LETTER-CARRIERS.

(PETITION FOR INCREASED REMUNERATION.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 6 March, 1883.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned Letter-carriers,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That your Petitioners are engaged as Letter-carriers in connection with the General Post-office, at Sydney.

2. That the salaries received by your Petitioners as such Letter-carriers range from £100 to £156 per annum, according to grade, and that the greater number of your Petitioners have been employed in the Public Service for a considerable time, in some instances as long as thirty years.

3. That your Petitioners are with difficulty, in consequence of the increase of house-rent and high price of necessaries in Sydney aforesaid, unable to maintain and support themselves and families out of the salaries so received by them as aforesaid; and that as the duties of your Petitioners require their early attendance at the office in the morning they are compelled to reside in or as near to Sydney aforesaid as possible.

4. That the labours of your Petitioners have been increased of late to four deliveries per diem, instead of three as heretofore, and that your Petitioners are engaged almost constantly for a period of ten hours daily, namely, from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., in discharging their duties, as well as delivering on public holidays one delivery at least.

5. That the salaries paid to your Petitioners are much less than persons employed in a similar trade by the Government, and much less than the wages paid to artizans, workmen, and labourers engaged in the various trades or callings in Sydney aforesaid, namely:—

Painters, who receive from 9s. to 11s. a day of eight hours.

Stonemasons, who receive from 11s. to 14s. a day of eight hours.

Plasterers, who receive from 9s. to 11s. a day of eight hours.

Bricklayers, who receive from 11s. to 13s. a day of eight hours.

Warders (Gaol), who receive from 7s. to 9s. a day of eight hours.

Turncocks, who receive from 9s. to 11s. a day of eight hours.

Labourers, who receive from 7s. to 10s. a day of eight hours.

6. That your Petitioners are exposed, in the discharge of their duties, to all kinds of weather, and that very great responsibility is attached to the discharge of such duties in a proper manner.

Your Petitioners therefore respectfully pray that your Honorable House will be pleased to favourably consider the matter of this Petition.

SINKING OF THE "AUSTRAL."

(POWERS OF THE MARINE BOARD AND THE IMPERIAL BOARD OF TRADE—OPINION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 1 March, 1883.

OPINION of the Hon. the Attorney-General in re the "Austral" casualty, the Marine Board of this Colony, and the Imperial Board of Trade.

MY Honorable Colleague the Colonial Treasurer has referred to me for advice on the question of the right of the Imperial Board of Trade to interfere with the jurisdiction of our Marine Board in the conduct of official inquiries. I may say at once that no such right exists; nor am I aware that any such pretension on the part of the Board of Trade has been made. On the sinking of the "Austral," the Marine Board would appear, from papers sent herewith, to have entered on the inquiry, with which, in my opinion, that Board should have proceeded to the end. On the 1st of December last year a letter was addressed by the Solicitors of the Orient Company, the owners of the ship, to the Colonial Secretary, suggesting that directions should be given to the Marine Board of this Colony to stay its proceedings in the matter of the inquiry into the sinking of the vessel. It was represented in this communication that the Imperial Board of Trade had ordered a full and searching inquiry in England into this disaster, and that a telegram had been sent by the Imperial Government to His Excellency the Governor, requesting the Marine Board inquiry to be stayed. This telegram was received. As a matter of fact the proceedings were stayed, and no inquiry was held by the Marine Board. I am now in possession of information which shows how this was accomplished. In a despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, of date the 29th November, 1882, a copy of a letter from the Board of Trade, of date the 25th November, is referred to. This communication formed the subject of the telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies to the Governor. It represented that it would be very desirable that the inquiry should be held in England, because questions of construction and stability were involved in it, which could not properly be investigated without the plans of the ship and the evidence of certain scientific witnesses who were in England; and it requested the Colonial Secretary to move His Excellency the Governor to forego the projected inquiry. This was done and the inquiry was no longer prosecuted. I am clearly of opinion that no circumstances existed to justify the Marine Board in abandoning the inquiry. I know it is contended that, under a provision contained in a recent Imperial Statute, a difficulty would have arisen had the inquiry been proceeded with here. I am unable to perceive the existence of any such difficulty. This vessel foundered in our harbour. Her sinking occasioned the deaths of several persons. The material question for the investigation of the Marine Board was whether this casualty was occasioned by the incompetency or misconduct of any officers of the ship. All the evidence necessary for such an investigation could be obtained here—and nowhere else. The Marine Board could have procured it at once, and without difficulty. By surrendering its functions, it has in all probability rendered the procurement of such evidence impossible anywhere. By the 45th and 46th Victoria chap. 46, it is provided that no inquiry should be held under the Act into any shipwreck or other casualty, or charge of incompetency or misconduct, which has once been the subject of such an inquiry, and has been reported on by any competent Court or tribunal in any part of Her Majesty's dominions, or in respect of which the certificate of a master, mate, or engineer, has been suspended or cancelled by a Naval Court; and also that when any inquiry has been commenced in the United Kingdom no inquiry shall be made in the same case under the authority of this Act in any British possession. Now, in the first place, no such inquiry had taken place at the time when the Marine Board abandoned its inquiry. It is needless to say no such inquiry had been reported upon by a competent tribunal. Indeed, as far as I can perceive from the papers, no such inquiry had been, or has now been, entered upon by the Board of Trade; and I am informed no witnesses have left this Colony for England up to the present time to give evidence in such inquiry. The consequence is that no satisfactory inquiry can now take place at all. I am not in any way impressed by the argument as to the necessity of scientific witnesses being called. It may have been very interesting as a question of naval architecture to have obtained the testimony of such witnesses; but I am constrained to point out that the absence of such witnesses from this country (which by the way may be an entirely gratuitous assumption for all I know) furnished no justification for the course pursued by the Marine Board. Their duty was clearly to ascertain whether this casualty had been occasioned by incompetency or misconduct. This question could not have been affected in any way by peculiarities in the construction of the vessel, if any such peculiarities existed, for these circumstances should have been fully known to those in charge of the ship, and who were responsible for her safety. To hold anything else would be to suppose that this vessel was under the care of men who knew nothing of the principles of her construction; and that such information could alone be obtained from people in England who had nothing to do with the navigation of the ship. I am clearly of opinion that the Marine Board surrendered its undoubted right to make this inquiry, and that the result of such surrender will necessarily be that no satisfactory inquiry can be made at all, and that a failure of justice has taken place. The greatness of the casualty, the magnitude of the interests, and the importance of the principles involved in the case, have seemed to me to justify the labour which I have bestowed on its consideration. I would suggest to my Honorable Colleague the Colonial Treasurer that, in order to avoid the danger of the course which has been pursued being taken as a precedent, a copy of this Opinion should be forwarded to the Marine Board for its guidance.

WILLIAM BEDE DALLEY,
Attorney-General.

Crown Law Offices, Macquarie-street,
February 27th, 1883.

1883.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

SINKING OF THE "AUSTRAL."

(MINUTE OF THE MARINE BOARD, AND FURTHER OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL THEREON.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 7 March, 1883.

MINUTE of the Marine Board.

THE Marine Board have to acknowledge the receipt of the printed copies of the opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General upon their action with respect to the inquiry into the foundering of the steamship "Austral," which opinion they remark had been supplied to, and commented upon, by the Press, before it reached the Board.

The Board deprecate this action, because their conduct has thus been prejudged by the public before the Board were allowed an opportunity of considering the opinion which conveys so grave a censure upon them. It now appears, from the papers forwarded to this office, that Mr. Dalley has given his opinion upon incomplete data, and that several communications, including those from the late Colonial Treasurer, which mainly guided the Board in the action they took, have not been submitted to him at all. They would also remark that the papers now received by the Board, with Mr. Dalley's opinion, and which appear to have formed the grounds for that opinion, have never been seen by the Board until now, and therefore it is needless to say could have had no influence upon their action in the matter. Under these circumstances they respectfully request, in justice to themselves and for their future guidance, that these papers should be forwarded to the Honorable the Attorney-General, and he be at once moved to give his opinion as to whether, in view especially of the communications from the Treasury, the Marine Board would have been justified in defiantly going on with the "Austral" inquiry after the Colonial Treasurer had decided that the inquiry should not be held by them.

The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade.

By order,

G.S.L., 5/3/83.

The Attorney-General, for perusal.—G.R.D., 6/3/83.

FURTHER OPINION of the Honorable the Attorney-General in re the "Austral" Casualty, the Marine Board of this Colony, and the Imperial Board of Trade.

My honorable colleague, the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer, has forwarded to me the minute of the Marine Board, addressed to the Under Secretary for Finance and Trade, concerning my opinion of the 27th February, as to the conduct of the Marine Board with respect to the inquiry into the foundering of the steamship "Austral."

Concerning their remark that the opinion had been made the subject of comments in the press before it reached the Board I have no observation to offer. The document was laid on the Table of the Assembly by my colleague, and by that circumstance became properly the subject for public discussion. The Marine Board complains that several communications, including some from the late Colonial Treasurer, which, as is alleged, mainly guided the Board in the action they took, were not submitted to me before my opinion was asked, and that such opinion was consequently given upon incomplete data. The Board also remarks that certain papers forwarded to the Board with my opinion had not been seen by the Board previously. Under these circumstances the Board requests, for its future guidance, that these papers should be forwarded to me, and that my opinion should be obtained as to whether the Board, in view especially of certain communications from the Treasurer, forwarded herewith, would have been justified in going on with the "Austral" inquiry after the Colonial Treasurer had decided that the inquiry should not be held by the Board. The papers forwarded to me consist of Lord Kimberley's cablegram to His Excellency (of which I was already aware), an inquiry by the Governor as to whether the request contained in that telegram could be carried out, and three other communications, to which I shall presently refer, neither of which I had actually seen, but of the substance of which I was perfectly well aware, and neither of which affect the case in the slightest degree. The first, dated 27th November, is a letter from the Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade, asking that the inquiry should be adjourned as the Home Government, at the instance of the Board of Trade, were in communication with this Government on the subject. The two other documents are as follow:—

Telegram to Young, addressed to The Honorable James Watson.

"THE Imperial Government have telegraphed to His Excellency, at the instance of the Board of Trade, requesting that the inquiry re 'Austral' may be held in London, on return of the vessel, instead of in Sydney. The telegram was forwarded to the Treasury by His Excellency, and on my own responsibility I asked the Marine Board to delay commencing proceedings. They adjourned accordingly till Monday next. I now beg to ask whether there is any objection to the request of the Home Government."

Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Telegram from Young, addressed to The Hon. G. Eagar, the Treasury.

"I approve of the course you have taken in directing that the inquiry into the sinking of the 'AUSTRAL' shall not be held by the Marine Board.

JAMES WATSON,
1st Dec., 1882."

I see nothing in either of these communications to justify the Marine Board in discontinuing the inquiry. The Colonial Treasurer had no authority whatever to arrest the inquiry, or influence it in any way. If he could do such a thing in the case of the "Austral," at the request of any one in England, he could do so in any and every case, and divest, by his individual action, the Marine Board of its entire jurisdiction. The Marine Board should have at once resisted any such an encroachment on its functions, and respectfully offered its protest against any such interference. The Marine Board was alone charged with these important functions, and formed the only proper Court of Inquiry into this matter; and the members of this Court, like the members of all Courts, were bound to uphold its efficiency by executing its powers and and preserving its independence. With regard to the papers which the Board alleges it now sees for the first time, I may remark that it would have been impossible for the Board to have seen them at any earlier period. They have only just arrived from England, and could not of course have been brought under the notice of the Board when it abandoned its inquiry. The papers in no way affect the question, which remains precisely as I have stated it, and which is in effect that the only satisfactory inquiry which could have taken place concerning this casualty was abandoned by the Marine Board.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

SINKING OF THE "AUSTRAL."

(LETTER FROM SOLICITOR TO BOARD OF TRADE, AND FURTHER OPINION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 14 March, 1883.

The Solicitor, Board of Trade, to The Shipping Master, Sydney.

In re foundering of "Austral."

Sir,

4 January, 1883.

Upon the return of the necessary witnesses to the United Kingdom, the Board of Trade contemplate holding an official investigation into the circumstances attending the damage sustained by this vessel through foundering at your port.

I shall feel much obliged if you will kindly obtain and send me depositions, duly sworn before a Justice or Magistrate, in the manner prescribed by section 270 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, from any persons at Sydney who can give material evidence in the matter, and particularly from the stevedore or other person who unloaded the inward cargo, as to the weight, nature and position of the cargo and bunker coals left on board the vessel, and as to whether, when she was unloaded, the ballast tanks were entirely or partially full.

From some other person as to the position of the vessel, the depth of water in which she was floating, and whether salt, fresh, or brackish, the manner in which she was secured, and her draught of water and freeboard or clear side when unloaded.

If the vessel was moved between this time and the time she foundered, describing the mooring, the stability of the ship during the process, the precise point where she was again brought up, the depth and nature of water, and how secured.

As to whether between the time the vessel last anchored and her foundering the water in the ballast tanks was increased or decreased, and if so to what extent.

From the merchant who supplied the outward cargo and coals, as to the weight, nature, and description thereof.

From William Hadden, as to the stability or otherwise of the vessel, and he should give full and distinct reasons for the opinion expressed. As to the list the vessel took when alongside the wharf, and the cause thereof. As to loading the vessel upon the last occasion; and he should describe fully the stowage and distribution of the coals and cargo taken in, and as far as possible the weight of the quantities stowed in the several portions of the ship. As to the circumstances attending the foundering, and the cause thereof.

Please send me depositions from trimmers, stevedores, or other persons who can give any material evidence in the matter; and I shall be glad if you will kindly request the gentleman taking the depositions to carefully peruse the evidence given at the inquest and the cross-examination of the witnesses, and to include in the depositions the evidence given at the inquest.

Will you kindly obtain and send me a copy of the evidence given at the inquest, and the result thereof; and it will be convenient if you could have the depositions sworn before a Magistrate or Justice by the persons who made them.

May I call your attention to the importance of this evidence being taken in a careful and exhaustive manner, as a second reference to your port will naturally cause a delay, and the detention of witnesses in this country for a period of three months.

I am, &c.,

WALTER MURTON,

Solicitor, Board of Trade.

Further Opinion of the Hon. the Attorney-General in re sinking of the "Austral" and the Imperial Board of Trade.

THE Colonial Treasurer has to-day forwarded to me a letter from the Solicitor to the Board of Trade, addressed to the Shipping Master here, and dated 4th January, 1883. In this communication the Solicitor intimates that "on the return of the necessary witnesses to the United Kingdom the Board of Trade contemplates holding an official investigation into the circumstances attending the damage sustained by this vessel through foundering in this port." The Solicitor for the Board of Trade requests the Shipping Master to obtain here and forward to England depositions duly sworn before a Justice or Magistrate, from any persons in Sydney who can give material evidence in the matter, and he goes on to specify an immense mass of information which he requires, and which could only be obtained by a searching investigation, conducted by a competent tribunal having authority to summon witnesses, require their attendance at any inquiry, and enforce the production of all documents relating to such inquiry; and administer oaths, or require statutory declarations of the truth of the statements made in any examination. All the information which he now asks could have been obtained only by our own Marine Board. It is needless to say that the procurement of such information forms no part of the duty of the Shipping Master, and that he is clothed with none of the powers which would enable him to obtain such information. His duties under the Seamen's Law Consolidation Act 27 Vic. No. 13 are to facilitate the making of apprenticeships to the sea service—to facilitate the engagement and discharge of seamen—and to keep a registry thereof,—and to perform such other duties as are expressly committed to him by this Act. Among these the one which he is now asked to discharge is not included. He has no power whatever to do that which the 35 Vict. No. 7 authorizes the Marine Board to do. The Marine Board could by summons under the hand of the President require the attendance of all such persons as they might think fit, upon any authorized inquiry, require answers or returns to any questions, enforce the production of all papers, log-books, or any other documents relating to any such inquiry, administer oaths or declarations of the truth of the statements made in such inquiry. It appears to me that the section of the Imperial Act to which the Solicitor of the Board of Trade draws the attention of the Shipping Master is not applicable to the case. By section 270 of the 17 and 18 Victoria, chap. 104, it is provided that depositions made in the course of any legal proceedings instituted in any part of Her Majesty's Dominions may, if the witness cannot be found in the place where he has made his deposition, be used in any other place than that in which it was made. It seems to me that by arresting the action of the Marine Board, which was the only body before which legal proceedings could be instituted for this inquiry, it has become quite impossible to do what is now desired. I may remark that I feel quite unable to account for the course adopted of addressing the Shipping Master on this important subject, and ignoring the Marine Board. The only depositions taken in this important matter were those which were taken at the Coroner's inquest, held on the 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, 20th, and 21st November last. On inquiring for these depositions at the office of the Minister for Justice, and requesting that they should be forwarded to me with the view of determining whether I should allow these original documents to leave the Colony, I find that in accordance with an application, made on behalf of Captain Murdoch, recently commander of the "Austral," the whole of the original depositions were forwarded for the information of the Board of Trade in December of last year, and thus at this moment, as far as I can gather, no original papers taken in connection with this matter in any Court now exist in this Colony, and the only tribunal which could have undertaken the investigation has been prevented from performing that duty.

My Lord,

Downing-street, 29 November, 1882.

This matter formed the subject of my telegram to you of the 24th instant and your reply of the 28th instant.
I have, &c.,

[Enclosure to No. 6.]

The Secretary to the Board of Trade to The Under-Secretary of State, Colonial Office.

Sir,
Board of Trade, Whitehall Gardens, 25 November, 1882.
I am directed by the Board of Trade to state, for the information of the Earl of Kimberley, that it has been represented to the Board of Trade that it is very desirable that the inquiry should be held in this country into the capsizing of the s.s. "Austral" while being laden at the port of Sydney.
They are advised that questions of construction and stability are involved which cannot be properly investigated without the plans of the ship and the evidence of certain scientific witnesses who are in England.
As the holding of an inquiry in New South Wales will preclude the holding of an inquiry in this country (except as an appeal case or by way of rehearing), I have to request that you will move His Lordship to request the authorities of New South Wales to forego the projected inquiry into this case.
I have, &c.,
GEORGE L. SWANSTON.

No. 7.

Messrs. Salter and Barker to The Colonial Secretary.

S.S. "Austral."

Sir,
58, Hunter-st., Sydney, 1 December, 1882.
As the solicitors and on behalf of the Orient Company, the owners of this ship, we have to apply to you, as representing the Government here, to cause directions to be given to the Local Marine Board in Sydney to stay proceedings in this Colony in the matter of an inquiry into the sinking of this vessel, which inquiry stands adjourned to Monday next. It has been notified to us from England that the Imperial Board of Trade have ordered a full and searching inquiry in England into this disaster, where scientific evidence from the designers, builders, and surveyors, as to the construction of the ship can be had, without which no inquiry can be deemed satisfactory.
We are advised that a telegram has been sent by the Imperial Government to His Excellency the Governor, under section 3 of the Merchant Shipping Amendment Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vic, c. 76), requesting the colonial inquiry to be stayed. This Act provides expressly that when the English Board of Trade commence an inquiry no other one shall be held in the Colonies.
We therefore, for the above reasons, beg to support the request of the Home Authorities. May we suggest, as the matter is so urgent, that the matter may be referred to the Attorney-General or Crown Solicitor, so that action may be taken on this telegram before Monday.

We have, &c.,
SALTER & BARKER.

Will the Crown Solicitor kindly give an opinion with regard to this matter.—C.W. B.C., 4/12/82.

No. 8.

The Crown Solicitor to The Principal Under-Secretary.

Sir,
Crown Solicitor's Office,
Sydney, 5 December, 1882.
I have the honor to return herewith Messrs. Salter & Barker's letter to the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, of date 1st instant, respecting the s.s. "Austral," and to state that I notice in this morning's Herald that the Marine Board yesterday agreed to stay proceedings and remit the inquiry for the consideration of the Board of Trade.

It is therefore not necessary that I should advise upon the matter
I have, &c.,

Minute of the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer on No. 6.

THE question raised on the "Austral's" case is a very important one, and may affect the administration of the law in future cases. The right of the Board of Trade practically to ignore and suspend the operation of the Navigation Act is a matter of law, and I would ask my Honorable Colleague the Attorney-General to consider this case and favour me with his opinion thereon. The question is likely to crop up in Parliament during the next few days.—G.R.D., 17/2/83.

The Crown Solicitor, B.C., 19/2/83.—G.E.

No. 10.

Opinion of the Hon. the Attorney-General in re the "Austral" casualty, the Marine Board of this Colony, and the Imperial Board of Trade.

MY Honorable Colleague the Colonial Treasurer has referred to me for advice on the question of the right of the Imperial Board of Trade to interfere with the jurisdiction of our Marine Board in the conduct of official inquiries. I may say at once that no such right exists; nor am I aware that any such pretension on the part of the Board of Trade has been made. On the sinking of the "Austral," the Marine Board would appear, from papers sent herewith, to have entered on the inquiry, with which, in my opinion, that Board should have proceeded to the end. On the 1st of December last year a letter was addressed by the Solicitors of the Orient Company, the owners of the ship, to the Colonial Secretary, suggesting that directions should be given to the Marine Board of this Colony to stay its proceedings in the matter of the inquiry into the sinking of the vessel. It was represented in this communication that the Imperial Board of Trade had ordered a full and searching inquiry in England into this disaster, and that a telegram had been sent by the Imperial Government to His Excellency the Governor, requesting the Marine Board inquiry to be stayed. This telegram was received. As a matter of fact the proceedings were stayed, and no inquiry was held by the Marine Board. I am now in possession of information which shows how this was accomplished. In a despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, of date the 29th November, 1882, a copy of a letter from the Board of Trade, of date the 25th November, is referred to. This communication formed the subject of the telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies to the Governor. It represented that it would be very desirable that the inquiry should be held in England, because questions of construction and stability were involved in it, which could not properly be investigated without the plans of the ship and the evidence of certain scientific witnesses who were in England; and it requested the Colonial Secretary to move His Excellency the Governor to forego the projected inquiry. This was done and the inquiry was no longer prosecuted. I am clearly of opinion that no circumstances existed to justify the Marine Board in abandoning the inquiry. I know it is contended that, under a provision contained in a recent Imperial Statute, a difficulty would have arisen had the inquiry been proceeded with here. I am unable to perceive the existence of any such difficulty. This vessel foundered in our harbour. Her sinking occasioned the deaths of several persons. The material question for the investigation of the Marine Board was whether this casualty was occasioned by the incompetency or misconduct of any officers of the ship. All the evidence necessary for such an investigation could be obtained here—and nowhere else. The Marine Board could have procured it at once, and without difficulty. By surrendering its functions, it has in all probability rendered the procurement of such evidence impossible anywhere. By the 45th and 46th Victoria chap. 46, it is provided that no inquiry should be held under the Act into any shipwreck or other casualty, or charge of incompetency or misconduct, which has once been the subject of such an inquiry, and has been reported on by any competent Court or tribunal in any part of Her Majesty's dominions, or in respect of which the certificate of a master mate, or engineer, has been suspended or cancelled by a Naval Court; and also that when any inquiry has been commenced in the United Kingdom no inquiry shall be made in the same case under the authority of this Act in any British possession. Now, in the first place, no such inquiry had taken place at the time when the Marine Board abandoned its inquiry. It is needless to say no such inquiry had been reported upon by a competent tribunal. Indeed, as far as I can perceive from the papers, no such inquiry had been, or has now been, entered upon by the Board of Trade; and I am informed no witnesses have left this Colony for England up to the present time to give evidence in such inquiry. The consequence is that no satisfactory inquiry can now take place at all. I am not in any way impressed by the argument as to the necessity of scientific witnesses being called. It may have been very interesting as a question of naval architecture to have obtained the testimony of such witnesses; but I am constrained to point out that the absence of such witnesses from this country (which by the way may be an entirely gratuitous assumption for all I know) furnished no justification for the course pursued by the Marine Board. Their duty was clearly to ascertain whether this casualty had been occasioned by incompetency or misconduct. This question could not have been affected in any way by peculiarities in the construction of the vessel, if any such peculiarities existed, for these circumstances should have been fully known to those in charge of the ship, and who were responsible for her safety. To hold anything else would be to suppose that this vessel was under the care of men who knew nothing of the principles of her construction; and that such information could alone be obtained from people in England who had nothing to do with the navigation of the ship. I am clearly of opinion that the Marine Board surrendered its undoubted right to make this inquiry, and that the result of such surrender will necessarily be that no satisfactory inquiry can be made at all, and that a failure of justice has taken place. The greatness of the casualty, the magnitude of the interests, and the importance of the principles involved in the case, have seemed to me to justify the labour which I have bestowed on its consideration. I would suggest to my Honorable Colleague the Colonial Treasurer that, in order to avoid the danger of the course which has been pursued being taken as a precedent, a copy of this Opinion should be forwarded to the Marine Board for its guidance.

WILLIAM BEDE DALLEY,
Attorney-General.

Crown Law Offices, Macquarie-street,
February 27th, 1883.

No. 11.

The Secretary to the Marine Board to The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade.

5 March, 1883.

THE Marine Board have to acknowledge the receipt of the printed copies of the opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General upon their action with respect to the inquiry into the foundering of the steamship "Austral," which opinion they remark had been supplied to, and commented upon, by the Press, before it reached the Board.

The Board deprecate this action, because their conduct has thus been prejudged by the public before the Board were allowed an opportunity of considering the opinion which conveys so grave a censure upon them. It now appears, from the papers forwarded to this office, that Mr. Dalley has given his opinion upon incomplete data, and that several communications, including those from the late Colonial Treasurer, which mainly guided the Board in the action they took, have not been submitted to him at all. They would also remark that the papers now received by the Board, with Mr. Dalley's opinion, and which appear to have formed the grounds for that opinion, have never been seen by the Board until now, and therefore it is needless to say could have had no influence upon their action in the matter. Under these circumstances they respectfully request, in justice to themselves and for their future guidance, that these papers should be forwarded to the Honorable the Attorney-General, and he be at once moved to give his opinion as to whether, in view especially of the communications from the Treasury, the Marine Board would have been justified in defiantly going on with the "Austral" inquiry after the Colonial Treasurer had decided that the inquiry should not be held by them.

By order,
G.S.L.

The Attorney-General, for perusal.—G.R.D., 6/3/83.

No. 12.

Further Opinion of the Honorable the Attorney-General in re the "Austral" Casualty, the Marine Board of this Colony, and the Imperial Board of Trade.

My Honorable Colleague, the Honorable the Colonial Treasurer, has forwarded to me the minute of the Marine Board, addressed to the Under Secretary for Finance and Trade, concerning my opinion of the 27th February, as to the conduct of the Marine Board with respect to the inquiry into the foundering of the steamship "Austral."

Concerning their remark that the opinion had been made the subject of comments in the press before it reached the Board I have no observation to offer. The document was laid on the Table of the Assembly by my colleague, and by that circumstance became properly the subject for public discussion. The Marine Board complains that several communications, including some from the late Colonial Treasurer, which, as is alleged, mainly guided the Board in the action they took, were not submitted to me before my opinion was asked, and that such opinion was consequently given upon incomplete data. The Board also remarks that certain papers forwarded to the Board with my opinion had not been seen by the Board previously. Under these circumstances the Board requests, for its future guidance, that these papers should be forwarded to me, and that my opinion should be obtained as to whether the Board, in view especially of certain communications from the Treasurer, forwarded herewith, would have been justified in going on with the "Austral" inquiry after the Colonial Treasurer had decided that the inquiry should not be held by the Board. The papers forwarded to me consist of Lord Kimberley's cablegram to His Excellency (of which I was already aware), an inquiry by the Governor as to whether the request contained in that telegram could be carried out, and three other communications, to which I shall presently refer, neither of which I had actually seen, but of the substance of which I was perfectly well aware, and neither of which affect the case in the slightest degree. The first, dated 27th November, is a letter from the Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade, asking that the inquiry should be adjourned as the Home Government, at the instance of the Board of Trade, were in communication with this Government on the subject. The two other documents are as follow:—

Telegram to Young, addressed to The Honorable James Watson.

"The Imperial Government have telegraphed to His Excellency, at the instance of the Board of Trade, requesting that the inquiry re 'Austral' may be held in London, on return of the vessel, instead of in Sydney. The telegram was forwarded to the Treasury by His Excellency, and on my own responsibility I asked the Marine Board to delay commencing proceedings. They adjourned accordingly till Monday next. I now beg to ask whether there is any objection to the request of the Home Government."

JAMES WATSON.

I see nothing in either of these communications to justify the Marine Board in discontinuing the inquiry. The Colonial Treasurer had no authority whatever to arrest the inquiry, or influence it in any way. If he could do such a thing in the case of the "Austral," at the request of any one in England, he could do so in any and every case, and divest, by his individual action, the Marine Board of its entire jurisdiction. The Marine Board should have at once resisted any such an encroachment on its functions, and respectfully offered its protest against any such interference. The Marine Board was alone charged with these important functions, and formed the only proper Court of Inquiry into this matter; and the members of this Court, like the members of all Courts, were bound to uphold its efficiency by executing its powers and preserving its independence. With regard to the papers which the Board alleges it now sees for the first time, I may remark that it would have been impossible for the Board to have seen them at any earlier period. They have only just arrived from England, and could not of course have been brought under the notice of the Board when it abandoned its inquiry. The papers in no way affect the question, which remains precisely as I have stated it, and which is in effect that the only satisfactory inquiry which could have taken place concerning this casualty was abandoned by the Marine Board.

No. 14.

The Solicitor, Board of Trade, to The Shipping Master, Sydney.

In re foundering of "Austral."

Sir,

4 January, 1883.

Upon the return of the necessary witnesses to the United Kingdom, the Board of Trade contemplate holding an official investigation into the circumstances attending the damage sustained by this vessel through foundering at your port.

I shall feel much obliged if you will kindly obtain and send me depositions, duly sworn before a Justice or Magistrate, in the manner prescribed by section 270 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, from any persons at Sydney who can give material evidence in the matter, and particularly from the stevedore or other person who unloaded the inward cargo, as to the weight, nature and position of the cargo and bunker coals left on board the vessel, and as to whether, when she was unloaded, the ballast tanks were entirely or partially full.

From some other person as to the position of the vessel, the depth of water in which she was floating, and whether salt, fresh, or brackish, the manner in which she was secured, and her draught of water and freeboard or clear side when unloaded.

If the vessel was moved between this time and the time she foundered, describing the mooring, the stability of the ship during the process, the precise point where she was again brought up, the depth and nature of water, and how secured.

As to whether between the time the vessel last anchored and her foundering the water in the ballast tanks was increased or decreased, and if so to what extent.

From the merchant who supplied the outward cargo and coals, as to the weight, nature, and description thereof.

From William Hadden, as to the stability or otherwise of the vessel, and he should give full and distinct reasons for the opinion expressed. As to the list the vessel took when alongside the wharf, and the cause thereof. As to loading the vessel upon the last occasion; and he should describe fully the stowage and distribution of the coals and cargo taken in, and as far as possible the weight of the quantities stowed in the several portions of the ship. As to the circumstances attending the foundering, and the cause thereof.

Please send me depositions from trimmers, stevedores, or other persons who can give any material evidence in the matter; and I shall be glad if you will kindly request the gentleman taking the depositions to carefully peruse the evidence given at the inquest and the cross-examination of the witnesses, and to include in the depositions the evidence given at the inquest.

Will

Will you kindly obtain and send me a copy of the evidence given at the inquest, and the result thereof; and it will be convenient if you could have the depositions sworn before a Magistrate or Justice by the persons who made them.

May I call your attention to the importance of this evidence being taken in a careful and exhaustive manner, as a second reference to your port will naturally cause a delay, and the detention of witnesses in this country for a period of three months.

I am, &c.,

WALTER MURTON,
Solicitor, Board of Trade.

For my Hon. Colleague the Attorney-General.—G.R.D., 13/3/83. The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade, B.C.—W.W.S., 16/3/83. (Vide copy of opinion enclosed.)

No. 15.

Further Opinion of the Hon. the Attorney-General in re sinking of the "Austral" and the Imperial Board of Trade.

THE Colonial Treasurer has to-day forwarded to me a letter from the Solicitor to the Board of Trade, addressed to the Shipping Master here, and dated 4th January, 1883. In this communication the Solicitor intimates that "on the return of the necessary witnesses to the United Kingdom the Board of Trade contemplates holding an official investigation into the circumstances attending the damage sustained by this vessel through foundering in this port." The Solicitor for the Board of Trade requests the Shipping Master to obtain here and forward to England depositions duly sworn before a Justice or Magistrate, from any persons in Sydney who can give material evidence in the matter, and he goes on to specify an immense mass of information which he requires, and which could only be obtained by a searching investigation, conducted by a competent tribunal having authority to summon witnesses, require their attendance at any inquiry, and enforce the production of all documents relating to such inquiry; and administer oaths, or require statutory declarations of the truth of the statements made in any examination. All the information which he now asks could have been obtained only by our own Marine Board. It is needless to say that the procurement of such information forms no part of the duty of the Shipping Master, and that he is clothed with none of the powers which would enable him to obtain such information. His duties under the Seamen's Law Consolidation Act 27 Vic. No. 13 are to facilitate the making of apprenticeships to the sea service—to facilitate the engagement and discharge of seamen—and to keep a registry thereof,—and to perform such other duties as are expressly committed to him by this Act. Among these the one which he is now asked to discharge is not included. He has no power whatever to do that which the 35 Vict. No. 7 authorizes the Marine Board to do. The Marine Board could by summons under the hand of the President require the attendance of all such persons as they might think fit, upon any authorized inquiry, require answers or returns to any questions, enforce the production of all papers, log-books, or any other documents relating to any such inquiry, administer oaths or declarations of the truth of the statements made in such inquiry. It appears to me that the section of the Imperial Act to which the Solicitor of the Board of Trade draws the attention of the Shipping Master is not applicable to the case. By section 270 of the 17 and 18 Victoria, chap. 104, it is provided that depositions made in the course of any legal proceedings instituted in any part of Her Majesty's Dominions may, if the witness cannot be found in the place where he has made his deposition, be used in any other place than that in which it was made. It seems to me that by arresting the action of the Marine Board, which was the only body before which legal proceedings could be instituted for this inquiry, it has become quite impossible to do what is now desired. I may remark that I feel quite unable to account for the course adopted of addressing the Shipping Master on this important subject, and ignoring the Marine Board. The only depositions taken in this important matter were those which were taken at the Coroner's inquest, held on the 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, 20th, and 21st November last. On inquiring for these depositions at the office of the Minister for Justice, and requesting that they should be forwarded to me with the view of determining whether I should allow these original documents to leave the Colony, I find that in accordance with an application, made on behalf of Captain Murdoch, recently commander of the "Austral," the whole of the original depositions were forwarded for the information of the Board of Trade in December of last year, and thus at this moment, as far as I can gather, no original papers taken in connection with this matter in any Court now exist in this Colony, and the only tribunal which could have undertaken the investigation has been prevented from performing that duty.

STEAMSHIP "BALLINA."
(FURTHER CORRESPONDENCE)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 21 March, 1883.

RETURN to an Order of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 27th February, 1883, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

STEAMSHIP "BALLINA."

No. 1.

J. H. Young, Esq., M.P., to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Legislative Chamber, Sydney, 1 March, 1881.

I have the honor to enclose a letter from the Union Fire and Marine Insurance Company of New Zealand, in reply to an application from Messrs. John Booth & Co. to insure their steamer "Ne Oblie," trading to Port Macquarie.

I beg to draw your attention to the fact that they decline to accept the risk until the wreck of the "Ballina" has been removed, and to request that you will take the necessary steps to cause this to be done.

I have, &c.,

J. H. YOUNG, M.P.

I think the Marine Board should take the necessary steps to compel the owners of the "Ballina" to have her removed.—J.W., 3/3/81. The President, Marine Board.—G.E., B.C., 4/3/80.

The Marine Board have had several communications with the owners of the "Ballina" with the view of inducing them to move the wreck (see the accompanying papers). As they have paid no attention to the Board's remonstrances, and the vessel is now more than ever dangerous to navigation, it is submitted that the Crown Law Officers be requested to take the matter up on behalf of the Board, under the powers conferred by the 111th clause of the Navigation Act.—By order, G.S.L., 20/4/81. The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

The Crown Solicitor.—J.W., 22/4/81. G.E., B.C., 22/4/81. Recd.—J.W., 23rd April, '81.

[Enclosure to No. 1.]

The Secretary, U. F. and M. I. Co. of New Zealand, to Messrs. J. Booth & Co.
Union Fire and Marine Insurance Co. of New Zealand,

Dear Sirs,

75, Pitt-street, Sydney, 23 February, 1881.

Your favour of 22nd instant re insurance on hull of "Ne Oblie" is duly hand.

I have made inquiries at other offices on the subject, and all are of the same opinion as myself, namely, that until wreck of "Ballina" has been removed from its present position, almost in the fairway, we cannot insure your steamer for the bar risk at Port Macquarie.

Regretting I am unable to meet your wishes in this matter in the meantime, and calling your attention to the fact that your steamer has already got into trouble, probably from no other cause than that above indicated,—

I am, &c.,

M. MONTGOMERY,

Manager.

No. 2.

Mr. J. H. Bedford to The President of the Marine Board.

Sir,

Sydney, 14 March, 1881.

I have the honor to report at your request in reference to the alleged obstruction to the navigation of Port Macquarie caused by the wreck of the s. "Ballina." Twelve months after the loss of the above ship I was there twice in the s. "Queensland," and did not find that the wreck caused any impediment to the navigation of the port; there was more water and the channel more direct in and out. Before the loss of the "Ballina" I had been running there nearly every week for between three and four years, and on my last voyage there in the "Queensland," a much larger ship, I could not see that there was any material difference in what was usual there. I cannot see how the wreck would be the cause of the bar shoaling, as it is a long way inside of it. Where that ship was lost was always more or less shoal during my experience of the place. The channel might shift north or south at times, but the direction would be invariably the same, and should it shift so far north as to bring the wreck into the middle of it then it might be an obstruction. I am of opinion, from my past experience of the place, that the wreck is not the cause of the bar shoaling. I may add that the "Ballina" after striking on the spit which caused her loss was thrown a considerable distance over on to the north banks into the position where the wreck now lies, and a long distance inside the bar—the ship was not lost on the bar.

I have, &c.,

JOHN H. BEDFORD.

The Secretary to the Marine Board to Pilot Kingsford.

Sir,

Sydney, 8 March, 1881.

I have the honor, by direction of the Marine Board, to request that you will be good enough to report on the present position of the wreck of the "Ballina," relative to the place where she first struck; the condition in which the wreck now is, i.e., number of pieces it is broken up into; also whether these parts are sanded up or not, and whether in your opinion they could be easily removed; and in fact any information that will be useful to the Board to decide as to whether the wreck is interfering injuriously with the entrance to the port and can be removed.

Pilot Kingsford to The President of the Marine Board.

Sir,

Pilot Station, Port Macquarie, 16 March, 1881.

In accordance with instructions received to report upon the wreck of the "Ballina," I do myself the honor to submit for your information the subjoined report. The wreck lies in a north and south position (her head to the north) about 200 yards in a north-westerly direction from where she first struck, and about 700 feet north of the rocks on the southern shore. It is listed well over to port, and at low-water the lower part of the starboard paddle-wheel is just level with the water. The dome of the boiler is also then above water, but nothing else. The hull lies in one whole piece, and is only partially sanded up. Just close to the bow and stern and along the west side of her there are deep holes, but there are parts of the hull with only about 3 feet of water over them at low-water. There is a channel forming north of the wreck, and the main channel now in use runs rather close just at present to her stern. This channel is also available to approach the wreck from the westward. As regards its removal, I can only say that, as far as I am able to judge, it would be attended with some difficulty, the chief part of which would be the removal of the debris, in the event of its being blown up with dynamite or torpedoes, which latter part of the work would no doubt be quite practicable.

Pilot Kingsford to The President of the Marine Board.

Sir,

Pilot Station, Port Macquarie, 27 March, 1881.

I have the honor to forward for your inspection a rough sketch of this port in its present state. The fact is I was afraid of making an incomprehensible complication of matters by correcting the one you sent me, and I thought it best to commence de novo. You will see by it that a narrow channel has formed north of the wreck of the Ballina, and I cannot but give it as my opinion that the wreck is injuriously affecting the entrance to the port. Trusting that my sketch will give you all the information you seek,—

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 15 July, 1881.

I have the honor to forward herewith the papers relating to the "Ballina," with an authority to be given by the Marine Board, to some person to be named by the Board, under the 111th section of the Navigation Act of 1871, and the form of information to be filed. I shall be obliged by your filling in the date and name, &c., and returning this to me, and making any alteration you may think necessary as to the description of the place in which the vessel is stranded.

You will please return the papers to me.

I have, &c.,

I do myself the honor to state that, as I find by the papers this day received from you relating to the wreck of the "Ballina," that Pilot Kingsford has been appointed by the Board to take the necessary proceedings, I shall be glad to be informed when he will be in Sydney to act in the matter.

Sydney, 9 August 1881.

In reply to your letter of the 4th instant, I have the honor to inform you the Marine Board is of opinion that a complaint should be filed.

Taking into consideration, however, the difficulties attending the removal of the wreck of the "Ballina," the Board think that if application is made for a postponement by the Clarence and Richmond Rivers Steam Navigation Company it should be consented to, in view of their being able to devise means of removing the wreck, after a thorough examination of the locality.

Without prejudice.—Wreck of the "Ballina."

Sir,

Bridge-street Chambers, Sydney, 19 August, 1881.

On behalf of the Clarence and Richmond Rivers Steam Navigation Company, we beg to call your attention to section cccclxxv of the Shipping Act, 17 and 18 Vict. chap. 104, and to suggest that instead of continuing the proceedings at present instituted against the Company, to obtain an order from the Justices for the removal and disposal of the wreck, the Government should hand the wreck over to the "Receiver of Wreck," to be dealt with by him under that section.

We suggest this course, as it seems to us that the vessel is within the meaning of the section we have referred to, she having been in her present position since the 14th February, 1879.

We shall be glad to know if you can advise the adoption of this course, as the Company sold the wreck by public auction on the 26th February, 1879, for a small sum, and are anxious if possible to avoid adding to their loss by intermeddling in the matter at all.

We have, &c.,

Pilot Kingsford to The President of the Marine Board.

Sir,

Pilot Station, Port Macquarie, 20 August, 1881.

In accordance with your instructions I have the honor to submit for your information the subjoined report upon the wreck of the s.s. "Ballina." The depth of water all around her is about 5 or 6 feet at low-water, at which time about half of her starboard paddle-wheel and the dome of the boiler are visible. The hull is one piece, but its upper surface is very irregular. The sea nearly always breaks upon it more or less, and it is also in the tide-way. The main channel runs to the northward of it, and has widened considerably during the last few weeks, but at the same time has shoaled about 6 inches. There is still a channel to the southward of it, available for small craft in ballast at or near high-water. There can be no question but what it is still an obstruction and should be removed, and I beg to recommend that it be blown up by explosives and the debris carefully removed. I simply recommend these means as I know of no other; but not being an expert in these matters myself, it would perhaps be desirable to have the opinion of one who is upon the subject, for it is useless to ignore the fact that, under any circumstances, the removal of this wreck will be a difficult undertaking.

"Ballina."

Dear Sir,

Bridge-street Chambers, Sydney, 29 August, 1881.

Herewith we beg to hand you a copy of a report made by Captain Banks, Marine Surveyor, on the wreck of the "Ballina," and the practicability of removing her. We of course send you this report without prejudice to our client's legal position, as they sold the wreck some years ago and disclaim all liability in connection with her removal or the expenses connected therewith.

Yours truly,
CREAGH & WILLIAMS.

[Enclosure to No. 11.]

Mr. J. W. Banks to The Directors of the C. & R. R. S. N. Co.

Gentlemen,

Sydney, 22 August, 1881.

As requested I visited, and so far as practicable examined, the wreck of the steamer "Ballina," and remained at Port Macquarie for three days collecting such information as I could obtain on the subject referred to in your instructions, and now for your information beg to report as follows:—

After making a number of measurements and taking a good many bearings, I discovered that a survey of the harbour was in existence which showed the relative position of the wreck in connection with the distant headland more accurately than I could determine, and therefore deemed it advisable to obtain a tracing of the chart referred to, which I now attach.

The

The wreck of the "Ballina" lies nearly north and south, and at right angles to the flow and ebb of tide. She lies with a strong list to port, and has only the top of starboard wheel and about 18 inches of the steam-dome above the surface at dead low-water. I was informed that for the first three months after her wreck she kept sinking, but from that date has kept her present position, from which I conclude she has reached a substance harder than sand. I attempted to pierce the sand for the purpose of determining this matter, but was not successful, owing to the hardness of the sand and occasional break of the sea on the wreck, though the morning was calm and sea smooth, except on the wreck and bar. Owing to this breaking of the sea referred to the boat could not be kept attached to the wreck, but after some little delay I was enabled to get on the steam-dome, from which I made the following observations.

The decks and wood-work are entirely gone fore and aft. The midship line of beams is about 8 feet under water; the starboard sponson 4 or 5 feet. The port side of vessel entirely covered by sand, which is also nearly up to the beams amidships. The after steam-winch, several feet under water, is clearly seen as it stands abaft the open after-hatch.

All this as described is at dead low-water; at high-water only the rim of the starboard-wheel is visible, except in the hollow of the seas as they break over her. At present there is a clear straight channel of about 700 feet to the south, with a similar straight channel to the north of the wreck. From evidence taken I learned that, immediately previous to the wreck of the "Ballina," there existed only the southern channel, which at a point somewhere between the present wreck and the "Diamantina" Rocks took a sudden turn to the northward, and either bisected the present northern channel or curved into it in its way out over the bar.

The question whether the wreck has injured or improved the entrance to the harbour is one of opinion which I found to be pretty equally divided amongst those capable of forming one. My own is that while it may be in the way of small sailing-vessels trying to beat in, it can do no permanent injury to the harbour so far as steamers are concerned, but may be found to form a good foundation for its permanent improvement. But as these are matters of opinion, I will now confine myself to the question of its removal.

First.—Owing to the vessel lying as I have described across the tide, nearly full of sand, and well sanded up, having a bum-bowler occasionally breaking over her even in the calmest weather, an almost continuous rush of tide and scarcely perceptible slack water, I think no contractor would undertake to remove the wreck as a whole if held responsible for all contingencies—the risk of pontoons or lighters sinking alongside being so great; and this is presuming that he succeeded in getting chains under her, which I doubt, and I do not think the beams and upper works will bear the strain of lifting the vessel, therefore I assume that—

Second.—She must be blown up, and here again difficulties arise which I do not at present see can be overcome, but presuming they may, that divers can burrow down through this mass of sand by cofferdam or otherwise can get under the bottom and there place such powerful explosives as will when ignited raise the whole mass and scatter it in thousands of pieces. Who will venture to say what its effect shall be? One, I know, suggests itself to my mind, viz.—that instead of vessels as at present navigating Port Macquarie having only known dangers to avoid, which with ordinary care can be accomplished, they would be in continual dread of getting a pointed piece of iron through their bottom; and one such case occurring, the trade of the port would for years suffer by the necessary action of underwriters.

I remain, &c.,

JAMES W. BANKS.

The Secretary to the Marine Board to The Crown Solicitor.

Sir,

Sydney, 9 September, 1881.

Referring to the interviews which the President of the Marine Board has had with you in the matter of the "Ballina," I have now the honor to return the accompanying papers, and to inform you the Board do not see their way to recede from the position they have taken, unless the Clarence and Richmond River Steam Navigation Company will guarantee to remove the wreck. If the Company will do this, the Board is quite willing to stay proceedings.

In the event of the Company declining to remove the wreck, the Board request that the Justices will order and direct it to be blown up, and the debris carefully removed in accordance with the recommendation of the Pilot at Port Macquarie, whose letter, dated 20th August, is amongst the papers.

I have, &c.,

The Crown Solicitor to The Secretary to the Marine Board.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 10 September, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of yesterday's date respecting the matter of the "Ballina." In it you say that unless the Clarence and Richmond Rivers Steam Navigation Company will guarantee to remove the vessel application must be made to the Justices for an order to authorize the vessel being blown up. I understood from the President that he would intimate this to some one or other of the Directors of the Company. If it is intended that a formal offer of this kind should be made, I would suggest that it should be made by the Marine Board.

The matter stands adjourned until Wednesday, the 21st September instant, at half-past 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time Mr. Pilot Kingsford should be in attendance to give evidence.

If I do not hear from you to the effect that the Company have agreed to your proposal, I will attend before the Justices, and apply for the order as directed in your letter to which this is in reply.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

The Secretary to the Marine Board to The Crown Solicitor.

Sir,

Sydney, 16 September, 1881.

In reply to your letter of the 10th instant, I have the honor to inform you that the President of the Marine Board tells me that the Directors of the Clarence and Richmond River Steam Navigation Company have instructed their attorneys, Messrs. Lyons, Creagh, & Williams, to state that they have agreed to the proposal to remove the wreck themselves.

I have, &c.,

GEO. S. LINDEMAN,
Secretary.

No. 15.

Petition from Inhabitants of Port Macquarie to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Port Macquarie, 12 November, 1881.

Owing to no decisive action having been as yet taken by the Government for the removal of the wreck "Ballina" from the entrance to Port Macquarie Harbour,—We the undersigned freeholders, farmers, tradesmen, and others of the district of Port Macquarie and the Hastings River, respectfully request that immediate steps be at once taken for the removal of the above-named obstruction to the safe ingress and egress to our harbour.

We would respectfully point out, that since the wreck occurred the channel and bar have been shifting and shoaling up, to the very great danger, inconvenience, and loss of time to owners of vessels trading to this port, and that as a necessary sequence, consequently upon the loss involved, together with their inability to carry a full cargo, ship-owners have been compelled to raise the freights, thereby inflicting a serious pecuniary loss upon every resident of this important district.

We would therefore pray that we be relieved from the great disadvantage under which we at present suffer, caused by the wreck of the "Ballina" obstructing the navigation of our bar and harbour.

Presented by J. H. Young, M.P., 17/1/82.

This matter has been delayed too long. The Marine Board should either have the wreck removed; or if the Board considers it unnecessary that it should be removed, it should be so stated, so that the petitioners and others may be so informed.—J.W., 21/1/82. The President, Marine Board, Urgent, B.C., 21/1/82.—G.E. See Marine Board minute, 22/2/82.*

The Crown Solicitor to The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 28 November, 1881.

I have the honor to return herewith the papers relating to the wreck of the "Ballina" at Port Macquarie, and to state that, acting upon the instructions forwarded to me, I caused an information to be filed and a summons to be issued calling upon the Clarence and Richmond River Steam Navigation Company to appear upon an application for authority for the Marine Board to remove the wreck. Upon the suggestion of Messrs. Creagh & Williams (the Company's solicitors), and with the consent of the Marine Board, the matter stood over from time to time, to enable the Company to decide whether it would remove the wreck or leave the Marine Board to obtain an order for that purpose. The President of the Board subsequently had an interview with the Directors of the Company, as I am informed, when the Company agreed to remove the wreck. Of this I was informed by letter from the Marine Board, dated 16th September, 1881, which with other letters is forwarded herewith. Upon this, when the matter was called on for hearing, I informed the Bench that it was not proposed to proceed further with the matter, as the Company had agreed to remove the wreck, until a reasonable time had elapsed to enable it to be done, and the proceedings were accordingly withdrawn.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

The President, Marine Board.—I should like to know if the course agreed on is being carried out.—J.W., 30/11/81. B.C.—G.E., 30/11/82. Perhaps the Directors of the Clarence and Richmond Steam Navigation Company will kindly say whether the course agreed on is being carried out or not.—By order, G.S.L., 16/12/81. The Secretary, C. & R.R.S.N. Co. See Marine Board Minute, 22/2/82.*

No. 17.

J. H. Young, Esq., M.P., to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Sydney, 10 February, 1882.

I called on the President of the Marine Board this morning to ascertain what steps had been taken with reference to the removal of the wreck of the "Ballina" from the entrance to Port Macquarie Harbour.

That gentleman informed me that the Board had as yet taken no action since the receipt of the petition presented by me at your office, now nearly a month ago, and I write now to urge on you the necessity which exists to take such steps as are necessary to relieve the residents and producers of that district from such a serious impediment to their commerce.

So long ago as the 1st March, 1881, you personally informed me that you had instructed the Marine Board to proceed in the matter, and it does seem somewhat strange that such a body as this should be allowed to be so inattentive to their duties and to your instructions as they have shown themselves in this matter.

If the said wreck is an obstruction, as has been admitted by the various officers of the Government, it seems the plain duty of those in power to cause the responsible parties to remove her, and I do hope that no further delay will be allowed.

I have, &c.,

J. H. YOUNG, M.L.A.

I should be glad to have some information from the Marine Board, as the matter has remained in abeyance quite long enough. I made a minute on a petition forwarded some time ago, but to this I have had no reply from the Marine Board. If the wreck is an obstruction it should be removed, and if it is not, then the parties should be so informed.—J.W., 13/2/82.

The President Marine Board.—G.E., B.C., 13/2/82. Urgent.

The delay complained of by the Hon. the Treasurer was occasioned in consequence of the Marine Board being unable to obtain a reply from the Clarence and Richmond Steam Navigation Company to the Board's communication of the 16th December last. This is now attached, and it will be seen that considerable difficulties are raised in the way of removing the wreck. Since the Board initiated law proceedings in the case they have had an opportunity of inspecting the wreck of the "Ballina," and they are certainly of opinion that the vessel does not cause the injury alleged. If the removal of the wreck were an easy matter, the Board would have no hesitation in again initiating law proceedings; but in view of the difficulties of the undertaking, and from fear of the attempt failing, and thereby causing a real injury to the navigation of Port Macquarie by a portion of the debris of the wreck being blown into the channel, the Board are undecided what course to adopt. By order G.S.L., 22/2/82. The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Wreck of s.s. "Ballina."

The minute of the Marine Board of 22/2/82, taken in connection with the previous action of the Board, appears to me unsatisfactory. The Board now say "they are undecided what course to adopt." This seems to me strange, when only a short time since the Board must have held a different opinion, when they instituted proceedings to compel the owners to remove the wreck. One of the officers of the Board states the wreck obstructs the navigation of the port, and yet the Board say "they are undecided what course to adopt."

The papers may be referred back to the Marine Board, so that the members may come to some decision, and as this matter has remained in abeyance long enough I hope no further delay will take place in arriving at a decision, in accordance with such facts as may be before the Board.—J.W., 3/3/82.

The President, Marine Board.—G.E., B.C., 4/3/82.

In re "Ballina" wreck.

The Marine Board's present indecision is due to what the Honorable the Treasurer seems to have overlooked, viz., their having lately visited the wreck of the "Ballina," and realized a different state of affairs to what they were led to expect. They do not now think the entrance to Port Macquarie anything like so injuriously affected as represented; the wreck has filled with sand, and nearly disappeared below the breakers. The removal would be a most difficult, dangerous, and expensive operation.—By order, G.S.L., 21/3/82. This

This minute, I regret to say, is as unsatisfactory as previous one. The Board is mistaken in assuming that I overlooked the fact that some members of the Board had recently visited the scene of the wreck of the "Ballina"; but their casual visit does not, as appears to me, get over the difficulty of the report of their permanent officer residing at the place. The reply of the Marine Board does not deny that the entrance to the harbour is affected by the "Ballina" remaining in her present position; but, apparently as an excuse for the non-removal, state it "would be most difficult, dangerous, and expensive." These are not matters, as it appears to me, to which the Government, under the law, can take cognizance, and on a careful consideration of all the facts, the C. & R.R.S.N. Co. should be compelled to remove the obstruction to the navigation of the harbour, and the necessary steps should be taken to carry out this object.—J.W., 25/3/82.

The President, Marine Board.—G.E., B.C., 27/3/82.

The Clarence and Richmond Steam Navigation Company having declined to remove the wreck of the "Ballina," as shown by their letter of the 16th ultimo attached, it is now submitted, in deference to the wishes of the Honorable the Treasurer, as expressed herein, that the Crown Law Officers be requested to initiate fresh proceedings, similar to those lately carried on, with a view of forcing the Company to remove the wreck.—By order, G.S.L., 31/3/82. The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade.

The Crown Solicitor should be instructed to take the necessary steps to cause the C. & R.R.S.N. Co. to remove the wreck, in accordance with the law.—J.W., 17/4/82. Mr. Ross,—Forward these papers in a letter conveying the Treasurer's instructions.—G.E., 20/4/82. Done.—20, M.R.

No. 18.

The Secretary, C. and R. R. S. N. Co., to The President of the Marine Board.

Clarence and Richmond Rivers Steam Navigation Company,
Sydney, 16 February, 1882.

Sir,

Reverting to your favours of 16th December and 18th ultimo, I am now directed to say that while there appeared any chance of removing the wreck the Board were not disposed to stand on their legal position in the matter, and would have used any means they were advised might be effectual to meet your wishes, but they have sent an experienced competent surveyor to the spot, who reports that the wreck cannot be removed, and that the attempt to do so may be fraught with greater inconvenience to the navigation; that as a matter of fact there is now little or no danger or impediment to the navigation; and the demand that this Company should undertake an impracticable attempt seems unreasonable, and such as the Board, in their duty to their shareholders, must decline to comply with.

They therefore respectfully submit that as they are not the owners of the ship; that as she was sold in open market, and purchased by Mr. Short, who paid for her and proceeded to save all he could from her, this Company could not undertake the removal of the ship, involving her destruction, without his permission; and that any property they removed from the wreck would be his, and he it is who would be entitled to any funds arising from the sale of any portion thereof by order of the Justices empowered in that behalf by the Act.

The Board also submit that, from the report above alluded to, it seems clear that it is virtually impossible to move the wreck at all, and that an attempt to blow her up would in that shallow entrance involve greater risks to the navigation than the wreck at present causes.

JOHN WHITE,
Secretary.

"Ballina."

Sir,

127, Pitt-street, Sydney, 15 February, 1882.

I am very sorry that this matter is again becoming troublesome, but I think that Mr. Young, M.P., is impelled by his constituents, more than by his convictions, that the wreck is an obstruction to navigation. I forward the papers relating to the case, and am obliged for your allowing me to peruse them.

Believe me, &c.,
ALFRED C. GARRICK.

No. 20.

Mr. J. H. Young to The Colonial Treasurer.

Sir,

Sydney, 28 February, 1882.

I have the honor to request that I may be informed what decision has been arrived at by the Marine Board with reference to the removal of the wreck of the "Ballina" from the entrance to Port Macquarie harbour.

I have repeated complaints from the residents of the district that this wreck should be allowed so long to obstruct navigation, and I know vessels have been detained with valuable produce for considerable times.

I beg to remind you that on the 20th instant you promised to inform me what action the Marine Board had taken.

I have, &c.,
J. H. YOUNG, M.P.

There is considerable danger apprehended by the Marine Board that if the wreck of the "Ballina" is blown up the debris will impede the navigation of the channel now open, and the question is still under the consideration whether it is not more in the interest of the navigation of the port to allow the wreck to remain as she lies in preference to removing her by powder or dynamite.—J.W., 2/3/82. Mr. Ross.—G.E., 3/3/82. Informed.—M.R., 3.

The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade to The Crown Solicitor.

Sir,

The Treasury, New South Wales, Sydney, 20 April, 1882.

I have the honor, by direction of the Colonial Treasurer, to enclose the papers relative to the obstruction at the entrance to Port Macquarie, caused by the wreck of the steamship "Ballina."

I am to request that you will take the necessary steps to cause the Clarence and Richmond River Steam Navigation Company to remove the wreck, in accordance with the law.

I have, &c.,

JNO. J. EATON,

Received.—H.H.O., 21/4/82.

No. 22.

The Crown Solicitor to The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 9 May, 1882.

I have the honor to return herewith your letter of date 20th April, and the papers forwarded therewith, instructing me to take the necessary steps to cause the Clarence and Richmond River Steam Navigation Company to remove the wreck of the steamship "Ballina," and to state that until further instructed I am unable to take any steps in this matter.

The power given by the Navigation Act is not to compel the owner of a sunk or stranded vessel to remove same, but to call upon him so to do, and in case of neglect or refusal to remove the vessel at his cost.

The 111th section of the Navigation Act provides that if the owner of a wreck is called upon and fails to remove same, two Justices upon the complaint of any person appointed by the Marine Board may issue their warrant for removing the vessel in such manner as the Justices shall order and direct, and provides for the sale of the wreck, and that if the proceeds of the sale shall be insufficient to pay the expenses of removing the wreck, the owner shall be chargeable with any balance then remaining due.

It seems, therefore, that the mode in which the wreck is to be removed must be considered and decided upon by the Justices, as this mode of removal may materially affect the cost to which the owners will be rendered liable. I, some time since, under instructions received from your Department, filed an information in order to make application to Justices for an order to remove the "Ballina," and the application was adjourned from time to time to allow the Marine Board to decide as to the mode of removal which the Justices should be asked to sanction, but this information was not supplied, and eventually it was understood that the Company had arranged with the Board as to the removal of the "Ballina."

I have, therefore, to request that you will inform me as to the course to be adopted for the removal of this vessel which I am to ask the Justices to sanction. I have been informed, verbally, that the vessel cannot be raised and removed, and that the navigation of the river will be injuriously affected if the wreck is blown up; but, however this may be, it is necessary that I should request the Justices to approve of some defined mode of removal of the wreck, which at present I am not in a position to do.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,
Crown Solicitor.

The President of the Marine Board.—J.W., 11/5/82. G.E., 11/5/82, B.C.

The removal of this wreck will be a matter of considerable difficulty and danger. It is therefore submitted that the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers may be requested to send a professional officer to Port Macquarie, to thoroughly examine the locality with the view of advising the Marine Board as to the best mode of proceeding in this matter.—By order, G.S.L., 18/5/82.

Urgent.—I should be glad if the Secretary for Public Works will act on the suggestion of the Marine Board.—J.W., 20/5/82. The Under-Secretary for Public Works.—G.E., 22/5/82, B.C. Harbours and Rivers, B.C., 26/5/82, J.R.

Captain Howard in the first instance to make accurate survey of the position of the wreck; I will then consider as to the best method for its removal.—E.O.M., 27/5/82. B.C., Captain Howard. Carrying out other urgent work in Sydney Harbour and elsewhere has prevented me attending to this up to the present time.—F. HOWARD, R.N., 14/9/82. As Captain Howard's time is so much occupied, I will send Mr. Hickson from Newcastle if the Hon. the Treasurer desires it.—E.O.M., 14/9/82. Seen.—J.W.

No. 3.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to Messrs. Stuart and Harnett.

Gentlemen,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 2 August, 1882.

With reference to your application of the 7th February last, for the rescission of the reservation of 100 feet above high-water-mark, contained in R. Manson's 30-acre grant, at Little Sirius Cove, parish of Willoughby, county of Cumberland, I am directed to inform you that, under a report which has been received from the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers and the Surveyor-General, the Secretary for Lands has approved of your being allowed to purchase the rescission in question, provided that, at the expiration of four weeks from the date of a notice to be published in the Government Gazette, inviting the public to lodge any objections they may have to a compliance with your application, no valid objections shall have been lodged.

2. You must clearly understand that this approval extends only so far as this Department is concerned; and, further, that any work undertaken by you in connection with the proposed rescission will, until such time as final approval shall have been given by the Governor and Executive Council, be regarded as at your own risk.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES OLIVER,

Under-Secretary.

No. 1.

Mr. J. Bell to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

4 King-st., Sydney, 3 April, 1830.

I have the honor to inform you that I am at present fitting up the brig "William Stoveld" for the whale fishery, and not having water-side premises I am obliged to store and cooper my casks, &c., on the King's wharf, and also at this moment I am compelled to pump oil from one cask into another, the proceeds of the last voyage. These operations, viz., the noise of coopering, lumbering the wharf, and the offensive smell of the oil, the Custom House Officers very justly complain of, so much so that if I am not allowed to proceed it will very materially retard my object and affect my interest. In order to prevent a recurrence of the nuisance when the vessel returns, I beg through you to solicit His Excellency the Governor to grant me a portion of unlocated land bounded by the harbour of Port Jackson, for the purpose of erecting a wharf and suitable premises for the equipment of vessels employed in the whale fishery.

I have, &c.,

JOHN BELL.

No. 2.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Bell.

Gentlemen,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8 June, 1830.

I have had the honor to receive and submit to the Governor your application of the 3rd April last, for an allotment of land on the north shore of Port Jackson, and am directed by His Excellency to inform you that from the great value of the land in the spot alluded to it is thought proper to bestow it exclusively on such persons as are really engaged in the whale fisheries or some other undertaking which requires a water-side allotment, and will immediately form the establishments requisite for carrying on their trade.

I do myself the honor accordingly to request that you will state, for His Excellency's information, what proof it is in your power to offer that you have actually embarked your capital in any such speculation as above mentioned, and on what date it is your intention to commence, bona fide, the necessary wharfs and buildings, if an allotment be granted to you.

I have, &c.,

ALEXANDER McLEAY.

No. 3.

Mr. J. King to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 12 June, 1830.

I had the honor to receive your favour of the 8th instant, addressed to Mr. Bell, regarding his application for a water-side allotment, which I take the liberty of replying to, having authority from him for that purpose. For the information of His Excellency the Governor, I do myself the honor to enclose a document* which I hope will sufficiently prove that Mr. Bell has already embarked considerable capital and is actually engaged in the whale-fishing business. He now accompanies the vessel on her present voyage. If further proof is necessary, I will be most happy to render it.

* Vide enclosure B.

I beg respectfully to inform His Excellency that I am instructed by Mr. Bell,† during his absence, to make the requisite arrangements for the erection of such premises and wharfs as will be necessary, previous to the arrival of the vessel, which may reasonably be expected in a few months, with a cargo of oil.

† Vide enclosure A.

Subjoined is a copy of the instructions I hold from Mr. Bell.

I have, &c.,

JAMES KING.

[Enclosure A to No. 3.]

Sir,

Sydney, 18 April, 1830.

I hereby authorize you to open and answer any letters that may be sent from the Honorable Colonial Secretary's Office regarding the water-side allotment I have applied for, to select it, and to manage any other matters regarding the same.

To Mr. J. King, 5, King-street.

JOHN BELL.

[Enclosure B to No. 3.]

WE, the undersigned, do hereby certify that Mr. Bell is personally known to us, that he has embarked a considerable amount of capital in the whale fishing, and that he at present accompanies the vessel on a whaling voyage.

No. 4.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Bell.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, 26 July, 1830.

With reference to your application of the 3rd April last, for a portion of land bounded by the harbour of Port Jackson, for the purpose of erecting a wharf and stores, &c., required to enable you to carry on your whaling pursuits, and also to your letter of the 12th ultimo, in reply to mine of the 8th, representing the extent of your engagements in this trade and your intention to commence the necessary buildings immediately, I have now the honor to inform you that the point of land between Careening Cove and Neutral Harbour, as well as that between Great and Little Sirius Coves, has been laid out into allotments for this purpose, and that His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to order that you may receive one of them.

At the same time I am directed to apprise you that these allotments will only be granted on the express condition of the necessary buildings being commenced within six months, in default of which they will

will be forfeited. You will accordingly have the goodness to notify the selection you may make to the Surveyor-General, in order that that officer may include the same, if unobjectionable, in his half-monthly report for final approval previous to your obtaining the regular authority for possession, which will state more specifically the conditions it will be granted on.

I have, &c.,
ALEXANDER McLEAY.

No. 5.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. A. Mossman.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, 19 October, 1830.

With reference to your letter of the 5th August last, renewing your application for a portion of land in the harbour of Port Jackson, for the purpose of erecting a wharf and stores, &c., required to carry on your whaling pursuits, I do myself the honor to inform you that as the point of land between Neutral Harbour and Careening Cove, as well as that between the Great and Little Sirius Coves, has been laid out into allotments for the purpose, that His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to order that you may receive one of them.

At the same time I am directed to apprise you that these allotments will only be granted on the express condition of the necessary buildings being commenced within six months, in default of which they will be forfeited. You will accordingly have the goodness to notify your selection to the Surveyor-General, in order that that officer may include the same, if unobjectionable, in his half-monthly report for final approval previous to obtaining the regular authority for possession, which will state more specifically the conditions it will be granted on.

No. 6.

The Colonial Secretary to The Surveyor General.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 19 October, 1830.

I do myself the honor to inform you that His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to order Mr. Archibald Mossman and Mr. Charles Staples are to be allowed to select each an allotment on the North Shore for the purposes of whaling establishments, either at the point of land between Careening Cove and Neutral Harbour, or that between Great and Little Sirius Coves, which have been set apart for these purposes, and to request that after those gentlemen have fixed upon the spots they wish to receive, taking care that Mr. Mossman has the priority of selection, you will be pleased to include their names in your half-monthly return for His Excellency's final approval.

I have, &c.,
ALEXANDER McLEAY.

No. 7.

Mr. J. King to The Surveyor General.

Sir,

Sydney, 2 December, 1830.

By virtue of the permission granted me by His Excellency the Governor to select an allotment on the north shore of Port Jackson, I have the honor to apprise you that I have selected section No. 7 (seven) in Little Sirius Cove.

I have, &c.,
(For JOHN BELL),
JAMES KING.

Minute on No. 7.

Abstract of 1-15th December, 1830. 4 acres more or less, special reserve allotment No. 7, for the purpose of erecting stores and other suitable buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or other mercantile establishment. No. 10.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. J. Bell.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 1 January, 1831.

The Surveyor-General having stated in his report for 1-15 December, 1830, that in pursuance of the authority given to you by His Excellency the Governor you have selected 4 acres more or less of land situated in the county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, being allotment No. 7 (seven), between Great and Little Sirius Coves, for the purpose of erecting stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or other mercantile establishment, I am directed to communicate to you His Excellency's sanction to take possession of the said 4 acres more or less of land, and to retain the same (if it has been surveyed) for two years from the present date, or until His Majesty's pleasure shall be made known on the subject, provided that you apply it immediately to the purpose stated and do not convert any part of it to any other purpose whatsoever; but if the selection which you have made be in an unsurveyed part of the country, it will not be possible to determine at present whether there are any prior claims or other objections to your obtaining the precise spot applied for or not. It is presumed, however, that there will be a sufficiency of land for all purposes, and the Government will not interfere with your selection if it can be avoided.

If it be found, at the end of two years, that you have failed to carry into effect the purpose above stated, the land will be immediately resumed and granted to another applicant; but if, during that time, you shall fully and bona fide comply with the intention of this reserve, and if the same shall be approved by His Majesty, you will be allowed a grant of the land in free and common socage on the following conditions, viz:—

1. You will have to pay a quit-rent to the Crown of 5 per cent. per annum on the value of the land, as it may be hereafter fixed by the Commissioners appointed for that purpose or by order of His Majesty's Government.
2. The payment of the quit-rent will not commence until the end of seven years from this date, but within that period you must expend in improvements on the land a sum equal to its full value, estimated as above, under the penalty of forfeiting the grant.
3. The quit-rent will be redeemable at your option on a payment to the Colonial Treasury of a sum equal to twenty years' purchase, provided such payment be made within twenty years from the present date.
4. The land will not be alienable under any pretence whatever before the expiration of seven years from this date, nor until the sum above stipulated to be laid out in improvements shall have been actually expended on it, and you will not be put in possession of the title deeds until the end of that period.
5. The Crown reserves to itself all mines of gold, silver, and coals, the right of making and constructing all roads and bridges which may be necessary for public purposes, and such stones, indigenous timber, and other materials, the produce of the land, as may be required at any time for the construction and repair of the said roads and bridges, for naval purposes, and for public works.
6. You must apply other land to the purpose above stated, and never convert any part of it to any other purpose whatever, under penalty of forfeiture.

I have, &c.,

ALEXR. MCLEAY.

The Colonial Secretary to Mr. A. Mossman.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 1 January, 1831.

The Surveyor-General having stated in his report for 1-15 December, 1830, No. —, that, in pursuance of the authority given to you by His Excellency the Governor, you have selected 4 acres, more or less, of land situated in the county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, being allotment No. 6 (six) between Great and Little Sirius Creeks, for the purpose of erecting stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or other mercantile establishment, I am directed to communicate to you His Excellency's sanction to take possession of the said 4 acres, more or less, of land, and to retain retain the same (if it has been surveyed) for two years from this present date, or until His Majesty's pleasure shall be made known on the subject, provided that you apply it immediately to the purpose stated, and do not convert any part of it to any other purpose whatsoever.

But if the selection which you have made be in an unsurveyed part of the country, it will not be possible to determine at present whether there are any prior claims or other objections to your obtaining the precise spot applied for or not. Messrs. Hughes & Hosking to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 11 October, 1841.

You will oblige us by stating whether a grant for 4 acres of land, dated 12th February, 1831, allotment No. 6, at Sirius Cove, parish of Willoughby, in favour of Archibald Mossman, is in your office, the same not being marked off as usual on the parish map in the Surveyor's office when issued.

We have, &c.,

HUGHES & HOSKING.

Minutes on No. 14.

The Surveyor-General is requested to report, furnishing the description if the grant be noted.—E.D.-T., blank cover, 15 October, 1841.

Mr. Assistant-Surveyor Dalgety having furnished me with descriptions of the allotments 6 and 7 at Great Sirius Cove, for the deeds of grant of which Messrs. Hughes & Hosking have applied in their letter of the 8th November, 1841 (see No. —), copies are forwarded herewith; so that deeds of grant can now be prepared if His Excellency the Governor should think proper. Owing to a supposed discrepancy in the surveys of Messrs. Larmer and White the descriptions of these allotments have not been previously forwarded.—T.L.M., Surveyor-General's Office, 22 April, 1842.

I conclude the deeds may be advertised, upon Messrs. Hughes & Hosking sending the necessary letters within one month; and in default, then to advertise for the original donors.—30 April, 1842.

The authenticated letters should be furnished previously to advertising in Messrs. Hughes & Hosking's names.—3 May, 1842.

Sir,

Sydney, 8 November, 1841.

There being a discrepancy between the surveys of Messrs. White and Larmer over two portions of land, containing 4 acres each, in Great Sirius Cove, known as Mossman's Bay, which occasions the non-issue of the deeds of grant which we require as proprietors by purchase from Archibald Mossman, we will feel obliged by the Government adopting early measures for rectifying any error in the original measurement of the portions already alluded to, standing as Nos. 6 and 7 in the parish map of Willoughby.

I enclose you copies of Mr. Assistant-Surveyor Larmer's description of the allotments Nos. 6 and 7, at Sirius Cove. These descriptions have never been acted on, because Mr. Assistant-Surveyor H. F. White represented that there was a considerable error in them. This Mr. Larmer denied, and instructions were accordingly issued, I believe, either to Mr. Butler or yourself, to inquire into this discrepancy between the work of the two surveyors. Unfortunately, Mr. H. F. White's letter and explanatory sketch and Mr. Larmer's letters have been mislaid. The Colonial Secretary having handed to me, under blank cover of 15 October, 1841, an application from Hughes & Hosking for the deed of grant of No. 6, and also another application, under blank cover of 11 November, 1841, for the deeds of grant of allotments Nos. 6 and 7, and praying an investigation of the discrepancy, I have to request that you will take the earliest opportunity of inquiring into this business, which has been standing over now since 1836, and furnish a plan and fresh descriptions if necessary.

I have, &c.,

T. L. MITCHELL.

No. 19.

Mr. Assistant-Surveyor Dalgety to The Surveyor-General.

Sir,

North Shore, 9 March, 1842.

According to the instructions contained in your letter, I have the honor to forward a plan and descriptions of allotments Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, at Sirius Cove, in the county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, and I beg leave to report that the only error I find is in the southern boundary of lot No. 8; which is too little, being only 8 chains and 40 links, instead of, as formerly described, 9 chains and 20 links, in consequence of which the area is also too little, being only 3 acres 1 rood and 30 perches, instead of, as originally stated, 4 acres.

I have, &c.,

J. G. DALGETY,

Assistant-Surveyor.

[Enclosure B to No. 19.]

Description.—Archibald Mossman, 4 acres.

Four acres, county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, at Great Sirius Cove, allotment No. 6. Commencing at the north-west corner of allotment No. 7; and bounded on the south by the northern boundary of allotment No. 7 bearing east six degrees thirty minutes south eight chains; on the east by a road one chain wide bearing north twenty-four degrees east; on the north by a road one chain wide bearing north sixty-five degrees west seven chains fifty links to Great Sirius Cove; and on the west by Great Sirius Cove to the north-west corner of allotment No. 7.

Minutes on Enclosure B.

Promised by Governor Darling on the 19th October, 1830, and possession given on the 1st January, 1831, as a special reserve for the erection of stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or mercantile establishment.

Quit-rent, 8d. sterling per annum, commencing 1st January, 1838.

[Enclosure C to No. 19.]

Description.—John Bell, 4 acres.

Four acres, county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, at Great Sirius Cove, allotment No. 7. Commencing at the south-west corner of allotment No. 6; and bounded on the north by the southern boundary of allotment No. 6 bearing east six degrees thirty minutes south eight chains; on the east by a road one chain wide; on the south by a road one chain wide bearing west eleven chains to Great Sirius Cove; and on the west by Great Sirius Cove to the south-west corner of No. 6 allotment.

Minute on Enclosure C.

Promised by Governor Darling on the 26th July, 1830; selection approved 1st January, 1831, as a special reserve for erection of stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or mercantile establishment.

No. 20.

The Colonial Secretary to Messrs. Hughes & Hosking.

Gentlemen,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 7 May, 1842.

With reference to your letters of 11th October and 8th November, 1841, claiming the deeds of two portions of land at Great Sirius Cove, containing 4 acres each, and located to Archibald Mossman and John Bell respectively, I now do myself the honor to request that you will obtain the usual authentication letters within one month from this date, otherwise the deeds will be advertised for the original donees.

I have, &c.,

E. DEAS-THOMSON.

No. 21.

Mr. A. Mossman to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 24 July, 1843.

I have the honor to apply for the issue of a deed of grant in my favour of 4 acres (more or less) of land situated in the county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, being allotment No. 7 (seven), between Great and Little Sirius Coves, granted to John Bell, Esquire, by virtue of a letter of possession, signed by the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, upon the 1st January, 1831, marked special, and conveyed to me by Mr. Bell by deeds of lease and release, bearing date the 9th and 10th of December, 1836, herewith exhibited, and upon which land have been erected stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or other mercantile establishment.

I have, &c.,

ARCHIBALD MOSSMAN.

Minutes on No. 21.

This being a comparatively recent alienation, I conclude His Excellency will sanction the issue of a grant for the land; but Bell, the promisee, is I believe deceased, and the case therefore would seem to be one for the Court of Claims. 25 July. Approved.—G.C., 26 July. Commissioner of Claims to report accordingly. Blank cover, 27 July, 1843.—For the Colonial Secretary, W. ELYARD.

No. 22.

Mr. A. Mossman to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 24 July, 1843.

I beg to apply for the issue in my favour of a deed of grant of 4 acres (more or less) of land situated in the county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, being allotment No. 6, between Great and Little Sirius Coves, which was granted to me by virtue of a letter of possession, signed by the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, upon the 1st January, 1831, marked special, and upon which I have erected stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or other mercantile establishment.

I have, &c.,

ARCHIBALD MOSSMAN.

Minutes

Minutes on No. 22.

This being a comparatively recent alienation, I conclude His Excellency will sanction the issue of a grant for the land; if so, the deeds should perhaps be at once advertised for the promisee Messman, Messrs. Hughes and Hosking, who claimed this land, having failed to produce the proper authority from Messman. 25 July, 1843. Approved.—G.G., 26 July, 1843. Commissioner of Claims to investigate and report. Gazette Notice.

Court of Claims Office, Sydney, 13 August, 1843.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the following claims for a deed of grant of land will be ready for the examination of the Commissioners appointed for that purpose under the Act of Council, 5 William IV., No. 21, at the expiration of two months from this date, before which day any caveat or counter claim must be entered at this office. Due notice will be given of the days appointed for the hearings,—

Case, No. 1,208—Archibald Mossman, of Sydney, merchant.

Four acres, county of Cumberland, parish of Willoughby, at Great Sirius Cove, allotment No. 7: Commencing at the south-west corner of allotment No. 6; bearing east 6 degrees 30 minutes south 8 chains; on the east by a road 1 chain wide; on the south by a road 1 chain bearing west 11 chains to Great Sirius Cove; and on the west by Great Sirius Cove to the south-west corner of No. 6 allotment.

This land was selected on an order of Governor Darling's, dated the 26th July, 1830, in favour of John Bell, deceased, who, it is alleged, sold to claimant, who has erected stores, &c., for a whaling establishment, the condition on which the land was promised.

By direction of the Commissioners,

JOHN THOMPSON,
Secretary.

No. 24.

Gazette Notice.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 21 August, 1843.

THE following description of a grant of land, with the name of the person to whom it was originally promised, is published for general information, in order that all parties concerned may have an opportunity of correcting any errors or omissions that may have been made inadvertently.

It is requested that within one month from the present date the following particulars may be accurately furnished to this office, viz., surname and all christian names of the person in whose favour the deed is to be prepared, written at full length, his residence, and the intended name of the property.

Also (if required in any name but that of the original promisee) the grounds of the claim, and a letter from the said promisee, if living, and from all intermediate assigns, if any, giving his and their consent and sanction thereto, and witnessed either by a Magistrate or a Solicitor of the Supreme Court.

If these be duly furnished and satisfactory, and if no caveat be lodged, or other cause of uncertainty appear, the deeds will be prepared accordingly, as soon as possible after the expiration of the stated period of one month. If the required particulars be not furnished within that period, or if a caveat be lodged, or other cause of uncertainty arise which cannot be satisfactorily determined by the Government, the case will be referred to the Commissioners of Claims, and the parties subjected to the expense of that proceeding.

REPORT.

REPORT.

THE Commissioners have the honor to report, for the information of His Excellency the Governor—

That the allotment of land, No. 7, included in this case was under an order made by His Excellency Governor Darling, and dated 26th July, 1830, selected by John Bell, on condition that the necessary wharfs and stores should be erected for carrying on a whaling establishment.

That by certain indentures of lease and release, dated the 9th and 10th of December, 1836, the said John Bell, in consideration of £300, released and conveyed the allotment of land included in this case to Archibald Mossman.

That by indenture of lease and release, bearing date the 11th and 12th days of August, 1843, and made between the said Archibald Mossman of the one part, and John Terry Hughes and John Hosking of the other part, in consideration of an annuity of £2,000 per annum, the said Archibald Mossman released and conveyed (amongst other lands) the allotment of land included in this case to the said John Terry Hughes and John Hosking, and their heirs.

That by certain indentures of lease and release, the latter dated 15th August, 1843, and made between John Terry Hughes and Esther, his wife, of the first part; John Hosking and Martha Foxlowe, his wife, of the second part; the said Archibald Mossman, of the third part; and Thomas Brown and Robert Thomson, of the fourth part,—the said parties of the first and second part did direct, appoint, release, and convey (amongst other lands) the allotment of land included in this case to the said Thomas Brown and Robert Thomson, and their heirs, upon trust, in the event of the said annuity of £2,000 being in arrear and unpaid, to sell the said lands.

That the said Archibald Mossman became insolvent, and the said Thomas Brown and Thomas Ware Smart were appointed trustees of his estate and effects.

That by a certain indenture of the 5th June, 1844, John Campbell Lyall was appointed a trustee under the said annuity deed, in the place of the said Robert Thomson.

That the said annuity being in arrear, the said Thomas Brown and John Campbell Lyall, in pursuance of the power vested in them, sold the land included in this case to Andrew Roxburgh and Henry Smyth.

That by a certain indenture of release, dated 22nd February, 1845, and made between the said Thomas Brown and John Campbell Lyall, of the one part, and Andrew Roxburgh and Henry Smith, of the other part, in consideration of the sum of £1,090, the said Thomas Brown and John Campbell Lyall released and conveyed (amongst other lands) the lands and hereditaments (?) included in this case to the said Andrew Roxburgh and Henry Smyth, and their heirs and assigns absolutely.

That by the deposition of Gotter Kerr Mann, surveyor, sworn before the Commission on the 31st March, 1845, it appears that a wharf has been erected upon the land included in this case, of the value of £1,000 or thereabout.

That the transfers and deeds above alluded to, and an abstract of title containing the particulars of the annuity deed, were exhibited to the Commissioners and verified.

The Commissioners therefore respectfully recommend that the deed of grant of the allotment of land included in this case be made to Andrew Roxburgh, of Surry Hills, in the city of Sydney, builder, and Henry Smyth, also of Surry Hills, Esquire, late a Major in the 39th regiment of foot, and to their heirs as joint tenants.

Dated this 10th day of May, 1845.

REPORT.

REPORT:

THE Commissioners have the honor to report, for the information of His Excellency the Governor,---

That the allotment of land No. 6 included in this case was located under an order made by His Excellency Governor Darling, dated the 19th October, 1830, in favour of Archibald Mossman, on condition of forming a whaling establishment.

That by the deposition of Gother Kerr Mann, surveyor, sworn before the Commissioner on the 31st March, 1845 (and enclosed with report and papers in case No. 1,208, relating to the conterminous allotment No. 7) it appears that wharfs and buildings have been erected upon the allotment of land included in this case of the value of £5,000 or thereabout.

That by certain indentures of lease and release, the latter dated 12th August, 1843, and made between the said Archibald Mossman, of the one part, and John Terry Hughes and John Hosking, of the other part, in consideration of an annuity of £2,000 per annum, the said Archibald Mossman released and conveyed the allotment of land included in this case (amongst other lands) to the said John Terry Hughes and John Hosking, and their heirs.

That by certain indentures of lease and release, the latter dated 15th August, 1843, and made between John Terry Hughes and Esther, his wife, of the first part; John Hosking and Martha Foxlowe, his wife, of the second part; the said Archibald Mossman, of the third part; and Thomas Brown and Robert Thomson, of the fourth part,—the said parties of the first and second part did direct, appoint, release, and convey (amongst other lands) the lands included in this case to the said Thomas Brown and Robert Thomson, and their heirs, upon trust, in the event of the said annuity being in arrear and unpaid, as therein mentioned, to sell the said lands. That the said Archibald Mossman became insolvent, and the said Thomas Brown and Thomas Ware Smart were appointed trustees of his estate and effects. That by a certain indenture of the 5th June, 1844, John Campbell Lyall was appointed a trustee under the said annuity deed, in the place of the said Robert Thomson.

That the said annuity being in arrear, the said Thomas Brown and John Campbell Lyall, in pursuance of the power vested in them, sold the land included in this case to Andrew Roxburgh and Henry Smyth.

That, by a certain indenture of release dated 22nd February, 1845, and made between the said Thomas Brown and John Campbell Lyall, of the one part, and Andrew Roxburgh and Henry Smyth, of the other part, in consideration of the sum of £1,000, the said Thomas Brown and John Campbell Lyall released and conveyed (amongst other lands) the lands and hereditaments (?) included in this case to the said Andrew Roxburgh and Henry Smyth, and their heirs and assigns absolutely.

That the several deeds above alluded to, and an abstract of title containing the particulars of the annuity deed, were exhibited to the Commissioners and verified.

The Commissioners therefore respectfully recommend that the deed of grant of the allotment of land included in this case be made to Andrew Roxburgh, of Surry Hills, in the city of Sydney, builder, and Henry Smyth, also of Surry Hills, Esq., late a Major in the 39th regiment of foot, and to their heirs as joint tenants.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to Messrs. Stuart & Harnett.

Gentlemen,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 2 August, 1882.

With reference to your application of the 7th February last, for the rescission of the reservation of 100 feet above high-water-mark, contained in Mossman's 30- and 10-acre, and Jones's 10-acre grants, at Mossman's Bay, parish of Willoughby, county of Cumberland, I am directed to inform you that, under a report which has been received from the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers and the Surveyor-General, the Secretary for Lands has approved of your being allowed to purchase the rescission in question, provided that, at the expiration of four weeks from the date of a notice to be published in the Government Gazette inviting the public to lodge any objections they may have to a compliance with your application, no valid objections shall have been lodged.

2. You must clearly understand that this approval extends only so far as this Department is concerned; and further, that any work undertaken by you in connection with the proposed rescission will, until such time as final approval shall have been given by the Governor and Executive Council, be regarded as at your own risk.

I have, &c.,

Mr. H. A. Stephenson to The Under-Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Council Chambers, St. Leonards, 5 September, 1882.

At a meeting of the Council of this Borough, held this evening, a deputation from the residents of Mossman's Bay waited upon the Council and pointed out that Messrs. Harnett and Stuart had applied for the rescission of the reservation of water-frontage at Mossman's Bay, and that the granting of such application would exclude the public from having any landing-place.

As chairman of that meeting, and in consequence of the Mayor being prevented through illness from attending to the duties of the office, I have the honor to request you to be good enough to inform me if it would be convenient for the Honorable the Secretary for Lands to receive a deputation consisting of three of the Aldermen of this Council and three of the residents of Mossman's Bay on the matter above referred to on Friday the 8th instant, and at what hour.

I would respectfully urge upon you the necessity of this request being favourably considered, as the time allowed for objections expires on 11th instant.

H. A. STEPHENSON,
Alderman and Chairman.

Sir,

Mossman's Bay, 7 September, 1882.

Being a purchaser of a portion of Bell's grant, Mossman's Bay, I strongly protest of the 100 feet reserve being given to Mr. Copeland and Slaber, Mr. Harnett and Stuart, as a public wharf is much needed at Mossman's Bay; it would be great benefit to the public at large. I humbly pray this will be seen into.

Mr. H. A. Stephenson to The Under-Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Council Chambers, St. Leonards, 8 September, 1882.

At a meeting of the Council held on the 5th instant it was resolved that the Government be at once communicated with requesting that no water-frontage in Mossman's Bay be alienated until arrangements are made to conserve the rights of the freeholders in that locality to a public wharf.

As chairman of the meeting referred to, I have the honor to protest against the applications of Messrs. Harnett and Stuart for the rescission of reservation of water-frontage in Great and Little Sirius Coves, on the ground that it is not desirable that any water-frontages in Port Jackson should be alienated, and also on the ground that the granting of the applications will cut off the residents of Mossman's Bay from any means of access to the water by way of a public wharf.

I have, &c.,

The Progress Committee, Mossman's Bay, to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Mossman's Bay, 20 September, 1882.

Referring to the deputation which waited upon you on Friday, the 15th instant, consisting of Aldermen Langley, Stevenson, and Captain Jenkins, representing the Borough Council of St. Leonards, and Messrs. Captain Blix, S. S. Garling, and A. Macalpine, members of the Progress Committee, representing the residents and landholders of Mossman's Bay and vicinity, we have now the honor to lay before you, at your suggestion, our request that you will be pleased to take steps to obtain for Mossman's Bay a public wharf, with road suitable for vehicle and passenger traffic from same to Raglan-street. We would respectfully submit in support of our request,—

1. That our communication with Sydney is by water.
2. That the only suitable place for a wharf for the district generally is that now in use, or the frontage immediately adjoining.
3. That the aforesaid wharf and the land adjoining are claimed by Messrs. Harnett and Stuart as their property.
4. That the residents and the public have access to said wharf upon sufferance only, there being no public road to it, and communication could at any time be cut off by the proprietors.
5. That we beg respectfully to point out that our interests suffer very materially through want of efficient steam ferry communication with Sydney consequent upon there being no public wharf.
6. We therefore pray that you will take into your most favourable and early consideration our petition for a public wharf and road leading from it.
7. We enclose plan showing wharf referred to, and also indicating proposed line of road.

Mr. A. Macalpine to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

363, George-street, Sydney, 20 October, 1882.

I have the honor to direct your attention to a letter dated 20th September, 1882, signed by Messrs. J. F. Cullen, G. C. F. Blix, S. S. Garling, W. E. Wilson, W. H. Barraclough, and A. Macalpine, requesting that a public wharf, with road from same, be granted for Mossman's Bay.

In support of their request it was submitted that we were and are entirely dependent upon the sufferances of the proprietors (Messrs. Harnett and Stuart) for an outlet, and could not in any way control ferry communication.

This has now become so very unsatisfactory as to be unbearable, and as our only relief lies in obtaining a public wharf, &c., I would respectfully request, on behalf of those signing the letter referred to, and on behalf of those whose interests are affected, and at present suffering, the favour of an early reply.

I have, &c.,

ARCH. MACALPINE,
Hon. Secretary, Progress Committee, Mossman's Bay.

No. 41.

Messrs. Stuart & Harnett to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Sydney, November, 1882.

We have the honor to address you on the subject of the application we have made for the rescission of the reservation of water-frontages to certain lands on the North Shore, in Mossman's Bay and its vicinity, to which we understand that objections have been made by inhabitants of the North Shore.

To enable the matter to be understood more clearly, we have prepared a sketch of the coast line, showing approximately the land which belongs to us, and the frontage reservations for which we have applied.

It will be observed that certain portions of land, marked a, were granted without any reservation. The others form two classes; those marked b were originally what were known as "Whaling Grants," and those marked c were grants by purchase in the ordinary manner. The Whaling Grants were given to encourage that pursuit, which at that time, and for many years afterwards, formed a most important industry for this port. The grants were promised under letters of license from the Government, for the purpose of making wharfs, and building stores close to the water's edge, on the very frontages which form the subject of these applications, and, as one would naturally expect, the printer's words, "The Crown reserves to itself all land within 100 feet of high-water-mark on the sea-coast, creeks, harbours, and inlets," were ruled out.

The applications were approved by Governor Darling on 26th July and 10th October, 1830, and the letters of license are dated 1st January, 1831, "for the purpose of erecting stores and other buildings necessary for the formation of a whaling or other mercantile establishment," and provide that a Crown grant will issue on fulfilment of the conditions. The conditions were fulfilled, a large sum of money expended, and a whaling establishment of great extent was carried on for many years, while it formed the only place for careening vessels prior to the making of dry-docks.

On 24th July, 1843, Mr. A. Mossman applied for the grants for his own lands, and for that of Mr. Bell, which he had purchased.

These applications were referred by Sir George Gipps, the Governor, to the Court of Claims for investigation, and on 10th May, 1845, reports were sent in by William Carter, Charles Windeyer, and Thomas Callaghan, the Commissioners, that £5,000 had been expended on wharfs and buildings, and all other conditions had been fulfilled, and recommending that a deed of grant should be issued.

The deeds were issued accordingly on 29th May, 1845, and in them the parcels of land are identified as those authorized under the letters of 1st January, 1831, and approved by the Commissioners of Court of Claims, but by some oversight the printed words "reserving within 100 feet of high-water" have been left in the deeds, and the omission to delete them, and bring them into accord with the original letters of occupation, and the very object for which that occupation was given, was unnoticed until recently; the various dealings with these lands, however, have always been in the knowledge that as whaling grants there was no reservation, the grant, from the nature of the object, having been purposely given of the very land usually reserved.

In asking for the rescission of the reservation on these grants, we are therefore merely asking for the removal of a blot upon the title deeds, which had inadvertently crept in, and been allowed to remain there undiscovered; we ask for no concession, but merely that the intentions of the two parties to the original contract be carried out, the Crown on the one hand, and Messrs. Mossman and Bell, through whom we derive our title, on the other.

The reservations of 100 feet in the other grants stand in the same position as hundreds of other cases which have been granted, and we can see no reason why they should be withheld from us.

On Hilson's and Gilbert's grants the reservations would be practically of no use to anyone except the owners of the land, as it is an extremely steep rock, down the face of which, on a part of the reservation, we have, at great expense, erected a steep-gradient railroad, to convey the stone from the quarries on the upper portion to the wharf which we have made for shipping it, and part of remainder of the reservation will be required for road to lands. On the other grants we have given, or are willing to give up, an equal or larger area in roads of greater practical use and benefit to the public.

The main object, we understand, of the North Shore deputations which waited on you was to obtain for the public benefit the wharf, or a portion of it, on which we, or those through whom we derive our title, expended so large a sum of money.

We have no desire to monopolize the bay to the exclusion of other parties; on the contrary, several thousand persons land weekly upon our wharf and land, some for pursuing their avocations, but the great majority for recreation and enjoyment of the bay and surrounding scenery; but we feel sure that you would never sanction such injustice as to take away without full compensation that to which we have shown we have an equitable title, and have a right to obtain a legal one.

We would point out that there have been reserved by the Government of former days several points of access to the water, marked in the plan with an x, and although these may appear very steep and inaccessible, yet they are in reality not more so than our land was before we incurred the necessary expenditure.

Any or all of these points could be made available and convenient for the accommodation of the residents; but if our wharf be considered more desirable for a public wharf, then let it be valued and resumed for the purpose.

We do not desire to rest upon mere technical points when we have a strong, just, and equitable claim, but we would merely point out that the gazetted time for lodging objections to the issue of these rescissions had expired before the objections were made to you.

Resting assured that you will decide this matter in accordance with its equities.

We have, &c.,

ALEXR. STUART.
R. HARNETT.

Memorandum by Mr. Peyton.

THE Borough Council of St. Leonards and others objecting to the rescission, in favour of Messrs. Stuart and Harnett, of reservation of water-frontage at Mossman's Bay; also, an application by residents of Mossman's Bay asking for wharf and road of access.

THE wharf now sought to be obtained by certain residents of Mossman's Bay is situated on whaling lots, one of the conditions in connection with which was, as pointed out by Messrs. Stuart and Harnett, that such improvements should be erected.

Further, a letter by Messrs. Stuart and Harnett is now under consideration proposing, conditionally, on the closing of certain roads to dedicate others, one of which would provide the access herein sought to be obtained, and marked "2" on the enclosed lithograph.

I

I have attached copies of the original letters of possession, from which it will be seen that the 100 feet reservation clause has been struck out, though included in the deed subsequently issued, on the report of the Court of Claims (also attached) that improvements, including a wharf, had been erected to the value of £6,000.

It appears that the quit-rent has been redeemed by payment of twenty years' purchase.

S. L. PEYTON,

Minutes on No. 42.

Although the objections of the Municipal Council and individuals were not made until after the time for making such objections had lapsed, it may be well to consider them. Reference to the facts herein stated shows that with respect to J. Bell's 4 acres and Mossman's 4 acres the predecessors of Messrs. Stuart and Harnett have fulfilled all the conditions imposed, and to the extent of £6,000 on the 8 acres, and it is now sought to deprive them of the benefit thereof. We would specially point to the fact that the 100 feet reservation was struck out of the order to select, and naturally so, because it is not to be expected that they would have laid out the amount on anything but an indefeasible title (vide case 1,208, Court of Claims, herewith). There is nothing to show that the subsequent insertion of the conditions of 100 feet reservation was by authority; but having been put there, we see no other opening for a title than by purchase, which is recommended. It will, however, be advisable to leave out from reserving (?) the road of approach offered by Messrs. Stuart and Harnett, which the public are no doubt entitled to by user.—P. F. ADAMS, 2 January, 1883; E. O. MORIARTY, 17 January, 1883.

The above minute was written by the direction of the Engineer-in-Chief and the Surveyor-General, but cannot be signed by the former to-day, as he is out of town.—S.L.P., 2 January, 1882.

Submitted. This case would have been dealt with before had not the Surveyor-General been away from the Colony.—C.O., 2/1/83. Approved.—J.R., 2/1/83. Blank cover, Under-Secretary Public Works. Forward to Lands.—H.C., 25/1/83. The Under-Secretary for Lands. Blank cover.—J.R., 25 January, 1883.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of 30th January, No. ———, and also to convey to you the following resolution passed by the Council of this Borough at a meeting held on the 6th instant, viz. :—

That this Council is surprised that, after the pledge given to a public deputation in the presence of three representatives of the Press by the late Minister for Lands, that nothing further would be done, with regard to Messrs. Stuart and Harnett's applications for the rescission of certain portions of 100 feet above high-water-mark reservation, without reference to the Council, the Government should have dealt with the matter, the Borough Council of St. Leonards never having been communicated with in the interval.

I have, &c.,

WILLIAM H. M'LEAN,

Council Clerk.

No. 48.

Mr. A. Macalpine to The Under-Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

263, George-street, Sydney, 14 February, 1883.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of 30th January, in reply to communication from Mossman's Bay Progress Committee of 20th September, 1882, requesting that a public wharf, with road leading therefrom to main road (Raglan-street) be granted for Mossman's Bay and vicinity.

In reply, I would respectfully point out that the request preferred by the deputation, consisting of Messrs. Blix, Garling, and Macalpine, which waited upon the Honorable the Minister for Lands upon 15th September, was for a public wharf and road therefrom, and in reply the Minister (Sir John Robertson) stated that we should have them, at the same time suggesting that our request be embodied in writing, if only as a record, which we accordingly did on 20th September.

The question of reservation alluded to in yours was not raised or referred to in our letter. In it we simply pointed out that the site occupied by the present wharf (and in terms of your letter, owned by Messrs. Stuart and Harnett) was "the most suitable place for the district generally," and there is nothing in it which can be construed into a request "to take action which would deprive the present owners of the benefit thereof." We naturally supposed that if the Government resumed land they would compensate the proprietors.

I note that "conditionally upon the closing of certain roads," the public will have access to the wharf; but, inasmuch as your letter makes no mention of the dedication of any portion of the existing wharf, it does not appear very clear what the gain to the public will be having a road leading through and to private property.

Permit me to point out that your communication cannot be looked upon as satisfactory. We were distinctly given to understand that our reasonable request, that the growing community of Mossman's Bay would have a public outlet provided for them by the Government, and thus secure to them communication with Sydney by water, which they enjoy upon sufferance only, would be granted.

At a meeting of the Progress Committee, held on Monday, 12th instant, it was unanimously resolved "That the following members, Messrs. Capt. G. C. T. Blix, S. S. Garling, W. C. Wilson, and Archibald Macalpine, form a sub-committee to wait upon the Minister for Lands, and to urge upon him the claims of the inhabitants to the rights of a public wharf or the use of a Government one."

I shall be pleased to learn if it will be convenient for the Minister to receive the abovenamed gentlemen as a deputation upon Friday, first, 16th instant.

ARCHIBALD MACALPINE,

Honorary Secretary, Mossman's Bay Progress Committee.

MANLY PIER.

No. 1.

Mr. R. B. Smith, for information respecting Pier at Manly Beach.

Legislative Assembly, Votes and Proceedings, 30 June, 1876.

QUESTION :—

(16.) Pier at Manly Beach :—Mr. R. B. Smith asked the Secretary for Lands, pursuant to Notice,—

(1.) Is the Pier at Manly Beach public or private property?

(2.) If it is public property, have the Government granted sole permission to the proprietors of the Manly Beach steamers, or to any other person or persons, to use the pier as a public wharf, or how otherwise?

Mr. Garrett answered,—It appears that Mr. Henry Gilbert Smith obtained in 1868 permission from the Government to erect this wharf. The public were invited at the time to make objections, but none were made. The permission was granted without conditions, and Henry Gilbert Smith or his successors have retained the right to this time, but nothing more than a permissive right until the public choose to step in and interfere has been given. No such step has been thought necessary up to the present time. So far as I can gather from the documents there is no lease—it is simply on sufferance.

Mr. J. R. Carey to The Officer-in-charge, Occupation of Lands.

Sir,

Circular Quay, Sydney, 30 November, 1876.

Your communication of the 6th October last (No. 76-2,065 M.) to H. G. Smith, Esq., care of J. Thomas, Esq., Commercial Bank, Sydney, has been forwarded to the writer. In reply, I have the honor to inform you that H. G. Smith sold all his right, title, and interest in and to the Manly Pier to Heselton and Parker, who also sold their right, title, and interest to J. R. Carey, who afterwards sold his right, title, and interest to the Port Jackson Steamboat Company, the proprietors of which are J. R. Carey, Sydney, J. B. Watson, Sandhurst, Victoria, Jenkin Collier, Melbourne, and John Woods, Manly. All these sales and transfers were effected and paid for on the grounds that unconditional permission was granted by the Government to erect the pier, and afterwards to make additions thereto, consequently that the Government would not demand any rent; however, after the verbal conversation between you, Mr. J. Woods, and the writer, this morning, and in compliance therewith, the Port Jackson Steamboat Company are prepared and willing to pay a rental of £25 per annum, should the Government demand same, for the term as you specified the Act demanded, viz., five (5) years, to be computed from the 1st December next, with the understanding that they shall get a further renewal of five (5) years, in consideration of the large amount of money that has been expended on the pier, owing to the Government having given unconditional leave to erect same.

I have, &c.,

J. R. CAREY,

Managing Director of the Port Jackson Steamboat Co.

I think this rent may be accepted and occupation sanctioned.—A.O.P., 6 Dec. Approved as to rental for five years, but parties should be informed I have no power to promise extension beyond the period of five years, or renewal.—T.G., 6/12/76. Port Jackson Steam Co., and Treasury, 15 Dec., /76.

Special Lease.

Gentlemen,

Occupation of Lands, Sydney, 15 December, 1876.

Having submitted your application for permission to lease a portion of Crown Land on which the pier at Manly Beach is erected, for five years, for the consideration of the Honorable the Minister for Lands, I have now to advise you that you will be permitted to lease the land applied for at a rental of £25 per annum, payable on or before the 31st December in each year, in advance for the ensuing year, in default of which the lease will lapse, and the land may be resumed by the Government.

I have therefore to request that you will pay into the Colonial Treasury the sum of £2 1s. 8d., now due for rent, from the commencement of the current month to the 31st December next, on payment of which a promise and contract for lease will issue. The lease will confer no right to purchase the land in virtue of improvements or otherwise.

The Honorable the Minister directs me to inform you that he has no power to promise extension of the lease beyond the period of five years, or any renewal thereof.

I have, &c.,
A. O. PRETIUS,
Officer-in-charge.

Annual rent,

Mr. W. Johnson to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Manly Beach, 4 September, 1880.

A public meeting of the inhabitants of Manly was held on August 20th, and the following resolution was unanimously carried:—"That in order to carry out the object of the requisition calling this meeting just read, a deputation be appointed to wait upon the Hon. Minister for Lands with the view of explaining to him our grievances, and urge upon him the necessity of terminating the permit at present held by the Port Jackson Steamboat Company on the expiration of their existing agreement."

Sir, I have the honor, by the direction of the deputation appointed at that meeting, to communicate with you to know what day you will receive the deputation.

The Hon. John Macintosh, M.P., will introduce the deputation.

The Mayor of Manly to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Municipal Chamber, Manly, 7 January, 1881.

As my term of office as Mayor of this Municipality will shortly expire, I am requested by my fellow Aldermen to again address you concerning the lease of the pier or wharf granted some years since to the Port Jackson Steamboat Company, and which will terminate on or about November next.

I

I would firstly remind you that several deputations have during the last year or two waited upon you to endeavour to have the site upon which the wharf is erected handed over to the Municipality, but you were prevented complying with their request, as you could not interfere with the existing lease; at the same time you promised should you continue in office that a renewal should not be granted, as the district was incorporated after the lease was issued, and you agreed with the deputation that the municipal authorities were the proper custodians of the wharf, or rather that they should be.

In addition to the several deputations, I have frequently by order of the Council of Manly addressed you letters on this important subject, respectfully protesting against any renewal of the existing lease to the present proprietors or lessees, or to the lease being granted to any but the Municipal Council; and I now once more have the honor, on behalf of the Municipal Council of Manly, to impress on you the importance of this matter, and to request that you will comply with the application from this Council that, at the termination of the existing lease, the site on which the wharf referred to is erected be handed over or leased to the Municipal Council of Manly.

As I am about to retire from municipal duties, I take this opportunity to thank Her Majesty's Ministers for the great courtesy and consideration I have received from them at various times.

I have, &c.,
ALFRED HILDER,
Mayor.

The Manager, Port Jackson Steamboat Company, to The Chief Officer, Occupation of Lands.

Sir, No. 1 Jetty, Circular Quay, Sydney, 11 February, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 31st ultimo, informing me that a protest had been received from the Municipal Council of Manly against the renewal of the special lease held by the Port Jackson Steamboat Company at Manly, which expires on 30th November next, and requesting that I will state any reasons why the lease should be renewed.

In reply I beg to point out, for the information of the Minister at the head of your Department,—

- 1st. That, in the year 1855, Henry Gilbert Smith made application to the Government to be allowed to erect a jetty or wharf at Manly Cove; that permission was granted, and Henry Gilbert Smith executed a bond and found sureties for the due fulfilment of the conditions imposed; after which the said wharf or jetty was erected by and at the sole expense of the said H. G. Smith.
- 2nd. That H. G. Smith sold and transferred all his right, title, and interest in and to the said wharf or jetty to Messrs. Heselton & Parker, who paid him a large sum for same.
- 3rd. Messrs. Heselton & Parker sold and transferred all their right, title, and interest in and to the said pier, wharf, or jetty, to John R. Carey, for a valuable consideration.
- 4th. That John R. Carey afterwards sold and transferred all his right, title, and interest to the Port Jackson Steamboat Company (Limited), for a valuable consideration.

- 5th. That the Officer in charge of the Occupation of Lands in 1876 for the first time demanded rent for the occupation of the foreshore on which the wharf was erected, from the Port Jackson Steamboat Company; whereupon the representatives of the Port Jackson Steamboat Company interviewed that officer, and verbally protested and explained the hardship of their being required to pay a rental for the use of the foreshore when permission had been granted to their predecessors to erect the said jetty, and to add to it from time to time, at considerable outlay, without any condition as to the likelihood of a rental being afterwards demanded—a matter duly taken into consideration and valued in the purchase money paid by the Port Jackson Steamboat Company for the said jetty.
- 6th. That the said Officer in charge of the Occupation of Lands averred that the Government had power to demand a rent for the foreshore, and that the same was being demanded and paid in every other instance where people previously held permission to erect wharves or jetties on the foreshore of the harbour; also that the usual length of lease was five years, but it would beyond doubt be renewed from time to time.
- 7th. That notwithstanding the Port Jackson Steamboat Company were led to believe that the original permission granted to H. G. Smith was a sufficient title to occupy the said foreshore without paying any rent therefor, the Managing Director of the Port Jackson Steamboat Company (Limited), relying upon the statement of the said Officer in charge of the Occupation of Lands being bona fide and correct, and at his request, wrote, agreeing under the circumstances to pay a rental of £25 per annum for five years, should the Government demand same, but at the same time protesting and complaining of the hardship of being compelled to do so, which rental is far in excess of the rents paid for any other wharf within the harbour of Port Jackson.
- 8th. That in 1878 the Port Jackson Steamboat Company (Limited), relying upon the aforesaid statements of the said Officer in charge of the Occupation of Lands, extended the said jetty or wharf to the full extent of the permission previously granted, and otherwise expended large sums in strengthening and renewing the original jetty.
- 9th. That the said jetty has been built, maintained, and extended from time to time at the sole expense of the owners and occupiers, and that recently large sums have been expended thereon. That the said jetty is not an inconvenience where it stands to the Corporation of Manly; on the contrary, that it is, and has been for many years, a public convenience to all the residents of the district, no wharfage having ever been charged to the public for landing goods on the said wharf; also that it does not front or abut on to a public street or highway over which the Municipal Council has any control, but fronts a public reserve, the Trustees of which have in no way objected to our occupation of that portion of the foreshore on which the said jetty is erected.
- 10th. That this Company and its predecessors have, during a period of years, run steamboats to Manly, in season and out of season, for the convenience of the public, and thus built up a trade solely of their own accord.
- 11th. That this Company has recently, at an enormous outlay and expense, built and purchased new and improved steamers for the said trade.
- 12th. That they have also leased from the Government jetties at Circular Quay for a period of five years, and the right to call at Cowper's Wharf, Woolloomooloo, at certain hours during each day, for which they pay the revenue a large rental, and for the sole purpose of trading between them and the said jetty at Manly.
- 13th. That the above outlay and expense have been incurred, relying upon the words of the Government officer that there would be no doubt as to the renewal of the lease of the foreshore over which the said jetty is built.

I humbly submit that all the foregoing circumstances are sufficient, good, and valid reasons why the said lease should be renewed, independent of the fact that a cruel and unprecedented injustice would be done, whereby a serious and enormous loss to the extent of many thousands of pounds would accrue to this Company, should a renewal of said lease not be granted.

I have, &c.,
J. R. CAREY,
Managing Director, Port Jackson Steamboat Co.

The Mayor of Manly to The Secretary for Mines.

Sir,

Municipality of Manly, Council Chambers, Manly, 10 February, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, numbered 81-936 M, addressed to the Council Clerk, referring to a letter of 7th January last, written by the late Mayor of Manly, A. Hilder, Esq., addressed to the Minister for Lands, protesting against any renewal of the existing lease of the site of present pier at foot of Pittwater Road, or to a lease being granted to any but the Municipal Council of Manly.

I need scarcely refer to the circumstances under which the present lease was granted. You will perhaps remember that the subject was brought under the notice of Parliament at the time by petition of the residents of Manly. The circumstances were simply these:—Some time after the petition for incorporation had been forwarded to the Government, we were informed that the petition had been lost, and that it would be necessary to forward another petition. This was done, but unfortunately during the time that elapsed between the notification of the loss of the first petition and the preparation of the second a lease of the pier was granted.

The Council shortly after its formation, as far back as 14th March, 1877, through its then Mayor, Thos. Rowe, Esq., endeavoured to secure this site in question for a municipal wharf. Letters have been forwarded to the Minister for Lands, and deputations have waited upon that gentleman, setting forth in substance what the Municipality of Manly have considered to be their right, viz., full control of the wharf or jetty at Manly, in accordance with the Municipalities Act, 1867, section 117, wherein it says—"The Council shall within the boundaries of the Municipality have the care, construction and management of wharves, jetties, &c.

The present Minister for Lands has admitted this right of the Council, but owing to the Port Jackson S. B. Company having obtained a lease thereof, he could not, until the expiration of that lease, grant such right.

I have now the honor to call your attention to the fact that the lease to Port Jackson S. B. Company will expire on or about end of October next, and at the request of the Municipal Council of Manly I repeat the protest made by my predecessor.

This is a matter that affects the interests of the inhabitants of Manly very considerably; indeed ever since the lease was given to the P. J. S. B. Co. they have felt themselves much aggrieved, and now that that lease will shortly expire they urge upon the Council to repeat the application to the Government to secure what they emphatically say they are fully entitled to, viz.,—to have the site of the present pier, with such further land adjoining that may be necessary for the construction of a wharf or pier at that spot, to meet the growing requirements of this largely patronized watering-place.

Trusting that this very important matter, affecting the interests not only of the residents of Manly but also the public generally, will receive your immediate and earnest attention,—

I have, &c.,

INFORM that the question of the granting or refusal of the renewal of the lease has not yet been determined. Leases for special purposes are, upon application, usually renewed as a matter of course. Mr. S. C. Brown to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

77, Pitt-street, Sydney, 26 July, 1881.

I have the honor, on behalf of the Municipality of Manly, to address you on the following matter:—

As you are doubtless aware, the Port Jackson Steamboat Company have a lease from the Government of the land (portion of the foreshore), and land covered with water, upon which the present pier is erected.

This lease will expire about November next; and the inhabitants of Manly, which has now become a very populous and important place, are not desirous that the Port Jackson or any Steam Company should have the sole control of this pier, but that the same should be vested in the Municipality, so that the Council thereof should deal with it as might be best for the interests of the whole of the residents of the district.

In order to carry out this object, and to prevent any complications, the Directors of the Steam Company have agreed to waive their claim to a renewal from the Government of their lease, upon receiving from the Council of the Municipality a lease of the pier for a certain term, at a rent, and subject to conditions on their part, which are manifestly for the interests not only of the Municipality and its inhabitants but those of the whole district, and the inhabitants of Sydney.

Such being the case, and in order to carry out such agreement, I have now to ask that the Government will be pleased to dedicate to and vest in the Municipality that portion of the foreshore of Manly, and that portion of the land covered with water, extending immediately in front, as shown in the plan or sketch sent herewith.

I trust you will give this application your approbation, which is for the dedication of the land and the carrying out of the agreement with the Steam Company, as it will be of great benefit to the whole public; and even if such application be somewhat novel, the circumstances of the case and the position of the inhabitants of Manly are exceptional.

If you desire it, I will wait upon you and give any further explanation or evidence that may be deemed necessary.

Sir, Port Jackson Steam-boat Company's Office, Circular Quay, Sydney, 3 August, 1881.

We beg to acknowledge receipt of a letter from the Department of Lands, dated 1st August, 1881 (Mis. 81-13,357), respecting this Company's claim for a renewal of the lease of the pier at Manly Beach. In reply, we have the honor to inform you that the Company have agreed with the Municipal Council of Manly to waive their claim to such renewal, upon the Council granting to the Company a lease of the pier for the term, at the rent and subject to the conditions mentioned in such agreement.

And have, &c.,

J. R. CAREY,
Managing Director, Port Jackson Steam-boat Company.

Minute on No. 24.

Urgent: The Under-Secretary,—Please place this letter, after registration, with the other papers having reference to the application of the Municipal Council at Manly to have the wharf vested or dedicated in them, and afterwards return the whole of the papers to me.—J.H., 3/8/81.

Memo. on Manly Pier, by the Secretary for Lands.

Perhaps the Minister will direct that this case may be dealt with without the papers.—C.O., 26/8/81.

As it appears, from the information conveyed in the minute of the Under-Secretary for Mines, that the papers cannot be found in that Department, having reference to the special lease granted to the Port Jackson Steamboat Company at Manly, the Survey Branch should be asked to report in respect to the application of the Municipal Council of Manly to have the wharf and approaches vested in them.—J.H., 26/8/81. The Surveyor-General.—C.O., 26/8/81.

No. 26.

Report by the Surveyor-General.

Borough Council of Manly, applying for the dedication of certain land above and below high-water-mark at Manly, parish of Manly Cove, county of Cumberland.

The Surveyor-General,

It should, I think, be pointed out that it is not the practice to dedicate areas below high-water-mark for the erection of pile jetties such as that herein referred to, and that no sufficient reasons are advanced in the enclosed application why the rule should be infringed. Further, that the requirements of the case might probably be met by a renewal of the lease on the conditions usually imposed in such cases, but in the name of the Borough Council of Manly. But the question involved would appear to be one for the joint consideration of the Engineer-in-Chief and yourself.

It may be mentioned, in connection with the above, that the land which fronts the jetty applied for is about to be applied for by the Borough Council of Manly, as a continuation of the aligned Corso, and that such continuation of the Corso would place the approach to the pier under the control of the Borough Council.

S. L. PEYTON,

2 September, 1881.

Report submitted.—P.F.A., 3/9/81. Under-Secretary for Lands,—As it appears that the Council will shortly have the control of the approaches to the wharf, the course to be pursued will be for the Council to apply for a lease under the 38th section of the Act of 1875, and 19th section of the Act of 1880. There is no power conferred for the purpose of dedicating land below low-water-mark.—C.O., 12/9/81. Approved.—J.H., 14/9/81.

No. 27.

Mr. J. R. Carey to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir, No. 1 Jetty, Circular Quay, Sydney, 19 September, 1881.

Referring to our letter of the 3rd August, in reply to yours of the 1st of that month, in which we stated that we had agreed with the Municipal Council of Manly to waive our claim to a renewal of a lease which we now hold of the pier at Manly Beach from the Government, subject to the conditions mentioned in such agreement, we have now the honor to state that one of the conditions upon which this Company agreed to waive their claim was that, upon the pier passing into the legal possession of the Municipal Council of Manly, the Council should give us a lease of the same for a period of twelve years, upon our performing or undertaking to perform certain things.

We are now advised that unless the Municipal Council are placed by the Government in such a position as to enable them to grant us a lease of the wharf and approaches thereto for twelve years, the Council will be unable to fulfil the conditions of their agreement with the Company.

In the event of the Government, from any reason whatever, failing to give the Council the necessary power to enable them to grant us the twelve years' lease, it must be clearly understood that the Company withdraw their conditional waiver of our claim to a renewal of our existing lease of the site of the pier at Manly; and also respectfully request that our application for a renewal of the same may thereafter be favourably considered by you at your earliest convenience.

I have, &c.,

J. R. CAREY,
Chairman of Directors, Port Jackson Steamship Company.

No. 28.

Memo. by Under-Secretary for Lands.

SINCE the decision given by Mr. Secretary Hoskins on the 14th instant the within letter has been received. From its nature it appears that the proposal to lease the wharf to the Council for a term of five years will not meet the requirements of the agreement entered into between the Council and the Port Jackson Steam Company, the chief feature in the agreement being an undertaking by the Council to lease the wharf to the Company for a term of twelve years. As the Government can only lease for a period of five years with the privilege of renewal, the Council could not of course lease, or rather sub-let under the lease to be granted by the Government, for any longer period or with greater privileges than the lease conferred.

The Company appear to have anticipated this difficulty, and, by the letter before referred to, have withdrawn any waiver made to any claim the Company may have to a renewal of the existing lease.

Although the 5th clause of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861 provides for public quays or landing-places, I do not consider that the clause contemplated the dedication of land under the waters. Even if the dedication could be made, it would not meet the object of the Council and Company, as the wharf would be a public wharf, and therefore open to the public.

Personal representations having been made, the case is re-submitted before communicating the decision arrived at. The question of renewing the lease to the Company is one for the Department of Mines to deal with. C.O., 19/9/81.

The decision given should be conveyed to the parties interested.—J.H., 29/9/81.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to Mr. J. R. Carey.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 8 October, 1881.

In reply to your letter of the 19th ultimo, on behalf of the Directors of the Port Jackson Steamship Company, relative to the lease of the pier at Manly Beach. I am directed by the Secretary for Lands to inform you that, as the Government can only lease for a period of five years with the privilege of a renewal, the Municipal Council of Manly could not sub-let under a lease to be granted by the Government for any longer period, or with greater privileges than the lease conferred; and although the 5th clause of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861 provides for public quays or landing-places, it is not considered that the clause contemplated a dedication of land under the water; and even if the dedication could be made, it would not meet the object of the Council and Company, as the wharf would be a public wharf, and therefore open to the public. I am to add that the question of renewing the lease to the Company is one for the Department of Mines to deal with.

Sir,

Department of Lands, 8 October, 1881.

With reference to your letter of the 26th July last, on behalf of the Municipality of Manly, applying for the dedication of certain land above and below high-water-mark at Manly, I am directed by the Secretary for Lands to inform you that it is not the practice to dedicate areas below high-water-mark for the erection of pile jetties, &c.; and although the 5th clause of the Crown Lands Alienation Act of 1861 provides for public quays or landing-places, it is not considered that the clause contemplated a dedication of land under the water; and as it appears that the Council will shortly have the control of the approaches to the wharf, the course to be pursued will be for the Council to apply for a lease under the 38th section of the Lands Acts Amendment Act of 1875, and the 19th section of the Lands Acts Further Amendment Act of 1880, such application to be made to the Department of Mines. I am, however, to add that at present the lease of the jetty is held by the Port Jackson Steam Company, who have withdrawn any waiver they may have made to any right of renewal that the Company may be entitled to.

Mr. R. M. Pitt to The Secretary for Mines.

Sir,

Sydney, 27 October, 1881.

I have the honor to inform you that the Port Jackson Steamboat Company (Limited), have transferred to me all their right, title, and interest in and to the special lease of the site of the pier, opposite the Corso, Manly, hitherto held by them from the Government. I enclose herewith letter from the Company waiving all claim to the site of the said pier, also one from the Municipality of Manly, withdrawing their objections to the re-leasing of the site to any other than the said Council, and requesting that a renewal of the said lease be granted to me.

I now beg to make application for a renewal, in my name, of the lease hitherto held by the Port Jackson Steamboat Company, viz. :—The land upon which the pier is erected at Manly Beach, five years at £25 per annum.

I have, &c.,

ROBERT M. PITT.

The question of renewal has been for so long before the Minister that perhaps a decision can be arrived at without reference to the Surveyor-General.—T.W.H., Occ. of Land, 5 November, 1881.

If the Chief Officer thinks there is in this case no need for the usual reference, and will recommend the renewal, I will submit it.—H.W., 7/11/81.

Referring to the minute of the Minister, dated 24th March, 1881 (Treasury 10,906), and the Municipal Council of Manly having now withdrawn all opposition, a renewal of the lease for five years is recommended on the same terms and conditions as that expiring on 30th Nov., 1881.—T.W.H., Occ. Manly Beach Jetty.

THERE are grave objections to the renewal of the lease of this jetty to the Port Jackson Steamboat Company, as by so doing it practically gives the Company a monopoly of the trade of this suburb, so far as the passenger traffic is concerned, which is most objectionable; and if the Minister for Mines will give the subject his favourable consideration, I think he may probably see his way clear to place the jetty in the hands of the Manly Municipality.

Renewal of Special Lease, Manly Beach Pier.

Department of Mines, Crown Lands Occupation Branch, Sydney, 4 January, 1882.

It is recommended to His Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, that Mr. R. M. Pitt be granted a renewal of his special lease of the land on which the pier is erected at Manly Beach, under the provisions of the 38th clause of the Lands Acts Amendment Act of 1875, and 19th clause of the Lands Acts Further Amendment Act of 1880, for a further period of three years, on the same terms and conditions as that which expired on the 30th November last.

The lease not necessarily to confer any right to purchase the land in virtue of improvements or otherwise.

That the fares and freights to be charged by the said Company from the date hereof and during the currency of the said leases shall not exceed those now charged by the said Company that season and return tickets shall be issued on demand and shall be available for any trip day or night and that passengers shall be permitted to carry fifty-six pounds weight of personal luggage free of charge

8. That private steam launches and yachts shall be allowed to land private parties at the said pier or wharf included in the said leases or at one of the said Company's wharves at Manly whichever may be most convenient to the Company free of charge

9. That the said Company shall not charge any wharfage rates for goods carried by their own steamers in the ordinary daily trade

10. That the said wharf or pier shall from the date hereof and during the currency of either of said leases be free to the public to promenade at all times when passengers are not embarking or disembarking and shall be always free to the police force and shall be deemed a public place for the purpose of the punishment for all offences

11. That the said Company shall from the date hereof and during the currency of either of said leases allow cargoes of goods if for one individual in each instance to be landed on the said wharf or pier or on one or other of their wharves whichever may be most convenient to the said Company upon payment of charges not exceeding Government wharfage rates provided that vessels discharging shall not impede the passenger or regular traffic and shall make way for the Company's steamers when required so to do and in case of their neglect or refusal so to do when required the said Company shall have power at their own risk and expense to remove them forthwith and also to remove any goods from off such wharf at the owner's risk and expense should the said owner neglect to remove them as landed after reasonable notice given to him in that behalf

12. That the said Company shall not from the date hereof and during the currency of either of said leases take the steamers "Fairlight" "Emu" and the new vessel mentioned in paragraph six (when completed) or any or either of them off the run or out of the Manly trade for any purpose whatsoever unless for repairs cleaning or the like or unless prevented from running any or either of them by stress of weather without the consent of the said Robert Matcham Pitt or the Council of the said Municipality for that purpose first had and obtained

13. That should any steamer employed from the date hereof or during the currency of said leases in the Manly trade be wrecked or otherwise lost the said Company shall within eighteen months from such wreck or loss provide another boat to replace the same of at least equal accommodation and speed to the one so wrecked or lost and in the meantime shall provide a good substitute for such lost or wrecked boat to be approved of by the said Robert Matcham Pitt or the Council of the said Municipality and in the event of such approval being withheld the question shall be decided by arbitration as is hereafter provided

14. That the said Company shall from the time fixed in clause fifteen and during the currency of any of said leases run eleven trips each way from Sydney and Manly on every day excepting Sundays and public holidays according to the time-table in the Schedule hereto or as near thereto as possible with all due allowances for accidents unavoidable delays and dangerous weather after the expiration of twelve months from the commencement of such trips the said Company shall be at liberty to alter the said time-table in respect of the times of departure but not in respect of the number of trips and in the event of any such alterations being made the said Robert Matcham Pitt or Council shall have the power to name and fix the times of the first three trips in the morning and the last two trips in the evening from Manly and also the last three trips in the evening from Sydney and in the event of all or any of such times being considered by the Company impracticable the said times shall be fixed by arbitration provided however and it is hereby agreed that in no case shall the excursion trips be interfered with by said Robert Matcham Pitt or Council or arbitrators such "excursion trips" being the three trips from Manly between the hours of half-past four and half-past five in the evening and the four trips from Sydney between the hours of ten in the morning and thirty minutes past two in the afternoon the said Company also agree to run an early trip in the morning daily from Sydney not later than thirty minutes past seven and on holidays a trip from Manly between eight and nine in the morning and one from Sydney between six and seven in the evening in addition to the late trip from Sydney every night.

15. That the eleven trips per diem mentioned in the last paragraph shall commence as soon as the new steamer hereinbefore agreed to be built shall be ready and running in the trade but in the meantime the said Company agree to run and continue the present time-table (except Sundays) and excepting the 8 p.m. trip from Sydney daily and the 11:30 a.m. from Sydney and 12:30 p.m. from Manly on Saturdays

16. That in the event of any dispute arising between the said Robert Matcham Pitt or the said Council and the said Company as to the meaning of this agreement or any clause or clauses thereof the matter in dispute shall be left to arbitration according to the Statutes in that behalf in this Colony and in the event of the said Company failing to carry out this agreement or any clause thereof it shall be lawful for the said Robert Matcham Pitt his executors administrators or assigns to cancel the same after after such non-compliance has been referred to arbitration and decided against the said Company and provided that in the opinion of the arbitrators the said Company shall not have complied with the spirit of the said agreement

AGREEMENT made the twenty-fifth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one between the Municipality of Manly of the one part and the within-named Port Jackson Steamship Company Limited of the other part Whereas the within-named Robert Matcham Pitt has entered into the within agreement on behalf of the said Municipality and at the request of the Council thereof and whereas the Council of the said Municipality have agreed in consideration of the agreements within contained on the part of the said Company to enter into the agreements on their part hereinafter contained Now it is witnessed that the said Municipality in consideration of the premises do hereby covenant promise and agree to and with the said Port Jackson Steamship Company Limited their successors and assigns in manner following

1. That the said Municipality or the Council thereof shall at their own expense provide three lamps on the said pier and maintain and keep same lit every night during the currency of the said lease

2. That in case the said Municipality or the Council thereof shall obtain power so to do it shall be lawful for them if they shall think proper to erect a new wharf or pier upon the site of the present pier and in lieu thereof or upon any site in close proximity thereto provided that they give notice of their intention so to do to the said Company before the expiration of the third year of the first of the said leases and provided also that the cost of such new wharf shall not exceed two thousand five hundred pounds and in the event of the said Municipality or the Council thereof erecting such new wharf the said Company shall pay to them in addition to the rental mentioned in the third paragraph of the within agreement a further annual rental amounting to 10 per cent. upon the cost of the said wharf and shall maintain and keep the same in good repair fair wear and tear only excepted

3. That any new pier or wharf to be erected by the said Municipality or the Council thereof in pursuance of the power contained in the last paragraph shall be leased by the said Council to the said Company such lease to include so far as the said Council can grant the same the approaches to such pier for the rent mentioned in the within agreement with the 10 per cent. added for the terms mentioned therein and as if it were included in the leases therein referred to

4. That the said Municipality and the Council thereof shall not erect any other pier antagonistic to the interests of the said Company and shall oppose by all means in their power the erection of any pier or wharf at Manly which may be antagonistic to the interests of the said Company and further shall not oppose in any way the renewal of said leases to said Robert Matcham Pitt or the granting a lease to the said Company in case of the death of the said Robert Matcham Pitt prior to the expiration of such first lease but on the contrary shall do all in their power to support same provided that the said Company shall be bound to carry out the covenants and agreements in within agreement contained and if necessary shall enter into a covenant with the said Council so to do and also that at the end of the twelve years the said Company shall in case of the said Robert Matcham Pitt having died transfer their interest in the said leases and their right to the renewals thereof to any nominee of the said Municipality or if the said Council have obtained power to deal with the same then to the Council of the said Municipality

In witness whereof the Corporate Seal of the Municipality of Manly hath been hereunto affixed the day and year firstly hereinbefore written

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CLARENCE RIVER WORKS.

(MINUTE OF THE ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF OF HARBOURS AND RIVER NAVIGATION.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 12 April, 1883.

The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and River Navigation to The Under-Secretary for Public Works.

I would beg to submit, for the consideration of the Hon. the Secretary for Public Works, the necessity for obtaining a further vote of (say) £100,000 on the Loan Estimates towards the Clarence River Works.

About £117,000 have been already expended, and there still remains a credit balance on existing votes of about £5,000.

My original proposals were for a breakwater of 2,000 feet in length, and an internal training-wall 10,170 feet in length on the south side, and a breakwater on the north side of 1,270 feet and training-wall of 8,160 feet. Of the works on the south side 1,250 feet of breakwater and 4,750 feet of training-wall have been constructed, leaving 5,420 feet of internal wall to be completed. But as regards the southern breakwater, the changes which have taken place from time to time have shown that it will not have to be carried out to the full extent originally contemplated.

