Coroners Amendment Bill 1997

Explanatory note

This explanatory note relates to this Bill as introduced into Parliament.

Overview of Bill

The objects of this Bill are:

- (a) to make further provision (in addition to that made by the Coroners (Amendment) Act 1993) with respect to the functions of assistant coroners and, in particular, with respect to the delegation of various functions to them by the State Coroner and to make a consequential amendment to the Coroners (Amendment) Act 1993, and
 - (b) to enable a coroner to prohibit the publication of matter that may identify a suicide victim from the time the coroner becomes aware of the victim's death rather than, as is presently the case, from the commencement of the inquest into the victim's death, and
 - (c) to enable the relatives of a deceased person to request that a post mortem examination of the remains of the deceased person not be performed and, if the request is declined, to apply to the Supreme Court for an order that the post mortem examination not be performed, and

- (d) to make it clear that the existing entitlement of other persons to object to the performance of post mortem examinations is not affected, and
- (e) to make it clear that existing coroners are not automatically removed from office when the provisions of the Coroners (Amendment) Act 1993, providing for the appointment of assistant coroners, are commenced.
