5. Pro Forma Bill—Law of Evidence Bill:—Mr. Cahill presented a Bill, intitled "A Bill to amend the law of evidence,"—and moved pro forma, That this Bill be now read a first time.

Question put and passed.

Bill read a first time.

6. The Governor's Opening Speech:—Mr. Speaker reported that the House had yesterday attended the Governor in the Legislative Council Chamber when His Excellency was pleased to deliver an Opening Speech to both Houses of Parliament. For greater accuracy, he had obtained a copy, which he laid upon the Table of the House, and ordered that it be recorded in the Votes and Proceedings, as follows:—

HONOURABLE MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, AND MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY,—

To-day we assemble to open the Fifth Session of the Thirty-seventh Parliament of the State of New South Wales which has been called to deal with proposed legislation and other matters of public importance.

We meet at a time when the promise of peace and mutual goodwill among the nations has been strengthened by the favourable developments which have accompanied the meeting in Geneva of the leaders of the four great Powers. It is our fervent hope that this trend in international relationships will lead to lasting peace.

Since Parliament last met, Honourable Members have suffered the loss of five esteemed colleagues—the Honourable Thomas Armstrong, the Honourable Henry Edwin Home, the Honourable Alan William McNamara and the Honourable Walter Thomas Padgen, Members of the Legislative Council, and Mr. Lawrence Borthwick Kelly, a Member of the Legislative Assembly. These gentlemen gave long and devoted service in the public interest and I share with Honourable Members deep regret in their passing.

Next year will mark the completion of the first one hundred years of responsible Government in Australia, an occasion of outstanding importance and significance to the people of this State. My Ministers advise me that steps are being initiated to commemorate this historic event in a fitting manner.

The disastrous floods early this year in many parts of the State caused great personal loss and hardship. The highest tributes must be paid to the fortitude of those who suffered and to those who so bravely and energetically undertook the work of rescue and relief. We have all been deeply moved by the spontaneous and generous assistance given by citizens in all walks of life in our own community, by those of other States of the Commonwealth, and by people of other countries.

My Ministers advise me that the Committee of Advice on Flood Control and Mitigation set up in March last has presented its recommendations for the Hunter River Valley and the Government has approved of a programme of flood mitigation works estimated to cost over £1,000,000. In its report the Committee brought under notice that effective powers to carry out works of the nature required are at present lacking and legislation to remedy this position will be placed before you during this Session.

Existing arrangements for the organisation of the work of flood rescue and relief were reviewed by the Government in the light of experience gained during the February floods. As a result of this review, a permanent authority known as the State Emergency Services has been established, under the control of a Director, to co-ordinate all activities in emergencies of this nature.

My advisers have been concerned that steps should be taken to examine the fundamental causes of industrial unrest and to bring about better industrial relations between employer and employee. With a full realisation of the gravity of this national problem and a keen anxiety that something should be done to set in hand an examination, by the best means possible, of ways of improving the present system of handling industrial matters, the Commonwealth Government was approached with a request that a conference of State Premiers be called to discuss the position. It was proposed that this conference consider a suggestion that the examination of the present system might be undertaken by a committee representative of the judiciary of the Commonwealth and of the States who deal with industrial matters and representatives of employers and unions, and other persons whose expert knowledge might add to the deliberations. Another suggestion was the calling of a conference of leaders of industry and of the workers to explore the prospects of better understanding and relationships between worker and employer and of improved methods and means of production.
I am advised that the Commonwealth Government was not prepared to agree to these proposals and my Ministers consequently feel it incumbent on them to consider other courses of action within the power of the State.

Whilst believing the cost of living can only effectively be controlled by Commonwealth action they have reintroduced price control on a number of items affecting the cost of living but realise that this action on a State basis will have only a limited effect. They have accordingly considered other means of assisting the lower paid wage earner and, following a review of the whole position as affecting the determination of the basic wage in this State, have reached the conclusion that justice and equity require that the standard of living provided by the basic wage should be restored to what it was in August, 1953, and maintained at that level. My Ministers will accordingly place before you for consideration legislation to amend the Industrial Arbitration Act to achieve this object so far as it is possible for this State to do so. In each of the adjoining States of Victoria and Queensland the basic wage for workers under State awards has continued to be subject to cost of living adjustments, and it has been announced that action is to be taken to resume such adjustments in Western Australia.

My advisers inform me that every effort is being made to speed up the hearing of claims submitted to the Industrial Tribunals, particularly applications affecting margins, and to this end additional Members of the Industrial Commission of New South Wales have recently been appointed.