An addition to the present length of 450 feet, or 1,700 feet in all, will be sufficient to reach a depth of 19 or 20 feet of water.

On the north side, however, very great difficulties have been encountered, which will be seen by the plan I have had prepared, showing the state of the entrance to the river as it has existed at different times since 1845.

The survey of the entrance of the Clarence, made by the late Mr. James Burnett in 1845, a copy of which I have obtained from the Survey Office, shows that at the time it was made the northern limit of the channel extended back as far as Iluka, and the width of the entrance to the river was then about 6,800 feet, or more than $1\frac{1}{4}$ mile, the channel being filled with sandbanks, through which the river found its way to the sea, by numerous small channels too tortuous and shallow to be navigable, unless by the smallest class of coasters.

Between 1845 and 1860, when my first survey was made, a great change had taken place; the north sand-spit had formed and grown down towards the south shore, till the width of the entrance channel was reduced to about 750 feet abreast of Yamba (see the red line on the accompanying plan), which shows the high-water mark in 1860. But in 1860 another change in the opposite direction set in: The north sand-spit commenced again to recede towards the north, and in 1863 it had gone back to the extent shown by a blue line on the plan, the channel having widened out to about 1,000 feet abreast of Yamba. In 1864 it had gone back to the limit shown by the orange tint, the width of the entrance being about 1,250 feet. In 1870 it had gone back to the yellow line, the width of entrance being about 1,400 feet. In 1873 it had gone back to the dark neutral tinted line, the width of the entrance then being 3,000 feet, and in Feb., '75, June, '75, July, '80, Jan., '82, and up to May, 1882, it kept steadily working back to the extent shown by the several lines indicating the high-water margin at these different times, till in 1880 it bid fair to work back to the former limits shown by Mr. Burnett's survey in 1845.

The causes of these changes are not far to seek. It will be remembered that 1860, '64, '67, '72, '76, '79, '80, were years of unusual rainfall, or of very heavy floods; the effect of such floods was to cut away the sandspit and widen the channel at the entrance, and the collateral result of such widening of the channel was to admit a larger body of tidal water, which, by its scour, produced a corresponding effect on the channel, increasing still further its width, and thus aggravating the evil. The question then came to be whether to allow the retrocession of the north spit to go on unchecked, or to endeavour to arrest it and save as much of the point as possible by protecting it with a stone facing, and it seemed to be imperative to adopt the latter course, which was done.

The north spit has been faced with stonework. The cutting back action has been arrested, and we have now got a safe base from which to start the works originally proposed.

These works, as mentioned in my original report, are an internal training-wall along the margin of the channel, from Iluka to abreast of Yamba, and thence along the outer shore in a curved line to the position marked on the plan.

The inner training-wall will protect the spit on that side, while the outer one will confine and regulate the channel in the neighbourhood of the reef, preventing the sand from growing down on it by concentrating the tidal scour at that part, and directing the current to seaward across the bar.

As the inner and outer training-walls are advanced in the manner of two groins, a slack water will be created in the space between them where the sand thrown in by the waves will be impounded, reforming the spit as it formerly existed between the years 1864 and 1875, and which, when once reformed, will not be liable as formerly to constant fluctuations. When this is obtained and, with the southern training-wall to regulate the channel on its side, a permanent condition of the entrance will be obtained, which aided by judicious dredging may be confidently expected in a few years to bring about the same beneficial condition of things, both on the bar and in the inner part of the harbour, as we have obtained at Newcastle.

The growing down of the sand-spit so close to the reef, which is at present interfering with the navigation, is solely due to the great width of the channel at the entrance, by which the tidal scour is dispersed over a wide space.

WORKING HOURS ON DREDGES.

(FORMER AND PRESENT ARRANGEMENTS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 6 February, 1883.

Memorandum from Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and River Navigation to Secretary for Public Works.

FORMERLY the men worked as follows :—Ten hours summer, nine hours winter, as under :—

Summer, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., with three-quarters of an hour for breakfast and one hour for dinner.

Winter, 6.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m., do. do. do.

On Saturdays the men knock off at 1 p.m. ; the proper time would be 4 p.m., but, as will be seen above, they take only three-quarters of an hour for breakfast, instead of one hour, and thus about make up the difference.

The new regulations are as follows, giving a uniform time of nine hours, as under :—

Summer, 6 a.m. to 5 p.m. ;

Winter, 6.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. ;

with arrangements for Saturday as before.

If a further reduction to eight hours was adopted, the following would roughly be the result :—

The Sydney dredges which have long "tows," would only be able to send two sets of punts to sea instead of three, thus reducing the work by one-third.

The Clarence and Hunter River dredges would suffer a reduction of about one-quarter, and the Newcastle harbour dredges, by reason of the shorter "tows," one-eighth.

The men have the advantage of being paid full time, wet or dry, and have their meals cooked for them.

DREDGING OPERATIONS.

(REPORT OF ENGINEER-IN-CHIEF FOR HARBOURS AND RIVERS.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 25 April, 1883.

The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers to The Secretary for Public Works.

Department of Public Works,
Harbours and Rivers Branch,

Sir,

Sydney, 24 April, 1883.

I do myself the honor to submit for your information the accompanying statistics and other matter relative to the Dredge Service, brought up to the close of the year 1882. These returns will be found in Appendices A to N, and a perusal of them will I think prove exceedingly interesting and instructive. As I am anxious there should be no delay in giving them the publicity which the importance of the subject they treat of demands, I have hastened their completion, so as to enable you to lay them before Parliament during the present Session, which is now so near its close. This must be my excuse, therefore, for not writing a long report. Attached will be found a tabulated statement showing what the Appendices consist of.

I would especially draw your attention to the Inspector's report, which contains a full account of the dredging operations of last year. I do not think I need add anything to the statements published in that document, as it probably embraces all that need be said on the subject in this connection.

As to our future operations, I am pleased to be able to report that tenders have already been invited for the construction of a dredge, tug, and punts, for the Richmond and other northern rivers, for which a sum of £25,000 has been voted by Parliament during the present Session.

Pending, however, the construction of these vessels, which must necessarily occupy many months, preparations are being made for the despatch, in a few days hence, of a dredge to the Richmond River, to remove some of the obstacles to navigation which exist there.

A dredge is also now on its way to Moruya, to complete the work which was begun some months ago. A plan accompanies, showing what has been done in the way of dredging on that river and what further we propose to do. I feel confident, when this work is completed, that the action of the tides and floods, regulated by the works which have been and are yet to be constructed, will be sufficient to maintain a permanent channel. It should be noted that the long prevalence of the N.E. winds, and the absence of floods, have had very prejudicial effects on all our river and harbour entrances, as is evidenced by the packing in of the sand at all the openings on our long coast line. While on this subject, I should like to draw your attention to Captain Allan's letter to the President of the Marine Board, with accompanying plan, setting forth the improvements which have taken place in the harbour of Newcastle, as the result of dredging and the construction of the breakwaters, which will be found amongst the Appendices. I think the valuable evidence therein adduced is sufficient to give confidence to Parliament that, in carrying out similar works in the other harbours and rivers of the Colony—notably at the Clarence—like beneficial results may be expected to follow. Attached, also, will be found plans showing what Newcastle harbour was before the works were commenced, and what it is at the present time. An inspection of them will, I think, render further comment on that matter unnecessary.

I may also mention that I propose, as soon as the work at Moruya is finished, to despatch the dredge which will be shortly working there, to Ulladulla, to remove the sand which has for some time past been accumulating in that harbour, to the great detriment of the trade of the district.

Passing on to a brief mention of the dredging operations in Sydney Harbour, I would desire to explain that the work of deepening the cove along the line of the new wharfs on the eastern side of the Circular Quay is a very tedious one, owing to the berths being required to accommodate the vessels employed in our rapidly expanding commerce.

Now, however, that there is a little lull in the trade, we shall take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to complete our dredging and blasting operations, so as to give a depth of from 28 to 29 feet at low-water.

We are also, as quickly as somewhat similar circumstances will allow, performing similar work at the head of Darling Harbour, where a considerable extension of the present wharf will be immediately undertaken.

In conclusion, I have with pleasure to express my sense of the obligations under which I lie to the Inspector and his Dredge-masters, for the successful results which their energy and intelligence have enabled me to present.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

E. O. MORIARTY,
Engineer-in-Chief.

The material lifted by the dredges marked S was wholly deposited at sea, and the cost of dredging has been enhanced by detentions during stormy weather, a disadvantage which the other dredges have not laboured under. The dredgings from the "Hercules," "Archimedes" and "Charon," were partly sent to sea and partly used for reclaiming water frontages.

1. The "Newcastle" first started work in Newcastle Harbour in May, 1875. Night-work began in June of that year, and continued until April, 1879, when a collision at night took place between the "Ajax" and the ship "Duart Bay," entailing, with other smaller collisions, a loss to the department of £1,527 13s. 1d., which amount, although debited to the work of 1879, together with £597 0s. 5d., the cost of a collision with the "Eagle" charged against 1878, might very fairly, as contingencies of night-work, be distributed over the whole period embraced by the return. The outfit of the dredge is included in the working expenses. Extensive repairs to dredge and to tug's boiler in 1880.

2. The "Samson" from 1875 until October, 1878, was deepening the Sow and Pigs Channel, and was thereby subjected to much detention, owing to damage to buckets and to the water being too rough for dredging. The charges for 1876 and 1877 include the sum of £1,637 12s. 5d. paid for recovery and repairs to a punt wrecked at the Heads during the "Dandenong" gale, and in 1878 and 1879 special votes of £1,693 6s. 10d. and £2,987 13s. 9d. for new boilers fitted in the "Thetis" and "Samson," together with a thorough overhaul of dredge punts and machinery, are a charge against the expenses of these years, but may fairly be distributed over the period (eleven years) from 1868 to 1879. Deducting cost of these renewals paid by special vote, the rate of the "Samson" and "Thetis" work for 1879 was 7·62d. per ton, the rate shown in the details of expenditure. The employment of the "Thetis" upon services not connected with dredging has increased the cost of the "Samson's" work chiefly by the impossibility of obtaining a substitute tug equal to the dredge's requirements. From 1875 until October, 1878, the "Samson" worked night and day.

3. The "Vulcan," built in 1864, underwent an extensive overhaul in 1875, and was supplied with a new boiler in 1878, the cost of which is charged against the work of the latter year, but is a legitimate charge to be spread over fourteen previous years. Much of the sand lifted by the "Vulcan" was towed long distances; in some cases the depositing place was over 12 miles away from the dredge. The "Vulcan" worked night and day from 1875 until August, 1878.

4. The "Hunter" worked night and day dredging sand in Newcastle Harbour during 1875 and 1876, when it was found necessary to supply her with new boilers, renew much of the woodwork, add a hurricane deck, and thoroughly overhaul the machinery. The heavy expenditure of 1877 and 1878 is in all fairness a charge distributable over each year's work since 1859, the year the "Hunter" first started to work. The high rate per ton, and the small quantity of work performed in 1879, is owing to the employment of the dredge at rock work.

5. The "Hercules" is the oldest dredge in the service, having been at work nearly forty years. Like the "Hunter," she was most extensively repaired in 1878, much of the hull having been rebuilt and new hurricane deck fitted. Employed chiefly in dredging clay, rock, and silt (used for reclamation in Sydney Harbour), it is not to be wondered at that the quantity of work performed is so much less than that of other dredges not having the same difficulties to contend with.

6. The dredge "Fitzroy" has been since 1875 steadily employed, day-work only, lifting sand at the Macleay River. The only detentions have been for repairs or from floods in the river. The material dredged in 1881 was deposited at an easy distance from the dredge.

7. The "Pluto," employed at Shoalhaven for five years, dredging sand, underwent extensive repairs in 1876. This dredge was built in 1862, and has never worked at night. Cost of new boiler and extensive repairs to "Pearl" included in expenses of 1881.

8. The "Titan," built for coast lakes, &c., was employed up to October, 1875, at Brisbane Water, and from February, 1876, until June, 1880, she was occupied deepening the entrance and tributary creeks of Lake Macquarie. The increased work of 1879 is owing to the dredge working night and day during that year. The material lifted at the lake was chiefly sand with some mud and gravel.

9. The "Clarence," built in 1877, commenced working at the Clarence River Heads in October of that year. For a short time previous to leaving Sydney, some work, as a trial, was performed at Woolloomooloo Bay. Night and day work was carried on for two years after her arrival at the Clarence; the material lifted was sand, which was deposited behind islands and out of the main channel. The expenditure for 1877 includes the outfit of the dredge.

10. The "Archimedes," designed specially for the removal of sewage deposits and jetty deepening in Sydney Harbour, started to work early in 1878, and was employed for a considerable time at the mouths of the Corporation sewers. After the completion of this work she was removed to Rushcutters' Bay, where deepening and reclaiming the water-frontage by the silt lifted in the bay and elsewhere has been steadily going forward.

11. The "Charon" started work in Blackwattle Bay early in 1881 and was wholly employed removing sewage and material deposits.—A.B.P., 31/12/82.

APPENDIX F.

INTERIM STATEMENT shewing Quantity of Material dredged and approximate cost of dredging and depositing during 1882.

Name of Dredge.	Name of Tug.	Where employed.	Quantity of material dredged.	Cost of dredging per ton.	Cost of depositing per ton.	Remarks.
Newcastle ...	Ajax	Newcastle	Tons. 429,650	Pence. 4-01	Pence. 1-19	Widening and deepening North Channel, Newcastle. Material deposited at sea 3 miles away.
Samson	Thetis	Sydney	169,050	6-23	2-94	Cost of dredging augmented owing to Thetis being required for Fisheries Commission, Lord Howe Island trips, and other services, and by dredge being employed at rock work. Material deposited at sea 10 miles away.
Vulcan	Dione	Newcastle	175,198	4-91	2-03	Working at Raymond Terrace and Fishers' Crossing. Material deposited in river and at sea 4 miles away.
Hunter	Cyclops	"	136,600	6-53	2-13	Dredge laid up considerable time strengthening ladders to suit new and large buckets. Material deposited at sea 3 miles away.
Hercules	Ceres	Sydney	87,350	8-93	5-23	Dredging stiff clay, sewage, and hard rock, head of Darling Harbour. Delay from tug having to pass through Pyramont Bridge. Material deposited at sea 11 miles away.
Fitzroy	Hired Tug...	Macleay River	76,500	6-66	1-22	Dredge put in new dock specially constructed for the purpose; dock gates and approaches made by crew. Material deposited in river 1 mile away.
Pluto	Hired Tug ..	Shoalhaven	130,080	3-71	3-07	Dredging in canal and at mouth of Crookhaven. Material deposited partly in sea and partly in river 3 miles away.
Titan	Hector	Myall River	71,050	4-44	6-75	Dredging at Myall River. Material deposited in river 3 miles away. Extensive repairs to tug's hull, boiler, and machinery.
Clarenc	Little Nell...	Clarence River	31,550	Dredge brought to Sydney undergoing very extensive repairs. Commenced work in October; tug also under repairs and assisting other dredges during the year. Material deposited in river 7½ miles away.
Archimedes...	Scylla	Hawkesbury River..	96,880	6-01	1-57	Dredging in Sydney Harbour at jetties and at Hawkesbury River. Material deposited in Hawkesbury River 3 miles away.
Charon	Achilles	Sydney	98,198	6 10	3-65	Dredging at jetties and at Blackwattle Bay. Material deposited partly on shore, but chiefly at sea 13 miles away.
Ulysses	Charybdis ..	Manning River	214,370	2-45	1-03	Dredging new channel near mouth of river. Material deposited in river 1 mile away. Tug remodelled and thoroughly repaired.
Minos	Pearl	Moruya	92,820	7-32	2-60	Dredging under difficulties of rough water at Moruya Heads. Material deposited partly at sea and partly in river 4 miles away.

APPENDIX H.

The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers to The Inspector of Dredges.

ENCLOSED will be found the analysis of the Dredge Expenditure for the years 1880 and 1881, together with an interim statement for the year 1882. I should be glad if the Inspector would carefully examine these returns, with a view to point out or report on anything which they may disclose worthy of attention, and especially I wish him to carefully compare these records of results with previous ones.

E. O. MORIARTY,

13/2/83.

The Inspector of Dredges to The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers.

WITH the object of furnishing the comparisons of one year's expenditure with another in the clearest possible form I have had the subjoined return made out, which embraces all the information directed to be given. This return should be read in conjunction with Appendices A, B, C, D, E, and with my report dealing with the dredging work performed.—A.B.P.

During and since 1879 two punts together have frequently been taken to sea by the "Thetis" Under favourable circumstances the custom is to make two trips with two punts and one with single one in one day, following the next day by one double and two single barge trips, thus towing in two days nine instead of six punts, thereby very largely increasing the quantity and lessening the cost of work.

The Inspector of Dredges to The Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers.

Sir,

Harbours and Rivers Office, 10 January, 1883.

I have the honor to submit for your perusal the following report upon the dredging operations in progress in our principal ports and rivers.

In Sydney Harbour three dredges have been constantly at work; the largest—the “Samson”—owing to the great length of her ladders, has been found specially suited to meet the berthing and port requirements of the heavy draught merchant steamers which appear likely (and at no distant time) to almost wholly monopolize the European trade of the Colony. To keep abreast of this altered state of things, the Circular Quay on its western side has been sufficiently deepened to berth the “Austral” and other kindred vessels; while the P. & O. steamers find suitable accommodation further north, at the southern end of the A. S. N. Co.’s Wharf. Shallow places in Sydney Cove have been deepened, and the “Samson,” when asked for, has been hired to the many enterprising wharf proprietors, who are vying with each other by the erection of lofty warehouses and spacious quays to secure a share of Sydney’s altered ocean-borne trade.

The necessity that arose for taking advantage, for wool shipping, of the fine stretch of new wharfs at the eastern side of Sydney Cove, just erected by the Department, has prevented rock blasting and dredging from being carried on, to attain the required depth of water, at present; but even in its unfinished state it has been constantly occupied during the past two months by steamers and ships of large tonnage. When the dredge “Samson” was not employed at the more urgent work to which I have been referring, the deepening of Darling Harbour below Pymont Bridge was proceeded with. Much inconvenience, and lessened dredging work, has resulted from the necessity which existed for the employment of the tugs “Thetis” and “Ajax” on services not connected with dredging, as many as four trips having been made during the past year to Lord Howe Island—each occupying about a fortnight. Besides these, the “Thetis” was employed for about two months on survey service for the Fisheries Commission. Were it possible to obtain suitable substitute tugs, the dredges would suffer less; but the fact is that there is quite a dearth of towing steamers in our ports, and tug-owners are not making any efforts to supply the want. In view of the constant applications made to the Dredging Branch from other Government Departments for steamers, I would very respectfully urge that a steamer of the “Ajax” and “Thetis” class, with compound engines, be built for general Government use, but to be employed by our Department when not otherwise required. If such a steamer were available our present tugs could be more frequently docked, and such docking or repairs would not lay a dredge plant idle.

The dredge “Hercules” has been for some time past employed at the head of Darling Harbour, above Pymont Bridge. The rocky nature of the bottom in some places, and the vast quantities of road and sewage deposits continually pouring into the harbour on its southern shore combine to render the work of permanent improvement slower and more costly than could be wished. More than ten years ago a large amount of dredging was done above the bridge; but as might have been looked for there have been fresh deposits, which are being again removed, and the general depth of the area is continually improving, while the quay berths are being steadily and permanently deepened by the removal of large quantities of sandstone, by blasting and subsequent dredging. Advantage is frequently taken of the steam crane on the wharf to lift blasted blocks of stone many tons in weight from their beds on to the punt.

The dredge “Charon” employed at Blackwattle Cove has been for the last two years performing work which, though of less commercial value than that of either the “Samson” or “Hercules,” is, nevertheless, of a character more likely to be appreciated by the people of Sydney. At a part of Pymont overlooking the western and eastern shores of Blackwattle Bay, it will be remembered that small-pox found a congenial atmosphere, and lingered long and disastrously, while on the opposite side of the Bay in the Glebe district it was a still more dangerous intruder, and there can be little doubt that the poisonous exhalations from the foreshores of the harbour, in this neighbourhood, contributed largely to spreading the infection. Nearly 200,000 tons of decayed vegetable matter, sewage, and mud, have been removed from the bay by the “Charon,” and sent partly to sea and partly to Rushcutters Bay, to be converted from a destroyer to a preserver of the public health, by forming the groundwork of a future pleasure resort.

The dredge “Archimedes” until early in 1882, was employed chiefly removing deposits from the various sewers discharging into the harbour, but is now working on the Hawkesbury River, near the Pitt-town wharf. The people of Windsor are anxious to have the sandbanks which obstruct the river removed; but I fear from the character of the floods, which from time to time sweep down the river, that there is scant hope, if the channel is ever finished, of its enduring beyond the first heavy flood that may come after its completion.*

With the exception of the fine 27 feet channel cut by the “Samson” at Sydney Heads, there has been no deepening work performed by the Department which, as far as permanent improvement is concerned, has withstood the test of time so well as the dredging of Newcastle Harbour. Unlike the port of Sydney, there are no sewers of any importance here to diminish yearly the available deep water, nor are the flood deposits of the river Hunter found seriously to interfere with the work done, the obstructions to navigation from this cause taking place chiefly at the flats between Morpeth and Newcastle.

In

* Since the above report was written such a contingency has arisen, a flood shallowed the dredge cutting about 4 feet. The uselessness of keeping the dredge at work at this place having thus been proved, it was removed to Sydney.

In a previous report, I mentioned that three million tons of sand had been lifted and sent to sea from Newcastle, and, as will be seen by the returns, nearly another million has been got rid of since. The dredge "Newcastle" has been chiefly employed deepening additional crane berths at Bullock Island, and widening and deepening the channel leading to the North Harbour. It has now throughout its entire length a width of 600 feet, and a depth more than equal to the requirements of the largest ship that can enter the port. It is satisfactory to know that the deep water made by the "Newcastle" in the Horseshoe, has, with the exception of one of the southern berths, been well maintained without dredging. Where in 1875 but one or two ships could safely be placed, there is now accommodation for twenty to swing at the moorings between Newcastle and Stockton. In addition to this, the North Harbour opposite Bullock Island is now being enlarged by the "Newcastle" to keep pace with the growing requirements of the port.

The dredge "Hunter" has recently been fitted with stronger shafting, &c., to enable both ladders to be worked together; and, with the view of making her as useful at sand dredging as she has hitherto been at rock work, two sets of very large buckets have been supplied, to be used when required; new and larger punts are being built by Mort & Co., the using of which will considerably increase the quantity and diminish the cost of work performed. The want of towing power has been a drawback, the contractors for the steam barges built and building not being able to find skilled labour sufficient for their establishment. The "Hunter" has chiefly been employed at the lower end of the Bullock Island Wharf, and in deepening staith berths and the Southern or Coal Channel.

At no time since dredging was initiated has the river Hunter been in so satisfactory a state as it is at the present time. Steamers drawing over 10 feet of water can now without risk of detention reach Morpeth at any state of the tide, whereas in times past there was but from 6 to 7 feet on the many long sand flats which formed below the junction with tributary streams, and at other places, where, from the wideness of the river, a sluggish current prevailed. I do not think it will be practicable, unless at a very great cost, to further deepen the Hunter, there being such a length of it with low water soundings of about 11 feet. Notwithstanding the frequency of floods and freshes, and the difficulties of finding suitable places for depositing the sand lifted, the dredge "Vulcan" has not only been able to effect the improvements referred to, but has in addition performed a good deal of useful work in Newcastle Harbour. I am sanguine that we shall be able, on the completion of the second steam barge, to send a very large percentage of the sand lifted on the Hunter River to sea, as the present depth in the channels will enable a steam barge to act as tender for the "Vulcan." In referring to the useful work of a permanent character done by the dredges at Newcastle and the Hunter, I think the deepening of the bar from 17 to 22 feet should not escape notice, because, although the construction of the two breakwaters has brought about this most important improvement without any dredging on the spot, there can be little doubt that the enlargement and deepening of Newcastle Harbour has, by admitting a larger volume of water across the bar, been a not unimportant contributor to the very successful engineering at the entrance of this the chief coaling port in the Southern Seas.

Proceeding northwards, the operations of the small dredge "Titan" at the Myall River next claim attention. Work was first begun in October, 1880, at Myall Point near the river entrance, where there was but a low-water depth of from 2 feet 8 inches to 3 feet. Here a channel 600 feet in length, 100 feet wide, and 5 feet 6 inches deep, low water, was cut, after which vessels were able to enter at all states of the tide; but the most important advantages were gained after cutting the next channel from Corey Island to the Hawk's Nest, as the traders were then enabled to get up to the saw-mills and load both the locally sawn timber and the larger quantities conveyed by punts from the establishments higher up the river. A cutting was afterwards made from Hawk's Nest to the Tea Gardens, another from there to the Shell Heap, and afterwards one of nearly $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles in length (extending from "Pull-for-Nothing" to "Monkey Jacket") which has just been completed. At the two first described cuttings there has been some shoaling, at which the dredge will have to be again employed for a short time; but, generally, the original depth, 5 feet 6 inches, low-water, has been maintained throughout the $\frac{3}{4}$ miles of river improved by the "Titan" since 1880.

The dredge "Ulysses," built specially for the Manning River, was sent to her station towards the close of the year 1881, and has already made good headway in improving the navigation of the river. Over 200,000 tons of sand were dredged in the formation of a new channel at the crossing, near the heads, and steamers now pass through the cutting. The entrance to the Lansdown has been deepened, and the dredge is now making a channel through Taree flats to enable the Sydney steamers to reach Tinonee. The work at Taree will soon be completed, after which the Cundletown passage will, as directed, be dredged. Very likely another cut will have to be made through the crossing channel to widen and deepen it, as it is already showing indications of shoaling, a contingency not unlooked for in view of the lively nature of the sand borne shoreward from the sea.

The dredge "Fitz Roy," stationed at the Macleay River, completed deepening the last remaining shoal below Kempsey at the latter end of 1880, and ocean steamers were enabled to reach that town. During 1881 a long shingle flat between Central and West Kempsey was dredged, and the navigation for large vessels made available for several miles above the towns. While this work was going on, a site for a new dock was secured opposite the principle township, and was subsequently excavated by contract, the dock entrance and approach being undertaken by the officer in charge of the dredge and his crew. The "Fitz Roy" was successfully docked in June, 1882, and thoroughly chipped and painted. Dredging operations at Long Reach were afterwards resumed, and the plant is now engaged deepening channels cut some years ago and which have since been gradually shoaling.

The dredge "Clarence" is at present employed at Lawrence on the Clarence River. It is satisfactory to know that the long cutting made between Rabbit Island and Yamba, from which over 800,000 tons of sand were taken, continues sufficiently deep for navigation purposes. A few weeks' dredging was found necessary at this place lately, and attention to it will doubtless have to be paid from time to time, but this will not seriously interfere with the improvement of the river between the Heads and Grafton. The obstructions at Lawrence will take at least nine months to remove. The "Clarence" had to be towed to Sydney for docking in 1882, and it was found desirable to sheath and remetel the hull, and at the same time to strengthen the vessel throughout, as work has sometimes to be carried on near the Heads in very rough water.

South of Sydney the only dredge at present at work is the "Pluto," engaged keeping open the navigation of the Crookhaven River, chiefly at the canal cut by Mr. Berry in the olden times to connect with the Shoalhaven River and give the vessels bound thereto a safe entrance. In 1881, however, a considerable amount of dredging was performed on the Shoalhaven, near Terrara; but recent soundings show that the channel then deepened has already shoaled nearly 18 inches. The "Pluto" has for the past nine months been straightening and deepening the ocean steamers' channel between Greenwell Point and the Crookhaven Heads. The sand is deposited at sea when the tug can safely go out, otherwise it is towed up the river and dropped far away from the channel.

During about six months of 1882 the Coast Lakes dredge "Minos" was working near the bar at the entrance to the Moruya River. Dredging was carried on until with the prevailing north-east swell in November it was imprudent to approach nearer the sea. However, this much was effected, that steam communication (which was impossible before the dredge went to Moruya) afterwards became practicable, and the Mlawarra Company's steamer now plies to the district.

It is not necessary that I should further encumber this report (already I fear tediously extended) by enumerating the quantity and cost of work performed, because this is sufficiently dealt with not only in the returns sent to me for analysis, but likewise in the further amplification which it appeared to me desirable to put on record, and which places in juxtaposition the expenditure in detail of one year with another. I cannot conclude without expressing my conviction that, as contributory to the satisfactory working of the Dredge Service during the past two years, the regulations promulgated in 1880, and ever since most rigidly adhered to, have not been unimportant factors.

I have, &c.,

APPENDIX I.

GENERAL REGULATIONS FOR THE MANAGEMENT OF THE DREDGE SERVICE*

Regulation 1.—The Dredge Service, which will be considered as a whole, shall be divided into the following grades, viz. :—

1st. The Engineer's grade, comprising—

A. Engineers, 1st, 2nd, 3rd class (excluding the Chief Engineers of the Dredges), with wages ranging from... ..	£20 per month to £12 per month.
B. Engine-drivers	13 ,, 10 ,,
C. Firemen	12 ,, 9 ,,

2nd. Mechanical grade, comprising—

A. Blacksmiths, carpenters, fitters and boilermakers, &c., with wages from £15 per month to £11 per month.
B. Strikers, boilermakers' assistants, machine attendants, &c., with wages varying from £10 per month to £6 5s. per month.

3rd. Nautical grade, comprising—

A. Masters of Tugs, from	£20 per month to £12 per month.
B. Mates, from	14 ,, 10 ,,
C. Coxswains and winchmen	10 ,,
D. A.B. seamen, including watchmen and cooks	8 13s. 4d. per month to £8 per month
E. Boys	4 per month to £6 5s. ,,

Regulation 2.—The whole of the men at present in the Service shall be classified according to the foregoing grades; the position to be assigned to each particular employé shall be determined by fitness and length of service. As vacancies occur, the senior hands shall be promoted until they reach the top of their respective grades, provided they are competent, and nothing has been recorded against them in the "Conduct Book" referred to in Regulation 3. In the case of engineers, however, it shall be indispensable that those to be appointed to the 1st class shall hold 1st class certificates; those to the 2nd class, 2nd class certificates; and to the 3rd class, 3rd class certificates. With regard to the nautical grade, all masters shall hold masters' sea-going certificates, and mates shall hold mates' certificates.†

Regulation 3.—There shall be entered in a "Conduct Book" the name of every employé in the Dredge Service, giving the date of his entry therein, age, and such particulars of his service (whether of good or bad conduct) as will determine promotion or otherwise; it being distinctly understood that nothing will be recorded against any employé in such book, except after due inquiry and on the report of the Inspector approved by the Engineer-in-Chief, and after an opportunity shall have been afforded the accused of appeal.

Regulation 4.—All new appointees shall enter at the bottom of whichever grade they may be nominated to, except in the case of vacancies which cannot be filled from the Service; but none shall be eligible who are over thirty-five years of age, and who cannot produce a certificate from the Medical Officer of the Department (for which such officer shall be entitled to be paid a fee of 2s. 6d., to be paid by the nominee) that they are physically fit for the position sought, together with satisfactory references from previous employers.

Regulation 5 ‡—From the 1st May to the 1st September the working hours shall be from 6 30 a.m. to 5 30 p.m., and during the remaining months of the year from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Three-quarters of an hour will be allowed for breakfast, and 1 hour for dinner. Owing to the shortened breakfast hour, work will terminate on Saturdays at 1 p.m. When circumstances render it necessary for the tugs to work continuously from 6 to 6 the meal hours must be taken while the steamers are towing.

Regulation 6.—Should any employé, by reason of accident occurring in the discharge of his duty, and by no fault of his own, be physically incapacitated for work, he shall be entitled (if his absence shall necessarily extend to that time) to two months' pay, or any lesser proportion, as the case may demand. If he is absent more than two months, such case thereafter will be specially dealt with on his merits. In the event of absence through sickness, not being the result of accident as before described, half-pay to the extent of one month will be allowed, if necessary, provided such sickness has not been brought about by misconduct on the part of such employé, to determine which a certificate to that effect shall be required from the Government Medical Officer, if the employé reside in Sydney or Newcastle. If he reside elsewhere, he must furnish from a properly qualified medical practitioner a certificate stating the nature of the disease from which he is suffering, which will be referred to the Government Medical Officer for report. For every examination or report such officer shall be entitled to a fee of 2s. 6d., which shall be paid from any money due or to become due to the patient, except in case of accidents occurring in the discharge of duty, when the fee shall be paid by the Department. A medical report will be required at least once each week, if absence from duty should extend beyond that time; for a period less than three days the certificate of the Dredge Master, endorsed by the Inspector, shall be held to be sufficient.

Regulation 7.—Nothing in the foregoing Regulations shall prevent the Minister from dealing in the way of promotion or otherwise with any specially meritorious case which may be brought before him.

Regulation 8.—Any person who has been in the Dredge Service, but whose services have been dispensed with owing to a reduction in the number of hands, shall be eligible for reappointment to any suitable vacancy, anything in these Regulations to the contrary notwithstanding.

Regulation 9.—In the event of any misbehaviour being proved against any employé, but not of such a serious nature as to demand dismissal from the Service, the Engineer-in-Chief shall have the power to punish by fine or disratment as the circumstances of the case seem to him to warrant.

E. O. MORIARTY,
Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers.

Approved,—JOHN LACKY,
Secretary for Public Works,
21st June, 1880. 30th July, 1880.

* Nothing in these Regulations shall be held to apply to the Masters of Dredges, respecting whom a wider choice of selection may be necessary.
† In the case of those already in the Service who do not hold such certificates, it shall be considered that they have "Service" certificates; but they will not be eligible for promotion unless they can obtain and produce certificates of "competency."

‡ Since these regulations were passed, the summer working hours have, by direction of Mr. Secretary Lacky, been reduced from ten to nine hours per day.

* Last year this was £130, but the man then holding the position was promoted and the salary was reduced to £168, to assimilate it with the rates paid to the blacksmiths of the other double ladder Dredges.

† An increase of £1 per month has been made in the leading boiler-maker's wages, owing to the varied duties he has to perform.

‡ It is proposed to increase the salary of the mate of the "Hunter" from £156 to £168, being the rate given to the mates of the other Dredges working two ladders.

§ Much inconvenience and expense having arisen by interchanging the engineers, firemen, and cooks of the second and third class Dredges, as they became entitled to promotion, it is proposed to place the wages of these men in their respective classes at a uniform rate, the duties being similar. The engineers of the "Titan" and "Pearl" will therefore, under this arrangement, be increased from £120 to £144 per annum; the firemen of the "Titan" and "Pearl" from £114 and £108, respectively, to £120 each; and the cooks of the "Titan" and "Fitzroy" from £90 to £104.

|| Boys are interchanged in Dredges and Tugs as the requirements of the Service or promotion may demand. Last year there were nine boys at £75, one at £60, and four at £50. It is now proposed to give nine £75, four £60, and one £50; showing a total increase of £30.

¶ The "Pearl" being now a sea-going tug, it is thought desirable to increase the salaries of the master and engineer from £144 to £168 per annum respectively.

||| The "Hunter's" contingent vote is increased from £2,000 to £3,000, necessitated by reason of her working two ladders instead of one as formerly, thus requiring extra tug power.

¶¶ Last year this amount was £9,178, which included the expenses of the Dredges "Ulysses" and "Minos" not then scheduled, which is done in this Estimate.

¶¶¶ £225 was the estimated expenditure under this heading for last year, but it was subsequently found desirable to increase it to £250 from the beginning of 1882.

¶¶¶ Tugs at present attached to the other Dredges will be liberated to attend these when the Steam Hopper Barges are at work.

¶¶¶ The "Archimedes" is really a third class Dredge, but the master being one of the oldest in the Service it was not thought fair to reduce his salary to £275, the rate which by the new regulations is affixed to that class of Dredge. That rating will, however, take place on the occasion of the first change in the command.

The total increase of £4,705 on last year's Estimates is made up as follows:—

"Hunter," wages	£ 12	"Cyclops," wages	£ 10

APPENDIX N.

The Harbour Master, Newcastle, to The President, Marine Board.

Sir,

Harbour Office, Newcastle, 16 June, 1882.

I have the honor to forward for your information copies of soundings in the fairway of this harbour, taken under favourable circumstances, 27/4/81 and '82, which shows a steady increase in the depth of water over those taken in 1880. This serves to confirm my opinion expressed in letter on that subject dated 30/4/80. The increased depth of water is owing to the very large amount of dredging done in the harbour, thereby admitting a large volume of water, which has greatly increased the scouring influence between the Southern Breakwater and the Northern Retaining Wall (or Breakwater). The latter has had the effect of removing a large sand-spit, which was partly above water, running out from Scott's Point, and caused a very dangerous eddy that does not now exist. Where it was dry, there is now 8 feet of water at low tide, and I have no doubt that, if the Retaining Wall is kept in repair, there will soon be 20 feet, thus giving about 150 feet more width in the narrowest and most intricate part of the harbour.

The North Channel still continues to increase in depth through the same influence. I may note that the much dreaded Oyster Bank, abreast of Nobby's, is now a thing of the past: where there was only 7 feet there is now 19. All these increased depths in the fairway and North Channel, where the dredges have never been employed, must be the result of extensive dredging in the harbour, which has caused a great scour in the fairway, as already expressed.

I have also forwarded copies of soundings taken across the harbour in 1860, with those taken on the same lines of bearings in May, 1882; which must be interesting to all concerned, as they show the enormous quantity of silt that has been removed, to obtain the present accommodation. You will observe the position of the Red Buoy on the south elbow of the Horse-shoe, where there was only 4½ feet, there is now 20 feet at low-water; also, the White Buoy on the north arm of the Horse-shoe, where there was 10 feet there is now 21 feet at low-water. Both of these buoys have been removed, being no longer required. The deep water extends a considerable distance to the westward beyond what is shown on the chart, until the end of the high-level coal staiths comes in line with cathedral.

Within a short distance off the wharf, there is not less than 23 feet across the harbour, over a sand-bank that formerly dried at low-water (see chart enclosed); but, notwithstanding all that has been done, a great deal more space is required to meet the requirements of the large ships and steamers now visiting this port.

It was only a few days ago that 50,000 tons of shipping were safely moored in this port (which proves its capabilities), that a few years ago was a mass of sand-banks forming dangerous eddies and intricate navigation. Such is the result of judicious engineering, which has made this once dreaded harbour to be perfectly secure, and safe to enter or leave by day or night.

I have, &c.,

D. T. ALLAN,

Harbour Master.

The Marine Board submits that this letter, with the accompanying plans, may be forwarded for the information of the Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers.—By order, G.L., 20/6/82. The Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade.

I have read this report with much pleasure, and it may now, with accompanying plans, be forwarded to the Secretary for Public Works (first making a copy and retaining it for my information), for the information of his department.—J.W., 24/6/82.

His Excellency the Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following Circular Despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, transmitting copy of the Imperial Act, 45 and 46 Victoria, cap. 76, passed in the late Session of the Imperial Parliament to amend the Merchant Shipping Acts 1854 to 1880, with respect to Colonial Courts of Inquiry.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

(Circular.)
25th September, 1882.

I have the honor to transmit to you, for the information of your Government, a copy of the Imperial Act, 45 and 46 Victoria, cap. 76, passed in the late Session of Parliament to amend the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1880, with respect to Colonial Courts of Inquiry.

I have, &c.,
KIMBERLEY.The Officer Administering
the Government of New South Wales.

CHAPTER 76.

An Act to amend the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1880, with respect to Colonial Courts of Inquiry. [18th August, 1882.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1880, 17 & 18 Vic., c. 104, &c., with respect to Inquiries held in British possessions abroad into charges of incompetency or misconduct on the part of masters, mates, or engineers of ships, or into shipwrecks or other casualties affecting ships:

Be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Merchant Shipping (Colonial Inquiries) Act, 1882.

Construction of Act.

2. This Act shall be construed as one with the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, and the Acts amending the same, and the said Acts and this Act may be cited collectively as the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1882.

Colonial Courts or tribunals to have jurisdiction to make inquiry into charges of misconduct or incompetency and shipping casualties in certain cases occurring outside the limits of the colony.

3. Every court or tribunal which is already authorised or which may hereafter be authorised by the legislative authority in any British possession to make inquiry into charges of incompetency or misconduct on the part of masters, mates, or engineers of ships, or as to shipwrecks or other casualties affecting ships, shall in the cases following, that is to say,—

- I. When the incompetency or misconduct has occurred on board of a British ship on or near the coasts of the British possession or on board of a British ship in the course of a voyage to a port within the British possession:
- II. When the incompetency or misconduct has occurred in any part of the world on board a British ship registered in the British possession:
- III. When the shipwreck or casualty occurs to a British ship on or near the coasts of the British possession or to a British ship in the course of a voyage to a port within the British possession:
- IV. When the shipwreck or casualty occurs in any part of the world to a British ship registered in the British possession:
- V. When the master, mate, or engineer of a British ship who is charged with incompetency or misconduct on board of such British ship is found in the British possession:
- VI. When some of the crew of a British ship which has been wrecked or to which a casualty has occurred, and who are competent witnesses to the facts, are found in the British possession:

Wherever the incompetency, misconduct, shipwreck, or casualty has occurred, have the same jurisdiction as such court or tribunal would have had if such incompetency, misconduct, shipwreck, or casualty had occurred within the ordinary jurisdiction of such court or tribunal, but subject to all provisions, restrictions, and conditions which would have been applicable if they had so occurred: Provided that no inquiry shall be held under this Act into any shipwreck, or other casualty, or charge of incompetency or misconduct, which has once been the subject of such an inquiry and has been reported on by any competent court or tribunal in any part of Her Majesty's dominions, or in respect of which the certificate of a master, mate, or engineer has been suspended or cancelled by a naval court; and provided also, that where any inquiry has been commenced in the United Kingdom no inquiry shall be made in the same case under the authority of this Act in any British possession.

In all the above cases the "British possession" shall mean the British possession by the legislative authority whereof the court or tribunal is authorised to make inquiry.

Colonial legislative authorities empowered to authorise inquiries into shipping casualties and charges of misconduct and incompetency in certain cases.

4. The legislative authority in any British possession is hereby empowered to authorise courts or tribunals to make inquiries in the cases enumerated in the last preceding section of this Act into charges of incompetency or misconduct on the part of masters, mates, or engineers of ships, or as to shipwrecks or other casualties affecting ships, subject to the provisions in the last preceding section of this Act mentioned.

Suspension or cancellation of certificates.

5. The powers of suspending or cancelling the certificate of any master, mate, or engineer of a ship, conferred by the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1854 to 1880, upon or after any inquiry or investigation held under the provisions of the said Acts, shall be applicable to and be exercised upon or after any inquiry by any court or tribunal authorised by this Act, or authorised by the legislative authority of any British possession under the powers conferred by this Act. Such power of suspension or cancellation shall be exercised by the court or tribunal holding the inquiry in the manner provided by section twenty-three of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, 25 and 26 Vic., c. 63, and the Board of Trade shall in such cases have all the powers conferred upon them by the said section.

Appeal from Colonial Courts.

6. Whenever any inquiry authorised by or in pursuance of this Act has been held, a rehearing of the case may be ordered, and if an application for such rehearing has not been made or has been refused, an appeal shall lie from any order of finding of the court or tribunal holding such inquiry to the following court, namely, the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice in England:

Provided always, that no appeal shall lie from any order or finding in an inquiry into a casualty affecting a ship registered in a British possession, or from any decision respecting the suspension or cancellation of the certificate of a master, mate, or engineer, unless such certificate has been granted under the authority of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, or any Act amending the same, or of the Merchant Shipping Colonial Act, 1869, 32 and 33 Vic., c. 11.

Any such appeal shall be subject to and conducted in accordance with such conditions and regulations as may from time to time be prescribed by general rules made under section thirty of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1876, 39 and 40 Vic., c. 80.

Repeal of part of 17 & 18 Vict., c. 104, s. 242.

7. The words "and such report is confirmed by the governor or person administering the government of such possession" in case (V) of the cases enumerated in section two hundred and forty-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, are hereby repealed, and this repeal shall be deemed to take effect as if the said words had been expressly repealed by the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862. The confirmation of the report required by the said words shall be deemed to have been no longer necessary after the passing of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, as a condition precedent to the suspension or cancellation of the certificate of any master, mate, or engineer.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF VICTORIA.—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 4th January, 1883.

BOROUGH OF VICTORIA.

BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Victoria, for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

For carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875."

1. Every person about to erect a closet, or form a cess-pit, shall, before commencing any such work, give to the Council Clerk seven days' notice in writing of his intention, and of the proposed position of such closet or cess-pit, and in default thereof, or in case of his commencing such work without such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

2. No closet shall be erected or cess-pit formed except in such position as shall be approved by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council, or shall be approved by the Council, and any person being guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

3. No cess-pit shall be less than 3 feet by 3 feet in length and breadth internal measurement, nor of a less depth than 4 feet nor more than 6 feet below the ground surface; every cess-pit shall have walls on each side of brick or stone at least 4½ inches thick built in cement and rendered at least ½-inch thick inside with cement so as to make it thoroughly water-tight, such cess-pits may be diminished, modified, or altered, as circumstances may require in the opinion of the Council or its proper officer; and any person having or making a cess-pit contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

4. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement, any breach of this By-law shall render the person so offending liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

5. In dwelling-houses where the number of persons who shall ordinarily sleep there, exceed twelve, the capacity of the cess-pit shall be increased by at least 4 cubic feet for every person beyond the number of twelve persons, or else a separate closet shall be provided for every twelve persons or fraction of twelve, and any person guilty of a breach of this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

6. In schools or factories or other places of business where a number of persons exceeding twelve shall reside, or be occupied or employed, one closet shall be provided for every thirty persons, and if a cess-pit, such cess-pit shall be of a capacity of 80 cubic feet for every such thirty persons, and separate closets for each sex.

7. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and not less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long internal measurement, with a door capable of being fastened and provided with a fastening on the inside, and any person having or building a closet contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

8. When two or more closets adjoin each other there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between each closet, and such wall shall extend from the bottom of the cess-pit or closet to the roof of the closet so as to effect a complete separation, and any person having or building closets adjoining each other contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

9. The top of every cess-pit shall not be less than 6 inches higher than the highest part of the ground immediately adjoining it, and any person having or building a cess-pit contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

10. No cess-pit shall be built under any dwelling-house, nor less than 6 feet therefrom, and any person having or building a cess-pit contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

11. If any alteration shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances, or any officer of the Council appointed in that behalf for preserving public health or decency in the case of any existing cess-pit or closet, the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer shall report the same to the Council, and if the Council shall adjudge such cess-pit or closet to be injurious to health, or opposed to decency, the same shall be altered by the occupier or owner of the premises upon which such cess-pit or closet exists, after due notice has been served upon such owner or occupier, and should such owner or occupier neglect or refuse to alter the same, the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council, shall forthwith make the necessary alterations, and the cost of same shall be paid by the owner or occupier of the premises whereon the same shall be.

12. Until otherwise provided by the Council, all night-soil shall be removed from cess-pits by contract in water-tight covered vehicles, between the hours of 11 o'clock in the evening and 5 o'clock in the morning.

13. Until and unless otherwise provided by the Council, all night-soil shall be disposed of by burying in the earth.

14. The place of deposit shall be in such locality as may from time to time be determined upon by the Council.

15. In case the Council shall sell or give away any night-soil, the same shall be removed in the same manner as provided for in section 12, and on being removed from the vehicles in which it is carried shall be deodorized by chemicals, or in some other manner, or covered with earth so as to prevent any offensive smell arising therefrom, any person guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be punishable by a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £20.

16. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises or do any work authorised by the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875," therein on all days except Sundays and public holidays between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the evening.

17. No person shall be at liberty without the permission of the Council or of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in that behalf, to use on his own premises any night-soil brought from elsewhere, and any person committing a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £2 nor more than £10.

18. Every person shall be at liberty to use on his own premises all night-soil collected thereon, by burying the same at least 2 feet in the earth, but if any nuisance shall arise therefrom he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

19. Any person desirous of erecting an earth-closet shall be at liberty to do so after giving notice of his intention to the Council, provided proper provision is made for carrying it out to the satisfaction of the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances, and all night-soil shall be removed therefrom once in four days, or oftener if required, and buried in the earth, and every person infringing this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

20. It shall be the duty of the Inspector of Nuisances to furnish the Council with a report every three months containing a list of persons proceeded against for nuisances within this Borough, specifying the dates and giving particulars of each case.

21. The Council may, after due application, recover such sums for the emptying of cess-pits or attendance on earth-closets, at such rates as may from time to time be decided upon and fixed by the Council to be charged in respect of such services.

22. In any case where no special penalty is fixed in these By-laws for any breach of the same, the maximum penalty for any such breach shall be £20 and the minimum £1, unless otherwise provided by the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875."

Made and passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Victoria, this 2nd day of October, 1882.

Department of Public Instruction,
Sydney, 21st November, 1882.

BOROUGH OF HILL END.

THE following By-laws for the regulation of the Hill End Free Public Library, which have been made by the Council of the Borough of Hill End, and confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the Municipalities Act of 1867.

F. B. SUTTOR.

BY-LAWS FOR THE REGULATION OF THE HILL END FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

1. The Library shall be open on every day except Sunday, Christmas Day, and Good Friday, during the following hours, viz. :—Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, from 6 to 7 p.m., and Wednesdays and Saturdays, from 2 to 5 p.m.

2. Every person who shall enter the Library or Reading-room shall, immediately upon entering the same, write his or her name and address in a book to be kept for such purpose in such Library, and to be called the "Visitors' Book"; and if such person shall be unable to write, then such name and address may be so written by any other person, or shall be so written by the proper officer of the Council at such Library or Reading-room, at the request of such person; and no person who shall refuse to comply with this regulation shall be permitted to remain in such Library or Reading-room; and it shall be the duty of the officer of the Council in charge of the Library or Reading-room to enforce this By-law.

3. Any person who, being intoxicated, shall enter such Library or Reading-room shall be at once removed from the premises. Any person who shall use therein any abusive, improper, or unbecoming language, or who shall, by unnecessarily loud talking, or by any noise or otherwise, disturb or annoy the persons using or resorting to such Library or Reading-room, or who shall without lawful excuse, but without felonious or larcenous intent, remove any property from such Library or Reading-room, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds; and any such person may be forthwith removed by any officer of the Council in charge of such Library or Reading-room.

Miscellaneous.

4. Any society or class for mutual improvement or instruction, or study for experiments, may, with the consent of the Council, be formed in connection with, or hold its meetings or carry on its studies or experiments at the said Library or Reading-room, provided that the general free access to and use of the said Library or Reading-room by persons who are not members of such society or class, are not thereby interfered with; provided, however, that no rule made by the members of any such society or class for the management of the same shall conflict in any way with these By-laws, or with any other regulation made by the said Council hereafter.

5. Any person who shall wilfully damage any Visitors' Book, Catalogue, copy of By-laws, or any other book or record, kept at such Library or Reading-room for the general use thereof, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds.

6. It shall be the duty of the Librarian to report at any meeting of the Library Committee any infringement of these Rules or any injury to the books.

7. The foregoing Rules shall be printed, framed, and suspended in the Library-room for the information of visitors.

Passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Hill End, the thirteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-two.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT.

(PETITION FOR INCREASED POWERS UNDER—MAYORS AND ALDERMEN OF CERTAIN MUNICIPALITIES.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 5 April, 1883.

To the Honorable the Speaker and the Members of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned Mayors and Aldermen of the Municipalities hereunder named,— HUMBLY AND RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That provision having been made in the Act 43 Victoria No. 3, entitled the Sydney Corporation Act of 1879, giving to the City Council power to assess and to levy rates on all lands and buildings public and private, within the said city, with the exception of those mentioned in the 117th section of the said Act, viz., “Lands vested in trustees for the purposes of public recreation, health, or enjoyment; hospitals, benevolent asylums, and buildings used solely for charitable purposes, public worship, and schools under the Public Schools Act.”

Your Petitioners pray that the Municipalities Act of 1867, more particularly section No. 163 thereof, be so amended that similar powers may be vested in the Mayors and Aldermen of all Municipalities throughout the Colony, to be exercised by them in their respective Municipalities.

And your Petitioners further pray that, in the event of any new Bill for Local or Municipal Government being hereafter enacted, such provision be made therein as will secure to Municipal Councils the powers hereinbefore prayed for.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

CITY OF SYDNEY IMPROVEMENT BOARD.

(THIRD ANNUAL REPORT.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 6 February, 1883.

City of Sydney Improvement Board,
Offices, 35, Castlereagh-street,
Sydney, 31 August, 1882.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

In submitting this, their third Annual Report, the members of the City of Sydney Improvement Board regret to have to repeat that the same difficulties still exist which have heretofore impeded their usefulness in carrying out the provisions of the Act No. 42 Victoria, No. 25, under which they were appointed, and in giving effect to the evident intention of the Legislature.

These difficulties, which presented themselves at the outset of the Board's career, as already pointed out in former Reports, proceed from the faulty construction of the Act, the absence of any officer under the control of the Board empowered to carry out its instructions, and the failure of the City Council to work in harmony with the Board.

These and other obstacles to the more effective operations of the Board have been fully brought under notice and explained in previous communications from time to time.

Bills having for their object the amendment of the Act now in force have been before Parliament, but have not, from various causes, become law.

Several of the suburban Municipalities are desirous of having the benefits of the City of Sydney Improvement Act extended to their districts under the provisions of the 4th section thereof, but in its present defective state it is exceedingly questionable whether it could be satisfactorily worked if so extended.

For this reason, in addition to the fact that a large field for usefulness within the city itself remains open to them if they were but sufficiently empowered to carry out measures which they are anxious to undertake, and the necessity for which is very apparent in many portions of Sydney, the members of this Board would again strongly urge the expediency of early legislative action, in order that they may be placed in a position to become instrumental in effecting a much needed improvement in city street architecture, and to effectually cope with the evils of ill-constructed and insanitary buildings, so prejudicial to the health, safety, and well-being of the community.

The members of the Board also desire to bring under special notice the great want of any effective supervision to regulate the nature and class of buildings permissible in certain streets. At present, so long as a building is not wholly constructed of wood, and the walls are of a certain thickness, it is in the power of any person to erect a most objectionable brick structure, uncemented and unpointed, adjoining or in close proximity to buildings of a far superior class, or in a neighbourhood where the remainder of the buildings are more in conformity with architectural symmetry. Instances of this state of things are unfortunately most numerous throughout the city; a few that have been casually noticed may perhaps be here mentioned, viz. :—

Castlereagh-street, next No. 259, between Bathurst and Liverpool Streets.—Two new buildings intended to be used as shops, very small, one story high, low skillion roofs—a most objectionable class of building.

Erskine-street, Nos. 34, 36, 38.—Shops, one story, low, skillion, iron roofs.

Sussex-street, west side, between Market and King Streets.—Stores, five or six in number, only one story high, ugly, with low, flat, iron roofs.

Sussex-street, Nos. 235 to 245.—Ditto, ditto, ditto.

Kent-street, Nos. 196, 198, 200.—Shop and two dwelling-houses, new, two stories high, low skillion iron roofs.

Sussex-street, No. 278, next "Temora Hotel," corner of Bathurst-street.—Store, new, built of brick, one story, low skillion iron roof—very unsightly.

Goulburn and Sussex Streets.—Late additions to "Friendship Inn."

George-street, corner of Goulburn-street.—Late additions to "Burwood Hotel," plain rough brick-work, iron roof—meagre, ugly appearance.

Castlereagh-street, No. 261.—New brick building, occupied by Ennever & Appleton, iron roof—undesirable class of building.

Elizabeth-street, corner of Goulburn-street.—New additions to hotel—a disfigurement to street.

Phillip-street, next to 128, east side, near Hunter-street.—A new, ugly, plain erection, used as a butcher's shop, low skillion iron roof—greatly out of accord with neighbouring buildings.

Sussex-street, next corner of Liverpool-street.—Newly built, small, low, single-brick building, iron roof—very objectionable.

The class of buildings referred to being but recently erected cannot be interfered with, under the present law, until they become, in course of time, sufficiently old and decayed to be positively dangerous; for although they are in reality offences against architectural taste, and owners of adjacent premises have good grounds for complaint as to the injustice they are subjected to in having their properties thus depreciated in value through the building of the undesirable tenements in question in such close proximity to them, they cannot be dealt with as public nuisances for many years to come.

The members of the Board consider that if it were compulsory for designs of buildings to be submitted to some body of fully competent men capable of carrying out the duty indicated, and that a provision existed to regulate the class of buildings that should be permitted in certain localities, as well as to secure some uniformity of design, a most marked improvement in the general appearance of the city would thus ere long be brought about, in lieu of the present unsatisfactory state of things being perpetuated.

Another matter calling for action, and one well worthy of attention, is noticeable in the hideous awnings and verandahs that disfigure the principal streets of Sydney, and which are without doubt a standing disgrace to the city and the cause of much surprise to strangers visiting this the capital of the Australian Colonies.

One of the first reforms endeavoured to be carried out by the Board, shortly after its appointment, was an attempt to have some of the worst of these nuisances immediately removed, with a view to the ultimate demolition of the remainder and the introduction of a more desirable standard to be complied with in the future; but the efforts put forth to effect these, as well as other improvements, have been frustrated by the Board not having the power, which it is believed it was intended they should possess, of exercising a control over such things, and by the City Council's Officer, the City Building Surveyor, not being allowed to carry out the orders of the Board on the subject. Notwithstanding the fact that this officer, in evidence before the Board, stated as his opinion, as an architect, that a model which might advantageously be copied occurs in the colonnade in front of Messrs. Farmer & Co.'s shop in Pitt-street, and that a portable canvas sunshade with light iron standards of an ornamental character resting upon the kerbstone, resembling one in front of Messrs. Holdsworth, Gardyne, & Co.'s shop, in George-street, would be a fair sample of a suitable awning such as he would approve of, his permission has since been granted, under the 37th section of the Act, not only for the erection of the unsightly and somewhat substantial disfigurements of wood and corrugated iron, with every conceivable variety of signboard attached, across the public footways, but likewise for the introduction of glass skylights to them, which thus creates a danger through the possibility of the glass falling and cutting or wounding persons passing underneath, and which has actually already occurred, or through other objects accidentally coming through the glass. Within the last few days another such glass skylight has been put in to the awning in front of Messrs. Hobson & Whiting's shop, in Hunter-street. Some such awning as that suggested by the City Building Surveyor the Board would also be prepared to sanction as answering every necessary purpose; still the old style of unsightly structure, with the addition of the unsafe glass lights, is allowed by the Council's officer, who, it is surmised, must be hindered in some way from carrying out his own expressed ideas on the subject, and under present circumstances the Board is unable to step in and compel the very necessary improvement in this branch of street architecture.

In support of the statement made as to the failure of the City Council to work in harmony with the Board, it is especially noticeable that, although the 29th section of the Act gives the Board authority, upon the report of the City Building Surveyor, to order either the repair or demolition of any building found to be in a ruinous state and dangerous to the public or to occupiers of neighbouring buildings, only one such report has been made to the Board during the past two years by the Surveyor in question, who being an officer of the City Council, is entirely beyond the control of the Board, notwithstanding the fact that large numbers of buildings have been condemned by that body, well knowing, at the same time, that such action was insufficient to ensure the removal or repair (as the case might be) of the objectionable tenements, without bringing into requisition the aid of the Board; rather than do this, condemned buildings have been permitted to remain, in many instances, as great an eyesore and nuisance as before their condemnation.

During the past year thirteen Board meetings have been held, and several appeals, involving large interests, have been dealt with. The fees received by members of the Board during the same period amount to fifteen guineas each.

Mr. Benjamin Backhouse was again unanimously re-elected Chairman of the Board for the year, and has continued to hold that position.

One of the members of the Board, Mr. L. E. Throlkeld, was granted leave of absence for six months, on account of ill health, and that gentleman is now absent from the Colony.

It is with regret that the decease of the late Secretary to the Board, the late Mr. C. H. Barlee, has to be recorded. The vacancy thus created has been filled up by the selection of Mr. F. C. Rooke, whose appointment by the Governor in Council was duly notified in the Government Gazette of 23rd June last.

The Board desires to suggest that the survey of the City of Sydney now being conducted by the Survey Department may be expedited as much as possible, the want of reliable plans being greatly felt.

We have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servants,

BENJ. BACKHOUSE,

CHAIRMAN.

W. BAILEY.

LAND IN MACQUARIE-STREET, PARRAMATTA.

No. 1.

Lease of Allotment to Thomas King.

New South Wales.

County of Cumberland,) parish of St. John,) town of Parramatta.) Allotment No. 15 in section 12.

By His Excellency Sir Thomas Brisbane, Knight Commander of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, Captain-General, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over His Majesty's territory of New South Wales and its Dependencies, &c., &c., &c.

By virtue of the power and authority in me vested, I do by these presents demise, lease, set, and to farm let unto Thomas King all that piece or parcel of land lying and situate on the south side of Macquarie-street, in the town of Parramatta, containing by admeasurement seventy-seven rods; bounded on the west by a line 2 chains 74 links; on the south by a line 1 chain 73 links; on the east by a line to Macquarie-street 2 chains 80 links; and on the north by that street 1 chain 67 links.

To have and to hold the said piece or parcel of land unto the said Thomas King, his executors, administrators, and assigns, for and during and unto the full end and term of twenty-one years next ensuing to be fully complete and ended from the thirtieth day of June last, yielding and paying therefor yearly, and every year during the said term, unto His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, the annual quit rent of sixpence per rod of lawful sterling money of Great Britain, on the thirtieth day of June in each and every year during the said term. Provided always, and it is hereby expressly to be understood, and these presents are on the following conditions:—That if the said annual quit rent be in arrear for the space of twenty days after the time appointed for payment thereof, the same may be recovered by distress or otherwise, as His said Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, may deem proper or be advised; and in case no sufficient distress be found, and the said quit rent be in arrear after that time, the whole of the said land to revert to the Crown; and provided also that the said Thomas King shall in no way either divide the said land or separate or partition off any part or parcel thereof, or directly or indirectly lease, let, sell, alienate, or transfer the same or any part thereof, or any buildings erected thereon, or any part thereof, without the license and consent of the Governor of the territory for the time being for that purpose first had and obtained; in any or either of which cases above-mentioned this present lease to be and become absolutely null and void; and it is hereby further understood, that in case the said lessee, his executors, administrators, or assigns, should be desirous hereafter of purchasing the fee-simple and inheritance of the said land hereby leased subject to an annual quit rent, as hereinafter mentioned, he or they shall be at liberty so to do, on paying to the Crown for the purchase thereof a fine equal to twenty-one years of the quit rent hereby reserved; or in the event of the said lessee, his executors, administrators, or assigns, erecting on the said lands such buildings as may be approved of by the Governor for the time being, according to a plan and specification thereof to be previously submitted to him for his approval; provided that the same shall not be of less actual value and cost than one thousand pounds sterling, then, and in either of the said last-mentioned cases, a grant of the said land will be made to the said lessee, or other legal proprietor of the said land, subject to the payment of such reasonable annual quit rent as may be deemed proper by the Governor for the time being, not exceeding double the annual quit rent hereby reserved, to hold to him, his heirs and assigns for ever; and it is to be hereby understood, that in case the said land should be required by Government at the expiration of the time hereby created, the said Thomas King, his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall be repaid or remunerated for any buildings that may be then standing thereon, according to a valuation thereof to be made by two indifferent persons, one to be chosen on either side in the usual and customary manner; or in case any part of the said land at any time hereafter during the same lease should be required by the Governor for the time being for the making and improving the streets, it may be resumed by the Crown, on giving the said Thomas King, his executors, administrators, or assigns, six months notice thereof, and paying for such buildings as may have been erected thereon, and for the fee on such term of years then unexpired as the proprietor of such land may then possess, according to a valuation thereof to be made by two indifferent persons, chosen in the customary and usual manner; but in the event of a refusal in either of the two last-mentioned cases, on the part of the proprietor of the said land to nominate and appoint a person, on his part, for the purposes aforesaid, both the said persons to be nominated by His said Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, or the Governor of His said Majesty's territory for the time being.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and official seal, at Sydney, in New South Wales, this thirtieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-three.

F. GOULBURN,
 Secretary and Registrar.

Gazette Notice.

Sydney Gazette and New South Wales Advertiser, Tuesday, 8 September, 1829.

In the Supreme Court, Sheriff's Office, 31 August, 1829.
 Campbell the Younger v. Jackson.

On Thursday the 10th day of September, at one o'clock, in the Market-place, Sydney, the Sheriff will cause to be sold all those mill and premises on the Nepean River, opposite Emu Plains, a part of the farm belonging to Mr. Pierce. The mill is in full repair; there are also a temporary dwelling-house, a large oven, bake-house, &c.,

On the same day will be sold

All that piece and parcel of land lying and situate in the town of Parramatta, known by the name of "Dominick M'Kay's allotment," measuring 300 feet square; bounded on the one side by Macquarie-street; bounded on the one side by Kirk's and Farringham's allotment; on the other side by King's allotment, and fronting Macquarie-street, together with the messuage or tenement thereon erected and built, unless this execution be previously satisfied.

Minutes on No. 2.

From these papers it appears Mr. H. Halloran applies to have certain land (allotment 15, section 12), at Parramatta, submitted to auction sale, as being, he alleges, "vacant Crown Lands."* This land is claimed by John Taylor (in trust, see 79-2,804 Alienation), who states he has had possession for upwards of twenty-four years, and his father before him many more years, making in all upwards of forty years' possession. Copy of original lease of the land from Crown herewith. Mr. Halloran was aware of the lease, but in letter 24th April last (79-2,972 Alienation) sets out that it gave no power to dispose of the land. A survey of this land was made by Surveyor Deering, on 8th February last (vide 79-1,088 Alienation), who also reported particulars of the land. He further states he interviewed the Mayor of Parramatta on the subject, from whose representations he (Mr. Deering) was inclined to recommend the reservation of this land for municipal purposes if it were Crown Lands. An application was made on 18th March last by the Municipality of Parramatta for this land for a reserve for "storage purposes" (see 79-3,326 Miscellaneous, herewith). It is now submitted whether Mr. Taylor's claim entitles him to the land, whether the land is to be reserved for use of the Municipality—or whether the land go on for auction sale.—J.G.B., 9/5/79. Under-Secretary for Lands.

Mr. Elwin.—Would you oblige me by saying whether the land described in copy of Gazette Notice of 31st August, 1829, herewith marked ×, and that referred to in Mr. Deering's report 79-1,088 Alienation herewith is identical. It would appear not. The plans are I believe with you.—C.O., 25/6/79. The land described in the accompanying notice of sale appears to be the adjoining allotment (alienated to Trustees of Female School of Industry, Miscellaneous 74-2,806.)—T.E., 25th June, 1879. Mr. Oliver.

* It appears that the right of purchase given by the lease granted to John King, in 1823 (see copy herewith) was never exercised.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 28 February, 1853.

Parramatta Leases.

ADVERTING to the notice of the 3rd June last, a copy of which is appended hereto, respecting the intention of the Government to issue leases for a year, in terms of Her Majesty's Order in Council of 19th June, 1850, for certain allotments of land in the town of Parramatta, formerly held under leases issued by Sir Thomas Brisbane, in the year 1823, His Excellency the Governor-General, with the advice of the Executive Council, now directs that it be publicly notified to all persons interested, that their claims to participate in the advantages held out by the notice above alluded to must be lodged in this office on or before the 31st December next, otherwise they will be excluded from the benefits offered by that notice, and the allotments will be liable to be forfeited to the Crown, without any compensation or allowance for improvements effected thereon.

By His Excellency's Command,
E. DEAS THOMSON.

[Enclosure to No. 3.]

Government Gazette, 8th June, 1852. No. 58. Copy referred to.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 3 June, 1852.

Parramatta Leases.

His Excellency the Governor-General directs it to be notified for the information of all parties concerned that, in pursuance of instructions from the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, it is the intention of the Government, in consequence of the expiration some time since of the original leases issued by Sir Thomas Brisbane, for various allotments of land in the town of Parramatta, to issue new leases of those allotments for one year, in terms of Her Majesty's Order in Council of 19th June, 1850, to all persons legally claiming under the former lessees, during the currency of which the lessees will have the privilege of buying the land at ten years' purchase of the quit rent, calculated at the reduced rate of 4d. per perch.

2. The leases so to be granted will not under any circumstances be renewed; and in every case where the parties interested do not avail themselves of the above privilege of pre-emption during the currency of the lease, the land will be resumed by the Crown.

3. Persons who hold allotments of land in Parramatta, coming within the terms of this notice are requested to submit their claims without delay to this office.

By His Excellency's Command,
E. DEAS THOMSON.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 1 December, 1853.

Adverting to the notice of the 18th* February last, I have the honor to request that you will be so good as to state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor-General, how many and what allotments in the town of Parramatta, of those formerly held under Sir Thomas Brisbane's leases, are still unclaimed by the parties in occupation, as you will perceive by the notice alluded to that the time for preferring such claims expires on the 31st instant.

[Immediate.]

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 8 December, 1853.

I have the honor to draw your attention to my letter of the 1st instant, respecting the allotments in the town of Parramatta, formerly held under lease from Sir Thomas Brisbane, which are still unclaimed by the parties in occupation, and to request the favour of your early report, as this matter is urgent.

I have, &c.,

W. ELYARD,

No. 6.

Mr. J. Thompson to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor-General's Office, Sydney, 17 December, 1853.

In attention to your letter of the 1st instant, No. 53,827, wherein you advert to the notice of the 11th [qy. 28th] February last, and request that I will state, for His Excellency the Governor-General's information, how many and what allotments in the town of Parramatta, of those formerly held under Sir Thomas Brisbane's leases, are still unclaimed by the parties in occupation, as the time for preferring such claims expires on the 31st instant,—I have the honor to forward to you herewith a *list of the leases for which, according to the documents in this office, applications do not appear to have been made under the notice alluded to. It will be seen, however, by the sixth column in this return, that descriptions of many of these allotments have already been forwarded to you prior to the date of the notice; but the time for the preparation of the required return being so limited, I am unable to say whether in some few cases deeds may not have issued on descriptions referred to, as having been already forwarded to you for insertion in the grants.

Forwarding list of leases in the town of Parramatta unclaimed under the notice of 3 June, 1852. * Not with papers.

I have, &c.,

JOHN THOMPSON.

Minute on No. 6.

In the return mentioned in this letter Jackson's name appears for allotment 14 of section 12 as being in occupation of that land. This case was, however, disposed of in 1859 by Court of Claims, case 1,424. Neither King's, M'Curry's, Hunt's or Hughes', or Duran's name appears in this return, nor is allotment 15 spoken of inferentially, because no one was in occupation.—R.H.D., 17th May, 1881.

No. 7.

Mr. W. Elyard to The Acting Deputy Surveyor-General.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 27 December, 1853.

In reference to your letter of the 17th instant, No. 631, in which you forwarded a list of the unclaimed allotments in Parramatta, formerly held under leases from Sir Thomas Brisbane, I have the honor to request that you will furnish me with a plan or tracing of the allotments therein named, in order that the same may be forwarded to the Police Magistrate at Parramatta, who has been charged with the duty of serving copies of the notices which have issued with regard to this land on the parties in occupation.

The Colonial Secretary to The Acting Surveyor-General.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 23 January, 1854.

With reference to my letter of the 8th ultimo, on the subject of the allotments of land at Parramatta, originally leased by Sir Thomas Brisbane, I have the honor to request that you will report, for the information of His Excellency the Governor-General, how many of these allotments still remain unclaimed under the notice of the 3rd June, 1852.

I have, &c.,

W. ELYARD,

(Pro the Colonial Secretary).

Minutes on No. 8.

Mr. Lewis.—The Minister for Lands wishes allotments Nos. 14 and 15 of section 12 in Macquarie-street South offered for sale. By the map "Parramatta South," the allotments appear as sold to Thomas King and Daniel Jackson, but Mr. Farnell is under the impression that the land was only under lease to King and Jackson. Will you please have the matter investigated.—W.C.E., 23/5/73.

Mr. Hall.—There is nothing in this office to show that the grants have ever issued. The land will therefore (by direction of the Minister for Lands) be brought to sale.—W.C.E., 26/5/73.

Mr. J. Thompson to The Acting Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Surveyor-General's Office, Sydney, 24 February, 1854.

In attention to your letter of the 23rd ultimo, No. 54/52, wherein you refer to your letter of the 8th December last past, No. 53/843, on the subject of the allotments of land at Parramatta, originally leased by Sir Thomas Brisbane, and request that I will state, for the information of His Excellency the Governor-General, Forwarding a list of unclaimed allotments in the town of Parramatta.

Governor-General, how many of these allotments still remain unclaimed, under the notice of the 3rd June, 1852, I have the honor to state that all the allotments for which applications have been made known to me since the date of my furnishing the former list having been erased therefrom; the result as produced is shown in a *return which I beg to submit for His Excellency's information.

* Not with papers.

I have, &c.,

JOHN THOMPSON.

Minute on No. 9.

The return mentioned dealt with the allotments then occupied. No mention is made of either King or Jackson, or any of the parties now mentioned in connection with the present claim to allotment No. 15 of section 12, nor is that land included.—R.H.D., 17th May, 1881.

No. 10.

Mr. W. Elyard to The Acting Surveyor-General.

Sir,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 21 March, 1854.

In reference to your letter No. 54/132, of the 24th ultimo, on the subject of the allotments in the town of Parramatta, formerly held under lease from Governor Sir Thomas Brisbane, which are still unclaimed by the parties interested under the notice of 3rd June, 1852, I do myself the honor, by the direction of His Excellency the Governor-General, to inform you that as ample time has been afforded to claimants, and their attention to the Regulations on the subject invited by repeated notices in the Government Gazette, the necessary steps should now be taken for resuming possession of the unclaimed allotments on the part of the Crown.

2. The Civil Crown Solicitor has therefore been requested to afford you his advice and assistance in carrying this decision into effect.

I have, &c.,

W. ELYARD.

No. 11.

Mr. Surveyor Deering to The Surveyor-General.

Sir,

Sydney, 25 June, 1873.

In compliance with your B.C. instructions, No. 73/12, of 20th June, 1873, I have the honor to report on the occupancy, &c., of allotments 14 and 15, section 12, town of Parramatta.

2. Allotment 14, 61½ perches, originally leased to Daniel Jackson (Samuel Jackson on plan, Parramatta South), on 30th June, 1823. The grant does not appear to have been issued. Upon the land stands a stone and brick house, containing eight rooms, and two stories high, occupied by Mr. James Cumming as a certified Denominational Presbyterian School, and leased to him for that purpose until March, 1874; leased from Mr. J. F. Staff, of Parramatta, as agent for the Trustees of the School of Industry, Sydney, at an annual rent of £38. The house was formerly used, a long time ago, as a School of Industry.

3. Allotment 15, section 12, 77 perches, now vacant land, originally leased to Thomas King, 30th June, 1823. A Government cottage of mud or pisé and thatch once stood upon the land, and was occupied by Thomas King, who died without completing the purchase. The cottage and land were occupied by the widow and family of Thomas King in continuation, and nearly forty years ago they left also, or rather the house tumbled down and they were forced to leave. For many years the allotment remained unenclosed (the former fence being carried away). Latterly the frontage to Macquarie-street has been re-fenced, and the allotment is used as a small paddock. No person lays claim to it by occupancy, &c., or is in a position to do so.

4. I have been minute in recording these details, as the issue is a negative proof.

Prior to local inquiry the Grant Registers have been searched by officers of the Lands Department and by me with regard to allotment 14, and there is no record that any such grants have ever issued.

With respect to allotment 15 (Thomas King), there can be no doubt whatever that such is the case. With respect to allotment 14 (Daniel Jackson), it is almost impossible to say with certainty. There may have been a promise of grant to the old School of Industry at Parramatta. There might possibly have been even a grant issued, for it is impossible to say under what designation or names such a grant would issue and be indexed.

Reference to Mr. J. F. Staff, or perhaps the Hon. Deas-Thomson, is probably the shortest cut to arrive at the fact. I have not, however, pursued the matter further. There must be some title, or colour of title, it would be supposed, by which the School of Industry receives £38 per annum rental.

5. As affecting these allotments, I desire to direct your attention to a Gazette notice of 3 June, 1852, Vol. I, fol. 889, intimating that "in consequence of the expiration some time since of the original leases issued by Sir Thomas Brisbane for various allotments of land in the town of Parramatta," the Government determined "to issue new leases of those allotments for one year, in terms of Her Majesty's Order in Council of 19 June, 1850, to all persons legally claiming under the former lessees, during the currency of which the lessees will have the privilege of buying the land at ten years' purchase of the quit rent, calculated at the reduced rate of 4d. per perch."

(2.) "The leases so to be granted will not, under any circumstances, be renewed; and in every case where the parties interested do not avail themselves of the above privilege of pre-emption during the currency of the lease, the land will be resumed by the Crown."

(3.) (Requests claims to be submitted without delay.)

In the cases now under consideration, I believe that all claim to purchase became forfeited by non-fulfilment of the foregoing conditions in the year 1852.

I have, &c.,

JOHN W. DEERING.

Sir,

Sydney, 8 February, 1879.

In compliance with your B.C. instructions to me, No. 78/17 and 78/18 of 7th November and 4th December, 1878, I have the honor to report upon the application of Mr. Henry Halloran, and also to transmit plan of allotment 15 of section 12 of the town of Parramatta.

2. This allotment was originally leased to Thomas King by the Crown, and is now claimed by Mr. John Taylor, auctioneer, &c., of Parramatta. No grant appears ever to have been issued, and Mr. Taylor admits this, so far as he is aware. He further states that his late father had possession of the land over forty years ago, but I have not been able to gather upon what basis the alleged possession rests,—whether a possessory title only, or whether there was a promise of grant to the late Mr. Taylor.

Mr. John Taylor holds the land in trust for other parties, and at present leases it to Mr. Entwistle, of Parramatta.

3. I beg to suggest that Mr. Taylor be invited to transmit the details of his claim.

4. Apart from this feature of the case, I have had an interview with the Mayor of Parramatta (Mr. C. J. Byrnes) respecting the land; and from his representations to me, I should have been disposed to recommend that the allotment, had it been the property of the Crown, be reserved for municipal purposes.

No. 20.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to H. Halloran, Esq., C.M.G.

Sir, Department of Lands, Sydney, 10 April, 1879.

In reference to your letters of the 1st October and 12th November last, relative to the sending to auction sale of allotment 15 of section 12, in town of Parramatta, I am directed to inform you that, as Mr. John Taylor, of Parramatta, states he is the owner of the land referred to, it cannot be offered for sale until his claim is considered.

No. 21.

The Council Clerk, Parramatta, to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Council Chambers, Parramatta, 16 April, 1879.

Under the direction of His Worship the Mayor I have the honor to bring under your notice my communication of the 18th of March last, with reference to dedicating to the Borough Council of Parramatta a piece of land situated in Macquarie-street, within this borough, for storage purposes. The same being of vast importance to the Borough Council for the purpose as above mentioned, I would most urgently request that you have the goodness to give the application your immediate attention and grant the Council's request.

I have, &c.,

SYDNEY WICKHAM,
Council Clerk.

No. 22.

H. Halloran, Esq., C.M.G., to The Under-Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Land and International Patent Agency,

1, Bridge-street Chambers, 24 April, 1879.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, wherein you inform me that Mr. John Taylor states that he is the owner of the allotment in the town of Parramatta (15 of section 12, Macquarie-street), which I applied on the 1st of October last to be allowed to purchase.

In reply, I beg to assure you that any officer of ordinary intelligence in the Surveyor-General's Office may in ten minutes prove the allotment to be vacant Crown land.

The allotments in the town of Parramatta leased by Sir Thomas Brisbane on the 30th June, 1823, for fourteen years—it may have been for twenty-one years (I have not referred to the Register for many years)—contained no power to the lessees to dispose, though they did contain a provision for their conversion on certain conditions into grants on the expiry of the leases. Many of these allotments were within my knowledge so converted; but this allotment, originally leased to Thomas King, has never been so granted to King or to any other person, as the records of the Surveyor-General's Office will easily show; and I therefore beg to renew my request that the allotment may be offered for sale by public auction.

Should Mr. John Taylor have any sustainable claim, the Court of Claims, which is still in existence under the law, offers the proper means of his substantiating such claim against the Crown and against all others. Although it may be a more difficult way of reaching his object than an unregarded occupation until sold, the right of the Crown itself to resume it now may be readily disputed.

I have, &c.,

HENRY HALLORAN.

No. 23.

Minute by Inspector of Land Offices.

Mr. Taylor's claim to a piece of land at Parramatta.

Mr. Taylor has made a lengthy statement as to his right to hold allotment 15 of section 12, in the town of Parramatta, which is anything but conclusive, in fact it goes to show that he has no right whatever to hold the allotment. In the second paragraph of his letter he recites a Sheriff's sale of the land in the year 1829, and upon which he builds up the title to the land, not as owner, but that he holds it in trust for the daughter of one Henry Hughes (deceased). I have obtained a copy of the Gazette notice of the 8th September, 1829, and find that the land therein referred to is not allotment 15, but the adjoining lot 14, which was in 1874 granted to a School of Industry.

I see nothing to prevent the Government dealing with the allotment now in question as is thought proper. Both it and the allotment granted to the School of Industry were originally leased by Thomas Brisbane, in June, 1823, the latter to Daniel Jackson, and the former—that now in question—to Thomas King. Each lease contained a clause conferring a right of purchase within a certain number of years, which has long since expired without any application to purchase having been made, and consequently the land reverted to the Crown.

The Municipal Council of Parramatta has applied to have the allotment reserved for storage purposes, and Mr. Halloran to have it submitted to sale by auction.

I perceive upon Mr. Doering's report, 73-9,843 Ms., herewith, Mr. Farnell decided to send the allotment to auction, but the decision was overlooked while action was being taken in connection with the land granted to the School of Industry.

Mr. Taylor should be informed of the facts of the case, and it then remains to be determined whether the land be offered at auction, or reserved and placed under the control of the Municipal Council.—C.O.—27/6/79.

For the consideration and decision of the Minister.—W.W.S., 28/6/79.

I think it would be advisable under the circumstances, and having regard to the statements made in Mr. Taylor's letter, as well as for better precaution, that these papers should be referred to the Crown Solicitor with the view of ascertaining that gentleman's opinion as to whether Mr. Taylor has any valid title or claim to this portion of land.—J.H., 2/7/79. Mr. J. Taylor to The Under-Secretary for Lands.

Parramatta, 17 September, 1879.

Case No. 1,519,
Exhibit B.
Produced on behalf of Crown,
9th June, 1881.
W. G. PENNINGTON,
Secretary.

In reply to your letter of the 10th instant, bearing the above number, and requesting the details of my claim to allotment 15 of section 12, in the town of Parramatta, I have the honor to state as follows:—

It appears from papers in my possession that the first holder from the Crown was a person named Dominick M'Currey, and that in 1829 this land was known as "Dominick M'Currey's allotment" (as will be seen by reference to the Sydney Gazette of date September 8th, 1829, where an advertisement appears of a Sheriff's sale of this land, the name being therein erroneously called M'Kay). From this holder the land passed to Daniel Jackson, and thence to a person named John Hunt, who built a house and lived on the allotment up to the time of his death. By the will of the said John Hunt, dated 15th October, 1816, attested by Thomas Gorman, Dominick M'Currey, and William Stapleton, this land was devised to one Henry Duran, alias Hughes, a blacksmith in Berrima; and my father, Hugh Taylor, of Parramatta, now deceased, had all the papers and documents relating to the matter at that time, and had also possession of the allotment from that time to the time of his death.

Some time after my father's decease, since which time I had the possession and all the papers in the matter from his estate, Henry Hughes came to Sydney with an infant daughter, and died, I believe, in the hospital. Before his death he made a will (prepared by the late Parry Long, Esq., solicitor) leaving this piece of property to his said daughter, and at the same time he (Hughes) requested me to look after it for her. This I have done for upwards of twenty-four years; and my claim is solely made in the interest of the said daughter of Henry Duran or Hughes as devisee under her father's will.

After my said father's decease in 1854, I obtained all the papers in this matter, and also possession of the land in question; and at the time that Henry Hughes was about making his said will I, to further his (Hughes') interests, handed the greater portion of the papers to the late Parry Long, Esq., solicitor, of Sydney, who was acquainted with the whole matter during my said father's lifetime, and inquiries have been and are being made to the representatives of the late Parry Long, and also inquiry has been instituted to discover the said daughter of Henry Hughes deceased, the said devisee.

My brother, Hugh Taylor, Esq., M.P., is conversant with a number of the facts above stated, and if deemed expedient, he is willing to prove the same by affidavit or declaration. It therefore appears clearly that this allotment has been in the possession of my late father and myself for a period of upwards of forty years.

Under these circumstances I trust the Government will cause inquiries to be made before sending to auction the allotment of land referred to.

I have, &c.,

JOHN TAYLOR.

Mr. Oliver,—I cannot find any trace of a grant to Dominick M'Currey of allotment 15, section 12, town of Parramatta, in the Registers in this Branch, but there is a record of a lease to one Thomas King of the allotment in question.—C.N., Deeds Branch, 6/5/79.

The Crown Solicitor to The Under-Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Crown Solicitor's Office, Sydney, 18 September, 1879.

I have the honor to return the papers relating to the claim of Hugh Taylor, Esquire, to hold allotment No. 15, section 12, in the town of Parramatta, and to suggest for the consideration of the Minister that perhaps the best way of dealing with this case will be to inform Mr. Taylor that if he be advised that he has a claim to this land, he should make application through the Court of Claims for a grant; and that if he fails to do so within a time to be named, the Government will proceed to take possession of the land, with a view to its being dealt with as Crown land.

I have, &c.,

JOHN WILLIAMS,

Crown Solicitor.

Minutes on No. 25.

Submitted specially.—J.G.B., 18/9/79. The suggestion of the Crown Solicitor should, I submit, be carried out without delay.—W.W.S., 22/9/79. Approved, but the application should be made within six weeks from this date.—J.H., 22/9/79. Mr. De Low,—Applicants may be informed. End of October, with reply from Mr. Taylor, if received.—R.H.D., 25/9/79.

1. Mr. Taylor called this morning, and verbally stated he had not preferred his claim to the Court of Claims, the time for doing which expires to-day, in accordance with the Minister's minute of 22nd September last. 2. Mr. Taylor alleges that a new claimant has come forward in the person of the brother of the woman for whom he lays the claim, and requests an extension of time for one month.—R.H.D., 3rd November, 1879.

It is submitted that under these circumstances time may be extended for one month.—J.G.B., 3/11/79. Under-Secretary, for approval.—W.W.S., 3/11/79. Approved.—J.H., 19/11/79.

Mr. De Low,—Inform Mr. Taylor the time has been extended for one month, i.e., to 19th December, 1879.—J.G.B., 20/11/79. End of December, with reply if received.—R.H.D., 24/11/79.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to Mr. J. Taylor.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 25 September, 1879.

With reference to your letter of the 17th September instant, relative to your claim to hold allotment No. 15, of section No. 12, in the town of Parramatta, I am directed to inform you that the case has has been submitted to the Crown Solicitor, who is of opinion that if you are advised that you have a claim to the land in question, you should make application to the Court of Claims for a deed of grant.

2. I am to add, that if such application is not made on or before the 3rd November next, the Government will proceed to take possession of the land, with a view to its being dealt with as Crown land.

Sir,

128½, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 21 November, 1879.

Mr. John Taylor, of Parramatta, auctioneer, has shown me your letter of the 25th September last, relative to the ownership of an allotment of land, No. 15 of section 12, at Parramatta. I am instructed by Mr. Joseph Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith, that he is the owner in fee-simple of the land in question, having been so entitled as the eldest and only son of the late Mr. Henry Hughes, to whom, it is believed, it was devised by the will of his godfather, Mr. John Hunt. As my client is taking the necessary proceedings to establish his title to the property, I trust that no steps whatever may be taken by the Government without notice to me; meanwhile Mr. Taylor will retain possession of the property in the interest of Mr. Hughes.

Yours, &c.,

CHARLES SMITH JONES.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th instant, in reference to the claim of Joshua Hughes to allotment No. 15, section 12, town of Parramatta.

In reply thereto, I beg to state that Mr. Hughes does intend applying to the Court of Claims for a deed of grant thereof; that the necessary evidence to establish his right thereto is now being obtained; and that no time will be lost in making the application.

Re application of Joshua Hughes for a Crown grant of allotment 15, section 12, Parramatta.

Sir,

128, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 3 February, 1880.

Referring to the correspondence that has taken place herein, more particularly to your letter of the 13th ultimo, I have now the honor to inform you that my client, Mr. Joshua Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith, claims to be entitled to a Crown grant in fee-simple of the land in Parramatta known as No. 15, section 12, of that town (before referred to), and that he will be prepared to substantiate such claim before the Court of Claims when required to do so.

The

The grounds upon which he claims are as under:—

1. That the land in question was, on or about the 30th June, 1823, demised by the Crown to one Thomas King for a term of twenty-one years, with right of purchase.
2. That John Hunt, late of Parramatta (?), subsequently became the owner of the said land.
3. That the said John Hunt died, having by his will devised the said land to his godson, one Henry Hughes.
4. That the said Henry Hughes died about 1860.
5. That the said Joshua Hughes is the eldest son and heir-at-law of the said Henry Hughes.
6. That the said land has been in the absolute and undisturbed possession of the said Joshua Hughes and his predecessors since the date of the said lease to the present time.

I have, &c.,

CHARLES SMITH JONES.

Paragraph of letter.

This statement is very questionable; the agent for the Committee of the School of Industry having for years prior to 1876 used the land, having looked upon it as belonging to that institution, which stands on the adjoining allotment on the west—allotment 14.—R.H.D., 9th February, 1880.

This case having stood over since the 22nd September last, it is now submitted that, as the onus of proof of possession rests entirely with the claimant (Joshua Hughes), Mr. Jones be informed that unless the Court of Claims is seised of his client's (Hughes') claim within one month, the Government will proceed to deal with the land as Crown land.—R.H.D., 9th February, 1880.

For approval.—J.G.B., 9/2/80. Under-Secretary. Mr. Jones may be informed as above and papers sent on to Court of Claims.—W.W.S., 18th February, 1880. Mr. Jones as above. Approved.—J.H., 19/2/80. The Secretary to the Court of Claims with papers, 1st March, 1880.

Report of Commissioners of Court of Claims.

New South Wales.

REPORT of the Commissioners appointed under the Act of Council of 5th William IV, No. 21, for hearing and examining claims to grants of land:—

Case:—No. 1,517.

Proposed grantee's name and address:—Joshua Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith.

Claimant's name and address:—Same.

Opponent's ditto:—None.

Name of lessee:—Thomas King.

Date of lease:—30th June, 1823.

By whom leased:—Governor Sir Thomas Brisbane.

Description of the land:—All that piece or parcel of land, containing by admeasurement 77 rods, situated at Parramatta, parish of St. John, county of Cumberland, Colony of New South Wales; bounded on the west by a line 2 chains 74 links, on the south by a line 1 chain 73 links, on the east by a line to Macquarie-street 2 chains 80 links, and on the north by that street 1 chain 67 links, and being allotment No. 15 of section 12, as delineated in the Government map of the town of Parramatta.

Date of determination:—25th May, 1880.

Date of report:—8th July, 1880.

Report.

The Commissioners have the honor to report, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, as follows:—

This claim is for a grant of lot 15, section 12, of the town of Parramatta, being the land devised by Governor Brisbane to one Thomas King, by lease, dated 30 June, 1823, for a term of twenty-one years, with a right of purchase of the fee-simple as usual, under the regulations then extant.

The claimant, however, proves no title under Thomas King, but he relies on a title by possession of fifty years and upwards, derived through John Hunt.

It appears that there was a will of John Hunt's, devising the land to Henry Hughes, and that the father of Mr. Hugh Taylor in his lifetime, and his sons, Mr. Hugh Taylor and Mr. John Taylor, since the death of their father, held possession of the land for the representatives of Henry Hughes, and it has been proved that the claimant is the heir-at-law of Henry Hughes.

The Commissioners have deemed it necessary to take further evidence as to the identity of the claimant, he having signed by a wrong name.

As it appeared from the papers forwarded by the Secretary for Lands that a counter-claim had been made by the Municipal Council of Parramatta to the land in question, the Commissioners have caused special notice of the application to be served upon the Council Clerk of the Corporation, of which the Corporation have taken no notice. A declaration of the fact of such service is herewith transmitted.

The Commissioners recommend that a grant of the land issue to Joshua Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith, his heirs and assigns.

Dated this 8th day of June, A.D. 1880.

No. 42.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to The Council Clerk, Parramatta.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 6 August, 1880.

With further reference to your letter of the 16th April, 1879, requesting that allotment 15 of section 12, in the town of Parramatta, might be dedicated to the Borough Council, I am now directed to transmit herewith extracts from the report of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims on the claim preferred by Joshua Hughes, and to inform you that the Minister for Lands approves of the recommendation contained therein.

I have, &c.,

JOHN G. BLAXLAND,
(For Under-Secretary).

[Enclosure to No. 42.]

Extract from Commissioners' report.

"This claim is for a grant of lot 15, section 12, town of Parramatta, being the land devised by Governor Brisbane to one Thomas King, by lease dated 20th June, 1823, for a term of twenty-one years, with a right of purchase of the fee simple as usual under the regulations then extant.

"The claimant, however, proves no title under Thomas King, but he relies on a title by possession of fifty years and upwards, derived through John Hunt.

"It appears that there was a will of John Hunt's devising the land to Henry Hughes, and that the father of Mr. Hugh Taylor in his lifetime, and his sons (Mr. Hugh Taylor and Mr. John Taylor), since the death of their father, held possession of the land for the representatives of Henry Hughes, and it has been proved that the claimant is the heir-at-law of Henry Hughes.

"As it appeared from the papers forwarded by the Secretary for Lands that a counter-claim had been made by the Municipal Council of Parramatta to the land in question, the Commissioners have caused special notice of the application to be served upon the Council Clerk of the Corporation, of which the Corporation have taken no notice.

"The Commissioners recommend that a grant of the land issue to Joshua Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith, his heirs and assigns.

"Dated this 8th day of June, A. D. 1880.

"ARTHUR T. HOLROYD, President.
WM. OWEN."

Re Joshua Hughes.

Sir,

128, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 12 August, 1880.

I understand from the Secretary of the Court of Claims that the Court has recommended the issue of a grant to the above-named applicant. If so, may I ask that the matter be proceeded with without any unnecessary delay.

Yours, &c.,

CHARLES SMITH JONES.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 4 October, 1880.

With reference to your letter of the 12th August last, relative to the claim preferred by Mr. Joshua Hughes to the land noted in the margin, I am directed to inform you that the report of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims has been received and is being dealt with as speedily as possible.

No. 46.

The Council Clerk, Parramatta, to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Council Chambers, Parramatta, 3 November, 1880.

Under the direction of His Worship the Mayor, I have the honor to inform you that at a general meeting of the Council of the Borough of Parramatta, held on the 1st instant, the following resolution was passed—

"That His Worship the Mayor be hereby empowered to make application to the Honorable the Minister for Lands to re-open the question of dedicating the land in Macquarie-street to this Council, for which which a former application was made by resolution bearing date the 10th March, 1879"; and to inform you that, through the non-receipt of any notice from the Court of Claims for this Council to attend the said Court to give evidence upon the subject, the Council failed to take action in the matter, and would therefore kindly solicit that the question of dedicating the land in Macquarie-street to the Council, for which application was made, be re-opened. And would further kindly solicit that a surveyor may be sent up to survey the said land in order to test its position.

I have, &c.,
SYDNEY WICKHAM,
Council Clerk.

Minutes on No. 46.

This letter is submitted for the consideration of the Minister. The case has been decided by the Court of Claims, and the deed is about to issue, as advised thereby, to Joshua Hughes. The last paragraph of this letter is confuted by paragraph six (6) of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims' Report, of which paragraph we enclosed a copy in our letter of 6th August, 1880.—J.G.B., 23/11/80.

There does not appear to be any reason why the case should be re-opened. The Municipal Council of Parramatta had notice from the Court of Claims, and apparently have failed to take advantage of it.—C.O., 24/11/80.

Possibly, however, it would be safer to allow the Court of Claims to decide whether the case can be re-opened.—C.O.

The Council should be informed that this Department has been furnished with a statutory declaration from the Clerk to the Commissioners of the Court of Claims, to the effect that due notice was served upon the Municipal Council of Parramatta of the intention and time when the Commissioners would investigate this claim, therefore any application for a re-investigation must be made to the Court of Claims.—J.H., 2/12/80. Re-submit at end of January, 1881.—R.H.D., 17/12/80.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to The Council Clerk, Parramatta.

Sir, Department of Lands, Sydney, 16 December, 1880.

With reference to your letter of the 3rd November ultimo, transmittin, by direction of His Worship the Mayor, a resolution passed on the 1st of that month by the Borough Council of Parramatta, requesting that the question of dedicating allotment 15 of section 12, in Macquarie-street, be re-opened, as it is alleged that no notice from the Court of Claims for the Council to attend and give evidence was received, I am directed to inform you that as a statutory declaration was forwarded to this Department from Mr. J. J. Cannon, Clerk to Mr. W. G. Pennington, the Secretary to the Commissioners, to the effect that due notice was served, application for a re-investigation of the case must be made to the Commissioners of the Court of Claims; and I am to request that, should it be deemed desirable to prosecute the subject further, application as indicated be made within one month from this date.

The Council Clerk, Parramatta, to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Council Chamber, Parramatta, 20 December, 1880.

I am directed by His Worship the Mayor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th instant, acknowledging the receipt of the resolution passed by the Council of the Borough of Parramatta, requesting that the question of dedicating a certain portion of land situated in Macquarie-street, within this borough, may be re-opened.

I admit that the so-called notice marked A, dated 20th May, 1880, was received by me; but as that document stated that we should have to appear before the Court of Claims if necessary, such expression led me to suppose that a further notification would have been forwarded if evidence had been required to be given by the Council upon the subject at issue.

I may further state that, the Council being only applicants to the Government for the land in question, and not claimants thereof, naturally concluded the Government would protect their own interest by seeing that evidence upon the case was forthcoming at the proper date.

I have, &c.,

SYDNEY WICKHAM,

Council Clerk.

Not for Ministerial Branch. Mr. Blaxland.—T.B., 22/12/80. I presume on this letter the Municipality do not intend to pursue the case further. However, until the middle of January, the time given them to make their application, we can do nothing. After that, if nothing more is forthcoming from the Council, the deeds must issue to Hughes, as before advised.—J.G.B., 28/12/80.

Under-Secretary,—Copy of letter to the Municipality from this department herewith.—J.G.B., 4/1/81. From this letter it appears that the Council do not desire to proceed further in the matter, and therefore the deed may issue to Joshua Hughes, as recommended by the Court of Claims.—C.O., 5/1/81. Approved.—J.H., 7/1/81. Write to parties to-day.—C.O., 8/1/81. C. S. Jones, solicitor, and S. Wickham, Council Clerk, informed, 8/1/81. I have the honor to direct your attention to the time that has elapsed since the above-named person's claim to a grant of a piece of land at Parramatta, known as No. 15, section 12, of that town, came before the Court of Claims, and was disposed of in the claimant's favour, and to the correspondence that has subsequently taken place between us upon the subject, and to request that the grant may be issued without further delay.

The Council Clerk, Parramatta, to The Secretary for Lands.

Sir,

Council Chambers, Parramatta, 25 January, 1881.

With reference to the application made by the Council of the Borough of Parramatta for a grant of land situated in Macquarie-street, within the said Borough, there appears to be some misunderstanding, the Court of Claims having represented this Council as claimants instead of applicants. The Council of the Borough of Parramatta without doubt are in a position to give information in support of their application, as to whose names the property has been assessed, and by whom held for a number of years, and are willing to do so if permitted. I therefore have the honor, under direction of His Worship the Mayor, to make application that you kindly cause the application for the said grant of land made by the Council of the Borough of Parramatta to be reconsidered, to admit of the Council giving such evidence as may be required.

Mr. C. S. Jones to The Secretary for Lands.

Re Joshua Hughes.

Sir,

128, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 16 February, 1881.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter herein of the 8th instant, informing me that the Council of the Borough of Parramatta having objected to the issue of a grant of the land therein, and herein noted in the margin, and having asked for a reconsideration of the case, the papers had been forwarded to the Court of Claims for reconsideration. I need scarcely state that, in view of your letter of acknowledgment informing me that you had authorized the grant to issue, I am much surprised at the course now taken, which I submit is without precedent and contrary to practice, if even it be not ultra vires, as I venture to suggest that the Court of Claims having made their report, which has been approved of and ratified by the Crown in accordance with the statute, is junctus officio, so far as this particular case is concerned. Permit me to direct your attention to the following facts:—

The notice of hearing of this case was duly published in the Government Gazette, as also notice of the days of trial, and in addition thereto special notices were upon the Council of the Borough of Parramatta.

The case came on for hearing before the Commissioners of the Court of Claims on the 25th day of May, 1880, and several witnesses were examined on behalf of the claimant; and no appearance was made at the hearing or any steps whatever taken by the Borough Council (although as I have shown they had notice of the proceedings) until after the Crown had determined to adopt the report of the Commissioners and issue the grant to Hughes. I respectfully but earnestly submit that it is contrary to justice and all fairness that under the foregoing circumstances the case should be reopened, and especially upon public grounds, as I fail to see what public reasons, apart from any legal or equitable claim to the ownership of the land, can or should in any way prejudice the right of a person who has satisfied the Court of Claims and the Crown that he has such a right to the land as to justify the issuing of a grant.

My client has incurred considerable expense in this matter, and, if the course now being pursued be persisted in, will be saddled with further costs, and this through the deliberate action of the Council of Parramatta in failing to put in an appearance at the hearing when their claim (if any) might have been inquired into, and which action would preclude them from a rehearing in any British Court of Justice. It may not be out of place to mention that one of the Commissioners (Mr. Owen) who presided at the hearing hearing of this case is now absent in England, and as Mr. District Court Judge Wilkinson is fully occupied with his duties as such Judge and as Chairman of Quarter Sessions and would be required to sit with the third Commissioner, Mr. Holroyd (Master in Equity), the time when a rehearing would take place is very problematical and its uncertainty extremely annoying. I now, on my client's behalf, protest with every respect against the harassing and inequitable course now proposed, and respectfully request that the determination of the Government to issue the grant be acted on without delay. I may further mention that the claimant is now on a bed of sickness, has a large family to support, and being in indigent circumstances has no means at his disposal of further pressing his claim, and may thus be prevented obtaining that assistance and evidence which would be necessary should a rehearing in this case be persisted in. Asking for your early consideration of these circumstances,—

I have, &c.,

Sir, Office of Court of Claims, 69, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 4 May, 1881.

I have the honor to inform you, by direction of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims, that a Court was held to-day, at which it was determined as follows:—That the object of the rehearing, as appears from the correspondence between the Government and Borough Council of Parramatta, wishing to have an opportunity of offering on behalf of the Crown some evidence to show that the claimant Joshua Hughes is not entitled to the grant, and that therefore the former report of 8th July, 1880, ought not to be carried into effect. The Court is now adjourned till 10 o'clock on Monday, the 30th instant, at the office of the Master in Equity, Supreme Court-house, King-street, in order to afford an opportunity to the Borough to offer such evidence as they may be advised to show that the grant ought not to issue to the claimant.

Sir, Department of Lands, Sydney, 17 May, 1881.

In transmitting the enclosed papers, having reference to a claim set up by Joshua Hughes to allotment 15 of section 12, in the town of Parramatta, I am directed to request you to be good enough to peruse the précis (of this day's date) of the case, and to advise me if, in view of the statement therein contained, the land is not, and whether it has not been Crown Land for many years past; and whether in the public interest the Crown should not be represented at the hearing of the case before the Commissioners of the Court of Claims.

[Enclosure to No. 59.]

Précis.

Allotment 15 of section 12, Macquarie-street, Parramatta.

1. This land was originally leased by Sir Thomas Brisbane to John King, for a period of twenty-one years from the 30th June, 1823, subject to a quit rent, and with a right under certain conditions to purchase the fee simple. Copy of lease herewith, marked "A."

2. By Gazette notice of 3rd June, 1852 (copy herewith, marked "B"), the Government notified—1st. That in order to give the party or parties interested in this lease (which had expired 30th June, 1844) an opportunity of purchasing the fee of the land, the lease would be renewed for one year, during which the fee could be purchased. 2nd. That the lease would not be further renewed under any circumstances; and 3rd. That should the privilege to purchase be not taken advantage of the land would be resumed by the Crown.

3. By notice of the 28th February, 1853, it was proclaimed that unless the parties interested lodged their claim to purchase the fee under the proclamation of 3rd June, 1852, they would be excluded from the benefits of that notice. (Copy herewith, marked "C.")

4. In June, 1873, when investigating this case, Mr. L.-S. Deering reported (see Aln. 73-9,843):—

1st. That the land was then unoccupied.

2nd. That King (the original lessee) died without completing the purchase.

3rd. That the widow and family were, about forty years previous, forced to leave, owing to the house, &c., tumbling down.

4th. That for many years the allotment remained unenclosed.

5th. That no person lays claim to it by occupancy or otherwise, or is in a position to do so.

5. In July, 1873, Mr. Secretary Farnell directed that the land should be sent to auction; but owing to an oversight the papers were inadvertently put away after dealing with the adjoining allotment, and the land was not sent for sale. (See Aln. 73-9,843.)

6. In October, 1878, Henry Halloran, Esq., applied to have the allotment sent to auction; and in February, 1879, Mr. Surveyor Deering briefly reported, stating that Mr. John Taylor, on behalf of a person named Hughes, claimed the land through King and on the score of undisturbed possession. (79-1,088 Aln.) Mr. Taylor was then asked to state the particulars of the claim, and by letter of the 17th September, 1879, furnished details as follows:—

1st. That he (Mr. Taylor) had then papers in his possession.

2nd. That the papers showed that the first holder from the Crown was Dominick M'Curry.

3rd. That in 1829 the land was known as Dominick M'Curry's allotment, as proved by reference to Government Gazette of 8th September, 1829, in which the land is announced to be sold by the Sheriff as M'Kay's land and not M'Curry's.

4th. That the land passed from M'Curry to Daniel Jackson.

5th. That it passed from Jackson to John Hunt.

6th. That John Hunt devised it by will, dated 15th October, 1816, to Henry Duran alias Hughes.

7th. That Duran or Hughes left it by will to his daughter.

7. The next step is when C. S. Jones, solicitor, by his letter of the 3rd February, 1880 (Aln. 80-823), takes up the case for Hughes, the son of Hughes or Duran, who willed the land to his daughter. Mr. Jones starts with the averment that John Hunt (evidently the same person referred to by Mr. Taylor) became the owner of the land; and thence onward the channel through which Hughes now claims is the same as that given by Mr. Taylor.

8. On the 18th March, 1879, the Parramatta Borough Council applied that the land should be handed over for municipal purposes, and is traversing the claim by possession set up by Hughes. Apart from this there seem to be good reasons why the Crown should be heard when the case is before the Commissioners of the Court of Claims.

Notes on paragraph 1.—The right to purchase the fee existed so long as the quit rents were paid; when they failed, the right lapsed. The onus of proof of payment would rest on the claimant. It is pretty clear from Mr. Deering's report that the quit rents were not paid after 1853—about the date when the widow and family left. The claimant or his agent does not attempt to say the rents were paid up even during the currency of the original lease, i.e., up to 1844.

Notes on paragraph 2.—Careful search has been made, but no trace can be found of an application for the renewal of King's lease for allotment 15 under the proclamation of the 3rd June, 1852. This would bear out Deering's report as to the (practically) abandonment of the land about 1833, and consequently the lapsing of any right on the part of any person to purchase the fee.

Notes on paragraph 3.—No trace whatever can be found of any of the parties mentioned by Mr. Taylor and Mr. Jones having preferred a claim to allotment 15, the land leased to King; but under this proclamation (of the 28th February, 1853), a claim to allotment 14, through Daniel Jackson's lease, was preferred, but disposed of in 1859 by Court of Claims (case 1,424), in favour of the Trustees of the Female School of Industry.

Notes on paragraph 4.—King died prior to 1833, during the currency of the lease, which expired in 1844, at which time his family had been off the land over ten years, and it is well known in the town that no person has lived on it since.

Notes on paragraph 5.—No claim to the land was attempted to be set up until it was decided to send the allotment 16 to auction.

Notes on paragraph 6.—Although Mr. Taylor stated he had papers in his possession in 1879, they do not appear to have been produced at the hearing before the Commissioners in July, 1880. Dominick M'Curry or M'Kay never had a lease from the Crown of the allotment 15. The Gazette of 8th September, 1829 (copy herewith), proved that the land therein mentioned was allotment 14, leased to Jackson, through whom M'Curry or M'Kay derived his interest. Jackson may have repurchased his interest at the Sheriff's sale; but if so, the lease, which is probably with Mr. Taylor, will show, or ought to, the various endorsements of transfer. Even then, that is for allotment 14 and not 15, the land now in question. How Hunt could devise by will dated 15 October, 1816, an interest derived from another, but which interest was not created till 1829, six years after, is a mystery. If Hunt's will was administered to, a copy of it could no doubt be produced from the Court records.

Notes on paragraph 7.—How or through what channel Hunt derived an interest from King Mr. Jones does not attempt to show. Mr. Taylor never mentions King's name in his letter of the 17th September, 1879; nor yet does his name appear until it is found that the claim set up through Jackson, M'Curry, and Hunt bears upon allotment 14, long since settled. From Mr. John Taylor's letter and from Joshua King's affidavit, the papers lost at the death of the late Parry Long, solicitor, are those in connection with Hunt's will; those in Mr. Taylor's possession would no doubt show that the land therein mentioned is allotment 14.

Notes generally.—On the 17th December, 1853, the Surveyor-General furnished the then Colonial Secretary with a return showing the allotments unclaimed under the proclamations of 1852 and 1853 by the parties then in occupation. Jackson's name appears for allotment 14; but neither his, M'Curry's, or any other person's, appears for 15, nor is that allotment mentioned,—clear proof that it was not then occupied. This return was revised up to 24th February, 1854, with the same result as regards 15. These support Deering's statement that the land had long before 1854 been abandoned, thereby reverting to the Crown through the lease failing. The Commissioners, in their report of July, 1879 (case 1,517), state that the claimant proves no title through King, but by possession of fifty years derived through Hunt. But Hunt must, if he derived any interest, have derived it through King, as no lease was ever issued to Hunt or any other person except King. Again, it is clear that King's interest in the lease lapsed prior to 1833, and was never revived, so that by the operation of the proclamation of the 28th February, 1853, the allotment 15 became Crown land after the 31st December, 1853, if, indeed, it had not become so de facto years prior to that date.

It is urged therefore that, at the rehearing of the case on the 30th instant before the Commissioners, the Crown should be represented, and that the plea should be raised that the land is Crown land, and has been since 1853, if not since about 1833, the date of abandonment, as it is believed that against the Crown in this Colony length of possession gives no title.

It is further suggested that the Borough Council of Parramatta should be made acquainted with the view this Department takes of the case, and of the line of action contemplated, and that it be asked to co-operate.

No. 60.

Report of Commissioners of Court of Claims.

New South Wales.

Report of the Commissioners appointed under the Act of Council of 5th William IV, No. 21, for hearing and examining claims to grants of land.

Case—No. 1,517 (rehearing).

Proposed grantee's name and address—Joshua Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith.

Claimant's name and address—Same.

Opponent's ditto—The Crown.

Name of promisee, lessee, or purchaser—Thomas King.

Date of promise, lease, or purchase—30th June, 1823.

By whom promised, leased, or of whom purchased—Governor Sir Thomas Brisbane.

Description of the land—All that piece or parcel of land containing by admeasurement 77 rods, situated at Parramatta, parish of St. John, county of Cumberland, Colony of New South Wales. Bounded on the west by a line 2 chains 74 links; on the south by a line 1 chain 73 links; on the east by a line to Macquarie-street 2 chains 80 links; and on the north by that street 1 chain 67 links; and being allotment No. 15, section 12, as delineated in the Government map of the town of Parramatta.

Date of determination—14th September, 1881.

Report.

Report.

The Commissioners have the honor to report, for the information of His Excellency the Governor, as follows:—

This case was heard before the Commissioners on the 25th day of May, 1880, when they made their report in favour of the applicant, to which they respectfully beg to refer.

That report states that the claimant has not proved any title from King, the original lessee of this land, but relied on a possession of forty or fifty years, through John Hunt, or those claiming through him.

The case has been re-opened at the instance of the Secretary for Lands, and was re-heard on the 30th May, and 9th, 20th, and 24th June, when additional evidence was given, the claimant appearing by his counsel and solicitor, and the Crown Solicitor watching the case on behalf of the Crown.

It appears clear that lot No. 15, section 12, which is the land now in question, was leased to one King for twenty-one years by Governor Brisbane, on 30th June, 1823. There is also evidence that it was afterwards in the possession of Hunt, who devised it to the father of the applicant, and that Mr. Taylor, of Parramatta (deceased), and after his death his sons Hugh and John Taylor, have on behalf of the applicant retained possession of this land. More evidence has been taken on the present hearing, Messrs. John and Hugh Taylor having given further evidence in support of this possession, and Mr. Rutter having deposed that for an interval of two or three years this possession was broken off; and Mrs. Walker, who lived on an adjacent allotment from 1840 to 1870, stated on a declaration made by her that this land was during that time "vacant and unoccupied." On this point, however, we see no sufficient reason for coming to a different conclusion to that stated in our former report.

Some confusion has arisen between this allotment No. 15 leased to King and No. 14, which was originally leased to Jackson, and seems afterwards to have been known as M'Kay's or M'Curry's allotment (see Government Gazette of 8th September, 1829), and which having been dealt with by this Court in 1859 as No. 1,424, was in accordance with the report then made granted to the School of Industry.

The Commissioners have no evidence before them that the parties in possession of King's grant availed themselves of the offers made by the Proclamations of 3rd June, 1852, and 28th February, 1853, but the Commissioners do not refer to this question, because they understand that it has not been usual to resume lands thus leased for non-compliance with such offers.

With regard to the letter of John Taylor, dated 17th September, 1879, it appears that this letter, although signed by John Taylor, is in the handwriting of Mr. Richardson (Mr. Taylor's solicitor), and was prepared by him from documents left with him by Mr. Taylor. The early history of this land contained in this letter is altogether inaccurate; but as it may be an incorrect interpretation of those documents, the Commissioners have taken evidence to explain the facts, and how Mr. Taylor came to sign a document containing these mistakes.

Having given the matter the best consideration in their power, the Commissioners still adhere to their report upon the first hearing of the case, and recommend that a grant issue in favour of Joshua Hughes, of Narrandera, blacksmith, his heirs and assigns.

Dated this nineteenth day of September, A.D. 1881.

President.

Minutes on No. 60.

These papers may be forwarded to the Crown Law Officers, with a view to an opinion whether His Excellency the Governor should be asked to approve of this recommendation (Proviso cl. 4, Act 5 Will. IV No. 21).—R.H.D., 29/9/81. The Secretary to the Attorney-General.—C.O., B.C., 30/9/81.

No. 61.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to The Crown Solicitor.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 5 October, 1881.

I have the honor to transmit herewith the papers in connection with Joshua Hughes' claim to allotment 15 of section 12 in Macquarie-street, Parramatta, and to request the opinion of the Attorney-General whether His Excellency the Governor should be asked to approve of the report of the 19th ultimo of the Commissioners of the Court of Claims recommending the issue of a grant to the claimant. Enclosures.

2. In the event of the opinion being in the affirmative, I have to request that I may be informed whether the quit rents are to be demanded; and if so, for what period and at what rate.

No. 62.

Mr. J. B. Durhen to The Secretary for Lands.

Honorable Sir,

York Cottage, Hordern-street, Newtown, 9 November, 1881.

I hereby protest, on behalf of Mary Elizabeth Walker, relict of the late John Walker, of Parramatta, and on my own behalf, as husband of a daughter of the aforesaid John and Mary Elizabeth Walker, against claims which I hear have been set up to a certain piece of land situated in Macquarie-street, Parramatta, and known as Walker's paddock; and I protest against the Crown granting it to either of the claimants, that is to say, to the Municipality of Parramatta or Mr. John Taylor, the said claimants, the same aforesaid land being a portion of the estate of the late John Walker aforesaid, by whom and by the aforesaid Mary Elizabeth Walker, the said land has been held in undisputed possession for at least forty-nine years, as we are ready to prove, and consequently claim it.

I have, &c.,

JOSEPH BANKS DURHEN.

Minutes on No. 63.

Submitted.—J.G.B., 24/11/81. There still remains the question of quit rent, which appears to be chargeable.

[Enclosure to No. 63.]

Opinion.

ALTHOUGH I cannot say that I agree with the report of the Commissioners with respect to this case, still, as they have twice reported in favour of this claimant, I think His Excellency the Governor may be asked to approve of the report of the 19th September last.

As to the quit rents, that is a matter for the consideration of the Minister for Lands; it does not involve any legal question.

Mr. C. S. Jones to The Secretary for Lands.

128, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 7 December, 1881.

Sir,

Re Joshua Hughes' application for Crown grant.

I have the honor to request that you will be good enough to let me know what is the cause of delay in the issue of this grant.

I beg to remind you that my client's claim has been under investigation for the past eighteen months, during which period it has been twice before the Court of Claims, and upon both occasions the Court has reported in favour of the issue of a grant to the applicant. The delay appears to me unaccountable.

The Under-Secretary for Lands to Mr. C. S. Jones.

Sir,

Department of Lands, Sydney, 22 December, 1881.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 7th instant, re the case of Joshua Hughes, I am directed to inform you that as the Legislative Assembly, on the 15th instant, determined to refer this matter to a Select Committee for investigation, no further action can be taken at present.

No. 66.

Messrs. Jones & Jones to The Secretary for Lands.

Re Joshua Hughes.

Sir,

Wentworth Court, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, 15 September, 1882.

We have the honor to forward you a copy of a letter dated the 16th day of February, 1881, sent by our Mr. C. S. Jones to your predecessor, relative to the claims of our client to a grant of the land noted in the margin.

The letter referred to will, on perusal thereof, place you in possession of the facts of the case, and will apprise you of the claimant's position at the date of that letter. Since then, notwithstanding the protests therein contained, a rehearing which was sanctioned by the Crown took place on the 9th day of June, 1881.

The

The Commissioners of the Court of Claims who tried it upon the second hearing were Mr. Judge Wilkinson and Mr. Holroyd; the Council of the Borough of Parramatta was not represented, but the Crown was; evidence was taken for and against the claimant, several witnesses were examined, and the Commissioners after a patient hearing again reported in favour of the claimant Hughes.

The Government, so we understand (in fact Mr. Hoskins stated so in the House) approved of and determined to adopt the report, and were about to issue the grant accordingly; but owing to the action taken by Mr. Byrnes, one of the Members for Parramatta, who moved for and obtained a Select Committee to inquire into the claims of the Borough of Parramatta to the land in question, the issue of the same was and has been delayed.

The House was subsequently prorogued, and the Committee so appointed lapsed. So soon as the House met again, the same gentleman (Mr. Byrnes) tabled a notice of his intention to move for the appointment of another Committee for a similar purpose, and such notice now stands over until the 5th of October next.

Under the circumstances narrated, we cannot conceive that the Government will in any way sanction or countenance the course being pursued by Mr. Byrnes, but on the contrary, that it will at once give effect to the twice repeated adjudication of the Court of Claims (the properly constituted tribunal for the disposal of claims such as that under consideration).

We have therefore respectfully to request that you will give such directions as may be necessary to ensure the immediate issue of the grant to our client the claimant.

We have, &c.,
JONES & JONES.

Declaration by Joshua King.

New South Wales to wit.

I, JOSHUA KING, of Goulburn, in the Colony of New South Wales, blacksmith, do hereby solemnly and sincerely declare as follows:—

1. That I know and was well acquainted with Henry Hughes, of Parramatta, Camden, Sutton Forest, in the said Colony, blacksmith.
2. That the said Henry Hughes was my step-brother, and was married in the year 1832, at Cobbity Church, near Camden, in the said Colony, by the Reverend Thomas Hassall, to one Elizabeth Welch.
3. That the said Henry Hughes died at an hotel in Pitt-street, Sydney, in the year 1850, leaving his said wife, Elizabeth Hughes, and two children, the only issue of the said marriage, him surviving, named respectively Elizabeth Hughes and Joshua Hughes.
4. That the said Elizabeth Hughes, the wife of the said Henry Hughes, subsequently intermarried with and became the wife of a person named Thomas Hollands, and is still living, as I verily believe, at Shoalhaven, in the said Colony.
5. That I know for a fact the said Henry Hughes died, leaving only the said two children, named Elizabeth and Joshua Hughes, him surviving.
6. That the said Elizabeth Hughes, the daughter, was the eldest child of the said Henry Hughes, and was married to a man named Spencer Fellowes; and that the said Joshua Hughes was born at Sutton Forest, in or about the year 1834, and was subsequently baptized by the Reverend John Vincent, I standing and being his godfather.
7. That the said Joshua Hughes was apprenticed to me, with the view of learning my trade of a blacksmith, and as such apprentice served a term of seven years with me at Goulburn aforesaid.
8. That he the said Joshua Hughes was married at the age of twenty-three years, and carried on business as a blacksmith at Wagga Wagga for some time, and on leaving there he settled down at a place called Narrandera, in the said Colony, where he is still living.
9. That I know the piece of land in Macquarie-street, Parramatta, in the said Colony; it is situated almost opposite White's "Old Oak-tree," on the eastern side of the Industrial School building, which building encroaches 2 feet thereupon. That the land I refer to was occupied by my parents, who often told me (and I believe them) that I was born there. My parents leaving for Camden, the said land was let to one Andrew Jackson. That I know the said land belonged to the said Henry Hughes, who I verily believe was seised for an estate of inheritance in fee simple in possession of the said land at and prior to his decease. The same land was devised to him by the will of his godfather, — Hunt, which will was placed in the possession of one Richard Tarrington (another godfather of the said Henry Hughes), who subsequently died, and whose papers with the said will came into the possession of John Taylor, of Parramatta, auctioneer.
10. That I have been informed and verily believe the late Henry Hughes, just before his decease, in company with Mr. John Jenkins, of Gundagai, demanded the said will from the said John Taylor, who admitted having it, and that the land belonged to him, the said Henry Hughes, but declined to give up the possession thereof, and of the other papers connected with the title thereto, until the said Henry Hughes paid him the sum of twenty or twenty-five pounds, and brought to him for identification a man named Dominick M'Currie. I verily believe the money was paid, but the said Henry Hughes died before he had time to make any inquiries about the said Dominick M'Currie; and the said will was not handed over, but the same was retained by and is now in the possession of the said John Taylor.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the ninth year of Her present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the more effectual abolition of Oaths and Affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the Government of New South Wales and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial Oaths and Affidavits."

Declared at Goulburn, this 6th day of August, }
A.D. 1879, before me,—

JOSHUA KING.

C. S. ALEXANDER,
A Commissioner for Affidavits.

Evidence given by Joshua Hughes.

Case 1,517. Joshua Hughes. 25th May, 1880.

Before the President and Mr. Owen.

Joshua Hughes, being sworn and examined by Mr. Cohen, states:—My name is Joshua Hughes; I reside at Narrandera; my trade is that of a blacksmith; Henry Hughes was my father; when I was a boy he lived at Berrima, and then he went to the Murrumbidgee; I don't remember his residing at Parramatta, I being too young when I left there; my father is dead—he is dead about nineteen or twenty years; he came down here to see about some land and died; I had one sister; I don't know whether she is living or dead; I know Mr. Joshua King—I lived seven or eight years with him; I was apprenticed to him for a part of the time, and then worked with him as a tradesman; I was living then in Goulburn; I afterwards started in business alongside of Mr. King; I then moved from Goulburn to Wagga Wagga, and from Wagga Wagga afterwards to Narrandera, where I am still living; I saw the land last week.

Mr. Owen:

Mr. Owen : That was the first time I saw it.

Mr. Cohen : I was first told about the land by Mr. Jenkins soon after my father died.

Mr. Owen : He told me that my father had some land at Parramatta, and that he thought my father had left it to me.

Mr. Cohen : Mr. Jenkins is often in Parramatta.

Mr. Owen : I never interfered with the land after, when they could not find the papers ; Mr. Taylor put an advertisement in the paper for my father, and my cousin at Goulburn cut the advertisement out and sent it to me.

Mr. Holroyd : That is twelve months ago.

Mr. Cohen : When I got the advertisement I wrote to Mr. Taylor, telling him that if he wanted any information about my father I could give it to him, and that he (my father) had some land at Parramatta ; I know nothing about the land itself ; I had no brothers.

Mr. Holroyd : I am about forty-five years old.

Witnessed by—T. HOLROYD, President.

WILLIAM OWEN.

JOSHUA KING.

26th May, 1880.

Joshua Hughes, being re-sworn and examined by Mr. Cohen, further states :—I am generally known as Joshua King ; I usually sign as Joshua King—ever since I took over the business of blacksmith from my uncle, Joshua King—in fact since I was a child ; I was brought up from childhood by my grand-parents, whose name was King, and I remained with them until I entered on my apprenticeship with my uncle, Joshua King ; my father apprenticed me to my uncle, and my grandfather Thomas King witnessed the indentures ; I was apprenticed about 1862 ; I saw the indenture of apprenticeship at the time, and in them I am called Joshua Hughes ; I am a married man ; I was married under the name of Joshua Hughes King, about twenty-two years ago ; I consulted Mr. Gannon, solicitor, Goulburn, as to the name under which I could get married.

Evidence given by John Taylor.

Case 1,517. Joshua Hughes. 25th May, 1880.

Before the President and Mr. Owen.

John Taylor, being sworn and examined by Mr. Cohen, states :—My name is John Taylor ; I know the land in question ; I have had actual possession of the land myself for the last twenty-five years ; on my return from America, the Trustees under my father's will left me this property to manage, and handed me over the papers ; I held the land and deeds for the Hughes family ; one of the papers was a will by Mr. Hunt, the attesting witnesses being Dominick McCurry and Gorman ; I have read the will ; Hunt willed this property to Henry Hughes, the father of the applicant.

Mr. Owen : Among the papers I saw an original lease from the Crown to King ; I think the date was about 1822 or 1823.

Mr. Cohen : About twenty years ago a Mr. Jenkins called upon me at Parramatta in reference to the property, and then by an arrangement with him I saw the late Henry Hughes, who was then on his death-bed ; he spoke to me about this property, and I consented to hold it for the benefit of his family, and I handed, at the request of Mr. Hughes, all the papers I have spoken of to Mr. Parry Long ; I was aware that Mr. Parry Long was retained by my father previous to this to obtain a grant through the Court of Claims ; my father's death interfered with this being done ; about twelve months since I advertised for the heirs or relatives of the late Henry Hughes ; I received a letter from Mr. J. J. Roberts informing me that he knew the late Henry Hughes, and that he could identify the claimant as the son of Henry Hughes to my satisfaction, and then Joshua Hughes wrote to me ; from conversation that I have had with the applicant, I have no doubt that he is the son of the late Henry Hughes ; the land to which I refer is lot 15 of section 12, town of Parramatta ; the land has been enclosed by me for the last twenty-four or twenty-five years ; I have let the land to various tenants, in consideration of their paying the municipal rates.

Case 1,517. Joshua Hughes. 25th May, 1880.

Hugh Taylor, being sworn and examined by Mr. Cohen, states :—My name is Hugh Taylor ; I am a member of the Legislative Assembly and reside at Parramatta—I have been living there all my life ; I did not know the late Mr. Thomas King ; I know the piece of land in question ; I did not know the late John Hunt ; I knew the late Henry Hughes ; the land has been in the possession of my father, my brother, and myself, for the last fifty years, for the late Henry Hughes ; no person has ever interfered with my possession of the land ; neither my father, my brother, or myself made any claim to it as our own property ; no person has occupied it under me ; I have used it frequently for horses ; I have used it for years ; my father advertised for Mr. Henry Hughes about thirty years ago ; I have seen Henry Hughes ; I know of a transaction between my father and Mr. Hughes in reference to this land ; this is about thirty years ago ; Mr. Henry Hughes came down from the country about the advertisement and went on the ground with my father ; at that time land was very cheap ; Hughes told my father it would not pay him to come down the country to see after it, to obtain an attorney to make an application through the Court of Claims.

Mr. Owen : It was an agreement that in the event of my father getting a grant he was to sell the land and pay himself the expenses.

Mr. Cohen : I have seen the whole of the papers relating to this piece of land ; the documents comprised a will, in which were the names of Hunt, Dominick McCurry, and Gorman.

Mr. Owen : I do not know whose will it was, but I know that the property was left to Henry Hughes, the godson of the testator, whoever he was ; my father was a trustee under that will and took possession of the land as trustee, and on my father's death I took possession of the land as trustee under my father's will, and my brother and I have held the land ever since in trust for the family of Henry Hughes ; I have never seen or heard of a will by the late Henry Hughes.

Mr. Cohen : All the papers relating to the land were left with Mr. Parry Long, solicitor.

Mr. Owen : The land was fenced in by my brother.

Evidence given by John Taylor.

Case No. 1,517. Joshua Hughes, claimant.

Thursday the 9th June, 1881.

Before the President and Mr. Wilkinson.

John Taylor, of Parramatta, auctioneer, being duly sworn, maketh oath and saith as follows:—The evidence given by me on the 25th May, 1880, and as read by Mr. Knox, is correct; I fenced the land in question about four or five years ago, since I made the promise to Hughes to hold it for his family; before this the fence was in a very bad state; the tenants I let the property to are John Rutter, the late John Williams, and James Vallack; the conditions I let the property on were that the tenants should pay the rates; I found the papers to which I have referred among my father's papers, which were handed over to me by Mr. Plunkett, one of the executors; the property was described in Hunt's will as purchased by him from King, and among the papers was the original lease from the Government to King, an attested copy of which is in evidence; amongst the papers I found the exhibit produced marked "A"; I recollect the names of Gorman and Dominick M'Curry, being attached to the will of Hunt.

Mr. Williams: My first recollection of my father's possession of this land was forty-four or forty-five years ago; he had actual possession of it by putting his ponies there; during my father's possession he allowed my uncle Walker to use it. my uncle Walker lived next door adjoining; my uncle Walker has been dead for thirty years; his widow is alive and lives in Parramatta, and is very infirm; I promised Henry Hughes on his death-bed that I would hold it for his children; I don't think Mrs. Walker could come to give evidence; she is between seventy and eighty years of age and is infirm, and could not conveniently come; when I came back from San Francisco in 1835 my brother was in possession of the land, putting horses and cattle upon it; the land was then well fenced; Hugh Taylor lived near it; on my return the land was given up to me by my brother; my brother withdrew from the management of the estate, and I took possession of it and all the properties of my father; I went on the land and fixed up the fences; I then retained possession and let it to John Rutter; this was three or four or some years after I returned from San Francisco; I told Rutter that he might have possession of the land if he paid the rates; there was no writing between us—it was a verbal agreement between Rutter and myself; I have a distinct recollection of that letting; I don't recollect there being any one present; he held it for three or four years; I then let it to John Williams upon the same terms; he held possession of it for some few years; I then let it to Mr. Vallack upon the same terms; I retook the land from Vallack when the Municipality applied for the land; I then advertised for the representatives of Hughes; I have heard it called M'Curry's; I never knew from papers in my possession that Dominick M'Curry was the first holder from the Crown, but I knew from such papers that King was the first holder; I never knew that the land was known as Dominick M'Curry's allotment, or that it passed to a man named Daniel Jackson, but I remember meeting with his name among my father's papers; I cannot tell the date of Hunt's will—I know it was very ancient; the exhibit marked "A" is I think the copy of same document; I believe the will referred to in the exhibit as the will of John Hunt is the will of which I am speaking; I handed the exhibit to Mr. Jones, and it was by this will that I believe the land was devised to Henry Duran, alias Hughes, who is the father of the person now claiming; I believe the handwriting to the exhibit marked "B" is the handwriting of Mr. Richardson; I gave him the particulars, and I signed the letter; there can be no mistake about this allotment; the allotment on one side was used by the officers' mess, and the one on the other side by my uncle, Mr. Walker; I never knew it as M'Curry's land; I have known it for the last forty years, and always understood it to be Hughes'; the materials from which Mr. Richardson compiled his letter were partially documents given by me to him, and I do not consider myself responsible for the contents; I have no recollection of reading the letter before signing it; all the information there Mr. Richardson obtained must have come from me or the papers I gave him; Mr. Richardson had no personal knowledge of this property before I instructed him.

