Referring to your letter of the 13th instant, I have the honor to inform you, that the gold mining lease No. 1,826, granted to and executed by you, is at your disposal whenever you choose to ask for it.

No. 8.

Mr. P. Grimley to The Minister for Mines.

Sir,

Orange, 26 November, 1877.

I am in receipt of your letter of 24th instant, stating that lease 1,826 was at my disposal.

I beg to state that such lease does not represent the ground I applied for (Vide Wardens Court paper) and that the lease was at my disposal when I returned to the mines office. As a lease has been issued of 8 acres of our ground and the lessee has taken possession of same I must decline at present any further correspondence in the case, as I intend to seek compensation for loss sustained.

I have, &c.,

P. GRIMLEY.

No. 9.

Messrs. R. Steele and G. Bennett to The Minister for Mines.

Sir,

Post Office, Ironbarks, 24 June, 1878.

We the undersigned hereby apply to have an abandoned lease cancelled.

This lease is held by Messrs. Grimley and Reid, situated on the Poor Man's line of reef, north of and adjoining lease No. 1,826, held by Mr. Gordon Korff, area 10 acres.

This piece of ground was the subject of some considerable litigation about 2 years since but is now and has been for some months totally abandoned. Should you accede to our request and cause this abandoned lease to be forfeited we are prepared to at once take it up and work it according to regulations.

The Mining Registrar at Ironbarks can on inspection certify that this piece of ground is now and has been for a considerable time totally abandoned.

We must press for an early reply. By so doing you will confer a great favour on

Your obedient servants,

RICHARD STEELE.

GEORGE BENNETT.

The No. given is the No. of Grimley and Reid's lease north of and adjoining G.L. 3,991—G. Korff's.—T.B., 26/6/78.

Inform of action taken on 78/4141.—H.W., 27/6/78.

Messrs. Steele and Bennett informed, 1st July, 1878.

No. 10.

Messrs. R. Steele and G. Bennett to W. Slee, Esq.

Sir,

Ironbarks, 24 June, 1878.

We have to-day written to the Minister for Mines asking for the cancellation of a lease on the Poor Man's line of reef, now held by Messrs. Grimley and Reid.

We should feel very much obliged if in your official capacity you would urge on the Minister the following facts:—

"That the lease is now and has been for some time abandoned.

"That notwithstanding the abandonment aforesaid the before-named Messrs. Grimley and Reid still claim the said lease and no one else can work or otherwise occupy it."

"That if the Minister agree to cancel this piece of land we are prepared to commence work at once."

We should be glad if you would kindly take what steps are necessary to secure the forfeiture of this piece of ground and thereby confer a favour not only on us but on the whole of the miners on this field, as a great amount of quartz land is still held under lease on which no work has been done to the exclusion of the legitimate miner.

We are Sir, &c.,

RICHARD STEELE.

GEORGE BENNETT.

No. 11.

No. 11.

The Inspector of Mines to The Under Secretary for Mines.

Sir,

Ironbarks, 25 June, 1878.

I do myself the honor to forward the enclosed letter, and in reference thereto beg to inform you, for the information of the Honorable the Minister for Mines, that the lease held by Messrs. Grimley and Read (Poor Man's Reef) is lying idle, and by all appearance has done so for some time past.

That on my present as well as on my previous visit to this place, several miners have informed me that they would be able to make a living on the Poor Man's Reef if the lease held by Messrs. Grimley and Read was cancelled. I have no doubt that if this lease was cancelled it would confer a benefit to this district.

I have, &c.,

W. H. J. SLEE.

The Inspector of Collieries to The Examiner of Coal Fields.

Sir,

Lambton, 4 March, 1879.

I have the honor to report, for the information of the Honorable Minister for Mines, that a slight explosion of fire-damp happened in the Wallsend B pit, on the 1st instant, in which two men named Thomas Lundy and Henry Rushton were rather sorely burned, and the colliery manager just warmed only.

2. It appears that the sufferers went with the manager, Mr. Neilson, over some of the recent falls in search for the missing man, when, quite unexpectedly, a small pocket of gas in the roof exploded from the manager's hand, and caused the accident.

3. There was good air passing at the time, and a good supply of safety-lamps close by ready for use, but it was deemed quite unnecessary to use them, otherwise they would have been used for the manager's own safety as well as the safety of others.

4. Considering all the circumstances, I am of opinion that no positive blame is attached to the manager for the accident.

Letter from Inspector of Collieries to The Examiner of Coal Fields.

Sir,

Lambton, 5 March, 1879

I have the honor to report, for the information of the Honorable the Minister for Mines, that a large area of ground in the district known as "behind the pump" in the Wallsend Colliery fell in early in the morning of the 27th ultimo, and one of the miners named George Oughton, who worked in that part at the time, is missing ever since the fall happened, and is supposed to be buried underneath the fallen roof.

2. As soon as the place became sufficiently quite for men to work a large number of the most experienced miners have been constantly both day and night at work searching for the missing man in the parts most likely to find him.

3. Every precaution is taken by the Colliery Manager to ensure the safety of the men employed searching for the poor fellow.

I have the honor to state in reply to your telegram of to-day, that in my report of the 5th instant, on the Wallsend pitfall, for the information of the Honorable the Minister for Mines, I omitted to give an opinion whether any one was blamable for the accident, simply because no person knew as a fact that the missing man was either killed or injured.

2. Please specify what "other particulars" the 28th section of the Coal Mines Regulation Act requires beyond those given.

I have, &c.,

JOHN MACKENZIE,

Report of Examiner of Coal Fields.

REPORT upon a "crush" which took place at the Newcastle Wallsend Coal Company's Colliery on 27th February, 1879, extending over an area of about 15 acres of coal land, and in consequence of which one man is missing and three men have been burnt by explosive gas.

Sir,

Coal Fields Office, Newcastle, 15 March, 1879.

On the 8th instant, at the request of Mr. Neilson, I proceeded to the Newcastle Wallsend Company's Colliery to consult and advise with him and other colliery managers as to what further steps should be taken in the search of the missing man Oughton, who is supposed to be buried in the "crush" which happened at that mine on the morning of the 27th ultimo, Mr. Neilson having pointed out to me that the danger of proceeding further in the search of Oughton's body was becoming so great that he hesitated incurring the risk of more lives until he had the advice of all the leading authorities in the trade. The colliery managers who came to offer their assistance and advice were Messrs. Croudace, Turnbull, Brown, Simpson, Swinburn, and Ross, and after an examination of the "crush" and place in course of driving, were, judging from the smell, Oughton's body is supposed likely to be found—also another being driven towards where his clothes are supposed to be—a unanimous decision was arrived at that before proceeding further with the search two stoppings and two doors should be put up for the purpose of giving the men working in the places better ventilation, and after that was done the places in course of driving should be re-timbered.

2. On the 11th instant I again visited the mine, and found the stoppings and doors had been placed in their proper position, that a very great improvement had been made in the air supplied to the men working in the drive near where it is thought Oughton's body will be found, and that the place was well timbered, and the men need apprehend no present danger if ordinary care, such as a case of this kind requires, is used in removing the stone, &c., and timbering the place whilst further prosecuting the search. And as no working of the roof has been heard in this portion of the mine for two days or more, I do not think we need apprehend any danger from the "crush" extending any further near where the men are searching for the body.

3. I also examined the "crush" near where Oughton and two other men (Mr. Neilson's father and Ridley), where at the time the fall occurred, and the place where the gas exploded, and from the examination, and what Mr. Neilson says, the particulars respecting the "crush" and slight explosion of carburetted Hydrogen Gas are as follows:—

The crush took place with, it appears, only one or two minutes warning, over an area of about 15 acres of coal land, from under which about three-fourths of the coal had been worked out by 8 to 9 yard Bords, and 4 yards cut throughs, &c., the pillars of coal left being from 4 to 3 yards in thickness which is the usual method of working in the Newcastle district. The seam of coal in this particular place has a strong hard shale roof mixed with ironstone bands for about 6 feet in thickness, and above that there is the ordinary sandstone. Mr. Neilson says, that for some time he should not have been surprised at a crush taking place in this part of the mine, but he fully expected there would be the usual warning of "hearing it work" from ten to thirty days before it happened, as he never knew one to take place in the Wallsend Mine without hearing it work for at least ten days previously, and generally for a much longer period, which gave them ample time to protect all lives and save rails, skips, &c. Mr. Neilson and I can only account for the "crush" taking place without any warning through an accumulation of water in the centre portion of the "crush" (now goaf), see plan at page 18, which water probably softened a one and a half clay band and the thin pillars of coal left unworked for the safety of the men whilst employed getting the three-fourths of coal previously referred to as worked out by them. And probably the water deadened the sound of any working which took place, and may be the cause of no working having been heard until a few minutes before the fall took place.

4. At page 17 I annex a tracing showing the extent of the crush (now goaf), and of others which have taken place at this colliery without any accident having happened, and the approach of which was indicated in the manner previously noticed.

5. On the 11th instant I also called and saw Thomas Lundy (Deputy overman), and Henry Rushton (blacksmith), who were burnt on the 1st instant by the small explosion of gas previously referred to, and from what they say, and the examination of the place, it appears that it happened thus:—On the 1st instant, Lundy and Hughes were employed taking away all the rails they could safely get from the north-west portion of the recent pitfall or "crush," and about 11 a.m., Mr. Neilson (the Manager), along with Rushton (a blacksmith), who accompanied him out of curiosity, asked Lundy and Hughes to sit quiet and listen whether the roof was uneasy or there was any working of that part of the mine whilst he went over the recent fall and ascertained how far it was possible to go over it. Mr. Neilson then proceeded up the fall with a naked light (see E on plan at page 18), and as soon as he got near the top of it an explosion of gas occurred which knocked him down senseless, and slightly burnt his left hand. When he became conscious he found himself in an adjoining Bord where he was discovered in about half an hour, and then walked out of the mine. Lundy, as soon as he saw the gas explode threw himself on the floor with his face near some water until the return fire had passed over him, and he then crept out into fresh air with his face near the floor to avoid the "after damp" as much as possible. He says he has been sixteen years at the Wallsend Colliery, and was Deputy at the time the portion of the mine where the crush occurred was worked, and that he never saw any explosive gas there; nor did he anticipate there would be any the day the accident happened; he also says, he considers there is no blame attributable to anyone, and that if Mr. Neilson had asked him to go with a naked light, he would not have hesitated to do so, as he never anticipated any danger from explosive gas there. Lundy is badly burnt on his arms and hands, also on the back from his shoulders downwards, but is progressing favourably under Doctor Nash's care. Rushton is burnt on both hands, one arm, and his face, and slightly on his back; he also is progressing favourably. Hughes escaped being burnt by standing in a water-hole until the return fire passed over him.

6. I am of opinion that the accidents which have happened from the "crush" and "explosion" were accidental and that no blame is attributable to any one.

7. I made another examination on the 14th, of the place in course of driving, and found it and the retreat therefrom well timbered, and that Mr. Neilson was prosecuting the search with vigour, and regardless of expense, having four shifts of men each working six hours daily.

8. I have arranged with Mr. Neilson to again visit the place, on the 17th instant, and for us to have the current of air stopped for a while so as to try if we can form any further opinion as to where the exact position of the body is likely to be.

9. I enclose copies of all the Reports I have been able to obtain from the Inspector of Collieries Six enclosures on this subject, as well as other correspondence connected therewith, and in doing so, cannot refrain from remarking that I am at a loss to account for this officer's reticence in a case where it was absolutely necessary, in the public interest, to have the fullest information, particularly as he was on the point of leaving for the Southern and Western District's inspection, unless it be attributable either to his incompetency or the spirit of insubordination he has evinced towards myself, and of which I have so frequently complained to the Government.

Sir,

Coal Fields Office, Newcastle, 29 March, 1879.

Upon the 17th instant I again visited the Newcastle Wallsend Colliery, and on proceeding with Mr. Neilson to the place in course of driving in search of Oughton's body, I found that, as we had arranged, on my visit of the 17th instant, the course of the current air had been altered and made the same as it was on the 8th instant, and that there was a slight smell, as if from a dead body, at a distance of about 14 feet from the end of the place in course of driving. We then went over the old and recent fall as near as we could get to where I imagined there was a slight smell, and upon perceiving it there also, I said I had no doubt about the body being near where I first smelt it, and advised Mr. Neilson to discontinue driving any further in the course they were then driving, and to drive at right angles at a distance of about 14 feet from the face.

2. At 6:30 a.m. on the following day I received a letter from Mr. Neilson, saying he was pleased to inform me he had found Oughton's body only about 6 feet from the point directed, and a Coroner's inquest would be held that day. I immediately proceeded to Wallsend, and attended the inquest which was adjourned until the Saturday following, at 10 a.m., so that a full investigation might be made into the matter, and because the body was to be interred that day.

3. On the 22nd instant I again proceeded to Wallsend, and attended the adjourned inquest held by C. B. Ranslaud, Esquire, the District Coroner, at the Plattsburg Court-house. A great deal of interest was manifested in it, the large room being filled with Wallsend and other miners, Mr. Binney, the secretary for the Wallsend Company, Mr. Fletcher, manager of the Co-operative Colliery, Mr. Turnbull, manager of the Australian Agricultural Company, Mr. Swinburn, manager of the Australasia Company, and Mr. Dixon, the general secretary to the Miners' Association, were also present. The following evidence was then taken:—

Nicholas Neilson, deposed: I was engaged as an Examiner in the Wallsend mine previous to the men going to work; I remember the 27th February; I went into the tunnel about half-past 3 o'clock on the morning of that day, and went round and examined the mine; everything was in the usual way; I entered the mine on that morning, and at half-past six I went round the turn behind the pump, and had about two minutes talk with Ridley, and examined his Bord, then proceeded along the heading; the deceased Oughton called to me for a light; I proceeded further up the Bord and met the deceased, he was in the dark; I asked the deceased if he had matches, he said "Yes"; I gave him a light as his matches were in his clothes, and he was naked, being at work; at the time I left deceased everything was quiet, and I went towards the shaft; after going five or six yards I heard a rumbling noise, it appeared some distance away, and I had no fear of danger; I then thought to call to the deceased, and also to Ridley to warn them of danger; when I got to the deceased's Bord I saw his light in the Bord but I did not see him; I called to him and asked if he could get out anyway; when I passed Oughton's Bord in a few seconds I felt the wind; I had only thirty-six yards to go when I knew I should be in safety to the point marked D on the plan; before reaching this spot the rush of wind blew me on to my face; when I got up and the wind had passed I heard the timber crack; my light was out, I thought then that I was lost; I tried to find the rib and having found it I struck a light by my matches which I had in my pocket; as soon as I got a light Ridley shouted to me (he had passed me), but how I do not know, I went to him; he had his lamp ready, and I lit it, we went down Oughton's Bord, and shortly after we heard the props giving way; I did not see Oughton again after giving Ridley the light; we found Oughton's picks and shovels in his Bord and commenced working to get into Elliott's Bord; we got about three quarters of a yard in; Ridley found an opening and got out by climbing and I followed him.

By Mr. Mackenzie: I have been about sixteen years employed in the Wallsend Colliery; I have held the same situation ever since; I well knew the spot where the accident occurred; this Colliery is worked by eight yard bords and four yard pillars; the late fall in the pit is the largest I have seen; I have heard other crushings in the pit; two previous crushings I have heard the pit working three weeks before it fell; in the late fall I did not hear the pit working; none of the men reported to me that they heard the working in this place; about two hours before the fall a man said he heard some coal fall into the water; I have known gas to be in some of the headings, but very little, and not for the last three years.

By Mr. Binney: I do not think it was more than half-a-minute from the time I heard the rumbling until the time I was knocked down; I have known many pitfalls, but none so sudden as this; I have been 66 years accustomed to the mines.

By Mr. Dixon: On the morning of the accident I did not notice any falls in the locality of it.

By Mr. Binney: It is a matter of daily occurrence small coals falling into the water.

By a Juror: The part of the pit where the crush took place was timbered in the usual way, nor do I consider if any additional timber was there it would have prevented the crush.

Gilbert Ridley, having been sworn, stated: I am a miner employed in the Wallsend Colliery; I remember the morning of the 27th February; I went to work about 3 o'clock that morning; Mr. Neilson, the last witness, came to me at half-past 6 the same morning, after he had gone about ten minutes there came a great rush of wind and blew my light out; I did not at any time that morning see the deceased, George Oughton; the first thing I became conscious of was seeing the last witness strike a light, I called out to him to come on; we happened to get into the deceased bord; we found we were shut in, and found his tools, we were in about two hours, and made a way over a fall got on the road and met the men who were searching for us.

By Mr. Mackenzie: I have been a miner between 40 and 50 years; I knew the meaning of a "pit working." I did not hear any working of the mine "either that or any other morning"; I mean by the "pit working" falling of stone from the roof or the crushing of the pillars; I had no apprehensions of any danger on the day of the accident until I heard the rush of wind.

By Mr. Dixon: I have been working in this part of the pit five or six weeks.

By Mr. Neilson: Had I stayed in the place I was working there would have been no danger to me.

By Mr. Dixon: My mate had never mentioned he had any fear of danger more than myself.

By Mr. Mackenzie: I have been working in mines where crushes have taken place; I never knew of any fall come on so sudden, one crush came on in the night after the men had worked the previous day, when no men were at work, at another place the pit worked for nearly a week before it came on.

John Gibbons, having been sworn stated: I am a miner working at the Wallsend Mine; I have been employed there for the last nine years; I remember the morning of the 27th February; I went to work in the pit that morning about half past two; there was a fall that morning, I should think about seven o'clock, I heard a great rumbling with a rush of wind; I did not see the deceased that morning, the noise came on very suddenly giving no notice whatever.

By Mr. Mackenzie: I heard no working at this portion of the mine; I did not apprehend any danger where I was working; I have been a miner 27 years; I have worked in places where there have been crushes; I never knew one come on so sudden as this; we generally hear the timber falling and "other working" before a fall, but on this occasion I did not hear any; I refer to crushes previously spoken of at home as well as here; the thickness of the seam in England where I worked was four feet; the method usually worked there was five yard bords and ten yard pillars; the shortest time I have ever known of the notice of a crushing is half an hour.

By Mr. Binney: I have been one of the men prosecuting the search for the deceased, and I consider the company have used every means in prosecuting that search.

By a Juror: The top of the mine was so strong I had no idea it would fall so suddenly; there was no other fall in the locality where I was at work of any consequence; it is possible the fault may have something to do with the fall.

John

John Young Neilson, having been sworn stated: I am Colliery Manager at Wallsend, I have had the management over nineteen years; I remember the 27th February, 6.40 a.m.; I heard a strong rush of wind up the shaft; I at once proceeded down the pit and found a heavy fall had taken place "in behind the pump" and three men, Ridley, Neilson, and Oughton, were missing; I at once took the necessary steps to recover their bodies; I was successful in finding Ridley, and Neilson; continued to search for the deceased and found his remains on the 18th March; I went to see the body and found the head crushed past identification no feature on the face at all; death must have been instantaneous.

By Mr. Mackenzie: I have had over twenty crushings in the Wallsend Colliery; it is a common occurrence, on all previous crushings we have had fully a fortnights notice of it, and ample time to get skips, rails, props, &c., away. I believe the cause of the late crushing was the action of the water on the top of the thin pillars through these workings being full of water; at the centre part the water percolated through the clay partings, the roof itself consisting of strong shale; all the props had been taken out from under where the fall took place; the props were taken out by the men to get the little tops; there was no necessity for timber the stone was so hard; there was a similar method adopted as in other collieries; I have experienced crushes in other collieries besides Wallsend but never one so sudden; the pillars left under were from three to four yards in thickness; I do not remember seeing any gas since the accident in 1870, and none was ever reported to me.

Andrew Nash, sworn stated: I am a legally qualified and registered medical practitioner, residing and practising at Platsburg, Wallsend; on the morning of the 18th I was summoned to see the body of the deceased George Oughton; it was lying in an open coffin in the engine-house of the Wallsend B. pit; the head was smashed past all chance of recognition as far as the features were concerned; the direct cause of death was fracture of the skull and crushing of the body.

The jury returned the following verdict. "That the deceased George Oughton, came to his death on the 27th February last, in the B. pit, Wallsend Colliery, by being accidentally crushed by a fall of stone, the jury wish to add that the thanks of the community are due to the management for the energetic way in which the search for the deceased's body was prosecuted, and to the men who were so engaged.

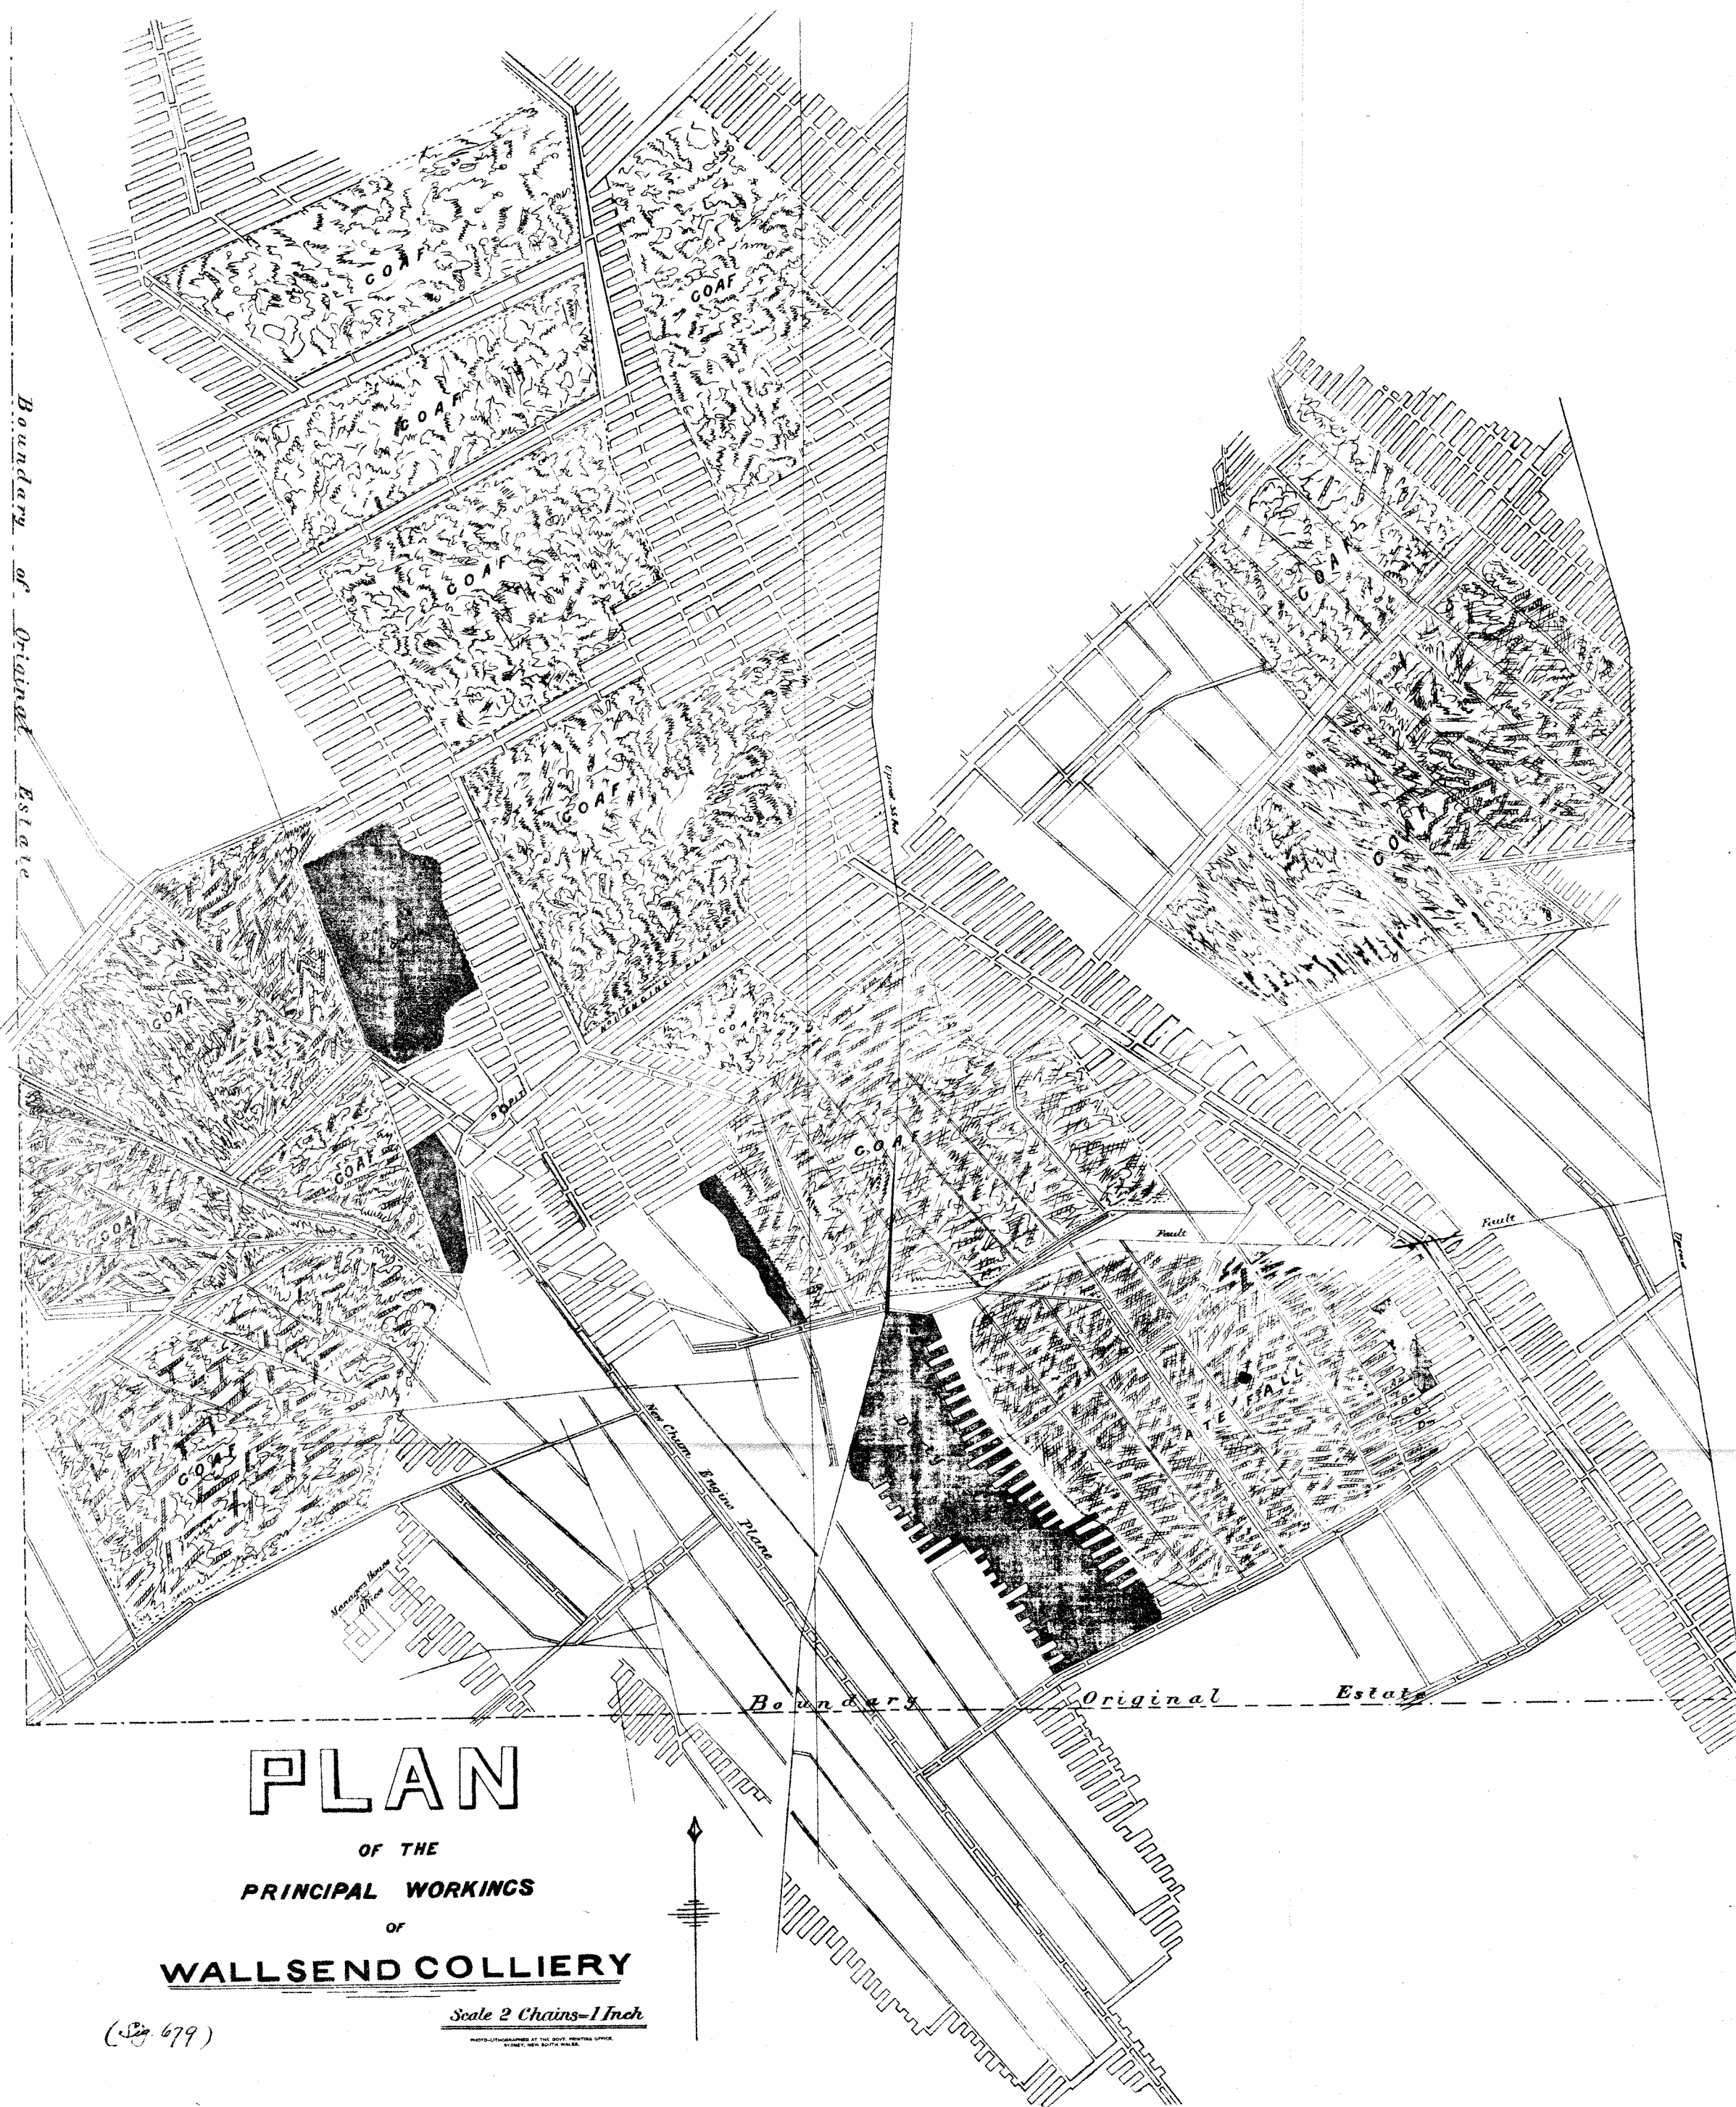

4. The evidence taken and verdict of the jury confirms the opinion given in 6th paragraph of my Report dated the 15th instant, that I am of opinion the accidents which have happened from the "crush" and "explosion" were accidental, and that no "blame is attributable to any one."

I have, &c.,

MILBURN CREEK COPPER MINE.

(REPORT OF GEOLOGICAL SURVEYOR ON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 1 July, 1879.

RETURN to an Order of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 26th June, 1879,—

“That there be laid upon the Table of this House, a copy of the Report
“of the Geological Surveyor on the Milburn Creek Copper Mine.”

(Mr. Cohen.)

No. 1.

The Geological Surveyor to The Under Secretary for Mines.

Sir,

Department of Mines, 9 April, 1879.

In transmitting to you the accompanying Report of Mr. E. F. Pittman, Geological Surveyor, on the Milburn Creek Copper Mine, I beg to state that I have examined the estimations therein given as to the value of the mine and find them correct.

Apart from the consideration as to the intrinsic value of the mine as given in this report, I consider it my duty to direct your attention to the fact that the property is now in the market for sale, as mentioned in the following advertisement, taken from the S. M. Herald of this date:—

“By order of the Mortgagee.

“To Speculators, Miners, and others.

“The Milburn Creek Copper Mining Company's property, comprising 40 acres of freehold land, and 20 acres of leasehold land, in the parish of Dunleary, county of Bathurst, together with the plant, &c., thereon.

“RICHARDSON & WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the rooms, Pitt-street, on Friday, 25th April, at 11 o'clock,—

“The above copper mine,—full particulars of which will shortly be published.

“J. DAWSON & SON, Pitt-street, solicitors of the mortgagee.”

It will be seen from Mr. Pittman's report that from actual measurements it has been ascertained that the net value of the ore now in sight in the mine amounts to the sum of £20,244 7s., estimating at the present low price of copper, viz., £56 per ton, and the value of the ore extracted from the mine since the present proprietors took possession amounts to £3,552 10s.

The value of the three furnaces has been estimated at £1,000.

In addition to the above, Mr. Pittman has calculated the contents of the unworked portion of the lode below that portion of it already proved and within 300 feet from the surface, to which depth it may reasonably be expected to continue, seeing that in the south shaft (A on plan) the lode has already been followed to a depth of 203 feet from the surface, and found to be improving in solidity and width. At the present price of copper the net value of the contents of this unworked portion of the lode would amount to the sum of £91,805, thus making a total value, with the above-mentioned estimates, of £115,601 7s.

Mr. Pittman also points out that the portion of the lode indicated on the *map, and for which the above estimates have been prepared, could be worked out within the term of Messrs. Baker and party's lease.

I have, &c.,

C. S. WILKINSON,

Geological Surveyor in Charge.

THE following extracts from the Report of Mr. E. F. Pittman, one of the Geological Surveyors, shows that the Milburn Creek Copper Mine contains valuable lodes of copper :—

No. 2.

Mr. E. F. Pittman to The Under Secretary for Mines.

Sir,

Department of Mines, Sydney, 4 April, 1879.

Portion 20, 40
acres, M.C.P., parish of Dun-
leary, county of Bathurst.

I have the honor to report that, in accordance with your instructions, I have, with the assistance of Mr. H. D. Mackworth, made a thorough examination and underground survey of the property known as "Milburn Creek Copper Mine," and now forward herewith plan and sections of the same.

The mine, which consists of 60 acres, is situated in lightly timbered box ranges, composed of altered (upper silurian) slates and sandstones, dipping w. 10° s. at an angle of 70°. About three-quarters of a mile from the mine, in an E.N.E. direction, these slates give place to ternary granite, while in a w.s.w. direction the nearest granite is distant about a mile and a half. It will thus be seen that the copper lodes occur in a belt of altered slate country bounded by granite.

The surface indications of the several lodes which I examined in the vicinity are characteristic. They appear as quartz veins containing much gossan, the result of the decomposition of copper and iron pyrites, and a few stains of carbonate of copper.

At a slight depth the gossan gives place to carbonate and oxide of copper, while below these appear the un-oxidized ores, sulphides, etc.

One of these gossan lodes crops out on the summit of the hill near the north-east corner of the block in question, while two others to the southward which I examined (one in the adjoining lease and one in West and Ashe's ground, which has been extensively worked for copper) bear directly for the same hill. These considerations point to the probability of there being a good deposit of copper ore as yet unprospected in the hill in question. This supposition is strengthened by the fact that the soakage water from the hill, which drains into the north shaft (and which I shall have occasion to allude to again) is strongly impregnated with sulphate of copper.

The greater part of the work done in the Milburn Creek Mine has been the extraction of the oxidized ores of copper (carbonates and oxides) which necessarily occur nearest the surface; two distinct lodes have been worked, and on these there have been sunk no less than eighteen shafts, on what is known as the "North and South Lode"; an adit has been driven from the side of the hill and reaches a depth of 55 feet below the crown of the range. This adit is coloured blue on the plan.

From this adit nearly up to the surface the carbonates have been removed by stoping.

From the shaft marked "8" on the plan, and at a depth of 25 feet below the adit, another level (coloured red) has been driven northwards intersecting the water shaft, marked B. The ore from between this level and the adit above has also been removed by stoping. Good ore (copper glance, yielding in the Company's furnaces 18–20% copper) has been worked in this level, the lode here being from 4 feet 6 in. to 5 feet wide. A specimen of this ore which I brought to Sydney was assayed by Mr. Dixon, F.C.S., and yielded 27.9% copper.

From this level a winze (marked 19) has been sunk to a depth of 27 feet, and from the bottom a drive has been worked northwards to the water shaft B. Very good ore has been obtained here, viz.: grey sulphide of copper, which in the Company's smelting works yielded 20% of copper, while Mr. Dixon found (in a sample which I brought to Sydney) 45.9%. The lode in places is as much as 11 feet wide, though somewhat irregular, narrowing occasionally to 5 feet 6 inches.

On nearing the south shaft (A) in the adit first-mentioned, the country becomes much harder and the lode correspondingly narrower; however as little or no block working or prospecting has been done in this part of the mine, it is impossible to say whether the lode here improves or becomes poorer in its descent. Reasoning from analogy, however, one would decidedly expect it to improve.

Near the south shaft (A) this lode junctions with what is known as the "East and West lode." The south shaft is vertical for a depth of 65 feet from the surface, and at this depth a drive has been put in east and west along the lode, the eastern end intersecting the shaft marked C on plan. From above this drive the carbonates have been removed by stoping. A winze has been sunk (marked 6 on plan) 29 feet through yellow sulphide of copper and peacock ore, forming a fine lode, which increases rapidly in width as it descends.

The south shaft has been continued down on the underlie to a further depth of 140 feet through the same ore, which at the bottom shows a splendid solid lode, 11 feet 6 inches in width, and without any gangal visible.

The lode at this point dips at an angle of 63°. A sample of this ore was assayed by Mr. Dixon and yielded 16.7% copper, though in the company's smelting works it only averaged 9%. From the appearance of the slags at the furnaces, and from the difference between Mr. Dixon's assays and the actual percentage of copper obtained at the works, I am of opinion that much copper has been lost in the smelting process.

The water of the mine holds a quantity of sulphate of copper in solution which, while the shaft is being baled, colours the creek a strong emerald green for a distance of more than a mile from the mine. This sulphate is formed by direct oxidation of the sulphide in the copper pyrites. A number of drills and hammers, which had been left in the lower level were found to be coated with a thick deposit of copper, and in some cases the steel had been entirely replaced by crystallized copper. I need scarcely add that much valuable metal is lost by allowing this mine water to flow away, while by running it into shallow tanks, and throwing in scrap iron, the copper could be cheaply and expeditiously extracted.

The task of estimating the value of the mine is rendered somewhat difficult by the fact that a considerable portion of the lode has not been systematically prospected to any depth. In consequence of this I have included in my calculation only such portions of the ground as I consider to have been proved. These areas are coloured green on the sections, and are marked respectively a, b, c, d, and e. In each case I have taken into consideration the mean width of the lode, the probable number of tons in the area, the average richness of the ore and the cost of getting it, and have then calculated its net value at the current price of that brand of copper in Sydney, viz., £56 per ton, which I may add is considerably lower than it has been for some years.

In

In order to arrive at a just estimate of the value of the mine at the time it was given up by Messrs. Baker and party, it is necessary to add the value of the ore which has since been raised by Messrs. Martin & Co. I find that this amounts to about 1,225 tons, averaging 11% of copper, and at the price of copper then current this would be worth, after deducting the cost of getting, £3,552 10s.

The following tabular statement shows the particulars of my calculations:—

Area.	Mean width of lode.	Content in Tons.	Percentage of Copper.	Value per Ton.	Cost of getting.	Nett value per Ton.	Total Value.
a	3 feet	1,041½	10%	50/-	12/-	38/-	£ s. d. 1,978 17 0
b	6 "	1,214	18	133/-	12/-	121/-	7,344 14 0
c	4 "	932	10	50/-	12/-	38/-	1,770 16 0
d	7 "	3,633	9	40/-	15/-	25/-	4,541 5 0
e	7 "	3,687	9	40/-	15/-	25/-	4,608 15 0
							£20,244 7 0
1,225 tons of ore raised by Messrs. Martin & Co., averaging 11% copper. Value—£3 10s. per ton, less 12s. per ton, cost of raising.....							3,552 10 0
Total.....							£23,796 17 0

As before stated, the above calculations refer to such portion of the lode only as may be considered thoroughly proved. It may however be reasonably assumed that the ore continues down to a considerable depth, since in the south shaft A the lode is found to improve in solidity and width as it descends, and at a depth of over 200 feet is fully 11 feet 6 inches from wall to wall.

I was informed on the ground that the shaft marked 8 on plan was sunk 90 feet below the level, as shown in dotted lines; however as I was not able to verify this statement (the shaft being covered over at the floor of the level) I have not taken it into consideration in making my calculations.

The dotted lines on section AB indicate a depth of 300 feet below the surface of the ground at the water shaft B, while in the cross section AC the depth is shown 300 feet below the surface at the mouth of the shaft A. Now if we assume that the east and west lode continues to this depth with an average width of 7 feet (and the assumption is reasonable, considering the depth of the shaft A and the width of the lode at the bottom), and that the north and south lode maintains an average width of 6 feet for the same depth, the quantity of ore contained in that area would be 73,444 tons. Reckoning the cost of raising the ore to be 15s. per ton, it would, if it averaged 9% copper, be worth 25s. nett per ton, or a total of £91,805.

I may add that had my examination of the mine been made some months earlier, the above estimates would have been considerably higher, as the price of copper is at present unusually low.

The three furnaces which were erected by Messrs. Baker and party are situate at the township, about 1 mile from the mine. They are not in very good order at present, and it is difficult to form an accurate idea of what they were worth fifteen months since, but I am inclined to estimate their value at £1,000.

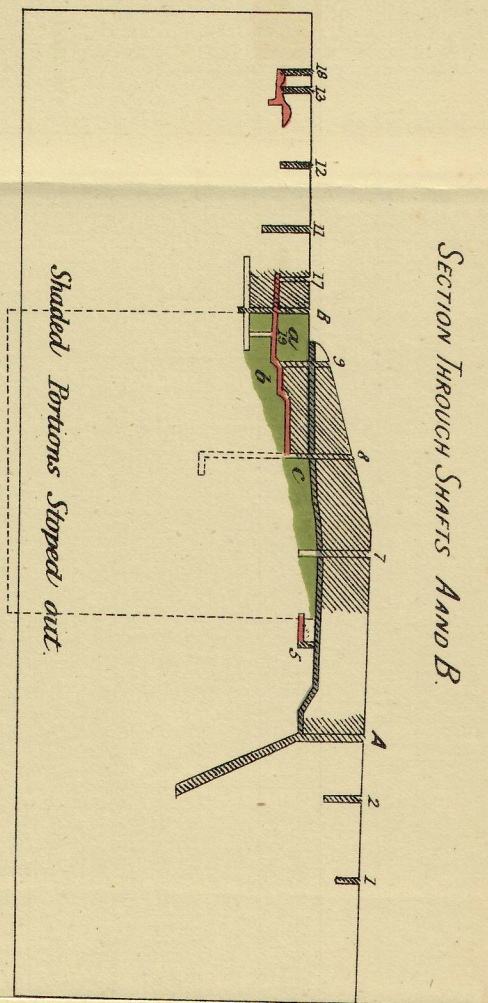

With regard to the length of time required to extract the ore from the mine to a depth of 300 feet, I find that in the south shaft five tributors raised 100 tons of ore per month, and near the north shaft a like number of men obtained even better results. In the present state of the mine about 40 men could be put on, while as the workings became extended this number could be considerably increased. I am therefore of opinion that the mine could have been worked to a depth of 300 feet during the remaining term of Baker and party's lease.

I have, &c.,

Assoc. Roy. Sch. of Mines,
Geological Surveyor.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

PETITION OF E. W. RUDDER.

THURSDAY, 19 FEBRUARY, 1879.

Present:—

MR. BURNS,
MR. HURLEY (Hartley),MR. R. B. SMITH,
MR. WEBB.

R. B. SMITH, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

E. W. Rudder, Esq., was called in and examined:—

1. Chairman.] What is your name, Mr. Rudder? Enoch William.
2. Where do you reside? At East Kempsey, on the Macleay River.
3. You are a freeholder? Yes; a householder and a freeholder.
4. You are the gentleman referred to in the Petition which was ordered to be printed by the Legislative Assembly on the 22nd of March, 1878? Yes.
5. You are the petitioner, in fact? Yes.
6. In the year 1850 you left this Colony for California? I did.
7. For what purpose did you leave the Colony? The object I had in view at that time was not so much gold mining as to introduce a peculiar kind of machinery for gold mining.
8. Perhaps you will explain more fully what your motives were? My motive for leaving the Colony was this: During the time I was resident in England I was applied to by a company who intended to go into America to mine for gold. They obtained a patent machine, which they applied to me to have brought to perfection. I undertook to do that, and to manufacture the machine for them. It was transferred by them to Carolina; but previous to its being taken over, it was experimented upon in the presence of friends of mine, who were gentlemen of influence, as Members of Parliament, and so on. The result proved to be very satisfactory. When the Californian mines were discovered, it was suggested to me that this machine might prove of considerable value as a means of facilitating the extraction of gold, I therefore had a machine made in this city. It took some six months, I think, in putting together. We formed a company, and I took the machine to California with the intention of its being worked there.
9. While you were there you met Mr. Edmund Hammond Hargraves, I believe? His going to California was a prior arrangement, and he went with the view to meet me there, the arrangement having been made through the late Mr. Samuel Peek. Mr. Peek understood that I wanted a person to go with our company, and he recommended Mr. Hargraves. We had an interview; and after the interview with Mr. Hargraves, it was agreed that he should go on, and that we should meet in California; which we did subsequently.
10. Were you a party to his going to California? I was. It was in consequence of an application we made for a suitable person; and Mr. Peek, who was a friend of Mr. Hargraves, recommended him to me as a suitable person.
11. What took place between you and Mr. Hargraves with respect to gold mining there? At this time I had not so much intercourse with Mr. Hargraves as I had with Mr. Simpson Davidson, who was a squatter in this Colony, and who had gone to California, allured by its gold deposits. Mr. Hargraves had joined with Mr. Davidson previous to my reaching California. Mr. Hargraves, however, found me out; and

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.

- E. W. Rudder, Esq. and after we met, it was arranged between Mr. Davidson* and myself that we should accompany them to the gold fields. We were supplied with a large boat of our own and everything necessary, but Mr. Davidson had a larger boat, and he accompanied me and two of my sons as passengers to the interior.
- 19 Feb., 1879. 12. What took place between you and Mr. Hargraves on the gold fields? In the first place Mr. Davidson and I went a trip together and we remained together for some time, while Mr. Hargraves remained behind to dispose of merchandise.
13. Was the Mr. Davidson you refer to the author of a work on gold deposits in Australia? Yes; I hold a copy of the work in my hand which was presented to me by the author with this letter which accompanied it.
14. Will you describe anything which took place between you and Mr. Hargraves which led to the discovery of gold in this Colony? After my return from the diggings with Mr. Davidson we travelled together; and on one occasion, which is alluded to in Mr. Davidson's work, Mr. Davidson, Mr. Hargraves, and myself went together on a journey, and during that trip I frequently explained to Mr. Hargraves the geology of the country.
15. Mr. Burns.] Were did you make the journey to? Mr. Davidson wrote of this journey as follows:—"Mr. Davidson, (p. 46) the elder Mr. Rudder, and Mr. Hargraves together took a more extended trip, and examined the diggings as far as Downsville, being absent a week from Foster's Bar."
16. Chairman.] Was that near to San Francisco? No; it was nearer Oregon.
17. Mr. Burns.] Then these conversations took place in California? Certainly.
18. Chairman.] What is the diagram before you? It is a sketch of the forks of the Upper Yuba.
19. Can you describe anything further which took place between you and Mr. Hargraves while making these visits? We had a great deal of discussion on these subjects and so had Mr. Davidson. The geology of the two countries frequently formed the subject of conversation, especially in camp at night, and I frequently expressed my opinion that the geological formations of New South Wales were so similar to those of California that gold would be found here. I was convinced that gold ought to be found in this Colony, and I expressed my intention of returning and making a search for it. Mr. Davidson as well as Mr. Hargraves had a good deal of conversation with me, especially Mr. Davidson, as to the existence of gold in granite. Up to that time, as far as I know, gold had not been found in granite, but on the Yuba we discovered it, at least I did. That led to a great deal of conversation on the subject, and Mr. Davidson frequently referred to it, and he satisfied himself that alluvial gold was to be found resting on the bed rock of granite. Mr. Davidson's opinion had been adverse to mine, and subsequently when the Rev. W. B. Clarke came to investigate the subject he also found that gold occurred in this country in granite, and referred to what I had done in California as an evidence confirmatory of his own discovery here. It was subsequently ascertained that gold was to be found in all the granite formations of this Colony.
20. After this visit to the interior of California did you write any letters from that country to the newspapers in Sydney? I did; but if you will permit me, before I refer to that, I should like to call your attention to a passage in Mr. Davidson's book confirmatory of what I have stated.
21. Did you publish your letter? I did not publish it myself, but it was deemed of sufficient importance by friends of mine to be published—I refer to the late John Rose Holden and Mr. Holroyd.
22. The present Master in Equity? Yes. At that time my wife was staying with Mr. Holden, who was a relation of ours, and a Member of Council.
23. In what newspaper was your letter published? In the Sydney Morning Herald.
24. Do you remember the date of the publication? The 22nd of July, 1850.
25. Have you a copy of the letter? Yes; here is a printed copy, taken from the Herald.
26. This appears to be a leading article, which embodies an extract from your letter? Yes, a long extract. (Vide Appendix A 1.)
27. What were you about to say with regard to Mr. Davidson? I was about to quote this passage from Mr. Davidson's book as confirmatory of what I have stated:—"Mr. Rudder and I had a good deal of conversation on abstract geology in connection with gold, and to his calling my attention to the doctrine of gold dissemination in granite, do I especially owe much subsequent observation, which I made to satisfy myself of the relation of the precious metal to rocks of granitic character."
28. That quotation is from Mr. Davidson's book on gold deposits? Yes.
29. What took place after the publication in the Herald of this article containing your letter? Nothing that I am aware of, besides the effect it is supposed to have produced in tending to deter emigration from this Colony to California.
30. How do you know that it deterred emigration from the Colony? That is inferential on my part; that I think was its obvious tendency; and an Honorable Member the other day, in replying to your speech, said that if I had deterred emigration I should have prevented persons from going to California and obtaining a knowledge of gold mining, and that the effect would have been that the discovery of gold here would have been delayed. That, however, was not the case. It will be found on reading my letter that I described the nature of the gold-bearing country, and also the mode of working it. I therefore consider that I paved the way in this Colony for what subsequently took place; as perhaps will be the more readily perceived from my second letter.
31. Can you refer the Committee to your second letter? It appeared on the 22nd of February, 1851.
32. Where was that letter written from? Sydney.
33. After you returned? Yes.
34. In what newspaper was it published? The Sydney Morning Herald.
35. What was the effect of the letter? I believe it produced a desirable effect in deterring emigration.
36. What was the purport of it? I explained the customs of California, and the nature of the climate, the sickness which was likely to result to persons who emigrated there, and showed that those who exercised a sound discussion would not venture to emigrate. Then I explained the method of washing gold and practically discovering it. I stated the value of the gold which might be expected to be produced, the temperature of the country, the number of tons of earth which had to be removed to procure a certain quantity of gold, and other matters connected with gold mining. Then I referred to the result of the occupation upon health, the yield of gold from various quantities of soil removed, and I particularised the results of about twelve experiments in various localities. I described the nature of the process of of washing, and I also referred to the diseases which were prevalent in the country, alluding particularly to insanity.

37. Do you know what effect that letter produced in the mind of the community? As far as I heard, it had the effect of determining people to look for something in their own country.

38. Was your letter written with that object? It was.

39. Do you happen to know that large numbers of persons were leaving the Colony daily and weekly? They were. I was requested by the proprietors of the Herald to write the letter with a view to that fact.

40. Requested by whom? By the late Mr. Kemp and the late Mr. Fairfax.

41. Did you have interviews with them on the subject? I think I must have had; I know I had often with Mr. Kemp.

42. It was at his suggestion that that letter was written? It was at his request.

43. The late Mr. Charles Kemp requested you to furnish the Herald with such information as would be calculated to deter the emigration which was then taking place from this Colony to California? Yes; and I took considerable pains to give such details as bore upon the subject from my own personal experience.

44. Do you happen to know from your own knowledge that that letter had the effect you desired to produce? I have every reason to believe so.

45. Will you hand a copy of it in as an appendix to your evidence? Yes. (Vide Appendix A 2.)

46. What did you do, after the publication of that letter, with regard to the discovery of gold? The next public step which I took was to deliver a lecture in the School of Arts with regard to California, of which I have here a copy; and during that lecture I exhibited the necessary apparatus for obtaining gold, with diagrams. I have a large diagram, which I could bring before the Committee, but those which I have here will be sufficient to show the nature of them. I thoroughly illustrated the mode of procuring gold, and any person who paid attention to that lecture could have gone from there and procured gold.

47. In this Colony? Yes, by observing the geological features of the Colony, as I described them.

48. Was that lecture well attended? It was not very numerously attended, but it was very favourably spoken of.

49. Was a report of it published in the Sydney Morning Herald? I do not think the lecture was published in full. The following observations were made in the Sydney Morning Herald with regard to the lecture the next day:—"Last evening Mr. E. W. Rudder gave a lecture at the theatre of the School of Arts upon the climate, productions, and resources of California, founded upon his experience during a sojourn of nine months in the gold country. Whilst he depicted, in graphic terms, the magnificence of the country and the splendour of its climate, during the brief vernal season, he, on the other hand, in language of eloquent warning, described the reverse of the picture during the greater part of each year. The unhealthy character of the country, in consequence of its peculiar geological formation, the dangers and risks of the mining operations, and the disappointment and disease which in so great a proportion prevails among the gold-seekers. Mr. Rudder stated that careful calculations estimated the amount of emigration since the discovery of the gold at 350,000 souls, of whom it could not be doubted that at least one-third had perished. He candidly admitted that in many instances fortunes had been made, and even health preserved, but in the vast majority of cases the result was ruin, disease, and death; and very earnestly did he implore those who, by patient industry, were pursuing their course in healthy climes to pause before they exchanged comfort for certain misery. The details of each branch of his subject were listened to with marked interest, and at its conclusion the applause was loud and universal." A similar report appeared in the Empire on the same day.

50. Have you the paragraph which appeared in the Empire? Yes.

51. Perhaps you will read it? The paragraph which appeared in the Empire was this: "A lecture was delivered last night at the School of Arts, Pitt-street, on the subject of California and gold-mining, by Mr. E. W. Rudder, who has lately returned from San Francisco after nine months' residence in that country, four of which were spent in active operations at the mines. The lecturer divided his discourse into four heads—first, the nature of the country and its general features; second, the gold formation; third, the nature of mining operations; and fourth, the expenses and general results of mining speculations. The lecturer gave a very eloquent description of the physical peculiarities of California, and dwelt at some length on the variable nature of the climate, which he asserted was conducive to disease in the great majority of cases. After glancing at the imperfect regulations for sanitary purposes, he stated that of the immigrants arrived in California during three years at least one-third had perished from disease and want. The lecturer then gave a very minute description of gold mining, and of the difficulties and trials attending its operations, together with an account of the regulations adopted at the mines for the protection of property, and concluded a very interesting discourse by a calculation showing the heavy losses which the great majority of persons emigrating to California had suffered, and must suffer, under the best possible view of the subject. We regret to say that the audience, though very respectable, was exceedingly limited. The lecturer however was warmly cheered at the conclusion of his discourse."

52. About the time you delivered this lecture had you any interviews with the editor of the Empire? Yes, I think we had several conversations on the subject.

53. Who was the editor of the Empire at that time? Mr. (now Sir Henry) Parkes. I have no doubt that he would recollect that we had conversations on the subject; but I have not asked him the question.

54. Will you explain the nature and objects of those interviews? With regard to this lecture I had no interview, and I had nothing whatever to do with the reports of the lecture which were published. In the other cases the editors applied to me for information. Sir Henry Parkes and I had known each other for some time, and I was frequently in the habit of calling at his office and having conversations with him; I know we had several conversations about that time, but at this long period of time I cannot recollect the particulars of them.

55. Can you give the Committee any information which led to the discovery of gold in this Colony by Mr. Hargraves? I believe it was the opinion which he formed of the country when in California with me which led to it. Previous to our leaving California I sent two of my sons from the Yuba to the Slate Range, where Mr. Hargraves was working, in order to afford him, the opportunity if he thought fit to avail himself of it, of returning to the Colony with us.

56. Mr. Burns.] I see that you say in your petition here, that on the 22nd February, 1851, a second letter of yours was published in the Sydney Morning Herald, headed "California," and that that publication took place forty-two days previous to the announcement of the gold discovery? Yes, I have given that letter in evidence.

- E. W. Rudder, Esq.
19 Feb., 1879.
57. Chairman.] Did you see Mr. Hargraves on his arrival? Not immediately on his arrival, but the first time I came to Sydney I saw him almost daily.
58. Was that before the discovery of gold in this Colony was made known? Yes; I had an interview with him on the day that he started at the request of Mr. Northwood. He asked me if I would be good enough to instruct a carpenter to show him how a small rocker might be made for Mr. Hargraves to take with him on his expedition in search of gold. I saw him start, and I heard that Mr. Thomas Icely intended to take the rocker with him in his carriage.
59. Had you any interview with Mr. Hargraves before he left Sydney with a view to discover gold? I saw him previous to leaving, but I had no conversation with him as to what he was to do. That would have been rather presumptuous on my part, knowing that he was as good a worker as myself, and that the knowledge which he had obtained from what he had seen while with Mr. Davidson and myself made him competent without any instructions from me.
60. On Mr. Hargraves' arrival from the country what took place between you and him with respect to his discovery? Mr. Hargraves, after he received the first five specks, brought them to me, and I examined them closely.
61. Mr. Webb.] What date was that? It was in April I think; either in the latter part of March or the beginning of April.
62. Mr. Burns.] April, 1850? 1851. Conversation ensued between us on the small amount of gold discovered. When I put the question to him as to how much he thought a person might earn in a day or a week, Mr. Hargraves expressed his opinion that it would be a very small amount, not much more than 10s. He felt very much discouraged, and expressed his intention to return to California. I battled with this feeling of his because I felt sure in my own mind that gold must exist in much larger quantities. I took the trouble to go to the Surveyor General's office, and I procured the inspection of the maps of the district where the gold had been found, and I ascertained the geological features of the country. I found that there was granite country of great extent as well as slate, and I traced that to a considerable extent on the maps as far as I could get the information I required. After that my deduction was that gold must exist over a very considerable portion of our country, and I expressed these views to Mr. Hargraves. Mr. Hargraves, however, still inclined to leave the country.
63. Did he state to you that it was his intention to leave the Colony? He stated that he thought he should do so. He did not actually say "I am going," but he said that he felt discouraged, and that he thought of returning to California—that he would do much better there than here. This caused a good deal of discussion, and ultimately I prevailed upon him to allow me to make the discovery public. Now I can tell you candidly what induced me to do that. My object was to fix Mr. Hargraves on the one hand and to bind the Government on the other so that the investigation should be carried on, for I felt perfectly certain that there was gold in the country. I never knew gold found in the way that gold was found without it existed in larger quantities.
64. Then you say you induced Mr. Hargraves to permit you to make his discovery known? I did.
65. Did you make it known at his request or with his concurrence? I made it known by his permission.
66. Mr. Burns.] To whom did you make it known? I made it known through the Herald and Empire.
67. Chairman.] You wrote a letter to both the Herald and the Empire? I did, and I can produce it.
68. Will you explain the purport of it? I wrote:—"When in California I was so struck with the similarity of the auriferous formation I inspected with that I had seen in New South Wales, that I felt perfectly assured gold would be found in this Colony in those parts where the geological features corresponded. The subject formed matter for conversation when at the mines. My companions all agreed with my views, and so perfectly satisfied were they on the subject that we determined as soon as possible after our return to New South Wales to commence a diligent search for the precious metal. It gives me the greatest pleasure to be enabled to inform you that we were not mistaken in the opinion we formed. A gold field has been discovered, extending over a tract of country about 300 miles in length. The gold resembles that of California in every respect externally, and appears equally pure. I have seen the specimens which have been procured, and from what I know I have no doubt that gold will be found distributed over as wide, if not larger space than in California. The discovery has been made by a gentleman (an old and well known colonist) with whom I had the pleasure to travel many hundred miles when in California, and knew him to be a miner of very considerable experience both in the northern and southern mines of that famed country. The facts have been communicated to the Government, and will no doubt be brought before the Government at the fitting time. At present it may be sufficient to remark that the geological features of the auriferous formations in this Colony and California are analogous. The latter was fully described in my recent lecture, together with the modes of working and the machinery in use. I trust it will not be long ere we may bid adieu to Californian emigration from these shores, and that the Government will adopt without delay such measures as shall tend further to develop the riches of this Colony, and enable its people to reap the golden harvest which now appears to invite attention."
69. What was the date of that letter? It was written on the 2nd of April, and published on the 4th. You will observe that that was written with Mr. Hargraves' full consent and knowledge.
70. Before you published that letter Mr. Hargraves had announced his intention of leaving the Colony for California? He had.
71. And he was not inclined to institute any further search for the discovery of gold? Not at that time. He himself did not do so. The further progress of the discovery was the work of Messrs. Tom and Lister.
72. After the publication of that letter did you have any communication with the editors of the newspapers? I did not have any communication direct with them.
73. You were not in frequent communication with them? No; not further than that I might have had a casual conversation with Mr. Parkes; but at that time Mrs. Rudder happened to be in Sydney transacting some little domestic business. When this letter came out she found it quite disagreeable to go along the streets of Sydney because she was so much pointed at as the lady of the gentleman who had made known the gold discovery.
74. Where were you at that time? In Sydney.
75. Mr. Burns.] Can you tell me the date of the first communication made by Mr. Hargraves to the Colonial Secretary on the discovery of gold? To the best of my knowledge it was about the 2nd of April.
76. The same day that your letter was written? I think so. I feel almost certain that Mr. Hargraves had an interview with the Colonial Secretary on that day. That, I think, was shown in the evidence taken before the Committee.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq
19 Feb., 1879.

77. Chairman.] After the publication of the letter which you have just read, did you proceed to Bathurst? I did.

78. When? I arrived in Bathurst on the 5th of May.

79. Did you have a gold-washing machine made for you at Bathurst, and did you exhibit it for the inspection of the public? I did.

80. I believe that was the first gold-washing machine made in the Colony? The first of a practical character which was made in the Colony. I produce the bill of it.

81. It appears to have been made by Mr. Walker? Yes; from my design.

82. What was the date? The 14th of May. I had been up to the gold-field and come back again.

83. Will you explain to the Committee the particular steps you took at this time on your arrival at Bathurst in connection with the gold discovery? On my arrival at Bathurst I went with Mr. Hargraves. The next day I think it was we met Mr. Stutchbury. I was present during the examination of Mr. Stutchbury, and knew his opinion on the subject with regard to Mr. Hargraves' discovery, or, more properly, Messrs. Tom and Lister's, for they were the actual discoverers. Five specks were all that Mr. Hargraves personally procured. I stayed at Guyong that night, and Mr. Hargraves put into my hand 4 ozs. of gold which he had received from Messrs. Tom and Lister; and at his request I freed it from all impurities, so as to make it presentable to the Governor. That night I met several gentlemen resident in the Bathurst district returning from a Court of Petty Sessions they had been holding, and there was considerable excitement among them at this time, and they feared that the announcement of the discovery of gold would deprive them of their shepherds, and prove a great inconvenience to them as flock-owners. I believe I succeeded in allaying their fears on that head by telling them that there would be so many persons enter upon the field that instead of depriving them of their labour there would be a redundancy of labour, and I think they found that to be the case. I subsequently saw Captain Finch and his brother, and they told me they had not experienced any loss. I know that some gentlemen sold their stations, among them Mr. Saul Samuel, who anticipated that the effect of my announcement would be that there would be such a rush to the gold mines that he would lose his shepherds, and he thought it best to sell out.

84. Did you after this draw up regulations for the management of the gold fields? I did.

85. Had they been proclaimed? Not at this time. There was then great confusion; in fact I met people coming from Bathurst with spades and picks of all descriptions, and going to the gold fields. There was also great confusion on the ground, and it occurred to me that the best step to be taken would be to draw up concise regulations for the working of the gold fields, such as I had known in California. At this time I was staying at the elder Mr. Tom's house, and I devoted the greater part of two days to this subject. When I had prepared the regulations, I thought I could not do better than to submit them to Mr. Icely and Mr. Tom for their opinion.

86. Was that the late Mr. Icely, of Coomberg Park? Yes. He was a Member of Council.

87. Mr. Webb.] Do you know whether he is living or dead? I believe he is dead.

88. Do you know if Mr. Tom is still living? Yes, I know Mr. Tom is living.

89. Chairman.] Which Mr. Tom do you refer to? I am speaking of the elder Mr. Tom. I have received a letter from him during the last few days confirming the statement I have made.

90. To which Mr. Tom did you read your regulations? To the elder Mr. Tom, who kindly undertook to have them forwarded to the address, which was the Colonial Secretary.

91. Can you produce the letter of Mr. Tom confirming the statement you have made? Yes, I have received this letter from Mr. Tom.

92. Will you read it? "Springfields, 11th February, 1879. Dear Sir,—I have but a few minutes to answer yours, by mistake, of the 12th. I well recollect your being here, and your writing a document, and reading it over to Mr. T. Icely and myself, and that it was approved by us. I believe it was given to me to post, and I never left anything committed to me in confidence undone, so I conclude it was faithfully posted. As to more of the substance of the letter, it is too long since to particularize. I have another letter from Mr. Webb which he was kind enough to send me in reply to an application I made to him to know if Mrs. Webb recollected the circumstances. At this time I was not aware whether Mr. Tom was living, and I felt great delicacy in writing to him. Having been so much on the Macleay, I did not know what had taken place in the Bathurst district, and therefore it was that I took the liberty of writing to Mrs. Webb, whose memory confirms her father's statement."

93. Do you know what became of the copy of the regulations which you forwarded to the Colonial Secretary? At the time, I presumed that they had been safely and honestly delivered; but some considerable period of time after that I was told that they had been suppressed and never reached their destination. At any rate I did not receive an acknowledgment, which I ought to have done.

94. Where were they suppressed do you suppose? I have no evidence to prove it; but I was always surprised that I did not hear anything at all about them. I was led to understand that the letter was suppressed by parties from interested motives. I should not like to mention the names of the parties mentioned to me. Mr. Tom, you may be quite sure, had nothing to do with it.

95. As far as Mr. Tom was concerned, you are quite sure that he faithfully carried out your wishes? I am sure he acted as an honorable and worthy friend.

96. What steps did you take after this? Soon after this occurred, Mr. Hardy was appointed Gold Commissioner, and there were other circumstances which I might allude to, which intervened, but perhaps they are not material. However, they are these, that Mr. Hargraves, from some motive or other, very much against my advice and I believe against the interests of Messrs. Tom and Lister, instead of placing the gold quietly in the hands of the Colonial Secretary or of the Government, took it to Bathurst, and there exhibited it publicly and proclaimed the gold field, causing a great rush and much confusion. I thought that was very injudicious, and that he ought to have retained the information until he could communicate it to the Government, and that in that way it would have been much more favourably brought out. The next step I took was when Mr. Hardy came up.

97. You are speaking of Mr. Commissioner Hardy? Yes; he and Mr. Essington King came together. The first thing they did on their arrival was to come to me, and Mr. Hardy asked my advice as an experienced miner as to what was the best course he could adopt with regard to placing the miners on the ground in such a way as would prevent confusion and secure harmonious working. I entered into this matter with Mr. Hardy, and went out with him, explained to him the nature of the country, and pointed out to him the best position in which to place the miners. He followed my advice, and the confusion

- E. W. Rudder, Esq. confusion which existed was in the course of a day or two allayed, and the ground was worked in a more systematic and regular manner.
- 19 Feb., 1879. 98. Did you afford Mr. Commissioner Hardy any further assistance? We frequently had conversations together, and sometimes we went over the field together, and I remember that I went with him on one occasion to where a man was working and showed him the waste of gold that was taking place by the imperfect plans of working adopted by the miners. There was one man who had got a sheet of bark taken from a gum-tree on which he placed his washdirt, and he swilled it down with water, allowing all the fine particles to run away. The loss from negligence of this description was surprising, and they had no more idea of procuring the gold than a blackfellow. Mr. Hardy and I watched the man washing away all his fine gold, leaving nothing but nuggets.
99. Were your suggestions acted upon by Mr. Hardy? Yes, in every instance.
100. That is with regard to the management of the gold field? Yes, I think I can say that conscientiously.
101. Was your arrival on the gold fields announced publicly as being the first experienced Californian gold-digger who had arrived? Yes, it was in an article published in the Bathurst Free Press on what was called "The Gold Fever."
102. Mr. Webb.] Of what date? I think about the 14th May, 1850.
103. Mr. Hurley.] That would be about the time you had the cradle made? It was a little after that. The article was headed "The Gold Fever."
104. Can you produce the article? Yes; you will observe that it is stated in this article that "Mr. Rudder, an experienced Californian gold-digger, is now at work on the diggings."
105. Chairman.] Did you discover gold in quartz, and report the same to the Government? I did.
106. What was the date of that discovery, and when was it announced? Mr. Clarke mentioned it in his book on the Southern Gold Fields. It was first communicated by me to Mr. Oakes, a Member of Council. It was published without my knowledge at the time. This is what was published under the head of "Gold in Quartz":—"We feel no doubt that in a very few months a regular system of procuring gold by crushing the quartz rock will be in operation. The following extract from a letter from Mr. E. W. Rudder gives most astonishing results. If quartz in large quantities will give one-tenth of the quantity of gold here stated it will amply repay the expense and trouble of working. 'On Saturday, the weather proving too unpropitious for work, I tried some experiments with quartz, and yesterday Mr. Samuel informed me of Mr. Clarke's letter, published in the Herald. I obtained a copy from Mr. Samuel. I mention this simply to show that my experiments were independent of the Rev. gentleman whose name I have mentioned. I have communicated the result of my observations to Mr. Oakes, M.C., of Parramatta, with permission to make such use of them as he might deem prudent. I wrote to him on the same day I made experiments. The first was from quartz broken out of a specimen I sold to Mr. P. C. King, which contained gold visible to the eye in portions, and invisible in others. The result was a return equal to 1½ lb. of gold in 100 lbs. weight of quartz. This kind of quartz is always, I believe, thrown away by the miners, and thereby, as you perceive, a great amount of the precious metal lost, or about £1,260 in every ton. I made two other experiments on quartz in which no gold was at all perceptible, and with results equally satisfactory, having obtained gold from both. I am indebted to Mr. Samuel for 1 oz. of mercury with which I was enabled to experiment.' That was subsequently taken notice of by the Rev. W. B. Clarke, in his Southern Gold Fields. He says in a note:—"About the same period, Mr. Rudder of the Macleay River, tried an experiment of a similar kind." Under date of 13th July, 1851, writing from Summer Hill Creek, he says: "I have observed that the quartz which is found with the gold is all thrown away. This quartz contains gold in very minute particles. I detached some from a specimen which I obtained. This I reduced to powder, and adopted the process of amalgamation with mercury, and the result was that 1-77th part was gold. I have since tried two other pieces in which no gold was visible to the eye, and again obtained gold. My experiments are, from necessity, very imperfect, not having facilities for their performance. Still, however, they satisfactorily prove the existence of gold in such minute particles as are imperceptible to the eye." In the same work Mr. Clarke also says: "In your paper of Monday last there is an allusion to some experiments made in crushing quartz by Mr. Rudder, as independent of mine. His results appear to justify my previous statement that I did not 'overrate' the value of quartz; but Mr. Rudder's experiments were not altogether tried upon quartz in which no gold is visible. When it is visible, of course the value is very much higher. But that your readers may not think it impossible for rock, with or without visible gold, to be infinitely more productive than either Mr. Rudder or your other correspondent supposes, I quote here a passage from Ward's Mexico."
107. What work are you reading from? Researches in the Southern Gold Fields, by the Rev. W. B. Clarke—a presentation copy, which he sent to me. There is a great deal more here with regard to gold in granite. Mr. Clarke considered that a very important subject, and he shows that in all parts of the Colony where granite exists, gold has been found.
108. Where you the discoverer of gold in granite? I was, in California. Mr. Davidson refers to it in his book. Sir R. L. Murchison had the same idea as I entertained; but Mr. Davidson up to that time ridiculed it, and he thought that gold was not deposited, through attrition, but that it was the effect of volcanic periods, and hence that it would occur more in slate than in granite. Mr. Davidson thereby, however, was found not to be supported; and wherever granite rock appears in this Colony there is gold.
109. Do you wish to make any further statement with respect to your discovery of gold in quartz, or with regard to your representations to the Government on the subject? I sent specimens to Governor Fitzroy, and other specimens were taken home by the officers of H.M.S. "Herald" at that time.
110. Did you publish an exposition of the loss of gold from inefficient methods of working, with instructions how to avert it? I did, in the Bathurst Free Press.
111. Of what date? There were several letters on that subject. I think about the 16th of July.
112. What year? 1857.
113. You described the gold formation for general information? I did.
114. And you were the first to describe it? I believe I was; I do not know of any other practical miner who did. As a proof that I understood the subject, here are some rough pen and ink sketches I took on the spot.
115. Did you again resume the subject? I did upon several occasions. I can tell you the opinion of the editor of the Bathurst Free Press upon the subject. I also made these sketches of underground workings.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
19 Feb., 1879.

