No. 5.

Some Bill.

Clauses 172 to 175 having been dealt with,—

Clause 176. The Public Instruction (Amendment) Act, 1916, is amended—

(a) by omitting from subsection one of section two the definition of “The Court” and by inserting in lieu thereof the following definition:—

“The Court” means a children’s court established under the Child Welfare Act, 1938, and includes a stipendiary or police magistrate or justices exercising the jurisdiction of a children’s court.

(b) (i) by omitting from subsection one of section four the word “seven” and by inserting in lieu thereof the word “six”; (Compulsory attendance at school.)

(ii) by omitting from subsection two of the same section the word “seven” and by inserting in lieu thereof the word “six”;

(iii) by omitting paragraph (a) of subsection four of the same section;

(iv) by inserting in paragraph (c) of the same subsection after the word “Minister” the words “or any officer authorised by him”;

* * * * * * * * * * * * *

[Read.]
Question proposed.—That the clause, as read, stand part of the Bill.

Motion made (Mr. Beveridge) to insert after paragraph (1) of subclause (b) a new paragraph as follows:

(ii) by omitting from the same subsection the word "fourteen" and by inserting in lieu thereof the word "sixteen".

Question put.—That the word proposed to be left out stand part of the clause.

Point of Order:—It was submitted that the amendment would, in effect, make a charge upon the revenue not contemplated by the Message—upheld by the Chairman, who accepted the assurance of the Minister in charge of the Bill that the amendment would involve a considerable extra charge upon the Consolidated Revenue, and ruled the amendment out of order.

Question again proposed.—That the clause, as read, stand part of the Bill.

Motion made (Mr. Tanking) to insert after paragraph (ii) of subclause (b) a new paragraph as follows:

(iii) by inserting at the end of the same subsection the following proviso:

"Provided that the Governor-in-Council may progressively from time to time increase to fifteen years the maximum age for compulsory attendance at school, provided for in subsection one and subsection two of this section. Such increases shall be notified in the Government Gazette."

Point of Order:—That the amendment involved an additional cost to the Crown. The Chairman accepted the assurance of the Minister in charge of the Bill that the field of benefits would be widened if the amendment were agreed to and thus place on the Crown an increased burden not anticipated by the Bill, and ruled the amendment out of order.

Motion made (Mr. James C. Ross), That the clause be postponed.

Judgment of Court of Disputed Returns.

MILNE v. TURNER.

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 27 September, 1938.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.
DISPUTED RETURNS JURISDICTION.
Term No. 134 of 1938.

Thursday, 25th August, 1938.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GORDON ELECTION PETITION.

JUDGMENT.

His Honor: This is a petition under the Parliamentary Electorates and Elections Act, 1912-1935, to the Supreme Court, which is constituted under that Act the Court of Disputed Returns, seeking substantially a declaration that the election was void.

On the 28th February, 1938, a writ was issued under the provisions of the Act directed to the Returning Officer for the Electoral District of Gordon for the election of a member to the Legislative Assembly. On the 11th April, 1938, the Returning Officer announced as the result of the election held that Mr. Henry Basil Turner was elected for the district by a majority of nine votes over Mr. William Cassie Milne, the only other candidate.

The grounds upon which this petition is based relate to—
(a) Postal votes;
(b) Absent votes;
(c) A section vote, and
(d) A specified number of ballot papers.

The challenges to the postal, absent and section votes, have, for the purpose of the hearing before this Court, been grouped into four classes. It was agreed that in certain events the inquiry as to the specified ballot papers, 53 in number, would become unnecessary.

Postal Votes: An elector is entitled to vote by post on three grounds, all relative to his or her inability to attend or difficulty in attending a polling booth—section 114A (1). In order so to vote certain conditions are laid down by the Act—
(a) He must make an application for a postal vote certificate and postal ballot paper section 114A (1);
(b) The application must contain a declaration in or to the effect of the form prescribed and must be signed in the presence of an authorised witness—section 114A (2);
(c) The authorised witnesses are set out in detail in section 114n (1) (a) and by reference in section 114n (1) (b);
(d) An authorised witness is obliged to be satisfied as to the applicant's identity, to have seen the applicant sign the application, and to be satisfied as to the truth of the statements contained in the application.
(e) An authorised witness must sign his name, add the title, by virtue of which he witnesses, and the date—section 114c.

