28th, 1885."
- [Writing handed to Mr. Pilcher.]
10902. You admit you did not say a word about this alleged conversation at the trial, the conversation I mean respecting the tea and toast? I told them about the toast.
10903. Do you say you did not say a word about the alleged conversation with Mrs. Dean when you were in the witness-box at Darlinghurst? No, I didn't get the chance.
- Mr. Wade:* I asked the question, but it was objected to.
10904. Mr. Pilcher.] What day is this that you are speaking of when you say "Mrs. Dean did not show you the tea, but told you something"? Sunday, the 3rd of March.

[Witness withdrew.]

George Charles Westgarth sworn and examined:—

G. C.
Westgarth.
10 June, 1895.

10905. President.] What is your name? George Charles Westgarth.
10906. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are a solicitor of the Supreme Court of this Colony, I believe? I am.
10907. Did you know Dean—the person who has been found guilty of this grave offence? Yes; as the captain of one of the North Shore ferry boats.
10908. You have travelled in the boat with him? Yes, I have.
10909. Do you remember about January of this year Dean asking you if he could obtain a divorce? I remember either one night of last year or the beginning of this year, I cannot state the particular time, him speaking to me with reference to a divorce. It was somewhere about the end of last year or the beginning of this that going over one night he said, as far as I can recollect—he made an inquiry from me, as to whether a divorce could be obtained by mutual consent.
10910. What time was that? After 12 o'clock at night.
10911. What reply did you give him? I said no.
10912. I believe you were subpoenaed by the Crown? Yes; I was subpoenaed by the Crown to-day.
10913. You have not volunteered any information to the Crown? No; I was surprised at receiving the subpoena.
10914. Was that the whole of the conversation between you and Dean;—what else did he ask you? He spoke to me on another occasion, but it was about something to the same effect.
10915. When was that? About the same time.
10916. About the same matter? Yes; something about a divorce. I did not pay much attention to it.
10917. He knew you were Mr. Westgarth? Yes.
10918. And that you were a solicitor? Yes; I have no doubt about it.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mary Dean sworn and examined :—

10919. Dr. Manning.] Mrs. Dean, had you good health up to the time of your marriage? Yes; always.
 10920. You had no illness at all? No.
 10921. None that you remember? No.
 10922. How did you first become acquainted with George Dean? I met him at a picnic.
 10923. How often did he go to see you in Riley-street? I don't remember how many times, but continually through the week.
 10924. At what hours did he come? Any hour.
 10925. Did he come into the house? Yes; always.
 10926. Did he ever have his meals there? Sometimes.
 10927. Did he ever tell you anything of his past life? Yes; something about his people—his mother.
 10928. Did he ever tell you what he was employed at? He said he was on a station at one time.
 10929. As what? A tar-boy.
 10930. In the sheep-shed? Yes.
 10931. Did he tell you about being employed in any other way? Yes; as a blacksmith.
 10932. Did he ever tell you anything about his step-brother being on board the "Vernon"? Yes.
 10933. You were ill a few days after your confinement, were you not? Yes.
 10934. What was the matter with you then? The doctor gave me some morphia to make me sleep.
 10935. And what happened to you then? After taking it I started vomiting.
 10936. Dr. Jones.] Was it two days after;—can you fix the date? It was not long after I took it. It was four or five days after my confinement.
 10937. Had you any purging at that time? I do not think so.
 10938. How many doses of this morphia did you take? I took one dose at night, and that made me very ill; and Mr. Dean gave me another dose in the morning.
 10939. Then the doctor came to see you? Yes.
 10940. And changed the medicine? Yes.
 10941. And you took no more of that? No.
 10942. Your mother was not there at that time? No.
 10943. Was there any illness between that time and the time you took the groats? I do not think so.
 10944. Can you fix the date that you took the groats? I think it was on the 13th of January.
 10945. Had the doctor ceased to attend you at that time? Yes.
 10946. When did he cease to attend you? I do not remember.
 10947. But he had ceased to attend you at that time? Yes.
 10948. What was the nature of that illness? Purging and vomiting.
 10949. Were there any other symptoms? I do not think so, not of that illness.
 10950. There were no others at all? I do not think so.
 10951. Did the doctor send you any medicine for it? Yes; on the Monday he prescribed.
 10952. He prescribed without coming to see you? Yes.
 10953. When did he prescribe the tonic for you? While he was attending me.
 10954. That was before this illness? Yes.
 10955. Did you go on taking it after this illness with the groats? No, I did not take it.
 10956. You do not know when you left off taking that tonic? I do not remember.
 10957. Where was this tonic kept after you ceased to take it? It was kept on the chest of drawers in my bedroom.
 10958. When was it that Dean asked you to recommence taking it? I do not remember. He was always asking me to take it, because I had no appetite. When I did not eat food he asked me to take it.
 10959. How many times did he ask you to take it? Two or three times.
 10960. Did he press it very much? No.
 10961. Were you quite well from the time you took the groats up to the time you took the lemon-syrup? Yes. On two occasions I was purged.
 10962. Did you vomit too? I do not think so, not at the time of the purging.
 10963. Was there any cause for this purging? Once was after tea and once was after breakfast.
 10964. There was no vomiting at that time? No; Miss Adye was present both times.
 10965. There was no cause for it—nothing particular? I do not think so.
 10966. Were you nursing the baby at the time you took the groats? Yes.
 10967. Was the baby ill? I do not think so.
 10968. How often did you see your mother between the time she left the house and the time she came back on the 4th of March, after your confinement? I used to see her nearly every week.
 10969. Where did you see her? Going to Mrs. Lee's on three or four occasions, and I used to go to Mrs. Adye's and see her there.
 10970. Did she come to your house at any time? No.
 10971. Neither in the day-time nor in the night-time? No, not till Monday night, the 4th of March.
 10972. Why did she not come to your house? Because she was forbidden to come.
 10973. Did you go to the theatre with your mother during that time? No, to the circus.
 10974. Did you see her once a week, or how many times a week did you see her? I do not remember.
 10975. You were in frequent communication with her the whole time? Yes.
 10976. Where did you keep the lemon-syrup? On the side-board.
 10977. Till when? Friday night.
 10978. Were you taking it on Friday night? I had a drink on Friday night.
 10979. Where did you move it to? I took it to the kitchen.
 10980. You did not move it intentionally? Oh, no.
 10981. Was that the only time it had been left in the kitchen? No, it had been in the kitchen at other times.
 10982. What time did you get up on this Saturday morning, the 2nd of March? About a quarter to 7 o'clock.
 10983. Did you suckle the baby before getting up? Yes, I had given it a drink; I suckled it through the night.

Mrs.
M. Dean,
10 June, 1895.

- Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1895.
10984. Did you suckle it in the morning? Yes.
10985. What time was it you took the lemon-syrup? Between 7 and half-past 7 o'clock. I do not know the exact time.
10986. How soon was it after you suckled the baby? I heard the baby cry and went up-stairs and gave her a drink.
10987. Can you fix the time at all? It was before 8, about a quarter to 8 as nearly as I can remember.
10988. You drank the lemon-syrup between 7 and half-past 7, and you suckled the baby sometime before 8? Yes.
10989. Were you at all ill after taking this lemon-syrup? No, I was not.
10990. No illness at all? No.
10991. No symptoms of any sort or kind? Only after breakfast.
10992. What time was that? After 8 o'clock, about twenty minutes past 8.
10993. Then what happened? The baby took convulsions.
10994. Before you were taken ill? Yes, I think it was. I do not remember whether it was after I was ill or before I was ill.
10995. Try and remember now? I do not remember.
10996. You cannot remember? No.
10997. You cannot remember whether the baby took convulsions first, or whether you were taken ill first? I cannot remember.
10998. Can you describe the illness of the baby? She was asleep, and when I went up-stairs she was black in the face, and I wrapped her in a shawl and took her to Mrs. Weynton's.
10999. Were the limbs drawn up? Mrs. Weynton said it was a touch of convulsions.
11000. Dr. Jones.] Was she foaming at the mouth? No.
11001. Was the body stiff? She was lying quite still.
11002. The body was not stiff? No.
11003. Dr. Manning.] How many mouthfuls of this lemon-syrup did you take? Two or three.
11004. Did you take two or three, or three or four? It was so bitter I did not take much of it.
11005. Can you fix the quantity at all? As near as I can remember, it was two or three.
11006. You cannot tell us beyond two or three mouthfuls? No.
11007. About your own illness;—in what way were you ill? Vomiting and purging.
11008. That came on after breakfast? Yes.
11009. What did you have for breakfast? A cup of tea and some bread and butter.
11010. Who got the tea? I made the tea.
11011. You made the tea yourself? Yes.
11012. How often did you vomit? I do not exactly remember how many times.
11013. How often were you purged? I do not remember.
11014. Did you go to the closet? No.
11015. You used some utensil indoors? Yes.
11016. How long did this illness last? It ceased before dinner.
11017. Were you frequently sick? I know I was vomiting, but I cannot say how many times.
11018. What did you vomit into? Out in the back in the yard.
11019. Do you remember seeing Mr. Thompson on that day? Yes.
11020. What time did you see him? At night.
11021. Not during the day? No.
11022. You did not see him about 12 o'clock? No.
11023. Did he come to your house to ask you something about a bicycle? Yes, I remember now.
11024. What time was that? I do not remember what time it was.
11025. Were you pretty well at that time? Yes, I answered the door.
11026. Did you talk to him? Yes.
11027. He came back between 1 and 2? Yes.
11028. You remember that? Yes.
11029. You are quite sure? Yes.
11030. And up to dinner-time you were pretty well? Yes, except that my head was bad.
11031. The vomiting and purging were all gone? Yes, there was nothing left but a headache.
11032. You went out, did you not? Yes, in the afternoon.
11033. And saw several of your neighbours? Yes.
11034. What time did your husband come home on Saturday morning? I do not know what time it was.
11035. You do not remember what time it was? No.
11036. Did he see you ill? I do not think so.
11037. He did not? No.
11038. Did you tell him you were ill? He went up to bed.
11039. Did you tell him when he got up? I told him at night-time I was ill. I do not think he got up till tea-time.
11040. Do you remember what time you did tell him you were ill? No; it was at tea-time. I don't remember what time.
11041. Did you tell him what made you ill? No.
11042. You did not tell him what made you ill? No.
11043. You did not tell him at all what you thought made you ill? No.
11044. Why not? I did not know the nature of the illness myself.
11045. Did you not suspect it was the lemon-syrup? No, I did not.
11046. Why did you take it down to the neighbour's then? To see if they could taste a bitter taste.
11047. Had you not some suspicion that it was that which made you ill? No.
11048. You took it to the chemist's as well? Yes.
11049. And you asked that it might be taken to Dr. Newmarch? Yes.
11050. You did not tell your husband at all what you suspected? No.
11051. But you did suspect that the syrup made you ill? That was the only thing I had taken.

Mrs.
M. Dean,
10 June, 1895.

11052. President.] When you tasted that the lemon-syrup was bitter, didn't you think that there was something wrong with it? I thought it was the same taste as I had tasted in the beef-tea.
11053. That is why you took it to the chemist's? Yes, to see what had been put into it.
11054. And left it at Gail's to be taken to Dr. Newmarch? Yes.
11055. You thought something was wrong? Yes; that something was put into it.
11056. Who did you think had put that something into it? I do not know.
11057. Do you think your husband had put it in? There was nobody else in the house.
11058. Did you think so? Yes.
11059. You did not say anything to him about it? No.
11060. Dr. Jones.] Did you notice anything unusual in the appearance of the lemon-syrup? No; not till the afternoon.
11061. But in the morning? No.
11062. Was it just as you left it? Exactly the same.
11063. What place does the closet occupy with regard to the house? It is at the bottom of the yard.
11064. Dr. Manning.] When did you go to bed on that night? After tea.
11065. Soon after tea? Yes; soon after tea.
11066. What did you take before you went to bed? I do not remember taking anything before going to bed.
11067. Did not you take something in the course of that evening? Some tea, that was all.
11068. Who made the tea? I did.
11069. Was there no porter taken on that evening? That was brought after I had gone to bed.
11070. You drank some? Yes.
11071. Did you take some milk the same evening? I do not think so.
11072. Are you sure about the milk? No; I do not think I took any.
11073. After you had gone to bed? No; I only had the porter.
11074. You nursed the baby in the course of the afternoon again? Yes.
11075. You nursed it when you were at Mrs. Adye's? Yes.
11076. And afterwards? Yes.
11077. And it remained quite well? Yes, it seemed just the same;—it was sick in the morning.
11078. But after that it was quite well during the rest of the day? I was nursing her in the morning, but she did not seem herself.
11079. You noticed no difference in the afternoon to any other day? No, I do not think so.
11080. Now we will go to the Sunday;—you remember it, the next day? Yes.
11081. Were you in bed all day? Yes.
11082. Was there any vomiting or purging on the Sunday? No, not on the Sunday.
11083. None? No.
11084. In what way were you ill? I had dreadful bad pains in my head.
11085. Any other illness? No.
11086. Whom did you see on that day, except Mrs. Adye? Mrs. Gail.
11087. President.] As I understand, Mrs. Dean, your husband brought you some tea? Yes.
11088. On the Sunday morning? Yes.
11089. First of all you say some porter, which he did not give you? No.
11090. There was some powder in the bottom of the glass? Yes.
11091. Can you understand why that was? I did not know what it was.
11092. You did not know what it was? No.
11093. He gave you some tea? Yes.
11094. You have described that before? Yes.
11095. You asked him to go to Mrs. Adye's, and while he was away you poured some into a tumbler and put it under the chest of drawers? Yes.
11096. What did you say to Mrs. Adye? That Mr. Dean brought me some tea and toast, and about the porter.
11097. What did you tell her about the tea? What I have before said.
11098. Did she taste it? Yes, she did; she sipped it.
11099. And she noticed nothing wrong with it? She said there was no taste whatever.
11100. Are you sure? Yes, positive; she said it tasted all right.
11101. Did she ask you to have some? No, she told me not to drink it.
11102. Did she tell you it was all right and ask you, "Why don't you drink it?" Mrs. Adye in her evidence here has stated, in answer to questions put to her, as follows:—"Did you notice anything the matter with it?—I detected nothing wrong with it. Did you tell her so?—Yes; I said, 'Why do you not drink it?' and she said, 'Because I do not like it.' I said, 'Oh, that is all right; why don't you drink it?' Did you taste it?—Yes, I took a mouthful of it."
11103. Did she say that? No, she did not say that.
11104. Are you sure—think over it;—did she say, "Why don't you drink it?" She said it tasted all right, but "I would not drink it."
11105. Did she say those words? No, she didn't.
11106. Did she take a good sip? No; she put the cup to her lips and sipped it.
11107. Did she take a mouthful? I do not know.
11108. Mrs. Adye was a great friend of yours? No; I used to go to her shop.
11109. You said there was some powder floating on the saucer, at the Court? Yes.
11110. The tea was poured back out of the saucer into the cup? Yes; he poured it back.
11111. Was the powder still to be seen in the cup? I do not remember. I emptied the cup into the tumbler.
11112. Was there any white stuff in the cup? I do not remember seeing it.
11113. Did you notice anything in the tumbler when you poured it in? I do not remember.
11114. Where was the baby when Mrs. Adye was in the room with you? I think Mr. Dean had her downstairs.
11115. Did Mrs. Adye take the baby away that day? Yes, she took it away to bath it.
11116. How long was your husband away going to Mrs. Adye's—what became of your husband? He went for Mrs. Adye.

- Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1896.
11117. Did he come back with Mrs. Adye? Yes.
11118. Where did he go to then? He did not come upstairs with Mrs. Adye.
11119. You had this conversation while Mrs. Adye was in the house? Yes.
11120. How long did Mrs. Adye stay with you? Not many minutes.
11121. When did you next see your husband? When Mrs. Adye was gone.
11122. What did he come for? For the cup and saucer.
11123. Did you tell him that you drank the tea? Yes.
11124. You told him you drank the tea? Yes.
11125. Did Mrs. Gail come in that day? Yes.
11126. What time did she come in? In the afternoon.
11127. Did you say anything to her about the tea? Yes.
11128. Did you say anything about it being under the drawers? Yes.
11129. Did you tell Mrs. Adye of the tea under the drawers? Yes; she knew.
11130. You told her of the tea being under the drawers? Yes; I told her.
11131. Dr. Manning.] What food had you on the Sunday—what did you take? Lime-water and milk through the day. Mrs. Adye made me a cup of tea, and brought me some bread and butter from her own place.
11132. You had that? Yes.
11133. And then the lime-water and milk? Yes; during the day.
11134. Who told you to take the lime-water and milk? Mr. Dean gave me the lime-water and milk.
11135. How often did you take it? I do not remember how many times; I was drinking it through the day.
11136. How did it happen that he gave you lime-water and milk? The lime-water was downstairs. I used to give it to the baby.
11137. He gave you this several times during the afternoon? He gave me two or three drinks of it.
11138. Dr. Jones.] Had lime-water and milk been prescribed for you before? Yes.
11139. Who by? Dr. Newmarch.
11140. When you were sick before? Yes; with the gripes.
11141. On Sunday did you take anything before you went to bed? I do not remember what I took on Sunday.
11142. You only remember the lime-water and milk? Yes.
11143. President.] Who got you the lime-water and milk? Mr. Dean.
11144. Dr. Manning.] You were suspicious at this time that you were being poisoned? Yes; on Sunday.
11145. You suspected your husband? Yes.
11146. How was it, then, you took the lime-water and milk from him if you suspected him? I had no one else to hand me anything; there was nobody in the house.
11147. Mrs. Adye came back in the afternoon? Yes.
11148. About half-past 4? Yes.
11149. How long did she stay? About half an hour.
11150. Did you tell her that you suspected your husband? No.
11151. You did not tell her that? No.
11152. I think you have described her as your nearest woman friend? She was the only neighbour I took to.
11153. But you did not tell her that you had any suspicions of your husband whatever? No; I did not mention poison to her at all.
11154. President.] What did you mean by the cup of tea under the drawers—why would it be put there? I put it there.
11155. What reason did you give when you told her; it is not a usual place for a cup of tea; can you tell me that at all;—did you give Mrs. Adye any reason for its being there, or Mrs. Gail? No; I just told Mrs. Gail it was there.
11156. But you did not give them any reason? No; I did not.
11157. When Mrs. Adye asked you to take the tea, and she said to you it was all right? She didn't ask me to take it.
11158. Did you give her any reason for a glass of tea being put under the drawers? No; I did not say anything to her.
11159. Were you very ill on that Sunday, or had you only a headache? I had a very bad headache; that is all.
11160. Were you so ill that you could not get things for yourself? My head was so bad that I thought lying down would do me good.
11161. When did you suspect Dean of poisoning you? On the Sunday.
11162. After he gave you the tea? Yes.
11163. Were you too ill to get the milk and lime-water if you wanted it? No; I could have got up.
11164. You could have got up and got it for yourself if you wanted? Yes.
- 11165-6. You preferred him to give it to you? He mixed it in a jug at the side on the table.
11167. Was it not a dangerous thing to let him do;—what sort of a jug was it? A china jug.
11168. Was it not a risky thing for him to mix it, after you thought he was poisoning you? I do not know what I thought.
11169. Dr. Manning.] Did Dean ask you to have a doctor on the Saturday? No, not on the Saturday.
11170. In your depositions at the Police Court, to be found on page 20, you said the following:—"On the 2nd of March the prisoner suggested getting the doctor; on the following day the prisoner also suggested getting the doctor; then on the Monday, prisoner said, 'You must and will have the doctor'; I had been refusing to see the doctor; prisoner then left the house and got the doctor;"—was that your evidence at the Police Court? I remember him wanting the doctor on the Sunday, but I do not remember that he wanted me to see the doctor on the Saturday.
11171. He did not on the Saturday ask you to see the doctor? I do not remember.
11172. Why did you refuse on the Sunday? I did not feel ill enough to have the doctor.
- 11174.

Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1895.

11174. On Monday, the 4th, how were you feeling then? I was feeling better on Monday morning.
 11175. Very much better? Yes.
 11176. What time did Dean come to see you? About 7 o'clock. He generally came about 7 o'clock.
 11177. Did he give you anything before breakfast? No.
 11178. No more lime-water and milk? No.
 11179. Do you remember Hans Bach coming to see you? Yes.
 11180. What time did he come? He was there to breakfast.
 11181. Do you remember the time? I do not remember what time he came.
 11182. What time did he come up to your room to see you? He did not come upstairs at all.
 11183. President.] Didn't he come into the bedroom—with your husband, of course? No, he did not come up into the bedroom.
 11184. Do you remember this; do you say he didn't, or that you do not think he did? I do not remember him coming into the bedroom at all.
 11185. Dr. Manning.] Did you suckle the baby on Monday morning? No.
 11186. Not at all? No.
 11187. Had the baby been weaned at this time? Mr. Dean got some food off Mrs. Thompson for the baby.
 11188. When did he get the food from Mrs. Thompson? On Sunday morning he was feeding the baby with the food.
 11189. Didn't you suckle the baby at all on the Monday? No.
 11190. Are you quite sure that Hans Bach did not see you suckle the baby on the Monday? No.
 11191. Are you quite certain? Yes.
 11192. At what time did your husband bring your breakfast? In the morning.
 11193. What did it consist of? Some bread and butter, a chop, and a cup of cocoa.
 11194. One chop or two chops? I do not remember now.
 11195. It might have been two chops? Yes, it might have been two.
 11196. How much bread and butter? Four little pieces—slices.
 11197. You are quite sure it was cocoa? Yes, quite positive.
 11198. How much did you eat? A good breakfast.
 11199. Did you eat most of the chop? Yes.
 11200. And most of the bread and butter? Yes, I eat it all.
 11201. After breakfast, what became of the baby—you had it with you in the morning? Mr. Dean had it downstairs.
 11202. Who washed and dressed the baby? I did.
 11203. Did you wash and dress it upstairs? Yes.
 11204. Was that after you had had your cocoa? Directly after.
 11205. You say you washed and dressed it; then what became of it? I did not finish dressing it. I took ill then.
 11206. What became of the baby when you took ill? I think Mrs. Adye had it. Mr. Dean took it up to Mrs. Adye.
 11207. If you did not see Hans Bach, how did you know he was there? I went downstairs during the day.
 11208. You cannot tell me exactly what became of the baby? I do not remember that.
 11209. Did you nurse it that day, or did you suckle it? No; it had a bottle.
 11210. Was Sunday night the last time you suckled the baby? I did not give it the breast on Sunday.
 11211. What time were you taken ill on the Monday morning? Directly after breakfast.
 11212. How long after you had taken breakfast? Not very long; I don't remember how long.
 11213. In what way were you ill? I was vomiting. I vomited up the breakfast I had taken, and was purging all the morning.
 11214. You did not go to the closet? No.
 11215. You used utensils in the room? Yes.
 11216. Was this vomiting very frequent? Yes; all the morning.
 11217. In what other way were you ill? Pains in the stomach, and dreadful pains in my head.
 11218. Are you quite sure this commenced immediately after breakfast? Yes; not long after.
 11219. It was before 1 o'clock, at all events? Oh, yes.
 11220. What did Dean bring you up for dinner? I think it was a chop and some bread and butter.
 11221. Did he bring you any more cocoa? Yes; he made another cup of cocoa at half-past 10 o'clock, and put it alongside the bed.
 11222. Were you in the habit of taking cocoa? No.
 11223. How did it come about that you had cocoa on this morning? Mr. Dean said he had just bought it.
 11224. Would that be before 9 o'clock? Yes; I had my breakfast before 9 o'clock.
 11225. Before half-past 8 o'clock? It might be before.
 11226. Do you know the shop where he bought it? Yes; it was a new grocer's—not long opened.
 11227. He told you that? Yes; that he had gone into the corner shop for it.
 11228. He told you that? Yes.
 11229. Did you ask for cocoa? Yes.
 11230. Tell us what he said? He brought me up some cocoa. He said, "I have made you a cup of cocoa this morning." I said, "All right, George." He said, "I went to the corner shop and got it for you."
 11231. Was this the first time you had cocoa in the house? No.
 11232. Was there any sago brought to you? Yes.
 11233. Who by? Miss Adye.
 11234. Did you take any of that sago? I do not think so.
 11235. What time was it brought to you? At dinner-time.
 11236. Did you have any milk in the afternoon of that day? I do not remember what I had in the afternoon.
 11237. You do not remember if you had any lime-water and milk either? No.
 11238. Did you stay in your room all that Monday? No.
 11239. You went out? Yes.
 11240. When did you go out? In the morning.

Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1895.

11241. What time in the morning? A little after 11 o'clock; sometime after 11.
 11242. Where did you go to? To Mrs. Adye's.
 11243. What did you go to Mrs. Adye's for? To tell her I was ill.
 11244. How long did you stay at Mrs. Adye's? Not very long; about a quarter of an hour.
 11245. Do you remember how you were dressed on that morning? Yes; in a wrapper.
 11246. Was your hair loose? Yes.
 11247. You say you saw Hans Bach when you came downstairs? Yes; he was lying on the sofa.
 11248. Did you see him again between 3 and 4 in the afternoon, or between 2 and 3 in the afternoon? No; I didn't.
 11249. He didn't come to say good-bye to you? He sang out upstairs "Good-bye."
 11250. He didn't come upstairs? No; he didn't come upstairs.
 11251. You say you went to tell Mrs. Adye that you were so ill;—did you tell her anything about what your suspicions were? She asked me what I had for breakfast, and I told her. I told her how sick I was, and asked her to go for my mother.
 11252. Did you tell Mrs. Adye anything about the baby at that time? No.
 11253. Where was the baby? The baby was asleep.
 11254. Who had charge of the baby? Mr. Dean.
 11255. Where? On my bed.
 11256. On the Monday morning? Yes, they were both fast asleep on the bed.
 11257. On the bed upstairs? Yes.
 11258. Where they there when you went out? Yes.
 11259. And Hans Bach was below? Yes.
 11260. And the baby was with Mr. Dean? Yes, on Mr. Dean's arm.
 11261. Mr. Pitcher.] Was the baby downstairs with Hans Bach that morning? Yes, it was.
 11262. Was it washed in any way besides your washing it; was it washed downstairs, afterwards? I do not know.
 11263. Dr. Manning.] Did you mention to Dean that you had been out in the morning? No; I do not think I did.
 11264. You did not tell him at all? No.
 11265. He was asleep when you came back? Yes.
 11266. Did you only go to Mrs. Adye's to tell her how ill you were, and to ask her to send for your mother? Yes, only to tell her how ill I was.
 11267. Did you want her to let your mother know? Yes, to go for my mother.
 11268. President.] Did you get any soda-water or ask for any at Mrs. Adye's that morning? Yes, I think I did.
 11269. Did you get any soda-water? No, she gave me a drink of water from the well.
 11270. Did they bring some soda-water after? Yes, Mrs. Walke's little girl brought some.
 11271. What became of the soda-water? It came upstairs.
 11272. Who brought it up? I think Mrs. Walke's little girl brought it up.
 11273. Dr. Manning.] Did you ask that the doctor might be sent for? No.
 11274. Didn't you think that you were ill enough to get a doctor? No.
 11275. Did Dean suggest it? Yes.
 11276. What did you say then? I said, "I will get better."
 11277. When he suggested you objected? Yes; because he had always refused before when I wanted a doctor.
 11278. On this occasion he insisted on having the doctor? Yes.
 11279. What time did he go for the doctor? Between 4 and 5 o'clock.
 11280. How long was he away? I don't remember how long.
 11281. Did you know how soon he came back;—did he come upstairs to you when he came back? Yes; I think he did.
 11282. And did he stay with you till the doctor came? I do not remember that he was upstairs all the time.
 11283. He was upstairs some part of the time? Yes.
 11284. Did he give you anything to drink? Yes; some soda-water.
 11285. Did he give you anything else? Soda-water and milk.
 11286. Still you had suspicions about him that he was poisoning you. On the Sunday you took the breakfast from him, and on the Monday morning, and soda and milk in the afternoon. Why was that, if you were suspicious that he was poisoning you—can you tell me? I thought the things I saw were very strange, and I could hardly think he could do it. [The witness here broke down and burst into tears. At the suggestion of the President an easy chair was brought into the room, and a hospital nurse who was in attendance sat with Mrs. Dean during the rest of her examination.]
 11287. Was your husband in the room all the time the doctor was there—on the Monday evening? Yes; both Mr. Dean and Mrs. Weynton.
 11288. They were there the whole time the doctor was there? Yes.
 11289. Were you vomiting then? No.
 11290. The doctor did not see you vomit? No; he did not.
 11291. Did he look into the pedestal to see if there was anything there? No.
 11292. Had that been cleared up? Yes; Mr. Dean had emptied it.
 11293. When did he empty it? In the morning and in the afternoon too.
 11294. Mrs. Adye came to see you on the Monday evening too? Yes.
 11295. Still you did not tell her anything about your suspicions? No.
 11296. And you did not tell the doctor? No; I did not.
 11297. What arrangements had been made for looking after and nursing you on the Monday night? Mr. Dean left me a stick alongside of the bed, and left the balcony door open.
 11298. You were expecting your mother? No; I did not know my mother would come.
 11299. Who was the stick for? If I wanted anything I was to knock, and Mrs. Weynton would come in.
 11300. You were left, ill as you were, during this Monday night? Yes.
 11301. There was no one to give you medicine? No.

Mrs.
M. Dean,
10 June, 1895.

11302. President.] Do you remember on the Monday forenoon, did you change your night-dress on the Monday forenoon? Yes, I had to.
11303. When did you put on that night-dress clean? On Sunday.
11304. Can you remember how you wore it—whether it was inside out or not? I do not remember.
11305. You do not remember whether it was inside out or not;—would you not remember that by the buttons? I do not remember now.
11306. Dr. Manning.] On the Saturday and the Monday did anyone see you vomit? Yes, Miss Adye.
11307. Did anyone else see you? Yes, Mr. Dean.
11308. Anybody else? I don't remember anybody else.
11309. When did Miss Adye see you vomit? On Monday, about dinner-time, when Mr. Dean brought up the chop at 1 o'clock, and she was there.
11310. Did you eat the chop that was brought up? No; Miss Adye told him to take it down-stairs.
11311. Was that Ethel Adye? Yes.
11312. You were very ill on Monday night? Yes.
11313. How often were you ill? About every 10 minutes, as near as I can remember.
11314. What time did you take the medicine—the first dose of the medicine? About a quarter to 11 or 11 o'clock.
11315. And were you worse after that? Yes.
11316. Did Dean give you anything before giving you the medicine? Yes, a drink of milk.
11317. Lime-water and milk? Yes.
11318. That was before you got the medicine? Yes.
11319. You are quite sure of that? Yes.
11320. Did you bring that up? I don't think I vomited between taking the lime-water and milk and the medicine.
11321. It is quite certain that you did not suckle the baby on the Monday? No; she had the feeding-bottle.
11322. Was the baby suckled at any time after Monday? No.
11323. Do you remember the baby being sent over from Mrs. Adye's so that you might give it a drink? When was that?
11324. On the Tuesday, I think? I don't remember that.
11325. You are quite certain that the baby was not suckled on the Monday? Yes; Mrs. Adye had her bottle.
11326. Sometimes babies are nursed and have the feeding-bottle as well? I did not nurse it.
11327. President.] Did your mother bring the baby to you at all on the Tuesday;—were you feeling at all uncomfortable from not nursing the baby;—were your breasts too hard? No; they were not.
11328. Did your mother bring the baby to you to nurse on the Tuesday? Mother was not there on Tuesday till half-past 5.
11329. Did she bring the baby from Mrs. Adye's? I do not remember who went there for the baby.
11330. The baby must have come somehow or other;—did your mother bring the baby back? I do not remember who brought the baby back on the Tuesday afternoon.
11331. Think now;—did you suckle the baby on the Tuesday afternoon? No; I did not.
11332. Dr. Jones.] The baby was absolutely weaned from Sunday, then? I did not give it the breast again.
11333. Not on any occasion? No; I did not.
11334. Dr. Manning.] Your mother nursed you on Monday night? Yes.
11335. How were you on Tuesday morning? I was vomiting on Tuesday.
11336. Did you vomit on Tuesday morning early? Yes; I was vomiting on Tuesday morning early.
11337. What time did your husband come to you on Tuesday morning? I do not remember what time; he generally got home about 7 or half-past 7 o'clock.
11338. And generally came to see you? Yes.
11339. Do you remember what was the first thing he said to you when he came back on the Tuesday morning;—did he say anything to you about this lemon-syrup bottle? Yes; he said, "What is this that Mr. Weynton has been telling me about you drinking something out of a bottle?"
11340. What did you say? I said the bottle was at Dr. Newmarch's.
11341. And what else besides;—was there anything else? I do not think so.
11342. Did he give you anything to drink on the Tuesday morning? No; I could not take anything.
11343. He did not attempt to give you anything to drink? No.
11344. Are you quite sure of that? I do not think so, because everything I drank I vomited up again.
11345. But that would not prevent you taking it;—you do not remember his giving you anything to drink on the Tuesday morning? No.
11346. Mrs. Thompson came to see you on the Tuesday morning? Yes; she came to wash the baby.
11347. What was Dean doing then? He was downstairs.
11348. Did he come up with Mrs. Thompson? No; she came up alone.
11349. Did you take anything to drink while Mrs. Thompson was there? Yes; Mrs. Thompson brought me in some tea.
11350. Who gave the tea to you to drink? I think she did.
11351. Where was Dean when the doctor came on Tuesday morning? I think he was downstairs.
11352. Are you quite sure about that? Yes; because he came upstairs afterwards.
11353. Did he come up with the doctor? No.
11354. He did not come up with the doctor? No.
11355. Did the doctor come up alone? Yes; and Mr. Dean came up a few minutes afterwards.
11356. If Mrs. Thompson says that Dean was lying on the bed with you when the doctor came, and when the doctor came up that Dean met him, that is not correct? No; Mr. Dean was not in the bedroom.
11357. Mr. Dean was not in the bedroom when the doctor came? No.
11358. What did the doctor ask you when he came? What I had been taking.
11359. What did you tell him? I told him about the lemon-syrup—about drinking it.
11360. Was Dean there at that time? No.
11361. Are you quite sure of that? Quite certain; the doctor told him to leave the room.

- Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1895.
11362. You are not confusing it with the Wednesday? No, he came up after the doctor. The doctor said, "Dean, leave the room and shut the door."
11363. What did Mrs. Thompson say at this time? I do not remember that.
11364. What did the doctor say when you told him you had taken the lemon-syrup;—do you remember if he asked you any other question? I don't remember what he said.
11365. Did the doctor do anything before he went away? No, only prescribed for me.
11366. You saw him write the prescription? Yes.
11367. Was your husband there then? No.
11368. He was not? No.
11369. Was Mrs. Thompson there then? Yes.
11370. Where did the doctor write the prescription? I think he wrote it on the chest of drawers.
11371. Did he say anything to you about your taking tea? Yes; he asked me who gave it to me.
11372. What did you say? I don't remember what I said to him. He said I had no business to take tea.
11373. Do you remember your husband saying, "It is not my fault; she would have it"? No; I don't remember that.
11374. Dr. Manning.] Did you say to the doctor that you thought Dean had put poison in the lemon-syrup? No, I did not.
11375. Suppose the doctor says so? I didn't say it.
[In answer to a juror, Dr. Newmarch said, "Mrs. Dean told me on Tuesday that she thought prisoner had put poison in. I got the bottle on Monday night from her, and I asked Mrs. Dean was there any foundation for it, as I could not take the statement of anyone who left the bottle with me. It was after taking the medicine in which she said the powder was that she said she suspected him of putting poison in the bottle."]
11376. Who nursed you on the Tuesday? Mrs. Lee.
11377. Did she say who sent her to you? Yes.
11378. Who? My mother.
11379. Did Mrs. Thompson come in the afternoon of Tuesday, do you remember? No; I do not remember.
11380. You do not remember? No.
11381. You do not remember that at all;—not whether Mrs. Thompson came to you on the Tuesday? No.
11382. What time did Mrs. Lee go away? About 4 o'clock.
11383. Do you remember Mrs. Thompson coming to you after that? She might have come, but I do not remember.
11384. Were you left quite alone after Mrs. Lee left? I asked Mrs. Lee to send Mrs. Adye down.
11385. You don't remember Mrs. Thompson coming to you at all? No.
11386. Was Dean with you after Mrs. Lee left? Yes.
11387. Do you remember him bathing your head with vinegar and water? He may have done so, but I do not remember.
11388. Did you get any ice on the Tuesday? The first ice that came was on the Wednesday morning.
11389. You are quite sure Dean did not get any ice on the Tuesday? No; he tried to get some but he could not.
11390. If Mrs. Thompson says she was there and saw some ice got, and some broken off and given to you, is she making a mistake? There was no ice on the Tuesday.
11391. Are you certain about that? Quite certain about that.
11392. President.] Do you remember the ice-man passing and your husband getting some ice from him? I never saw an ice-cream-man pass that way.
11393. Had you anything to eat and drink between the time Mrs. Lee left and the time your mother came back that evening? I do not remember what I was eating. I was eating jelly through the day.
11394. Your mother did not come back till half-past 5 or 6 o'clock;—had you anything to eat or drink between those times? I do not remember.
11395. Did you vomit during that time? Yes.
11396. You were still vomiting on the Tuesday afternoon? Yes.
11397. Your mother came back at half-past 5 or 6 o'clock on the Tuesday afternoon? Yes.
11398. You were alone with her? Yes.
11399. Did you talk to your mother about your illness during that time? She knew I was ill.
11400. And she stayed with you all Tuesday night? All Monday night; altogether after Tuesday.
11401. Did you talk to your mother and tell her your suspicions about your illness—did you tell her you thought you had been poisoned? No.
11402. You were so ill; still as ill as you were you did not talk to your mother? No.
11403. After the doctor saw you on the Tuesday did you take anything by the mouth—food or medicine? Food was injected into the bowels.
11404. Anything by the mouth? I only sucked ice.
11405. You took no medicine? I do not remember if I was taking medicine.
11406. You took everything by the bowel—injected? Yes, by the bowel.
11407. President.] Who brought the ice you sucked? Mr. Gail.
11408. You know he brought it? Yes; he brought it up into the bedroom and put it into the wash-hand basin.
11409. Dr. Manning.] Now Wednesday;—what time did Dean come to you on Wednesday? I do not remember.
11410. What time did the doctor come on Wednesday morning? About half-past 10 o'clock.
11411. What conversation had you with the doctor then? I asked him about a powder. I asked him did he order a powder to be put into the medicine. He said he did not know, but he would look in his book; and when he looked in his book he said "No."
11412. Had he his book with him? Yes, and said "No."
11413. What else occurred? I said Mr. Dean put a powder into the medicine that the doctor had ordered, and said the doctor had ordered it.
11414. Did this occur on Wednesday or Thursday? On the Wednesday morning.
11415. Are you quite sure of that? I would not be positive, but I think it was Wednesday.
11416. You were still vomiting on the Wednesday? Yes; once or twice on the Wednesday.

Mrs.
M. Dean,

-10 June, 1895.

11417. Did you see your mother show the vomit to Mrs. Gail on the Wednesday? I do not remember if she showed it to her.
11418. You did not see her show any vomit to the doctor? No; I do not think she did.
11419. Did the doctor ask about any vomit either then or on the previous day? No.
11420. Dr. Jones.] Did the doctor see any vomit at any time? No.
11421. Or what passed from your bowels? No.
11422. Dr. Manning.] After this conversation with the doctor did he send for Dean? He went downstairs.
11423. Did he bring Dean up? No; he came up alone.
11424. Did he say anything more then? Mr. Dean had denied it.
11425. After the doctor had gone did Dean come to you and talk this matter over? He did not mention anything about the powder.
11426. President.] Who did not? Mr. Dean.
11427. Did this occur on Wednesday or Thursday? On Wednesday, I think. He (Dean) did not come up with the doctor. The doctor went to the landing and called Dean up, and the doctor said, "Did you put a powder in your wife's medicine?" and Dean said, "No;" and I said, "Oh, George, you told me the doctor ordered a powder to go into the medicine," and he said, "I did not." He denied it still. I told him he was telling me an untruth. I said, "You know you did, George; how can you stand there and tell me such a falsehood?"
11428. After the doctor had gone away, on Wednesday or Thursday, did Dean recur to this subject? No; he did not.
11429. Are you quite sure about that—that he did not at any time discuss this subject again at any time with you? No.
11430. He did not say, "What makes you say I put a powder into the medicine?" In his evidence at the trial that I have before me, on page 13, he says, "On Thursday morning she said 'What made the medicine white?' I thought after the doctor had gone I would go and ask her why she said it. I said, 'What makes you say I put a powder in the medicine?' She said, 'Because it was white.' I then said, 'Did she not see me put it into the glass which she drank the lime-water and milk out of?' She said, 'No.' I said, 'You know you asked me for a drink as soon as I came home,' to which she replied, 'Yes.' I said, 'Did I not then want to give you the medicine, and did you not say, 'Don't give it to me just yet.' She said, 'Yes.' I said, 'Did you not see me pour it into the glass which you had the lime-water and milk out of?' She said, 'No; she did not notice that.'" No; he did not say that at all.
11431. Never at any time? No.
11432. You told your mother on Wednesday that you had a suspicion of being poisoned? No; I did not.
11433. What time did the doctor come on Wednesday night? I do not remember at what time—very late.
11434. That was the only day that he saw you twice? Yes; on the Wednesday.
11435. Did you see your husband at all on the Thursday? Yes.
11436. You are quite sure that nothing passed between you as regards this powder? No; nothing passed between us.
11437. When did you first notice that your legs got bad? They were very bad on Wednesday night.
11438. Bad with cramps? Yes.
11439. When did you first notice that you had any difficulty in walking? I cannot remember.
11440. Did you notice anything at the time of the trial at Darlinghurst? They were very heavy.
11441. They were heavy at the time of the trial at Darlinghurst? Yes.
11442. When did you first notice that your hair was coming out? Before the trial at Darlinghurst.
11443. Has it been coming out ever since? Yes.
11444. Has it been coming out in quantities? Yes; I left it at the hospital at North Shore.
11445. How much? A lot—a good handful—as much as I could hold in my two hands.
11446. President.] Do you know a Mrs. Parker, otherwise known as Madame Von—a fortune-teller? Yes; I went to see her.
11447. What did you go to see her about? I went to see her as a fortune-teller.
11448. Do you remember when it was that you went there? Before the trial at Darlinghurst.
11449. How long before the trial at Darlinghurst? About a week before.
11450. Would you mind telling me what you went for—what you went to find out? I just went out of curiosity.
11451. Did you go to find out the result of the trial? I did not know that she could tell me that.
11452. Can you tell me what you said to her—what took you there? I do not remember what she said.
11453. Did she tell you you were a married woman, and did you say you were not? I said yes.
11454. Did she tell you you had a child? No, she did not.
11455. You knew you had a child and you did not deny it? No; I did not deny it.
11456. What did you go to ask her—what did you want to find out? Nothing in particular.
11457. What did you go for; people do not go to fortune-tellers for nothing in particular—try and think? I have often been before.
11458. To other fortune-tellers? Yes.
11459. What did you know her as—Madame Von or Mrs. Parker? There was a card in the window.
11460. Tell me what you said to her and what she said to you? She kept asking me questions and I would not answer them.
11461. Can you tell me what questions she asked you? She asked me was I married. I said, "Yes." She said, "You have two or three children," and I said, "No." She said that if I was not careful a dark woman would take my husband away from me. She said I was going to remove from where I was and go a long journey.
11462. Anything else? I do not think so.
11463. Fortune-tellers have told you something like that before? Yes.
11464. What did you want to go to a fortune-teller at all for just then? Out of curiosity—to see what she would tell me.
11465. Sir Julian Salomons.] What was on the card in the window? It was night-time, and I could not see; it was in the paper about this fortune-teller.
11466. President.] Did you go to find out what was likely to happen or what would happen to your husband? I did not think she could tell me.

- Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1895.
11467. Or about anybody else? No.
- 11467½. Did she mention anything about a fair man, or did you mention anything to her about a fair man? No, I do not think there was anything about a fair man; I did not mention anything about a fair man.
11468. Nor she to you? No.
11469. Did she say that she saw a fair man and two elderly females, and did you ask her which you were going to marry? Oh, no.
11470. Nothing like that? Oh, no.
11471. Did you ever tell her that you were never married, but that you were going to be married to a fair man? I told her I was married.
11472. Did she describe a dark man to you? When I told her I was married she said, "Your husband is dark."
11473. Did she tell you anything else about him? No.
11474. Did she tell you that he was in gaol? No, she did not.
11475. That is not true? No.
11476. Did she tell you that he was a dark man? Yes, that he was a dark man.
11477. Did you deny it? No; I said he was.
11478. Is he a dark man as a matter of fact? Yes.
11479. When you went in to her did you give your name? I just went in as a stranger.
11480. Did she find out your name? Just as I was coming out a little girl by the name of Sly was coming in to the door. I knew this little girl, and she knew me.
11481. How did you know this little girl? We used to serve her mother when I was living at home in Riley-street.
11482. As you were going in did the little girl see you? No, as I was coming out.
11483. What was the little girl going for? I do not know.
11484. She knew you? Yes.
11485. How old was this little girl? About 11 or 12 years old.
11486. Did Madame Von, or this fortune-teller, ever go to the house where you were—to Mrs. Johnstone's? Yes; the little girl came down and said a lady wanted to see me. Mrs. Sly's little girl came back and said it was Madame Von. I said I did not wish to see her. She said she was going away to-morrow.
11487. When was this? I do not remember when it was.
11488. How many weeks ago? I think it was three days after it was in the Sunday Times about Madame Von.
11489. What did she say to you? She said, "I have come to say good-bye. I am going away to Melbourne." I said, "I don't want to say good-bye to you, you are an utter stranger to me." She had my name off. She said, "Mrs. Dean," and my mother came to the door. Mrs. Johnston stopped in the room all the time. My mother said, "What do you want to say to my daughter? Say it and begone." And then my mother told her about what she had seen in the Sunday Times.
11490. What was that? Something about a fair man.
11491. That was at your interview with Madame Von? Yes.
11492. Was that in the Sunday Times? Yes.
11493. How long is this ago—how long after the trial? I do not remember whether it was after or before the trial.
11494. Was it before you went to the North Shore Hospital? Yes.
11495. How long before you went to the North Shore Hospital? I do not remember.
11496. What day was it that you went to the North Shore Hospital? I do not remember.
11497. How long was it before that day do you think? I do not remember when it was—whether it was before the trial or afterwards.
11498. Try and think. You went to see her the first time before the trial. When she went to see you was that before or after the trial at Darlinghurst? I think it was before. Mother said to Madame Von, "You have caused quite enough trouble," and I asked her, "Did I say that to you?" and she said, "No."
11499. Can you tell me what was in the Sunday Times that caused any trouble? Something about a fair man. She (Madame Von) said, "I did not put it in the Sunday Times." I said, "Did you say anything to anybody;—how did you know I was Mrs. Dean?" She said, "The little girl Sly told me."
11500. I wish you would tell me something more of what happened? That is all as far as I can remember. She said she would go to the paper and see about it. She said, "How dare they publish her name?" She made quite a fuss over it.
11501. Did you ever know a girl called Rita? No.
11502. Was there ever a girl called Rita staying in your mother's house in Riley-street? A Miss Bennett from Melbourne stayed there.
11503. What was her first name? Emily.
11504. Do you remember a Mrs. Thompson that used to do washing for you? Yes.
11505. An old woman? Yes.
11506. When she did washing for you was there a girl named Rita in your house? I never heard that name before.
11507. Was there anybody staying in the house for whom you took washing backwards and forwards to Mrs. Thompson's? No, I did not. I never took washing to Mrs. Thompson's.
- [Mrs. Esther Thompson, in her evidence on the 17th of May, in reply to questions put to her, has said:—(1612.) Amongst the washing you had from Mrs. Seymour's house did you receive clothing belonging to any other person living there? Mrs. Seymour told me that some of the clothes sent belonged to a lady who was not living there. Mrs. Seymour said to me, "I got this washing for you to do." It was sent to my house, and I subsequently took it home to Mrs. Seymour's. When I took it home, Mary said to someone I did not see—someone who was up stairs—"Rita, here is your washing." Mary then said to me, "Don't tell mother that Rita is here; she does not live here." A little boy named Jacky, aged about 7 years, who lived at Mrs. Seymour's, came to me and told me, "Mary is telling you a lie; Rita does live here."—(1613.) Have you ever seen Rita about that house? I have never seen Rita but once, and that was behind the counter in Mrs. Seymour's shop.—(1618.) Did you do any washing for Rita? Oh, yes.—(1619.) For how long? For about three months.—(1620.) Was her linen marked at all? Yes, it was marked "Rita."] 11508. Do you remember Mrs. Thompson bringing any washing home and your calling out, "Rita, here is your washing"? No.

11509. Did you ever know a little boy named Jacky? Yes, a boy named Jack.
11510. How old was he when he lived at your mother's house? About 9 or 10 years old.
11511. Do you remember a Mr. Wright living at your mother's place? Yes.
11512. Do you know whether his name was Wright? Yes.
11513. Was that his real name? Yes.
11514. I want you to think at the time Jacky was there whether there was any girl living at your place, or visiting much there, who wore very ornamented kinds of underlinen? His sister lived there for about three months—Jack's sister.
11515. What was Jack's full name? Jack Kirby.
11516. What was the sister's name? Mary.
11517. How old was she? A woman.
11518. Was she grown up? Yes.
11519. What was she? A barmaid.
11520. How old were you then—how long ago is it? It is more than five years ago.
11521. Was this when you were growing up? I was about 16, I think.
11522. Did she wear very ornamented kinds of underclothing? No, I do not think so.
11523. Was there anything you noticed from her dress to give the idea that she was a play-actress? She always dressed in black.
11524. Did you notice anything with regard to her underclothing—petticoats, and so on? No, I did not notice anything.
11525. Was Mary Kirby known by any other name? Yes, Miss Phillips.
11526. Minnie Phillips? Yes; Kirby was her right name.
11527. Did she afterwards live at Mrs. Lee's? No, I never saw her at Mrs. Lee's.
11528. She was Minnie Phillips—she was known as that? Yes.
11529. Was she this little Jack's sister? Yes.
11530. Do you know anything about her? No.
11531. Did you ever take anything with the mark of "Rita" on the clothing, or see any clothing that went to Mrs. Thompson with the name of "Rita" on it? I do not remember the name at all.
11532. Do you remember at all, or did you know, old Mr. Rose? Yes.
11533. Did he ever come across for this Mary? I don't remember him coming for her.
11534. He came across to your house? Yes.
11535. What did he come for? Fruit.
11536. Did she (Mary) ever go over there? I do not remember.
11537. Do you know what kind of a place it is? Yes, while I was living with my mother at Surry Hills.
11538. Were you ever in there? No.
11539. You never were in there? No.
11540. Never in your life? No, I have been to the door. I went with my mother to take something to the door.
11541. Did you ever go with milk? We don't sell milk.
- 11541½. Or with anything in a jug? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

TUESDAY, 11 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORFON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade, appeared for the Crown; and the Hon. Charles Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. H. Todd (instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher), for George Dean.

Mrs. Mary Dean re-examined:—

11542. President.] You have never told anybody you were out on the Monday morning with Mrs. Adye? No, I did not.
11543. You never told it at the trial? I was not asked.
11544. You gave everybody to understand that you were very ill on the Monday? Yes; I was very ill.
11545. But well enough to go out? Yes, to Mrs. Adye's.
11546. How far is Mrs. Adye's;—is it as far as from here to the Sydney Hospital? No, not nearly so far.
11547. Is it as far as from here to the Public Library? Not quite as far as that.
11548. Did you know before the trial what the punishment was for administering poison? I have read other cases in the paper.
11549. What other cases? The Louisa Collins case.
11550. You knew what the punishment was? Yes.
11551. What did you know it was? That if they were found guilty they were sentenced to death.
11552. Sentenced to death? Yes.
11553. Dr. Jones.] In your depositions at the Police Court at North Sydney you said that Dr. Newmarch saw you on the Monday night and asked you questions about the vomiting, and asked you about the night-dress;—what did Dr. Newmarch ask you about the night-dress? He did not ask me on the Monday.
11554. These are your words, "Dr. Newmarch saw me on Monday night and asked me questions about vomiting, and asked about the night-dress. He did not ask what I had eaten"? It was on the Sunday, not on the Monday.

Mrs.
M. Dean.
10 June, 1895.

Mrs.
M. Dean.
11 June, 1895.

- Mrs.
M. Dean.
11 June, 1895.
11555. Dr. Newmarch did not see you on the Sunday? Yes; on the following Sunday.
 11556. That is incorrect then? Yes; I did not say anything then.
 11557. Supposing it was on the following Sunday;—what did he ask you? He asked my mother whether there was any vomiting, and did I have anything to show, only the dirty night-dress?
 11558. That was on the following Sunday, not on Monday the 4th of March? No.
 11559. President.] I think you stated the night-dress was taken off about 11 o'clock on Monday morning? Yes.
 11560. Where did you put it? In the dirty-clothes basket.
 11561. It remained there a week? I showed it to my mother on Wednesday.
 11562. Was it left there dirty till the following Monday? No; till Sunday.
 11563. How did it come to be left there so long? It was amongst the other dirty clothes.
 11564. When was your washing-day? I wash once a fortnight.
 11565. Did you take it off before you went out or after you went out? Before I went out.
 11566. How were you dressed that morning you had the wrapper on;—what had you underneath it? A flannel petticoat and a clean night-dress on.
 11567. That is what you went out in? Yes.
 11568. How were you in the habit of taking off your night-dress;—over your head, or dropping it down at your feet? I do not know how I took it off; I think I slipped it off.
 11569. Do you know what your general habit was;—did you take it off over your head, or drop it down at your feet? Sometimes one way and sometimes the other.
 11570. Mr. Pilcher.] With reference to that night-dress, you showed it to your mother on the Wednesday? Yes.
 11571. Tell me what you did? I told her about vomiting on the Monday morning, and she asked me where the night-dress was. I said it was in the dirty-clothes basket. She said, "Is this the one you mean?" I said, "Yes."
 11572. The doctor only got that night-dress on the following Sunday? Yes.
 11573. Had he seen it before? He picked it up himself on the Sunday.
 11574. You are quite sure that is right—that on the following Sunday the doctor took that nightdress, and that that was the first time that he saw it? Yes; that was the first time.
 11575. You understood that he picked it out of the basket;—you understood that? Yes; I was in bed.
 11576. That was the first time he had seen it? Yes.
 11577. Did you give this account:—"The night-dress produced is my property; I put it on clean on Sunday morning, the 3rd of March, instant; I ceased to wear it on Monday morning, the 4th; it was stained by me during my illness; it was taken off on the morning of the 4th and put in the clothes-basket; my mother found it in the basket and brought it to me, and asked if it was my night-dress; it was then in the same state as when it was taken off; Dr. Newmarch took the night-dress from my room, in my presence, on the 6th of March; my mother got it from the basket; Dr. Newmarch took it on the 7th instant"? Yes; I did give that account, but I think I corrected it afterwards.
 11578. Did you correct it at the Police Court? I don't remember whether I corrected it at the Police Court or at the trial.
 11579. At the Police Court—that was shortly after the occurrence;—which is true? It was on the Sunday.
 11580. The account you are giving now is the true one? I made a mistake, perhaps.
 11581. That is what you swore on the 19th of March—a fortnight after the occurrence? I think it was a Thursday when he took it.
 11582. You stated yesterday that when Dean came back you told him you drank the tea on the Sunday? Yes.
 11583. Of course that was not true;—what you told your husband was not true? No.
 11584. Did I understand you to say that you did not know Rita at all? I do not remember the name.
 11585. Is it a name you know belonging to anybody? No.
 11586. Do you know anybody by that name? I never did.
 11587. You never knew anybody named Rita? I do not remember the name; I did not know anybody.
 11588. Have you ever gone by the name of Rita yourself? No.
 11589. Have you ever signed your name Rita? No.
 11590. Just think for a moment now? [Witness taking some time to consider].—I do not know.
 11591. Did you know Frank Brereton? Yes.
 11592. Have you ever written letters to him? Yes, I think I have.
 11593. Have you ever signed yourself Rita Seymour? I don't remember; I may have done so.
 11594. President.] Surely you would know whether you have or not;—you would remember that would you not? [No answer.]
 11595. Mr. Pilcher.] You cannot say now? It was so many years ago I cannot remember. I generally signed "May."
 11596. You cannot remember that you have ever written to Frank Brereton and signed your name Rita Seymour;—did you know anybody by the name of George Clements or Pegg? Yes, I did.
 11597. Did you ever write to him? I do not think I ever did.
 11598. Just think before you answer? I do not think I ever wrote to George Pegg. I remember him, but I do not remember writing to him.
 11599. Tell me [handing witness letter] is that your writing? Yes.
 11600. And that is the George;—that is the letter you wrote to George Clements or Pegg on October 12th, 1891? Yes.
 11601. Is that signed Rita Seymour? Yes.
 11602. And that is your signature? Yes.

[Mr. Pilcher read letter.]

Dear George,

413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, 12 October, 1891.

I am very sorry to disappoint you to-morrow night, as I have just received a letter from Miss Taylor inviting me out to her place to tea, as she wants me to do her hair for her in the Court style, and she says in the letter, "Please wear your pearls." So the pearls must take the cake. I think her brother is a bit struck, as he wanted to know, very anxiously, when I was coming out again, so he will see me sooner than he expected. Frank has plenty of rivals, but he has no cause to be jealous, for if he only knew how much I love him he would not be. I am not a bit jealous of him, for I trust him too much much—more than he trusts me, I am very sorry to say. I wish he would settle the question. I will leave it to you to scold him again. I wrote another letter to one of my old boys this morning—such a heart-rending one, and all through that dear boy Frank. Oh, George, never fall in love; it is very bad for the constitution. I don't think I have no more troubles of mine to relate, so good-bye, until I see you to-morrow night at 8 p.m.

Mrs.
M. Dean.
11 June, 1895.

I remain,
Your true friend,
RITA SEYMOUR.

P.S.—Please bring some kiss-papers, and give Frank a kiss for me, as I have not had the pleasure of giving him one myself.

11603. Is that your writing? Yes, it is my writing.

WHEN THE RIGHT ONE COMES.

(Arranged by Rita Seymour.)

I can never love, the maiden said,
My heart as a glacier is cold;
All men I have met are the same to me—
The young, middle-aged, and old.
I have listened unmoved while men have pleaded
As if they were pleading for life,
And I coldly refused the boon they craved—
The right to call me wife.
Now will you tell what has changed her mood,
That she hangs her golden head;
In her favourite pastimes finds no good;
Can it be she fain would wed?
By every token the love-tide brings,
His power with mortals to prove;
By her frequent sighs, by the songs she sings,
The young maiden must be in Love.
But the right one came—he was tall and dark,
And he met her first at a dance;
And a look or a smile from him to her,
Would make her heart jump for joy.
What say you now, my maiden cold—
Did it seem so very much amiss
When you raised your ruby lips
For his betrothal kiss?
Say not fair maid I shall never love,
For Cupid, the arrant knave,
When the right one comes his power to prove
Will find you a willing slave.

R. SEYMOUR.

No. 413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, N.S.W.

11604. Whose writing is this at the bottom, "413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, N.S.W."? Not my writing.

11605. Do you know whose it is? No.

11606. Whom did you send that poetry to? I do not remember.

11607. Read a little of it to bring it back to your memory;—was it to Frank? I do not remember.

11608. By the way, is that your "R"? Yes.

11609. And that is your signature, "R. Seymour"? Yes.

11610. Who wrote "413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, N.S.W."? I do not know. That is not my writing.

11611. But the "R" is yours? Yes.

11612. But the other is not? No; I do not think it was on when I sent it.

11613. Did you compose this yourself? Yes.

11614. Was that writing at the bottom on it then? No, I am positive it was not.

11615. Did you write this "Rita" at the top? Yes.

11616. Did you write "Arranged by Rita Seymour"? Yes; it was all my handwriting.

11617. Just think for a moment;—was that writing at the bottom, "413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, N.S.W." there when you sent it? No, it was not there when I sent it.

11618. Surely you will have some idea whose writing it is? No, I do not know whose writing it is.

11619. President.] Whom did you send that poetry to? I don't remember who I sent it to.

11620. Dr. Jones.] What was the date? Mr. Pilcher: It has no date.

11621. President.] Where is it from? Mr. Pilcher: 413, Riley-street.

Mr. Pilcher, to President.] I want to draw your attention to the word "Rita," to the letter "R," and the "R. Seymour." She says that is her writing and that the rest is not.

11622. Here is another letter;—is that your writing? Yes.

Dear Frank,

No. 413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, 22 October, 1891.

I was very much annoyed at not being able to come to the class on Thursday evening, and also for disappointing you, as I know you would feel very lonely coming home by yourself. But you will excuse me when I tell you that my dear mother has, I am very much afraid, got an attack of la grippe, so you see it would be impossible for me to leave her. I sent word down to George to-day by Miss Bond to tell him not to mind going to the station, and when she came back she told me that he was very ill with the same complaint as my mother has got, and he told her he would call at our house as he was coming home. At about 8 p.m., a friend of his came and told me he had to go home in a cab, he was so ill; and I wrote a consoling little note, and some flowers I bought at Sear's to-day, and sent them in a little box wrapped in wadding to put in his bedroom. I will go and see him to-morrow afternoon. I feel so downhearted when I think how ill he is and all through me, as I said to you on Tuesday night "he will get la grippe," and so he has got it and I shall have to go and nurse him, won't that be nice. If you are not coming into town this week you can write to me and I will deliver any message for you, and if you do come into town don't forget to call and see me without fail. Miss Bond says she thinks the picnic will never come off if this la grippe is going to continue; you better get it and I will come and attend on you. Please bring the photo in with you as I am longing to see it. I have no more news to tell you, only I hope this will find you quite well and in a better humour than you were in on Tuesday night, so good-bye.

I remain, Your loving friend,

MAY SEYMOUR,

11623.

- Mrs. M. Dean,
11 June, 1895.
11623. I have another letter here;—is that your writing [handing letter to witness] ? Yes.
Dear Frank,
Just a line to let you know the arrangements made for New Year's Day. We all have to meet at Norton and Marion-street, at a quarter to 10 o'clock. And will you please tell your friends Miss and Mr. Pegg, and by doing so you will greatly oblige
It was me who sent the card.
413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, 30 December, 1891.
Your friend,
MAY.
11624. This letter, too; is that your handwriting [handing letter to witness] ? Yes.
Dear Frank,
If you have any spare time on your hands this week will you please find out all particulars about Mr. Chapman's social, as Miss Taylor and I are in a fix about our dresses, not knowing if plain or fancy dresses are to be worn. Trusting you will favour me with a few lines soon.
413, Riley-street, Sydney, April 25, 1892.
Believe me to be, your sincere
MAY SEYMOUR.
11625. Is this little memorandum, "It was me who sent the card," your handwriting ? Yes.
11626. And the letter as well ? Yes.
11627. You say you never knew any person by the name of Rita;—now you have seen your letters, how did you come to use the name Rita ? I never knew anybody by that name.
11628. How is it you come to use the name Rita if Rita was never your name, and you were never known as Rita ? Nobody calls me Rita.
11629. Were you never known as Rita ? No.
11630. Amongst your girl and boy friends were you never known as Rita ? No.
11631. How do you account for using the name Rita, and signing your name Rita ? I do not remember.
11632. Can you give no explanation why you adopted the name Rita for your own name ? I never adopted it. George Pegg used to call me Rita.
11633. Didn't you write to Frank as Rita ? Yes.
11634. Did he call you Rita ? No, May.
11635. Can you give me any reason for adopting the name Rita ? No, I cannot.
11636. Do you know a Mr. Marshall, a dentist ? Yes.
11637. Did he ever do anything for your teeth ? Yes.
11638. He extracted a large number of your teeth, did he not ? Yes.
11639. After he extracted them do you remember your mouth breaking out bleeding ? Yes, I do.
11640. Do you remember his being sent for to stop the bleeding ? Yes.
11641. And he came up to your house ? Yes.
11642. And you were in your bedroom ? Yes.
11643. And he called in Dr. Rutledge ? Yes.
11644. And both Dr. Rutledge and Mr. Marshall attended to you ? Yes.
11645. Had you been to Mr. Marshall's more than once about your teeth ? Yes.
11646. And how many times did you go to his consulting-rooms ? About five or six times.
11647. Did you always go alone ? No.
11648. Who went with you ? My mother went once.
11649. Anybody else ? Yes; I went with a young lady by the name of Vera Reece.
11650. How often did you go with her ? Once.
11651. And who was Vera Reece ? A young lady staying at mother's.
11652. Can you remember what year it was that she stayed at your mother's ? I do not remember; it is a good while ago.
11653. Do you remember how long ago it was ? Three or four years ago.
11654. How long did she stay with your mother ? Not for long.
11655. About how long did she stay—some weeks or some months ? About three months.
11656. Where did she come from ? From Melbourne.
11657. Where did she go to ? I do not remember where she went to.
11658. Do you know whether she left Sydney and went back to Melbourne ? She left our house, and I do not know where she went.
11659. You say you went to the dentist's on five or six occasions;—who went with you on any other occasion ? Mr. Wright.
11660. Who was he ? He lived at my mother's.
11661. How old were you at the time ? I was about 14 years of age.
11662. On any other occasion did you go with anybody ? I went with Detective Keatinge's wife.
11663. Who did you go with on the other two occasions ? I went alone.
11664. Did you know Vera Reece by the name of Rita ? No, Vera.
11665. Are you quite sure you did not go to the dentist's with any other girl but Vera;—is she the only other girl you went with ? I think she was the only other girl.
11666. Just think for a moment;—I would like you to be certain;—I mean to the dentist's ? No; I do not remember any other girl.
11667. You say you went to the dentist's six times;—when was it you went ? About three years ago.
11668. Was that the last time ? Yes.
11669. You spoke of going to the dentist's once when you were 14, and now you are 21;—the time would be running over five years ? I think it was about three years ago.
11670. By the way, this Mr. Wright you speak of having gone with once, was he living with your mother at the same time as Vera ? No, he was the only one in the house besides Mr. Jones.
11671. Was Vera staying in the house at the same time as Mr. Wright ? No, I do not think so.
11672. Assuming that your memory is right, that you only went to the dentist's with one girl, cannot you remember going with any other girl ? No, I do not think so.
11673. Assuming you are right, did you, or that girl, give the dentist the address of that girl as at your mother's address; either you or the girl in your presence ? I cannot say.
11674. Did you ever give the address of the girl as Rita ? We both gave the same address.
11675. You did give the address ? Yes, my mother's address.
11676. Did you, or the girl in your presence, tell the dentist that the name of the girl was Rita ? No, she said Miss Reece in my presence.
11677. Did you ever see any account delivered to this Miss Reece ? No; I do not know.
11678. Did the charges all go in one bill ? No, mine came alone. 11679.

Mrs.
M. Dean.
11 June, 1895.

11679. Are you certain of that? Yes.
11680. You mean certain as far as your memory serves you? Yes.
11681. Is it not a fact that either you or this girl told the dentist that her name was Rita, with your mother's address, in your presence? No, she did not in my presence.
11682. You are certain of that? Yes, positive.
11683. Is that girl you call Reece, Rita? I do not know her by the name of Rita.
11684. Can you explain to these gentlemen how you came to adopt the name of Rita if you didn't know anybody by the name of Rita; how do you account for adopting the name of Rita? Only by George Pegg calling me Rita. He was the only one called me by that name.
11685. Didn't I ask you if you ever knew a girl by the name of Rita and you said "No"; if you ever went by the name of Rita, and you said, "No." Didn't you say so this morning? Yes.
11686. Didn't I draw your attention to your girl and boy friends? It is so many years ago that I had forgotten.
11687. Just tell me now, didn't you send that poetry to Frank? I do not remember who I sent it to.
11688. You heard me read one letter;—is it not a fact that you were once in love with Frank? Yes.
11689. Is it not a fact that you sent that poetry to Frank;—have you any doubt whether you did or not? I dare say I did.
11690. You called yourself Rita Seymour there? Decidedly.
11691. Were any of your clothes marked Rita? No.
11692. When you speak of Mr. Wright can you remember him at all? Yes.
11693. He was a dark man? Yes.
11694. Was he black or very dark? Very dark.
11695. Was he a coloured man? Yes, he had a dark skin.
11696. Of course you have seen very dark Australians;—wasn't he man of black blood? Yes; he had black curly hair.
11697. He was a black man? Yes.
11698. You would describe him as a coloured Indian gentleman? Yes, an Indian.
11699. Mr. Pilcher.] Do you remember a girl named Dora living with your mother? No, I do not.
11700. Do you say you do not? No, I do not.
11701. Do you remember another girl named Ada Thompson living with your mother? Yes, I remember Ada Thompson.
11702. But you do not remember Dora? No, I do not.
11703. You said last night that you went, after your husband was committed for trial, and before he was tried, to see a Madame Von, a clairvoyant? Yes, I did.
11704. Did you know her as Madame Von? Yes; that is the name I saw in the paper, and she had it on a card in the window.
11705. Did you pay Madame Von any money? Yes.
11706. How much did you pay her for that consultation? One shilling.
- President.*] That is cheap enough.
- Sir Julian Salomons.*] I should think it was dear at any price.
11707. Mr. Pilcher.] Can you tell me from memory exactly what you said to Madame Von, and what Madame Von said to you in reply; just tell me in your own words, and in your own way, what conversation took place? She asked me if I was married. I said, "Yes, I am." She then said, "You have two or three children?" I said, "No; I have only one." She said, "Sit down," and I sat down. She then got the cards, she cut the cards, and then asked me questions as to where I lived, and other questions about myself. I then said to her, "I came here for you to tell me, and not for me to tell you." Then she told me a lot of nonsense which I do not remember.
11708. Is that all that took place between you? Yes, that is practically all.
11709. And for that did you pay her a shilling? Yes.
11710. Will you tell me this, Mrs. Dean: During the interval between your husband's committal, on a charge which you have already admitted involved his life, and the trial itself, can you tell me any reason in the world why you went to see that clairvoyant? [No answer.]
11711. Can you give me any reason whatever why you went to see that clairvoyant; you may give me any reason you like? From curiosity, to see what she could tell me.
11712. Is that the only reason you can give now? Yes.
11713. I suppose, Mrs. Dean, you knew at the time you went to that clairvoyant that your husband was committed to stand his trial on a very serious charge? Yes.
11714. The father of your child? [Witness burst out crying, and broke down.—After a pause.]
11715. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you now well enough to go on, Mrs. Dean? Yes.
11716. While your husband was in gaol did you obtain from him an order to get his pay, which was owing by the North Shore Steam Ferry Company? No; it was not an order for his pay.
11717. What was it for then? It was an order for his watch and chain, and some money.
11718. Was this property lying with the Steam Ferry Company? No; it was at the North Shore Police Court, not with the Ferry Company.
11719. Do you say it was at the Police Court at North Shore? Yes.
11720. Had these articles and money been taken from him when he was arrested? Yes.
11721. How much money was there? £3 15s.
11722. And the watch and chain? Yes.
11723. And did you get both the money and the watch and chain? Yes.
11724. Sir Julian Salomons.] From the Police Court at North Sydney? Yes.
11725. And it was after he was arrested that you obtained these articles? Yes.
11726. Did you also send an order for him to sign, for you to obtain his money from the Bank—from the Savings Bank? Yes; I did.
11727. Did you send an order to him in gaol? Yes; I did.
11728. In what Bank did you say he had his money—was it the Savings Bank? Yes.
11729. President.] And did he sign this order for you? No, sir; I did not receive the order back.
11730. Mr. Pilcher.] But you did get an order for the money, and the watch and chain which you obtained from the Police Court at North Sydney? Yes.

11731.

- Mrs.
M. Dean.
11 June, 1895.
11731. Who took the order to the gaol when you wanted your husband to assign to you the money he had in the Savings Bank? I sent it in a letter.
- 11732-33. I am under the impression (correct me if I am wrong) that Dr. Manning asked you whether you continued to take the morphia mixture after the 4th January.
- Dr. Manning.*] She said he gave her one dose of it, and she is not sure whether she took another dose next morning.
11734. Mr. Pilcher.] Are you quite certain you did not take any more of the morphia mixture after the 4th of January? No; that was the only mixture I had with morphia in it.
11735. And what became of the bottle in which that morphia mixture was? Mr. Dean threw it away.
11736. Have you been asked how much water you added to the lemon-syrup on the Saturday morning? Yes.
11737. Dr. Todd.] [Producing the glass used on that occasion.] Do you see this glass: Did you put the lemon-syrup in that, and then fill up the glass with water? Yes; I filled up the glass.
11738. Mr. Pilcher.] By the way, we have heard that the furniture was shifted to a house somewhere in Paddington? Yes, it was, and I went over there the morning before.
11739. In removing this furniture from North Sydney to Paddington, what was your intention? I was going to live there with my mother. But we were taking Mrs. Lee to Paddington to take care of the house until I came out of the hospital.
11740. Was Mrs. Lee going to live with you? I do not know what arrangement was come to between my mother and Mrs. Lee.
11741. You don't know anything at all about that? No.
11742. How long have you known Mrs. Lee? Before I was married I knew her.
11743. Was Mrs. Lee at your wedding? No, sir.
11744. Where did your furniture go to from the house it was first taken to at Paddington? I do not know where. I have been in the hospital all the time since then.
11745. Do you know where the furniture is now? My mother has stored it somewhere, but I don't know where.
11746. Did you give any directions to have that furniture shifted? Yes; I gave my mother leave to remove the furniture from Paddington.
11747. Remove the furniture to where? I do not know where.
11748. And you don't know where it is now? No; I do not.
11749. You say you knew Mrs. Lee before you were married—do you know that she kept a brothel? No, sir; I did not know that.
11750. President.] Do you know what sort of a place "Brunswick Cottage" was? No; but I often went there to see my mother.
11751. Have you ever seen anything to excite your suspicion there? No; I only saw Mrs. Sexton there.
11752. Did you not really know what sort of a place it was? No, sir.
11753. Nor what sort of a person Mrs. Lee was? No; I thought she was a married woman.
11754. Where was her husband then? I don't know, I seldom saw him.
11755. Mr. Pilcher.] Was he not living with her as far as you know? He used to come over for tea.
11756. Have you seen him? Yes.
11757. And what was he like when he came over for tea? Rather tall.
11758. Was he a young man? Yes.
11759. Do you think he was a good deal younger than Mrs. Lee? Yes.
11760. A smart young chap? Yes.
11761. A well-dressed young man? He was tidily dressed.
11762. I mean he was not dressed like a labouring man? Oh, no. I mean he was tidily dressed; I should think he was in an office, or something of that sort.
11763. How much younger was he than Mrs. Lee, do you think? I cannot say exactly.
11764. How old is Mrs. Lee? About 29.
11765. And about what, do you think, is his age? About 25.
11766. By the way, was Mrs. Lee at your house on Tuesday, the 5th of March? Yes, she was.
11767. And did she give you any jelly tablets on that day? Yes.
11768. What were they like;—had you ever taken any before? You buy them from the little grocer's shop, and make jelly from them.
11769. Do you mean that they are sweets? Yes.
11770. Confectionery sweets, and things of that kind? Well, you can buy them at the grocers' shops; I know that.
11771. Can you tell me the name they were known by? Yes; jelly tablets.
11772. Are they acid to the taste? They are different coloured and flavoured, such as lemon, raspberry, and so on.
11773. Do you say they have different flavours? Yes.
11774. What flavour were those you ate that morning? They were lemon.
11775. Do I understand that on that same Tuesday Mrs. Lee gave you food? No. I could not eat anything; I only had the jelly.
11776. Did you drink lime-water and milk? Yes; I had a drink of milk.
11777. Did Mrs. Lee give you whatever you had? Yes.
11778. You remember on the Monday—correct me if I am wrong—when you, in your wrapper, came downstairs and went to Mrs. Adye's? Yes.
11779. On that day do you remember whether Mr. Dean had got a feeding-bottle for the baby? Yes.
11780. Had he got that feeding-bottle when you went out? Yes; Mr. Dean got it after breakfast-time that morning.
11781. Had he got it before you went out in your wrapper? Yes, before I went out; he got it after breakfast.
11782. It is not correct then, that Dean was out getting the feeding-bottle from the chemist's when you went in your wrapper to Mrs. Adye's? No; he was lying on the bed when I went out.
11783. It is not correct then, that Hans Bach was nursing the baby downstairs when you went out to Mrs. Adye's? He was nursing her after breakfast-time, I think.

11784. Was he nursing it later on during the morning? They had the baby downstairs while I had my breakfast.
11785. But what I mean is: Did he nurse it after breakfast, through the morning? It was just after breakfast.
11786. Did you have your breakfast about 8 o'clock? Yes.
11787. Did you ever take part in any theatrical performance? No, never.
11788. Did you ever play in any pantomime? No.
11789. Not in any part at all? No.
11790. Had Mr. Wright anything to do with the theatre? No.
11791. Had he anything at all to do with Her Majesty's Theatre? No, not that I know of.
11792. And you never took any part in any pantomime? No; I was never on the stage in my life.
11793. I suppose you have been to a pantomime? Oh, yes.
11794. You said, did you not, that you had been to several clairvoyants? Yes.
11795. Did you go to more than one clairvoyant between the time your husband was committed and his trial? No; I only went to one.
11796. Have you been to any clairvoyant since the trial? No.
11797. How long was it before your husband's committal that you went to the clairvoyant? About a week.
11798. Was that after he was arrested? Yes.
11799. And before his trial? Yes; before his trial at Darlinghurst.
11800. What I want to know is, how long before you were at Madame Von's, is it since you had been to any other clairvoyant or fortune-teller? Madame Von is the only one I have been to.
11801. Do you mean that you went to her more than once? No; only the once.
11802. Did you not say this morning, or yesterday, to a member of this Commission that you had been to several clairvoyants—I want you now to clearly understand my question: Have you been to any other fortune-teller than Madame Von? No.
11803. Did you not say that you had been to several fortune-tellers? Yes; but I meant not since my marriage.
11804. Sir Julian Salomons.] This Frank Brereton whom you wrote the letters to—who is he? He is a young gentleman I went to a dance with.
11805. Is he the son of the late Dr. Brereton? I do not know.
11806. Do you know what he did—what was his occupation? He was learning cutting at a tailor's.
11807. And this George Clement or Pegg—what was he? He was in a confectioner's shop.
11808. Do you know if they are both in Sydney now? Yes.
11809. I notice on the top of one of these letters, or poetry, it is written, "Arranged by Rita Seymour";—do you remember seeing any such a thing as the following lines in any book? I think I composed it myself.
11810. President.] I asked you a long while ago, early this morning, if you knew anyone named Rita, and I asked you the same question yesterday, do you remember? Yes.
11811. Why, then, did you not tell me, that sometimes you called yourself Rita? It is so many years ago, that I had quite forgotten it until I saw the letter.
11812. Do you mean to say that you had entirely forgotten that until the letters were shown to you? Yes; that is right.
11813. Four years ago, would you not be 17 years of age? Yes.
11814. And you had forgotten that when you were that age you called yourself "Rita"? Yes; I had forgotten all about that.
11815. I suppose you have written more than one letter to that young man Brereton? Yes; I don't remember how many.
11816. But a good many, I suppose, when you thought yourself in love with him? Yes.
11817. Used he to write to you? Yes.

[Witness withdrew.]

Cornelius Charles Marshall sworn and examined:—

11818. Mr. Pilcher.] I believe you are a dentist, carrying on business in Elizabeth-street, Sydney? I am.
11819. Amongst your patients have you had Miss Mary Seymour? Yes.
11820. Amongst other things, did you extract a number of Miss Mary Seymour's teeth? Yes; I attended her for several years.
11821. Do you remember going to her mother's house to stop the bleeding of the gums? Yes.
11822. Do you remember calling in some other doctor for the administration of chloroform or some other anæsthetic? Yes.
11823. When was that? About three years ago, I think. I cannot give you the exact date.
11824. Did she sometimes come to your surgery to see you? Yes.
11825. On any of the occasions when she came to see you was she accompanied by another young lady? Yes; another young lady came there with her, from the same address.
11826. More than once? Two or three times, I think.
11827. With Mary Seymour? Yes; she came once, but I won't be certain how many times she came with Mary Seymour. I think she came the first time with Mary Seymour; she came several times, but whether with Mary Seymour more than once, I cannot say for certain.
11828. On the occasion she came with Mary Seymour, did she come from the same address? Yes.
11829. How do you know that? She gave me the same address; both said they came from No. 413, Riley-street.
11830. What name did this young lady give? Miss Rita.
11831. Is this the bill [produced] you sent to Miss Rita? Yes.
11832. Is that copied from your book? Yes. And if we had the book, there would be nothing more in it than there is on this bill.
11833. Sir Julian Salomons.] Is that bill copied from your book? Yes; it is an exact copy of the entry in the book. The entry is as follows:—

Miss Rita, c/o Mrs. Seymour, 413, Riley-street, Surry Hills.

February 5th, 1890.—To up gold plate—To exts. gas, £2 2s. Paid on February 14th, £1. 19th, £1 2s.

C. C.
Marshall.
31 June, 1895.

11834. Mr. Pilcher.] This young lady gave the name of Miss Rita, and her address at Mrs. Seymour's, 413, Riley-street? Yes.
11835. President.] And she came to you with Miss Seymour, now Mrs. Dean? Yes.
11836. Mr. Pilcher.] Must she have come two or three times to have done what is stated in the bill? Yes.
11837. And you only remember her coming once with Miss Seymour? Yes.
11838. But she might have come at other times with Miss Seymour, and you not remember? Yes.
11839. What was this Miss Rita like? It is so long ago that I do not recollect.
11840. Was she a very pretty girl? I think she was a nice looking girl, as far as I remember. One does not remember such things distinctly.
11841. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was she respectable in her manner or not when she came to you? I recollect nothing otherwise.
11842. I think you say you remember Miss Seymour coming once with Miss Rita? Yes.
11843. You only remember once, and will you swear which was the day you refer to, because you say Miss Rita was there several times? I cannot tell you for certain.
11844. Did you not say it was about three years ago? Yes.
11845. And as a matter of fact does not your bill say February, 1890? Yes.
11846. So then was it not more than five years since Miss Rita was there? Yes; but what I meant was that it was three years since Miss Seymour was there. She was there after Miss Rita.
11847. Do you only recollect Miss Seymour coming once with Rita? Yes.
11848. President.] Was Miss Rita older than Mary Seymour? Yes; Miss Seymour was quite a girl.
11849. Sir Julian Salomons.] And how old was Miss Rita when she came to you? A young woman about 18 or 20.
11850. Who was the first to speak to you about this "Rita" matter in connection with this inquiry? I think Mr. Moodie came and asked me about it.
11851. When? A couple of weeks ago.
11852. Can you tell me who made that entry in your book? That I could not say.
- Then I will have to trouble you to bring your book here. [Book subsequently produced and entry pointed out.]
11853. Sir Julian Salomons.] Whose writing is that? A clerk I had in my employ at the time, named Craven.
11854. Where is he now? I do not know.
11855. Will you show me Miss Seymour's account in your book? It is on page 102, dated 30th January.
11856. Is that the only entry you can find of Miss Rita? Yes.
11857. And on that day there is no entry about Mary Seymour? No; but I remember her coming with Miss Seymour.
11858. President.] There was some girl came with her called Miss Rita? Yes.
11859. And the entry in your book is "Rita, Miss, care of Mrs. Seymour"? Yes.
11860. Mr. Pilcher.] And unless there was something done to Miss Seymour on the day she was there with Miss Rita, there would be no entry in your book against Miss Seymour? No.
11861. President.] But you have an entry against Miss Seymour? Yes; on folio 102, on 30th January.
11862. Mr. Pilcher.] What is the address of Miss Seymour given there? "Care of Mr. Wright, 413, Riley-street." There is another entry of Miss Seymour's, 413, Riley-street, and opposite her name are written the words "old patient."

President. It is quite plain that these are two distinct people.

[Witness withdrew.]

WEDNESDAY, 12 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 10 a.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade, appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. M. Todd (instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher), appeared for George Dean.

Mr. William Mogford Hamlet, Esq., recalled:—

W. M.
Hamlet, Esq.
12 June, 1895

11863. President.] I believe, Mr. Hamlet, you have made some experiments that you can repeat here by adding liquor bismuthi (Schacht's) to lime-water and milk;—can you do that? Yes. [Witness makes the experiment.] (1.) I take a test tube containing some liquor bismuthi. I have the bismuth compound in the test tube and I add some pure lime-water, and the lime-water produces turbidity or a milkiness in it. If I add milk it increases the turbidity and makes it quite dense or opaque. (2.) I take some milk and I add some lime-water and I shake it, and I throw it away and add a little liquor bismuthi, about three drops of the bismuth, and there is a milkiness at the bottom of the tumbler.
11864. Dr. Manning.] I raised some doubt as regards the solubility of strychnine in lemon-syrup. I made an experiment, but I got a thicker lemon-syrup, and asked Mr. Hamlet to get the same brand of lemon-syrup and try the experiment himself, and he finds that it is soluble? The lemon-syrup I experimented with was purchased by Inspector Cotter since I was examined here. It is not yellow-tinged at all—this is some of it [showing bottle].
11865. Mr. Pilcher.] Is that what was in the original bottle? Yes; there was a small quantity of water, slightly weaker than the original. It was not so strong as the lemon-syrup I have now from the shop. They are, however, the same brand. It simply consists of tartaric acid, essence of lemon, sugar, and water.
11866. President.] I have been asked to ask you this question: "Have you seen the night-gown Mrs. Dean wore?" Yes; I saw it when I was last examined.
11867. Have you seen it since? No. [Night-gown produced.]

11868.

11868. I want you to tell me if it was worn inside out, looking at where you would see the marks of perspiration round the neck? Yes; I see the perspiration-marks.
11869. Is that on the inside, as if put on properly, or on the outside? I think equally as regards inside or outside, because the stain permeated the collar all through. I believe it was worn inside out; I came to that conclusion when I first examined it.
11870. Or, rather, outside in? Yes, outside in.
11871. Sir Julian Salomons.] You have looked at the armpits? Yes; it is quite clean. There are slight signs of wear on the present outside. Here (looking at night-dress) it has the ordinary appearance under the arm—the perspiration-marks have gone right through right under the armpits.
11872. Mr. Pileher.] The stain goes right through? Yes. The crucial test is that the signs of wear on the cuff are on the outside, the proper inside, and the proper outside is perfectly clean. Besides, here are stains of mucous from the nose, nasal discharge, on one of the sleeves, on what is at present the outside.
11873. Dr. Manning.] Your conclusion is that it was worn inside out? Yes.
11874. Dr. Todd.] Why do you say that is mucous;—is it not the same as the stain below? No; it has the appearance of pus, or a purulent discharge from the nasal organ.
11875. Is there any way to determine, by this stain of sweat under the armpits, which side they were? If the texture is thick enough, the perspiration-stains are on the inside of the garment—the side next the skin.
11876. But that is merely by naked-eye appearance? And, as a matter of fact, it would permeate.
11877. What is the chemical test? The chemical test is the presence of sebaceous acid. I cannot swear which side it would be deposited on.

[Witness withdrew.]

Bernard James Newmarch, Esq., M.R.C.S., Eng., L.R.C.P., Lond., sworn and examined:—

11878. Dr. Manning.] Dr. Newmarch, you attended Mrs. Dean during her confinement? Yes.
11879. Had you seen her before this at all? She came with her mother to engage me for the confinement, I think, about two months previously.
11880. Was that the only time you saw her before the confinement? Yes; the only time before the confinement.
11881. Were there any special urticarial troubles which would account for the headache and sleeplessness? She had a long confinement, but a perfectly natural one. There was no instrumental delivery.
11882. The antiseptic tabloids and boracic acid were used in the usual course of events? Yes; I always use them. I think she had a slight rupture of the perineum, which I stitched.
11883. Dr. Jones.] Did you prescribe for her at all before the confinement? I do not remember doing so.
11884. Dr. Manning.] You stated in your depositions that you attended Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour for vomiting and purging on the Sunday after the confinement? I think that was a mistake. I think it was on the 3rd or 4th of January. That was a mistake in the date. She had vomiting on the 4th.
11885. Then on January 3rd you prescribed the mixture containing morphia? Yes.
11886. Under what circumstances was that given? She was very restless, and had acute pain due to toothache, and she could get no sleep.
11887. Do you know how many doses of the morphia she took? I think they told me two or three. They told me on the following morning that she was relieved somewhat of the pain, but that she vomited after each dose of the medicine. She could not keep it on her stomach.
11888. And in consequence of that? In consequence of that I ordered an effervescent medicine—containing dilute hydrocyanic acid.
11889. At the time she had this vomiting, was there any mention of purging? They told me that she had two or three loose stools.
11890. The purging was not sufficient to attract any marked attention? No.
11891. Not sufficient to prevent you from prescribing tartrate of soda? Tartrate of soda a purgative!
11892. Is it not? No.
11893. The purge was slight? Yes; I am positive it was not caused by the tartrate of soda. She had no purging or vomiting before that.
11894. She had vomiting after taking the morphia, and was there any purging after taking the morphia? The mother told me she had two or three loose stools.
11895. The purging was not marked? No.
11896. Dr. Jones.] Did you see any of the matter? No.
11897. Dr. Manning.] Was Mrs. Seymour ill at this time? Mrs. Seymour told me on the morning of the 4th that Mrs. Dean had been vomiting after each dose of the medicine. I said it might have been caused by the action of the morphia, as it has a peculiar action on certain people, and I thought that it might have been caused by the morphia mixture. The old woman turned and said, "I don't think that is right, doctor, because I have been ill too," or words to that effect.
11898. In what way was Mrs. Seymour ill? She implied that she had been ill in the same way as her daughter. I asked her if she had been very bad, and she said, "Not very bad; but I do not think your theory is right." She rather laughed it down: I mean the idea that the morphia had caused it.
11899. At all events you did not prescribe for Mrs. Seymour? No.
11900. Her illness was not sufficient to call for your attention? I took no notice of it at all.
11901. You ceased attending Mrs. Dean on the 10th? Yes.
11902. I gather you prescribed the tonic mixture on the 8th? Yes.