Mr. Knox: Whether the statements contained in the exhibit produced marked "B" are correct or not, the evidence I have now given is correct; I have a distinct recollection that among the papers I handed to Parry Long was the original lease and Hunt's will; Mr. Jones, the applicant's solicitor, received the exhibits marked C 1, 2, 3, and 4, from Mr. Parry Long's son; at the time the letter was written by Mr. Richardson I was not aware that Henry Hughes had a son living or had ever had a son; I did know that he had a daughter, but I did not know whether she was living or not at the time the letter was written; I saw her at his bedside when he was dying; I understood Mr. Parry Long, who was then present, was preparing a will in favour of his daughter; this was twenty-three or twenty-four years ago.

Mr. Williams: My knowledge of the circumstances of this case was as perfect when the letter was written by Mr. Richardson as it is now.

Evidence given by John Champley Rutter.

Case No. 1,517. Joshua Hughes, claimant.

Thursday, 9th June, 1881.

Before the President and Mr. Wilkinson.

John Champley Rutter, of Redfern, Justice of the Peace, being sworn and examined, states as follows:—I have lived at Parramatta for forty-five years; I lived continuously there for forty-five years, from 1830 to 1850, and 1851 to 1876; I am acquainted with allotment 15 section 12; when I first knew it, it was in the occupation of Mr. Hugh Taylor, senior; Mr. Taylor used to run his horses on it; this state of things continued up to the time of his death; it was fenced in, and bounded by the School of Industry on the one side, Blake's at the back, Walker's on the other side, and on the fourth side by Macquarie-street; the property was in my possession from 1862 to 1869; I found it vacant and took possession; I let the house in which I resided in 1867, which was separated by the School of Industry from this paddock, with this paddock, to Davis, of the A. S. N. Company, for twelve months; when his time expired let to the next tenant, Mrs. Hawkins, who was in the Mutual Provident Society; Mr. Hawkins was away at the time ill, and Dr. Brown was as surety for the rent; I did not lease the paddock or stable with this; I let the paddock and stable to Mr. Rogers, the draper, for 6d. per week for the paddock and 5s. for the stable; he held it from September, 1868, to May, 1869, when he built stables at his own place; I was living about a mile away from it; I should have mentioned that in 1862 I put up a two-rail paling fence on the street frontage; I had an entrance through a paddock I leased from Blake at the back of this allotment; I could not get out of the paddock into the street without coming through my yard; I paid the rates; I paid them in two names, in my brother's name and George Dempsey's, at two different periods; I paid the rates in my brother's name for the purpose of giving him a vote; I did not take possession of that property by virtue of any authority from the Taylors or any other person; I simply found it vacant and took possession of it; I did not take possession under any agreement with any one to pay the rates for it; the fact of my possession was well known; the Taylors know it perfectly well; John Taylor was the next person in possession; I afterwards saw his horse tied up in it; the fence was then out of repair; I have also seen Williams' horses there; the fence was at that time in repair.

Mr. Knox: I am not aware of any other John Rutter living in Parramatta; when I first knew this property it was in Hugh Taylor, senior's possession; I never heard the Taylors claim this for Hughes; Mr. John Taylor said in his evidence "I told Rutter he might have possession of the land if he paid the rates"; that is untrue; I think Mr. John Taylor once asked me would I give it to him, and he would pay me for all the trouble I had been put at; he never made a claim against me, but he asked me to give up the land to him, and he would pay me for the improvements; this was after I had left the neighbourhood; I never did hear any of the Taylors say that this was their property or that they were entitled to it; I am not on friendly terms with the Taylors; I have not been on friendly terms with the Taylors for fifteen or twenty years; I never had any dispute with them, but never spoke to any of the family in any way from then; I know how John Taylor came into possession after my occupation; the place was left with no one to take care of it, and the boys destroyed the fence; Taylor's blackfellow drove a stake down and tethered his pony there; I rode by and saw the horse tethered there; I saw my wife, Mrs.

Mrs. Rutter, and she advised me not to take any notice of it, as the land did not belong to me; I had previously intended to impound it; I never heard that a person named Hughes ever claimed this land; I was in Parramatta in 1853; I did not at that or at any other time hear of the land being claimed by Hughes; I did not see Hughes in Parramatta at that time; the dispute between the Taylors and myself in no way arose out of anything in connection with this land—it was entirely from a family matter.

Evidence given by Hugh Taylor.

Case No. 1,517. Joshua Hughes, claimant.

Thursday, 9th June, 1881.

Before the President and Mr. Wilkinson.

Hugh Taylor, of Parramatta, Justice of the Peace, being sworn and examined, states as follows:—The evidence given by me at the former inquiry is correct. (Mr. Knox read the evidence given on the 25th May, 1880.) My father was a trustee under Farrington's will; Farrington was executor of Hunt, and my father was executor for Farrington; my father advertised as executor of Farrington for Henry Hughes about thirty-five years ago; about thirty-two years ago Hughes came down from the country and stopped at my place; as far as I know, this land was never claimed by any one except my father, my brother, and myself on behalf of Hughes.

Mr. Williams: I recollect this land over fifty years; my father was in possession of it at that time; he ordered me to take the horses down and put them in the paddock, meaning the land now claimed; it was then fenced in with a paling fence; it was first fenced in one block by itself as long as I can remember; I continually put the horses in without a break for twenty-five years of this time; about that time my father died; upon my father's death I kept possession of it, using it continually in the way described until my brother, who had been in San Francisco, returned, about a year after; I handed the papers to him and he took possession of it; the reason I did not keep possession and handed over the papers was because I was insolvent; my connection with the land then ceased; since that time Mr. John Rutter, the late Mr. John Williams, and Mr. James Vallack, of Parramatta, brewer, have been in possession; no interest in this land was sold or ever attempted to be sold by the Sheriff, as far as I know; three-parts of the fence was down for two or three years before my brother returned from San Francisco; there was a new fence I believe put up by Mr. Rutter; I have seen Mr. Rutter's horses there for three or four years; during that time no one was in possession except Mr. Rutter; I never interfered after Mr. Rutter's possession; the land was held successively by Mr. Williams, Mr. James Vallack, and Mr. John Taylor, who is in possession now; the possession has always been in my father, my brother, and myself, about thirty-two years ago Mr. Hughes, in answer to an advertisement, went on the ground with my father and myself, and said, "I can earn more with my trade as a blacksmith in one month than what the land is worth; I cannot afford the time to stay down and put it through the Court of Claims"; he told my father to sell the land and pay himself; the payment I refer to was the expense of putting the matter through the Court of Claims; I don't know the reason why the land was not put through the Court of Claims; the papers were placed in the hands of Mr. Parry Long, and I frequently saw him; the papers I refer to as having handed to my brother related to my father's estate; I have heard it said that Dominick M'Curry was in possession, and also King and also Gorman; I don't think that I ever referred to it as Dominick M'Curry's allotment, and that it would be seen in Gazette, 8th September, 1859; I am not aware that an adjacent lot belonged to Dominick M'Curry, or that this or the adjacent land was known as Daniel Jackson's; I do not remember any house being on the land; I do not know that John Hunt built a hut, but I heard that Hunt did build one and that Gorman lived on the land, but I never saw a hut or dwelling on the land for the fifty years I have known it; I have seen the remains of a chimney on the land; I may have said that I was in possession for forty years, in a communication to the Government, as I thought that was sufficient.

Mr. Knox: I am not instructing Mr. Jones in the matter—he is solicitor for the applicant; I attended before the Court of Claims in obedience to a subpoena; I have no interest whatever in the claim.

Mr. Knox: When the proper person is not known it is rated in the name of "owner," and "owner" is advertised for; the notice of rate is always served upon the occupier and not the owner.

W. G. PENNINGton, Secretary.

I, Mary Elizabeth Walker, of Parramatta, in the Colony of New South Wales, widow, do solemnly and sincerely declare as follows:—I am the widow of John Walker, late of Parramatta, who died on or about the first day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight. I am well acquainted with the land in Macquarie-street, Parramatta, situated between the lands now belonging to the School of Industry and that formerly owned by my late husband, and now in the possession of the widow of Richard Worthing. My husband and myself lived upon the last-mentioned land for a period of about thirty years, from about the year 1840 to 1870.

During the time my husband and myself resided upon the said land, we from time to time used the allotment of land situated between the land we occupied and the School of Industry land, by depasturing cows and horses thereon and otherwise using the same; it was vacant land, and we used it being adjacent to the land we lived upon; and this, so far as I am aware and verily believe, without my said husband having obtained permission so to do from any person or persons whomsoever. I never asked for or obtained permission to use the said land from any person, and was allowed to do so without interference; neither the late Hugh Taylor, or his sons Hugh Taylor and John Taylor, ever, so far as I am aware, interfered with the use of the said land by my late husband and myself.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the sixth year of the reign of His late Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled, "An Act to repeal an Act of the present Session of Parliament, intituled, 'An Act for the more effectual abolition of Oaths and Affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the State and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof and for the more entire suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial Oaths and Affidavits, and to make other provisions for the abolition of unnecessary Oaths';" and by virtue of the provisions of an Act of the Governor and Legislative Council of New South Wales, made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled, "An Act for the more effectual abolition of Oaths and Affidavits taken and made in various Departments of the Government of New South Wales and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial Oaths and Affidavits."

Declared and subscribed before me, at Parramatta and } Colony aforesaid, on the seventeenth day of June, } one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one. }

Case No. 1,517. Joshua Hughes, claimant.
Monday, 20th June, 1881.

Before the President and Mr. Wilkinson.

Robert Henry De Low, of Sydney, Clerk in the Lands Department, being sworn and examined, states as follows:—I am a clerk in the Lands Department; I produce a copy Gazette containing certain proclamations referring to Parramatta leases, dated 3 June, 1852; I produce also a second copy Gazette, containing proclamation dated 23rd February, 1853; there is no other proclamation as I know of affecting this land; I procured the lease books containing leases of Sir Thomas Brisbane dated in 1823; I have searched these books carefully, and have not found any lease to Dominick M'Curry or Dominick M'Kay; I have searched also the records in the Lands Department, and cannot find any application for the renewal of such lease or for pre-emption; in searching I have found a lease of lot No. 15, section 12, fronting Macquarie-street, to King; Daniel Jackson's allotment, No. 14—I have not found any application by King or any one claiming under him for a renewal of lease for one year of his allotment, which was allotment 15 of this land, nor have I found any application by any such persons to purchase such land; I produce extract from copy Gazette of September 8th, 1829; M'Kay's allotment, according to the office maps I have seen, corresponds with the allotment on which the School of Industry now stands, and is not King's allotment; there is no lease to one M'Kay in the batch of leases issued by Sir Thomas Brisbane on 30th June, 1823; I can trace no lease to a man named M'Kay or M'Curry at any time; the only way that the name M'Kay is known is by the boundaries given in the advertisement of sale, there was a lease of the land referred to in advertisement of sale dated 8th September, 1829, to a man named Daniel Jackson, which is No. 14; I produce an official copy of the record of the lease.

Mr. Wilkinson: There was a renewal of allotment No. 14; as far as I have been able to gather it was in 1861; from 1844 to 1861 I can find no trace of any lease for allotment 14; in 1861 the Crown issued a lease to the School of Industry for one year of allotment No. 14, and since have issued a grant to the Trustees.

Evidence given by Sydney Wickham.

Case No. 1,517. Joshua Hughes, claimant.
Monday, 20th June, 1881.

Before the President and Mr. Wilkinson.

Sydney Wickham, of Parramatta, Council Clerk, being sworn and examined, states as follows:—I am Council Clerk at Parramatta; I have searched the rate books from 1869 to date; I cannot find any records prior to 1818. The accompanying extract is correctly taken from the books in my possession; I took charge of the books nine years ago; in search I have found that Rutter appears to have paid the rates for one year; I know Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Walker; she resides in Campbell-street, street, Parramatta; she is infirm bodily, but quite clear mentally; the declaration produced of Mrs. Walker was made before Mr. Goodin, J.P., and the mark thereto was her mark, and was read over to her.

Mr. Knox: As Council Clerk, I enter the minutes and resolutions of the Council; the Council approved of this matter in consequence of a resolution passed in March, 1879, and a second resolution on 1st November, 1880; I have no recollection of any letter written on the 20th December, 1880, or about that date, by the Council to the Lands Department, withdrawing their opposition to this application, nor do I think any such letter was written, although it is referred to in a letter of the Under-Secretary for Lands to applicant's solicitor, dated 8th January, 1881; I have a copy of my letter asking for a re-opening of this claim.

Mr. Holroyd: I know this piece of land well; Mr. John Booth was the mover of the second resolution.

Mr. Knox: I know of no public grounds on which the Council could oppose this application; the sole reason why the Council applied to the Government for this land was because they wanted it for their own purpose, and they believed it to be Government land.

Mr. Williams: The Council have never claimed any right to the land, but have only requested a grant from the Government on the supposition that it was Crown land; that was the reason, as far as I know, why the Council was not represented on the former application.

VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen,
Defender of the Faith, and so forth,—

To Our trusty and well-beloved—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esquire, a Member of Our Legislative Assembly of Our Colony of New South Wales; ANGUS CAMERON, Esquire, a Member of Our said Legislative Assembly; JOHN GELDING, Esquire; EDWARD GREVILLE, Esquire, one of Our Justices of the Peace of Our said Colony; ARCHIBALD HAMILTON JACOB, Esquire, a Member of Our said Legislative Assembly; PHILIP JAMES NEWLAND, Esquire; JOHN SLADE, Esquire; JAMES FRANCIS SMITH, Esquire; and JOHN SUTHERLAND, Esquire, a Member of Our said Legislative Assembly:

Greeting:

Know ye that We, reposing great trust and confidence in your ability, zeal, industry, discretion, and integrity, do by these presents authorize and appoint you, or any three or more of you, as hereinafter mentioned, to make a diligent and full investigation into the working of the Act passed by the Legislature of Our said Colony of New South Wales, in the thirty-seventh year of Our reign, and numbered four, intituled "An Act to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Friendly and other Mutual Benefit Societies," and into the organization, management, condition, and prospects of the Societies registered under its provisions, and to report generally on the character and operations of the Friendly Societies of Our said Colony, and of the principles necessary to be maintained in their financial management for the due security of the members of such Societies: And We do by these presents give and grant to you, or any three or more of you, at any meeting or meetings to which all of you shall have been duly summoned, full power and authority to call before you all such persons as you may judge necessary by whom you may be better informed of the truth in the premises, and to require the production of all such books, papers, writings, and all other documents as you may deem expedient, and to visit and inspect the same at the offices or places where the same or any of them may be deposited, and to inquire of the premises by all lawful ways and means: And Our further will and pleasure is that you, or any three or more of you, after due examination of the premises, do and shall, within the space of three months after the date of this Our Commission, or sooner if the same can reasonably be, certify to Us, in the Office of Our Colonial Secretary, under your or any three or more of your hands and seals, what you shall find touching the premises: And We hereby command all Government Officers and other persons whomsoever within Our said Colony, that they be assistant to you and each of you in the execution of these presents: And We appoint you, the said JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esquire, to be President of this Our Commission.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Colony to be hereunto affixed.

Witness Our right, trusty, and well-beloved Councillor, SIR AUGUSTUS WILLIAM

EXTRACTS FROM MINUTES OF PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY, 21 NOVEMBER, 1881.

MEMBERS PRESENT:—

James Squire Farnell, Esq., M.P., President.

John Gelding, Esq.,
Ed. Greville, Esq., J.P.,
A. H. Jacob, Esq., M.P.,
P. J. Newland, Esq.,
John Slade, Esq.,

J. F. Smith, Esq.,
John Davies, Esq., M.P., C.M.G.,
F. Abigail, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. Holdsworth, Esq.,
E. J. Rubie, Esq.

The Commission and Supplementary Commission, dated respectively October 19th and November 1st, 1881, were read.

The President said he thought under the Commission they were bound to inquire into the working of the whole Act.

The Secretary was instructed to procure a sufficient number of copies of the Commission to supply each member with a copy, and also a similar number of copies of the Friendly Societies Act.

It was resolved, on the motion of Mr. Davies, seconded by Mr. Smith, "That the Commission meet each Monday and Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, unless otherwise ordered."

On motion of Mr. Slade, seconded by Mr. Newland, it was resolved, "That the Secretary be instructed to write to the Principal Under-Secretary, requesting that the Colonial Secretary will procure copies of the report of the Friendly Societies Commission of Victoria, for the use of the Members of the Commission."

On motion of Mr. Davies, seconded by Mr. Abigail, it was resolved, "That any gentleman entitled to be paid fees for attendance who shall not be present in his place half an hour after the time fixed for the meeting of the Commission, shall be entitled to no fees for that day."

It was decided that all witnesses be examined on oath.

The Secretary was instructed to procure three (3) copies of the Act for the Regulation of the taking of Evidence before the Commission.

It was resolved, on the motion of Mr. Davies, seconded by Mr. Holdsworth, "That an application be made that the sum of five hundred pounds (£500) be placed to the credit of the Commission, in some one or other of the Banks of the city, for the purpose of defraying necessary expenses."

FRIDAY, 25 NOVEMBER, 1881.

MEMBERS PRESENT:—

J. S. Farnell, Esq., M.P., President.

John Gelding, Esq.,

F. Abigail, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. Holdsworth, Esq.,
E. J. Rubie, Esq.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The President reported that he had had an interview with the Honorable the Colonial Secretary with reference to the scope of the inquiry, and that Sir Henry Parkes had informed him that the intention of the Government was that the Commission should only inquire into the working of such portions of the Act as related to the Friendly Societies in the Colony.

It was resolved, in accordance with the intentions of the Government, the inquiries of the Commission should be confined to the operation of the Act as it relates to Friendly Societies.

Secretary reported that he had, in accordance with the resolutions arrived at, made the necessary applications for documents as required for the use of the Commission.

Resolved, that twenty (20) copies of the Friendly Societies Act be obtained interleaved with plain ruled paper.

Mr. Alexander Oliver, Registrar of Friendly Societies, was sworn and examined.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The President made the following report:—"In deference to the wish of the Commission, I waited on the Registrar of the Friendly Societies, Mr. Oliver, the day following the last meeting of the Commission, and reported to him the evidence which was given before the Commission by two officers of the St. Peter's Burial Society, disclosing the fact of a distribution of the sum of £300 amongst a portion of the members of that Society in 1879, in contravention of their own by-laws and of the Friendly Societies Act. I learned from Mr. Oliver that they had not filed returns for the last five years, as required by the Act; and that if they had supplied the information it would have shown that this distribution had taken place, but having failed to supply the usual annual returns, the Registrar had no knowledge of the misappropriation of £300. The Registrar informed me he was powerless in a matter of this kind, he had no staff, and no power to proceed against the defaulters. I pointed out the 13th section of the Act, which I believed gave full powers to the Registrar to proceed against such persons as misappropriated the funds of the Society, as had been done in this case. He advised me to communicate with the Crown Law Officers, and I told him that I should instruct the Secretary to send a copy of the evidence taken to the Attorney-General, and call his attention to the 13th section of the Act, which in the opinion of the Commission was sufficient to clothe the Registrar with sufficient power to proceed in the matter of the officers of Societies who misapplied the funds, and asking him to cause the necessary steps to be taken to prosecute the offenders, as the evidence disclosed a most outrageous misappropriation of the funds."

The examination of Mr. Thos. Forsyth was resumed and concluded.

It was resolved, on motion of Mr. Greville, that the following be the instructions to the Actuaries:—

- I.—To examine the returns furnished to the Commission by the various Friendly Societies, and report as to the financial position disclosed thereby, and the probability or otherwise of such Societies carrying out their engagements to their members.
- II.—To prepare a set of tables showing the contributions necessary to secure the following benefits, viz.:—£25 on the death of a member, and £15 on the death of his wife; also, a separate table showing the contributions necessary to secure the payment of sick pay at the rate of 20s. per week for six months, 15s. per week for the second six months, 10s. per week for the third six months, and 5s. per week during the further duration of sickness—expense of management not to be taken into consideration.
- III.—To suggest principles of forms which should be incorporated in any amending legislation relative to Friendly Societies.

It was resolved that the Secretary should prepare an analysis of the Evidence.

It was resolved to adjourn, at rising, for a fortnight, and that application for a further extension of time for six weeks should be made.

Messrs. A. Kethel, W. E. Langley, and John Slade were sworn and examined.

J. Slade, Esq.,	W. E. Langley, Esq.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Correspondence was read from Messrs. E. L. Scott and S. Gelding, forwarding accounts for work done for £20 and £10 respectively; and from Dr. Belgrave, for £5 5s. for attendance as a witness.

In reference to Mr. Scott's account, the Secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Farnell, the late President, for information as to the arrangement made, and the other letters dealt with in the usual course.

Mr. Langley reported that it had come to his knowledge that a flagrant breach of the law had occurred in connection with the Independent Order of Oddfellows, by the illegal withdrawal from the Savings Bank of the whole of the Funeral Fund by the ex-Trustees; and requested that Mr. H. H. Green, of the Evening News office, might be examined in reference to the matter.

Mr. Slade also asked that certain witnesses should be examined in reference to an illegal investment of funds in a Joint Stock Company at Parramatta.

Resolved, that the witnesses referred to should be examined on Friday, 17th instant.

The Commission then proceeded to consider the Draft Report as presented by the Committee appointed at the last meeting.

The Commission adjourned at 4.45 p.m., until 2 p.m. on Monday, the 13th instant.

REPORT.

To His Excellency the Right Honorable Lord AUGUSTUS WILLIAM FREDERICK SPENCER LOFTUS, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, a Member of Her Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies, &c., &c., &c.

1. The Letters Patent under which we were appointed were dated 19th October and 1st November, 1881; but, owing to various causes, we were unable to begin our operations until Monday, 21st November, when the first meeting of the Commission was held. The taking of evidence was commenced immediately, and it continued, with two brief adjournments, over the Christmas and Easter Holidays, until 7th August, 1882. In the course of the proceedings it was found necessary to visit Newcastle, for the purpose of taking evidence in regard to the working of various Societies in that district; the peculiar circumstances of a large proportion of the population there, engaged as they are in what is regarded as a particularly hazardous occupation, viz., coal-mining, rendering the operations of the Societies more risky than in other portions of the Colony. We have held seventy-nine meetings for the examination of witnesses and consultation; have examined 132 witnesses, many of whom have had experience in connection with the working of the existing Act, and of the Friendly Societies registered under it, and have devoted special attention to the financial position and mode of management of these Societies. In accordance with the desire of the Executive, we submitted in June last a Progress Report, in which we endeavoured to show the leading points upon which we were seeking information. In the course of our investigation we have ascertained that there is great dissatisfaction felt with the existing law, as well as its administration. Early in the present year Mr. James Squire Farnell, M.P., who had been appointed as President of the Commission, resigned his position, and Mr. John Davies, C.M.G., M.P., was subsequently appointed in his stead. During the time we have been sitting, Messrs. Angus Cameron, M.P., and Archibald Hamilton Jacob, M.P., also resigned. Mr. W. E. Langley was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Cameron's resignation, but the other vacancy was not filled up. The Commission consequently now consists of the following gentlemen:—John Davies, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., President; John Gelding, Esq.; Edward Greville, Esq., J.P.; Philip J. Newland, Esq.; John Slade, Esq.; James F. Smith, Esq.; Hon. John Sutherland, M.L.C.; Francis Abigail, Esq., M.P.; Philip Risby Holdsworth, Esq.; Edward J. Rubie, Esq.; and William E. Langley, Esq.

2. While it is totally unnecessary for us in this Report to attempt a history of the Friendly Societies as existing at the present day, there can be no doubt that in all countries the origin of the Friendly Society was the Burial Club. Clubs of this description have been found to exist amongst the Ancients as well as the Moderns. The Greeks, Romans, and Teutons all had their fraternities established for the purpose of surrounding the disposal of a dead body with the ceremonies required by the social or religious laws of the day, and which might otherwise have been too costly for the family to provide. In Great Britain the first Act of Parliament dealing with such Societies was that of Sir George Rose, passed in 1793. The Societies formed under it were nearly all small Clubs, in which the feature of good-fellowship was in the ascendant, and that of provident assurance for sickness and death merely accessory. This Act did not, however, deal with the commercial aspect of the Societies, and by 1819 their instability was spoken of as universal; in that year the general conviction that this was so resulted in the passage of an Act which dealt exclusively with the scientific aspect of the Societies, and had nothing to do with the element of goodfellowship. As these Societies increased in number and influence, further legislative action was found necessary, and Acts were passed in 1829, 1834, 1846, 1850, and 1855. A Royal Commission, presided over by Sir Stafford Northcote, sat from 1870 to 1874, and prosecuted an exhaustive inquiry into the organization and condition of the various classes of Friendly Societies,

Objects of Societies.

Societies, the outcome of which was the present Act, passed in 1875. Under it "Societies are established to provide by voluntary subscriptions of the members thereof, with or without the aid of donation, for the relief or maintenance of the members, their wives, children, fathers, mothers, brothers or sisters, nephews or nieces, or wards being orphans, during sickness or other infirmity, whether bodily or mental, in old age or in widowhood, or for the relief or maintenance of the orphan children of members during minority, for insuring money to be paid on the birth of a member's child or on the death of a member, or for the funeral expenses of the husband, wife, or child of the member, or the widow of a deceased member, or, as respects persons of the Jewish persuasion, for the payment of a sum of money during the period of confined mourning; for the relief or maintenance of the members when on travel in search of employment, or when in distressed circumstances, or in case of shipwreck, or loss of or damage of or to boats or nets; for the endowment of members or nominees of members at any age; for the insurance against fire, to any amount not exceeding £15, of the tools or implements of the trade or calling of the members." The business of registry is under the control of a Chief Registrar, who has an Assistant-Registrar in each of the three (3) countries, with an Actuary. It is his duty, among other things, to require from every Society a return, in proper form, each year, of its receipts and expenditure, funds, and effects; a return once every five (5) years of the sickness and mortality it has experienced; and also, once every five (5) years, a valuation of its assets and liabilities. Upon the application of a certain proportion of the members, varying according to the magnitude of the Society, the Chief Registrar may appoint an Inspector to examine into its affairs, or may call a general meeting of the members to consider and determine any matter affecting its interests. These are powers which have been used with excellent effect. Cases have occurred in which fraud has been detected and punished by this means that could not probably have been otherwise brought to light; in others, a system of mismanagement has been exposed and effectually checked. The power of calling special meetings has enabled Societies to remedy defects in their rules, to remove officers guilty of misconduct, &c., where the procedure prescribed by the rules was for some reason or other inapplicable. Upon an application of a like proportion of members a Chief Registrar may, if he finds that the funds of a Society are insufficient to meet the existing claims thereon, or that the rates of contribution are insufficient to cover the benefits assured (upon which he consults his Actuary) order the Society to be dissolved and direct how its funds are to be applied. This Act has, we understand, given very general satisfaction, a great improvement having been manifested in the financial condition of the Societies since it was passed into law.

government in Great Britain.

Principle on which Societies should be based.

3. Friendly Societies are merely a form of insurance, and like all insurances have to depend upon the principle of substituting the certainty which attends the fortunes of large numbers of individuals for the uncertainty which belongs to the fortunes of each. Their main objects are the securing, in virtue of small periodical payments during health and vigour, of a weekly sum during sickness, a sum to cover the funeral expenses at death, sometimes to provide a pension in old age or in cases of infirmity, and to provide for medical attendance and medicines to the member himself, his wife and family. It is necessary, therefore, in presenting our Report, to consider the principles upon which these Societies ought to be established so as to give the most perfect security to the members that the benefits contracted for can be supplied. A well-constituted Friendly Society should be a permanent institution, like a Life Assurance Office; and in this Colony this characteristic attaches to all of them, although in England Societies limited in their operation to a year are not uncommon. The members should be led to look upon their connection with the Society as an enduring one, because its grand aim is expressly to make provision at one period of life for contingencies which may arise at another,—for youth, in short, to endow old age; and the sum paid by each member should be exactly proportioned to the liability entailed upon the Society by his joining it. It is also essential to the character of a proper Benefit Society that members should not be admitted indiscriminately, but that due regard should be had to the health and bodily constitution before admission. To take a member in bad health or with a broken-down constitution is to commit an act of injustice to those who are healthy, because he is more likely to become a burden upon the funds of the Society. In order to see that no advantage be taken of this provision, it is also customary to

to provide that no member shall be entitled to benefits until he has been a specified time good on the books of the Societies. We may get an idea of a Benefit Society in its simplest form if we imagine 100 men of thirty-five years of age to associate and make such a payment at the start as will be sure to afford each man who may fall sick during the ensuing year twenty shillings a week during the term of his sickness. Taking, for the sake of illustration, Mr. Neison's tables as a basis, we find that among such a body of men there will be nearly 100 weeks of illness in the course of a year, and thus there would be of course £100 required, or at the rate of twenty shillings each member, which would accordingly be each man's contribution. A Society of individuals of different ages, each paying the sum which would in like manner be found proper to his age, would be quite as sound in principle as one upon this simple scheme, and it is only a step further in the same direction to equalize each man's payments over the whole period during which he undertakes to be a paying member. It is also necessary to take into consideration the manner in which the funds of a Society may be improved by a judicious investment of the annual savings. What is necessary is that the amounts paid by the members shall be sufficient in all cases to provide that the whole of the benefits that are promised shall be paid in time of need. In this Colony many of the Societies are connected with larger organizations affiliated to similar Societies in other portions of the globe. The meetings are usually held fortnightly, and each member pays a sum fixed by the laws of the Society, the due payment of which secures to him the benefits, which are also set out in the rules, and which usually consist of sick pay and a funeral donation, the amounts of which vary in the different Societies, together with medical attendance and medicines for the member himself, his wife and family. There can be no doubt they have been and are of great importance to the State, relieve the Government of a considerable expenditure, and are doing much to prevent the increase of pauperism in our midst; and this fact alone would in our opinion justify the State in doing all in its power to support and aid them.

The Societies
in New South Wales.

4. In the year 1873 the laws relating to the Friendly Societies of New South Wales were consolidated, and now exist in Act 37 Vic. No. 4, which deals not only with these Societies, but also benefit building, loan and investment, and co-operative trading and industrial Societies. The regulation of the various Societies within the operation of the Act is distributed over three Parts; Part III relating to Friendly Societies properly so-called, and Parts IV and V to other classes of Societies which are dealt with by the Act. But as the scope of our inquiry was confined to the operation of the law in respect to Friendly Societies only, these two Parts have been dismissed from consideration, and the recommendations that may be made for alterations in the Act will be understood as referring solely to it as concerned with Friendly Societies. In Part II of the Act there are a number of provisions which are made applicable to every kind of Society dealt with therein, so that it has been necessary for us to carefully consider the effect and operation of these general clauses. Part VI contains the legal provisions applicable to all the Societies under the Act. The general provisions which refer to all Societies are, as already stated, found in Part II of the Act. The most important of these are contained in sections 7 and 8, which direct the procedure to be taken in certifying the rules of new Societies, and in altering or amending rules. Section 13 provides a summary mode of dealing with the misappropriation of the funds of Societies by officers or members thereof, and sections 14 and 15 were intended to provide a method for the settlement of disputes without recourse to law; but whether owing to the vagueness of the language of the sections or to errors of interpretation on the part of Magistrates and District Court Judges, these clauses have been found in practice to be almost inoperative. Part III, referring to Friendly Societies, defines the objects for which these Societies may be established, as follows:—

Local legislation.

Certain provisions in Act applicable to every kind of Society.

Legal provisions applicable to all Societies
under the Act.

Objects for which Societies may be established.

- "(1.) For insuring a sum of money to be paid on the death of a member or for the funeral expenses of the husband wife or child of a member.
- "(2.) For the relief maintenance or endowment of a member or the husband wife child or kindred of a member in infancy old age sickness widowhood or any natural state of which the probability may be calculated by way of average.
- "(3.) For insuring a sum to be paid on the death of a member to the person nominated in a writing to be deposited with the Secretary of the Society by such member being the husband wife father mother child brother sister nephew or niece of such member or in default of such nomination or in case of the death of such nominee to be paid to the executor or administrator or next of kin of such member.

- “(4.) For insuring or making good any loss or damage of live or dead stock goods implements of trade and tools sustained by any member by fire flood shipwreck or other contingency of which the probability may be calculated by way of average.
- “(5.) For the frugal investment of the savings of members for the better enabling them to purchase food firing clothes or other necessaries or to purchase or hire any implement material or article of use or necessity in their trade calling or business or to provide for the education of their children. Provided that the shares in any such Investment Society shall not be transferable and that the investments of each member shall accumulate or be employed for the sole benefit of such member investing or of the husband wife children or kindred of such member and of no other person and that the whole amount of the balance due to such member according to the rules of such Society be paid to him on withdrawal therefrom.
- “(6.) For the purpose of enabling any member or the husband wife or children or nominee of such member to immigrate to New South Wales and of enabling such immigrants to purchase the tools implements materials or other necessaries of their trade calling or business and of advancing loans to them for any such purpose and taking security for the repayment thereof.
- “(7.) For any other purpose of mutual benefit and advantage to the members only and not being within the purposes mentioned in Part IV or V of this Act which the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council shall authorize as a purpose to which the powers and facilities provided by this Act in relation to Friendly Societies ought to be extended.”

Dissolution of Societies. Provision is also made for the dissolution of Societies, and for the disposal of the assets according to the Registrar's award, as also for the amalgamation of Societies, appointment of Trustees, in whom the property of the Society is to be vested, and by or against whom actions on behalf of the Societies may be brought or defended.

Treasurer required to give bond. Section 37 provides that the Treasurer of each Society shall be required to give a bond for the faithful performance of his duties, while the two succeeding clauses require him to account for the moneys received and paid by him, and direct how the property of the Society may be recovered in case of the death or insolvency of the officer having charge of the same. Section 40 deals with the framing of rules prior to the establishment of Societies, and points out precisely what is compulsorily to be set forth in these rules. Under the 41st, 42nd, and 43rd clauses, the Trustees are empowered to deal in certain specified modes with the funds of the Societies.

Framing of rules of Societies.

Persons not to receive more than £200 at death. Section 44 provides that no person shall receive more than £200 at death, or £52 per annum as an annuity, no matter how many Societies he may be a member of. The next two sections of the Act deal with the returns from the Societies to be made to the Registrar, the 45th providing when and how they are to be made, and the 46th fixing the penalty to be imposed in case of default. In the remaining clauses in this Part of the Act provision is made for an increased payment to be made by Volunteers while serving out of the Colony, and for the protection of the interests of members in the benefits provided for in the Act from seizure or levy.

Insufficiency of present Act. 5. In the course of our inquiry we have been compelled to come to the conclusion that the present Act is neither sufficient for the purposes for which it appears to us the Legislature has a right to interpose, nor has the mode of its administration been such as to mitigate these deficiencies. It would no doubt be possible to make the existing laws upon the subject of Friendly Societies serve their purposes in a very much greater degree than has been the case, but we consider it necessary, if it is intended to place the Societies upon a thoroughly sound basis, for which the present time is eminently suitable, that there should be altogether new legislation upon the subject; and one of the foremost of our recommendations would be that for Friendly Societies only there should be a separate Act passed, in which the whole of the laws dealing with their constitution and management should be incorporated.

Mal-administration of the Act. 6. The mal-administration of the Act was brought under our notice by the Registrar of Friendly Societies himself, and his explanation was that it was owing to the failure of Parliament to provide the necessary clerical assistance to enable him to even make the annual report to Parliament that is provided for by the Act. In future portions of this Report we shall make such recommendations as we consider are necessary to improve the present legislation as well as the mode of its administration.

Future jurisdiction over Friendly Societies. 7. One most important question has come before us in reference to the question of the future jurisdiction over Friendly Societies. It is very evident that making the Registrar's duties a mere appendage to those of some other public officer is no longer sufficient to meet the requirements of the case. It has been strongly urged upon us that there should be a special Department of the Government Service established for dealing with all matters relating to the Friendly Societies of the Colony;

Colony; but it appears to us that it would be amply sufficient to make them a branch of some existing Department. The question then arises to which Department in the Service should they be attached. We believe that the wisest plan would be to make them an integral part of the Department of the Registrar-General, as a large portion of the work performed is of a statistical character, and by putting the Friendly Societies under his charge the whole of the statistical work of the Colony would be in one Department.

8. The duties and obligations of Friendly Societies require to be much more explicitly defined than they are at present. They should include in the amended Act the following particulars:—

- (1.) Having a registered office to which all communications and notices may be addressed.
- (2.) The appointment of Trustees, as hereinafter specified.
- (3.) Submitting its accounts to audit at least twice in every year.
- (4.) Sending annual returns of its receipts and expenditure, funds and effects, as audited, to the Registrar.
- (5.) Furnishing to the Registrar quinquennial returns of the sickness and mortality experienced during the period.
- (6.) Having a quinquennial valuation of its assets and liabilities made by the official Actuary.
- (7.) Allowing inspection of its accounts by any member interested in the funds, or by an Officer authorized by the Registrar.
- (8.) Supplying gratuitously copies of its annual reports to members and persons interested.
- (9.) Keeping a copy of the last annual balance-sheet at the registered office.

Returns from the Societies ought in all cases to be made according to forms prescribed by the Registrar; and abstracts of the quinquennial returns of sickness and mortality drawn up by him ought to be laid before Parliament.

9. In this Colony it is estimated that there are fully 35,000 members immediately connected with these Friendly Societies. We have examined witnesses who give the number of persons in connection with them as 37,704, but as some of these organizations are really Trade Protection Societies, and not Friendly Societies in the true sense of the term, and in many instances one man belongs to two or more Societies, we have struck off 2,704, and estimate the total number of individuals interested as members at 35,000. But in addition to these members there are the wives and families to be added to the number of those directly interested, and at the usual computation of five individuals to each family this would give a total of 175,000 persons whose welfare is bound up with the satisfactory condition of the Friendly Societies. The financial state of the various organizations is consequently of deep interest to an enormous section of the community. From the evidence submitted to us, it appears that the 37,704 members referred to have to their credit assets amounting to £178,861 8s. 3½d., being an average of £4 14s. 1½d. per head.

10. It will be seen that the objects for which these Societies may be established are every comprehensive, but it may be said that in practice they are confined almost entirely to providing an allowance during sickness and upon death, and to supplying medicines and medical attendance to the member himself, his wife and family. The average allowances are upon the following scale:—20s. a week during the first six months; 15s. a week during the next six months; 10s. a week during the third six months, and 5s. a week during the further continuance of the illness; a funeral donation of from £20 to £40 on the death of the member, and half the amount on the death of his wife. With the exception of the funeral donation the benefits are given by the individual Branches, they undertaking the sole responsibility of the risks; but the larger Societies seem to have a kind of re-insurance fund, to which the Branches pay a certain sum quarterly for the purpose of insuring the funeral money. The difficulty of dealing with these Societies, from a legislative point of view, is enhanced to some extent by the fact that they are not only commercial institutions, securing certain benefits for a certain definite payment, but are also social organizations of greater or less age, and with peculiar traditions attaching to some of them, requiring an expenditure upon regalia and ceremonial work that, from a utilitarian point of view, seems altogether unnecessary in purely commercial Societies.

Societies. We do not feel it to be within our province to interfere with this aspect of the Societies, although it appears to us that this element is losing any influence it may formerly have possessed, and that the direct advantage to be obtained is now the principal object of the members. This appears to us to be shown by the fact that a large number of the principal Societies discourage the meeting of their subordinate Branches in public-houses, which was at one time almost universal. From this one fact we draw the conclusion that the elements of social enjoyment and conviviality, which at the outset of the history of these Societies had no doubt much to do with the establishment of many of them, have now given place to a feeling that, to be successful, they must be carried out upon rigorously business principles.

butions.

11. Our attention has of course been primarily directed to the question of the sufficiency or otherwise of the weekly contributions paid by the members of the various Societies in order to secure the benefits promised by their general rules. A great difference of opinion upon the subject has been found to exist amongst the various witnesses examined, the divergence of their views arising no doubt from the different opinions held as to the purport of the question. Many of the witnesses seemed to have the idea that, so long as the receipts for each year—whether from contributions or interest upon the investments—were sufficient to balance the expenditure, there was no necessity for an alteration in the weekly payments. The evidence, however, of witnesses whose experience in connection with Friendly Societies is of long standing, as well of those who have given an intimate study to actuarial science, has shown us that the existing scale is utterly inadequate to afford the necessary security that in the time of need the benefits promised would be forthcoming. We accordingly recommend that the Government should have the necessary tables constructed to place the Societies in a position to give the benefits promised, on the following basis: (a) To give a funeral donation of £20 on the death of a member, and half that amount on the death of a member's wife. (b) To give a sick allowance of 20s. per week for six months; 15s. a week for a further six months; 10s. a week for a further six months, and 5s. a week during the further duration of the illness; due provision being made in the general rules for the payment of the medical officer and chemist, and a suitable allowance being made for payment of the expenses of management.

payments.

12. While there can be no question that the principle of having a uniform contribution payable by every member of a Society, without respect to his age at entry, has simplicity of operation, there can also be no doubt that, considering the increased liability to both sickness and death incurred by persons at an advanced age, it is, at the best, a rough and ready mode of procedure, unjust not only to the younger members but to the Societies themselves. This appears to have been recognized by the members of the Societies who have adopted a graduated scale of entrance or initiation fees, varying as a rule from 2s. 6d. for members under twenty years of age to about £4 for those at forty. But a very slight consideration of the question will show that this is a most unscientific method of meeting the difficulty, inasmuch as the sole value to the Society of these apparently large increases amounts to the difference of the annual interest derivable from the different amounts, which is of course almost infinitesimal. Some of the witnesses examined before us have expressed their objection to a graduated scale of contributions, on the ground that the complexity of the system would be such as to render it exceedingly difficult in many of the country Branches to secure Secretaries competent to keep the books; although admitting at the same time that such a system would be the most fair. This difficulty appears to us to have been much overrated, and we believe that were the system once brought into operation it would be as easily worked as the present system. Another objection has been made to any proposed alteration, on the ground that a system of graduated contributions that did not take into account the amounts of sick pay received by the individual members would be unjust; but it appears to us that the doctrine of averages must compensate for any apparent individual injustice that may arise. Altogether the evidence in favour of the adoption of this principle in connection with the various Friendly Societies seems to be so overwhelming that, notwithstanding the temporary absence of absolutely trustworthy data for the preparation of tables which may be relied upon in every exigency, we have no hesitation in recommending its adoption. The actuarial evidence before us is amply sufficient to assure us that the tables of Mr. Ratcliffe may be relied upon without

graduated scale of con-

without very much danger of any injustice being committed, although they would of course require some modification to adapt them to the circumstances of this Colony. We further recommend that one quarter's contribution fees, according to the graduated scale as fixed in the Societies' rules, be paid by the candidate on the night of admission into the Society, to take the place of an initiation fee, the amount of the said contribution to be credited to the members, but his ordinary contributions to be paid weekly or fortnightly as the case may be, so that each member will be paying his contributions for three (3) months in advance. We consider that this provision will prevent a large number of the suspensions for non-payment of dues, and the consequent expulsions from the Societies, that now occur.

13. We direct attention to a Report of a Committee appointed by the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association to investigate and report on the medical working of Friendly Societies, to be found on page 265 of the Minutes of Evidence. Section I recommends the adoption of a form of examination paper similar to those used for purposes of Life Assurance, in order to ensure a thorough report on each case; and that a reasonable fee be paid for each examination. In reference to the first of these recommendations, we applied to the Secretary of the local Branch of the Association for a form of examination, which was supplied, and will be found on page 21 of the Appendix. This form seems to us to answer the purpose, although some slight amendments might possibly be made. Section II of the Report, recommending that the medical benefits of the Societies should be confined to certain classes of the population, we cannot endorse, believing that the contracts made with the medical men should not depend upon the position in life of the recipients of the benefits contracted for; in addition to which we find that there are a large number of members who have joined these Societies in early life, and whose position from a financial point of view has improved as they have grown older, and who consequently refrain from availing themselves of any of the other benefits promised by their Societies. In Section III, the Committee propose that a uniform payment of not less than one pound (£1) per annum, should be paid to the Medical Officer of every Lodge; in other words, that the amount paid should be fixed by enactment at that sum. In reference to this proposal, we have simply to point out that this matter is entirely in the hands of the medical men themselves—the remuneration for their services must be regulated by the law of supply and demand. If such a provision were made in the Act, nothing would be more easy than to override it, as medical men who are willing to take a less amount would have no difficulty in placing their proposal before any Lodge in such a form as to totally ignore the spirit of this provision. While yet sticking close to the letter, it would be competent, for instance, for a doctor to state, as an inducement to the acceptance of his services to the Lodge, that on payment of his fees within one, two, or three months of their due date he would allow a discount of 40, 30, or 20 per cent. We have already dealt with the subjects contained in sections IV and V of the Committee's Report, and hence it is unnecessary to say anything in respect to them here. In section VI the Committee express their opinion that the Medical Officer and Chemist's Fund should be kept entirely distinct from the Benefit Funds, and this proposition we cordially endorse, although not for the reason given by the Committee. Under the proposed graduated scale of contribution, the amount set down as payable by individuals, at the different ages in the tables to be prepared, will refer solely to the sick and funeral benefits, and to these amounts it will be necessary to add sufficient to pay for the medical benefits as well as the expenses of management; and in order that it may be ascertained that the contributions are sufficient to meet all the liabilities, it is not only desirable that these funds should be kept separately, but also that they should be administered separately; and it is for this reason that we endorse this recommendation. With reference to the proposal in the second paragraph of the section, for the establishment of a Friendly Societies' Bank, we have simply to say that the arguments used by those supporting it have not convinced us of its necessity; and we must, therefore, decline to urge it upon the Government. The last section of the Committee's report deals with the constitution of the Commission itself, and is a matter with which we have nothing to do.

provisions of the present law, the consequent result of which has been in many cases not only the misapplication of the funds without any fraudulent intent, but also gross defalcations on the part of officers, in some cases of large amounts. As examples, we would refer to the evidence given in reference to the St. Peter's Burial Society, on pages 202 to 207, where it is shown that a portion of the funds of the Society was illegally divided amongst a portion of the members; to the evidence in reference to the deprivation of the widow of one John Cox of her just claim on Court Friendship, Order of Royal Foresters (page 290 of the Minutes of Evidence); to the frauds in connection with the Australian Holy Catholic Guild, the Auditors' report in connection therewith being found on pages 138 and 139; and to the evidence given in reference to the defalcations in connection with the No. 25 Branch of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society by a Secretary, which defalcations amounted to at least £150, and to the fact, as disclosed in the evidence of the solicitor, Mr. H. C. Colyer, on pages 375 to 377, that it was found impossible to criminally prosecute the defaulter. The cases brought under our notice have convinced us that the system of audit at present adopted in the majority of the Societies is quite inadequate as a security against fraud; and although we would deprecate any undue interference with the internal working of Societies, we are convinced that a radical alteration in that system is demanded, and should be enforced by legislation. It appears to us that, in order to meet the difficulty, it should be enacted that the Registrar should be empowered to order an official investigation of the accounts of any Society or Branch, upon the request of not less than one-fifth of the members present at a summoned meeting, or at any time when circumstances appear to him to require it. Should the examination of the annual returns by the Registrar disclose any important discrepancies that would call for explanation, he should be empowered to order an investigation in such cases.

book-keeping.

15. For the simplification of this matter it is eminently desirable that a uniform system of book-keeping should be enforced in all Societies, and, in order to make this system readily intelligible to any person who may be placed in office, it is requisite that it should be as simple and free from the technicalities used by professional accountants as possible. The books used should be as few in number as is consistent with the possibility of obtaining at a glance all the information required to show the state of the account of each member and the position of the funds of the Society.

adoption of
system.

The advantages of the adoption of a uniform system are so obvious that it is almost unnecessary for us to refer to them, and we would simply point out (a) that any member who had once filled any position in a Society would at once be enabled to take the same position in any other Branch and understand the exact position of the books, without, as is too often the case now, requiring a number of interviews with his predecessor in office for the explanation of the accounts: (b) that the danger of fraudulent misappropriation of the funds would be reduced to a minimum, as no opportunity would be given to persons skilled in accounts for the manipulation of the books: (c) that the time occupied in auditing the accounts would be materially lessened, and the Auditors would be enabled to vouch for their accuracy with much more satisfaction than at present: (d) that the preparation of the returns to the supreme bodies from which the annual returns for the Registrar are to be compiled would be greatly simplified, and the liability to error therein reduced to the lowest point.

disputes.

16. Under the present law the question of the settlement of disputes is in a very unsatisfactory condition, the clauses in the existing Act dealing with the question being, as already stated, almost inoperative. The sections referring to the question are Nos. 14 and 15, and appear to enact that the rules of Societies may direct the manner in which disputes may be settled, and that the "decision so made shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal," but in certain specified cases, as well as when the rules do not prescribe the mode of settlement, the District Courts shall be empowered to act. But instead of this course having been adopted, it has been found in practice that the disputes have been brought before the District Courts even where the rules of the Society have prescribed a different mode of settlement, and that the District Courts have heard and determined the matters in dispute. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed at this action, on account of the expenses incurred—the costs having been defrayed out of the funds of the Societies. In our judgment, and in view of the evidence brought before us, it is unwise to allow any appeal to the ordinary Law Courts of the Colony—except in criminal matters ; but it is also necessary to provide that, after all the resources for the settlement of these disputes within the Society have been exhausted, there should be some final tribunal appointed, to whom power should be given to pronounce a final decision, and one from which there should be no appeal. In order that this should give satisfaction, it is necessary that this Court of Final Appeal should have the confidence of the members of the Societies, and it seems to us that no better means of securing this confidence can be adopted than by allowing the members themselves to elect the Court. With this end in view, we would recommend that a Court for the final settlement of all disputes should be appointed, to consist of the Registrar as President, and five members to be elected by the various members of the different Societies triennially, and that it should be provided that but one member of any one Society should be eligible for a seat in this Court. The conducting of the election would of course be a matter of detail to be settled by the Department.
in

Court of Final Appeal.

Appointment of Court for final settlement of all disputes.

17. It has been ascertained that a considerable number of the disputes that have arisen in connection with the Friendly Societies of this Colony have been caused by the non-payment by the members of their subscriptions when due. These have been allowed to fall into arrears, and in many cases many months and even years have been allowed to elapse before the defaulting members have been called upon to pay the amounts. In the majority of the Societies provision is made in the rules that, at the expiration of about thirteen weeks from the time of the payment of the last subscription, the member shall become "unfinancial," and nominally not entitled to the benefits of the Society, although it has been represented to us that the Courts have held the Societies liable for the funeral donation, less the amount of subscription in arrear until the member has actually been struck off the books ; while at the end of about twelve months the defaulting member's name may be erased from the list of subscribers. Action has been taken in the Courts to recover these arrears of contributions, and in one case subscriptions extending over a period of something like three years were sued for and recovered. While we recognize the fact that the liability of the member to the Society should be co-existent with that of the Society to him, we cannot fail to see that, if the principle of recognizing the right of a Society to sue for contributions extending over any great length of time is continued, grave injustice may be committed upon those who may have been misled by the provision in the rules of the Societies authorizing the striking off of their names from the roll of members when twelve months in arrears. At the same time, we have ascertained that the Societies are responsible to the medical men for the fees for the members good on the books at the commencement of each quarter, and to their superior bodies for the levies for these same members, and hence it would be unjust to the Societies to refuse to give them a right to recover the contributions for a period of six months. We accordingly recommend that the right to sue for arrears of contributions be retained, but that the period for which they may be recovered be limited to six months, and that provision be made that action shall be taken before the expiration of twelve months from the date of the last payment.

Disputes arising through non-payment of subscriptions.

Suing for arrears.

18. We have already pointed out that in our opinion the present contributions paid are insufficient for the purpose of providing the promised benefits. That some of the Societies have had a suspicion if not a positive knowledge upon this point seems to be proved by the fact that they have made provision for an increase in the contributions by means of what is known as the levy system. Under this it is competent for a Society after due notice being given to impose and enforce upon all the members a levy of a certain amount per head ; a default in the payment of which subjects the member to the same penalty as a default in the payment of the ordinary contributions. While this system has an advantage in providing a safety-valve for Societies in the event of any considerable run upon their funds, it is at the same time liable to great abuse, and has the further disadvantage that a member upon joining a Society in which it is adopted does not know definitely what amounts he may be called upon to pay ; for, although the nominal subscriptions may be fixed in the rules, there may also be a levy made quarterly, which would have the effect of very considerably increasing the payments. With a proper system of contributions no such difficulty would be likely to occur as to call for the imposition of a levy. It appears to us that the Societies should be permitted some greater latitude in the investment of their funds than is given under the 42nd clause of the existing Act.

Levy system.

Investment of funds.

Practice of malingering.

19. From the evidence submitted to us, it is clear that there have been a number of instances in which malingering has been carried on by members of Societies for the purpose of securing the benefits payable under the rules. A provision in the existing Act limits the amount of sick-pay that may be received to £52 per annum, without reference to the number of Societies to which a member belongs. It was no doubt the intention of the framers of the Act to limit the amount receivable by the beneficaire to 20s. a week, but this has not been done; and under the law as at present existing it is quite possible for a man earning (say) £2 a week to join three or more Societies, and to receive 20s. a week from each, provided that he takes care not to remain upon the funds longer in any one year than is sufficient to bring the total amount received up to £52. Though the fact cannot be denied that in the present circumstances of the Colony the sum of £1 a week is insufficient to provide those medical comforts which do not come under the heading of medicines, but which are oftentimes quite as essential as the medicines, still we consider that the amount derivable from these Societies should be so limited as not to make it an object with the members to go upon the funds. We do not desire, however, to interfere with the freedom of persons by prohibiting them from joining as many Societies as they see fit, but we would recommend the limitation of the amount receivable as sick pay to the sum of £2 2s. a week, and as funeral donation to £50. This amount of sick-pay would be amply sufficient to provide for the extra expenses incurred through the illness of the head of a household, and yet is not so much as to make it an inducement to members to sham sickness.

Limitation of amount receivable as sick pay.

Branches.

20. One great objection has been made to the present Act in reference to the definition in the interpretation clause of the word "Society." This definition reads as follows,—“Society shall mean and include every Branch of a Society by whatever name the same may be designated.” This has been understood to mean that in the eye of the law every local Lodge, Court, or Division occupies the position of a distinct organization, and it has been held by the Registrar that it is necessary for each of these Branch Societies to be separately registered, and to furnish separate annual returns as required by the Act. With respect to Societies which are merely Branches of one great organized body, such as the Independent Order of Oddfellows Manchester Unity, the Ancient Order of Foresters, or the Sons of Temperance, such a regulation is not only vexatious to the Societies themselves, but entails a large amount of unnecessary labour upon the Registrar in dissecting the various returns so as to obtain the necessary statistical information from them. This information could be obtained in a much more complete and satisfactory form through the various District Lodges or Grand Lodges; and we would recommend that these superior bodies should alone be recognized by the Department, that is of course where such superior bodies exist. In order to give effect to this recommendation, it will be necessary to provide a legal definition of a Branch of a Society. This subject engaged the attention of the members of the Royal Commission appointed in 1875, in the Colony of Victoria, for the purpose of inquiring into the working of the Friendly Societies Statute, and from their report we learn that this definition was “given for the first time in the 4th section of the English Act of 1875, in the following words—‘a Branch means any number of the members of a Society under the control of a central body, having a separate fund administered by themselves, or by a committee or officers appointed by themselves,’” and in the Victorian Act, 41 Vic. No. DXC, passed in consequence of this report, this definition, with the simple substitution of the word “special” for “separate,” is incorporated. This definition appears complete; and as it would meet the case of the various Orders, we recommend its adoption in the proposed new Act. Should this be adopted, we would then recommend that the registration of the supreme body of any organization should be taken to include the registration of each and every Branch of such organization, which shall be duly returned to the Registrar by the Secretary, under the seal of such supreme body. In connection with this recommendation, it will be necessary to provide by enactment that the general laws of such supreme body shall declare the minimum contributions to be paid by the members of each Branch, such minimum contributions not being less than the amounts necessary to provide the promised benefits, and that the Secretary of each supreme body shall within one month of the institution of any new Branch, or such other time as may be deemed necessary, be required under a penalty to make a return to the Registrar

Necessity of providing a legal definition of Branch of a Society. Royal Commission appointed in 1875.

Registration of the supreme body.

Registrar of such new Branch. If this recommendation be adopted, the result will be that the Branches will be considered as merely integral parts of the organization, and it will have the effect of rendering the whole Society, as distinct from its parts or Branches, responsible for the liabilities of each Branch, and the funds, although kept under the control of the Branch, will therefore be simply a portion of the general fund of the organization. It will thus be incompetent for Branches to dissolve with large funds in hand, as has been the case in the past, as, in the event of dissolution, the assets nominally belonging to the Branch would become the property of the general body of members as represented in the parent Society.

21. The question of the desirableness of having periodical valuations of the assets and liabilities of the different Societies has been brought under our notice by several witnesses; those versed in actuarial science deeming it absolutely necessary that they should be made at regular intervals of about five years: and there can be no doubt that it would add very materially to the security of the members if these valuations could be made by competent persons, but the cost appears to be an insuperable objection. We do not hesitate to say that it would be impossible, without Government assistance, for any Society in New South Wales to defray the expense that would be incurred. On this subject the Victorian Commission say they think that, considering the importance of the matter to the members of the Societies, the Government might undertake to provide for periodical valuations at intervals of five years, upon sufficient data being in each case furnished to the Registrar and on payment of a small fee, and on these conditions the furnishing of the requisite data should be made compulsory on the Societies; and this recommendation we would endorse, believing the importance of the subject would fully warrant the slight expenditure necessary.

Periodical valuations of assets and liabilities of Societies.

22. In reference to this latter subject, it would be necessary to have in connection with the Department dealing with Friendly Societies some actuarial assistance, in order that the calculations as to the contingent liabilities of the Societies, which of course increase according to the advancing ages of the benefit members, may be duly estimated; and the question comes before us, whether there should be an actuary appointed in addition to the Registrar, or whether the Registrar himself should be an actuary. We consider that it will be desirable that power should be taken in the Act to have these offices separate, although for the present it would probably be sufficient to have an actuary as Registrar. The duties attached to the office require that the scales of contribution should be carefully investigated, so that not only the sick and funeral benefits promised may be amply provided for, but also that proper allowances are made for the medical benefits and for the expenses of management; and this can only be done by a person who has some knowledge of actuarial science.

Actuarial assistance.

Registrar to be an actuary.

23. Under the existing Act no provision is made for the remuneration of the Registrar for the labour entailed upon him, except that he is entitled to retain the fees charged upon the registration of rules which, according to the evidence of Mr. Oliver himself, have been considerably under £500 for the whole period of eight (8) years during which he has held the office. We consider this system of payment by fees to be most injudicious, and recommend its abolition, believing that if registration fees are charged at all, the money so derived should be paid into the Consolidated Revenue of the Colony, and that provision should be made in the Estimates for the remuneration of all the officials necessary for the administration of the Act.

Fees not to be retained by Registrar.

24. On the part of some of the Societies there is a feeling that the medicines proscribed by the medical officers are not properly dispensed, and in some cases the doctors themselves seem to be of the same opinion. They all object to the system of payment to the chemist adopted by the Societies, considering that it offers a temptation to fraud—a fraud that is not easily to be detected, owing to the ignorance of the patients upon the subject—but do not agree in their proposals for meeting the difficulty. Some recommend the establishment of general dispensaries in centres of population, by the united action of all the Societies in the neighbourhood; while others consider that an alteration in the system of payment would effectually meet the case,—that if, instead of so much per head, the principle of paying ordinary rates with a discount of one-fourth or one-third were adopted, more satisfaction would be the result, while the expense would be as light as at the present time. This of course is a matter that cannot be dealt with by legislation, but it appears to us that a recommendation from the Commission might lead the Societies themselves to carefully consider the question, so as to put it upon a more satisfactory basis. We have no hesitation in giving it as our opinion that in populous centres where there are a large number of Friendly Societies in the immediate vicinity, the dispensary system is the best, as there could be no object on the part of salaried dispensers to give any but the drugs absolutely prescribed, and we would recommend that this course should be adopted; while in smaller places the system of payment according to the necessities of each case should be adopted, as there is no difficulty in obtaining the discounts referred to, and those Societies that have adopted the plan seem to be satisfied with it.

Dispensary system the best.

Medical examination of wives.

25. The Societies as a rule give a funeral donation, not only upon the death of members themselves, but also upon the death of the wives of members, and hence the insurance is materially affected by the health of the wife. Usually, however, there is no medical examination into the state of health of the wives of candidates for membership, although a statement is required from the husband upon the question. In order, however, that the greatest security to members should be given, we consider it essential that a medical report as to the state of the wife's health should be required in every case before she is registered to the Funeral Fund, although we would not make it a requisite to membership.

Building halls.

26. Great care should undoubtedly be exercised by Societies in the expenditure of their funds for the purpose of building halls and meeting places. In some cases, almost the whole of the assets of Societies have been locked up in this way, and it might be impossible for them to meet any demand upon their funds that exceeded the average, without a considerable delay taking place; in addition to which, some of the investments in this way make no return whatever—or a very small one—upon the capital invested. While we should deem it very inadvisable to entirely prohibit this mode of investment of funds, we think it highly essential that the proportion of capital allowed to be thus tied up should be limited to, say, 50 per cent. of the total funds of the Societies, in order to prevent any embarrassment in the event of a suddenly increased demand upon the funds, such as might be caused by the outbreak of an epidemic, and we recommend that such a limiting provision be inserted in the proposed new Act, while the balance should always be kept in such a manner as to be available for the sick and funeral benefits.

Trustees.

27. The importance to the various Societies of the office of Trustee would be impossible to over-estimate, as in them the whole of the property is vested, and they have to represent the Societies in all actions at law; and it is, therefore, highly essential that precise legal definition should be given of the manner of electing and removing Trustees, the powers and responsibilities attached to their office, the limits to their power to invest the accumulated funds, and their relations to the State through the Societies they represent—

Appointment of Trustees.

(a) Appointment of Trustees:—The rules in the existing Act, providing for the appointment of Trustees, are contained in Clause 28; and provide, merely, that at some meeting of the members of the Society, and by a resolution of the majority of the members then present, there shall be nominated and appointed one or more person or persons to be Trustee or Trustees for the said Society, and that due notice of their appointment shall be sent to the Registrar, to be by him deposited with the rules of the said Society in his custody. It is also provided that if no Trustee has been properly appointed, the Treasurer shall be taken to be a Trustee within the meaning of the Act. We are of opinion that the provision of the law upon this point should be much more stringent than at present, and would recommend that a clause should be inserted in the proposed new Act, making it compulsory upon the officers of each Society or Branch to call a specially summoned meeting of the members whenever it becomes necessary to elect Trustees, the business of such meeting to be specially noted in the summons, and an absolute majority of all members then present to be a requisite for election.

Removal of Trustees.

(b) Removal of Trustees:—In reference to this subject, we would recommend that the removal of any Trustee from office should take place in the same manner as that provided for his election, i.e., that a specially summoned meeting should be convened, the business to be transacted transacted to be duly noted on the summons, and an absolute majority of the votes of the members present to be necessary to carry the proposal for removal; that such removal from office shall be deemed to have taken place upon due notice of the passage of such a resolution as referred to above being forwarded to the Registrar; and that in the event of the Trustee so deposed refusing to deliver up the moneys, securities, or other property held by him on behalf of the Society, application may be made by any officer authorized in writing signed by the President and Secretary, and under the seal of such Society, to the nearest Court of Petty Sessions; and on the making of a declaration to that effect, together with a record under seal of the removal of such Trustee, the Court may make an order upon him for the delivery of the moneys, securities, or other properties of the Society held by him to the authorized officers of the Society, as well as for the transfer to them of all property belonging to the Society, deposited or invested in his name.

- (c) Number of Trustees.—We recommend that the number of Trustees for each Society shall be three (3), in order that the utmost security for the safety of the funds and other property deposited with them may be afforded to the members of the Society. Number of Trustees.
- (d) Notice of Appointment of Trustees.—Due notice of the appointment of Trustees should in every case be forwarded to the Registrar; and in the case of Branches, such notice should be certified by the Secretary or other authorized officer of the parent Society. The Registrar should then furnish a certificate of the registration of these Trustees on a form to be prescribed in the proposed new Act, which certificate should be held and taken as a legal proof of the appointment of such Trustees. Notice of appointment of Trustees.
- (e) Tenure of Office.—We recommend that in all cases Trustees should be elected as such during the pleasure of the Society or Branch. Tenure of office.
- (f) Joint action of Trustees.—All deeds of release or other instruments affecting the funds or security of any Society should in every case be signed by all three (3) of the Trustees. Joint action of Trustees.
- (g) Borrowing by Trustees.—It should be expressly made illegal for a Trustee to borrow money from a Society or Branch with which he is connected. Borrowing by Trustees.

We make these recommendations believing that they would place the relationship between the Societies and the Trustees upon a much more satisfactory footing than that upon which it stands at the present time.

28. It appears that in one case at least a Society has been made to suffer in consequence of the sick-pay being demanded by the Master in Lunacy on behalf of a member in the Asylum. It will be seen from the evidence given by Mr. H. Austen, that during five (5) years £160 had been paid on account of this member, and that the Society only stopped payment after the youngest child became of age to work for her own living; but the Master in Lunacy came upon the Society for the back money, and the payment of this necessitated the sale of the hall belonging to the Society. While we acknowledge the general justice of including lunacy in the term sickness, still we consider that after the lapse of two (2) years it would be only fair if the Society were relieved from further payments, and we would recommend that in such cases no demand for the payment of sick-pay should be maintainable against a Society; although, of course, the Societies have the matter in their own hands, as by the rules they might except lunacy from their liabilities. Lunacy.

29. Provision should be made in the proposed new Act that in case of the insolvency or death of any member of a Society holding any money or property of the Society in his possession, there should be a preferential claim upon the estate of the insolvent or deceased officer for the amount due. Insolvency or death of member.

30. We have already recommended the various Branches should be so brought under the control of the parent Society that no single Branch will be able to dissolve without its consent. If this consent be given, care should in every instance be taken to see that the rights of the members of the Branch so dissolved are not interfered with, but that the benefits are still continued to them through the Society itself or one of the other Branches. With respect to the dissolution of a Society as distinct from a Branch, we would recommend that it should be competent for a certain proportion (say one-fourth of the members) to apply to the Registrar for the dissolution Dissolution of Societies.

of any Society, the Registrar to refer the matter to the Board of Arbitration for investigation and decision. In the event of the Society not being dissolved, the costs of such investigation shall be borne by the applicants; but, should the dissolution take place, the costs of the investigation shall be paid out of the Society's funds.

Willing away funeral donations to others than widow or representative.

31. We would call attention to the provision in the existing Act, permitting Members of a Society to will away the funeral donation intended, in event of death, to defray the expenses of the burial. We are of opinion that such a provision will not advance the interests of the Societies, inasmuch as it appears to us to be unfair to the widow of the deceased member. The intention of providing such a benefit was for the purpose of enabling the family or representatives of the deceased to afford him a burial with all the ceremonies required by the usages of society or the dictates of his religious profession; and we would recommend that in every case the law should provide that this money should at any rate be available for this purpose, by enacting that it should be handed over to the wife (if she at the time of the member's death be in full legal claim upon him) or next of kin of the deceased.

Bonds of officers to be from a Guarantee Society.

32. We would recommend that in all cases the bonds or other securities given by officers for the faithful discharge of their duties should be the security of a Guarantee Society, as we believe that, in cases of defalcations, the system of taking a bond from two or more members of a Society tends to prevent the rigorous enforcement of the law.

Registration to be compulsory.

33. A clause should be inserted in the proposed new Act enforcing the registration of all Societies established for the same purposes as are the existing Friendly Societies, with the penalty for non-registration that the Trustees or other officers of the Society shall render themselves personally liable to the full amount of the benefits promised by its rules.

Actuaries' report.

34. The returns which, at an early stage of our labours, were sent out to the various Societies, were submitted by us to Messrs. M. A. Black and Richard Teece, actuaries of this city, for report. We submit herewith their report, but do not feel that we are called upon to make any further comment upon it.

Summary of recommendations.

35. In conclusion, we sum up our recommendations as follows:—

- (1.) The passage of a separate Act of Parliament dealing solely with Friendly Societies. (Sec. 5.)
- (2.) To attach the Friendly Societies to the Department of the Registrar-General. (Sec. 7.)
- (3.) To explicitly define the duties and obligations of Friendly Societies. (Sec. 8.)
- (4.) The Government to construct tables of rates sufficient to put Societies in a position to give the benefits promised. (Sec. 11.)
- (5.) The adoption of the principle of graduated contributions according to age; one quarter's fees to be paid in advance. (Sec. 12.)
- (6.) The adoption of a form of examination paper for the medical officer. (Sec. 13.)
- (7.) The separation of the different funds in a Society. (Sec. 13.)
- (8.) Authority to be given to the Registrar to order an official investigation of the accounts. (Sec. 14.)
- (9.) The adoption by all Societies of a uniform system of book-keeping. (Sec. 15.)
- (10.) No appeal to law to be allowed except in criminal matters. (Sec. 16.)
- (11.) The appointment of an elective Court of Final Appeal for the settlement of all disputes in Societies. (Sec. 16.)
- (12.) The limitation of the periods for and during which Societies may sue their members for arrears of contributions. (Sec. 17.)
- (13.) The discontinuance, as far as possible, of the levy system. (Sec. 18.)
- (14.) Greater latitude to Societies in the investment of their funds. (Sec. 18.)
- (15.) The limitation of the amounts receivable as sick-pay and funeral donation to £2 2s. per week and £50 respectively. (Sec. 19.)
- (16.) The recognition of supreme bodies of an organization, and their registration to be held to include the registration of their branches. (Sec. 20.)
- (17.) The provision by enactment that the general laws of each Supreme body shall declare the minimum contributions to be paid by the members. (Sec. 20.) (18.)

- (18.) The compulsory furnishing of the requisite data for periodical valuations of the assets and liabilities of the Societies, the Government undertaking to make the valuations on payment of a small fee. (Sec. 21.)
- (19.) The Registrar in the first instance to be an Actuary, but power to be taken in the proposed new Act for the separation of the two offices. (Sec. 22.)
- (20.) The abolition of the system of remunerating the Registrar by fees, such fees to be paid into the Consolidated Revenue. (Sec. 23.)
- (21.) The establishment, by united action in populous centres, of dispensaries for the supply of medicines. (Sec. 24.)
- (22.) A medical report as to the state of health of members' wives to be obtained prior to their registration to the Funeral Fund. (Sec. 25.)
- (23.) A limitation of the amount of capital of Societies which may be invested in halls and meeting-places. (Sec. 26.)
- (24.) More explicit provision to be made for the appointment and removal of Trustees, and their powers, &c., to be more clearly defined. (Sec. 27.)
- (25.) The Trustees to be prohibited from borrowing money from the Societies they represent. (Sec. 27, sub-section g.)
- (26.) The limitation of the time for which sick-pay may be demanded in cases of lunacy.
- (27.) The Society to have a preferential claim upon the estate of an insolvent or deceased member holding any of its money or property in his possession. (Sec. 29.)
- (28.) That express provision should be made for the dissolution of Societies after due investigation by the Board of Arbitration. (Sec. 30.)
- (29.) Members of Societies to be prohibited from willing the funeral donations away from the wife or next of kin. (Sec. 31.)
- (30.) The bond for faithful discharge of duties of officers to be in every case the security of a Guarantee Society. (Sec. 32.)
- (31.) That all Friendly Societies and Societies established for the same purposes should be compelled to register themselves under the new Act. (Sec. 33.)

All of which we humbly submit for your Excellency's consideration,—

ACTUARIAL REPORT.

To the President and Members of the Friendly Societies Commission.

Gentlemen,

We have the pleasure herewith to furnish you with the report asked for in your letter of 10th August, 1882. Your letter contained three specific requests with which we have endeavoured to comply as accurately as the circumstances of the case would permit. These were—

- (1) To examine the returns received by the Commission from the various Friendly Societies and to ascertain therefrom their financial position.
- (2) To prepare a set of tables showing the contributions necessary to provide certain benefits.
- (3) To make such suggestions as we think desirable for incorporation in any new Act affecting Friendly Societies.

THE RETURNS COLLECTED BY THE COMMISSION.

The first portion of these was placed in our hands on the 18th August, and the balance on 24th idem. It soon became evident that the completion of our task would be considerably delayed, if we personally undertook the work of analysing and classifying these voluminous returns. We accordingly sought and received your authority (vide your letter of 28th August, 1882) to employ clerical assistance in the matter. We at once engaged two clerks who had had experience in the manipulation of statistics, and to them, under our supervision, was entrusted the task of compiling the summaries appended hereto. While this work was in progress, we occupied ourselves with the collection of data for valuation, and the valuation of the liabilities of the various bodies referred to hereafter. Before proceeding to discuss the information disclosed by the summaries just alluded to, we think it necessary to draw attention to the Schedules issued by the Commission to the officers of the various Societies. Specimens of these are shown in the Appendices hereto, marked A, B, and C, the two former being applicable to Lodges* and the latter to Districts. These Schedules are defective, in that they do not contain provision for exhibiting the total income and outgo of the Societies. For example, all the affiliated bodies pay levies to the District to which they belong, in return for the liability for funeral donations undertaken by the District; but while the Schedule A contains a column for entry of amounts of such funeral donations, it nowhere provides for an exhibit of the amount of the levies paid by the Lodges to the District; nor is provision made for these amounts in the Schedule C issued to the Districts. This omission entirely destroys the value of the returns. Again, we think the issue of these Schedules without minute and detailed explanation of the manner in which they were required to be filled up was calculated to cause confusion in the minds of the officers of the Societies, very many, if not a large majority, of whom are altogether unaccustomed to work of this character. That such confusion has been caused will be at once apparent from an examination of the returns. It is obvious that in many instances the columns have been filled up with the wrong figures; in some cases attempts have been made to supply the omissions to which we have referred, with the result that additional confusion has been introduced. We have felt, after many efforts at reconciliation, that the task was a hopeless one, and we have been forced to the conclusion that the returns are practically useless for the purpose which the Commission appear to have had in view in calling for them. We have however arranged the figures in as intelligible a form as practicable, and now submit them with the following explanations:—

In the arrangement of the figures, we have endeavoured as far as possible to present them in a manner which would exhibit the state of the various Lodges at 1st January, 1877, and at 31st December, 1881, and their operations during the five years between these dates. The defects in the form of Schedule to which we have already referred rendered it impossible to obtain a balance of the transactions, while our task was made more unsatisfactory from the incompleteness of the great majority of the returns. An attempt has been made to exhibit the receipts and disbursements relating to each separate fund maintained by the Lodges, to show the amounts at credit of the various funds at 31st December, 1881, and the different classes of securities in which the moneys were invested. In cases where the quantity of sickness experienced was stated, we have deduced (as far as the means at command would admit) the average sickness per member per annum. In order that this may be compared with the expectation according to the table on which we have based our valuations, we insert here the average sickness experienced among members of the Manchester Unity in Great Britain, according to the latest classified return from that body.

Expected sickness per member per annum, according to the M. U. experience, 1866-1870:—

30867
35	1.012
40	1.175
50	1.989

It must be borne in mind, however, that the information relating to sickness afforded by the Lodges is altogether too meagre to justify any importance being attached to the comparisons. Table 1 shows the information supplied by fifty-three Lodges of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows. We refrain from making any comments on the facts that a number of Lodges have retrograded during the five years, in number of members, or amount of funds, or both, because such facts are not sufficient of themselves to justify any conclusion conclusion as to the financial stability of the Lodges so circumstanced. We desire, however, to point out that in thirteen only of the Lodges does the number of members exceed 100, while in the remaining forty the numbers range from three to ninety-eight; similarly, in eighteen Lodges the assets at December, 1881, were under £100. We have no hesitation in expressing our opinion that even where adequate rates of contribution are charged such numbers are altogether too small to enable the Lodges to be conducted with any degree of safety. On the whole, the rate of sickness experienced appears to have been favourable, though it will be observed that the Lodges in the mining Districts exhibit, as was to be expected, a marked increase over their fellows. The figures inserted beneath the summation of each column in this and similar tables indicate the number of Lodges embraced in such summation.

* In this Report the term "Lodge" includes "Tent," "Court," &c.

Table 2 exhibits the summary of the returns supplied by sixteen Lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows. This body has only been recently established in the Colony; its operations appear to have been somewhat limited, and the information supplied is very meagre. Our remarks as to the danger to be apprehended from paucity of numbers apply with equal force to this body.

Table 3 shows the information supplied by sixty-eight Temperance Lodges, sixty-six of which are comprised under the general body of the Sons of Temperance. Here again we find many of the Lodges containing a number of members altogether too small for successful operation, one exhibiting only nine members as the result of fifteen years' existence; as the funds of this Lodge however amount to £157, it would appear to be in a much better position than some of its more pretentious congeners. In connection with this summary, it should be observed that the sums set opposite the Lodges in the table below are included in the management expenditure of these Lodges in Table 3. In some cases these amounts appear to represent the funeral levies paid to the District; in others they appear to be the amounts received from the Districts as funeral donations, and it is evident that some of them have already been entered under this heading. It is however utterly impossible to accurately apportion these amounts to their proper denomination. It is thought necessary to make this explanation, in order to guard against error on the part of those who may institute comparisons between the receipts and expenditure of these Lodges

Table 4 presents the figures supplied by eighteen Courts of the Ancient Order of Foresters and three independent Courts. Table 5 contains a summary of the returns obtained by the Lodges of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society. These returns are very incomplete, the total number of members shown being 1,968, while the number returned to us for purposes of valuation (and hereafter dealt with) is 3,414.

Table 6 shows the figures relating to sixty-seven Lodges of the Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows. These returns are the most voluminous of all, although, as will be seen, they are imperfect in many particulars. The excessive sickness in the miners' Lodge will at once attract attention.

Table 7 contains the information relating to a number of miscellaneous Societies not embraced in any of the preceding tables.

Although, as we have remarked, the incompleteness of these returns detracts very largely from their value, they yet afford an idea of the magnitude of the operations of the Friendly Societies of the Colony, and the important stake which large numbers, principally of the labouring classes, have in their welfare. A general view of their operations will be obtained from the following summary of Statistical Returns:—

* See Synopsis Valuation Returns.

From this summary it will be seen that the 234 Lodges which have made returns (more or less complete), number 24,399 members, with funds amounting to just on £120,000, and that they have been disbursing in benefits alone upwards of £30,000 per annum. When it is remembered that in all probability a large number of Lodges have made no return whatever, and that many which have supplied information have have omitted many important particulars, we think there can be little doubt that these Societies number at least 30,000 members (representing upwards of 100,000 of the population), that they disburse in benefits some £40,000 per annum, and that they control funds amounting to £150,000. That these Societies have assumed such dimensions is, we think, an eloquent tribute to the spirit of thrift and self-reliance which has developed itself among the labouring classes. That their existence must have the effect of relieving the community of a heavy burden in the shape of taxation is, we think, self-evident; and it cannot be denied that such enormous interests as the figures we have quoted represent demand that these Societies should be afforded the protection which a proper Act of Parliament efficiently administered alone can offer, and that they should not be left entirely to the care of men who, however honest in their endeavours, are necessarily incapable of safely directing them.

In instituting any comparisons between the figures in the various columns in this summary or in the tables Nos. 1 to 7 on which it is based, it must be borne in mind—(1) that the figures in each column in the summary do not necessarily refer to the number of Lodges indicated in the second column, and (2) that in the tables, the receipts in the management and incidental column include the contributions for medical attendance and drugs, while the disbursements, under the head of management, refer only to the cost of administration. It has been found impracticable to give the items of receipts referring to management pure and simple. This defect is particularly unfortunate, seeing that it has been loudly asserted that the management of these Societies has been characterized by great extravagance, and it would be highly desirable to have the means of refuting or confirming this assertion. No attempt has been made by the Commission to obtain from the Societies separate statements of the amounts received by them for management purposes alone. It appears, however, that this defect is inherent in the Societies, and that no effort on the part of the Commission would have been successful in obtaining such statements. From the summary of statistical returns, it will be seen that the returns received show receipts for management and incidentals (which includes medical attendance) amounting to £112,439 17s. 4d.; while there has been disbursed for medical attendance and drugs the sum of £85,154 1s. 1d., and for management £53,305 14s. 3d. These two sums exceed the receipts for these purposes by £26,019 18s., and the question arises from what fund has this latter sum been taken? Obviously from the receipts which should have been held sacred for the payment of benefits. Of course the defective character of the returns, to which we have drawn attention, destroys to some extent the literal accuracy of these figures, but we see little reason to doubt that the contributions for management and incidentals have been insufficient to meet the disbursements under these heads, and consequently the benefit funds have been requisitioned to make up the deficiency. We need scarcely point out the grave danger which is threatened by such proceedings.

The Schedule issued to the various Districts, form of which is shown in Appendix C, was responded to by eleven Districts, and a summary of these returns is exhibited in Table 8. As we have before pointed out, these returns are valueless, seeing that they do not disclose the amount of contributions or levies received in consideration for the benefits paid and promised. Neither are we in a position to say, from the information furnished relating to the deaths, whether the mortality has been above or below the expectation. To indicate the imperfect character of these returns we need do no more than point out that, while the returns from Lodges have disclosed a membership amounting to 24,399, those from the Districts only embrace 4,746. It will be observed that in one of the Districts from which returns have been received the cost of management has been £489 7s. 10d., while the total amount paid for benefits has been only £180. Throughout the whole examination of these voluminous returns we have been sorely disappointed to find that the result of so much labour was capable of being turned to so little practical account. No doubt had we examined the returns from each individual Lodge in detail, we should have discovered some which would have afforded the means of arriving at more satisfactory conclusions, but we were of opinion that the circumstances of the case did not justify the expenditure of time and money which such an investigation would have entailed. In our remarks which follow will be found ample proof that the necessity for legislation is a very pressing one.

THE ACTUARIAL VALUATIONS.

With the view of determining the financial position of the various bodies as at 31 December, 1881, we prepared a Schedule for issue containing provision for the information necessary to enable us to make an actuarial valuation of the assets and liabilities of the Societies. These Schedules were issued by the Commission to a number of the Districts, and the following have been returned to us in a more or less complete form:—

Synopsis of Valuation Returns.

We are not aware of the number of these Schedules which were issued by the Commission, but a glance at the preceding summary will show that returns have been received representing but a small proportion of the Societies.

The first of these Schedules reached us on the 25th August and the last on the 23rd October. We have based our valuations on the experience of the Manchester Unity (1866-70) collected by the late Mr. Ratliff (this being the most reliable experience extant), ignoring the element of secessions, and we have assumed 4 per cent. as the rate of interest which the Societies may expect to realize on their investments in the future. Before submitting the results of these valuations, we proceed to notice two objections which we anticipate will be urged against these bases. During our examination before the Commission great importance

Analyzing the General Funds into the component parts of Funeral and Sickness and Superannuation, the relative positions of the two will be seen from the following:—

Valuation Balance-sheet of the Funeral Fund.

To liabilities under funeral benefits (members) £9,414 0 0	By present value of 1s. 3d. per quarter	£5,474 12 0
" " " (wives) ... 3,339 0 0	" Funeral Fund	1,030 8 4
" " " (widows).. 82 10 0	" deficiency	6,330 9 8

Valuation Balance-sheet of the Sickness and Superannuation Funds.

To liabilities under sickness benefits£42,888 12 0	By present value of 1s. 1d. per fortnight.....	£31,115 2 0
" " superannuation 2,448 8 0	" Sickness Fund	6,230 4 7
" " funeral levy of 1s. 3d. per quarter, payable to District 5,474 12 0	" Superannuation Fund.....	1,422 3 8
	" deficiency	12,035 1 9

We have not at hand the necessary information to enable us to make a separate statement for the Superannuation Fund.

In order to make this analysis intelligible, it must be explained that the contribution of 1s. 1d. per fortnight is the total amount out of which all benefits, except medical attendance and drugs, have to be provided, and that the funeral levy of 1s. 3d. per quarter is taken from this. Seeing therefore that credit has been taken in the balance-sheet of the Sickness and Superannuation Funds for the full contribution of 1s. 1d. per fortnight, it is necessary to enter as a liability on the other side of the account the present value of the levy of 1s. 3d. per quarter.

The deficiency disclosed by this valuation is sufficiently large to create a feeling somewhat akin to alarm, and it naturally suggested to us the necessity of discovering the causes to which have led to it.

Without going any further, we think we have found a satisfactory explanation in the rates of contributions charged, which we consider altogether inadequate to provide the benefits promised. We have shown that the effective contribution for the benefits, outside of medical attendance and drugs, does not exceed 1s. 1d. per fortnight. We have computed the contributions which we consider necessary for these benefits, and find them to be as under:—

	s. d.
At age 20	1 4	per fortnight.
" 25	1 6	"
" 30	1 8	"
" 35	2 0	"
" 40	2 5	"
" 45	2 10	"
" 50	3 6	"

It will be seen, therefore, that even for the youngest age at entry the contributions are insufficient to provide the promised benefits. This fact will, we think, go a long way to account for the deficiency which we have shown to exist. We think it highly probable that further explanations will be found in the facts that the funds of the small Lodges have not been profitably invested, and that encroachments have been made on the Benefit Funds to defray the expenses of management; but we have not the information to enable us to speak with certainty on this point. In order to show the effect which the introduction of the element of secessions would have on the rates of contribution, we hereunder place, side by side with the rates quoted above, the corresponding sums when credit is taken for secessions:—

Fortnightly contributions necessary to provide benefits promised.

	Without secessions.		With secessions.
	s. d.		s. d.
Age 20	1 4	...	1 1
" 25	1 6	...	1 3
" 30	1 8	...	1 6
" 35	2 0	...	1 10
" 40	2 5	...	2 2
" 45	2 10	...	2 8
" 50	3 6	...	3 4

A comparison of these rates will show, what we have before observed, that the secessions operate principally at the young ages (and even then not to a very great extent), and that they do not very materially affect the rates for old entrants.

Further, with the view of showing the effect on the valuation of the assumption of a higher rate of interest, we append the result when 5% is assumed as the rate at which the funds will be improved. We do not think it necessary to repeat these comparisons in the case of the other Societies valued by us, as one example will indicate the general effect of the changes.

Valuation Balance-sheet assuming 5% interest.

To liabilities under sickness benefits£35,531 8 0	By present value of 1s. 1d. per fortnight.....	£27,455 12 0
" " funeral " (members) 7,727 8 0	By funds	8,691 16 7
" " " (wives) 2,877 14 0	By deficiency	12,331 15 5
" " " (widows) 66 0 0
" " superannuation 2,276 14 0
£48,479 4 0		£48,479 4 0

From this balance-sheet it will be seen that the use of 1 per cent. additional in the rate of interest has had the effect of decreasing the deficiency by about one-third. Roughly speaking, therefore, we may say that the Foresters would probably be in a solvent condition if they could depend upon realising 7 per cent. continuously on their funds. It is needless to add that this is impracticable.

MANCHESTER UNITY ORDER OF ODDFELLOWS.—SYDNEY DISTRICT.

From the synopsis of valuation returns given above, it will be seen that this is by far the largest body which has furnished us with the means of ascertaining its financial position. As the representative of a body whose reputation is world-wide, the investigation into its condition possesses special interest. The Sydney District comprises 6,906 members, with 4,006 wives. The benefits (in addition to medical attendance and drugs) are as follows :—

Sick pay—	21s.	per week	during	first	six	months.
„	15s.	„	„	second	„	„
„	10s.	„	„	third	„	„
„	5s. to 7s. 6d.	„	„	during	continued	sickness thereafter.
Funeral donations—	£20	on	death	of	member.
„	£15	„	„	member's	wife.

In addition to these there is a Widow and Orphans' Donation ranging from £10 to £30, payable on the death of a member.

The contributions are 2s. 4d. per fortnight, but of this amount 1s. 3d. is absorbed by expenses of management, medical attendance, &c., leaving 1s. 1d. per fortnight available for payment of the benefits enumerated above. Of this 1s. 1d. per fortnight, two levies of 1s. 6d. per quarter and 6d. per quarter are hypothecated to provide the Funeral and Widows and Orphans' Donations respectively.

The total funds of the District at 31st December, 1881, were £36,265 1s. 11d. We have not been informed what proportion of this belongs respectively to Sick, Funeral, and Widows and Orphans' Funds; we are therefore only able to present a general balance-sheet of the body as a whole.

Balance-sheet of the M. U. Order of Oddfellows.

	£	s.	d.		£	s.	d.
To liabilities under sickness benefits	224,848	6	0	By present value of 1s. 1d. per fortnight....	162,302	10	0

	£309,282	6	0		£309,282	6	0

The information afforded us did not enable us to make the valuation of the Widows and Orphans' benefits (represented by the liability of £22,202 16s.) as accurately as we could have wished; we feel certain, however, that we have not overestimated this liability, while we have altogether ignored the liability in respect of payments on the death of the wives of members at present unmarried. If therefore we have erred in our estimates, we believe the error is on the side of leniency towards the Society. The deficiency exhibited (upwards of £110,000) is a very formidable one, but a comparison of the rates charged with those which we think necessary to provide the promised benefits will as before afford a satisfactory explanation for a very large portion of this deficit. Instead of the 1s. 1d. per fortnight, we think the undermentioned rates may be taken as the minimum necessary to secure solvency :—

Age	s.	d.
20.....	1	6 per fortnight.
„ 25.....	1	8 „
„ 30.....	2	0 „
„ 35.....	2	3 „
„ 40.....	2	9 „
„ 50.....	4	0 „

These figures will show that the rates charged by the Manchester Unity are absurdly low at all ages, and that for ages above thirty they are less than one-half of what they should be. When we add that more than half the members attached to the Sydney District are above the age of thirty, we think the deficiency shown in our valuation is accounted for.

PROTESTANT ALLIANCE FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

This body has been returned to us as consisting of 3,414 members, with 1,980 wives. The benefits consist of—

Sick pay of	21s. 0d.	per week	during	first	six	months.
„	10 6	„	„	second	„	„
„	5 0	„	„	second	year.

Funeral donations of £25 on death of member, and £15 on death of wife, together with an additional £5 on death of members of over five years' standing.

The contributions are :—

For sick pay 1s. per week, one half of which is taken for expenses of management; and for funeral donations 2s. per quarter in addition.

The amounts at credit of the various funds, including arrears of contributions due, are :—

	£	s.	d.

Funeral Fund	3,124	2	4
Incidental Fund	240	19	7
Lodge Relief Fund	263	4	11

In the balance-sheet given below we have not included any liability on account of payments at death of wives of members at present unmarried.

Wives	6,660	2	0	„ deficiency	3,124	2	4
	£38,641	6	0		£38,641	6	0

In this case too it will be seen there is a large deficiency, amounting on the combined funds to £22,238 18s. 11d.

We confess that we were not prepared to find such a bad condition of affairs in this Society, seeing that the rates charged are considerably in excess of those demanded by the other bodies which have come under our notice. We have seen that the effective contribution for the sick benefits is 1s. per fortnight; the true rates should, we think, be as under :—

	s.	d.		s.	d.
At age 20	0	11	At age 40	1	7
„ 25	1	0½	„ 45	1	10
„ 35	1	4

Although the rates charged are, except at the very youngest ages, inadequate to provide the promised benefits, we think that had any material advantage been derived from secessions, had the funds been kept closely invested at 4 per cent., and not diverted to other than their legitimate channel, and had the sickness experienced not been excessive, so large a deficiency would not have been disclosed. We have not the means of determining whether any of these influences have been in operation, but we are satisfied that the deficit is a real one. Coming to the Funeral Fund, it will be seen that the levy to provide the benefits in this is 2s. per quarter. The sums which we think necessary to secure these benefits are as under :—

At age 20	2s. 8d. per quarter.	At age 40	5s. 1d. per quarter.
„ 25	3 1	„ 45	6 1
„ 30	3 8	„ 50	7 8
„ 35	4 4

Notwithstanding the utter inadequacy of the funeral levies charged by the Society, it is scarcely credible that so large a deficiency (compared with the funds in hand) could exist unless some portion of the 2s. a quarter has been used for other purposes than the payment of funeral donations.

A. H. C. GUILD.

This body consist of 937 members, but the Secretary has been unable to furnish us with the ages of these and cannot tell how many of them are married. These facts indicate that the Society is conducted in a very haphazard manner, and it is of course impossible to arrive at any estimates of the liabilities. The funds are returned as of the amount of £6,590 7s., almost the whole of which is represented by a single asset, the Guild Hall. The benefits promised by the Society are, in addition to the ordinary medical attendance and drugs.

	s.	d.
Sick pay of 21 0 a week for first twelve months.
„ 10 6 „ second „
„ 5 0 „ thereafter during sickness.

„ 15 „ „ over five years.	15

The contributions are 2s. 4d. per fortnight uniform for all ages, together with a small entrance fee graduated according to age, and equivalent at age thirty to about 1d. per fortnight, and at age forty to about 6d. per fortnight throughout life.

We may observe that the computation of the value of the last of the above benefits cannot be performed with rigid accuracy owing to the absence of statistics relating to the contingency expressed, and we have not thought it necessary to perform the work, seeing that we cannot obtain the information to enable us to undertake a valuation of the liabilities. If we assume that the entrance fees bring the average contribution up to 2s. 6d. per fortnight, and that 1s. is absorbed by medical expenses and cost of management (and this is a very moderate estimate) the amount available to provide the benefits will be 1s. 6d. per fortnight. We have no hesitation in affirming that this sum is altogether inadequate. We think further, that we should be failing in our duty if we omitted to call attention to the fact that nearly the entire funds are locked up in the Guild Hall, which we believe depends for its income almost exclusively on theatrical performances. We do not think such a security a desirable channel for the investment of trust funds of this character.

It will be seen that our valuations have in every case disclosed the existence of very large deficiencies—so large indeed that any hope on the part of the Societies of fulfilling their obligations under the existing scales of contributions and benefits cannot be regarded as other than chimerical. An abstract of the results deduced by us will be seen from the following.

Summary of Valuations.

Name of Society.	No. of Members returned.	Amount of Deficiency.
Foresters	1,355	£ 18,365 11 5
G. U. O. Oddfellows, Sydney District	2,219	21,784 4 3
„ „ Braidwood District	1,365	9,485 11 3
M. U. Oddfellows, Sydney District	6,906	110,714 14 1
Protestant Alliance	3,414	22,238 18 11
	15,259	182,588 19 11

It will thus be seen that the Societies from which we have received returns (and which embrace probably not more than half the number of members enrolled in the whole of the Societies) disclose deficiencies amounting to £182,589. We have not the information necessary to enable us to ascertain the position of the Societies which have made no return, but we doubt not they are in an equally unsatisfactory condition.

No doubt these results will be highly disappointing to the members of these Societies, and we are prepared to find the correctness of our deductions disputed by those who are unacquainted with the technical aspect of the question. We are quite confident that we have not overstated the liabilities, but on the contrary that under certain circumstances the position of some of the Societies may be worse than we have indicated. For example, we have assumed that the funds will continue to be improved at 4 per cent. while we have abundant evidence that in some cases this rate is not being realized—in such cases we have understated the liabilities. We have shown by comparison how inadequate the rates of contribution are for the benefits promised. Perhaps we can make this more clear to the members if we take an example from the funeral levies. For instance, take the Forester's body, which pays a funeral donation of £20 on the death of a member and £15 on the death of his wife, and for this receives a contribution of 1s. 3d. per quarter. Raising this to the standard of £100, we have an assurance of £100 payable on the death of a member and £75 on the death of his wife, for a contribution of 6s. 3d. per quarter, or 25s. per annum. The annual rates charged by the Australian Mutual Provident Society for a non-participating assurance for £100 are as under:—

At age 20	1	8	10	At age 35	2	4	1
„ 30	1	17	9	„ 45	3	2	11

No life office can sell assurance at a lower price than these rates represent, and yet they are, even for the youngest ages, largely in excess of the rate which the Foresters consider sufficient for a greater benefit, for these premiums do not provide for any payment on the death of the wife. A still more popular method of comparison suggests itself to us. We believe it is a common practice among the members of these Societies to estimate the condition of their Lodges by the amount of funds per member. This of course is a most fallacious method of comparison, but if there be any virtue in it, it will be found to be strongly confirmatory of the results brought out by our valuations. The average funds per member of the bodies valued by us are as under:—

Manchester Unity	5	5	0
Protestant Alliance	4	11	0
G.U.O.O. Sydney District	3	11	0
„ Braidwood District	4	16	0
Foresters	4	12	0

From the last reports issued by the Registrars of Friendly Societies in Victoria and New Zealand we find the average funds per member in all the Societies in those Colonies to be—

	£	s.	d.

No valuations have yet been completed of the Victorian Societies, but of those which have been valued in New Zealand almost all have been found to be in an insolvent condition. Under these circumstances, then, is there any room for doubt as to the deplorable condition of the Societies in this Colony? If we are asked to suggest a remedy for the evils which exist, we reply that one of two things must be done—either the contributions must be increased or the benefits must be reduced. Besides this, if justice is to be done to individual members, the present iniquitous system of charging uniform contributions at all ages must be abandoned; otherwise we think the Societies will speedily be abandoned by a large majority of their youngest and most valuable members.

It is only fair to remind the Commission that our valuations of the sickness funds refer to a number of Lodges in globo; we have not received the information necessary to enable us to value the Lodges individually, nor do we think there is much probability of obtaining this information under the existing condition of affairs. It is quite possible therefore, though we think it highly improbable, that some of the Lodges may, in spite of the unsafe basis on which they have been transacting business, and the small numbers among which they have been operating, be solvent. If there be any such they will certainly be conspicuous exceptions.

TABLES OF CONTRIBUTIONS.

We append hereto the rates of contributions which we think necessary to secure the benefits enumerated in the letter of instructions to us. These benefits are:—

Funeral donations of £25 on the death of a member.
Do.	15	„	his wife.
Sick pay of 20s. per week during first six months.
„	15s.	„	second six months.
„	10s.	„	third six months.
„	5s.	„	continued sickness thereafter.

In the case of the funeral donations we have given the rate per quarter, and in that of the sickness benefits the rate per fortnight, as these appear to be the modes of payment adopted by the majority of the Societies. We have given the rates both at 4 and 5 per cent. interest in order to show the effect on the contributions of a difference of 1 per cent. in the rate of interest.

We think it necessary to remark that we consider the practice of continuing sick-pay indefinitely a vicious one. To say nothing of the inducement to malingering which this practice holds out, we are of opinion that there is a period of life, which we should be inclined to fix at age sixty-five, beyond which there is the greatest difficulty in distinguishing sickness proper from incapacity on account of old age—in determining when sickness gives place to superannuation. We think it would be well to make all sickness allowances cease at about age sixty-five, and if further benefit is needed to allow it to take the form of permanent superannuation. This is a point which can scarcely be settled by legislation, but it is one which deserves the serious consideration of the Societies.

The above rates do not include any provision for medical attendance, supply of drugs, or expenses of management. As it is customary in most bodies to charge an entrance fee in addition to the uniform contribution, we may state that a present payment of £1 is equivalent to a fortnightly contribution varying from $\frac{1}{2}$ d. at age 20 to $\frac{1}{2}$ d. at age 50, assuming 4 % interest.

LEGISLATION.

The last clause of your instructions requests us to suggest principles and forms which should be incorporated in any amending legislation relative to Friendly Societies. This portion of our task is rendered comparatively light owing to the valuable aid afforded by the experience of the Mother Country and of the Colonies of New Zealand and Victoria in this matter. We entirely approve of the general principles enunciated in the following Acts dealing with this question:—

The Friendly Societies Act (1875). 38 and 39 Vict., ch. 60 (England).

The Friendly Societies Act (1876). New Zealand.

The Friendly Societies Act (1877). Victoria.

These Acts all follow generally the same lines, and may with advantage be imitated in this Colony. The object aimed at is to procure and publish the fullest information concerning the transactions of the Societies, and at the same time to avoid hampering them by obnoxious or oppressive restrictions. These Acts all require from the Societies registered under them the fullest information of their proceedings and periodical exhibits of their financial condition; but in none of them is registration made compulsory. This we think a defect; we are of opinion that any new Act should render registration on the part of all Friendly Societies compulsory. The Act should provide for an annual return from all the Societies, exhibiting the receipts and disbursements for the year in respect of the various funds maintained by the Societies, and the transactions of each fund should be kept entirely distinct. It is the practice of the Societies in this Colony, we believe without exception, to combine the receipts for medical attendance and expenses of management under one head. Seeing that the medical attendance and the supply of drugs is one of the most valuable of the benefits provided by the Societies, we think it imperative that the receipts and disbursements for this purpose, as well as in sick-pay and funeral donations should be kept under a distinct head. It will be necessary also (at least for a period of about ten years after the passing of a new Act) to secure quinquennial returns of the sickness and mortality experienced among the members of the Societies. These will enable tables to be constructed from which the rates of contribution can be ascertained. Until such tables are available it will be necessary to use those constructed from the experience of English Societies. We think a period of ten years will be sufficient to afford reliable data on which to construct tables showing the rates of sickness and mortality to be expected in the Colony. At the end of this period the quinquennial returns referred to may be discontinued. We do not think the detailed forms for these returns should be made a part of a new Act. If the Act be administered by a competent officer, it will be desirable to allow him a large discretion in the preparation of the forms, because the Societies differ so much in their constitution and in the character of the benefits provided that no one form will be found suitable for all. The annual audits and the periodical valuations of the Societies are matters of vital importance. Under the Acts above referred to authority is given for the appointment of duly qualified persons as auditors and valuers, but their employment is not compulsory on the Societies. The scale of fees to be paid to these persons is fixed by regulation, and is sufficiently low to enable every Society to avail itself of their services. We think a similar provision should be incorporated in the proposed Act. We should point out, however, that this will necessitate the preparation by the Government of a series of preliminary tables for the use of valuers, since no actuary will be found willing to value the Societies for the stipulated fee (which must be small in order to bring a valuation within the reach of all) if he have to prepare the preliminary tables necessary for the purpose. Had it not been for the possession of some private tables and the use of a series issued by the Government Statist in Melbourne, the valuations given in this report would not have been completed for several months. It will be desirable to enforce an annual audit and an actuarial valuation at least once in every five years. As to the course which should be adopted in regard to the rates of contributions charged by the Societies, we have some difficulty in coming to a conclusion. Under the Victorian Act no Society is allowed to register unless its rates of contribution have received the certificate of an actuary; under the English and New Zealand Acts this certificate is only necessary in regard to contributions for annuities, such for example as the superannuation allowances referred to in a previous portion of this report. While we think it highly desirable that Societies should be encouraged to seek the advice advice of actuaries in these matters we hesitate to recommend the adoption of the dictatorial principle incorporated in the Victorian Act. When the Societies are compelled to expose their true position, when deficiencies are shown to exist and the causes of them demonstrated, we think the force of public opinion, the common sense of the members, and the advice of the officer charged by the Government with the administration of the Act will be sufficient to induce the Societies to adopt proper measures for repairing the errors of the past and for avoiding their recurrence in the future.

We think it worthy of consideration whether the Government should not follow the example of the English Government and afford special facilities through the Savings' Banks for the investment at remunerative rates of the accumulations of the smaller Societies.

With reference to the administration of a new Act, we may point out that in the English and Victorian Acts the Registrar (whose duty consists in determining whether the rules of Societies applying for registration are in accordance with law) must be a Barrister, but the practical administrator is, in England the Actuary to the Registry, and in Victoria the Government Statist (who has on his staff a competent actuarial expert). In New Zealand the latter functionary is termed the Registrar (and also has the services of an actuary), while the legal officer is termed the revising barrister. Of course competent legal knowledge will be required in carrying out the provisions of an Act, and we think that the officer charged with the legal duty might, in addition to giving certificates of conformity, act as an arbitrator in settling disputes between the Lodges and their members, and thus obviate the useless waste of the funds which an appeal to the ordinary Law Courts invariably involves. Whether this officer be termed Registrar or Revising Barrister matters very little; the real work of administering the Act can only be successfully performed by a person acquainted with actuarial science and skilled in the manipulation of statistics. If a Department be created to administer the Act, some such person must be placed in charge. We venture to suggest however that, concurrently with the introduction of a new Act, there might be adopted some more satisfactory method of collecting and tabulating the general statistics of the Colony than that at present in operation. We think it somewhat of a reflection on the Colony that on all matters of statistical inquiry we are so far behind our neighbours, and we think that the machinery for collecting and publishing our statistics might with advantage be remodelled and placed in charge of a competent and experienced head. In such case the administration of a new Friendly Societies Act would naturally become a part of his duty. We have not had the advantage of perusing the evidence taken by the Commission, which doubtless contains many suggestions and recommendations from witnesses who have had long practical experience in the management of these Societies; we are therefore unable to traverse these recommendations or to express any opinion on them. Our contact, however, with various leading officers of the principal bodies, has shown us that these gentlemen all recognize the necessity for a change, and deplore the presence of evils which, under existing circumstances, they are powerless to remedy. While we have been disappointed at the incompleteness of the returns which have been furnished to us, we have much pleasure in testifying to the anxiety which the officers of the Societies have shown to afford us all the information in their power; and we know that throughout the course of this inquiry these gentlemen have willingly given up much of what is to them valuable time, without the hope of any pecuniary return for their services. It is scarcely necessary to add that no Act of Parliament, however perfect, can be any protection to these Societies unless it is efficiently administered, nor unless it secures a wide-spread publicity for the returns received under it. No abuses can long exist in the face of the fearless criticism of an intelligent Press and of an adverse public opinion. We think we have now responded to the invitation of the Commission as fully as the circumstances of the case demand and the means at our command admit. We have only to add, that we shall have pleasure in supplementing this report if it should appear to the Commission that anything material has been omitted, and in placing our services at the disposal of the Government in drafting or revising any new Act.

We have the honor to be,

Gentlemen,

Your obedient servants,

M. A. BLACK.
RICHARD TEECE.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES ACT INQUIRY COMMISSION.

ANALYSIS OF EVIDENCE.

Evidence of Mr. Alex. Oliver:—Is Registrar of Friendly Societies; the Act under which he registers Friendly Societies is the same as that under which he registers Building Societies; informs the Commission that under the Act Friendly Societies are obliged to submit certain returns, and that many Societies have done so in many instances, and regularly, but a great many others have not done so; the Manchester Unity and Foresters, and other large Orders forward their returns punctually and in a good form, and many Societies, especially country ones, send in utterly unintelligible returns, and regrets that a great many send in none at all; considers that the Act requires each Lodge to send in its own returns; does not know anything of his own knowledge of their internal government as between District and Lodge or Grand Lodge and Districts page 1

Remarks that the law does provide that there should be an annual return laid before Parliament, but it has never been done; has no objection to explain the reason why the law has not been obeyed as regards laying these returns before Parliament; proceeds to explain the reason in detail; thinks that a reasonable way of getting over the difficulty (want of clerical assistance) would be to cast the duty mentioned on the Statistical Branch, i.e. the Registrar-General; thinks it will eventually be necessary to have an actuary attached to the Department, therefore the sooner the better; has a very large amount of correspondence with the Societies over their yearly returns; not very much this last year, but says that he must have given a matter of three or four hundred opinions in writing on the construction of the Act; is of opinion there is no general uniformity, except with the large Societies; each Order has a perfect right to frame its own rules; there is a general understanding that the rules so framed shall be approved of by the proper officer of the District; states he can supply the names of all registered Societies to the Commission 2

From the returns sent in to him, he could not compile one that would be of any use; speaks of Sir Stafford Northcote's last Commission; describes what the fees prescribed by the Act in the second Schedule are; is aware that complaints against these fees have been made; returns of chief value are those made by Manchester Unity, the Grand United Sons of Temperance, &c.; thinks each of these Orders ought to be compelled to appoint a sort of Returning Officer; statement of respective expenses of the large Orders 3

Thinks all litigation is vexatious; it has been held in England by District Courts and Justices, that all disputes should be settled out of Court; recommends annual audits by Government officers as beneficial to these Societies; certainly thinks it is as important that the actuarial aspect should be attended to as the legal aspect, when a Society is registered 4

Any rules submitted for registration should come up to some settled point in relation to the contributions and insurance benefits; the pro rata contributions are open to one or two objections, but thinks there are advantages; there are not many Societies which exist unregistered; is officially not aware that the Societies here are upon an unhealthy basis; the present Act in reference to the returns is defective in its operations; points out what would be necessary to form a new legislation; would be glad to prepare suggestions; Registrar has power now to deal with Societies failing to comply with the law; gives an idea of the M.U. returns for last year; has no control whatever over unregistered Societies; occupied position of Registrar for eight years; total amount of fees received would be considerably under £500; fees are given by the Act to the Registrar; thinks £2,000 a year would be necessary to conduct the business of these Societies 5

Thinks that any practice by which the Registrar keeps his fees is a wrong one; in England now there are no fees; Registrar has to send returns to Parliament; returns have never been made; cannot say how many Societies he has registered during his registrarship; Mr. Greville has charge of the Department in Victoria; Mr. Hayter is the Statist; considers that the returns of Lodges or Societies should be handed to Government Statist for registration in proper form; that Department performs all other statistical work of the Colony; where a Society has shown that it is badly conducted, and that it is in an insolvent condition, the Registrar-General might investigate the accounts or authorize their investigation by some reliable person; gives his opinion as to Societies in this Colony as compared with those in England 6

Mr. Oliver's further evidence:—Provision is made in the present Act for certain returns to be transmitted annually and quinquennially; the majority of the members of some Societies are lumpers; there are others in which the whole of the members are miners, coal and tin miners; others in which the item "accident" is very much more common than in some of the Societies composed of an average number of persons following different pursuits, none of which are dangerous to life; speaks of Dr. Farr's tables of mortality; there are forty or fifty different kinds of occupations; number of Lodges sent in no returns at all; no doubt about a penalty having therefore been incurred; the most cases are those which send in unintelligible returns; explains the result if these Secretaries were prosecuted; quotes 45th section of the Act, and also 78th section, relative to penalties and fines imposed by this Act; for 1879, out of about 450 Societies, 244 furnished returns; considers that pretty good, but regrets that out of a total number approaching 500 only 204 complied with the Act for 1880; has been a falling off of forty Societies in the year, but compared with the first few years the Act was in operation it shows a large increase ... 7

Proposes

Proposes that the course now pursued by the Manchester Unity, as regards returns, should be adopted by the Sons of Temperance; considers by the adoption of such a course the difficulty in connection with returns would be overcome, provided officer had sufficient control over the Society; all papers in connection with Friendly Societies have been reduced to order; fees received for this work have not averaged £70 per annum; the number of members of registered Friendly Societies would not be much over 30,000; for each head of a family the statistics give at least four individuals; that would be 120,000 souls affected; taxation per head in round numbers is about £3; produces memo. used by Mr. Abigail in Legislative Assembly when asking for Select Committee; is of opinion that an actuary should be associated with the Department, for the purpose of controlling tables and valuations; does not think the tables of voluntary contributions to a Society should be wholly under the control of an actuary; thinks an alternative might be provided; explains why; thinks the mortality tables are sufficient for all purposes... 8

Is aware that the sick and death rate varies very much in the different Societies; sickness being from $\frac{1}{3}$ of a day up to 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ days, and deaths from 1.33 to 19.04; believes it to be a fact that the large Societies have increased their capital—notably in Victoria; it is so in England; as regards America he has no information; believes that considerable amounts have been spent in unprofitable litigation; the 14th clause of the Act, "settlement of disputes," is not clear; does not think the jurisdiction of the Courts should be ousted; explains his reason for submitting that Lodges should have the alternative of making a levy when the sums fall below a certain amount; is in possession of all the reports in reference to actuarial calculations instituted by the English Government; cannot find up to the present time any set of tables prescribed by regulations to govern the English Societies or any of them; is aware that very elaborate calculations have been made to regulate the various trades, and that from them most of the tables have been compiled; is inclined to think they rely more on valuation than upon contribution rates; has seen Tidd Pratt's and Neison's tables 9

Has no recollection at present of any Societies registered that have a graduated scale of payments; in the event of young members withdrawing from a Society, if there were a graduated scale of fees they would be very lightly handicapped; quotes what the younger men now say; thinks the matter of contributions should not cease to be voluntary, and a pity to prescribe any hard and fast scale and say that it must be adhered to; should be left to the Societies themselves; explains why; gives his idea of graduated scale; think Public Auditors make the valuations upon which English Societies are based; they are called in the English Act Public Auditors; presumes they have some system of appointment of these Public Auditors; cannot say whether the returns furnished to the Manchester Unity were the same as those to other Societies; he directed that the same should be sent; promises to show the two forms of returns on his next appearance before the Commission; reads memorandum showing the number of Lodges within each Order, the number which sent in returns for 1879 and 1880, and also those in default; explains insertion of bracket by Mr. Scott on a certain paper... .. 10

Explains meaning of word "miscellaneous" in return; gives names of some miscellaneous Societies 11

Examination of Mr. Oliver resumed.—All regulated Societies do not send in returns on the forms furnished by his office; the Societies generally have wished to submit their returns in a form that suits themselves; relates difficulty in getting regular returns; names some Societies who have sent in returns on forms of their own arranging; explains presumptive cause which made the Manchester Unity to appear on the list with the medical expenses subtracted from the management expenses; the whole gist of the question "would not the subtraction of the cost of doctor and chemist from the management expenses, say 40 to 45 per cent., place the real management expenses of some of the Societies very far below those of the Manchester Unity," depends upon the data; if that principle be applied it would reduce the real management expenses of some of the Societies to 3 per cent.; gives example; Bathurst District of the Manchester Unity did not send in a separate return for 1880 or the first half of 1881 11

Requirements of the law regarding the rules of a new Society; has not heard that nine-tenths of the Societies under him are insolvent; has heard that it has been stated that a good many of them are insolvent; his opinion of such a statement is that there is no solid foundation for it; presents a return showing the number and names of Societies that have dissolved from his office during his term of office; so far as he can remember the cause of dissolution has really been insolvency—that insolvency has been admitted by the Societies seeking to dissolve; knew of a division in which there was a good round sum divided after making good all claims—£170 or £180, as far as he can remember; mentions the fact of a Society which dissolved with a much larger amount, namely four or five hundred pounds; affords his opinion of the late recovery by law of large contributions 12

Does not think—to be consistent with the opinion formerly expressed—that there should be any such thing as enforced payment; thinks special levies fund would be a valuable addition to a Society's security; gives his opinion as to whether new Branches that sometimes offer certain inducements above others that have been otherwise certified to members to join should be punishable; quotes 6th clause of the present Act; points out why it must apply to Benefit Societies receiving contributions; explains how a Society can be registered before it receives money; gives his advice as to whether a new Act should provide that a statish should be employed to collect returns; regarding disputes between members, they should be confined to arbitration; his opinion that that Board of arbitration should take something of the form of the Marine Board; his views as to minority, should be able to appeal and have power to prohibit expenditure that would be thought injurious to the Society 13

His ideas as to a penalty for false returns; remarks as to offer of present appointment by Sir George Innes; believes that all actuaries are attached to Life Offices here; his views as to the opinion of the actuaries of Great Britain, relative to present rate of subscription and benefits generally vouchsafed; has heard that the benefits are grossly in excess of the rates, or that the rates are insufficient to secure the benefits; thinks a considerable amount of variation would be required in the framing of a new Act; in 1880 there were a number of defaulting Lodges, a quantity being Metropolitan Lodges; regarding the infliction of fines on defaulting Lodges; explains meaning of "management expenses per pound of total income" in top of column in return 14

Is empowered to make the penalty for non-submission of return, but then the question comes what fixes the penalty; has some reason to suspect that plenty of Lodges are dissolved without his knowledge of it; his sanction is required if a Society is to be legally dissolved; respecting appeal Boards outside of the Societies; relating to peculiarities in all Friendly Societies; has heard that there are several Friendly Societies

Societies in active competition at cheap rates; would be of advantage to Registrar to know this under a new Act; his opinion as to joining members being admitted into a Branch or Lodge on payment of half fees; his views with regard to special levies; his proposition in the event of the funds of a Lodge falling below a certain proportion; would be a dangerous safety-valve by itself, but not if taken in conjunction with a statutory scale of benefits and contributions; would not then be dangerous; would be very beneficial if all Lodges in New South Wales could be got to try and agree to something like a sliding scale ... 15

Has seen it stated in the English reports that the most successful Friendly Societies in Great Britain adopt this scale; cannot say positively whether the Victorian Act is imperative as regards the ages of all joining members should be given in the returns; would be quite enough work for a permanent Registrar to keep him occupied if he were to carry out the idea of being Standing Counsel to the Societies; explains meaning of "Standing Counsel"; is aware that there are sectarian and non-sectarian Societies; remarks respecting the distinction of the two Societies; his opinion as to forfeiture of insurance benefits when sectarian rules are broken; explanation of the connection between the sectarian principle and the Society itself; regarding the cheap rate of fees, cheap rate of entrance charged by competitive Societies; date when this sort of competition first originated; the returns of Manchester Unity are always very well submitted—never had occasion to find fault with them; difficulty in the submission of returns might have been avoided if the Orders had the power of inflicting a heavy fine on Lodges failing to send in their returns; would be better to have the compulsion come from the Order than from any Government officer; is aware the Manchester Unity has a fine of two guineas; is not a statutory fine; would make it statutory ... 16

Knows of no provision in the Act by which a fine contained in a rule can be enforced; the only compulsion apparent is expulsion; in favour of referring everything to arbitration; is of opinion, considering the importance of Friendly Societies and great saving they must be to the State, that their rules should be registered free of cost; reports of Friendly Societies being permitted to go through the mails post free is a question of policy for the Government; respecting the division of the funds of the bodies; decision of Judges in Victoria regarding the breaking up and division of the funds without the consent of the grand body; question as to advisability of the introduction of something of the sort here; appointment of arbitrators; considers the experience of the best and oldest Societies would be a very safe guide in fixing the proportion of contributions to benefits; information so derived would be from Societies which adhered uniformly to their own rules; Registrar's Office no way responsible for the working of the Society; may be launched on the best possible scales, and yet be wrecked in a couple of years by extravagance; Friendly Societies have auditors of sufficient prudence to audit their books without going outside; exception to this rule when valuing the interest of a member; does not think the annual return sheet is perfect; is capable of improvement even at the present time; is aware that pro rata Friendly Societies here give greater benefits than those in Great Britain; in Lodges registered under the Act in Great Britain medical benefits are provided only to those who pay the contributions ... 17

Has found some of the general Lodge rules out of construction; has not the power to make rules, nor the power to alter them; Mr. Ludlow, Registrar of Friendly Societies in Great Britain, empowered to do so under the Act; recommends it here within certain limits; regarding Friendly Societies Act affording power to trustees to lend money on mortgage; Mr. Oliver's opinion thereon; did not draft the present Act; received it as a sort of heirloom or rromant; explains what happened practically; added the Building Society Law, and the Co-operative and Trading Society Clauses to the Bill; made no alterations in the portion relating to Friendly Societies; has worked this Act since it became law up the present time; his opinion as to the adequacy of this Act in regard to Friendly Societies; his knowledge as to stability and financial condition of the Societies Act now totally inadequate; thinks it desirable that a Board of Arbitrators should be established for the purpose of dealing with the internal disagreements of Friendly Societies; the Board with the exception of Registrar being composed of members identified with the various Societies; majority of the Societies have a council, or district or governing body, each District nominating one of its members to constitute such Board; Mr. Oliver's proposal to offer a few suggestions in writing on that subject; has been considerable competition amongst Friendly Societies within the last two or three years; question whether Mr. Oliver if possessed with the power as Registrar would register a Society with a scale of fees, and giving benefits such as exhibited in a certain document; have had a few cases, in fact very few, of subordinate Courts or individuals or Lodges connected with Societies, seceding from their Districts ... 18

Thinks stability of subordinate Courts would be more assured by their identification with their Districts; question if it would be a good piece of legislation to make this compulsory in any new law; confession of Mr. Oliver of not seeing at present the necessity of the restriction ... 19

Evidence of Mr. Edwin Lewis Scott:—Is Clerk to the Parliamentary Draftsman, nominally Secretary to Registrar of Friendly Societies; was never appointed to that office; in receipt of no salary under the Friendly Societies Act; statement in regard to the punctuality or compliance with the law in reference to returns made to the Registrar by the different Friendly Societies; since supplying the various Societies with forms they have been more punctual; has communicated with the Grand Secretaries of the Orders requesting their attendance to the requirements of the Act in that respect; gives reason for thinking that it would be better under any circumstances that returns from the various subordinate Lodges should come through the Grand Lodge; it would certainly facilitate matters very much more if the Registrar had to deal only with the Grand Lodges; explain reason why; advocates having uniformity in reference to mode of distribution of funds; would assist actuarial process of investigation to make provision for the furnishing of the ages and occupations of the members and ages at death; preparation of returns from the most recent documents of Lodges, places of meeting, and Secretaries' names (See Appendix B) ... 19

Passing of by-laws through Mr. Scott's hands; examines all by-laws and rules, and sees that the requirements of the Act are fulfilled; relates what the Act prescribes that the rules shall set forth; increase of Friendly Societies; uniformity in the rules in reference to the amount of dues demanded from members; Registrar having no power to refuse registration on certain grounds; his opinion as to allowing the Societies to settle all differences amongst themselves, cases being better dealt with amongst the Societies themselves, considers there should be a final Court of Appeal to deal with this matter; points out that the Societies have no right to spend money in legal expenses ... 20

Suggests that the Registrar would be the best man as Chairman in the Appellate Board made mention mention of; is clearly of opinion that there should be a distinct Department to deal with these matters; suggests that no Order should have the power to suspend its benefits; points out where the Act is defective; considers the time has arrived when new legislation is necessary; believes the Friendly Societies abolish a great deal of pauperism; question regarding (Appendix C): time fixed for sending in of returns; liability of Secretary of a Lodge under 6th section of Act; Societies working without being registered; defectiveness of returns arising more from ignorance than wilfulness on part of Secretaries ... 21

Question as to Societies failing to submit returns; question relative to suspension of sick pay; mentions fact of Accident Societies proposing to afford greater benefits, on less contributions, than other ordinary Societies; Lodges mixing up management expenses with expense for doctor and medicine; Societies registering the general rules of the Order and then their by-laws; is compulsory that every Lodge or Division should register itself; would be a great advantage if all Orders had a code of rules, rendering them uniform through the various Branches; states one of the chief defects of the laws; compulsory registration workable; speaks of certain Loyal Orange Lodges not being registered; large amount of improvement would be borne by the Act; thinks there should be a plain distinct Act for the Friendly Societies ... 22

Manchester Unity makes returns in pamphlet form; describes in what respects the present Act is defective; question how the Act should be amended to afford security to members; Mr. Scott suggests an official investigation of the accounts of the various Societies; would advocate that contributions should not be sued for; present Act interprets that contributions may be sued for; successful maintenance of several such suits; Act would not be defective so far as Sydney is concerned; Act requiring that the return made by Friendly Societies should furnish not only the number of members of every Society, but also the separate returns of every Order ... 23

Number of Lodges in existence, as approximately given in return; number of defaulters; states number of Lodges of certain Orders who have failed to conform to the requirements of sec. 45; question respecting preparation of tabulated return, showing income, expenditure under various items and balance in hand; is in favour of contributions being uniform, provided benefits are uniform; states number of Lodges shown to have sent in returns for 1880; penalty placed on person working or receiving any money without registration, 45th clause in Part II of the Act, making it imperative on Societies to send every five years a return of the rate or amount of sickness or mortality ... 24

Difference of funds; Act does not afford any power to inflict a penalty on Societies which neglect to give him (Mr. Scott) the returns in accordance with prescribed forms; Societies do send in returns exhibiting the death, number of sick, period of sickness and amount of sick pay; Lodges dissolving with consent—provision in the Act for so doing; question of Societies breaking up for want of funds; irregularity in returns sent in by a certain Society; question relating to the publication of a large amount of returns sent in properly by the Societies serving very largely the purposes for which the Commission is instituted; separation of medicines and medical attendance from management expenses, resulting through some of the Societies protesting against the form in which the returns were called for; examination of rules sent in; their return if not in conformity with the Act; it has never been a rule in office to accept rules at once on account of the fact of their issuing from a certain quarter; describes mode of examination; considers the recovery of contributions by law unjust; explains reason why ... 25

Does not recommend, in any new Act, no power to recover for contributions; is aware of several registered Societies maintaining a pension or superannuation fund; is in favour of the election of a number of persons from the Boards of the Societies by the Societies themselves, and their being a final Court; considers a Board of five or six including the Registrar would be sufficient; compilation of Manchester Unity returns; is in favour of the M. Unity system of compiling returns; would assist him if other Orders did the same; question of arbitrators; Manchester Unity rules being perfect; Societies having it within their own power to form a Board to deal with all questions that arise; independent Board being biased; Societies carrying very trifling matters into Court; gives instance; Societies saving so much in pauperism annually; cause of non-submission of quinquennial returns; Registrar considering it should be a principle laid down that tables of fees taken from members afforded be included in the rules; Mr. Scott's approval of same, provided it is formed on an actuarial basis; mode of action in event of Society failing to meet its obligations under such a regulation ... 26

Mr. Edwin Schofield's evidence.—Is Secretary to the Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows; held that position some five or six months, six months probably; successor to Mr. G. P. Sutton; makes some explanation which would probably throw some light on the position occupied by him on that day; is in possession of all books connected with the Board-room, but not of all those connected with the Society; working of the ramifications of the Society; inability to furnish Commission with return showing ages of persons on joining the respective Lodges as there is no record; declaration as to age and occupation to be made by persons on joining the Order; fixed scale of fees decided upon by the Annual Movable Committee; independent power of that Committee in fixing scale of fees; decision of payment of contributions by Lodges, provided decision is not contrary to general law; question as to what general law is; explanation thereof; principles upon which these contributions are calculated; production of general law (amended); rules adopted at Annual Movable Committee, 1880, and rules of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity, Friendly Society, revised by Grand Master and Board of Directors and adopted by the Birkenhead Annual Movable Committee and amended by succeeding Annual Movable Committee, 1877; authority he (Secretary or the Grand Lodge) has over District or local Lodges; position of Grand Lodge to that of local or District Lodge in the event of one of the Lodges becoming, as it were, insolvent; responsibility the Grand Lodge has in respect to subordinate Lodges in the event of subordinate Lodges being unable to meet their engagements; the subordinate Lodges are not represented at the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge; explanation thereof; definition of what a District is; number of Lodges in the Sydney District; Grand Lodge never coming in direct dealing with an individual Lodge, correspondence or attempts to approach Grand Lodge being accomplished through the District; individual Lodges not sending representatives to the Grand Lodge; illustration of there being no direct connection between the Grand Lodge and the subordinate Lodges; certificate of age in event of death of a person in connection with the Order; existence of sliding scale of initiation; non-existence of sliding scale of contributions in this Colony ... 28

Loan of money from one fund to another; rules, by-laws, regulations, and original documents relative to Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows; annual returns, embodying returns of the subordinate Lodges;

Lodges; verification of returns; gross value of Lodge and District funds; question if ramifications of the Society are connected with any other country or Colony, probable liabilities in reference to claims upon the sick funds; meeting engagements in the event of an emergency arising and exceptionally heavy claims being made on the funds; total expenditure for 1881; total income for the same year... 29

Nine Districts in Colony in connection with Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows; Councils known as Grand Annual Movable Committees; payments for their services to Directors and officers of the Order; payment of costs of the Annual Movable Committees ... 30

Attachment of importance to returns; operation of Friendly Societies Act; highest and lowest contributions paid; regulation of benefits in return for the various contributions; any fund in the hands of the District, or Grand Master, or Board of District, which could be come upon for sick-pay and other benefits in event of any Lodge failing to meet its engagements; regulation of contributions to Widows and Orphans Fund ... 31

Each individual Lodge fixing its own rates of contributions; length of existence of Order in this Colony; Grand Lodge does not call in actuary to see whether accumulated surplus of previous years is sufficient to meet probable contingencies, although done in England; suggests improvement upon the form of return at present sought for by the Registrar; investment of Grand Lodge and District Funds... 32

Guidance of District Trustees; makes valuable suggestion surrounded by matters of considerable importance in connection with Friendly Societies; separation of contributions to the Management Fund from the Sick Fund and Widows and Orphans Fund; division of contributions under stated heads; willingness to afford Commission benefit of his experience as to the manner in which the Friendly Societies Act might be improved ... 33

Adoption of sliding scale as means for overcoming certain difficulties; defectiveness of the Act in several respects; its possessing many beneficial powers if they were only put into force; particulars in which he regards it as defective; general law providing punishment for the violation of the law; practice in the Order in regard to annual return from each individual Society ... 34

Practice in cases when the accounts have been mixed up; each District managing its own Funeral Fund; benefits not uniform; initiation fees not uniform when below a certain scale; registration of Grand Lodge rules being sufficient for all purposes; corresponding Secretaries registering separately and distinctly for all subordinate Lodges; disapproval of a uniform system of rules and by-laws, from his experience in another Society; dealing of matters in dispute; undesirableness that Lodge disputes should appear in the District Courts; illustration of a case of that kind; power under the present Friendly Societies Act to enforce payments of arrears of contributions on the part of members; considered an unwise provision; suggests an amendment; Courts of Appeal considers it would be injudicious to form an independent Court; question of delegates from various Friendly Societies being a reliable, independent, and qualified Court of Appeal; disfavour of such a system ... 35

Payment of 6d. per week to the Funeral Fund, whether sufficient to meet all demands upon that Fund; is of opinion 6d. a week is amply sufficient; liabilities under the Funeral Fund; opening of Strangers Refuge Lodge in Sydney, in connection with Liverpool District of Oddfellows in England; opinion as to qualifications of Secretaries ... 36, 37

Evidence of Mr. John Gelding:—Occupies position of District Officer in connection with the Oddfellows; some of present Friendly Societies Act is very defective indeed; makes statement in respect to defectiveness of 44th clause, &c.; Trustees who had the power of mortgages should also have the power of releasing estates; believes penalties for non-fulfilment in regard to returns quite sufficient if they are acted up to; is of opinion Societies should have exclusive legislation for their management; has known of Lodges in Sydney District raise their contributions because they found themselves going back ... 37

Is of opinion Branch Lodges form part and parcel of the whole body; is in favour of arbitration being confined to bodies themselves; subordinate Lodges do grant relief under the head of "distress gifts"; has never found anything wrong in the Lodge audits; believes members should not be permitted to join more than one sick benefit Lodge; explains why annual return sheet should be greatly altered ... 38

The rates of a good many of the Societies are not sufficient to meet the requirements; does not think it is a wise thing to permit funds of a Society to be expended in building halls; in many places Societies have only public-houses to meet in; thinks if in such places they could get halls it would be a great advantage; has been connected with the Manchester Unity Oddfellows for many years; has had thirteen years experience as District Officer; has studied the Order very materially during that time; movable Lodges may be held in any Districts in the Colony of New South Wales that may be carried by resolution at their annual movable conference; there is just the same governing body in the Districts as that in the head-quarters Lodge ... 39

They are bound by the constitutions of the Order as a whole; respective Lodges under his Order have power to make their own by-laws and fix their own amount of sick-pay and contribution and so on; all subordinate Lodges submit their by-laws or rules to the District Secretary; there is no responsibility attached to governing body in reference to financial position of subordinate Lodges; an Oddfellow from England could join the medical list of one of the Lodges here and thereby receive medical attendance; he pays no more for the privilege than an ordinary member does in New South Wales; receives no contribution whatever from his mother Lodge in the old country, as regards medical benefits; there would be no trouble in furnishing Commission with a return showing ages at which persons entered the respective Lodges and ages of persons who have died as members of the Society for last five years; it would be very valuable indeed to have the ages of members of Lodges when they entered the Order, and at their deaths, in order to have an actuarial calculation; there are a good many defects in present law that require amendment; most of the Societies have violated 41, 43, and 47 clauses; suggests in an amended law, the doing away with altogether of practice of signing document when registering an amended rule, stating that that amended rule is in conformity with the laws relating to the Friendly Societies and swearing it before a Justice of the Peace; there ought to be a separate Department to deal with this matter of Friendly Societies... 40

In all constituted Societies like these large ones, three courses are open for a member to go through, the Lodge, the District, and the high governing body; after member has exhausted these three he has got as much natural justice as any Court of Law would give him; no Courts have attempted to upset the decisions of the governing bodies; the fact shows that substantial justice is done; in dealing with single Societies any members aggrieved at the decisions of the highest governing body might have the power of nominating nominating from other Societies one or more members to whom the dispute could be referred ; there has never been an actuarial calculation of rates and terms in his Society ; believes the 6d. to the Sick and Funeral Funds has been adequate to meet all payments for sickness ; in country Lodges in healthy places it has been found more than sufficient ; should make it imperative in any fresh legislation that all metropolitan and suburban Lodges should pay not less than 6d. ; in some country Lodges it would be quite sufficient, many of them are saving a large amount of money out of that 6d., while Management Fund in meantime goes behind ; every member in Society is levied so much per quarter to keep up the Funeral Fund 41