Thereafter it is for the Returning Officer, if satisfied that the application is properly signed and witnessed, and if it is received in time, to forward a postal vote certificate, printed on an envelope, and one postal ballot paper, forms both for certificates and for ballot paper are prescribed—section 1140.
Directions for regulating postal voting are contained in section 114r, and are to be substantially observed. Section 114r, provides for the preliminary scrutiny of postal ballot papers. Thereunder the scrutineers are to be allowed to inspect the signature of the elector on the application and on the certificate—this, of course, for comparison. If satisfied that these two signatures are of the same person and that the one on the certificate purports to be witnessed by an authorised witness, and that the elector is on the roll, the Returning Officer must accept the ballot paper for further scrutiny.

In the present case 57 postal vote applications are challenged on the grounds that they are as to some not properly witnessed, as to some not properly signed, and as to others not dated, the grounds not stated, or not in the proper form. That some at any rate of these applications are properly challenged is not disputed. It is not necessary that one should deal with each individual application; I propose to deal with them generally.

Of the postal vote certificates, 24 in all are challenged. Here again it is not disputed that at any rate some are properly challenged. Here, too, it is unnecessary to deal further with them in detail.

Absent Votes: An elector who is absent from the subdivision for which he is enrolled may vote elsewhere subject to certain conditions. Some of these only are relevant to this petition, amongst which is the obligation upon the elector to make a declaration in the form prescribed by the Act. The form of declaration may be printed or written on an envelope addressed to the Returning Officer for the district for which the elector is enrolled, and must be signed by the elector in the presence of the Returning Officer or Deputy and completed and attested by him—section 115 (c) (d).

In the present case 144 declarations are challenged for various reasons, for example not signed at all, not witnessed at all, a rubber stamp used for witness' signature, and incomplete or no declaration. As to these it is not disputed that some at any rate are properly challenged. It is unnecessary to deal with each of the 44; they will be dealt with generally later.

Section Vote: Persons otherwise entitled to vote, whose names are not on the roll (to put it shortly), may vote subject, inter alia, to making a declaration in the prescribed form—section 106 (1) and (2). Those are known as section votes. To give effect to those provisions certain conditions must be complied with. The form of declaration which may be printed or written on an envelope addressed to the Returning Officer must after being filled in be signed by the voter in the presence of the Returning Officer or Deputy and completed and attested by him. In the present petition one declaration only is challenged; it was not signed by the Returning Officer or his Deputy.

In all, the applications, certificates, and declarations objected to total 125. If the objections are valid there are sufficient in number to affect the election, subject always to the discretion vested in the Court.

The first question for consideration is as to the effect of non-compliance with the conditions as to postal, absent, or section votes. Prima facie an elector is entitled, and indeed bound, to record his or her vote by attendance at a polling booth in the appropriate subdivision; but the Legislature has recognised that under some circumstances it may be impossible, and in others inconvenient, for the elector so to exercise his vote. In such cases the obligation so to attend at the proper booth is relaxed, subject to conditions, the elector is allowed to vote by post or at other booths. In addition a person whose name is not on the roll is allowed to vote, again subject to conditions. In most of the 125 cases challenged, these conditions have not been complied with in some instances at all, in others in part. They are requirements of the Act itself and the effect of non-compliance depends upon whether those requirements are mandatory or merely directory.

"The scope and object of a Statute are the only guides in determining whether its provisions are directory or imperative"—Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes, 1st edn. at 329 and 331, cited in Beale's Cardinal Rules of Interpretation, 3rd edn. 493.

"Where a Statute creates public duties and confers private rights, in general the former provisions are directory, the latter imperative, and in the absence of an express provision the intention of the Legislature is to be ascertained by weighing the consequences of holding a Statute to be directory or imperative"—Beale at 493.

So far as concerns voting, as already indicated, the scheme of the Act is that the elector shall so far as practicable vote at the polling booth for which he is enrolled. Provisions to vote otherwise, either as to manner or as to place, are all based on conditions.

"Think it is a clear rule that where a privilege is granted subject to a condition, the performance of that condition is necessary before the right to exercise the privilege arises"—per Griffiths C.J., Holoney v. McEachern, 1 C.L.R. at 83.

In that case the Court was considering the validity of postal votes given upon certificates and ballot papers issued to electors pursuant to applications not attested by a person of one of the classes specified. It was held that they were invalid.