11903.

- B. J. Newmarch, Esq., M.R.C.S., Eng., L.R.C.P., Lond.
12 June, 1895.
11903. Can you fix the date on which Dean came to you to pay your account? Yes; on the 14th of January.
11904. Did he tell you anything then? He asked me for his account, which had not been sent in. I gave it to him, and he paid it, and then he asked me to give him some medicine for Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour. He asked me to give him a prescription for vomiting and purging, as his wife and the old lady were had again as before. I remember the "as before" business, because I was in a bit of doubt what I prescribed for them both. I did not remember prescribing for the old woman, and I was rather in doubt as to what I had given. I remembered the vomiting of Mrs. Dean, and as he said "vomiting and purging" I thought I would give them the mixture which I believe you have before you—a mixture of bismuth and opium. I asked him if I should call, and he said that there was no necessity, but that if they got worse he would let me know.
11905. Did he give you any cause for this attack? No; I think he mentioned that they had taken something that disagreed with them. I honestly thought I had given that medicine before. He asked me, I think, for the same prescription, and I thought that I had prescribed that mixture before, as it is a favourite one of mine.
11906. Did you give any directions about lime-water and milk? No, I did not. She had lime-water and milk on the 4th.
11907. Then you gave some directions on the 4th? Yes.
11908. Did you attend the baby at all at this time;—you did not see it on the 14th;—did you see it before? I do not think I had.
11909. But it was not ill? No.
11910. Not a word was said to you on the 14th about this illness? No, not a word.
11911. You were called to see Mrs. Dean on Monday, the 4th of March? Yes.
11912. And you did not see or hear anything of her in the meantime? No, not a word.
11913. What diagnosis did you form of the illness of the 4th of March? I thought it was due to her having taken something which disagreed with her, probably ptomane-poisoning. I asked her first, "What have you taken—anything to disagree with you?" and I went over what she had taken, to try and fix on something that had disagreed with her.
11914. Did she tell you anything about the lemon-syrup on Monday? Not at all; she denied having taken anything to disagree with her; she could give me no reason for the attack.
11915. Did she say anything about cocoa and other things that morning? She told me what she had taken in the day, but when she said cocoa or tea I could not fix in my mind that that would disagree with her. I was looking for sausages, or pork, or tinned meat, or something of that character.
11916. Who was present at this time? Mrs. Weynton was present.
11917. Did you take the temperature? Yes.
11918. What was the temperature? Below normal.
11919. What were your instructions as regards the treatment on that night? That she was only to have very small quantities of milk and lime-water, or milk and soda-water.
11920. You did mention lime-water again on that night? Yes, on that night, and that she was to have nothing else at all, but perhaps half a teaspoonful of brandy and water; but nothing else was to pass her lips.
11921. What time did you see her? I can fix that exactly, because I ordered my buggy round at 8 o'clock after seeing my patients at my house, and it would take me about 10 minutes to drive up to Dean's. It was, therefore, from 10 minutes to a quarter past 8.
11922. What time did you get the lemon-syrup? Gail brought it to me between 9 and 10 p.m. on the Monday.
11923. Can you tell us if Gail hinted to you or gave you to understand that Mrs. Dean was being poisoned at that time? Most decidedly; he came in in a rather mysterious way and asked me if I would test the contents of the bottle. I said, "What for; what do you mean?" I cannot bind myself to the exact words used, but I will give you the effect of the conversation. He seemed very mysterious with reference to this bottle. I said, "Who is it; what is it for; give me some particulars. I am not going to test it unless I know who it is for. What do you suspect?" He said, "It is a patient of yours." I said, "Who?" He said, "Someone who you have attended to-night." I said, "What, Mrs. Dean?" He said, "Yes." I said, "What do you think is in the bottle?" and he said that he had an idea that Mr. Dean was trying to poison his wife. I told him that that was a very serious matter, and I rather resented it, and I asked him, "What business is that of yours?"
11924. When you went on the Tuesday, then, you went with this information in your hand? I did, but I did not believe it. I paid little attention to his statement. I thought it a piece of gross interference on Gail's part. I thought that he wanted to do Dean an injury behind his back. I took the bottle and locked it up in my cupboard, and said that I would make my own inquiries.
11925. President.] Why did you think that? I did not like Gail's manner. He had a suspicious manner when he came in. I thought it was interference between a man and his wife. I had never seen the man before. I did not like the suspicious sort of way he had of talking about it. I thought he had some designs upon Mrs. Dean. I thought he was trying to get Dean out of the way, or some wretched thing like that; that the accusation was made against Dean for some other purpose; that it was a matter of policy.
11926. Dr. Jones.] On the Monday evening, did you see the vomit matter? No; there was a smell of vomit in the room, and the bed-clothes were stained with vomit.
11927. Did you see the motion? No.
11928. President.] How is it you did not see it? I do not think it was there; I was never shown it.
11929. Dr. Jones.] Did she vomit in your presence? No.
11930. Did you give instructions for the vomit to be preserved for you? No.
11931. Did the possibility of Mrs. Dean having influenza occur to you at that time? Yes, it did occur to me. I read and heard of it. There were one or two ways in which I thought it might be that myself. I had a good many cases of gastro-intestinal inflammation at the time, and I was questioning myself as to whether they were due to influenza or not. I looked upon gastro-intestinal influenza as a vague thing.
11932. You rejected that? I took the temperature. There was none of that acute backache, none of the usual symptoms of influenza—high temperature and other general symptoms.

11933. Sir Julian Salomons.] What did you say about vomiting? That the bed-clothes were stained on the sheet, and that there was a smell of vomit in the room.

11934. Dr. Jones.] But there was no vomiting in your presence? No.

11935. Dr. Manning.] You saw Mrs. Dean again on the Tuesday morning? Yes; I saw her on the Tuesday morning, about twenty minutes to 9 o'clock, I should think.

11936. Will you state what took place. You know, I suppose, there is some difference of testimony on this point? When I went there, as far as I can recollect, I walked straight upstairs. I have no recollection of Dean being in the room at the time, but I won't swear that he was not there. I have positively no recollection of his being there. Mrs. Dean told me that she had been worse, that she had been vomiting incessantly. I asked what she had been taking, and the first thing I saw was an empty saucer by her bedside, and I concluded that she had taken tea, and that my instructions had not been carried out. A woman was there whom I did not recognise till afterwards, a Mrs. Thompson. She was sitting on a chair or low stool, washing and dressing the baby. I asked Mrs. Dean what she had been taking, and she referred to this tea. She confessed that she had taken tea, and I soundly rated her and Mrs. Thompson too. I said, "Those are not my instructions, if you give her tea you must expect the vomiting to continue." Mrs. Thompson retaliated, and said she had not been in charge of the patient, and I apologised to her. I examined Mrs. Dean, and I am almost positive that Mrs. Thompson turned round and said to Mrs. Dean, "Why don't you tell the doctor about this stuff you took or what you took in the lemon-syrup," or words to that effect. I said, "Never mind about that, I have the bottle myself." I am almost positive Mrs. Thompson said that; if anybody said it Mrs. Thompson did, "Why don't you tell the doctor about this stuff you have taken in the lemon-syrup?" I now know it was Mrs. Thompson, or rather I did not know it was Mrs. Thompson till about two or three weeks ago, I did not recognise her although I confined her, because she was dressed differently, and when I saw her before she was in bed. I said "Hello, here is somebody else knows something about this syrup." I thought there had been some conversation about it. I did not want to have any conversation on this matter except with the principals. I then asked for some paper to prescribe for her, and it was then I believe that Dean came into the room. If I remember rightly he came with the paper, as there was none in the room and he brought it up from downstairs. I wrote the prescription, and I think very shortly afterwards left the room. Either just before leaving the room or just after—I think it was in the room—I said to Dean, "No wonder your wife is worse, you have not carried out my instructions with regard to the diet and so on." He said, "Well, doctor, she has been having tea, but she would have it." I said, "Well you apparently gave it to her and you should not have done so." I thought I had the culprit who gave the tea, and I was rather inclined to be angry with him, because it was directly in opposition to what I told him, and the fact of her being worse was due to the diet not being carried out according to my instructions.

11937. Did you have any conversation with Dean about this bottle on Tuesday? None whatever. I swear positively that Dean had no conversation with me with regard to that bottle of lemon-syrup on the Tuesday.

11938. Is it true or not that he was lying on the bed when you went there? That scene occurred on the Wednesday.

11939. President.] Are you sure of that? I am absolutely certain.

11940. Have you seen, in the paper, Mrs. Thompson's evidence? I am absolutely positive of it, that that scene occurred at night, and the only time I visited her at night was on the Wednesday night. I am as positive of that as I am of being here now.

11941. You are absolutely certain of it? Yes.

11942. And Mrs. Thompson was wrong then? I do not know whether Dean was in the room or on the bed on the Tuesday, but the scene I described of Dean fanning his wife lying on the bed, and the woman lying there with her eyes closed, pale, and I thought dying, that occurred on the Wednesday night.

11943. Did you see any stool or vomit on the Tuesday morning? No.

11944. Did you give any directions as regards these being kept for you? No, I did not.

11945. Did you alter your diagnosis by this time at all? I cannot but say that I thought the symptoms were more suspicious. I recognised that it was quite possible that some irritant poison had been taken, and on thinking over the matter I decided to give the bottle to Inspector Cotter.

11946. Did you take the temperature on Tuesday morning? No.

11947. Did you take the temperature on the Wednesday? Yes.

11948. What was the temperature? Below normal.

11949. There was no rise of temperature throughout this illness? No; I took it several times.

11950. You saw her again on the Wednesday morning? Yes.

11951. Who was present on the Wednesday morning and what took place? Mrs. Seymour was present, and as far as I can recollect, no one else. It was on that morning that I thrashed the matter out. I asked them what their suspicions were aroused by, or why they had any suspicion at all of any poison; and I then explained the occurrence of Gail bringing the bottle to me. They then referred to the time when they were sick after the confinement; they mentioned the occurrence of some beef-tea they had both taken, and also the occurrence of some groats they had taken; and they also asked me if I had ordered a powder to be put in the medicine, and I said that I had not ordered any powder—that to the best of my knowledge I had not. And I told them that I would inquire to be quite sure. I said this because I was rather uncertain whether I ordered a calomel powder on the Monday night. I said "Do not say anything about this matter till I see you again." I went to Guise, the chemist, and said, "Did I order a calomel powder on Monday night, or any powder for Mrs. Dean?" and Guise looked up his book and said, "No, you did not, doctor." That brings me to the occurrence of the Thursday, but it was on the Wednesday that this conversation occurred.

11952. Did you have any interview with Dean on that Wednesday? No; that is a mistake.

11953. You described that at the trial as Wednesday, and in the depositions as Thursday? The depositions are right; it was on the 7th.

11954. That was Thursday? Yes.

11955. It was Thursday that you had the interview with Dean? Yes; I asked Guise on Wednesday to be perfectly certain. I knew I had not ordered the powder on the Thursday. On the Thursday they showed me the powders. I know it was on the Wednesday I had this conversation about the powders, because I went on Wednesday to find out whether I had ordered the powder.

- B. J. Newmarch, Esq., M.B.C.S., Eng., L.R.C.P., Lond.
12 June, 1895.
11956. You had this conversation with Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour on the Wednesday? Yes; quite right.
11957. It was not until Thursday you talked to Dean about it, after you had assured yourself you had not ordered any powder? Yes.
11958. When you went on Wednesday evening was any vomit shown to you then? No; she showed me some vomit on the Wednesday morning—Mrs. Seymour did.
11959. That was the first time? Yes.
11960. You never saw during the illness any vomit at all? Yes; I heard her vomit on the Wednesday morning.
11961. But not on the Wednesday evening? I did not.
11962. Sir Julian Salomons.] You heard Mrs. Dean vomit on the Wednesday morning? Yes; on Wednesday morning Mrs. Seymour came downstairs with me, and while downstairs we heard Mrs. Dean vomit, and Mrs. Seymour said, "Why, doctor, she is vomiting now."
11963. Dr. Manning.] Will you tell us what happened on the Wednesday evening;—did they send for you then? Yes.
11964. Who was present at that time? Dean was present, and Mrs. Seymour. I do not recollect anybody else being in the room.
11965. What time in the evening was it? About a quarter-past 11. I got the ferry-boat and arrived at my house about a quarter to 11, so that it would be about a quarter or half-past 11 at night.
11966. That was the occasion that Dean was lying on the bed? Yes; it was the occasion absolutely.
11967. This was at night-time, before he had gone to work? Yes; Dean was there; that I swear to. I cannot positively swear about the boat I caught, but I think I could find that out. I put it down in my notes as a quarter past 11 that I saw her.
11968. You have told us what occurred on the Thursday—that the depositions were right? Yes.
11969. On the Wednesday night what else occurred? Oh, then, it was on Wednesday I had this conversation with Dean.
11970. What about? How it occurred I am not quite clear. Dean asked me or I spoke to him about this poisoning business. As far as I can recollect, I said, "What is this about this poisoning; all this about putting something in a bottle, Dean;—what is it?" And he said, "Oh, doctor, they have accused me—that fellow next door accused me—of putting poison in the bottle. He has openly accused me of putting poison in the bottle." I said, "This is a very, very serious charge," and I said, "What is the meaning of it;—did you put it in," or something like that, and he said, "No, doctor. Have you tested the contents of the bottle?" I said, "No; I have not. It is in the hands of the police. They have it. It is out of my power now." He said, "I want you to find out what is in that bottle, and who put it there. Do your best," or words to that effect. He seemed very sincere and very anxious to have the thing discovered. He was very demonstrative about it. He said, "Find out what is in the bottle," or words to that effect.
11971. He was honestly sincere? Yes, as far as I can judge, he was absolutely earnest and sincere in that matter. He spoke earnestly, and at that time I was more than ever convinced that he was innocent. I was certain. I think Dean came down with me on that night, and this conversation occurred in the front room, just at the door.
11972. Sir Julian Salomons.] That was the first time that Dean mentioned poison to you? Yes; that was the first time. I was astonished that he knew anything about it. I told the women not to say a word about it, as we did not know what was in it. I said to them, "Don't go making any accusations against the man." I had not heard from the police what was in the bottle, and I thought it was a kick-up about nothing.
11973. President.] There was nothing about lime-water and milk on the Wednesday night? No; my conversation was limited to the subject of the lemon-syrup bottle.
11974. Dr. Manning.] What time did you see Mrs. Dean on Thursday morning? Some time between 11 and 1 o'clock.
11975. Who were present then? Only Mrs. Seymour, as far as I can recollect.
11976. Tell us what took place at that time? I remember telling Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour that I had given no powder. They said, "We have found the powders, doctor." I said, "What do you mean?" They had discovered a packet of powders and handed them to me. I must tell you they referred to this packet of powders on the Wednesday. They said that Mrs. Dean had picked up a packet of powders, and they thought that those were the powders that Dean had put into the medicine. They handed them to me, and I thought the thing was more than ever absurd, because I could see almost instantly that there was no arsenic or anything else that I knew of, of any consequence. In the whole quantity I did not think there was any deadly poison. As far as I believe, it was anti-pyrene. I took the powders in my hand downstairs, and showed them to Dean. He was downstairs asleep, and I woke him up, and I said, "Dean, what is this they say;—did you put any powder in your wife's medicine on Monday night?" He said, "No." I said, "Here are the powders; did you put them in or did you put any powder in your wife's medicine?" He said, "No." I went upstairs, and said, "He denies it." I then called Dean to come upstairs, and confronted him with his wife.
11977. That was on the Thursday morning? Yes.
11978. Sir Julian Salomons.] Who asked him to come upstairs? I did; I said, "Dean, did you put any powder in your wife's medicine on Monday night?" He said, "No, I did not," or he turned to his wife and said, "You know I did not." He denied it absolutely.
11979. What did she say then? There was a regular altercation between them. One said, "You did," and the other said, "I didn't," and so on. I really thought he was intoxicated. I woke him up, and he spoke in a very funny manner, as if he hardly knew what he was saying. I did not think he was in a fit state to speak, and he left the room. After he left the room I turned to Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean and I asked them, "Does he drink, or is he intoxicated?" Both of them stoutly denied this, and said that it was only his manner. They said, "You just woke him up out of his sleep."
11980. As far as you know, that might be so? Yes; that explained his conduct to me.
11981. Dr. Manning.] When you went downstairs did you speak to him again? No, I do not remember.
11982. There was no explanation about the glass with lime-water and milk? Not a word.
11983. You got some urine;—what date was that? I will look at my notes. I procured it on Sunday, the 10th.

11984. You did not draw that urine off? No, I did not; it was given to me.
11985. President.] When she said something about the powder, you say he steadily denied having put in any powder? He did.
11986. Did he say anything about what he had given the medicine in? No.
11987. Are you sure about that? Absolutely certain. It was simply a question of altercation; one said "You did," and the other said "I didn't"; one said, "Yes, you did," and the other said "You know I didn't"—one asserting it and the other denying it.
11988. Did she tell you what he had given the medicine in? She described the whole scene.
11989. Was it in a tumbler, or what? I believe it was a tumbler. She described the whole scene—the holding of the tumbler with his fingers round the glass, as if trying to hide something.
11990. You say with his fingers round the tumbler;—in what way do you mean; will you please tell me? [Tumbler produced] That is the way [witness holding the tumbler with the whole of the fingers of one hand round the glass]. She said his fingers were round the glass in this manner at the time he put in the powder on Monday night.
11991. Are you sure about that? This occurred before I went downstairs and woke Dean up. I have a perfect recollection of Mrs. Dean describing to me the way in which the tumbler was held.
11992. Are you sure she was talking about the medicine then? I will not swear that.
11993. Think whether you were talking of something else? I do not remember any explanation given about this powder business between the man and his wife.
11994. You say she described the way in which the tumbler was held? [Witness again described the method of holding the tumbler]. She described the scene to me of his putting his fingers round the tumbler like this, and putting something into the liquid, and, from her description, to hide what was in it. Whether it was in reference to this medicine business I will not say.
11995. Mr. Pilcher.] So far as I have heard your evidence this morning, I am under the impression that you understood from Mrs. Dean that she had accused Dean of putting powder in her medicine;—that is what you charged him with? Yes; she described several scenes.
11996. President.] She went back to other scenes—to the groat-time and beef-tea? Yes; perfectly true.
11997. That was on the Wednesday? Yes; possibly on the Thursday.
11998. Did she tell you anything about porter? Yes; she described the porter incident.
11999. Are you in any way mixing up the porter incident and the medicine incident with the tumbler? It is quite possible I am. Whatever discussions occurred, and the scenes she went through time after time, she certainly gave me the description of that herself.
12000. Did that refer to the porter or the powder? I cannot say. It did not occur to me before which.
12001. Dr. Manning.] What date was it when you got the urine and the night-dress? On the 10th.
12002. You got both on the same day? Yes.
12003. You did not draw off that urine? No, I did not.
12004. What account was given to you of how it was obtained;—who gave it to you? It was on the 9th that I asked for some urine, and I asked her to pass it while I was there, and the answer I received was that she had just passed her water.
12005. Who gave you that answer? Mrs. Dean. I said, "Let me have some water to test," and they gave it to me. On the Sunday I sent it up to the constable to try and get it analysed.
12006. When did you definitely make up your opinion that this was arsenical poisoning? On the Thursday, when I heard that arsenic was found in the bottle. I cast back my recollections to the occurrence of the accusation, and I thought that there was not the shadow of a doubt that the woman had been poisoned with arsenic.
12007. Dr. James.] In your evidence at the trial you say, "When the husband came on Tuesday morning, he said his wife was worse I saw her at 8.40. She was no worse generally, but the eyes were red and the stomach very tender";—did you observe anything else about the eyes? Only that the eyes were red and inflamed more like incipient conjunctivitis.
12008. Were the eyes swollen? Yes; the eyes were swollen as if she had been crying badly.
12009. Did you at any time during Mrs. Dean's illness observe any signs of alcoholism? No.
12010. Or any signs of syphilis? No.
12011. Or any signs of lead-poisoning? No.
12012. Nothing of the kind? No.
12013. When did you first notice the symptoms of peripheral neuritis from which she is said to have suffered? When she came to me at the hospital. Dr. Rennie asked me at the trial the second or third day, the third day I think, when she was recalled. Passing down the Court Dr. Rennie said to me, "Has she any nervous symptoms or peripheral neuritis?" I said "No." He said, "She walks rather peculiarly," and then I noticed her gait, which was distinctly peculiar. I heard the day before she was admitted into the hospital, which turned out to be a rather exaggerated account, that she was lying paralysed, without medical attendance, and none to look after her, in what I knew to be a wretched place in Ryley-street, and out of compassion I made out an order for a bed at the North Shore Hospital. It was out of pure compassion I did this, and nothing else, as I heard that she was in an absolutely paralysed condition.
12014. Did you examine her carefully in the hospital? Yes.
12015. What was her condition then? I will read you my notes of the case:—

MARY DEAN, aged 21, admitted into North Shore Hospital, 19th April, 1895:—

Complains of numbness and pricking in fingers of both hands, especially at the ends of the digits—more marked in right than left hand. Complained also of loss of power over lower limbs with "pain in feet and ankles." Patient is thin, and has lost flesh considerably. Complexion clear, hair very thin over frontal and anterior parietal regions. Loss of extensor power, both ankles slightly marked, extensor power of toes also slightly lost especially left foot. Patient in bed when I examined her—did not further examine her. It was late, and she had not long been in the hospital and seemed tired. No dyspeptic symptoms, no gastritis or symptoms referable to derangement of alimentary canal. No puffiness of eyes.

April 20.—Patient gave following history. About a week previous to admission noticed sensation of "pins and needles" in feet only; the feet seemed "drawn up in a lump," she could walk but gave her pain as if pressing on a sore place—she got up and went about, but had to lay down to get ease. First noticed pricking in finger-tips two days previous to admission. Complains of pains round the ankle-joints of both feet—says the pain prevents her resting. On examination, loss of tactile sensibility over outer border of right foot, but not over rest of feet—feels prick of pin plainly.

Reflexes.—Ankle-clonus not marked; knee tendon reflexes apparently greatly exaggerated; faradic contractibility and faradic sensibility not affected; as a matter of fact no marked loss. Constant current, twenty cells, strong contraction muscles muscles both feet and legs. Walks with very peculiar gait, her heels firmly placed on ground, the toes strongly flexed and ankles bent—the feet are then pushed forward. She staggers and complains of pain when attempting to walk—appetite good—bowels opened once. Prescribed—ordered complete rest in bed—feet to be kept warm.

Pot. iodid. ʒ i.

April 21st.—Dr. Rennie examined case Faradic current—strong action of muscles of both legs and feet. No anesthesia, except over outer border of plantar surface—constant current—reaction not so marked. Complained bitterly of pain during examination. Pupils equal and react normally—pulse regular—urine acid, no albumen—no sugar—no lines on gums—no tenderness on mastication—tongue clean.

April 23.—No change—pain at night—ordered Glycerine of Belladonna on lint with friction of feet.

April 27.—No change, walks with great difficulty, but seems weak, as if inaction in bed had weakened muscles. Examined F.C.—Muscular contractions not so marked, but still quite evident. C.C.—Reaction quite marked.

May 1.—Does not complain so much—improvement in fingers—sleeps well—knee jerk ill marked. F.C. contraction well marked.

May 5.—No change—still walks with peculiar gait—sensation perfect—feet very cold.

May 12.—Feels pin prick plainly and locates well—faradic current normal reactions—extensor power of right foot deficient—not so marked deficiency left foot—tenderness over right anterior tibial nerve. F.C. and C.C. — apparently normal. When asked to walk, tottered and almost fell.

May 14.—Left North Shore Hospital to go to Sydney Hospital by request of Dr. Sydney Jones.

(Thermic chart.)

12016. Did you see or hear anything during the time you attended Mrs. Dean in her confinement or afterwards that would lead you to suppose that she and her husband were not living happily together? The only reference that was made to that, was a somewhat indirect reference. It was when she was ill and I gave her the morphia. She had had this sleeplessness. Mrs. Seymour told me that her daughter had suffered from restlessness a long time previous to her confinement, and I asked her the reason why, and she said that she had a very miserable life; that the husband was away all night, and came home to sleep all day, or something like that. That in her pregnant condition she was frequently lying awake at night with no one in the house, and she got restless attacks of insomnia. She made a slight reference to the fact that she was not very happy, but not a reference that I took much notice of. It struck me that it was more of a miserable sort of existence.

12017. Mr. Petcher.] You mean the fact of the husband being away all night and asleep all day? Yes.

12018. Dr. Manning.] Did you notice any symptoms of strychnine-poisoning while you were attending her? No, none whatever.

12019. Was the baby weaned at your suggestion? No.

12020. Were you shown the baby either on Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday? No.

12021. Were you told that it had been ill? Yes; I was told that it had been ill and had gone away.

12022. Did they explain in what way the baby had been ill? She told me that it was very ill on the Saturday, but I did not see it after the Tuesday morning.

12023. She did not tell you in what way the baby had been ill? She said it had turned black in the face or something to that effect.

12024. Can you tell us anything about the way in which the nightdress was worn? I did not see it on.

12025. When you examined the night-dress did you notice that it was inside out? It was on the 10th that I got it, and I saw, perhaps because I had never had a similar case before, I had omitted to get any vomit or any evidence I could catch hold of to establish the poison in the woman's system, and it occurred to me that perhaps the clothes had not gone to the wash, and I asked Mr. Seymour, "Have your clothes gone to the wash?" and she said, "No." I said, "Have you washed Mrs. Dean's soiled linen? if not, I want to see it," and she took me into another room and turned out a basket. I picked up the night-gown myself and looked at it and said, "It is very similar to the one Mrs. Dean has on; is it hers?" I took it into the room and showed it to Mrs. Dean, and she recognised it and I took it away with me.

12026. Did you recognise whether it was inside out or whether the buttons were on the inside or the outside? No, I did not.

12027. President.] The night-gown was got at your suggestion? Yes, absolutely at my suggestion.

12028. Not at Mrs. Seymour's suggestion? No, I picked it out myself.

12029. No one suggested it to you? No one picked it out. I picked it out myself. No one knew that I was going to ask for the night-dress. No one dreamt anything about it.

12030. Sir Julian Salomons.] You say that you were confounded with something about the porter? Yes.

12031. Did she tell you the whole of it? She gave me descriptive scenes of all the occurrences.

12032. Do you remember her telling you about his pressing the spoon against the side of the glass in connection with the powder? Yes, I cannot tell whether it was with reference to the porter or not. The details I remember were the description of how he held the glass and of his pressing or stirring something to the side of the glass. That I remember her distinctly telling me.

12033. That referred to a powder? I cannot say what it referred to.

12034. President.] Did she refer to his holding it and pressing on the same occasion? I really do not know, she described the scene.

12035. Did she describe the pressing of the spoon and the holding of the tumbler as part and parcel of the same thing? That I do not know. I remember the pressing of the spoon and her describing the powder floating on the liquid, but whether it was in connection with the glass I do not know.

12036. Sir Julian Salomons.] Do you remember her describing about the powder floating about, and his pressing the spoon against it? Yes.

12037. You remember that? Yes.

12038. But you do not remember the details about the porter and the medicine? No; I have not read her evidence.

12039. But I understand you are perfectly positive that he never said a word about this appearance having arisen from his having mixed it with lime water and milk, or anything of that kind? Yes, not a word.

12040. Are you perfectly certain of that, that he at the time (I am not talking about what he afterwards said to the police or to anyone else) ever gave any explanation to you about his wife saying there was a powder

B. J.
Newmarch,
Esq.,

powder in it—did he give the explanation that the reason she thought it was powder was because he had put it into a tumbler that had lime-water and milk in it? No, not a word.

12040. Are you certain of that? Absolutely certain.

12041. Now about the eyes. Do you remember her complaining about her eyes—about her eyes being suffused? Yes, about being red, and in a state of irritation.

12042. Was there anything about intolerance to light? No, nothing of that. Her eyes were red and inflamed looking.

12043. Is that what you mean by suffused? Yes.

12044. You said that when you saw Mr. Gail you treated it with contempt—you treated the whole thing with abhorrence? Yes; I did.

12045. Or any suspicion of that kind? Yes.

12046. Even afterwards you say you were satisfied that Dean was innocent? Absolutely.

12047. You gave some statement that you were quite clear it was a case of arsenical poisoning on the Thursday? Yes.

12048. Did you not say, doctor, that your sympathies were entirely with him? Yes, certainly.

12049. Did anything happen afterwards to alter your opinion? After what?

12050. As to its being a case of arsenical poisoning? No, not at all.

12051. Have you any doubt about it? No.

12052. President.] Had you any doubt that it was a case of arsenical poisoning? No doubt—not the slightest doubt.

12053. As far as you can judge, was the arsenic taken in large or small doses? Not in a very large dose, but in a poisonous dose. It would be difficult to answer that question without going into details. I mean to say that when arsenic is taken in large doses there is a good deal of vomiting. It is the amount of absorption of the poison that does the injury. A poisonous dose was absorbed—not the amount taken, but the amount absorbed.

12054. That was a poisonous dose? Yes.

12055. Of course with this vomiting anything more that might have been taken was thrown off? Yes.

12056. Sir Julian Salomons.] [Reading from Judge's notes at the Criminal Court, page 15—by a juror—Dr. Newmarch's evid-nee.] “Mrs. Dean told me on Tuesday that she thought prisoner had put poison in”—is that correct—was it Tuesday or Wednesday? Wednesday that was.

12057. You made some experiments I think upon yourself? Yes.

12058. It was taken in this way [Reading from Judge's notes, page 8—cross-examination.] “A person in ordinary health could not take twice the dose I could.” “A man may lose his life with half of what I took.” “I think a good many people could take $\frac{1}{2}$ a grain with safety”? That is absurd.

12059. What ought it to be? Could not take twice the dose I did.

12060. Is there anything else of that kind you would like to correct? Yes,—“A man may lose his life with half of what I took.” I remember distinctly stating “if repeated”; and that has been left out.

12061. President.] How do you mean? I mean if he kept on taking it in repeated doses.

12062. I understood Dr. Knaggs to say something about these doses of morphia. Have you read Dr. Knaggs' evidence? Yes.

12063. What is this supposed idea of your having given too much morphia? It is ludicrous; the dose was given to a woman who was in pain and could not sleep.

12064. It was quite an ordinary dose? Yes.

12065. Dr. Jones.] Under the circumstances? Yes.

12066. Sir Julian Salomons.] You stated that she told you that the baby was black in the face? Yes, she distinctly told me that.

12067. And that it had been very ill? Yes.

12068. And that afterwards the baby went away? Yes.

12069. When did you see it afterwards? It was at the house on the 13th of March. I was still attending Mrs. Dean, and the baby had been brought back.

12070. What date? On the 13th of March.

12071. Is that the first time you saw it in the interval? Yes.

12072. What state was the baby in then? It was in a deplorable condition. The child was emaciated and apparently dying of marasmus.

12073. Inanition? Yes.

12074. President.] Is the baby living now? Yes, I thought it was certain to die, and I consulted with my confreres as to what course I ought to take. I saw it every day for some days, and it gradually recovered.

12075. Dr. Jones.] What did you attribute it to? I thought the child was going to die, and I wondered whether I should report it to the Coroner. I did not know what course to pursue, and I remember speaking to Dr. Clark about the matter.

12076. Sir Julian Salomons.] What was the condition of the baby due to? Want of nourishment; bad nourishment; bad feeding.

12077. You said that Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean thought that those powders were an important clue in this matter? Yes, they apparently thought them very important.

12078. It has turned out since that they were left there by some person who lost them? Yes, they evidently thought they were of great value.

12079. They thought at the time that the powders were a great clue to the case? They did.

12080. It was explained afterwards, I think, in the Notes that they were immaterial to the case? Yes.

12081. Mr. Pileher.] I understand you to say, doctor, that Mrs. Dean told you that her husband put some powders in the medicine, and then produced them in confirmation of her story? Yes.

12082. Let me ask you this, doctor: You say that Mrs. Dean recounted some scenes to you? Yes.

12083. At the same time or at different times? Different times.

12084. Was it on the Wednesday night that you went down to Dean and woke him up? No; on the Thursday morning.

12085. Was it on the Thursday morning when you woke him up that you thought he was tipsy? Yes.

12086. By that you mean that he seemed stupid? Yes.

12087. In point of fact you thought he was drunk? I did.

- B. J. Newmaroh, Esq., M.R.C.S., Eng., L.R.C.P., Lond.
12 June, 1895.
12088. I suppose you will admit that all you accused him of was putting powders in the medicine? Yes.
12089. No matter what Mrs. Dean had said to you that was all the accusation you made against him? Yes.
12090. And he denied it? Yes.
12091. And he denied it to his wife when he came upstairs? Yes.
12092. And he was still in this stupid condition? Yes.
12093. And you thought he was drunk? Yes.
12094. And you appealed to the women afterwards? Yes.
12095. No matter what the cause of it was—whether it was sleep or drink—what time in the morning was it? Between 11 and 1 o'clock.
12096. He was in a heavy sleep? Yes; he was asleep.
12097. That would be about the time that a man who was working all night would be heavily asleep? Yes; heavily asleep. He was lying dressed on the couch.
12098. You knew his habits—that he was working all night? Yes.
12099. As a matter of fact that is the time he would be heavily asleep, and he was heavily asleep? Yes.
12100. And when he came upstairs you thought he was so stupid that he must be drunk? Yes, I did, and I never will speak to a drunken man. I wanted to cut the conversation short.
12101. On the authority of his wife you made a charge against him, and asked him if he put powders in the medicine? Yes.
12102. And he flatly contradicted it? He did.
12103. Do you remember when Mrs. Dean asked you if you directed any powders to be put in the medicine—do you remember the occurrence? Mrs. Dean asked me on the Wednesday.
12104. Do you remember the occurrence? Yes; I do.
12105. Did you take a book and look into it and say, "No, I certainly did not"? I did.
12106. What book? Yes; my visiting book.
12107. Have you got it there? No.
12108. Has that book got your prescriptions and orders in it? No.
12109. Has that book got anything to show whether you ordered the powders or not? I only wanted to call back the exact dates that I had seen her.
12110. When she asked you about powders did you take out a book and look into it and say "No"? No, I did not.
12111. You say that that did not take place? I did not refer to the book and say no.
12112. Did you take out your book? Yes; I took out my book.
12113. What did you take it out for? To fix the exact dates when I called on her.
12114. Then I understand you went to Mr. Guise to get the information? Yes.
12115. And you got the information from him? Yes.
12116. And apart from Mr. Guise you could not have answered the question? It was absolutely in my own mind, but I wanted to be perfectly certain.
12117. Did you give her an answer until you had seen Mr. Guise? Yes; I am almost certain I did.
12118. Then you went and saw Guise? Yes.
12119. And you found out from him that you had not? Yes.
12120. And you afterwards told her that you had not? Yes.
12121. And it was subsequently you told her you had not? Yes.
12122. That is your evidence? Absolutely true.
12123. Is your memory very clear about the details of this matter? Some of the occurrences are absolutely clear, others are not.
12124. Do you remember at the trial swearing this (it is on page 8 of Judge's notes at Criminal Court):—
On the Wednesday morning I was told something by the wife. I went down and woke prisoner up and asked him to come upstairs. I said, "What is this about the powder that they state you put in the medicine?" He turned to his wife and said, "You know I did not put the powder in." She said, "You know you did." The man was half asleep and did not seem to know what he was saying. I thought he was intoxicated. He spoke in such a funny way. I did not order any powder to be put into the medicine.
Do you remember swearing that was Wednesday? I thought I had already explained it.
12125. Did you say it? I said it was on Wednesday.
12126. You know Dean at the trial said it was on Thursday? Yes.
12127. So that at the trial there was a conflict between you as to whether it was Wednesday or Thursday? No; there was no conflict at all.
12128. Didn't you swear it was Wednesday that you woke him up? Yes, I did.
12129. And Dean swore it was Thursday? I do not know what Dean said.
12130. Do you mean to say you don't know what Dean said? No.
12131. Were you not there? Yes; but I never noticed the discrepancy.
12132. This is Dean's statement:—
On the Thursday forenoon I was asleep in the dining-room. The doctor came and woke me up and asked me, "Dean, did you give your wife a powder in the medicine on Monday night?" I said, "No, doctor." He then showed me a packet of powders he had, and said, "Did you ever see these powders before?" I said, "No." He went upstairs. He called me up. He asked me, in the presence of my wife, "Did you put a powder in the medicine on Monday night?" I said, "No." She said, "You did, George." I said, "How can you say that," and with that I left the room. I forget whether I told the doctor how I gave it. I did not say, "You would hang a man." She did not say, "Why, George, you told me the doctor ordered a powder."
Your statement on page 8 is:—
On the Wednesday morning I was told something by the wife. I went down and woke prisoner up, and asked him to come upstairs. I said, "What is this about the powder that they state you put in the medicine?" He turned to his wife and said, "You know I did not put the powder in." She said, "You know you did."
If that had been read over to me I would have corrected it. I thought at the time it was on the Wednesday; the dates are all jumbled up.
12133. I am not doubting you for a moment. I am simply on a question of memory? At the time I thought it was on a Wednesday.
12134. Do not you know that actually the discrepancy between you and Dean was made a matter of comment to the jury;—you admit that in that matter, so far as the evidence is concerned, Dean was right and you were wrong as to the day of the week? Yes; I have given the proper date at the Police Court; it was purely a lapse. I got bothered about whether it was Wednesday or Thursday at the trial, and if it had been read over to me I am absolutely certain I would have corrected it.

12135. You say you took the night-dress on the Sunday? Yes; I think it was on the Sunday. I have the date in my book the 10th. The absolute date is on the paper the night-dress was wrapped up in.
12136. Had you those notes at the time you gave your evidence at the trial? No.
12137. What notes are you referring to now;—were they prepared at the time to be of any value to you? Yes; I had some notes at the time.
12138. When were these prepared? They were taken off the old notes I had at the trial.
12139. Then you had a copy of these at the trial? Yes.
12140. So that you should have given the same evidence then as you do now? Exactly.
12141. President.] Are the notes the same—a complete copy? No; there are some additions here.
12142. What had you at the trial? A copy of them.
12143. Of which part? (Indicating)—Of this part.
12144. What part had you not a copy of? In reference to questions about arsenic and strychnine.
12145. Mr. Pilcher.] Then you have a copy of the part which shows you got the night-dress on Sunday? Yes, as far as I know.
12146. Is that so? Yes.
12147. Can you say now that you had at the trial the notes which would show that you got it on Sunday? I had.
12148. Do you know that you took it from the house on Thursday? I never swore that.
12149. Do you know that you swore at the trial that you took it on the Thursday. I am reading [from the Judge's notes, page 8:—

I took a night-gown from the place on Thursday. Having heard the result of the analysis of the lemon-syrup I, on the 10th, got a night-gown which I picked out from a lot of dirty clothes. I took it to the police and gave it to Constable Chivers.

- I never said that. There are the depositions and other things to prove it is a mistake.
12150. That is a mistake? Yes, an absolute mistake.
12151. What was the first day you mentioned the night-dress to the women, or that they mentioned the night-dress to you? On the day I procured it.
12152. That was Sunday? Yes.
12153. Up to that time you never heard anything about the night-dress? No.
12154. Are you certain of that? Yes; absolutely certain.
12155. It was not mentioned to you on the Monday previous? Certainly not.
12156. To-day you said, or I understood you to say, that you omitted to obtain vomit or purge which would show the existence of a poison in the body, and that when your suspicions were aroused it occurred to your mind that there might be some clothes, and then you asked questions about clothing and took the night-dress out of the clothes-basket, and that until that time the question of clothes had never occurred to you;—that was the only time it occurred to you? No; never.
12157. Until that time the question of clothes never occurred to you? No.
12158. It had never been mentioned to you? No.
12159. In point of fact, you never heard about clothes until that time? No.
12160. Is this true—I am referring to page 20 (depositions at Police Court):—“Dr. Newmarch saw me on Monday night, and asked me questions about vomiting, and asked me about the night-dress; he did not ask me what I had eaten. The doctor asked for an explanation of my vomiting on the Tuesday”; you see she limited it to the Monday;—is that true? About what night-dress—this night-dress.
12161. That is the only one I mentioned? I never mentioned the word—it never crossed my mind.
12162. Did they explain the reason? I never referred to the night-dress.
12163. And it was never mentioned to you? No.
12164. Until the Sunday you took it? No; I have already stated that I knew the night-dress was soiled on the Monday.
12165. They never mentioned it to you at any rate? No.
12166. What time on this Monday did you see the night-dress? Monday evening.
12167. But if she took that night-dress off soiled on the Monday morning, that cannot be the one you saw? No; not unless she put it on again.
12168. President.] You talked about the night-dress on Sunday? Yes.
12169. Did you see her on the Monday following that Sunday? Yes.
12170. Mr. Pilcher.] I am reading from page 20:—

On the Monday I told my mother about the powder in the porter, tea, and medicine—that is Monday the 4th. I did not tell my mother that I had preserved the tea. I did not tell my mother where it was. Dr. Newmarch saw me on Monday night and asked me questions about vomiting, and asked about the night-dress; he did not ask what I had eaten. The doctor asked for an explanation of my vomiting on the Tuesday. I did not then refer him to the tea under the chest of drawers. The doctor saw me on the Wednesday twice. I did not then draw his attention to the tea.

[Attention was here called to the fact that Mr. Pilcher was reading from the depositions at Police Court instead of the Judge's notes at the trial.]

12171. Dr. Jones.] Mrs. Dean said yesterday she had made a mistake—that it was not Monday, but on the following Sunday, in answer to a question put by me.
12172. Mr. Pilcher.] I think you said to day that you heard nothing about cocoa on the Monday? Cocoa had not been mentioned—not that I remember.
12173. Did she mention cocoa to you on the Monday? Not that I remember.
12174. Did she mention cocoa to you on the Sunday? No, not that I know of.
12175. Did she mention cocoa to you on the Tuesday? Not that I know of.
12176. She told you nothing about cocoa? I do not remember the cocoa incident at all. I do not know how the question of cocoa arose at all.
12177. Perhaps it never did arise until long after? Dr. Jones said I mentioned cocoa, but I do not remember it.
12178. I am asking you now whether she mentioned cocoa to you, and you say you have no recollection of her mentioning anything of the sort? Yes.
12179. On the Sunday, Monday, or Tuesday? I do not remember her mentioning anything about cocoa.
12180. At any time during those interviews? No.
12181. Did she mention it to you on the Wednesday? She mentioned something about a cocoa incident in one of those talks about poisoning. I went over her back history with her, and she may have mentioned cocoa to me, but I have no recollection of it at all. She may have mentioned it to me. 12182.

- B. J. Newmarch, Esq., M.R.C.S., Eng., L.R.C.P., Lond.
12 June, 1895.
12182. You have no recollection of her mentioning cocoa to you? No; but she may have.
12183. President.] Do you mean to say that she has never mentioned cocoa to you at all? She may have, but I have no special recollection of her mentioning anything about cocoa—none, whatever.
12184. She did not mention cocoa in those incidents on the Monday morning? I do not remember it.
12185. Did she describe her condition to you on Monday? I do not remember anything in connection with cocoa.
12186. Do you not remember her describing her condition on Monday in connection with cocoa? I have no recollection of cocoa as a vehicle. I remember the beef-tea and the groats.
12187. Mr. Pilcher.] When she described the groats and beef-tea incidents, did she tell you her mother prepared the groats? No; she did not tell me that.
12188. She did not tell you that? No.
12189. Not the January business? No.
12190. She did not tell you that? No.
12191. You stated this morning, with reference to the Tuesday morning when you went there, as I understood you, that you would not undertake to swear, but that you believe Dean was not there? I said, "I have no recollection of Dean being there."
12192. But you would not undertake to swear that he was not? I would not swear that he was not there; but I will swear that he was not on the bed. I only saw him once on the bed.
12193. Will you undertake to swear that he was not in the room on the Tuesday morning? I would not undertake to swear that; he may have been in the room, but I have no recollection of it. I will swear I have no recollection of it.
12194. You will not go beyond that? No.
12195. At the trial were you not recalled and swore that he was not in the room at all? Yes; to the best of my recollection.
12196. But not, to the best of your recollection, at all? No; I swore that he was not on the bed.
12197. Is not this what you swore—(page 14, Judge's notes)—

On Tuesday I went at 8:15 to prisoner; he was not lying on the bed beside his wife crying; he was not there at all; the statement that he said, "Now, tell the doctor all about the bottle that you have been drinking out of, with a white powder in it," is not true; it is absolutely untrue; he never said that in his wife's presence; he never told me about the bottle on Tuesday; on Wednesday night I said, "What about this bottle and this charge of poisoning against you?" I said, "It is a most serious charge," and asked him what foundation there was for it; he said, "I know nothing about it—take any steps you can to discover the poison, and who put it there"; this was on the Wednesday night; I let him know distinctly that he was charged with putting poison in the bottle; he never gave me any explanation of the medicine looking milky; I never heard of it before to-day; on the Wednesday night he was crying when I visited him late, and he was on the bed, but there was no such conversation before me about the bottle.

Did you say he was not there at all on the Tuesday? Yes; as far as I know he was not there.

12198. Did you say absolutely that he was not there at all? As far as I can recollect I said it.
12199. And now you will not admit that he was not in the room? I have no recollection. I swear I have no recollection.
12200. That is what you mean? Yes.
12201. Sir Julian Salomons.] Are you in doubt about the lemon-syrup, or only in doubt as to whether he was there? I will not swear that he was not in the room; but I have not the slightest recollection that he was there. If I had evidence to prove that he was there I would still swear that I did not recollect it.
12202. Mr. Pilcher.] At the trial did you say anything at all about Mrs. Thompson being there on that Tuesday morning? Did not I say a woman was washing the baby. I do not remember swearing it was Mrs. Thompson, because I did not know it was Mrs. Thompson.
12203. Sir Julian Salomons.] I think she was called into the court? Yes.
12204. And you could not recognise her? No.
12205. Mr. Pilcher.] Before I go back to the Tuesday morning—you said you thought the woman was dying on some particular day? For a moment I thought so—just as I saw her.
12206. Did you say this at the trial (Judge's notes, page 8): "I did not think her ever in a critical condition"? Yes.
12207. Do I understand from you, as a medical man, that that is consistent with your belief that she was dying? I walked into the room, and for a moment thought she was dying.
12208. Just a momentary impression? Yes.
12209. It was not your opinion—just a momentary impression? Yes, that is all.
12210. Is this all you said on the Tuesday morning: "When the husband came on Tuesday morning he said his wife was worse. I saw her at 8:40"? The husband did not come for me.
12211. Did you say it? Yes, because I thought he did.
12212. You made a mistake? Yes; my servant informed me it was the husband, but it was not. It was Mr. Thompson. I gave it there to the best of my knowledge.
12213. That was a mistake then—the husband did not come? Yes.
12214. I am reading from the Judge's notes, page 8, at the trial:—

I saw her at 8:40. She was no worse generally, but the eyes were red, and the stomach very tender. She had been vomiting incessantly on the Wednesday. They said they had given her tea, which was contrary to my instructions, and the vomiting was so bad I had to feed her by the bowel. She was very weak indeed on Tuesday and Wednesday. On the Wednesday morning I was told something by his wife. I went down and woke prisoner up, and asked him to come upstairs. I said, "What is this about the powder that they state you put in the medicine?" He turned to his wife and said, "You know I did not put the powder in." She said, "You know you did." The man was half asleep, and did not seem to know what he was saying. I thought he was intoxicated, he spoke in such a funny way. I did not order any powder to be put into the medicine.

Is that all you say in that part of your examination about the Tuesday? I may have said a great deal more.

12215. I am reading from the Judge's notes;—did you say more than that? Oh, yes; a great deal more. I was astonished at the short notes that were taken. I was in the box a good while.
12216. On page 14 you say this:—

On Tuesday I went at 8:15 to prisoner. He was not lying on the bed beside his wife, crying. He was not there at all. The statement that he said, "Now tell the doctor all about the bottle that you have been drinking out of with a white powder in it," is not true. It is absolutely untrue. on Tuesday. On Wednesday night I said, "What about this bottle and this charge of poisoning against you?" I said it is a most serious charge, and asked him what foundation there was for it. He said "I know nothing about it; take any steps you can to discover the poison and who put it there." This was on the Wednesday night. I let him know distinctly that he was charged with putting poison in the bottle. He never gave me any explanation of the medicine looking milky. I never heard of it before to-day. On the Wednesday night he was crying when I visited her late, and he was on the bed, but there was no such conversation before me about the bottle.

That was on Wednesday, the account you gave on Tuesday? Yes.

12217. To-day you admit, if I remember rightly, that you believe it was Mrs. Thompson said to Mrs. Dean on Tuesday, "Why do you not tell the doctor about the bottle you drank out of?" I have a recollection of Mrs. Thompson turning to Mrs. Dean, and asking her something about that." 12 June, 1895.

12218. Something about drinking out of a bottle? Yes.

12219. Or words to that effect? Yes.

12220. You say you believe it was Mrs. Thompson who said it? I know now it was Mrs. Thompson who was there, but I did not know it then.

12221. Will you swear that it was not Dean that said it? Yes; I swear it.

12222. You admit Mrs. Thompson said it? I swear Mrs. Thompson said it.

12223. The very words? I am not going to swear to words, only words to that effect.

12224. You admit they were said? Yes.

12225. But Mrs. Thompson said it, and not Mr. Dean? Yes; Dean was not in the room.

12226. You admit the words were said? Yes.

12227. On that occasion? Yes, on that occasion; reference was made to a bottle on that occasion.

12228. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are certain Dean did not say it? Dean was not there. I will swear Dean did not say it, because I was astonished at Dean speaking to me on the Wednesday night; and I told Inspector Cotter on the Thursday of the conversation I had with Dean on the Wednesday.

12229. Mr Pilcher.] You admit that Mrs. Thompson said that and Dean did not? Dean did not.

12230. Tell me if this brings it back to your mind. This is what Mrs. Thompson has said in her evidence before this Commission, "The doctor went to Mrs. Dean and he noticed she had taken tea, and he said, 'What is the use of my coming here if you do not take my advice?' Dean said, 'It is not my fault; she would have the tea.'"—you admit Dean did say that, but not on this occasion? Yes.

12231. Then she is asked—"What did the doctor say? and she says, he said 'You must not give her the tea; I told you last night she was not to have it.' He asked Mrs. Dean if she had been taking anything else, and she said 'No,' and Mr. Dean said she had been taking something out of a bottle—lemonade, or lemon-syrup, or something else";—is that correct? As far as I remember.

12232. And Mr. Dean said "She has taken something out of a bottle—lemonade, or lemon-syrup, or something else"? No; he did not say that.

12233. That was said by Mrs. Thompson, not by Dean? Yes, I remember Mrs. Thompson looking up and saying, "Why don't you tell him?"

12234. That is what Mrs. Thompson said, Dean did not. You will swear Dean did not? Yes.

12235. Mrs. Thompson says, "You were there and asked Mrs. Dean if she had been taking anything else except the tea and she said 'No,' and Mrs. Thompson says, "That Dean said, she had been taking something out of a bottle—lemonade, or something else," but your recollection is that Mrs. Thompson said it? Yes, Dean was not there.

12236. I suppose you have a great number of cases to attend to? Yes, a fair number.

12237. A variety of cases? Yes.

12238. And you had at that time? Yes.

12239. And the notes you made, I presume, would be the number of attendances, and the chemist would keep a record of what you prescribed? No, not in all cases.

12240. In this case? On Thursday, when I discovered—

12241. I am not asking about Thursday—prior to Thursday. Have you any notes made at the time except notes of attendances? Did I take notes of this case?

12242. Have you any notes made at the time except notes of attendances? No.

12243. Have you any note that Mrs. Thompson said this and not Dean? No.

12244. When she spoke about pressing the spoon, was that in the medicine? I do not know—it referred to some liquid.

12245. Sir Julian Salomons.] You do not remember now? No, I do not.

12246. Mr. Pilcher.] You say you received some report with reference to the syrup-bottle? Yes, on Thursday.

12247. Had you been looking for vomit prior to that? No; I think I asked for vomit on the Thursday morning, but I did not get any.

12248. What time in the morning did you ask for vomit? Between 11 o'clock and 1 o'clock, I think.

12249. Was that the time you heard her vomiting? No; that was on Wednesday morning.

12250. Was she reported to have vomited on Thursday? I think she was very much better on Thursday. I think she only vomited once.

12251. You think so? Yes; I speak from memory.

12252. You did not get any of that? No, I did not.

12253. Was that after you asked to have the vomit kept? I cannot say. I know I have a note that she only vomited once on Thursday.

12254. Your deposition at the Police Court was read over to you? Yes.

12255. Let me read you this: On page 21, in your deposition at the Police Court, you say—"I saw Mrs. Dean on March the 5th at the request of the prisoner; prisoner seemed very anxious I should go there as soon as possible; vomiting had been incessant, but her general condition was not worse; I found my instructions had not been carried out; I tried to obtain some vomit, but I could not; the general symptoms—her tongue was clean, but her eyes were red." That is the evidence that was read over to you? Yes.

12256. And that is the evidence in chief? Yes.

12257. Can you say whether that evidence is correct? On one or two occasions I asked for vomit, but it was not procurable.

12258. According to the evidence I have just read to you it seems that you asked for it on the Monday? No, I did not ask for vomit on the Monday.

Lond.

12 June, 1895.

12259. I beg your pardon; I see it is the 5th, Tuesday? A full stop comes there. "I saw Mrs. Dean on March the 5th; it was at the request of the prisoner." That makes it quite a different thing.
12260. In your evidence you go on to say:—"I found my instructions had not been carried out; I tried to obtain some vomit, but I could not; the general symptoms—her tongue was clean, but her eyes were red. On Wednesday I went to the prisoner's wife in the morning, and in the evening the prisoner left a message for me to come when I got home; this was on the 6th instant?" Yes.
12261. Is that correct? Yes.
12262. That was read over to you, and you signed it? Yes.
12263. You did ask for vomit on the Tuesday? Yes; I read that from my notes.
12264. How often did you ask for it? Once.
12265. Can you remember what time you asked for it? I cannot recollect.
12266. Try and recollect? I only visited her once on the Tuesday.
12267. Then it was in the morning? Yes.
12268. With reference to the same passage that was read over to you just now—I am not impugning your veracity. It is a question of memory. In the same paragraph, "I saw Mrs. Dean on March the 5th at the request of the prisoner; prisoner seemed very anxious I should go there as soon as possible?" Yes sir.
12269. You corrected me previously, and said Mr. Thompson came that morning? I was in bed and a message came for me to go at once.
12270. What you said before was that you thought it was the prisoner? Yes, I thought it was.
12271. It is a mistake. You thought you were saying what was right? My servant girl made a mistake in telling me that the messenger was Dean, and I thought it was Dean until after the trial.
12272. The important part is that you did ask for vomit on the Tuesday morning? I read that from my notes.
12273. There is no doubt that must be right? Yes.
12274. Did you ask for vomit on the Wednesday. You have stated that you asked for it several times? I do not recollect asking for it on Wednesday. I believe it was on Wednesday that it was shown to me in a chamber.
12275. But you did not take it? No.
12276. Sir Julian Salomons.] Was that stale? I do not know how long it had been vomited. It was shown to me.
12277. Mr. Pitcher.] Who showed it to you? Mrs. Seymour.
12278. Was that the Wednesday when you heard her vomiting? I heard her vomiting just as I was going away.
12279. After you had seen her? Yes.
12280. Then on Thursday—did you ask for vomit on Thursday? I don't remember asking for vomit on Thursday at all. It would have been no good taking it then.
12281. Why? You would not have any arsenic in the stomach on Wednesday, and probably not on Tuesday.
12282. But still you asked for it on the Tuesday? I read that from my notes that I did ask for it on Tuesday.
12283. You have told us all you said to Dean on that Thursday morning when you woke him up? Yes.
12284. You said to him, "Did you put a powder in the medicine on Monday when you gave it to your wife?" and he said, "You know I did not?" Yes.
12285. And then you went upstairs and told Mrs. Dean what had taken place? Yes.
12286. And he persisted in saying he did not, and she said he did? Yes.
12287. You admit the powders the women produced were innocent powders? Yes.
12288. The Commission may assume that? Yes.
12289. That they were innocent powders? Yes.
12290. By the way, did you say this at the trial—speaking of the altercation that took place between Dean and his wife on the Thursday morning:—"That Mrs. Dean told Dean that the doctor ordered it"? Remember Mrs. Dean telling Dean! What do you mean?
12291. At the interview on Thursday morning, can you remember Mrs. Dean saying to Dean in your presence, "You told me the doctor ordered it"? I do not remember her saying that. Dean denied it absolutely, but he was speaking in such a peculiar way that I cut the conversation short.
12292. You thought he was drunk? Yes, I did.
12293. Did you say, "I did not pay particular attention to what they said to each other." Did you say that? Yes. It was not till Thursday afternoon I knew about the poison in the bottle of lemon-syrup.
12294. For the same reason, on the Tuesday morning, not suspecting poisoning, you would not have paid much attention to what was said? I should have paid more attention if the man had said it.
12295. On the Tuesday morning? Yes.
12296. If the man had said, "Why don't you tell the doctor about drinking out of the bottle?" do you mean to say you would have paid more attention? Yes; I had not given the bottle to the police, and I firmly believe I would never have given it.
12297. If the man had said that? I believe I would not.
12298. Had you any reason to doubt Mrs. Thompson when she said to Mrs. Dean, "Why don't you tell the doctor about the bottle?" No.
12299. Does it matter one atom who said it? Yes, most decidedly it would matter if the husband had said it.
12300. Suppose two of us are present, and ultimately one is suspected of poisoning; I may not be suspected—say some other gentleman who is with me is suspected, and the same thing occurs, and I say to the patient, "What are you humbugging the doctor for? The doctor asked you if you took anything, and you said, 'No'; you believe I am telling the truth;—would it matter whether I said it or the other gentleman? Yes, a great deal of difference. If you were the suspect it would matter, most decidedly.
12301. But no one was the suspect at that time? Yes, Dean was. Gail made me suspect Dean.
12302. But neither of them were suspects on the Tuesday? But they were.
12303. You say you did not suspect poisoning on the Thursday? There is a difference between a suspicion and a belief.

12304. Sir Julian Salomons.] You are pointing out the difference if the husband had told you such a thing? Yes.
12305. You did not believe Gail's suspicions? No; I did not.
12306. Have you the slightest doubt when you say the husband was not in the room;—you won't swear whether he was? No.
12307. I mean when you first went up? Yes.
12308. As to his statement that he was lying on the bed crying when the doctor came;—have you any doubt about that being true or false? None whatever.
12309. What do you say to that? I have no doubt whatever; it is not correct.
12310. Or about this that he says after you had finished talking to her, "Now tell the doctor all about this bottle you have been drinking out of with a white powder in it";—did he ever say this? No.
12311. The only thing that you are not certain about is that you don't believe he was in the room? When I came?
12312. You believe he was not in the room? Most decidedly. He went out of the room afterwards. When I came he went out of the room.
12313. You are not certain whether he was in the room or not? No; I know he was out of the room afterwards.
12314. Whether he was in the room or not when you came you won't swear, but if he was he must have gone out? He did go out.
12315. He was not in the room when you had this conversation? No.
12316. And whether he was there or not you swear positively he did not say that? I will swear positively he never said that.
12317. He did not say, "Now tell the doctor all about this bottle you have been drinking out of with the white powder in it";—you are certain he never said such a thing? He never said such a thing. If he had I would have taken a different course altogether.
12318. When you came into the room before you examined her or felt her pulse you thought that she was in a dying state? Yes.
12319. On the Wednesday night? Yes.
12320. You felt her pulse? Yes; it felt strong—at least it was firm and strong.
12321. You found she was not in a dying condition? Yes; it was only a momentary impression.
12322. Of course it was a constable who examined you at the Police Court—someone in the Police Force? Yes; an inspector, I think.
12323. It was on the Thursday afternoon that you first knew of the poison? Yes.
12324. The police communicated with you? Yes.
12325. When you knew there was poison on the Thursday through the police that impressed the matter on your mind? Yes.
12326. Did you make any notes then? Yes.
12327. Did that impress the matter on your mind? Yes.
12328. Was your mind drawn clearly to it on the Thursday? Yes.
12329. Mr. Pilcher.] You remember the day on which you prescribed the injection? I prescribed two—one a food injection, and one an opium injection.
12330. When was the opium injection prescribed? On Tuesday.
12331. And the food injection? On Wednesday.
12332. Do you know who administered the opium injection? I gave the instructions to Mrs. Thompson, the woman in the room.
12333. You do not know beyond your instructions who actually did it? No; I was not there.
12334. Was there anything said to you afterwards about the enema? When?
12335. At any time? No.

[Witness withdrew.]

FRIDAY, 14 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Court Room, Darlinghurst Gaol, at 3.45 p.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D. | FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

George Dean examined:—

12336. Dr. Manning.] You know, through your solicitors, with whom you have been in frequent communication, that a Royal Commission has been appointed to inquire into your case? Yes, sir.
12337. We thought it right not to close this Commission until such time as we had an opportunity of seeing you. I have seen you before, although perhaps you have not seen me, but these gentlemen have not. We thought it best to see you, and ask you if you wish to make any statement to us. You must bear in mind that whatever statements you may make will be entirely voluntary on your part. Now you know our object in coming to see you.
12338. Dr. Jones.] You are not bound to make any statement? Any questions you wish to put to me I shall be quite willing to answer. I will answer anything respecting this charge I am here at present upon.
12339. Is there any statement you wish to make? I cannot say that there is. I can only refer to what was said at the Criminal Court. In the cross-examination there there were several things I omitted to say which probably might have enlightened the Court if they had been said. The first thing I should like to state is in regard to that cocoa. That is one point. It is said that was taken at breakfast-time on Monday morning. My wife said so. There was no cocoa in the house until I purchased a tin between 11 and 12 o'clock on that Monday. That fact was not mentioned in the higher Court, because my wife swore that she had cocoa for breakfast. She did not—she had tea. I can prove that she had tea by a friend of ours named Hans Bach, who came to our house that morning just as I was about to light the fire, fire, a little after 8 o'clock. I told him the wife was not very well, and I asked him to come upstairs and see her. After I had lighted the fire a little after 8 o'clock I prepared breakfast in the kitchen. Hans Bach was there too while I prepared the breakfast. I got ready a couple of loaves of bread, which I grilled, and with them took up some bread and butter and a cup of tea on a tray to my wife. I put that on the chair at the side of bed. That evidence was not brought forward at the higher Court. They did not say she had tea in the morning, but they said she had cocoa.

B. J.
Newmarch,

12340. Dr. Manning.] Is there any other point you wish to bring before our notice? Then in reference to Dr. Newmarch and Mrs. Dean, they both went into the witness-box after I had been examined, and denied that what I said was true in reference to what happened on the Tuesday morning when the doctor arrived. When I got home on the Tuesday morning, between half-past 7 and 8 o'clock (I could not exactly state what time it was, but that was about the time), I saw Mr. Weynton leaning over the fence of his yard, and Mrs. Weynton was at the kitchen-door. I went in the back way, and the first word spoken to me that morning was by Mr. Weynton. He said, "What is this bottle that your wife has been drinking out of with the white powder in it?" I said, "I know nothing of it." Weynton said, "A man has taken it to the doctor." On hearing that, I immediately went upstairs and spoke to the wife, telling her what Weynton had told me. She said, "Never mind, the doctor has got the bottle." Seeing the wife was so bad, and hearing this, I thought the best thing would be to send for the doctor. I said I would go for the doctor, and she said, "Don't leave me, George. Stop here." I then went to Mr. Thompson, who was the engineer on my boat, and I said to him, "Charlie, for God's sake go and get a doctor, for my wife has been drinking something out of a bottle." He took my bicycle, and went and told the doctor to come, and he told me the doctor said he would come directly. When he went inside Thompson sent his wife in to see if she could do anything. She came in and brought a dipper of hot water with her and started to wash the baby. I was lying on the bed crying at what I had heard, and at the thoughts of this poisoning. At all events, the doctor came in a bit later on. Mrs. Thompson said, "Get up, Mr. Dean, here is the doctor." Previous to this the wife, when Mrs. Thompson came in, was asking for a drink of tea, and I said, "No, you must not have tea; the doctor says you must have nothing but milk and lime-water." I was going to get up and make the fire when Mrs. Thompson said, "Go into my place; you can get some tea out of my teapot." Then the doctor came, and the first words he used were to accuse me of giving my wife this tea. I said, "Yes; she begged for a cup of tea, and I gave her some." He took his watch out and felt her pulse. After he spoke about the tea he told me to leave the room. I said to him, "The first thing I was asked this morning was about a bottle with a white powder in." I then said to the wife: "Now tell the doctor all about this that you have been drinking out of the bottle." The wife and Dr. Newmarch denied that in the Court. Mrs. Thompson was present, but why did not they call her, although she was in the room at the time, and she could have substantiated and proved what was said in this conversation? Mrs. Dean swore I was not in the room at all, and the doctor said the same thing on this Tuesday morning when he came. I think these couple of little things brought to light would have tended in my favour, and would have proved that what I was saying was the truth. As it was, both Dr. Newmarch and Mrs. Dean went into the box and said what was absolutely untrue in reference to what I have just mentioned.

12341. Dr. Manning.] Are there any other points that you think of? They swore that they were vomiting and purging, but they were not. They were vomiting, but not frequently.

12342. When was that? That was on the Monday. She swore she was vomiting on the Sunday, Monday, Monday night, and Tuesday. The first vomiting that I saw was on the Monday afternoon, about 3 o'clock. That was the second time I asked her to see a doctor. On Sunday afternoon when I was lying down having a sleep, Gail and his wife were on a visit to the house; after they had gone my wife woke me up about 6 o'clock, and told me she had been vomiting. I said, "You had better have the doctor, and see what is the matter;" she said, "No; I don't want a doctor; I shall be all right to-morrow." On the Monday she complained of a headache but I did not think a great deal of it. On the Monday afternoon she tried to vomit, and did vomit, and I said to her, "Don't you think I had better get the doctor?" She said, "No; I do not want the doctor." Later on she started vomiting after having a drink of milk, and I said, "I will stand it no longer. I will get a doctor; you must have a doctor." I did not ask her if she would have the doctor again. I went and got the doctor on my own account. I never saw her purge. She went to the closet I know, because she told me she did inside. I did not see her because at the time I went away to get some food for the child at her request, and when I came back she told me she had been down the yard. I understood then that during my absence she had been to the closet. I was asked in the Court if I had seen her there, and I said she had been there because she told me she had been.

12343. Was that on the Monday morning? Yes, that was on the Monday. I went on Monday to get some food for the child, and when I came back she told me that she had been down the yard, and from that I understood that she had been to the closet. At the Court I was asked to state if I saw her there. As regards seeing her at the closet I never did see her there. I only had her word for what she told me. Then, in reference to the evidence regarding the groats they swore that they were vomiting and purging on that Sunday after eating the groats. They did not purge, because I was nursing my wife on that Sunday. I was sitting on a chair, and she was sitting on my lap. She started vomiting, and I asked Mrs. Seymour what was the matter, and Mrs. Seymour replied that May's stomach was weak, and she thought it was biliousness. I asked Mrs. Seymour would she have some groats, and she said no, she would not take any. As for purging, I never saw either of them go to the closet that day. I was nursing my wife on my lap from 11 o'clock till 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The vomiting had ceased in both long before that. There is no truth at all in the statement when they say they were purging on that Sunday, in the beginning of January. Previous to her confinement my wife was vomiting, but I never noticed Mrs. Seymour vomit. Dr. Newmarch was prescribing for my wife at that time. I never saw my wife purging on the 4th or 5th of March, nor on Sunday, the 3rd, at the closet.

12344. Are there any other points that you can think of? I can hardly think of them myself. Dr. Newmarch swore in Court that he told me that the wife was charging me with poisoning her, and asked me what I had to say. And I say he never mentioned it once to me. That was on the Wednesday night; he swore that it was on the Wednesday he accused me of putting the powder in the wife's medicine; but that was on the Thursday. I saw him on the Wednesday evening, because I thought the wife was worse in my opinion. When he came downstairs after seeing my wife I said to him, "What about this bottle, bottle, doctor?" He said, "I have sent it to the Government Analyst, and I hope there is nothing found in it." He never mentioned a word to me then about the charge of poisoning my wife. On the next day, Thursday, I was lying asleep on the sofa downstairs. He came downstairs with a packet of powders in his hand and said to me, "Dean, did you put any powder in your wife's medicine on Monday night?—Do you know anything about these powders?—Do you know anything about them?" I said "No." He then called me upstairs, and in front of my wife asked me, "Did you put powder in your wife's medicine on Monday night?" I said, "No, I did not!" She said, "George, you did." I denied it and said, "What makes you say that?" I said I did not, she contradicted me and I walked out of the room. She was in the habit of contradicting me at times. As to their explanation about the medicine having a milky appearance, they never asked me what caused that. If they had I could have explained it straight away, but they did not ask me. I said I did not know whether it was white powder or what powder it was, for I did not know what powder they were alluding to. I said I knew nothing about powder for the simple reason that I never put any powder in the medicine.

G. Dean.
14 June, 1895.

12345. Dr. Jones.] There is one question I want to ask you: What did you attribute your wife's vomiting to? I cannot attribute it to anything. I cannot tell you what it is from. On the Wednesday night I asked the doctor what she was suffering from, and he said it was acute inflammation of the stomach, but from what cause he could not say.

12346. On what night did you ask that question? On Wednesday night, a little after 11 o'clock, when Dr. Newmarch came to see my wife. That was the night I asked him about the bottle, and it was then he said he had sent it to the Government Analyst.

12347. In your cross-examination by the Attorney-General at the trial, when speaking of Gail in the divorce case, there was something said about "she was pretty well always on";—what does that mean? I do not know what that means, sir. I cannot explain what that is at all, and do not know now what that question referred to.

12348. You made a statement that you were the only person who cooked food and gave it to your wife? Yes, as far as I know.

12349. Or handed food which was given to your wife? Yes, barring Monday, when I gave Mrs. Adye some sago to make for the wife, as I did not understand how to make it. In reference to the cooking and handling of food, as far as I can tell, I don't know of anyone else who gave her anything. When I was at work I do not know if anybody else gave her anything. I asked Mrs. Adye on Monday to make the sago, and Miss Adye brought it down. She took it up to the wife just as I was taking up some chops that I had cooked for dinner. That was somewhere about 1 o'clock. I intended to have given her some eggs, but the man at the store said he had no eggs, but they would have some shortly. As I was going upstairs with the cocoa, and just as I was at the foot of the stairs, a knock came to the door, and the man from the store said "The eggs have come if you want them." I said, "Very well." I then called out to the wife, and asked her if she would like an egg; she said she did not care for eggs as she had sago.

12350. Dr. Manning.] I will only ask you one question, that is with reference to this altercation you had with your wife in the presence of Dr. Newmarch when she said you did, and you said you did not. Did you recur to that subject? Yes, sir.

12351. When? I could not tell you exactly, but an hour or two afterwards. After this conversation, in the presence of the doctor and my wife and Mrs. Seymour, I went and lay down in a room upstairs, and when Mrs. Seymour called me up for dinner I went into my wife's room and sat on the bed, and I said to her, "What makes you say I put powder in the medicine?" She said, "Because the medicine was white," or "what made it white?" I said, "Why didn't you tell me so at the time?" I then described how I gave her the medicine. As soon as I came home from the chemist's on Monday night she asked me for a drink of lime-water and milk, which she got. That was the first drink she had. The doctor ordered her to drink this lime-water and milk when she was vomiting during her confinement. I then got a bottle of lime-water and brought it home. When I arrived home I said, "I have got some medicine for you to take." She said, "Give me a drink of lime-water and milk first." She left a little in the glass, and I put the glass on the table beside the bed. I then went to the mantel-piece and got the spoon and medicine from the mantel-piece, and poured some of the medicine into a spoon. I then went over to the bedside and asked her to take it, and she said, "Wait a few minutes." Being afraid of spilling the medicine I poured it into the glass, not thinking there would be any harm. When she did not take it I took the spoon and gave it a stir round, because Mr. Guise told me, "Be sure and shake the bottle before giving her the medicine." She said, "I thought there was a powder in it," and I said, "No such thing." I said, "That is the reason the medicine is white."

12352. That was the conversation on the Thursday? Yes; it was on Thursday after the doctor had gone. I know that it was Thursday, because it was after I paid the landlord. That is how I am so certain about when the conversation took place.

[The Commission withdrew.]

FRIDAY, 21 JUNE, 1895.

[The Commission met in the Board Room, Chief Secretary's Office, at 2.30 p.m.]

Present:—

FRANCIS EDWARD ROGERS, Esq., Q.C. (PRESIDENT).

PHILIP SYDNEY JONES, Esq., M.D.

FREDERIC NORTON MANNING, Esq., M.D.

The Hon. Sir Julian Salomons, Kt., Q.C., M.L.C., and Mr. C. G. Wade, appeared on behalf of the Crown; and the Hon. Chas. Edward Pilcher, Q.C., M.L.C., and Dr. R. M. Todd, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for George Dean.

William Henry Butchart sworn and examined:—

12353. What is your name? William Henry Butchart.

12354. I believe you are in the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers? Yes.

12355. And you were so during the whole of last year? Yes.

12356. Do you know Alexander Weynton? I know Oswin Weynton.

12357. Did you supply him with any strychnine? I did not.

842—2 L

W. H.
Butchart.
21 June, 1895.

12358.

12358. Do you remember him asking you for any strychnine? I do.
12359. What month was that in? I cannot say; it was prior to the middle of May last year.
12360. Are you sure of that? I am.
12361. How do you fix the date? Because I had been away from the store on a holiday for a considerable length of time, and on my return, about the commencement of last year, or about Christmas time, the two Weyntons in the employment of Elliott Brothers were new hands and were not known to me. Prior to the middle of May I lived on the North Shore, and travelled home by another boat. Subsequently to that time I changed my residence from Whaling Road to Walker-street, and I did not know either of them personally until I went to live in Walker-street, which was about the 20th of May, 1894.
12362. How does that fix the date about his asking you for that strychnine? I did not know him, and one of my rules is never to do anything for anyone I do not know.
12363. About the strychnine;—how do you fix the date? Because I went to live in Walker-street about the 20th of May last year, and I know it was prior to that, because subsequently to that we used to go home always by the same boat together.
12364. It was before you knew him that he asked you for this strychnine? Yes, before I knew him. He was almost a stranger to me. You can understand that in a place where there are so many hands we do not know everybody.
12365. You knew him by sight, of course? Yes, by coming into the office occasionally; otherwise, I had no knowledge of him; in fact, in all probability, it is possible I could not tell you his name. There are hands in the store now whom I do not know.
12366. Dr. Jones.] You afterwards knew him as Weynton? Yes; most decidedly.
12367. President.] You cannot fix the date; you know it was before the middle of May? Yes; it was before the middle of May.
12368. Did he tell you what he wanted the poison for? I cannot say whether he did or not; he may have done so.
12369. Of course he may? I cannot say whether he did or not.
12370. Do you know anything about a dog? Of course I have read the evidence, but I cannot swear as to whether he stated anything what he wanted it for.
12371. Do you know who gave him the strychnine? I do not.
12372. Dr. Manning.] This strychnine is kept in considerable quantities, is it not? Yes; certainly.
12373. Readily accessible? No; that depends very largely on circumstances. The majority of the strychnine is kept under lock and key, but there are times, when strychnine is being coloured, when it is not under lock and key for, perhaps, twenty-four hours. You understand that strychnine, when it is being coloured, is very frequently transferred to 1-oz. bottles from the large original 100-oz. tin. It is coloured in bulk, and that is done on another floor altogether.
12374. Are these bottles standing about during the time they are being put up? They might be.
12375. Would he, as a clerk in the office, have an opportunity of getting some himself? It would be on the same floor as the office—that is, on the drug floor.
12376. Have you seen the bottle this strychnine was in? I have not.
12377. Dr. Jones.] Was Weynton himself employed in the office? Yes; as assistant invoice clerk.
12378. He would have the run of the whole establishment? Decidedly; they all have that.
12379. President.] Do you know Mr. Moodie? I do.
12380. Did you tell him that you had supplied this strychnine? I did not.
12381. Had you any conversation with Mr. Moodie about it—that he might be mistaken? Yes; I had a conversation with Mr. Moodie, and with a clerk from Messrs. Crick and Meagher's, and Oswin Weynton, in which I made exactly the same statement as I have done now.
12382. Do you want to ask the witness anything just now, Mr. Meagher? Mr. Meagher: No; not just now, thank you.
12383. Is that a 1-oz. bottle [showing witness bottle]? No, a $\frac{1}{2}$ -oz. bottle.
12384. Do you have bottles like that? Yes; that is what we call a $\frac{1}{2}$ -oz. strychnine bottle.
12385. Do you put it up in bottles like that? Yes; but that label is defaced.
12386. Dr. Manning.] Those are the kind of bottles you put it in when you are colouring it? Yes; that is a $\frac{1}{2}$ -oz. bottle such as we put it up in. That really holds more than an ounce fluid.
12387. At the time when you are colouring this strychnine, and it is being put up in these bottles, they are standing about? Yes.
12388. It is possible for anyone on the floor to take one? It might be.
12389. It is a 2-oz. bottle? It is a 2-oz. bottle, but it holds 1 oz. of strychnine. We consequently call it a 1-oz. bottle. It is not the fluid capacity of the bottle, but its contents as far as strychnine is concerned.
12390. Mr. Meagher.] At this interview you speak about, Mr. Butchart, in which Mr. Moodie and a clerk from my office were present, are you quite clear that you did not say that you remembered that Weynton said he wanted the strychnine to kill a dog? As I have just stated to the Commission, I would not swear that he stated what he wanted it for.
12391. I am asking you now, not what he stated to you, but what you stated to Mr. Moodie and my clerk;—will you swear that you did not say to both of them that you thought young Weynton had said to you that he wanted it for killing a dog? That is a different thing to making a statement on oath as to what I did say. I may have done so.
12392. President.] You do not remember? I cannot remember.
12393. Mr. Meagher.] You will not swear that you did not use those words to both of those gentlemen? No; I will not.
12394. Did you also say, "And I think he got it the same day as he asked for it"? No; I did not.
12395. You will swear positively that you did not say that? I did not know it.
12396. Will you swear you did not use these words at the interview: "And I think he got it the same day"? No; I did not.
12397. I suppose you know that your principals forwarded a note to the Commissioners, and that it was made public while you were away? I believe so.
12398. After your return did you have any conversation about that note? My firm simply stated that they had written a letter. As I understood, it was as much written in their defence as mine—that the imputation made by Sir Julian Salomons weighed as much against the firm as it did against me.

12399. Mr. Wade.] I understand you to say that these poisons are kept fairly well under lock and key? Yes.

12400. So that if young Weynton wanted poison he might have to wait sometime before he would have a chance of getting it? He would have to apply to the person who has the key.

12401. I mean if a person wanted to obtain it secretly he would have to wait sometime—perhaps a week—before having an opportunity to get it? I do not see how it could be done under any possibility whatever.

12402. How often do they treat this strychnine with the aniline dye—periodically? That I cannot say.

12403. I suppose it is done in certain periods in bulk, is it not? It is not done periodically. It all depends on the stock, and how the stock runs down, and notice is given where it is kept when it is required, and a certain amount is run off one day and put away in tins. I do not think it would be allowed to stand for twenty-four hours—not for a single night.

12404. What I mean is this: If he wanted to get it, and had spoken to you, and you refused it, he might have to wait days, or possibly weeks before he could get it secretly? Yes; that might be the case.

12405. Do you remember whether it was for himself, or his family, or for friends, or what? As I have just stated, I cannot swear as to whether he made any actual statement as to what he wanted it for at the time.

12406. Then, as to this question you were asked just now by Mr. Meagher, I understand you are simply speaking from recollection? I am; he may have done so.

12407. I suppose you were asked questions by these gentlemen, were you not? Yes; you mean by Messrs. Crick and Meagher's clerk?

12408. Yes? I was.

12409. President.] Why did you refuse it to him;—was it because you did not know him? For that simple reason; and under any circumstances I should want good authority for supplying strychnine to anyone in the place. I was saying, only the day before yesterday, that I never remembered supplying such a thing to anyone in the store at all.

12410. If you refused it because you did not know him, did you refer him to anyone else who did know him? No; I simply told him to go and ask somebody else—that was my remark at the time.

12411. Are you the only one in charge of the strychnine in the establishment, or are there other people who have charge of it? I am not in charge of it at all.

12412. Where did Weynton ask you, do you know? I cannot say.

12413. Dr. Jones.] There is no strychnine in your department at all? Not on our floor, except, as I say, when it is being coloured.

12414. It is in your charge when it is being coloured? No, it is not; I have nothing whatever to do with it.

[Witness withdrew.]

Mrs. Bessie Adye re-examined:—

12415. President.] You understand you were sworn before? Yes.

12416. You understand you are giving your testimony still under the obligation of that oath? Yes.

12417. When you went to Mrs. Dean on that Sunday morning, the 3rd of March, what did she want you for;—if it is some private matter among women I do not want to know? I do not think she wanted me for anything.

12418. She did not say she wanted you for anything? No; she did not want me for anything. Mr. Dean asked me to go down and have a look at her to see what I thought of her. She was sick, but she did not say she wanted me for anything.

12419. Did he not say she wanted you for anything? No, sir.

12420. What did you mean by sick—ill, or just out of sorts, or sick in the stomach? No; he said she was ill. He did not say what was the matter with her, but would I come down to see her. I said, "Very well," and I went down with him.

12421. With him? Yes.

12422. Where did he stay, then, when you went away to her? I think he went into the kitchen.

12423. How long did you stay at Mrs. Dean's? It might be half an hour, or it might not be so long as that. I do not think it was; I cannot exactly remember.

12424. Did she say she had a bad headache? Yes.

12425. Is that all she complained of? Yes.

12426. With reference to this cup of tea;—how much was there in the cup? About half full, I should think.

12427. You asked her if she would take some of it for her headache;—you thought it would do her good? Yes.

12428. Did you taste it? Yes.

12429. Have you got good taste? Yes, sir.

12430. Did Mrs. Dean tell you anything about vomiting? No, sir.

12431. Or purging? No, sir.

12432. When she went to your shop on the Monday morning about 11 o'clock, did she tell you then whether she had been vomiting and purging? No, sir; she said she felt very ill. She said she felt faint coming out.

12433. What did she come for? For some sodawater.

12434. Dr. Manning.] She did not say a word about vomiting and purging that morning? No, sir; she did not.

12435. President.] You think you were there, it might be, half an hour? Yes; it might not be so long as that.

12436. You said the other day a quarter of an hour or 10 minutes? It might have been that; I cannot exactly say.

12437. There did not seem to be much the matter with her then? No, sir, she was very flushed; she said she had a headache.

12438. Dr. Jones.] What was her appearance at the time—she complained about being faint. You said that she said she felt faint? Yes, she looked a bit pale; she said she felt faint coming up the street, and when when she was going away she said she felt faint. And I said, "Lie down a moment, and it may pass away." Then she did lie down on the sofa.

12439. She looked a little pale then? Yes.

12440. President.] How long was she at your place on the Monday? A few minutes; about 10 minutes I should think or a quarter of an hour, or something like that.

12441. Was she at all ill, I mean sick, to vomit while she was there? No, sir.

12442. Was she ill in any other way? No, sir.

12443. I mean ill in the bowels? No, sir.

[At this stage a letter was handed to the President by Mr. Moodie, of the North Shore Defence Committee, from Sir Joseph Abbott, vouching for Mrs. Adya's respectability.]

12444. Mr. Wade.] Mrs. Adya, according to you Mrs. Dean only went up to your place to ask for some soda-water? Yes.

12445. And you told her you had not got any? Yes.

12446. There was no occasion for her to stay? No.

12447. As a matter of fact was she not lying down during the whole of the time she was at your place? No; she was only lying down for a few minutes.

12448. Was she only there a few minutes? Yes.

12449. And she remained lying down during the whole of that time? Not the whole of the time.

12450. She walked in and walked out? She walked in and walked out again. She said she felt faint.

12451. Is it not a fact that she had nothing to stay there for at all; because you told her that you had not got the soda-water? Yes.

12452. What time she did spend there was owing to the fact that she felt faint and lay down? Yes; for a few moments.

12453. As soon as she was able to get up she got up and went away? Yes.

12454. About Sunday;—you say it may have been half-an-hour you were there on Sunday morning;—have you not even put the thing as short as 2 minutes? No.

12455. Did you not tell Sergeant Brennan, when he asked you for a statement of all the facts of the Sunday, that you were only there for about 2 minutes? No; I did not say that.

12456. Did you say 3 minutes or 4 minutes? No.

12457. Did you not tell him you were only there a very short time? Yes; a very short time, but I did not say only a few minutes.

12458. Was this all that took place;—you went in there, had some words about tea, took the baby and left? Yes.

12459. Were you not there about 2 or 3 minutes altogether? More than that.

12460. Well, call it 3½ minutes;—was not that all that took place? Yes.

12461. Those few words about the tea, and then you took the baby away? Yes.

12462. When Mrs. Dean brought this lemon-syrup to you to taste on the Saturday were you a bit anxious about taking much in your mouth? No; I just tasted it.

12463. Is it not a fact you did not drink any? No, sir, I did not; she asked me to taste it.

12464. I say were you not anxious not to take much into your mouth on that occasion? I do not know that I was anxious; I just tasted it.

12465. Were you not told there was something wrong about it? No.

12466. Something peculiar? She said there was something peculiar.

12467. Was not that the reason why you took care not to swallow much or any at all? No; it was not that at all. She said it had a queer taste to her.

12468. You knew that the lemon-syrup that you drank was all right? Yes.

12469. You said Mrs. Walke was either sick or retched after drinking some of the lemon-syrup herself? Yes.

12470. Did you not think then that there was something queer about the syrup that came from Dean's house? There must have been something wrong.

12471. It is a very important question—yes, or no? Yes.

12472. On Sunday, according to your story, Mrs. Dean again asked you to taste this tea? Yes.

12473. You still remembered the lemon-syrup occurrence of the previous day? Yes.

12474. You remembered Mrs. Walke being sick also on tasting it? Yes.

12475. Did not that make you think that possibly there might be something wrong with the tea before you tasted it? No, sir; I had no suspicion.

12476. Although you remembered the lemon-syrup of the previous day, and her not liking the taste? No.

12477. Did you not say, on the following Friday, that you were very wise in telling Mrs. Dean not to drink that tea on the Sunday? No, sir; I did not.

12478. Did you have a conversation there? No.

12479. None at all? No, sir.

12480. Were you not at the house after the arrest—the night of Dean's arrest? Oh, yes; I was there.

12481. Did you have any conversation about it then? Mrs. Seymour came up for me to go down and see Mrs. Dean.

12482. Was there not a conversation about these matters then? No, sir.

12483. No reference to anything at all? No, sir.

12484. Although Dean had just been arrested a short time before? No, sir.

12485. Mrs. Dean did not speak to you about anything that had happened? No, sir.

12486. Nor Mrs. Seymour? No, sir.

12487. Nor anybody? No, sir.

12488. What were you asked to go round for? Mrs. Seymour came up for me to go round to see Mrs. Dean.

12489. Did you not mention the fact of her husband being arrested? No, sir.

12490. Was not the fact of Dean being arrested discussed by anybody in the room? No, sir; it was only talk about herself.

12491. When did you first hear he was arrested? When Mrs. Seymour came up for me.

12492. In your own house? Yes; in my own house.

12493. Yet you never said a single word to Mrs. Dean about this fact in her own house? No, sir; I was only there a few moments.

12494.

Mrs.
Elsie Adye.
21 June, 1895.

