Parliamentary Law and Procedure

Report by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly upon discussions with the Clerk and Officers of the House of Commons on certain matters relating to Parliamentary Law and Procedure

Ordered to be printed, 31 October, 1956

PARLIAMENTARY LAW AND PROCEDURE.

Report upon Discussions between the Clerk of the House of Commons, Sir Edward Fellowes, K.C.B., C.M.G., M.C., and his Officers and the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, Mr. Allan Pickering, M.B.E., M.Ec., on certain matters relating to Parliamentary Law and Procedure and Observations upon the Working of the House of Commons.

May-June, 1956.

To The Honourable

The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales.

During my recent official visit to the House of Commons, discussions were held with the Clerk of the House of Commons and his Officers on matters relating to Parliamentary Law and Procedure and observations made at sittings of the House. Some details of the information and experience gained by me are here recorded by way of report to you as Speaker and in the hope of being of value to Honourable Members and Officers of the Legislative Assembly.

It can properly be said that the full value of close contact with the Parliament of Great Britain will come to bear in the future, a feeling supported by all Honourable Members who have visited the Mother of Parliaments.

The approval of The Honourable the Premier to your recommendation that an official visit be made by me to the House of Commons was greatly appreciated, coming at the appropriate time, just prior to my taking up the position of Clerk of the House. The real significance of the opportunity so afforded, however, was not fully manifest until the privilege of discussing questions of parliamentary procedure with such recognised and distinguished authorities as the Clerk of the House of Commons, Sir Edward Fellowes, and three of his colleagues was actually experienced.

It was therefore with a sense of responsibility and regard for the impartiality demanded of a Parliamentary Clerk that the task of conferring upon various selected subjects with the Officers of the House of Commons was accepted by me with the object of making a comparative study of the trends of practice and interpretation of rules of procedure as between the House of Commons and the New South Wales Legislative Assembly.

In such a study the forms of procedure and developed practice need to be subjected to the tests of the law laid down in the text "May's Parliamentary Practice". And for "May" it might be said that those who over the years have influenced the shaping of the Standing Orders and precedents of the New South Wales Legislative Assembly have adopted it as the standard treatise on the law, privileges, proceedings and usages of Parliament.

Further, it might be placed on record here that the accomplishments of our Legislative Assembly in the sphere of parliamentary procedure were found worthy of note by Sir Gilbert Campion who, after completing his visit to many Parliaments of the British Commonwealth in 1948 as the then retiring Clerk of the House of Commons, expressed the opinion that, "New South Wales leads the way in procedure among State Legislatures, which is only natural as it takes procedure more seriously and has a better official set-up than elsewhere."

SUMMARY.

To summarise my views after observation at sittings of the House of Commons and its Standing Committees, and using the value of the talks with its Officers as a measuring stick, it might justly be claimed that the standards of dignity, decorum, conduct of procedure and forcefulness of debate in the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales are of a very high order.

Some notable New South Wales cases of Rulings over the past twenty years which had involved dissent motions either in the House or in Committee were cited in my discussions and created the keen interest of House of Commons' officers who regarded the bases and quality of the rulings as being of a high standard.

Particular mention should be made of the fact that the New South Wales Legislative Assembly imposes upon its Ministers and its Presiding Officers, in the Speaker and Chairman of Committees, some procedural tasks not countenanced in the House of Commons. The two most important of these are in relation to the moving of amendments to motions and clauses of a bill, and to the asking of questions.
without notice. When the procedure on those two matters as practised in our Legislative Assembly was outlined by me, officers of the House of Commons expressed the view that it was most exacting and placed heavy responsibilities upon Ministers and Presiding Officers.

In the House of Commons prescribed notice is given of nearly all amendments and questions. Thus Ministers have the opportunity of considering the import of amendments and of having answers to questions prepared by Departmental Officers. The Speaker and the Chairman of Committees are afforded ample time (a minimum of forty-eight hours) to carefully consider whether amendments are in order, and whether questions conform to the rules. In our Legislative Assembly the Presiding Officers have, at most, only the very brief space of time during which to determine their rulings.

