8. The Governor's Opening Speech.—Mr Speaker reported that the House had yesterday attended the Governor in the Legislative Council Chamber, when His Excellency was pleased to deliver an Opening Speech to both Houses of Parliament. For greater accuracy, he had obtained a copy, which he laid upon the Table of the House, and ordered that it be recorded in the Votes and Proceedings, as follows:

HONOURABLE MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, AND MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY,—

It is my privilege to address you today, at the Opening of the Fourth Session of the Forty-Third Parliament of New South Wales.

During the Session you will be called upon to consider the Government's legislative and financial proposals and other matters of importance to the citizens of this State.

An occasion to which we all look forward, with great pleasure, is the forthcoming visit of Her Majesty the Queen and His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh. Honourable Members will be aware that Her Majesty has graciously consented to officially open the Opera House later this year.

On a more sombre note, I express my deep feeling of personal loss arising from the death in office earlier this year of the Lieutenant-Governor, the Honourable Sir Leslie Herron. In addition to his outstanding service to the State, including a long term as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the late Sir Leslie was most active in community affairs. I am sure all Honourable Members share my regret at his passing.

Since I last addressed you here the death has also occurred of Mr John Julius Thomas Stewart. Mr Stewart had been a Member of the Legislative Assembly for some fifteen years and his passing is a great loss to this Parliament and to the State.
1972-73 was a year of considerable economic change. The year opened with rising unemployment, sluggish consumer demand, and uncertain rural prospects, but by the close of the financial year there had been some improvement.

Consumer demand was increasing, production was rising and the housing industry was active. Unemployment had fallen, and labour shortages were beginning to appear. However, there was still significant unemployment in country areas and business capital expenditure was yet to fully recover.

It is relevant to mention that, in conjunction with the Federal Government, over 37 million dollars were available to public authorities and councils for the relief of unemployment during the last financial year.

A pleasing feature of the economic upswing has been the recovery in the rural sector. While revaluation and the Common Market have created problems for some primary industries, good prices for wool and the buoyant state of the meat industry have combined to dispel much of the earlier uncertainty. High export prices for rural products have also contributed to Australia's favourable balance of payments position.

The major problem has been the continuous rise in costs. Industrial hold-ups have caused losses. Wage rates have continued to rise strongly at about 10 per cent per annum, and prices by nearly 8 per cent. The effects upon the economy and the State's budget have been of continuing concern to the New South Wales Government.

With the assistance of a special advance of 15 million dollars from the Commonwealth, approved in 1972, and unexpectedly buoyant stamp duty revenues, the Government finished the year with a budget deficit of only just over 3 million dollars.

The carry-forward effect of wage increases granted in 1972-73 and the cost of further increases that seem to be inevitable in 1973-74, will, however, create an exceedingly difficult task for the forthcoming Budget.

Development of the State by expansion of its industrial potential, and the consequential creation of employment opportunities, has continued to be a major objective of the Government. A trade mission under the leadership of the Minister for Decentralisation and Development recently visited the South-East Asian area to promote sales of the State's goods and to seek opportunities for suitable joint manufacturing ventures. The visits undertaken by this mission and similar missions in recent years have been very effective in sponsoring increased sales of Australian products and identifying potential markets in this area.

As part of its overall development activities, the Government has continued its policy of encouraging the establishment and expansion of industries in the State's country regions. In 1972-73, approximately 10.7 million dollars were spent or firmly committed in providing assistance to no less than 140 country industries.

A new phase in implementation of the Government's decentralization policy has been introduced by the selection of Bathurst/Orange as the State's first pilot growth centre and by the Government's decision to re-locate the Central Mapping Authority in that area.

The proposal for the development of Albury/Wodonga as a further growth centre is also fully supported by the New South Wales Government and details of the joint arrangements to apply have been the subject of discussion with representatives of the Commonwealth and Victorian Governments.

The Government recognizes that decentralization can also be stimulated by development of the regional tourist industry and four Tourist Development areas have been selected to receive priority for Government expenditure and assistance to achieve accelerated development for tourist promotion. The areas are Coffs Harbour/Grafton, Snowy Mountains, Central West and Port Macquarie/Hastings.

The establishment in the past year of Regional and District Advisory Councils throughout the various areas of the State represents a major step forward in the Government's regional re-organization proposals. It is expected that these Councils, which include private citizens and representatives of local and State administrations, will play an important and continuing role in co-ordinating the planning and development of their regions.
The programme for the re-development of the ports of Sydney, Newcastle and Botany Bay has proceeded ahead of schedule.

Work at Newcastle, where a major programme is in progress, has included dredging to restore the main Steelworks Channel to a depth of 36 feet.