12494. Was any reference at all made to it in that conversation? No, sir.
 12495. Anything of the kind? No; nothing of the kind.
 12496. Will you tell me now why you went down? Because Mrs. Seymour came up for me.
 12497. What did you do when you went down? Only sat by the side of the bed.
 12498. For two or three minutes? Yes.
 12499. And went away again? Yes.
 12500. Did you speak to Mrs. Dean at all? Yes.
 12501. You did not know he was going to be arrested, did you? No.
 12502. You were surprised to hear it? Yes.
 12503. On your oath, didn't you discuss this matter with Mrs. Dean at her bedside that night? No, sir.
 12504. You say you were surprised to hear of his arrest—you were at the house a short time afterwards—the house of the wife of the man who was arrested;—now, did you not discuss this question in some way or other? No, sir.
 12505. Did a single soul in the room discuss it? No, sir.
 12506. No reference was made to it at all? No, sir.
 12507. Did Mrs. Dean want any help? No, sir.
 12508. And you cannot imagine why you were brought down? I suppose just to see her.
 12509. You were specially brought down to look at her? That is all.
 12510. Where is the kitchen in your house;—is it at the back? Yes.
 12511. Is there any room in front? Yes; two rooms in front.
 12512. What are they? The front room and the back room.
 12513. What is the front room? A small room.
 12514. What is it used for? I do not think it is used for anything.
 12515. It is empty? No, sir.
 12516. Has it got any furniture in it? Yes.
 12517. What is it used for? A sitting-room.
 12518. Where do you have your meals? In the dining-room.
 12519. Which room is that? In the middle room.
 12520. Where is that;—between the front room and the kitchen? Yes; between the front room and the kitchen.
 12521. They are two distinct rooms? Yes.
 12522. Did you not swear when you were examined here last that the dining-room and kitchen were both the same room;—did you not first of all say Mrs. Dean was lying on the sofa in the kitchen? Yes; sometimes we call it the kitchen and sometimes the dining-room.
 12523. You said that, did you not;—you said a moment ago that the two rooms are distinct—that the dining-room and the kitchen are distinct? Yes.
 12524. Do you remember this taking place the last time you were examined: You stated first of all that Mrs. Dean was lying on the sofa in the kitchen; do you remember afterwards using the expression that you thought she was lying on the sofa in the dining-room, and Sir Julian Salomons then asked you did you not a moment ago say it was in the kitchen;—then did you not say they were both the same room? I do not remember.
 12525. I think you told us what Mrs. Dean complained of on the Monday morning? She said she felt faint.
 12526. Did she not complain of a pain? No, sir.
 12527. Not a word about it? No, sir.
 12528. I mean when she came for the soda-water on Monday morning at 11 o'clock? No, sir; she said she felt faint.
 12529. You are quite clear she never complained of having any pain? No, sir.
 12530. Do you know you said the last time you were here that Mrs. Dean told you she had a pain, and that you said she had better lie down? She was faint she told me.
 12531. Do you remember saying this: "Mrs. Dean was standing in my shop waiting for the soda; she said she had a pain, and I said to her that she had better lie down; she lay down on my sofa in the kitchen, and shortly afterwards she got up and went away home"? I think that is a mistake. I said, she said, she felt faint.
 12532. Did Mrs. Dean tell you "that she didn't like that tea," or "didn't like tea" on the Sunday morning? I had heard her say before she didn't like tea.
 12533. I am not talking of before, I am talking of that Sunday morning only;—did she say, "I don't like tea" or "I do not like tea as a drink"? No, "I do not like tea." She did not say "this tea."
 12534. She had no fault to find with this tea according to your statement? I do not know, she did not say.
 12535. Why do you understand she asked you to taste it if she had no fault to find with it? I do not understand why. She asked me to taste it, and I tasted it.
 12536. Can you give any reason why she should ask you to taste this tea if she had no fault to find with it—that particular cup of tea? No.
 12537. You can give no reason? No.
 12538. You say she made no complaint about that tea in particular—that was your last answer? Yes.
 12539. That was correct? She did not say. She merely asked me to taste it.
 12540. I asked you did she find fault with that cup of tea in any way? No.
 12541. Did not you say that she said she did not like that cup of tea? No.
 12542. Do you remember this question being put to you, "When she asked you to taste the tea, did she say why she wished you to taste it?" and in your answer you said, "She said she didn't like it"—the cup of tea? No; I think that must be a mistake. She did not say, "taste it."
 12543. Dr. Todd.] You said that Mrs. Walke, when she tasted this lemon-syrup, did something;—what did she do? She retched.
 12544. Was it immediately after tasting it? Not immediately.
 12545. How soon after? It might be 5 or 10 minutes; I cannot say exactly.
 12546. Mr. Meagher.] Mrs. Dean has stated that you tasted the tea, and that you said it was all right? Yes; that is true.

Mrs.
Bessie Adye.
21 June, 1895.

12547. President.] You have a good taste? And you noticed nothing whatever wrong with it? No; nothing whatever.

Mr. Wade: You remember, Mr. President, you asked for some information with regard to a person named Sell, and we, on behalf of the Crown, said we would make inquiries. We have made inquiries in pursuance of that request, and information has come back from the Chief Commissioner of Police in Victoria, saying that this man is not a member of the Police Force of Victoria. The Chief Commissioner of Police asked him to put his statements in the form of a declaration, but Mr. Sell declined to do this. We had our reasons at the time for objecting to the statement being received, and I think, in fairness to the Crown, that the contents of this statement ought to appear on the notes, or be taken as an exhibit, because it may be contended hereafter, without any just cause or foundation, that evidence or statements were kept back which might have helped the defence.

[Urgent.]

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 7 June, 1895.

Memo.

Royal Commission—Regina v. George Dean.

Will the Inspector-General of Police please obtain, through the Victorian Police Department, a statutory declaration from Constable Sell, stating what he knows, of his own knowledge, respecting Mrs. Seymour's character, the period when he knew her, and his reasons for saying that "she is a very cool, cunning, and designing woman." A copy of Sell's report is herewith.

(Signed) GEORGE COLQUHOUN,
Crown Solicitor.

The Inspector-General of Police, Sydney.

Copy of Constable Sell's Report.

No. 1 Police Station, 22 April, 1895.

I, the undersigned, have known the person called Mrs. Seymour, alias Asbury, Gaynor, &c., for the last fifteen years. All I can state is that I know her to be a notorious woman, and constantly associated with the most noted criminals of Victoria and New South Wales. I can say she is a woman that lives very quiet, with all outside apparent respectability, and is a very cool, cunning, and designing woman, and a woman that would associate with her neighbours, who would be the last persons to suspect her. About her daughter I know nothing.

(Signed) W. J. SELL,
270, Richardson-street, Middle Park, Melbourne, Victoria.

Endorsement on Crown Solicitor's letter to Inspector-General of Police, Sydney.

"Mr. SELL, who is not a member of the Police Force of this Colony, declines to make the statutory declaration asked for, or to have anything more to do with the case."

(Signed) H. M. CHOMLEY,
Chief Commissioner of Police,
14/6/95.

The Inspector-General of Police, Sydney.

Forwarded to Crown Solicitor.—E. FOSBERY, 17/6/95.

President.] Mrs. Adye, we do not wish you to go away just yet, as we will possibly want to ask you something a little later on. Will you, therefore, kindly remain in the building for a short time, and we will let you know when we want you.

[Mrs. Adye retired.]

President (to representatives of the Crown and George Dean).] Gentlemen, the Commission wish to make some experiments with regard to tea, and will be glad if you will retire.

[All parties left the room with the exception of the Commissioners, Mr. Hamlet, and the officials.]

According to instructions from the President, three cups of tea were made in the building. Mr. Hamlet, Government Analyst, poured out 6 ounces of tea, and placed one-fifteenth of a grain of strychnine in solution in two of the cups of tea, the third cup of tea being left untouched. Two teaspoonfuls of white sugar, and a small quantity of milk was added to each cup of tea. The tea from each cup was tasted by each member of the Commission.

Mrs. Bessie Adye recalled:—

Mrs.
Bessie Adye.
21 June, 1895.

12548. President.] Mrs. Adye, you need not be in the least alarmed at what we are going to request you to do. Each of the Commissioners have tasted the tea you see here, and I wish you now to taste this cup of tea (handing witness cup No. 1, containing no strychnine), and tell me what you think of it? I taste nothing wrong with that.

12549. Does that tea taste to you like the tea you tasted that morning at Dean's house? Yes.

12550. On that Sunday morning? Yes, sir.

12551. Would you mind tasting this cup of tea [handing witness cup No. 2, containing one-fifteenth of a grain of strychnine]? [Witness complied.]

12552. Do you taste anything different in that from the tea in the other cup? Yes; there is something in that.

12553. Are you absolutely certain that the tea you tasted on Sunday morning, the 3rd March, did not taste like the tea you have just tasted? It was like the first cup of tea—not like this.

12554. Will you kindly drink as much tea out of this cup as you drank from the cup at Mrs. Dean's bedside on the Sunday morning? —

12555. Dr. Manning.] You need not be afraid, Mrs. Adye, it will not harm you? I do not like it.

12556. President.] Are you sure that the tea you tasted on the Sunday morning was not like the tea you are tasting now? No, sir, nothing like it.

12557. Dr. Jones.] Do you consider that to be good tea? That [referring to cup, No. 2, containing strychnine]? I prefer the first.

12558. Dr. Manning.] You are a pretty good judge of tea? Yes.

12559. What sugar do you use? White sugar.

12560. Always white sugar? Yes.

12561. Did Mrs. Dean use white sugar? I cannot tell you.

12562. People generally use white sugar, do they not? I think so.

12563. President.] Did you notice anything peculiar about the taste of that second cup of tea? Yes; it was very bitter.

12564. Did you notice a taste like that after the tea on that Sunday morning? No, sir.

ROYAL COMMISSION REGINA VERSUS GEORGE DEAN.

PRÉCIS OF EVIDENCE.

Witness—Mary Dean (wife of George Dean).

Mary Dean.

Police Court.—March 19th and 21st, 1895 (Evidence in chief, see pages 22, 23, 28). Central Criminal Court.—April 4th, 5th, and 6th, 1895, (pages 9, 10, 11, 19). Royal Commission.—June 10th and 11th, 1895 (pages 233-243).

Police Court:—I am the wife of the prisoner, and I live in Miller-street, North Sydney; I lived first after marriage at Mossman's Bay; my father is dead. Mary Dean.
History.

Central Criminal Court:—I was married on the 9th March, 1894; before marriage I was living with my mother at Surry Hills; I knew prisoner eight months before marriage; prisoner used to visit me two or three times a week, both by day and by night, and was master of one of the North Shore ferry boats; I have resided in Norton-street and Riley-street, Surry Hills.

Commission:—I was always in good health up to the time of my marriage; I had no illness at all that I remember; I first became acquainted with George Dean at a picnic; he used to visit me at Riley-street continually through the week; at any hour; he always came into the house, and sometimes had his meals there.

Police Court:—Before and after the birth of my child the prisoner asked me to leave the house; prisoner said, "I am not the father of the child"; prisoner did not beat me, but he treated me unkindly; he kept me without money, but he supplied the house with what was necessary; we were on unfriendly terms before my confinement; the child was born on the 25th of December, 1894; I know of no reason why the prisoner should have said the child was not his. (Cross-examination): The prisoner during the twelve months of our married life has never raised his hand to me; I have never seen the prisoner the worse for drink. (To Police): My husband has frequently suggested that we should part. Prisoner's treatment.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—Prisoner has never struck me or used violence to me; I have only seen him under the influence of drink on two or three occasions; when I used the word "drink" I meant that he was under the influence of liquor. (Re-examination): I have never accused prisoner of having to support illegitimate children.

Police Court:—Prisoner sulked a week for many a time; prisoner did not speak to me for a week before my confinement. (To Police): My husband has been kind to the child. Prisoner's disposition.

Police Court (cross-examination):—Prisoner paid the grocer's and baker's bills; I got the money from prisoner often to pay these bills; prisoner has always taken an interest in his home; for four months I received £2 a week; I had plenty to eat then. Income.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—Prisoner gets £3 a week; I was supposed to get £2 a week from him for the house, but I did not get it regularly; this is my signature to my depositions; it was read over to me; I said I got £2 a week; I was properly fed.

Police Court (cross-examination):—Prisoner has tried to get an advance on land to build a house; he paid for fencing some land; I did not know he had bought this land; I thought he was paying it off; my husband has asked me to be saving in order that he might build a house; I remember him saying "Well, old girl, I wonder if I could get an advance of timber from Mr. Eaton, the timber merchant;" prisoner fenced the land himself after his night-work; he paid £3 15s. for the material; prisoner said he paid £3 10s. for the material to make the sideboard; I know prisoner wrote to Mr. Lloyd about getting timber for the house; I opened the correspondence with Mr. Eaton, and gave it to prisoner; there was no trouble about my opening these notes. Wished to build a house.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner proposed to get a house of our own the first month we were married; I remember him saying in February, "Well, old girl, I think I can get the money from Mr. Egan, and build the house;" he told me he wrote to Mr. Egan; this was in February; I opened the note and read it; he did not object to my opening it; we had a quiet chat over it; he had a piece of land before we married, and bought a piece after marriage; he fenced the land himself.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I had an insurance on my life; I was insured before marriage; before marriage I sent my insurance papers to the prisoner; prisoner suggested not to pay the premium; since then prisoner has never suggested to me to insure my life; I made no will in the prisoner's favour; prisoner never asked me to do so; prisoner would not be a penny better off if I died to-day. Life insurance.

Central Criminal Court:—My life was not insured; when I married I had an insurance policy, and he asked me to discontinue it; he asked me thus before marriage.

Police Court:—My husband did not sleep with me; he occupied a separate bedroom; my husband was away at night. Separate apartments.

Commission:—Dean has told me something about his past life; something about his people—his mother; he said he was on a station at one time, as a tar-boy, in the sheep-shed; he said he was also employed as a blacksmith; he told me about his step-brother being on board the "Vernon." Dean's past life.

Police Court (to Police):—The house was locked at night; I was always up to let my husband in; my back door was sometimes unlocked at night. House at night.

Central Criminal Court:—We began to live on unfriendly terms a month after marriage; it got worse. Unfriendly terms.

Police Court:—I was attended by Dr. Newmarch and my mother during my confinement; my mother left me when the child was a month old. Confinement.

Central Criminal Court:—I was confined on the 26th of December, 1894.

Disagreements.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner never spoke for a week before my confinement; I told him the night before confinement I was going to be confined, and he went out of the house without speaking to me; three weeks after my confinement I asked him would he change and be kind; he said, "No; he was tired of me, he would wait and see me over my trouble, and would then leave me"; before this there was no definite cause of trouble; it arose from his sulky disposition; three days after confinement he came to the bedside and said he was not the father of the child, and that I had another to keep out of his money; there was no truth in either charge; my mother attended me during confinement and afterwards. (Re-examination):—There is no truth in the charge that I had another child.

A pure life.

Central Criminal Court:—There is no truth in the insinuation that I did not lead a pure life before I married him; there was nothing about our house to lead him to suspect anything about me, and if he has heard anything since about my mother's relationship to the house opposite, it may have come upon him as a surprise.

After confinement; chief things.

Police Court:—On Friday, the 1st of March, I had some words with my husband; I asked him prisoner to mind the baby, but he refused, and said, "I have no time—I am going out"; my husband is at home in the day-time; he complained about the house and the child not being clean.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner did not come regularly to see me after my confinement; he would come one day, then not for a couple of days, and when he came he said most cruel things; a week after confinement he came and said he was going to leave me and packed his portmanteau to go; when baby was a month old mother left me (about 26th January), and I lived with prisoner till 25th February; he was constantly telling me to leave the house, and was very cruel to me.

Christmas Day.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—I was up on Christmas day; I dined with prisoner; I had to go upstairs and beg him to come down, because it was Christmas Day; my mother was at dinner; we were unfriendly, and he hardly spoke to me or my mother; there was no drinking of a toast in a pleasant family way; there was porter on the table, my mother asked him to have some; he said he did not care; I did not say I was glad I was not confined that day.

Inmates of the house.

Police Court:—My mother did not return to the house after the confinement until the 4th March; there was no adult inmate living in the house from January until the 4th March but the prisoner and myself.

Neighbours.

Police Court:—I never had any quarrel with my neighbours; I have not had much to do with them.

Miss Cassin.

Police Court:—Before the 1st March my husband had said something about Miss Cassin; I said, "Maggie Cassin is the girl you should have married," prisoner said, "That is the girl I ought to have married, and that is the girl I will marry as soon as I get free from you," prisoner said he had met Miss Cassin; he just mentioned it in the course of conversation. Cross-examination:—I have never seen prisoner in company with Miss Cassin; prisoner told me that the only time he met her was when he was riding his bicycle once in Oxford-street; he said it was in December last that he met her; I had met Miss Cassin before my marriage; we were on friendly terms; I have spoken to her since my marriage; we are still on friendly terms; I have not tried to avoid her in any way; I have never asked her over to see a sideboard made by prisoner; I know Mrs. Hughes; I went there to show Miss Cassin the child; she saw the child and kissed it; this would be about the beginning of February; I told Miss Cassin about the sideboard, but I did not invite her over; on a Sunday I went to see her; I knew she was there; I asked prisoner to come over with me, but he refused, saying he was tired and preferred to sleep; I have never seen prisoner in company with Miss Cassin.

Central Criminal Court:—There is no jealousy between Miss Cassin and myself.

JANUARY 1858.
Tonic illness.

Commission:—Before the illness of the groats the doctor prescribed a tonic for me; I did not take the tonic after the illness of the groats; I do not remember when I left off taking it; the tonic after I ceased to take it was kept on the chest of drawers in my bedroom; I do not remember when Dean asked me to recommence taking it; he was always asking me to take it, because I had no appetite; when I did not eat food he asked me to take it; he asked me to take it two or three times; he did not press it very much.

Prisoner and tonic.

Police Court:—My medicine is kept in my bedroom; since my confinement one bottle was kept on my husband's table in another room—the bottle marked "Dean, No. 3"; he said he was taking the medicine; I asked prisoner what the medicine was doing there; prisoner replied, "I am taking the medicine, as I have no appetite."

Morphia illness.

Commission:—I was ill a few days after my confinement; the doctor gave me some morphia to make me sleep; not long after taking it I started vomiting; I do not think I had any purging at that time; I took one dose of morphia at night and it made me very ill; Mr. Dean gave me another dose in the morning; the doctor came to see me and changed the medicine; I took no more of it; my mother was not there at that time; I do not think there was any illness between that time and the time I took the groats; I did not take any more of the morphia mixture after the 4th January; that was the only mixture I had with morphia in it; Mr. Dean threw the bottle in which the morphia mixture was away.

Groats illness.

Central Criminal Court:—On January 5th, at 9 a.m., mother brought me a basin of groats; I took about half a cupful; mother finished what was in the basin; we were both vomiting and purging all the day after taking it, but quite well before; prisoner was having his breakfast that morning in the house; I had a burning pain in the pit of stomach, and suffered from my eyes, with severe pain in head and cramps in feet; I had not noticed these symptoms before taking the groats.

Commission:—I think it was on the 13th January I took the groats; the doctor had ceased to attend me at that time; I do not remember when he ceased to attend me; the nature of the illness was purging and vomiting; I do not think there were any other symptoms of that illness; on the Monday the doctor prescribed without coming to see me; on two occasions, from the time I took the groats up to the time I took the lemon syrup, I was purged; I do not think I vomited, not at the time of the purging; the purging occurred once after tea, and once was after breakfast; there was no vomiting at that time; Miss Adye was present both times; I do not think there was any cause for it—nothing particular.

Dr. Newmarch prescribes.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner went to Dr. Newmarch on Monday, after my taking the groats on Sunday; he was going to pay the bill, and then he told the doctor we were ill; the doctor sent a prescription; I took the medicine, and got better; a month before confinement I asked him to get the doctor, and although far advanced in pregnancy he said I could walk; he had taken no interest in sending for the doctor before.

Commission:—

Commission:—I was nursing the baby at the time I took the groats; I do not think the baby was ill. Baby not ill.

Police Court:—The same bitter taste I recognised in the syrup (March) I tasted in the beef-tea Beef-tea illness. (January); my mother brought me the beef-tea upstairs; prisoner was there; this was about 11 o'clock in the forenoon; my mother said, "Drink this, it is beautiful"; I put a spoon into the tea and tasted it; I said, "I cannot drink it on account of the bitter taste"; my mother said, "I tasted it downstairs, and it was all right"; my mother then tasted it and said, "It is most bitter, it must have been a gall in the meat, it did not taste like this when I tasted it downstairs"; my mother asked the prisoner to taste it; prisoner tasted it and said, "it is all right," prisoner then said, "It is all right, drink it"; I did not drink it; my mother told prisoner she was going to throw it away.

Central Criminal Court:—Mother made some beef-tea about a fortnight after my confinement; she brought it to the bedside and asked me to drink it; I tasted it, and it had a most bitter taste; I did not take it; mother tasted it and took it to the kitchen.

Police Court:—I have not been subject to attacks of illness except about three weeks after my confinement; I then had my mother attending me; she was attacked the same as me after taking some groats; she was sick after the groats; the prisoner was in the house at this time; there was no other occasion on which the doctor attended me for such an illness. Not subject to illness.

Police Court:—On the 25th February I bought the bottle, marked "Dean No. 1," from Mrs. Adye, a grocer in Miller-street; it then contained lemon-syrup; I brought it home, and Miss Adye came home with me; we opened the bottle; it was sealed and capped, and Miss Adye had the first drink; then I had a drink; I suffered no ill effects from that drink nor did Miss Adye; I continued drinking the syrup up to Friday, the 1st March, and inclusive of that day; I did not suffer in any way from the drinking on Friday, the 1st March; I went to bed in my usual state of health; the syrup was kept on the sideboard up to Friday morning, the 1st March; it was then removed to the kitchen by myself. MARCH ILLNESSES. March 1st (Friday). Lemon-syrup; nothing wrong.

Central Criminal Court:—It only tasted of lemon-syrup, and I continued drinking it till the night of 1st March; there was no bitter taste in it, and I suffered no ill effects from it; I kept it on the sideboard downstairs; my husband had been out in the afternoon, and when he came home we had a few words about minding the baby; I then went upstairs; he came up afterwards, and said that I neglected the house and also the baby; I said, "Miss Cassin is the girl you ought to have married"; he said, "That is the girl I ought to have married, and that is the girl I will marry as soon as I get free"; he then went to bed, and went to his work at 11 p.m.; I put the lemon-syrup on the kitchen mantelpiece, and was in bed before he left; he had access to the kitchen, and no one was in the house but us two; no one had been in the house from the last time I had a drink of the syrup till the next morning, when I had another drink; I took the last drink on Friday night, and left the bottle on the kitchen mantelpiece; there was then no bitter taste in it, and I suffered no ill effects from it.

Police Court:—On Saturday morning, 2nd March, I came downstairs to the kitchen; I then prepared a glass of lemon-syrup from the bottle in the kitchen, with water from the tap; I noticed that the tumbler was clean before I put the syrup in; I then made a drink and swallowed three or four mouthfuls; I then noticed a most bitter taste; I then recognised the same taste as what I had tasted in some beef-tea that I had some five weeks before; I then lit the fire and prepared the breakfast; prisoner came in while I was getting breakfast; we had breakfast together. MARCH 2nd (Saturday). Lemon-syrup bitter taste.

Central Criminal Court:—I next drank from it between 7 and 7:30 a.m. on Saturday morning; prisoner had not returned then; I made a drink of it with water that I got from the tap in the same way I had done before in a clean tumbler; I took two or three mouthfuls, and noticed a most bitter taste, and recognised the same taste as was in the beef-tea that I did not drink; I threw the rest down the sink; I felt no ill effects at the time; I lighted a fire and prepared breakfast; prisoner came home and had breakfast; after breakfast I took ill, vomiting and purging.

Commission:—I kept the lemon-syrup on the sideboard till Friday night, 1st March; I had a drink of lemon-syrup on Friday night; I moved it to the kitchen; I did not move it intentionally; that was not the only time it had been left in the kitchen; I got up about a quarter to 7 o'clock on Saturday morning, the 2nd March; I took the lemon-syrup between 7 and half-past 7 o'clock; I do not know the exact time; I was not ill after taking this syrup; I had no illness at all; after breakfast, about 20 minutes past 8, I had symptoms of illness; I took two or three mouthfuls of the lemon-syrup; it was so bitter I did not take much of it; I cannot tell the quantity beyond two or three mouthfuls; I put the lemon-syrup in the glass and filled up the glass with water.

Central Criminal Court:—(Mrs. Dean, at the request of a juror, shows how much syrup she put in the glass.) [Mr. Hamlet says the quantity is a little over 2 ounces; that would not be a fatal dose, but a dangerous dose; there would be half a grain of arsenic in a tablespoonful of tonic.] Quantity of syrup put in the glass.

Commission:—I did not notice anything unusual in the appearance of the syrup until the afternoon; I did not notice anything unusual in the morning; it was exactly the same as I left it. Appearance of syrup.

Police Court:—After breakfast I started vomiting; I continued to vomit, and my head was very bad; the prisoner did not give me anything. Vomiting and purging.

Commission:—I was ill vomiting and purging; it came on after breakfast; I had a cup of tea and some bread and butter for breakfast; I made the tea myself; I do not exactly remember how many times I vomited, or how often I was purged; I did not go to the closet; I used a utensil indoors; the illness ceased before dinner; I vomited in the back yard; the closet is at the bottom of the yard.

Police Court:—At lunch-time, on the same day, I made some more syrup from the same bottle; I tasted it; it had a bitter taste, so I threw it down the sink. Took some more syrup.

Commission:—At lunch-time I prepared a little more syrup in a clean tumbler with water from the same tap; I put it to my lips to taste it; it still had a bitter taste, and I did not taste any of it.

Police Court:—I took the bottle to Mrs. Adye; she tasted the syrup and said something to Mrs. Walke who was there; Mrs. Walke then tasted the syrup. Bottle taken to neighbours.

Police Court:—I left the bottle at Mrs. Adye's for ten minutes, and went home to get my baby; I then got the bottle again; it had a small quantity of syrup in it; I took the bottle to Mr. Smith, a chemist in West-street; he told me something and returned the syrup; I then took the syrup to Mrs. Gail's; we had a conversation; I then took the bottle of syrup to Dr. Newmarch; the doctor was not there; I took it back to Mrs. Gail's and left it there; I did not see it again until to-day.

Central

Central Criminal Court :—At 2:30 I went to Mrs. Adye and took the bottle of syrup with me; I showed her the bottle, and she tasted it by putting her tongue to the cork; Mrs. Walke also tasted it, putting the bottle to her lips; I left the bottle there and went for my baby, and returned and got the bottle again, and took it to Mr. Smith, the chemist, and then to Mrs. Gail, a neighbour; the chemist tasted it; I went to Dr. Newmarch with the bottle, but he was not in, and I left the bottle with Mrs. Gail, to be sent to Dr. Newmarch; it was just as I took it off the mantelpiece.

Commission :—I went out in the afternoon, and saw several of my neighbours.

Police Court (cross-examination) :—I first knew Dr. Newmarch took the bottle on the 4th instant; my mother told me at half-past 12 o'clock on the 4th instant.

Central Criminal Court :—I went home and went to bed about 7:30, feeling ill, with a terrible pain in my head; the vomiting had stopped; prisoner came in and came upstairs and asked me what had made me ill; I said I had drunk some syrup out of the bottle; he asked me where it was; I said at Dr. Newmarch's; he asked me why I did not let him take the bottle; I said, "You were asleep when I took it," and he was; this was on Saturday night; he did not suggest going for a doctor.

Commission :—I do not know what time my husband came home on Saturday morning; I do not think he saw me ill; he did not; he went up to bed; I do not think he got up till tea-time; I told him at night-time I was ill; it was tea-time I told him; I do not remember what time; I did not tell him what made me ill; I did not tell him what I thought made me ill, because I did not know the nature of the illness; I did not suspect it was the lemon-syrup; I had no suspicion that it was that made me ill; I took it down to the neighbours to see if they could taste a bitter taste; I also took it to the chemist's as well; I asked that it might be taken to Dr. Newmarch's; I did not tell my husband at all what I suspected; the lemon-syrup was the only thing I had taken.

Police Court :—On Wednesday, the 5th instant, in the morning, prisoner was in my bedroom and said, "Mrs. Weynton has spoken to me about poison being in the syrup bottle," I said, I did not know about any poison being in the bottle; I said, "The bottle is at Dr. Newmarch's;" prisoner said, "Why did you not let me take the bottle to Dr. Newmarch?" I said it was a pity to wake him; (Cross-examination): Mrs. Weynton was not there when I spoke to the doctor; I remember on Tuesday morning prisoner coming to my room and saying, "What is this I hear about the bottle?" I did not say to prisoner there was poison in the bottle; I said the doctor had it.

Central Criminal Court :—On the Tuesday morning prisoner said Mr. Weynton had told him something about a bottle, something about poison being in a bottle—a syrup bottle; he asked me what I knew about poison being in the bottle; I said I knew nothing about poison, but the bottle was then at Dr. Newmarch's. (Cross-examination): On Tuesday morning prisoner said "What is this I hear about a bottle?" I said "What bottle?" he said "The bottle which you have been drinking out of that I heard made you bad."

Commission :—I remember the first thing my husband said to me when he came back on the Tuesday morning was about this lemon-syrup bottle; he said, "What is this that Mr. Weynton has been telling me about your drinking something out of a bottle?" I said the bottle was at Dr. Newmarch's; I do not think I said anything else.

Police Court :—On Saturday, the 2nd March, I went to bed after tea; between 9 and 10 on Saturday, my husband gave me some porter; he then returned to work; I suffered in no way from this.

Police Court :—On Saturday, the 2nd instant, the doors of the house were closed when I got up; I had coffee and tea stored in the kitchen; they are still used in the house; no one has suffered from using them.

Commission :—Dean did not ask me to have a doctor on the Saturday; I remember him wanting the doctor on the Sunday, but I do not remember that he wanted me to see a doctor on the Saturday; I do not remember him asking me to see a doctor on the Saturday; I refused on the Sunday, because I did not feel ill enough to have the doctor; although I was suspecting my husband of poisoning me, I cannot say any more than that I did not think I was ill enough.

Commission :—I thought that the taste in the lemon-syrup was the same taste as I had tasted in the beef-tea; that is why I took it to the chemist's, to see what had been put into it, and I left it at Gail's to be taken to Dr. Newmarch; I thought that something was wrong—that something was put into it; there was nobody else in the house but my husband; I thought my husband had put it in; I said nothing to him about it.

Commission :—I went to bed soon after tea that night; I do not remember taking anything before going to bed; I took some tea in the course of that evening; that was all; I made the tea; some porter was brought to me after I had gone to bed; I drank some; I do not think I took any milk that evening; I only had the porter after I had gone to bed.

Commission :—I had given the baby a drink before getting up on Saturday morning, the 2nd March; I suckled it through the night, and I suckled it in the morning; it was before 8, about a quarter to 8, as nearly as I can remember after taking the lemon-syrup that I suckled the baby; I heard the baby cry, and went upstairs and gave her a drink; I drank the lemon-syrup between 7 and half-past 7, and I suckled the baby some time before 8.

Commission :—The baby took convulsions; I do not remember whether it was after I was taken ill or before I was taken ill; I cannot remember whether the baby took convulsions first or not, or whether I was taken ill first; the baby was asleep, and when I went upstairs she was black in the face, and I wrapped her in a shawl and took her to Mrs. Weynton's; Mrs. Weynton said it was a touch of convulsions; she was not foaming at the mouth; she was lying quite still; the body was not stiff.

Commission :—I nursed the baby in the course of the afternoon again; I nursed it when I was at Mrs. Adye's and afterwards; it remained quite well; it seemed just the same; it was sick in the morning; I do not think I noticed any difference in the afternoon to any other day.

Police Court (cross-examination) :—I saw my lemon-syrup before the prisoner came home; from the time I got up till the arrival of the prisoner I had not been outside the house; I know Mrs. Thompson; I know that I was not at Mrs. Thompson's house on 2nd March; I know I was not outside; I now remember I was at Mrs. Thompson's on the Saturday, the 2nd instant, therefore I must have been outside before prisoner came home. (To Police):—I was at Mrs. Thompson's place a very short time.

Commission :—I remember seeing Mr. Thompson on the night of Saturday; I did not see him about 12 o'clock on that day; I remember he came to ask something about a bicycle; I do not remember Baby took convulsions.

Afternoon—suckled the baby.

Visited Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson's visit.

remember what time it was; I was pretty well at that time; I answered the door and talked to him; he came back between 1 and 2; I remember that; I am quite sure; I was pretty well up to dinner-time, except that my head was bad; the vomiting and purging were all gone; there was nothing left but a headache.

Central Criminal Court:—I felt better on Sunday; the prisoner asked me how I was, on Sunday morning, about 9 o'clock; I said, "I was a little better" (we were occupying different rooms at that time); we had done so since marriage; we started that way; it was my arrangement, he being at night-work.

March 3rd
(Sunday).
Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Commission:—I was in bed all day on Sunday; there was no vomiting or purging on that day; I had dreadful bad pains in my head, but no other illness.

Police Court:—On the 3rd instant my husband gave me some porter in the morning; prisoner came home a little after 9 o'clock on the Sunday morning; prisoner came into the bedroom and said, "How do you feel this morning?" I said, "I have suffered severely from pains in my head"; prisoner said, "What would you like to drink—either some brandy or some porter?" I said, "Give me what you think will do me the most good"; prisoner said, "You had better have some porter"; prisoner took a tumbler into the bath-room, and washed it; he returned to my room; I noticed he had the tumbler in the palm of his hand, with his fingers round it; I raised myself in bed, and noticed something white in the bottom of the tumbler; it looked like a powder; prisoner turned his back to me, and put some of the porter into the glass; there was no porter in it when I noticed the powder; prisoner then smelt it; I said, "What is the matter with it?"; prisoner said, "It has turned sour"; I said, "Put a spoonful of sugar into it—it will freshen it up"; prisoner said, "No, it may make you sick"; prisoner then threw it over the balcony, and took the glass downstairs. (Cross-examination):—I never remember prisoner holding a glass with his fingers round before; prisoner was holding the glass up; it was not held for me to take; prisoner turned his back to put the porter in; the bottle had been previously opened; I have no doubt I saw the powder in the glass; I told prisoner to put sugar into it to freshen it up; I do not know that I had any reason for asking for the sugar to be put in. (To Bench):—The porter had been opened the night before; prisoner put the bottle of porter behind the door.

Porter incident.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner asked me if I would like some porter; I said, Yes, if he thought it would do me good; he then took a tumbler into the bath-room, and returned to the room holding the bottom of the tumbler in the palm of his hand (shows) resting the bottom of the tumbler in the hand.

Central Criminal Court:—I raised myself in bed and noticed something white in the bottom of the tumbler; it looked like a powder; the tumbler had nothing in it but the powder; he then turned his back to me and poured some porter into the tumbler; the bottle of porter was on the floor when he went out of the room with the tumbler, and the tumbler was one also in the room; he took the tumbler from the room into the bath-room; I heard the tap turned, I thought he was washing the tumbler; he then brought it back again; I had not put any powder in the tumbler.

Noticed something white in tumbler.

Commission:—There was some powder in the bottom of the glass of porter which my husband did not give me; I do not know what it was.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner then put the tumbler of porter to his nose, and he said it was sour; he then threw it over the balcony; it was opened for me on Saturday night, and I had some of it and it did me no harm; I cannot say whether the tumbler was dirty when he washed it in the bath-room; I do not know where he took the tumbler from; he drank a glassful of the same porter about 11 o'clock, and about an hour and a half after he said it was sour. (Re-examination):—It is quite untrue that prisoner drank the glass of porter off which I refused there and then.

Said porter was sour and threw it away.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I had no idea that my husband was attempting to poison me; it never struck me that the white substance was poison; I did not ask my husband about it because I wanted to see if prisoner would ask me to take it; I intended to ask about the powder afterwards; prisoner said it was sour; I did not say I could see white stuff in it.

No suspicion of poison.

Police Court:—At about 10 o'clock on the morning of the 3rd instant I was in bed; prisoner came into the room, and brought a cup and saucer in with him; the cup contained tea; he poured some of it into the saucer and said, "Drink this"; I noticed something white clinging to the saucer round the edge of the tea; I asked what it was; prisoner said, "It is the cream off the milk"; I put it to my lips; prisoner said, "Drink it while it is hot."

Tea incident.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner offered me some tea and toast about 10 a.m.; he poured some into a saucer and asked me to drink it; I then noticed something clinging to the side of the saucer, floating round the edge of the tea; it looked like little white lumps; I said, "What is that round the saucer?" he said, "it was a cream off the milk"; it did not look like cream; he asked me to drink it; I tasted it, but did not drink it; I said I would drink it when it was cool.

Commission:—My husband brought me some tea on the Sunday morning; I said there was some powder floating on the saucer at the court; he poured the tea back out of the saucer into the cup; I do not remember whether the powder was still to be seen in the cup; I emptied the cup into the tumbler; I do not remember seeing any white stuff in the cup; I do not remember noticing anything in the tumbler when I poured it in.

Police Court:—I asked prisoner to go for Mrs. Adye; prisoner said, "Drink the tea before I go"; I said, "No"; prisoner then went for Mrs. Adye.

Prisoner goes for Mrs. Adye.

Central Criminal Court:—I asked prisoner to go for Mrs. Adye; she was my nearest woman friend; he went away; he asked me to drink the tea before he went; I said, "No, I would wait till it was cool."

Commission:—I asked my husband to go for Mrs. Adye, and while he was away I poured some into a tumbler and put it under the chest of drawers.

Police Court:—As soon as I heard the gate click I got out of bed; I took a tumbler off the washstand; I wiped it with a towel to make it clean; I then put the tea into the tumbler, and placed it under the chest of drawers; I put two-thirds of the tea in the tumbler in the glass, but left what was in the bottom of the cup. (To Bench):—I had no reason for wiping the glass except that I thought it might be dusty.

Tea put in tumbler under drawers.

Central Criminal Court:—I got out of bed and took a tumbler off the washstand, and poured the tea out of the cup into it; prisoner had brought the tea in a cup and had poured it into the saucer; I only noticed noticed

noticed the white stuff in the saucer; when I had refused to take the tea he had, before going away poured it back into the cup again; I put the tumbler under the chest of drawers; I did not drink any of it.

Mrs. Adye's visit.

Central Criminal Court:—Mrs. Adye came, and I had a conversation with her, prisoner not being present; I pointed out the tea in the tumbler under the chest of drawers, and the cup; this was after 10 a.m.

Commission: I told Mrs. Adye that Mr. Dean brought me some tea and toast, and about the porter; Mrs. Adye tasted the tea; she sipped it; she said there was no taste whatever; I am positive she said it tasted all right; she did not ask me to have some; she told me not to drink it; Mrs. Adye did not say, "Why don't you drink it?"; she said it tasted all right, but I would not drink it; Mrs. Adye did not take a good sip; she put the cup to her lips and sipped it; I do not know whether she took a mouthful; Mrs. Adye was not a great friend of mine; I used to go to her shop; Mrs. Adye did not stay with me many minutes; I had this conversation while she was in the house.

Mrs. Adye took baby away.

Commission:—Mr. Dean had the baby downstairs while Mrs. Adye was in the room with me; Mrs. Adye took the baby away that day to bath it.

Told husband had drunk the tea.

Police Court:—Mrs. Adye returned with my husband; after Mrs. Adye came I said something to her; my husband came upstairs and said, "Did you drink the tea?"; I said, "Yes"; prisoner said, "It will do you good"; prisoner then took the cup and saucer out of the room.

Central Criminal Court:—After leaving, in about 10 minutes prisoner came to me; he asked me had I drunk the tea; I said, "Yes"; he said, "It would do me good"; he had not waited on me in this way during my confinement illness; during the rest of the day I only took lime-water and milk.

Commission:—My husband came back with Mrs. Adye; he did not come upstairs with her; I next saw my husband when Mrs. Adye was gone; he came for the cup and saucer; I told him I drank the tea; what I told my husband was not true.

Tells neighbours of tea under drawers.

Commission:—Mrs. Gail came in on Sunday afternoon; I told her about the tea being under the drawers; I told Mrs. Adye of the tea under the drawers; she knew.

Glass secreted for three days.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I gave the empty glass up on the Friday; I told my mother it was there on the Wednesday; my mother took the glass out and examined it; Mr. Gail examined it the same time as my mother; the glass was under the chest of drawers for three days.

Visitors.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Gail on that day as well as Mrs. Adye.

Food: lime-water and milk.

Commission:—I had lime-water and milk through the day on Sunday; Mrs. Adye made me a cup of tea, and brought me some bread and butter from her own place; I had that and also the lime-water and milk; Mr. Dean gave me the lime-water and milk; I do not remember how many times I took it; I was drinking it through the day; he gave me two or three drinks of it during the afternoon; I used to give it to the baby; Dr. Newmarch prescribed lime-water and milk for me before, when I was sick with the gripes; I only remember taking the lime-water and milk on Sunday.

Suspicious of poisoning.

Commission:—I was suspicious on Sunday that I was being poisoned; I suspected my husband; after he gave me the tea, although I suspected him, I took the lime-water and milk from him because I had no one else to hand me anything; there was nobody in the house.

Withheld from neighbours.

Mrs. Adye came back in the afternoon, about half-past 4; she stayed about half an hour; I did not tell her that I suspected my husband; I did not tell her that; she was the only neighbour I took to; I did not tell her that I had any suspicions of my husband whatever; I did not mention poison to her at all; I did not give Mrs. Adye or Mrs. Gail any reason for the tea being under the drawers; I just told Mrs. Gail it was there; I did not give them any reason; Mrs. Adye did not ask me to take the tea; I did not give her any reason for the glass of tea being put under the drawers; I did not say anything to her.

Not too ill to help myself.

Commission:—I had a very bad headache on that Sunday; that is all; my head was so bad that I thought lying down would do me good; I was not too ill to get the milk and lime-water if I wanted it; I could have got up; I could have got up and got it for myself if I wanted; my husband mixed it in a jug at the side of the table; it was a china jug; (Was it not a risky thing for him to mix it if you thought he was poisoning you?) I do not know what I thought.

March 4th (Monday).

Commission:—I was feeling very much better on Monday morning, the 4th March; Dean came to see me about 7 o'clock; he generally came about 7 o'clock; he did not give me anything before breakfast; no more lime-water and milk.

Condition.

Commission:—My husband brought my breakfast in the morning; it consisted of some bread and butter, a chop, and a cup of cocoa; I do not remember now whether it was one chop or two chops; it might have been two chops; there were four little pieces—slices—of bread and butter; I am quite positive it was cocoa; I ate a good breakfast; I ate most of the chop and all of the bread and butter.

Breakfast.

Cocoa for breakfast.

Central Criminal Court:—On Monday morning at breakfast prisoner brought me some cocoa, bread and butter and a chop, which I took; about twenty minutes or about half an hour after eating it I started vomiting and purging very seriously; I felt severe pains in my head, and a heavy pain in the stomach—a burning pain—and a burning in the throat; I had no such symptoms before he gave me this food; I was feeling much better up to the time he gave it me; no one else was in the house but us two; I lay down on the bed feeling very ill; prisoner was lying on the bed with me; I was dressed; the symptoms went on all through the day.

Commission:—I had cocoa on this morning because Mr. Dean said he had just bought it; that would be about 9 o'clock; I had my breakfast before 9 o'clock; it might be before half-past 8 o'clock; I know the shop where he bought the cocoa, it was a new grocer's, not long opened; he told me that he had gone into the corner shop for it; I asked for cocoa; he brought me up some cocoa; he said, "I have made you a cup of cocoa this morning"; I said, "All right, George"; he said, "I went to the corner shop and got it for you"; this was not the first time I had cocoa in the house.

Vomiting and purging.

Commission:—I was taken ill on the Monday morning directly after breakfast; not very long after I had taken breakfast; I do not remember how long; I was vomiting; I vomited up the breakfast I had taken, and was purging all the morning; I did not go to the closet; I used utensils in the room; the vomiting was very frequent all the morning; I had pains in the stomach, and dreadful pains in my head; I am quite sure this commenced immediately after breakfast; not long after; it was before 1 o'clock, at all events; Miss Adye and Mr. Dean saw me vomit on the Saturday and the Monday; I do not remember anybody else; Miss Adye saw me vomit on Monday, about dinner-time, when Mr. Dean brought the chop at 1 o'clock, and she was there; I was ill about every ten minutes on Monday night, as near as I can remember.

I took the first dose of the medicine about a quarter to 11 or 11 o'clock; I was worse after that; Dean gave me a drink of lime-water and milk before giving me the medicine; I am quite sure of that; I don't think I vomited between taking the lime-water and milk and taking the medicine. Lime-water and milk before medicine.

Police Court (cross-examination):—On the 2nd March the prisoner suggested getting the doctor; on the following day the prisoner also suggested getting the doctor; my husband was going to his duty all the time; prisoner said on the Monday, "You must and will have the doctor"; I had been refusing to see the doctor; prisoner then left the house and got the doctor; the doctor saw me first on the 4th instant. Prisoner suggests Saturday, makes Monday, on having doctor.

Central Criminal Court:—At about 5:30 in the afternoon prisoner suggested my having the doctor; he had done so on the Sunday, but I would not, as I was feeling pretty right; I consented, and about 6 o'clock he went for him. (Cross-examination): Prisoner did not say, when I made a demur to having the doctor on the Sunday, "I will stand this no longer, you will and must have a doctor," he said that on the Monday between 5 and 6 o'clock; I was not demurring then to having a doctor; I was vomiting very much at the time.

Commission:—I did not ask that the doctor might be sent for; I did not think I was ill enough to get a doctor; Dean suggested it; I said, "I will get better," when he suggested, I objected, because he had always refused before when I wanted a doctor; on this occasion he insisted on having the doctor; he went for the doctor between 4 and 5 o'clock; I do not remember how long he was away; I think he came upstairs to me when he came back; I do not remember whether he was upstairs till the doctor came; he was upstairs part of the time; he gave me some soda-water and milk to drink. (Dr. Manning): Still you had suspicions about him that he was poisoning you. On the Sunday you took the breakfast from him, and on the Monday morning, and soda and milk in the afternoon. Why was that, if you were suspicious that he was poisoning you—can you tell me? I thought the things I saw were very strange, and I could hardly think he could do it. [Witness broke down.]

Police Court:—On the 4th March Dr. Newmarch saw me, and prescribed for me.

Central Criminal Court:—Dr. Newmarch came about 9 or 10 o'clock and saw me; I was still feeling the same symptoms; he prescribed for me, and prisoner went for the medicine and brought it. (Re-examination): I forgot all about the tea when the doctor came; I felt light-headed till the Wednesday. Doctor's visit.

Commission:—Mr. Dean and Mrs. Weynton were in the room the whole time the doctor was there on the Monday evening; I was not vomiting then; the doctor did not see me vomit; he did not look into the pedestal to see if there was anything there; that had been cleared up; Mr. Dean had emptied it; he emptied it in the morning and in the afternoon too; Mrs. Adye came to see me on the Monday evening too; still I did not tell her anything about my suspicions; and I did not tell the doctor. Persons present.

Police Court:—On the Monday night, the 4th instant, at about 10 o'clock, prisoner brought me some medicine to the bedside, and said, "This is your medicine; drink it"; it was in a tumbler, and looked milky; prisoner brought it into the room in the tumbler; the top looked like curdled milk; I said, "What is that?" prisoner said, "It is a powder that was ordered to be put into the medicine"; prisoner had a spoon in the tumbler, pressing the back of it against the glass, trying to press the stuff on the top; I drank the medicine; prisoner then gave me a spoonful of sugar and went off to his work. (Cross-examination): I saw the prisoner bring the medicine in the glass; I was in a weak condition; the bottle of medicine was brown; when poured into the glass it had a white colour; my husband came in breathless from the chemist's, and put the medicine in my room; I did not see the bottle until the next day; a little table was near the bed; bottles and tumblers were on the table; I had been drinking lime-water; prisoner did not say that the white was from a few drops of lime-water being in the tumbler; when the medicine was poured out it had a white substance on the top like curdled milk; I had never seen this before in medicine. Medicine incident.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner offered me some of the medicine about 11 p.m.; I was still ill, but not vomiting; I had ceased vomiting; he brought me the medicine in a tumbler to the bedside; he had a spoon in the tumbler, and was pressing the back of the spoon against the glass as though he was trying to mix something; he asked me to drink it; I noticed it had a milky appearance; I asked him what made it look like that; he said it was the powder the doctor had ordered; I then drank it; the mixture in the tumbler was very thick, and looked like curdled milk on the top; I drank it; prisoner then went to work and left the house. (By juror): I did not see him offer the medicine to me in a spoon; he did not offer it to me in the spoon; I did not see him pouring it into the tumbler; when he came back from the chemist's he placed the medicine on the mantel; I did not know that he was measuring the medicine till he brought it to the bedside and asked me to take it; I then noticed that he had a spoon in the tumbler, pressing the back of it against the glass, as though he were trying to mix something by stirring it and pressing the back of the spoon against the side of the glass; he then asked me to drink it; it was then I noticed the milky appearance of the medicine, and asked prisoner the cause of it; he replied that it was a powder that the doctor had ordered to go with the medicine, and I drank it; this was the very first time the medicine was offered to me; between five or ten minutes elapsed from the time of his putting the medicine on the mantelpiece and his giving it to me; no one was in the room whilst the medicine was on the mantelpiece; I did not get out of bed.

Central Criminal Court (re-examination):—No such conversation took place, as prisoner said did with him after the doctor left, in which he suggested that the white look in the medicine was caused by his putting the medicine into the tumbler that I had drunk lime-water and milk out of; I had a drink of lime-water and milk that night before I took the medicine, but I left none in the glass. (By juror): He did give me a drink of lime-water and milk, but whether before he went or after he returned with the medicine I cannot say; I drank it; I did not refuse the medicine at first, but took it at once on his offering it to me; his account is not correct. Prisoner gave no explanation for milky appearance.

Central Criminal Court:—There was no bitter taste in the cocoa, but I think there was in the medicine on Monday night. Bitter taste in medicine, but not in cocoa.

Central Criminal Court:—About half an hour after taking the medicine I began vomiting and purging again, with the same burning symptoms that I had before in the throat and stomach, and I could hardly see out of my eyes; it went on all through the night, vomiting and purging nearly every ten minutes; I was very thirsty all night, continually drinking. (Re-examination): I was purging and vomiting incessantly every time I drank, and I craved for drink, which made me vomit; I did not get out of bed on Saturday night, except on Monday morning, from the purging. Vomiting and purging. Police Police Court:—After taking the medicine I became worse; I vomited and purged every ten minutes through the night.

Powders found on doorstep.

Police Court:—The powders (produced), marked "as before," were found on the outside doorstep by me; about three weeks before my illness on the 2nd instant a man named Jenkins was there with a party of friends of Mrs. Gail; my mother was not there; the powders were on the doorstep when I came back from Miss Adye's; I took them in and examined them; I did not notice the powders on the step when I passed out; it was a moonlight night; I did not have the powders when I left the house; they were not in my possession before I left the house; I found them when I returned with Miss Adye. (Cross-examination):—I returned to the house with Miss Adye before the prisoner left; I asked all in the room who dropped the powders; I put them in the sideboard, and then after into my pocket; I am sure the powders were the same; I placed the powders in my pocket as I did not wish to leave them on the sideboard; I wished to take them upstairs; the powders were found in my pocket by my mother; the dress was not worn after the party.

Dinner.

Commission:—I think Dean brought me up a chop and some bread and butter for dinner; he brought me some more cocoa; he made another cup of cocoa at about half-past 10 o'clock, and put it alongside the bed; I was not in the habit of taking cocoa; I did not eat the chop that was brought up; Miss Ethel Adye told him to take it downstairs.

Sago.

Commission:—There was some sago brought to me by Miss Adye; I do not think I took any of that sago; it was brought to me at dinner-time; I do not remember what we had in the afternoon.

Visited Mrs. Adye.

Commission:—I did not stay in my room all that Monday; I went out in the morning; a little after 11 o'clock, to Mrs. Adye's; I went to Mrs. Adye's to tell her I was ill; I did not stay very long at Mrs. Adye's; about a quarter of an hour; I remember how I was dressed on that morning; in a wrapper; my hair was loose; Mrs. Adye asked me what I had for breakfast, and I told her; I told her how sick I was, and asked her to go for my mother; I did not tell Mrs. Adye anything about the baby at that time; I only went to her to tell her how ill I was; I wanted her to go for my mother; I have never told anybody I was out on the Monday morning with Mrs. Adye; I was not asked about it at the trial; I gave everybody to understand I was very ill on the Monday; I was very ill, but well enough to go out to Mrs. Adye's; Mrs. Adye's is not quite as far as from here to the Public Library.

Did not tell Dean.

Commission:—I do not think I mentioned to Dean that I had been out in the morning; I did not tell him at all; he was asleep when I came back.

How I was dressed.

Commission:—The morning I went out with the wrapper on I had a flannel petticoat and a clean nightdress underneath it; that is what I went out in.

Soda-water.

Commission:—I think I asked for some soda-water at Mrs. Adye's that morning; I did not get any; she gave me a drink of water from the well; Mrs. Walke's little girl brought some soda-water after to my house; I think Mrs. Walke's little girl brought it upstairs.

The baby.

Commission:—Mr. Dean had the baby downstairs after breakfast; I washed and dressed the baby upstairs; directly after I had my cocoa; I did not finish dressing it; I took ill then; I think Mrs. Adye had the baby when I took ill; Mr. Dean took it up to Mrs. Adye's; I did not suckle it; it had a bottle; I did not give the baby the breast on Sunday; on the Monday morning when I went out to Mrs. Adye's the baby was asleep; Mr. Dean had charge of the baby on my bed; they were both fast asleep on the bed upstairs; they were there when I went out; Hans Bach was below; the baby was with Mr. Dean, on Mr. Dean's arm; the baby was downstairs with Hans Bach that morning; I do not know whether it was washed downstairs after I washed it; Mr. Dean had got a feeding-bottle for the baby on the Monday; he had got the feeding-bottle when I went out; he got it after breakfast-time that morning; he had it before I went out in my wrapper; it is not correct that Dean was out getting the feeding-bottle at the chemist's when I went out in my wrapper to Mrs. Adye's; he was lying on the bed when I went out; Hans Bach was nursing the baby after breakfast-time, I think; they had the baby downstairs while I had my breakfast; it was just after breakfast he nursed it; I had my breakfast about 8 o'clock.

Did not suckle the baby.

Commission:—I did not suckle the baby on Monday morning—not at all; Mr. Dean got some food off Mrs. Thompson for the baby; on Sunday morning he was feeding the baby with the food; I did not suckle the baby at all on the Monday; I am sure that Hans Bach did not see me suckle the baby on the Monday; I am quite certain; it is quite certain that I did not suckle the baby on the Monday; she had the feeding-bottle; the baby was not suckled at any time after Monday; I am quite certain that the baby was not suckled on the Monday; Mrs. Adye had her bottle; sometimes babies are nursed and have the feeding-bottle as well; I did not nurse it.

Hans Bach.

Commission:—I remember Hans Bach coming to see me; he was there to breakfast; I do not remember what time he came; he did not come upstairs at all; he did not come up into the bedroom with my husband; I do not remember him coming into the bedroom at all; I knew Hans Bach was there because I went downstairs during the day; I saw Hans Bach when I came downstairs; he was lying on the sofa; I did not see him again between 2 and 3 in the afternoon, or between 3 and 4 in the afternoon; he did not come upstairs to say good-bye to me; he sang out upstairs "good-bye."

Left alone at night.

Commission:—On the Monday night Mr. Dean left a stick alongside of the bed, and left the balcony door open; if I wanted anything I was to knock, and Mrs. Weynton would come in; I was left, ill as I was, during this Monday night; there was no one to give me medicine; I was not expecting my mother; I did not know my mother would come.

Night-dress.

Central Criminal Court:—I had put on a clean night-dress on Sunday morning, and I wore it till Monday morning about 11 o'clock, when I took it off; I had been purging whilst I wore it, and I took it off because it was soiled by the purging which followed my taking the cocoa; I put it in the clothes-basket.

Commission:—I changed my night-dress on the Monday forenoon; I had to; I put that night-dress on clean on Sunday; I do not remember how I wore it—whether it was inside out or not; Dr. Newmarch did not ask me anything about the night-dress on the Monday; it was on the Sunday, not on the Monday; on the following; my depositions at the Police Court in which I am reported to have stated, "That Dr. Newmarch saw me on Monday night and asked me about the night-dress" are incorrect; he asked my mother on the following Sunday whether there was any vomiting, and did I have anything to show, only the night-dress; that was on the following Sunday, not on Monday the 4th March; the night-dress was taken off about 11 o'clock on Monday morning; I put it in the dirty clothes-basket; I showed to my mother on Wednesday; I told my mother about vomiting on the Monday morning, and she asked me where the night-dress was; I said it was in the dirty clothes-basket; she said, "Is this the one you mean?"; I said, "Yes"; it was left there dirty till the following Sunday; it was amongst the other other

other dirty clothes; I wash once a fortnight; I took it off before I went out; I do not know how I took the night-dress off; I think I slipped it off; sometimes I take it off over my head, and sometimes I drop it down at my feet.

Police Court:—My mother found the night-dress in the basket and brought it to me, and asked if it was my night-dress; it was then in the same state as when it was taken off. Mother and night-dress.

Central Criminal Court:—On Wednesday, the 6th March, I saw my mother take the nightdress out of the basket and look at it, and put it back in the basket.

Police Court:—Dr. Newmarch took the nightdress from my room in my presence on the 6th March; my mother got it from the basket; Dr. Newmarch took it on the 7th instant. Doctor and nightdress.

Central Criminal Court:—The doctor took the nightgown away on the following Sunday, the 10th; it is in the same state now as when I took it off on the Monday; I was still ill in bed when Dr. Newmarch came, and I described my symptoms to him; I described them truthfully, and he examined me.

Commission:—The doctor got that nightdress on the following Sunday; he picked it up himself on the Sunday; I am sure that on the following Sunday the doctor took that nightdress, and that that was the first time he saw it; I understood that he picked it out of the basket; I was in bed; that was the first time he had seen it.

I gave this account at the Police Court (See page 22): "Dr. Newmarch took the nightdress from my room, in my presence, on the 6th March; my mother got it from the basket; Dr. Newmarch took it on the 7th instant"; but I think I corrected it afterwards; I do not remember whether I corrected it at the Police Court or at the trial; the truth is that it was on the Sunday; I made a mistake, perhaps, although that is what I swore on the 19th of March, a fortnight after the occurrence; I think it was a Thursday when he took it. Confusion of dates.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner came to me about 7 a.m. on Tuesday; he asked me how I was; I said I had been very ill all night; the doctor came about 10, I think. March 5th (Tuesday).

Commission:—My mother nursed me on Monday night; I was vomiting on Tuesday morning early; I do not remember what time my husband came to me on Tuesday morning; he generally got home about 7 or half-past 7 o'clock, and generally came to see me; he did not give me anything to drink on the Tuesday morning; I could not take anything; he did not attempt to give me anything to drink; I do not think he gave me anything to drink, because everything I drank I vomited up again; I do not remember whether I had anything to eat or drink between the time Mrs. Lee left and the time my mother came back that evening; I did vomit during that time; I was still vomiting on the Tuesday afternoon; my mother came back at half-past 5 or 6 o'clock on the Tuesday afternoon; my mother knew I was ill; after the doctor saw me on Tuesday food was injected into the bowel; I took everything by the bowel—injected; I only sucked ice; I do not remember if I was taking medicine. Condition.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner was not in the room crying when the doctor came; such a conversation as prisoner swore to as to his saying, "Now tell the doctor all about the bottle you have been drinking out of with a white powder in it," never took place (see re-examination, page 19, Judge's Notes). No conversation with prisoner re syrup bottle.

Police Court:—On Tuesday, the 5th instant, I had a conversation with prisoner and Dr. Newmarch; I had told the doctor something before this; Dr. Newmarch said, "Did you put a powder in your wife's medicine?" prisoner replied, "No"; I said, "You gave me a powder in the medicine"; prisoner said, "No, I did not"; I said, "Did you not say the doctor had ordered a powder in the medicine?" prisoner replied, "No, I did not"; I was taking medicine during my confinement to which a powder had to be added, prescribed by Dr. Newmarch. Powder in medicine. Prisoner and doctor.

Central Criminal Court:—On the Tuesday, prisoner was present when Dr. Newmarch was there; nothing took place then; on Wednesday or Thursday the doctor brought prisoner to me in bed; I had told the doctor something before this; on that he went to the prisoner and brought him to me and asked him did he put a powder into the medicine; he said, "No"; I said, "George, you told me the doctor had ordered a powder to be put into the medicine"; he said, "I did not"; I said, "You know you are telling a falsehood"; he said, "You would hang a man," and went out of the room.

Commission:—I think Dean was downstairs when the doctor came on Tuesday morning; I am sure about that because he came upstairs afterwards; he did not come up with the doctor; the doctor came up alone, and Mr. Dean came up a few minutes afterwards; if Mrs. Thompson says that Dean was lying on the bed with me when the doctor came, and when the doctor came up that Dean met him, that is not correct; Mr. Dean was not in the bedroom when the doctor came; the doctor asked me when he came what I had been taking; I told him about the lemon-syrup, about drinking it; Dean was not there at that time; I am quite certain of that; the doctor told Dean to leave the room; I am not confusing this with the Wednesday; Dean came up after the doctor; the doctor said, "Dean, leave the room, and shut the door"; I do not remember what Mrs. Thompson said at this time; I do not remember what the doctor said when I told him I had taken the lemon-syrup; the doctor did not do anything before he went away; he only prescribed for me; I saw him write the prescription; my husband was not there then; Mrs. Thompson was there then; I think the doctor wrote the prescription on the chest of drawers.

Commission:—The doctor said something to me about my taking tea; he asked me who gave it to me; I do not remember what I said to him; he said I had no business to take tea; I do not remember my husband saying, "It is not my fault; she would have it." Doctor and tea.

Commission:—I did not say to the doctor that I thought Dean had put poison in the lemon syrup; if the doctor says I did, I did not. Doctor and lemon syrup.

Commission:—Mrs. Thompson came to see me on the Tuesday morning; she came to wash the baby; Dean was downstairs then; he did not come up with Mrs. Thompson; she came up alone; I took something to drink while Mrs. Thompson was there; she brought me some tea; I think she gave the tea to me to drink. Mrs. Thompson's visit.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I think Mrs. Thompson and the doctor were in the room when I spoke to prisoner; on Tuesday the doctor was not present when prisoner asked about the bottle. Dean and syrup bottle.

Commission:—Mrs. Lee nursed me on the Tuesday; she said my mother sent her to me; I do not remember Mrs. Thompson coming in the afternoon of Tuesday; I do not remember whether Mrs. Thompson came to me at all on the Tuesday; Mrs. Lee went away about 4 o'clock; Mrs. Thompson might have come to me after that, but I do not remember; I asked Mrs. Lee when leaving to send Mrs. Adye down. Visitors.

Commission:—When Mrs. Lee left Dean was with me; he may have bathed my head with vinegar and water, but I do not remember him doing so. Vinegar and water.

Commission:

Mary Dean.

Ice.

Commission :—The first ice that came was on the Wednesday morning ; I am quite sure Dean did not get any ice on the Tuesday ; he tried to get some, but he could not ; I am quite certain there was no ice on the Tuesday ; I never saw an ice-cream man pass that way ; Mr. Gail brought the ice ; he brought it up into the bed-room, and put it into the wash-hand basin.

The baby :
absolutely weaned from Sunday.

Central Criminal Court :—I was not suckling the baby, and I got the milk from the breast with a pump.

Commission :—I do not remember the baby being sent for from Mrs. Adye's on the Tuesday, so that I might give it a drink ; my mother did not bring the baby home at all on the Tuesday ; I was not feeling at all uncomfortable from not nursing the baby ; my breasts were not hard ; mother was not there on Tuesday till half-past 5 ; I do not remember who went to Mrs. Adye's for the baby ; I do not remember who brought the baby back on Tuesday afternoon ; the baby was absolutely weaned from Sunday ; I did not give it the breast again ; not on any occasion.

March 6th
(Wednesday)
Confillion.

Commission :—I do not remember what time Dean came to me on Wednesday ; I was still vomiting on the Wednesday ; I vomited once or twice.

Powder in medicine :
prisoner, wife,
and doctor.

Commission :—The doctor came on Wednesday morning about half-past 10 o'clock ; I asked him did he order a powder to be put into the medicine ; he said he did not know, but he would look in his book ; when he looked in his book he said "no" ; I said "Mr. Dean put a powder into the medicine that the doctor had ordered, and said that the doctor had ordered it" ; this occurred on the Wednesday morning ; I would not be positive of that, but I think it was Wednesday ; after this conversation with the doctor he went down stairs ; he did not bring Dean up ; he came up alone ; he said Dean had denied it ; after the doctor had gone Dean did not mention anything about the powder ; I think this occurred on the Wednesday ; Dean did not come up with the doctor ; the doctor went to the landing and called Dean up, and the doctor said "Did you put a powder in your wife's medicine?" and Dean said "No" ; I said "Oh, George, you told me the doctor ordered the powder to go into the medicine" ; and he said "I did not" ; he denied it still ; I told him he was telling an untruth ; I said "You know you did, George ; how can you stand there and tell me such a falsehood?" Dean did not recur to this subject after the doctor had gone away on Wednesday or on Thursday ; I am quite sure about that ; he did not at any time discuss this subject with me ; Dean did not say what he is reported to have said in his evidence at the trial about the powder in the medicine (see page 17) ; he did not say that at all ; never at any time ; I do not remember at what time the doctor came on Wednesday night ; it was very late ; that was the only day he saw me twice ; I saw my husband on the Thursday ; I am quite sure that nothing passed between us as regards this powder on that day.

Doctor and vomit.

Commission :—I did not see my mother show any vomit to the doctor ; I do not think she did ; the doctor did not ask about any vomit either then or on the previous day ; I do not remember whether my mother showed the vomit to Mrs. Gail on the Wednesday ; the doctor did not see any vomit at any time, or what passed from my bowels.

Suspicious of poisoning.
Formed an opinion prisoner was trying to poison me.

Police Court (cross-examination) :—Saturday, 2nd March, was the first time I formed an opinion prisoner was trying to poison me ; it was never suggested to me before the 2nd March that prisoner was doing anything wrong to me ; my mother never suggested it ; before the 2nd March my mother never gave me advice to go to a doctor or chemist ; my mother never told me if I ate or drank anything that made me ill to take some of it to a chemist to be analysed.

Further
suspicious

Police Court (cross-examination) :—The tea had a lot of little white lumps floating on the top of the tea round the edge of the saucer ; I knew there was no business to be powder in the glass ; I thought in my own mind that I was being poisoned, but I did not tell anyone ; I did not think seriously of what Mr. Meagher said when I said that I did not think anyone was trying to poison me ; when I saw the white round the saucer my suspicion was stronger ; I was in bed ; I forgot about the tea under the drawers, and therefore did not mention it to anyone ; I knew Dr. Newmarch had a bottle on the Tuesday to analyse for poison ; I did not mention the cup of tea, as I forgot it ; the doctor did not ask on Monday what I had been eating ; I did not regard the medicine as suspicious, although I suspected my husband was trying to poison me ; I had never seen medicine like it before ; I believed what prisoner said when he said the powder had to be put in ; the powder had a most bitter taste ; the taste remained about two days ; it remained in my mouth Saturday and Sunday ; the medicine was so bitter that I could feel it in my mouth all day Tuesday.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination) :—I was first suspicious of poison on the Sunday, after his offering me the tea ; I noticed the same taste in the groats and syrup ; I did not think of poison when I took the syrup to the chemist ; I became suspicious of poison in the tea, and then thought of the syrup making me ill ; I did not think of poison when taking the bottle to Dr. Newmarch ; my suspicion was also aroused by the porter, when I saw the powder in the glass ; I said to my husband when he said the porter was sour, "Oh, put some sugar into it, and liven it up a bit" ; I intended if he then offered it to me to accuse him of putting something into it, and to refuse it ; I saw seven or eight lumps round the edge of the saucer ; they were much smaller than a pea [makes a mark about the size of a pin's head] some were a little larger ; I did not tell the doctor on Monday night of my suspicion as to poison ; I did not call his attention to the tea ; on the Tuesday he asked me what I had been eating ; I did not tell him that I suspected poison ; mother arrived about midnight on Wednesday, after prisoner had gone to his work, and she left between 5 and 6 o'clock, before he came home ; she asked me what made me so ill ; I did not tell her that I thought prisoner was poisoning me ; I did not call her attention to the tea on Monday night ; I did not tell her about the tea, because I was very ill and forgot about it ; on Tuesday night I had improved ; I did not call her attention to the tea then, and I did not mention it till Wednesday morning. (Re-examination) : I thought I was being poisoned when I took the bottle to Gail ; I only had a cup of tea on the Sunday ; I thought it was suspicious about the bottle, but I had no real conviction that I was being poisoned ; it was just mentioned—as perhaps ; I did not accuse my husband then ; my suspicion was aroused against my husband on Sunday morning, after the incident of the porter and then the tea ; I did not alter my manner to my husband, as I did not know positively that there was poison till the doctor told me on Thursday afternoon ; prisoner said he would drink the beef tea before he went to bed.

Suspicious not
to doctor.

Police Court (cross-examination) :—Dr. Newmarch saw me on Monday night, and asked me questions about vomiting, and asked about the nightdress ; he did not ask what I had eaten ; the doctor asked for an explanation of my vomiting on the Tuesday ; I did not then refer him to the tea under the chest chest of drawers ; the doctor saw me on the Wednesday twice ; I did not then draw his attention to the tea.

Mary Dean.

*Police Court (cross-examination) :—*From the time my mother came until the prisoner was arrested I never told prisoner of the bottles or powder ; prisoner was kind to me during my illness. Near to prisoner.

*Commission :—*I was alone with my mother on Tuesday afternoon ; she stayed with me all Monday night and altogether after Tuesday ; I did not tell my mother my suspicions about my illness ; I did not tell her I thought I had been poisoned although I was so ill, still, ill as I was, I did not talk to my mother ; I did not tell my mother on Wednesday that I had a suspicion of being poisoned. Withheld from mother.

*Police Court :—*I never had any poison in the house ; I never know of prisoner or my mother having poison in the house. No poison in the house.

*Central Criminal Court :—*I have never bought or ever saw any arsenic or any other poison in my house, or knew of it being there.

*Police Court (cross-examination) :—*I first heard of poison from Dr. Newmarch on the 7th instant. I first heard of poison.

*Police Court :—*Dr. Newmarch prescribed for me in a former illness ; I took his medicine ; on that occasion I did not complain to the doctor or anyone about being poisoned. Poison in previous illnesses.

Central Criminal Court :—[Mr. Hamlet says the strychnine would modify the arsenic, to which it is antagonistic, and would counteract it ; a series of doses, though not one is fatal, may kill.] Strychnine and arsenic antagonistic.

*Commission :—*My legs were very bad with cramps on Wednesday night ; I cannot remember when I first noticed that I had any difficulty in walking ; my legs were very heavy at the time of the trial at Darlinghurst ; I first noticed that my hair was coming out before the trial at Darlinghurst ; it has been coming out in quantities ever since ; I left as much as I could hold in my two hands at the hospital at North Shore. Ataxic gait, falling out of hair.

*Central Criminal Court :—*The police came to search the house ; Sergeant Brennan took the tea that I had put under the chest of drawers ; the syrup bottle (A) produced is the one ; the tumbler produced (B) is the same ; I had not moved the tumbler or put anything into it ; my mother saw it and Mr. Gail on the Wednesday ; the tumbler is the tumbler I drank the syrup in (F) ; the bottle of medicine (C) is what I had during my confinement ; I found it standing on prisoner's table with some still in it after my first illness—after the groats and before the lemon-syrup ; I asked him what it was doing there ; he said he had been taking it to give him an appetite ; he had been asking me to take it after I had ceased taking it a month ; I did not do so, but I took the bottle (D) into my room ; Dr. Newmarch took it from my room ; I did not see the bottle out of which he got the milky looking stuff he gave me, but what he gave me was not like what is in the bottle (E) produced ; the medicine is a brown colour ; it was white what he gave me ; my mother afterwards gave me the medicine left by the doctor, and it was like that in (E), not milky. Police search house, take tea.

*Central Criminal Court :—*I gave some of the milk to the doctor on the 12th, which I drew the same day. Milk given to doctor.

*Central Criminal Court :—*I also gave him some of my water on the 5th. Urine given to doctor.

*Central Criminal Court :—*Prisoner was arrested on the 8th March (Friday). Warrant :—"That he did, on 2nd March, 1895, feloniously cause poison to be taken by one, Mary Dean, the wife of the said George Dean, with intent to murder the said Mary Dean." Arrest of prisoner.

*Police Court (cross-examination) :—*The date of the prisoner's arrest was the anniversary date of the marriage.

*Commission :—*I have read of other cases of poisoning in the papers ; the Louisa Collins case ; I knew what the punishment was ; that if they were found guilty they were sentenced to death. Knew punishment for poisoning.

*Commission :—*While my husband was in gaol I did not obtain an order from him to get his pay which was owing by the North Shore Ferry Company ; it was an order for his watch and chain and some money ; this property was at the North Shore Police Court, not with the Ferry Company ; these articles and money had been taken from him when he was arrested ; the money was £3 15s. ; and the watch and chain ; I got both the money and the watch and chain from the police at North Sydney ; it was after he was arrested that I obtained these articles ; I also sent an order for him to sign, for me to obtain his money from the Savings Bank ; he did not sign this order to me ; I did not receive the order back ; I did get the order for the money, and the watch and chain which I obtained from the Police Court at North Sydney ; I sent the order for the money in the Savings Bank in a letter to the gaol ; the furniture was shifted to a house somewhere in Paddington ; I went over there the morning before ; I was going to live there with my mother ; we were taking Mrs. Lee to Paddington to take care of the house until I came out of the hospital ; I do not know what arrangement was come to between my mother and Mrs. Lee ; I do not know where the furniture went to from the house it was first taken to at Paddington ; my mother has stored it somewhere now ; I do not know where ; I gave my mother leave to remove the furniture from Paddington ; I do not know where to ; I do not know where it is now. Dean's effects.

*Commission :—*I used to see my mother nearly every week between the time she left the house and the time she came back on the 4th March, after my confinement ; I saw her going to Mrs. Lee's on three or four occasions, and I used to go to Mrs. Adye's to see her there ; she did not come to my house at any time ; neither in the day time nor in the night time, till Monday night, the 4th March ; she did not come to my house because she was forbidden to come ; I did not go to the theatre with my mother during that time ; I went to the circus ; I do not remember how many times a week I saw her ; I was in frequent communication with her the whole time. Mrs. Bethune. In frequent communication with.

*Police Court (cross-examination) :—*My mother lived at "Brunswick Cottage," Mc'Mahon's Point ; Gails lived about a mile away ; the prisoner leaves for work about a quarter to 11 at night generally ; my mother arrived unexpectedly on Monday, the 4th March ; I heard she was at Gail's place at 9 o'clock on Monday night ; three hours after this she came to my house ; prisoner came home after 7 o'clock on the Monday morning. (To Police) : My mother left at half-past 5 to go home and get breakfast, not to avoid the prisoner ; I had no knowledge that my mother was coming that night. Arrived unexpectedly.

*Police Court :—*My mother attended me up to Tuesday night the 5th March ; I was taking the medicine prescribed by Dr. Newmarch ; my mother arrived at 12 o'clock on the Monday night, and left on the Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock ; the prisoner gave me my medicine while my mother was away ; my mother returned on the evening of the 5th March ; I have improved in health since Tuesday night. Takes charge and recovery.

*Central Criminal Court :—*On Monday night my mother came to me to take charge of me ; on Tuesday morning she left for a time, and returned on Tuesday afternoon and gave me my tea ; from that time I got better, and had no return of the symptoms from the time they ceased on the Wednesday, and I quite recovered. (Cross-examination) : I was very ill when my mother came on the Monday night. Police

Mary Dean.

Mother and suspicious.

Police Court (cross-examination):—On the Monday, 4th March, I told my mother about the powder in the porter, tea, and medicine; I told her about the porter; I did not tell her that I had preserved the tea; when I told my mother of the powder in the tea, porter, and medicine, my mother did not ask whether I had preserved any of those liquids; it excited my attention when I saw prisoner with his fingers round the glass; I wanted to get prisoner away in order that I might preserve the tea; I thought it was of some importance; although I preserved the tea, I did not tell my mother where it was.

Prisoner ordered mother to leave
house.

Police Court (cross-examination):—While living at Mossman's, prisoner said that my mother must leave the house; after this my husband made her leave the house; some furniture had been given to me by my mother; my mother was excited when prisoner asked her to leave the house; she did not say she was being put out of her own home; I do not think my mother saw the prisoner when she left the house; I remember fainting in my mother's arms when she had a quarrel with the prisoner; I knew my mother was distressed by her language.

Thomas Jones.

Police Court (cross-examination):—There were other inmates of my mother's houses at Norton-street and Riley-street; Thomas Jones was in one place, living in the second upstairs room; I never heard my mother mentioned as Mrs. Jones; Jones was in David Jones' as a tailor; about twelve years ago he also worked at Clement Lewis's; I never heard that Mr. Jones was a well-known criminal; I remember the one-eyed man being at the house at Riley-street; I do not know his name; he was there about a dozen times; he was introduced to my mother; I never heard he was a housebreaker; I don't know that he is in gaol; I never heard a man in plain clothes tell Mr. Jones that he had his eyes on him and the Melbourne guns; two or three other men used to come and see Jones; they were from Melbourne; I would not see them for months at a time; I do not remember the men turning up about race times; I never saw much jewellery with Mr. Jones.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—Mr. Jones was living at my mother's; prisoner knew him; he was a tailor; Jones had been in the house ever since I was a little child; he last worked as a tailor at Clement Lewis's, about two years ago from now, for twelve months; some gentlemen from Melbourne came to see him; he said they were bookmakers; I do not know Jones was a receiver of stolen goods; Sam, a one-eyed man, used to come to see him.

GENERAL.

Madame Rose's.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I know some persons named Rose in Riley-street; I believe boarders were taken there; Rose's were living about the length of the Court from our house for four or five years; there seemed to be people staying there; I have spoken to Mrs. Rose; my mother knows her; she has been in our shop; I have seen my mother go over to Rose's; she took fruit and other things; I have never seen her go without something in her hand; I never saw my mother in the house after Rose's left; I never saw my mother go a message for Mrs. Rose; my mother remained a quarter or half an hour at Mrs. Rose's; sometimes there were females at Mrs. Rose's place; I have heard her called "Madame Rose"; I heard her place was a notorious brothel; I remember some of the girls coming to our shop from there.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner did not see me go into the house opposite; I do not know that he saw my mother, Mrs. Seymour, going there; there was nothing during the eight months he came there to give him an impression that I was not respectable; I know Madame Rose's opposite, an assignation house; I never went there; I do not remember any women coming and getting accommodation when a raid was made on Rose's; I have never taken notes; I never played the piano to the girls; I never told Dean about it; I did not go to business in the day-time.

Mrs. Seymour
and Madame
Rose's.

Central Criminal Court:—My mother's is a fruit-shop; mother took vegetables to Madame Rose's, and stayed ten minutes or half an hour there; my mother took charge of the establishment when Madame Rose went away; she asked my mother to go as a trustworthy person to take charge of her silver and jewellery; my mother, when cabs came, used to take notes away; prisoner never said anything to me about my mother; he never asked for an explanation; prisoner was sitting alongside Mr. Meagher when he asked me this question in the Police Court.

Mr. Rose.

Commission:—I knew old Mr. Rose; I do not remember him coming for Mary Kirby; he came across to our house; he came for fruit; I do not remember that Mary Kirby ever went over there; I knew what kind of a place it was while I was living with my mother at Surry Hills; I was never in there; never in my life; I have been to the door; I went with my mother to take something to the door; I never went with anything in a jug.

Mrs. Lee.

Commission:—Before I was married I knew Mrs. Lee; she was not at my wedding; I did not know that she kept a brothel; I do not know what sort of a place "Brunswick Cottage" was; but I often went there to see my mother; I have never seen anything to excite my suspicion there; I only saw Mrs. Sexton there; I do not really know what sort of place it was; nor what sort of a person Mrs. Lee was; I thought she was a married woman; I do not know where her husband was then; I seldom saw him; I have seen her husband; he used to come over for tea; he was rather tall; a young man; I thought he was a good deal younger than Mrs. Lee; a smart young chap; he was tidily dressed; he was not dressed like a labouring man; I should think he was in an office, or something of that sort; I cannot say exactly how much younger he was than Mrs. Lee; Mrs. Lee is about 29 years of age; she was at my house on Tuesday, the 5th of March; she gave me some jelly tablets on that day; they were lemon tablets; Mrs. Lee did not give me any food on that Tuesday; I could not eat anything; I only had the jelly; I drank lime-water and milk; Mrs. Lee gave me whatever I had.

The fortune teller.

Commission:—I know a Mrs. Parker, or Madame Von, a fortune-teller; I went to see her about a week before the trial at Darlinghurst—out of curiosity; I did not know that she could tell me the result of the trial; I do not remember what she said; I did not go to find out anything in particular; I have often been to other fortune tellers before; I did not think she could tell me what was likely to happen or would happen to my husband; I went to her as a stranger; a little girl named Sly told her my name; I only went to see that clairvoyant from curiosity; to see what she could tell me; that is the only reason I can give now; I knew at the time I went to her that my husband was committed to stand his trial on a very serious charge; the father of my child [witness broke down]; I have not been to any clairvoyant since the trial; Madame Von is the only fortune-teller I have been to since my marriage; I have only been to her once.

"Rita."

Commission:—I never knew a little girl called Rita; a Miss Bennett, from Melbourne, stayed at my mother's house, in Riley-street; her first name was Emily; I remember a Mrs. Thomson that used to do washing for us; she was an old woman; I have never heard of the name of Rita before; I never took washing washing to Mrs. Thomson; I do not remember Mrs. Thomson bringing any washing to me and my calling out, "Rita, here is your washing;" I used to know a little boy named Jacky; I remember a Mr. Wright living at my mother's place; Jacky's sister lived with us for about three months; her name was Mary Kirby; she was a barmaid; I do not think she wore very ornamented kinds of underclothing; she was known as Minnie Phillips; I do not remember any clothing marked "Rita" that went to Mrs. Thomson's; I do not remember the name at all; it is not a name I know belonging to anybody; I never knew anybody by that name; I do not remember the name; I do not know anybody; I have never gone by the name of Rita myself; I have never signed my name Rita; I knew Frank Brereton; I think I have written letters to him; I don't remember that I ever signed myself Rita Seymour; I may have done so; it is so many years ago I cannot remember; I generally sign "May"; I knew some one by the name of George Clements or Pegg; I do not think I ever wrote to George Pegg; I remember him, but I do not remember writing to him; (1) [witness handed letter] yes, that is my writing; that is the letter I wrote to George Clements or Pegg on October 12th, 1891; it is signed Rita Seymour; and that is my signature; (letter read) (2) [witness handed poetry headed, "When the right one comes"—"arranged by Rita Seymour," and signed "R. Seymour"] yes, that is my writing; I do not remember who I sent that poetry to; I do not remember if it was to Frank; that is my "R"; and that is my signature "R. Seymour"; I composed the poetry myself; I am positive the writing at the bottom (No. 413, Riley-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, New South Wales) was not on it when I sent it; I wrote "Rita" at the top; I wrote, "arranged by Rita Seymour"; it was all my handwriting; I do not know whose writing it is at the bottom; I do not remember who I sent the poetry to; it has no date; (3) [witness handed letter to Frank Brereton, signed May Seymour] yes, that is my writing; (4) [witness handed letter to Frank Brereton, signed "May"] yes, that is my writing; (5) [witness handed letter to Frank Brereton, signed "May Seymour"] yes, that is my handwriting; I never knew anybody by the name of Rita; nobody calls me Rita; I was never known as Rita; I never adopted the name; George Pegg used to call me Rita; I wrote to Frank as Rita; he did not call me Rita; he called me May; I cannot give any reason for adopting the name Rita; the only reason I can give for adopting the name of Rita, is, by George Pegg calling me Rita; he was the only one calling me by that name; I said this morning that I never knew a girl by the name of Rita; also, that I had never went by the name of Rita; it is so many years ago that I have forgotten; I do not remember who I sent the poetry to; it is a fact that I was once in love with Frank; I dare say I did send the poetry to Frank; I called myself Rita Seymour there—decidedly; none of my clothes were marked Rita; I never took part in any theatrical performance; I never played in any pantomime, not in any part at all; I was never on the stage in my life; I have been to a pantomime; the President asked me early this morning, and yesterday, if I knew anyone named Rita; I did not tell him that sometimes I called myself Rita, because I had quite forgotten it until I saw the letter; it is so many years ago that I had entirely forgotten it until the letters were shown to me; four years ago I would be 17 years of age; I had forgotten that when I was that age I called myself Rita; I have written more than one letter to Brereton; I do not remember how many; a good many, I suppose, when I thought myself in love with him; he used to write to me.

Commission:—I know a Mr. Marshall, a dentist; he has done something for my teeth; after he extracted them I remember my mouth breaking-out bleeding; I remember him being sent for to stop the bleeding; he came to my house; I was in my bedroom; he called in Dr. Rutledge; both Dr. Rutledge and Mr. Marshall attended to me; I have been to Mr. Marshall more than once about my teeth; I went about five or six times to his consulting rooms; I did not always go alone, my mother went once; I went with a young lady named Vera Reece; I went once with her; Vera Reece was a young lady staying at mother's; I cannot remember what year it was that she stayed at my mother's; it is a good while ago—three or four years ago; she did not stay with my mother for long; about three months; she came from Melbourne; I do not remember where she went to; she left our house, and I do not know where she went; Mr. Wright went with me on another occasion; he lived at my mother's; I was about 14 years of age at the time; I went with Detective Keating's wife on another occasion; on the other two occasions I went alone; I do not know Vera Reece by the name of Rita; I knew her as Vera; I think she is the only other girl I went to the dentist's with; I do not remember any other girl; the last time I went to the dentist's was about three years ago; Mr. Wright was not living at my mother's at the same time as Vera; he was the only one in the house besides Mr. Jones; I do not think Vera was staying in the house at the same time as Mr. Wright; I do not think I went to the dentist's with any other girl; I cannot say whether I or the other girl gave the address of that girl as at my mother's address; neither I or the girl in my presence; we both gave the same address; my mother's address; neither I nor the girl, in my presence, told the dentist that the name of the girl was Rita; I never saw any account delivered to this Miss Reece; the charges did not all go in one bill; mine came alone; I am certain of that; certain as far as my memory serves me; it is not a fact that I, or this girl, told the dentist that her name was Rita, with my mother's address, in my presence; she did not in my presence; I am positive of that; I do not know the girl I called Reece by the name of Rita.

Commission:—I can remember Mr. Wright; he was a dark man; he was very dark; he had a dark skin; he was a man of black blood; he had black curly hair; he was a black man; I would describe him as a coloured Indian gentleman; an Indian; Mr. Wright never had anything to do with the theatre; I do not know of his having anything to do with Her Majesty's Theatre.

Commission:—I do not remember a girl named Dora living with my mother.

Commission:—I remember a girl named Ada Thompson living with my mother.

Commission:—Frank Brereton is a young gentleman I went to a dance with; he was learning cutting at a tailor's; he is in Sydney now.

Commission:—George Pegg was in a confectioner's shop; he is in Sydney now.

Police Court.—Not examined. Central Criminal Court.—Not examined. Commission.—May 17th and 23rd, 1895 (pages 35-37, 106).

History.

Commission:—I live in Willoughby-street, North Shore; before I went to North Shore I was living at No. 9 Junior-street, Leichhardt; I lived at Surry Hills about four years ago; I lived there for eleven years, at No. 3, Esther-street, near the Crown-street Post Office; I have been a widow for the last eight years; I know Mrs. Seymour and her daughter Mary; I first knew Mrs. Seymour between five and six years ago; I know where Mrs. Seymour lived; I did washing there on one occasion; I did washing for her for some time, but only once at her house; as a rule, the clothes were sent to me; I washed them at my own house, and took them back to Mrs. Seymour's; I think I fetched the clothes from Mrs. Seymour's about once only; I was washing for Mrs. Seymour for about four or five months, between four and five years ago.

"Rita, here is your washing."