Funeral donations for a member, £20 ; a member's wife, £15 ; maximum of sick pay, 21s. a week first six months, 15s. for second six months, and 7s. 6d. for next six months ; after that some mutual arrangement is come to ; books, vouchers, property and cash of a Lodge breaking up should go to the District which is virtually responsible ; great numbers of Lodges in his Society have very valuable real property ; the annual returns should contain the ages of both members and members' wives, and their trade or occupation, &c., &c., vide question 1066 42

His impression is that if Societies pay sufficient contributions—something like the Manchester Unity, they would have no occasion to transfer money from one fund to another ; Sick Fund has a greater run upon it than any other fund ; suggests that instead of provision in any fresh legislation for refund by law of moneys taken from one fund to recoup another, Registrar should be given power to see that contributions were made large enough to prevent any necessity for it arising ; it is customary for his Lodge to purchase property for purpose of erecting halls to hold their meetings in ; the funds of Society are not touched for this purpose ; the Newtown Lodge is the most successful in the whole of the Australian Colonies ; knows of no instance where Government have assisted Friendly Societies by giving them grants of land ; the Victorian Commissioner was very much against what the Government has done in that respect in Victoria 43

Evidence of Mr. Alfred Lees Smith.—Is Grand Secretary in the Grand U.O.O. ; has been connected with Society for about ten years ; considers the Act operates well as far as his Society is concerned ; is of opinion it would be a wise provision in any new Bill to be introduced to provide that all local disputes should be settled within the body itself ; has graduated scale of entrance fee according to age ... 44

Society has never any difficulty in meeting its engagements ; amount of money to credit something like £22,000, including all assets ; Lodges framing by-laws to suit their peculiar circumstances submit them to the governing body for their approval ; has never experienced any difficulty or inconvenience of any kind in communicating with Registrar ; the extent of the Friendly Societies would quite justify the establishment of a separate Department to deal with them ; gives purport of communications from "Duke of Edinburgh" Lodge re disturbance in that Lodge ; there are four Districts now, one having been formed during the year ; these Districts control eighty-six Lodges ; is favourable to proposition that management of a Society shall be controlled by arbitration within itself ; his returns are regularly furnished every year to Registrar 45

Number of members in Society about 5,000 ; so far as Sydney is concerned the Widow and Orphan Fund is a separate institution in itself ; a shilling is scarcely sufficient to cover the benefits ; has had some thought that a graduated scale of contribution ought to be made ; describes mode of system adopted in starting a Branch in connection with his Order ; rates of contributions in use here vary with rates existing in the Society in England 46

Society insures to every member a certain annuity or certain superannuation in case of sickness or death ; judging by results, his funds as a general rule have proved sufficient ; does not admit members under any condition at all over the age of forty ; thinks that the experience of his Society for over thirty years is sufficient to establish it as a solvent Society ; considers that his Society from its age has reached what may be called a general average in insurance ; receipts to end of December, 1880, were—£19,713 17s. ; expenditure of Sydney Lodges on account of sick pay, £3,061 4s. 3d. ; amount of funds subscribed for the purposes of the financial fund, £2,576 17s. ; medical benefits, £3,867 11s. 7d., including doctor's attendance and medicines ; cost for the last year of management of the ninety Societies, £1,648 12s. 7d. ... 47

The Funeral Fund, rents and goods and all expenses outside medical benefits are included under the head of Management ; Friendly Societies Act fails to give them sufficient power to deal with the internal management of the Order ; Society can compel persons to pay contributions by taking them to Court ; suggests the appointment of a Board which would have power to obtain the contributions ; member owing 13s. is considered unfinancial ; but under by-law 35 he could be admitted by vote of the Lodge ... 48

Is unacquainted with the working of the Juvenile Branch in connection with his Society ; levies are made to meet all deaths ; a registration fee is charged for every child for which it is intended to claim the funeral donation ; district makes its levies to the Sick and Funeral Fund usually quarterly ; has special provision in their laws for members arriving from England ; each Lodge has two Trustees only with a Treasurer ; a member owing thirteen weeks contributions and not paying is suspended from all benefits until he has made himself financial ; if unfinancial for twelve months, Lodge has power to erase his name from the books ; states particulars in reference to suspension, &c., of Lodge "Sons of Perseverance" 49

6d. of the subscription is always placed to the Sick and Funeral Fund ; cost of doctor and medicine last year, £3,867 11s. 7d. ; the district officer at the District meetings fixes the levies for the Funeral Fund ; has no separate Superannuation Fund to meet cases of disability 50

Does not hold with a Lodge charging half-fees for a month, &c., believes in some instances it has been shown to be beneficial ; neutral Lodges in his District have the management of their affairs entirely in their own hands ; Directors attend Grand Committees every three months 51

Evidence of Mr. Phillip James Newland.—Is Trustee for the Sydney District of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows ; fees and contributions have hitherto met demands upon the Society ; Order is governed by an executive authority, which is elected triennially ; there is a Grand Lodge in England ; there are several features in Act which have not been strictly followed out ; it is almost impossible for Lodges to carry them out ; does not think in the matter of Trustees it is possible for Lodges to carry out the law in reference to Trustees paying the whole of the different moneys as required by the Act ; is in favour of a Board of Arbitration outside the Society whose decision should be final ; his Lodge have several rates of contributions 68

Treasurers give a bond; District Officers have power to order Trustees to draw money out of the Bank; they (District Officers) are responsible to the delegates of the various Lodges, which form District Committee for proper expenditure of money; think that the contributions in a manner should be sufficiently large to defray all claims on the Society without having resort to levies; has a Funeral Fund; has found the system of making levies to meet probable liabilities of Funeral Fund has worked well for twenty-one years ... 69

Has reserve Funeral Fund in his District; it is simply nominal; Act for working of Friendly Societies should be separate entirely from anything else; the six Lodges opened during the past two years have cost on an average £14 each, including dispensation, set of regalia, &c. ... 70

Evidence of Mr. Richd. Cannon.—Is Grand Secretary of Independent Order of Oddfellows; number of Lodges in connection with the Order, 24; representation of subordinate Lodges at the Grand Lodge; produces book of constitution; sufficiency of contributions without resorting to special levies; interpretation of Incidental Fund; Grand Secretary is the medium of communication between the Registrar and the Lodges ... 52, 53

Reference to clauses in Friendly Societies Act requiring amendment; position of Grand Lodge towards Grand Lodge of New South Wales in event of subordinate Lodges collapsing through a run upon their funds; advantages arising from connection with the Supreme Grand Lodge; extraction of fee from each member for maintenance of such connection; difference of rates of contributions ... 54

Auditing of balance-sheets; average per head per member of total funds, up to December, 1881; sufficiency of average per head to meet all liabilities; forms, &c., connected with Friendly Societies in Victoria; formation of Grand Lodge in Colony ... 55

Refusal of Government Actuary in Victoria to certify any Friendly Societies scales as being sufficient to meet the liabilities; probable expense incurred on opening of a new Lodge; guarantee by the Grand Lodge of Funeral Fund ... 56

Management of balance-sheets; guarantee for their correctness; suggests to have such sheets as those of Victorian Registrar; honorary members contributing to funds of the Lodge; investment of Funeral Funds; gives reason for his opinion regarding insufficiency of guarantee as to correctness of his accounts; inaccuracy in the auditing are brought about from the fact of the returns supplied to Registrar not being ample ... 57

Evidence of Mr. W. E. Langley.—Occupies position of Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows; states how Grand Lodge of Australasia is constituted; there are no geographical limits to Districts; gives data from which fees, contributions, Sick and Funeral Funds are fixed; a young man is a more desirable member than an older man ... 58

His approval of differences affecting local interests being dealt with by the bodies themselves; majority of population are involved in the interests of Friendly and Benefit Societies; question of contributions and rates of the Sick and Funeral Fund being submitted to actuarial examination and inquiry; is of opinion that the importance of the Societies would justify the Government in making it a branch of some Department; thinks Registrar General's Department would be the best to attach to it ... 59

Is opposed to system of making special levies; reason for opposition; question of competition ... 60
As a general question, thinks it would be advisable in the passing of any new legislation that greater care should be taken to protect the funds and the members by law, apart from the governing laws of the Order itself; has experienced no difficulty in working the Lodges under the Act; question of fulfilment of clause 8th ... 61

Payment to Officers of the Order; favourable to arbitration being a final Court; Friendly Societies Act affording Members of Societies full power to proceed to law; question relative to inducements to start new Lodges in preference to joining old established Lodges ... 62

Considers a new Act should be much shorter; explanation thereof; value of actuarial opinions; principal on which actuarial calculation should be based; tables of sickness for Benefit Societies should be formed on the same principle that Life Insurance Societies have formed their experience tables; admission of members on opening nights at half-initiation fees is legal; admission of members between eighteen and forty-five at half-fees; special levies are a sham; provision is made to meet cases where from excess of sickness or other causes the Lodge cannot meet its engagement ... 63

Explanation in reference to sovereign body in America ... 64
Branch without members can be registered by promoters of it; advocates uniformity of books for all Lodges; question of subordinate Court trying evidence ... 65

Mr. Langley's opinion of a Court of Appeal being composed of the heads of the various Friendly Societies; Finance Committee did say that the accounts of the auditors were untrustworthy; interpretation of minute "the whole Auditors' report is a muddle" ... 66

His opinion in regard to persons belonging to two Societies and drawing sick pay from both; is unfavourable to Lodge books being audited by a public officer; thinks it would be preferable to have annual returns examined by a Government official, paid by the State; would prefer to see Government establish in connection with the Post Office Provident Societies enabling one to pay in from 1d. to 1s. a week to secure at a certain period or at death payment of a certain sum of money. ... 67

Evidence of Mr. Geo. Bucknall.—Is District Secretary of the Society of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows ... 70

Provision being made for Lodges breaking up; thinks there are too many different Societies mixed up together in the Act for Friendly Societies to distinguish what relates to them and what to Building and other Societies; is decidedly in favour of separate Department to deal with Friendly Societies; matters of dispute should be settled by arbitration; case of a Lodge suspending sick pay for a short period; circumstances of case; result ... 71

Case of misappropriation of funds by an officer; explanation thereof ... 72
Is in favour of actuarial calculation being based on the various experiences of the Societies; initiation fees are fixed at a maximum; knows of case where a Lodge in sound position has admitted members at half-fees ... 73

Is of opinion regalia is unnecessary in the working of a Lodge; has a Widow and Orphan Fund separate from the District; is supported by members paying a small nominal entrance fee, and 1d. a week;

week ; benefits from £5 to £20 ; 6d. of the contribution goes towards the Sick and Funeral Fund ; contributions range from 13d. to 15d. 74

Question of graduated payments ; if they would very materially increase duties of Secretaries, if arbitrarily fixed at entrance and uninterfered with during course of member's attachment of his Lodge ; Mr. Bretmall's views thereon ; incapability of Secretaries to carry out sliding scale in this Colony ; it is not a practice in the Society to examine into the health of the wives 75
Believes initiation fees are not based on correct principles 76

Evidence of Mr. William B. Smith :—Is an accountant resident at Wallerawang, and has held office in connection with the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society 76

Does not think longevity is greater here than in England ; Mr. Ratcliffe's tables taken as a basis by the Victorian Government in the preparation of their tables ; disputes being referred to arbitration, and result of arbitration being complied with ; question of such a course being diametrically opposed to the statute law ; question of Appellant Court being formed out of the respective institutions or governing bodies of the various Societies ; suggests fixing of a minimum rate of contribution, and all tables of rates certified to by a competent person independent of the Society ; question of impossibility to administer the Act, in consequence of insufficient machinery ; thinks provision in Act permitting the investment by Societies of a certain portion of their capital in land or building might be amended 77

Is of opinion that with a few amendments the Act would meet all requirements if properly administered ; does not think a Society charging a uniform rate of a shilling per week can safely afford 20s. sick pay and £25 on a member's death ; decidedly in favour of graduated scale ; difference in rates of contribution on comparison of Australian Mutual Society's tables with Mr. Hayter's tables in Melbourne ; his approval of members joining more than one Society ; question of incorporating a provision in any new Friendly Societies Act to allow a Society to lend to its members for purposes of building ... 78

Considers the present basis on which large Societies are worked is unfair to their members ; is of opinion that a valuation should be regularly made by public valuers ; is of opinion 1s. 3d. would be a fair average contribution to give benefits such as are generally afforded by Friendly Societies ; favourable to regalia being done away with in all Friendly Societies ; considers that the unscientific basis of calculations at present in operation acts prejudicially to the Societies ; describes in what way ; favourable to Societies being formed upon purely commercial principles ; is of opinion Societies would largely increase their operations if commercial principles were adopted 79

Mr. Smith's opinion regarding value of returns sent in by various branches ; thinks it would be better for members if the Societies were formed into a sort of Mutual Provident Association ; believes generally that the Act is sufficient 81

Mr. Smith's belief that if some of the old Societies could afford the Commission forty years' experience of sickness and mortality it would undoubtedly be the best basis obtainable upon which to frame a sliding scale ; matter of a member aggrieved at the decision of a Board of Arbitration, having right to appeal to a Court of Law ; considers it would be injudicious for all bodies to have geographical limits ... 82

Evidence of Mr. P. R. Holdsworth :—Occupies position of Most Worthy Scribe or General Secretary for Australasia, in the National Division of the Sons of Temperance ; similarity with one or two exceptions, of the contributions and benefits to those of other institutions ; have a sliding scale for the initiation of members ; contribution of nearly all the Lodges in connection with the institution to the Funeral Fund ; question of anything in connection with Benefit Societies being similar to Life Insurance ; principle on which the contributions and Sick and Funeral Fund are fixed ; object of having details of initiations, ages of wives, and death rate 83

Reason of sick rate being much lower than that of any other Society ; total abstinence the cause of the greater longevity of its members ; is of opinion the present Act is too complex 84

Remarks relative to present Act ; considers that provision should be made that on the medical certificate the doctor should be compelled to certify to age of the party ; favourable to a separate Act of Parliament dealing with Friendly Societies ; provision by Government of machinery and officers for a Department to deal with Friendly Societies, the Societies being a relief to the Government ; probable existence of greater amount of pauperism without these Societies ; dealing generally of cases of dispute by arbitration ; superior powers being imperative in the large Societies ; interpretation of term "superior powers" ; is of opinion that all disputes in connection with Societies should be settled by themselves, by Final Court of Appeal fixed by themselves ; describes principal reasons causing Lodges to collapse or die out of existence 85

Is assuredly in favour of sliding scale ; question of actuaries in England advocating the establishment of a sliding scale for Friendly Societies ; advisability of having in new Act a few clauses embracing a general basis for Friendly Societies ; considers present Act defective 86

Question relative to members of Guild reaping greater advantages than other Benefit Societies; is of opinion that the State should exercise careful supervision over Benefit Societies; in favour of annual audits by Government Auditors; periodical valuation of assets and liabilities of all Benefit Societies; correct annual returns being forced on the Societies; question of Guild Hall being source of profit to Society; question of liabilities of a Society increasing as the ages of its members increase ... 124

Members taken as security; question of insisting upon a guarantee bond from a Society; table showing amount of money paid on behalf of District for sick and funeral donations; question of mortuary rate for last three half-years; interpretation of term "exceptionally high" ... 125

Evidence of Mr. J. Crowley:—Has been a member of the A. H. C. Guild; joined in 1869; ceased to be a member twelve months since; reason of resignation; question relative to purchase of land for Hall in Liverpool-street; question of defalcation alleged to have taken place in 1875-1876; states particulars; question of deficiency upon the receipts ... 126

Question of sufficiency of present Act; Mr. Crowley's opinion of present position of Guild; Guilds have uniform contribution; would prefer a fixed scale of contributions and a large entrance fee, according to age; approves of practice of keeping accounts separate; question of separation of funds; considers 14d. per week is sufficient to secure benefits... 127

Question of sufficiency of Act to regulate the working of Friendly Societies, unfair administration of the Act; the cause of position Society now occupies ... 128

Compilation of Return by the various Branches; suggestions in regard to auditing by a Government officer; in favour of an actuarial certificate in the establishment of new Societies; would favour provision provision in any new Act for a periodical investigation into the affairs of Societies; question of Friendly Societies Act making provision for dealing with persons misappropriating funds of a Society; quotation of third rule of laws of Society ... 129

Question of expense in the Guild in lawsuits for some time; thinks Societies ought to be assisted by Government; approves of the principle of the Mutual Provident Society; question relative to initiation fees; would have levies by means of which a prosperous Branch would help a weaker Branch ... 130

Evidence of Mr. William Brady:—Is a member of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild; has held office of Councillor and Warden; questions and statements anent sale of land in Liverpool-street, loss on transaction, &c.; allusion to some defalcations occurring in connection with the management of Society; question of balance-sheet of 1876 showing a deficiency of £1,495; has experienced no inconvenience from Friendly Societies Act ... 131

Evidence of Mr. Ed. J. Rubie:—Has been a member of A. H. C. Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph since 1848; has been Chief Officer or Warden for about twenty-one years; opinion of present general management of Society; deplorable condition at present time of the financial position of Society; is opposed to uniform system of contribution; approves of graduated system of initiation fees; Mr. Rubie's opinion with reference to present Friendly Societies' Act; has found no inconvenience from the present Act; thinks Act is not fully administered; explains why; is dissatisfied with present management; reference to loss of some £1,455 disclosed on balance-sheet ... 132

Is not in favour, in new Act, of Government officers being appointed to audit accounts, provided Auditors of sufficient ability can be found by each Society; would favour a periodical valuation of the assets and liabilities; members forfeit whole of benefits when expelled; desirability in such cases of having a certain proportion of the benefits refunded; special Auditors making misstatement; question of duty of Government, considering the importance of the Friendly Societies, to prevent such a thing in future ... 133

Evidence of Mr. J. A. Kean:—Is President of the United Independent Order of Druids ... 133
Is unable to afford Commission any information as to the financial working of the Society; states amount of contribution, and benefits paid; approves of uniform contributions ... 134

Method of deciding cases of dispute between members in his Lodges; object of revising rules; nature of proposed amendments; has never been brought to clash with Friendly Societies Act; does not believe the Act provides all the protection that is required for a Friendly Society; question relative to financial position of a certain Lodge ... 135

Question relative to members and funds of certain Lodges; formation of Management Fund; question of failure of Lodges, &c.; question of annual report of 1881 setting forth same facts as disclosed in report of previous year; work performed by Auditors, generally speaking, is satisfactory and reliable; considers there should be a general inspection of Friendly Societies through the country, to watch and protect their members and funds ... 136

States cost of officers' regalia; is thoroughly opposed to Lodges being empowered to proceed to law for recovery of dues; question of Friendly Societies investing in building halls; relationship with Branches of the Order; question of arrangements in connection with clearances; controlling of actions of members occupying public positions; states that time has arrived when men and families with their little contributions at stake have a perfect right to be protected ... 137

Evidence of Mr. H. M. Makinson:—Is a member of the firm of Ellis and Makinson; were solicitors, 1875, for the Friendly Society, known as the Holy Catholic Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph; states particulars respecting action brought by the Guild against Mr. Callachor for neglecting his duties as Secretary; copies of special audits "A and B" made by Mr. Carroll, vide pages ... 138, 139

Financial and general statistics; questions and statements relative to certain Lodges ... 140
Limit of ages to which members are admitted; has rules specifying that matters of dispute between members and Lodges shall be referred to arbitration; question of Lodges going to the law Courts to decide matters of dispute between members and Lodges; question relative to payment to medical officer for members over twelve months in arrears; does not consider the Act is worked at all; describes how he think it fails; regards the Act itself is sufficient to afford protection to the various Friendly Societies, but does not think it is a good one; superiority of Melbourne Act; states provision he refers to; maintains that the submission of returns of each Lodge through the District Grand Secretary is the proper thing to do; thinks uniform scale of charges the best; is not in favour of a uniform rate of funeral allowance; mode of investment of funds of District; question of a Lodge failing to meet its engagements falling back on the District ... 141

Is not in favour of sliding scale of contributions; question of £5 as bonus to members who open new Lodges; his opinion about a Board of Arbitration; has always maintained that all the rules of Friendly Societies should be registered free of cost; his opinion in regard to Government appointing a person competent to deal with Friendly Societies specially for that purpose, to be paid by the Government; considers it duty of Government to appoint an Auditor to audit the accounts once a year; his approval of Government appointing an Actuary to investigate Societies before being allowed to register themselves; is of opinion present Act is deficient in many ways; amount paid by members in accouchement cases; thinks returns should be more elaborate and explicit; question of advisability of assimilation of the returns and provisions of the Act in this Colony to those of Victorian measure ... 142

Would like to see the Guarantee Society introduced in respect to security by officers; question of scale of graduated sick payments; is in favour of Government having a revising barrister; question of provision of Actuary to revise the returns of the various Lodges; thinks all communications should pass through Grand Secretary ... 143

Is in favour of a compulsory quinquennial return being rendered; is opposed to Lodges holding their meetings in public-houses; would not be an advantage if Government started a National Friendly Society ... 144

Evidence of Mr. Arthur Walker:—Is President of Protestant Alliance No. 1 Friendly Society; gives the reason for his Society not amalgamating with the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia when that Society was formed; states financial position of Lodge, &c.; is in favour of adoption of graduated scale ... 145

Friendly Societies Act has not by any means been prejudicial to working of his Society; mentions benefits given by his Society; admit none but Protestants; members are not deprived of any of the privileges set forth in rules except for misconduct; has never put the law into operation with respect to persons failing to pay contributions; questions relative to total amount of subscriptions paid by members per week, Widow and Orphan Fund, salary to officers, &c., &c. ... 146

Thinks it would be better for each Society to settle its own affairs; question of affording members power to appeal to the Civil Courts; is sure a superannuation fund would be useful; has found present Act sufficient for his requirements ... 147

States amount of money given when children die; no entrance fee is paid to register children ... 148

Evidence of Mr. Geo. Gibson:—Holds office as Grand Master of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia; has held various other offices; present number of members about 8,000; states rates of payments for all his benefits; amount of invested funds and how invested; nature of power exercised over Lodges by the Society ... 149

Is in favour of a graduated scale of contributions; has heard expressions relative to many young men being deterred from joining the Societies under the impression that they are made to pay for older members; approves of present Act in the main, but not of its administration; points out faults he finds with it; his opinion respecting an Actuary to examine the tables of the various Societies; his opinion in regard to admission of joining members at half initiation fees; thinks it would be a good idea to have one member from each Society to form a Board of Arbitration; does not think there would be any difficulty in adopting sliding scale in this country; believes Societies should be made perfectly solvent as far as practicable ... 149

Manner in which the Society is conducted; advocates adoption of Superannuation Fund; states cause of dissolution of some of the Branches of the Society; gives particulars of certain cases of embezzlement; recognition of allopaths only; question of it being advantageous, in any future legislation, that the Act should lay down merely the financial basis upon which a Society should be formed, &c., &c. ... 150

Mr. Gibson's observations in reference to English Friendly Societies Act ... 151

Evidence of Mr. Mark P. Ronan:—Was one of the special Auditors who audited the accounts of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild in 1876; questions and explanations with regard to certain sum put in as loss in balance-sheet (produced) ... 152

Evidence of John Francis McDonald:—Is a member of the Holy Catholic Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph; has held office of Warden for three years; has always taken exception to small amount of entrance money; in favour of graduated scale of contributions according to age; states inconvenience in the working of the Friendly Societies Act; does not consider, if the decision of the Courts in reference to suing for arrears were taken, that the present Act affords sufficient security to members of Friendly Societies; question of members being entitled to receive funeral donations in case of death if fourteen weeks in arrears in Society ... 152

Members over twelve months in arrears should be expelled; present system of certifying to anything the Registrar may have brought before him is not what it should be; minimum contribution of 15d. is the best; favourable to adoption of sliding-scale; is his opinion that a young man of eighteen should pay as much as a man entering between thirty and forty; thinks opening of Lodges at half-fees is injurious; cannot say he has experienced any difficulty in administering his Society under the present Act; objects to provision in present Act allowing organization of Societies on a very low scale ... 153

Provision in any new legislation of an arbitrary scale of initiation fees might be met by the Act requiring an actuary to certify to the tables before they become law; particulars of lawsuit in connection with a Branch at St. Leonards; quotes rule in reference to disputes being referred to and decided by arbitration ... 154

Evidence of Mr. J. F. M'Crory:—Is District Secretary of the Hibernian Society; general and financial statistics; Society is not registered under New South Wales Friendly Societies Act; question of Registrar registering rules that have been registered by the Victorian Registrar; position of member over thirteen months in arrears; action in case of death; legal proceedings are sometimes taken in cases of members over twelve months in arrears failing to pay ... 155

Is opposed to the course of taking legal proceedings; Friendly Societies Act of New South Wales does not afford enough power to officers of Branches; states what powers they ought to possess; question of bond from Treasurer; investment of funds; particulars of a case of defalcation; method of dealing with matters of dispute in his Lodge ... 156

Further evidence of Mr. J. F. M'Crory:—General and financial statistics respecting the St. Thomas, Petersham, Lodge, and other Lodges ... 158

Question with regard to fairness to members of Friendly Societies to be constantly recurring to levies, &c.; question of management; Expense Fund going back in a good many of the Lodges; Mr. M'Crory's explanation of cause of such irregularity ... 159

Evidence of Mr. James Robert M'Keown:—Is Secretary of the St. Patrick's Branch of the Hibernian Australian Catholic Benefit Society; general and financial statistics ... 159

Has suffered no inconvenience in the working of his Society, arising from Friendly Societies Act; manner of settlement of disputes; thinks 1s. a week sufficient to insure the benefits his Society offers; states benefits afforded; how a Lodge works with members who may quit the District and proceed up-country; explains reason why so many members leave his Society; time a member ceases paying contributions before becoming unfinancial; thinks the present annual returns are as perfect as they should be; would be an improvement if returns showed ages of members entering and of those that died; thinks thinks a Board of Arbitrators would answer very well; reason why; considers that Friendly Societies should certainly not be compelled to pay for registration of their rules; is in favour of a sliding scale of contributions; is in his estimation a hardship that young men should pay as much as old men; his opinion of making members pay levies in addition to weekly contributions; believes that every member joining a Society should start on an equal basis 160

Amount of capita tax paid by his Lodge to Executive in Melbourne; benefits derived through transmission of such money; is not in favour of suing for arrears; if any future legislation continued the right to sue for arrears, would limit it to a year's subscription; reason why; Act has not in any case acted prejudicially to the interests of his Society; does not find the matter of returns tedious or beyond the capabilities of his Secretaries to make out; recommends the establishment of a Pension Fund for aged or permanently disabled members; question of reconciliation of clause 11, rule 105, with Mr. M'Keown's statement in reference to there being no signs or passwords being used in his Society, &c.; is of opinion that the contribution and not rate of initiation is the mainstay of a Society; states circumstances which brought about the fact of his members going to law; has summoned members for arrears; is favourable to Societies, before they are started, having their affairs submitted to actuaries, and to abide by the results 160

Evidence of Mr. Thos. Cowlshaw:—Occupies the office of President of the Australian Union Benefit Society; has previously held office as Secretary; general and financial statistics; has found no inconvenience arising from Friendly Societies Act; matters of dispute are settled by a Committee; regards Society in a sound financial position; funds have accumulated from contributions and the general revenue proper of the Society 162

Production of copies of laws governing his Society 163

Question of the Society fixing the smallest contribution from members, and yet having an accumulated fund largely in excess of the average; Mr. Cowlshaw's explanation thereof; question of extreme care that malingering members shall not be placed on the sick list, ever being a hardship; has a scale of benefits according to the amount in hand 164

Thinks he would favour a graduated scale of entrance fees; is of opinion graduated benefits cause a deal of confusion and unpleasantness; nature of Society's Superannuation Fund; thinks disputes should be settled by arbitration, and that Societies should not be subject to law proceedings; Society has never had occasion to find fault with the operation of the present Act; forms of return have been considered more than sufficient; make no provision for members departing from Sydney into the country; does not think a sliding scale of contributions, or a fixed amount being put to all benefits received, is a good thing 165

Thinks that 3s. a month is sufficient for all purposes to enable Societies to give benefits such as those given by his Societies; adds that the claims of a new Society would not be anything like what they are in theirs, as the majority of members would be young men; thinks graduated scale of admission should be made according to the age of the member 166

Evidence of Mr. Frederick Alexander Morgan:—Is Secretary of the Captain Cook Tent, Independent Order of Rechabites; was formerly connected with the Albury Tent; general and financial statistics ... 167

Members have to be sixteen weeks in arrears before they are disqualified from participation in the benefits of membership; suspension for a further period of sixteen weeks after they are sixteen weeks in arrears; they then cease to be members; has not in this Colony proceeded against any non-paying members for recovery of arrears of contributions; method of dealing with matters of dispute between the officers and the Tent; question of appeal; question as to whether the contributions paid by Society's members are sufficient; Mr. Morgan's views of the matter; gives full sick pay for twelve months, at £1 per week—quotes Rule 43; thinks Friendly Societies Act of New South Wales is comparatively useless as far as he can see; Act might be amended and made more useful; was never furnished with form of return required by the Act until this year; should like to see a provision in future legislation that quarterly payments should not be below a certain standard, whatever it may be that may be deemed sufficient; his Society is based upon total abstinence principles; is in favour of a periodical investigation of the assets and liabilities of the Societies; does not consider the supervision at present exercised by the Registrar of the Friendly Societies sufficient; preparation and publication each year by Government authority of tabulated statements of each Society would be very useful; no levy is made on members to sustain Funeral Fund 169

States Victorian form of return is far more elaborate and more comprehensive than that issued by Registrar of this Colony; question of desirability in any future legislation to weight an Act of Parliament with a number of details which might be properly dealt with by Societies themselves, or that the Friendly Societies Act should lay down only a certain sound financial basis upon which every Society could be properly and safely carried on; Mr. Morgan's views thereon 170

Thinks present Act would be productive of greater benefit if it was more strictly administered; rule relating to forfeiture of one-third of funeral money by wife of deceased member in event of the introduction with her consent of intoxicants into house during the funeral 171

Does not approve of a sliding-scale; thinks present system of medical examination of candidates is sufficiently serviceable 172

Question of accumulation of funds for the benefit of the Funeral Fund being invested in Halls... 173

Evidence of Mr. Albert B. Fordham:—Represents the Crystal Spring Tent, No. 247, Independent Order of Rechabites; general and financial statistics 173

As far as his knowledge goes, the present Act affords all the security which the members of Friendly Societies require; his Society has not at any time sued any of its members to recover arrears in the payment of members; is not aware of any liability towards a defaulting member after he becomes thirteen months in arrears; approves of provision in the Act giving Societies the power of recovering arrears by legal process; would permit members to go into arrears two quarters before the officers proceed against them; has nothing special to suggest except having a systematic entrance fee—a uniform fee; does not think a graduated scale of entrance fee or the half-fee system productive of good; favours the principle of young men of eighteen paying as much as men of forty in the shape of weekly contributions; remarks that the entrance fee should be graduated according to age; accounts for the total amount of expenditure he has

has given; Rechabites have been in existence in New South Wales for three and a-half or four years; hat no record of the Rechabites in 1842; has no records of the Tents which existed eight or nine years ago as Wallsend; is in favour of a fixed rate of contribution... .. 174

Thinks that a single young man of eighteen should pay just as much as a married man of twenty-five or thirty with two or three children; thinks he could afford reasons for holding that opinion if he had an opportunity of fairly considering the matter; observes that if young men be allowed to join upon such exceedingly low rates, it would practically lay upon the shoulders of the older men the burden of keeping up the Tent for the benefits of the young members; that is his experience in connection with the Rechabites; should be some preventive of the practice of allowing members to enter upon reduced entrance fees and half-fees; does not make much difference what initiation fee is charged, so long as the rate of contribution is adequate to carrying out of the Tent or the Lodge; adds that if there was not a sufficiently high initiation fee, and sickness came upon those members who had joined under those exceptionally favourable conditions, they would become a drag upon the Society; his inability to answer question as to what difference the initiation fee makes as compared with an adequate weekly contribution; reduced rate of initiation if taken in conjunction with a small rate of contribution, would seriously prejudice the financial stability of a Society; his Society is a Temperance Benefit Society; a member violating his pledge is deprived of all benefits only until he is re-obligated; has got no superannuation fund; Society makes provision for arbitration in disputes between members and the Society, by the matter being referred to chief ruler, &c.; Society makes provision for protection of minorities by falling back on head office in Melbourne for their benefits 175

Evidence of Mr. William Benton:—Represents the Grand United Order of Free Gardeners; has been a member fourteen months; Society has been in existence upwards of three years; has held office of Secretary; general and financial statistics 176

Evidence of Mr. George Lucas:—Is a member of the Free Gardeners Benefit Society; holds office of Master of the Lodge; contributions 1s. per week; amount of funds in hand at the end of last year, £70 11s. 8d.; amount paid away last year account of sickness, £100 7s. 8d., benefits, £1 per week sick pay, £20 at death of member, £10 death of member's wife; total amount of income, £270 16s.; credit balance £70 11s. 8d.; thinks Friendly Societies' Act might be improved by a little alteration; approves of principle embodied in the Act under which officers of a Lodge having power to sue members who fall into arrears; members of his Society are allowed to go into arrears fourteen weeks before they forfeit their right to benefits; members are after expiration of that time suspended from all participation in the benefits of membership; matters of dispute between members and the officers are referred to District Lodge; if decision of that body does not give satisfaction, the parties have right to appeal to the Grand Lodge in Victoria... .. 176

Society does not send any capitation tax or other moneys to Victoria because it is registered in New South Wales; has a graduated scale of initiation fee; considers the system of medical examination as it is carried out is sufficient for all purposes; thinks questions put by Doctor are sufficiently explicit if the examination is an honest one; does not think the medical examination goes far enough in some cases; Doctor gets no special fee for examination; Dr. Warren is medical officer to Society; approves of a uniform system of contribution, making all, young and old, pay alike; has no suggestion to make which might be of service in future legislation; considers his total payments of 15s. per quarter sufficient to ensure full benefits to every member; is perfectly satisfied with the present state of things; has been a member of a Friendly Society about eight years; consider 15s. per quarter sufficient for any Lodge to guarantee the benefits that a Friendly Society offers; forms such opinion upon data that having £70 in one fund, and getting 2s. a quarter from each member to meet claims on the other fund considers they are in a position to pay their way; has not given the matter of the rate of contingent liabilities accruing in connection with each member any consideration; thinks that an accumulation of 15s. per member after all expenses are paid would be sufficient to make the Society financially sound; Auditors appointed by the Lodge are as a rule the best men; in his Society accounts are supposed to be audited by a city solicitor or public accountant once in five years; has furnished annual returns to the Registrar; Lodges right throughout the Order make levy upon its members in the event of death; pays 2s. per quarter levy to District Management Fund, whether there are any deaths or not; has no Widow and Orphans Fund; no Superannuation Fund; states it is a matter of indifference to him whether the Government appoint an Actuary and a Registrar or not; is perfectly satisfied with the present Act; does not think it advisable to allow Friendly Societies who have exhausted their funds, and are out of compliance with Parent Society, to be able to start under a new name for themselves and on their own account 178

Evidence of Mr. Peter Forbes:—Is Grand Secretary of the Loyal Orange Benefit Society of Australasia; established since 1876; has held present office since 1881; Grand Lodge had a total of £85 1s. 1d. at the end of December last; is made up by three distinct funds—the Grand Lodge Contingent Fund, the Funeral Fund, and the Clearance Fund; amount to credit of Funeral Fund, £68 0s. 2d.; Income from all sources as follows: brought forward from 1880, £16 17s., less £3 overdraft on Treasurer; contributions—Funeral Fund, £86 15s. 10d.; Management Expense Fund, £63 18s. 4d.; Clearance, £5 19s. 6d. Expenses have been—Funeral donations, £30; working expenses, £8 7s. 4d., and expenses of Grand Lodge, £51 19s. 7d., making a total of £91 3s. 11d.; deducting that from income leaves a balance of £85 1s. 1d. Society admits only those who are Protestants; collect no special fund for regalia; forty-five years is the limit of age at which members are admitted; scale of initiation fees, from under twenty to forty-five, from 5s. up to £2 10s. Society has recently been brought under a proper footing with the Friendly Societies Act... .. 179

Thinks 1s. 1d. is a sufficiently high rate of contribution to meet all the liabilities which the Society incurs, provided the Lodges are properly conducted; benefits proposed to be paid to members, £20 on death of a member and £10 on death of member's wife; has Clearance Fund by which members may be relieved from one District to another, and not be going upon Lodges not responsible for them; Grand Lodge is constituted by four members delegated from each Lodge; each delegate pays his own expenses; benefits may be suspended by vote of the Lodge at a specially summoned meeting; if a Lodge got into such a position it could continue to offer the same benefits, they would have to adopt above measure; would be better to have the affairs of a Society put upon a sound basis to avoid such a measure, but if an epidemic epidemic broke out in a District, and a number of deaths took place in a Lodge very quickly, there would be no alternative but to either suspend the law or raise the contributions; appointed Trustees only have the power to sign all cheques and draw money from the Bank for the Funeral Fund; Committee revising rules considered it would not be wise to register any particular amount of contribution, because amount necessary for the country Lodges varied so much that it could not be uniformly fixed ... 180

 Thinks it would be a very good thing if the Government were to undertake the examination of the accounts of the Friendly Societies ... 181

Evidence of Mr. Robert Dixon Sippe:—Holds office of Secretary of the Wesleyan or Protestant Union Benefit Society; has been member of Society seventeen years; has 136 members at present; amount of accumulated funds £2,118 2s. 6d.; funds are invested in the Savings Bank; this money is invested in the names of two Trustees and the Treasurer; receipts from contribution during 1881, £301, 8s. 0d.; amount received on account of interest, £74 15s. 10d.; total amount of expenditure for sick pay, medical attendance, &c., £315 17s. 8d.; receipts for last year included a balance in hand of £1,947 6s. 2d.; contributions, fines, &c., gave a total of £376 3s. 10d.; total expenditure £315 ...
 Total assets of the Society, £2,050 0s. 4d.; amount paid during past five years on account of sick pay, £330 10s.; amount paid during five years on account of funeral donations, £297 10s.; cost of doctor and chemist during five years, £772 3s. 9d.; cost on management during that period, exclusive of medicine and doctor, £261 14s. 10d.; members pay 3s. 6d. per month, with levy of 1s. on account of death of a member's wife, and 2s. on the death of a member; members receive £1 per week during first six months of sickness, and 10s. during the second six months; members continuing sick beyond that period receive a superannuation allowance of 5s. a week for life or as long as he remains sick; funeral allowance in accordance with following scale:—If member die in any year from after the first year's membership to ten years, £20; with ten and fifteen years, £25, always provided deceased has been a member for twelve months; after expiration of twelve months from date of his entrance a member of Society is allowed funeral allowance on death of his wife in accordance with following scale:—If she die in any year after first year's membership within ten years, £10; from within ten years and fifteen, £12 10s.; from within fifteen years and twenty, £15; if over twenty years membership, £17 10s.; is provided that if accumulated funds of Society should be reduced to less than £800 funeral allowance shall in no case exceed £20 on death of member or £10 on death of member's wife; has found no inconvenience whatever from operations of the Friendly Societies Act; has observed no way in which it might be amended with advantage to the Societies; matters of dispute are settled at committee meetings; is in favour of fixed rate instead of levies; thinks audits every three years would be sufficient; has had deaths in his Society at various ages between sixty and forty; after a sick member has received so many weeks pay he is placed on the superannuation list ... 182
 Does not think present form of return could be better than it is; states it would be some advantage if Government would exercise greater supervision over the operations of Friendly Societies than at present; thinks it would be a very good thing if a tabulated statement was prepared and published by Government in reference to each Society throughout the Colony; would be to the benefit of the Societies if the penalties against defaulting Societies as stated in Act were enforced ... 183

Evidence of Mr. Geo. H. Green:—Holds office as Secretary of the Sydney Marine Benefit Society; initiation fees for 1881, £24; contributions, £939 8s. 6d.; paid on account of sick pay, £477 9s.; on account of funeral donations, £108 19s.; on account of doctor and chemist, £379 6s. 6d. ... 183
 Total expenditure for 1881, £4,046 8s. 3d.; has a Contingent Fund; each member pays 1s. per quarter; total expenditure on account of Consolidated Fund for 1881, £456 17s. 5d.; total income, £456 17s. 6d.; investments on account of Sick and Funeral Fund, Savings Bank of New South Wales, £3,542 19s.; in Treasurer's hand, 9s.; investments on account of Contingent Fund, Savings Bank of New South Wales, £175 9s. 8d.; in Treasurer's hand, 9s. 2d.; good debts, &c., £233 16s. 6d.; total investments, £3,961 16s. 2d.; members pay 1s. per week contribution, benefits, £1 1s. per week 1s. 6d. month; 10s. 6d. per week for next six months; at expiration of that time (the member having received the aforesaid benefits) the Society will deal with his case as they deem necessary; £20 is paid to widow, child (if of age), executors, or administrators upon death of any member who has been fully twelve months in Society whose arrears having at no one time amounted to over 14s. during the fourteen weeks previous to his decease; member fully twelve months in Society and not been in arrears over fourteen weeks for fourteen weeks previous to death of wife shall, on her decease, receive the sum of £10; any members allowing his arrears to exceed 14s. shall be unfinancial, and not entitled to any benefits of the Society; believe 1s. per week is sufficient to insure all benefits his Society promises ... 184
 Has always found Registrar of Friendly Societies settle disputes satisfactory; operations of Society are entirely restricted to seafaring men; has no difficulty in working rule 76; members having a dispute and not being satisfied with Society's decision is invariably referred to Mr. Oliver; Contingent Fund is principally made up by the contribution of 1s. per quarter from each member; levy is made for payment of funeral donations if funds of Society fall below £500; thinks the doctors should be made a little more strict ... 185
 Has used rule 55 on one occasion only; believes it would be a capital plan to have an arbitration Board, to be final board of arbitration, thereby preventing Society disputes being dragged before law courts; three members are elected to carry out audit ... 186

Evidence of Mr. Otto Murer:—Has been a member of the German Benefit Association Society for fourteen years; has 115 members at present; total value of accumulated funds about £1,300 in the Bank, exclusive of value of some furniture; amount of subscriptions received during 1881, £439 15s.; amount paid in sick pay during that year, £86; on account of funeral donations during 1881, £34 12s. 6d. ... 186
 On account of doctor, £115 10s.; on account of chemist, £80 12s. 2d.; total expenditure for half-year 1881, £175; contributions, 1s. per member; when death occurs members pay 6d. per week extra; has no branch Lodges; members are all Germans, except a few natives of German parentage; is registered under Friendly Societies Act; can work very well with subscription of 1s. per week; do not admit any members over 45; has never heard any complaint relative to Friendly Societies Act; the Society is quite independent; income income for last five years, £2,453 13s.; expenditure for same period, £2,355 12s. 7d.; is quite certain there is contingent liability accruing as members increase in age; thinks there should be some control over Friendly Societies ... 187

Examining of his accounts by Government officer would give some trouble, because all books are kept in German ... 188

Evidence of Mr. James King.—Is Secretary of the St. Patrick's Burial Society; Society gives no benefits beyond the burial-fees, except a bonus to members who have been in the Society for ten years; contributions according to age from half-penny to 1½d. per week; member having a child born legally has to register child to Secretary; in event of child's death within one month from registration member is entitled to sum of £1 10s.; exceeding one month to ten years, £3, exceeding ten years to sixteen, £5; exceeding sixteen years, £8; members must belong to the Society before entitlement to the benefits; amount of funds, £426 13s. 0½d.; scale of entrance fees according to age, from 6d. to 8s.; person admitted above the age of 40 have to pay the yearly contribution for each year or part of the year they are over 40 years of age, together with usual entrance fee; most of the funds are invested in the Savings' Bank; people can ensure their children for the Burial Fund at any age; receipts for last quarter, £51 9s. 5½d. ... 189

Evidence of Mr. W. Dike.—Is Secretary of the Sydney United Labourers' Society; is registered under the Friendly Societies Act; number of members, 394; amount of contribution, 3d. per week; benefits, member meeting with accident 10s. per week for twelve weeks if twelve months in the Lodge; payment on death of member, £7; if a good contributing member for five years, £10; if for seven years, £15; payment on death of a member's wife, £7; cost of management last year, about £94 16s.; amount paid for accidents during last year, £33 3s. 4d.; amount paid during last five years, £142 12s. 6d.; amount on account of death during last year, £7; during last five years, £94; has no doctor or chemist; amount of accumulated funds, £956 2s. 1d.; amount of subscription last year, £188 2s. 6d.; total income for 1881, £274 7s. 10d.; initiation fees, 2s. 6d., has found no difficulty in the working of the Society; Friendly Societies Act has afforded all the protection necessary to secure funds and payment of benefits promised; Societies laws demand a certificate in the case of sick members; has given money in the shape of distress gifts ... 190

Audit is carried on by three auditors quarterly; would not be in favour of accounts being supervised by a Government officer; thinks it decidedly objectionable to meet in a public-house; would not reject a man not in the best of health so long as his character was good; floating portion of his Society is decidedly larger than that of other Societies; sees no objection to a Board of Arbitration to whom would be referred matters of dispute ... 191

Has no recommendation to make with a view to future legislation ... 192

Evidence of Mr. Augustine A. Fitzpatrick.—Is at present Secretary of Court Royal Oak Ancient Order of Foresters; total amount of income, £622 17s. 8d.; expenditure, £583 4s. 8d.; deposit in Bank, £1,700; had a total value of £1,865 10s. 1d. at the end of the year; payments on account of medical attendance and chemist, £217 17s. 8d.; on account of funeral donations, £120; on account of sick pay, £127 15s.; contributions, 1s. a week and 1s. every three months towards Incidental Fund; benefits, £20 on death of a member, £15; on death of member's wife, and after three years £30 from the Society, and for 2d. a week extra £15 from the Widow and Orphan Fund ... 193

Gross expenditure of Society during last four years, £2,829 13s. 5½d.; gross receipts during that time, £2,633 0s. 6d., total receipts for year, including two years interest, £763 7s. 9d.; former view of fixed scale of contributions; has a graduated scale of charges for the admission of members; is quite clear 1s. a week is enough to ensure all benefits; there is no sick pay; has an Appeal Committee to settle matters of dispute in his Court; moneys are invested in Trustees in the Savings' Bank; has found no inconvenience arising from the present Act; thinks any town member owing £1 in the Court should not be entitled to the burial fee ... 194

Is in favour of a Government officer making an annual audit of the books of all Societies; members pay a registration fee of 2s. 6d. for payment of money on the death of a child; the smaller the working expenses and careful management of funds of a Society have as much to do with the results as the scale of contributions and benefits ... 195

Amount of donation given on the death of a child, 30s.; members receive when sick six months full pay, and twelve months half-pay; cannot come on the Order again until he is off the funds two years; any member of the Court leaving the Australian Colonies are deprived of sick benefits; would have no objection, in any new Act to an Arbitration Board outside of his Society to decide finally on all questions of dispute ... 196

Evidence of Mr. Thos. Forsyth.—Is Secretary of Court, Pride of Australia Ancient Order of Foresters; amount of funds at present time a trifle over £1,100; number of members, 180; total receipts for last year, £422 19s. 7d.; total expenditure for a like period, £397 13s. 4½d.; amount paid to doctor, £164 10s. 7½d.; payment on account of sick pay, £133 12s. 1d.; on account of funeral donations, £40; cost of management during the year, £40 8s.; contributions paid by members, 1s. per week as a uniform contribution; members fourteen weeks in arrears are disentitled to the benefits; has an Appeal Committee for settlement of disputes; members can appeal further to the High Court in England; is in favour of a uniform contribution; amount paid for sick pay for five years, £485 2s. 5d.; cost of management during that time, including levies to District, £367 14s. 4d.; cost of doctor and chemist, £662 4s. 7½d. ... 197

Evidence of Mr. James Root.—Is Secretary of Court Morning Star Ancient Order of Foresters; number of members, 240; Society was originally opened in 1845; amount of subscriptions paid during last year, £753 11s.; contributions, 1s. a week; total expenditure during last year, £360 12s.; payment to doctor, £231 15s.; to chemist, £90 2s. 6d.; cost of management, £87 13s. 8d.; total value of funds, £971 15s. 2d. ... 197

Has an Arbitration Committee to settle matters of dispute; there is no further appeal; £483 12s. 3d. is invested in Hall, and a balance in hand of £45 2s. 9d.; £256 0s. 4d. in the Funeral Fund; £186 19s. 10d. Sick Fund in the Bank; accounts are duly audited by members appointed by the Court; all all members undergo a searching medical examination; Society has always been able to pay its way, and have a hundred or two by; considers 1s. a week quite sufficient to pay all that the rules provide; has found the Act sufficient for the purpose of protecting his members; has always furnished annual returns to the Registrar 198

Evidence of Mr. Stephen Mallarky.—Was the originator, late Secretary of the Redfern Mutual Association Society; Society has been extinct for two years; dissolution was attributable to most of the members being exceedingly healthy, and paying their subscriptions regularly, and getting no particular benefit; funds amounting to about £15 was equally divided among members, deducting subscriptions not paid up; amount of contributions paid was 40s. a year; benefits were doctor, medicine, and sick allowances proportioned to the funds of the Association; is of opinion 4s. a month would have been sufficient to ensure all benefits enjoined had the Society had an ordinary influx of new members; thirty-six was limit of age at which members were received; thinks 1s. would not be sufficient to guarantee the benefits without having a good number of young men joining; would have considered proportion of 10 per cent. per annum sufficient; there was no actuarial certificate when the Society was started, merely the opinion of the Registrar of Friendly Societies; Registrar gave an opinion that the rules were liberal, that 1s. a week afford the benefits, and make provision for all liabilities that might accrue by age 199

Further evidence of Mr. Jas. King.—Is Secretary to the St. Peter's Burial Society; in 1879 £300 were divided amongst the adult members over sixteen years of age, from the time of entrance; for copy of return showing how the money was divided and summary see pages 200 and 201; balance left after £300 was drawn out, £200; believes the whole of the members were agreeable to the amount being drawn out; notice of motion produced (for copy see page 201); the largest sum was received by himself, £16 and some odd shillings; paper prepared by Mr. Guille, schoolmaster, St. Peter's, showing how money could be proportioned to each of the members, produced (for copy see page 201); rule 16 says, "This Society shall continue so long as 5 adult male members continue together, &c., &c.," reference to rule 24 relative to alteration of rules by notice of motion; never heard any complaint about the division of the £300; annual amount paid by each member 6s. 6d. a year; does not think any member left the Society in consequence of the distribution of the £300 202

Members are admitted under rule 7; for scale of entrance fee for each member see page 203; Society is principally composed of working men; amount spent in bonuses, including the £300, during the last five years, £436 5s. 203

Evidence of Mr. Thos. Percival.—Belongs to the Oddfellows, and has held office of Secretary, Trustee, and Chairman of the St. Peter's Burial Society; was Secretary from 1877 to 1881; was Secretary during the time of the distribution 204

Those present at the monthly meetings have the power of electing members; disputes are settled by a summoned meeting of the Society; when resolution was passed about the division of the £300 the law with regard to bonuses was taken into consideration; there was no protest verbal or written against the action taken in respect to the £300; is aware that the Trustees are liable to be proceeded against; knows that the distribution is not legal 205

Society is pretty well off; clause 21 of the Friendly Societies Act provides that it shall not be lawful in any Society to direct a division or appropriation of any part of the funds, &c., &c. 206

Considers the division was not a robbery; it was the money of the members, and they could do what they liked with it 207

Report of President's interview with the Registrar of Friendly Societies respecting the distribution of the sum of £300 amongst a portion of the members of the St. Peter's Burial Society, &c., &c. ... 207

Evidence of Mr. Geo. Lillie.—Holds office of Minute Secretary of the Protestant Mutual Benefit Society; benefits a pound a week for a certain time, and then it is reduced; funeral donations £20, the utmost £30; half donations in case of a wife's death; contributions, 1s. a week; amount paid for funeral donations during last year, £20; does not believe the Society is in a good financial condition; Society admits Protestants only; does not think with the small number of members the contributions are sufficient to ensure a sound financial basis; thinks a few deaths would exhaust all the funds of the Society; approves of the principle of uniform contributions; has never experienced any inconveniences arising from the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act; thinks the Societies do pretty well as they like; considers there should be a statist go round and investigate the books of the Societies 208

Does not believe in isolated Societies like his; does not think the supervision exercised by the Registrar is sufficient; would favour a Government actuary to scrutinise the accounts 209

Further evidence of Mr. Thos. Forsyth.—Amount of contributions received during 1881, £436 18s. 1d.; amount expended for medical attendance and chemist, £164 10s. 7½d.; payment on account of sick pay, £133 12s. 1d.; funeral donations, £40; on account of working expenses, £38 7s. 8d.; disapproval of funds of a Society being applied to demonstrations, &c.; amount paid on account of funeral donations during the past five years, £115; on account of sick pay, £485 2s. 5d.; on account of working expenses, £166 4s. 7d.; total amount of income during the past five years, £1,981 4s. 6d.; amount received during five years for interest on investments, £212 16s. 9d.; total cost for all purposes during the last five years, £1,436 12s. 7½d.; total amount of funds on hand at end of last year, £1,076 12s. 9½d. 209

Has found no inconvenience from the present Act; believes it affords all the protection and shelter that the members ought to receive from the Statute; has recently increased the benefits from £1 and 10s. to £1 1s. and 12s. 6d.; believes it would be a benefit to Societies to have their accounts properly audited every five years by an actuary; is in favour of an actuarial calculation into the affairs of the Societies 210

Does not adopt principle of graduated payments for contributions; has never sued for arrears of contributions; his Lodge is of opinion that it is only just that there should be some provision made to grant the Societies grants of land for building purposes; must be admitted Societies are a great assistance to Government... .. 211.

Evidence of Mrs. Ellen Mary Lawrie.—Is Presidentess of the St. Francis' Sisters of Temperance Benefit Society; Society has been established thirteen years; is confined wholly to members of the Roman Catholic Church; number of members at present, 57; contributions, 7½d. a week; benefits, 10s. a week sick pay, doctor and medicine; in case of death, £10; amount of funds at credit at present, £55 19s. 2d.; initiation fees according to age from 2s. 6d. to £1; payment to doctor for each member per year, 13s. 4d.; chemist averaging about £7 10s. per quarter; benefits go to the children as well as to the member; members are admitted at fourteen; disputes are settled by a Committee appointed for the purpose; has found no inconvenience arising in the working of her Society from Friendly Societies Act ... 212

Believes there should be a Government supervision of the Societies in order to control the expenditure ... 213

Evidence of Mrs. Mary Ann Baker.—Is Secretary of the St. Francis Sisters of Temperance; total cost of Society last year, £123 19s.; total receipts, £82 9s. 4d.; member violating pledge is summoned, and if she promises to reform she is allowed to come in, but is suspended from all benefits for three months; after second offence no benefit is allowed for twelve months; is of opinion that 7½d. per week is sufficient to carry on the Society on a sound basis; has provision in rules for making levies ... 214

Evidence of Mr. Patrick Salmon.—Holds office of Trustee of St. Francis Brothers of Temperance; contributions, 1s. per week; benefits, £1 a week, and doctor and medicine; amount of funds in hands at end of 1881, £60 12s. 3d.; total amount of expenditure for last year, £152 9s. 6d.; total amount of income, £109 15s. 7d.; rules are same as those of the Sisters of Temperance; 1s. a week has been up to present sufficient to ensure all the benefits the Society gives to its members; total amount of expenses of Society for five years, £806 17s. 4d.; amount received during same period, £776 10s. 7d.; has found no difficulty in working his Society arising from the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act; thinks it advisable to pay for the deaths of single young men's mothers; believes his Society is virtually insolvent; has no hope it will be successful in the future... 215

Evidence of Mr. Thos. Etherington.—Is Secretary of the Sons of Perseverance Friendly Society; was instituted in 1852; number of members, 89; contribution, 1s. a week; initiation fee, according to age; amount of funds to credit, £1,028 0s. 3d.; total income for 1881, £279 9s. 7d.; total expenditure for 1881, £278 3s. 8d.; cost of building hall was about £800 ... 217

Gives the usual benefits to his members; does not approve of Society standing aloof from the general bodies; is one of a deputation to wait upon the Druids, with a view to amalgamation; total expenditure in Society for the last five years, £1,228 10s. 3d., excluding funeral funds; Society has been decreasing every way, the members and finances getting less; has found no inconvenience arising from the working of the Act; speaking fairly, considers the Society is not well managed; believes in amalgamation; special levy of 1s. 6d. a member is made in a short quarter of six weeks, and 1s. 9d. in a long quarter... 218

Thinks the neutrality and not rate of contribution has operated against the Society; thinks, in reference to Friendly Societies being permitted to invest their funds in building halls, that if a Society gets a hall it is the first foundation to work upon, and is one of the mainstays to uphold a Society; is in favour of permitting members to join more than one Society; would treat it as an Insurance Society; cannot say whether the supervision at present exercised by Registrar is sufficient; sees no objection to tabulated statements of the position of each Society being prepared and published every year by a Government authority; would favour a Government inspection of the books and accounts of each Society; thinks District Lodge would receive them back again if they paid the demands they ought to have paid them; Society is still in their debt to the extent of about £30; it is very possible the majority of members would rather join the Druids now than go back to the District Lodge, simply for the purpose of avoiding the payment of these fees ... 219

Thinks it would be well in any future legislation on the subject of Friendly Societies to have a clause which would prevent a few members taking a Society away from the District or Grand Lodge; has had a Widow and Orphan Fund in connection with his Society; has no Arbitration Committee; considers it proper and just to establish an Arbitration Board, comprised of representatives from the several Societies, with the Registrar for Chairman to settle all disputes instead of going to law ... 220

Evidence of Mr. Thos. Comber.—Is Secretary of the Sydney Progressive Society of Carpenters and Joiners; contribution, 4d. a week; is about to be raised to 6d. a week; benefits, 10s. a week, and £10 on death of a member if five years a member, and £5 if over twelve months a member; gives no further benefits excepting for loss of tools; amount of funds to credit, £319; has 100 financial members; total receipts for last year, £131 5s. 1½d.; total expenditure for last year, £107 8s. 8d.; rate of initiation, 3s. under forty, and 5s. over forty; Society is a Trade Society though it gives benefits; two-thirds or more of his members are members of Friendly Societies; has no provision in rules for settling disputes; Society is under expense of 2d. per member per quarter to the Trades and Labour Council; Society votes money out of its funds for the support of other trades out on strike... 221

Society can levy only in case of death; prime object of Society is to protect members as far as their trade is concerned; has had no occasion to consult the Friendly Societies Act in any of its particulars ... 222

Evidence of Mr. William Soderholm.—Represents the Scandinavian Society; total value of funds, £22; contributions, 1s. a week; benefits, free doctor and medicine, and a guinea a week during sickness; £7 10s. on death of a member's wife, and £10 on death of member himself; total expenditure last year, £19 15s. 7d.; Society is exclusively confined to Scandinavians; Society is registered ... 222

Evidence of Mr. John Fitz Henry.—Is Secretary of the Friendly Trade Society of Ironmoulders; contributions, 1s. a week; all pay alike; benefits, members out of work 10s. a week, in event of accident while at work a guinea a week for thirteen weeks, 11s. for the following eight weeks, and a lump sum after; in event of a member dying if he has been a member two years the widow and orphans receive the sum of £10; this amount is made up by a levy of half-a-crown a member put on all round; total value of funds last year, £531 5s. 10d.; income for past year, £259 2s. 3d.; expenditure, £182 12s. 11d.; money is invested in Commercial Bank ... 223

Has

Has full permission to make levies when the funds fail to meet the calls upon them; if the levies then are not sufficient has power to reduce the benefits; does not think it would be beneficial to have a Government Examiner of Accounts, and so on; if members cannot work it does not think the Government could better them; the levy of 2d. a member per week is a capitation allowance to the Trades and Labour Council, and is called "The Sustentation Fund"; members undergo no medical examination prior to initiation or admission 224

Evidence of Mr. Frank Forsyth.—Represents the Operative Bricklayers' Society; number of members last quarter, 575; contributions, 6d. a week full members, and 3d. juniors; give no benefits except in case of accident, when £1 a week is given; in case of death, £12 to a full member, and £2 extra for every two years membership over twelve months up to £20, and £8 on death of wife; juniors are entitled to half the above amounts; total value of funds at present, £1,200 8s.; £1,000 is invested in Trustees, £50 each, and different banks; Society is not at present registered; is general wish of the members to register the Society under the Trades' Union Act; majority of members are connected with other Friendly Societies; his Society is established to protect his own trade, and to carry out the eight-hour principle; a penalty of 5s. a day is levied against members breaking eight-hour rule 225

Evidence of Mr. Samuel Withers.—Is Secretary of the Independent Order of Royal Foresters; number of members at present, fifty; total amount of funds, £542 8s. 4d.; has a sliding scale of funeral allowance from one to five years' member is entitled to £20, and member's wife to £10; from five to ten years, £25, and £1 for every additional three years afterwards; the wife to £15 from eight to ten years, and 10s. for every three years; claims, sick pay a guinea a week medical attendance and medicine; payments on part of members, 1s. a week contributions, and levy 1s. 3d. a quarter; when funds are below £200 the levy is 2s. 6d.; between £200 and £250, 2s.; between £250 and £300, 1s. 6d.; and 1s. afterwards; has found that contribution quite sufficient, and it has left a large margin... .. 226

Medical man is bound by Society rules to be qualified by law; has never put into operation that portion of the Friendly Societies Act which allows a Society to sue members for non-payment of dues; Society affords no pension or superannuation allowance to its members; thinks he has enough funds to guarantee all the benefits the Society offers; has come to that conclusion from the money that has accumulated besides paying all expenses 227

Is in favour of Government supervision of Friendly Societies; has a Board of Management, consisting of eight members, for settlement of disputes; thinks it would be a good thing to establish an Arbitration Board as to final Court of Appeal; does favour suing for arrears; would favour more comprehensive returns (if they are necessary) of any future legislation... .. 228

Evidence of Mr. Henry Collyer.—Is the Secretary of the Sydney United Plasterers' Society; object of Society, to pay money to any one receiving an accident, and to assist other trades on strike, and to assist in alleviating distress amongst members or their widows by donations; gives £7 10s. on death of a member, only to his widow or nominee; payments made to secure these benefits, 6d. a week; accumulated funds, close upon £200; number of members, 120; no limit whatever to aged; no medical examination; is a Trades Union, and not a Friendly Society; receipts for past five years, £666 12s. 4d.; funds on hand, £196 1s. 3d.; has found no evil results arise from meeting in a public-house; disputes are settled by a Management Committee 229

Evidence of Mr. Lorimer E. Marcus.—Is connected with the Independent Order of Good Templars; was Grand Worthy Chief Templar or Executive Head of the Order for two years; has filled many other offices in other parts of the world; number of members, as nearly as possible, in New South Wales, 3,000; minimum amount of subscription, 1s. 6d. per quarter; Order is not, strictly speaking, a Friendly Society; do not allow any benefits; Society is managed by an Executive Committee, consisting of the eight principal officers of the Grand Lodge; the principal object of Order is to propagate the cause of Temperance; is a Secret Society; assets exceed liabilities by some £120; funds are used solely for the advancement of Temperance cause, and for the extension of the Order; thinks the system of male and female meeting together in Lodges tends to promote morality; would urge upon the Commission the necessity of having some clause in any Bill that may be brought forward for the purpose of protecting the funds of Temperance Societies; the Order is established for improving the moral condition of the people generally, but it is understood that there is no legislation at the present time under which protection can be got against the misappropriation of Society's funds; would recommend an alteration in the rules, giving the presiding officers more power to suppress anything like larrikinism; personally approves of the intermingling of the sexes in the Lodge-room; believes presence of ladies has a good effect on the male members; does not think Friendly Societies should be separated from political, temperance, or religious bodies; believes that the Temperance bodies, at any rate, should have their own Societies; considers, from what he has observed and read, that the sick rate is less amongst them than amongst other Societies 230

Evidence of Mr. William James Way.—Is Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners; Society partakes of the character of a Friendly Society and of a Trade Union; has been Auditor at different times of the Manchester Unity Oddfellows 231

Society is a Branch of, and owes allegiance to, parent Society in England; benefits, 12s. a week sick-pay for twenty-six weeks, and 6s. as long as the illness continues; £12 per member at death; out-of-work benefits, 10s. a week for twelve months, and 6s. for twelve weeks more; accident benefits, members wholly disabled, £100, partially disabled, £50, &c., &c.; contributions, 1s. a week, and 3d. a quarter; rates of contribution are similar in all parts of the world, excepting in the United States and Canada; funds in hand at end of 1881, £368 17s. 9d.; accounts are audited by members of the Lodge; if Society makes contributions to other Societies it is done by special levy amongst its own members; applied to have Branch registered, but was refused; proposes to register Branch under the Trades Union Act; has a superannuation benefit of 8s. a week if a member has been in the Society eighteen years, and 7s. for twelve years; has also a Benevolent Fund for free and non-free members; has an emigration benefit, to enable members from

England to emigrate to any other part; liability for death rate is £12; would as soon have Government supervision of Friendly Societies as not; does not think it would be any protection to the Societies; thinks Act answers the purposes for which it was passed; rules of Society were revised in 1880; considers the state of Trade in the Colonies now is very good 232

Does not think his members in the Colonies are placed at a fair advantage in strikes with those on strike in England; members are required to give certificate of birth 233

Evidence of Mr. William Francis Davison.—Represents the Shipwrights' Provident Union of Port Jackson; is at present Secretary; has about 280 members; members pay a penny a day for every day they work; benefits £1 a week for accident and £10 for burial; amount of funds in hand over £2,000; is invested in the Sydney Savings' Bank 233

Evidence of Mr. James Joseph Donohoe.—Is Secretary of the United Society of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders of N. S. Wales; number of members, 230; amount of subscription, 6d. a week; members are levied 2s. per man if there is not sufficient money in the Contingent Fund at the death of a member; allows benefits in the event of a dispute; affords no medical benefits; gives a funeral donation of £10; is not necessary to be a member any specified time to obtain that benefit 233

Society can vote any sum not more than £1 per fortnight as a distress donation; Society use no regalia at present; according to the rules no member is supposed to work with a non-society man under penalties to be enforced by the Society; if member allows himself to run into arrears he is expelled from the Society; does not at all times comply with rule 14; total amount of Society's funds, £580 13s. 7d. 234

Evidence of Mr. Geo. E. Fraser.—Holds office of Secretary of the N. S. Wales Seaman's Union; contributions, 2s. a month; only benefit given is in event of a member being injured by accident; members in such cases are allowed from £2 to £5 as decided by a meeting 234

Society is purely a Trade Society; affords no sick pay or funeral donation; admits all men of good character following the sea 235

Evidence of Mr. Frederick W. Rogers.—Represents the Coachbuilders' Society of New South Wales; Society has been instituted since 1875; contributions, 6d. per week; benefits, 10s. a week for thirteen weeks to members losing employment through dulness of trade or other circumstances; and in event of a strike one-half the regular wages for three months if out of employment within seven months from the date of the strike; had a sick fund but it has been abandoned; gives no benefits for sick or funeral donation... 235

Evidence of Mr. Levi Maidment.—Is Secretary of the Quarrymen's Eight-hour Protection Society; contributions, 3d. per week; benefits, £5 funeral donation, providing member is over twelve months in the Society; £7 10s. if a member two years; funds to credit, £456 13s. 4d.; number of members, 170; receipts for last year, £50 4s. 4½d.; Society contributes to assist others on strike; affords no benefits in case of accident or sickness; most of members are attached to other Societies 235

Further Evidence of Mr. W. F. Davison.—Has an accident and insurance fund; primary object of Society is a Trades Union; sick pay for last five years, £195 2s.; for accidents, £324; on account of death, £195; to hospitals, sick and distressed persons, £153; grand total on account of sick gifts and donations, £867 2s.; receipts during five years, £2,478 19s. 6d.; amount to credit at end of 1881, £1,990 9s. 4½d.; amount spent in assisting other trades during past five years, £187; nearly the whole of members are connected with other Societies; cost of management during five years, £485 7s. 5d.; majority of members decided against proposal made in the Society to register under the Friendly Societies Act; thinks Society conjunction has prevented collisions between them 236

Evidence of William Henson, Esq., M.P..—Is a Member of the Legislature of New South Wales; has been Treasurer of the Sons of Temperance for some years 236

Particulars of case of widow and five children of a certain member for sixteen years of Court Friendship Royal Foresters who died some seven years since not receiving any benefits from the Lodge of which he was a member though entitled to £30; does not think 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure benefits beyond £25; is of opinion 1s. a week would be sufficient to ensure payment of medical attendance to a member, his wife and family, together with a funeral donation of from £20 to £25 for a member and from £10 to £15 in case of the death of a wife provided the children did not receive benefits beyond the age of sixteen instead of eighteen; considers the medical examination in connection with Societies on the admission of candidates for membership is sufficiently searching; has no doubt there are some occupations which shorten life more than others; believes it is essential that Societies should receive members from all grades or they would not meet the want; thinks graduated scale of contributions is better than a uniform scale; is in favour of Friendly Societies being under the supervision of some Government Department; thinks it would be advisable to appoint a Government Actuary to look after the Friendly Societies; would on the whole be better if arbitrators were appointed from other Societies; Registrar of Friendly Societies should be appointed to look after Friendly Societies, Trades Unions, and Building Societies without having anything else to do 237

Further evidence of Mr. James Donohoe.—Amount paid during last two years on account of disputes, £144 14s. 5d.; members are not subjected to medical examination; no proposal has yet been made to register the Society under the Act; amount of funds at last audit, in March, 1882, £1,080 4s. 3d.; Society takes no bonds or guarantee from Trustees 238

Evidence of Mr. James Sheridan.—Is Secretary of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild; number of members, 980; subscription, 2s. 4d. per fortnight; benefits allowed, a guinea a week to sick members for twelve months, and half a guinea if he continues to be sick for another twelve months; then 5s. as long as he remains ill; Society is managed by a Council and governing body elected by the general body; believes that a certain audit which took place in 1875 or '76 was favourable to the management of the Society's discussion discussion relative to proper management of Society and its affairs; for copy of letter from Secretary and Warden to Commission respecting certain information asked for vide page 239; had only heard that a special audit by Mr. Carroll had taken place; would not have concluded Society was well managed at the time of audit had he known that such an audit and report as that made had been brought in ... 239

States Society is £1,000 better off now than it was in 1876; does not think he has had any occasion to consult the Registrar or the Friendly Societies Act; all funds go into one general fund; thinks the Act is ample so far as Society is concerned; Society's rules allow a member to run for fifty-two weeks and then he is removed from the books, but is informed that under the Act if a member dies within that time his widow can claim the amount; present system of settling disputes is anything but satisfactory; is in favour of disputes being decided by arbitration; does not think a close Government supervision of Societies by an officer appointed to inspect the accounts would do any harm; attaches importance to correct annual returns being sent in; is favourable to a special Registrar being appointed to supervise solely Friendly Societies apart from any other office; advocates a Registrar being appointed especially to overlook and register rules ... 240

Does not enter upon the books the ages of members or their wives when they die; has found the present scale of contributions very satisfactory; does not hold with a sliding scale... 241

There has been better supervision in the Society the last few years ... 242

Has made about forty new members since the beginning of the year; average age would be about twenty-three or twenty-four ... 248

Evidence of Mr. Richard Chas. Meacle.—Is Warden of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild; explanation in reference to a certain item of money lent on mortgage, and money in the hands of Secretary and Bursar; knows contents of letter (see evidence of previous witness, question 8528); Secretary has not the requisite facilities for affording the ages of men when they join; Secretary's books are kept in such a manner as not to enable him to furnish the information sought for in the return ... 243

Reckons Society has been remarkably well managed since he has been a member; its progress has been quite satisfactory; case of a certain member dying and being at the time of his death in arrears; the widow made claim on Society, but Society, acting on the rule, refused application; subsequent dealing of case by arbitration grant to widow of a portion of claim; is decidedly in favour of disputes being settled by arbitration; thinks it would be advisable to make the award of the arbitrators final and conclusive; is totally opposed to Government exercising a strict supervision over Societies; is of opinion the less Government interference there is with Friendly Societies the better for their own independence; disapproves of a Government appointed officer making an annual examination of the books of the Society; believes under the present Act Societies have all that is required; has never come across a Secretary who could not do all that was required in the matter of accounts; Government audit being beneficial to Benefit Societies is in his opinion very problematical ... 244

To the best of his belief Society keeps no official reliable record; thinks Society's financial position of forty years experience is equalled by very few Societies at present in the Colony; members having power to levy upon themselves in case of an extraordinary period of sickness is an additional security, added to the large sum of money that Society has invested in the freehold property; thinks if the Societies could carry on their operations without the privilege of levies it would be all the better; considers it just that a young man should pay the same contribution as an old man; has a Widow and Orphan Fund combined with the General Fund ... 245

Is of opinion that any Society that can show £5 a head over 500 members is in a solvent state; does not think Society labours under any great disadvantage as regards free registration of rules ... 246

Benefit Societies are undoubtedly a saving to the State; is decidedly unfavourable to Benefit Societies being permitted to invest funds for other purposes, in building places of meeting without reserving a certain amount to meet their just liabilities ... 247

Evidence of Dr. Andrew Houston.—Is a duly qualified medical practitioner registered under the New South Wales Board; is Secretary of the New South Wales Board; has had large experience attending different Friendly Societies; generally speaking thinks examinations are not sufficiently strict to protect the Societies; in the majority of Societies the absence of some for examination is a very great want; payments made to medical gentlemen who have to deal with the Societies are decidedly not sufficient as a rule, and not on a proper basis; contributions and payments made by members are decidedly insufficient to secure the benefits; has found inconvenience arising in the way of due observance to prescriptions and advice amongst members and their families; attempts on the part of members to sham sickness has been only too common; does not think it a wise thing to permit members to join several Societies; is of opinion it holds out an inducement for deception and practices of that kind ... 247

Thinks medical men as a rule give same amount of attention to members of Societies as to their own private patients; observations in respect to the dispensing of prescriptions; in all cases, except two Societies, all sick payments are promptly made in the Societies he represents; such delays result not from want of funds but dilatoriness on the part of the officers; does not think present mode of payments and amount fixed as at present arranged between medical men and Societies is established on a satisfactory basis; sum paid by a great many Societies now is much too low for efficient work; does not approve of tendering for Societies at all; is quite impossible to afford efficient work as so low a rate as 12s. per member per annum; members undoubtedly suffer by a system of that kind; the association of men together in Societies would, he imagines, be theoretically prejudicial to their interests, as it removes principle of self-reliance to a great extent; is socially a great benefit, but is afraid that morally it is not what might be desired; think medical changes are decidedly prejudicial; has heard from medical men who have held changing Societies that they do not pay sufficiently well... 248

Has in all cases with which he has dealt insisted upon members wives being examined; recommends that it should be a rule in all Societies for the wives of members to be examined; would also recommend that the question be put in examination forms: "Are the children in good health"; special fee for examination is paid for only in the Society with which he is connected; thinks medical men should be specially remunerated for that special service; the examination in an Insurance Society is much more searching; thinks that a similar examination form is necessary in the case of a Friendly Society; would be very difficult to remedy the constant malingering on the part of members; is decidedly preferable to pay the chemist for the medicine received to the more common system of so much per head; this has been a conviction of his for some years; considers 18s. to £1 a fair remuneration per annum for medical men; has had more cases of brain disease in the Temperance Societies within the last twelve months than in all the others together; believes in such cases members have been drunkards previously 249

Thinks capitation tax would decidedly be better than a lump sum; thinks one-third less than the chemist charges ordinary persons would be a fair rate to pay for medicines; is not in favour of Societies combining together to form dispensaries of their own; is in favour of members attending at the medical gentlemen's own homes instead of at the Society's Hall; there is no fee payable for large accidents when a case, for instance, compound fracture of the thigh, probably requires a daily attendance for a period of at least three months; more should be paid for accouchement cases; lowest fee should be at least two guineas; form of medical certificate of health (vide page 250, question 8927); thinks it is a very good form; certificate at bottom is much to be relied on; insertion of words "pleurisy and venereal disease" would make 6th question more comprehensive 250

Provision should be made in any new Act to prevent giving benefits to members of Societies who may, through their own misconduct, bring on sickness or disease; allusion to note "In no case shall the medical officer refuse to attend" at the bottom of the rule of the Society; thinks in future legislation some careful oversight should be exercised in the formation of the rules 251

Evidence of Dr. Thos. B. Belgrave.—Is a duly qualified medical practitioner registered in New South Wales; is medical officer to several Friendly Societies; payments made to medical men are insufficient; payments here might be £1 per member per year, 30s. or £2 2s. for midwifery cases, with additional payments for important operations; medical men practically do devote as much time to Friendly Societies patients as they would to private patients; present system of examining candidates is insufficient; members wives should be examined as well as members; examinations would afford greater security if they were on the basis of the Life Insurance paper; sickness among men has arisen for the most part from habits of intemperance; is impossible for medical officers to guard the Societies against the tendency to intemperance on the part of members; believes those members of Societies here who are temperate are as a rule healthier than in the old country; thinks that among women there is a vast amount more of indefinite sickness than there is in England, of a very incurable character and very obstinate indeed; considers it is caused by the climate; does not favour practice of one man being a member of more than one Society; is quite sure 1s. per week is not sufficient to ensure the rendering of all benefits that Societies promise; thinks clubs would derive very great benefits themselves by having prescriptions dispensed at their own dispensary; patients have frequently complained of prescriptions not being properly dispensed, but has never seen any evidence confirmatory of those complaints 252

Thinks moral influence which the Societies exercise over their members is most excellent; is confident that the operations of Friendly Societies are a relief to the State; is sure they should have greater protection at the hands of the State than they have had; there is competition among the medical profession here in reference to securing the practice of Lodges but it varies very much; has been very much struck by the absence of syphilitic evils; thinks there is decidedly less syphilis here than there is in England among the working classes; consider Provident Societies in this Colony have been a failure; names of some Societies who have failed to pay the moneys they have promised to pay (See question 9,015) 953

Provident Societies have not as a body been failures; thinks they have been one of the greatest agencies of modern times in alleviating pauperism; states particulars of a few cases of defalcation in connection with certain Societies, and believes that it is a fact in England that during the decline of life of the members of clubs they find that they have not sufficient stability without a constant accession of young members, and failing to get that they break up 254

Thinks certain so-called Religious Lodges have many members who join those Lodges apparently with a view of promoting their religion but really for the purpose of receiving benefits intended for the poorer people; there is a kind of compact on part of the medical profession to assist the working classes; regrets to say that there exists a wide-spread distrust with the working classes as to the financial stability of existing Friendly Societies; if Societies were placed on an actuarially sound basis membership would become more general among the working classes; would certainly support an actuarial investigation by a Government officer; thinks it is a great drawback that so many Societies meet in public-houses; copy of form of medical certificate and member's declaration in the Court Pride of Australia, A.O.F. (Vide question 9054) 255

Thinks such a certificate is very good; would be as well to make an addition in reference to syphilis; rivalry of Lodges has promoted provident principles among the people in New South Wales; there should be a kind of Industrial Bank in large cities which should be opened in the evening for transaction of business, &c.; many of the inconveniences he has referred to would thus be obviated; has noticed people who are members of Friendly Societies usually make an effort to keep their family intact; those who have not these associations are much more careless; would favour complete Government supervision over Friendly Societies even more complete than that which obtains in England; management of Societies here is quite as good as in England; has found that diseases arise very largely from intemperance 256

If questions relating to lung complaints were included in the form of member's declaration it would suit admirably; members of medical profession do not like for a low scale of fees to have to attend wealthy people who happen to be member of Friendly Society; thinks it would be an excellent plan if heads of the different Lodges could meet those members of the medical profession who are interested, with a view of regulating the payments to doctors upon some more satisfactory scale; examinations is a guide to the Society and the candidates see that it means something 257

Would be much more advantageous for Societies to have their own dispensary; does not believe in a man belonging to more than one Society; at the same time is in favour of graduated payments; stone-masons and drapers should pay a different rate from that paid by butchers, &c.; members of Police Force receive two-thirds of their pay when sick. 258

There is a law in the Police service in England that constables should not be members of Friendly Societies; would be better to allow medical men to continue to hold office as long as the Societies they were connected with were satisfied with them; thinks chest measurement might be included in the form as set forth forth in the rules of the Ancient Order of Foresters; examinations on the part have not been as fully searching as they should be; is in favor of a graduated scale of payments for the admission of members, also graduated scale of benefits according to the occupations of members; is necessary to have a principle embodied in the rules of a Society to insure its being on a sound financial basis... 259

Evidence of Dr. James Pickburn:—Is a duly qualified medical practitioner; has always made a careful examination of candidates; has objected to certain trades, such as plumbers, painters, and publicans; such occupations are dangerous to health ... 259

Examination of candidates is looked upon as rather a matter of form, Societies themselves being anxious not to get healthy lives, but increased member and increased initiation money; strips candidates but does not measure the chest; there is a very great readiness on the part of some of the members to sham sickness; thinks as a rule the salaries paid to medical officers are very insufficient; thinks £1 per annum per member would be a fair rate; a general dispenser would be cheaper and members would secure good drugs; is in favor of disqualifying the admission of certain trades absolutely; accidents, such as bad fractures, should be paid for extra; thinks the system of competition of running down the prices paid to medical officers is bad for the Societies altogether ... 260

Has built his practice upon Societies, but has been very glad to drop them; thinks ordinary fee for accouchement is too little; thinks amount of contribution per member should be increased; is sure Friendly Societies benefits working people's homes, both socially and morally ... 261

Has found that when work is scarce men get sick; doctors getting their friends to canvas for them amongst the members is bad, both for the doctors and the Societies; is of opinion £1 per member per annum would be a fair charge for medical men attending clubs or Lodges requiring medical attendance; does not think payments for medicines should be less than 10s.; examinations should certainly be paid for... 262

Diseases most prevalent and fatal in this Colony amongst members of Friendly Societies are accidents, diseases of the lungs, and fevers; thinks system of members having to go to medical man again for renewal of prescription is very necessary for the protection of the Societies; thinks in regard to examination of wives that an affirmation by the husband under penalty would be sufficient; there should be a form of inquiry made by medical men similar to that of a Life Insurance Society; thinks it is the duty of a medical man not to admit a man with a trifling ailment at all ... 263

Evidence of Dr. William Ed. Warren:—Is a duly qualified medical practitioner; has never objected to any candidate on account of occupation; his prescriptions have in some instances been dispensed in an honest, straightforward manner, but in other instances have been simply disgraceful; would favour a general dispensary for all the Societies; would make it compulsory on all Societies to have a proper medical form, containing a personal statement... 263

Thinks about £1 or £1 1s. a year would be a fair allowance to medical officers; permitting persons to be members of more than one Society in the majority of instances has led to malingering; from his own knowledge knows numbers of cases where financial basis of Societies has been insufficient; there should be some means adopted to ensure members getting sick pay ... 264

For Report of the Committee appointed by New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association to investigate and report on the medical working of Friendly Societies vide page ... 265

Evidence of Dr. Andrew John Brady:—Is a duly qualified medical practitioner; largest number of members under his control at any given time about 400; general mortality of institutions has been comparatively low, particularly in the Temperance Societies; present means of examination of candidates seeking admission is insufficient; some chemists do up prescriptions very well, and others do not; think a personal statement of questions put to candidates ought to be strictly enforced in all Societies ... 265

The price paid is the cause principally of prescriptions not being faithfully and honestly dispensed; advocates a general dispensary for Friendly Societies; thinks £1 a year would be a fair allowance to medical officers; has frequently found a disposition on the part of members to go on the funds when not ill; disapproves of persons being members of more than one Society; thinks sick certificates should be renewed every fortnight, if not every week; when men are on the sick funds they should be strictly looked after, and if found drunk while in receipt of funds should be dealt with severely; £2 2s. would be a fair payment for accouchement cases; thinks it necessary to make distinction between surgical and ordinary cases... 266

Has not made occupation a bar to admission; syphilis undoubtedly exists amongst members of the Friendly Societies, but not to a great extent; cannot say it has been the cause of a large amount of sickness ... 267

Evidence of Dr. Alfred Shewen:—Is a duly qualified medical practitioner; is medical officer of five or six Benefit Societies; considers examination of candidates is quite equal to that for life insurance; Lodges belonging to Temperance Societies are a great trouble and very unhealthy; thinks a great many members belonging to Temperance Societies have been old drunkards ... 267

Believes 1s. 3d. is quite sufficient to ensure due fulfilment of the obligations of the Societies; £1 a year would be a fair consideration for medical services; change of medical officers is rather a good thing sometimes; a general dispensary for Friendly Societies would probably answer best; when Lodges fall down in numbers below a certain point they should be compelled to join with some other Lodge; they should not be allowed to go on dragging on a miserable existence; would decidedly have a provision in any new Friendly Societies Act preventing Societies starting upon an inadequate basis ... 268

Evidence of Angus Cameron, Esq., M.P.:—Is a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and Chairman of Committees; has been a member for the last thirteen years of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows; contributions of Society have varied at times from 1s. to 14d.; during the whole of his experience of the Society there never has been a case of repudiation; funeral donations vary according to length of membership, from £10 up to £30 or £40, if you belong to the Widow and Orphan Fund; sick pay according to membership, from £1 to 5s.; medical attendance and medicines for members, their wives and families, are afforded; thinks the sum paid is sufficient to pay all the benefits promised; thinks conditions of the present

Act

Act are not sufficient to ensure the protection members of Friendly Societies require; during his tenure of office as Grand Master the whole of the Registrar's office seemed to be unhinged; in June, 1877, in the Legislative Assembly, he moved for a return giving the number of Lodges in the different Societies, &c.; that return was never produced, because of inability of Registrar to obtain returns from Lodges; that seems to him to be one of the difficulties the majority of Friendly Societies are unable to cope with; does not think Act is thoroughly administered; Act is far too cumbrous and intricate; a much more simple measure would work more beneficially; is rather in favour of a graduated scale of contributions; thinks he would make a distinction between those occupations and injurious and those non-injurious to life and health in persons seeking admission 269

Attempts made to assume a quasi masonic character necessitate in the matter of regalia and books a large expenditure which ought to be applied to the Sick and Funeral Funds; would be hardly practicable under existing circumstances to have a general system of by-laws to govern whole body of Friendly Societies with reference to funeral gifts, &c.; would hardly be in favour of Government appointing a special department to look after Friendly Societies, &c.; thinks Friendly Societies have virtually been allowed to do pretty much as they like; would be better if cases of dispute could be settled by arbitration; a sliding scale would be more equitable; graduated contribution more advisable than general fixed rate with regard to age; is quite possible for State to hamper Societies too much by asking for too much petty detail; would advocate interference of a very limited character with internal management of Societies from actuarial point of view; would be glad to see all disputes referred to arbitration, and Government might be fairly empowered to appoint a tribunal of two or three persons to act as arbitrators; health of members of Societies is, he thinks, very good; is of opinion moral character of members of Societies is very high... 270

Has noticed a great deal of mismanagement in connection with affairs of the Society; is of opinion that the majority of Friendly Societies suffer from over-government; there are too many District bodies with charges on them that might be done away with; would be a good thing if Government took such action as would ensure to members that they were members of a financial organization; Government should have some authority, which would say "we will not register your Society because your contributions are not sufficient"; thinks there should be some head over Societies, an officer under one of the responsible Ministers; Registrar should have power of sending an official Auditor to inspect books in Lodges; would be in favour of any legislation that would place the Societies on a more solid footing; only duty State has to perform is to see that members are protected from misappropriation and embezzlement; would certainly compel all Societies of a friendly character to come under the Act, whether they wished it or not; is of opinion in reference to regalia that it would be wise for Friendly Societies to invest their money in a more profitable manner 271

There are incidental defects springing from over legislation, such as a conflict of opinion between the governing bodies and the passing of by-laws conflicting with one another; has no doubt of the moral advantages accruing to members by joining Friendly Societies; is undoubtedly an immense saving to the State; has no doubt of liability increasing with age; thinks Registrar should have a salary, without fees; registration fees should be reduced to a minimum, if not altogether abolished 272

Evidence of Mr. W. Walker.—Is Past Grand Master of the Protestant Alliance of Australia; expressed a wish to be examined on the point; that the registered laws are not being acted up to; particulars of cases of misappropriation of money, in connection with certain Lodges (see questions 9620 to 9646)... 272

Does not think sufficient care is taken in appointing Secretaries and Treasurers, and that has led to accounts being in a disordered state; disapproves of present system of auditing accounts; would be worse for Government to appoint a professional auditor; Act is not defective in any particular; Act in its present shape is not sufficient for the good government of Friendly Societies 273

Was disposed from his position by a band drawn together; thinks in matter of misappropriation referred to, where amount was some £270, the man was charged with misappropriating the funds; suppressed the misappropriation from his reports; acted upon law 182 of Society's rules; has not taken any action to bring other cases of misappropriation under anybody's notice; party charged with misappropriation of £270 asked for time and was allowed it; was deposed from office in September, 1880; is not the previous President referred to as being suspended for drunkenness; Executive took proceedings against him for the recovery of property; they succeeded, but did not get the collar; he paid value of collar; clause 42 of the Act prohibits Lodges investing their funds; stated at Newcastle, in reference to deficiency of £276 in accounts of a certain Secretary, that he would stake his existence that the balance-sheet was not correct; balance-sheet had been submitted to the Auditors, and signed by them; was submitted to the Council, and received as correct; books were re-audited, balance-sheets re-examined, and the deficiency discovered; Auditors were each paid £1 ls. for audit; other audits in connection with subordinate Lodges have been performed in an equally neglectful manner; men who generally audit these accounts are not competent; would be right for the Government themselves to have these accounts audited... .. 274

In nine cases out of ten the manner in which these audits have taken place is a sample of the manner in which the accounts generally are audited; when Grand Master he visited many of the Lodges, and had a look at the books; the Secretaries and Auditors are totally unfit; there had been an unlawful investment of the funds of the Order generally; was not in the Grand Council when it first took place; voted against it in the subordinate Lodge; investment transgresses the law because it is a Joint Stock Company; whole of the Society's rules are ignored by the Executive; Society was formed as a Benefit Society; benefits are not carried out according to law; does not think the alleged misappropriation of funds was legal of the governing body; general meetings are held every year; it is in the province of the Grand Master to sign cheques; none of the officers ever took action in the Courts by proceeding against the Trustees about the investments in question 275

Evidence of Mr. Alfred John Penel.—Represents Court Friendship Society of Royal Foresters; present number of members 19; has had as many as 120; Society is just dissolving; has lately had a serious drain by way of sickness; amount of contributions 1s. a week, and 1d. for the Widow and Orphan Fund; sickness referred to has consumed the whole of the funds surplus and all and left Society without any means; is a wrong idea to have small courts with twenty or thirty members; payment to doctor 4s. a member a quarter; payment to chemist, 3s.; as far as he is aware that amount has gained to the members efficient medical attendance and good medicines 276

Dissolution

Dissolution of Lodge is due to inability to carry on and several members leaving and going bad on the books; Grand Court will grant clearances on payment of half a crown; attributes want of attention on the part of members to their not bringing new members in, they happening to be Roman Catholics, because the meetings were held in the Protestant Hall; the feeling was against the building and not the Society; Supreme Court is bound to take care of the members; it is compulsory on other Courts to accept these members irrespective of their ages... 277

Evidence of Mr. Ed. W. Parsonage:—Is Secretary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Miller's Point Lodge; number of members by the last returns, 45 financial and 9 unfinancial; Lodge has been established since January, '79; amount of funds at end of the year, £112 5s. 4d.; benefits, sick pay, £1 a week; funeral benefits for males, £20, and females, £10; no benefits for children... 277

Particulars of case of deficiency of £36 odd by a Treasurer; is of opinion that some uniform method should be adopted of keeping the books of Societies; fact of different men keeping the books in different manner brings about a jumble in the end; has found the balance sheets and audits generally satisfactory; would have no objection to Government supervision in the way of an Examiner of Accounts of Friendly Societies; would favour provision in new Act that no Society should be permitted to start without an actuarially based system of contributions; a promissory-note was received from the party who was a defaulter for the money due to Society signed by a gentleman of good position in Sydney; name of defaulting member, Mr. J. J. Horan; guarantee is taken from the Secretary and Treasurer of £50 each; considers Society is in a sound financial state; balance to credit of Lodge after payment of accounts last year, £112; amount of contribution is fixed in the constitution and not by advice of any actuary... 278

Evidence of Mr. John Smart:—Is the Secretary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows No. 12 Ben Adhen Lodge; financial position of Society is pretty fair just now; amount of funds to credit, £153 16s. 9d.; number of financial members, 53; amount in Bank over expenses and liabilities last year, £100; the late Secretary and Treasurer made away with funds; name of Treasurer, Bernard Carroll; and William Anderson, Secretary; amount of defalcation, Treasurer, £34; Secretary, something like £8 or £9; got £5 from the Secretary and £24 from the Treasurer and a promissory-note for £10 more, backed by Mr. Barnett, of the Post Office, but both went insolvent before the note became due; guarantee Society has not made balance good; medical officer is paid a few days after his account is presented; balance sheet is generally audited every quarter; the regular audit is half-yearly; the defalcations were discovered from the special audit that took place; some of the members had an idea that things were going wrong and there was in consequence a special audit; Auditors were Mr. Cannon, the Grand Secretary, and Mr. Perry; thinks the Society is in a good financial position and able to meet all its liabilities; members are all subjected to a medical examination before admission; has not found any inconvenience in his Society arising from any defect in the Act; benefits, 20s. a week sick pay; funeral donation, £20 for a man and £10 for a woman; also doctor and chemist; contributions, 1s. 3d. a week; has no doubt that the two defaulters named come under clause 13; Treasurer said he had made away with the money to meet little things that he owed; both parties were expelled... 279

Does not know of the statement of the Guarantee Society to the effect that if the matter was left to them they would prosecute to the utmost; exercised any influence in preventing the Lodge from taking steps; thinks there was some reference of the matter by the Trustees to the higher Executives of the Order for their opinion; does not think it beneficial that officers misappropriating the funds should be let off in this way; it would have been better if they had been punished; believes members are generally satisfied with medical attendance and medicines supplied; pay medical officer (Dr. Warren) 16s. a year... 280

Evidence of Mr. William Harrison:—Is a late member of Lodge No. 25 Young Australia Protestant Alliance; by his own desire he ceased to be a member about two and-a-half years ago; Society subsequently proceeded against him in the Police Court and recovered a verdict for non-payment of dues after his paying up and telling them that he would not be a member until he was satisfied about a certain matter; did recover the money; there were no other proceedings; they took the bailiffs out; amount was about £3 9s.; was one of the founders of the Society; declined paying any further into the Society in consequence of some defalcations; books were never put into his hands; matter was brought before the meeting by the Secretary who said it was a matter of £200 or £300; late Secretary was called upon for an explanation which he refused to give... 280

He said he had not got the books; he insisted there should be some satisfaction as he discovered there were some transactions unfit for a Friendly Society; one member stated that his money was not paid in according to the books; Secretary threw down the money and said he would pay it rather than make a bother; has no doubt that if the member had died the widow would not have had the benefit; Mr. Perry the past Secretary would be able to give further particulars on the matter; these complaints as far as his knowledge extended were investigated by the Society; would rather not give the name of the Secretary in question; is not prepared to say who made away with the money; it is patent that if Trustees and Auditors take books in pencil there must be something wrong about it; thinks the matter of the books is worth the attention of the Commission; has paid into Society for a number of years; they had all his money and he had nothing; at his age it was a disadvantage to take a man back; decidedly regarded it as a hardship to be subjected to those proceedings; disapproves of the provision in the Friendly Societies Act giving power to sue, but if a man is debtor then he might be sued; thinks present provision is quite against the Friendly interest; would most certainly favour the principle of a member twelve months in arrears being struck off; matter of defalcations was not cleared up before he left the Society; left in consequence of that; it was Secretary or Treasurer that discovered the defalcations; was told at a Lodge meeting that the amount was £200 or upwards; if the money had been properly dealt with the Lodge would have been in a financial state; is at present a member of the A. R. Foresters... 281

Has belonged to that Society rather more than twenty years; thinks it is a wise thing for a man to be a member of two Societies; it would not lead to very great abuses if the officers did their duty; several other members were sued as well as himself; deficiency of £200 was discovered about three years ago last January; deficiency was disclosed through Secretary's finding that there had been more sick pay than was shown on the books; Pettit was the name of the former Secretary; there are about 160 members connected with

with the Society ; would not favour appointment of an officer to examine Societies' accounts at given periods ; examination of books should be made at periods not known to Societies ; it is very important to send in annual returns ; some slight penalty should be inflicted for non-fulfilment ; registration fees should go into the public Treasury ; knew of the misappropriation alluded to from hearsay in the Lodge... 282

Was in arrears about two and a half years ; pleaded word "shall" in 14th Rule, in Court ; does not see how Friendly Societies Act can be worth much if such a defence as made by himself can be pleaded and rejected ; from his experience has found the Foresters' control over the books was different ; a Government officer would be a still further check upon them ; would favour the recovery of as much from the members of a Society as they are liable for before the name is removed from the books ; would even go as far as six months 283

Evidence of Mr. Joseph Townsend.—Is a member of the Waratah Lodge Order of Druids at Ryde ; states that about four years ago the Lodge was established, and he found on the next meeting there was a sort of party ; next Lodge night there was a bill for this party ; bill was made up and paid by collection to the amount of £35 ; it was paid for in instalments ; there were a few concerts and members began to come in with their fees ; all at once it began to give away ; some were bad on the books and others were taken to the Police Court for arrears of fees ; tells Commission about last summoning case when the Lodge gained a verdict, and a member was put into gaol ; Grand Lodge paid money ; Society declined to pay ; dispute as to whether Grand Secretary or Lodge Secretary should pay ; Lodge Secretary required £2 for doing so ; complains of the charge of £35 for the formation of the Lodge ; funds in Lodge on the 31st January, £71 12s. in the Bank ; number of members at present, 24 ; contributions, 13d. a week ; benefits in sickness, £1 a week and the doctor ; in case of death benefit is paid out of the District funds 283

Arrears of members who were put in gaol at Parramatta went to the Lodge ; items in the bill were gowns, binds, and acorns 284

Evidence of Mr. John Watson.—Has been a chemist and druggist for about thirty years in the Colony ; has had large experience in connection with dispensing prescriptions for Friendly Societies ; is at present chemist for about fifteen Societies ; for statements of general averages of prices paid per member in these Societies to chemist vide question 10,133, page 284 ; thinks it sufficient payment to ensue a proper dispensing of the different prescriptions for remarks in reference to matter contained in statement of general averages of prices, &c., (vide questions 10,135 to 10,136, pages 284 and 285) ; has heard it remarked that many of the chemists do not faithfully prescribe the medicine ordered ; members are required to get an order from doctor for renewal of medicine ; payments made by Societies leave a fair profit ; has no doubt that other chemists can dispense at the same average prices and get the same profit he allows, 33½ per cent ; believes there is reputed to be very keen competition in the trade for supplying the Societies ; has never during his thirty years experience heard of any of the members having any difficulty in getting their sick pay ; has heard remarks but no particular complaints by medical men that the medicines have not been faithfully dispensed in other quarters ; the substitution of other drugs might retard cure ... 285

Has not in the course of his dispensing noticed that members of Friendly Societies and their families have been more troubled with venereal diseases than others ; believes people are generally better pleased if they go to a private chemist ; thinks medical men are rather in favour of private establishments than public ones ; has heard that medical men prefer certain places and that some of them are in the habit of getting a discount ; has been told of one medical man in particular that he got 25 per cent ; it is undoubtedly unwise to close a dispensary at 9 or 10 o'clock at night ; average of families of members of Joint Societies 7,684 persons ; amount received from them for quarter ending July, 1881, £764 5s. 7d. 286

Evidence of Mr. Arthur Robins.—Is dispenser of the Oddfellows Dispensary, Manchester Unity ; greatest number of members he has had to dispense for was something over 2,000 ; average number of prescriptions made up daily about seventy ; present system has given general satisfaction to his members ; average cost of his establishment has been about 4s. 6d. per quarter, including drugs and medical attendance ; three medical officers get a salary of £250 a year each ; cost of drugs alone ranges from £75 to £112 per quarter ; patients provide their own bottles ; has had no complaints from medical officers, only one solitary exception ; under some restrictions a general dispensary is more likely to give satisfaction than to have medicine dispensed by private chemists 286

Does not think it would give more general satisfaction to the members to tender at so much per head ; his patients can get medicine at all hours in urgent cases ; the drugs received from Elliott, Bros. is of the very best quality ; does not think that the officers of the Institute prescribe less expensive medicines than they would to private patients ; strength of drugs is fixed by the Pharmaceutical Society ; does not do anything in the way of venereal diseases 287

Largest number of patients during any given quarter has been over 7,000 ; 2s. 2½d. per quarter per head would be rather heavy ; the medical gentlemen are always complaining of being under-paid ; has had no difficulty in procuring good and qualified medical men at £250 a year 288

For Progress Report and List of Witnesses examined to 12th June, 1882, vides pages 288, 289, and 290.

Further evidence of Mr. John Hampton.—Is District Grand Secretary of the Order of Royal Foresters ; has knowledge of a man of the name of Cox ; his widow and family did not receive funeral benefits because they had not complied with the rules of the Order ; believes he did receive sick pay till the day of his death ; proposes to make a statement before answering any questions ; for statement see Questions 10286 to 10287, pages 290 and 291 ; Cox was financial on the books of his Lodge ; branch to which he belonged is now defunct ; District Lodge cannot pay the widow because they were not in compliance at the time ; thinks case was a very exceptional one ; has never known of such a case before ; if Society of which Cox formed a party had had sufficient funds they would have paid his widow out of their own funds ; Cox received sick pay fully six months prior to his death ; he was an old member of the Society ; there were upwards of 100 members at the time ; one quarter was due when they were suspended ; did not pay up their arrears themselves ; an individual member of the Court made a cheque out himself on purpose to enable the branch to become in compliance, and has not been paid that cheque back again ; Court passed a resolution not to pay their levies 291

Mr. Hampton reinstated the Lodge when the quarter's levies were paid ; Supreme Court would not pay back levies of Cox's because branch of which he was a member at the time he died did not belong to the Society ; Court Cox belonged to paid so much quarterly towards the Funeral Fund ; supreme body had not specially any money in the shape of Funeral Funds belonging to the Court to which he was attached ; Court specially understood that if any claims came upon Society during time of suspension they would not be paid ; widow was debarred because the branch had not registered itself ; his Funeral Fund is a general fund ; he has nothing to do with individual members ; Courts reinsure their risks on his general fund...292

District thought Cox's was a hard case, but in consequence of largeness of his operations he was compelled to take what appeared to be harsh measures ; the fact of a squabble going on between the Court and the District over registration of their laws was the excuse the Court made for not paying the money ; members not paying up quarterly they and every member were suspended from all benefits ; that is ground of his objection 293

Evidence of Mr. Richd. Teese :—Is an Actuary and is chief Clerk in the Australian Mutual Provident Society ; has principally theoretically devoted attention to the working of Friendly Societies ; 1s. or 1s. 3d. a week being sufficient to insure all benefits to members of a Society would depend very much on relative ages of members in the Society ; is quite certain it would not be sufficient if cost of medical benefits were 16s. per member, besides 6s. for medicine 293

Has found mortality among assured lives very much less in other parts of the world ; publicans and medical men are not good lives ; nor plumbers, painters, and journeymen bakers, stone-masons, and millers ; butchers are everywhere regarded as bad lives, but have been best lives in his Society ; thinks there should be some distinction made in regard to these occupations in Friendly Societies ; would not prohibit them in participating in the benefits derived ; graduated payments and benefits could be given to persons if these objectionable classes of a Society was composed of entirely of one class of occupation ; if only a small element of particularly hazardous calling it would not be necessary to make any modification at all ; proportionate mortality to the 1,000 among lives in New South Wales ; would not be more than 12 or 14 among adults ; thinks it would be highly desirable for wives of members to undergo a medical examination ; all information and experience his Society has relating to sickness and death has been collected in respect of the ages of the persons under observation, &c., &c. (See Question 10,411.) ... 294

Is sure a Society of 10,000 members paying 56s. per annum and averaging 36 years of age could not pay a guinea a week and £20 at death ; a Society may exist a long time and still be in an insolvent position ; at valuation of Manchester Unity in England in 1871 they had a fund of over 3 millions sterling and yet there was a deficiency of a million and a quarter ; expectation of life varies with every year of life ; thinks Friendly Societies are much more largely recruited from the ranks of working men ; should have family history on candidates examination form a little more complete ; if Actuaries are told when examining the tables of a Friendly Society that when members die that the liability of the Society to their wives ceases they would value it so : they would not assume anything ; thinks Ratcliffe's tables, those contained in Supplementary Report of 1872, are the most reliable he has 295

Should think any other system than the sliding very iniquitous ; if experience for ten years of Societies of the Colony were collected the data would be fairly reliable ; fails to see how the Management Express Fund could be legally reimbursed by cessation by members leaving District ; places no importance on the initiation fees ; status in Victoria allows all Societies five years as a sort of probation ; fair time should be given Societies to enable them to reform themselves and giving valuers opportunity of going through work ; sufficiently accurately experience to construct a table upon ; his own table is based on experience of twenty English and Scotch offices ; experience of Societies of a kindred character is the best ; thinks statistics which Commission has now got would be scarcely any use ; would require statistics of reference to ages of members on any event ; must know the number of people who are in receipt of their own expectation of benefits, the benefits to which they are entitled, the conditions under which they get their benefits, and the contributions to provide these benefits, &c., &c. 296

As a rule cessations are a benefit, and in very many cases they are the contrary ; does not think difference of claims between Ordinary Life Insurance Society and Friendly Society makes question of cessation materially different ; difference between rate per cent. paid in a fire insurance and a life policy is that when man pays a premium for a life insurance policy at first he pays more than necessary, for in order to be charged a uniform contribution through life while in fire office there is always just the same risk ; would take question of doctor and medicine into consideration in his tables if it were understood contributions were to pay for them ; amount of sickness and the death rate would certainly affect the contributions ; his attention has been called to the fact that Temperance bodies as a rule are a lighter sick and death rate ; would not make a special difference in their rate of contribution unless he had experience collected exclusively from Temperance Societies ; would equalise it subsequently on valuation of the Societies ; if contribution fixed left Society with large surplus would arrive at conclusion it would be desirable to reduce them ; would not in a valuation consider the number of members resigning an important fact in the calculation ; thinks system as regards increase of the Funeral Fund is safe if contributions are sufficient for it ; thinks the experience of the Societies themselves of value if carefully collected ; is in favour of introduction of graduated scale of payments according to age ; Ratcliffe's tables as they appear on vision requiring £2 4s. 2d. to give £1 a week and £11 17s. 9¼d. at age of 60 would be correct, but they are calculated at 3 per cent. ; a higher rate of interest could be assumed in these Colonies ; would recommend Radeliffe's last tables in forming a code of rules ; Societies should be compelled to furnish returns in a form which any statist with knowledge of the subject would provide for them 297

Thinks there should be a Statistical Department for Friendly Societies, with a Statist and Actuary attached ; thinks that with such a number of people interested in the well being of these Societies it is desirable that there should be some person appointed to whom they would go for advice in law matters ; thinks legislation in this Colony might follow in the same lines as of investigations in England, New Zealand, and Victoria ; they merely require special modification to meet the special circumstances of this Colony ; it should be made compulsory on all Societies to make annual returns to the Registrar ; every Society should be compelled to register under the Act ; would have same form of return used in every Society except in special cases ; would be prudent to allow all Societies to vary their rates of contributions and benefits the same as Insurance Companies do, provided they did not go below a certain minimum fixed by actuarial actuarial contributions ; would force an actuarial investigation every five years ; set of tables should be framed by Government for the use of valuers, by which value of Societies could be calculated with little cost, and it would then take very little to value the Societies ; would not in framing these tables make allowances for withdrawals ... 298

Is of opinion with number of Societies in the Colony ten years of their experience would give a fairly reliable table ; sums for each separate benefit should undoubtedly be kept distinct ; would limit age up to which sick allowances should be granted ; inclines to the opinion that the majority of Societies in this Colony are not insolvent ; actuarial investigation has generally set forth that Friendly Societies are not in a sound financial position ... 299

Thinks returns called for in Victoria would be suitable to this Colony ; would be necessary to get the liability of each Lodge as to the longevity of its members ; would be fatal error to allow persons only to join who were in want of the benefits ... 300

Evidence of Mr. Christopher Rolleston, C.M.G. :—Is Auditor-General of New South Wales ; formerly held position of Registrar-General ; while holding that position he took some interest in the calculations with reference to basis on which the Friendly Societies were working ; inquired into system in vogue and collected the quinquennial returns which Act of that day required to be sent in to the Crown Law officers ; analyzed them and made report to Colonial Secretary with such tables as he could prepare ; that return was laid before Parliament ; will be found in volume II of Votes and Proceedings of 1861-2, page 1055 ; cannot tell Commission as to financial position of Societies ; is not in a position to offer any observations that could be of any value to the Commission ... 300

Evidence of Mr. James Frew :—Is Secretary of the Rose of Petersham Lodge, G. .O.O. ; has 655 financial members ; initiation fees from 16s. to 20s., graduated up to 105s. from 39s. to 40s. ; weekly payments, 1s. a week ; balance at the credit of Society half-year ending December, £54 11s. 4d. ; receipts for the year, £211 17s. 11d. ; expenditure, £157 6s. 11d. ; money paid on account of sick pay, £4 13s. 10d. ; amount of working expenses, £26 11s. 6d. ; benefits, medical attendance and medicines for members, their wives and families, and £1 per week sick pay ; on death of member, £20 ; death of his wife, £10 ; allowance set apart to meet contingencies of those who might fall sick, 22 per cent. ; is in favour of Government exercising close supervision of Friendly Societies ... 301

Doctor is paid £1 a year per member ; chemist, 8s. per year ; Societies starting should be compelled to have an actuarial certificate of the sound basis of their contributions if Government paid for it ; funds in hand from £50 to £60 ... 302

Half-fees are desirable if Lodge is low in funds, or members falling off ; it is a good way of inducing persons to join the Lodge ... 303

Evidence of Mr. Patrick Curran :—Is a member of Hibernian Australian Catholic Society ; states nature of a complaint he wishes to make, &c. (See question 10693 to 10712, pages ... 303 and 304

Evidence of Mr. Thomas Coonan :—Is member of the Sacred Heart Branch of Hibernian Australian Catholic Benefit Society ; states briefly what he knows respecting complaint made by Mr. Curran ; questions 10715 to 10730, page ... 304

Evidence of Mr. Robert Webber :—Is Secretary of G.U.O.O. ; amount of funds to credit, £60 0s. 3d. ; contributions, 1s. a week and 2s. a quarter levies to contingent fund ; payment to medical officer, 7s. per quarter per member ; it would be a great deal better to have a uniform rate of contribution for all Friendly Societies ... 305

Evidence of Mr. George Brown :—Is Secretary of the Herald Office Benefit Society ; Society is not registered under Friendly Societies Act ; amount of accumulated funds, £270 ; number of members, 111 ; benefits, medical attendance in cases of sickness to members and their families, sick pay ranging from 25s. to 15s. per week and £15 burial fee on death of member, £10 on death of member's wife ; contributions, 3s. per month per member ; persons comprising Society are wholly those employed in Herald Office ; doctor is paid 18s. a year a head ... 306

Society pays for prescriptions, with 33 per cent. discount ; does not think 3s. a month is sufficient to ensure payment of all benefits Society provides ; Society would not have been sound without donation of the £100 from Messrs. Fairfax & Sons ; expenditure last year about £280 ; receipts less cash in Bank, £60 11s. 6d. ; for first half-year of 1881 were £213 2s. 6d. ; expenditure, £156 3s. 10d. ; next half-year receipts were £202 2s. 8d., less £49 13s. ; cash in Bank and £7 5s. 8d. cash in hand was £158 17s. 6d. ; these amounts include £100 from Messrs. Fairfax & Sons ; present half-year's balance-sheets, balanced up to date, show £100 debenture in Bank of New South Wales and interest in Government Savings' Bank of £64 19s. 1d. and £3 5s. interest, and £2 2s. interest on two bonds due this half-year ; receipts of Society are £92 2s. 11d., less cash in hand and Bank, £43 5s. 2d. ; expenditure was £93 16s. 6d. ; amount in Joint Stock Bank, £103 5s. 5d. ... 307

Initiation fee 5s. uniformly ; fees to Doctor in cases of accouchement two guineas, paid by the members... 307

Has no pension fund in connection with the Society ; has a scale as to sick pay ; thinks it would be an advantage to bring the society under the operation of the law ... 308

Would most decidedly favour appointment of a Government officer to supervise all Societies of a Friendly benefit nature ; has a sliding scale of payments ... 309

Evidence of Mr. Henry Austen :—Is Treasurer of No. 3, Good Samaritan Sons of Temperance ; financial position of Society is low ; amount of money to credit about £72 ; contributions, 1s. a week ; usual benefits are given by the Society ... 309

Payment to doctor per member, 5s. 8d. per quarter ; chemist finds his own medicine... 310

Evidence of Mr. Jacob Audit :—Represents the American constitution of Oddfellows ; has a complaint against the Society ; states nature of complaint (vide questions 11039 to 11051, pages 311 and 312) ... 312

Evidence

Evidence of Dr. W. W. Joseph O'Reilly.—Is hon. Secretary to New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association ; has one Society at present, Court Robin Hood of the Foresters ; pay him £1 a year per member ; there has certainly been no proper form of examination of candidates in Society ; form somewhat similar to that of Life Assurance offices should be adopted ; finds at present time people with considerable means, as merchants, bank managers, &c., avail themselves to large extents of the medical benefits intended for their less affluent brethren ; a large number of the classes mentioned avail themselves of the services of the doctor ; his Society regards Friendly Societies as simply for mechanics, labourers, small traders, and journeymen, and not for persons better off in life... 312

Payment to medical men should not be less than £1 per annum ; thinks that amount is sufficient to ensure attendance on members, their wives, and families ; is a fair payment if confined to the class spoken of, within a certain radius ; fee in cases of accouchement should be increased up to two guineas because of the continual attendance ; some of the best medical men have commenced with the Societies ; the majority of members in Sydney registered under the New South Wales Board belong to Association ; medical man taking a Society for 10s. would have to have a large number of Societies to make it pay him ; has had reason to doubt that his prescriptions have been faithfully dispensed ; attributes that to chemist being insufficiently paid ; thinks fairest way of paying a chemist is to take a per centage of the amount of medicines dispensed ; does not think it is right that members should be permitted to belong to more than one Society ; has found in certain Lodges a disposition on the part of members to be placed on funds when really not sick ... 313

Cure for that would be not to permit persons to be members of more than one Society ; that should decidedly be a provision in any new legislation ; is aware that the members and Lodges of several Societies do not pay sufficient to place Societies in a solvent position ; Association does not think the present facilities granted by Government Savings' Banks and Post Office Savings' Banks are sufficient for the purpose ; all financial matters should be carried on through the bank instead of through the Societies ; thinks that would simplify the working of the Societies ; recommend a bank for carrying on all the operations of Friendly Societies only ; there are many things that would come up in reference to which it would be well to have medical men on the Commission ; if medical men get better pay Lodge patients would get better attention ; has had no experience of internal working of Friendly Societies... 314

Has had reason to assume that wives and children of members attend and pay the contributions, thereby saving a loss of time and salary to member himself ; wives of members have complained to him that none of the visiting members have been to them nor have they received their sick pay ; class of members mentioned in second paragraph of his report probably are the most valuable members in connection with Friendly Societies, in view of the most wealthy of the citizens of Sydney organising themselves into a Society for the purpose of securing medical attendance to themselves and family at a much cheaper rate than they have had to pay under the system of having a family doctor it would but be in harmony with recommendation as set forth in paragraph II of his report if such men belonged to an Association of that kind ; it would depend upon what their contributions were ... 316

Receives £1 11s. 6d. in his Court for midwifery cases ; one object of Association adopting clause about Friendly Societies bank was that it would prevent the possibility of defalcations ; it would also facilitate members getting sick pay quicker than at present ; Association would like medical attendance to be entirely separated from the provident portion of the objects of Friendly Societies ; his Society is prepared to allow all the members, no matter what their financial position may be, to receive sick benefits in money as well as the funeral donations, but not medical benefits ; the sooner the friendly principle is separated from the commercial the better for the Societies ... 316

Societies would get better served if they combined and got a public dispensary ; thinks the large dispensaries can get as good drugs as any private chemist ; members of Friendly Societies are rather free from venereal diseases than others ... 318

Evidence of Mr. Richard Stapleton.—Belongs to the St. Patrick's Branch, Parramatta, of the Guild ; number of members, 112 ; total assets in property and money, about £1,200 in round numbers ; is invested in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act of 1867 ; rate of subscription, 13d. to the general fund and 1d. to the widow and orphans ; gives exactly the same benefits as the other branches of the Guild ; no circumstances have come under his notice in which the present Act has not been sufficient for his purposes ; thinks actual working of Societies might be left to members themselves ; members are allowed a pension Society is independent ; contemplates registering rules under Act when the Commission is finished... 316

Evidence of Mr. Stephen Murphy.—Is a member of the Manchester Unity, the United Brothers Lodge ... 319

Was charged with slandering certain officers of the Lodge ; regards their action as being illegal ; case was nonsuited in District Court ; for plaintiff's statement dated February 2nd, 1882, see page 320 ; grounds of his expulsion were the result of an inquiry as to certain sums of money he paid over to Financial Secretary as Noble Grand of the Lodge ; auditors refused him any information ; the money in question was fines imposed by him and Mr. Robertson who filled the chair after him ; amount was £4 0s. 6d. ; Read's notice of motion that caused row because he could not get any account of the moneys he inquired after ... 320

Admission of one of the Auditors that he did not audit the fine book ; other Auditor was absent from meeting ; acknowledgment of Society that he did not place the moneys to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund according to 23 by-law of Lodge ; interview of Provincial Corresponding Secretary with Lodge officers and their determination to bring the case before meeting of the Lodge ; and his attendance being required to substantiate his charges ; reads copy of charge to P.C.S. (see page 321) ; was not allowed to state his case before Lodge ; was about two hours talking but Chairman would not allow him to substantiate his charge ; officers were all unanimously acquitted of the charge ... 321

Mr. Robertson preferred a charge against him ; Lodge was summoned to deal with charge ; meeting decided charge proved against him, and passed resolution to expel him ; received intimation of his expulsion ; applied subsequently to the District and wrote Mr. Gelding requesting him to lay it before District Meeting ; is not in arrears ; was told by Mr. A. Kethel that Mr. Gelding was the only obstacle in the way of his being reinstated ; two officers examined fine-book with him and concluded it had not been audited since 1863 ; notwithstanding that the persons charged were dismissed by the investigating Committee of the Lodge ... 322

His

His action turned simply on the irregularity of keeping the books ; the words " wilfully combined " were stated through ignorance ; does not consider he got fair play ; was in Court when the case went on against him before Judge Cohen ; no books to his knowledge were brought into Court 323

Evidence of Mr. Abraham W. Chapman.—Is Treasurer of the Manchester Unity Order ; has held several offices in connection with the Lodge ; Lodge provides own chemist separate from the medical institute ; payment to doctor 3s. 6d. per member per quarter ; costs 24s. a year for doctor and chemist ; system is not so cheap as other Lodges that support Medical Institute ; reason for adoption of present mode was dissatisfaction with arrangements of the dispensary and the doctor ; number of members close on 500 ; Murphy had a fair trial in every way ; Society is managed on the same principle as other Lodges of the Order ; benefits similar to those in other Lodges ; has uniform rate of contribution 1s. 2d. a week ; £750 of funds is invested in land in Elizabeth-street 324

Cost to the Lodge of law expenses in Murphy's case was between £50 and £60 ; thinks his Society is in a thoroughly sound financial position ; would be glad to see his contributions increased a penny a week ; graduated scale of payments ought to be adopted in all Friendly Societies ; reason that Society ceased to subscribe to the Medical Institute was owing to complaints by members that they did not have the control over the medical officers that they should have ; there were also complaints against the non-attendance of medical men and the medicines ; members did not believe the medicines were genuine 325

Members are decidedly more satisfied with the present system ; every opportunity was afforded Murphy to prove his case ; is not in favour of a Board of Final Appeal ; should advise executive body to defend any lawsuit ; does not think drugs as good as those obtained from private chemist can be obtained from Institute 326

Has had no complaints in connection with medical attendance under the present system ; he was for years on the Medical Board ; is in favour of annual audit of Societies' accounts by Government officers ; thinks the less Government interfere with Friendly Societies the better, beyond seeing that they pay a proper rate of contribution ; Friendly Societies most undoubtedly are a great advantage to the State in more ways than one 327

Evidence of Mr. John Robinson.—Is Secretary of the United Brothers Lodge of the Oddfellows ; total amount of funds, £2,949 14s. 1d. ; number of members, 450 ; funeral donation of Lodge comes from District ; Lodge pays 1s. 6d. a quarter levy to District for Funeral Fund ; pays the District 6d., sometimes 4d. levy to Widow and Orphans Fund ; District pays funeral donation in event of a member's death, in return for levy 327

A brother dying and leaving children under a certain age, a sum is paid out of Funeral Fund according to scale calculated on the length of membership ; largest amount paid out of that fund £30 ; must be a member over twenty years to get it ; payments to doctor 3s. 6d. per member good in the books, and 1s. 9d. for member being bad during the quarter, and 1s. 9d. for every new member as an examination fee ; payment to doctor and chemist about 24s. per member per year ; amount paid on account of sick pay last year, £572 14s. 2d. ; cost of management during same period, £175 5s. 2d. ; Mr. Stephen Murphy's charge was groundless as far as he can recollect ; he was an Auditor at the time ; does not think Murphy would under any circumstances be taken back into the Lodge ; thinks the whole of the fines inflicted during Murphy's term of office and that of his successor were accounted for ; Act decidedly affords sufficient security to members and officers of the different Friendly Societies ; report brought up by the Auditors in Murphy's case was favourable to the Lodge, &c. ; all the brothers concerned in Murphy's affair left the room during the time he was expelled 328

Hardly thinks it would be an advantage to have a Government appointed officer to examine the accounts of different Friendly Societies ; believes it would be an advantage to have one uniform set of books for all Societies 329

Evidence of Mr. James Perry.—Represents the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia, Lodge 25 ; amount of defalcation in connection with his Society during his term of office was about £180 ; name of Secretary who was guilty, James Pettit ; took office immediately following Pettit ; found that members were continually complaining of amount of money he was suing them for ; Lodge was in a most successful career ; struck him, while in office, that there had been a very small amount accumulated ; special audit was then called ; Pettit was called upon to explain ; his only reply was that he paid more to the funds of the Lodge than ever he had taken from it ; had legal opinions on the matter ; resulted in their not being able to prove any particular amount, and it was better to let the case drop ; Pettit was expelled 329

Present value of funds of Lodge, £1,130 ; number of members, 210 ; Grand Lodge pays funeral donations ; pays Grand Lodge 10s. a year ; has to his credit £1,100, independent of share on general funds ; money is invested in various Banks, with exception of 180 shares in Protestant Hall ; amount paid on account of shares, £150 ; contributions, 1s. a week and 2s. levy per quarter ; payment to doctor, 10s. per member per annum ; to chemist, 10s. per member per annum ; working expenses per year, about £45 in salaries, &c. ; profits on receipts and expenditure last year, about £130 ; sees no objection to provision to permit persons to belong to more than one Society ; thinks his Society is on a sound financial basis ; present Act causes great dissension at times in various Lodges, in reference to registration of Society's rules ; rules once registered and distributed to the various subordinate Lodges originating throughout the land do not require re-registration ; it is an injustice to receive registration fee for rules again unless there is some by-law added by the Lodge ; is of opinion if Grand Council register the rules it should be sufficient for all purposes 330

Has no doubt if present Act had been more stringent in its governing principles, misappropriations of money could not take place ; thinks in any new legislation that particular interest should be carefully guarded over ; appropriation of money by Pettit extended over some two years ; he succeeded in disguising from auditors of Lodge the fact that he had not accounted for all the moneys he had received ; system of auditing differs now—from that in use at time of defalcations ; would decidedly favour principle of any member applying to a Government (if appointed) for appointment of two officers that might examine the accounts ; such a principle would, no doubt, be a great protection to members of the various Friendly Societies ; Mr. Colyer was the lawyer who recommended him not to take proceedings against Pettit ; would favour using of a uniform set of books throughout all Friendly Societies ; thinks they might be greatly simplified ... 331

Evidence of Mr. James Munro :—Is President of No. 25 Young Australian Protestant Alliance ; further evidence relative to alleged defalcations by the late Grand Secretary. See pages 332 to 336 ... 336

Thinks Government should give Friendly Societies more protection than they have at present time, &c. ; certainly favours provisions of the Act providing that members in arrears should be summoned for the non-payment of their arrears, if they are able to pay ; disapproves of the principle of arbitration being applied to matters of dispute in financial affairs ; if a member exceeds fourteen weeks in arrears he is unfinancial ; sectarian Lodges do assist their members ; Grand Lodge adopts a uniform set of rules for government of all subordinate Lodges ; rules of his Society make clear provision that members belonging to a Lodge failing shall be absorbed into other Lodges ... 337

Evidence of Mr. Edward McEncroe :—Is an honorary member of the Guild ; was deposed from the benefit of the Sickness Funds some nine or ten years ago, but is still entitled to medical and funeral benefits ... 337

States grounds of his being deposed from the benefits of the sickness funds ; Society has been acting in contravention of the Act ; thinks there should be a system of arbitration preventing persons from going to law for the settlement of disputes ... 338

Evidence of Mr. James Collis Pettit, who appeared with Mr. W. C. Proctor as his Solicitor :—States that charge against him of alleged misapplication of funds would not have been made had he not gone up for re-election and beat those parties who were appearing against him ; seeing that they were beaten in an election, the claim was put against him, and he put in a counter-claim, which was for letting people off for sums that they owed, &c., &c. See pages 339 to 342... 342

[Sittings held at Newcastle.]