To have the experience of even a short period of study within the precincts of the House of Commons and to confer with officers who are called upon to tender advice to European and Colonial Legislatures was a valued privilege and it is hoped that the results, as detailed in the following paragraphs, will merit satisfaction and the visit be deemed of benefit to the Legislative Assembly. In my own view the visit proved of immense value and all the Lower Houses of Australian Parliaments would find it repay tenfold to extend to a senior officer, the Clerk Assistant preferably, the opportunity of visiting the Mother of Parliaments.

OFFICERS OF HOUSE OF COMMONS WITH WHOM DISCUSSIONS HELD AND SUBJECTS.

My sincere appreciation is recorded to the officers who made so much of their valuable time available to me and who imparted information on such a high plane upon the more difficult of the problems submitted by me.

In my first series of talks the following subjects were dealt with by the officers named:

With Sir Edward Fellowes, K.C.B., C.M.G., M.C., Clerk of the House of Commons—
(1) Privilege;
(2) Urgency Motions; and
(3) Dissent Motions.

With Mr. Douglas Gordon, C.B., Clerk Assistant—
(1) Sub judice Rule;
(2) Questions based upon Debates; and
(3) Irregular and unbecoming Motions.

With Mr. R. A. W. Dent, O.B., Clerk of Public Bills—
(1) Amendments to Bills;
(2) Procedure in Committee of the Whole House and in Standing Committees; and
(3) Financial Debates.

With Mr. David Lidderdale, Fourth Clerk at the Table—
(1) Certain Rules of Debate; and
(2) Amendments to Motions.

During a second series of talks some aspects of the foregoing subjects were reviewed and some further matters were also discussed, viz.—
- Previous Question;
- Questions seeking Information;
- Ministerial Statements;
- Application of Closure;
- Ceremonial Procedure and Presiding Officers;
- Staff Organisation; and
- Presentation and Publication of Annual Reports and Hansard.

NOTATIONS UPON SUBJECTS.

In the following paragraphs notations are made upon each of the foregoing subjects indicating the results of the discussions upon and the analyses of the practice and rulings of our Legislative Assembly over the past twenty years, in particular. This Report is not deemed to be the proper place to develop the advantages and disadvantages of this or that form of procedure. Honourable Members who comprise the Standing Orders Committee will debate these at meetings of the Committee prior to which submissions arising from careful consideration and research upon the proposals will be presented to Members of the Committee.
(1) Privilege.

In the light of the method of determining matters of privilege and the courses of action adopted in the House of Commons, it would be advisable to leave the position as it now stands in New South Wales, that is, "undefined". The House may have greater strength under its present attitude to matters of privilege. When the Press is involved in a question of privilege, the practice prevailing in New South Wales might be regarded as effective, viz., Motion deprecating action. (See Leg. Assemb. V. & P. 1929-30, p. 386.)

(2) Urgency Motions.

It is proper to disallow an "urgency motion" when the substantive motion sought to be discussed is deemed to be out of order. The subjection of the House to statements upon "urgency" and to a vote which would prove fruitless at the next stage would thus be avoided. (See Leg. Assbly. V. & P. 1946-47, p. 3 and 59; 1948-50, p. 67.)

It is not in order for a private Member to move as a matter of urgency that an item of Government Business be considered forthwith.

In the House of Commons it is not possible to move an Urgency Motion unless arrangement is made between the Leader of the House, the Leader of the Opposition and the Speaker. In the New South Wales Legislative Assembly private Members have greater privileges under the Standing Orders which permit of any Member moving a Motion of Urgency during Question Time.

(3) Dissent Motions.