116. Did you exhibit the diagrams now produced? They were seen by many people. I did not publicly exhibit them. I have other diagrams, but I did not know that the Committee would like to see them.

117. I think there is a statement in your petition to the effect that you were the first to make the discovery of gold in this Colony known in England? I was; that statement is correct.

118. How do you arrive at that? It was reported in the Empire in this way: "It will be remembered by many of our readers that some weeks before the public announcement of the fact that gold was being found in large quantities at Summer Hill Creek, a letter was published contemporaneously in this journal and in the Herald, by Mr. E. W. Rudder, affirming that a gold-field had been discovered extending over a tract of country about 300 miles in length. This letter, which was published on the 4th of April, had reference to the discovery of Mr. Hargraves which was not yet made public. The announcement of Mr. Rudder had reached England, and was creating some little sensation before the sailing of the 'Blackwall,' as may be gleaned from the following extract of a letter to a mercantile firm in Sydney, dated Birmingham, August the 18th: 'Although, as you are aware, our connections with California have been very limited, and we have not hitherto received many of their auriferous lumps, I yet anticipate, shortly, getting some through your medium, as we hear that there are accounts of large quantities being found of late in the Australian Colonies.' 'The Thomas Arbuthnot,' with the first freight of Australian gold, sailed on the 3rd of June, two months after the appearance of Mr. Rudder's letter." My wife's family connections are very largely interested in the refining of gold and silver, and it was only natural that I should communicate with them on the subject. I communicated with them, and since then I think they have had considerable transactions with the Mint in Sydney.

119. Do you know the opinion of the editor of the Bathurst Free Press on the nature of your published communications? I have here a letter which I received from him on the 19th November, 1851. He says: "My dear Sir,—I beg to return you my very sincere thanks for your kindness in supplying me with occasional reports of proceedings in the gold field for publication, and I appreciate your liberality the more that it is bestowed upon a person to whom you are a complete stranger. And you will perhaps permit me to express an opinion, given in all sincerity, that many of your communications display a degree of literary talent, and a power of thought alike creditable to your pen and your brain. Enclosed I return you the miners' petition, and whilst I cannot but compliment its framers upon the perspicuity with which the grievances of the diggers are stated, I will further remark that with the principles set forth therein I entirely concur. The subjects embraced in the petition shall receive my immediate attention in the shape of a leader for Saturday. Again thanking you for your kindness, I remain, yours very respectfully,—

WILLIAM FARRAND."

120. Who was that? Mr. Farrand. I think he is now a police magistrate in some part of the Colony.

121. Did you receive any other communications from him? I had many communications from him.

122. You do not produce any other? I have here several articles which I wrote about this time on the regulations and other matters connected with the working of the mines. I have not pushed myself forward by name, for I had no desire to make myself celebrated, but at the same time I did not refrain from doing what I thought would benefit the country. You will pardon me if I am a little egotistical. I took an interest in the first promulgation of public education, and I attended the first committee ever formed in this Colony in regard to it. Although we failed at that time to get the Irish system which we desired, the National system was subsequently introduced. I believe I succeeded in establishing the first school in the country out of Sydney, namely, on the Macleay River. I have taken an interest in many other matters both at Home and in this country. I assisted at Home in drawing attention to the window tax, and I believe I was instrumental in the abolition of it. I drew attention to the working of the parish rates and of the church rates.

123. You were about to enter upon the subject of the regulations? Yes. I have here a letter which I wrote on the subject.

124. Will you put it in evidence? Yes. (Vide Appendix A 3.) Subsequently, at the request of the committee, of which I was a member, I drew up the miners' petition, which I have here. (Vide Appendix A 4.)

125. Did you take any active part in the meeting held on the Turon, respecting the Government system of gold licenses? I did. I presided at the meeting of about 1,000 miners, and as chairman of that meeting I was requested to sign the petition presented to the House.

126. What was the purport of it? It referred to the state of the existing regulations, and recommended the Government to turn their attention to the abrogation of some they intended to produce, and which would have created a great deal of confusion on the gold fields. The first meeting at which I was present was attended by about 2,000 miners. They formed a committee, of which I was a member, and at the request of that committee I drew up this petition. At the next meeting which took place I was requested to take the chair. The petition was passed, and I sent it to Mr. Holroyd.

127. Who was a Member of the Legislature? Yes; and it produced next day a leading article in the Empire on the subject.

128. You were acquainted with the late Rev. W. B. Clarke? I was.

129. Did he ever express during his life-time any opinion in favour of your claim on the Government, for services rendered in the discovery of gold? He did. This is a letter which I received from him only a few days before he died. The first part of the letter has reference to a fossil specimen which I sent to him to ascertain his opinion in regard to its classification. He says, "I was glad to get your printed paper. I have always used to express myself in your behalf, and wish you success. Only one man has got this; all the rest have been snubbed.—Yours very truly, W. B. CLARKE."

130. Do you produce any other communications from Mr. Clarke? No, except his printed allusions to me.

131. In favourable terms? Certainly. If in this matter I refer to Mr. Hargraves, I am not doing so from any wish to detract from him; but when I am obliged to speak out I must do so. The Rev. W. B. Clarke in the work from which I have already quoted, says, "Mr. Hargraves, it appears, when a youth, lived for a time in the country somewhere between Bathurst and Wellington, and after various vicissitudes of fortune went to California in 1849, in company with Mr. Simpson Davidson, and Mr. L. Potts. Mr. E. W. Rudder, J.P., of the Macleay, was, I believe, already there. The latter gentleman had been known to me long before, and he had consulted me respecting the mineral wealth of the Colony. I have every reliance on his word, as well as in that of Mr. Davidson."

132. Mr. Hurley.] You were present at a meeting held on the Turon to raise a sufficient fund to place Mr. Hargraves beyond want? Yes, I have the requisition here.

133.

- E. W. Rudder, Esq.
19 Feb., 1879.
133. You advocated it? I did.
134. That Mr. Hargraves should be recompensed for the benefit he had done to society? I did.
135. Did you intend that the Government as well as the public should comply with the demand of the meeting? The meeting was held to get up a public subscription. Nothing was said about the Government.
136. You looked upon it as a national matter that Mr. Hargraves should be recompensed? I did. At that time I favoured Mr. Hargraves in every way in my power.
137. Do you remember an article in the Bathurst paper, stating that the fact of the existence of gold was fairly established, and that whatever credit was due in the matter Mr. Hargraves was fairly entitled to it? Yes.
138. Did you acquiesce in that? I always considered that Mr. Hargraves was entitled to the merit of the first discovery.
139. The article I refer to you is that in which your name is mentioned as a Californian digger? Yes.
140. Do you acquiesce in the principles of that article? I cannot recollect the whole of it.
141. What is the date of that article? The meeting I refer to was a meeting which took place some months afterwards.
142. This is your petition? Yes.
143. How can you reconcile the statements contained in your petition with what you have now said. How do you reconcile the statement in your petition: "Had Mr. Hargraves' services never been recognised your petitioner would have had no cause for complaint" with your action in presiding over a meeting to request the public to recompense Mr. Hargraves? I presided at a meeting held at Sofala, not at any earlier meeting.
144. Mr. Webb.] Did you take part in any meeting held at Sofala advocating Mr. Hargraves' claims? A requisition was sent to me to preside, and I did so.
145. Mr. Hurley.] You hailed it as a subject of national congratulation that Mr. Hargraves should be placed above want? We all considered that Mr. Hargraves as being the discoverer of the first five specs was entitled to public recognition.
146. How do you reconcile this statement with the statement in your petition: "Had Mr. Hargraves' services never been recognised your petitioner would have had no cause for complaint"? Mr. Hargraves' services were recognised; mine were never recognised. If Mr. Hargraves' services had not have been recognised, I should have had no cause for complaint, but seeing that they have been recognised and that mine have not I feel that I have been subjected to injustice. Mr. Hargraves has received £15,000 of public money and has been allowed a pension of £250 a year for life; but Mr. Hargraves never did as much as I did, neither probably would he have performed what he did had it not been for me, but I always considered a great national event like that—that the person who first discovered gold, whether by a mere accident or not, was entitled to be recognised as the discoverer. I never put forward the claim to be recognised as the discoverer of gold, but as one who materially assisted in it, who did more than other man in the Colony to promote it and bring it about, I consider that I have a claim for consideration.
147. At the time you advocated Mr. Hargraves' cause, did you anticipate that you would derive any benefit? There was a remark in the paper that others who had assisted Mr. Hargraves were entitled to some consideration.
148. Did you anticipate that you would receive public recompense? I always considered that I had a claim. I published this little pamphlet and distributed it among Members of the House, and I think it shows sufficient grounds for bringing it forward.
149. How long is it since you asked the Crown to bring the matter forward? About eight years ago, I think.
150. Chairman.] Was it not in 1861 that you published this pamphlet setting forth your claims? Yes.
151. Then that was eighteen years ago? Yes.
152. You are not a geologist? Not professedly.
153. Mr. Hurley.] Are you a metallurgist or an assayer? I have published a work on the subject which has been favourably received.
154. You stated that there was peculiar machinery for gold-mining constructed in this country at your instance? There was.
155. What is commonly known among the diggers as an ordinary cradle? No; it was a complicated piece of machinery.
156. But the diagram you showed us was of an ordinary cradle? Yes.
157. Was that the machine you spoke of? No. The machine which I took to California was very complicated.
158. What was its peculiarity? It consisted of a cylindrical vessel, lined with metal, the bottom of which has a valve made to work by a lever, and kept in its place by a spring; there are vertical rods in the cylinder into which water is introduced. The machine has to be worked by a crank with pinion wheels. The rods revolve with great velocity, and the consequence is that the water is thrown up in the form of an inverted cone, and the metallic particles are thrown to the bottom of the vessel. The machine is used in Germany at the present time.
159. Was the machine in use here at the time? No; but it was in Carolina.
160. You stated that you believed your lecture in California prevented an exodus of people from here to that country? That is my opinion.
161. And that your advocacy of the existence of gold in this country was the means of the gold fields of the Colony being discovered? I dealt with the subject more fully than had otherwise been done at that time.
162. From the time you first went up to Guyong, what time elapsed before the Gold Commissioner came on to the ground? I do not know exactly.
163. You went there on the 14th of May? I think it must have been fully a month afterwards.
164. From the time you gave the order for the cradle in Bathurst? It was some weeks after that.
165. Three months after? No, I think about twenty days. Mr. Hardy arrived on the 2nd of June, and I had the cradle completed on the 14th May.
166. After having gone to the diggings and seen the cradle at work? No, to the best of my knowledge and belief I never saw one there.
167. The cradle you had made at Bathurst was the first one introduced? The first to my knowledge; the first of any really properly constructed character.

WEDNESDAY, 23 APRIL, 1879.

Present:—

MR. BURNS,

MR. R. B. SMITH,

MR. WEBB.

ROBERT BURDETT SMITH, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Enoch William Rudder, Esq., called in and further examined:—

168. Chairman.] Do you wish to make any explanation with reference to any of your answers given to the questions submitted to you on your last examination? Yes; there was a question put to me with regard to whether I was a metallurgist or an assayer. I replied that I was simply a geologist—that I wish to correct, if you please. I was not aware of the nature of the question; from my answer I do not think I was, or else I should have said at once that I should feel myself entitled to call myself a mineralogist, and also an assayer—not a quantitative, but a qualitative assayer. I was also asked with regard to a map that has been published. I have since procured it from the Public Library, and I beg to present it to you. It is a map published by the Government.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
23 April, 1879

169. This purports to be a geological sketch of East Kempsey, on the Macleay River? Yes; and the country around.

170. This map was presented by you to the Government? To the Paris Exhibition Commission of 1867, appointed by the Government—that book is a Catalogue of the Exhibits. On reference to that, you will see that I sent 106 geological specimens to the Paris Exhibition of 1867. There were 38 from the Macleay, 14 from Port Macquarie, 42 from the Peel River, 9 from the Clarence River, and 3 from Bathurst. There are references in the Catalogue to all my exhibits. It would take up too much time to refer to them; but, with your permission, I will read to you the mode in which they were distributed, from a note by the late Sir T. A. Murray. These twenty-four exhibits comprised as follows:—

Woods, 69 specimens ...	69
Dye materials, 15 bottles ...	15
Dyed specimens, 200 ...	200
Gums, 6 varieties ...	6
Oelagenous seeds, several varieties, say ...	6
Plaster of Paris casts ...	3
Minerals, &c., 106 specimens ..	106
Total ...	405

Had labour to have been paid for the production of the died samples of silk, woollen, and linen, £200 would not have covered it. Mr. Joubert assured me by letter that my exhibits sent to London were doing good service in the office of the Agent General in London, then Sir C. Cowper. The exhibits received from you were disposed of as follows, viz.:—

“No. in Catalogue.

6	{ 62 73 107 110 111 131 }	Distributed amongst several literary institutions in France and in Italy, and part given to the Museum at Cracow.
2	{ 430 431 }	Anthropological Society, London.
2	{ 447 448 }	Sold.
2	{ 449 450 }	Presented to the Musée d'Histoire Naturelle Paris.
3	{ 488 489 508 }	Presented to the Minister of Commerce, France.
1	{ 511 }	Sent to the Museum of Kew.
8	{ 58 69 70 153 154 155 506 507 }	All distributed amongst museums or to bodies, to try their uses.

24 Exhibits.

T. A. MURRAY,
March 3rd, 1869.”

171. Do you wish to make any further reference to your previous evidence? There is a reference made to the Miners' Petition. I had not then before me the opinions of the Empire with respect to that, which I am now prepared to give you if you will allow me. It was published in the Empire, in November, 1851:—

“The Taron miners, in public meeting assembled, have addressed the Legislative Council, praying an inquiry into the operation and tendency of the Government Regulations under which the search for the precious metal is at present conducted. The petition embodies the sentiment of 2,000 in number of the mining population, and the subject of it acquires additional weight and importance from the circumstances under which it is put forth. Two thousand working men coming forth, not upon the occasion of a general holiday, to debate an abstract political question, but, leaving their picks and cradles on the mountain mountain side, remonstrate against a grinding oppression under which they find themselves despoiled of the hard-earned fruits of their toilsome labours, demand and deserve to be heard. The principal subjects of complaint on the part of the petitioners are, the injustice of the present system of licensing, and the exorbitance of the tax (as they very justly designate it) levied upon the miners. The other grievances urged—such as the vexatious mode of collecting the license fees, the insulting and (to a British spirit) galling display of an armed Police force at the office of the Commissioners, and the prohibitory regulations regarding quartz-crushing and the drainage of water-holes. The petition is couched in terse and clear language, and its tenor is at once firm, dignified, and respectful. * * * * *

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.

We think the mining petitioners have made out an irresistible case for the inquiry they have asked. The Legislative Council, we have little doubt, will respond to the prayer in a befitting spirit * * * and the Legislative body will raise its character in public estimation in proportion to the zeal, earnestness, and public spirit it displays in originating and carrying out the inquiry."

Then I wish, with your permission, to draw your attention to the opinion expressed by Mr. Frederick Odenheimer, engineer-in-chief at that time to the Mining Institute of Nassau. He has now retired from that office, and is a Counsellor of State of the Prussian Empire. I may mention that he is a man whose opinion is considered authoritative on all these matters on the Continent. He forwarded to me this letter before I left Cann's Plains:—

"My dear Sir,

Cann's Plains, 20 February, 1854.

"Before you leave this place I feel it my duty to express to you my best thanks for the valuable information I received from you in three weeks' excursions over part of the territory of the Peel River Land and Mineral Company's and adjoining grounds. I had every reason to be satisfied with the great experience of the rocks, minerals, and metallic ores you have acquired, certainly by uncommon exertion, during your stay at Cann's Plains, especially your knowledge of the gold fields, of gold found in detritus as well as quartz veins, afforded me such instructions as would have been difficult for me to acquire without many previous trials. The appearance of copper and antimony ore, and a great quantity of quartz veins, may lead, it is to be hoped, to richer discoveries; the best way of our first researches, by miner's work, is shown by these appearances and veins. As far as your reports, given to the A. A. Company, are present to my memory, I can only state that they are fully confirmed by the facts observed. Although I most sincerely regret your leaving Cann's Plains so soon, I am yet convinced that you showed me all your discoveries without reserve, and in the most liberal manner. I shall always highly value the remembrance of your guiding my first steps in the geological and mineralogical survey of the Peel River district. Your acquaintance afforded me the greatest pleasure, and in every respect I feel myself indebted to your kindness.

"I remain, yours faithfully,

"FREDERICK ODENHEIMER."

I submit this as bearing out what I have said in my petition. I stated that I was led by what I had seen of the geological features of the one country to infer that gold was in the other; and I think this letter tends to show that I was competent to do so. I then beg to call your attention to an extract from the Times newspaper, published in London on 24th July, 1854:—"Mr. Rudder, the former Superintendent of the Company's Gold Fields, has investigated with great zeal and perseverance the rocks and veins of the district; he showed with minuteness all the points of interest, and forwarded in that way in no small degree the labours of further investigation." I bring this forward to support my previous statements. Again, I call your attention to a few lines from the Rev. W. B. Clarke in his report to the Government in 1852:—"Mr. Rudder, the Australian Agricultural Company's Commissioner, has very obligingly conducted me to various points of the Company's land, and shown me his collection of rocks from the district." I have another here which I may read to you also. I had secured the Mining Laws of the Duchy of Nassau and presented them to the Government for its information.

172. When was that? In 1856.

173. Do you know whether they were adopted by the Government? No, I do not think they were; I believe some portions of them were afterwards adopted.

174. In the interest of the country you thought it desirable to communicate these laws to the Government? Yes.

175. In order to promote the mining interests of the country? Certainly.

176. Did you submit those regulations to the Government? Yes, they were forwarded to the Government. I had received a copy from Mr. Frederic Odenheimer. I have also here a letter which I wrote to the Colonial Secretary for submission to the Governor General, Sir Charles Fitz Roy, upon the discovery of gold in quartz.

177. When was that letter dated? From Summerhill Creek, 31 July, 1851. This is the letter:—

"Sir,

"I have the honor to transmit, for His Excellency the Governor General's inspection, the gold obtained from quartz to which allusion has been made in the Morning Herald. It is contained in paper No. 1. The weight of the triturated quartz was 1 oz. 14 dwts. It contained some minute specs of gold visible to the eye. They were few and small, and could not have exceed 1½ grain in weight. The gold procured is 13 grains, so that I feel safe in estimating the produce at 1½lb. in 100lbs. of quartz of the same quality. Having no proper instruments but such as are proper to the miner, I could not arrive at such a degree of accuracy as might otherwise have been obtained; still His Excellency will see enough to illustrate the great importance of carefully examining into the relative richness of the veins of quartz which intersects this and all other auriferous parts of this Colony. Paper No. 2 contains a minute specimen of gold obtained from quartz in which no gold could be seen after the most careful inspection; it is from a common stone found in the creek. In No. 3 is a specimen of gold obtained from 1½ dwts. of quartz, and exceeds ½ a grain. This quartz was in connection with gold, but contained none visible to the eye. It will be found that in this instance the result is equal to the experiment No. 1. As near as I could estimate, the product of gold obtained from the quartz from which my second and third experiments were made, I should think it would be equal to 1oz. per 100 lbs. The specimen from my second trial is in the possession of the Captain of "H.M.S. Herald." His Excellency will be pleased to observe that the experiments I have made have been on two distinct quantities of quartz, viz., from one in immediate contact with gold, and from another in which it could not be known to have been connected in the remotest degree, so far as the eye could detect, or from its position be calculated upon. I have also the honour to transmit two specimens of gold, Nos. 4 and 5, obtained from emery. The soil has been washed with great care, and was very poor in precious metal, and every care observed in its being freed from the emery after washing. There were some few pyrites of gold visible to the eye, but it was much cleaner and freer from gold than that usually thrown away by nearly all miners. The proportion was about two grains per pound weight of dried emery; in No. 4 seven grains; in No. 4 the result must be proportionately greater, where less care has been maintained in washing. From what I have observed, I have little doubt but one penny-weight per rocker is lost daily, or 1,000 pennyweights for every 3,000 miners; or taking 3 men to each, and 312 working days for the year, an annual loss of £46,800 is sustained for every 3,000 men engaged. Having thus taken leave to call His Excellency's attention to the circumstances which have been brought under my notice, I most respectfully leave them for his consideration, and shall be happy if required to suggest a plan or plans whereby so great a loss to the Colony may be greatly mitigated if not altogether removed.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
23 April, 1879.

"I have, &c.,
"E. W. RUDDER."

That was the first discovery of gold in quartz in the Colony. At that time quartz mining was not known. I have here a letter to the Colonial Secretary referring to the discovery of a quartz reef, the first ever discovered in the Colony. That was in June, 1852. I believe at this time gold mining in quartz had not been carried out, and that was the first regular vein of the kind found. I have had reason to believe so, and it has never been contradicted:—

"Sir,

Cann's Plains, Peel River, June 4, 1852.

"Having during my researches on the A. A. Co.'s Peel River grant, discovered the existence of gold in the trap formation, in a vein of quartz of an unusually rich character (for the extent at present developed), and believing that it has not before been found existing as a component part of that rock, I have thought it proper to inform you of the fact, and to request you will do me the honor to make it known to His Excellency the Governor General. Should I prove correct in my belief that this is the first instance of the kind which has come under the notice of the Government, I shall esteem such an acknowledgment as a particular favour, and shall have much pleasure, should His Excellency desire it, to forward every particular with which I am acquainted.

"I have, &c.,
"E. W. RUDDER."

"The Hon. the Colonial Secretary.

178. Did you receive any reply? I did, acknowledging the letter and thanking me for the communication.
179. Have you the letter in reply? I have not now, it is most likely lost; it is so long ago. I was not aware I had the letter I have just read when I had the pleasure of meeting the Committee before, but I have since found it. I have here a sketch of a large moss chromic iron, showing the large abundance of the mineral. (Exhibited.)

180. Did you submit that to the Government? No; I showed it to Mr. Clarke, and I think it appears in his report in 1852.

181. Could you describe the nature of the report you submitted then? Mr. Clarke was then upon a geological survey, and he published a very voluminous report, and I rendered him every assistance in my power. There is one thing I would like to mention that I also discovered, and that is an immense amount of the most beautiful marble that would be an ornament to any structure. Some specimens of this marble were sent to the Continent. It is at a place called Foley's Creek, about 30 miles from Tamworth. I believe that if the Government now wished it for the Exhibition, I could procure specimens of it. It resembles and is of the same kind as the marble in the pillars of the House of Assembly at Washington.

182. Mr. Webb.] What colour is it? It is a pale variegated brown and white, and various shades.

183. Does it contain shell markings? No, it is veined throughout. I also found a very beautiful black and white marble. I have a list here of metals I discovered during my perambulations, if you will allow me to read it:—

Gold	Peel.
Silver	Macleay.
Platinum	Bathurst.
Tin	Macleay.
Copper	Peel and Macleay.
Antimony	Macleay and Peel.
Molybdenum	Peel.
Chromic Iron	Peel.
Manganese	New England and Port Macquarie.
Cobalt	Port Macquarie.
Graphite	Macleay.
Bismuth	Macleay.
5 species of Iron Ore	Various localities.
Quicksilver	Summer Hill.
Argentiferous Gold	Summer Hill.

184. Chairman.] Did you make known these discoveries to the Government? They were not made specially known to the Government; they were made known to Mr. Clarke, and were exhibited.

185. You communicated your discoveries to Mr. Clarke? Yes, Mr. Clarke knew of them. I never kept these things to myself.

186. As a matter of fact, did you forward particulars of your discoveries and samples to Mr. Clarke? I do not know that I forwarded them specially, but I sent them to various Exhibitions, at Paris and other places. I received a letter from Mr. Joubert, the Secretary to the recent Paris Exhibition Committee; I had applied to him for a catalogue, and in forwarding it he said in his letter that my exhibits were doing great service in the Agent General's Office in London. They were exhibited at the Exhibition at London, and were then placed in the Agent General's Office in London.

187. Mr. Joubert can verify your statement if necessary? Yes.

188. Do you wish to make any further explanations? There is one thing I did not mention before respecting the making of cradles. The first cradle ever made in Sydney was made under my supervision, on the 5th or 6th February, 1851.

189. Do I understand you to say you made this cradle for the express use of Mr. Hargraves? It was made at the express request of Mr. Northwood for Mr. Hargraves to take with him on his first expedition.

E. W. Rudder, Esq. 190. Could you produce any letter you may have received in verification of your statements from the late Mr. Icely, Mr. Rotton, or Mr. Tom? I have a letter from Mr. Rotton, from which I will read an extract. He says:—"I do not recollect any anxiety prevailing previous to the discovery by Hargraves, except that through the discovery in California people dreaded that this Colony would be depopulated, and the result was a terrible depreciation of all kinds of property, and more particularly of squatting property; and Hargraves's discovery was held to be a great boon, as tending to induce the return and increase of the population; and all kinds of property soon acquired its previous value, and ultimately went much beyond it. Squatters certainly had great misgivings as to the effect the discovery in the Colony would have upon their interests, but they ultimately found it was their salvation." That I read to support my statement with regard to the influence of my letters published in the Sydney Morning Herald. I have another letter from Mr. Rotton. I alluded to a Mr. Walker as having made the first cradle in Bathurst at my request. Mr. Walker, I find, is since dead, so that I could not get direct evidence from him. I had superintended the making of the first cradle in Sydney, as I have just said, and then in Bathurst I directed Mr. Walker how to make one, which, with my consent, was exhibited to the public. This is an extract from Mr. Rotton's second letter:—"The Mr. Walker you mention (the wheelwright) is dead. The rather celebrated Ch. of E. clergyman, Barnabas Walker, who died in Victoria about a year since, was his son. He (the wheelwright) had a brother who was connected with him in business about the time you mentioned. The last I heard of him, he was manager at Port Stephens for the old Agricultural Company. If in the Colony, his address can be easily ascertained." This is a letter from Mr. John T. Lane, of Orange, dated 11th February, 1879, in which he says:—"I have no recollection of the announcement you refer to, therefore cannot say anything about the effect produced by it. Your efforts, whilst in the district, to afford information, &c., &c., were not without producing their desired results to some extent." That is the part I desire to call your attention to. I have also a letter from Mr. T. R. Icely:—

"My dear Sir,

21st Feb., 1879.

"I am in receipt of your letter of the 7th instant, upon the subject of the discovery of gold in the Colony; and although many of the circumstances to which you allude are fresh in my memory, I cannot say that I have any recollection of the preparation of regulations in Mr. Tom's house, nor have I seen any memoranda among my father's papers which would throw any light upon the subject. I regret, therefore, my inability to to help you in this matter. In reply to the last part of your letter, there can be no doubt that the excitement produced, not only in the Bathurst district, but throughout the Colony, by the announcement of the gold discovery, was very great.

"I am, my dear Sir, faithfully yours,

"T. R. ICELY."

191. Does that refer to your announcement? I presume so, because I wrote to him respecting that.

192. You are quite sure that that reference is made to your announcement of the gold discovery in the Sydney Morning Herald and Bathurst Free Press? Yes, I believe so. You must be aware that from the lapse of time I am at a great disadvantage in appearing before you.

193. Mr. Webb.] Did you write a letter to Mr. William Tom, junior, and receive a reply? I did.

194. Do you produce that letter? No, I have not got it here. It did not bear upon the point.

195. As a matter of fact, do you know that Mr. William Tom, junior, was the person connected with Messrs. Lister and Hargraves in the discovery of gold? Yes; I have always understood so, and I have no doubt of it.

196. And you wrote a letter to Mr. William Tom on the subject? Yes.

197. Which you do not produce? No; he did not give the information I required.

198. Chairman.] You have no reason for keeping back this letter? No; I have not brought it, simply because it failed to answer the purpose I wrote to him for. I have no reason to keep it back, except that the letter is not a reply to mine, and does not contain the information I required. I obtained the information subsequently.

199. What was the information you wrote to Mr. Tom about? I really forget; I think it was something about Mr. Hargraves, when he was there, about the date and so on. I must inform you that I am possessed of information here now that I did not possess before—the Report of a Select Committee on the Gold Fields Management Bill, ordered to be printed on 20th September, 1853. As I have remarked to you, the length of time that has elapsed makes it impossible to retain upon the memory exactly what took place; but here I have evidence which cannot be contradicted. I have never had the opportunity of making what I consider a statement, and with your permission I would like to do so. In what I am about to remark, I do not intend to make a single observation I cannot prove by documentary evidence. The evidence will not be my own so much as that of other parties; and it has special reference to the announcement of the first discovery of gold. I was not at the time aware of the circumstances I am now going to allude to. In my previous evidence I stated to you that I had been instrumental in bringing the discovery before the public. Mr. Hargraves had returned from his first visit to Ophir, when his discovery amounting to only five grains of gold had been made; he returned discouraged, and announced his intention of returning to California. He was recommended by me to apply to the Government, and to bring the circumstances before them. As I have previously told you, my object was to fix both the Government and Mr. Hargraves; that is to say, by making the discovery known, the Government would be obliged to take notice of it on the one hand, and Mr. Hargraves on the other would be pledged to the Government. Mr. Hargraves's first intention was simply that it was to be a business speculation. He had no intention to make it known for the benefit of the public, but it was to be a trading speculation. When he returned he saw that it would not pay as a business speculation, and, therefore, he availed himself of my suggestion, and applied to the Government. Soon after this, in a few days, he received intelligence from Mr. Tom and Mr. Lister of further discoveries. When he learned this he went to the Government, and from that time he abandoned the parties who assisted him in it—threw them overboard, and entirely devoted his services to the Government. He was at that time in partnership with Messrs. Tom and Lister; but I do not think it was known to those gentlemen at that time that he was previously in partnership with a gentleman in Sydney, whose letter I have here—the late Alderman Northwood. This explains the transactions between him and Mr. Hargraves, and will prove that so far as Mr. Hargraves was concerned it was a business speculation and nothing more, and that the announcement to the country was my own, with his permission, or else it would have been kept private, and worked as a private company. Mr. Northwood's letter is as follows:—

"Dear

"Dear Friend Rudder,

Darlinghurst, February 21, 1861.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
23 April, 1879.

"I received yours of the 24th January, inquiring respecting the transactions of Mr. Hargraves and myself relating to the gold discovery. I should have wrote before, but have not been able to find my memoranda to the extent I wished to have communicated to you. However, you were cognisant to the fact of myself and Hargraves entering into a joint speculation respecting the search for gold. We had articles drawn up to the effect that I was to find all requisites, and Mr. Hargraves to give his services, and the profits were to be divided between us (if any.) He left Sydney the beginning of February, I believe about the 5th or 6th. I found horse, saddle, bridle, and, I think, about £20, with every requisite he would require, and an order or letter to Mr. Suttor, an old acquaintance, to supply him with anything he might want (although this order was not made use of). I forward you a copy of his letters; you are at liberty to make such use of them as you please. He wrote for, and I supplied him with money several times. I was deceived by him not knowing that he joined Lister, Tom, or any one but myself, until he wrote for the £10 to pay them for the piece of gold which he made a present of to Mr. E. Deas-Thomson, and it was called the "Golden Baby." He had been down to Sydney previous to this. About the 18th February he arrived, and brought a few specks, told me the speculation would be a bad one, he could not find a field of sufficient richness to be worth buying; and that it would be better to see what could be done with the Government, but I was to keep it quiet, and not discover that I had anything to do with the transaction. He drew cash from me several times while in Sydney, and when he received the £500 from the Government he would not give me half until I gave up the articles of partnership. I found that he had both Lister and Tom in some sort of league, and I lost all confidence in him, and I took the £250 and gave up the document, having spent £105 in the pursuit. When I questioned Mr. Hargraves respecting Lister and Tom, he said that two men had watched him, and he was forced to take them in partnership. I have not the date the cradle was made, but I know it was in February or the beginning of March. I must say that I always consider Mr. Hargraves does not merit the confidence I then placed in him, nor could I ever be satisfied with his integrity after. However, I made headway, and I trust honestly, and am very comfortable, while he is always in broils. If you want any further information, if in my power, I shall be very happy to supply all I know; but I think I have given all I can remember. With my best wishes for you and family.

"I remain, &c.,

"WM. NORTHWOOD."

"P.S.—Our intention when Mr. H. and self first started in pursuit of gold was to have found a good rich field, to have purchased the land, built accommodation, well stocked the same, and then opened the ball; but when vanity stepped in and fame blew the trumpet, a secret could not be kept.—W.N."

200. Do you desire to make any explanation with regard to the postscript in Mr. Northwood's letter? Simply this, that it confirms what I have stated, that at the time he made the discovery Mr. Hargraves was discouraged, and then he was induced by me to go to the Government.

201. Had it not been for you the discovery would not have been made known to the public—were you the gentleman who "blew the trumpet"? I "blew the trumpet" by making it known.

202. As a matter of fact you were the first to make it known? Yes.

203. There is no question about that? No.

204. And by making this discovery known you prevented the exodus then taking place to California? Yes.

205. Hundreds of people were then leaving the Colony for California, and your letters had the effect of checking the exodus and keeping the people in the Colony? Yes. I was applied to by the proprietors of the Herald, I believe with a patriotic motive on their part, to check that exodus, when the announcement of the discovery of gold in New South Wales was made.

206. And you assure this Committee that you were the first to make this discovery public through the Press. Yes.

207. As stated by Mr. Northwood, you "blew the trumpet"? That seems to be his view.

208. Will you follow up your statement? Then, gentlemen, after this announcement, I became pretty well known as the individual who had done this, and consequently—

209. Had done what? Made the announcement of the discovery of gold. Consequently, when I was on my way home, by way of Newcastle, the Manager of the Australian Agricultural Company's Works there introduced me to Mr. Blane, the deputy-governor of the Agricultural Company, as a gentleman who would probably have it in his power to give him some information with regard to their property. Mr. Blane requested me to report to him the nature of their property between Raymond Terrace and Stroud, to the Macleay River, and onward that way. I did so, and I informed him that my opinion was that it was a gold district, and gold was subsequently discovered where I pointed out the indications, and it has since turned out to be in the Barrington Gold Field. I was the first who gave any indication of gold being to be found in that neighbourhood. I have a memorandum here to this effect:—"After the events just recorded, I quitted the mining district of Bathurst and returned to the Macleay. On my way there, I met the late A. Blane, Esq., deputy-governor of the A. A. Company, and at his request reported to him my opinion as to the auriferous or non-auriferous character of that part of the Company's property on the Manning River. Gold has since been found in the locality pointed out in my report." That, I believe, is now the Barrington Gold Field. "I also subsequently, at the same gentleman's request, visited the Peel River, and reported for the information of the Company, the state of their gold field, of which I accepted the management till sold to a new company." The announcement of the discovery I made then produced a very wonderful effect in the English market upon the value of the Company's property. I believe shares which had been selling at £16 rose to £500, and the property itself sold for something like £500,000. During this time I was acting as Commissioner for the Agricultural Company, and had an arduous task to perform. The property was invaded by hundreds of men. You will see from the evidence of the late Major Innes that the Company's grant was overrun by a number of men who came there, with the view of taking gold from the property, and he estimated the number at 500. He says, "I allude to the time when the A. A. Company put a stop to working on their land," and then he goes on to state the number who were there. In answer to another question he says, "there was a large body of men at one time, I dare say 400 or 500, on the Company's gold field, but they were not allowed to work." Now, I think I may say without any presumption, that I deserve some credit for having been able to get these men off the ground without any bloodshed, and without any riot or disturbance. It was not effected without great personal risk, nor without the necessity of calling out a considerable body of police. I adopted the course

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.

course, first of all, of endeavouring to find out who the actual perpetrators were. In doing so I sent my assistants out on the field, and they were attempted to be intimidated by the firing of pistols over their heads. With about twelve mounted police I succeeded in bringing the parties to justice, one was an educated man. The matter in dispute was referred to the Attorney General and he decided that I was right, and subsequently it was determined that the gold and minerals in the land belonged to the Company. From that time there was never any more trouble with the miners. The point was this, Her Majesty possesses the right to all minerals under the surface of the ground; but I contended that the Company had a special grant of all these minerals. The miners contested the grant, and it was arranged that they should desist from working until the matter was referred to the Attorney General. They did so, and the opinion was given in favour of the Company. I think I have now gone through the main points of the case. I think I have shown you that the interest I took in the matter, and the efforts I made, had considerable influence in producing a better state of things with regard to the working of minerals; with regard to the gold regulations that were passed by the Government, the first discovery of gold, and the announcement of it to the public; that I made it known to them specially, and without any private interest or view in the matter; and that subsequently I took a very important part in the management of a very large portion of the gold bearing country in the Peel River District, the management of which I retained for about two years; and that I have on all occasions, so far as has been in my power, promoted the interest of the Colony to which I belong. I have not a very large pecuniary interest in it, but I have an interest of a very important nature, that is a very numerous family; I think few colonists have a greater one; my family circle at the present moment amounts to about 100. I have shown you that the evidence of competent persons, Mr. Clarke and others, bears out what I have stated. You must remark, gentlemen, that I am not stating anything of myself. I have given you documentary evidence for all I have stated. I can refer you to the evidence of Messrs. Tom and Lister, Mr. Commissioner Green, and of Mr. Hargraves himself. There you will find—

210. What evidence do you refer to? The evidence taken by the Committee of the House, with regard to the whole affair of the gold discovery by Mr. Hargraves, and the part that Mr. Lister and Mr. Tom took in it—the partnership, the amount of gold procured by them, how that gold was distributed and disposed of—that Mr. Hargraves had given it up as a bad job and intended to return to California. Mr. Hargraves's evidence will show you that I published these letters, and also Messrs. Tom and Lister state that they were annoyed at the publication without their consent. When Mr. Hargraves endeavoured to obtain a gratuity from the Victorian Government he made a statement which I never read until lately. Here it is. The date of this letter of Mr. Hargraves is 9th May, 1853, wherein he states: "I was wholly dependent upon funds I had raised at the rate of cent. per cent., a rate thought not unreasonable to enable a penniless man to prosecute so laborious and hopeless an inquiry." Now, from the evidence of Mr. Tom and Mr. Lister, it appears that Mr. Hargraves was put to no expense whatever, that they found all the means for him at that time.

211. What is the date of the inquiry you refer to? The report and evidence were ordered to be printed on 20th September, 1853. I will now refer to a critique on Mr. Davidson's book, in which Mr. Hargraves's matter is referred to.

212. Are you referred to in that? No, I am not; but it sustains what I have been stating. It is a review of Mr. Davidson's work, and was published in the Sydney Morning Herald of 29th October, 1860. It says,—“He incidentally shows that Mr. Hargraves had no knowledge of any kind such as he has assumed and paraded; that he had never seen in California a gold-bearing quartz vein (so as to know it); that the idea of his having gone to Lewis's Ponds in 1851, on the strength of his recollection of its geological character, was a pretence; that he received £100 from Alderman Northwood to enable him to explore, on condition that the alderman should receive half of 'any reward' that might be given him; and that he made the payment of half the first reward of £500 to Mr. Northwood the ground of a statement to the Government of Victoria that he had to 'borrow money at a hundred per cent. in order to prosecute his researches for gold in New South Wales,' thereby obtaining from the Gold Committee in Victoria the undeserved acknowledgment that he opened out exhaustless treasures 'with a noble disinterestedness unexampled in history.'” Then again, “It will be seen from the above digest, that the book was written unquestionably to damage Mr. Hargraves, and that it does so irretrievably we cannot but candidly admit. It represents him as a pretender—a greedy, unconscientious person—and without any respect for treaties with others—who, by taking advantage of the knowledge imparted to him, and assuming it as his own, through the unexplained partiality of the Government, obtained just so much notoriety as to have gained, and accumulated, and retained unjustly, rewards which he had not earned, and which Government had no right to bestow.” Then again, “If the statements of Mr. Davidson are really unable to be contradicted with truth, it is very plain that the rewards bestowed for the alleged gold discovery of 1851 were a 'job' of no very creditable character to anyone concerned; for Mr. Davidson distinctly declares that they were given without due inquiry, and against the presumption of the integrity of the claims that could have been preferred.” Here is another remark, “We have no interest in the book one way or the other; but as it is a work likely to be extensively read, and is written with a great deal of talent and judgment in the arrangement of its manifold contents, and is, besides, fortified by documentary evidence, it is not a publication that can be 'pook-pook'd' with unconcern, or treated as one undeserving of consideration. As, moreover, much of its contents have been already before the Colonial public, and have not been controverted, it has a bond of prestige which carries weight.” I have only one other extract to read. I should have brought it under your notice before. I alluded in my former evidence to my having published a geological work, which is thus referred to in the Freeman's Journal of February, 1855. “In a late number we alluded to Mr. Rudder's valuable little work on the 'History of Transmuting Rocks,' and promised to give some extracts from the work. We now fulfil that promise, and beg to leave Mr. Rudder to explain his very correct views of geology in his own words, both in his preface and introduction, which we place this day before our readers, and hope that they may derive as much instruction and information from the perusal as we ourselves have the pleasure to state that we derived from them.”

213. Mr. Webb.] The discovery you made known to the public, respecting the discovery of gold, was a discovery of a few specks? Yes.

214. Who made known to the public the fact that payable gold had been discovered. The payable gold was found when the nugget was raised that was given to Mr. Deas-Thomson. Who made known that discovery? I think Mr. Tom, as far as I can recollect.

215. You did not do it? No. Mr. Hargraves put into my hand the four ounces of gold, and asked me to free it from all impurity, so as to make it presentable to the Governor. This was on the 6th May. Mr. Hargraves arrived on the 5th at Guyong, and I arrived on the 6th. Mr. Hargraves then took the nugget with him to Bathurst. Mr. Lister and Mr. Tom particularly urged upon him not to make it known to the public, and instead of attending to their request he made it known in Bathurst, and the consequence was there was a rush immediately of the Bathurst people to the gold fields.
216. Mr. Hargraves made known the discovery of gold, then, on that occasion? Yes.
217. The amount of gold discovered previously to this, did you consider not enough to warrant the publication of a payable gold field? I consider it was sufficient to warrant the expectation of the discovery of gold in quantity.
218. As far as you remember, Mr. Hargraves made it known first in Bathurst? Yes.
219. Do you know how that gold was discovered? I believe it was discovered by Messrs. Tom and Lister when prospecting—digging and washing with a cradle.
220. Do you know who made the cradle? I only know it from this, that Mr. Hargraves was said to have given them some instruction.
221. From information you received you have reason to believe they made it themselves? Yes.
222. And they discovered this nugget of gold? Yes.

ROBERT BURDETT SMITH, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Enoch William Rudder, Esq., called in and further examined:—

223. Chairman.] Do you desire to supplement the evidence already given by you on previous occasions? I said at the last meeting that I would not make any statement that I was not prepared to prove by documentary evidence, and I wish now to adduce such evidence to support the statements I have made. If you recollect, a question was put to me with regard to the exhibits I sent to London in 1871. Since then I have found some extracts relating to them, and with your permission I will read them. The first is a very short one written by "Anglo-Australian" in the European Mail:—"Since my last notice of the New South Wales Court at the International Exhibition, the 'Parramatta' has arrived, bringing forty-six more packages. A considerable miscellaneous collection of the dye woods, gums, cereals, sugar, and sugar cane, &c., exhibited by Mr. E. W. Rudder, attracts much attention." The other is from the London correspondent of the Herald, who says:—"Another characteristic feature of the Exhibition is the collection formed by Mr. E. W. Rudder, of East Kempsey. We have not the slightest knowledge, personally or otherwise, of Mr. Rudder, but, judging from the collection which bears his name, we should assume him to be a very industrious and enterprising person—one of a class by no means too numerous. His collection includes samples of sugar grown, we think, by himself; Mr. Christian, of Summer Island; Mr. H. Woods, ditto; Mr. Fairweather, of Kinchela Creek; Mr. Sydney Verge, West Kempsey; and the Sydney Sugar Refining Company. The samples are rather coarse looking, but we have seen worse in the market. Then, there are samples of Colonial gums, emu oil (a novelty here), arrowroot, and dyes obtained from wood. These latter deserve more attention than they are likely to obtain here at present. But the most important portion of Mr. Rudder's collection are the Australian woods. The samples include the Colonial brush, lignum vitæ, yellow cedar, white cedar, &c. There is also a piece of mahogany fence which has been exposed to the weather upwards of twenty-five years, and is still thoroughly sound. There is also a piece of black-butt gum wood, equally good and sound, which has been in the ground thirty-two years, being a portion of the first fence erected on the Macleay River. We cannot help suspecting that Australia is destined to develop a great timber trade with the mother country. Sleepers of Colonial mahogany, if obtainable on sufficiently cheap terms, would be found almost as good as those of jarrah for railway purposes. Then we have samples of Colonial barks, jute, and fibre for paper-making and twine, all representing the germs of future great Colonial industries. The fibre for paper-making ought to be brought under the notice of our Society of Arts. If procurable in sufficiently large quantities, it might, assuming it to be really workable, command a ready and remunerative sale here. But we have not yet done with Mr. Rudder. He shows a sample of sole leather, made by Mr. J. Lee, of East Kempsey, from a beast eighteen months old. It is really excellent—quite fit to take its place in Messrs. Alderson's display. Then we have specimens of Colonial road metal, limestone, porphyry, granite, &c., and last, but not least, a geological map of the Kempsey and Macleay River district." Then I purpose to support the evidence produced with regard to Mr. Northwood's letter. I will now read portions of letters from Mr. Hargraves, verified by the late Rev. W. B. Clarke. These support Mr. Northwood's letter by Mr. Hargraves's own acknowledgment. You may recollect he says he supplied Mr. Hargraves with materials for his expeditions:—

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
30 April, 1879.

Mr. Hargraves's first visit to Guyong.

Memo. of evidence in support of Mr. Northwood's statements, collected from Mr. Hargraves's letters.

Mr. Hargraves's letter from Guyong, 11 February, 1851, to Mr. Northwood:—

Corn and flour supply.—You had better send 200 lbs. flour up to the house in a fortnight.

Horse.—O.T.—I have got the horse fresh shod. The blacksmith tells me the brute will not stumble so much when his feet are short.

Money supply.—Don't forget to speak to Mr. Suttor, as I shall be regularly "stumped by the time I get to Bathurst."

Corn and hay.—Letter from Guyong dated "Prima Costra Arouya, Guyong, Die Saturni, 16th/2/ A.D. /49." I am going now to the Turon River; there is water, but no grass. I have got some corn and hay, but in all probability shall be able to get "my hall" to keep the horse alive for a few days.

Money supply.—Mr. Suttor's will be out of my way, and 20 miles for a tired man and horse is a great deal; you had therefore better enclose me a £5-note through the post to Bathurst. I shall not have a feather to fly with on my arrival there.

Gold discovered.—Be it remembered, on the memorable day, to wit, on the 12th day of February, the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, that I did, at my "Prima Costra," on Arouya, Guyong, discover gold. I knew

E. W. Rudder, Esq. I was in a gold country 10 miles before I made the discovery, but being no water I would not try the "rocker," and being near a sheep-station, and expecting the sheep to drink, I did not further disturb the earth, but carefully put up my five little specks or grains away.

30 April, 1876. NOTE.—How could sheep drink where there was no water?—E.W.R.

After these letters were written, Mr. Hargraves returned to Sydney, discouraged, and intending to go to California. (See Evidence, as printed.)

Mr. Hargraves's second visit to Guyong.

Purchase of gold, and partnership.—Mr. Hargraves's letter to Mr. Northwood, from Guyong, 12th May, 1851.—Mr. Lister's letter was correct. I have purchased, on our mutual account, their share of the gold-dust, and forwarded it to His Excellency the Governor. Enclose me £10 by return of post, to pay them. 4 ozs. was the quantity sent.—This letter is addressed "Northwood."

Receipt of money.—Letter dated Guyong, Bathurst, 19th May, 1851.—Northwood,—I duly received the £10. My expenses have been very heavy. The Colonial Secretary I expect shortly, and then shall come to Sydney. You must send me more money.

Company.—I bought their share to forward to the Government, and paid £10 13s. 4d. for it; our share, £6 6s. 8d., makes £16. I am no longer connected, either directly or indirectly, with any other person. (See Wm. Tom's evidence, p. 59, questions 27, 28, and it will be seen he did not pay them as stated, but some considerable time after.) Postscript.—The mines are inundated with traders—a surgeon has commenced practice; confectioners, cook-shops, and everything you want for money. The rich man curses and the poor man blesses the name of Hargraves.

NOTE.—The surgeon was Mr. Gilbert, my partner. There were neither confectioners nor cook-shops then on the diggings (to the best of my knowledge and belief). I was there at the time. Dr. Gilbert did not go to the diggings to practice, but work with me as my partner, and did so for some time.—E.W.R.

The next I present to you is the evidence taken before the Select Committee on the "Gold Fields Management Bill," ordered to be printed on 20th September, 1853.

224. With what object do you tender this evidence? Simply in support of what I have stated.

225. Mr. Hurley.] Do you desire to have all this reprinted? No, only the portions of it I have noted here.

226. Chairman.] Have you correctly taken out the whole of the evidence which applies to your case? Yes, I have noted it in the paper I hold in my hand.

227. And you desire these portions to be appended to your evidence? Yes.

228. Mr. Hurley.] This merely goes to show that Messrs. Tom and Lister acted in conjunction with Mr. Hargraves? Yes, that there was a partnership between them.

229. How will that assist you? I have made a statement that Mr. Hargraves went into the matter as a speculation, and finding it had failed, was going back to California. I prevented that by encouraging him to apply to the Government, and by giving my opinion to the public that there was a gold field. Then when Mr. Hargraves found that the Government would take it up, he threw over his friends and partners and stuck to the Government. This evidence shows that my statements as to these matters are borne out.

230. This evidence merely goes to prove that Mr. Hargraves had acted somewhat unjustly towards Messrs. Tom and Lister? And more unjustly to myself.

231. Your name does not appear? He purposely kept me out of it.

232. Chairman.] I would like you to explain further with regard to this matter, so as to clear up the doubt in the mind of Mr. Hurley, as to your being the first to announce the discovery of gold? At this time Mr. Hargraves wished to return to California, and intended to do so, because he believed the speculation would not pay. I battled the matter with him, and got him to allow me to bring it before the public. The Government took notice of it, and the public took notice of it, and Mr. Hargraves therefore became bound to the Government, and the Government to the public. At this time, when Mr. Hargraves was despairing of doing any good, Messrs. Tom and Lister made a discovery of payable gold, so that they were, in fact, the first discoverers of a workable gold field, found after Mr. Hargraves had gone away from the locality; and he would have returned to California but for the step I took—that was the announcement of the gold discovery to the public through the Press, in the Empire and Sydney Morning Herald.

233. Mr. Hurley.] Who was the discoverer? The name of the discoverer was not mentioned, except inferentially.

234. Who did you credit with being the discoverer? Mr. Hargraves.

235. Where did you get the information that gave rise to that article? I stated, in my previous evidence, that I wrote from my knowledge of the country. I spoke as a geologist, having taken the trouble to discover, from documentary evidence here, the nature of the country.

236. How could you say gold had been discovered, merely from your opinion as a geologist? I was quite sure gold was there from the nature of the country, and from observation of country of a similar nature in California.

237. Mr. Webb.] I think you stated in your former evidence that Mr. Hargraves showed you the first gold that was discovered? Yes, five specks.

238. You cleaned it? No, not that lot, but the lot that went to the Government.

239. When did Mr. Hargraves show you the five specks of gold? When he returned from his first visit to Guyong.

240. When was that? A little previous to the publication of my letter.

241. When was that published? On 4th April, 1851.

242. From information you received from Mr. Hargraves respecting the discovery of five specks of gold you published this letter? I did.

243. Were you not aware at that time that a man named M'Gregor had found gold on various occasions? No.

244. Had you never heard a report to that effect? I do not recollect hearing of it till afterwards.

245. Did you hear of it after the discovery had been announced by you? Yes, I have heard of it subsequently.

246. Are you aware that it was generally known by the public? No, I knew nothing at all about it at that time.

247. But after you had made the announcement, you heard that some person had previously discovered gold? Yes.

248. When did Mr. Hargraves return to Sydney, after finding the five specks of gold? If my memory serves me rightly, it was in March. My announcement was on the 4th April.

249. Do you know when Mr. Hargraves received the letter from Messrs. Tom and Lister, intimating that they had discovered gold equal in weight to sixteen sovereigns? I do not.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
30 April, 1879.

250. Do you know when he communicated the fact to you? On the 6th May, when he put it into my hands at Guyong.
251. When did you first visit Bathurst, after Mr. Hargraves communicated to you the fact that he had discovered a few specks of gold? I followed him the day after he left Sydney. I arrived at Guyong on the 6th May; he had arrived on the 5th.
252. Did you stop any time at Bathurst? Only one night.
253. Do you know when and where Mr. Hargraves first received the lot of gold equal to sixteen sovereigns in weight? No; except from a letter here, dated 12th May, addressed by Mr. Hargraves to Mr. Northwood, in which he mentions it:—"I have purchased, on our mutual account, their share of the gold-dust, and forwarded it to His Excellency the Governor. Enclose me £10 by return of post to pay them. Four ounces was the quantity sent."
254. Do you not know that that gold was exhibited in Bathurst, and intimation of the discovery given on the 1st of May? No.
255. Do you know, as a matter of fact, that that gold was discovered before the 8th April? I am not aware of the actual date of its discovery. There was nothing known of it at Bathurst when I was there on the 5th May.
256. Are you certain it was not known to the public on the 1st May? I did not hear anything of it.
257. Will you have the kindness to read question 35, of Mr. Tom's evidence in 1853? "Did you communicate the result of your search to Mr. Hargraves? Mr. Lister was to write the letter to him as soon as possible, and Mr. Hargraves acknowledges its receipt in a letter addressed to Mrs. Lister, dated 8th April."
258. You have stated that you visited Guyong on the 6th May. Did Mr. Hargraves then show you the gold? Yes.
259. You have stated that you cleaned it? Yes.
260. Did you go to Bathurst with Mr. Hargraves? No.
261. Do you know if Mr. Hargraves proceeded to Sydney with the gold? I understood that he gave it to Mr. Icely. It was very much against my advice that he showed it to anybody excepting the Government in Sydney; Mr. Tom and Mr. Lister also advised him in the same way, but he would do so.
262. You allude to his making known the discovery of this payable gold? Yes.
263. Was that the only payable gold discovered up to that time? Yes.
264. Who made that discovery known to the public? It was made known by Mr. Hargraves himself when he went to Bathurst—not before.
265. When he went to Bathurst he made known the fact that a payable gold field had been discovered? Yes.
266. You cannot state positively the date? No.
267. At all events the intimation to the public that a payable gold field had been discovered was made by Mr. Hargraves? Yes.
268. In a former portion of your evidence you stated that, under your instructions the first cradle was made? I did.
269. When did you first visit Ophir? I think it was soon after the 6th May; I rode over there with some gentlemen.
270. Were there any diggers there at the time? I think there were a few.
271. Did you see Messrs. Tom and Lister there? I do not recollect seeing them.
272. Did you see a cradle in their possession? No; the first cradle was made in Sydney.
273. You did not see Messrs. Tom and Lister at Ophir then? I do not recollect it.
274. When was the first cradle made in Sydney? It was made just before Mr. Hargraves started for Bathurst on the 5th or 6th February.
275. What became of it? I do not know. It ought to have gone with Mr. Hargraves. What became of it I never knew.
276. So far as you know, you cannot say it was ever used? No, I cannot say it ever was.
277. Do you know under whose instructions the cradle was made by which the first payable gold was washed out? Only from report. From the evidence, I have understood that Mr. Hargraves instructed Mr. Tom how to make it.
278. The cradle was made under Mr. Hargraves's instructions? Yes, the one that Messrs. Tom and Lister used. I only go by the evidence; I have nothing else to go by.
279. When you visited Ophir, how were they getting the gold on the 6th or 7th of May? As far as I recollect, they were doing it in prospecting pans.
280. How many people were there there? From recollection I can hardly say. I can recollect that Mr. Tom had a tarpaulin tent there, and there were some others.
281. Did you not see any other kind of cradles there? No.
282. You are certain you did not see cradles made with cedar and green-hide at work? No.
283. If such things had been at work you think you would have seen and noticed them? Yes, from the novelty of the thing as a temporary contrivance. Mr. Walker requested permission from me to exhibit the one he had made under my instructions.
284. When was that cradle made? It was paid for on the 14th May; it must have been made a few days before.
285. Where did you exhibit it? I did not exhibit it; Mr. Walker exhibited it at Bathurst, and many others were made after the model of it.
286. Chairman.] By Mr. Walker? Yes.
287. Mr. Webb.] You are not prepared to say the cradle made under Mr. Hargraves's instructions was not the first cradle ever used on a gold field in the Colony? No; he might have used that first, and not used the one made in Sydney.
288. What distance is Ophir from Bathurst? I do not know.
289. Have you any idea? No; it is so long since I was there.
290. Is it 20 miles? I should say not.
291. Are you certain it is not 30 miles? I am not.
292. Have you any idea what distance Mr. Tom's place is from Bathurst? No.
293. What distance is Guyong from Bathurst? I have a vague impression that it is about 14 miles.

E. W.
Rudder, Esq.
20 April, 1879.

294. Would you believe it was 25 miles if you were told? I should think it is not, from recollection.
295. Would you suppose Mr. Tom's place, called Springfield, is 27 miles from Bathurst? Perhaps it is.
296. Would you believe Ophir is 30 miles from Bathurst? I scarcely think it is, from recollection. I can give no answers to these questions because I really do not know the distances.
297. I am rather at a loss to understand on what grounds you consider you are entitled to compensation? As being the individual who made it known to the public.
298. What did you make known? I made known the discovery of gold, and my conviction that it extended over an area of fully 300 miles of country. I went to the Surveyor General's office, obtained a map, and ascertained the nature of the country, and from that my deduction was that it did extend over that area. The fact is Mr. Hargraves would never have announced it if I had not made it known. I knew quite well, from my experience that where a man has found three specks of gold, or five specks, if he was an industrious prospector he could not fail to find more. I knew that if I had been there at the time I would have found a payable gold-field.
299. You say just now that you knew that gold had been discovered over 300 miles of country? No; that was my conclusion from what I knew.
300. In what locality? The locality would be from the gold-field there at Ophir, where gold was discovered.
301. Mr. Hurley. You say from your knowledge you prophesied that gold would be got over 300 miles of country, with Ophir as a central point—had you been 150 miles in any direction from Ophir? No.
302. How then could you say gold existed over 300 miles of country? Because I knew from the strata that existed in the country that gold would be found there.
303. Did you find the strata run 150 miles without a break? No, I had not ascertained that.
304. Do you not find, as a geologist, that country will break in 5 miles? If you once get the direction of the strata you can, if you know its bearings, form a pretty correct idea of its bearings, except where interrupted by what miners term faults or intruding strata.
305. Is it not a stretch of the imagination for a person to say that auriferous land will be found to extend for 300 miles from a given point? No, I think not, when you know the strata are of a particular character, and the geological features of the country.
306. Mr. Webb. What information had you received, and who furnished the information that caused you to say gold would be found over an area of 300 miles of country? It was simply the information I obtained from inspection of the maps in the office of the Surveyor General—the information they gave as to the geological features of the country. Sir Roderick Murchison drew a similar inference from similar information.
307. It was not from any information you received from Mr. Hargraves? Not in the slightest.
308. Mr. Hurley. Your knowledge of geology is merely abstract? I had seen a good deal of geology, and had a good deal to do with mining property in England, and I had made a study of geology. Then going through California I knew what the character of the gold-bearing country there was, and I knew that we had similar country here.
309. Your letters to the Herald were in advocacy of the doctrine of gold dissemination through granite—that was one of your chief arguments at the time, was it not? Yes. Mr. Davison and myself had had an argument on the subject in California, and he differed from me.
310. Mr. Webb. In what direction from Bathurst was this 300 miles of gold-bearing country? I cannot say now, but as far as I can recollect I should take Ophir as something like a central point, and consider that the stratification would produce gold. It might have been north and south of Ophir, or north only.
311. When you speak of 300 miles of country, what are we to understand—300 square miles? 300 miles in length.
312. What width? No specified width. It would be impossible to say the width. If I had a geological map of the country, I could tell you.
313. When Mr. Hargraves returned to Sydney, did he tell you he had been prospecting from Bathurst to Wellington? No; he did not describe the country.
314. Did he give you any description of the country he had passed over? Not that I recollect. It appears in some of his letters.
315. As far as you were concerned, you were not guided by any information you got from Mr. Hargraves? No.
316. Is it not the fact that gold has been found in many places, but is not payable? Yes.
317. Is it not a fact that it has been found over nearly one-half the country of New South Wales, but only in a few places payable? Yes.
318. Is it not a fact that it has been discovered in Ireland, and yet it is not payable? I do not know about its not being payable; I have heard it was.
319. The mere fact of having discovered gold in any country is no proof of a payable gold field? It is no proof of a payable gold field; it depends upon the character of the prospector, whether he prospected as he ought to have done. It was quite evident Mr. Hargraves did not, because Messrs. Tom and Lister, after he left, made the discovery of payable gold.
320. The fact of there being payable gold in any country does not depend upon the prospector? No.
321. But the discovery of a payable gold field does depend upon the prospector's care? Yes.
322. Mr. Hurley. You said you made known your discovery of gold? No, the discovery.
323. Supposing you had not taken time by the forelock, and given notice through the Press that gold had been found, would it not eventually have been made known to the public? It would; but it would have been discovered as a private speculation, and kept from the public till the property had been secured.
324. Would not the public have eventually attained knowledge of the fact? I presume it could not have been kept secret long.
325. Then even if your article had not appeared, the public would soon have been in possession of the discovery? Had I been there, at the spot, I have no doubt I would have discovered it.
326. How do you reconcile your petition now to the Government of this country for a sum of money, when you advocated many years that the real discoverer, Mr. Hargraves, should be rewarded, and no one else? Simply that Mr. Hargraves's five specks entitled him to be considered the discoverer, but if it had been left to him it would not have gone beyond that; he would have gone away to California.
327. What was your reason for abstaining from making an application at the time Mr. Hargraves was being so generously dealt with? I did publish a pamphlet.

328. Did you make application to the Government? No; I published that pamphlet and sent it to every Member of the House. E. W. Rudder, Esq.
329. Did you not, at Sofala, advocate a reward to Mr. Hargraves? Yes, by public subscription. 30 April, 1879.
330. What caused you to advocate a reward to Mr. Hargraves and not your own interest? Mr. Davison and myself were his companions and friends in this matter, and we did not wish to deprive Mr. Hargraves of the credit of being the first discoverer, but we certainly thought he would have the generosity and candour to acknowledge those who helped him.
331. Did you anticipate that the "spoils," if they may be so called, would be divided? Certainly not.
332. You think Mr. Hargraves should have acknowledged you in some way, after having received the reward; in what way did you expect to be acknowledged—through the Press as being one of the persons concerned in the finding of the gold—or did you expect to receive a portion of the reward? We did not expect any portion of the reward; but we thought Mr. Hargraves should have recommended us to the Government as having rendered him assistance.
333. Chairman.] Before you made known through the Press in this Colony the discovery of gold, did you not communicate from California to the Press of this Colony? Yes, I did, describing the nature of the gold-bearing country. Any person who had gone by my letters would have found gold.
334. That was long before Mr. Hargraves came to the Colony? Yes.
335. That is in evidence before? Yes.
336. Do you remember the date that letter was published? July 22, 1850.

FRIDAY, 2 MAY, 1879.

Present:—

MR. BURNS, MR. R. B. SMITH,
MR. GRAY, MR. WEBB.

R. B. SMITH, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

E. W. Rudder, Esq., called in and further examined:—

337. Chairman.] Do you desire to make any further statements in support of the allegations contained in your petition? I wish to refer particularly to Mr. J. H. Lister's evidence before the Select Committee on the Gold Fields Management Bill, in 1853, p. 67, question 18, to show the effect my letters from California produced. Here is Mr. Lister's evidence to show that what I have said is correct. Before I go, I wish to show you something as a proof of what I had said about the rocker. I think there has been some idea that there was a rocker made previous to this. Mr. Webb alluded to one that was made of bullock hide or something of that kind. I had no recollection of it at the time, but after what he said, I have some idea there was something of the kind. This will show you what it ought to have been. This is my diagram of the rocker exhibited at my lecture in Sydney. (Diagram produced.) It was from that the rocker was made at Bathurst. E. W. Rudder, Esq.
2 May, 1879.
338. What evidence do you desire to give in regard to this rocker? I merely brought that to show that the machine we heard of the other day was not a properly constructed rocker, and that the one I spoke of before was the first exhibited to the public of a proper character.
339. Mr. Webb.] You wrote a letter to Mr. Tom, the discoverer of gold, on the 6th of February last? Yes.
340. Have you a copy of that letter? I have not.
341. Is that a copy of it. (Letter handed to witness.) I believe it is.
342. Have you any objection to that letter being appended to your evidence? No. (See Appendix A 6.)
343. Did you receive any reply? I did.
344. Do you produce that reply? I have not got it here.
345. Will you have the kindness to read that. (Letter handed to witness.) Is that a copy of the reply? I believe it is. (See Appendix A 7.)
346. You published a letter in the Sydney Morning Herald of the 4th February, 1851, respecting the discovery of some specks of gold? Yes.
347. You see by the letter Mr. Tom wrote to you that he discovered a nugget of gold on the 7th April? Yes.
348. Does he or does he not intimate that up to that time he had not seen your letter in the Herald, and state that it had no bearing whatever upon his discovery of gold? That is quite correct; but it had very great bearing on Mr. Hargraves's conduct, inasmuch as it at once enabled him to go to the Government, and say he had accomplished what they required of him, and no doubt he did so; consequently he got the appointments he subsequently held, and he then threw over the friends who had assisted him; Messrs. Tom and Lister were abandoned, but Mr. Northwood would not abandon his claim, but insisted on being paid a portion of the reward Mr. Hargraves obtained—£500, the first instalment from the Crown. Mr. Northwood got from him £250, and then the partnership being dissolved Mr. Hargraves came in for the full amount of the reward after that. He then abandoned all his friends; instead of supporting those who had assisted him he turned round upon them. If you refer to the evidence given in 1853 you will find he turned round upon Messrs. Tom and Lister in a way that was most unbecoming.
349. In reference to the cradle making—I have a letter here, sent to me by Mr. Tom. The reason this letter was sent to me was that I wrote to him, asking him to exhibit the first cradle that was made at the Exhibition, and I pointed out that in your petition you stated that you gave instructions for making the first cradle. Now I wish you to read that letter, and if you are prepared to deny his statements you may do so? With regard to that there is evidently a mistake.
350. In what portion of it? My statement was that the cradle exhibited at Bathurst was the first one made of a practical nature, so far as I know; I knew of no other cradle; and I stated what I knew—nothing more.
351. Then, am I to understand that you now state that the cradle made at Bathurst was the first cradle you knew of as having been made of a practical nature? Yes; but the very first made was made in Sydney, about the 5th February, before Mr. Hargraves first started on his search for gold.

- E. W. Rudder, Esq.
2 May, 1879.
352. You did not know of the existence of the cradle referred to by Mr. Tom in that letter? No, not at that time; I should be very sorry to take from Mr. Tom or anybody else any real merit. I believe Mr. Hargraves mentions that he gave them instructions how to make a cradle, and that one was made by Mr. Tom according to his instructions.
353. Chairman.] There is a statement here that Mr. Tom never saw you till some hundreds or thousands of diggers had visited Ophir? I think he must have been mistaken, because I was there when Mr. Stutchbury was there, and I think Mr. Tom was there at the time; I think I must have seen him. There were not very many people on the diggings at that time.
354. How many? Very few.
355. Hundreds or thousands? Nothing of the kind when I went there first. I was at Guyong on the 6th of May, and visited Ophir very soon afterwards.
356. You see, according to this letter of Mr. Tom, it appears that Mr. Tom made the first cradle? The first cradle that ever was made was made in Sydney before Mr. Hargraves started upon his discovery at all. That was the first. What became of it I never knew. Then the next, so far as I know of, was the one made to my order by Mr. Walker at Bathurst, and that was paid for I think on the 14th May. There could not, at that time, have been thousands of people on the ground. It is quite impossible, because Mr. Hargraves did not make his discovery known in Bathurst till the 7th May. I have a memorandum here:—"May 7. Cleaned and prepared 4 ozs. of gold (procured on 24th April by Tom and Lister), at Mr. Hargraves' request, for him to take to exhibit to the Governor and Colonial Secretary." Mr. Tom would be perfectly correct if he said he made the first rocker ever worked upon the gold fields.
357. Mr. Webb.] Having seen this letter of Mr. Tom, you are not prepared to say you are correct in saying that either the cradle made in Sydney or the one you had made in Bathurst was the first cradle ever made? No; not in Bathurst.*
358. Do you think it probable that the claim set up by Mr. Tom, as having made the first cradle used for practical purposes on the gold fields, is correct? I am not prepared at all to deny that. That was no doubt the first cradle used by them. I have a letter in my hand that I should have produced before; but as it emanates from a member of my own family, I scarcely like to bring it before you, but when I explain the circumstances perhaps you will not consider it irrelevant. At the time alluded to I was lodging in Sydney at an hotel with my wife and two of my daughters, and I thought they might perhaps be able to give me some information. Mr. Hargraves has very frequently had interviews with me in presence of Mrs. Rudder. At the time I am alluding to, our grocery business was done with Mr. Peck, and Mr. Peck introduced Mr. Hargraves and spoke about my going to California, and I know Mrs. Rudder exercised some influence with Mr. Hargraves in inducing him to allow me to make the announcement of the gold discovery. My daughter, I thought, might be able to give me some evidence. She writes to me this:—"This morning I went to see Mamma. She well remembers the circumstance of Mr. Hargraves being advised to go to San Francisco." This is what I particularly wish to draw your attention to—she further states "it was entirely through your instrumentality that Mr. Hargraves consented to give the Government what information he could respecting the gold discovery."
359. Chairman.] What is the date of the letter? February 26, 1879.
360. Is your evidence now complete? There is one thing I wish to call your attention to. In looking over the list of names called before the Committee in 1853, I find the following gentlemen were examined. It was rather singular, I think, that I, who had been for nine months on the gold-fields of California, and for twelve months on the Ophir and Turon Diggings, besides having been Commissioner for the A. A. Company on their gold-fields for two years, was never asked to give any evidence on that occasion, when Mr. Hemington was requested to do so, who I think only represented seventy individuals, while I had represented 2,000,—Mr. Commissioner Green, who had no previous experience till the discovery; Mr. Adam Wilson, the same; Mr. Essington King, no previous experience; Mr. William Hardy, Mr. Gideon Lang, Mr. Archibald Clunes Innes, and Mr. R. G. Massie. There is something rather singular in that. My letter to the Government, laying out regulations for the management of the gold-fields, according to my Californian experience, was suppressed. My name was connected with the gold discovery in the papers both here and in England. Why was I not asked to come forward on that occasion. There seems to me something anomalous about it.
361. You were in the Colony? Yes, and could have been called at any time.