In spite of some uncertainty surrounding export markets for a number of primary products, my Ministers advise that the general economic position of the State is one of buoyancy and high productivity.

In basic industries, such as steel, cement, bricks, coal and other minerals, figures disclose that there have been substantial increases in production during the year ended 30th June, 1955, over the previous year. For example, the production of 2,162,000 tons of ingot steel in 1954-55 was a record. Cement production rose from 726,000 tons in 1953-54 to 810,000 tons in 1954-55. The production of bricks increased from 375,000,000 in 1953-54 to 381,000,000 in 1954-55.

Despite losses because of severe floods on the northern coal fields, production of coal from underground mines during 1954-55 showed an increase of approximately 150,000 tons over the previous year's figure. The value of mineral production as a whole increased from £71,000,000 in 1953-54 to £78,000,000 in 1954-55.

My Ministers feel that the high productivity which is being achieved in these basic items justifies their confidence that the development of the State is proceeding on sound lines.

They consider that one of the major problems to be faced is to find methods of stimulating exports, particularly of farm products, so that balance within the economy may be maintained.

My Ministers advise that, to this end, particular attention is being paid to the need for expanding scientific facilities of the Department of Agriculture, as aids to the more economical and efficient use of land. Since I last addressed you a new Agricultural Research Institute has been established at Wagga Wagga, where particular emphasis will be placed on improving soil fertility, pastures and plant nutrition. Additional research stations for particular primary industries are also contemplated and the establishment of Regional Areas of the Department of Agriculture will be extended progressively until the entire State is covered.

My Ministers feel that these and other efforts being made to apply the result of scientific research to farming practices will assist materially in enabling our exports of primary products to meet competition in the markets of the world.

My Ministers advise that as a result of agreement reached in discussions between the Commonwealth and State Governments on the War Service Land Settlement Scheme, additional funds will be available for the purpose of the Scheme over a period of three years, commencing with this financial year. This will enable the settlement of ex-Servicemen on farms to be accelerated.

Good progress is being maintained on the large water storage projects now under construction by the Department of Conservation, including the Glenbawn and Keepit Dams and the enlargement of Burrinjuck Dam. A major work of construction recently completed, the Lawson Siphon, will extend the benefits of irrigation to another 304,000 acres.
The substantial increase in school enrolments over the past five years, now reflected particularly at the secondary level, is placing a great strain on the resources of the Department of Education. However, my Ministers advise me that every effort is being made to meet the position by a progressive building programme including, in addition to conventional structures, the erection of both local and imported prefabricated buildings. Expenditure on education, both of a revenue and capital nature, reached a record level last year of nearly £36,000,000.

To meet the needs of industry for trained technicians the Department of Technical Education is continuing its programme of providing colleges in as many suburban and country centres as resources permit.

In regard to tertiary education, my Ministers advise me that during the present financial year, a further £250,000, making £750,000 in all, will be paid to the University of Sydney. This will be additional to the substantial contribution which the Government also makes towards the running expenses of the University. A further step towards the expansion of facilities for tertiary education was the provision of funds for the establishment of Chairs in ten teaching departments in the University of New England.

At the New South Wales University of Technology, where advanced training in science and technology are provided, the Government has made available funds for the establishment of a Chair of Highway Engineering, which will be complementary to a Chair of Traffic Engineering being supported by the Australian Automobile Association. My Ministers feel that the establishment of these Chairs will make a valuable contribution to the improvement of highway standards and traffic control.

For the year ended 31st March, 1955, the number of dwellings completed in New South Wales reached the record figure of 29,261. For the year ended 30th June, 1955, the Housing Commission also completed a record number of homes. My Ministers propose to take all possible steps to maintain this high rate of home building, but feel some concern at the effect which the erection of a number of large building projects, unrelated to housing, may have on resources which would otherwise be available for home building. They are watching the position closely in this respect.

The Commonwealth and State Housing Agreement would normally expire on 1st April, 1956. However, at the recent Premiers' Conference it was decided to extend the currency of the present Agreement to the 30th June, 1956. The terms of a new Agreement with the Commonwealth are to be the subject of further discussion.

In co-operation with the Rural Bank considerable progress is being made with the Government's scheme for the development of Crown land to make available Suburban Holdings for home builders.

Small areas of Crown land have also been made available to organisations for Homes for the Aged. My Ministers advise that further small areas will be provided for this purpose under appropriate conditions.

My Ministers inform me that the provision of new hospitals in both city and country areas continues to receive the closest attention and several large scale projects are now nearing completion.