It is a matter of rare occurrence in the House of Commons to have a motion of dissent upon a Speaker's Ruling or a Chairman's Decision. Such motions are regarded as censure upon the Presiding Officers. This position may be expected to be a corollary to the requirement of notice and also to tradition surrounding the Chair and the prestige accorded it in the House of Commons. Motions of dissent in our House arise from the keen interest and concern of Honourable Members in regard to procedure, and their feeling that Rulings given so soon after the Point of Order is raised should be subjected to scrutiny by way of dissent. It may prove desirable to consider some form of procedure which might greatly lessen the number of such motions and extend greater regard for the Speakership. Provision may be made in Standing Orders for the ready review of Rulings, before the matter under consideration is further advanced.

(4) Sub Judice Rule.

The practice of the House of Commons upon the debate of matters regarded as sub judice was cited in the following terms:—

"Insofar as it is conceded that there are rulings against the discussion of sub judice matters, it is clear that they are very narrow. To be ruled out of order matters must be—"

"(1) under consideration by a Court of Law. It is not enough for it to be under consideration by a judicial or quasi judicial tribunal; or"

"(2) actually before or pending in the Courts. It is not sufficient that legal proceedings are possible, e.g., it is not enough that the time for appeal should still be running; an appeal must actually have been entered.

"Only specific cases have been ruled out of order. There seems no objection to debating a general proposition of law despite the fact that a particular affiliation of it is before the Courts."

(5) Questions Based on Debates in the Current Session.

Questions have been asked which have had as their foundation something said in a Debate of the current Session. When no words have been used linking the question with a debate, no action by the Speaker, or point of order, has been taken to disallow the question.

When, by definite reference, it is declared that a question refers to a Debate, it becomes an inadmissible question according to "May" as it belongs to the type of question—"Referring to debates or answers to questions in the current session."

In this matter the fact that questions are asked without notice in our Legislative Assembly has rendered it very difficult to strictly apply the rule set out by "May". As it is accepted that the object of May's rule is to prevent the re-opening of matters about which some finality has been reached, the view in the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly has been that a question which might be regarded in the nature of a supplementary question might be permitted—as most supplementary questions are in reference to an answer to an original question.

Further it has been ruled in our Legislative Assembly that Debate, as referred to in our Standing Order 143, did not include debate on the Budget or Estimates which were "open" debates, not arriving at resolutions on specific subjects.

As the elimination of words such as—"in reference to" or "alluding to" would admit questions which have their foundation in a debate of the current session, it would seem that our practice and Standing Orders lend support to the admissibility of questions upon matters with respect to which the House has not arrived at a conclusion.

(6) Irregular and Unbecoming Motions.

Apart from cases of technical irregularities, the scope of ruling on irregularities in motions in the House of Commons is extremely narrow. Reflections upon decisions of the House have been ruled as irregular. There are several cases of motions being regarded as unbecoming, but as the number of precedents are limited, the interpretation and application of the Rule thus far in our Legislative Assembly cannot be given adequate comparison with cases in the House of Commons. (See Leg. Ass'ly. V. & P. 1963-68, p. 164.)

(7) Amendments to Bills.

After a Bill is introduced, notice may be given of amendments proposed by any Member. These are published from day to day and upon the completion of the second reading debate, all amendments are collated and published in chronological order of the clauses affected. These amendments are then considered by a special Committee which includes the Chairman of Committees, the Clerk Assistant, the Clerk of Public Bills and officers of the Crown Law and Parliamentary Draftsman's Departments. This Committee makes "selections" of amendments and decides which amendments are out of order, making the relevant notations on the printed list for the guidance of the Chairman.

This procedure has much to recommend it. From the viewpoint of the Chairman, time would be afforded to examine amendments, especially those presenting some difficulty on the question of order. Ministers would gain the opportunity of considering proposals from the Opposition. Members generally would be notified in advance of proposed amendments.

When amendments are moved to Clauses of a Bill without any notice—as is done in the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly—there are many occasions when debate proceeds upon amendments which are sooner or later ruled out of order on grounds such as being subversive of the principle of the Bill as read a second time", "beyond the order of leave", "outside the scope of the bill" or "increasing the expenditure contemplated by the Message from the Governor".