Sedgwick Spelman Cowper, Esq., called in and examined:—

- S. S. Cowper, Esq.
2 May, 1879.
362. Chairman.] What positions have you occupied in the service of this Colony? The first public position was as Associate and Clerk of Nisi prius to Mr. Justice Dickinson, formerly Acting Chief Justice, and subsequently to Sir Alfred Stephen. After that I acted as Secretary for the New South Wales Exhibition Commission—for 1861, locally, for 1862, in Europe; also as Secretary and Agent for the 1871 Exhibition in London. I was likewise honorarily deputed to elicit from the London Woolbrokers their trade opinions upon the Colonial Wool question. (See their lengthy Reports.)
363. Have you been apprised of the object of this inquiry? I have now, but not until this afternoon.
364. Can you give any evidence bearing upon the subject referred to us? I think I can. I have met Mr. Rudder to-day for the first time. With regard to the greater portion of his petition, I can give no evidence; but with reference to the latter portion, I can say that Mr. Rudder received medals in honorary acknowledgment for 1871. This last, I observe, Mr. Rudder has only mentioned as a Certificate of admission as an exhibitor for 1873; likewise Mr. Rudder received a medal. I can bear testimony to his having received these medals and honorary acknowledgment for the collections he sent Home to the different Exhibitions.
365. Mr. Burns.] Were they mineral collections? Mineral and otherwise.
366. Chairman.] Do you know what effect they had upon the public mind? I am aware that the effect upon the public mind was very substantial. I am likewise aware, not from personal but indirect knowledge, &c., &c., and that Mr. Rudder has for a considerable time bestowed a great amount of research upon the mineral resources of the Colony, and upon its indigenous resources otherwise. What he states here

* ADDED (on revision).—I also stated that I thought, had the cradle been then known in Bathurst, it was scarcely probable Mr. Walker would have requested permission from me to exhibit the one he made for me as a pattern.—E.W.R.

here is perfectly correct, that he has expended much time and much personal labour upon these researches, in addition to which he must likewise have expended considerable sums of money in getting up his collections. The catalogues of the different exhibitions will bear out what I state, that Mr. Rudder had exhibits in 1855, 1861, 1862, 1871, and 1873. Whether he exhibited in 1867, I am not aware; I think so, but I am not certain. I believe he exhibited at all the exhibitions, except the first in 1851.

S. S. Cowper,
Esq.
2 May, 1879.

367. What effect had these exhibits upon the public mind? A very great amount of attention was drawn to them. On different occasions there were exhibited 300 examples indicating various descriptions of dyes, on one occasion as many as 200 samples being shown—these attracted very great attention in Europe, as did also the minerals and other articles shown; and they afforded the opportunity of considerable interchange between the different museums. The last lot Mr. Rudder forwarded was sent as far as Moscow, where I believe they now are in the Russian Museum.

368. Where these exhibits or collections the means of doing this country any service? Yes, a very great deal of service.

369. Making the country better known? Yes; they were admired very much. In his persistent efforts in endeavouring to bring forward the indigenous resources of the country, mineral and otherwise, Mr. Rudder must have incurred a great deal of expense, and likewise spent a great deal of time.

370. Was the nature of the exhibits such as were calculated to benefit the Colony in a commercial point of view? They were most decidedly, because they afforded the opportunity of showing what our indigenous resources are, and that we merely require the capital to develop them.

371. Did the public in England seem to take great interest in these exhibits? Yes, a great deal of interest, both the poorer classes, and likewise the wealthier; they interested both descriptions of persons—the capitalist who wanted something in which to invest his money, and the operative who wanted something from which to get good wages.

PETITION OF E. W. RUDDER.

CALIFORNIA.

NOTWITHSTANDING all that we have published in the shape of letters and extracts from the local journals in relation to California, it is interesting to find that the prominent position we have always taken in discouraging immigration to San Francisco, and the disappointments which we have so repeatedly mentioned as the fate of almost all gold-diggers is, in nearly every instance, confirmed by private letters which have been received. The following letter, which bears date San Francisco, May 4th, is written by a gentleman who came to this colony sixteen or eighteen years since, and who, with his two sons, left Sydney to reap a share of the golden advantages which California appeared to offer. The writer is descriptive in his account of the country, and alludes to many things which have not yet been furnished in detail, and the letter, though lengthy, will well repay the perusal:—

“Having been to the Northern Mines, worked at them, and returned, I now feel qualified to write you, since I can give you the result of my own experience and observation, both as to the interior, the city, and those I have visited during my journey. I will, for the sake of perspicuity, endeavour to methodise my communication under a few leading heads, viz., climate, towns, country (its aspects and productions), mines, laws, and general remarks. This is a memorable day for this place. At break of day I heard what appeared to me the report of cannon from the harbour, but as the reports continued long, and at irregular intervals, I remained in doubt. I was not long in suspense. A neighbour's son came to my tent-door and called out, ‘The city is on fire.’ I dressed, went out, and soon found the report too true. I found the Square on fire on two sides, and the largest and finest buildings in California one mass of devouring element; house after house ignited with surprising rapidity, and several structures I had admired for their neatness were in a few minutes reduced to a heap of ashes. The conflagration was grand; the Square was filled with groups of people, and piles of furniture and goods of all kinds, mule teams and horse teams driving in all directions to remove property. The various groups depicted as various sensations—some congratulating each other on their escape, others lamenting their loss, some panic-struck, others indifferent; some enjoying the scene, others crying. The amount of damage sustained has been very great, probably amounting to some two or three millions of dollars. All the buildings facing seven streets, with the exception of one brick house, were consumed, leaving a large blank in the heart of the city. Mr. Catton, of Sydney, who has been burnt out, informed me there could be no doubt it was fired intentionally. The reports I heard in the morning were packages of gunpowder exploding in the various burning buildings. The morning was comparatively calm, or I think the whole city, and not unlikely the shipping, would have been all destroyed. This is the second fire on the same spot within a few months. Most of the large gambling houses are destroyed. The mayor has issued a proclamation since this account of mine was written, offering 5,000 dollars reward for the apprehension of the incendiary, and the Daily Pacific News estimates the destruction of property at 5,000,000 of dollars.

“CLIMATE.—This is the most important subject for consideration to the emigrant, and nothing can be worse to those who have been living for any long period in a mild and equable temperature, or in a country not subject to very sudden and severe changes. It might not injure a resident from Batavia, or one from New Orleans, or one from Walcheren. Neither might it affect some iron constitutions from the North; but it is merciless to about one-third of those who stop any length of time, even to the most robust. It is impossible it can be otherwise, from the nature of things; and the testimony of many miners and others with whom I have conversed bears out the fact. Several have assured me that one-third of those who landed with them are now no more. What can be expected from a climate where, for example, in the day, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. the heat is from 100° to 112° in the shade; and then before evening suddenly reduced, and at night so cold that you can scarcely keep warm under a load of blankets? Here, in the morning a dense fog spreading over the city and harbour; lights are required in the public offices; from the ships the shore cannot be seen; it penetrates every pore, and chills you through. Suddenly the sun darts upon you as the mass slowly passes over, and you are scorched with heat. A respectable American captain assured me, that on one occasion, when navigating his vessel from Sacramento city—where the thermometer stood at 145° in the sun—he entered, as he neared San Francisco, one of these fog clouds—all hands were suddenly chilled, and could not, by any effort or additional clothing, regain their warmth. The result was, that in the morning every man he had on board was taken ill with the ague. At the mines the temperature is more equal, and there are no fogs; but there I was during the day obliged to dispense with my upper garment, whilst at night, with all my day clothes on, three coverings of blankets, and a heavy counterpane, I could not sleep for the cold. It was a frost. Whilst at Marysville, the American captain I have just alluded to, who considered himself acclimatized, suffered severely under my own observation. For several days previously it had been very warm indeed; suddenly the wind changed and blew cold and strong from the Sierra Nevada and over the intermediate country, then under water. He went out for a walk, and returned after an absence of about two hours laid up by an attack of ague; and I had an attack of diarrhoea. This disease attacks great numbers. I think none escape entirely. I attribute this to the sudden change. Dysentery is another disease which takes off many, and is, I believe, to be attributed to the great heat in summer at the mines. An egg can be cooked in the sand at times in 3 minutes, so I have been credibly informed. The great heat of the mines I attribute to radiation. The mines I have visited are situated on the bank of the river or on its bed—a mass of stones brought down from the mountains by the torrents; on the outskirts of this mass there is a small plain of perhaps 50 acres, some not so much; on either side the mountains rise like the sides of a basin. As soon as the sun rises he pours his rays upon one side of this basin; all the intermediate space is soon rarefied; as his rays increase in power the heated mass of rock reflects back the heat to the opposite mountains, and so on until all the walls of the basin become heated to a higher degree. As the sun approaches the zenith the stones forming the bottom of the basin absorb the heat, and add their power to that already almost insupportable, and render it quite impossible for man to move abroad without danger. At night it is very cool, because the sun soon quits the basin, its walls overtopping its rays, which still illuminate other parts. Again, all the country about Sacramento, and particularly on the San Joaquin, is flat, and either marshy or subject to inundation. I have seen it covering the prairies as far as the eye could reach from an elevation of above 1,000 feet. When this passes off a miasma rises, and subjects those exposed to it to ague and fever. I have passed through 200 miles of this kind of country with two gentlemen, one from New Orleans, and one who had visited Batavia, and was assured it resembled both in character and appearance. Such is the climate, so far as I have been able to collect from my own and other persons' experience and observation.

“TOWNS.—Their commercial situations do not appear to have been selected with regard to the healthiness of the spot so much as importance. They rise with a rapidity unknown perhaps in almost any other part of the world. The streets are laid out at right angles to each other, and are named after the letters of the alphabet, or the arithmetical numerals. Thus we have A and B streets, No. 1 and No. 2 streets. This, however, is not universal. There is also a space left along the bank of the river for the convenience of shipping, and generally a square. The houses are of all materials except stone; sun-dried bricks called adobe, brick, wood, zinc, iron, canvas, and wood. But almost all are of wood, and that the pine, or wooden fronts and frames, and cotton and canvas roofs and walls. I have not seen twenty brick and adobe buildings in the country. Intermixed are numbers of tents. Many of the houses are very extensive edifices, and have a light and lively appearance. The fronts are in many instances very neat and ornamental. They are, however, from the nature of the timber, highly combustible. I can compare them to nothing but a collection of lucifer match boxes, and as easily swept off by fire, as proved to demonstration this morning. I have now seen San Francisco, Bonetia, Martineze, New York, Sacramento, Fremont, Vernon, Nicolas Plumas, Paine, Eliza, Juba, and Marysville. The augmentation of putrescent animal matter, dead carcasses of mules, horses, horned cattle, &c., exceeds all I ever beheld; and would be deemed pestilential in almost any part of the world. You will excuse detail—it would shock your modesty and stagger your credulity.

"COUNTRY.—About San Francisco and from thence to New York it is mountainous, and abounds in interesting scenery. From New York to Marysville, it is a flat and marshy country, subject to inundation, but abounding in splendid prairies, affording fine pasturage to cattle during the spring and early summer months. Nothing can exceed the beauty and richness of some spots. I have passed over a perfect carpet of the richest flowers for miles, and have seen thousands of acres of oats growing as regular and clean as if the result of art. This is all burnt up by the summer's sun, which leaves the forest alone verdant and pleasing to the eye. The oak, of which I have seen about six varieties, and the pine, of which I have seen five, are the prevailing timber. Grape vines abound on the banks of the Sacramento and other rivers I have been upon. I have also found the currant, gooseberry, plum, elder, nut, raspberry, blackberry, and chesnut. There is a plant of the bulbous kind which is an excellent substitute for soap. It washes well, as I can attest from repeated trials. The flowers and herbs are too numerous for me to enter upon, they are both rich in beauty and fragrance. Cattle and horses are plentiful and good, the latter small and the former equal to the average run of New South Wales, though not so high on the leg. Deer, elk, bears, buffaloes, wild cattle, antelopes, and sheep, fill up my list—the latter are remarkably fat about the kidney, far surpassing any I ever before observed, either in England or in the colonies of New South Wales or Van Diemen's Land. Wild fowl are to be seen in countless numbers, partridges, geese, quail, and ducks, &c.; snakes appear numerous—I have killed many—the rattlesnake is the most formidable. Flies and mosquitos are in great numbers. Excellent salmon and other fish are caught in the rivers; vegetables of most kinds can be obtained by cultivation, and there are several wild plants of use as esculents.

"MINES.—I have described previously what these are like where I have been; I will, however, go a little more into particulars. The gold is found in a rich red soil, not very tenacious, and sometimes on a very tenuous clay (upon its surface) where it has been deposited. It is distributed throughout the red soil; sometimes it is found in the ravines between the interstices of the rock in the beds of rivers, and in the banks, which have at some antecedent period formed the bed of the stream; it is found of all sizes, varying from the minutest grain to lumps of 25 lbs., and considerably above; these large masses are never perfectly pure, being intermixed with quartz; one piece of 86 lbs. has been found, but I presume not more than 30 lbs. of pure gold was in the mass, from the best information I can obtain. I have seen several specimens of the size of a man's fist, and some larger. That which I obtained was of the fine pure scale kind, which is considered the best quality. Any Australian settler who has ever crossed the bed of an Australian river, at what are termed the falls, where the water is shallow, and the adjoining land for 200 or 300 yards is composed of what is called shingle (that is, an immense bed of gravel stones of all sizes and forms, cemented together by clay), will at once understand the nature of gold digging. It was in such a place I worked. The stones varied from half a ton to the minutest grain. They have to be removed with the pick-axe, iron bar, and spade. The large stones are stacked on one side, and when too large left where they are found; all the small stones, clay, &c., are then washed in a machine of very simple construction called a "rocker." It is not unlike a child's cradle in form, and its motion is communicated in the same way. I have not time to describe the machine in detail. I and the gentleman with whom I worked obtained half an ounce in three hours. The average of the mines where we worked is estimated at one ounce per day to each man. From the nature of the ground to be removed, it can be easily imagined the labour is heavy, but I presume it is not more severe than thousands and tens of thousands undergo in England for 2s. per day. All the gold except the lump is mixed with emery, from which it can be freed with little difficulty. In short, the whole operation is simple, and requires little or no mental effort to understand. Mercury is used where the gold is very minute, but with this addition the process is very simple. The mercury and gold are placed in a small portable retort, and the former evaporated, and re-collected, leaving the gold in a mass at the bottom.

"THE LAWS.—At present the law administered here is that of the country previous to its conquest by America, viz., Mexican. It is prompt, severe, and immediately carried into execution. The people elect their chief officer from one of their own number, and he is not unfrequently the keeper of a store or restaurant. He is called the Alcalde. There is no appeal from his decision, even in case of "life and death." He has been known to take life with his own hand, where his authority was resisted. This power (except in the cities, where the Mexican law is adhered to) is arbitrary and absolute at the mines, and under such a state of things justice cannot be expected to hold even sway. It, however, answers here much better than the protracted forms of our Courts, or even those of America. An honest man has not much to fear. I question, if under our tardy legislative enactments, much more real injustice is not inflicted on the honest man. California does not as yet form an integral part of the Union, and no other laws than those respecting revenue, as observed in the States, are maintained by that power.

"GENERAL REMARKS.—The Americans are very heavy in their exactions from foreigners. Their Custom duties are very high, and a perfect system of plunder, as far as my experience and observation permit me to form an opinion. Justice is said to be blindfolded; here I think she has contrived to raise the bandage and keep one eye open,—she can see a bribe, oppress an alien, and extort fees, without compunction. The communications between the capital and the mines are very high. The dollar here is about equivalent to a shilling in Sydney. All money transactions are carried on in dollars and their decimals, viz., cents, 100 of which make 1 dollar. Carriage to the mines varies from 1 dollar to 10 cents. I paid 25 cents, or 1s. of our money, for the conveyance of my luggage, &c., by land. Steam communication is very general, and conducted with regularity for a distance of about 250 miles; the charge is 45 dollars; meals on board 2 dollars each. Most persons find their own provisions, as the time is short, and they take their own blankets. Beds are charged extra. There is frequently only room to stand, owing to the crowded state of the vessel. Provisions are at all prices, varying according to supply and distance. One dollar per lb. is sometimes a standard price for every article sold by weight. There is however no fixed rule, all depends on circumstances. Much of the meat is very bad, but in the regular butchers' shops it may be had of very good quality; game is abundant in the city; there the usual charge for a dinner is 1 dollar 50 cents. The following are the present prices of the goods named, as near as I can obtain:—

New Zealand Pork, in tierces (very good)	18 dollars. lbs.
American Prime, that is the entire wild hog	20 " 200
Ditto, prime mess, without head and feet	22 " 200
Ditto, mess, superior quality	25 " 200
Ditto, clean, with all bone taken out	36 " 200
Ditto, rump, the ham pieces cut up	36 " 200

Fine flour, per 100 lbs., 5 dollars. Hard bread very various; beef, fresh, 25 cents; butter, 1 dollar; cheese, 75 cents to 1 dollar, retail; Cognac brandy, per case, in quantity, 4½ to 6 dollars; claret, in case, 3½ to 5 dollars; brandy, in cask, of best quality, 90 cents to 1 dollar 20 cents, according to the size of package; rum, ditto, 50 cents. This will be sufficient to give a general idea. Ships are at a nominal value; lumber previous to the fire not worth the expense of landing only; clothing plentiful and cheap; vegetables of all kinds scarce and dear. Changes here are wonderfully rapid, the Americans, in all things relating to commerce, being a speculative and energetic people.

"RELIGION.—Though last, is not to me the least, but most important matter for consideration. Here, all are free to do as they please; and although many carry on their work and trade, and the gambling-houses towards midnight are crowded, the major part of the people suspend their labour on the Sabbath-day. Pious men are making efforts, and various places of worship are opened. Out-door preaching and tract distribution are also observed.

"Men of all nations are assembled here, with little exception. I have met with English, Scotch, Irish, French, Swedes, Norwegians, Aborigines of New South Wales, Native Australians, Americans from all parts of the Union, Dutch, Germans, Poles, Jews, Chinese, New Zealanders, South Sea Islanders, Negroes, Creoles, Spaniards, Portuguese, Italians, Mexicans, Chilians, &c., &c. I have much to tell you of the Americans, the manners and customs of the Aborigines, Indians, &c., which I must defer. I have also been obliged to omit all attempt at illustration of the geographical, geological, and political aspect of this part of the world, together with all places either seen or touched at on my voyage here.

"There are one or two remarks, however, I must not omit, because I hope they may influence others, so as to prevent them falling into my error in coming here. Gold is to be had by working for, and in some instances in such quantities to make make the fortunate find a rich man at once. It is not for any prudent man to calculate upon a mere freak of nature (if I may use the expression). The question is, what can a man do possessed of common prudence and industry, and what may he calculate upon as the result? The result of my enquiry is, that the general average earnings at the mines for the year round is about 7 dollars per day, and the expense of maintenance about 2 dollars. There is much loss of time from elemental causes to be taken into account: snow, rain, flood, and heat, all have their periods during which the miner must remain idle. Then again, there is an expensive and mostly an useless outfit, the expense of passage to and from to be placed to the debit side; and when all has been fairly estimated and a just balance struck, it will be found that mining for gold is by no means so profitable as is generally supposed. I have said, as yet, nothing of the loss of comfort and risk of life; this is indeed a large and weighty item to the debtor side, one which, in my opinion, leaves a large amount which can never be repaid. Thousands of different opinions will, no doubt, be given, all emanating from the varied success of the narrator, the strength of his constitution, and the place he worked in. Few will, I presume, draw general conclusions—any man who has a comfortable home does wrong to quit it—he may meet with remunerative success, but the probability is, he will ever repent his venture, because, if for no other reason he must sacrifice all domestic comfort, which to a man long used to enjoy it, is an evil of high magnitude; but to this let him add sickness, hard labour, being an alien, and all the discomfort of one of the worst climates under the sun, with death constantly staring him in the face from this cause, and I think he will conclude it would have been good for him had he never heard of California. Necessity alone keeps me here; when that necessity no longer exists, I will not stay a needless hour."

This picture of California requires no colouring on our part. The writer when he quitted Sydney left with sanguine expectations of success, and none of his hopes have been realized, and his anxiety to return is illustrative of the difficulties, disadvantages, and disappointments, which the larger proportion of emigrants have to encounter.

Extract from the Sydney Morning Herald, Saturday, February 22, 1851.

CALIFORNIA.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—So numerous, various, and contradictory are the accounts that appear before the public from time to time that those interested in obtaining correct information feel bewildered, if not altogether sceptical.

To account for this confliction of testimony respecting so important and interesting a portion of the globe, it must be borne in mind that the temper of the writer materially influences his views of things. We have known an individual so overcome by depression of spirits as not to be able to look upon the most beautiful Californian scenery without detracting from its merits. We have seen another possessing such energy and buoyancy of mind as to see no difficulty, but such as was retrospective, sanguine to the last. One has been successful, another disappointed. One has been a victim to climate, the other has enjoyed robust health. The nature of the operations at the mines is various, and their character for richness as fluctuating as the wind. Where the objects are various, and the medium through which they are seen equally so, can we wonder at the conflicting nature of the evidence to be derived from such sources?

To presume to say none are successful would be to state so glaring a falsehood as not for one moment to obtain credence; and, on the other hand, to say that all were prosperous would be equally untrue. There is, however, that tendency to make public fortunate events, and suppress those of an adverse character, that we hear but half the truth, and that much exaggerated. The American merchant, storekeeper, restaurant keeper, gambler, and speculator in mines are all interested in making the most of every successful "hit;" it "brings grist to the mills." A large lump of gold or the proceeds of one good mine are quickly announced through the medium of the San Francisco, Sacramento, Marysville, and other papers; the most glowing accounts are given, and the excitement, success, and future prospects of the miners of the district dilated upon in the most inviting terms, while all cases of distress and disappointment are carefully avoided. Thus we have arrayed against truth, without partiality, delusion, infatuation, and self-interest. Such is the information the newly arrived emigrant has laid before him. As he walks the streets of San Francisco he sees in all the bullion offices, banks, and gambling-houses, large lumps of gold, gold dust in basins, and heaps of coin temptingly displayed. Crowds occupy the streets or are hurrying to the steamers and boats going to the mining districts; everything is new and exciting. If he seeks for information he finds it so conflicting that the more he inquires the more he feels perplexed, till at length, perhaps, meeting with some one in whom he thinks he can confide, he shapes his course for life or death, riches or poverty. None, however, but those who have confidence in their own resources venture to the mines; the sick and cowardly return home, or remain in the city (we speak, of course, of such only as come to mine). A chivalric spirit pervades most, they do not like to be esteemed cowards, they cannot endure it should be said of them hereafter that having braved the dangers of the great deep they were not manly enough to dare the risks, partake of the fatigues, or share the hazards of a miner's life.

If left to the quiet influence of sound judgment, thousands who have ventured over the Pacific would instantly return; but to most this is impossible; to the mines or city labour they must go or perish; they have not the means to return—all their funds are exhausted—to look to friends were futile. Where are they? Though surrounded with fellow-men, they may with propriety be said to be "out of humanity's reach;" not that there are no benevolent men or institutions, for there are both, but all are so bent upon one grand object, that of gain, that no one seems to have time for a display of the kindlier feelings of our nature. Should ill-health follow change of climate (which it does most generally) they may die even before their case can meet with due attention; but if health permit to the mines they go—they meet thousands travelling the same way; those who pass them are either wandering miners traversing the country in search of better mines than those they have left, or are returning home either successful or disgusted, and with more or less shattered constitutions. Inquiries are made of all, the accounts differ in almost every case, so that not knowing what to believe or what to discredit, the mines are reached.

Let us now trace the miner's career when in the midst of gold workings—we will pass over for the present the journey itself, with all its attendant discomfort. To them all is new and strange and perplexing. The first object is to find a place either to pitch a tent (for few go without this most desirable article) or to seek a shady tree under which to repose rolled up in a blanket; or if their funds will permit, a place to lie down upon at some "restaurant" or lodging-house. This object attained, the next is to go round and see what others are doing, and, if possible, find an unoccupied spot, and learn from observation the mode of working. Here, however, disappointment awaits them. We use the plural because no one goes to work alone (or very rarely), all unite with one or more individuals. They find all worth having is pre-occupied or claimed. There may be some deserted spots abandoned for their poverty; should one of these be found, prudence will dictate the propriety of trying it. (We have frequently done so, and therefore speak from experience, and have found them produce sufficient to purchase food till a better mine was found.) This process is termed "prospecting"; it consists in procuring a portion of soil from the mine in a round tin dish about 18 inches in diameter and 4 inches deep, with sides sloped so as to reduce the diameter at the bottom to about 12 inches. The soil thus collected is taken to the river and carefully washed. This is done by first immersing the whole in the water so as to cause that fluid to mix with the soil and give it the consistency of mire; it is then stirred with the hand and shaken from side to side, giving it a peculiar motion (only to be acquired by practice) so as to allow the heavier particles to gravitate; it is next plunged into the water and raised rapidly in an inclined direction, so as to allow the lighter particles to glide away with the retiring fluid. This is repeated till all is carried off but a small residuum, and no discolouration remains from soluble substances. This residuum is usually a black substance resembling gunpowder, of great specific gravity, and is an ore of iron known commonly as emery; from this the gold is distinguished by its refulgent and metallic lustre, and is either in small lumps, very minute scales, or grains. This is carefully collected and dried, and the emery either extracted by the magnet or blown away, that is, all that remains, the greater part having been washed away. The gold thus collected is then estimated, and according to its value in cents, the mine is deemed valuable or otherwise. In some instances, after persevering for a few feet, mines previously deemed of a very trifling value, have proved remarkably rich. Should any one of these deserted mines be found sufficiently productive to support them, two of the party will go to work as soon as possible, and send the third out prospecting, to see if he can find a more lucrative spot. Should the prospector succeed, and return with a favourable report, all then proceed to the spot so found. Such, however, in most cases has been the untiring industry and perseverance of research by hundreds of their predecessors, that it very frequently happens that no new spot can be found in the vicinity; should such be the case, the party must be content to remain where they are till some favourable opening presents, or send one or two of their number to a greater distance. Thousands thus traverse the country in every direction. We never went into any part, however remote or retired, that we did not find we had been preceded. In these journeys, rocks have to be surmounted, mountains traversed, traversed, rivers crossed, plains explored, gullies and brooks searched, in short the earth's surface examined in all likely directions, and portions of its soil upturned (sometimes for many feet in depth) and washed. We will now suppose the miner after his best efforts settled down to work at good bank diggings, either acquired by persevering individual research or by purchase. It may be perhaps requisite to a clear understanding of the miners' chances of success to state that many mines are to be purchased, the price varying according to the ascertained or supposed value, from 20 dollars to 2,000 dollars and upwards. Shares in mines are also to be purchased from retiring partners, at all imaginable rates. If the miner has money it is often his best plan to purchase. It is, however, a speculation attended with much risk—we have known 1,000 dollars to 1,200 dollars given for interests which never returned 1 cent. The following details—we pledge ourselves to be from sources which we know to be authentic—exhibit the amount of labour performed during one successful week. The company consisted of three active young men and a fourth advanced in years, all having had considerable experience. The young men, however, alone worked the mine, their senior being engaged in providing for their comfort, and occasionally working by himself at another spot. They were very energetic and persevering miners.

The temperature of the atmosphere was, when observed at 11 o'clock a.m., from 96 degrees to 98 degrees in the shade, by one of Fahrenheit's thermometers. 1,840 buckets of soil were carried to the river, a distance of 45 yards. Each bucket was at a very low estimate considered as containing 23 pounds weight or 3 gallons of soil, freed from all large stones. To obtain two buckets, which was the number carried each time, 168 lbs. of stone had to be removed and stacked up behind the miners, so as to allow sufficient room for working operations. Vast numbers of these required the united efforts of all engaged to remove them with the aid of powerful levers. Many of the stones weighed from 5 cwt. to 1 ton. The rest were of all sizes.

	Tons.
1,840 buckets of soil	23
5,520 ditto stone	69
Total weight removed.....	92

Two buckets being carried each time, 56 lbs. had to be sustained to the river, a distance of 45 yards. The number of journeys performed carrying this weight amounted to 920, which equals 23 miles and nearly one-half, and the return journey being a like distance, gives 47 miles as the number walked. The distance increasing as the mine advanced, the real number of miles would be more than that set down. In addition to this labour many thousands of gallons of water had to be lifted out of the river to wash the soil in the machine, from which again the small stones had to be emptied, after which the process of panning out and cleaning had to be performed. This, it must be observed, is an account of the actual labour performed at one of the best diggings at the time upon the Middle Yuba, within a considerable distance. The yield from the above amounted to 192 dollars, to be divided into three equal parts. The next week's produce, with an increased distance, amounted to 170 dollars 46 cents. The total amount of gold obtained by these gentlemen we are enabled to give from accounts kept at the time, commencing on the 15th of July, and terminating on the 28th of September, was 1,108 dollars' worth, or about 13 dollars 19 cents per diem, or 4 dollars 39 cents each. We have as yet, however, made no allowance for expenses, such as food, tools, clothes, and travelling; we will, therefore, reverting to the documents before us, trace out the result up to the landing of our friends in Sydney. In doing so we are assured every economy had been practised, and that the party considered themselves fortunate in the results. From these documents we find they landed with 129 dollars, or not quite 43 dollars each. Their outfit cost about 1,000 dollars; they were therefore infinitely worse off than previous to their leaving, independent of any consideration for loss of time, ill health, risk of life, or hardships endured during a period of near fourteen months' absence from home, nearly nine of which were spent in California. It can scarcely be deemed needful to remark how much better it had been for them had they remained in this colony even at the average wages of most servant men.

We will now instance the result attending the labours of three able-bodied men inured to hard work from infancy, one of them being a very powerful man, in the vigour of manhood, and therefore well qualified for the undertaking. They accompanied us to the Yuba River, and worked within sight of us. In three days the strongest man was disabled, the whole were discouraged, sold their mining implements, and returned to San Francisco. They did not obtain half an ounce of gold between them; they found the labour too severe and the heat too oppressive. Where are they now? One, the strongest, is known to be dead, a second is reported dead, and the third is in this colony. Of 150 who entered California with an intimate friend (with whom we travelled many hundred miles in the gold regions, and we know would not mislead) 50 only can now be accounted for, 100 are either dead or missing. The statement we have given in the preceding part of this account has been that of an acknowledged good mine. Thousands, however, have not met with equal success; many in September last were not making more than 2 dollars per day. The whole country was swarming with adventurers searching every corner for gold, and thousands more were anticipated. Many have we seen who have cursed the day they ever heard of California. Hundreds of domestic circles in the States have been the scene of deep mourning and anguish for loss of relatives and squandered means. The overland route last year was attended with the most disastrous results. Napoleon's retreat from Moscow was not much more dreadful—the cholera and starvation effected that amongst the immigrants which the sword and elements did among the French troops. The possession of £100 to the labouring man from the States, or this colony, or any other part of the world, is to him a fortune, which, managed with prudence, may lead to independence, and raise his family in the scale of society. Gold mining being an occupation which, in California, requiring no effort of mind, no previous education, and no capital to risk beyond the cost of a few tools, will always hold out inducements to the man who must earn his bread by manual labour only. The poorest and most illiterate is as good a miner as the most scientific employer of other men's sinews; and where all are upon an equal footing, the mines hold out inducements which will more or less allure, despite disease and death. Like the survivors after an engagement wherein they have been victorious, they will celebrate their triumph over the graves of less fortunate comrades, and be ready again not only to rush into fresh dangers, but invite others by the renown of their exploits. It in fact closely resembles a lottery; were all blanks, there would be no speculators, but one prize of large amount, and two or three minor ones judiciously distributed, overwhelm the discontent occasioned by a thousand blanks. We have known thousands of dollars expended, and Herculean tasks performed, without any return worth mention, where, from appearances, and the result of natural causes a rich harvest might with reason have been expected, while, within 100 yards of the same place, we have seen 8 dollars' worth of gold obtained in a single pan. In one instance, in prospecting a mine at the Forks, we saw gold, to the value (as near as we could estimate) of 32 dollars—the produce, as we understood, of little more than the same amount of soil; and subsequently, in or near the same spot, the three miners who held the claim obtained 27 pounds' weight of gold per diem, of the value of 5,184 dollars to the company, or 1,728 dollars per man on division, and 4,076 dollars' worth more than our three friends previously alluded to obtained in seventy-four days of equal (probably more severe) exertion. What lottery can exhibit more unequal success? Here was a prize worth a risk, the fame of which spread far and wide, gave a stimulus to exertion, encouraged the desponding, and urged the sanguine to enter upon new fields in the hope of equal success. The very fact of such success being independent of skill urged them on—each said to himself, "Who can tell but I may be equally fortunate? Who knows what is hidden beneath the surface?" Thus it is thousands are hurried on, reckless of consequences, but each hoping to be the fortunate finder of some vast amount of hidden treasure. Alas! What an amount of real misery does this departure from the sober realities and more regular pursuits of life produce, and how few realize the favours of fortune. Still further, to show the uncertain nature of gold distribution, the following results are given from our own mine:—

1 pan of soil yielded	5 cents' worth of gold.	38 pans of soil yielded	300 cents' worth of gold.
10 Do.	25 Do.	13 Do.	100 Do.
1 Do.	60 Do.	1 Do.	20 Do.
1 Do.	75 Do.	10 Do.	102 Do.
1 Do.	115 Do.	1 Do.	250 Do.
18 Do.	16 Do.

The pan which contained the soil was what is termed a "prospecting pan," and held rather more than a gallon; the average yield being a little over 11 cents per pan. We have visited all the northern mines of celebrity, and prospected with untiring assiduity, and never met with so large a return as in the instance above recited—viz., 250 cents; and in that instance the mine never after yielded any return worthy of the smallest notice. We have found gold almost everywhere within the mining districts, so that, from experience, we know its distribution is very extensive; but, at the same time, we are equally certain that the general average is very small. We know, also, from indisputable authority, that the same remarks equally apply to the south, and that it is only in highly favoured localities, pre-occupied, that gold in large and remunerating quantities is to be found. What new discoveries may bring to light is only known to the Supreme Being; but so closely searched is every imaginable spot likely to contain the precious metal, that he indeed must be esteemed fortunate who meets with riches.

In our own mine (and we know it to be the case in other instances) we left much soil unworked which contained gold averaging above 5 cents per pan; but this would not repay the expense of working, while that yielding 10 cents could be obtained with equal facility. As the value of labour diminishes, and the price of provisions, with all other articles of human consumption, become more reasonable, all these places will be re-worked. Companies possessed of capital will then take up the mining business, and hire labourers; but not till the labour market, through the redundancy of immigration and the destitution and misery of the immigrant, has reduced him to the necessity of accepting such wages as will remunerate the capitalist for employing him. America was pouring in her thousands upon thousands by the overland route, by the Horn, and by Panama. Drought and cholera have checked this desertion of the States by land; cholera has also met them by way of Panama. Frightful have been its ravages. We have seen citizens from the States who in their journey overland have paid 5 dollars per pound for biscuit. Seventy to one hundred teams, we have been assured by eye-witnesses, have been counted deserted, and the beasts of drought all dead, within a distance of 14 miles; property of all kinds lay abandoned, and most of the owners numbered with the dead. This state of things will, of course, operate as a check for a time; but when the cause is removed, such is the buoyancy and energy of the American people, such their spirit of enterprise and taste for speculation, that a reaction will take place, and thousands of new adventurers rush into the Californian regions. The price of labour must eventually come down, but not till gold-hunting is found to be so precarious and unremunerating as no longer to compete with the ordinary sources of employment. From what we have advanced it will be seen that rapid fortunes may, and have been, made—but they are few and far between; and that misery, disappointment, disease, and death are, in the majority of cases, in the ascendant. It can certainly hold out no inducement to the man of education who is in even tolerably easy circumstances; to the poor man it is a lottery, which has for him some prizes amongst a multitude of blanks, stamped death or disease. We could say much about employment in towns, mercantile and agricultural pursuits, but must defer it to another opportunity, contenting ourselves with the remark that we have been assured it has been ascertained that, for the number of its population, more cases of insanity are to be met with in San Francisco than in any other city of equal size; and that at one time, notwithstanding every cabin passenger paid 3 dollars, and every steerage passenger and sailor paid 1 dollar on entering the harbour for hospital fees—that the Corporation had incurred a large obligation beyond the resources at their command for hospital accommodation, medical attendance, and the burial of foreigners; still, no doubt those who have succeeded will invite their friends, and that they will follow is probably equally certain, while the unfortunate will be disbelieved, the dead forgotten, and fatal experience alone convince the living. The impolitic measures of our own government are sufficient to produce that discontent which makes men look abroad for relief; but if we may be permitted to offer advice, the result of personal observation and experience, we should recommend our fellow-colonists to remain where they are, in their own beautiful climate, in a country possessing all the elements of future greatness in a degree inferior to no other and superior to most. To unite with the wise and virtuous in removing by all lawful endeavours, the evils which press upon the energies of the people, and thus discharge their duty to themselves, their children, and posterity, rather than join any foreign nation, however liberal its Government (and none is more so than the American), where they will be looked upon with distrust and jealousy, and be treated as aliens for years.

We possess all the essential elements of a free and enlightened Government; it has its imperfections, but still it is superior in our own opinion to that democracy which we can only compare to liberty run mad, which requires as great efforts to bring it within the bounds of reason as ours requires to raise it to the proper standard.

P.S.—We have said nothing about damming companies or dry diggings; their history would form the subject of another letter; the above, however, is an account of what is so familiar to all who have visited the mines; we hope it will sufficiently illustrate the miners progress to meet with general recognition and confirmation.

ADDITIONAL GOLD REGULATIONS.

To the Editor of the Bathurst Free Press and Mining Journal.

Sir,—The importance of the new regulations now promulgated induces me to offer a few remarks upon their nature. They are of great moment, inasmuch as they are calculated to do this colony an immense amount of mischief, by preventing that influx of capital and intelligence which would undoubtedly flow from the mother country, and enrich this splendid region. What is it but establishing the hated and partially obliterated "Excise System?" They are in opposition to the spirit of the age. (These observations are particularly directed against the fourth regulation, having reference to quartz crushing.)

A door will be opened by the adoption of these measures to a system of espionage, bribery, and probably perjury, hitherto unknown in the colony. They remind us of that inquisitorial enactment which thrust an excise officer into every glass house, who was placed there to watch every action, and pounce upon every inadvertent trespasser against whom the revenue laws denounced severe pains and penalties. It was, in fact, the establishment of a Government spy upon the premises, who could, at any moment, by his acts embarrass a whole establishment, and involve the proprietor in heavy pecuniary losses. What do these additional regulations enact? That an officer whose duty it may be to collect the 10 per cent. royalty must be permitted to reside on or near the works, and have access at "all reasonable times (who is to determine this?) not only to the works, but to all books and accounts connected with the production of gold." What man in this day of enlightenment who has a spark of British spirit about him would accept of such conditions upon which to hold his tenure? Are we to revive in this rising community a system condemned and dying out at home—a trammel upon our industry—a fetter upon liberty—a check upon our rising wealth—a withering blast which must destroy all freedom of action in the control of those bounties now laid before us by a benignant Providence? No! no! Let free trade principles rule our gold regulations, and some better, more liberal, and less objectionable plan be devised, than the one now propounded. What will be their effect in England? No man of property, possessing the spirit of freedom within him, will venture to our golden region. They are against the spirit of the age in which we live, and the political atmosphere breathed by every Englishman. California will hold out brighter and fairer prospects; and our quartz veins will be left unworked, or become abandoned by those hasty speculators who may have contemplated commencing operations.

The sooner these new regulations are abandoned the better; they are all more or less defective, and are the result of inexperience—inexperience in all practical business operations. They are calculated to do immense injury to this colony, and ought as soon as possible to be withdrawn. It is only necessary to peruse the regulations to justify the remarks which have been made; in the hope that the hon. and learned member for this county will, without delay after reading this communication, bring the subject before the Legislature of the colony, and ask for a committee to consider the whole subject of gold mining regulations, with power to examine witnesses, &c.; not selected from the merchants of Sydney, the purchasers and exporters of gold, but practical miners,—men who have had home and American, as well as Colonial experience as employers of labour, and are conversant with mining operations. That our local Government has done much, and deserves the confidence of the public, for the manner in which the gold-field has been opened, all will agree; but as in all new and pressing matters, experience is required. There is no doubt but the Executive will readily co-operate in the adoption of such measures as are calculated to secure lasting benefits to the whole community, and rescind such as, upon deliberate consideration, are found to be prejudicial.

A MINER.

THE PETITION.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONORABLE HOUSE,—

A series of Regulations having been issued by the Executive Council respecting the working of the newly discovered gold fields, we, your petitioners, being miners on the Turon, and otherwise interested in the development of the mineral resources of the country, feeling that our interests and those of the colony are vitally compromised by these Regulations, beg to call the attention of your honorable House to the subject.

During

During the operation of the first issued Regulations, your petitioners, fully appreciating the difficulty of legislating in haste, and on a subject so entirely new, have waited in silence in the full expectation that, due time having been allowed for deliberation, the Government would have come forward with measures adapted to the occasion, and equitable in their operation.

The recently issued gold Regulations being, in the opinion of your petitioners, alike impracticable and unjust, a meeting was resolved upon in order that public expression might be given to the opinion of practical men on the subject.

A public meeting was accordingly held at Sofala, on the 8th of November, at which meeting, attended by at least two thousand persons engaged in mining operations, it was unanimously resolved:—

"That the present system of licensing is unjust in principle—being a tax upon labour and not upon produce."

"That the tax paid by the diggers is exorbitant, and that the present mode of collecting it is unnecessarily vexatious."

In support of these propositions your petitioners would urge,—

That a direct tax upon labour is opposed to all sound principles of political economy.

That it is a restriction upon the power of production.

That it acts as a check on the employment of labour.

That it causes a great waste of the national wealth, as it obliges the employer of labour to work only on the most profitable portions of the soil.

That it is unequal in its distribution, no other class of labourers paying a tax upon their muscular energies or the sweat of their brow.

That its high rate is prejudicial to the revenue, and subversive of moral rectitude in the people, from its holding out strong inducements to its evasion.

With regard to the present mode of collecting the tax, your petitioners would submit that it is vexatious, inasmuch as the officers appointed for its collection requiring the miners to wait upon them, instead of consulting the convenience of the miners by collecting it as hitherto at the claims, or by fixing on convenient localities where they might meet the miners, much loss of time is incurred, which is equivalent to the imposition of an additional tax.

Your petitioners also deem it an uncalled-for and provoking display for policemen to be stationed, pistol in hand, at the Commissioners' tents during the transaction of business, or in like manner perambulating the claims amongst a peaceable and industrious population; and whilst they admit that all reasonable precautions should be taken to meet any emergency that might arise, your petitioners consider the present practice useless, whilst it is both irritating and insulting to a free and loyal people.

Your petitioners would further submit that the Regulations respecting quartz crushing and the drainage of waterholes are so utterly impracticable as to be virtually prohibitory, and are calculated to act preferentially in favour of foreign countries, where no such restrictions are imposed; and whilst they are thus likely to divert the influx of labour and capital from our shores, they confine the employment of our own capital and industry to one branch of gold mining only, viz., gold washing.

Your petitioners, in conclusion, beg to call the attention of your honorable House to the fact that a growing feeling of discontent has resulted from the promulgation of these Regulations, and they therefore earnestly pray your honorable House to appoint a committee, with power to take the evidence of practical men, as to the working and tendency of the gold Regulations upon the mining and national interests of this valuable dependency of the British Crown; and that your honorable House will adopt such measures, founded on the information so obtained, as the urgency of the case shall in your wisdom demand.

Signed on behalf of the meeting,

E. W. RUDDER,
Chairman.

Sofala, November 15, 1851.

[Ordered by the Committee to be appended to the Evidence of Mr. E. W. Rudder, 2 May, 1879.]

EXTRACTS from the Evidence taken before the Select Committee in 1853 on the "Gold Fields Management Bill."

Mr. Hargraves's partnership with Messrs. Tom and Lister.

Mr. William Tom's Evidence:—

10. When Mr. Hargraves returned to Guyong from Dubbo, what was done? He left for Sydney.

11. He remained at Guyong some time, did he not? He did not prospect at all during that time, to my knowledge.

12. By the Chairman.] When were you admitted as a partner? I cannot say what was the date; I believe I had been out searching off and on in my brother James's place, he having to go to Adelaide, but I will state the circumstances which made me believe I was associated with him as a colleague. When he was going away to Brisbane Water, I believe on the evening immediately preceding his departure, he came to wish us farewell, at my father's place of residence, Springfield, about four miles from Guyong. When he was about to start I accompanied him to my father's stable, and, after his horse was taken out, he and I arranged that when he got home he should proceed to the Moreton Bay district, and give that country a thorough prospecting trial; he said, if he did not succeed, he intended as soon as he returned to go to California. This was his expressed intention to me while he was holding his horse at the end of my father's stable. I made precisely the same arrangement with regard to what I would do in the neighbourhood we were then in—the Guyong, or rather Ophir neighbourhood.

Mr. John H. Lister's Evidence:—

22. What did you understand him to mean by "one of ourselves"? Mr. Hargraves at the first outset, when I showed him the indications from the Turoon, said, if you will join me and find the articles I require, I will take you with me, and whatever arises from the discovery we will share in it, and, said he, it will be a very handsome thing if we find it payable.

30. Was there any understanding with Mr. Hargraves that you and Mr. Tom were to be partners with him in working for gold? I asked Mr. Hargraves whether he had any party connected with him, and he said no, no one but me.

31. I mean, were you to be partners and share in the profits? Yes; that was under an arrangement with Mr. Tom and myself. Mr. Tom came up to Mr. Hargraves and myself, after leaving the house, and Mr. Hargraves said we had found gold in small quantities, and that we only wanted to find it in larger quantities, and he would take him as one of ourselves. We then proceeded to Burrandong, on the Macquarie.

80. By Mr. Macleay.] Who were the members of your company? The two Toms and myself.

81. Mr. Hargraves was not a member? I do not know whether he considered himself so.

82. Did you suppose him to be a member at the time? Yes.

Mr. E. H. Hargraves's Evidence:—

99. By Mr. Macleay.] Would you call a guide a colleague? They were sworn to secrecy, not to divulge anything they saw me do or heard me say; they might be deemed colleagues in the secret.

100. By the Chairman.] There was a sort of compact between you as regarded secrecy? There was; and I might have used the word colleague improperly.

Mr. Commissioner Green's Evidence:—

220. Do you believe the allegations of this petition to be true? I do, from what I have heard from various parties. I think it was on the 9th or 10th of May, the day after Mr. Hargraves came into Bathurst, that I, as Crown Land Commissioner for the district, went to Summerhill Creek to call upon the people who were there to desist from digging upon Crown Lands. When I arrived there I found four or five people, among whom were the Tom's and Lister; they showed me the gold they had got, and stated Mr. Hargraves was their partner. When I served them with notice, they said they had expected something of the kind, and had provided for it by getting an authority from Mr. Hargraves to dig. They produced this authority which was, as nearly as I can recollect, in these words, "I hereby authorize the Australian Gold Company," I think that was the name, but I am not quite sure, "to dig for gold on the undermentioned bar, Fitz Roy Bar, for a mile down from the junction," and some other bar a mile up, "and to prevent all other parties working within the said boundaries. (Signed) EDWARD HAMMOND HARGRAVES." I forget what he calls himself, but I think it was Gold Commissioner. I told them that this authority was of no avail, and that if Mr. Hargraves had been there I should have served him with notice.

had

Disappointment and intended return to California.

Mr. Commissioner Green's Evidence:—

217. Who do you think was the real discoverer of this gold—was Mr. Hargraves or were these young men? I have heard that at the time they discovered it, Mr. Hargraves had given up the search; it is so reported in the Western District; it is a matter of notoriety.

223. Do you mean that he had gone without any intention of returning? Yes, under the impression that they could not find gold in sufficient quantity to pay; so I have understood.

Mr. E. H. Hargraves's Evidence:—

1. By the Chairman.] There are a few supplemental questions which the Committee wish to ask you in addition to your former evidence. Since you were examined, we have had Mr. Lister before us, and one of his statements to the Committee was to the effect that, when you and he parted at Bathurst, and after having been prospecting together, you left with an intention to go somewhere to the northward, and that you intimated your intention to return to California if you did not find gold there—is that true or not? I cannot recollect the precise words I used, but to the best of my recollection I told him that I had very important business in Sydney, and I could not remain with him any longer. I believe he came a few miles on the road with me. I did not then tell him that I intended returning to California, but I recollect saying, when I first went there, that if I was not successful in my search for gold I intended to do so.

Mr. William Tom's Evidence.

10. When Mr. Hargraves returned to Guyong from Dubbo, what was done? He left for Sydney.

11. He remained at Guyong some time, did he not? He did not prospect at all during that time, to my knowledge.

12. By the Chairman.] When were you admitted as a partner? I cannot say what was the date; I believe I had been out searching off and on in my brother James's place, he having to go to Adelaide, but I will state the circumstances which made me believe I was associated with him as a colleague. When he was going away to Brisbane Water, I believe on the evening immediately preceding his departure, he came to wish us farewell, at my father's place of residence, Springfield, about 4 miles from Guyong. When he was about to start I accompanied him to my father's stable, and, after his horse was taken out, he and I arranged that when he got home he should proceed to the Moreton Bay district, and give that country a thorough prospecting trial; he said if he did not succeed, he intended as soon as he returned to go to California. This was his expressed intention to me while he was holding his horse at the end of my father's stable. I made precisely the same arrangement with regard to what I would do in the neighbourhood we were then in—the Guyong, or rather Ophir neighbourhood.

Mr. John H. Lister's Evidence:—

40. By Mr. Bligh.] What did he mean by the north ward? To the northward of Port Stephens. When I wished Mr. Hargraves good-bye, he expressed a great desire that, in case neither of us should succeed in finding gold in paying quantity, I should go to California with him.

42. Did you understand that he had given up the matter in despair? That he had quite given it up.

147. By the Chairman.] You say Mr. Hargraves asked you to go back to California with him if he did not succeed in his explorations here? He wished me to go.

149. Did any conversation between you and Mr. Hargraves lead you to the impression that if you and the Toms had not discovered the 4 ozs. of gold he would have gone back to California? I believe he would, if his friends had not advised him to show the small specks to the Government.

152. You say he expressed an intention of returning to California before the winter set in—did he mean the winter in California or here? Before the winter thoroughly set in in this Colony, so that he might arrive in California in summer.

153. This was in the month of May, and the winter was setting in? He was going to the northward; he thought he would be about a fortnight or three weeks to the northward, and if he did not succeed he would go to California.

Publication of Mr. Rudder's announcement of the gold discovery in the Herald and Empire, with the consent and knowledge of Mr. Hargraves.

Mr. E. H. Hargraves's Evidence:—

126. In the letter referred to, to Mrs. Lister, of the 5th of April, you say—"Tell John to write if he should make any further discovery, and say to Mr. William Tom that I am obliged to him for his favour of 24th March, and not to mention about the locality that we have been over. As for gold being found, it is of no consequence who knows it, but the localities should not be mentioned; and if I should come up to Guyong with any strangers, not to say anything about gold—I have particular reasons for it." What observations have you to make upon that? After making the arrangement, as I considered, with the Government, I did not care who knew about gold having been found; in fact, I got a friend to write a letter saying that gold had been found. I wanted to draw the public attention to the fact. I think there is a mistake in the name in that letter; it should be James Tom, for William Tom was never associated with me in any way.

Mr. John H. Lister's Evidence:—

50. Did you tell him what you had found? Yes, the exact weight of it. He never answered my letter, but, a few days afterwards, I saw in the Herald a paragraph stating that Mr. Hargraves had discovered a gold country of about three hundred miles in extent. We were very vexed about his putting it in the paper without consulting us. When he came up I asked him how he could do so, and he said he had shown the minute specks to some friends, and they had advised him to go to the Government.

156. By Mr. Bligh.] He did not tell you this till after you had seen the announcement of the discovery in the Sydney papers? It was in consequence of my saying he ought to have consulted us on the matter before he let any one know.

Effect of Mr. E. W. Rudder's letters on California.

Mr. J. H. Lister's Evidence:—

18. Was that from hearing of the success of Macgregor? From what I read in the papers about California.

Mr. Hargraves advised to show his five specks of gold to the Government.

Mr. John H. Lister's Evidence:—

155. By the Colonial Secretary.] You say he received certain advice from friends in Sydney to show to the Government the specks of gold he had obtained? He received advice from his friends to show them to the Government, and just after he had shown them he received my letter to say that we had discovered a workable gold field.

156. By Mr. Bligh.] He did not tell you this till after you had seen the announcement of the discovery in the Sydney papers? It was in consequence of my saying he ought to have consulted us on the matter before he let any one know.

Mr.

Mr. Rudder would have discovered gold.

Mr. Commissioner Green's Evidence:—

224. By Mr. Finch.] It would, in all probability, have been found in two or three days by Mr. Rudder, if it had not been discovered by Mr. Hargraves? Yes; Mr. Rudder, I believe, left California with the same intention as Mr. Hargraves, but was shipwrecked.

Mr. Hargraves's treatment of his friends.

Mr. Hargraves's Evidence:—

145. Was this stated in writing or verbally? It was a verbal arrangement; it was proposed as a gratuity to me for what I had done for them. I said I would accept it. I thought they were very fortunate, for they earned £20 a day, and took between £400 and £500 worth of gold into Bathurst. I went to Bathurst, and imagined that I should get one-fourth share as a gratuity for what I had done; they sold the gold, and got into wranglings and disputes in which I was called upon to interfere, and I never saw much of them afterwards, nor ever got a grain of the gold. When I was called upon by Mr. Arthur to pacify the brothers, who were fighting, their faces were covered with blood; they were making use of fearful language; eventually they were parted and locked up for safety to themselves. Shortly after this occurrence James Tom was committed to the Bathurst Circuit Court for trial, for stabbing a gentleman near Orange; the committal was from the Orange Bench.

Untruthfulness, &c.

Mr. Hargraves's Evidence:—

126. In the letter referred to, to Mrs. Lister, of the 5th of April, you say "Tell John to write if he should make any further discovery, and say to Mr. William Tom that I am obliged to him for his favour of 24th March, and not to mention about the locality that we have been over; as for gold being found, it is of no consequence who knows it, but the localities should not be mentioned; and if I should come up to Guyong with any strangers, not to say anything about gold—I have particular reasons for it." What observations have you to make upon that? After making the arrangement, as I considered, with the Government, I did not care who knew about gold having been found; in fact, I got a friend to write a letter saying that gold had been found. I wanted to draw the public attention to the fact. I think there is a mistake in the name in that letter; it should be James Tom, for William Tom was never associated with me in any way.

179. By the Chairman.] What do you say to this passage in the petition—"Had it not been for the persevering efforts of your petitioners, the discovery of gold would, most probably, have been delayed for years"? They assert that they made this discovery on the 7th or 8th of April, at Summer Hill Creek; and I had been in communication with the Government nearly a month previous, had recorded my views, and was then on my way to point out the gold field to the Government Geologist, at the request of the Government; so that I do not see that they have contributed to it in any way, except for their own benefit.

113. Did you receive any communication from Bathurst, from the Messrs. Tom and Lister, upon the subject of what they were doing? On my return from Brisbane Water, about the 24th April, I received a letter from John Lister, stating that they had taken the cradle to the place I had instructed them, and got 4 ozs. of gold; which letter I took to the Colonial Secretary as a further proof of the discovery.

183. Then, in fact, there is no foundation for this allegation in the petition? Not the slightest. I was, at the time of the alleged discovery by the petitioners, on the way to point out the gold fields as a matter of course.

Mr. Hargraves's Petition:—

Mr. E. H. Hargraves to The Lieutenant Governor of Victoria.

Sir,

Sydney, New South Wales, 9 May, 1853.

With a firm reliance on the Government of the Colony of Victoria, I have felt called upon to lay before your Excellency a statement of the circumstances under which I conceive I am entitled to make a claim on that Colony, from the benefits it has derived from my discovery of gold in the Australian Colonies, and to pray for your recommendation to the Legislative Council that my claim be taken into their consideration.

In making this claim, it will be necessary for me briefly to state the grounds on which I conceive I have a right to bring the subject under the notice of the Government of Victoria.

When the value of my discovery had assumed a character that was calculated very deeply to affect the destiny of the Australian Colonies, His Excellency the Governor General communicated to me his determination to submit my claims to the consideration of Her Majesty's Government in England, and he has now communicated to me the substance of a despatch in which he is directed to submit my claim to the consideration of the Legislative Council.

So far as this Colony has been benefited by my discovery, I am not entitled to doubt that the Council will discharge their duty with impartiality both to me and the Colony; but it is so obvious that a very large share of the advantages that have resulted from my labours has exclusively benefited the Colony of Victoria, that it can hardly be doubted that the Council of this Colony will think that the Colony of Victoria should bear a fair proportion of any reward my discoveries may be thought to entitle me to receive; and it is difficult to contemplate the rise in the value of land in the City of Melbourne and its neighbourhood, and to read the reports of the shipments of gold to England and New South Wales from that Colony, without acknowledging that Victoria has derived a very large proportion of the advantages that have resulted from the discovery. I am unwilling to trouble your Excellency with a history of the labours that have terminated in my discovery, but those labours have, by some persons in this Colony, been looked upon with so little consideration, and treated so lightly, that I shall, I trust, be forgiven for a brief notice of them.

When the hope of making the discovery induced me to return from California to Australia, my views and opinions were received with so little favour, that I made my first experiments almost without the barest necessities, and that exposed in the Bathurst country to the severity of the weather; and when my investigations led me to adopt energetic measures for the prosecution of my labours, I was wholly dependent on funds I had raised after the rate of upwards of cent. per cent., a rate of remuneration thought to be not unreasonable to enable a penniless man to prosecute so laborious and hopeless an inquiry.

We lightly think of the sufferings and privations that have terminated in a successful issue, but it requires no ordinary courage to persevere in an arduous and painful inquiry amidst the fears and discouragements of all those whose judgments and opinions we are bound to respect; as it was, the cold I endured in the Bathurst country laid the foundation of rheumatism, if not neuralgic affections, that make me painfully sensible of every change of weather, and which will, in all probability, accompany me to the grave.

In making this appeal to you, sir, I speak with the assurance that the investigations you have made, the journeys and personal inspection which a subject of so much importance as the production of gold in the Colonies induced you to undertake, peculiarly qualify you to judge of the importance of my discoveries; and I confidently trust that you will feel that the recommendation of my claim to the consideration of the Council of Victoria will be perfectly consistent with your duty as the Representative of Her Majesty in that Colony.

I have, &c.,

EDWARD HAMMOND HARGRAVES.

Mr. Tom's Evidence:—

77. You say in your petition, that you "paid the whole of the expense of the enterprise"? Yes, during the time of the actual search for gold in the neighbourhood of Bathurst.

78. What expenses were they? The horses and necessary provisions. Mr. Hargraves rode his own horse about once out of three times. Mr. Lister was the person who bore the chief portion of the expense; he bore two thirds of the expenses.

86. By Mr. Macleay.] Did Mr. Hargraves subscribe anything to the preliminary expense at all? No, he was never asked. I will not say that if he went to Bathurst he did not pay for a night's lodging, but during the actual search for gold he was not at one shilling expense.

14. By the Chairman.] You spoke before of a partnership which you said existed? Mr. Hargraves was not going to stop to work. The partnership existed up to this time, and he was to receive his share of what was procured, and return Mr. Lister, my brother, and me our shares. This document was drawn up, not at this time, some time after, when Mr. Hargraves returned us our shares of the gold. As regards time, I cannot say to a day or two; but it was written, Mr. Lister tells me, when Mr. Fisher was at Guyong—Alderman Fisher, I mean. This was drawn up by Mr. Hargraves, for the purpose of being signed by Mr. Lister. (Witness handed in the same. Vide Appendix.)

52. What is the date of that? I did not notice the date, but if the original was written on 19th May, that must be about the time we received our shares of the gold; for Mr. Fisher was shown the original, and he was at Orphir when we got our shares for the gold.

Mr.

Mr. Lister's letter to the Sydney Morning Herald:—

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,

A report having been spread abroad by some malicious person, who evidently is jealous of Mr. Hargraves's great discovery, to the effect that I was the party who made it and communicated it to him, I beg leave most unreservedly to contradict this false report—although having been upwards of two years searching for it, at one time with two geologists and mineralogists, who told me that there were indications, but could not find the gold. Mr. Hargraves, during his explorations, called on me, as an old friend of my late respected father, and in course of conversation he told me that this was a gold country, and if I would keep the secret he would combine with me. This I agreed to. He was as good as his word, and scarcely ever made a failure. Where he said gold was to be found, he found it. I neither understand geology nor mineralogy; but I am convinced, my friend, Mr. Hargraves, knows where and how to find gold; and all honour and reward in the late discovery belong to him alone. Indeed, few men would have done what he has—intersecting the country with blacks—sometimes alone—sometimes with my friend, Mr. James Tom—and during his explorations, had rain set in, from the imperfect manner in which we were equipped, starvation and death must have been the result.

Trusting that you will give this publicity in the columns of your valuable journal.

I am, &c.,

JOHN HARDMAN LISTER.

P.S.—I have also heard it reported that Mr. Hargraves had not acted fairly towards me. I beg most distinctly to state, that in all transactions with that gentleman he has acted strictly honorable with me and friends in the secret of the great discovery. Mr. Hargraves is now no longer connected with me or my party at Ophir; and wherever he may be, he has my best wishes, and, I believe, of all who know him in the district of Bathurst.

Mr. Lister's Evidence:—

95. Do you recollect the circumstance of a letter being published in the Bathurst Free Press, purporting to be signed by you? Mr. Hargraves wrote a letter, and wished me to sign it, disclaiming all credit or honour attached to the discovery, and I would not do it.

101. You refused to sign that letter? (Mr. Hargraves's draft of the letter in question handed to witness.) Yes, that is the document which Mr. Hargraves gave to me, and asked me to copy it and send it to the Herald.

102. By Mr. Macleay.] No portion of that is in your hand-writing? No.

112. By Mr. Couper.] Here is a paragraph in your petition stating "That your petitioners paid the whole expense of the enterprise, from the beginning up to the time of this announcement, and endured many days and nights of extreme hardship in establishing the above important fact, the merit of which the said Edward Hammond Hargraves so adroitly appropriated to himself"; now what do you mean by paying the whole expense of the enterprise? We found anything Mr. Hargraves wished for in the shape of horses, tools, provisions; we had to carry corn and bran for the horses while we were out, as well as provisions for ourselves.

113. What do you suppose you were out of pocket altogether? I really could not say what it cost me.

114. £10? I should think it did cost me £10.

115. Not more? It cost fully that.

116. By Mr. Bligh.] You incurred all the expenses whatever they were? Yes, except when he was at Bathurst on other business. All the expenses of prospecting, whatever it was, was borne by me and the Messrs. Tom. I did not value what it cost in any shape.

117. Mr. Hargraves did not go to the Turon, did he? No. At the time he reported on the Turon he had never been on it—not to my knowledge.

139. Did Mr. Hargraves at any point on the journey see the Turon country? He might have seen the junction at a distance of nine or ten miles, but he could not have told the character of the country.

140. By the Chairman.] He might have seen the hills upon the Turon? Yes, at a distance of eight or ten miles.

141. By Mr. Macarthur.] Did either you or the Toms point out the Turon country to Mr. Hargraves? We always pointed out everything we could to him.

142. Did he make the observation that it was a likely looking country? Not to my knowledge.

143. By the Colonial Secretary.] At the time you described the geological formation of the Turon, did he say those were strong indications of its being a workable gold field? He said there were indications of the existence of gold.

144. By Mr. Macarthur.] Are you quite sure he did not see the Turon country in company with you or Mr. Tom, and say that it was a likely looking country? He did not say so to my knowledge. The country is so broken that it would be impossible to tell its character at eight or nine miles distance.

Mr. Commissioner Green's Evidence:—

226. Did they bear the expense? I understand so; my information is from Mr. Tom and other parties at Bathurst.

[To the Evidence of E. W. Rudder, Esq., 2 May, 1879.]

A 6.

E. W. Rudder, Esq., to William Tom, junior, Esq., J.P., Guyong.

Dear Sir,

Erskinvile Road, Macdonald Town, February 6th, 1879.

I have often thought of addressing a few lines to you on matters connected with the gold discovery, but, till yesterday, I never obtained certain information of your present residence, when I had an interview with your brother-in-law, Mr. Webb, and I am now availing myself of his suggestion.

Permit me to call to your recollection that period in the history of Mr. Hargraves's connection with you when after the five small specks were discovered and he expressed his intention to return to California, because he did not believe in a paying gold field on the Turon—these five specks were, I believe, discovered on the 12th of February, 1851, and announced in the Sydney Herald of April 4th by myself, when I stated my conviction that "a gold field had been discovered extending over a tract of country of about 300 miles in length." "I had seen the specimens which have been procured, and from what I know I have no doubt it will be found distributed over as wide if not larger space than in California."

Now, what I shall be greatly obliged by is, if you will do me the favour to let me know if my letter thus published did not give such encouragement to prosecute your investigation and which led to the discovery of more gold in spite of Mr. Hargraves's desponding. The 17 grains were, I believe, discovered on the 6th or 7th of April, and the 4 oz. on 24th April, or twenty days after my announcement in the Herald. You, no doubt, are the party in connection with your brother, Mr. James, and Mr. Lister, who laid the foundation of Mr. Hargraves's success and world-wide reputation, and as I flatter myself I had no little to do in the matter too, I hope you will kindly aid me in making good such claim, as far as may be in your power. I saw Mr. Webb yesterday afternoon when he was quite well. With kind remembrances,

I remain, &c.,

E. W. RUDDER.

P.S.—An early reply will oblige, as I wish to obtain it before I meet Mr. Webb again.

A 7.

William Tom, junior, Esq., to E. W. Rudder, Esq., J.P.

Dear Sir,

Sunrise, Guyong, 8 February, 1879.

Yours of the 6th instant is to hand, and I would with pleasure oblige you in any way in matters having reference to the first gold discovery if I could possibly do so. I cannot say that I ever saw what you claim to having published in the Sydney Morning Herald of April 4th, 1851. You will see by the date (4th April, 1851) it is not likely I could have received encouragement from anything printed on that day in Sydney, as by the slow mode of transit at that time the Herald of the 4th could not have arrived at Springfield, Guyong, earlier than the 7th or 8th of April, 1851, and the first nugget of the four ounces was got by me on the 7th of that month. I left Springfield early on the morning of 7th April, 1851. This fact speaks for itself and will tell you plainly I could not have received information from your announcement which you say was made on the 4th April. It is certainly possible I could have received your information of the 4th as early as the evening of the 6th of the same month but not at all likely. You say:—"That 17 grains were I believe discovered on the 6th or 7th of April, and the 4 ounces on the 24th April, or 20 days after my announcement in the Herald." It should read the 16 (not 17) grains were got about the 23rd or 24th March, and the first nugget of the 4 ounces on the 7th April.

You will see by this note that all the discoveries made by my brother, John Lister, and me, were made before your information was at all likely to have reached us.

With kindest remembrances,

I am, &c.,
WILLIAM TOM, JUNIOR.

MINING ACT OF 1874.

(REGULATIONS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 29 October, 1878.

to wit. } HERCULES GEORGE ROBERT ROBINSON,
Knight Grand Cross of the Most (L.S.) Distinguished Order of Saint Michael
HERCULES ROBINSON, and Saint George, Governor and Com-
Governor. mandant-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

WHEREAS, under the provisions of the Mining Act, 1874, section 59, the Governor is empowered to make and proclaim Regulations for the cutting of water-races through leased lands: Now, therefore, His Excellency the Governor, by and with the advice of the Executive Council, in exercise of the powers conferred as aforesaid, doth make and proclaim the Regulations following, that is to say:—

1. It shall be lawful for any person authorised under the Mining Act, 1874, to take and divert or to conserve water for mining purposes, who desires to cut a race through land held under mining lease, to enter upon such land and to mark out by pegs the line of race proposed to be constructed.

2. Notice of intention to construct such race shall be served upon the Warden of the district in which the land is situated, and upon the lessee or lessees of the land through which the race is to be cut, calling upon them—(1) To consent to the cutting of the race without compensation; or (2) To consent to the cutting of the race subject to the payment of compensation, naming the amount thereof, and such other conditions as may be necessary to protect the lessee or lessees; or (3) To show cause why the race should not be cut through the leased land, or why it should take a different direction from that indicated by the pegs aforesaid.

3. Within ten days after service of the notice aforesaid, the lessee or lessees shall forward to the Warden of the district an answer in writing to such notice, consenting without compensation or conditions, or showing cause why the race should not be cut, or why the direction thereof should be changed; and in the event of the lessee or lessees of any parcel of land failing to forward an answer as aforesaid, he or they shall be deemed to consent without compensation or conditions, but in such case the Warden may, if he think the race as marked out will interfere with the enjoyment of, or injure the property of, the lessee or lessees, order that the direction of the race or the method of constructing it be changed.

4. In the event of the lessee or lessees claiming compensation or showing cause as aforesaid, and the person desiring to cut the race, not concurring therein, the Warden shall appoint a time and place for hearing the matter in dispute, and shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the parties; and after hearing the parties then present, and the evidence, if any tendered, shall thereupon decide whether or not the race may be cut through such land, and, if it may be cut, in what direction and subject to what conditions and what compensation, if any, shall be paid to the lessee or lessees, and how and when the same shall be paid.

5. No person shall be entitled to cut a race through leased lands without the consent of the lessee or lessees, until he shall have obtained an order from the Warden of the district permitting him to do so.

6. For the protection of any race cut through any leased land the owner of such race shall be entitled to ten feet on each side of such race; and for the purpose of inspecting, cleansing, or repairing such race, such owner, his agents, servants, or workmen may at all times enter upon such leased land, but so as not unnecessarily to interfere with or impede the roads of the lessee or lessees.