Since I last addressed you the New South Wales Cancer Council has been constituted by legislation as a body corporate. From moneys made available by the Government it has provided research grants-in-aid to twelve institutions throughout the State to conduct cancer research. In addition, an Honorary Director has been appointed to a unit specially set aside for investigation and treatment.

With the advent of compulsory chest X-ray examination the Department of Public Health and the Anti-T.B. Association of New South Wales have continued the mass survey programme. The response by the public has been most impressive and has resulted in the location of many cases of active tuberculosis which might otherwise have remained undetected. Progress in dealing with this disease will be facilitated when the new Thoracic Unit is completed in the near future at the Royal North Shore Hospital.

My Ministers advise me that the increase in the generating capacity of power stations, as envisaged in my Speech on the occasion of the opening of the last Session of this Parliament, has enabled the record demands for electricity during the present winter to be met without load shedding. However, in order to meet anticipated demands steps have been taken to further increase generating capacity by 185,000 kilowatts during the coming twelve months. This increase is independent of supplies from the Snowy River Hydro-electric Stations, which are now feeding intermittently into the State's interconnected system.
The possibilities of the application of nuclear power to electricity generation are foreseen and two officers of this State attended the International Scientific Conference in Geneva on the Peaceful Use of Atomic Energy, which has just concluded its sittings.

My Ministers advise me that good progress is being made with the electrification of the main western railway line. An electric service is already operating to Blacktown; this will be extended to Penrith before the end of the year and to Katoomba in the early part of next year.

The linking of the city underground railway system by the completion of the Circular Quay section is expected by the end of the year. As well as providing an additional service to the travelling public this link will greatly facilitate railway working, particularly in peak hours when a much more effective use of rolling stock will be possible.

Industrial development has already outstripped the shipping facilities available at Port Kembla where a further programme of expansion is being undertaken by the Steel Industry in an endeavour to satisfy increasing demands. In order to overcome disabilities of the present port during unfavourable weather and to provide adequate facilities for the industrial needs of this district, the Government has decided to proceed with the construction of an Inner Harbour and legislation to authorise this project will soon be submitted for your consideration.

My Ministers have felt that in order to further advance cultural standards an Opera House should be built and a site on the Harbour at Bennelong Point has been selected. In order that a befitting structure shall be erected it has been decided to conduct an international competition for a suitable design for the Opera House and the project will be proceeded with as early as possible.

During the Session you will be asked to consider various measures of importance in addition to those already mentioned.

In furtherance of its housing programme, the Government proposes to introduce Bills to amend the Housing Act to facilitate Housing Commission administration in a number of directions and to ratify an Agreement with the Commonwealth Government in connection with the sale of homes by the Commission. Other measures of importance in the housing field which will be submitted to you relate to the conversion of large homes into residential flats and the provision of home sites out of Crown lands.

My advisers feel that further legislation is necessary to deal with the baking and delivery of bread and Bills to amend the Bread Manufacture and Delivery Act and the Bread Industry Act will be brought forward for your consideration.

To safeguard the public generally from possible danger from radioactive substances, my advisers will place before you a Bill to provide for the effective control of the use and distribution of these substances.

During the last Session provision was made for increases in the superannuation payments to certain retired Crown employees. During this Session my advisers will seek your approval to a Bill to increase the pensions payable under the Police Regulation (Superannuation) Act. Other proposed legislation affecting Crown employees to be placed before you will amend the Public Service Act and the Crown Employees Appeal Board Act.

A number of other measures will be submitted for your consideration, including the Corneal and Tissue Grafting Bill, the Medical Practitioners (Amendment) Bill, the Hunter District Water, Sewerage and Drainage (Amendment) Bill, the Superannuation (Amendment) Bill, the Coal and Oil Shale Mine Workers Superannuation (Amendment) Bill, the Noxious...
Trades (Amendment) Bill, the Marketing of Primary Products (Amendment) Bill, the Sydney Turf Club (Amendment) Bill and the War Service Land Settlement (Amendment) Bill.

I now leave you to the discharge of your important duties with the earnest prayer that under Divine Guidance your labours may be so directed as to advance the best interests of all sections of the community.

Mr. Rex Jackson moved and Mr. Hills seconded the motion, That the following Address-in-Reply to the Speech which His Excellency the Governor has addressed to both Houses of Parliament on opening this Session of the Parliament of New South Wales be now adopted by this House:

To His Excellency Sir John Northcott, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, Companion of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, Lieutenant-General on the Retired List of the Australian Military Forces, Governor of the State of New South Wales and its Dependencies in the Commonwealth of Australia.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,—

We, Her Majesty’s loyal and dutiful subjects, the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled, desire to express our thanks for Your Excellency’s Speech, and to assure you of our unfeigned attachment to Her Most Gracious Majesty’s Throne and Person.