Commission:—Mrs. Seymour told me that some clothes sent to me belonged to a lady who was not living there; she said, "I got this washing for you to do"; it was sent to my house, and I subsequently took it home to Mrs. Seymour's; when I took it home, Mary said to someone I did not see, someone who was upstairs, "Rita, here is your washing"; Mary Seymour then said to me, "Don't tell mother that Rita is here, she does not live here"; a little boy named Jacky, aged about 7 years, who lived at Mrs. Seymour's, came to me and told me, "Mary is telling you a lie; Rita does live here"; I only saw Rita once, and that was behind the counter in Mrs. Seymour's shop; she was a most beautiful creature, I should think from twenty-three to twenty-five years of age; I did washing for Rita for about three months; her linen was marked Rita; she was a white woman; Mary Seymour brought the washing, except once when I brought it myself; I used to take it back to Mrs. Seymour's; Mrs. Seymour always used to pay for it; I asked Mary, "Is this Rita an actress?" And she said "No"; what made me ask this was, that I used to have some most peculiar things to wash, and little Jacky told me distinctly "Rita does live here"; it was just before I gave the work up; I thought Rita was an actress because I have heard they dress so elaborately, and those things which came from Rita were something most elaborate, the like of which I have never seen before; they were unusually decorated; there were ruby-silk chemises, silk and satin garments with as many as nine rows of lace; Mrs. Seymour told me not to put these out to dry, as they might be seen by the neighbours; the whole thing was so suspicious that I would not do any more washing; I have never been to the theatre in my life.

Rita and Madame Rose's.

Commission:—One day when I was in Mrs. Seymour's shop an elderly gentleman who lived across the road at the opposite corner came across and asked for Rita; I know it was some Madame who lived on the opposite corner, but I was not told who it was beyond that; the house the gentleman came from was on the left-hand corner looking towards Collins-street from Mrs. Seymour's shop; some Madame lived at that house—a foreigner; the man who came across for Rita wore a smoking cap and slippers; I had seen him occasionally in Collins-street walking up and down outside the house smoking his pipe; when he came over and asked for Rita, Mrs. Seymour went to the stairs and called her, and the old gentleman went into the dining-room behind the shop.

Little Jacky.

Commission:—I cannot tell who that little Jacky was who told me that Mary had told me a lie; he was staying there, that is all I know, also that his sister took him away to a Catholic institution either at Camden or Campbelltown; he was living at Mrs. Seymour's; I think he was left there to be taken care of; I know he went to Mr. Hargrave's Church of England Denominational School; I think his father left him with Mrs. Seymour to be taken care of, as his mother was dead.

Mr. Wright.

Commission:—I did washing for a gentleman who was living at Mrs. Seymour's; he was an Indian gentleman—a gentleman of colour—whom Mrs. Seymour called Mr. Wright; he wore silk underclothing, and that and his linen was marked in the name of Anderson; I think he occupied the room over the dining-room at the back of the shop; I was washing Mr. Wright's clothing for about four months; I think Mary Seymour or little Jacky brought his washing to me, and then I took it back to Mrs. Seymour's; Mrs. Seymour paid for Mr. Wright's washing; I often saw Mr. Wright; I have seen him about the city, and I have seen him at Mrs. Seymour's often; he has walked through into the back part of the house.

Mr. Jones.

Commission:—Whilst at Mrs. Seymour's I have seen other men there; a man named Jones lived there; I cannot say what room he occupied; he lived there all the time I knew Mrs. Seymour—until I gave up the washing, about four or five years ago; Mrs. Seymour said on one occasion, speaking of Jones, "My man will never cut any wood"; I do not know what she meant by saying "my man," but she frequently called Jones "my man"; I cannot explain what she meant; I just repeat what I heard Mrs. Seymour say; I never heard Mrs. Seymour speak to the man Jones; I have a sufficiently good memory to speak with certainty when I say that four or five years ago I heard Mrs. Seymour use the words when speaking of Jones, "I can never get my man to cut any wood"; she was in the back yard when she said this; I was in the yard; I took home some washing and remained at Mrs. Seymour's for half a day to wash; I do not know where Jones was; I did not see him; it was in the morning; I did not make a note of it at the time of the occurrence; I am prepared to swear that I remember it; (May 23) I read some of the evidence given by Thomas Jones in last night's Star; after reading his evidence I came to this building and saw Mr. Meagher's clerk; I came of my own accord; I am certain the girl Rita was at Mrs. Seymour's place while the man Jones was there.

Hannah.

Commission:—I know a woman named Hannah who was living with Mrs. Seymour; she was living there for about six weeks before I gave up the washing; I did not do any washing for her at that time, but I did subsequently; I do not know whether Hannah was married at that time; I do not know if she is married now; she was confined at Mrs. Seymour's.

Madame Rose and curtains.

Commission:—Mrs. Seymour got me some curtains to wash from the house in which the foreign lady lived, and I took them home; I have never been fully paid for washing them yet; when I took them home the foreign lady paid me ninepence a set, and she would have paid me three shillings a set; Mrs. Seymour said she would see that I was paid, but I have never been; I only got ninepence a set, and when I complained about this price the foreign Madame swore at me; and said something about going for a policeman; there was an old gentleman walking up and down at the time; Madame said, "If you do it for this I give you plenty"; I then went across to Mrs. Seymour's and complained, and she replied, "Madame "Madame must have a glass of something"; I washed seven sets of curtains, for which I received 5s. 3d. instead of 21s., and the difference is owing still; I only knew the woman as Madame, through hearing Mrs. Seymour call her Madame.

Commission:—When I went to Madame's with the curtains, I saw an old gentleman walking up and down smoking his pipe in the street near the door; it was the old gentleman who went across to Mrs. Seymour's for Rita; he was a man between 60 and 70 years of age, I should think; I can only surmise that he was the proprietor of the house where the foreign lady was.

Mr. Ross.

Commission:—One night I saw five men walk through Mrs. Seymour's shop; it was rather late when I took the washing home, and these men walked through; they were well dressed and wore big watch chains; Mrs. Seymour told me that she was a widow, and I thought it very strange that at this time of night, half-past ten o'clock, these men should walk through the shop and into the back room without speaking a word; I then gave up the washing; she sent more for me to do, but I would not take it; that is between four and five years ago; I gave the work up because I did not think the house respectable, after seeing those men go through; I asked for my money and got it, and declined to do any more washing afterwards.

I then gave up the washing.

Commission:—When Mary Seymour brought the washing home she was a young girl in short dresses, and at that time always appeared to me to be a simple-minded girl; I have never seen her from that day to this—that is four or five years ago; I always thought her a nice, quiet, respectable girl; I do not know her age, but she appeared to me to be about 14 or 15; at all events, as far as I know, I never saw anything wrong with her; I candidly admit that, whatever her age may have been while I knew her, she was a good, respectable, and decent girl; I never knew anything wrong about her; I only knew her up to four or five years ago, when I left Surry Hills; I knew her between five and six years altogether, and during that time, as far as I know, she was a respectable, honest girl; I am quite certain that during the whole time I knew her she was a girl in short dresses, for I washed her dresses; I did not know what to think of Mary telling me a falsehood about Rita not living with her mother.

Mary Seymour.

Commission:—A gentleman came to my place in Willoughby-street, North Shore, one day last week and told me I was wanted here; I do not see the gentleman in this room; I do not know his name, and I never saw him before; I was not told to go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office; I have never seen Messrs. Crick and Meagher in my life; I do not know Mr. Williamson; a gentleman came to me and asked me if I knew Mrs. Seymour; I told him, "Yes"; he asked me if I knew Mary Seymour; I said, "Yes"; he asked me then if I knew anything against Mary Seymour; I said, "No, I did not"; that is true; I knew nothing against Mary Seymour; she was a simple open girl, wearing short dresses; she was very young; not more than 14; I never knew anything wrong of her.

Why I came here.

Witness—Cornelius Charles Marshall (a Dentist).

C. C. Marshall.

Commission.—June 11th, 1895 (pages 249–50).

I am a dentist, carrying on business in Elizabeth-street, Sydney.

Profession.

Amongst my patients I had Miss Mary Seymour; I extracted a number of Miss Seymour's teeth; I attended her for several years; I remember about three years ago going to her mother's house to stop the bleeding of the gums, and calling in another doctor for the administration of an anæsthetic; she sometimes came to my surgery to see me; on some of the occasions when Miss Seymour came to see me she was accompanied by another young lady from the same address; the young lady came several times, but whether with Mary Seymour more than once, I cannot say for certain; on the occasion she came with Mary Seymour, she gave me the same address; both said they came from No. 413 Riley-street; the young lady gave me her name as Miss Rita; this is a copy of the bill (produced) I sent to Miss Rita; it is an exact copy of the entry in my book, dated February 5th, 1890; paid February 19th, 1890, £2 2s.; the young lady must have come two or three times to have done what is stated in the bill; I only remember her coming once with Miss Seymour; she might have come at other times with Miss Seymour, but it is so long ago that I don't recollect; I think she was a nice looking girl, as far as I remember; she was, as far as I can recollect, respectable in her manner; Miss Rita was older than Mary Seymour; Miss Seymour was quite a girl; Miss Rita was a young woman about 18 or 20; (Cross-examination): It is three years ago since Miss Seymour was at my place; she was there after Miss Rita; I only recollect Miss Seymour coming once with Miss Rita.

Mary Seymour was a patient of mine.

Miss Rita accompanied her.

Miss Seymour's account in my book is on page 102, dated 30th January; on the day of the entry for Miss Rita there is no entry about Mary Seymour, but I remember her coming with Miss Seymour, the entry in my book is "Rita, Miss, care of Mrs. Seymour"; unless there was something done to Miss Seymour on the day she was there with Miss Rita there would be no entry in my book against Miss Seymour; I have an entry against Miss Seymour on page 102, on 30th January; the address of Miss Seymour given there is "care of Mr. Wright, 413, Riley-street"; there is another entry of Miss Seymour's, 413 Riley-street, and opposite her name are written the words "old patient."

My account-book.

Alderman Moodie.—I think Mr. Moodie came a couple of weeks ago and asked me about this Rita matter, in connection with this inquiry.

Witness—

C. Seymour.

Witness—Caroline Seymour (mother of Mary Dean).

Police Court.—March 23rd, 1895 (pages 28-30). Central Criminal Court.—April 5th, 1895 (pages 13, 14, 16). Commission (not examined).

History. Police Court:—I am a widow, and the mother of Mary Dean; I live with my daughter, in Miller-street, North Sydney; Mrs. Dean is the only child I have living; I have been living with Mrs. Lee at M'Mahon's Point; I was a servant there; Mrs. Lee's is about three-quarters of a mile from Gail's; it is a mile to Dean's from Gail's; after my daughter's confinement I went to Mrs. Johnson's, at Surry Hills; I boarded there; I went from there to my late situation; I was at the situation about one month; I have been in the Colony some years, and have resided in Norton-street, Surry Hills.

Central Criminal Court:—Since prisoner told me to leave his house I have been in service at North Sydney, with Mrs. Lee, of Brunswick Cottage, 2 miles from prisoner's.

Prisoner's treatment of wife.

Police Court:—Prisoner was distant with his wife; I do not know the prisoner was kind to his wife; I did not feel pleased with prisoner's treatment of his wife.

Ordered me to leave the house.

Police Court:—Prisoner never spoke to me on the subject of going; he told my daughter to tell me; the prisoner asked me to leave the house at Miller-street—not at Mossman's Bay; prisoner never asked me to leave the house at Mossman's Bay; I packed the furniture at Mossman's; I remember my daughter fainting at Miller-street in my arms; a month after my daughter's confinement prisoner told me to go; I was not cool; I was excited; I did not say I would make it warm for the prisoner; prisoner pushed his wife away, and she fell in my arms; I did not call prisoner any names.

Central Criminal Court:—I left three days after baby was a month old; prisoner told me to go. (Cross-examination): Dean told me to leave his house; he said there was a dirty milk-jug on the table, and he commenced to growl; I said there was not, and he said it was time his wife was downstairs to take charge of her duties; I said Dr. Newmarch said she was not to leave her bed for another week, as she was so very weak; he said the quicker I cleared out the better; I said I would go when she could come down and take charge of her own house, and I stayed three days after and I left; I did refuse to go, part of the furniture being mine; he took up a chair to strike me with; she caught him round the neck, and as Dean pushed her from him I caught her in my arms and laid her on the sofa; I did not say, "You will remember this, you scoundrel." (Re-examination): I never had words with the prisoner before this; I lived with prisoner and his wife a month after their marriage; he told my daughter and me that I would have to go, and I left; I had no words with him; I gave them the best of the furniture; I had to help them.

JANUARY 1895. Groat's illness.

Police Court:—I have known my daughter to have an attack of illness on the 13th January last; I was ill also—suffering from vomiting and purging; I took some groats that were left unfinished by my daughter; the prisoner was there and waited on us; I prepared the groats in the kitchen, and left them on the dining-room table while I prepared the prisoner's breakfast; prisoner asked me what the groats were; I said I was making them for his wife; I gave groats because she was not to have solid food; I cooked the groats before 9 o'clock; my daughter ate them about half-past 9; they were not eaten before the prisoner came home; I have never been so ill before.

Central Criminal Court:—I remember making some groats for my daughter on the 13th January; I made them in the kitchen between 9 and 10 a.m.; she was in bed, and the prisoner and I were the only persons in the house that day; I left the groats on the dining-room table to cool; prisoner was at home having his breakfast; I put the groats on the table whilst he was at breakfast; I left him in the room with them, and went upstairs to my daughter; I was upstairs and in the kitchen and doing work whilst they were cooling; they were cool when I got back; I took them up to my daughter; she took about half a cupful of them, and I sat down and ate the rest.

Vomiting and purging.

Central Criminal Court:—About twenty minutes after taking the groats we were both taken with vomiting; Mr. Dean waited on us and emptied our vomit; it purged us also; I was very ill for three or four days after; the vomiting lasted till 12 o'clock the same day; after that I had such pain in my head that I could hardly hold my head up and get about the house; I felt sick.

Doctor prescribed.

Central Criminal Court:—Dr. Newmarch sent us some medicine; prisoner went and told him we were ill.

Beef-tea illness.

Police Court:—I made some beef-tea for my daughter five or six days after the groats; I made it in the kitchen; the prisoner was in the house when I made it; I left it on the stove; I was ironing; prisoner could get at it; no one else was in the house except my daughter, who was in bed; I took it to my daughter; she said it was bitter; I tasted it before I took it up; it was alright; I gave it to my daughter into her hands; prisoner tasted it, and said, "It is alright;" I said there must have been a gall in the meat; I took it down stairs and threw it away.

Central Criminal Court:—About five days after the groats I prepared some beef-tea for Mrs. Dean; I put it on the stove early in the morning, 8:30, and I seasoned it and left it on the hob to cook till about 12; I seasoned it and tasted it, and it was what beef-tea ought to be; a little time after I strained it in a cullender and put it in a basin, and when it was cool I took it up to my daughter; when it was cooling it was on the kitchen table; the prisoner was in the house that morning, about the house; I was ironing in a different room, in the dining-room; I took it up to her; she tasted it, and could not drink it; prisoner was sitting on the foot of the bed; she said she could not drink it, it was very bitter, and told me to taste it, and I did, and it was very bitter; I said it was not like that when I tasted it in the kitchen; my daughter asked prisoner to taste it; he took the spoon and put it to his lips, but I could not say whether he tasted it or not; he said it was alright; I said there must have been a gall in the meat to make it so bitter; I told her she could not drink it, and threw it away.

I did not suggest poison.

Police Court:—I did not say to my daughter that there must be poison in the groats; I did not in January communicate an opinion about poison to a member of the police force; the groats were not bitter; the beef-tea was; I put salt and pepper in the beef-tea when I made it, before I tasted it.

Confinement.

Police Court:—My daughter was confined on the 26th December last; I nursed her; Mr. Dean sent for me; I was there for a month before and for a month after the confinement, up to the latter part of January last.

Mrs. Dean always healthy.

Police Court:—My daughter has never been unhealthy.

Central Criminal Court:—She had been a healthy girl; I never knew her to have attacks of vomiting before; my daughter and I were very affectionate to one another (witness burst into tears); I have only her, no one else; my other daughter is dead.

Police

Police Court:—I saw my daughter on Thursday; I sent her home, as she had a pain in her back; I did not tell her then that she would have an illness, coming out so soon after her confinement.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—On the Thursday night previous to the Saturday my daughter was at the circus with me; I took her; she complained of a pain in her back.

Police Court:—I know Mr. and Mrs. Gail a little through Mrs. Dean; I called in there on a Saturday night; before the Saturday night I may have called in two or three times; I asked if they had seen my daughter; I saw prisoner on the street at the Gails' house; I do not know if Gail is incorrect if he said I had visited the house eight times in eight weeks; I have asked the Gails about the baby; on the Saturday night I did not ask whether my daughter had called there.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—I called at Gail's three or four times during the four weeks after I left my daughter, to have a chat; I asked Gails whether they had seen her; I was at Gail's on Saturday night, at 9 or 10 o'clock.

Police Court:—I called at Gail's on Monday night, the 4th March; I was shown a bottle with a liquid in it; I do not know what it was; Mr. Gail asked me to taste the cork; I was at Gail's the Saturday before, but was not shown any bottle then; I tasted the cork; it had a bitter taste; I heard something there; I said I saw syrup in the bottle of white appearance; it had about the same quantity as it has now; I thought of the beef tea after I tasted the syrup; Gail said he was going to take the bottle to be analysed; I did not think anything was wrong then; Gail took the bottle to Dr. Newmarch to see what was wrong.

Central Criminal Court:—I saw a bottle at Gail's on a Monday night; he asked me to taste it; I did with the cork; it tasted very bitter. (Cross-examination): Gail did not tell me about the bottle on Saturday night.

Police Court:—I went home from Gail's; my home is in the opposite direction to Dean's house; I went for a cloak; I passed Dean at the park near his house; I had no conversation with him then; neither of us stopped; I then went to the prisoner's house; I got there about ten minutes past 12 o'clock at night; I went to the house through the back door, which was closed, but not locked; Mrs. Weynton told me the door was open; I was not at Dean's when I left after the confinement until the 4th March; I saw Mrs. Dean on the Thursday before; I went to the circus with her; I have not been to prisoner's house since the confinement; I have seen Mrs. Dean several times; I saw my daughter away from the house the Thursday before the Saturday. (Cross-examination): I left Gail's about a quarter past 10; I met prisoner about half-past 11 near the park; he was going very fast.

Central Criminal Court:—I went to my daughter's on Monday, 4th March, at 12:10 a.m.; I heard she was very ill from Gail; as I was going to my daughter's I saw prisoner on his bicycle going to the North Shore ferry boat. (Cross-examination): I heard on Monday night my daughter was ill, after prisoner told Gail; I waited till Gail went with the bottle to Dr. Newmarch and returned, and I left Gail's at 10:15; I then went home, and from there to my daughter.

Police Court:—My daughter was in bed; she was very ill; she was vomiting and purging the whole night; I left at twenty minutes to 6; I had to go home and light the fire.

Central Criminal Court:—I found my daughter very ill, vomiting and purging; no one was there but the baby; I stayed with her till 5:40 a.m.; I gave her lime water and soda water through the night, and I gave her medicine at 4 a.m.; I did not put anything into the medicine; I looked for a powder to put into it, but could not find it; that was in consequence of something that I had been told; no one else was present but my daughter; when I left prisoner had not come home; I returned to Mrs. Leo's, where I was in service; I gave my daughter nothing on Monday night but one dose of medicine—not tea.

Police Court:—On Monday I asked what my daughter had taken; she told me on Monday night she had seen something white in some porter; I did not have any suspicion then about poison; I heard the prisoner had his fingers round the tumbler, but I did not think anything of this; my daughter said no more after she told me of the porter.

Police Court:—My daughter said something about medicine; she did not say it had something on the top; I saw the medicine before, it was brown; I hunted round for a powder to go with it, but I could not find any.

Police Court:—Prisoner's wife did not tell me that prisoner had made her send for the doctor; prisoner was distant with his wife; I should not think he was the class of man to insist on my daughter having the doctor; I did not know the prisoner was kind to his wife.

Police Court:—I went back to my daughter's between 5 and 6 o'clock the next night, Tuesday, the 5th instant.

Central Criminal Court:—I went back to Mrs. Leo's on Monday night, where I was in service; I did my work, and returned to my daughter on Tuesday between 5 and 6 o'clock.

Police Court:—When I went to my daughter's, on Tuesday, the prisoner was there; I asked him what was the matter; he replied, "I do not know."

Central Criminal Court:—When I returned to my daughter on Tuesday from Mrs. Leo's I saw prisoner in the bedroom; my daughter was very ill—vomiting; I said to prisoner, "Whatever can be the matter?" he said, "I don't know"; I stayed with my daughter from that time; from the time I nursed her on the Tuesday night she took nothing but soda and milk, and everything was injected for five or six days.

Police Court:—On the Wednesday I saw some tea in a tumbler under the drawers in my daughter's room; I looked for it in consequence of something my daughter told me; I put the tea back where I got it; I had no suspicion about it.

Central Criminal Court:—On Wednesday morning I saw the doctor; my daughter was improving on Wednesday evening; she told me something on Wednesday when she began to improve; I looked under the chest of drawers, and I saw a tumbler with something in it—very thick on top and something white at the bottom and dark on the top; I put it back where I got it; it was like this tumbler. (Cross-examination): My attention was not directed to the tumbler under the chest of drawers on Monday, nor on the Tuesday.

Police Court:—On Wednesday I had a conversation with Dr. Newmarch, my daughter, and the prisoner; something was said about a powder in the medicine; Dr. Newmarch said he never ordered a powder; my daughter said to prisoner that he put a powder in the medicine; prisoner replied, "I did not." (Cross-examination): Dr. Newmarch said, in the presence of prisoner on a Wednesday, that he did not put powders in the medicine; if the doctor says he said nothing of powders I will state that what I say is correct.

Police Court:—The first I heard of poison was on the Thursday from Dr. Newmarch, in the afternoon; I had no suspicion before Thursday that prisoner was poisoning his wife.

Police Court:—After, Dr. Newmarch told me something about poison; I spoke to prisoner about poison on the Thursday; prisoner replied, "I know nothing about it."

Central Criminal Court:—I saw prisoner after my conversation with Dr. Newmarch, and told him that the doctor told me that there was something found in the bottle—that Dr. Newmarch said there was poison found in the bottle; he said he knew nothing about it.

Central Criminal Court:—I gave Dr. Newmarch a bottle of my daughter's urine at prisoner's house; the doctor sent me a note to get it, and I got it—it was a Sunday.

Central Criminal Court:—The police came to the house between 8 and 9 p.m. on Thursday; I do not remember telling Dean the police had come.

Central Criminal Court:—I did not suggest to my daughter in any way to make a false charge against her husband, or to take poison to spite him.

Police Court:—I did not tell Mrs. Weynton till Thursday that poison was in the bottle; I did not say anything on Tuesday; Mrs. Dean said to me something about the prisoner saying he had heard about a bottle from Mrs. Weynton; I do not think I spoke to Mrs. Weynton on the Wednesday; I did not tell Mrs. Weynton about poison being in the bottle; I am on good terms with the Weyntons.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—I did not tell Mrs. Weynton that I thought there was poison in the bottle of syrup.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—I was convicted and served a sentence in Melbourne thirty years ago. (Re-examination): The charge in Melbourne was receiving; a gentleman gave me a mantle and I would not tell where I got it from, and took the charge myself.

Police Court (cross-examination):—One of the boarders at my house in Norton-street was named Thomas Jones; a Mr. Wright was also there; I never was addressed as Mrs. Jones; Jones worked at David Jones' about eight years ago; I have known him to earn £7 a week; he has left my place about eighteen months; Jones was never seen by me to act as a fence for stolen property; I never resided with Jones as man and wife.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I remember Melbourne men coming to the house; I do not remember whether I was introduced to them; they started coming about three years ago; I believe they were bookmakers; I never remember a person in plain clothes making inquiries for Melbourne guns; a man named Simon came to the house; he only had one eye; I have not seen Simon for some time; I do not know that he is serving a sentence for burglary.

Police Court (cross-examination):—I know some person named Rose; some of the girls came for fruit; I was on friendly terms with Mrs. Rose; I never was there half-an-hour; I know it was a house of bad fame; I remember Madame Rose going to England or away somewhere; I was over at the house; I went and slept there three or four nights at the request of Madame Rose while she was away; I never took ladies to the house; I don't remember going for a certain young lady for Mrs. Rose; I have taken several notes from Madame Rose to gay girls; I cannot say if it was less than a dozen times; I was paid for going these messages; Madame sent the notes to me; I went to mind the bedroom of Madame Rose; I cannot say what went on while I was at the house; I only had charge of the bedroom.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examination):—I once took charge of the house, and there was nobody there; I have taken notes, but did not know whom they were to; I took them to the lady of the house; I never kept an improper house.

Commission.—June 14th, 1895 (pages 263-265).

History.

Central Criminal Court:—I am a master mariner holding a certificate; and have been employed by the North Shore Steam Ferry Company for eleven years; I am 27 years of age; I have saved life off the steamer several times, and received a watch in token of it once.

Mary Dean.

Central Criminal Court:—It is true what my wife swore as to over eight months acquaintance, and my visiting her; there was nothing in the conduct of her mother or herself during the eight months I was visiting to lead me to believe they were not respectable. Cross-examined: She was pretty well always on; I cannot give any reason for her trying to poison herself, nor did I see anything in her conduct to lead me to think she would get a charge against me; I never heard about their characters till Mr. Meagher asked the question in the Court; he never told me of it; I was sitting by him in the Police Court.

Pretty well always on.

Commission:—I do not know what I meant when I said in my cross-examination by the Attorney-General at the trial when speaking of Gail in the divorce case, "She was pretty well always on"; I cannot explain what that is at all, I do not know now what that question referred to.

Married life.

Central Criminal Court:—I never insulted my wife during our marriage life with reference to herself or family; there is not a word of truth in what she swore as to my charging her with having another child; quite the reverse; she said to me on several occasions, "What do you do with the £2 you have every fortnight?" I said, "It went in paying land and timber"; she then said, "I suppose you want some of it to keep your illegitimate children"; I said, "Who ever told you I had illegitimate children? you know I have none"; she then said a woman told her, whom she would not name; this conversation started six months ago, and came up now and again; I put it down to chaff her talking about illegitimate children; we were on good terms; I have done what I could to beautify the home; we have many times chatted over the making of a new home; I have done all I could to render her happy. Cross-examined: It was on Friday afternoon we had the quarrel; I was going out on the bicycle; she asked me to hold the baby; she said, "You never will hold the baby when I want you"; the chaff about the illegitimate children was two or three times. By Jury: I never kept away from the place during her confinement; I used to stop talking as her mother said she was to be kept quiet. Central

Central Criminal Court:—I was the only person who cooked the food or handled it, or gave her the medicine; I thought it was doing her good.

The only person who handled food.

Commission:—As far as I know I was the only person who cooked or handled food and gave it to my wife, barring Monday when I gave Mrs. Adye some sago to make for the wife as I did not understand how to make it; in reference to the cooking and handling food, as far as I can tell, I do not know of anyone else who gave her anything; when I was at work I do not know if anybody else gave her anything.

Central Criminal Court:—I remember Mrs. Seymour staying at the house; she and I could not agree; she used to be going at me; at the latter end of April, 1894, she was staying with us six weeks or two months; we lived more happily when she was away; we were on happy terms; only when the mother was living in the house the wife used to get disagreeable and the mother as well; I did cause the mother to leave; Mr. Gail moved her things.

Mrs. Seymour.

Central Criminal Court:—I know Miss Cassin; I have not communicated with her in any way; I did not say what my wife swore I did as to marrying Miss Cassin when I got free from her.

Mrs. Cassin.

Central Criminal Court:—I know the tonic; I took some of it the first week in February—three doses; it brought back my appetite; I took it from my wife's room to mine.

JANUARY FEBRUARY.
The tonic.

Central Criminal Court:—As to the groats, Mrs. Seymour said, on a Sunday morning when I came home, that the wife had just had her breakfast; I saw her, and she said she felt a little better; I had a bath, breakfast, a smoke, read Sunday Times; I went up about 10:30; the wife was not so well; she was ill and vomited a few times; I held the basin to her; she sat in my lap at her request; during this time Mrs. Seymour vomited; I then asked, "What is the cause of your being sick?"; she said she did not know; she had some groats for breakfast, and Mrs. Seymour had some too; they had their breakfast before I came home; I said, "Shall I get the doctor?"; they said, "No, we will be all right by-and-bye"; I went to the doctor next day, and paid him for her accouchement, and told him of their both being sick on Sunday; I got a prescription from him which I took home; I told him what was the matter, and said, "Can you give me anything for it?"

Groats illness.

Commission:—In reference to the evidence regarding the groats they swore that they were vomiting and purging on that Sunday after eating the groats; they did not purge, because I was nursing my wife on that Sunday; I was sitting on a chair, and she was sitting on my lap; she started vomiting, and I asked Mrs. Seymour what was the matter, and Mrs. Seymour replied that May's stomach was weak, and she thought it was biliousness; I asked Mrs. Seymour would she have some groats, and she said no, she would not take any; as for purging, I never saw either of them go to the closet that day; I was nursing my wife on my lap from 11 o'clock till 2 o'clock in the afternoon; the vomiting had ceased in both long before that; there is no truth at all in the statement when they say they were purging on that Sunday, in the beginning of January; previous to her confinement my wife was vomiting, but I never noticed Mrs. Seymour vomit; Dr. Newmarch was prescribing for my wife at that time.

Central Criminal Court:—I was in the habit of bringing home 1½ lb. of beef to make beef-tea; I asked her to have it; there was a basin of beef-tea this day; they said it was bitter; I was called up to my dinner by Mrs. Seymour; I went to see how my wife was; I saw a basin of beef-tea by the bed; I never had interfered with it; her mother said to the wife, "Come and have a taste of the beef-tea"; she started to give it to her; the wife took a spoonful and said she did not like it; it was bitter; Mrs. Seymour then tasted it and said it was all right; "There is nothing wrong with that"; previous to taking it the wife was eating chocolates; Mrs. Seymour said, "It must be the taste of the chocolates that makes the beef-tea taste nasty"; I took a couple of spoonfuls of it at Mrs. Seymour's request and I found it was all right, but a little salty; I said, "Why don't you drink some, Pet, it would do you good?"; she said, "No"; I said, "Don't throw it away, I'll drink it for my supper before I go to work"; Mrs. Seymour said, "Go and get your dinner, it will be cold"; Mrs. Seymour said she throw it away and I did not drink it. Cross-examined: I know they were vomiting; not frequently—three or four times before dinner; I did not notice them purging; it is true what they say, except that I was not there at dinner; I don't doubt the beef-tea was thrown away; I would have drunk it if it had been there.

Beef-tea illness.

Central Criminal Court:—I remember Friday, 1st March; I left home about 11:15; nothing was wrong between us; my wife appeared all right when I left.

MARCH ILLNESSES
March 1st
(Friday).
Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Central Criminal Court:—I returned home at 7:30 a.m. on Saturday; my wife was up, and the front door was open; I stayed at home all day; I went to bed at 9 a.m.; she made no complaint; she did not call me at 1 o'clock, but did at 6 o'clock; I got up; she appeared well and jolly when she came to my bedside to wake me; she did not tell me she had drunk anything that had disagreed with her; she did not tell me about taking anything to her friends to see; she said after tea, "I don't feel well"; I said, "What is the matter?" she said she felt weak.

March 2nd
(Saturday).
Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Central Criminal Court:—When my wife said she felt weak, I asked her would she have a drink of brandy or porter; she said, "Yes"; I went and bought a bottle of porter and one shilling's worth of brandy; when I came home she was in bed with the child; this was about 9 p.m.; I opened the bottle in the bedroom, having asked her would she have brandy or porter; she said, "porter"; I got a glass and went to fill it with porter, half froth, which I gave her; she said, "Are you not going to have some?" I said, "Yes," and I did; I laid on the opposite side of the bed till 11 p.m.; before leaving I gave her a glass of milk and a few drops of brandy; I kissed her, and said "good night," and went to my work.

Porter incident

Central Criminal Court:—I am very fond of the child; I often nurse it.

The baby.

Central Criminal Court:—Through the day I gave her a drink of milk; about noon she asked me to go and lie down and have a sleep; I was nursing the child all the morning; she said she would call me when she wanted me; she called "George" at six o'clock, and I got up and went to her; she was just about the same as in the morning—complaining of her head; she asked me to get her a cup of tea; I did so; I asked her if she would have an egg; she said "No," and asked for bread and butter which I gave her; I left home at 9:45, and worked all night.

March 3rd
(Sunday).
Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Central Criminal Court:—I got home about 9 a.m. on Sunday, and went in the back way to my wife; she was asleep; I did not wake her, but went downstairs and lighted the fire; I put the kettle on, and then had a bath; I then heard the child cry; I went up to the bedroom and asked her how she felt; she said she slept well all night; I said, "What would you like this morning?"; she said, "I will have a drink drink of porter; it done me good last night"; I took a glass off a little table close to her bedside, and went into the bathroom and washed it out; I came back to the bedroom, picked up the bottle of porter, and poured some into the glass; seeing there was no head on it, I said, "It is flat and sour"; I tasted it; she said, "Put a teaspoonful of sugar in it, George, and liven it up"; I did not; I drank the porter myself; I said I would not give it to her, as it was flat and sour and might make her sick.

Powder porter. Central Criminal Court:—I did not carry the porter as she swore; I was shaking it as I came in; there is no truth whatever in her statement that there was a white powder in it; I did not turn my back on her as I poured out the porter; I did not put the cork in the bottle on Saturday night. Cross-examined: I drank the porter that was flat and sour; barring the position in which I held the glass and the powder, my wife's account of it is true.

Tea incident. Central Criminal Court:—After the porter I said, "I will give you a nice cup of hot tea"; I went downstairs and prepared the teapot; I scalded it out, made the tea, made some toast, got a cup out of the dresser, and emptied some milk out the billy; the billy was scalded on board of the steamer, as usual; I took the tea and toast up to her; she was just the same; she appeared to be the same as I left her before; she had complained before of having a headache; she said her head was aching when I brought the tea up; I poured some tea into the saucer, and put some pillows behind her to enable her to sit up; the story about the tea is true as to my saying, "Drink it whilst it is warm," and that she sent me for Mrs. Adye.

Went for Mrs. Adye. Central Criminal Court:—She said, "Will you go and tell Mrs. Adye I want her?"; I went and got her; Mrs. Adye went upstairs; I went into the dining-room and had my breakfast; Mrs. Adye came downstairs while I was at it; we had a conversation.

Suggested doctor. Central Criminal Court:—On Sunday I asked her to have a doctor; I did so because she could not keep anything on her stomach; it was at dinner time; she said, "No; I do not want a doctor, I will be all right in the morning."

Visitors. Central Criminal Court:—Mrs. Adye came to see Mrs. Dean on Sunday morning; Mrs. Dean said Mr. and Mrs. Gail were there on Sunday also.

March 4th (Monday). Mrs. Dean's condition—breakfast. Central Criminal Court:—I came home about 7-30 on Monday morning; I went to her; she was in bed; I asked her was she any better; she said she felt better; I said, "Well, if you feel better, don't get up and worry yourself, I will get your breakfast," which I did as soon as I could; it consisted of a grilled loin chop, which I brought up specially for her, as she was very fond of it, bread and butter, and a cup of tea, which she ate heartily.

Tea, not cocoa for breakfast. Commission:—It is said that cocoa was taken at breakfast time on Monday morning; my wife said so; there was no cocoa in the house until I purchased a tin between 11 and 12 o'clock on that Monday; that fact was not mentioned in the higher court; because my wife swore that she had cocoa for breakfast; she did not—she had tea; I can prove that she had tea by a friend of ours named Hans Bach, who came to our house that morning just as I was about to light the fire, a little after 8 o'clock; I told him the wife was not very well, and I asked him to come up-stairs and see her; after I had lighted the fire, a little after 8 o'clock, I prepared breakfast in the kitchen; Hans Bach was there too while I prepared the breakfast; I got ready a couple of loin chops, which I grilled, and with them took up some bread and butter and a cup of tea on a tray to my wife; I put them on the chair at the side of the bed; that evidence was not brought forward at the higher court; they did not say she had tea in the morning but they said she had cocoa.

The baby. Central Criminal Court:—I said to my wife, "I will bring you up some water in a dish, and you can sit down in bed and wash baby," which I did; she got up and sat in a chair with her boots off, and proceeded to wash the baby; I then said, "Why don't you put your boots and stockings on, instead of keeping your feet on the cold oilcloth?" she then dragged an old garment and put her feet on it; I then went and had my breakfast; after breakfast I came up-stairs, and was amusing the child laying on the bed; she was also on the bed with her wrapper on; after a while I fell off to sleep.

Cocoa incident. Central Criminal Court:—I got up between 12 and 1 o'clock; she woke me up, and said to give her a drink; I went down-stairs, and gave her a drink of milk; she was lying down, but not complaining, except of her head, and I then went and purchased a new tin of cocoa next door; it was never opened till I opened it; this was on Monday between 12 and 1 o'clock; I made her a cup of cocoa; she would not have anything to eat; I brought it to her; she drank half of it, and said she would not drink any more; she said she did not want any more; I drank the other half myself in her presence; I was lying on the bed and was awake about an hour; she was, as usual, complaining of her head, but was not out of bed.

Suggested doctor. Central Criminal Court:—I woke at 3 o'clock; she asked me to rub her head with menthol; I said, "Why don't you have the doctor?" I was rubbing her head; she said, "No, the pain will go away by-and-by."

Vomiting and purging. Central Criminal Court:—I did not see her vomiting on Sunday; I heard her swear that immediately, or twenty minutes after taking her breakfast, in which was a chop, she was vomiting incessantly; it is not true; she was all right till 12 or 1 o'clock, when I went and got the cocoa; I saw her drink it; nobody could tamper with it; she could not put anything into it; after drinking the cocoa, she did not frequently vomit or purge; she seemed all right; to my belief she was all right; she did not vomit to my knowledge after the cocoa; she was on the closet that day; I cannot say how often; I was in the house all day; I did not see her retching on Monday up to 3 o'clock; she never said anything about vomiting on Monday up to 3 o'clock; I then lay on the bed playing with the child; the milkman came at 5 o'clock; I went and got the milk in a jug, brought it fresh to her, and gave her a drink of it; she drank nearly a glassful, and lay down on the bed; so did I; half-an-hour after she started to throw the milk off her stomach; this was about half-past 5 o'clock; between 6 and 8 o'clock she vomited a couple of times.

Insisted on and went for doctor. Central Criminal Court:—I got up off the bed, and said, "I will stand this no longer; you will have to have a doctor, and I will go and get him"; I went for him; I hurried, and returned home at 6-30 p.m.; I saw the doctor a little after 8 o'clock at the house; he saw her; he gave me a prescription; I got the medicine at Guise's; I kept saying to him, "Be as quick as you can."

Commission:—They swore that they were vomiting and purging on the Monday, but they were not; they were vomiting but not frequently; she swore she was vomiting on the Sunday, Monday, Monday night, and Tuesday. The first vomiting that I saw was on the Monday afternoon, about 3 o'clock.

That

That was the second time I asked her to see a doctor; on Sunday afternoon when I was lying down having a sleep, Gail and his wife were on a visit to the house; after they had gone my wife woke me up about 6 o'clock, and told me she had been vomiting; I said, "You had better have the doctor, and see what is the matter;" she said, "No; I don't want a doctor; I shall be all right to-morrow;" on the Monday she complained of a headache but I did not think a great deal of it; on the Monday afternoon she tried to vomit, and did vomit, and I said to her, "Don't you think I had better get the doctor?" she said, "No; I do not want the doctor;" later on she started vomiting after having a drink of milk, and I said, "I will stand it no longer; I will get a doctor; you must have a doctor;" I did not ask her if she would have the doctor again; I went and got the doctor on my own account; I never saw her purge; she went to the closet I know, because she told me she did inside; I did not see her because at the time I went away to get some food for the child at her request, and when I came back she told me she had been down the yard; I understood then that during my absence she had been to the closet; I was asked in the Court if I had seen her there, and I said she had been there because she had told she had been; that was on the Monday; I went on Monday to get some food for the child, and when I came back she told me that she had been down the yard, and from that I understood that she had been to the closet; at the Court I was asked to state if I saw her there; as regards seeing her at the closet I never did see her there; I only had her word for what she told me; I never saw my wife purging on the 4th or 5th of March, nor on Sunday, the 3rd, at the closet.

Commission:—I cannot attribute my wife's vomiting to anything; I cannot tell what it is from; on the Wednesday night I asked the doctor what she was suffering from, and he said it was acute inflammation of the stomach but from what cause he could not say; it was a little after 11 o'clock when the doctor came to see my wife; it was the night I asked him about the bottle, and it was then he had sent it to the Government Analyst. Cause of vomiting.

Commission:—The doctor came in a bit later on; Mrs. Thompson said, "Get up Mr. Dean, here is the doctor"; the first words the doctor used were to accuse me of giving my wife this tea; I said, "Yes, she begged for a cup of tea and I gave her some"; he took his watch out and felt her pulse; after he spoke about the tea he told me to leave the room. Doctor's visit.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examined):—I heard the doctor say she was suffering from acute arsenical poisoning that evening; she did not mention a pain in her stomach to me. Acute arsenical poisoning.

Central Criminal Court:—On getting home I got a tablespoonful out of the dresser; took it and the medicine to the bed-room; she said, "George, give me a drink;" I said, "I have got some medicine for you, old girl;" she said, "Give me a drink first;" so I gave her a drink of lime-water and milk, as the doctor ordered; there was half a glassful altogether; she did not drink all of it; she was drinking fast; I said, "Don't drink it too quick;" with that she left about a tablespoonful in the glass; I then went to the mantel, got the medicine and tablespoon; I gave the bottle a shake, and poured out a tablespoonful; I then went to her bedside and said, "Come on, old girl, take your medicine;" she said, "Oh, wait a while, George; don't give it to me just yet;" with that I poured the medicine from the spoon into the glass that she had the lime-water and milk out of; the reason was that I could not hold it steady, and as the doctor had ordered her lime-water and milk I thought it would not hurt her; I then picked up a teaspoon from the sugar basin and carelessly stirred the spoon round in the medicine in the glass; the reason was that Guise told me to shake the bottle; I tasted the medicine; the smell was worse than the taste; I am in the habit of tasting all medicines. (By Jury): I was in the room from the time I brought the medicine home till I gave it to her in the glass; it was about five minutes from the time I brought it to the room till I gave it to her; she appeared to suffer when I was offering the medicine to her in the spoon; I can't say whether she saw me offer it to her in the spoon; she was facing out towards me in the bed; there was nothing to prevent her seeing it; I waited till she drank it; I had my hand behind her whilst she drank it. Medicine incident.

Central Criminal Court:—There is no truth in the statement that I put a powder in the medicine; it is not true I told her that Dr. Newmarch told me to put a powder in the medicine; no mention was made of a powder that night. Powder in medicine.

Commission:—I asked Mrs. Adye on Monday to make some sago, and Miss Adye brought it down; Miss Adye took it up to the wife just as I was taking up some chops that I had cooked for dinner; that was somewhere about 1 o'clock. Sago.

Commission:—I intended to have given her some eggs, but the man at the store said he had no eggs, but that they would have some shortly; as I was going upstairs with the cocoa, and just as I was at the foot of the stairs, a knock came to the door, and the man from the store said,—“The eggs have come if you want them”; I said, “Very well;” I then called out to the wife, and asked her if she would like an egg; she said she did not care for eggs as she had sago. Eggs.

Central Criminal Court:—I left home on Monday night at 11.20; I saw my wife before I left; I kissed her affectionately, and she me before leaving; I left a glass of milk and lime-water by her, and a stick for to knock with, and the baby's food. Wife alone at night.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examined):—Hans Bach was at my house downstairs on the sofa from breakfast to dinner-time. Hans Bach.

Central Criminal Court:—On Tuesday morning I got home at 7.30; I saw Mr. Weynton leaning over the fence; what Mrs. Weynton said is true; that was the first time I heard poison mentioned. March 5th (Tuesday).

Commission:—When I got home on the Tuesday morning, between half-past 7 and 8 o'clock (I cannot exactly state what time it was), I saw Mr. Weynton leaning over the fence of his yard, and Mrs. Weynton was at the kitchen door; I went in the back way, and the first word spoken to me that morning was by Mr. Weynton; he said, "What is this bottle that your wife has been drinking out of with the white powder in it?" I said, "I know nothing of it"; Weynton said, "A man has taken it to the doctor"; Weynton said, "What has your wife been drinking out of a bottle with a white powder in it?"; he then said, "This poison"; I said, "There is no bottle with a white powder that I know she has been drinking out of." Lemon-syrup. Conversation with Weynton.

Central Criminal Court (cross-examined):—She told me on the Tuesday when I returned that she had been vomiting and purging; I sent for the doctor to see her, and to ask him about the bottle. Mrs. Dean's condition.

Central

G. Dean.

Conversation with wife re
lemon syrup.

Central Criminal Court:—I went to my wife and said, "What is this I hear about a bottle you have been drinking out of with a white powder in the bottom?" she said, "Oh, the doctor has the bottle; never mind about the bottle, give me a drink"; I said, "Why did you not tell the doctor about that when he was here?" she said, "Oh, never mind about that, the doctor knows all about the bottle"; my wife seemed to me, from her conduct to me, just the same as any other ordinary day.

Commission:—On hearing Weynton's conversation, I immediately went upstairs and spoke to the wife, telling her what Weynton had told me; she said, "Never mind, the doctor has got the bottle"; seeing the wife was so bad, and hearing this, I thought the best thing would be to send for the doctor; I said I would go for the doctor, and she said, "Do not leave me, George; stop here."

Went to
Mr. Thompson.

I then went to Mr. Thompson, who was the engineer of toy boat, and I said to him, "Charlie, for God's sake go and get a doctor, for my wife has been drinking something out of a bottle"; he took my bicycle and went and told the doctor to come, and he told me the doctor said he would come directly.

Mrs. Thompson's
visit.

Commission:—When Mr. Thompson went inside he sent his wife in to see if she could do anything; she came in and brought a dipper of hot water with her and started to wash the baby; I was lying on the bed crying at what I had heard, and at the thoughts of this poisoning; the wife, when Mrs. Thompson came in, was asking for a drink of tea, and I said, "No, you must not have tea; the doctor says you must have nothing but milk and lime water"; I was going to get up and make the fire when Mrs. Thompson said, "Go into my place; you can get some tea out of my teapot."

Confronted wife
before doctor.

Central Criminal Court:—On hearing about the bottle I summoned the doctor; I wanted to go, but she said "Don't leave me," and I sent Robertson; the doctor came; I was lying on the bed beside the wife crying when the doctor came; he asked her something that I did not hear, as I got up when he visited her; I was crying on account of hearing that she had been drinking poison; after he finished talking to her I then said, "Now tell the doctor all about this bottle that you have been drinking out of with a white powder in it"; the doctor said, "I'll look out for that; I'll look out for the bottle"; I then told the doctor what was told to me that morning. (Cross-examination): It was Tuesday morning I told her she would have to tell the doctor about the water and the bottle.

Commission:—I said to the doctor, "The first thing I was asked this morning was about a bottle with a white powder in"; I then said to the wife, "Now tell the doctor all about this that you have been drinking out of the bottle"; the wife and Dr. Newmarch denied that in the Court; Mrs. Thompson was present, but why did not they call her, although she was in the room at the time, and she could have substantiated and proved what was said in this conversation? Mrs. Dean swore I was not in the room at all, and the doctor said the same thing on this Tuesday morning when he came; I think these couple of little things brought to light would have tended in my favour, and would have proved that what I was saying was the truth; as it was, both Dr. Newmarch and Mrs. Dean went into the box and said what was absolutely untrue in reference to what I have just mentioned.

Doctor
prescribed.

Central Criminal Court:—The doctor asked for a sheet of paper, which I got, and he wrote a prescription; I went downstairs, took off my heavy coat, and put a light one on; I was standing at the foot of the stairs waiting for him; I was crying to think of what had happened; the doctor said, "Oh, don't give way, Dean, there is no danger, but get that prescription made up"; I went and got it made up; I went to sleep in a chair, and got the prescription and gave it to Mrs. Lee.

Mrs. Seymour.

Central Criminal Court:—I had not seen Mrs. Seymour up to the time Weynton spoke to me; I went to sleep; I got up at 4 o'clock; my wife called me; I left home at 11 o'clock; I left Mrs. Seymour at the house on Tuesday night.

March 6th
(Wednesday).
Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Central Criminal Court:—I returned home on Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock and went to see my wife; she was still ill; she was vomiting; I asked Mrs. Seymour what she had been having; I saw soda water bottles.

Doctor and syrup bottle—
Conversation.

Commission:—I saw the doctor on the Wednesday evening, because I thought the wife was worse in my opinion; when he came downstairs after seeing my wife I said to him, "What about this bottle, doctor?" he said, "I have sent it to the Government Analyst, and I hope there is nothing found in it"; he never mentioned a word to me then about the charge of poisoning my wife.

March 7th
(Thursday).
Interrogated by doctor re powder
in medicine.

Central Criminal Court:—On the Thursday forenoon was asleep in the dining room; doctor came and woke me up and asked me, "Dean, did you give your wife a powder in the medicine on Monday night?" I said, "No, doctor"; he then showed me a packet of powders he had, and said, "Did you ever see these powders before?" [These are the powders referred to as immaterial] I said, "No"; he went up stairs; he called me up; he asked me in the presence of my wife, "Did you put a powder in the medicine on Monday night?" I said, "No"; she said, "You did, George"; I said, "How can you say that?" and with that I left the room; I forget whether I told the doctor how I gave it; I did not say, "You would hang a man"; she did not say, "Why, George, you told me the doctor ordered the powder"; on Thursday morning she said, "What made the medicine white?" I thought after the doctor had gone I would go and ask her why she said it; I said, "What makes you say I put a powder in the medicine"; she said, "Because it was white"; I then said, "Did she not see me put it into the glass which she drank the lime-water and milk out of?" She said, "No"; I said, "You know you asked me for a drink as soon as I came home," to which she replied, "Yes"; I said, "Did I not then want to give you the medicine, and did you not say, 'Don't give it to me just yet?'" She said, "Yes"; I said, "Did you not see me pour it into the glass which you had the lime-water and milk out of?" She said, "No; she did not notice that." I have never deposited a powder in any of her food. (Cross-examined): It was Thursday morning that the doctor spoke to me about the powder, and told me she said I had put one in the medicine; she said, "You know, George, you did"; I cannot say she said, "You know it is a falsehood"; I did not say anything about my putting the medicine into a used glass by way of explanation; I never gave the explanation to Dr. Newmarch; I did not say, "Why did you not let me take it to the doctor"; I did not think anything of her charging me with putting a powder into the medicine; I did for a moment; I know of no medicine glass; when the doctor said this is a very serious charge, I did not have any idea it referred to me.

Commission:—The doctor swore it was on the Wednesday he accused me of putting a powder into the wife's medicine, but that was on the Thursday; on Thursday, I was lying asleep on the sofa downstairs; he came downstairs with a packet of powders in his hand and said to me, "Dean, did you put any powder in your wife's medicine on Monday night?—Do you know anything about these powders?—Do you you know anything about them?" I said, "No"; he then called me upstairs, and in front of my wife asked me, "Did you put powder in your wife's medicine on Monday night?" I said, "No, I did not"; she said, "George, you did"; I denied it and said, "What makes you say that?" I said I did not; she contradicted me and I walked out of the room; she was in the habit of contradicting me at times; as to their explanation about the medicine having a milky appearance, they never asked me what caused that; if they had I could have explained it straight away, but they did not ask me; I said I did not know whether it was white powder or what powder it was, for I did not know what powder they were alluding to; I said I know nothing about powder for the simple reason that I never put any powder in the medicine.

Commission:—Dr. Newmarch swore in court that he told me that the wife was charging me with poisoning her, and asked me what I had to say; and I say he never mentioned it once to me; that was on the Wednesday night.

Doctor never mentioned charge of poisoning.

Commission:—After the altercation I had with my wife in the presence of Dr. Newmarch, when she said I did, and I said I did not, I did recur to the subject; I could not tell exactly when, but an hour or two afterwards; after this conversation I went and laid down in a room upstairs, and when Mrs. Seymour called me up for dinner I went into my wife's room and sat on the bed, and I said to her, "What makes you say I put powder in the medicine?" She said, "Because the medicine was white," or, "What made it white?" I said, "Why didn't you tell me so at the time?" I then described how I gave her the medicine; as soon as I came home from the chemist's on Monday night she asked me for a drink of lime water and milk, which she got; that was the first drink she had; the doctor ordered her to drink this lime-water and milk when she was vomiting during her confinement; I then got a bottle of lime water and brought it home; when I arrived home I said, "I have got some medicine for you to take"; she said, "Give me a drink of lime-water and milk first"; she left a little in the glass, and I put the glass on the table beside the bed; I then went to the mantelpiece and got the spoon and medicine from the mantelpiece, and poured some of the medicine into a spoon; I then went over to the bedside and asked her to take it, and she said, "Wait a few minutes"; being afraid of spilling the medicine I poured it into the glass, not thinking there would be any harm; when she did not take it I took the spoon and gave it a stir round, because Mr. Guise told me, "Be sure and shake the bottle before giving her the medicine"; she said, "I thought there was a powder in it," and I said, "No such thing"; I said, "That is the reason the medicine is white."

Powder in medicine. Conversation with wife. Explanation of milky appearance.

This conversation was on Thursday after the doctor had gone; I know that it was Thursday, because it was after I paid the landlord; that is how I am so certain when the conversation took place.

Central Criminal Court:—I have never purchased or used arsenic or strychnine; I do not know what is the quantity to give; Mrs. Seymour told me on the Thursday after the doctor had left that arsenic was found in the bottle, and that the police were coming; they came that night; I know it was the police laid the information against me, not my wife.

Arsenic and strychnine.

Central Criminal Court:—On Friday, the 8th March, the Sergeant arrested me.

March 8th (Friday). Arrest.

Central Criminal Court (Cross-examined):—I was in gaol on the 28th March, and saw my solicitor on that day in the hospital; I did not know that day that a charge of bigamy was to be made; I don't know that Mrs. Gail was in Mr. Meagher's office that night with two policemen; the clerk, sitting at the table, told me that Gail was going to be arrested; I said, "I know nothing about the divorce," he said, "We might get Gail—that Gail might be arrested"; I thought Gail was divorced long ago.

Commission.—June 10th, 1895.

I am a solicitor of the Supreme Court of this colony; I knew Dean as the captain of one of the North Shore Ferry boats; I have travelled in the boat with him.

Professions

I remember either one night of last year, or the beginning of this year, I cannot state the particular time, Dean speaking to me with reference to a divorce; he made an inquiry from me as to whether a divorce could be obtained by mutual consent; I said, "No," it was after 12 o'clock at night; he spoke to me on another occasion, about the same time; it was about something to the same effect; I did not pay much attention to it; he knew I was Mr. Westgarth, and that I was a solicitor; I have no doubt about it.

Divorce by mutual consent.

I was subpoenaed by the Crown to-day; I have not volunteered any information to the Crown; I was surprised at receiving the subpoena.

Surprised at receiving subpoena.

Police Court:—I am a legally qualified medical practitioner, living at North Sydney.

Profession.

Police Court:—I know the prisoner's wife; she has been under my care since the 26th December last up to the present time.

Mrs. Dean.

Police Court:—On Sunday, December 30th, after Mrs. Dean's confinement, I attended both Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour for an attack of vomiting and purging; on January 14th prisoner came to my house and asked me for a prescription for his wife, because she was attacked as before; I prescribed, but did not see them; I gave the prescription produced, marked Exhibit B.

JANUARY ILLNESSES. Previous illnesses.

Commission:—I made a mistake in stating that I attended Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour for vomiting and purging on the Sunday after confinement; I think it was on the 3rd or 4th of January; she had vomiting on the 4th; on January 3rd I prescribed a mixture containing morphia, because she was very restless with acute pain due to toothache, and she could get no sleep; I think they told me she took two or three doses of the morphia; they told me on the following morning that she was relieved somewhat of the pain, and that she vomited after each dose of the medicine; she could not keep it on her stomach; in consequence I ordered an effervescent medicine containing dilute hydro-cyanic acid; they told me that she had two or three loose stools at the time she had this vomiting; the purging was not sufficient to attract any marked attention; I am positive it was not caused by the tartrate of soda; tartrate of soda is Morphia illness. January 3rd.

not

- B. J. Newmarch. not a purgative; the purge was slight; she had no purging or vomiting before that; the mother told me she had two or three loose stools after taking the morphia; the purging was not marked; I did not see any of the matter; Mrs. Seymour told me on the morning of the 4th that Mrs. Dean had been vomiting after each dose of the medicine; I said it might have been caused by the action of the morphia, as it has a peculiar action on certain people, and I thought that it might have been caused by the morphia mixture; the old woman turned and said, "I don't think that is right, doctor, because I have been ill too," or words to that effect; I ceased attending Mrs. Dean on the 10th January.
- Mrs. Seymour ill. Commission:—Mrs. Seymour implied that she had been ill in the same way as her daughter; I asked her if she had been very bad, and she said, "Not very bad; but I do not think your theory is right;" she rather laughed it down; I mean the idea that the morphia caused it; I did not prescribe for Mrs. Seymour; I took no notice of her illness at all.
- Dean and illnesses. Commission:—Dean asked me for his account on the 14th January, which had not been sent in; I gave it to him, and he paid it, and then he asked me to give him some medicine for Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour; he asked me to give him a prescription for vomiting and purging, as his wife and the old lady were bad again as before; I remember the "as before" business, because I was in a bit of doubt what I prescribed for them both; I did not remember prescribing for the old woman, and I was rather in doubt as to what I had given; I remembered the vomiting of Mrs. Dean, and as he said "vomiting and purging," I thought I would give them the mixture which I believe you have before you—a mixture of bismuth and opium; I asked him if I should call, and he said that there was no necessity, but that if they got worse he would let me know; he did not give me any cause for this attack; I think he mentioned that they had taken something that disagreed with them; I honestly thought I had given that medicine before; he asked me, I think, for the same prescription, and I thought that I had prescribed that mixture before, as it is a favourite one of mine.
- Morphia prescription. Commission:—I have read Dr. Knaggs' evidence; the idea of my having given too much morphia is ludicrous; the dose was given to a woman who was in pain, and could not sleep; it was quite an ordinary dose under the circumstances.
- Lime-water and milk. Commission:—I did not give any directions about lime-water and milk; she had lime-water and milk on the 4th January; I gave some directions on the 4th.
- The baby. Commission:—I do not think I attended the baby at all at this time; I do not think I saw it on the 14th January; I do not think I saw it before; the baby was not ill.
- Symptoms consistent with arsenical poisoning. Police Court:—The symptoms are compatible with arsenical poisoning; the taste of strychnine is bitter; arsenious acid is easily obtained, and is made more soluble in hot liquid.
- A fatal dose. Central Criminal Court:—I attended Mrs. Dean till January 10th; I heard her describe in court her symptoms after eating the groats; the symptoms described by her indicate irritant poison; arsenic is one; the symptoms of arsenical poisoning are acute vomiting, purging, with probably slimy and bloody stools, straining, acute burning pains in the stomach, cramps in the limbs, and burning pains in the throat, and irritation of the eyes—they water and are filmy; these are the main symptoms, or you may get none of these symptoms, but only absolute collapse; she was vomiting and purging about the 4th or 5th of January, also the mother, but not so bad; I had been giving morphia in Mrs. Dean's case, and I thought it might possibly be owing to that, and I stopped it; but I did not think it could be as her mother had it. The symptoms which she has described as appearing after the groats are consistent with arsenical poisoning.
- Confinement. Police Court:—From half a grain to three grains of arsenic would be a fatal dose in ordinary cases; if put in tea, arsenic would run in white little round lumps.
- Tonic mixture. Central Criminal Court:—I attended Mrs. Dean in her confinement; I am of opinion she had not had a child before; I am positive about it.
- Commission:*—She came with her mother to engage me, I think about two months previously; that was the only time I saw her before the confinement; she had a long confinement, but a perfectly natural one; there was no instrumental delivery; the antiseptic tabloids and boracic acid were used in the usual course of events; I always use them; I think she had a slight rupture of the perinaeum, which I stitched; I do not remember prescribing for her at all before the confinement.
- Central Criminal Court:*—I also prescribed the tonic ("D") on the last day I attended her; it is quinine and iron, and a very small quantity of strychnine, not enough to do any harm; there are less than two drops of liquor strychnia in each dose, half a dram in 8 ounces; it is the ordinary medical prescription; it contains no arsenic; if there are 3 grains of arsenic in what is left in the bottle it would be a fatal dose; half a grain of strychnine is poisonous, but there is only one-fiftieth of a grain in each dose of this medicine; I gave the tonic which I took away to Constable Chivers as I got it.
- Commission:*—I prescribed the tonic mixture on the 8th January. [See prescription, Minutes of Evidence, page 251.]
- Husband and wife. Commission:—The only reference during the time I attended Mrs. Dean in her confinement or afterwards that would lead me to suppose that she and her husband were not living happily together was a somewhat indirect reference; it was when she was ill, and I gave her the morphia; she had had this sleeplessness; Mrs. Seymour told me that her daughter had suffered from restlessness a long time previous to her confinement, and I asked her the reason why, and she said that she had a very miserable life; that the husband was away all night, and came home to sleep all day, or something like that; that in her pregnant condition she was frequently lying awake at night with no one in the house, and she got restless attacks of insomnia; she made a slight reference to the fact that she was not very happy, but not a reference that I took much notice of; it struck me that it was more of a miserable sort of existence—I mean the fact of the husband being away all night and asleep all day.
- MARCH ILLNESSES. March 4th (Monday). Mrs. Dean's condition. Police Court:—On Monday, 4th March, at about 6-30, I was called by the prisoner to see his wife; I visited her at about 8-10 p.m.; I called as soon as I could; Mrs. Dean was pale, her skin was moist, and her tongue was clean; she stated she had vomited everything she had taken, and purged; the stomach region was tender, pulse regular, good volume.
- Central Criminal Court:*—When I saw her at 8-10, she was very pale, skin moist and clammy, tongue clean; symptoms gone of vomiting and purging directly after taking anything; the body was tender over the stomach region; pulse regular; respiration normal; the symptoms are consistent with arsenical poisoning; any irritant poison produces extreme thirst; I prescribed for her, having no suspicion of poisoning; the prescription ("H") produced is the one I gave; it is composed of opium, bismuth, and hydrocyanic acid. It would not be milky in appearance, but like that produced; it could not produce vomiting and purging, but would have the opposite effect.
- Commission*

Commission:—I was called to see Mrs. Dean on Monday, 4th March; I did not see or hear anything of her in the meantime—not a word; I thought her illness of the 4th March was due to her having taken something which disagreed with her, probably ptomaine poisoning; I asked her first, "What have you taken—anything to disagree with you?" and I went over what she had taken to try and fix on something that had disagreed with her; she did not tell me anything about the lemon syrup; she denied having taken anything to disagree with her; she could give me no reason for the attack; she told me what she had taken in the day, but when she said cocoa or tea I could not fix in my mind that that would disagree with her; I was looking for sausages, or pork, or tinned meat, or something of that character; the temperature was below normal; my instructions were as regards the treatment on that night that she was only to have very small quantities of milk and lime-water, or milk and soda-water; I did mention lime-water again on that night, and that she was to have nothing else at all; but perhaps half a teaspoonful of brandy and water, but nothing else was to pass her lips; I can fix the time I saw her exactly, because I ordered my buggy round at 8 o'clock after seeing my patients at my house, and it would take me about ten minutes to drive up to Dean's: it was, therefore, from ten minutes to a quarter past 8.

Commission:—Mrs. Weynton was present when I saw Mrs. Dean on Monday evening.

Persons present.

Police Court:—I prescribed, and gave strict instructions as to diet; the prescription produced marked Exhibit "A," is the prescription I gave. [For prescription see Minutes of Evidence page 251.]

Prescription.

Central Criminal Court:—I ordered her to use ice to allay her thirst.

Ordered ice.

Commission:—I did not see vomit matter on the Monday evening; there was a smell of vomit in the room, and the bedclothes were stained with vomit; I did not see the motion; I do not think it was there; I was never shown it; she did not vomit in my presence; I did not give instructions for the vomit to be preserved for me.

Vomit or purge.

Central Criminal Court:—Mrs. Dean complained of spasms and cramps in the calves of her legs, which are symptoms of arsenical poisoning; I am of opinion that she was suffering from acute arsenical poisoning on the 4th and 5th when I saw her. (Cross-examined): I did not think her ever in a critical condition.

Symptoms, acute arsenical poisoning.

Commission:—The possibility of Mrs. Dean having influenza did occur to me at this time; I read and heard of it; there were one or two ways in which I thought it might be that myself; I had a good many cases of gastro-intestinal inflammation at the time, and I was questioning myself as to whether they were due to influenza or not; I looked upon gastro-intestinal influenza as a vague thing; I took the temperature; there was none of that acute backache, none of the usual symptoms of influenza—high temperature and other general symptoms.

Gastro-intestinal influenza.

Police Court:—When prisoner came for me he presented the appearance of a man anxious and distressed at the illness of his wife.

Prisoner's demeanour.

Central Criminal Court:—On Monday, 4th March, I got from a Mr. Gail a bottle of lemon syrup partially consumed; I handed it to Inspector Cotter on the 5th; I got the bottle at 9 or 10 p.m.

Lemon syrup incident.

Central Criminal Court (by juror):—Gail said, "I want you to test, I think there is poison in it;" Gail said he thought Dean had put the poison in the bottle; Gail was reticent when he came and asked me to test the bottle; I said he must tell me all about it; he then told me it was a patient of mine I was attending; I said, "Who do you mean?" he said, "Mrs. Dean;" he then said he thought that it was the husband poisoning the wife; I asked his reason for saying that; he said they did not live happily together; Gail said Mrs. Dean left the bottle at my house; Mrs. Gail did not accuse prisoner.

Gail and syrup bottle.

Commission:—Gail brought the lemon syrup to me between 9 and 10 p.m. on the Monday; he gave me to understand that Mrs. Dean was being poisoned—most decidedly; he came in a rather mysterious way and asked me if I would test the contents of the bottle; I said, "What for; what do you mean?" I cannot bind myself to the exact words used, but I will give you the effect of the conversation; he seemed very mysterious with reference to this bottle; I said, "Who is it; what is it for? Give me some particulars. I am not going to test it unless I know who it is for. What do you suspect?" he said, "It is a patient of yours;" I said, "Who?" he said, "Someone who you have attended to-night;" I said, "What, Mrs. Dean?" he said, "Yes;" I said, "What do you think is in the bottle?" and he said that he had an idea that Mr. Dean was trying to poison his wife; I told him that that was a very serious matter, and I rather resented it, and I asked him, "What business is that of yours?" when I went on the Tuesday I went with this information in my hand, but I did not believe it; I paid little attention to his statement; I thought it a piece of gross interference on Gail's part; I thought that he wanted to do Dean an injury behind his back; I took the bottle and locked it up in my cupboard, and said that I would make my own inquiries; I did not like Gail's manner; he had a suspicious manner when he came in; I thought it was an interference between a man and his wife; I had never seen the man before; I did not like the suspicious sort of way he had of talking about it; I thought he had some designs upon Mrs. Dean; I thought he was trying to get Dean out of the way, or some wretched thing like that; that the accusation was made against Dean for some other purpose; that it was a matter of policy; I treated the whole thing with abhorrence, or any suspicion of that kind.

Central Criminal Court (by juror): Mrs. Seymour did not accuse the prisoner.

Mrs. Seymour and bottle.

Central Criminal Court (by juror):—Mrs. Dean told me on Tuesday that she thought prisoner had put poison in; I had got the bottle on Monday night, and I asked Mrs. Dean was there any foundation for it, as I could not take the statement of any one who left the bottle with me; it was after taking the medicine in which she said the powder was that she said she suspected him of putting poison in the bottle; I knew Mrs. Dean had been to my house on Saturday night, and that she had been to the chemist's.

Mrs. Dean and bottle.

Commission:—It was on the Wednesday that Mrs. Dean told me that she thought prisoner had put poison in, not Tuesday, as I stated in my evidence in answer to a juror at the Central Criminal Court.

Commission:—Even after Gail brought the lemon syrup bottle I was absolutely satisfied that Dean was innocent; my sympathies were entirely with Dean, even after I was clear that it was a case of arsenical poisoning; I have no doubt about it.

Thought Dean innocent.

Commission:—I do not remember Mrs. Dean mentioning cocoa to me on Sunday, Monday, or Tuesday; I do not remember the cocoa incident at all; I do not know how the question of cocoa arose; she mentioned something about a cocoa incident in one of those talks about poison; I went over her back history with her, and she may have mentioned cocoa to me, but I have no recollection of it at all; I do not remember her mentioning cocoa in those incidents of the Monday morning; in describing her condition to me on Monday, I do not remember anything in connection with cocoa; I have no recollection of cocoa as a vehicle.

Cocoa incident.

Commission:—

B. J.
Newmarsh.
The January
business.

March 5th
(Tuesday).
Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean did not tell me, when she described the groats and beef-tea incidents, that her mother prepared the groats; she did not tell me the January business; not a word was said to me about the illness on the 14th January.

Police Court:—I saw Mrs. Dean on March 5th, at the request of the prisoner; prisoner seemed very anxious I should go there as soon as possible; vomiting had been incessant, but her general condition was not worse; I found my instructions had not been carried out; I tried to obtain some vomit, but could not. The general symptoms: her tongue was clean, but her eyes were red.

Central Criminal Court:—When the husband came on Tuesday morning he said his wife was worse; I saw her at 8:40; she was no worse generally, but the eyes were red and the stomach very tender.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean again on the Tuesday morning—about twenty minutes to 9 o'clock. I should think; when I went there, as far as I can recollect, I walked straight up-stairs; Mrs. Dean told me that she had been worse, that she had been vomiting incessantly; I asked what she had been taking, and the first thing I saw was an empty saucer by her bedside, and I concluded that she had taken tea, and that my instructions had not been carried out; a woman was there whom I did not recognise till afterwards, a Mrs. Thompson; she was sitting on a chair or low stool, washing and dressing the baby; I asked Mrs. Dean what she had been taking, and she referred to this tea; she confessed that she had taken tea, and I soundly rated her and Mrs. Thompson too; I said, "These are not my instructions, if you give her tea you must expect the vomiting to continue"; Mrs. Thompson retaliated, and said she had not been in charge of the patient, and I apologised to her; I examined Mrs. Dean; the eyes were red and inflamed, more like incipient conjunctivitis; the eyes were swollen, as if she had been crying badly; I remember her complaining about her eyes being red and in a state of irritation; there was nothing about intolerance to light; her eyes were red and inflamed-looking; that is what I mean by suffused; Mr. Thompson came for me.

Commission:—Cross-examined: I said at the trial that the husband came for me, because I thought he did; I made a mistake; my servant informed me it was the husband, but it was not; it was Mr. Thompson; I gave it at the trial to the best of my knowledge.

Vomit or purge.

Commission:—I did not see any stool or vomit on the Tuesday morning; I did not give any directions as regards these being kept for me.

Symptoms more suspicious.

Commission:—I cannot but say that I thought the symptoms were more suspicious; I recognised that it was quite possible that some irritant poison had been taken, and on thinking over the matter I decided to give the bottle to Inspector Cotter; I did not take the temperature on Tuesday morning.

Food injected by the bowel.

Commission:—I prescribed two injections—one a food injection, and one an opium injection; the opium injection was prescribed on Tuesday, and the food injection on Wednesday; I gave the instructions to Mrs. Thompson, the woman in the room, about the opium injection; I do not know beyond my instructions who actually did it; I was not there; there was nothing said to me afterwards about an enema; not at any time.

Dieting instructions disobeyed.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner said, on the Tuesday morning, his wife was not adhering to his instructions about the dieting in his wife's presence; I gave the instructions about the dieting to Mrs. Weynton and another woman, not to the husband, on the Monday night.

Mrs. Seymour.
Dean did not speak of syrup bottle.

Central Criminal Court:—I saw Mrs. Seymour on the Tuesday.

Central Criminal Court (in reply):—On Tuesday, I went at 8:15 to prisoner; he was not lying on the bed beside his wife crying; he was not there at all; the statement that he said, "Now tell the doctor all about the bottle that you have been drinking out of with a white powder in it," is not true; it is absolutely untrue; he never said that in his wife's presence; he never told me about the bottle on Tuesday.

Commission:—I have no recollection of Dean being in the room at the time I called on Tuesday morning, but I won't swear that he was not there; I have absolutely no recollection of his being there; I asked for some paper to prescribe for her, and it was then I believe that Dean came into the room. If I remember rightly he came with the paper, as there was none in the room, and he brought it up from downstairs. I wrote the prescription, and I think very shortly afterwards left the room. Either just before leaving the room or just after—I think it was in the room—I said to Dean, "No wonder your wife is worse, you have not carried out my instructions with regard to the diet and so on." He said, "Well, doctor, she has been having tea, but she would have it." I said, "Well you apparently gave it to her and you should not have done so." I thought I had the culprit who gave the tea, and I was rather inclined to be angry with him, because it was directly in opposition to what I told him, and the fact of her being worse was due to the diet not being carried out according to my instructions. I had no conversation whatever with Dean about this bottle on Tuesday; I swear absolutely that Dean had no conversation with me with regard to that bottle of lemon-syrup on the Tuesday.

Mrs. Thompson asked the question.

Commission:—When I called on Tuesday morning I am almost positive that Mrs. Thompson turned round and said to Mrs. Dean, "Why don't you tell the doctor about this stuff you took or what you took in the lemon-syrup," or words to that effect. I said, "Never mind about that, I have the bottle myself." I am almost positive Mrs. Thompson said that; if anybody said it Mrs. Thompson did, "Why don't you tell the doctor about this stuff you have taken in the lemon-syrup?" Why I know it was Mrs. Thompson, or rather I did not know it was Mrs. Thompson till about two or three weeks ago, I did not recognise her although I confined her, because she was dressed differently, and when I saw her she was in bed. I said, "Hello, here is somebody else knows something about this syrup." I thought there had been some conversation about it. I did not want to have any conversation on this matter except with the principals. (Cross-examined): I do not remember swearing at the trial it was Mrs. Thompson who was there on that Tuesday morning, because I did not know it was Mrs. Thompson; did not I say a woman was washing the baby; she was called into the court and I could not recognise her; I have a recollection of Mrs. Thompson turning to Mrs. Dean and asking her something about drinking out of a bottle, or words to that effect; I know now it was Mrs. Thompson who was there, but I did not know it at the trial; I will swear it was not Dean that said it; I swear Mrs. Thompson said it; I am not going to swear to the very words; I admit that words to that effect were said, but Mrs. Thompson said them and not Mr. Dean; Dean was not in the room; I admit the words were said on that occasion; reference was made to a bottle on that occasion; Dean was not there; I will swear Dean did not say it, because I was astonished at Dean speaking to me on the Wednesday night, and I told Inspector Cotter on the Thursday of the conversation I had with Dean on the Wednesday; I admit Dean did say what Mrs. Thompson stated in her

H. J. Newmarch.

her evidence before the Commission [See Mrs. Thompson's evidence, question 3769], but not on this occasion; as far as I remember Mrs. Thompson's evidence, question 3770, is correct; Mr. Dean did not say "she has taken something out of a bottle—lemonade, or lemon syrup, or something else;" that was said by Mrs. Thompson not by Dean; I remember Mrs. Thompson looking up and saying, "why don't you tell him;" I will swear Dean did not say that; Dean was not there; I have a fair number of cases to attend to; a variety of cases, and I had at that time; I have no notes made at the time except notes of attendances; I have no note that Mrs. Thompson said this and not Dean.

Commission :—The scene in which Dean was lying on the bed when I went there occurred on the Wednesday; I am absolutely certain of that; I am absolutely positive that that scene occurred at night, and the only time I visited her at night was on the Wednesday night; I am as positive of that as I am of being here now; I am absolutely certain of it; I do not know whether Dean was in the room or on the bed on the Tuesday, but the scene I described as Dean fanning his wife lying on the bed, and the woman lying there with her eyes closed, pale, and I thought dying, that occurred on the Wednesday night. (Cross-examined): For a moment I thought the woman was dying, just as I saw her; I did say at the trial "I did not think her ever in a critical condition;" I walked into the room and for a moment thought she was dying; it was just a momentary impression, that was all; before I examined her or felt her pulse on the Wednesday night I thought that she was in a dying state; her pulse was firm and strong; I found she was not in a dying condition; it was only a momentary impression; it was an Inspector I think who examined me at the Police Court; I said with reference to the Tuesday morning, "I have no recollection of Dean being there;" I would not swear that he was not there, but I will swear that he was not on the bed; I only saw him once on the bed; I would not undertake to swear that he was not in the room on the Tuesday morning; he may have been in the room, but I will swear I have no recollection of it; I will not go beyond that; at the trial I was recalled and swore he was not in the room at all; to the best of my recollection I swore that he was not on the bed; I did not say at the trial he was not there at all on the Tuesday; as far as I can recollect I did say absolutely that he was not there at all; I swear I have no recollection; that is what I mean; I will not swear he was not in the room; if I had evidence to prove that he was there I would still swear that I did not recollect him; I won't swear whether the husband was or was not in the room when I first went up; I have no doubt whatever as to his statement that he was lying on the bed crying when the doctor came; it is not correct; he never said, "now tell the doctor all about this bottle you have been drinking out of with the white powder in it;" I believe he was not in the room when I came; most decidedly; when I came he went out of the room; I am not certain whether he was in the room or not; I know he was out of the room afterwards; he was not in the room when I had this conversation; I will swear positively he never said "now tell the doctor all about this bottle you have been drinking out of with the white powder in it;" he never said such a thing; if he had I would have taken a different course altogether.

Was Dean present?

Commission :—On the Tuesday morning I should have paid more attention if the man had said it; if the man had said, "Why don't you tell the doctor about drinking out of the bottle," I would have paid more attention; I had not given the bottle to the police, and I firmly believe I would never have given it; I believe I would not if the man had said it; I had no reason to doubt Mrs. Thompson when she said to Mrs. Dean, "Why don't you tell the doctor about the bottle?" it does matter who said it; most decidedly it would matter if the husband had said it; Dean was the suspect; Gail made me suspect Dean; I am pointing out the difference if the husband had told me such a thing; I did not believe Gail's suspicions.

A great difference if Dean had said it.

Police Court :—On Wednesday I went to the prisoner's wife in the morning, and in the evening prisoner left a message for me to come when I got home; this was on the 6th instant; Mrs. Dean was better when I saw her in the evening; on the Wednesday Mrs. Dean got better, and continued to do so.

March 6th (Wednesday). Mrs. Dean's condition.

Central Criminal Court :—She had been vomiting incessantly on the Wednesday; they said they had given her tea, it was contrary to my instructions, and the vomiting was so bad I had to feed her by the bowl; she was very weak indeed on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Commission :—I saw Mrs. Dean again on the Wednesday morning; the temperature was below normal; there was no rise of temperature through this illness; I took it several times.

Commission :—They sent for me on the Wednesday evening; Dean was present and Mrs. Seymour; I do not recollect anybody else being in the room; it would be about a quarter or half-past 11 o'clock at night; I put it down in my notes at a quarter past 11 that I saw her.

Evening visit: persons present.

Commission :—No vomit was shown to me on Wednesday evening; Mrs. Seymour showed me some vomit on the Wednesday morning; that was the first time; I heard her vomit on the Wednesday morning, but not on the Wednesday evening; on Wednesday morning Mrs. Seymour came downstairs with me, and while downstairs we heard Mrs. Dean vomit, and Mrs. Seymour said, "Why, Doctor, she is vomiting now." (Cross-examined): I had not been looking for vomit prior to receiving a report with reference to the syrup bottle; I think I asked for vomit on the Thursday morning, but I did not get any; I think that was between 11 and 1 o'clock; that was not the time I heard her vomiting; that was on Wednesday morning; I think she only vomited once; I think she was very much better on Thursday; I speak from memory; I did not get any of that vomit; I cannot say whether that was after I asked to have the vomit kept; I know I had a note that she only vomited once on Thursday; my deposition at the police court was read over to me [See evidence at Police Court, page 25]; that is the evidence that was read over to me; that is the evidence in chief; on one or two occasions I asked for vomit, but it was not procurable; I did not ask for vomit on the Monday; nor on the Tuesday; I read that from my notes; I asked for it once, but I cannot recollect the time; it was in the morning; I only visited her once on the Tuesday; there is no doubt that must be right; I do not recollect asking for vomit on Wednesday; I believe it was on Wednesday that it was shown to me in a chamber, but I did not take it; I do not know how long it had been vomited; it was shown to me by Mrs. Seymour; I heard her vomiting just as I was going away after I had seen her; I don't remember asking for vomit on Thursday; it would have been no good taking it then; you would not have any arsenic in the stomach on the Wednesday, and, probably, not on Tuesday; I read from my notes that I did ask for it on Tuesday.

Vomit.

Commission :—Mrs. Seymour was present as far as I can recollect, no one else on the Wednesday morning; it was on that morning that I thrashed the matter out; I asked them what their suspicions were aroused by, or why they had any suspicion at all of any poison; and I then explained the occurrence of Gail bringing the bottle to me; they then referred to the time when they were sick after the confinement; they they mentioned the occurrence of some beef-tea they had both taken, and also the occurrence of some groats they had taken; and they also asked me if I had ordered a powder to be put in the medicine, and I said that I had not ordered any powder—that to the best of my knowledge I had not; and I told them that I would inquire to be quite sure; I say this because I was rather uncertain whether I ordered a calomel powder on the Monday night; I said, “Do not say anything about this matter till I see you again.” I went to Guise, the chemist, and said, “Did I order a calomel powder on Monday night, or any powder, for Mrs. Dean?” and Guise looked up his book and said, “No, you did not doctor;” it was on the Wednesday that this conversation occurred.

Evening Dean
was lying on bed.

Commission:—Wednesday evening was the occasion absolutely that Dean was lying on the bed; it was at night-time before he had gone to work; that I swear to.

Conversation
with Dean re
lemon syrup.

Police Court:—On the 6th instant I had a conversation with the prisoner; I spoke about the bottle and the charge of poisoning; prisoner asked me to take any steps about the poison, and to try and find out how it was administered; a man named Gail brought the bottle “Dean No. 1” to me on the 7th instant.

Central Criminal Court:—Prisoner denied all knowledge of poison; he asked me to find out whether there was any poison in the bottle of syrup and who put it in; he said they had accused him of poisoning his wife, and he could not stand that sort of thing; prisoner was very excitable, asking me to come at once.

Dean did not speak of syrup bottle.

Central Criminal Court (in reply):—On Wednesday night Dean was crying when I visited her late, and he was on the bed; but there was no such conversation before me about the bottle.

Conversation
with Dean re
syrup bottle.

Commission:—On Wednesday night I had this conversation with Dean, how it occurred I am not quite clear; Dean asked me or I spoke to him about this poisoning business; as far as I can recollect I said, “What is this about this poisoning; all this about putting something in a bottle, Dean; what is it?” And he said, “Oh, doctor they have accused me—that fellow next door accused me—of putting poison in the bottle; he has openly accused me of putting poison in the bottle.” I said, “This is a very very serious charge;” and I said, “What is the meaning of it, did you put it in,” or something like that, and he said, “No, doctor; have you tested the contents of the bottle?” I said, “No, I have not; it is in the hands of the police; they have it; it is out of my power now.” He said, “I want you to find out what is in that bottle, and who put it there; do your best,” or words to that effect. He seemed very sincere, and very anxious to have the thing discovered; he was very demonstrative about it. He said, “Find out what is in the bottle,” or words to that effect; as far as I can judge, he was absolutely earnest and sincere in that matter; he spoke earnestly, and at that time I was more than ever convinced that he was innocent; I was certain; I think Dean came down with me on that night, and this conversation occurred in the front room, just at the door; there was nothing about lime water and milk on the Wednesday night; my conversation was limited to the subject of the lemon syrup bottle.

Dean first mentioned poison.

Commission:—The first time Dean mentioned poisoning to me was on the Wednesday evening; I was astonished that he knew anything about it; I told the woman not to say a word about it, as we did not know what was in it; I said to them, “Don’t go making any accusations against the man”; I had not heard from the police what was in the bottle, and I thought it was a kick up about nothing.

Interrogated
Dean re powder
in medicine.

Police Court:—Mrs. Dean and her mother on Thursday, 7th instant, at Mrs. Dean’s house, had a conversation with me about a powder; I went down stairs and woke up the prisoner and brought him to the room; I said to the prisoner, “Did you put a powder in the medicine on the Monday when you gave it to your wife? Your wife accused you of doing so;” prisoner replied, “You know I did not; no powder was to be taken with the medicine.” (Cross-examined): I don’t remember anyone saying, “Dr. Newmarch ordered a powder to be put in the medicine,” but Mrs. Dean did state to me that she thought a powder was to go with the medicine the same as the first; I don’t remember the conversation about Mrs. Dean saying to prisoner that the doctor had ordered a powder to be put in the medicine.

Central Criminal Court:—On the Wednesday morning I was told something by the wife; I went down and woke prisoner up, and asked him to come upstairs; I said, “What is this about the powder that they state you put in the medicine?” He turned to his wife and said, “You know I did not put the powder in;” she said, “You know you did!” the man was half asleep, and did not seem to know what he was saying; I thought he was intoxicated: he spoke in such a funny way; I did not order any powder to be put into the medicine; arsenic is white; it would first float on the top of the medicine when put in in round globules like little pills; it would give a milky appearance if there was enough of it stirred up; the same if put into tea; hot tea would dissolve it sooner. (Cross-examined): If the medicine be put in a glass having lime water and milk it would discolour the medicine: I did not hear her say, “You told me the doctor ordered the powder”; I do not remember it. (Re-examined): If she swears she said, “You told me the doctor ordered it” I won’t contradict her; there was an altercation at the time; not suspecting poison, I did not pay particular attention to what they said to each other; he never gave me any explanation of the medicine looking milky; I never heard of it before to-day; lime water is colourless, and has no white powder in it. In reply: On Wednesday night I said, “What about this bottle and this charge of poisoning against you?” I said, “this is a most serious charge,” and asked him what foundation there was for it; he said, “I know nothing about it; take any steps you can to discover the poison and who put it there”; this was on the Wednesday night; I let him know distinctly that he was charged with putting poison into the bottle.

Commission:—I do not remember Mrs. Dean saying, “You told me the doctor ordered it”; Dean denied it absolutely, but he was speaking in such a peculiar way that I cut the conversation short; I thought he was drunk; I did say at the trial, “I did not pay particular attention to what they said to each other”; it was not till Thursday afternoon that I knew about the poison in the bottle of lemon syrup.

Dean not interviewed

Commission:—I did not have any interview with Dean on that Wednesday; that is a mistake; I described it at the trial as Wednesday, and in the depositions as Thursday; the depositions are right; it was on the 7th, Thursday; it was on Thursday that I had the interview with Dean; I asked Guise on Wednesday to be perfectly certain; I knew I had not ordered the powder on the Thursday; on the Thursday they showed me the powders; I know it was on the Wednesday I had this conversation about the powders, because I went on Wednesday to find out whether I had ordered the powder.

My visiting-book.

Commission:—I remember Mrs. Dean asking me on Wednesday if I directed any powders to be put in the medicine; I took my visiting-book and looked into it, and said, “No, I certainly did not”; I have not got the book here; my prescriptions and orders are not in that book; I only wanted to call back the exact know whether she described the pressing of the spoon and the holding of the tumbler as part and parcel of the same thing; I remember the pressing of the spoon and her describing the powder floating on the liquid, but whether it was in connection with the glass I do not know; I remember her describing about the powder floating about, and his pressing the spoon against it, but I do not remember the details about the porter and the medicine; I have not read her evidence.

Confusion of days.
Conversation
with Dean.

Commission:—I remember at the trial swearing that it was on Wednesday I had a conversation with Dean about putting a powder in his wife's medicine; I know Dean at the trial said it was on Thursday; I thought I had already explained it; there was no conflict at all at the trial between Dean and me as to whether it was Wednesday or Thursday; I did swear it was Wednesday that I woke him up; I do not know what Dean said; I was there, but I never noticed the discrepancy. [For Dean's statement see page 290; for Dr. Newmarch's statement see page . . .] If the notes had been read over to me I would have corrected it; I thought at the time it was on the Wednesday; the dates are all jumbled up; I know that actually the discrepancy between me and Dean was made a matter of comment to the jury; I admit, so far as the evidence is concerned, Dean was right and I was wrong as to the day of the week; I have given the proper date at the Police Court; it was purely a lapse; I got bothered about whether it was Wednesday or Thursday at the trial, and if it had been read over to me I am absolutely certain I would have corrected it.

Urine.

Central Criminal Court:—I also got some of her urine and gave it to Chivers; I got the urine from Mrs. Seymour; took the first bottle on March 10th; the second I drew myself from her, which I gave to Chivers.

Commission:—I procured some urine on Sunday the 10th; I did not draw that urine off; it was given to me; it was on the 9th that I asked for it, and I asked her to pass it while I was there, and the answer I received from Mrs. Dean was that she had just passed her water; I said, "Let me have some water to test," and they gave it to me; on the Sunday I sent it up to the constable to try and get it analysed.

Mrs. Dean's
milk.

Central Criminal Court:—I got some milk from Mrs. Dean on the 12th; I did not examine it; I think traces of poison would be gone by then; it would last longer in the urine.