Given under my Hand and Seal, at Government House, Sydney, this twenty-sixth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, and in the forty-second year of Her Majesty's Reign.

By Command,
W. H. SUTTOR.

No. 10.

Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers, recommending acceptance of C. Saunders' Tender.

THE Tenders for this work are still in my opinion too high. I think now the best course to adopt will be to accept Mr. Chas. Saunders' offer of the 17th ultimo (78/4,052) to deliver ballast at a convenient wharf at the rate of 2s. per ton, with the following conditions added, viz.:—That the stone be delivered free of all wharfage or other dues, and that the contract be terminable at any time on a week's notice to that effect. It will probably cost us from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d. per ton to deposit the stone in the dyke.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

RUSHCUTTERS BAY.
(PETITION FROM RESIDENTS OF.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 26 November, 1878.

To the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly.

May it please this Honorable House,—

We, the undersigned residents of and about the vicinity of Rushcutters Bay desire to bring under your special notice a deplorable nuisance arising from foul and badly polluted drains crossing from the neighbourhood of Glenmore, and which empty into the said bay, to the annoyance, contamination, and dread of the inhabitants round about.

2. We fear that unless something is done to eradicate the stench and filth now complained of, that it will result in the breaking out of some fearful disease.

3. We therefore pray your Honorable House to take this Petition into your immediate consideration, and your Petitioners will ever pray, &c., &c.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

RUSHCUTTERS' BAY.

(PETITION FROM RESIDENTS OF THE EASTERN SUBURBS OF SYDNEY.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 22 October, 1878.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned residents in the Eastern Suburbs of Sydney,—

MOST RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTETH:—

That your Honorable House will take into consideration the desirability of the resumption by the Government of the low-lying land in Rushcutters' Bay, situated south of the New South Head Road, in order to prevent the possibility of its ever being used for building sites.

That your Petitioners view with feelings of alarm the consequences that must at no distant date result from the deposit on the land referred, of all the sewage from the houses situated on the heights of Paddington, Woollahra, Darlinghurst, and part of Surry Hills, as well as from the large number of houses now being erected on other lands of the surrounding slopes which have hitherto been unoccupied, the natural features of the ground rendering this result inevitable.

Your Petitioners therefore pray your Honorable House to take the above premises into favourable consideration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c., &c., &c.

[Here follow 956 signatures.]

No. 1.

Mr. M. Gregson to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

No. 81, George-street, Sydney, 25 January, 1830.

Not with the papers.

I have the honor to transmit to you under this cover a letter from the firm of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, of this place, communicating to you, that in consequence of circumstances which have arisen in their co-partnership, they have found it advisable to delegate to me the conduct of some of their affairs, and requesting that you will receive and accredit as their own such communications as I may have the honor of addressing to you on their behalf, or as their agent.

See enclosure.

1. On the part of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, I beg leave now to represent to you, that in the months of February and March, 1826, and shortly after the accession of His Excellency General Darling, Captain Piper, then naval officer, having to pay to Government considerable arrears of revenue—arrears which it is not too much to say accumulated from the liberal credit for duties which, upon his own responsibility, he afforded to the mercantile world—he (Captain Piper) obtained from Messrs. Cooper & Levey considerable sums of money by the sale of his lands and property at Point Piper and the immediate vicinity thereof.

*Appendix A.

I do myself the honor to annex a rough sketch of the lands which were thus sold to Messrs. Cooper & Co., and which are shown in red and green. Of that portion alone coloured red, and which consists of 190 acres, being the small promontory called Point Piper, or formerly Eliza Point, Captain Piper held and has transferred to Messrs. Cooper & Levey the original deeds of grant. Of the adjoining lot of 500 acres, and marked on the sketch as a grant to Captain Piper, in lieu of land on the Church Hill, Sydney (the site near to St. Philip's Church), of the several original grants to Bradley, 60 acres, Brine, 60, Hall, 80, Partridge, 80, Benson, 80, Galvin, 40, Foster, 80, Piper, 80, Jenkins, 40, altogether 1,120 acres, in ten original grants, the deeds have never been delivered to the grantees or to their assigns. The whole however was measured by Assistant Surveyor Harper, by order of the late Surveyor General, somewhere about the year 1824, for the purpose of being consolidated into one general deed of grant, which, I am informed, His Excellency Governor Brisbane directed should be made out in the name of, or in favour of, John Piper, Esq., who had become possessed by purchase from time to time of these contiguous properties.

The object of my present application is to request on behalf of Messrs. Cooper & Levey that you will be pleased to move His Excellency the Governor to complete (and that as early as possible) the intention and the promise of His Excellency Governor Brisbane as to one deed of grant for the whole. This, it has been mentioned, was promised in the name of Captain Piper. His transfer of the lands to Messrs. Cooper & Levey being produced (should that be thought necessary), I have further the honor to request that you will obtain the order of His Excellency the Governor that the abovementioned general deed of grant may be made to the firm in which Messrs. Daniel Cooper and Solomon Levey are co-partners.

In making this latter request, there are some public grounds upon which I respectfully submit that Messrs. Cooper & Levey may have claim to favourable consideration, in the event of the concession of my request being a departure from an established rule.

The considerable sums of money which they (Messrs. Cooper & Co.) thus advanced for the purchase of these lands went forthwith into the public coffers, averting at a time of great commercial distress the necessity of the late naval officer suing his numerous debtors for unpaid duties to the Crown, and which must have added materially to the pecuniary calamities which, it may be within your recollection, at that time visited the Colony.

Requesting the favour of your early attention.

I have, &c.,

M. GREGSON.

(On behalf of Messrs. COOPER & LEVEY.)

Minutes on No. 1.

May the deed of the small grants be made out in the name of Messrs. Cooper & Levey as requested, i.e., one deed for the whole. The description appears to me to be very imperfect. I understood that you waited for correct description from Major Mitchell. The one enclosed was received to-day.

Surveyor General, for report, B.C, 25th January, 1830.

Inform Mr. Gregson that his letter of the 25th of January has been referred to the Surveyor General, and that when the report of that officer is received no time will be lost in complying with his request as far as may appear to be practicable. Description transmitted herewith.—T.L.M., 4th March, 1830. Amended description requested.—8th March, 1830.

I have duly received and submitted to the Governor your letter of the 25th ultimo, requesting, on behalf of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, that the several small grants composing the Point Piper Estate may be consolidated in one deed, to be prepared in favour of these gentlemen as the purchasers.

In reply, I am directed by His Excellency to inform you that your letter has been referred to the Surveyor General, and that when the report of that officer is received no time shall be lost in complying with your request, as far as may appear to be practicable.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8 March, 1830.

In returning to you the accompanying description of the lands on Rose Bay, sold by Captain Piper to Messrs. Cooper & Levey, I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to point out to you that that part of it which is contained in the subjoined extract is so extremely indefinite, neither bearings, distances, nor permanent objects being stated, that in the course of a few years it must become nearly useless, and to request therefore that you will cause it to be amended accordingly. Not apparently with papers.

"By the boundary of that grant to its south-west corner at a bridge; thence by a road to a garden; on the east by that garden and the road called Piper's Road to its junction with the South Head Road."

At the same time I do myself the honor to point out that by the sketch accompanying the original application of Messrs. Cooper & Levey's agent, which is herewith returned, the sum of the grants therein laid down appears to be (perhaps erroneously) 1,120 (eleven hundred and twenty) acres only, instead of 1,130 (eleven hundred and thirty), as stated in the description. See enclosure to No. 1.

[Enclosure to No. 5.]

County Cumberland, 1,130 acres.

By His Excellency Lieutenant General Ralph Darling, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the Territory of New South Wales and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same, &c. &c. &c.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. M. Gregson.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 22 March, 1830.

See No. 1.

With reference to your letter of the 25th January last, on behalf of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, requesting that the several grants of land (of which deeds had not been given) constituting the Point Piper Estate, in the parish of Alexandria, may be consolidated in one deed, in favour of those gentlemen, who have purchased the property from Captain Piper, I am now directed by His Excellency the Governor to inform you that a deed of grant of the same, consolidating (1,130) eleven hundred and thirty acres, which appears to be the actual quantity contained in the several portions in question, has been duly executed in favour of Messrs. Daniel Cooper & Solomon Levey, and this day transmitted to the Surveyor General, for registration in his office, with instructions to forward it to the Collector of Internal Revenue for the like purpose, and delivery upon payment of the accustomed fees, and any quit-rent which may be due thereon.

No. 7.

Mr. M. Gregson to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

81, George-street, Sydney, 26 March, 1830.

I beg leave to acknowledge, with many thanks, your communications to me of the 25th ultimo and 22nd instant, the latter notifying the transmission to the Surveyor General of the deed of grant in favour of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, consolidating 1,130 acres of land, part of the Point Piper Estate, purchased by them from its former proprietor. See Nos. 2 & 6.

Having received Messrs. Cooper & Levey's directions to redeem the quit-rents on the whole estate, which consists, besides the portion above specified, of 190 acres, a grant, of date 10th February, 1820, by Governor Macquarie to Captain Piper, I have further to solicit, on behalf of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, that you will be pleased in this particular case to obtain and forward to the Collector of the Internal Revenue the authority of His Excellency the Governor for permission to redeem the quit-rent thereon, as allowed by the clauses in deeds of grant at the present time.

I have, &c.,
M. GREGSON.

Minutes on No. 7.

What are the quit-rents, and what are the conditions of purchase?

Mr. N.—The quit-rent on the 190 acres in question is 4s., but there is no clause for its redemption, nor indeed in any of Macquarie's grants. The redemption of quit-rents is however allowed in the deeds now executed of grants by former Governors at 20 years' purchase.

NOTE.—The above minute is written in pencil.

Request of the Surveyor General to inquire and report by what authority the road to the spot called Belle Vue, on the South Head Road, has been stopped up, and at whose expense that piece of road was originally made.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 13 May, 1830.

I have the honor herewith to transmit to you an amended description, by Mr. Hoddle, of the lands belonging to Messrs. Cooper & Levey lying between the South Head Road, Double Bay, and Point Piper; also a letter from Mr. Hoddle, stating the grounds on which he assumes that the land in question was intended to extend to Double Bay, as claimed by the present proprietors. See enclosure B. Transmitting amended description of Messrs. Cooper & Levey's land. See enclosure A.

I have, &c.,
T. L. MITCHELL,
Surveyor General.

What is the difference between this and the former description; a sketch showing the difference is necessary.

[Enclosure A to No. 8.]

Mr. Robert Hoddle to The Surveyor General.

Sir,

Sydney, 12 May, 1830.

In consequence of the representation made by Messrs. Cooper & Levey that the consolidated deed recently made out for 1,130 acres does not extend to Double Bay, which they state was measured to them by Mr. Harper, in obedience, therefore, to your orders I went to the ground and found that the map from which I made the description was extremely incorrect, and from a document apparently in the handwriting of Mr. Harper, which they produced, have no doubt that the land was intended to extend to Double Bay. I have therefore written an amended description of the same. See enclosure B.

I have, &c.,
ROBERT HODDLE,
Surveyor.

[Enclosure B to No. 8.]

DESCRIPTION of Messrs. Cooper & Levey's land as granted on 22nd March, 1830, by General Darling: County of Cumberland, parish of Alexandria; bounded on the north by Breakwell's grant, commencing at the South Head Road, 5 chains southerly of the six-miles stone, west 34 chains to Rose Bay, by that bay to Piper's grant (called Point Piper) south 35 chains west 47 chains to Double Bay Creek, by that creek to Double Bay, and by that bay; on the west by a line south 19 chains, and thence by a line west 14 chains to Point Piper Road, by that road to its junction with the South Head Road, which bears east 5° north 9 chains from Gordon's north-east corner; and on the south and east by the South Head Road to the south-east corner of Breakwell's grant—being a consolidation of the several grants made to the following individuals, but for which no deeds have been executed, namely, Jenkins, 50 acres; Piper, 80 acres; Forster, 80 acres; Galvin, 40 acres; Benson, 80 acres; Partridge, 80 acres; Hall, 80 acres; Brine, 60 acres; Bradley, 80 acres; and John Piper, 500 acres,—the whole of which becomes vested in the said John Piper, and were subsequently purchased of him by the said Daniel Cooper and Solomon Levey, the present grantees, containing 1,130 acres.

In compliance with the request conveyed by your letter of the 27th ultimo, I have the honor herewith to transmit to you a sketch* showing the difference between the amended description of the lands near Point Piper recently granted to Messrs. Cooper & Levey and that from which the deeds were prepared.

Minutes on No. 10.

If the former description contained the quantity stated, the present must contain more by the two pieces marked a, b. The chart which accompanied Mr. Gregson's application excludes these two pieces. Will it not be best to execute no more grants without previously advertizing the boundaries? Three errors in executed deeds have come under notice to-day. To explain why the aggregate quantity is the same as in the former description, although the present one includes two additional portions of land.—Surveyor General, 26 June, 1830. In reply to your letter dated 26th June, and to that dated 4th August, requiring an explanation of the circumstance that Cooper & Levey's lands are made to contain the same aggregate quantity in both descriptions, although the boundaries have been altered, I have to inform you, for the Governor's information, that grants are usually made in a given number of acres, and that although slight alterations may take place in the boundaries, it is not usual to alter the superficial extent.

The grant in question includes the following:—

The alteration took place in the 500-acres grant, the boundaries of which, as first measured by Mr. Hoddle, did not exactly correspond with the original measurement, a memorandum of which, in Mr. Harper's handwriting, was sent to this office by Messrs. Cooper & Levey.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 2 September, 1830.

In compliance with the request conveyed to me by your letter of the 4th June last, I have the honor to report to you, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that the road to the spot called Belle Vue, on the South Head Road, has been stopped up by Mr. Daniel Cooper, and was originally made by Major Druitt, while Chief Engineer. Does it appear that Mr. Cooper has a right to stop this road?

Mr. N.,—The land recently granted by deed to Messrs. Cooper & Levey is bounded by the South Head Road, and consequently includes Belle Vue.

Application has been made for the land to be extended to Double Bay, and the deed is ordered to be prepared accordingly, in which Belle Vue can be reserved to the public, but the former deed must be delivered up.

Fourteen allotments.

With reference to the Government notice of the 20th October last, advertizing sundry allotments of land in the village of Double Bay and parish of Alexandria for sale by public auction, on the 13th proximo, I beg leave respectfully to state that numbers 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, & 50 of the said allotments are of land constituting a portion of the estate of "Point Piper," which records in the Surveyor General's Office will fully prove, so well as other evidences. The site of the western portion of the said intended village is ground which was originally reserved by the Crown for a botanical garden, and numbered out accordingly by Mr. Harper (late a Government surveyor), at the period he measured the abovenamed estate for John Piper, Esq., the original possessor, when he made the eastern and southern boundaries thereof part of the boundaries of the said grant of land.

I therefore respectfully solicit His Excellency the Governor will be pleased to order the suspension of the sale of the abovenamed allotments of land for the reason herein stated.

In reply to this communication, you requested by your letter an illustrative sketch; this was forwarded in my letter. You then, in your letter, required some explanation about the quantity, to which I replied in my letter; and here it appears that the matter rested, and that no decision was made, or at least communicated to me. The Surveyor General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, 12 February, 1835.

In attention to your letter of the 5th February, in which you refer to my letter relative to the land claimed by Messrs. Cooper & Levey, at Double Bay, and transmit to me a copy of the deed which was made out in favour of the above-mentioned parties, stating that no other deed has been issued, and likewise transmit to me all the correspondence on the subject, informing me that you are directed by His Excellency the Governor to request me to report whether the boundaries described in that deed include the proposed site of the village of Double Bay, or what other title Messrs. Cooper & Levey have, or are supposed to have, to the land which they now claim, I have the honor to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that the deed above alluded to does not include the site for the village, but it appears that Messrs. Cooper & Levey have a claim to a portion of that site. It is not possible for me to remember the particular circumstances, a period of five years having elapsed; but it would appear that after Mr. Surveyor Hoddle had prepared a description from some general map of the estate in question, and the deed thereof had been issued in accordance therewith, some application was made, either personally or otherwise, by Cooper & Levey, or their agents, relative to their claim to a portion of land fronting Double Bay. I called Mr. Hoddle's attention to this, and, after examining the ground, and likewise examining a document, apparently in the handwriting of Mr. Harper, he stated to me his belief "that the representations of Messrs. Cooper & Levey were correct, and that a portion of the frontage of Double Bay had been originally measured to them." This is gathered from Hoddle's letter of the 12th May, 1830, which is as follows:—

Sir,

Sydney, 12 May, 1830.

In consequence of the representation made by Messrs. Cooper & Levey that the consolidated deeds recently made out for 1,130 acres does not extend to Double Bay, which they state was measured to them by Mr. Harper, in obedience, therefore, to your orders, I went to the ground and found that the map from which I made the description was extremely incorrect, and from a document, apparently in the handwriting of Mr. Harper, which they produced, have no doubt that the land was intended to extend to Double Bay. I have therefore written an amended description of the same.

I have, &c.,

ROBERT HODDLE, Surveyor.
The

The amended description which accompanied Mr. Hoddle's letter, and which included the portion in question of Double Bay, appears, after communications with this office about the area, a sketch; and Belle Vue to have been so far entertained by Governor Darling (this is apparent from the correspondence) that a fresh deed was offered to Messrs. Cooper & Levey, provided they would give up Belle Vue to the use of the public and return the deed already issued; and here it appears the matter rested, and was of course lost sight of in this office, the existing deed being considered as a permanent arrangement, as no intention of the issue of another having been intimated to me. I have referred to the original order for this land, from which it appears that the frontage to be allowed on the bay was only 8 chains, about the half of what is at present claimed; that order, however, extended the land across the road, including some of the allotments at Mrs. Darling's Point. This land was probably surrendered in consequence of the present quantity being minus by 170 acres the quantity originally ordered, viz., 1,480 acres, and which quantity Captain Piper could not perhaps make up by purchases. The original arrangement having been thus partially invaded, the bay frontage may have been extended, as now claimed, as far as the garden by some subsequent survey or understanding, for Mr. Hoddle founds his new description on a document of Mr. Harper's shown to him by Cooper & Levey, and which document these parties might be called upon to produce, and by a comparison with the original order it could then be more satisfactorily ascertained whether the claim is good for the whole or the half of the frontage, provided His Excellency the Governor should think proper to entertain the claim; and if His Excellency does so, it will be preferable that a deed of the small portion on the bay should be issued to Messrs. Cooper & Levey than that an entirely fresh deed, as originally proposed, should be prepared. All the correspondence and documents transmitted to me in your letter are herewith returned.

I have, &c.,

T. L. MITCHELL,
Surveyor General.

Minute on above.

From some of the circumstances stated in this letter it seems possible that Messrs. Cooper & Levey may have some equitable claim on the Government for a greater portion of land at Double Bay than is contained in the grant. It may therefore be proper so far to entertain their present claim as to call upon them to lay before the Attorney General the grounds upon which they have made the statement contained in their letter of 17th January last, and to request that officer's report, transmitting to him this letter and such other documents as may be required, and directing the Surveyor General to give him any further information in his power when called on by him.—R.B., 14 February.

No. 29.

Mr. J. Holt to The Crown Solicitor.

Sir,

Waterloo Warehouse, 6 March, 1835.

In obedience to the request of His Excellency the Governor, contained in a letter from the Colonial Secretary's Office, dated the 26th ultimo, in reply to mine of the 17th January last, relative to a certain piece of land at Double Bay, formerly a portion of the estate named Point Piper, the property of the late firm of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, and therein entrusting me to lay before you the grounds upon which I claim the same,—

I do myself the honor to state, from information I have received from undoubted authority, that during the administration of Governor Macquarie, the late Mr. James Meehan, Deputy Surveyor General, measured a piece of land as a reserve for a botanical garden, the boundaries of which were duly described and marked in the Government maps of the day. This circumstance was fully confirmed by Mr. Harper, late a Government surveyor, now living on his estate at Hunter River, while measuring 500 acres for Captain Piper, the original grantee. After describing the eastern portion thereof agreeably to a memorandum in his own handwriting, which I hold possession of, states as follows:—"On the south by that (alluding to the South Head) road to its junction with the road leading to Point Piper; on the west by Point Piper Road to the south-west corner of the garden reserved for Government, and by this garden bearing east 14 chains and north 19 chains to Rose Bay; and on the north by the waters of Port Jackson, &c."

Although in the said description Rose Bay is written, it must be distinctly evident Double Bay was intended, which the antecedent portion of the description fully bears out. In the deed of grant from Governor Darling to Messrs. Cooper & Levey this particular description of the south and east boundary of the said reserved gardens is fully recognized, with the exception that in place of stating the east boundary bearing north to the bay, it names it to bear to Point Piper Road. Now, the road was originally formed and made by Captain Piper through that convenient portion of his estate, as to him seemed best—had Government formed it, the case would perhaps have been considered different. It was therefore evident, agreeably to Mr. Harper's original and last survey of the 500 acres constituting a portion of Point Piper Estate, that all that the Crown at that date claimed was 14 chains from the said described road in an east direction and 19 chains in a north bearing to the bay, where it terminated. The road, I beg to state, is between 6 and 7 chains from the bay. I have not the least doubt if the field-books and original maps of Messrs. Meehan & Harper, in the office of the Surveyor General, were carefully examined, the doubt on the part of the Crown would be fully removed, and it would be ascertained that the right of the late firm of Messrs. Cooper & Levey, as the assigns of the original grantee, to the small piece of land (about 6 or 7 acres) now in their possession, claimed by Government, clearly established; and that some unforeseen clerical error must have been committed in making out the description contained in the deed of grant above alluded to, as at the period the 500 acres (forming a portion thereof) was measured by Mr. Harper it decidedly included the same; and at such date the value thereof was not considered to be worth five shillings per acre, it having remained then nearly forty years without being selected, consequently considered not worthy of acceptance.

A recent communication I have received from Mr. Daniel Cooper, from London, emboldens me thus to state, and consider the claim perfectly legitimate, as his memory fully bears out the particulars I have herein enumerated; and also that a correspondence between him and the Colonial Secretary transpired on the subject immediately after he received the deed of grant, expostulatory of the clerical error in the description; therefore if the same had not at that date been considered correct, why leave it to a period of nearly five years before attempting to claim it?

Thus, sir, I have endeavoured in as clear and concise a manner as possible to state my grounds for retaining possession of the piece of land at Double Bay as part of the original estate of Point Piper, and feel confident you will give it that mature consideration it deserves, and render to His Excellency the Governor that fair and impartial report of the case as in your opinion is considered just and equitable.

The Surveyor General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,
 Surveyor General's Office, 29 August, 1835.

I have the honor to request that you will represent to His Excellency the Governor that it is highly important that some decision should be come to relative to the claim of the late firm of Cooper & Levey to land at Double Bay Village, as the protracted delay of such matters leads to further embarrassments, and, moreover, causes unnecessary trouble, as the whole subject has to be gone through and mastered every time it is revived.
 I have, &c.,

 Deputy Surveyor General.

Copy of this to Mr. Fisher, referring him to the late acting Crown Solicitor, and request of him to report on the subject as soon as possible.

Mr. J. Stuart to The Surveyor General.

Sir,

Being desirous to purchase the following three allotments of land, I request you will obtain the Governor's authority that they may be put up to sale at the price determined by the Government.

These allotments form part of the village as laid out, but they are among those claimed by Messrs. Cooper & Levey, and until some decision is arrived at they must remain undisposed of. This matter should be brought forward, that it may be finally got rid of.—25 July, 1840.

No. 37.

The Surveyor General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 8 March, 1841.

The subject of the dispute between the Government and the firm of Messrs. Cooper & Levey relative to the land at Double Bay having been brought under my notice recently by the Civil Crown Solicitor, who forwarded to me all the papers in the case, and requested my report thereon, I have the honor to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that although five years have elapsed since my report was sent in, very little has occurred to alter the aspect of the case. There is, however, one fact which I beg to bring under His Excellency's notice, in order that it may be made known to the Civil Crown Solicitor, should His Excellency think proper.

Messrs. Cooper & Levey rest their claim entirely on a memorandum in the handwriting of Mr. Harper, which is mentioned in the latter part of my report, wherein it is recommended that Messrs. Cooper & Levey should be called on to produce the said memorandum, but a document has been since discovered in this office which throws some light on the memorandum in question, as it shows the manner in which the arrangement of which it forms a part originated.

It will be observed that the Point Piper Estate consists of a grant under the seal of 190 acres to John Piper, of a promise of 500 acres to John Piper, and various small orders which the said John Piper had purchased. The present arrangement is that the deed of grant of the 190 acres is untouched, and a deed of grant embracing the 500 acres and the small purchases has issued. The original intention, as authorized by Governor Macquarie, was to cancel the deed of the 190 acres, and to issue one grant deed of the whole, but it appears that a different arrangement was contemplated about 1824-5, but not carried into effect. This was to issue one consolidated deed of the 190 and 500 acres (total 690 acres), and separate deeds of the small purchases; and with the view to effect this, descriptions were made out, and it is in the description prepared for the proposed deed of the 690 acres that the passage occurs which would give to Cooper & Levey the whole of the frontage to the bay now sought by them. The words are, "On the west by the Point Piper Road to the south-west corner of the garden reserved for Government, and by that garden bearing east 14 chains and north 19 chains to the waters of Port Jackson; and on the north by the water."

The

The question therefore is, was this arrangement ever authorized? Mr. Harper might certainly have given to Cooper & Levey a memorandum which would point out something proposed, but as it does not appear that this was ever carried into effect, it may be concluded that the measure was not approved; at all events it would appear incumbent on Messrs. Cooper & Levey to show on what representation of theirs the original arrangement so specially provided for in the order signed by Governor Macquarie was departed from. In order to illustrate this new feature in the case, I enclose a tracing from the original survey by Meehan, a copy of the original order by Governor Macquarie which followed upon the said survey, and a copy of the description prepared for a deed of the 690 acres.

The papers handed to me by the Civil Crown Solicitor have been returned to him, and he has been furnished with copies of the three documents above alluded to.

I have, &c.,

JOHN Piper, 680 acres, county of Cumberland, parish of Sydney. Bounded on the east side by a line south 35 chains bounding Benson's farm, commencing at the original north-east corner of Point Piper farm, then west 4 chains and south 70 chains to the South Head Road; on the south by that road to its junction with the road leading to Point Piper; on the west by the Point Piper Road to the south-west corner of the garden reserved for Government, and by that garden bearing east 14 chains and north 19 chains to the waters of Port Jackson; and on the north by the waters to the first corner, including the original grant of Point Piper, containing 180 acres.

No. 38.

The Civil Crown Solicitor to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Civil Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 3 February, 1842.

With reference to your minute,* 2nd April, forwarding the papers connected with the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to land at Double Bay, I have the honor to inform you that the papers have been laid before the Solicitor General, who is of opinion with me that Messrs. Cooper & Levey are entitled only to the land as described in the grant of 22nd March, 1830, and that that description should be abided by.

I have, &c.,
G. C. TURNER,
Civil Crown Solicitor.

Minutes on No. 38.

It will be seen by the papers that the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey was considered so satisfactory that a new deed embracing the portion of land was actually ordered to be prepared. This, however, does not appear to have been done.

It will also be seen that the claim was subsequently in some way acknowledged by the parties being asked if they would allow a certain spot of land included in the grant to be reserved for the public, provided the land at Double Bay was accorded to them. This letter was replied to, I believe, but it cannot now be traced, nor other papers connected with the subject. The law officers give no reason for coming to their present conclusion. Nor does it appear that the Surveyor General has seen the explanation of Cooper & Levey, of date 6th March, 1835, addressed to the former Crown Solicitor, or the Crown Solicitor communicated with the parties upon the points referred to by the Surveyor General in letter of 8th March, 1841.—30th March. (No Signature or Initial.)

Let a précis embracing the whole points of the case be made for the Governor. It may be necessary then to refer back the papers to the Civil Crown Solicitor to ascertain the grounds upon which the Solicitor General has given his decision, as communicated in 42/988. From a perusal of the papers, particularly of the report of the Surveyor General, Messrs. Cooper & Holt would appear to have a claim to a part at least of the frontage on Double Bay, and which formed the ground apparently of the late Governor's consent to a reference to the law officers. Further search should also be made for the reply to the Colonial Secretary's letter to Messrs. Cooper, of 6th September, 1840, of which the number is erroneously given as 35/6,890. (Enclosed in 42/988.) 31st March.

Mr. Raymond,—You will perceive that several papers are missing, but I can only give you the following register numbers:—30/6,890: This relates to road to Belle Vue; 8,472 relates to Jenkins's land at Rose Bay. 35/3,755. You will also see by your pencil memo. on 41/2,963 that some were sent to Crown Solicitor in November, 1840. None, however, apparently of the enclosed.—1 April.

35/3,955 was sent to the Solicitor General on 22nd June, 1835, and not returned. It is a letter from the Solicitor General for information, which was endorsed on it and returned. I send herewith some old papers referring to an encroachment of Cooper & Levey.

Mr. Raymond,—You don't send 30/6,890. It is the letter required by the Colonial Secretary.—5th April.

30/6,890 is from Mr. Cooper for men to repair and fence road to Belle Vue, which he has thrown open to the public, sent to Mr. Hely on 13th September, 1830.

Précis of the case.

In the year 1830 a deed of grant of certain land comprising a portion of the Point Piper Estate was executed in favour of Messrs. being aware of the particular spot included in the deed. Shortly afterwards the Surveyor General sent in a fresh measurement of the land, as furnished by the surveyor who surveyed the ground, on which the former description was made out, representing that the map on which he then acted was extremely incorrect. The amended description gave a frontage to Double Bay, and a fresh deed was ordered to be prepared accordingly.

The new deed was not, however, made out, in consequence apparently of its coming under the notice of the Government that the Point Piper Estate had recently fenced in a road to a small spot of ground on the South Head Road called Belle Vue, originally made by the Government (although, I think, included in the deed to Cooper & Levey). Upon this Messrs. Cooper & Levey were asked whether they would allow the spot in question to be reserved to the public, provided the Government admitted their claim to the land on Double Bay.

This was answered apparently in the affirmative, with a request that men might be lent for the purpose of opening the road. The letter was accordingly sent to the Principal Superintendent of Convicts of the time, but nothing done further in the matter, nor the letter returned. Notwithstanding the claim of Cooper & Levey, it appears that the Surveyor General inadvertently measured for sale certain allotments in Double Bay on the very land, but on this being represented the intended sale was put off.

By the Surveyor General's report it is stated that Cooper & Levey were entitled to a portion of the frontage claimed by them and included in the amended description for the new deed. The surveyor recommended that the parties should be called upon to produce the documents alluded to by them as the foundation of their claim; and the correspondence was accordingly sent to the Crown Solicitor, in order that the law officers might ascertain the merits of the case. In 1841 the Surveyor General represented that, in consequence of the Crown Solicitor having made reference to him upon the subject, a certain fact had come under notice, which he describes, as appears to me, in some way to militate against the claim; but whether to the whole frontage or a portion I am not surveyor enough to make out, but I believe only to a portion. This letter was sent to the Crown Solicitor, who now reports that having laid the papers before the Solicitor General, that officer agrees with him that the parties are entitled only to the land included in the deed of grant. He gives, however, no reason for this opinion, nor does it appear whether they obtained from Cooper & Levey the documents on which their claim rests, which seems important. It appears to me that this is not a case for the law officers, but more properly for the Surveyor General, who should call upon Messrs. Cooper & Holt for their evidence, and report thereon with reference to the records of his office.—7 April, 1842.

Minutes on above.

The whole case rests upon 30/6,093, which (though not supported by the initials even of General Darling) seems to have sanctioned the preparation of a new deed in consequence of Mr. Hoddle's report. It now appears, however, that Mr. Hoddle was wrong, and that the memorandum of Mr. Harper, on which he proceeded, had reference to a proposed grant of 690 acres, which was never acted on, and altogether void.—G.G., 8 April, 1842. See No. 14.

Let a copy of the Crown Solicitor's letter of the 3rd February last be sent to Mr. Holt; and inform him in so doing that although the question between Messrs. Cooper & Levey and the Government may not be one which should be decided by the strict rules of law, still I feel bound to adhere to the advice given to me by the law officers of the Crown, and that therefore I cannot admit their claim to any greater quantity of land at Double Bay than is secured to them by the deed which they hold from the Crown. It certainly does appear that General Darling in 1830 so far entertained their claim as to consent to the issue of a new deed, which would have given to them some extension of their grant, provided they complied with a proposal made by the Government that they should lay open to the public certain lands, or a certain road, near Belle Vue, which was then a place of resort much used for purposes of pleasure or recreation by the inhabitants of Sydney, but the consent thus given by General Darling led to no result; and it moreover appears that he was induced to give his consent to it strictly by a report from Mr. Hoddle, which, though it might have been in accordance with the loose practice which prevailed at the time in all matters relating to land, appears to me to have been formed on an erroneous conception of the case. I cannot admit that the Government of the present day is in any way bound to complete an agreement to which General Darling's consent was conditionally given twelve years ago, the conditions on which it was given having, moreover, never been performed.—G.G., 13 April. See No. 38.

No. 40.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Holt.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, 18 April, 1842.

It will have come to your knowledge that in the year 1830 a deed of grant was executed in favour of Messrs. Cooper & Levey for one thousand one hundred and thirty acres of land, forming a part of the Point Piper Estate, and being a consolidation of a number of orders for small grants which had been purchased by Captain Piper, and by him transferred to Messrs. Cooper & Levey; and that subsequently to the execution of the deed a claim was set up by the said grantees to a further portion of land embracing a small extent of frontage to Double Bay; and finally, that their claim to such frontage was in part entertained by Sir Ralph Darling, on condition that they should thereon open to the public a certain road leading to Belle Vue, which had then recently been fenced in by them, and supposed to be included in their deed.

This matter having remained in abeyance for some years, was lately brought under the notice of the Government by an application to purchase land in the village of Double Bay, and, with a view to its final investigation, was referred to the law officers of the Crown.

I now enclose a copy of the Civil Crown Solicitor's reply; and in so doing I have the honor to inform you that although the question between Messrs. Cooper & Levey and the Government may not be one which should be decided by the strict rules of law, still the Governor feels bound to adhere to the advice given to him by the law officers of the Crown, and therefore His Excellency cannot admit the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to any greater quantity of land at Double Bay than is secured to them by the deed which they hold from the Crown. It

It certainly does appear that General Darling, in 1830, so far entertained their claim as to consent to the issue of a new deed, which would have given to them some extension of their grant, provided they complied with a proposal made by the Government (as already stated) that they should lay open to the public certain lands or a certain road near Belle Vue, which was then a place of resort much used for purposes of pleasure or recreation by the inhabitants of Sydney, but the consent thus given by General Darling led to no result; and it moreover appears that he was induced to give such consent chiefly by a report from Mr. Surveyor Hoddle, which, though it might have been in accordance with the loose practice which prevailed at the time in all matters relating to land, appears to have been made from an erroneous conception of the case.

His Excellency cannot admit that the Government of the present day is in any way bound to complete an arrangement to which Sir Ralph Darling's consent was conditionally given twelve years ago, the conditions on which it was given having moreover never been performed.

Sir,

With reference to your letter of the 8th March, 1841, respecting the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to certain land near Double Bay, in addition to the 1,130 acres for which a deed issued in their favour in 1830, I do myself the honor to enclose a copy of a letter which, by direction of His Excellency the Governor, has been addressed to Mr. Cooper's agent on the subject.

I have, &c.,

No. 42.

Mr. J. Holt to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Waterloo Warehouse, Sydney, 27 May, 1842.

In reply to your letter of the 15th ultimo (which press of business has prevented from being answered before), on the subject of the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to a piece of land lying between the Point Piper Old Road and Double Bay, commencing on the eastern boundary of the village, which has been in possession a series of years—that is, since it was purchased from Captain Piper, the original grantee.

I beg to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that immediately the consolidated deed of grant of 1,300 acres was received, a correspondence took place between Mr. Daniel Cooper and the Government on the clerical error which appeared in the description of that part of the grant, which terminated in an order for a new deed to be prepared, and the other one to be cancelled, which affirmation is fully borne out in the correspondence which transpired at that date; and as a proof that Mr. Cooper was desirous to oblige the Government, he, after such a step on the part of the Crown had been decided upon, at the solicitation of Sir Ralph Darling, in September, 1830, actually opened the spot called Belle Vue, on the South Head Road, for the recreation of the inhabitants, at which date he solicited the Governor would either fence it in or assign him a carpenter. To this an answer was received from your office stating the latter part of the request would be acceded to, but which, I beg to state, was never complied with; consequently the Crown failed in their contract or agreement on this head, which was the cause, after a considerable period had elapsed, of the same being closed again to prevent the estate suffering from trespassers, which from its contiguity to Sydney would have been of a very serious nature.

Nothing then transpired on the subject until January, 1835, when the Government advertised to sell this piece of land as part of the village of Double Bay, in allotments, to which I protested; and at the request of Sir Richard Bourke, the Solicitor General, in March following, was furnished with a full history of the legitimacy of the justness of Mr. Cooper's claim thereto, which was so satisfactory that the sale was rescinded. In the said letter it appears there was transmitted the copy of a description in the handwriting of the original surveyor (Mr. Harper), at that date in the possession of Mr. Cooper, the part of which relating to the piece now in question is as follows:—

"On the south by that road (meaning the South Head) to its junction with the road leading to Point Piper; on the west by the Point Piper Road to the south-west corner of the garden reserved for Government, and by this garden bearing east 14 chains and north 19 chains to Rose Bay; and on the north by the waters of Port Jackson, &c., &c."

Although in the said description "Rose Bay" is written, it is distinctly apparent "Double Bay" was the place. Thus it is clear that the said land is part and parcel of the 500 acres grant, otherwise it would have had no water frontage at all, a thing unprecedented at the period. The same was measured when the land was not worth 5s. per acre, and all that was required by the Government at the time is fully defined in the east line of 14 chains and north line 19 chains to the bay, now forming the village.

I have no doubt that the old records in the Surveyor General's Office will fully bear out every assertion that has been made during the twelve years correspondence on the subject; and I am informed that Mr. Deputy Surveyor General Meehan was the person who originally marked out the land for a garden (now the village of Double Bay), consequently his maps and field-books were the guidance to Mr. Harper when he measured the 500 acres as an additional grant to Captain Piper; and again, the documents of these two latter persons combined together enabled Mr. Surveyor Hoddle, during the administration of Sir Ralph Darling, to report the piece of land now attempted to be claimed by the Crown as constituting a part and parcel of the aforesaid additional grant of 500 acres, consequently requiring a new deed to be made out including the same.

Thus, I think, it will plainly be discerned that the statement made in your letter that the condition on which the new deed was to be prepared, the opening of Belle Vue, was not really so, but for the purposes of causing a correction in the description after the various indisputable and satisfactory proofs adduced on the occasion.

I,

I, therefore, am induced respectfully to request His Excellency the Governor will be pleased to reconsider the case, and recognize the legitimacy of Mr. Cooper's claim to the land in question (as Sir Ralph Darling and Sir Richard Bourke, in their official capacities, were pleased to admit of), by ordering a new deed to be prepared; and if the Government think proper, I have no objection to the reopening of Belle Vue, and having the same reserved by the Crown as a spot of recreation for the inhabitants of Sydney: Proviso, the same is fenced in, or otherwise, as proposed and mutually agreed to in the year 1830.

The Surveyor General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 14 October, 1842.

In reference to your letter of the 18th April last, conveying to me the decision of His Excellency the Governor against the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to portions of ground appropriated as the village of Double Bay, I have the honor to state, for the information of His Excellency, that since such decision was communicated to Mr. Holt (the agent of Messrs. Cooper & Levey) it appears that he has blocked up the principal street of the village, called William-street, and destroyed the bridge at the eastern end of William-street, near where it abuts on the Cooper & Levey grant. Seeing that this street affords the only access which the inhabitants have in an easterly direction to the New South Head Road, I would submit that it is desirable that the Government should see that this street is kept open towards the new road and the coast, in justice to the buyers of allotments, according to the original plan; and considering that the road through Double Bay village has been in use for twenty years, I do not see, even supposing the land through which it passes did belong to Messrs. Cooper & Levey, that they had any right to stop up the road. No. 41.

I would take leave to suggest that possession of this land would be best preserved to the Crown by offering for sale some of the allotments fronting the bay, which have long been marked with the names of applicants anxious to purchase them. I have no doubt that they would even now realize a good price, but that it would be better economy to make a good way over the sandy descent called Ocean-street first, by which I should say their value, and that of all land there, would be increased three or four hundred per cent.

The only access to the village is Ocean-street, leading from the South Head Road, and, unfortunately for the inhabitants, Ocean-street is a bed of sand, next to impassable; and I cannot but consider that, in justice to the original purchasers, as well as to enhance the value of the allotments still remaining to the Crown (twenty-seven in number), it would be very desirable that the repairing of Ocean and William Streets and the restoring the bridge, so unwarrantably destroyed by Mr. Holt, should be undertaken by the Government at once; at all events, the bridge should be repaired, and some understanding had with Mr. Holt to prevent his destroying it again.

Minute on No. 44.

The proposals herein contained appear to me reasonable and proper; but the whole matter is one in which we must proceed with caution. Whether or not it may be worth while to make Ocean-street into a good road must depend in a great measure on the quantity of land remaining unsold. A plan or sketch of the land should therefore be prepared, and the Surveyor General should confer with Colonel Barney as to the employment of a gang of men upon Ocean-street. In the meantime let a letter be written to Mr. Holt, informing him that unless the bridge be replaced and the road which he has stopped up reopened, I shall be under the disagreeable necessity of desiring proceedings to be taken against him.—G.G., October 18.

With reference to your letter of the 18th April, 1842, and enclosure, in reply to my letter of the 8th March, 1841, respecting the claim of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to certain land near Double Bay, in addition to the 1,130 acres for which a deed issued in their favour in 1830, and by which that claim is negatived, I have now the honor to state that application has been made by H. Haslam to purchase allotments out of the additional land alluded to; and on an examination having been made it is found that the land in question is still in the occupation of the firm of Cooper & Holt, and I have therefore to observe that if it be considered expedient to entertain the application of Haslam to purchase, the possession by Cooper & Holt must, in the first instance, be got rid of.

The Surveyor General has overlooked his subsequent letter of the 14th October, 1842, and the reply of the 21st of same month. Perhaps he should be referred to these, and asked what was done in pursuance.—12 November.

Refer him accordingly to that correspondence. Ocean-street has since, I believe, been gravelled and made passable, at the private expense of some of the parties interested.—13 November.

No. 39.

THE précis of this case given on letter 3rd February, 1842, appears to be perfect as far as it goes, and in pursuance thereof Mr. Holt was informed that the Government could not admit the claim to the land in question. In reply, that gentleman renewed the claim with some fresh arguments, but was informed that no alteration could be made in the decision already given. Shortly afterwards the Surveyor General represented that notwithstanding the communications made to Mr. Holt upon the subject he had blocked up the principal streets in the village established at Double Bay, and destroyed a bridge at the place. He recommended therefore, as a means of disposing of the intrusion, that some further allotments be laid out thereon by the Government and be disposed of by auction, and that Ocean, a main street, should be repaired, as well as the bridge referred to restored, some arrangement being made with Mr. Holt to prevent his again destroying the latter. Upon this the Surveyor General was instructed to communicate with the Commanding Royal Engineer on the subject, and Mr. Holt informed that unless he replaced the bridge and reopened the road legal proceedings would be taken against him. No reply has been received from Mr. Holt, nor any communication from the Surveyor General until the 2nd November last, when the latter merely reported the continuance of Messrs. Cooper & Holt's encroachment; and now, in reply to a further inquiry, he states that nothing has been done to Ocean-street, excepting by private individuals, and that the bridge has not been replaced, although the parties were threatened with proceedings.

no

Summary of proceedings of the Executive Council.

Minute No. 48/2 A. Confirmed 3rd February, 1848.

HIS Excellency the Governor laid before the Council the correspondence respecting Messrs. Cooper & Holt's claim to a portion of land at Double Bay.

After a full consideration of the circumstances of the case, the Council advise that the Government should repeat the offer which appears to have been made to Messrs. Cooper & Levey during the administration of Governor Darling, that on condition of their reopening and surrendering to the public a certain road from Belle Vue through the Point Piper Estate, which was originally made by the Government, under Major Druitt's superintendence, their possession of the portion of land in dispute at Double Bay will be legalized by a grant from the Crown; and in the event of this proposal being acceded to, the Council are of opinion that a fencing along each side of the road should be put up at the expense of the public.

Memoranda on the case.

Cooper & Levey's encroachment at Double Bay.

BEFORE acting upon this minute I would beg leave to offer a few remarks.

The road therein referred to, "from Belle Vue through the Point Piper Estate," is simply a small detour from the South Head Road, and does not extend, I think, 100 yards to an eminence, where there is a commanding view of the ocean. It does not pass through the estate in question, and has no connection with that at Double Bay.

The proprietors would now, I have little doubt, gladly give it up to the public without any recompense. Upon giving up this road the proprietors are to be confirmed in their possession of the land in dispute at Double Bay. Upon this point I have every reason to believe that the Government does not precisely know what, at present, the proprietors do claim, and, moreover, that they do claim a portion of the village already sold, or at any rate laid out.

6th March, 1848.

The state of this case was well understood when it was under consideration of the Council. It was only to confirm Sir Ralph Darling's decision, not to propose any new concession, that the Council resolved to revert to the proposal made to the proprietors in 1830.

I think this is a mistake. Before, however, the decision of the Council is communicated to the proprietors of the Point Piper Estate, request the Deputy Surveyor General to report on this point, furnishing a tracing showing the land now proposed to be granted, and in what manner it affects the plan of the village at Double Bay, and especially whether it interferes with any allotments already granted or sold to other parties.—6 March.

I have the honor to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that the claim set up by Messrs. Gentlemen, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 22 April, 1848.

The Surveyor General having recently brought under the notice of the Government the fact that you are still in the occupation of some Crown land at Double Bay which has been the subject of several years correspondence, the Governor submitted the matter to the Executive Council, and His Excellency has accordingly approved of the advice they have given, after a full consideration of the case; and I am accordingly directed by His Excellency to repeat the offer which was made to Mr. Cooper in my predecessor's letter of the 6th September, 1830, namely, that on condition of your reopening and surrendering to the public a certain road to Belle Vue through the Point Piper Estate, which was originally made by the Government, under Major Druitt's superintendence, your possession of an extension as therein referred to in the boundaries of the estate in question will be legalized by a grant from the Crown; and further, that in the event of this proposal being acceded to, that a fence along each side of the road from the Old South Head Road to Belle Vue should be put up at the expense of the public.

Minutes on No. 57.

There has evidently been some confusion in the correspondence with Mr. James Cooper respecting certain roads through the Point Piper Estate.

There are two subjects—one respecting those made to connect the Old South Road, near Waverley, with Double Bay, which seems to be disposed of by the minute on *48/5,943, although in *48/5,812 Mr. ^{*Missing.} Cooper states that he awaits the decision of his principal in London on the subject.

The other case, to which reference is now made, is a long standing claim preferred by Messrs. Cooper & Levey to certain land on Double Bay, which the Government consented to acknowledge, on condition that a certain drive from the Old South Head Road to a place called Belle Vue, passing through a portion of the Point Piper Estate, was surrendered to the public.

In 48/5,952 Mr. Cooper, on behalf of his principal in London, gave his consent to this offer of opening when the Government was prepared to fence it in as intended.

This would seem to have been thought to require or to await the sanction of the parties at Home, alluded to by Mr. Cooper in 48/5,812, before alluded to, which, however, it does not, the proposed arrangement being so beneficial to the proprietors of the Point Piper Estate.—15th November, 1848.

The attorney of the proprietors having consented to the terms of the arrangement under which they were to receive a grant of certain land at Double Bay, all that is necessary is to carry out the condition on the part of this Government, of fencing in the drive from the Old South Head Road to Belle Vue. For this purpose I believe that a sufficient sum remains of the vote for the repairs of roads on which no tolls are collected. If so, the Colonial Architect should be directed to cause the fencing to be executed, and the proper steps taken for the issue of the grant of the land referred to.—15th November, 1848.

Sir,

Engelhurst, 8 December, 1848.

With reference to that part of your letter of the 4th instant, only this morning received, which No. 58. relates to the confirmation to the representatives of Messrs. Cooper & Levey of the land at Double Bay, and to prevent any error accruing in the preparation of the same, I beg permission to inform you that the whole of the partnership property of the late firm of Cooper & Levey, including the estate in question, has been conveyed to Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, the surviving partner of that firm, who now holds the fee simple, and as such I beg that you will have the goodness to make out any additional deed that may be deemed necessary in the name of that gentleman.

JAMES COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER, London.

Minutes on No. 60.

Any decision upon this point I think had better await the receipt of the Surveyor General's reply to the letter addressed to him on the 4th December for the description; and when the deed is absolutely ordered to issue, the question arises whether, under the peculiar circumstances of this estate, the title should be referred to the law officers, rather than the Commissioners, to investigate.—12th December, 1848.

The case, under the circumstances represented, had better, I think, be reported on by the Commissioners; but for this purpose the measured description of the land will of course be requisite.

No. 61.

The Deputy Surveyor General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 13 December, 1848.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th December, by which, in See No. 59. reference to my communication of the 28th March last, you inform me that it is intended to confirm to the See No. 54. representatives of Messrs. Cooper & Levey the land therein referred to, as claimed by them, on Double Bay, and requesting me to furnish the necessary description should the land not be included in the deed already already issued, which point does not appear very clear. The exclusion of the land in question from the deed of grant, as originally intended by the Government, is the point in which this question originated, and I do not therefore exactly comprehend what is meant by its not being very clear. I do find, however, that although the letter of the 28th of March last alludes to portions of land, and that the sketch by which it was accompanied shows as clearly as possible, I think, that two portions of land are occupied and claimed by Cooper and Levey's representatives, your letter now under reply has reference only to the portion on Double Bay, and I request therefore to be informed whether it is not the intention of His Excellency the Governor to convey both portions.

I have, &c.,
T. L. MITCHELL,
Deputy Surveyor General.

In attention to your letter of 3rd January, by which, in acknowledging the receipt of the letter of the Deputy Surveyor General, respecting the claim of the representatives of Messrs. Cooper & Levey to certain land at Double Bay, you state that the additional land intended to be awarded is that which formed the correspondence upon the subject previously to the year 1830, and request my further report, with a tracing, for the Governor's information.

2. I have the honor accordingly to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that the correspondence which took place about the year 1830 was returned to you in my letter; but on reference to my letters, it will be evident, I think, that the treaty between the Government and Cooper & Levey had reference to the surrender of Belle Vue, on the one hand, for the land embraced by the amended description of the 13th May, 1830, on the other hand. The description of the 13th May was illustrated by a tracing sent on the 1st June, 1830. A copy of that tracing* is enclosed, with the letters A and B appended, to show the two portions now occupied and claimed. The length of the lines C D on the deed and E F on the amended description being nearly equal, it is evident that A being included, B will also be included.

I have, &c.,
T. L. MITCHELL,
Surveyor General.

Minutes on above.

I conclude that under this report a new deed may issue according to the amended description here referred to, where the land at Belle Vue has been formally surrendered, for which purpose the Surveyor General should perhaps furnish the survey. Perhaps also the proprietor should deliver up the deed now in existence.—26th.

I do not understand what is meant by the issue of a new deed and the surrender of the old one. It would be much simpler to issue a deed for the additional quantity of land now agreed to be granted, and a surrender should be executed by the parties of the land to be ceded for public recreation at Belle Vue.—28th February, 1849.

It was intended at the time to give the consolidated deed, but under present circumstances it is doubtless preferable to let the present one stand. I have ascertained at the Survey Office that a measurement will be required of the additional portions, and I conclude this may be called for, Mr. Cooper being apprised of the decision.—14th March, 1849. Approved.

A description also of the land ceded at Belle Vue will be required for the deed of surrender, to be executed by the proprietors, or their duly authorized attorney.—16th March, 1849. Urgent.

With reference to your letter of the 17th instant (yesterday received), I beg permission to ^{No. 65.} inquire whether the Government would prefer that the Crown Solicitor should prepare the reconveyance of the land at Belle Vue recently enclosed by them, which has been surrendered in consideration of two portions of land at Double Bay, now in the possession of Mr. Daniel Cooper, being confirmed to that gentleman by a separate deed of grant, or that I should instruct Mr. Cooper to get the same prepared in England. As eight months at least will elapse (from the time I am furnished with the description alluded to in your letter above referred to) before I can hope to get the document returned executed, I trust that I shall stand excused on that account for thus early trespassing upon your attention.

In either of the above cases there is one thing (which is equally of public as private utility) I beg permission to suggest, viz., as Mr. Cooper's land surrounds that portion which is about to be surrendered by deed to the Crown, that Mr. Cooper shall be at liberty at any time to open the fences recently set up by the Government at such places as may hereafter be deemed expedient for the purpose of making the necessary roads for the free and uninterrupted access to the estate.

Civil Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 24 January, 1850.

In reply to your communication of the 23rd instant, requesting my report as to the present state of this matter, I have the honor to state that I find that the whole legal and equitable fee simple of the land in question is now vested in Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, subject however to his wife's claim to dower therein. On the 18th instant I applied to the Surveyor General for a description of the property, there not being one with the papers.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Engehurst, 26 December, 1850.

Pursuant to agreement, the Civil Crown Solicitor in April last prepared for the signature of Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, a surrender to the Crown of the road to and brow of the hill commonly known as Belle Vue, in consideration of two portions of land at Double Bay (in the possession of that gentleman) being confirmed to him by a separate deed of grant from the Crown.

I now do myself the honor to inform you that the above surrender has, by the "St. George," just been received by me, duly executed by Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, and that the same is now ready to be delivered to the Government immediately upon my receiving the confirmatory grant above referred to. May I therefore beg the favour that you will direct the said grant to be prepared at your earliest convenience.

Minutes on No. 80.

Mr. James Cooper, the agent of Mr. Daniel Cooper, the sole proprietor, it is believed, of the Point Piper property, represents that Mr. Cooper and wife have executed the required surrender to the Crown of the spot called Belle Vue, forming part of that estate, and requests that, in accordance with the agreement entered into, that grants may now issue to his principal for the two portions of land at Double Bay, which it was decided belonged to the Point Piper Estate. I conclude that Mr. Cooper should be requested to submit the surrender in question for the inspection of the Civil Crown Solicitor, and informed, if correct, no unnecessary delay will take place in giving the deeds for the ground at Double Bay. I think, however, the surrender should be left in the hands of the Civil Crown Solicitor by Mr. Cooper.

Minute on above.

Mr. Cooper has personally told me that in the position he is placed with regard to Mr. Daniel Cooper he cannot, as a simple agent, give up the surrender of the Belle Vue grounds until he obtains the grant for the land at Double Bay. Under the circumstances there may be no objection to carry out this arrangement.—3rd February.

Mr. James Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Enghurst, 3 February, 1851.

I have to apologize for reopening the following correspondence, and in doing so shall endeavour to save trouble as much as possible by confining my remarks to such portions of the same only as are strictly necessary to enable you to comprehend the case.

1st. In your predecessor's letter of 6th September, 1830, an offer was made to convey to Mr. Daniel Cooper the land at Double Bay, subsequently prepared by yourself in your letter to me of 22nd April, 1848, on condition of Mr. Cooper allowing the spot at Belle Vue to be reserved for the use of the public.

2nd. Mr. Cooper, in his reply of the 11th September, 1830, consented to the same.

3rd. In the Surveyor General's letter to you, 28th March, 1848, he brings under your notice the circumstance of Mr. Cooper being (I quote the substance) wrongfully in the possession of two portions of land at Double Bay, enclosing a tracing of the same, marked with the following note in the left-hand corner—C B, vol. 5, folio 18—which tracing defines the land in that gentleman's possession by yellow lines. To this I particularly desire to invite attention.

4th. In the Surveyor General's letter, again to you, of 15th February, 1849, he refers you to those two portions, as being marked respectively A and B, which he states Mr. Cooper is entitled to under the arrangement of 1830.

5th. In your letter to me of 22nd April, 1848, founded upon that of the Surveyor General's of 28th March, 1848, you renew the offer made by your predecessor to convey those two portions of land to Mr. Cooper, upon that gentleman's opening and surrendering to the public the road to Belle Vue through the Point Piper Estate.

6th. In reply to which, under date 4th May following, I agreed to the terms of your offer, without stipulation or reservation of any kind.

7th. I subsequently accompanied the Colonial Architect to the ground, asked him to name that which he wanted, and freely gave all that he demanded, being not only the road (as agreed) but also a portion of the hill in addition thereto; and although I found afterwards that a road $1\frac{1}{2}$ chain wide had been taken in lieu of a chain, as is customary, and as I understood that gentleman to say he only wanted, yet I did not make this a subject of complaint least the objection might be thought to be frivolous. I subsequently procured from Mr. Cooper a surrender to the Crown of the same, which has been ready for delivery for sometime past. I merely mention these facts to show that I have done all in my power to perform my portion of the contract to the letter thereof.

8th. I now come to that which is to me a very unpleasant portion of the transaction. In order to prevent any errors creeping into the deeds of grant, I have been particularly anxious for some time past to get a sight of the description of the land in question, and only for the first time, about a month ago, succeeded in doing so; when, on comparing them with the tracing which accompanied the Surveyor General's letter to you of 28th March, 1848, I found that no less than three portions of land had been left out of the descriptions, being the continuations of "Ocean," "Bay," and "William" Streets—see the tracing—which should according to the terms of our agreement, have been included. I immediately remonstrated against this to the Surveyor General, upon which I was favoured (by way of explanation) with a communication from that officer, of the 4th January, 1851, wherein he states his desire to adhere to the descriptions just alluded to. My reply to which, of the 8th of the same month, again objects to them as being at variance with the agreement entered into between the Government and myself, on the part of Mr. Cooper, and requests that the descriptions may be altered; and the question of roads left to Mr. Cooper's known liberality, from whom I then felt certain that they would be got upon application, but as agent only of that gentleman, I had no power to make the concession; and I was given to understand that my request would be complied with. Had the matter ended here I should have been spared the pain, as well as the trouble, of writing this letter; but I received, on the 1st instant, from the Surveyor General, another letter, dated 29th January, 1851, declaring the impossibility of complying with my wishes, in consequence of the roads I objected to (as being taken out of the portions which were agreed to be given to Mr. Cooper by the Government) having been placed in the custody of the South Head Road Commissioners.

9th. I have not a copy of the Road Trust Act at command to refer to, neither do I deem it necessary for the settlement of the present question, to satisfy myself whether the whole or any portion of these roads are or are not so placed in the custody of the Trust Commissioners; but taking it as a fact, as stated for the sake of argument, I find that the Road Trust Act passed the Legislative Council on the 15th June, 1848, and the Commissioners under it were appointed, by proclamation, on the 11th November following, whereas the offer of these two portions of land was made first by your predecessor in his letter to Mr. Cooper of 6th September, 1830, and accepted by Mr. Cooper in his reply thereto of the 11th of the same month, although the agreement does not appear (from any papers to which I have access) to have been carried any further. And subsequently, that offer was repeated by your letter to me of the 22nd April, 1848, and finally accepted by me, on Mr. Cooper's account, on the 4th May following, from which latter date to the present time every exertion (even at the risk of appearing troublesome) has been made by me to complete the transaction. So that in the one case it follows that the Government had parted with the land in question to Mr. Cooper upwards of eighteen years, and in the other nearly seven months, previously to the appointment of the Road Commissioners; and consequently may be said not to have had any part of these two portions of land in its power to transfer to that body. Besides which the attempted reservation becomes vexatious, from the fact that the continuations of "Bay" and "William" Streets in particular lead to no public thoroughfare. The first would still end, leaving a space between it and the South Head Road, and the second would end of necessity at the boundary of the village of Double Bay, as the two roads which are marked as communicating with the South Head Road are only bridle-tracks—never could be used as roads; neither are they either necessary or desirable as such, and particularly so since Mr. Cooper has given to the public (at the expense of what must be considered to be the principal portion of the value of his estate in the vicinity) one of the most delightful roads in the Colony; I mean the new South Head Road.

10th.

10th. In conclusion, I now beg permission to observe that I have carried out in perfect good faith everything, nay more than our agreement imposed upon me, under the promise from the Government that I should have confirmed to Mr. Cooper the two portions of land as defined by the tracing so often alluded to; indeed it was the knowledge of this which influenced my decision. I have also shown that these portions of land were not in the power of the Government to place at the disposal of the Road Trust Commissioners; and lastly, I think I have shown the want of necessity of the reservation in at least two of the roads, viz., Bay and William Streets. I now most respectfully call upon the Government to perform (with the same degree of integrity which has animated myself throughout this transaction) its portion of the contract, to which I submit its honor and good faith stand pledged.

I have, &c.,

JAMES COOPER,
Attorney for DANIEL COOPER, of London.

Minutes on above.

Refer to the Surveyor General for report, requesting a tracing illustrative of the matter in dispute.—C.A.F., 6 Feb., /51. Surveyor General, B.C., 8 Feb., 1851.—For the Colonial Secretary, W. ELYARD, junr. To be returned.

The facts of this case are that the colouring on the sketch which this person so much relies on merely exhibited what was considered to be part of the original boundary of the Point Piper Estate, but it was never intended by the Government to alienate a public highway; and I feel assured, from what I know of Mr. Daniel Cooper, that he would never have been guilty of the absurdity of requiring the Government to do so. Had it been possible to conceive that the alienation of a public highway would be sought for, some stipulation might have been made, but as it is not even in the power of the Government to close the road to Double Bay, provision for its being excluded from the contemplated grant was never even thought of. As the sketch already with papers is quite sufficient to exemplify this question, I have not prepared another, as requested. In the event of Mr. Daniel Cooper's agent declining to receive the grant without the bit of road, it will be desirable to refer the matter to Mr. Daniel Cooper himself.—T.L. MITCHELL, Surveyor General's Office, 12th February, 1851.

No. 86.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Cooper.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 27 February, 1851.

Having referred to the Surveyor General your letter of the 3rd instant, respecting the land at Double Bay proposed to be ceded as a part of the Point Piper Estate, I do myself the honor, by the direction of His Excellency the Governor, to inform you that it appears by a report received from that officer that the colouring on the sketch upon which you so much rely merely exhibits what was considered to be part of the original boundary of the Point Piper Estate, but that it was never intended by the Government to alienate a public highway; and moreover, that had it been possible to conceive that the alienation of a public highway would be sought for, some stipulation might have been made, but as it is not even in the power of the Government to close the road to Double Bay, provision for its being excluded from the contemplated grant was never even thought of.

2. I am to add, under these circumstances, that it will be necessary for you to refer the matter to your principal, Mr. Daniel Cooper, if you do not feel authorized to receive the grant without the road alluded to.

I have, &c.,

E. DEAS-THOMSON.

No. 87.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Engelhurst, 28 February, 1851.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 27th, in answer to mine of the 3rd instant, informing me that the Surveyor General imputes to me the desire to block up a public highway. Although the Surveyor General has not identified the highway which he alludes to by name, yet it is plain to perceive, as I shall hereafter show, that he can mean none other than "Ocean-street," it being the only one of a public nature extant. Now, I have in my letter above-mentioned studiously avoided reference to that street, because I found upon an inspection of the tracing that the land abutting thereon, if surveyed at all (which I very much question), has, to say the least, been improperly so done; and I did not wish to add to the mystery, which I saw plainly surrounding this question, by an allusion thereto; indeed, had "Ocean-street" been the only one in dispute, I would have met it as I now intend, and always did intend to do when the question arose, viz., upon its merits, and a very few words would have been sufficient to have settled the matter. But you will perceive that on comparing the descriptions with the tracing no less than three streets have been taken from the land which the Government agreed to give to Mr. Cooper (and this is what I complain so much about, because I cannot help feeling that the question has never been fairly approached by the Surveyor General), e.g., the continuations of "Ocean," "Bay," and "William" Streets (the two latter) have, I submit, been effectually contested by me; and now that the Surveyor General finds his position with respect to them untenable, he falls back upon an error of his own office, relating to the former or "Ocean-street," for the purpose of inducing you to believe that I wish to block up a public highway; and this error becomes the more palpable from the fact that the Surveyor General must well know that so far from Mr. Cooper being in possession of the whole of "Ocean-street," as defined by the tracing, that that street is, and has been for years past, not only open to the public, but the sole public thoroughfare leading out of Double Bay, in addition to which I now find it to be in the hands of the Road Trust Commissioners, who have only recently repaired it. But apart from this, if there were no other reason than the large concessions which Mr. Cooper has made in

in favour of the public with respect to roads generally, to say nothing of that which I have done myself, that reason would be a sufficient refutation of so unworthy a charge; but as this unfortunately does not seem to have had much weight with the Surveyor General, I have perhaps what may be considered a better one, in the fact that I have not, neither have I ever had, the most remote idea, as I shall presently explain, of doing such. If the Surveyor General will furnish a tracing from absolute survey of this particular portion, it will be seen at a glance that there is at present an uninterrupted road to Double Bay throughout the whole frontage of this block about fifty feet wide. How therefore that officer could furnish you with a tracing showing the whole of this road as being in the possession of Mr. Cooper, and thereupon, as a dernier ressort, founding the assertion that I wish to block up a public highway, is for him to explain. I have but little to do with it, and certainly should not have alluded thereto but for the imputation cast upon myself, combined with the ungracious obstacles that are at every stage attempted to be placed in the way of an honorable adjustment of this simple question by the Surveyor General's Department. I feel sorry that I should have to complain of these obstacles as emanating from any public department, because I cannot help feeling that the Government of the Colony cannot be satisfactorily administered while such impediments exist; but the duty I owe to myself, not less than to Mr. Cooper, leaves me no other course, and as such I beg that it may be received, as I intend it more in defence of my own conduct and Mr. Cooper's right than otherwise, as I cannot permit improper motives to be attributed to the one, nor the interest of the other prejudiced by anyone, even though that one were the Surveyor General.

Although I feel I could in justice claim the whole of "Ocean-street" as defined by the tracing, yet I have no idea of availing myself of that which is evidently an error of the Surveyor General's Department, for the purpose of embarrassing the Government; and as such beg that it may be understood that I wish not to claim any more land than that which is and has been for years past in the possession of Mr. Cooper, and in conformity thereto shall be perfectly satisfied to be bounded so far as "Ocean-street" is concerned by the eastern side of that street, as defined by Mr. Cooper's line of fence.

On the water-side (for the purpose of preserving uniformity in the grants), "By the waters of Double Bay," and on all other sides of both blocks by the lines as indicated by the tracing marked S.B., vol. 5, folio 18, so often spoken of; and I trust that this declaration will not only satisfy the Government that I have no desire to block up a public highway but also be the means of finally bringing that which to me has now become a very unpleasant portion of my duty to a close. As regards the reference to Mr. Cooper, which the Surveyor General speaks of, I must firmly, but respectfully, say that I do not deem it necessary, neither am I disposed to give my countenance to the delay which would necessarily follow such a course. The question is one of extreme simplicity, and so difficult to involve in mystery, that I feel myself ashamed at the idea of being obliged to waste so much reasoning upon it; and, having every confidence in the honor and good faith of the Government under which I live, I trust that it will (apart from the Surveyor General's Department) be viewed as such, and that the deeds of grant may be prepared in accordance with our understanding, at your earliest convenience.

Reserving to myself, should there be a necessity, the permission to reply to that portion of your letter which states that the tracing upon which I rely merely exhibits what was considered to be part of the original boundary of the Point Piper Estate.

I have, &c.,
JAMES COOPER,
Attorney for DANIEL COOPER.

The circumstances stated here cannot be explained in this office. I conclude the letter should be referred to the Surveyor General.—6 March, 1851. Yes.—C.A.F., 28/3/51. The Surveyor General is requested to have the goodness to report.—(For the Colonial Secretary), W. ELYARD, junior., B.C., 28 March, 1851. To be returned.

Mr. Cooper alludes in this letter to three streets, viz., Ocean, Bay, and William Streets. He says he will give up Ocean-street; Bay-street is not included in the description at all; and as to William-street, it is but a continuation of the road of which Ocean-street is a part, and which forms one of the roads mentioned under the 6th head in the schedule of the Act 11 Victoria No. 49. As Mr. Cooper says he has no desire to block up a public highway, there is now, as it appears to me, no obstacle to the preparation of the deeds of grant.—T. L. MITCHELL, Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 3 April, 1851. Approved.—C.A.F., 7 April, 1851.

Mr. Cooper expressed to me a wish, verbally, that the matter might be allowed to remain over until he had an opportunity of communicating with his principal. Let him be informed of the above decision, and await his reply before the deed is made out.—7 April, 1851.

Double Bay.

Engelhurst, 7 April, 1851.

I beg to say a few words in reference to the report of the Surveyor General, which you favoured me with a sight of on Saturday last, previously to its receiving the decision of His Excellency the Governor, as I understood you to say that you were disposed to recommend its adoption.

1st.

1st. The tracing marked S. B., vol. 5, folio 18, evidently guided the Government, as it most unquestionably did myself, with respect to this negotiation. This is of some importance, notwithstanding the assertion of the Surveyor General "that it merely exhibits what was considered to be part of the original boundary of the Point Piper Estate."

2nd. If further proof were wanting, it is to be found in the Surveyor General's letter to you of the 15th February, 1849 (written eleven months after he enclosed to you the above), enclosing a reduced sketch of the same land, which he declares Mr. Cooper to be entitled to under the arrangement of 1830. If words are worth anything, to my mind this becomes a settled point, and I submit that I am entitled to the lands as defined by these tracings. It was without doubt so intended on both sides, and the good faith of the Government is pledged to it, without reservation of any kind, from which it is to be hoped there will not now be any desire to depart, neither should I, in so plain a case, consider that I had done my duty towards Mr. Cooper did I consent to take anything less. See No. 64.

3rd. The claim to the continuation of Bay-street, I understand, is abandoned.

4th. I submit that the proposed continuation of William-street and the two bridle tracks are not, nor, so far as I can at present learn, ever were dedicated roads, but were used by Captain Piper as private ways to his then residence at Point Piper, long before Mr. Cooper gave to the public the New South Head Road, and certainly could not be said to communicate with that which was not then in existence. The claim therefore now laid to them by the Surveyor General amounts to nothing better than a caprice of that officer, which I am far from being disposed to patent.

5th. It has been intimated that the Government would feel embarrassed by my insisting upon the terms of our contract. If the question had from the commencement assumed this appearance, it would undoubtedly have received every respect and attention from me, but after the trouble which I have been put to, this intimation now comes too late. However, I feel bound in candour to say that I cannot view it in this light, inasmuch as the Government could not give to the Road Trust Commissioners that which never had any existence in fact, or I may safely add, law. There never was a road dedicated to the public connecting "William-street" with the New South Head Road. To have effected this, something must have been done posterior to the formation of the latter, when it is notorious that everything that has been done was done anterior thereto, as well as being, as I contend, of a purely private nature. It therefore follows as a necessary corollary that if William-street were even given to the public, that that street must terminate (as I had occasion a short time ago to remark) at the boundary of the Village of Double Bay, and would only have the effect of cutting up Mr. Cooper's land at pleasure, without any corresponding benefit to him. This is too much for the Government to expect me to sanction. I gave the road to Belle Vue as a choice between two evils more than from a feeling of right, as I saw plainly that Mr. Cooper has nothing to expect from defending an action against the Government but the payment of his own costs. I gave up "Ocean-street" to Mr. Cooper's line of fence because I thought it an error, and I did not wish to place the Government in a dilemma, and now I am called upon to make a further concession. This, I repeat, I cannot do. If, however, the Government should (contrary to the opinion I hold) imagine itself embarrassed by the question, I will give the street in dispute, as also its continuation, in a direct line till it meets the New South Head Road, upon receiving compensation for it (to be agreed upon) either in money or in land; and I only propose this as the means of relieving the Government, as in the event of its refusal, I beg to record most respectfully my determination to adhere strictly to my letter to you of the 28th February last, and trust that there will be no further objection on the part of the Government to issue the confirmatory grants to Mr. Cooper of the land that has been so faithfully promised to him in terms thereof. See No. 87.