I am, I confess, compelled to come to the conclusion that the attestation of the application by one of the persons specified is an essential condition to the granting of the application. In coming to the conclusion I am influenced to a great extent by the apparent scope of this part of the Act. If the application could be made without attestation means of personation would be offered to any person who was willing to take advantage of them. There would be no check or means of obtaining evidence against the personator. If a man were merely required to sign the name of an elector and give the particulars mentioned in the form, all of which he could ascertain from the roll, and then to send in the application, the Returning Officer would have no more to do than to issue the certificate and ballot paper. Anyone would be enabled to get a postal ballot paper. If the application were merely required to be attested by another signature the means of evading the Act would be almost as easy, because it would only need two persons to concur, one to sign the name of the elector as the applicant, and another to sign a fictitious name as attesting witness. But it is generally required to be attested by some known and identifiable person of one of the classes specified, there would be this safeguard that if he improperly attested a ballot paper he would be liable to lose an official position if the fact were made known on a prosecution for personation or otherwise. There would be at any rate some safeguard added to the title. It is true it is an imperfect safeguard, just as the attestation of an affidavit by a Commissioner is an imperfect safeguard as to the identity of the deponent, for the Commissioner seldom knows the deponent. But a person who signs an affidavit in the presence of a Commissioner runs the risk of being identified and prosecuted if he swears falsely. So in this case, if a man signs an application of this sort, not being the person whose name is signed, he is guilty of a criminal offence, rendering him liable to imprisonment for two years. If the construction which we favour is adopted he cannot effectively do so except in the presence of a person easily identifiable, a person holding a public office and who is likely to be a credible witness on a prosecution. Therefore, the provision is a substantially an imperfect safeguard. This reasoning and the authorities of Mr. Justice v. Simpkins (1901 1 K.B. 487) compel me to the conclusion that attestation by some one of the persons specified is an imperative condition.—Griffiths, C.J., at pp. 80-7.

Moreover, so far as concerns section 114m, which provides that “the following directions for regulating voting by means of postal ballot papers are to be substantially observed,” followed by provisions in subsection (c) for the authorised witness signing his name on the postal vote certificate and adding the title and the date, it is to be observed that notwithstanding the provision therein contained for “substantial observance” the addition of the title is essential. “Some postal ballot papers were held invalid because the title of the witness of his occupation and place of living, as directed by section 118 (a) had not been added to the witness’ signature. Omission of this necessary precaution for authentication could not be cured by the word of section 118 (a) that its provisions need only be substantially observed”—per Burton J., Blundell v. Barden, 4 C.L.R. at 1478.

Certain sections of the present Act specifically provide for “substantial performance,” e.g., sections 118m and 122a. I am of the opinion that at all events as to those sections which do not contain such a provision, the presumption is that complete performance is obligatory.

In the present case I am satisfied that the requirements, non-compliance with which is alleged, are mandatory, and that a failure to observe, renders the objections in each instance a valid one.

It is quite impossible to indicate all of the matters the subject of objection with a statement of the extent to which compliance fails, or the respect in which it fails. It is sufficient for the purposes of this decision to indicate shortly that where, for instance, a postal vote application is not signed, is not witnessed, or if witnessed is by a person not authorised; if the title of the authorised witness is not added nor the date, or where postal vote certificates are not properly witnessed by reason of the authorised witness failing to add the title under which he witnesses—or the date—or as to absent voters’ declarations where an absent voter’s declaration is not signed by the voter, is not witnessed, or where a rubber stamp is used by the Returning Officer for the attesting by him, or where as to a section vote the declaration is not signed by the Returning Officer or his Deputy, in each case this is a breach of a mandatory provision of the Act and is fatal.

On behalf of the respondent, Mr. Roberts, the Returning Officer, was called as a witness, and his clerk, in support of the evidence given by him. In effect, Mr. Roberts’ evidence established that all routine matters were faithfully and accurately carried out, but the really important portions of his testimony related to particular instances under which he accepted the 125 papers, the subject of the contest. Speaking generally, he said that he was “satisfied” that they were in order, that as to some the scrutineers being present and invited to object if occasion arose, he, the Returning Officer, considered it his duty not to raise any objection if they raised none, although in some cases he rejected on his own motion. He stated his position to be that he adopted what he termed a sympathetic attitude to the elector, erring, if he did err, on the side rather of disfranchising than of disfranchising. An illustration is afforded in cases of authorised witnesses in respect of postal votes. As to these he accepted certificates from people known to be reputable though not within the list of authorised witnesses in the section. There were a few cases where he very fairly said he would not have passed them on the closer scrutiny that presented itself in the witness-box. The fact is that before these votes were taken into account the petitioner had a majority of 100 votes over the respondent. In the circumstances outlined, the position taken up by Mr. Maughan is this: he frankly states that in fact the petitioner has established the case he set out to make as to the invalidity of sufficient of these 125 instances to render the election a nullity, but he claims that in the circumstances the Court should exercise its discretion, should, as he puts it, allow the election to stand. The facts upon which he asks that this course should be adopted are shortly that there is nothing throughout the case to suggest that any person not entitled to vote did so vote by post or as an absentee, that the Returning Officer, carrying out his duties bona fide, was satisfied in each instance that the scrutineers present to look after the interests of the candidates although invited took no exception to any of the cases now relied upon. He has argued that the Court has the widest powers under section 161, which, so far as it is relevant, is in these terms:

"Subsection (1). The Court of Disputed Returns shall sit as an open Court and its powers shall include the following:—

(viii) To dismiss or uphold the petition in whole or in part.

Subsection (2). The Court may exercise all or any of its powers under this section on such grounds as the Court in its discretion thinks just and sufficient," and is bound by section 106 to be—

"guided by the substantial merits and good conscience of each case without regard to legal forms or technicalities or whether the evidence before it is in accordance with the law of evidence or not."

He further has asked me not, in effect, to be constrained to follow the principles enunciated in the cases cited by Mr. Monahan. I may say at once that I agree that I am not bound, as I should be sitting in another jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, by these decisions, but they are the pronouncements on practically identical sections of judges whose opinions must carry the greatest weight, this not alone from their eminence as jurists but as from as well their experience of elections. Moreover, I should add with respect, that I agree entirely with their reasons.

That the Court has the widest powers is obvious from the mere reading of section 161, whilst it is so less clear that section 106 demands that the real substance, free from any shadow of form or technicality, is to be sought and given effect to. A definition of substantial merit and good conscience is difficult if not impossible, though particular instances are easy of recognition.

The respondent, through his counsel, has claimed that the defects in the subject cases are really matters of form and not of substance, and that to act upon them would be relying upon technicalities. I do not agree. In my opinion, speaking generally, regard to the cases that have been presented, I am satisfied that the vital provisions of the Act have been disregarded, and that so far from their being technicalities the irregularities are of such a nature that if they were overlooked it would be riding through the provisions of the Act. It is quite clear that the Legislature, being of opinion that opportunities for voting other than by personal attendance at the booths for which the elector is enrolled should be provided, have gone farther and set up safeguards against any violation of what are really privileges in the exercise of the vote. These safeguards are very important, though, in the nature of things, not perfect. It seems to me that if I were to treat them as technicalities, or to overlook them, I should, as Mr. Monahan claims, be giving the go-bye entirely to the detailed safeguards that the Legislature has seen fit to set up.

In the circumstances, I am of the opinion therefore that, guided by the substantial merits of the case and by good conscience and paying no regard at all to legal forms or technicalities, this petition should succeed.

I find that the cases in the first four groups have been made out with very few exceptions and in sufficient numbers—as is agreed—to affect the election. It becomes unnecessary therefore to consider what is called group 5, that is 32 ballot papers alleged to be informal.

There remains an aspect of the matter to be dealt with in fairness to the Returning Officer. In evidence he admitted that he passed a few cases which upon reflection he would have rejected. I think it proper to state that he impressed me as a witness and as having a keen sense of his responsibility as a returning officer. There is not the slightest ground for suggesting that he carried out his duties other than in good faith. As to the majority of the instances challenged, the error into which he fell was in failing to detect mistakes and omissions made by electors and by witnesses who had full instructions for their guidance and, so far as it appears, ample time to study them. It is to be observed that the Returning Officer handled some 22,000 votes, including 750 postal votes and 1,500 absent votes, with the haste and unavoidable haste associated with the natural desire to provide the candidates and the public with reliable figures as early as reasonably possible, and it is not surprising that he should in a relatively limited number of cases fall into error.

The not unimportant question of costs remains for consideration. It is true that the respondent is in a sense an unsuccessful party, but Mr. Monahan has already announced that he does not ask for costs against him, the matters of concern being, as he puts it, departmental. Counsel for both parties have requested me to act under section 173. In a case very comparable to the present, Blundell v. Bardon, Barton, J., in the course of his reasons, said that had he the power he should consider whether it was not his duty to order an official contribution to costs. Section 173 provides that the Court may award costs against an unsuccessful party to the petition. In my discretion, recommend that costs be paid by the Crown. In my opinion this is a case where I should exercise my discretion to recommend that the costs of both parties be paid by the Crown, and this I accordingly do.