Such proceedings could be avoided by adopting the procedure of the House of Commons in regard to amendments. It may be questionable as to whether this procedure would be acceptable in full measure, but there may be wisdom and benefit in a substantial application of this rule.

(8) Procedure in Committee of the Whole and in Standing Committees.

Consideration of Bills in detail may, under House of Commons' procedure, take place in Committee of the Whole House or in a Standing Committee. My observations upon this stage are recorded.

At the beginning of the Session several Standing Committees are constituted, the Chairmen of which are drawn from a panel. Members of Standing Committees are elected by the Committee of Selection, firstly a nucleus of twenty, later to which is added up to another thirty members, regarded as "specialists" for the consideration of particular Bills. The procedure is formal as in the House and the Chairman has wide power including the selection of amendments and the putting of the closure. As each Bill arrives at the Committee stage, the Speaker allocates it to one or other of the Standing Committees unless the House, by specific motion, refers it to a Committee of the Whole. Under either proceeding only amendments of which notice has been given are entertained.

Having attended sittings of two Standing Committees, my impressions are that this system is designed to expedite business in the House of Commons, consisting of 625 Members, and that it may act in reverse in a smaller Assembly. In any case some may take the view that many Honourable Members who would wish and be very capable of taking part in debate on certain Bills are precluded from so doing, not being a member of the Standing Committee to which such Bills are referred.

Particular mention must here be made of the "Report Stage" in connection with Bills, as this form of procedure is not followed in New South Wales. After a Bill is reported from either a Standing Committee or a Committee of the Whole, it is set down as an Order of the Day for "Report Stage". Notices of proposed amendments for consideration at this stage may be given and these are dealt with in the House, not in Committee.

The Speaker has power of selection of amendments and this may be used to stop the submission again at the "Report Stage" of an amendment which had been given fair consideration in Committee.

In my opinion neither the system of Standing Committees on Bills nor the Report Stage would be of any advantage to our Legislative Assembly, as, with a membership of ninety-four, ample opportunity is afforded to every Honourable Member... to speak and vote on all clauses and amendments. And on this aspect one does feel, whether rightly or wrongly, that there may be occasions when the opinion of the majority of the House would have been different to the decision of a Standing Committee. In many cases it would be a difficult line of procedure to obtain a test vote, and legislation is in the hands of the comparatively small number of Members on the Standing Committees.

(9) Financial Debates.

Whilst the forms of procedure upon Finance and Taxation Bills differ widely between the House of Commons and the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly, they are founded on the same basic rules.

In the House of Commons the Budget Debate is confined strictly to discussion upon policy and the general financial and economic structure. It then follows that the Estimates Debate is limited to administration. The Chairman's task is made lighter if Honourable Members apply this Rule when preparing their speeches on the Budget and Estimates.

Consideration might be given to the adoption of some procedure to overcome what has come to be regarded as cumbersome technique in respect to Supply, Loan and Appropriation Bills, by combining the Resolutions of Supply and of Ways and Means.

On the function of the Committee of Ways and Means authorising the issue of funds out of the Consolidated Fund equal to the sums voted by the Committee of Supply, in his "Introduction to the Procedure of the House of Commons" Champion says, "This function of the Committee of Ways and Means has been objected to by critics as unnecessary. No doubt it has become a mere formality."

Whilst this form of financial procedure has been discussed from time to time, no advance has been made towards a definite decision to dispense with it. This and other points in respect to procedure on Taxation Bills were deferred to be the subject of future correspondence with the Clerk of the House of Commons.

(10) Certain Rules of Debate.

Greater latitude is allowed in the House of Commons than in the Legislative Assembly regarding quotations from Hansard of the current Session. This especially was the case as referring to the subject under discussion. Restrictions in the N.S.W. Standing Orders might be reviewed to advantage.

Recent cases involving the Anticipation Rule were studied and also the attitude towards the question of the Reading of Speeches. In both matters it was found that the practice of our Legislative Assembly was along the same lines as that adopted in the House of Commons.