I have, &c.,

JAMES COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER.

Minutes on above.

This should, I imagine, be referred for the report of the Surveyor General.—16th April.

It does not appear to me that there is anything advanced in this letter which should induce the Government to alter the decision at which it has arrived in this case. Neither can it enter into any discussion respecting the closing up thoroughfares, some of which have been long dedicated to the public, no less by prescription than by the force of statutory and common law, as the recent judgments of the Supreme Court in analogous cases have very clearly set forth, and which are of course equally binding on the Government as on the public at large.—6th May.

Has the communication directed to be made to Mr. Cooper on 51/3514 been made to him?—19th May. A letter was submitted with 51/2219, but withheld, apparently in consequence of this communication, and that of 51/3514, received the same day.—22nd May. The communication in the Surveyor General's letter of 51/3514 don't affect this, Mr. Cooper being aware of the fact respecting Bay-street. See second page of his letter. See No. 90.
See No. 87.

No. 90.

The Surveyor General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor General's Office, Sydney, 7 April, 1851.

With reference to my blank cover report of the 3rd instant on Mr. Cooper's letter forwarded to me under blank cover of the 28th ultimo, and to the words "Bay-street is not included in the description at all," I have the honor to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, that the reverse was intended to be expressed, namely, that Bay-street is included in the description, that it is not a public thoroughfare, and consequently that its preservation to the public is not required. See Minute on No. 87.

The copy of the Surveyor General's report herein referred to should be corrected in accordance with this explanation before it is forwarded to Mr. Cooper.—C.A.F., 10 April.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Cooper.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 19 May, 1851.

Sec. No 89.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 7th ultimo, respecting the reservation of roads through the land at Double Bay intended to be ceded as a portion of the Point Piper Estate, in which you refer to my personal interview with you on the subject, I do myself the honor, by the direction of the Governor, to inform you that His Excellency does not consider that there is anything advanced in your letter which should induce the Government to alter the decision at which it has arrived in this case. Neither can it enter into any discussion respecting the closing up of thoroughfares, some of which have been long dedicated to the public no less by prescription than by the force of statutory and common law, as the recent judgments of the Supreme Court in analogous cases have been clearly set forth, and which are of course equally binding on the Government as on the public at large.

2. I beg further to add, that it appears by the report of the Surveyor General that Bay-street is not a public thoroughfare, and consequently that its preservation to the public is not required; and that William-street is only a continuation of the road of which Ocean-street is a part, and which forms one of the roads mentioned in the schedule of the Act of Council 11 Victoria No. 49.

I have, &c.,

E. DEAS-THOMSON.

No. 92.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Engelhurst, 22 May, 1851.

No. 91.

In reply to your letter of the 19th instant, yesterday received, I do myself the honor to remind you that the "discussion respecting the closing of thoroughfares" originated with the Government, and that my remarks were only in reply thereto, for which I did hope the Government would feel thankful.

2. Although Bay-street is now acknowledged not to be a public road, yet by the description of the Surveyor General a street 1 chain in width has been taken out of the quantity promised to Mr. Cooper. This will be manifest upon a comparison. Indeed the whole of this block of land requires a new measurement to include the quantity enclosed by Mr. Cooper's fences.

3. I conceive, with submission, that the conclusion arrived at by the Government, viz., that William-street is only a continuation of the road of which Ocean-street is a part, is a manifest misconception. It might as well be urged that Sussex-street is only a continuation of the road of which King-street is a part, for if roads and streets running at right angles to each other, and bearing opposite names, can be construed into one and the same street, there is, in my opinion, an end to all reasoning on the matter. I possess, however, evidence from under the hand of the Surveyor General that the proposed continuation of William-street is private property, and that evidence exists upon the face of a plan of the Point Piper Estate, which he himself prepared; and further, if I understand your remarks about dedication to apply to William-street, I must beg to say, that no right by "prescription" of that portion belonging to Mr. Cooper has here taken place; and as to a "dedication by statutory and common law," I feel myself called upon to say that I most respectfully dispute the right of any person, whether legislative or otherwise, to take from Mr. Cooper the property which belongs to him without making him a compensation for the same, and especially so when the act has been done by the simple wording of a schedule, although in itself of a doubtful nature, and in ignorance of existing facts.

4. Not being able therefore to receive your present letter as an answer to mine upon this question, and having fairly exhausted the subject, without possessing the slightest desire to prolong the same, I beg that you will do me the favour to say Yes, or No, whether it is the intention of the Government to confirm to Mr. Cooper the lands that have been promised to him in terms of our agreement, in order that I may know how to act.

I have, &c.,

JAS. COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER.

Minutes on No. 92.

I am not aware that I can say anything in addition to this. The simple question appears to be, can the Government carry out its promise, which is, to give a certain portion of land, defined by a map, in exchange for another.—24.

Perhaps I may meet the question of the Colonial Secretary by saying that the Government promised to give the proprietors of the Point Piper Estate a certain portion of land claimed by them as belonging to it, by receiving other ground from them in lieu. They have accordingly resigned the equivalent land, which has been fenced in.

The plan furnished by the Surveyor General of the land to be conceded to Messrs. Cooper at Double Bay shows what was promised, but the description is at variance, for it includes a portion of Ocean-street, William-street, and Bay-street taken therefrom.

According to the present decision Ocean-street and William-street are considered public property, but not Bay-street, which is included in the description.—15th June.

I conclude that the agent, Mr. Jas. Cooper, may be informed, and that the deeds will be made out accordingly.—24th June. Approved, 26th.—C.A.F.

There is still a difficulty in at once disposing of this matter. Mr. Daniel Cooper is to obtain a grant of the land at Double Bay on giving a surrender of that at Belle Vue. Such a surrender is now in the hands of his agent, Mr. James Cooper, but that gentleman declines to give it up until he gets a grant of the land claimed at Double Bay, and it may therefore be premature to prepare the deed under these circumstances.

Mr. James Cooper is not officially (at any rate) aware of the particular portions of land proposed to be included in the deed. I would therefore beg to recommend that he should have copies of the descriptions.—4th July. Proceed as suggested.—7th July.

Sir,

Engelhurst, 7 July, 1851.

I do myself the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, and, in answer thereto, beg to say that, like your former, I regret that it is totally out of my power to receive your present one as an answer to mine of the 22nd May last, inasmuch as the principal matter in dispute, viz., the continuation of William-street, has been left entirely untouched; but as I have not yet been furnished with any official description of the two plots of land which the Government propose to convey to Mr. Cooper, and as I now learn, for the first time, that there is a material discrepancy between the sketch or tracing marked S.B., vol. 5, fol. 18, which regulated our agreement, and a ground survey in the Surveyor General's Office, which doubtless has been regulating the correspondence therefrom, I beg that you will favour me—1st, with an official description of the two portions of land above alluded to, and, secondly, a tracing of the ground survey, which I understand defines the lands which the Government now propose to convey to Mr. Cooper, as well as the existing contemplation of Ocean-street, in order that I may consider how far it remains in my power to meet the views of the Government.

No. 97.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Engelhurst, 9 August, 1851.

Your letter of the 6th instant, enclosing the descriptions and tracing of the lands applied for, came to hand yesterday, for which I thank you, as it enables me to reply to documents which I now understand that the Government desire to be guided by; and as I wish not to leave anything to say upon this subject, shall, with your permission, approach it in such a way as will not fail to give you at sight a full conception of the nature of the case.

The land which Mr. Cooper has been in possession of for a series of years, and defined, or nearly so, by the first tracing, marked S.B., vol. 5, fol. 18, has been promised to that gentleman (see my letter of the 3rd February last) since 1830, and if the deeds of grant could have been prepared, would doubtless have been legally settled on or about the time of the promise. Therefore, Mr. Cooper, relying upon the good good faith of the Government, must be considered to be as fully entitled to the lands in question as though the Seal of the Colony had been affixed to the transaction. This took place eighteen years previously to the institution of the present Road Trust Commission.

Again, the same promise was repeated in April, 1848, and accepted by me the May following, being about seven months previous to the appointment of the Commissioners under the above Act, so that even at that time, could it have been possible for a grant to have ensued, Mr. Cooper would have possessed it long anterior to the creation of that trust. There is therefore no cause to doubt that Mr. Cooper is in every way entitled to receive the grants in accordance with his possession, as defined by his lines of fence, and nearly so by the tracing marked S.B., vol. 5, fol. 18.

In the face of this agreement the Government initiated the Road Trust Act, which has passed the Legislature of the Colony, whereby, without any reference to the subject matter of roads in the body of the Act, but purely by a few lines in the schedule thereof, an attempt has been made to deprive an individual of his right unheard. This power, I confidently assert, our Legislature did not possess. It is, indeed, a power which the Imperial Parliament does not enjoy, and therefore could never delegate it. It is, I humbly submit, proper that I should direct your attention to this, as I am determined to uphold Mr. Cooper's right to a portion of this property in dispute, even though I should be obliged to maintain that right at law.

There is, as I said in my last, a material discrepancy between the tracing which regulated my agreement with the Government and the one you have just sent to me, which discrepancy pervades both blocks; but taking the present tracing, made nearly two years after our agreement, as the one which the Government wish to conform to, I will, for the purpose of meeting its views and getting rid of a troublesome question, consent to the eastern boundary of Ocean-street (from its junction with the New South Head Road in a straight northerly direction till it meets the waters of Double Bay, in terms of the present tracing), although it will take from Mr. Cooper a portion of the land which he is alike entitled to, no less by possession than by the terms of our agreement, and accept the grant in that gentleman's name for the block containing 5 acres 3 roods and 36 perches. This will, I presume, settle to the satisfaction of the Government this portion, and be the means of narrowing the question in dispute to the block containing 9 acres 2 roods and 9 perches, respecting which I am compelled, from a mere sense of justice towards Mr. Cooper, to request a resurvey, so as to include the portion taken therefrom for the proposed continuation of William-street, and in doing this I will endeavour to meet the question with all its difficulties.

That the Government stand pledged to convey to Mr. Cooper this entire block, without reference to streets of any kind, is with me a settled point; and the only difficulty in the way of its completion appears to be this, viz., that the Legislature has attempted to take therefrom a road, which was intended to be placed under the control of the Trust Commissioners.

I have already shown that our late Council did not possess the power to pass this Act in the way in which it has been done, yet the perplexity, so far as the Government is concerned, has to be got rid of; and I prefer that the case should be firmly and fairly met, than that it should be evaded by either a supposed dedication or by the assertion that "William-street is only a continuation of a road of which Ocean-street is a part," either of which, I respectfully submit, and feel satisfied that you will acknowledge, to be as unworthy of the good faith of the Government as it is unfounded in fact.

If I were permitted to offer a remark, I would say that there are two ways in which the Government can honorably meet this question. The first is, by calling for a fresh survey and description, so as to include the portion taken therefrom for the continuation of William-street, and to issue a grant to Mr. Cooper in terms thereof, leaving that gentleman to settle his own business with the public and the Colonial Act, or to issue a grant for the quantity in terms of the present tracing, by making Mr. Cooper a remuneration (to be determined by any two disinterested persons) for the quantity taken for the continuation of William-street, when, if this latter course is adopted, I will consent to a further continuation of that street in a direct line till it meets the New South Head Road, upon the same terms. Either of these ways, I respectfully submit, would be the most dignified, as it unquestionably would be the most honorable means of settling this vexatious subject; and in the hope that either the one or the other will meet the views of the Government, I beg to conclude by saying that as this letter is intended to be the ultimatum of what I consider Mr. Cooper ought to do, it must be received and regarded from first to last as a proposition made entirely without prejudice to Mr. Cooper's right to the entire quantities, as defined by the original tracing, marked S.B., vol. 5, fol. 18, so often alluded to.

I have, &c.,

JAS. COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER.

Minutes on above.

For the Executive Council, 14th.—C.A.F. B.C., 18 August, 1851.—(For the Colonial Secretary) W. ELYARD, jun. Laid before the Executive Council, 28 August, 1851: Minute No. 51/44.—M.F.

No. 98.

PROCEEDINGS of the Executive Council on the 28th August, 1851, with reference to a correspondence having relation to a purposed grant to Mr. Daniel Cooper of land at Double Bay, in lieu of other land at Belle Vue to be surrendered by him to the Government.

Minute No. 51/44. Confirmed 2nd September, 1851.

Hrs Excellency the Governor General lays before the Council a correspondence having reference to certain portions of land at Double Bay, which the Government purposed to grant to Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, in lieu of certain other land at Belle Vue, which Mr. Cooper was to have surrendered to the Government.

2. From the correspondence laid before the Council, it appears that on condition of his surrendering a certain portion of land at Belle Vue, required for purposes of public recreation, Mr. Daniel Cooper was to have received a grant from the Crown of two separate portions of unalienated land adjoining the township laid out by the Government at Double Bay, containing respectively five acres three roods and three perches and nine acres two roods and nine perches; but that when recently the grants were about to

to be prepared in Mr. Cooper's favour, it was objected by his agent, Mr. James Cooper, of Sydney, that the descriptions proposed to be inserted in the deeds did not comprise the whole of the land originally intended to be granted, as shown on a certain sketch to which he had had access in the Surveyor General's Office, in the early stages of the correspondence.

3. Although originally extending to the measurement of both these blocks of land, Mr. Cooper's objections are now understood to be narrowed to the proposed southern limit of the larger of these blocks, of which he insists that a resurvey should be made, so as to include the space comprised in the continuation of the line of street, shown on the sketch as William-street, from Bay-street to the New South Head Road, which street is in fact a continuation of the old Point Piper Road, one of the public roads indicated in the Schedule annexed to the Act of Council 11 Victoria No. 49.

4. The Council are of opinion that in urging the Government to convey to Mr. Daniel Cooper the space occupied by the street or road in question Mr. James Cooper is asking that which it is not in the power of the Government to grant. For although it is quite true that the negotiation which it is now sought to realize was entered into long before the passing of the Act referred to, still the road in question had been previously dedicated to the public, and its introduction into the Schedule of the Act is in itself evidence of such dedication.

5. And it must be borne in mind that even if the block of land in question were described in the manner contended for by Mr. Cooper, the deeds of grant would still contain the usual reservation of a right-of-way through the same, and therefore the interests of the grantee are no more prejudiced by the exclusion from the description of the present line of road than they would be by the formation of a public road through the same land, if described in accordance with Mr. Cooper's request.

Clerk of the Council.

No. 99.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Cooper.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 22 September, 1851.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 9th August last, on the subject of the land at Double Bay which it is proposed to grant to Mr. Daniel Cooper, as a portion of the Point Piper Estate, on condition of certain other land at Belle Vue being ceded by that gentleman to the Government, I have the honor to inform you that the Governor General has submitted to the Executive Council the correspondence having reference to the case.

2. Under the advice of the Council, I am directed by His Excellency to acquaint you with reference to your objection to the proposed southern limit of the block containing 9 acres 2 roods and 9 perches, on account of which you require a resurvey to be made, so as to include the space comprised in the continuation of the line of street from Bay-street to the New South Head Road, that this street, known as William-street, is in fact a continuation of the old Point Piper Road, one of the roads indicated in the Schedule annexed to the Act of Council 11 Victoria No. 49.

3. I am therefore to state to you that the Council is of opinion that in urging the Government to convey to Mr. Daniel Cooper the space occupied by the street or road in question you are asking that which it is not in the power of the Government to grant, for although it is quite true that the negotiation which it is now sought to realize was entered into long before the passing of the Act referred to, still the road in question had been previously dedicated to the public, and its introduction into the Schedule of the Act is in itself evidence of such dedication.

4. In conclusion, I am further instructed to remark to you, that even assuming that the block of land in question was described in the manner contended for by you, the deeds of grant would still contain the usual reservation of a right-of-way through the same, and therefore the interests of the grantee are no more prejudiced by the exclusion from the description of the present line of road than they would be by the formation of a public road through the same land, if described in accordance with your request.

I have, &c.,

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Double Bay.

Engelhurst, 26 September, 1851.

No. 99.

In reply to your letter of the 22nd instant, I do myself the honor to state that the dedication which the Government still contend for never in reality took place; that the continuation of William-street is nothing more than a private way which the late Captain Piper used for the purpose of getting to his residence at Point Piper, at which spot it ceased. Indeed the plan of the Point Piper Estate, made by the Surveyor General himself, does not even carry it to that point; and so far from the introduction of the same into the Schedule of the 11 Victoria No. 49 proving its dedication, I submit that it proves nothing of the kind, but simply (at the utmost) a supposition of it; but if we admit, for the sake of argument, that the continuation of William-street was a dedicated road, still, by the 4th William IV, it must revert to its original owner from the moment that the dedication of the New South Head Road took place, so that in either case the position of the Government is untenable.

Abstractedly I do not dispute the right of the Government to roads; but if the Government will insist upon rights, it should not forget that it has duties to perform; and the duty I submit in this case, is to pay for that which is required, otherwise the reservation in some instances might seriously injure private property, if not amount to a confiscation of the grant.

It is admitted that Mr. Cooper is entitled to the portion of land in dispute, then why not either grant it to him or pay for it.

Having in truth exhausted this subject, as well as my own patience, I intend this letter to be, at least for the present, my last; and in submitting it for your consideration, I beg to observe, that having failed to make any impression on the mind of the Government relative to what I take to be the equity of the case, in conformity with the maintenance of its own good faith, and having denuded Mr. Cooper, by a formal dedication of the road to Belle Vue, given as an equivalent for the two portions of land at Double Bay, I now withdraw the whole of the concessions made by me during the continuance of this correspondence, solely for the sake of amicably settling this question; and that you will be pleased to understand that I henceforth insist upon the extreme rights of Mr. Cooper, in strict accordance with our agreement, as defined by the original tracing marked S.B., vol. 5, fol. 18, and am prepared to hand over to the Government the surrender to the Crown (of the road to Belle Vue, long since in the possession of the public) upon receiving the grants in accordance therewith.

REFERRING to the proceedings on the 28th August last, His Excellency the Governor General lays before the Council a further letter from Mr. James Cooper, in which, as agent for Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, he iterates his objections to the reservation of a certain right-of-way through the land at Double Bay which the Government proposed to grant to Mr. Daniel Cooper, in consideration of his surrendering certain other land at Belle Vue required for purposes of public recreation.

2. The Council adhere to the view of this case expressed in their previous minute, and they recommend either that the transaction be completed on the terms held out by the Government, or that the entire negotiation be absolutely broken off, and the proposed exchange abandoned.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Cooper.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 31 October, 1851.

See No. 100.

The Governor General has laid before the Executive Council your letter of the 26th ultimo, in which, as agent for Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, you iterate your objections to the reservation of a certain right-of-way through the land at Double Bay which the Government proposes to grant to Mr. Daniel Cooper, in consideration of his surrendering certain other land at Belle Vue required for purposes of public recreation.

See No. 99.

2. His Excellency and Council adhering to the view of this case expressed in a former minute, and communicated to you in my letter of the 22nd of last month, I am now instructed to state that the transaction can only be completed on the terms held out by the Government, and that if this be not done the entire negotiation will be absolutely broken off, and the proposed exchange abandoned.

I have, &c.,

E. DEAS-THOMSON.

No. 103.

No. 103.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Engelhurst, 5 November, 1851.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ultimo, yesterday received, No. 102. intimating to me that the Governor General has laid before the Executive Council my letter of the 26th September last, and that you are desired to state, His Excellency and Council still adhering to the view of the case expressed to me in your letter of the 22nd of that month, instruct you to say that the transaction therein referred to can only be completed on the terms held out by the Government, and if this is not done the entire negotiation will be entirely broken off, and the exchange abandoned. In reply to which I beg permission to observe—

1. That having formally handed over to the Government the road to Belle Vue, on or about the time of the ratification of the contract (the same having been fenced off at the public expense), it has been so entirely dedicated to the public, "as the recent judgments of the Supreme Court in analogous cases have clearly set forth," that the Government is not in a position (even were it desirous of repudiating its agreement) to abandon the exchange, as it is termed, by anything short of legislative enactment.

2. I also feel it to be a duty which I owe to myself to remind the Government that during the continuance of this correspondence I have sought not to obtain any more than what I sincerely believe to be justice to an absent party, and as such do most unfeignedly regret that I should differ from His Excellency and Council relative to my ideas of what that justice is. I do not, however, after reconsidering this matter, feel that I should be justified in opposing the dictum of the Government at law, as the payment of Mr. Cooper's own costs would probably be greater to him than the value of the land in dispute; and shall therefore, solely to avoid such necessity, consent to receive the grants in the form pointed out by the descriptions which have been furnished to me by the Government, and appeal to the Legislature of the Colony for that justice which has, I conceive, been denied to Mr. Cooper by the Executive; and as such I am prepared to hand over to the Government the deed of surrender of the road to Belle Vue directly I am informed that the deeds for the Double Bay land are ready for delivery.

I have, &c.,

JAS. COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER.

Minute on above.

The deeds may now be prepared and submitted for signature. —C.A.F., 13th.

No. 104.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Double Bay.

Engelhurst, 22 November, 1852.

I do myself the honor to acquaint you that by the "Great Britain," just arrived, I am in possession of instructions from Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, to bring this long pending question to a close. In accordance therewith I beg most respectfully to refer you to the conclusion of my letter to you of the 5th November, 1851, upon the above subject, and shall feel obliged by your causing the deeds of grant to be made out, in terms of the Government descriptions, at your earliest convenience. See No. 103.

The surrender to the Crown of the road to Belle Vue has already been submitted to the Civil Crown Solicitor for his approval, whose report I am informed you have long since received.

I have, &c.,

JAMES COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER, London.

No. 105.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 22 December, 1852.

As Mr. Daniel Cooper, of London, is anxious to have copies of the two Double Bay grants referred to in my letter to you of the 22nd ultimo, may I be permitted to beg the favour that you will let me know when it will be convenient to the Government to let me have the original deed. See No. 104.

I have, &c.,

JAS. COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER, London.

No. 106.

Mr. J. Cooper to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 23 February, 1853.

I beg respectfully to call your attention to my letter to you of the 22nd December last, and shall feel particularly obliged by an answer to the same at your earliest convenience. See No. 105.

I have, &c.,

JAS. COOPER,

Attorney for DANIEL COOPER.

Minute on above.

Inform Mr. Cooper that the deed for the land at Double Bay has been prepared, and will be forwarded with as little delay as possible, through the usual channel, to the Colonial Treasurer, who will deliver it on the certificate of the Civil Crown Solicitor that he has received the deed for the land surrendered by Mr. Daniel Cooper at Belle Vue.—16th April.

No. 107.

Memoranda on subject of grant to Mr. D. Cooper.

Grant to Daniel Cooper in compensation for land surrendered for road at Belle Vue.

30 March, 1853.

The following points appear to require decision in reference to the deed of grant to be issued in this case:—

1. The land to be given in compensation will, it is presumed, be chargeable with a peppercorn quit-rent only, as that on the original grant (as stated below) is represented to have been redeemed.

Quit-rent on the Point Piper Estate, 4s. per annum.

Do. Belle Vue Estate, £1 2s. per annum.

2. The original grants do not contain the usual reservation of land within 100 feet of highwater mark, therefore, in the deed to Mr. Cooper this clause will, I conclude, be properly omitted, as the land has been measured so as to give him a right of water frontage. (See descriptions, 50/3,066.)

3. The terms of the original agreement in this matter, as set forth in the Colonial Secretary's letters, of the 6th September, 1830, and 22nd April, 1848, copies of which are herewith enclosed, makes no allusion whatever to the reservations to be inserted in the deed to Mr. Cooper. The presumption is, therefore, that the conditions were to be precisely the same as those contained in the original grant of the Point Piper Estate, which reserves only the right of making a public road, and timber for naval purposes; and the additional clause included in the ordinary form of grant now in use, reserving to the Crown the right of resuming land for public purposes (see *draft of deed herewith), will, I conclude, be altogether omitted.

The letters, of which copies are enclosed, state that the land is to be given in extension of the boundaries of the former estate, and therefore it may be inferred on the same conditions.—31st. Yes.—C.A.F., 1 Sept., 1853.

No. 108.

Memorandum in the case.

I FIND that in several instances deeds which have been surrendered to the Crown, and new ones issued under the advice of the law officers—in cases somewhat similar, though not altogether analogous to the present—the rule respecting advertising the land for one month has been relaxed, and this course may very properly be followed in this case from the consideration—

1st. That the grant is issued under the advice of the law officers.

2nd. That the interests of third parties are not likely to be affected in such a case as the present, the matter being entirely one between the Crown and Mr. Cooper, and the latter being in bonâ fide possession of the land.

3rd. That the rule in question was adopted not to meet such cases as these, but those of grants issued in pursuance of old promises where encroachments on their neighbours' rights were very likely to occur.

4th. From the delay that has already occurred, and as the end to be attained by a further delay of one month, which may greatly affect the interest of the grantee, does not seem very obvious.

April 1st, 1853.

The deed may perhaps in this case be prepared without being first advertised? Yes.—C.A.F., 4th.

J. Macintosh, Esq., M.P., to The Secretary for Lands.

My dear Sir,

Legislative Assembly, Sydney, 19 February, 1879.

Your predecessor, in answer to a question put by me, stated that he would take steps to restore the Marine Parade and the Steyne at Double Bay to the residents of that village and the public, in accordance with the plan adopted by the Government and exhibited to the purchasers when they were invited to purchase the allotments.

Your early attention to the matter would be a great boon to the public.

You will find that an error was committed in the description of the land granted to Sir Daniel Cooper in 1853.

I think a wrong has been committed, and ought to be set at rights.

I remain, &c.,

JOHN MACINTOSH.

Minutes on No. 115.

Very urgent. Under Secretary,—How does this matter stand? Mr. Macintosh, M.P., wishes to be informed. Look at the promises made by my predecessor.—J.H., 20/2/79.

Memo.—Mr. Macintosh's letter refers to a question, answered by Mr. Farnell, as to defining the Marine Parade at Double Bay. It does not appear, however, to have been done, although Mr. Farnell stated in his reply that steps would be at once taken to carry out the work. The papers are with Mr. Rich, on the 7th of December, 1878, for copy of return in this matter for Parliament. It would be well to have the papers sent on to Survey Department, in order that the parade might be defined.—J.G.N., 24/2/79.

Mr. District-Surveyor Woolrych was (on papers 78-5,639, Ministerial) directed to mark the Marine Parade at Double Bay easterly from the Steyne, on 12th December, 1878, and he has this day been reminded.—W.F., 24/2/79.

The surveyor should be urged to expedite this work at Double Bay, and Mr. Macintosh, M.P., informed of the steps taken.—J.H., B.C., 1/3/79. Mr. Macintosh, M.P., informed.—6 Mar., /79.

Sir,

495, George-street S., Sydney, 7 February, 1878.

The water caused by the recent rains flowing towards Darling Harbour having been intercepted and dammed by the new railway line at Darling Harbour, and having entered our premises near there to a depth of seventeen (17) inches, whereby we have sustained a loss from damage roughly estimated at five hundred pounds (£500), we have the honor to inform you that we intend to make a claim for compensation against your department for the actual amount of damage done.

We have had the premises surveyed by a Sydney merchant, who will be able to testify as to amount of loss, and we have engaged the services of Mr. Licensed-surveyor J. F. Mann, who will be able to prove that the accumulation of water is due to the railway obstructing the natural flow of surface-water.

This notice is sent to you to enable your department to ascertain the circumstances of the case without delay, and our claim will be submitted to you as soon as it is prepared.

We have, &c.,
BIDDELL BROTHERS.

Engineer for Existing Lines, for inquiry and report.—CH.A.G., B.C., 8/2/78.

Biddell Bros. have built their premises since the railway was made, consequently have not a shadow of a claim on the Government for compensation. If they chose to build it under flood-level, they have only themselves to blame.—W.M., 14/2/78. Commissioner.

This should be put with papers which I referred to Mr. Mason yesterday. Send on to him at once.—CH.A.G., B.C., 22/2/78.

No. 7.

Mr. B. Morris to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Hay and Quay Streets, Darling Harbour, Sydney, 11 February, 1878.

I have the honor to beg that you will be good enough to inform me when it will be your pleasure to receive a deputation, consisting of Messrs. J. Lucas, M.P., A. Cameron, M.P., Zollner, Biddell, Harris, Egerton, and Pemell, to bring under your notice the unsatisfactory condition of Darling Harbour.

I remain, &c.,

B. MORRIS,
Secretary to the Deputation.

Friday, the 15th instant, at 10-30. Mr. Mason to visit and report fully.—J.S., 12/2/78. Mr. Mason, B.C.—CH. A. G., 12/2/78.

I have examined into this matter this morning, and as I have already explained verbally to the Minister all the circumstances connected with the subject, it will be unnecessary to repeat it further than to remark that this is a matter which I think belongs to the Corporation to provide for, and not the Railway Department. As far as the construction of the railway sidings, every provision was made for drainage that could possibly be made at the time they were laid down. The buildings generally have been placed too low by the proprietors, and it would be impossible to prevent them being flooded under such heavy rains as have recently fallen in Sydney, backed up by a flood-tide.—W.M., 13/2/78.

Commissioner. The deputation waited on Minister. Put with this the result, if it be published.—CH. A.G., 16/2/78.

Darling Harbour.

OWING to the severe losses suffered by many of the residents and property-owners in the vicinity of Darling Harbour, through the late rains, a number of gentlemen met at "Burrangong Hotel," on Saturday last, and, after a lengthened discussion, passed the following resolution:—"That a deputation, consisting of Messrs. J. Lucas, M.P., A. Cameron, M.P., Zollner, Biddell, Harris, Egerton, and Pemell, wait on the Hon. the Minister for Works to seek immediate relief from a liability to flood-waters, caused by the construction of the railway near the Circular Wharf."

No. 8.

Extract from the Sydney Morning Herald, 16 February, 1871.Drainage into Darling Harbour.

A DEPUTATION, consisting of Mr. Cameron, MP., Messrs. J. Pemell, Bell, Zollner, Harris, Biddell, Edgerton, and Morris, representing the owners of property at the head of Darling Harbour, waited upon the Hon. Minister for Works yesterday morning, in reference to the flooded state of that portion of the city, caused, as the deputation alleged, by the construction of the Pymont extension of the railway line. From the statements made by the gentlemen present, it appears that the railway is above the actual level of the ground, and the natural flow of drainage is thereby obstructed, so that the water being unable to escape into the harbour, as was formerly the case, lies upon and floods the low land in the vicinity to such an extent as to cause serious damage to property and inconvenience to the residents. There was formerly a watercourse on the western side of the line by which the waters got away into the harbour, and the deputation requested that something might be done in order to have this channel again opened up so as to relieve the flat from the liability to floods which now occur on every occasion of heavy rain. Mr. Sutherland having heard the statements of the deputation, promised that he would take the matter into consideration, and would endeavour to carry out the improvements they desired.

No. 9.

Messrs. Biddell Bros. to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

495, George-street S., Sydney, 18 February, 1878.

Referring to our letter of the 7th instant, No. 78/1, in which we informed you that we intended to make a claim for compensation for the actual amount of damage done at our factory at head of Darling Harbour by the accumulation of storm-waters dammed back by the railway embankment at that place, we have now the honor respectfully to submit our claim for the amount of six hundred and thirty-seven pounds and eight shillings (£637 8s.)

2. Enclosure No. 1 shows the amount of goods damaged and the amount of salvage secured, also the worth of such salvage deducted from the total, leaving a balance of actual amount of damage sustained.

3. In addition to the amount of actual damage, we have been put to considerable expense for labour in saving ullaged stock, the ordinary course of our business was interrupted, and the space below the floors of the factory was filled with water—a circumstance which will be detrimental to our stock to an unknown degree, consequent upon evaporation and the known affinity which all goods composed entirely or in part of sugar have for moisture.

4. Enclosure No. 2 shows the amount of damage as estimated by Mr. James Steadman, confectioner, of the city, who made a survey of the premises and took notes of the stock immediately after the flood.

5. Enclosure No. 3 shows the estimate of damage as made by Mr. Thomas Cowlshaw, of Messrs. Cowlshaw Brothers, merchants, of Sydney, who also made a survey of the premises, and noted the ullaged stock immediately after its submersion.

6. The grounds upon which we base our claim for compensation are: That the surface of the railway embankment is approximately three feet nine inches (3 ft. 9 in.) above the surface of the land as sold by the Government, whereby the storm-waters, which before the construction of the railway had natural and unobstructed flow into the harbour, have been dammed back to that height; and that the Government neglected to make adequate provision for otherwise disposing of said storm-waters; also, that the storm waters of the night of the 5th instant actually accumulated on the flat to the height of the railway embankment, and ultimately found access over it into the harbour, in the meantime flooding our premises.

7. In submitting the above claim, we beg respectfully to point out that our loss is of the gravest moment to us, and to request that you will be so good as to give it your early and best consideration. We also trust that you will see the necessity of immediately taking such steps as will prevent a recurrence of the evil.

We have, &c.,

BIDDELL BROTHERS.

Commissioner for Railways to take legal opinion as to liability and Mr. Mason's report.—J.S., 19/2/78. Again when Mr. Mason's report is received.—D.V.

I HAVE this day examined the factory of Messrs. Biddell Bros., and I found all the first floor had been covered with waters to the height of (say) 17 or 18 inches; and, from notes I took of the damage to stock, I believe their loss to be fully £600.

At the request of Messrs. Biddell Brothers I examined their factory this day, and found that water had been 18 inches above the ground floor, damaging the whole of the stock on this floor, and, after going through same and taking an account, I find that damage to the extent of about £600 has been done by the waters.

No. 10.

Extract from the Sydney Morning Herald, 20 February, 1878.

Drainage into Darling Harbour.

On Monday morning last a deputation, headed by Mr. Zollner and Mr. Bell, representing a number of property-holders at the southern end of Darling Harbour, waited upon the Mayor and represented to His Worship the serious amount of damage done by the flood-waters at the place indicated. Mr. Zollner pointed out that, in his opinion, the Government were largely blamable for the state of things complained of from the fact that in causing railway lines to be constructed around the circular iron wharf they had raised the embankments for the rails a considerable height above the ground, and had neglected to make any provision for the back-water to run off into the harbour. The contractor for the sewer he thought was also at fault, for in making the culvert for the sewer he had thrown up large mounds of earth, which impeded the passage of the water, and so blocked it up as to form a perfect reservoir some feet in depth. Nor did he consider the Corporation free from blame, inasmuch as they had not kept the contractor up to his work. He considered that had the sewer been finished up to contract time the damage would have been averted to a great degree. He knew that the contractor, so far from having nearly completed his work, was very little further forward than he was a short time after he commenced the job. Mr. Bell corroborated the statements of Mr. Zollner, and a member of the deputation, who stated that he was there as the representative of Messrs. Elliott, said that the water was so deep in their yard as to reach up to the gauging glass of the engine; some breeze that had been left in the yard for their customers they found the morning after the rain had commenced, floating about, and a portion of it resting upon a heap of timber 4 feet above the ground; in his opinion the sewer was sufficient for carrying the water away from the eastern side, but not so when the water was running from the Ultimo Estate. After some further representations, His Worship the Mayor promised to have the matter inquired into.

No. 11.

Mr. S. Zollner to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

84, York-street, Sydney, 22 February, 1878.

I have the honor to notify to you that I am still engaged ascertaining the damage sustained on the night between the 5th and 6th instant, from surface flood-water, which could not escape for want of proper provision being made in constructing railway embankment at the head of Darling Harbour.

I give this notice with a view of making a claim for compensation as soon as the damage can be fully ascertained, and the amount of salvage fixed. Messrs. John Keep, W. M. Jackson, of Lassetter & Co., and A. Drysdale, of Drysdale & Roberts, have surveyed the damaged stock and premises on the 8th instant, and my claim will be accompanied by their certificates.

I may here remark that I have occupied my premises at the head of Darling Harbour for the last ten years, and that I have never before received any damage from flood waters up to the night between the 5th and 6th instant.

I have, &c.,

S. ZOLLNER.

Commissioner

Commissioner to see all these claims attended to, and our liability ascertained. It will become very serious if we are to be held liable. We should * * * lease, as every shower will increase the amount.—J.S., 21/2/78. Crown Solicitor as to liability.—J.S., 21/2/78.

I shall require from Mr. Mason a full report on this matter as early as possible. 1st. The names of claimants and the amount of damage said to have been done. 2nd. When the various claimants built their places, to see whether their works preceded ours. 3. A description of the work we carried out, and in what way (if at all) it interfered with the drainage or the previous means adopted for carrying off the flood-waters. Any other particulars which Mr. Mason may consider necessary to enable me to obtain opinion of Crown Law Officers, for whom a "case" must be stated. No. 1 can be postponed, so as not to delay the furnishing of other necessary information.—CH.A.G., B.C., 21/2/78.

I forward herewith a tracing of plan, diagram, and other papers, showing the various levels of flood, &c., &c., and of the claims made by each person for damages. It will be seen by reference to the plan that the main drainage of the district is by way of an open drain from Hay-street into the harbour; this was the only watercourse before the sidings were constructed. Before the sidings were commenced, a sum of money I understand was granted to the Corporation by the Government for the purpose of constructing a sewer and providing for a full and proper drainage. This work was carried out by the Corporation without any interference from the Government, and they alone, I consider, are responsible if any imperfection in respect to drainage exists.—W.M., 7/3/78.

Commissioner.

I had a conversation with Mr. Mason on this matter, and I distinctly understood him to say that his views were embodied in his report, and that he would forward it with the plans he caused to be prepared, and that he had nothing more to say on the subject. This I told at the time to Mr. Bennett, who said that he considered the whole matter should have been dealt with by Mr. Mason who would from his constant visits to the place know more about it than the other members of the Board.

This is the only reason why Mr. Mason was not communicated with, and if he had desired to act in the matter it is somewhat singular that so often as I have seen him he never alluded to the question.

I now forward all the papers on the subject to Mr. Mason for his information.—J.W., 2/9/78.
Mr. Mason.

As I never reported on the subject contained in the letter of instructions, but merely wrote a minute pointing out that I considered the City Corporation and not the Government were responsible for the damage done by floods, it is difficult to understand how Mr. Whitton arrived at the conclusion that my views were embodied in my report; and when I handed the papers, &c., to him I told him what I had said in my minute on the subject, at the same time I remarked I will go with you at any time you may fix to examine the premises, &c.

As the Minister's letter of instructions directs the Board to enquire into "the recent destruction of property at Darling Harbour by floods, and the best means of preventing a recurrence of the evils complained of, as well as the claims for compensation," and as my minute does not enter into these matters, I do not understand why Mr. Whitton should imagine I had nothing more to say on the subject.

It was my desire to carry out the Minister's instructions by acting on the Board as directed, otherwise it was to me personally a matter of indifference whether I acted on it or not. I have only seen Mr. Whitton once, or at most twice, since we had the conversation he refers to; but admitting that I had seen him "so often" as he states, it is quite as singular that he never named the subject to me as that I had not named it to him, especially as he was Chairman of the Board and ought to have first moved in the matter.

I merely give the facts of the case for the Minister's information, so that he may be aware of the reason why I was not able to carry out his instructions.

I have read the report made by the Board, and disagree with it almost entirely.—W.M., 4/3/78.
The Honorable Minister for Works.

No. 17.

Mr. S. Zollner to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

84, York-street, Sydney, 6 March, 1878.

Referring to my letter of the 22nd ultimo, I have now the honor to submit to you for your kind consideration my claim for damage actually sustained by the accumulation of storm-waters, dammed by the railway embankment at the head of Darling Harbour, on the night between the 5th and 6th February.

The claim, as certified to by Messrs. John Keep, Wm. Jackson, and A. Drysdale, amounts to £1,011 13s. 6d., by no means represents the whole loss I have sustained, but merely the ascertainable, as it is impossible to say what damage has been done to my galvanizing bath, by the sudden influx of water putting out the fire and cooling 10 tons of molten metal, suddenly thereby contracting the bath and shaking the brickwork severely.

The enormous heat which had to be applied to melt this 10-ton block again created an under-expansion, and decrystallised a large quantity of the smelting metal and converted it into dross. The consequences of the sudden extreme changes of temperature on the bath are not apparent at present, but will show themselves in time, when the rivets in the bath will start and the molten metal will escape; a new bath will have to be substituted, breaking the old one out of the brickwork, and resetting the new one thereby, besides the cost of affecting these changes, loss of time in carrying on business is occasioned. These contingent losses I have not estimated in my claim, because they can not be ascertained with certainty at present.

In considering my claim, you will be good enough to bear in mind that I have occupied my premises for the last eleven years, before reclamation or railway embankments were contemplated, that storm-waters never entered my premises before, that the surface of the ground all around my premises has been raised without provision having been made to take off surface waters, as can be easily ascertained from a superficial examination of the works executed at the head of Darling Harbour. The loss sustained by me is very serious, and of grave moment to me, which circumstance, I beg, may weigh with you when deciding upon my claim.

Lastly, I beg respectfully to submit, you will be good enough to cause immediate steps to be taken to prevent the recurrence of a similar catastrophe, which may repeat itself any day with an exceptionally heavy rain at high-water time, unless provision is made almost immediately to carry off surface storm-waters.

I have, &c.,

S. ZOLLNER,

Sydney, 6 March, 1878.

We hereby certify that we have at the request of Mr. S. Zollner surveyed, on the 11th February last, his factory situated in Harbour-street, and the goods stored therein, with the object of ascertaining the damage done by the storm-waters on the night between the 5th and 6th February last, and after a thorough and careful examination we are of opinion that the claim for damages annexed hereto and initialed by us is a true and faithful statement of loss sustained by Mr. S. Zollner in consequence of the influx of storm-water into his premises.

No. 18.

Mr. S. Zollner to The Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

84 York-street, Sydney, 9 April, 1878.

I have the honor to refer to my communications of the 22nd February and the 6th March, to both of which I am still without reply. I have learned that a Board has been appointed to inquire into and report upon the matters set forth in my letters, but I fail to notice that any steps have been taken to prevent the recurrence of my stores being flooded again should heavy rains set in again.

The high state of the barometer at this season of the year, coupled with easterly winds, is in all probability indicative of approaching heavy rains, and unless immediate provision is made for egress of storm-water falling upon the flat the disaster will repeat itself, and in such a case utter ruin stares me in the face.

I am convinced you will do all in your power to prevent destruction of property and consequent ruin, and I beg, therefore, respectfully to submit that the Board may be requested to expedite their deliberations and bring the same to a speedy and successful issue.

I have, &c.,

S. ZOLLNER.

Mr. Rae to say what is done in the matter referred to.—J.S., 10/4/78.

A Board has been appointed, of which Mr. Whitton, I understand, is Chairman. He is now absent from Sydney on duty, and no meeting will be held till his return.—J.R., 10/4/78.

Claims for compensation for damage by floods at the head of Darling Harbour.

By the Sewerage Act, 17 Victoria No. 34, the construction of the necessary sewers within this city and their maintenance are vested in the Corporation.

The Corporation undertook to construct the sewers at Darling Harbour (see correspondence herewith), prepared the plans and specifications and estimates, and accepted tenders and finally proceeded with the works, having first applied for and obtained from Government the amount they were estimated to cost.

It is now stated by certain persons that by reason of the absence or insufficiency of the sewers they have sustained injury by the flooding of their premises.

If such be the case, it is clearly the Corporation who are responsible, and not the Government, and it is therefore to the former that claims for compensation should be addressed.

Further Report of the Board.

Messrs. Whitton, Bennett, and Moriarty—Further Report on floods at head of Darling Harbour.

IN accordance with the further instructions contained in the minute of the Under Secretary for Public Works of the 24th April last, we have inspected the locality and made inquiries at the Atlas Ironworks, Messrs. Biddell's and Zollner's factories, and from the Corporation labourers.

At the Atlas Works it was distinctly stated that water spouted up from all the openings of the sewers during the flood complained of, plainly showing they were acting at pipes under pressure and were inadequate to the discharge of the sewerage in the ordinary way. There can be no question that the flooding is due to the inadequate discharging capacity of the sewer and its defective shape, which promotes at certain states of the tide the deposit of silt to such an extent as to choke up the sewer completely. We are therefore of opinion that the Railway Department is in no way liable for the injury resulting from this defect in the sewers, which the Railway engineers were justified in assuming were of sufficient capacity, the Corporation having received from the Government the amount asked for by them to provide for the drainage of this flat; and indeed up to the present time no other outlet could have been provided under the railway or would have been of any use, as there was no storm-water channel anywhere on the flats to convey the flood-waters to such additional outlet if provided.

The levels show that it is quite impossible the railway bank could have caused the flooding at Messrs. Pemell's or Lucas's, where the flood was 4 feet 6 inches and 10½ inches respectively above the rail level, as had the watercourses above been of adequate section the water would have been running to this depth over the rails, which was not the case, and would be impossible. The most serious complaints are from Messrs. Zollner, the Atlas Works, and Biddell Brothers. In the case of Mr. Zollner, his floor level is only 1 foot 10½ inches above that of the high tide of the 2nd of June, and it is by no means clear that the railway bank on that occasion was not a positive benefit to his factory, as the surge which must have been much higher than the still water level of the tide would have broken down his walls and washed into his premises. Messrs. Biddell's is only 1 foot higher than Messrs. Zollner's floor, or 2 feet 10½ inches over that tide, and the Atlas Works are only ½ an inch higher than Messrs. Biddell's. The street in front of Messrs. Zollner's is 4 feet 3½ inches over the highest tide. In front of Messrs. Biddell's and the Atlas Works, the newly formed street is 2 feet 8½ inches above highest tide, the rails are 3 feet 9½ inches above highest tide, or but 1 foot 1 inch over the level of roads. Had the railway not been here at all, and an ordinary street only been formed to same level as other streets, it would have been 1 foot higher than Mr. Zollner's floor, and nearly level with the Atlas and Messrs. Biddell's floors. The real cause of the evil is that these premises are all placed at too low a level, and the only remedy now possible will be to provide openings or pipes under the railway to meet the gutter lines of the streets now being formed, which could not have been done before. A further immunity from flooding might be secured by intersecting the water from the east side of the railway and carrying it through the embankment and into the harbour at the iron wharf, but the Messrs. Zollner's, Biddell's and the Atlas premises are all too low to admit of entire immunity from flood, and would, we are certain, be flooded if the railway were removed altogether.

No. 21.

Messrs. Biddell Bros. to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

495, George-street, Sydney, 25 April, 1878.

Referring to our letters, Nos. 78/1 and 78/2, of the 7th and 18th February last, to which we have received no reply, we have now respectfully to request that we may be informed what steps the Government are taking to prevent a recurrence of a flood similar to that referred to in our letters, and to point out that such an occurrence is inevitable in the present state of the railway embankment should similar heavy rains fall, involving such serious losses to us as we are not prepared to sustain.

We have also respectfully to request that we may be informed what compensation the Government are prepared to make us for the loss we have already had, and to urge you to give the matter your best consideration without delay.

We have, &c.,

BIDDELL BROTHERS.

Under Secretary for Public Works.—O.R. (for the U.S.), B.C., 16/5/78. Refer to the Board appointed to inquire into the subject, and report upon cause. Engineer-in-Chief for Railways to forward to the Board.—J.R., B.C., 18/5/78.

Messrs. Biddell Bros.—further as to damage done to their property by floods at the head of Darling Harbour.

Sir,

495, George-street S., Sydney, 28 January, 1878.

Referring to our letter of the 25th April, No. 78/3, in which we requested a reply to our communications of the 7th and 18th February, Nos. 78/1 and 2, concerning the flooding of our premises at the head of Darling Harbour, we have again respectfully to urge you to expedite such measures as will prevent a recurrence of the flood, as we are continually apprehensive of heavy rainfall.

We have also respectfully to request a reply to that part of our letter claiming compensation for loss, and to remind you that said loss is very detrimental to the profitable conduct of our business.

We have, &c.,

BIDDELL BROTHERS.

Crown Solicitor to advise and place with other papers on same subject.—J.S., 1/7/78. Crown Solicitor, with reference to previous papers.—J.R., B.C., 3/7/78.

No. 23.

The Crown Solicitor to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 8 July, 1878.

I do myself the honor to return the papers relating to the claims of Messrs. Zollner and Biddell Brothers, for compensation for losses alleged to have been sustained by them in consequence of the flooding of their premises at the head of Darling Harbour, caused (as they say) by the damming back of flood-waters by the railway embankment.

These papers have been submitted to Mr. Attorney General Foster for his opinion as to the liability of the Government in respect of their claims, and he has been pleased to write a minute thereon, as follows:—

"It is quite impossible, upon the facts submitted to me, to give an opinion with any degree of certainty as to the liability of the Government.

"If the report of the Board is to be adopted, it at once settles the question that the Government is not liable at all; but there are no facts from which such a conclusion seems to me to result. How or why the neglect of the Corporation to make sewers in a proper way can exonerate the Railway Commissioner, if by making the railway as it is damage has resulted, I am at a loss to see. If I am informed whether the making of the railway or anything connected therewith has been the cause of the water rising to any extent so as to flood the parties complaining, I shall probably be in a position to say whether the Government is in any way liable. The simplest way of putting it is this: In case the railway had never been made where it is, would the flood have risen to the same extent as it did? If this can be answered in the affirmative, then the Government is not liable at all; but if the flooding of the premises was in any way caused, or to any extent increased, by the height or position of the railway or rails, the Government would prima facie be liable for something. It may be that the flood would have damaged the parties complaining, whether the railway was there or not, but not to the same extent as it did. Then the Government can only be liable for the additional damage actually caused by the railway. The Government ought to have made the railway so that no water should be dammed back upon the premises in question. But the prima facie liability might be met by other circumstances, if they exist, which it is not for me to suggest. I can only repeat that upon the case as it stands I can give no certain opinion."

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

Refer to Board for further report.—J.R., B.C., 9/7/78.

No. 24.

The Town Clerk to The Under Secretary for Public Works.

Sir,

Town Clerk's Office, Sydney, 10 September, 1878.

I have the honor, by direction of the Right Worshipful the Mayor, to submit, for the information of the Honorable the Minister for Works, a tracing showing the line and section of the sewer which it will be necessary to construct to drain the western side of the railway embankment, Darling Harbour, from near George-street to the waters of the harbour, the estimated cost of which work is £6,000.

His Worship desires to point out that the area through which this sewer will pass is now, after heavy rains, completely covered with water, to the great injury of the surrounding properties; and that the carrying out of the proposed work will in a great measure prevent the flooding of the land, and thus relieve the Government and the Corporation from liability in case of damage resulting therefrom.

The Mayor would respectfully request, therefore, that Mr. Sutherland may be solicited to make provision on the Estimates for the present year for placing in the hands of the City Council the necessary funds for the construction of the sewer in question.

I have, &c.,

CHAS. H. WOOLCOTT,

Town Clerk.

Harbours and Rivers.—J.R., B.C., 12 Sept., 1878. I think this matter should be referred to the Commissioner for Railways.—Pro W. MORIARTY, J. EAMES, 18/9/78. B.C.—Under Secty. P. Works. Railways.—J.R., B.C., 20/9/78.

I understand that the report of the Board appointed to investigate the best method of preventing the flooding of properties in the neighbourhood of the railway works, Darling Harbour, has been received. This application it appears to me is one that should be considered with that report. I have not seen the report; it is probably with Under Secty. for Works. Return papers.—CH. A.G., B.C., 26/9/78.

The report is not with me—I handed it to the Minister. It was since forwarded to Mr. Whitton, and by him, I believe, sent to Mr. Mason. A decision in the case is much wanted.—J.R., 30/9/78. Railways.—B.C., 2/10/78. The papers were forwarded to Mr. Mason on 2nd ultimo.—J.W., pro W.H.Q., 3/10/78. Under Secty., B.C. Commissioner for Railways.—J.R., B.C., 4/10/78. Inform Treasury.—J.R., 22/10/78.

Memo.—Cannot trace any sum under Railway.

There is an amount of £5,100, item 423 on Estimates of 1876, for completing sewerage, &c., and which appears to have been paid over to the City Council through Public Works.—J.W.

The last item was taken under Harbours and Rivers Department, but the proposed vote appears to be rendered necessary by the construction of the branch railway; it is necessary to inform Treasury of the heading of the vote.

REMOVAL OF THE SHIP "CIMBA" FROM THE CIRCULAR QUAY.

No. 1.

The Manager of the Circular Quay to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir, Circular Quay Office, 28 October, 1878.
 I have the honor to report that the ship "Cimba" has seized the berth vacated by the "Nineveh," and to which the "Patriarch" is entitled in the order of succession.
 The captain of the "Cimba" was duly informed at the Port Office that the berth was engaged.
 I have therefore the honor to apply that you would be pleased to direct the Harbour-master to cause the removal of the "Cimba," in order that the "Patriarch" may suffer no further detention.
 I hand at the same time for your guidance the order in which vessels now waiting for berths are entered in the berth book:—

1878	August 18...	"Patriarch."
	" 20...	"Smyrna."
	September 9	"Cairnbulg."
	" 13	"St. Lawrence."
	" 26	"Centurion."
	" 30	"Cimba."

I have, &c.,
JOHN BELL,
 Manager and Collector.

Notice should be given to the master of the "Cimba" to remove her without delay from the berth which she is now wrongfully occupying, so that the "Patriarch," the ship entitled, may take the berth. In the event of the captain refusing to comply with the notice, I desire the Marine Board to take the necessary steps to have the "Cimba" removed.—H.E.C., 28/10/78.

President of the Marine Board.—J.T., (for U.S.), B.C., 28/10/78. Urgent.
 Retd.—G.S.L., 30/10/78. The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

No. 2.

The Harbour Master to Captain Fimister.

Sir, Sydney, 28 October, 1878.
 I have the honor to inform you, that you are required to remove the "Cimba" from the berth you have placed her in at the Circular Quay which she is now wrongfully occupying.
 If you fail to do so, I shall be under the necessity of removing the vessel, by the powers conferred on me in the 116th clause of the Navigation Act.

I have, &c.,
ALEX. BELL,
 Assistant Harbour Master.
Pro Harbour Master.

No. 3.

The Harbour Master to The President of the Marine Board.

Sir, Sydney, 28 October, 1878.
 I have the honor to inform you, that in accordance with your instructions I proceeded to the ship "Cimba" for the purpose of moving her; they hauled the ladder up; I requested the captain, who I saw standing on the quarter deck, to lower it to allow me to get on board. He refused to do so. I told him I had come to move his ship, and he replied that if I went on board he would heave me overboard. I said to him "Do you resist my authority?" And he said, "Yes."

I have, &c.,
ALEX. BELL,
 Assistant Harbour Master.
Pro Harbour Master.

No. 4.

The Harbour Master to Captain Fimister.

Sir, Sydney, 28 October, 1878.
 I have the honor to inform you that as you see fit to resist my lawful commands, proceedings will be taken against you according to law, and your ship's fastenings to the Circular Quay will be cast off unless she is removed.

I have, &c.,
ALEX. BELL,
 Assistant Harbour Master.
Pro Harbour Master.

Sir,

Ship "Cimba," Sydney Cove, Sydney, 28 October, 1878.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of this date, in which you intimate "that proceedings will be taken against me according to law, because I see fit to resist your lawful (?) commands, and that the fastenings of my ship will be cast off from the Circular Quay, &c."

In reply, I beg to state that I am not aware that any lawful commands have ever been given by you in connection with my ship, and consequently there has been no resistance of such. Further, I beg to inform you that I am prepared to be dealt with according to law, and not otherwise, for any breach of the law which inadvertently I may have committed, and that I will resist any action of force which you may attempt in connection with the unmooring of my ship to carry out the threat contained in the concluding paragraph of your letter now acknowledged. I beg further to protest against any exercise of force as threatened, and on behalf of the owners of the ship "Cimba" to give you notice that I will hold you, and all those acting with you, responsible for all costs, damages, delays, and loss which I may be put to, or the ship "Cimba" may sustain by reason of the removal or attempted removal of my ship from the berth she legally occupies at the quay.

Having thus replied to your letter of this date, I beg to inform you that, as master of the ship "Cimba," I made application to the Harbour Office on Saturday last for the services of a pilot to remove my ship to the Circular Quay, and that no response to my application having been made, I moved my ship and berthed her at a berth then vacant, which I was entitled to do, the Circular Quay being a public wharf, open to the use of all ships on payment of the dues and charges fixed by law, which charges and dues, on behalf of the owners of my ship, I am prepared and willing to pay.

I have, &c.,

JOHN FIMISTER,

Master of ship "Cimba."

Sir,

Sydney, 31 October, 1878.

In reply to your letter of the 29th instant, I have the honor, by direction of the Marine Board, to inform you that the ship "Cimba" was forcibly removed, the captain having declined to move his vessel when required to do so, according to law, from the Circular Quay in accordance with instructions received on the subject.

An expense of £28 4s. was incurred in the performance of this service. Papers relating to the matter were forwarded on request to the Treasury yesterday.

It is presumed that the Hon. the Attorney General, who is familiar with the case, will recover these expenses for the Harbour Master under the provisions of the 116th clause of the Navigation Act, and otherwise vindicate the law in the cases in which it has been defied by John Fimister, the master of this vessel.

I have, &c.,

Send this with the previous papers for the opinion of the Attorney General as to any infringement of the law by the captain of the Cimba, and my hon. colleague will perhaps favour me with his opinion.—H.E.C., 1/11/78. No. 10.

Messrs. Dangar, Gedye, & Co., to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Sydney, 4 November, 1878.

With reference to the forcible removal of the ship "Cimba" from the berth she occupied at the Circular Quay in favour of the "Patriarch," for which ship Messrs. Montefiore, Joseph, & Co. are agents, we beg very respectfully to protest against that ship retaining the berth in question for the following reasons:—

That the ship "Patriarch" was booked for the Circular Quay in the ordinary course of business on the 18th August, two days after her arrival from London, and that she failed to occupy "in the order of succession" any one of the three berths which were ready for her towards the middle or end of September, but which berths were taken by the ships "Cynisca," "Thos. Stephens," and "Cambrian Princess," arriving from London in the order named, eight, fifteen, and twenty-one days after the "Patriarch," and therefore could not have been booked for a berth at the Circular Quay for many days subsequently to that ship; and as the "Patriarch," to suit the convenience of her agents and stevedores, failed to occupy any one of the three berths referred to, she has, we submit, forfeited her right to the berth from which the "Cimba" has been removed, and should thus be compelled to book de novo.

We therefore ask that the circumstances adduced by us be fully inquired into, and if found correct that you will at once give instructions for the removal of the ship "Patriarch" from the berth at the Circular Quay which she must thus have obtained unfairly, and not "in the order of succession."

Sir,

Circular Quay Office, 11 November, 1878.

To the letter of Dangar, Gedye, & Co., referred for explanation, I have the honor to state as follows:—

1st. Ships requiring a berth at the quay enter at this office in a book kept for the purpose to take their turn.

2nd. Should a vessel not be in readiness to move to the berth when her turn arrives then the next vessel on the list takes the turn, and the vessel so losing her turn takes the next succeeding turn on the list if ready. This system has been in operation during the last sixteen years, and recognized by all the leading houses, and was two years ago enacted for adoption at Newcastle.

3rd. The "Cimba," on entering the port, booked to take her turn.

4th. The objection made against the "Patriarch," even if tenable, would be no justification for depriving four other vessels of their turn.

5th. That Dangar & Co. have themselves practised what they complain of in the "Patriarch," I give the following as an example:—In the last wool season they entered the "Martha Birnie" for a loading berth on the 21st September, 1877. Not being ready when her turn came, the following vessels that were entered after her successively took precedence, due notice of turn having in each case been given to the "Martha Birnie":—

1877.
The " Nineveh "	entered	24th Sept. ; berthed	8th Oct.
" " Indus "	"	12 Oct. ;	19 "
" " Dunbar Castle "	"	19 "	26 "

With reference to our letter to you of 4th inst., to which no reply has yet been received, we beg to ask if any steps have been taken by your department towards the removal of the ship "Patriarch" from the berth she now improperly occupies at the Circular Quay, and which was obtained in direct violation of the rules laid down for the management of the Circular Quay.

We feel certain that there is no desire on the part of the Government to show, through its subordinate officers, any partiality; and as in this instance Mr. John Bell, the Manager and Collector for the Circular Quay, has allowed a very gross violation of the rules, we ask for the fullest inquiry into the matter, in order that the question of any undue preference having been shown may be cleared up.

Gentlemen,

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 15 November, 1878.

I have the honor, by desire of the Colonial Treasurer, to acknowledge receipt of your letters of 4th and 8th instants, respecting the berthing of the ship "Patriarch" at the Circular Quay, and I am to inform you, in reply, that after consideration of the report of the manager of the Quay (a copy of which is enclosed), Mr. Cohen sees no grounds for ordering her removal.

No. 14.

Messrs. Dangar, Gedye, & Co., to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Sydney, 18 November, 1878.

We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter (M. 1,437-10,055) of 15th instant, in answer to ours of 4th and 8th instants, enclosing copy of a report from Mr. John Bell, the manager of the Circular Quay, and on which you decline to take any action with reference to the removal of the ship "Patriarch" from the berth into which she was improperly placed by him, and not "in the order of succession" as most clearly pointed out in our letter of the 4th instant, and to which Mr. John Bell's report makes no reference whatever, thus evading in a very marked manner the real question at issue, and on which our complaint was founded.

We therefore cannot but express our great regret that an adverse opinion should have been arrived at by you, based on a report which studiously avoids any information on the important fact, which we venture to think must have been well known to Mr. Jno. Bell, viz., that the ship "Patriarch" was ready to occupy one of the berths subsequently taken by either the "Cynisca," "Thos. Stephens," or "Cambrian Princess;" and we feel certain that if dates were gone into it would be found that the "Patriarch" was "laid up" in Farm Cove, when one at least of the ships named (all of which arrived after her) was moored at the Quay, thus clearly proving that she was ready when her turn came for a berth, but which, to suit the convenience of her agents, she refused to occupy. It is of this partiality that we complain.

It is idle for Mr. Jno. Bell to attempt to make good his position by telling you "that Dangar & Co." (meaning, we presume, ourselves) "have themselves practised what they complain of in the 'Patriarch,'" when he refers to the "Martha Birnie;" as the case of that ship has no analogy whatever to the one under notice, for, although the "Martha Birnie" was booked on 21st September, 1877, as stated by him, it was for some time uncertain whether she was fit to load for London at all, as she had to undergo surveys and repairs, and eventually came to the Circular Quay to load a rough cargo, there not being a bale of wool in it.

Still feeling that the facts disclosed show that an undue, and we must say unfair, preference has been shown to the ship "Patriarch," we respectfully ask at your hands for a reconsideration of the case.

Regretting the necessity for troubling you at such length,

We have, &c.,

No. 15.

The Manager of the Circular Quay to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

Circular Quay Office, 25 November, 1878.

I have the honor to return the papers connected with the case of the "Cimba," referred to me on the 20th instant, together with a letter of Messrs. Dangar, Gedye, & Co., for explanation.

In my statement of the 11th instant I have explained the rule which is observed in berthing ships, and made statements which I am fully prepared to substantiate.

As all papers referring to this matter have to be submitted to Parliament, and this I presume among them, I avail myself of the opportunity of again referring to the questions which have to be decided, and require separate consideration; and first as to the "Cimba":—

1st. Was the "Cimba" entitled to the berth which she took possession of? My reply is that five ships were entered, and awaiting their turn before the "Cimba" even entered the port, and whose rights she attempted to supersede.

2nd. With regard to the "Patriarch" I have shown by the rule that she had a right to the berth, and if otherwise, were not the other four vessels abovementioned entitled to and in turn before the "Cimba," and is it probable the agents and captains of those ships would quietly allow the "Patriarch" possession of a berth to which she was not entitled? They would be the parties injured, and they are silent as they know according to rule the "Patriarch" had the right.

404—B

I

I have stated in my report of the 11th instant the rules observed in regard to the berthing of ships, and here it will be better to explain their operation.

Thus, a ship enters for a loading berth, which entitles her in her turn to priority of choice. It may be that a berth vacated is not suitable for her, being at distance from the store where her cargo is stored, or from other causes. She concedes her right to the next in turn, still retaining her priority of choice; the latter by this operation obtains her berth in advance, and this can be repeated till the desired berth has been obtained. In the case now in question the result is, that by the reticence of the "Patriarch" four ships successively obtained their berths in advance. It is a matter of frequent occurrence that this right is exercised by all houses when desired. I have shown in my report of the 11th that the "Martha Birnie," for which Messrs. Dangar were agents, was entered for berth in turn, and, like the "Patriarch," gave precedence to four ships successively.

It was known to Messrs. Dangar as well as others concerned, weeks before, that the "Patriarch" would follow on to the berth when the "Ninevah" vacated it. Could they not have complained to the Treasurer that a wrong was about to be committed, who would have immediately asked from me an explanation? Would not that course have been more becoming than to obtain the berth in the clandestine manner pursued?

Mr. Dangar, in common with all others engaged in extensive affairs, must necessarily employ assistants, and to them is committed in some degree the honor and character of the house. Mr. Dangar, I believe, knew nothing of the earlier part of these proceedings. It is with those under him that I have to deal, and they have pursued a course hardly in conformity with the implied trust, and have involved his name in a transaction of a very questionable nature.

At the same time they have made a direct charge against me of dishonesty in the performance of my duty, and I have therefore to call respectfully that inquiry may be made, in order that I may be justified or condemned. The inquiry would be more opportune at the present time, as in addition to the evidence of other loading houses always available there are also in port those commanders of ships who have been trading here for many years who would be able to testify to the rules of berthing. I think it necessary to report that immediately following the "Cimba's" case an attempt from another quarter was made to deprive another vessel of her berth.

These occurrences much disturbed the commanders of those ships, orderly awaiting their turn. The prompt action taken by the Government has now reassured them, and I think it unlikely that anything of a similar nature is likely again to occur.

I have now only to ask that inquiry may be made into the charge against me made by Dangar, Gedye, and Co., and

I have, &c.,
JOHN BELL,
Manager and Collector.

Minute of The Colonial Treasurer.

*Subject:—*Messrs. Dangar, Gedye, & Co.'s letter of November 18th respecting the berthing of the ship "Patriarch" at the Circular Quay:—

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 4 December, 1878.

It appears to me that the question raised by Messrs. Dangar, Gedye, & Co. is highly technical, and one which, if made the essence of the regulations for berthing vessels at the Quay, would lead to inquiries of a protracted and unsatisfactory character, and much inconvenience.

By their letter of November 18th last they would make the test of a vessel's claim to priority of berth her physical fitness to receive cargo when her turn arrives, wanting in which they urge she should lose her place on the list, and be transferred to the bottom of it; in other language they would construe the word "ready" to mean a sufficiently "sound and staunch state" to receive cargo. If this is to be the guide of the department, where promptness in berthing ships is necessary, especially in the busy season, the controversies likely to arise, in investigating into and determining upon the "fitness" of a vessel to take cargo on board, would in all probability result in inquiries of so lengthened and intricate a character as to seriously hamper, if not for the time to absolutely stop the business of the Quay. For these reasons, in addition to the long-established practice of regulating the turn for berthing, according to the "readiness," or in other words the "willingness" of a vessel to take a vacant berth at the Quay, and apart from any consideration of her "fitness" or "unfitness" to receive cargo, I am unable to concede the argument of Messrs. Dangar, Gedye, & Co., or to modify the determination I have already arrived at in this case.

I see no foundation for any charge of unfairness or partiality on the part of Mr. Bell, who has simply acted in accordance with and not in "direct" or "gross violation" of the rules laid down for the management of the Circular Quay, which I have been informed have hitherto given general satisfaction, and it is somewhat curious that such a charge, if there be any reason for it, has not been preferred by the owners or agents of the ships entitled to berths in precedence of the "Cimba," who have the greater cause to complain if Mr. Bell has been guilty of any unfairness.

I am to inform you in reply, that after a full consideration of all the facts of the case, Mr. Cohen is of opinion that the conduct of Mr. Bell, the manager of the Circular Quay, with respect to this matter, is perfectly satisfactory; and he is therefore unable to alter the determination which has already been communicated to you.

JAMES GARDNER.

(PETITION OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 14 March, 1879.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.}

The humble Petition of James Gardner, of Wentworth Wharf, Darling Harbour,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That about the end of October last your Petitioner, being the lessee of the said wharf and adjacent land, upon which he had erected five lime-kilns at a considerable outlay, for the purpose of carrying on his business as a lime merchant; and your Petitioner begs to make known to your Honorable House, that about the time mentioned the Government dredge came in front of the said wharf for the purpose of deepening the channel. When your Petitioner saw the danger likely to take place to his property, he warned the men in charge off, which they would not do, and the consequence has been a portion of the wharf gave way by the foundation being undermined. The kilns have also been vent, and therefore useless to him in his business; and the loss to your Petitioner is disastrous, taking from him his means of livelihood, several contracts which he had has been turned over to other lime merchants; also, by this untoward circumstance, your Petitioner has been compelled to dispose of his lease of said wharf for a mere trifle, and your Petitioner two months previous was offered four hundred pounds for a half-interest in his said business.

Your Petitioner was, at the time mentioned, one of the principal lime merchants in the city of Sydney, having been the first burner and introducer of stone lime into this market, also a successful exhibitor at the several Colonial Exhibitions, having been awarded prizes five times.

Your humble Petitioner has exhausted all the means in his power and within his knowledge to obtain redress for his loss, from the department to which this matter particularly belongs, but without any success, and your humble Petitioner has at last determined to lay his grievance before your most Honorable House, with the hope that the loss he has sustained may be in some measure compensated to him.

Your humble Petitioner has a large family to educate and support, and which now is far beyond his means, his means of livelihood having by this disastrous accident been taken from him.

Your humble Petitioner prays for your favourable consideration of his case.

Will ever pray.

I beg to draw your attention to the injury done to my wharf and limekilns at foot of Druitt-street, by reason of the dredge working so close to them, and I hope you will kindly have the matter inquired into at once, so that steps might be taken to remedy the evil.

No. 2.

The Master of Dredge "Archimedes" to The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers.

WHEN I resumed charge of the "Archimedes" it was, by order, at the foot of Druitt-street, clearing away deposits from the sewer at that place. In doing this it was necessary to work near Mr. Gardner's wharf, who also appeared anxious to have the water deepened at the end of his wharf, that had a facing of stones about 6 feet deep, 4 feet above and 2 feet below water, that had been roughly built many years ago, without foundation, on loose soil.

We dredged to within 3 feet of the wall, then Mr. G.'s men, I presume, thinking the dredge had not been so close as they wished, broke off the top part of the 3 feet of soil that we left facing the wall.

I then moved the dredge to the next sewer, a few yards to the south. After the dredge left, a coasting vessel landed a cargo of heavy round hardwood logs on Mr. G.'s wharf. A few days after about 30 feet of the wall fell away from the wharf into 12 feet of water, leaving a small portion of the foundation of a limekiln exposed to the water at high tides. This could be easily protected by some ballast stones being thrown in on the falling wall.

Sir,

I am instructed by James Gardner, of Druitt-street, Sydney, lime merchant, to give you notice that he will hold the Government liable for all damages he may sustain by reason of the injury done to his property situated at the bottom of Druitt-street, in consequence of the Government dredging machine having undermined his wharf and limekilns, whereby he is deprived of the use of them, and his business seriously injured; and some of the land has now fallen into the harbour, and the kilns will also tumble in afterwards, unless immediate action is taken by the Government to prevent this destruction of private property. Mr. Gardner has verbally and by letter drawn the attention of the Government to the matter, but no notice has as yet been taken of the injury done, although the captain of the dredge promised he would see about it at once.