Evidence of Mr. James Reid :—Is a member of the Manchester Unity, and holds office of Provincial Corresponding Secretary for the District ; gross number of members at present, about 600 ; value of Management Fund up to December, £47 7s. 9d. ; Funeral Fund, £481 0s. 6d. ; amount for Widow and Orphans Fund, £837 2s. 4d. ; members' wives, on the death of husband, are paid according to a sliding scale, from £5 to £20 ; weekly contributions paid by members is about 8½d. or 9d. ; sick pay, 20s. and one Lodge 21s. a week ; payment by members for doctor, 6d. a week ... 342

Receipts for last year from all sources for all subordinate Lodges, £1,821 14s. 1d. ; total expenditure for like period, £1,681 13s. 1d. ; payment of 6d. per week per member to medical officer includes all medicines ; believes sick pay is too high for the amount of contributions paid ; is an unhealthy indication to find income of last year from Districts has not been equal to the amount of the expenditure ; principle of old and young paying alike has been carried on ever since Order has been established ; is of opinion graduated scale of contributions would be most equitable ; when a member runs into arrears he is unfinancial at the end of three months ; such a member is disentitled to medical attendance or sick pay ; would be entitled to no benefits whatever ; is opposed to principle of suing members at Police Court ... 343

Has not experienced any inconvenience from the present Friendly Societies Act in the performance of his duties in the working of his District ; Society's funds are invested in the Savings' Banks, to the credit of trustees ; Rule 59, page 11, of his Rules, is carried out ... 344

Law in respect to all members attending the funeral of a deceased member has been rescinded in his own Lodge ; it is carried out in some Lodges ; wives of members are medically examined ; it is on the Sick Fund that Society has lost ; first competition the Society has to work against is the Colliery Societies ; contributions into Colliery Societies 6d. a week ; benefits 15s., 10s., and 7s. 6d. ; benefits in case of death, £20, and £12 10s. for member's wife ; Grand United Order has been lately competing against Society in the lowness of their initiations ; miners have risks that other men have not—miners are subject to accidents ... 345

Does not favour view that law should make provision that members should not be permitted to join more than one Society ... 346

Evidence of Mr. John Somerville :—Is a member of the Manchester Unity and the Order of Druids ; is Treasurer of the Loyal Junction Lodge of the Manchester Unity, number of members thirty-eight ; amount of funds to credit in Lodge above £617 at end of the last quarter ; contributions 6d. a week to Funeral Fund, 2d. to Management Fund ; Medical Fund 6d., and 1d. to Widow and Orphan Fund ; members not requiring doctor do not pay more than 9d. ; approves of members being permitted to join more than one Society ; is opposed to principle of a uniform contribution ; there is a great deal of competition in Newcastle among Friendly Societies ; is Treasurer in one of the Lodges in connection with the Druids ; number of members 17 ; amount of funds £104 at the last balance, independent of District Fund ; largest number of members Society has had at one time 120 ; number was reduced through the defalcations of late Secretary, could never find out nature of defalcations, through Secretary having burnt the books and destroyed the papers ; had solicitor's advice ; his name was George Tribe, and he was a defaulter in the Municipality ; waited to see if Municipality got a conviction, and finding they could not the matter was dropped ... 347

Contributions to Druids 6d. a week for Sick and Funeral Fund ; sick benefit is only 15s. a week ; thinks amount of contributions paid in Societies are too small to ensure the large payments for sick pay ; present Act is not properly administered ; is perfectly satisfied that amendments could be made in his general rules, but does not think they would be of benefit in an Act of Parliament ; is of opinion Districts are too large and should be left to work themselves ; would not advocate an audit by a Government official annually ; Friendly Societies' returns are too complicated ; would prefer Police Court rather than a Board of Arbitration as a final Court after laws were exhausted, because it would cost less ... 348

Evidence of Mr. Richard Bailey :—Is a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters ; was Secretary up to the end of last quarter ; number of members 104 financial and unfinancial ; subscriptions paid by members 1s. a week, and 1s. a quarter for superannuation ; benefits £1 a week sick pay for first six months, 8s. for 2nd six months, and 5s. after as long as illness lasts ; funeral donations according to length of membership ; total value of funds of Court about £1,200, invested in Savings' Bank, property, &c. ; payment medical officers 30s. for each member per annum, including medicine ; there is no special registration fee ; total receipts for last year, £419 18s. 5d. ; expenditure during same period, £432 18s. 8d. ; 1s. a week is sufficient to provide benefits that are promised ; payment to doctor is too much ; members have in contemplation to get amount reduced or secure another doctor ; would prefer disputes being settled by arbitration rather than going to Law Courts ... 349

Approves

Approves of provisions of Friendly Societies Act which provide for the recovery of arrears; it would be a ver good plan to appoint a Government officer to investigate every year the books and documents of each Society; wives of members do not undergo a medical examination; thinks a man should have the right to be a member of as many Lodges as he can pay into; should have the right to receive benefits from all the Societies he may belong to... 350

Evidence of Mr. David Beveridge.—Is a member of the Foresters and Protestant Alliance; is Secretary of Court Friendship No. 4,584 of the Foresters; number of members in Lodge, 111; has lost a good many members through non-payments of dues; amount of contributions last year, £237 7s. 5d. to the sick and Funeral Fund; £54 5s. 4d. to Incidental Fund; expenditure for the year, £172 12s.; total value of funds of Court, £461 3s. 9d.; doctor is paid through colliery; moneys are invested in the Bank; favours principle of a man being a member of more than one Society; considers one Society is too little for a working-man; matters of dispute are settled by an Arbitration Committee ... 350

Does not approve of uniform contributions; is Secretary of Black Diamond Lodge in the Protestant Alliance; has thirty-six members now; largest number he has ever had, eighty odd; reduction of members was caused through non-payment of dues; amount of funds, about £37; amount paid last year for sick pay was over £100; would certainly approve of a Government officer being appointed to inspect the books of the various Friendly Societies; would be satisfied with the Act if it was carried out properly; the Government, in consideration of the increase of population in the district, ought to allow Societies something towards their expenses ... 351

Evidence of Mr. Thomas New.—Is Secretary of Court Hunter, Ancient Order of Foresters; number of financial members, 97; non-financial, 4; amount of funds to credit, £220 2s. 4d. last December; amount of subscriptions received last year, £290 9s. 9d.; total amount of expenditure for that year, £1,173 5s. 8d.; receipts during five years from all sources, £1,393 8s. 2d.; contributions a shilling a week; payment to doctor, 6s. 6d. per quarter, including medicine; benefits one guinea a week for six months, 10s. for next six months, and 6s. as long as long as the member lives; funeral donation, £20; on death of wife, £15; thinks 1s. a week is insufficient to ensure the large benefits; is in favour of a uniform contribution; would not be against a Government officer going through the books ... 352

Would approve of a man (if he were honest) being a member of more than one Society; Act in the matter of investments is rather too restrictive ... 353

Further evidence of Mr. David Beveridge.—Is member of the Accident Fund Colliery Society, Wallsend Pit; does not come under Friendly Societies Act in any way whatever; Society pays according to call; amount comes sometimes to 6d. or will go as high as a shilling, or as low as 3d.; largest amounts paid towards assisting any of the employes in pit, £1 a week for twelve months; has got no funds in connection with Accident Fund; is simply a voluntary contribution; do not provide a doctor, one being occupied in the colliery; Society is simply a mutual aid Society; majority of employes generally contribute towards the fund; members of the sick and Accident Fund who happen to be members of Friendly Societies also receive sick pay from them and this money ... 353

Has a separate fund for providing medical attendance and chemist; it is sustained by members themselves; a good many accidents occur in connection with the occupation of a miner; all miners very nearly belong to one Society or another; if there are several accidents they have to make a large call; accident must happen to member in A. A. Co. when engaged in a particular work in order that he may receive the benefits; Sick and Accident Fund in A. A. Co. is entirely restricted to colliery operations alone ... 354

Evidence of Mr. Henry Rushton.—Holds office of Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance; there has been some secession of the Grand Division by one of his Lodges; cause of secession was objection to some action of the National Division in Sydney, in regard to some levies which they said were illegal; generally speaking thinks Sons of Temperance with one or two exceptions are in a very fair and prosperous condition; payments on account of sickness in connection with his own district for five years, £408 4s. 7d.; funeral donations during the time, £90; amount of credit of Division, £40; total amount received for sick and funeral donation in five years, £8,606 6s. 9d.; total expenditure £708 6s. 7d.; contribution, 7½d. per week; benefits, 15s. a week and medical attendance; doctor is paid through colliery; every person working at the colliery has 6d. a week stopped from his wages, so the doctor is paid in that way; members of Division pay 7½d. a week; contributions are not sufficient, especially in a mining district, to ensure all benefits; states how Sick and Accident Funds in connection with the collieries are sustained and worked. See question 12809 ... 355

Evidence of Mr. Alfred Asher.—Is Grand Scribe of the Sons of Temperance; total number of members in connection with his Grand Division, 475; total funds of Divisions, £3,293 8s. 9d.; total expenditure for last five years 4,733 13s. 8d., income has been about £6,000 ... 355

Each Division makes its own by-laws and charge whatever contributions they like—in most cases 6d. a week; medical attendance charged separately; his Lodge pays 6s. 6d. a quarter in advance to the doctor; benefits £1 a week sick pay for the first six months, 15s. for next three months; has a general Funeral Fund for the whole Order; capitation allowance to Funeral Fund, 1s. 6d. per member per quarter; funeral donations for five years, £1,517 14s. 11d.; medical, £1,326 12s., exclusive of doctor; and benefits, £1,836 6s. 9d.; states particulars in connection with certain alleged misappropriation; is in favour of a uniform scale of contributions; approves of conditions contained in Friendly Societies Act empowering officers of Societies to recover arrears of contributions from their members; is opposed to matters of disputes being carried into the Law Courts; would most decidedly favour appointment of Government Inspector to inspect Societies books ... 356

There is a falling off of nearly 200 members in five years; breaking up of Divisions has been caused through want of interest, not want of funds ... 356

Evidence of Mr. Edward Claridge.—Is Treasurer of the Honeysuckle Lodge, G.U.O.O.; number of members, 202, of whom forty are unfinancial; amount of money to credit, £755 9s. 6d.; contributions, 1s. 1½d. a week if members pay to the doctor, if not, only 7½d. a week; total amount paid last year for sick benefits ...

benefits, £136 18s. 4d., for medical benefits, £136 7s. 6d. ; total expenditure for last year, £32 19s. 5d., exclusive of what has already mentioned ; total amount of income of District last year, £456 0s. 1d. ; total expenditure, £416 3s. 6d. ; total amount on account of sick pay and other benefits for five years—sick allowance, £442 5s. 4d. ; medical benefits, £621 13s. 9d. working expenses, £136 7s. 11d. ; funeral donations during five years, £127 paid by the District ; benefits given—£1 a week for first six months, 15s. a week for next six months, and 5s. for next twelve months 357

Funeral donation is paid according to graduated scale ; highest amount is £30, must be a member ten years to get that amount ; on death of wife, £10, if five years a member, £15 and if ten years, £20 ; thinks 1s. 1½d. is sufficient to ensure all benefits ; considers Society is in a good financial position and able to meet its financial engagements ; is in favour of uniform contribution ; has never taken members into a Court of Law for arrears ; if member is unable to pay his contribution, other members endeavour to make it up for him, and sometimes let him run out ; objects to principle of going to the Courts ; member in arrears fourteen weeks become unfinancial ; is then a month before he is good on the books again or entitled to benefits ; oldest member is about fifty ; members are principally all young men ; has quarterly audits of his receipts and expenditure ; if Government officer was appointed to inspect books and accounts and paid by the Government, it would be very desirable ; management and government of Friendly Societies is not very expensive, because Societies keep within strict limits and most of officers do work almost gratuitously ; Secretary and Treasurer give a bond ; all assets are in money in the Government Savings Bank ; members and their wives undergo medical examination ; children are registered to the Funeral Fund ; members desirous of registering their children pay a shilling ; amount paid in case of a child's death if a member has belonged to Order for not less than six months, £1 ; if over twelve months, £2 358

Society is principally composed of tradesmen and labourers ; payment to Dr. Knaggs, 6d. per member per week ; is not desirable for Friendly Societies to meet in public-houses ; members provide their own regalia ; has no doubt that the liabilities increase with the age of members ; does not think it advisable to adopt the system of half-fees ; approves of members being permitted to join more than one Society... 359

Evidence of Mr. Henry Sneyby :—Is Secretary of the City of Newcastle Lodge G. U. O. O. ; number of members on books, 280 ; amount of subscriptions received during last year from all sources, £737 17s. 3d. ; total amount of expenditure for like period, £714 11s. 6d. ; total amount paid for sick benefits for past five years, £1,115 4s. 11d. ; for funeral expenses for like period, £316 ; payments for medical attendance, £1,102 18s. ; cost of management for five years, including Sub-Committee of Management levy, £258 2s. ; total receipts for five years, £3,594 14s. 4d. ; total expenditure for same period, £2,832 4s. 9d. ; does not approve of the provision in Act allowing him to go to the Small Debts Court ; highest sum paid in case of death of a member, £30 ; member's wife, £20, provided he has been a member ten years ; contributions,—full members on their paying to doctor, 13½d. a week ; non-medical members, or country members, 7½d. ; that has up to present time been sufficient to ensure payment of all the Society's obligations ; there was a case of defalcation of £100 some ten years ago by a Secretary ; was principally the fault of members of the Lodge, who were too idle to go to the Lodge and pay their subscriptions, but if they met the Secretary in the street would give him the money, and he absconded ; did not follow the law, as he got away before he could be prosecuted ; candidates seeking admission and their wives undergo a medical examination ; his medical officers have always given satisfaction in respect to medical examination ; has quarterly audits by two or three Auditors chosen by the members ; would have no objection to Government appointing a public officer to investigate and inspect the books of all Friendly Societies every year ; present Act to the best of his belief is fairly and reasonably administered ; two or three of the oldest members of Lodge are of opinion that Society has no power to lend money in any other manner but that set forth in the Friendly Societies Act of 1874, whereas, if Society could have lent money on house or other property, being good security, the funds would have been much increased thereby, as it is the Banks receive the benefit of their money 360

Having members of Society as bondsmen is equally as good as having a bond from a Guarantee Society ; annual returns are sent direct to Registrar 361

Evidence of Mr. George Buckley :—Represents the G. U. O. O. ; is Secretary to the District and also private Lodge Secretary ; number of members in District, 1,656 ; number in private Lodge, 126 ; receipts in Lodge last year, £240 17s. 3d. ; total expenditure £206 12s. 10d. ; name of Lodge, The Miner's Refuge ; sick pay during five years, £562 13s. ; funeral donations, £105 ; doctor and medicines, £113 14s. ; on account of management, £218 1s. 11½d. ; making total for five years of £894 8s. 11½d., excluding £105 for funeral donations, which is recouped from the District ; total receipts for five years, £1,180 0s. 1d. ... 361

All Lodges pay the same contributions ; total value of funds of District Lodge up to December, 1881, £1,943 1s. 3½d. ; at present time, about £1,990 ; receipts for five years, £4,259 15s. 3½d. ; funeral allowances during that time, £1,465 0s. 3d. ; cost of management, £1,783 3s. 10d. ; total expenditure, £3,263 1s. 1d. ; total income, £4,259 15s. 3½d. ; has never heard any complaints about present Act ; there should be something done to have one uniform system of book-keeping throughout the whole of the Society ; disapproves of persons joining more than one Lodge ; approves of provisions in Act for subordinate Lodges to sue their members for arrears of contributions ; is in favour of Government Officer being appointed to investigate and inspect books and accounts of Friendly Societies every year ; is firmly of opinion that contributions paid by members is sufficient to ensure all benefits that the Society gives 362

Evidence of Mr. Alexander Wilkinson :—Is an old member of the G. U. O. O. ; produces tabulated statement in detail showing the workings of the Lodge from 1873 to 30th June, 1882 ; for statement and copy of suggestions to the Commission, see page 363

Present mode of governing his own body with small contributions of a uniform character is insufficient to meet all requirements ; number of members in 1863, sixty-one good and five bad, there are now ninety-three good and thirteen bad ; does not think that 1s. 1½d. a week is sufficient to provide all payments ; is in favour of a graduated payment according to age ; is quite of opinion that nineteen out of twenty Societies are in a state of insolvency at present moment ; gives instance ; there is a great deal of speculation going on in several of the Societies registered under the Friendly Societies Act ; provision in future legislation should be made for a table showing the basis on which new Societies should be established ; annual inspection of books, &c., by Government Officer would be of great service 364

Funds are invested in the Savings' Bank, to credit of Trustees, bearing ordinary interest; in applying the principle of insurance to Friendly Societies, a man's occupation (where there is a whole community engaged in miner's work) should be taken in consideration; is sure the medical examinations are not sufficiently full and searching; does not approve of persons joining more than one Society; if permitted to join more than one Society, amount of benefit to be received should be fixed; members wives do not undergo a medical examination; thinks it necessary to have an examination of members' wives; sums paid to doctor include medicine; all Lodge disputes should be settled among themselves and not go to the Law Courts at all; officers should have power to receive arrears of contributions; member of Society in arrears is suspended eight weeks from benefits after he has been three months bad; if over thirteen weeks in arrears is suspended from benefits for another eight weeks; was surprised in looking over the annual report of the G. U. O. O. F. to find the large number of members in each of the Lodges and the small amount of money to their credit; many of these Lodges are of old standing; it proves that the contribution must be very inadequate 365

Cost as far as his experience goes of opening a private Lodge in connection with the District would be about £10 if they come up from Sydney; it is very bad for Lodges to meet in public-houses—is certain it leads to intemperate habits; thinks there should be a general mode of government of Friendly Societies; thinks there should be only one in a town or district, as the greater the number the greater the security 366

Evidence of Mr. John M'Fadyen.—Represents the Rose of Australia Lodge G.U.O.O.F; number of members, 178; total value of funds on 31st December last year were £526; contributions, 7½d. a week; 6d. to medical fund; occasionally makes a levy to work his own Management Expense Fund ... 366

Total receipts last year, £369 19s. 11d.; total expenditure during that time, £327 4s. 8d.; receipts for five years, sick and funeral, £1,626 16s. 5d.; management, £243 7s. 2d.; doctor, £52 10s. 6d.; expenditure for same period—Funeral, £150; sick pay, £1,365 15s. 8d.; management, £77 5s. 6d.; printing, &c., £33 9s. 11d.; rent, £24 6s. 6d; has never had any cases of defalcation in connection with officers or members of his Society; money to credit of Society is invested in Building Society as a fixed deposit; there is supposed to be 1,800 miners employed in the district; contributions is scarcely sufficient to ensure the benefits the Society gives to its members; taking all things into consideration—the young Colony, the number of members who join and leave again—the Society has an advantage that is incalculable to those who are unacquainted with it; would like to see a calculation made as to what it would take for a Society to sustain itself; suggests an Inspector being appointed to superintend the Societies, in order that there might be a check on them; one system of bookkeeping should be adopted; has the security of the Directors and Trustees of Building Society for amount of funds invested 367

Mode of investment of money in a Building Society has been inserted in the annual returns of the Lodge to Mr. Oliver 368

Evidence of Mr. George Mather.—Is Warden of the Guild, West Maitland Branch, St. John the Baptist; total number of members in district, 107; produces documents giving the information he has prepared, see page 368; contributions, 14d. a week; benefits, a guinea a week when sick for twelve months, 10s. 6d. for the next twelve months, then 5s. with option of settling up and getting so much to pay them off; payment to doctor, £1 per head, including medicines; total value of funds at last balance, £1,103 14s. 6d.; funeral donation on death of a Brother, when he has passed his noviciate we give the wife £30, if over five years a member £35; in case of the death of a wife £12 is paid to the Brother; Society is confined to members of his Church only; from eighteen to forty-five years of age; has lent £150 on mortgage; rest of funds is in the Savings Bank to the credit of Trustees on account of the Society 368

Secretary is paid £20 a year; thinks amount paid by members is sufficient to ensure all benefits the Society provides; Society is composed principally of tradesmen in the town and farmers' sons round the district; all members up to twelve months in Society are only considered as novices; favours principle of graduated scale of payment according to age; members going bad on the books twelve months are struck off; Society does not sue them; is in favour of uniform contributions being paid by members of Friendly Societies; disapproves of provision of the Act in reference to recovery of arrears of contribution from members; has not had any trouble with the Act; is in favour of public Government Officer being appointed to keep all Societies up to the mark; does not think investment of moneys on mortgage is illegal 369

Evidence of Mr. Michael Murray.—Represents St. John's Guild, West Maitland; is Bursar or Treasurer; Society works very well, and is in a safe and sound position; never has any disputes; officers and members transgressing are brought before the Council; in case of any difficulty about decision they could call past and present Councils together; disapproves of Societies taking members to Law Courts; all members undergo medical examination; has had doctors who were very careless; does not know that there is anything wrong in a man joining more than one Society if he pays his subscription to all; it might lead to fraud, but if he were an honest man he could not do this; thinks it would be better to fix the amount members should be entitled to receive by Statute—thinks it would be fairer to the Societies; Society has not to his knowledge suffered from disabilities under the present Act... .. 370

Evidence of Mr. William Law Kidd.—Is Secretary of No. 5, Sons of Temperance; number of members, ninety; has had as many as 150; principal cause of decrease is through a good many leaving the district; value of funds £390; sick pay during last year, £65 3s.; members in his Division contribute 6s. 6d. a quarter for those registered to doctor's list, and it is paid to him; contributions 6d. a week, not including doctor; benefits, 20s. a week for thirteen weeks, 15s. for next thirteen weeks, 10s. for next twenty-six weeks, and 7s. 6d. during remainder of sickness; funeral donations £20, and £10 on the death of a member's wife; Division is not at present on Funeral Fund; they have not rejoined the fund owing to a dispute as to the amount of the levies and they were suspended; disruption does not exist, but there have been no terms made with the Funeral Fund and the levies have not been paid up, so the Division has to insure its own members now 371

Does not know that a better investment can be made of the funds, either in his Division or in some other way, to secure the payments at death for 1s. 6d. per quarter; members travelling are provided with a clearance, which is all the benefit obtained from belonging to the Grand Division; particulars and result of dispute with Grand Division, see page 371

Has never summoned members for nonpayment of arrears; nature of a case of defalcation in connection with his Division—see questions 13498 to 13503; Secretaries and Treasurer of his Division give no bond or guarantee; does not think examination of candidates is sufficiently searching; approves to a certain extent of members joining more than one Society; thinks the amount paid by members just now is rather small; is in favour of Government appointed officer to examine books of Societies every year; funds are invested in the Savings Bank ... 372

Believes a Board of Arbitration composed of members acquainted with the working of different Friendly Societies would be advantageous to themselves and other Societies ... 373

Evidence of Mr. John Thorn:—Is a member of the Sons of Temperance, Day Dawn Division No. 5; states Society is at present very badly worked owing to the enormity of the expenses; pays a shilling a quarter to Grand Division and gets no assistance from them whatever ... 373

Has no particular suggestions to offer the Commission; if Societies work like theirs it is impossible for them to stand; nothing has been paid by his Division to Funeral Fund, in consequence of a dispute; before that they paid 1s. to Grand Division and 1s. 4d. to the National Division; that was cause of dispute, as when members asked what was done they could get no satisfaction out of it; majority of members do not think they have been fairly treated in this dispute; thinks if there is a fair settlement, members of his Division can again participate in the benefits of the Funeral Fund; has no doubt of dispute having punished both parties; believes portion of cost of dispute on their side was paid out of funds subscribed for sick and funeral benefits, though he opposed that ... 374

Evidence of Mr. Henry Cox Colyer:—Is a solicitor; was consulted in March 1880, in connection with Lodge 25, Protestant Alliance, in the matter of a misappropriation of their funds; for copies of correspondence between Mr. Colyer and Mr. J. Pettit, and Auditors' report dated 17th February, 1880, see page ... 375

For copy of paper of accounts prepared by the Auditors as a specimen of what they found, see page 376; advised Trustees to be careful about criminal proceedings, because their books had not been kept in such a shape as to ensure conviction before a Jury; he never had any personal conversation with Pettit since this matter; the fact of the Society books not being kept in a thoroughly satisfactory manner would have had an important effect before a Bench of Magistrates; if by documents signed by Pettit it could be shown that he had received money from members, he being the Secretary, the charge could be sustained unless it could be explained away in some other way; if any statement were made that he had been challenged to proceed it would be absolutely false ... 376

Evidence of Mr. Thomas Stewart:—Is the Secretary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows situated at Marrickville; has thirty financial members at present; amount of subscriptions paid 1s. 3d. a week; benefits, sick allowance of £1 a week; is connected with the Loyal Pymont Lodge of the same Order at Pymont; expenses incurred in organizing that Lodge, £56 12s.; for statement of amounts expended in connection with opening of Loyal Pymont, No. 14, I.O.O.F., see page 377; was legally proceeded against by printers for payment of £12 for printing posters; bill was disputed on account of its being extravagant; printers obtained verdict, and he had to pay the money besides the solicitor's charges; Lodge pleaded that they had no right to pay the money; Garcia was the name of the officer who swore on that occasion that that they had a perfect right to expend any amount of money in establishing new Lodges; had a cause of action to get a refund if members had been willing to do it; it is not favourable to Societies to be strangled at the commencement by heavy expenses in opening ... 377

Is of opinion that a uniform system of book-keeping should be adopted by all Lodges; would favour appointment of Government Officer to examine Friendly Societies' accounts occasionally; Lodge doctors generally do not seem to give the attendance required—they attend the members as if they were receiving nothing for it; rate of contribution, 1s. 3d. per week; allows 2s. 6d. for every financial member, at the end of each month to the sick fund; 2s. a quarter to funeral fund, which is paid to the Grand Lodge, and 9d. per quarter to the Grand Lodge for incidental expenses; the 2s. for the funeral fund is kept for the donations; admits members at half-fees if they can get fifteen together; has never initiated any at full fees since he has been in the Lodge; there is no advantage in that principle, except that persons are prevented from joining other Lodges or Societies, and they want to get them; it is the custom in the most successful Lodges of other Friendly Societies to initiate at half-fees, so far as he has heard ... 378

There has been no unpleasantness at all on account of members coming in at half-fees; considers Lodge to be in a healthy condition at present time; for copy of letter from Grand Secretary, I.O.O. Grand Lodge of Australia, to Thomas Stewart, Esq., Secretary Pymont Lodge, respecting the extravagant expenditure in connection with opening of Lodge at Pymont, see page ... 379

Cost of opening Langley Lodge at Marrickville was £30, including all books and rods; Pymont Lodge cost more like £70, irrespective of any books whatever; would be a good plan to get Grand Lodge officers in future to intimate where a Lodge shall be opened, and to vote an amount of money to be spent, to be repaid by the subordinate Lodge; Mr. Garcia has never been brought to account by the Grand Lodge or in any Lodge for the large expenditure in connection with the Pymont Lodge ... 380

Finances of Marrickville Lodge at the end of June were £21 8s. 8d.; thinks £25 is a fair amount to open a Lodge; his experience is that if there is not a certain amount of initiation ceremony in Lodges the members lose interest; Treasurer and Secretary give guarantee bonds by a Society; does not believe in the wisdom of the keen competition that is taking place in Friendly Societies; is in favour of a uniform contribution; young men paying as much as old men does not make any difference to the Lodge whatever; Lodges of his Order are compelled to send in quarterly returns of receipts only; believes the returns are examined by a Special Committee appointed by the Grand Lodge ... 381

Evidence of Mr. Thomas Sanders:—Is late Secretary of the Prince Albert Lodge, G.U.O.O.; has been established thirty-five years; has forty members now, there were 145 members thirty-five years ago; Lodge was prospering very well, but as members got into arrears sickness came on them; has no doubt about their present financial position not being sound ... 381

Thinks present Act is a very good Act; no decrease in his funds has been occasioned by misappropriation by the officers; thinks half initiation fees is a very good idea; it takes in young members to balance the aged; funds are at present invested in the Bank; members go bond for Trustees; has audits every three three months ; Auditors called attention to the fact that the Lodge was going back ; the only notice that they could take was that they should have to stop the sick pay ; is in favour of a Government audit of the books of all Societies 382

Evidence of Mr. James Dummer :—Is a member of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia, Lodge No. 25 ; has been a member since starting of Society ; further evidence in respect to defalcations by late Secretary (J. C. Pettit), see pages 382 and 383

Evidence of Mr. Alexander Kethel :—Has been a member of the Manchester Unity about twenty-five years ; does not hold office at present ; is simply a member of the Board of Directors, the supreme Court of Appeal in the Manchester Unity ; is of opinion provisions contained in the present Act are insufficient to afford security and protection to the members of the different bodies ; thinks the administration of Act is defective ; as far as Government administration is concerned, he looks upon it as a dead letter to a large extent ; suggests that a Department of the Registrar of Friendly Societies be organized on an effective scale ; that an officer, such as the Registrar, be appointed, who should devote his whole time to the administration of the Act in its various bearing ; he should be a man selected through having special qualifications for it and, being paid a liberal salary, should be expected to supervise and carry out the whole of the administration of the Act ; a gentleman of actuarial experience should be connected with the Department in addition, and no Society should be registered unless it was proven that their contributions were sufficient to meet all the benefits the members were to receive ; believes a large number of Societies do not pay sufficient contributions to ensure financial success ; is of opinion the contributions paid by the members of Societies are not sufficient to ensure the fulfilment on the part of the Societies of the obligations to their members ; in the case of large Societies having many Branches extended over the country the risk is lessened, but simply isolated Societies are more apt to fail by having the sphere of their liability confined ; there are many instances of failures in Societies from that cause ; can only speak personally as regards a great deal of competition having taken place, from what he has witnessed from hand-bills and posters through the city and advertisements in the daily papers ; a large Society or body would not be in a sound healthy state unless they had to their credit an average of £10 per head, provided they gave an average amount of benefits ; takes as the foundation of his remarks the average assistance to members of a guinea a week reduced at six and twelve months, a funeral donation of £20 and £30, and at his wife's death £15, with medical attendance and medicines for himself, wife, and family under the age of sixteen ; taking these benefits as the average basis of a District embracing a number of Lodges with 2,000 members and with an average age of thirty-five, a shilling a week contribution would certainly not be sufficient to place the Society in anything like a hopeful state ; in many of his own Lodges the contributions are sufficient, but in some they are not ; his contributions are alike, without regard to the age of the members at admission, and range from 1s. to 1s. 6d. per week, the higher sums being chiefly paid by members of Lodges in the interior, where the medical officer's fees are heavier than in the settled districts ; approves of the principle of graduated scale of payments according to age ; regards it in principle as a more fair and equitable system than the present one 384

Examinations by most of the medical officers in his Society are satisfactory, though some shirk their duty ; Act is defective, especially in the fact that the returns required by the Act are not rendered, and in the apparent ignorance of the administrators of the Act of the way how to enforce the provisions ; provision should be made for compulsory returns, to be furnished at stated intervals, and that the positive age of every member in every Society should be furnished annually, with a statement of their funds, which would enable the Government to decide whether each Lodge or Branch was in a solvent position or not ; funds of these Societies are invested first in the Government Savings' Bank and secondly in freehold property ; every officer who has the handling of money gives a fidelity bond ; officer at head of each Branch is bound under a penalty to see that the bond is furnished ; does not approve of power given under the Act to sue defaulting members ; would favour a Board of Arbitration to deal with all cases of dispute ; does not know whether it would be better to have a permanent Board or allow the parties themselves to select the arbitrators ; there is a provision in the Act that arbitrators may be appointed ; would be wise to make a similar provision for dealing with this matter of dispute by arbitration, but there would be a danger of its becoming a permanent Court of Justice and thus lose its semi-private character ; would not erase the names of members after they are twelve months in arrears—would give them the right under certain circumstances to apply for permission to rejoin ; Friendly Societies are one of the most powerful agencies for elevating the working classes ; an examining officer should be appointed to visit every Lodge or Branch either in city, suburb, or country, without giving notice when he is coming, and examine books, vouchers, &c., &c. 385

Supreme authority of every Society should appoint its own officers, so that the men should be well acquainted with the laws and rules ; considers it is necessary more or less to have regalia ; £10 would be required to initiate a Lodge ; in any new Act where the Government found a Society regularly going back on its funds it becoming impossible for them to meet their liabilities ; the only two ways to meet such a case would be either to increase the contributions or decrease the benefits ; and the Government, to protect strangers joining them, should have power to compel them to do either one or the other ; Societies should be allowed to invest only a certain portion of their funds in building halls ; would insist on the funds of a Society becoming insolvent being transferred to the parent Society, and every member of that branch having a claim on that Society ; thinks it would be desirable to enforce a uniform system of book-keeping in all Lodges ; a simple form of arbitration bond would be a very desirable appendix to a new Act ... 386

A graduated scale of payments is at present in use in all of the best Societies of the United Kingdom ; would not make any provision for a Superannuation Fund on a graduated scale of contributions ; would favour a separate Superannuation or Pension Fund for permanently disabled or aged members ... 387

It would be better if a member was limited to one Society as a contributing or financial member ; objects to the 14th clause of the Act ; there would be no very serious labour incurred by Secretaries in adopting the sliding scale as adopted in the Manchester Unity 388

Evidence of Mr. Robert Balls :—Has been twenty-two years a member of the Protestant Alliance ; is also Worthy Patriarch of the Princess Alice Lodge Daughters of Temperance ; financial position of that Society is good ; number of members, twenty ; wives half benefits ; members only pay 6d. a week ; as regards sickness, they were compelled to suspend by unanimous vote sick pay for a time, and has had to do it it for six or twelve months ; each member by resolution has to register for doctor, paying 2s. a quarter for that ; funds are sufficient at present time to ensure payments of all the benefits to the twenty-one members ; sick pay has been suspended for twelve months ; young members began to confer about funds going down gave notice of motion, and called a meeting and agreed to it themselves so as not to be without funds ; thinks himself that 6d. a week is hardly sufficient to ensure the benefits, and thinks the same with reference to the 1s. a week for the male branches 388

Establishment of Female Benefit Societies is of more advantage to the people that join them than to the community ; does not think having Government officer to examine the accounts of the Societies would do any good 389

Evidence of Mr. Henry Asher :—Is a member of the Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society ; has thirty-three members ; amount of funds to credit, £95 7s. 11d. at end of June ; contributions 1s. a week and 1s. a quarter extra ; considers 1s. a week sufficient to ensure all benefits ; has no sick benefit ; funeral donations, £5 for twelve months membership and £10 after two years if clear on the books of the Society ; funds have been wholly made up from the contributions ; Society was in debt when it dissolved ; Society is a registered Society ; all the members undergo a medical examination 389

Some injustice was done through the bursting up of old Society ; it broke up for want of funds 390

Evidence of Mr. James Thomas Hewitt :—Is Secretary of the Prince Albert Lodge G.U.O.O. ; at present time Society is only worth about £45 and has fifty-one members ; attributes lowness of funds to large proportion of sickness among the members ; contributions, 1s. 3d. a week ; for last twelve months Lodge deemed it advisable to raise the contribution in order to better the condition of things ; believes any Society at all can be worked for 1s. a week ; it only requires management and system ; thinks it would be advisable to have a uniform system of book-keeping ; if things go on as they have been he has no hesitation in saying that £45 will never see this Society over another twelve months ; Lodge has on repeated occasions tried to raise their contributions and has failed 391

Believes it has been known to the District that his Lodge has been carrying on its business in the loose and irregular manner as they have been doing ; officers have visited the Lodge and endeavoured by force of speech to try and alter the state of affairs ; allows £1 sick pay for twenty-six weeks, 15s. after that, and then 10s. a week ; members and officers are going to hold a public meeting and invite members at reduced rate to try and help them out of the fire 392

Does not think the competition existing is a healthy one 393

Evidence of Mr. Henry Hand :—Is Secretary of the Travellers' Home Lodge, Grand United Order of Oddfellows ; list (produced) of the names of doctors tendering for the Society and the prices (see question 14266) ; financial position of Society is very good at present time ; amount to credit about £380 ; has 170 members on books ; non-medical members pay only 9d. a week ; when a member becomes unfinancial to the extent of 15s. he is unfinancial, and is no longer entitled to any benefits until eight weeks have elapsed after he becomes unfinancial again, so that he must pay up all he owes in order to be entitled to benefits ; contributions, including doctor, 15d. a week ; considers contributions sufficient to provide the benefits for each of his members ; is a fact that a Member of Parliament, a member of his Lodge, has been in arrears about twelve months 393

Evidence of Mr. Abraham Garcia :—Is Deputy Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows ; has opened fifteen subordinate Lodges ; expenses of opening each Lodge were £28 2s. 1½d. ; believes financial state of everyone of the Lodges he has opened, excepting one or two, are in a very fair position ; half initiation fees are charged on the night of joining ; approves of that principle in the main ; disapproves of a graduated scale of payments by members according to age ; does not believe cost of instituting Lodge at Pymont was between £60 and £70 394

Does not know financial position of the Lodge at Pymont ; the fact of Lodge having suffered through extravagance of the charges in connection with its institution has not to his knowledge ever been brought under his notice ; he did go by coach to Lodge on opening night, and charged Lodge some 19s. 6d. cost of conveyance ; imagines it is customary—both the Druids and the G.U.O. do the same thing ; has adopted a different principle in opening Lodges—a system of personal canvassing instead of issuing bills and placards, &c., having found it was an expensive mode of proceeding ; admits having been more extravagant than otherwise in the opening of some of the older Lodges, but not purposely so ; describes cost of opening of certain Lodges, &c. ; has opened five Lodges under the personal canvassing system ; none of the extravagant expenditures in connection with the opening of Lodges has taken place during his tenure of office ; does not think Order has any difficulty with any of the Lodges under the present Friendly Societies Act 395

Has no pecuniary interest in the Order ; he gives the time which is necessary simply for his love of the Order ; accounts incurred in opening of Pymont Lodge were paid by him ; accounts were partly paid out of the funds received on behalf of the Lodge ; makes inquiry as to health and suitability for joining when canvassing for men to become members of a new Lodge ; he ordered the printing in connection with opening of Lodge at Pymont ; Lodge was sued for cost of printing ; admits the expenditure was extravagant and has avoided it since ; when Pymont Lodge was sued as referred to, he did not swear that he was authorized to expend certain moneys and that he had the authority of the Grand Master in Victoria 396

Considers he gave fair value for the money he charged for the goods for the Lodge ; regards present Act sufficient for purposes of working Friendly Societies, but it would stand amending ; does not think it is fairly and properly administered ; thinks the Trustees should be under a bond as well as the Secretary and Treasurer 397

Evidence of Mr. Morris Alex. Black :—Is a member of the Institute of Actuaries, and Actuary to the Mutual Provident Society ; his attention was called to Act that was passed in 1873, and he pointed out the defects in it in a letter to the paper, showing that the Act as passed would be valueless as not affording the requisite information ; his impression is that the letter was not published ; nothing was attached to that Act that would render it from a professional point of view of any service ; the schedules were not in such a form as would have enabled an actuary to arrive at satisfactory data 397

Act does not define the character of the annual returns to be made to Friendly Societies; produces form of return which he got from the Actuary of one of the Friendly Societies in England, which that gentleman supplies to Societies with the different particulars required to be furnished (see Appendix); it would be hopeless to try and get any reliable data without some form of that kind; attaches great importance to getting the absolute experience of the Friendly Societies—their sickness experience; it should besides in connection with these returns be elicited how much should be paid at each age for each member; it was not until one or two actuaries had been consulted in England that there was any improvement in the Societies there; they were as bad in England as they are here; believes that nothing better could be done than adopting the experience of the Manchester Unity of Oddfellows, as theirs is the largest experience of sickness without exception, and is under very competent management indeed; it should not be lost sight of as a recommendation, the systematic collection of the experience of the Societies for New South Wales to be accumulated and recorded; it is very necessary to have returns of sickness in Societies and to ascertain what the experience is, in order to find out what the contributions ought to be; when that is found it can be compared with the experience at home, and if it is more favourable the rates of contribution might be less; but a valuation could be determined by tables already existing; is in favour of a graduated scale of payment according to age ... 398

Societies with members averaging (say) 40 years of age and giving benefits on the following scale—£20 in case of death of member, and £10 or £15 at death of the wife; a guinea a week sick pay for six months, 15s. next six months, 10s. third six months, with 5s. superannuation allowance—could not do so for 1s. a week all round; omitting medical attendance and confining it to an allowance of £1 or a guinea a week, £20 at death of member, £10 death of member's wife, it would range from 11d. at age twenty-five to 1s. 7d. at age forty, without making any provision for expenses; members' wives should most decidedly undergo a medical examination; his impression is that the mortality in Colony as compared with the mortality of the old country among working-classes is more favourable; thinks forms might be appended to any Act making it compulsory on the members to furnish returns; they ought to be required to have a valuation of assets and liabilities made in so many years; is quite sure that is indispensable to any satisfactory working of Benefit Societies; should have such valuations not oftener than every five years; necessity when registering Societies of having some information of a substantial character as to the possibilities and probability of the Society existing before the Registrar granted a certificate, would require the having of a certain minimum number of members; the amount of contribution might be fixed; would certainly make distinctions with reference to occupations and trades and callings of members in the statistics; occupations such as a miner are liable to a great deal of accident; clerks and tailors may experience less actual sickness and yet have a higher death rate; the Manchester Unity is a Society that, from being in a state of insolvency in 1845 or 46, worked itself round and had rates deduced from its own experience; it is his impression that they are now working satisfactorily ... 399

Apprehends that there are a very large number of individuals enrolled in the Societies; is of opinion that members of Friendly Societies should be encouraged by the State; favours the principle of Friendly Societies; believes that it is indeed an advantage to the individual and to the State, especially in regard to sickness; Registrar here should be an actuary; at home and before the Act came into force, the Registrar, he must be plain to say, was a delusion and a snare—it was worse than useless; the Societies got a certificate from the Registrar, and people thought everything was right because he had certified to it; under the new Act there is a Registrar who merely acts in the capacity of a Registrar registering the Societies after the rates have been actuarially certified; there is also an actuary attached to the Office, and he sees to the quinquennial investigations of the Societies, and reports annually upon them, and in that way there is a complete and systematic report; considers Registrar's Office is worse than useless, and the Registrar is helpless as regards information; in order to have the Societies reported on annually, and all the information put in the proper statistical form, it is absolutely necessary to have a Registrar who is an actuary; is aware that they have something of the kind in New Zealand, and it is a credit to that Colony; in framing tables of payments to be made, it would be necessary to take the experience of England instead of experience of Australia, simply because the latter has not yet been obtained ... 400

He would not, in fixing rates of contributions here, take into consideration the large amounts which are paid by members into a Society for which benefits are never subsequently returned, in consequence of the men shifting about or from other causes leaving the Society; in event of finding that any deficiency when examining accounts of Friendly Societies was compensated for by the number of withdrawals, the profit that represents would go into the general fund; the statement to the effect that Societies existing in New South Wales have simply been able to pay their way and not become insolvent because of the policies lapsing—as it would be termed in insurance—is worth nothing; it may be true, but it can scarcely be asserted of any Society, with a view of starting or putting Societies on a firm basis the Commission should be guided for the present simply by English experience; in forming tables the age at entrance and the duration would be required, and from the age at entrance plus the duration you get the present age; in future Societies should be compelled to keep proper returns, so that they could make them without difficulty; is inclined to think that the sickness in these Colonies may be far in excess of what it is at home, though it may not at all affect the mortality; it does not follow that though the mortality from accidents is heavier the sickness is lighter ... 401

Would be advisable to have a special Government Department in connection with Friendly Societies only to the extent of having a clerk, an actuary, and a skilled person as Registrar; as a statistical fact, a return of ten years of the different Friendly Societies of the number of members who had resigned or left the Society would be of some value; thinks the experience of Friendly Societies in Victoria, as regards the statistical information that has been obtained, would to some extent be applicable to New South Wales; there are only two things which are open for an actuary to take notice of in the Societies, that is the sickness, and the death rate; the other things would be simply a matter of pro rata; a rate of contribution might be framed irrespective of expenses; the sickness fund ought to be by itself and the assurance fund by itself; if well managed and properly done, there would be no difficulty whatever in seeing that the total expenses should be apportioned to the respective funds ... 402

Ratcliffe's tables of sickness have been deduced by scientific methods from the experience of the Societies, and from these data premiums are computed that will be adequate to the risks; the calculation would be made on the whole of the experience of the Society, on the whole of the members that have been exposed to sickness; the knowledge of concealed or unreported sickness would not at all interfere with the calculation;

calculation; a table of sickness could not be deduced simply from those that have suffered sickness; the surplus of Societies that went on a sliding scale could be distributed to the members; Ratcliffe's tables would require modification; could give the Commission many instances of Societies and Companies which held a million of money succumbing in the end ... 403

Further evidence of Mr. A. Kethel.—The statement made by Mr. Stephen Murphy before the Commission that he (Mr. Kethel) had told him that Mr. Gelding was the only obstacle in the way of his being reinstated is not true; as far as he knows, Mr. Gelding has not at any time taken any action to prevent the admission of Murphy—Mr. Gelding rather befriended Mr. Murphy; he told Mr. Murphy that his only means of being reinstated would be through the regular tribunals of the Order; believes Mr. Abigail did write to him urging him if possible to use his influence to get Mr. Murphy back; if Mr. Murphy said that he (Mr. Kethel) gave him no opportunity of looking at the books when on his trial, it would be a deliberate falsehood... 403

Further evidence of Mr. W. E. Langley.—Produces letter from Mr. Garcia to the address of Mr. Melville, M.L.A., for copy, see page 404; he can swear to the signature; statement made therein is unmistakeably untrue; Mr. Melville's name was never mentioned before the Commission except by Mr. Garcia himself; thinks it was a member of the Commission who brought the Pymont Lodge business before the Commission; he was asked some questions about it, the reference was to the cost of management; the only name he remembers in connection with that was that of Mr. Garcia ... 404

Evidence of Mr. John Slade.—Is aware of the sum paid, over over a space of thirty-two years, in this Colony, by the different Societies, to secure medical attendance; has made on behalf of Friendly Societies engagements and contracts with doctors; considers the amount paid by the Societies is sufficient to secure the best of the medical men and faithful attendance on the part of the medical officer; he has known Societies to have the attendance of the same medical man for a period of twenty-five years; has known a medical man elected fifteen or sixteen times to a Society without opposition; knows of no difficulty in securing a medical officer for a Society; considers 15s. without medicine a fair payment to a medical man; decidedly favours the principle of graduated payments; uniform system of contributions is unequal in its operation, and is both unfair and injudicious; nothing but graduated payments will ensure permanent stability in Friendly Societies; favours the provision providing that each Society should have an Arbitration Board, and he should supplement that by having a Board of which the Registrar should be President; their decision to be final, without appeal to the Law Courts, except in criminal matters; some very pointed cases of members declaring on the sick fund and shamming sickness have come under his notice; concealment of age at entrance is another fraud which has given them large benefits in some cases; approves of persons being members of more than one Society; a man who belongs to a Society, and whose wages or salary is £3 or £4 a week cannot afford to avail himself of the advantages of his Society while the whole benefits are £1 a week, and he will work while really unable to do so; would limit the amount of payment to two Societies at a guinea each; would make special provision with reference to the superannuation or pensioning of members, entirely separate from all other benefits; suggests a separate fund with separate trustees, and administered separately; the fund could be maintained by a small yearly contribution to be paid by the members ... 404

Would prefer a uniform system of bookkeeping adopted in Friendly Societies; it should be duty of Registrar to supply a form of book or books; is of opinion that in some cases management and expenses incurred in connection with the districts is grossly extravagant, almost criminal; Government appointing an officer to make an annual valuation of the assets and liabilities of the various Societies should be the most imperative provision of any new Act; believes a minimum should be fixed in making provision in any new legislation for the rate of contributions to be paid by persons joining the Societies; fixing on minimum should be on some table founded on an actuarial report; no condonation or settlement should be allowed outside the Registrar's Court; all defalcations should be handed to the Registrar, and he should decide whether they should go to the law Courts or be settled by arbitration; is in favour of exacting from each officer—Treasurer or Secretary—a fidelity bond; every Society should submit its books to a Government officer at any time he called either at Secretary's residence in reasonable hours or at the Lodge room or place of meeting as duly advertised; gives instances of cases of misappropriation of Society's funds by members, &c. ... 405 & 406

Has had cases in his Order where doctors have carelessly given certificates that members were sick when they were not; in all future legislation the liability of a Society to a member for benefits should cease immediately the member ceases to be in a position to be compelled to pay his subscriptions, directly he becomes financial, whatever his position may be; is in favour of the medical benefits of Societies being administered so that they shall collectively form a Medical Board of sufficient medical skill to attend to the whole of their members, &c., &c.; believes medical men to be very careless ... 406

Evidence of Mr. T. M. Shepherd.—Is Chairman of the Ancient Order of Foresters—has been connected with the Society about fifteen years; no defalcations have taken place; is his private opinion that the funds have been misapplied in the investment of £400 in connection with the purchase of the Friendly Societies Hall; hall is not exactly the property of his Court—is a Joint Stock Company in which the Society has invested its funds; is of opinion that the investment is an illegal one; the legal opinion was that the members could invest their money in this way; value of his funds would be between £1,000 and £1,100 in all; 8 per cent. interest was guaranteed on the shares; building was on the land when they purchased; a number of Friendly Societies have participated; building is designated Friendly Societies' Hall Company, limited liability and incorporated; shares are confined to bona fide members of Societies; there will be no source of revenue for the moneys invested unless the speculation turns out a success.

Evidence of Mr. Liphman Menser.—Is a member of several Friendly Societies; three of his Societies have invested money to the extent of £400, and £200, £100, in connection with the Friendly Societies' Hall; he approved of the investment of the funds in this way; all the Lodges having to meet in public-houses, they had no place to go to; the separate Lodges were not in funds to build halls of their own; own ; a meeting of delegates for the various Societies was called ; it was resolved to bring a report up to the effect that they should combine to build a hall ; found it could be done, under the 42nd clause of the Act, by separate Lodges ; thought that they could also do it in combination ; Protestant Alliance and Oddfellows' Hall in Sydney has been built by the members of several Lodges, although under the same Order ; takes it that the Friendly Societies Act prohibiting the investment of funds means amongst non-members ; the investment is sure, and the interest from the hall is the same as would be got from the Bank ; Directors of Friendly Societies' Hall Company give the guarantee and are personally liable ; in the event of Society or Societies requiring their funds, they could be obtained by giving twenty-eight days' notice ; has received praise from the members in reference to these investments ; has Mr. Bowden's opinion as to what they could do (see page 408) ; three Lodges only have invested their funds in it ; there is a special form in which the applicant has to state he is a member of such and such a Society, and none but members of Societies can obtain shares ; does not look at it as a Joint Stock Company ; in case of bankruptcy or death the shares could be passed to non-members ; believes that Mr. Oliver did advise a way of making the affair legal, but is not sure ; he did not make a statement to the effect that Mr. Oliver had said he knew it was illegal, &c. ; the position of Messrs. Coates and Gazzard is the same as his ; Mr. Coates knows nothing of the matter...

Evidence of Mr. George Coates :—Has been a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters for twenty-six years ; from hearsay £400 has been invested in the Friendly Societies' Hall Company ; he disapproves of the investment, as contrary to the Friendly Societies Act ; thinks the funds should be only invested in the Savings Bank or Government securities ; was elected Trustee without his knowledge ; on stating to the Treasurer that he understood that they were about to purchase a hall, but that he would not sign the cheque, he said it was needless, as it was paid for already ; Mr. Menser and Mr. Gazzard took it upon themselves to draw the money out ; cannot say if he was removed because he would not sign the cheque ; his name is not still registered as Trustee ; had no intimation from the Court that he was removed—it was only by accident he heard of his removal.

Evidence of Mr. L. Menser continued :—The Manager of the Bank declined to acknowledge more than two Trustees ; his name is John Taylor ; he told him nothing himself, his clerk did ; he never had the opportunity of consulting Mr. Coates respecting this matter, or should have done so ; had spoken to him about purchase of the property, although he did not officially consult him ; it is not a fact that he overlooked him as a Trustee ; in the Bank-book it is Gazzard, Menser, and Coates ; the Manager only recognizes the first two names ; this was the first time they have had to draw money out of the Bank for years ; Mr. Gazzard always banked the money.

Evidence of Mr. Moses Gazzard :—Is a member of the Foresters ; is also a Trustee ; he drew out £400 for the Hall ; approved of that mode of investing the funds, because they had nowhere to go to ; has never read the 42nd section of the Act ; has been informed that it says that the Trustees have no power to invest money in a Joint Stock Company ; has heard that Mr. Bowden stated it could be done ; Mr. Coates was appointed before him and Mr. Menser ; if he had known the provisions of the 42nd clause he might have considered the matter ; the shares are taken in the name of the Lodge ; Mr. Menser paid the money ; he was not present when the money was handed over ; he was guided by the summoned meeting ; owing to the action then taken, he was a consenting party to the money being taken ; is sure the shares were applied for in the name of the Lodge, as it was voted that it should be done so in the Lodge ; he did sign a cheque for the withdrawal of the money.

Evidence of Mr. L. Menser continued :—They applied on behalf of the Court for 400 shares to be allotted to the Court ; no scrip was issued ; the application was signed by him on behalf of the three Trustees ; did not consult them directly, but it was done in the Court ; he applied to Mr. Gazzard directly to authorize him to apply on their behalf ; this Companies Act does recognize bodies of men ; there is a special (registration) deed ; the Secretary signed the cheque for the money himself ; they signed the receipt book at the Bank ; the cheque is signed by the officers of the Court.

Evidence of Mr. Gazzard continued :—The money of the Court is deposited in his and Mr. Menser's name in the Bank ; Mr. Coates' name is not in the Bank-book ; had nothing to do in the matter beyond signing his name on one occasion ; he did not apply for the shares ; has had no paper exhibited to him as a receipt for the payment of the money ; has a positive knowledge that the money has been paid ; does not know if any receipt is in existence ; does not think the Lodge would do anything illegal.

Evidence of Mr. Menser continued :—The Sons of Temperance and the Druids have invested in this Company ; these Lodges have taken shares which have been allotted to them ; has no signed articles of association ; he holds the documents from the Company ; he holds a receipt, and the deed of settlement is signed by the other Trustee and himself.

Evidence of Mr. Henry Harrington Green :—Is Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows ; he has, with the concurrence of the Trustees, removed some of the funds of the Lodge ; a portion of the Funeral Fund has been operated upon by the Trustees ; it is invested in real estate ; when the land was placed in the market it was purchased conditionally, that the Order would accept it ; a private cheque was given for one quarter of the purchase money (£834) ; subsequently a meeting of the Executive was called for the purpose of laying the matter before them ; previous to this two or three meetings were held to know if it would be advisable, at each of which it was unanimously decided that it would be a profitable investment ; it was determined to purchase the land ; they had previously obtained legal advice as to the step they were about to take ; the matter is still in embryo, although the name of the Order was used in connection with it ; it is not a fact that two new Trustees and one old one drew out £200 ; it was done by the original Trustees as registered by the Registrar of Friendly Societies (produced for inspection) ; at the last annual session of the Grand Lodge Trustees were elected ; the Journal of Proceedings will explain that a protest was made at the election as to the mode of election ; the mode of election was objected to because it did not accord with the clause of the constitution under which it was held ; the protest has yet to be decided by the Supreme Grand Body ; the old Trustees have acted in the meantime, and have withdrawn the money applied for the purpose of purchasing this property ; believes that the appropriation of the Funeral Fund in the manner done is in conformity with the rules ; he interprets " and for no other purpose " to mean that it may be invested profitably in real estate ; previous to the land being purchased he gave instructions to the Grand Secretary that Mr. Langley should be apprised of the fact ; Mr. Langley was interviewed by the Grand Treasurer ; he has the Treasurer's word of honor that Mr. Langley gave his consent ; has copy of intimation sent to all Lodges, and Mr. Langley's Lodge amongst others received one ; they received a protest from that Lodge, though they were present at the meeting at which action was taken ; he learned subsequently that Mr. Langley influenced the passing of that protest ; they were immediately after purchase offered £500, and subsequently £800, and more recently £1,000 on their bargain ; the matter of the Trustees was referred to the Supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia ; the Executive meets when any matter of importance is brought before it ; they can give a ruling which is binding ; the matter of the Trustees has been referred to them ; he was in the office of the Supreme Grand Secretary in April last, and he said he had received such a document ; has had no communication since ; indirect influence on the part of Mr. Langley has been used to obtain from the Grand Sire a decision ; their institution is of American origin, and they say distinctly that honorary membership is not recognized ; one of the clauses in the protest is with regard to Mr. Langley holding an honorary position ; Messrs. Dawson & Sons, solicitors, were consulted legally ; their opinion was that they could go on and complete the purchase ; the laws were submitted to Messrs. Dawson & Sons for their opinion ; they advised them that if they complied with the Friendly Societies Act, with regard to one or two clauses pointed out to them, by having special meetings, all was clear ; he cannot say whether their special attention was called to the intention of their Society to apply the Funeral Fund for the purpose of making the purchase ; attention was drawn to the fact that the mother institution of the Order had invested their funds in almost a precisely similar way. There was no objection made to persons at all.

FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
PHILIP RISBY HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.

Mr. Alexander Oliver, Registrar of Friendly Societies, sworn and examined:—

1. President.] You are the Registrar of Friendly Societies? Yes, sir, I am.*
2. I presume you would be able to furnish a return from your office of the number of Friendly Societies registered under the Act? Of Friendly Societies registered under the Act; yes, in fact we have such a return now. It is a little approximate, and it would be subject to reduction, because some of the registered Societies we know to be extinct, but we have got no record of their dissolution. We know them to be extinct, because after writing several letters to send in their returns we have had no reply; we believe them therefore to be extinct. Those I refer to are Societies registered many years ago, so that my return will not be an accurate return, but will have to be taken with some reductions; my return will show a larger number than actually exist.
3. I may inform you that, notwithstanding the Commission is to inquire into the whole Act, our inquiry is confined to the Friendly Societies. Now, do these registrations include Building Societies? Yes; that is to say, the Act under which I register Friendly Societies is the same as that under which I register Building Societies.
4. Then in any return you may prepare will you kindly exempt the Building Societies? Yes, and I presume also Industrial and Provident Societies. What I am asked for, I suppose, is a return of the number of Societies.
5. Will you supply us a return of the number of the respective Orders? Yes.
6. Under the Act these Societies have to send in certain returns? Yes, sir, they have.
7. Will you inform the Commission whether these Societies strictly comply with the law in this respect? The Societies have made returns in many instances and regularly in the time prescribed by the Act, but a great many Societies have not done so. Your question is almost impossible to answer without going a little into detail. For example, the Manchester Unity, the Foresters, and some other large Orders send in their returns punctually; and, if I may say so, in a very good form. On the other hand, many of the Societies, especially the country Societies, send their returns in utterly unintelligible; and some—a large number I am sorry to say—send none in at all. Take last year for example. I suppose some two or three hundred letters must have been written sending the form of the return and reminding the Societies of the time when their returns must be sent in. In many cases these were not replied to; in others, returns were sent in, but to attempt to dissect them or make any use of them was absurd. They are constructed in the country by very illiterate men, who could not understand how to make them out. Therefore, for statistical purposes the returns are quite useless. We send the returns back with a request that they should be amended; but the Secretaries get hopelessly confused, and it ends in us simply getting lumped-in figures. We try to get them dissected so as to exhibit the income and expenditure in a proper way; but we rarely can get that except with those Societies that make this a matter of importance and see that this is done. Some of the large Orders do that, but many from the country pay no attention to it. So that out of 460 Societies, perhaps we may get a few over 200 returning in accordance with the forms sent them, the balance being all more or less unintelligible, and some returning not at all.
8. You are now speaking of country Societies? My last remark was with respect to Societies generally. About 200 of all of those registered send in good returns, a certain proportion send in imperfect returns, and some send in none at all. Well, from returns prepared in that form it would of course be impossible to put any man to work to dissect them with a view of obtaining any decent result.
9. Do you know whether these country Societies you speak of are not connected with what is called the Grand Lodge of the Society in the city of Sydney? A great many of them are.
10. And are these returns irrespective of the Grand Lodge? Well, that has been a difficulty. I consider the Act requires that each Lodge should send in its own returns. In the Manchester Unity there would be so many districts. There would be the Sydney district and districts all over the Colony, and the same with the other large Orders.
11. But I suppose you know they are governed by a Grand Lodge? Yes, some representative body.
12. But that they have no influence over the district Lodges? I do not pretend to know anything about their domestic government. All I know is from hearsay or from what I see in the rules. I do not know anything

Mr. A. Oliver.
25 Nov., 1881.

* NOTE (on revision):—The office of Registrar of Friendly Societies is held in conjunction with that of Parliamentary Draftsman; the Friendly Societies Act requiring that the office must be held by some public officer.

Mr. A. Oliver. anything of my own knowledge of their internal government as between district and Lodge, or between Grand Lodge and districts.

25 Nov., 1881. 13. I think the law provides that there should be an annual return laid before Parliament? It does.

14. Has that ever been done? Never.

15. Will you explain the reason why? I have no objection, but it will be rather a long story. I was appointed in 1874, in January—

16. I will ask you another question in addition to that. Will you be kind enough to inform the Commission what staff you have in connection with the working of this department? The last three years I have had about one quarter of a man; that is I have a clerk who has to do a large variety of other duties, and practically I get about one quarter of his time for Friendly Societies.

17. Now, will you be kind enough to explain the reason why the law has not been obeyed in that respect of laying these returns before Parliament? In 1874 when I was appointed, I was then filling the office of Parliamentary Draftsman, as I am at present. The Act makes no provision to authorize the Government to appoint any clerk or to give any sum of money whatever for the purpose of making a return. Shortly after my appointment I applied to the then Government, pointing out that by the Act the duty was cast on me of preparing returns and of submitting them to Parliament. I was answered that, as I was an officer paid by fees, I would be expected to provide my own staff. I went on one or two occasions to see the Principal Under Secretary, then Mr. Halloran, in order to show him that, with fees amounting to something like £26 a year, I could hardly be expected to find a man capable of dissecting the returns and preparing a report for Parliament. This went on for two or three years, always with the same result; they would not find me any assistant, or provide me with any money, with the exception of one small sum of £25, which was provided not to prepare this return but to help me to put the records, of which I had then something like two cartloads, into something like form. From this large number of Societies there are a vast number of documents, which fill two very large presses. These had to be re-registered, re-indexed, and put in proper form, and for that I got the sum of £25.* This state of things continued and has continued up to the present time; but when Mr. Scott was appointed I said we must make the attempt to obey the law in this respect—I think it was in 1877—and we endeavoured to get the returns together and make up a report from them to submit to Parliament. This was the first instance that we found out how negligent the Societies had been in sending in their returns, and that to get them involved a large amount of correspondence. That correspondence continued until it was so late in 1877 that we saw it was no use going on for that year. The same result has followed year after year, and has continued until this year; and even now we have not the means of making a report to Parliament as demanded by the Act.

18. Thus it is impossible for you to comply with the law unless you have a clerical staff in connection with the office? Perfectly impossible. In any other place where returns have to be forwarded they have a large staff, notably in England, and also in Victoria, where the Government Statist, Mr. Hayter, has charge of the matter. They think nothing there of making a large expenditure for the purpose of getting these returns in punctually; but here the Act first casts the duty of being Registrar upon some public officer—it must be a public officer—and then makes no provision for any staff or any assistance whatever. Even now my clerk is not clerk for the Friendly Societies, but to me, as Parliamentary Draftsman.

19. Is it your opinion that this matter of Friendly Societies is of so much importance that there ought to be a Department or a Branch Department in connection with yours, in order that you might be able to comply with the law and have complete supervision over these Societies? I think that a reasonable way of getting over the difficulty might be to cast the duty on the Statistical Branch here—that is upon the Registrar General. The work is done by the corresponding officer in Victoria; the Government Statist does it there, and I think the statistical duties in reference to Friendly Societies might reasonably be done by the Statistical Department, unless the interests of the Friendly Societies are considered to be so important as to justify a special Department. As to that I do not pretend to give any opinion.

20. The matter of Friendly Societies itself is important, taking into consideration the large amount of money involved in the contributions of people concerned in them; is it not so? Yes.

21. Do you think there is any great advantage in these returns being laid before Parliament? I apprehend that is the usual way of giving publication to any document prepared in a public Department. The real value of the returns is that statistics shall be accessible for actuarial purposes, for if the returns are reliable there are great advantages to be obtained from their publication. If the material of these returns be properly dissected it will give material for actuarial purposes that would be of value, but without proper dissection the actuary would be very much at sea.

22. Then as I understand you, it would be necessary to have an actuary attached to the Department? I think it must be that eventually, and therefore the sooner the better. The question of solvency is one that must be very largely an actuarial question.

23. Do you have frequent correspondence with these Societies over these yearly returns? Oh! a very large amount. Not so very much this last year, but I must have given a matter of three or four hundred opinions in writing on the construction of the Act. Once I used to devote the best part of Saturday, and always the dinner-hour, to persons who came to me. Their difficulties are nearly always in connection with their own rules—the application of these rules to a given state of things. For example, a man tumbles overboard in the Clarence River, and his wife makes the usual demand for the funeral money. Well, on behalf of the Society they raise the question that he did so while he was drunk. They have certain evidence of the man being in a state of drunkenness, and they come to me and say can we resist this claim? Then there is another kind of claim, where money has to be paid to the personal representatives of a deceased member. They say—“Our rules say we shall pay the money to the wife, next of kin, or administrator; whom shall we pay it to?” Then another class of people are those who say they have a claim on the Society. They come and say—“They will not pay me my sick pay, because they say I am unfinancial,” and then the question comes, are they unfinancial under the rules of the Society.

24. Then there is no general uniformity? No, except with the large Societies—they have their rules uniform or nearly so; but even with them the Lodges are left very much to themselves, subject of course to the general guidance of the rules of the Order. Each Order has a perfect right to frame its own rules, though there is a general understanding that the rules so framed shall be approved by the proper officer of the district.

* NOTE (on revision) :—This was paid over to the person employed to do the work.

25. Then I presume you could supply the Commission with all the important and necessary information in the shape of a return, without rendering it necessary to bring all these documents before the Commission and submit them to us? I can supply the names of all the registered Societies. Mr. A. Oliver.
25 Nov., 1881.
26. If you say you cannot do this thing without having some clerical assistance, it will be our duty to put it into your power? I shall be able to supply that information in a day or half-a-day, but if you can give me an idea of the nature of the returns wanted I could answer at once.
27. We should want the number of the respective Societies, a similar return to that required for Parliament? Perhaps if I showed you a return that is being prepared now—or I have here the result of an attempt made in 1878 to comply with the law. If it is a return for this year compiled like that, I could not do it. It is an elaborate return, and I have not the material.
28. This shows the whole transactions for that year? The only fault is that we cannot get from that, by reason of the way the returns are made up, the management expenses properly set out; because a vast number of the Societies have included medicine and doctors in them. In fact in one Society they have lumped everything as management expenses. It is in the attempt to get them separated that we have failed.
29. Then from the returns sent in to you you cannot compile a truthful return? Not one that would be of any use.
30. Mr. Abigail.] Not for the past year? They are getting better now, but I do not think I could do it even now.
31. President.] However, I think we shall deliberate about this matter of these returns, and will then ask you to prepare such returns as we may require; and as you have stated that you have not got sufficient clerical assistance, we shall then ask you to do what we think is necessary and supply you with the assistance necessary to supply what we require. In that event could you get it done? Yes, anything that the materials I have can do I will do. At present I cannot supply a return that will be a proper return.
32. This I hold in my hand (the return for 1878), does it supply any information whatever; could we arrive at any conclusion with regard to the solvency of the Societies? Most undoubtedly, with respect to some of them.
33. Have any of these Societies ever submitted their data to an actuary to see whether they are on a sound basis or not? I believe—but I have no knowledge further than that I have been told so—that the tables of some of the Societies, of the large Orders, have been submitted to actuaries in England. I am not aware that any of them have submitted them to actuarial calculation here.
34. Are you aware that from the results of a Royal Commission in England it has been ascertained that the rates they are now taking are not nearly sufficient to meet all demands upon them? I have read parts of a voluminous Report issued from the Commission of 1871, and have noticed on two or three occasions in the Report that they have some serious misgivings as to the solvency of the greater portion of the Societies in England. I mean Sir Stafford Northcote's last Commission.
35. Mr. Abigail.] In the matter of the fees you referred to, will you describe what these fees are? The fees. Of course they are prescribed by the Act in the second Schedule:—For certificate of rules of a new Society, one guinea; for certificate of new or amended rules, or change of name, 5s.; for an award, three guineas.
36. Have the Societies ever made a complaint that these fees are vexatious? There has been a complaint, no doubt, of this kind, that where in a Society the parent Society has been registered, a claim has been made that every Lodge shall be considered as registered too. I have never heard any other objection; but several persons have raised that point, and have sent letters to the Attorney General complaining that I do not take a proper view of the matter.
37. Can you state the amount of fees you have received yearly since the Act was passed? I know that the first year they were under £20, and that for several years they did not reach £40; but within the last two or three years they have been steadily going up, until last year they reached £120.*
38. You stated that some of the Societies had not sent in their returns—Does the Act not compel them to do so? The Act purports to compel them; it makes their default penal, and makes me also the person to take proceedings against them.
39. You have never done so? I have never done so.
40. Have you any plan to cure that evil? One reason why I have not taken proceedings is that most of the defaulters are in the country, and on some occasions it would have cost more than £20 to go backwards and forwards to lay an information against an illiterate man; and I did not think it was my duty to do this.
41. Have you any plan to suggest to cure that evil? It is a very difficult question. I have thought about it, but I cannot say I have anything I can consider a real remedy, though something could be done to bring about a better state of things than the present. I think that the returns of chief value will be found to be those made by the large Orders; for example, the Manchester Unity, the Grand United, the Sons of Temperance, the Foresters, the Protestant Alliance, the Druids, and the Guilds, which represent much the largest numbers. I think that each of these Orders ought to be compelled to appoint a sort of returning officer, a public officer, upon whom the duty ought to be cast of making sworn returns to the department; that that officer ought to be responsible for the correctness and accuracy of the returns from all the Lodges or Divisions under his charge, and that such a return should be deemed to be a sufficient return for the purposes of the Act.
42. Is there any means by which you can get now a periodical valuation of the liabilities and assets? Oh no, it could not be done.
43. Have you a return partially prepared for 1878? I have a report that I made for my own purposes.
44. When moving for a Commission I made certain statements; I will thank you to see if they agree with your return. I said—"I find that the Oddfellows of the Manchester Unity set down the expenses at 18 per cent." Is that correct? It is approximately so. I do not guarantee that they are absolutely so; and there is one thing,—these are made up from the returns of registered Societies only.
45. Then I stated that the Grand United Order of Oddfellows set theirs down at 47 per cent. Is that correct? That is what this makes it. There is a note against it:—"This includes medical benefits." In the other case it did not.
- 46.

* NOTE (on revision):—The fees, however, for the year ending December, 1881, amounted to only £70 19s. 6d.

- Mr. A. Oliver. 46. The Independent Order of Oddfellows 67 per cent. Is that correct? It is correct, according to this.
47. The Sons of Temperance 29 per cent.? That is correct.
- 25 Nov., 1881. 48. Rechabites 75 per cent.? 75 per cent., yes.
49. Will you tell us what the Rechabites paid for sick pay and funeral benefits in that year? There was one Lodge in that year—there are three now.
50. What was the number of members? Forty-one.
51. Now the sick pay? £2.
52. And funeral? £5 18s.
53. And other expenses? £87 3s. 2d. put under management expenses.
54. You have no doubt that if annual returns could be rendered correctly, it would be of vast benefit in enabling persons to see if the Societies were carrying on satisfactorily or otherwise? I presume that is the only way of ascertaining that fact.
55. Do you know that any of these Societies have expended large sums of money in vexatious litigation? I think all litigation is vexatious, but I cannot say that I know of any case in which a member has endeavoured to obtain a claim that I should call vexatious or frivolous; but I think the Societies have on one or two occasions resisted claims on what I should consider quite inequitable grounds.
56. You said you had given three or four hundred opinions; have you made any charge for them? Not one shilling.
57. Have you been the means of bringing about a settlement? Yes, in many cases. They have come to me as sole arbitrator.
58. Do you think if a law were framed enabling them to settle all disputes by arbitration, that it would be desirable? I think that is the object of the law now, but the Judges do not take that view. I think the fact that the law says that the rules must contain one for the settlement of disputes meant that these disputes should all be settled out of Court. It has been so held in England, but not here; I mean by the District Courts and Justices. If it were possible to obtain a sort of representative body from the Societies generally as a body of permanent arbitrators, and to oust the jurisdiction of all Courts in cases where it is an action between a member and the Society, it would be beneficial, for I do not think either the Justices or District Court Judges have time to go into the peculiar relations of Friendly Societies. They do not like the jurisdiction themselves, and would be glad to get rid of it.
59. Have you any knowledge of Societies having failed to meet their obligations? There are several Societies that have been dissolved by me, and I have no doubt that one of the reasons for dissolution has been that they were unable to provide for their liabilities: but the whole number of these Societies so dissolved has not been a dozen.
60. Have you had under your notice the returns for last year? Yes, a few.
61. My object in asking is to know if you can say if any of them have shown a surplus or a deficiency? I can only say that Mr. Scott in taking out the figures has on one or two occasions come to me with a set of returns saying—"Here is a Society whose expenditure exceeds its revenue." He will be able to give particulars.
62. Would you recommend annual audits by Government officers as beneficial to these Societies—could they be carried out? An audit would not be much use unless the officers knew how to value the liabilities and assets. It must be an audit and valuation if it is to be of any use.
63. Mr. Greville.] I presume you only speak authoritatively upon legal matters; you do not wish your evidence to be taken as that of an expert except upon legal matters? I do not consider myself an expert in any way.
64. Then just now you only speak as one who takes an interest? I speak as one having been in the habit of reading the reports. I am not an actuary.
65. Then if a Society submits its rules to you, are the tables bound to be appended? The Act says, in the 7th section ————. I do not insist on a set of tables if the rules say plainly what the rates are.
66. And if you saw they were glaringly wrong, not legally but actuarially, could you stop any registration? I have done so; whether legally or not, I do not know; they have never tried the question. I say—"I do not think your tables are sufficient, but if you raise the contributions to a certain amount I will certify them."
67. But do not you step beyond your province in doing this? I think so; but there is nothing to compel me to register the rules.
68. Not if they are in accordance with the law of the land? I do not know; I do not think I am compelled.
69. But primarily it is your duty to see that the rules and regulations are legally framed? My business is first to see that the requirements of the 14th section are complied with. That section states in what subjects the rules are to be made, and what they are to contain. I also conceive it to be my duty to see that I am not registering a Trades Union or Society of a similar kind.
70. You first duty is to look to the legal question? It is.
71. Do you consider it part of your duty to look to the financial aspect? I think if I registered a Society which gave a guinea a week sick pay and £25 funeral donation, at a threepenny contribution, I should be reprehensible.
72. Yes, but that is an extreme case; but if it were a case in which the rates charged came very close? I think I am entitled, and indeed bound to exercise a reasonable discretion in the matter; if they were within a fraction of what I reasonably consider sufficient, I would not refuse to register because they did not come exactly up to it.
73. But is it not as important that the actuarial aspect should be attended to as the legal aspect when a Society is registered? Oh yes, I certainly think so.
74. And you do not profess to be an actuary? I do not.
75. And it is not often that an actuary and legal gentleman are found combined in one man? Very rarely, I should say; at all events they are not combined in me.
76. Would it not be advisable then that simultaneously with your passing of the rules, all Societies should have their tables submitted to an independent actuary? I know that is a very favourite view, and I should be sorry to say anything against it; but if you say that the Government should associate with any given office an actuary and that the Society shall not be charged an actuarial fee, but that the expense shall fall on on the Government, and that if the actuary refuses to give his certificate the Society shall not be registered, Mr. A. Oliver. it would be a very harsh rule in its application sometimes.

77. Need we mix up the question of who should pay—I want to arrive at a conclusion on the abstract principle as to whether the tables ought not to be submitted as well as the legal question? Independent of the question who is to pay the actuary? 25 Nov., 1881.

78. Certainly? My view is that any rules to be submitted for registration should come up to some settled point in relation to the contributions and insurance benefits—some point that could be settled by law. It is not a difficult calculation to say that less than a certain rate of contribution should not be contained in the rules of a Society. Having done that and settled that relation by law, I think this might be very fairly left as an alternative to Societies:—If you come up to these figures you pass as a matter of course, but if you do not you must have a safety-valve, in other words, you must have a levy system; that is, a provision by means of which whenever your funds are reduced below a certain level you shall have a pro rata contribution all round. I think I would give that alternative to Societies in any future law.

79. Then you admit that it is the duty of the Government to see that the tables should be a matter of consideration as well as the rules? Undoubtedly.

80. In speaking of the pro rata contributions, is not that an uncertain and a dangerous method of relief? More or less it is the system in vogue in this Colony. It seems to me to be open to one or two objections, but I think there are advantages. The objections of course are that after one or two levies you make a man irritable, and that the system is apt to become a levy system pure and simple, the contributions being reduced as low as possible.

81. And this would have the effect of breaking up the Society; that is, if the members withdraw on account of there being so many levies? Yes, members will withdraw or not according to their ages and the consequent possibility of getting into another Society. A man would not withdraw because one or two levies were made if he found he could not get into another Society, but if he were a young man he would probably go into another Society.

82. The young would withdraw, thereby weakening the Society and breaking it up, thus doing an injustice to the older members, who could not get out? Possibly; but I think the system is defensible on this ground, that if it is possible to fix the contributions there should be a system side by side with that—a kind of volunteer movement. Of course I am assuming that in all cases a fair contribution should be made.

83. In other words, you believe there may be a combination of the two systems? I think so. The difficulty might be got over if the Registrar was a man of discretion, so that he might have the power to absolutely refuse confirmation of the rules. If he is a man of sense he ought to know about what is a fair scale.

84. I think you mentioned that there are many Societies which exist unregistered? Not many. With regard to the Manchester Unity, I think some eight or ten, and there may be about the same in regard to other Societies.

85. Have these sought registration and been refused? No, not so far as I know. There may be some who consider they are sufficiently registered when the parent Society is registered.

86. Can you speak positively as to the number of Societies which have been dissolved? I can speak positively as to the number dissolved under the Act, and there is no other way of legally dissolving them. I can only speak of registered Societies dissolved under the section, and there have not been a dozen of them.

87. And can you tell the causes of their dissolution? Well, no, I can hardly tell.

88. Was it because their funds were not sufficient to meet their expenses—have pecuniary difficulties brought it about? No, I do not think it is pecuniary difficulties alone. In most cases it has been some objection to their governing body, or jealousy, or something of that kind.

89. Then you are not aware that the Societies here are upon an unhealthy basis, at least they have not proved themselves so? Officially, I certainly say no.

90. Mr. Davies.] I gather from your evidence that the present Act is defective in its operations? In reference to the returns, yes, I think it is.

91. And in many other respects? Yes, I think I may say it is defective in other respects.

92. What have you to suggest in the shape of new legislation that would place these Societies in a better position? That is such an important question that I should like to be permitted to make a statement in writing. If you would ask me on any one point I should be glad to give you my opinions.

93. In what portions of the present Act do you think the law is defective? The first thing would be to consider whether we could properly adapt the English Act, and whether it is an Act that would be beneficial to the workings of these Societies. That would require an elaborate comparison with our present Act. Thus there is a great deal in your question that I could not answer at once.

94. You state that you would have no objection to prepare suggestions? I should be glad to prepare an outline of what has occurred to me in my investigations.

95. I gather also that, although the present law provides for returns to be sent officially to you, a large number of Societies have failed to comply with the law? Yes, a very large number have failed to comply.

96. Do you think it would be necessary to clothe the Registrar with power to deal with them? He has the power now—he can prosecute.

97. But could not some other power be given, such as the withdrawal of the certificate? That would be very harsh, as it would be making the whole Society responsible for the misdoings of an unlettered man. The only suggestion I have is that the central bodies should be recognized, and that the larger bodies should have a responsible officer to send in their returns properly attested.

98. Then the returns so far as they go are of very little use, being imperfect? The major part of the returns are of very little use.

99. Do I understand you to say that some of the Societies belonging to the older Orders have not been registered? In the Manchester Unity returns for last year they put in one column—"Whether the Societies are registered or not," so that on looking down, I was able to see at once whether they were registered or not, and I found that there were some seven or eight that were returned as "not registered."

100. Then you have really no control over these unregistered Societies? None whatever over unregistered Societies.

101. How long have you occupied the position of Registrar? Eight years.

102. What has been the total amount of fees received? I do not know; it would be under £500, considerably under £500.

- Mr. A. Oliver. 103. Who gets these fees? They are given by the Act to the Registrar.
- 25 Nov., 1881. 104. What amount of money do you think would be necessary to properly conduct the business of these Societies? If there were to be a registrar, an actuary, a valuator, and a sufficient clerical staff, I do not think it could be worked under about £2,000 a year.*
105. Then would it be better to make a provision of that kind, or to adopt the present course? I think any practice by which the Registrar keeps his fees is a wrong one, as the fees might make it an object with him to register the Societies. In England, now, there are no fees.
106. What are your duties as defined in the Act? Those I perform under the Act are to register rules that conform with the law, keep the records of all Societies under the operation of the Act—
107. The Registrar has more to see that the by-laws are in accordance with the Act? Yes, and to send returns to Parliament.
108. How frequently have returns been made? Never.
109. Then you have failed in the discharge of your duty? Yes, undoubtedly so.
110. You have made representations to the Head of the Department? Oh, frequently,—six or seven times.
111. During the eight years you have been Registrar, how many Societies have been registered? I cannot say exactly.
112. I think I gathered from you that in Victoria Mr. Hayter has charge of the Department? No, Mr. Greville; Mr. Hayter is the Statist.
113. And that here it would be better to put the Societies under the charge of the Registrar General? Yes, if the duties are not legal.
114. I gathered from what you said that it would be better if the returns were made to the Registrar General's department? I think that the returns of the Lodges or Societies should be handed to the Government Statist for registration in proper form, as that Department does all the other statistical work of the Colony.
115. In your opinion, is the present Act sufficient protection to the individual members of the Societies, so far as the financial basis of the Societies is concerned? No, it is not, because there is no person other than their own arbitrators to whom any financial dispute can be referred: there is no impartial person as there should be. Something should be done to permit a certain number of members of each Society to procure a special audit of the accounts.
116. Would it not be better for some independent body or person, say the Registrar, to be appointed sole arbitrator? I do not know that the Registrar could do it, unless this were his sole duty. In that case I think it should be one of his duties.
117. To act as sole arbitrator? Not in the matter of a claim; but where a Society has showed that it is badly conducted, and that it is in an insolvent condition, the Registrar General might for himself investigate the accounts, or authorize their investigation by some person whom he can rely upon. In regard to claims made by members of the Society, I should recommend a body of permanent arbitrators to be elected by the Society themselves—say three or five; and let all claims on the funds, or claims for reinstatement by members in arrears be brought within their cognizance.
118. Has any particular case come under your observation of the insolvent state of a Society in consequence of the by-laws of the Society being on a wrong basis as far as advances are concerned? The only way in which I get any light thrown upon the question is when a member comes with a claim and tells me that he cannot get his money, and asks me what he is to do. I have no other knowledge.
119. You have no knowledge of a Society actually failing? No, unless when a Society dissolves I am entitled to assume that it is left insolvent. In one case a Society came to me and said that their young men having gone away there were so many old men left that they must smash up shortly.
120. But would not that be caused by some internal disagreement? It might happen, and very likely did so in this case.
121. Then you do not know of any case in which the dissolution of a Society was caused by its insolvent condition? I do not know of any such case.
122. What is your opinion as to Societies in this Colony as compared with those in England? As a matter of opinion, I should think the Societies here—I should think the old Societies that have lasted thirty years or so—must be taken to be sound, as they must have gone through a generation. With regard to some of the new Societies that have been founded with a few members, and in the country, where they have to make large contributions owing to the distance from a doctor, I think they may be insolvent; but taking the bulk of the Societies, I should say they would compare not unfavourably with those elsewhere.
123. Do you think then that the Societies here do not undertake too much for the contributions they receive? The payments themselves vary so very much that I should have to go through the whole of the Orders, and then should not feel justified in speaking as to any given figures—they vary so much; each Order has a different scale. I shall be able in a day or two to furnish you with a statement I have prepared bringing out these facts particularly, and you will see from that what an extraordinary range there is. It can be accounted for by the fact that in some Societies after a time the benefits cease, while in others they do not. Every Society seems to be based on a different foundation with regard to contributions and benefits.
124. With reference to country branches, or Societies, or Lodges, I understood you to say that many of them had been reduced to almost a state of insolvency? Say a Society of twenty or thirty members, it might be so.
125. Have they in such a case any aid or assistance from the Societies in Sydney? That I do not know; but I was speaking not of funeral matters, but with reference to doctors; however, a doctor often means a funeral.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 28th November.

MONDAY,

* NOTE (on revision):—On further consideration I am of opinion that the sum required would be nearer £3,000 than £2,000.

MONDAY, 28 NOVEMBER, 1881.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
PHILIP J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
PHILIP R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
EDWARD J. RUBLE, Esq.

Examination of Mr. Alexander Oliver, Registrar of Friendly Societies, resumed:—

126. Mr. Holdsworth.] I think provision is made in the present Act for certain returns to be sent in Mr. A. Oliver. annually and quinquennially? Yes.

127. These returns are supposed to be in such a form as to supply materials for the statist? That of 28 Nov., 1881. course is the inference; but the statute does not say so. If they are not for that purpose I do not know what they are for. I should, perhaps, say for the actuary rather than the statist.

128. We will say, then, for the actuary? I presume that is the object.

129. You say you have received a large number of returns, some properly made out and sent in regularly, others defective and obtained after much trouble? Yes.

130. You have also a number of returns received at different times from Societies which you believe have now ceased to exist? I do not remember saying that; I have never received returns.

131. But you have the returns in your office? No; we have sent forms and reminders to the Societies, and having no replies we infer that they have ceased to exist. But these are all old Societies.

132. Could you provide a return of all Lodges, Divisions, or Societies which have sent in returns, underlining or making some distinguishing mark against those which have not been returned within the last two years, assuming all such to be defunct? That could be done if I had a fortnight's time, and if I had assistance.

133. Some Societies have sent in returns, others have not. Do you not think that those which have sent in returns would for all statistical purposes present a fair average of the whole of the bodies? That is a very difficult question for me to answer, and I will tell you why. We have got some Societies in which the majority of the members are lumpers—by far the largest majority are lumpers; there are others in which the whole of the members are miners, coal and tin miners; and others in which the item "accident" will be very much more common than in some of the Societies composed of an average number of persons following different pursuits none of which perhaps are dangerous to life; so that you would not, from a series of returns representing what you might call average occupations in life, be justified in drawing an inference for Societies in which the occupations are more dangerous.

134. But if these Societies were some of those which sent in returns, could not a fair average be obtained then? Yes, if they did, but these are just the Societies which do not, and it is they which are chiefly in default. I should like to give some reference to my statement, that is to give an authority. If you have ever seen Dr. Farr's tables of mortality you will see that they are arranged in the order of occupations according to the percentage of deaths. There are something like forty or fifty different kinds of occupations, and the averages are strikingly different. That is of course an authority on the subject. It has been found necessary to construct tables for different occupations; and I deduce from that, that in any sort of calculation or valuation to be made it would be necessary to follow these tables.

135. Then you do not consider that from the returns which have been sent in you could form an average? I think some kind of average might be arrived at, but it would be unsafe with regard to some classes.

136. The present Act provides a penalty in cases where Lodges send in no returns, but owing to a defect in the construction the Act is a dead letter; is it not so? A great many do not send in returns at all, but there is no doubt about a penalty therefor having been incurred. But these are not the ones that we find most fault with; the worst cases are those which send in returns which are unintelligible. If I were to prosecute these Secretaries the case would be dismissed, because it would be held that they had complied with the Act by sending in returns.

137. The officer, if I remember the Act, who neglects the duty is individually liable, is he not? The 45th section says that "the trustees of every such Society established under this Act * * or the officer thereof appointed to prepare returns" shall forward them, so it is either the trustees or such officer who is liable.

138. And proceedings to recover the penalty have to be taken in the Police Court of the district in which the Society exists? Under the 78th section "all penalties and fines imposed by this Act or by the rules of any Society registered or brought under the operation of this Act and all offences committed under such Act or rules shall and may be recovered and prosecuted (where no other provision for the recovery or prosecution thereof is in that behalf provided) in a summary way at the suit of the Registrar in the case of offences liable to penalties under this Act and at the suit of the Society or the Secretary thereof in the case of penalties imposed by the rules of such Society, by and before any two Justices of the Peace in manner provided by the Act or Acts in force for the time being regulating summary proceedings before Justices," so that of course the Registrar would have to prosecute before the Court of Petty Sessions in the district.

139. And a conviction would be doubtful, and the expense very considerable? A conviction would be very doubtful, and the expense incurred would be more than the amount of the penalties.

140. I think you have laboured hard for some years to obtain these returns, and that you have much simplified the old form? We have done the best we could.

141. The result is that the returns now sent in are greater in number and more correct in detail than before you commenced your labours? During the past two or three years there has been a marked difference. For 1879, out of about 450 Societies, 244 furnished returns; we consider that pretty good. But I am sorry to say that for 1880, last year, only 204 Societies have complied with the Act, out of a total number which must be approaching 500. I have here a calculation made by my clerk, who has gone through the records in order to compare the returns for 1879 with those for 1880, and I find that 244 made returns for 1879, and only 204 for 1880, so that there has been a falling off of something like forty Societies in the year; but comparing that with the first few years the Act was in operation it shows a large increase.

Mr. A. Oliver. 142. I think you suggested that the Heads of the various Societies, say the Presidents and Secretaries of the supreme bodies, should be made responsible for the annual returns? I meant to suggest that some officer should be appointed by each body in some way, whose special duty it should be to see to the returns and to send them in collectively to the office of the Registrar, and that he should be responsible for their correctness. For instance, in the Sons of Temperance, in which I believe you are interested, there are some ninety Divisions; now instead of having ninety separate returns I should propose that the same course now pursued by the Manchester Unity should be taken, and that we should have the returns sent in all together.

28 Nov., 1881.

143. Are you aware that such Lodges have now to make returns to the superior bodies, and that from these statistical returns are prepared by such superior bodies? I believe it is so.

144. There is a return sheet from a Grand Lodge—would not a return of this character, attested by the Heads of Societies, save a vast amount of trouble? If a form was settled, that is what should be done. I do not say this is all that should be done, but if the form were settled, this, attested as Bank returns are attested, would do.

145. Do you think that by the adoption of such a course the difficulty in connection with returns would be overcome? Yes, provided that the officer had sufficient control over the Societies, that is to say, sufficient power to compel what I am unable to compel now.

146. Of course that must be provided for. When you accepted office there was, I understand, nothing like order in connection with papers belonging to Friendly Societies. There was merely a certain number of bundles? This was the case, and it took me eighteen months to get them in any kind of order.

147. At present they have been reduced to order, and any paper can now be readily found? That is so. Mr. Scott has been very clever and active in arranging the papers, and has got them now so that any question arising out of them can be answered in five minutes.

148. The fees you have received for all this work have not averaged £70 per annum? No, they have not averaged £70. They were only £25 one year, and last year they reached £120.

149. I understood you to say that you thought a person should be appointed as Registrar if the interests of the Friendly Societies are of sufficient importance? Yes.

150. By a memo. here of your own I find that the number of members registered in 1878 was 20,000? Yes, that is very nearly correct.

151. You stated also that probably two-thirds are registered, the other third not being registered? I do not remember saying that; if I said that, it was by inadvertence.

152. That there were two-thirds who had sent in returns, while the other third had not? No, I do not think so.

153. Well, that would bring the number of members of the Societies up to 40,000? Oh! I see what you mean. That depends on what you call Friendly Societies. Do you call the Good Templars a Friendly Society?

154. No, because they number nearly as many themselves? Well, the number of members of registered Friendly Societies will not be much over 30,000.*

155. Then we will put it down at 30,000; that number of members—By the way I think that for each head of a family the statistics give four individuals? At least that.

156. That would be 120,000 souls affected? Yes.

157. And I think that these 120,000 people pay nearly a quarter of a million towards the revenue of the country in the shape of taxes? I am not prepared to say what is the present rate of taxation per head, but I do not think you are wrong. I think the taxation per head is in round numbers about £3.

158. Do you, from your experience, consider under these circumstances that the interests involved are such to justify the appointment of a properly paid officer to guard the interests of these Societies? Yes.

159. I have before me a memo. which I presume was used by Mr. Abigail when in his place in the Legislative Assembly he asked for a Select Committee. By this memo. the management expenses of the various Societies vary from 18 to 75 per cent. of the total income. Are you aware that this can be very easily explained? I believe that with the qualification mentioned in the memo. that statement might be—

160. You cannot say how much is pure administration of funds? All we know is that in some cases almost the whole of the expenditure of the Societies is included.

161. With the exception of the Manchester Unity Oddfellows, medical benefits are more or less included in working expenses, I see by your memo.? Yes.

162. I think that so glaring was this fact that in 1879 you prepared and submitted to the Heads of the various Societies an amended return? I did my best to separate the items.

163. Mr. Abigail.] Did I understand you that the fact was so glaring—? I found that the management expenses were so mixed up that I prepared amended forms of returns. I think these were distributed for 1879 and 1880: they ought to have been. If the President wishes I can bring copies.

164. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have suggested the desirability of actuarial supervision of the tables of rates of the various Lodges or Orders? I think I said that in my opinion an actuary should be associated with the Department, for the purpose of controlling their tables and for valuations; but I said also that I did not think the tables of voluntary contributions to a Society should be wholly under the control of an actuary. I tried to indicate that I thought an alternative might be provided—in reply to some question, asked me by Mr. Greville I think. I will tell you why I think so. If the State fixes a hard and fast set of tables, inferentially the State says—"We guarantee these tables, and guarantee that no Society that uses these tables will ever become insolvent." Now if the State does that it should guarantee the solvency of the Societies, and this it would be very difficult for the State to do. There is my difficulty. I do not think that the State is prepared to say—"We guarantee the solvency of these Societies in the same way as we guarantee titles to land"; but if the State says to the Societies "You must take our contribution tables," that result appears to me to follow. But I recommended that an actuary should be appointed for other purposes as well as for that. There will be matters quite as important as the contribution tables to come under his notice.

165. Is it not a fact that before actuaries can test or frame tables they must have proper data to go upon? Certainly.

166. Are you aware of any data having been prepared in New South Wales outside of the Friendly Societies themselves? Outside of the Friendly Societies—No. I think the mortality tables are quite sufficient for all purposes.

* NOTE (on revision):—The number will probably be found to be under 30,000 by two or three thousand.

Mr. A. Oliver.

28 Nov., 1881.

167. About sickness? No, I do not think there are such.
168. Your return now before me shows that the sick and death rate varies very much in the different Societies, the sickness being from one-third of a day up to 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ days, and the deaths from 1.33 to 19.04? Yes, it does.
169. The memo. supplied represents only one year, and the results might be quite different in the next;—is it not so? These do not pretend to be averages. It might be as you say.
170. It would take some years then to arrange data, and consequently I imagine actuaries would be powerless at present? Yes, unless they could adopt the English mortality tables or those constructed in Victoria. They have done some of this work in Victoria, but only to a limited extent. They are trying to do it now, and they will get some fair tables, but it is a work that requires time; I should think it would require two generations.
171. You are aware that the large Societies have statistical returns made out annually for their own guidance? I believe so.
172. Do you not think that the experience of existing Societies is the best guide that can be taken for tables of mortality and sickness? If their returns are perfectly accurate, and range over a sufficient period, under proper conditions they would be valuable.
173. What do you mean by proper conditions? I mean if they are extensive enough, are accurate, embrace the whole of the Lodges under the control of the Society, and are handled by a man who knows his business.
174. Is it not a fact that the large bodies steadily have increased their capital year by year? I should hardly like to answer that question simply by yes or no, because I believe some have and some have not, but I have not any table by me by which I can compare them.
175. Have we not the same experience from England, America, and the sister Colonies; that is, that the large Societies have yearly increased their capital? That I believe to be the fact—that the large Societies have increased their capital: it is notably so in Victoria, and I believe it is true also in New Zealand. It is so in England. With regard to America I have no information.
176. Then do you think that any one can justly assert that our Friendly Societies are in an unsound condition? That depends upon what is meant by an unsound condition.
177. I mean that they are not solvent? I am not going to say that they are unsound, if by unsound you mean insolvent.
178. I will put it that way: Do you think any one can justly say that our Friendly Societies are in an insolvent state? I do not believe they are; if your question is whether a large number are unsound, I have no hesitation in answering no.
179. You have stated that certain Lodges have wound up according to law. Have not the large Societies a provision to protect financial and loyal members where a branch winds up? I think they generally have such a provision in their rules.
180. Do you know of any cases where Lodges have dissolved because they had too much money, and they wished to divide the profits? I think there have been one or two such cases, but the exact reason has not been stated to me; I have only found it out afterwards, when the amount available for division on dissolution showed at all events that they did not dissolve on account of want of funds.
181. Are you aware that large sums of money have been wasted in law costs, and the Societies' funds reduced thereby? Yes, I believe that considerable amounts have been spent in unprofitable litigation.
182. Would not this have been prevented if the wording of the present Act had been more clear? Would you refer me to what part of the Act you mean—is it "settlement of disputes?"
183. Yes? The 14th clause is not clear.
184. You are not aware that all superior bodies are formed by representatives elected from the subordinate bodies? Yes.
185. You are also aware that the members of subordinate bodies have power to appeal to the superior bodies? Yes.
186. Also that provision is made in the Act for matters to be referred to arbitration? That is correct.
187. Do you not think that such appeals should be final, and that members should be deprived of the power to waste the funds of a Lodge, so as to prevent such Lodge fulfilling the objects for which it was called into existence? My answer to that will make it appear that I have very little of the instinct of a lawyer about me. I do think that the jurisdiction of the Courts ought to be ousted; but that is upon the assumption that you can provide a trustworthy body of permanent arbitrators.
188. You have suggested that the Lodges should have an alternative rule giving the officers power to make a levy when the funds are below a certain amount? I do not quite suggest that, but I think it would be an alternative part of my scheme. I submitted it for this reason, that I think it difficult for any statute to prescribe what the contributions should be; and if that cannot be done, I think the safety-valve is in a system of levy when the funds get below a certain sum.
189. Are you aware that several Lodges or Divisions have laws to that effect? Yes, I believe a great many.
190. Mr. Rubie.] Are you acquainted with the present practice in England, or have you any tables in reference to actuarial calculations instituted by the Government? I have all the reports sent to me by Mr. Ludlow, the Chief Registrar, and I have I think received the tables; but there is one thing I cannot find, and that is that up to the present time any set of tables has been prescribed by regulations to govern the English Societies or any of them.
191. But you are aware that there have been very elaborate calculations made to regulate the various trades, and that from them most of the tables have been compiled? Yes; I am, however, inclined to think they rely more on valuation than upon contribution rates.
192. But I suppose you are aware that nearly all the great Societies have adopted the Government tables more or less? Well, I do not know what the Government tables are; I have never seen them, and I cannot gather that there are any. I do not see that there are any tables yet prescribed, and I have looked very carefully for my own use and information.
193. But you have seen Fidd Pratt's and Neison's tables? Oh yes.
194. With regard to the Registrar here, it would be no part of his duty to see whether the tables were sound or not? He could not do so.
195. And therefore it would be necessary to have an actuary in any new system adopted here? I think so.

Mr. A. Oliver. 196. Mr. Newland.] Are there any Societies registered that have a graduated scale of payments? Well, I have never seen one—at least I have no recollection of it at present. I have always thought it would be a very wise thing to do it.

28 Nov., 1881. 197. Then to your knowledge there is no Society registered that has a graduated scale of payments? Well, I do not recollect it.

198. You said here that in your opinion young members withdrawing from a Society would have a tendency to break it up: would that be the case if there were a graduated scale of fees? Well, they would be very lightly handicapped. From twenty-one to twenty-five these men would be paying perhaps half what those of forty-five would be paying, and therefore the disposition to withdraw would not be nearly so strong, although where the scales are uniform it has that effect. As it is now, the younger men say, very naturally, "we have to pay for ten or fifteen years for nothing," and they think they are merely paying for the older men.

199. Would you recommend a system of graduated payments? I think this matter of contributions should not cease to be voluntary, and that it would be a pity to prescribe any hard and fast scale and say that it must be adhered to. It should be left to the Societies themselves, because they might prefer a large uniform rate owing to there being but a few members, and they might not care to have the trouble of constantly altering their cards. The graduation system would do very well with a large Society; but with a small Society there would be a great deal of trouble in altering the rates.

200. My idea of the graduated scale was, that a young man joining at (say) twenty should pay a rate that should carry him through life? Then you would not alter the rate as he got up in years?

201. No? Oh, well, that is another thing entirely. My idea was that he paid a certain fixed sum between certain fixed intervals of life. You appear to mean that he commences from a certain period (say twenty years of age), and goes on through life at the same scale.

202. Precisely. You do not think that trouble would be given to the Societies by such a course as that? Not by that principle; that would introduce no further complications.

203. You stated that the English Societies were based upon periodical valuations. Who makes these valuations; are the persons doing so appointed by the Societies or by the Government? I think they are Public Auditors; they are called in the English Act Public Auditors, so that I presume they have some system of appointment of these Public Auditors; but I am not prepared to say that they have not also an audit by persons named on behalf of the Societies who may not be public officers at all. I know that on the returns coming to the Registrar he can order a valuation either by public valuers or by any person that he chooses to appoint. No doubt that in many cases he would select any person who was competent who might be nominated by the Society.

204. Then you think the Societies have the option of nominating the valuers themselves? I think it is very likely; but I am taking the position of a set of persons thinking themselves aggrieved. They go to the Registrar, and he has the option of appointing a valuator. I dare say that the Societies have a system of valuation in addition to this.

205. I see by these average returns that there is a large number of the Societies bracketed together. Were these brackets in the original? I think they were merely marked in a few days ago by Mr. Scott for my information.

206. Were the same returns furnished to the Manchester Unity as to the other Societies? That I cannot answer. I directed that the same should be sent. But these returns are for 1878; the new forms had not been prepared then.

207. Then are the returns from the Manchester Unity incorrect? I do not see that that is an inference.

208. Then all the returns should be the same? I could not explain this without showing the two forms of returns. I will bring them on the next occasion, and you will see this, that there was no excuse for including everything under the head of "management expenses." The old form was quite enough guide for any intelligent person to have excluded medical benefits and a variety of these items included in "management expenses," but to make it still more express and clear I altered the form.

209. Will you read the return in your hand? This is a memorandum intended to show the number of Lodges within each Order; the number which sent in returns for 1879 and 1880; and showing in another column those which appear to be in default. It is as follows:—

Name of Order.	Number of Lodges.	Returns furnished.		Default.
		1879.	1880.	1879.	1880.
Oddfellows—Manchester Unity
Grand United Order of Oddfellows	86	74	72	12	14
Sons of Temperance	78	41	10	37	68
Daughters of Temperance	12	8	4	12
Ancient Order of Foresters	27	18	21	9	6
Order of Royal Foresters	23	20	22	3	1
Druids	30	11	14	19	16
Protestant Alliance	38	32	33	6	5
Independent Order of Oddfellows.....	16	11	5	16
A.H.C. Guild	19	10	5	9	14
Hibernian A.C.B.S.....	11	6	8	5	3
Loyal Orange	3	3	3
Miscellaneous	22	10	16	12	6

It is only approximate of course, but it will be seen that 204 out of 365 only made returns last year, so that I could not furnish what has been asked for.

210. Mr. Abigail.] When I quoted from this paper in Parliament, do I understand that this bracket was not on it? No, it was not on; it was put on his own account by Mr. Scott a few days ago.

211. What is the bracket? In a bracket embracing all the Societies but the Manchester Unity are these words,—“These include medical benefits in management expenses.”

212. Mr. Smith.] In this return what do you understand by "miscellaneous"? "Miscellaneous" are Societies that have no Lodges or Divisions as a rule; such as the Marine Benefit. The Labourers Society is another; the Wesleyan Benefit is another. Simply one Lodge with no other Lodges. Mr. A. Oliver.
28 Nov., 1881.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 2 December.

FRIDAY, 2 DECEMBER, 1881.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,

JOHN SLADE, Esq.,
JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.

Examination of Mr. Alexander Oliver, Registrar of Friendly Societies, resumed:—

213. Mr. Slade.] Regarding the returns; do all registered Societies send in returns on the forms furnished Mr. A. Oliver. by your office? No, they do not. 2 Dec., 1881.

214. Have any Societies or members objected to the way in which these forms are arranged? I am informed by Mr. Scott (who sees, as a rule, the people) that sometimes they have made a little trouble; they have wished to send in their returns in a form that suits themselves. They sometimes say they do not understand the office forms; and some of them, when their own returns have been sent back to them covered by a copy of the return we want, have not done anything; they have simply let the thing slide, and have not sent in any returns at all.

215. I mean have they objected to the sick and doctor and medicine expenses classed amongst those of management? No; the grounds have been there that they cannot in many cases—and will not in others—dissect their income and expenditure so as to put it in this form.

216. Do not the forms sent round place doctors and management amongst the management expenses? It is there in the old form in these words "Expended on behalf of management expenses, including medicines and medical attendance"; so apparently it would appear there prior to 1878.

217. But are such forms now altered? Yes, they are altered now. The arrangement in the new form is such that so far as we can manage it we get the items under the proper heads; such as "paid for medicines," "paid for medical attendance."

218. Of course that applies to the forms in use now, and not those for which these returns which are laid upon the Table were sent in? No, they have only been in force for two years and a half.

219. Has any one from your office informed the Societies that the quinquennial returns are not required? I directed that as I could not get the annual returns it was nonsense to try to get the quinquennial returns, as they are much more complicated.

220. Have any of the Societies sent in returns to your office on forms of their own arranging? Oh yes.

221. Could you tell us what Societies have done so? Certainly. For some time the Protestant Alliance used to use their own forms, and for some time I think the Grand United used their own forms, and other Societies that I do not know—that I could exactly mention; but I know that I frequently had them brought in to me. We have had all sorts of forms; sometimes the returns were on Victorian forms, and on one or two occasions we have had returns on Launceston forms.

222. President.] Perhaps when your evidence is sent to you, you would be able to put accurately the number? No, I could not do that. I have already been trying to get several items of information that I knew would be asked for, but I found that it was impossible to do it; that is to say, I could not do it unless my clerk had nothing else to do. This work I have brought you now has been done by him in his extra time; and it is no use putting a stranger to the work, for he would not know what to do.

223. Do you know what caused the Manchester Unity to appear on that list with the medical expenses subtracted from the management expenses? I presume it was because in the pamphlet returns sent in this must have been so shown. But it must be understood that this was never an official document; I asked my clerk to rough out from the returns sent him these figures, so as to see if he could not get some percentages; and this was the result. I must assume that the Manchester Unity returns were sent in in the usual way.

224. Would not the subtraction of the cost of doctor and chemist from the management expenses—say 40 to 45 per cent.—place the real management expenses of some of the Societies very far below those of the Manchester Unity? The whole gist of this question depends upon the data; and if you apply that principle, it would reduce the real management expenses of some of the Societies to 3 per cent. I have got one here which is 29 per cent., with these other expenses included—I mean the Sons of Temperance; if there was a reduction made there of from 40 to 50 per cent. it would leave nothing to charge to management expenses. You could not carry that principle out, because the percentage for their other expenses must be a very varying amount. On the other hand, I have the Rechabites with their expenses returned at 75 per cent., and here it is very possible that 45 per cent. would represent these expenses for medicine and medical attendance very fairly.

225. Therefore any statement made from that return without explanation would be extremely injurious to some of the Societies and favourable to others? Well, I suppose it would be so.

226. I mean if put before the public as a bona fide Government statement? Yes, these figures as put here would prejudice many of the Societies in favour of others, and it would be unfair to these Societies unless an explanation were given.

227. Do you know if the Bathurst district of the Manchester Unity sent in a separate return—say for 1880, or the first half of 1881? No, they did not do it.

228. Then, if that district printed a report representing the cost of management up to 60 or 63 per cent., you would have no knowledge of that? The only knowledge I should have would be by finding it in the collective returns.

Mr. A. Oliver. 229. But if they when massed showed a less sum, that would give no proof how the parts of the Society were managed; the gross return being prepared in Sydney without regard to the actual expenditure on the spot would not be a reliable one to put forward as a true statement of their management; is not that so? The Lodges within each district are returned on tabulated forms, which I presume give all the information asked for.

2 Dec., 1891.

230. I wish to ask you whether, not having district returns from a body which sent in a gross return, you have any means of knowing if any part of that body cost more for management than the rest? One would have to rely on the trustworthiness of the return.

231. Have you any means of knowing the cost of management of this particular Society except the gross returns prepared by the head office? Oh, certainly not.

232. Passing again to the original paper you showed us, you stated I think, in answer to Mr. Holdsworth or Mr. Newland, that the marginal note was not made when Mr. Abigail saw it, before using the figures in Parliament? Certainly not.

233. Do you always examine rules which are sent to you for certification? I always examine rules that are new rules, by which I mean the rules of a new Society; I read these through myself; I read through, too, the rules of every other Society so far as concerns the matters that the law requires these rules to state. The law requires that every set of rules shall provide for certain stated things; and the first thing I do is to see that these provisions are conformed to; then I have a look at the tables. Sometimes, of course, these rules follow one another—are counterparts of one another; that makes my trouble less; for instance, if the Manchester Unity or Protestant Alliance Societies' rules are submitted for registration, I should get them in the old forms, which I have read through over and over again. I do not read through these, but see always that the provisions of the Act are provided for.

234. Then if it is stated that you certify rules on the faith of the names attached to them it is not true. Oh no, it is certainly not true.

235. Has it come to your knowledge that any one has publicly stated that nine-tenths of the Societies under you are insolvent? Nine-tenths! I do not think that it has been publicly stated, but I have heard that it has been said that a good many of the Societies are insolvent.

236. Have you seen the report of a deputation to the Colonial Secretary containing that statement? No, I have not.

237. What is your opinion of such a statement if it has been made? Why, that there is no solid foundation for it.

238. How many Societies have dissolved from your office? The best way I can answer that is to give you this return, which I have had prepared, and in which I have got the names of them all. During the time I have held office there have been ten. The following is the return:—

1. Fountain of Friendship Division, 81. Sons of Temperance.—No reason given. Balance of £167 1s. 3d. in hand, giving a dividend of £2 7s. after all claims had been settled. Dissolved 10 December, 1874.
2. Sydney Labouring Men's Benefit Association.—No reason given. Funds equally divided after all claims were settled. Dissolved 24 August, 1876.
3. Australian Order of Oddfellows, Iron Duke Lodge.—Amalgamated with Druids, 7 June, 1877. Existent.
4. Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society.—No reason given. Dissolution registered 17 October, 1877.
5. Grafton New German Sick Club.—Amalgamated with Clarence River German Club, 6th May, 1878.
6. Hope of Marulan, 96. Sons of Temperance.—Amalgamated with Southern Cross Lodge, I.O.O.F., M.U., 16 July, 1879.
7. Sanctuary Robin Hood, 2,223. Ancient Order of Shepherds.—All claims settled. Dissolved 28 November, 1879.
8. Australian Total Abstinence Benefit Society.—Amalgamated with Grand United Order of Free Gardeners, 12 July, 1880.
9. Argyle Lodge, 61. United Ancient Order of Druids.—Expelled the Order. Amalgamated with Grand United Order of Oddfellows, 31 August, 1881.
10. St. Bede's Branch Hibernian Australasian Catholic Benefit Society.—Jembaicumbene. Dissolved 12/3/76.

239. Have you stated what have been the causes of dissolution? I have; I said that so far as I could remember the cause of dissolution has really been insolvency; that insolvency has been admitted by the Societies seeking to dissolve.

240. The usual plans of distribution and settlement are always carried out? Yes.

241. Have any cases of repudiation of claims come under your notice? That is, have those in the minority made any application how to recover their share of the proceeds? No, I do not remember any such case.

242. Do you know of any Societies which have dissolved with plenty of funds? Well, in my time there has been a division in which there was a good round sum divided after making good all claims, as far as I can remember, £170 or £180. There are papers in the office relating to a Society which dissolved with a still larger amount, but it was not in my time, so that I cannot speak of it. It was said to have had some four or five hundred pounds to divide.

243. Do you not think that the late recovery by law of large contributions up to £9 is opposed to the spirit of the law? Recovery at the suit of an officer of the Society against a defaulting member. Well, I think where there is provision for his expulsion, and the rules contain at the same time a provision for arbitration, that it is distinctly against the spirit of the Act; and I do not think it is lawful either. As the rules of the Society require to have a provision for arbitration, and have nearly always contained a provision for expulsion when a member becomes unfinancial for a certain time litigation is simply impossible, or ought to be so. I quite understand the question, which is, do not I think the late recovery of such amounts as £9 for arrears of contributions is opposed to the spirit of the Act. It is a question I cannot say yes or no to, because a good deal will depend upon the Societies' rules, some Societies having in their rules a provision to enable them to sue before Justices. On the other hand, ninety-nine per cent. of the Societies I have registered have not such a provision; nevertheless they have succeeded in suits against their members who are in default. I should here like to make a reference to what has been said in England on the subject. [Vide Appendix.] That decision is only about four or five years old. 244.

244. Do you not consider that if any arrears of contributions are to be recoverable by law, they should be limited to a corresponding time or amount to that for which a Society is required by its rules to replace a member on the books? I do not know what that time would be.

Mr. A. Oliver.
2 Dec., 1881.

245. Say that a member is fourteen weeks in arrears, he is then suspended until he pays, but his name is kept on the books for fifty-two weeks, at the end of which time it is struck out. Do you not think that the right of a Society to recover contributions should be limited to the time for which he has a claim to be replaced on the books, as that would amount to £2 12s.—taking the average contributions at a shilling a week—while the fines would bring it up to (say) £3. In other words, I mean that he should not be responsible for more contributions than would cover the period at the end of which he is liable to expulsion? Well, to be consistent with the opinion I formerly expressed, I do not think there should be any such thing as enforced payment.

246. Do not you consider it unjust to sue for the recovery of dues accrued after membership has ceased by effluxion of time? In that case I think expulsion is the remedy, and not a suit. I cannot see that a member should be liable both to expulsion and to be mulcted.

247. You are quite aware then that the recovery of such a sum as £9 must represent dues that cover a period of some three years? Yes, unless the fines were very large.

248. Would you recommend special levies both in districts and branches as a safety-valve or means of protection against running out of funds? I think that I did express that opinion with regard to this matter, but I afterwards said that I should be glad of the opportunity of putting what I think on the subject into writing.

249. Do you consider that such a fund would be a valuable addition to a Society's security? I do, because I think a levy proceeds on a system of continuing liability which is valuable.

250. Regarding new Societies applying to you to be registered, or new Societies opening, are you of opinion that they should admit members before they are opened, under some certified rules and mode of payment? By new Societies you mean new branches only.

251. Yes? That is what I try to carry out.

252. Would you make the evasion of this punishable? The Societies ought not to be able to evade it—they ought not to be registered.

253. You know that new branches sometimes offer certain inducements to members to join; do you think if these are above what have otherwise been certified they should be punishable? A Society of that kind ought not to be in existence.

254. But this is prior to registration? Then it is already penal for them to take any money until they are registered. The sixth clause of the present Act says:—"Every person being a member of the committee of management of any Society hereafter to be formed for any purpose within the meaning of this Act who shall take any money in consideration of the allotment of shares or any interest in such Society until the same shall be registered under this Act shall incur a penalty for every such offence not exceeding twenty pounds."

255. Does that apply to the third part of the Act? Oh yes, that is a general clause.

256. President. Does that apply to Benefit Societies receiving contributions? It must apply to them, and I will point out why. It is in Part II of the Act which relates exclusively to Benefit Societies and not to Building Societies or Co-operative Societies; and it is copied almost word for word from the Imperial Statute, where it was expressly intended to prevent any person from collecting money before registration; the thing prohibited is to take any money consideration.

257. As a Society can only be registered by the fact of its having an existence, and proper persons to compile rules for its management, how could they be registered before they receive money? They can appoint their officers and constitute themselves a Society, but they cannot take money in consideration of any interest in the Society.

258. Then I am to understand that they cannot proceed to give benefits until they are registered? They cannot take money in consideration of them; they cannot take a weekly contribution to ensure the prescribed benefits.

259. Does that apply to entrance fees as well? I should not think it does, because the entrance fee is nothing more than a preliminary, and was never meant to be a thing on which the Society was to be established.

260. Having stated the difficulty of getting returns in on account of the illiteracy of the secretaries, would you advise that any new Act should provide that a statist should be employed to collect these returns? What I previously said was that in Victoria the statistical part of the work was administered by the Government Statist, Mr. Hayter, but he is only an officer for the purpose of forming and preparing the various returns, distributing them, collecting the information under them, doing the correspondence, and preparing the whole in the form of one return for Parliament. I do not gather that the Government Statist of Victoria has anything to do with the valuation—I fancy that it is under the Registrar; and what I intended to say was that a similar course might be pursued here, at all events this far, that the returns might be placed as one of the functions of the Registrar-General, the legal matters remaining with the Registrar of Friendly Societies, unless a special Department is created. But in any case it would be advisable to have a Government Actuary attached to the office.

261. Would you in any new Act make it imperative that no appeal to law be allowed except in cases of felony? Do you mean theft or misappropriation of money?

262. I mean in reference to disputes between the members; should these be confined to arbitration? Yes, I think I have said that that is precisely what ought to be the course adopted.

263. Would you advise that that Board of arbitration should take something of the form of the Marine Board, with (say) one officer at the head and sundry gentlemen chosen to assist him? If the arbitrators are a representative body I think it matters not how they are appointed.

264. I mean should this Board be beyond and outside of the Societies themselves? Yes, but they should be persons who intimately know the working of the Societies, and should be generally a representative body.

265. Do you think the minority should be able to appeal to them and have power to prohibit expenditure that they think would be injurious to the Society? I think the right course in a case like that would be to enable any given number of the members of a Society to apply to the Registrar, and that then he might, if he chose,

- Mr. A. Oliver. chose, submit the matter to the arbitrators ; because it must be taken for granted that they are experts, and that they know what is proper expenditure for these Societies. But I think that a given number (say six or a dozen) should have some means of appealing against what they consider intended misappropriation of funds, although not necessarily criminal.
- 2 Dec., 1881.
266. Could the decisions of such a Board be upheld or enforced ? That is a matter that could be very easily managed in any new Act.
267. Should you advise a penalty for false returns ? I think they should be presented in the same way as those of Banks—that they should be sworn returns.
268. Would you advise that graduated subscriptions should be made compulsory ? I think it would be a pity to make it compulsory, though they should be encouraged ; but my idea of a Friendly Society is that it is made up of voluntary contributions, and that we must not interfere too much with that principle.
269. Would you advise that any new Act should fix a minimum of subscriptions and a maximum of benefit ? I think it would be a very good plan, because it seems to me that—
270. I mean that although Societies may exist under or over this minimum and maximum, they should not receive the benefit of registration ? I think that it is possible for the Legislature to provide that there should be a certain maximum of benefit and minimum of subscriptions ; and if there is no variation from that the tables should be certified actuarially. If, for example, it is said that thirteen-pence a week should be considered to be a proper contribution to receive such and such sick pay and such and such funeral donation together with other minor benefits, and said that no Society should be registered that purported to receive these benefits at a less rate, unless they deposited the certificate of an actuary with their tables, I think it would be a great improvement on the present law, because I do not see then how these Societies that you mention as competing for public favour on ridiculously small scales could exist.
271. Do you not think that the returns demanded by the Act are most important in convincing the public that the Societies in which they are interested are working properly ? I do, certainly.
272. If I remember rightly, when the present Act was brought into existence, you did recommend the appointment of a staff to work the office ? I did ; on several occasions I have pointed out that assistance was required.
273. Was it in consequence of some emergency at the time, and the necessity for pushing the Bill through without loss of time, that this question was put aside and some arrangement made with you ? No, I do not think there was any arrangement of the kind you mention. It was quite a surprise to me when Sir George Innes asked me if I would take the position, it having been previously offered to two or three Government officers. The fact is that in the Legislative Council they made it necessary that the position should be held by a Government officer, and it was offered to two or three who had large departments under them but they declined, and then it was offered to me and I accepted it ; but I am not aware of any arrangement.
274. An actuary has been mentioned by some of the members of the Commission ; do you know of any such gentleman in the Colonies who would be considered by the Societies an impartial person to perform these duties ? All the actuaries are, I believe, attached to life offices here ; I really know of no member of the Institute who is not attached to some life office.
275. Do you think an actuary attached to a Life Assurance Office would be considered impartial ; should he not be entirely disconnected with any other institution to properly represent these Societies ? Well, if so, he would have to be paid, and the question of money comes in here ; I very much question whether any special actuary could exist on the Friendly Societies' work that would be put before him.
276. Are you aware that the actuaries of Great Britain say that a subscription of over three times the amount charged is required to secure even less benefits than we now give ? I have heard substantially that the benefits are grossly in excess of the rates, or that the rates are insufficient to secure the benefits.
277. And you are aware that there are numbers of Societies which have existed for years, met all their liabilities, and have large balances, on less subscriptions than these gentlemen have considered necessary ? I believe there are a large number of Societies that have been for a long time in existence which have always been able to meet their engagements, and have always had a good balance at their bankers ; whether that balance would represent the right amount to the actuarial mind or not I do not know.
278. Could you suggest any organization or other plan of managing Friendly Societies than by a similar Act to the present ? I think any Act worth framing ought not to be similar to the present ; I think a considerable amount of variation would be required.
279. Mr. Gelding.] I see by this return that in 1880 there were a number of defaulting Lodges : were not a quantity of them metropolitan Lodges ? Certainly, included in this number there are a good number of metropolitan Lodges.
280. I think you told us that you have the power of inflicting a very heavy fine on these defaulting Lodges, but that as the majority of them were in the country districts it would cost more money than it was worth ? Yes, the metropolitan Lodges would have been within easy reach, but we have not had the defaults with the metropolitan Lodges that we have had with the country Lodges, and it would not have been fair to have summoned them and not those in the country.
281. Why were not these metropolitan Lodges visited with the pains and penalties of the Friendly Societies Act, being so easily come-at-able ? When the question of procedure came before me I did not take the easiest to go at, but I took the worst cases. If I had gone to the metropolitan Lodges I should have been bound to go to the country Lodges ; but having come to the conclusion that procedure under the Act would be a great hardship, I did not have recourse to it.
282. In the top of the column in this return I see "management expenses per pound of total income." I see the Manchester Unity is 3s. 7d. Will you tell me what this means ? This column ought to be the percentage, or the amount per pound of total income devoted to the management expenses.
283. Then according to that, the Manchester Unity compares trebly favourably with any Society named ? Oh no, here is one 5s. 9½d.
284. But the Manchester Unity does compare more favourably than any other Society named in that Schedule ? Oh yes.
285. You mentioned a few minutes ago that among these Societies who wished to send in their returns on their own forms were the Protestant Alliance and the Grand United Order of Oddfellows ? I am not so sure about the Grand United, but am certain about the Protestant Alliance, though I am pretty sure—in fact I remember the returns in 1876 or 1877, being sent in to me by a Mr. Shaw in a form that was not in accordance with the Act.

286. And you mentioned that other Lodges wished to send in returns on other forms ; in other words, that they wished to do as they liked? Well, I think that perhaps represents their wishes. Mr. A. Oliver.
287. Have you no means of compelling them to agree to your form which you issue? No, not strictly, because, as the law puts it, the penalty upon a Society not sending in a return does not meet the case of a Society that simply refuses to send in a return on the authorized form. I might demur to take their own forms, but could not get a penalty. 2 Dec., 1881.
288. Would it not be advisable to have this specially put in, that all Orders and bodies should be compelled to make their annual returns on these special forms that the Registrar might adopt and issue for the sake of uniformity? I have already said that I think an officer of each of the Orders should be made responsible for the returns, and therefore I should answer your question yes.
289. The Act gives you here the power to force Lodges to comply and to fill up these forms? Yes, but if you read the 46th section—that is the one that makes the penalty—you will see what I mean. I have the power, but then the question comes what fixes the penalty.
290. Then do you mean that the two clauses are vague and unworkable? Yes, to understand and expect a conviction under the 46th.
291. Are you not aware that the Manchester Unity specially produces and sends in a verified form of all their Lodges, Societies, and districts? Yes.
292. And in addition to that, does not the corresponding secretary of the Order tie up and forward to you the separate returns of every Lodge in the district? Oh, I do not understand that, but I should like to answer the question at another meeting, because I will make inquiries. The returns have always been sent to me in a pamphlet.
293. I heard you answer a question about the dissolution of Lodges. Are you aware that plenty of them break up without you knowing anything about it? I have some reason to suspect that they do it.
294. And in conformity with the law without you knowing? They could not; my sanction is required if a Society is to be legally dissolved.
295. I have heard you speak of appeal Boards outside of the Societies. Are you not aware that such constituted Boards elected from outside of Friendly Societies would not be of the slightest use in trying to bring about a settlement of disputes? No, I am not.
296. Do you not know that there are peculiarities attaching to all these Societies, such that a person unless well aware of the facts would not be able to do anything? There is a great deal in common in all Friendly Societies, and there is a good deal of divergence; but their laws are sufficiently in common to allow men who had been connected for some years with the Societies to express an opinion. Of course I do not mean that they should be outside the Societies altogether.
297. Are you aware that there are several Friendly Societies in active competition at cheap rates; with a low scale of contributions, and large benefits attaching thereto? Do you mean registered Societies?
298. Yes? I have heard that there are.
299. Do you not think that the Registrar ought to be aware of such facts from the officers of the Societies? Of course it would be an advantage to the Registrar to know it under a new Act, but not under the present Act, for if he knew it he could do nothing.
300. Are you aware that the system is pursued by at least four Societies, that when first opening a branch or Lodge joining members are admitted on paying half fees? I have heard something to that effect.
301. What is your opinion of such a course; do you think it just? I think it is a fraud upon the Act.
302. I have heard you say a good deal about special levies; do not you think them very injudicious? I cannot say that, because I have already said that I think within limits they would be very judicious; but I may ask you whether you mean levies for a certain benefit, say a death levy; because I mean quite a different thing. According to my view, it would be a benefit in the new Act if there were this mode of liability enacted, that when the funds whether in a district or in a Lodge fell below a certain—
303. I mean by these special levies that when a death takes place you have a levy to pay, or if you have any serious amount of sickness there should be extra levies. Do you think that judicious? I do not think it would be judicious to have any special levy specially to supplement solvency, which ought to be guaranteed by the contributions; my recommendation was general levies where the funds were reduced below a certain point.
304. Then according to your answer you think it very imperative that on every member joining a Lodge he should know what he has to pay? He should know all his liabilities.
305. I believe you have stated that you think it one of the greatest benefits that could be entailed on Societies to have what they call a safety-valve in this way; by which I understand you to mean that should the funds of a Lodge fail to meet the liabilities the Lodge should have power to stop sick pay and raise their contributions in order to get funds in hand? That is not my proposition. My proposition or my recommendation was a very general one and in these terms: if the funds of a Lodge shall fall below a certain proportion that is not very hard to ascertain, there should be a levy from the members in order to feed the fund until it comes to the prescribed proportion,—I do not say what that proportion should be; but I do not say that during this interval all benefits should be suspended.
306. But when these funds fall to this low scale, presuming there was a lot of sickness to take place? No doubt the levies would have to be repeated rather too often. I said this at the time.
307. Then it would be a dangerous safety-valve, would it not? It would not. It would by itself, but not if taken in conjunction with a statutory scale of benefits and contributions. I do not think it would be dangerous then. It is quite competent for the statute to say that there shall be a certain scale of contributions and benefits, and that if there is any variation the tables must be certified actuarially.
308. I suppose you are aware of some Lodges that have had to apply to head-quarters for money to pay their members? I have heard that this has been the case with some of the Lodges.
309. Do not you think that our present system of Friendly Societies of gathering contributions from old and young on the same scale very injudicious; that is to say, a young man of seventeen years of age joins a Lodge, pays a shilling a week, and another man is admitted at the age of forty-five and he only pays the same rate, a shilling a week. Do not you think something should be done to remedy that and try to get all the Lodges in New South Wales to try and agree to something like a sliding scale? It would be very beneficial if it could be done, but it seems to me to interfere with the voluntary character of the contributions. If a Lodge publishes its scales it publishes the fact that a young man can get in at a certain rate, and if that

Mr. A. Oliver. that rate is made lower on account of his age say seven or eight pence, it appears to me that he would go in there rather than to a Lodge where he would have to pay a shilling. One would think that it would require no compulsion.

2 Dec., 1881.

310. Are you not aware that the most successful Friendly Society in Great Britain adopts this sliding scale system? I have seen it so stated in the English reports.

311. And you are also aware that under this system it is proved that all these Lodges are perfectly solvent and are able to save money, and that they have often to divide the surplus funds? I can answer yes to all the former part of your question, but with regard to the division of funds I did not know they were dividing Societies.

312. Would it not be an improvement and materially assist the Registrar to make it imperative that in the returns the ages of all the joining members should be given? I presume that is the English system.

313. Yes; do you not think it would be an advantage here too, so as to form just data on which to go in making up any actuarial statements? Yes, there is no doubt it would be a valuable piece of information, as well as the trade of the person joining.

314. I presume you know that the Victorian Act is imperative on that point? I believe it is, but cannot say positively.

315. I believe you are of opinion that there would be quite enough work for a permanent Registrar to keep him employed? Well, if he were to carry out the idea of being standing Counsel to the Societies, I am sure that there would be plenty of work to do. By "standing Counsel" I mean one to whom any member of a Society would have a right to go to obtain information.

316. Do not you think that before Lodges are opened application should be made to the Registrar, accompanied with a list of the fees and proposed contributions and benefits to be given, so that the Registrar could form some idea whether the proposed payments would meet the liabilities, and on such should depend whether or not the rules should be certified? My answer is that that would imply that the Registrar was an actuary.

317. Are you aware of the fact that there are two sections of Friendly Societies in the Colony; those who take members in independent of creed, and those which are established for political, temperance, and other objects? I am aware that there are sectarian and non-sectarian Societies.

318. Do you not think that in these sectarian Societies, considering that people pay money in for various benefits which they expect to receive, the insurance branch should be kept distinct from the sectarian principles? I do not think that anything we may call sectarian should be mixed up with the sick and funeral funds, but I have reason to believe that it is so. They make one fund of the whole moneys received, and take all out from that fund.

319. Do not you think it should be different; that when they break the sectarian rules, they should not thereby lose the insurance benefits? The answer to that is difficult, because it is a principle of these Societies that every man knows what he is joining; and he is not to be restricted from joining a Society by Act of Parliament if he chooses voluntarily to join. For instance, with regard to the Guilds, any man joining must be taken to know precisely what the rules are; and if by these rules any part of the contributions may be diverted to sectarian purposes we must assume that they have assented to them. Therefore the question is a difficult one to answer. You could not regulate the matter by statute without interfering with the voluntary character of the Societies.

320. President.] What connection is there between the sectarian principle and the Society itself? They are all Societies of a religious character, or requiring some particular phase of belief amongst the members: some of them, for example, require the fiat of the Archbishop, and are considerably under sectarian control.

321. Then these Societies are composed of persons of certain denominations or forms of belief, who form themselves into a Society within themselves and register themselves? Just so, with certain provisions for their sick.

322. Mr. Gelding.] Are you aware that in some instances medical examination of the joining members of some of these competitive Societies has been dispensed with? I have heard so.

323. What is your opinion of such proceedings? That they are not justifiable if carried out.

324. Are you aware that there are Societies that guarantee the burial of children—that give a donation on the death of children? I believe there are some, but very few.

325. Have you ever seen this poster before you headed "For the benefit of the Public"? I have not seen this before.

326. What is your opinion of this cheap rate of fees, the cheap rate of entrance, the great amount given out for sick pay and burial fees? That I could hardly answer satisfactorily without seeing what the constitution of the Society was. I presume that under the laws they are entitled to do this, or are they attempting to break their own laws? I should have to look at this "Native Rose Lodge, No. 2,014" before I could give any opinion on this point. If it is a registered Lodge I should have to see rules and see whether this prospectus is in terms of its rules or is a breach of those rules.

327. Is the Society registered? Yes, the "Native Rose" Lodge is a registered Lodge.

328. Are you aware that this sort of competition has sprung up since the introduction of the American Independent Order of Oddfellows in this Colony? I was not aware that that was the exact time; I thought it had been in existence some time—in fact ever since the new Act was passed.

329. I believe you said that the best method of getting in proper returns would be for each Society to have a proper officer to attend to them? Yes, it ought to be his duty to send out the forms, and to see that they are properly sent in and verified.

330. Does not the Manchester Unity do this? I understand that the returns of the Manchester Unity are always very well submitted.

331. You have never had occasion to find fault with them, have you? No.

332. Do you not think all the difficulty might have been avoided if the Orders had the power of inflicting a heavy fine on Lodges that did not send in their returns? Yes, I think it would be better to have the compulsion come from the Order than from any Government officer.

333. I presume you are aware that the Manchester Unity has a fine of two guineas? Yes; it is not, however, a statutory fine, and it is possible you could not enforce it; I, however, would go further and make it a fine that could be enforced—make it statutory.

334. Following up that, what is your opinion of the fines and penalties contained in the general laws; if you you could not enforce the payment of one fine it is hardly possible you could enforce another one then? I Mr. A. Oliver.

do not see how you can; I know of no provision in the Act by which you can enforce a fine contained in a rule.

2 Dec., 1881.

335. Then if I rebelled against paying a fine the Lodge could not compel me to pay? They could inflict the penalty and do their best to enforce it, but the only compulsion I see is expulsion.

336. But would not the Judge then be able to reinstate me? That would raise the whole question; if he thought you should not be reinstated until you had paid the fine, he might make payment a condition of reinstatement.

337. Then in framing a new Act it would be desirable to give all the Societies power to inflict these fines? Yes, unless it is considered better to give it to the arbitrators. I am in favour of referring everything to arbitration; but certainly the Act ought not to say you shall be able to inflict a fine, for instance for smoking in a Court, but not be able to inflict a fine for arrears or to enforce the payment of arrears.

338. Considering the importance of Friendly Societies, and the great saving they must be to the State, do you not believe their rules should be registered free of cost? I do.

339. Also, that their reports, like those of other charitable institutions, should be allowed to go through the mails post free? That is a question of policy for the Government.

340. In Victoria I believe the Act will not allow Lodges to build halls unless they have a certain amount of funds; should not such a provision be adopted here? I am aware that in Victoria there is a limitation upon the building of places of business, halls for Societies; and as the value of the hall is shown in all cases as an asset, it might be misleading if that asset is not immediately available; therefore I think that a hall should not be capable of being built unless out of what may be called surplus assets—until the assets reached a certain condition.

341. I come now to the dividing of the funds of the bodies. Are you aware that in Victoria the Judges have decided that no Lodge can break up and divide its funds without the consent of the grand body; and also, considering they are part and parcel of the parent Society, that the funds of such Society belong to the whole body, and not simply to the Lodge? I presume the decision is under the new Act, but there could not be such a division in this Colony.

342. Do you not think it would be desirable to have something of the sort here? Yes, in all cases where this parent Society has the control of a general fund, but not if it were simply a regulative Society. I am inclined to think that is one of the laws in Victoria—that it is so enacted.

343. You are of opinion that it would be advisable to introduce something of the sort here? I think it would where there is a relation of contributions; that is, where the Lodges contribute to the central body.

344. In the 8th clause of the Act you will find special mention made of a three-fourths majority being required for the alteration of rules: are you of opinion that this requires alteration, and that it is totally unworkable? I am not aware that it has ever been required in the alteration of rules. Sometimes the rules themselves require it.

345. Do you not think that alterations of rules might be made by a majority of the members then present, the whole of the members having been duly summoned? You mean that an alteration of the rules should depend on a bare majority of those present at a summoned meeting. All that I have required is that a declaration should be made that the alteration desired has been duly carried in accordance with the provisions of their own rules.

346. Do you not think it would be desirable to make it simply a majority? I think a bare majority might be permitted to alter any rule, but there is one consideration; a bare majority may be summoned very suddenly, and in the absence of perhaps some members who would oppose—who would turn that majority into a minority. If it were a rule, for instance, to suspend benefits, I think there should be some great caution used. Of course I know we are assuming that the meeting is a summoned one, and that every member would thus have had due notice of it.

347. You have spoken favourably of the appointment of arbitrators: I presume you are aware that the Manchester Unity refers disputes to arbitration; or that, in other words, a charge must be heard before a Board of Arbitrators. Do you not think that under such a condition the members get natural justice? I think so; my proposal is simply an extension of that principle.

348. Without actuarial investigation would the experience of the Societies be a sure guide? I consider the experience of the best and oldest Societies would be a very safe guide in fixing the proportion of contributions to benefits; but a guide is a very different thing from laying down a rule.

349. I presume such experience could only be gathered from those Societies which have kept as nearly as possible to the scale of payments they started from; you would not take these deviations from the ordinary rules? No; I should assume that the information so derived would be from Societies which held uniformly to their own rules.

350. It does not necessarily imply that because Lodges are registered they can meet demands when called upon? No, certainly not; in the first place the office is in no way responsible for the working of the Society; it may be launched on the best possible scales, and yet be wrecked in a couple of years by extravagance.

351. Do you not think the various Friendly Societies have auditors of sufficient prudence to audit their books without going outside? Yes, except where you come to valuing the interest of a member. It is the interest of a member in the Society which has to be valued. It is valued now in Victoria; but it could not be done by a mere accountant, unless he were well up in actuarial calculations.

352. I think I heard you remark that the annual return sheet still requires amendment to allow careful dissection of the items? I do not think it is perfect; it is quite capable of improvement even at the present time.

353. Are you aware that pro rata Friendly Societies here give greater benefits than those in Great Britain? I know that perfectly well, and have tried to get the English tables for various Societies. I have succeeded in some cases, and have often thought the scales here seem to be higher than those in England; that is, the benefits are greater in proportion to the contributions.

354. I suppose you are aware that in Great Britain, in Lodges registered under the Act, the only party who gets medical benefits is the one who pays the contributions? I believe that is the general rule in England.

355. I suppose you have noticed in certifying the General Lodge Rules that clause after clause clashes with each other? I have.