The baby.

Commission:—The baby was not weaned at my suggestion; I was not shown the baby on either Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday; I was told it had been ill and gone away; she told me that it was very ill on the Saturday, but I did not see it after the Tuesday morning; she said it had turned black in the face, or something to that effect; she distinctly told me that the baby was black in the face, that it had been very ill, and that afterwards it went away; I saw it at the house on the 13th March; I was still attending Mrs. Dean, and the baby had been brought back; that was the first time I saw it in the interval; it was then in a deplorable condition, emaciated, and apparently dying of marasmus—inanition; the baby is living now; I thought it was certain to die, and I consulted with my conferees as to what course I ought to take; I saw it every day for some days and it gradually recovered; I thought the child was going to die, and I wondered whether I should report it to the Coroner; I did not know what course to pursue, and I remember speaking to Dr. Clark about the matter; the condition of the baby was due to want of nourishment—bad nourishment, bad feeding.

Nightdress.

Central Criminal Court:—I took a night-gown from the place on Thursday; having heard the result of the analysis of the lemon-syrup on the 10th, I got a night-gown which I picked out from a lot of dirty clothes; I took it to the police, and gave it to Constable Chivers.

Commission:—On the 10th I got the night-dress; I got it and the urine on the same day; having omitted to obtain vomit or purge which would show the existence of a poison in the body, and my suspicions being aroused, it occurred to my mind that there might be some clothes, and then I asked questions about clothing, and took the night-dress out of the clothes-basket; until that time the question of clothes never occurred to me; it had never been mentioned to me, and I never heard about clothes until that time; I never mentioned the word night-dress to Mrs. Dean on Monday night, the 4th March; it never crossed my mind; I never referred to the night-dress, and it was never mentioned to me until the Sunday I took it; I knew the night-dress was soiled on the Monday; they never mentioned it to me; I saw the night-dress on the Monday evening; if she took that night-dress off soiled on the Monday morning that could not be the one I saw on the Monday evening, unless she put it on again; I talked about the night-dress on Sunday; I saw her on the Monday following that Sunday. (Dr. Jones: "Mrs. Dean said yesterday she had made a mistake—that it was not Monday, but on the following Sunday, in answer to a question put by me").

Took nightdress
Sunday 10th.

Commission:—It was on the 10th that I got it; and I saw that perhaps because I had a case before somewhat similar, and I had omitted to get any vomit or any evidence I could catch hold of to establish the poison in the woman's system, and it occurred to me that perhaps the clothes had not gone to the wash, and I asked Mrs. Seymour, "Have your clothes gone to the wash?" and she said "No." I said, "Have you washed Mrs. Dean's soiled linen? if not, I want to see it," and she took me into another room and turned out a basket. I picked up the nightgown myself and looked at it and said, "It is very similar to the one Mrs. Dean has on; is it hers?" I took it into the room and showed it to Mrs. Dean, and she recognised it and I took it away with me. I did not recognise whether it was inside out, or whether the buttons were on the inside or the outside; the nightgown was got at my suggestion—absolutely; not at Mrs. Seymour's suggestion; I picked it out myself; no one knew that I was going to ask for the night-dress; no one dreamt anything about it.

Confusion of
dress.

Commission:—I think it was on the Sunday I took the night-dress; I have the date in my book the 10th; the absolute date is on the paper the night-dress was wrapped up in; I had not these notes at the time I gave my evidence at the trial; I had some notes at the trial; these notes were taken off the old notes I had at the trial; I had a copy of these notes at the trial; I should have given exactly the same evidence then as now; the notes are not a complete copy; there are some additions here; I had a copy of them at the trial; of this part (indicating); I had not a copy of the part in reference to questions about arsenic and strychnine: as far as I know I had a copy of the part which shows I got the night-dress on Sunday; I can say that I had at the trial the notes which would show that I got the night-dress on the Sunday; I never swore that I took it from the house on Thursday; there are the depositions and other things to prove it is a mistake; it is an absolute mistake; the first day I mentioned the night-dress to the women, or that they mentioned the night-dress to me was on the day I procured it; that was Sunday, the 10th; up to that time I never heard anything about the night-dress; I am absolutely certain of that; it was certainly not mentioned to me on the Monday previous.

Commission:—

B. J. Newmarch.

Commission :—On the Thursday when I heard that arsenic was found in the bottle, I concluded that the case was one of arsenical poisoning ; I cast back my recollections of the accusation, and I thought there was not the shadow of a doubt that the woman had been poisoned with arsenic ; I have not the slightest doubt that it was a case of arsenical poisoning.

Diagnosis : arsenical poisoning.

Commission :—It was on the Thursday afternoon that I first knew of the poison ; the police communicated with me ; when I knew on the Thursday through the police there was poison that impressed the matter on my mind ; I made some notes then ; my mind was drawn clearly to it on the Thursday.

First knew of poison through the police.

Commission :—As far as I can judge not a very large dose of arsenic was taken, but a poisonous dose ; when arsenic is taken in large doses there is a good deal of vomiting ; it is the amount of absorption of the poison that does the injury ; a poisonous dose was absorbed—not the amount taken, but amount absorbed ; of course, with the vomiting anything more that might have been taken was thrown off.

A poisonous dose.

Commission :—While I was attending Mrs. Dean I did not notice any symptoms of strychnine poisoning whatever.

Strychnine poisoning.

Commission :—During Mrs. Dean's illness I did not at any time observe any signs of alcoholism, syphilis, or lead poisoning—nothing of the kind.

No other cause.

Commission :—I first noticed symptoms of peripheral neuritis from which Mrs. Dean is said to have suffered when she came to me at the hospital ; Dr. Rennie asked me at the trial the second or third day—the third day, I think—when she was recalled ; passing down the court Dr. Rennie said to me, "Has she any nervous symptoms or peripheral neuritis?" I said, "No"; he said, "She walks rather peculiarly," and then I noticed her gait, which was distinctly peculiar ; I heard the day before she was admitted into the hospital, which turned out to be a rather exaggerated account, that she was lying paralysed, without medical attendance, and none to look after her, in what I knew to be a wretched place in Riley-street, and out of compassion I made out an order for a bed at the North Shore Hospital ; it was out of pure compassion I did this, and nothing else, as I heard that she was in an absolutely paralysed condition ; I examined her carefully in the hospital ; I will read my notes of the case. [See Minutes of Evidence, pages 255-6.]

Peripheral neuritis.

Police Court :—Arsenic is tasteless ; I do not consider the bitter taste in the syrup would be caused by arsenic ; if strychnine was in the liquid it would be bitter.

Arsenic and strychnine.

Central Criminal Court :—There is no taste in arsenic ; it would be tasteless in tea ; a very small quantity of strychnine in the lemon syrup would make it bitter ; the taking strychnine would the better enable her to go about.

Central Criminal Court :—Arsenic will continue in the system for some time, that is why I got Mrs. Dean's urine ; it will disappear in three or four days after an ordinary medical dose ; finding it at the end of six days would indicate a large dose ; the symptoms described would arise from large doses, not small constant doses.

Arsenic in the system.

Central Criminal Court :—I have experimented on myself for the purpose of this case by taking arsenic, and seeing how long it would remain in the urine. I took one-tenth, one-sixth, and one-fifth of a grain in divided doses,—one-half to 2 grains are poisonous doses. I then handed samples to the Government Analyst ; I took it on Friday, 29th, 30th, and 31st March ; I gave them on 31st, 1st, and 2nd April ; I made a rough analysis myself, and found it after the ordinary medical doses before I sent it. (Cross-examined) : A person in ordinary health could not take twice the dose I could ; a man may lose his life with half of what I took ; I think a good many might take half a grain with safety ; the bottle of urine that Hamlet got last was mine.

Experimented on myself.

Commission :—I made some experiments upon myself ; what I am reported to have said at the Central Criminal Court in cross-examination is absurd ; it ought to be, "Take twice the dose I did" ; in the sentence, "A man may lose his life with half of what I took," I remember distinctly stating, "if repeated," and that has been left out ; I mean, if he kept on taking it in repeated doses.

Central Criminal Court (re-examined) :—A person may take a fatal dose of arsenic and vomit enough to save his life, and you would still find traces of it in his system ; it passes from the system rapidly.

Arsenic and vomiting.

Central Criminal Court :—Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic, and then took strychnine, it would be an antidote to it ; arsenic deadens the pulse, but strychnine would quicken it ; on the Monday night her pulse was fairly strong ; strychnine would have a bitter taste, and supposing she had taken some, it would account for her having a strong pulse, supposing she had been suffering from arsenical poisoning.

Strychnine an antidote to arsenic.

Police Court :—I first saw the bottle marked "Dean No. 1" on the 4th March ; I received it from Mr. Gail ; I sealed it and handed it to the police ; the powders marked "Dean No. 2" I received from Mrs. Dean on the 7th March ; I sealed and handed them to Inspector Cotter on the same day I received them ; they were wrapped in a paper with the words on it "as before" ; the bottle, "Dean No. 3," I also received from Mrs. Dean, and handed to Constable Chivers on the 7th March ; the bottle, "Dean No. 4," was given to me by Mrs. Dean as a bottle containing urine ; I gave it to Chivers on the 7th instant ; I received the night-dress produced from Mrs. Dean ; I took it out of a back room ; it contains stains ; I gave it to Constable Chivers ; I saw Mrs. Dean wearing a night-dress like the one produced.

Commission.—May 31st and June 21st (pages 132-138, 141-142, 267-270).

Central Criminal Court :—I am a married woman, living at Miller-street, North Shore ; I live five minutes' walk from prisoner's ; I keep a shop.

History.

Commission :—I live pretty close to Dean's house in Miller-street, North Sydney ; I knew the Deans, and my daughter knew them also.

Central Criminal Court :—I sold Mrs. Dean the bottle of syrup (produced) on 25th February, 1895 ; I bought it from a Mr. Roberts with another ; I had not opened it ; I used the other bottle ; it was all right ; I had no sickness after it, nor did I notice any bitter taste in it.

Sale of lemon-syrup.

Central Criminal Court :—Mrs. Dean brought me back the bottle on Saturday, 2nd March ; I tasted it ; it was bitter ; I just put it to my mouth, just wetting my lips.

March 2nd (Saturday). Mrs. Dean

Commission :—

Bessie Adye.

Commission:—I remember Mrs. Dean coming to my shop on Saturday, 2nd March, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon; she brought part of a bottle of lemon syrup with her; my daughter, Mrs. Walke, and myself, were present at the time; she asked me to taste the lemon syrup; she left the bottle on my dining-room table, and went to dress herself at her own house; she came back, but I was not there when she came back; I saw her again on that day, at my house, when she came back from the Shore; the baby was there when I came back; she left the baby; whether she brought her baby back I cannot say, but the baby was at my house when I returned; I was back at my house before she returned from town; she remained some time, and then went away. June 21st, Cross-examined:—When Mrs. Dean brought the lemon syrup to me on Saturday to taste, I was not a bit anxious about taking it in my mouth; I just tasted it; I did not drink it; she asked me to taste it; I do not know that I was anxious not to take much into my mouth; I was not told there was something wrong about it; she said there was something peculiar; that was not the reason I took care not to swallow much, or any at all; she said it had a queer taste to her; I knew that the lemon syrup that I drank was all right; I said that Mrs. Walke was either sick or retched after drinking some of the lemon syrup; there must have been something wrong about the lemon syrup that came from Dean's house; I thought there was something queer about it.

Suckled the baby.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean came first to my house about 2 o'clock, and went back to her house to dress herself; I went out, but was not at home when Mrs. Dean returned, but I found on my return Mrs. Dean's baby in my house; afterwards, Mrs. Dean came in and suckled the baby; I am quite sure of that; she suckled the baby about half-past 4 or 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Dean's condition.

Commission:—She said she had a bad headache, and I made her a cup of tea; she drank very little of the tea; she went home with the baby; I did not see her again that day; she appeared to be quite well; as far as I could judge, quite well.

Did not speak to daughter.

Commission (cross-examined):—On Saturday, 2nd March, Mrs. Dean gave the baby the breast; I do not know how I came to notice a thing of that kind; I cannot give any reason why I noticed it; I will not admit that my daughter and I had been talking this matter over before we went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office; I will not admit that we had spoken to one another about it; I will swear that the first time we spoke about it was at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office; my daughter did not know what I was going to swear, and I did not know what my daughter was going to swear.

March 3rd (Sunday).

At request of Dean, saw his wife.

Central Criminal Court:—I saw prisoner at 10:30 on Sunday; he asked me to come and see his wife, as she was very ill; I went to her; she was in bed; she had a cup of tea by the bed, about half full; her face was flushed; we had a talk.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean again on the Sunday at her house; Mr. Dean came up and said that she was ill, and asked me would I come and see her; when I went she was in bed; it was about half-past 10 o'clock; I was there about a quarter of an hour or ten minutes—not many minutes. June 21st: She did not want me for anything; Mr. Dean asked me to come down and have a look at her, and see what I thought of her; she was sick, but she did not say she wanted me for anything; he did not say she wanted me for anything; he said she was very ill; he did not say what was the matter with her, but would I come down and see her; I said, "Very well," and I went down with him; I think he went into the kitchen when I went away to her; I might have stayed half an hour, or it might not be so long as that; I do not think it was; I cannot exactly remember. (Cross-examined): I have not put the thing as short as two minutes; I did not tell Sergeant Brennan I was only there for about two minutes; I did not say three or four minutes; I did tell the Sergeant I was there a very short time, but I did not say only a few minutes; I went in, had some words about tea, took the baby, and left; I was there more than two or three minutes altogether; that was all that took place—the few words about the tea, and then I took the baby away.

Mrs. Dean's condition. First visit.

Asked me to taste some tea.

Commission:—She did not look ill when she was in bed; she said she had a very bad headache; that was all she complained of.

Commission:—While I was in the house on that Sunday she had a cup of tea and some toast beside the bed; she said Mr. Dean had brought it up to her; I said, "Why don't you drink it, it will do your head good?" she said, "I did not like it; I got out of bed, and put part of it away;" she asked me to taste it; she did not say where she put it, nor what she put it in; she did not point out a tumbler under the chest of drawers; the cup was about half full; she told me that she did not like it; that she got out of bed, and put part of it away, but did not tell me where she put it; she asked me to taste it, and I tasted it; I have good taste. June 21st, Cross-examined: Mrs. Dean said on Sunday morning "I do not like it"; she did not say "this tea"; I do not know whether she had any fault to find with this tea; she did not say; I do not understand why she asked me to taste it; she asked me, and I tasted it; I can give no reason why she should ask me to taste that particular cup of tea; she made no complaint about that tea in particular; she merely asked me to taste it; she did not find fault with that cup of tea in any way; I did not say that she said she did not like that cup of tea; I do not remember being asked, "When she asked you to taste the tea, did she say why she wished you to taste it?" and my saying, "She said she didn't like it"—the cup of tea; I think that there must be a mistake; she did not say, "taste it"; it is true what Mrs. Dean has stated that I tasted the tea, and that I said it was all right; I noticed nothing whatever wrong with it.

Could detect nothing wrong.

Commission:—I detected nothing wrong with the tea, and I told her so; I said, "Why did you not drink it?" and she said, "Because I do not like it"; I said, "Oh, that is all right, why don't you drink it?" I tasted it; I took a mouthful of it; I did not see any cream of any kind or any white stuff round the edges—nothing white at all; I said it was all right; the tea had no taste foreign to it whatever; I took a good mouthful of it, and I swallowed it; I was not ill; I am quite sure of that.

Was not suspicious.

Commission:—June 21st (cross-examination):—When Mrs. Dean asked me to taste this tea I still remembered the lemon syrup occurrence of the previous day; I remembered Mrs. Walke being sick also on tasting it; that did not make me think that possibly there might be something wrong with it before I tasted it; I had no suspicion, although I remembered the lemon syrup on the previous day, and Mrs. Dean not liking the taste; I did not say, on the following Friday, that I was very wise in telling Mrs. Dean not to drink that tea on the Sunday; I did not have a conversation there; I was at the house on the night of Dean's arrest; Mrs. Seymour came up for me to come down and see Mrs. Dean; there was not a conversation about these matters then; there was no reference to anything at all, although Dean had just been arrested a short time before; Mrs. Dean did not speak to me about anything that had happened—nor Mrs. Seymour, nor anybody; I did not mention the fact of her husband being arrested; the fact of Dean being arrested was not discussed by anybody in the room; it was only talk about herself; I first heard Dean was arrested in my own house, when Mrs. Seymour came up for me; I never said a word to Mrs. Dean about this fact in her house; I was only there a few moments; no reference was made to anything of the kind; I sat by the side of the bed for two or three minutes, spoke to Mrs. Dean, and went away again; I did not know he was going to be arrested; I was surprised to hear it; on my oath, I did not discuss this matter with Mrs. Dean at her bedside that night; not a single soul in the room discussed it; no reference was made to it at all; Mrs. Dean did not want any help; I was brought down, I suppose, just to see her—that is all.

was

Commission:—I remember hearing that Mrs. Dean had sworn at the trial that her husband offered her some tea, and that in the tea there were white lumps floating about, and that her husband said they were cream; I cannot say whether I heard about that at the Police Court at North Shore; I cannot remember; I am quite sure she never pointed out to me any tea in a tumbler under the chest of drawers; there was no bad taste in the tea I drank; none whatever; the cup when given to me was about half full; there was milk and sugar in the tea; I think it was before the trial at Darlinghurst that I heard that Mrs. Dean swore that she noticed something floating like lumps in this tea; I did not give the evidence that I have given to-day at the trial at Darlinghurst, because I was not asked; I did not think of it; I did not remember what I heard about those lumps clinging to the side of the saucer; I did not know that Dean poured some of the tea into a saucer and offered it to her.

Mrs. Dean's evidence as to white lumps.

Commission:—I remember being examined this morning, and being pressed as to why I did not make some statement about tasting the tea at Darlinghurst; I said at the time that I was not asked about it; that is my explanation; while at Darlinghurst Court-house some one called me and asked me if I had tasted the tea; I think my daughter and Mrs. Walke were standing by my side when that question was asked; I think that was the gentleman (pointing to Mr. Wade) who asked me the question; I think it was in the passage at the Court-house that he asked me the question; it was when he was going to lunch; he asked me if I had tasted the tea, and I said "Yes"; he asked me what it tasted like, and I said, "I did not notice that it tasted different to any other tea"; he asked me whether Mrs. Dean told me where she put the tea; I said, "She said she had put part of it away, but she did not say where she had put it, neither what she had put it in"; this conversation took place in the passage at Darlinghurst, as I was going to lunch; I had not given my evidence at the time; Mrs. Dean did not tell me where she had put the tea; I did not ask her; when she asked me to taste the tea she said she did not like it, and I said to her, "Why do you not drink the tea? it will do you good"; she said she did not like the tea; she said she was thirsty; she told me she had put some of it away, but she gave me no reason; I did not ask her for any reason; then she asked me to taste it; I cannot tell why she asked me to taste it when she did not like the tea herself. (Cross-examined): As a matter of fact, I did not go away to make her some fresh tea; not then, not shortly afterwards; I got her a cup of tea, and gave it to her; she said she was very thirsty, and I advised her to drink the tea; I did not make the tea; I got it for her, and she drank some of it; I did not ask her where she put part of it; she did not tell me where she had put part of it away; she simply told me she did not like the tea; I did not tell Mr. Wade in the passage I spoke of that I had not tasted the tea; on my oath I did not tell him that I had not tasted the tea; I do not know that I am going back on my former evidence; I did not tell Mr. Wade that I was in a hurry to get away from Dean's house, and that I had not tasted the tea; I will not admit that; Mr. Wade asked me if I tasted the tea, and I said I did; he then asked me what it tasted like, and I said like tea; I did not ask Mrs. Dean why she wanted to put part of the tea away, because I did not think of it; Mrs. Walke was standing in the passage at the time Mr. Wade was talking to me; she was very near to me; my daughter, Mrs. Walke, and I were all together at this time; I think something was said to Mrs. Walke about the lemon syrup; I cannot recollect what was said.

Mr. Wade and tea.

Commission:—I made a statement to the police before I went to the Court-house at Darlinghurst; they never asked me if I had tasted the tea; I made a statement of my evidence, which I subsequently swore to before going to Darlinghurst; I answered the questions the police asked me; it was before the trial; I cannot say how many days.

Police and tea.

Commission:—June 21st.—Three cups of tea were made in the building; Mr. Hamlet, Government Analyst, at the request of the Commissioners, poured out 6 ounces of tea in each cup, and placed one-fifteenth of a grain of strychnine in solution in two of the cups, leaving the third cup untouched; sugar and milk were added to each cup.

Experiment.

Witness handed cup of tea containing no strychnine:—I taste nothing wrong with that; it tastes like the tea I tasted that Sunday morning in Dean's house. (Witness handed cup of tea containing strychnine):—There is something different in that from the other cup; the tea I tasted on Sunday morning, 3rd March, was like the first cup of tea, not like this; I do not like it; the tea I tasted on the Sunday morning was nothing like the tea I have just tasted; I am a pretty good judge of tea; there was a peculiar taste about that second cup of tea; it was very bitter; I did not notice a taste like that after the tea on the Sunday morning.

Central Criminal Court:—On Sunday I took the baby away home with me.

Took baby home.

Commission:—While I was with Mrs. Dean the baby was lying on the bed crying; I took the baby away; I said, "I will take the baby away and make it comfortable;" when I had made it comfortable I took it back to Dean; that was about 11 o'clock on the Sunday.

Commission:—When I went back with the baby Mrs. Dean was lying in bed; when I saw her she did not appear to be ill; she appeared to be just the same as when I left; she looked just the same; she had a colour in her face; she did not appear at all different to what I was accustomed to see her; she appeared about the same as usual; she complained of a bad headache; I suggested to her to lie in bed all day, and that if she did so she would feel better to-morrow; this was on Sunday about 11 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Dean's condition—second visit.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean again on that Sunday about 4:30 in the afternoon; she was in bed then; she appeared much about the same; she said she was about the same when I asked her.

Third visit.

Commission:—When I saw Mrs. Dean on Sunday, March 3rd, she told me about some porter; she said that her husband poured her out some porter and that it was sour, and that he threw it away because it was sour; she said she had not drunk any of it because it was sour; she said nothing about a powder in the bottom of the glass; nothing whatever.

Porter incident?

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean on Monday morning, March 4th, about 11 o'clock; she came to my shop for a bottle of soda-water; I did not have any; I said, "The man will be here soon, and when he comes I will send it down to you"; I sent four bottles of soda-water down by the little girl next door Mrs. Dean stayed about ten minutes; I did not see her again on the Monday. (Cross-examination): My daughter Ethel was in the shop; Mrs. Dean was standing in the shop waiting for the soda.

Mrs. Dean's condition

Commission:—When Mrs. Dean came for the soda-water I remember her saying she felt faint, and I said to her, "Lie down on the sofa, it might pass away"; she lay down on the sofa for a minute or two and then got up and went away home. (Cross-examined): She said she had a pain, and I said to her she had better lie down; she lay down on my sofa in the kitchen. June 21st: There did not seem to be much the matter with her then; she was very flushed; she said she had a headache; she said she felt faint; she she looked a bit pale; she said she felt faint coming up the street, and when she was going away she said she felt faint; I said, "Lie down a moment, and it may pass away"; she did lie down on the sofa; she looked a little pale then. (Cross-examined): Mrs. Dean only came to ask for some sodawater; I told her I had not got any; there was no occasion for her to stay; she was not lying down during the whole of the time she was at my place; she was only lying down for a few minutes; she was only there a few minutes; she was not lying down during the whole of that time; she walked in and walked out again; she said she felt faint; what time she did spend at my place was owing to the fact that she felt faint and laid down for a few moments: as soon as she was able to get up she got up and went away; she did not complain of a pain; not a word about it; she said she felt faint; I am quite sure that she never complained of having any pain; I think it is a mistake that I said she had a pain; I said she said she felt faint.

Nothing said of vomiting or purging.

Commission, June 21st:—Mrs. Dean did not tell me anything about vomiting or purging when she came to my shop on Monday morning, about 11 o'clock; she did not tell me then whether she had been vomiting or purging; she said she felt very ill, that she felt faint coming out; she came for some soda-water; she did not say a word about vomiting or purging that morning; she stayed a few minutes—about ten minutes or a quarter of an hour; she was not sick—to vomit—while she was there; she was not ill in the bowels. [Letter from Sir Joseph Abbott vouching for Mrs. Adye's respectability handed to President.]

The kitchen the dining-room.

Commission, Cross-examined:—I said Mrs. Dean felt faint, and I told her to lie down on the sofa in my dining-room; I said during my examination the sofa in the kitchen; well, it is all the same, the kitchen is the dining-room. June 21st, cross-examined:—The kitchen in my house is at the back; there are two rooms in front—the front room and the back room; the front room is a small room; I do not think it is used for anything; it is not empty; it has furniture in it; it is used for a sitting room; we have our meals in the dining-room; that is the middle room, between the front room and the kitchen; they are two distinct rooms; I swore during my examination that the dining-room and kitchen were both the same room, and at first said Mrs. Dean was lying on the sofa in the kitchen; sometimes we call it the kitchen, and sometimes the dining-room; I said a moment ago that the dining-room and the kitchen were distinct rooms; I do not remember saying they were both the same room.

Did not speak to daughter.

Commission, cross-examined:—I will swear that my daughter and I have never spoken about Mrs. Dean's visit for the soda-water; the first time I mentioned it was at Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office; I did not tell the gentleman who spoke to me here about it; he only asked me to go to Crick and Meagher's office; he did not tell me what I was going there to prove; the first time my daughter and I mentioned this matter was at Crick and Meagher's office; we mentioned it there for the first time; I am quite sure it occurred on Monday, March 4th; nothing particular makes me remember that date so well; I had no suspicion that anything was wrong at that time.

Dean brought some sago.

Commission:—Dean brought some sago to me about 12 o'clock on Monday, and asked me to make it for his wife; I made it; I sent it down by my daughter between 12 and 1 o'clock; I did not keep it any length of time; I made it directly he brought it, and said that when my daughter came in I would send it down to Mrs. Dean; my daughter came in a few minutes afterwards, and I sent her down with it.

Did not tell Dean of wife's illness.

Commission:—When Dean brought the sago I never told him about his wife being ill; I will not admit that Mrs. Dean, his wife, was never in my place on the Monday; I never told the husband; I do not know any reason for remembering it. (Cross-examined): I remember seeing Dean about 12 o'clock on Monday; I do not know where his wife was then; she was not at my place; she had been there; I did not tell Dean that she had been to my place; although I knew she was unwell and lay down on my sofa, I did not tell Dean; I did not tell him because I did not think of it; I thought there was no necessity; she stayed a few minutes only and then got better and went away; she went away a few minutes after 11 o'clock, and her husband came to my house about 12 o'clock; I did not tell him a word about her illness, and her having to lie down on my sofa, because I did not think about it.

Dean only a customer.

Commission:—Dean had not been a friend of my husband's; he might know him; he has been to my house only as a customer.

March 5th

(Tuesday).

Did not see Mrs. Dean.

Commission: I did not see Mrs. Dean again on the Tuesday.

Baby at my place all day.

Commission: My daughter went down to Mrs. Dean's on Tuesday morning and brought the baby back with her, and I had it at my place all day.

Mrs. Seymour came for baby. "May's breasts hard."

Commission: Mrs. Seymour came to my shop about half-past 5 in the afternoon on Tuesday; she came after the baby; she said she had come to take it home and give it a drink; that May's breasts were very hard, and she wanted the baby to have a drink; she said, "It must come and have a drink; we don't want her to get in the family way again;" that she did not want the milk to dry up; Mrs. Seymour said that to me at half-past 5 on the Tuesday.

Condition of baby.

Commission: The baby was at my house all day on Tuesday; I did not observe anything about the baby; it was not sick; it was not purged; nothing of that kind; the baby appeared to me to be quite well.

March 6th

(Wednesday).

Visited Mrs. Dean. Mrs. Seymour present.

Arrest of Dean.

Commission: I saw Mrs. Dean on the Wednesday; I went down to ask how she was at about half-past 10 o'clock; Mrs. Dean was in bed when I was there; Mrs. Seymour was there also when I went down; I am sure she was there; that was the last time I saw Mrs. Dean before Dean's arrest.

Commission:—I remember Dean being arrested, and the circumstances—the fact of his being arrested; it was either on Thursday or Friday; it was within a day or two of his arrest that I saw him for the last time; it was all in that week.

No particular interest in the case.

Commission (cross-examined):—I was at the Police Court; I did not give evidence at North Shore; I was not called; I was summoned to appear there, but not called; I was not in the court; I read the papers sometimes; I did not take a particular interest in this matter; I took no particular interest in this charge, charge, although it was a charge against a man for having poisoned his wife; my daughter was a witness at the Police Court and at the trial, and yet I took no particular interest in this matter; I did not say one word at the trial, or at the Police Court, of what I am telling the Commission to-day; I had not time to read the papers because I had my duties to attend to; we are news agents; sometimes I may take up a paper, but not very often; sometimes I read the reports of this trial, but not very often; I might read a little of it.

Commission (cross-examined): The police saw me as to all the information I could give on this matter; Sergeant Brennan saw me; I told Sergeant Brennan I sipped the tea; I cannot say whether I told him about Mrs. Dean being at my house on the Monday; I do not think I did; the Sergeant only saw me once; I cannot remember whether he saw me three or four times.

Police and information.

Commission:—I made a statement to Mr. Meagher yesterday, at his office, about 3 o'clock; my daughter and I went together to Mr. Meagher's office; we both gave statements there. (Cross-examined): Some gentleman asked me to go to Crick & Meagher's; I don't know his name; he asked me outside this room yesterday; when he asked me I went; he asked me to go and sign a paper in Mr. Meagher's office; I made a statement, and they wrote something down; I did not know what I was going there for, and my daughter did not know either; the young gentleman at the corner of the table here asked me questions; this young gentleman, my daughter, and myself were present; we were in the same room; my daughter was asked first; I heard what my daughter said; when she finished, I was asked questions; that was the first time I had been there, and my daughter too; my daughter and I did not talk over what we were going for; we had no conversation; the first time we made a statement in the presence of each other was yesterday.

Crick & Meagher.

Commission:—I remember Alderman Moodie coming to my place the night before last; he saw me and my daughter; he did not give us any directions; he never told me to go to Mr. Meagher's office—not that evening; he told me the next morning; but I did not know his name; I recognise him now; the night before last was the first time my attention was drawn to this matter. (Cross-examined): My daughter and myself were present when Mr. Moodie came to my house; he asked me a few questions; he asked me the very things I have come here to swear to-day; I did talk to this gentleman, although I have said I did not speak to any one; he was at my house ten minutes or a quarter of an hour; the conversation was about the evidence I am giving here now; Mr. Moodie was one of the committee acting in the interests of Dean.

Alderman Moodie.

Witness—Ethel Adye (a neighbour).

Police Court.—March 22nd, 1895 (page 28). Central Criminal Court.—April 4th, 1895 (page 12).

Commission.—May 31st, 1895 (pages 129–132, 140, 141).

Police Court:—I live with my father, at Miller-street, North Sydney; I know Mrs. Dean.

History.

Central Criminal Court:—I live with my parents; I know prisoner and his wife.

Commission:—My mother has a shop not many steps from where Dean lives; I am 19 years of age.

Commission:—I knew Mrs. Dean, just to come in for a chat, and I went to her house for a chat; I was often at Dean's house; about eight times altogether up to the time of Mrs. Dean's illness; Dean did not come to our house; only Mrs. Dean; from what I saw of Dean's house it was comfortable; it was a happy home; they were clean people.

The Deans.

Central Criminal Court:—I was often at Dean's house; I have seen Dean nursing the baby several times; he seemed a very kind father, and seemed affectionate with his wife.

Dean a kind father.

Commission:—From my observation of Dean and his wife, I would say that Dean was a good husband; he appeared very kind; there was no ill-feeling that I saw; I remember after the baby was born; I have seen Dean nursing the baby; I thought he was a kind father; he appeared to be very fond of the baby; I cannot say whether my father and Dean were very intimate; Dean might have come in for a box of tacks, but he was never inside my house; I do not know whether my father saw Mr. Meagher before this case began.

Police Court:—On the 25th February, Mrs. Dean bought a bottle of lemon-syrup from our shop; I went home with Mrs. Dean; I had a drink from the bottle; it tasted sweet, and like other syrup; it did me no harm.

Purchase of lemon-syrup.

Central Criminal Court:—I remember prisoner's wife buying a bottle of lemon-syrup on the 25th February; she took it home; I saw her again in the evening at her home; I saw the bottle there; I saw her uncork it, and I had a drink of it with water; it tasted sweet like ordinary lemon-syrup; we had some at home the next day out of another bottle; it tasted the same.

Police Court:—Mrs. Dean brought the bottle back to the store; I was there when the bottle was brought back.

March 2nd (Saturday).

Central Criminal Court:—I saw Mrs. Dean on the Saturday at our house; the syrup had no ill effect on me.

Mrs. Dean's visit with syrup bottle.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean on Saturday, March 2nd, about 2 o'clock; she came to my house; she had a syrup bottle with her; she had nothing else; she came through our house and took the bottle to my mother; she asked my mother to taste it; she left the bottle with my mother, Mrs. Walke, and myself, and went back to her home and got her baby; she was away about five or ten minutes, and came back with the baby; she came into our house with the baby, and gave the baby to me to mind; she did not remain in the house many minutes; she did not suckle the baby then; she went away alone with the syrup bottle, and came back at 4 or 5 o'clock; I had charge of the baby all that time.

Commission:—When Mrs. Dean came back to our house on Saturday afternoon at 4 or 5 o'clock she suckled the baby; in my presence; I am quite sure of that; she remained about a quarter or half an hour suckling the baby; then she left to go home.

Suckled the baby.

Commission:—I was at the court at Darlinghurst; my mother was there too; I heard my mother asked some question whilst she was outside the court; it was in the passage way; I fancy it was Mr. Wado who asked the question; that is the gentleman sitting near Sir Julian Salemons; he asked mother if she tasted the tea alongside the bed in Mrs. Dean's on the Sunday; my mother said "yes"; he also asked if Mrs. Dean told mother where she put the tea, and mother said "no"; my mother said Mrs. Dean did not tell her where she put the tea, nor what she put it in; he also asked mother what the tea was like, and she replied that it tasted all right. (Cross-examined): We had not been examined then; no one put this matter into my mind to mention it to-day; I did not state it this morning because I was not asked; I have not spoken to anybody about it since I was here this morning; I swear that Mr. Wade asked my mother if she had tasted that tea; my mother said she did, and that the tea was all right; we were both examined after that conversation in the passage at Darlinghurst; the conversation took place just at lunch-time; it was when Mr. Wade was going to his lunch; Mrs. Walke was there; there were no police officers there at the time; it is not a fact that we went to Mr. Wade; he asked us to stay back; I had never seen Mr. Wade before; I do not know how he knew us; we had not been in court; I had never spoken to Mr. Wade before; I did not know him before he spoke to me, but I knew his name after he had examined me; he had a black cloak and a wig on.

March 4th
(Monday).
Mrs. Dean's visit; soda-water.

Commission:—I next saw Mrs. Dean on the following Monday morning, about 11 o'clock; she came to our house; she had not the baby with her then; I am sure about that; she told me a man named Hans was minding her house; I do not know what Hans is; she remained about five or ten minutes; my mother and myself were there, no one else; she came for a bottle of soda-water; my mother hadn't any; mother said she would send it down later in the day; a little girl took the soda-water down. (Cross-examined): On my oath I will swear that Mrs. Dean was at our place on Monday, March 4th; I know that because it was two days after she bought the bottle of lemon-syrup; I did not make any note of it; I will not admit that Mrs. Dean was not at my house on the Monday; she was there at 11 o'clock; I remember this because I was going out at the time; I was getting dressed in the kitchen, doing my hair; that is the reason I remember it; I can give no other reason of any kind; it is not the truth that Mrs. Dean was never out of her house on that day; she was out of her house; she came and laid down on our sofa.

Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Commission:—When Mrs. Dean came on the Monday morning she laid down on our sofa for one or two minutes; the sofa was in the kitchen; my mother and I were there; not my father; Mrs. Dean said she felt faint; I did not give her anything; Mrs. Dean walked to our house on the Monday at 11 o'clock; she walked home again; before she went she said she felt faint, and mother told her to lie down on the sofa; she was not sick—not in my presence; she was at our place about five minutes.

How dressed.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean wore a loose wrapper; she had no hat; only a loose wrapper.

Have not spoken to mother about this matter.

Commission:—My mother is now in the witness-room outside; I have not spoken to mother about this matter since Monday, March 4th; we spoke about it at the time; not since; that is true; I will swear that my mother and I have never spoken since about Mrs. Dean being at our house on the Monday; my mother and I came here together; I do not know what my mother has come here to prove, and she does not know what I have come here to prove; my mother and I have never talked about this matter; I am living at home.

Visited Mrs.
Dean.
Sago.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean at 1 o'clock again on Monday at her home; she was in bed; I took some sago that Mr. Dean had brought up for mother to make for Mrs. Dean; my mother made it, and I took it back; Mr. Dean was at home; he came upstairs with a mutton chop and some bread; she said she could not eat the sago, and could not eat the mutton chop; Mr. Dean took it down stairs, and then I left; the sago was made when I came home from Sydney, and I took it down at 1 o'clock.

The baby.

Commission:—When I went to Mrs. Dean's with the sago at 1 o'clock the baby was down stairs; I did not see it on that occasion; Mr. Dean said it was down stairs.

March 5th
(Tuesday).
Visited Mrs.
Dean. Syringe
The baby.

Commission:—On Tuesday morning Mrs. Dean wanted me to go to Mrs. Lee's, "Brunswick Cottage," McMahon's Point, for a syringe; Mr. Walke, a man next door, was going that way, and said he would call.

Commission:—Mrs. Thompson was at Mrs. Dean's on Tuesday morning; she was washing the baby; I took charge of Mrs. Dean's baby all day on Tuesday at my home; I did not notice any signs of illness at all on the baby; the baby appeared to be quite well.

Mrs. Seymour
came for baby.
"May's breasts hard."

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Seymour on the afternoon of Tuesday, between 5 and 6 o'clock at my home; she came for the baby; the baby had been at my home all day; I had been looking after it; she said she wanted to take the baby home to have a drink, as May's breasts were very hard; she said something else. (President:—We know what it was; you need not repeat it.)

Police and information.

Commission:—I was examined at the trial; I did not give the evidence I have given to-day, because I was not asked; I did not tell it to the police because they did not ask me.

Crick and Meagher.

Commission:—I went yesterday to Crick and Meagher's office to make my statement; no question was asked me; I told him of my own free-will; I went with my mother; we came here first, and then went to Crick and Meagher's together; I swear that we have never spoken together about the evidence we were going to give; I never told my mother, and my mother never told me.

Witness—Bessie Walke (a neighbour).

History.

Police Court:—I am a married woman, living with my husband, Philip Walke, at North Sydney; I know Mrs. Dean.

Central Criminal Court:—I also know the Adyes.

Commission:—I live next door to Mrs. Adyes.

March 2nd
(Saturday).
Saw Mrs. Dean
at Mrs. Adye's with syrup
bottle.

Police Court:—I saw Mrs. Dean on the 2nd March, at Mrs. Adye's; she had a bottle of lemon syrup; I was there while Mrs. Dean went for the baby; no one put anything in the bottle while Mrs. Dean was away; I saw Mrs. Dean take the bottle away.

Central Criminal Court:—I saw Mrs. Dean on March 2nd, at Mrs. Adye's; she had a bottle of syrup with her; she went away and returned with the baby; she left the bottle whilst she was away, and when she returned she got the bottle and took it away; the bottle was exactly like that produced.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean on Saturday, March 2nd, at Mrs. Adye's shop a little after 2 o'clock; she brought a bottle with her; she then went home again and came back with her baby; she then went to Smith's, the chemist, I think; I was there when she came back. (Cross-examined): I know it was Saturday, March 2nd, that I saw Mrs. Dean, because I have been at the North Shore Court and Darlinghurst so often; when I saw Mrs. Dean she had a bottle of lemon-syrup with her; she had it in her hand; she asked Mrs. Adye to taste it, then Miss Adye, and then me; Mrs. Adye and I tasted it; Miss Adye did not.

Bitter taste in syrup made me
retch.

Police Court:—I tried the syrup; I just put a little to my lips; I was sick after it.

Central

Central Criminal Court:—I tasted the lemon-syrup; it was like gall; I was sick after it; I vomited.

Commission:—I tasted the lemon-syrup; it was like gall; it had a sweet bitter taste; I took a very little out of the mouth of the bottle; I did not pour it into a glass—just out of the bottle; I felt a little sick afterwards; I did not vomit; it was an empty retch; I strained, that was all.

Commission:—When Mrs. Dean came back from the chemist's on Saturday she gave the baby a drink from the breast; I am quite sure of that; the baby seemed all right; it was not sick or anything.

Commission:—I knew Mrs. Dean at Mrs. Adye's shop; she seemed all right in health. (Cross-examined): I remember this because I was at the shop; I did not suspect that a crime was going to be committed; I don't know what I paid these trifles so much attention for.

Commission:—Mr. Moodie asked me to come here to-day.

Commission (cross-examined):—I went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Adye and Miss Adye; I met them here, and we all went together; we went into a room; the young gentleman at the end of the table was present; Hans Bach was also present; we were all together; Miss Adye spoke first, then Mrs. Adye; I spoke last; I did not interrupt them, or suggest anything; I heard all they said, and was in the same room all the time; the three of us came back here afterwards; I did not know what I was going to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's for, nor what I was going to state; all I could state was what I could state at the court; I simply told what I knew and somebody wrote it down; I did not sign it; the same was done with Mrs. Adye and Miss Adye; he did not ask any questions of me; I did not hear him ask any questions of Mrs. Adye or Miss Adye; we all made our own statements; that is the truth, and I swear it.

Witness—Charles Gregory Wade (Crown Prosecutor.)

Commission.—June 5th, 1895 (pages 179, 181).

Commission:—I am a barrister-at-law, and with the Attorney-General was prosecuting for the Crown at Darlington about the tea: it is not true; it is true that I saw her in the passage or corridor at Darlington in company with Miss Adye and Mrs. Walke; I think Mrs. Walke spoke to me with regard to the lemon-syrup and the retching, and Mrs. Adye with regard to the tea; I am not quite positive of the actual words she used with regard to the tea; but I am absolutely positive that the impression she left on my mind was that there was nothing to suggest that the tea did agree with Mrs. Dean; whether she said she did not remember tasting the tea, or did not taste it, I am not sure; but I am absolutely positive she never told me the tea was sweet, or that it was all right; she did not say she tasted that tea; I had arranged with Sir Julian Salomons to call her for the defence to prove this particular point in our favour; I never heard her say one word in this direction until she made the statement in this room; the reply that Mrs. Adye gave to question 6853, in which she said that I asked her if she had tasted the tea, and that she said she did, and that I then asked her what it tasted like, and that she said "like tea," is not true; Mrs. Adye, Mrs. Walke, and Ethel Adye were quite close together, and I asked the police to tell Mrs. Adye and Mrs. Walke that I wanted to speak to them; I saw them in the passage, and Miss Adye came up; the first time I heard about her tasting the tea was in this room, and I was actually going to call her to show that it was true that the tea had been put into a tumbler under the chest of drawers, directly to show that the person to whom Mrs. Dean spoke about having put this tea under the drawers was Mrs. Adye, and that she could corroborate that fact—that it was not an afterthought. (Cross-examined): I think it will be seen from the Judge's notes that an objection was taken when I wanted to ask the question at the trial; I did ask for the nature of the conversation Mrs. Adye had with Mrs. Dean at the time, but Mr. Meagher objected; I do not recollect asking at the trial if Mrs. Dean pointed out anything at all about the tea that had been put away in the tumbler under the drawers; I do not see anything of it in the Judge's notes; I do not recollect asking Mrs. Adye whether Mrs. Dean pointed out anything to her about the tea; there is no mention of such a question in the Judge's notes; Mrs. Adye's statement in the Judge's notes is, "Dean asked me to come and see his wife, as she was very ill; I went to her; she was in bed; she had a cup of tea by the bed, about half a cup; her face was flushed; we had a talk; I took the baby away home;" that is the substance of what she said; but it will be seen that there is an important difference; she did say here that she tasted the tea, and that the tea was all right; but she certainly never mentioned that fact to me; I did not get the opportunity to ask her in the court whether the tea was right or wrong; the cup of tea is mentioned in the Judge's notes; I asked her to give the conversation between herself and Mrs. Dean, but the question was objected to by Mr. Meagher; I have Brennan's report about the Aydes.

Commission:—[See reports Minutes of Evidence, page 180.] The trial commenced on the 4th April, and lasted through the 5th and 6th; I had not Sergeant Sawtoll's report of the 28th March in my possession on the 4th April; I had not seen it at that time; I never saw it until after the trial; the report came in on the morning of the trial, and I was told the effect of it, which was that Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean were both bad characters; I saw the subsequent report, dated the 1st April; I suppose these two reports must have been in the possession of the police at the trial, one of them, at all events; but the trial was over before the date of the next report.

Commission (cross-examined):—I do not remember Mrs. Seymour being asked at the trial whether she had been convicted and her saying "Yes, thirty years ago"; that is not exactly the question; as far as I can recollect, the question was whether when she was in Melbourne she was convicted, and she said "Yes"; Mrs. Seymour said, according to the Judge's notes, "The charge against me in Melbourne was for stealing; a gentleman gave me a mantle, and I would not tell where I got it from, and took the charge myself; I was convicted and served a sentence;" I heard all this evidence given; I do not suppose the police in charge of the case were there too and heard the same evidence; I think there were three officers in charge of the case—Inspector Cotter, Sergeant Brennan, and Constable Chivers; I think Brennan was in court handing the bottles and other exhibits on the day previous; I did not read the report of the Judge's summing-up; not a word; in fact, I avoided doing so; I was not present during the summing-up.

Commission:—I think I asked Mrs. Weynton something at the Court-house; I know that Weynton came to me and implored me not to call him or his wife; I asked her what she knew about the case, and she replied that she knew but very little.

Police Court—Not examined. Central Criminal Court—Not examined. Commission.—May 30th and 31st, 1895 (pages 119-126).

- Allegory. Commission :—I lived, and still live, next door to where Dean lived, and at the time Dean lived there; my brother was Dean's landlord; he lives on one of the points of the Lane Cove River; I was looking after the house for my brother; George Dean was a tenant of my brother's; the key of the house was left at my place on my brother's behalf; when Mrs. Dean gave up the house the key was left with me for my brother; after this unfortunate affair she asked to be allowed to give the house up.
- Purchase of from Elliott
Brothers. Commission :—Sometime ago I obtained some poison for some purpose from Elliott Brothers; the poison was of a pink colour; I got the strychnine for a mangy dog; I know Mr. Thompson; he lives on the opposite side to Dean's; I remember saying to Mr. Thompson a couple of months before March last, "My trees ought to grow well, I have a dog buried there;" the dog was buried under the passion-fruit vine; it had been recently buried, within a few days of that conversation with Mr. Thompson.
- Date of purchase. Commission :—My sons got the poison from Elliott Brothers between fourteen and fifteen months ago, as near as I can tell; my wife thinks it was in the wardrobe about six months before I took it down from the shelf in the wardrobe; it is correct that I poisoned a dog on the same night as the poison was brought home; I daresay that was about four months before last Christmas; I did not say it was only bought in October; it was purchased in February of last year.
- Knew of Mrs.
Dean's illness. Commission :—I remember Mrs. Dean was ill; I heard of her being ill from the action of poison on Monday evening, from my wife; I did not know it was poison that Mrs. Dean had taken; I thought it was some acid out of a bottle; I did not hear what the poison was.
- March 6th
(Tuesday.) Commission :—On Tuesday morning I put the poison into the garden in a small phial; the strychnine was buried in the ground of my premises at about a quarter to 7 in the morning, as near as I can guess; I have never said it was buried at 6 o'clock; myself and my wife were the only persons present when the poison was buried; I dug up the ground; the poison before I buried it was on the top of a wardrobe in my bedroom; my wife said, "Alick, you ought to bury this now," and I did; it was simply done.
- Buried poison in garden. Commission :—We buried the strychnine because we did not know what was going to happen; my wife thought from what Mrs. Dean had said that the bottle had been taken to the doctor; Mrs. Seymour had told Mrs. Dean this; she was only in the house one night; Mrs. Dean did not know it on the previous night, but she knew it on the Tuesday morning; of course I did not know that the bottle had gone to the doctor's till the Tuesday morning.
- Why I buried it. Commission :—Mrs. Seymour was at Mrs. Dean's on the Monday night; she came late at night—about midnight; I saw her come; I went to the French window, and I heard her calling out, "Mary, Mary"; Mrs. Weynton told her that the door was open and to go in.
- Mrs. Seymour. Commission :—There was about an inch deep of strychnine in the bottle; it was a small pomade-bottle with a wide neck, 2 inches or 2½ inches high; the bottle was about half full.
- Quantity of strychnine in
bottle. Commission :—After I had buried the bottle on Tuesday morning I saw Dean; it was about a quarter to half-past 7 o'clock; he was coming along his yard leading his bicycle; I spoke to him; I said, "What is it about your wife taking some white stuff in some lemon-syrup;—how the devil can you expect the doctor to treat a case like this if he is working in the dark?—go and see about this immediately!" Dean said, "Poison! poison!" and then entered the house; those were the only two words that he uttered.
- Afterwards saw
Dean. Commission :—I said nothing to Dean about burying the poison.
- Said nothing to Dean about
burying poison. Commission :—I see now it was a foolish thing for me to bury the poison, but I did not wish to be mixed up in the case; it was my idea to bury it to clear myself and to be able to say we had no poison in the house; I did not wish to be mixed up in the case, so I did away with it; it was pink-coloured, and not white; the Act requires it to be coloured.
- It was foolish to bury it. Commission :—The poison before I buried it was on the top of a wardrobe in my bedroom; before that it had been left in the washhouse in my yard; I have not stated this before; this is the first time I am asked now (see deposition, Minutes of Evidence, page 120); when the poison was in the washhouse it was labelled "Poison."
- Where the poison was before
burial. Commission :—The poison was in the washhouse for about five months, on a lower shelf, away in the corner; the washhouse is quite open; there is no door to it; it is next to the kitchen; there were a lot of boxes in front of it; it was a place one would not dream of going to to look for anything; it is a fact that I missed this poison from the washhouse for I daresay about six months; there were a lot of odds and ends of all sorts in front of it; it was a cast-off corner, and I put it there so that it would not be taken any notice of; it was comparatively hidden; I missed it from the washhouse about the end of June last, as near as I can possibly tell; I missed it between three and four months after I first got it, as near as I can tell; presumably it was three or four months in the washhouse; it was an old shed; nobody would dream of looking for it there; nobody could get at it; anybody would have access to the shed; I did not notice whether anything around it was disturbed when I missed it; the only thing I missed was the bottle; when my wife took it away I noticed it had gone—on that occasion and then only; I did not know till my wife took it away who disturbed it; the bottle was corked and wrapped in a newspaper; I noticed on the morning I buried it that the paper on it was all covered with dust.
- Prison missed
from washhouse. Commission :—That poison was kept in a bottle for some considerable time; at the time the poison was in the washhouse I do not think the Deans were living next door to my house; they may or may not; I am not quite certain; the Deans came there between six and seven months before this unfortunate affair arose; they came, I think, somewhere about the previous August.
- Deans not living
next door then. Commission :—Dean's house is absolutely next door to mine; a paling fence divides the yards; it is nearly a new fence; there is not a back lane; it is an open paddock at the back; there is a back gate at the end of the yard; the gate is padlocked every night regularly; it is open in the daytime; the Deans have a gate similar to mine in every respect; they are not detached houses; they are twin houses, built in the terrace idea; there are only two houses; the yard fence runs right away from the middle of the houses.
- Position of Dean's house. Commission :—The strychnine was brought from Elliott Brothers, and used by me for the purpose for which it was brought, and it remained for some time in an outhouse; Mr. Dean has never been to my house;
- The Deans and the poison.

house; Mrs. Dean has been to the front door to ask my wife something about the baby when it was unwell; so far as I know none of the family were ever on my premises; so far as I know they knew nothing about the poison; even my boys did not know of it; they had a horror of that sort of thing; my wife found it in the washhouse, and took it from the washhouse upstairs to my bedroom as a matter of greater safety, and put it where it would not be touched; I asked her about it after I had missed it, perhaps a month or two afterwards; I asked her immediately when I missed it; she told me she had put it upstairs on the wardrobe; at the time she told me she had taken it away, I really think it was before the Deans came to live there; that is as far as my memory serves me; with the exception of being afraid of any possible question arising about my having this poison, there was no knowledge that I had been connected with it, except that of my wife's and my name being brought into it; that is all; nobody knew about it, except Johnson; nobody but myself and my wife knew that I had this poison; I buried it simply to keep mine and my wife's name out of it; I gave Johnson some of the poison months since, and he knew of its existence; it is since Christmas that my wife told me she had taken it up to the bedroom; it was not got till the end of February last year—fifteen months ago; I am under the impression that it remained three or four months in the shed before my wife took it away; that would make it about June last year, as far as my memory serves me; I got the poison in the afternoon, and buried the dog at night; I remember last Christmas; it was two months after June that I got the poison—I asked my wife.

Commission:—I know Mr. John Johnson; he lives three quarters of a mile from me; I knew him through going to the bridge and having a smoke with him; about May last, nine or ten months ago, he told me that his garden had been robbed; I told him that I would give him some poison to put on the vegetables, so that he could detect who was robbing him; I told him before I gave him the poison to put up a notice "Poison laid here," and saw that he did so; I sent him a small bottle containing strychnine; I labelled the bottle "strychnine" and "poison"; I wrote poison on it in large letters; I should think about a tablespoonful and a half of strychnine was in the bottle; it was part of the strychnine I had in the house; there was a good lot left in the bottle after I had given some to Mr. Johnson.

and poison.

Commission:—I made a statement to Sergeant Tindall on 25th April, 1895 (see Minutes of Evidence, page 120); I had forgotten that statement altogether, particularly about the poison being in the washhouse; I decidedly did not make any statement to Sergeants Brennan and Wearing; I did not tell Tindall that I had no poison in the house; Brennan did not ask me; I did not draw the distinction between poison being in the house and poison being in the garden; my wife was present when Tindall took the statement; I will swear that I never told Tindall that I had no poison in the house; I do not see how I could when it was in the garden; I know I did not tell him it was in the garden; I did not tell Tindall, because he was not there till after it was buried, and I did not know till after it was dug up; I made a mistake in my former statement; Brennan and Wearing did call at my house either on Wednesday or Thursday before the arrest of Dean; they saw me in the front room of my house; I made a statement to them; I have made a dozen different statements to both these men.

Statements to police. "No poison in the house."

Commission:—My wife's name is Catherine Weynton; her statement was taken between 12 and 2 in the day, when I was away from home; I do not know that my wife told the police that she had no poison in the house; I will swear that my wife or I never told the police that we had never had poison in the house.

Mrs. Weynton's
statement.
"No poison in the house."

Commission:—I did not know till a week or ten days afterwards that strychnine was one of the poisons supposed to have been used in this case; I heard on the Monday evening that there was some white stuff in the bottle; in burying this poison my wife and I put two and two together and thought there might be something wrong; I did not know what might accrue.

Put two and two together.

Commission:—I know the police dug up this poison after Dean was convicted; it was close on three weeks after the trial.

Poison dug up by police.

Commission:—I knew that Dean had been convicted, and of this agitation that was going on in his favour; I did not tell the police that this poison was buried in our garden, and had been in the washhouse, because it had nothing to do with it; this happened four months before Dean came near the place; I got the strychnine six months before this Dean matter turned up; for four months the strychnine was in my washhouse, next door to the yard where Dean lived, but it was not there four months during that time; during the time they were living there Mrs. Weynton had it on the top of a wardrobe in her bedroom; I did not think it was necessary to inform the police; I did not know that strychnine was going to appear in the case; I was at the Court when Dean was tried; I knew that at the trial it was stated that the poisons found were strychnine and arsenic; I knew that Dean was found guilty, and of this agitation; I did not tell the police that strychnine was buried in my garden, because it had nothing to do with it; this was a pink strychnine; I know that it did not leave mine or my wife's sight for six months before I buried it; I did not give this information to the police, because it had nothing to do with the case; I buried it because we did not want to be annoyed by the police as we were; this poison was upstairs in our bedroom for six months before Dean was there; it was planted in the garden on Tuesday—what has this to do with the case? this poison was in our bedroom during the time the Deans were there, and seeing that Mrs. Dean was poisoned with strychnine, I planted it in the garden on Tuesday, knowing that Dean had no strychnine at all—what had it to do with the case? I got up at a quarter to 7 and buried it, because I wished to say that we had no poison in the house.

Did not tell police, because it had nothing to do with the case.

Commission:—It seems my wife and I did tell the police we had no poison in the house; I drew the distinction between poison in the house and poison in the garden; decidedly; if I am in the house I cannot be in the garden; the police did not ask me if it was in the garden, therefore I did not tell them; I buried it in the garden so that I might tell them I did not have it in the house; that is the distinction I drew; I did tell them I hadn't it in the house; I did not want to let the police know that I had strychnine in the house or in the garden, because I did not want to be mixed up with the strychnine at all; it would make matters much worse for me; I do not see it might make it much worse for Dean if it had been known that strychnine was in my place; the "might" was on my side.

Drew distinction between poison in house and poison in garden.

Commission:—I remember Sergeant Brennan asking me whether I told Dean on the Tuesday morning before his arrest that his wife had taken poison; I told the sergeant my conversation; if I told him anything I told him that Dean came along the yard and I said, "Dean, what is it about your wife taking some white stuff in some lemon-syrup—how the devil can the doctor treat the case if he is working in the dark—you had better see about it immediately?" he then left me, and I have never seen him since; I am not quite positive what I said; the sergeant said to me, "I suppose you have no poison in your house."

house," and I said, "Oh, no"; I had no poison in the house; I must have been daft if I did know that I had buried it in the garden; I did not tell the sergeant that it was in the garden, because it had nothing to do with the case; according to your version, Sir Julian Salomons, it was quite untrue what I told the sergeant; when I told him it was not in the house, of course, I knew it was in the garden; I reckon I told the truth when I said it was not in the house.

Mrs. Dean and perjury.

Commission:—I do not think I mentioned to Mrs. Dean before the case came into Court at all that if she went on with this matter she might get seven years for perjury; I think I said punished—punished for perjury; I said that she would get into trouble; nothing about perjury or anything else; decidedly, I did not tell her that she might get seven years for perjury; I believe the conversation was before any proceedings whatever; I did not tell her she would have a very severe lawyer to face; I said she would have a very severe examination, and that she would get into trouble about those continuous paltry yarns—conversations that I had heard from one quarter and another; I first heard about these things after Dean was arrested; I was annoyed at having heard what I had; those paltry yarns made me annoyed, and I told her that she would get into trouble if she did not keep her tongue quiet; I spoke hastily—I did not mean committed for perjury; I meant simply for her to keep quiet, and not cast the ideas about that she was casting about; I can give no other explanation; I was annoyed at what she was saying about my wife and myself, and I spoke in a hurried way.

Police Court—Not examined. Central Criminal Court, April 5th, 1895 (see page 15). Commission, May 31st, 1895 (pages 126-129).

History.

Central Criminal Court:—I live next door to prisoner; I know nothing of them; I have not seen him nursing the baby; I do not know whether they live happily or not.

Commission:—I am the wife of Alexander Weynton, who has been examined, and reside at "Clifton," North Sydney.

March 2nd
(Saturday).
Illness of Dean's baby.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean came to my house on Saturday morning, at half-past 7 o'clock, to ask me about the baby; I went back with her, and offered to bath the baby; I said, "It will do the baby good to have a bath"; it had a sort of convulsive fit, and I thought a bath would do it good; we gave it a bath together; it took about a quarter of an hour; the baby seemed much better; an hour after I saw Mrs. Dean, and I said that I thought the baby was alright; the baby seemed to be convulsed; I do not understand a convulsive fit; the little thing's eyes were sunken, and I said to Mrs. Dean that it might be a sort of convulsive fit; I knew a warm bath would be quite safe in any case; the baby lay very quiet, but it revived wonderfully after the warm bath.

Understood
Mrs. Dean was nursing baby.

Commission:—I understood Mrs. Dean was nursing the baby when I went to her house on the Saturday morning; I believe she was suckling the baby; I think so.

Mrs. Dean's condition.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean did not appear to be ill when she came to see me on Saturday morning; she seemed well at the time I was bathing the baby—in her usual health; I remained with her about a quarter of an hour, till about a quarter to 8; up till a quarter to 8 I did not see anything to indicate anything wrong with her; I did not see her again that day.

Nothing was said about lemon
syrup.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean did not tell me that she had taken any lemon-syrup on Saturday morning; she said nothing about it.

March 4th
(Monday).
Visited Mrs.
Dean.

Central Criminal Court:—I went to prisoner's house on March 4th between 5:30 and 5:45 in the evening; Miss Adye asked me to go and see Mrs. Dean, not the prisoner; Mrs. Dean was in bed; Mrs. Adye was there; prisoner had gone for a doctor, and came in whilst I was there; I stayed with Mrs. Dean whilst prisoner was away with the prescription; he came in and said he was going to give her her medicine, as I went away; I said I would come in if they required help in the night.

Commission:—I went to Mrs. Dean between half-past 5 and 6 o'clock on Monday, March 4th; I was there three-quarters of an hour; I was there again; I took the baby's food and made it at my own house, and went back with it and stayed with her till 10 o'clock; I was there several hours; I was there when the doctor came; Dean went for the doctor before tea.

Doctor's visit;
persons present.

Central Criminal Court:—The only women in the house when the doctor came were Mrs. Dean and myself.

Mrs. Dean's condition.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean was very much prostrated; she did look weak; I did not think she was well enough to get anything for herself, although she got out of bed early the next morning; I do not think she was prostrated on Monday evening; I do not think she was too prostrated to get anything for herself; before tea she looked really ill; she looked out of sorts; she looked completely out of sorts on the Monday night; I do not know that she was so ill that her husband had to support her in the bed.

Mrs. Dean spoke of lemon syrup.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean told me on Monday that she had taken some lemon syrup on Saturday, and that it had a very disagreeable taste, and she took a little later on, and it still had that taste, and that it made her feel sick; I said, "Why did you do so? Why didn't you tell the doctor?"; she said, "The bottle is at the chemist's being examined, and we shall know more about it to-morrow"; she did not say she had any suspicions; it was immediately after she took the syrup she felt sick; on Monday night, when I came home, I told my husband what Mrs. Dean had told me; she mentioned to me about the bottle after the doctor had been; that is why I scolded her and said to her, "Why didn't you tell the doctor?";

Central Criminal Court:—I asked Mrs. Dean why she had not told the doctor about the syrup bottle; I said, "How can he prescribe for you when he does not know what you have done?"; she said the bottle was with the doctor—with the chemist—and they would know more about it to-morrow (Tuesday).

Said nothing about poison.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean did not tell me anything about poison at all; I did not tell my husband anything about poison.

Spoke of nothing else but lemon
syrup.

Commission:—On Monday night Mrs. Dean did not say anything to me about porter; she did not say anything to me about cocoa; she did not say anything to lead me to believe that she had had anything administered to her, only what she had taken herself; that was all I heard then; I was there nearly three hours; she never told me anything but about the lemon syrup; she did not mention anybody with reference to that lemon syrup; she did not say anything in my presence about the tea or cocoa.

Commission:—

Commission :—While I was there on Monday night Mrs. Dean did not tell the doctor about the syrup; she did not tell him anything about the tea, or the cocoa, or the porter—not one word; she said she had nothing but tea and toast from Saturday; she did not make any complaint to the doctor.

Made no complaint to the doctor.
Vomiting.

Commission :—While I was in the house on Monday I did not notice Mrs. Dean vomiting at any time; she said she had been vomiting; from what I saw of her state there was no outward sign of illness; she said about a quarter to 8 o'clock on Monday evening that she had been vomiting during the day; she gave me no reasons for this; I did not ask her what would make her vomit; I was there before tea and after tea; I went into my own home to make the baby's tea; I did not see Mrs. Dean actually vomiting.

Commission :—Mrs. Dean told me she had been sick and vomiting on the Monday; she did not tell me whether she had been ill in any other way; I did not see an illness of any other kind—nothing about the room at all.

Purging.

Commission :—I believe Mrs. Dean had been suckling the baby until Monday; I think so; they only commenced with the artificial food on Monday; I knew nothing of the baby till I was sent for; I did not take the baby on the Monday night; I attended to it.

The baby.

Commission :—I do not know Mrs. Dean very well; when the baby was about three weeks old they sent in for me, and Mrs. Dean said she had been vomiting and ill all day; she did not say what made her ill, but that both she and Mrs. Seymour had been vomiting all day; that was before she was out of bed, and I have not been in the house since till March 3rd, and she was never in my house; they gave me no reason for their being ill then; nothing but that they had been ill all day long; during all the time they were living there I was living next door; when the baby was some weeks old they sent for me, and I lent them assistance; afterwards, later on, in March, I did the same; I did what one married woman would do for another; our associations were good and kindly; anything I did was what one would do in a case of sickness—what one married woman would do for another.

Acquaintance with the Deans.

Commission :—As far as I knew, the Deans were clean and tidy people; it never struck me that it was a dirty house at all; it was my impression that it was a well-kept house; things were a little tossed about in the bedroom on Monday night because Mr. Dean was there all day; I attributed that to the circumstance of there being no female about the house.

Dean's a well-kept house.

Commission :—Mrs. Dean called me to go to the baby on Tuesday morning the first thing; before Dean came in I went in and took the baby, and brought it down, and warmed its bottle of food; and I asked Mr. Weynton for a jug of hot water over the fence to stand the bottle in; she told me the doctor had the bottle when I went upstairs, and I told Mr. Weynton that the doctor had the bottle, just as she told me, and we put our own construction upon it—that there was something more in it; that was after we buried the poison; we thought it might be poisoning; we put two and two together, and we thought it might be poison; we thought so because of Mrs. Dean telling me about the lemon syrup having a disagreeable taste, and that there was some white powder at the bottom; I thought it was strange that anything should make her sick; she said she felt sick, and seeing the sediment at the bottom; it is not usual to have a sediment; it was about 10 o'clock when I left Mrs. Dean's house on Monday evening; Dean had come back; I waited in the house till he came back, and when he came back he said, "I will go upstairs and give her the medicine"; I did not see the medicine.

March 5th (Tuesday).

We thought it might be poison.

Central Criminal Court :—Mr. Weynton on Tuesday, after the doctor had gone, asked Dean, "What is this about a bottle and poison?"; prisoner said, "Poison! what do you mean?" and he asked me what about the bottle and poison; I said, "I don't know anything about it; you had better ask Mrs. Dean."

Conversation with Dean about bottle.

Commission :—My husband asked my son to bring home some poison to poison a dog; the dog was poisoned on the same night; I remember last Christmas; it was eight or nine or ten months before last Christmas that the dog was poisoned; the dog was poisoned last April twelvemonths; in my depositions, made on the 25th April, this year, I said my son was asked to bring home some poison about two or three months before Christmas [see depositions, Minutes of Evidence, page 126]; I can fix the date since I made that statement, because my son's holidays were coming on in June, and it was a month or six weeks before we poisoned the dog that the poison was taken down to Mr. Johnson; I did state that it was two or three months before Christmas, but that is a mistake; the name of the son who brought the poison is Alexander; he said the same as I did; we both fell into that mistake; we both said that it was two or three months before Christmas; Alexander is not quite sure when he brought it home; he remembers now from my youngest son that it was about the time the poison was taken to Mr. Johnson; it is a mistake in the depositions about the time; it was in April; I am certain it is in the beginning of the year; we have been discussing it in the family; I did not make any note of it; my youngest son, Russell, took the poison that my husband gave to Mr. Johnson; the poison was in our possession a month or six weeks before any was sent to Mr. Johnson; it was before June that we got the poison; the June holidays were just coming on; I remember Mr. Johnson saying, "I suppose you will be coming across the bridge during your holidays"; my belief is that the poison was taken to my bedroom about the end of June, and I am positive that it remained in my bedroom until the 5th March; I am positive it was not disturbed.

Date of purchase of strychnine.

Commission :—To the best of my memory the strychnine remained about three or four months in the washhouse in our yard after the dog was poisoned; it is an open washhouse; anyone who went into our yard could have taken it; it is not locked up; the gate is ordinarily opened, but we always keep it locked at night.

Strychnine in washhouse.

Commission :—The Deans or Mrs. Seymour, or any person connected with that house, never had access to our premises; Mrs. Dean brought her baby to the door on one occasion, and said the baby was not well; I offered to give the baby a bath, and that was the only time she was over my threshold; that was the only time she was on my premises; George Dean has never been on my premises; Mrs. Seymour has never been on my premises; neither Mrs. Dean nor Mrs. Seymour were ever in my house.

Deans were never on premises.

Commission :—The strychnine was about four months in the washhouse, and then I put it on my wardrobe for further security; it was in my wardrobe before I buried it until the morning of the 5th March, and when taken down it was all covered with dust; we did not leave it where it was because if we were asked the question we wanted to be able to say that there was no poison in the house; my husband and I thought that was the best course to take, although we had buried it in the garden; it was in the house eight or nine months up to Christmas from February or March; my original statement that it was two or three months before Christmas was not correct; it is a mistake.

Strychnine on wardrobe.

Before Deans came to live there

Commission :—I think the Deans came to live next door to us towards the end of the winter—in August or September; I remember the fact of their coming; I am quite certain that the bottle of poison had been removed to my bedroom before they came to live there.

Sons played cricket with
Dean.

Commission :—I have three sons; my son Russell is the youngest; they all played cricket on the paddock at the back of our house with Dean; the eldest son is 18 years of age, and the others 16 and 15; those are the sons that played cricket.

Burial of strychnine.

Commission :—We put our own construction on what Mrs. Dean told me on Monday night with regard to her illness; we buried the poison at about a quarter to 7 o'clock on Tuesday morning; my husband and I were both there, and we buried it in the garden.

Reasons for burial

Commission :—We buried the poison because we did not want to be mixed up with anything; we had an idea from what Mrs. Dean said the night before that there would be trouble, and we thought it better to have the poison out of the house; I was at Mrs. Dean's house at about a quarter to 6 on Monday evening and stayed till about half-past 6; Mrs. Dean said she had been ill and sick and vomiting through the day; she was in bed, and I left her in bed; I went back about 7 o'clock; at this second interview I heard about the bottle being sent to the doctor; I stayed till after 10, and then went home; my husband was at home when I came home; I told him my suspicions what Mrs. Dean had said; we buried the poison because we had some idea that this was a case of poisoning.

Police and
information.

Commission :—We drew the distinction between the house and the garden with regard to the poison; I did not tell the police anything about it; I knew of the excitement after Dean was convicted; I was at the Court when he was tried; I knew about the question of arsenic and strychnine, and that the difficult question to answer was where it could have been got; I did not tell the police that the poison was buried in our garden because the questions did not lead up to it; I never told the police anything about it; I never told the Crown Prosecutor; before I was subpoenaed at the trial the police were at my house, and asked me if I had any poison, and I told them no; I had no reason for not telling the Crown or the police that the strychnine was buried in our garden; I made my statement to the police at my house; my husband was in Sydney; I have never at any time said a word to the police about my son getting poison, or my husband, or anybody else.

History.

Commission :—I am 18 years of age, and employed at Messrs Elliott Brothers, wholesale druggists, in O'Connell-street.

Statement
police.

Commission :—On the 25th April last, I made a statement to the police (see statement, Minutes of Evidence, page 187); I made the statement in the office at the warehouse, O'Connell-street, at about 10 o'clock in the morning; that was the first occasion on which the police communicated with me about this matter; I made the statement to Mr. Tindall.

When strychnine was obtained.

Commission :—I obtained the strychnine from one of the chemists in the employ of the firm; I did not pay for it and the sale is not entered in any book that I know of; I got the strychnine in a bottle; there is no entry that I am aware of in the books of Messrs Elliott Brothers of the date on which I took that poison home; I have no memorandum of the transaction myself; I cannot fix the exact day on which I obtained that poison; I cannot name the day of the month or the day of the week; I said in my statement that it was about six months before the 25th of April, that my father asked me to bring the poison home, but I found out subsequently that I had made a mistake; I found out I had made a mistake in regard to time, I think, on the same day as I made the statement; I did not take any means of informing the police that I had made this mistake; I did not think it was necessary; that is the only explanation I can give; I obtained the strychnine about March or February, 1894; I remember that I had some pigeons stolen; the dog was bad at the same time they were stolen; I got the poison to kill the dog, and the dog was poisoned; that is how I remember the date; the colour of the strychnine was pink; I do not know what it was coloured with; I do not know if it was strychnine or sulphate of strychnine; I do know why I could not locate the date properly before I gave my statement to the police; it was before I got home that night I found out my mistake; before I saw any of my own people; I do not know where the Inspector was after he got my statement from me; we have a telephone at my establishment; two police officers were at my house the same night when I got home; the same officer to whom I had given the statement at Elliott Brothers in the morning was there; I did not correct the mistake I had made in my statement as soon as I saw him; there were two officers of the police at Elliott Brothers when I made my statement; both of them were at my house when I got home that night; I never said one word to either of these officers that I had made a mistake; I did not think it necessary then to tell them that I was wrong in my date; I said a moment ago that during the day I had been trying to locate the date on which I took the poison home, and that I had come to the conclusion that I was wrong when I said that it was six months before the 25th of April; I did not admit to the two constables when I got home that I thought I was wrong, because I was not exactly sure at the time; it is a fact that after thinking the matter over I had fixed the date in my own mind as February or March; the two police officers were at Elliott Brothers about three-quarters of an hour; they could not have had any other business with my family that I know of except this case; I did not know at the time I went home that the poison had been dug up from my father's garden; I did not know that it had been dug up when I made my statement to the police; I found out the same night that it had been dug up in our garden, while the policemen were at our house, yet I did not tell the constable my mistake. (Cross-examined): When I was interviewed by the police I had no idea that they had come to see me about the poison I had taken from Elliott Brothers some time previously; I gave them my statement straight off without consideration; then I thought the matter over, and when I got home I found the policemen there; the reason I did not say anything to the police when I came home was that I preferred to talk the matter over with the members of my family first; after the police left I had a chat with my father and mother, before we had tea; I corrected my mistake to my mother the same night; I said I had made a mistake; I have a younger brother named Marsden, and another named Russell; I remember that he had some holidays in June last year; it was before my younger brother had his holidays that I took the poison home.

Obtained from
Mr. Butchart.

Commission :—Mr. Butchart is the name of the chemist from whom I obtained the strychnine; he is not at Messrs. Elliott Brothers now; he left and went to Tasmania last Monday; I do not know why he he went to Tasmania; it was something about his private affairs, I think; he may come back again for all I know; I do not know that he has left the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers; I do not remember asking any other of Messrs. Elliott Brothers' employees for this poison before I asked Mr. Butchart; Mr. Butchart was living at North Shore; I cannot say exactly where; he has resided there ever since he came back to Elliott Brothers; he has lived at North Shore during the whole of the time I have known him; I have never made a statement to the effect that I asked a gentleman living at North Shore, other than Mr. Butchart, for this poison; I asked Mr. Butchart for it first of all, and he handed the poison to me; Mr. Butchart is the chemist in one of the country departments; he did not know himself that he was going to Tasmania until Monday morning; he went away because his wife died there; she did not live at Tasmania; she had left in the mail boat to go to England, and died when she reached Tasmania; Mr. Butchart has been at Elliott Brothers a long time; I do not know if he made any memorandum of when he gave me that poison; I know of no memorandum to that effect.

Commission:—I was not aware that the bottle of poison was subsequently kept in our own wash-house; I simply brought it home, and did not know any more about it; I was not aware that it was buried in our garden one morning; I knew nothing more about it; I had no idea that my mother and father got up early one morning and buried the bottle; I did not know anything at all about the bottle until the police dug it up; the first time I knew anything about that affair was when I came home at night and found the police on the premises; that was the first time I knew the bottle had been buried in the morning.

Knew nothing of the poison at home till the police dug it up.

I am in the employ of Messrs. Elliott Brothers, wholesale druggists, O'Connell-street; I was so during the whole of last year.

History.

Commission:—I know Oswin Weynton; I did not supply him with any strychnine; I remember him asking me for some strychnine; I cannot say what month that was in; it was prior to the middle of May last year; I am sure of that; I fix the date because I had been away from the store on a holiday for a considerable length of time, and on my return, about the commencement of last year, or about Christmas time, the two Weyntons in the employ of Elliott Brothers were new hands and were not known to me; prior to the middle of May I lived on North Shore, and travelled home by another boat; subsequently to that time I changed my residence from Whaling Road to Walker-street, and I did not know either of them personally until I went to live in Walker-street, which was about the 20th of May, 1894; I know it was prior to the date I went to live in Walker-street, because subsequently to that we used to go home always by the same boat together; it was before I knew him that he asked me for this strychnine; he was almost a stranger to me; in a place where there are so many hands we do not know everybody, and one of my rules is never to do anything for anyone I do not know; I knew him by coming into the office occasionally; otherwise, I had no knowledge of him; in fact, in all probability, it is possible I could not tell his name; there are hands in the store whom I do not know; I afterwards knew him as Weynton; it was before the middle of May he asked me for the strychnine; I cannot say whether he told me what he wanted the poison for; he may have done so; I cannot say whether he did or not; I do not know who gave him the strychnine; I have not seen the bottle the strychnine was in; Weynton was employed in the office as assistant invoice clerk; he would have the run of the whole establishment; they all have that.

Oswin Weynton and strychnine.

Commission:—This strychnine is kept in considerable quantities; not readily accessible; that depends very largely on circumstances; the majority of the strychnine is kept under lock and key, but there are times, when strychnine is being coloured, when it is not under lock and key for, perhaps, twenty-four hours. Strychnine, when it is being coloured, is very frequently transferred to 1-oz. bottles from the large original 100-oz. tin; it is coloured in bulk, and that is done on another floor altogether; the bottles might be standing about during the time they are being put up; they would be on the same floor as the office—that is, the drug floor; we have bottles like this [witness shown bottle], that is what we call a ½-oz. strychnine bottle; we put it up in bottles like that, but that label is defaced; those are the kind of bottles we put it up in when we are colouring it, that is a ½-oz. bottle such as we put it up in, it really holds more than an ounce fluid; at the time when we are colouring this strychnine, and it is being put up in those bottles they are standing about; it might be possible for any one on the floor to take one; it is a 2-oz. bottle, but it holds 1 oz. of strychnine, we consequently call it a 1 oz. bottle; it is not the fluid capacity of the bottle, but its contents as far as strychnine is concerned; if young Weynton wanted poison he would have to apply to the person who has the key; I do not see how a person could obtain it secretly under any possibility whatever; it all depends on the stock, and how the stock runs down, as to how often strychnine is treated with the aniline dye; it is not done periodically; notice is given where it is kept when it is required, and a certain amount is run off one day and put away in tins; I do not think it would be allowed to stand for twenty-four hours—not for a single night; if Weynton wanted to get it, and had spoken to me, and I refused it, he might have to wait days, or possibly weeks, before he could get it secretly; I refused it to him for the simple reason that I did not know him, and under any circumstances I should want good authority for supplying strychnine to any one in the place; I was saying, only the day before yesterday, that I never remembered supplying such a thing to any one in the store at all; I did not refer him to any one else who did know him; I simply told him to go and ask somebody else—that was my remark at the time; I am not in charge of the strychnine at all; there is no strychnine on our floor, except, when it is being coloured; it is not in my charge when it is being coloured; I have nothing whatever to do with it.

How strychnine is kept, and treated.

Commission:—I know Mr. Moodie; I did not tell him that I had supplied this strychnine; I had a conversation with Mr. Moodie, and a clerk from Messrs. Crick and Meagher's and Oswin Weynton, in which I made exactly the same statement as I have done now; as I have just stated, I would not swear that Weynton stated what he wanted the poison for; I may have said to Mr. Moodie and Mr. Meagher's clerk that I thought young Weynton had said to me he wanted the strychnine to kill a dog; that is a different thing to making a statement on oath as to what I did say; I cannot remember him saying so; I will not swear that I did not use those words to both of those gentlemen; I did not say, "I think he got it the same day as he asked for it"; I was asked questions by these gentlemen.

Commission, May, 22nd, 1895 (pages 77-84).

History. Commission :—I live with my husband, Thomas Charles Thompson, at Miller-street, North Sydney; I know George Dean; I live next door but one to him; I was there before they came to live there, and I live there now; my house was next door but one on the same side of the street; Mr. Dean's house was a two-storied house, mine was a cottage; Dean visited us occasionally.

March 5th (Tuesday). Commission :—I remember some illness being in Dean's house; I went into Dean's house on Tuesday, March 5th, a little after 8 o'clock, I think; Mr. Dean came into my place and asked me or my husband to go for a doctor; he said he could not leave his wife, she was too ill; my husband went for the doctor immediately, and I offered to do what I could for Mrs. Dean, and he said he would be very glad; that was the first time I was ever in there; Mrs. Dean was in her bedroom upstairs, in bed.

Visited Mrs. Dean—Mr. Thompson went for doctor. Commission :—When I went into Mrs. Dean's I took some hot water and washed the baby; I took the baby from Mr. Dean, and he got me some of the things to wash the baby with.

Washed baby. Commission :—Mrs. Dean asked me to give her some tea, and Dean said, "You know you must not have it, it is forbidden by the doctor"; she said, "I would feel so much better if I had some tea"; he said, "I have not got any in the house"; I said, "If she will have it, go and get my tea"; he asked her to drink it very slowly, and she drank it very fast; after he had given her the tea, she said, "Oh, George, I will not get better; you'll have the baby, she will be good to you"; he said, "Oh! don't say that," and completely broke down crying; this was on Tuesday morning shortly after 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Dean asked for some tea. Commission :—Mr. Dean when I went into the bedroom was sitting on a chair close to the bedside giving the baby its food; I took the baby from him; when I took the baby he went to his wife and raised her up on the bed, and seemed to shake up the pillows as if to make her comfortable; Dean's manner was affectionate and kind; it could not be more so; when the doctor came I said to Dean, "You had better go downstairs to the doctor," and he said, "He knows the way"; he was lying on the bed outside the clothes.

What Dean was doing. Commission :—Mr. Dean was crying when the doctor came in on Tuesday morning; the doctor went to Mrs. Dean, and he noticed she had taken tea, and he said, "What is the use of my coming here if you do not take my advice?"; Dean said, "It is not my fault, she would have the tea"; the doctor said, "You must not give her the tea; I told you last night she was not to have it"; Dean remained in the room all the time the doctor was there, and went downstairs with the doctor.

Doctor's visit. Dean present. Tea. Commission :—The doctor asked Mrs. Dean if she had been taking anything else than the tea, and she said "No"; Dean said she had been taking something out of a bottle, lemonade, or lemon syrup, or something else; Mrs. Dean said, "Doctor, I took some lemon syrup, and I became ill; I took it out of a bottle on Saturday, and I became ill"; the doctor seemed to treat the matter very lightly; he would not say anything; he told Mr. Dean there was no need for any alarm; it did not occur to answer to inquiries from the doctor; I am sure this was on the Tuesday morning.

Dean spoke of Lemon syrup to doctor. Commission :—After the doctor went down a lady came in; I do not know her name; she was a good-looking woman, stout and tall; rather a young woman (Millie Lee); when she came in she said she would be able to follow out the doctor's prescriptions, and that she would remain there till Dean came back with the medicine, and do what the doctor ordered; I was downstairs then, and went away a few minutes after; I left Mrs. Lee in charge, and I did not see her any more.

Mrs. Lee took charge. Commission :—I may have been in the house a little longer than two hours on Tuesday morning; Mrs. Dean complained about a pain in her side and had headache; there was no vomiting and purging while I was there; Mrs. Dean did not vomit all the time I was there; I saw nothing to denote whether she was purged; I tidied up her pedestal; I saw signs of it there; there was matter in the chamber when I went in; it appeared to be of a purged character like a person with diarrhoea; there was no purging in my presence; it was before I went in; it might have been the result of purging left there all the night from the day before; there had been no endeavour to get rid of it; I got rid of it when I was tidying the place up; I do not know of my own knowledge if that purged matter came from Mrs. Dean; as far as I know the purge did come from Mrs. Dean.

Mrs. Dean's condition—vomit or purge. Commission :—On Tuesday morning the doctor went to the chest of drawers to write a prescription; I am sure he did; he wrote it, I think, with a pencil; I believe the prescription was taken to Guise, the chemist; the doctor gave me particular instructions how to use the medicine; he said it had to be injected; he asked me if I thought I could do it, and I said I would do my best; in the meantime this lady (Mrs. Lee) came; I told her what the doctor had told me, and she said she thought she could do it; I had a few little things to do in my own home, and came in again in the afternoon to see how Mrs. Dean was; the doctor told me I must have a syringe; I believe Mrs. Seymour brought one in the afternoon.

Injection and syringe. Commission :—I went in again in the afternoon; Mrs. Lee had gone; she went away between half past 3 and 4 o'clock; Mrs. Dean was in bed.

Visited Mrs. Dean in afternoon. Commission :—In the afternoon Dean was bathing his wife's head with vinegar and water with a cloth; he was sitting near the bed; a man was calling out ice in the street, and Mrs. Dean said she would like some; Dean got some, and he broke some off in a cloth and put it on her forehead, and gave her some to put in her mouth; she said it was very nice, and that she felt much better; she looked much better; she said she hoped to be quite well by the end of the week; I then went away; on that occasion Dean's conduct was kind, and as any woman would wish it to be; perfectly kind and affectionate; there was only Dean and his wife and the baby in the house.

Afternoon—Dean's conduct—ice. Commission :—At the time of this account I have given, about Dean lying on the bed, the ice, the prescription, the medicine, &c., I had no suspicion of anyone administering poison to his wife; such a thing never entered our minds; it never entered my mind.

No suspicion of poisoning. Commission :—These things happened on a Tuesday; I admit that I have spoken to Dr. Newmarch of this; I remember perfectly well that it was on a Tuesday; Dr. Newmarch did tell me it was on a Wednesday, but it was on a Tuesday; I am positive of this; Dr. Newmarch said he could not remember Mr. Dean being in the room on the Tuesday; I remember telling Dr. Newmarch that he was bathing his wife's head with ice; Dr. Newmarch did not tell me that there was no ice in the house on Tuesday; that it was on the Wednesday; I insist that it was on the Tuesday; it was in the afternoon between half-past

3 and 4 o'clock, after the doctor had been, that Dean was bathing his wife's head with ice; the doctor was there in the morning a little after 8 o'clock; Dean broke some ice off into a cloth, and gave Mrs. Dean some to put into her mouth; Dean was crying on the bed on Tuesday at 8 o'clock, or a little after; I did not make any note of this in this matter of any kind.

Commission:—I remember a Sunday night early in February; I don't remember whether it was the first or second Sunday; I was standing at my front gate, in the street; I saw Mrs. Dean about 8 o'clock at night, or a little after; she was dressed in light clothes; she was coming down the street towards her own house; she was dressed as if she had been out somewhere; she had a hat on; I saw her go into her own place; she remained in her house for a few minutes and then came out again; she came out of the front gate, the same gate as she went in; there are three entrances to Dean's place; one in the front, a side entrance, and one at the back; the side entrance is from an allotment of land alongside leading into the yard; no one was with Mrs. Dean; she went up the road and came back with a lady, and the lady was carrying her baby; they went inside and remained there; after they had gone inside, and whilst I was still at the gate, another lady came down on the opposite side and I recognised her as Mrs. Seymour; she went towards the side gate, but I do not know whether she went in; in my own mind I am positive it was Mrs. Seymour; it was a moonlight night; a clear, beautiful, bright night, dull at times, but while it was bright it was very bright; shortly after I had occasion to go down my yard; my husband called me; he came down into the house and said, "Come out here," which I did, and he pointed out something and said, "Who do you think that is?" I said at once, "That is Mrs. Seymour;" this person, when my husband noticed her at first, before he told me, was sitting down on the grass; a light came suddenly into the back window and she got up and moved; my husband saw her sitting on the grass, and she got up, and he asked me who she was and I said, "That is Mrs. Seymour"; there is a shop at the corner, and she stood behind the shop fence; she stopped there for a while, and presently I saw another lady whom I recognised as Mrs. Dean go over to Mrs. Seymour; she had a black cloak on, and she remained with Mrs. Seymour; I did not see anyone come out of the house; this was about 9 o'clock or a little after; they were there for about ten minutes or a quarter of an hour, and then came into Dean's house by the back gate; I could not see them go into the house, but I could hear them wiping their feet outside their own house; this happened the first or second Sunday in February.

Mrs. Seymour —
a peculiar visit
in February,

Commission:—I know something of Dean's habits; he used to come home with my husband in the morning, but did not go with him at night; it was not necessary for him to go so early; Mrs. Seymour's visit was on a Sunday night; on Sunday night Dean goes away a little after 9 o'clock; the light in the window disappeared just before these people went into the yard.