Memorandum respecting Night-work.

Mr. Laing resided on board the dredge while the night-work was being carried on, so as to be at call in cases of emergency. The night allowance granted was to compensate him for the extra responsibility of a double crew working under his orders, one shift of which worked at night.

STEAM DREDGE "SAMSON."

(PARTICULARS OF MR. LAING'S SERVICE AND PAY.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 27 May, 1879.

12. MR. BENNETT to ask THE SECRETARY FOR PUBLIC WORKS,—

- (1.) How many days was the dredge "Samson" laid up for repairs and from other causes during the years 1876, 1877, and 1878?
- (2.) Did the master of the steam dredge "Samson" receive full pay and extra allowance money during the period the "Samson" was undergoing repairs; if so, what amount?
- (3.) Did the officers and the crews of the steam dredge "Samson" and steamer "Thetis" receive full pay and the usual extra allowance money during the time the said vessels were undergoing repairs in the years 1876, 1877, and 1878; if so, what were the amounts separately?
- (4.) Did the master of the dredge "Samson" receive his night-pay and extra allowance money in addition to the travelling expenses while away at the Clarence River?
- (5.) What is the name of the person who had charge of the dredge "Samson" during the absence of Mr. Laing at the Clarence River?
- (6.) Did such person receive an additional pay to his usual salary for such service, as acting master of the dredge, during the absence of Mr. Laing; if so, what amount?
- (7.) Have the Government, or do they intend, to call on Mr. Laing to refund the amount of night-pay he received while absent from the dredge "Samson" at the Clarence River, and extra allowance money?

I beg to lay upon the Table of this House replies in the form of a Return to the Questions of the Honorable Member for Liverpool Plains on the 20th instant, respecting the dredge "Samson."

DREDGE "SAMSON."

1. The dredge "Samson" was laid up in 1876 for 129 days, in 1877 for 73 days, and in 1878 for 127½ days. This includes laying up on account of repairs, &c., and detention from rough weather, which latter was a fruitful cause of delay, as the "Samson" was working in a very exposed position at the Sow and Pigs Shoal. The following night-work was lost by reason of rough weather, viz:—In 1876, 36½ nights; in 1877, 39 nights; and in 1878, 41 nights.
2. The master of the dredge "Samson" did receive his full salary, but not ration allowance, while his dredge was under repairs, which he superintended. A Return has been recently laid by me on the Table, giving full information respecting the salary, allowances, &c., of the master of the dredge "Samson."
3. The officers and crew received their full salaries and wages, but they did not get the usual ration allowance when the dredge was laid up for repairs. The rates of salaries and wages payable on this dredge are as follows:—(that is, when the dredge is at night-work; at present this is discontinued, the night crew discharged, and both night and ration allowances stopped).

DREDGE.

Master	£352 per annum	Including the night allowance (see note in Return above referred to) with ration allowance of 2s. 6d. per diem when working at Sydney Heads.
Mate 1 at	168	With ration allowance of 1s per diem when working at Sydney Heads.
" 1 "	144	"
Blacksmith	156	"
Engine driver 1 at	168	"
" " 1 "	144	"
Fireman each at ...	120	"
Stoker	120	"
Coxswains each at	120	"
Brakesman, Cook,		"
and Seamen each at	104	"

TUG "THETIS."

Master	£240	per annum.
Mate	192	" while at day-work.
	216	" " night-work.
Engineer 1 at ...	240	"
" 1 at ...	168	"
Stokers each ...	120	"
Seamen, leading, each	120	"
" ordinary "	104	"

All officers and men on board the tug receive 1s. per diem ration allowance when working at Sydney Heads.

4. The master received his night allowance on the occasion referred to, because he temporarily took charge of a dredge engaged in night-work, but he was not paid his ration allowance.
5. The late principal mate, Mr. J. M. Tiley.
6. No, the master was only absent about a month on each of the occasions alluded to.
7. It is already shown that Mr. Laing did not receive the ration allowance during his absence at the Clarence, and the Government see no reason for calling upon him to refund the night allowance.

STEAM DREDGE "SAMSON."

(PARTICULARS OF MR. LAING'S SERVICE.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 23 July, 1879.

MR. MACINTOSH to ask THE SECRETARY FOR PUBLIC WORKS,—Referring to Memorandum by Return laid upon the Table respecting extra money paid to Mr. Laing for night-work,—

- (1.) How many nights did Mr. Laing sleep on board the Dredge "Samson" whilst she was stationed at East Channel before night allowance was granted him, and how many nights after such allowance was granted?
- (2.) Did not Mr. Laing frequently absent himself from the dredge "Samson" of a night, whilst actually drawing extra pay for sleeping on board?
- (3.) During Mr. Laing's absence at night, if a case of emergency arose, which he was especially paid for looking after (according to papers laid upon the Table), how was he to be called, seeing he resides at Balmain?
- (4.) Why was Mr. Laing paid £1 per week night allowance during the time the dredge was undergoing repairs at Cockatoo Island and working at Circular Quay, seeing he did not sleep on board?
- (5.) What was the reason that the mate in charge of the dredge "Samson" received no extra pay during Mr. Laing's absence, seeing he had to perform Mr. Laing's work and his own, and to remain on board day and night—by minute from the Harbours and Rivers Office?
- (6.) After the prorogation of the House is it the intention of the Government to increase Mr. Laing's salary, paying it as the night allowance was first paid, from the contingent funds?

I BEG to lay upon the Table of this House replies, in the form of a Return, to the questions of the Honorable Member for East Sydney on the 22nd instant respecting the dredge "Samson."

Dredge "Samson."

- (1.) There is no record in the office giving such particulars; but Mr. Laing on the question being asked him reports as follows:—"I cannot say the number of nights I slept on board the dredge 'Samson' while she was stationed at East Channel, either before or after I received allowance for night work. During the first twelve months I generally remained on board every night she was in the Channel, and often when she was lying at the shelter moorings in Vacluse Bay. After I returned from Newcastle and got the dredge examined and repaired in dock, I generally went home one night out of the five working nights per week, weather and other things permitting, and also when the dredge was lying in Vacluse Bay. I may remark that when on board I seldom went to bed before midnight, and sometimes not all night when necessary.
- (2.) See answer to preceding question—Mr. Laing was not paid specifically for "sleeping on board," but "for the extra responsibility of a double crew working under his orders, one shift of which worked at night."
- (3.) It will be seen by answer to question 1 that Mr. Laing was seldom absent, but in the event of an emergency arising during his absence, there were experienced officers under him equal to the occasion.
- (4.) As before stated, Mr. Laing was not paid extra specifically for "sleeping on board," and the occasions referred to were but of comparatively speaking short duration. The double crew being still under his superintendence, it was not therefore considered necessary to discontinue the extra pay, but his ration allowance was stopped.
- (5.) Mr. Laing was only absent about a month each time on the two occasions presumably referred to, and the mate was then only nominally in charge, as he could not perform the duties of an engineer which would have fallen to the lot of the chief engineer of the "Thetis," who is an officer of higher standing and pay, had his services been required; there appeared, therefore, under these circumstances, no call for extra remuneration to the mate.
- (6.) This question has already been answered in the negative.

DREDGE "NEWCASTLE" AND TENDER "AJAX."

(MEMORANDUM OF THE ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF FOR HARBOURS AND RIVERS, RESPECTING PAY OF CREWS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 15 November, 1878.

(Laid upon Table in accordance with promise made in answer to Question 3, Votes No. 36, 15 November, 1878.)

Respecting petition from crews of "Newcastle" and "Ajax" for an increase of salary.

I CANNOT recommend any increase in this case. The salaries were fixed with reference to those of steamers and others employed in the coasting service.

Messrs. Darley and Portus state that our men on board the "Newcastle" receive about 10% less than is paid in private employment in sea-going steamers.

In my opinion the difference in the nature of the employment is quite equal to the difference of 10% in the rates of remuneration.

Our men have their houses to go to every night, unless when working as night crew, when they receive extra remuneration; they work no longer hours, nor such irregular hours as sea-going sailors, nor is their work any heavier; they have little or nothing to do in stormy and bad weather, when the latter, if not risking their lives, must be exceedingly uncomfortable at sea.

If this increase be granted in the case of the "Newcastle" dredge, it will of course have to be also granted in case of all the other dredges, which have not as yet asked for it.

I am therefore, though I confess with considerable reluctance, compelled to report that in my opinion the men are fairly and adequately remunerated.

PILOT STEAMER "CAPTAIN COOK."

REPORT.

THE SELECT COMMITTEE of the Legislative Assembly appointed on the 22nd October, 1878,—"with power to send for persons and papers, to inquire into and report upon the management of the Pilot Steamer 'Captain Cook,'"—have agreed to the following Report:—

Your Committee have examined the witnesses named in the List,* and after See List, page 8. mature consideration find as follows:—

That in their opinion the management of the Pilot steamer "Captain Cook" is very unsatisfactory, for the following reasons:—

1. That there seems to be a total absence of unanimity of action between the Pilots and the Commanding Officer of the steamer, the result as it appears, of their respective positions having never been thoroughly defined by the Marine Board, nor their conduct ever inquired into by that body when any complaint has been made.
2. That the command of the vessel by Captains Smith and Creer has been of an extremely negligent character, as is shown by the evidence (which your Committee see no reason to doubt), in which they are stated to have been repeatedly absent from the vessel for days together.

The payment of the men by the private cheque of the captain, and the provedoring of the ship by the same officer, seems to your Committee to be a highly undesirable course of procedure, and one which in the hands of a dishonest man is capable of great manipulation; and your Committee would recommend its immediate alteration. At the same time, it is only fair to the officers named to say that no charge of such a nature exists against them. Your Committee would, however, direct attention to the fact that Captain Creer admits having received percentages from tradesmen out of the moneys paid by him for supplying the crew with provisions, and he seems to hold the opinion that he is entitled to the same as an addition to his salary,—a fact which we think the Colonial Treasurer should give his early attention to.

While upon this part of their Report, your Committee would express the opinion that the conduct of Captain Smith in dismissing Mr. Davies, the provedore, seems to have been arbitrary in the extreme, and the evidence is almost unanimous to the effect that Captain Smith himself failed afterwards to carry out the duties in as satisfactory a manner; in fact, Captain Smith seems to be a person whose demeanour to those under his control renders it extremely undesirable that he should hold any position of command; and the fact that he resigned his position and applied for one at a much lower salary, while your Committee was inquiring into a matter in which he was so deeply concerned, lends colour to the supposition that he was anxious to escape from the consequences of his own conduct while so engaged. Your Committee have no hesitation in saying that had Captain Smith still occupied the position of Commander of the "Captain Cook," they would undoubtedly have recommended his removal therefrom.

Your Committee are further of opinion that the appointment of Captain Creer, the junior Pilot of the Service, to the command of the "Captain Cook" was a mistake, inasmuch as it is calculated to create a feeling of dissatisfaction in the Pilot Service, while the fact of Captain Creer having a relative at the Marine Board seems to give rise to the impression that favouritism existed in this matter.

Apart however from the appointment of the junior Pilot to the senior position, your Committee are decidedly of opinion that the number of officers on board the vessel is altogether too large.

Making all reasonable allowance for the changes or shifts of labour necessary for carrying out the duties of the vessel, your Committee cannot but think that the services of Captain Creer might be totally dispensed with as Commander of the steamer, and the charge given to the present chief officer, who is perfectly capable of performing the duties; while Captain Creer might be more usefully employed as a Pilot, as he was previous to his present appointment.

In conclusion, your Committee cannot help remarking that the supervision exercised by the Marine Board has been altogether too lax,—as the evidence with regard to the use of the ship's coals, employment of the seamen at the captain's residence, and several other minor matters, tends to show. In fact, the majority of the statements made by the witnesses were, as the President of the Board admits, quite unknown to him; and he was not in a position to state whether they were true or not.

Your Committee are of opinion that no time should be lost in instituting inquiries as to the general efficiency of the Service, which seems to have been to a certain extent impaired by the state of affairs your Committee has brought under notice.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

PILOT STEAMER "CAPTAIN COOK."

WEDNESDAY, 20 NOVEMBER, 1878.

Present:—

MR. CAMERON,
MR. J. DAVIES,MR. ECKFORD,
MR. GREENWOOD.

ANGUS CAMERON, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Henry Davis examined:—

1. Chairman.] What are you? Provodore of a steam-ship.
2. You were at one time provodore of the pilot steamer the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
3. How long were you in that position? Six months.
4. During what period? From the 1st December, 1877, to 1st June, 1878.
5. You carried on the provodoring by contract? Yes.
6. To whom was your tender addressed? To Captain Smith.
7. Not to the Marine Board? No.
8. Was your tender according to a schedule of prices—so much for certain articles? No, so much for each man—so much for each of the pilots, and so much for each man.
9. What was the scale? 18s. a week for the pilots, and £2 10s. a month for the men, excepting one man who lived at Watson's Bay, and I allowed him 5s. a month, because he sometimes went ashore and took his food with his family.
10. That scale related of course to the men alone, and not to their wives and families? No, only to the men on board the pilot steamer.
11. Do the majority of the men live at Watson's Bay? No, only one besides the pilots.
12. During the performance of your contract, was any complaint made to you by the master or the crew as to the manner in which you supplied the ship? No one ever complained; indeed they have told me since that it was never better supplied before or since. Both the pilots and men have given me great praise, and they say it has fallen off since.
13. Who is the provodore at the present time? Captain Smith.
14. Himself? Himself.
15. How many are there on board the ship? Seventeen, all told.
16. Officers and men? There are supposed to be two pilots on board all the time, but sometimes one was on shore or on board another ship; still I was paid for the two.
17. You left on the 1st June, 1878? Yes.
18. Did you leave of your own account? No.
19. You were dismissed? Yes.
20. By whom? Captain Smith.
21. Did he assign any reason for getting rid of your services? None whatever; but I suppose it was because I did not give him so much percentage as I had been giving him. He had been receiving a discount from me, or a percentage, as provodore.

Mr. H. Davis.
20 Nov., 1878.

- Mr. H. Davis. 22. When you tendered for this contract, did you make any agreement, either in writing or verbally, to give Captain Smith any percentage upon your contract? He told me outside the door of the Marine Board, that the last provedore allowed him his provedoring free, but I did not agree to do so.
- 20 Nov., 1878. 23. Did he tell you this before you got the contract? After I got the contract, but before I commenced to supply the ship.
24. Had you to go to the office of the Marine Board about the contract? I went to the Marine Board, and the contract was drawn up by Mr. Lawrence and signed by Captain Smith and myself.
25. At the time you were asked to tender for this, were you given to understand that any percentage was to be allowed to Captain Smith? No.
26. You refused afterwards to allow it? Yes; I said I could not afford it, as things were so dear—if a time came when things were getting cheaper I might do so. He told me then that I could leave, so that he could have it to himself when there was anything to be made out of it. I hoped to have got something out of it to make a living, but I can show by my bills that I did not make above £3 10s. out of it.
27. Did you give Captain Smith anything actually in the shape of money? Both money and provisions for his house. I have here what I received and what was due to me every month. (The witness referred to a book.)
28. Can you inform the Committee how many and what payments you made to Captain Smith? Sometimes we were paid on the 2nd, 3rd, or 4th of the month. We were always paid by a cheque signed by Captain Smith.
29. His own private cheque? His own private cheque.
30. Will you inform the Committee if you can how much you have paid to Captain Smith by way of so-called discount or percentage? Without including the provisions?
31. Yes, in money, excluding provisions? In the month of January, £1 12s. 3d.; in February, £1 12s. 3d., and in March, £1 6s.
32. Anything in April? Not in money.
33. Is that all the money you paid him? Yes.
34. That makes £4 10s. 6d.? Yes.
35. You state that you actually allowed that to Captain Smith in cash? Yes.
36. You state also that you were in the habit of supplying him with provisions? Yes.
37. Was your contract to supply him personally? No—to supply the boat.
38. He being the officer of the boat? I had to supply him on board the boat—not at his house.
39. Do you mean that you forwarded goods or provisions to his private family? Yes; meat, vegetables, and fruit.
40. Did he insist upon this? He insisted upon it; he said I had a right to do it by the contract. I did not like to say no, because I wanted to get along as well as I could, and I knew Captain Smith had the power with every one, if I murmured, to dismiss me.
41. How much did you supply to Captain Smith's family—can you give us dates and values? In February the balance of his house account was £2 4s., which is due to me. In April the account was £2 6s., which is due to me, and also 12s. for cash and lamp-burners supplied to Mrs. Smith. This I put into his bill, because Captain Smith paid me with his cheque.
42. That makes a total of £5 2s., and added to the £4 10s. 6d. for discount as you call it, makes £9 12s. 6d. which Captain Smith has received from you out of this contract? Yes.
43. How do you arrive at the conclusion you have stated as to the cause of Captain Smith's discharging you? Because there was no other reason; there were no complaints from the pilots—they all admit that they were never served better in their lives—they always had the very best of things from the market.
44. Did Captain Smith at any time make any specific complaint as to the quantity or quality of the provisions supplied by you? No; only Captain Smith said to me one Saturday night—"You will stay on board ship." I said—"I am a married man, my wife is at Watson's Bay, and I should like to live on shore." He never mentioned anything about that afterwards, and I continued to stay on shore.
45. You continued after that to supply the boat? Yes, for two or three months after that.
46. Had you any dispute of any nature with Captain Smith? Not a bit; the only dispute was, that he said I would have to stay on board the ship.
47. He assigned no reason for discharging you? No; all the reason was, that he said—"The men are laying a complaint against you, and I shall have to discharge you." I know from the men themselves that they never laid a complaint, but that he wanted them to do so.
48. Did you ever make any complaint to the Marine Board as to Captain Smith's conduct? Yes; I sent a letter to the Marine Board, and Captain Smith brought a letter from them when I was below, which he hove at me and laughed at me.
49. It did not come to you through the post? No. The letter said Captain Smith had full power to do as he liked in the matter, and that everything was left to Captain Smith.
50. You are a provedore at the present time? Yes, to Messrs. G. and B. Nicoll.
51. Is it usual in private employ for the captains of steamers to be allowed to have anything to do with the provedores? No.
52. Where you are at present has the skipper any control over the provedore? No, none whatever; if there were any complaint it would have to go through the office.
53. You are an officer independent of the captain? Yes.
54. Is not that the rule which obtains among the steamship Companies generally? Yes, the captain could not discharge the provedore—it would be done by the Company or firm.
55. Is there not a steam-launch employed in conjunction with the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
56. What is she used for; did she come under your notice at all? Yes. I was supposed to have the use of her to fetch my stores down, but for the first three weeks Captain Smith would not let me have her, and I have had to wait on the Circular Quay all Saturday night watching my things, and then I have done my work on Sunday morning so that I would not give cause for any complaint.
57. Did it ever come under your observation that the launch was used for purposes other than the Government service? Yes, I have seen her going away to fetch Christmas-bushes.
58. What for; to decorate the ship? No, to decorate Captain Smith's house.
59. Where did he live? At Watson's Bay.
60. On any other occasion? Yes, I have seen her go away on different occasions to bring him to town to to the races or to boat races; and I have heard the pilots complain because they could not get the launch Mr. H. Davis. to take them up to fetch ships down the harbour. I have heard Captain Gooch complain.

20 Nov., 1878.

61. That is the legitimate use of the launch? Yes.

62. Is there any statement you wish to make beyond the answers you have given to my questions? I engaged a cook, and paid this man myself, but he proved to be so fond of drink that he neglected his duty, until I could put up with it no longer, as he destroyed and wasted the food I had provided, and I had to discharge him. He then went to Captain Smith and asked him for a reference. Captain Smith told him not to leave the ship until he told him, although he was my servant and I paid his wages. In the meantime, the pilot steamer came to the dock, and I had a lot of meat—I suppose from 70 lbs. to 80 lbs. of fresh meat, pork, mutton, and beef, and vegetables, for the crew, to send down to Watson's Bay, which I had to attend to myself. When I went on board the ship I found the galley in a beastly condition, and the food in the oven completely burned up. Captain Smith and Captain Creer were on board, and I called their attention to it. The food was spoiled, and I had to take the engineer and men to an hotel and pay for them out of my own pocket. Captain Smith then said—"You discharge that man." I said—"I thought you told me I was not to discharge him, but I did not know that you were provedore of the ship before." He said—"I want no cheek from you." I said—"I am giving you no cheek, but you told me not to discharge this man before." The man went away in his drink, and did not come back again; but as soon as I left the ship Captain Smith took him back as cook, and he told me that he would give him the provedoring—a bright specimen to have the provedoring, when he could not keep sober as cook; but Captain Smith has been the real provedore, and has paid all the bills himself, at least he has done so till this matter was stirred up; and last month I know the bills were headed with the cook's name. It is not likely that Captain Smith will be allowed to be a Government contractor himself. I know from the way he is feeding the vessel now that he is making a good deal out of it; but when I was there things were used extravagantly, and very different articles were supplied.

63. Mr. Greenwood. For how many people had you to provide? Seventeen besides my own servants—they were not reckoned.

64. The Government paid you for daily rations for seventeen? Captain Smith paid for them, but it is a Government ship. Captain Smith paid me by his cheque, but I suppose it was for the Government.

65. Whether the pilots were on board or on shore you were paid? Yes; there were supposed to be two pilots on board, but sometimes one would be away at meal-times.

66. What was the amount of your contract per month? £61 12s. 3½d. for thirty-one days.

67. That does not include yourself and cook? No, I received £9 a month as the pay of a cook, and I paid the cook myself. £61 12s. 3½d. included the cook's wages and all.

68. How long were you provedore? Six months.

69. Then the total amount you received from the Government for the six months was £372? I suppose so; I have not reckoned it up.

70. The amount paid back by you to Captain Smith in money was £4 10s. 6d., and in provisions delivered at his own house and cash lent to Mrs. Smith £5 12s., making a total of £9 2s. 6d.? Yes.

71. You spoke about a percentage in the form of discount on your bills,—is that term, a percentage or discount, known in your business as allowed to captains? No.

72. In speaking of a percentage in the form of discount, you are speaking of a discount that ought to have come to yourself? Yes; instead of that, Captain Smith received it. There ought to have been no discount unless it were paid to me.

73. Mr. Davies. You furnished a bill every month to Captain Smith? Yes.

74. And the discount you speak of was a discount off that bill, which amount he received? Yes, I received the £60 odd, less £1 12s., which he kept as his percentage.

75. Mr. Greenwood. Had he anything to do with the dealers who supplied you with provisions? No, I go where I like to get my provisions.

76. How did you get the appointment—by answering an advertisement? Yes.

77. Was that advertisement signed? There was no name to it. It was—"Wanted a provedore to the pilot-steamer 'Captain Cook.' Apply on board."

78. That appeared as a Government advertisement? I should think so.

79. Surely there was some signature to it? No.

80. Was it in the ordinary line of "Wanted"? Yes.

81. It did not appear as a Government advertisement? No.

82. You applied on board? Yes.

83. To whom? To Captain Smith. I asked for the captain of the ship; he was shown to me, and I asked him if he had not advertised for a provedore.

84. Did he engage you? Not at that time. He asked me what boats I had been on, and I showed him my references. He then told me to send a tender in to him. I sent it in, and he said he thought it was rather high, but that if I would take it for the same as the last provedore I should get it, for I seemed a suitable man.

85. Do you know what the previous provedore was getting? I think he got £2 15s. a month for the men; I got only £2 10s.

86. No documents were signed in his presence at that time? No.

87. To whom did you go next? I sent a tender to the pilot steamer "Captain Cook," but got no answer. I called again, and he told me my answer was accepted, and to meet him at a certain time at the Marine Board Office. I went at the specified time, and Mr. Lawrence wrote out the agreement.

88. What was your reason for charging 18s. for pilots and £2 10s. for seamen? I charged 18s. a week for the pilots, and £2 10s. a month for the men. The pilots were supposed to have a steward to wait upon them, but the men did not get a steward.

89. Did you supply the pilots when on shore, or only Captain Smith? No.

90. Nor the men if they happened to be on shore? No. Captain Smith said at the door of the Marine Board Office that I should make a good thing out of it. That was the time when he said the last provedore allowed him his provedoring free.

91. In the contract you signed at the Marine Board Office was there anything about a percentage? Nothing whatever.

92. By whom were you dismissed? Captain Smith.

Mr. H. Davis. 93. Did you receive a verbal or written dismissal? Written.

94. Have you it? No, I do not think I have.

20 Nov., 1878. 95. You appealed against that to the Marine Board? Yes, to know why I was discharged without a hearing, and they wrote back a letter to say everything was left with Captain Smith.

96. Have you that letter? Yes, but not with me.

97. Was the steam-launch constantly employed? No.

98. On the average how would you represent the work she did? Sometimes she would never leave her moorings the whole day—sometimes for three or four days.

99. The steam-launch was under the direct control of Captain Smith? Yes; Captain Smith said so, but Mr. Humphreys, the man who is in charge of her, says he is responsible, but Captain Smith took the responsibility of both.

100. To whom did you apply when you wanted the use of her? Captain Smith.

101. Did you never use her without his consent? Sometimes, when he was not there—and he would be away for two or three days—I went to Mr. Humphreys. One day, when the launch had been up and down three times, I went to Mr. Humphreys to bring down supplies. As it was hot weather we were obliged to bring some of them down every day, as they would not keep—and he said he thought it was too much of a good thing to be going up to town so often. I do not think it was a very great hardship to go up after having been there only three times.

102. Were the men on board the launch part of those whom you supplied? No, they lived on shore. There were two men on duty and two off—one party at night and the other at day time.

103. Where did the launch usually lie? At Watson's Bay, and the pilot steamer at Camp Cove.

104. What was the principal duty the launch had to perform? To take the pilots to town, to take charge of ships coming out, and to bring them back again.

105. Have the pilots to get the consent of Captain Smith before they can get the use of the launch? Sometimes they have when he is there.

106. Then Mr. Humphreys, who has charge of the launch, cannot take a pilot to town if Captain Smith objects? No.

107. Was there any use made of this launch by others than Captain Smith which interfered with her proper duties? I have seen her go to town for maize and other things, and taking pilots and pilots' wives to town.

108. Was there anything like insubordination brought against you as a charge? Not the least whatever.

109. During the six months you were employed? No, none of the pilots would say so—not the least fault was found.

110. When the captain said he would have "no cheek" from you, did he not seem to be charging you with insubordination? No, I do not see how he could, for I was not giving him any.

111. You have said that in the letter sent to you by the Marine Board it stated that everything was left to Captain Smith, which seems to imply that he was your superior officer? He was my superior officer.

112. Did he say that you were discharged for insolence or insubordination? The only thing he said was that the crew had laid a complaint, which, though I would not swear it, I believe he endeavoured to induce them to bring against me.

113. You do not say that of your own personal knowledge? No, but I heard that he asked them to come aft and lay a complaint against me.

114. I understood you to say that Captain Smith pays the bills for the provedoring now? Yes, he has paid it in his own name.

115. Have you any evidence of that? The butcher told me himself that he has paid him.

116. Who is the butcher? Mr. Claydon, of George-street.

117. Mr. Davies.] Your contract for the supply of the "Captain Cook" was confined to the ship, was it not? Yes.

118. The sending of supplies to Captain Smith's house was no part of your agreement? None whatever.

119. Did you send those supplies voluntarily, or at the solicitation of Captain Smith? He asked me to fetch them to his house, but he never paid me for them.

120. Did you ever bill him for them? Yes, and he chucked the bill out to me and told me he would not pay me.

121. Did you bill him for the whole amount? For the whole £9 12s. 6d., percentage and all.

122. Did you bill him for the goods supplied—the beef, mutton, pork, and other things—apart from the money? No.

123. You billed him for the discount he stopped from your account? I never got it. He stopped it from my account.

124. Did you demur to the stoppage of £1 12s. 3d. in January? No, I did not dare to.

125. Did you object to the deduction of £1 12s. 3d. for the month of February? No, I was frightened of him—they are all frightened of him—he has so much power.

126. Then you did not object to the deduction of £4 12s. 6d., as percentage or discount from your accounts? No.

127. What was your reason for acquiescing in allowing the captain to make these deductions? People were frightened to speak to him, because they knew he would discharge them in a moment. I wanted to earn a living, and did not dare to say anything to him. As soon as ever I did not allow him so much as I used to do he told me to go.

128. You were afraid of losing your place? Yes.

129. Do I understand you to say that Captain Smith is now the provedore of the vessel? Yes.

130. Do you know that of your own knowledge? He has been since I left. I do not know whether he is now.

131. He receives the supplies and charges the men so much per head? Yes.

132. Do you know whether he afterwards makes a charge to the Government or to the Marine Board? He does for the supplies to the pilots. The men receive so much a month, and they allow the provedore so much a month to supply them.

133. They get a money consideration and make an arrangement with the provedore? Yes.

134. Do they get their supplies in the same way now? Yes, the men have told me themselves that the captain has allowed them 10s. a month, and only charges them £2 a month now.

135. Do you know whether Captain Smith has received discount on payment of tradesmen's bills? He is sure to. Mr. H. Davis.
20 Nov., 1878.
136. Do you know that? No; I know I did—5 per cent.
137. Have you seen the steam-launch used for private purposes, conveying people to and from Watson's Bay, persons not connected with the Public Service? No, I cannot say I have; I have seen Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Creer, and the pilots' wives, going to Sydney in her sometimes.
138. Competing with the enterprise of private steamship owners? Yes; and carrying a quantity of freight, as maize, cement, corn.
139. Timber? Yes.
140. All for the captains' and pilots' private use? Yes.
141. You say that the steam-launch was often lying idle for a day at a stretch, and sometimes more? Yes.
142. She is supposed to be used by the pilots to come to Sydney to take ships out to sea? Yes.
143. Was there any inconvenience during the time you were on board the pilot ship arising from the want of the steam-launch? Yes, I several times heard the pilots complain.
144. Do you know who had the steam-launch on the occasions you refer to? No, I do not recollect. I have known Captain Smith go to town in her for his own private pleasure.
145. Taking other passengers with him? I could not say. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Creer have gone up and come down with him.
146. You have said that you were on very good terms with the pilots? Yes, every one of them expressed his satisfaction as to the way in which I had treated him when I was provedore, and said they were never treated like it before or since.
147. Was it the same with the men? It was the same with the men; they have said they never had a cook to prepare their food, or had the table so well provided.
148. There was no complaint as to what you provided? None whatever. Captain Smith specified that they should have poultry twice a week, and they always had either fowls, ducks, or turkeys; and they had three different kinds of meat.
149. Were you on pretty good terms with Captain Smith during the time you were on board? He never spoke to any one; he would go for a week without speaking, or a month. If you spoke to him and he did answer you, he would answer you like a dog. I always spoke respectfully to him as the captain.
150. With reference to these goods supplied to his house, did he at any time order you to send certain supplies there? Yes.
151. Did he write on a piece of paper to send to his house certain supplies? Yes, and he used to tell me to go up to the house and see what Mrs. Smith wanted.
152. Have you any of those pieces of paper? No; it was just a piece of paper telling me to send so much meat, fruit, and so on.
153. This was done on several occasions? Yes.
154. And you always supplied them? Yes.
155. And for these supplies you have never been paid? No.
156. You charged the captain for them? Yes, and he hove the bill at me.
157. Mr. Eckford.] You say that Mr. Lawrence drew up the agreement? Yes.
158. Does he know anything about your case? No more than that he drew up the agreement, and that it was signed before him.
159. Was it within the hearing of any one besides yourself and Captain Smith that he spoke about this percentage? No, he would not let any one else hear it—it was a private conversation.
160. Did you give him any reply? When he told me that the last provedore had allowed him his proving free I told him I could not afford it, as things were dearer.
161. In the face of that did he make these deductions for the first three months during which you held the contract, January, February, and March, amounting to £4 10s. 6d.? Yes.
162. How was it he did not make a deduction from what was due to you for April? Because I had supplied the house with so much stuff in the month of April.
163. Then after that you furnished the house with supplies amounting to £4 10s., besides 12s. in cash to Mrs. Smith? Yes.
164. Was Captain Smith ever drunk on board the ship? No, I cannot say I ever saw him.
165. You would not think it was from drunkenness that he was so gruff and tyrannical? No.
166. You have spoken of his being abusive—was there any cause for his being abusive? None whatever.
167. No disobedience of orders? None whatever; he was just the same to the mate, and to every one else on board.
168. Did you contract to supply the ship with fruit? No, but I used to give the ship fruit. It was the house I sent the fruit to, but they had fruit on board the ship.
169. When Captain Smith ceased to make deductions from your account, did you make any application to him for the amount, or did you complain at the time these deductions were made? No, I was afraid to do so lest I should lose my situation.
170. It was on consideration of your sending so much stuff to his house that he ceased to make these deductions? Yes. I find I have made a mistake in the previous portion of my evidence, which I wish to correct. I find that in the month of February I received £58 19s. Mrs. Smith's account was £3 14s., and by cash I received £1 10s., which left £2 4s. still due.
171. Before you left the steamer and during the time you were on board did Captain Smith ever delegate his duties to the chief or second officer, and himself go away from the ship? Yes.
172. Do you know whether he went away upon public duty? I saw him on the Randwick Racecourse two days.
173. Whilst you were provedore of the ship? No, since; but he was often away before. I did not know where he was, but I knew he was not after ships, for we always knew when a ship was going out, and Captain Smith would never go out if he could help it.
174. Was it his duty to go out in the ship himself? Yes.
175. Chairman.] You have said that when you have wanted the launch you have sometimes to apply to the man in charge instead of to the captain, as Captain Smith would sometimes be away for two or three days together? Yes.
176. Did you mean to convey to the Committee that for two or three days together Captain Smith would not be on board at all? Yes.

- Mr. H. Davis. 177. Would the ship go out without him during these times? Yes.
- 20 Nov., 1878. 178. Did you ever notice coals going away from the ship? I have known them to go to the pilots' houses, to Captain Christison and Captain Smith.
179. Were these coals that came down with the rest for the supply of the ship? Yes; they were shovelled off the decks of the ship, and the ship's company put them on shore. When Mrs. Smith has left the house, the captain has told Emanuel, a Portuguese, to go and wash the kitchen and look after the baby, to chop wood, and so on.
180. Do you mean that a man who was engaged on board the "Captain Cook" was sent on shore to Mrs. Smith's residence for the purpose of nursing the baby, cleaning the kitchen, and chopping wood? Yes.
181. Did that occur more than once? Yes.
182. Did it occur frequently? I have known three or four of the crew to be taken on shore to carry wood from a boat to Captain Smith's house.
183. On an average, did such things occur once a fortnight? More than that—once a week. Mrs. Smith used very seldom to keep a servant long, but lately she has had one from Biloela, and she is staying longer; and the men used to go ashore and do all the house-work while Mrs. Smith would be away in town.
184. Emanuel was the man who did it? Yes; he is a Portuguese, and most of the men are foreigners.
185. Mr. Greenwood.] When the steamer went out without the captain, was it by the captain's orders? They never waited for the captain's orders; Mr. Firth, the chief officer, would take her out when a vessel was signalled.
186. Mr. Davies.] Are the men paid as they were in former times—by the pilots, or by the Government? They are paid by Captain Smith's cheque? I do not know who provides for them.
187. You do not know whether they are employed by Government? I believe they are employed by Government. I know they are paid by Captain Smith's cheque.

Captain Robert Cork examined:—

- Captain Cork. 188. Chairman.] What are you? A sea pilot.
- 20 Nov., 1878. 189. Employed by the Government of New South Wales? Yes.
190. How long have you occupied your present position? About eleven or twelve years. I am the oldest pilot.
191. And are, I presume, tolerably well acquainted with the working of the service? Yes.
192. You are aware that this Committee has been appointed to inquire into the management of the pilot steamer "Captain Cook"? Yes.
193. Do you know Mr. Henry Davis, for some time provedore of that ship? Yes.
194. He supplied you, together with the other pilots, when you were on duty? He did.
195. What was your impression of the manner in which he carried out his duty? He did it to my satisfaction and to the satisfaction of all on board, as far as I am aware.
196. Are you aware, or have you heard from report, why he was dismissed from his position? I merely heard that he was dismissed because Captain Smith wanted it himself.
197. Captain Smith wanted to be provedore himself? Yes.
198. Had Captain Smith been in the habit of provedoring previously? No.
199. Has he been doing so since Davis was dismissed? Yes, and is now.
200. Do you find the service as well carried out? It is carried out middling, but I preferred Davis's carrying it out. We were better off when he was provedore; that is the general opinion among the pilots.
201. Had you any opportunity while Mr. Davis was there of observing his demeanour or conduct to Captain Smith as his superior officer? I always thought Mr. Davis paid the greatest respect to him in every shape. He was most obedient and attentive in waiting upon the cabin table.
202. Have you since that heard of his being at any time insubordinate? No, I have not. Of course I am not always there—I come and go.
203. During the period that you have been on board you have not heard any definite complaint of such a character? No.
204. I suppose you are pretty often out in the pilot steamer? Yes; I may be there for two or three days together, or I may not be there twenty-four hours.
205. Have you ever known that vessel to go out without Captain Smith himself being on board? Frequently; it is a common occurrence.
206. Have you ever known Captain Smith to be absent for two or three days? Yes, I have known him to be absent for eight and forty hours, or it may have been for a longer period, but I could not say exactly.
207. You do not know whether he went away on public or on private business? On private; to boat-racing, horse-racing, and so on.
208. You know the steam-launch in connection with the pilot steamer? Yes.
209. What is it supposed to be used for legitimately? It is to be used for the harbour pilots, to take them to ships and to bring them back.
210. It is not engaged every day on that service? No.
211. Have you ever known it to be used for any other purpose? It is used almost every day for provedoring, by Captain Smith I suppose. He goes up in her about three times a week.
212. Have you ever known it to be used for any other private purpose? It went on a pic-nic once to Middle Harbour. I believe that is generally known.
213. Have you heard any complaints from masters of vessels as to the pilot steamer not having been at her post when required? Yes.
214. Have you ever as a pilot been late in getting out to a vessel because the steamer has not been ready to take you out? On one or two occasions she broke down.
215. Is she generally punctual? Yes; she is mostly in charge of the mate.
216. How many officers are there on board? The first and second officer in addition to Captain Smith.
217. How many of crew? There are six Jacks, four firemen, two engineers, a cook, and steward.

Captain Cork.
20 Nov., 1878.

218. One is a Portuguese? Yes; they are all foreigners except one, I think.
219. When any pilots are required to go to a vessel outside, there are generally two on board the steamer are there not? Yes.
220. These pilots are all nautical men? Yes, they have to pass the Marine Board.
221. And are capable of navigating the steamer out and in? Yes; they have to navigate ocean boats. Indeed, I think it is a ridiculous thing to have a captain to that vessel, because there are always two captains on board when she goes out, and when they are not there the mate could bring her in, as he does at present. It would be much safer that one of the pilots should give orders from the bridge for the lowering of the boats while the other was leaving, as he would understand the matter better. Now he is a mere cypher on board, while the command is perhaps taken by the second mate.
222. Referring again to this matter of provedoring, has it ever come under your notice that supplies have been sent from the ship to the shore? No, I have not seen that; I have heard so.
223. Have you ever seen coals going ashore? There have been coals taken from the steamer.
224. To Captain Smith's residence? To Captain Smith's and Captain Creer's.
225. Do you know a man named Emanuel? Yes.
226. Have you ever seen that man chopping wood at Captain Smith's, nursing the child, and washing the house? I believe it is commonly known.
227. Have you observed it? Yes, I have.
228. Emanuel is paid by Government? Yes.
229. The whole of these men are Government employés? Yes.
230. Are you aware by whose cheque they are paid? By Captain Smith's cheque; not the pilots,—the men.
231. Mr. Greenwood.] I understood you to say that Captain Smith is now the provedore of the ship; that is, there is nobody supplying the vessel but Captain Smith? No; he has a cook and steward.
232. He would have a cook and steward if there were a provedore beside? Yes; the provedore chose to take up the steward's work, but the Government allow £9 a month for a cook or steward.
233. Did I understand you to say that Captain Smith used the steam-launch three times a week for fetching provisions? Yes, sometimes every day when the weather is hot.
234. Does he come to town himself to purchase provisions? No doubt about that. In fact we had a telegram to go to a ship immediately, and she was in town for his own private use, and therefore we could not go to the ship.
235. You think there should be no captain on board? I do; I think it is unnecessary.
236. Suppose two pilots are shipped a long way out at sea? We seldom go farther out than five or six miles.
237. Suppose both pilots are shipped, and there is no one left on board the steamer besides the mate to bring her in? He does it now most times.
238. Mr. Davies.] I understood you to say that you have seen coals go to Captain Smith's and Captain Creer's? Yes.
239. These coals have been supplied by the steamer? I understood that they were bought from the contractor; that they were put on board from the collier which supplies the steamer with coals, at the contract price for them. It was not robbed from the ship, as I am aware.
240. Do you know whether any deduction was made in paying the contractor? I do not know. I know I got two tons myself in the same way, which I paid for. It was less expense to get them at contract price. I was going to get a boat to take them on shore, and Captain Smith said—"I will put them on shore in my boat." It was very kind of him, and I was glad to accept his offer.
241. Do you think any wrong was done in taking these coals ashore? I believe they were paid for.
242. They were not taken from the supplies of the ship? Not that I am aware. The engineer is the man who knows all about that, because he has to give a receipt for them.
243. Is Blackadder the engineer? Not now; he is the engineer to the "Thetis."
244. Do you know anything of Captain Smith making deductions from time to time from accounts submitted to him by Mr. Davis? I am not aware; I have been told so by Mr. Davis, but they did that between themselves.
245. Have you any knowledge of Mr. Davis supplying Captain Smith with provisions, beef, mutton, and so on? No; he used to bring down meat to oblige him, in fact he did the same for the other pilots. He was a very obliging man.
246. You say the men were paid by Captain Smith's cheques? Yes.
247. Has that been the practice ever since the present steam service has been inaugurated? Yes, the money is paid to his credit, and he draws it out by his own cheques.
248. Have you been full-handed all through? Sometimes we are short of a man.
249. If you are short-handed, I suppose there is nothing to hinder the captain from drawing the full money? He is always full-handed with his cheque.
250. Do you know that of your own knowledge? I have been informed so. Of course I could not properly state it was so without having seen it.
251. Then the money that remained over and above the pay of the men would go into his own pocket? I suppose he gets these little privileges. I know that the second mate was away at the Clarence for six weeks, and that he had to sign for his provisions.
252. You know that of your own knowledge? He told me so himself.
253. What is the name of the second mate? Maids. He was in charge of one of the Company's boats some years ago and lost.
254. I understood you to say, in answer to a question by Mr. Greenwood, that you had frequently experienced difficulty in coming up the harbour to take ships out to sea, in consequence of Captain Smith having the steam-launch employed for his own private use? Yes; that has happened to Captain Coutts as well as to myself.
255. I understood you to say that you were unable to go on board a ship in consequence of the absence of the steam-launch? The vessel was wanting to go out, and the launch was up in Sydney, so that I could not go on board, and the vessel was prevented going to sea until the next day.
256. That was in consequence of the absence of the steam-launch? Yes.
257. You also stated, in reply to a question by the Chairman, that Captain Smith was very seldom to be found

- Captain Cork. found on board, or to proceed to sea in the "Captain Cook"? He is there sometimes, but is away, I should think, a third of the times she goes out.
- 20 Nov., 1878. 258. You think there is no necessity for a captain at all, as every sea-pilot is a captain? Yes, but it is not a sea-pilot service at all—the pilot has nothing to say at all on board. It is often either the mate or the second mate who is in command.
259. Then when Captain Smith is away, the pilots are subordinate to the first or second mate? Yes.
260. Do you think that is desirable? No, I do not; for I think if a pilot were on the bridge he would be better qualified to command when the boats should be lowered, and to give other necessary orders.
261. In your opinion, does the present system work well? No, it does not.
262. What is the salary received by Captain Smith? £400 a year.
263. What do the pilots receive? £350; but we applied for the same salary as that received by Captain Smith—we did not see why he should have more than we. Sometimes a pilot is sick, and the others have to do double duty without any extra pay. We have to be there night and day—Sundays, week-days, and holidays.
264. Have you seen the steam-launch used for private purposes? No, I was not there when she went up Middle Harbour.
265. Have you seen her used for bringing down corn, cement, and other things? The pilots have the privilege allowed them by the President of the Marine Board.
266. When the steam-launch has been passing to and from Watson's Bay and Sydney, have you seen passengers taken in her? Yes, there have been passengers taken in her—when men have lost their passage by the steam-boat they have had the privilege of a passage in her.
267. It has not been frequently done? No.
268. Have you not seen the present schoolmaster taken down? No, I have heard he was taken down; he wrote to the Marine Board about it.
269. Have you not heard of his being up and down in the boats several times? I have heard so.
270. Have other residents been taken up and down, to the injury of private enterprise? I know the pilots' wives have been taken up and down, but they call that their privilege. None of my people have been taken, as I would rather pay for their going in the steamer than be under an obligation.
271. Does Captain Smith use the steam-launch as provedore to come to Sydney and to take supplies down? Yes.
272. How often does he use the boat for that purpose? Every other day, and sometimes every day when the weather is hot if the meat will not keep.
273. That would be inconvenient for the pilot, if he had to come to Sydney to take a ship out? Yes, if she is intended for the pilot service she should not be used for private purposes, but kept for the service for which the money was voted at the request of the Marine Board.
274. Is it true that within the last six months various ships have entered the harbour and in one or two cases steamers have come up before pilots have boarded them? Yes.
275. Can you explain how that has occurred? They have not gone out soon enough.
276. Will you explain the reason? It depends upon the signal-master up the hill as to when he signals a vessel coming in.
277. Is it not the rule to board ships a considerable distance out at sea? Yes, by law they should be boarded about 4 miles to the south-west and north-west.
278. Is it not true that under present arrangements, fully 50 per cent. of the ships entering our port are boarded very near the Heads? Yes, some are boarded in the harbour as far up as Chowder.
279. Under the old regulations, if a pilot neglected to board a ship before she entered the Heads he would not be entitled to his fees? Not if the parties chose to keep it back; it would be as a privilege if they gave it him.
280. It would be a matter of privilege on the part of the Marine Board? Yes.
281. Chairman.] Can you give any specific cases where ships have been boarded so far inside the harbour? There was the "Normanby" steamer, one of the Torres Straits boats. It was very bad weather at the time—she was boarded off Chowder one night.
282. Have you any further statement you wish to make? No.

FRIDAY, 6 DECEMBER, 1878.

Present:—

MR. J. DAVIES, | MR. ECKFORD,
MR. McELHONE.

ANGUS CAMERON, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. James Thompson called in and examined:—

- Mr. J. Thompson. 283. Chairman.] What are you by profession? A master mariner.
284. Were you at any time engaged in the Government Service? Yes.
- 6 Dec., 1878. 285. On board the "Captain Cook"? No, the "Thetis."
286. Were you on board the "Captain Cook" at all? No.
287. Were you brought into collision with the pilot service of the port in any way? Yes, I was mate of the "Thetis."
288. Who was your immediate superior? Charles Smith, the present master of the "Captain Cook."
289. In your position on board the "Thetis" you had frequent opportunities of watching how Captain Smith performed his duties and how the pilot service was carried on? Yes.
290. Do you know of any instances where vessels have come a long way up the harbour before being boarded by a pilot? I have known of vessels coming between the Heads.
291. Have you known cases where they have come as far as Sow and Pigs and Chowder Bay? No.
292. You are aware of the object of this Committee, and you have written to one of its members expressing a desire to give evidence. If there is any statement you wish to make we will hear it? My first complaint is against the Marine Board.
- 293.

Mr. J.
Thompson.
6 Dec., 1878.

293. We have nothing to do with that in this inquiry? You see I was in the Government Service as mate of the "Thetis," and during the time I was in her I may say I did the principal part of the duty, for the captain was frequently three or four days at a time absent from the vessel.
294. Mr. McElhone.] The captain of what? The captain of the "Thetis," who is now master of the "Captain Cook."
295. Chairman.] I suppose the vessel had to go out to sea without him, to put pilots on board vessels? Yes.
296. Under whose command was the vessel then? Under my command. There was no second mate at that time, so the whole duty was thrust upon myself.
297. Have you any knowledge of how the service is carried on at the present time? Yes, I have heard —
298. Do you know anything from your own observation, apart from hearsay? I can speak of facts during the time I was in the service. The captain frequently, I may say invariably, came on board the vessel without acknowledging me, or even making me acquainted with the duties the vessel was to go out for. We were always supposed to take pilots off the ships anywhere going out.
299. How long is it since you left the service? Two years last July.
300. Who paid your wages at the time—were you paid by Captain Smith? Yes.
301. By Government cheque or private cheque? Private cheque.
302. Whose private cheque? Captain Smith's.
303. Was he in the habit of paying the whole of the ship's company? Yes.
304. He got the wages from the Marine Board? Yes, for the men on board the vessel.
305. Is it a fact that if any of the men lost a day, or a day and a half, it could be deducted from their pay? I never knew an instance of that kind.
306. Do you know what the practice was—if a man lost time was he paid for it? He was liable to a reduction of wages, but I do not remember any one being absent during the time I was in the service; they seemed to be always very sober and attentive.
307. The "Thetis" was at that time carrying out the duty now performed by the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
308. Was there a steam-launch or tender then? No, the steam-launch has been substituted for a whale-boat.
309. Have you ever seen, on any occasion, men sent off the ship to the shore to perform any other duty at the private residences of the officers? I have known men sent on shore to work at the captain's boat.
310. His own private boat? Yes.
311. Are you still following your profession as a mariner? I am unemployed at present.
312. You have some knowledge of the management of steam-ships similar to the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
313. Do you know anything of the provedoring of these vessels? During the time I was in the "Thetis" Mr. Claydon was the provedore.
314. Has it at any time come under your observation that the captain of the vessel acts as provedore—in private vessels? No.
315. Have you ever known an instance in the Government Service of a skipper being allowed to do it? No.
316. Mr. Eckford.] How long were you in the "Thetis"? About four months and a-half or five months.
317. During that time how did Captain Smith treat you? In a very brutish manner, I think.
318. How—did he swear at you? No. On one occasion he took me by the collar and threatened to punch my d—d head.
319. How often have you had to take the "Thetis" out to sea on your own responsibility? I could not tell you the number of times, but the pilots have frequently come on board and asked where Smith was, and said I was doing the duty—doing all the work.
320. What is the greatest length of time you have known him to be away from his duties on board the ship? Four days.
321. Who discharged his duties during that time? I did.
322. Have you ever seen Mr. Smith under the influence of drink? No, I cannot say that exactly. We used to take week about, day-work and night-work. I cannot say the date, but at 2 o'clock one day one of the pilots (a great friend of his) and himself went and left the vessel; it was my day-work, and my duty closed at 6 o'clock in the evening; a little after 6 the signal went up for a pilot outside; I went out with the vessel, and I think it was about a quarter past 9 when I returned; I must have gone about 14 miles off the land; as I entered the Heads there was the signal up for a pilot again; I had no pilots on board at this time; I had gone to sea with only one pilot and one boat; we usually carried two boats; the other boat had been ashore since 2 o'clock; I did not bring the vessel to her moorings, but turned her about, and in about half an hour the captain returned to her in a very excited state.
323. Did his family then reside at Watson's Bay? Yes.
324. Do you know Captain Maclean, at Balmain? Yes.
325. Do you know whether Mr. Smith or Mrs. Smith is in the habit of visiting and staying a few days at a time at Captain Maclean's place? No, I am not aware of it, only by hearsay.
326. You have heard it? Yes. I had to resign because I could not endure Captain Smith's treatment any longer.
327. Mr. Davies.] You were never employed on the "Captain Cook"? No. I may say the pilots were treated the same way as myself. I have known pilots to be on board the vessel for days, and the captain has never opened his mouth to them.*
328. You have no knowledge of the manner in which the service is conducted now? No, not anything more than being told by the pilots. It was bad enough when I was there, and, if anything, I believe it is worse now.
329. You are only aware of it from hearsay? That is all.
330. Mr. McElhone.] How long have you been at sea? About forty-three years. I served five years apprenticeship from the north of England, and was chief mate of a vessel before I was out of my apprenticeship. I have been master of a ship off and on ever since I have been in this Colony—twenty-nine years. I have had vessels in the China trade and the New Zealand trade. I was five years in Mr. Wright's

* ADDED (on revision):—Shortly after joining the pilot steamer "Thetis" I was told by Captain Smith that I was not allowed to speak to the pilots, as it was not my place.

Mr. J.
Thompson.
6 Dec., 1878.

Wright's employ, now of the Parramatta River, and was also in the employ of Macdonald, Smith, & Co. I went to Manila for them, and afterwards got an appointment as pilot at Auckland; but on account of a reduction there I resigned and followed my old profession.

331. Had you any personal quarrel with Captain Smith while on board the "Thetis"? That was the only time, when he took hold of me by the collar and said he would punch my head, when I put a question to him. He has said to me at dinner—"What will you take?" in a very uncouth manner.

332. Of course you are aware that the mate of a ship must obey all orders given him by the captain? Yes.

333. Did you at all times obey his orders? Yes, certainly.

334. Did you do it cheerfully and quickly? Yes.

335. Were you offensive in your manner to him at any time? No, not that I am aware of.

336. Is the captain supposed to live on board the steamer? I do not know, if he is a married man.

337. Did you live on board? Yes.

338. Are you a married man? Yes.

339. You say the captain was away for three or four days at a time? Yes.

340. Have you any idea what he was doing? I cannot say; I suppose it was for his own pleasure. I know one time he was away at the races.

341. You do not know whether he got leave of absence? No.

342. Do you not think it rather queer conduct for the captain of a vessel to be away for three or four days together? Yes, I thought so.

343. I suppose you were sometimes puzzled what to do? No, I cannot say I was; I thought myself as good a man as the captain.

344. But being only mate, you had a right to look to the captain for orders? Certainly I had.

345. According to your experience, the captain ought to be always on board? Yes.

346. Especially in the pilot service? Yes. We took day-work and night-work, week about.

347. On one occasion, you say, you went out with one pilot and one boat, and when you came back you had to wait half-an-hour before the captain and the pilot came off? Yes.

348. And the captain was abusive to you then? No, he was not abusive then, but he was very excited.

349. Was he a man who drank at all? I have been told so; I had not the opportunity of seeing it on board the ship.

350. When he was away for three or four days he might have been drunk? Yes, he might.

351. How did the captain get on with his men—with the crew? There never was any disturbance to my knowledge; in fact the crew had more respect shown them than what I had.

352. Were you allowed over-time? No.

353. Was the captain? No, not to my knowledge.

354. Extra pay for night duty, or anything? No.

355. Who provided the ship while you were there? Mr. Claydon, the butcher.

356. The captain had nothing to do with it? No; we paid 18s. a week, each of us.

357. Then from your experience as an old sailor, you would say it was very improper conduct of the captain to be away for three or four days, throwing his duty upon you? Yes.

358. I suppose if you were the owner of a ship, and the captain were away for three or four days like that, you would have no hesitation in dismissing him? I would dismiss him for neglect of duty.

359. I suppose if you were in a merchant's employ the owner would dismiss you if you staid away from the ship? Yes.

360. And you consider the captain did not treat you in a proper manner, as he should treat his officers? Far from it.

361. How do you account for that? I do not know, I am sure. He seems to bear the same character from every one he comes in contact with.

362. It seems natural to him? Yes.

363. Chairman.] You said you had seen ships coming in between the Heads without a pilot? Yes.

364. How often? Not very often. I do not remember any large ships doing so; it may be some inter-colonial vessels did, but I never knew any large ships.

365. Mr. Eckford.] Did ever you hear of coal and wood being taken out of the steamer to the captain's place? No; I think that has only occurred since the steam-launch has been used.

366. Chairman.] You have heard that it has occurred? Yes. Any of the pilots will certify that I did my duty while I was down there, and was badly treated.

367. Mr. McElhone.] Are you a sober man? I never drink wine, spirits, or beer.

368. Are you a Son of Temperance? No, I have taken no pledge, but I have resolution enough to keep from it.

369. Mr. Eckford.] Is there anything else you wish to say? I stated that when I returned from leave of absence the captain never reported to me what vessels were going out. The signals were always made at the Heads what vessels were outward bound, so that we could always be on the watch to take a pilot out, and the captain has left the ship directly I have returned, frequently without expressing a word as to what duty required to be done.

WEDNESDAY, 23 APRIL, 1879.

Present:—

MR. CAMERON,
MR. J. DAVIES,

MR. ECKFORD,
MR. McELHONE.

A. CAMERON, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Richard Hyatt examined:—

Mr. R. Hyatt. 370. Chairman.] What are you? A fireman.

371. Where are you employed? On board the "Captain Cook."

23 April, 1879. 372. You are aware that this Committee is appointed to enquire into the management of that steamer? Yes, I have heard of it.

373. Do you know Mr. Henry Davies, at one time provedore of that vessel? Yes. Mr. R. Hyatt.
374. You were employed on board that boat when he carried out the contract as provedore? I was.
375. Did he give you satisfaction as to the manner in which he supplied the vessel? Me personally? 23 April, 1879.
376. Yes? No.
377. Did he give satisfaction to the majority of the crew? To the best of my belief he did not.
378. Did you at any time have occasion to lay a complaint against him to Captain Smith, the commander of that vessel? I really forget whether I did or not.
379. In what respect was the provedoring of the vessel insufficient? He did not act up to what he agreed to supply.
380. Have you at any time told anybody that against your wish and against your belief you, to please Captain Smith, went and made a complaint against Mr. Davies which you knew to be false? It is such a long time ago that—
381. Please answer my question directly? I could not say.
382. Can you say positively that you did not do such a thing against your conscience and belief? No, I could not answer that.
383. You could not say you did not do it against your conscience and belief? No, I have no recollection of it at this present time—of going personally to the commander.
384. It is possible you may have done so? I might have done so, but I have no recollection.
385. Do you recollect seeing me at my place of business in King-street? Yes, I was there once.
386. Do you remember coming there with Mr. Davies and making a statement to me that against your better judgment you had laid a charge against Mr. Davies—that you were sorry for doing it, not believing it to be true? I could not exactly say the words.
387. Did you make any statement that led me to believe that you in conjunction with others had at any time, to please Captain Smith, made a charge against Mr. Davies? I have some recollection of mentioning to you that owing to the very unsatisfactory way in which Mr. Davies had treated us, speaking collectively for the crew, we went to the commander and told him we were not satisfied.
388. You were in company with Mr. Davies when you waited upon me? I came with him.
389. You say now that you made a statement to me in the presence of Mr. Davies that you deemed his provedoring unsatisfactory? I told him—
390. Please answer my question? I do not understand you properly.
391. Do you say that you made a statement to me in the presence of Mr. Davies himself, that his provedoring was unsatisfactory? I would not state at the present minute what words I used, but I might have said at the time that we went aft to the captain and told him.
392. Have you got a short memory? Not particularly that I know of.
393. How long is it since you saw me? I should say about six weeks.
394. And you forget whether you made such a statement or not? I could not state the exact words, for at the time there was a remark made, if I remember right, something to the effect that our conduct had been damaged, or our cause, or something of that sort. I could not say the exact words—as much as to say that our cause was damaged by the action we took.
395. What do you mean by "our cause"? Our complaint.
396. Is it not the fact that you came to me with Mr. Davies, for the purpose of making a statement to me, to induce me to summon you before this Committee on Mr. Davies's behalf? Not on his behalf, on my own.
397. Is it not the fact that when you had made a statement to me, I said that after such a statement nobody would believe you on your oath? You said something to that effect.
398. Did you ask me as a favour not to bring you before this Committee? Yes.
399. What was your reason for doing so? It would not benefit my cause to come here.
400. What do you mean by "benefitting your cause"? That being a working man I should be looked down upon, and most probably be told that my services would not be required any more, or something to that effect.
401. Captain Smith is no longer in command of the vessel, is he? I do not know; he has not been on board since the 1st January, but whether he is in command of her, I do not know.
402. Who were you afraid of looking down upon you? Our present commander.
403. Do you think it is likely he would look down upon you for anything you might say about Mr. Davies's conduct in Captain Smith's time? It is probable.
404. Did you not at one time keep certain data which you intended to furnish to this Committee, to show that things were not properly managed on board the boat? I did at one time.
405. What was the purport of those data? It was a private diary for my own use.
406. Is it not the fact that you destroyed those data in order that they might not be produced before this Committee? Yes; I did not want them to be seen; they were for my own private use.
407. There might have been something in them that would not have pleased Captain Smith? I am afraid they would not have pleased far more than Captain Smith.
408. What was there in them that would have displeased? I decline to answer that question.
409. Mr. Eckford. Are you a public officer and decline to answer a question put to you by the Committee? Yes.
410. Chairman. What wages do you receive? We are supposed to receive £11 a month.
411. What do you receive? I get £9 a month; I have had as high as £9 15s.
412. What is the other money deducted for? Provedoring arrangements.
413. How often are you paid your wages? Once a month. I have never received more than £9 17s., and I think during Clayton's provedoring £8 5s. 8d. or 4d. was the lowest.
414. Who pays you your wages? The commander.
415. Does he pay you in cash? By cheque.
416. By public cheque? No; by private cheque.
417. Whose private cheque? The commander of the vessel signs his name.
418. Is it his own private cheque? Yes.
419. And is paid when you present it? Yes.
420. Is the same practice adopted with the rest of the crew? Yes, to the best of my knowledge.
421. Is it not the fact that you have made up your mind to throw up your situation rather than give evidence against Captain Smith before this Committee? No.

- Mr. R. Hyatt. 422. Is it the fact that you have made up your mind to throw up your situation? I was promised another situation, and when I went to apply for it it was postponed.
- 23 April, 1879. 423. Nevertheless, it is the fact that you had intended to resign your situation? Yes; I intend to leave the "Captain Cook" at any cost or price, on my being able to procure another situation.
424. What for? Because I cannot support myself and family in the way I am there.
425. Have you a large family? I have four children, and my wife will be confined in a day or two.
426. You receive between £9 and £9 15s. independently of the provedoring? Yes, at the present time.
427. Who provedores the vessel now? I suppose the commander does.
428. Is it better done now than it was before? I should say not; it is not as well.
429. There is a steam launch in connection with the vessel? I believe so.
430. Do you ever see anything in connection with her movements? Only when she is alongside.
431. Does she bring provisions on board? She has fetched our provisions invariably since she has been placed in commission.
432. Where is Captain Smith now? He is in some situation in Sydney.
433. You do not know where? Well, I could not tell you exactly where. I know where I could find him.
434. You do not know what is his present position—in fact, you do not want to know? It is not that at all. If you would like a plain, straightforward account of what I could give you myself, I could probably tell you.
435. I want you in the meantime to answer my questions, and you may reserve any statement you may have to make until afterwards? I do not know of my own knowledge what position Captain Smith holds.
436. Your sole reason for not wishing to give evidence before this Committee is that you might injure yourself as a working man? Yes.
437. Have you known during your experience on board the "Captain Cook" any working man to have been punished, dismissed, or degraded for telling anything at headquarters against any of his superior officers? I do not know of any complaint that was made to headquarters.
438. What reason then have you for thinking that you might do yourself an injury by giving information to this Committee? I have heard men told that if they did not like the arrangements on board they could go, if they made a complaint.
439. Who were they told by? The commander. That was when they complained to the master of the boat respecting the provedoring arrangements, and the answer that was made was, "If you do not like it you can go." They would never be any different.
440. I suppose you recognize your own handwriting. Did you write that? (handing a paper to witness). Did you write that? Yes, that is my signature.
441. You state here that it is your intention to procure a situation out of Sydney as soon as possible, "so that it would not be of any benefit to any party my appearing to give evidence"? Yes.
442. You state this in this letter? Yes.
443. What do you mean when you say that "it would not be of any benefit to either party"? You must understand this, that personally I have, I may say, very little respect for Mr. Davies, and likewise I have not a very great deal either for the "Captain Cook," nor for the arrangements under which we were labouring, and I have applied for a situation away from Sydney. I wrote to a friend of mine who sent word down that he wanted me again, but owing to some other arrangements he has entered into, his business is postponed for a while, else I should have been away.
444. What you mean to say by this paragraph in your letter is, that if you liked you could give evidence which would be material to one party or the other? Which would be material to both. It would probably—well, I can hardly explain it.
445. Is it not the fact that when you say your evidence would not be of benefit to either party, you mean you could if you liked give evidence which would benefit one party or the other? It would be no material benefit to either one, I assure you.
446. Mr. Eckford.] Which of the captains, Smith or Creer, was it who told you if you did not like the arrangements you could leave? Captain Smith.
447. What possessed you to go to Mr. Cameron's house with Mr. Davies? Under the existing arrangements we have at the present time I would have endeavoured to have altered them for my own benefit, as well as for the rest of the working men on board.
448. That is not a reply to my question. I asked you what was the reason you went to Mr. Cameron's house with Mr. Davies? Because I knew of no other gentleman in the city of Sydney, with the exception of Mr. Arnold, who resided in the bay, who could have introduced me to Mr. Cameron, and being informed that he had the case in hand about the provedoring arrangements, I thought I would see Mr. Davies and get myself introduced through him, for I had not spoken to him from the time he left the boat till the day I met him and went to Mr. Cameron's with him, which I should say is about six months. Even when he was on board I did not have much conversation with him.
449. Is it not the fact that you went with Mr. Davies to Mr. Cameron for the express purpose of giving evidence in favour of Mr. Davies, and against Captain Smith? No, it is not; that is where the mistake is made, because I told Mr. Davies at the time I went with him—I made the remark to him in this way,—I said, "You and I are not very good friends, but if you will help me to gain my cause I will assist you as well." That is where it was, and if I had taken a party's advice, and stated what I knew without troubling Mr. Davies, I think I should be better than what I am, because I do not like the man. I do not say I disrespect the man, but during the time he was on board he treated me in, we will say, a very ungentlemanly manner. I never did like the man, and I had the least possible conversation with him in every way and and shape. He was mistaken —
450. How mistaken? About my going to Mr. Cameron's? I told him I did not like him nor his ways, nor Captain Smith nor his ways, nor Captain Creer nor his ways, but at the same time I wanted to get satisfaction.
451. Do I understand you to say that when you went to interview Mr. Cameron with Mr. Davies that you were disposed to serve Mr. Davies if Mr. Davies would assist you? That was the agreement we entered into. I made the agreement; I said to Mr. Davies, "The fact is this, you and I are not friends, but under the circumstances in which I am placed—you are acquainted with Mr. Cameron—you introduce me—to get my cause, if I can, righted, and I will help you, but it will be very little, mind you; I cannot help you much, for I know very little about it."

452. Yet, in the face of all this, you were disposed to come to this Committee for the purpose of Mr. R. Hyatt. misleading it? No, I would not mislead it.
453. You have stated so now? I do not understand these things, and if you want a plain straight- 23 April, 1879. forward account I will write it out for you to the best of my ability. I cannot comprehend your questions properly, for this reason, that I do not know exactly how to answer them.
454. Mr. McElhone.] Give us honest answers—the truth is a very simple thing? If I can do it I will, but I cannot help Mr. Davies.
455. You say you are supposed to get £11 a month? Yes.
456. But you seldom get over £9? Yes.
457. You have got up to £9 17s., and as low as £8 5s. 4d? Yes, we have had as low. Our account with Mr. Clayton was at the rate of 12s. 6d. per week, and I have been paid with £8 5s. 8d.
458. The balance of your wages has gone for food? To the provedoring account.
459. You said just now you were promised another situation—was it a Government situation? No, a private one.
460. Did you ever see Captain Smith drunk while you were on board? Not to my knowledge. I never saw him intoxicated.
461. Was he ever much away from the vessel during day time? Yes, he used to go away.
462. Was he away repeatedly, day after day, during working hours? Yes, I have seen him away.
463. Repeatedly for more than one day? Yes, he has been away for more than one day—more than two. I have seen him away for two or three days together occasionally.
464. Was this when the vessel has been on duty? Yes, since she has been down there; but I could not state whether he has been away on his own business.
465. You have seen him away repeatedly? Yes.
466. What was his conduct, generally speaking, to the men under him—from the officers all round? I do not think he treated them very gentlemanly.
467. How did he treat them? Not in the way I have always seen officers treated.
468. In what way? He treated them with contempt.
469. What do you mean by contempt;—did he speak in a very rough, blackguard way, make use of obscene or profane language? I never heard him use obscene language, and never heard him utter an oath but once.
470. What do you mean by contempt? He would call out "Here, I want you"—"Broderick, come here," and if you spoke to him he never gave any direct information.
471. Chairman.] You have stated that you did not respect Mr. Davies much;—what was the cause of that? Because he did not treat me well; he endeavoured to get me discharged.
472. Are you in the habit of inviting people for whom you have no respect to spend the Sunday at your house? No.
473. Have you within this last six weeks invited Mr. Davies to go to your house on a Sunday? Yes, once.
474. What for—to pay your respects to him? No; I wanted to give him some information.
475. And you were no friend of his? No, I was not.
476. And you told him you could not serve him on this Committee? Exactly, I told him that.
477. You wanted to have a talk with Mr. Davies for your own purposes? No; I wanted to give him dates that I kept, so that he should know when certain events took place.
478. You wanted to give Mr. Davies some dates about certain transactions? Yes.
479. For his own benefit? Yes.
480. Then it must have been against some one else? I could not say whether for or against.
481. You have since destroyed those dates? Yes.
482. In order that they should not come before this Committee? It was not for that purpose at all.
483. For what reason then? It is a question I decline to answer.
484. It is a delicate question? Well, it is a delicate question; there you have hit it on the head. In the way I am placed it is a very peculiar position.
485. Mr. McElhone.] Why do you come here at all if not to speak the truth? The reason I decline to answer the question is this: it is partly for a private and partly for a public purpose.
486. Chairman.] Will you tell us the part that is for a public purpose? Yes, if you will allow me to tell it in my own way.
487. I have already told you you can make any statement you like to the Committee? We will commence from the first placing of the "Captain Cook" in commission, which is now two years and two or three months ago. When I came from Newcastle, I was appointed by telegram, and I joined her before the 1st of February,—I think on the 29th or 30th of January. I signed a portage bill for £11 a month. Instead of receiving this as I expected, I had to pay out of it at the rate of 12s. 6d. a week for provedoring. I made a remark to the commander that I thought the charge exorbitant. He said he could not help it, it was tendered for, and the lowest tender was excepted. I said it was strange. The second month went the same way. I made a remark at the end of the second month that if he would make compensation to me I was in a position to break up my home at Newcastle, and to bring my family to live at Watson's Bay, to be near the work. He said he would see about it. I stated to my chief engineer that provided I could have my time from duty to myself, and live at home, and likewise bring my own provisions from home, I was prepared to take up a permanent situation at Watson's Bay. From the information he gave me I supposed it was so arranged, and I went to Newcastle, broke up my home, and brought my wife and family to the Bay. I believe I may say I once every few months was asking Captain Smith to alter this arrangement.
488. We have nothing to do with your private arrangements, we want your evidence as to the management of the boat? These provedoring arrangements got so bad at last that we petitioned the Marine Board to alter them, and they sent down word to us that it was to be left in two ways.—Captain Smith could either call for tenders for it, or if we took it into our own hands there would be no cook found us. We thought it better that tenders should be called. Mr. Davies sent in his, and it was accepted as provedore for the officers, and then he came forward and made an arrangement with us. He promised certain things he would do for us at certain prices, and he never gave us those things; he did not act up to what he promised.
489. Can you make any detailed statement as to where the supply was short? No, I cannot, but it was short; we were not at all satisfied with it.
490. In what respect—as to quantity or quality? Quantity.