- Mr. A. Oliver. 356. And do not you think it should be the province of the Registrar to amend such, so that the book should be readable, and that there should be no quibble should anything be brought to a Court of law? It is undoubtedly true that on reading some sets of rules I have found that the rules are out of construction, and I have seen cases in which they are contradictory, but as I have not got the power to make rules I have not the power to alter them in any way.
- 2 Dec., 1881. 357. Are you aware that Mr. Ludlow, the Registrar of Friendly Societies in Great Britain, does such things? Yes, because he has the power to do it under the Act, but I have no such power.
358. And would you recommend it here? Only within certain limits, or he might clap on another shilling to the contributions.
359. The Friendly Societies Act gives power to trustees to lend money on mortgage. Now, if, before the mortgage is paid off one of the trustees dies, much trouble and expense is caused in releasing the mortgage. Should not a clause be inserted in any new Friendly Societies Act, giving power to any new trustee appointed to act in his place? I think the releasors of the mortgage should be the trustees of the Lodge for the time being.
360. Mr. Smith.] Is it a fact that you drafted the present Act, Mr. Oliver? I received it as a sort of heirloom or remanet; but practically this is what happened: I had a Bill handed to me by Mr. Sutherland which had been prepared, I do not know by whom; it was a transcript of the English Act of 1855; and I found that by reason of an extraordinary complication of Building Society law with Friendly Society law there would be great confusion in any new Act which did not embrace these other Societies. I having come to that conclusion, stated so much to Mr. Darley, and he accepted the idea, and asked me to do it. I then altered the Bill so as to repeal all the Building Society Regulation Acts and bring them under the operation of the Bill.
361. Then this Bill did not emanate from you as Parliamentary Draftsman? I did not draw these clauses, but I received the Bill as I have stated, and I added the Building Society Law and the Co-operative and Trading Society clauses; but I did not make any alteration in the part relating to Friendly Societies.
362. You have worked this Act since it became law up to the present time? Yes.
363. This fact has given you a large experience as to the general management and government of Friendly Societies? Necessarily it has given me some.
364. Would you give the Commission the benefit of your opinion as to the adequacy of this Act in regard to Friendly Societies, and your knowledge since working the Act as to their stability and financial condition? I think the Act wants to be completely repealed, and substituted by a new measure, for it would be impossible to merely amend it. It is not an Act for looking after Societies when they are formed; it takes a deal of trouble in registering them, and then leaves them. If they like to take the trouble to send in their returns, well and good; if not, well and good too.
365. You are of opinion that the Act has been totally inadequate? It is now totally inadequate.
366. Having worked this Act, you must have a knowledge of the Societies; I should like you to give the Commission the benefit of your opinion as to their financial condition? I think I have answered that question, though put in a different form, before. Of course I have only two modes of ascertaining what the financial position of a Society is; one is officially, and the other ex-officially. Officially I should decidedly express the opinion that the Societies cannot be in an unwholesome state when only ten have dissolved within a period of eight years. What I have heard outside is only hearsay, and not within my own knowledge.
367. During some portion of your evidence you said you thought it desirable that a Board of arbitrators should be established for the purpose of dealing with the internal disagreements of Friendly Societies? Yes, I am of opinion that such a Board should be constituted.
368. Do you mean that it should be constituted of persons not identified with the Societies? Certainly not; they would be no use at all. My idea would be that if the office is made into a separate Department, the Registrar of Friendly Societies should be the Chairman, and that the members of the Board should have a seat with him and be a tribunal to dispose of all the quarrels of Societies.
369. Then the Commission is to understand that in your opinion this Board, with the exception of the Registrar, should be composed of members identified with the various Societies? Persons experienced in the working of the Societies.
370. Is it a fact that the majority of the Societies have a council, or district or governing body? Yes.
371. Do you think that each district nominating one of its members to constitute such Board would be a workable piece of machinery? That would make the Board too large. I have already stated that I propose to offer a few suggestions in writing on that subject, and that head cannot escape me. At present my notions are a little bit crude, because I have not yet thought out whether this Board should be a body nominated by the Government or elected by the Societies, or partly nominated and partly elected; but I am inclined to think that a system of election could be carried out, and in this way, that any Society which numbers so many thousand members should have the right of election of one of its members on the Board, but the difficulty is what number that should be. This is a matter that I should desire the Commission to allow to remain in abeyance, so that I may think over it and put it in writing.
372. Is it within your knowledge that a number of Societies have established themselves, have elected officers, have initiated members, drawn subscriptions from such members, have registered themselves, and after a life of some few months have ceased to exist? I have heard so much, but I have no official knowledge of it.
373. Of course it is within your knowledge that within the last two years there has been great competition going on amongst the Friendly Societies? I believe there has been considerable competition within the last two or three years.
374. If you had any means of knowing that the scale of fees fixed and the amount of benefits given as exhibited in that document that was here a few minutes ago was to be given, if you had the power as Registrar would you ever have registered a Society of that character? Of course I could not answer that question exactly. They seem here for a shilling a week to insure a funeral donation of from £20 to £30, but they may by their rules limit that so as to make it inoperative, or only operative in a few cases.
375. Would you register that as a Society if that sort of thing came within your knowledge? Well, I could not say what would be done unless I saw the rules of the Society. That document is only a prospectus, and might mean nothing; that in itself means nothing.
376. It has frequently, I presume, come under your notice that a number of subordinate Courts or individuals or Lodges connected with Societies secede from their districts? We have had a few cases, but very few; we have not had many of that character, but they come to us to amalgamate. 377.

377. Do you think that the stability of subordinate Courts would be more assured by their being identified with their districts? Yes.

378. Do you think it would be a good piece of legislation to make this compulsory in any new law? That would have the effect of preventing any new Lodge from being registered. I confess I do not see at this moment the necessity of this restriction.

379. President.] When this evidence is submitted to you, if anything suggests itself to you will you be kind enough to make a memorandum of it? Oh yes, certainly.

Mr. A. Oliver.
That 2 Dec., 1881.

MONDAY, 5 DECEMBER, 1881.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
PHILIP J. NEWLAND, Esq.,

JOHN SLADE, Esq.,
JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,

PHILIP RISBY HOLDSWORTH, Esq.

Mr. Edwin Lewis Scott affirmed and examined:—

380. President.] What position do you occupy, Mr. Scott? I am Clerk to the Parliamentary Draftsman and nominally Secretary to the Registrar of Friendly Societies.

381. Have you been appointed to that office? I have never; it fell to my lot to do the work without pay.

382. You get no salary under the Friendly Societies Act? No.

383. Can you give us any information in regard to the punctuality or compliance with the law in reference to the returns that the different Friendly Societies are bound under the law to make to the Registrar? Some of the Societies are very lax in making the returns; the Manchester Unity Oddfellows make the returns in pamphlet-form, and the other Societies on the sheets which are furnished to them by our office. All the Societies can have return forms on application. It was the custom that they should apply at the Government Printing Office for them, where they were charged sixpence for each form; Mr. Oliver deemed this too large a charge, and accordingly requisitioned for a number of forms for gratuitous distribution.

384. Since you commenced to supply the various Societies with forms have they been more punctual? They have; I have taken the trouble to communicate with the Grand Secretaries of the Orders requesting that they would attend to the requirements of the Act in that respect. The Grand United Order gives us a very large percentage of returns over what they used to do.

385. There are a large number of subordinate Lodges in connection with the Orders? Yes.

386. And each one makes a return direct to the Registrar? In some cases only; for instance, in the Grand United Order of Oddfellows the Grand Secretary brings me the returns himself, the Lodges sending them to him; and the Protestant Alliance the same.

387. From your experience in dealing with this matter do you think it would be better under any circumstances that these returns from the various subordinate Lodges should come through the Grand Lodge? I think so, and for this reason: many of the Secretaries are very illiterate men, the majority of them probably; and the Grand Secretary of an Order on receiving the returns would have an opportunity of checking them, putting them into shape, and if necessary sending them back before we get them and have any trouble with them.

388. In any alteration of the law do you think it would be a wise thing to enact that these subordinate Lodges should send in their returns to the Grand Lodge, and that the Grand Lodge should be made responsible to the Registrar? I never gave that matter a thought.

389. Would it not facilitate matters very much more if the Registrar had to deal only with the Grand Lodges? Certainly; oh, certainly; because the Grand Secretaries are, as a rule, more intelligent and better educated men. The Societies send in their returns very late, and it is not a fortnight ago that I received one of the returns for last year.

390. Now in these returns that are sent in I presume you have to look into the matters that are laid down? So far as I can, and the returns will admit of it. For instance, some Societies do not divide their funds into the different items set out in the return forms, and I am unable, in making up the big sheets of returns, to dissect these funds.

391. Yes, and in your opinion do you think it would be a good thing to have uniformity in reference to the mode of distribution of the funds? Certainly.

392. Do these Societies return the ages and occupations of persons who are members of the respective Lodges? No, they give no data of that sort. They give the number good on the books, the number expelled, the number of members who have died, the number of members' wives who have died, and information of that sort.

393. Then in the preparation of any return for the information of this Commission that we might ask you to prepare, you would not be able to give us the information I speak of; that is, the ages and occupations of the members, and the ages at which the persons died? No, it is not furnished to us.

394. Do you not think it would be wise to have provision made for information of that kind to be furnished? Certainly; it would assist any actuarial process of investigation.

395. For the purposes of an actuarial inquiry the information you now have at your command registered in your office would be of no assistance? It would be very insufficient.

396. The Registrar, I believe, has instructed you to prepare some returns; a return of the list of Lodges, with the places of meeting and the Secretaries' names? This I have done from the most recent documents, and the return which I hand in is as complete as I can make it. (See Appendix B.)

397. And I understand you have received no emolument whatever for the preparation of this return? None at all; it has all been done after office hours, in my own time.

398. A return has been laid before the Commission giving the averages for 1878? I prepared that.

399. I presume it is only approximate? It is only approximate, and needs explanation as to the item "management expense expenditure."

Mr.
E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.

Mr.
E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.

400. Yes; I notice, bracketed here from Grand United down to Miscellaneous, in fact, all but the Manchester Unity; the fact is, that from these returns you could not tell what particular expenditure belongs to each fund? No, because the return forms at that time had this item, "management expenses, including medical expenditure and medicines," and other things which we now think proper to dissect.

401. I understand that all the by-laws pass through your hands? They do, in fact all the rules.

402. Mr. Greville.] By-laws or rules? The by-laws. The Lodge is, as a rule, connected with some Order; it registers the rules of the Order, and, in addition to this, the by-laws for the ordinary management of the Lodge itself. Many of them do not register these by-laws.

403. Many of them you say? Yes, many of them, because some of them register their general laws and the by-laws together.

404. President.] I presume you simply register these rules and by-laws when submitted? I examine them to see that the requirements of the Act are fulfilled. There are several things that the Act requires to be done. It prescribes that the rules shall set forth— "(1.) The name of the Society and place of meeting for the business of the Society. (2.) The whole of the objects for which the Society is to be established the purposes for which the funds thereof shall be applicable the tables or scales of payment and the conditions under which any member may become entitled to any benefit assured thereby and the fines and forfeitures to be imposed on any member of such Society. (3.) The manner of making altering amending and rescinding rules. (4.) A provision for the appointment and removal of a general Committee of management of a Trustee or Trustees treasurer and other officers. (5.) A provision for the investment of the funds and for an annual or periodical audit of accounts. (6.) The manner in which disputes between the Society and any of its members or any person claiming by or through any member or under the rules shall be settled." It is also enacted that "the rules of every such Society shall provide that all moneys received or paid on account of each and every particular fund or benefit assured to the members thereof their husbands wives children fathers mothers brothers or sisters nephews or nieces or assigns for which a separate table of contributions payable shall have been adopted shall be entered in a separate account distinct from the moneys received and paid on account of any other benefit or fund and also that a contribution shall be made to defray the necessary expenses of management and a separate account shall be kept of such contributions and expenses." These provisions of the Act being attended to, I generally take no further notice.

405. Are these Friendly Societies increasing in number? They are.

406. How long have you been connected with the matter in a clerical way? Since the 1st of July, 1878.

407. Now, from your knowledge and experience of this matter, and bearing in mind the importance of these Societies, and the large amount of money involved in it, and the large interests involved generally, do you think it would be justifiable on the part of the Government to provide that there should be a Department formed to deal with this matter? The present staff is totally inadequate to the requirements, and I think a staff is necessary; there are many things that are wanted now that I cannot get for you or any one without occupying three times the usual office hours over it.

408. And what you have done for the Commission altogether you have done at night and in over-time? I have.

409. The other duties connected with your office in connection with the Parliamentary Draftsman occupy the whole of your time? They do; something has to stand back, and it is generally the Friendly Societies.

410. Have you noticed whether there is any uniformity in the rules in reference to the amount of dues demanded from members? There is; they run from 11d. to 1s. 3d. per week.

411. Do you know if they are calculated from any actuarial data? No; they seem to be calculated from the experience of the Societies formed previous to the one about to be registered; sometimes if I notice that the contributions are too low or the benefits too high I have drawn attention to it, and have written to the Secretaries, and have had them amended at our suggestion.

412. But the Registrar has no power to refuse registration on these grounds? No.

413. All you can do is to communicate with the Secretaries with a view of suggesting? That is all; and, in fact, the power the Registrar possesses to compel the making of returns is nullified by the want of machinery.

414. In your opinion would it be a wise thing to allow the Societies to settle all differences amongst themselves? Yes, as a preliminary step, but not as a final power. I have been of opinion that a sort of Board, composed of the Heads of the Societies and presided over by an official, should be the final Court, so as to keep all matters out of the Courts. I will give two reasons for keeping these disputes out of the Law Courts. The Magistrates have no knowledge of the wants of the Societies, and the District Court Judges will not learn anything. I have heard Judge Dowling say in a case that he had made up his mind to make no order.

415. And are the cases such that they would be better dealt with amongst the Societies themselves? They are, very much better.

416. Then you think there should be some known machinery to deal with this matter; that is, a final Court of Appeal? Yes, a final Court of Appeal. I would point out that the Societies have no right to spend money in legal expenses, but they do so, and spend large sums. This money is illegally expended.

417. Has any case come to your knowledge where special levies have been made? Many of the Societies provide for special levies to be made when the funds fall below a certain amount.

418. And sometimes these Societies dissolve and divide whatever funds they have in hand? Yes, with the Registrar's consent to the terms of dissolution.

419. Now, are these subordinate Lodges—are they in connection with a Grand Lodge? No, they are independent Societies, or have been so during my time, or have been subordinate Lodges of an Order which have been either expelled or suspended by the Grand Council as false to the Order. And in such cases, as a rule, they have joined other Orders, so that the dissolution has resulted as a rule in an amalgamation.

420. Have you any experience as to the expense of working these Lodges generally? No, I cannot say. I have never been able to get at it. I have every year the return ready but no report. I have the Grand United and Manchester Unity returns ready now, but the rest I have not been able to finish. In fact it would require some one to attend to the work the whole time; and it should be a statistical clerk, or one conversant with figures, which I am not.

421. But you know sufficient of figures to work out these averages? Yes, but I am slow.

422. Is there any suggestion you could give in reference to this matter touching this inquiry—I mean any special information that you could add as an addendum to your evidence? I could only suggest that in the appellate Board I speak of, the Registrar would be the best man as Chairman. I am fully of that opinion, because he would be independent; or in his absence it should be some one well acquainted with the Act, with a legal mind.

Mr.
E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.

423. But you are clearly of opinion that there ought to be a distinct Department to deal with these matters? Oh, certainly; though I have always found the Heads of the Orders very willing to assist me; I have never made a reasonable request to them that has not been complied with.

424. Have you ever heard it suggested that these respective Societies, or some of them, are not in a solvent state? No, not officially; I do not see how they could carry on. Members are only too willing to come up to the office with complaints if they find anything shaky about the distribution of the funds. I should like to suggest that no Order should have the power to suspend its benefits. Some Lodges seem to act, according to complaints, tyrannically with members in suspending sick pay. Although a man pays his contributions regularly his sick pay is suspended. Instead of this it would be better to make special levies as a safety-valve.

425. Has any member of an Order the power to recover their sick pay in the event of a Lodge suspending it? I know of no means except at common law, and as a rule he is too poor to go to law, especially as he is almost sure to lose. Of course a Lodge can always increase its contributions to meet demands.

426. You are acquainted with the present Act, are you not? Yes.

427. Do you know in any special or particular way where that Act is defective? Yes; it is defective in not defining what can be sued for in Court; presumably defective, because decisions are given against men who are in arrears for contributions. The Act does not state that contributions can be sued for, but Magistrates are continually giving decisions for the management of the Lodges against defaulting members and Lodges; and also for the Grand Lodge or district, which is an extreme measure in a Friendly Society.

428. Do you know anything about the working of the Societies in other Colonies or other Countries? I do not, except from reading the reports, which are very voluminous.

429. Could you say from your experience that the present Friendly Societies Act is defective in many particulars? Oh, in many particulars that I cannot recollect just now; something crops up every week that the Act is powerless to cope with.

430. Mr. Smith.] You consider, then, that the time has arrived when new legislation is necessary? I do.

431. You believe the interest and importance of the Friendly Societies in the Colony of New South Wales sufficient to justify the Government in establishing a Department for the purpose of administering any new piece of legislation? I do, as I believe the Friendly Societies abolish a great deal of pauperism.

432. You stated that this is the only return of a complete character since 1878 (Appendix)? Yes.

433. It only shows the number of existing Lodges? That is all.

434. Did I understand you to say that you were engaged in the work of preparing a detailed statement something like this, having reference to two Lodges or Orders? Oh, no; I was speaking of the large detailed statement which is made every year.

435. Is there any time fixed by which these returns should be sent in? They should be sent in by the end of March.

436. What has been the usual practice of these bodies in sending in returns? About the end of August.

437. Have you any idea how the delay has occurred? Through carelessness or neglect.

438. You have made complaints, I suppose—What has been the character of the replies you have received? Silence.

439. You have no means under the Act to enforce compliance? We have no such method; but it is provided that it shall be done under a penalty which we have no means of enforcing.

440. How long would it take to complete the returns for 1880 in the large detailed form you speak of; I mean to prepare them so as to be in the hands of the Commission? I am almost unable to cope with the totals myself.

441. But you suggested that it should be done by some officer from the Statistical Department? I do not know that I suggested it, but I should be happy to suggest it. I believe it should be done by an accountant.

442. I simply want to know the time it would take if you had the necessary clerical assistance? One man at it all the time could do it in a month if he were conversant with figures, but he would have to be near me for information as to the meaning sought to be conveyed by the Secretary of a certain Lodge or a certain Order. There are many Lodges working in the Colony which are not registered; and under the 6th section of the Act the Secretary is liable to a fine not exceeding £20 for every sum he receives.

443. Has it reached your knowledge officially or otherwise that a number of persons have formed themselves into a Society, have not registered the Society but have initiated candidates and taken contributions? No, it has not come to my knowledge, but through them sending in returns I imagine that Societies have been working without being registered. There has always been a difference of opinion whether it is necessary for a subordinate Lodge in connection with an Order to register its rules; but on appeal to the Registrar it has been decided that each individual Lodge was to be registered.

444. Have you supplied forms to the various Societies to fill in their returns? Yes, when they have applied for them.

445. Do they apply for them? As a rule they do.

446. But there are cases in which they do not use the forms supplied? Not now, though they used to do so.

447. Mr. Greville.] Not looking at the principle of the present Act but at the working of it, you consider its principal defect to be not making provision for proper returns? The great defect is that it does not place in the Registrar's hands the power to compel the making of returns; it imposes a fine, but does not say how it is to be recovered.

448. But are you aware that the Registrar has assigned a different cause? I am not.

449. Is there any specified month by which the returns are to be made? In the month of March.

450. When March has expired and the returns have not been received by you, do you send a circular by way of reminder to the various Societies? I do not.

451. Did you say that the Secretaries were largely illiterate men, and that you thought the defectiveness of the returns arose more from ignorance than from wilfulness? Yes, certainly that is my idea.

452. Do not you think, then, that it is a great pity reminders have not been sent? They would doubtless have been sent had there been a staff to do it, but it has been total inability on my part that has prevented me from doing it.

Mr.
E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.

453. Have forms been sent to the Societies unless asked for? No.
454. Do not you think the working of the present Act would have been very much more perfect if, prior to the 31st March in each year, a return form had been sent to all of these Societies requesting that they might be filled in and returned? Certainly.
455. And we should not have the same cause to complain of the insufficiency of the returns? No, nor of the small average returning.
456. When Societies have failed to send in their returns, has any circular been sent to them threatening them with the penalties of the Act? No.
457. Then they have sent them in or not according to their own pleasure? Yes. If I have found a Grand Secretary late, I have sent him a friendly reminder on several occasions.
458. Only to the large Societies? That is all.
459. You spoke just now of the suspension of sick pay—Do you think that power is ever exercised arbitrarily simply for the purpose of depriving a particular member of his sick pay? According to ex parte statements, yes.
460. Do you have many cases of that nature? Yes.
461. And do you believe this often takes place? I do not believe all these statements always; but the statements being made show the power of the Lodges to do it, and that it is open to a Lodge to do it. Some Societies have the power in their rules to do it; but I call attention to it now, and Mr. Oliver suggests that it should be expunged.
462. But in drawing the attention of the Societies to such a clause, or to any other clause except as to its legal bearing, do not both you and the Registrar exceed your actual duty? I believe so.
463. In other words, all you have to do is to look to the legal aspects? That is all—to see that the requirements of the Act are conformed to, and nothing more.
464. And do you therefore consider that great actuarial mistakes might occur in rules which are legally correct and properly passed by you? Yes, certainly.
465. Except for the friendly supervision of the Registrar where he thinks that a Society will not pay upon certain scales proposed? Yes; for instance, we have had Accident Societies proposing to give greater benefits on less contributions than other ordinary Societies.
466. Mr. Holdsworth.] Prior to your appointment, Mr. Oliver had no one to assist him? No one.
467. When you went there the papers were in a very confused state? Yes; there was simply a certain number of parcels.
468. You went as Clerk to the Parliamentary Draftsman, but was it not understood that if Mr. Oliver accepted the office of Registrar of Friendly Societies he was to have a clerk? I never heard that. I only know I never was paid for it, although three parts of my work has been for Friendly Societies.
469. You have found that in a number of cases the management expenses are mixed up with the expenses for doctor and medicine; that is, as I take it, certain Lodges have done this? Prior to 1878 all the Lodges did it.
470. Have you ever worked it out to see whether they did include all their expenses for doctor and medicine in these expenses? In the form sent to us it said "Management Expenses, including medicine and medical attendance," in one sum.
471. There was nothing separated? Not before 1878.
472. There was no return to show what they paid for doctors and medicine? No.
473. Then did it strike you that if in other Societies they paid for doctors and medicine at the same rate as in the Manchester Unity, they must have been worked for less than nothing? No; I do not know.
474. This return then is valueless—no guide whatever? It was valueless in 1878, and naturally would be so now.
475. Some of the Societies you say register the general rules of the Order, and then their by-laws? Yes.
476. Is it not compulsory that every Lodge or Division should register itself? Yes.
477. That they register their own Lodge rules? Yes, but some Orders register one pamphlet, including the general laws, district laws, and the Lodge laws.
478. Do not you think it would be a great advantage if all Orders had a code of rules so as to render them uniform through the various branches? I do.
479. And that these should be registered by the superior body? I do.
480. You think a general body should be appointed to finally settle disputes? Yes.
481. Do you know of cases lately where such a provision would have proved of service? Yes.
482. And in one of these cases you had to go to Newcastle? Yes, and the Judge gave no opinion on the case, suggesting that it should be referred to me.
483. You have heard of cases where Lodges have suspended sick pay? Yes.
484. Are you aware that provision is made in the larger Orders that where one Branch runs short it shall be assisted? Yes, in most of them.
485. Then is it only in the smaller Lodges that you find this suspension of sick pay? Yes.
486. How would you suggest that the difficulty should be met? By levies.
487. Societies you say have no right to spend their money in law costs? They have no right to spend money for anything more than the rules provide.
488. Then however great an injustice might be done, a Society could not defend itself from being robbed? Not under the present Act; but a Board would avoid unnecessary expenditure.
489. That is one of the chief defects of the law? Yes.
490. You were asked whether the Act was defective. Is it your opinion that the Act is so defective all through that it is not workable in any part? Oh, it is workable in many parts; the compulsory registration, for instance.
491. Which you say you cannot make them do? We cannot get in the returns.
492. Did not you tell us that there are a number of Lodges unregistered? Yes, I found yesterday that eight Loyal Orange Lodges had sent in returns, of which only four are registered.
493. Then is not the Act thoroughly unworkable so far as the Friendly Societies are concerned? It will bear a large amount of improvement.
494. Does it not grasp at too much and miss all? It misses everything.
495. Is it your opinion that there should be a plain distinct Act for the Friendly Societies? I think so; do

Mr.
E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.

- do not know anything of the working of Building Societies under this Act. I simply pass their rules on to Mr. Oliver and enter them in a book.
496. You think there should be a distinct Act for the Friendly Societies? Yes.
497. Are you of opinion that Lodges or Divisions should have the power to sue for arrears? No.
498. As a rule is there not a rule providing for the suspension of members who are in arrears? Yes, after a certain amount of default.
499. And suspended members sustain no benefits? None.
500. Am I to understand that there are sometimes very excellent members who fall into arrears? Yes. I understand suing for arrears to be the same as an Insurance Society suing for a lapsed policy.
501. I understand that the Manchester Unity registers in pamphlet form? No; makes returns in pamphlet form.
502. Does each individual Lodge send in a return? Not to us.
503. Does it send in a return which subsequently reaches you signed? Only in the printed form.
504. Then each Lodge does not send in a return? No, two or three Lodges which are a little obstinate send them in.
505. Then all you get is a printed form? Yes.
506. And this is sent in by the Grand Officers? Yes.
507. Are you aware that in all the Orders the Grand Officers have to receive returns in a more complete form than you do? I fancy they must, or they could not work the Societies.
508. Do you think it would be well if the superior bodies were to register themselves and their rules, and then the names of their subordinate Lodges, without the separate Lodges having to register? No, I would make each Lodge register as now.
509. Mr. Davies.] I understand from your evidence that you consider the present Act defective? I do.
510. Will you kindly describe in what respects? Well, in the first place there is no machinery given to the Registrar to enforce any of these provisions; there are no means of ascertaining where Lodges are working unregistered. I would suggest that a new Act should make provision for a reward to an informer the same as for evidence for an offence against the Licensing Act, so that any one discovering a Lodge working without registration should be enabled to prosecute and receive a moiety of the fine.
511. And do I understand that it is only in respect to the matter of registered returns that the Act is defective and requires amendment? I believe it should also insist upon an actuarial table being made, and that no Lodge should be allowed to adopt a lower table or to give a higher benefit than that contained in that table.
512. Not in any other respect? There is one slight defect respecting Building Societies; when a trustee is appointed in a Friendly Society he has to sign a document accepting the trust, but not in a Building Society.
513. We have nothing to do with that; I mean in the Act as referring to Friendly Societies; and I would ask you to what extent you believe the Act to be defective and how should it be amended so as to afford security to members? I would suggest an official investigation of the accounts of the various Societies.
514. How do you consider it defective? In the absence of machinery to work the provisions and enforce registration; in the non-existence of an official accountant, and in the absence of a staff to do the clerical part of the work required. I have not looked through the Act with a view of giving this evidence, because I expected only to be asked in reference to the working of the office.
515. But you have had some experience of its working? I have had all to do with it.
516. And I understand that you pass the by-laws? Yes.
517. And send them on to the Registrar? I submit them to him, pointing out anything that I think is opposed to the principle of the Act.
518. But did I not understand you to say that you passed the by-laws? I meant that I examined them.
519. Is it not the duty of the Registrar to examine them? Yes; I give them to him.
520. Is he not the only official known under the Act? Yes.
521. And he is responsible? Yes.
522. Have you any further suggestions to make to the Commission? None at present; though I would advocate that contributions should not be sued for. As the Act at present stands, it is interpreted that contributions may be sued for, and several such suits have been successfully maintained.
523. Then it is in your opinion only in these minor matters that the Act requires amending? So far as my lay mind enables me to read it.
524. But you do not see any other particular in which it ought to be amended? I cannot recollect any at present.
525. You stated that the returns were not furnished regularly? Not as a rule.
526. And that the Act was defective in not enforcing this punctuality? It prescribes a penalty, but gives no means of recovering that penalty from defaulters.
527. Can it not be recovered before two Justices? Yes; but the Registrar is powerless to do it on account of having to personally prosecute the defaulters. He could not, for instance, be expected to go to Wagga or Bathurst to prosecute.
528. But in Sydney there would be no difficulty in obtaining an enforcement of the provisions of the Act, and are there not many defaulters there? Oh yes; for in the Sons of Temperance we have only received ten returns, and there are more than ten Divisions in Sydney.
529. And you could not enforce the provisions of the Act? Yes, but not without inconvenience.
530. Then the Act would not be defective so far as Sydney is concerned? No.
531. It would simply be that the official Head does not take steps in the matter? He cannot; the Act gives him power, but time does not. If the Act gave him power to appoint a deputy to prosecute, it might be done.
532. What number of Societies have failed to furnish returns during the present year? I have given a return, which is rather incomplete now. For the first time since I have been in office I have been able to get out the number of registered Societies.
533. Can you tell me the number that have complied with the 45th section? I can by means of this return.
534. Do I understand that the return furnishes not only the number of members of every Society, but also the separate returns of every Order? No.
535. But does not the Act require that? It does require a return to be furnished.

- Mr. E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.
536. What Societies have failed? All have failed, to a certain extent.
537. All the Societies? Yes. This return gives approximately 365 Lodges in existence, of which 161 are defaulters.
538. What Societies do you say have conformed to the requirements of this section? None of them have, except the Loyal Orange; all of their three Lodges have sent in their returns.
539. The Sons of Temperance? They have sent in ten returns out of eighty-six Lodges.
540. Have the Manchester Unity sent in separate returns? No; they have been sent in in one return.
541. The Ancient Order of Foresters, have they complied with the section? No, they have not; there are six defaulters.
542. And the Royal Order? According to these returns there is only one defaulter this year.
543. The Druids? They have sixteen Lodges in default.
544. The Guilds? Of nineteen Lodges nine have sent in returns.
545. The Protestant Alliance? There are five Lodges which have not complied with the Act.
546. The Independent Order of Oddfellows? Out of sixteen Lodges none have made returns.
547. So that the return which has been furnished to the Commission will not give anything like a correct view of the working of the Societies? The return I have laid on the table to-day simply shows the number of Lodges, the place of meeting, and the name of the Secretary.
548. Did I understand you to say that you are preparing a tabulated return showing the working expenses, amount of funds available for sick benefits, and also funeral benefits? No, it shows the income, expenditure under various items, and the balance in hand.
549. Of all the Societies that have been registered? Yes.
550. When will that return be in the possession of the Chairman? It is not intended for the Commission; it is provided in the Act that it should be laid before Parliament, but it has hitherto never been done.
551. You said, I believe, that you were in favour of the contribution being uniform? Yes, if the benefits are uniform.
552. Now, is it not a fact that many Societies are much lower in their contributions than others? Oh, much lower.
553. And have you looked at the financial position of these as compared with the others? I have not.
554. Is there anything else you would like to suggest to the Commission in reference to the working of the Friendly Societies? I do not think of anything just now.
555. Mr. Abigail.] Can you tell me how many Lodges, Societies, or Branches have been supplied with the Registrar's printed form for 1880? I cannot tell you directly; but all who applied for them have got them.
556. And how do you propose that the people in the far country districts shall obtain them? I propose that they should be sent.
557. Has it not been the practice at any time during Mr. Oliver's term of office to supply them without application being made? Not during my time.
558. How many Lodges have sent in returns for 1880, in round numbers? 204 are shown to have done so by this return.
559. These have sent in returns? Yes, sir.
560. Have you examined these returns sufficiently closely to state what is the general condition of these various Lodges? No, I have not looked over them with that object in view.
561. Do any of those you have examined show a profit for 1880 in their receipts? Some of them have lost.
562. Is there much loss? No, not much.
563. That is the result up to the present? I have five or six deficits.
564. You do not know what the case is with others? No, not yet. When the expenditure is greater than the receipts during the year I call it a deficit, as I do not include the balance in hand at the beginning of the year.
565. Then is your work sufficiently advanced to lay the report before Parliament as provided in the Act? No.
566. Will no report be laid before Parliament then for the year 1880? No, not this year, at all events.
567. You stated that you thought some inducements should be held out to informers to inform against a Society that is working without registration? Yes, because there is otherwise no protection for the members of the Society.
568. Are you aware that clause 6 places a penalty of £20 on any person working or receiving any money without registration? I am, and I have pointed it out to several Lodges, and they have registered themselves.
569. Do not you think that that clause, if properly worked by the Registrar, would prevent these Societies carrying on their work? No; because he does not become cognisant of their existence until something crops up connected with them.
570. I see in the bottom line there are twenty-eight or more put in "presumably defunct"? Yes.
571. You have I presume come to that conclusion in consequence of not receiving returns? In consequence of not receiving anything since this Act came into force; there are Societies which were registered before 1839; we have the rules, and nothing but these original rules.
572. Are you aware that the 45th clause in part II of the Act makes it imperative on these Societies to send in every five years a return of the rate or amount of sickness and mortality? I know the Act provides for it.
573. Have they ever done that? No.
574. Has Mr. Oliver ever called the attention of the Government to that neglect? Not to my knowledge.
575. Do you think if a return of that kind had been sent out that it would have been of value? Of very great value as a return of sickness and mortality only; but all these returns when they come in should be placed under the correction and supervision of some one who understands figures.
576. Do you think if the provisions of this Act had been administered fairly, apart from the want of clerical assistance, would it not have been a great advantage—I mean these provisions for sending in returns with reference to carrying on without registration, and for sending in the amount of sickness and mortality? If these had been complied with it would have been of great value.
577. Mr. Newland.] Have not some of the large Societies furnished complete returns, or nearly so, for purposes of actuarial returns—I mean, so that we might get some data from them? I think so; you certainly could take the Manchester Unity returns, because they are complete.
578. Would you take the tables of the Manchester Unity to form sufficient data for actuarial purposes? For their own Society, certainly.

Mr.
E. L. Scott.
5 Dec., 1881.

579. Are there any other returns of the large Societies complete enough for that purpose? I think they all do their best, so far as the separation of the funds will allow; some Societies have a general fund, and expend from that general fund in different directions, so that you can never see how any particular fund stands; others have a general fund, into which a certain proportion of their subscriptions goes and out of which all funeral donations are paid.

580. And those who limit them, do they do that in accordance with the Act? I do not know; it is not in accordance with the forms of return we send out.

581. Do you not draw their attention to this? I do, but do not get any further information.

582. Does the Act give you any power to inflict a penalty on Societies which neglect to give you the returns in accordance with these forms? No.

583. I see according to clause 45 that Societies are bound to send in returns showing the amount of sickness or mortality? They do it always; they always show the deaths and number of the sick, and the period of the sickness, and the amount of sick pay.

584. Are you of opinion that the mode adopted by the Manchester Unity of sending in the returns in pamphlet form is best? It is best for me and for the office. I think the ruling body of the Orders should compile the returns and send them in for all the subordinate Lodges; but I would have these returns attested by the signatures of the Grand Officers, and a statutory declaration made that they were the returns as sent in by the Lodges.

585. Then the Registrar would never see the returns from the subordinate Lodges at all? The only value they are is that he may compile a tabulated and complete return of the whole of the Societies registered under the Act from them.

586. But he would only have the authority of two or three individuals for their correctness? But it would make the work more easy, more compact. As it is I have to go through every return to make one line in my large return.

587. You stated that you had heard of some Lodges breaking up, dissolving? Yes, they have dissolved with consent; there is provision in the Act that it may be done by five-sixths of the members present; they have to make a statutory declaration that all claims are settled.

588. You do not know of any reason why the Societies have been dissolved? I have never heard of any Society dissolving that had not funds in hand to divide.

589. You have no information of Societies breaking up for want of funds; the Grand Lodge taking the liabilities of their sick members? That has not come under my observation.

590. Lodges that have no head or governing body in Sydney, how would you act with them if you prosecuted them? The only way it could be done would be by the Registrar or an officer from his office attending the town and prosecuting; but I think that notice should be given to each Lodge, accompanied by a return form, a due time before the Lodge is considered a defaulter. I think the 30th of March is too late to send in returns for the previous year, for they could all be in by the end of January.

591. You say then that it would take you a month to tabulate them? Oh yes, or any person.

592. Then leaving the Act as it is, you could have the returns ready by the first week in May? Well, they could be laid before Parliament in June if some one had nothing else to do, and the returns were in from the Lodges in due time.

593. Mr. Slade.] Can you say how it happened that one Society on that printed return only appears in such a form that their funds are divided, that the actual working expenses are shown to be 18 per cent.? Because they did not return on the Registrar's return forms. If they had sent in their returns on the Registrar's return forms the medicines and other medical expenses would have been included with the management expenses; but they sent in a return in pamphlet form and they were there separated.

594. Then can you say why you did not send them back as a breach of the regulations? Because Mr. Oliver always accepted them.

595. Are you aware that is a breach of the 45th section? It is a breach of the strict letter of the Act.

596. Was that bracket to the other figures in the return when it was used in Parliament? No, it was put there when Mr. Oliver came down to the Commission on the first day.

597. Then you cannot tell the Commission why it was that these returns were not returned as informal? No, I cannot; I was not instructed to return them; indeed, I was glad to get them in that form.

598. Does not the fact that all the Societies but one gave in these returns according to the Act place them at an apparent disadvantage when compared with this one? It did in 1878, but would not now.

599. Does the Manchester Unity now send in their returns on forms prescribed by the Act? No.

600. Is it not a fact that there are in your office now a large amount of returns sent in properly by these Societies, which if published would have served very largely the purposes for which this Commission is instituted? Oh yes.

601. Then are we to understand that it is not the fault of the Societies, but that you have not the clerical means of furnishing the return? That is it; though one-half have not made returns—I mean of the registered Societies.

602. Did any of the Societies protest against or object to the form in which the returns were called for, and cause you to alter them? Yes; they caused the separation of medicines and medical attendance from the management expenses.

603. Then it is not the different Societies' faults that they appear in that Schedule in the form they are now? No, it is the fault of the forms issued.

604. Does the Commission understand that if the other Societies had made the same division of their funds as that of the Manchester Unity you would have accepted that? I presume so.

605. You always examine rules sent in to you? I do, and send them back until they are in conformity with the Act.

606. Has it ever been a rule of your office to accept them at once simply on account of the fact that they come from a certain quarter? No.

607. If such a statement has been made, it is not true? It is not true. If you bring in the Protestant Alliance rules I skim them to see that they are the same as those registered already in pamphlet form; but they are all examined.

608. You have stated to the Commission that you did not advise the recovery of contributions by law? I think it unjust, because it is punishing a man for relinquishing a benefit.

Mr. E.
Schofield.
9 Dec., 1881.

634. Who was your predecessor? Mr. G. T. Sutton.

635. I presume you are thoroughly acquainted with the working of the Order? I am acquainted with the working of the Order. It was my intention to ask you to allow me to make some explanation before my examination is proceeded with, which will probably throw some light on the position I occupy here to-day. I had formed a notion of my own that the gentlemen composing the Commission would have written to the various Societies asking them to nominate persons whom they thought should be examined before this Commission. Being under that apprehension, I had no idea whatever that I should be summoned upon such short notice. It was only on Wednesday evening last at 7 o'clock that I received notice to attend here to-day; consequently I am in no way prepared to make a statement in regard to the working of the Friendly Societies Act. In other respects, however, I am just as well prepared to answer questions upon two minutes' notice as upon twelve months' notice; but under the circumstances I am quite unprepared for offering any suggestion as to alterations or improvements in the Act or in its administration. I have had no opportunity whatever of putting any suggestions of that kind into shape, fully relying as I did upon my impression that the Commission would have written to the various Societies asking them to each nominate as witnesses such persons as they believed would be best capable of giving the required evidence. Although I have only been five or six months in my present position, I have been connected with and taken an active part in the working of the Manchester Unity Branch of the Order during the last twelve years. My predecessor Mr. Sutton died, and the Board, by a unanimous vote, requested me to take the Secretaryship pro tem. I am, therefore, only Secretary until the next annual meeting, when a permanent Secretary will be elected.

636. Then I understand from your statement that you have taken great interest in the Order during the past twelve years, and are thoroughly acquainted with its working? I believe I am. I believe there are other men connected with the Society better able to give a statement to this Commission than I am, therefore I relied in some measure upon the probability of the Commission requesting the Society to nominate a representative to be examined. At the same time I may mention that I give place to no man in my desire to have a full and searching inquiry into this matter. I have received a written notice to produce all books and papers, but I scarcely know what books or papers are meant.

637. Are you not, as Secretary pro tem., in possession of all the books in connection with this Society? I am in possession of the books connected with the Board-room, but not of all the books connected with the Society.

638. The whole ramifications of the Society are worked through you, are they not? Above the subordinate Lodges. Their ultimate results for the year have to come through me, so far as concerns the making of members, their financial position, or anything of that kind. So far as the internal working of the Lodges is concerned, I know nothing.

639. Can you furnish this Commission with a return showing the ages of persons when they joined the respective Lodges? No. I may be allowed to say this: that Mr. Oliver does not require, or at all events has never asked for, the ages, and they have never been furnished in the annual returns; but since I received notice on Wednesday evening I have endeavoured to take an average Lodge and strike an average result.

640. What I want to know from you is whether, as Secretary of the Manchester Unity, you have not got recorded or enrolled in your books the ages of the members of the Order when they were initiated into the Lodges, their occupations, and also the ages at death of those members who have died? There is not the slightest record in my office giving any information of that kind.

641. Do you mean to say you have no record at all of that kind? None whatever.

642. Is it not a fact that under your rules persons upon joining your Order have to make a declaration as to their ages or occupations? Yes.

643. Have you not got those declarations? No.

644. Have the District Lodges that information? Yes, I believe so.

645. Do they not forward returns embodying that information to you as the representative of the Grand Lodge? No.

646. Then you can give us no information as to the ages respectively of the members of the Manchester Unity, either in the Grand Lodge or the subordinate Lodges, and you have no record whatever of the ages of those members who have died? Not the slightest.

647. No information whatever? No information whatever on that point.

648. You have got a fixed scale of fees, have you not? Yes, for everything.

649. Upon what are those fees based? They are not based on any given principle or groundwork in any shape whatever. The fixed scale is decided upon by what is known as the Annual Movable Committee.

650. Then the Annual Movable Committee has independent power in fixing that scale of fees? Yes.

651. And the contributions? Each Lodge decides what contributions shall be paid, so long as the decision is not contrary to the general law.

652. What is the general law? Rule 109 of the "Amended Rules for the Government of the New South Wales Independent Order of Oddfellows in connection with the Manchester Unity, Oddfellows' Friendly Society, adopted at the Annual Movable Committee held on Wednesday and Thursday, March 31st and April 1st, 1880," states that "Every member shall pay his contributions, which shall not be less than 6d. per week, clear to the Sick and Funeral Funds of the Lodge to which he belongs." The money thus subscribed must not be touched for any other purpose than that stated in the rule just read.

653. As I understood from your answer that you have no information as to the ages of persons when they become members of the Order, and no information as to the ages at which members have died, or the general death rate of the Order, upon what principle are these contributions calculated? I could not answer that question.

654. Will you be kind enough to put in for the information of the Committee your rules and regulations in respect to this matter? Yes, here is our general law, the only law I have any authority over. (Amended Rules adopted at A. M. C., 1880, N.S.W. produced.)

655. What authority have you or the Grand Lodge over these district or local Lodges? We see that their laws are in conformity with the general laws—that is the power we have over them.

656. Have you no power to deal with them in reference to their local funds? No.

657. Supposing that one of those Lodges became as it were insolvent, in what position would the Grand Lodge be to that Lodge? I have never known a Lodge become insolvent, but, dealing with the same matter,

Mr. E.
Schofield.
9 Dec., 1881

I might refer to an instance which came under my notice since I have been in office. A Lodge known as the Narrandera had closed, but it was not for want of funds, as your question would lead one to suppose was the only cause of the closing of Lodges. They had an average of something over £12 per member. Their reason for closing was their inability to get sufficient number of members to work the Lodge. When they have got into a difficulty of that kind, it is their duty to throw the whole of their funds, books, &c., into their district, which will then grant them district clearances, giving them the same rights and privileges in the Unity as if they had drawn their clearances from one Lodge with the view of placing them in another under ordinary circumstances.

658. What responsibility has the Grand Lodge in respect to these subordinate Lodges, in the event of these subordinate Lodges not being able to meet their engagements? That question in some measure bears on the previous one, inasmuch as they are desired to keep together so long as they can get sufficient members, and in the event of their being unable to do that, or get sufficient funds, they can throw the whole responsibility upon the district. So long as they comply strictly with their own laws the district will take the responsibility.

659. Are not all these subordinate Lodges, as I may term them, represented at the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge? That will require some little explanation, inasmuch as at our annual meetings Lodges are not represented, but what are known as districts are represented. The Lodges nominate persons to the respective districts, each district makes its choice according to the provisions contained in our laws of those who are to represent that district. Consequently, at the annual meeting, districts and not Lodges are directly represented.

660. Will you define what a district is? A district is a body who make application to our annual meeting to be allowed to form themselves into a district. If their application is entertained, they and those who like to join them comprise that district, and they then make internal levies, which contributions cover everything. They then make levies on the Lodges in the district, with the view of making provision for claims for funerals and of widows and orphans. Those are the objects of a district. They have the power of levying what the Committee may decide is the amount that shall be claimed from the various Lodges per member for the Funeral and Widows' and Orphans' Funds.

661. A district, then, may comprise one or more Lodges? A great number of Lodges. There are, for instance, over fifty Lodges in the Sydney district.

662. Taking the Ryde Lodge, for instance, as a recently established Lodge, what position does it occupy in connection with the Grand Lodge—does the Grand Lodge incur any responsibility in respect of that Lodge, the payment of its fees, contributions, funeral expenses, and so on? The Grand Lodge never comes in direct dealing with any individual Lodge. All correspondence, or attempts to approach the Grand Lodge, must be through the district.

663. Do individual Lodges send any representatives at all to the Grand Lodge? No.

664. Are you quite positive about that? Quite positive.

665. But you say you have only had five or six months' experience in connection with the Grand Lodge? I have never said I have not had much experience. I have been five months acting as Secretary of the Grand Lodge; but I have had twelve years' experience of the working of the Society, and I say again, without any hesitation, that individual Lodges are in no way represented in the Grand Lodge. They must act through their districts, those districts being represented. As some slight illustration of there being no direct connection between the Grand Lodge and the subordinate Lodges, I may state that no officer of a subordinate Lodge is allowed to stand for election as an officer of the Grand Lodge, and the Corresponding Secretary must be a Past District Officer to stand his poll as an officer of the Order.

666. Well, as I understand, you cannot give us any information or prepare any return showing the ages at which persons have been initiated into your Order, the ages of those members who have died, and the ages of those persons who are now in the Order—you have no record of that kind? Not the slightest; it does not come within the scope of my duties at all.

667. If a person dies in connection with the Order, do you not want some certificate in reference to his age at death, or some notification of that kind? No.

668. Is the money from the Society's funds paid to his widow without any inquiry or examination whatever? No; on the contrary, a most searching inquiry is made.

669. What does that inquiry consist of? The inquiry is out of my official cognizance altogether.

670. And you cannot furnish a return giving any information as to the ages of members of the Order under the direction of the Grand Lodge of which you are an officer? We have no record of their ages either at the time of the admission or the death of members.

671. Then upon what basis can you form this funeral fund? I have nothing to do with the funeral fund; the district officers decide that.

672. Upon no data whatever? I could not say, not being a district officer.

673. Can you tell me at all upon what data these fees are fixed? I could not give any data whatever, beyond this fact, that a majority of the District Committees decide that a certain amount shall be paid in certain cases.

674. Are there not certain donations in connection with the initiation of members paid to the respective Lodges in accordance with the ages of the persons initiated? Yes.

675. I presume they are calculated upon some basis—for instance, a person of twenty-one would have to pay less than a person of forty? In regard to initiation they do. There is a sliding scale of initiation, but we have no sliding scale of contributions in this Colony.

676. Then how is this sliding scale of initiation fees calculated? As far as my own knowledge goes there is no basis of calculation. The matter is one of opinion as to what they think they shall charge.

677. Do you mean a matter of opinion with the Grand Lodge or the subordinate Lodges? The Grand Lodge lays down the minimum scale of charges for initiation, no Lodge being allowed to take less than that amount. They may charge twenty times as much, but in no case can they charge a penny less.

678. Will you tell me this, then: that if I were an Oddfellow, belonging to your fraternity, and I died, you would pay the funeral donation and expenses without knowing my age? No, I do not say that. There are records kept, but what I say is that I have not possession of those records.

679. Who keeps those records? The Provincial Corresponding Secretary of each district. I am Corresponding Secretary for all the districts. Each of such District Officers has a number of Lodges within his jurisdiction, and the whole of the Districts are within our jurisdiction.

680. Is it within your knowledge as Grand Lodge Secretary that Lodges have lent money from one fund to another?

Mr. E.
Schofield.

9 Dec., 1881.

another? As a matter of fact I cannot say it is, but as a matter of general remark I have heard it stated so.

681. You have told us already that you have not given this matter sufficient consideration to enable you to afford the Commission any information as to the direction in which any amendment of the law might be made? Yes.

682. Will you then put in for the information of the Commission all the documents you are able to produce relative to the particular Order which you represent—such documents, for instance, as the rules, by-laws, regulations, and such original documents as may be available and likely to prove of any service to the Commission? Yes. These rules which I have already produced are the only rules which you can have from me. I have not brought my books, simply because those books are of such a character that they could not possibly give the Commission any information. I make such levies as may be decided upon by the Annual Movable Committee, and my books are merely rough day-books giving detailed information in reference to matters of that kind, but no information in reference to the principles, financial or otherwise, upon which the Order is worked. So far as the internal working of the Society is concerned, these books will throw no light whatever upon the matter. The Annual Reports are, I think, the only documents giving information of that general character. I produce a printed copy of the "Report and Proceedings of the Grand Annual Movable Committee of the New South Wales Independent Order of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity Friendly Society, held at the Oddfellows' Hall, Albury, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 20th and 21st, 1881." (Report produced.)

683. Your annual returns embody the returns of the subordinate Lodges which you supply to the Registrar General? Yes.

684. Do you ever inquire into the stability or non-stability of these subordinate Lodges when they send in their returns—in other words, do you ever have those returns verified? The Auditors go over them. The subordinate Lodges very often send in their returns in a very incorrect manner, inasmuch as they often mix up the returns of the money paid on medical accounts with the money paid on management accounts. Dealing with that very question I made a few remarks at the A. M. C. at Albury. On page 7 of the report which I have just put in, in the course of the Grand Master's address, the following remarks appear:—"In referring to our disbursements during the year we have paid £4,541 19s. 11½d. to the management funds, and in reference to this item I may say it frequently occurs that returns are in with the amounts that have been paid for medical comforts entered under the head of management. Nothing can be more erroneous or misleading, as medical advice and medicine are a portion of our benefits and not management."

685. Can you tell the Commission what amount of money you have to the credit of the Manchester Unity? According to our last returns, as printed in the report I have just put in, under the head of "Summary of Lodge and District Funds," appears the statement that the "gross value of Lodge and District Funds" amounted to £76,658 9s. 7½d. That of course refers to this Colony only.

686. But are the ramifications of the Society connected with any other Country or Colony? So far as the internal interests of the Society in this Colony are concerned we are independent of outside control; but we possess the rights and privileges of throwing clearances into other Branches of the Unity in other Countries, and in that way we are connected in every sense with the Branches of the Unity elsewhere. We have, however, no financial connection whatever, being perfectly free to regulate our own expenditure and manage the Institution as we think best. Fraternally, however, we are in every way connected with the members of the same Order in other Countries.

687. To return to the subject in hand: can you tell me, as against this money which you have credited the Society in this Colony with, what are your liabilities in reference to claims upon the sick funds, and, bearing in mind what the death rate is, what are your probable liabilities? As I stated before, each Lodge makes its own arrangements in regard to contributions, and in like manner they make their own arrangements in regard to sick pay; but the average in regard to the latter benefits would be a payment during the first six months of the member's illness of one guinea per week; 15s. per week during the second six months. In many cases, of course, these rates of payment vary more or less. They then call out the Committee and take the matter into consideration, and if they find that the sickness is likely to be permanent they endeavour to make some mutual arrangement under which they allow the sick member so much per week, and perhaps permit him to follow some light occupation, if he is able, while he is receiving this pay.

688. My question dealt with a larger question than you are dealing with. You have a certain amount of money to your credit, and in reference to this income to the credit of the subordinate Lodges I wish you to give the Commission some information as to the probable liability that would be cast upon the Grand Lodge according to the death rate and rate of sick pay in connection with the subordinate Lodges? I have already endeavoured to point that out. I can go through the whole of the accounts and see what our actual liabilities are; but that would be a work of considerable time. I have already explained what would be the average liabilities in connection with the Lodges.

689. What I want to get at is this—whether you would be likely to be able to meet your engagements if an emergency should arise and exceptionally heavy claims be made upon your funds? I can only say that so far as concerns the liabilities in connection with sick payments, the statement I have already made is a fair average statement. After that we come to the funeral liabilities.

690. What was the total expenditure for the year you have just referred to? £25,555 19s. 5½d.*

691. What was the income for that year? The total income was £39,207 16s. 3d., as set forth in the "Summary of Income" in the "Report and proceedings of the A. M. C." for 1881.

692. Mr. Smith.] You are Corresponding Secretary in connection with the various districts of the Manchester Unity Order in New South Wales, are you not? Yes.

693. You are constantly in communication with these various districts which are connected with the Sydney district? Yes, with the various districts in connection with the Grand Lodge.

694. It is, then, I understand, simply your business to conduct the correspondence between the Grand Lodge and those various districts? Yes.

695. You have nothing whatever to do with financial matters in connection with the Manchester Unity? Only so far as receiving the financial returns.

696.

* NOTE.—From this total is omitted the item "District Fund Levy, £2,184 5s. 5d." In the "Summary of Expenditure," in the report of the A.M.C. for 1881, the "Total Expenditure" is given as £27,736 14s. 8d.

- Mr. E. Schofield.
9 Dec., 1881.
696. Those financial returns are supplied to you from those districts that you referred to? Yes, having first been supplied to the districts by the various Lodges.
697. How many districts are there in connection with your Order in this Colony? Nine.
698. Those districts constitute at various periods a sort of Grand Council, which takes into consideration all matters relating to the Order in this Colony? Yes.
699. Those Councils are known as Grand Annual Movable Committees? Yes.
700. Are they paid for the services they render at such times as they meet? Yes.
701. From what source do they receive such payments? From the Management Fund.
702. That is, that each district will levy upon its subordinate Lodges a certain fee in order to meet the expenditure in connection with the Movable Councils? Yes.
703. Is it a special levy? No. Special levies are made for the District Funeral Fund and the District Management Fund, and from the latter are paid all necessary expenses of the District and Unity levies made by the A. M. C.
704. Then it is a fact that a special levy is made upon the members of the subordinate Lodges for defraying the expenditure in connection with the Annual Movable Committees? No, it is not a fact.
705. Then how is the money supplied? As I said before, from the District or Management Fund.
706. What is that fund? It is not a special fund for this purpose, but for general management purposes. This levy is not only for meeting charges in connection with the Annual Movable Committee, but also for other matters, such as postage stamps, stationery, &c.
707. From your position as Grand Secretary, are you in a position to give any information as to the internal working of the Order generally? Yes, if you mention any particular portion of the working of the Order.
708. Can you supply the Commission with the number of persons enrolled as members of your Order? Yes, up to last December.
709. Can you supply a statement of their average ages? I have already answered that question.
710. There is a Secretary, also, in connection with each of the districts? Yes.
711. Mr. Abigail.] I understand that your portion of the Order of Oddfellows is governed by a Committee composed of deputies appointed by districts as provided in the general laws, and that the Committee of Management consists of a Board of Directors and the officers of the Order, called the Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Corresponding Secretary? Yes.
712. You are now acting as Corresponding Secretary? Yes.
713. You deal with business only coming through your districts? Yes.
714. How are those officers of your portion of the Society elected? They are elected by a majority at the annual meeting of the Movable Committee.
715. Any applications for districts have to be made to your portion of the Society? Yes.
716. How often do your Board of Directors meet? I could not do better than refer you to the law on that point. As a matter of fact, it is optional how often they meet; but they must not meet less than twice a year; they may meet as much oftener as they think fit.
717. Do the Directors receive payment for their services? Yes.
718. How much? The officers of the Order and Directors are allowed their travelling expenses, on the following scale:—Sydney, 2s. 6d.; Parramatta, 5s.; Newcastle, 35s.; Hunter River, 40s.; Goulburn and Bathurst, 60s.; Braidwood, 100s.; Riverina, 100s.; and Tamworth, 100s.
719. How are the costs of the A. M. C.'s paid? They are paid from the District Fund of each respective district.
720. You have, I suppose, a notion of what is the percentage of cost thus borne by each district? Yes; I have here a statement which I have prepared showing the cost of these A. M. C.'s. This printed statement shows the cost of the A. M. C.'s from 1875 to 1881, the number of members of the Order, the number of deputies, and the average cost per member in each of those years, together with a supplementary statement, showing the cost of A. M. C.'s from 1875 to 1881, both years inclusive, for attendance of officers of the Order, and Auditors, and testimonial and charitable costs, &c. (Document produced.)
721. I find in that statement that the average cost per member for the A. M. C. held at West Maitland was 3½d.—was that correct? Yes.
722. Referring to the Sydney District, what was the average cost per member for the A. M. C. held at Parramatta in 1876, and the percentage for the Sydney district? The average cost per member was 1½d. The percentage I could not state. I may be permitted to add that I have been requested to hand this document in, so that the members of the Commission may have the full information before them.
723. Mr. Holdsworth.] May I ask what is this document—has it been supplied to other members of the Commission as well as Mr. Abigail? I have just handed in the document for the information of the Commission.
724. Mr. Abiding.] Is this an official document, or is it a document which you have merely prepared yourself for the information of the members of the Order? Strictly speaking, it is not an official document.
725. Mr. Abigail.] Have you ever held any other position in connection with the Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows? Yes, I have held every position in connection with the Society. I was a Lodge Officer for seven years, a District Officer for two years, Deputy Grand Master for a year, and Grand Master for another year.
726. Have you any knowledge of the nature of the annual returns sent up by the various Lodges from year to year? Yes.
727. Are they always sent in correctly? Very frequently they are incorrect.
728. In what way are they incorrect? The management expenses and the expenses for medical benefits are jumbled up together in many of the returns that are furnished.
729. Do your Lodges generally send in the returns as required? In some instances they have not done so.
730. Do you inflict a penalty in such cases of neglect? We generally fine the neglectful Secretary and the Noble Grand a guinea each, and, as a rule, that has the desired effect.
731. Under what authority do you inflict that penalty? We take our power from our own general laws, which are certified to by the Registrar.
732. Has the Registrar ever taken any action in cases of neglect, such as that mentioned by you? Not that I am aware of.

Mr. E.
Schofield.
9 Dec., 1891.

733. So far as your knowledge goes, the Registrar makes no distinction between the Lodges that comply with the Act and those who do not? No, he treats them all alike, so far as I know.

734. Do you attach any importance to those returns? I attach great importance to them, so far as they are useful in showing the increase in the number of members, and information of that kind; but I do not attach any importance to them as showing the financial position of the Society, for this reason: There may be a Lodge with 400 members, averaging forty years of age, and with funds to the value of £4,000, and there may be another Lodge with the same number of members averaging twenty years of age, and with funds amounting only to £2,000; yet it is just possible that the Lodge with only £2,000 may be in a better position than the other, double that amount of funds, because in that case youth means capital.

735. What is your opinion as to the powers or operations of the Friendly Societies Act—does it answer all the purposes for which it was intended? I have already answered that it does not in some respects, but I am not prepared on the spur of the moment to fully state the exact particulars in which I think it is defective.

736. Is there any large amount of your funds expended in regalia? A very small amount indeed.

737. Is any large amount of the funds contributed for sick benefits expended in regalia? None whatever; the expenditure in that respect does not amount to an average of 1d. per member per annum, and is paid from the Management Fund.

738. Can you give any idea of the amount of sickness in the Lodges, the number of members sick, and the rate of mortality? I can do so; that is one of the provisions of the returns. I will draw up a statement and append it to my evidence.

739. Will you also add the data, if there be any, as to the rate of mortality in the various districts of the Colony? I will.

740. Do you find any difference in the rate of mortality in the mining districts as compared with other or agricultural districts? The way that our districts are arranged we have no geographical boundaries, therefore nearly the whole of the districts comprise both agricultural and mining populations. Speaking from memory, I may say of the Newcastle district—which is clearly a mining district—I may say that there the rate of sickness is greater than in the agricultural districts. However I will endeavour to give that information more definitely in the appendix to my evidence.

741. Do the members of the Order pay according to a sliding scale of contributions? Not in New South Wales.

742. Does each Lodge have the right to fix the scale of contributions? Yes, so long as the rate is not less than 6d. per week contribution to the Sick and Funeral Fund.

743. Can you give us the highest and lowest contributions? The lowest amount paid is 1s., and the highest is 1s. 7½d. per week.

744. What are the benefits as against those contributions—are the benefits uniform? In like manner the Lodges regulate the benefits they confer in return for the various contributions. In the Lodge in which the rate-charge is 1s. 7½d. the sick pay is 20s. per week, besides the funeral benefits; but I may add that the 1s. 7½d. is an exceptionally high charge.

745. Does the 1s. Lodge give the same benefits? Yes.

746. In funeral as well as sick benefits? Well, the funeral benefit in the 1s. 7½d. Lodge is actually less than the funeral benefit in the 1s. Lodge.

747. Is there any general fund in the hands of the Districts or the Grand Master or Board of District which, in the event of any Lodge failing to meet its engagements, could be come upon for sick pay and other benefits? Any Lodge being unable to meet its liabilities has only to comply with the rules under which it exists, and the members would be taken under the wing of the district by way of clearance, just in the same way as if the members obtained their clearances from that Lodge and threw them into another Lodge.

748. Suppose a man was an aged man, and the other Lodges refused to accept his clearance, as they have the power to do when a man is over 40 years of age, what would become of that member? He could still remain on the district or become a Unity member.

749. Would that in any way interfere with his receiving his benefits? Not in the slightest degree, so long as he complied with the laws.

750. How are the contributions to the Widows' and Orphans' Fund regulated? They are regulated by the members of the District Committee. In some districts they have a fixed sum for the Widows' and Orphans' Fund; in other places they have a fluctuating levy.

751. Can you state what is the amount of funds now to the credit of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund? Up to last December it was £11,863 7s. 0½d.

752. And what was the amount of the Funeral Fund? On the same date the amount was £8,044 2s. 6½d. The combined capital of the District Management Funds is £834 15s. 7d. The levies made for that fund are simply just enough to pay working expenses; there is no desire to accumulate capital in connection with that fund.

753. What is the liability against the Widows' and Orphans' Fund? Each district manages its own affairs as to its liabilities. In several districts the liabilities on the death of a member are £20, with a sliding scale of from £10 to £30 from the Widows' and Orphans' Fund. Some districts, on the death of a member's wife, pay £15.

754. President.] I suppose those rules which you have put in speak for themselves without any necessity for lengthy explanations? Yes.

755. And the reports and statements as to the working of the Order are complete in themselves, and can be examined and understood by the members of the Commission? Yes; but I must again say, in reference to that statement of my own which I put in, showing the cost of the A.M.C.'s, that it is in no way official, and is on my own authority.

756. Mr. Greville.] When you said you could not give the ages of the members of your Order, did you wish it to be understood that there was no such record, or that in your capacity as Grand Lodge Corresponding Secretary you could not get it? I meant that in my present official capacity I could not get it.

757. Is there a faithful record of that character kept? Yes; we have a record, and the compilers of it are liable to be expelled if it is not true.

758. Is the record of the ages of the members made up by the individual Lodges? Yes; the ages are taken at the initiation of members. Each member then signs a declaration to the effect that he resigns all benefits if it is proved to be false. Even if it is proved after the death of a member that his declaration has been false the benefits are forfeited.

Mr. E.
Schofield.
9 Dec., 1881.

759. Does each individual Lodge fix its own rates of various contributions, independently of any table laid down by the Order? Yes, each Lodge can decide whether the contribution shall be 1s. or 2s. per week.
760. Or 1d.? No; they must pay not less than 6d. per week, but as much more as each Lodge deems necessary.
761. Then I understand your answer to be that the fixing of the rate of contributions is independent of every rule except that which requires the rate to be not less than 6d. per week? Yes.
762. Do any of these Societies make special levies for deficiencies? Contributions are enforced for everything in our Society.
763. Have you known any case in which the contributions did not enable a Society to meet the demands made upon it? I have no information of any case of that kind. Speaking from memory, I cannot say I have known such a case. The only case which has come within my own knowledge of a Lodge failing to exist was the one I have mentioned, and that Lodge dissolved with funds averaging £12 per member.
764. Have you ever heard of any Society that could not meet its obligations? No.
765. How long has your Order been in existence in this Colony? Forty-two years next March.
766. And the experience of the Lodges up to the present time has been that the contributions levied have been sufficient to meet all demands? So far as my knowledge goes, that is the case. You will observe that the very fact I just pointed out that some Lodges levy a heavier contribution than others indicates that they endeavour to meet their liabilities by increased contributions.
767. Then you have known cases in which Lodges have found it necessary to increase the contributions of their members in order to be prepared to meet all liabilities? Yes.
768. Have there been any returns, either in the Grand Lodge or the various districts, by which the death rate of the members could be ascertained? Yes.
769. Has any actual calculation been made to show whether the accumulated funds to which you were referring just now were sufficient to meet the contingent death rate in the future? None whatever in this Colony.
770. Have you ever made a calculation yourself? No, because I have had no data to work upon.
771. The data I meant was this: given a certain number of members of a Society of certain ages, and given a certain accumulated fund, will that fund be sufficient to meet what may be the death rate for the next five years? I could give you some information on that point, but I should require time to prepare it. So far as this Colony is concerned, there has been no actual statement of that kind prepared. From our own experience as a Society in other parts of the world I could show what they should have.
772. Has the Grand Lodge ever called in an actuary to see whether the accumulated surplus of previous years was sufficient to meet probable contingencies? Not in this Colony.
773. Has it been done in England? Yes.
774. What was the result there? The result there was that very few Societies were found to be in a solvent condition.
775. Did it not induce the Legislature there to step in and compel the adoption of a different financial system? Speaking of my own Society, we made a voluntary effort to meet the difficulty, and we succeeded.
776. Do you not think, as a matter of prudence, that a similar step ought to be taken here? Certainly I do.
777. I suppose you know the working of other Orders besides your own? I know something about them.
778. Do you think sufficient data is obtained by the head Lodges to enable an actuary to make such a calculation as that to which we have been referring? No; there are not sufficient data for an actuary at present.
779. Then for national purposes these returns are practically useless? So far as they might be depended upon for finding out whether the Society to which they related was in a solvent condition or otherwise they are perfectly useless. As I endeavoured to show by the illustration of the two Lodges, one may have double the funds per member than the other has, and yet the Lodge with the smaller amount of funds may be in a sounder financial condition.
780. If the Lodges of any district fail to make their returns, does the District Lodge call upon them to furnish the required returns? The Secretary of the district writes to them, calling their attention to the neglect, and if they still fail to send in the returns I fine them two guineas.
781. Do you, as a matter of fact, inflict that penalty? Yes; my predecessor has inflicted it, and I will do so.
782. Do you find that sufficient? Yes; a Lodge once fined in that way remembers the lesson in the future.
783. If the Registrar of Friendly Societies had taken proceedings against Societies not furnishing their returns, do you not think the returns in his hands would have been much more perfect than they are? I do not quite understand the question.
784. Do you know if there are penalties that can be inflicted for neglect in furnishing returns? Yes.
785. Have they ever been enforced to your knowledge? No.
786. Could you suggest an improvement upon the form of the return which is now sought for by the Registrar? I think I can suggest an improvement.
787. What is that improvement? Without entering too deeply into details, I should say there should be a return of the ages of members, because that is the real groundwork of the solvency or otherwise of a Society. No return of the ages is now made, nor does the Registrar demand it. I would also have the trades specified. A man's occupation has something to do with a calculation of the liabilities of the Society of which he is a member.
788. How does the Grand Lodge invest its funds? The Grand Lodge has very little funds to invest; only sufficient levies are made to keep the work of the Lodge going.
789. How are the district funds invested? They are invested under the direction of trustees. I happen to be a trustee of £6,000 of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund. We lend the money for good interest upon indisputable security, such as freehold property.
790. Is it left to the trustees to invest these funds as they like? We have to exercise our judgment.
791. President.] Do you ever invest any of this money in public securities? I have no knowledge of any such investment having been made. So far as the funds for which I am a trustee are concerned, they have never been invested in public securities.
792. You have invested upon security of real property only? Upon real property only.

Mr. E.
Schofield.
9 Dec., 1881.

793. Mr. Greville.] You are speaking now only of the district funds? The Lodge trustees are guided by the majority of the Lodge as to the particular mode in which they shall invest their funds.

794. How are the district trustees guided? The district trustees are placed in control of the funds to do the best they can with those funds. So far as our own district is concerned, we have to exercise our judgment in the matter without authority from any person.

795. Do I understand that you and your co-trustees have laid it down as a rule only to lend upon real property? Yes. I might here be allowed to make what I conceive to be a very valuable suggestion, and one that I think is surrounded by matters of considerable importance in connection with the Friendly Societies Act and the lending of moneys. The 32nd section of the Friendly Societies Act gives Friendly Societies all the privileges and powers of a Building Society, and it is no uncommon thing for Lodges to exercise all the functions of Building Societies in regard to the erection of halls. It is a matter upon which I feel very strongly. A Royal Commission in Victoria made a special recommendation on this point. The facts are these: the Commission in Victoria decided that no sum of money should be lent for the purpose of building halls only so much as they have over and above £10 per member. My experience so far has been that the investment of money in these halls has been a good investment, and has turned out satisfactory in every way and shape; but there is no disguising the fact that these investments are surrounded with liabilities that in no way belong to Friendly Societies.

796. Do you know of any instance in which the trustees have invested the funds in any way contrary to the manner laid down in the Act? I know of no such instance whatever.

797. With respect to accumulated funds, your accumulated funds are merely the accumulated surplus of previous years? Yes.

798. How is that invested? That is the portion of the funds which they do invest.

799. Are the contributions to the Management Fund kept separately from the Sick Funds and the Widows and Orphans' Funds? Yes.

800. By each Lodge? Yes.

801. And by each district? Yes.

802. Then in this Order, provided the accounts are kept faithfully, it would be impossible to touch either the Widows and Orphans' Fund or the Sick Fund for expenses of management without it being generally known? It would be a clear violation of the general law.

803. In a Society such as this, if the accounts are kept properly, there can be no jumbling of the Management and Sick Funds? No. There is no jumbling so far as I know except in the making of these returns. Some Secretaries look upon the amounts which they have paid for medical officers as a portion of the management. The contributions to the Sick and Funeral Funds are kept separate.

804. Then how are they mixed up? Well, money that has been paid for medical fees and medicines has in many cases been jumbled up with the actual amounts paid for expenses of management.

805. A very unfavourable impression has been created upon the public mind by the publicity given to a return showing the very large expenditure in connection with management; do you know the return to which I refer? Yes, it has been explained that that was merely an error in making out the accounts. The returns from many of the country Lodges are often very imperfect.

806. Was that merely an error, or were the two funds really mixed up? We keep the two funds clear and distinct; but in connection with management the medical fees and cost of medicines have been paid out of the Management Fund.

807. Then how is that keeping the payment for medicines and medical attendance separate from the management? I never said anything of the kind.

808. Do you think the payments for medical men should be charged to the Management Fund? I think those payments should have some separate head, the same as the Funeral Fund.

809. I understood you to say just now that they were kept separate? I said nothing of the kind.

810. Your answers hitherto have led me to believe that the expenditure in connection with the Management Fund was for stationery, &c., leading me to the conclusion that the Management Fund was applied wholly and solely for management purposes? When I made the statement you are alluding to I was answering a question as to the fund out of which were paid the expenses of the A.M.C.

811. Then it is not a fact that the Management Fund is applied solely to the management of the Society? We divide our contributions under two stated heads. Out of those contributions the sum of not less than 6d. per week per member has to be paid to the Sick and Funeral Fund, and the rest of the contributions goes under the head of Management.

812. Then all payments come out of the Management Fund with the exception of those for the Sick and Funeral Fund? Yes, all.

813. Would you be willing to give the Commission the benefit of your experience by appending to your evidence suggestions as to the manner in which the Friendly Societies Act might be improved? Yes, I would do so willingly.

814. Mr. Holdsworth.] You are what is known as Corresponding Secretary, are you not? Yes.

815. It is the district Lodge that manages the whole of the affairs of the district, and that Lodge has communication with the subordinate Lodges? Yes.

816. The subordinate Lodges have communication with the districts in all matters? Yes.

817. You were asked just now about the ages of members—every Lodge has a record of the age of each member when he entered the Lodge? Yes.

818. Then if the particular age of a member was recorded when he entered a Lodge, and he died while a member, the mere addition of the number of years he was a member would give his age at the time of death? Certainly.

819. Then how could you say that you had no record of the ages at which members died? I never said anything of the kind. I said that I individually, in my official capacity, had no record whatever, nor have I.

820. But the subordinate Lodges have? Yes.

821. And the subordinate Lodges have got a record of the amount of sickness? I have got a record of the amount of sickness.

822. I understand then that each of the Lodges can fix its own rate of contribution, provided they lay aside not less than 6d. per week for the Sick and Funeral Fund? Yes.

823. And I understand that your statistics show the amount of sickness you have? Yes.

Mr. E.
Schofield.
9 Dec., 1881.

824. If a case should arise in which a Lodge was not able to meet its engagements, the members of that Lodge could be thrown upon the district, could they not? Yes.
825. No member could then suffer through the default of his Lodge? No, so long as the Lodge complied with the rules of the Order.
826. You have had great experience in connection with the Order? I have had twelve years' experience.
827. Your Society has had an experience extending over many years both in this Colony and in the Mother Country? Yes.
828. Are not the rates which are charged supposed to be formed on the experience which your Society has had of the sick and death rates? Yes.
829. Do you base your experience on your returns? In some measure. We have not been having returns until within the last few years.
830. Those returns are duly audited, I presume? Yes.
831. And we may trust them implicitly? Yes, I should think so.
832. And what about your liabilities? I have said already that each district had its own liabilities.
833. Those liabilities have never been calculated? Not so far as this Colony is concerned.
834. The amount of expenditure for each year is given under each year? Yes.
835. Would not the difference between the expenditure and income give the profits? It might in one way.
836. Are you not justified in claiming it as profit when year after year you have a surplus? I do not know.
837. Have you known of any of the large Societies that have broken down? No.
838. Do you not think it fair to assume that the rates of contribution are sufficient when a Society goes on safely from year to year? That is a fair assumption, in the absence of any direct evidence to the contrary.
839. In your Society you have acted upon the principle of the sliding scale? Yes.
840. In many of the Lodges? Yes.
841. In regard to contributions? No.
842. Then in reference to contributions you have a uniform rate in the Lodges? Yes.
843. That is different from the case in England? Yes.
844. Have they the sliding scale generally? Yes.
845. Can you tell me when that system was introduced? I think it was after the Friendly Societies Commission in 1874.
846. I understand you to refer to the Manchester Unity having taken means for overcoming certain difficulties? Yes, I did.
847. Was the sliding scale the means they adopted for effecting the purpose they had in view? That was one of the means adopted.
848. Was that one of the chief means? No.
849. Did it prove successful? That, combined with other means, proved successful.
850. Reference has been made to investments—Are not the funds of each particular Lodge invested as each Lodge itself wishes? Yes.
851. By their own trustees? By the vote of the Lodges.
852. The district has nothing to do with that? No.
853. You complain, I understand, that there is very much trouble in the returns from the charges for medicines and medical attendance being mixed up with the purely management expenses? Yes.
854. Are you aware that in the returns for 1878 medical expenditure and working expenditure were marked in the same line? I believe that such was the case.
855. Then that might account for this mixture that you complain of? Yes.
856. Mr. Davies.] I gather from your evidence that you have acquired a good deal of knowledge and experience in connection with the working of Friendly Societies? Yes.
857. During the time that you have occupied the offices you have named, have you found the present Act defective in its operations in assuring members of the various Societies—not only your own—of the certainty of the amount of sick pay, funeral donations, and other incidental benefits provided for in the general rules? I believe the Act is very defective in several respects; but, on the other hand, it possesses many beneficial powers if they were only put into force.
858. In what particulars do you regard it as defective? In one respect, in giving Lodges liberty to spend money on buildings without proper restrictions. Another defect is that parties, after putting into motion all the juries, as I may term them, of one Society, can run into the District or other Courts and put the Lodges or the Order to considerable expense in connection with an action which has already been tried by three different bodies in the Order. Another drawback is that it is not certain what amount of sick pay a person can claim by belonging to a number of Lodges. There are other defects which I will point out in the suggestions which I intend to put into writing and append to my evidence.
859. Speaking of persons being members of various Societies, is it your opinion that the principle is bad? I think the principle is a bad one, and that it offers a high premium to persons to impose upon the Benefit Societies.
860. Have you found such to be the case? I believe I have.
861. Does your general law provide punishment for that violation of the law? Yes.
862. What is the punishment? Liability to expulsion is the extreme penalty.
863. Can you tell me what was the average sickness of the members of your Order for a period of ten years I dare say I could provide you with that information; at all events I will go back as many years as I can to get the information.
864. President.] Will you get this information in reference to all the different Lodges? I will if I can.
865. With regard to the ages, could you not get returns from each of the District Lodges? I have no power to compel the furnishing of such returns.
866. Mr. Davies.] With regard to the returns, you know, I presume, that the 45th and 46th sections of the Act compel the furnishing of returns to the Registrar? Yes.
867. According to the 45th section it should be an annual return from each individual Society. What has been the practice in your Order? We have issued return forms to the various districts, and they have re-issued them to the Lodges, and we thus obtained the necessary information from the districts through the Corresponding Secretaries of Districts. From these returns I have compiled the statement presented to the Commission.

Mr. E.
Schofield.

9 Dec., 1881.

868. Do you consider that a return furnished in that way is in conformity with the Act? Our general law says they are, and the Registrar says they are in conformity with the Act, and I believe they are strictly in conformity with the Act.

869. Have you read the 46th section of the Act? Yes.

870. In many cases, I understand, the Act is not complied with? Yes, there are cases of clear violation of the Act.

871. The returns have been irregular and incomplete, and consequently of little value? Of a great deal of value, but incomplete. They are of value as showing the number of members and the amount of funds in hand.

872. What has been your practice in cases where the accounts have been mixed in the manner you have described? We have communicated with them with the view of finding out what they have paid their medical men, divided the accounts, and sent the returns back, and we have kept on that system until it has been almost too late to get our returns printed.

873. Has the Grand Lodge power to fine them? Yes, the Grand Lodge impose a fine of two guineas.

874. I understood you to say that the general Funeral Fund in the district Lodge——? Each district manages its own Funeral Fund.

875. Are the benefits uniform? No.

876. Are the initiation fees uniform? No, so long as they are not below a certain scale.

877. Of course the returns with which you have promised us will furnish us with information more in detail? Yes.

878. Are you quite clear as to the 45th section of the Act and the mode there prescribed? I take it that that is quite correct. Our rules prescribe the mode.

879. Then if that principle would apply, would not the registration of the Grand Lodge rules be sufficient for all purposes? The rules, of course, are subject to whatever Act may be in force.

880. You do not register separately and distinctly for all the subordinate Lodges? The Corresponding Secretaries of Districts do that. The by-laws of a Lodge are submitted to the District Corresponding Secretary to see if they are in accordance with the district laws, and he passes them on for the Registrar when a district wants to alter its rules. I have to certify if the alteration is in conformity with the general law.

881. Would it not be better to have a uniform system of rules and by-laws? I do not think so, from my experience in another Society.

882. If you had a uniform system of by-laws for these subordinate Lodges, one registration would be sufficient? No, because we would have to certify each Lodge separately. It might, of course, have been sufficient. This is the first time, I believe, I have heard a suggestion of this kind, and if it could be carried out should reduce the cost of management.

883. Might you not have another tribunal to which to refer matters in dispute? I could not suggest a better than that which already exists. If any person has a grievance of any kind, he can bring it before a summons meeting of the Lodge, then before the District Committee, and he can then take it to the Grand Master and the Board of Directors, the representatives of the various Boards of the Colony. My opinion is that that should be the tribunal, and that it should be conclusive.

884. Then you do not think it desirable that Lodge disputes should appear in the District Courts? Certainly not.

885. Have you had a case of that kind? Yes, a case occurred not long ago in which a man was brought before his Lodge and expelled. Then he took the matter to the District Committee, by whom the decision was upheld. He then took the matter to the Grand Master, and failing to get satisfaction there he carried the case before a District Court Judge, by whom the original decision was upheld. The result was that the Order had to put up with a loss of £72 for expenses, for which they were never able to get the money.

886. Under what head would you charge those expenses? Under the head of management.

887. Under the present Friendly Societies Act have you power to enforce payment of arrears of contributions on the part of members? Yes.

888. Do you think that a wise provision? No.

889. Would you suggest an amendment? I would suggest that members in arrears should be permitted to run out, because I believe that one of the most profitable sources of income is derivable from the payments of members who were permitted to run out. As the law stands at present, I believe if you could recover for twelve months a person could claim for twelve months. A member twelve months in arrears can be readmitted upon payment of all arrears, and be in just the same position as he was before he went out of compliance. The gentleman who succeeded Mr. Tidd Pratt as Registrar of the Friendly Societies in England positively declined to register rules of Friendly Societies containing such provisions.

890. Do you think the present arrangements for registering Friendly Societies are sufficient for all purposes? No, I do not think them at all sufficient. Speaking on that point at our Annual Movable Committee at Albury I said—"A Commission such as I refer to could recommend a new and more effective Friendly Societies Act, or else infuse life into the present one, for I cannot help thinking that the present Friendly Societies Act is a dead letter, and that the chief functions of the Registrar seem to be the keeping of a guardian eye on the sums to be paid for the honor of his autograph; for I will venture to say that all are treated alike, whether they send in their annual returns or not; and what other evidence have we for the proof of the stability of these Societies but the returns?"

891. Then you have no hesitation in saying that the present arrangements are very defective? I have no hesitation whatever in saying so.

892. Mr. Rubie.] You stated that in connection with your Society there were three Courts of Appeal? Yes.

893. Do you think it would be judicious to form an independent Court? I do not think so; I think each Order should have the management of its own affairs.

894. Do you not think that delegates from various Friendly Societies would be a reliable, independent, and qualified Court of Appeal? No, I could not look with favour upon such a system as that.

895. You stated something about a Lodge having to dissolve, although possessing funds to the extent of £12 per member—suppose any of those individuals wanted benefit, in what way would they get it, the Lodge having broken up? That would depend upon what had been done with the funds. If the members of the Lodge divided the money personally they would cease to be members of the Order.

896. Then what should they do? The whole of their money, books, and belongings, should be thrown into the

the district in which the Lodge is situated, and the district Lodge would thereupon grant them district clearances and enter some other Lodge in the ordinary way as under ordinary clearances. They would be enabled to make all their claims on the district.

897. You say you have a rule under which a levy of 6d. for the Sick and Funeral Fund must be paid by every member? Not a levy—a weekly contribution.

898. Is that payment carried to a separate fund? Yes.

899. Do you find that payment sufficient for the purpose? I find it ample. I think there ought to be more carried to the credit of the Management Fund, because the whole of the expenses, with the exception of the sick and funeral payments, are drawn from the Management Fund.

900. The object of the Commission is in a measure to ascertain whether the contributions paid by members are sufficient to secure them the benefits they are led to expect from becoming members of a Friendly Society, and my question was whether you found the payment of 6d. per week to the Funeral Fund sufficient to meet all the demands upon that Fund? So far as the district to which I belong is concerned it has been found to be ample up to the present time, and we have been banking money.

901. Does the donation to the wife of a member come out of that 6d. per week? Yes.

902. And with that drain upon the fund you have found it amply sufficient? Yes, but not being an actuary I cannot say whether that amount of contribution enables the Society to keep a sufficient fund in hand to meet all liabilities.

903. No doubt competent witnesses will by-and-by show the Commission whether the Friendly Societies, in regard to their Sick and Funeral Fund, are in a healthy state or not; but have you formed any opinion yourself on that point? In my opinion 6d. per week is amply sufficient.

904. Including the donation at the death of the wife? Yes.

905. Mr. Newland.] Do you allow uniform benefits in all Branches of your Society? Yes.

906. Whether mining or agricultural districts? Yes.

907. Do any of the Lodges in connection with your Society in this Colony have a graduated scale of payments in regard to the weekly contributions? No.

908. Are you in favour of that system of a graduated scale of payments? Yes, I am very much in favour of it.

909. I see by your returns that your Management Fund last year amounted to £4,541 19s. 5½d., and that the total number of members good at the same date was 9,013? That is correct.

910. Then your expenditure under the head of management amounted to a little more than 10s. per member for the year? Yes, but I may explain that in many cases the expenditure under the head of management includes medical benefits. In many cases in the returns from the country Lodges the management and medical expenditure is classed under the one head of management.

911. Did your Society alter its scale of charges? No, not last year.

912. There is nothing in your rules to prevent your making those alterations? Yes, there is a great deal to prevent it. The alteration has to be agreed to by the Lodge and adopted by the Annual Movable Committee.

913. Mr. Slade.] If this Commission furnished you and other Secretaries with a form setting forth what the Commission had to deal with and what is required, would it not largely assist you in giving the Commission information? Well, I should imagine that the Commission had some given object in view, although I have not as yet been able to discover what it is. It appears now to me that it is all-round matter that the Commission is endeavouring to get.

914. If you had a prepared form furnished to you, you could fill it up and bring it to us? Yes, so long as the questions asked are applicable to the Society to which they are addressed. The questions that would apply to one Society would not apply to another.

915. Could you not prepare a body of evidence in answer to questions, stating exactly what we want to know, if we gave you sufficient time in which to do it? Yes. At the same time I may say that I do not think there have been two questions asked to-day that I could not answer as well on the spur of the moment as if you gave me twelve months' notice.

916. But do you not think the Secretaries should have some forms furnished them? I do think so.

917. You say your rules necessitate the application of 6d. per member per week to the Sick and Funeral Fund—does that include the fund for the doctor and medicine? No.

918. Can you give us any idea as to what proportion to the member's subscriptions the cost of medical benefits represents? That would be a very difficult matter.

919. Would it not be from 5s. per member per quarter and upwards? In my own Lodge in Balmain we pay 28s. per member per annum for medical advice and medicines.

920. Then supposing your subscriptions to be 56s. or 58s., that would be 40 or 50 per cent. of the income? Yes.

921. I see by your report that, taking the total Lodge and District Funds, the value per member is set down at £8 10s. 1¼d.? Yes.

922. And what is the value of the accumulated gifts which the Society is liable to have to pay to each member from the Funeral and Widow and Orphan's Funds—would it not average £20 from each fund? I dare say the accumulated liabilities under the two funds would be about £40.

923. Have you any opinion as to what would be the actuarial report upon those figures, the value per member of the total worth of funds being £8 10s. 1¼d., and the liabilities under the Funeral and Widows and Orphans' Funds being £40? No actuary would give a report upon such figures as those standing alone, because there are so many other important considerations upon which such a report would be absolutely dependent, such as the average age of members, the average sick rate, the average death rate, &c.

924. President.] Do I understand you to say that the liabilities were £40 per member? I believe that the liabilities under the Funeral Funds would be about £40 per member.

925. Mr. Gelding.] In a statement issued by your Order it is represented, is it not, that forty years ago the "Strangers' Refuge Lodge" was opened in Sydney in connection with the Liverpool District of Oddfellows in England? Yes.

926. I believe that that was the first Lodge established in connection with the Manchester Unity Order of Oddfellows in this Colony, or indeed in Australia, was it not? Yes.

927. Are you aware that although that Lodge has a very considerably less number of members than some other Lodges, the total period of sickness among the members in the year was very nearly one-third more than than in some of the other Lodges? The returns would show whether that is a fact, one of the pamphlets I have put in (the report of the Annual Movable Committee held at Albury, 1881) giving the period in each Lodge in the Colony during the year, together with the total number of members good at the last balance.

928. Are you aware that the excessive period of sickness in that Lodge is accounted for by the fact that it is the oldest Lodge in the Colony, and includes a large proportion of the oldest members? I am not aware that that is the explanation.

929. I presume you are aware that the Widows and Orphans' Fund is not kept as a separate fund by the Lodges? The districts keep it separate.

930. A great deal has been said about illiterate Secretaries—I believe you have had a great deal of correspondence and communication with most of the Secretaries—have you ever found them illiterate? I have found them to be intelligent men, well qualified for the positions they have filled.

931. Have you had to fine Lodges for not sending in returns, or your predecessor to your knowledge, and if so, how many? I could not definitely answer the question as to the precise number.

932. Would there be more than six last year? I do not think there would be more.

933. Do you think that a large percentage out of the fifty Lodges there are now in the district? I think it is a very small proportion.

Mr. E.
Schofield.

EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.

Mr. John Gelding, Secretary of the Sydney District of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity, sworn and examined:—

934. Mr. Abigail.] What position do you hold in connection with the Oddfellows? I am a District Officer.

935. Your duty is to correspond with all the subordinate Lodges in the Sydney District? Yes.

936. You have had great experience in the working of these Lodges? I have had thirteen years' experience as District Secretary of the district.

937. Judging from that experience, do you think that the present Friendly Societies Act has answered the purposes for which it was passed? No, I do not—some of it is very defective indeed; I note one clause here very specially, that is the 44th. I might state that when Mr. Oliver was compiling this Act—I think Mr. Sutherland was in office at the time—I called his special attention to this law about allowing sick members to receive so great an amount out of their Lodges if they chose to pay increased rates, and pointed out that it was an injudicious thing, as it tended to cause what we call malingering. I have always regarded Friendly Societies as intended merely to provide medical attendance for members and to give them sufficient money to keep them in comfortable circumstances. He took the case into consideration, and instructed, as I understood, Mr. Oliver to make the necessary alteration; but to my surprise, when the law was passed, I found that a sick member could take £52 a year out of the Societies. You will very seldom find a man ill for fifty-two consecutive weeks, but he could take £3 a week out of three Societies for parts of his sickness if he were ill two or three months, so that it would pay him better to be sick than well. Then there is another matter in the same clause with reference to the £200. I have always looked upon that as a clause requiring all the Judges and lawyers to interpret what it means. If there is any clause in the Act wants altering, I believe that does.

938. Are there any other parts of the Act you can refer to? Oh, I believe a great deal of improvement might be made. I mentioned to Mr. Oliver that I believed that as the trustees had the power of taking mortgages, they should also have the power of releasing estates; but they have not got this at the present time. If a trustee who is one of the mortgagees dies, the others would have to go and forage up all the friends and relatives interested in the will in order to get a release so that they could release the mortgage.

939. Do you believe the penalties for non-fulfilment sufficient? Quite sufficient if they are acted up to. Had some of these defaulting Lodges been fined, it would have been such a caution to others that there would have been no difficulty in getting the returns; but as it is, I know that if I am in any way lax the Lodges get careless, but if I enforce the penalties I find no trouble in getting them to act up to the rules.

940. Are you of the opinion that the Societies should have exclusive legislation for their management? Yes, I am; I believe that legislation should not go out of their own bodies. If you take the large Societies, you find that you have three local bodies—the Lodge, the District, and the Grand body; and if a matter passes through them it should go no further. As a proof that this works well, I may mention that during the time I have been connected with these Societies I never knew a District Court Judge to give an opinion against these Societies. Judge Dowling has adjudicated in these cases, and Judge Cohen has done the same, being of opinion that if justice can be done it is by the authorities of these Societies.

941. Are you aware of any cases under your jurisdiction where Lodges have borrowed from one fund to assist another? I am not aware of it; it may have been so. There has been a great deal of talk about the Management Expense Fund; but according to the Manchester Unity rules you must pay 6d. a week for the Sick and Funeral Funds. Outside of Sydney the doctor's attendance fees amount to fully 7d. more; so then comes the question, how can Lodges meet their liabilities out of a total contribution of 1s. a week?

942. Have you known any of the Lodges in the Sydney district to raise their contributions because they found themselves going back? Yes, I have done so; and not only that, but I have known a great many pay 1s. 3d. a week so as to keep themselves up to the mark.

943. Have any of your Lodges dissolved? Well, the only Lodge that has dissolved during my tenure of office was one up at Wentworth, and they dissolved simply because they quarrelled amongst themselves, and they could not get the members together to pay their contributions.

Mr. J.
Gelding.

12 Dec., 1881.

Mr. J.
Gelding.
12 Dec., 1881.

944. Do you think that in any new Act branches should have the power to dissolve without permission of the parent Society, seeing that they cannot start without the permission of such Society? I believe not. I am of the same opinion as the Judges in Victoria, that the branch Lodges form part and parcel of the whole body; and it simply amounts to this: that if a Lodge by some means becomes poor, the members can fall back on the district, and bleed it of the funds. Considering that this works this way, I consider that it should also work the other way, and that a Lodge should not be empowered to break up and divide the funds so as to put them into their own pockets; but if they dissolve, every penny should be paid to the District or Grand Lodge Funds.

945. Am I correct in concluding that you are in favour of arbitration being confined to the bodies themselves? Yes, I am.

946. Do any of your Societies grant any assistance to members when they travel in search of work, or sustain loss through fire or shipwreck? There are so very few poor people in the Colony that we are never asked to contribute to those in search of work, but we have liberty to do so; they do, however, often get relief, and that makes a great item in our Management Expense Fund.

947. Do subordinate Lodges grant relief under the head of "Distress Gifts"? Yes.

948. Up to what amount? Some of them are limited to £3; but in addition to that a collection is often made.

949. Have you known any cases in which officers entrusted with money have made away with it or absconded? There have been three or four instances where this has occurred.

950. During what period? One occurred about eight years ago, another about ten years ago, another about thirteen years ago, before I took office.

951. Do you think it would be a wise provision to allow the Registrar to have power to order an audit of the accounts of a Lodge if requested by a given number of its members? Well, that question requires grave consideration, because you might get a few cantankerous members in a Lodge who would combine together and prevent the duties being carried on. They might get the requisite number to sign the requisition and put the Lodge to great expense. I should say that if these members did not prove their case they should be put to the expense of the audit. That would, I believe, be a safeguard, because it would stop persons making assertions that they were not in a position to prove. I never found anything wrong in the Lodge audits.

952. Can you give the Commission direct information as to the average deaths among the members of your district for a given number of years? I could furnish a return, but could not give it now.

953. Are you aware if any of your Societies have received Crown grants for the purpose of building halls? No, the Government are not liberal enough here for that, but they do it in Victoria.

954. Do you think that members should be permitted to join more than one sick benefit Lodge? I believe not. I believe that under the circumstances under which these Societies are formed members should never be allowed to join more than one Friendly Societies Lodge.

955. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have stated as one of the reasons why you object to members joining more than one Society that there is a large amount of shamming. Did it ever strike you, or did you ever notice, that during the times of strikes there was more sickness in the Lodges than at any other time? Well, we have hardly had a sufficient number of strikes here to be able to judge. The majority of strikes have been in the Northern district, and there has always been sufficient money there to keep them without going on the Sick Fund of the Lodges.

956. In reference to the question of auditors, do not Lodges appoint auditors by election? They do.

957. And audits are regularly held and certified? Yes, they are.

958. Have you any reason to believe that they are false? Not the slightest.

959. And you believe they are as correct as they can be? Certainly. I have had occasion to do special audits for Lodges when law cases have arisen; and after a full examination by another accountant and myself we have found that there has not been the slightest cause for the complaints made.

960. Your Society is the oldest we have in the Colonies, or one of the oldest, is it not? Yes, but it was not the first registered.

961. Your system of working is as perfect almost as that of a Benefit Society can be? Well —

962. Well, it is supposed to be so amongst Benefit Societies generally? We give ourselves credit for it.

963. You have very full statistical returns? We publish annual statistical returns, which are as correct as possible. I have audited these returns for some years past with others, and my own opinion of them is that they are correct.

964. Do they give the amount of your income and expenditure? Yes, income and expenditure.

965. And sickness? Yes.

966. The death rate? Yes, the death rate.

967. The working expenses? Well, the working expenses want more getting up than they do at present. I may mention that I had an interview with Mr. Oliver some time ago, and I told him that I thought the annual return sheet that he sent out should be greatly altered from what it is now, so that the management expenses should be further dissected; because we pay a great amount of money to people that cannot possibly show itself on the balance sheet. I might give an explanation of that. If you take the district, for instance, of which I am Secretary, at the end of this year we shall balance our books and see that we have a lot of members all over the world receiving sick pay; and the probability is that there may be hundreds of pounds out, which will not be gathered in for four or five months. That money shows us a debit against the Society without a corresponding return; and therefore it shows the Society in an unfavourable state on the particular date referred to. The sheet wants to be enlarged so as to be three times the size it is at the present time.

968. Your balances are shown each year? Yes.

969. Do they grow less each year? Oh no; considerably more.

970. Your Society is over thirty years old in New South Wales, I believe? Oh yes, I think it is forty-two years old.

971. Do you take it that your Society is old enough here to get a general average of the life of its members? I think it is quite old enough for that purpose.

972. Do you consider your risks this year are greater than they have been in other years; that is, that they are beyond the general average risks? I should not like to answer that question positively. The best answer would be the returns.

973. I want to know whether your risks are greater one year than another? No, they generally run a fair average every year; we generally look upon having two very bad quarters and two moderate quarters.

Mr. J. Gelding.
12 Dec., 1881

- 974. There has been a great deal said about the increased risk to Societies each year. I presume you have certain members die every year, and that you take in a certain number of new members every year? Yes.
- 975. The new members you take in are under a certain age? No, we are not confined to that.
- 976. But what is the age you fix for members? From seventeen to thirty-seven.
- 977. Then, while the old members are dying out new ones are coming in? Yes.
- 978. Then your risk is not, from a common-sense stand-point, greater one year than another? Well, I fancy it is, simply on this ground: that if you study the question you will find that those parties who leave the Societies are the young men, while the parties who stick in and must become an incubus upon the funds are the aged ones. After they get to thirty years of age the majority of the members keep in; those who leave are young members. So I conceive the risk must increase every year. That is my experience with it, and I see that this view is borne out by my return books.
- 979. But has not this been the case every year in the past as well as at present? Well, I do not think so; I think the young men are getting more careless now than they used to be.
- 980. You have a number of members leave your Societies, then? Yes.
- 981. The moneys they have paid in, do they become a gain to the Societies? Oh yes, of course.
- 982. Is it your opinion that under all the circumstances your Society is poorer to-day than it was ten years since? It cannot be, because it is richer; the only question is whether the extra assets you have got will meet the increased liabilities of these aged members.
- 983. Have you more aged members proportionately now than ten years ago? Oh, I should think so; undoubtedly.
- 984. You have read, I dare say, of an inquiry in the British House of Commons in 1841? Yes.
- 985. Are you aware that then the Societies were declared to be insolvent, or nearly so? Yes, it was stated so; and the Manchester Unity amongst them.
- 986. You are aware that in 1873 or 1874 another inquiry was held and the same statements made? Yes.
- 987. And at one or two in Victoria the same statements were made? Yes.
- 988. And the same statements are made now in Sydney? Yes, I believe so.
- 989. Is there anything in your opinion to make you believe that the statements are correct? I do not believe, candidly speaking, during the experience I have had with perhaps the largest Society in New South Wales, that the members pay a sufficient sum of money to ensure what they get out. That is my opinion.
- 990. You believe that the present rates are not sufficient to meet the requirements? Just so; that is, the rates of a good many of the Societies. My impression is that with the high rate now paid for medical benefits and one thing and another, the least that should be paid to ensure the benefits is 1s. 3d. a week. You may go on swimmingly for a while with a less rate, but the day of retribution must come.
- 991. I imagine the sick and death rate would have a great deal to do with the contribution required? Yes; I see in our returns in the Funeral Fund alone we average from £350 to £500 for funeral gifts alone, and in the Sydney District only.
- 992. Are you aware that it is a common practice in localities to expend money in building halls of various sorts? Yes, it is; and I might state in reference to that that I have found, although I am rather against it, that those who did so a few years ago are reaping a great advantage out of it now.
- 993. Do you think it is a wise thing to be permitted? I do not think so.
- 994. Do you think that the funds of a Society should be locked up in such a manner that they are not available? I think it is injudicious.
- 995. Do you think that great precaution should be taken to prevent it? Yes; but there is another thing to be considered, and that is that in many places the Societies have only public-houses to meet in, and if in such places they could get halls I think it would be a great advantage.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 16th December.

FRIDAY, 16 DECEMBER, 1881.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,

PHILIP RESBY HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.

Mr. John Gelding's examination was resumed:—

- 996. President.] You have been connected with the Manchester Unity Oddfellows for many years, have you not? Yes I have, over thirteen years as District Secretary.
- 997. You have had a large experience in connection with the working of the Order? I have studied it very materially during that time.
- 998. The executive or governing body, I believe, is fixed in Sydney, is it not? Yes.
- 999. And do you sometimes have what are called movable meetings? The Grand Annual Session is movable.
- 1000. Now where are these movable Lodges held? They may be held in any district in the Colony of New South Wales that may be carried by resolution at our Annual Movable Conference. Each Grand Committee fixes before it dissolves where the next shall be held. It might be held at Albury, Bathurst, or Tamworth, or anywhere where there is a district in the Colony.
- 1001. Then there are a number of districts? Yes, nine, I believe.
- 1002. And within them there are subordinate Lodges? Yes.
- 1003. I presume that all the districts are worked in a similar manner, and under the same executive authority as the head-quarters Lodge? There is just the same governing body, a President, Vice-president, and Secretary, connected with each of the districts as well as with the executive body.

Mr. J. Gelding.
16 Dec., 1881.

Mr. J.
Gelding.
16 Dec., 1881.

1004. And they are bound by the constitutions of the Order as a whole? Yes, they are.

1005. Have the respective Lodges under your Order power to make their own by-laws, and fix their own amount of sick pay and contributions and so on? They have the power to do these things, but they must be subject to both the general rules and the district rules. The general rules lay down a certain precis to go by, and the districts say we will carry out your views, and this fixes the maximum amount of sick pay and the minimum amount of contribution, and the ages at which persons shall be allowed to join, and the Lodges cannot depart from that.

1006. All the subordinate Lodges have to submit their by-laws or rules to the governing body, do not they? They have to submit them to the District Secretary. He has the power of looking over the rules, and if he is in doubt about them he has full power to send them back and make the Lodge alter them before they are registered; and I have always found that when his decision has been appealed against they have taken his dictum, and have made the Lodge comply with what he wanted.

1007. Does the governing body make itself responsible in reference to the financial position of the subordinate Lodges? No, there is no responsibility attaching in that way, excepting that if a Lodge through accident or a great amount of sickness should not be able to meet its liabilities and should break up, then so long as none of the members have been a party to the breaking up through maladministration the district has to take its members, and either grant them clearances or keep them. That simply means that so long as you pay your contributions, once an Oddfellow you are always an Oddfellow.

1008. Then in such a case as that there is a guarantee that the governing body will look after the interests of the respective members of the Lodges? Oh yes, most decidedly. I may mention that is probably one of the items that swells up the management expense fund of these large Societies. The ramifications of these large Societies are so immense that they extend all over the civilized world; and, belonging to one of these bodies in New South Wales, you virtually belong to it wherever you go.

1009. We will say that an Oddfellow comes here from England who was a member of a certain Lodge there and had paid up his contributions,—would he be enrolled here, and would he get benefits the same as if he had been initiated in this Colony? That would rest with himself; he could either bring his clearance, and throw it into a Lodge here, and pay the contribution rate of the New South Wales body, or he could remain a member of his own Lodge and pay their rates to the district here, when he would, in case of sickness or death, receive benefits at the rates guaranteed to him. But the great advantage he would have would be that he could join the medical list of one of the Lodges here, and thereby receive medical attendance. They all avail themselves of that, and pay no more for the privilege than an ordinary member does in New South Wales.

1010. And he gets sick benefits as other members? Yes.

1011. And you receive no contributions whatever from his mother Lodge in the old country? No, not as regards medical benefits; we generally get his "pence money" and forward it; we never find any difficulty in getting the sick pay back again.

1012. Whom do you get it from? From the Lodge the member belongs to in other countries. I dare say we have as many as a hundred members paying in belonging all over the world: Gibraltar, and everywhere else. There is £108 5s. 5d. of sick pay paid away quarterly to members of other districts, according to our last returns.

1013. Do you think a return could be furnished to the Commission showing the ages at which persons entered the respective Lodges, and the ages of the persons who have died as members of the Society, (say) for the last five years? Oh, there would be no trouble in doing that; I was looking over the book the other day, and I found that we could give forty years' experience.

1014. Do not you think it would be necessary to have that information as to the ages of the members of the Lodges, when they entered the Order, and at their deaths, in order to have an actuarial examination? I believe it would be very valuable indeed; and, in fact, I believe the Commission would be almost worthless without the experience of these large Societies was given. You could thus get an average death age.

1015. Now in your large experience in connection with the working of the Order could you point out where the present law is at all defective, or say whether it is the administration of the law or the law itself that is defective? There are a good many defects in it that require amendment. Most of the Societies have been breaking the laws here in clauses 41, 43, and 47, which say that the trustees shall do all the things referred to in the clauses; instead of which the trustees have nothing at all to do with it, and they know nothing of what is done. It says that the trustees shall pay over money and donations, which is simply nonsense, because they know nothing at all about it. The trustees' duties are simply to invest the money and draw the moneys out of the Bank. The Friendly Societies at the present time are a regular commercial affair, and you cannot call on the trustees to come and do these things; and, in fact, these provisions have never been acted up to. And there is another thing in connection with the Act; if you want to register an amended rule you have to sign a document stating that that amended rule is in conformity with the laws relating to the Friendly Societies, and swear it before a Justice of the Peace. If this is so, according to my mind what is the use of the Registrar? I have always tried to evade it as much as possible, and I would suggest that in an amended Act that should be done away with altogether, because it seems to me to be an absurdity.

1016. Do you think that there ought to be a separate Department to deal with this matter of Friendly Societies? I do; I believe that there is sufficient work now to keep one person entirely employed; and were such an appointment made—that is, a man skilled in these matters—it would be of great service to everybody connected with Friendly Societies, as he might be able to give very valuable advice, and would be able to see whether the laws were in conformity with law or not, and if not, to suggest alterations so as to make them so. In fact, I have seen the English Manchester Unity's documents submitted to the Registrar at Home, and it is surprising the amount of work he takes with them. As it is, our laws are often in such a state that you cannot make head or tail out of them. I believe that is so, because in the penal laws of Societies we have sometimes eight or nine different clauses which clash with one another, whereas the Registrar would put them all into one and it would be intelligible. Now we intend to put all penal affairs into one clause, and make it "shall be expelled or suffer such other punishment as a Committee of the District or Order may think fit," so that we shall have no more trouble over the matter.

1017. Do you think it would be a good thing or a prudent thing to have all the correspondence, by-laws, and so on, so that any action that the respective Lodges under the Order took should be submitted to the executive authority prior to registration by the Registrar? I do not quite catch the gist of your question.

Mr. J.
Gelding.

16 Dec., 1881.

1018. The correspondence, rules and by-laws that are made by the respective Lodges under any particular Order—would it be a good thing that instead of these persons dealing directly with the Registrar they should go through the District or Grand Lodge? We always make it imperative in our Order; the Registrar would not certify them unless they were first certified by the officer of the Order.

1019. Mr. Rubie.] With regard to members coming from other countries, if I understand you correctly, they throw a card of clearance here and get the benefits of the Lodge in England or wherever they come from. Is not that an injustice if they comply with the rules here by paying the rates; would it not be unjust to give that man full payment? No; it generally cuts the other way; if a person comes from England here with a clearance it is probably dated three months back by the time he gets out here; the Lodge is responsible for his funeral, sick pay, and everything connected with him for twelve months from the date of his clearance; after that he comes on the full rates of the New South Wales District.

1020. But does he pay anything extra for that? He had to pay the New South Wales contributions.

1021. No entrance? Well, there is a bagatelle; I think it comes to about 9s. in our Order.

1022. Suppose a man of 50 years of age came? He would not be admitted.

1023. At what age would you admit him? You are not obliged to admit him over 40.

1024. Then for 9s. he would get all the benefits in New South Wales? Yes, but it is mutual; if I went to England it would be just the same thing.

1025. Yes, but the question comes, are there so many go from here as come here? I believe that new blood in this country is very valuable, and that they are not so liable to sickness as the old members. However that may be, there is this mutuality arrangement throughout the Order.

1026. Are you also of opinion that it would be necessary to have some mode of arbitration for Societies in New South Wales? I believe that in all well constituted Societies like these large ones there are three courses open for a member to go through; there is the Lodge, the District, and the high governing body; and my opinion is that after he has exhausted these three he has got as much natural justice as any Court of law would give him, because they are so totally distinct, members coming from all parts of the Colony; and no Courts have attempted to upset the decisions of the governing bodies. This fact, I think, shows that substantial justice is done.

1027. That would be well in large Societies like yours; but we have also to deal with single Societies, and must recommend some judicial mode by which their disputes may be settled without expense. Would it not in your opinion be judicious to appoint some Court of Appeal or governing body in this Colony for these single Societies, whether these arbitrators are appointed by the Crown or elected by the various Societies? I believe, in answer to that, that the Protestant Alliance have a rule to this effect, that any member aggrieved at the decisions of the highest governing body may have the power of nominating from other Societies one or more members to whom the dispute is referred; and I think in the case you mentioned that that would be the best plan of settling disputes. I was once nominated myself on something of that sort, and I think it was a very good thing.

1028. With regard to payments, there never has been an actuarial calculation of rates and terms in your Society? No, there has not.

1029. You have simply relied on the general working and management as to what is requisite to be charged? Well, I think the idea of the rate of contribution was first imported from Great Britain when the Friendly Societies first started here; and of course the Manchester Unity have several funds; we have an Orphans' Fund, to which all must belong, and every member had to pay 13d. per quarter to that fund. Well, a few years ago I came to the opinion that this was a matter of injustice. Why should members subscribe heavily towards a fund that in the course of a generation would be self-supporting? I thought that those who came after us should help to support this fund as well as we did, and we made it floating; that is, the District Committee has the power of saying every quarter what the levy shall be; now, instead of being 13d. they pay about 4d., and still the fund goes ahead.

1030. I understood you to a former question to say that 6d. was levied, or went to the Sick and Funeral Funds; has this been adequate to meet all payments for sickness? Yes, I believe so, especially in these Sydney Lodges, and in the country Lodges in healthy places it has been found more than sufficient; and in any fresh legislation there might be I should make it imperative that all metropolitan and suburban Lodges should pay not less than 6d., but that in some of the country Lodges 4d. would be quite sufficient, as many of them are saving a large amount of money out of that 6d. while the Management Fund in the meantime goes behind.

1031. Is that sufficient to meet funeral donations as well? It is in our Society. The mode of procedure in our Society is that every member is levied so much per quarter to keep up this fund.

1032. What! besides the sixpence? No, they pay the sixpence into the Lodge, and the District levies the Lodge so much per head per quarter; the Lodge has nothing to do with the Funeral Fund.

1033. Have you found the rates of mortality in the Sydney district greater than in the suburban and country districts? It all depends on age. Some of our country Lodges that have been in existence for thirty years or more have quite as many claims upon the Funeral Fund as the Sydney Lodges. There is an old adage—"The old must die, the young may."

1034. President.] I think you said that in some of the country Lodges large amounts of money were accumulated in the Sick and Funeral Fund, and that the Management Expense Fund went behind? Yes.

1035. Do you know whether it is a fact that in these Lodges they loan money from one fund to the other? I fancy some of them do. I know none of the Lodges in the Sydney district do it, but I believe some of the Lodges in other districts do it.

1036. Have they the power to do that without obtaining the consent of the district or governing body? It is difficult to get at it. The money is generally paid back sooner or later. I had once to borrow from the Widows and Orphans' Fund to meet two or three very high payments on other funds.

1037. Mr. Newland.] What is the number of Lodges in your district? I think I have about fifty-one or fifty-two Lodges now.

1038. And these Lodges, I presume, have an annual meeting for the election of District Officers? The officers are elected by ballot on the last Wednesday in December in each year, at what is called the Annual District Meeting.

1039. And what constitutes that? It is a meeting of members from any of the Lodges that choose to send deputies, according to a rule; not more than two from any one Lodge.

1040. And how are these deputies paid? They are paid from the District Fund.

Mr. J.
Gelding.
16 Dec., 1881.

1041. Irrespective of locality, do they all receive an equal amount? All an equal amount.
1042. No matter what distance they come? No matter what distance they come.
1043. What is the amount of funeral donation for a member, and for a member's wife? £20 for a member, and £15 for a member's wife.
1044. You have no sliding scale of funeral donation? No, we have no sliding scale at all. We are perhaps not in conformity with the spirit of the age, for we sometimes help one another, making no distinction; we give the same uniform benefits, with the exception of the Widows and Orphans' Fund, which is on the sliding principle, varying from £10 to £30.
1045. What is your maximum of sick pay? Twenty-one shillings a week for the first six months, fifteen shillings for the second six months, and about seven shillings and sixpence for the next six months. After that some mutual arrangement is come to.
1046. And what is your minimum of sick pay—can a Lodge give less than twenty-one shillings? There is nothing less than twenty shillings; most of the Lodges, I think, work on this twenty-shilling scale.
1047. And the Lodges in your district, do they pay anything like an average amount of weekly contributions? It runs up from ls. 1½d. to ls. 3d.; the strange part of it is that the Lodges where the ls. 3d. rules are the best patronised, getting the greatest number of new members.
1048. I believe you are in favour of a law similar to that in force in Victoria, that in the event of a Lodge breaking up, all the books, vouchers, property, and cash should go to the Grand Lodge or governing body? Should go to the District, which is virtually responsible should a Lodge break up and be unable to fulfil its promises. It seems monstrous that a Lodge should be allowed to divide its funds; while, on the other hand, should it from unforeseen circumstances become insolvent, the members join the District and receive the same benefits as if they were in good circumstances. If it cuts one way I consider that it should cut another.
1049. Are you aware that a Society in Victoria dissolved and divided its funds; and when the governing body tried to bring them to justice they failed to have justice given them according to law? I know a case where the Judges in banco decided that a Lodge could not divide its funds; and they had to pay over every penny into the Grand Lodge, otherwise they would have been prosecuted for misdemeanour.
1050. You are not aware of parties being so prosecuted and justice failed? Not in connection with the Manchester Unity; it may have been in some other Society.
1051. These District members, or members arriving from foreign ports and throwing their clearances into your Lodges, as soon as they do that they become amenable to the laws the same as any other member and receive the same benefits, I presume? They receive medical benefits immediately, but for the others they have to wait a while until the clearance is twelve months old.
1052. They receive the benefits the same as a new member, according to effluxion of time? No, a new member receives sick pay when he has been in the Order six months.
1053. These do not get it for twelve months? Yes, they get it at the rate guaranteed to them by their own Lodge.
1054. But it is not a charge on the Lodge they join for twelve months? No, it would not be fair to do so. It is the same all over the world in the Manchester Unity.
1055. But you limit the age to forty for receiving these members? Yes.
1056. Mr. Stade.] Are members in the minority at the breaking up of a Lodge able to get into the District irrespective of age? That makes no difference.
1057. Then the restriction as to forty does not apply to them? Not at all; it only applies to persons coming from beyond the Colony.
1058. President.] Has the Society to which you belong any real property? Yes, a great number of the Lodges have real property—very valuable real property.
1059. Of what does it consist? Of ground and buildings.
1060. I do not mean Lodge rooms; I mean real property, independent of them? Yes, some of them have. Newtown Lodge has a number of shops in the Newtown Road, besides a hall.
1061. But is this in connection with the hall? No, it is detached from the hall.
1062. Then do some of these Lodges invest their surplus funds in the purchase of real property? There are a few of them do, but not a great many of them.
1063. I think your Corresponding Secretary has promised to put in a return; or is there such a return at present? Yes, there is, up to last year.
1064. Now, this surplus money is it vested in any way? A great deal of it is in the Savings Bank; the districts have some out at mortgage, and some is invested in land, and in these halls that I have spoken of. None of the Lodges ever trouble themselves to invest on mortgage; it is merely the districts that do that.
1065. But in placing money in the Savings Bank do they give you interest on the whole amount? Yes; that is a rule in connection with the Savings Bank here.
1066. Is there any suggestion you would wish to make in addition to the evidence already given? It might be advisable to refer to my notion of the annual returns in the evidence. I should make these annual returns contain the ages of both members and members' wives, and their trade or occupation; and the Management Expense Fund should be thoroughly divided so as to show the amounts paid for salaries, rent, regalia for officers, district gifts or payments for officers' services, or sick visiting officers. I believe it would be also a very good thing if before Lodges were allowed to be opened they should send to the Registrar a copy of their proposed rates of contributions and benefits that they wish to give to their members. I also believe some alteration is necessary with regard to the Children's Burial Fund; I do not think that should be mixed up with Friendly Societies matters. If the Lodges wish to pay their members so much on the death of a child, it should be a separate insurance fund and not connected with the ordinary arrangements of the Societies. Some of the Societies do it, and some members wish to introduce the principle in our Order; but our idea is that if any one wishes to establish a fund of this description he should pay a small fee to specially ensure that benefit. I am also of opinion that when these returns are furnished to the Registrar every year, they should be sworn to and certified not only by the Corresponding Secretary but by the auditors that have examined them. In the Friendly Societies Act there is a clause that allows members to will away the funeral money to whom they like. My experience in these matters is that that law is very injurious; that a widow, providing she has kept herself as she should do, should be the recipient of that bounty; and that the member should not have the power of willing away the money, for which she perhaps has been struggling to keep his payments up. I know men often who, in a fit of temper, before they have died, have willed the money away; and I have always looked upon it as a most disgraceful proceeding.

Mr. J.
Gelding.

16 Dec., 1881.

I should certainly recommend an alteration in that. I am also of opinion that the Societies, considering the great benefit the Government must positively receive from their establishment, in doing away with a great amount of pauperism, and thus saving a large amount of money every year, should be entitled to have these rules registered free of charge; as it is now, a Lodge, no matter how poor, has to pay a guinea for the registration of a few rules, and if they require to make a slight alteration in one of the rules there is another 5s. taken from them. I have already referred to the alteration required in reference to the trustees, in clauses 41, 43, and 47. They should be so altered that the executive bodies of these Lodges and districts should be the proper parties by whom these moneys should be paid. It would be some length of time before an actuary or anybody else could bring a proper scale of contributions into effect; but I see that in Victoria, according to the new law, the Government Registrar has the power of granting a certificate of conformity for five years; and I think that would be a very good thing here pending good trustworthy tables being issued, as I believe it would be also a very good test that the Society would be something like solvent. It is carried out very much in Victoria now, and I see that a number of the Societies have obtained this additional certificate, while a number of them have had it refused, the Registrar considering the fees nothing like equivalent to the money the members expect to receive from the Societies.

1067. In reference to what you have stated about a married man bequeathing his funeral donation to any person other than his wife, I think you qualified that by saying that it was on the supposition that the wife behaved herself? Yes, we have a qualification always to that effect, so that if a woman has been living away from her husband in adultery for a certain time, or has been following other evil courses, she does not get the money. Of course, there are women who drink and are not fit to be entrusted with anything; we find that, and have a law to deal with these cases.

1068. Mr. Smith.] I suppose you find it to be the practice in the other districts for moneys to be taken from one fund and transferred to another? Well, I think it very seldom occurs; my own impression is that if they pay sufficient contributions—that is something like the Manchester Unity—they would not have any occasion to do it.

1069. But if one fund has greater calls upon it than another you find it the case? I have heard of it in the country districts.

1070. Then from what you know do you think there is anything radically wrong in it? Not if the money is paid back with all due speed. The members of a Lodge are the guardians of their own money, and they would not allow it to be misappropriated.

1071. Then do you think that the peculiar circumstances of these Societies justify such a course at times? I believe it should be avoided as much as it possibly can; and the only way to avoid it is to pay in sufficient money to meet all the requirements of the various funds.

1072. Are there any circumstances which would justify the lending of a sum of money from one fund to another? No doubt it should not be done, but it simply amounts to this: if you pay 6d. a week to the Sick and Funeral Fund, and, as in the interior, have to pay 7d. a week for doctor, there is the whole amount of a member's weekly subscription swallowed up; and unless you have something over that how are you going to swim? Something must go. It is a well-known fact that nowhere except within the city of Sydney can you get medical attendance for less than about 7s. a quarter.

1073. I presume you know that there is no fund that has a greater run upon it than the Funeral Fund? Oh yes, the Sick Fund has. There is more sick pay given away than the amount of the funeral donations.

1074. Has it ever come to your knowledge that any bad or ill results have followed from the taking of money from one fund to another? That remains to be proved when you get the balance sheets in.

1075. Then such being the practice for moneys to be taken from one fund to recoup another, do not you think it would be wise in any fresh legislation to provide by law for its refund? Yes, it would be a very good thing, but I believe that all governing bodies have such a provision. I would suggest that, instead of having such a provision, power should be given to the Registrar to see that the contributions were made large enough to prevent any necessity for it arising.

1076. Is it customary on the part of your Lodges to purchase property for the purpose of erecting halls to hold their meetings in? Yes, it is customary. The method they pursue is to buy a bit of ground if they have plenty of money in hand, and take out shares in a Society amongst themselves, and raise money enough by that means to borrow a little more.

1077. So that the funds of the Society are not touched for the purpose of purchasing the property? No, that will not do. They spend some of the Lodge money to buy the ground with first.

1078. Are there any instances where the share system has not been resorted to in order to acquire property? Yes, they did so in the large hall in Elizabeth-street, and that has paid itself over and over again.

1079. Has it frequently been the case that moneys have been taken from various funds for the purpose of purchasing property; that this money has been lent at the usual rate of Bank interest? Yes, I dare say that has been the case. I do not know about the rate of interest; they might get three times the amount of interest on their investments, according to the locality in which the speculation is carried on. It is impossible for me to say about that.

1080. In your experience you have never known any of these things to be failures? No, they have been generally a great success.

1081. You alluded in your evidence to the fact that they had done something of the kind at Newtown? Yes.

1082. That has been a very successful investment, has it not? My conscience, it has; I wish it was mine.

1083. It is also a fact that this is one of the richest Lodges in your jurisdiction? Yes.

1084. And it is one of the most successful? The most successful in the whole of the Australian Colonies, having the most money, most members, most property, and everything else.

1085. Have you ever known an instance in which the Government have assisted Friendly Societies by giving them grants of land? No, I have not; and if you read that report (of the Victorian Commissioner) you will see that that Commission was very much against what the Government has done in Victoria.

1086. Have any of your country Lodges made application through your district to the Government for a small piece of land on which to erect buildings to carry on their work? I do not know, but I have a vague recollection of something of the kind. At all events they did not get it.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, December 19.

Alfred Lees Smith sworn and examined:—

- Mr. A. L. Smith.
19 Dec., 1881.
1087. President.] What office do you hold in the Grand United Order of Oddfellows? The office I hold is styled Grand Secretary.
1088. How long have you been connected with the Society? About ten years.
1089. How long have you held your present office? Three years.
1090. How old is your Society in New South Wales? I am not aware of the exact date on which the first Lodge or Branch was founded in the Society, but I am aware that our Society was registered in 1848. But there were branches in existence some years before that.
1091. Have you an executive authority in Sydney? We have, sir.
1092. And have you branches connected with it throughout the Colony? Yes, we have.
1093. And what are called Districts? There are branches all over the Colony, and these branches join together, and form what we call a District, or central governing body for these Lodges.
1094. Do these branches act independently of the governing body? They do to a certain extent, as far as sick pay and benefits to the members are concerned, but not as far as funeral benefits are concerned; these come from the District.
1095. You have subordinate Lodges, have you not? I do not exactly understand what you mean by subordinate Lodges.
1096. That is persons who form themselves into a Lodge under your Order, and act independently of it to some extent in reference to making rules and by-laws? We have neutral or non-district Lodges which have the whole governing power within themselves, as far as dealing with the funds is concerned. These are not attached to any particular District.
1097. Then I presume they are under the government of the central governing body in Sydney? Under that of the central body, or sub-committee of management, as it is called.
1098. Do you make returns to the Registrar of Friendly Societies? We do, yes.
1099. And are they sent in annually? Yes, annually.
1100. And does the governing body send in reports embodying all the information in connection with the whole of the Lodges under the Order; or do the Lodges send the returns themselves directly? The return forms are received by myself from the Registrar, and I furnish them to the Districts. They distribute them to the branches, and they are returned in the same way to me, and I hand them over to the Registrar. I compile, for my own use, the statistics from the returns, but the returns are furnished to the Registrar as I receive them.
1101. In sending in these returns to the Registrar, do you inform him of the ages at which persons are initiated into the Order, and the ages at which persons are registered—the death rate I mean? No, the return does not require the information and it has not been given; the law does not provide that we shall do it.
1102. But I suppose you have a record of the age of every person initiated into the Order? There is a record kept by the Districts.
1103. And is that not supplied to the governing body? There is no return made regularly of the ages.
1104. How does the governing body know what are the respective ages? In the case of a new Society being formed, the ages and names are submitted to the sub-committee for approval, but not with new members joining branches already formed.
1105. But there is a record at the respective branches? Oh yes, there is.
1106. Do not they make a declaration? A new member joining has to make a declaration.
1107. And is there not a medical examination as well? There is; every candidate has to pass a medical examination.
1108. And do not persons joining have to pay a donation? They are required to pay an entrance fee.
1109. Is that a fixed entrance fee for all persons, or is it graduated according to the ages of the persons who join? It is a graduated scale according to age.
1110. Could you afford the Commission such information as you have, by either obtaining it from the respective Districts or from any other source, of the ages of the persons belonging to the respective Lodges, when they were initiated, and the ages at which persons died? All that information could be furnished by the Secretaries of the Districts, who have a record of all ages.
1111. Have you a copy of your rules with you? I have.
1112. Will you put a copy in evidence? Yes. (Copy of rules put in.)
1113. Are they the rules that govern the whole Order? They are.
1114. Have you paid much attention to the working of the Friendly Societies Act? As far as it has come within my knowledge, the Act operates well as far as our Society is concerned.
1115. I suppose disputes sometimes arise amongst the members of the Order? Yes, occasionally they do.
1116. How are they disposed of? A member, if he has a grievance and cannot get satisfaction in his own branch, is at liberty to appeal to the District.
1117. Do you think it would be a wise provision in any new Bill to be introduced to provide that all these local disputes should be settled within the body itself? I think that is the opinion of many members of the Order who take an interest in the matter; they object to cases going outside our limits, and do not care to take them into Court or anything of that kind.
1118. In the event of persons not paying up their fees, what means do you take to compel them? We have power to summon them to Court.
1119. Have you done so in any case? Not within my recollection now—none certainly recently.

1120.

1120. Now, do you think some local means, local to the bodies themselves, could be devised by which the matter could be settled? I think it would be a wise provision if Societies were empowered to settle these matters amongst themselves by the appointment of a number of persons to arbitrate upon them.

Mr.
A. L. Smith.
19 Dec., 1887

1121. Has there been any inquiry or examination as to whether the amount of contributions and fees levied for sick and funeral pay would be sufficient to meet all cases? As far as we are concerned, I am not aware that there has been any attempt made to ascertain that point.

1122. Then you do not know whether the fees fixed would be sufficient to meet all the claims upon the funds? We can only judge by the past; they have been met for a number of years, and we never had any difficulty in meeting our engagements.

1123. Have you much money to your credit? We consider we have a fair balance—something like £22,000.

1124. Does that include landed property? It includes all our assets.

1125. Have you any landed property? There are some branches which have property of this kind; we have a Lodge at Waverley or Randwick which possesses land, and some Lodges possess halls and land.

1126. Do you invest this surplus money in any way? In some instances I know branches have invested money in Corporation bonds; but the greater part of our money is in the hands of the Banks.

1127. Then you could not say whether there is any money invested in land or property irrespective of Lodgerooms? They have land other than the rooms in which they meet, but I do not know to what extent.

1128. Could any of these District authorities give us any information in respect to the working of the Order more than you yourself have already given? The District Secretaries are brought more directly in contact with the working of the branches; I deal only with the Districts, and through them with the branches indirectly.

1129. But as Secretary you, as a matter of fact, know all that is going on? Yes.

1130. In fact, the ramifications of the whole Order have to be dealt with by the body in Sydney? Generally, but of course we have not the whole of the details.

1131. They are all governed by the rules you have laid on the table? Yes, with the exception of Lodges which have framed by-laws to suit their peculiar circumstances.

1132. Are they submitted to the governing body for their approval? Yes.

1133. Have you felt any difficulty or inconvenience of any kind in communicating with the Registrar? No, I have not; I have always found any business I have had to transact has been done promptly; and we have had every attention we could desire.

1134. Have you thought over the question whether any necessity exists for the establishment of an office for dealing with this business itself? It is not a matter I have given much thought to, but I should think the extent of the Friendly Societies would quite justify the establishment of a separate Department to deal with them.

1135. Mr. Abigail. Have you a Lodge named "The Duke of Edinburgh" attached to your Order? Yes.

1136. Where is it situated? Kempsey, Macleay River.

1137. Has there been any disturbance recently come under your notice in reference to its financial position? Not in reference to its financial position.

1138. In reference to its working? No; no one has called any attention to its working. There was some time ago a member who had a dispute with the branch, but that is more than twelve months ago.

1139. Was it represented to you as Grand Secretary that this Lodge admitted a number of its members who had gone out of compliance, owing as much as from £8 to £10 each, and had placed them financial without paying any contributions? I have no recollection of anything of that sort coming before me in the manner you have stated; I have no recollection distinctly, but I could not say that such a communication has not been made.

1140. Would the papers come to you or to the District? To our Committee.

1141. What District governs that part of the Colony? It is a neutral branch.

1142. Then they would come directly to you? Yes.

1143. Do you know a Dennis Collins, Past Grand Master of that Lodge? Yes, that is the name of the party from whom the communications came that I have referred to already.

1144. You admit that some communications came from that Lodge? Oh yes.

1145. Could you give us their purport? It happened so long ago that I could scarcely give you the whole of the details; but generally I have some recollection that Dennis Collins objected to some member whom the Lodge wished to initiate, and that he protested against the initiation, I think, on the ground that he was not an eligible candidate; and, I think, because they did not agree with his statement, he took umbrage and threw down his regalia, and left the room saying he would have nothing more to do with them.

1146. You say they have not sent papers direct to you from that Lodge setting forth that a number of members have been made financial as just described by me? Such a statement might have been made by Collins, but it has not come from the Lodge.

1147. No investigation has taken place into a matter of that kind? No, there has been no investigation.

1148. You stated in answer to the President, I understand, that you have direct communication with all the Lodges? Not with all the Lodges—only with neutral Lodges and the Districts.

1149. How many neutral Lodges are there? We have three.

1150. Where are they situated? One at Kempsey, one at Newcastle, and one in Sydney.

1151. How many Districts have you? There are four now, one having been formed during this year.

1152. How many Lodges do these Districts control? About ninety; I think the exact number is eighty-six.

1153. Then you have only direct communication with three Lodges? That is all, and the Districts.

1154. Will you produce the papers that you have received from the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge? Certainly.

1155. You stated that, so far as your knowledge goes, the present Friendly Societies Act answers well the purposes for which it was passed; is that so? Some circumstances have transpired in which we have thought that there might have been some better provisions made for particular portions of our workings, or to enable us sometimes to take action that we cannot now do without going into Court.

1156. I take it you mean by that, by way of arbitration amongst yourselves? Yes.

1157. Are you favourable to a proposition that the management of a Society shall be controlled by arbitration within itself? Yes.

1158. Do you send your returns in regularly every year? The returns are furnished every year to the Registrar.

1159. From whom? They come to me from the Districts, and I send them to the Registrar.

1160.