Also, despite adverse weather conditions, substantial progress has been made by the contractor on Stage 1 of the Botany Bay port development scheme.

In addition, a contract has been let for the deepening of the two harbours at Port Kembla. This work, when completed, will permit the entry of vessels in the 100,000 tonnes range and make Port Kembla one of the deepest harbours in Australia.

To meet the demands of industry and of the increasing population, expansion of the State's Electricity generating capacity has also continued.

At Vales Point Power Station, work has commenced on the installation of two additional 660 megawatt units to meet the expected electricity requirements of the latter part of the decade.

A 500 megawatt coal-fired power unit at Wallerawang is scheduled for commissioning in the 1975-76 period, and a 240 megawatt pumped-storage hydro-electric station on the Shoalhaven River south of Sydney is under construction.

The past year has seen major advances in the implementation of the Government's programme of water, soil and forest conservation works.

Work on Stage II of the 45 million dollars Copeton Dam project on the Gwydir River is now complete and preliminary work has commenced on the Windamere and Brogo Dams.

An additional weir on the Darling River has been completed at Louth and work on the Marebong Weir, Macquarie River, has commenced. Action is proceeding towards the calling of tenders for the construction of two major weirs on the Namoi River.

A substantially increased building programme is being undertaken by the Housing Commission and an extensive programme of land acquisition for future Government housing activity is being continued.

Almost 300 dwellings are currently under construction at Macquarie Fields as part of the first neighbourhood to be built by the Housing Commission in the Campbelltown/Camden New Town Area.

During last year 906 units for elderly persons were completed under the joint programme financed from State and Commonwealth funds. Following completion at Redfern this year of the first high rise block for elderly persons, work has now been commenced on the construction of two thirty-storey tower blocks at Waterloo which will provide 464 units for aged persons who wish to live close to the City and who have no objection to living in flats serviced by lifts.

During the past financial year the Metropolitan Water, Sewerage and Drainage Board spent 105 million dollars on new water, sewerage and drainage works and laid more than 600 miles of water mains and sewers. This resulted in extension of water supplies to an additional 60,000 people, and sewerage services to an additional 100,000 people.

For the current year, the Board has budgeted for an expenditure exceeding 140 million dollars on new works.

In addition, in country areas, 65 water supply and sewerage projects are under construction and a further 43 major projects are scheduled for early construction.

The Government's overall programme for the planning and construction of public buildings is one of considerable magnitude.

In school construction, plans have been prepared for the early construction of more than 500 projects. Major projects, costing in excess of $100,000 each, are also being undertaken at 65 high schools and 58 primary schools. An all time record amount will be spent on education in the present financial year.

New Colleges of Advanced Education, including a multi-discipline college at Lismore, are to be developed.
In the primary and secondary sectors, enlarged powers and greater discretion are being given to school Principals in school management and organization, and far reaching proposals for greater community involvement in educational decisions, through School Councils and Regional Boards of Education, are being considered.

A State-wide building programme involving the construction of new Police Stations is under way. Work on eight of these stations is already in progress and planning is proceeding on a further twenty-one with a view to construction commencing as soon as financially practicable.

The 3 million dollars Parramatta Court House and Police Station complex is expected to be completed early in 1974.

A major re-organization of the administration of the State's health services was effected in April, 1973, by the amalgamation of the former Hospitals Commission and the Department of Health into the Health Commission of New South Wales.

The Health Commission is now in the process of planning for greater decentralization of the administration of health services on a regional basis. Emphasis is being placed on the planning of community health services as alternatives to hospitalization whenever this is practicable and desirable in the interests of patients.

Substantial improvements are planned for public transport. The Public Transport Commission is working towards greater co-ordination of all forms of transport and is studying customer requirements with the aim of meeting them in the best practicable way.

The Government has commissioned a survey by private consultants of the feasibility of new transport services in parts of Sydney's waterways.

Satisfactory progress is being made on the Eastern Suburbs Railway and the electrification of the line from Blacktown to Riverstone, where preliminary work is now in progress, is expected to be completed by the end of 1974. Delivery of an order for 106 new double-deck suburban rail carriages will commence in October.

Two new 800 passenger ferries will be placed in service on the Harbour early next year.

A further step in carrying out the Government's undertaking to abolish charges under the State Transport (Co-ordination) Act on road transport competing with the publicly-owned transport services was implemented on 1st July last and all classes of road journeys not already freed of co-ordination charges will be exempted from 1st January next.

As already announced, it is proposed to grant an increased motor vehicle weight tax concession for primary producers' vehicles later this year.

General improvements over the whole of the State's main roads are proceeding, including a vigorous bridge and freeway construction programme.

During the past year, fully surfaced pavements have been provided on both the Barrier and Mitchell Highways and bridges at Camden, Balranald, Hay, Boolaroo and Smithtown have been completed.