- Mr. R. Hyatt. 491. The quality was good enough? The quality was very well, what there was of it, but we complained of not having sufficient. The first complaint was on the Christmas Day after he took charge. He handed us a Christmas dinner of corned beef, I think, and something else, and when we made a remark that he might have given us a better dinner he turned round and stated that he had not had the contract long enough.
492. Have you ever known the "Captain Cook" to go to sea without having the captain on board? Yes.
493. Often? Yes.
494. Three times a week? I could not say—it is a common occurrence; I dare say it might be more than that.
495. It is a common occurrence for her to go away to sea without having the captain on board? Yes.
496. Even now, under Captain Creer? Yes; he is in town at the present time.

Mr. Edward Broderick examined:—

- Mr. E. Broderick. 497. Chairman.] What are you? An engineer.
498. Where are you employed? On board the Government pilot steamer "Captain Cook."
499. How long have you been employed in that capacity? Two years last January.
500. You were there when Mr. Davies was employed as provedore of that vessel? Yes.
501. Captain Smith was then commander? He was.
502. What was your impression as to the manner in which Mr. Davies carried out his contract? I think he did everything that we could wish of him as provedore of the vessel.
503. You personally had no fault to find with him? Not the slightest.
504. What is your opinion as to the feeling of the men generally—did the men seem to be satisfied? I have heard some of them make remarks about the provedore at one particular time—I think it was about Christmas time, but I do not recollect anything against Mr. Davies.
505. Such complaints were not general? They were not.
506. Taking his period of service as a whole, do you think he gave pretty general satisfaction? Yes, I think so—more than those who were before him or who have followed him.
507. Who is the provedore of the boat now? I could not say positively, but I think it has just gone from Captain Smith to Captain Creer.
508. What was Captain Creer before he took the command? Junior pilot before this alteration was made.
509. Did Captain Smith before leaving the boat act as provedore? Yes; I have every reason to believe so.
510. Is the provedoring better carried out now than when Mr. Davies had it? No.
511. Is it as good? No; although at present, as far as I can speak of it, it is pretty good, taking it as a general thing; but it is certainly no better, if so good, as when Mr. Davies had it.
512. What are you paid a month? £20.
513. How often are you paid? Once a month.
514. In cash? No, by cheque.
515. By a Government cheque? No, formerly by Captain Smith's, and now by Captain Creer's cheque.
516. Not by a public officer's pay cheque through the Marine Board? No.
517. Is that the system which has been adopted during the whole of your time? Yes.
518. Has it come under your observation that the vessel has gone out to sea to take out the pilots without having the captain on board? Yes, several times.
519. Has it occurred repeatedly? Yes.
520. Both in Captain Smith's and in Captain Creer's time? Yes.
521. Have you any idea where Captain Smith has been on those occasions? Sometimes he has been in town, sometimes on shore at Watson's Bay.
522. Is there any particular duty on shore at Watson's Bay which keeps him from the vessel, or is he merely at his own private residence? So far as I know, at his own private residence.
523. You have, I suppose, no knowledge of proveding? Not much.
524. Do you know whether it is an usual thing for the persons from whom provedores buy their provisions to allow them a percentage upon their purchases? I believe it is the practice to allow a discount upon cash purchases.
525. There is a steam-launch in connection with the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
526. She belongs to the vessel? Yes, for the use of the pilots, for carrying them up and down the harbour.
527. Have you noticed her being employed in carrying provisions to the ship? Yes, repeatedly.
528. Are the provisions generally taken in this launch? Yes, it is done at present, and has been for some time.
529. That is an advantage, I suppose, to the person supplying the boat? It must be; for I have known cases where Mr. Davies has had to pay boats for bringing down provisions.
530. He did not have the use of the launch? Not in those cases.
531. During Captain Smith's tenure of office what was his general deportment towards those under his command? My impression was that he did not act altogether in a gentlemanly manner towards those under him.
532. Was he overbearing in his demeanour? He was overbearing, and he took upon himself to interfere too much in my department, that is to say in the working, of course I was subject to his directions.
533. But you as chief engineer were responsible for the working of your own department? Yes, subject to the direction of the master as to keeping up steam and moving the vessel either astern or ahead.
534. Was Captain Smith's manner at all bullying, or was he addicted to the use of bad language? No, he was not addicted to bad language, but he would come and speak about the working of my department, and would interfere in things I was quite sure he knew nothing about.
535. He is still in the Government service, is he not? Yes, I believe he is a harbour pilot.
536. How many officers are there on board the ship? The commander, first and second mates, and two engineers.
537. How many firemen are there? Four.

Mr. E.
Broderick

23 April, 1879

538. Do you know the man Hyatt who just now gave his evidence here? Yes.
539. What sort of character does he bear on board—what is his general character? His general character is very good.
540. Do you consider him a reliable, truthful man? To his duties.
541. Have you ever noticed on any occasion ships coming inside the harbour and getting up as far as Chowder Bay before a pilot was put on board? I have noticed some that have got up nearly as far as that.
542. Many have come inside the Heads before the pilot has been put on board? Yes, quite inside the Heads.
543. Often? Yes, I may say often.
544. Is it not the duty of the pilot to be on board vessels before they come inside the Heads? Yes, I believe it is. There have been one or two occasions when we have put pilots on board vessels inside the Heads because the weather was too bad to allow of them being put on board outside the Heads. The pilot steamer did go out, and the vessels followed her till inside.
545. Have you known the steam-launch to be used for pic-nics and such like purposes? I cannot speak positively as to time and date, but I recollect her being used on one occasion for something of that kind. She went across to some pic-nic.
546. Was Captain Smith in the habit of leaving the ship to go away on private pleasure parties? I have known Captain Smith to be away from the ship, when he has been to the races.
547. We have it in evidence that he has been away from the ship to boat races, horse races, and so on—is that true? I cannot speak positively on that point, but to the best of my belief he has been away from the ship for the purpose of going to such races.
548. Have you heard any complaints from the masters of vessels as to the pilot steamer not having been at her post when she has been required? Not from masters of vessels; it would hardly come under my notice.
549. How many of the crew are there besides officers? Six sailors.
550. Independently of firemen? Yes.
551. Mr. Eckford. How are you supplied with coal? A collier comes alongside and puts them on board direct, excepting one or two occasions.
552. While Captain Smith was in command of the ship did he at one time have the coal taken on shore from the vessel? Yes.
553. Was it at his own cost, or was it coal delivered on board for the use of the ship? It was taken from the coal on board; whether he paid for it I do not know.
554. Did you ever hear that any of pilots got coal from the ship and paid the contract price for it? Yes; I heard that they got the coal and paid for it in that way.
555. You do not know whether Captain Smith paid anything for what he got? No; I had been in the habit of keeping a memorandum of taking tally of the coal, and handing it to Captain Smith, who gave the receipt for it; he did not allow me to sign the receipt, although it is usual for the chief engineer to sign for coals and stores. In this vessel I did at first sign for stores, though not for coals, but lately I did not sign for either, as I was not allowed.
556. Was it part of your duty to give the receipt? I considered it part of my duty as chief engineer to give a receipt, to be initialled afterwards by the captain of course. On some occasions—on many occasions I was going to say—the account of the coal I gave to Captain Smith included the coal that was put on the deck for him; but just before Captain Smith left he would not receive my tally for the coal without I separated the ship's account from his. (Vide Appendix A.)
557. Mr. McElhone. Was that just before this enquiry commenced? I suppose it would have been—somewhere about last December.
558. Was the captain repeatedly—day after day—away from the vessel? Yes. I think I have a memorandum of the time when he was away—three or four days.
559. Have you that with you? I think I have, but I will furnish it to the Committee.*
560. Have you any idea whether he was away on public or on private business? On private business I think; I have no reason to think otherwise.
561. During that time the steamer had to go to sea without him? Yes; we have always to be ready to go to sea.
562. Has the steamer on many occasions gone to sea without him? Yes.
563. By whom was she taken? By the chief mate, and on one or two occasions by the second.
564. Then the captain has a pretty easy time of it? I think we have all a pretty easy time, excepting the monotony.
565. It would not matter whether you had the captain on board or not; and I suppose you could even do without the mates, and take charge of the vessel yourself? I would not like to have to do duty on the bridge.
566. Could not the engineer do the duty? I think it is necessary to have some one on deck; the engineer's duty is down below.
567. You have an assistant engineer? Yes; but we have twelve hours on and twelve hours off.
568. You do not want to be both below? No, not at the same time.
569. You are very often all day with nothing to do? Yes, but we are sometimes out night and day.
570. Still there is very little work to be done by the captain and officers. Yes; there are times when we have not much to do.
571. The captain could be dispensed with and the service performed by the chief and second mate? Yes, twelve hours on and twelve hours off, if the mate did the duty of captain, and we have always two captains on board who are pilots.
572. There are always pilots on board? There are always supposed to be two on board, until one boards a vessel, and then we put back for a second.
573. The pilots are capable, or ought to be capable, of taking this vessel out to sea? Yes, if they are capable of bringing the mail steamers into the harbour.
574. You say there are supposed to be two always on board? Yes.

575.

* ADDED (on revision):—August 16th, 1877.—The Commander left at 6.45 a.m., returned on 18th April, remained on board half-an-hour, then left, and returned same evening.

- Mr. E. Broderick. 575. Are there always two on board? Yes; that is to say, until they take charge of an incoming vessel.
576. Are there always two on board? Sometimes it happens that there are not two.
577. Does it ever happen that you have no pilot on board? No; I could not say that it has.
- 23 April, 1879. 578. You have already stated that when you have been on board other vessels you have been in the habit of giving receipts for coals and stores? Yes.
579. Did Captain Smith take this power from you? Yes; I was not allowed to make out the receipts or sign for the stores in the usual way.
580. So that it was possible that these coals which were going on shore to his house from the ship might have been part of the ship's stores paid for by Government? I could not say; it was possible.
581. You had no means of knowing? No.
582. And this coal was always included in the tally you took until about the end of last year? I believe it was nearly always.
583. But after about December it was kept separate? Yes.
584. What is your opinion about this coal account being kept separate from that time? If I gave an opinion, I should say it was on account of these little things that were going about, and that Captain Smith thought it was better to keep it separate in case he should be called to account about it.
585. You think it looks suspicious that Captain Smith should direct the account to be kept separate after this enquiry had commenced? I should not like to be suspicious, but I thought at the time it seemed strange that he should then alter the practice.
586. Did you ever notice Captain Smith drunk on board? No.
587. Was he very abusive at times to the men and officers? He used to speak very roughly.
588. Was he not very insolent and overbearing? I should say overbearing.
589. And insolent? Overbearing.
590. So much so as to create a good deal of ill will? Yes.
591. And prejudicially to the good working of the ship? I think such conduct must be prejudicial.
592. This steam-launch which belongs to the vessel,—when Captain Smith went upon his private business, or to the races, was it his custom to take her? Yes.
593. So that if any pilot wanted to come off from Watson's Bay to the steamer, he could not do so, and thus through Captain Smith's taking this launch away for his own private pleasure the pilot might be prevented from going to sea, and a vessel might be lost on the coast? I must explain that this launch is more particularly used for taking pilots up to town and putting them on board ships outward bound, and also to bring them back after the steamer has put pilots on board outside the Heads, but the pilots usually come from shore at Watson's Bay, from the rocks, by the "Captain Cook's" boat; the launch is seldom used for that purpose.
594. Chairman.] Do you know a man named Emanuel, employed on board the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
595. Have you seen him engaged in carrying vegetables, coals, and other things on shore for Captain Smith? When I am on board the vessel of course I cannot see what is being done on shore, but I have known him go from the vessel to do things on shore.
596. Did you ever hear that he was sent up to Captain Smith's house to chop wood and to mind the child? I have known him to be sent to Captain Smith's house, in fact I have seen the man in the yard doing things for Captain Smith.
597. If a sailor or fireman on board the vessel was called away by illness in his family, did he lose what is commonly called quarters—was a deduction made from his pay? In the case of sailors it might happen so, but not in the case of firemen. I believe they have always drawn their full pay. Sometimes when one has gone away, he has put another in his place and paid him.
598. Suppose the case of a sailor or fireman asking for permission to go away without putting a man in his place, would his pay be deducted? Not a fireman's.
599. Would a sailor's? I do not know about a sailor's.

Mr. Henry Davies further examined:—

- Mr. H. Davies. 600. Chairman.] You know Mr. Hyatt, a fireman on board the "Captain Cook," who has given his evidence here this morning? I do.
601. He was on board the vessel when you were provedore? Yes.
- 23 April, 1879. 602. Had you and he any quarrel during the time of your provedoring? Yes, several times.
603. Did he complain to you about the food you were supplying him with? No.
604. Was any complaint made on Christmas morning about the food? I think Christmas morning followed the night when I was lying on the Circular Quay watching the provisions all night, because I could not get a boat to take them down, and I think I was rather late.
605. How was it you came to quarrel with this man? Because he was always interfering with the man at the galley, and I told him he had no business there.
606. Had you any other reason? No.
607. Do you recollect bringing Hyatt to my place of business? Yes.
608. You brought him for the purpose of giving evidence before this Committee? Yes.
609. Did you enter into any bargain as to the character of the evidence he should give? Not at all; he said that he would say anything he could in my favour.
610. If any statement has been made that he entered into a bargain with you to do what he could for you if you would do what you could for him, is that true? What could I do for him?
611. Answer my question, yes or no? No.
612. Were you under the impression the morning that you came to me with him, that he was coming to volunteer evidence in favour of your case? Yes.
613. Did he ever say anything to the contrary? No.
614. Did he tell you that he was going to give evidence in your favour? Yes.
615. Did he write a letter to you declining to do so? Yes; and he told me just now outside that if he had been questioned whether they had been asked to come aft and lay a complaint against me, he could not say they were not.
616. Look at that letter (handing a paper to witness): is that the letter Hyatt sent to you? Yes. It was sent to me on the Saturday, but I went away to the Clarence River, and I did not get it until a week or ten days after.

617. Did Hyatt tell you that he had certain data or memoranda that he could lay before this Committee? Yes.
618. Did he tell you what they were like? About things taken out of the ship—stores taken out of the ship and sent on shore to Captain Smith's house.
619. Did you hear Hyatt tell me that he had gone aft to the captain, and laid a complaint against you, against his conscience? Yes.
620. Do you recollect what I said to him when he made that statement? You told him that he ought to be ashamed of himself for standing before you with such a statement.
621. Did I say anything to him about his being believed on his oath? You said, "Who would believe you on your oath when you would do such a thing as that?"

Mr. H.
Davies.

23 April, 1879.

WEDNESDAY, 30 APRIL, 1879.

Present:—

MR. ECKFORD,

MR. McELHONE.

ANGUS CAMERON, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Captain Alexander Coutts examined:—

622. Chairman. What are you? I am one of the outside pilots.
623. In the employment of the Government of New South Wales? Yes.
624. How long have you been in that position? Going on for twelve years—twelve years come the 10th of August.
625. Do you know Captain Smith, late commander of the pilot steamer "Captain Cook"? Yes.
626. How long was he in command of that vessel? Ever since the establishment of the steam pilot service—about five years.
627. Do you recollect the time when under Captain Smith, Mr. Henry Davies was provedore of that vessel? Perfectly well.
628. He supplied you as provedore in common with the other pilots, when you were on duty on board that ship? Yes.
629. What was the impression produced on your mind as to the manner in which he supplied that vessel? There could not be a better man; he found us in everything that we could reasonably wish.
630. So far as you are aware, is that the impression that was left on the minds of the majority on board? Upon every one until the time when Captain Smith took offence himself.
631. Captain Smith afterwards took it in hand himself? Yes.
632. He dismissed Mr. Davies, did he not? He did.
633. Did you ever know for what? I never heard.
634. Have you ever heard at any time of any complaint being made to Captain Smith against Mr. Davies? None whatever—not in my department; none of the pilots had occasion to complain.
635. Who is provedore of the boat now? Captain Creer, as far as I know; he took charge of the vessel after Captain Smith.
636. After Captain Smith had gone? Yes.
637. What is Captain Smith doing now? He is a mud pilot now.
638. What is that? He shifts vessels from their berths in the harbour.
639. Has he not some title as Deputy Harbour Master? I do not know.
640. Do you know what is the salary of the commander of the "Captain Cook"? £400 a year.
641. That is a higher salary than Captain Smith now receives, is it not? Almost double. I think the salary they get in the Harbour Department is about £250 a year.
642. Did not Captain Smith apply to be removed from the one position to the other? Yes, so I was given to understand. I understood that Captain Smith applied for Captain Myhill's situation, hearing that he was going to retire, and did not obtain it. Captain Myhill was Assistant Harbour Master.
643. Did you ever notice during the time that Captain Smith was in command of the "Captain Cook" that he was frequently absent from his duty? Yes.
644. Was it so often as to become marked? Yes.
645. On these occasions was he away on public or on private business? Private.
646. How did you know that? I am perfectly satisfied of it.
647. Pleasuring? Yes.
648. Will you name any special instances? On one occasion he went round to Botany, where there was a regatta.
649. How long was he away—was he away more than one day? Yes; he went round in the "Waratah" steamer; she got aground, and the party had to walk overland.
650. Was Captain Smith absent from his duty very frequently? Very frequently.
651. Can you tell us whether you ever saw him drunk? He can take a nobbler like every one else, but I could not say that I ever saw him that he could not conduct himself properly.
652. Is it the fact that the "Captain Cook" frequently goes outside the Heads to put pilots on board vessels coming in without having the captain on board? Very often—ten times out of twelve.
653. Then the captain is oftener on shore than on board the boat? Yes, a great deal oftener.
654. When the steamer goes out, are there two pilots on board? There are always supposed to be.
655. As a rule are there? Yes.
656. And there is also the chief officer? Yes, and the second officer likewise.
657. Each of you gentlemen who are pilots are capable of navigating that vessel? Yes, and the chief and second mates, both of whom have been masters of steamers.
658. Either of these officers would be capable of taking her out or in? They are supposed to be, having been old masters of steamers.
659. In your opinion, is the position of captain in this vessel at all necessary? I do not believe she requires any captain whatever.

Capt. Coutts

30 April, 1879.

- Capt. Coutts. 660. The fact being that he is oftener off the boat than on board? Yes; for instance, the present captain has not been until yesterday outside the Heads since Sunday week; he has been in Sydney every day since Sunday week until yesterday, when he went outside; so that he was off the vessel for eight or nine days, during which time I have been on board.
- 30 April, 1879. 661. Have you ever noticed a vessel get a considerable way up the harbour before she was boarded by a pilot? I have.
662. Has that frequently happened? Not very.
663. Can you give any instances? I remember one instance where one of the Eastern Mail boats—I think the “Somerset”—got up as far as Chowder Bay.
664. How long since did that take place? Perhaps eighteen months ago.
665. That was during Captain Smith’s time? Yes; he was not on board the steamer on that occasion.
666. Is there not a steam-launch in connection with the “Captain Cook”? Yes.
667. Is not the steam-launch kept for the purpose of bringing the pilots up to town, putting them on board vessels going out, and for taking them back? I understood so when the boat was sent down.
668. What is she used for now? All sorts of purposes; and cannot be had very often when she is required by the Pilots’ Service, because she is away on private business.
669. Private business for whom? The captain generally.
670. Who is provodore of the vessel now? I believe Captain Creer is; he has succeeded to Captain Smith.
671. Does this launch bring provisions down to the “Captain Cook”? Invariably.
672. Do you know whether it is the fact that persons buying provisions as provedores are allowed a discount on their monthly, bi-monthly, or quarterly payments? I believe it is generally done, but I do not know about provedoring.
673. Is the vessel as well provided now as it was when Mr. Davies was on board? I cannot complain now, but it was very bad when Captain Smith left, and for a month afterwards.
674. Do you not think it is objectionable that Captain Creer should act as provedore? I do not think it is a right thing.
675. Is it usual on board vessels for captains to act as provedores? Not in any that I have been on, and I have commanded twenty vessels.
676. Is it not the fact that in the various Steam Companies that have their head-quarters in Sydney the captains do not provedore their ships? I believe in one or two small Companies they do.
677. You say this steam-launch is frequently or invariably used for the purpose of bringing stores to the ship? Yes.
678. Have you known her to be taken away for pleasure excursions? Yes.
679. Often? I have known two occasions.
680. Do you know any of the firemen or seamen on board the ship? No; no more than to bid them “good morning.”
681. Do you know any of them by name? Yes.
682. Do you know Emanuel? Yes; he has been in the “Thetis” and on this boat ever since the service commenced.
683. Have you ever noticed this Emanuel or any other man employed in the vessel being sent on shore to Captain Smith’s house, or to Captain Creer’s, to chop wood, carry coals, nurse the children, or do any other work? Yes; that Emanuel is a pet with both the captains.
684. Have you ever seen coal taken off the ship to go to Captain Smith’s house? Yes, many times. I have seen many nice pieces put aside in a bag for him.
685. Is it the fact that the pilots also get their coals in that way? I have heard of only one. When Captain Smith sent coals to his own house, half went to Captain Creer, the present master, and I believe Captain Cork has a portion sent to him out of a boat-load.
686. Did you ever get any? Never.
687. Was any tally kept of this coal? I do not know—I always kept on the quarter-deck; but I believe it was the duty of the second engineer to take tally of the coal—it belongs to his department.
688. Mr. McElhone.] What was Captain Creer before he got into his present position? Junior pilot.
689. Chairman.] Has he been promoted over the heads of the other pilots to his present position? Yes.
690. It is looked upon as promotion I suppose? Yes; he gets £50 a year more than we.
691. And he has not been over five years in the service? About five years; he was the last pilot appointed to the service.
692. How often have you seen these coals go on shore? I cannot say—very often, nearly every time they took in coals on board the steamer.
693. Have you any idea when the men on board the “Captain Cook” are paid—weekly, fortnightly, or monthly? Monthly.
694. Have you ever seen them paid? I have seen them get a cheque from Captain Smith—his own private cheque.
695. Is that the usual practice? I do not think so under Government. We always get our cheque from Captain Hixson.
696. Suppose one of these men were away from the ship with toothache or anything else from six to eight days—would he, as it is termed, “lose his quarters”—would it be deducted from his pay? I think not in this service, if they are on the sick list.
697. Suppose a man wanted to go away to a wedding? He would have to ask leave of absence from Captain Hixson.
698. The men, you say, are invariably paid by the captain with his private cheque? Yes; he pays the whole of them, with the exception of the pilots.
699. Mr. Eckford.] How was Captain Creer employed before he was appointed a pilot? He was in the “Platypus.”
700. Do you know what position Captain Smith occupies now—whether he is above or under Captain Pettit? That I could not say. He may have been put over Captain Pettit’s head as Captain Creer was put over ours; but I know these things are kept quiet.
701. Mr. McElhone.] You are an old ship captain? Yes.
702. How long have you sailed out of the port of Sydney? I have been sailing as master of a ship out of Sydney since 1854, and I was mate before that in Sydney. I came here in command in 1854.

703. Since 1854 you have of course had a large experience as master of a vessel? Yes, I have; I consider I have seen as much of the world as most. Capt. Coutts.
30 April, 1879.

704. You said just now that Captain Smith had been away from the ship repeatedly, for days together: have you known him to be away for three or four days together? The week when he was away at Botany he was on board only twice, and then he did not stay above three-quarters of an hour altogether; he merely came on board, asked a few questions, and sat down upon the skylight.

705. You say Captain Creer is also often away? Yes. As I have already stated, he was not on board the vessel from Sunday week until yesterday, to take her out.

706. As an old master of a vessel, if you were the master of the "Captain Cook," would you not deem it to be your duty to be on board every day? Certainly. What is the good of a master if he is not on board?

707. If you were the master of that vessel, you would feel it to be your duty to be on board and to take her out to sea every time she went? Yes.

708. In private employ you would be compelled to do so? Yes, undoubtedly.

709. Do you not think the same rule should be applied in Government as in private service? Yes, unless he had duty up in Sydney. I do not see what is the use of having a captain at all if he is to be always on shore.

710. There is a chief officer on board besides the captain? Yes, and a second officer.

711. Do you think from the way in which Captain Smith and Captain Creer carried out their duties it was necessary to have a captain at all? I do not.

712. You are satisfied, from your experience as a sea captain, that the chief and second officers would be sufficient? That is all the service there requires, as there are besides two pilots on board.

713. The chief officer of that vessel ought to be able to take a steam-vessel out or in? Yes; they are both, chief and second, old commanders of steam-vessels.

714. Without reference to the present officers, any chief or second mate ought to be qualified to take that vessel out or in? I do not think any mate would be capable; he ought to be a man who knows what a steamer is.

715. From your experience you say that Captain Smith neglected his duty? He neglected a good deal of it.

716. Do you know whether, when he went away as you have described, he had leave of absence from the Marine Board? That I cannot say.

717. Captain Creer is not much more on board the ship than Captain Smith was? No; he told them that Captain Smith had done very well, and he was going to follow in his steps.

718. He was a junior pilot? Yes.

719. How long have you been a pilot? Twelve years.

720. And he has been about five? About five.

721. Is he a man of any great ability, and for that reason has he been put over your heads? Not that I consider, in any respect whatever.

722. You do not know why he was promoted—whether from any political favouritism? I have a rough guess. His brother-in-law is a member of the Board, Mr. McLean, and he is the bitterest enemy I have got.

723. And you think you have been unfairly treated by this man having been promoted over the heads of older pilots? We all think so; we none of us had a chance of getting it.

724. His brother is a very influential man, is he not—the master of a steamer? He was, but he is now at the Clarence.

725. You do not drink much? I do not now—I have in former days.

726. Are the other pilots sober men? Yes, they are sober enough; they take their nobblers of course.

727. This promotion has been a cause of complaint, and has created a soreness among the pilots that this junior should have been promoted over them? Of course it does not make things go on very pleasantly.

728. As a matter of fact, if you owned that vessel would you not compel the captain to be on board every time she went outside the Heads? Certainly.

729. If he left her and went away on his pleasure you would dismiss him? Certainly.

730. Do you not think the captain of a Government vessel ought to be made to do his duty, as he would have to do on board a private vessel? Yes, certainly.

731. You said just now that after Captain Smith became provedore he provisioned the ship very badly? Yes.

732. And that for the first month after Captain Creer got the ship he did the same? Yes, he said he had hardly got things properly into his hand in that time.

733. He took the money for it I suppose? Yes.

734. I understood you to say that Captain Smith and Captain Creer continually got big lumps of coal sent from the steamer to their houses? Yes, they went from one house to the other.

735. Was that Government property? Yes, they were coals taken from the vessel.

736. You do not know whether they were paid for or not? No.

737. You said you saw a man named Emanuel kept about the houses, and employed in chopping wood, carrying coals, nursing children, and doing other work? Yes.

738. Was this man paid by the Government? Yes, he was a sailor on board.

739. Do you think it was a proper thing for this man, being paid by the Government, to be employed in this way? No.

740. If you were captain would you allow it? No, I would rather pay for any such labour if I required it.

741. Do you think it was dishonest of Captain Smith and Captain Creer to employ this man? Yes, I think so. I do not think they had any right to do such a thing.

742. You have no cause of ill-feeling against Captain Smith or Captain Creer—no personal enmity in any way, beyond feeling sore that Captain Creer should have been promoted over your head? No.

743. Chairman. Have you ever noticed this launch being employed for bringing private residents at Watson's Bay backwards and forwards? Yes, when they have lost their passages by the steamer. The launch has been used for all purposes.

744. Is she often used to bring the pilots to town to board vessels? That is what she was built for.

745. Is it the fact that sometimes the pilots have to be pulled up in a boat to be put on board vessels when the pilot launch has been away? Yes, many times I have had to go in a ferry-boat to board ships when the launch has been away.

- Capt. Coutts. 746. Have you any idea whether the launch was away on those occasions for private purposes? She was away for some other purpose, I cannot say whether public or private.
- 30 April, 1879. 747. Chairman.] Did you hear anything while Mr. Davies was provedore about Captain Smith discounting so much from his monthly cheque? I have heard it.
748. What did you hear? That he took somewhere about £8 from Mr. Davies.
749. Did you ever hear about Captain Smith demanding that Mr. Davies should supply his house with provisions? I have heard so—Mr. Davies himself told me.
750. Mr. McElhone.] Were you often put to inconvenience by the steam-launch being away? I have been often, and I got myself into trouble for reporting it.
751. How do you mean that you got into trouble for reporting it? I had words with the captain about it, and he reported it to the Marine Board about a month ago. I had to go before the Board for insubordination.
752. But Captain Creer is not your superior officer? I told the Board so, and said I had never seen him gazetted as master of the vessel; and that even if he had been he has no control over us.
753. Since Captain Creer has been the master, have you had as much inconvenience as when Captain Smith was in command? Just about the same. I had some words with Captain Creer upon the point; he went to Chowder Bay upon some picnic excursion with the launch, and delayed me when I wanted to board a vessel, and he reported me to the Board.
754. What was said to you by the Marine Board? They said I was insubordinate.
755. Chairman.] It was merely a verbal censure—they did not censure you in writing? No, they sent to me to appear before them, and I went. When they said I was insubordinate, I told them I did not consider that I was under the control of the captain—that we were only passengers on board.
756. Mr. McElhone.] What was the end of it? The case was dismissed.
757. Is it the fact that the pilots are often put to inconvenience in the discharge of their duties by the steam-launch being taken away by the captain for his private purposes? Yes.
758. And this launch was intended by the Government expressly for the use of the pilots? Yes.
759. Do you think it was right that this launch should be taken away by the captain for his own private purposes? Certainly not; she ought to be kept for the purpose for which she was built.
760. Mr. Eckford.] Do you know what countryman this Emanuel is? A Portuguese.
761. Do you recollect, or did you ever hear, that an Englishman or Irishman, or some British subject, made application to Captain Smith for employment on board this vessel, and was refused, because Captain Smith was waiting for another Portuguese to come to him from Melbourne? Yes. He was a cousin to this Emanuel.
762. A British subject was refused employment because Captain Smith was waiting for a Portuguese to come over from Melbourne? There was a Portuguese came on board to supply the place, and he is there now; but I do not know whether he is this man's cousin or not.
763. Is the other Portuguese doing the nursing and shopping business? No; this Emanuel is the pet.
764. Is Emanuel with Captain Creer now? Yes. He was lately, for two or three days, engaged in painting Captain Creer's house.
765. Is Captain Creer's house public or private property? His private property.
766. Was the paint taken out of the ship? I could not say. There was some paint taken out of the ship, but I do not know where it went to.
767. How much went? I cannot say how much.
768. Was it half a hundredweight? I do not know.
769. Chairman.] How many pilots are there now? Five. There were six before Captain Creer went on board.
770. Is five enough? No. We have applied to the Marine Board for a sixth.
771. Now that Captain Creer is withdrawn, have you only five? No, they made the chief officer of the "Captain Cook" a pilot, and the second officer they made chief, so that there are still five.
772. Mr. Eckford.] What is the period of service of the oldest pilot? Captain Cork and I were appointed together—in fact, I was a week on duty before Captain Cork.

Mr. James Blackadder examined:—

- Mr. J. Blackadder. 773. Chairman.] What are you? Engineer of the "Thetis," Government steamship.
- 30 April, 1879. 774. Were you at one time employed on board the "Captain Cook"? No, but the "Thetis," for fifteen months performed the duty of the "Captain Cook."
775. Who commanded her at that time? Captain Smith.
776. You were on board her all this time? From the 15th November, 1865, until 1866—some time in February, I think.
777. Was Captain Smith always on board when you went to sea? Not always.
778. Was he often away? He was never twenty-four hours at one time out of the ship to my knowledge.
779. Have you ever had occasion to go to sea to put a pilot on board a vessel without having Captain Smith with you? Yes, occasionally with the chief officer.
780. Was it the rule or the exception? It was the exception.
781. Besides Captain Smith, you had on board the chief and second officer, had you not? Yes.
782. And you generally took out two pilots at a time? Yes.
783. All these men are capable of navigating that vessel, are they not? I should think so.
784. In your opinion, does the vessel require all these navigators? I should think some of them would be required to bring the vessel back again after leaving the pilots outside.
785. How many men have you under you on board the "Thetis"? While I was in the pilot service there was myself, the second engineer, and four firemen.
786. What was your impression as to the manner in which Captain Smith conducted himself towards his subordinates? I never had any fault to find with him,—he and I got on remarkably well. I consider that he did the duty well while I was with him.
787. Mr. McElhone.] You say that the steamer went out on many occasions without having Captain Smith on board? On a few occasions, in exceptional cases, we went out without him.

788. Do you think the captain could do his duty properly by allowing the ship to go to sea without being on board himself? I should think the chief officer could take the command in his absence.
789. How long have you been connected with steamships as engineer? About twenty years.
790. In what service before you entered the Government? In intercolonial steamers.
791. Did you ever know any of those ships going to sea without the captain being on board? I have known them to go to sea with the chief officer.
792. He was acting as captain? Yes.
793. The captain would be ill in such cases; still he would be the captain. Was Captain Smith sick during the time the vessel went out without him? No; he had leave occasionally while the mate was acting, I believe.
794. Do you think it was a proper thing for Captain Smith to be in Sydney while the vessel went out to put pilots on board incoming ships? I have been on shore on several occasions, and the ship went without me; it was left with the second engineer.
795. Do you mean that it is a proper thing for the captain to be away pleasuring for a day or days together when his vessel is going out to sea? No, it is not.
796. It would be the more proper place for him on board ship rather than stopping in Sydney? Yes.
797. If this were a vessel of your own, you would expect him to be on board ship when she was going out to sea? I should expect him to get leave occasionally.
798. How often—twice a week? No, we have not that leave; the second engineer is on board when I am away.
799. I am asking you about the captain—How often is the captain of a coasting steamer allowed leave of absence, as a rule? Very seldom.
800. It is a rosy billet, under Government? Yes, pretty well; but if the captain or engineer of this vessel were to be confined the whole twenty-four hours every day in the week without being allowed to go ashore he would be better off in private service, because he could then leave his ship when she was in harbour.
801. Is it not the fact that Captain Smith had particular facilities for getting away from his vessel that captains of private vessels have not? Yes, he had facilities for going on shore if he pleased.
802. If we have it in evidence that Captain Smith was repeatedly in the habit of leaving his vessel, and allowing her to go to sea without him for days and days together—is that true? Not in my time.
803. If we have evidence to that effect, it is not true? Not during my time on board the "Thetis."
804. How many men have you under you now? Two firemen, doing twelve hours duty a day.
805. These men get their wages once a month? Yes.
806. Who commands the "Thetis" now? Captain Hutton.
807. How are these men paid—by cheque? No, by cash.
808. Who pays them? Mr. Laing, the master of the dredge.
809. Did that rule obtain when Captain Smith was on board the "Thetis"? No.
810. How were they paid then? By cheque.
811. Whose cheque? Captain Smith's.
812. Are the men in the habit of having broken time? They have on board the "Thetis."
813. There is such a thing as losing a day? Yes.
814. When the men are not on duty a deduction is made from their pay? Yes.
815. So far as your knowledge of the Government Service extends, does that rule apply to all the dredges and boats? It applies to the dredges I believe.
816. Who provedores your vessel? We have no provedore—we find ourselves.
817. When Captain Smith was on board the "Thetis" who provedored her? Mr. Clayton.
818. He is a butcher in Sydney, is he not? Yes.
819. Have you been on board many coast-going steamers here? Yes, several.
820. Are they generally supplied by a provedore outside? Always.
821. Did you ever know the captain to do the provedoring? Several captains of the A.S.N. Company did, but it is a good many years since I was on one of their ships.
822. You are pretty much down at Watson's Bay, are you not? Yes, we were working there until about six months ago.
823. Do you not bring up there at night now? No, we are working up the harbour.
824. Did you ever notice the steam-launch in connection with the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
825. What is she supposed to be used for? For taking up pilots to take vessels out to sea, and to bring them back from vessels.
826. Have you ever noticed her to be used for any other purposes? No.

Mr. J.
Blackadder.

30 April, 1879.

THURSDAY, 8 MAY, 1879.

Present:—

MR. ECKFORD, | MR. McELHONE.
ANGUS CAMERON, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Captain Andrew William Jack examined:—

827. Chairman. You are a pilot? Yes.
828. Employed under the Government of New South Wales? Yes.
829. How long have you filled that position? About eight years and a half.
830. You have been frequently on board the pilot steamer "Captain Cook"? I have.
831. Both during the time when Captain Smith and when Captain Creer commanded that vessel? Yes.
832. Do you remember the time when Mr. Henry Davies had the provedoring of that vessel? Yes.
833. In what manner did Mr. Davies carry out his contract? Very satisfactorily.
834. Better than it had been before? Yes, I think it was.
835. Who has acted as provedore to the ship since Mr. Davies? Captain Smith and Captain Creer.

Capt. Jack.
8 May, 1879.

836.

- Capt. Jack. 836. Has it been as well done since? No.
- 8 May, 1879. 837. Do you know for what reason Mr. Davies was dismissed from his position as provedore? No, I do not.
838. The "Captain Cook" is supposed to take pilots out to sea to put them on board incoming vessels? Yes.
839. Besides the captain there is a chief and second officer on board, is there not? Yes.
840. Have you ever seen the vessel go out to sea without having the captain on board? Times out of number.
841. Very often then? Yes, very often.
842. Was the captain engaged on any other public duties at these times do you know? No, he was not; he might have been sometimes.
843. Where was he then? He might have been away at his own house, or at Sydney.
844. Does that state of affairs exist at the present time? It does. With the exception of perhaps a periodical call, our present captain has been for a week lately without going outside of the Heads.
845. That has been the case both with Captain Smith and Captain Creer? Yes, but I speak more with regard to the last week or two.
846. It has been a matter of frequent occurrence? Yes, since the time the "Cook" has been the "Cook."
847. From the time the ship started? Yes.
848. Have you ever seen the men paid on board the "Captain Cook," the seamen and firemen? Yes, but I have never been at the table when they have been paid.
849. Do you know in what way they have been paid? By cheque.
850. By whose cheque? I saw Captain Creer's cheque only on Monday last, I think, or on one day this week.
851. Do you know a man on board that ship named Emanuel? Yes.
852. Have you ever seen him employed on shore on other duties than those of seamanship? I have not actually seen him, but I have known him to be there.
853. To be where? At Captain Smith's house.
854. What was he doing there? Scrubbing the kitchen.
855. Cutting firewood? Yes.
856. Did that occur frequently? Yes, once a week, or more.
857. Have you seen coal taken from the ship on shore? Yes, and I made a complaint to the Marine Board when the ship went out to sea with only one boat because the other was employed in landing coals on shore.
858. Was this boat one belonging to the ship? Yes.
859. And did the men employed on her belong to the ship? Yes, they belonged to the "Captain Cook." I complained to the Marine Board of it on account of the risk I thought we ran in going to sea with only one boat, but no notice was taken of my letter beyond acknowledging its receipt.
860. How long is it since you made that complaint? I forget, without reference.
861. Is it twelve months? It must be about twelve months.
862. It may be more or less? It may be more or less.
863. No notice was taken of your complaint? No, they only acknowledged my letter.
864. They did not deal with the complaint contained in it? No.
865. Did the carrying of coals ashore go on after that? Yes, and only the other day it was done.
866. It is being done now? Yes, when required. It is not so frequent now—it would not do.
867. Do you know whether any account was ever kept of this coal? There is a tally kept by the engineer.
868. Of the coal that goes on shore? I do not know about that; I only know that the engineer keeps tally.
869. The engineer keeps tally of all the coal that is put on board the ship? Yes.
870. Do you know if he keeps tally of all that goes ashore to the private residence of the captain or of other persons? No.
871. Besides the captain, the chief and second officer, there are two pilots on board the "Captain Cook" when she goes out to sea, are there not? Yes, generally, unless one happens to be put on board a vessel, and there is not time to receive another before a second vessel is coming in.
872. Are both the chief and second officers capable of taking charge of the vessel to bring her into harbour? Yes; they are both old shipmasters.
873. And the pilots themselves? Yes, they are old shipmasters. I have myself held a certificate from the Board of Trade, London, since 1857, as a competent master.
874. There is a steam-launch connected with this vessel, is there not? Yes.
875. What is she supposed to be for? For taking pilots up the harbour and putting them on board ships outwards, and also for bringing pilots back after they have taken up vessels from sea.
876. Is she ever used for other purposes? For all kinds of purposes—for more other than for the purpose of the pilots.
877. Is she ever wanted for the purpose of bringing pilots to town when she is away for other purposes? She has been.
878. Where has she been on such occasions? Away in town.
879. Does she bring the provedore supplies to the ship now? Every evening.
880. Have you ever seen her used for picnic parties or anything of that sort? I have known her to be sent to town to bring Captain Smith from the opera at 11 o'clock at night, and to take Mrs. Smith to a picnic and bring her back in the evening.
881. Did you ever know her to be used for the purpose of carrying any of the residents of Watson's Bay to town or back? Not specially.
882. Do you know the schoolmaster at Watson's Bay? Yes.
883. Have you ever seen him carried in her? Yes; but I have seen him or other persons taken when they have missed the ordinary ferry either there or in Sydney.
884. Did you ever hear any complaints about Captain Smith's demeanour to the officers or people under his command? I have.
885. Of what nature? The most doggish nature. I had occasion to bring it before the Marine Board.
886. Did you receive any acknowledgment of that complaint? Yes—that my letter was insubordinate and quite uncalled for.

Capt. Jack.
8 May, 1879.

887. What position does Captain Smith hold now? Harbour Master's Assistant.
888. He has a smaller salary now than he received as master of the "Captain Cook," has he not? Yes.
889. On Captain Smith's retirement, Captain Creer was appointed? Yes.
890. Is he the oldest pilot in the service? No, he is the youngest; he is three years my junior.
891. Mr. Eckford.] I understood you to say just now that the engineer took tally of all the coal that came on board? Yes.
892. I presume it is his duty to do so? Yes.
893. If Captain Smith kept the tally of the stores, and received the coals and everything else that went on board the "Captain Cook," was he discharging his duty, or encroaching upon the duty of the engineer? I have been a great deal on board steamers, and I consider that Captain Smith exceeded his duty in a certain way, because in all sea-going steamers, so far as my experience goes, it is the duty of every department to receive their own stores, to keep tally, to sign for them, and then to take the account to the master, who signs for them upon the faith of the signature of the officers under him. If they had not signed he would not do so; but Captain Smith signed for everything, whether he saw it signed for by the officer or not.
894. Then it was no part of Captain Smith's duty to sign for coals and other stores? Not until after he had got the signature from the engineer. That is the way I have seen the business conducted on board the steamers where I have been, and I have been in the P. and O., the Panama, and other Companies' steamers.
895. Chairman.] Have you ever seen ships come up the harbour without a pilot having been put on board? I have seen ships enter the harbour without a pilot being put on board.
896. Often? Not very often.
897. How far have they come up—inside the Sow and Pigs? Yes; above that. I boarded one the other day—the "Chimborazo." It was rather foggy at the time.*
898. Mr. Eckford.] Do you remember Captain Smith refusing to employ a British subject who applied to him to fill a vacancy on board? I do remember during Captain Smith's time that a vacancy was kept open for ten or twelve days before it was filled. It was kept open to get Emanuel's cousin on board the ship.
899. Was Emanuel's cousin at Melbourne at the time? Yes, I believe he was.
900. Mr. McElhone.] You are an old shipmaster? Yes, I hold a certificate from the Board of Trade, London, which no other pilot in the service does.
901. How long has Captain Creer been appointed? Since the 1st February last.
902. He is the youngest pilot? He is three years my junior.
903. You have already stated that Captain Smith was frequently away from his duty? Yes.
904. Have you any means of knowing whether he was performing any duty when he was away on shore? No.
905. Do you know as a fact that he has been away on the spree, pleasuring? Yes, I do.
906. You have already stated that Captain Creer has been away from the ship for a week at a time when she has gone to sea? Yes, he has not been out in her for a week within the last fortnight; for eight days he never went out.
907. Prior to the last fortnight was it the same? He seems to go out just when he likes, as though it did not matter whether he went or not.
908. You say the chief and second officers have been shipmasters? Yes, very old shipmasters.
909. Do you consider it necessary for the pilot steamer to have on board a captain, chief and second officers, to take her out and bring her inside the Heads? I do not.
910. Do you think one officer would be sufficient? One would be quite sufficient.
911. Whether he were captain, chief or second officer, so long as he was a competent shipmaster? I think the chief officer might have the command, with the prospect of being promoted to the position of pilot when a vacancy occurred.
912. Will you state how you think a single officer could carry out the work? There are always two pilots on board night and day, and the pilots could take the vessel out and be responsible for her whilst underway, and the chief officer could take charge of her when they left and bring her in again, take care of her when in port, keep her clean, and receive the stores. He might require an assistant on deck, who need not be an officer but a boatswain.
913. You think the vessel could be worked as efficiently as at present with one officer, and that thus there would be a great saving to the public? I do.
914. Have you any knowledge what Captain Creer has been doing when he has been away from the ship for eight days? He can take the steam-launch and go away where he likes.
915. That launch was bought for the special purpose of putting pilots on board ships in the harbour outward bound, and of bringing them off from the ships after they had been taken up the harbour? Yes.
916. Have you ever known the pilots to be delayed in boarding ships in consequence of the steam-launch being away? Yes.
917. Have you ever been on board ship and not able to get back to the "Captain Cook" because the launch has been away? Yes, sometimes.
918. Have you ever been obliged to take a ferry boat to be put on board a vessel because the steam-launch has been away? No, I cannot say I have, but Captain Creer has taken a ship out himself because I have not been able to get up.
919. Where has the launch been then? It has been with Captain Creer at Sydney.
920. I understand you to say that Captain Creer now supplies the ship as provedore? Yes, he does.
921. Do I understand you to say that Captain Creer employs this launch every day to bring down supplies to the vessel? Yes, every day.
922. Is that part of the duty for which she was built? I do not think it was, for it was made a compliment to Mr. Davies to allow him the use of the launch.
923. Mr. Davies could not get this launch for the same purpose? Only when he got the captain's permission.
924. Do you think it is right that Captain Creer should take this launch, which was built for the use of the pilots, to and fro as provedore to bring down provisions to the vessel? Not at all.

925.

*NOTE (on revision):—The s.s. "Chimborazo" was boarded between the Heads, but it was foggy at the time.

- Capt. Jack. 925. You say Captain Smith as well as Captain Creer was often away from the ship for days together? Yes, he would be away, but would perhaps come on board for an hour or so.
- 8 May, 1879. 926. As an old ship captain you are of opinion that a captain is not necessary on board this vessel? No, for there is the chief officer, who is an old shipmaster.
927. Were you ever allowed to act in this way when you were a captain in private employ? Certainly not.
928. What would have been the result if you had acted in such a way? I should have been dismissed.
929. If you were the owner of the "Captain Cook," and the captain went away for a week at a time, and allowed her to go to sea without him, would you not dismiss him? I should, unless he were a very good man, and his services were worth more to me than his dismissal would be.
930. Did you ever notice Captain Smith or Captain Creer to be the worse for liquor during working hours? No, I cannot say I have ever noticed it.
931. You say you had reason to write to the Marine Board with reference to some cause of complaint—what was the result of that? We were sent outside to board a ship, but though there were two boats belonging to the "Captain Cook," one of these was away, and we had only one with us. I considered that it was not safe to go outside with only one boat, and I wrote to the Board complaining of it.
932. And you got snubbed for your trouble? Yes.
933. So much so that you do not care to make further complaints? All you get from the Marine Board is, either that your conduct is insubordinate, or that your letter has been received.*
934. Has Captain Creer any extraordinary ability that he should have been promoted over the heads of pilots who had been longer in the service than himself? I do not see that he has myself.
935. Chairman.] Has he any relatives on the Marine Board? Yes, his brother-in-law, Mr. McLean.
936. Mr. McElhone.] You say that you have seen a man from the ship doing work for the captain on shore? Yes, for both Captain Smith and Captain Creer.
937. Chopping wood? Yes.
938. Nursing the children? Yes.
939. Is that part of the work for which Government pays these men? No, certainly not. Many days he has been on shore when the vessel has been away.
940. Has any other man been employed by Captain Smith or Captain Creer? No; except in carrying up coals to the house from the ship.
941. The ship's crew? Yes.
942. Is Emanuel employed in this sort of work by Captain Creer? I have not seen so much of late. The way that Captain Creer has been put into this berth is this,—that Captain Smith has the opportunity of going to the houses of two members of the Marine Board, and he has told them that Creer was the only one of the pilots that was suitable. He assisted him into the position. When I found the situation was going to be vacant I sent in an application to the Marine Board, and the reply I got was that Captain Creer was appointed in consequence of having been in command of a small coasting steamer. But the other four or five pilots are supposed to be capable of taking charge of anything, from an ironclad to a small fishing-boat.
943. A man might be capable of bringing a small yacht into the harbour, and yet quite incapable of handling a large vessel? Yes.
944. Mr. Eckford.] Has Captain Smith any relative on the Marine Board? He has no relatives, but it seems to me that he is admitted to one or two of the members of the Marine Board at any time.
945. Does not Mr. McLean live at Balmain? Yes, and Captain Smith and Mrs. Smith visit there, and at Captain Bloomfield's.
946. Do you consider that when a pilot sets his foot on board the pilot vessel "Captain Cook" he is sufficient to take charge of her, and to go out to sea with one officer on board? I do, if the thing were properly organized.
947. You do not think it necessary there should be a first and second officer? Not a second officer.
948. You think he could be dispensed with? I do, but I think there should be one leading man about the decks—a leading seaman, who could be called the boatswain.
949. The chief mate, after putting the pilots on board vessels outside, would be quite sufficient to bring in the "Captain Cook" and to have charge of her? Yes.
950. Mr. McElhone.] Has there been any disorganization among the crew in consequence of the captain having been away from the ship so much? I cannot say there has been any disorganization among them, but there has been some jealousy.
951. Such treatment of the men is likely to lead to the disorganization of the crew, and to the bad working of the ship? Yes.
952. Particularly when they have been badly treated, as in the case of Captain Smith? Yes.
953. How does Captain Creer treat the men? He does not treat them so badly—indeed I believe he tries to make them think he is everything that is good, but I do not see it.
954. Does Captain Creer provide the ship as well as Mr. Davies did? No, he does not.
955. Does he give inferior articles? I do not say that.
956. They are not put on the table as they used to be by Mr. Davies—not so well cooked? No.
957. Is that likely to cause dissatisfaction among the crew? Yes.
958. And they are not so satisfied with Captain Creer's providing as they were with Mr. Davies'? No.

Captain Joseph Creer examined:—

- Capt. Creer. 959. Chairman.] You are master of the pilot steamer "Captain Cook"? Yes.
- 8 May, 1879. 960. How long have you occupied that position? Since the 1st January of the present year.
961. Previous to that, what were you? A pilot.
962. How long did you fill that position? Five years last November.
963. You know the other pilots? Well.
964. Captains Jack, Cork, and Coutts? Yes, and Christison.
965. Captain Christison has been recently appointed? No, he has been much longer in the service than I have been.
966. You were the junior pilot, were you not? Yes.

967.

* NOTE (on revision):—That your letter is unsatisfactory, or that your letter has been received.

967. You were frequently on board the "Captain Cook" before you were appointed to the command? Capt. Creer.
Yes, as pilot.
968. Do you recollect the boat being provedored by a person named Davies? Yes.
969. He supplied you in common with the other pilots? Yes.
970. Did he give satisfaction to the pilots who were there, as to the manner in which he performed his duties? Well, I cannot say it was quite satisfactory.
971. He was dismissed? Yes, I believe so. I will not be too positive about it, but he left the ship.
972. You are not aware for what reason? I cannot say; I never took particular notice.
973. Who took the provedoring of the ship after he was gone? Captain Smith, I think.
974. Did he do it better than Mr. Davies? Yes, he did.
975. Who provedores the ship now? I get the name of it; but I should like to mention here that all the stores for the ship are ordered and the bills are paid by me, and if there is any surplus it is divided among the ship's company.
976. All the stores ordered for the ship you say: who orders them? I do. I find out from the steward what things are required, and I order them.
977. To whom do you give your orders—say for your meat? To Claydon, where I think I get it cheapest and best.
978. How often do you discharge his bill? Once a month.
979. The men pay so much a month, do they not? Yes.
980. And the pilots also? The Government provides for the pilots.
981. But the men pay a certain proportion out of their wages for all the provisions they have on board the ship? Yes.
982. Mr. Claydon is paid once a month by you? Yes.
983. He sends his bill to you? He sends his bill to me.
984. Does he allow any discount? Yes.
985. What are his discounts? I have got 5 per cent. from him.
986. Give me an idea, roughly, of the amount of his monthly bill? About £16 or £17.
987. How many are there on board, independently of yourself? Six seamen, four firemen, two engineers, two officers, two pilots, cook and steward, and myself.
988. Nineteen in all? Yes.
989. When did you pay Mr. Claydon his last bill? I generally manage it about the end of the month, or a couple of days after, the second or third.
990. After you paid his last bill had you anything to divide among the men in the way of surplus? I was £1 3s. in debt, and £1 16s. the month previous to that; but I wish you to understand distinctly that the men do not share in the commission; that I consider to be my perquisite, from the fact of my running about to collect and pay the bills. It does not pay for the trouble.
991. Then I suppose you would rather be relieved of the duty? Well, I would.
992. You are not compelled to do it, are you? I am doing it for the benefit of all concerned. I am simply following in Captain Smith's footsteps—doing the best I can for all.
993. Including the meat and all other stores requisite for provedoring the ship, what do the monthly bills amount to? Somewhere about £50.
994. You get a percentage upon all your pay? Not upon all.
995. How many persons do you receive a percentage from? From two—Mr. Claydon and Mr. Bird.
996. Is Mr. Bird a wholesale grocer? A ship's chandler.
997. Are the stores you provide limited only to eatables? Yes.
998. Have you at any time since your appointment had any surplus to divide among the crew? I did divide on one occasion £1 16s.—I think, to the best of my knowledge, a month or two ago.
999. That was divided equally among the crew? Yes. I wish you to understand also that I have increased the wages of the steward since I have been in command.
1000. How is the steward paid? £9 is allowed for cook and steward. Out of that I have had to pay £7 to the cook, and £4 10s. to the steward.
1001. Who allows this £9? The Government.
1002. There is no compulsion on you to pay more than is allowed? The money deducted from the pay of the crew for provisions—£2 a month—helps me to meet this, and to pay the bills. There is only £25 a month allowed for the officers and pilots, and £2 each from the seamen and firemen amounts to £20 in addition to this £25.
1003. Has the scale been reduced lately? Which scale?
1004. The scale of allowance for provedoring the officers and pilots? No, there has been no change.
1005. Was not 18s. a week formerly allowed for the pilots? Yes; that is the amount we now receive.
1006. And £2 10s. a month for the men? No, £2; that is all I get from the men. I think during Mr. Davies's time he used to get more from the men, but since Captain Smith has had it he has deducted only £2 a month.
1007. Was it left to the option of the provedore to take what he liked? No, it was a different affair with Mr. Davies. What I have done is what Captain Smith did before me.
1008. What is the ordinary amount per month? £2.
1009. You have a steam-launch, have you not, in connection with the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
1010. Is she for the purpose of bringing pilots to town and putting them on board vessels outward bound, and also for taking them back when they have brought vessels in? She is for that service.
1011. Is she used for any other? No other that I am aware of.
1012. She is not used for any other service than the service of the ship? No.
1013. Is she used for bringing provisions to the ship? Yes, by the sanction of the Marine Board.
1014. Has she ever been used for picnic parties? Never.
1015. Has she ever been used for bringing Captain Smith, his wife and children, from picnics or from the opera at night? Not to my knowledge.
1016. How often are the men paid on board the ship? Monthly.
1017. How are they paid? By cheque.
1018. Whose cheque? My cheque. The money is paid in to my credit at the bank, and is paid out by me as regularly as the end of the month comes.
1019. Who pays the money in? The Secretary of the Marine Board.

- Capt. Creer. 1020. You do not draw the money? I do not. I hand the cheques over to the men at the end of the month, and they go and draw it.
- 8 May, 1879. 1021. In the first instance do you go to the Marine Board Office with a monthly statement of the money required by you to pay the men? No; there is a paper sent down to me with the amounts due to the several men for their pay; each man signs this, and this is sent back to the Marine Board Office previous to the end of the month.
1022. Then you never go near the office to draw the money for the purpose of paying the men? I do not; the money is paid to my credit by the Secretary of the Marine Board.
1023. Always the same amount? Nearly so.
1024. Do you know a man on board your ship named Emanuel? I do.
1025. He was there in Captain Smith's time, was he not? He was, and previous to the steam service he was an old servant of mine.
1026. A public or private servant? Private; he was one of my boat's crew.
1027. Who paid the boat's crew at that time—the Government? No, I paid my own men.
1028. Emanuel was in your employ? He was.
1029. Have you ever seen this man go from the ship to Captain Smith's residence for the purpose of chopping firewood, scrubbing the kitchen, or nursing the children? No.
1030. Have you ever heard such a thing? No.
1031. Has he ever been at your house chopping wood? Yes.
1032. Since you have been skipper of the boat? No.
1033. Has he ever carried coals to Captain Smith's house? Yes.
1034. Has he ever carried coals to your house? Yes.
1035. Is that allowed by the Marine Board? The Marine Board are always anxious to see that the pilots have everything comfortable. If there is anything can be done to assist them, I believe it is the object of the Marine Board to have it done.
1036. Do you get the coals for your private residence from the "Captain Cook"? I do.
1037. When did you last have any? Last month.
1038. How much? One ton.
1039. Do you pay for that? I do.
1040. To whom do you pay? The Waratah Company.
1041. Can you produce any receipts? Yes; and I can produce the order I received for the next supply.
1042. I do not ask you about your orders, but whether you can produce receipts for payments made by you? Yes, I can; but I have not them on me at present.
1043. Who keeps tally of the coals so taken? The engineer.
1044. Mr. Broderick? I may state with regard to Mr. Broderick that he does not keep tally himself, but trusts to a man to do that; but when the second engineer is on duty he strictly attends to that part of the duty.
1045. And the amount is paid by you to whom? To the Waratah Company.
1046. Who represents them,—you do not go to the Company's office to do so? Yes, I do; and when I go there I get an order for any coals I may require.
1047. You get an order for coals. I do not understand you —
1048. Mr. McElhone.] How do you get your coal? The coal for the steamer is put down below; the coal for myself or the pilots is put into bags and left upon the deck.
1049. In discharging the collier that comes alongside the ship, how do you know the coal that is to be put aside for your use from the rest? For my use or for any of the pilots, it is put into bags.
1050. Chairman.] This coal is taken on shore? Yes.
1051. Who does it for you? The crew.
1052. The crew take it on shore then? Yes.
1053. Have you ever seen provisions sent on board for providing the ship afterwards sent on shore to Captain Smith's residence? I have seen Captain Smith's provisions sent down in the same boat with the ship's provisions, and these have been sent on shore, but not otherwise.
1054. Are you in the habit of having provisions for your own use from Mr. Claydon, and having them sent down at the same time as the ship's provisions? Yes; they are brought down in the steam-launch.
1055. A very handy thing that steam-launch? Yes, she is pretty handy; I do not complain of her.
1056. Did you ever notice, during your tenure of office as pilot, that Captain Smith frequently allowed the "Captain Cook" to go out to sea to put pilots on board ship without him on board? Yes.
1057. Do you follow that custom? Yes; it could not be done otherwise.
1058. How long is it since you were out in that boat? This morning.
1059. How long before that? Yesterday I was up here expecting to be called before the Committee. On Sunday I was out. I have not been out since until this morning.
1060. Have you ever been nine days together without being on board? There has never twenty-four hours passed but I have been on board the ship.
1061. I am not talking about your being on board the ship, but about the vessel going outside to put pilots on board ships without you. Have you ever during your period of office been nine days without being outside? Never.
1062. If we have evidence here that during the last fortnight this has been the case, it must be false? I have never been so long out of the ship. In fact I could swear, I believe, upon the Bible. My wife was bad a week or ten days ago, and I have been a little more out of the ship than I should have been, but I am positive I have never been two days out of the ship.
1063. Mr. McElhone.] What Mr. Cameron means is, have you ever during the last fortnight been nine consecutive days without going outside with the vessel to put pilots on board ships coming in? No, I have never been out of the ship a couple of days together, except when I have been on ship's business to town.
1064. Chairman.] I am not asking you what your business was, but whether there have been nine consecutive days during the last fortnight during which you have never been outside the Heads in the ship? No.
1065. Have you ever been five days? Not five days.
1066. Have you been three days? I would not say for that.
1067. Is it the fact, or is it untrue, that the ship oftener goes to sea without the captain than with him? It is a falsehood.

Capt. Creer.
8 May, 1879.

1068. If some of the pilots have stated that, they have stated what is false? They have.
1069. Do you stand upon a friendly footing with the pilots? There are three of them, I am sorry to say, who are quite opposed to the service, in fact I believe they are doing their utmost to overthrow it.
1070. How many pilots are there? Five.
1071. Who are they? Captains Cork, Coutts, Jack, Christison, and Firth. Firth has taken my place.
1072. Who are the three to whom you allude as having a feeling of ill-will? It is rather a difficult matter to prove this, because actions are sometimes stronger than words; but Captains Cork, Coutts, and Jack I cannot say have worked as amicably with me as I could have wished. With those exceptions, we have got on very well.
1073. You were the junior pilot? I was the junior pilot, and that has caused a very unpleasant feeling against me.
1074. You applied for Captain Smith's position? I never applied; in fact I was appointed before I knew anything about it—I was appointed without any application from me.
1075. Have you a relative on the Marine Board? No.
1076. Is Captain M'Lean any relation of yours? No.
1077. No member of the Marine Board is? No. Many years ago Mr. M'Lean was married to a sister of mine, but I do not consider him as any relative; in fact, he is the greatest stranger I know.
1078. You have under you two officers? Yes, a chief and a second officer.
1079. Are they nautical men? Yes, they have both been masters of ships.
1080. You have no hesitation in entrusting them with the charge of the vessel when she has to go out to sea? Certainly not, or else I would not leave them in charge.
1081. You think them thoroughly competent to take the ship out to sea, and to bring her back into the harbour? I do, but each of these officers has forty-eight hours liberty a week, and when one is away the other takes his place.
1082. Do the men get forty-eight hours as well as the officers. The men get forty-eight hours a month, and the engineers thirty-six hours a week.
1083. Mr. Eckford.] Whose duty is it to take tally of the coals and stores that are shipped on board the pilot steamer? It is the engineer's duty to take charge of the coals and to take tally of them as they come on board.
1084. Does he do so? They do.
1085. This man Emanuel, you stated just now, was your servant? Yes.
1086. Did he paint your house a short time ago? No. I have been in my house four or five years and it has never had a coat of paint. Emanuel is always anxious to serve me in every possible way, but when he does so it is during his leave of absence. At those times he comes up and inquires if there is anything he can do to serve me.
1087. He is not regularly at your place? No.
1088. He has done no painting for you lately? He has never done painting or anything else in the ship's time—only when he has been on leave of absence.
1089. I ask you whether your house was lately painted? No, not since I bought the place, and that is about four years ago.
1090. With regard to the coal, you have, of course, receipts for the payment of all the coal taken to your place? I have had, but the chances are that it might be difficult to produce the receipts after so long a time, but I am positive I have had them.
1091. Chairman.] You have said that you were at the office in the beginning of May? Yes.
1092. Did you pay for any then? Yes.
1093. Mr. McElhone.] Do all the pilots get their coal from the Waratah Company's steamer? It is in this way: any pilots living near where the ship lies can have coal if they like from the steamer.
1094. And the officers too? Yes.
1095. And the men? If they like to apply for them. My great study is to make them as comfortable as possible.
1096. These coals are left on deck you say? Yes, they are put into bags and left on deck.
1097. Would not that lumber the decks of the vessel if she had to go outside the heads with these coals on deck? We are satisfied to put up with a little inconvenience, provided we can do a good turn, and we never have more than a ton of coal on deck.
1098. Have you never taken coal belonging to the steamer, or to the Government, on shore for your own use without paying for them? No, never.
1099. Have you ever known Captain Smith to take Government coal? No, never, except as I have said.
1100. How long have you known Captain Smith to be away from the vessel at one spell? I do not know, but I know he has stuck to the ship as few men would have done.
1101. Have you ever known him to be away for two or three days together at picnic parties? Never.
1102. How long have you been away from the ship at one spell since you have been appointed, without taking her outside? I have never been one clear day away from the ship.
1103. If one of the pilots has stated that you have been several days from the ship when she has gone outside, is that true? The ship might have gone outside; but I state that I have been on board the ship every day.
1104. I ask you whether, if some of the pilots have stated that the ship has gone outside several days in succession without your being on board, they have stated what is false? They have.
1105. Is it true that during the last fortnight you have been away from the ship for several days when she has gone outside? Never, except on ship's duty.
1106. What do you call ship's duty? Sending in requisitions for stores.
1107. What do you call stores? These are the stores I was up about yesterday (handing a paper to Mr. McElhone).
1108. You have been away to Sydney on many occasions getting ship's stores? Yes.
1109. What are they? Oils, kerosene, and sundry other little necessary requirements for the ship.
1110. Who pays for those stores? The Government.
1111. Could not you order them by letter? They are ordered by letter.
1112. What necessity is there then for you to come up to town about them? Because the difficulty is in getting them from the Commissariat Stores when you want them, and we have to go and rouse the people up.

- Capt. Creer.
8 May, 1879.
1113. Is it not the fact that since you were appointed captain of this vessel in last February you have been oftener away from her when she has gone outside the Heads than you have been on board? It is totally false.
1114. If other pilots have stated that that is so, it is not true? It is not true.
1115. Chairman.] What was the last vessel you brought in? This morning.
1116. What was the name of the vessel? The "Akbar," this morning.
1117. When did you bring one in before? On last Sunday—an immigrant ship—in a gale of wind. We smashed one boat alongside.
1118. That is four days since? I was in attendance here yesterday.
1119. Mr. McElhone.] How do the men pay you for their food? A deduction of £2 a month is made off the pay of each man. £9 is their pay, and I give them a cheque for £7.
1120. Who do you buy your meat from? Mr. Claydon.
1121. What do you pay a pound for it? 3d.; I have been paying 3½d.
1122. Is it not the fact that you have often known this Emanuel to be working at Captain Smith's house, chopping wood and working in his garden? It is not.
1123. Have you ever had him about your place? Never, except when he has been on leave of absence.
1124. If the pilots have stated that you and Captain Smith have had Emanuel working about your houses, is that a lie also? Yes, except as I have stated.
1125. Then we are to believe, from your statement, that these men are liars? I am under the impression that they are.
1126. He is a very useful man—this Emanuel? He is.
1127. You know what I mean by "a master's man"? No, I do not understand your term.
1128. I think you do, as an old sailor. Now, do you think it is a proper thing for you, as captain of a vessel, to be running about wasting your time buying stores, going to butchers, greengrocers, and other people? I think so. I certainly believe what I am doing is perfectly right.
1129. I am asking you is that part of your duty as captain of the ship? Yes, it is.
1130. Is it not more the duty of a provedore than yours? No.
1131. You have stated that Mr. Davies did not supply the men and pilots satisfactorily? I am inclined to believe that the men are better situated now than they were when Mr. Davies was there. I do not think it was altogether with regard to the food.
1132. You have already stated that Mr. Davies did not supply the food to the satisfaction of the pilots and men? I do not think the men were altogether so satisfied as they are now.
1133. Then if certain pilots have stated that Mr. Davies supplied the ship to their satisfaction and the satisfaction of the men, and better than either you or Captain Smith have done, they have also told lies? Yes.
1134. All you say is truth, and all they say lies? I do not wish to say so.
1135. You do say so now? I say if they have stated so it is a falsehood.
1136. Do you think it part of your duty to be running about town buying things of grocers, butchers, and other people for the steamer? I do not do anything of the sort.
1137. You have already said you do? I beg your pardon. The orders are sent up by the steward. All I do is to collect and pay the bills at the end of the month.
1138. Where do you pay them? Wherever they are due.
1139. To Mr. Claydon? Yes.
1140. Mr. Claydon does not come to you? No.
1141. And you pursue the same course with the other people who supply you with goods—you go to them to pay them? Yes.
1142. Chairman.] Mr. McElhone wants to know if you think it part of your duty to go round to these people doing this? It is my duty to go to these people and pay their bills.
1143. Mr. McElhone.] I have asked you if you consider it to be your duty to go to the butchers to see about the meat, to call at the grocers, and look after the vegetables? No; an order is sent up at the end of the month, and supplies are sent down for a month. We take in a month's stock.
1144. You cannot take in a month's stock of bread, vegetables, and meat? No, they are sent down daily, but we lay in a month's stock of groceries.
1145. Is not the launch employed every day in coming to Sydney for provisions? Yes.
1146. How many men are there employed on that launch? Four.
1147. Who are they paid by? The Government.
1148. Was not that launch built for the special purpose of taking pilots to vessels outwards? She does that.
1149. Is not that what she was built for? Yes.
1150. Was she built for the purpose of coming up to Sydney every day for butchers' meat and vegetables for the vessel? This is done by the sanction of the Board.
1151. I am not asking you about the sanction of the Board; it is a matter of opinion whether the Board have the right to give such sanction. Have you ever known pilots to be waiting for any length of time to be put on board ships in consequence of the absence of the launch? Never.
1152. If the pilots have stated that they have been detained by waiting for this launch to put them on board ships, or to take them off—that is also a lie? That is also a lie.
1153. They are all lies where they have contradicted you? I am only stating what I believe to be facts.
1154. Have you never known this launch to be used for picnics? Never.
1155. You have never used it for picnics yourself? Never.
1156. If that has been stated, that is also untrue? Yes.
1157. If you had been one of the senior pilots, and a junior pilot had been promoted over your head, you would have felt annoyed and aggrieved, would you not? No doubt I should.
1158. It is the fact that Mr. McLean, one of the Marine Board, is your brother-in-law, is it not? Not now; he was many years ago—nearly twenty years ago he was married to my sister.
1159. You are not on bad terms with him? No, I pass the time of day to him when we meet.
1160. Are you ever in his house? I have been in his house some years ago—I cannot tell you how long since.
1161. Mr. Eckford.] You have got the same feeling towards him now as when your sister was his wife? I have as much feeling towards him as to any other gentleman, and no more. 1162.

1162. Are you aware whether Captain Smith at any time refused to employ a British subject on board, for the purpose of holding the billet open until a man came from Melbourne—a brother or cousin of Emanuel? I never heard of it before. Capt. Creer.
8 May, 1879.
1163. Is there now employed in the service a brother or cousin of Emanuel? There was a cousin of his on board some time ago.
1164. He is not there now? He is not there now. He has been chief officer of a ship, and he left the "Captain Cook" to follow his old pursuit—that of whaling.
1165. He was not chief officer of the pilot ship? No.
1166. Mr. McElhone. You are an old ship captain? I am.
1167. Do you think it necessary to have a captain, a chief and second officer, on board the "Captain Cook"? That is a matter for the consideration of the Marine Board.
1168. If she were your own steamer would you employ a captain, first and second mate; could not the duty be performed by the chief mate? I think it necessary to have a master on board, as the chief and second officers have each forty-eight hours a week off duty, and the master cannot be expected to be always on board—he must have some time for himself.
1169. Do you think it necessary also to have a chief officer? Yes.
1170. If she were your own ship would you think so? Yes.
1171. What is your salary? £400 a year.
1172. What is the chief officer's? £16 a month.
1173. And the second officer's? I think he gets £12 10s.
1174. Chairman. Captain Smith left the "Captain Cook" about the time this enquiry commenced, did he not? Yes.
1175. Was he getting the same salary as you are receiving? Yes—£400 a year.
1176. Do you know what he gets now? No.
1177. Is it not £250 a year? I know Captain Smith had very bad health down there, but whether it was on that account he left or for something else I am not prepared to say.
1178. It is not usual for a man to resign £400 a year for £250, is it? Captain Smith is in a better position to do that than I am.