Dean's habits.

Commission:—Since this agitation began I was asked by two members of the police who came to my house to state all I knew about this matter; something more than three weeks ago; I did not state one word of what I have said to-day about this Sunday in February; I said anything further I had to say I would say when I was called to give evidence; I made a long statement to the police and put my name to it [See statement Minutes of Evidence page 80]; I never said one word about Mrs. Seymour crouching or sitting on the grass, or Mrs. Dean going out to meet her that Sunday night in February; I thought I would wait till I was called and say it then; I made the statement of my own free will; they asked me to state all I knew up till the Tuesday; I made the statement and said, "That is all I know of the Tuesday; anything else I will tell when I am called;" they only asked me about on the Tuesday; they asked me whether there was anything else I knew, and I said I would say the rest when I was called; I remembered this additional information at the time; I do not know why I did not tell them; I can give no reason why I kept it back; I thought what I told them about the Tuesday was all they wanted; I intentionally reserved it; I intentionally kept it back till now; I thought it would be better for Dean; I can't give any answer why.

Police: information intentionally reserved.

Commission:—The first time I stated this information about Mrs. Seymour to Messrs. Crick and Meagher was to-day; the clerk asked me the question; I have read a great deal of the evidence taken at the Criminal Court in different papers; I am not certain if I have read Mrs. Seymour's evidence.

Crick and Meagher.

Commission:—My husband is in Sydney; I cannot tell exactly how long he has been employed on the boat, but I know it is more than three years; he has been there all the time Dean was there; he was there at the time this accusation was made against Dean; my husband and Dean used to go to the boat together; they are both on the night boat; my husband used to leave at 10 o'clock on the week nights, and Mr. Dean used to leave at half-past 10; they did not go together; Mr. Dean was always half an hour behind my husband; occasionally they may have gone together; in the morning they always came back together: that was for about six months; since they have been living in Miller-street.

Mr. Thompson.

Commission:—The first time I met George Dean was about a year and five months ago: he has visited our place on different occasions; he was going under the name of George Dean; I did not know him as George Finch; I know nothing of his family; I remember Dean being brought up at the police court at North Shore, and his being committed for trial, and the trial at Darlinghurst, before Judge Windeyer; Dean was on the same boat with my husband for more than a year; I believe Dean was a fire boy at one time; then captain.

Acquaintance
with Dean.

Commission:—Weynton is the name of the family that lives next door to me; the Weyntons live between my house and Dean's; I have been living next door to the Weynton's about a year and seven months; they were living there before I came to live there; I have not visited the Weynton's; I have never seen Dean there.

The Weyntons.

Commission:—I remember the police, since Dean was convicted, unearthing strychnine in Weynton's paddock; I knew nothing about it being buried there till Mr. Weynton told my husband about it the day Dean was arrested; I remember Mr. Weynton telling my husband that he had had strychnine in his house; he had got it to poison a mangy dog, and when it came out that there had been some poisoning he thought it better to get it out of the house, and he buried it in his garden; I was not present when the police were told that there was no strychnine in Mr. Weynton's house; I did not see it dug up; I did not know anything about it till they got it; I was at my own place; at one part of my fence I could look over into Mr. Weynton's; I did not know that that strychnine was kept in an open washhouse in the next yard; I did not know where it was kept; I believe there is an open washhouse in the next yard; Mr. Weynton came into my place on the evening Dean was arrested, and told me he had had some strychnine in the house for months; that he got it to poison a dog that had the mange; my husband was there; I had no reason to doubt Mr. Weynton's word; I believed his statement to be true; I could see no connection between that and Dean's case.

Weyntons and strychnine.

Annie
Thompson,
Police and information re poison.

Commission:—I did not give information to the police because I did not think it was my business to say anything about my neighbours; I did not think by giving information to the police that it might harm Dean; it was nothing to do with him; my husband did not ask me to say nothing at all about it; I was on friendly terms with Dean; I did not think that strychnine being found in the next place and in the medicine could do Dean any harm; Mr. Weynton told me it was a pink powder; neither my husband nor I gave information to the police; when the police were digging I was in my own house; I did not know they were there, or that they were digging; the next morning I saw it in the paper; I knew that one of the difficulties pointed out in the case was where the strychnine could have been got; I did not inform the police because I did not think it had any effect on Mr. Dean's case whatever; I really mean that; I remember the police coming to us, but I do not remember them asking me anything about poison; I remember one of the gentlemen saying to my husband, "There is a bit of a stir next door;" Mr. and Mrs. Weynton are most particular people; so far as I know they are respectable; there is not a word of truth in the suggestion that I concealed information about that poison; the police asked me what occurred on the Tuesday; they did not ask me anything whatever beyond the Tuesday.

History.

Commission:—I am engineer on board the "Possum," the boat Dean was on; I live next door but one from Dean's; I am the husband of the lady who gave evidence here yesterday.

March 2nd
(Saturday).
Went to Dean's house for bicycle.

Commission:—I went to Dean's house on Saturday morning, March 2nd, at about 12 o'clock; I did not see Dean; I saw Mrs. Dean; I told her that I had come for the bicycle that her husband had promised to lend me; she said, "I think it is all right; he fixed it up before he went to bed;" I took the machine away.

Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean appeared quite well to me when I went at 12 o'clock on Saturday morning for the bicycle.

Afternoon;
returned bicycle.

Commission:—I called back between 1 and 2 o'clock on Saturday, as near as I can say; I knocked at the front door, but I got no answer; the door was just ajar; I pushed it in, and I put the machine up against the mantelpiece in the front room; on coming out again I saw Mrs. Dean coming to the gate; she had just come down the street; she said, "That will be all right, Mr. Thompson;" and I said, "Tell Mr. Dean I do not think the wheel is secure; it is leaking still;" she was not then within 3 yards of me when she addressed me; she was like going through her own gate, and I was going out of her gate; she had no hat on.

Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Commission:—In the afternoon Mrs. Dean did not appear to be unwell; she appeared to be the same as she was in the morning; she addressed me the same as she did in the morning; she made no complaint to me whatever about feeling unwell.

Evening; visited
Dean about bicycle.

Commission:—I went to Dean's on Saturday again about 8 o'clock, after I had had my tea; both Dean and his wife were there; they were in the kitchen just sitting down to tea; my business was to ask Dean if he had a nut to fit my machine, because on coming home on Saturday I lost one of the nuts off my machine, and I thought by going in there I might get one off him.

Mrs. Dean's
condition.

Commission:—In the evening when I saw Mrs. Dean she seemed quite well; Dean said to her, "Don't stand on those cold stones; you know you are not well; keep out of the cold;" she said, "What are you looking for, George?" He said, "I am trying to find Charlie a nut; I have them in a little bag somewhere;" she said, "I have cleaned up that place; I do not think they are there;" he said, "Never mind; I am going down town, and I will see if I can get you a nut there;" she seemed very well; she had an evening wrapper on; she did not complain of any pain in her head while I was there; I was there five or ten minutes; it was about half-past 7, as near as I can say; it was just about the time I go to lie down; I usually leave home about 10.

March 4th
(Monday).
Dean came to cricketing ground on his way to doctor.

Commission:—On Monday, between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, I was playing cricket in the reserve with Mr. Elliott, sub-editor of the Herald; I saw Dean on that afternoon; I went to get the cricketing tools from him; he had borrowed them from Mr. Weynton, next door; he said, "You had better take them, Charlie; I cannot go with you, my wife is too bad; and you can tell Mr. Elliott that I could not come along;" I took the cricketing tools, and asked him to lend me his bicycle to go to the park on; I took the things under my arm on the bicycle; after I got to the Reserve I saw Dean; he came rushing down almost out of breath, and said, "I will take the bicycle, Charlie; I want to go to Dr. Newmarch; the missis is that bad I cannot stand it any longer;" he was away a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes, and he returned again with the bicycle; he stopped with us until about 6 o'clock, perhaps a few minutes after, and he returned home with me; he remained with us about half an hour after he came back from the doctor's; he played cricket with us until we knocked off; we knocked off at 6 o'clock, or a few minutes after.

March 5th
(Tuesday).
Dean asked me to go for the doctor.

Commission:—I saw Dean on the Tuesday morning about 8 o'clock; he came to my place; he was crying when he came in, and was very excited; he said, "Are you going to bed, Charlie?" I said, "No"; he said, "Would you go down to the doctor's for me?" I said, "Yes; what is the matter"; he said, "For God's sake go down for the doctor, my wife is awful bad; there is no one inside to look after the child; Mrs. Weynton was there, but she has gone home"; he said, "They are talking something about a bottle with poison in it, Charlie"; I went straight down; I did not wait to finish my breakfast; I put on my boots and took his machine and went at once for the doctor; the doctor lives about a mile away; I saw the doctor's carriage outside; I am positive I went for the doctor; I knew his carriage because he attended on my wife; this was on Tuesday, the 5th March.

Some lady opened the door.

Commission:—I went to Dr. Newmarch; some lady opened the door; I asked her if the doctor was in; she said he was not up, and I left a message for him to come as soon as possible, and then I went away; I did not see Dr. Newmarch; I left word that he was to go to Dean's.

Mrs. Seymour;
A peculiar visit
in February.

Commission:—I know Mrs. Seymour by sight; I saw her in the vicinity of Dean's place in the month of February; it was the first or second Sunday night in February; when I got up out of bed (I usually get up on Sunday between a quarter-past 8 and half-past 8) my wife told me the boys had been at

at the fruit in the afternoon, and said, "You had better go up and see if the gate is secure"; it was a moonlight night; at times it was bright and at times dull; I went up gently to open the gate so that the latch would not make a noise if the boys were there; I saw that the gate had a stanchion up against it; I peeped through the fence, and I saw a person all in black sitting on the grass; I did not take any notice of that, but when I turned my head I saw a light in Dean's window, and I saw this person get up and stand for a moment and walk away into the shed just near the fence at the back of the shop; she seemed to be walking backwards and forwards; I did not pay much attention; I said to my wife when I came down to have a wash, "I wonder who this is standing outside; there is a woman; she seems to be watching the light in Dean's window"; my wife came up with me, and she said, "I think that is Mrs. Seymour"; I said, "Do you think so? I fancy it is Mrs. Seymour myself," and with that I walked away; I had my wash and put on my things and went to the boat; I recognised it was Mrs. Seymour; she was up by the fence; I was going to get a wash, ready to go to work; I looked through the fence and saw a person crouching on the grass between Dean's fence and my fence; I think it is a vacant allotment; it would not be above 15 or 20 yards from the back gate; I thought it resembled Mrs. Seymour; I did not speak to her; I was not afraid; I did not ask what she was doing crouching on the grass, because it was no business of mine; my wife and I both agreed it was Mrs. Seymour; I had seen Mrs. Seymour before that; I have never spoken to her much; she had been once or twice about the place.

Commission:—I did not think anything more about Mrs. Seymour till I got to the boat; when I got to the boat I said to Dean, "George, did you notice anything to-night as you came away from your place?" He said, "No, nothing unusual"; I said, "Well, I don't like to interfere, but I saw a person who seemed to be watching a light in your back window, and when the light went out of the back window the person seemed to go closer"; I said, "If I were you I would take a run home and see what is the matter"; he seemed to treat it very lightly; when he did not take any interest, I never bothered my head over it; I told Dean I recognised it as Mrs. Seymour; I said I would look after the boat if he went back; I asked him did he see anybody knocking about his place, and he said "No"; I said, "Well, I don't want to interfere with your business, George, but I saw somebody watching a light in your back window; I fancy, but I would not swear, that it was your mother-in-law; if you think there is anything wrong, you go back and I will look after the boat"; I advised him to go back; to the best of my belief I thought it was Mrs. Seymour; I would not swear that it was his mother-in-law, in my own mind I believe it was Mrs. Seymour, and my wife thought the same; the reason I spoke to Dean was on account of the person watching the light in the window, his mother-in-law dodging about the back there; although it was his mother-in-law I thought it necessary to tell him that I would mind the boat while he went back; I knew Dean was on bad terms with Mrs. Seymour; I am not sure whether I knew it on that Sunday night in February, and that was the reason I mentioned the matter to Dean when he came down to the boat; Dean took the information lightly when I told him what I had seen.

Informed Dean
of Mrs.
Seymour's
visit.

Commission:—I can say from my personal knowledge that Dean was always very fond of his home; he was always doing things about his home; he always went home straight from his work; he usually went home with me; if he did not have his machine he would take the tram to Walker-street, and would meet me, and he would walk alongside my machine, and we would go home together; he has taken me in and shown me articles of furniture he has made; he has always spoken of his wife very kindly; he told me on Saturday night, 2nd March, or Sunday night, 3rd March, that if his wife was well enough he was going to send her down to Nowra for a week; we were having a conversation about a tour on our "bikes" to the mountains; he said, "I would like to go with you, but my wife not being well I must send her to Nowra, and then I might go with you"; I did not press him because I knew he did not have much money to spend, on account of having a piece of land; he was trying to pay off the cost, and to build a fence on it.

Acquaintance
with Dean.

Commission:—I was present when my wife made a statement to Inspector Tindall; Tindall asked me did I know anything about the case, and I said, "What I know you are welcome to have"; he said, "Do you know much about it?" I said, "Nothing of importance"; he said, "If you are called you will be able to explain"; I did not tell him anything of the kind; he asked my wife to make a statement about the Tuesday she was in Dean's; I knew what my wife had given an account of; Tindall was there to get information about my wife being in Dean's on the Tuesday morning; he came for that, and he asked my wife to make a statement; I saw Sergeant Brennan and Inspectors Tindall and Wearing; I have never said one word to either of these officials about this woman crouching in the grass in the way I have given evidence to-day.

Police and
information.

Commission:—I was subpoenaed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher to the Criminal Court, but I was not called; my wife and I were there on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday; I had not given a statement before that; not to the solicitors; I was there as a witness; I was subpoenaed by Crick and Meagher, and my wife was subpoenaed by the Crown; I made no statement to anybody; I was outside the court at the trial; I did not hear the evidence.

Central Criminal Court.

Commission:—I did not tell the police what Weynton told me about the strychnine being in his place because they did not ask me; I have known Dean for four years, and that he was charged with having attempted to poison his wife; I played cricket with him, was going an excursion with him, and I was on the same steamer with him; I knew that he was tried and convicted; my belief of the poison that Weynton told me about is that it was in the morning; he called me to the fence, and told me about the poison; my wife was not there; he told me that the poison he had was to poison a dog that was knocking about the place; he said he was either going to bury it, or that he had buried it; my belief is that Mr. Weynton told me that in the day time, but I am not positive about it; it was after Dean was arrested; I did not know about Weynton burying that poison before Dean was arrested; Weynton asked me, "What do you think of this affair?" I said, "It is not a very nice affair"; he said, "I have got some strychnine here to poison my dog; I am going to bury it," or "have buried it." I did not pay much attention to what he said; it might have been important, but I did not take much notice of what he was saying; I took notice of other things—playing cricket, &c.—and gave all these things.

Weynton and strychnine.

Commission:—The police did not come to my place to make inquiry about the poison; they saw me, I think, before Dean had been brought up at the Police Court; or the first or second night after; on the Saturday or the Monday night Brennan came to the boat and asked me if Dean had any things there, and I said he had his box, tickets, and cash-box; I opened my box and I let Brennan search it, and he found some sugar; I did not tell him about the strychnine being in the next place, because he did not ask me; that is my reason; Sergeant Brennan inquired particularly from me if I knew anything about poison being in Dean's possession, and I said "No"; I am not too sure that I knew about the strychnine being buried in the next ground then; I treated the matter very lightly; I did not treat it lightly because I was trying to shield Dean; I did not tell the police because I was not sure it was buried in the next garden; I did not doubt what Weynton told me for a moment; I did not know whether he told me that he was going to bury or had buried the strychnine; I heard that the police came and dug up the ground and found the strychnine there; Sergeant Brennan asked me if there was any arsenic or poison used about the boats; also whether I noticed any in Dean's possession, and I said "No"; he may have asked me if I kept any poison in my house; I do not remember his being at my house; I did not make any communication to the police, but I was questioned by Brennan afterwards; I did not to my knowledge see Brennan or any constable at my house about this matter; Brennan came one night; but he did not see me at my house, he saw me on the road about 100 yards from my house; he was waiting for me when I was coming from work; he asked me what I knew about the poison at Weynton's, and whether I had any conversation with a man named Cumming; that was after the poison was dug up; until the time it was dug up I made no communication to the police of any kind about the poison being buried there; I do not think the police ever spoke to my wife about poison; if they did I was not there; I was asleep when the police dug up the poison; I read it in the paper in the morning; I heard it was dug up in Dean's yard, not in Weynton's yard; Tindall did not speak to me, I spoke to him about it; I said, "You had a bit of a stir out here the other day"; he said, "Oh, yes; that is nothing"; Weynton himself got very much excited about the strychnine being found in the backyard; the way Tindall spoke about it was to the effect that he had got some statement from Mrs. Weynton, and that Mr. Weynton was quite excited and went to Elliott Brothers, where his sons were employed, and made inquiries.

Date of poisoning dog.

Commission:—It was a good while before this affair of Dean's cropped up that I heard about the dog being buried; Dean was arrested on a Friday, March 8th; this matter about a mangy dog, and the dog being buried must have been a couple of months before that; I was in Weynton's place one day, and he said, "My things ought to grow well, I have a dog buried there;" it was a few months before; I knew nothing about his poisoning it.

Mr. Johnson.

Commission:—I knew a Mr. Johnson just by bidding him good morning; I knew nothing about his having laid poison until I saw it in the paper; he looks after the bridge close by me; he lives about half a mile from me.

Believe Dean innocent.

Commission:—I have not been trying particularly to get Dean out of this difficulty; I have subscribed 25s. to the fund for his defence, in two subscriptions; first £1, and since 6s.; I believe Dean is innocent; all the employees of the Ferry Company have subscribed to the Dean Defence Fund; I subscribed with the others; I subscribed because I believe the man is innocent.

Mr. and Mrs.
Thompson's
statement.

Commission:—On Monday, 29th April, accompanied by Detective Clough, I called on Mr. and Mrs. Thompson at North Sydney; I saw Mrs. Thompson first and told her who I was, and that I wanted her to make a statement with reference to the Dean case; I received instructions from the Inspector-General of Police to make inquiries into the whole matter; Mrs. Thompson told me to wait for a moment, and she went out and brought her husband in; I told him I wanted him to make a statement with reference to the Dean case; I asked him if he knew anything, and he said, "I know nothing about it at all"; Mrs. Thompson made her statement in her husband's presence; it was taken down by Detective Clough and read over to her; I asked her if she had anything further to add to it and she said "No"; then she signed it; the statement is almost identical with the evidence she gave before the Commission, with the exception of seeing Mrs. Seymour on the Sunday night in February; I did not confine her to any particular date or circumstance; I had no motive for doing so; she gave a general statement; after Mrs. Thompson signed the statement I asked Mr. Thompson if he knew anything about the case and he said, "Nothing of importance"; I said nothing to lead him to think that I limited Mrs. Thompson to the Tuesday morning; I never referred to it at all; at the time I did not know the importance of one point more than another; I was told to get all the information I could about the matter; to get all I could in Dean's favour, or throw any light on the case; I do not think I interjected anything while Mrs. Thompson made her statement; her husband was opposite her nursing the baby; she did not say, "That is all I know of the Tuesday, and anything else I will say at the trial"; Mrs. Thompson and her husband gave me all the information they had as far as I knew; the husband had no statement to make, and the wife made a statement, which I took, and she signed it.

Commission, June 5th, 1895 (pages 173-74).

History.

Commission:—I am the sub-editor of the Sydney Morning Herald; I live at North Sydney; I have known George Dean for about nine years; he was during the whole of that time in the employ of the ferry company; for about four years, as a passenger on the steamer, while I was living at Mossman's Bay, I saw him once or twice a day, and while he has been a skipper on the night boat running from Circular Quay I have seen a great deal more of him, and have had conversations with him nightly; every night it has been my custom to stand by the wheel and talk to Dean during the whole of the passage across; I knew him first when he was a boy on the Mossman's Bay boat; I was never in his house in my life; I do not know his wife.

Opinion of Dean.

Commission:—Dean has spoken a great deal to me about his private affairs; indeed, I have been much surprised at his having told me certain things; when he came to live at North Shore he told me that he was going to take a house there, and knowing I lived there he asked me something about the place; I have always regarded Dean as a steady, sterling, straightforward fellow; I have always heard him

him speak in terms of great affection of his wife, and with regard to the child he seemed to be a very devoted father. (Cross-examined): Dean, perhaps, if he had done anything wrong would not have told me; I formed my estimate of Dean's character from what I have seen of his general demeanour; he did not tell me that he spent three months in Wagga gaol; he did not tell me that he had a brother on the training ship "Vernon"; he said his mother lived at Albury, and that his father was a policeman; he told me that his father met his death under rather sad circumstances; I never heard the name of Finch in connection with Dean until this case came up; I only knew him through travelling by the night boat; I do not dispute that persons of the highest character have been hanged, but from what I know of George Dean I should say that he would be utterly and absolutely incapable of concocting such a diabolical plot as that laid to his charge; he never mentioned having been in trouble to me on any occasion; I am positive he was devoted to the child; he never mentioned his mother-in-law to me; he never told me he had any quarrels with his wife.

Commission:—I was playing cricket with Dean on Monday afternoon, the 4th March; I had been playing cricket with my son, a little boy of 11, for about an hour, when Thompson, the engineer of the night boat, was passing through the Reserve; he had told me he was going to play cricket; my boy called my attention to the engineer, and I then asked Thompson to come and field; he had been there about ten minutes when Dean came along; I saw that Dean seemed distressed, worn, and weary, and in a great hurry; I said to him, "What is the matter, skipper?" he told me his wife was very ill, and that he was determined to have a doctor; he took a bicycle and rode away; he returned in about a quarter of an hour; he seemed as if he had been hurrying; seeing he was distressed I said to him, "Would you like a drink?" he said, "I should;" I said to my boy, "Go over to your mother; ask her for a bottle of ale and a glass;" my boy came back with the ale, and while he was fetching it I asked the skipper if he would bowl or bat or field in the interval; he played; Dean did not appear to be excited, but looked as if he had hurried a good deal; I heard nothing said about the Weyntons; Dean was playing cricket ten minutes or a quarter of an hour, and went away on his bicycle in such a hurry that it surprised me; he went in the direction of his own home.

Commission, June 3rd, 1895 (pages 154–156).

Commission:—I was engaged in Mr. Reay's grocer's shop at North Sydney; I am not engaged there now; the shop is next door to Dean's; there is a vacant allotment between the two houses; I was at Mr. Reay's shop for about three or four weeks; I have only known Dean a short time.

History.

Commission:—I remember seeing Dean on Monday, 4th March last, at Mr. Reay's shop about half past 12 or a quarter to 1 o'clock—midday; he came for a tin of Van Houten's cocoa, and some eggs; he paid one shilling for the cocoa; he did not get the eggs, because we had none in stock at the time; he got the cocoa, and paid for it; Mrs. Reay came into the shop while he was there; after Dean got the cocoa he went out with it; about ten minutes after he left Mr. Reay came in from Sydney with the eggs; then I went to Dean's house to tell him we had the eggs; I went to the front door which was wide open; I saw Dean at the foot of the stairs just going up-stairs; he had a cup and saucer in his hands; he was carrying the cup as if there was something in it—very steadily; I do not recollect Dean buying any cocoa before; I did not attach any importance to the purchase; what fixed my memory about seeing Dean in his house was, that when he was arrested, like other people, we began to think over past events; I formed no impression whatever as to his innocence; on the Friday Dean was arrested, naturally I began to try and recollect what had happened, and I recollect him coming for the cocoa; it was only then I thought of it; poison was not said to have been administered at that time; the case had not come on at the Police Court then; I thought it just as likely to have been administered with the cocoa as with anything else, and it was then I thought it over, and about the case in the same way; Dean was not a regular customer; he came in only now and again; he was a cash buyer.

My husband is a grocer, and his shop is at Miller-street, North Sydney; our shop was next door to where Dean lived.

History.

Commission:—I remember Dean coming to my place, early in March, for a tin of cocoa; it was at the beginning of the week, either the Monday or Tuesday before his arrest; I saw Dean in my shop; I was just coming into the shop; a Mr. Kirk was serving at the time Dean came in; Kirk was an assistant in the shop; when I went into the shop Dean was just getting the cocoa and paying for it; the brand of the cocoa was Van Houten's; Dean went out of the shop directly he paid for it; it was between 12 and 1 o'clock—midday; Mr. Kirk took the money for the cocoa.

Sale of cocoa to Dean.

Commission:—My husband brought some eggs home shortly after 1 o'clock; I cannot say where from; he started to go for them about 9 o'clock; both he and Kirk went away together in the cart; Mr. Dean was in the shop asking for some eggs, and we had not any, and when Mr. Reay came home he sent Mr. Kirk to Mr. Dean's to ask him if he wanted any eggs then, and I don't think he did; no eggs were sent to Mr. Dean that I know of.

The Eggs.

Commission:—I saw Mrs. Dean the same morning as I saw Dean in my shop; I saw her passing the shop, going towards Mrs. Adye's; Mrs. Adye lives six doors from us; it was before Dean came for the cocoa; Mrs. Dean was dressed in a loose wrapper; she had no hat on, and her hair was hanging loosely round her; I was standing at the shop door when I saw Mrs. Dean; she did not come into the shop; I did not speak to her; at that time I did not suspect anything wrong; I took notice of her, because I thought it rather strange to see her going about as she was; Kirk was not in the shop at the time; time; she passed my shop in the early part of the morning, about 10 o'clock or a little after; Kirk came back at 11 o'clock, and remained in the shop till 1 o'clock, and then had his dinner; it is not a fact that Kirk came back about 10, and went away; and left the place for some hours; he went out about 9 o'clock, and came back about 11 o'clock; he did not go out again until he had had his dinner; it was before he came back the first time that Mrs. Dean passed my place; Mrs. Dean went into Mrs. Adye's; I saw her go in; I did not see her come back again.

Did not tell
Dean

Commission:—Mr. Dean lived next door but one to me; he came in casually to our shop to buy things; I did not know at the time what the charge against him was; it was later on in the week when he was arrested I knew; I have never told Dean about his wife going about in the state I saw her; I have never spoken to him outside the shop; he came to the shop for the cocoa between 12 and 1 o'clock, after I had seen his wife; I did not speak to him then about his wife going about with her hair down; I have never said anything to him about this.

Alderman
Moodie.

Commission:—I know Mr. Moodie; he came to our place on Friday night and Saturday night; he came to speak about this matter; he stayed only a very short time on both occasions; on Saturday night he came to ask for Mr. Kirk's address; myself and my husband were present; Mr. Moodie has been talking to me outside of this room; he did not ask me anything particular; he was a stranger to me before this unfortunate matter; I will swear that outside this room he did not speak to me about the state of Mrs. Dean's hair or dress; he said nothing with reference to Mrs. Dean at all; he was telling me to keep up, not to be nervous, to be composed, that is all; on Friday night Mr. Moodie asked if Mr. Dean had bought the cocoa from us, and we told him he had; everybody that used to come to the shop used to speak about Mr. Dean's case; he was the only gentleman we had at the shop who said anything about the cocoa; on Saturday he wanted to know Mr. Kirk's address, and he asked me if I would come and give evidence; he asked me if I could remember the time the cocoa was bought; he did not suggest any time to me; I knew it on account of its just being dinner-time.

Commission, May 23rd, 1895 (pages 102-106).

History.

Commission:—I am employed by Mr. Gail, furniture-broker of North Shore; I drive a horse and cart for him; I was in Gail's employ when Dean's case was heard in the North Shore Police Court; I am 20 years of age; I was working for Mr. Clark, wood and coal man, on the North Shore, before I went to Gail's; I entered Gail's employ about the 5th or 6th of February; I knew nothing of Gail before I entered his employ, or anything of the Deans, or Mrs. Seymour.

March 2nd
(Saturday).
Mrs. Dean's visit with lesson-
group.

Commission:—I remember something about a bottle being brought to Gail's; I do not know what it was said to contain; Mrs. Dean brought the bottle; Mr. Gail and I had been in town in the cart on business; when we first saw Mrs. Dean she was standing near the front door of the shop; she seemed to be jolly enough; I did not see the bottle at all; it is only from something I was told that I heard about the bottle; it happened on a Saturday between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon; Mrs. Dean, and Mr. and Mrs. Gail went inside; Mrs. Gail, when I saw her first was standing with Mrs. Dean; I do not know how long they remained in the house; I went round to the back with the cart; I did not see them again that day; I did not see Mrs. Seymour that day; when we came home on Saturday, Mrs. Dean simply said, "I have been waiting for you for an hour."

Mrs. Dean and
Mrs. Seymour
visited Gail's nearly every day.

Commission:—During the Police Court proceedings I saw Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean at Gail's house nearly every day; they had some meals there—mid-day dinner; I do not know Mrs. Seymour to speak to; Gail's was much nearer than Dean's to the Police Court; Dean's place was about a mile and half away; Gail's place was about 200 yards; there are refreshment rooms quite near to the Police Court; quite as close as Gail's house; Gail's house and Dr. Newmarch's are about the same distance from Dean's house; they are about 100 yards from each other.

Dean's furniture
Gail's.

Commission:—Before the trial came on at Darlinghurst, I helped Mr. Gail to shift Dean's furniture from Dean's house; we shifted the whole of the furniture; it was stored at Gail's place; this took place in the daytime, after Dean was committed for trial; we commenced in the morning and the moving lasted all day; I think there was seven or eight boxes; we took away just the ordinary furniture; I did not see any ornaments or electro-plated goods of any kind; I did not know that Dean's personal effects have been in the possession of the Government ever since his committal; I will not swear that I saw any of his personal effects removed; only his bicycle; I saw some boots in an open box; I did not count how many; the boxes were weighty.

Working bench,
timber, paint,
&c.

Commission:—The timber at Dean's house was removed to Gail's; also the carpenter's bench; the timber was left at Gail's and used there; the timber was left at Gail's and not taken away again; there was also some paint; the timber was used by Gail about the place; there was about half a cart load, consisting of cedar, hardwood, and redwood; some of it was used, and some is left there now; the paint was used in the business; there were lots of 1-lb. tins of paint of different kinds; it was all open; about a dozen tins I should think; the timber that was removed was ordinarily used by Gail for shelves, and things like that.

From Gail's to Paddington.

Commission:—While the trial at Darlinghurst was going on the furniture was shifted from Gail's to Paddington; to Mrs. Lee's and Mrs. Seymour's house in Macdonald-street, Paddington; Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour told us to take the furniture there; Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour told us where to put the things; we took some boxes away; I did not know what was in them; they were leather trunks and wooden boxes; they were weighty; Dean's bicycle was shifted to Paddington; there must have been five or six loads of furniture.

Conversation with Sergeant
Brennan.

Commission:—While we were going from Gail's house to Paddington we met Detective Brennan; he read something to Gail out of a newspaper; he told Gail Dean was sentenced for life; I heard what he read; when Brennan first read something from the paper Gail got off the cart on to the footpath and spoke to Detective Brennan; this must have happened after the trial at Darlinghurst.

The Gails visited
Mrs. Lee.

Commission:—I know Mrs. Lee lived at Brunswick Cottage, MacMahon's Point; Gail and his wife have visited Mrs. Lee while I was there; I do not know whether Mrs. Dean did; I was not with them; I know they visited there because Mrs. Gail was talking about it on the next morning (Sunday).

Commission, June 10th, 1895 (pages 219-225).

Police Court:—I am a furniture-broker, and live at Miller-street, North Sydney; I have been married about two years; I was married at 32 years of age, to Lydia Ruth Hudson, by the District Registrar, Newtown; I know the prisoner well, also his wife and mother-in-law; I have known them for about twelve months; there is no quarrel between us in any way; I live a mile-and-a-half from the prisoner's, and Mrs. Lee's, where Mrs. Seymour was living, is about a mile in another direction; Mrs. Dean has been at my place since her illness.

History.

Central Criminal Court:—There was something about poisoning at West Maitland when I was 13 years of age; I am on good terms with the prisoner and his wife; I know Mrs. Seymour.

Commission:—I am a furniture-broker and a licensed vanman, living at Miller-street, North Sydney; I have lived at North Shore about five years.

Police Court:—I got a bottle of lemon-syrup at my house from Mrs. Dean on Saturday, 2nd March, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon; she gave it to me asking me to have a drink of lemon-syrup; I took a cup and put a small quantity in, and then filled the cup with water; I took a small quantity in my mouth and found it was bitter, so I spat it out; I corked the bottle up and put it into my pantry; I did not put anything into it; I do not know of anything being put into it; Mrs. Dean said she went to get the contents of the bottle analysed; she did not tell me that if ever she got ill her mother told her to get everything analysed; I never remember a friend coming before with a bottle to be analysed; Mrs. Dean's instructions were to take the bottle to Dr. Newmarch if she did not call for it.

March 2nd
(Saturday).
Mrs. Dean's visit with lemon-
syrup.

Central Criminal Court:—On Saturday afternoon I got a bottle of lemon-syrup from Mrs. Dean; I had a conversation with her; I tasted the contents, just a taste; it was very bitter; Mrs. Dean requested that it should be taken to the doctor; I did not attach any importance to her leaving the bottle.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean brought a bottle of lemon-syrup to my place on Saturday afternoon, the 2nd March; she said she had been to Smith, the chemist, and that she had also been to Dr. Newmarch; she asked me if I could get the lemon-syrup analysed; from the time I knew Mrs. Dean I never remember her coming to my place on such an errand before; she asked me to have a drink of the lemon-syrup; I tasted it; I spat it out; it was bitter; it was quite sufficient for me; I took it in a cup, and drank it as I would drink any ordinary syrup; I found it bitter and then did not drink it; I received the lemon-syrup from Mrs. Dean about half past 3 in the afternoon; I put the bottle in the pantry; on Sunday night I went to a chemist about analysing the contents of the bottle; I asked him what the cost of analysing it would be; Mrs. Dean said Smith wanted 7s. 6d. or 10s.; I went to Mr. Guise, chemist, on North Shore, and asked what it would cost; he said he was doing something regarding the probate of his father's will, and he had not time to analyse the contents of the bottle; Mrs. Dean asked me if I could do that, and I said I could; Mrs. Dean wanted to know what the white powder in the bottle was; she thought there was something wrong; she asked me this on the Saturday afternoon when she brought the bottle down to me; Mrs. Dean wanted me to get it analysed on account of its making her ill on the Saturday morning; all the neighbours up above had had a taste, and said it had had a peculiar taste; on account of the taste she brought it down to me; she told me nothing at all about suspecting poison; she said she had her suspicions; she said to me, "do you think it is poison?" I said, "no"; she said that on account of it making her vomit; I did not take the bottle to Guise; I went to inquire his price for analysis; she asked me to find out if I could what was in the bottle; if I knew a chemist that would do this; I said, "yes, Mr. Guise, the chemist, would do it in a minute"; she then asked me if I would see to it; she then said, "if I do not come back on Saturday night for the bottle again will you take it round to Dr. Newmarch?" I said I would; Mrs. Dean said to me, "do you think it is poison?" she asked me to have a drink of it; she did not think it was poison then; it was after the remarks that were passed about the bitter taste that she asked me what was in it; I said nothing to Guise about poison; I will swear that; I asked Mr. Guise what he would charge to analyse the bottle containing the lemon-syrup, and he replied that it would cost £2 or £3 to analyse the contents of the bottle; Mr. Guise showed no curiosity about the contents of the bottle; he did not ask me any questions, and I told him nothing.

Commission:—The bottle was left at my place by Mrs. Dean herself; when the boy named Small and I came home together Mrs. Dean was not waiting at my house; I met her along the street; I have read in the papers what Small swore; it is not right; we had been over to Sydney working together; I came back home with Small; Mrs. Dean was not standing under the verandah at my house talking to my wife; she was 50 or 60 yards from the shop; she said, "I have been waiting for you for about an hour" then she came up and told me about the bottle; that is what I mean about its having been left at my place; she came back with me, and told me she had left it there.

George Small's evidence.

Police Court:—Mrs. Seymour was at my place between 8 and 9 o'clock on the Saturday night, some hours after I got the bottle; she remained about three-quarters of an hour; I did not show her the bottle; I knew of the illness of Mrs. Dean's baby before Mrs. Seymour called.

Mrs. Seymour's visit; nothing said about syrup

Commission:—Between the time Mrs. Dean left the bottle in my custody on Saturday afternoon, and the time of my going to the chemist Mrs. Seymour called at my house; she called on that Saturday night; I think she came there on business; she remained about half-an-hour; she was in the private portion of my house; during the time she was in my house I did not say one word to her about the mysterious bottle her daughter had brought a few hours previously; not a word; I did not tell Mrs. Seymour anything that night about her daughter having been ill after drinking from the bottle; I thought it was just a bit of a squabble between husband and wife; that things might come out all right, and that there was no use bothering.

Police Court:—I spoke to the prisoner on the Saturday night I got the bottle, but I did not mention anything about the bottle to him, as I let it pass out of my mind; I may have told prisoner I was sorry to hear his child was ill; after the prisoner told me his wife was ill I thought of the bottle.

Conversation
with Dean.

Central Criminal Court:—I saw Dean on Saturday night after I tasted the bottle; I did not tell prisoner of her leaving the bottle.

Commission:—At this particular time I was on friendly terms with Dean; he spoke to me outside my shop on Saturday night; I told Dean his wife had been to my place, but I never mentioned the bottle.

Police

F. W. Gail.

March 4th
(Monday).
Mrs. Seymour
tasted syrup.

Police Court:—Mrs. Seymour saw the bottle on the Monday night, and tasted some on the cork; she did not appear to relish it; Mrs. Seymour did not put anything in the bottle; I saw Mrs. Seymour to the door on the Monday night; she went in the other direction from Dean's house; she left my house about half-past 9.

Took bottle to
Dr. Newmarch.

Police Court:—On a Monday night in March I took a bottle to Dr. Newmarch, like the bottle produced; it had a label like the one produced, "lemon-syrup"; I can swear I gave it to the doctor in the same state as I got it; I was not at Dean's the night I gave the bottle to Dr. Newmarch; I did not attach much importance to Mrs. Dean not coming on the Sunday; I went to Mr. Guise about the bottle; Mr. Guise said he had not time to analyse the syrup.

Central Criminal Court:—The bottle was under my care and was in the same condition when I gave it to Dr. Newmarch; I went to Guise the chemist with it on Sunday night.

Commission:—I got the bottle of lemon-syrup on Saturday, but did not take it to Dr. Newmarch until 10 o'clock on Monday night; I did not take it till that time because I did not place any extra importance on it; the reason I took the bottle to Dr. Newmarch so late as 10 o'clock was through Dean calling on Monday night and saying his wife was so bad that he had to go down for the doctor again; that brought the fact of the bottle to my mind, and I then that there must have been something more than what I thought at first; I delivered it up to Dr. Newmarch, for one thing to get it out of my possession, seeing that she asked me if she did not call back on Saturday would I deliver it to Dr. Newmarch, and I said yes, I would; it should have been taken round to Dr. Newmarch on Saturday.

Appearance of the syrup.

Commission:—I noticed the appearance of the contents in the lemon-syrup bottle; there was only a sediment of white powder at the bottom; I did not notice the colour and consistence; I only saw there was a sediment; the sediment in the bottle was just about enough to cover the bottom; I saw this quite distinctly; the bottle must have been resting when I saw it; she did not have it in her hand when she met me; she had left it at the house; I cannot say whether she took it off the table or from where she took it; it was in the kitchen when it was shown to me, and she asked me to have a drink of it.

Thought carbonate of soda was in the bottle.

Commission:—I thought carbonate of soda was in the bottle of lemon-syrup, because I knew they had not been living very happily together; I cannot give any definite reason why carbonate of soda should have anything to do with them living unhappily, except that there must have been words between them; I account for the white powder in the bottle by carbonate of soda; I do not know that it had anything to do with the quarrel; I thought of carbonate of soda on account of her being sick; I cannot say what the effect of carbonate of soda in lemon syrup would be; I do not know what that would have to do with any quarrel that might have taken place between them; I cannot give any definite reason, but that was the opinion I formed; there must have been some words up there between the husband and wife, because she told me she drank out of the bottle on Friday night, and it did not make her ill; on the Saturday morning she drank again out of the same bottle, and it made her ill; I do not know whether Dean put it in or not; I cannot say what I thought; I cannot give any definite reason.

March 6th
(Wednesday).
Visited Mrs.
Dean. Vomit.

Police Court:—I was at Dean's on Wednesday, about 10 o'clock in the morning; Mrs. Dean was there and her mother; Mrs. Seymour showed me some vomit in the bedroom which was in a chamber.

Commission:—On Wednesday, March 6th, I was at Dean's house about 10 o'clock in the morning; Mrs. Dean was there in bed; I saw her in bed; Mrs. Seymour was in the room at the time; Mrs. Seymour showed me a chamber with vomit in it; I am quite certain of that; I suppose she wanted to show me how bad her daughter had been; I do not think anyone else was there; my wife had been up previous to me in the morning, knowing that Mrs. Dean was ill, and she brought the baby down, and at the same time asked me to bring a block of ice; I took it up; I took the ice to Mrs. Dean, and then came back again.

Ice.
Further supplies of ice.

Commission:—I went on Thursday morning to Dean's house with ice; I think I went on Friday as well; as far as I recollect, I did not go there on any other day of the week with ice; I think it was on Friday night I went; I do not think I was there on Friday morning.

Notes of events at Dean's house.

Commission:—I made these notes at different times (notes handed to President); I was at Dean's house on the 10th of February; had tea there, and we did not leave until between 8 and 9 at night; the notes are in my own handwriting; the dates are taken from my working-day book; I copied the notes from the entries in my van-book; I was not at Dean's on Saturday, 2nd March; I was there on Sunday about 4 o'clock, and stayed about a quarter of an hour; I was not there on Monday; I do not think I was there on Tuesday; I was at Dean's on Wednesday morning; the entry is, "Wife went up in the morning; brought baby back; took ice up"; "Took ice up and showed me tea, and took baby away that night"; that is on Wednesday; on Thursday, "Took ice in the morning; Hans and Mrs. Adye there in kitchen"; Thursday night, "Hans came down with me and wife, and I took food up"; Friday, "Sent boy up that day with tea; brought message back to come up; Dean arrested; Mrs. Adye was there; spoke of tea."

Tea under chest
of drawers.

Commission:—The tea in my notes was the tea under the chest of drawers; Mrs. Seymour showed it to me; she also showed me some vomit; I had quite forgotten when I said I was not shown anything else that I was shown some tea on the Wednesday; Mrs. Seymour showed me the tea and told me how it was placed under the chest of drawers; she said Mrs. Dean was lying on the bed, and Mrs. Adye was in there; she showed me the tea and then put it back under the chest of drawers; she did not say what for; she said she was going to keep it; she told me her daughter had put it there on the Sunday; that she put the tea there after she told Dean to go for Mrs. Adye; she got up and put the tea under the chest of drawers.

Hans Bach.

Commission:—The entry in my notes about Hans Bach refers to the Thursday; he was down stairs in the kitchen when I took the second block of ice up, so was Mrs. Adye; I think Hans went up there for his tools; he had left them at Dean's house; he came down in the cart and told me that he was going to start with Carnegie on the following Monday, and that he was going to Dean's to fetch his tools; he drove with me in the cart and left his tools at my place until the Monday morning; that was the only day I saw Hans there.

Acquaintance
with Mrs. Dean.

Commission:—Mrs. Dean called at my place at different times; I could not say that her visits would be oftener than her mother's; I am not aware that she used to meet her mother at my place; I can swear that they did not meet there during the period I am asked about; I was friendly with Dean at this particular time.

Acquaintance with Mrs.
Seymour

Police Court:—Mrs. Seymour has been a frequent visitor at my house of late; about once a week for the last six weeks—perhaps eight weeks; Mrs. Seymour has asked my advice about purchasing goods; I remember moving Mrs. Seymour's goods from Dean's residence; I remember prisoner saying something about the absence of the mother-in-law meant happiness for him.

Central

Central Criminal Court.—Mrs. Seymour frequently visited my house, averaging once a week.

Commission.—Previous to this alleged poisoning Mrs. Seymour had been in the habit of calling at my place; I believe for six weeks preceding Mrs. Dean's illness Mrs. Seymour called at my place on an average about once a week; we were on friendly terms.

Commission.—I knew Dean before he was married; he was a friend of mine; I have never had a quarrel with him; it was through Dean that I knew his wife and Mrs. Seymour; up to this time I have never had any dispute with Dean about any matter whatever. Acquaintance with Dean.

Commission.—I removed Mrs. Seymour's effects when she left Dean's house at Mossman's Bay; I cannot say for certain that Mrs. Seymour left that house in consequence of a disagreement with her son-in-law; there was a row of some description; but what it was I do not know; I do not remember speaking to Dean about that row; he spoke to me on the day I removed the things; Dean said on that occasion something to the effect that the absence of his mother-in-law meant happiness for him—as much as to say it was a good job she was going. Dean's quarrel with Mrs. Seymour.

Commission.—I believe Mr. Meagher charged me at Darlinghurst with being mixed up in a conspiracy with Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean to charge Dean with having attempted to poison his wife. Charge of conspiracy.

Central Criminal Court.—I am in custody now on a charge of bigamy. (Re-examined).—The arrest for bigamy was the evening before last; I have been living on the Shore five years; my first wife's name was Amelia Hart; she took proceedings for divorce when I was at sea at the time; there was a decree nisi at six months, and when I married again I was under the impression that I was free to marry, and am now; it is two years since I married my present wife; I was asked at the police court about my marriage, and I was arrested since then; there is no truth in the insinuation that I, at the age of 12, was in any way connected with a poisoning case; Fullerton and Murdock arrested me; the divorce case was three years ago; I did not marry till twelve months after. Charge of bigamy.

Commission.—On the Tuesday night before the Wednesday on which Dean's trial was commenced two detectives came to me and read a warrant charging me with bigamy; I was arrested at half-past six on the Tuesday night; I had obtained a decree nisi from my first wife some twelve months previously; I then married again, and did not know that the rule nisi had not been made absolute; this was twelve months after; before the Tuesday night I never heard one word about my being liable to that charge; I was remanded on that charge on three different occasions; after the conviction of Dean no one appeared against me to go on with this charge of bigamy.

Commission.—On Tuesday, 22nd March, Mrs. Dean informed me that she would give up her house, and at her request I removed her furniture from the house she and George Dean previously occupied to my store; the furniture was removed openly during the day time; I was paid £1 for removing it. Removal of Dean's furniture to my store.

Commission.—On 12th April (Good Friday) I went to see Mrs. Dean and her mother at Mrs. Johnson's; they had been staying at Mrs. Johnson's; they said they had been looking for a house the whole of Tuesday; I then took the furniture to No. 1, Macdonald-street, Paddington; I do not know whose house it was; the first load I took over there I met Mrs. Seymour, who told me that Mrs. Dean was very bad; I removed the furniture on the Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, after the 16th April; I was aware that the bulk of the furniture I removed originally belonged to Mrs. Seymour; when I moved the furniture to Paddington Mrs. Seymour was at the house on my arrival; she told me where to put the furniture; Dean's bicycle with the rest of the furniture was taken to Macdonald-street, Paddington; all Dean's furniture was put in the house at Macdonald-street; I removed one load of furniture from Brunswick Cottage to Macdonald-street; I took four loads from Dean's place. Then to Paddington.

Commission.—I remember removing Mrs. Lee's or Mrs. Seymour's furniture and effects from Macdonald-street, Paddington, to Collins-street, Surry Hills; it was stored in a shed opposite Mrs. Johnson's; Mrs. Seymour directed me to put it there, through Mrs. Dean's orders; I saw Mrs. Johnson there; Mrs. Johnson was not at the house in Macdonald-street; I do not know who owns the shed; I have only known Mrs. Johnson since the illness of Mrs. Dean; I met her at Dean's house; the person who told me to put the furniture into the shed, and who appeared to have sole control over the furniture, was Mrs. Seymour, by Mrs. Dean's orders; Mrs. Lee did not accompany me there; the last I saw of Mrs. Lee was at Macdonald-street; on Tuesday, the 16th April, the first load went into the house at Macdonald-street, and the 1st of June was the day it came out; Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Dean have been living for some time with Mrs. Johnson; I took the furniture and stored it at Surry Hills since Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Seymour have been living with the Johnson's; the 1st day of June (Saturday) was the day I moved it; I have had nothing to do with it since; all that I have done with this furniture was done openly in the light of day. Then to Collins-street, Surry Hills.

Commission.—I was told to take a work bench, a trestle, and some timber at Dean's to my place and store them up; some of the timber was used; a piece of cedar was sold, and there is another piece of cedar in the store; I have used a piece worth about 7d. for my own benefit; the instructions I had was to sell it if I could; I used it myself, and credited Mrs. Dean for it; I used two pieces worth 1s. 6d.; the other timber is still stored at my place; there was also some paint and a small tin of varnish; Mrs. Dean told me that these old bottles and rubbish could be left in Miller-street as they were no good; I used some of the paint worth 9d. or 1s., the other things are still at my place; I sold just the one piece of timber for Mrs. Dean for 6d.; I owe that 6d. to Mrs. Dean yet. Work bench, trestle, bar, paint, &c.

Commission.—I have been to Brunswick Cottage on business about three times; I know Mrs. Lee, but did not previously; I remember conveying the occupants of Brunswick Cottage to Macdonald-street, Paddington; Mrs. Seymour was there; I remember young Small who was in my employ; Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Seymour were in the house at Paddington when I drove up with young Small; I do not know what Mrs. Lee is; I never saw her before I was ordered down there on the Monday morning to fetch some things away; I believe Mrs. Lee was at Mrs. Dean's house on some occasion, but I did not see her; I have heard Mrs. Seymour say she was there; I believe it was a week after Dean's arrest, but I am not certain; I know one night we were visiting up there, and a gentleman and lady came out as we went in; I heard afterwards it was Mrs. Lee; I did not know Mrs. Lee then. Mrs. Lee, Brunswick Cottage.

Central Criminal Court, (page 19).—I am sister to Gail; we lived together at West Maitland till up to ten years ago; there is no foundation for any suggestion that Gail was mixed up in a poisoning case; he then went to live with my sister; I never heard of him being mixed up in a poisoning case. Dean: tea under drawers.

Central Criminal Court:—I am the wife of Frederick William Gail; I know Mrs. Dean and prisoner.Commission:—I am the wife of Gail, the proprietor of the van who removed and stored furniture.Central Criminal Court:—I went to see Mrs. Dean on Sunday, March 3rd, about 4 p.m., when she was ill; she was in bed; she showed me her toast; she did not show me some tea.Commission:—I was at Mrs. Dean's house on Sunday, March 3rd, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon; I saw Mrs. Dean; I was shown some toast; Mrs. Dean said that her husband had brought her some tea and toast for breakfast; she told me something about the tea; she said she did not like the look of the tea, and that she got her husband to go for Mrs. Adye, and while he was gone she got out of bed and put the tea in a tumbler and placed it under the chest of drawers, and said, "It is under the chest of drawers"; I did not see it; I am positive she told me that on this occasion; she said there were little white lumps clinging to it; I was examined at the trial at Darlinghurst; before I was examined at the trial I made a statement to Sergeant Brennan; I am positive that what I have stated now I did not state at the trial; the answer I have given to-day was overruled; there was something asked me at the trial, but the answer was objected to; I only spoke about the toast at the trial; I state positively that what I am stating now is true.Acquaintance with the Deans.Commission:—I was on good terms with Mr. and Mrs. Dean; we visited their house, and they visited our house; we gave Mr. and Mrs. Dean a surprise party; I know Dean before he was married; Dean introduced me to his wife; I knew Dean first, then Mrs. Dean; it was through Dean that I knew Mrs. Dean; I never had any disagreement with Dean; he was at our house on the Wednesday before he was arrested, and he left on perfectly good terms.Specimen

History.

I am a butcher, and have been in the Colony about eighteen or nineteen years; I live at Queen and Moncur Streets, Woollahra; I have six daughters and three sons, living in the same house; I lived in Caroline-street, Redfern, for seven years.

Acquaintance
with Dean.

I have known Dean since he was 14 years old; I knew him when he first came down the country to Sydney; he came from Narrandera, I think; he came and lived opposite to my shop in Caroline-street, Redfern, and whilst there he chummed up with my eldest boy; his stepfather's name was Finch; his mother lived in Narrandera, I think; I cannot tell you where Finch is; I knew Dean up to the time he was taken in charge; I think he worked for a blacksmith, and also for a man named Chadwick before he went into the service of the North Shore Ferry Company; I do not know the name of the blacksmith; it must have been about ten years ago since he first went into the employ of the Company, because I have been living in Woollahra six years; he was visiting at my place at the time this unfortunate occurrence happened; he lived with me for three or four years; he was living with me up to the time he got married; he got married from my place; how Dean came to live with me was that his stepfather was living with another woman, and on this the boy left; this was in Caroline-street, Redfern; the woman might have been his stepfather's housekeeper; I do not say that the reason Dean left the house was because his father was living with this woman; he left because there was a stepmother; I knew this woman because she used to get meat from me; I believe she did go by the name of Mrs. Finch; I did not trust them; I cannot say that the woman was not his wife; I supplied them with meat about thirteen years ago; I cannot say that I ever spoke to Mr. Finch; I only saw him when he came back from the country; I have never seen Dean's mother; I know nothing about her; I believe Dean had a stepbrother by this man Finch; one stepbrother was on the "Vernon," but Dean did not tell me how he got there; I think Dean had a stepister, and that she is now at Narrandera with her mother; I heard Dean say that he got the stepbrother who was on the "Vernon" a place; I do not know where the stepbrother is now; Dean did not tell me that Finch was married to his mother.

Visit to the Cook's.

I have been doing all I can to get Dean out of this difficulty; I have only been to one party to get evidence to show that Dean was innocent; I went to Willoughby to see a person by the name of Cook; I went on two occasions, the first time with Mr. Paul, a member of the Defence Committee; on the second occasion I went to fetch Mrs. Cook in to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's; I took her in my trap from Willoughby; on the first visit Mr. Paul asked Mrs. Cook whether she knew anything about a woman and poison, and she said that she was in Walker-street, North Sydney, when a woman came up and asked her would she come into a chemist's shop and sign for some poison; she said she looked at the woman and said, "If you want to buy poison, the best thing you can do is to get a policeman"; I believe the description she gave of the woman corresponded with Mrs. Seymour; I also went to another Mrs. Cook; I have been to the Water Police Court, and have seen Mrs. Seymour give evidence; Mrs. Seymour has been to my house at Woollahra; when George Dean got married Mrs. Dean and she came as visitors; I have seen Mrs. Seymour a number of times since Dean got married; when we went to the first Mrs. Cook's there was no one there, and Mr. Paul told me to drive further down, somewhere, and there we saw Mr. Cook; we picked him up, and went to his house, and saw his wife; Mr. Cook then came with us to the second Mrs. Cook, and she described the woman who asked her to sign for some poison; she said the woman was tall and stoutish, and she would know her again if she saw her; I did not go to three places that day; I drove Mrs. Cook to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office, and then Mr. Paul drove her to Mrs. Seymour's, in Riley-street, Surry Hills; I did not go with Mr. Paul; I drove up in my trap with Mr. Williamson; I know nothing of the character of Mrs. Seymour's house.

Dean's courtship and marriage.

Dean did not tell me he was going to get married—not a word; he used to come home in the morning at 8 o'clock, half-past 8, or 9 o'clock, sometimes later; during the latter part of his stay with us he was on the night North Shore steamer; we used to call him at half-past 10 o'clock at night; he got his supper supper, and then got on his bicycle and went to work; he used sometimes to say, "I want my supper earlier, I am going to see May"; I did not know he was going to get married some time or other; I knew he was keeping company, but I did not know he was going to marry the girl; he did not go out very often; sometimes he would go out and home to tea, and then lay down and sleep till half-past 10; he used to go out on his bicycle about half an hour before his usual time at night before he was married; I cannot tell how often he used to do that; I do not know how often he went on this love-making business; he has fetched Mary Seymour to my place; I think he was keeping company with her about seven months before he got married.

I have had an opportunity of judging of his character as a boy; he was at my place all the time; I cannot say a word bad about him—everything good; I looked upon him as a son; I have known him ever since, and he has retained that character all through his life up till now; when he was not at work he was always at our place, in the daytime and at night; I was constantly seeing him.

I am married to the second son of Frederick Konnecke, who carries on a butchering business at Woollahra; I live in John-street, Woollahra, close to my father; I was married in June last; my husband is a butcher—in the same business as his father; I was visiting my father-in-law's for four years before I was married.

History.

I know Dean and Mrs. Dean; I was in the habit of visiting Mrs. Dean at her house after she was married to Dean, and she visited our house; I did not know Mrs. Dean before she was married; I was introduced to her by Miss Konnecke, my sister-in-law, about a month afterwards, I think; this was at Mrs. Konnecke's, where Mrs. Dean was on a visit; that was the first time I met her, at my father-in-law's; I have met her there dozens of times since.

Dean and Mrs.
Dean.

I used to visit Mrs. Dean all day of a Sunday; I went on two or three Sundays, in addition to spending a week with her at her house.

Visits to Mrs.
Dean.

I remember on one occasion, when visiting Mrs. Dean, at her house for a week, having a conversation about her husband; she told me that she liked him at first—that she was very fond of him; but after her mother used to come and interfere she turned against him; she used to say that Dean was kind and good to her; it was about five or six months after she was married that I stayed with her for a week; Mrs. Dean told me that they got on alright till the mother-in-law interfered; she told me she hated him.

—said she hated
Dean.

I noticed Dean's habits while I was staying there; he was very good and always working; he would come home in the morning at 8 o'clock, and went out at half-past 10 at night; in the daytime he was always making things for her, and always good to her; he did not take very much rest; he used to be working of a morning and would lie down of an afternoon; when he was going to his work at night he used to be always kissing her; she did not kiss him; he always kissed her; on one occasion I asked her why did she let him kiss her; she said, "It's only put on"; that was after the statement she made about her mother; I will swear that Dean never went to bed till the afternoon; I will swear that I asked this married woman why she allowed her husband to kiss her, also that he was kind and affectionate, that there was no cause for complaint, and that he was everything that a husband and man ought to be, and that she told me that it was only "put on"; I mean to convey by "put on" that she just suffered his kissing her.

Dean at home—
Kind and affectionate.

Dean was on the best of terms with the Konnecke family when he lived with them; they seemed to be very fond of him; he was like one of the family.

At Konnecke's—
Like one of the family.

I never asked Dean why he did not tell me he was married, nor did I ask Mrs. Dean; she did not tell me.

Dean's marriage.

Mrs. Dean's baby was taken to our house on March 6; I took it there from Mr. Gail's; it was taken to Dean's house first, and then to our house; it was not very ill when we took it back; we never took it to a doctor or to anyone from our house; I do not know whether it was taken to a doctor afterwards; Mrs. Seymour took it, but I do not know where; I do not think the child was ill when it came to our house; it was pale-looking, but not ill; Dean came to our house, and asked me to take the child away; Mrs. Seymour took the child on the Tuesday following; it was not brought back to our house after that; I think the child was strong and healthy, but pale-looking; it was at our house from the 6th to the 12th, and was not taken to Dr. Newmarch during that time; it took its food properly in our house, slept well, and cried now and again; I do not think it whined like a sickly child; I was nursing it most of the time, so that if anybody in our house should know anything about it I should; it was in perfect health all the time it was in our house; Mrs. Seymour did not express any dissatisfaction with the manner in which the child had been treated in our house—not at all; I do not think it was on account of its being ill that Mrs. Seymour took it away; she had no complaint to make against me, and since then she has made no complaint that I have heard of; the child did not vomit or purge while at our house.

I know George Dean very well, also Mrs. Dean; I know he was keeping company with Mary Seymour, but did not know he was going to marry her; I knew they were married a fortnight afterwards; Dean did not make any secret of his keeping company with Miss Seymour; it was understood that he was going to marry her, but we did not know when; I did not know when he actually did marry; he was living at our place; he stayed on living at our place after he was married; I cannot say for how long; he brought Mrs. Dean to our place after they were married; I never asked him why he kept the marriage a secret, and did not think it strange, although he had been living at our house as one of the family; I know of no reason why they should keep the marriage a secret; he called her May when she came to the house and marriage.

- Ellen Konnecke. house before I discovered they were married; I knew he was paying his addresses to Miss Seymour, with the intention of making her his wife, for about four or five months previous to the marriage; my sister was the first to tell me he was married; they were married in a proper way, at St. David's, by the Rev. Mr. Hargreaves, a Church of England clergyman.
- Dean a good fellow. While Dean was living with our family he seemed a very kind, good, and trustworthy fellow; I would say he was a very good fellow in every sense; my brothers and sisters and parents had every confidence in him; he was living in our house between three and four years; I knew nothing against him.
- Sometimes surly. Sometimes he was very surly; sometimes he would not speak for days, but I did not know the reason; what I mean by surly is that he was quiet for two or three days at a time.
- Dean's antecedents. Dean was previously living with his stepfather, a person named Finch; I think he was living at Miller's Point before he came to us; Finch was living opposite to my father's shop, but I cannot say whether he was living there when Dean came to us; his mother lived at Narrandera; I do not know what her name was; I do not know his stepfather; I have heard Dean speak of having a brother on board the "Vernon," but do not know whether it was an elder or younger brother; I did not know that Finch, who was living opposite to us, was the second husband of Dean's mother; Dean, when he first came to us, was George Dean, not George Finch; I have no idea how long it was before that that he bore the name of George Finch; I did not know of a charge against him at Wagga or Narrandera whilst he was living with us, or that he was convicted on a charge; it comes upon me as a surprise; I knew Finch was married to Dean's mother—that he was living with her; that he was not living with his wife—that Mrs. Dean was at Narrandera.
- Miss Cassin. Dean was engaged to a Miss Cassin a long while before he married Miss Seymour; he was keeping company with Miss Cassin for about three years; it was years before he was married that he ceased to keep company with Miss Cassin; Miss Cassin has been to our house; I knew Dean was paying his addresses to her, in the same way as to Miss Seymour; he had been bringing Miss Cassin to our house over two or three years; they walked out in the evening in the ordinary way.

- History. I am married, and live with my husband in Cole's Road, Mossman's Bay; my husband is overseer of works for the Borough of Mosman.
- Acquaintance with Dean. I have known George Dean about six years; I kept a refreshment room at No. 4 Jetty, Circular Quay, and I knew him by his coming into my shop, where he has been many times to buy things; I was a resident of Mosman's, and used to speak to him on the boats; both Mrs. Dean and he came to my shop; I saw them about twice together in my shop.
- Mrs. Dean. I knew Mrs. Dean before she was married, because she came into my shop; I did not know that she and Dean kept company together.
- Intercourse between the families. From where we lived in Cole's Road to where Dean lived was about five minutes' walk; we have visited them at Belmont Road, and Mrs. Dean was in my place nearly every day; I also went to see her in Miller-street; I was there three times.
- Mrs. Dean said "George is very kind." Mrs. Dean never spoke bad of her husband when they lived in Belmont Road; I cannot say whether she ever mentioned to me about her love for her husband when I visited her in Miller-street; the first time her mother was staying there Mrs. Dean said he was very kind—"George is very kind, I wish he would be always like that."
- Did not always speak well of him. Mrs. Dean did not always speak affectionately about him; after he had a quarrel with her mother she did not do so; when her baby was about three weeks old she sent me a letter to come and see her, and I went; that was some time in January; she spoke to me about her husband then; she told me they had just had a quarrel in the morning; Mrs. Seymour was there when she told me first about the quarrel.
- "Do not know who to please." After the mother left, Mrs. Dean came over to me, and said, "I am very glad mother has left; I do not know who to please when mother is here."
- March 5th (Tuesday). Conversation with Dean. I remember seeing Dean on the 5th March, a Tuesday; I was standing just opposite the Town Hall, at the corner of Mount-street, North Sydney, waiting for a tram, when Dean came up on his bicycle, and I noticed him and called him over; it was about a quarter to 9 or 9 o'clock in the morning; I had some conversation with him; I asked him first, "What is the matter with you, George?" because I saw he looked very bad; he told me he was going to the chemist's for medicine; he was crying bitterly before he could speak a word; he said May was nearly dead, and asked me to go and see her; I said, "I have no time"; he did not burst out crying when I put the question, "What is the matter, George?" he was crying before that, when I called him over; this occurred just near the chemist's, opposite the Town Hall; I did not notice whether he had a mark on his face or not; I have never seen him in any way under the influence of drink, and I am sure he had no drink then; I did not go to see Mrs. Dean then because I had no time.
- Daughter present. My daughter was with me, and I think she could hear what was said; my daughter spoke to George, but I do not remember what she said; her name is Elise Knoll, and she is a married woman, residing at Mossman's Bay; I did not say anything about my daughter being with me before, because I did not want her to be mentioned, and she did not want it either; I have spoken to her about this matter, but do not remember whether I have spoken to her about the conversation I had with Dean.
- Told Dean of wife's troubles. I told Dean that Mrs. Dean had not spoken well of him on the day I met him going for the medicine; I only asked him, "What about the quarrels you always have together?" they had been quarrelling; they lived affectionately till the mother came, but after that they lived on very bad terms; he replied, "It is not my fault, I am alright with May. It is only the mother"; as far as I could see the quarrels arose through the mother; I did not tell him this before; I never saw him after he left Mossman's Bay till I saw him going for the medicine.
- March 9th (Friday). Visited Mrs. Dean. I visited Mrs. Dean on the following Friday, March 9th, about 1 o'clock in the afternoon; I did not go before because I had no time; on the Tuesday I had to go to Sydney on business, and I did not go on the Wednesday or Thursday, although I was told she was nearly dead, and Dean was crying.

When

When I went to Mrs. Dean's on Friday, 9th March, I saw Mrs. Seymour there, and had some conversation with her; she told me that "the detectives were here this morning, and that George was likely to be arrested to-night"; she said, "You see what he has done to my child"; I said, "I am sure you can't say he done that"; she says, "Who else do you think would do it?" I cannot say exactly what she said; she added, "You see he gets a few years for that, and after that May can get a divorce."

Dean's arrest.

How she came to give evidence.

I did not go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office at first to give information about this matter; two gentlemen on the North Shore came to see me; my husband said he would not have me mixed up in it; I went to a Mrs. Sutton, and Mrs. Sutton came to me once, and asked me for a photograph of Mrs. Dean, and then I went to see Mrs. Sutton to bring the photo. back; we were talking about the matter, and she said to me, "You ought to know something about Dean"; and I said, "I don't like to be mixed up with it"; my husband does not like me to be mixed up with it; and she said to me, "If he is innocent you ought to speak"; I said, "If he is innocent I would like to speak"; and she said, "Then come with me, and we will go to Mr. Elliott"; we went to Mr. Elliott, and then I told the gentlemen what I knew; after that, two gentlemen—a Mr. Davis, and I don't know the other gentleman's name—came and asked me; they did not send me anywhere; I did not go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's; I made a statement to those two gentlemen only; I did not tell them my daughter was with me on that occasion; I did not want my daughter's name to be mentioned, and she did not want it either; my daughter knows I am coming here; I have not seen her since Sunday; my husband told her I was coming here, and she did not like it.

I know George Dean, and remember seeing him one day early in March; I think it was between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning; I was with my mother at the time; in Miller-street, I think it was, North Shore; he was on his bicycle, and got off and spoke to my mother; I heard what was said; he said his wife was very ill, and he asked my mother if she would go up and see her; my mother declined; my mother asked him what was the matter with her, and he said, "She is very ill, vomiting"; my mother asked him what was the cause, and he replied, "There is some rumour going about that she has been drinking lemon syrup out of a bottle containing a white powder, and they blame me for it"; my mother said, "Surely, George, you would not poison your wife?"; he said, "No, that is the last thing I would do; I would sooner join a ship and leave her than I would poison her"; I don't know whether those were exactly the words, but that was the substance of what my mother said; Dean looked very miserable at the time, and was crying; my mother asked him where he was going, and he said to the chemist's; the doctor had given him a prescription, he said, and he was going to the chemist to get the medicine; this occurred on a Tuesday; that was the only occasion on which I and my mother saw Dean; he seemed to be very much distressed about it; there was no sign of his having been drinking; I don't know either Dean or Mrs. Dean very well.

I reside with my husband at Belmont-street, Mossman's Bay; my husband is captain of the Mossman's Bay steamer; my husband was in charge of one boat and Dean of another boat belonging to the same Company.

History.

I know George Dean, and first became acquainted with him about eleven years ago; he was then living with some people named Lawson, in Cumberland-street; then he came to live with us; I think it was in 1886 or 1887 when he came to live with us; he lived with us for thirteen months and a couple of weeks; he was then employed as a fire-boy on board the steamer which runs from Circular Quay to Mossman's Bay; my husband was then employed by the same Company as an engine-driver, but on another steamer; I do not know that my husband and Dean worked together on the same boat; Dean has not been to our house very often since he was married; I believe he has been on three occasions; he has come to teach my husband to ride a bicycle; he and my husband went together to learn to ride on a bicycle, and then Dean returned home; he did not stay to dinner or tea.

Acquaintance with Dean

I know Mrs. Dean; I met her for the first time about a fortnight after she was married to Dean; to the best of my knowledge they were residing with her mother when I became acquainted with her; I was on friendly terms with both her and her husband; we were on visiting terms with one another; she used to come to my house very often; she had a particular reason for coming to my house; I taught her cooking after she took a house of her own, and she frequently came to my house for this purpose—sometimes three times in one day.

Acquaintance with Mrs. Dean.

On one of these visits she spoke to me about her husband; a fortnight after she was married, when she was living at her mother's, she came to see me; when she was getting ready to go home she saw an envelope on the chest of drawers in my room with a likeness of George Dean in it; the envelope was addressed to my husband, in his name, by Dean; it was a photograph given to my husband; Mrs. Dean picked up the envelope, and said, "Oh! what an ignorant fellow; he cannot write; he is a bad writer; I would not have married him except for the good screw he got"; it was on a Sunday when Dean brought her to visit me; that was the first time I met her; as far as I know they had been married then about a fortnight; she was in the bedroom alone with me when she said this; she was putting on her things ready to go home at the time; her husband was in the back yard playing with the children; I mean to say that Mrs. Dean said this to me, a comparative stranger; Dean gets £3 per week; shortly after this the Deans came to reside near me in the same street.

Conversation with Mrs. Dean—Dean's photograph.

I remember Mrs. Dean coming to my house on a certain Thursday in February last; she then made an observation to me about her husband; she had been to see a Mrs. Pfafflin, a neighbour, and she brought the baby with her; I was surprised when I saw her at the door with so young a baby in her arms; she told me then "she wished she had been struck dead on the day she married George Dean"; this conversation

Second conversation—after birth of baby—
Second language.

Mrs. Ann
Hughes.

conversation took place in the afternoon; she was in the dining-room, having a cup of tea; I had to leave her after I had given her a cup of tea, as I had to go and fit some bodices on the minister's children in another room; I am a dressmaker, and the minister's three little children called to have their bodices fitted; I went into the other room, and when I came back after fitting the bodices she said she wished she had been struck dead the day she married George Dean; I admit that, although I knew her husband, and had been a friend for years, I and Mrs. Dean were strangers until after they were married, but we were not strangers when this conversation took place.

Third conversation—spoke of divorce.

Mrs. Dean visited us again on the Sunday following; in the course of conversation, she said they had had a quarrel before she came out; I had asked her to come to dinner on that day; I asked her what they had been quarrelling about, and she said, "He brought the meat to cook for dinner, and I would not cook it"; she said she wished he would do something, so that she could get rid of him; this conversation took place on Sunday, February 10th; I asked her, when she said this, what she would do, and she said she would sue for a divorce; she was sitting in the rocking chair with the baby in her arms; she put the baby on her lap, and lifted up her hands on a level with her breast, and said, "Oh! I wish he would do something so as I could get rid of him"; I remember that most distinctly; I said to her, "What would you do?"; she said in reply, "I would sue for a divorce"; that was pretty well all the conversation; she left my house after tea; Miss Cassin was there to tea, and met her too; there was no one present but Mrs. Dean and I when she used the words.

Knew Dean
as Finch.

I knew Dean went by the name of George Finch; I know he went by his stepfather's name; when he first came to live with me, I asked him his name, and he said he took his stepfather's name, and called himself George Finch; when I knew him first he was called a nick-name more than anything else; they used to call him "Springey"; he first took the name of George Dean at my house; I told him it was not right to take his stepfather's name—he ought to use his own father's name; I do not think he had been at our house long before he took the name of George Dean; I cannot tell how long—I do not think it was more than a month; all I know is he used to get letters addressed sometimes to George Finch and sometimes to George Dean; but there were not many letters.

Dean's antecedents.

I did not know Dean's stepfather; I did not know that his stepfather was living with a woman who was not Dean's mother; I know nothing about a criminal charge having been brought against Dean or Finch at Narrandera or Wagga Wagga, for which he got three months' imprisonment; he never told me anything about that; I knew nothing about his mother or sisters; I did not know anything about his having a brother on board the "Vernon"; I did not know his father, but he told me his own father was a policeman; he did not say where, and I do not know; I did not ask him where his father was a policeman—I had other things to attend to, without minding his business; I know nothing at all about his family; as far as I know, my husband was not aware that Dean had been in trouble up country, or that he had a brother on board the "Vernon."

Dean's
character.

During the thirteen months Dean resided with us he always seemed to be very kind; I had a child sick at the time, and he always asked about it; he always conducted himself in a respectable way; I would not have had him at my house if he had not.

Statutory declaration.

I attended at the Darlinghurst Court during Dean's trial; I made a sworn declaration to the same effect as the evidence I have given to-day on the 10th of April; Dean was convicted on the 6th; I made that sworn declaration in Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office.

Miss Cassin.

Miss Cassin is a young lady that Dean knew; he knew her five or six years ago; he was keeping company with her; then he was paying his addresses to Miss Pfafflin long after that; I suppose his wife is another to whom he was paying his addresses; I have known Miss Cassin about nine years; I was in the waiting-room at Darlinghurst on the Friday, and that was the day I saw Miss Cassin; she was examined that day; I knew that Dean was examined on that day; I read in the paper that Captain Summerbell was examined on the Friday; Miss Cassin went into Court to know if I was wanted; that was at half-past 8 at night, after I had waited all day; Miss Cassin is staying with me now; she came to my place, ill with influenza, about five weeks ago; I do not know that Miss Cassin had a great affection for this man—not since their engagement was broken off; I do not know anything about before that; I do not know whether she had affection for him after the engagement was broken off, and he had married somebody else; it is not a fact that Miss Cassin was broken down with grief and became ill on account of this charge against Dean; it was a heavy cold she had; that is what was the matter with her; why, she is engaged to another young fellow now; the new engagement has been on about two years and a half.

Miss Pfafflin.

I know Miss Pfafflin slightly, just enough to say "Good morning"; they keep a shop at the corner of the Mossman's Bay Wharf; you buy your boat tickets there.

My husband asked me to give evidence.

I have taken an interest in this case all the time; my husband told me to come here to give evidence; my husband was living with me all the time Dean was living at our house; I do not know who got him to tell me to come here; I was subpoenaed; I was up at the Court one day, at the time of the trial, but my evidence was not wanted; I went with the intention of giving evidence for Dean, and, after waiting a whole day, I was not called; I do not know the exact date when I went to Crick and Meagher's office; I was at their office this morning; my husband told me to go to the Court, and I came here on a subpoena; on Saturday night I got my subpoena to be here on Monday; my husband brought the subpoena home with him on Saturday night; I knew that Dean was being tried for his life at Darlinghurst for administering poison to his wife with intent to poison her; I was not at the Police Court, North Shore, when he was charged with this offence, still I knew that he was committed for trial, and that he was to be tried at Darlinghurst; I did not know that the defence set up was that there was a conspiracy between this man's wife, her mother, and some other person in connection with this charge; of course, I took a strong interest in this case from its very inception; I did not think that Dean might have been hanged for this affair; if I had thought that, I should have gone to the Police Court and told them what I knew; my husband and I have not talked over this matter pretty freely; sometimes we have talked about it; I had not been to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's before going to the Central Criminal Court; I merely went as a witness, and was not called; after waiting all day I sent in to know if I was wanted, and Mr. Meagher sent word out, "Not to-day"; I had my baby in my arms and wanted to get home; Miss Cassin told me I could go home.

Dean's marriage

I first knew that Dean was married on the Sunday he and his wife came to my house.

I know a disease called influenza, of the gastro-intestinal type; I have seen a great many cases of it; to my mind there is not much distinction between it and poisoning by ptomaine or other irritants; were influenza not prevalent at the time it would be very difficult to say whether the disease was due to poisoning or influenza, it is so similar; the main thing that would make one inclined to put this illness down as being due to influenza would be generally the great depression that accompanies the disease of influenza; when you find gastro-intestinal trouble accompanied by extreme depression at a time when influenza itself is prevalent, you usually put it down to that cause; there is no marked difference that I know of between cases of influenza of this type, where there is vomiting and purging, as compared with ptomaine poisoning; with respect to temperature, I should expect to find a higher temperature when diagnosing a case, in influenza, as compared with ptomaine poisoning; at the same time in many cases of influenza the temperature is not very high; diarrhoea often seems to have the effect of lowering the temperature; there is extreme depression in these cases of gastro-intestinal influenza; I have seen one case of peripheral neuritis which has followed on influenza; it occurred some two or three years since; the patient was a man who came from the country suffering from peripheral neuritis, which, to the best of my belief, although it is a point upon which I cannot be absolutely sure, was an after effect of influenza; the man complained of shooting pains in both legs, and more or less all over his body, accompanied by great loss of power and difficulty in walking; he had to be almost carried from his cab into my room; he was assisted into the room, as he was almost paralytic; I would not like to say there was any wasting of the muscles in the case, but I believe there was; I only saw the man on two or three occasions, and that was about two or three years ago; he then drifted away from Sydney, to where I do not know; I had no consultation with any other doctor on the case; I cannot say whether the paralysis of which I speak affected any certain group or groups of muscles; I only said that this symmetrical peripheral neuritis occurred in both legs and arms, followed on, and was associated with, influenza, because, from what I recollect of the history of the case, I believed the man had suffered from influenza, which was the prevailing epidemic at that time; I cannot be certain about the disease, but that is my impression; I was not able to attribute the peripheral neuritis to alcohol, or to any other cause except influenza; I did seek for other causes, but could only arrive at the conclusion that it was due to influenza; that is my opinion from the history of the case; in cases of peripheral neuritis there is nothing, as a rule, to guide you as to the cause other than the history of the case; when I speak of the history of the case, I include and consider all the previous symptoms and probable causes of the illness; it is a fact that everything a patient tells me makes the history of a case—of course, together with the symptoms I observe; I have found little or no description of peripheral neuritis arising from influenza of the gastro-intestinal type in medical books; I have seen a few cases of peripheral neuritis, not more than three, extending over a practice covering some years; I cannot say of my own knowledge or from my reading that it is well known as a matter of medical science that there are certain symptoms shown in peripheral neuritis arising from arsenical poisoning which do not appear when peripheral neuritis has followed influenza; nor can I say that there are any such symptoms or results which would enable me to say that any particular case of peripheral neuritis did not arise from influenza; I do not know it from my own experience or from books; I only remember three cases of peripheral neuritis arising from any cause whatever; I do not limit those cases to having been caused by influenza; I referred to them as cases arising from all causes; there may be some difference between the symptoms of peripheral neuritis arising from arsenical poisoning and from other causes, but I do not know of it yet, either practically or theoretically.

I have seen two cases of poisoning by arsenic in the practice of my profession; they were the two husbands of Louisa Collins; both were poisoned; as well as I recollect there was not any rise in temperature in these cases; I had not an opportunity of observing these cases some time after the poison was actually taken; I only saw one case on two occasions, and in the other I only saw the patient once; I was merely called in for consultation; the patients did not live long enough to show any symptoms other than the immediate irritant symptoms; death came too soon.

This prescription, dated 3rd January, 1895, contains liq. morphia acct., 6 drachms; spirit of chloroform, 3 drachms; there are twelve doses in all; there are 6 ounces in the whole mixture—half an ounce to each dose; in each half ounce there is half a drachm of morphia acetate; that prescription contains a large dose of morphia; I think it is a heavy dose if it were for a woman, especially if it were the first prescription; personally I would rather commence with a smaller dose; by the prescription six doses would be taken in twenty-four hours; provided she took it, she would then have taken three drachms of liquid morphia acetate; I believe that would be between a grain and a half and two grains of morphia; it would depend upon circumstances whether that quantity taken in successive doses in twenty-four hours would be likely to make a woman vomit; one of the circumstances is whether she was accustomed to take morphia, and another factor which must be taken into consideration is, that were there any great pain, the patient would tolerate more morphia; if she were not in great pain, or had not taken any morphia before, these would be large doses, provided there was no idiosyncrasy; some people can tolerate more than others; supposing there was vomiting I certainly think doses like this would account for it; if I gave that prescription myself to a person, and in twenty-four hours that person began to vomit, it might be owing to the mixture; if this prescription was for giving the woman morphia the first time, I would not have given her doses as large as that, not if I had no previous knowledge of her constitution.

Mrs. Dean's illness. Prescription of January 3, 1895,
morphia.

The prescription produced is dated the 4th of January, 1895; I see that it is an effervescent mixture containing hydrocyanic acid; I should look upon it as a sedative mixture to relieve vomiting, or, rather, as a sedative effervescent mixture; I do not think it would be likely to be given by a doctor if he desired to counteract purging and vomiting; there is nothing in it to counteract purging, and Rochelle salts is slightly purgative; I do not know exactly what quantity of Rochelle salts could produce purging, but but there is nearly as much in the whole prescription as there is in an ordinary seidlitz powder; but, I see I must explain the quantity ordered is divided into sixteen doses; in point of fact, the medicine was prescribed for vomiting; there is nothing in the prescription that would stop purging; in the whole sixteen doses there is about the same quantity of Rochelle salts as in a seidlitz powder, but there is really no purgative force in a dose containing $\frac{1}{16}$ part of a seidlitz powder; there is nothing there to directly relieve purging; it is to relieve vomiting.

The quantity of poison Mrs. Dean took.

In the measure-glass produced [tumbler and measure-glass produced], I have 8 ounces of water; I pour it from the measure-glass to the tumbler, and I notice it fills the glass up to the brim; it is practically a tumbler full of water, but strictly speaking it is not absolutely full; my mouth holds half an ounce of water; I have tried it; I see that Mrs. Dean said she took two or three mouthfuls of the lemon syrup; the amount of strychnine she would take if a mouthful of lemon syrup in water weighed, say, half an ounce—that is, if the glass contained $2\frac{3}{4}$ ounces of syrup, which, in turn, contained 1.5 grains of strychnine—would be fully an ounce, and would contain $\frac{2}{3}$ of a grain, that is, practically, $\frac{1}{2}$ of a grain; the same argument would apply to arsenic; there were $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains of arsenic in the $2\frac{3}{4}$ fluid ounces of lemon syrup; there would be 7.416 or $1\frac{1}{4}$ of arsenic; the glass would contain 3 ounces; I should think she would drink one-eighth of that, so that in swallowing and taking two or three mouthfuls of this drink she must have taken about $\frac{1}{8}$ of a grain of strychnine and the 6th of a grain of arsenic; that is, assuming that the two mouthfuls contained, say, half an ounce each; I agree that $\frac{1}{8}$ of a grain of strychnine is the ordinary medical dose, and that $\frac{1}{12}$ of a grain is the maximum dose; that is just about half the quantity of $\frac{1}{8}$ of a grain; if I gave strychnine in anything like that quantity to a woman on an empty stomach in the morning the effect would be greater and more immediate in its action than if I gave it after a meal; $\frac{1}{8}$ of a grain of strychnine is a large dose; it is quite possible that this quantity given on an empty stomach would cause symptoms, and, if these symptoms were caused, they would be marked symptoms, such, for instance, as could not be overlooked, or that a woman could not overlook herself; this dose would not necessarily cause symptoms; like other medicines, the symptoms from strychnine vary in different subjects; I agree with the quotation read from Potter's "Materia Medica," having reference to a full dose (see page 114); these are the symptoms you can expect in some cases as the result of an excessive dose.

The symptoms.

With reference to the quotation from Dr. Newmarch's evidence at the Criminal Court:—"When I saw her at 8:10 she was very pale; skin moist and clammy; tongue clean; symptoms gone of vomiting and purging directly after taking anything," &c.; these symptoms are consistent with other illnesses besides arsenical poisoning; these are ptomaine poisoning from tinned meats, the gastric form of influenza, and sporadic cholera; these symptoms are consistent with these conditions—I have read the evidence of Mrs. Dean's; I have read the account of Mrs. Dean's illness; it might be quite possible that these two occasions were part of the same illness with a slight intermission between; I can hardly say, if I had to form an opinion that she had ptomaine poisoning, whether I could see in the history of her illness any cause to change the course of diagnosis; there might be something in her aspect and appearance to guide me; it is a question I could hardly answer.

Strychnine; its action.

In small medicinal doses strychnine has a tonic effect on the heart, and increases the blood pressure; it is usual to give strychnine in some cases of weakness of the heart; it will strengthen a weak heart when given in medicinal doses; it also makes the heart's action steadier, slows the pulse, and makes it stronger; that is, if strychnine is administered in tonic doses; that dose is three to five minims of liq. strychnine, from $\frac{1}{16}$ th to $\frac{1}{8}$ th of a grain; that would be a tonic dose, and would strengthen the action of a weak heart; I agree that a large dose will stimulate the cardiac muscles, and tend to produce irregular and peristaltic contraction of the heart; I think that a $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain is large enough to do that; the after-effects of an excessive dose of strychnine on the heart would be to weaken the heart's action and make it more rapid; the heart would subsequently have less muscular power than if it had before the administration of the strychnine; the stimulating effects of strychnine on the the heart are transient, and after passing away the heart is left more exhausted than it was before; it is a rule in administering strychnine as a cardiac tonic to repeat the dose frequently; it depends upon the patient how often—within the limits of two, three, or four hours you must be guided by the condition of the heart's action; if a large dose of strychnine were given at 7 o'clock in the morning, even if it produced no symptoms at the time of administration, I think that by 3 o'clock in the afternoon a reaction from over stimulant would have set in, and the heart's action would consequently be depressed; strychnine in medicinal or small doses will strengthen the heart-beat, but in large doses it produces irregular action of the heart.

Arsenic—a dose.
Its action.

The maximum medicinal dose of arsenic which is given in practice is $\frac{1}{12}$ of a grain; I never like to give more than $\frac{1}{12}$ of a grain; of course, that is to begin with, I mean; arsenic is more rapidly absorbed on an empty stomach than if given on a full stomach; we always instruct patients to use it after taking food; if you gave $\frac{1}{12}$ of a grain of arsenic to a person not accustomed to its use, and it was used on an empty stomach, I think it would be likely to produce symptoms; there would be a great tenderness, possibly vomiting, and if the person were weak, there would be slight symptoms of a weak action of the heart; it would be quite possible for purging to come later on; these symptoms from arsenic on an empty stomach would be expected to arise within ten minutes, or up to half an hour; the times vary according to circumstances; if a woman had taken an excessive dose of arsenic on an empty stomach, and vomiting and purging had followed all the morning, she would be very weak in the afternoon; I think it is not at all likely that the effects of the poison would have disappeared by the afternoon; I do not think she would be able to walk about during that afternoon, or to carry a baby in her arms—certainly not; I think, after vomiting and purging, she would show a great deal of nervous exhaustion; arsenic acts a poison in two ways—it is an irritant on the mucous lining of the stomach; secondly, it acts when absorbed upon the whole of the constitution of the person who had taken it; one of the first symptoms of arsenical poisoning is collapse and weak action of the heart; that is due to vomiting and purging, as well as shock to the patient, and irritation of the stomach; this is in addition to the effect of arsenic upon the heart itself; arsenic weakens the heart beat.

Strychnine and arsenic. Alleged antagonism.