An unusual course in debate in the House of Commons—so far as our procedure here in New South Wales goes—was the acceptance of interruption of speeches upon, say, a second reading of a Bill, or upon a substantive motion in a somewhat formal manner. An Honourable Member addressing the House would give way to another Honourable Member who wished to ask that the speaker might amplify the point he was making or ask him to more clearly state his opinion. The Member speaking resumed his seat and the Member questioning rose. Then the speaker resumed his speech.

The orderly nature of this proceeding and its apparently accepted advantages do suggest it as one worthy of consideration for adoption in the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly.

(11) Amendments to Motions.

Talks were had in respect to the tests upon the relevancy of certain amendments and also upon "whitewashing" amendments. The practice established by precedents in our Legislative Assembly is quite sound. (See Leg. Assemb. V. & P. 1948-50, p. 141 and p. 225 and V. & P. 1948-50, p. 226.)

Limitations to the acceptance of amendments upon amendments was also discussed and some cases presenting difficulties were noted.

Having in view the rule that the determination of the terms of a Royal Commission is the prerogative of the Crown, it is not good procedure to include the proposed terms of reference in a motion dealing with other aspects of the matter, because as part of the motion they would become subject to amendment under the normal rules of procedure.

(12) "Previous Question."

With the more modern approach in dealing with difficult situations and the greater use of the form of "Adjournment of the Debate" the procedure known as "The Previous Question" has been almost discarded in the House of Commons.
The keen interest of the Officers of the Commons was shown in the case of the application of the Previous Question when an adverse amendment was made to the Address-in-Reply in the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly. It was conceded that the use of that form of procedure was the only way out of the difficult position in which the House found itself. (See Leg. Assemb. V. & P. 1903-52, pp. 20-23.)

(13) Questions Seeking Information.

The asking of questions to Ministers is regarded in the House of Commons, as it is here in New South Wales, as a most important part of each day's proceedings. Question time, if wisely used by Honourable Members, is an effective and practical form of procedure through which Parliament may keep a watchful eye upon administrative activities and bring to public notice the trends in Government policy.

As stated in my introduction to this Report, the answering of questions without notice was regarded by House of Commons' officers as a form which imposed an exacting task upon Ministers. It was suggested to me that our system permitted of the frequent breaking of the rules governing Questions to Ministers and that as the question was oral the damage was done before the Speaker could deal with the matter, and it then may be unfair to Ministers to be denied the right to answer. That this position had developed in our Legislative Assembly had to be admitted, although not without notice and concern.

In the interests of all Members—especially those who lose the opportunity to ask a question because of time being taken up by questions which should rightly be asked “upon notice”—and also in order to preserve Question Time in its proper character, it may be necessary to clearly define the types of questions which may be asked without notice.

An alternative form of procedure may be that obtaining in the House of Commons which requires all questions to be on notice for oral or written reply. The Speaker may permit a question without notice provided both he and the Minister are notified at least two hours beforehand. All questions asked by the Leader of the Opposition are under this head—called “Private Notice Questions”.

In the House of Commons the phrase “Is it a fact that” is regarded as incorrect in prefacing a question. The Speaker allows quite a number of supplementary questions when the Minister reads his reply to a question as listed on the Business Paper, the first of these supplementaries going to the Member who asked the original question. Notice Papers and Hansards illustrating the matter of questions have been secured for future reference.

(14) Ministerial Statements.

The method of delivering a Ministerial Statement in the Commons and the subsequent proceeding was a matter for interest. Not only the Leader of the Opposition, but a number of other Members were permitted to address the House on the content of the Statement by way of making short observations combined with asking questions upon it—almost involving the House in a small scale debate. The Minister was found to address the House two or three times in reply to the points raised, the proceeding being brought to an end by the intervention of the Speaker.