Captain Charles Smith examined:—

1179. Chairman. What are you? A master mariner.
1180. You are in the employ of the Government of New South Wales? Yes. Capt. Smith.
8 May, 1879.
1181. In what capacity? As Assistant Harbour Master.
1182. At what salary? £250 a year.
1183. Previous to holding your present position, you were master of the "Captain Cook," were you not? I was.
1184. How long did you occupy that position? From the 17th November, 1875, when I was appointed, until the end of January, 1879.
1185. What was your salary then? £400 a year.
1186. You resigned that position? I did.
1187. And applied for the one you now hold? No; I applied for the Harbour Master's position, in the room of Captain Myhill, who was about to resign.
1188. Had you resigned your position as master of the "Captain Cook" before you applied for the other? No.
1189. What is the salary of the Harbour Master, for which position you applied? £350 a year.
1190. Do you recollect Mr. Henry Davies, who was at one time provedore of the "Captain Cook"? I do.
1191. How long did he hold that position? Six months.
1192. Did he get the work of provedoring the ship by tender? A portion of it—for the after part of the ship, the officers and pilots; but he afterwards went forward and made an arrangement with the men on his own account.
1193. Was the tender sent to you? It was.
1194. Not to the Marine Board? No.
1195. And you accepted Mr. Davies's tender for the after part of the ship? Yes, for the master, the two officers, the engineers, and the pilots.
1196. How much was he allowed for each? 18s. a week for each of us at the after part of the ship.
1197. In what manner did Mr. Davies carry out the duties of his office? For the first few months everything was very satisfactory. After that, the next month or so, the crew began to complain that it was not sufficient—not so good.
1198. To whom did they complain? To me.
1199. If any of the men have stated that they made no complaint, they have told a falsehood? Yes; I believe all the men—every hand on board—came to me to complain.
1200. You then gave notice to Mr. Davies to leave? Yes.
1201. Had you any quarrel with Mr. Davies previous to giving him notice? We had a few little words once. One night when the vessel was outside the things were kicking about in the cabin and pantry, and I told him next morning that he would have to remain on board the vessel, as he had agreed to; and he said if he could not be on shore every night he must leave.
1202. Did he say "I am a married man, and my wife is at Watson's Bay, and I should like to live on shore"? I do not remember the words he used.
1203. Did that pass over without your taking any further notice? It passed over; there were no angry words about it.
1204. How long before you dismissed him was it from that conversation taking place about his staying on board? He had not been more than two months in the ship at the time of that conversation. That was the first disagreement.
1205. Then it was four months after this that you dismissed him? Yes, four months.
1206. Had you no dispute about employing the launch? He had been allowed to use the launch for bringing down the provisions, and on one occasion after the launch had been to Sydney, he wanted the men on their return to go a second time, and I said I thought it was rather hard upon the men.*
1207. Did you ever demand from Mr. Davies a certain percentage upon his monthly bills? Never.
1208. Did you ever receive any money from Mr. Davies? Never.
1209. Never a shilling at any time? Never a shilling at any time. 1210.

ADDED (on revision):—The launch had been to Sydney several times that day.

- Capt. Smith. 1210. If it has been stated here that in the month of January, 1878, you received £1 12s. 3d. in February £1 12s. 3d., and in March £1 6s., is that totally untrue? It is. I have got Mr. Davies's receipts in my pocket for everything I paid him. December was the first month he was on board. I said to him, "Steward, what do I owe you?" He said, "£60." I said, "That is not all, it is £61 12s." He replied, "You have not had your meals on board, so that I will allow the £1 12s."; and in January, the same.
- 8 May, 1879. 1211. Then really the statement that £1 12s. 3d. was deducted from the bill is true? He said the amount he wanted was £60, but actually £61 12s. was due.
1212. He gave you a receipt for £60? No; afterwards, when he got notice, he gave me a receipt in full.
1213. In reality he received £60? Yes.
1214. Did you at any time while Mr. Davies was on board the ship have provisions sent by him to your private residence? None, except meat only, which I paid him for. He supplied my house for two months, for which I paid him, and I have my cheques to show.
1215. Did you pay him any separate and distinct amounts for the goods sent to your private residence? It was all included in the monthly account.
1216. It was all mixed up together? It was all mixed up together. The ship's bill could never exceed £61 12s., and sometimes I paid him as much as £63.
1217. Then in fact, in addition to Mr. Davies being provedore of the ship, he was to a certain extent provedore for your family? He provedored for a good many of the pilots as well—I mean only for the meat.
1218. Did Mr. Davies at all times have the launch to bring the provisions to the ship? Very nearly all; perhaps for the last two or three weeks he did not always get it.
1219. He got it only as a matter of grace? He had no right to demand her.
1220. He got her as a compliment? I do not know that there was any compliment in it.
1221. He had to ask your permission? I never took the power of granting it without consulting the Marine Board.
1222. Were you then under the impression that the launch was not built for that purpose? Mr. Davies said that it would be a great expense to him to send down the provisions, and that he could not supply the ship for the amount he named if he had to do so; and he was therefore granted the privilege of using the launch.
1223. If Mr. Davies has made a statement like this, has he told the truth:—He was asked, "And the discount you speak of was the discount off that bill which Captain Smith receipted?" His answer was, "I received £60 odd, less, £1 12s., which he kept as his percentage?" I did not keep it. I paid him exactly what he said I owed him.
1224. That included the cook's wages? Yes.
1225. Do you know the cook he had there? There were several there during his time.
1226. Had you any quarrel with him about a cook? Not a quarrel exactly—we had some words.
1227. Is it true that Mr. Davies wished to dismiss this cook for drunkenness, and that you insisted upon keeping him on the ship? No; previous to the ship going into dock Mr. Davies wanted to discharge him, and I said I did not think it was fair, as the men were perfectly satisfied with his cooking, but afterwards, when the ship went into dock, the man got drunk and was discharged.
1228. Who paid the cook? Mr. Davies.
1229. Do you not think he had a right to dismiss a man whom he himself paid? The man had been giving satisfaction.
1230. That is not an answer to my question? He had.
1231. Mr. Davies signed the contract at the Marine Board Office? He did.
1232. Did you, as captain of the ship, at any time lodge any complaint against Mr. Davies in writing to the Marine Board? No.
1233. You dismissed him then on your own authority? I consulted with the Marine Board.
1234. Did you lay a verbal complaint against him to the Board? I laid no complaint. I simply stated to the Board —. I wrote a letter to the Board stating that the men had complained of Davies's supply of provisions.
1235. Then you did lay a complaint? I wrote a letter to say that the men had complained.
1236. Had you any written authority from the Board to dismiss Mr. Davies? No.
1237. You did it on your own authority? I had the verbal sanction of a member of the Board.
1238. What member of the Board? Captain Hixson, the President. When I took Mr. Davies to the Marine Board to see the agreement, they said, "You had better arrange with him yourself, so that you may have him under your own control."
1239. After Mr. Davies, who provedored the ship? There was no regular provedore. The cook made out the list every month, and I ordered the provisions.
1240. Who paid for them? I paid for them.
1241. How? Monthly.
1242. Did you ever receive any discounts from the persons who supplied you with provisions? On one or two occasions.
1243. Has the captain of a ship any right to look upon a percentage upon provisions supplied to his ship as a perquisite of his office? It is done in all services.
1244. Has the captain of that steamer any authority for looking upon the discounts on his monthly payments as his perquisite or as part of his salary? No.
1245. If that is constantly being done, is it done with the sanction of the Marine Board? I do not think so.
1246. How much did you ever receive for discount? Not a pound for the whole time I ordered the provisions.
1247. You provedored the ship for seven months? Yes.
1248. Who supplied butcher's meat? Mr. Claydon. I paid him monthly, in cash.
1249. Is it not the fact that in all business transactions two and a half, five, and sometimes more, per cent. is allowed for cash payments? It is not the fact.
1250. You are an old sea captain, are you not? Yes; I have been captain twenty-seven years.
1251. Is it not the practice of captains to receive commissions or a percentage upon stores supplied to their ships? No; I have sailed a vessel for twenty-seven years, and never got a farthing.
1252. You say on one occasion you received discount—from whom did you get it? From Mr. Bird, provision merchant.
1253. You took the whole of these provisions to the ship in the steam-launch? Yes.

1254. Had you to come to town to order provisions? Not often. I came once a month for groceries, and other things were ordered when the launch went to town. Capt. Smith.
1255. Could not that have been done by letter without coming to town? Some things required to be selected. 8 May, 1879.
1256. You also came to town to pay the bills? Yes; when I went to pay the bills for one month I ordered stores for the next.
1257. Did Mr. Davies at any time apply to you for a refund of the deductions made by you from his account? When he was about to leave the ship, and I was settling up with him, he handed a bill to me, and said, "That is something else you owe me." I did not look at it, and what was in it I do not know.
1258. Is it the fact that at any period of Mr. Davies's service you ceased to make deductions from his bills on account of his sending provisions to your house? It is not a fact.
1259. If we have had it stated here in evidence it is false? It is.
1260. Have you ever been absent from your ship for a considerable period? No.
1261. Were you ever absent three days at a time? I may have been.
1262. Have you ever been at Randwick races while the races have been going on, and not on board your ship for two or three days? I have been at Randwick races, but I have not been away from the ship for two or three days.
1263. How many days together have you been away? Not more than one.
1264. Not two? I may have been.
1265. Not three? No.
1266. If we have it in evidence that you were away two days at the races, is that true? I may have been two.
1267. If we have it in evidence that the ship went outside the Heads without you as often as with you, is that true? It is not.
1268. If we have it in evidence that you were eight or nine days without going outside the Heads with the ship, is that true? It is not.
1269. Is it true that at any period during the time of your command ships have been known to come up the harbour as far as Chowder Bay without a pilot being put on board? Never, that I am aware.
1270. Have they ever got as far as the Sow-and-Pigs? On one or two occasions they have, but then they have come in without signalling for a pilot outside.
1271. You resigned your position as master of the "Captain Cook" after this enquiry was set on foot? I am not aware when the enquiry was set on foot.
1272. You read the newspapers, I suppose? Sometimes.
1273. You knew then that this Committee was appointed? I saw something about it, but what it was for I did not know exactly.
1274. Have you ever said to any person that you knew this Committee was appointed? I may have done so.
1275. Is it not the fact that since this Committee has been appointed you have resigned this position and applied for another? I have resigned my position since this Committee was appointed.
1276. You have resigned a position of £400 a year, and accepted one of £250? I have.
1277. Did the pilots ever make any complaint to you about the manner in which Mr. Davies carried out his work? No.
1278. Did they ever express satisfaction? They were satisfied, I believe.
1279. Did they ever make any complaint as to the manner in which you did it? No.
1280. They were satisfied then? There was no complaint.
1281. If evidence has been given here that they were not so well satisfied with you as with Mr. Davies, you never heard it before? I never heard it before.
1282. Do you know a man named Emanuel? Yes, I do.
1283. Has he been long on board the ship? Ever since the steam service has been established.
1284. He is a very good man, is he not? He is a good man—he is one of the best boatmen on board.
1285. Have you ever employed him to do work about your house? I have.
1286. Since he has been employed on the vessel? Yes.
1287. Scrubbing floors? No.
1288. Minding the baby? No.
1289. Chopping wood? Yes.
1290. If it has been stated that he was constantly on shore at your house employed in these various ways, is it true? It is not true.
1291. Did you pay him for this work? No.
1292. Did he do it in Government time? He did not. He applied for liberty and was allowed it, and sometimes in that time he has gone and chopped wood for me.
1293. Is it not true that the captain, officers, engineers, and seamen have certain periods of leave allotted to them per week or month? There is no stipulated time; whenever they have asked for it, if they could be spared, it has generally been given.
1294. If it has been stated here that there is a stipulated time, is that incorrect? It is.
1295. If Captain Creer has stated that, he has made a mistake too? Yes.
1296. Then if this man Emanuel asked for any leave he obtained it? If it could be given.
1297. For two or three days at a time? Sometimes two, sometimes three.
1298. During that time he was employed frequently at your house? Not frequently—sometimes he would come for a few hours in a day.
1299. It is not the fact that he always chopped your wood? It is not the fact, for I have paid others to do so, and I have chopped the wood myself.
1300. Did any other man on board the steamer chop wood for you? I think one other did.
1301. Another Portuguese? No.
1302. Who supplied the ship with coal during your tenure of office? Sometimes ———, sometimes the Waratah Company.
1303. Did you get your coal from them too? Yes.
1304. The coals that were brought for you, who kept tally of them? The engineer kept tally of the coal, and if I wanted any, an extra ton of coal was put on one side of the deck.
1305. You always paid for that coal? Yes.
1306. Can you produce any receipts? I can.

- Capt. Smith. 1307. For money you paid to the Waratah Company? To the Waratah Company.
 8 May, 1879. 1308. The coal was put on the vessel's deck? It was put on the vessel's deck, bags were filled with it, and it was then conveyed from the vessel to my house.
 1309. When the coal came from the collier was it in bags? No, it was brought on board in baskets, and the baskets were capsized on deck.
 1310. Was it weighed? It was weighed on some occasions.
 1311. Where was it weighed? On board the ship.
 1312. Have you appliances for weighing half a ton of coals on board ship? It was weighed by the steelyards.
 1313. Who was it weighed by? By the engineer.
 1314. His time was employed in weighing your coal? It was his duty to keep account of the ship's coal.
 1315. I am not talking of the ship's coal;—you say when the coal was taken on board, and you required any, a ton or half-ton was put on one side for you in bags? It was put on deck out of the baskets, and the bags were then filled, and it was put on one side.
 1316. Were these baskets weighed? No, there were so many baskets to the ton.
 1317. After this coal was emptied on deck it was put into bags? Yes.
 1318. By whom? By the men on board ship.
 1319. Then the men on board ship had their time employed in filling these bags? Yes.
 1320. After that, who took the coal on shore? The men from the ship.
 1321. Does it not strike you that this would be a very loose system in the hands of a dishonest man—not that I am charging you with being dishonest—and that he could take more coal than he was entitled to? No, there was a check.
 1322. Who checked it? The mate of the steamer, who delivered the —
 1323. Did it matter to him to whom the coals were delivered, so long as he got a receipt for the quantity he discharged on board? The mate of the steamer had to keep a log of all the coals delivered by him from the vessel.
 1324. Suppose the mate of the "Waratah" emptied the whole of his cargo upon the deck of the "Captain Cook," he would have a docket signed certifying to its delivery, would he not? The mode of delivering and receiving the coals is this: The engineer or one of his men keeps a tally of all the coal as it comes in and is tipped down the hatchway, and a basket is weighed now and then to take an average of the weight. If I want half a ton or a ton, the coals are emptied on deck, as I have already stated, and is not reckoned with the ship's coal.
 1325. So far as the officer of the collier was concerned, it would not matter to him whether you got half a ton or a ton, would it? Yes, it would, because if it were not charged to me he would be so much short in his cargo.
 1326. How are the men on board the ship paid? Once a month.
 1327. In cash? By cheque.
 1328. Whose cheque? My private cheque.
 1329. Previous to paying them I suppose you had to forward to the Marine Board Office a monthly statement of the amount that would be required by you? About four or five days before the end of the month the Secretary of the Marine Board sends me down a pay sheet, with the amount of pay due to each man, under their several heads. This is signed by the men, and sent back by me to the office. At the end of the month the total amount is paid to the credit of my private account in the Bank, and I then give the men cheques for the amounts severally due to them.

WEDNESDAY, 14 MAY, 1879.

Present:—

MR. CAMERON, | MR. ECKFORD,
 MR. McELHONE.

ANGUS CAMERON, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Captain Smith was called in and further examined:—

- Capt. Smith. 1330. Chairman.] You stated on the last day of your examination that the charges which have been made against you of leaving your duty were perfectly untrue? Yes.
 14 May, 1879. 1331. You absolutely deny having at any time received anything by way of commission from Mr. Davies? Yes. I have brought my cheque book, if you wish to see it, which will show the amounts which I have paid to him.
 1332. Mr. Davies, you said, wrote a letter of complaint to the Marine Board respecting his dismissal by you? He wrote to say that I had given him notice of discharge. I have no copy of his letter, but it would be with the Marine Board.
 1333. Did you send a reply to that letter? His letter was sent to me to report upon, and I have here a copy of the letter which I wrote.
 1334. You repeat your statement that Mr. Davies never at any time supplied your private house with provisions? I have not stated that. For two months he supplied provisions at my house.
 1335. For which you paid him? For which I paid him.
 1336. You have stated that the only cause of disagreement between yourself and Mr. Davies arose from the fact that he wanted to go on shore at night? That was the first grievance—that he was out of the ship at night.
 1337. At what period of the day does the provedore's duties cease? I am not aware that a provedore has any particular time. He also acted in the capacity of steward, and had to find a cook as well. The first month he acted as cook, but the galley did not agree with him, and then he took the position of steward. While steward he wanted to be out of the ship every night—in fact he was out.
 1338. You received the application from Mr. Davies for the position of provedore in consequence of an advertisement which had been inserted in the Herald? I did.

Capt. Smith.

14 May, 1879.

1339. Do you recollect how that advertisement was worded? I do not.
1340. As far as your memory serves you, was not the advertisement in something of this form:—"Wanted a provedore for pilot steamer 'Captain Cook.' Apply on board"? I think it was something of that sort. It was written by the Secretary or one of the clerks in the Marine Board Office. I think it said—Apply on board the pilot boat, Watson's Bay.
1341. Mr. Davies's application was made to you, was it not? It was.
1342. He came on board the boat to offer his services? He did.
1343. And the result was a tender on his part to you, which was ultimately accepted by you? It was.
1344. Did you say anything in that advertisement about the duties of cook or steward, in addition to those of provedore? Not as far as I can recollect.
1345. Then, if Mr. Davies paid a cook or steward, it was nothing to you whether he performed those duties himself or not? The reason the first provedore was discharged was that complaints were made by the men, and he was never there to attend to them. It was therefore arranged that the next provedore should work on board as cook or steward, so that he should always be on the spot to rectify any matter that went wrong.
1346. How was it when you provedored the ship? I never provedored the ship; I ordered the stores after the cook made out the list.
1347. You ordered the stores? I did.
1348. You received certain amounts for the men and the pilots, allowed for provisioning them? I received from Government 18s. for the aft end of the ship.
1349. What did you receive from the men? Various amounts.
1350. Will you state some amount? From £1 13s. to £2.
1351. According to the advice of the cook you sent requisitions for provisions? I did.
1352. And you came to town and paid for them after you received the money? I did.
1353. Do you not think that was provedoring the ship? No.
1354. What did the duty of provedoring consist of? To provide for the duty of cook and steward, and find all the provisions for the ship.
1355. You are pretty well acquainted with the system of provedoring which obtains here on board of steamers connected with the port? I have commanded ships out of this port.
1356. Take the steamers of the A.S.N. Co. or the Illawarra S.N. Co., for instance,—the provedoring of those ships is let? The A.S.N. Co.'s is.
1357. Is it not usual for the provedores to employ any one under them to fulfil part of their duties? It is.
1358. Then Mr. Davies, in doing that, was only doing what is done in other places? It was against his agreement—he agreed to act as steward or cook.
1359. Is that in writing? It is.
1360. Not merely verbal? Not verbal.
1361. Then he had no right to cook at all? He had to act as cook or steward himself, and find one other man.
1362. How many meals a day have they on board? There is coffee, breakfast, dinner, tea.
1363. Anything after tea? Sometimes at 8 o'clock there is a bit of bread and cheese.
1364. Suppose the provedore were on shore and the steward on board, would the duty be satisfactorily done if the bread and cheese were served by the steward? Yes.
1365. Then there was no necessity for the provedore to be on board at night? Yes, there was. Sometimes the ship went out to sea, and she is a very uneasy ship at sea. On one occasion there was a quantity of plates and dishes broken, and Mr. Davies lost a great many of his own things through his absence. Sugar, rice, and flour all got mixed up together.
1366. Is it not a fact that the commander of the vessel seldom or ever sleeps on board of her? It is not a fact.
1367. Does he sleep on board the ship every night? Not every night.
1368. Does he not live on shore as a rule? No. During the three years I was there I do not think I was away four days altogether the whole time.
1369. If any of the pilots who have been here have given evidence to the contrary, it is utterly false? It is utterly false.
1370. If any of the men have given such evidence, it is equally false? It is equally false. I was less out of the ship than any one on board, and I had frequently to go away on ship's duty.
1371. What do you call ship's duty? Captain Hixson would send for me sometimes, and I also had to order the stores.
1372. Could the stores not be ordered by requisition? No; on several occasions the goods supplied have been so unfit for use that they have had to be returned. On one occasion they had to be returned two or three times. I have therefore had to go and select the goods myself. If you order the things from the Government Stores you have to wait a long while for them.
1373. Mr. Davies, I believe, grumbled because he did not get the use of the steam-launch? On one occasion.
1374. Did it come to your knowledge that the stores were lying out on the Circular Quay exposed to the rain, and that he could not get them to the ship? He told me so.
1375. Was the launch away on a pleasure trip? I have never gone in the launch on a pleasure trip. One night she brought me home from Mr. Playfair's picnic.
1376. Did you never take the launch down Middle Harbour for your own pleasure? The launch was taken there one Christmas Day to get some bushes, but no other time.
1377. After the appointment was made was it ratified by the Marine Board? No, they said they would leave the matter under my control.
1378. They left you the absolute power to engage and to dismiss? They did.
1379. Do you know a fireman on board the ship named Hyatt? Yes.
1380. What sort of a character does he bear? He is a steady man.
1381. Would you say that he is as good a man as Emanuel? Yes, he does his duty. I do not interfere much with the engineer's department. The firemen are under the engineer.
1382. Did Hyatt ever complain to you as to the manner in which Davies provisioned the vessel? Yes; the men came aft, and he was their spokesman.
1383. Did you ever ask him to complain? No.
1384. If Hyatt has stated to any member of this Committee that he did that against his conscience, and that

- Capt. Smith. that to please you he went aft and made a statement against Davies, is there any truth in that? No, not the slightest.
- 14 May, 1879. 1385. Did you ever have any disagreement with the men under your command? No.
1386. Have you at any time had complaints made against you to the Marine Board by any of the pilots? No, I do not recollect that there have been any complaints.
1387. Did Captain Jack ever lay a complaint against you to your knowledge? I reported Captain Jack about the time the dismasted ship "Cairnbulg" arrived here. The captain of the ship hailed me to tow him up the harbour, and I did so. Pilot Jack was the only pilot on board, and I wished to leave him on board the light-ship so that he could board any ship which might come along. He, however, did not turn up; and as he did not come on deck I sent the boat on shore to call the next pilot in turn. When we got to Bradley's Head Pilot Jack asked where the boat was, and I said she had gone on shore.
1388. You reported him on that occasion? I did.
1389. Do you know if any reply was sent? Yes, a reply was sent.
1390. What was the nature of it? It was to the effect that as soon as the pilots came on board for duty they were to consider themselves under the orders of the master of the steamer. Pilot Jack seemed to think I had no right to order him to remain on the lightship.
1391. Then the captain of the steamer acts as the superior officer of pilots while they are on board? That is the order.
1392. Have you ever heard that Captain Jack or any of the other pilots laid a complaint against you to the Marine Board? No.
1393. Did you ever tell this man Hyatt, when he complained to you about anything, that if he did not like the arrangements there he might leave? No.
1394. If he has stated so in evidence, is it false? It is. I had some words with Hyatt on one occasion while Davies was provedore. One night all the bread was missed—either thrown overboard or made away with. Davies accused Hyatt, and I was pretty much under the same impression. I told him if the same thing happened again in his watch I would discharge him.
1395. If Hyatt has said that you were away from the ship repeatedly day after day, is that true? It is not.
1396. If you have been accused by witnesses examined before this Committee with behaving in a tyrannical, overbearing manner to your officers, I suppose that is not true either? No; I have been told privately that they are getting up a petition for me to go back again.
1397. When did you resign your position as master of the pilot steamer "Captain Cook"—was it before or after the appointment of this Committee? After.
1398. Your salary, as master of the "Captain Cook," was how much? £400.
1399. What position do you occupy now? Assistant Harbour Master.
1400. We were told you were a mud pilot? The sea pilots bring ships up to Fort Denison or Neutral Bay; the Assistant Harbour Masters berth them at the wharfs.
1401. What salary do you receive now? £250.
1402. You resigned £400 to take £250;—what reason actuated you in taking a step so unusual on the part of civil servants? The salary was not so much an object with me, and I preferred to study my comfort. When on board the pilot steamer I had rarely an hour to myself, and could not get away without asking for liberty to leave. I have a young family growing up whose education requires that I should look to them, and I considered that more important than the question of salary.
1403. How much were you in the habit of deducting from the monthly accounts for provedoring the ship? The deduction was £2, on the 1st of the month.
1404. Did it ever run as high as £2 14s. 8d? It never exceeded £2, and sometimes it was £1 13s. Two firemen got 10s. extra because they had meals on shore during portion of the time.
1405. If Hyatt has said that out of a monthly cheque of £11 he has only received £8 5s. 4d., would that be correct? That is all he did receive when there was a provedore. He received as much as £9 17s. while I was ordering the stores. £9 15s. was the usual amount.
1406. About the coals: have you explained the manner in which they were set aside? Yes.
1407. The coal was carried off the vessel to your house by the men belonging to the ship? Yes.
1408. Was all the coal which was sent to your house or to the house of any of the pilots specifically weighed on every occasion? It was not. It was taken from the average of the cargo. If the baskets weighed ten to the ton and a ton of coal were required, ten baskets would be taken.
1409. Is it not usual on board steamships for the chief engineer to sign the receipt for the coal that comes alongside? My instructions from the Marine Board were that all the documents were to be signed by me—that everything must come through me. The engineer at first made the requisition for the stores, and Captain Hixson's direction was that all the signatures should come through me.
1410. He did at one time sign for them? He kept the tally of the coals and handed it to me, and I gave the Waratah Company the receipt for them.
1411. Mr. Broderick when examined before this Committee was asked, "Was it part of your duty to give the receipt?" and he answered, "I considered it part of my duty as chief engineer to give a receipt, to be initialled afterwards by the captain of course. On some occasions—on many occasions I was going to say—the account of the coal I gave to Captain Smith included the coal that was put on the deck for him; but just before Captain Smith left he would not receive my tally for the coal without I separated the ship's account from his." Have you anything to say with respect to that? That is not true. The very last receipt he gave, he included some coals which went on shore as part of the cargo; and I made him take the receipt back and alter it. We got coals when we first went down there—Mr. Black, the chief engineer of the "Thetis," and I. The Marine Board was down there on a tour of inspection, and we asked Captain Hixson's permission, and it was granted.
1412. Then the evidence given by Mr. Broderick was not in accordance with the fact? It is not. He was not there at all times. The second engineer was there frequently when the coals were taken away.
1413. Do the whole of the stores for the ship now go down in the launch? They do. Before we had the launch we had to pay freight in the Watson's Bay boat.
1414. Did you reckon discount from the persons who supplied goods to the ship as your perquisite? I have not got it but on one occasion.
1415. Do you know if Captain Creer gets discount? I have heard that he does—I could not say positively.

1416. Is it true that ships frequently came inside the Heads as far as the Sow and Pigs and Chowder Bay without a pilot while you were captain of the steamer? There never was a ship that made a signal for a pilot but what was boarded in good time. Capt. Smith.
14 May, 1879.

1417. Was one of the Torres Straits mail-boats suffered to come up as far as Chowder Bay without a pilot? No.

1418. If we have been told so, that is not true? That is not true.

1419. With reference to Emanuel: did you never have him employed about your place except during the time that he was absent from the ship on leave? Never.

1420. If it has been stated otherwise, I presume that is not true? That is not true. He volunteered of his own accord, and also one of the look-out men who was off duty on that day.

1421. Mr. Eckford.] Did I understand you to say just now that you engaged Mr. Davies and the cook yourself? I engaged Davies, and Davies engaged the cook.

1422. You engaged Mr. Davies yourself, independently of the Marine Board? No; I consulted the Marine Board, before Mr. Hinton, a clerk at the Marine Board, put the advertisement in for the prove-dore. I intended to take him to Captain Hixson, so that he could engage him, but he said that he would leave it in my hands.

1423. Was there an agreement made up? There was.

1424. Between Mr. Davies and whom? Myself.

1425. Who drew it up? Mr. Lawrence, one of the clerks of the Marine Board.

1426. You stated just now that your reason for retiring from the position you were in was in consequence of your having to ask permission when you wanted to go anywhere? That was one reason. The principal reason was on account of my family. The school there was not a good one. My health for the last two months was not very good; and more than anything else, I wanted to get away from the undermining fellows down there. I never passed through such a miserable time of it as I did down there at Watson's Bay.

1427. Can you leave your present employment by permission? We have from sunset to sunrise. We have regular hours and all usual holidays.

1428. Did you at any time refuse to engage a British subject in order that you might wait for a cousin of Emanuel's to come over from Victoria? I did not.

1429. If that has been stated, it is not true? It is not true. Emanuel said that he knew a man who had been a whaler for many years, who was a capital boatman, and that he could be up from Victoria in a few days if I would wait for him. I said I would wait. It is a very great object to have good boatmen.

1430. Were there any prior applications made to you for employment—any applications before this man came from Victoria? Yes; directly there was a vacancy in the boat there was a number of applications at all times.

1431. What was your object in refusing the applications of the other parties, whoever they might be? I waited so that I could ensure getting a good boatman.

1432. If you did not know the man, how was it that you were guided by Emanuel's statements? Emanuel is a capital boatman himself; he was a whaler, and whalers always are good boatmen. A man who has been a whaler for many years must be a good boatman.

1433. Did you know that he had been a whaler of your own knowledge? I did not.

1434. Did you know anything against the applicants who applied to you for employment—as to whether they were good boatmen or not? I did not.

1435. Did you ever hear that a complaint had been made by Captain Creer against Captain Jack? No; not that I can recollect.

1436. Did ever you hear of a complaint having been made by Captain Jack against Captain Creer? Not that I am aware of.

1437. Neither one nor the other? Neither one nor the other.

1438. Mr. McElhone.] You knew a man named Thompson? Yes.

1439. He was mate, was he not? There was a man named Thompson mate for a short time.

1440. He was a master mariner, was he not? He had been previously.

1441. What sort of a character did he bear? Rather a strange one.

1442. He was a sober man, was he not? As far as I am aware. I have never seen him intoxicated.

1443. He was four or five months on the "Thetis"? Not so long as that. I think three months at the outside.

1444. How did you and he get on together? At first very well. The ship was on the slip—Mort's Patent Slip—when Captain Hixson came over with me to look at her. We went away, and no sooner did I return to the ship again than he commenced a tirade of abuse; what for I could not tell.

1445. Did you treat him in a coarse manner? No.

1446. Chairman.] Did you ever swear at him? Never.

1447. Mr. McElhone.] Did you ever threaten to punch his damned head? When he was abusing me.

1448. That is not usual in the service, is it? You cannot expect a man to allow himself to be called all sorts of things without replying.

1449. Would it not have been your proper course to report him for insubordination? It would.

1450. Your conduct was not very proper? It was not.

1451. Did he often take the "Thetis" out on his own responsibility? Very seldom.

1452. If he had stated that the pilots frequently came on board and asked where you were, and you were not on duty—it is not a fact that you were absent when you ought to have been on duty? No.

1453. You have said that you have not been away from the ship four days? The last month that I was in the service I was on duty in town.

1454. You have not been four days away from the ship at a time? No.

1455. If Thompson has stated that, it is not true? It certainly is not true.

1456. Do you recollect at any time that the vessel went out with only one pilot when she ought to have had two, and one boat when she ought to have had two? A vessel never takes more than one pilot.

1457. I am speaking of your vessel? Yes, she has on several occasions.

1458. How did that happen; was it when you were not on board? I could not say.

1459. If this man has stated that the vessel went out with one pilot and one boat, the other having been with you on shore since 2 o'clock—that he went out and brought the vessel in, and that afterwards, in turning her about, you came on board and abused him, is that true? I never heard of it. I never abused him, excepting in the disturbance to which I have referred at the dock. It has frequently happened that the vessel has gone out with one boat.

- Capt. Smith. 1460. If Captain Cork has stated that a vessel was prevented from going to sea until the next day, is that true? No; on one occasion I paid Captain Cork's passage.
- 14 May, 1879. 1461. On the occasion I am speaking of Captain Cork had to take a vessel out, and was prevented from going to sea until the next day because the launch was away? I never heard of it.
1462. If Captain Cork has stated that, it is not true? Not that I know of.
1463. Do you think that in a service of that sort it is necessary to have a captain, a chief mate, and a second mate to command a vessel like the "Captain Cook"? Yes.
1464. When you have pilots on board? They are simply passengers.
1465. Where is the necessity for a captain, a chief mate, and a second mate? I always made it a rule to have two officers, and I consider it is necessary. If one were away, the other was always sure to be there.
1466. Where a captain is so often away, as it is said you and Captain Creer have been, does not that go to prove that it is not necessary to have three officers? If that has been stated it is not true. When I was down there at first there was no second mate.
1467. The statements to which I refer, you say are false statements? Yes; I was less away than the captain of any ship in the service.
1468. Were you in the habit of going to boat races with the launch? Never with the launch.
1469. Have you been in the habit of going to Randwick races? Yes, occasionally, when I have had liberty from the Board to be away.
1470. Do you recollect interfering with the provedore when he wanted to discharge the cook? Yes.
1471. You did not pay the cook, did you? No.
1472. Had you any right to prevent the discharge of the cook? It was at the suggestion of some of the men that I interfered. Some of the men wished the cook to remain on board, and I thought it was hardly fair to discharge him.
1473. Did you say that he should not leave the ship until you ordered him? I may have said so, but I do not recollect that I did.
1474. If Davies has stated that this cook allowed his galley to be in a beastly state, would that be true? It is true. That refers to what occurred afterwards. The man went up into Balmain and got drunk. The galley was in a very dirty state, and the meat was destroyed.
1475. And through this the provedore, Davies, had to take the engineer's men to an hotel and pay for their food? Yes, and I immediately told him to discharge the cook.
1476. Did you consider that you were acting out of your proper place in refusing to allow this man to be discharged? No; all the men were under my control. As soon as Davies showed me the way the man was acting I discharged him immediately.
1477. How did Davies provide for the ship the first few months? Very well for the first few months.
1478. Were any complaints made about him? I had none.
1479. How was it that he was got rid of? The men all complained. Hyatt was the spokesman.
1480. Hyatt has already said you put him up to it? It is not true.
1481. Have you been ill lately? I was very unwell about two months before I left the steamer. I had a severe attack of rheumatic neuralgia, but I was never laid up.
1482. You were not laid up about the time you left? I was not.
1483. If Captain Creer has said that you left the pilot steamer on account of ill-health he has made a mistake? Yes.
1484. In regard to this man Thompson, did he at all times obey your orders? Yes, I think so.
1485. Did he do so cheerfully, quickly? No, quite the reverse; he was a very sulky-tempered man.
1486. If he has stated to the contrary, that was wrong? —
1487. Was he ever offensive to you in his manner? Only on that one occasion at the dock of which I have told you.
1488. Do you not think that in a position like that which you occupied that it was rather queer conduct on your part to be away four days at a time? I have not done so.
1489. If the other witnesses have stated that you have, their statement is untrue? Quite untrue.
1490. If you were a shipowner would you allow your captain to go to picnics and races if there were any work to do? When he was not required I would.
1491. According to your showing, you were always required on board this steamer? Yes, in that particular service.
1492. The men are always wanted, the captain particularly, in a position of that sort? If you had good reliable officers he could be spared.
1493. It is only a matter of opinion that three officers are required? The Marine Board issue pilots' licenses under instructions, and since I have been there I have done one-third of the pilots' duty, and I have never refused to take the turn of pilots who were away.
1494. You say that Thompson was a sober man? As far as I am aware.
1495. You do not know of your own knowledge whether the new captain has been away from the steamer? I have never been down but once since I left.
1496. Are you aware that Captain Creer, who is now the commander, was the junior pilot? He was the last appointed.
1497. He was several years the junior? Yes.
1498. Do you know why he was appointed over the heads of the others? I cannot say.
1499. Did you recommend him? I did not. I knew him in Adelaide. He became senior pilot there, promoted over the other pilots in the same way.
1500. On what terms were you on with the pilots? There was some grumbling with pilot Jack at the time I have referred to. I was always on good terms with Captain Creer.
1501. How did you and pilot Coates get on? Very well.
1502. It is a usual thing amongst sailors to grumble? Yes; but there was nothing out of the way.
1503. There was no unfriendly feeling between you and the pilots? No.
1504. Nothing to cause them to make any false statements about you? There were two or three pilots who did not like the change of system, and they have endeavoured all they can to make it a failure. When they were in the boats, if I am correctly informed, they were making £800 a year, and it was not likely they would like to come down to £300.
1505. Their duty was then more arduous and dangerous? I do not know. Their boats were larger, and there is a little danger at times in lowering the boats from the steamer. They had more time at home.
- They

They always lived ashore, and never went out without they were signalled. If a ship came off the Heads at night she would have to wait until the morning—I have had to do so myself. Capt. Smith.
14 May, 1879.

1506. Chairman.] If Mr. Davies has stated that you insisted on his sending supplies to your house, and never paid him for them, is that true? It is not.

1507. Did Mr. Davies ever present a bill to you for £9 12s. 6d. for goods supplied? No; but I believe he handed me a paper—a bill I suppose it was—when he was leaving the ship.

1508. Did he ever give you a bill which you objected to pay? It may have been a bill; whatever it was I objected to it.

1509. Mr. Davies was asked:

Your contract for the supply of the "Captain Cook" was confined to the ship, was it not? Yes.

The sending of supplies to Captain Smith's house was no part of your agreement? None whatever.

Did you send those supplies voluntarily, or at the solicitation of Captain Smith? He asked me to fetch them to his house, but he never paid me for them.

Did you ever bill him for them? Yes, and he chucked the bill out to me, and told me he would not pay me.

Did you bill him for the whole amount? For the whole £9 12s. 6d., percentage and all.

Did you bill him for the goods supplied—the beef, mutton, pork, and other things—apart from the money? No.

You billed him for the discount he stopped from your account? I never got it—he stopped it from my account.

Did you demur to the stoppage of £1 12s. 3d. in January? No, I did not dare to.

Did you object to the deduction of £1 19s. 3d. for the month of February? No, I was frightened of him—they are all frightened of him—he has so much power.

Then you did not object to the deduction of £4 12s. 6d., as percentage or discount from your accounts? No.

What was your reason for acquiescing in allowing the captain to make these deductions? People were frightened to speak to him, because they knew he would discharge them in a moment. I wanted to earn a living, and did not dare to say anything to him. As soon as ever I did not allow him so much as I used to do he told me to go."

Is that evidence true? It is not.

1510. Is it true in any particular? It is not.

1511. There was an agreement drawn up between yourself and Mr. Davies, was there not? There was.

1512. Who drew it up? Mr. Lawrence, of the Marine Board Office.

1513. Could you produce a copy of it? I have got the original in my pocket. I now hand it to you.

1514. Mr. McElhone.] When the coal was taken off for you and the other pilots, what means had you of keeping it separate from the Government store? The ship's coals were taken from the baskets of the colliers and capsized down the hold; the other coals, for the pilots and myself, were put on deck and never mixed at all.

1515. Chairman.] How much percentage did you receive while sending for these provisions for the ship? I did not receive £1 altogether. The first month I got a few shillings.

1516. Do you know if Mr. Davies received it? He says he did not.

1517. You paid once a month? Yes, and I got things at the cheapest rate.

1518. Mr. McElhone.] Is it advisable that the captain should act as provedore? It appears so. The men were better satisfied, for it increased their wages.

1519. Would it not be less trouble to have some other person to carry that duty out? It would be less trouble to the captain.

1520. The A.S.N. Co. have a provedore? Yes.

1521. The work is not done by the captain? No.

1522. Other Companies' steamers also have provedores? Yes.

1523. If that is considered necessary in supplying private ships, would it not be also very much better in the case of a ship owned by the Government? In the case of most ships the captain is not long enough in port to attend to it—he would not have time.

1524. Some captains under the old system used to make more money out of provedoring than they did out of the ship? Yes.

1525. And that system has been done away with for some time? It has.

THURSDAY, 29 MAY, 1879.

Present:—

MR. J. DAVIES, | MR. ECKFORD,
MR. McELHONE.

ANGUS CAMERON, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Captain Francis Hixson, President of the Marine Board, called in and examined:—

1526. Mr. McElhone, in the Chair pro tem.] You are President of the Marine Board? Yes.

1527. Any matter connected with the Pilot Service would be in your department? It would.

1528. Have you ever had any complaint from any of the pilots about Captain Smith in respect to the steam-launch? I remember on one or two occasions pilots having complained that the launch has not been available when they wanted it, but I do not think the complaint assumed the shape of any charge against Captain Smith. Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

1529. Did you never receive any letter with reference to the launch being used by Captain Smith or Captain Creer? There was one since Captain Creer has been in command of the vessel.

1530. Do you recollect who made the complaint? Captain Coutts.

1531. Do you recollect what was the nature of his complaint? If I remember right, it was to the effect that when the launch was wanted to take a pilot to Sydney to bring a ship down she was not available.

1532. Chairman, Mr. Cameron.] What is the legitimate use of this launch? She is called the up-harbour steam-launch, being used for the purpose of taking the pilots to town to bring ships to sea; also for the purpose of following ships up to take pilots out of them and bring them back to Watson's Bay, and for other business in connection with the pilot steamer.

1533. Do you recollect a person named Henry Davies being provedore of the "Captain Cook"? I do.

1534. Were representations at any time made to you as to the manner in which he carried out his contract? Yes.

1535. Of what nature were they? I remember Captain Smith telling me the men had come aft on the quarter-deck complaining that the provedore was not doing them justice; that he was making too much money out of them, and did not attend to his duties; and they asked that he should be dismissed, and another man put in his place. 1536.

Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

1536. Did this occur frequently, or more than once? My last answer refers to the final complaint that I heard about Davies; I think I had had a conversation with Captain Smith previous to this, and from the evidence I got from him then, I concluded that the man had not carried out his duties as he promised to do. The fact is that the victualling of this vessel is attended with a good deal of trouble, inasmuch as she is only occasionally at Watson's Bay, and therefore provisions might be sent from Sydney to her, and she is not there to receive them; hence there is a good deal of trouble in the vessel being properly provided. After discussion it was decided that the most convenient way of victualling the ship would be that the provodore should always remain on board, and Davies was engaged for this duty, but after he had been there a few days he gave up remaining on board the vessel, and lived on shore. This caused discontent on board, and hence the complaint against him.
1537. Were these complaints frequent? I think I had, perhaps, two conversations prior to the final one with Captain Smith on the subject.
1538. Then the complaints assumed merely a verbal character? Yes.
1539. On the complaints being made by Captain Smith, was any action taken by the Marine Board to institute any inquiry into the truth of Captain Smith's statements? No.
1540. Mr. Davies was then dismissed by Captain Smith? Yes.
1541. You have stated that one of the complaints made was that he was charging the men too much? Yes.
1542. Do you know the amount he was charging them? I scarcely wish to convey that he was charging them too much; the expression was that he was making too much money out of them.
1543. Who provided the vessel after Davies's dismissal? It was done by the master of the vessel, Captain Smith.
1544. Did he make as much out of them as Davies did? I cannot tell you what he made; I understood he made nothing.
1545. Were any inquiries made by the Marine Board, or yourself as its President, after Davies's dismissal, to find out how the men were being supplied, and what they were being charged for it? No. The fact is I occasionally visit the pilot steamer, and there are then opportunities for the men, if they have any complaints to make; and in the absence of such complaints, I do not seek for them.
1546. We have had statements made to this Committee that representations from the pilots have been coldly received by the Marine Board, or, as a witness puts it, they were snubbed, and one of the firemen examined almost declines to give answers to questions, on the ground that if he did he might lose his situation. Has any action been taken in the past to justify such an assertion? Most certainly not. I am sure the Marine Board would give any employé in its service or in its department every possible opportunity of being heard and having justice.
1547. I suppose you have no idea of how these contracts are carried out between buyer and seller? No.
1548. Have you ever heard of any person dealing with the butcher or baker or anybody of that sort when paying his monthly bills receiving so much per cent. discount on the cash payment? I have heard of such a thing.
1549. Have you ever heard of Captain Smith getting it, or Captain Creer? I have heard a rumour of it, but I have never heard it authoritatively, or known more about it than that I understood it was one of the things that would come before this Committee; in fact I only heard it in a casual way.
1550. There has never been any inquiry made by the Marine Board as to the truth of that? Certainly not; the matter has never come to the notice of the Marine Board.
1551. Is there any understanding between the Marine Board and Captain Creer at the present time that these discounts are allowed to the captain as his just perquisite? Such a thing has never come before the Marine Board in any shape—we know nothing about it.
1552. Where the men pay so much per head per month for their victuals on board this ship, would you not naturally imagine that any discounts that might be handed back to the captain would be returned to the men as so much profit? Most certainly.
1553. You have never had any complaint made since Davies's dismissal as to the manner in which the provodoring has been carried out? Never.
1554. Then if the witnesses before this Committee have stated that it has not been so well carried out ever since, nor so well carried out before, it is the first you have heard of it? It is the first I have heard of it.
1555. Captain Creer succeeded Captain Smith, I believe? He did.
1556. How long had Captain Creer then been in the Service? Some three or four years, speaking from memory; five years, perhaps.
1557. As a matter of fact, was he not by many years the junior of the other pilots? Not by many years—by three or four years.
1558. Some six or seven years less than Captain Cork or Captain Jack? Yes, less than Cork certainly.
1559. Is it true that Captain Creer has a relative on the Marine Board? I understand he has.
1560. A brother-in-law? Yes; but I only knew it within the last week or two.
1561. Was Captain Creer specially recommended by any one, after Captain Smith's resignation, for the vacant position? No. The fact is that, when Captain Smith resigned his position, the Marine Board went very fully into the merits and fitness of the different people in the establishment to succeed Captain Smith, and they formed the opinion that Captain Creer was the most fitted, and they recommended his appointment to the Treasurer.
1562. Then there was no recommendation from any person outside the Marine Board? Certainly not.
1563. Who supplies the "Captain Cook" steamship with coal? The Waratah Company has the contract to do so.
1564. Have you at any time heard of either Captain Smith or Captain Creer getting coals from the ship? I have not heard of their getting coals from the ship, but I have heard of their getting coals from the Company.
1565. Then if we have it in evidence that they are in the habit of getting coal of which no tally is taken—coal set aside for them and sent on shore by the men employed on the steamer—it is the first you have heard of it? It is the first I have heard of it.
1566. They would have no right to do so? Certainly not, unless they pay for it.
1567. If they pay for it, have they a right to obtain the labour of the men employed on the vessel to take it to their residences? No.

1568. If that has been admitted here, it is the first you have heard of it? No, I can scarcely say that; I have heard some rumours that certain of the officers of the steamer, living at Watson's Bay, have been supplied by the Waratah Company with coals, and I have a pretty good idea that some of the labour from the steamer must have assisted in getting the coals on shore.

Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

1569. Do you think, as a matter of fact, that it was right they should have the benefit of the labour employed on board the steamer in this manner? I do not think it is right. I remember, now you bring up the subject, that when the Steam Pilot Service was first established, the then engineer of the steamer came to me and asked if he could do so, stating that it was impossible, or almost impossible, for people to get coals at Watson's Bay, on account of being so out of the way, and I remember telling him that so long as it was paid for I did not take any particular objection to it.

1570. Whose duty would it be to keep tally of coals that went on board the vessel? The engineer, under direction of the captain.

1571. Just listen to this evidence, given by Mr. Broderick, the engineer of the "Captain Cook":—

551. Mr. Eckford.] How are you supplied with coal? A collier comes alongside and puts them on board direct, excepting one or two occasions.

552. While Captain Smith was in command of the ship, did he at any one time have the coal taken on shore from the vessel? Yes.

553. Was it at his own cost, or was it coal delivered on board for the use of the ship? It was taken from the coal on board; whether he paid for it I do not know.

554. Did you ever hear that any of the pilots got coal from the ship and paid the contract price for it? Yes; I have heard that they got the coal and paid for it in that way.

555. You do not know whether Captain Smith paid anything for what he got? No; I had been in the habit of keeping a memorandum, of taking tally of the coal, and handing it to Captain Smith, who gave the receipt for it; he did not allow me to sign the receipt, although it is usual for the chief engineer to sign for coals and stores. In this vessel I did at first sign for stores, though not for coals, but lately I did not sign for either, as I was not allowed.

556. Was it part of your duty to give the receipt? I considered it part of my duty as chief engineer to give a receipt, to be initialled afterwards by the captain of course. On some occasions—on many occasions I was going to say—the account of the coal I gave to Captain Smith included the coal that was put on the deck for him; but just before Captain Smith left he would not receive my tally for the coal without I separated the ship's account from his.

Do you not think that the system of putting coal on board the vessel for ship's use at the same time as coal meant for the officers opens the door to fraud? I think it very objectionable.

1572. Have you at any time had any representations made to you or to the Board as to Captain Smith or Captain Creer being absent from their duty? I never had any representations made to me on the subject. No.

1573. Then if it has been represented to this Committee that both Captain Smith and Captain Creer have been for considerable periods of time absent from duty—Captain Creer for nine days at a spell without ever going outside with the vessel—you have heard nothing of it? I have heard nothing of it.

1574. Such representations would be looked upon by you as neglect of duty on their part? If they were true, certainly. The fact is, I understand, that neither Captain Smith nor Captain Creer have ever left the station without permission from me or from the Marine Board.

1575. If Captain Creer did not go out with the vessel for nine days, he would not be justified in such neglect of duty? I should think not. I must point out to you that this steamer is provided with a liberal crew, a master, and two mates; and it is necessary she should have this liberal crew, because these men are on duty always—Sundays, holidays, all night and all day; they are in a very different position from other Government officers; and therefore it is scarcely possible that one man can always be at his post. If the master is away, there is always one of the mates to take his place.

1576. Would not three or four days at a spell, or nine days, be an unreasonable time to be absent from the vessel? Certainly, if it has occurred. It should not occur without the Board's permission.

1577. You have stated that there are a commander and two mates for this vessel, besides seamen? Yes.

1578. Each of these mates, I am given to understand, are men thoroughly qualified to take the vessel outside, if need be? They should be.

1579. And in addition, when she goes out, there are supposed to be two pilots on board? Yes.

1580. Either of whom would be perfectly capable of taking the steamer out or in as shipmasters? Yes.

1581. Do you approve of the system of the captain of the boat providing the vessel, and receiving discount upon the payments? I approve of him providing the vessel, because I understand the system has given far greater satisfaction than any other to the generality of the people on board; but as to his receiving discounts on the bills I must strongly disapprove of it.

1582. Must not the providing by the captain take up a certain portion of his time for ordering and obtaining supplies? Yes, I suppose it must take some of his time; but the fact is this providing of the vessel had been a source of discontent, and latterly the thing has gone smoothly; therefore I prefer the present system to any other that has prevailed.

1583. Do you not think it very likely that men in a humble position, such as firemen and seamen, would hardly care to make complaints against their captain, although they might readily do it in the case of a stranger? Perhaps so; though during my visits the men have occasionally made complaints. A man named Hyatt, a fireman, has on two or three occasions made complaints; and I have always given him a perfectly fair hearing. I do not think they would have any disinclination to come to me.

1584. Hyatt declined to answer questions here, on the score that he was a poor man, and did not wish to lose his position. Has anything ever taken place, to your knowledge, that justifies him in entertaining such a feeling? Certainly not.

1585. What is the salary of the captain of this vessel? £400 a year.

1586. Did Captain Smith apply to be removed from the ship to another position? He did.

1587. Since this inquiry commenced? Yes.

1588. He applied for a position at a smaller salary, did he not? Yes.

1589. That is a very unusual course, is it not? As a rule it is; it is generally the other way.

1590. Have you any idea of the reasons which governed Captain Smith in pursuing this course? He told me that he was tired of the arduous work that he had to do down at the Heads. There is no doubt that the post of master of this steamer is a very arduous one. He also represented that he had a young family, which he was anxious to have educated, and that he had some little property, and therefore he preferred the easier berth of Assistant Harbour Master, at a reduced salary, to the position he vacated at the Heads.

1591. If the pilots who have been examined here have stated roundly that Captain Smith, by his frequent absence, neglected his duty, it is the first you have heard of it? Yes.

Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

1592. Have you at any time had complaints made to you as to Captain Smith's overbearing demeanour to those under his command? Yes, I have had complaints to that effect. The mates of the vessel have complained that he was too reserved, and did not condescend or mix with them in so pleasant a way as they would like him to do.

1593. You have not heard anything of his bullying men, swearing at them, or conducting himself in a usually gruff manner? I have heard one case of that sort; and this was in reference to the same person who complained of his reserve—a mate belonging to the vessel, named Thompson. This man was very annoying, I suppose, to Captain Smith, and on one occasion he threatened to knock him down, or something of that sort.

1594. Punch his d——d head? He might have said that.

1595. How are the men on board this steamer paid? Monthly.

1596. By cash or by cheque? The money is paid by me, or the Accountant in the office, to the public credit of the master of the steamer, in the Bank of New South Wales, and I understand he pays the people by cheque.

1597. By his private cheque? By a cheque signed by him.

1598. He deducts from the amount paid into the Bank the amount due from each man for provedoring? Yes.

1599. Do you approve of that system? I do not disapprove of it; in fact we were somewhat driven to it. When the money was given to the men in full there was some delay in procuring their mess-money, and therefore we were driven into this system.

1600. Does that rule obtain in any other branch of the Public Service? I think not.

1601. The steam-launch is now used, since the captain has been provedoring the ship, for the purpose of carrying provisions to the ship, among other duties? Yes.

1602. Was she supposed to be at Davies's service for the same purpose when he was provedore? Yes.

1603. Were any complaints ever made by Davies that he could not get her? No, not to me.

1604. Did you ever hear of Davies being detained all night on the Circular Quay, watching his goods, not being able to get them down? No; but I think it quite probable he might have been, if the launch was in use for other duty.

1605. Have you ever heard of the launch being taken away for picnics and pleasuring? No. Of course I have a large department to attend to; details like these may escape my memory; and I am only telling you to the best of my memory. I do not remember it.

1606. How many pilots have you at Watson's Bay? Five.

1607. Are they enough for the performance of the duty? Yes, perfectly sufficient with the system we have now. The master of the steamer is a sixth pilot in reserve, and he frequently leaves the steamer and assists in the work of piloting.

1608. What is the relative status of the captain of the steamer and the pilots,—would you consider that when on board they were under the command of the captain—under his orders to any degree? I should look upon the pilots on board the steamer in the shape of passengers—that the captain would have no control over them, except so far as placing them in a position to do their duty.

1609. Have any of the pilots ever made any complaints as to the manner in which they were treated while on board? I do not remember any. I must tell you that I am quite prepared to hear that some of the pilots have made complaints, because they are certainly disaffected and altogether opposed to the present system.

1610. Is it a fact that the promotion of Captain Creer has created very considerable dissatisfaction among them? I think it very likely to have done so; but I think I should inform the Committee that the Board had not enough confidence in any of the other pilots to place them in the position in which they have placed Captain Creer.

1611. Mr. McElhone.] Why? Because so far as they dare they have opposed the present system—three of them especially.

1612. Chairman.] Representations have been made to this Committee, and hardly denied, that a man named Emanuel on board the steamer has been in the habit of going on shore and doing work at the houses of Captain Smith and Captain Creer—chopping wood, minding the child, and that sort of thing: I suppose if this exists it exists improperly? Yes, and unknown to the Board.

1613. Mr. Eckford.] Have you ever heard of any dissatisfaction with regard to the appointment of Captain Smith over the head of Captain Pettit? No. Captain Smith is not over the head of Captain Pettit; it is the reverse.

1614. Does not Captain Smith stand second to the Harbour Master? No; he is the junior of the three Harbour Pilots, and has the lowest salary; one has £350, one £300, and Captain Smith £250.

1615. It has been stated here that Captain Smith was rated next to the Harbour Master? That is not the fact.

1616. Have you ever heard that Captain Smith has been repeatedly for days together away from his duties on board the pilot ship? Certainly not; and I am astonished to hear that such a rumour should obtain currency.

1617. Have you ever heard that since Captain Creer's appointment he has been frequently away from his duties? I should like to ask you what is considered being away from his duties?

1618. Not being on board the ship for five or six days together? —

1619. Chairman.] We have it in evidence that Captain Creer has been for nine days recently away from the ship, and that Captain Smith was very frequently away for days together.

1620. Mr. Eckford.] This is the evidence of Captain Coutts, in answer to Mr. McElhone:—

704. You said just now that Captain Smith had been away from the ship repeatedly, for days together: have you known him to be away for three or four days together? The week when he was away at Botany he was on board only twice, and then he did not stay above three-quarters of an hour altogether; he merely came on board, asked a few questions, and sat down upon the skylight.

704. You say Captain Creer is also often away? Yes. As I have already stated, he was not on board the vessel from Sunday week until yesterday, to take her out.

1621. Did you ever hear that Captain Smith has ever been away from his ship repeatedly for three or four days together? No.

1622. Have you ever heard that Captain Creer has been repeatedly away from the vessel since he was placed in command? No, I have never heard it. In fact the orders of the Marine Board are that those gentlemen

Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

gentlemen are never to leave their duty without permission; this is something I was quite unprepared to hear, and I cannot understand its being true.

1623. Have you ever heard that the pilot steamer has gone to sea with only one boat—that the other was kept employed in landing coals for the captain? Never, so far as my recollection serves me just now.

1624. Did you ever hear of men belonging to the ship being employed in taking coals on shore for the captain? I must have understood that the men have landed coals for the captain of the vessel.

1625. Was ever a complaint made to you about this matter? Never.

1626. Nor to the Marine Board, that you are aware of? No; I don't remember.

1627. And that the vessel had to go to sea with only one boat? I never heard of it before.

1628. Are you aware whether any reply has been sent to that complaint—whether any letter has been sent? Certainly not; because I do not remember the complaint coming in.

1629. Then if it has been stated here that the complaints have been acknowledged by letter only, is that correct? It is not correct, so far as my memory serves me.

1630. And the complaint was never dealt with? So far as I remember.

1631. Your chief and second officers are regular seafaring men, fit to occupy the post of captain—fit to take charge of the ship? They should be.

1632. Did you ever hear of Captain Smith refusing to employ a British subject who had applied to him to fill a vacancy on board the ship? No, I never heard of it; he might have done so.

1633. Did you ever hear that a situation was kept open for a foreigner—a cousin of this Emanuel's that was on board the ship? No, I never heard of it.

1634. Do you consider that the captain of the pilot steamer can be safely dispensed with? Certainly not. I think it is necessary that the master of the steamer should have control of the whole establishment at Watson's Bay.

1635. Over pilots and all? Over the look-outs, and so on, and the pilots that are on board the vessel.

1636. You do not think one officer would be sufficient to have the management of that steamer—that is to say, dispense with the captain and second mate? Certainly not.

1637. You consider it would not be safe? I consider the master of the steamer should be supreme, and have the entire control of the whole establishment. Were it otherwise we should be drifting into the same difficulties as were experienced two or three years ago. In the case of a vessel called the "Oscar," that was wrecked, it came out in evidence that of five pilots who should have been at Watson's Bay four were in Sydney, and only one on the spot.

1638. You have never heard of Captain Creer being away from the vessel for eight days? Certainly not.

1639. Are you aware that there was a complaint made by Pilot Jack to the Marine Board, and that he was snubbed for his trouble? What was the nature of the complaint?

1640. The nature of the complaint was for going out to sea with one boat instead of two? I think I have a recollection now of Mr. Jack reporting something to that effect.

1641. He wrote to the Board complaining, and the Board snubbed him for his trouble—is that a fact? It is very possible he might have considered it a snub; if the Board thought he was interfering unnecessarily, no doubt they would have acted in such a manner as he would consider a snub.

1642. Was Captain Jack ever told that his conduct was insubordinate in making any of these complaints? Mr. Jack has been told he was insubordinate on one or two occasions—and he has been insubordinate.

1643. Are the pilots likely to be prejudiced or unprejudiced witnesses in this matter? I think they are very likely to be prejudiced.

1644. Chairman. What makes you think so? Prior to the establishment of this pilot steamer these gentlemen were drawing something like £1,200 or £1,300 a year each, out of which they had to keep a whale-boat and crew, which cost them perhaps £300 or £400 a year, and they were then doing as they liked. They were supposed to be competing for the vessels that came to the port, but in place of that they combined and carried out the duty in such a manner as to give great dissatisfaction. Since they have been dispossessed of these situations, and brought on board this steamer, they have had £350 a year each, and I do not think that under these circumstances they are very likely to be very favourable witnesses.

1645. Mr. McElhone. You do not say they would give false evidence? No, I have no wish to say that. I simply say they may be prejudiced.

1646. Mr. Eckford. What was the cost of the Pilot Service before this pilot steamship was put on? Between £6,000 and £7,000 a year.

1647. What is the cost of the Service now? About the same.

1648. Chairman. And it is more efficiently performed? Far more efficiently performed.

1649. Mr. Eckford. Is there any reason for you to think there is any bad feeling on the part of the pilots towards the commander of the pilot ship? I fancy they would naturally be jealous of him, as he was the junior pilot and has been chosen as master of the steamer and placed to a certain extent over their heads.

1650. Mr. Davies. Did it ever come under your knowledge that the pilot steamer has frequently gone out to bring in vessels without Captain Smith? It has not been frequently brought to my knowledge, but I know that from the nature of his position she would occasionally go out without his being on board. I pointed out just now that the master of this vessel is supposed to be on duty all night and all day—Sundays, holidays, and at all times—and therefore it is scarcely possible he should be on board always when the ship is going to sea.

1651. You are not aware that it has frequently been the case that the pilot steamer has gone out without the captain? No. I know that when Captain Smith was first appointed he scarcely ever left the vessel; he might have done so afterwards, but it has not been officially brought to my notice.

1652. Has it ever been reported to you that Mr. Davies has supplied Captain Smith with a quantity of provisions for his own use, and that he refused to pay Davies for such supply? No, I know nothing whatever about it.

1653. You have already explained that Captain Smith has taken a position very much lower in grade, and at a lower rate of pay, than that which he occupied as master of the pilot steamer? Yes.

1654. Did not that strike you as a very remarkable proceeding on the part of Captain Smith, to give up, since this inquiry was instituted, a position of £400 and accept one at £250? I think it is rather a strange proceeding, and if he had left the department altogether I think it would have been suspicious, but he is there now to answer for anything he has done just as he would have been in his former position.

1655. What are his duties now? To move ships about the harbour, to and from the wharfs, and so on.

Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

1656. Have any official complaints been made to you as to his conduct during the time he was captain of the pilot steamer? Never more than the cases I have referred to previously.

1657. What has been his general conduct since he has been in the Service? He was a stranger to me when he first went there; in fact I thought another man would have suited the position better; but I must say the opinion I have formed of Captain Smith has been satisfactory.

1658. The Chairman put some questions with reference to the supply of coal to Captain Smith—Do you consider that a satisfactory mode of getting a supply? No, I do not.

1659. Do you think the system of the captain of the steamer paying the men by his own private cheque a proper and satisfactory one? I do not think it is objectionable. If the money were sent to him in cash to Watson's Bay there would be a certain amount of risk attending the transaction; the money might be lost; and I think, it safer and better that the system that is adopted should be carried out, that is to say, that the money should be paid to the account of the captain in the Bank of New South Wales, and that he should pay the men by his cheque.

1660. What is the total amount paid every month? Between two and three hundred pounds.

1661. Does it not strike you as being a great temptation to a dishonest captain? I take it that if the employes were not paid at the proper time I should very soon know of it.

1662. Have complaints been made by the men that they have not received their pay for several days after it has become due? No; as far as I understand, the men are paid as punctually as anybody else.

1663. Could not the department pay the men direct? It would inconvenience the department, and necessitate the men coming to town, and give a great deal of trouble.

1664. How are the mud pilots paid? They come to the office and get their cheques.

1665. The whole amount for the department is not paid to your private credit? The amount for the department is paid into the Bank of New South Wales to my public account—some two or three thousand pounds a month; and I give cheques, in some cases to individuals, in others to heads of departments. For instance, the pilot stations along the coast are paid in the same way as the pilot steamer is, the lump sum is paid to the credit of the man in charge at the station, and he pays his men by cheque or cash as is most convenient.

1666. You have already been asked with reference to the alleged frequent absence from duty on the part of Captain Creer since his appointment—Has any intimation been made to you of his absence? No; this is the first I have heard of it.

1667. I suppose a feeling of jealousy naturally exists where a man like Captain Creer has been appointed over the heads of those longer in the Service? I think so; it is quite natural; but as I pointed out just now, certain of these gentlemen have gone so far in opposition to the present system that the Board had not confidence in them. Another reason was that Captain Creer is the only man amongst them who ever had regular command of a steamer like the pilot steamer, and there are many details in the management of such a vessel which can only be learned by experience.

1668. Chairman.] Would you not think that a man who held a certificate from the London Board of Trade would have been competent to take care of that steamer? I do not say he is not competent: I say the other man had a greater recommendation from actual experience.

1669. Mr. McElhone.] You said just now that you have never heard of either Captain Smith or Captain Creer being away from the vessel day after day. Had you heard that they have been away, almost without putting a foot on board for several days together, would not you consider it necessary to do something to compel them to attend to their duty? Yes, certainly, if I had found it to be so.

1670. How could this happen without your knowing it? The fact is the master of the vessel has orders that if he wants to leave the station he must have permission, but he goes to and from the ship without asking permission, and not only does he do so, but it is necessary that he should.

1671. Do you not imagine that the Marine Board, having snubbed some of the pilots, has had something to do with this report not having been made? It might have.

1672. It is stated by Captain Jack that he got snubbed—Do you not think that that would interfere with the pilots reporting Captain Creer or Captain Smith? It might do so.

1673. Would it not lead you to believe that if Captain Creer could be away for eight or nine days in succession a captain is not required if you have a good chief officer? Certainly not. If he was away from the vessel he does not appear to have been away from the station.

1674. Have you any reason to believe that any of these pilots would go out of their way to tell untruths to injure Captain Creer or Captain Smith? I hope they are all men who are truthful.

1675. You have no reason to believe they would wilfully tell a lie? I should hope they would not wilfully tell a lie.

1676. I will call your attention to the evidence of Captain Jack:—

903. You have already stated that Captain Smith was frequently away from his duty? Yes.

904. Have you any means of knowing whether he was performing any duty when he was away on shore? No.

905. Do you know as a fact that he has been away on the spree, pleasuring? Yes, I do.

906. You have already stated that Captain Creer has been away from the ship for a week at a time when she has gone to sea?

Yes, he has not been out in her for a week within the last fortnight; for eight days he never went out.

907. Prior to the last fortnight was it the same? He seems to go out just when he likes, as though it did not matter whether he went or not.

908. You say the chief and second officers have been shipmasters? Yes, very old shipmasters.

909. Do you consider it necessary for the pilot steamer to have on board a captain, chief and second officers, to take her out and bring her inside the Heads? I do not.

Captain Creer has denied this; but if it is true, do you not think he is guilty of wilful neglect of his duty, and ought to be punished? Certainly, I think he ought if he cannot give a proper explanation.

1677. Do you think these men would wilfully fabricate this story? If you ask me who I consider the most credible witness, Captain Creer or Captain Jack —

1678. No; I ask whether these men would fabricate this story to injure Captain Creer? I should hope they would not. When you tell me one man says a thing and the other denies it, it puts me in a difficulty. I would believe Captain Smith and Captain Creer as soon as anybody in Watson's Bay.

1679. Would you believe Captain Cork? I believe he is truthful.

1680. You have known him for some time? Yes.

1681. Would Captain Jack fabricate this story? I hope they are all men who would tell the truth.

1682. They would naturally feel injured at having this junior pilot placed over their heads? No doubt.

1683. You would—any man would? Yes; but although I might be prejudiced in the matter, I hope I would not go so far as to lie about it.

1684.

ON THE PILOT STEAMER "CAPTAIN COOK."

Capt.
F. Hixson.
29 May, 1879.

1684. Persons could feel annoyed at having a junior pilot placed over their heads without being guilty of what would be almost perjury—not legally so, for they are not sworn here—to fabricate this story to injure these captains? No doubt.

1685. If it is true that one of these captains was away for eight or nine days within a fortnight, would that not show that it is not necessary to have a captain at all? No. My impression is that the steamer should be commanded by a man who should be supreme over everybody on the station.

1686. If you were owner of a vessel of that sort, you would compel them to do the duty they were paid for? Certainly I would. I consider both these men most culpable if that statement is true.

1687. Would consider them culpable if they employed Emanuel in the way stated? Yes.

1688. If the pilots say this is the case, would you believe them? I should think they had some ground for what they say.

1689. Chairman.] Have you ever heard of vessels proceeding a considerable distance up the harbour before being boarded by a pilot, through the laches of the captain of this steamer? No. There were frequent complaints in that respect before the steamer was employed, but since then we have never had a complaint that I remember.

1690. If we have had such a statement made here, it is the first you have heard of it? Yes.

1691. Mr. McElhone.] Have any complaints been made about the vessel having to go out with only one boat? Yes, a letter was written on the subject.

1692. What was the result? The Board thought the matter so trivial that they took very little notice of it. The fact is two boats are not required, except to be ready in the event of accident to one.

1693. If the second boat was employed taking coal on shore for the captain, that would not be trivial? Certainly not.

1694. Would she not be more in her place with the steamer outside? Certainly.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

RICHMOND RIVER BAR.

(PETITION OF ELECTORS OF RICHMOND.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 4 April, 1879.

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned Electors of the district of Richmond River,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH:—

That during the twelve months ended on the 31st day of December last, the trade of the Richmond employed 292 vessels, of a carrying capacity of 37,271 tons.

That notwithstanding the services of a powerful tug-boat, the "Francis Hixson," subsidized by the Government for the term of two years, there are many difficulties as well as losses at times, both in entering and leaving the Richmond, which your Petitioners believe would not occur if proper works were carried out for the improvement of the entrance of the river.

That your Petitioners respectfully invite your consideration to the fact that the Richmond has, until within the last six weeks, had three steamers fully occupied in the carrying trade between this district and the port of Sydney, but that in consequence of the shoaling of the bar, one has been taken out of the trade, and another has been disabled attempting to come in, and a valuable cargo rendered almost useless; so that now their communication to Sydney by steam, so important to the well-being of your Petitioners, is confined to one boat, which from detentions arising from the same cause will be compelled to remove to some more favoured locality, thereby depriving a population of nearly eight thousand souls of the only profitable means of sending perishable produce to market, and of receiving in return the supplies necessary for their support and the transaction of their internal trade.

That your Petitioners have reason to suppose, from an opinion given by the late Lieutenant Gowlland, and from opinions expressed by many of the masters of vessels trading to the Richmond, that beneficial works to improve the entrance of the river might be carried out at a comparatively reasonable outlay.

That, taking into consideration the present trade of the Richmond, and the impetus that must be given to it when the sugar industry becomes more fully developed, as well as the future that may be anticipated from a district which may be looked upon as the garden of the Colony, your Petitioners believe that they are justified in asking you to direct that a properly qualified person may be sent to examine the entrance of the Richmond, with power to take evidence and obtain all necessary information, and to give an opinion as to what improvements could be effected, and at what probable cost.

That your Petitioners pray your Honorable House will take the above premises into your favourable consideration.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.