I do not think any of the muscular tissues upon which the arsenic acts when it produces the depressed action of the heart are the same tissues which strychnine acts upon when it strengthens the heart's beat; I am of opinion, theoretically, that strychnine and arsenic cannot counteract one another; strychnine acts on the muscular tissues of the heart and strengthens its action, assuming that it is given in tonic doses, doses, while arsenic produces a collapse, which is usually accompanied by anæmia of the brain, which is the want of a proper supply of blood to the brain; this produces collapse; anæmia of the brain brings about great weakness; arsenic acts on the tissues of the stomach and strychnine on the heart; if a stimulating dose of strychnine was taken, I do not believe it would leave the force of the heart beat unaltered; if you had a stimulant dose of strychnine added to a depressing dose of arsenic I do not think there would be any effect on the force of the heart; if you had a poisonous dose of strychnine and a poisonous dose of arsenic together, the result would be that you would have poisoning by strychnine and by arsenic; these would not neutralise one another outside the body; they would not neutralise inside the body; I do not know of any clinical experience or experimental evidence to justify the assertion, "supposing a person took a dose of arsenic, then took a dose of strychnine, it would be an antidote to it;" supposing that two doses were taken together, we should have poisoning by arsenic and by strychnine then; in my opinion arsenic and strychnine would not neutralise one another; I think strychnine would help the arsenical poisoning; when both strychnine and arsenic are given, I do not know whether one has any effect of counteracting the other; I have no knowledge of strychnine and arsenic together; I have never heard of the matter before; I do not understand, in one way or the other, of a mixture of arsenic and strychnine; it has not arisen in my practice; I have never read any book which made any statement about this matter; I do not know of any reference to any antagonism between strychnine and arsenic; I have read a great many books, but I have not read anything suggestive of the antagonism of strychnine and arsenic; I do not know of any authority who advises that strychnine should be used in acute arsenical poisoning; strychnine in small doses will not stop the vomiting and purging caused by arsenic; there is no action in strychnine to have that effect; in large doses, of course, it will stop it by causing the death of the person; apart from the death of the patient, strychnine would never stop the vomiting and purging of arsenic; in large doses it might increase it by increasing the muscular action of the bowels; strychnine would not have any effect in stopping the caustic effects of arsenic on the mucous membrane of the alimentary canal; strychnine is rapidly absorbed from the alimentary canal, from the stomach, and from the intestines; if strychnine is taken with water and with an acid, that will increase the rapidity with which it is absorbed; strychnine alone is very insoluble in water, but an acid makes it soluble, and more easily absorbed; if a person, after taking a solution of strychnine, moves about actively, that would hurry on the absorption of the strychnine; the movement will accelerate the circulation of the blood, and hasten the process of absorption; it would have effects in passing from the stomach into the intestines; after taking strychnine as a poison, on an empty stomach, the symptoms will appear in from five to twenty-five minutes; if it is in a soluble form it will be very rapid; I agree with the quotation read to me from Taylor's Legal Medicine, page 460 (see page 116, question 5594); arsenic is absorbed less rapidly than strychnine; it would depend on its form; arsenic is less easily absorbed if it is in the form of arsenious acid; in any case the strychnine symptoms would appear before the arsenical symptoms; strychnine is rapidly eliminated from the body; it is eliminated from the kidneys very rapidly—say in forty-eight hours; I agree with the quotation read to me from Taylor's Legal Medicine, page 460 (see page 116, question 5599); if anyone took a dose of strychnine, such a dose as would have the effect of stimulating the action of the heart, on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, you would most likely have all the strychnine eliminated in forty-eight hours, there would be no strychnine left; if there had been strychnine present on the following Monday at 11 o'clock at night I think the heart's action would be weaker, as the remote effect of strychnine.

If the mother is nursing at the breast a young baby on Saturday, March 2nd, when she is supposed to have taken a large medical dose of strychnine, I would expect some symptoms of poisoning in the child, as milk is one of the means of eliminating strychnine from the body; the symptoms are pretty well marked; it takes a large dose to produce those symptoms; if the mother has a fairly large dose, one of the means of eliminating the poison is through the milk; it must be a fairly large dose.

Strychnine poisoning: effect upon infant.

I have seen the fecal stain on the nightdress produced; I could not be certain by its appearance that it is a fecal stain; to find that out I would require to examine it in some other way; if a trace of arsenic was found in every part of that stain, and assuming that the arsenic was mixed thoroughly with the amount of fecal matter which produced that stain, I would think there was a large total amount of arsenic in the stain if it was mixed well in it; if that amount of arsenic is present in that stain, that would certainly indicate a large amount of arsenic in the body after it had passed through the alimentary canal; a person must have used a large dose of arsenic to produce that; I know the appearance of crystals of arsenious acids; they are anhydral crystals; you can see them with a powerful magnifying glass, and recognise them by their appearance; suppose I examined the whole 17 inches of that fecal stain with a lens, there being that quantity there, and I found no arsenious acid crystals, I would not expect to get crystals; there is no other sort of arsenic that can be detected in its crystalline form with a lens; I do not think the other sorts of arsenic are recognisable by means of the lens; in that stain, although you cannot see any crystals, there might be arsenic in some form present; it might be present in other parts beyond the stain; some of the fluid of that stain might have permeated into the linen and carried the arsenic without carrying the stain; a solution of arsenite of soda and arsenite of potash are colourless; a solution of arsenic and potash, Fowler's solution, would be colourless; if a solution of arsenite of soda appeared at all in any other part, you could not detect arsenite of potash or soda in crystals on the calico; I do not think you could detect it either with the eye or with the lens; I think it would be quite possible to put a solution of some sort of arsenic on that nightdress, and yet it could not be detected with a lens; I do not think the crystals would form unless the arsenic had been sublimed by heat; if arsenious acid was given by the mouth, I would not expect to find arsenious acid in the excreta; you would most likely have the sulphide of arsenic passed; I think the arsenious acid might be changed into the sulphide of arsenic; this is of a yellow colour; I think it would be possible to produce such a stain as this by diarrhoea in appearance, and that perhaps arsenic could have been added to it by the application of arsenic in solution; if a person was poisoned with arsenic and had motions I would expect only to find the yellow sulphide—that only, not arsenious acid; that is the ordinary arsenic—the ordinary white arsenic; if a patient had taken a large quantity, part of it would pass altered into sulphide; it is quite possible that some of it might have escaped from the intestines as arsenious acid—that is, the person having taken a large dose; in order to get that effect the person must have taken a large quantity of arsenic,—greatly larger than $\frac{1}{2}$ of a grain; in examining that stain, if I found traces of arsenic in it, and examined the whole surface with a lens, and found no arsenic with the lens, I do not think that would be sufficient evidence to justify me in saying that the arsenic that was found by the test was found in the alimentary canal, or that it had gone through

Mrs. Dean's nightdress—the fecal stain.

S. F. Knigge,
M.D.

through the alimentary canal; it is quite possible that the arsenic might have been added subsequently; there is not enough evidence that it went through the body; it would be quite possible to produce a faecal stain containing arsenic by mixing a solution with faecal matter and applying it; I have not made such an experiment.

Exhibit of urine.

If a specimen of urine, say, 6 oz., showed a trace of arsenic by analysis, after arsenic had been taken, it would mean that a large dose had been taken; it would be a long time for the arsenic to remain; if there was a trace of arsenic in 6 oz. of urine, that would indicate a large quantity proportionately to the amount of urine passed by the individual; if the patient had a large dose of arsenic in the morning, and purging and vomiting all day, I should expect to find a weak and shaky pulse in the evening; the pulse would not be regular; when it is advisable for a medico-legal case to examine the urine of a person, you should draw it yourself or see it passed; that is the rule that applies in cases of medium examination in life assurance offices as a safety against fraud.

Powder in lemon syrup?

If there was a white powder of arsenic at the bottom of the fluid, I am not sure whether there would be any arsenic in solution as well as the arsenic at the bottom; I would prefer not to answer that question; I cannot speak with certainty as to whether the liquor would take up all the arsenic in solution and deposit the balance; I am not sure if arsenious acid is soluble in an acid medium without the application of heat.

Peripheral neuritis.

I do not know to my own knowledge that peripheral neuritis is known to follow the disease of influenza of the gastro-intestinal type, but I know there are cases reported of it; it is a disease that follows arsenical poisoning, lead poisoning, alcoholic poisoning, and this form of influenza, also malarious fevers and syphilis; there are a number of causes; when you get a case of peripheral neuritis you generally rely upon the history to form a diagnosis.

Profession.

Mrs. Dean's illness, Arsenical poisoning

Central Criminal Court.—I agree with Dr. Newmarch; the symptoms described are those of acute arsenical poisoning; strychnine, taken with arsenic, will account for the steady pulse described; arsenic deadens the heart's action, strychnine stimulates it; arsenic is rapidly begun to be excreted, but it continues for a long time; finding it six days after would indicate that a large dose had been taken, and it would be more likely to be found in the urine than in the milk; her being able to move about in the afternoon would be accounted for by her taking strychnine with the arsenic, and that she did not take a sufficient dose of arsenic.

Mrs. Dean's illness, Arsenical poisoning.

Commission.—I saw Mrs. Dean at the trial; as she walked across the Court I noticed that she appeared to drag her leg slightly; I next saw her on the 23rd of April at the North Shore Hospital; at the time I believed she was suffering from peripheral neuritis; in addition to this, I noticed that her hair was coming out, and that she had a pigmentation in the upper part of the abdomen, and a deeper pigmentation about the nipples; the next time I saw her was on the 9th of May; I then saw her in company with Dr. Jones and Dr. Manning; her condition on the 9th of May differed from that on my previous visit by the symptoms of peripheral neuritis being more marked; I mean to say that they were more marked on the 9th of May; at the visit in April the reflexes were exaggerated; on my visit in May they were quite lost—that is, the knee jerks had gone; that is what I would exactly expect in a case of peripheral neuritis; on the 9th of May the hairs were still falling out, and the pigmentation still remained; looking at these symptoms, especially the loss of the hair and the pigmentation of the skin, I consider the peripheral neuritis was due to arsenical poisoning; I base my conclusion on the combination of symptoms, together with the previous history of the case; I simply took the history as it came; without knowing the history of the case, I should consider first of all the combination of circumstances and all the symptoms present; that would include particularly the falling out of the hair and the pigmentation; those circumstances would be a sufficient indication for symptoms of peripheral neuritis; in that way I differentiate this from peripheral neuritis due to influenza, or any other cause; I did search for indications of lead poisoning, and of alcohol, or any other irritant which would cause peripheral neuritis, but I did not find any other cause; I have seen Mrs. Dean since then; I saw her on Saturday; her hair is not falling out now; she did not show me any collection of her hair; I am certain that the pigmentation I noticed on the upper part of the abdomen was about the epigastrium; there were patches of pigmentation; I could not tell you the number of the patches; there were several; they were about the size of a threepenny piece, and of a brown colour; there was not any desquamation; I did not notice the condition of the hair follicles; each patch was of a uniform colour; I did not examine the whole with the lens; it was only around the nipples that I saw the pigmentation—that was the only part; it was deeply pigmented about the nipples; I have seen pigmentation due to arsenic; the form that pigmentation took was a case of psoriasis treated by arsenic; after that experience of mine I do not say that the pigmentation in this particular case was due to arsenical poisoning, but my opinion was formed from the fact that the pigmentation occurred at the spot where this woman told me herself that she had a scar, or some other injury or abrasion of the skin, from the stays; I mean to say that the pigmentation occurred on the portion of the woman's body where her skin had been rubbed by her stays; she did not show me the extent of the injury involved by the stays; I didn't ask her; these patches about the epigastrium were distributed over an area of about 1½ in. by 1½ in.; it was the upper part of the epigastrium, and just opposite the end of the sternum; if you put your finger on the spot you would not touch bone, because it was below the sternum; there were five or six patches—I cannot tell you for certain; there would not be a hundred; as far as I can remember, these patches would be about the size of a threepenny bit; it is not a fact that if a person has an abrasion of the skin, due to an injury or continuous friction, this particular spot becomes pigmented; I do not think so; I would not say that a person does not get pigmented over parts of the body where there has been friction; I have no knowledge of it, unless there is some cause for pigmentation besides friction; I am of opinion that these patches could not have been caused by the previous scars as the natural result of continuous friction; I cannot say whether pigmentation follows acute arsenical poisoning from a single dose;

I cannot speak from any experience of my own as to whether it would follow two or three doses ; I have not had many cases of arsenical poisoning ; I have only seen one case of arsenical poisoning ; at the Prince Alfred Hospital during the past two years ; the person was only in the hospital for a day or two, and you could not expect to get pigmentation in that time ; I have never seen a case of acute arsenical poisoning in which pigmentation followed ; I have read that pigmentation follows the administration of arsenic ; I do not know that I have read any authoritative medical book which reports a definite case of pigmentation following acute arsenical poisoning ; I could not say that all the cases of pigmentation are reported in the books, or that I have read of any cases where arsenic has been administered for a long time, but there have been cases where pigmentation has followed where arsenic was administered for some time ; that would be after a fairly large dose of arsenic had been taken into the system ; I have no personal knowledge of pigmentation following one large dose of arsenic ; I have seen cases of pigmentation following the prolonged use of arsenic, in which a fairly large amount of arsenic has been taken into the system ; there are authorities that coincide with my experience ; if I saw pigmentation on a person, and I knew this pigmentation was due to arsenic, I do not think I would conclude that the arsenic had been administered for a considerable period ; it would not necessarily be for a considerable period ; it would depend upon the degrees of pigmentation whether it had arisen from a considerable number of large doses, or else a great number of small doses ; if I found a whole body covered with patches of pigment, then I should consider that probably a large number of doses had been spread over a long time ; I certainly think it is of diagnostic value, whether it is in one place or in several places over the whole body ; I do not think it is a fact that drugs like arsenic and silver produce pigmentation, and that this pigmentation is, more or less, nearly always a general pigmentation ; it affects certain areas of the body, and is the result of constitutional poisoning, but the pigmentation following the use of drugs is always more liable to affect parts of the body that have been irritated, and which are naturally the seats of the pigment ; I have never looked at Mrs. Dean's vaccination marks ; I have looked inside her mouth, but did not notice any sore places or any ulceration there ; I noticed the condition of her teeth ; the pigmentation in this case was not confined to a small area, it was marked on the nipples as well ; I do not know that I ever read any description of the localisation of pigmentation in any case of arsenical poisoning ; I have read text-books on the subject, and I have read that there are areas more liable to pigmentation than others ; the aureolæ are parts where pigmentation naturally occurs ; it is mentioned in these authoritative books that this particular area is more liable to attack than others ; there are situations where pigment naturally occurs, and parts of the skin where previous inflammation may have existed ; I would not dispute anything that Crocker says on the subject ; I cannot tell you any special authority I have read on these matters, but that is the general impression I have formed from my reading ; I know that Mrs. Dean had a child some six months ago, and that pigmentation is quite natural in such circumstances, that it would last a considerable time, and that it might last a lifetime ; I can assign no other cause for these pigmentary spots which I saw on the abdomen ; I am certain they were pigmentation, and not due to some such disease as pityriasis versicolor ; I do not admit that the hair will fall out of any woman's head from innumerable causes ; it may fall out after child birth ; it does not necessarily fall out of any woman after an acute illness, and it does not frequently do so ; after a long and acute illness, I will admit that women's hair does sometimes fall out ; it is not a common thing for the hair to fall out of women who have had babies after three or four months, I never had that experience ; it is a very common thing for the hair to fall out, if there is some cause for it, without the woman being apparently ill at all ; sometimes women come to a doctor if their hair is falling out ; I cannot say that most women lose a great deal of hair at certain seasons of the year ; I am not in the hair-dressing line ; I admit that my opinion on this matter is biassed by the belief that she had arsenic, as stated at the trial ; it was found that she had had arsenic ; that was established as a fact at the trial ; nobody doubted that she had had arsenic at all ; it was founded on that, and the combination of circumstances confirmed me in my opinion ; all that my evidence goes to show is this : it is admitted that the woman had arsenic, I found she had peripheral neuritis, with falling out of the hair and a pigmentation of the skin, and this is taken as a further proof that she had arsenic ; that is the confirmation ; that is what my evidence amounts to, plus the previous history—the fact of the admission of arsenic ; the falling out of the hair and pigmentation, together with the peripheral neuritis, are merely confirmatory of my opinion ; they are confirmatory of course, but apart altogether from that, the combination of symptoms presented by this woman is almost diagnostic of arsenical poisoning ; that is to say, if I knew nothing at all about arsenic, and that this woman was brought to my place deaf and dumb, I would give it as my opinion that she had had arsenic, but I could not swear to it positively ; she did not give to me the history of the spot on the abdomen ; I do not know that she told me until I noticed the pigmentation, and then she said that there had been some abrasion of the skin at this spot by her stays ; she did not tell me how long that abrasion had been there ; I am quite satisfied that the knee reflexes were abolished on the 9th of May ; it would be an unusual occurrence for them to be present on the 17th ; I first distinguished these reflexes in the ordinary way, by tapping the tendons ; on Saturday I saw her, and they are not present even now in a normal condition ; they cannot readily be obtained ; one could not be obtained at all, and the other I could only obtain by reinforcement ; in my opinion the symptoms I have seen from the beginning to the end could not be reconciled with an attack of influenza ; if peripheral neuritis had appeared at or before the trial, it would have strengthened the assumption that the case was arsenical poisoning ; it was after the Darlinghurst trial that peripheral neuritis was developed ; I was at the trial ; the question there was who administered the arsenic ; that was the main point of the trial ; none of the authorities with which I am acquainted state that pigmentation of the skin does not follow a single poisonous dose of arsenic.

Supposing that six days after traces of arsenic are found in the urine, that would indicate a fairly large dose ; when I say a large dose, I do not mean, of course, 5 or 10 grains, but 1 or 2 grains, which would be a large dose given medicinally ; half a grain of arsenic has proved fatal, I believe, in some cases ; the average fatal dose is about 2 grains ; of course there are exceptional cases, where one might give a small dose or a large dose ; the effect would depend upon the subject.

Arsenic—A large or small dose.

Arsenic and strychnine have a different effect upon the pulse ; my opinion is based upon theoretical considerations ; a case, I think, has been recorded by an Italian pharmacologist named Villa, where strychnine and arsenic were taken together ; he observed the tetanizing properties of strychnine counteracted by arsenic ; the details of this case are given in "Taylor's Principles and Practice of Medical Jurisprudence." Gastro-intestinal influenza and peripheral neu-ritis.

Influenza of the gastro-intestinal type was prevalent in Sydney and neighbourhood during the months of February and March; I had at least two or three cases of that nature during the month of February, and I have had one or two since amongst children; these cases bear strong similarity to cases of acute irritant poisoning; the symptoms are almost identical; there is vomiting, with some abdominal pain; you get that in an ordinary bilious attack, but we do not usually get fever with an ordinary bilious attack; if there had been no epidemic of influenza prevalent in the community at the time I had my cases, I do not think I would have called these particular cases influenza; I should have thought them to be ptomaine poisoning, but I could not trace that the people to whom I refer had eaten tinned fish or bad food; and as there were cases of the ordinary type of influenza in the house, I came to the conclusion that this disease was influenza; I looked upon it as such; I am quite certain in my own mind that they were influenza; they were somewhat similar to cases of arsenical poisoning, inasmuch as the symptoms of arsenical poisoning, vomiting and purging, with abdominal pains, were present; these cases of gastro-intestinal influenza showed a suffusion or redness about the eyes; that is nearly always shown in influenza; I cannot say whether in my own practice peripheral neuritis succeeded influenza of a gastro-intestinal type, but I have had two cases of peripheral neuritis, both being elderly women; the disease followed after a cold, and the symptoms were distinctly those of peripheral neuritis; judging from these cases, and my treatment, I am of opinion that the peripheral neuritis was a sequelæ of influenza; of course I cannot be positive, but from the fact that the illnesses were followed by peripheral neuritis, I considered influenza to be the cause; I did not see the cases during the primary illness, but ordinary colds are not followed by peripheral neuritis, and I excluded in my diagnosis alcoholism, and arsenical poisoning from such a source as green wall-paper, or anything like that; there was pain in the right foot, followed by slight œdema and a drooping of the foot [position shown by witness], due to a partial paralysis of the extensor muscles of the leg in the first case, and there was also wasting of the muscles; I diagnosed this case as one of peripheral neuritis; the other case was in the left arm, and not quite so typical as the one in the leg, but still there was no doubt that it was a case of peripheral neuritis; it is difficult to differentiate from rheumatism, but I practically excluded rheumatism from my diagnosis; I have not my note-book showing the cases of influenza which developed symptoms of peripheral neuritis. (President:—I may at once say that I personally know nothing about these matters, but I think that my brother Commissioners, the doctors, are quite satisfied that there were cases of gastro-intestinal influenza prevalent in the months of February and March, and that they are satisfied that peripheral neuritis follows this type of influenza. They are prepared to believe such cases did occur without further evidence.) I will certainly not deny that peripheral neuritis follows arsenical poisoning; I say no to the question:—"Supposing you attended and examined a patient, could you say whether peripheral neuritis arose from the cause you have mentioned, or from arsenical poisoning?" That is the present state of medical science; I could not tell unless I knew the history of the case; if I knew absolutely the history of the case, and that the patient had taken arsenic, I could tell the source of the neuritis; most certainly I admit that, outside the general truths in connection with peripheral neuritis, knowledge from personal examination of the patient would be one element, and, an important element, in coming to a conclusion that the case was one of peripheral neuritis, or, in other words, that a medical practitioner who had seen and examined a patient, would be in a better position than one who had not to state the cause of the disease; supposing I examined the person suffering from peripheral neuritis several times, in periods extending over several weeks, I should say I would be better able to say from what it arose than a practitioner forming an opinion from ordinary theories, especially if I knew from what the neuritis commenced; but on the other hand I do not think fifty examinations made during the prevalence of neuritis would help me in arriving at its cause; I have not examined Mrs. Dean; all that I am stating now is to be found in books, but I speak from the experience of my own practice; I have made no new discovery; I have seen several cases of influenza of the gastro-intestinal type; they were almost invariably accompanied by a rise in the temperature; there was a temperature of not less than 101 deg.; sometimes it was higher; I would not expect to get any rise of temperature in cases of arsenical poisoning, the symptoms being practically the same as those of gastro-intestinal influenza, until inflammatory symptoms had developed; in influenza of this type I would expect to get the high temperature in the earlier stages of the disease—at once.

Strychnine poisoning. Effect upon infant.

The only case I can call to mind of an infant at the breast having been poisoned by strychnine taken by the mother is one which occurred last week, and then I did not see the child; I was told by the mother, I think it was on last Wednesday; the mother explained to me that the child was livid, and drawn up as if in a ball, they could not account for this, except in one way, and this was, the lady explained to me, that the wetnurse of the child had eaten some olives; the next day it was discovered that this wetnurse had stealthily taken a mixture of ergot and strychnine which had been made up for the mother; the nurse had evidently taken a larger dose than had been prescribed for the mother; the wetnurse did not suffer any symptoms; the child had most of the symptoms; the symptoms in the child did not suggest to me strychnine poisoning at the time; I never dreamt of the nurse taking that mixture, and the fact that arrested the mother's attention in the first place was the lividity of the child; I cannot mention to you the name of the mother; if I did the parents of the child would be well known to everyone here; I simply give you the mother's statement as she gave it to me, when she said the child was livid, and rolled up as if in a ball; when I heard the wetnurse had taken this strychnine and ergot I had no doubt of what caused the symptoms; it is an established fact in medicine that an infant is most susceptible to strychnine poisoning if the mother has taken strychnine; the child would rapidly show symptoms, as it would be easily affected; I may add that the infant of whom I am speaking is only about five weeks old; there was no history of previous or general convulsion, and in describing the case I am only using the mother's words, when she said the child was drawn up like a ball; I think the lividity was due to the ergot, and that the drawing up like a ball was due to the strychnine; it might have been due to other causes; first of all it was thought that it was due to the nurse eating olives; supposing the doctor in the first instance diagnosed the case as ptomaine poisoning, and then subsequently a statement made by two women leads to a change change in the diagnosis, certainly my report as an outside medical man on that case would depend very much whether or not I put any confidence in the statement of the women; I regard the statement of Dr. West read to me (see page 145) as of value, for I have read of cases of typhoid without fever.

As regards symptoms of influenza, I should say that perversions of taste are almost universal; a patient suffering from influenza has a distaste for foods of all kinds; I do not know that I have noticed it more especially in regard to tea; but I know there is a distaste for all kinds of food; to some extent this distaste reaches a stage of nausea; they lose the sense of taste, and the sense of smell is equally affected; I have had many patients suffering from influenza who had neither taste nor smell; I mean they had not a right taste; they get a wrong taste, and because of their perverted taste they dread to take food; I keep a note-book to record cases I see in the house, but not, as a rule, those I visit; I do not think I have the notes of the cases of which I speak; but I think I have copies of the prescriptions given.

I believe that a sufficient quantity of milk from the breast of a mother for the purpose of analysis has been drawn by a physician after the lapse of eleven days; it would be a long time, but still experience enables me to say that it is not impossible to do so; you might not do it in one case out of six, and then you might have a case in which it could be done; this would depend to a great extent upon the pathological condition of the mother and the absence of galactorrhœa; I have known women to cease suckling children for two or three weeks, and then the milk has come back again.

Commission, May 31, 1895 (pages 137–139).

I am lecturer on Medical Jurisprudence at the Sydney University.

With regard to the two prescriptions placed in my hand, I see the one contains morphia, and is dated the 3rd of January, and the other containing morphia is dated the 5th of March; both of these prescriptions are for the same patient, Mrs. Dean, and are given by the same doctor; I notice a difference in the quantity of morphia prescribed on the two occasions; one contains 6 drachms and the other 2 drachms of morphia, and both are prescribed by Dr. Newmarch; the difference between the two doses is that there are four $\frac{1}{2}$ grain doses in one and twelve different doses in the other.

I have read the Judge's notes giving the description of Mrs. Dean's illness on the Monday and the following day; she must evidently have been suffering from some irritant taken into the stomach; I think that her illness on Monday night and the following day was due to several causes; I have seen the patient; I saw her at a distance in the hospital; supposing Mrs. Dean is now suffering from peripheral neuritis, and there is no suggestion of alcoholism or disease, the peripheral neuritis would not necessarily indicate or show that she had been poisoned by arsenic; she might have peripheral neuritis through many other causes—influenza, exposure to cold, lead-poisoning, alcohol; if I was perfectly certain that she had taken a large quantity of arsenic, I should say that arsenic was the cause of the peripheral neuritis, supposing there was no evidence of alcohol or lead-poisoning, leaving out even syphilis, and excluding all common causes, and assuming that she is now suffering from peripheral neuritis, following extreme vomiting on the 4th of March and the 5th of March; supposing she suffered from some extreme irritant on Monday, the 4th, and Tuesday, the 5th, of March, and is now suffering from peripheral neuritis, and there is no evidence of alcoholism, or any other causes that have been mentioned, I would not suspect the use of arsenic; that is the last thing I would think of, unless something put it into my head, even supposing she were constantly vomiting and purging; she might vomit and purge from other causes; even coupling this fact with the peripheral neuritis, I should not suspect arsenic, unless I found some in the vomit or purge; I have never made any experiment on a person who has happened to have taken a mixture of arsenic and strychnine; we do not make experiments of that kind; supposing I were taken to the hospital, and shown a person suffering from peripheral neuritis, I could not, without diagnosis, say, in the absence of alcohol, syphilis, or lead-poisoning, what was the cause of that peripheral neuritis, even if I were informed that the patient had suffered from extreme vomiting and purging; I would not say it was from arsenical poisoning; I should not be forced to admit that it was from arsenical poisoning; it might be produced by other causes; there might be twenty other causes to produce peripheral neuritis, causes that we know nothing at all about yet, causes which up to the present are undiscovered; I recognise that the quotation read to me on "Multiple neuritis, peripheral neuritis, and poly neuritis," covers a very wide field [see quotation, Minutes of Evidence, page 139]; it would be easy to trace the cause of peripheral neuritis in a patient if you knew that patient had taken arsenic; in other words, a diagnosis of the case would depend upon the knowledge of the history of the case; to fix and determine the cause of peripheral neuritis a thorough knowledge of the history of the case is required; if I knew the woman had taken arsenic it would not be difficult.

I do not agree with the statement, "Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic and then took a dose of strychnine, it would be an antidote;" there is no ground for the statements that "A mixture of strychnine and arsenic would cause one to counteract the other," or "Supposing she had taken some strychnine, it would account for a strong pulse, supposing she was suffering from arsenical poisoning;" I know of no authority which recommends that strychnine should be used as an antidote to arsenic; in my opinion, if the woman took on Saturday morning at 7 o'clock a mixture which contained $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine and $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of arsenic, the fact of the strychnine being there would not account for her being able to go about on Saturday afternoon freely; on the same supposition, I do not think the taking of this dose of arsenic and strychnine on Saturday morning would account for her having a strong pulse, a good pulse and regular, and respiration normal sixty-four hours afterwards; in my opinion, the arsenic and the strychnine taken on the Saturday would not in any way account for the regular pulse and normal respiration on Monday night. Assuming that the woman took this dose— $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine and $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of arsenic on an empty stomach before breakfast, on the Saturday morning, and that vomiting followed with purging during the morning, she might be able to walk about freely and apparently in her normal health the same afternoon if she got rid of the poison very rapidly from the stomach; if she did not vomit for (say) an hour, in my opinion, she would be very weak, if not exhausted, in the afternoon; if she took $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine and $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of arsenic in the morning, and there was no severe vomiting, I think she would be weak and not fit to walk about in the afternoon; in my opinion, she would not be in her full normal health; I do not see how she could be in her normal health, judging from the size of the dose.

Strychnine
poisoning—
effect on infant

If a mother, who has a child at the breast (say) ten weeks old, had taken strychnine in considerable doses, it is likely that the child would suffer from strychnine poisoning and show symptoms; but I cannot say from my own knowledge whether the child would; it is said that such is the case; I have heard of such cases; if a mother's milk is poisoned, I do not think there would be any different effect upon the child if the milk were drawn off into a cup and then given to the child.

Strychnine—its action.

In the medical administration of strychnine, it would depend upon the size of the dose whether it was required to be given frequently in order to maintain its action or whether it would last a long time; a tonic dose should be given frequently—two or three times a day; that is necessary to keep up the action, which disappears rapidly; if you were to give a double medicinal dose at 7 o'clock in the morning, I should think the effect upon that person at 3 o'clock in the afternoon would be that he would be very ill; I should say that at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the person's heart would be depressed, such a person, most likely, would be exhausted; in fact, prostrated.

Coloured strychnine.

The bottle now produced is strychnine; it is strychnine, coloured pink; to know if that coloured strychnine dissolved would colour the solution in which it was dissolved I should want to know what it is coloured with.

Arsenious acid.
The night dress.
Facial stain.

I have made experiments on the subject of pouring a solution of arsenious acid on to calico and letting it dry, and have discovered that you cannot detect anything on the fabric on which you have poured the solution; you cannot detect anything even with a microscope; there is nothing to be seen, as the arsenious acid has been absorbed by the fabric; how I would detect the presence of this acid would be by chemical tests—analysing, for instance; this night dress, which I am now examining, might be covered with a solution of arsenious acid and dried, and yet you could not detect the fact by the aid of the microscope—not if the whole night dress had been washed in it; in my opinion nobody could detect it; I could not detect it with the use of the lens, and I do not think anybody else could; the result of pouring a solution of arsenite of potash, or arsenite of sodium on a piece of calico would be just the same; nothing would be seen, not even with the microscope; nothing could be seen by the aid of any power that could be brought to bear upon it; if a solution of arsenious acid, or arsenite of soda, or arsenite of potash was used, and an amount of arsenic soap was added to a facial stain on a night dress or garment of that kind, I do not think you would be able to detect the arsenious acid then with the aid of the glass; if there was any mixing with any organic matter, I do not think it would make it easier to see it owing to the fact of the garment being stained; arsenious acid is soluble in an acid medium; it is soluble in hydro-chloric acid; I do not know what lemon-syrup is, and therefore do not know if hydro-chloric acid is used in its manufacture.

Commission, June 5, 1895 (pages, 165-169).

Profession.

I am one of the visiting surgeons at the Sydney Hospital.

Mrs. Dean at the hospital.

Mrs. Dean has been under my charge since she went into the hospital; I have examined her, and I have had the treatment of her, but I have not prescribed for her; I have not prescribed drugs; I have examined her with a view to this inquiry, and have formed an opinion, as far as I am capable of forming an opinion, of her case; I have seen her every day except to-day; I think she came into the hospital on the 17th of March; I think she is in a fit condition to come and give evidence before this Commission; she has been walking about for some time now.

Peripheral
neuritis.
Arsenical
poisoning.

I have formed an opinion that the illness she has is peripheral neuritis; she is now in the recovering stage of it; I certainly do not think this peripheral neuritis is due to alcoholism; in the first place I base my diagnosis of peripheral neuritis on the fact that she has distinct loss of power in her legs; I have formed no opinion as to the cause of this peripheral neuritis; I do not know the cause; there are several causes for peripheral neuritis; she might have had it in a multiple form; I am unable to state the cause beyond the ordinary history of the case and what I have seen in the newspapers; in cases of peripheral neuritis similar to this, where the question would arise as to what was the cause, I would depend for the forming of a diagnosis on the electrical reaction to a large extent; but, further, the history of the case is the most important; I formed an opinion on the history of this case; I have discussed the question with myself as to whether this is arsenical peripheral neuritis; I believe that in cases of chronic arsenical poisoning there are certain signs by which peripheral neuritis can be definitely determined, but I am not certain about the signs of acute arsenical poisoning in this particular stage of her illness; still there are definite signs; these are the pigmentation of the skin, the falling out of the hair, oedema or swelling of the eyelids, and changes in the nails; occasionally there are others; there are skin lesions that are characteristic of this—ulcerations in certain forms in chronic arsenical poisoning; there are rashes—erythematous rashes—red rashes; I am not well enough up to say they are pathognomonic, but they do occur; they do not occur in this particular case; I could not say that all the symptoms I have described, which are characteristic, and by means of which peripheral neuritis due to arsenical poisoning can be differentiated from peripheral neuritis due to other causes, are those of chronic arsenical poisoning; one of them, that I have mentioned, the swelling of the eyelids, would occur in acute cases, probably also the red rashes, but I would not be certain on that point; these symptoms are from chronic arsenical poisoning; that is my idea; Mrs. Dean has none of the characteristic signs marked at all; I might add, perhaps, that she has a change in her nails which is peculiar, but I am not absolutely able to state that it is due to arsenic; she has white lines in her nails which she says have only developed since the illness was commenced on the 4th of March; you can see those white lines distinctly; these lines indicate that some change has occurred in the nutrition of the body; as far as one could see, the change was gradual; it might occur with any acute illness; all I can say about this is that this change in her nails indicates that she had an acute illness not long ago; I say not long ago simply because one knows that it takes a certain length of time for these things to develop; according to skin authorities you can tell pretty well from the distance of the line from the root of the nail when the illness occurred; this white mark will disappear altogether in time; I have not noticed noticed any falling out of the hair more than would happen in most women; it is quite common with women to lose their hair, and I did not attach much importance to it; it was not coming out in handfuls, and it is not particularly loose; you cannot pull it out very easily; any fever or acute illness will cause that; she shows no signs whatever of having had shingles; of all these characteristic signs which I have mentioned in connection with chronic arsenical poisoning, not any one of them by itself is enough to found an opinion upon; suppose this woman had peripheral neuritis, and falling out of the hair, and a history of vomiting and purging three months before, I would not be able to say that she suffered on that account from arsenical poisoning; if she had falling out of the hair, and this mark on the nails, I would not be able to say that she suffered from arsenical poisoning; I am not sure, as regards the description of the pigmentation by authorities, whether it is described in acute poisoning; I am only speaking of what I have read; the cases I refer to are where people were taking arsenic medicinally, and then get an acute attack from taking an overdose; I have not seen a case; I do not remember having seen any acute cases of arsenical poisoning; I am not speaking from experience, but only from what I have read; in well-marked cases of pigmentation in arsenical poisoning, the skin has a peculiar bronzed appearance—a general sort of pigmentation over the whole of the body; that is one form of it; another form is, if the patient is suffering from any form of skin disease, a particular patch might be pigmented more than any other part; it remains a long time as a rule, or may fade away altogether; I do not know whether it has been ascertained whether this pigmentation is due to an actual deposit of arsenic in the tissues of the skin or to a stimulation of the pigment cells in the skin; I do not know whether that has been decided; at the present moment Mrs. Dean has the knee-jerks well marked; the superficial reflexes are normal; she has the tendon reflexes in the knees—in both knees; everywhere I examined her the reflex is as it should be; the left knee-jerk is more marked than the right; from the electrical examinations we have made, the reflex is probably a slight increase in the left; it is about normal in the right; I have applied all the electrical reactions carefully; the results during the last two examinations are consistent; the first we did not take any note of, because the battery was not in good order; the last two were practically the same, as far as I could see; she has not what is known as the reaction of degeneration marked—not at this stage; I think she has peripheral neuritis; I certainly have seen more marked cases of peripheral neuritis; in her case the signs are not strongly marked; the electrical changes are generally marked, but in this particular case they are not strongly marked; they are quantitative changes, not qualitative; there is no reversion of the normal formulae of muscular contractions; in my own practice I have never had any case of peripheral neuritis in any way resembling this of Mrs. Dean arising after influenza; I have no knowledge of such a case; I have never seen it in my practice; I have read that multiple peripheral neuritis of this form does arise from influenza; in fact, cases have occurred in Sydney in the hospital, but I have not seen them; there was one case a short time ago put down to that, but I cannot say what it was; I am speaking only of what I have heard; that case was different from this altogether; it affected the whole of the muscles; this is localised to a few; that involved the legs, both arms, and the trunk muscles; in my opinion it was not an isolated case of peripheral neuritis; it was multiple and symmetrical; I did not know the early history at the onset of this peripheral neuritis of Mrs. Dean; I only know it from hearsay; I heard it as a matter of fact from Dr. Newmarch; he said that at the very first time he saw her all the reflexes and sensations were very much increased—that there was a marked increase of sensation, and a great increase of the reflexes; he did not tell me that these deep reflexes had been greatly abolished; he said greatly diminished, but not abolished; I cannot say whether this conversation was in reference to Dr. Newmarch's seeing Mrs. Dean at her own house or at the North Shore Hospital; but he said, I think, it was in the early part of her illness; I know from reading that in arsenical peripheral neuritis the deep reflexes are almost always lost; in this case there are a great many points of divergence between it and a classical case of arsenical poisoning; I know of some cases of poisoning which have given rise to criminal proceedings, but not many; I know that in cases of people who have been convicted of poisoning, different theories have been formulated by medical men; I admit that in nearly every case different theories are put forward by medical men as to how it happened, and that a knowledge of the state of Mrs. Dean before she came to the hospital would be valuable in deciding what caused this peripheral neuritis; if she had been a patient of mine, I certainly would have an advantage in deciding that question; I have already admitted that all I have seen is perfectly consistent with this peripheral neuritis having arisen from arsenical poisoning; if I had known she had taken arsenic, I should be certain of it; it is not a typical case, but you get different cases; when Mrs. Dean came to me, I looked upon her case as a very mild one; she was recovering quickly, although for some days she was unable to move about, but she gradually improved; there might have been symptoms which passed away before I saw her; she was what I would call on the mend; she was improving; I had no knowledge of Mrs. Dean before that; she was a perfect stranger to me; I had never seen her before; there might have been symptoms before she came to me which would be decisive, and which had passed away when she came to me; if I had been attending to her I might be able now to say absolutely that she was suffering from arsenical poisoning; I have only known her since she has been at the hospital, the 17th May; there was a peculiar mark on the toe nail, as well as on the finger nails—a peculiar white line, linear, or semi-linear; this might occur after any severe illness; undoubtedly that is one of the things that does show itself after arsenical poisoning, from what I have read; I have not been able to find any definite signs of pigmentation of the skin since Mrs. Dean came to the hospital; I have examined it very carefully, and do not find any pigmentation at all; I think she is peculiarly free from it at the present moment; possibly it might have passed away before she came to me at the hospital; in connection with arsenical poisoning, as a rule, from what I have read, the reflexes of the knee are abolished; it was the rule for them to be quite absent; they are present in this case, but, as a rule, they are absent; in the case of any arsenical poisoning the knee-jerks appear at a certain stage; this is characteristic of peripheral neuritis; I am speaking from books; any competent medical man would know these books; they are common knowledge to members of the medical profession; I have no personal knowledge of arsenical poisoning of any kind; I have never had a case under my medical care of multiple peripheral neuritis, due to arsenic, till this one; I should be quite satisfied that all the symptoms, as far as I have noticed, are confirmatory, supposing Dr. Newmarch said of his own knowledge of the case, from what he saw, that it was a case of arsenical poisoning; I have never had such a case; if Dr. Newmarch had told me—I not knowing the case—that it was due to typhoid fever, I would have taken that for granted; I say it may be due to any other acute illness; if he had told me it was due to septicæmia, I would have taken it for granted, or if he had said it was due to any of the causes of peripheral neuritis; if I knew she had had influenza I would have taken it as due to that; I believe it is a rule that in chronic cases of arsenical poisoning the nails fall off, but I would not be definite as to acute cases; it might be so, but I am not sufficiently well up in that; I am describing book knowledge, and I am satisfied that the books say that there is "falling off" of the nails,—a falling off like the hair; I have not seen any particular reference to it in any book; I have often seen this mark on the nails in acute pneumonia, but I have never seen it so well marked; I should say that the falling off of the nails in arsenical poisoning was extremely rare; if a doctor knew the previous history of the case (Dr. Newmarch or any other doctor) before it came to me, he would be in a much better position to tell whether it arose from these other causes than I would be; if I had been the medical attendant, and knew the previous history, I might then have the means for stating positively it did not arise from these other causes, and shut them out; that is to say that in a certain stage you can form a definite opinion from having a knowledge of the history of the case from the beginning; if I were the medical man who attended her from the beginning, and my first diagnosis was wrong of the acute illness, it would follow that my ultimate diagnosis of the peripheral neuritis would be wrong; it would depend on whether other things turned up in the meantime, as they sometimes do, to alter my diagnosis; I do not think the nature of the electrical reaction in any given case of peripheral neuritis would enlighten you as to the cause of the peripheral neuritis; I have told you that I have formed no opinion as to the cause in this particular case, and also that I was quite sure it did not arise from alcohol; that is from my general observation of the patient and from what she has told me—of course believing her as I would any other person, I could not find any other cause; I exclude alcohol, but I cannot say that I should exclude any other cause; lead-poisoning was the principal thing I thought of after the alcohol, and I excluded it; I exclude syphilis, gout, and acute rheumatism; I have not been able to find any pigmentation of the skin; I mean not anything of any consequence; there might be a freckle here and there, something of that sort, but nothing definite that I can find at the present moment; she had a mark just above the navel, which she said was due to her stays; there was some darkness of the skin there; there was a little mark there; the aureola was very dark and marked, too, but I put that down to the fact that she had been confined about the beginning of the year. I found the reflexes pretty well restored; they may not be lost at any stage, but they often are; the condition in which I found them was not inconsistent with their being absolutely absent in a prior stage; it would be very unusual if the deep reflexes were lost—entirely abolished in March or April—to be entirely restored the next month; in the case of alcohol, when they are abolished, they take a very long while; I am not in a position to say whether it was rather long for the aureole mark to be present five months after confinement; there is some pigmentation still on this scar on the navel, but it would not have attracted my attention; I have not noticed that she is hysterical; since she has been in the hospital she has been particularly free from hysteria; the pigmentation of the scar at the lower part of the sternum was due to the pressure of the stays; it would be pigmented; as a rule, wherever there is friction there is pigmentation on the body; I attach no importance to that at the stage in which I saw it; I did not notice that until some one told me about pigmentation, and I looked for it and found it; there was no wasting of the muscles—no naked-eye wasting.

Jenkins, M.D.

Ataxic gait.

Mrs. Dean had a peculiar gait at the time of her admission to the hospital; it was not absolutely an ataxic gait, but more of a waddle and shuffle than an absolute locomotor ataxy; the gait, however, was ataxic; she had not got the particular high step that is general [witness illustrated with his foot]; she more shuffles along than lifts her leg; the power of flexion and extension of the feet were all very well marked considering; she had power of complete flexion and tension; if you put your hand against her feet she could resist very well—she could push your hand very well; at the time of her admission this was not so marked as it is now; she was then weaker; there was a good deal of diminution on her admission, both in flexion and extension; she did not move about very well at all then; it was rather difficult to get much information; we did not get her on to the floor at all; we only got her on the side of the bed, and lifted her across; there was a general weakness of the lower extremities when she came to the hospital; she is gradually getting better, and is now able to walk about quite well, but she has this peculiar gait; she has got a well-marked peculiar gait yet; I do not call it non-co-ordination, but in-co-ordination; this arises in any form of peripheral neuritis; it is not uncommon in this particular form, but there are forms in which it is more marked than in this; it is not inconsistent with peripheral neuritis particularly due to arsenical poisoning; when I saw this case it was practically at the far end of it.

Profession.

I am honorary pathologist and honorary physician at the Sydney Infirmary; I have had considerable practice in my profession in Sydney and its suburbs.

Gastro-intestinal influenza.

In following my profession during last February and March, I remember there were several matters of importance; influenza of the gastro-intestinal type was prevalent in my practice during those months, and it is still prevalent, for I am attending a case at the present time; some of these cases of influenza of the gastro-intestinal type I call influenza, because influenza was prevalent at the time; I failed to diagnose it rapidly at the outset, but I know it was followed, or accompanied by, vomiting and purging and an extreme prostration, which lasted longer than it usually does in an ordinary attack of diarrhoea; if influenza had not been prevalent at the time I would have looked for other causes for the peripheral neuritis; any irritant poison, such, for instance, as ptomaine poisoning, sporadic cholera, or summer diarrhoea, would produce, or be likely to produce, acute gastro-intestinal trouble; I have seen a case which corresponds with the description read to me. [See description, Minutes of Evidence, page 142.] These cases of gastro-intestinal influenza are almost analogous to cases of ptomaine poisoning; none of my cases of gastro-intestinal influenza were followed by peripheral neuritis; one, I thought, might develop into that; the patient is not well yet.

Mrs. Dean's
illness.

I have read the account of Mrs. Dean's illness in the Judge's notes, as given by Mrs. Dean and Dr. Newmarch; I think the disease of influenza of the gastro-intestinal type would, when diagnosed, be perfectly consistent with the symptoms shown by Mrs. Dean; I know that this influenza of the gastro-intestinal type is not uncommonly followed by peripheral neuritis. strychnine and arsenic.
Alleged
antagonism.

I consider $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine to be an excessive dose; if that amount were taken on an empty stomach it would act more rapidly than on a full stomach; the effect would be apparent much sooner; I do not know that it would act more powerfully; strychnine is more soluble in an acid solution, and anything that would increase its solubility would increase its power of absorption; I do not agree with the statement "Supposing a person took a dose of arsenic, and then took a dose of strychnine, that that would be an antidote;" I do not agree that strychnine is an antidote to arsenic; I think it is more likely to increase the purgative action of arsenic; I cannot speak from personal experience as to whether a large dose of strychnine taken at the same time as a dose of arsenic would be likely to have any effect upon the pulse or heart; I know what the physiological effect of strychnine is, and I know that you can bring the pulse down by taking arsenic; if a person took a $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine, I think it would produce a contraction of the muscular fibres; if a person took strychnine and arsenic mixed together in an excessive dose, say twice the maximum medical dose, on an empty stomach, and did not vomit for an hour, I do not think the one would counteract the other; if strychnine and arsenic were taken together in an excessive dose, strychnine would be the first to show its effects; if no vomiting should follow its absorption, strychnine would show its effects within twenty or thirty minutes; of course it would depend upon the size of the dose; if the dose were the $\frac{1}{4}$ th or $\frac{1}{8}$ th of a grain, then I should say, at the outside, twenty minutes; if strychnine had been given, say a $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain, on Saturday morning, I do not think it would effectually counteract a poisonous dose of arsenic taken at 11 o'clock on Monday night—sixty-four hours afterwards; it is rapidly eliminated; I do not think it would remain in the system that time; the effect upon the woman of taking an excessive dose of strychnine would be to produce a jerking and spasmodic action of the muscles; supposing this woman took an excessive dose—the $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine and the $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of arsenic—and continued to vomit and purge all the morning, I think she would be considerably prostrated in the afternoon; I do not know anything that pulls a patient down so rapidly as violent diarrhoea; I should think any person who had taken that quantity of these poisons in the morning would be considerably prostrated in the afternoon; I think strychnine, in all probability, would have the effect of improving the tone of the pulse, which had been subdued by taking arsenic; this effect, of course, would depend upon the size of the dose of strychnine; I cannot speak from actual experience, and I can only give an opinion based upon knowledge, as to the effect upon a patient who had taken the $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of strychnine and the $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain of arsenic; I should say that strychnine, taken in such a large dose as one $\frac{1}{4}$ th of a grain, would not produce any great effect upon a pulse which had been depressed by the taking of arsenic: supposing they were taken together, it is hardly absolutely correct to say that strychnine would stimulate the heart's action; strychnine acts on the blood vessels or the muscular fibres surrounding the blood vessels, doing this through the nervous system more than immediately on the heart itself.

A child suckling at the breast of a mother who had taken a large dose of strychnine would show symptoms of strychnine poisoning; I do not know of any case of this kind from personal experience; I only know it from reading; I think it would be an extremely dangerous proceeding to administer strychnine to a suckling woman, as it is a well known fact that the poison is rapidly eliminated through the milk; if a mother ceased to suckle her child, say, on Friday, the 1st of March, I do not think there would be any milk left in the breast on the 12th March, because when a woman ceases to suckle her child, the milk, in the majority of cases, disappears from the mother's breast within a week; if a woman ceased to suckle her child on the 1st, I do not think you could draw off milk on the 12th.

Commission, June 5, 1895 (pages 174, 175).

I have had special experience in poisoning by strychnine of infants through the mother; I have had three cases in which infants have been so poisoned; the first case was a year ago; in this it became necessary to administer strychnine to the mother for the purposes of a tonic; she took 5 minims of a solution of strychnine; it was one dose for one night; next morning she probably took another dose; at midday I saw her again, when the child she was nursing at the time had pronounced muscular twitching; this child, I may say, was not four months of age; in the second and third cases strychnine was administered for the purposes of a tonic; in each the doses were increased until the symptoms appeared in the children; as soon as the symptoms appeared in the children, the medicine was stopped, although there was no visible effect upon the mothers; the symptom which appeared in the child indicating a necessity for stopping the medicine was a pronounced muscular twitching; I do not know on what part of the body; I did not see the children, but I was told at the time that the children had muscular twitchings; these symptoms were described to me; I did not see the twitchings; I saw all three children subsequently during the day in which the muscular twitchings occurred; in the first case the child was brought to me because of the twitchings; it had not the twitchings when I saw it; I attributed these twitchings to strychnine; as soon as the strychnine was stopped there was no further complaint; the first case was produced by probably two doses of strychnine of 5 minims each; the patient in the evening took one dose, probably she took another the next morning, and at midday the effects were visible in the child; I know as a matter of fact that strychnine in small doses can be excreted in the milk of a nursing mother; I have at the present time a lady under my treatment in which this is shown; she was confined on Saturday, and took 2 minim doses of strychnine; I have tasted her milk daily, and it is certainly not nearly as sweet as mother's milk ought to be; there was a bitter taste in that milk, not quite the taste that you would expect strychnine to give; as you are aware, mother's milk, human milk I mean, is extremely sweet; but in this particular instance there is an absence of sweetness, which is remarkable; I know the name of Dr. Lauder Brunton as that of one of the first authorities on medicine; I do not know that in the list of medicines given by him amongst all poisons which are excreted through milk strychnine is not one of them, or, in other words, strychnine is not given as one; if it be so, I have no knowledge of it, and I think he has made a great mistake.

Profession.
Mrs. Dean at Sydney Hospital.

I am the senior resident medical officer of the Sydney Hospital.

I know Mrs. Dean; she has been under my care in the Hospital; she was admitted to the Hospital on the 17th of May. I think she is now in a fit state of health to come and give evidence before the Commission; she could be brought here in a cab, or she could walk; she is able to walk about, but she has never tried any distances; I have attended Mrs. Dean at the Hospital since the 17th of May; I have seen her every day; she is practically under Dr. Thompson's care; I have examined her; I have noticed that she is and has been suffering from peripheral neuritis; I cannot say whether or not this is the result of influenza.

Peripheral
neuritis.

Gastrointestinal influenza.

I have not any belief or opinion as to what is the cause of the peripheral neuritis; I formed an opinion of her condition; I do not believe that this peripheral neuritis was caused by influenza; I have not really formed an opinion as to what is the cause; it has never been suggested to me by anyone that her condition was due to influenza; I have not thought of that question; I have formed no opinion as to what her condition is due to; I do not think it was due to influenza; I have formed no opinion as to whether it is due to arsenical poisoning.

Commission.—June 3rd, 1895 (pages 146-153).

History.

I am a butcher, and work for Mr. Carnegie, at North Shore; I went to work for Mr. Carnegie on Monday, the 11th of last March; I know George Dean, and know Mrs. Dean by having seen her once or twice at Mr. Konnecke's at Woollahra; I have seen her several times, but I do not know her well; I am a Dane by nationality.

Acquaintance
with Dean.

Commission:—I was living at Konnecke's, in Woollahra, with Dean for about three or four years; I was employed by Konnecke at this time; Dean was living there first, but I lived with Mr. Konnecke before that, when he had a business in Sussex and Liverpool streets; I left Mr. Konnecke's employ about five months ago; I left before the charge against Dean; I have known Dean for a good few years; I was at the police court, but not at the trial; I knew Dean was convicted; I was living at Carnegie's at the time the evidence was read to me; the last time I was at Konnecke's was about two months ago; I have only been once since I left his employ; I am no relation of Konnecke's; I quarrelled with Konnecke; that is why I left; we had a row over some work in the salt house; I have been to Konnecke's house since—about two months ago; I spent the day with Dean about a month before the Monday I have spoken of; Dean was a steady young man—very respectable; I was always good friends with him; I liked him very much; he used to come to Konnecke's place, at the corner of Liverpool and Sussex streets, about twelve or thirteen years ago; I have been out with Dean to the theatre, but not often; down the harbour with him now and again when he has had a day off; I only knew him as George Dean; Dean was living in the Argyle Cot, near Circular Quay; I was there once; he had a room there about eight or nine years ago; he was working for Mr. Chadwick, who had a saw-mill in Liverpool-street; Konnecke was living in Sussex-street then.

March 4th
(Monday).

Visited Dean's
house.

Commission:—On Monday, 4th March, at about 8 o'clock in the morning, I went to George Dean's place; when I got to the door, Dean asked me to go upstairs; he took me upstairs; I saw Mrs. Dean; she was in bed; I saw the baby; it was lying alongside Mrs. Dean in bed; I remained with Dean upstairs in the bedroom about ten minutes or a quarter of an hour; I told Mrs. Dean I was going to start on the following Monday at Carnegie's.

Mrs. Dean
nursed baby.

Commission:—While I was in Mrs. Dean's bedroom she gave the baby a drink from the breast; I was standing at the foot of the bed while she did it.

Mrs. Dean's
breakfast.

Commission:—After seeing Mrs. Dean, Dean and I went downstairs to the kitchen; Dean got Mrs. Dean's breakfast ready and asked me to stop; he got a cup of tea, some bread and butter, and a couple of mutton chops; he cooked the chops himself; he stood at the stove and poured the tea out of the teapot into a cup; he took the breakfast upstairs on a little tray; he was away only a few minutes; when he came down Dean and I had breakfast; we had tea out of the same teapot as Mrs. Dean's had been poured out of; after we had our breakfast Dean washed the crockery and swept the house, and then went upstairs to get the baby.

Tea, not cocoa, for breakfast.

Commission:—I am sure tea was taken up to Mrs. Dean for breakfast—not cocoa; after we had breakfast Dean fetched down the breakfast things; Mrs. Dean had some bread and butter, two chops, and a cup of tea; she ate nearly the whole of the two chops; there was a corner of a piece of bread and butter left; I think two or three slices of bread and butter were taken upstairs.

I nursed the baby while Dean went for a feeding bottle.

Commission:—Dean brought the baby from upstairs to the dining room downstairs; he washed the baby, put some fresh clothes on it, and a napkin; after he had done that he put the baby on the sofa, and I nursed it for a while till it fell asleep; I then put it on the sofa on a little bed, and watched it; Dean said he was tired, and would go and lie down for a time, as he had been at work all night; Dean came downstairs again about 11 o'clock or a little after; he said to me, "I am going to the chemist's for a feeding bottle"; he took his bicycle and went away; he was away about half-an-hour; he brought the feeding bottle and some baby's food; he prepared some of the food in the kitchen, and gave it to the baby in the dining-room.

In the meantime
Mrs. Dean went out.

Commission:—While Dean was getting away the feeding bottle, Mrs. Dean came downstairs; she had a morning wrapper on; she had nothing on her head; her hair was all loose; I did not see where she went to; she went out of the front door; she was away between five and ten minutes, as near as I can judge; she came back through the dining room, and at the time I had the baby on my knee; she did not speak to me; she went straight through, and when she came back she went upstairs; when she came back she went into the kitchen for something, came back again, and went upstairs; Dean had not returned when she came back; this was close on half an hour after Dean left.

Commission:—

Hans Bach.

Commission :—After Dean had fed the baby he took some sago away to a little shop near by; I believe he said the name was Adye; he was not long away; I think about ten minutes; he left the sago at the shop; a young lady, quite a young woman, brought the sago back; I did not know her; it was just before we had dinner, I think; I was here as a witness two days last week; I have seen the young lady who brought the sago waiting about this place; nobody has told me who she is; Dean said her name was Adye or something of that kind; it is the same lady whose mother keeps the shop.

Dean took some sago to Mrs. Adye.

Commission :—Before we had dinner, Dean went out to try and get some fresh eggs, some cocoa, and cheese; he was not away long; he told me he was going to the little shop; he was away a few minutes; he brought back with him a tin of cocoa and some cheese; that was about twelve o'clock; Dean opened the tin of cocoa, and got a cup of cocoa ready for Mrs. Dean; when he was going upstairs a man came to the door and said he could get no eggs; I do not know who the man was; I saw Dean make the cocoa; he put the cocoa in the cup and poured some hot water on it; he made it with hot water; he was not long upstairs; within half an hour of the time of coming back with the cocoa he took a cup of cocoa up to his wife.

Dean went for eggs, cocoa, and cheese.

Commission :—While Dean was upstairs with the cocoa I poured out some tea in the cups ready for him when he came down; he had made the tea for dinner before he took the cocoa up; when he came down he said the tea was cold, and I poured him out another cup; we both had tea for dinner.

Dinner.

Commission :—I had been looking after the baby for the best part of the morning; it was taken upstairs after the cocoa was taken to Mrs. Dean; Mr. Dean took the baby up; up to that time it had remained in the dining-room; it had two feeds out of the bottle in the dining-room downstairs; I had the baby in my arms when the young woman came with the sago; the baby did not show any signs of illness that morning; the baby had been asleep and awoke when the young lady came with the sago; the young lady did not say anything to me; it would be about 12 o'clock, I should think; the baby was quiet, and I was nursing it; I swear I remember all this.

The baby.

Commission :—About 1 o'clock Dean went upstairs and said he was going to have a lie down; I remained downstairs; while I was downstairs, about three quarters of an hour after Dean had gone upstairs, a little girl came to the back door with a basket containing bottles of sodawater; I took the sodawater from the girl upstairs; I knocked at the bedroom door and opened it, and said to Mrs. Dean, "Here is a basket of sodawater for you"; I then put it inside the bedroom door; Dean was lying on the side of the bed; I thought he was asleep; I went downstairs again, and remained there until between 2 and 3 o'clock; I then went upstairs to say good-bye to Mrs. Dean, as I was going; Dean was awake; he came downstairs and went down to the front door with me; he opened the door and said good-bye, and I then went away.

Sodawater.

Commission (cross-examination) :—At the time I have given particulars about I did not suspect anything wrong; I swear I can recollect all I have stated; I went to Dean's about 8 o'clock in the morning; he opened the door for me and said, "Good morning, Hans"; I said, "Good morning, George"; I said, "I thought I was going to start at Carnegie's this morning, but I shall not start until next Monday"; he asked me in; I then went upstairs and said "Good morning" to Mrs. Dean; Dean got breakfast; he washed the baby; I minded the baby nearly all the morning; Dean said he would lie down about 10 o'clock; he came down at 11 o'clock and went for a feeding bottle and baby's food; he had only gone a few minutes when Mrs. Dean came downstairs and went out; she was away about five or ten minutes; I did not speak to her because she went away so quickly; Mr. Dean gave the baby two feeds out of the bottle; I saw the mother give it the breast while I was upstairs; I remember the man coming to Dean's front door and saying he had no eggs; I recollect Dean putting the cocoa out of the tin into a cup, and making it with hot water; when I took the sodawater upstairs after dinner I saw Dean lying on the outside of the bed with his clothes on; Mrs. Dean was in the bed, and he was on the bed; I am quite sure Dean washed the baby downstairs; I went and got some more hot water to put in the hot water he was using; the baby was washed in a big basin in the dining-room; it was taken upstairs by Dean before Mrs. Dean went out; when he came downstairs about 11 o'clock after lying down, before he went to the chemist's, he was not long with it upstairs, and brought it back to me and gave it to me to mind until he returned with the feeding bottle; a young lady took the sago up to Mrs. Dean; I do not know her name; I saw her with a basin with something in it; she came straight in at the door and went upstairs; I did not see the basin after; it was not washed-up with the other things; I went upstairs when I came in the morning, then not until the sodawater came a little after dinner, then to say good-bye; I did not see any signs of vomiting and purging that day; I cannot read or write; I am speaking from memory about all these matters.

Occurrences on the Monday.

Commission :—I saw Dean in Darlinghurst Gaol on the Sunday after he was convicted; I have not been there since; I went there with four or five other friends of Dean's; a prison warder was present during the interview; the interview was through the iron rails; Dean was in the condemned cell at the time; the door was locked; Dean came to the iron bars; the warder stood alongside and heard all I said to the prisoner.

Visited Dean in gaol.

Commission :—The statement I have given to-day was first taken down at Mr. Crick's office last Thursday; some ladies were there; Mr. Moodie came to see me at Carnegie's and asked me to go to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's; Mr. Moodie took me there; I could not see what the ladies were doing on account of the desk; the ladies went away first.

History.

Central Criminal Court :—I received a bottle of tonic from Cotter on the 8th; took it to Mr. Dogherty the same day as I got it, sealed; I have the urine bottle; got it from Cotter; gave it to Dogherty sealed, as I got it; the night-dress was in a paper parcel, sealed; I got it from Cotter, and gave it to Dogherty, and the tumbler with liquid in it; I got it from Mrs. Seymour; I went to prisoner's house on the 8th; I had been there on the 7th, about 9 p.m.; on going there I saw Mrs. Dean in bed, and Mrs. Seymour and Mr. and Mrs. Gail; Mrs. Seymour gave me the tumbler which she took from under the the chest of drawers; prisoner came in five minutes after I got there; Mrs. Dean asked him where the child was; he said, "At Woollahra; you did not tell me to bring it home"; he then left the room; Mrs. Seymour then handed me the tumbler about half-full of liquid; it was uncovered; I then went to prisoner's room, and said, "Where do you get your water from?" He said, "From the Sydney water supply; from the tap"; I said, "My reason for asking the question is in consequence of your wife's illness"; I thought if he got water from a tank, poison might get into it accidentally; prisoner said, "There is no poison in the house; the first I heard of my wife's illness was on Saturday night last, and I gave her tea and toast on Sunday morning and also on Sunday evening; the case seems mysterious to me"; I then left the house; I took the tea with me to Cotter, who placed it in his safe and locked it; next morning Cotter and I took it up and gave it to Dogberty; about 6 p.m. on the 8th I went with Constable Way to Dean's house; he was in bed, apparently asleep; I said, "Wake up, George," he sat up in bed; I said, "I have two warrants for your arrest"; he said, "Yes"; I said, "I will read them to you"; I read the warrants charging him with causing poison to be taken by his wife with intent to murder, and the other, attempting to administer poison directly; he said as to the first, "Very strong that; I suppose I will have to go and prove my innocence"; as to the other warrant, he said, "Pretty hard that, I can assure you; I had no knowledge that poison was in the house"; I cautioned him, and said, "You told me last night, that you gave your wife tea and toast on Sunday evening last, and also on Sunday morning"; he said, "Yes"; I said, "Were the vessels clean that you gave your wife tea and toast out of?"; he said, "Yes, thoroughly clean; I scalded the teapot before I made the tea, and I got a clean cup and saucer off the dresser"; I said, "That in the tea which your wife says that you gave to her on Sunday morning last, arsenic has been found"; he said, "Well, that's mysterious; I had no knowledge of poison being in the house; I did not wash the cup and saucer which I gave her the tea out of; the wife must have washed them up"; he then asked me, "Did you see the powder which Dr. Newmarch showed me yesterday?" I said, "I saw a powder sealed up but I did not see the powder"; he said, "Did you see the writing on the powders?" I said, "No"; he said, "I would like you to trace that writing"; I said, "I will, and I have done so, to the North Sydney Friendly Dispensary." [It is here admitted, both by the Crown and Mr. Meagher, that those powders had nothing whatever to do with the case, and inquiry about them is not necessary.] He said, "I gave my wife lime-water and milk and a few drops of brandy on Monday night last, and I gave her the medicine in the same glass shortly afterwards, and that is why the medicine had a milky appearance." (I had not referred to that matter.) He said, "The first I heard about poison being in the house was on Tuesday morning last"; he said, "Mr. Weynton, who lives next door, asked me what about the poison that is found in the bottle; and Mrs. Seymour told me yesterday that the police were coming up"; I searched his room and clothing, and I took him from room to room as I searched; when I took him to his wife's room she was in bed; he went to the bedside and said, "Do you want me to go?" She said, "If you are innocent you had better go and prove you are innocent"; prisoner said, "I am innocent"; I took him to the Police Station; I got all the bottles back from Hamlet in my safe custody.

Cross-examined:—Before he spoke of the powder being in the medicine I had not heard of it; I have not been able to trace the sale of arsenic or strychnine in North Shore.

Mrs. and Miss
Adye's evidence

Commission:—I know Mrs. Adye who gave her evidence here; I went to see her on the 11th of March, and she made a statement to me [see statement, Minutes of Evidence, page 183]; I asked her to tell me all she knew about the case; I saw her three times; I got a bottle of lemon-syrup from her on the 11th March; she did not say one word to me about having seen Mrs. Dean out on the Monday; she never told me about having tasted the tea, and that she found it was all right; I made my report on the same day; there is nothing in my report about these two matters; I never heard anything of her tasting tea until she made the statement to the Commission; Constable Wearin was with me twice when I saw her; on the 11th March Mrs. Adye told me that Mrs. Dean had brought a bottle of lemon-syrup there and asked her to taste it, and that it had a bitter taste; Mrs. Walke was there and tasted it; she said that Mrs. Walke got sick after it; she told me that Dean came to her house and asked her to see Mrs. Dean, who was ill; she said she saw Mrs. Dean in bed; about half a cup of tea was at the bedside, and a plate of toast; Mrs. Dean told her that she had put the remainder of the tea away; Mrs. Adye said she stopped there a couple of minutes; I know Mrs. Adye's daughter; I saw her too; neither the mother nor the daughter told me that they had seen Mrs. Dean at their house on Monday, the 4th March; I did not ask them any questions upon that subject; I asked Mrs. Adye to tell me all she knew about the case on three different occasions, and she mentioned to me what had taken place on the Saturday and the Sunday; I saw her daughter about three times. (Cross-examination):—I am not positive if I wrote down what Mrs. Adye told me about Mrs. Dean coming down with the lemon-syrup on Saturday.

Tea under chest
of drawers.

Commission (cross-examination):—Between the 7th and 11th of March I saw Mrs. Dean and had a conversation with her about the tea; when I saw Mrs. Adye I did not say anything to her about the tea; although I knew it had been under the chest of drawers I did not call Mrs. Adye's attention to it; I do not know of Mrs. Dean telling Mrs. Adye anything about this tea; Mrs. Dean did not tell me; I took some notes of my actions in this case; I think I have a short note here; I have no statement in my notes about Mrs. Dean pointing out the tea which was put under the chest of drawers to Mrs. Adye; I first knew on the 11th March Mrs. Adye as the person to whom this tea was pointed out; I took the tea from Mrs. Dean on the 7th March; it was handed to me by Mrs. Seymour; it was after I received the tea from Mrs. Seymour that I went to Mrs. Thompson's; Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Seymour, and Mr. and Mrs. Gail were present at the time I got the tea; I saw it taken from underneath the chest of drawers; I knew that the tea was there for three days without Mrs. Seymour seeing it; it certainly was material to the case to become possessed of facts such as these; perhaps as an intelligent police officer in charge of this case, having taken this tea away on the 7th March, I should have found out who was the first person Mrs. Dean spoke to about the tea, and who was the first to see it under the chest of drawers; when I spoke to Mrs. Adye on the 15th March I asked her to tell me what she knew, and all she knew, about this Dean matter, but she did not say anything to me about the tea at first; the first time she told me anything about the tea would be about three or four days after Dean's committal in the lower court; I was in the court at the time; I heard Mrs. Dean swear that she pointed out to Mrs. Adye the tea under the chest of drawers; when I saw her on the 19th I did not ask her if that was true; I consider the person who first saw the tea would would be of some importance to the inquiry ; Mrs. Adye and her daughter were present at the court ; I did not ascertain from them if Mrs. Dean's statements were true, because I understood that Mrs. Adye was going to be called ; although I heard this important bit of evidence given four days before the trial at the Police Court, I did not think it important to ask Mrs. Adye if there was any truth in Mrs. Dean's statement because I understood she was to be called ; I was the only one collecting her evidence ; I knew that if my sub-inspector called Mrs. Adye, his examination of her would be from the notes supplied by me ; that he was absolutely in my hands as to what he would ask her ; it was not until three or four days after Dean's committal that I went to see her about it ; it was on the last of the three occasions on which I saw Mrs. Adye that I spoke to her about the tea ; about the 28th March.

Commission :—I know Mrs. Thompson at North Shore ; I went to her house and saw her ; I remember serving a subpoena upon her ; she told me when I served the subpoena that all she knew about the case was that she went to Mrs. Dean for the baby and dressed it ; I asked her if she kept any arsenic or poison of any sort in the house, and she said "no ;" when the case was before the Police Court there was some doubt about Mrs. Dean going out on the Saturday morning ; it was in consequence of that doubt that I served the subpoena on Mrs. Thompson ; she was not called at the trial ; all the information I had at the time was to the effect that Mrs. Dean had been to Mrs. Thompson's house on the Saturday morning ; Mrs. Thompson told me she knew nothing further about the matter ; I mentioned something about Mrs. Dean being out on the Saturday morning before Dean returned home, and Mrs. Thompson told me that Dean had bought some sausages from Konnecke's on the previous night, and that Mrs. Dean had brought them to her on the Saturday morning ; I was at the North Shore Police Court when Mrs. Dean gave her evidence ; I know Mrs. Dean admitted at the Police Court that she had been out on the Saturday morning, and that she swore "I now remember I was in Mrs. Thompson's ;" I saw Mrs. Thompson at Darlinghurst at the time of the trial, but I do not know that I held any conversation with her.

Mrs. Thompson's evidence.

Commission :—I have seen Mrs. Reay, the wife of a grocer who lives quite near to Mrs. Dean's house in Miller-street, but I do not know her to speak to ; Mrs. Reay's shop is a new shop ; I do not know anything against her.

Police Court :—I am a duly registered chemist, carrying on business in Miller-street, North Sydney ; I know the prisoner. Profession.

Police Court :—On Saturday, 2nd March, I dispensed the prescription marked "Exhibit A," for Mrs. Dean ; I afterwards made up other prescriptions ; no arsenic was put in any prescription ; when prisoner came for the prescription he was in a very excited state ; he forgot the prescription and had to go back for it ; he seemed much put out, and wanted the prescription made up in a hurry ; he went off in a hurry with the medicine ; my last instructions to the prisoner were to shake the bottle.

Prescriptions. Dean's manner, &c.

Central Criminal Court :—Prisoner came to see me on Monday, 4th March, with a prescription [produced H] ; I made it up as prescribed ; I put no arsenic or strychnine in it ; I gave him no powder with it ; I saw him next morning ; he got another prescription made up ; it contained no arsenic or strychnine ; prisoner seemed very anxious about his wife ; he requested me three times to make haste whilst I was making up the prescription ; I had to ask him not to bother me, as it ran the risk of making me make a mistake ; I told him to be sure and shake the bottle well ; I was about five minutes making up the prescription ; some other customer was there.

Commission :—The two prescriptions of 4th and 5th March [produced] are correct copies of prescriptions by Dr. Newmarch [see prescriptions Minutes of Evidence page 111] ; the prescription of the 5th March is an injection, and that on the 4th a mixture ; Dean came for the prescriptions ; when he came to my shop on the 5th March he seemed to be quite exhausted ; indeed he went to sleep in the chair while he was waiting for the medicine ; when he came in he put the prescription down ; we started making it up ; I noticed that he appeared to be very exhausted, and I told him to get into the easy chair and have a sleep while I made up the prescription ; he did not appear to be excited on the Tuesday morning ; when I saw him on Monday night he was in a state of great excitement and much distressed, and urged me to make all the haste I could in dispensing the prescription ; the first time he came down on Monday night shortly before 9 o'clock, he had his hands in his pockets ; he then put them into his coat pockets and said he had left the prescription at home ; it was nearly closing hour, and I asked him to hurry as I wanted to shut up my shop ; he returned with the prescription, and I made up the medicine ; while dispensing it he urged me to be quick ; I asked him to sit quiet and wait patiently for the medicine, because hurrying might result in making some mistake ; on the Tuesday morning he put the prescription down, but I have no memory of what he said ; I went behind the dispensing screen to make the enema, which had to be boiled, and which would take some little time ; I asked him to sit down ; I did not particularly notice what condition he was in then ; when I passed the counter I saw him leaning back in the chair with his chin down on his breast ; he was there about twenty minutes ; my assistant was behind the dispensing screen ; Dean had a most ghastly appearance and a distressed look ; I put this down to trouble, and to his having to work all night ; he was quite pale and I said to him, "This enema will take a short time to make, you had better lie down in the chair" ; he reclined in the chair, and went to sleep there ; he never mentioned poison to me ; in December I made up a prescription for Mrs. Dean for some uterine trouble, which is not infrequent with women in an advanced stage of pregnancy ; I sent 4 ounces of enema opii ; 2 ounces each time.

Commission :—The prescription dated 3rd January, 1895, is not mine ; it bears the name of R. J. Smith ; in the prescription there are 6 drachms of solution of morphia ; the morphia in my prescription, dated 5th March, was not the same strength as that dispensed by Mr. Smith ; the dose of liquor morphia for four hours was 10 minims.

Morphia prescription. January.

Police Court :—White arsenic is not in common use ; it is used to kill dogs or white ants, but it is always coloured before being sold ; I have never sold poison to the prisoner ; he has never asked for any.

W. M. Hamlet.

Witness—William Mogford Hamlet (Government Analyst).

Police Court—March 21st, 1895 (page 26). Central Criminal Court—April 4th and 5th (pages 13 and 14). Commission—June 6th (pages 195-200) ; June 7th, re-examined (pages 200-206) ; June 7th, recalled (211, 212) ; June 12th, recalled (pages 250, 251).

Profession.Police Court :—I am the Government Analyst, and have had twenty-three years' experience ; I am a Fellow of the Institute of Chemistry of Great Britain, and have other fellowships.Lemon syrup, Analysis of.

On the 6th March, instant, I received from Inspector Cotter a bottle properly sealed, and labelled " Eastern, Roberts and Agnew, Camperdown, lemon syrup " ; the second label is " Dean No. 1, March 5th, 1895 " ; the capacity of the bottle is 24 fluid ounces ; it contained a clear liquid lemonade amounting to 2½ fluid ounces ; there was a dense white substance at the bottom of the bottle ; the analysis of the contents was made, and 1½ grains of arsenic was found, together with 1.54 grains of strychnine, which imparted to the mixture an intensely bitter taste.

Central Criminal Court :—On 6th March I got from Cotter a bottle sealed and labelled containing lemon syrup [produced] ; I made a preliminary analysis ; it contained 2½ ounces of a clear liquid, with a white powder on the bottom of the bottle ; it had a persistent bitter taste ; a chemical analysis was made and and $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains of white arsenic was found in the contents of the bottle, and 1.5 grains ($1\frac{1}{2}$) of strychnine in the liquid; there was about twice as much liquid as there is now; I produce the strychnine I obtained; the strychnine was in solution; anyone looking for arsenic only would not find the strychnine; $2\frac{1}{2}$ grains is a fatal dose of arsenic; one-half grain of strychnine is a poisonous dose; the mixture of strychnine and arsenic would cause one to counteract the other.

Commission.—With reference to the arsenic being insoluble, and the calculation made as to how much would be in any quantity which a person might take out of a lemon-syrup bottle, the bulk of that would be insoluble; I give the figures— $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains was insoluble and half-a-grain was soluble in the bottle; I have to take out $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains as insoluble—that is, in calculating what a person would take in the liquor, I would have to eliminate $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains, which leaves only half-a-grain to be calculated upon—that is half-a-grain to every $2\frac{1}{2}$ oz.; even that would require the bottle to be shaken up to take the whole of it; the arsenic was lying on the bottom of the bottle; not only would you have to take out the $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains, which was insoluble, but the other half-a-grain would be distributed through it, and it would depend upon whether it was shaken or not; there is some insoluble arsenic at the bottom of the bottle now; this being in a bottle of syrup of this kind, the insoluble part must not be reckoned in calculating what a person would take in pouring some out; it would depend on whether the bottle was shaken to mix it through the rest of the liquid; what remained soluble would not require to be shaken; all the strychnine in the lemon-syrup was in solution; if $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains of arsenic was in the lemon-syrup, and had been put in on top of the bottle, it would take four or five days for that arsenic to settle down in the bottle; supposing it was put in about 2 o'clock in the morning, or at 12 o'clock at night, and some one came next morning and poured out some of that lemon-syrup, some of that powder would come out with it; so that if Mrs. Dean at 7 o'clock in the morning poured out 2 oz. of syrup, she would pour out a considerable quantity of the arsenic which was put in; then, if she took that 2 oz. of syrup and put it under a tap, and poured water on it from a tap, that arsenic would be still intimately mixed up with the fluid; possibly in drinking the mixture of lemon-syrup and water she would take it very much in the same way as if it were in solution—in very much the same quantity; but it depends upon the way in which the arsenic was diffused at the time throughout the liquid; it depends upon what had been done with it, whether it would be diffused in the lemon-syrup in that time—between the night and morning; if somebody put it in and shook the bottle, it would go down much quicker; it takes a long while to mix unless it is violently agitated; if you were to drop some arsenic into some lemon-syrup and allow it to be perfectly quiescent, the arsenic would float on the top for a long time, and it would be several days before it got down to the bottom; but if, on the other hand, you put arsenic into it and shook it up violently and stirred it and then allowed it to be set aside, after the capillary attraction between the water and the arsenic had been sufficiently overcome, the arsenic, when it was thoroughly wetted, would rapidly subside and fall to the bottom; I am talking about water, and lemon-syrup is a viscous stuff, but I do not think it would make much difference; it does not depend very much upon the specific gravity of the fluid, because you can put it on a very light liquid, and it will still float; there was a copious white powder on the bottom of the lemon-syrup; you could see it very distinctly, although there was only $1\frac{1}{2}$ grains in it; I do not think that is very extraordinary, simply because it had been deposited equally, and the whole of the superficies at the bottom of the bottle had been equally covered, and it made a great show; there was only just a film on the bottom; with reference to the bitter taste, strychnine being a colourless body, and with a strong bitter taste, I did not think that anything else could have produced it; in my testing I found nothing besides the strychnine to produce it; if gentian had been added it would have produced a sarsaparilla kind of solution; if cardamons had been added to it, then it would present the appearance of an organic infusion, which it did not; if a little liquorice had been added—enough to give it a taste—or supposing the infusion of quassia had been added, the lemon syrup would still be coloured; quassia is not coloured when freshly made; if strychnine had been added afterwards to produce the bitter taste—when Mrs. Dean took it, that bitter taste might have been due to something else; you could have had some of the alkaloids; you could have brucine to make it bitter; you could not have a quassia solution so bright and clear as that: it was practically as colourless as water; if aloes were added you could get the tint of aloes, but you would not get the tint of rosaniline; the solution of aloes is slightly yellow; the lemon syrup I got was perfectly colourless; lemon syrup is not generally coloured slightly yellow, there is a very faint degree of it formed by the essence of lemon, but that is a different kind of yellow from the yellow I speak of; I think that the quantity of solution of bitter aloes which would be necessary to give that bitter taste, would alter the appearance of the syrup so that you could detect it; I decidedly think that, even if it had not been suggested to me; looking back on the fact, I can say that certainly a solution of bitter almonds had not been added to it, but I could not with certainty say that a solution of quassia had not been added to it; the same argument would hold good with regard to calumba or cardamons, but it would not be so persistently bitter as strychnine; "persistent bitter" is characteristic of the strychnine; it is a character sui generis; as to the question "If someone who had never tasted strychnine before tasted a solution containing a little strychnine, would they describe it as a 'persistent bitter' taste?" probably they would not use the word "persistent"; they would say, "Well, that is a biting bitter taste," or "very strong"; if a witness said "a persistent bitter taste," I don't think it would altogether follow that he knew something about strychnine; the phrase "persistent bitter taste" is used technically in connection with strychnine, because it remains on the tongue a long while; I did not examine the lemon syrup to see whether alcohol was present; I see now that there is a fungoid change beginning in the lemon syrup; this is probably derived from the tartaric acid, because the tartaric acid would nourish the fungus; the lemon syrup had not gone bad; it was perfectly clear, but it seemed to me not to be so strong as ordinary lemon syrup; I do not know whether there was alcohol in it; it is usual in making these beverages to put alcohol or salicylic acid in to prevent fermentation, because they all contain sugar; when they put salicylic acid in, they can say on the label that it does not contain alcohol; I did not look for salicylic acid; I did not look for alcohol; notwithstanding all the theories about other things producing bitter tastes, I found strychnine crystals in the lemon syrup; I have absolutely no doubt on that point.

Police Court.—On the 16th March I received from Mr. Doherty, my assistant, a tumbler properly secured and labelled, containing tea and milk, together with a white sediment; Mr. Doherty made the analysis.

Tea in tumbler—
Analysis of.

Central

W. M.
Hamlet.

Central Criminal Court:—I examined some tea in a tumbler; I got it from Doherty; I found one-fifteenth of a grain of strychnine in it, and I also confirmed Doherty's finding of arsenic; he had not searched for strychnine; when first put into a liquid arsenic will float and cover the air bubbles, and present the appearance of lumps floating; at the bottom of the tumbler I found solid arsenic.

Commission:—Taking the tea—it is in evidence that part of the tea out of the tea-cup was poured into the tumbler; the chances are that under the circumstances, the arsenic being very insoluble, the greater part of it would be still left in the tea-cup, so that what I examined from the tumbler would be only a small part very likely of what was put in; but even then there was a large proportion of insoluble arsenic in the tumbler, and I transferred the liquid from the tumbler to a stoppered bottle in order to take care of it; as far as the arsenic in the tea is concerned, I found that it had been added in a bungling manner, because a large proportion of the arsenic was insoluble; if arsenic had been dumped into the tea, and some of that tea was poured off into a tumbler which was put on one side, the arsenic in the tumbler would be chiefly in solution, but some would be in excess, and that excess would be insoluble; if a small quantity of arsenic is put in a tea-cup, and the tea is tasted, and some objection found to taking it, and afterwards some of the tea is found to be in a saucer, and then the tea in the saucer is poured back into the tea-cup, then from the tea-cup some is poured into a tumbler which is put on one side, and that tumbler is given to me, I should not expect to find much solid arsenic in it under those circumstances, unless it had been put in afterwards; I should not expect to find as much as I did; I should like to add that it depends upon the person who had the cup in her hand—whether she stirred it—if she, by the rotary stirring motion, stirred up the arsenic, it would be in suspension, but if it was quiet, and the sediment of arsenic had been deposited on the bottom of the tea-cup, then it would be quite possible for very little of the arsenic to pass over into the saucer; supposing that some tea is brought upstairs, that from that tea some is poured into a tea-cup, and it is said that there are lumps on the surface of the tea and in the saucer, that the person to whom it is offered refuses to take the tea out of the saucer, and it is poured back into the tea-cup, and then some short space of time elapses while one of the persons there is asked to go on a message, and while the man is on the message some of the tea remaining in the tea-cup and of that which has been poured back into the tea-cup is poured into the tumbler and that tumbler put away, I would expect to find what I have found in this tumbler—one-tenth of a grain of arsenic; the greater part of course would be left in the tea-cup; I would not expect to find as much undissolved in the tumbler as I found; it would be exceedingly difficult to speak positively about this matter one way or the other; it is in no way inconsistent; it depends upon the habit of the person who has been handling it; one person will handle a thing perfectly steady, and another person will shake it up; one-tenth or one-twelfth of a grain of arsenic would be a very small quantity to look at; it is very heavy; with reference to Mrs. Dean's evidence—"I saw seven or eight lumps round the edge of the saucer; they were much smaller than a pea, some were a little larger,"—that would represent a very small quantity; arsenious acid is so fine, and its repulsive action with water so great, that it would cover an air bubble and so appear as a globule or bubble; the word lump would be the expression of an ordinary person for these bubbles; if you take arsenic and put it on the top of some tea, you would not get lumps straight away; you would get globules; these globules would come from the atmosphere; if you were to take a pinch of white arsenic, as much as would remain on a threepenny piece, and put it into hot coffee or tea, you would find the greatest difficulty in making that arsenic subside; it would remain on the air-bubbles and all round the rim of the vessel; supposing you put it on the end of a knife, and put it on the top of some tea in a saucer, it would spread itself into separate air-bubbles; the froth on the surface would simply be covered; you cannot pour any organic liquid from one vessel to another without having air-bubbles; if you pour a glass of beer from one glass to another you would have these air-bubbles; there would not be very many in hot tea; there would be more in cold tea than in hot tea; suppose you had a hot cup of tea, and you took some of this arsenious acid and put it on the end of a knife, or with a bit of paper, and put it on that one piece, you would get that appearance with the globules; it would float; you would get the globules in hot tea; you would get both lumps and little globules; some of the fragments of the arsenic would remain in little lumps on the surface; the little lumps which Mrs. Dean describes by saying, "I saw seven or eight lumps round the edge of the saucer," would represent a small quantity of arsenic; it is exceedingly difficult to hazard an opinion as to the least quantity that would produce that appearance; supposing there was a grain of arsenic it would be quite sufficient to produce the powdery film; I should say that a single grain would account for that appearance; I understand they are distinct enough for a person who is handed a cup of tea to notice them before she drinks it; they must be pretty marked, but if you had a saucer of tea handed you with a grain of arsenic on the top of it you would see it and reject it; possibly there would be 70 little lumps from one grain clinging to the saucer; I do not know how much tea was in the tumbler; Mr. Doherty measured it; all that I have in my notes is that there was a tenth of a grain of arsenic and a fifteenth of a grain of strychnine (Mr. Doherty interposed "six ounces"); in my opinion, if a person had noticed certain appearances about this tea which aroused her suspicions, and she wanted to preserve it for the sake of analysis, she would preserve the suspicious part naturally; a great many of the little white lumps would adhere to the saucer, and she would not be able to get them into the tumbler; she could not transfer them to the tumbler properly; if she wanted to do so, she could, to some extent, but not perfectly; then, having poured it into the tumbler, it would be more or less intimately mixed with the tea and milk; the appearance of the little lumps on the top would therefore be likely to be lost; I do think that in that way of treating it, when it is done by a person who wants to preserve the evidence of poisoning, or the evidence of something wrong, that the greater part at all events of that substance that produced that appearance would be preserved; admitting that one-tenth of a grain is found, I cannot hazard an opinion whether one-tenth of a grain is the greater portion of that which is floating on the top in the first instance; it is merely a supposition; the personal equation comes in; if a careful person tried to transfer some arsenic from a saucer to a tumbler he would get a far greater proportion of arsenic into the tumbler than a careless person; if one-tenth of a grain was all that was found afterwards, I could not say whether that would be a large proportion or a small proportion of the quantity which was originally seen in these seven or eight little lumps; I would rather incline to the small than to the large proportion; I have said that if a careful person had done it you would get more than one-tenth of a grain; that is a very small quantity; it is possible for a person who was not a chemist to limit himself to one-tenth of a grain in putting arsenic in it, but it would be exceedingly difficult; there was only one-tenth of a grain in it; that would be harmless, quite within the range of a medicinal dose.

Police

Police Court :—I next received a woman's nightdress, 8 feet $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches in length and 27 inches at its widest part; on the lower part behind I found large irregular stains of faecal matter, extending over an area of 17 inches by 15 inches, close down to the bottom edge of the garment; the faecal matter was subjected to analysis and found to contain distinct traces of arsenic.

Central Criminal Court :—I cut out a portion of the nightdress produced; the stain was at the back, and was of faecal matter; I analysed it and found traces of arsenic; I believe it had passed through the human system because it was so intimately incorporated with the faecal matter, and because I went over it with the microscope and could trace no crystals; there was no trace of any arsenic being put on the faecal matter; I searched but could find nothing to indicate a wash of arsenic being put on; what I found would indicate a large dose of arsenic—not a medical dose, I think.

The nightdress.
faecal stain.