There would seem to be a good deal of merit in this procedure on Ministerial Statements. The practice followed in our Legislative Assembly could present unfair reactions to both the Minister making the Statement, insomuch as he has no right of reply, and the Leader of the Opposition, insomuch as when he is called upon to confine himself to a Statement in counter of Government policy, it may not be as well considered as it would be if he had the right to study the Ministerial Statement. Further the Leader of any substantial party other than the official Opposition is not given the right to address the House upon a Ministerial Statement and this may be considered too restrictive.

Maybe that a form of procedure combining features of the House of Commons' practice and our own would be regarded as an improvement in the interests of Ministers and Leaders of the Opposition Parties.

(15) Application of Closure.

The Speaker and the Chairman of Committees of the House of Commons have the right to accept or withhold the putting of the Closure; in fact they display a general reluctance to accepting the Closure, unless notice by the Government is given as to its intention to complete certain business within a specified time.

The Legislative Assembly Standing Orders provide for the moving of the Closure whether a Member is speaking or not, and technically this provision is necessary in case the Mover of the Closure misses the call. But since the adoption of the “Time Limit of Speeches” Standing Order, the Closure has rarely been moved when a Member has advanced in his speech.

The use of the form of Closure known as the “Guillotine” as applied to Bills, if used scientifically, may be regarded as giving greater preservation of the rights of the minority whilst it naturally ensures that the Government controls its business.
Where there is an effective Opposition there is generally to be found a fair state of balance in the gaining of procedural rights, but when the Opposition becomes obstructive beyond certain limits, there is to be found justification for a Government using the Closure.

(16) Ceremonial Procedure and Presiding Officers.

In general our ceremonial procedure of the Legislative Assembly follows that of the House of Commons, with the exception of the taking of the Chair by Mr. Speaker at the commencement of each Sitting, when the Clerks and Strangers are not present.

Prayers are said after the Speaker enters the House accompanied by the Serjeant-at-Arms and the Chaplain, the Speaker and Chaplain kneeling at the Clerks' Table—chairs being removed.

The Speaker of the House of Commons presides at meetings of the House and may be relieved in that duty by either the Chairman of Ways and Means or Deputy Chairman of Ways and Means acting as Deputy Speaker. Selection of amendments and the decision to accept or reject the Closure are powers granted the Speaker, but the Chairmen do not have these powers when acting as Deputy Speaker, unless they are acting during the unavoidable absence of Mr. Speaker.

Consideration might be given by the Standing Orders Committee to making provision for a Deputy Chairman to facilitate, on occasions, relief for the Chairman when he is acting as Deputy Speaker and in respect to the certification of Bills for Assent.

(17) Staff Organisation.

The recruitment and training of staff at the House of Commons is upon similar lines to our plan in the Legislative Assembly. Young men may find in the Parliamentary Offices a career of a character very different to the clerical posts in the Government Departments.

Of course the staff of the House of Commons is numerically much stronger than our staff. The Legislative Assembly Office must therefore be so organised as to ensure that officers are capable and can be readily available to execute the duties of more than any one position. The Clerks at the Table carry out the same duties in our Assembly as they do at the Commons, and our House is one of the very few in the British Commonwealth where this is the case. The limited source from which are to be selected the three Table Officers is ordinarily a male staff of five in training and performing duties in the various sections of the office. Composition of the Legislative Assembly staff, however, in respect to age, qualifications and experience is at present a question of concern, and my observations at the House of Commons have indicated to me the necessity for the early and careful assessment of the trainee staff and the planning of its education.

The following diagram of the organization of the Staff of the House of Commons is worth recording and must be of interest to Speakers and Parliamentary Officers:—

Organisation of the Department of the Clerk of the House of Commons.

Presentation and Publication of Annual Reports and Hansard.

Provision is made at the House of Commons for the presentation of Annual Reports of Departments of State to the Parliament during recess periods. Such an arrangement for the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly would have many advantages and would facilitate the publication and availability at any period of the year of information upon Governmental activities.

Members of the Printing Committee would be able to devote themselves to close study upon the question of printing documents and bring about worthwhile economies.