2. We beg to assure Your Excellency that our earnest consideration will be given to the measures to be submitted to us, and that the necessary provision for the Public Services will be made in due course.

3. We join Your Excellency in the hope that, under the guidance of Divine Providence, our labours may be so directed as to advance the best interests of all sections of the community.

Debate ensued.

Lieut.-Col. Robson moved, That the Address be amended by the addition of the following words to stand as paragraph 4:—

“We regret that there has not been included in Your Excellency’s Speech any provision for legislation to provide for a Court-controlled compulsory secret ballot for the election of union office-bearers similar to the Commonwealth legislation in that behalf.”

Question proposed.—That the words proposed to be added be so added.

Debate continued.

Mr. O’Neill moved, That this Debate be now adjourned.

Question put and passed.

Ordered, That the resumption of the Debate stand an Order of the Day for To-morrow.

7. ADJOURNMENT.—Mr. Cahill moved, That this House do now adjourn until Tuesday next at Half-past Two o’clock, p.m.

Question put and passed.

The House adjourned accordingly at nine minutes before Five o’clock, p.m., until Tuesday next at Half-past Two o’clock, p.m.
The House met pursuant to adjournment. Mr. Speaker took the Chair.
Mr. Speaker offered the Prayer.

1. Notices of Motions and Questions:—Mr. Speaker called on Notices of Motions and Questions.

2. Parliamentary Privileges:—The question having been submitted to him Mr. Speaker said that the position respecting Parliamentary Privilege in this State was different from that existing in the Federal sphere where power to punish Contempts derives through section 49 of the Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act. In New South Wales no such general power is conferred by the Constitution Act and no legislative authority had ever been enacted—although the Legislature of this State had a long history of Privilege cases, the first of which occurred as far back as 1830.

On 30th October, 1857, Mr. Speaker Cooper in the course of a ruling on a complaint said, in effect, that Parliamentary Privilege was not affected unless the matter raised referred to proceedings in this House; to the conduct of any Member in this House in relation to any proceedings in this House, or to the conduct or language of any person (not being a Member of this House) in connection with any proceedings in this House. This statement of Privilege, based upon May's Parliamentary Practice and local precedent, has been the guiding principle of this Assembly since that date.

When, in 1842, the then Council directed the Attorney-General to prosecute (in the Courts of Law) an offender against the Privileges of Parliament, the Chief Justice said, "It is, however, one thing to admit unqualifiedly that such Privilege (i.e. Freedom of Speech in the Legislature) exists, and another thing to hold, which we certainly will not, that to call in question the proceedings of a Legislature ... is indictable." In other words, the situation was that, even though a breach of the Law of Parliament had been committed, there was no penalty for the Contempt.

Over the years, Privy Council decisions and Opinions of eminent Counsel have followed that early judgment, i.e. until Parliament legislates, it has no power to punish breaches or contempts by fines or commitment.

Parliamentary Privileges, as Blackstone says, "are wide and indefinite"; but as recently as 1949 the Speaker of the House of Commons, when ruling upon a complaint said "Is it (the matter complained of) going to interfere with the execution of the Member's proper duties"—such duties being in connection with Proceedings in the House.

It must be remembered that breaches of Privileges and Contempts may also be committed by Members themselves. In this event the House may go so far as to expel an offending Member.

Mr. Speaker also said that as far as Strangers were concerned the Parliamentary Evidence Act gives to Parliament the power to summon witnesses to give evidence at the Bar of the House or before a Select Committee. Any person refusing to attend may be apprehended and retained in custody; or, if attending and refusing to answer any lawful question, may be gaol for any period up to one calendar month. A witness wilfully making a false statement and knowing the same to be false is liable to penal servitude not exceeding five years.
The necessity to confer, by Statute, Parliamentary Privileges (other than Freedom of Speech, which is inherent) has been considered in this Parliament on several occasions, viz., 1856, 1878, 1901 and 1912, on all of which occasions Bills for the purpose were introduced but never passed.

Mr. Speaker emphasised that he was not setting himself up as an authority upon Privilege; nor would he presume to lay down what it should be. Merely was he stating the current position in New South Wales.

As the custodian of the rights and privileges of Members he must look to the Members of this House collectively for guidance. In their general consideration of the position he would recommend to Honourable Members a close examination of a speech given upon the subject by H. W. Wood in this Chamber on 27th March, 1912.