- Mr. A. L. Smith. 1160. As you receive them, or in pamphlet form? Yes, as I receive them.
- 19 Dec., 1881. 1161. How many did you send in for 1880? I am not positive as to the number, but I know there were several short.
1162. Do you know that the Act provides a penalty for non-compliance with that? I do.
1163. Have you had any notice from the Registrar? Not officially, but I have been told neutrally that certain returns were required, but I have not had any demand for them.
1164. £22,000 you say are the total funds of your Society—How many members would that cover? The number of members is about 5,000.
1165. That £22,000 covers funeral, widow and orphans, and sick money? Not the widow and orphans in every instance, as this is not necessarily a portion of our Society, although we have a Widows and Orphans' Fund in connection with the Society. Still it is a separate institution in itself, with the exception of the Braidwood and Hunter River Districts. So far as Sydney is concerned it is a separate institution. I am not aware positively of the state of the Widows and Orphans' Fund in the Sydney district; but in the Braidwood District it stands very well—it stands at £1,070.
1166. And how many members are attached to that? 976.
1167. That gives the Widows and Orphans' Fund a little over a pound a head? Yes.
1168. Are the contributions uniform? No, not uniform.
1169. Just describe the differences, will you, as near as you can—the lowest and the highest? In some of the mining townships they have a different arrangement for medical attendance, but taking this into consideration they pay a contribution equal to a shilling a week, less the amount that would be paid for a medical man, or equal to 7½d. But they have no medical practitioner to pay out of that, because there is medical attendance attached to the collieries.
1170. Then that will cover funeral benefits, sick pay, and the management expenses of the Society? Yes.
1171. There is no provision for distress gifts? There is no special provision beyond what our laws give.
1172. Do your laws make any provision for these? There is presumably a provision.
1173. Up to what amount? £2 is the highest amount.
1174. From your experience of the management of the Society, do you think 7½d. is sufficient to cover the benefits? Well, that would be the same as asking if a shilling is sufficient, because out of that shilling we should have to pay a medical man.
1175. Do you, then, consider a shilling sufficient? My own opinion is that it is scarcely sufficient.
1176. Is there any one of your Lodges paying more or less? Yes, some pay more, none less; they pay up to 16d. I do not know whether any pay that now, but it used to be so.
1177. And do they get benefits proportionately large? Not beyond what our laws allow.
1178. And do they get the same for a shilling as those Lodges whose members pay 15d. or 16d.? Yes.
1179. Are you in favour of a uniform contribution, seeing that you give uniform benefits? I have had some thought that a graduated scale ought to be made, but have not sufficiently considered the matter to say how that graduated scale should be made.
1180. When any number of men desire to start a branch in connection with your Order, how do they proceed; do you instruct them to carry out the Friendly Societies Act before they take any money, or inform them that they must be registered? They cannot be registered until they are formed; the usual plan is to make out or get a requisition signed by a number of persons desirous of becoming members of the Society, and this of course sets out the ages, occupations, and so on, and whether they are married or single.
1181. I understand you, then, that these Societies are started and established before they are registered? The Society or branch is opened.
1182. And do they receive money before the registration? They receive the entrance fees and contributions.
1183. Have you read this in clause 6, under Part II: "Every person being a member of the committee of management of any Society hereafter to be formed for any purpose within the meaning of this Act who shall take any money in consideration of the allotment of shares or any interest in such Society until the same shall be registered under this Act shall incur a penalty for every such offence not exceeding twenty pounds"? Then in that case no Society could be established—they could not be formed.
1184. I simply point out the clause and ask if your Society complies with it? It is quite impossible for a Society to be registered before it is formed.
1185. Do they do it simultaneously with receiving the money? It is done as soon after as convenient—within a reasonable time.
1186. What is a reasonable time? Well, a month or two.
1187. President.] You read from a book just now, showing certain amounts of money; would you put that in evidence, if you have a spare copy? Yes. (Report of Braidwood District put in.)
1188. Mr. Greville.] Is there a certain limit both as to contributions and benefits within which all the Lodges formed must keep? Yes.
1189. That is the contributions cannot be less than a certain sum? Not less than a certain sum.
1190. And benefits? As stated by our laws they must be within certain limits.
1191. And so long as they keep within these limits can the Lodges exercise their own discretion as to the payments by members? They are laid down by law. Our law states here on page 15, law 21, what the amounts paid are to be.
1192. Can a Society fix higher fees than these? The Society can decide the amount of contribution which it will charge its members.
1193. Have the Societies a discretionary power as to what they shall charge their members, provided that they keep within the rules? Yes, so far as regards the contributions.
1194. Then, I presume, the Grand Lodge adopted this scale from the previous working of the Order elsewhere? I do not know from what source our laws are compiled; the law I referred you to just now refers to the Funeral Fund only, and not to the contributions.
1195. Have any of these rates of contributions, for whatever fund they may be, been tested by any actuary? Not that I am aware of.
1196. Do you know from what source the Grand Lodge in New South Wales obtained them? I think they are based on the laws in use by the Society in England, though there may be some variations in matters in detail.
1197. Have you compared the rates of contribution in use here with the rates existing in the Society in England? They do vary.

Mr.
A. L. Smith.
19 Dec., 1881.

1198. Are they higher or lower here? I think they are lower in England than they are here.
1199. And the benefits? They are greater here also.
1200. Is there a proportion observed? I am not sufficiently conversant with the English laws to state positively.
1201. And do you say you believe the English contributions were taken as a basis for yours? No; the general laws, not the contributions.
1202. Then I must ask you again upon what basis the contributions were fixed? I am not aware that they have been taken from any particular source—I do not know from what source they are taken.
1203. And you do not know whether they have been tested by any actuary? No; the experience of thirty years has tested them—they have not varied much during that time.
1204. Has this Society been in existence thirty years? More than that; it was registered in 1848, and there were branch Societies in existence before then.
1205. And it is within your knowledge that it has been necessary to make calls to supplement these contributions as not sufficient? It has occurred, I believe.
1206. In more than one Lodge? Yes, probably so.
1207. Is it a general thing that Lodges make levies to meet liabilities? Yes, but not because they are insolvent.
1208. But they have been driven to extraneous sources, such as a special levy for the purpose of putting themselves in funds? Well, not in that light exactly. Levies are made to meet current expenditure, and not because the Lodge has not sufficient funds to pay that levy, but simply to meet the demand without going on their funds.
1209. Mr. Smith.] Would that be an expenditure arising from unforeseen circumstances? Not necessarily.
1210. Mr. Greville.] Under the 7th clause, Part II of the Act, one of the conditions of registration is that the Society shall give a certificate under the hand of an actuary who has exercised his profession for at least five years as to the correctness of the tables—Do you know of any case where a Society has done that when it has applied for registration? Never such a case has occurred in our Society.
1211. Have you assisted at the registration of any Societies since November, 1873? I have assisted at several.
1212. Now, in any one instance have you lodged with the application a certificate by an actuary? There has been nothing for an actuary to compile in a newly formed district; they would have no funds, and the members would be all new.
1213. Does not your Society insure to every member thereof "a certain annuity or certain superannuation deferred or immediate on any sum or sums payable as endowment, or in case of sickness or death"? Yes, in case of sickness or death.
1214. Now, I ask again whether you have ever lodged the certificate of an actuary as laid down by this clause? I am not aware that it has ever been required.
1215. Then I would ask you whether, failing in doing so, did the Registrar point out your deficiency and ask you for it? I cannot see how it applies to the registration of a new Society; my attention never was so called.
1216. Mr. Holdsworth.] Do you send in the reports annually or do the branches? The annual returns as required by the Registrar.
1217. Did I understand that you compiled your statistics from these returns? Yes.
1218. Your Society has been working for a number of years? Yes.
1219. Have your funds proved sufficient—I do not mean in the case of an isolated Lodge, but as a general rule? If we may judge by the results, they have proved sufficient.
1220. You have paid all claims upon you? Yes.
1221. Do you lose members every year? Oh yes, occasionally.
1222. How? Some by death and others by default.
1223. Are those who die as a rule the older members? I have no means of ascertaining positively.
1224. The new members who join—are they under a certain age? Yes; we have a limit.
1225. What is that limit? We do not admit a member under any conditions at all over the age of forty—our laws will not allow us to do so.
1226. A great deal has been said about actuary's calculations—Do you not think that the experience of your Society for over thirty years is worth more than an actuary's theory? I have thought so. I have thought that it was sufficient to establish us as a solvent Society.
1227. Are you of opinion that a Society, having worked for thirty or forty years at a certain rate, paid all its demands and laid by a surplus, has a right to be considered solvent? I should say so.
1228. Do you consider that your Society, from its age, has reached what may be called a general average in insurance? I should consider that it has.
1229. Mr. Davies.] What number of subordinate Lodges have you in New South Wales in connection with your Society? The number of Lodges at the present time in existence is I think about ninety.
1230. What is the total number of financial members? About 5,000.
1231. What was your total income for last year? The receipts to the end of December, 1880, were £19,713 17s.
1232. The expenditure of the Sydney Lodges on account of sick pay? £3,061 4s. 3d.
1233. What was the amount paid on account of funeral donations? I cannot tell you positively about the amount paid on deaths, but the amount of funds subscribed for the purposes of that fund was £2,576 17s. 1d.
1234. What was the amount paid on behalf of these Sydney subordinate Lodges on account of medical attendance and medicines? The figures I have given you include all.
1235. Yes, but I want to know about the medical attendance now? The medical benefits, £3,867 11s. 7d.
1236. Does that include doctor's attendance? Yes, and medicines.
1237. Have you any means of furnishing the Commission with the death rate for the past ten years of your Society? I have, in books or papers in my possession, and could give you the number of deaths during that period.
1238. What I mean is the average of the death-rate? It could easily be obtained.
1239. Could you furnish it to the Commission? I could do so.
1240. And also with reference to the funeral donations for a like period? I could do so.
1241. And medical expenses? Yes.
1242. What has been the cost for the last year of management of these ninety Societies? £1,648 12s. 7d.

Mr.
A. L. Smith.
19 Dec., 1881.

1243. What is included under the head of Management? It includes rents and goods, all expenses outside medical benefits, and the Funeral Fund.
1244. Have you been in the habit of furnishing returns to the Registrar? Yes.
1245. In what form do you usually prepare them and send them in? I have handed the returns as received by me from the Districts and as made out by the Branches.
1246. Separate returns? Yes.
1247. Do I understand that you have sent in ninety separate returns to the Registrar? No, on the 31st December last there were not ninety Lodges.
1248. But what I mean is do you furnish a separate return for each of the subordinate Lodges? The returns have been sent in with a few exceptions; there are a few Lodges which have failed to send in their returns.
1249. You furnish the returns as you receive them? Yes.
1250. And in some instances there has been default on the part of subordinate Lodges? Yes.
1251. The rules you have put in show the general working of your Societies? Yes.
1252. And I gather from a question put—I think by Mr. Abigail—that you are under the impression that the Friendly Societies Act works pretty well? We cannot take any exception to any of its clauses.
1253. Is there any portion of it which you believe to be defective? No, with the exception of its failing to give us sufficient powers to deal with the internal government and management of the Order.
1254. And to what extent do you think the Act requires amending? Simply to give us the powers to deal entirely with our own matters in all cases of dispute and so on.
1255. Have you not the power to do that now? We can compel persons to pay contributions by taking them to Court.
1256. Do you think that a desirable thing? No, we do not like it; that is my own opinion, and, I believe, the opinion of several of the leading members of the Order.
1257. Would it be preferable to allow members to go? No, we would rather have some other means of obtaining the contributions.
1258. What means would you suggest? I should think that the appointment of a Board which would have power to act would answer the purpose.
1259. You have a power in your by-laws which provides for dealing with disputes by means of arbitration? We have.
1260. How does that work? From my recollection I am not aware that the arbitrators have been called on.
1261. There has been no case arising? No, no case that has been referred to arbitration.
1262. I observe from these rules that no Lodge can fix its contributions above a certain sum? They have usually ranged from 1s. to 1s. 3d., and in some instances 1s. 4d., but not beyond that.
1263. Do you think it necessary to have a uniform code of by-laws for all Societies? Well, I think that is a matter that should be left to the Societies themselves to deal with.
1264. Do not you think it would simplify the working of the Society if there was uniformity? I am scarcely prepared to answer that question, as I have not given the subject sufficient thought.
1265. I understand you to say that your Grand Lodge has never had cause to complain of the financial position of any one of the subordinate Lodges? There have been instances of Lodges which have been closed from the dispersion of their members.
1266. Would that arise from want of funds? Not always.
1267. Do you know of any case where a Lodge has been closed in consequence of the want of sufficient funds? No; Lodges have generally been closed on account of members leaving, and not sufficient being left to support the Lodge.
1268. You have found, then, that the financial basis has been sufficient to meet all engagements? Generally it is so.
1269. Is there any case of failure within your own recollection? Not within my personal knowledge, though I do know of a Lodge in the Manning River district that within the last few years became extinct, and I think it was partly through the exhaustion of its funds, some of which were misappropriated by one of the members.
1270. But generally you say the Societies under you have been able to meet their financial engagements? Generally it is so.
1271. And there is a large sum of money to your credit? Yes.
1272. Amounting to how much? £22,000.
1273. With ninety Lodges? Something less than ninety.
1274. And how many members? About 5,000.
1275. In the event of a Lodge being dissolved, what provision is made for its members—does the Grand Lodge afford them any protection? It is quite competent for the members to join other branches of the Society, and that has been the usual course for them to take—to draw their clearances and join other Lodges.
1276. But suppose a member does not do so, does the Grand Lodge provide him with the benefits? It does; we have instances at the present time.
1277. In by-law No. 35 there is a provision for unfinancial members being admitted; what is the meaning and intention of that provision? It may possibly occur that a member, through some cause or other, has failed to pay his contributions within the term required. We consider a member unfinancial if he owes 13s., and by some accident he might not be able to come to his branch on that night. The following night he would be unfinancial; but under this by-law he could be admitted by a vote of the Lodge.
1278. In reference to the Society at the Manning, where the funds became reduced by reason of misappropriation, was it by an officer or private member? It was by an officer.
1279. What officer? Either treasurer or trustee.
1280. Do not you take a bond from your treasurer? There is a law to that effect.
1281. Do you take it in every case? So far as I know it is done.
1282. Was it done in this case? I am not aware.
1283. Mr. Rubie.] You have a juvenile branch in connection with your Society? I know an instance of a juvenile branch in the Hunter River district, but am not aware of any in Sydney.
1284. I see that upon page 71 of your rules there is something in reference to this subject? There is a desire to establish juvenile branches, but it has not been very successful.

1285. Then you are not acquainted with the working of this branch? No, I am not.
1286. Relative to the amount charged to the Sick and Funeral Fund, 6d. a week, is that the minimum levy upon the fund? That is the minimum.
1287. Are there many Lodges contributing more than that? It is only required that they should contribute that amount.
1288. Yes, but are there any contributing more than that? I am not aware of any.
1289. Have you in your experience found it sufficient to meet all demands on the fund? I think 6d. a week is scarcely equal to the amount, but in some districts it is quite sufficient. In Sydney and the Hunter River districts, however, it would be advisable that a larger amount should be paid.
1290. Then how are the funds maintained? By making levies.
1291. That is, when the funds go down to a certain distance a levy is made? A levy is made of sufficient amount to meet the current charge on that fund. If there are a number of deaths in a district the district makes a levy round the branches to meet the amount.
1292. And is that also the case on the death of a member's wife? Levies are made to meet all deaths.
1293. I see also that you provide for the death of a child? Yes.
1294. Is that particular branch working in Sydney? There are frequent claims on it.
1295. Could you give us a return in reference to that? The district officers could.
1296. The amounts vary according to the length of time? Yes.
1297. There is no special contribution to that fund? It is given out of a fund provided for the purpose, the Sick and Funeral Fund.
1298. Is there a registration fee charged for every child for which it is intended to claim the funeral donation? There is.
1299. And that funeral donation comes out of the general fund without any levy? Out of the District Funds.
1300. There is no special levy for that? The district makes a levy to provide for these funds.
1301. I see you provide here for arbitration—Have you had many cases to arbitrate on latterly? I do not remember any cases, at all events recently.
1302. Then you could not give us any information as to the competency of the mode which you lay down in your rules as to its general working? I cannot instance any case that has come under the operation of that law.
1303. Do you know of any case in other districts outside of your jurisdiction? I have no knowledge of any case of the kind.
1304. How often is a levy made to the Sick and Funeral Fund? The district makes its levies usually quarterly.
1305. And in case of funds going low they make an extra levy? They make a levy to meet the requirements.
1306. Even though a quarter has not elapsed since the levy was made? Just so.
1307. Do you admit members arriving from England on the same terms as those joining here? There are special provisions in our laws.
1308. Are they received beyond the age of 40? It is optional with Lodges to receive any member beyond the age of 40, that is by clearance.
1309. If they bring their clearances with them is it optional? Oh yes, but it is very seldom they are refused.
1310. Has each of your Lodges trustees? Each Lodge.
1311. How many are appointed by each Lodge? Two.
1312. With a treasurer? Yes.
1313. Have they the payment of all moneys in connection with the Lodge? Yes, the trustees sign all the vouchers.
1314. For sick pay? Not always for that, but for the banking of the funds.
1315. Mr. Newland.] What constitutes an unfinancial member—how many weeks contribution in arrear? Thirteen weeks.
1316. If a member owes thirteen weeks' contributions and they are not paid, what does the Lodge do with him? He is suspended from all benefits until he has made himself financial, and then for a period after that.
1317. If he is unfinancial for the space of twelve months what transpires? The Lodge has power to erase his name from the books.
1318. And have you not received from the districts the names of members which have thus been erased from the books? Yes.
1319. How can a member under these circumstances owe eight or ten pounds to the Society? It is impossible that he should do so.
1320. When he owes fifty-two shillings he is no longer a member of the Society then? That is so.
1321. Unless he rejoins? Yes.
1322. And if he is over the age of 40? He cannot join again.
1323. Has the Society refused individuals over the age of 40? Oh yes, cases often occur.
1324. Was there not a branch of your Society called the "Sons of Perseverance"? Yes.
1325. Is it still a branch of the Society? No, it is no longer a branch.
1326. Has it been expelled? The suspension of the Lodge took place some few years ago by the Sub-Committee of Management.
1327. Why was it suspended? For non-payment of levies and refusing to comply with the law.
1328. Did they give any reason for refusing to pay their levies? One reason was that they did not agree with the laws that were passed at the meeting held at Newcastle some years ago.
1329. Has the parent Society no means of compelling Lodges to pay their levies? I suppose they have the power to sue in the Courts.
1330. Why did they not in this case sue the "Sons of Perseverance" Lodge? I think it was from a dislike to take our business and matters into the Courts.
1331. And are the "Sons of Perseverance" still working as a Friendly Benefit Society? They are still in existence.
1332. And how do they style themselves? The "Sons of Perseverance Benefit Society," I believe.
1333. Not "Sons of Perseverance Grand United Order of Oddfellows"? Not now, I believe.

Mr.
A. L. Smith.
10 Dec., 1881.

Mr.
A. L. Smith.
19. Dec., 1881.

1334. When did that happen? I do not know officially; but I was told by Mr. Scott, of the Registrar's Office; that they purposed changing the name of their Society, and were going to register themselves under that name as soon as their laws were ready.
1335. But they have still the dispensation and rituals that were granted by your Grand Lodge? They have them still, although a demand has been made for them by our committee. We consider they belong to our Society, according to our law.
1336. And did they refuse to deliver them up? The demand was made, but it was not complied with.
1337. Are your benefits now the same as they were twenty years ago? I believe they are.
1338. You are not aware that they have been increased—I mean the funeral donations? There was an alteration, I believe, some few years ago.
1339. You are not certain whether they have been increased? Yes, I believe they have been altered.
1340. You have already stated that when Lodges dissolve through inability to carry on their business, the members can by clearance rejoin any other Lodge in connection with the Society? Yes.
1341. Mr. Stade.] Do you know of any instance in which the rates of entrance fee have been in any way different from what is laid down—in opening new Lodges particularly? I believe a special scale has been made for new branches in some instances.
1342. Do I understand that answer to imply that these rules have been set aside for these special occasions? We have not done more than the laws give us power to do.
1343. Do the laws give you power to set aside this scale? There is a discretionary power.
1344. Then this scale, which purports to be your scale of entrance fees, is only a scale so far as it suits the convenience of the Society? It is the scale usually adopted.
1345. Do I understand you to mean that it is not uniformly adopted? By existing branches it is, the usual rate of fees.
1346. What cases do you know of deviation from this scale? Only in the opening of some of the new branches.
1347. And could you tell the Commission to what extent these tables have been set aside and others substituted? Only as I have said, in the opening of two or three new Lodges.
1348. Do you make the same reply with regard to age? There is no deviation in the ages of members admitted.
1349. Are you aware of any cases in which the ages returned at which members have been admitted have been other than they actually were? No such instance has come under our notice; but if a member should by making a false statement gain admission, the law gives us power to expel him.
1350. Do you know of any cases in which members forming a new Lodge have been advised to give a lesser age than they really were? Certainly not.
1351. Have you ever taken the matter of graduated contributions into consideration? No, it has never come under any serious consideration; it has been talked about, but there have been no steps taken to have any such change made.
1352. In your own judgment do you think such a thing desirable? I should be prepared to admit the desirableness of considering the question.
1353. You mentioned just now that the minimum of subscription was 1s.; how much of that is available for sick pay? There is 6d. of that always placed to the Sick and Funeral Fund.
1354. Has it been hitherto sufficient to meet all liabilities? Yes.
1355. Do you know of any instances of repudiation? No, none have come under my knowledge.
1356. Do you know of any case in which less than the sum guaranteed has been given? No.
1357. You stated that you had some £22,000 in hand—Does that represent the value of halls and other property? Yes, it is the total available assets.
1358. Do you consider that this £4 9s. a head is a reasonable amount to meet any probable liabilities you may have? The average amount would have been higher, but we have made a large number of members during the past twelve months, which has had the effect of lowering the average.
1359. You gave an item, "doctors and medicine": what was the cost last year? £3,867 11s. 7d.
1360. What provisions do your laws make for the minority in the breaking up of a Lodge? There is a lot in that question.
1361. Is a person likely to be removed from the chance of continuing his benefits by any means other than his own action? No.
1362. So long as he complies with your laws he can belong to the Order? Yes.
1363. Does the District give the same amount of sick pay as the branch does? The sick pay and funeral donations are laid down by law, and he would be entitled to them from the District if the Lodge broke up.
1364. And how would he be supplied with medical attendance and medicines? The District would provide for this; the laws provide now.
1365. Are levies made at the death of a member, his wife, or child, or are they made in the usual way each quarter in advance? The workings of the Districts can be better explained by the District officers.
1366. I will simplify the question. Who fixes the levies for the Funeral Fund? The District officers, at the District meetings.
1367. The delegates voting at the time, or have they no power of voting on that? The District officers fix the amount of the levy, knowing what the expenditure for the quarter is.
1368. Are they not made for the probable deaths of the ensuing quarter? I could not state positively.
1369. Suppose the District officers have fixed the rate of levy, have the delegates power to alter it? Not that I am aware of.
1370. Then the levies are fixed by the officers without regard to any other power? They are made by the District officers to meet requirements.
1371. And are not made at the death of each member, or wife, or child? Oh no, not generally.
1372. The Widows' and Orphans' Fund, is that optional? It is optional, yes.
1373. Have you a separate Superannuation Fund to meet cases of permanent disability? No, nothing but the usual rate.
1374. In that case does the member continue to pay into the Lodge the same as any other person? No, he is not required to pay any further.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 9 January, 1882.

1375. President.] Do you produce a return in answer to a question submitted at the last meeting? Yes, it is here. (Appendix D.)

Mr.
A. L. Smith.

1376. Mr. Gelding.] How long is it, Mr. Smith, since the Grand United Order of Oddfellows has adopted the cheap initiation scale on the institution of new Lodges? I could not tell you positively, but I think from my recollection it has not been in existence more than about two or three years.

9 Jan., 1882.

1377. I may, I suppose, presume that the reason of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows adopting this scale was through the American Order of Oddfellows and the Protestant Alliance entering into active competition with them? I am not aware that it has been specially competing with them.

1378. But your Society adopted it immediately after these Societies? We have had the power to allow it for some time past.

1379. Do your laws also provide that after these cheap fees have ceased to exist, Lodges can have the power of returning to them at intervals to suit their own convenience? Yes, I think so; a Lodge, by making application to its District, may obtain permission; but it is necessary to obtain the permission of the District to adopt a lower scale of charges for a certain period, and even there is a restriction as regards age.

1380. You hardly catch the gist of my question, which is that a Lodge opening charges half-fees for a month, and then returns to the proper fees laid down in the rules for a certain time, and then again returns to the half-fees—do you allow them to do that? I have no recollection of any instance occurring of that kind.

1381. I presume no Lodge dare do anything contrary to your rules? It would have to be done with the permission of the District Secretary.

1382. What is your opinion as to the desirableness of allowing them to do this? I should not hold with it in the case of a new Lodge, but it might be necessary with an old-established Lodge that was wanting new and younger members.

1383. What is your opinion as to the justice of it to those who have joined in the interim, and who have paid the full fees? It would be by the voice of the Lodge and the majority of members; and if the majority of the members agreed I do not see that there could be any objection.

1384. Do you think that it is in any way proper to allow Lodges to have the power of doing it? I believe that in some instances it has been shown to be beneficial.

1385. I see in your returns that the Grand Division have the power of voting certain sums out of the Grand Lodge Funds to new Lodges to assist them; is that true? Our law gives us the power of contributing somewhat towards the expense of opening Lodges.

1386. You mean to say that you offer a premium to Lodges that wish to be opened in the shape of a money rate? No, not so.

1387. What Lodges in the Sydney District received the amount of £15 set out in your report as having been given? There has no such sum been given, except it be to some outside Lodge. It would not be to any particular Lodge, though there might be a number of Lodges. I do not remember the circumstance.

1388. But you are Grand Secretary; have you not command of the cash books? Yes, but I have not them here.

1389. President.] Are these amounts voted to the Districts generally? Yes.

1390. Mr. Langley.] Does that cover all the advances to the various Lodges, no matter how many have been opened in the District; it is not for any special Lodge in the District? No, certainly not; some Lodges are opened at a great distance, and we have to incur expense in opening them and paying officers' expenses.

1391. Mr. Gelding.] You mean to say that the Grand Lodge pays the cost of opening these new Lodges? No, not entirely.

1392. Are you aware of posters being distributed about the streets in Sydney offering very special advantages to members joining? Not except in the matter of half-fees at the institution of a new Lodge.

1393. I see you have some neutral Lodges in your district—how are they managed? They have the management of their affairs entirely in their own hands, excepting that they are attached to the Sub-Committee of Management.

1394. What amount do they pay to the Grand Lodge? They pay a levy for ordinary expenses, the same as the Districts or other Lodges.

1395. Are you aware that in some of these new Lodges instructions have been given to medical officers not to be particular in their examination? I am not aware of any such thing, and should decidedly say it was not the case.

1396. I see that in the Braidwood District there are 976 members, and their capital is £1,070.—How do you account for the smallness of that amount? That is simply in the Widows and Orphans' Fund; twelve months ago their funds were nearly £4,000, and they have improved since then.

1397. Can you inform the Commission what was the average per head last year? I think it was about £6; it was in one of the reports I put in evidence.

1398. How often do your Directors attend the Grand Committees? Every three months.

1399. How are they paid? The town members are paid 2s. 6d. for each meeting, and country members, of which we have only one on the Committee, get mileage and a rate per day.

1400. Do you not summons these others from the Manning River District and the Braidwood District? For the sake of economy they prefer to be represented by persons living in Sydney.

1401. President.] That is, they were represented by proxy? Yes; at the annual meeting those elected to represent (say) Braidwood District prefer to nominate some friend belonging to a Branch in Sydney to represent them, so that he is paid only as a city member.

1402.

Mr. A. L. Smith. 1402. Mr. Gelding.] Does that have the effect of positively throwing the whole management of the Order into the hands of members of the Sydney District? No, not entirely, because we had recently two instances of members on the Board who were contributing to the Districts they represented though they were Sydney residents.

9 Jan., 1882.

1403. You have had some experience in Friendly Societies, I presume, considering the nature of the office you hold? I have gained some little knowledge.

1404. What is your opinion of the sliding scale system now adopted by the large Societies in Great Britain? My attention was called before to that point, and I then stated that I considered it was desirable that a system of that sort was worth all consideration. It has not come before our Board in any way.

1405. Are you of opinion that the system under which your Society is acting at present, that is, the half fees, and returning to them again, and offering these great advantages, which no doubt you are doing, tends to create a sound financial system? I cannot see that it has done our Society any injury.

1406. But do you consider two years' experience is sufficient for you to gain any experience of its value? I know that good has been derived from it in that time.

1407. Are you aware that in some of the Societies that have been working on the same system the Lodges are virtually insolvent? No, I have not heard that, but our half-fees are but little below the full fees of the Manchester Unity.

1408. Mr. Langley.] What is the proportion of the number of those leaving membership in your Order to that of initiations? I could not give you that information now.

1409. Could you supply us with a return giving the information? It could easily be ascertained from the returns.

1410. President.] Perhaps you will add that to your evidence when it is sent to you? Yes, with pleasure.

1411. Mr. Gelding.] I see that any Districts or neutral branches failing to send representatives is liable to be fined £5—do you ever put that rule into force? I do not know that it has ever been put in force.

1412. Do you think you could make them pay it if you wished to do so? I suppose we should have a difficulty in getting it.

1413. President.] You have handed in a return showing the ages of members at time of death and the amount of funeral donations, with other information; in the first column I see the word "Ages," what does that refer to? The age at time of death.

1414. But did we not ask you to furnish a return of the ages of persons when initiated into the Order—one is no use without the other? I am sorry I did not understand that.

1415. Will you kindly supply that information? Yes, I will do that.

1416. Is there anything you would like to say yourself to the Commission? No, I do not think there is at present.

1417. I believe you are of opinion that some amendment of the law is required? Yes, as far as I stated on the last occasion.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 13th January.

FRIDAY, 13 JANUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
PHILIP J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,
PHILIP RISBY HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
WILLIAM E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Richard Cannon sworn and examined:—

Mr. R. Cannon. 1418. President.] What position do you occupy? I am Grand Secretary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

1419. How long has the Order of which you are a member been in existence here? Since January, 1877, so far as I am aware.

1420. How long have you been Grand Secretary? From last October twelve months—since the Grand Lodge was instituted.

1421. And has the Grand Lodge of New South Wales only been instituted within the last fifteen months? That is all.

1422. No Grand Lodge existed previously? No.

1423. Was there any central governing body in respect to Lodges? The Grand Lodge of Victoria.

1424. I suppose all the correspondence and business in connection with the Order goes through the governing body now in Sydney? Yes, sir.

1425. How many Lodges are there now in connection with the Order? Twenty-four.

1426. And about what number of members are there? 1,463.

1427. They are divided into how many Lodges? That was the result of twenty Lodges last September; since then we have had four additional Lodges instituted.

1428. Where are these Lodges held—what parts of the Colony? Sydney and suburbs, Newcastle, Goulburn, Mount Victoria, Penrith, South Creek, and Albury.

1429. Have you districts in connection with your Order? Yes.

1430. What are the districts? They are appointed by the Grand Master.

1431. Could you tell us where they are situated? I could not—it is a matter within the province of the Grand Master alone.

1432. I presume you keep records of all the proceedings? Yes.

1433. And when the Grand Master appoints a District? He appoints an officer for each separate District.

1434. And have you no record of that? I have a record of the officers appointed.

1435. But are the Districts divided? They are not subdivided distinctly.

1436. Have you any Districts at all? Yes, sir.

1437. Will you kindly name some of them ; is Sydney a District? No, sir ; there are various District Deputy Officers appointed over different Lodges ; one might be in the South Head Road and another at North Shore.

1438. Do these Lodges in different parts of the Colony communicate direct with you, or with some local body or person appointed by the Grand Master? As to the routine of clerical work they correspond direct with the Grand Secretary, but with regard to points of order they communicate with the District Deputy, and he communicates with the Grand Master.

1439. You have annual communications, have you not? Yes.

1440. Are they movable? No, not yet, for we have only had one.

1441. Are they always held in Sydney? The only one we have yet had was held in Sydney, but the majority may appoint the place of meeting—it may be movable.

1442. How are these subordinate Lodges represented at the Grand Lodge? By officers ; one officer who has filled the chair of Noble Grand, one officer for the Charter, and one for each fifty members, or major part of fifty members.

1443. Do these subordinate Lodges attached to your Order make their own rules and by-laws? Here is a copy of the Constitution, which is binding on all Lodges ; but, supplementary to this, a Lodge may make by-laws, sanctioned by the Grand Lodge, so that they will not conflict with the Constitution.

1444. Now, in these by-laws, do they fix the amount of contributions to the Sick Fund and the Funeral Fees? Yes, that is fixed in the Constitution.

1445. But what I want to know is whether the Lodges are permitted to fix these fees for themselves? No.

1446. They must adhere to the scale fixed by the Constitution? They must.

1447. Have you a book here of your Constitution? Yes, sir, I have. (Constitution produced.)

1448. Could you give this Commission any information as to the ages when the respective members have been admitted into the Order, and the ages when they died, if any have died? Yes ; I have not the returns with me, but I could supply all that.

1449. What we want to know is numerically the number of members who have been admitted, and their ages at the time of admission and at death ; could you furnish that? Yes.

1450. Is it within the knowledge of the Grand Secretary? Yes.

1451. I suppose that in all Lodges the parties have to make a declaration as to their ages? Yes, they are supposed to declare their ages when under examination by the medical officer.

1452. Then is that information furnished to the Grand Lodge? Yes.

1453. Then do not you also know the ages at which the members died? The ages are all sent in on the returns.

1454. Could you furnish the Commission with a return showing the respective ages of persons when they were initiated, and at which they died? I should have to send to Victoria for the information.

1455. Have you no record here in any of your books? I have a record of those since October, 1880.

1456. Would it be very much trouble for you to write to Victoria asking them to supply the information? No.

1457. I think you stated that your book of Constitutions would furnish information as to the amount of Contributions, Sick and Funeral Funds, and so on? Yes.

1458. These funds, I presume, are kept separate, are they not? Yes.

1459. Do you ever make any special levies in your Order? We have the power to do so, but we have not done so yet.

1460. You have found the contributions sufficient without resorting to special levies? Yes.

1461. Have you any sliding scale in connection with your Order? No.

1462. Could you tell the Commission what amount of money you have to the credit of the Order now? To the credit of the Funeral Fund, £814 3s. 4d. ; and Incidental Fund, £8 8s. 8d.

1463. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have a Sick Fund? We have no Sick Fund in the Grand Lodge. These are the funds received by the Grand Lodge on a capitation of 2s. per member per quarter for the Funeral Fund. The Sick Fund is managed by the subordinate Lodges, and there is about £1,900 to the credit of the Sick Fund ; but I have only the returns up to last June.

1464. President.] For greater accuracy it would be better that you should supply us with a return in reference to this ; will you do so? Yes.

1465. This Incidental Fund, what is that? It is for management expenses. Each Lodge pays 9d. per member, per quarter, to the Grand Lodge for management expenses, and 2s. per quarter to the Funeral Fund.

1466. Could you tell us what the expense of the management was during the year? I have in my books taken the time from which the Grand Lodge was instituted, October, 1880, to June, 1881, as the first half-year, and from July 1st till December, as the second half-year.

1467. What was the expenditure between these dates? £338 1s., and this includes some £150 for goods, and so on. I could give you the Management Fund of the Lodges ; for the six months ending June 30 it was £308 2s. 6d. ; that covers eighteen Lodges. The total income for these Lodges during the same period was £1,861 3s. 10d.

1468. I suppose you are acquainted with the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.

1469. You are aware that certain returns have to be sent in to the Registrar during each year? Yes.

1470. Have the subordinate Lodges and the Grand Lodges complied with this law? I have sent in the returns for the Grand Lodge.

1471. Do the returns from subordinate Lodges come through you, or are they sent direct to the Registrar? They ought to come through the Grand Secretary, but the Registrar of Friendly Societies seems to give an audience to all who will go to him.

1472. Then you do not know yourself whether that part of the law has been complied with in respect to your subordinate Lodges? No.

1473. Is there anything in your Constitution which makes it imperative on the subordinate Lodges to send returns through the Grand Lodge? Yes, there is a clause in our Constitution which says that the Grand Secretary shall be the medium of communication between the Registrar and the Lodges.

1474. Have you ever attempted to enforce that in regard to subordinate Lodges ; that is, to compel them to send returns through the Grand Lodge instead of direct to the Registrar? No. I have got the forms now, and have issued them to the Lodges, telling them that they should return them to me, to be sent in to the Registrar.

Mr.
R. Cannou.
13 Jan., 1882.

Mr.
R. Cannon.
13 Jan., 1882.

1475. Having made yourself acquainted with the law regulating Friendly Societies, is there any particular clause or portion of that law that you could suggest to the Commission requires amendment or alteration? Yes.

1476. Will you just state briefly the clauses you refer to? As regards the returns from the Friendly Societies, they are not specific enough. In the old forms of return—I have filled them in myself, and sent them in—Doctors' and Medical Benefits together were included in the Management Fund. Then, according to these new returns, entrance or initiation fees are in common; now, in our Order, we apportion a certain part of these to the Sick Fund and part to the Incidental Fund; but the returns only give the contributions to the Sick and Funeral Funds. I am showing you this to show how imperfect these returns are; you cannot possibly arrive at either the income or expenditure of the Lodges by them. Another great fault in them may be shown thus: in many Lodges we have a doctor who may be attending three or four or a dozen members belonging to other Lodges, and the expense thus incurred would appear under the head "Expenses for medical attendance." In Victoria I tried to make myself acquainted with the Societies there, and these beautiful forms which I produce (Appendix E) show the "amounts paid for attendance on and medicines for members of other Branches." By our form a false income is shown and a false expenditure.

1477. The forms you refer to were those which have been issued by Mr. Oliver? Yes, they are a great improvement, but they are capable of still further improvement. These I hold in my hand (the Victorian forms) would be well worthy of the consideration of the Commission.

1478. Is there any other suggestion you would like to make in reference to these forms? No, I consider that, were these to be adopted and compulsorily passed through the Lodges, it would save a great deal of possible swindling on the part of Secretaries and others. It is quite possible now for the Secretary to make a balance-sheet for his Lodge, and to send a fictitious one to the Grand Lodge.

1479. Do you know in any special or general way of any alteration you could suggest in the law as it now exists in the Friendly Societies Act; are there any particular clauses that you have paid special attention to that you think require amendment? No.

1480. Do you think the law is defective, or is it the practical working of the Registrar's Office under the law that is defective? I could not give an opinion.

1481. Mr. Smith.] How long have you been identified with the Order as Grand Secretary? Since the establishment of the Grand Lodge, in October, 1880.

1482. Your governing body is not situated in this Colony, is it? Our local governing body is.

1483. Your supreme governing body is not situated here? No.

1484. Where is it situated? There is one supreme body which is recognized by the delegates from all the Australian Colonies, called the Grand Lodge of Australasia.

1485. What part of the world is it situated in? It is composed of members of the various Grand Lodges of Australasia; but for ordinary intents and purposes the Grand Lodge of New South Wales is supreme in the Colony.

1486. I understood you to say that you would have to apply or write to Victoria, to a Lodge there, for some information; how does that arise? The Lodges here were subordinate to the Grand Lodge of Victoria till we found ourselves sufficiently strong to have a Grand Lodge of our own.

1487. Then your Grand Lodge is not paying contributions to any other Grand Lodge in any other part of the world? Yes, we pay an assessment of 1d. per member to the Grand Lodge of Australasia.

1488. That is situated where? It is movable, holding triennial sessions.

1489. In the event of a number of your subordinate Lodges having to collapse through a run upon their funds, what would be the position of its members towards the Grand Lodge? It is mentioned in the Constitution, but it is a question that I have not considered. Section 68 says that if a subordinate Lodge shall be expelled from or shall sever its connection with the Order —

1490. Yes, but that is not what I meant. If one or more of your subordinate Lodges collapses through a run upon its funds, and has to surrender to the Grand Lodge its warrant or charter, what is the position of the members left with reference to the Grand Lodge of New South Wales—how do you provide for them? Before a Lodge could come into that state the Grand Lodge would order levies to be made from the members.

1491. But in the event of having done so and all resources having failed, how would those members be protected by your Grand Lodge for the contributions they had paid? That is a question I cannot answer just now.

1492. President.] Does the Grand Lodge undertake the liabilities? Yes, we undertake the liabilities so far as it would be in our province and means as a Grand Lodge.

1493. Mr. Smith.] What are the advantages arising from being connected with the supreme Grand Lodge, for the maintenance of which connection a sort of fee is extracted from each member? It is for unity of government.

1494. Only that? Yes; and the fee is simply to pay for representation.

1495. You stated, in answer to the President, that your Grand Lodge fixes the contributions that are to be paid to all your subordinate Lodges? Yes, the Constitution provides for that.

1496. Provides that a certain standard of contribution shall be paid? Yes.

1497. Is it a uniform rate of contribution for the whole Colony of New South Wales? The rates are different—members on the doctor's list pay 1s. 3d.; those not on the doctor's list pay 1s.

1498. And that is the uniform rate adopted for subordinate Lodges in the Colony? Yes.

1499. Do you find that ample to meet all requirements in the country districts, where doctor's fees and medicines are very expensive? Yes.

1500. Mr. Godding.] You have told the Commission that, although you hold your position of Grand Secretary, the majority of documents never come through your hands? I did not state that.

1501. You said that a great quantity were sent to the Grand Master? I stated that matters of points of order and so on might be addressed to the District Deputy for the Grand Master.

1502. And do not they come through your hands first? No.

1503. You stated just now that the weekly rate of contributions is—for members on the medical list 1s. 3d., and non-medical 1s.; is that the fact? Yes.

1504. Are you aware of any Lodges that only pay 1s. for all these benefits? No.

1505. Are you aware that the Ashfield Lodge only pays 1s.? No.

1506. Are you aware that on account of the low rate of contribution paid to that Lodge they had to ask for money to pay sick allowances? From whom?

Mr.
R. Cannon.
13 Jan., 1882.

1507. From the Grand Lodge? They have never done so.
1508. Is this (document produced) your balance-sheet? For December, 1880; it is a statement of the Lodge Funds.
1509. I see by this that there is a majority of Lodges in the Order in debt to the Incidental Fund; is that correct? They were indebted then.
1510. How do they stand at the present time? I have not got the returns in yet for December.
1511. Have you them up to September? I have.
1512. Could you inform the Commission whether there is any improvement? Oh, there is a great improvement in them.
1513. Could you tell me the Lodges indebted to the Incidental Fund then? There is No. 1. In some of the Lodges the Funds are not divided.
1514. Then you cannot give the information I ask for? Not for the whole of them.
1515. You stated to the Commission that if the Victorian returns were brought into vogue here it would possibly do away with Secretaries compiling fictitious balance-sheets? Yes.
1516. Are your balance-sheets audited before being sent to the Registrar? They should be.
1517. But are they? The issued form requires that they should be.
1518. As Grand Secretary of this Order, are you not in a position to say they are duly audited? They are duly audited.
1519. Can you give us the average per head per member up to last December, of the total funds—or (say) last September? The Subordinate Lodges had in hand about £1,900 in June, and the Grand Lodge £822 12s. in December last.
1520. As to this Grand Lodge, to which a capitation tax has been remitted, has a session ever been held in New South Wales? Oh no; it has only lately been formed, and there has only been the one meeting.
1521. What Colony, since the Order has been in existence, has this money been remitted to? To Victoria, the one remittance.
1522. Are you aware that it is contrary to the Friendly Societies Act for Lodges here to have anything to do with Victoria, or to be in any way governed by the rules they may frame? I am not aware of it.
1523. Have you ever studied the Friendly Societies Act on that point? No, not on that point.
1524. I see that each member pays 2s. a quarter towards the Funeral Fund levy, and 9d. to the Incidental Fund levy; can you tell me the average most of the Lodges pay for medical benefits? The average is about 6s. 3d. a quarter.
1525. That, I presume, means more in Sydney than in the country districts? I am not aware of what every Lodge actually does pay; I know some pay more and some less; some pay 6s. 6d. and others only 5s. 9d.
1526. And in the country districts? I am not aware what they pay.
1527. Are you aware that they pay at least 7s. a quarter? I am not aware of it.
1528. Are you of opinion that your average per head is sufficient to meet all your liabilities; that is something like £3 a head of the total value of the funds? Well, if the members were all young and we were continually making Lodges I think it would be ample; but when a Society grows large and is not making new members, then I notice by statistics that were it not for the large amount of interest derivable from investments Lodges could not be continued. For instance, taking the returns from Victoria of the Manchester Unity, which there numbers about 13,000 members, and has about £180,000 in funds, I find their funeral and sick pay was £800 more than the amount of income; and were it not for the large amount of interest they received they could not have met their claims; but their interest amounted to about £9,000.
1529. President.] Do you mean the interest on capital invested by the Society? Yes.
1530. Mr. Golding.] You have taken an interest in the working of Friendly Societies in Victoria? No; but I have the returns with me. I was down in Melbourne a fortnight ago and got the information, as I thought it might be useful to the Commission.
1531. You look upon the forms and everything connected with the Societies in Victoria as being patterns to go by? I do certainly.
1532. What is your opinion of the general workings of the Orders in Victoria? I do not know much about them, but if I take these elaborate returns I see that they afford all the information necessary respecting members dying; and the ages are given. Every member in a Friendly Society there has a number, by turning to which every particular can be found, such as when he was married, and so on. These particulars can all be found by a simple reference to this number.
1533. Are you aware that the Registrar in Victoria thinks £10 a head is not more than sufficient? I do not know the gentleman, and I do not know what his opinions are.
1534. Have you studied the Act at present in existence in New South Wales? I have read it two or three times.
1535. Have you ever considered it advisable that a lot of the clauses should be altered? No.
1536. Mr. Slade.] You spoke of special levies: are they regulated by the will of the Grand Officers, or are they fixed by the delegates assembled? They are fixed by the desire of the Grand Lodge.
1537. Who fixes the amount of the levies? The Grand Lodge.
1538. The officers, or officers and delegates combined? The Grand Lodge; and when the Grand Lodge is not in session, the Standing Committee.
1539. What forms your Grand Lodge in this Colony? Representatives who have been through the Chairs in subordinate Lodges.
1540. Do these representatives have any voice in fixing these levies? No, unless when the Grand Lodge is in session.
1541. What levies do they fix then, not being in session? There has never been a levy made up to the present time; the two shilling levy for the Funeral Fund is fixed by the general rules.
1542. And is the ninepenny levy movable? Yes, it is movable, and is fixed annually by the representatives of the Grand Lodge.
1543. Then when you speak of special levies, you mean levies arising out of some sudden emergency which the officers have the power of fixing in the intervals between the sessions? Yes.
1544. Does your Order offer any special advantages to the founders or opening members of a new Lodge? No.
1545. Not in the amount of admission-fee or as to age? The scale is proportioned according to age.

- Mr.
R. Cannon.
15 Jan., 1882.
1546. Is there no advantage like half-fees extended to opening or founding members of your Lodges? Yes, there are half-fees when new Lodges are opened.
1547. Does the advantage extended to opening members or founding members extend to their ages? To all ages.
1548. I mean do you allow a greater limit for ages at that time than at any other time? No.
1549. Have any of your Lodges broken up since you have registered the Order in this Colony? No.
1550. Have your Lodges at any time repudiated the claims for sick pay made upon them? No, not that I am aware of.
1551. Does 25s. a year represent the average amount your Lodges pay the doctors? About 25s.
1552. And 11s. a year is the annual levy to the Grand Lodge? That is the levy.
1553. Do management expenses, salaries, other expenses, and things of that sort come to more than about 3d. per member? The management expense amounted to £308 for the half-year.
1554. Can you give us any information as to the amount it costs for management expenses per individual member in each Lodge; do you think 3d. per quarter would represent a fair average cost? It would not pay.
1555. Do you think 13s. 2d. a year per member would represent all the management expenses of a Lodge? Yes, that ought to pay for the working.
1556. You say your income is 65s. a year? Yes.
1557. Then, as these amounts represent 49s. 2d. a year out of the whole contributions, there is a balance of 15s. 10d. for sick pay; in your opinion is that sufficient? No, it is not sufficient. We pay 30s. to the Sick Fund and Funeral Fund, and, deducting from this the 8s. rent to the Grand Lodge for the Funeral Fund, there is 22s. left for the Sick Fund.
1558. Will you admit 25s. for the doctor and medicine, 11s. for levies, and 22s. for sick pay; this amounts to 58s., leaving 7s. as a balance—Is that sufficient to manage your Society per head? You are counting the 8s. twice over; it is included in the sick pay.
1559. Does your Grand Lodge provide sick pay for your members? No.
1560. Does not the Lodge itself pay its sick pay out of the balance of money after you have paid the levies and doctor? Yes.
1561. Then, how can the 8s. comprise your sick pay? I misunderstood your question.
1562. After you have paid your levies and management, doctors and medicine, is not the remainder devoted to claims for sick pay? No.
1563. To what other purpose? To the Incidental Fund. We put aside a certain fixed amount for each financial member per month for sick pay; we allow half-a-crown per month.
1564. President.] I suppose you have had balance-sheets; have you had them printed? Yes, we shall have them printed.
1565. When done will you send one here? Yes.
1566. That will show all the balances? Yes.
1567. And will you send copies of the rules, too? Yes.
1568. I want to ask you whether these contributions and rates to the Sick and Funeral Fund have been submitted to an actuary to decide as to whether they are sufficient? They have in Victoria.
1569. That is, their dues you have fixed here? Yes.
1570. And has he decided that they are sufficient? Yes.
1571. Mr. Slade.] Do you keep the Sick, Funeral, and Management Funds separately? The Sick and Funeral in one, with separate management.
1572. Have you any separate Pension or Superannuation Fund? No.
1573. Mr. Gelding.] Are you aware that the Government actuary in Victoria has refused to certify any Friendly Society's scales as being sufficient to meet the liabilities? I am not aware of it.
1574. Can you inform me what actuary there certified yours? No.
1575. President.] Was it Mr. Hayter (the Government Statist) or a private actuary? A private actuary.
1576. Mr. Newland.] Have you any other body of management above you besides the supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia; I see something about a Sovereign Grand Lodge? The Sovereign Grand Lodge we acknowledge is the supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia.
1577. And you really pay no capitation tax to any Grand Lodge other than this held in Australasia? No.
1578. What is the cost of regalia in your Order? I could not answer that question; some members buy the material and make the regalia themselves.
1579. I mean the regalia worn by the Lodge officers—the Lodge regalia? From £9 to £10.
1580. And are all the Lodges supposed to get a set of regalia? Yes.
1581. What is about the probable cost of opening a new Lodge, including regalia, books, ceremonial rituals, and everything complete? It might be done for about £25.
1582. That would include instructing officers' expenses, advertisements, printing, and everything else? Yes, it would include everything.
1583. And is this charged to the new Lodge? Yes.
1584. Are you in favour of a graduated scale of payment? Yes, I would be in favour of it.
1585. Mr. Langley.] Has the Grand Lodge of Australasia any other province as regards the Grand Lodge here, except that it is an appellate body? That is all.
1586. Are you aware whether, under your rules, it has ever been compulsory to institute a special levy to meet current expenses? I am not aware.
1587. In your position as Grand Secretary has it ever come within your knowledge? No.
1588. If it had been, would you have known it? Oh yes.
1589. Then, judging from the results so far, has the scale of charges been such as to induce you to say to this Commission that it works satisfactorily, and that the results as regards the future seem to be assured? Yes, that is my opinion.
1590. The Funeral Fund is guaranteed by the Grand Lodge, I understand? It is guaranteed by the Grand Lodge to the subordinate Lodges.
1591. Has the Grand Lodge anything to do with that fund except as custodians of it—does it form a part of the Grand Lodge Fund? No, it is a special fund.
1592. Do you know any case throughout the Colony in which any contribution rates have been made specially, or is it the case throughout the whole of the Colonies that one single rate prevails, without regard to

Mr.
R. Cannon.
13 Jan., 1882

- to circumstances or persons? There are half-fees for initiations at the opening of new Lodges, but the contributions are always 1s. 3d. and 1s.
1593. Then is your scale of charges for initiations and contributions strictly adhered to throughout the Colony? I am not aware of any variation.
1594. Is there any Lodge that is allowed to charge less than another? No, that is not allowed.
1595. How do the Lodges generally manage with their balance-sheets? They are examined and signed by three auditors.
1596. Have you any other guarantee for their correctness? There is then an audit committee of the Grand Lodge who examine them again.
1597. Do you consider this a sufficient guarantee, or would you think it advisable to act as they do in Victoria and provide Government auditors? I certainly, from my own experience, state that it is not sufficient.
1598. Could you suggest to the Commission any better plan? The best plan would be to have such sheets as those of the Victorian Registrar.
1599. Could you suggest a better plan of auditing the accounts so as to see that they are kept correctly? Certainly, to have a Government auditor.
1600. What is your number of members? 1,463.
1601. Did you state the management expenses of the subordinate Lodges? £308 2s. 6d.
1602. And the income was £1,861 3s. 10d.? Yes, that is the returns for eighteen Lodges.
1603. Mr. Holdsworth.] I think you stated that your contributions were 1s. and 1s. 3d. per week? Yes.
1604. That is 52s. and 65s. per annum, is it not? Yes.
1605. Your Grand Lodge levies are? 3s.
1606. Did you say you paid for medical men and medicine about 25s.? Yes.
1607. And funeral levy 8s.? Yes.
1608. And you laid aside £1 2s. for sick pay? Yes.
1609. That makes £2 18s. altogether? Yes.
1610. And leaves 7s.? Yes.
1611. How, then, did you pay at the rate of 8s. or 8s. 6d. per member for working expenses? I cannot account for it, unless from the fact that in addition to the 65s. there are members initiated, and part of the initiation-fee goes to that fund. The expenses have been rather heavier than they should have been, because a lot of money has gone for regalia and the opening of new Lodges—expenses that will not occur again.
1612. But in the other case where members are not on the doctor's list you stated the receipts per head were 52s. a year? Yes.
1613. The levy is 3s. still? Yes.
1614. The funeral levy 8s. still? Yes.
1615. And sick pay £1 2s. still? Yes.
1616. That makes a total of £1 13s., leaving a balance of 19s. to be appropriated for expenses? Yes, that is the case.
1617. Mr. Langley.] And honorary members contribute to the funds of the Lodge, do they not? Yes.
1618. They get no benefits whatever? No.
1619. Mr. Holdsworth.] Do I understand that you are not satisfied with the system of audit at present? I am not.
1620. What would you think of having the whole of the returns made up through the Grand Secretaries, and a declaration being filed with them? That would be the proper procedure.
1621. Mr. Gelding.] How many members have you who do not avail themselves of the medical benefits? I could not tell you.
1622. Mr. Greville.] I presume the Grand Lodge has not any funds for investment? We invest the Funeral Funds.
1623. And how are these funds invested? Principally in the Savings Bank.
1624. Is there any regulation of your Order directing how they shall be invested? The Trustees invest the money.
1625. But I mean as to the nature of the security, or is that left entirely to them? It is in the hands of the Trustees, with the sanction of the Grand Lodge.
1626. And as a matter of fact, how are they invested? In the Savings Bank, and in other Banks in the Colony.
1627. Mr. Smith.] You stated just now that the two audits through which your accounts pass are not a sufficient guarantee as to their correctness? No, that is my opinion.
1628. Would you favour the Commission with what induces you to give that as an opinion, because I presume what will apply to your Order will apply to all others? I came to that conclusion from facts that have come under my notice. Balance-sheets have been prepared and submitted to me, and I have found on examination of the books that another balance-sheet was laid before the Lodge. I found that the one was audited and sent in as the correct one, when there were actually more funds than was stated.
1629. Was this through carelessness or the want of competency on the part of the persons who acted as auditors? Through the want, in my opinion, of proper returns—proper forms for giving information.
1630. Then this inaccuracy that occurred in the auditing was brought about from the fact that the returns supplied by the Registrar are not ample? Yes.
1631. And until they are remedied you will not look upon your auditors' reports as being perfectly correct? I do not think they are incorrect, but they may be.
1632. But you have known a case or two in which they were incorrect? I know of one.
1633. And you think that this has been brought about by the Act being faulty, and by the non-supply of proper returns? I do not say that; but if proper returns were prepared the difficulty would be obviated.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 16th January.

MONDAY, 16 JANUARY, 1882.

WILLIAM E. LANGLEY, Esq.

William Edward Langley, Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, sworn and examined:—

W. E.
Langley.
16 Jan., 1882.

1634. President.] You are a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of New South Wales? I am.

1635. What position do you occupy in the Order? That of Grand Master.

1636. I presume you have Lodges in various parts of the Colony? Yes.

1637. And are they governed by a Grand Lodge in Sydney? They are governed by a Grand Lodge in Sydney, and by their rules and regulations, a copy of which you have got, and which are certified by the Registrar. I may correct an impression that seems to be abroad that this is an American Order. It is the oldest Friendly Society there is in the Colonies; it was established here much over forty years ago, and has been in existence in Victoria for nearly the same length of time. It was established here as under the authority of the Grand Lodge of England, and from Sydney they received in all the Colonies warrants to open Lodges, and subsequently Grand Lodges. I myself have been a member of the Order since 1855.

1638. How long is it since the Grand Lodge was established here? I think the first Grand Lodge session closed on November 1st, 1880; prior to that time all the Lodges worked under Charters from the Grand Lodge of Victoria.

1639. The Grand Lodge here is still subject, is it not, to the Grand Lodge of Victoria? It is not; we act quite independently of anybody, with the exception of the Grand Lodge of Australasia, to which any appeals may be taken for revision.

1640. What is the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of Australasia? It is formed by the representatives from each of the Grand Lodges of Victoria, South Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, and New South Wales.

1641. Then do I understand that it is more a Court of Appeal than otherwise? Only that; and, in order to support it, a penny per member per annum is levied, that amount being more than repaid by the Grand Lodge paying the expenses of the delegates or supreme Grand Lodge representatives who attend. They are paid mileage and per diem.

1642. Have you any Districts attached to your Order? Not in the ordinary sense. As Grand Master I appoint Districts; that is to say, Districts consist of one, two, or more Lodges presided over by a Past Grand. He is in no way a member of either of the Lodges, but is there simply to see that the Constitution is carried out in its integrity, to give the passwords, and report to me, or to the Grand Master, any breach of the rules, or any breach of this Constitution. All the work in connection with the Lodges is done through the Head Office in Sydney; and to the Grand Lodge is sent the whole of the moneys for what is known as the Funeral Fund; and by the Executive Committee of the Grand Lodge that money is handed over for investment by the Grand Lodge Trustees, in such manner as they may direct in accordance with the Constitution.

1643. Then, as I understand it, the Lodges communicate direct with the Grand Lodge in Sydney? They do.

1644. And not through these District Past Grand Masters? No, except on questions of law or in an appeal against their decisions.

1645. Are there any geographical limits to these districts? None.

1646. These Lodges have power, I believe, to fix their own contributions? No.

1647. Then these contributions are fixed by the Grand Lodge? They were fixed by the Grand Lodge in session and submitted to the Registrar of Friendly Societies, and these terms are laid down in sections 110 and 111 of the Constitution.

1648. Then these subordinate Lodges have no power or discretion in fixing the amount of fees? None whatever; it is the act of their representatives in Grand Lodge session assembled.

1649. Now these fees, contributions, Sick and Funeral Funds, thus fixed by your regulations—could you inform the Commission from what data they were fixed, or whether it has been ascertained that they are ample to meet any demands there might be on the Order? Yes; some years ago, when I was Grand Master in Victoria in 1861, we had the opinion of a gentleman, a member of the Order—I think a Mr. Martin,—to go through the proposed scale and say what was the lowest scale upon which, under the circumstances and knowing the working, we could work, and I think that, as nearly as possible, this is the scale he then laid down as a minimum; at that time we were not under a Friendly Societies Act, and I was opposed to making the Order a mere Benefit Society.

1650. And this Mr. Martin, was he an actuary, or a man who understood these things? I am almost certain he was a professional—Mr. Montgomery Martin; he is, I believe, now dead.

1651. Do you know as a fact whether the ages of the members of the Order, and the deaths, and the amount of sickness, and so on, was furnished to him as data to go upon in making his calculations? No, I do not think they were; but I will tell you what was furnished, and that is—the workings of the various Lodges for a given time, the number of members, and the results taken from one period to another, without reference to ages; because, looking upon it from a question of age, you may take a young Lodge now, and that Lodge will be in a worse position actuarially than a Lodge of much older persons. Taking the ages would be fallacious, because that would imply that the Lodge was going to remain constantly in the same position as regards ages. Take a Lodge from one year's end to another, and you may get an idea of its workings on the whole, but the ages appear to me to have very little to do with the matter.

1652. But is not a young man more desirable as a member than an older man? Undoubtedly, but you cannot keep him young always; you have to allow for young men coming in and others getting old. In addition to this, old men take more interest in the working of the Order than the young men.

W. E.
Langley:

16 Jan., 1882.

1653. I suppose you have paid some attention to the Friendly Societies Act? I have; before I registered this Constitution I went through it very carefully.
1654. Do all the returns that are sent in to the Registrar from the Lodges under your Order come through the Grand Lodge? They should do so.
1655. But do they? Until I read Mr. Oliver's evidence I was under the impression that they came in regularly; and I have in one instance suspended the Charter of a Lodge for not sending them in.
1656. You are aware that Mr. Oliver considers it necessary that each separate Lodge should send in returns? I am aware of it.
1657. Are you not of opinion that it would be better that they should come through the Grand Lodge? Unquestionably, and they should be properly attested; and then the Registrar could deal with the Grand Lodge instead of with a number of individuals.
1658. Have you any "miscellaneous" Lodges attached to your Order? None; I think they are a mistake, as you cannot bind them by the Constitution, however they may be bound by the Friendly Societies Act.
1659. In your consideration of the Act, is there anything special or particular that you could point out that you think requires some remedy in the shape of legislation? I think if the Act was condensed, at least as regards Friendly Societies, it would meet all the requirements of the public. I should like to see the Act simply lay down the basis of things to be done, and not go into details in cases where there are grand bodies here; and these grand bodies should be made amenable directly to the law.
1660. You think it would be a wise thing to provide some machinery by which disputes amongst the various members might be settled amongst themselves, instead of appealing to the Courts of Law? I think you will find in our Constitution that it is provided for—that no member of our Order is allowed to go outside it.
1661. But is there anything in the law which justifies that? I do not know; but this Constitution is certified by the Registrar as in accordance with the law.
1662. But is there anything to prevent any member of your Order going to the Courts of Law if he chooses? There is in our Constitution.
1663. But do they override an Act of Parliament? No.
1664. Then that Act of Parliament would enable any member of your Order to resort to a Court of Law? Yes, but he would then be no longer a member of the Order.
1665. Would you expel him for doing so? Certainly.
1666. You thoroughly agree, then, that it would be a prudent thing that the shape of legislation should be that all these differences that affect their own local interests should be dealt with by the bodies themselves? Yes.
1667. And that there should be some such institution as a final Court of Appeal? I believe that each Order should have the right to govern itself in every respect, with one exception; and that is, the breaking of any fundamental principle of a short Friendly Societies Act.
1668. I suppose you are aware that there are a large number of the population that are involved in the interests of Friendly Societies and Benefit Societies? I am aware of it.
1669. That being the case, do you think the Government of the country would be justified in the establishment of a separate Department to deal with these matters? I do.
1670. And do you think that all the contributions and the rates of the Sick and Funeral Fund should be submitted to actuarial examination and inquiry? I believe that in connection with any properly-organised branch of the Service there should be a revising barrister, to whom any new laws or alteration of the Constitutions should be submitted; that there should be an auditor whom the Government might detach from the Auditor General's Office, to examine the half-yearly—or it might be yearly—accounts; that to him attested copies of the workings of each Lodge should be submitted; and that his report on these returns should be forwarded in each case to the Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge should then take such steps—as the governing body of the Order—as would be best to correct anything that was, in the opinion of the Government officer, wrong. The Registrar might be an ordinary official to keep the returns; and at any time they were required the governing body should be allowed to see them by going to the place where they were kept, as this would save a great deal of trouble.
1671. Do you think the Registrar General could not register these Societies? He might.
1672. And then have a Department to deal with other matters? The Department of the Registrar General could, I think, do all there is.
1673. Is it your opinion that the importance of the Societies would justify the Government in creating a separate Department for these matters? I would not say a separate Department, but it would justify the Government in making it a Branch of some Department.
1674. What Department would you attach it to? Altogether I think the Registrar General's Department would be the best.
1675. I dare say you have seen by Mr. Oliver's evidence that the law, so far as laying the returns before Parliament is concerned, has not been complied with; and that the reason for that was that he had not sufficient clerical assistance? Yes.
1676. Have any of your Lodges been dissolved by mutual consent? None.
1677. Mr. Smith.] You stated, in reply to the President, that the fees and contributions were fixed by the Grand Lodge? They are.
1678. Of course that rule applies to opening of new Lodges? To all.
1679. We clearly understand that in your Order there is a uniform rate of 1s., with 3d. additional for the doctor? Yes.
1680. Has the fact ever been brought under your notice that a number of the Lodges have been initiating very old members at a very low rate? Never; our law provides that up to the night of opening they shall be admitted at half-fees.
1681. And has that law been violated? Not to my knowledge.
1682. Is there any provision in your law allowing a Lodge at any time to adopt the half-fee scale? No; but there is in Victoria, where, if fifteen candidates apply at once for initiation, they are admitted at half-fees.
1683. But has that been done here? Not that I am aware of. It is only within the last week that a member of the Commission mentioned a Lodge to me in which he had heard that it had been done, and I have instructed the Grand Secretary to make inquiries.

W. E.
Langley.
16 Jan., 1882.

1684. Have you the result of these inquiries? I have not.

1685. Could it not be done without your knowledge? It could be, but if so it is in direct violation of the obligations the officers have taken on themselves.

1686. These matters, I presume, would be properly brought under the notice of the Deputy Grand Master presiding over the District? It should be reported to him, and by him brought before me.

1687. And such a fact has never been brought under your notice? On no occasion.

1688. How long is it since these rates were adopted by your Order? Well, I could not tell you, but it is a number of years.

1689. I understood you to say that you were opposed to the scale of rates? I am in one sense; they are imperative, you cannot go above or below them. Now in some Lodges, such as there are in the United States, which are started simply for purposes of benevolence, and the members of which never expect to have any claim on the Society, they might be allowed to pay in such a sum as would suit their circumstances; but here, according to our Constitutions and the Friendly Societies Act, we cannot have anything of the kind.

1690. All your Lodges in the Colony have, I suppose, met their obligations under that scale of fees? They have; I have never yet known of a special levy in this Colony.

1691. In no instance? Not in this Colony; I think it is one of those things the law ought to put a stop to, because it is a mere sham to say to persons, "You can come in under these charges," and for them then to find that once a quarter or so there are special levies made.

1692. Then you are opposed to the system of making special levies? I am. It is fairer for candidates to know on their entrance what they have to pay than to find out afterwards that if they do not pay these special levies they are liable to suspension, expulsion, or to fine.

1693. Then, in order to do away with that, it would be necessary to increase the contribution fees? I do not know; we have been able on our fees to carry on without it, and I do not think it will be necessary to increase them.

1694. What would you suggest in the absence of a levy system? In very special cases it might be necessary to have a levy; but I should say that unless a Lodge got into such a position that it was unable to meet its claims there should be no levy, and that then it should be confined to the directions of the Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows has the right in that case to order a special levy up to 5s. a member; after that the Grand Lodge takes upon itself the responsibilities. It has also the right to direct such Lodge or Lodges as are closest to accept as members those belonging to the Lodge that is in difficulties.

1695. Do you know of a system known as the sliding-scale system? I have heard of it.

1696. Have you ever attempted to work it in connection with any of your subordinate Lodges? No, amongst a rich community such as ours I do not think such a thing is called for; there are few working-men but are in a position to pay our ordinary contributions.

1697. Do any of your Lodges in Victoria work that system? No, they work exactly as we do.

1698. You have Lodges all over the world? We have.

1699. Is that the rate adopted by all the Lodges? It is as near as possible. Our Sovereign Grand Lodge met in September last; the total amount paid out in dollars was reported as $1,714,805 for the year.

1700. That refers to the States alone? No, to the whole world. The revenue of the Lodges amounted to $4,191,463, that is, over £800,000, as against £350,000. In fact, it would be a little more, because we have what are known as the Rebekah Lodges, and they are not included. The total revenue would be over £900,000—as near £920,000 as possible.

1701. How many Lodges would that represent? It will represent, as being financial and good upon the books, 456,942 members, or an increase on the year of 16,159.

1702. Then that would be the exact position of the Order financially and as to the number of members up to last September throughout the world? Throughout the world, including the three Supreme Grand Lodges.

1703. And these results have been brought about by a uniform and fixed system of contributions? Unless in those cases which I have mentioned; there is a minimum; the Grand Lodges fix that minimum.

1704. Do you have a report furnished at the triennial meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge? Yes, triennially, through the subordinate Lodges to the Supreme Grand Lodge.

1705. That would also give the financial position of each member and of the amount per head? It will do so in future. I may state that the Supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia has been very recently established; prior to this each Grand Lodge worked its own business; but now that there has been this Supreme Grand Lodge established we have the government of the Order entirely in Australasia, and may make our laws, subject to the peculiarities of the country.

1706. And in future your Supreme Grand Lodge will issue these statistics and all information in regard to the Order in the Australasian Colonies? Yes, that is intended.

1707. Now, have you experienced any difficulties in working your Order in this Colony under the existing Friendly Societies law? I cannot call them difficulties; we have had to meet a good deal of competition, but we have been in a position that I for one, and most of our Grand Officers, have been able to say—"If you can find any other Society that offers equal advantages at a less cost, we do not wish to undercut them. Here is our scale." In Victoria we have found that another Society undercut us and took away a number of members.

1708. Then there has been a considerable amount of competition going on? There has recently; so much so that I have actually found in a railway-carriage going up the mountains a scale of charges so low that I could not believe it possible that it could be adopted. But I may say that, so far as the mere scale of initiations is concerned, that has very little to do with the position of a Society. If the Lodges are worked economically, and if it continues to get a certain number of additions to it yearly, and if the surgeons do duty, the scale of admission has but little to do with its prosperity.

1709. Has this competition in any instance caused you to relax your rules? Certainly not.

1710. Then you have always stood by your rules? On every occasion.

1711. Now, have you experienced any difficulties under the Act in working your Order? I cannot say that we have.

1712. Have you as a Friendly Society taken all the advantages it gives you? No, we have not; we have simply taken the Constitutions as a guide, and acted up to them as closely as possible.

W. E.
Langley.

16 Jan., 1882.

1713. Then, having your Constitution registered under the Act, you were satisfied to work under that, and not take cognizance of the Act at all? We were quite satisfied with that certificate.
1714. Of course you are aware that there is a provision in the Act which enables subordinate Lodges to summon persons who fall into arrears? Yes.
1715. Have you taken advantage of that? Never.
1716. Do you think it would be wise to retain such a provision in any new legislation? I do not; I am strongly opposed to the interference of the civil law in these Societies, unless the rules have been so negligently drawn up as to warrant it.
1717. Has it ever been in your province to authorize the expulsion of any member from your Order? It has.
1718. Would you give us the circumstances under which it took place? I would rather not.
1719. President.] I think you are bound to answer the question? Well, under the circumstances, I would rather not; it had nothing to do with any financial bearing.
1720. Mr. Smith.] That is sufficient. Then I understand you to say that in the whole of your experience, and in the history of the working of your Lodges, in no case have any of their internal disagreements been taken into a Court of Law? No. I was threatened once by a person, who, I understand, is to come before the Commission for examination, with a Court of Law, but there was nothing more heard about it; it was in connection with his suspension.
1721. Is it your opinion that in the passing of any new legislation greater care should be taken to protect the funds and the members by law apart from the governing laws of the Order itself? I think it would be advisable as a general question.
1722. Mr. Abigail.] Are there any members who have been expelled from your Order whom you object to have examined by the Commission? No.
1723. Are you aware of any influence having been used to prevent it? I have not heard of it.
1724. Have you thought out what amount of money per head should be held by Lodges to represent a good financial position? No, I have not; I do not think anything of the kind is necessary.
1725. Do you think that if a Lodge simply meets its annual expenses it is in a good financial position? No, I do not; but one that is working and leaving anything like moderate credit balances is in a good position, because it is also contributing to the Funeral Fund.
1726. Do you think that as the ages of the members increase the liabilities stand still? No, but as a Lodge goes on, young members come in, and that makes a fair average.
1727. What do the funds of your Order represent per head? I should think about 50s.
1728. Do you think that is a good sound financial position? I do for Lodges that have been only three years started.
1729. Irrespective of the ages? I simply mean as the Lodges are at present.
1730. You stated that you thought some action should be taken to admit men who would not take advantage of the law? I do not think I made any such remark. (See question 1689.)
1731. You said that in your experience you had no difficulty in working your Lodges under the Act? Yes, that is so.
1732. I presume you have carried out the Act? We have carried out our Constitution without reference to the Act.
1733. Then you have been working the Order on your Constitutions irrespective of what the Friendly Societies Act says? We have been working under this Constitution, which is certified as in conformity with the Friendly Societies Act.
1734. Have you carried out clause 6 of the Act, wherein it makes it penal for any Society or body to take money before registering their laws? Yes, we have carried that out and have registered our laws.
1735. But do not you register for every Lodge? No, every Lodge is governed by these.
1736. Can you explain why, according to the Registrar's * * return, there are only seventeen Lodges registered? I cannot say. That may be as true as the statement in reference to the expenses of management. I know there are twenty-four Lodges.
1737. How many Lodges have you opened this year? None.
1738. When did you open the last Lodge—can you give us the date? I really cannot say exactly.
1739. Now, the 7th clause on the same page, I wish to ask have you carried this out: "Provided always that it shall not be lawful for the said Registrar to grant any such certificate to a Society assuring to any member thereof a certain annuity or certain superannuation deferred or immediate or any sum or sums payable as endowment or in case of sickness or death or other object authorized by this Act which is susceptible of calculation by way of average unless the tables of contributions payable for such kinds of assurance shall have been certified under the hand of an actuary." Have your scales been thus certified? Not that I am aware of.
1740. Then you have not acted up to that clause of the Act? I am not aware that any Society in Australia has done so; but if you look back to that, you will see that if it has not been done it is a lapse of duty on the part of the Registrar, and not on the part of the Societies.
1741. Were you ever asked for an actuarial certificate? Certainly not.
1742. Have you acted up to the 8th clause: "Provided always that two copies of the proposed alterations or amendments and of such new rules signed by three members of such Society and such Secretary or other officer shall be transmitted to the Registrar to one of which shall be attached a statutory declaration by the Secretary or one of such officers that in making the same the rules of such Society respecting the making altering amending and rescinding rules or the directions of the Act or Acts under which such Society was established have been duly complied with"?—I may stop you there; there has never been any necessity, as we have made no amendments or alterations. We are in the act of revising them at the present time, in order to make them still more explicit.
1743. Have any of the officers misappropriated any of the funds in connection with any of your Lodges? No, I cannot say they have; there was one officer who was short, but he afterwards made up his accounts.
1744. Have you received any promissory-notes as payment for funds? I have heard of one Lodge doing so.
1745. Did the police take any part in that affair? No; the promissory-note, I remember now, was not taken by the Lodge, but by the Guaranteo Society.
1746. Do all the Treasurers give guarantees? Every one of them, from a Guarantee Society; and we have now decided to have guarantee bonds from our Secretaries.

W. E.
Langley.
16. Jan., 1882.

1747. What amount of your funds is expended in regalia? I could not tell you, but at the formation of every new Lodge they are expected to get a set of regalia, which will cost from £10 upwards.
1748. And from what fund is that paid? From the Incidental Fund.
1749. How does that fund get its money? So much a week is paid to the fund, and in all initiations when the amount exceeds £1, that sum of £1 is placed to the credit of the Incidental Fund.
1750. How are the contributions divided? To the Sick and Funeral Fund, and to the Incidental Fund.
1751. How much to each fund? You will see that from sections 115 and 116 of our Constitutions; 1s. 10d. per month to the Sick Fund, 8d. per month to the Funeral Fund, and the balance to the Incidental Fund.
1752. I understand the contribution is 1s. a week? 1s. a week for ordinary members who do not wish the benefit of doctor or medicine; if they require that they have to pay 3d. more.
1753. And that represents the amount that would go to the Medical Fund? It goes to the Incidental Fund, out of which the medical men and the ordinary expenses are paid.
1754. Are any of the officers of your Order paid? The Secretary of Subordinate Lodge is paid a small sum, the Treasurer a nominal sum in order to bring him under the law; and sometimes the outside guardian receives his contributions back in return for his services. Some Lodges do this, and some do not; but the law provides that it can be done.
1755. The promissory-note that was accepted by the Guarantee Society—you had nothing to do with that? No. It was not a case of any wilful misappropriation of funds; it occurred under very peculiar circumstances, to a tradesman who happened to get on the spree and was robbed. He made arrangements, giving ample security.
1756. I understood you to say you were opposed to making the Society a purely benefit Society; what do you mean? When the Order was established in Victoria we were not bound down; if a member or Lodge required assistance they could claim it; in one case for a single man £1 a week would be a handsome thing, especially if he were drawing out of several Societies; but what would be ample for him would not be sufficient for a man who had a wife and several children, and the Societies should claim the right to pay such a sum as the circumstances would warrant.
1757. Then you are opposed to the benefits being limited to a given amount? I am, but I would also have it that no person unless in need of the money should come on the Society.
1758. Mr. Gelding.] That would be a dangerous power to give to the Society, would it not? I cannot see it, if parties act up to their obligations.
1759. Mr. Abigail.] In reference to the question of arbitration, are you in favour of the arbitration being a final Court, and of it being confined to your own body? Most assuredly I am. Our law provides that a dispute should be referred to the Lodge, then to the District Deputy, then to the District Committee; then an appeal can be taken to the Grand Lodge, and the Committee on appeals deals with it; and if that is not satisfactory, an appeal can be made to the Supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia, and by that decision the parties are bound.
1760. You stated that you would expel a man for going to law to get what he conceives to be his rights? No; if a man goes outside the Lodge-room, having subscribed to this Constitution, it would be a breach of contract.
1761. Do you know that the Friendly Societies Act gives members of these Societies full power to go to law? I am aware of it.
1762. Then your law, as certified, is not in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act? Just so; but I can divest myself of any privilege allowed by that law by mutual agreement. If I say—"I will make an agreement with you and sign it," you should come to me and say—"You did this, and it is contrary to law."
1763. If you turn to section 15 of the Act, you will see in what cases the settlement of disputes is to be by the District Court when the rules do not provide for it; and then it follows on in section 16 —? But our law does provide for cases of dispute.
1764. Section 14 again provides that a member can go to law if he feels aggrieved—what I want to show is that the matter of a member being confined by your laws to accept your decision is not in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act? We do not ask a person to do it if he does not like.
1765. But having subscribed to those laws? He foregoes any other legal right that he has.
1766. You are aware of members of Friendly Societies taking their cases into Court and having them dealt with there? I have heard of it, but have never known of it in connection with our Order.
1767. Mr. Greville.] From evidence which has been given, it appears that new Lodges of certain Orders hold out as inducements for members to join sometimes reduced initiation fees and sometimes reduced subscriptions and other monetary advantages, but I understand there is no such thing in your Society? Nothing more than upon opening nights there are half-fees.
1768. What are the inducements offered by your Lodges? Well, the operations of the Order extend all over the world, and persons going from here to Victoria, or to the United States, can go from one end to the other, with nothing but a visiting card, in search of employment.
1769. But what are the inducements to start new Lodges in preference to joining old established Lodges? It is simply for persons to say whether they will join one Society or another; those who join us must believe that our Society is the best.
1770. No, it is not the Society. Perhaps there are two or three Lodges of your Order established in a township—what inducement is offered to start another? New Lodges are generally started in this way: a member of the Order living in Sydney (say) goes to Bathurst, and wanting to further the interests of the Order —
1771. But in the same locality? That is simply a question of local requirements.
1772. And you think local requirements, and perhaps dissatisfaction with the old Lodge, induces a new Lodge to be formed? It is very often the case that it has been dissatisfaction with the manner in which a Lodge has been conducted.
1773. But you are clear on the point that no financial inducements are held out? None whatever; in some cases I know it has been done by the Grand Lodge of Victoria; they paid £5 as part of the expenses of the founder of the Lodges, but that was simply to reimburse him for moneys expended.
1774. You spoke confidently of the solvency of the Society as a rule; did you found that opinion simply on the fact that it has been able to meet its past engagements? Not only that, but I have found that since 1855 our Lodges have progressed satisfactorily, and funds have increased.

W. E.
Langley.

16 Jan., 1882.

1775. But your grand ground of confidence is that you have always hitherto met your engagements and had a balance over? Yes, that and the fact that I find that our scale is such as to reasonably warrant me in saying that if that scale does not keep our Lodges solvent none of the other Societies can possibly be so.

1776. But have you from calculations made by yourselves or any actuarial calculations been able to calculate whether you will be able in the future to meet your engagements? No, nor do I believe that there is any actuarial investigation that will give it you.

1777. Does not that arise from the fact that your profits are made from retiring members? To some extent.

1778. Is not that the principal extent? No, but to a considerable extent.

1779. And if members continued till death as members of your Society, and drew all the benefits of the Society, the financial position would be very different from what it is? Most assuredly.

1780. Therefore your prosperity in the future may be calculated largely upon chances? Well I would hardly say that; the future prosperity of the Lodges or otherwise is to be based on the experience of the past; that is the safest guide to go upon, having in England upset all the calculations of Tidd Pratt and other actuaries. I think in any future calculations made there should be two scales of charges, because those Societies which are simply confined to this Colony do not offer the same advantages to members that those extending beyond the Colonies do.

1781. Mr. Davies.] From your experience as a member of your Society and an office-bearer in it, in what respect have you found the present Act defective? I explained one or two little matters before you came in.

1782. Can you explain what the defects are? A new Act should be much shorter.

1783. But what do you mean by that? An Act much more concise, not half the length of the present Act, leaving the governing bodies to work out the details of their own Orders, and submitting to a revising barrister their constitutions.

1784. But do you find that the existing Act has been deficient in affording protection to the members? No, I do not. I do not say the Act is deficient, there is rather too much of it—it goes too much into details.

1785. In what way? There are matters here which contradict the Constitution. If there were simply to be a skeleton Act, laying down certain principles which must be carried out by the Societies, and enacting that the by-laws should be submitted to a revising barrister, it would be sufficient.

1786. But does it not do that now? Yes, in one way it does, but not in another.

1787. Have your returns been sent in regularly? They have been sent in to the Grand Secretary.

1788. So far as your experience goes, there is no great defect so far as the Act is concerned? No, I do not see any great defect, but it might be more explicit; but I have not gone through the Act for the purpose of pointing out defects in that way.

1789. Can you point out then what you would suggest in any new legislation? I have already done so, in reply to the President.

1790. What is the total number of members in your Society under the Grand Lodge of New South Wales? I do not know exactly what it is now, but I suppose about 1,700.

1791. What was the total income for last year? Our Secretary gave the information for the first half of last year; but you will have some time next month an abstract of the whole of the returns, which will furnish the information you wish.

1792. Mr. Holdsworth.] I do not know whether I understood you to say in the beginning that your Order was the oldest in the Colonies, and that all charters granted to other Colonies had been issued from New South Wales? I said so.

1793. Then did I understand you also to say that Sydney was under Victoria until lately? I said that there was a resuscitation here.

1794. No, but that will explain it probably. I understood you rightly then? Yes; the Lodges here became defunct. I think Mr. John Williams, the present Crown Solicitor, was the last Grand Master; and he found the great competition militated against the interests of the Order.

1795. Of what value do you consider actuarial opinions? If based upon purely actuarial grounds, I consider them worth very little to us for the purposes of these Societies.

1796. On what principle do you think actuarial calculations should be based? I think upon a fair average of (say) one, two, or three years' working of the various Societies; after having carefully gone into the books and returns of the Societies.

1797. Then you would form tables of sickness for Benefit Societies on the same principle that Life Insurance Societies have formed their experience tables? Yes, exactly.

1798. There has been some evidence given that in your Societies you are in the habit of admitting members on opening nights at half initiation fees? It is true, and legal.

1799. Do you consider it of any importance what the initiation fee is in any Society? I have already stated that I do not to any great extent; you may make your initiation fee as high as you please, and if you do not work your Societies properly it is of very little service.

1800. You allow no other privileges? None whatever.

1801. You do not allow older members to go in than under the ordinary course? We admit all members between 18 and 45 at half-fees. We can accept members upon clearance up to 45 or 50 on certain payments.

1802. You have stated that you look upon special levies as a sham: what am I to understand by that? They are a sham, because you tell a person wishing to join the Order "Our scale is so and so." He joins and then finds that these levies are made; he never expected they would be made, and it is a sham to hold out to him your scale if on the other hand you make him pay by levies. I think it should be prevented by making the contribution rates sufficiently high.

1803. You have a provision I think in your Society to meet cases where from excess of sickness or other causes the Lodge cannot meet its engagements? Oh yes; a Lodge unable to meet its claims can apply to the Grand Lodge, and the Grand Lodge will protect its members.

1804. You do not use a sliding scale? No.

1805. You said that in a rich country like this everybody could afford to pay whatever the amount is? I should think so.

W. E.
Langley.
16 Jan., 1882.

1806. Do you think it just that a man of 18 years of age should pay the same as a man of 45? Yes, as a general thing and taking it all through. If you are going to make Lodges in which you will have no members above 18 you can afford to make the rates cheaper than if all the members are 40; but you must have a fair average payment for all.
1807. Yet you say it matters not what the initiation fee is? I said I did not think it mattered so much as the way in which the Lodge was worked afterwards.
1808. Are you aware that there is much more sickness at the age of 45 than at 18, according to all tables? It is so laid down.
1809. Then how do you make up for the extra sickness? You have to make an average. The man of 18 must expect to be a man of 45. You may say it is hard; but you very rarely find men of 45 coming into our Order. As a rule Lodges are very careful as to the ages.
1810. You spoke of a sovereign body in Toronto, what is that? It is the Sovereign Grand Lodge, which is a movable one; it met last year in Toronto; the next time it meets in Cincinnati, and may be held in any part of the world as decided by the representatives. It is composed of the representatives of the three Grand Lodges—the Grand Lodges of Europe, of Australasia, and of America.
1811. That is formed by delegates from these three Grand Lodges? Yes.
1812. Do you send any representatives? Our Grand Lodge sent one last year, I believe.
1813. It can meet anywhere, has it ever met anywhere? Yes.
1814. As a matter of fact, has it ever met anywhere except in the United States or Canada? No.
1815. I suppose the American division prevents it as in other Societies? If it could meet in Toronto last year, there is no reason why it should not meet in South America or Europe next year.
1816. There has been a great deal said of competition and rivalry between Societies—do you think it has done any harm? I do not.
1817. Do you not think it has induced a large number of members to join Societies that never would have joined otherwise? It has decidedly had that tendency.
1818. And consequently you believe, I suppose, that society has been benefited generally? Yes, and the working-classes more particularly.
1819. You spoke of your Constitutions having been registered under the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
1820. And you act under them? Yes, directly.
1821. Have your subordinate Lodges codes of rules independently of these? There are two Lodges that have certain by-laws which had to be submitted to the Grand Lodge for approval, but for all working purposes these contain the rules of the Grand Lodge and of subordinate Lodges.
1822. Are your subordinate Lodges registered by name with these rules? I am not aware of it.
1823. Then I understand none of them are registered? All the Lodges that were in existence prior to the formation of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales were registered separately. When the Grand Lodge was formed, and this Constitution and the by-laws governing them all, we were told that the registration of this Constitution and of the sovereign body was sufficient—we are now informed that it is not.

The Commission then adjourned until 2 o'clock on Friday, 20 January.

FRIDAY, 20 JANUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,
WILLIAM E. LANGLEY, Esq.

The examination of Mr. W. E. Langley was resumed:—

W. E.
Langley.
20 Jan., 1882.

1824. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have read the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
1825. Do you remember that portion of it in clause 5 which says “‘Society’ shall mean and include every branch of a Society by whatever name the same may be designated”—do you understand that to mean every separate section or Lodge? No, I understand it to mean the whole body.
1826. Are you aware that the Registrar has decided that it means each separate branch? Recently I have been informed that he has decided that.
1827. Therefore each separate branch has to register its own laws? So it appears according to that decision.
1828. Then does it not strike you that if each Society has to register its own laws they may be superior to those you register? As regards our Society, it makes no difference; this is our Constitution, not merely for the Grand Lodge but for all our subordinate Lodges. If they like to make any by-laws for any detail work, they have to be submitted not to Mr. Oliver, but to the executive officers of the Grand Lodge, to be revised and to see that they do not in any way interfere with the Constitution and by-laws of the Grand Lodge.
1829. That is a matter of internal government, I take it? It is.
1830. But according to the Act, is it not set forth that certain things are to be done by each section of a Society? It is.
1831. Then again I ask you, if it does not appear that if each Society has to register its own laws it does not follow that they are superior to any that you may register? It certainly so seems.
1832. Are you aware that cases have been tried which have shown that Societies are subjected to great difficulties and expense through defects in this law? Yes, I remember very distinctly that case of Guest's.
1833. Never mind specifying cases; there are other cases similar to that one? So I believe.
1834. You were asked some questions about Part II of the Act, section 6, where it says: “Every person being a member of the Committee of Management of any Society hereafter to be formed for any purpose within the meaning of this Act who shall take any money in consideration of the allotment of shares or any interest in such Society until the same shall be registered under this Act shall incur a penalty for any such offence not exceeding £20.” Do you notice that clause? Yes, I do.

W. E.
Langley.
20 Jan., 1882.

1835. Do you think such a clause is practicable? I think it is practicable.
1836. Can a Society exist without members? You can register the name of your Society in connection with a certain Friendly Society. When the Act was first passed there was nothing but what are known as the so-called Friendly Societies of the present day—Lodges under different superior bodies; and in these cases if the Act was intended to refer to them it would be very easily complied with.
1837. You have already stated that you believe the word "Society" means every branch; can there be a branch without members? No.
1838. Then without members can a branch register itself? The promoters of it can do so.
1839. There are no promoters here? I beg your pardon, in our Order at least five members belonging to a Lodge may apply to the Grand Master for a warrant to open a new Lodge; they are virtually the promoters, and they continue ex officio members of that Lodge until the end of the first term.
1840. That is a peculiarity of internal government with you? It is.
1841. But I want to know whether a body of members can consider themselves members of any Society without paying any fee of any kind? It does not follow that because you have a Society money must pass.
1842. You cannot have a Secretary without members to nominate the Secretary? I do not know.
1843. Then you consider this clause of the Act generally unworkable? I would scarcely say unworkable; but as the Act is now it is not a clause that is properly workable; a much better clause might be substituted.
1844. Have you had anything to do with Societies outside your own? Not with Friendly Societies.
1845. Have you uniform books in your Society for book-keeping? In the Grand Lodge of New South Wales we have now; we did not have them at first when working under the Grand Lodge of Victoria, but since Mr. Cannon and myself took office, we have discussed the matter, and the Executive Committee have recommended a certain way of keeping the books, and certain books to be kept by Lodges.
1846. Do you not think it desirable that the books should be uniform for all Lodges? Unmistakably.
1847. Do you think it would be desirable for this Commission to recommend a skeleton set, or get some qualified person to do so? Well, I consider uniformity in all Societies desirable, and if it is the intention of the Commission to go so far as that into the details of the working of the Societies, I should think it would be desirable to give a rough idea of it.
1848. You were asked whether 50s. per head was a good financial basis for a Society; will not that depend on circumstances? Certainly, I think I replied to that before; 50s. per head to a progressive Society might be a very good basis, while £10 to a retrograding one would be a bad one.
1849. But is it not a fact that 50s. is sufficient for a Society one or two years old, whereas four times that amount for an old Society would be bad? I think the answer I have given will cover that; £2 10s. per head to a progressive Society might be a very good basis, while £10 would hardly be enough for a retrogressive one.
1850. Mr. Rubie.] I see by section 57, page 18, of your rules you provide for the valuation and, if necessary, the alteration of your benefits and contributions at the end of each five years? Yes.
1851. It is there stated that there should be a valuation of the liabilities, and I presume of the assets also, at the end of every five years? Yes.
1852. Is that valuation made by an actuary? It will be made by an actuary.
1853. It has not yet been acted on here? Not here.
1854. And in case there was a deficit, what steps would be taken? If in connection with a Lodge, the Grand Lodge would have the power to make a special levy up to the extent of 5s. per member; and having exhausted that, the Grand Lodge funds would then be available to a certain extent to place the Lodge in a good position; or they would have the power to dissolve it, making good its deficiencies, and to give the different Lodges near instructions to admit as members those who were in good standing and known as financial members.
1855. That law has never been acted on to your knowledge either in Victoria or in this Colony? It has not; certainly not during my time in Victoria, or during the past twenty years here.
1856. But is your Order not established more than five years in Victoria? It was established in 1841 in Victoria, I believe; I know of it since 1852.
1857. And has that rule been carried out regularly in Victoria? It has not—I never knew circumstances to call for it; but this Constitution is not more than five or six years old.
1858. I ask because it says here at the end of every five years? Yes, this was adopted by the Grand Lodge of Victoria. It is a revised Constitution, and was revised two years ago, and this clause may only have been put into it then; and I think it has been to meet certain alterations which were made in the law in Victoria relating to Friendly Societies.
1859. Then, within your own knowledge, nothing of the sort has taken place? No, not amongst our Lodges here.
1860. Previous to your adopting a Grand Lodge here I suppose the various Lodges now under the Grand Lodge worked independently of themselves? No, I was the first District Deputy ever appointed here, and I had the first Lodge established here placed under my care to report thereon to the Grand Lodge of Victoria. It was worked by the District Deputy.
1861. And I suppose the experience of the various Lodges of your Order here is that the contribution which you pay in has been sufficient to meet all expenses? Yes, with the exception that in some cases for want of supervision the Incidental Fund has been insufficient, and the Lodges have had to leave it so for the time being and borrow from the other funds.
1862. But there has not been anything like a levy of 5s.? No, nothing of the kind has taken place.
1863. And you believe the contributions you pay are sufficient to meet all the benefits you propose to give? I do, if the Lodge is properly worked; the only case where it would be difficult is in the case of small Lodges. I myself have been an advocate for large Lodges.
1864. Have you a sort of subordinate Court to try evidence? Each Lodge has in itself the right of taking up any complaint; it is referred to a Committee, evidence is taken and copied and sent, if necessary, to the District Deputy, as an appeal to him can be made; his decision on the matter would then be taken; from his decision an appeal may be made to me or to whoever may occupy the Grand Master's Chair; from my decision an appeal may be made to the Grand Lodge in session. The Grand Lodge has a Committee on Appeals, and they go into the case and bring up their report to the Grand Lodge itself, and the Grand Lodge adopts or refuses to receive the report as the case may be; it may either adopt it or object to it. But there is still another Court of Appeal—the Supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia—to which any aggrieved brother may appeal; beyond that our Order provides for no appeal—their decision is final.

1865. Would you be in favour of a Court of Appeal composed of the Heads of the various Friendly Societies? If the Societies themselves are not vested with the power to deal with all matters I would be in favour of a Court of Arbitration, consisting of one member of the Friendly Societies having a certain number of Lodges or members; but under no circumstances would I give an opinion in favour of an appeal to civil law, because one or two litigious men in a Lodge do more mischief than all the others put together; and if they cannot be dealt with by the Order itself they should not be able to put their fellow-members to trouble and expense by taking them to Court.

1866. Then you would make that a final Court of Appeal? Yes, a final Court of Appeal.

1867. Mr. Newland.] Are all the members of your Society supposed to wear regalia while in Lodge? Yes.

1868. Is that regalia supplied by the Lodge? Yes.

1869. And all the officers must be clothed in regalia? Yes; there may be some that are not supplied by the Lodge; there are certain officers who may choose to go to the expense of an elegant turn-out; but they must wear regalia of some kind.

1870. And the officers wear jewels in addition? That is not imperative.

1871. Section 76 of your rules says that every member shall wear the regalia proper to his office before being allowed to take a seat in his Lodge? They all wear regalia.

1872. What would be the cost of a full set of regalia for one of your Lodges? I think Mr. Cannon has given that information before; it depends altogether upon circumstances; a full set may be had for about £7, including members' collars, and it may cost £25; you can go to any extent you like. Up to the present we have not had what are known as jewels in any of our Lodges.

1873. Mr. Slade.] Has your Society any status in England? I believe so.

1874. Is it classed as one of the recognized Friendly Societies? I am not aware.

1875. Then where is its head quarters? I explained at the last examination that it is movable; the representatives of the three Supreme Grand Lodges have the right of fixing the next place of meeting at the annual session.

1876. How are the officers of this Grand Lodge appointed? By vote of the representatives in Grand Lodge assembled.

1877. How are they paid? Per diem and mileage.

1878. Were you in office when the Pymont Lodge was opened? I was, if I remember rightly, District Deputy. When it was opened it was opened under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Victoria.

1879. Have you any idea of the cost of opening that Lodge? Yes, I regret to say I have.

1880. Will you tell the Commission what the cost was? I could never arrive at it, but I believe it cost over £70.

1881. Did it cost as much as £90? I do not think so; but I must say that the matter was a most outrageous one, and taking the prominent part I did with regard to it I made for myself some enemies.

1882. Is it a fact that the new Lodge opened was billed with the cost of a banquet to the opening officers? No, I do not think that is true. There were a number of members of the Order who thought the party opening the Lodge was doing a good work in the interests of the Order, and they subscribed amongst themselves—not members of that Lodge alone—to make him a presentation; and sundry others got up a sort of little tea-fight which I think cost about 18d. a piece; but that Lodge was punished severely enough without that.

1883. Is the Commission to understand that this money was part of the money subscribed by the new members for the purpose of opening and carrying on the new Lodge? I believe every penny of it was. I say unmistakably that the expenditure of that money was a disgrace to the Order I belong to, or to any other Friendly Society.

1884. You admit such an expenditure is wrong in principle? Unmistakably.

1885. And that it was expended for purposes for which it should not have been expended? A good deal of it was; and a good deal of it was expended in posting bills to the effect that the Lodge was to be opened on a certain night, and there were more of these bills than would put a couple on every house in Pymont at the time.

1886. Is it the custom of the Order you are alluding to to spend large sums of money in posters for these purposes? It is not.

1887. And this then was a deviation from the usual practice? It was; I think the Marrickville Lodge opened recently did not cost more than £15.

1888. Have you a Lodge at Ashfield? There is a struggling Lodge at Ashfield.

1889. What is its condition? It is a Lodge that has never seemed to progress.

1890. Does not part of the disability arise from excessive expenditure at the opening? I do not think so.

1891. Have you read the remarks of the Finance Committee as embodied in the report and balance-sheet brought up by Mr. Cannon? Yes; I have attended every meeting of the Standing Committee.

1892. Did you notice one minute of the Finance Committee saying that the accounts of the auditors were untrustworthy? Yes; on several occasions the Finance Committee have expressed themselves fully and freely on all the balance-sheets submitted to them.

1893. Then there is another minute: "The whole auditors' report is a muddle,"—what does that mean? There is a division of the funds—Sick Fund, Funeral Fund, and Incidental Fund—

1894. Will you furnish us with a copy of that report and balance-sheet? Mr. Cannon will do so.

1895. Have you had any evidence that the Secretaries have been in the habit of sending in false returns? I know of a case having occurred in Victoria; and a case worse than that occurred in South Australia. There is no use disguising the fact that in Friendly Societies there is no guarantee that all the Secretaries shall be honest.

1896. But have you any knowledge of it having been done in this Colony? I know of incorrect reports having been sent.

1897. Intentionally incorrect? I do not say that.

1898. In an appendix upon the table, the Order is shown to cost 67 per cent. of its income for management—is that a correct statement? It is absolutely untrue. When the statement was made in Parliament I went to the Grand Secretary's office and took the figures out roughly, and I found that 13 or 14 per cent. will pay all the cost of management. Of course if you mix up sick pay with doctors and medicine it is most unfair.

W. E.
Langley.
20 Jan., 1882.

1899. What is about the average cost of doctor and medicine in your Order? Well, it varies very much in the country, but about 7s. a quarter.
1900. Do you keep your Sick and Funeral Fund separate from the management? We keep our Sick Fund separate, and the Incidental Fund by itself, and the Funeral Fund is beyond the control of the Lodges. They forward a certain sum per quarter to the Grand Lodge, and the trustees invest that as the Funeral Fund of the Order.
1901. Now, do you still state, Mr. Langley, that all your members pay full entrance fees after the first night? Yes. Officially I have never heard that it has not been done, though I have heard from members of the Commission outside that two Lodges have not acted up to the law.
1902. Are you aware that at any time part of the entrance money has been furnished from any part of the funds of the Lodge to make the whole come up to the sum prescribed by law? I am not; and if such a thing was ever done, and it came under my notice, I should suspend the charter of the Lodge.
1903. Has any Lodge of your Order recurred to the principle of half-fees at any time after the opening? Not to my knowledge.
1904. Mr. Gelding.] Could you inform the Commission what is the cost of sending this delegate or these delegates to America annually? I could not tell you what it costs; the Sovereign Grand Lodge of America pays the expenses.
1905. You promised to produce, if you could, the total value of the Society to the Commission: are you in a position to do so? Not at present; but it is extremely probable that the returns will be received by the mail that is now in quarantine.
1906. Could you inform the Commission—you have stated the average cost of opening a Lodge is £15 —? I did not say that; I spoke of one Lodge—the Langley Lodge, at Marrickville.
1907. Could you say how the money was expended? £5 for the warrant or dispensation, and then there was certain Lodge regalia and Lodge furniture.
1908. No part of it goes towards refreshments? None—there is no such thing known in connection with our Order; nor will we allow a Lodge to be opened in a public-house if there is any way of having it outside one.
1909. Is it your opinion that this is one of the principal causes of the low average rate per head in your Order? I am not aware of it; it is not so much the starting of a Lodge which makes the low average as the way it is managed.
1910. Have you a Widows and Orphans' Fund in connection with your Order? No; we have a fund to which the widow of a member can subscribe and receive an allowance at death.
1911. What is your funeral donation? £20 and £10.
1912. £10 on the death of a wife, I presume? Yes, and £20 on the death of the member himself.
1913. Have you studied clause 41, which gives a member the right of willing away his funeral donation? Yes, I see that; it is one of those things which, as I said before, I regard as so much surplusage in connection with the Act.
1914. What is your opinion in reference to allowing a member to will away this money from the widow, provided she has conducted herself as she should do? I do not see why I should not be in the same position to will away that as well as any other asset of my estate. If I can will away the house she is living in, I do not see why I should not have the right to will this amount away.
1915. Is it not a fact that the wives are generally the ones who keep up the contributions in these Societies? Not in my experience.
1916. Have you studied sections 43, 44, 45, and 47 of the Act? I have read them all through.
1917. It states in them that the Trustees have the power of doing everything; is that acted up to? No, it is not; the duties of the Trustees in the Societies I know anything about are otherwise defined.
1918. Do you believe it possible they can be acted up to? They might be, but it would be prejudicial to the interests of the Society.
1919. Then you believe these clauses require altering? They may suit some Societies.
1920. Can you say why the Independent Order of Oddfellows has gone back 10s. per head this year? I am not aware of it.
1921. You stated the average per head was £3 last year, and now it is £2 10s.? I am not aware that such is the case, but if it is it may be because of the fact that seven Lodges have been formed since the return was made out. That may account partly for it, but I do not think it is the case.
1922. What is your opinion about persons belonging to two Societies and drawing sick pay from both, and other donations in the event of death? In one sense I think it is perfectly right for persons to be as provident as they can; in another, I am opposed to any member of our Order belonging to another branch of the Oddfellows, and vice versa.
1923. Does not allowing this privilege tend very much to cause malingering? I cannot say that; if you are determined to cheat, and the medical attendant of the Lodge does not do his duty, it is the fault of the medical attendant and not of the law. I do not think the law has anything to do with malingering.
1924. Coming to the question of the auditing of the books, do you not think it possible for Lodges to find intellect enough in the Order to audit the books? You may do so; but I have known Lodges in our Order that had not persons competent to audit the books.
1925. I mean in the Order, not the individual Lodge? Oh, decidedly you can find in our Order persons as competent to audit books as those outside of it.
1926. Do you not think that would be the best way of settling the question—that the Grand Officers should appoint officers to audit the books? That is done in our Order.
1927. What is your opinion of the Government framing an Act to appoint public auditors for the purpose of examining the Lodge books? I am not in favour of the Lodge books being audited by a public officer.
1928. As regards the returns, do you not think if they were sworn to before a J.P. or S.M. as correct, it would be sufficient to meet all circumstances? I think it would be far preferable to have the annual returns examined by a Government official, who should be paid by the Government.
1929. Have you any further suggestions to offer in reference to the matters before the Commission? If we are to have simply Benefit Societies as apart from what are known as Friendly Societies, my experience in connection with both would lead me to prefer seeing the Government establish in connection with the Post Office Provident Societies, by which you might be able to pay in anything from 1d. to 1s. a week, to secure at a certain time or at death the payment of a certain sum of money.

Philip James Newland sworn and examined :—

- P. J. Newland.
20 Jan., 1882.
1930. President.] What Order do you represent? The Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
1931. And what position do you occupy? I am a Trustee for the Sydney District.
1932. Have you had any length of experience in connection with the Order? I have.
1933. How long? I have been twenty-one years a member.
1934. Of the same Order? Of the same Order.
1935. I presume there are certain contributions and Funeral and Sick Funds attached to your Order similar to other Orders? Yes.
1936. Has the Order taken any means to ascertain whether the fees fixed, the contributions, and Sick and Funeral Fund fees are sufficient to meet any demands there might be upon the Society? At the general meetings held biennially these matters are always taken into consideration. They look at the past receipts and expenditure, and if they see that there is any cause to recommend Lodges to raise the contributions or otherwise, they do so; but if you mean have we taken any professional gentleman or actuary to look at the figures, we have not done so.
1937. Have your fees and contributions hitherto met the demands upon them? They have.
1938. And is it your opinion as a member of the Order that the data upon which they are fixed will be sufficient in future to meet any demands unless under some extraordinary or unforeseen epidemic, or something of that character? In answer to that question, the contributions paid in some of the Lodges, I believe, are not sufficient, but Lodges have the option with themselves of increasing their contributions above a certain rate, but they are not to pay less than a certain fixed sum per week. But these Lodges, which, in my opinion, would not be able to meet the demands upon them, are now taking steps to increase their contributions.
1939. Well, in the event of these Lodges not being able to meet demands upon them, does the Grand Lodge or District take upon themselves any responsibility? They would do so.
1940. But is it imperative? Yes, it is under the present rules and regulations; but I think when Lodges having been duly warned will not take time by the forelock and increase their contributions, the Grand Lodge should not be liable to them.
1941. Is this Order governed by an executive authority? Yes, by an executive authority which is elected biennially; it is called the Sub-Committee of Management.
1942. You have no Grand Lodge? There is a Grand Lodge in England.
1943. Then you are subject to them? In no matters whatever relating to the government of our Order; we only receive from them dispensations, rituals, and the secret working of our Order.
1944. And do you have to contribute to it? Nothing, except to pay for our dispensations, degree books, and rituals, which we get at cost price.
1945. Have you districts here, local districts? Yes.
1946. How many have you? I think there are six.
1947. And are they subject to the Sub-Committee in Sydney? Yes they are.
1948. Have you paid any attention to the Friendly Societies Act? I have.
1949. And how have your Societies worked generally under that Act? There are several features in connection with the Act that have not been strictly followed out, from the simple fact that it is almost impossible for the Lodges to carry them out.
1950. In what particular is the Act inoperative? Well in this matter of Trustees that has been alluded to; I do not think it is possible for Lodges to carry out the law that the Trustees shall pay the whole of the different moneys as required by the Act.
1951. But I do not quite understand you. You speak of the Trustees being required to pay money away; do you mean the money of the respective Lodges? Yes, the money belonging to the respective Lodges.
1952. That is after the money has been handed over to the Trustees? The invariable practice is that the money collected at the different meetings is handed over to a Treasurer, and, according to authorities given to him he disburses it, while any surplus is invested in the names of two Trustees; but the Act provides that the Trustees shall disburse all amounts. It would not be workable in the Lodges. And again I find that if a member of our Society should happen to get any of its funds into his hands, we have great inconvenience and loss in going to law to make him pay the money back after he has misappropriated it. One instance I know of, a member of one of our Societies, through the illness of the Treasurer, was made acting Treasurer, and he got a lot of money into his possession and converted it to his own use; and our solicitor told us that on account of his not being the authorized Treasurer there would be a difficulty in the way.
1953. Is there any difficulty in registering Trustees, as a rule? No, not generally.
1954. Is there any other part of the Act? Well the Act provides for cases of dispute being settled by arbitration; this has not been availed of by the members, as whenever they felt aggrieved they have gone to law without having the matter brought before arbitrators. I do not think this should be allowed.
1955. Are you favourable to the different Friendly Societies settling their differences amongst themselves? No, not exactly so; I think if a member feels that he has not got justice done in his Society he should be allowed to appeal to a Board of Arbitration outside of the Society, whose decision should be final.
1956. Is it your opinion that it would be better to leave this to be settled amongst the Societies themselves rather than to have recourse to the Courts of Law? I would have a Board distinct altogether from the Society.
1957. I think your Secretary has put in certain books and documents as to the rules of your Order, and as to the amount of contributions, sick pay, and the Funeral Fund? Yes, I believe so.
1958. And has given the amount of surplus capital to your credit? I believe so.
1959. Mr. Rubie.] I understand you to say that amongst your Lodges you have several rates of contribution? Yes, there are.
1960. There is not a general rate? No.
1961. But there is a minimum fixed? Yes.
1962. And you think it is in many cases not sufficient to cover the benefits? Not in many cases, but in a few cases.
1963. You think these Lodges are taking steps to amend that matter? In the Sydney District that I am speaking of.
1964. How do the lower rates work in the country—have they sufficient means to go on? I am only acquainted with the Lodges in the Sydney District, which are all metropolitan or suburban Lodges.
1965. You have a number of country branches though? Not in connection with the Sydney District. The country Lodges, I believe, pay more than 1s. a week.
- 1966.

P. J.
Newland.
20 Jan., 1882

1966. You have a Lodge in connection with the district in Orange and elsewhere? Yes.
1967. Have you not a district at Bathurst? Yes.
1968. This Lodge at Orange would not be amenable to that district? No; it has only lately been formed.
1969. Are the funds of the Lodge at Orange deposited with the Trustees in Sydney? No; they have the management of their own funds, simply contributing to the Sydney District the means necessary to carry on.
1970. Then has the Sydney District charge of the Funeral Fund separately? Yes, of all the Lodges in their district.
1971. So the Lodge at Orange contributes its proportion? Quite so.
1972. And if there was a death in Orange they would have to write to Sydney for the amount of the funeral donation? Quite so.
1973. Is not that felt to be rather awkward at times? Well, they get their money by return of post; there may have been cases in which inconvenience has been felt by the members of the Lodge, but there have also been cases in which the Treasurer of the local Lodge has advanced the necessary money.
1974. The Trustees of the district do not pay any of the funeral moneys? No, they are paid by the Sub-Committee; the Treasurer keeps money in hand to pay demands that may be made upon him, and the Trustees receive any surplus that there may be. If during the quarter it is found that the Treasurer has not enough money in hand there is a demand made upon the Trustees, and the money is handed over to the Treasurer.
1975. Does the Trustee keep an account of what the money is wanted for? Of course there is a check kept against the Bank; it is kept by the Secretary.
1976. Suppose your Lodge wanted £20 to-night, would you sign a cheque at once for it? No, not without some written document from the Secretary and District Council that the money was required, and stating the purposes for which it was required.
1977. Do your Treasurers give a bond? Yes.
1978. What amount of money is generally left in the Treasurer's hands? Speaking of the Treasurer of the Sydney District, last night he had nearly £400 in hand, but, as a rule, during the quarter I do not think he has less than about £60.
1979. Mr. Gelding.] The District Officers have power to order the Trustees to draw money out of the Bank when they require it, have they not? Just so.
1980. Mr. Rubie.] To whom are the District Officers responsible for the proper expenditure of the money? To the delegates of the various Lodges which meet and form the District Committee.
1981. And how often do they sit? Quarterly.
1982. Then the District Officers may expend five or six hundred pounds unknown to anybody? They may if the money is required for funeral donations; all other accounts have to stand over until the next quarterly meeting.
1983. Referring to the Friendly Societies Act, the money clauses alluded to have reference to the Trustees of Building Societies and are inoperative for Benefit Societies, is it not so? Quite so.
1984. It is your opinion then that some alteration is requisite? Most decidedly.
1985. By which the Trustees should not be made to pay the benefits of the Lodge or Society? Yes.
1986. In reference to the mode of arbitration, I infer that you are in favour of persons outside the Societies being appointed to act as arbitrators? Yes.
1987. And that they should be a final Court of Appeal for Friendly Societies in Sydney? I am.
1988. Mr. Grenville.] You spoke of levies being necessary at times for the purpose of meeting deficiencies? Our Lodges do resort to them.
1989. Do you not think it would be better that the contributions should be sufficiently large to defray all claims on the Society without having resort to levies? Yes, in a manner; but I find that Secretaries in the division of the funds when there is odd money in the contributions find a great difficulty in dividing it; but if there is a levy made and paid to one fund separately the Secretaries find less labour in keeping their accounts.
1990. In other words, the correct principle is abandoned in certain Societies for the convenience of the Secretaries? Yes.
1991. Mr. Holdsworth.] You say you have read the Friendly Societies Act; is it not there provided that, "Every dispute between any member of any Society established under this Act or any of the Acts hereby repealed or any person claiming through or under such member and the Trustees Treasurer or other officer or Committee of Management thereof shall be decided in manner directed by the rules of such Society and the decision so made shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal"? Yes; but when we have pointed out that clause to our counsel, the member has still gone to law, and counsel has said it is not worth the paper it is written on.
1992. Mr. Langley.] If the Lodge at Orange which now sends its funeral money to your district subsequently joined the Bathurst District, what do you do with their past contributions to the Funeral Fund—do you refund the money they have so paid, less the amount that you have disbursed? We keep it, but hold ourselves liable for debts occurring for six months.
1993. Do you think that is fair towards the Lodge? It is their own act and deed, and consequently if they do not feel aggrieved there is no reason to complain.
1994. But do you think it is fair towards a country Lodge that you should retain money which you have no claim upon, and which they may require? I think it is fair, because as a district seeking to separate itself from its parent district the principle might be the other way if the thing was properly worked out, and they might owe the district money.
1995. But is it not much more likely that the money would be required in a young struggling district than in an old one? Our district funds are merely nominal, so that really the funds in the district are of no material value at all.
1996. But you have a substantial Funeral Fund of some kind or other? No, it is only levies made from one quarter to another to meet the probable liabilities.
1997. Then am I to understand you have not a Funeral Fund? Yes, we have a Funeral Fund.
1998. Mr. Rubie.] You have found for twenty-one years that that system has worked? Yes, for twenty-one years.
1999. And have you never had any occasion to make any extraordinary levies? Never; we have levies of 2s. 6d. and 3s. per quarter per member.

P. J.
Newland.
20 Jan., 1882.

2000. Mr. Gelding.] Have not you any reserve Funeral Fund in your district? Yes, we have; but it is not of any extent, as the delegates and Lodges do not believe in accumulating funds in the district. It is simply nominal.

2001. Mr. Langley.] Is it your opinion that it would be more advisable to have a complex Friendly Societies Act such as this rather than a skeleton Act laying down a basis upon which Friendly Societies should work, leaving them to make their own rules and regulations subject to the standard laid down? I do not believe the Act for the working of Friendly Societies should be mixed up with Building Societies or anything of that kind—it should be separate entirely from anything else.

2002. But would it be more desirable to have certain standard facts laid down as a basis upon which the Constitution and by-laws of the Lodges should be drawn up, or should the Act go into detail? I think certain rules ought to be defined and laid down, and not too much liberty given to the Society as to how they shall manage their internal affairs. There should be some definite rules laid down to work to.

2003. President.] Does the present Act enter too much into detail? There are some things in it that are not required, such as that matter with reference to Trustees.

2004. Mr. Smith.] Have you any Pension Fund or Superannuation Fund in connection with your Order? We have not at the present time.

2005. Mr. Slade.] Have you noticed the third page of the preface to the Act? Yes.

2006. Are you aware of any of your Societies or any other Society that have used that valuable skeleton code of rules prepared for the instruction of Societies by Mr. Oliver? I take it that all the Societies have used that skeleton more or less.

2007. Is that a similar skeleton to the one you referred to in your reply to Mr. Langley, when you said you thought one should be placed in any Act of Parliament? No, clauses 4, 5, and 6 I do not think are necessary at all.

2008. Is not the law imperfect as regards Trustees, inasmuch as it places duties on the Trustees which are unworkable? Quite so.

2009. And is it not your opinion that this arises from a misconception of the functions of the Trustees rather than from any fault in the Act? Yes.

2010. Mr. Gelding.] What is the cost of the dispensations your Society obtains from England? £1 2s. 6d., I think it is.

2011. Can you inform the Commission the average cost of opening new Lodges in the city district? The six Lodges that have been opened during the past two years have cost on the average £14 each—including dispensation, set of regalia, opening posters and advertisements, with books and seal of Lodge.

2012. Are the District Officers paid for their attendance for opening these Lodges? No, they are not.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 23 January.

MONDAY, 23 JANUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,

EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. George Brettnall sworn and examined:—

Mr. G.
Brettnall.
23 Jan., 1882.

2013. President.] What position do you occupy in the Friendly Societies? District Secretary of the Sydney District of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows.

2014. How long have you been Secretary? Three years and a half, I think.

2015. Is the Grand United Order of Oddfellows governed by a central body in Sydney? Yes; the Sub-Committee of Management, holding authority through the Committee of Management in England.

2016. You have no Grand Lodge? That is the Grand Lodge here. The whole of the Lodges in New South Wales are under the control of the Sub-Committee here; we are only nominally under the Grand Lodge of England.

2017. You have a number of Lodges attached to your Order throughout the Colony, have you not? Yes.

2018. Now, do they act and work distinctly from the governing body? Yes, quite distinct from it, so far that they are at liberty to frame laws for their own internal government, subject to the Sub-Committee of Management.

2019. They fix their own contributions? Yes; so long as they keep above the lowest rate specified in the laws.

2020. Have they any voice in connection with the Sick and Funeral Fund? The whole of the members have a voice in that matter by their representatives.

2021. On the Grand Committee? On the Grand Committee.

2022. I suppose you could furnish the Commission with a return showing the number of Lodges in your Order? I have already a form to fill up.

2023. Then you have received a form asking you to supply certain information? Yes, for five years.

2024. Will you be enabled to do that? I hope so.

2025. Do you know upon what principle the contributions and other fees have been fixed? I am not aware, except upon experience. I may state that there has never been a case crop up yet where there has not been sufficient to meet the demands.

2026. Then they have not been fixed after actuarial examination? I think not.

2027. I suppose you are speaking now principally in reference to this Colony? Yes.

2028. I suppose you are aware that there has been some lengthy examination into Friendly Societies in England? Yes.

2029. Have you Districts attached to your Lodges? I am only Secretary of one District under the control of the Sub-Committee of Management; we have four or five others.

2030.

Mr. G.
Brotwell.

23 Jan., 1882.

2030. Then you are Secretary of the Sydney District? Yes.
2031. And do the other Districts act independently of each other? Yes.
2032. In the event of any subordinate Lodge becoming defunct or unable to meet its engagements, is there any means by which the members can fall back on the larger body? Yes; provision is made for Lodges breaking up, or through any division of opinion, for the minority to pay their money into the District or Grand Lodge; and they will then be entitled to all the benefits assured to them by the rules.
2033. Have there been or are there any Lodges under your Order that have not been able to meet their engagements? I think in one or two instances there has been a necessity for withholding sick pay for a short time, but it was at the option of the members.
2034. Is there power in your rules for making special levies? Yes, to the extent of 5s. per quarter.
2035. That is to meet an emergency when the ordinary income is not equal to the demand upon it? Just so.
2036. Do you send any returns to the Registrar? Indirectly; the Lodges forward them to me, and I forward them to the Sub-Committee of Management.
2037. Then do I understand that from each District the respective Lodges forward their returns through you to the Grand Secretary? Yes.
2038. Do you know of any Lodges that communicate direct with the Registrar? I am not aware that any have done so; in fact, I am sure the whole of the Lodges were registered through me shortly after I took office.
2039. Is it your opinion that it would be better that all the subordinate Lodges of a Society should communicate through the governing body, rather than that they should respectively deal with the Registrar? I think it is better that they should deal through some acknowledged head with the Registrar, to save confusion.
2040. Notwithstanding that these Lodges have power to make rules and regulations for their own local guidance, they have still to be governed by the rules of the Order? By the leading principles.
2041. Have you paid any attention to the Friendly Societies Act, so far as it relates to Benefit Societies? But very little; there has been no necessity for me paying attention to it, for we have not been called in question under it.
2042. Is there anything in the Act that has interfered with the good government and working of your Order? I think there are too many different Societies mixed up together in the Act for Friendly Societies to distinguish what relates to them and what to Building and other Societies.
2043. That is unless for a person learned in the law? Just so; and I do not think we should be compelled to engage a lawyer on every question.
2044. I suppose you are aware that there are certain things that are imperative to be done under the law by the Registrar? Yes.
2045. Do you know whether these duties have been performed? It is out of my province; the Grand Secretary could answer that question better than myself.
2046. From your experience, are you in favour of having a separate Department to deal with Friendly Societies? Most decidedly; I think the position that the Friendly Societies occupy demands something of the sort, so that the officers and members should have somewhere to go to ask advice.
2047. That is, you consider the interests involved are so great as to justify the Government in establishing a separate Department to deal with these matters? Yes sir, that is my opinion.
2048. Have you ever had recourse to law—as between the members? Once in my experience.
2049. Have you thought over the matter as to whether any means could be devised by which these disputes might be settled amongst the members themselves? We have already made laws to the effect that these matters should be settled by arbitration, and since the appointment of the arbitrators we have had nothing to do with the law.
2050. But there is nothing to prevent any member going before the Law Courts? The rules of the Society say that all cases shall be subject to arbitration; and these have been certified by the Registrar.
2051. Do you think it would be well to have some tribunal as a Court of Appeal? I have never thought of that, but it appears to me that the heads of the various Orders would form a proper tribunal.
2052. That is as a Court of Appeal from the governing bodies? Yes, I think so.
2053. Is there anything in the law that you could point out requires emendation? I should like to have a little time to look over it, as I have not studied the Act a great deal.
2054. So far as your experience goes, there is nothing in the Act that has interfered with the good government or working of the Order? No sir.
2055. Mr. Smith.] How long has your Society been established in the Colony? Between thirty and forty years.
2056. I understood you to say that during that period, or during your experience, no difficulties have arisen in any of your Lodges with respect to meeting their obligations to the members? I do not think I said so; I said we had been at law once, and that on one occasion one of the Lodges had suspended sick pay for a short time.
2057. Did you not state at the beginning of the inquiry that the fees were not based on any tables but on experience? I said that so far as I was aware they were based on past experience.
2058. And that during your experience all the Lodges had met their obligations to the members? I think you must have misunderstood me; we have met all our obligations, although we have been proceeded against at law, except in the case of one Lodge which suspended sick pay for a short period.
2059. Was that the result of going to law? No, not at all.
2060. You have had members of Lodges take the District into Court? Yes.
2061. What effect has that had on your Lodges? I cannot see that it had any effect.
2062. Have you any idea of the cost to that particular Lodge? It did not cost the Lodge a single penny; it was the District that had to bear the expenses, which amounted to £40.
2063. What was the amount of the funeral donation? £30.
2064. And had you to pay the donation? Yes.
2065. Then it actually cost you £70? We had to pay the £40 and also the £30.
2066. Did the member feeling aggrieved take the Society into Court? Yes; the exact circumstances were that a member of one of our Lodges died, and the doctor's certificate stated that he died from alcoholism, which was a complaint that we were not justified in paying the funeral donation for; and we thought this certificate was sufficient justification for withholding payment to the claimant; and the case was taken into Court.

Mr. G.
Bretnall.
23 Jan., 1882.

Court. The members or Lodge had the right of appealing to arbitration, but they preferred to take it to the District Court. In the witness-box the doctor was examined, and he gave then as the primary cause of death Bright's disease, and of course we had to pay the amount. I might state that previously the doctor had refused to alter his certificate or to modify it.

2067. Would the District have been willing to have the alteration? It would have been without their knowledge.

2068. But if they had been made aware of it? I do not know what course of action they would have taken; but as one of them I should have opposed any payment if the doctor had altered the certificate in this way.

2069. The £40, from what fund was it paid? The Contingent Fund.

2070. It is maintained by levy on members of subordinate Lodges? Yes.

2071. Did the fact of that money being spent increase the levy for the following quarter? To a very small amount; but of course it must have done so to a greater or less extent.

2072. You are identified with the Grand Lodge of England? Yes.

2073. Do you pay any levies to them? No.

2074. You are District Secretary for Sydney, I understand? Yes.

2075. How many Lodges have you under your control? Twenty-four.

2076. Have any of them failed to meet their fair and legitimate claims? None, with the exception of the case I have just pointed out.

2077. Have any of the officers improperly used the funds? On one occasion recently, and he was brought to book for it and expelled.

2078. Explain please how he misused the funds? The treasurer of the Lodge had to leave on business which took him away into the country, and this member was acting as president of the Lodge, and was appointed acting treasurer; when the regular treasurer was appointed he refused to hand over the money, as he considered he was not appointed legally; and in the meantime he used it and got into difficulties, but friends of his paid the money for him and he was expelled.

2079. What was the amount? I think about £12.

2080. Were the police called in in any way? I could not answer that question.

2081. You do not know what steps were taken? Only that a warrant was issued for his apprehension.

2082. What Lodge was that in connection with? The Lodge at the Glebe, the Glebe Union.

2083. None of the other officers have misappropriated the funds? Not that I am aware of.

2084. Of course your knowledge only applies to the Sydney District? Yes, to these twenty-four Lodges.

2085. Mr. Greville.] Do you know of more than one instance in which any of the Lodges have been unable to meet their claims? No, only the one.

2086. And in that case the sick pay was suspended for a short time? Yes.

2087. How was it that the members did not avail themselves of the privilege which you say they have when a Lodge is unable to meet its engagements, and throw themselves on the Grand Lodge? You see the Society did not break up; it is only in the case of a Lodge breaking up that they have that right.

2088. Then so long as the Lodge hobbles along the Grand Lodge does not interfere? No, so long as the laws are observed and kept.

2089. Had the members who were thus deprived of their sick pay any remedy? They were deprived by their own action—it was not the action of any outside body; they were at liberty to have raised their contributions if they liked, but they refused to do that, and chose rather to forego the sick pay.

2090. At that rate, then, a majority of the men who were not on the sick-list might refuse to raise the necessary levy, and the sick may thereby be deprived of their privileges? Not at all. I think I stated that members voting in the minority were allowed to pay their money in to the Committee of Management and draw their sick pay therefrom, provided in all cases that the action taken by the Lodge is not a legal one.

2091. In the case mentioned by you there were certain persons who, having contributed to the Society, were deprived of their sick pay because the majority of members would not make the necessary contribution? I will not admit that; I am not in a position to state whether there were any sick at that time.

2092. Then how could it be suspended? By a resolution of any Lodge sick pay may be withheld for any length of time.

2093. Then does the Lodge reserve to itself the privilege of suspending its sick pay whenever it likes? There must be good cause shown for it; they cannot take that action without the consent of the Sub-Committee of Management or of the District under whose control they are.

2094. Now, in the case referred to, was the approval of the District obtained? It was before my time; I cannot answer that question.

2095. Still, I want you to tell me what protection there is for a sick man receiving his sick pay? I take it that no action taken by any Lodge can be retrospective; a person who has already received sick pay has an established claim on the Society; you can only deal with prospective claims.

2096. Suppose a Lodge consisting of a majority of young healthy men with a few old ones who are likely to lay claim to the Sick Fund, and suppose these young men, the majority, were to suspend the Sick Fund, what protection would there be for those who were likely to come on the funds? I should not like to give an answer to such a question, as I think the question is too far-fetched. I have already stated that a member has his remedy if he votes in the minority in a Lodge, by appealing to the Sub-Committee of Management, and he would then have his sick pay, medicine, and funeral donation the same as if he were a member of the Lodge.

2097. And how would the Sub-Committee of Management recoup themselves? They would receive his contributions.

2098. Yes, but could he go to the Sub-Committee of Management at once? I presume that would be the course taken and the remedy applied; but such a case has never yet arisen.

2099. You speak of the remedy by one voting in the minority; but supposing one voting in the majority fell sick and wanted to make a claim, what then? You are supposing very curious cases; it has not occurred yet in the experience of thirty odd years.

2100. You desire the Commission to understand that when you speak of only one Lodge having failed to meet its engagements you intend your observations to apply simply to this Colony, and not to the working in England or elsewhere? Decidedly so.

2101. Mr. Holdsworth.] In reply to the question as to what your rate of contribution was based upon I understood you to say upon experience? Yes.

Mr. G.
Bretnall.
23 Jan., 1882.

2102. Do you consider experience the best guide? I think past experience is not a sufficient guide for the future, as the Friendly Societies here have only just arrived at maturity, and I consider that the claims that have been made upon the Societies up to the present time will be surpassed by the claims in the future.
2103. Are you aware that that has been the result of the experience in Great Britain? I am.
2104. Have you read the reports for 1846 in the House of Commons—the report on Friendly Societies? No.
2105. Are you aware that by the experience of the last ten years it is found that the sickness has been greater than in the preceding ten years in your Society? I cannot go so far back as that; my experience only extends for three years; but I cannot fail to see that those who joined the Society when it was first established are now on the verge of death, and consequently the claims must fall heavier.
2106. But have you not a number of young members to take their places? Oh, decidedly; the average age at which we have accepted members during the past three years will not go over twenty-six or twenty-seven.
2107. Yet you consider your risks greater now than when you were first called into existence? Yes.
2108. Are you aware that locality has a great deal to do with the amount of sickness? Yes.
2109. Have you observed that trades and callings have had a great deal to do with sickness? I know that it has.
2110. Do you lose a number of members each year for non-payment of dues? Oh yes, especially in the case of new Lodges.
2111. Then you would have an actuarial calculation based on the various experiences of the Societies? Yes; and not only upon those of the Societies of this Colony, but of older Societies. I think the experience of the Societies here is not sufficiently lengthy to give a correct table.
2112. Have you examined into the question as to the proportion of sickness here per member per year, and that of the old country? I have not.
2113. You told us the sick pay was suspended by a vote? Yes.
2114. You have read the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, casually.
2115. You are aware that there is a clause by which any existing claims must be provided for before you can suspend that? I think that in my explanation I made it clear that that was the case; we cannot stop it, but we can pass a resolution to withhold it in any prospective cases.
2116. But if sick pay was suspended for a certain period of time, and any one in the minority objected to it, he could throw himself on a fund that would protect him? Just so.
2117. Then no wrong could be done him without his sanction? No.
2118. You say there is a provision in your laws for settling disputes by arbitration? Yes.
2119. Are you aware that in the Act there is a provision that everything shall be settled by arbitration without appeal? I believe there is; but when you take a case to Court they go on with it just the same, and the Judges will try the case.
2120. You referred to a case in which you went to law on a constitutional point, and the doctor afterwards gave evidence that death had arisen from Bright's disease? Yes.
2121. If he had signed a certificate to that effect before, would you have paid the claim? Yes, immediately.
2122. Mr. Langley.] Mr. Holdsworth just asked you if the minority wished to claim from the District their sick pay they could do so, and you answered yes; where would the funds come from? From the members of the whole Order.
2123. Do you think that fair? I think it is fairer than that the member should go short of his legitimate claim.
2124. Yes; but do you think that if I belonged to a Lodge that had always paid its way, I and that Lodge should be called upon to pay for the default made by another? Well, strictly speaking, there might be some ground for complaint, but the levy would be so very small that it would not be felt.
2125. Admitting that, still, on equitable principles, do you believe it would be right? Well, there are two evils, and I cannot see the way out of the question. If a Lodge becomes virtually insolvent for the time being, should the member lose the rights he has paid for?
2126. Do you not think some steps should be taken to prevent it from becoming insolvent? We cannot account at all times for the position of a Lodge; it may be in a poor position from accidental causes. It is an exceptional case.
2127. Do you not think some supervision should be exercised to prevent a Lodge from falling into that position? That could not have applied in this case. A Lodge may have £150 to its credit, and yet if three members fall sick for a whole year, they would absorb the whole fund.
2128. You say your scales are so arranged that you can charge anything above a fixed minimum? Yes.
2129. Does that fixed minimum admit of half fees besides? Separate and distinct from all contributions?
2130. Are your initiation fees fixed at a minimum and maximum? No, the maximum is fixed.
2131. Then you can go as much below that as you like? No.
2132. Is the whole scale not fixed? No, because we can alter it.
2133. And make it as low as you like? No; it would be within the province of the District to allow a Lodge to initiate at a nominal rate; it has been done. There is a law which says that in the event of new Lodges being opened they may admit members at half-fees; the nominal entrance has not been charged for several years past, but it has been done.
2134. Is it your opinion that the scale of initiation is of any importance as compared with the rates of contribution and the careful management of the funds of the Lodge? I should be prepared to forego all the initiation fees with the exception of a nominal one to pay the expense of examination. I think the contributions should be sufficient to meet all claims.
2135. In cases of half-fees being charged, may I ask if within your knowledge the half-fee system has been allowed when the funds or position of the Lodge did not require it, and whether such has not been done as simply a competitive arrangement? There are too many questions there.
2136. Have the District officers allowed you to charge half-fees in Lodges where the financial position of the Lodges did not absolutely demand it? There is a difficulty in answering that question, because it may be your opinion that it may be necessary to admit at half-fees when a Lodge is unfinancial or where it is in a good position.
2137. Do you know of any case where a Lodge in a sound position has been allowed to admit members at half-fees? Oh yes.