House of Commons' Hansard is published in pamphlet form each day and is received by Members in the morning delivery. About five days are given for the notification of corrections. The opinion of the Standing Orders Committee might be sought as to whether this scheme may be adopted in New South Wales.

REVIEW OF STANDING ORDERS AND EDITING OF A "MANUAL OF PROCEDURE".

Arising from the results of my discussions as recorded in the foregoing Report, several matters might be chosen by you as Speaker for submission to the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders Committee. In addition there are many proposals which have been noted as worthy of debate by the Committee, such proposals arising from observations during recent years by Honourable Members of our House.

In the House of Commons a Select Committee is appointed approximately at each decade to review Standing Orders to endeavour to provide for an up-to-date approach to procedure. The three Reports of the last such Select Committee submitted during the period 1945 to 1947 proposed important procedure changes.

Some printed documents of the House of Commons were secured by me to illustrate the forms of procedure in relation to Bills, amendments, questions and Standing Committees on Bills.

In any review of Standing Orders it is essential to guard against injuring the rights of minority when establishing the rights of the majority to control business. Thus the Standing Orders Committee has an important and highly technical task to perform when it embarks upon any revision of the machinery of Parliamentary Government.

It is twenty-six years since publications were issued as compilations of Speakers' Rulings and Chairmen's Decisions. Before visiting the House of Commons, an arrangement of Speakers' Rulings in alignment with the Chapters of the Standing Orders was commenced by me.

Whilst in the House of Commons there is no official publication of Speakers' Rulings, a Manual of Procedure does give a valuable lead to Honourable Members as to the requirements of the Standing Orders, the practice of the House and references to "May's Parliamentary Procedure".

To meet the demands and interest of Members of our House an immediate start will be made by me upon the editing of a "Manual of Procedure in the Legislative Assembly" to contain Speakers' and Chairmen's Rulings, Precedents of classic cases in our own Assembly, References to "May" and a Commentary on our Procedure and Practice.

This endeavour in the publication of a "Manual", it is hoped, will clear up many doubts as to whether the correct interpretations have been given to Standing Orders and to Rules as set forth in "May", and further, will record the practice which has grown up under the influence of many wise and experienced Parliamentarians who have contributed over the years since 1856 so much to the effective Representative Democracy of this State.

CONCLUSION.

Parliamentary Law and Procedure might well be regarded as the framework of an ordered form of democratic government within which opposing forces may express themselves with vigour, passion and tolerance. Its structure is a delicate piece of mechanism. It has provided the motive power for the maintenance of British Parliamentary institutions.

Side by side with the Parliaments of the British Commonwealth of Nations is the Congress of the United States of America. It is a matter to place on record that in London one found that the British-American Parliamentary Group had been established under the constitution of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. This Group has done much to bring into closer contact two Nations with common parliamentary traditions and relationships.

During my thirty-four years' service as an officer of the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly, of which twenty years have been spent as a Clerk at the Chamber Table, many changes in procedure have been instituted. These have emanated from the combined thought of those whose duty it is to become expert in the applied technique of procedure, and those who, as Members of Parliament, have tested proposals for change with forbearance, wise understanding and logical sense of fair play.
The visit such as the one recently experienced by me to the Mother of Parliaments, does fortify one's faith in Parliamentary Democracy and calls for one's best effort to make some valued contribution towards its future sound working. To become an authority upon parliamentary law and procedure is a life-time job.
Demanding as it must a total absorption in the subject, with a comprehensiveness of outlook and the keenest sense of impartiality, it is an ambition attained by very few.
In the humble contribution of this Report and my own service, my colleagues in the N.S.W. Legislative Assembly and officers in other Australian Houses of Parliament may find some information of value.

The preparation and submission by me of material for the consideration of the Legislative Assembly Standing Orders Committee in the revision of Standing Orders and Forms of Procedure, will be a task of special interest following upon my observations at the House of Commons.

ALLAN PICKERING,
Clerk of the Legislative Assembly.