Major bridges now under construction include the new bridge over the Hawkesbury River for the Sydney-Newcastle Freeway and bridges over the Bega River at Bega, the Murrumbidgee River at Gundagai, the Wilson River at Telegraph Point and the Georges River at Alfoards Point.

A tender of almost 2 million dollars was accepted recently for a major part of the construction of the Kings Cross Tunnel which, when completed, will give considerable relief to traffic in that area.

The programme for the recruitment of additional Police for duty both in the Sydney Region and centres throughout the State has been successful. The Police Force is almost at the full authorized strength of 7,912 men and women. It is proposed that this figure will be increased progressively during the 1973-74 financial year and that recruiting will continue.

Statutory and administrative changes have been implemented following a review of the Court hierarchy and procedures in the District Court have been modernized and streamlined as a result of the enactment of the District Court Bill earlier this year.
A simpler and more modern style has been adopted in the drafting of this State's legislation.

In other areas of Government activity

a comprehensive Liquid Waste Survey has been completed by the Metropolitan Waste Disposal Authority, which will now proceed with a proposal for the provision of modern treatment and disposal facilities to meet the needs of industry. The Authority is also working towards a solution to the community's solid waste problems;

ocean research has been carried out by the New South Wales Fisheries Branch in territorial, extra-territorial and international waters to assess the commercial potential of deep-sea fish and prawn stocks in selected areas and to improve the techniques and gear currently used in the fishing industry;

despite the upsurge in prospects in the rural community there are many farmers who, because of drought and other circumstances, still need the assistance of the Rural Assistance Board and the Commonwealth has agreed to extension of the scheme of assistance for a further three years; in the last 12 months there has been considerable growth in the national parks system in New South Wales. Nearly 250,000 hectares have been added to the system, including six National Parks, one Historic Site and nine Nature Reserves;

Reiby School, a new and modern training school for girls at Campbelltown, was opened recently.

Over the past few years, the Government has progressively intensified its comprehensive pollution control and environment protection programme. In addition to now requiring all public authorities to give special consideration to environmental factors in planning and approving development proposals, steps have been taken to encourage community participation in the resolution of significant issues by the holding of public environmental impact inquiries.

The centralist policies of the new Commonwealth Government elected last December will have significant implications for the Government of New South Wales.

My Ministers are firmly convinced that the most satisfactory way of developing Australia and its resources, and of maintaining the system under which so much has been accomplished, is through federated States which are strong and financially independent. Ministers consider that the federal system will operate to the best advantage if all elements in it work together as partners in the national interest.

This is not to say that there is not a need for a re-assessment of the respective responsibilities of the Commonwealth and the States from time to time in the light of new trends and, as Honourable Members know, questions arising in this area are to be considered at the forthcoming Constitutional Convention.

7. TOURIST INDUSTRY.—Mr Cowan moved, pursuant to Notice—

(1) That, in the opinion of this House, the tourist industry is of vital importance to the economic and social wellbeing of New South Wales and in particular the rural sector.

(2) This House recognizes the unique problems of an industry which is in direct competition with overseas countries and calls upon the Federal Government—

(a) In those cases where local capital is not available to encourage the investment of overseas capital in the tourist industry;

(b) to review charges on air transportation which add significantly to the cost of air travel to and within Australia, thereby retarding the growth of tourism; and

(c) to give practical support to State Tourist Development Centres.

Mr Day moved, That the Question be amended by leaving out paragraph (2) with a view of inserting the following words instead thereof:

“(2) This House recognizes the unique problems of the industry and whilst congratulating the Federal Labor Government on the 23 per cent increase in budget expenditure during 1973-74 for tourism and recreation purposes, calls upon both State and Federal Governments to encourage capital investment in the industry and to render necessary financial assistance to local government to provide tourist amenities.”

2. Mr Hills to move—

That—

Because of its approval for increases in interest rates, particularly those applying to home loans and time payment agreements thus increasing the already staggering burdens borne by families in this State;

because of its failure to take proper steps to protect the community against attacks by criminals on law abiding citizens to the point where women go in fear not only on the streets of this State but in their own homes;

because of the Government's deliberate provocation of industrial unrest for political purposes;

because of its refusal to immediately freeze and then control prices to protect consumers against exploitation and to take action to reduce the crippling price of land and to abolish Crown Land auctions;
because of its failure to take steps to protect the investing public against the activities of crooked company manipulators, resulting in the loss of millions of dollars of public money; and because of repeated increases in State taxation, fares, hospital fees and all other State charges, thus dishonoring repeated election promises not to do so;

For all these and other reasons the Government no longer possesses the confidence of the House.