- Mr. G. Bretnall.
23 Jan., 1882.
2138. Then in that case what were the necessities for departing from your rules? Simply a desire to increase the numbers of the Order, upon the principle that every member introduced to the Society is a source of income.
2139. Was it actually from a desire for competition with other Societies? Not in the slightest degree; in fact we have competed in this way with our own Lodges.
2140. Do you consider it fair to your own Order to allow one Lodge to initiate members at half-fees while another Lodge is charging full fees? I think so, setting as I do very little value upon the fees.
2141. Do you think that in the carrying on of Benefit Societies it would be advisable to lay down, by a Government actuary or otherwise, a certain basis upon which calculations should be made? What form are these calculations to take?
2142. That would be for the Government actuary. I mean, to lay down as a basis what payments would guarantee a certain result? I cannot say whether you would like a sliding scale or a fixed one.
2143. A fixed scale? I think it would be wise if such a thing were adopted.
2144. Below which do you think it would be inadvisable or advisable to go? It would be decidedly unwise to fall below it.
2145. Mr. Rubie.] Then, according to your rule, all members would pay alike, as you set no value on the entrance fees? Yes, if it is a fixed scale like we have at the present time.
2146. Have you a Reserve Fund? Yes, in the District.
2147. To what purposes is that applied? Only to the funeral donations.
2148. Does any portion of the entrance fees go to that? Yes, there is a registration or entrance fee to the District Funeral Fund.
2149. Does that materially help it? Oh yes.
2150. Then it might be necessary to change that? Not if the contributions were made equal to the demands upon them.
2151. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? Yes, separate from the District; it is optional with the members if they belong to it or not.
2152. How is it supported? Each member pays a small nominal entrance fee, and 1d. a week.
2153. What are the benefits to be got from it? Though I am a member of it, I can hardly tell you; it is from £5 to £20.
2154. Has that Widow and Orphan Fund been sufficient to meet all demands upon it? Yes, and they have £500 to their credit now.
2155. What portion of your contribution goes towards your Sick and Funeral Fund? The Funeral Fund is administered by the District, and the Sick Fund by the Lodges; not less than 6d. a week.
2156. And out of that 6d. a week a portion goes to the district? Yes; not less than 2s. 6d. or 3s. a quarter.
2157. What is your general contribution? Ranging from 13d. to 15d. There are one or two Lodges paying only a shilling, but they are now talking of raising it.
2158. The contributions can be raised to meet any demand? Yes.
2159. That is a sort of sliding scale? Well, it is open to the members to decide at any meeting what they shall pay, so long as it is not less than a certain amount.
2160. Mr. Newland.] Seeing that you state that the fees are not much in the takings of a Society, but that the contributions properly managed would be sufficient, would you be in favour of a graduated scale of payments? Under certain conditions I should; I think though that the constituent parts of a Friendly Society are not able for the work that would fall on the secretaries; it would be hard to find clerical skill sufficient to carry it out.
2161. I mean if a young man joins at a certain age he should pay that amount through life; do you think that would entail a great amount of labour? My experience of secretaries leads me to the opinion that they would find great difficulty in carrying it out. At the same time I believe it to be the most just system.
2162. What is the cost of opening new Lodges in your Order? The actual cost of opening a new Lodge, with just bare necessities for conducting the business, would be something under £5.
2163. What would be included in that £5? The Charter, books necessary, and Lodge seal.
2164. Is regalia necessary in the working of a Lodge? No.
2165. Mr. Greville.] If the contributions were calculated on such a scale as to pay a proper secretary, your objection would be done away with I suppose? Decidedly.
2166. Mr. Slade.] Regarding the sick pay, your rule 106 relates to it, and it being decided by law how much a week you shall pay, how can you without calling a meeting of your members alter that law or do anything which relates to the suspension of sick benefits for any period? I think the Friendly Societies Act gives power to the members by a specified majority.
2167. Does not the Friendly Societies Act state that no alteration of the laws can be made except at a summoned meeting, summoned for that purpose? But this is not an alteration—it is merely a suspension.
2168. If the law settles that, by what authority do you set aside the law? If the members are summoned to a certain meeting the business is noted on the summons, that is sufficient.
2169. Then do we understand that this alteration of your rules, or the suspension of your rules, has been duly forwarded to the Registrar and certified in the usual way? There are too many points there. In the first instance you say the rules are altered; they are not altered, but are simply suspended for the time being.
2170. Your 106th rule says the allowance for sick members shall be on a certain scale; that law contains no power to set aside or suspend that form of payment? Under the Friendly Societies Act it does.
2171. Then has it in every case been legally done and the alteration registered? There has been no alteration, but merely a suspension.
2172. Can you give the Commission any idea of how large a proportion of the weekly expense is available for sick pay? Not less than 6d. a week is paid into the Sick and Funeral Fund.
2173. Well, taking away the Funeral Fund, how much is left for sick pay? About 16s. a year.
2174. That is about 4d. a week; does it not require about sixty members to keep one sick member on the funds? As a matter of course it must.
2175. Does your experience teach you that the Lodges having met their sick liabilities hitherto, their rate of sickness must have been less than that? Most undoubtedly; if the money had not been sufficient we should have lost ground, which we have not done.
2176. To return to graduated payments: do you think that they would very materially increase the duties of

Mr. G.
Brettnall.

23 Jan., 1882.

of the secretaries if they were arbitrarily fixed at entrance and not interfered with during the course of the members' attachment to his Lodge? It would take a tolerably fair clerk to keep a set of books on the graduated scale; it would not increase the duties, but it would increase the necessity for more ability.

2177. Are you of opinion that the management of the affairs of the Societies could be assisted if the Friendly Societies Act accorded that there should be an Arbitration Committee to assist them in the settlement of their disputes? I believe that a Board composed of the leading members of the various Friendly Societies would be a very good Board for such a purpose.

2178. I mean to meet the case of Societies that are single in their existence, and not for the larger Societies? There would be no objection to their being affiliated with the Friendly Societies for such a purpose.

2179. Have you a separate superannuation or pension fund attached to your Order? None.

2180. Do you consider such a fund advisable? No, decidedly not.

2181. Mr. Gelding.] Have you studied this question of arbitration well? No, I have not.

2182. Then I presume on that account you are not able to give a very good opinion on the affair? I think the matter is such a commonplace one that any one could give an opinion.

2183. Do you not think these arbitration affairs should be left entirely to the Societies to settle amongst themselves; would it not be injudicious, considering that one Society is pitted against another, to call in members of other Orders? I have yet to learn that the Societies are pitted against each other.

2184. Then you believe the arbitrators should be taken from the different bodies? I can see no objection to such a course, believing that there is sufficient honor and integrity amongst members everywhere to settle a matter of that kind.

2185. I presume you have had to send returns in to the Registrar? Not to the Registrar; I send them in to our General Secretary.

2186. And he, I presume, sends them to the Registrar? Yes.

2187. There has been a good deal of difference of opinion how this should be done; do not you think that in every case the returns should be sent in to the Grand Secretary certified by auditors sworn before a Justice of the Peace, and that these returns as compiled by the Grand Secretary should be sufficient for all purposes? I have seen in the possession of our Grand Secretary a tabulated statement which he sends in.

2188. But does he not send in the single forms? I believe so, but a tabulated statement as well.

2189. Would it not be sufficient to have the tabulated statement alone? I do not know; it would give room for cooking the returns.

2190. Are you aware of secretaries cooking these accounts? No, under present circumstances it is very hard to do it; but I think that is a question that could be better answered by the Registrar than by me.

2191. You have stated in answer to Mr. Newland that your Lodges are not required to have regalia: do not all your Lodges dispense with that law? We have no law.

2192. Do all your Lodges have regalia? I believe they have, with the exception of one to be opened next Thursday—they have none at all.

2193. In reference to the sliding scale, I understood you to say that you did not believe the secretaries have sufficient capabilities to carry it out in this Colony? —

2194. Are you aware that the Manchester Unity in Great Britain and the Channel Islands adopt this sliding scale? My experience does not extend to other parts of the world, but only to New South Wales.

2195. And yet you think it would be impossible to carry out such a thing? No, I said it would require a better class of secretary than we usually get.

2196. You tell us you would willingly do away with the initiation fees, and yet you would have a fixed scale of contribution putting members of all ages on a perfect equality? I said that on account of the difficulty of getting secretaries of sufficient ability I would be more in favour of a fixed scale than of a sliding scale.

2197. I was talking of initiation fees? I would do away with them altogether and admit members on a nominal entrance.

2198. Are you aware that to do that you would have to raise the subscriptions to about 1s. 6d. a week? I do not think they would come to that.

2199. Have you any idea of the amount you receive from initiation fees in the district for a single quarter? I am not prepared with figures at the present time, but I could furnish the information. In the last three months it might amount to £150.

2200. Do you think the present rate of contribution you pay in your Order, 1s. a week, sufficient to meet all your present and future liabilities? No, I am sure a shilling a week will not meet it.

2201. You are aware that posters are put about offering all sorts of advantages for a shilling a week? I am aware they have been printed, but in all cases the Lodges have been opened on a higher scale.

2202. And do you, as District Secretary, allow these posters to go about? Once having gone forth, we can take no action or do away with the impression produced on the people.

2203. Are you aware that the Rose of Petersham Lodge issued a poster to that effect? Yes, I am aware of it.

2204. Was it contrary to your rules? No; our rules say the minimum contribution shall be a shilling a week, and it was within the rules. When the Lodge was opened the fees were made higher.

2205. Do you think your Society, or any other Society, with the exception of the Temperance bodies, could withhold the funeral donation, provided a man died from alcoholism? You are asking for a legal opinion, and I should not like to give it. Our rules say we are not to pay in such cases.

2206. You say you have never studied the Friendly Societies Act? Not to any very great extent.

2207. Have you looked through all the clauses? No, because it is incomprehensible to me—there are so many Societies mixed up in it.

2208. Mr. Newland.] Have any of the officers of your Society informed intending candidates to understate their ages? Never.

2209. Have they ever gone to the medical officer and told him not to make too careful an examination of the candidates—have you ever heard of such a thing? I have never heard of such a thing, but have been one of a committee to wait on the doctor and urge a stricter examination.

2210. Mr. Holdsworth.] Is it the practice in your Society to examine into the health of the wives? Not in our Society.

2211. Mr. Gelding.] Then, considering she is insured as well as the man, do not you consider she should undergo some examination? If a member makes a false declaration with regard to the state of his wife's health he is liable to be expelled.

- Mr. G. Bretnall.
23 Jan., 1882.
2212. But you cannot prove it? We have proved it.
2213. Do you think it advisable, considering she is insured, that she should undergo an examination? I have voted against it.
2214. Mr. Langley.] If a medical examination is necessary in the case of the husband, are there not grounds why it should be equally so in the case of the wife? No, because she is not the recipient of sick pay, living, as she does, on the bounty her husband supplies.
2215. Mr. Gelding.] In the medical certificates that have come in to you of a wife's death have you not found the cause of death consumption or phthisis? Infants die of that.
2216. Mr. Greville.] Am I correct in supposing that your objection to initiation fees is simply because it is an unscientific way of providing funds? Yes, I believe they are not based on anything like correct principles.
2217. You think the table of payments should be so calculated as to secure the results independently of any initiation fees? Decidedly so.
2218. Mr. Smith.] Are all the Lodges working under your Grand Lodge registered? I think they are every one of them.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 27 January.

FRIDAY, 27 JANUARY, 1882.

Present:—

FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. William Barnett Smith sworn and examined:—

- Mr. W. B. Smith.
27 Jan., 1882.
2219. President.] What are you? An accountant.
2220. You reside at Wallerawang? At Wallerawang at present.
2221. You have expressed a desire to be examined by this Commission? That is so, sir.
2222. You are aware of the nature of the inquiry? I am; it is, I believe, into the working of the present Friendly Societies Act.
2223. Have you had a large experience in connection with Benefit Societies? For the last eight or nine years I have been closely connected with them.
2224. Have you held office in connection with any of the Societies? Yes, I have.
2225. Which one? The Protestant Alliance Friendly Society.
2226. What position did you occupy? I occupied the position of Grand Secretary or general Secretary of the Order for two years, and also Secretary and Chairman of subordinate Lodge.
2227. Is this Society registered under the Act? Yes.
2228. What is the nature of the Society—is it governed by any central body? It is; it is governed by one central body, which is termed the Grand Council, composed of representatives elected by each subordinate Lodge.
2229. Are there many subordinate Lodges in connection with it? There are, in all the Colonies. In New South Wales I think there are from twenty to thirty at the present time.
2230. Is it connected with Lodges in the other Colonies? Yes.
2231. And is this the head quarters of the whole? No, they are all on an equality; the Order originally existed in Victoria and New South Wales as separate bodies, but they amalgamated, agreeing to accept members from each other, and they now exist under one body called the High Court. It has spread to the other Colonies since the amalgamation.
2232. But has the Grand Council of New South Wales any jurisdiction over the other Lodges in Victoria? None at all.
2233. What are the principles upon which it is founded? The principles common to all Benefit Societies; it affords aid during periods of sickness, a sum of money payable on the death of a member or member's wife, and medical attendance and medicine to its members.
2234. And I presume the contributions and the sick and funeral benefits are somewhat similar to those of other Societies? Yes, much similar; they allow 21s. a week for the first period of sickness, then 15s., and then 5s.; £25 at the death of a member, and £15 at the death of a member's wife; and this donation is increased by £5 after five years' membership.
2235. What is the weekly amount of contributions? 1s. a week is the stated sum, but this is increased, varying in Lodges from 1s. to 1s. 3d. a week; it is generally a shilling, and then a levy each quarter.
2236. Do you know upon what data the Grand Council arrived at the fact that this contribution was sufficient to meet any demands that might be made on the Society? They had no data but the experience of other Societies in existence before themselves; they had no tables, and nothing to calculate a correct rate of contribution.
2237. So far as you are aware, has this Society been able to meet its financial engagements? It has, so far as I am aware, been able to meet all its engagements; it has only been in existence eight or nine years, and has progressed, though I think the Society is not in a sound financial condition.
2238. I think you said it was a Protestant Friendly Society? It is; that is, the members must belong to some Protestant denomination.
2239. I presume you have made yourself acquainted with the Friendly Societies Act? I have in a general way.
2240. Are you aware whether that law has been complied with in certain respects, such as laying the returns before Parliament and so on? I believe the annual returns have been furnished to the Registrar.
2241. That is the respective Lodges or Grand Council have furnished these returns to the Registrar? The custom is to furnish the General Secretary with duplicate returns, one copy of which is sent to the Registrar and the other kept by the Society.

2242. And do the Societies send their returns directly to the Registrar, or through the Grand Council?
Through the Grand Council.
2243. You are aware that under the law the respective Lodges can send them in to the Registrar? Yes, I am aware of that; but it is a matter of regulation of the Society that the Grand Secretary shall collect them first.
2244. Now do you not think it is best that they should come through the Grand Council or other governing body? I do.
2245. Do you know whether any of the Lodges under the Society have been dissolved? Yes, they have.
2246. Could you tell us for what reason? Probably because the members have fallen away.
2247. What becomes of the interests of the members who are left? Under the law they can transfer themselves to some other Lodge.
2248. And receive all the benefits they would have become entitled to under the Lodge that became defunct? Yes.
2249. Do you know anything about the working of any of the other Societies,—the Oddfellows, Druids? I know nothing of the working of the other Societies, with the exception of the experience gained by the Oddfellows in England; I have studied that, and the works of Mr. Ratcliffe and the tables he prepared; but as far as their actual working is concerned I know nothing.
2250. Do you know whether the Societies here have fixed their contributions and benefits on the basis of Mr. Ratcliffe's tables, or if tested by them would they be found sufficient? I do not believe there is a single Society in New South Wales that would show favourably if tested by these tables. I am certain the rates of contribution now paid are not sufficient to meet the benefits promised.
2251. That is, taking the ages at which persons join and the death rate? Yes, taking the English death rate.
2252. Do you think longevity is greater here than in England? I do not think it is.
2253. Who is Mr. Ratcliffe? He was Corresponding Secretary to the Manchester Unity in England for many years.
2254. Was he an actuary? No, he was not an actuary; but he gave a great deal of study to the question, and was able to get a great deal of valuable information; his tables have been taken as a basis by the Victorian Government in the tables they have prepared.
2255. How are disputes settled in your Society? They are settled by a majority of the subordinate Lodge, and there is a right of appeal to the Grand Council. If not satisfied with that, the matter can then be submitted to arbitration.
2256. But is there anything to prevent a litigious person going to the Law Courts? Our law says that disputes must be referred to arbitration, and that the result of the arbitration must be complied with.
2257. But is that not diametrically opposed to the statute law? The Act says that the rules must provide for the matter, and mentions arbitration as one of the modes. If not referred to arbitration, then an appeal may be made to the Law Courts.
2258. I want to get your opinion as to whether it would be wise to provide that all possible disputes that could arise internally amongst the Lodges should be determined amongst themselves, with the right of appeal to an appellent Court? Yes, with the right of appeal to a higher Court outside the Society.
2259. Is it your opinion that an appellent Court could and ought to be formed out of the respective institutions or governing bodies of the various Societies? I have never thought of that, but it strikes me as a very good idea; as men such as these would have a better knowledge of the working of the Societies than a District Court Judge, and they would be better able to render justice.
2260. Then you would have a Board of persons—say, for the sake of illustration, one from each Society—to act as a final appellent Court? Yes.
2261. Of course that does not refer to criminal cases? No.
2262. Have you ever known of any defalcations or malpractices by secretaries or treasurers? Not from actual knowledge; I have heard of several cases, but could not say whether they were correct.
2263. Now, is there any suggestion you could make to the Commission in reference to any emendation of the law; in what particular points do you think the law requires amendment? One important point is in fixing a minimum rate of contribution; and secondly, having all tables of rates certified to by a competent person independent of the Society.
2264. Is that all that strikes you at present? There is another provision that might be amended, and that is that which permits Societies to invest a certain portion of their capital in land or buildings. I think they should be compelled to have a certain reserve fund before locking up their capital. I think the great fault is in the administration of the Act rather than in the Act itself.
2265. Has it ever come to your knowledge that it was impossible to administer the Act in consequence of not having sufficient machinery? I believe that is the case; one person could not successfully administer the Act.
2266. You are aware that there are very large amounts of money involved in the administration of the Act, so far as it affects the individual members of the Lodges and their connections? Yes.
2267. Have you ever thought over the question as to whether it would be only an act of justice to these Societies that there should be a Department created specially to deal with this matter and to administer the Act? Yes, I certainly think there should be a Department.
2268. And you think any Government would be justified in creating such a Department? Most decidedly.
2269. And better security would thus be afforded to members and Lodges? Yes; and I believe Societies would also be formed on a sounder basis—there would be less uncertainty than at present.
2270. Mr. Smith.] Have you ever been a member of any other Society? Never.
2271. I understood you to say that you thought the Society of which you are a member is not in a good financial position? I did say so.
2272. You speak of it as a whole? As a whole, yes.
2273. How long has the Society existed here? About nine years.
2274. Where did it first have its origin? In Sydney.
2275. Only? Only. There were Societies of the same name in different Colonies, but in no way connected.
2276. You have no connection with any Society of the same name in any other part of the world? The Society extends throughout the whole of the Colonies; it did exist in Victoria before we were established here as an independent body.

Mr.
W. B. Smith.
27 Jan., 1882.

2277. How long is it since the connection took place between here and Victoria? Since 1874, I think.
2278. And your experience will justify you in saying that you believe the Society is not in a good financial position? Yes. I do not think it is worse than any others, perhaps better than many others; it is a fault common to all Societies—that is, taking an actuarial view of the matter.
2279. Have you any idea or could you give any opinion as to the average ages of your members? I should think the average age would be something over thirty; because the Society has been so lately formed that there cannot be a large proportion of members at the older ages.
2280. Is it not a fact that your Society, in order to get a footing in the Colony, has resorted to the principle of taking in a large percentage of old members? No, that is not the fact; it has resorted to one defect, and that is to admit members at a reduced entrance-fee. That is a matter that I was personally opposed to; still it has prevailed and often does prevail.
2281. Then it is a fact that your Lodges have resorted to the half initiation fees? Yes, principally in the Lodges just opened.
2282. Has it been done in more instances than one by any new Lodge? Not to my knowledge, but it may have been—it is possible.
2283. Do you not think that principle in itself would be very injurious to the successful working of a Lodge? I do, provided the rates of contribution are not sufficiently high. If they are sufficiently high I do not think it matters much what the rates of entrance-fee are.
2284. Could you give any idea as to the class of persons you get under the reduced entrance-fee? Principally young men; we do not take any members over forty.
2285. But is it not a great inducement for men from thirty to forty to become members of a Society where they can get in for half the amount? Of course it is.
2286. During the nine years this Order has been in existence in the Colony have you had many cases taken into the Law Courts? No, I do not think we have had more than one or two; I do not remember more than one.
2287. You did have one case? We had one; it was the Grand Master of the Order who retained some part of the regalia and was sued to recover it.
2288. What was the result? He was compelled to give it up.
2289. Did the Grand Lodge suffer by having to pay expenses? No, he had to pay the costs; they were given against him.
2290. In reply to the President, you said you thought the Act would meet all requirements if it were properly administered? With a few amendments that I suggested at the time.
2291. As Grand Secretary have you ever experienced any difficulty in working your Lodges under the Act? No. I only held the office of Grand Secretary for a short time after the Act came into force.
2292. Is it within your knowledge that any difficulties have been experienced by any of the officers under the Act? No, unless that clause relating to the purchase of land by Lodges is a case in point. A Lodge to which I belonged invested a portion of its surplus capital in land, and the matter was referred to the Registrar, and he gave his opinion against it as being an illegal act; but legal advice which we took indorsed what they had done, and the matter was left as it stood.
2293. And your Society acted on that legal advice? We had already acted.
2294. The land was purchased out of the surplus funds of that individual Lodge? Yes, of that individual Lodge.
2295. Have you any pension or superannuation fund in connection with your Lodge? No, we have not.
2296. Mr. Abigail.] You stated that though your Society had met all its engagements, you still consider it is not sound financially? I did.
2297. On what do you base that opinion? My principal reasons are: I took one of our Lodges, supposed to be one of the best, whose position appeared to be fair according to the laws. Well, I submitted the affairs of this Lodge to an investigation based on the tables published by the Registrar in Victoria which were taken from Mr. Ratcliffe's tables, and the result showed me that this Lodge had a deficit of nearly a thousand pounds; so I concluded from that that our Society in common with others was not really in a sound position, though it had £500 surplus and 150 members.
2298. So that Lodge, with £500 surplus and 150 members, you consider is not sound financially? I do not; and a large proportion of the members was under forty years of age.
2299. How is that brought out—is it by taking the accumulated liabilities? By means of the tables published by the Victorian Government; and taking the present value of the benefits promised, and of the future contributions, and present capital invested in all securities, cash in hand, and proportion of capital with the Grand Council, the balance shows whether it is debit or credit.
2300. I presume you made allowance for interest? Yes, interest on all moneys at 4 per cent.
2301. Do you think a Society charging a uniform rate of 1s. per week can safely give 20s. sick pay and £25 on a member's death? I do not. I have here a memo. showing the contributions towards all benefits of the Lodge whose position I valued, and I calculated that the contributions should be ranging from 8½d. to 3s. 8d. a week to secure the benefits. There is no provision made for withdrawals in the calculation.
2302. That is a graduated scale, then? It is, at periods of five years.
2303. Are you in favour of a graduated scale? I am, decidedly.
2304. That calculation is based on a graduated scale? Yes; a member at twenty should not pay as much as a member at forty. I compared them with the Australian Mutual Society's tables, and found that according to Mr. Hayter's tables in Melbourne the amount should be 5s. 7d. a year, for funeral donation of £25, and according to the Australian Mutual Provident, 6s. 9d.
2305. Do you think members should be permitted to join more than one Society for the purpose of obtaining sick benefits? I do. I cannot see why they should not, or why any clause in the Act should prevent them from obtaining the benefits.
2306. Do you think it is likely to make the Societies liable to be operated upon? It would make the members more careful to guard against imposition.
2307. Can you tell us what is the annual management expense of your Society? I could not say certainly, but about 10 per cent.; I should think, would cover it.
2308. Do you think that in any new-Friendly Societies Act it would be wise to incorporate a provision to allow a Society to lend to its members for the purpose of building? I do; I have long thought it would be wise to allow it. Societies are now allowed to lend on mortgage, and they might do it better if this was allowed.

2309. Do you think the present basis on which the large Societies are worked is fair to their members? I do not? I see nothing fair whatever in the composition of Friendly Societies. A member joins at twenty years of age and pays the same rate of contribution as one who joins at forty; and if he is in the Society for ten years and leaves, he receives nothing back. This, I believe, deters many from joining Friendly Societies.

Mr.
W. B. Smith.
27 Jan., 1882.

2310. How do you meet that? In various ways; one by the formation of a Superannuation Fund; then if there were a periodical valuation, profits could be divided and put away towards this fund.

2311. How could that affect members who left the Society? It could not affect them, but they would be less liable to leave.

2312. Are you of opinion that a valuation should be regularly made? Most certainly, on the same principle as a business man submits his affairs to investigation.

2313. Should that be done by a Government officer? By public valuers or a Government officer.

2314. Do you think that at present sufficient data could be obtained to base such a valuation on—do the returns enable Societies to supply sufficient data? The returns sent in to the Registrar are valueless, because they do not afford information as to each separate age. If it could be given for ten years, then the data would be available; but the data we could obtain from Ratcliffe would be sufficient.

2315. What, in your opinion, would be a fair average contribution to give benefits such as are generally given by Friendly Societies? I should say not less than 1s. 3d. a week.

2316. You do not think it could be done for a shilling? I am certain it could not.

2317. But supposing a Society meets its engagements, do you think its contingent liabilities increase faster than the funds can possibly increase by the payment of a shilling a week? Undoubtedly, for it is the experience of most Lodges that they go on accumulating funds though their contributions may be small; but there has been no drain upon them, although that time must ultimately come.

2318. Will not that be partially met by the withdrawals which benefit all Societies? They, to a large extent, do benefit Societies; and in England, up to the age of thirty, the rate of withdrawals is higher than the rate of mortality; but if the Societies were fair that would not occur.

2319. It is not the older members who withdraw, then? No; the younger members, decidedly.

2320. Do you spend much money in the matter of regalia? Very little, except for the regalia of the officers. My own opinion is that regalia is a thing that could be done without in all Friendly Societies.

2321. Are any of the officers paid? The secretaries in all the Lodges, and the treasurers merely a nominal sum.

2322. Have you any knowledge of any of your Lodges having failed through want of funds or funds running out? No, not beyond the case I have mentioned to the President.

2323. Mr. Greville.] Do you consider that the unscientific basis of calculations which is at present in operation acts very prejudicially to the Societies by causing young men to withdraw in consequence of not receiving a due return for their money? I do. It deters young men from joining, and when they have joined, deters them from remaining in the Society.

2324. According to the present scale, the elderly are sustained at the expense of the younger members? Exactly so; the only difference being that the older man pays a slightly increased entrance fee.

2325. And would you discard the idea of the strong helping the weak and the richer the poorer, and form these Societies upon purely commercial principles like Life Assurance Societies? I would, decidedly. My experience is that that feeling prevails to a very small extent.

2326. And if these commercial principles were adopted, do you consider that these Societies would largely increase their operations? Yes, I do think so.

2327. From previous answers you have given I glean that you are in favour of the Government laying down certain lines upon which these Societies can be formed, giving a maximum and minimum contribution, and leaving the Societies themselves to choose any line between? I should not attach so much importance to fixing the maximum, but I certainly would fix the minimum contribution for a certain benefit.

2328. If the withdrawals from the present Societies were to cease, you think a day of reckoning would speedily come by which it would be found that the Societies were unable to fulfil their engagements? I do; but there are other cases in which members join the Societies in poor circumstances and afterwards acquire wealth, so that they cease to require the benefits.

2329. But it is the fact that most of these Societies have been able to carry on without coming to a standstill in consequence of these withdrawals? In these Colonies it is so; but here they have not existed for a sufficient length of time to enable us to judge properly.

2330. At any rate you are satisfied that the benefits promised are greater than the rates of contribution justify? I am, certainly.

2331. Mr. Langley.] I understood you to tell the President that some of your Societies had stopped working? They have, yes.

2332. In this case what was done with the funds? They were retained by the Grand Lodge.

2333. Did the Grand Lodge make arrangements by which the members should receive the benefits to which they were entitled by your Constitution? Yes, they did; that is provided for by the rules.

2334. You have no cases in which the Lodge stopped for want of funds? Not for want of funds alone.

2335. You say you do not think a shilling a week is sufficient, and that you have been in the habit of making levies? That is the regular custom in the Society—to make levies quarterly.

2336. Has it been customary to inform intending candidates that you charged levies in addition to the ordinary contribution? I do not think it has been customary.

2337. The tables, I think, of which you speak are those laid down by Mr. Hayter in Victoria, and are more a basis for a Mutual Insurance Company? No, they are Friendly Societies' tables prepared especially to enable Societies to value their liabilities and assets.

2338. Did you say that if a graduated scale was adopted by a purely Benefit Society, that Society would progress much better than the Societies do at present? I believe it would—I believe it would be fairer to all.

2339. Then if you take a young man of twenty who is unmarried, what provision would you make for the extra expense incurred by the Lodge when he becomes a married man with a wife and family? That does not enter into the matter at all, for the only extra expense that would be incurred would be medical expenses, which is a matter of contract with the doctor, and in calculating the Society's condition an allowance is made for that; a certain portion of the contribution is put aside for that, and the remainder only is calculated upon.

- Mr. W. B. Smith.
27 Jan., 1882.
2340. Then you have not calculated that portion in? No; but I have allowed a certain portion of the contribution for that; I have allowed 25s. per annum as being his contribution for medical expenses. (Vide Appendix.)
2341. You admit there are Lodges which have to pay more? Undoubtedly.
2342. Then how can you make a hard-and-fast line of this kind? A hard-and-fast rule could not be made. If a Lodge had to pay more, its contributions should be more to meet it.
2343. You say you took the opinion of the Registrar as to some land, and he gave it as his opinion that it was illegal; did your Society act upon his instructions? We had purchased the land before we obtained the decision.
2344. But if you had done an illegal act you could have disposed of the land again? But we had committed an illegal act, and we took legal advice and let the matter rest there.
2345. Then you ignored the opinion of the Registrar? Yes.
2346. Do you think that if matters in connection with a Society, if they have to be submitted to the Registrar at all, should not be governed by his decision, if he is qualified for the position? In the majority of cases, yes; but the Registrar is not infallible.
2347. Who should be the authority? The Societies should have the right to appeal to a higher Court.
2348. Then you would leave the workings of the Societies to the civil law instead of to an appellate Board? In a matter like that, which is a matter of law, I should think that a Civil Court would be best able to decide.
2349. Mr. Rubie.] What are your rates of contribution? They vary from 1s. to as high as 1s. 3d.
2350. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? No, we have not.
2351. Do you keep the Risk and Funeral Funds separate? We do, yes.
2352. What proportion of the contributions is paid to them? We do not keep them separate in the subordinate Lodges now; though we did up to the present year. Then the proportion was 7d. to the Sick and Funeral Fund, and 5d. to the other funds. That we found was too much, and so we abolished them.
2353. In the scale you have made up, was it worked out by yourself? Yes.
2354. I see, at the age of twenty the amount fixed is 8½d.; what is included in that? Not doctors and medicine.
2355. But sick-pay and funeral donation? It is so stated.
2356. And that calculation is based on your tables? On those of Mr. Hayter, which are merely a revision of Ratcliffe's tables.
2357. You have a sliding scale of entrance? Yes, at entrance.
2358. How is that money disposed of? It was the custom to put it half to the Funeral and half to the Management and Expense Fund.
2359. Because most of the actuaries state that if it were put out to interest it would materially help the Funeral Funds? No doubt the entrance fees could be applied in reduction of the annual contribution.
2360. Then all your members pay the same contribution? Yes.
2361. You stated I believe just now that, more or less, the young members were paying for the older ones? Yes, that is my opinion.
2362. If you had a certain rate of entrance, calculated according to any actuarial scale, that would not occur? The entrance fee is a very small proportion of the amount paid.
2363. Then from your own experience you are of opinion that not less than 15d. would be required to meet the ordinary benefits? That is the lowest that could safely be accepted, but it could be calculated to the minutest fraction.
2364. Mr. Newland.] About how many members are there in the Society? About 2,700.
2365. I suppose they have general meetings of delegates? Yes.
2366. And how often are they held? The rule provides for annual meetings, but they meet more often.
2367. And how many delegates attend these meetings? I should think on an average forty.
2368. Are they held in the day or evening? In the day.
2369. And how much a day do these delegates receive? Twelve shillings per day and travelling expenses.
2370. Do any of them travel a long distance? I should think the average cost of the annual meeting in that way would be from £50 to £70.
2371. What is the greatest number of times they have met in the twelve months? Oh, twelve times, but the members are not paid; they are only paid at the annual meetings.
2372. How often do they receive this pay? Once a year.
2373. How often does your Executive meet? Once a month, or oftener if required.
2374. How many members are there on it? Nine or ten.
2375. And do they meet in the day or at night? In the evening.
2376. What pay do they receive? They receive no pay.
2377. And what is the cost of management of your Society? I should put it down at about 10 per cent.; but that is mere guess work—it is impossible to calculate it for want of data.
2378. That would be nearly 2d. per week per member? Ten per cent. on 35s. a year; nearly 1d.
2379. The medical expenses you say are about 25s. per annum? Yes.
2380. That is at the rate of 6d. a week? Yes.
2381. Then a young member joining at the age of twenty and paying 8½d. should pay 14½d. to include medical benefits? Yes, but in that table withdrawals are not included.
2382. If he joined at forty according to the same rule he would have to pay 1s. 9d., and still you say that an average of 15d. would be sufficient for members at all ages? Yes, because the rules say that no member can join over forty. The bulk of the members join at from twenty to thirty, and in the tables withdrawals not being considered, 15d. I think would be a fair amount.
2383. What are the qualifications necessary for a person joining? Only that he should belong to some Protestant denomination.
2384. But in the event of him afterwards leaving that form of faith, how would the Society deal with him? He forfeits his membership.
2385. Mr. Greville.] Has such a case occurred? Not to my knowledge.
2386. President.] Do you insist upon a member going to church? No.
2387. Not once a year, or something of that sort? No.
2388. Mr. Newland.] In your experience do Lodges expend more for sick pay to young members and their families than to older members? I should think not, but rather that it would be considerably higher in the older ages.

Mr. W. B. Smith
27 Jan., 1882

- 2389. What position do you hold now in the Society? I have not held any position for the last nine months since I left Sydney.
- 2390. Mr. Slade.] Have you ever come across any instance of repudiation on the part of your Society? No.
- 2391. No cases in which they have had to suspend the paying of benefits for any time owing to want of funds to meet the claims? No, I have found them rather too ready to pay money away.
- 2392. How are your Grand Lodge officers appointed? They are elected by the representatives of the various Lodges.
- 2393. How are they paid? The Secretary and Treasurer are the only officers paid.
- 2394. The delegates I mean? They are paid by levy on the various Lodges.
- 2395. But by the Grand Lodge or the Branch that sends them? By the Grand Lodge, from the collective levies.
- 2396. Do these delegates, assembled in council, fix the rate of levy for sick and funeral benefits for the ensuing year? They fix the rate for the funeral levy and for management for the year.
- 2397. Can you give us the usual amount? About 6s. per annum for both funds, but the secretary will give you the information.
- 2398. What is about the cost of opening a new Lodge in your Society? I think the charter fee is £1 1s., if I remember rightly.
- 2399. And what would be the cost of the regalia they are obliged to wear? They are not obliged to have regalia at all—it is optional with them.
- 2400. Regarding the returns sent in by your various Branches, what is your opinion of their value? They are of no value at all, on account of being principally a statement of the balance in hand at the end of each year, and do not give the particulars of expenditure or the sick rate at the various ages.
- 2401. Have you any reason to doubt their correctness? I have every reason to doubt it, as I have had much to do with balancing them, and they do not supply the information required.
- 2402. Have you any reason to doubt their truthfulness? No, I have no reason to doubt that.
- 2403. In the Branches are the sick and funeral and management funds kept separate? Not now—they are amalgamated.
- 2404. Does your Society offer any special advantages at the opening of new Branches? Only admitting members at a reduced entrance fee.
- 2405. Are the members examined as carefully as at any other period of a Lodge's existence? Yes, they are examined, and sign a medical declaration.
- 2406. Then there are no other inducements? I believe when the Society was first formed other inducements were offered; but that was only the first few Lodges; and it was one of these whose position I investigated.
- 2407. Could you tell us what you have to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund at the present time? I could not at the present time, but I think it is about £7,000.
- 2408. Have you any idea what is to the credit of the Management Fund? No, I do not know.
- 2409. Will your secretary be able to furnish us with the average age of your members? He should be able to do so.
- 2410. Does the table of sliding scale you have submitted include the doctor and medicine? No, it does not.
- 2411. Then, in addition they would have to be billed with the cost of doctor and medicine and management? Yes. This table was not prepared for the purpose of being submitted to the Commission. If I were to do so, I should make allowance for withdrawals and load the premium with an amount for management expenses.
- 2412. Can you tell us from what fund the banners that we see floating in processions are provided? I do not think our Society has more than one banner, which I believe was provided for by subscription amongst the members.
- 2413. In a schedule here your Order is put down as costing 57 per cent. for management? That would include medicine and medical attendance.
- 2414. Mr. Golding.] You stated that if you took withdrawals into consideration, the average would be materially altered: have you ever considered the question that Lodges in most of such cases lose probably 10s. by each member, the amount they have to pay the medical attendant? In some instances no doubt they do.
- 2415. In the majority of instances? Probably they do; that is, withdrawals by members who are returned to the medical officer for one quarter.
- 2416. But supposing a member intends to leave the Society, and will not pay up his contributions for twelve weeks, and then leaves, has the Lodge to pay the medical officer? Yes, until he is fourteen weeks in arrears.
- 2417. And could you then frame a scale suitable to meet the Societies? Yes. I said before we do not consider the medical attendance at all; it is a matter of contract, the terms of which are tacked on afterwards.
- 2418. You say you have studied Ratcliffe's tables? Yes.
- 2419. Are you aware that according to the scale laid down by him, a person twenty years of age, to secure the present rate most members of Friendly Societies in New South Wales receive, would have to pay about twice the amount he has to pay now? They are based on a 3 per cent. valuation; those I used on a 4 per cent.
- 2420. Do you think that scale of yours would be a sufficient basis upon which to frame a sliding scale? No; it is only taken for periods of five years each.
- 2421. Do you think that if Societies could furnish forty years' experience it would be a good basis to go upon? Undoubtedly it would be the best that could be obtained.
- 2422. You said you would like to see the Societies made into a sort of Mutual Provident Association: would not that be contrary to the principles upon which they are framed? It may be contrary to the spirit of the original intentions, but the Societies have outgrown that, and, if managed on purely business principles, I think they would be sounder and that it would be better for the members.
- 2423. What would be a fair average rate per head for a Society to be solvent? It would be impossible to say, as you would have to consider so many cases. What would be sufficient in many cases would not be nearly sufficient in others.
- 2424. I understood you to say that, having studied the Act, you believed it to be all right in itself, but that it had been badly administered? I believe generally that it is sufficient.

Mr.
W. B. Smith.
27 Jan., 1882.

2425. Have you looked at clauses 41, 42, 43, 44? That I have mentioned; the Act says the trustees can only invest the moneys under the directions of the Society's officers.
2426. It says that the trustees shall pay away sick pay and all money disbursed: do you act up to that, or think it practicable to do so? No, we do not, and it is not practicable.
2427. Then the Act must be faulty in that respect? Certainly.
2428. You said that you had left out of your tables the management expense part of the arrangement, as the withdrawals would compensate for that: are you not aware that the management expenses of Friendly Societies take away the greater portion of the contributions? No, I do not consider they do, unless you include the medical expenses in the management expenses.
2429. They come under the head, do they not? Well, they do in the returns, but they should not.
2430. How much does your Grand Lodge devote to the Sick and Funeral Funds? They devote no sum at all; the Grand Council has no control over the Sick Fund, though it makes an annual levy for the Funeral Fund, the exact amount of which I could not say with certainty.
2431. Is there not a clause in the Act to the effect that the funds shall be kept distinct? I believe there is a clause in the Act which states that all funds shall be kept separate and distinct.
2432. You do not do so? The Act does not say they shall be kept separately, but if they are kept, they shall be kept distinct.
2433. Have you consulted Mr. Oliver on that? No, I have not required to do so.
2434. You are still a member of the Society? Yes.
2435. You believe that if some of the old Societies could give us forty years' experience of sickness and mortality, it would be a thoroughly good basis upon which to frame a sliding scale if the Commission deemed it necessary? Undoubtedly, it would be the best basis that could be obtained.
2436. Mr. Greville.] Better than 100 years' experience? No, for the length of time is everything, and the number of interests involved.
2437. Mr. Gelding.] Do not you think that the Societies should give in to the Registrar a list of charges and contributions and of all benefits proposed to be given before they are registered, so that he might see that they would be able in some measure to redeem their promises made to the members joining the Societies? Undoubtedly, and that they should also be submitted to examination.
2438. Do you think an actuary should be connected with the office? Yes.
2439. And paid by the Government or by the Societies? I think the Societies should contribute by fees.
2440. Do not you think that as these Societies relieve the Government from the cost of pauperism they should be entitled to registration free of expense? I think it is a duty the Societies owe to themselves to contribute towards the expenses.
2441. Do not you think the Registrar should register the rules free of cost? Well, every time a rule is altered I think it is vexatious to have a fee asked for, but when rules are first registered I think a fee should be paid.
2442. Have you seen any of the reports of the English Registrar of Friendly Societies? No, I have not.
2443. Are you of opinion that the Registrar should take it upon himself to materially alter the rules submitted to him should he deem them faulty? No.
2444. Do not you think it would be well if he did do so? No, it would be well if he pointed out anything wrong to the Societies, and compelled them to alter it.
2445. You are an actuary, I believe, are you not? No, I am not a professed actuary.
2446. Are you competent to draw out an actuarial statement? No; I can use a set of tables, but would not consider myself competent to prepare a set.
2447. You stated to the Commission that you considered that a member aggrieved at the decision of the governing Board should have the right to appeal to a Court of Law—Do you not think that would act very injuriously to the interests of the Societies? No; I look at it that, in a matter of dispute, both parties are interested, and one interested party is called upon to decide, and therefore it is right to give an appeal to a Court of Law that is not interested.
2448. But suppose it was a Board of Arbitration composed of representatives from the Societies, do you not think a man would be as likely to get as much natural justice there as in a Court of Law? If it was such a Court as suggested by the President, I think it would be sufficient.
2449. Mr. Langley.] May I ask if, in the whole of the answers that have been given by you, you have given them from the standpoint you have assumed that the Friendly Societies should be conducted on commercial principles? That is the attitude I have assumed all through.
2450. And not from the benevolent standpoint? No, I discard the benevolent idea altogether.
2451. Mr. Slade.] You have no idea how much your Society has paid in fees from the beginning of the Act? No, I have not.
2452. Mr. Smith.] Have any of your Lodges left your district or governing body? No; we have no districts, only the one central governing body.
2453. Then you would have jurisdiction over the whole of the territory of the Colony? Yes.
2454. What is your opinion as to the effect upon the Societies themselves where they leave the governing body? The effect would be slight; if a Lodge was strong in point of funds I do not think it would matter much, but where the liabilities are spread over a large number and a large area the risk is much less.
2455. But it is the case that when individual Lodges become very strong they will secede from the district and thus impoverish the others? I should think it rather an advantage, as they thus forfeit all they have paid in.
2456. Would it be wise for all bodies to have geographical limits? No, I think it would be rather injudicious.
2457. But the greater percentage of local Lodges are situated in the county of Cumberland; now, supposing half of them desire to sever themselves and form another governing body, would it not be injudicious? Not to any great extent.

The Commission then adjourned until 2 o'clock on Monday, 30 January.

MONDAY,

MONDAY, 30 JANUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
PHILIP J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,
JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P.,
FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
PHILIP RISBY HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,
WILLIAM E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Philip Risby Holdsworth sworn and examined:—

2458. President.] You are a member of the National Division of the Sons of Temperance? Yes.
2459. What position do you occupy? What is termed Most Worthy Scribe, or General Secretary for Australasia.
2460. And you are still occupying that position? Yes.
2461. Is your Society governed by a central body in the city of Sydney? Yes. It consists of representatives from the various Grand Divisions residing in the different Australian Colonies.
2462. Have you more than one Grand Division in New South Wales? Yes.
2463. And are the other Grand Divisions in the other Colonies subject to the jurisdiction of the Grand Division of New South Wales? No, to the National Division of Australasia, with the exception of Victoria and South Australia, which have a distinct National Division just now.
2464. Have any of the Grand Divisions in the other Colonies anything to do with the government of the Order here, financially or otherwise? No, except that they pay into the General Funeral Fund here. Each Grand Division has the entire government of its own district, and the National Division consists of representatives from the various Grand Divisions.
2465. Then it is only those who pay into your funds that are entitled to any benefits from them? That is all.
2466. How many Grand Divisions have you in New South Wales? Sydney East, Sydney West, Hunter River, South Coast, Goulburn, Bathurst, and Tumut.
2467. And are they locally governing bodies? Yes.
2468. And under these respective Grand Divisions are there a number of subordinate Lodges attached? Yes.
2469. I presume you could furnish a return as to the number of subordinate Lodges? Yes, a complete list.
2470. Does your Society, as a Benefit Society, independent of being a Temperance Society, differ in any wide respect or in any respect from the government of other Benefit Societies? I think not, except in that part that relates to temperance.
2471. Are the contributions and the benefits similar or nearly similar to those of other institutions of a kindred character? With one or two exceptions, where we have a sliding scale.
2472. You have a sliding scale for the initiation of members? Yes.
2473. And also for the payment of contributions? In one or two cases only.
2474. Do you mean by these cases particular Lodges? Yes.
2475. And not particular districts? Not districts: Lodges have established themselves on that principle.
2476. And your rules justify the establishment of Lodges on that principle? We permit every subordinate Lodge or Division to pass any code of by-laws that will suit their own convenience, subject always to the constitutional laws.
2477. Do all the subordinate Lodges in connection with the Institution contribute to the funeral fund? Not all—nearly all. It is optional with them, and there are some half-dozen who do not do so; they have funds of their own.
2478. But it is only those who contribute to the National Division who can participate in the Funeral or Sick Fund? No, it is only those Lodges which receive their money out of the Funeral Fund. It is a Re-insurance Fund, and most of the Lodges have availed themselves of the opportunity of joining.
2479. So none of these Lodges that do not contribute to the Funeral Fund participate in any of its benefits? No.
2480. Are the initiation fees paid into the General Funds of the Lodge? Into the General Fund of the Lodge; we have no division of funds in our Order, which I personally think a mistake.
2481. Then all your contributions form one fund? Yes, and out of that fund they pay into the Funeral Fund, which is a separate fund for re-insurance. I think a certain proportion should be set aside to meet funeral and sick money, and that is provided for in the Act if it had ever been carried out, but there has been no attempt made to carry it out.
2482. You have had a large experience in the working of Friendly Societies? It has been a favourite study of mine from early manhood—life insurance and sick rates.
2483. But is there anything in connection with these Benefit Societies at all similar to life insurance? Well, the funeral gift has to be based on tables of life assurance, and the sick tables run precisely in the same manner as the death tables would run if they could be scaled out accurately.
2484. I presume you can and will furnish the Commission with a return showing the respective ages of the persons who have been initiated, and the death rate of these persons? That is not a difficult question with us, for every year each division has to send in a return of this sort (produced for inspection only); but to go through three or four thousand names means a large expenditure of time and money.
2485. Then upon what principle have you fixed these contributions and the Sick and Funeral Fund? On the experience of other Societies, there being no other data known up to the present time on which you can frame tables for Benefit Societies. I do not know whether that is a fact, but it is so stated by all actuaries.
2486. Then your fees have been fixed on the experience of other Societies of a kindred character? Yes. In some cases where we have found them low we have raised them.
2487. What is the object of your having these details of initiations and ages of wives and death rate? To check any case of death and prove the identity of the individual, and to check our own books regularly.
2488. Then these returns are not compiled with the view of having any actuarial investigation? No, our experience has done all that is necessary. I may remark that our sick rate is much lower than that of any other Society.

Mr. P. R.
Holdsworth.
30 Jan., 1882.

- Mr. P. R. Holdsworth. 2489. If that be the fact there must be some reason for it; in your opinion what is that reason? I presume it is on account of total abstinence, as other Societies give intemperance as a cause of sickness. Our sick rate very rarely exceeds four days per member per year.
- 30 Jan., 1882. 2490. Can you tell us what your percentage of the whole number is for sickness? I think about four days per year.
2491. How many members has your Society as a whole? In 1879 there were 4,200, and they paid £1,965 16s. 3d. for males. Our Society pays a pound a week for sick money.
2492. Could you tell us how many of these 4,200 are members of Lodges within the city of Sydney and the suburbs? That I could not do, because our Grand Divisions stretch so strangely. East Sydney District has Divisions scattered all over the Colony. I could get it if there is any desire for it, and have it taken out as an Appendix.
2493. Is the sickness in your Order confined more particularly to the city of Sydney and the suburbs than to the country districts? Decidedly not.
2494. Do you have as much in the country districts as in the city of Sydney? That is a difficult question, but my idea is that in the mining districts we have had more sickness than anywhere else.
2495. And how do you account for that? Working in the mines underground and the large number of accidents; and the uncertain employment tends to malingering.
2496. In your opinion the use of intoxicating liquors is detrimental to longevity? Most decidedly.
2497. And, as a whole, you give it as your opinion that your Society, being founded on principles of temperance, the sick rate is less than it is in other Societies? Yes; if necessary I could supply the statistical returns.
2498. Now as to the death rate of your Society, does that differ in any respect from that of any other Society? It is much lighter, taking a number of years through.
2499. Then you must either be fortunate in getting your members or there must be some cause? We take total abstinence to be the cause of the greater longevity of our members, and were it possible to obtain all members who had been temperate or abstainers from childhood we should have a greater longevity still; but we have a good many who have been reclaimed from intemperance.
2500. You have got a good many reformed drunkards? Yes, and have saved others from becoming drunken in their habits.
2501. Do not you know many persons who have been in the habit of drinking grog who have lived to an old age? Yes, but I have seen ninety-nine out of a hundred of their acquaintances die.
2502. Did you ever take steps in the Colony to ascertain the truth of this? I can get the information, and get full information. There are a number of Societies who will not take in publicans, and there are others which have divided the Society into two branches—a temperance and a general branch—and it is found that the mortality in the Temperance branch is much lighter than in the general branch. You will find that at Melbourne and in England.
2503. Are you aware of the fact that there are other diseases that affect the longevity of a human being much more than intemperance? It is quite possible, but I think these diseases are made more dangerous when a man indulges in intemperance.
2504. Do the respective Lodges under your National Division send in their returns direct to the Registrar, or are they sent through the governing bodies? Direct to the Registrar. I suggested to the Registrar that it would be much easier for me to send in the whole of the returns as I received them from the Grand Divisions, but he considered that the Act would not permit of such a thing.
2505. Do you not think it would be better, and more convenient and more reliable, if these returns were sent through the governing body? The only way reliable returns can ever be obtained is by sending them in through the Grand Secretaries, accompanied with a declaration.
2506. Mr. Greville.] Similar to that sent with Bank returns, I suppose? Yes, just the same.
2507. President.] I presume your Society has had no difficulty in meeting its financial engagements? There would be no difficulty in meeting them if the Divisions would carry out our laws, because under the laws it is impossible for them to suffer.
2508. Has there been any case in your Society where persons have died entitled to the funeral donation, where the Society has not been able to meet its engagements? I know of no such case officially; I never take ex parte statements.
2509. And you would know as Secretary, would you not? No, I might never hear of it, as it would only come under the notice of the Grand Secretaries of the Grand Divisions.
2510. Then who is the proper officer to deal with cases of that character? There has no case arisen in connection with the Funeral Fund. I can answer for that, as it comes through me.
2511. Mr. Gelding.] Then you are ignorant of the working of the Branches of your Order? I know nothing of them except what comes before me officially.
2512. President.] What amount have you to the credit of the Society as a whole? To the credit of the Sons, £23,452 4s. 1d., and the Daughters, £2,469 19s. 8d.
2513. What are these sums available for? For sick and funeral money—whatever claims naturally arise.
2514. Are these funds invested? The General Funeral Fund is invested, and I presume the funds belonging to the various Divisions are invested; the law says they shall be, but that is beyond me; the Grand Secretaries will inform you on that point.
2515. Have you found any difficulty in the carrying on of the business of your Society in connection with the Friendly Societies Act? We have found some difficulties, but I do not think they need have existed had the Act been worked with anything like spirit.
2516. What do you mean by that? We have been sued on several occasions, and have been run to considerable expense in Law Courts; yet the Friendly Societies Act says everything shall be settled by arbitration, and had the Registrar insisted on that we should not have been sued.
2517. Whom do you expect to carry out the law with spirit? The Registrar of Friendly Societies; but then I expect the Government to pay him, and not that he should do all the work for nothing.
2518. Is there anything special or particular in the Act that has met with your attention, and to which you think there ought to be any amendment? I think that the Act as it is now is too complex; it starts with generalisms, and mixes up Friendly Societies, Building Societies, and Co-operative Associations; I consider myself that we should have an Act as simple as possible. The present Act provides for registration, yet there is no power, the Registrar says, to compel the Lodges to register; there are no penalties properly provided provided that he can recover with readiness. Then the Act says that the Registrar shall have power to refuse registration unless he has an actuarial certificate that the rates are sufficient. I do not believe such a power has ever been exercised, though he has the power to send back the laws where he thinks the rates are too low. Personally I think the laws should be as simple as possible; that the Societies should be registered; that the rates should not be below those of the older Societies; that provision should be made for the proper investment of the funds, for the settlement of all disputes by arbitration, and for annual returns accompanied by a declaration similar to that made by Bank Managers; that these returns should be sent in by the Grand or District Secretaries, as they have better means of obtaining the information than subordinate Lodges, and are better able to get out the matters statistically.

2519. These are all the matters you wish to refer to in reference to the Friendly Societies Act? Yes. Another provision should be made that in the medical certificate the doctor should be compelled to certify to the age of the party.

2520. How could he certify to the age? He could certify to the best of his knowledge and belief. In most cases it could be supplied by a friend if it was asked for.

2521. Then, in your opinion, there should be a separate Act of Parliament to deal with the Friendly Societies? Decidedly, with a Registrar and proper officers.

2522. Is it your opinion that, taking into consideration the large amount of money and the large interests involved, the Government would be justified in establishing a Department to deal solely with Benefit Societies? I consider that they would be not only justified, but that it is their absolute duty to do so.

2523. That is, that they should provide machinery and officers for a particular Department dealing with this subject? Entirely so.

2524. As a whole these Societies are a great relief to the Government? An immense relief; I reckon they save the Government £20,000 a year at a most moderate calculation, and they create an amount of self-reliance which is of immense value to the community.

2525. And without these Societies do you think there would be a greater amount of pauperism than now exists? Undoubtedly. My reason for thinking so is that we find, in a large number of cases, that men when they are sick are quite dependent on the amounts they thus receive.

2526. In the country districts do you not have to depend a great deal on the opinion of the medical man? A great deal.

2527. Have you in any or in many cases been deceived by them? I could not give an opinion on that point.

2528. Are cases of dispute generally dealt with by arbitration? Generally, yes; by appeal to the superior powers, which should be imperative in the large Societies.

2529. What do you mean by "the superior powers"? The Executive Committees. There are Subordinate Divisions or Lodges, and there are Grand Lodges and movable Committees. Thus you have three appeals. Take the Sons of Temperance as an instance. A dispute arises in the subordinate division, a member is dissatisfied; he appeals to the Grand Lodge, which consists of representatives of the various subordinate Lodges; if still dissatisfied he may then appeal to the supreme power, that is the National Division, and there I think the decision ought to be final; but if that were not deemed sufficient I would have, with the Registrar as Chairman, two arbitrators appointed, one by either party, their decision to be absolutely final; but on no account should they be allowed to go to law and waste the substance of the Lodge. The other day, at Newcastle, a certain section thought to split up one of our Lodges, and the result of the dispute was that we had to pay £37 law costs on our side; and I do not know what they had to pay.

2530. Under the present Act a person can go to the ordinary Courts of Law for redress? Well, if properly carried out, I do not think he can; but they do do it.

2531. There is a provision, is there not, by which the fees and contributions can be recovered? I do not remember it.

2532. Have you not known of cases in which members have been summoned to the Courts and they have been recovered? Yes; but I have a strong opinion that if this were taken to the Supreme Court the case would be given against them.

2533. You do not think the law should provide for that? I think there should be a distinct law for that, because the Lodge pays for medical attendance for the member for six months as well as per capita tax, and then he goes away altogether. There could be a great deal said on both sides of the question.

2534. In your opinion all disputes in connection with these Societies should be settled amongst themselves by a final Court of Appeal fixed by themselves? Yes; not a penny should go in law costs.

2535. Do you have any movable Committees? We have the National Division, which can meet anywhere.

2536. Do you think there is any great advantage in movable Committees? My experience is that sessions that are held in Sydney, where we now generally hold them, are better attended than any other; but when you go where you can only take a limited number with you, then I do not think they are of much benefit.

2537. And are the expenses paid by the Lodge? We pay our own expenses.

2538. Would there be any difficulty in governing such a Society as yours from a central body in Sydney? None whatever.

2539. Mr. Smith.] You have been identified with these Societies since their establishment in the Colony? Very nearly; not from the beginning, but within a year or so afterwards.

2540. You have always held some important office in connection with it? Yes, I have always been in office nearly; the chief office I have held is my present one.

2541. And in that office you would of course know of all the Lodges working under the Order? I would only know once a year that they existed; that is, when I received the returns from the Grand Secretaries.

2542. You are then supplied with a return of the subordinate Lodges by the Grand Secretaries? They give me a schedule of them.

2543. Showing the number under your government? Yes.

2544. How many of your Lodges have ceased to exist since the commencement? I cannot say, but a great number.

2545. What are the principal causes that have caused them to collapse or die out of existence? A cause that will affect the Temperance bodies more than any others. Our Society was called into existence first to carry forward the great Temperance doctrines, as we call them; and, secondly, to make a Temperance Benefit Society. Our enthusiastic friends get up Lodges in scattered districts; gradually the members scatter and become sparse. That has been the chief cause. Another cause has been the introduction of Good

Good Templary, because, when that was introduced, there was an outlet for Temperance men, and a number of them left our Societies and went to other Societies, because in ours they are heavily handicapped.

2546. Does your Order hold any freehold property? That I cannot speak of; I am aware that they do hold halls in various places, but it does not come within my knowledge officially.

2547. I suppose you can furnish a return showing the number of Lodges opened, and also those that have ceased to exist? Yes; but it simply becomes a matter of expense. I will try to make one as complete as I can.

2548. You issue a charter and all that sort of thing? Yes.

2549. When the Lodges cease to exist, what becomes of it? They surrender it, but formerly it would not come to me as a rule.

2550. And the surplus money and so on, what becomes of that? Under the present laws it would come to me with the charter, and would then be placed on the clearance fund, which is a fund, I believe, peculiar to our Order. We place so much a year—I think threepence a member—to it, and thus provide for sickness or death of all members who are travelling on clearance, or who belong to Lodges or Divisions that are breaking up where they have no funds. They can go into the nearest Divisions, but if they cannot do that they are thrown upon this fund. The provisions are fully set forth in rule 17, section 6.

2551. Mr. Greville.] You have given positive and most decisive opinions relative to the working of the Societies and the deficiencies of the Act; were those opinions formed on the practical knowledge derived from your long experience of the Societies? I give no opinions but what I have formed from the working of the Societies.

2552. They have not been derived from the evidence given before the Commission? I do not think I have read that evidence, but it has not affected me in the slightest degree; I do not go by what I hear.

2553. Mr. Langley.] What is the cost of carrying on the headquarters of your Society in Sydney? The total cost is £50 a year which is paid to the Most Worthy Scribe, and £8 or £10 a year postages.

2554. You stated in your evidence that the sick and death rates were based on life assurance rates? I was asked the question on what they were based, and I said the funeral money on life assurance rates, and the sick money could be calculated on a similar principle. I did not go into details.

2555. Then, if your sick and death rates were based on life assurance rates, do you consider your Society as at present is solvent? Yes, by the experience of the Society itself.

2556. But if you base your sick and death rates on life assurance rates I ask you if your Society is solvent? No; no Society in the world is solvent unless you reckon the loss of members who have run out.

2557. Then, do you think any present tabulated sick and death rate would work fairly as regards Friendly Societies? Certainly not.

2558. You stated also that your rates of sick pay were lower than those of any other Society? No, I said our rate of sickness was lower.

2559. Then, may I ask what you base that statement on? Simply on our returns year by year.

2560. What have you compared with them? The Oddfellows and Foresters.

2561. Have you ever compared the rates of sick pay with those of the Independent Order of Oddfellows? I have never seen their tables.

2562. Did you state positively your rates were lower than those of any other Society? Yes.

2563. How can you be so positive of that? Because I take the actuaries' tests. I go to the last returns of Victoria, and it was stated there that the rate of the Rechabites had been but little more than half that of other Societies, and the same report was made by the Registrar General in England.

2564. But I am simply taking New South Wales? As regards this Colony I have simply taken the returns as far as I have seen them.

2565. I understood you to say that you were in favour of a sliding scale? Assuredly.

2566. Then may I ask if in your experience you have not found that young men up to thirty-five have required a larger expenditure for sick pay and medical attendance than those between forty and forty-five? No, I cannot say I have; my reason for going in for a sliding scale is what I have read—the actuarial statements I have met with everywhere.

2567. I am speaking in regard to Australia? There are no data existing.

2568. Then, according to these, have you found members between thirty-five and forty-five require more sick pay than those between twenty and thirty-five? It would be very nearly equal between these two ages, but it becomes greater after that.

2569. How many actuaries do you know have advocated for Friendly Societies to establish a sliding scale? I think all the actuaries of England that have touched on this point come to the same conclusion, that it would be desirable and equitable to have a sliding scale if they had the data, but not having this they go for a fixed scale in order to get these data.

2570. But can you show any one actuary that advises that, as Friendly Societies are at the present time, with the limited knowledge we can get, it would be advisable to establish a sliding scale? No, only Tidd Pratt, who gave a scale; Neison advocates it, but says you have not sufficient knowledge; Archer, of Melbourne, says the same.

2571. On looking over one of these returns I find there is such a thing as a married man of sixteen years of age returned amongst the deaths, is that correct? I imagine it is quite possible it is incorrect.

2572. But if our Friendly Societies Act is carried out in the way laid down, that would go direct to the Registrar of Friendly Societies? No, that is only a return from the Funeral Fund, and would be checked directly.

2573. But that is sent in as a true and correct return? Yes.

2574. But if you have found in a simple matter such as this a mistake of that kind, how do you expect Secretaries can be found to carry out a sliding scale? I do not think that is anything; it has been done accidentally, but it may be correct.*

2575. In a new Act do you think it would be more advisable to have a few clauses embracing a general basis for Friendly Societies than a complex Act like we have at present? Assuredly.

2576. Then, so far as the present Act is concerned, you consider it defective? It is defective, though it might have been made available.

2577. Are you aware, or did you ever hear of a case in which the promoter or party who started a Lodge and who had no authority whatever to incur any expense, sued the Lodge and recovered? I never take ex

* NOTE (on revision):—I have since examined the return referred to, and find the age referred to is date of initiation and marriage.

ex parte statements. I know nothing in my position of that; it is only hearsay, and I pay no attention to that.

Mr. P. R.
Holdsworth.

2578. Mr. Rubie.] At what ages do you admit members? Up to forty-five; from sixteen to forty-five.

2579. Then, presumably, the gentleman mentioned in this document could not have long joined? Oh, I imagine that was a mistake of the man who made it out.

30 Jan., 1882.

2580. What is the experience of your Lodges as to the ages at which members generally withdraw? I think they are generally young men, but it does not come under my notice.

2581. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? No; we tried to establish one but failed.

2582. Have you a Pension Fund? No.

2583. What amount do you give as a funeral gift? £20 at the death of a member, and £10 on the death of a member's wife; £10 at the death of a Daughter of Temperance, if single, and £5 if married, and £10 on the death of her husband.

2584. Then in your examination you cannot give the details of the working of Lodges? No; I have to deal with Grand Lodges only.

2585. So that the working of the Order among the members we cannot expect you to give any evidence upon? No; I only know at second-hand, except where information reaches me in cases of appeal.

2586. Then can you say whether the working of the Order depends mostly on the old members or the young ones? I think the experience of all Societies is that the old hands have to do the work.

2587. Mr. Gelding.] I see, Mr. Holdsworth, that in your returns for the Sons you have £23,452 4s. 1d. as the total worth of the funds up to December, 1880? Yes.

2588. That will accord to your members an average of £5 15s. 1d. per head, will it not? Quite possibly.

2589. Could you inform the Commission how that great amount has been made up, whether by the contributions of the members or by the great number that have left your Order during the past few years? I could not possibly say that.

2590. Are you aware that the Sons of Temperance have been decreasing in numbers? Yes, I am quite aware of that.

2591. And that would raise your average, I presume? Yes.

2592. In the Daughters of Temperance I see the funds are £2,469, and the number of members 1,469? Yes.

2593. That would give an average of about £1 13s. 7d. per head? Yes.

2594. They, I see, have increased materially during the last few years? Yes, it is possible.

2595. And that increase, I presume, accounts for the low average per head at the present time? I do not admit it to be a low average per head for a Daughters' body. You must bear in mind that the Daughters only receive half the amount of benefits.

2596. But as the average of the Sons increased owing to the great number going out of the Order, with the Daughters the reverse would take place—the average would decrease? But I do not admit that there has been a great decrease in the Sons or a great increase in the Daughters. In 1878 there were 4,200 Sons, and in 1880, 4072. That is not a wonderful decrease.

2597. You have stated during your examination that the only fault of the Friendly Societies Act is in the working of it? I did not say that was the only fault, but that had it been well worked it might have been of service. The great fault I find is that such a number of things are mixed up in it that are foreign to each other.

2598. Do you not think that a great majority of the clauses might be done away with? Yes, no doubt about it; but had it been properly worked we could have made it of service.

2599. I believe you think that, as regards Temperance Societies, they should be totally distinct from Friendly Societies? I have never expressed such an opinion in my life; on the contrary, I think the Temperance bodies ought to have their own Benefit Societies, inasmuch as they have less sickness.

2600. Do you not think it unfair that a member who has paid his subscriptions for a number of years, on the doctor telling him he must take alcoholic drinks, should be deprived of the benefits he has been trying to secure? I think the case put is an impossible one. If the doctor tells him he must do it—it is taken medicinally, and the laws provide for that.

2601. Mr. Langley.] In case it should be thought desirable to substitute some other Friendly Societies Act for the present one, do you think there would be any persons more qualified to draw it up than the representatives of three or four of the leading Societies? I think they might give an idea of what was required, but I do not think they would be qualified to draw up an Act of Parliament.

2602. Mr. Abigail.] You referred to a case in which the law costs were £37, but you did not tell us who got the verdict? After sending witnesses from Sydney, the Judge dismissed the case, but at the request of counsel nonsuited the plaintiff, and said he could not give a decision, and that he thought it better that it should be referred to arbitration.

2603. Were you in connection with it? Not actively, but the National Division guaranteed the expenses to protect the Subordinate Division.

2604. Was there not a Grand Division? Yes; the Grand Division guaranteed the Subordinate, and we the Grand.

2605. Then you, as Secretary of the National Division, have no intimate connection with the Subordinate Divisions or members except through the Grand Divisions? No.

2606. If cases of misappropriation of funds occur in any of the Divisions for the Sons or Daughters, would the returns as furnished to you contain any record of it? No, none whatever.

2607. So you have no means of saying whether this has occurred or not? None whatever.

2608. The proper officers to give the information would be the Grand Secretaries of the Grand Divisions? Yes, and the Secretaries of the Subordinate Divisions themselves.

2609. Can you tell us the average cost of management of your Society? Well, I cannot say that without a lot of trouble. I cannot say exactly, but one of our Grand Scribes the other day ran it out, and said it was about 7½ per cent.

2610. That is on the receipts, I suppose? I do not know whether receipts or expenditure.

2611. Is the matter of regalia expensive? No, it is optional.

2612. If it is worn, does the Society provide it? It can if it likes.

2613. But in the National Division? It is provided by the members themselves.

2614. Now, if a statement in Parliament was made that the Daughters' Divisions for 6d. a week give as much

Mr. P. R. Holdsworth. much benefit as several of the male Lodges, would that be correct? The man that made such a statement did not know what he was talking about, that is all.

30 Jan., 1882.

2615. I suppose a great number of your members are dealt with for violation of Article II.? Not so many as is, I think, generally supposed; but I would have no knowledge of that except in cases of appeal. The total here gives, "Expelled for violation of Article II., 100." I do not think there are a very great number, but amongst Temperance bodies as a rule we reckon on 5 per cent. of violations.

2616. Then it does not matter how many years they have been paying their contributions, if they take a glass of grog they are liable to forfeit the whole of their benefits? Oh no; the penalty for the first offence may be a fine of from 2s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. and suspension for a month; for the second and third offences the penalty is increased; and for the fourth offence it is expulsion. At the same time this goes very heavily against Temperance Benefit Societies.

2617. Do you think from your own experience that it is just that when a man has been paying into a Society for many years, and for a time himself unable to pay, he should be deprived of all his benefits? Assuredly not; there should be a fund to provide for this; but it is a matter that must be dealt with by the members themselves.

2618. Do you think it the duty of the Government to protect the public from joining Societies that are not financially sound? It is difficult to say what is financially sound.

2619. Do you think that a certain number of members should be allowed to ask for an investigation, provided they guarantee the expense? I think they ought if there is any question of doubt.

2620. Are you of opinion that the auditing should be done by members of the Society or by a competent accountant outside? Well, I think it should be done as now; but there should be power, in case of dispute, to refer to an accountant.

2621. Have you any knowledge of the working of Perseverance Lodge or Division, or of the Princess Alice Lodge or Division? No; I have no knowledge of the working of any of the subordinate Divisions.

2622. Do you find your returns generally correct? I could not answer that, because they are always checked by one of the people in the office; but there could be no glaring mistakes.

2623. Do you ever have to send them back for correction? Oh yes.

2624. Mr. Gelding.] You do not admit any one at fourteen? Oh yes.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, February 3.

EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Charles Thomas Peirce sworn and examined:—

Mr. C. T. Peirce.

3 Feb., 1882.

2625. President.] You are Secretary of the —? Grand Scribe of No. 1 Grand Division, Sons of Temperance.

2626. Does all the correspondence in connection with the Order pass through you? Only the correspondence from the Subordinate Divisions under our jurisdiction.

2627. How far does your jurisdiction extend? Our farthest lodge is situated at Wagga Wagga.

2628. Have you jurisdiction throughout New South Wales? Formerly there was only one Grand Division in the Colony—that is the one I represent; but some years ago the Colony was divided into Districts, and other Grand Divisions were formed; but No. 1 retained by far the largest number of Divisions.

2629. Then I understand from you that there are three Grand Divisions? No, sir; there are about six Grand Divisions in the Colony.

2630. And you represent the Sydney Grand Division? I represent Sydney East; there are two in Sydney—Sydney East and Sydney West. Sydney East is No. 1; Sydney West, No. 9.

2631. But I suppose all these Divisions work under the same principles? All under the same Constitution.

2632. Is there any executive or authoritative Board that comprehends the whole of these Divisions? I may say there are two; the first is the Grand Division; the supreme being the National Division.

2634. What are the functions of the National Division? The National Division has supreme control over the Colonies of New South Wales, Queensland, and New Zealand.

2635. And does that body transact its business in Sydney? It does.

2636. Is it composed of persons elected or nominated from the Grand Divisions or Subordinate Lodges? I have already explained that it is composed only of Grand Worthy Patriarchs of Grand Divisions, Past Grand Worthy Patriarchs, Grand Scribes who have held the office for two consecutive years, and of Grand Worthy Associates.

2637. I presume you have had some papers furnished you with a view of furnishing a return? Yes, I received some forms last week.

2638. Can you furnish the Commission the respective ages at which persons have been admitted or initiated into the Order, and the ages at which persons have died who were members of the Order? I could get the information, but not for my own returns; I would have to get the information from the Subordinate Lodges.

2639.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.

3 Feb., 1882.

2639. But do you not already supply the Grand Division with these returns? Not giving the ages. This (produced) is a form of return that Subordinate Lodges have to send me quarterly; and from it I compile a return quarterly, and also annually.

2640. By the word "Divisions" you mean Lodges working directly under the National Division? No, under the immediate supervision of the Grand Division which grants them their charters.

2641. And they are bound by the Constitution of the Grand Divisions? They are.

2642. And have the rules of the Grand Division been approved of by the National Division? It is the National Division that forms the Constitution, and no by-laws must be framed antagonistic to that Constitution. This (produced) is a copy of the Constitution.

2643. What position does the Grand Division stand in relatively to these Subordinate Lodges or Divisions? Well, the Subordinate Divisions in case of dispute have the power to appeal to the Grand Divisions; if not satisfied with the decision of the Grand Division then they have power again to appeal to the National Division; the National Division's decision being final.

2644. What means have the Grand Divisions got of knowing whether the Subordinate Lodges are performing their functions properly and carefully in accordance with the Constitution? You will understand that the Grand Division is composed of the Worthy Patriarchs and Past Worthy Patriarchs of the Subordinate Lodges; the Grand Worthy Patriarch has power to appoint and does appoint Deputies to visit the Subordinate Lodges to see that they are working in accordance with the Constitution, and these Deputies visit the Divisions regularly.

2645. From this document that I have before me it does not appear that the Grand Division would be able to know whether the Constitution of the Division itself or of the National Division is strictly carried out—I mean in its details? Oh yes, the Deputies make quarterly reports to the Grand Worthy Patriarch, which come to me as Grand Scribe and are handed over to him.

2646. But it does not appear that you could possibly know if they were initiating persons under the minimum age or above the maximum age fixed by the Constitution? If they admit over or under the age fixed, the Funeral Fund Secretary would step in. He would receive more immediate information as the returns are forwarded to him.

2647. What office does he occupy—is it an office in the Grand Division? No, in the National Division.

2648. How does the National Division know what the subordinate Lodges are doing? They receive their reports from the Grand Scribes, and also returns annually.

2649. Who are the Grand Scribes? I am one.

2650. That is, Grand Secretaries? Yes.

2651. Are these returns of persons initiated and of deaths recorded? Only in the subordinate Lodges, and in the Funeral Fund Secretary's books; he keeps a record.

2652. Then the Grand Division of itself knows little or nothing of what is being done in the subordinate Lodges? Oh! I beg your pardon, we do.

2653. But you have informed the Commission that you do not know anything about this? That is true.

2654. Therefore the Grand Division does not know what is being done in subordinate Lodges? The Grand Division does know the workings of the subordinate Divisions, but we do not know the ages at which members are initiated.

2655. Is it not a necessary element to know the ages at which they are admitted and die? It would be desirable.

2656. Do you know whether any persons have been admitted below the minimum age or above the maximum? I do not. Some years ago there were members admitted above the age of forty-five, but now that is the limit, and now the Lodges cannot initiate above that age or below fourteen.

2657. You have contributions fixed for each member to pay, have you not? The subordinate Lodge fixes its own amount of contribution.

2658. Still under the Constitution there is a minimum, is there not? I believe there is.

2659. Then who fixes the Funeral Fund and Sick Fund? The Funeral Fund has a special Board of Management, and they fix the quarterly levies for the Funeral Fund.

2660. What is this Board of Management? It is elected from the members of the National Division.

2661. I presume that the contributions to the Sick and Funeral Funds are established on the same basis as in other Benefit Societies, are they not? Yes, generally.

2662. Could you inform the Commission whether these contributions and the sick and funeral benefits have been fixed from any known data or from the experience of other Benefit Societies? They are from the experience gained from other Societies.

2663. Are your funds kept separate? No.

2664. Are your accounts submitted to an independent audit, or are the auditors elected by the Society or the respective Lodges themselves? The Subordinate Divisions elect their own auditors, and the Grand and National Divisions the same. The Funeral Fund also has separate auditors.

2665. Does the registration of these Subordinate Divisions or Lodges come through the Grand Division, or do they respectively register themselves—I am speaking of the registration of the Division itself? You will understand that to enable a Lodge to get registered it must present a set of by-laws to the Registrar to register; I take it, from my experience, that it is not the Society he registers but its by-laws.

2666. Do you know whether any difficulties or impediments have arisen with respect to the registration of these Societies? Yes, within my own knowledge the Registrar has refused to register by-laws for what he termed certain irregularities. He refused to register by-laws in which the Societies wished to be allowed to sue for arrears of contributions, stating that this was opposed to the Friendly Societies Act.

2668. He refused to register the by-laws because he believed they would be ultra vires? Yes.

2669. And what you want the Commission to understand is that, in order to test whether he was right or you right, you would have to apply to the Supreme Court for a mandamus, and that would be expensive? Yes, it would.

2670. With respect to the Act itself, I suppose you have read it and made yourself acquainted with it? I have read the Act.

2671.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.

3 Feb., 1892.

2671. Have you, in your position, felt any difficulty in the working of your Order as regards the Act itself? No, I think the Act itself is a very good one with slight amendments, and also if the Registrar did his duty by compelling the secretaries to send in their annual returns. He has the power, but does not appear to use it.
2672. That is, he has the power of proceeding against persons who do not comply with the law? Yes.
2673. And you have told us that a number of your Divisions are scattered throughout the Colony? Yes.
2674. Would it not be expensive for him to attend in person throughout the Colony to prosecute them? It would.
2675. Then does not the law require some modification in that respect? Yes, it would stand amending there; but he has not done his duty as far as the metropolitan Lodges are concerned.
2676. Your objection is to the administration of the Act, and not to the law itself? Just so.
2677. Is there anything that you could suggest—any amendment of the law, supposing that some new legislation will take place? I could make suggestions, but not at the present moment.
2678. That is, you are not prepared to orally give suggestions? No, but I could furnish them in writing.
2679. Will you furnish, as an appendix to your evidence, any suggestions you may be desirous of giving to the Commission? I will.
2680. Have any of the Subordinate Divisions or Lodges under your Order ever been dissolved? Yes.
2681. Upon what grounds have they been dissolved? The last two Lodges that dissolved did so because they could not get a suitable medical man to attend their members; they were both country Lodges.
2682. Had they any funds in hand when they dissolved? One of them had equal to about £5 per head; the other was not so well off.
2683. What did they do with this £5 per head? They divided it.
2684. What position did they stand in relatively to the National and Grand Divisions to which they were subordinate? In both cases they ceased to be members of the Order, because they did not avail themselves of the advantages offered them by the Constitution.
2685. Then all the money paid in for sick and funeral pay by the members of the two Lodges you speak of, now, what became of that; did it go to the benefit of the surviving Lodges or Divisions? The contributions and sick and funeral money in subordinate Lodges form one common fund; so they divided the whole of the funds they had in hand.
2686. Do these subordinate Divisions keep to their own credit the sick and funeral pay? From their weekly contributions all goes to one common fund; the funeral fund levy is made by the Funeral Board, and this the subordinate Divisions have to send to the Funeral Fund Secretary.
2687. Then the levy upon the respective subordinate Lodges has to be paid quarterly into the National Division? Only the funeral money, not the sick benefits; they are paid by the subordinate Lodges themselves.
2688. Do they retain the money themselves? They do.
2689. Then they have no power of dealing with the Funeral Fund? None whatever.
2690. Then these persons who were members of a dissolved Lodge would lose that amount of money, and that would go to the general fund? They would lose it because they refused to remain members of the Order. Had any one or two members of these Lodges wished to retain membership, they could have applied to me as Grand Scribe for a clearance card, which would have been granted; these members would then have forwarded to me the amount of their share of the funds, which I would have forwarded on to the Most Worthy Scribe, as Secretary of the Clearance Fund.
2691. Then if there is a minority, that minority can by application to the Grand Scribe be enrolled in some other Lodge? Yes, but no Lodge can break up while there are eight members willing to carry on the business.
2692. How long have you had any experience in connection with these matters? I have held my present position four and a half years, and have been a member of a subordinate Lodge for twelve years.
2693. Have you ever thought whether it would be a wise thing to provide that all subordinate Lodges should have their communications with the Registrar conducted through the National Division, or the Executive or ruling board of the Order? Yes, they should all go through the Grand Division, and it would be better if the Grand Division were to supply the Registrar with the returns.
2694. How are complaints determined in your Order? When a dispute arises in a subordinate Lodge it is referred to the Grand Division, which has a standing Committee of Appeals to investigate these disputes. This Committee sends in its recommendation to the Grand Division, and the Grand Division either adopts or rejects that recommendation as they think fit; then that decision is sent to the subordinate Lodge. If the subordinate Division is not satisfied with the decision of the Grand Division, it is at liberty to appeal to the National Division through the Grand Division. All communications from a subordinate Division must go through the Grand Division—it cannot appeal direct to the National Division.
2695. The National Division is the last appellant Court? Yes.
2696. Are the members of your Order generally well-satisfied with that mode of determining their disputes? They are; I only know of one or two instances where they have appealed to the Courts.
2697. Do you think it would be wise, in any future legislation, to provide that these matters shall be determined amongst the bodies themselves instead of by the Law Courts? I would give them no power to appeal to the Law Courts at all, except in criminal matters, because it is a waste of the funds of the Societies.
2698. In reality, all these disputes or complaints that are likely to arise could be better dealt with amongst the Societies themselves? Decidedly.
2699. If there were some legal machinery substituted for the purpose? Yes; I see no other way of dealing with it, because no one knows better than the Society the routine and workings of that Society.
2700. Then, I understand, in order to get the information we require in reference to the respective ages of the persons initiated and those who have died we should have to apply to the Lodge themselves? Yes, or I could get it for the Commission.
2701. Well, I may inform you that we have sent out returns by which we expect to get the information, so you need not trouble about that? To aid the Commission I am prepared to assist your Secretary by supplying him with the names and addresses of all our Scribes.
2702. Mr. Davies.] Have you had a long experience in connection with the working of Friendly Societies? I have taken an interest since I joined, about twelve years ago.
2703. You have been an officer pretty well the whole of that time? Yes.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.
3 Feb., 1882.

2704. And you have acquired a good deal of knowledge? Yes.
2705. Have you found the present Act defective in its provisions for affording security to the members of the various Societies? I have not found the Act defective in any material way, the only cause of complaint I have being that the Registrar has not carried out the powers the Act confers upon him.
2706. You have no suggestions to make for amendments to the law? I will furnish them at the same time as the other things I have promised to forward.
2707. What is the total number of members under the jurisdiction of your Grand Division? I have prepared the annual return to the 31st October, 1881, which shows:—(a) Total number of members on our books on 31st October, 1880; (b) and also total number of members on 31st October, 1881; (c) contributions for the year; (d) working expenses for the year; (e) amounts paid to the doctors and chemists; (f) amounts paid for sick benefits, (g) amounts paid for funeral donations; (h) the capitation tax to the Grand Division; and (i) cash in hand for 1880 and 1881.
2708. What is the total sum for 1881? The twelve divisions of Daughters in No. 1 had £1,485 15s. 11d.
2709. What is the total number of members? 980.
2710. Their accumulated funds? £1,485 15s. 11d.
2711. And of Sons? The total number of benefit members is 1,604, honorary members, thirty-four.
2712. And the number of subordinate divisions? Twenty-five.
2713. What is the total amount of cash and accumulated funds, £7,838 4s. 6d.
2714. What was the total income for 1881? Sons, £4,634 3s. 10d.; Daughters, £1,673 14s. 6d.
2715. What was the amount paid for the working expenses of the Sons of Temperance? £600 9s. 10d.
2716. And of the Daughters? £233 2s. 11d.
2717. What amount was paid on account of sickness on behalf of the Daughters? £306 7s. 2d.
2718. And for the Sons? £1,269 8s. 2d.
2719. What was paid on account of medical attendance? For doctors and medicine for the Sons, £1,703 18s. 5d.
2720. And Daughters? £591 2s.
2721. What sum has been paid on behalf of the Daughters for funeral donations? £120.
2722. And Sons? £387 10s.
2723. What do you include in working expenses—what charges? Stationery, rent, and the small weekly payments to the Financial Scribe and Recording Scribe, and also a nominal sum to the Treasurer.
2724. Are these the only charges against working expenses? Yes.
2725. Have you, during your term of office, known of any Division being in such a bad state of finance as not to be able to meet its financial engagements? Never; I have heard of one case in which a Division did, by unanimous arrangement with the members, suspend sick pay for a certain time.
2726. You do not know anything about it of your own knowledge? No.
2727. But at all times since you have been Grand Scribe you have never known any case where the Division has been unable to meet its engagements? Never.
2728. I suppose you would not care to express an opinion as to the stability of the Societies under your control? No, that is a question that would require a lot of consideration, and it would almost require an actuary to go into it.
2729. What has been your practice in reference to furnishing the annual returns? I have sent out the returns to subordinate Lodges myself, and have sent a circular at the same time urging on the members the necessity of sending them in in proper time; some of these have been sent back, and many others have gone to the Registrar direct.
2730. Do you send one return covering all the Lodges in your jurisdiction, or a separate return for each? A separate return for each Lodge.
2731. Not a general return? No; I think it would be far better if the Grand Lodges were to supply the Registrar with the returns, but the Act says that each Lodge must send a return, and that has been our practice.
2732. Have the returns been complete, furnishing all the information sought by the forms? No, far from complete.
2733. Then the return itself would be of little service as a return? It is not so much the return as the difficulty of getting proper officers in the Divisions to make them out in a proper manner.
2734. And how do you deal with matters of dispute arising between a subordinate Lodge and its members? An appeal can be made to the Grand Lodge, where it is referred to the Appeal Committee, who report with the appeal sent in a recommendation to the Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge either adopts or rejects the Appeal Committee's report as the case may be; and then the report or decision of the Grand Lodge is forwarded to the subordinate Lodge.
2735. Has a member any further Court of appeal in case of dissatisfaction? Yes, if the member or Division is not satisfied with the decision of the Grand Lodge an appeal may be taken to the National Division.
2736. And in case of dissatisfaction then, are there any other means of satisfaction? Well, I know one case in which one of the parties rushed off to the District Court, and the District Court Judge upheld the decision of the Grand Lodge.
2737. Do you think Divisions or Lodges should have the power to summon individual members who get into arrears? I do, and that is where I have come into collision with the Registrar on more than one occasion.
2738. You think a member should be summoned to a Court of Petty Sessions for arrears of contributions? Yes, I think it is only right for the protection of all members. It is not right to allow one man to go away at will, without sending in a written resignation, and have the privilege of coming back in six or nine months' time. I think if he has the right of coming back, the Lodge should have the right of suing him for his arrears.
2739. Have any cases come under your observation where members have been thus sued? I have not had it before me officially, but I have heard of cases where members of Lodges have been sued and have obtained a verdict.
2740. And you think it is desirable that this power to sue should be vested in the hands of the officers of each Lodge? Of the trustees.
2741. President.] The documents you have handed in only represent the transactions of the Grand Division of which you are Scribe? Merely the Divisions under the jurisdiction of No. 1 Grand Division, of which I am Grand Scribe.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.
3 Feb., 1882.

2742. How many Grand Divisions are there in New South Wales? I can only give you about the number; the Most Worthy Scribe can give you the exact number.
2743. Mr. Greville.] Under your present constitution, must all the new Divisions pay a funeral contribution to the National Division? The Constitution lays down a certain initiation fee, which includes the amount payable to the Funeral Fund.
2744. But each member pays a monthly contribution towards the Funeral Fund? That is met in the shape of a quarterly levy; the Lodge does it—not the member.
2745. They are compelled to pay that? Yes, they are compelled to pay it.
2746. At one time they were allowed to retain these sums themselves? Yes; there are now two Lodges under No. 1 Grand Division which are not connected with the Funeral Fund.
2747. The two Lodges or Divisions you spoke of as having disbanded and divided the funds among them, had they charge of their own Funeral Fund? They were connected with the general Funeral Fund, over which they had no power; they simply divided the amounts they had to their own credit in the hands of their trustees or treasurers—they had no Funeral Fund of their own.
2748. Therefore, when they left the general body the Funeral Fund was benefited? To the extent of what they had contributed.
2749. Has it come under the notice of your general body that attempts are sometimes made to enter the age erroneously? No, it has never come to my knowledge officially, nor have I ever heard of it.
2750. Upon a return which was exhibited by Mr. Holdsworth at the last meeting, one man is entered at fourteen, and another at sixteen, and yet they were both entered as married? I do not think that return could have been correct, because I do not believe that there is a member in our Society fourteen years of age who is married.
2751. Still the fact remains that such a return has been made; now, would it be taken as a matter of course, or would it be inquired into? Well, seeing that it is not in my province, I do not see how I could in any way interfere or deal with that return.
2752. The return was not made to the Division of which you are Secretary? No; they have to be sent to the Funeral Fund Secretary.
2753. I presume in your Society, as in most of the others, a number of members join, contribute for a longer or shorter time, and then withdraw without having partaken of any of the benefits of the Society? There may be a few.
2754. You think the proportion is very small? The proportion is small.
2755. Have you any idea what it is? No, I have no idea.
2756. In addition to that, your Society has an advantage over others that they are strengthened by men being put out of the Society by breaking certain laws? That is a fact.
2757. Have you any idea of the proportion thus circumstanced? The returns I have handed in will show.
2758. And do you find that that is injuring the progress of the Temperance Societies? No.
2759. Or that members go to the other Societies where these restrictions do not exist? There are some instances where members have left for that reason, but there are more who have left and joined other Temperance Societies where there were no benefits at all.
2760. And hence it is a fact that from these causes the Temperance Societies have received a temporary if not a permanent check? We have received a check on account of the number of members who have joined Temperance Societies that were non-beneficial.
2761. And do you think you are recovering from that now? I think so.
2762. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have seen the Funeral Fund returns? I have.
2763. Are you aware that once a year a full return has to be sent in giving the ages? I am.
2764. Is that the age of initiation? No, it should be the present age, though sometimes a mistake is made between them.
2765. If a member was entered as being initiated in 1870 at the age of fourteen, what age would he be in 1881? Why, twenty-five.
2766. Would there be any thing remarkable in a man of twenty-five being married? I was married myself at the age of twenty-one.
2767. Can you tell me the number of Sons of Temperance for 1881? 1,638, of which thirty-four were honorary.
2768. That is 1,604 benefit members? Yes.
2769. What amount do you pay per week for sick pay as a rule? Twenty shillings the first six months.
2770. What amount did you pay during that year for sick pay? To the Sons, £1,269.
2771. That is equal to about five days a week? No, 4½, that is for the Sons; the Daughters' average is not so great—only 3¾ days.
2772. Could you supply a list of these averages for the past five years? I could do so.
2773. Was the year 1881 a heavy year? Yes, an exceptionally heavy year with our Society, and I believe with all other Societies.
2774. Mr. Langley.] Was the year any more exceptional with your Society than any other? I can only speak positively with regard to my own Society.
2775. I think you said 1881 was heavy with your Society, but I presume not heavier as regards claims than any other? I should not think so.
2776. You speak of 4¾ days being the average; that is great is it? Yes.
2777. In your opinion is 4¾ days lower than other Societies? I have never studied the workings of other Societies, but I have been told that our Society's sick rate is lower than that of others; but I cannot speak of my own knowledge.
2778. There was one question asked you, but I fear you did not understand it; on the return which was given to us and presented to Parliament it is incorrect; it is reported that your expenditure for working expenses is extremely high, 29 per cent. —? It is stated so there, but I challenge the correctness of it.
2779. If by working expenses you simply mean stationary, postage, rents, and salaries, and capitation tax to the Grand Lodge, is it correct that it costs 29 per cent. of your income? No.
2780. Then this statement, which was made to Parliament, must be untrue? It is not correct; you will see that by the returns laid upon the table. My returns will show that the working expenses are just a little more than half that amount.
2781. You stated also in answer to another question that the Registrar refused to allow you to bring in a by-law in your Constitution to enable you to sue for arrears? Not in our Constitution, but in an amended set of by-laws for the subordinate Lodge.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.
3 Feb., 1882.

2782. And are you aware whether other Societies have or have not sued and recovered in the District Court in that way? They have; and Mr. Oliver has registered by-laws for me, giving the trustees power to sue; but latterly he has absolutely refused to register the same clause for other subordinate Divisions.
2783. Are you not aware that under this Friendly Societies Act you can do it without asking his permission at all? I do not know. I think I can give you these clauses, and if the members of the Commission will carefully read them they will see that the wording is ambiguous. They are clauses 34 and 78 of the Act. Mr. Oliver contends that clause 34 does not relate to contributions; he maintains that contributions are not property, neither, he says, are contributions a right or a claim.
2784. Do you not think that a portion of the property of any Friendly Society is the amount paid or which should be paid by the members as their contribution for the purposes of carrying on that Society? That, I may say, mainly constitutes the solvency of the Society altogether.
2785. In point of fact, that is its property? It is the property.
2786. If there were no contributions paid, what would your property consist of? There could be no Society without contributions.
2787. In your opinion, then, you consider that clause does give the Society the right to sue or be sued? Yes.
2788. I think you said you were aware of cases having been tried under the Act? Yes, I am.
2789. And the Society recovered? Yes.
2790. Do you consider it right that any such latitude should be given to the Registrar as to allow one Society to register a right to sue and to refuse it to another? No, I do not; I think the power should be given to all the Societies alike.
2791. Then, if under this Act Mr. Oliver has the right to do anything of that kind, do you think the Act is perfect or equitable? I think the Act itself requires amendment.
2792. If the Act allows the Registrar, whoever he may be, to permit one Society to sue for arrears of contributions and to refuse another Society an equal right, do you think the Act is an equitable one? No.
2793. Are there any other clauses in the Act to which you take exception? There are, and I have promised to supply the Commission with the particulars in the form of an Appendix.
2794. Are you of opinion that it would be desirable in drawing up a new Friendly Societies Act to confine it to Friendly Societies alone? Yes, I would confine it solely to Friendly Societies.
2795. Do you consider it advisable to go to any greater length than to lay down certain fundamental principles upon which the Friendly Societies should compile their constitution and rules; or would you leave to an Act of Parliament, as at present, the details of the working of the Society? I think every Society is fully competent to prepare its own constitution.
2796. Then you think it better that each Society should prepare its own constitution; but you would like to have a certain legal basis upon which the benefit portion of it should be calculated and arranged? I would leave the sole government of each body in the hands of its superior body.
2797. But I presume at the same time you consider it necessary that a Friendly Societies Act should lay down certain rules? Yes.
2798. Then if certain fundamental rules are laid down, and the constitution for the internal government is based upon these rules, you think it would be sufficient? Yes, I do.
2799. Are you of opinion or not that it would be advisable in all cases that there should be a revising barrister to look through the laws and see that they are in accordance with the fundamental principles laid down? No; I know a set of laws that went before a solicitor a few weeks ago, and he made a greater bungler of them than the Society itself.
2800. But must there not be some authority to which these Constitutions should be referred to show that they are in accordance with the law? Decidedly they should go before some properly-constituted officer for supervision and registration, but not for a barrister to cut and hack about the laws to suit himself.
2801. How would you protect the members of your Society if you had not some legal authority for saying your Constitution and by-laws were in accordance with the Act of Parliament? I presume the Registrar would be a legal authority.
2802. Do you think it is an advisable thing to have a Registrar such as we have at present, whose time is too fully occupied to give attention solely to Friendly Societies? No, I think the Registrar's whole time should be devoted to Friendly Societies.
2803. If it should suit the Government to appoint a Registrar specially for Friendly Societies, do you think it would be advisable to have it without a revising barrister or legal authority to whom should be referred these Constitutions? It would be better for the Registrar to have legal knowledge.
2804. But failing that, do you think it would not be absolutely necessary that there should be a revising barrister or revising legal authority of some kind? I consider the Registrar should have a legal knowledge.
2805. Mr. Rubie.] Has each of your Lodges a fixed scale of contributions? No; they vary.
2806. Then who has the power to fix the amount? The Division itself.
2807. Are these Divisions subject to some superior body? They are subject to the authority of the Grand and National Divisions.
2808. I understood you that there is a Funeral Fund: what does each member pay to that fund? They have been paying 1s. 4d. per head per quarter for Sons, and 8d. for Daughters; but that was increased last quarter to 1s. 6d. and 9d.
2809. Is there a large accumulated Funeral Fund? Well, speaking without having the figures before me, I should say about £500.
2810. How is it invested—or is it invested? It is deposited in the Banks—I believe in the Government Savings Bank.
2811. Have there ever been any calculations made to ascertain whether the amount laid aside would be sufficient to meet the liabilities? I am not aware of any.
2812. Would it not be judicious that such a thing should be done? That would involve a very heavy expenditure, and I believe the calculations can always be very fairly based upon past experience.
2813. And what is the number of years your Society has been in existence? About seventeen years.
2814. And you have always had a Funeral Fund during that time? Not always a general Funeral Fund—it has only been in existence a few years.
2815. Then your experience is not very great? It would be based on the records of the Subordinate Divisions.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.
3 Feb., 1882.

2816. Has each of your Lodges trustees? Three trustees.
2817. And the funds are vested in their names? Yes.
2818. And nothing can be drawn without their consent? No.
2819. Do the trustees pay all moneys? The treasurer makes the immediate payments such as for sick pay and the doctors' and chemists' bills.
2820. The current liabilities, I suppose? Yes.
2821. Have you ever observed the clauses in the Act which say that the trustees shall pay all moneys on behalf of the Society? No, I have not.
2822. Do you not think it inoperative? It is.
2823. And it would require altering in the new Act? It would.
2824. Mr. Newland.] Do I understand you to say that the Divisions do not divide their funds? No, they do not.
2825. Do not they sometimes vote a sum of money to a brother for meritorious conduct? No, they cannot do that; we do not contribute our funds for that purpose.
2826. But seeing that the Divisions have the control of their own funds, and that they are not divided, I take it they may vote these funds as they think proper? No, they cannot; the Constitution will not allow them for one thing, and the Friendly Societies Act will not for another.
2827. Are you not aware that the Act states that Lodges should divide their funds and keep them separate? The Act does state so, I believe.
2828. Then if Divisions break through the Act in one instance they might do it in another by voting money illegally? The members would not consent to it.
2829. You state that there is a Funeral Board for paying the funeral donations in the Sons of Temperance: are they distinct from the Grand Division? They are; they are elected from the members of the National Division.
2830. And what are the duties of the Grand Division? They have the immediate supervision of the subordinate Divisions; they are in immediate communication with all the subordinate Divisions, and they issue clearances to subordinate Divisions for members requiring them.
2831. And how are the Grand Divisions supported? By a small capitation tax.
2832. And how is the National Division supported? By a capitation tax from the Grand Divisions.
2833. How often does the National Division meet? Once a year.
2834. How many members attend there? I do not know.
2835. Mr. Langley.] Is it explained in your Constitution? Yes. I think last year there were something like forty or fifty representatives.
2836. Mr. Newland.] Were they working during one day? Yes, two days.
2837. How are they paid? They pay all their own expenses.
2838. Mr. Stade.] Speaking of minorities, do the minority on leaving a Lodge have to pay into the Lodge they join the amount they receive? I do not think you understood my answer; the question was—could a majority dissolve a Lodge; my answer was—not so long as there were eight prepared to carry it on; if there are less than eight then clearances are granted to the lesser number; these clearances are valid in these Colonies and all over the world.
2839. If that minority has received a certain portion of the funds of the breaking-up Lodge, do they have to return it to the Division that takes their clearance? No, they have to forward it to the Grand Scribe, from whom they receive their clearances, and it is put then into the Clearance Fund, which guarantees the Lodge or Lodges admitting the lesser number from all liability for sick pay and half the amount of the funeral donation for twelve months.
2840. Regarding suing for arrears, is the feeling in favour of it general in your Order? So far as I know it is.
2841. What is your opinion of graduated payments, Mr. Peirce; I mean that when a member joins at (say) eighteen, he shall pay (say) 8d. or 10d. through life; at twenty (say) 1s.; at thirty (say) 13d.; or something of that sort? It would be rather complicated that; the only graduated scale I would be in favour of would be a uniform contribution for single members, and an increased one for married members.
2842. Mr. Gelding.] I suppose you mean to say that this sharpness on the part of the Registrar has simply taken place since this Commission was sitting? No, before.
2843. How long is it since he refused to register these rules? It was on 14th July, 1881.
2844. That was after the deputation waited on the Colonial Secretary in reference to the working of the Act? It was about the time, though I do not know the exact date.
2845. You have had a good deal of experience, and have studied the question? Only so far as our own Society is concerned.
2846. Have you ever thought over the question of the small amount of sick pay that has heretofore been doled out by Societies being owing to the sparseness of the inhabitants of the Colony? Yes, we have experienced great difficulties in some of the country Lodges.
2847. My question is: do you not consider that it is owing to the small amount of the population up to the present time that the Societies have had such little call upon them in matters referring to sick pay? I do.
2848. Do you not think, as the Colony gets more populated, sick rates and death rates will become more prominent? They will increase undoubtedly.
2849. I presume you are aware that in Great Britain one of the chief reasons why the sliding scale of contributions has been carried into effect is entirely owing to the tremendous increase of population, and consequent sickness and mortality thereby engendered? I have heard so.
2850. Then, following that question, do you think that the present rates members pay to receive the benefits they are now receiving will be sufficient to meet future liabilities? Presuming that the contributions are 1s. a week, I do not think it will be sufficient; it may do for the present, but not for the future.
2851. What is your idea about a fair weekly contribution to secure these benefits? 15d. at the least.
2852. And do you think that will be sufficient to meet the supposed increased sick rates and death rates? I think it would meet all demands of our own Society.
2853. You say you have twenty-five Lodges in your Grand Division? Yes, of Sons.
2854. And I see that in 1880 you had £7,663 19s. 2d.—that is last year; £7,838 4s. 6d. this year? Yes.
2855. That leaves an average saving of about £7 for each Lodge in your district. Do you think that anything like sufficient for a Reserve Fund? No; but last year was an exceptionally heavy year for sick benefits.

2856. Yes, but you said you believe that the sick rate will still continue to increase? Yes, and it will be necessary for the contributions to be raised.

2857. And in the Daughters' in the previous year you had £1,415 8s., and last year £1,485 15s. 11d.—that is about £6 per Lodge saving in the year. What is your opinion of that saving for each Lodge? I think it is rather low, but it is owing to the very heavy sick rate for the year. Moreover, the Daughters' contributions are low, and the amounts they pay their doctors and chemists are proportionately just the same as those paid by the Sons.

2858. What do you think is a fair average that Societies should hold to guard against eventualities per head? I have never gone into the details from an actuarial point of view, but it would depend on the ages of the members.

2859. Do you not think these Sick and Funeral Funds should be kept separate from management expenses? I do.

2860. Are you at all conversant with the Act in Victoria? I know nothing whatever about it.

2861. I think you intend to give this Act a good overhauling and report your opinion of it to this Commission? I will devote what time I can to it, but my time is very fully occupied.

2862. You stated in some previous part of your evidence that you did not think there was much the matter with it: did you ever look at the 21st clause giving members power to go to the District Court? Yes.

2863. What is your opinion of that? I would not allow the Societies to go to the Law Courts at all.

2864. Do you not think that before Lodges—premising that the Government should appoint a proper Registrar—are allowed to have their rules certified, or to be opened, they should furnish a set of rules setting forth the proposed initiation fees, contributions, and benefits to be paid? Well, that opens up a new phase. If a new Division of the Sons of Temperance is about to be instituted the parties intending to organise are supplied with a copy of the Constitution, and there they will see the amount of the initiation fees they will have to pay, and also the fees to the Funeral Fund; but how a Society just starting is going to present the Registrar with a set of laws to register I do not see; unless they are in existence for some little time, and in possession of the necessary funds to bear the expense.

2865. I presume no Lodge in your Society can depart from the general rules set down in reference to the initiation charges, contributions, sick benefits, and funeral gifts? They are all bound to abide by the Constitution.

2866. You do not allow them to deviate from these rules? No.

2867. What is the cost of opening Divisions in your Order? Charter fee for Sons, two guineas; for Daughters, one guinea.

2868. What does the regalia cost? It is a mere nominal item. I do not think a set of officers' regalia would cost more than 25s. or 30s., and it is optional for the Lodge to procure regalia for the other members.

The Commission then adjourned until 2 p.m. on Monday, 6th February.

MONDAY, 6 FEBRUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, Esq., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
PHILIP J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,
JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P.,
FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
PHILIP RISBY HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
EDWARD J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

2869. Mr. Abigail.] How many Divisions have you under your jurisdiction? Twenty-five Sons, twelve Daughters.

2870. Are they confined to Sydney and the suburbs? No, they are not confined to Sydney and the suburbs; I mentioned at the last meeting that the furthest Division under No. 1 was situated at Wagga Wagga.

2871. In fact some of the Divisions are spread pretty well all over the Colony? Yes, south and west of Sydney, and one to the north, at Richmond River.

2872. And if anything occurs in connection with them it comes under your supervision? Yes, all communications must come to me.

2873. Can you tell me how many books are kept in subordinate Divisions—books of account? They keep a minute book; the Financial Scribe has to keep a book in which to enter all receipts and disbursements; they have also to keep a book to enter all the contributions; the treasurer must keep a book, and also the trustees.

2874. The money is received by the Financial Scribe? Yes.

2875. Not by the treasurer? Not by the treasurer; it is received by the Financial Scribe and handed over to the treasurer, and if it exceeds a certain sum in his hands he must pay it over to the trustees, when it is paid into the Bank.

2876. Can you say if the books are kept in a clear and concise manner? In the majority of cases they are.

2877. Have there been any complaints made by members that they have paid contributions and not had credit for them? There have been some complaints made, and an investigation has taken place.

2878. In many cases has it been found that money has been received and not accounted for? There have not been many cases.

2879. Do you know of any cases of officers having used the moneys received for their own purposes? Yes, two instances in subordinate Lodges.

2880. And what steps have been taken? In one case the man was prosecuted, and I think he got nine months in gaol; in the other case the man absconded to Melbourne, and the Division not being registered did not prosecute.

2881. Was one of those cases in connection with a Division called the Perseverance? No.

2882.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.

3 Feb., 1882.

Mr. C. T.
Peirce.

6 Feb. 1882.

- Mr. C. T. Peirce.
6 Feb., 1882.
2882. Have you heard of such a case occurring with that Division? No.
2883. Do you know a Mr. Fowles? I do; he has been Secretary for some years.
2884. Have you heard from him of any such case? No, I have not.
2885. Can you state, Mr. Peirce, if any of the Divisions, either Sons or Daughters, have failed to meet their just liabilities through not having the funds? No, I have never known one single instance.
2886. Have you known any case in which sick pay due has been withheld for want of funds? I have never known it to be withheld, though I have known Lodges, by unanimous vote, to suspend sick pay for three or six months.
2887. For what purpose? When they found their funds getting below a certain amount.
2888. Do you think they are empowered to do that? I think so, if the Lodge at a summoned meeting carry it by unanimous vote.
2889. And I suppose to those who are on the sick funds it is discontinued? They have the privilege of voting by proxy if not present, and if they vote against it they receive their sick pay.
2890. Are the men usually appointed as auditors competent to examine and certify to the correctness of the accounts? I have generally found that the auditors have been chosen from amongst the most competent men in the Divisions.
2891. Do you find the returns sent in and certified by these auditors usually correct? So far as the funds are concerned they have been always correct.
2892. But the secretary's part has been incorrect? Yes, they have been incorrect; that I find has arisen mainly from a change of secretaries.
2893. Are the accounts always certified to by the number of auditors appointed? All the accounts that are sent to me must be audited before they are sent.
2894. And signed by one or more? Signed by the secretary and countersigned by the Worthy Patriarch.
2895. And auditors? They sign the balance-sheet presented to the Lodge.
2896. Are you in favour of a proper audit being conducted by a Government officer? No.
2897. You think the present system is sufficiently satisfactory? I think that if auditors are to be appointed they should be appointed by the Grand Lodges; I would favour that.
2898. Would you favour a simple uniform system of book-keeping for all subordinate Lodges? I would.
2899. Is it a portion of your balancing for the National, Grand, and Subordinate Divisions to make up their balances simultaneously? No; the Grand Division year ends in October, and I have to submit an annual balance to the Grand Divisions made up to 30th September. Then for the National Division I have to submit an annual statement made up from the Subordinate Division returns to 31st December.
2900. Does the Grand Lodge incur any expense that they have to make a claim on the National Division for? No, not the Grand Division.
2901. Does it have a claim on subordinate Lodges? No, it is all done by levy; the Grand Division makes a levy at the annual meeting in October, which the subordinate Lodges have to pay. The National Division makes a levy on the Divisions, which is fixed at the annual meeting of the National Division in March.
2902. Is your death rate increasing as age comes on the Society? It slightly increased, I believe, last year, which we regard as an exceptional year in our Order.
2903. Can you tell how many Divisions expended more than they received last year? No, I cannot.
2904. There were some, I presume? There have been some.
2905. You think last year was an exceptionally heavy year? I do.
2906. Is there any provision made in your Society by which you will relieve members who travel in search of work, or in case of shipwreck, or if he loses his tools by fire? Not for the latter, but when he wishes to travel to the other Colonies he is granted a travelling card which is recognised all through the Colonies.
2907. And this gets him relief if he requires it? Yes.
2908. Are you in favour of a compulsory quinquennial valuation of the Societies' liabilities and assets? Yes, to be made by the Societies themselves.
2909. Not by a Government officer? They would have to be sent on to a Government officer.
2910. Have you known of cases in which the trustees of the Divisions have acted independently of the majority of the Society by whom they were elected? No.
2911. Has your Society paid the Registrar much in fees? We have had to pay him a guinea for every set of by-laws he has registered, and 5s. for every alteration in each rule.
2912. Do you think these fees should be the private perquisites of the Registrar or go into the Government funds? I think they should go to the Government funds.
2913. Have you known any cases where members have gained admission into your Society through the laxity of the medical examination? Never.
2914. Never had any claims on the Sick Funds from sufferers from old chronic diseases? They have not come under my notice.
2915. Have you known any difficulty arise in getting a conviction against any offender through the information not being made by the proper officer? No; we had one instance where we had a little difficulty in recovering a Bank-book in our own Grand Lodge, but the matter was amicably arranged before coming on for a second hearing.
2916. Would you approve of a clause in a new Act providing for the summary conviction of an offender, with punishment by fine or imprisonment, on the complaint of any member authorized by the Society, the trustees, or the committee of management? I would.
2917. Have you ever known any members of your Society become charges on the public Charities of the Colony? No, never.
2918. Do I understand you to say that you think the State ought to interfere no further in the working of these Societies than by framing for their guidance a simple general law? That is it.
2919. Would you enforce in a new Act a regular annual audit under Government supervision? I would; in all new sets of by-laws that come before me I have to see that provision is made for an annual audit; and if not I forward to the Lodge a good rule for them to adopt to embrace that.
2920. Do the members of your Order exert any influence in dealing with members of your Society who may violate your laws; do you deal with them on purely commercial principles or from a philanthropic standpoint? Well, that is one of our fundamental principles, and if they break it a charge is made, and that charge is investigated.
2921. Do you allow for brotherhood? It is not allowed to interfere.

2922. You deal with it, then, simply from a business stand-point? Decidedly; it would not be fair to make flesh of one and fish of another.

2923. Are any of your funds expended in testimonials, picnics, or tea-meetings, or spent in any other way than those authorized by the law? No, they are all got up by subscription.

2924. Would you be in favour of Lodges being allowed to lend money to their own members on good security? I think the Government security is best, and I would prefer to see it invested in the Banks.

2925. Do you think that a Society that meets its liabilities in the year and carries forward a few pounds is doing well? Yes.

2926. Without calculation as to how liabilities increase during the year? We have had the experience of many years' working, and that shows that where they are always able to pay their way and carry forward a surplus they must be sound, although from an actuarial point of view they might not be so considered.

2927. Mr. Smith.] Could you give the Commission any idea of the number of Lodges that have been brought into existence under your jurisdiction since the establishment of the Society? It is doubtful whether I should be able to give a correct return, though I might possibly be able to do it; I will try.

2928. Also the number of Lodges that have ceased to exist? Yes, I think I could show that also. The difficulty with me is that ours was the first Grand Lodge started in the Colony; from it have sprung other Grand Lodges which took over some of our subordinate Lodges, and whether they exist now or not I could not say, because the record would be kept by other Grand Scribes, and not by me.

2929. Then I understand you are not in a position to supply the information that would be required in a return giving all the Lodges established since the organization existed in the Colony, and the number of Lodges that have ceased to exist up to the end of last year, the funds and property belonging to these distinct Lodges, and what became of it? That I am not in a position to supply.

2930. Mr. Langley.] Is there any one person or persons who could give the information? Well, that information could be supplied by each Grand Scribe for his own Grand Division.

2931. If the Most Worthy Scribe was requested to obtain the information for the Commission could he do so? Yes.

2932. Mr. Smith.] Have any of the officers in connection with your Society been guilty of tampering with the funds or misappropriating them? Mr. Abigail asked that.

2933. There is a Temperance Lodge at Newtown; is that under your jurisdiction? Yes.

2934. It was possessed of some property, was it not? It was.

2935. Do you know anything about the way in which they became possessed of that property? I believe they bought the ground in the first instance and built a small hall; they then pulled down the little hall and built a large one, for which they had to borrow something like half the cost.

2936. And the other half? I cannot say exactly how it was raised.

2937. Subscribed by the general public, was it not? Some of it I believe was, and some by the members of the Lodge.

2938. And you say they do not hold that property now? No.

2939. How was it vested? It was vested in the names of seven or eight trustees.

2940. Did they endeavour in any way to dispose of that property? The trustees appeared to be always quarrelling amongst themselves as to what should be done with the property. One died, and I believe the widow claimed her right under her husband's will; another went to Honolulu, and another to England. There were at the end only one or two remaining in Newtown.

2941. What became of them? I believe they are still living.

2942. Have they disposed of the property? Yes, I believe so.

2943. Was it sold by the trustees? No, by the mortgagee.

2944. Is it not a fact that the Lodge itself created a trust over and above the heads of the original trustees? That I cannot fully answer, because there used to be a great deal of talk about the trustees, and I used to get fogged about the matter; there was a separate trust for the hall.

2945. Did not the Lodge create a trust for the purpose of trying to dispose of the property at auction? They consented to the disposal of the property, but the mortgagee was the seller, with the consent of the remaining members of the Division.

2946. Was it not the fact that the Lodge was the seller, with the consent of the mortgagee? No.

2947. I am speaking of the first attempt at a sale? I am speaking of the actual sale.

2948. I believe the Lodge appointed trustees in order that they might give a title to the property, and they proceeded to sell with the consent of the mortgagee? I never knew of that.

2949. Is it within your knowledge that the property was put up for sale by Richardson & Wrench and not sold? It was sold by them. I may state that the same Lodge has a member in the Lunatic Asylum, and they have to pay his benefits to the Master in Lunacy.

2950. Is it a fact that the hall was sold? Yes.

2951. It was sold by the Lodge? The mortgagee sold, with the consent of the Lodge; they were in arrears with their interest.

2952. Did it realize any more than the amount of the mortgage? Yes.

2953. Much more? I cannot say how much more.

2954. Mr. Abigail.] Can you say whether the members' money subscribed for sick benefits was expended in the purchase or building of that hall? Some portion was paid out of the general funds.

2955. And for that have they had any return? They have had a return so far that they have been meeting in the hall for years without paying rent.

2956. Mr. Smith.] Are you aware of this officially? No, not officially, only as a visitor to the Lodge.

Mr. Nathaniel Pidgeon sworn and examined:—

2957. President.] Do you occupy a similar position to that of the gentleman just examined? Just the same, only in another part of the City—the Sydney West or No. 9 Grand Division.

2958. That is, you represent another Division? Yes, another Grand Division.

2959. Is there any difference as to rules between the Division you represent and that represented by Mr. Peirce? Not the slightest.

2960. You have the same rules, the same regulations, the same contributions, and the same sick and funeral funds? Yes.

- Mr. N. Pidgeon. 2961. Then you could give us no further information as to the principles or rules of the Order? No, not a bit.
- 6 Feb., 1882. 2962. Have you paid any attention to the working of the Act as far as it affects Benefit Societies? I have paid attention to it as a member of a Friendly Society for the last fifteen years.
2963. The more recent Act—have you paid any attention to that? I cannot say I have.
2964. Have you found any inconvenience in connection with the working of the Act? No, I cannot say that I have.
2965. Is there anything in the Act that you think requires amendment? The only thing I can see in the Act is that it is doubtful whether a Division can sue for arrears of contributions; in some cases these have been recovered and in others not.
2966. Do you think the law should provide that these contributions should be recoverable at a Court of Justice? Yes.
2967. Do you know whether the present Act militates against the working of the Friendly Societies? No, I am not aware that it does; I do not know of anything.
2968. You know of nothing in the law where any amendment is required? No. I think as far as the Act itself is concerned a great deal less of it would do for Friendly Societies, and it would be better if the Societies were left more to themselves.
2969. Thus it would be better if there were an Act of Parliament referring to Benefit Societies only, without mixing them up with Building and other Societies? Just so.
2970. You have a Grand Lodge attached to these Divisions? Yes.
2971. That is the executive government of the whole body? Yes.
2972. All these Grand Divisions are subject and subservient to the National Division? Yes.
2973. That is the executive government? Yes.
2974. And there is no distinction between yours and that of Mr. Peirce? No, it is just the same thing.
2975. Mr. Smith.] You have been fifteen years identified with the Order? Yes.
2976. And during a great portion of that time you have held office? Yes.
2977. Can you give an opinion as to the financial standing of your Order at present? I think the financial standing of the Order is very good—I do not see that there is anything bad with it.
2978. Do you think the amount of contributions paid by your members for the benefits you propose to give them is ample? I think so, quite.
2979. Mr. Davies.] Can you tell the total number of members you have under your jurisdiction? Yes; 444 Sons and 363 Daughters.
2980. Up to what date is that? December, 1881.
2981. What are the total receipts for the year 1881 for the Sons? £1,256 7s. 1d.
2982. And for the Daughters? £491 9s. 0½d.
2983. What has been paid on account of sick pay for the Sons? £275 9s. 3d.
2984. And on behalf of the Daughters? £96 10s.
2985. What has been paid on account of medical attendance? For Daughters, £221 16s. 6d.; for Sons, £485 19s. 2d.
2986. What amount of money has been paid on account of working expenses? For Sons, £151 8s. 6d.; Daughters, £18 12s. 8d.
2987. What do you include in working expenses? Salaries, rent, and the usual working, such as postage and stationery.
2988. What amount of capitation fees have you paid? £17 4s. 2d. for the Daughters, £46 5s. 9d. for the Sons.
2989. What amount have you paid on behalf of the Sons for funeral donations? £122 10s. 4d.
2990. And Daughters? £46 8s. 2d.
2991. During the time you have been Grand Scribe have you experienced any difficulty in meeting your financial engagements? No, except in one case, when a Division has collapsed; no other difficulty. All the Divisions I know of are able to meet their engagements.
2992. And they have always been able to do so? Yes.
2993. Has it at any time come under your observation that the contributions or initiation fees have not been equal to the amount of demand likely to be made on these Divisions to meet their obligations? No, it has not.
2994. What are the accumulated funds of the Divisions under your jurisdiction? £926 for Daughters, and £2,031 17s. 4d. for Sons.
2995. What number of new members have you admitted? Forty-one Sons and sixty-nine Daughters.
2996. What number have ceased to be members during the year? Forty-eight Daughters expelled for non-payment of dues, and thirty-four Sons.
2997. Have any been re-admitted? Yes, four Sons.
2998. I gathered from what you stated that you did not know of any defect in the Act except in the particulars you have referred to? No, not that I am aware of.
2999. Is there anything you would suggest in any future legislation? Well, there is one thing, about members joining Friendly Societies and shirking their obligations by allowing themselves to run out. For instance, a member will join, paying an initiation fee of 10s., and will perhaps require the services of a doctor, which he gets directly, and after he has received these services, say for an accouchement, he can then leave the Lodge altogether; in fact, he could just join for the purpose of receiving this benefit. I know we have suffered through that.
3000. In your Lodges do you have a uniform initiation fee? Yes.
3001. And uniform contributions? Yes.
3002. And uniform benefits? Yes.
3003. What allowance do you make in case of sickness or accident? A guinea for Sons, and 11s. for Daughters.
3004. And what funeral donation in the case of Sons? £20. In some Divisions £25, and the sliding scale goes up as high as £30.
3005. And are you in favour of a uniform initiation fee? Yes.
3006. And of uniform rates and benefits? Yes.
3007. What is your opinion as to deciding disputes between members and the Division; are you in favour of an Arbitration Board? Yes, I am, decidedly.

Mr.
N. Pidgeon.

6 Feb., 1882.

3008. That all matters of dispute shall be settled by arbitration rather than by going to a Court of law? I am.
3009. Mr. Langley.] You have informed the President that there is not much alteration as you think required in the present Friendly Societies Act: do you think it has been carried out by yourself or any other officer connected with your Society? It has been carried out as far as I am concerned; I can speak for myself, but as to the other officers of subordinate Lodges I cannot say.
3010. Have you been an officer of subordinate Lodge? I have, yes.
3011. Do you think the present Act is workable in these clauses with regard to trustees? Well, I do not see that there is any great difficulty about the working of the Act.
3012. Did you, when an officer of subordinate Lodge, ever attempt to carry them out? Yes, I believe we did do so.
3013. Did you ever, as an officer of subordinate Lodge, see that no moneys were disbursed but through the trustees? The ordinary working expenses, no; the other money must come through the trustees; but there is always a current amount kept to meet medical charges and so on.
3014. But the trustees have no dealing with that? No.
3015. Then they do not carry out the requirements of the Act? Well, they have no power over the money in the treasurer's hands.
3016. Then do you think it advisable to have an Act the provisions of which will be overridden and neglected in this way? Oh no.
3017. Would it not be wise to have an alteration in that? I think, so far as that is concerned, it would be wise to have an alteration.
3018. Mr. Rubie.] Is it within your knowledge that any of your Divisions have suspended sick pay? Yes, they have.
3019. And should a man get sick during that time, how is he paid? He is not paid at all; but I think in the case in which it was done they endeavoured to make it up by private subscription.
3020. The funds of the Lodge were not sufficient? No.
3021. In the opening of new Lodges, is there any remission made of the entrance fee? No.
3022. The full fees are always charged? Yes.
3023. Does the Grand Lodge bear any part of the expense of opening new Lodges? They do, a little; but a charter fee is paid by the applicants, and other expenses incurred might be met partly out of the Grand Division funds.
3024. Are your funds invested? Yes, I believe they are.
3025. In the names of trustees? Yes.
3026. How are they invested? In the Savings' Bank, as a rule.
3027. Not otherwise? I believe there is one instance where there is some money invested in a hall at Balmain.
3028. Does that belong to a Division? Yes, to the Division that lent the funds.
3029. Do your officers give security? I think not, as a rule.
3030. You are not aware of any defalcations by any officer? Well, I have heard of a defalcation, but I know nothing of it officially. But there was a defalcation before the Society was registered; it has been registered since.
3031. You do not know of it officially? I know it by receiving the books of the Division which has collapsed.
3032. Was that defalcation made good? No, I believe not; it was to the amount of £9.
3033. You stated just now that all your contributions were the same, but they are not in all Divisions? All under my control.
3034. There are certain Divisions that have a sliding scale? Yes.
3035. Are you acquainted with the working of that sliding scale? No, I never paid much attention to it.
3036. Then you would not be in a position to offer any opinion as to the amounts charged being sufficient to meet the obligations? No.
3037. Are you of opinion that it would be necessary to have an actuary to make calculations for proper payments to Benefit Societies? I think it would be a benefit.
3038. Do you think any Society should be registered that would not adopt some actuarial calculation? I think they should not be registered or allowed to be in existence unless they were considered sound.
3039. Mr. Slade.] You spoke of one of your Divisions suspending benefits for a time;—did they suspend the law relating to sick pay for a time, or simply let it lie dormant? Just so, they suspended it for a fixed time.
3040. They were registered at the time, were they? I am not in a position to say; they have been registered since.
3041. You are aware that the Act provides that in all alterations of laws the members shall be summoned? Yes.
3042. Do you not consider that this was altering a law? No.
3043. Then it was not done in the way of an alteration of the law, but was allowed to stand aside? Yes; it was just suspended, and not altered in any way.
3044. Mr. Gelding.] Is this (produced) a specimen of your book-keeping? It is an abstract of the quarterly returns.
3045. President.] Do you wish to add anything to your evidence or make any suggestion or statement in reference to this matter? No, I do not think there is anything.
3046. If you think of anything that strikes you, will you add it as an appendix to your evidence? I will, with pleasure.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 10 February.

Mr. William Owen Fox sworn and examined:—

- Mr. W. O. Fox.
10 Feb., 1882.
3047. Chairman.] What office do you hold? District Secretary of the Ancient Order of Foresters.
3048. How long have you held the office? Nearly twenty-four years—since 1858.
3049. How many subordinate Lodges are under your District? Twenty-one now; there is one under suspension.
3050. What is the gross number of members under your District or Grand Lodge? 1,480 I think, by the last returns.
3051. What is the total amount of the accumulated funds of the several Lodges? You mean with the District as well?
3052. Yes, the total value of the funds? £8,870 17s. 10d.
3053. How are these funds invested? Mainly in the Savings' Bank, with the exception of the District funds, which are invested in freehold property; it is an investment of the Society in the hall.
3054. What was the total expenditure on account of sick pay and medical attendance during last year? I have not the returns in for last year.
3055. Could you tell us what it was for the previous year, 1880? I could not tell now—I have not the books necessary to show it here.
3056. I suppose you would not be able to tell the Commission what the expenditure for management was during that year? Not for all, but I could for the District and the Lodge I am a member of. Until lately it has never been forwarded from the subordinate Branches or Courts.
3057. They did not make returns then? I am not positive; I believe there was a return last year, but some of them filled them up so badly and incorrectly that they were not published.
3058. Could you tell the amount paid on account of funeral donations last year? Yes, £510.
3059. Could you tell the amount paid on account of sick pay? I have not the returns in, and they will not be in for another month.
3060. Would you have any objection to provide the information for the Commission? Not the slightest.
3061. If you could do so in writing it could be appended to your evidence? Yes.
3062. You have had a large experience in the working of Friendly Societies? Yes, I think I know something about them.
3063. In connection with your Order, has it at any time come under your notice that any of the subordinate Lodges were in a position unable to meet their financial obligations? I think there is one now, but never before.
3064. How does that arise? I cannot say for a certainty, until I have seen the officers of the Branch; their idea is to wind up, as they have had so much bad luck and sickness.
3065. In connection with your Order, do you have uniform initiation fees in all the subordinate Lodges? Yes, all the same.
3066. And contributions? No, I think each Branch has power to fix its own.
3067. Then they vary? I believe they do.
3068. What are the contributions paid? The one I belong to pays 12½d. a week, and there is a shilling superannuation levy each quarter.
3069. What is it applied to? When a member meets with an accident, or otherwise incapacitates himself from doing his usual labour he gets 6s. a week from this fund, and his contributions cease, while the Branch furnishes him with medical attendance.
3070. From this fund? No, from their own funds.
3071. In the long experience you have had, have you found any difficulty or defect in the present Friendly Societies Act? No, I do not know that I have.
3072. You have not found any inconvenience in any way? No.
3073. And you have not found it defective in affording protection to the members of your Order? It has never come to my knowledge.
3074. Do you know of any particular in which the Act might be amended in order to make it more useful? Yes, I think it should provide means for all Societies to pay an amount that would keep them perfectly solvent, so as to give them the benefits they are promised. I think until the Act compels them to do that they will not do it. In referring to graduated contributions, I think persons will go where they can get the best benefits, and if it were compulsory to charge graduated payments, there would be no fear of Societies not meeting their engagements.
3075. Then you are in favour of graduated payments? Yes, it is the only safe basis for a Society.
3076. Would you apply the same rule to initiation fees, or make them uniform? That would not so much matter if the contributions were graduated.
3077. And what would be a fair contribution for a young man of twenty-one or twenty-two joining a Lodge? Not less than 8d. nor more than 10d.
3078. And a man of thirty? 13½d. or 14d.
3079. And at the age of forty? From the age of thirty-six I think they should rise to 1s. 6d., but I would not admit members over forty on any account. It has come under my notice that when Societies have graduated contributions that their funds are in a most flourishing condition.
3080. Can you tell me the number of members initiated into the Order during last year? 291 admitted during the year.
3081. How many have been suspended or expelled during that time for non-payment of dues? Ninety.
3082. Any others expelled? There has been one expelled in one of the country Branches. There have been twenty deaths of members, and nine of members' wives during the year.

Mr.
W. O. Fox.
10 Feb., 1882.

3083. You do not know the average per member sick pay? I could not tell now, but I will forward it to the Commission as soon as I get it.
3084. And in any other particular can you suggest an amendment of the Act? I cannot call it to mind just now.
3085. In reference to dealing with matters of dispute what arrangements have you? We have an Arbitration Committee of twelve, appointed yearly.
3086. Do they settle all matters of dispute? Yes; but each of the Subordinate Courts has an Appeal Committee of its own.
3087. Then you do not resort to the Law Courts to decide disputes? No.
3088. How do you find this act? Extremely well.
3089. Have you or any of your Secretaries or office-bearers had occasion to summon any of your members for nonpayment of contributions? No, not in the Branch to which I belong.
3090. Mr. Greville.] You spoke of a Society which was unable to meet its financial engagements? Yes, I did.
3091. Under the rules of your Order, what protection is there to the members who have been contributing? Well, there is a rule that members can apply, by clearance, to be admitted into other Branches, and should they fail to gain admittance there is a provision that they can fall on the District.
3092. Will the nonfulfilment of its financial obligations cause any injury to its members? I cannot say exactly until I see the books; I only know of it by word of mouth now.
3093. Does the fact of a Lodge not being able to fulfil its financial obligations cause hardship to the members? It would, of course, if any of them fell sick.
3094. Will the Grand Lodge step in and protect these members? They would have to apply to be admitted into others first, and if they could not gain admittance the District would take them. The only hardship there would be is that members might be sick at the time and the Lodge be unable to pay them.
3095. Will the Grand Lodge or any other body find the contributions for these sick members? Oh yes; but there is a contribution to be paid to the District as well.*
3096. What I want to arrive at is whether the members of the Lodges are protected in case of a Lodge being unable to meet its financial engagements? As I said before, they are, by getting clearances to be admitted to other Branches, and in case they cannot get admitted they can fall back on the District. They do not suffer, as a matter of course.
3097. Can the District Lodge refuse to take these members? No.
3098. Mr. Langley.] Following up that question—suppose a Lodge breaks up, who is to grant the clearances? The members apply for clearances beforehand.
3099. But I speak of a member who is a distance away; is there any way in which he can come on the Grand Lodge or District? As a matter of course every member would know of the business to be transacted.
3100. I am sure you must know that that is impossible in one sense. I am speaking of a man up in the country, while often in town there are numbers of members who do not know what goes on? We have never had a case of this kind; Branches that could not manage before have amalgamated with those that could. The only answer I can give is what the rule says.
3101. I simply ask, if a member is up the country and cannot get a clearance, what protection would he get? He would have equal rights with other members; those out of town are protected just as much as those in it, the main fact being that we would not debar him from his rights.