Commission :—The quantity of arsenic which was found in this faecal stain was only a minute trace; if that had been added artificially to the stain afterwards, I would have expected to find a much larger quantity than that, and I should have expected to find the faecal matter disarranged; evidently it had not been tampered with from the time it had been deposited; it would require a very clever sort of artist criminal to do that, and in that case I would expect to find a very much larger quantity of arsenic than a mere trace; I could find crystals if it had been added in the form of arsenious anhydride; I have done so since; I mean if it had been mixed artificially afterwards; the appearances of the faecal stain are perfectly natural—that is to say, it has been passed through the human system as faecal matter, that is, faecal matter coming from the system of a person who had already taken arsenic; I am ready to prove that the crystals can be seen on calico under a microscope; I can speak positively on the point; I can demonstrate it; my impression was that the faecal stain was perfectly natural, and I stated that in court; I say that certain solutions of white arsenic thrown on calico can be well enough distinguished with a glass; it would show crystals; I do not say that a solution could not be thrown in any way on this calico in this particular case that had faecal matter on it without showing crystals; I could take Fowler's solution of arsenicalis, if I had a fine jet, and pour it on very carefully, and I do not think you would be able to see it then; I mean a thing that would throw a very fine spray; if it was done in the other way—if it was scattered about—I would detect it; I do not say it would alter the faecal stain; it would not do so; you would actually see the crystals, and you could isolate them, and pick them out with a needle under a common magnifying glass, and subject them to sulphuretted hydrogen, and get the sulphide of arsenic, and it would not be distributed through it in the way I found it; in a solution such as Fowler's solution it would be more finely divided and more incorporated—more permeated; but dissolved white arsenic would remain as crystals on the surface; that is one of the first things an analyst has to look for in the coating of the stomach; there would be crystals of white arsenic; they are readily recognisable by a common magnifying glass; outside the stain itself I found none of these things whatever—that is to say, they were limited to the stain on the night dress; it was a well-defined stain, and I carefully searched at all these points [Diagram D.C.B.] outside the region of the stain, and I found no arsenic; with regard to the question asked me by one of the medical gentlemen, "Supposing the excreta had poison mixed properly with it in solution, and then it were applied to the nightgown, what would be the result?" it was not dipped; it was a genuine faecal stain; there is no doubt about that; supposing it were dipped in or put on somehow, then there would be no traces of poison outside the faecal stain; so the fact of my not finding the poison outside the faecal stain would not prove whether it came there in the natural course of events or whether it was put on; all my examination of the stain on the nightdress was for arsenious acid; I was looking for octahedra crystals, which are generally formed by sublimation; the white arsenic of commerce is generally an amorphous powder; there is a vitreous variety and a crystalline variety; the latter is prepared with very much greater care than the amorphous variety; if you were buying white arsenic in a shop you would get a mixture of the two; the great bulk of it would be amorphous; I know that it is only by considerable delicacy in the manner of experimenting that you can sublime arsenic in such a way as to get those octahedra crystals; it requires a great deal of delicacy to do it, and unless you get those octahedra crystals your microscope or lens would not be a fraction of good for detecting arsenic; I say that I can find it if it is there; and I can find it first of all by the preliminary examination with the microscope, and then by discovering the crystal with sulphuretted hydrogen; I could go over every fraction of an inch of a stain 17 x 15 inches so as to be certain I could find a crystal of arsenic if it was there; I do not think I could undertake to find one crystal, but I could find it chemically if not by the lens; if ordinary arsenious acid were used, I certainly could not do so if it passed through the body; I would find it as sulphide if it had passed through the body; you could not see sulphide of arsenic with the eye; you would not see anything to suggest arsenic in the faecal matter; if you took some of the arsenious acid of commerce (not these octahedra crystals which are formed with a delicate operation) and dissolved it in water and filtered it, and if then you poured it on some linen and let it dry, you would find crystals; I mean that if you take the ordinary arsenious acid of commerce, dissolve it in water, pour it on linen, and let it dry, you will get those octahedra crystals; I do not know whether anybody else would get them, but I would; if the arsenious acid had been in any other form than the octahedra crystals, my microscope would not have helped me; these octahedra crystals are produced by crystallisation from solutions of any white arsenic; the vitreous form would change spontaneously into the crystalline form by being treated with water; commercial arsenious acid is a mixture of the amorphous, crystalline, and vitreous; the vitreous is generally found as a kernel in the middle of a lump, after the arsenic has remained in mass for a long time; the crystalline form comes from the arsenic having been sublimed at the lowest possible temperature; the octahedra is a variety which is spontaneously formed from the crystals of the amorphous; there is a tendency in the amorphous to crystallise and ultimately become octahedra crystals; I have examined with a microscope the commercial form of arsenious acid; these octahedra crystals were few and far between in it; I should be surprised to find none after examining a whole specimen; I have under the microscope here a piece of calico which has been prepared; the piece of calico was a portion of an old shirt; it has been thoroughly washed, and it was saturated with the solution of arsenious acid in water—simply dipped into the solution and allowed to dry in the air, and put immediately under the microscope; the solution was in hot water; arsenious acid is more soluble in hot than in cold water; the solubility in cold water is 1 in 100, and in hot water 1 in 20; when I say that is the solubility in cold and in hot water, I do not mean that is the extreme solubility; it is difficult to say whether cold water would never take up more than 1 part in 100, and hot never more than 1 in 20, because in all the text-books there is a discrepancy as to the solubility of arsenic in water owing to the complex complex nature of white arsenic; I have said that there are the amorphous crystalline and vitreous varieties; some text-books will tell you that the solubility of arsenic in cold water is 1 in 800, others 1 in 50, others 1 in 80, others 1 in 100; I think the mean is 1 in 100; it depends upon whether you use the octahedra crystals; with ordinary white arsenic I think you might be quite safe in saying 1 in 100 would be the solubility; 1 in 100 is a very strong solution of arsenious acid; about the solution of arsenious acid in hot water, I say 1 in 20; I have expressed the opinion that this was done by a very unskilled person; common white arsenic is used in sheep dip and in arsenious soap; there are soluble colourless salts of arsenic used in commerce—arsenites, arseniates, and sulphides; the sulphide is yellow; the arsenites in commerce are used in medicine, in the preparation of Fowler's solution, and in skin preparations, and in electro-metallurgy, and for producing deposits on metals, also for staining gun-barrels and other purposes; it is quite easy, in a place like Sydney, to procure these solutions of soluble forms of arsenic for any of these purposes I have mentioned; you simply add white arsenic to a solution of common washing soda crystals, and you have arsenite of soda at once; in making sheep dip you must dissolve the arsenic; arsenic will not dissolve easily in water, and the shepherd takes washing soda to make it dissolve; if any of these colourless salts were used on this night dress, my microscopic examination would help me to detect their presence by rendering the crystals visible; they are in the form of prismatic crystals; you can recognise them under the microscope, but not on the linen cloth; I would have to separate them; of course I would have to see something which would suggest their presence; if I were to look upon a piece of white calico for crystals of any arsenical compound, I should after microscopical examination apply the chemical tests over many parts outside the stain on this night-gown; I only took outside patches—some patches outside the stain; I did not see anything through the microscope; I did not go any further; I did not look for blood—not microscopic blood; it seemed to me like a very soluble kind of stool, and there were little irregular tufts or lumps dotted all over; it had been a very fluid stool, as if somebody had been purged, and would have spread itself on the night-gown; the night-dress had been worn inside out; evidently the person who had put it on had put it on the wrong way—inside out; the faecal stain was on the back, at the lower part of the garment inside, assuming that it had been worn so; but from the evidence of the buttons in front, the night-gown had been worn the wrong way, as if a person had put it on carelessly; the faecal stain, if it had been properly put on, would have been on the outside; the buttons were on the wrong way; the button on the throat would be inside instead of outside; it would depend on how the wearer wore the night-dress whether the faecal deposit was on the inside or on the outside of the night-dress; if it was worn the regular way, it was on the outside; it was worn inside out; the person had it on the wrong way—inside out; I did not see the person who had it on; it is my hypothesis; it appeared to me that a person had worn it that way, and the faecal matter agreed exactly with the position of the buttons; I have spoken about a button; a night-dress has generally more than one button [night-dress produced]; here is the button [examining the night-dress], and the embroidery is on this side, and the faecal stain is here; the hem is on the one side and the faecal stain is on the other side; there is the top button and the second button; there are no buttons to the wrists; the buttons are on the side they should be; it is not as if the hem was on the one side and the buttons on the same side; assuming the night-dress to be worn inside out, then the faecal stain was on the right side; if, on the contrary, it was worn the right way, then the stain was on the wrong side; suppose it was put on the right way, the end part might be doubled up to show the stain, the stain being at the bottom, extending to the bottom edge; if a person had it on the right way it would go there, too; that night-dress has no side slits in it—it is closed right down to the bottom; I cannot say whether it would be possible to turn the tail of the night-dress up, inside out, so neatly as to produce the stain on that side only, and not so as to come on both sides; the experiment might be made by some one putting the night-gown on; if a person were lying in bed with the weight of the body on that night-dress, supposing it were put on the right side out to start with, in order to get it turned up in such a way, it would have to be turned up in an irregular manner; in order to account for that stain being on the side of the night-dress on which it is, I think it was worn the wrong way; it is a hypothesis; you have to make some hypothesis to account for the stain being on that side; we make hypotheses in almost everything; that was the first thing I looked at, outside where the stain was; as to the shape of the stain I have a diagram of it; it is more of a paraboloid; it is elliptical—egg-shaped; it would require a very clever artist to produce the stain artificially, because if it had been dipped, the act of dipping it would have caused the matter to have extended in quite a different direction altogether; it appears to me to have been produced naturally, from what I can see, from what had passed from the patient; I could have produced the stain otherwise than by dipping; you might take a brush and dot it over; there are no other ways that I can suggest; if you took a brush and had plenty of matter you could imitate it; I think it would be impossible to produce it with a spoon; he must be a very clever designing criminal to do it even with a brush; the theory put forward as to the stain being put on the night-gown afterwards is a practical one, because, as I said before, you could take a painter's brush and put it on, or put it on with a fine spray; it is possible, but the inference I draw from having examined it is, that it is highly improbable; it is hardly reasonable to think that this was done at any rate by an ignorant person; I presume that anybody who knew as much about it as you (Dr. Todd) could do it. (Re-called): I saw the night-gown when I was last examined, but not since [night-dress produced]; I see the perspiration marks round the neck; I think the marks are equally inside and out, because the stain has permeated the collar all through; I believe it was worn inside out; I came to that conclusion when I first examined it; I have looked at the armpits; it is quite clean; there are slight signs of wear on the present outside; here [looking at night-dress] it has the ordinary appearance under the arm—the perspiration-marks have gone right through right under the armpits; the stain goes right through; the crucial test is that the signs of wear on the cuff are on the outside, the proper inside, and the proper outside is perfectly clean; besides, here are stains of mucous from the nose, nasal discharge, on one of the sleeves, on what is at present the outside; my conclusion is that it was worn inside out; if the texture is thick enough, the perspiration stains are on the inside of the garment, the side next the skin; the chemical test is the presence of sebaceous acid, and I cannot swear which side it would be deposited on.

W. M.

Police Court:—I next received a bottle labelled "Dean No. 4, March the 10th, urine passed March 9th and 10th"; this, upon analysis, was found to contain arsenic.

urine

Central

Central Criminal Court :—I examined some urine [produced]; I found distinct traces of arsenic in it; on the 16th March, on my return from Grafton, I broke the seal, finding indications after a week which would indicate an injurious dose, not a medical dose; I should expect to find arsenic in urine and fæces; I should expect to find it after several days in urine; it would remain in suspension two days, but if you stir it up it rapidly sinks; I examined urine brought me by Cotter as from Dr. Newmarch; first was Mrs. Dean's, March 31st, no arsenic found in it; 2nd, D No. 8, urine No. 1, March 31st, contained distinct traces of arsenic; on 3rd April, urine produced April 1st showed distinct traces of arsenic, not so strong as that found on 31st; D No. 10, urine produced April 2nd, at 7.10 p.m., Dr. Newmarch, contained a still fainter trace; in the urine of Mrs. Dean the arsenic was perfectly dissolved, and it showed that it had probably passed through the kidneys; and their not finding strychnine is consistent with her having taken it a week before, because strychnine is very rapidly eliminated.

Commission :—I examined a number of bottles of urine; I think I examined more than two bottles of urine said to have come from Mrs. Dean; I cannot give you the number; I think I had three of them—two at the trial, and one since; referring to my evidence at the trial, I examined two specimens of urine said to be Mrs. Dean's; I found distinct traces of arsenic in the one drawn during the 9th and 10th March, said to have been drawn on the 10th March, and in the one drawn on the 1st of April (labelled No. 7) no arsenic was found; I think the last specimen was drawn from Mrs. Dean with the catheter by Dr. Newmarch on the 1st of April; it was not handed to me with that intimation; it was stated on the bottle, I think, "drawn with the catheter"; I said that in examining the urine the arsenic was perfectly dissolved, which showed it had probably passed through the kidneys; there were traces of arsenic, but not appreciable by weight at all; I estimated it as below one-fiftieth of a grain; why I say it passed through the kidneys was because I tried a similar experiment with urine by adding arsenic to it, and I found I never could get a clear solution even after standing for five or six or seven days; but in the case of the urine alleged to have come from Mrs. Dean it was perfectly dissolved and there was no sediment—no arsenic in the sediment; if the urine had been tampered with, and that arsenic had been added to it after it had been passed, in my opinion that arsenic would not have been so perfectly dissolved; I am certainly of opinion it would have been in larger quantities, because my general impression about this Dean case is that it is a most bungling and crude method of adding the arsenic; the arsenic if it has been added has been added by a careless and ignorant person; it has been added in a much larger quantity than was necessary for the purpose; therefore, if they had tampered with the urine it would be likely to be used there in much larger quantities; I do not mean to say that the arsenic has been given by some bungling person; what I mean is that if you were to add a pinch of arsenic to a vessel containing urine it would be an exceedingly difficult matter for you to make it dissolve; in order to get a clear urine afterwards you would have to filter it; this urine I am speaking of was perfectly clear; it was my impression that, through the cause I have said just now, it has been given by some bungling person, because the arsenic in the lemon-syrup was insoluble on the bottom of the bottle; had it been a careful person, he would have taken more care to dissolve it; nearly the whole of it was insoluble; nearly the whole of it was in a solid state at the bottom of the bottle; as far as the strychnine was concerned, it was just the reverse; that was dissolved, but not so perfectly as if alcohol had been present; had alcohol been present a more perfect solution would have been obtained; but it was not, as far as I can judge, added by a bungling person—that is to say, in absurd excess; in the case of the arsenic it was so; the specimen of the urine I examined was about 5 oz.; it was an 8-oz. bottle, more than half full, and there was one-fiftieth of a grain of arsenic in it; the normal quantity of urine passed in the twenty-four hours is from 36 oz. to 56 oz.; supposing you take it at 40 oz., if one-fiftieth of a grain were in 5 oz., that would be eight-fiftieths or one-sixth of a grain, but I do not think I should make any calculation upon that statement of one-sixth of a grain, because I did not weigh it; the urine was acid when I examined it; I took 6 oz. of the urine and dropped some arsenic in it—arsenious acid, ordinary commercial arsenic; I allowed it to remain all Saturday and Sunday, and I came on a Monday morning, and I still found arsenic floating on the surface of the urine; I did not stir it at all; if I had added a few drops of sheep-wash made in the way I described—arsenite of soda or arsenite of potash in solution—to the 6 oz. of urine, so as to give one-fiftieth of a grain, I would not have altered the appearance of the urine; that experiment was of no value to show whether that had passed through the kidneys; it was not made with that view at all; it was simply to show that if anyone threw white arsenic into urine it would not mix with the urine without stirring or shaking it up in a bottle; this urine came to my office in a bottle, and would have had a good deal of shaking before it reached there; it just depends upon the amount added as to how much arsenic would be on the top; one-fiftieth of a grain would be imperceptible.

Commission :—I tested a series of samples of the urine of Dr. Newmarch for arsenic; the results, as compared with the urine that had been passed by Mrs. Dean, were very similar; the appearance of the urine was the same, and the traces of arsenic were apparently the same; I know that Dr. Newmarch's urine passed through the system; he took half a grain of arsenic; the appearance of the arsenic in the urine of Mrs. Dean corresponded with that in the urine which I knew had passed through the system of Dr. Newmarch; there were four samples of Dr. Newmarch's urine, one on March 31, April 1, April 2, and April 4; I simply examined it for arsenic; if an arsenic solution had been added to Dr. Newmarch's urine in the same way as it has been suggested it might have been added to Mrs. Dean's urine, you would have got the same results; this examination of Dr. Newmarch's urine shows that, given Mrs. Dean's urine and Dr. Newmarch's urine side by side, they would be the same; the appearance of both would be the same; I think that had particular value, to show whether the urine came from the kidneys or not, because, if arsenic had been added, there would probably have been a precipitate of mucin; if a solution containing one-fiftieth of a grain of arsenic had been added to 6 oz. of urine, I think there would have been a mucous deposit—turbidity at least; I have tried that, and found that it did not produce a deposit with one-fifth of a grain—with a small quantity; I did not weigh it—about half a grain, I think; I did not put it on the top in the way described in the other experiments; I had a clear solution of arsenious acid; half a grain in solution produced a deposit of mucous, of protein bodies in the urine; I did not examine this deposit, but I knew it was protein because it bore a strong resemblance to an albumen precipitate; it was a flocculent, slimy precipitate; it resembled, to some extent, an albumen precipitate produced by the addition of corrosive sublimate, that would be in appearance, and what we call protein bodies, got by adding arsenic to this urine; I have no other ground for saying that this was a deposit of protein bodies from the urine; I did not examine the precipitate; there was sufficient appearance to justify me in saying that it was precipitate precipitate of mucin; mucous generally appears in the urine, when copious, as a very light precipitate, occupying a good deal of space—flocculent, and at the same time slimy; it occupies a good deal of space in the bottom of the glass; albumen, when recently precipitated, occupies the whole body of the liquid, and when it is deposited it becomes flocculent and filamentous; it would not be possible for me, as an expert, in examining urine, to mistake the appearance of a precipitate of albumen for a precipitate of mucous; I do not say it is an albumen precipitate, but a similar precipitate in appearance—that is to say, when arsenic is added to ordinary urine you get a precipitate and a deposit; but the two urines I got were clear, and had evidently all the appearance of not having been tampered with; if one-fiftieth of a grain of arsenic was added to 6 oz., you would not get a precipitate of mucous; I inferred that both Mrs. Dean's urine and Dr. Newmarch's urine passed through the system, because when arsenic was put in afterwards the appearance was exactly the same; I candidly think that the theory that these exhibits have been tampered with is a feasible one; it could all be done artificially by a very skilled criminal, or someone who knew the properties of these things; it could be done by a toxicologist, but not by any ordinary person; the person would require to have an intimate knowledge of these poisons, as to their solubility in urine, and so forth; the person would have to be, to a certain extent, a chemist; he would have to have a knowledge of arsenic, strychnine, and soda, and be shown or know how to do it.

Mrs. Dean's
milk. No poison found.

Police Court:—I next received a small phial, properly sealed, and labelled, "Milk drawn from breast Mrs. Dean, handed to Inspector by Dr. Newmarch"; it was found to contain no poison.

Central Criminal Court:—Examined a bottle of milk containing no arsenic; after several days I should expect to find arsenic in urine and fæcus, but not in milk.

Commission:—I think there was about $1\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of the milk drawn from the breast; it was in a small phial; I found no arsenic in that; I found an exceedingly minute trace, which I am not justified in saying was arsenic; it did not come out of the materials I used; but if you refer to Taylor you will find that Dr. Stevenson lays down that, if a man finds an exceedingly minute quantity such as 1-10,000th part of a grain, he is not justified in using that in any criminal case; that 1-10,000th part of a grain even in pure zinc might be present; I did not use zinc; I carefully avoided doing so; I used magnesium; there is no possibility of contamination by magnesium; it is used by toxicologists as being the most suitable thing to use in the detection of arsenic; this particular metal magnesium contained no arsenic.

Strychnine. In what form given —salt or alkaloid.

Commission:—It would be impossible for an analyst to say whether it was in the form of an alkaloid or in the form of a salt that the strychnine would be likely to have been given; probably as an alkaloid, judging from some experiments I made of a-pink strychnine; pink strychnine is always in the form of the alkaloid; the salt is generally used in medicine, but for poisoning the alkaloid is used; there was nothing whatever to show me that this strychnine had been put into these various things—the lemon syrup, the tea I examined, and into the other articles, as a powder, in crystals, or solution; I could not say whether it was in crystals or in solution; I think there is no possibility of judging whether these two articles were given together in anything like definite proportions; I think they were added in the most haphazard manner.

Strychnine—
its solubility.

Commission:—Strychnine would be more soluble in a solution containing an organic acid than in a solution without an organic acid; it would not be much more soluble; the solubility as tartrate would be 1 in 52, the solubility as citrate 1 in 37, and as the hydro-chlorate 1 in 35; the solubility increases with the mineral acids.

Strychnine and arsenic.

Alleged
antagonism.

Commission:—With regard to the statement I made in reference to strychnine and arsenic counteracting each other, I was asked the question in Court, and I, at first, declined to answer it, because I considered it was beyond my province; but the request was made again, and I did answer it; I said "probably," but in the Judge's notes on page 9, line 39 from the top, the word "probably" does not appear, which considerably alters my statement; I said that it would probably cause one to counteract the other; I have evidence on the subject; it was reasoning by analogy with the action of metallic irritants such as antimony and zinc, which are powerful emetics; I know Dupuy's work on alkaloids (vol. ii, p. 603), where it says: If immediately after ingestion of strychnine a salt of zinc or antimony or some heavy metal be administered as an emetic, it will probably relieve the person drinking it from strychnine poisoning; in the sense of exciting vomiting I mean, and in that sense only; I had no idea of counteracting it in the system; my idea was that arsenic would counteract the strychnine by causing vomiting, and this opinion was further strengthened by Dr. Newmarch, who asked me how it was that Mrs. Dean did not die; as to this, Dr. Newmarch asked me if I knew anything about the antagonistic action between arsenic and strychnine; I told him that the only case on record that I knew was the celebrated Cross case in Dublin, but there the patient died; then I said that I remembered reading something about the antagonistic action between strychnine and arsenic, but that I could not then state where I had read it; I said probably there might be some counteracting influence between the two substances; then I looked up the matter and I found the reference mentioned; Dr. Newmarch said he could not understand why she did not die; I could give the doctor no explanation; I felt justified in saying they might counteract each other, but I did not say positively that they did counteract each other; I was referring to the same matter when talking to Dr. Newmarch; I meant that it was simply antagonistic because it acted as an emetic; any other emetic would do the same; in the Judge's notes, on page 15, I am reported as saying, "Strychnine would modify the action of the arsenic, to which it is antagonistic, and would counteract it"; the explanation which I have given since meant to cover that note also.

appearance in tumbler.

Commission:—I know that liquor bismuthi was used in the prescription on the 4th March, but I do not know whether it was Schacht's or not; I know Schacht's liquor bismuthi by repute, but never handled it; it does contain bismuth; I believe it is not an acid solution; it would not be easy to get bismuth in an acid solution; 30 drops, or half a dram of Schacht's liquor bismuthi would, therefore, not contain very much bismuth; if the mixture of tinct. opii, liquor bismuthi, acid hydrocyn. dyl. and syrup and water were added to a glass which had some milk and limewater in it, it would give it a milky appearance; I have no doubt it would be due to the precipitation of the bismuth by the limewater; I have not actually tried it; if the bismuth were not there at all the water would throw down the oxy-chloride of bismuth; in any case it would do that, so that would make it milky; the very fact of the milk being in the tumbler would obscure the phenomenon; you would not see it very easily; you would not see it through the glass as a clear liquid; I do not think anybody would take special notice of it at 11 o'clock at night, by candle-light, as to its clearness; it would be opaque; a person might think there was something in it; I have made some experiments that I can repeat here by adding liquor bismuthi (Schacht's) to lime-water and milk;

[witness

W. M. Harlet.

[witness makes the experiment] (1) I take a test tube containing some liquor bismuthi; I have the bismuth compound in the test tube and I add some pure lime-water, and the lime-water produces turbidity or a milkiness in it; if I add milk it increases the turbidity and makes it quite dense or opaque; (2) I take some milk and I add some lime-water and I shake it, and I throw it away and add a little liquor bismuthi, about three drops of the bismuth, and there is a milkiness at the bottom of the tumbler.

Commission:—I analysed the medicine that Dr. Newmarch prescribed for the vomiting and purging on the 4th March—that containing hydrocyanic acid; there was no arsenic and no strychnine in that; it is not correct to say that when you combine tartaric acid with bicarbonate of soda you get tartrate of soda, which is known as Rochelle salts; Rochelle salts are not formed in that way at all; Rochelle salts is the double salt of tartrate of soda and potash; it is nonsense to say that "The chemical reaction of tartaric acid and bicarbonate of soda would make tartrate of soda in a very infinitesimal quantity"; it would form tartrate exactly in the proportion in which the substances existed; that is, if there were n grains of one and n grains of the other, they would unite to form n grains of tartrate; with reference to Dr. Knagg's evidence as to Rochelle salts being slightly purgative the medicine in which it was contained was prescribed for vomiting; Rochelle salts are the double tartrate of potash and soda—what is generally known as potassio-sodium tartrate; it is very closely allied to tartaric acid in its physiological action; they are both mild purgatives, but the purgative requires the addition of a base as well as tartaric acid; the acid itself would not act as a purgative; tartaric acid alone would not act as a purgative; tartrate of soda is a mild laxative; I have seen the prescription which contained the bicarbonate of soda and the tartaric acid, but did not notice the quantities; in any case there would not be enough there to produce an aperient action—2 drams in an 8-ounce mixture;—one-sixteenth of 2 drams would not be a strong aperient; tartrate of soda would be formed in that bicarbonate of soda and tartaric acid.

Tartrate of soda a purgative.

Central Criminal Court:—I examined the tonic (D); I found 3 grains of arsenic in it, and traces of strychnine; it was a quarter full.

January illness. The tonic.

Police Court:—I next received an 8-ounce medicine bottle, marked "Dean, No. 3, 7th March, 1895"; this bottle contained 2½ fluid ounces of medicine, which upon analysis contained 3 grains of white arsenic, together with distinct traces of strychnine.

Powder in medicine.

Police Court:—I received a paper package containing five powders, like the powders produced, "Dean, No. 2"; these were submitted to analysis, with the result that no poison was found.

The Powders.

Police Court:—Other bottles and articles were examined, but they did not contain poison.

Other bottles, &c.

Police Court:—From three-quarters of a grain up to 3 grains of strychnine would form a fatal dose.

A fatal dose of strychnine.

Commission:—I did not analyse this bottle that was dug up out of Weynton's garden; I do not know whether it is the salt of strychnine or the pure alkaloid; I know nothing of it [bottle containing the strychnine handed to witness]; this is an alkaloid, that is, coloured with rosaniline for the protection of the public; this is the first time I have examined it; I know the strychnine which I found mixed with arsenic in the lemon-syrup; supposing strychnine out of this bottle had been used, that would accord with what I found; assuming that a person had got strychnine out of this bottle, all that I have seen in my examination as to the strychnine would correspond with this very kind of strychnine; this [indicating bottle] is pure colourless crystals of strychnine, and this [indicating bottle] is strychnine coloured with a little rosaniline to prevent mistakes; that is to say, it would be strychnine—I cannot say more than that; this is the pure colourless crystal, and that is used for poisoning dingoes; if a soluble salt of strychnine had been used all through in this case—not the alkaloid strychnine—the results, so far as my tests are concerned, would be exactly the same; I cannot say, from my examination, whether a soluble salt was used or whether the alkaloid was used; if strychnine coloured with rosaniline had been used in this poisoning, the colour would disappear in the lemon-syrup; it would be discharged; it would turn into another colour; it would be decolourised; it would be colourless rosaniline; the organic acid in the lemon-syrup would produce that change; all acids discharge the colour of rosaniline, especially mineral acids; it would not colour the lemon-syrup; I tried the experiment with pink strychnine in lemon-syrup, and found identically the same appearance; I took some pink strychnine, and dissolved it in two or three ounces of lemon-syrup, and the colour was completely discharged; the acid bleaches it; in my tests there was nothing to show that the rosaniline strychnine was used; I might have brought back the colour by isolating the rosaniline, but I did not do that; the lemon-syrup that we saw in the bottle yesterday was cloudy; it is possible to bring the colour back in that; it would take about two hours to do it.

Strychnine found in Weynton's garden.

Commission:—All cases of poisoning present great difficulties.

Police Court:—I have seen the prisoner before on the ferry; he always appeared to be a man of good character.

Cases of poisoning.

Central Criminal Court:—I have seen prisoner daily crossing over; I formed a favourable opinion of his honesty and sobriety; I was present when he got a presentation for saving life.

Dean's character.

Witness—John Asbury (husband of Caroline Seymour).

J. Asbury.

Commission—20th May, 1895 (pages 57, 70).

I know this woman now before the Commissioners; that is my wife. I arrived on this side of the world in 1850; I came out by the "Maria Soames" to Hobart, Tasmania; after living with Judge Horne for a time, I entered the Police force; I was sworn in as a sergeant and detective constable under Captain Burgess; I was in the Police force for six years and two months as near as I can remember; I was transported to Tasmania when I had just turned 16 years of age; I received a sentence of seven years for picking pockets; I was in the hotel business for sixteen years in Hobart, eleven of which I remained in the "Emu Hotel" in Elizabeth-street.

History—Seven years' transportation.

It was about the time I was in the Police force that I unfortunately met the woman I have just identified as my wife; I married her on 2nd May, 1854, at St. George's Church, Hobart.

Marriage.

She came out as a pass-holder in 1852,—that is, she could go about as she liked, and she had the privilege of marrying a freeman or a ticket-of-leave man, under certain conditions.

She came out as a pass-holder.

Whilst living at the "Emu Hotel" I had occasion to purchase arsenic; that arsenic was in a small bottle—a most peculiar-shaped phial; you do not see any bottle like that now-a-days; I cannot remember in what year I bought the poison; I bought it for the purpose of poisoning rats; the place was overrun with Purchased arsenic for rats.

J. Asbury.

with rats; I bought half-a-crown's worth of arsenic; the bottle was about three parts full of white powder; after I had used it I put it on a shelf in the bar behind some "old Tom" bottles; my wife knew where the bottle was put; she knew all about it; she helped me to poison the rats; she was standing close by me when I put the bottle on the shelf; there was no one else in the bar at the time, and I can swear that nobody but me and her knew about that bottle being there.

Quarrels with wife.

Some time after I placed the bottle of poison on the shelf my wife and I had one serious quarrel; we had been in the habit of having squabbles, but we were living happily together up till then; she was jealous of me; she was a very jealous woman; she abused me properly, and I retaliated.

Taken with sudden illness.

Shortly after that row I was taken ill all of a sudden with pains inside—terrible pains—gripping, vomiting, and purging; I went straight to the bedroom; my wife was in the bar at the time; the servant came to the bedroom, and I said to her, "Go and fetch Carrie; tell her I want her"; she came to the door and said, "What's the matter?"; I said to her, "I'm in dreadful agony; bring me some brandy, for God's sake—bring me some brandy!"; she said, "Oh, it's nothing," and went back to the bar; I said, later on, "Fetch Dr. King, the lodge doctor," and he came; I had something to eat about twenty minutes or half-an-hour previously; I cannot recollect what it was, but I think it was part of a leg of boiled pork, with some bread and a glass of ale; Dr. King attended me, but he did me no good; Dr. Agnew came afterwards, and he saved my life; my wife fetched me the glass of ale.

"She never drank."

Vomiting and purging thrown away.

She never drank; no fear; I never saw her take a drop of drink all the time she was with me.

I was perfectly sensible when Dr. Agnew came to see me, and I heard every word he said to my wife; he said to her, "Where is the vomit and purging from your husband?"; there was a chamber standing on the chair by the side of the bed; she said, "It was in the chamber, but I took it and threw it away, washed the chamber out, and placed it back at the side of the bed"; the doctor then said to her, "Now, Mrs. Asbury, whatever vomiting or purging comes from your husband keep it, and let me see it; I will be back again in a few hours"; I did not vomit or purge after that—nothing to speak of; I got better when I took the medicine; I vomited and purged a little the next day in the chamber; my wife took it away and brought the chamber back cleaned and washed out, and put it on the chair; I was ill about three days; I never thought about or noticed the bottle on the shelf for a long time after the occurrence.

Other symptoms.

Besides vomiting and purging I had other symptoms—tremblings in the fingers and contraction of the muscles: it brought my fingers up; all the sinews of my legs were drawn up; I got well in about three days afterwards, and was all right after that.

The medicine.

Dr. Agnew gave me a powder, and they mixed it with sugar, and I had to take it dry; I vomited directly I took it.

Second attack; similar symptoms.

Some months later I had an attack of a similar nature after having supper of crayfish and salad; I had a glass of beer on that occasion also; my wife and I had supper together; I had a glass of beer which she brought me; my wife was not ill on the first occasion that I was attacked, nor was she after the crayfish and salad; the second attack did not last so long; I did not send for the doctor; I helped myself to some pale brandy, and got sick; I believe Dr. King did come, and that he was drunk, and I said, "Go away"; he went.

Trip to New Zealand.

About 1861 I went to New Zealand on a trip, and on returning accused my wife of carrying on with somebody while I was away.

Attacked by wife with a knife.

On Saturday evening, two days after returning from New Zealand, I went out for a walk with Sergeant Maguire; while walking along somebody made a rush at us; Maguire laid hold of a woman, and both fell down in the road; the woman was my wife; she had a long dagger or knife in her hand, and a cloak over her head; I ran away while he still had hold of her; she was shouting so that you could hear her for 200 yards; I did not treat that matter seriously; we slept together the same night; Maguire told me she had a knife, and that he threw it away.

Poison bottle tampered with.

Replacing my bottles on the shelves of the bar one day I saw the poison; I thought to myself the cork was not the same as when I put it in; I asked my wife if she had been taking any of it; she replied "No"; I told her I did not put the cork in as I found it; I thought no more about it; this was between twenty and thirty years ago.

Daughter Carrie.

I took my daughter, Caroline, with me when I went to Melbourne; she was then 12 years of age; a few weeks after I got settled in the Commercial Hotel my wife came and took the child away; I then paid £1 a week for its support and education.

Served three years in Melbourne.

I served three years for receiving a watch and chain; I was making a fortune at the time in the hotel business; that trial left me as I am—destitute; I came out to Tasmania as a ticket-of-leave man.

Did not suspect wife at first.

I did not suspect my wife of having poisoned me till I was lying ill at Paka Lakes station, five or six years ago; I was poisoned there through eating some preserved tongues, and the pains were the same as I had before; my wife was not at Paka Lakes.

Went to Melbourne.

I went to Melbourne in 1869, having disposed of my hotel business and transferred all my affairs to Melbourne.

Wife ran away.

While I kept the "Emu Hotel" my wife ran away and took the cash-box and all the ready money, and when I saw her in this room this afternoon, it was the first time I had seen her for twenty-four years; she did not go away with any other person to my knowledge; she cleared out on a steamer named the "Southern Cross," on the 5th July, 1865, and went to Melbourne.

Mrs. Seymour, a shoplifter and pickpocket.

I knew Mrs. Seymour thirty years ago by the name of Carrie Asprey; I also knew her husband, John Asprey; Mrs. Seymour came to Hobart Town from England, and went from there to Melbourne and Ballarat; I knew her to go shop-lifting and pocket-picking in Ballarat with a woman named Biddy Birch; I knew her in Melbourne for twelve years, during the whole of which time she was leading a criminal life, and associating with criminals; I reckon that she was one of the cleverest pickpockets that ever came to Australia; although married to Asprey, she was "palling" with Denis Gaynor in Melbourne; when Gaynor was in gaol she lived with somebody else; [witness narrated the robbery of the cash-box at the "Half-way House Inn," between Melbourne and Collingwood]; I have seen her pocket-picking in George-street,

George-street, Sydney, lots of times, in company with a man named Thomas Jones; they got their living in that way; Jones acted as a "fence"; it was believed they lived together as man and wife; Carrie Asprey was arrested by Detective Williams on a charge of pocket-picking; she was acquitted; after that she kept quiet, and started a shop in Surry Hills; this shop was the resort of well-known criminals.

Witness—Nathaniel Dearman (employed in the Tramway Department, New South Wales).

In 1865 I was a detective in Victoria for a short time; I knew Carrie Asprey, now Mrs. Seymour, during that time; she was known to me as a shoplifter and a pickpocket; I had occasion several times to watch her; I have seen her with different magmen, confidence-trick men, and criminals.

I knew Carrie Seymour in Sydney for eight or nine years; she then lived in Riley-street, Surry Hills; I visited her house about twenty times in the year; I have never seen anybody there but disreputable thieves; some of them were criminals who had been convicted of various offences; the house, as far as could be seen, was kept for a respectable business—a greengrocery establishment; to the best of my knowledge Mary Dean was living with her mother then; some of the criminals that frequented the house lived there.

I have known Mrs. Seymour about fifteen or sixteen years; I have known her better during the last four and a half years; Mrs. Seymour visited my house at 21, Randall-street, on two or three different occasions; she came for a young lady at my place; Mrs. Seymour said there was a gentleman waiting for the young lady at Madame Rose's place, and that the young lady must not be long as the gentleman was in a hurry; they both went away; when my daughter was about 12 years of age, Mrs. Seymour came to my house; my daughter was playing the piano; Mrs. Seymour said if I could get some nice young girls to take to her place it would be worth my while; Mrs. Seymour came to my house on two or three different occasions to take the girl to Madame Rose's; I have seen three or four young girls at Mrs. Seymour's place in Riley-street on one occasion; they were about 18 or 19 years of age; I remember Mrs. Seymour being the associate of noted pickpockets fifteen years ago.

I knew Mrs. Seymour in Victoria by the name of Carrie Asprey; in Melbourne she bore a very indifferent character; she was a shoplifter, pickpocket, and an associate of thieves; I knew her in Sydney for sixteen years, but have not seen her for the last twelve years; during the four years she was the associate of bad people.

J. Edgar.

I went to live at 411, Riley-street, Surry Hills, close on two years ago; while living there Mrs. Seymour lived next door; Madame Rose's house was at the corner of Collins-street; my house was almost opposite; I have seen Mrs. Seymour going into Madame Rose's many a time, principally at night; I knew Mary Seymour; I have seen her go to Madame Rose's; I am not certain of more than once, but am certain she went once; I did not take particular notice whether she went into Madame Rose's.

Mrs. Seymour—
Mary Seymour,
and Madame
Rose's.

I have seen very gaily dressed girls at Mrs. Seymour's on several occasions; I would not take them to be respectable girls; they were girls of light character; they were gay girls; while these gay girls were going to Mrs. Seymour's house Miss Seymour was living with her mother; I have seen her talking to them; the only time I saw Mary Seymour going into Madame Rose's house was on a Sunday afternoon; she went over for her mother; when I lived in Riley-street Mrs. Seymour's house did not have a very good name; I could not say that I ever saw anything wrong on the part of Miss Seymour.

I knew Mrs. Seymour and her daughter, Mary Seymour; Mrs. Seymour's house was a nice, respectable place, of good external appearance; I have frequently noticed people there; as far as I could see they were respectable, but I had my suspicions; some of the girls appeared respectable, but I knew them to be frequenters of Madame Rose's; two or three times a week these girls were at Mrs. Seymour's; they used to go from Mrs. Seymour's to Madame Rose's; I have seen Mary Seymour in company with these girls in Mrs. Seymour's back yard; I have seen Mrs. Seymour go into Madame Rose's often—both night and day; I have seen Mary Seymour go to Madame Rose's before 8 o'clock in the morning with a jug in her hand; she often went to Madame Rose's on a Sunday; she used to go just after dinner.

Mrs. Seymour's

Mrs. Seymour's shop was, presumably, a greengrocer's shop, but I thought that was a blind; I have seen girls go from Mrs. Seymour's to Madame Rose's on numbers of occasions.

I have never seen Mary Seymour do anything wrong of any kind, except seeing her go into Madame Rose's; I have seen her go into an immoral house, but have never seen anything to lead me to believe that there was anything wrong with her character.

Mrs. Seymour
and Madame
Rose—cabs, &c.

I lived in Riley-street, Surry Hills, about seven years back; I lived next door to Madame Rose's, opposite Mrs. Seymour's, for two years; Madame Rose and Mrs. Seymour exchanged visits daily, and Mary Seymour used to go messages for Madame Rose; the families were very intimate; I knew that Madame Rose's was an assignation house; I complained of cabs stopping at my door at all hours of the night, preventing me sleeping, and applied to Mr. Ardill's people, and a vigilance committee was appointed; I was not a member of the committee, but went with them, and took part in their proceedings; that was six months before I left—about seven or eight years ago.

Witnessed
Madame Rose's.

They set themselves to watch Mrs. Seymour's and Madame Rose's; while I was watching Madame Rose's, Mrs. Seymour threw a bucket of water over me at the side gate; that was about 10 or 11 o'clock at night; Mrs. Seymour and Madame Rose also abused me; Mrs. Seymour was the worst as regarded the abuse.

Shop frequented by bad characters.

Mrs. Seymour's shop had a bona fide appearance, but I had not a very good opinion of it; the people who frequented it were not first-class characters; they were mostly men, and they were spiekers and thieves; there was something queer at Madame Rose's on Sunday and every day in the week.

Mary Seymour's
character.

I never saw anything objectionable about Mary Seymour; she was always well dressed; she used to frequent Madame Rose's the best part of her time; I said to Mrs. Seymour once that I was astonished at her allowing her child to run between her house and Madame's, and I think that was the first onstart of her starting at me; little Mary used to throw stones at me when I was in my buggy; she told me that her mother told her to do so; this was because I spoke to her mother about Mary going to Madame Rose's; I always saw Mary Seymour behaving and conducting herself properly; I did not speak to her more than two or three times after she was grown up; I knew a Mrs. Smith, who lived near the corner of Riley-lane and Foveaux-street, about two or three years ago; I think she kept one of those fast houses, but did not know anything about her own character; I have seen Mary Seymour in company with this Mrs. Smith in the street; I have seen her at Mrs. Smith's house once; that was when Mrs. Smith lived at the corner of Riley-lane and Foveaux-street; I knew a lady named Madame Flamère, or De Henri Ville; I could not say whether she possessed the reputation of not being quite respectable; there were three or four girls at Madame Flamère's house the day I moved her furniture from Upper William-street to 80, Glenmore Road; Mary Seymour came there the day I removed the furniture; she went away again immediately in company with one of the girls; I say positively I have never heard anything about Mary Seymour's character; I have lived nine or ten years in the neighbourhood.

Mrs. Dean's conduct at Police Court.

I presided at the Police Court investigation in March last, when Dean was charged with attempting to poison his wife; remember Mrs. Dean giving her evidence; while the hearing of the charge was proceeding my attention was directed to her conduct; I noticed that she was laughing rather immoderately, and I rebuked her for what I thought gross levity of conduct; she did not indicate any signs of illness; the sergeant said Mrs. Dean's explanation was that it was the peculiar manner in which Mr. Meagher pronounced the word arsenic that caused her to laugh; she was not laughing hysterically.

Mrs. Dean at

Mr. Giles'

I was present yesterday and heard Mr. Giles, S.M., give evidence before this Commission; there is no doubt that I am the Sergeant Brennan who spoke to Mr. Giles in regard to Mrs. Dean having laughed or smiled when in Court; I would not say that she was laughing immoderately, but she was smiling; the Magistrate then made some remark, and I told him Mrs. Dean wanted to write a note to explain why she smiled; Mr. Giles said she was laughing—that he did not want any explanation from her; when I saw her smiling she did not tell me she was amused at the way Mr. Meagher pronounced the word "arsenic"; when Dr. Newmarch was giving his evidence, Mr. Meagher leaned across the table and said, "We have only your word for that," and this seemed to make Mrs. Dean smile; I did not tell Mr. Giles that the reason given to me for Mrs. Dean smiling was the peculiar way in which Mr. Meagher pronounced the word "arsenic"; I did not tell him anything at all about the word "arsenic"; Mrs. Dean never told me anything about the word "arsenic"; Mrs. Dean told me she smiled across the table when Mr. Meagher said something; I did not see her laughing immoderately; I did not notice that she was trifling or flighty during the trial.

Character of
Mrs. Seymour.

I knew Mrs. Seymour in Melbourne; knew her last about six or seven years ago, when she was keeping a shop in Riley-street; I first knew her in Sydney thirteen or fourteen years ago, and last knew her six or seven years ago; I visited her house in Riley-street; everybody I saw there, with the exception of Mrs. Seymour's daughter, were men who had undergone sentences or females of bad repute; with the exception of Mrs. Seymour's little girl, all the people I saw there were either criminals or prostitutes.

House in Riley-street a brothel.

The house was used for other purposes than the shop supposed to be kept by Mrs. Seymour; I knew from my own knowledge that it was a brothel; I have slept with girls in Mrs. Seymour's house; I can speak from personal experience that this practice continued up till seven years ago; I have seen other girls there when I have used the house as a brothel; on nearly every occasion I went to the house I saw a little girl there who Mrs. Seymour said was her daughter; I knew her reputed father, a man by the name of Denis Gaynor.

W. D. Boulton.

I noticed a peculiarity about the blinds of Mrs. Seymour's house in Riley-street; there were two sets of curtains used, presumably as signals; there were two blinds, one was red and the other blue; they were used on the glass door between the shop and the room behind; I mean to say that if anyone went in the vicinity of the shop these blinds could be used and seen as signals; if the blue one was left down it was all right, and people were welcome; I think that was a sign that there was nobody in the house; if the red one was down people on the watch would take it as a sign of danger and go away; I knew this from my own observation and from what I had been told as well; I did not know from my own knowledge that Mrs. Seymour acted as a procuress, but had heard she did so; I knew her as Mrs. Ashberry, not as Mrs. Seymour then.

Widow blinds—red and blue. Signals.

I knew Ashberry in Melbourne; I think Ashberry was a policeman when I first knew him, but he became a criminal afterwards.

Knew Ashberry in Melbourne.

I am sorry to admit I have been a criminal myself; I have been convicted of forgery, false pretences, and stealing; I have been convicted five or six times and served sentences; the criminals I saw about Mrs. Seymour's were those I knew in Melbourne; I went to Crick and Meagher's of my own accord; I did not know Dean; I earn my living by making poetical advertisements; I was undergoing a sentence on the "Sacramento" when the Boulton and Parke trial was going on in England; from 1866 to September, 1868, I have spent a great deal of my time in gaol; I have never been convicted of perjury; I did not go to Crick and Meagher in the hope of getting monetary assistance; I am not following the same means of livelihood at the present time as I have followed for the last twenty-nine years.

I am a married woman.

History.

I have known Mrs. Lee for eight years; I lodged with her in Bourke-street, Surry Hills, from June to September last year; the house was a brothel; I moved from there to Brunswick Cottage, at North Shore; the character of that place was the same as the house in Surry Hills; Mrs. Lee kept it.

Mrs. Lee, Brunswick Cottage.

Mrs. Seymour and Miss Seymour visited Mrs. Lee in Bourke-street and also at Brunswick Cottage; Mrs. Seymour came to stay at Brunswick Cottage after Christmas, and remained a fortnight as a visitor; she was not acting as servant.

Mrs. Seymour and daughter visited Mrs. Lee.

I lived with my husband at Brunswick Cottage; Mrs. Lee asked me to stay in the house and rent a room, and said she would try and let the other rooms to respectable people, and then the police could not have her up for keeping a brothel; I stopped in the place because I had no money to leave it; my husband was out of work, and I was hard up; my husband did not know about the house being a brothel.

Could not avoid staying there.

While Mrs. Seymour was on a fortnight's visit to Mrs. Lee, at Brunswick Cottage, they were in Mrs. Lee's bedroom one night drinking some beer; some toasts were proposed; Mrs. Lee proposed, "That her husband should never come back—that he should perish in the bush"; Mrs. Seymour's toast was "That something might happen to George Doan so that she might have back her poor girl"; I said, "Don't say that; he is your daughter's husband, and what would she and the child do if anything happened to him"; she said, "We would manage without him."

Toasts.

I remember Mrs. Seymour telling me that she left Dean's house; she also said that after she left Mrs. Lee's house she waited about Dean's house till Dean's wife came to gather chips; the wife told Dean that it was time to start for work, and then Mrs. Seymour went inside; that was during Mrs. Seymour's visit to Mrs. Lee.

Mrs. Seymour—A peculiar visit to Mrs. Dean's.

Last Friday Mrs. Lee came to where I was living in Abercrombie-street, Redfern, and said, if I gave evidence at this inquiry she would go into the shops where my sisters are employed and try and get them dismissed, and bring witnesses to show that I was no good—that money would do a lot; it had already cost her £5 to bribe somebody.

Mrs. Lee's threats.

I mentioned one thing to the people I was in the house with; I said that if Mrs. Seymour had told the truth in her evidence she would not have said that she had not been to Dean's house since he turned her out; I said that after the conviction, about three weeks ago.

I am a tailoress, residing at 38, Abercrombie-street with my sister.

Calling, &c.

I remember Mrs. Lee calling at our house last Friday morning to see my sister; Mrs. Lee and my sister began talking about something I did not understand, and in the course of conversation I heard her say to my sister, "If you go to Crick and Meagher, I will go to the shops where your sisters are tailoresses and get them dismissed from their positions"; I said, "What for?" Mrs. Lee said that "The Professor," I will not mention names, "said that money could do a lot, and the gentleman was rolling in wealth."

I have been in the Police Force for nine years.

Calling.

I knew Mrs. Sexton, a witness in this case on behalf of George Doan; also that her sister, Bridget Stapleton, gave evidence; Mrs. Sexton has another sister named Barbara Stapleton; Mrs. Sexton, her husband (Henry Sexton), and Bridget and Barbara Stapleton are known to the police; Harry Sexton received four sentences for stealing in September, 1892; Bridget Stapleton received sentence of six months for stealing in company with Sexton in the same month; Barbara Stapleton received a sentence of nine months at the same time; Annie Sexton was charged with receiving, in company with her husband and two sisters, but the case was dismissed by the magistrate on the grounds that she acted under coercion from her husband; Mrs. Sexton and her husband sold the stolen goods; she was traced to where the goods were sold.

I am a publican, carrying on business at North Shore.

I remember Mrs. Lee coming to reside at Brunswick Cottage; I have sometimes seen two or three females there, sometimes more; I supplied liquor to Brunswick Cottage; females have come over to my hotel to order the drink—different ones at different times; I have taken as much as £1 from there in one day.

Mrs. Seymour

I know Mrs. Seymour; she has come over occasionally for drink—she generally came for it; I knew a Mrs. Sexton who was living there; I knew Minnie Phillips; she resided with Mrs. Lee when I first went to the hotel.

I am a carpenter and joiner, living with my mother in Norton-street.

I have known Mrs. Seymour and her daughter about fourteen or fifteen years; I have seen Mrs. Seymour going to Madame Rose's frequently; I could not say whether she had vegetables with her or not when she was going to Madame Rose's.

I have known Mary Seymour since her childhood; I never saw her at Madame Rose's; I never saw anything wrong in Mrs. Dean's character or conduct, or heard anything wrong about her at any time; I have heard since this inquiry commenced that Mary Seymour used to go to Madame Rose's; my observation of her was simply meeting her in the street; I don't know that I ever spoke to her; I never saw Mary Dean in the company of a girl known as "Rita"; a girl was pointed out to me when she was passing in Crown-street, and I was told it was "Rita" by some young chaps.

Witness—David Duncan.
Commission—May 20, 1895 (pages 55-57).

I am a cab proprietor, and have been so for the last twenty-five years.

I knew Madam Rose's house, at the corner of Collins and Riley Streets; I have driven people there both day and night—up to 12 o'clock at night; I have driven gentlemen there; I have seen Mrs. Seymour at Madam Rose's when I have driven people there; she opened the door for the gentlemen I drove there; on these occasions I have entered the house myself; I have been called over to have a drink by Mrs. Seymour; I have seen Mrs. Seymour in the way described a good many times; Mrs. Seymour gave me the drink—whisky—when I got inside.

I think the photograph of Mrs. Dean resembled a young lady whom I have seen at Madam Rose's; I could not identify her at the hospital.

I am a saddler, living at 429 Riley-street, Surry Hills; I lived in the one house for twenty-five years; I was in trouble once for refusing to pay wife maintenance; I also got fourteen days for stealing a pair of wipers, so they said, but they found the wipers later on, and offered me £10 to square it; I was also put in gaol for assault—throwing people off my property in Crown-street, Surry Hills.

I was employed by the late Mr. Rose to keep the Gipps-street push from pelting his house with eggs; I got as remuneration seven "bob" a night, and drinks.

I have known Mrs. Seymour for twelve or thirteen years, and know well the house in Riley-street that Mrs. Seymour occupied; I have seen Mrs. Seymour go to Madam Rose's frequently; she made daily and nightly visits.

I know Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean, and have known her since she was a child; I have seen her go to Madam Rose's both day and night twelve years ago, and also since old Rose died, about three years ago; I have seen her knock at Madam Rose's door and be admitted; these visits of Mary Seymour to Madam Rose's continued pretty well the whole time Mrs. Seymour was living in Riley-street; I have seen Mary Seymour go to Madam Rose's as late as 10 o'clock at night; the character of Minnie Phillips is bad; I should regard her as a prostitute; I have seen Mary Seymour in her company, standing talking at the corner of the street at night more than once; this was after old Rose died; I think she lived at Mrs. Seymour's; she was always about the place and was often running between Madam Rose's and Mrs. Seymour's; I knew Florrie Clifford; since Rose died she has been a woman of easy virtue and has kept a house of ill-fame; I have seen Mary Dean speaking to her in the street; I think they were having a few angry words together; I think they were quarrelling over some other girl, and Tommy Jones' name cropped up.

Witness—Phillip Henry Williams.
Commission—May 16, 1895 (pages 16, 17).

I was in the Police Force of New South Wales for fourteen and a half years, and reached the rank of first-class detective; while in the service I was on special duty on many occasions; I left the force six years ago.

I knew Mrs. Seymour as Carrie Asprey fourteen or fifteen years ago; up to the time I left the Force I knew her as one of the cleverest pickpockets; I would have caught her several times had not a West Australian man named Tommy Jones put me away; when she lived in Norton-street, Surry Hills, she was known to the police as a woman of bad character and a harbourer of thieves; I went to the house in Norton-street to arrest Carrie Asprey thirteen or fourteen years ago, and I then saw a little child there; I do not know whether that child is the present Mrs. Dean; I have seen Mrs. Seymour endeavouring to pick pockets in George-street.

Margaret
Ann
Fairweather.

I am a married woman; I lived in Riley-street, five doors from Mrs. Seymour's, for about six years, until eighteen months ago; I used to wash for Mrs. Seymour on her premises.

After I had finished washing for Mrs. Seymour she had two young ladies living at her house; they must have been over 20—they were young women; they visited Madame Rose's; Mrs. Seymour used to come across from Madame Rose's to her own place, and these young girls used to go over to Madame Rose's with her; these girls stopped with her about a month, and then went to Melbourne; I knew a place in Crown-street, 365, where young girls lived; whilst I was washing at Mrs. Seymour's I heard her tell Mary to go round to 365, Crown-street for the girls, and bring them to Madame Rose's; Mary Seymour went; she would be about 17 then; she was grown up; she was told to bring them to Madame Rose's door, and then come round to her mother's house.

Girls at Mrs. Seymour's visited Madame Rose's.

Mary Seymour told me she went round for the girls for Madame Rose's; I never heard on any occasion after Mary had been for the girls Mrs. Seymour say anything to her; her mother would call her inside if she saw I was talking to her; she used to go for the girls in the daytime; when cabs have driven up and stopped in front of my door gentlemen have got out and gone into Madame Rose's; then I have seen Mrs. Seymour come out of Madame Rose's house, go over to her own house, and send Mary out to Crown-street for the girls; Mary Seymour told me herself that she had been round to Crown-street for the girls about half-past 7 at night.

Mary Seymour went for the girls.

P. Hodgson.

I have been a night watchman since July, 1893; when I first took the duties my beat was Riley-street and Crown-street, but lately I have worked Crown and Dowling Streets; I worked Crown and Riley Streets for about twelve months; I was engaged as a night watchman by residents in these streets, and was paid by them.

Calling, &c.

I was night watchman for Madame Rose, and am at the present time.

Mrs. Seymour contributed towards my payment; I know where Mrs. Seymour lived, also where Madame Rose lived; I have seen Mrs. Seymour go into Madame Rose's both morning and night; she has gone over from her own place to mind the house while Madame Rose was out; I have seen her go in and out of Madame Rose's at all hours; I have seen her come out as late as 12 o'clock at night.

Madame Rose Mrs. Seymour constant visitor to Madame Rose's.

There were two or three young women in Mrs. Seymour's shop who used to refer me to Madame Rose's; this was not an uncommon occurrence; these young women were aged about 20, 21, and 19 years; I do not know why they were in the shop—minding it, I suppose; they used to answer me when I went for money; I have seen three different girls there.

Girls in Mrs. Seymour's shop

I noticed a peculiarity about the blinds in Mrs. Seymour's house; they were changed in colour two or three times a night; my attention was first drawn to it, and then I noticed it on different occasions; in the upstairs room, over the shop, I have seen a blue blind taken down and a red blind put in its place, or else the change was made by working a lamp placed behind it; I noticed that these changes took place when certain people were hanging about—walking up and down near Madame Rose's corner; I cannot say positively who these people were, but I have been warned by the police to watch them; I believe them to have been of the criminal class; one blind was red, I am sure, and the other was blue, I think; I noticed the change made in the blinds on more than one occasion; it was a common occurrence, talked of by the neighbours; if the blue blind was up, these people crossed from the opposite corner and entered Mrs. Seymour's house; if the red blind was up, they went away.

Blinds at Mrs. Seymour's house.

I knew Mary Seymour before she was married in 1893; she was living at her mother's house in Riley-street; I have seen her in Madame Rose's; I have seen her go inside; on several occasions when I have been to Mrs. Seymour's shop on Mondays for money someone in the shop has referred me to Madame Rose's house, where Mary Seymour has opened the door to me, and called her mother out; Mary Seymour has been present whilst I have been paid; I have seen her there on other occasions—in the daytime and at night; I have seen a woman leave Madame Rose's, go across to Mrs. Seymour's house, and return with Mary Seymour to Madame Rose's; this was at night, after I had come on my beat at 10 o'clock; I may safely say I have seen this happen on several occasions; this happened between 10 o'clock at night and 2 in the morning; I do not think I have seen her cross the road to Madame Rose's later than 2 o'clock; to the best of my knowledge the present Mrs. Dean was living with her mother during the whole time I was on that beat; I have seen her there from time to time. (Cross-examined) I have seen Mary Seymour go into Madame Rose's alone, and on one occasion I saw her come up in a cab at 11 o'clock at night, and go into Madame Rose's; a gentleman was with her; on other occasions she used to come across the road from the shop; someone would go to the shop and knock, and she would go back; she had a shawl over her head—a cloud—on those occasions.

Mrs. Seymour and her daughter at Madame Rose's.

I knew Mrs. Seymour as much by the name of Mrs. Jones as Mrs. Seymour; I knew a man named Jones was living with her in her house.

Knew Mrs. Seymour as Mrs. Jones.

I have seen Mary Dean speaking to young men in Crown-street, Surry Hills, between 8 and 10 in the morning; they seemed respectable by their dress and appearance; I have also seen her talking to young men in the arcade running between Pitt and George Streets, between 8 and 10 in the evening; there was no other female with her then; I have seen her speaking to young men probably three or four times; I saw nothing flighty in her conduct or demeanour on these occasions.

Mary Dean.

I knew Mary Dean by sight; I never in my life saw Mary Dean when she was Mary Seymour going to Madame Rose's house; her dress was very unassuming and unattractive, and her manners were most prudent; she was always well conducted.

I knew Mrs. Seymour; she took a false oath against me, and I have watched her to have her up for perjury; Florrie Clifford sued me for throwing stones at her, and Mrs. Seymour gave evidence in the case; I have seen Mrs. Seymour and her daughter go to Madame Rose's; her shop was opposite to Madame Rose's, and I have seen both her and her daughter go over to Madame Rose's; I have seen the daughter go to Madame Rose's with Florrie Clifford; cabs would come up with so-called gentlemen, and they would go to Madame Rose's, and I have seen her go for Florrie Clifford and bring her from her house to Madame Rose's; this was about two years ago; I was on the road in Riley-street when I saw all these things going on; I have never been to Madame Rose's; when I saw that Dean was convicted on the evidence of Mrs. Seymour and her daughter I thought it was poor evidence to convict anybody on, and I made a statement and I showed it to the North Shore Committee.

I knew Mary Burns, who gave evidence before this Royal Commission; some five years ago I saw her lying under a rock in Berry's bush; a man was with her; I saw her for nearly two months going towards those rocks; I kept a pony where these rocks are, and when going for my pony I have seen her; I have seen her at 7 o'clock at night and early in the morning round about this place; I have not seen her since she frequented this cave five years ago; I would not swear that I mentioned at the time to Constable Wearin anything about seeing these people under the rocks; I did not do so; Sergeant Brennan was the man I spoke to, and I did so one day when lighting my lamps in Bay Road; Wearin asked me about this girl on Monday last, 3rd June, during a conversation he and I had about the case; Sergeant Brennan spoke to me first about this girl, and then Wearin came and asked me the same kind of questions; I went with the latter and pointed out the cave; I have not the slightest doubt about having seen Mary Burns there as I have described.

I knew Mary Burns; she lived at North Sydney about six years ago; in 1890 she lived at North Sydney; I saw her about 1 o'clock one morning with a man under a rock at Berry's bush, North Sydney; the man's name was Moore or Crowe; he went by both names; I have seen a man and woman going toward this rock or cave at 9 and 10 o'clock at night, and sometimes earlier; Moore or Crowe was said to have been a Roman Catholic priest; I do not know where I could find him now; I have not seen him since that time; a lamplighter named Adamson told me the man and woman were camped in this cave, and I went there to see them; I did not arrest them; I saw nothing which would permit me as a police officer to interfere.

I knew Mrs. Seymour in Riley-street slightly for about ten or twelve years; her shop appeared to be a bond fide shop; I thought it was a well-stocked, decent shop and not a blind; I was sure of that, as far as I could judge; I have been in the shop; I remember Sergeant Brennan calling upon me for the purpose of a character; I gave an excellent character to Mrs. Seymour as far as I knew; I have never heard that up to three years ago one of the leading members of the Police Force had to watch her place for criminals who were in the house; I saw nothing to lead me to come to any other conclusion than that Mrs. Seymour's shop was a bond fide shop.

Mrs. Seymour's

I knew Mary Seymour very well for ten or twelve years; she was a constant and regular attendant at my Sunday school; it was there that I knew her best; she was a quiet, steady, well-behaved, nice young girl; there was never anything in her dress to attract attention; she was one among others; she continued to attend the Sunday school for about two or three years before she was married; I always looked upon her as a quiet, decent, well-behaved girl from what I saw of her; I never saw her out late at night; up to the time of her marriage I saw nothing to alter my opinion of her; I did not know she was going to be married; she did not tell me; I cannot speak of her after she left Sunday school; I did not visit at the house; I married her to Dean on the 8th March; I know by repute of Madame Rose's; Mary Dean and her mother could have gone there a dozen times a day without my being aware of it; Mary Dean left Sunday school a couple of years ago; I gave her an excellent character, as far as I knew, to Sergeant Brennan; I never heard from anybody that Mary Seymour had visited Madame Rose's.

I resided at 409 and 411, Riley-street (two doors from Mrs. Seymour's shop), for about fifteen years—ten years at the latter address; at that time the shop and residence was my property; I saw Mrs. Seymour personally about the letting of the property to her; while my tenant she was all that could be desired in that capacity, and also as a neighbour; in my opinion she was a perfectly respectable well-conducted woman; I never saw anything in her conduct to lead me to alter that opinion; I never heard of any reflection on her character; she remained a tenant of mine until about four years after I left Surry Hills—two and a half years ago; she was one of the best tenants I ever had; she was particular in her language, and respectful in her manner; she was a particularly clean and reputable woman; I thought her home was the pink of neatness; I never saw improper characters in her house; I never heard of a girl named Rita, or something worse than that; once or twice I saw some young women in the shop, but could not say that they were not purchasing fruit or vegetables, although, like Mrs. Seymour and her daughter, they were behind the counter; I know nothing about Mrs. Seymour in Melbourne; the only thing I knew against her was that she admitted taking charge of Madame Rose's; I never heard anything about the window blinds at Mrs. Seymour's being of different colours; it would have been possible for both Mrs. Seymour and her daughter to have visited Madame Rose's without my being aware of it; I never knew that Jones, who lodged at Mrs. Seymour's was a convict; the police did tell me on one occasion that Mrs. Seymour was suspected of receiving stolen goods, but that did not shift my confidence in the slightest, because I thought there was some mistake; that was ten years ago.

Mrs. Seymour.

I am perfectly satisfied that the shop was a genuine greengrocer's shop; her place was altogether the opposite of a brothel.

The shop not a

I have known Mary Seymour from a child; she was particularly well conducted; I regarded her as a rather unsophisticated girl; in my opinion she was a thoroughly respectable, well-conducted woman; I saw Mary Seymour visit Madame Rose's once, in ordinary business hours, and in an ordinary business way; I have only a faint recollection of her going there with a basket.

Mrs. Seymour. Shop not a blind. I know Mrs. Seymour's shop in Riley-street; I have known the locality for the last twenty-eight years; I passed the house frequently during the greater part of that period; as far as I could see it was a greengrocer's shop, the same as any other; there was nothing about the place to lead me to think it was a "blind"; I never saw any bad characters about the place, except an old man named Jones; I knew he had been a criminal; I never saw any other criminal there; I know nothing of my own knowledge about Mrs. Seymour; all I can speak from is hearsay; I have never seen anything wrong about her house, or anything wrong or suspicious about her; I never saw Mrs. Dean or Mrs. Seymour at Madame Rose's.

Mary Seymour. I knew Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean; she was a very quiet girl; I never saw her mix up with other persons; she was generally in charge of the shop, or at the door, when I was passing; I have been in the shop once, I think.

Senior-constable
Thompson.

I have been fifteen years in the Police Force.

I have been on duty in the vicinity of Mrs. Seymour's house between seven and eight years, and have passed it four or five times a day, sometimes as often as twice in an hour; I never saw anything objectionable in Mrs. Seymour personally, or in any person going into the place; there was not the slightest sign of the shop being merely a blind; I never saw anything about the shop different from any other greengrocer's shop; I have never seen or known anything improper about this house; I never saw Mrs. Seymour or her daughter go to Madame Rose's.

Calling.

I knew Mrs. Seymour's house in Riley-street; I performed duty in that neighbourhood for fourteen or fifteen years; I have not been in the shop; sometimes I have not passed the shop at all during the day, and sometimes as often as three times in the night; I have never seen anything in connection with the shop which would lead me to believe that it was not respectably conducted; I never received any complaint from any constable on duty in the vicinity to the effect that there was anything wrong with the establishment.

Sergt. Day.

I am a sergeant in the Police Force; I have been in the force for twenty years and six months.

I have known the house where Mrs. Seymour lived in Riley-street for the last nine years; I live in Kippax-street, within 100 yards of Mrs. Seymour's shop; I have never heard or seen anything whatever in connection with Mrs. Seymour's house that has called for police interference of any kind; as far as I can judge, the shop was conducted as a bona fide business establishment should be; she always appeared to be a hard-working woman; for all I know scores of fast girls could enter her back gate or go through the shop; I never heard anything derogatory, disgraceful, or discreditable in reference to Mrs. Seymour's house; I never received reports against this house from any of my subordinates.

Calling.
Mrs. Seymour.

I have frequently seen Mary Seymour, now Mrs. George Dean; I never saw anything wrong about her conduct; as far as I can judge she was always a well-behaved, well-conducted girl; I never saw anything to the contrary, although I resided for nine years within 100 yards of her house.

Mary Seymour

conducted.

I have never had occasion to personally interfere with an establishment kept by Madame Rose, on the opposite side of the street.

Madame Rose's.

T. Jones.

I reside at 371, Riley-street, Surry Hills; and have been living there for eight years; the last business I was in was that of bedding manufacturer; I have been living in the neighbourhood for fourteen years.

History.

I know the house that Mrs. Seymour occupied in Riley-street; I knew her before she took the shop in Riley-street; sometimes my missus dealt at the shop; I know nothing of Mrs. Seymour in Melbourne; as far as my knowledge went, the business in Riley-street was a bona fide shop; I regard Mrs. Seymour as a respectable, straightforward, hard-working woman; I have been to her house repeatedly; I hardly think that females of bad character associated at Mrs. Seymour's at different times.

Mrs. Seymour—
shop a bona fide
business.

I knew more than one man who stayed at Mrs. Seymour's; when she lived in Norton-street two or three men stayed there; I knew one was a stonemason and the other a carpenter; they were customers of mine; I think one was named Simeon and the other was named Jack—Jack Macpherson; I did not know a man named Gamble at all; I know Tommy Jones; he was a tailor, and boarded at Mrs. Seymour's.

Visitors to Mrs.
Seymour's.

I knew Madame Rose's by repute; I never knew that Mrs. Seymour at times took notes from Madame Rose to gay girls living in Crown-street.

Madame Rose's.

I have often seen Mary Seymour at her mother's house; she was respectable, decent, and well-behaved in every way; I allowed my daughter to associate with her; Mary Seymour has been to my house often; I never saw anything wrong with her; I never knew that Mary Dean had been to Madame Rose's; she might have been there scores of times without my knowing.

Witness—John Roche.

Commission—May 16, 1895 (pages 25–26).

J. Roche.

I am a first-class detective in the Police Force of New South Wales; I have been fourteen years in the force.

Calling.

I remember Mrs. Seymour when she lived in Riley-street, Surry Hills; knew her to be living there for about seven years; in my capacity as a detective I have had to exercise a certain amount of vigilance over her house in connection with Melbourne criminals; I have seen well-known Melbourne criminals there; some lived there, some visited the place, and I have seen others leaving the house in the early hours of the morning; I have watched the house at different times during the last seven or eight years; the last time would be about three years ago, when certain criminals were wanted; I have seen the men I wanted in the house, but I never made an arrest there; I can say of my own knowledge that Mrs. Seymour's house was the resort of criminals of the old class; when the detectives wanted any of these old-fashioned criminals from Melbourne, Mrs. Seymour's house was the first place they would look for them up to three years ago; I thought the woman had dropped her old habits and was keeping a shop for a living; I have been in the shop a dozen times.

J. Roche.

House not a brothel.

I say that, after specially watching the house, there was no sign whatever that it was a brothel; on the contrary, it was quite the reverse; I never saw well-dressed girls in the back of the house.

Mrs. Seymour
reformed.

Mrs. Seymour kept a shop, and certainly these criminals used to go there, but the woman herself seemed to me to be one who had reformed; I never had any occasion to suspect Mrs. Seymour or Miss Seymour of anything wrong.

Mary Seymour—
respectable girl.

I know Mary Seymour, now Mrs. Dean; I have seen her on one occasion in company with Florrie Clifford; there was nothing to lead me to believe that Mrs. Seymour's daughter was anything but a respectable girl; sometimes I passed the house twice a day, and I have always made it my business, without calling, to see what was going on; I have lived within a quarter of a mile of Mrs. Seymour's house for the last eight years; I never saw anything wrong with Miss Seymour; I have lately heard rumours about Mrs. Dean; Florrie Clifford told me she had been out with Mary Seymour on one or two occasions.

Mrs. Seymour in Hobart and Melbourne.

I knew Mrs. Seymour, by sight, in Hobart Town in 1852; she was not married then; she got married afterwards to a man named Asbury; I saw her once or twice in Melbourne after that; I spoke to her there; I knew nothing of her in Melbourne.

House in Riley-street.
Madame Rose.

I remember her living in Riley-street, Surry Hills; I lived in her house for nearly fourteen years; was not living with her while staying in her house; I was simply boarding with her; I have seen people at Mrs. Seymour's house, but did not know what they were; I have seen Mrs. Seymour go to Madame Rose's; as far as I know, she was a respectable woman—she worked for her living.

Visitors to
Mrs. Seymour's.

I never saw people at Mrs. Seymour's whom I knew to have served sentences; these people might have been thieves; I believe a man named Millett, who lodged in the house for five or six months, lived with Mrs. Seymour; I do not think he was a respectable man; I saw other men there.

"Girls"—Girls
at Mrs.
Seymour's.

I did not know a girl who went by the name of Rita living with Mrs. Seymour; there were one or two girls living at Mrs. Seymour's when I was there; I do not remember whether one was named Rita; Mary Seymour was living with her mother all the time the house was visited by these girls and men; I have seen young women at Mrs. Seymour's, but do not know what they were.

Mary Seymour.

I had full opportunities of observing Mary Seymour during the latter part of the time I boarded at Mrs. Seymour's; I never knew her to go over to Madame Rose's; Mrs. Seymour brought her daughter up well, according to her means, all the time I was with her; she did not allow her to mix up with visitors to the house; I never saw anything wrong on the part of Mary Seymour.

Mrs. Seymour
arrested—
pocket-picking.

I remember Mrs. Seymour being brought up on a charge of being a suspected person; Detective Williams suspected her of picking pockets; I never went out with Mrs. Seymour when she was pocket-picking; I never gave her "the office."

Interview at "Eschford's Hotel."

Mrs. Seymour saw me at Liverpool a short time ago—since Dean was committed for trial; she did not ask for a private room; she did not say to me, "Now, mind, whatever you are asked, you know nothing about it," or words to that effect.

Calling.

I am a hairdresser and carried on business at 379 Riley-street.

Mrs. Seymour's
shop.

I knew Mrs. Seymour's shop for nine years; I have been in the shop both by day and night at different times; I never saw anything disreputable about it; it always seemed a respectable sort of place; I never saw anything against Mrs. Seymour; I never saw flashily dressed men passing in and out of her house; I have never seen two bad girls there; I never saw Mrs. Seymour going to Madame Rose's.

Mary Seymour.

I knew Mary Seymour for about the same time; she was a well-conducted, respectable young woman as far as I know; I saw her frequently, sometimes three and four times a day; I never saw anything loud or improper in her conduct; I never saw her associating with bad characters; I never heard anyone say anything against her character.

Commission.—May 15th and 30th, 1895 (pages 6-10 and 106-109).

I remember a lady coming to my shop eight or nine months ago; by Mrs. Seymour's style and Lady like Mrs. manner I believe her to be that lady, though I would not swear it; I picked her photograph out of five Seymour tried to which were shown to me by Mr. Meagher, as that of the lady who came to my shop; when she entered buy arsenic.
 the place she said, "Will you give me sixpennyworth of arsenic, please?"; I replied, "No, I cannot sell arsenic or any other poison unless I have a witness," and repeated to her the terms of the Act; I also mentioned that there was a penalty attached to it; she said if the poison were not labelled how would anyone know where she got it, also that the quantity would not be very much for 6d., and that she only wanted a little because the rats were troublesome; I could not recollect exactly what expression she used; I replied that sixpenny worth would be enough to poison a dozen people; she said it would be perfectly safe in her hands—she would take every care; previous to this she asked, supposing anyone did take it, what could be done?; we were conversing friendly at the time, and I said, "I would send for a doctor"; I refused to sell the poison without a witness, and she said she must try and get one, and went away; I have seen the woman since, but never know her name.

A member of the Police Force came to my place twice about the case; I believe it was after Dean Police and had been tried at the Police Court, and they were trying to find out where the poison was bought; I do not information.
 remember telling the policeman one word about this lady and my conversation with her; the constable showed me a photograph—presumably of George Dean—and asked me if I had sold George Dean any poison; I said, "No," and showed the constable my poison-book; the second time the constable referred to any woman having bought poison; I said there was only one woman in my poison-book, and that she bought Rough on Rats; I then described what she was like; I did not tell him one word of what I have come to tell now; this was in March or April—about that time. (Recalled): I will not swear that Mrs.
 Seymour was the woman who came into my shop or to the conversation, but it is my impression that I had such a conversation; I do not know that the constable mentioned any names as being those of parties in a poisoning case; I will not swear that he did not say that Mary Dean, the wife of George Dean, and Caroline Seymour, were parties to the case; he did not read over a description of both women; I do not think he read a description of either; the constable came to inquire if any woman had purchased poison;
 I would not swear what took place ten months ago; I told the constable that I had sold a woman some Rough on Rats; I will swear that I did not say that this was the person who wanted strychnine; I will not swear I told the constable that the person whose name I pointed out in my book answered the description given to me of this woman, but I do not think I did; the woman who bought Rough on Rats is the only person who bought poison at my shop; the entry in the poison-book is:—"Name, Annie Goldstein, 16 Mary-street; purchased, 13th August, one box of Rough on Rats"; I gave the description to the policeman, who seemed to recognise it as Mrs. Seymour; I omitted to tell the policeman that a woman had asked for strychnine without a witness; Mrs. Goldstein is not anything like Mrs. Seymour, and I made a mistake by mixing the two people up.

Up to the time I went to Messrs. Crick and Meagher's office, four or five weeks ago, I did not think Not my business this was an important point in the case—that there was no evidence as to who got this poison; I knew of to tell police woman trying to buy arsenic without a witness, because it was not my business to tell about customers

 "Ackland's Hotel," and understood that Dean was in our company there on different occasions, but I did Woollahra.
 not know him by his name; I would not swear that I have not played billiards with Dean at Ackland's; I might have known him as Dean in Woollahra and forgotten it; Dean has not been to my shop at Surry Hills; I have no recollection of having known Dean; I have never seen Dean, so cannot say whether I recollect him; when the police called upon me, and showed me a photograph which was supposed to represent George Dean, I said I thought the face was familiar to me.

Witness—

Senior-constable Sutherland.

Calling.
Visit to Hall's poison.

Witness—Senior-constable William Sutherland.
Commission—June 5, 1895 (pages 176, 177).

I am a senior-constable in the Police Force, stationed at No. 2 Division, Regent-street.

On 14th March last I visited a chemist's shop in Albion-street, Surry Hills, owned by Mr. T. P. Swindale; John Hall, who has given evidence before this Commission, was in charge of the place; I told him I was inquiring if any poison had been bought at his establishment by a man named George Dean, at the same time showing him a photograph; I said I thought it had been bought during the preceding two years; I remember Hall getting his poison-book; he looked through the book, but found no entry in the name of George Dean.

Dean's photograph.

In reference to Dean's photograph, he said, "The face seems to me familiar, but I cannot say that I know him."

Second visit to Hall. Description of Mrs. Seymour.

I visited the shop again on 30th March, and made inquiries concerning a woman I considered to be Caroline Seymour; I had a description of two women, and read them over to Mr. Hall; one was of Mrs. Dean, and the other of Mrs. Seymour; this is what I read from my book as the description of Mrs. Seymour: "Caroline Seymour, a woman about 53 years old, 5 feet 7 inches high, medium build, dark hair turning grey, thin face, sallow complexion, walks very erect, and holds her head up; generally dressed in a black dress and small black bonnet"; after considering a few minutes, he said, "A woman of that description came to my shop some time ago; she wanted to purchase some strychnine," and then he added, "I refused to sell it, as she had no witness"; I am quite positive he said this woman wanted to purchase strychnine, for I entered the statement at the time.

Rough on Rats—Annie Goldstein.

He told me he had sold poison to one woman—a box of Rough on Rats; he gave me the name of this woman as Annie Goldstein; he also said in reference to the description I read to him from my book that it tallied very much with the description of the woman who bought the Rough on Rats; he also said that the woman remarked, "Supposing that any person took this poison by mistake, what would be the best thing to do"; he said in reply, "Administer an emetic, and send for a doctor"; I went to Mary-street, and ascertained that Annie Goldstein lived at No. 10, and not No. 16 as stated in the poison-book; I saw the woman there afterwards; she does not at all tally with the description of Mrs. Seymour as read by me to Hall; I asked the woman if she knew Mrs. Seymour, and she said she knew no one of that name.

Not one word about another woman.

Hall did not say one word about another woman besides Mrs. Goldstein to whom he had sold arsenic or strychnine, or to whom he had refused to sell those drugs, who corresponded with the description I had read; he never mentioned any other woman except the one whose address he pointed out.

Not one word about arsenic.

Hall never mentioned a word about a woman wanting to buy arsenic; he said it was strychnine.

Jane Reynolds.
History, &c.

Witness—Jane Reynolds.
Commission—May 23, 1895 (pages 84-91).

I am the wife of Walter Reynolds, licensee of the Young Australia Hotel, in Riley-street, Surry Hills.

Mrs. Dean's photograph.

I was shown the photograph produced [Photograph of Miss Seymour, Exhibit "B," handed to witness] three weeks ago the first time; I have seen the original at my hotel between eight and nine months ago, as near as I can remember; the person I am speaking of had on a jacket resembling that [pointing to photograph]; I never saw the lady but twice; she came to my house, and I recognised her at once when I saw her again; I first saw the photograph in the bar of my hotel about three weeks ago; I will not swear that it was not shown to me yesterday, but do not think it was; I do not know who it was that showed me the photograph; there were two persons together; I could not say how many times I saw the photograph before I went to the hospital; I knew I went there to pick out Mrs. Dean; I went there to pick the person out that was at my place; I knew Mrs. Dean was in the hospital.

What took place at the hotel.

In the course of conversation with this lady she told me she came from Madame Rose's, where she had been drinking wine the night previously; how she mentioned wine was because she had been drinking a bottle of beer at my place, and she said she was very sick; she drank part of the bottle, and then went out in the back and was very sick; she then came back and drank the rest; this was between 10 and half-past 10 in the morning; she came in a cab and went away in a cab. (Cross-examined): She did not say what she had been doing there; I knew the character of Madame Rose's; no one else was present when the conversation took place; I am sure she looked very much "off"; to all appearance the woman had been drinking very heavily the night previous; I should think she was not very far from drunk; she was more drunk than sober; she asked me how she looked; I told her she looked all right, although I was of a different opinion; she gave me to understand that she had been all night at Madame Rose's; she looked like it; her clothes were very much disarranged, and she kept pulling her jacket round, this way, to hide herself, as if she had dressed in a hurry; I cannot say what day of the week it was when this took place; it was not Sunday; she had a morning wrapper on under the jacket; it was of a very bright colour, something like scarlet; I did not notice whether she had boots or slippers on, and have no idea what sort of a hat she was wearing; I have never seen the woman since, except at the hospital.

The lady's condition.

I did not notice whether this lady was in the family way; her clothes were so loosely on I could not tell; I did not notice it at all.

Wife of a captain at North Shore.

We were conversing about twenty minutes; she said she was the wife of a captain living at North Shore. (Cross-examined): She told me her husband was away all night, and that he was a captain.

At the hospital picked out Mrs. Dean.

I remember attending at the Sydney Hospital last Friday, in company with a detective and a doctor; there were from twenty to twenty-five patients in the ward into which I was shown; I went round and picked out the person I referred to; the person I picked out was the person I had the conversation with at the hotel; the woman was not described to me; I was simply asked to go to the hospital and see if I could pick her out, and I said that unless I could pick her out I would not give evidence in the case at all.

Why I recollect the incident.

The reason I remembered about this was my daughter getting married, and a reference was made to my daughter in the course of the conversation; she got married in October, about the 26th, and was living at home at the time; it was after this I saw Mrs. Dean; I cannot fix the time.

George Dean.

I do not know Dean; I have never seen him at all in my life; I have no interest whatever in connection with the matter.

Read the case.

I admit having read all about this matter in the papers.

Witness—Margaret Sophia Parker (Clairvoyant).

Commission, June 5, 1895 (pages 171-173).

Margaret
Sophia
Parker.

I am a widow, residing at 8, Bellevue-street, Surry Hills; I was staying in Cooper-street at the end of March or the beginning of April; I am what is known as a clairvoyant, and was exercising my powers of clairvoyancy at the end of March or the beginning of April; I have people coming to see me as clients; my professional name is Madam Von.

History
Calling.

About that time a young lady came to see me, whom I afterwards knew as Mary Dean; she came on a Monday evening about 7 o'clock; she was accompanied by a child, whom she left in the drawing-room, and then she came to me into my room; the child came up to me first, and asked if Mrs. Dean could see me; that was the Monday before the Thursday of the trial.

Mary Dean a client.

She denied that she was married or had a child; I told her that, while in the clairvoyant state, I saw her husband, that he was in gaol, and that she could get him out; also that there was "a woman in this crime"; she said, "Yes, there is a woman in it," and added that she would not get him out of it; if he got out she would get divorced, and that she hated him; a little girl came to the door and told me I had Mary Dean in there; she admitted she was Mary Dean, and I asked her, "Won't you save your husband?" she replied, "No, I hate him"; on the Monday, I saw that he was going to be hanged, and I then called on Mr. Crick and told him what this creature had said; I took no notice of this case until after Mrs. Dean had called on me.

Scene in the
room.

I did not know Mrs. Seymour previous to last night; I never saw her till then; she came to the house, and as soon as she entered she said, "I may as well tell you I am Mrs. Seymour"; I said, "What brings you here?" she then told me that it was a lie that I had told Messrs. Crick and Meagher; I then told her that she must leave my room; I suppose she referred to the time Mrs. Dean visited me; I do not know who accompanied her, but think there were policemen at the door; a constable asked me to make a statement, and I said I would have nothing to do with them.

Mrs. Seymour

Witness—Thomas Summerbell.

Commission, May 16, 1895 (pages 31-32).

T.
Summerbell.

I am a master mariner, and have been for sixteen years manager of the North Shore Steam Ferry Co.

I know George Dean well; he was an employee of the company; he was about 16 when he came to us, and I think he is about 27 years of age now; I saw him practically every day during the eleven years he was in the service of the company; he joined as a boy in the yard, and at 21 he became a master mariner, and master of one of the boats; after he became a master, and during the last three or four years, he has been placed in a position of special trust; for two and a-half years he has been master of the all-night boat, which runs between Circular Quay and Milson's Point; that is a position which involves great care and skill; he was trustworthy, honest, courteous to his passengers, and one in whom I had every confidence as to his ability in managing his boat; I think he was a very kind-hearted young fellow; I do not remember anything, all the time I have known him, which would cast the slightest aspersion against his character; I think, and always have thought, that he was exceptionally good; he was a very temperate man, and very truthful; I said at the trial that Dean was everything that was good, and I say so still.

Calling.
George Dean's
character.

I remember the day before Dean was arrested; his manner on that occasion indicated something unusual; it was pay-day; he was late in coming for his pay, and I had to wait to pay both him and his engineer; I said something to him about keeping me waiting, and he, holding up both his hands, said in reply—"Oh, captain, do not say anything to me; they are actually charging me with attempting to poison my wife;" up to that time, Dean, in my opinion, had acted in an absolutely straightforward manner.

Manner before arrest.

Dean's hours of employment were—from 12 o'clock at night; his last trip in the morning was five minutes to 5 from Lavender Bay; then he has to come to Sydney and take his boat to her moorings.

Hours of employment.

I live at North Shore; Dean never visited at my house; I never visited at his house.

Personal knowledge of Dean.

I know nothing from my own knowledge of Dean's history before he was taken on by the company; however, boy and man, I always had the best opinion of him.

F. Ashwin.

I have known George Dean for the last ten years, and have had many conversations with him on board the steamer; I have had ample opportunity of forming an opinion as to his character; his character was good in every sense; as a passenger travelling on the ferry-boat between Mosman's Bay and Sydney, I have known Dean for eight years; I do not know his parents; I know from what Dean told me, that he was getting barely a living, and that he used to send what little money he could to assist a needy mother and some younger members of the family; Dean never said why he left home, or that his mother's name was Finch; I knew nothing of him, except what he told me; he was always a well-behaved boy, and was marked by everybody in the bay as a credit to other boys; all I saw of him on the boat was in his favour.

Calling.
character.

I am an importer and manufacturer, and a member of the firm of Fox Brothers. I have known Dean for about ten years while travelling backwards and forwards on the Mosman's Bay boat; I have been on more intimate terms with Dean than any other of the company's servants, and have always known him to be, as far as I was able to judge, a steady, straightforward, and obliging young man; he seemed to be above the average of his class; I have not known him since he was married; I am referring to the period when he was running to Mosman's Bay; all I know of him was when I met him during the period he was on the day boat; he was an example to all the other boys, and I should trust him.

Calling.
Dean's character.

I have been seven years in the Water Police. I have known George Dean for about six years; I have seen him by night, and in the day time going home; I knew him to speak to; it is part of my duty to know the character of people connected with the water; I can only speak of him in the highest terms; I never saw him the worse for liquor; I have had no opportunity whatever of forming an opinion of the relations upon which Dean and his wife have lived; I saw in the papers when his wife was confined, and after that I would ask him, "How is your missus, George?" and he used to speak in the highest terms of his wife then; Dean is not a personal friend; I do not know that he once went under the name of George Finch; I know nothing of his previous history.
